LUBBOCK'S CRYING NEED IS A BIGGER HOTEL

Lubbock Morning Avalanche

VOL. 2, NO. 143

LUBBOCK, LUBBOCK COUNTY, TEXAS, SUNDAY, APRIL 13, 1924

FULL LEASED WIRE UNITED NEWS

HOUSE VOTES JAP EXCLUSION BILL

WILSON NAMED AS DELEGATE TO DISTRICT MEET

WILL REPRESENT LUBBOCK CO. IN SELECTION OF CENTENNIAL BOARD

At a meeting of the Chamber of Commerce Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock, to which representatives from all business, civic, women's, labor, farmer and municipal clubs, of this county were invited, Roscoe Wilson of this city, was elected as Lubbock County's delegate to the Senatorial Convention to be held in Lubbock next Saturday for the purpose of electing two directors to the Board of Directors for the Centennial Celebration.

Every county in Texas held a meeting this afternoon for the purpose of electing delegates to the Senatorial Conventions which will be held in the thirty-one districts next Saturday.

Each Senatorial district will elect two directors at their meetings next Saturday. These sixty-two delegates will elect twenty-nine directors at large, the Governor will appoint five, the Lieutenant Governor, two, and the speaker of the House of Representatives two, making a total of one hundred.

When the complete board of 100 has been chosen, formal organization will be effected and the board will have control of its own affairs. Power conferred under the terms of the Centennial resolution are broad.

"This board shall have full power to do all things necessary in the direction and accomplishment of this undertaking including the selection of time and place of this Centennial Celebration, and also its character and scope," it is declared in the resolution.

Twenty-four counties will send delegates to the District Convention in Lubbock on next Saturday, April 19th, this convention will elect two directors to represent this district.

WOMAN SLASHES THROATS OF HER FOUR CHILDREN

ELGIN, Ill., April 12.—Temporary insanity brought on by financial worries drove Mrs. Sven Carlson to cut the throats of her four children and then attempt suicide in the same way, police stated tonight. One of the children died, another probably will die and two others will recover.

Mrs. Carlson is also expected to recover. The tragedy occurred on the Carlson farm, near here early today while her husband was out of the house. Carlson, attracted by the screams of the children ran into the house and found his wife prostrate across the body of their three-year old daughter.

THREE AVIATORS KILLED IN CRASH

LAWTON, Okla., April 12.—Three army aviators from Post Field here, were burned to death when their deHavilland plane side-slipped and fell 200 feet to the ground at Leon, Okla. shortly after noon today, according to advices to Post field officials tonight. The bodies of the victims were burned beyond recognition.

The dead: First Lt. Solomon Ebert, 30, Dubois, Iowa; Corporal Emmett J. Reese, 24, Norman, Okla.; Private Emmett Marse, 23, Leon, Okla. All were members of the 44th observation squadron attached to Post field. The party was on an official flying tour.

PROBERS OF MAL DAUGHERTY TO CONTINUE

WASHINGTON, April 12.—Bailed in its attempt to get at the bank account of former Attorney General Daugherty and Jesse Smith the senate committee tonight laid plans to overcome the legal obstacles thrown in its way for a more relentless scrutiny of Daugherty's financial affairs.

Chairman Brookhart was by no means discouraged over the failure of the committee to force its way into the Midland National Bank of Washington Court House, Ohio, owned by M. F. Daugherty, brother of the Attorney general.

"On the contrary," said Brookhart, "I regard the testimony taken in Ohio as the most significant evidence that has yet been produced before the committee."

The testimony of John Phelon, the bank examiner, who was permitted to make a brief study of the bank's books, indicates that Harry M. Daugherty was virtually bankrupt just before becoming attorney general, but after taking office, he had nearly $75,000 deposited to his credit in his brother's bank.

Daugherty's ownership of a large block of stock in the Wright-Martin Aircraft Corporation, which is alleged to have received large overpayments from the government on war contracts, is likewise highly significant in the opinion of the committee.

QUARTER MILLION SPENT ON ELEEMOSYNARY SCHOOLS

AUSTIN, April 12.—The state expended $244,000 in March in maintaining its eleemosynary institutions according to the monthly report of the state board of control. The average cost per capita was $23.25. The home for dependent and neglected children had the highest per capita cost $81.00 while the girls training school was second the $71. Southwestern Insane Asylum at San Antonio was lowest with $13.

COOLIDGE PLEA SCORED BY REED

WOULD STRIKE MESSAGE FROM RECORD ON PLEA OF OPEN INSULT

WASHINGTON, April 12.—As the climax to hours of bitter partisan debate, Senator Reed, of Missouri, later today introduced into the senate a resolution demanding that President Coolidge's message to the senate for a resumption of present methods of investigating executive departments be stricken from the record. Reed would strike out also Secretary of the Treasury Mellon's letter which Mr. Coolidge transmitted.

Reed's demand for expunging the two documents was taken on the ground that they constituted an insult to the senate. He made a bitter speech in which he charged that the administration's desire to stop the investigation by a senate committee of the bureau of internal revenue the specific inquiry to which the president and Mellon objected—must have as its foundation some fear of disclosures certain to come if the probe was permitted to continue.

Reed's resolution complicated with new bitterness a situation already fraught with possibilities of an acute break between the president and the senate.

It made the issue between Mr. Coolidge and the senate largely a personal one and together with Senator Jones' resolution giving the revenue bureau investigation broader powers, will form the subject of even more heated debate next week.

It is likely, also, it was indicated tonight, that the president and administration leaders will confer over the week-end about the situation. Mr. Coolidge is understood to feel deeply on the matter and to regard the methods pursued in the Couden's inquiry into Secretary of the Treasury Mellon's personal business connections as so far outside the proper sphere of sensational investigation as to warrant his taking the firmest possible stand against its continuance.

Reed's resolution may command much support among the democrats and progressives, though the republicans will assail it on the ground that Mr. Coolidge has as much right to express his opinion in a message to the senate as the senate has to express its viewpoint as it often does in resolutions addressed to the president.

Altogether the situation presents a serious menace to the completion of the necessary legislation in time to permit adjournment early in June. With the tax and bonus bills coming before the senate next week and the immigration bill now pending, injection of this new issue is held likely to be seized upon by opponents of all these measures to delay their passage.

TEXAN BELIEVED DEAD FOUND IN OKLA.

PAWTHUSKA, Okla., April 12.—Missing and believed dead Jack Campbell, roadhouse proprietor here, was enroute to Texas tonight to clear up the mystery surrounding his disappearance four years ago from Eastland, Texas.

Campbell was arrested and left here early yesterday for Eastland accompanied by Texas Ranger McCoy, who carried a warrant for his arrest. According to McCoy's story to officers here, Campbell has a two year penitentiary term hanging over him on a liquor charge, discovery of a body at Eastland resembling Campbell simultaneously with his disappearance led many to believe that he was dead, according to McCoy.

Officers here declare that Campbell had lived at Tulsa and Pawthuska for the last three years.

EXECUTION OF CONVICTED RUSSIAN SPIES STAYED

MOSCOW, April 12.—Execution of the Russian spies convicted at Kiev for communicating information to the French has been stayed, it was understood here tonight. The action of the government followed a sharp exchange of notes between Foreign Minister Tchertirin and the French government, in which Russia protested vigorously in which the foreign minister termed unwarranted interference by France in Russian affairs.

SOLDIER BONUS REPORTED TO SENATE

WASHINGTON, April 12.—The soldiers bonus bill, crushed by a presidential veto after its previous passage through congress today, started on the last stage of another journey to a probable similar fate when it was ordered reported to the senate by the finance committee.

The bill as reported, was virtually the same as the measure which passed the house. It is built around a provision for 20-year endowment insurance policies for the veterans. Republican leaders will decide Monday whether it will take precedence in the senate over the tax bill. Bonus advocates urged that it be taken up first so that they will have time before the session ends to pass it over a possible veto by President Coolidge.

The committee gave only briefest consideration to the bill, reporting it after three days of discussing. Democrats interposed no objections for they will bring up their own bill providing for a cash compensation, on the floor.

STOCK JUDGERS ENTER STATE CONTESTS

Ray C. Mowery, instructor of animal husbandry in the Lubbock High School will leave this week for College Station with the four boys composing the stockjudging team to enter them in the state contests.

The team recently won first place in a district contest at Canyon where sixty three contestants were entered, and prospects are that they will make a good showing at the state and their friends won't be at all surprised if they take first place in the state.

The team representing Lubbock High last year and which was also coached by Mr. Mowery won first place at the state contest and an individual in the team went to the All-Southwestern meet at Oklahoma City where he won high honors.

GERMAN GOV'T. READY TO SUBMIT OPINION ON REPORT, CLAIMED

SCHNEIDEMUEHL, Germany, April 12.—The German Government is ready to submit immediately its opinions regarding the report of the committee of experts to the reparations commission, foreign minister Stresemann said in a political speech here tonight.

Germany will give her formal answer as soon as the reparations commission demands it, the foreign minister said.

"However," Herr Stresemann added emphatically, "the experts' recommendations can serve as a basis for discussion of a settlement of the reparations question only if the sovereignty of Germany is guaranteed without conditions."

NEGRO YOUTH SENTENCED TO DEATH FOR MURDER OF WHITE WOMAN

PRYOR, Okla., April 12.—Elias Ridge 15, negro boy, must die in the electric chair at the state prison June 13, for the murder of Mrs. George Adair, white, near Pensacola, Oklahoma, in 1922.

Seizure was passed upon the boy here at the conclusion of his second trial in connection with the murder.

Mrs. Adair was beaten and stabbed to death at her farm home and her body concealed in a hog pen. When arrested, Ridge confessed the murder, and charged he was hired to commit the deed by Hardy Smith, his uncle, a tenant on the Adair farm. Smith is serving a life term in the prison.

ELEEMOSYNARY STORE KEEPERS APPOINTED

AUSTIN, Texas, April 12.—The State Board of Control announced appointments of three storekeepers at State Eleemosynary Institutions as follows: W. E. Wickers, of Kileen, at Juvenile Training School, Gatesville; Ernest Westfall, of Humble, at East Texas Hospital for Insane at Rusk; J. K. Garrison, of Garrison at newly created insane asylum at Austin.

REJECTS PLEA OF SEC. HUGHES AND RUSHES BILL THROUGH DESPITE WARNING OF HANAHARA

By DALE VAN EVERY (UP Staff Correspondent)

WASHINGTON, April 12.—In the face of a warning that efforts of the United States to maintain the "open door" and other American policies in the Far East might be set at naught, the house today without even the formality of a record vote wrote the controversial Japanese exclusion provision into the immigration bill and then passed the bill, 322 to 71.

Rejecting appeals of Secretary of State Hughes to omit it, and ignoring Japanese Ambassador Hanahara's warning of "grave consequences" to American-Japanese relations, the house swiftly adopted the provisions, supporters of the provision serving notice that they would insist on its retention should the senate move to strike it out, even though all immigration legislation at this session be blocked.

SOMEONE WILL GO TO JAIL SAYS WHEELER

CHICAGO, April 12.—"Someone is going to jail and I'm not worrying that it will be me," Senator Burton K. Wheeler, head of the senate Daugherty investigating committee declared here today.

Wheeler reiterated his charge that the indictment returned against him by a federal grand jury in his home state, Montana was a "frame up" by persons interested in stopping the investigation of Harry M. Daugherty, former attorney general.

"I am going on with the investigation and nothing will stop me until I have finished," Wheeler declared emphatically.

"Already we have shown that Daugherty was unfitted for the post of attorney general. Before becoming attorney general, he was a poor man. Now, after three years in office, he is wealthy. We find him owning various stocks, including stock in the Wright-Martin company, which, according to the records, defrauded the government out of millions of dollars during the war. No move was ever made to prosecute the company."

"Not only has Daugherty gained wealth, but that gang from Columbus has also become wealthy."

Wheeler also attacked President Coolidge for failure to act more vigorously in the scandals and he charged the president with looking at everything from the political viewpoint.

"Mr. Coolidge's actions show that he is incapable of dealing with a situation which demands a forceful leader that will drive from office in Washington all those who have been guilty of corruption or have taken part in the gigantic conspiracy carried on by that gang of crooks."

"The refusal of Mal Daugherty, brother of the former attorney general and others at Washington Courthouse, Ohio, to testify before the senate sub-committee headed by me, shows there is something to evade," Wheeler stated.

"We will have Mal Daugherty cited for contempt," the senator declared. He will appear before the bar of the senate.

"We want to know something about the transactions carried on by the Daughertys and their friends. The people have a right to know and we intend to expose crookedness wherever we find it."

Wheeler will be back in Washington Monday, he said.

FATHER OF SLAIN BOY MAY KILL SLAYER

MIAMI, Ariz., April 12.—William Ward, convicted negro slayer of Theodore Wilbur Grosh, youthful University of Arizona student, may be sent to his death by the hand of his victim's father.

W. H. Grosh, gray haired father of the young student, has asked permission to spring the trap, and Sheriff Alf. F. Edwards, Gila county officer who captured Ward has forwarded the request to authorities at the state prison with the recommendation that it be granted.

Sheriff Edwards is willing to give the old man the bit of revenge that will come from pulling the trigger.

Ward killed Grosh and assaulted Miss Maxine Menelly, student at the state normal and daughter of a leading cattleman of the state who was riding home with Grosh on a Christmas dance.

PLANT A TREE!

Kills Self With Fire. TEXARKANA, Texas, April 12.—Mrs. Frank Young, wife of a railroad worker here, burned herself to death late today by pouring kerosene on her clothing and striking a match. She was mentally depressed, according to relatives following a nervous breakdown.

WHEN MOTHER GETS A LETTER

When Mother's had a letter, then her eyes begin to twinkle
And the joy of hearing from him seems to banish every wrinkle
I think if he could see her as she hurries for her glasses,
There would never be a morning when the gray-clad postman passes;
And I'm sure if he could hear her as she hums some cheerful ditty
She would never be forgotten by the boy that's in the city.
It's no use to sit and tell her not to worry or be fearful,
When a mother's heart is lonely, then a mother's eyes are tearful
And a mother's mind is troubled, and she's constantly referring To the dangers of the city and the accidents occurring;
But the nights I find her smiling and she says she's feeling better,
And she laughs across the tea cups then I know she's had a letter.
From the pocket of her apron she pulls out his written pages
And exultantly she tells me that he's had a raise in wages.
Then she chuckles at his humor and the story of his labors,
And I know beyond a question that she's read it to the neighbors;
And we sit and talk it over, proud as lovers newly smitten, Finding joy and satisfaction in each line our boy has written.
When Mother's had a letter, then the fears and doubts that grieve her
And the thousand things she's deadling through the silence, seem to leave her.
Then I wish unto her chuckles some glad morning he could listen,
Or could see her smile returning and her eyes begin to glisten;
Could he know the joy it gives her, then he never would forget her
And she'd never have to wonder why she doesn't get a letter.

PLEA FOR CONSTRUCTIVE PROGRAM FEATURES JEFFERSON DAY DINNER OF NATIONAL DEMOCRATIC CLUB

By United Press.

NEW YORK, April 12.—Pleas for a "constructive" democratic campaign in the coming presidential election featured the annual Jefferson day banquet of the national democratic club here tonight. Speakers ranging from J. Bruce Kramer, national committeeman, from Montana, to John W. Davis, former ambassador to the Court of St. James, stressed the necessity for a sound democratic program on the accomplishments of the party and warned against destructive criticism based on the scandal investigations in Washington. An expected boom for Governor Al Smith, of New York, for the democratic presidential nomination swindled to a mild broadside when the governor failed to appear to deliver a scheduled address.

Smith's name brought rousing cheers, however, when Governor Ritchie, of Maryland, referred to him as "democracy's favorite son" and said:

"The only thing needed to make it a perfect evening is Al Smith." Then the band played "East Side" and the democrats gave nine raps for Smith and got their hats and went home.

All in all, the Smith supporters considered it a satisfactory evening, however, and said their candidate had showed plainly his strength within the party.

Early in the evening, the word was passed around that Smith would not be present but his followers merely grinned.

"Al will come parading in at the psychological moment," they said, "and then watch the fireworks." Thomas E. Rush, president of the club and toastmaster at the banquet, started the evening's oratorical barrage with a vigorous attack on the administration which he charged "stands convicted on its record of graft, incompetency and cowardice."

Referring to the oil, veterans bureau and other scandals recently based at Washington, Rush said: "This is the normalcy they promised us in their 1920 campaign."

The different speakers keynoted in several different keys.

"The people want two things," declared Governor George S. Silzer, of New Jersey.

"They want tax reduction and they want a house cleaning. They do not want government by the 'best minds,' they want government by the 'honest minds.'"

Saying that the "GOP" stood for "graft, oil, and politics," the New Jersey governor made what was taken to be a response to President Coolidge's recent letter to the senate.

"There are those that say that investigations should be stopped," he said.

"It is a sad note that those same men are not saying that the scandals should be stopped. There can be no more important business than the expose of graft, corruption and incompetence in high places, in order that honest government may be restored."

Governor Albert E. Ritchie, of Maryland, refrained from any direct reference to the investigations in Washington. He attacked with vigor centralization in government. State rights, in the matter of prohibition as well as others, were to him the crying need of the hour.

The majority of the legislators in thirty-six states, 2,316 members can force their will on a nation of 116,000,000 people through the power of the purse.

Hart Schaffner & Marx

"What Will I Wear on Easter?"

LET THIS STORE, WITH ITS LARGE ASSORTMENT OF CORRECTLY FASHIONED MERCHANDISE ANSWER FOR YOU

Only six days more to shop for Easter—a very short time in which to complete your plans for this fashion parade. Just now this store is overflowing with the new garments of Spring. Everywhere you turn, some new spring creation catches your eye. Never has so much pretty merchandise been offered in Lubbock. In range of styles—in correctness of materials and colorings, there are so many fashion hits on display that to correctly describe this showing would be to describe each individual garment. That's why we say that answering the question of "what shall I wear for Easter" will be a very pleasant task for those who shop at our store tomorrow and this week.

IF YOUR TASTE RUNS TO DRESSES, COATS OR SUITS FOR THIS OCCASION, YOUR GARMENT IS AMONG THE SHOWING HERE

DRESSES

Silk Dresses for Easter have the greatest popularity. Garments from the varied weaves of this material are so pretty in the new shadings of this season that it is hard to resist them. In Roshanaras, Crepe Romain, Flat Crepes and Georgettes—the assortment now shown includes most striking models. Then too, many of the very prettiest styles bear a reduction in price that will make them even more desirable. You can choose a most appropriate Easter style priced as low as $17.45 or one priced up to $69.85

COATS

Spring Coats in light weights and bright Spring shades also appear. The Smart Dresses this season is sure to include a coat in her plans, especially one of these Camel-Hair ones that are shown in light tans and greys, both in solid and plaid patterns. These coats are regular $17.45 to $34.85 values, which are priced now at ONE-FOURTH OFF

HOSIERY, GLOVES AND ACCESSORIES

The Easter Costume will require many little accessories, to make it complete. Chiffon hose in the light shades—Nude, Dawn, Mellon, etc., will be desired. Fancy gloves in both silk and kid also will appear. New footwear is another necessity. All these items are ready and in just the correct tone to complete your effect. On all these items you will find correct prices prevailing.

SUITS

Many suits will be among those present on Easter morning. This season suit styles are so different from the usual run of suits of past seasons that most striking effects can be obtained. In the Boyish Form and O'Rosen style with short coats, tailored as are mens garments and with the little Fabettes and bindings to further enrich them they are indeed pretty. In hair line as well as solid and striped materials and the most varied color range. These garments are priced from $24.85 to $64.85 regular, but are reduced this week—

ONE-FOURTH OFF

BLOUSES

The popularity of the Suit has made pretty blouses again the thing. The manish trend is also seen in the cut of these blouses, which appear in the bright shades of the new season. Materials are both in silk and wash fabrics, in very dressy styles as well as tailored ones. Choose them tomorrow from a price range from $3.85 up to as high as $19.85

HATS FOR EASTER

New Hats in Mid Summer styles have been placed on display for this last week before Easter. The light fluffy effect will lend just the touch you desire to set off your Easter costume. Also many hats that are entirely correct for this occasion are being priced at a very liberal discount this week. You will find much to interest you on visiting the Millinery section of our store.

DANGER POINT NEAR SAYS EDITOR

By J. SLOE STARCHER
(Editor of The Spectator of London, Published by arrangement with the Spectator, Copyright 1924 by United News.)

LONDON, April 12.—We are approaching what I fear is going to prove one of the supreme danger points in the history of mankind.

If things go well, if that is, we can make France see that the security which she needs, and ought to have, cannot be obtained by leading the German people into despair, hate, revenge and a form of militarism far worse than that destroyed at the armistice, we may yet save civilization.

The material troubles of Europe will soon pass away—witness what has happened in Austria. It is a moral and intellectual peril which now alarms the world.

The German elections, which will be fought in view of the conditions prevailing in the Ruhr, and the Rhineland, can hardly fail to produce fresh dangers and difficulties. White communities, surging with tempestuous passions, who see their fellow citizens held down by black troops commanded by officers filled with fierce suspicion and inspired by the teachings of a political philosophy such as ruined Louis XVI, and the two Napoleons will be asked to express their will as to the political future.

In such circumstances can we do anything but assume the overthrow of the comparatively peaceful and timid democratic government now in power in Germany?

But a triumph for the soldiers and the nationalists, the men who want to hit back, no matter what their weakness, will inflame the French what always inflames them most—an intangible fear. They will react to an instinctive desire to meet danger half way by a homicidal fury.

This means that the French elections are likely to prove an all foundation for that general European settlement which must be made if we are to solve the problem of the political nightmare which we have so strangely named "the peace," a peace, alas, which passes understanding.

REGULAR SERVICES AT THE METHODIST CHURCH SUNDAY

The regular services will be held at the Methodist church today.

The church membership feels the loss in the death of Dr. Ferguson, but they shall carry on the work as best they can, and endeavor to have regular services at the church. B. W. Dodson, pastor of Slaton, and one of the strong preachers of the Northwest Texas Conference will preach twice at the church Sunday. All other services will also be held Sunday school at 9:30, Laymen's service at three o'clock, League at the regular hour and preaching at night.

It is expected that a successor to Dr. Ferguson will be appointed by the Bishop before Sunday, though will probably not be able to get here to fill the pulpit but there will be services by someone.

The new pipe organ will be used today, in both Sunday school and preaching services, and you will greatly enjoy the services. The music will be exceptionally fine. Come and hear it.

LIFE—AS SHE IS.

Some woman walks hand in hand with death and we are born. Passion, more than often unbidden and far from welcome—these be the things which create and greet us. Colic and cramp and frequent misdirected acre; flies and fevers and fits and measles and mumps; eventually school with its dreary monotony and senseless endeavor. Then love butts in and from that momentous minute trouble begins. Whether you get her or she gets you, or the other fellow gets what you thought you couldn't live without, really heartstrings—unspeakable longing for the unattainable, with the final attendant uncertainty of a David Harum-hostrade.

And then there's life, with its ever-empty flour barrel; the always absurd bank balance or overdraft; the double-cross from the fellow to whom you have always been a friend; gossip and greed and gross injustice; the work and worry of ceaseless toil and abject effort; politics, investigations and wormy prunes; financial, social and household griefs which, often approach the horrors of a sure-enough red-hot hades, the treadmill of existence which is always a tragedy, and a happiness which at best is shot full of holes and garnished with a gray gayety.

Then comes, to many the most deplorable document that was ever issued or permitted by our government, the order of divorce, and its use seems to be growing more and more common, and its popularity more general in the United States, in fact, the statistics say that.

Then comes what we consider one of the most unfortunate and the most deplorable documents that our government ever sanctioned, and which seems to be increasing more and more each year, the divorce. There are many alleged causes for the continual growth of the number of this document. First the roller skating rink and its dizzy whirl; then the bicycle and its attendant opportunities for devilry; then the automobile—and there we linger a moment only, for the airship has possibilities of getting into the clouds out of the realms of space where even the human mind is lost. The old globe whirled round and round on its axis at the rate of more than a thousand miles an hour—but it's got to move on to keep up with the prospective procession of the next generation or two, believe me.

IT WAS A BUSY DAY.

Yesterday was a busy day. It was one of those typical Lubbock days. The merchants were busy, and there were many cars in town. The traffic was heavy, and the streets were crowded with cars parked and running every which way. The city authorities soon saw the necessity of placing traffic officers at the intersections of Broadway and I and also at 11th and I, which was a very wise provision. The heavy traffic was well handled and accidents avoided that might have happened otherwise. Our city has grown to the point where something of this kind must be invoked, and we are sure that the Commission will take care of the situation in good shape. Traveling men tell us that Lubbock has more people in it every day than any other town in their territory in West Texas, and this is a pretty good indication that Lubbock merchants are about the best patronized of any other town. They all had a busy day, Saturday, and in fact, they are enjoying a mighty liberal patronage every day.

ON TO BROWNWOOD.

The strong minds of the city are of the opinion that it is highly important that Lubbock send a strong delegation to Brownwood to attend the West Texas Chamber of Commerce Convention, which is to be held there in May. It is very important in as much as this is the city that was selected for the location of the Texas Tech College. Lubbock is not selfish in this respect, we all know, but we should show our unselfishness in the matter by attending the meeting in big numbers.

The Junior Chamber of Commerce here is carrying on the campaign, and is solidly backed by the Senior organization, and you should certainly show your appreciation of the work of these organizations by signing up for the trip, and then attending when the time comes.

We believe that it will be money well spent for the betterment of Lubbock, and a good investment so far as the individual or firm is concerned.

Removal and destruction of half a million unsightly advertising signs and billboards along public highways has just been completed by employees of the State Highway Department as part of Minnesota's contribution to the nation-wide campaign to save beauty spots.

BILL MCADOO'S CHANCES.

According to information just received here from reliable sources, William Gibbs McAdoo's forces have in mind plans which, if it be found wise to put into operation, will give the "bosses" of the Democratic National Convention the surprise of their lives.

McAdoo will enter the convention with more delegates pledged to his candidacy than any other aspirant for the nomination, possibly with as high as forty per cent of the delegates pledged to support him, at his present rate of winning primaries.

If this continues, then, McAdoo will be in a strong position, quite as strong, in fact, as Murphy, Brennan and Taggart. His power to throw a monkey wrench in the machinery will be quite equal with others. The only point is, can he keep it there, or will the old-timers be able to steal his strength and flatten him out.

The deciding factor, of course, will be the uninstructed delegates, and it will be in that arena that the real circus performance will take place.
The issue will rest on the ability of the McAdoo managers to trade more skilfully than Murphy, Brennan and Taggart.

McAdoo, of course, recognizes the fact that neither Wall Street nor Tammany want him and that consequently he will face bitter opposition from New York. He knows, too, that under the two-thirds rule he has scarcely a chance to land the nomination under any circumstances. However, if he can manage to gain sufficient additions to his backing from among the uninstructed delegates to total 51 per cent of the votes, there is little doubt that before the voting begins the proposal will be made to abrogate the two-thirds rule and to permit a majority vote to decide the nomination.

The convention by majority vote can abolish the two-thirds rule. If that fight be won, then the nomination of McAdoo is practically a certainty.

The master card will be played at the convention. If the two-third rule prevails, then the Taggart-Murphy-Brennan forces will block Mc-Adoo and, in turn, McAdoo will have sufficient delegates to block their candidate with the consequent result that a "dark horse" would be nominated.

BOOTLEGGING

The officers say there is a lot of bootlegging going on. They know it because they are constantly running in people on charges of this kind.
Lubbock officers are active; and for that reason they know that these violations are going on and they are anxious that they be given the closest co-operation possible in catching the violators. You can be of great assistance to the peace officers, not only in getting a line on the violations, but you should follow the case into the courts and help in the conviction of those who are guilty, and turning loose those who are innocent. There is absolutely no excuse for a fellow to violate the law by bootlegging. It is just simply a mean low-down nature, and when a fellow chooses to violate the laws of his country in this way, it is because he just naturally wants to do something mean. The cost of catching these fellows is some time heavy.
The cost of convicting them is also great, but the campaign should be relentlessly carried on.
To this end one Montana man has suggested that the penalty for bootlegging be a flogging in a public place, believing that this will have a tendency to stop the practice quicker than anything else.
Fines payable in money will not stop bootleggers as they can easily make back their money and go on violating the law. It is thought by some that a jail sentence is too severe for the offense, but we do not think that one is entitled to any real consideration when it comes to punishment for the offenses.

POLITICAL ROT OR CAMPAIGN THUNDER.

Every two years every newspaper office is flooded with armful of political rot, with the release date so and so, or, please give this space in your valuable paper, or some sort of request.
It is all advertising and those fellows running for office have the gall to ask that all of their stuff be published. So far as this paper is concerned, we are under no obligations to any of them, and the sooner they realize this the more pleasant it will be for us. If all the newspapers would chuck all of this rot in the waste basket, they would very soon quit sending out so much of it, for it costs them a lot of money, but is well spent as long as they can get a few of the newspapers to publish their thunder, free of charge.

ONE HUNDRED YEARS, TOO LONG.

Commenting on the Muscle Shoals situation, the Mining Congree Journal says that this property should be given to no individual or corporation for $5,000,000 when the scrap value of the property is worth at least $11,000,000, and that to lease Muscle Shoals under any other terms or conditions than those of the Federal Water Power Act, which governs the distribution of power, would be unfair to those now operating under its provisions elsewhere.

Nowadays there is overmuch talk about "self-expression," especially in artistic circles, but we hear little about self-examination with a view to self-correction and moral spiritual improvement.
Possibly one reason for this is that the latter task,
if approached with genuine sincerity, is difficult, and that blissful self-satisfaction resents any disturbance of its serenity.

A plan to let the government pay the campaign expenses of candidates for public office is proposed by William J. Bryan. Recalling that President Roosevelt once suggested some such arrangement, Mr. Bryan said the senate disclosures had prepared the public for the plan, and advocated action so it could be employed in the 1924 campaign.

NOW FOR A REAL WAR—

By MORRIS

Protected by George Matthew Adams

This Week

The Senate Interstate Commerce Committee votes unanimously to give farm products the lowest possible transportation rate on railroads. It's a good idea, for farmers, and good for those that eat farm products.

But what about the middleman?
Cut the freight rates all you please, and that won't help the farmer if the middleman cuts the reduction in freight from the price he pays the farmer.

And it won't help the consumer if a middleman adds to the cost of food what is saved in the freight rate.

At the little ferry that crosses the Hudson River opposite Kingston, N. Y., farmers were unloading magnificent apples in barrels. The price at which the farmer sold them was about 3 for a cent. At a little stand inside the ferry house a lady with a pleasant face was selling apples not so good—price 10 cents apiece.

You can't do much for that situation until you do something about controlling middlemen.

Scientists fear the approach of another Ice Age. The last one lasted 1,000 years, long enough to make human beings forget almost all they had learned.

It would be hard on business, real estate and prosperity generally, if we should have two or three years of winter, with no summer between, and then ice gradually creeping down from the Pole (covering the continent, as far South as San Francisco, or Santa Barbara.

But perhaps it won't happen, or science might handle the situation with artificial heating. Anyway, it would not disturb old earth. She has still several hundred million years to live. We are only 12,000 years from the Stone Age. It matters little to Mother Earth whether we become civilized now or forget our lore and postpone civilization 100,000 years more. Nature is not in a hurry. There are living animals whose evolution represents ten million years, the whale, for instance, that used to live on land and was smaller than a gray squirrel.

Colonel Bryan need not believe that, if he doesn't want to. It's only what scientists say.

William Ferree, war veteran, has had two-thirds of his stomach removed and has gained thirty-five pounds in weight. He is now able to work and enjoy life.

Nature and science combined work wonders, and will take care of us, if we give them half a chance.
Many a man with his stomach whole would be better off with half of it if he learned to take care of what he had left. If men, occasionally, would throw into a pail what they throw half-chewed into their stomachs, and then look at the pail, they would know why so many die too soon.

With Standard Oil setting the example, fifteen great corporations have agreed to discontinue roadside advertising that disfigures landscapes. Manufacturers of tires, automobiles, soap, flour, motor parts, oil, yeasts and products are included among corporations that will discontinue disfiguring the landscape with billboard advertising.

This is more than a concession to public opinion and good taste; it is also good business. Roadside advertising is wasteful advertising.

Learned Harvard gentlemen—who might be more usefully employed—will undertake thought transmission, or telepathy, from Harvard to Paris, across the Atlantic Ocean. It's a harmless gas-timate, and if the gentlemen on both sides have enough imagination they will believe that they have accomplished something.

Meanwhile it is fortunate for the human race that slowly, through the ages, men have learned with the spoken and printed word, that they can transfer thought from one brain to another satisfactorily. There never will be any such thing as telepathy on this limited planet.

Most foolish activity is the attack made on Mr. Mellon, Secretary of the Treasury. Those that attack him should think him for his service to the Government.

No longer a young man, overworked, with gigantic interests of his own that needed his attention and that nobody else could attend to, he dropped his own business and took up the financial affairs of the United States.

He did this at a time when, as everybody knows, the best brain in the country was needed to manage United States finances.

He has managed finances well has made possible reduction intaxation, has cut down by hundreds of millions yearly the national debt.

He is giving to the public, for the salary of a junior clerk, the service of one of the ablest business and financial minds in the United States. He should be thanked, not nagged.

BAD WEATHER AGAIN
HALTS WORLD FLYERS

SITKA, Alaska, April 12.—Asserted winter weather again held up the scheduled departure of the four round the world planes here today.

Fog, rain and high wind combined to keep the planes out of the air and securely tied up in the shelter of the cove.

The planes have been ready for two days to get away to Cordova, and according to weather forecasts tonight they may be able to sail northward tomorrow.

Major Fredk. Martin, chief of the army squad of fliers, said he and his men are in fine fettle.

TALE OF COWBOY PUNISHMENT REVEALED

By United Press
AMARILLO, Texas, April 12.—
Texas cowboys have taken to branding the tenderfoot instead of the cattle.

William Wisch, 38, who ran away from his Chicago home five months ago and went to work on the famous JA Ranch, tonight appealed to authorities here to help him find the cowboys who he said had branded him.

He exhibited an arm, swollen and sore bearing the JA Ranch mark. He said after he had worked a week, three cowboys seized him and two companions, also new at the work and marked them with red hot branding irons on the left arm.
Wisch said the torturers then carried the three to Clarendon where they were kept in captivity with poor food for three weeks.
Finally Wisch escaped and came here seeking to have the men arrested.

J. W. Kemp, manager of the ranch, says the youth's story is pure fabrication and that neither the youth or two other boys he says were with him and also were branded, ever worked on his ranch.

The boy, however, insists that his story is true. He declares that he and his two companions, a Mexican and a German boy, whose names he could not give, worked on the ranch a week.

He declares that three cowboys threw him and his friends to the ground, branded their forearm and then "dumped" them in Clarendon.

The incident happened three weeks ago, according to Wisch, who says he "bummed" his way to Amarillo after he was left in Clarendon.
He says he does not know where the other boys went.

Wisch asserts there had been no trouble between him and his companions and the ranch workers and that he knows no reason for them branding them.

He says two of the men who branded him were regular employes of the ranch and that the other man was a visitor on the ranch.

27,305 Bonfield Street, Chicago.
He admits he ran away from home five months ago "to see what Texas was like."

Police here are investigating the lad's story and seeking work for him.

Wisch is being cared for by authorities here.
His two companions have not been located and he did not know their name.

Road Equipment Asked.

By United Press
AUSTIN, Texas, April 12.—Request has been renewed by the State Highway Commission that the state board of control purchase $3, 000,000 of road construction equipment for the highway department. The matter has been referred to the attorney general for advice.

WITH FOUR NEW MANAGERS COMING SEASON AMERICAN LEAGUE PROMISE MANY SENSATIONS, YANKS FAVORITE

By HENRY L. FARRELL, (United Press Sports Editor)
NEW YORK, April 12.—Just for the reason that the New York Yankees are expected by the majority of the baseball critics to be set for another stroll to the championship, the American League pennant race has the possibility of tremendous sensation that would develop if the Yankees should not live up to form.

It is more or less accepted that the Giants should fall in the National League, one of two contending teams would win the pennant, but in the American League, it would become almost an open contest if the Yankees should happen to stumble and fall by the way side.

On the assumption that baseball is too certain to accept the position of the Yankees as unprejudiced fly or six teams stand for the pennant in the American League.

Since 1914, when the Boston Braves upset all calculations in the National League by trailing behind the pack until July and then stepping out and winning the pennant, a critic can give any team a pleasant chance without risking his hide before the pistol of an assassin.

Four new managers have been appointed in the American League since the season closed last fall, one team has been completely reorganized, one team has been tremendously strengthened and one has been improved.

Lee Fohl, with the Boston Red Sox; Frank Chance, with Chicago White Sox; Buck Harris, with the Washington Senators, and George Sisler, with the St. Louis Browns, are the new pilots. Because they have new managers, who may introduce new policies and whose leadership may exert some kind of a new inspiration, these clubs cannot be figured on past performances.

The Boston Red Sox have been reorganized from top to bottom with new owners and a new manager. The club has been strengthened by the addition of Steve O'Neill, one of the great catchers; by Wambezana, a fine second baseman; Bobby Veach, slugging outfielder; and by Dudley Lee, a rookie shortstop, who has been hailed as a sensation by veteran baseball scouts.

By the use of substantial cash, Connie Mack has added to the Philadelphia Athletics Strand and Simmons, two highly-touted young outfielders, and Max Bishop, a promising second baseman from the fine Baltimore club. For two years Mack hasn't needed much to be "up there," and perhaps these three players will be the needed "much."

The Cleveland Indians, at a sacrifice, succeeded in getting George Burns back from Boston, a position that has been weak since Doc Johnson's legs went back on him.

St. Louis is to gamble on the success that Manager George Sisler has in his attempt to play first base again. With a Sisler in anything approaching old-time form, the Browns are a pennant contender; without him they are in a battle for the first division.

As it will be observed, the American League clubs, with the exception of the Yankees, are all uncertain quantities. The Yankees are certain only by the exercise of an opinion that a piece of mechanism, almost perfect on a baseball blueprint, will function as such when it is put into action and that there are no worn parts in the machine that are likely to give way under the strain of hard work.

Quite naturally, Babe Ruth will be a feature of the American League. The Babe, when he starts out to slide, will attract almost as much attention and as much conversation as he did when he was in the zenith of his power.

There is no reason to predict that the Babe is going to slide this year. On the contrary, there are abundant causes to believe that he will be as valuable to his team and as spectacular a player as he ever has been.

Perhaps Ruth will not make a new home-run record. He has announced the ambition of hitting 60. It is likely that he will fail to break his own record, but he will be an interesting Babe to watch, even when he is failing. He says that he wants to win the batting championship of the league and it is quite possible that he will succeed. The Babe, getting two out of three or three out of four every day, with a homer or two scattered among the more humble hits, will be a tremendous card and he will keep the league in conversation even if the Yankees win the race on one leg.

The fight for second and third places, which carry a cut of the world's series money to the winners, will have to be the feature of the race if the Yankees run to form, and it should be a good fight to watch.

While there are two teams in the National League race that can be assigned to the last holes without much of an argument, there isn't a team in the American League that is sure of finishing seventh or eighth.

Strength among the clubs that will challenge the Yankees for the championship is more evenly divided than the contending power in the National League, and it is bound to result in a more interesting contest.

FIRPO, INCENSED AT ACTION OF RICKARD SOON TO LEAVE FOR U. S. SAID

By United Press
BUENOS AIRES, April 12.—Luis Angel Firpo, South American champion who returned today from a short trip to Montevideo, has booked passage for the United States on the Southern Cross, which is to sail on April 24. It was reported here today.

From a source close to Firpo, it was understood that he had not decided upon the exact date of his departure for the United States, but that he is certain to leave within a few weeks.

Reports called to the United States that Firpo had decided to retire from the ring never were taken seriously here and it was considered certain that he would seek more big money matches in the United States by all who have been in intimate touch with him. Firpo, it is understood, gave Hugo Garfield, who sailed a few days ago for the United States, the authority to accept tentatively any good offers that were made to him by American promoters.

Firpo apparently is chagrined at his failure to outpoint Tex Rickard in the battle of wits that they have waged for several months, and he is incensed that Rickard ignored him by sending transportation money to Quentin Romero and Ernie Spalla, two fighters whom Firpo regards as being much below his class.

WHITE SOX WIN 10-INNING AFFAIR FROM GIANTS EVENING SERIES

By United Press
CHICAGO, Ill., April 12.—The White Sox pulled up an even terms with the Giants in their series by winning a 10 inning game today 2 to 1.

Hughie McQuillen, starting in the box for the Giants, was injured in sliding to third base in the fifth inning and was removed from the game. Dennis Gearin replacing him. Charlie Robertson, George Connolly and Ted Lyons, pitched for the Sox.

Two other players were injured besides McQuillen, Jackson being struck in the head by a bad bounding grounder and Clyde Crouse being forced out with an injury to his right hand from a foul tip.

The score by innings:
Giants: 000 010 000 0-1-6-3.
White Sox: 000 001 000 1-2-8-1.
McQuillen, Gearin and Snyder; Robertson, Connolly, Lyons and Schalk, Crouse, Burns. Umpires: Klem and Holmes.

ATHLETICS HIT STRIDE AND DEFEAT PHILS 5-1

By United Press
PHILADELPHIA, Pa., April 12.—The Athletics got back into their stride this afternoon and took the Phillies into camp, five to one.

The victory today gives the Athletics two out of the five games series played against the Fletcher men.

The score:
Phillies: 1:8:3.
Athletics: 5:13:1.
Batteries: Glangner and Henline; Hart and Keenan.

TIMELY HITTING WINS FOR REDS OVER INDIANS

By United Press
CINCINNATI, Ohio, April 12.—Timely hitting by the Reds defeated the Cleveland Indians here today.

With two down in the ninth, Burns doubled, scoring Carl Mays with the winning run. Cleveland made fourteen hits to the Reds eight.

The score was four to three. Yuhle pitched the entire game for the Indians. Burns, of Cleveland knocked one over left field fence in the fourth, one of the few times such a long hit has ever been made at the local park.

BROWNS DEFEAT CARDS IN PRE-SEASON "OPENER"

By United Press
ST. LOUIS, Mo., April 12.—Before a record crowd of 25,000 fans, the two St. Louis big league baseball teams staged their own season's opening here today in the city series, the Browns trimming the Cardinals 4 to 1. The second and last game of the series will be played Sunday.

The score:
Browns 4:8:1.
Cardinals 1:6:1.
Batteries: Pruett, Shocker and Severid; Sherdel and Holm.

MAJOR LEAGUE PENNANT CHASE OPENS TUESDAY

By United Press
NEW YORK, April 12.—With the usual predictions for tight competition, increased interest and bigger business, the major league pennant races will start the 1924 season next Tuesday afternoon.

The national league will get under way with Chicago at St. Louis

Pittsburg at Cincinnati; Brooklyn at New York; and Boston at Philadelphia.

The American League will open with St. Louis at Chicago; Cleveland at Detroit; Philadelphia at Washington; and New York at Boston.

SOONERS MAKE CLEAN SWEEP OF KANSAS SERIES

By United Press
NORMAN, Okla., April 12.—Oklahoma University made a clean sweep of the two game series with the Kansas Aggies, winning the second diamond tussle 10 to 1 here today.

Today's game was the last Sooners appearance in a Missouri Valley game on the home field for the season.

ROBINS DOWN YANKES IN FIRST HOME STAND

By United Press
NEW YORK, April 12.—Playing their first game before a New York audience since they became the champions of the world, the New York Yankees disappointed a crowd of 15,000 this afternoon when they were beaten by the Brooklyn Robins by a score of 10 to 8.

The Robins came from behind and scored five runs in the ninth inning. Deacon Scott and Wally Pipp hit homers for the Yankees and Jack Fournier hit one for the Robins.

INTER-ALLIED CONFERENCE PROBABLE

By WEBB MILLER
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

PARIS, April 12.—The next big phase of progress toward a general settlement of the financial problems of Europe will be the calling of an interallied conference at which the question of interallied debts and European debts to the United States will be raised.

This was the almost unanimous belief of French observers tonight as the nation debated the action of the reparations commission in accepting the Dawes report.

It is known that Premier Poincare maintains the standpoint that there can not be any final settlement of the reparations problem until the questions of interallied debts and debts to the United States are settled one way or the other.

Poincare maintains France must get 26 billion gold marks from Germany plus enough to settle the interallied debt to the United States, unless these debts are otherwise settled.

It is believed this question will probably be raised by the Germans themselves in their reply to the reparations commission because they undoubtedly will demand the total amount of their debt be determined finally before accepting the expert's plan.

Certain of the allied experts attempted to discuss the interallied debts at the outset of the Dawes committee meetings; it is learned, but the Americans flatly and vigorously refused to allow this question to be injected into the deliberations.

The prompt action of the reparations commission in adopting the Dawes report has caused widespread satisfaction here. Authoritative sources emphasize the acceptance is a basis for solution of the tangled post-war problems, but doesn't mean that the reparations commission has not the right to modify or add to the plan. However, it is the French belief that the acceptance means the commission is disposed to follow the main lines of the experts' program.

The Journal des Debates says Germany will be in an untenable position if she rebels against the conclusions of the international experts.

"Germany cried for the experts committees," the newspaper says. "Thinking France would refuse the plan. Now she is caught in her own trap."

REAL SERVICE STATION VISITED BY MANY OPENING DAY

The Real Service Station celebrated its first day in business in Lubbock Saturday when the management gave each customer of the place a quart of lubricating oil and a box of candy.

At five o'clock in the afternoon over 2000 patrons had been served by the ten men employed at the station, and they were kept busy until late in the evening.

MELLON CHARACTERIZES ATTACK AS PERSONAL

By United Press
PITTSBURG, Pa., April 12.—Defending his administration of the treasury department, Secretary Andrew W. Mellon tonight in an address at a banquet given here in his honor, characterized the senate probe of the internal revenue bureau as "a personal attack upon me or an effort to develop scandal."

"Unless some end is brought to this unnecessary interference, the government will largely cease to function. Public service is now a target for public abuse, not an honor."

ANOTHER ATTEMPT FAILS TO PRODUCE K. K. K. BOOKS

By United Press
HOUSTON, Texas, April 12.—Another attempt of the officials of the Knights of the Ku Klux Klan Inc., to require George Kimbro, Jr., former grand goblin for the Mississippi Valley Domain to produce the books of the office, failed today here when Judge Ewing Boyd, of the 55th district court denied the application of the attorneys representing the Klan for an appointment of an auditor.

The Klan contends Kimbro is indebted to the order and that the books are necessary to determine the indebtedness.

NEFF REFUSES COMMENT ON M'ADOO SPEECHES

By United Press
AUSTIN, Texas, April 12.—Governor Neff refrained Saturday from making any comment on the Texas speeches of Wm. G. McAdoo. He was engaged in the greater of the day in preparing his speech to be delivered at Cleburne next Monday night, it to be the first of a series of speeches which the governor will make over the state between now and May 3. In all of his addresses he will urge the sending of democrats of Texas of an unimpaired delegation to the national convention in New York.

a year on her dressmaker." Jiggs: "Then what did you do?" Biggs: "I married her dressmaker."

Unmasked Little Mary was out in the yard the other day when old Tabby came around the corner of the house carrying a kitten by the nap of the

WINDY WOLF SAYS:

Speaking of spring poetry, this is what the recent snow did to the editor of one of our newspaper friends.

The outside world is changed into a veritable fairyland of sparkling diamonds, and the snow-covered landscape with silver fringe and over the earth is a carpet of glass. All day long old sol has tried to break through his barriers of clouds to smile upon the wondrous scene, but so far his attempts have been unsuccessful. May tomorrow bring him better luck.

The most unhappy men or women in the world are the ones who are always looking for those who think they are better than I am. It is just a mere form of egotism. Nobody cares much how you look or how you feel. I never think about anybody as being better than I am because I know they ain't. I used to have that feeling of awe in seeing a governor or a senator or a president of the United States and would feel uplifted for a week if I got to shake hands with the great man. I have discovered that about all the difference between us is a Prince Albert coat and a lot of false dignity. There is no use being unhappy because somebody else holds a higher position or has more money than you. He may have a lot of troubles you know nothing about. When election time rolls around I am sure that most men holding high places are not half as happy trying to get elected again as I am in trying to keep them from being elected or trying to help them to be elected.

My, how times have changed! I can remember when a jit had quite a lot of kick to it; when you could take an old, thin dime and go and have a fancy time, I can remember when two bits would shock a bell-hop into fits, and when you could produce a half and even make a barber laugh.

I can remember when a plunk would purchase for you quite a hunk of porthouse or let you go and have a seat at some good show. I can remember when two hucks would buy for you a brace of ducks, and when, if you could show a "V" you were in good society.

I can even remember when I proudly flashed a new-laid ten, and on a modest twenty-five for one whole month I'd stay alive. And when a bird had fifty beans he had a fortune in his jeans. A hundred berries was a price beyond the dream of avarice.

I've seen the tides of commerce flow. I've seen those moneys come and go. They used to be a husky hunch and a nickel packed a punch. Yes, I remember when a jit had quite a lot of kick to it. There's just one answer to be told—I must be getting pretty old.

Lubbock has been called by some of her proud citizens the state's fashionplate for homes. While this may be true people's tastes in architecture differ as a certain Lubbock business man found out when his new domicile was referred to by someone as a "hay barn". Another representative Lubbock citizen who owns one of the city's finest residences must have received a shock recently when his young son referred to it as the swellest filling station in town. But a real estate agent claims to have heard the best one from an elderly couple who drove by one of Lubbock's newest homes the other day scrutinizing it closely. He overheard the woman say to her husband, "I tell you it IS a house."

A Lubbock woman whose husband is a radio fan is wondering if the Merry Old Chief or somebody couldn't manage to broadcast a program at seven o'clock in the morning—a kind of getting up concert. When her husband sits up until morning listening to the Night-hawk Frolic, alarm clocks have no effect whatever.

EUROPE NOW ON THRESHOLD LASTING PEACE PENDING ACCEPTANCE REPARATIONS REPORT, KEEN SAYS

By ED. L. KEEN.
(Gen. European Mgr. U. P.)
Copyright 1924, by United Press.
LONDON, April 12.—Europe stands on a threshold whence the first step well may be towards her eventual reconciliation.

At least the Dawes report has accomplished its initial purpose. It has brought conflicting parties in the European muddle all to the same threshold and pointed out the direction of the first step.

Promise of promised acceptance of the experts' plan by Germany, contained in Berlin dispatches today, means that the all-important start in a common direction may soon be made.

"It's up to Germany," a member of the reparations commission said today, "there is no reason why Germany should hesitate at the start. She may eventually balk and hinder success of the undertaking, but in the beginning she has everything to gain and nothing to lose."

A look at the proposed first step in the Dawes plan will reveal this. After the reparations commission has received a formal statement from the Marx government and Premier Poincaré has had his talk with Premier MacDonald about securities and economic sanctions in the Ruhr in case Germany makes a false move, the elaborate machinery devised by General Dawes and his fellow business men can be put together.

Before this machine has finished its task, it may be unrecognizable. Its functions and eventual working out may be changed many times before the last mark of reparations debt is paid.

But in the beginning everyone accepts it as it stands.

The first practical steps toward final consummation of the experts' dream of a rehabilitation of Germany grinding out reparations payments on schedule time is establishment of the gold bank of Emission.

Inseparable from this project is the floating of a loan of $800,000,000 gold marks outside of Germany. It will be seen that the statesmen of the reich can find little to Germany's disadvantage in these.

Careful provision was made by the experts that none of this gold should get into Germany. For it to do so requires a unanimous vote of the expert board of directors, on which the allies and neutrals have equal representation with Germany.

The opening phases of the Dawes plan involve the United States more perhaps than any other country save Germany.

This is one reason for the optimism from allied capitals today regarding the initial functioning of the scheme.

In the first place, the allies expect that the loan will be raised largely in America. In the second they intend to see that the United States has prominent representation on the various boards of control, either official or unofficially.

The allies feel that they finally have involved the United States in a reparations settlement, and a feeling was put out in Paris yesterday that the reparations director who will be a sort of judge Landis of reparations, will be an American.

They do not mind that the American government is still outside. American business men—and money—seems to be coming in.

The first step will be informal and probably confidential conferences between business men of England and the United States and possibly France, as to how the loan is to be raised. With these conferences, the wheels start turning—all in one direction, for once.

WIFE OF THAW TO OPEN FIGHT ON SANITY PLEA

By United Press.
ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., April 12.—"I came back from hell for my baby and I'm not going to let his father cheat him of his chance now," Evelyn Nesbit Thaw declared in an interview with the United News.

Miss Nesbit, plaything of fate before and after her marriage to Harry Thaw, sprang a sensation today when her attorneys filed a petition in Philadelphia, asking permission to show that Thaw still is insane and that his release from Pennsylvania hospital would jeopardize the financial interests of her

The move comes on the eve of a hearing before a jury to determine the mental condition of the millionaire, with a view to obtaining his release from the asylum in which he has been confined since the spring of 1917.

"Harry K. Thaw is not fit to be free," Miss Nesbit said. "He is a menace and I intend to fight his release to the bitter end. I am taking this action primarily for the protection of my son, Russell, and his interests."

"Of course, I come second, as a matter of fact, nothing matters about me. It does matter very much about Russell. He must be protected. If Thaw gets out, he is likely to squander, as usual, everything he has and everything that is coming to Russell as his son."

"Harry is likely to do all sorts of things. It is not unlikely six months after his release that there will be another shooting case. I feel sure of that. Not that I know of anyone toward whom his enmity would be directed, but because his general mental condition is such that these things would almost certainly happen."

but I know Harry Thaw. No one knows him better than I do. I will be a repetition of the Gump case."

Gump was a boy with whose abduction and assault Thaw was charged.

Evelyn Nesbit's petition re-opens an argument that has endured since 1909 when Russell was born. She claims Thaw was the boy's father.

Thus at the hour when Thaw, perpetrator of the most sensational killing of a generation, seeks freedom after seven years confinement that followed another serious offense, his former wife moves against him on behalf of a child.

Owing to Thaw's mental state he is not fit to be at large and if he is released from the hospital he will dissipate his own estate and that of his father and thereby deprive his and my own son, Russell William Thaw, of rightful inheritance in the estate," Evelyn's petition reads.

Probably there never was a couple for whom the vicissitudes of for tune brought higher and lower estate.

Harry Thaw came to New York from Pittsburgh with a fortune of $80,000 a year to dissipate. Before he landed in his latest asylum he had shot and killed Stanford White, the greatest of American architects, he was imprisoned and later incarcerated in the Mattewan asylum for the insane; he spent a fortune in his own defense; he escaped from the asylum in 1913, reached Canada, was brought back to New Hampshire and returned to the Tombs two years later after the most famous legal battle in Massachusetts history. After nine years, and 21 days of imprisonment since killing White, Thaw stepped forth a free man when the jury found him sane.

Within two years, Thaw was indicted for inducing a youth named Frank Gump to come from Long Beach, California, to New York, the climax coming when the millionaire was charged with tying the boy to a bed post and abusing him. Thaw was hunted for two years and found on a bed in a private home in Philadelphia, his life's blood flowing from wounds where he had slashed his throat and wrists. They patched him up and found him insane again, and since then Thaw has been in Philadelphia asylums. The move to free him was started some time ago.

Governor Ritchie singled out the department of agriculture, the bureau of public roads, the children's bureau and the federal trade commission as example of national bureaus handling the work that he claimed should be the state's right. He also decried the Sterling-Tower bill, now before congress which would create a department of education.

The work of these bureaus could be more cheaply and efficiently handled by the individual states, said the Maryland governor.

FAMOUS AIRMAN KILLED SELF SATURDAY

RIO DE JANEIRO, April 12.
The suicide of E. Pinto Martins, Brazilian air hero and a member of the crew of the hydroplane Sampaio Correa II in the flight from New York to Rio de Janeiro last year, was the result of an unhappy love affair with Mme. Aida widely known South American cabaret singer, it was learned here tonight.

The aviator died in the arms of the singer, after sending a bullet crashing through his brain.

It is also reported that Martins had quarreled with Walter Hinton, pilot of the plane, over financial matters in connection with the flight.

Romantic Rio de Janeiro saw the suicide as a tragic end to the career of the young airman who had dropped almost into oblivion after being hailed as a national hero when he stepped from a seaplane in Guanabara Bay one rainy morning more than a year ago at the successful conclusion of the first flight from the United States to Brazil.

Pinto Martins was an unknown when the news of the proposed New York Rio de Janeiro flight first was cabled down early in 1923. Newspapers finally found he was the son of a small shop keeper in a town near Pernambuco who had gone to New York and arranged the flight largely through his own initiative.

Immediately all Brazil hailed Pinto as a hero, and followed every detail of the flight down the Atlantic coast, the disaster to the first seaplane off Cuba, the series of troubles the aviators experienced in crossing the uninhabited jungles along the mouth of the Amazon and the final success when the big plane winged its way into the harbor and alighted at the wharf of the International Exposition, then under way.

For two weeks the aviators were wined, dined and cheered as he-

MARKETS

rees, getting an ovation only a little less enthusiastic than had been accorded the Portuguese aviators Gago Coutinho and Saccadura Cabral when they completed a transatlantic flight from Lisbon a few months earlier.

Then Rio went back to work and Pinto Martins, liking the role of a hero, kept up a play for cheers by frequenting the score of night clubs where dancing girls of a dozen nations vie with Bacarat, Chemin de Fer and Roulette in making Brazil's capital one of the gayest night life cities in the world.

Debt and trouble followed and Martins ended it all today with a bullet.

NATIONAL MEET Y. W. C. A. TO BE HELD IN N. Y.

NEW YORK, April 12.—The national convention of the Young Women's Christian Association will be held in New York City from April 30 to May 6. Headquarters will be at the Hotel Commodore.

For the three thousand women delegates New York women have arranged an elaborate social program of entertainment and diversion opening their clubs and their homes.
These official hostesses are the board members of the Young Women's Christian Association of New York.

On Hostess Day, Friday, May 2, a series of luncheons will be given.
The preceding evening, Thursday, May 1, a reception will be held at the Metropolitan Museum in honor of the delegates. In the receiving line will be New York city board members, the national board members and 30 other women prominent in the social and civic life of New York.

Daily throughout the convention innumerable special tours and other hospitalities will be scheduled, the delegates taking their choice of the special events. Open house will be kept by all New York City associations.

13 ADDITIONAL MEN ARE ARRESTED FOLLOWING RECENT TOWN RIOT

LILLY, Pa., April 12.—Total arrests in connection with the fatal rioting here a week ago between members of the K. K. Klux Klan and townsfolk grew to forty tonight, when thirteen residents here were taken into custody and lodged in the county jail at Ebensburg on charges of murder, rioting and carrying concealed weapons.
Twenty-seven alleged Klansmen, previously arrested on charges of inciting a riot and murder, were already held in jail without bail.

Counsel for the thirteen townfolk arrested tonight immediately applied for a writ of habeas corpus.
Preliminary hearing on the writ will be held Monday.

Early Days on The Plains

By J. J. DILLARD

In one of my articles I paid tribute to the early blizzards but I recall two who followed their profession in Lubbock in the early days, that I forgot to mention.

G. B. Bragg, for a number of years, was one of the early settlers and operated a shop in various locations in town and about 1904, he moved to Gomez, in Terry county, where he died several years ago.

Another that was among the early ones, was W. P. (Preedy) Phenix, who was quite a tinker with iron and fire, and he invented and patented a special type of monkey wrench. Uncle Press, as he was familiarly called, was with us as early as 1898 and prior, I remember he was an eccentric. He was never married. Everyone who knew him, addressed him as Uncle Press, and one day at the noon meal, at the Nicolet Hotel Thad Tubbs addressed him as Uncle Press, and he replied that he did not appreciate the term, and Thad replied to Uncle Press' astonishment, "that any d--- fool should consider it an honor to be called uncle." He, several years later, moved to Tahoka and followed his trade in that place until his death.

Another individual that was in town in its early history making was F. L. Phenix, known as Frank, who was a carpenter, and built many of the early residences in Lubbock, all having been destroyed by being torn down. Phenix moved to California about the year 1903, making the trip overland in a two-horse wagon.

Chas. Doak was another of those early settlers in Lubbock and operated a blacksmith shop in partnership with a Mr. Slover, a cousin to our present county treasurer. He later moved to Lynn county and was its first sheriff and tax collector.

Some time ago I mentioned J. B. Jones as one of the early surveyors, who was here in the beginning, then Uncle Geo. Hunt followed this profession for a number of years, being succeeded by W. R. Standefer, of block "RG" fame, and the noted section 141 corner in Crosby county. Mr. Standefer came to Lubbock in 1900, and followed his profession for a number of years and settled many of the additions and subdivisions of the town. He was firm in his convictions, and under no circumstances could he be driven from his position without positive proof to the contrary. The writer knew him intimately and he is my friend today. He resides at Wilson, Lynn county, and takes much interest in discussion of the early history of this country and his experiences on surveying excursions and visits to various county site towns within hundreds of miles of Lubbock, to examine records, bearing on boundaries. Others came about that date. One I recall, was Captain C. W. Holt, a Kentuckian by birth. The Captain was a highly educated gentleman, in fact, a scholar. I remember he informed me that he was educated for the ministry, as his parents wished him to follow this profession, a minister in the Old School Presbyterian church, but he rebelled and drifted away from home in his early manhood, living in New York City for several years, and was in charge of many large engineering projects in mining in Arizona, Nevada and Old Mexico, also large irrigation concerns which had immense holdings in Arizona.

The Captain attached himself to the Catholic church, after he reached the age of 25 years and died a devout member of that organization, about the year 1910.

Nelson K. Smith was another one of the pioneer surveyors in this section. Smith lived at Plainview and did much work in his line on the large ranches of the Plains. He died a number of years ago at Plainview.

Col. R. P. Smith of Plainview was another one of the frontiersmen who did much work in Hale and adjoining counties. He at one time resided at Estacado and was associated with the law firm of Earnest & Shepherd, formerly of Colorado City. C. H. Earnest and F. L. Shepherd composed a prominent firm of lawyers who had an extensive practice in this section for a number of years.

I recall a picnic at Lubbock on July 4, 1901, which was attended by practically the entire citizenship of this county, Crosby and Hale. I remember that in the afternoon, for the amusement of the visitors, we staged a broncho busting expedition on the block now occupied by the Leader, Simmons Furniture Company and the Lubbock Auto Company. I don't now recall the names nor owners of the out-law horses, but I remember that Bob Tubbs was one of the contesting riders, and that he rode a vicious dun horse, that had been used for some two or three years as a buggy horse and had been well cared for and was stout and put on one of the most wicked exhibitions of pitching that the writer ever witnessed. Others who made were Frank Tubbs and Ed Standefer. Ed died a few years ago near Wilson, Texas. Frank Tubbs resides in Dallas.

At the above mentioned picnic, a sixty-five dollar saddle was the prize for the best rider, and was won by Bob Tubbs, who at that time was about nineteen years old and manager of the McCarty ranch located near the west line of Hockley county.

To emphasize the thrills that comes to all who have had the pleasure of an exhibition of "Bronco Busting" I reproduce the following rhyme, by an unknown author.

We was camped upon the plains,
On the head of ther Yellowhouse Canyon.

When er fellow come along

And stops to auger some

Such an eddicated feller

His talk jes' comes in herds,

And he 'stonished all the natives

With them jaw-breaking words.

He spoke erbout ther weather,

And ropes and spurs add things,

But did not seem to know much

'Bout working on ther range.

We axed erbout his breakfast,

He had not had a sniff.

So, 'spond er 'bout chubbies

And bade him he's himself.

He took a plate er beef,

A biscuit and some beans,

And begun to eat and tell us

'Bout furren kings and queens,

And bout the Spanish war,

And fightin' on the seas,

With guns es bigger 'round es steers

And ramrods bigger'n trees.

And a feller name of Dewey,

A fightin' son of a gun,

Who wuz the grittiest one

That ever pulled a gun.

He jest kept er blawin'!

Till he made the boys all sick,

And they commenced to plan.

Jest how to play er trick,

They looked at him all over.

And begun to wink erround,

They guessed he was a green horn.

That had escaped from town.

So when he finished eatin'

And put his plate away,

He lit a cigarette.

To puff the time er way.

He said he'd lost his job

Down close to Santa Fe,

And has crossed ther plains

To strike the TD's.

Did not say how come it,

Some trouble with the boss.

But said he'd like to get

A fresh, fat saddle horse.

This tickled ther boys ter death.

They laughed down in ther sleeves.

And said they'd loan him one.

As fresh and fat as you please

Shorty grabbed a lariat,

And roped a Zebra Dun.

And turned him over to the stranger

And waited to see the fun.

Now Dun was a rocky out-law.

That had got so awfully wild.

He could paw the white from the moon.

Every jump for a mile

But Dun jest stood plum still

And dit not seem ter know

That the stranger had him saddled

And wuz fixin' up ter go.

When ther stranger hit ther saddle

Dun quit the earth.

And traveled right straight up.

For all thet he was worth.

That old boss he bucked and bawled,

Jes' like er yearlin' calf.

But the stranger warmed his flank

Ez we commenced ter laugh.

We could see ther top of ther

Under Dunny every jump.

But that er feller was growed thar

Jest like er camels hump.

He thumbed him in the shoulders,

And spurred him when he whirled
To show us flunk punchers That he wuz ther wolf of the world.

He sot there in the saddle.

Er pullin' his mustache.

Jest like a summer boarder

Er waitin' for his cash.

Old Dun wuz standin' on his head.

Er havin' wall-eyed fits.

With his hind feet perpendicular

And his fore one on his bits.

The old boss give it up.

And let the stranger ride.

Although he hated it.

And would a ruther died.

When that ere chap dismounted

Once more upon the ground.

We recognized a thoroughbred

And not a gent from town.

Ther boss wuz standin' by Er watchin' of ther show.

And he took ther stranger off.

And told him he needn't ter go.

"Yer needn't leave this camp

'Onless yer wantin' go.

We'll jest give yer a job

SECRETARY HOOVER EXPLAINS RADIO REGULATIONS

Secretary Hoover made a talk over the radio from a Washington broadcasting station which should be of interest to the public generally, for the public generally, as you know is rapidly becoming the radio public and almost everyone is interested in the subject whether or not they own a radio set.

He explained that he himself was doubly interested in radio. "First, and always," he said, "I am one of those who listen nightly to radio entertainment or radio information as the case may be. Secondly, in this incineration as Secretary of Commerce I am required by the law of this great land to be Chief Government Police in the ether."

His message to twenty or thirty million radio users whom he has served for the last three years was most reassuring. He mentioned the method that had been evolved by the government in co-operation with the broadcasting stations to make it possible to accommodate some 750 stations which are now broadcasting programs and let each one get thru to their listeners without getting mixed up in an awful jam.

The stations are grouped into two important classes—the first class is the Class "B" stations, or the more powerful stations that have transcontinental range. The second class is vastly larger in point of numbers and represent the smaller stations that are limited in their range to almost a local radius. A second subdivision is made among the more powerful stations. The United States is divided into five great territorial groups and in each group the stations are assigned by the government a wave length that will least interfere with the other stations in that group or in the groups adjacent to them. Also it is frequently the practice to divide the time on a given wave length during the twenty-four hour period. Fort Worth and Dallas are doing this and we have all heard them apologize to each other for infringements on one another's time.

The smaller stations by reason of their very limited range are all fairly closely grouped down between three and four hundred meters. In fact as Lubbock has no regular broadcasting station of her own and is out of range under normal conditions of the small broadcasters surrounding us, about all that we can hear of them is a hissing sound on the point of our dials representing their wave length. This is due to the carrier wave of several of them coming in to the set at the same point, though they are so weak that ordinarily it would be impossible to pick one of them up even if they were wide enough separated in wave length to make selective tuning possible.

Frequently some one who is not familiar with this characteristic of the broadcasting phase will read that there is going to be broadcast from some of these minor stations something that he is specially interested in hearing but he fails to understand why the better class of radio sets might be unable to catch the particular program he wants. Take for instance, the fact that several have expressed a desire to listen to Billy Sunday's services now being conducted in Shreveport and broadcasted from a relatively low powered station in that town and not a few have been able to do so, but the ease and certainly with which Shreveport is picked up cannot compare with the readiness that the more powerful stations of the transcontinental type, say Chicago, Atlanta or Los Angeles come booming in on your set.

Another favorite diversion of the radio users with good sets is to pick out and listen to stations in the extreme eastern part of the United States. This is not always so easy to do for the simple reason that some of the larger stations over there are assigned practically the same wave length as our nearby major stations and their signals are practically damped out of the air by the nearest station.

BETTER HOMES IN AMERICA

WASHINGTON, D. C., April 12.—"Don't make your home an accumulation of ugly and uncomfortable and meaningless objects. Furnish your house as you go about other serious undertakings—according to the principles of avoidance of waste and conservation of energy."

This sound advice is given by Better Homes in America, a recently incorporated national education institution with Herbert Hoover, Secretary of Commerce, as President, and Dr. James Ford, as executive director. In "How to Furnish the Small Home," a handbook issued this week on the furnishing and decoration of the "inexpensive house," the organization urges "simple, comfortable and attractive furnishings for American homes."

This pamphlet, which was written by Mrs. Charles Bradley Sanders, a well-known specialist on household furnishings, is designed both to aid the individual owners of small houses in their efforts to make their homes attractive and home-like at a modest expenditure, and to help the hundreds of communities through the country which will open demonstration houses for the benefit of the public during Better Home Week, May 11-18.

Its suggestions are made with the express purpose of helping persons or families facing the problem of furnishing a home on a yearly budget of $3000 or less.

"Too often the furnishings of American homes include an accumulation of ugly, uncomfortable or meaningless objects which would better be eliminated," asserts Dr. James Ford, executive director of the organization, in the foreword to the handbook. "To often also the tools and equipment of the home are needlessly meagre or inconvenient. The time and energy wasted in their use might be applied much more advantageously if they were replaced by carefully selected labor-saving devices. One should not be the slave of his possessions, but their master.

"Avoidance of waste and conservation of energy for life's higher purposes may wisely be dominating principles in the selection of household furnishings, precisely as they are in the other serious undertakings of life. But above all it should be remembered that the purpose of the house is to serve as the home of a growing family. It should provide not only convenience for all household activities, but also rest and comfort and inspiration for the leisure hours. The essential considerations for bedrooms are provisions for sound, wholesome sleep, abundant fresh air and privacy; for the dining room, cheerfulness and for the living room comfort and happiness. Crowded, inconvenient and ugly furniture causes irritation and fatigue. Simple, comfortable and attractive furnishings contribute definitely to love of home, and to wholesome family life. If further study and care are given to the selection of pictures and ornaments, to the choice of books and music for the home and to the home garden, these surroundings may become a source of true inspiration and their influence may be felt throughout life.

Persons who must furnish a house face four distinct problems. Mrs. Sanders declares in the introduction of her book: "First, they must see that the objects suit the house in size, coloring and style; second, that the pieces are harmonious with one another, and that they are comfortable and well made; third, that they suit the requirements of the family; and fourth, that they fit the family purse. Keeping all these essentials in mind, she goes on to offer suggestions for the complete furnishings of a three-room house, a five-room house and a seven-room house, all from the point of view of the family with an annual budget of $3000 or less. Beginning with the backgrounds, floors, floor finishings and coverings, the helpful exposition continues through every detail.

Some of Mrs. Sanders' wise bits of advice on furnishings and decorations for a small home are here repeated for the benefit of those who may be about to cope with the problem for which she offers a solution.

A good rule to follow in choosing furniture is to avoid anything which strikes you as elaborate. If a piece of furniture, carpet or curtain material stands out in a shop, you may be quite certain that it will be even more conspicuous in a home.

A house can be considered properly furnished only when it meets with the real needs of its occupants.

Final decision on hanging all pictures as well left until all other furnishings have been selected and everything is in its place.

Do not indulge in many ornaments. A good thing to remember is that ornaments decrease in value as they increase in number.

The first requisite of a living room is that it shall be restful. Use little bric-a-brac and no unnecessary furniture or furnishings.

The dining room should be one of the most cheerful and inspiring rooms of the house.

The first requisite in furnishing a bedroom is that it appear crisp and clean.

It has been proved that furnishings and color produce either desirable or unpleasant effects upon the sensitive minds of children. To most children a spotty or too often repeated design is distracting. Blues and violets soothe, while reds, yellows and sometimes greens are exciting and stimulating colors.

A home without books cannot be called a "Better Home."

The first consideration in arranging kitchen equipment is to save steps and labor. The kitchen should be clean, odorless and attractive. Not more than 120 square feet of working space is desirable for preparing food and washing dishes.

The ideal nursery is also a play room.

Mrs. Sanders' book is sure to be a great aid to the housewives of the United States, and also to the many communities now engaged in building furnishing and equipping demonstration houses for Better Home Week. Last year nearly 1000 communities throughout the United States participated in these demonstrations. Indications are that the number will be greatly increased this year. Some of the "Better Homes" which will take part in the demonstration are tiny cabins, some are bungalows and some are larger and more pretentious houses; but all of them, no matter what their type, will find expert advice in "How to Furnish the Small Home."

MUSIC FESTIVAL AT CANYON TO BE HELD APRIL 17-19

CANYON, Texas, April 12.—The preparations for the Music Festival which is to take place in Canyon, April 17-18 and 19 are going forward satisfactorily, according to Mr. Wallace R. Clark, head of the Department of Music. The chorus of about 70 voices is well balanced and is doing excellent work with the orchestra of 30 pieces. The soloists, Mrs. Helen Parsons Piere, contralto; Miss Ada V. Clark, soprano; and Mr. J. J. Powell, tenor, are progressing splendidly with their parts.

The part of Elijah will be sung by Harold Butler, of Syracuse University, New York, an outstanding figure among American baritone of today.

Dean Butler and Mrs. Butler will appear in a joint recital as the second number of the festival and the Chicago Symphony Club Orchestra will give the third program.

S. M. U. PLANS TO RAISE FUNDS FOR NEW HALL

DALLAS, Texas, April 12.—Funds for the erection of a library building, a science hall, and an additional dormitory will be sought as the next move for the enlargement of facilities at Southern Methodist University, President Charles C. Seligman announced following the laying of the corner stone of the $130,000 school of theology building last week.

The science building will be named for Dr. R. S. Hyer, first president of the University, with whose students the movement originated. The S. M. U. library now has more than 25,000 books and can add no more without increased facilities. Existing dormitories are not large enough to care for the students who would like to live in them.

BLOOD OF BROKEN GAMBLER FOR LUCK

NICE (United Press).—The blood of a broken gambler for luck, according to the old timers at Monte Carlo, and so several old women who are well-known players at the buccarat tables, bent down and dipped their withered fingers in a ghastly pool on the floor.

A wealthy Austrian, who had lost heavily for several days and finally went broke, moved a few steps from the table, drew a revolver and blew out his brains. The body of the victim was quickly removed, but the hardened women gamblers went to the spot. Dainty feet trod carefully, luxurious silk gowns were held up that they might not be spotted, while the jeweled hands reached for the taint that means luck. Then play went on.

HIGH TAXES ON ESTATES ARE PROPOSED

By GEORGE W. NORRIS

Senator from Nebraska
(Copyright, 1924, By United Press)
WASHINGTON, April 12.—The government should levy very high taxes on large estates, as a policy, to break up those huge fortunes in this country which have been handed down from one generation to another, and contributed to by the labor of those who do not share in them.

I intend to ask in the senate for a high estate tax. The house voted forty per cent as a maximum on estates of $10,000,000 and over. I consider that much too low. The senate finance committee has reduced that to the absurdly low figure of 5 per cent maximum.

As a principle I have always favored placing taxes where the burden would fall lightest. The estate taxes provides for that very end. In addition, it meets the main requirement of any taxation. It is the most easily collected of any tax. But beyond that it meets a principle which is worthy, which would be beneficial to the country as a whole and which follows a sound economic theory breaking up of large fortunes.

It has been argued that this is a confiscatory tax. But I am in favor of a heavy tax on small estates, which it is claimed are absorbed by taxation and have to be sold for settlement. In fact, I would be willing to grant a longer time, say ten years or more, for settling taxes on estates. Under the house bill, six years for settling the estate and paying taxes is allowed.

What I am after is the breaking up of large estates. I think the government should take a very large portion of them. I am in favor of as high as 75 per cent on estates of $5,000,000 and over.

Take such an estate as the Astor estate for example. People throughout the country attributed to the building of this fortune. From the day laborer who laid paving in New York City to those laboring even in the far west came the volume of work which poured millions into the coffers of one family. It came from the sweat of the brow of thousands of laborers. Now it is in the hands of one who has lived in luxury all his life and has not arised a finger to produce what he has enjoyed.

This fortune should be dissipated, and go back in some way to those who contributed to it. The estate tax provides that way.

UNIVERSITY PARK TO BE UNSUPPORTED SOON

DALLAS, Texas, April 12.—An election will be held April 12th to incorporate the University Park neighborhood, which includes Southern Methodist University and the homes of 1200 citizens to the west of it. The principal streets of the neighborhood are paved. Recently a petition to annex the territory to the town of Highland Park was refused by the latter corporation. A mass meeting recently held at the University endorsed the proposal to incorporate, there being little opposition to the move.

KAISER BILL TO RUN FOR GERMAN PRES.

By United Press
BERLIN, April 12.—Ultra-monarchists want ex-Crown Prince Wilhelm to run for the German Presidency.

So far he is not listening to this siren call to power, though, if he could be elected to the Presidency it would be only a short step to the throne.

Wilhelm, it is recalled, gave his parole upon returning to Germany not to participate in things political. This parole he has faithfully kept so far, but it is noted that politically-oriented persons still have contact with him.

And behind his back the ultras are passing the word. "It would be well for the Crown Prince to be a candidate for the Presidency."

Then they always add that the time has arrived when his chances would be excellent.

There is an element of truth in what they say.

"Die raktion ist auf dem marsche"—the reaction is marching—is almost proverbial in Germany. The monarchist elements are winning the upper hand, and there is little doubt that a strong reactionary, pan-German, monarchist-colored block will be the dominant factor in the coming Reichstag. Hence, Willy surely would have a chance.

The nationalists are trying to force Presidential elections coincident with the Reichstag elections. A resolution demanding this has been introduced in the Reichstag, but it will scarcely succeed.

Want to Hurry

Time would work for the middle parties and Socialists, it is agreed. Hence the hectic demands of the old-time reactionaries for speed. They are on the up-grade now; but if they run true to form they will commit some "Dummheiten" between now and elections which will hurt their chances. So the middle parties say, "Give them plenty of rope; they'll hang themselves."

The Socialists have proven themselves incapable of any forceful leadership or constructive development. This fact, coupled with a more or less definite yearning for the "good old days" before the war, when conditions were easier than now, is leading to a marked wave movement into the right-sided camps. The ultras are gaining even more rapidly than the old-line nationalists. And such Socialists as still are radical are turning to the Communist Party for shelter.

The Communists are destined to gain heavily in the elections, though Germany, per se, is now anything but red. And the process of undermining what is left of the republicanism of the German republic goes merrily on.

The Economy Commission is proceeding with its work of letting out employees, chiefly Republicans, with a remarkable zeal. Its anti-Republicanism has become almost a public scandal, and Democrats and Socialists are protesting. So far their protests have been in vain.

"Die Zeit," Stresemann's mouthpiece, praises their work and advises them to "get to it." The nationalists naturally are jubilant.

Firing Republicans
The latest dodge employed by the Economy Commission to rid the republic of important Republican institutions came in a notice that certain departments in the Interior Ministry would be reduced. It so happened that these departments were manned by true Republicans.

The clipping off of such employees was the more important, since the Interior Ministry has to do with matters of public safety and order. It makes all the difference in the world in the conduct of the police and other public safety organs whether a Republican or a monarchist is directing affairs in the Interior Ministry's branches, and whether a real Republican sits at its head.

Interior Minister Jarres is well known as a man of reactionary, even monarchistic leanings. He naturally has done nothing to see to it that Republicanism is maintained in his bureaus.

"Money must be saved," says the Economy Commission, thereupon hacking at the very roots of the Republican institutions rather than to lop off some heads put in office under Wilhelm II. "by the grace of God, Emperor and Kaiser."

Many of those make no secret of their enmity for Republicans and republicanism, and their scorn for the "inefficiency" of republican institutions.

ELECTRICITY MAY BE DEVELOPED BY WIND TOWER

By United Press
LONDON, April 12.—An alluring vision of a new and merrier England is presented by an inventor with faith in the future of his wind towers.

These, it is claimed, by means of wings set at an elevation of 200 feet will produce electricity for all purposes of the farm and village.

One of the towers is working successfully now on a farm in East Prussia.

The holder of the English patent rights is T. Wolk of London, a Russian, who in 1916 voluntarily enlisted in the British Army and in 1922 became a naturalized British subject.

As an outcome of study in Russia, Germany and France, Wolk is already, though still comparatively young, recognized as an authority in the domain of practical engineering.

Known as the Venti-Motor, the invention has produced, it is claimed, a happy marriage between wind-power and electricity.

One of the most familiar of English institutions, the windmill, is to be elevated to a supreme guardianship of the main material interests of the British people.

Towers of concrete, running in the highest case up to 200 feet, will, by means of great wings, only two in number, up to 171 feet in diameter, capture the force of the wind.

Unlike the wind turbine, which is propelled, the Venti-Motor exhibits its value as a repeller. The power exerted against the wings (repeller) passes, by virtue of its being the pivot or "hub" around which the wings rotate, into a steel bar, which by a turn carries it into the basement of the tower, where it is transformed into electrical power, useable either instantly or subsequently, for a variety of purposes.

It is declared that a tower will work efficiently in any country; it is adapted equally to hill, plain or valley. It is further claimed that there will be a continuous supply of power, whatever the direction of the wind.

If the inventor is sound in his calculations, the advent of the Venti-Motor make mark a revolution.

No longer will there be any need to buy or feed horses; neither will any fuel be required.

Labor will be greatly reduced, for electric power will do in one day work that would occupy men fifteen days.

The soil can be dug deeper and more extensively aerated; field operations will be greatly expedited; manures can be created, nitrogen can be drawn from the atmosphere as desired; crops can be electrified and horse drawn wagons will give way to the automobile truck.

An observation as to the prospective effect on agriculture labor, draws on arresting picture from Wolk's mind.

"Disaster to the laboring agriculturist?"

"Why, the very reverse will be the case. It will preserve to England, and immensely multiply her greatest treasure, the surest source of her strength—the man who lives on the good earth and the clean air, the man who renders his country the greatest service."

The wind-tower spells salvation for the small man in agriculture, and it is not improbable that it will draw many thousands of people from the towns back to the country. Indeed, if the wind-tower is accepted in this country industry, at any rate the smaller industries, can be transported into the country wholesale.

POET LAUREATE COMING TO THE UNITED STATES

By United Press
ANN HARBOR, Mich., April 12.—Not content with taking from Europe its greatest paintings, its gold supply and its operatic artists, America has now lured away England's poet laureate.

Dr. Robert Bridges, who holds the post that Lord Tennyson once had, is to arrive at the University of Michigan this month—not to deliver lectures, but to come in contact with students and enrich the literary atmosphere. He was induced to come to America by President Marion L. Burton of the university, who met the poet laureate in England last summer.

Dr. Bridges will spend the remainder of the school year here as "resident artist," a unique position for both a poet laureate and a State university.

His daily duty is to be "accessible" to those craving counsel or inspiration, and to give the undergraduates opportunity to commune with one who communes with the Muse.

The British poet, now nearly 80 years old, comes here under a fellowship in creative art, established two years ago. Writers, poets, painters and musicians may be brought here by this means. Last year Robert Frost, New England's famous poet, was brought to Michigan by the fellowship.

"When a man of the calibre of Dr. Bridges visits a university where numbers of aspiring young men and women are striving with a view of gaining recognition in literary fields later in life it is impossible to weigh the influence which he exerts," declared Dean John R. Effinger, of the literary college.

BIG TEXANS WILL HAVE CHARGE OF THE TEXAS CENTENNIAL AND WILL PLAN A BIG CELEBRATION

DALLAS, Texas, April 12.—Events are shaping up with clock-like precision for the formation of a governing board of 100 of Texas' finest citizens to have charge of the celebration of the Texas Centennial. Local control of the machinery incident to the selection of the Centennial directorate and adequate preparations to give to all of the interests of the whole state voice in the control of the celebration that is to be world-wide in its scope, are cardinal principles guiding the organization efforts of Chairman Cato Sells, and Secretary Lowry Martin, it was explained yesterday following a conference at the Centennial executive offices in Dallas.

Selection of Centennial election commissioners for each of the thirty-one senatorial districts in the state is rapidly proceeding. Plans for the county and senatorial district conventions and the selection of delegates and directors are being made with complete definiteness and nothing is being left to chance.

Senatorial conventions for the selection of two permanent directors to represent the district on the Texas Centennial Board of Directors will be held at 2 o'clock Saturday afternoon, April 19th, just one week after the county meetings. County representation to the district conventions shall be one delegate for each 10,000 population, census 1920, or major fraction thereof, provided each county shall have at least one delegate and one vote.

The senatorial district meetings will be held in courthouses in the following cities, of the thirty-one districts: No. 1, Texarkana; No. 2, Marshall; No. 3, Nacogdoches; No. 4, Beaumont; No. 5, Huntsville; No. 6, Corsicana; No. 7, Tyler; No. 8, Paris; No. 9, Sherman; No. 10, Greenville; No. 11, Dallas; No. 12, Hillsboro; No. 13, Waco; No. 14, Bryan; No. 15, Columbus; No. 16, Houston; No. 17, Richmond; No. 18, Victoria; No. 19, San Marcos; No. 20, Austin; No. 21, Temple; No. 22, Weatherford; No. 23, Wichita Falls; No. 24, Abilene; No. 25, Coleman; No. 26, San Antonio; No. 27, Corpus Christi; No. 28, Fort Worth; No. 29, El Paso; No. 30, Lubbock; No. 31, Amarillo.

TEXAS GIRL THROWS STONES AT COWBOYS

PHILADELPHIA (United Press).—"The handsome, gallant and romantic cowboy of the movies is only a myth. They are not the great, big handsome men shown on the silver screen. In reality there is little about a cowboy to turn a girl's head. They are like big overgrown farmer boys and not one in a dozen knows what a toothbrush looks like. They can ride, sure enough, but that is about all."

This is the picture of Texas cowboys painted in words by Miss Mariam Schaffstall, of Ranger, Texas, who has just made a visit to Philadelphia.

"And they (the cowboys) do the dumbest things outside their work with the cows. If they feel like it they will take any fool thing for medicine. They figure that if one pill a day will make them well in a week, seven pills ought to fix them up in a few minutes," says Miss Schaffstall.

SOUTH TEXAS TRUCKERS REPORT YIELDS SATISFACTORY

LAREDO, Texas, April 12.—Only the most satisfactory of reports are emanating from the valley truck crop regions for the 1924 season with good production in all varieties and meeting substantial markets.

The 1924 onion crop will begin moving about the 15th of April with the quality much improved over last year's crop injured by cold weather. The acreage this year is less by 400 acres but the yield per acre will remain about the same. The 1924 crop will be gathered from a little less than 3000 acres and it is estimated the yield will amount to approximately 1500 cars.

The acreage in spinach was from 1,500 to 1,800 acres with production reaching 1,250 car loads. It is probably 100 more cars will wind up the spinach crop. The quality was extra good, reports show meeting a good price.

The beet and carrot crops were regarded as exceptional, over 100 cars bringing good returns. The 25 cars of lettuce brought fairly good returns while the mustard greens crop was of a much superior quality, with a heavy yield of 25 cars, enjoying a most profitable price.

Turnips proved a good paying crop this year, the yield reaching heavy figures well over 25 cars. For the first time in truck farming history in the Laredo district, parsnips and English peas were grown commercially, two cars reaching the market at a satisfactory profit.

The valley's alfalfa crop was regarded as a "success in the first water," planters obtaining a cut each winter month due to the mildness of the weather, the crop here yielding on an average of from 8 to 9 tons per acre and reaching tons in some sections.

Citrus culture is now absorbing the attention of truck farmers, observers assert and this year will see considerable land planted in grapefruit and orange trees in the Laredo district.

Experiment has shown that grapefruit and oranges grow to perfection in this section but heretofore they have not taken on extensive commercial aspects.

SENATE REBUKED BY COOLIDGE IN PROBE

By United News

WASHINGTON, April 12.—Rebuked by President Coolidge for its investigating activities, the United States Senate is about to return the compliment by voting to hire Francis J. Heney, of San Francisco as special counsel for the senate committee investigating secretary of the treasury Mellon and the internal revenue bureau.

It was the action of Senator Couzens, Michigan, independent republican in hiring Heney out of his own pocket to conduct the inquiry, that brought Mellon's veiled threat to resign and Coolidge's letter reminding the senate's investigating methods.

Democrats saw in Coolidge's letter an attempt to hold the senate up to public censure and they hurriedly went into caucus to devise ways of retaliation. Assured of the support of enough republicans they brought out a resolution directing the Couzens committee to employ special counsel to be paid out of senate funds. This would eliminate Coolidge's objections to private employment of attorneys by senate committees. This will be adopted when a vote is obtained.

If Coolidge then desires to criticize congress for investigating the executive departments the democratic senators are willing—and even invite him—to go as far as he likes.

Senator Walsh, Montana democrat, leader of the Teapot Dome investigation, declared Coolidge is opposing all of the inquiries which have been conducted.

"If this investigation must cease why must not all the others cease?" Walsh asked.

The Montana senator brought out by questioning Senator Jones, democrat, New Mexico, a member of the internal revenue sub-committee, that Secretary Mellon had not refused any information to the committee and Senator McKellar, Tennessee, democrat, interrupted to produce a letter in which Mellon had expressed his willingness to give information regarding tax returns of his companies and had urged that this be made public to dispel rumors.

"If I have read this message of the President right," Walsh declared "it is a rebuke to the senate for all their investigations, it has started; a rebuke for the manner in which they have been conducted, and a rebuke upon those who have conducted them."

Calling the president's message an "extraordinary" document Walsh said that it challenged first the power of senate committee's conduct investigations; second the right of those committees investigating to secure records and papers from government departments; and lastly, it questioned the power of the internal revenue committee to employ counsel in its work.

STATE POPULATION INCREASING; DEMAND GROWS FOR SCHOOLS

AUSTIN, Texas, April 12.—The demand for teachers this year from the University of Texas Teachers Appointment Committee shows an increase of 247 over that of the preceding session, according to statistics furnished by Miss Miriam Dozier, secretary of the committee. She has already received 1,501 calls for teachers in high schools, universities, colleges, private schools, grade schools, rural schools and athletic directors for this session.

"Teachers for English, history, mathematics, home economics, and the sciences are by far in greatest demand," she declared, "but statistics showing demands for the past seven years indicate a constantly increasing demand for instructors in practical work, such as manual training, agriculture and commerce. Language teachers are more in demand for the past three years, and Latin plays a very important part in the general demand for language instructors.

"Athletics and commerce show a considerable increase during recent years, especially in state high schools. In many instances, high schools request prospective superintendents and principals to have athletic coaching ability."

Demands for teachers in 1923-24, according to the number for each month show the greatest demand in June and the least in February and November. May and April are also popular months for securing positions for teachers. Summer schools require an unusually large number of teachers and the opening months of various long sessions always mark a rise in demand for teachers, it is stated.

WHERE YOU ALWAYS SAVE

IS YOUR COUNTY ORGANIZED?

By Phebe K. Warner

There are 5,000,000 people who call Texas their home. These people live in 253 organized counties. There is no other state in the union that has so many counties. Every one of these counties is a good county. It may be that no one has discovered as yet just how good some of these counties are, or to what they are best adapted, but the rare every one good for something and fifty years from today somebody will be using most of them for some good purpose.

In some of these counties there are several hundred thousand people living now. In others there are only a few hundred people living. So much the better. Texas will have room for more folks a hundred years from now. Many of our states are already so full of people that no one can find a place to stay all night in them without a lot of expense. There are states in our nation that do not have room for another home. Texas has room for millions of new homes.

Of the 5,000,000 people in Texas over a million of them are women. Another million are the men of affairs. Then there are nearly 2,000,000 children of school age and under. And another million that would be classed as our young folks, boys and girls just out of their teens and turning into manhood and womanhood. What a happy prospect! What an opportunity for every one of us to be of some use to our state and our special county where our quota of these young folks live.

Included in our million Texas women are all the mothers of the state. Most of the teachers; 80 per cent of the teachers of the state are women or big girls. Many are business women. Some are just women without any special adjective before their name, this number includes nearly a hundred Home Demonstrators and women in every class and condition. But we are all just women. Of this million women almost three-fourths of them live on our Texas farms. They produce much of the food and raw materials of the state and they bear and rear and feed most of the children of the state. These women on the Texas farms are the backbone and source of life for this state. Without them there would soon be NO Texas. They not only bear and rear most of the children of the state but they feed and make homes for all the food producers. These women stood behind the men and boys in Texas who last year produced more than a BILLION DOLLARS of wealth for Texas. These are the women who make city industries flourish. These are the women who are the backbone of the state and the backbone of the nation. They are the women who are the backbone of the state and the backbone of the nation. They are the women who are the backbone of the state and the backbone of the nation.

Much to the credit of Texas there are a few counties in the state where the women of the towns and the cities appreciate their debt to the women of the farms. And they are showing their appreciation by organizing their club circles large enough to take in every woman in their county. In this way there soon grows up in that county a spirit of unity and loyalty among all the women of that county. And when something needs to be done there is a power already generated to help put it over that nothing can hold back.

These units of social, civic and educational power have been called County Federations, which means a closer union of all the interests of all the women on a county. A few of these units have been created in every district of the State Federation of Women's Club which organization is fostering the development of the plan. In the First District the outstanding counties are Parker and Haskell. In the Second District, Hill, Deaton, Ellis and Collin counties are organized. In the third District, Panola and Limestone counties have county federations. In the fourth District, Matagorda county is organized. In the Fifth District DeWitt and Bee counties have county organizations. And the Rio Grande Valley Federation is composed of four counties, Hidalgo, Willacy, Cameron and Starr counties. The Sixth District has organized in El Paso, Eastland, Coleman, Mitchell and Nolan counties. And the Seventh District has the following County Federations: Hale, Potter, Armstrong, Crosby, Lubbock, Deaf Smith, Collingsworth, Floyd, Hemphill, Childress. And one Inter-County Federation including the counties of Hardeman, Hall, Collingsworth, Childress and Cottle.

What is the object? To bring all the women of the county together a few times each year to study the best interests of their entire county from the mothers' viewpoint. To study and improve health conditions throughout the county. To build up better markets for the products of the farm made by the women and children. To foster county demonstrators and county nurses and county libraries and county hospitals and better schools throughout the whole county. To build up the social and moral standards of the whole county just the same as the State Federation is trying to make a better state of Texas. But what is the surest and safest way to make a better Texas? That is what we want a better Texas. And the very best way to get it is to make every county in Texas the best county possible. The county needs the cooperation of its women the same as the state or the church or the community to make the most of it. We may not have all the counties that are organized as our records are not up to date. But there are more than thirty county federations in Texas NOW. Let's make it FIFTY before another year. This is work for the Rural Life workers, the membership committees and the civic and educational committees. Let's all work together to make every county in Texas the best county in the state. IS YOU Reounty organized.

ONE MILLION SCHOOL STUDENTS PARTICIPATE IN CONTEST

DALLAS, Texas, April 12.—A million boys and girls are participating in the National Oratorical Contest on the Constitution. That is the outstanding fact of the reports from all parts of the country which have been used as the basis for the statistics sent participating newspapers by Randolph Leigh, organizer and director of the contest, from national headquarters in New York City. Dr. E. D. Shurter, director of the School of Citizenship at Southern University, Dallas, is in charge of the contests in Texas.

The magnitude of the undertaking, and the enthusiasm with which it has been received, are reflected in the following summary of the contest to date:

Contestants (approximately) 1,000,000

Schools participating 13,281

Metropolitan newspapers 41

All other publications 572

Adult co-operators 53,132

The contest, which is a clean-cut newspaper contribution toward better citizenship and has no commercial features, has received the approval of every patriotic organization in the world. It is the work of the contest in and respect for the Constitution of the United States. The leader of the contest, the Commercial Appeal, has been unflinching in their aid. In several states the school authorities have made work on the orations a part of the curriculum, with the result that all the students have entered the contest. The honor of having the largest number of contestants in any one institution go to the DeWitt Clinton High School, New York City, all of whose 8,661 pupils have participated in the contest.

For Malheur County, Oregon, "in the heart of the sagebrush land and miles from civilization," a spokesman has already been chosen. Likewise the Texas Panhandle has not been without its echo in the din of words. In the state of Washington, a Nez Perce, descended from one of the greatest of Red-skinned warriors, has already won his way to the point where he is recognized as a formidable contestant for state honors.

In the territory through Philadelphia (the birthplace of the Constitution) more than 10,000 pupils are participating. So it has been in Virginia, in the deep South, in the Central States, and in fact, throughout the nation.

Within a few weeks even the largest contest centers will have selected their spokesmen. Then on May 16, there will be meetings to determine the sectional champions. The sectional meeting places will be in New York City, Chicago, Philadelphia, Birmingham, Kansas City and Los Angeles. The sectional champions having been selected, they will, June 6, in the presence of the President of the United States, compete for national honors and for the national awards of $3,500, $1,000 and $500.

The Texas contest will be held at S. M. U. May 7. Winners in eight districts will compete.

HOBO HEN FOUND ON TEXAS ENGINE

COMMERCE, Texas. (United Press)—A new kind of train-riding hobo has been reported to Cotton Belt headquarters, according to F. W. Harrison, train inspector of this division.

Harrison's report resulted from an inspection on an engine of a Fort Worth-Commerce passenger train made when the usual band of train-meeting natives gathered around the engine instead of the passenger coaches when the train arrived here.

On the pilot, undisturbed by the onlookers but apparently restless on account of the delay in her sight-seeing tour, Harrison found a domineering hen settled comfortably. The chicken pie was good, Harrison said.

A Pretty Good Record

More than 75 monuments sold in Lubbock since we opened our yard here—all but six were sold by us, and these six were divided among four dealers.

NO COMPETITION, most of you will say, but it will not be the ones who have bought monuments. Doubtless every one of the 75 had from three to a half dozen salesmen to see them.

There are a Number of Reasons for This Record:

FIRST—We give you better work; compare it and see.

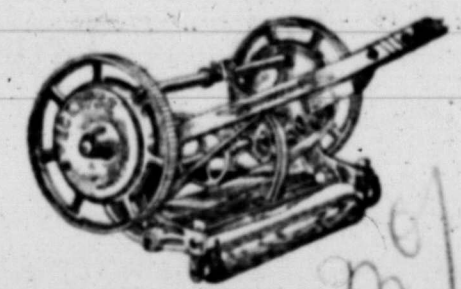

SECOND—The out of town dealer and the catalogue peddler can not compete with us on prices. The local freight and the commissions make the price too high.

THIRD—The Lubbock people believe in trading with their home merchants; and we assure you that we appreciate this spirit, and will, as long as we are in business, continue our policy of the square deal toward our customers.

CLAIMS U.S. MUST HAVE CHANGE IN GOVT.

By United Press

NEW ORLEANS, La., April 12.

Calling to the attention of the business men of the United States "our desperate need of new men and new policies to replace the pusillanimous shilly-shallying and incidental corruption which has settled down like a plague on the government of this country," Pierrepoint B. Noyes of Onondaga, N. Y., talked politics to business men today.

Noyes is a former president of the American Hardware Manufacturers' Association and also was United States Rheinland Commissioner. He was addressing the joint convention of the American Hardware Manufacturers' Association and the Southern Hardware Jobbers' Association.

It was stated that the address was written and delivered after consultations between Noyes and a number of prominent business men of the United States.

Noyes began his address by stating he had something on his mind that was in the minds of millions of people of the United States and he believed the time had come to discuss it. He continued:

"Statesmen, briefly and frankly, representative government is functioning very badly in the United States. It is unquestionably at the lowest point within the memory of this generation. We may as well acknowledge this. It is too evident to every thinking American who is not hopelessly committed to some personal or party success. Everywhere I go I find a growing disgust with the ineffectiveness and paltriness and cowardice of current politics, as much as with its uncleanliness.

Mortified and Alarmed

"Good citizens are mortified and alarmed, but they should not be surprised. Whenever the responsible leaders of a people adopt a policy of dodging or postponing all serious problems, the vacuum in statesmanship thus created is automatically filled with the noisy struggles of little men for little ends and of corrupt men for corrupt ends. Public opinion becomes confused and loses its ability to register. The ordinary citizen reverts into a state of helpless disgust.

"That is exactly what has happened to our national politics during the past two years. Leaderless politicians, governed by fear for their political lives, have consistently shied at every great national problem, until they have turned Washington into an arena where only the pettiest and most personal struggles are staged. Statesmanship has atrophied. In its place ambitious little men are fighting other ambitious little men for personal or party gain. Public life has become infected with morbidity and hysteria.

"On the other hand, our politicians are receiving themselves as if they think the people of the United States will permanently endure this hectic atmosphere which daily fills the front pages of the newspapers with a squalid hot-bed of political scandals and the meaningless acrobatics of self-advertising legislators. We are all tired of the hangings and baragains which make of great issues like taxation and the soldiers' bonus footballs in a game for partisan advantage. We are sickened by the tales of corruption in high places, and the scarcely less degrading sales to wealthy corporations of the 'influence' to men the nation has been proud to honor. We have lost interest in baby Presidential booms nursed exclusively on destructive criticism. But more than all, we resent the feverish political activity which, day after day, has crowded out discussion and action on matters of real national interest, and the cloud of oratory and selfish appeals which has for months obscured those burning problems, national and international, upon which our future prosperity depends.

People Demand New Deal
"Traveling through different states during the last few months I have noted a growing demand for a brand new deal in politics. The unpolitical citizen has a feeling of helplessness. He does not yet know where to begin, but the rising tide of his anger at the pilfering and corruption of our national politicians may soon upset all political calculations.

"As far as I am concerned the time has already come for heroic remedies. I do not believe that our political distemper can be cured without a major operation—a clean sweep and a complete new deal. Furthermore, I believe that a large majority of the citizens of the United States in their hearts agree with me. They are ready to demand new men and a new spirit in politics. They are ready to insist that at the coming election they be given a chance to vote for a candidate who will clean up and revitalize our national life, who will not simply drag Washington out of the mud but will courageously open up the great issues which have been pigeon-holed or sandbagged, and who will bring a constructive statesmanship to bear on their solution.

"In so far as all investigations are sincere attempts to regenerate honesty and honor in public life we are interested. But investigations and prosecutions are at best negative, while the nation needs a dose of the positive. We need not simply a housecleaning at Washington but a wholesale hiring and firing.

"In behalf of you and a hundred million other unpolitical men and women, I want to place an order today for a candidate—a real leader, a new man. I care not whether he be a Republican or a Democrat, but I want a man of sufficient integrity and moral stature to guarantee positive leadership, and positive honesty.

"If we get a real leader, we shall want a platform which deals frankly with all the big problems confronting the nation; a platform which on its face means business. I will suggest rather than discuss the more important of these problems.

The Cost of Living

"First, the tariff. There always have been and probably always will be particular industries needing protection, but the present tariff law is devoted largely to protecting fat profits. Aside from these fat profits, its principal effect has been to raise the cost of living. It is a symptom of the economic confusion cultivated in the minds of the American people that the just complaints of our farmers are met with the fake soothing-syrup of a tariff raise on wheat, which can accomplish nothing except to raise the cost of flour and which, as a matter of fact has already during the month since it went into effect reduced the price of wheat for the farmer 5 cents a bushel. We need a sane and scientific tariff.

"Then there is the matter of taxation. I need hardly suggest to business men that under existing circumstances the taxpayers of the United States are entitled to a substantial measure of relief from war taxation. Yet our legislature goes on month after month settling nothing. It has tangled itself up in political quarrels until no one knows whether we will get any relief at all—and everyone suspects that if a bill reducing taxes is finally passed its provisions will be based on political trades rather than scientific principles. We need a straight-forward businesslike treatment of taxation from now until the time when all unusual taxes can be dispensed with.

"Then we are badly in need of a foreign policy. For five long years we have listened to 'isolationists' nonsense. Our hopes have been buoyed up and our consciences soothed by periodical assurances that conditions in Europe were improving. Yet, every time some untoward incident has projected facts through the smoke screen of cheap optimism and 'irreconcilable' oratory, we have seen in Europe starving millions, a vanishing mark, a falling frame, larger armies, new aggressions, and a feverish lining up of nations for the 'next war.' We went into the great war because we had made the grave discovery that our interests were so bound up with the rest of the world that willy nilly, we must play a part. In spite of our intense national determination during the war to insist that Europe substitute a new internationalism for the Hatfield-McCoy feudism which has for centuries been the political system of Europe, we ignorantly deserted our allies and our own interests at the critical moment. Since then Europe has been steadily sliding towards bankruptcy and war.

"The history of the last four years proves that there is no possible chance for permanent peace without our active co-operation, and that without such peace and co-operation there is no chance for economic recovery and sound, prosperous business in the United States. In our own interest, therefore, we are bound in the end to use our immense power to help effect a political settlement in Europe. We should do it now.

"We should go back and finish the job we began in 1817, and make our record as a nation honorable. We have no foreign policy and we sorely need one.

Other Problems

"Many other major problems will occur to you. The immensely difficult liquor problem; the unfortunate economic situation of the farmers, and the so-called labor problem. I hear it said 'the working man has already got all he can expect.' No greater mistake can be made. The struggle of labor for a larger share of the comfort and happiness created by industrial progress is no temporary or incidental struggle.

"This movement toward the distribution, more widely and more fairly, of the fruits of prosperity has, I believe, only just begun. Fortunately, the more intelligent employers have come to recognize this. What alarms me is evidence that the present Administration at Washington is listening to insidious suggestions from the extreme right that the present full in the contract indicates its end, and that certain excessive wage increases have gone too far. Whenever capital adopts a bourgeois attitude towards labor it is a misfortune. But a bourgeois attitude on the part of government will lead to disaster.

"I neither wish to bind myself or you to any definite program. My only desire is to call attention to our desperate need of new men and new policies to replace the pusillanimous shilly-shallying and incidental corruption which has settled down like a plague on the government of this country. We want men who are doers, not putters. And more than all we want a leader who can lead.

"We should insist on a man altogether untainted by the small politics or corrupt politics of today. I do not say that he may not be a politician. In fact, a knowledge of politics is almost necessary in the present emergency. We want a practical man but one whose vision reaches beyond the petty, beyond the immediate, beyond national boundaries.

"The United States has had such men as leaders before. There are many such in the country now. I call on the citizens to sit no longer in silent disapprobation but to demand in no uncertain terms a man to lead us out of the political swamp into which we have wandered. Such a candidate would, I believe, pull a vote at the coming election which would stand as a warning for at least another generation to 'ward-ly, temporizing, self-seeking and corrupt politicians. Let's go."

SAYS REPUBLICANS CAN'T HOPE TO WIN AGAIN

By United Press

DALLAS, Texas, April 12.—That the democratic party will win without their financial aid is the feeling encountered when attempts to raise party funds among democrats are made in Texas, according to Hal H. Sevier, personal representative of the chairman of the national financial committee.

"However, despite this feeling, we have been very successful throughout the state," Sevier said. "Sevier also declared that the all-around weakness of the republicans, they could not hope to be in power again next year."

MYRICK HARDWARE COMP'Y

The only good paint is one that protects your buildings with a water-proof film! —Not looks but PROTECTION for your buildings against depreciation and decay is your BEST REASON for painting. All paints do not give protection. Some paints allow moisture to reach the surface underneath the paint coat. A perfect moisture-proof, air-proof film is only obtainable in a high-grade, scientifically mixed paint composed principally of white lead, oxide of zinc, and linseed oil—and such is PATTON'S SUN PROOF PAINT!

SOME PAINT IS NOT GOOD PAINT

Paints are manufactured to meet the demand of the buyer who makes the mistake of thinking that painting economy is secured by buying cheap paint at a cheap price per gallon.

You buy paint by the gallon, but you use it by the square yard. Its real value is determined by the number of years it will last, and the protection it will give your property. It is a mistake to buy cheap paint—they are not cheap, not even in the ACTUAL COST of the job. They are expensive in the end, because they do not give your buildings protection against depreciation, and the short durability means more frequent repainting with labor as three-fourths the cost.

The surest, safest way to get dependable value is to use a responsible high-grade standardized paint. Such is Patton's Sun-Proof Paint.

We believe that a complete stock of paint, varnishes, enamels, etc., such as we have in stock now, will be of much help to Lubbock builders and home-lovers.

Growth of Hostility Toward the Railroads In Texas

By WALTER SPLAWN, Railroad Commissioner of Texas

A second source of discontent in the country as a whole, which exerted no little influence in Texas, was a series of panics and periods of depression.

Beginning with 1869, there was a period of great activity in agriculture and all kinds of manufacturing enterprises and railway building. Many railroads were built into undeveloped country. This drew people away from the older parts of the country and lessened land values in them, but the development of the new territory was not rapid enough to enable the railroads to obtain tonnage in paying quantities. 1869 Congress prohibited any further extension of the greenback notes. The fluctuations in prices that followed fostered speculation. There followed in 1873 one of the severest panics in the history of the country. Failures were widespread. In the process of liquidation many railroads along with banks and mercantile establishments became bankrupt. There followed the panic of 1873, a period of depression which continued for five or six dreary years.

After this depression there was another period of great activity, especially in railroad building. A sharp crisis in 1884 was the result of general over-expansion in business.

Rapid expansion in railroad contributed largely to the panics of 1873 and 1884. This fact was generally known and talked throughout the country. Many people began to blame the railroads for the panics and for the personal inconveniences they had suffered therefrom.

A third source of discontent in the country grew out of the competition between the trunk lines. Another result of the rather rapid extension of the railway net was a period of severe competition among the railroad companies. In some parts of the country roads were built far ahead of the traffic. There was not enough business to sustain all of the new properties. Each road naturally fought to get as much business as possible. This led to the famous rate wars. Various questionable devices were resorted to by the traffic agents of the roads. Discriminations were frequently made between places and persons. Rebates were given to certain shippers to hold them. Much ill feeling was engendered from these practices and enmity toward the railroads was bred.

Out of the hard times following the panic of 1873 arose the Grange movement. The attention of this organization was directed to the railroads. The Grange brought great pressure to bear upon legislation. The railroads met their opposition with little tact. The statements given out in those days by railway officials and the methods they employed to meet the opposition expressed through the Grange rather exasperated the people and strengthened them in their disgust with the railway management of the time. The railroads sought to meet the opposition they encountered in the legislatures by influencing individual members of those bodies. Professional lobbyists were employed. Railroad attorneys were sent to state capitols, press agents were put to work, free passes were dispensed liberally among members of legislatures and even more questionable means were used in certain instances. All this merely resulted in arousing the people to the belief that they were being victimized by the railroads.

EDISON CREATED OVER 15 BILLION IN WEALTH

PHILADELPHIA (United Press)—Some say once described Edison as the man who invented the phonograph to keep everyone awake all night using his electric lights.

But, says the Pennsylvania Public Service Commission, he is the man who has added probably the greatest amount of wealth to the human race.

More than fifteen billion dollars his inventive genius has been worth, according to estimates. Of that total, electric railways might account for six and a half billions; light and power, five billions; motion pictures, one and a quarter billions and the telephone, one billion.

The rest can be made up of such developments as the phonograph, motors and dynamos, and other electrical appliances.

CONSTRUCTING RIFLE RANGES FOR USE BY NATIONAL GUARD

AUSTIN, Texas, April 12.—Rifle ranges, expected to accommodate every national guard company in Texas are now being constructed at various unit headquarters over the entire state, according to Maj. C. M. Crawford, of the Adjutant General's office, who is supervising the range construction.

Only recently the last national instructions from the war department were received by the state militia and the work had not been started.

Upon receipt of details in regard to the establishment of the ranges and the location with reference to geographical suitability, work was started immediately. At present the state has an inspector who is examining the selected sites.

The appropriation made last year by congress provided for a fund of $117,000 to be used in establishing and maintaining of these ranges but as no further instructions were received at the Texas adjutant general's headquarters, the matter was not followed here and Texas failed to get her appropriation.

"This year we are going after our allotment of that sum and are going to building as many units as possible," Major Crawford stated. Work on the range at Arlington has already got under way and when completed will accommodate ten units including infantry, cavalry, and artillery companies. The citizens rifle clubs at each place will also be invited to use the range, encouraging competition between troops and civilians. Plans for this range will be submitted to the war department in the hope of securing additional aid. The cost is estimated at $1,000.

Two other ranges are now under contemplation and will be constructed in the near future at Vernon and Bowie. The Bowie project will cost approximately $300 and will accommodate two units while the Vernon site will provide for two infantry companies at a cost not to exceed $500.

From twelve to fifteen ranges will be built in Texas, Major Crawford said, and a much larger number will be built if the cost is not prohibitive. For the most part the ranges will accommodate companies of all descriptions including every branch of the service, but in isolated territories an individual range for the companies will be built.

"This construction of ranges is in line with the policy of the war department to increase the interest in the National Guard and eliminate a great amount of target practice now necessary at the summer training camps." Major Crawford concluded, "for the past five years we have not been able to permit the troops to fire for records at the camps but after the ranges have been established, we expect to permit this competitive shooting as the time at the camps will be more available for record firing."

COTTON GINNERS CONVENTION HELD AT DALLAS

DALLAS, Texas, April 12.—Cotton men from all sections of Texas were represented at the Texas Ginner's Association. Approximately 2000 delegates were here for two days meeting.

President William Seeligson, Galveston, opened the business sessions with his annual address. Committee chairmen read their reports, and discussed recommendations for the coming year.

Tonight the delegates will attend a theatre party, and tomorrow night will climax their social activities with a grand ball.

A number of machinery concerns exhibited latest models of ginning and power machines.

5,000 INCREASE IN HOUSTON SCHOLASTIC POPULATION

By United Press.

HOUSTON, Texas, April 12.—A scholastic census, which is now being taken in this city, indicates there would be an approximate increase of 5,000 in the number of children over last year, business manager H. L. Mills has announced. Questionnaires which were sent to all heads of private schools, parochial schools and industrial and commercial firms employing children of school age, are being checked against the returns of the enumerators.

OUTLINE OF THE PLANS OF THE ARRANGEMENTS FOR THE TEXAS TECH BUILDINGS WHEN COMPLETED

Much interest has been manifested in the general layout of the grounds of the Texas Technological College, prepared by the architects and the president and approved by the board of directors at their recent meeting in Fort Worth.

This plan provides for more than 40 buildings with a capacity of 5,000 students when the entire plant is erected, and yet arranges workable provision for a school of 500 students, as it probably will be when it starts in September, 1925. It required no little thought and careful planning to serve this double purpose.

When one looks down Broadway, Lubbock, he will see at the end of it an auditorium the architecture of which is after that of the Alamo. The building will serve the double purpose of a hall of Texas history and an auditorium. This will be about a thousand feet back from the east line of the Tech campus. It is not intended to construct this building at once, but when constructed it will be the only building of its kind to be found in any educational plant in the southwest.

Where Broadway stops at the Tech site, it will run into a broad, double roadway with a park space in the center. This in turn will open into a large square court just in front of the auditorium, referred to as the "court." This roadway and court, extending east and west will form the main axis of the school plant.

Running north and south there will be another axis, including this same court. Facing north will be the main administration building. When completed it will have four sides surrounding a patio, but only the side to the north is to be built first. This will be the first building constructed and will be capable of taking care of the academic work and some of the agricultural and mechanical work of a thousand students.

Immediately north of this, at the end of the secondary axis, facing south, will be eventually the textile department. It also will be in the form of a patio but at first only the southern side will be constructed.

BOOTLEGGERS ARE HERE IN GREAT NUMBERS SAYS OFFICER

Members of both the sheriff and police forces have been kept on the alert during the past few days because of a sudden and unprecedented influx of bootleggers.

"I am frank to say there are more bootleggers in this vicinity now than at any other time during the past two years," a local officer stated Saturday and declared that though more than a dozen arrests have been made on liquor charges during the past ten days, the ever-growing tide of bootleggers seems to gain momentum.

News of the prosperity of the Plains and Lubbock's popularity everywhere is believed to be the cause of so many bootleggers making this territory, and officers are in hopes that through close attention to these cases on the part of every member of both the sheriff and police forces enough arrests will be made to discourage many of those who have come here to peddle the prohibited beverages.

EL PASO TO FIGHT MEXICAN RESTRICTION

EL PASO, Texas, April 12.—El Paso Chamber of Commerce is to submit the aid of other border towns in a fight on the proposed inclusion of a right on the immigration quota law. J. A. Happer, special representative of the Chamber of Commerce at Washington, notified the organization that a concerted effort was being made to include Mexico in the restrictions.

It is claimed that Mexicans are the only common labor in this country and Mexicans can be found working on railroads from Kansas to California.

EL PASO, Texas, April 12.—Kansas buyers have purchased 21,000 two, three and four year old steers for delivery this month from the Circle Cattle Company.

The value of the purchase is said to approximate $100,000. This lot of stock is said to be in addition to the $250,000 recently reported paid for cattle from this section.

MARRS AIDS IN ROAD ESSAY CONTEST

WASHINGTON, D. C., April 12.—Texas high school students writing essays to be entered in the fifth annual good roads essay contest, are assured that the greatest aid in the review of their manuscripts by the cooperation of the State Department of Education, according to an announcement today by the Highway Education Board.

A letter from Dr. S. M. N. Marrs, State Superintendent of Public Instruction, expresses his desire to do all he can to "further the best test, 'I am deeply appreciative,'" writes the superintendent, "of the opportunity which it brings to the pupils of the high schools."

Officials of the board will ask Dr. Marrs to name a committee of competent men and women to read the essays submitted by Texas students in this contest, it was said. According to the rules of the contest the papers are selected by a process of elimination. Pupils have until Monday, April 21, in which to complete their essays and submit them to high school principals of teachers.

In each high school the best three essays will be chosen and the principal will then forward them to the State Department of Education at Austin. The state committee will consider each essay very carefully and report its findings to the state superintendent and to the board.

A similar procedure will be followed in each state.

Banah, city superintendent of schools and each high school principal in Texas has been apprized of the contest by means of illustrated posters and folders containing all the information pertinent to the competition.

Judging from correspondence, students from virtually every high school in the state are writing essays this year. The subject is "The Relation of Improved Highways to Home Life," a theme calling for close observation and study on the part of the writer. Papers are not to exceed 700 words in length, and only students of high school grade are eligible to take part.

This contest is the fifth of a series of annual competitions conducted under the auspices of the board. The best essay will earn for the author a four years' university scholarship given by H. S. Finckstone, Akron, Ohio. This scholarship is intended to defray tuition and all reasonable expenses of the successful student during four years at any college or university in the United States; the monetary value of the scholarship being estimated at $1,000 annually, or $4,000 altogether. Four students are now in college under the terms of the scholarship.

For information pertaining to the contest, inquiries should be addressed to the Highway Education Board, Willard Building, Washington, D. C.

MUCH GIVEN BY BAPTIST FOR HOME WORK

More money has been spent in Texas during the last four years by the Home Mission Board of the Southern Baptist Convention for church building and for general home mission work than was contributed to that board by Texas Baptists during that period. Mr. S. F. Groner, general secretary of the Executive Board of the Baptist General Convention of Texas said.

Home missions fund used in this state from May 1, 1919 to January 1, 1924 totalled $927,000 and the amount which has been loaned to Baptists in this state for church building during that time is $216,000, making a total of $1,143,000 which this state has received from that board as compared to the contributions to that agency of $569,435.97, during the same period, Dr. Groner declared.

"The Baptist 75 million Spring Pay up Campaign is being directed in this state by Dr. Groner, who has been in general charge of the work for several years.

In a recent report Dr. Groner explained to the Baptist executive board that the assets of the Baptist General Convention of Texas $13,500,000 and the liabilities of the convention are $3,400,000. The church buildings in the state are valued at more than $15,000,000. The amount paid to the Baptist schools in this state since the opening of the Baptist 75 Million Campaign is $1,500,000, the hospital of the state $439,132 and to Buckner Orphans Home building fund $80,455. The total amount contributed to these institutions is $2,629,643.

PLANS ARE MADE FOR THE MORNING AVALANCHE AUTOMOBILE SHOW BE HELD IN WEST TEXAS GRAY BLDG.

Plans are about complete for the Morning Avalanche Automobile Show to be held in the West Texas Gray building on Main street Friday and Saturday.

The Lubbock Floral Company will decorate the building, which insures its being a place of rare beauty. The Western Star Orchestra of Amarillo will be on the job five hours each day and this feature of the entertainment alone will attract many.

Every automobile dealer in Lubbock has contracted to have cars exhibited, and they will be the very latest models, in fact this show would have been held at a much earlier date but for the fact that several local dealers wished to wait until the cars shown at the national automobile show which was held at Chicago several weeks ago could be shipped to them here.

The West Texas Gray Company's building is one of the most spacious salesrooms in the city and will make it possible for more cars to be exhibited at the show than have ever been placed in a show here, it has been stated.

Meantime the district contests of the Interscholastic League will be conducted here on those dates and the automobile show will be enjoyed by the hundreds of school students who will congregate here for the contest.

SAYS SHINGLED GIRL IS NO GOOD FOR SNUGGLING

CLEVELAND, Ohio. (By United Press)—"What man loves to snuggle up to ze bristly neck of ze shingle-haired girl?" is Mlle. Jeanne d'Armande's reason for maintaining that a girl snips away half her charm when she bobs her hair.

Mlle. d'Armande, a "petite" Parisian is on a tour of ze world, demonstrating what is Parisian chic and how to attain it.

She believes American women have no individuality in dress.

"Zay look nice, but zay all look ze same! Boyish zuits! Bobbed hair! Violet! Eer-ees because zay spend so much time on social clubs and charity, and so leetle on how to have a nice show-window."

"No matter what good zings are inside, upstairs, if ze show-window does not invite, nobody will stop to look in," argues this brown-haired Parisian.

"Dress ze inside, not ze outside. Ze sweet girl should wear pale fluffy zings; ze efficient girl, straight dresses, and ze jolly girl, bright colors.

COULDN'T FIND ANY NEW VOLCANO

ANCON, Canal zone. (By Mail to United Press).—A scientific expedition sent from San Jose, Costa Rica, to investigate the reported new volcano in Mount Turribare, between San Jose and Puntarenas, has reported that they were all over the Turribare region and found nothing extraordinary in the aspect of Mount Turribare, or any trace of a new volcano.

Volcano reports are natural concomitants of severe earthquake periods. During the worst of the Guatemala quakes of January, 1918, which came on a moonlight night and terrified the populace saw "a new mountain" on the horizon, and throngs were overwhelmed by the "miracle." When morning broke the mountain was seen to be the roof of a house in the suburbs, rising against the skyline.

In 1921 a new volcano was reported within 40 miles of the Panama. Positive and alarming tales were brought in by the natives. An expedition sent out by the Governor of the Canal Zone found that what had occurred was a landslide near a native village, but there was not a trace of volcanic action.

DR. ROBERTS TO BE CONVENTION SPEAKER

NEW YORK. (United Press).—Dr. Richard Roberts, pastor of the American Presbyterian Church at Montreal, Canada, will be the chief speaker at the national biennial convention of the Young Women's Christian Association, to be held at New York, April 30, May 6.

Dr. Roberts will open each convention session, giving a series of talks. Over 2,500 delegates, representing every State in the union, and official guests and visitors from Europe, South America and the Far East, are expected.

Dr. Roberts first came to America from England in answer to a call from the Church of the Pilgrims in Brooklyn. In 1921 he went to Montreal. Three of his books have been published in America. "The Untried Door," is the best known of his work.

WOODROW WILSON NOT A "GOOD FELLOW"

President Wilson has often been criticized for his apparent aloofness and coldness of manner, but perhaps one reason for this was the fact that he was utterly sincere. One could never call him a "good fellow" in what is meant by that term in popular parlance.

Josephus Daniels, in his "Life of Woodrow Wilson," published by The John C. Winston Co., tells us that "he did not know how to pretend to be what he was not. He did not flatter, he slapped nobody on the back to win favor by a familiarity not felt. He would not waste time in salutation or idle talk, but he always had time to show appreciation of real merit—plenty of time if the occasion required it."

THE STATE DEPARTMENT DOING HEALTH WORK

AUSTIN, Texas, April 12.—Probably the greatest work now being carried on in the state health department, according to its officials, is the work progressing under the direction of the department as provided for under the recent Sheppard-Towner bill, passed by the last congress.

The branch, known as the Bureau of Child Hygiene, comes under the direct supervision of the state health department, the public health nurses working in each locality being paid by the state and federal appropriations.

The Texas allotment for this year was more than $36,000 while an equal sum was added by both the state government and the localities which are served by the nurses, bringing the total to approximately $108,000.

As provided for in the Sheppard-Towner bill, the work of the public health nurses is strictly with pre-natal cases and with children of but few years of age. At present there are 30 public health nurses doing this work in as many Texas counties but it is hoped that this number will be greatly increased before the fiscal year has ended.

The nature of the work is strictly educational. Each county dearing a nurse may obtain one if the citizens of that locality will supply funds for her expenses. Her salary is paid by the state and federal appropriations. Her duty is to aid in every way possible with pre-natal cases, instructing the mothers in cleanliness, food, clothing and all necessities. The nurse serves mainly the women who would be unable financially to obtain medical advice. The public health nurses work through the children and in co-operation with the county home demonstration agent.

This is the first year that any such work has been undertaken in Texas, officials stated, and the results are declared to be little short of miraculous. There is a large demand for many such nurses but at present the chief difficulty of the health department lies in locating a competent person for the work.

Working under the Sheppard-Towner bill in this state are also two negro nurses. In addition to attention to the prenatal cases, these nurses work in the thickly populated negro districts of East Texas as in the sawmill towns, and instruct the inhabitants in cleanliness of yards and homes. One of the negro nurses in a letter to the department recently declared she was unable to gain an entrance into several of the homes on account of hog pens. Fortunately, the situation has been remedied.

In addition to the public service nurses as provided for by the bill, the state is also maintaining a regular mail service department on the care of the young Texans.

Whenever birth certificates are received from physicians, over the state, weekly letters on the care of the child, are sent to the mothers as well as patterns for clothes for both the mother and child.

The work is in its infancy in the state but the results from the small territory now taken in are amazing the officials declare, and, if appropriations can consistently be made by the state, it is hoped to cause the death rate among the infants of the state to decline appreciably.

$200 to $400 Saved

On This Light-Six Touring Car

By our matchless facilities—our enormous production

HERE is a car priced at $1,045. Built by ordinary methods it would cost you from $200 to $400 more.

It is in scores of ways the leader of its class. No rival car compares in the value that it offers.

Let us tell you how we give that value, then urge you to see this car.

A sensation

Studebaker is today the world's largest builder of quality cars. Studebaker success is the sensation of Motordom.

Sales have almost trebled in three years. Last year, 145,167 people paid $204,000,000 for Studebaker cars.

There are tremendous reasons for this rush to Studebaker cars. And every man who buys a car should know them.

72-year traditions

The Studebaker name has for 72 years stood for quality and class. To build an ordinary car under that name is unthinkable.

Our assets are $90,000,000—all at stake on serving you better than all others.

We have $50,000,000 in model plants, equipped with 12,500 up-to-date machines. We have 23,000 workers, under profit-sharing plans which lead them to stay and develop.

We spend on engineering $500,000 yearly. We employ 1,200 men to give 32,000 inspections to each Studebaker car in the making.

We are lavish

We are lavish in things that count.

We pay 15% bonus on some steels to get them exactly right. We use genuine leather in our cushions. We use curled hair.

We use more Timken bearings in this Light-Six than any competitive car within $1,500 of its price.

Our bodies are beautiful creations. The finish and coach work show the final touch. But we build them in $10,000,000 body plants of our own, and pay for these extras in savings.

Where we save

We save by enormous production—150,000 cars per year. Our major costs are all divided by that enormous output. It is utterly impossible for smaller makers to compete.

We save by modern plants, mostly built in the past five years. We save by up-to-date machines. By building our own parts and bodies.

See what this car offers

Come see what this Light-Six offers. How it excels in scores of ways any rival car.

Built with the same steels, the same care and skill, as the costliest of our cars. We have only one grade of chassis.

See its beauty, its comfort, its luxury. See how we have studied your every desire.

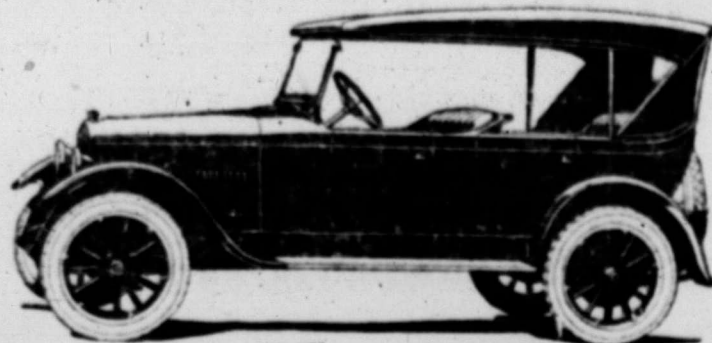

Do that and you will choose this car, if you have in mind a price anywhere near this.

Send for the book

Mail us the coupon below. We will send you free our new book that will inform you on five simple things which reveal the value of a car. For instance—

It will enable you to look at any car and tell whether it's been cheapened to meet a price or offers true quality.

It will tell you why some cars rattle at 20,000 miles and others don't. It shows one single point in a closed car which measures whether you're getting top or medium quality. The book is free. Clip the coupon below.

Studebaker Light-Six Touring Car—$1,045

Same steels as we use in the costliest cars we build. More Timken bearings than in any competitive car within $1,500 of this price.

Genuine leather cushions, ten inches deep. Curled hair filling. All-steel body.

One-piece, rain-proof windshield. Attractive cowl lights. Standard non-skid cord tires.

Transmission and ignition locks. Perfect motor balance. Curtains that open with the doors.

By far the greatest value in this class.

Mail coupon for book about it

We machine all surfaces of our crankshafts and connecting rods, as was done in the Liberty Airplane motors. No other maker of cars at our prices does this. The result is that perfect motor balance, lack of vibration and long life.

ALL NECESSARY CABLE AND OTHER MATERIALS HAVE BEEN RECEIVED BY TELEPHONE COMPANY'S EXPANSIONS

All necessary cables and other materials for the construction of a number of telephone lines in Lubbock have been received by the Southwestern Bell Telephone Company and a crew of ten men have been on the job the past week making ready for one of the most extensive building programs instituted by the company in Lubbock in a number of years.

Actual work on stringing the cable will be started Monday morning and Manager H. D. Phillips stated Saturday that it was his opinion that all work necessary to give telephone service to applicants will be completed within thirty days.

The company will, however, not be satisfied with meeting the present demand for telephones but will build cable mains to thinly populated sections of the city where new homes are being built in order that the demands for new phones may be met for many months to come.

The extent of the present building program has not been definitely settled, but it is understood that the company will build in accordance with the rapid growth of Lubbock.

The necessary improvements being made now will be appreciated by patrons needing phones at this time, and the expansion program generally is appreciated by everyone interested in the continued growth of Lubbock.

INDUSTRIALLY, GERMANY IS COMING BACK FAST

By CARL D. GROAT
(United Press Staff Correspondent)
BERLIN, April 12.—Germany's industrial situation is rapidly returning to normalcy.

Unemployment, a few months ago appallingly large, has now nearly disappeared, though some fancy statisticians, like the Labor Minister, Braun, still regale the public with gloomy compilations.

The truth of the unemployment situation is, however, that in unoccupied Germany factories are again on full time, to all intents and purposes. Exact data are lacking for the occupied zone, but the improvement noted in the unoccupied zone is also being duplicated there.

The part-time workers receiving Government assistance to take out their wages had dropped in mid-March to the 100,000 mark, meaning substantially that mills are now in full blast.

This represents an extremely quick come-back for in November the short-timers receiving supplemental Government assistance numbered close to 2,000,000.

Good Times Ahead
At the same time, the totally unemployed have been reduced by 300,000 so it is doubtful if a half million are still listed in this class. In any event, all signs point to good times ahead, even though many industrialists and Government leaders still whine about bad times for the simple reason that the takings are not so extensive as during the days of the inflation.

The introduction of the Rentenmark brought with it unemployment and extraordinarily high prices. The mills for a time were unable to compete in the world market. Since then, however, there has been some reduction of prices.

Furthermore, the German industrialist is again becoming a factor in world competition, for the simple reason that he has abandoned the eight-hour day to take starvation wages. Some Ruhr industrialists complain of the impossibility of the Meum contracts, which is on to obtain concessions from the French when renewals come up.

Hard Times Propaganda
There is undoubtedly a degree of truth in the Ruhrists' complaints, but there have been no reports of Stinnes, Thyssen or Krupp applying for admission to the poorhouse. Their propaganda serves a double purpose—or, at least, tries to serve it. In the first place, these industrialists are jockeying for better terms from the French. In the second place, their plea of hard times and hard conditions is intended to have its reaction on labor, making the latter more pliable.

And in the latter instance, the cry has been effective. The workman is told he shall take the offered wage and the longer hours; it is necessary for upbuilding the fatherland. If the appeal doesn't touch his "patriotism," then, it is made more direct when coupled with the virtual threat: "take it or starve through unemployment."

In this way German industry is again beginning to bloom. This fact looms up out of a maze of the ever-present pessimism which has become almost a part of the national stock in trade.

FOURTH CHILD THE BEST, DECLARES AN EXPERT

OMAHA, Neb. (United Press)—If you're an only child—"The Lord deliver me," Dr. Caroline Hedger, Chicago child expert of the Elizabeth McCormick Foundation Fund, said, speaking here.

"In most cases the only child is abnormal," Dr. Hedger said. "He gets too much attention. A very high percentage of them suffer from malnutrition and they don't get the contact that the children who have brothers and sisters get."

"No family on the average, has its best child until the fourth. The finest children are those born from the fourth to the eighth. The only child doesn't get into the game of life early like the children of large families."

$3,000 WORTH OF JEWELS RETURNED TO OWNER

FORT WORTH, Texas, April 12.—The honesty of J. F. Heath, trolley conductor here, restored safely to Mrs. Rachel Wolf, a lifetime's accumulation of jewels valued at $3,000.

The first time in twenty years the aged woman had removed the gems from her safety deposit vault, all at one time. She planned to have them photographed. While en route to a photographer's office she dropped the small charms bag containing the jewels on Heath's car. The assortment included diamonds, rubies and pearls. He turned his find into company headquarters where the woman recovered them when almost on the verge of a collapse.

MANY TEXAS HIGH SCHOOL GIRLS IN STORY CONTEST

FORT WORTH, Texas, April 12.—Texas high school girls have entered in the National Meat Story Contest, according to a statement made public today by E. B. Spiller, of Fort Worth, a director of the National Live Stock and Meat Board which organization is conducting the contest. Mr. Spiller expressed the hope that in this number will be found the National Champion and other winners.

San Antonio and Houston schools head the list in this state with 100 girls entered in each city, said Mr. Spiller. Dallas has 17 entered and Fort Worth has 4. Other Texas cities represented in the contest are: Tyler, McAllen, Sour Lake, LaPorte, New Braunfels, Waco, Dabhart, Athens, Lubbock, Baird, Atlanta, Galveston, Port Lavaca and Mineral Wells.

More than 11,000 high school girls representing every state in the union and the District of Columbia are now competing, according to Mr. Spiller. The United States has been divided into four districts and in each one of these prizes are offered ranging from $100 down to $10. The National Champion will be picked from the four district winners and will receive a total of $300.

Contestants are required to do two things—write a story on meat of 1,000 to 2,500 words and submit with it four meat recipes. They have until May 1 to get their story and recipes into the office of the Board at Chicago. In commenting further on the National Meat Story Contest, Mr. Spiller said that the purpose with which it was launched was to furnish an incentive to all high school students of home economics for a more thorough study in that field.

This contest, he averred, is a part of a nation-wide educational program being carried out by the National Live Stock and Meat Board with the aim of getting the true facts about meat before the consuming public. The Board's efforts along this line have been endorsed by the United States Department of Agriculture.

CATO SELLS ASKS FOR ELECTION OF DELEGATES

DALLAS, Texas, April 12.—(INS) Cato Sells, chairman of the Texas Centennial Celebration organization, today reminded Texas of the coming elections of delegates upon which will rest the event's responsibility.

County delegates will be elected Saturday, April 12, Sells announced. The next week two delegates from the eleventh Senatorial district will be chosen. This will take place simultaneously all over the state and it is hoped to secure uniform representation before which every community will be allowed to present its claim for the centennial.

The board of 100 delegates to be elected must decide on the time and location of the centennial.

"The purpose of the centennial is primarily to acquaint Texans with Texas," Sells said "and to sell our state to the world. The people in the north have invested their money in our state but they have not brought their families here. They still believe the only sport the Texans have is shooting out windows and breaking up saloon fixtures."

"The future of Texas lies in Pan-America and Mexico. A successful centennial will help to unite us and will show the world the state we have."

Sells added that the event might not occur for ten years but that the time and site is up to the 100 delegates.

GAME WARDEN GOT 162 FISH NETS IN DRIVE

By United Press

ATHENS, Texas, April 12.—One hundred and sixty-two fish nets were removed from Caddo Lake, when Deputy State Game Warden S. D. Turner visited the place recently to co-operate with the Louisiana authorities in preventing illegal fishing in the lake.

A large shipment of fish was forwarded to Dallas to be distributed among north Texas hatcheries.

This Promises To Be The EASTER of NAVY TAILLEURS

—of this you may be certain, Navy tailleurs will be much in evidence in the Easter promenade, especially the suit of solid navy because it lends itself to more formal wear than other suiting. A most satisfying selection of Navy tailleurs presented here to-morrow at a discount of—

—which brings the price range down to $16.00 to $55.60

Single, also double-breasted, boy-like types. The narrow shoulders and sleeves that are only found in skillfully tailored suits—Conley Suits. It is advisable to view this showing at your earliest convenience. Easter is but 7 days away, you know.

ALL OVER THE STORE

Yes, Garrett's business has flourished this Spring. We believe that our policy of close selling at all times is the best policy. We also believe that our intention of keeping merchandise moving just a little earlier is a good plan of keeping our stock new, fresh and up-to-date in every way. We believe that by cutting our prices down to just as low as is possible to operate a business at this time is a good one. We don't want Easter merchandise in our store after this week. We must have late Spring and early Summer styles in stock and we are going to do this. You can convince yourself that this is a real, strict policy of Garrett's by attending this sale. It would be a good idea to come as early in the week as possible because we are sure the store will be crowded the latter part of the week and our service can not be so personal then, as we desire it to be.

GARRETT

THE PASSING DAY

By WILL H. MAYES, Department of Journalism, University of Texas

By a vote of more than 2 to 1 Walker county, of which Huntsville is the county seat, has voted a bond issue of $1,500,000 for the building of good roads. This indicates the extent to which Texas is awakening in the matter of road building. Ten years ago such a thing would have been thought impossible and if any one had proposed such a thing to the conservative citizenship of that county he might have been in danger of having his sanity made a subject of inquiry.

Newspaper headlines tell us that "Congress Expects to Finish by June First. Finish what? Doubtless the papers mean to say that Congress expects to adjourn by that date. There may be other matters before that body, but at this distance it looks like that, aside from the tax reduction bill and the soldier bonus bill, Congress has resolved itself into a great committee of general investigation, and that, as usual in such matters, the investigations will result in little else than increased expense for the taxpayers.

Stephenville is doing a sensible thing in erecting a modest but practical library building. It will cost, it is said, only $9,000. The main floor will be used for library purposes and the light basement will contain an assembly room for club meetings, a kitchenette, and other conveniences of a community center. Every town needs a public library, and the best way to popularize the small town library is to make it the center of the club and literary activities of the place. A large library building, empty most of the time, and with spacious book shelves containing few books, is about as attractive as a mausoleum.

Fort Worth is about to exclude horses from certain downtown streets. Perhaps the almost universal use of automobiles may make this action expedient, but Fort Worth should be the last city in Texas to ban its faithful ally, the horse. Fort Worth has been built up around its live stock interests. It has been the great horse, mules and cattle market of the Southwest, and even yet its stock shows are the greatest in all the country. To banish the horse from Fort Worth—the new Fort Worth—may be compared to youth refusing to associate with the parent that has nurtured and trained it. But for the horse and the cow Fort Worth would still be a village, but it now proposes to tell the horse that it must not be seen in company with Fort Worth's adopted child, the automobile. In resentment the horse and the cow may abandon the city of their first love to its fate and move out to some growing young place of West Texas, where they will be assured a true Western welcome on the streets or wherever else they may wish to disport themselves.

The town that is not engaged in a spring house-cleaning just now or that is not planning one for the near future needs a few housekeepers. Of course, towns, like homes, should be kept clean all the time, but also like homes, there are no such towns. An occasional thorough cleaning is needed to keep a place presentable, as every housewife knows. A town should be just as ashamed to have its back streets be seen dirty as a good housekeeper is to have visitors catch a sight of a filthy back hall. The impressions upon visitors are just the same. Clean up and make a thorough job of it.

The Houston Post has discontinued its afternoon edition with the statement that three afternoon papers are too many for Houston. There is a general tendency to cut down the number of newspapers published, the number in New York now being less than half that of former years. Newspapers have to be better now than they were in pre-war days and it costs more to publish them. One good or fairly good newspaper in a city of 100,000 represents the place better than a half dozen poorly supported.

Women are rapidly taking up work that a few years ago was regarded as belonging exclusively to men. A Texas woman has been appointed sheriff of Brazos county to succeed her husband, who recently killed by a half-crazed ex-serviceman. In at least one Texas county there is a woman candidate for sheriff, and many places have women deputy sheriffs. Not only do women fill or seek nearly every kind of office, but more and more they are getting into the professions and into business. It is no longer regarded as necessary for a woman to be idle or to lead the clinging-vine life to maintain her position as a refined lady. Soon the female loafer will come to be regarded as about as contemptible a character as the man who tries to live without working.

BYNUM BUILDING TWO HOMES ON AVENUE H

S. K. Bynum, pioneer of the South Plains, and who has been actively engaged in building more homes in Lubbock for the past several years, now has two modern homes under construction on Avenue H.

"It takes all kinds of building to make Lubbock the town it deserves to be, and I am going to turn my attention to building homes," Mr. Bynum declared Saturday.

JUNIOR C. OF C. IS GIVEN CLOSE CO-OPERATION; BUSINESS BODIES IN LUBBOCK ON CONVENTION PLANS

Members of the Junior Chamber of Commerce have been given much encouragement in their work of planning Lubbock's participation in the West Texas Chamber of Commerce Convention to be held at Brownwood May 13 to 15, inclusive, as every other business organization in Lubbock has appointed committees to work with them on the project.

The Kiwanis club will be represented on the "On to Brownwood" committee by three of its most alert members, the same being true with the Senior Chamber of Commerce and the Rotary club.

Manager A. B. Davis of the Chamber of Commerce has already started actual work in materializing the plans made by the junior members, and it is believed that by the first of May, the number of delegates to represent Lubbock at the convention and other important information concerning their participation in the entertainment features will be at hand.

Meantime the junior members and members of all other organizations in Lubbock will announce anything done by any citizen of this community in furthering the plans for Lubbock's attendance upon the convention.

They especially want every Lubbock citizen to know that the city wants to be well represented at the convention.

It doesn't matter so much whether we have one or a dozen bands or any of those features, just so we have enough Lubbock folks on the ground from the beginning to the end of the convention, it has been pointed out by prominent committeemen at work on the plans.

Let's all go to Brownwood.

BUGS OF TWO NATIONS WILL BE EXCHANGED

URBANA, Ill., April 12.—Illinois insects are going to South America! And they won't come back. In their stead will come South American insects.

Dr. T. H. Frison, systematic entomologist of the Natural History Survey, located at the University of Illinois, has just shipped to an entomologist in Chile a named and mounted series of common Illinois beetles.

Dr. Frison says that many of the beetles included in the shipment are forms which do a considerable amount of damage each year to the agricultural products of Illinois and surrounding States. Still others among the series, on the contrary, are forms who do a large amount of good by destroying injurious insects.

The sending will be of much value to entomologists of Chile, in that it will aid them in the identification of North American beetles which may become accidentally induced through the channels of commerce into certain parts of South America.

The quick recognition of new invading insect pests is of much importance because it speeds up at a critical time work directed at their suppression or reduction.

In return for this shipment the Illinois Natural History Survey will receive an assortment of the insects of Chile.

LOWLY WORM CENTER

OF A $10,000 SUIT

PHILADELPHIA (United Press).—It's not every day that a lowly worm can break into the headlines of city newspapers, but such an animal, described as "pinch colored" and about an inch and a half long, has just occupied such a place here, and is the cause of a lawsuit against a restaurant for $10,000.

The worm is alleged to have appeared on a platter of food being served a customer of the restaurant. It is alleged to have "shocked" severely the man who had ordered the food and now he is trying to collect $10,000 from the restaurant for serving him a worm.

The restaurant is seeking to prove that the worm was on the inside of one of the beans on the customer's plate and that it cannot be expected to see the inside of all food which it serves.

BIG BAND CONTESTS STAGED AT W. T. C. C. CONVENTION

BROWNWOOD, Texas, April 12.—Announcements from cities all over Texas indicate by far the biggest band contests ever staged in Texas will be held here during the annual meeting of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce, May 13, 14 and 15.

It is thought that in the neighborhood of a half a hundred bands will assemble here for the contests.

J. P. Boyer, internationally known pianist of the G. C. Conn Company, musical instrument manufacturers, will be one of the band judges. He is well known in band circles over the entire United States.

The one-year class band will play "Crest of Honor" and "Corinthian." The march to be played by second year bands is "Blue Jackets," the overture, "Lugger's." Military bands will play "The Stars and Stripes" and "The Stars and Stripes." The march for the four year bands is "Tropic of Tropics" and "Panorama" is the overture. The march for the five year bands is "Land of Mon" and the overture is "La Gazza Ladra." The college bands will play as a march, "Cottage Grove" and "Invincible" as an overture. The saxophone bands are to play as a march, "Centaur" and the overture, "Iron Court."

Bands cannot take part in the contests if not entered by Monday, April 14, 7:30 G. Ward Moody, secretary of the Texas Band Teachers' Association, Lamesa, Texas.

Prizes aggregating nearly $25,000 in cash and a couple of gold cups have been announced in the contests, which is thought to be the highest premiums ever offered for this type of contest in Texas.

BANKS OF FLOYDADA

IN FINE CONDITION

FLOYDADA, Texas, April 12.—Combined bank deposits at Floydada were seven hundred and eighty-seven thousand dollars on the 1st of March. The combined cash and exchange totaled over one hundred fifty thousand dollars. Neither bank showed any money borrowed and both are in splendid shape to take care of the demands of the farmers during the crop making period. Business conditions are very good over this territory as reflected by the bank statements.

ROSS-GOOD CASES TO BE ARGUED AT AUSTIN WEDNESDAY

Senator W. H. Bledsoe left his home here Saturday morning for Dallas where he will confer with Milt Good and Tom Ross before going to Austin to argue their cases before the court of criminal appeals Wednesday.

Ross and Good are in the Dallas jail awaiting the outcome of their appeals. They were convicted in the district court of Lubbock and Taylor counties on joint indictments for the murder of cattle inspectors H. L. Roberson and W. D. Allison, at Seminole on the evening of April 1, 1923, and were sentenced to serve terms in the penitentiary of Texas.

While no statements would be made at the office of Bledsoe & Pharr, principal attorneys for Ross and Good, Attorney Bledsoe is making the fight for reversal of the trial courts decisions with some confidence of victory.

The cases will be argued Wednesday, but it will be a week or perhaps several weeks before a decision in the cases is handed down by that court.

PLAINS EDUCATOR WAS IN LUBBOCK SAT.

J. N. Johnston, superintendent of the Floydada schools, was in Lubbock Saturday enroute to Littlefield, where he will look over that section of the Plains.

Prof. Johnston has been a resident of West Texas for forty years but says the country is being developed so fast he can hardly keep up with the new communities that are springing up over the Plains.

He said he might go as far west as Pop while on this visit.

Prof. Johnston is one of the West Texans whose every interest is involved in the advancement of the educational institutions of the Plains, and the schools of Floydada are given a place among the best on the Plains.

LUMBER, MILL WORKERS HAVE POOR LIVING CONDITIONS

HOUSTON, Texas, April 12.—Poor living conditions for lumber mill workers is shown by a report just issued by Joseph S. Myers, state commissioner of labor.

The report covers the 1923 activities of investigators. Representatives of the Bureau visited 92 families, most of them in East Texas.

"While a number of noteworthy exceptions were encountered, it was found that the homes of living quarters provided by the mills for their employees were inadequate to the needs of a normal family," the reports read.

"As a rule very poor provision is made for sanitation, the houses are built together and little or no garden space is provided."

PARIS PASTOR FILLS HOUSE BY GIVING PRIZES

PARIS, Texas, April 12.—The subject of his sermon "Automobile Religion" and a prize to the owner of the automobile that brought the largest crowd to his church, packed the First Baptist church here recently when at the conclusion of his sermon, Rev. W. M. Wright awarded the prize—one gallon of lubricating oil.

The pastor declared that the automobile had become a popular means of locomotion he felt sure that the Savior, if living, would would use the automobile to express spiritual truths.

COTTONSEED MEAL and HULLS

There is no question but that cottonseed meal grows in popularity as its intrinsic value becomes known. There is no foodstuff known that will place the same amount of fat on cattle within so short a time as cottonseed meal combined with cottonseed hulls, and this fact is recognized wherever this feed is used. When fed to dairy cows, its use increases the quantity of milk, improves the color, and the cream therefrom makes richer and better butter.

RETAIL DRUGGISTS OF THE SOUTH PLAINS WILL MEET HERE TUESDAY; INSTRUCTIVE PROGRAM ARRANGED

Arrangements for the convention of the South Plains Retail Druggists Association to be held here Tuesday afternoon and evening have been made, and local members predict that more than forty druggists will attend.

The business session will be called Tuesday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock and will remain in session through out the afternoon. Several prominent druggists of this section will be on the program and practically all towns within a radius of fifty miles will be represented, it was said.

Following the afternoon business session the druggists will be given a recess that will last for four or two during which time they will have the opportunity to visit the various businesses in Lubbock, and following which they will meet at the new Texas Cafe where they will be guests of local druggists at a banquet. Special musical numbers and other entertainment features have been arranged and Lubbock druggists will exert every effort to make their visiting fellows glad they selected this place for their convention.

E. L. Robertson, of Lubbock, secretary of the association declared Saturday that the convention will be held as a means of giving each member of the association an opportunity to learn more about what other druggists are doing, which will result in making better merchants of all of them, and the primary purpose of the convention is to uphold the dignity of the druggists' profession.

168-HOUR NON-STOP FLORIDA RECORD BY STUDEBAKER

TAMPA, Fla., April 12.—A Studebaker Light Six, non-stop run of 3,101 miles, just completed here by a Studebaker Light Six touring car is causing wide-spread comment among motorists in this vicinity.

Eighteen drivers handled the car during the run. Taking out the time required for changing drivers, the Light Six actually covered the 3,101 miles in 147 hours. Gasoline consumption averaged 21 miles a gallon and more than 300 miles per quart of oil were obtained.

Running continuously day and night, and forced to idle down constantly in congested traffic, the car's radiator thrived for only one additional tea cup of water.

The original owner, Monroe Lazarus, of the Tampa Daily Times, drove the Studebaker for 15 months on daily express schedule over his newspaper route for 68,000 miles. He averaged 4,500 miles a month in the fifteen months. His records show an average of 20 miles per gallon of gas, eight tires were in service for 44,000 miles, and his total cost of operation, including every expense, was less than five cents a mile.

After 68,000 miles on this grueling road work the Studebaker was taken to the Peninsular Motor Corporation, Tampa, who ran it 17,000 miles, making a total of 85,000 miles the car had been run. Then, without tuning up, the traded-in Studebaker was started off on the record-breaking run.

No adjustments were necessary during the test. The motor and car were in excellent running condition at the termination of the non-stop flight. This record, it is said, has never before been approached in the South.

WORLD CHAMPION CANARY BIRDS TO BE HERE

The world champion roller canary bird which sang over radio station WBAF at Fort Worth Friday night and which is being taken on a radio tour of the United States by Howard Foggy, of Louisville, Ky., national secretary of the International Roller Canary Association, will be brought to Lubbock and exhibited at the home of Mrs. H. W. Holland, 910, 10th street on about the 28th of this month.

They are winners of the most important international canary bird shows held in leading cities of the United States. In addition to the radio troupe the exhibit will include the champion Pocawanas, winners of the international championship at Kansas City.

Many Lubbock people will doubtless take advantage of the opportunity to hear and see these birds.

NEW CURE FOR NERVOUSNESS

BERLIN (By Mail to the United Press).—Silence to the point of boredom is the best cure for nervousness, in the opinion of Professor Thimm of Berlin and Wiesbaden.

In his sanatorium, Professor Thimm prescribes "boredom" for many of his patients, and claims to have found that they are restored to glowing health, with nerves stilled and minds cleared.

The rules of Professor Thimm insist that the nervous patient shall not even speak a word. His nurse is placed in a separate room, and the patient is instructed that he can only answer the few daily questions put to him by the professor.

Nor may the patient read more than a few lines a day. By the time that the patient is "thoroughly fed up," he is beginning to mend. Subsequently, he gets more of the "boredom" until he is discharged as fully cured.

PLANT A TREE!

MODERN "WILD ASSES" OF THE U. S. DESERTS

SAN BERNARDINO, Calif. (United Press).—You have read of the "wild asses of the desert." Well, Mojave desert has them, only they are wild burros. They have been destroying the trees and gardens of the desert towns, and the country supervisors have granted the towns a permit to establish a burro pound and name a pound keeper.

You have read in your desert tales of the weary prospector, without water, whose burro falls by the "dry" waterhole and is left to die. Apparently he doesn't die, but rests awhile and walks away on a successful search for water. Anyhow, huge droves of wild burros can be found in the desert, unmolested.

Now, since they are interfering with property rights, they are to lose their liberty and return to service. Any wild burro that disregards the "no trespass" signs, and is caught, will be sold to anyone who needs a burro. Burros are had enough when domesticated, so considerable excitement is expected when the wild ones are tamed.

WORLD'S BIGGEST CHOIR

LONDON (By Mail to United Press).—Twenty tons of sheet music are used by the largest orchestra in the world, now rehearsing here. This is the "Imperial Choir," of 3,000 vocalists and 500 instrumentalists in training for the rendition of six concerts of Handel's massive choruses.

This will be the most colossal massing of the human voice in song ever heard in history. Dr. Charles Harriss, conductor, declared: "Dr. Harriss has crossed the Atlantic ninety times and has toured the British Empire five times."

NEXT WEEK IS
"Cleaning Week"
HAVE YOUR SUIT IN EARLY

Better send your summer suit to our plant Monday morning, as next week will be a big week in the cleaning business. People will be getting their clothes all spick and span for Easter Sunday. Maybe you don't need a new suit if the old one is properly cleaned and pressed. We guarantee the best of work. We do not injure clothes—but instead we clean them in a manner that actually makes them last longer and look as well as when new.

Silk Dresses, too, should be sent to our plant early in the week as there will be hundreds of new silk dresses cleaned in our plant this coming week. Just go to your phone and call us and our wagon will come to your home and in a short time your clothes will be all ready for Easter—and you will have saved many dollars!

This is the Most Modern Cleaning Establishment on the Plains of Texas

Every facility for the proper cleaning of all fabrics is installed. There is the curtain cleaning department—one that makes it easy for you to have curtains that look new—and our machinery for this work positively does not injure the curtains. Remember all this when you get ready for cleaning work.

WHEREAS, in his death our auxiliary has suffered a real loss,

BE IT THEREFORE RESOLVED:

ED: That we, the members of the Woman's Missionary Society extend to the family our deepest sympathy and love and that we shall strive to help carry out the big broad program of work which his great mind and heart had planned for Lubbock Methodism.

BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED:

That a copy of these resolutions be sent to the family; the press and spread on the minutes of the Woman's Missionary Society.

MRS. C. S. MIDDLETON,

MRS. W. C. RYLANDER,

MRS. H. T. KIMBRO, Com.

Passed by the Mary Heim Auxiliary of the First Methodist Church of Lubbock, on the death of Rev. C. N. N. Ferguson.

Whereas, The merciful Father of us, has taken from our midst our beloved pastor and friend; and

Whereas, We have known him as a true laborer of the Lord; and

Whereas, We know that in his passing our auxiliary, church and community has suffered a great loss;

Be it therefore resolved: That we, the members of the Mary Heim Auxiliary, do sincerely mourn his passing and extend to his bereaved family our deepest sympathy.

We resolve: That we will help to carry on his great program and that his life of untiring service to God shall be our inspiration through life.

Be it further resolved: That a copy of these resolutions be sent to the bereaved family; a copy sent to the press for publication and a copy be recorded in the minutes of our auxiliary.

(Signed)

MRS. S. H. STEWART, Pres.

MRS. CHARLES A. PIERCE,

MRS. TOM P. FOSTER,

Committee.

Whereas, It has pleased God to remove from this field of service our pastor and beloved brother C. N. N. Ferguson; we bow in humble submission to the will of God believing and knowing that his plan is best. But we cannot see all the way and we are grieved because our faithful friend and tireless leader is no longer here to lead us on.

Therefore, Be it resolved by the board of stewards of the First M. E. Church, South, Lubbock, Texas, that we mourn the departure of our brother Ferguson; and be it

Further resolved: That we as a board of stewards will endeavor to carry on and complete the great plan and program that Brother Ferguson had on hand; and be it also

Resolved: That we express our sincere sympathy to the family; and

That a copy hereof be furnished the family, and a copy spread on the minutes of this board, and that the press of the town be also furnished copies hereof.

DIRE DISCREPANCY IN HOMESTEAD LAW SHOWN IN REPORT OF COMMITTEE TO SECRETARY OF INTERIOR

By E. B. MacDONALD
(UN Staff Correspondent)

WASHINGTON, April 12.—Hidden in the scientific report which has been transmitted to the secretary of the interior by special advisory committee on irrigation is a pathetic tale of disillusioned city "greenhorns" trying to take up homesteads in the west, of real estate sharks mulcting discouraged homesteaders, and of old-fashioned farmers going under because they did not keep up with scientific methods.

Thomas E. Campbell, former governor of Arizona, and chairman of the advisory committee, sketched the plight of these city tenderfeet who have come to grief on government homesteads in an exclusive interview with the United News.

The story contains all of the tragedy which the farmers in the fertile agricultural districts have gone through, plus the difficulties imposed on them in the semi-arid lands by Mother Nature. The conditions of these dry-farmers is pathetic, Governor Campbell declared. He unfolded the human side of the reclamation situation, which, according to the advisory committee's report, is approaching "imminent disaster" and explained why a drastic revision of the government's homestead policy has been recommended.

"We have adopted the principle," Campbell said, "of excluding from government projects those who know absolutely nothing about farming. The inexperienced, except in rare cases, tire of the soil soon. They have sunk their small savings and in nine cases out of ten want to get out after two or three years of it."

"The pioneer spirit in the United States is dead. Nobody works hard any more. The time when men wrested a living from the soil in this country with their two bare hands is past. The farmer of today must have some scientific knowledge and some business acumen or he inevitably will be a failure."

"This lack of knowledge on the part of many homesteaders, combined with the hard times farmers are experiencing, has gone a long way toward making a failure of what should be a success."

"So in the future we will examine all homesteaders. At present, when we open up land there are ten times as many applicants as there is land. We now rely on a haphazard method of drawing from a hat. That is absurd. If we are to have sound farming we must give the land to the best farmers."

Lurking in another recommendation of the report is a tale of real estate sharks mulcting homesteaders on projects made possible only through outlay of government funds. In the future, the reclamation service will seek to obtain title to all land on a contemplated project before they permit its construction.

"Two-thirds of the land on every project which the government has built," Campbell declared, "has been owned by a mercenary band of real estate sharks, who pushed the project in progress. In nearly every case, they bought the land for about two dollars an acre from discouraged settlers. Then, when the United States improved the land, they sold it for $50 or $60 an acre.

"Then generally the farmer can't pay cash so they taken mortgages and charge eight per cent interest. They were drawing eight per cent on their investment which had increased 3,000 per cent and all the money came from the pockets of the taxpayers. But that must be stopped."

"We have now reached the stage where we must put the government irrigation projects on a scientific basis. The engineer has made a scientific success of irrigation, now the economist must step in and make a business success of it."

"The old methods are dead. We must adopt up-to-date measures, if we want the projects to be a success. So we are asking an agricultural expert for each project to help and advise the farmers. It is pathetic the way the old men from the middle west stick to antiquated methods and it is surprising the great lack of knowledge many farmers have. What they need is some teaching in irrigation methods."

WILL ERECT MEMORIAL FOR A DOG IN THE NEAR FUTURE

By United Press

HOUSTON, Texas, April 12.—"Woody," canine actor, who gave his life in a vain attempt to save four-year-old Betty Jean Forth in a fire here, is to have a memorial.

Hardly had the embers of the blaze that claimed the lives of Betty and her parents and "Woody" cooled, than a movement began to erect a monument to the dog.

The goal was set for $100 and already over half of this amount has been raised.

It was the hoarse bark of Woody that aroused Russ Forth to the fire danger. Forth and his wife, clasping Betty Jean in her arms, leaped from a second story window but were badly injured. "Woody" was trapped by the flames and laid down his life without a whimper.

At present "Woody" is buried in a plot of ground back of the Cozy Theatre where Forth and his wife were playing.

DORMITORY BEGUN FOR METHODISTS AT AUSTIN

By United Press

AUSTIN, Texas, April 12.—Ground has been broken for the $125,000 dormitory for Methodist girls attending the University of Texas. The first unit will accommodate 100 girls.

A period of building activity is here with the next week or so marked for beginning of work on the $300,000 filtration plant; the awarding of contracts for $1,000,000 worth of county roads, and the $700,000 contracts for work on the city school.

At present, the $1,000,000 Stephen F. Austin Hotel is nearing completion and the $400,000 biology building on the University campus has got to the first floor.

CONFEDERATE RECORDS CAN BE STRAIGHTENED BY ORGANIZATION

By United Press

DALLAS, Texas, April 12.—Mrs. J. E. Self, official of the newly organized Bonnie Blue Flag Chapter of the United Daughters of the Confederacy, says this body will attempt to keep straight the records of the Confederates, and to minister to the needs of the less than 30,000 living heroes of the Confederacy.

The organization wants the daughters and granddaughters of the Confederates for members and is making efforts to get chapters with every eligible woman in Dallas and this section enrolled.

CENTER PEOPLE WILL VOTE BONDS FOR SCHOOL SOON

By United Press

Judge P. F. Brown attended a community meeting at the Center school Friday evening at which time the progressive citizens of that community decided definitely to call a bond election which will provide $12,000 for the erection of a brick school building there.

The present frame building was damaged by high winds several weeks ago, and due to the fact that the people of that community felt that the expense of permanently repairing that structure would be very great as compared to the benefits to be derived from it, that they have decided to repair it for temporary use and replace the structure with a new building which will be completed before the beginning of the next term.

CONTRACT FOR 820 MILES OF STEEL RAIL AWARDED

By United Press

EL PASO, April 12.—The G. H. & S. A. Railway has awarded contracts for the delivery of 820 miles of steel rail to be used between New Orleans and San Francisco, according to officials of the road here.

Delivery is to be made during 1924-25.

Three hundred and forty-six track miles is to be 90 pound steel, and 474 is to be 110 pound steel, to be used for replacements and double tracking.

The tonnage was divided among three companies: 60,745 tons went to the Colorado Fuel and Iron company, of Colorado; 45,000 tons to the Inland Steel Mills and 63,000 tons to the Tennessee Coal and Iron company, of Birmingham, Ala.

SIGNS A DETRIMENT TO PUBLIC SAFETY, CLAIM

FORT WORTH, Texas, April 12. Declaring that many signboards erected at railroad crossings and dangerous highway curves in the vicinity of Fort Worth are a detriment to public safety, city commissioners are taking steps for the legal extinction of these signs.

Many citizens have petitioned the city declaring the large bill boards to be responsible for several accidents recently.

HOME EDUCATION

CHILDREN AND THE WORLD TODAY

"I don't care what you are training your children to do, but what do you think is the most important thing to teach them to be?"

That question, from a woman whose children are brought up and established in the world, dropped into the midst of a group of mothers whose boys and girls are in the process of being brought up. It was soon clear that not a mother had any plan reasoned out in the light of the modern world and of what a man or woman needs to be to live usefully and happily in it. There was much talk of strength of will, of love of truth, of power of concentration, of loyalty and bravery; but of all the things that were said it was the idea of the youngest mother of them all which interested me most.

This young mother said: "I know how the thing which I should like more than anything else to give my children is the power to get into real touch with all sorts and kinds of people in all parts of the earth; to feel themselves neither better nor worse than any other; to realize how much alike all people are, and still to value and enjoy all their superficial differences."

I believe it was because this mother was young that she felt accurately the great need of the world today. Year by year men are being brought closer together, having more influence and wielding more power over the lives of each other; what happens to one happens to all, and so the importance of their understanding each other, of their being able to get into real communication, grows greater. It is partly because of this that people everywhere are struggling to find out how to do away with wars and establish peace. The world has become so closely knit that war is intolerably destructive. And yet, the very fact that the world is so close knit makes wars more likely, unless the spirit of men toward each other can be changed. The old attitude toward the barbarian and the foreigner must give way to a new sense of unity in a world in which no people is any longer "foreign" to another.

That mothers are coming to realize the need of children to know and feel at home in all the world is evident in the books and toys and songs that are being made for children nowadays. Each year there are more and more stories of the children of other lands, and fairy tales and games and songs of other lands.

I have even heard a sort of little international prayer for children, which runs like this: "Father, bless all the little children who are now going to bed, and help all the little children who are now playing in the sunshine while we sleep, to have a happy day."

And not so long ago I came unexpectedly to the house of a friend for dinner and was greeted at the door by her little daughter in a gay kimono, who said something which she told me meant "How do you do?" in a language I had never heard. For dinner I was fed with rice and various delicious mysteries. It turned out that I had arrived on Japanese day! I listened to a delightful story in which cherry blossoms and kites were mingled. And she told me that whenever I came to her house on Saturday I could find she was some other little girl altogether. She expects that by the end of the year she will have lived around the world.

Take hints like these from one mother here and another mother there and with the idea of helping yet other mothers bring up their children to feel at home with any people and in any land, I have collected, as a part of the educational material of the National Council for Prevention of War, the stories, songs, pageants and games of other lands, bibliographies and collections of posters. This is a part of a catalogued folder of material which the National Council sells for one dollar, but the material for children is sent free to any one who wishes it. From the Council headquarters, at 32 17th Street, N. W., Washington, D. C. Not only are we eager to send out the material which we have, but we are eager also to have criticisms and suggestions for new material, and we will put to good use any ideas that mothers who are working along this line will send us.

TEACHERS HELD MONTHLY MEET SATURDAY

The monthly meeting of the teachers and trustees of Lubbock County Schools met at Shallowater on Saturday, April 12th, 1924.

The following program was delivered: Song, America, Audience. Welcome Address, Prof. L. Johnson, Shallowater. Response, Supt. C. L. Sone, Slaton. Piano Duet, Margaret and Elva Calley.

Address, County Agent Estons. Reading, Mamie Calley. Song, primary pupils of Miss Landers.

The Trustees Job. M. L. Bra-shers, Acuff. Basket Dinner. Progress of Our Schools, T. D. Richardson, Pres. County Board.

Reply, Prof. C. D. Shallowater, Bledsoe. Special Music, Mr. Ireland and his sister, Miss Edna.

Reading, Ozelle Corley. Address, Judge J. H. Moore. Short talks by Prof. Roland, W. O. Sheely, Prof. Anthony and others.

Adjournment was considered at this point and the new place of meeting was selected. We shall meet at the court house in Lubbock the second Saturday in May.

"The Greatest Need of the Rural Schools" W. M. Pevehouse, Co. Supt.

When we all had a round of the task of voicing our sentiments in regard to the wonderful welcome and treat that the Shallowater people gave us, then we began again to impress on them just how much we really did enjoy the day.

To say it in moderate terms is not sufficient. When such fellows as Messrs. Bob Crump, Calley, Kincaid, MaHoney, Sheely, and a lot of the other citizens and wives of all mentioned, except probably Mr. Crump, (just a joke intended on Bob) got together and prepared that feed there was no loafing on the job, I am sure.

As fine a basket dinner as is ever desired to see was set before the crowd. The appearance was not deceiving, unless it can be said that the cake and pies and stuffed chickens were better than they looked, which is saying a great deal. Welcome? Why, everybody around that community just had a welcome on their smile.

We enjoyed the day immensely.

If time permitted, a detailed account of the messages would be given. Suffice to say, everyone present was, or seemed to be filled with something especially after the middle of the day, concerning the welfare of the Rural Schools. When the men and women get the interests of Rural schools deeply set on their hearts, then something will happen to improve the conditions. We were glad to be at Shallowater. Thanks, again, for the real West Texas Welcome given us. We hope to meet with you again. W. M. Pevehouse, Supt.

NOBLES WILL MEET AT FORT WORTH APRIL 25

FORT WORTH, Texas, April 12. Fort Worth will represent more cities of the Orient when the red fox borders of Nobles assemble here for Moslah Temple's big spring ceremonial, which will be held, Friday, April 25. It is confidentially expected there will be the largest number of Nobles to attend this ceremonial that ever visited Fort Worth on a similar occasion.

Potentate, Frank Taylor sends greetings to the Nobility of Texas and elsewhere and extends a very cordial invitation to be present upon this occasion.

The big street parade will be held starting from Park Burnett park promptly at 11 o'clock, after which the Nobles will assemble at the mosque on Lake Worth, where the ceremonial will take place.

One feature of the ceremonial will be a band concert by Moslah Temple's famous concert band, under the direction of L. Cecil Meadows.

Space on Moslah Temple's special deluxe special train, which will leave Fort Worth for the Imperial Council session, June 1 for Anas City, is fast being taken up and those Nobles wishing to make the trip are urged to make their reservations early in order to provide additional Pullman equipment, which will be the latest.

PEOPLE OF CLEBURNE ARE SEEING GHOSTS

CLEBURNE, Texas, April 12.—Cleburne has a ghost! According to those who have witnessed the unearthly spectacle, the ghost has aquatic tendencies, arising nightly from the shallow waters of East Buffalo Creek at the unromantic hour of 9 o'clock.

But the ghost isn't bothering residents in the vicinity of the creek. It is a crowd that nightly congregates to catch a glimpse of the elusive Banisher. Therefore the law has been called to disperse the crowds and if necessary incarcerate the ghost.

A number of persons are willing to testify that the ghost arises from the creek, gazes over the audience nonchalantly and flits off over a nearby school house into the heavens.

"NUT" CROP HOLDING UP WELL ON THE COAST

LOS ANGELES, Calif. (United Press)—August Vollmer, scientific police chief of Los Angeles, isn't throwing any stones at his adopted city, which pays him a good salary but he does say that the "nut" crop here is very large, and there are no off-years.

Vollmer receives hundreds of "nut" letters every week. A woman who signs herself "Mrs. Peterson" holds the endurance record with 442 letters in one day. Not a day but at least three missives, written on department-store stationery.

Another is "Myra" who has missed very few days in the past four years. Every morning Vollmer gets her advice and words of wisdom. A recent one read:

"Respectability is the deadliest bog and wet blanket that ever was ever laid on men? Myra appears. Vollmer said to be educated and well-informed.

"Lucy" writes nearly every day that someone has tried to throw poison in her face.

MEDALS OF SERVICE TO BE BESTOWED ON SOLDIERS

DALLAS, Texas, April 12.—Medals of service will be bestowed on ex-soldiers by the United Daughters of the Confederacy, beginning April 27. The second bestowal will be June 3, the birthday of Jefferson Davis.

Mrs. J. C. Muse made the announcement after receiving nearly 200 letters of inquiry from veterans of the World War concerning these medals.

The medals can be bestowed only by chapters of the U. D. C. and only on five days of the year. Applications must be sent to the custodian of medals.

TRANSLATIONS OF THE MOUNTAIN LAWS.

NEWTON, Tenn., April 12.—The law of the mountain—an eye for an eye, a tooth for a tooth—brought death to Dr. W. H. Eblen, physician for a mine company.

Mayotte West was slowly dying of pneumonia. His 17-year-old brother, Oscar, walked miles over mountain paths to Eblen's office only to have the physician refuse to visit the sick man.

Enraged, Oscar slew him. In his cell at Anderson county jail, he said: "My brother could have been saved. He died. The doctor wouldn't come. He died."

So had the youth translated the mountain law.

K. Carter P. T. A. will meet at four o'clock.

Methodist Junior League and Missionary Society. Junior League and Missionary Society will meet Sunday afternoon at three o'clock.

The lesson is from "Better Americans." Everyone come.

Mrs. Joe L. Ely is hostess. Mrs. Joe L. Ely was hostess to the Idle-A-While Club Thursday afternoon at her home north of town. Two tables of forty-two were entertained in connection with the bridge clubs. The house was very prettily decorated with sweet peas. A very pleasant afternoon was spent after which, delicious refreshments consisting of strawberries and whipped cream with Angel food cake were served.

Those present were: Mesdames E. B. Adecock, Chas. Pierce, J. Guy Porter, Walter Myrick, Jr., R. D. Benson, Will Murray, Charlie Middleton, Clara Abney, Paul Barner, James H. Goodman, Lee Royalty, Tom J. Foster, Byron Brown, Maple Wilson, F. N. Payne, R. L. Campbell, Ernest Conley, John LeMond, J. T. Hutchinson and the hostess. Mrs. Campbell made high score in forty-two and Mrs. Conley in bridge.

The club meets next with Mrs. Walter Myrick, Jr. — Reporter.

Mrs. Twitty Received Club. The Friday Needle Club met with Mrs. Twitty at her home, 1704 Avenue J and spent a very pleasant hour in needle work accompanied by genial conversation after which delicious refreshments were served to the following: Mesdames J. D. Lindsey, Alexander, Brooks, John Denman, J. B. Pryor, C. D. Smith, M. K. Foster, J. N. Bryan, Barclay and the hostess.

K. Carter P. T. A. Club. Met Thursday afternoon with a good attendance. The 4th grade pupils rendered a splendid program of songs and recitations.

Mrs. Wagoner read a message from our state president. The pictures were won by Miss Waddle's room on first floor and Miss Thurman's on 2nd floor.

Something like $4. was reported made from dinner served to Rotary Club Wednesday. Martin & Wolcott furnished coffee for this dinner and Hunt Grocery furnished the jelly. We very much appreciate this help from these gentlemen.

The delegates to our district meeting to be held in Plainview May 24-25, were elected as follows: Mesdames Jones, Cosby, St. John, J. Johnson; alternates, Mesdames Pierce, Blair, Leeland and Campbell.

We will meet next Thursday on account of the district meeting being held on the 24th.

We are nearing the close of our school year and it would mean a great deal of help to the club if each member would contribute what their dues were paid for this year.

The P. T. A. and all the K. Carter school certainly appreciate the help of Miss Thurman and Mrs. Dupre in making first payments on a set of reference books, and also a set of Mark Twain's books for library at K. Carter school.

Athenaeum Club Holds Interesting Meeting. The Athenaeum Club met in regular session Tuesday afternoon at three o'clock at the Baptist church with the president, Mrs. E. L. Robertson in the chair. An interesting and instructive program on "The Technique of Contemporary Poetry," was rendered with Mrs. Hankins leader. Roll call was answered with current events. A most interesting paper on "The Pattern of a Poem," was rendered by Mrs. LeMond. Mrs. Hankins gave a very instructive discussion on "Organic Rhythm." An interesting paper on "Images and Symbols" was read by Mrs. S. P. Robbins. "The Dictionary of Contemporary Poetry" was charmingly discussed by Mrs. J. H. Goodman, after which the club adjourned.

Delphian Society. The Delphian Club met last Wednesday at the Baptist church. We had a good attendance and an interesting lesson. Mrs. Adams was leader for the afternoon and with the following ladies presented the lesson in an able manner: Mesdames Hoffer, Royalty, Pierce, Moore, Maedgen, Bacon, Jenkins White and Miss Tinker. A round table discussion was participated in and enjoyed by all.

Senior P. T. A. Meets. The Senior Parent-Teachers' Association met in regular session Thursday afternoon and the following interesting program was rendered: Reading: Miss Wright. Common diseases among children, is it necessary for them to have them and what can be done to prevent them—Mrs. G. W. Scott. What are the highly communicable diseases and what are their symptoms—Prof. Witt. Spread of disease through books, pencils etc., and teachers and parents' duties to these—Miss Oldham. Open discussion.

Prof. Atkins was requested to order dictionaries for each room in the building.

T. E. L. Class Entertained. On Wednesday afternoon Mesdames Shaw, Vaughn, George and Hankins were hostesses to the T. E. L. Class of the Baptist Sunday School at the home of Mr. T. G. Shaw. Several very interesting contests were held in which Mrs. Mathis was winner and was presented with a big stick of striped candy. A delicious cream and cake course was served. All present pronounced it a most enjoyable occasion.

Twenty-first Century Club Meets. The Twenty-first Century Club departed from the custom of meeting in the Methodist church Tuesday and held the session in the home of Mrs. W. H. Meador.

Mrs. Pradeaux as leader conducted the first lesson of a series of contemporary poetry along interesting lines. Two poems: "Little Boy Blue" and "There Little Girl Don't Cry" were rendered in a song by a quartette composed of Mesdames Wagner, Krueger, Hilton and Von Rosenberg. Two poems were read by Mrs. Curtis A. Keen. Members of the club prepared on the following topics: "Technique of Contemporary Poetry," "The Pattern of Poems," "Organic Rhythm."

Resolutions were passed on the death of Mrs. John Letcher-Showell and tribute paid to her beautiful life and character. Mrs. Showell marks the first death in the active membership of the Twentieth Century Club which was organized in 1909.

During the business session preceding the program delegates were elected to the County Federation, Civic League and District Federation. The selection and purchase of equipment for a girl scout was turned to the Child Welfare Committee. The Calendar Committee reported the calendars for the club year of 1924-1925 were ready for print this week.

Guests of the club were Mesdames Joe Hilton and Wesley Von Rosenberg.

Geo. M. Hunt Parent-Teachers' Association Meets. The P. T. A. met in regular session at the Geo. M. Hunt school last Thursday. The president, Mrs. Baugh, was absent on account of her father's serious illness. Mrs. Maedgen, the vice president, conducted the meeting.

The following program was rendered by the second grade: Reading—Giles Hightower. Folk Dance—Miss Keen's pupils. Song—Miss Denman's pupils. Reading—J. L. Stinson. Song—Miss Keen's pupils. Reading—Paula Owens. "I See You"—Miss Morton's pupils.

Among other matters of business attended to at the meeting the most important was the decision to put on a program soon for the benefit of the club. This club has not asked the public for any contribution this year so it is to be hoped this entertainment will be well patronized. The program will be rare treat. Watch the Avalanche for particulars and date.

News Notes of The Seventh District T. F. W. C.

The interest of the Seventh District is centering at this time about the convention to be held at Lubbock May 5 to 7 inclusive. Every mail brings requests for information about the convention and a large number of the district clubs expect to be represented there.

The complete program for this meeting will be given in the District papers at an early date. At this time, several speakers have not yet given their definite subjects, and all details have not been entirely arranged, but the District program chairman and the Lubbock committees are hard at work and everything points to a most successful meeting.

President's Evening will be held on the evening of May 5, at 8:30 o'clock. All officers, delegates, and visitors are expected to attend, and this evening will present one of the most delightful occasions of the convention.

Delegates will report to the Credentials Committee Tuesday morning at 8:00 o'clock at the Methodist church, where all sessions will be held. It is especially urged that delegates be prompt in registering so that the business sessions may be opened at 9:30 with a full attendance. If clubs have not already paid their district dues of one dollar, they are requested to send them in at once to Mrs. A. Q. Bonner, Dalhart, Texas, as this will greatly expedite the work of the credentials committee.

Tuesday evening the Fine Arts program will be presented with Mrs. Tillman Jones, Post, chairman of the department of Fine Arts, presiding. An excellent program is promised for this evening, and delegates will be given an opportunity of becoming acquainted with the talent of their district.

The Lubbock committees are preparing for a record attendance, and delegates and visitors may be assured of a gracious welcome and delightful entertainment. Several events for the social pleasure of the members of the convention are being planned, and will be given in detail in the complete program.

Clubs are again reminded to elect their delegate at once, and to send her name to the chairman of the Homes Committee, Mrs. J. S. Johnson, Lubbock.

In a recent communication from Mrs. Robert Browning, Terrell, State Chairman of the Bureau of Information, the object of the Bureau is made clear. It will furnish information as to the sources for material on a number of subjects in which the club women of the Federation may be interested. Mrs. Browning says in her "Foreword":

"The primary object of the Bureau of Information is to be a connecting link between the State and General Federations, as well as a dispenser of facts regarding all club matters."

NEW YORK, April 12.—The Parisians decided early in the winter that hair should be long and sleek and drawn tightly behind the ears if one was to be "chic."

"Eyes," wrote a Parisian connoisseur of feminine beauty, "are not the Parisian's only claim to beauty. The shell-pink ear is quite as fascinating as the eye."

American girls are often rather slow about accepting the Parisian verdict on beauty. They will accept their silhouette, their hats and their shoes without a moment's hesitation, but when it comes to accepting their pallor, their darkened eyelids, their ears or their hair—does! Gracious! That is something to ponder over!

The American girls were quite willing to give their Parisian sisters an "eye" for an "eye," but when it came to giving them an "ear" for an "ear," well, that was a different matter.

And as for long, sleek hair! Never! "The bob is dead! Vive la long hair!" shouted the Parisian.

But the Americans refused to believe that the bob was dead, or if it died, they clipped and cut and curled and permanently waved in spite of the bob's demise. And now, as Spring approaches, the Parisians are reversing their opinion.

Not only are they returning to the bob, but to the mannish haircut, the shingle. And the Americans are agreeing with them unanimously. The shingle is the thing! The last word! La Derniere Mot!

All Getting a Shingle. Every one from grandma down to the baby is getting a shingle. Grandma realized that the Figi Island effects of previous seasons were not for her, but the close-cropped shingle is a different matter. And, strange to say, this is the first time that the bob has ever actually approached its doom since coming into style. People have been saying for years that short hair was going out, but it didn't go out. It came in with a bang! A real bang on the forehead! But the very preponderance of which it has entered in the fashion world might mark its doom.

Over-popularity might hasten its demise. At any rate, we won't write the obituaries of the bob until the time for obituaries are due. The bob is the living thing alive today. Everybody is cutting, clipping. Certain families have enough clipped hair about the house to start a hair watch chain factory.

The second hand man is knocking at our doors, asking: "Any old clothes, shoes, hats?" And the scissor sharpener cries: "Scissors to grind?" whenever he sees a woman on the street. Bob-haired bandits are the latest menace about New York, and the police peer under every woman's hat seeking for the bold, bad, bobbed bandit.

If you'd fit in fashion's jingle. Go at once and get a shingle.

Beardless Slips. Conforming with the present beardless mode for gowns, the Spring costume slip has no waistline marking whatsoever. Straight slips, made on chemise lines, of materials such as rayon, crepe satin and crepe de chine, are among the newest of undergarments. Those designed to be worn under the sheer Summer frock have a panel extending down the back which is made of a double fold of the material so as to be shadow proof. Since this double panel extends the full length of the slip, it prevents perspiration across the shoulders from soiling the frock.

The hostery color chart has more tones and shades of tones than a climatic scale. The latest shade to spring up overnight on the Avenue is called "gravel." This color leads over off-nude shades and peach color. The following colors are those endorsed by the better-gowned women of New York: Gravel, shell, black, buck, sunset, reindeer, caramel, castor, acorn, seude, silver and medium grey. Tones that are too pink are seldom seen on the well-groomed woman.

Ocean green is the latest shade for spring undergarments. All undergarments are returning to the vogue for lace or net. Plain hem-stitched finishes are not being shown among the newer garments to any extent. Laces used on many garments are ecru tinted. Fillet, baby Irish lace and net are trims most often used.

The second presentation of the Fair Operetta under the direction of Mrs. E. L. Robertson with Mrs. Raymond George accompanist, Thursday evening in the High School auditorium was indeed a very pleasing and creditable program. White each group of players showed excellent training, the little Green Elves, so wee and dainty, captivated the entire audience.

The operetta besides being a high class entertainment was a bit of genuine musical education for each child taking part.

It is to be regretted that so few Lubbock people heard the program Thursday evening as it was repeated by request and the proceeds will be applied on a splendid community enterprise.

Musically, Lubbock needs to wake up.

Kimono Aprons. If kimono aprons are ironed from side to side instead of lengthwise they will not sag at the sides.

Silk Hose. To prevent the heels of black silk stockings from turning gray, add a tablespoon of vinegar to the water in which they are washed.

Shoe Strings. When shoe strings become frayed at the ends, dip the ends in a little melted paraffin and roll between fingers.

Laces. To stiffen very thin fabrics and fine laces, add one teaspoon of borax to one quart of water.

Eggs. To beat the white of eggs quickly, put in a pinch of salt. The cooler the eggs, the quicker they will froth.

Hair Brushes. After washing a hair brush in hot water, lather, rinse the bristles in a basin of cold water to which has been added a sufficient quantity of blue to color it. Rinse in cold water, shake the brush well, and dry quickly in open air. This method keeps the bristles white and stiff.

Flannel. Before washing new flannels soak them a quarter of an hour in cold water to which has been added a handful of salt. Then wash in the ordinary way. This makes the washing easier and the flannel will look like new when dry.

Stains. To remove tea or coffee stains from a woolen blouse, etc., use glycerine. Apply a little to the stain, leave for a time, and then wash with lukewarm water. Iron the material on the inside until dry.

Cake. To remove a cake from the pan in which it has been baked, stand the tin directly on a cloth which has been wrung out in hot water. Leave it there for about five minutes. The cake will then come out without any trouble.

Faucets. To remove marks caused by water dripping from the faucets in sinks or bath tubs nothing is better than powdered chalk mixed with a little liquid ammonia. An old brush is an excellent thing to use in applying it.

Brown Sugar. To keep the brown sugar from lumping put in a piece of bread.

Parchment Shades. To clean parchment shades, if they are shell-lacked and varnished, use lukewarm water and white soap. A little furniture polish applied after washing will brighten them.

Zinc Tray. Wash the zinc tray in your gas stove, then cover with vinegar, let stand for a few minutes and then rinse well and dry. All spots will disappear.

Scrubbing Brushes. When not in use, scrubbing brushes should be turned bristles downward. The water will run out of them and they will dry. If they are placed on their backs the water will soak into the wood and loosen bristles.

DIRECTORS WEST TEXAS ORPHAN HOME TO MEET MONDAY

A meeting of the board of directors of the West Texas Orphan Home will be held at the City Drug Store Monday morning, at which time plans for proceeding with the construction of a new home for the orphans will be discussed.

The basement has been completed and it is believed that work on the building will be started this week.

M. J. Lewis and Rev. F. R. Pl. will be started into their new work of soliciting funds for the home at this meeting.

BIG INCREASE IN SCHOLASTICS IS SHOWN

A noticeable increase in Lubbock's population is shown in the report of D. C. Ross, who has just finished taking the scholastic census of the Lubbock Independent School district.

The census takers report for 1923 showed a scholastic population of 2,116 and the census report just made by Rev. Ross shows the scholastic population to be 2,840.

The reports show that of this number 2,693 are white, 52 are Mexicans and 94 are negroes. Of the white children there 1,336 boys and 1,459 girls, 44 of the negroes were boys and 51 girls.

There were fifteen pairs of twins in the district according to the census takers report.

There are 105 persons in the district whose names begin with M. while for the family name Smiths take the lead with 41; Williams is a close second with 38, Browns 32, Jones 24 and Johnson 20.

LEAGUE OF NATIONS IN "OMAR THE TENTMAKER"

Speaking no specific language, yet telling its tale in a tongue that all can understand, the screen attracts to itself actors from all over the world and from every clime. Seldom has this truism been so adequately illustrated as in Gay Bates Post's latest production, "Omar the Tentmaker," a Richard Walton Tully-First National attraction having a run at the Lyric Theatre Monday.

Reason Enough. Indian was the game they played, Which bald-uncle Ned tried to join in. No, no-no, our Tommy brayed. We're scalping, and see you have been.

WOMEN'S FEDERATION TO DISCUSS GREAT NATIONAL PROBLEMS

By United Press.

LOS ANGELES, Calif., April 12.—"Who Shall Inherit the United States?" and "War or Peace?" will be two of the outstanding problems of this country that will be presented for discussion before organized women during the biennial convention of the General Federation of Women's Clubs to be held here June 2-13.

While the program has been made out only in outline, immigration and Americanization and international relations will be given outstanding places. Oswald Ryan, commissioner, who accompanied Secretary of Labor Davis overseas, will be a speaker on the legislative sessions in charge of Mrs. Edward Franklin White, legislative chairman in the general federation and deputy attorney general of Indiana. Mabel Walker Willebrandt, assistant attorney general of the United States, who has just made a national survey on law enforcement as applied to liquor laws and released a map showing that even with lax enforcement the country is more than 61 per cent bone dry, will be a speaker at the Los Angeles legislative luncheon. She is expected to make disclosures that will result in a more drastic stand of organized women in the matter of prohibition and prohibition enforcement officers.

Women to Help Dry

In this connection, Image B.

Oakley of Philadelphia, chairman of the division of civil service, is expected to introduce a resolution having the 2,800,000 women of the federation demand that all law enforcement officers be placed under civil service. She is expected to make further charges that many of the so-called enforcement officers are now in the pay of the liquor interests.

In addition to the legislative programs of the biennial convention, a day each will be given to discussion of various problems of education, public welfare, fine arts, American citizenship and foreign relations.

Mrs. John D. Sherman of Estes Park, Colo., candidate for president of the General Federation to succeed Mrs. Thomas G. Winter, is chairman of education. On this program to be given June 6, general education problems and the pressing need of a secretary of education in the United States cabinet and the passage of the education bill pending in congress will be stressed by Mrs. C. E. Vowles of Mount Pleasant, Mich.

Mrs. Mary T. Bradford, Denver, Colo., formerly president of the American Education association, will speak on public revenues and expenditures. Kindergarten and the need of more of them will be discussed by Julia Wade Abbott of the bureau of education, Washington, D. C.

Other educational topics will be presented.

In special division conferences there will be exhibits and informal talks of county co-operation by Susie V. Powell, Arts and Mechanical College, Mississippi; vocational home economics, Mrs. Joseph C. Gawler, Yakima, Wash.; home demonstration, Mrs. Joseph S. Leach, Walpole, Mass.; conservation of national resources, Mrs. Francis E. Whitley, Webster City, Iowa.

A plea for the preservation of natural scenery will be made by Mrs. Charles H. McNider, Mason City, Iowa, mother of former Commander McNider of the American Legion.

ROSWELL MAN PREPARES TO ENTER BUSINESS HERE

James E. Hamilton, of the Hamilton Cleaning Works at Roswell, N. Mex., accompanied by B. L. Loyd, foreman of the cleaning plant there, were here Saturday looking after interests of the cleaning plant they will install in the Blair-Arnett building now under construction on Avenue K.

Mr. Hamilton will return to his home today, but expects to have his business in Lubbock ready to serve the public by the first of May and will return to this city before that time.

Mr. Hamilton is an experienced tailor and will doubtless build up a big business here.

FUNERAL SERVICES FOR J. J. GREEN HELD SATURDAY P. M.

Funeral services for J. J. Green, prominent Canyon man who died here Friday night at 9:20 o'clock, were conducted at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Wm. L. Baugh, 1819 13th street, at three o'clock Saturday afternoon by Rev. E. E. Robinson.

The deceased is survived by his wife, three sons and five daughters, all of whom attended the funeral services.

Interment was made in the Lubbock cemetery. The following were active pall bearers: Roscoe Wilson, Sam T. Davis, E. L. Robertson, J. T. Inmon, Dr. Ballenger and W. C. Rylander.

CORPUS CHRISTI YEARNS FOR THE "GOOD OLD DAYS"

CORPUS CHRISTI, Texas, April 12.—(INS) Where are the good old days when an irate fan was privileged to bounce a pop bottle off the head of an unpopular umpire?

Corpus Christi is asking itself this question with the arrest of Umpire Ed Gollhar and a fan on the charges of attempted assault. Before the fan would swing a bat at the ump, police intervened.

They were charged with using abusive language and attempted assault. The ump is also charged with seizing a bat and menacing the heads of the critics.

Mrs. J. C. Blair, who underwent a very serious operation Thursday is reported to be doing nicely.

PEDDY TAKES STAND IN DEFENSE OF FRIEND

HOUSTON, Texas, April 12.—Laying aside the role of prosecutor George E. B. Paddy special United States attorney, took the witness stand in defense of his friend John L. DeBruys, head of the Old Dominion Oil Company, and which is charged with misuse of the mails in connection with the sale of stock, declaring his friend was "a good, straight man and a square shooter." Paddy stated that he accepted the appointment with the understanding that he would not have to take the prosecution of his friend. The case of DeBruys and John L. Lewis, also of the Old Dominion Oil company also went to the jury late this afternoon.

COLUMBIA SUMMER SCHOOLS

NEW YORK (United Press)—Columbia is preparing for the largest influx of summer students in its history. The session of 1924, beginning July 7, will mark the 25th anniversary of the founding of the university. The attendance has risen from 417 students in 1900 to 12,675 in 1923. Applications thus far received come from every state and from many foreign countries, and indicate that this year a record mark of 14,000 is likely to be attained.

Growth of Hostility Toward the Railroads in Texas

WALTER SPLAWN
(Railroad Commissioner of Texas)

ARTICLE X

People came to realize that their great public domain was not limitless. By 1876 attention was called to the fact that all the best land of the state was already reserved or disposed of under the law. Six years later it was found that the state had issued the railroad certificates for eight million acres more than it possessed. When the people heard these statements, and when they thought of the tens of thousands of square miles of land that the state had recently owned and when they saw the need of the thousands of miles of railroads as yet unbuilt, they felt that somebody had been unduly prodigal with the public lands.

In 1886 a series of railroad strikes were instituted under the guidance of the Knights of Labor. The great railroad strike of that year originated at Marshall, Texas, on March 2nd. The employees of the carriers became very bitter against some of the roads of Texas, particularly the Gould lines. These employees made demands which today would be regarded as conservative. They had the sympathy of large sections of the public throughout most of the state. This large popular support was no doubt due to no small degree to the assistance and activity of farmers organizations in the state.

The Farmers Alliance is supposed to have originated in Lampasas County, Texas, in 1878. It was formed in secret societies and spread with amazing rapidity. It was estimated in 1886 that there were about 100,000 members of such organizations in Texas alone. The order established a state paper in Dallas and in many counties there were "alliance papers." These papers together had a very large circulation. They kept the people informed as to the details concerning the incidents of the strike. Moreover, the expressions in the papers were very favorable and sympathetic towards the employees and were often in condemnation of the railroads. The farmers met in secret every two weeks and in almost every neighborhood there were members of the alliance. They discussed questions of interest to themselves, among these being the details of the strike. A solidarity of opinion was quickly formed. Many people over the state came to feel that the railroads were at fault and responsible both for the beginning of the strike and for its continuance. This dissatisfaction began to express itself through party platforms and in proposed legislation demanding state control of railroads, some going so far as to urge government ownership.

The Farmers Alliance started a movement for manufacturing in Texas. They established several small plants such as cotton gins, compresses, and flour mills. The most of these got into financial difficulties. Their managers charged that they were discriminated against both in the matter of rates and of service. These charges very naturally provoked widespread antagonism.

CARPENTER SAYS RADIO REPORT OF LABOR NEEDS UNSOUND

F. O. Kelly, financial secretary of local union No. 1884, United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners has the following to say concerning the building trades situation in Lubbock at this time:

"Owing to much favorable publicity having been given Lubbock regarding the amount of building that is in progress in the city, we feel that in justice to the laboring class, especially the carpenters, both organized and unorganized, that some of the reports recently made, be corrected.

"We have it on what he believe is good authority that there has been broadcast by radio a statement that Lubbock was in immediate need of 500 brick masons, 250 carpenters, 150 plasterers and 100 plumbers.

"Now, we are unable to locate from what source this information was given out, but we wish to state that whoever put out such a statement was very much misinformed as to the needs of Lubbock in the building trades.

"We contend and can prove to anyone that there is sufficient men of all crafts to take care of all work that is in progress or that is contemplated in the immediate future.

"We have made a survey of the situation and have found this to be true. We wish to state, however, that we are not claiming that the building program of the city has been misrepresented. On the contrary, we find that there is more work under construction now than at any time in the history of the city."

BIG WATERMELON CROP IS EXPECTED THIS YEAR

FORT WORTH, Texas, April 12.—Approximately 1,200,000 crates of the celebrated honey ball melons will be shipped from Denton, Parker and Johnson counties during the coming season, it is estimated here, with the first order for 100,000 crates in the hands of manufacturer.

It was shown that in 1923 25 acres in Tarrant county produced 15,000 crates of melons while this year seed has been sown over 2,400 acres in four counties.

Avalanche Want Ads Get Results.

NEW TRICKS TO SECURE WOMEN'S GARMENT TRADE

PARIS, April 12.—Competition among dress-making houses has become so keen here that a new species of canvasser has appeared in the Paris streets. Women haunt the nurseries of fashionable shops and try by artful gossip to entice prospective clients to establishments for which they are working.

The agents hail her possible client in the street, usually before a shop window, where fashion displays lure women.

"What beautiful models, but how costly they are," says the canvasser, and then, "I can tell you where to get dresses quite as elegant as these for half the cost."

When the client asks for the name and address of the house so recommended, the canvasser evades the question for she is too well trained to hand out a card. "I can drop in at your hotel and give you full particulars. Where are you staying?" she will say.

Women's dress has become a question of material more than cut and make, and comparative novices, both men and women, are now in the lucrative business. They hope quickly to establish a name and hence the canvassers.

THE EGRET MAKING ITS LAST STAND

CHAPEL HILL, N. C. (United Press)—The egret is making its last stand in the United States at Crane's Neck, the bird sanctuary on the Orton plantation, near Wilmington. There, according to the North Carolina Biological and Economical Survey, a few pairs of egrets and their smaller cousin of the heron family, the snow egret, build their nests each year. A few pairs of the birds formerly nested at Lake Ellis in the eastern part of the State, and a single pair at another point, but these fell victims to plume hunters.

The egret, slain for the egret plumes which are worn only at the nesting season, is literally facing extinction according to the survey.

PURE CANE SEED FOR CLUB BOYS BY LAMESA C. OF C.

LAMESA, April 12.—Thru the courtesy of the Lamesa Chamber of Commerce the Club boys of Dawson County are to be given pure seed of maize, kaffir, feterita and corn. They will be given sufficient seed to plant two acres on any one of the above mentioned row crops.

The boys will be taught the value of field selection of planting seed and how to do this work themselves. This instruction will be supervised by County Agent C. T. Watson.

Giant Land Deal Closed

EL PASO, Texas, April 12.—A. L. Lawson, of Big Springs, Texas, has purchased 43,000 acres of ranch land at Van Horn, Texas, from J. D. McGregor and Son. The price named in the deal was $193,000. Mr. Lawson is a well known cattleman and owns 4,000 head of cattle, which is said will be moved from his large Big Spring ranch to the Van Horn Ranch.

No More Human Slaves In Lubbock!

The Home that is "Convenient" is electrically wired so as to provide comfort and great utility!

It is not even good business to fail to take advantage of the Utility electric and electric appliances offered for the home—much less being ultra old-fashioned! It is seldom that a woman has to iron with the old "sad iron" (well named?) any more. Then why should they suffer the back-breaking work of washing the old way—cooking the "hot way" or of sweeping the old way?

We Are Showing Dependable Electrical Appliances

We are in the business of serving you with electricity. To encourage you to take advantage of its use, we are showing what we know to be only dependable electrical appliances. Every kind of appliance—washing machines, sweepers, cooking plates, stoves, fans—all are here. You are always welcome to our place and we will do what we can to see that you get full value from your electrical investment.

BROKE INTO JAIL; GOT FIVE YEARS

COLGATE, Okla., (United Press)—Five years in the State Penitentiary for breaking into jail was the penalty imposed upon Tommy Wilson.

Wilson was discharged from jail after serving a term for disturbing the peace. A few nights later he appeared at the jail to renew acquaintances, but found the door locked. Securing a ladder, Wilson pried several bars off a cell window and invited his friends to escape. They declined and told the jailer. Wilson pleaded guilty.

CLOVIS, N. M., MAN BUYS AUTO BUSINESS

G. P. Kuykendall, former banker of Clovis, New Mexico, bought the Bradley Chevrolet company last week from J. M. and Hal P. Bradley, and is now in active charge of the business.

Mr. Kuykendall has been a citizen of the plains for the past ten years and is thoroughly conversant with business methods here and has a wide acquaintance throughout this section that will be valuable in the promotion of his business.

The company will be incorporated under the name of Kuykendall Chevrolet Company, and a number of improvements will be made both in the arrangement of the building and in the stock carried.

Steel bins have been ordered for the parts department which will greatly improve this feature of the business.

A great deal of expensive equipment for the mechanical department of the business has been ordered and will be installed in the near future.

A large number of cars are now in stock and others have been ordered by Mr. Kuykendall, who declares he will keep a complete line of all the Chevrolet models in stock at all times possible.

In remodeling the building special attention will be given in the arrangement of the sales room. The office will be placed on the first floor, and every arrangement to better facilitate the handling of the company's business will be made.

Mr. Kuykendall has made an arrangement to enter his cars in the Morning Avalanche Automobile Show to be held here Friday and Saturday.

Say Mr. Editor, as you always stand for progress and the upbuilding of the country and city, I want to ask you one other question just for your own information. When you first announced in your paper we were to have a cotton seed oil mill at Lubbock, I was at a round up, and when the paper was read we all threw our hats up and said the cattleman would soon now have some relief on the price of feed, because we would save the frate of the seed to the mills and back, and now the frate is a big item, in fact it is just awful, but to our surprise when the mill got here and running the meal and hulls was higher here than most any other place. They were two to three dollars higher than Fort Worth last fall. Now can you tell us why we have too pay here for this feed stuff than the people at Fort Worth? Wont we get no benefit from the mill being here. You said yesterday in your good paper we would soon have a flower mill here. Wont we get benefit from it. How long will producers have to stand such a long, and why do mill people do us this way. Now if you see fit to print this article I hope you will correct some of my spellin and my grammar as I told you I didn't have no education. But Mr. editor dont change it too much or I may not recognise it. I cant do like some congressmen and senators at Washington does. They just go and tell a fellow who is their for that purpose to fix him a speech to cost twenty-five, fifty or a hundred dollars as the case may be. I aint got much money so I have to rite my own articles, and just ask you to print it. I no I am imposin on you, but I am interested in getting the price of feed stuff down to a reasonable figure, and the only way I no to do it is for the ranchmen and the farmers to get together on the subject and demand better prices.

Yours truly,

TEXAS U. REFUSES TO SIGN PLEDGE RENOUNCING WAR

AUSTIN, Tex., April 12.—"Peace is worth fighting for," is the attitude of Dr. W. S. Sutton, University of Texas. This declaration was made Friday when the University of Texas refused to sign the pledge renouncing war, sent him by Alton B. Parker, president of the National Civic Federation.

"I don't want a fight to come," Dr. Sutton declared, "but I don't believe we ought to throw away all our guns yet, considering the condition of the world. I question whether as a members of the church any one can justify even his conscience in saying that he is either too proud to fight or too good to fight."

"At the same time we ought to try in every possible way to make war impossible."

HEALTH OFFICER ASKS HELP LAW ENFORCEMENT

As City Health Officer, I want to call the following to the notice of all dealers in food stuff in Lubbock, and ask that you cooperate with me and stop the gastro intestinal diseases that are so prevalent.

Section 2, of the Texas Food and Drug Law, declares an article of food to be adulterated, "If it consists in whole or in part of a filthy food." The same section defines the word "filthy," as follows: "The term filthy shall be deemed to apply to food not securely protected from flies, dust, dirt and as far as may be necessary from all foreign or injurious contamination."

It is clear from the law that fruit vendors, vegetable peddlers, meat peddlers, and side walk dealers cannot sell food exposed to flies, manure dust of the streets, or other contaminating influences.

The State Board of Health has called attention to these things and asks our support in seeing that this law is enforced, so let us all fall in and make Lubbock safe from the bowel troubles that cause so many deaths in the summer, especially among the children.
