Clinton orders probe, defends Reno decision

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Clinton ordered an investigation Tuesday of the assault on David Koresh's compound, but said the cult leader rather than the government "bears ultimate responsibility for the carnage that ensued."

Clinton said he had approved plans to pump tear gas into the Texas compound and would accept full responsibility for that. But he also said that Koresh "killed those he controlled."

The president defended Attorney General Janet Reno against suggestions that she should resign for taking action against the cult leader, whom he called "dangerous, irrational and probably insane."

WACO — Members of the Branch Davidian cult who balked at following would-be Messiah David Koresh into death may have been murdered before the group's home was engulfed in flames, the FBI said Tuesday.

"There was gunfire when the fire started," said Jeff Jamar, the FBI's top agent at the scene. "There might have been people killed trying to get out of the compound."

While Jamar admitted the agency had "inconclusive evidence" to support the contention, surviving cultists, relatives and others familiar with the group said Tuesday that they believed some cultists had not agreed to die for Koresh's apocalyptic vision.

Young victims had no voices, choices

WACO — They were the innocents. Trapped inside the prairie compound's pink walls, they had no voices, no recourse, no protector.

Seventeen young children, some of them just babies, had the hour of their deaths dictated by David Koresh, the religious zealot who was father to many of them and who controlled every aspect of their brief existence.

These children, none older than 10, "were absolutely under his control," FBI special agent Jeff Jamar told reporters Tuesday in Waco. "Once he decided that this is what he was going to do, he was not going to let them go."

Neither were the children's mothers able or willing to disobey their leader's plan. Jamar said the FBI had evidence that some cult members may have been killed inside the Branch Davidian compound before the flames reached them. More than 60 adult cult members, including Koresh, were believed dead in Monday's inferno, and seven older

DOE choses 5 basin oil producers for new energy research program

By John Paul Pitts
Business/Oil editor

A major energy research program is expected to have a significant and positive impact on Permian Basin oil production.

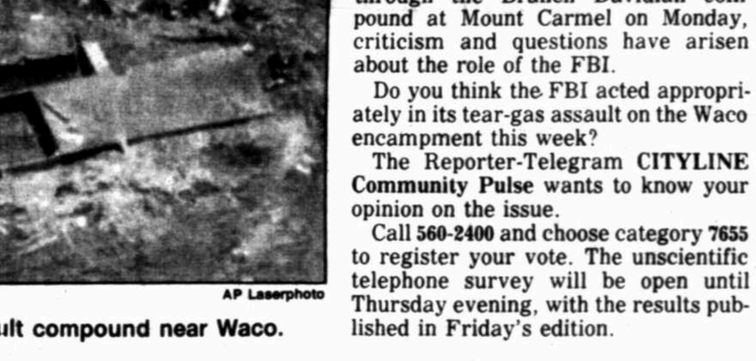

The Department of Energy announced Tuesday that five West Texas oil producers have been chosen to participate in a DOE energy research and technology transfer program to find new and innovative ways to recover more oil from shallow carbonate reservoirs, which dominate this region.

If successful, lessons learned from the program could increase shallow carbonate reserves nationwide by 7.5 billion barrels, with most of the increase coming in the Permian Basin.

Among the companies receiving matching grants to study recovery techniques are Laguna Petroleum Co., Texaco Exploration & Production, Fina Oil & Chemical Co., Oxy USA Inc., all of Midland and Phillips Petroleum Co. of Odessa.

DOE will provide grants totaling $28.6

Southland to sell all 7-Elevens in West Texas, New Mexico

By Mella McEwen
Staff writer

All 150 7-Eleven stores in West Texas and New Mexico are being sold to an Odessa-based corporation.

The Southland Corp. Tuesday announced the signing of an agreement to sell all 150 of its operating 7-Eleven stores and related assets to Southwest Convenience Stores Inc.

The new owners say they will continue to operate the stores under the 7-Eleven name as Southland's new area licensee.

"It's an exciting opportunity for us," said Jack Wood, who owns Southwest Convenience with Donald E. Wood. "We're excited about being associated with 7-Eleven."

He said he anticipates closing the acquisition June 1. While terms were not disclosed, substantial financing for the acquisition is being provided by First National Bank of West Texas in Lubbock.

The transaction involves 54 stores in the Midland-Odessa area, 20 in Lubbock, eight in Big Spring and 46 in El Paso as well as 22 stores in the Albuquerque, N.M., area.

Wood also said he anticipates offering all existing employees — about 1,100 — jobs with the new corporation.

The partners "started looking at these 7-Eleven stores 11 months ago. As we got closer to it, we discovered it was an opportunity that was too good to pass up. It's not like it was a lifelong goal of ours to be involved with 150 stores. But we believe in the West Texas community and market and think the opportunities here in these markets are outstanding, as are the people, employees, the work ethic — all the intangibles associated with West Texas and New Mexico."

While the new corporation plans to operate the stores in much the same manner as in the past, plans are being made to remodel and upgrade many of the stores.

"We plan to continue offering the 7-Eleven house brands and retain the name, which we think has great value

Caseworkers tell cultists' children of their parents' deaths

By Deborah Tedford
Hearst News Service

HOUSTON — The littlest survivors of David Koresh's apocalypse — the children released from the religious compound before it burned — were told Tuesday their parents had died.

Some cried. Some showed little emotion. Some were babies who could not possibly understand.

"Some will display what they feel in the coming days," said Bob Boyd, program manager for the state's Child Protective Services.

"We've met with all of the kids. We've told them what happened and what the results were," Bob Boyd said. "They know there was a fire."

But they were not told the details of who started it.

The Branch Davidian compound and more than 85 of its estimated 96 occupants died when cult members apparently torched the building after federal agents tried to force them out with tear gas Monday.

Eleven of the 21 children released from the cult compound weeks ago remain in state custody. On Tuesday they were gathered at the group foster home where they live and told about the fire. All but a few of those at the compound perished, they were told.

The children, ages 6 months to 12 years, heard the news from caseworkers and a team of crisis intervention experts from Baylor College of Medicine in Houston.

Later, the children met individually with caseworkers and the crisis counselors.

"We've spent a lot of time with them individually today," Boyd said. "Talking to kids about a death in the family is one of the most difficult tasks a caseworker can have."

Boyd said caseworkers also have contacted the families of the 10 children who have already gone home with relatives.

"We just talked to them about ways to explain this to the kids and told them to be available on an ongoing basis as they have questions," Boyd said. "You have to tailor it to the child's level of understanding."

He said they advised relatives to limit the amount and content of the details according to the child's age and to let the children have time to absorb that information of their parents' deaths before telling them more.

Most of those children already are in counseling, which will help them deal with the macabre end to the cult standoff, he said.

The 11 children in state custody had been aware that, whatever the outcome of the standoff, they would be going to live with relatives. If there had been a peaceful ending, most of the adults likely would have spent time in jail.

"All of the kids know that most of them will be placed very soon with their relatives," he said. "That's helped to get them reassured that there is someone who loves them and wants to take care of them."

If the children were traumatized by the tragic ending Monday, so were many cultists' relatives who had hoped to eventually welcome the children still inside the cult compound into their homes.

In Waco, packages, pictures and toys remained untouched on the desks of state caseworkers. The playthings and other items were sent by relatives awaiting the 25 cult children, whom everyone expected to leave the Branch Davidian compound at any time.

For weeks, caseworkers with the state's Child Protective Services feverishly worked to arrange for homes for the children with relatives.

In an interview two weeks ago, Boyd said none of the relatives was considering the possibility that the children would die in the compound.

Father suffers loss of his family

By Kim Cobb
Hearst News Service

HOUSTON — Samuel Henry had been struggling with a very strong premonition that his family was going to die.

And on Monday evening his worst fears became reality. He sat in a television studio in northern England, watching live news coverage as the Branch Davidian compound burned near Waco, Texas. Those Henry cherished most — his wife, three daughters and two sons — were inside.

They had been living at the compound for years and they were not among the nine survivors.

"Words cannot really describe the tragedy, the loss I felt," Henry said. "It's a diabolical tragedy."

His wife, Zilla, was 55. His children were Diana, 28; Pauline, 24; Vanessa, 19; Stephen, 26 and Philip, 22.

But Henry's family was lost to him, in a way, long before the fire. David Koresh had done a thorough job of convincing them that they must sever ties with their home and their church in Manchester, England — and sever ties with their father, the man who would not believe.

Henry's first impulse after the fire was to fly immediately to Waco, although he held no false hope for his family's survival. The British Foreign Office persuaded him to wait until victims were removed from the rubble.

While he waits, he asks the inevitable questions.

"That is something I find difficult to understand — how my family got caught in this mess," Henry said with obvious bafflement.

Henry family members were practicing members of the Seventh-day Adventist church. Koresh once belonged to the denomination and found it fertile ground for recruiting followers to his apocalyptic vision.

"My family for one reason or another became disillusioned with our church," Henry said. "They were not as strong as me spiritually, unfortunately."

Henry's family began to unravel in the late 1980s when David Koresh began trolling for followers in northern England.

"It was my daughter, Diana, who first met him," Henry said. She heard about Koresh through her boyfriend, John McBean, who was at a seminary studying to be a minister in the Seventh-day Adventist Church.

McBean also is believed to have died in the blaze.

"She never questioned — she just opened her mouth like a fish and she was hooked," Henry said.

"After she was hooked, he tried to influence the other children," Henry said. "They respected her — a model in the church and in the family."

"They listened to her instead of me."

One by one his children were snagged by Koresh. Diana went to the United States first, in 1988, but made several trips back to England to recruit more followers.

"She won quite a number of those folks who are dead now," Henry said.

Henry's wife, estranged by that time, finally joined the children last year. He last spoke to her about two weeks before the shootout that began the standoff.

Cult survivors hold to beliefs

WACO (AP) — Followers of cult leader David Koresh said Tuesday they remain devoted the doomsday prophet's preachings. One said he's sorry he wasn't in the inferno where Koresh and 85 followers are believed to have died.

"If there were any sadness that we are experiencing right now, it's that we were not with our brothers and sisters at the center when the events yesterday took place," said Livingston Fagan in a telephone interview from the McLennan County Jail.

"Those of us of the Branch Davidian faith who remain are not any less loyal than those who sealed their fate in flames," said Fagan, who left the compound March 23.

Fagan and other surviving Branch Davidians also insisted that federal agents began Monday's blaze that destroyed their home.

While entering a federal courtroom Tuesday, Remos Avrram, one of the nine who escaped the burning compound, blamed the government. Federal officials insisted that FBI agents saw cult members ignite the fire.

Rick Ross, a cult deprogrammer who's worked extensively with former Davidians and their families, said the words of Fagan and Branch show how spellbound they remain by Koresh.

Koresh creates his own Armageddon

By Chip Brown and Michael Holmes
Associated Press Writers

WACO — Before their final day, David Koresh and his Branch Davidian followers had finally been given a good night's rest.

Weird sounds — chants by Tibetan monks and a dentist's drill — weren't blasted over the booming loudspeakers federal agents had aimed at their bedrooms.

The eerie silence was ended with a single phone call at 5:55 a.m.

FBI negotiators, who had listened to hours of Koresh's Armageddon preachings and several broken promises to surrender over nearly eight weeks, were calling with a statement.

Steven Schneider, Koresh's top deputy, was told over the phone that the FBI "would begin shortly to insert tear gas into the compound," FBI special agent Bob Ricks recounted later that fateful Monday.

Schneider hung up. He ripped the phone from the wall and threw it out the front door.

But unlike Koresh, the FBI kept its promise.

At 6:04 a.m., an armored vehicle smashed a hole through the front wall of the compound, just left of the front door and injected the first dose of CS gas.

Cult members scurried to take up arms. They fired up to "80 rounds during this initial volley," Ricks said.

The adults also grabbed gas masks, believed to be part of Koresh's massive survival cache, which included hundreds of military food rations.

The masks gave the adults temporary freedom from the noxious fumes and allowed them to keep their focus while firing "10 to 12 rounds" every time an armored vehicle returned to punch another hole and pump more gas through the flimsy walls of the city-block sized structure, authorities said.

By 8 a.m., with the sun fully raised over the dusty plain, the cream-colored complex was badly bruised. Holes had been pounded into the Davidians' bedrooms and Koresh's living quarters.

FBI agents say they used the loud speakers to repeatedly call for a peaceful surrender.

There was no surrender, and the armored onslaught continued.

Unable to stop the assault, Koresh and others ducked into an interior room lined with cinder blocks and capable of repelling the stinging gas, authorities said.

Shortly before 10 a.m., the largest of the armored carriers crashed through the front of the compound and knocked out the cinderblock wall of the protective room, Ricks said.

"We believe that once we pierced that interior protective room that they have . . . that time was really running out on them with regard to how long they could stay in there," Ricks said. "We put massive gas in there."

The gas, they said, was irritating to eyes, noses, throats and skin — but not lethal.

By 11 a.m., there was less and less resistance from the compound, and authorities felt sure Koresh was near surrender.

"We thought that their instincts, the motherly instincts would take place and that they would want their children out of that environment," Ricks said. "It appears they don't care that much about their children."

With desperation mounting, Koresh apparently told his followers the end was at hand.

Since 1985, he had preached to them that Armageddon would come in a violent confrontation with the government. He preached that five of the Bible's Book of Revelation's Seven Seals had been broken. The seals are said to signal a vengeful end to the world.

"David Koresh we believe gave the order to commit suicide and they all followed willingly his orders," the FBI agent said.

At 12:10, with the Branch Davidians featured in another live television newscast, puffs of smoke suddenly appeared from the tower at the compound's north corner.

On an upper floor, a black-clad cult member is seen, wearing a gas mask. He kneels down, cups his hand and — suddenly — flame erupts.

Seconds later, FBI agents also spot flames on the south and west corners.

By 12:15 p.m., the entire second floor is blazing.

"I can't tell you the shock and horror that all of us felt when we saw those flames coming out of there," Ricks said. "It was, 'My God, they're killing themselves.' "

Two minutes later, a cult member staggers out of the flames, apparently one of the few to defy his leader's order.

At 12:28 p.m., another person emerges with his hands raised.

With lawmen looking on in horror, a woman runs out of the compound in flames, then tries to go back inside. An FBI hostage rescue agent leaps from his armored vehicle to chase her, saving her despite her attempts to beat him back.

Another man crawls out onto the roof. But he signals agents he doesn't want help, Ricks said.

About 12:30 p.m., the roof collapses. TV viewers nationwide watch as David Koresh's kingdom burns with a hellish intensity.

By 12:40 p.m., the fortress called Mount Carmel is nothing but a pile of smoldering rubble.

Guyana editor compares massacre in Jonestown to tragedy in Waco

By Bert Wilkinson
Associated Press Writer

GEORGETOWN, Guyana — People here have seen it all before: the prophet, his cult, the deaths of his followers. The big difference was the tragedy of Jim Jones' People's Temple was far deadlier than the fiery end of David Koresh and his disciples.

The November 1978 mass suicide of more than 900 people shamed this South American nation for years, and Guyanese noted Tuesday the similarities between Jonestown and the destruction of Koresh's cult complex in Texas a day earlier.

Jonestown "was a lesson for all," yet the world did not learn, Sharif Khan, editor of the Guyana Chronicle, told the AP in an interview from his office.

"This is almost like what happened at Jonestown. They (American authorities) had all the signs from the beginning just like we had in Guyana, and yet they were not able to deal with it successfully."

Fourteen years ago, Khan ventured to Jonestown with U.S. Rep. Leo Ryan seeking to get children and others out of the camp following reports of abuses. Jones' henchmen fired on Ryan's delegation at the airport — and the California congressmen was killed, prompting Jones' suicide order to his flock.

"Jones was also a charismatic leader who appeared to have people under his spell, like Koresh," Khan said, adding that Jones engaged in similar stalling techniques to thwart inves gations. With Jones in mind, the Americans should have wasted no time "neutralizing" Koresh, Khan concluded.

After the Jonestown tragedy, President Forbes Burnham tried to distance himself from the jungle refuge he had protected, calling the disaster "an American incident" because most of those killed were U.S. nationals.

'This is almost like what happened at Jonestown. They (American authorities) had all the signs from the beginning just like we had in Guyana, and yet they were not able to deal with it successfully.'

—Sharif Khan
Guyana Chronicle

The opposition blamed Burnham for permitting arms at the remote site, in Guyana's northwest near Venezuela, and journalists accused his government of accepting money and sex from Jones' followers in exchange for silence.

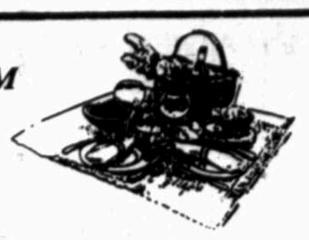

Julie Johnson, 14 at the time, remembered how frightened she and others who lived not far from Jonestown were at the news of the Jonestown tragedy.

Questioned Tuesday on a Georgetown street about the Texas cult, the fearful memory forced an almost reflexive answer from the former schoolteacher.

"Live-in cults should be banned," she said. "You never know what's happening inside. It was the same thing with Jim Jones. He had all those guns and nobody knew."

Guyana has tried hard to forget Jonestown. The site is nearly overgrown, and successive governments have made no effort to place a monument there.

Look for clear skies, mid-70s

Staff report

Today's forecast calls for clear skies with a high in the mid-70s and east to southeast winds at 5-15 mph. Tonight should be clear with a low in the upper 40s, according to the National Weather Service in Midland.

Thursday should be mostly sunny with a high in the mid-80s.

After an overnight low of 42, Tuesday's high reached 71, compared to the record high for that date of 93 set in 1964. The record low was 35 set in 1933.

STATE

Just when it appeared winter was gone and spring was firmly in place, the Texas Panhandle is having to cope with another round of temperatures at the freezing mark or below.

But the mercury shouldn't stay down for long, the National Weather Service said Tuesday.

After temperatures near 30 degrees Tuesday night and early today, the Panhandle can look forward to highs warming into the upper 60s today and into the 80s on Thursday. Lows tonight should be no lower than the 40s, and clear nights and mostly sunny days are expected through Thursday.

Showers and thunderstorms continued along the upper coast and in extreme South Texas on Tuesday along a cold front making its way off the upper coast and through the lower Rio Grande Valley.

Northerly winds were gusting over 20 mph over much of South Texas and to almost 30 mph along the upper coast.

Mid-afternoon temperatures Tuesday in South and Southeast Texas ranged from 68 at Beaumont to 84 at Kingsville. Partly skies are expected through today in the southern half of the state, with lows early today ranging from the 40s along the middle of the state to nearly 60 on the lower Texas coast.

A dry and cool air mass continued to influence North Texas, resulting in clear to partly cloudy skies.

NATION

Rain extended from Texas to New England on Thursday with scattered hail and snow fell by the Great Lakes.

At midday, showers and thunderstorms extended over the Texas Gulf Coast, the lower Mississippi Valley, the central Gulf of Mexico states, the Tennessee Valley, the Ohio Valley, the northern Appalachians and New England.

Rain and thunderstorms also reached across the lower Great Lakes, and snowshowers lingered around Lake Michigan.

Storms produced hail an inch in diameter at Fisher, La., and Lansing, Mich., the National Weather Service said.

Thunderstorms also produced heavy rain. Kalamazoo, Mich., got 2.5 inches from Monday afternoon to 5 a.m. Tuesday. Ada, Mich., got 2.3 inches during the same period.

Overnight snowfall across Michigan included 1 inch at Cheboygan and Rogers City, 2 inches at Alpena, and 4½ inches at Atlanta, the weather service said.

The Associated Press contributed to this report.

CULT: Some may have wanted out, FBI says group's wooden compound 10 miles east of Waco. The fire started after FBI agents assaulted the structure with tank-like vehicles to inject tear gas.

In a brief exchange with reporters Tuesday at Waco's federal court house, cult member Renos Avraam, 29, who survived the fire, told reporters that no suicide pact existed. Another survivor, Jamie Castillo, 24, said through his attorney that he was shocked when the cult's headquarters was ignited.

Koresh's maternal grandmother, Erline Clark, said, "I was never around people associated with the compound who talked about dying and doing things like committing suicide. These weren't vicious people."

Norman Archer, who had known Koresh since 1985, said he believes the cultists had the conviction to follow their leader's direction, but probably were not consulted about suicide plans.

"I think a select few knew," he said, "and they acted in all of the confusion and fear and were able to carry it out."

Koresh's attorney Dick DeGuerin said that interviews with jailed cult members led him to believe the fire may have started accidentally. He said he was convinced Koresh didn't fire on his own people. "They say it was not suicide. They say that no one fired any shots," DeGuerin said.

The FBI's Jamar said there "might have been evidence of people who wanted to get out."

"One of the reasons we knocked a lot of big holes in the walls there was to give people an avenue of escape," he said.

Ironically, some cult survivors indicated that the assault on the building tore out a stairway, making it difficult for anyone to escape from upper floors.

Speculation on whether cultists died willingly came as the FBI packed its bags, relinquishing the crime site to the Texas Rangers, who will conduct an investigation into the Feb. 28 slayings of four agents of the U.S. Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms.

The agents were killed and 16 others were injured as they attempted to serve arrest and search warrants at the compound. At least six cultists were believed killed.

Col. James R. Wilson, director of the Texas Department of Public Safety, of which the Rangers are a unit, said Tuesday in a prepared statement that "this may be the largest, most complicated crime scene the DPS has ever faced."

DPS spokesman Mike Cox said two explosive technicians and a Texas Ranger explored the compound ruins Tuesday, removing one body from outside the building.

Other bodies, some of children, were spotted, Cox said, "but the fear is if they try to move a body right now, something may blow up."

Jamar said many of the corpses likely were burned beyond recognition. And, in Fort Worth, Tarrant County Medical Examiner Nazim Peerwani, who will head the forensic investigation, said he and his team would arrive at Mount Carmel later this week.

Jamar said lawmen have cleared a path through the charred rubble and burrowed to an underground bus bunker — once a target range and now a crypt for Branch Davidians killed in the initial clash with federal agents.

"In that bus, the air was cool and (had) no gas," he said. "Had Koresh wished those children to survive, that was one place they could have been put safely when he had the fire started."

Attempting to deflect criticism that the FBI provoked the cult's apparent self-immolation, he asked rhetorically how the federal government would have looked if it had waited another three months before entering the compound and then found that "children were dying of hunger or children were dying of disease because of the conditions."

He said Koresh would have ordered death of his followers regardless of when agents took action, and suggested, without offering specifics, that the children had routinely been abused during the 51-day standoff.

"Those kids are dead," Jamar said, "because David Koresh had them killed."

He said agents had no evidence the children had been killed prior to the fire.

In other developments Tuesday:

Louis Anthony Alaniz, 24, of Houston, the first man to evade federal agents to seek sanctuary in the cult compound, was released from McLennan County Jail on $1,200 bond. "God brought me in for a reason and he brought me out for a reason," Alaniz said, adding he would return to Houston. "Me and Waco did not agree," he said.

Search and arrest warrants, sealed since federal agents unsuccessfully tried to serve them on Feb. 28, were made public. In them, the ATF's undercover agent in the compound was identified as Robert Rodriguez. The documents also paint a picture of cult life in which adults and some children received paramilitary and assault weapons training.

CLINTON: President orders investigation

(From 1A)

51-day siege, Clinton ordered the Justice Department and the Treasury Department to investigate "whether anything could have been done differently" to avoid the fiery end of the siege.

The House Judiciary Committee already plans to begin hearings on the matter next week, and other investigations are likely. Rep. Jim Traficant, D-Ohio, said there is plenty for Congress to look at.

"When you have 100 TV crews but not one fire truck, that's not a well thought out plan, that's box office," he said on the floor of the House. Fire trucks arrived at the scene well after fire ripped through the compound.

Rep. Henry Hyde, R-Ill., said, "I'm reluctant to politicize this. I think that would be a very foolish thing to do. On the other hand, there are questions of competence, questions of effectiveness."

Clinton firmly backed the actions of federal agencies in Waco, saying the FBI "made every reasonable effort to bring the perilous situation to an end without bloodshed and further loss of life."

Federal officials said the inferno that destroyed Koresh's compound was started by his followers. Koresh and 85 other cult members — including 17 children — apparently died in the blaze.

Clinton said Ms. Reno briefed him on Sunday and "described generally" the plan, including the use of tear gas to flush out Koresh and his followers. She also told him FBI agents would not fire on the compound.

Reno pressed for action against the cult members because "the danger of their doing something to themselves or to others was likely to increase" and because hostage experts in Waco might be needed elsewhere. She also feared for the children inside.

Clinton said he and his top law enforcement official talked about what could go wrong, including the possibility of mass suicide, and that Reno said the FBI was "convinced that the chances of bad things happening would increase with the passage of time."

The incident took on a political edge Tuesday, with the White House denouncing reports that Clinton had distanced himself from the tragedy for 24 hours.

"It's not possible for a president to distance himself from things that happen when the federal government is in control," Clinton said.

And his aides were privately chastising reporters who suggested that Reno's high visibility on Monday was a telling contrast to Clinton, who issued only a written statement after the fire broke out.

Clinton said Tuesday, "I take full responsibility for the implementation of the decision."

But he also made it clear that it was Reno's decision because "I didn't have a four- or five-hour detailed briefing from the FBI. I didn't go over every strategic part of it."

Clinton said he felt sick when he first saw the compound burning on television. "I felt terrible. And my immediate concern was whether the children had gotten out and whether they were escaping or whether they were inside trying to burn themselves up."

He ordered federal agencies to cooperate with the House Judiciary Committee, which will conduct an investigation into the matter beginning April 28.

The administration's inquiry will be conducted by the Justice Department

DOE: Program to affect basin production

million to the five producers who were chosen from 44 applicants from around the country. All together 11 grants totaling $40 million will be awarded to producers who operate in other shallow carbonate reservoirs around the nation, meaning about 75 percent of the funds will end up in the Permian Basin.

"The payback for the Department of Energy," said Jack Siegal, acting deputy secretary for fossil energy, "will be to put the information gleaned from the projects into the public domain to assist other operators in producing more oil."

Siegal, who has an environmental background and has worked with DOE in coal technology, said the focus of the projects would be to concentrate on ways to keep existing fields in production. He said about half the projects would be to gain new geological information to make a big picture, and that some of the technology being used was not advanced.

Secretary of Energy Hazel O'Leary said in a prepared statement that the Permian Basin was given high priority with five projects because reservoirs here are crucial to the nation.

Siegal said shallow carbonate reservoirs originally held more than 68 billion barrels of oil and represented one-seventh of all oil discovered in the lower-48 states. He said 20 billion barrels had already been produced, leaving 48 billion barrels of which only four billion can be recovered economically with present production methods.

Midland's congressional representatives had high praise for the research projects.

Sen. Bob Krueger said the public-private partnership was an excellent way to reduce U.S. dependence on foreign oil and to improve the Permian Basin economy.

"Early on, I knew West Texas would be a winner in this program," said Rep. Lamar Smith, representative from the 21st Congressional District. "This program will keep jobs in the U.S. and reduce our dependency on foreign crude."

Rep. Larry Combest of Lubbock, who represents part of Midland and Odessa, said, "It is high time the federal government encouraged domestic production. The Permian Basin has lost 13,000 jobs since 1983."

Asked why the government was not spending more money on such research to stem increasing imports, Siegal said the main reason was the budget deficit.

He said the general feeling in the oil industry was that the government did not care, but he hoped this program would send the message that the federal government did care about domestic production.

Carbon dioxide, especially "huff-and-puff" techniques, 3-D seismic and horizontal drilling all play into the five Permian Basin projects.

Laguna Petroleum Corp. will use 3-D seismic to characterize reservoirs and look for porosity stringers.

Texaco plans a huff-and-puff program in the Vaccuum Field in Lea County, N.M.

Fina Oil will combine advanced well logging, crosswell tomography, core analysis and reservoir stimulation models to study the North Robertson Clearfork Unit.

Oxy USA will use 3-D seismic and well log data to design a huff-and-puff in the San Andres.

Phillips Petroleum will drill multiple horizontal injection wells to inject CO_2 in a San Andres formation.

CHILDREN: Cult mothers wouldn't disobey

youths are almost certainly among the victims. Eight adults and a 17-year-old girl survived.

In the aftermath, FBI agents said they wanted to ratchet up the pressure on Koresh, or break the resolve of his followers. Maybe, finally, they would capitulate. Maybe, at least, they would set the children free.

From the start, the children were at the center of the standoff. They were the reason the FBI waited almost eight weeks before moving on Koresh, a 33-year-old high school dropout who fathered several infants with women he claimed as his "wives."

"We thought that their instincts, the motherly instincts would take place and that they would want their children out of that environment," FBI special agent Bob Ricks said Monday.

"That did not occur," he said. "Unfortunately they bunkered down the children the best we can tell, and they allowed those children to go up in flames with them."

Also victims were the 21 children who left the compound in the course of the standoff, ranging in age from 5 months to 12 years. Many lost their parents in the flames.

"Anytime that you have to talk to children about the death of their parents, it's difficult," said Bob Boyd of Child Protective Services in Waco, which handled the custody of the freed children. "Children shouldn't have to go through that."

Boyd said all the kids brought up by Koresh were "innocent victims."

"They didn't choose to be there like many of the adults did. It's a horrible tragedy," he said.

Unlike the adult members, youngsters and teen-agers had in most cases never known any other home than the isolated Branch Davidian compound.

Cult members have said children played in the compound pool, watched TV and raced around outside, like "normal" kids. Attorney Dick DeGuerin, hired by Koresh's mother to represent the cult leader, backed up that portrait.

"I saw no physical abuse of the children," said DeGuerin, who visited the compound periodically during the siege. "I didn't see any scared kids. I saw happy kids — kids that were at peace."

But former partisans have described a stark world: one in which Koresh had sex with minors, including a 14-year-old girl who bore his child; one in which Koresh whipped the children in an underground bunker area known as "the spanking room."

"There was in fact evidence of the mistreatment of children," FBI Director William Sessions said Tuesday. "We know, for instance, from the beginning that some of those children were in fact wives to Mr. Koresh, that there were children who were born to children. . . . The pattern of abuse was there and it was systematic."

President Clinton, U.S. Attorney General Janet Reno and agents in charge have all said the children's safety was largely what prompted the decision to move armored vehicles into the compound Monday.

"Mr. Koresh's response to the demands for his surrender by federal agents was to destroy himself and murder the children who were his captives," the president said Tuesday. "He killed those he controlled, and he bears ultimate responsibility for the carnage."

Ms. Reno said reports that Koresh had abused children were among the primary reasons the FBI ended its waiting game.

in these markets. The customer will see only the positive — upgraded facilities and happy employees," Wood said.

He said he anticipates capital expenditures in the first four to five years will be about $10 million, largely in the form of gasoline marketing presentations and upgrades to existing stores.

Those stores that sell gasoline will have gasoline facilities upgraded and branded with the Fina brand.

Southwest Convenience Stores is a newly formed corporation owned by the Woods. They are also principals in Southwest Energy Distributors Inc., which has been in business for 35 years as a wholesale gasoline distribution concern selling fuel in 10 states. The company also owns and operates convenience stores in Odessa/Midland and truck stops in Texas and New Mexico.

Southland Corp.'s operations include more than 6,100 7-Eleven and other convenience stores in the U.S. and Canada. In addition, licensees and affiliates operate more than 7,500 7-Eleven stores in parts of the U.S. and 19 other countries.

INFERNO IN WACO

Cult experts: FBI used wrong approach

By Daniel Goleman
N.Y. Times News Service

Law-enforcement agencies might have avoided an Armageddon in their 51-day standoff with the Branch Davidian sect in Waco, Texas, if they had focused their attention on the fact that they were dealing with a violent sect, experts on cults said in interviews on Tuesday.

Instead, the FBI and others involved in the ordeal approached it as if it were a hostage situation. By relying on basic principles of hostage negotiation, the agencies apparently ignored or minimized factors that might have told them the approach was unlikely to work, including the facts that the sect members were there by choice and that they held an ideology that glorified armed confrontation.

The very process that draws people into the web of a violent sect like the Branch Davidians, said psychologists who study such cults, means an armed confrontation with the outside serves to solidify bonds within the group, rather than dividing them as is the case with common criminals.

Many experts on cults who were interviewed Tuesday said they and others they knew in the field had not been consulted during the siege. One expert, who spoke on condition of anonymity, said he had been consulted for his expertise on hostage negotiations, rather than for cults.

Another expert, Dr. Margaret Singer, formerly of the University of California at Berkeley, said she was surprised that no one from any of the agencies involved called her "or any of the half-dozen other major authorities on cults." Dr. Singer, a psychologist who has written extensively on the psychology of cults, said she had often served as a consultant with the Justice Department or the FBI on specific investigations.

The experts who were interviewed acknowledged that it was easy to second guess the FBI, and none could offer an alternative strategy that law-enforcement officials might have used to end the standoff.

Davidians' actions to teach lessons

By Peter Finn and Jim Jones
N.Y. Times News Service

The Mount Carmel complex was consumed by madness Monday when some zombies brainwashed by a religious nut cast themselves and their children into the flames.

From the White House down that was the conventional wisdom Tuesday.

"He killed those he controlled," President Clinton said.

But for others, such interpretations, although they comfort and distance us from the events in Waco, fail to explore how far society can go in tolerating religious freedom.

"What happened yesterday was a religious act," said Lonnie D. Kliever, a professor of religious studies at Southern Methodist University. "That wasn't mass suicide. That was mass martyrdom."

Already politicians, academics and cult watchers are drawing radically different lessons from the inferno in Waco.

"We didn't learn that much from Jonestown," said Cynthia Kisser, executive director of the national Cult Awareness Network based in Chicago. "Whether we learn anything from (Waco) depends on whether the public and the government takes seriously the fact that cults are a continuing problem in this country."

She added, "We need to have education programs for young people and adults on the cult issue, just as we do on gangs and drugs."

Kliever, however, said that the unwillingness to accept new religions and the effort to stigmatize them by calling them cults causes tragedies like Waco.

"Millenarian sects nourished on the Book of Revelation can turn defensive and violent when they are demonized by society," Kliever said. "The Cult Awareness Network is the Ku Klux Klan of the religious world."

Former members, scholars expect sect to reorganize

HOUSTON — Branch Davidian history suggests a new leader could emerge from the nine survivors of Monday's tragic fire.

Despite David Koresh's presumed fiery death Monday, some former members and scholars are not willing to preclude the group's resurrection.

Baylor University religion professor Bill Pitts, who has studied the Branch Davidians for 10 years, said the deaths of Koresh and his followers do not necessarily mean the end of the cult. More than 85 people died, including 25 children. Authorities say an exact number may not be known for days.

"I'm sure if you get the nine survivors together, they would recognize one as a leader, but I have no idea whom," Pitts said. "I think one would emerge as leader."

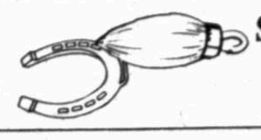

Marc Bunds, 33, a Waco, Texas, electronics technician, predicted that his father, Donald Bunds, 62, a member of the Branch Davidians since late 1950s, or some other member, will quickly revive the group.

The cult has survived previous splintering and disappointments, including the failure of one leader's prediction that the world would end and the messiah would come in 1959.

There are other Davidians — spiritual cousins to the Waco group — in Canada, Missouri, South Carolina and California. But they have no direct ties to Koresh's cult, so Pitts expects new Branch Davidian leadership to come from within the Waco remnant.

The cult has had a tumultuous history in the past 50 years. Victor Houteff led them to Mount Carmel in 1935 where he served as their leader for 20 years. His wife, Florence, took over after his death. Her prophecy that the world would end in 1959 failed to transpire.

Noting that there are Branch Davidians who did not live at Mount Carmel, Pitts believes their movement will continue in some form.

Repeat of tragedy must be avoided

The tragedy at Mount Carmel will reverberate through American society for months to come.

One interesting aspect of the case is that it is making strange bedfellows. Sincere conservatives who believe there were serious constitutional violations perpetrated by law enforcement personnel in the confrontation are finding themselves allied, in some cases, with those of a more liberal persuasion who also believe the non-conforming Branch Davidians were hurting no one and should have been left alone.

But federal officials apparently had reason to believe, perhaps through insiders in the compound, that either the people inside presented a danger to society in general or to some of their own.

While obtaining certain types of weapons is legal; obtaining others or modifying them is not. While no one argues that American citizens have the right to bear arms, is that right synonymous with virtual stockpiling of vast amounts of automatic weapons and huge stores of ammunition such as apparently was the case at Mount Carmel?

If agents had information that young children were being abused or at least being used sexually did they not have an obligation to determine if that information could be confirmed?

On the other hand, the methods federal agents utilized in the initial confrontation have been criticized as being heavy-handed, and the point has been raised that it was not necessary to send a large force to the compound in trying to serve a search warrant. Too much "cowboys and Indians," said some.

It is not against the law to be "different" in our society, nor is the holding of unusual religious beliefs a crime.

And while sending a couple of agents to the doors of the compound containing scores of men capable of bearing arms might not have been a sound move, sending a hundred might have startled those inside to the extent that their response could almost have been predicted. And who fired the first shots anyway? The sources don't agree.

Obviously this is one of those cases where early-on armchair quarterbacking isn't the best approach. It's easy to do and it's tempting but the tragedy is of such scope that it warrants much deeper consideration than that.

We appreciate Attorney General Janet Reno's commentary that "you do the best you can, make the best judgment you can make on the basis of the information that you have." Likewise, we believe the commentator who surmised that "you can't expect to have a rational explanation for the behavior of irrational people" was on target.

But there are many questions that must be raised and will be studied by fact-finding entities. The tactics utilized by agents, the basis of their suspicions and the credibility law enforcement personnel attached to those claims must be thoroughly examined. Former Davidians who dropped out as well as those who escaped death in the inferno this week will be interviewed.

What were the alternatives of injecting tear gas, non-lethal though it was, into the buildings? That action apparently was the incident that caused the sect members to cross the line into a decision that death was better for all, including women and children, than surrendering to outside forces. The alternatives discussed by Reno and President Clinton will have to be thoroughly examined publicly.

Only when thorough examination of the scene, followed by exhaustive investigation, are complete will authorities have the data that hopefully will keep what happened this week at Mount Carmel from ever happening again.

That is the real job ahead.

TODAY IN HISTORY

Today is Wednesday, April 21, the 111th day of 1993. There are 254 days left in the year. This is Professional Secretaries Day.

Today's highlight in history:

Seventy-five years ago, on April 21, 1918 Baron Manfred von Richthofen, the German ace known as the "Red Baron," was killed in action during World War I.

On this date:

In 1649, the Maryland Toleration Act, which provided for freedom of worship for all Christians, was passed by the Maryland assembly.

In 1789, John Adams was sworn in as the first vice president of the United States.

In 1836, an army of Texans led by Sam Houston defeated the Mexicans at San Jacinto, assuring the independence of Texas.

In 1910, author Samuel Langhorne Clemens, better known as Mark Twain, died in Redding, Conn.

In 1940, the quiz shows that asked the "$64 question," and "Take It or Leave It," premiered on CBS Radio.

In 1960, Brazil inaugurated its new capital, Brasilia, transferring the seat of national government from Rio de Janeiro.

In 1972, Apollo 16 astronauts John Young and Charles Duke explored the surface of the moon.

In 1975, South Vietnamese President Nguyen Van Thieu resigned after 10 years in office.

In 1977, the musical play "Annie," based on the "Little Orphan Annie" comic strip, opened on Broadway, beginning a run of 2,377 performances.

In 1980, at the Boston Marathon, Rosie Ruiz was the first woman to cross the finish line; however, she was later exposed as a fraud.

Ten years ago: Former first lady Betty Ford, undergoing treatment at Long Beach Memorial Naval Hospital in California, disclosed in a statement that she was addicted to alcohol as well as a drug she had been taking for arthritis.

Pretense outweighs military action

After some legitimate dallying and weighing of options, the Clinton administration has adopted the European approach to Bosnia: Let nature take its course toward a Serb victory over the Muslims — while pretending to do otherwise. Today, watching Srebrenica fall; tomorrow, Sarajevo.

Gelb

This policy is very "realistic." It avoids all the political and military risks of getting trapped in a place hardly anyone cares about, especially when nations must tend to their own domestic woes. It is also devastatingly cynical. And for that reason alone, President Clinton should reconsider it.

Cynicism feeds on itself and spreads like a cancer. In time, little matters. Not Boris Yeltsin, not a tiny country like Haiti, not Kosovo, not injustice abroad, not injustice at home. Cynicism also corrodes democratic leadership, since it's hard to debate what's not acknowledged.

No Clinton administration official openly admits to such a cynical policy, although some have come close in private. Perhaps they can't admit what they're really doing, even to themselves. But their policy has been quite clear for weeks.

In the current phase: Go along with Europe's funneling only minimal relief supplies to dying Muslims, pretend to be trying hard to reach a "peace" settlement, stay clear of direct military intervention and assume the Serbs will effectively win the war in the next three to six months.

After the Serbs triumph: Don't formally recognize or in any way legitimize the victory, maintain economic sanctions against Serbia and try to stop the Serbs from using force against Kosovo and Macedonia.

Since the outbreak of the war, the Serbs have allowed only the bare minimum of U.N.-provided food, fuel and medicine to reach Muslims; often less. Worse, last week U.N. relief workers howled that their warehouses were near empty, with little new Western aid in sight. Why let this happen, when it will only weaken the Muslims and lead them to surrender?

The U.S. and its European cohorts say they favor a Vance-Owen-type peace, dividing Bosnia into ethnic enclaves. But they've ruled out using force, or even the threat of force, to make the Serbs accept it. So the Serbs openly laugh at their timidity. Clinton's only comeback is to say he's "keeping all options open." The Serbs laugh at that, too. Why give the Serbs this kind of free ride, when they can only take it as a wink?

Western leaders now speak of tightening the economic embargo against Serbia as a way of getting Bosnian Serbs to accept the Vance-Owen plan. But why weren't these tougher measures imposed long ago? Was it simply because Moscow threatened to veto the effort? Are the Russians any likelier to go along now? And why such emphasis on economic sanctions when Western leaders know well that sanctions have never worked? Why, if not mainly for show?

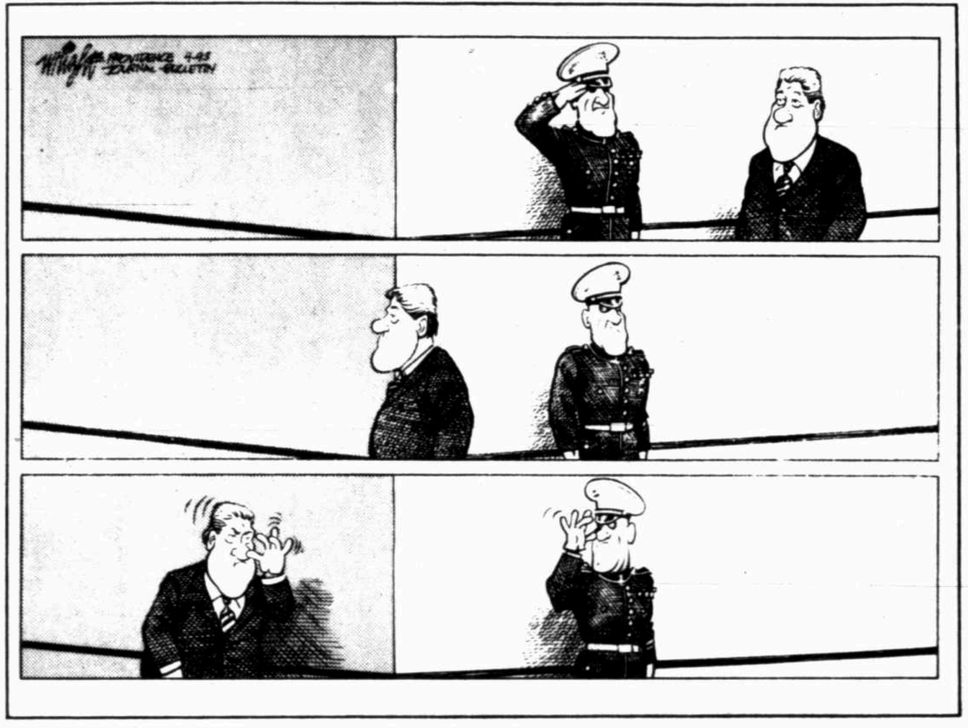

Still, world leaders continue to protest their devotion to the Vance-Owen "plan" or "process" and their willingness to put it into action. Yet not one of them has firmly pledged a single peacekeeper to keep the peace.

NATO experts estimate upward of 100,000 peacekeepers, including 40,000 Americans, will be required to do the job. Where will they come from, and who will put up the $5 billion to $10 billion annually to keep them in the field? Why the total failure to commit this money and manpower? Why, indeed, unless Western leaders are simply playing a very cynical game?

In what passes for candor among Western officials, some will privately say that Bosnia is just too far gone, that they will make their stand against Serbia in Kosovo and Macedonia. But it's hard to imagine that Belgrade will move against Macedonia, or that Westerners will protect Kosovo since they all recognize it as a province of Serbia. In any event, why should the Serbs fear Western military power in these places when the West did nothing to stop genocide in Bosnia?

And now what was suspected is confirmed. Regular Serb forces are part of this war. Isn't this enough for the West to end its charade?

At some level, everyone understands these games. "Realist" pundits even praise Clinton for his pretense; anything to them seems better than the risks of military involvement. But the cynicism will eat away at the Clinton presidency and at U.S. foreign policy.

Pentagon persuasion inflicts national pain

WASHINGTON — "Damn the torpedoes," barked David Farragut at Mobile Bay in 1864, "full speed ahead!" The Confederate mines, then called torpedoes, proved defective, and the Union admiral sailed to victory.

I am reminded of this gutsy leadership as I look out my window at The Times' Washington bureau on Farragut Square, with a statue of the naval hero looking sternly toward the White House, a pigeon atop his head.

Safire

There in the basement, behind a shiny brass plaque proclaiming "White House Situation Room," the Clinton Corollary to the Farragut doctrine is being shaped: "Go slow, make sure all our allies are aboard, catch the prevailing breeze of public opinion and above all — watch out for the damn torpedoes."

Is this the way for the Commander in Chief of the world's only superpower to respond to the sustained slaughter in Bosnia and the mocking gratitude of the Serbian war criminals? No. Unless he is prepared to be branded a weak president — to bear the consequences of the same irresolution in the Balkans that he was so ready to criticize in his predecessor — Clinton must be ready to strike decisively on April 26.

That's the day after the Russian referendum. This month's White House reason for inaction in the face of perfidy is that he does not want to give Russian President Boris Yeltsin's enemies, who express solidarity with the Serbs, a leg up in the election. The Serbian forces have been making the most of this gift of time to escalate their war.

But that's just a matter of timing; beyond the romantic wish to be a domestic president, what are the real reasons for the Clinton reluctance to send American power to the rescue?

First is that he keeps poor company. George Bush had the benefit of Margaret Thatcher's rent-a-spine agency; Bill Clinton is afflicted with the umbrella diplomacy of Mr. Wobbly himself, Britain's John Major, who is taking the "special" out of "special relationship."

Next, he is a prisoner of the polls (who wants to die for Danzig or Sarajevo?) and of the chairman of the Joint Chiefs, an Army general who thinks primarily in terms of ground troops to be used with overwhelming force, and only if the policy is backed with universal patriotic fervor.

Finally, he is the captive of his post-Vietnam multilateral rhetoric, so taken with fear of "going it alone" that he is incapable of going first and pushing and shaming others into going along.

As a result, we have meaningless sanctions, useless no-fly zones, publicity-stunt airdrops and U.N. relief convoys turned back while the Serbs go about talking while killing.

Here's why that's about to end: because television pictures of blinded children bring the atrocities into American living rooms; because the weight of editorial opinion is swinging behind action; because Republicans are pledging bipartisan support for action and planning to assign the blame for the consequences of weakness; because Clinton realizes that public revulsion at U.N. failure is beginning to stick to him.

Compellance is not obliteration; it does not promise to win a war from on high. Rather, its sudden infliction of national pain — shutting down electric power, fuel supplies and communications in a capital, putting a missile in a war ministry — is intended to encourage negotiation by leveling more than playing fields.

We can hope that Clinton will jog over to Farragut Square for inspiration. One thing Bosnia presages: the next chairman of the Joint Chiefs, to be appointed this summer, will be wearing a uniform not of army khaki but of air force blue.

Who's responsible for teaching kids to shoot?

The question that many people are now asking is, "Why can't Johnnie shoot straight?" With millions and millions of teen-age dollars being poured into guns and ammunition, many schoolchildren are still unable to hit their targets.

People are undecided about who is to blame for gun illiteracy. The schools maintain that it's up to the parents to teach their children how to shoot, and the parents say that learning how to fire a gun is something that the educators are responsible for.

Buchwald

While the battle rages among the adults, the kids are the victims of gun illiteracy.

At Rattlesnake High a student said, "Most kids in school have a weapon, but only 25 percent of them have ever fired one in anger. I asked my father to buy me one, but he said that when he went to high school he didn't need one and couldn't understand why I did. He lived in a different world."

A young man was showing off a semiautomatic AK-47.

"This is my best friend," he said. "I can walk through the school packing it and no one is going to stop me — not even the nerds who monitor the halls."

"Have your grades improved since you brought the gun to school?"

"It's the difference between a B and a C — when the teacher sees the bulge in my shoulder she'll give me a B."

I then asked a stupid question. "Do you ever have a fear that your firearm will go off accidentally and hurt someone?"

"The thought had occurred to me, but you can't go unarmed to school just because you're afraid that your gun will misfire."

Surprisingly, not everyone at Rattlesnake carried a lethal weapon. A few students felt that guns were a menace to the student body.

"I don't believe that firearms are the answer to every teen-age problem. Kids should resolve them in some other way," one senior told me.

Another student, wearing a Pancho Villa bandoleer, disagreed: "Guns don't kill students, students kill students."

The principal of Rattlesnake was very defensive about the low marksmanship grades of his students. "We just don't have the funds to provide shooting skills to all our students. My first instinct was to disarm everyone, but there was such an uproar among parent members of various gun support groups that I had to back down. They said that if their children didn't learn to shoot in high school, they would be handicapped when they went armed to college."

Probably the biggest argument against guns in the classroom is that it separates the "haves" from the "have-nots." The have-nots can either buy or steal the best weapons while the haves prefer to spend their money on blue jeans and Doc Martens.

Even if the have-nots don't know how to shoot straight, they still present a danger to everyone else.

The only way to solve the problem is to bring the gun back in the school where it belongs. Get Charlton Heston and other NRA personalities to visit classrooms and explain the value of firearms to a child's education.

This country is No. 1 in the world in school shootings, but it's not going to remain that way if our kids don't get a bang for their buck.

Clinton faces defeat as GOP reaffirms opposition to jobs bill

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Clinton's jobs bill seemed all but dead Tuesday as Senate Republicans reaffirmed their rock-solid opposition to it upon returning from the Easter recess.

Barring an unexpected new effort at compromise by Clinton, the GOP unity meant that the legislation had virtually no chance in the Senate, where the minority Republicans have blocked it with a filibuster since last month.

And that leaves Clinton staring at what would be his first major legislative defeat — although the administration was loath to say so.

"We haven't given up hope. We never thought this was going to be easy," said White House spokeswoman Dee Dee Myers.

Clinton says the measure, which would be paid for by federal borrowing, would create jobs during a still uncertain economic recovery. But Republicans say the measure would pile billions of dollars onto record budget deficits while doing little for the economy.

"The people of the country are behind us," said Sen. Larry Pressler, R-S.D., as Republicans emerged united from a closed-door caucus. "They're excited about cutting spending. We've got an issue and we shouldn't let go of it."

"There's no emergency, and we ought to be getting onto more important business," said Sen. Dave Durenberger, R-Minn.

The bill, a major leg of Clinton's blueprint for restoring the economy, contains $12.2 billion in new spending for everything from new computers for federal agencies to aid for school districts. It also contains $3.2 billion for road-building that would come from the highway trust fund.

Clinton slashed $4 billion from the measure on Friday in hopes of moving toward a deal. But Republicans rejected that overture because it ignored their core demand: that Clinton offset its costs by cutting existing programs.

While Republicans continued blocking a vote on final passage of Clinton's bill, the Senate killed, on a vote of 53-45, a Republican substitute that would have pared the program to just $6 billion. Crossing party lines to support the GOP amendment were Democratic Sens. Robert Kerrey and James Exon of Nebraska, Sam Nunn of Georgia and Richard Shelby of Alabama.

The GOP measure would have provided $4 billion for jobless benefits that are needed by next week, and additional money for highway projects, summer jobs, and a few other programs. All but the unemployment money would have been financed by cutting agencies' administrative costs.

After defeating the Republican plan, the Senate then went on to give preliminary approval to the president's package on a 52-46 roll call.

But that vote was purely symbolic, and Republicans were assured of blocking Democrats from final passage of Clinton's bill. Republicans are outnumbered by Democrats in the Senate 57-43, but 60 votes are needed to cut off any filibuster.

"It's pure politics, an effort to embarrass the president, an effort to defeat the president's program," said Senate Majority Leader George Mitchell, D-Maine. "And what is at risk is not the politics of the presidency, but the American economy."

While Mitchell would not say the bill's fate was sealed, other Democrats seemed resigned to a defeat.

"It's dead if Republicans want it to be dead. We can't overcome their votes if they decide to hang tough," said Sen. Dale Bumpers, D-Ark.

The administration had hoped to pick up additional support over the recess by applying pressure on several Republicans, including phone calls from Cabinet members and coordinated local lobbying efforts with sympathetic unions and others.

"It was the kind of pressure that backfires because if you want my support, don't try to beat up on me," said one of the targets, Sen. Alfonse D'Amato, R-N.Y.

Both sides were willing to approve the $4 billion the measure carries for jobless benefits. Approval of that portion of the bill seemed likely by week's end.

Sniper fires on movie studio, injures 9

UNIVERSAL CITY, Calif. (AP) — A former employee armed with a hunting rifle peppered a movie studio with gunfire Tuesday, wounding two people. Several others were injured by flying glass.

The alleged gunman was arrested at a park near Universal Studios Hollywood, where his primary target was the 16-story headquarters of MCA, Universal's parent company.

Tourists at the Universal Studio attraction were not affected by the shooting, a spokeswoman said.

John Brian Jarvis, 58, a former studio driver, was booked for investigation of attempted murder, police said.

"He's indicated the possibility this arose from some past dispute from employment," said Los Angeles police Lt. John Dunkin.

Jarvis was a full-time studio driver until 1982, when he was laid off and used as a temporary employee until 1986, said Christine Hanson, an MCA spokeswoman. The circumstances of his departure weren't disclosed.

Two people were struck by bullets, six were hurt by flying glass and one complained of an ear injury. None of the injuries was life threatening, officials said.

"We had heard loud noises and I was looking out the window facing the park trying to see where the noise was coming from," said Dee Acosta, who works on the 7th floor.

Then a co-worker screamed, "'We're being shot at,'" Acosta said.

Merchants Respond to "BUY THE BASIN" with survey

How can you let merchants know what you want? Give them FEEDBACK! This month the Buy the Basin campaign is urging merchants to seek feedback from area residents.

Merchants throughout Midland responded in many ways. One organization making a strong response was Midland Park Mall.

Sylvia Hernández, Marketing Director, Midland Park Mall:

"In response to the Buy the Basin campaign, we're trying to find out how to better meet our customers' needs.

All of the 86 merchants at Midland Park Mall have a new customer service survey that we developed with Buy the Basin. We hope customers will take the time to fill it out. We want to know how they rate their experience at the Mall, if they found what they were looking for, what they liked and didn't like. We want to know what their favorite stores are and if there are other stores they'd like to see in the Mall.

To make filling out the survey more attractive, customers have a chance to win gift certificates from the Mall in a monthly drawing. The survey is available at the check-out counter of each Mall merchant and at the Mall's customer service center beginning this week.

We're asking customers to rate the Mall on cleanliness, employee courtesy, informational signs, parking, selection and restroom cleanliness. They are asked such questions as: 'Were you were able to fulfill your merchandise needs today?' and 'Excluding department stores, what kinds of stores would you like to see in this mall?'

You can answer anonymously but your name is required to be entered in drawings to win Mall gift certificates."

Next week: What other merchants are doing to get customer feedback.

BUY THE BASIN urges local merchants to seek feedback from customers and potential customers. Texas Commerce Bank is the sponsor of the Feedback portion of the campaign. A simple survey form is available for merchants at the Midland Chamber of Commerce, 109 N. Main, in downtown Midland.

For more information call 683-3381.

U.S., Germany trade command of troops in unprecedented move

BRUSSELS, Belgium (AP) — The United States and Germany are transferring NATO wartime command of thousands of each other's soldiers in an unprecedented move that will put GIs under German officers and Germans under U.S. orders.

The exchange reflects NATO's need to combine forces into multinational corps given national troop cutbacks. It is also a departure from Washington's traditional reluctance to allow foreign generals to supervise its troops.

"The United States has not in the past designated any of its forces for operations directly under the command of others," said U.S. Army Gen. John Galvin, former chief of European forces for the 16-nation North Atlantic Treaty Organization.

"If the balloon goes up, the plan would be for that division to chop (pass) to the German corps," said Galvin, now at West Point Military Academy in New York.

At Thursday's ceremony in Giebelstadt airfield, about 50 miles southeast of Frankfurt, Germany, the U.S. Army's 1st Armored Division, based at Bad Kreuznach, will be attached to the German army's 2nd Corps. Germany's 5th Panzer Division will go to the U.S. 5th Corps, based in Frankfurt.

The 16,000 to 20,000 troops in each division will not move from their bases. Each multinational corps will total 50,000 to 75,000 soldiers.

Each nation will also assign six bilingual officers to the other's corps headquarters of several hundred personnel. The specialists will take part in training, intelligence, communications and logistics.

"The German division is an equal partner in the planning process of the 5th Corps, which has never been done before," said Lt. Col. Dick Bridges, the corps spokesman.

The command arrangement would come into play during a crisis, when control of national troops is transferred to NATO's chain of command of U.S. and European officers. At the top is U.S. Gen. John Shalikashvili.

In peacetime, the troops remain under national control.

Two other multinational corps are also planned — one German-Dutch and another Danish-German. The command structure of the four multinational units will be in place by 1995.

Mixing units is intended to lessen the burden on NATO nations that can't afford to field as many soldiers as they once did. The multinational units will also be smaller and more flexible.

Mingling U.S. and other allied soldiers with German troops eases the impression that a united Germany, the front-line nation in the Cold War, remains occupied by foreigners. It also continues to link the United States to Europe's security.

"It certainly is a political advantage," said Capt. Walter Reichenmiller, the German Defense Ministry spokesman. "It is a (symbol) of cooperation between the countries."

The average soldier should notice little change.

Americans will continue to use M1A1 Abrams tanks, and Germans, Leopard tanks. Training will remain the same.

Officials: Jewish graves violated

ST. PETERSBURG, Russia (AP) — Dozens of graves at a Jewish cemetery were desecrated on the eve of a ceremony in remembrance of the Holocaust, authorities said Tuesday.

In a meeting with President Boris Yeltsin in Moscow, Russia's chief rabbi said Tuesday that anti-Semitism in Russia is growing and becoming more organized.

Thirty-five graves at St. Petersburg's main Jewish cemetery were desecrated Saturday night, and seven of the gravestones were so badly damaged they cannot be restored, said caretaker Igor Krylov.

Yakov Tsukerman, editor of a local Jewish newspaper, said the vandalism occurs every year around the Russian Orthodox Easter, which was celebrated Sunday.

Teens in jail

Five Midland teen-agers were in jail Tuesday in connection with items stolen from the Midland Independent School District and a local business. According to a police report, the school district reported $15,000 worth of baseball equipment stolen from its Athletic Department, 2001 W. Cuthbert, on April 6.

On April 10, Between the Walls, 1707 N. Big Spring, reported approximately $11,000 in handguns had been stolen.

Midland County Sheriff's office and Midland Police Department officials executed a search and arrest warrant at 1709 N. Weatherford on Wednesday based on a Crimestoppers tip.

Officers seized handguns and assorted baseball equipment that were taken in the two burglaries. Approximately $9,650 in property was recovered for Between the Walls and approximately $12,000 was recovered for MISD.

Carlos Castro, Apolonio Rodriguez, Carlos Perez, all 17, were charged with two counts of burglary of a building each, with bond set at $10,000 for each count.

Javier "Jay" Perez, 18, and Joe Perez, 19, were each charged with one count of burglary of a building with bond set at $10,000 each.

Officers are still searching for a 17-year-old Hispanic male and a 19-year-old Hispanic male in connection with the burglaries.

Kidnapping charge

ODESSA — An Odessa man was in jail Tuesday in connection with an aggravated kidnapping on Sunday.

According to a police report, Leticia Quinonez, 27, reported Monday to police that Roman Gonzales Jr., 29, followed her from church Sunday at about 8:30 p.m. and convinced her to pull her vehicle over in the parking lot of Albertson's, located at West County Road and West University. Gonzales then forced her into his vehicle and drove to a street near Ratliff Stadium, where he kept her for approximately two hours assaulting her and threatening to kill her. He then took her to his apartment at 3842 Penbrook, where he continued to assault her. He released her about 6 a.m. Monday. Ms. Quinonez went home and notified police.

A warrant was issued for Gonzales and he was arrested at about 6:46 p.m. Monday. He was charged with aggravated kidnapping and bond was set at $100,000, according to reports.

Punishment phase continues

■ Character witnesses called by defense paint picture of Purser as being a follower.

By Michael Kashgarian
Staff writer

In an attempt to seek a life sentence rather than the death penalty, several witnesses testified Tuesday that convicted murderer Curtis Dean Purser, 21, had a history of being passive.

Purser was convicted Saturday for the Nov. 13, 1991, capital murder of church secretary Brenda Branch, 28, during an attempted robbery at the Living Way Foursquare Church.

After hearing further testimony, expected to end today in Judge John Hyde's 238th District Court, the jury will deliberate what punishment should be assessed. Capital murder is punishable by either death by lethal injection or life in prison.

Prosecution testimony on Monday indicated that Purser had behavior problems in school and was apparently involved in criminal activity prior to the murder.

A different perception of Purser was presented Tuesday.

Instead of the "smart-mouth" as described by some teachers, Purser was characterized by friends and relatives as well-mannered, friendly, obedient, a follower, and wanting to please others.

And despite a learning disability and a low IQ, Purser was described as appearing to having normal intelligence by most of those who testified on his behalf.

An elementary school principal testified that Purser was "tender-hearted," which sharply contrasted earlier testimony by junior high teachers that he was disruptive and had trouble getting along with other students.

Overall, defense testimony indicated that Purser appeared to have a happy childhood, although he experienced problems with his father, who divorced Purser's mother about 10 years ago.

Will Parsons, a psychologist and executive director of the Guidance Center in Hobbs, N.M., reviewed records documenting Purser, from when he was between

Jobless rate decreases to 6.8 percent

Unemployment in Midland took a sharp drop in March, figures released by the Texas Employment Commission indicated Tuesday.

Midland's unemployment rate fell from 8.1 percent in February to 6.8 percent in March, its lowest level since December 1991. In March 1992, the rate was 7.1 percent.

In Odessa, the drop was even sharper, to 9.2 percent from 11.5 percent a month earlier.

"We think this is probably a sign post-holiday layoffs are over," said Jackie Mosely, manager of the TEC's Midland office. "We seem to be in a transition period now, and hopefully things have picked up a little," she added in explaining the results.

The TEC's statistics indicate 100 Midlanders joined the civilian labor force during March, raising it to 48,200 from 48,100; a year ago it was 49,500.

Of those in the labor force, 44,900 are employed, meaning 700 more Midlanders were employed in March than in February; a year earlier total employment was 46,000.

The statistics also indicate there were 600 fewer unemployed in March than February, total unemployment falling to 3,300 from 3,900; a year earlier it was 3,500.

Ms. Mosely said the statistics are

City reduces water, sewer project costs

■ Engineering work to be done by Midland employees; rest of work to be financed by revenue bonds.

By Darren J. Waggoner
Staff writer

City officials have cut the cost of a multi-million dollar water and sewer project by keeping the work in-house, but the remainder of the bill will be financed by revenue bonds.

The $14.3 million three-part project will be divided between a 7½-mile-long water pipeline — linking the city to the 158-mile Ivie Reservoir pipeline — and construction of sewer lines servicing much of south Midland and airport-area businesses.

City officials had considered taking about half of the $14.3 million out of the city's water/sewer surplus — which arguably would have lessened the tax burden on water consumers.

"We looked at the options and determined it would cost less to borrow the money," said Rick Menchaca, assistant city manager. "We will earn more with the interest rate. The bonds we issue are tax-exempt."

The $7 million water line, which will be Midland's primary water source in two years, will pump water from the proposed Colorado River Municipal Water District water storage area at FM 1788, two miles south of Highway 191, to Midland's raw water storage area near Mockingbird Lane.

Construction on the local portion of the line is expected to start in February 1994 and be finished in early 1995. The Ivie Reservoir pipeline will bring water to several West Texas cities, including San Angelo, Abilene and Big Spring.

Government targets site of Midland airport for cleanup

■ Officials think aging munitions or explosives may be buried underground at former military facilities.

By Darren J. Waggoner
Staff writer

A former Midland military site is one of 19 Texas locations and 259 sites nationwide that the U.S. government believes may contain aging munitions or explosives buried underground.

The Midland Army Airfield Range No. 1, which served as a bombardier training ground during World War II, has been targeted for cleanup. The site, now home to Midland International Airport, could contain a number of devices — including artillery rounds and hand grenades, government officials said.

Ken Day, Director of Airports, had not been notified of Midland's status on the government list by late Tuesday.

In most cases, there is no immediate danger because the munitions are believed to be buried and in some cases it's likely government cleanup workers may not find anything, officials said. The potential danger comes when munitions

Coalition urges voters to defeat Proposition 1

The legendary English outlaw Robin Hood stole from the rich and gave to the poor, but the recapture plan which bears his name will steal from the poor as well, according to a contingent of educational leaders Tuesday.

"The Robin Hood plan comes with no reforms whatsoever. It will hurt the poor and minorities the most," said Jose Garcia de Lara, former national president of LULAC (League of United Latin American Citizens).

Stopping at Midland International Airport on a 10-city tour, the group said it is touring Texas to urge citizens to defeat Proposition 1 as the plan to distribute education dollars.

ROBIN: Burnett disagrees with group

tutional amendment that would allow some local property tax money to be shifted from property-rich to poorer school districts in response to a court order for funding reform. Schools are funded mainly by state aid and local taxes.

Rep. Libby Linebarger, who sponsored the proposal in the Legislature, said the local property tax provision "does nothing more than what this state has done for decades" in requiring school districts to raise a certain amount of money for the school funding system.

"The plan comes under the guise of helping the poor and minorities, and I can tell you — coming from the barrios of San Antonio — they will be the hardest hit," Lara said. Lara allowed that his child attends a private parochial school because he disapproves of the quality of education offered by Texas public schools.

Although Lara decried the impact on the poor and minorities, recapture has gained the support of intervenors in the Edgewood vs. Kirby lawsuit from both the plaintiffs of poor districts and defendants from wealthy districts.

The STOP group said the proposition will increase taxes.

"Proposition 1 is a cleverly disguised plan to raise property taxes," said State Sen. Jane Nelson, R-Flower Mound, and former member of the State Board of Education. "It will raise property taxes across the state. Voters need to send a clear message to legislators that the taxpayers are not going to write them a blank check."

Ms. Nelson said Proposition 1 would transfer the authority to set school property taxes from local school districts to the Legislature.

Local administrators have disagreed.

"The amendment of and by itself will not raise property taxes," said Quentin Burnett, superintendent of Greenwood Independent School District.

"There is a likelihood that taxes will go up whether or not the amendments pass," Burnett said. "Until the Legislature addresses the adequacy issue — the total amount of money being put into the system — property taxes will continue to be raised. Until the state Legislature — through its appropriations — begins to fund education with the same priority as prisons, they will continue to rely on property taxes."

According to a study by the Association of Texas Professional Educators, past expenditures reveal that the state's share of funding of public education has been decreasing. In 1983, the state paid 50 percent of the public education funding cost, with local districts and federal funds covering the rest. The state now provides less than 47 percent of funding for public schools.

The ATPE noted that the Texas Senate's 1994-'95 spending plan increases spending on prisons by 38 percent, and raises health and human services spending by almost 25 percent over the current budget, but increases education monies by only 3 percent.

The Texas Education Agency estimates that more education funds will be needed for the more than 70,000 additional students expected to enroll in Texas public schools over the next two years.

The STOP group suggested passage of Proposition 1 would increase property taxes in Midland based on a model that did not reflect recapture.

"Not reflecting recapture in the figuring doesn't make sense," Burnett said. "The whole amendment is based on recapture."

Ms. Nelson said legislators who suggest consolidation or a state income tax might result if Proposition 1 fails are using scare tactics.

Burnett disagreed. "The Supreme Court wrote in its opinion that one method of having some equity would be to reduce the number of school districts — which is consolidation," he said.

While STOP called for assessing and rewarding schools based on performance, local educators have said the propositions are intended to address equitable funding only.

The STOP representatives noted that more money won't guarantee better schools.

Superintendent Burnett said, "To those folks who say money doesn't make a difference, I submit that the state of Texas has spent over $2 million litigating this and the state hasn't been able to convince the courts that money doesn't make a difference . . . Money makes a difference in the quality of instructional supplies, facilities and teacher salaries. The Education Testing Service has also found a positive correlation between teacher salaries and scores on the SAT (Scholastic Achievement Test)."

Tom Luce, a 1990 Texas gubernatorial candidate and former chief of staff of the Texas Select Committee of Public Education, said the proposed constitutional amendments are "all a tax shell game."

"Legislators are trying to avoid increases in taxes until after the 1994 election. They are using school children as political pawns," Luce said. "What will save our schools is restructuring them. There needs to be a system put in place which assesses and rewards results. Let's send legislators back to the drawing board."

On Tuesday, the Midland Classroom Teachers Association announced that they support a "yes-no-yes" vote on the proposed amendments.

"We are urging voters to support constitutional proposals to allow limited recapture of local property taxes and authorize school construction bonds, but to vote against the proposal that would allow school districts to ignore new state reforms unless they are fully funded, or enacted by a two-thirds Legislative vote," said MCTA President Donna Kelly.

Ms. Kelly urged voters to "consider these proposals for their individual merits and not as a package."

Bullock: Voters should have voice in income tax

Staff report

AUSTIN — Lt. Governor Bob Bullock said Monday that he and at least 21 senators will ask the Legislature to consider a constitutional amendment prohibiting a state income tax without a vote of the people.

"Taxpayers and all the people of Texas are in partnership with the Legislature, and together all the partners should help decide an issue of this importance after full public debate and with all cards on the table," Bullock said.

Senate Joint Resolution 49 will be co-authored by Sens. John Montford, Ken Armbrister and Bill Ratliff.

Should the voters consider such a tax in the future, it "should be dedicated to education and include a reduction in local school property taxes, and that should be in the constitution, too," the lieutenant governor said.

"Further, no increase in the rate of such a tax should ever be allowed without statewide voter approval," Bullock said. "Putting the income tax in the constitutional process will insure that it is only approved by the will of the people."

The announcement by Bullock is a far cry from his position of two years ago when he came out in favor of a state income tax.

"All Texans should have a full say on taxes as they have had on other issues such as horse racing, the lottery, liquor-by-the-drink, and now on schools — for the first time in history," he said.

SITE: No date has been scheduled for local cleanup bleed to the surface or are uncovered by excavation or when toxic chemicals threaten groundwater, officials said.

No date has been set for the beginning of the local cleanup.

Other area sites include the former Pyote Army Airfield and the South Plains Army Airfield in Lubbock.

Explosives already have endangered suburban neighborhoods, public parks and even a college campus, an Associated Press review has found.

Hundreds more sites, many dating to World War II, are believed to hide toxic chemicals ranging from old fuel at an abandoned Air Force base in Arizona to a suspected mustard gas agent near Edison, N.J.

Government officials suspect there are leftover explosives in a state wildlife refuge four miles from Hope, Ark. — the tiny community where President Clinton was born.

The AP reviewed scores of documents from the Army Corps of Engineers, detailing the government's inventory of the 7,592 military sites that have been abandoned and in most cases resold since World War II.

"People got rid of property and it was out of sight and out of mind," said Thomas Wash, director of the corps' office that is conducting the defense cleanup effort.

Officials have proposed 1,777 projects scattered among all 50 states and several U.S. territories for immediate cleanup. There are 268 projects at 259 sites with suspected explosives and the rest with various form of chemical contamination.

And the government has yet to scrutinize about 3,000 other former defense sites. Officials acknowledge they expect to find several hundred more places with explosives or hazardous waste and ultimately will spend $4 billion on cleanup by the year 2010.

The Associated Press contributed to this report.

Midlander is in jail on drug charges

Staff report

A Midland man was in jail Tuesday after officers found marijuana and cocaine at his residence late Monday.

According to a Permian Basin Drug Task Force report, investigators for the task force, the Midland County Sheriff's office and the Department of Public Safety executed a search warrant at approximately 7 p.m. Monday at 4300-A N. County Road 1133 in Midland County.

Approximately 70 pounds of marijuana, estimated value of $70,000, and a pound of cocaine, estimated value of $20,000, were seized by officers.

Felix Quiroz Jr., 35, was charged with possession of marijuana and possession of cocaine. Bond was set at $10,000.

JOBS: Odessa rate also drops

borne out by the fact that her office has noticed a noticeable decrease in the number of people filing first-time unemployment claims.

While Midland's improved job picture was due more to unemployed Midlanders finding jobs than new jobs being created, Ms. Mosely said the city's industrial/manufacturing sector gained 100 jobs in March, while the retail sector shed a few jobs and other sectors remained steady.

"I feel optimistic about what the summer will bring," she concluded. "I expect we'll see more small decreases in the unemployment rate as the summer progresses."

Among the TEC's 27 Metropolitan Statistical Areas, Midland ranked 15th, tied with Houston. Odessa ranked 24th.

Bryan-College Station had the lowest unemployment rate in the state, 3.2 percent, followed by Austin with 4.3 percent, Amarillo with 4.9 percent and San Antonio and Victoria each with 5.3 percent. The highest unemployment rate was in McAllen-Edinburg-Mission, 14.6 percent.

CITY: Bids to be taken on construction

(From 1B)

City surveyors currently are working on the design and projected route of the proposed 36-inch pipeline alignment, officials said.

The $5.7 million southside sewer project will include the construction of a new transmission line to alleviate the overloaded line servicing much of south Midland.

The sewer line will run along Interstate 20 from Cloverdale Road to FM 1788.

Another line, costing an estimated $1.6 million, will service airport businesses and run from FM 1788 and Interstate 20 to the airport.

The line will render a small 50-year-old sewer plant at the airport obsolete. A new sewer plant would have cost $3 million.

Harvey Hansen, director of engineering, proposed merit pay raises for several employees involved with the project, and asked the city to hire one additional staff engineer.

All engineering work — including surveying and inspection — will be done internally, at a savings of $350,000, city officials said.

Construction of the actual pipeline and sewer extensions will be done by an outside company that will bid on the project next month.

The sewer line work will begin in 18 months and should be finished by 1996 or 1997.

MC: Board approves fee for computers

(From 1B)

President David Daniel. "We are still teaching some beginning computer courses without computers."

Daniel said Odessa College and Howard College in Big Spring had already added the fee to their tuition costs.

The fee will bring in an estimated $80,000 for upgrading and adding to the college's current computer system, Daniel said, adding that the amount plus what was allotted in the upcoming budget should be enough to equip two classrooms with computers.

The fee proposal passed unanimously, with trustees William Howard, Steve Kiser and Kenneth Peeler absent.

In other business, board president William Kleine appointed trustees Jack Huff, Charlene Wurtz and Steve Kiser to a committee to decide what should be allotted for salaries in the upcoming 1993-'94 budget.

TRIAL: Testimony to end today

(From 1B)

11 and 15 years old.

Intelligence tests given to Purser at 11 years old indicated an organic brain dysfunction, that hindered learning through verbal methods.

The defense used the profile to illustrate Purser as being a follower, implying he was not the prime culprit in the murder. A second man, Gearld Benjamin Kelly, 22, is currently serving a life sentence for the murder.

During a lengthy cross-examination by assistant District Attorney Ralph Petty, the question was raised whether Purser was likely to show future acts of violence.

Parsons testified that any future behavior of Purser's — or prediction of — would depend on the circumstances of the crime, past behavior and other factors. Parsons did not give a definitive opinion on Purser.

In assessing punishment for a capital murder, jurors are asked whether a defendant poses a future risk. Depending on that answer and others, a judge imposes the death penalty or life in prison.

Since being jailed about a year ago, Purser has behaved well, according to two jailers, who described Purser as a "model prisoner."

Bentsen defends energy tax plan

By James R. Owen
Reporter-Telegram Washington bureau

WASHINGTON — Treasury Secretary Lloyd Bentsen defended President Clinton's proposed energy tax Tuesday but did not rule out the possibility that the administration will accept more exemptions to the controversial levy.

As he appeared before the Senate Finance Committee, which he headed for years as a senator from Texas, Bentsen was peppered with appeals for relief from the tax by his former colleagues.

They noted that on April 1 the Treasury Department offered to cut the proposed levy on heating oil and eliminate it on jet fuel used for international flights and on grain-based gasoline additives such as ethanol. But other interests angling for an exemption, including agriculture, steel and aluminum, were left out.

"If we'd exempted them, it would have required higher taxes on other energy users, and it would have undermined our objectives," Bentsen explained.

Still, the senators made their pleas, which prompted Sen. Bill Bradley, D-N.J. who called the levy "a reasonably good tax," to ask Bentsen, "Is this the final list of exemptions?"

Bentsen replied: "I have a hunch that the committee will work its will, and that we may find some changes."

Ever since the tax, which is designed to raise $72 billion over five years, was unveiled on Feb. 17, energy interests have bombarded the administration with requests for relief.

Bentsen told the committee that "our legislation is complete" and will be sent to Capitol Hill within 10 days.

"This energy tax is a very important part (of an effort) to cut the deficit, to create the kind of long-term growth to our economy, to create the jobs and the income growth that Americans want," Bentsen told the panel.

But several senators argued that the tax is not fair.

Sen. Kent Conrad, D-N.D., said it would impose "a disproportionate hit" on wheat farmers in his state, whose costs, he said, would rise $1 an acre because of higher gasoline costs used in cultivating crops.

Sen. David Boren, D-Okla., said the tax would hurt operators of stripper oil wells, who use large amounts of electricity to pump just a few gallons of oil daily from the ground.

Sen. John Breaux, D-La., complained that the tax would penalize deep-water oil producers in the Gulf of Mexico. "I hope the door has not been shut as we develop the final product," Breaux said.

Bentsen acknowledged that the tax would cause pain for some manufacturing sectors, including the aluminum industry, that use large amounts of electricity. Bentsen conceded that the tax could drive up aluminum production costs 3 to 4 percent.

"It does give us concern, it is energy-intensive," Bentsen said of the tax's impact on the aluminum industry. "But we have not found a way to resolve it yet."

Aluminum interests and other high energy users such as the steel, glass and paper industries have also lobbied the administration and Congress for exemptions.

The energy tax, based on the heat content of fuels, would apply to most energy sources, including oil, coal, natural gas, electricity and hydroelectric power.

Hutchison rejects request to take polygraph test

HOUSTON (AP) — A spokesman for state Treasurer and U.S. Senate candidate Kay Bailey Hutchison is rejecting a request that Mrs. Hutchison take a polygraph test in a dispute over whether she once struck a former aide.

Former employee Sharon Ammann has accused Mrs. Hutchison of hitting her with a binder eight to 10 times when she couldn't find a telephone number in 1991.

Ms. Amman's father, former Gov. John Connally, said Monday that his daughter passed a polygraph examination about the event. Connally also requested that Mrs. Hutchison, who has denied the accusation, also take a polygraph test.

"Get serious," Mrs. Hutchison's spokesman, David Beckwith, responded. "Closed-door lie detector tests are the last refuge of the desperate. It strains credibility that this alleged 2-year-old incident is popping up now."

The Houston Chronicle cited a former worker Tuesday who said she was at a 1991 event when Mrs. Hutchison pinched an aide's arm so hard it left a bruise. The aide declined to be interviewed by the newspaper.

Connally and his wife, Nellie, stepped into the dispute Monday by announcing the findings of the lie detector test administered by Ernie Hulsey, chairman of the Texas State Board of Polygraphy Examiners.

"Our daughter's telling the truth and she's lying," Connally said of Mrs. Hutchison.

The controversy began last week when The Houston Post reported Ms. Amman's accusations.

Connally and Ms. Ammann are backing a Hutchison opponent, U.S. Rep. Jack Fields, in the May 1 Senate election, but insist their allegations are not politically motivated.

Fields issued a statement Tuesday saying Mrs. Hutchison should take a lie detector test or quit the race.

"In this way, the voters of Texas will know the truth. Only then can we proceed to a meaningful and vigorous debate of the issues," he said.

Richards receives vaccination bill

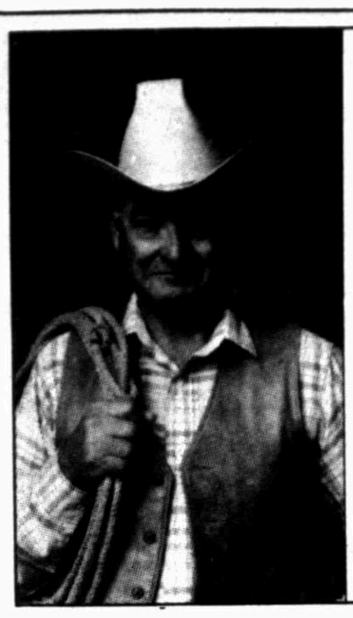

AUSTIN (AP) — The Texas Senate has sent Gov. Ann Richards legislation that would require all pre-school children to receive immunizations against childhood diseases.

The bill is designed to stop increasing number of outbreaks of preventable diseases in the state, Sen. Judith Zaffirini, D-Laredo, said Tuesday.

Texas ranks first in the nation in cases of diseases that can be prevented by vaccinations, according to Senate researchers. An estimated 30 percent of Texas children are fully immunized by the time they are 2-years-old, which is half the national average.

The bill will cost $55.6 million; a fraction of the cost to treat these childhood diseases, Ms. Zaffirini said.

Chuck McDonald, a spokesman for Richards said the governor will sign the bill into law. "This was a top priority for her and she is extremely pleased," McDonald said.

Prices slump

NEW YORK — The expiring May delivery contract for crude oil futures settled lower on Tuesday, but prices for deliveries in later months rose slightly.

Analysts said the May contract was vulnerable to routine end-of-contract price swings. As a contract expires, producers and speculators frequently have to buy or sell to counter positions they had taken earlier. Otherwise, they can be left with having to take delivery of the commodity.

West Texas Intermediate for delivery next month settled at $19.84 per barrel, down 15 cents at the New York Mercantile Exchange. The June delivery contract settled 3 cents higher at $20.32 per barrel.

Local crude purchasers lowered their posted price for WTI 25 cents to $18.25 per barrel.

In its weekly inventory report, The American Petroleum Institute surprised most forecasters Tuesday evening by reporting a 10.05 million barrel reduction in last week's crude stocks. The drop came a week after API reported a 12 million barrel increase.

Natural gas prices were higher, with contracts for delivery next month settling at $2.442 per 1,000 cubic feet, up 3.4 cents.

Banc One earnings

COLUMBUS, Ohio — Banc One Corp. Tuesday reported first-quarter earnings of $272 million or $1.03 per share — a 60.9 percent growth compared with restated earnings for the same period last year.

The bank originally reported earnings of $179 million or 86 cents per share for the 1992 first quarter. Its restated earnings for that period totalled $171 million or 64 cents per share. Restated earnings include the acquisition of Valley National Corp. on March 31, as well as three bank acquisitions in the last quarter of 1992, the company said.

Market tumbles

NEW YORK — Slipping bond prices, growing pessimism about the economy and computer-driven program selling pushed the stock market broadly lower in heavy trading on Tuesday.

Drug stocks, however, bucked the trend and moved higher. The issues have tumbled in recent weeks because of President Clinton's confrontation with the industry over pricing.

The Dow Jones industrial average fell 23.50 points to 3,443.49.

Declining issues outnumbered advances by about 9 to 5 on the New York Stock Exchange.

The Nasdaq composite index slid 1.06 to 661.97. The NYSE composite index fell 1.30 to 245.72, while the American Stock Exchange market value index fell 0.85 to 417.41.

Blizzard chops construction

■ March was the third straight month that winter weather adversely affected housing construction.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Blizzard of '93 contributed to a downturn in housing starts last month, but analysts say construction should rebound this spring.

Construction of new single-family homes and apartments fell 4.6 percent in March to 1.13 million at a seasonally adjusted annual rate, down from 1.19 million a month earlier, the Commerce Department said.

"It's mainly weather and I think that's reflected by the regional pattern," contended economist Michael Carliner of the National Association of Home Builders. He noted starts fell throughout the country except in the West, which experienced the largest increase in nearly two years.

But, he added, "I think we'll see a pickup very quickly in April and May, probably to a 1.3 million to 1.35 million range . . . and probably stay at that level for the rest of the year."

David Lereah, economist for the Mortgage Bankers of America, agreed the housing markets should improve during the next several quarters.

"Although late, spring will finally arrive in the housing markets, beginning with April's housing numbers," he predicted.

Lereah said continued low mortgage rates and modest advances in employment and income growth should spur housing activity.

According to the Federal Home Loan Mortgage Corp., mortgage rates dropped to 7.44 percent during the week ended March 5, lowest since they averaged 7.43 percent in February 1973. They averaged 7.45 percent last week.

March was the third straight month that winter weather adversely affected housing construction. Starts plunged 8.9 percent decline in January and advanced at a slower-than-expected 1.5 percent rate in February. The February increase was even smaller than the 2.5 percent advance in the department's initial estimate last month.

For the first three months of 1993, starts were down 7.3 percent from the same period a year earlier. But many analysts said construction that would have occurred during the first quarter merely had been postponed until spring.

Analysts said the weather also contributed to a drop in applications for building permits, often a barometer of future activity. They fell 8.8 percent in March to 1.04 million from 1.14 million in February. It was the largest decline since permits fell by the same amount in April 1990.

Both single-family and apartment building was buffeted by the storm. Single-family starts were down 4.5 percent to a 993,000 rate, while multi-family construction was off 5.4 percent to a 141,000 rate.

Overall, starts slumped 26.8 percent to a 90,000 rate in the Northeast, where the blizzard struck hard. That was the lowest level since builders started homes at an 88,000 rate in February 1991 and the largest decline since a 27 percent drop last January.

Midland oil firm reaches $115 million settlement

HOUSTON (AP) — Baker Hughes and Dresser Industries tentatively have agreed to pay a Midland oil and gas producer $115 million to settle charges it was overcharged for services and supplies in the mid-1980s.

The agreement announced Monday with Parker & Parsley Petroleum Development of Midland would settle what has been a problem for the companies for nearly three years, since a federal court in Midland awarded Parker & Parsley $185 million in actual and punitive damages.

"It's been a cloud for quite a long time," Ronald Turner, vice president of investor relations for Baker Hughes, said.

Under terms of the agreement, Houston-based Baker Hughes and Dallas-based Dresser each would pay Parker & Parsley $57.5 million.

In November 1990, a federal jury in Midland found that Parker & Parsley was overcharged for work on 526 wells. The award, however, subsequently was reduced to $175 million.

IBM reports revenue loss in 1st quarter

NEW YORK (AP) — IBM said today it lost $285 million in the first quarter and revenue fell a sharp 7 percent, reflecting poor demand for core products in slumping world markets.

The loss amounted to 50 cents per share, compared with a profit of $642 million, or $1.12 per share, a year earlier before special accounting charges. Analyst expectations ranged from losses of about 30 cents a share to 55 cents per share for the quarter.

Revenues fell to $13.1 billion from $14 billion in the first three months of 1992.

International Business Machines Corp. said that revenues fell slightly in the United States and Asia while tumbling 13.8 percent in Europe. IBM derives nearly two-thirds of its revenue from overseas.

Southwestern Bell profits increase 16 percent

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — Southwestern Bell Corp. said Tuesday its first quarter profit rose 16 percent from last year before a one-time charge of $2.1 billion for compliance with accounting rule changes.

The charge contributed to a loss of $1.91 billion, or $6.38 per share, for the quarter ending March 31. A year ago, Southwestern Bell earned $261.6 million, or 87 cents per share, in the period.

Revenue in the first quarter was $2.46 billion, up 7 percent from $2.29 billion a year ago.

The $2.1 billion charge covered the adoption of new accounting standards for retiree medical benefits, other postemployment benefits and deferred federal tax liability.

Southwestern Bell also took a one-time charge of $89.4 million in the period to refinance the long-term debt of its telephone business.

Without the special charges, the company earned $302.5 million in the quarter.

"Looking beyond these special items, this was another very positive quarter," company chairman Edward Whitacre said.

Southwestern Bell added 158,000 access lines in the period, up from 132,000 in the first quarter of 1992. The company also added 100,000 cellular customers, compared to 63,000 additions in 1992.

The company expanded its cable TV business in the quarter by purchasing two cable companies that serve the Washington, D.C., area and entering a joint venture with Cox Cable Communications in the United Kingdom.

Southwestern Bell moved most of its headquarters employees from St. Louis to San Antonio in the quarter.

Greyhound, drivers settle 3-year-old strike

WASHINGTON (AP) — Greyhound Lines Inc. and its drivers tentatively agreed Tuesday to end a bitter, three-year strike against the nation's only intercity bus company.

The strike by some 5,800 drivers and maintenance workers represented by the Amalgamated Council of Greyhound Local Unions was marked by sniper fire. Buses and terminals were shot at in at least 50 instances.

Labor Secretary Robert B. Reich, who attended the signing of the proposed pact, said he hoped it marked "the beginning of the end to a very bitter period in labor relations." The six-year agreement calls for regular labor-management meetings.

The proposed contract provides about $22 million in striker back pay and annual wage increases that will boost driver pay nearly 20 percent over the life of the contract, from $13.83 an hour currently to $16.55 an hour on March 1, 1998.

Mechanics' wages, which vary by location, will increase between 3 percent and 4 percent in each year of the agreement.

Greyhound agreed to rehire by July 1 some 550 strikers. The company already had reinstated about 1,500 other strikers.

Many of the striking workers had been replaced by permanent employees after the strike began March 2, 1990. No replacement workers have been or will be fired.

The company agreed to recall other strikers as vacancies occur.

Schmieder called the agreement a "new beginning for Greyhound and the ATU and a new beginning for the way labor relations work."

The settlement also provides that most of the nearly 200 drivers who were fired for alleged misconduct will be rehired. The future of the others will be determined through arbitration.

The settlement is expected to be ratified by the union members in early May.

William Kula, a Greyhound spokesman, said there had been no violence reported since late summer 1990. Before then, however, there were more than 50 shootings, 1,000 cases of violence at Greyhound facilities and 1,000 bomb threats, he said.

Kula also said the company operations have returned to normal, although the size of the operation is smaller than before the strike. Greyhound now serves 2,700 destinations and in 1991, transported 16 million passengers, down from 22 million in 1989 just before the strike began.

The pact was signed by James La Sala, president of the Amalgamated Transit Union, and Greyhound President Frank Schmieder, who were actively involved in its negotiations. The Amalgamated Transit Union is the parent of the Amalgamated Council of Greyhound Local Unions.

Schmieder called the agreement a "new beginning for Greyhound and the ATU and a new beginning for the way labor relations work." He said he and La Sala will meet regularly four times a year "to continue our dialogue and development of trust."

La Sala said, "It is my hope that today's settlement can signal a new era in labor relations in the United States."

In addition to the regular Schmieder-La Sala discussions, the pact calls for meetings between lower-level officials of the union and the company "designed to enhance the labor relations skills of company supervisors and union representatives."

About four months after the strike began, the company went through Chapter 11 bankruptcy protection from creditors while it reorganized. Schmieder and a new management team replaced the executives in power when the strike began.

The work force has since been reduced to about 3,500 "as we found more efficient productive ways to utilize the fleet and employees," Kula said. The fleet of buses has been cut to 1,850 from 3,900 in early 1990.

IBM: Revenues fall in 1st quarter

(From 4B)

The declines had been expected, and IBM's stock price initially rose. But it fell back after the extent of IBM's sales declines was reported. IBM's stock was down 12½ cents at $49.12½ by late morning on the New York Stock Exchange.

In his first public statement since taking over the computer giant April 1, IBM's chairman and chief executive, Louis V. Gerstner Jr., conceded that IBM continues to struggle in its core product areas.

"These results reflect weak demand and continued competitive pressures in many of our hardware lines, particularly mainframe computers and large disk drives," Gerstner said. But he said demand for personal computers was strong and operating expenses were being reduced.

IBM has cut about 80,000 jobs in the last three years, and plans to eliminate more than 25,000 jobs this year. The reductions have been achieved through voluntary buyouts and some layoffs.

The job-reduction programs caused IBM to take more than $11 billion in accounting charges last year, which largely caused an annual loss of nearly $5 billion. It was IBM's second straight annual loss.

But IBM said the cuts had helped reduce sales, general and administrative expenses by 10.1 percent in the January-March quarter, while total operating expenses were off 8.9 percent.

That was a bit of positive news in an otherwise grim report.

IBM said total hardware sales fell 19.4 percent in the quarter, to $5.7 billion from $7.1 billion in the 1992 first quarter. IBM said mainframe sales fell "significantly," but did not specify how much.

Sales of midrange computers also declined in the quarter.

While the company said demand for its personal computers was good, it did not say whether the personal computer unit was profitable. Analysts said a price war in the personal computer industry has hampered profits.

STOCKQUOTE HOTLINE

WHAT IS STOCKQUOTE HOTLINE?

Stockquote Hotline gives you the latest stock prices direct from the wires of the Associated Press. Over 9,000 stocks are listed from NYSE, AmEx, and OTC sources; all available 24 hours a day. You can receive up to 10 quotes with one easy phone call.

HOW TO USE STOCKQUOTE HOTLINE:

1) Call the Stockquote Hotline at 560-2400; enter the category number which is 9988.

2) You will be asked to enter your stock ticker symbol. These are based on industry-standard symbols, which can be found in a Standard & Poor's Ticker guide, or by calling your local stock broker.

3) Once you've entered the numerical code for the ticker symbol, press the Star Key (*) and you will hear the current price and net change from the last Associated Press update; which is a few minutes behind market activity.

4) After the stock is quoted, you will be asked to enter another ticker symbol. You now have 2 options:
• You may request a quote for another stock by repeating steps 2 & 3.
• You may request additional information on the stock just quoted by once more pressing the Star Key (*).

Now the volume, high and low will be given, and then you will be asked to enter another ticker code.
• You may enter up to 10 ticker symbols per call.

5) To exit Stockquote Hotline, simply hang up the phone.

Chaps win wire-to-wire

■ Midland College's Stephen Dundas beats teammates Guy Redford and Luke Mongrain by one stroke to win medalist honors in combined golf tournament.

By Pete Herndon
MRT Correspondent

Midland College's Stephen Dundas said he knew all too well what teammate Guy Redford was going through during the last four holes of the Midland Invitational Junior College Golf Tournament at Green Tree Country Club Tuesday.

Redford, the tournament leader after the opening round, had what appeared to be a commanding four-stroke lead going into the sixth hole on Green Tree's east course. Dundas, the second-round leader playing behind Redford, then watched his teammate bogey four times.

Dundas went on to birdie 16 and his birdie putt on 18 gave him a one-stroke victory over Redford, finishing with a 2-under par 217. The tournament, played on Green Tree's 6,988-yard, par 73 east and north courses, also served as the Texas Junior College Golf Championship and a Western Junior College Athletic Conference tournament.

"I knew what I had to do," said Dundas. "I started at seven-over after five holes, but I knew there were a few birdie holes left. I just kept my patience.

"I thought I played pretty well after that, I was four-under over the last 13 holes."

Redford's troubles were on the greens. He said his best shot of the day was nullified by a errant putt.

"On 13, I hit a 5-iron to about four feet and missed the putt," Redford said. Redford's bogey's came as a result of three-putting three of the last four holes.

He had taken the lead with birdies on eight and nine to go 1-under for the day. Birdies on 11 and 14 put him at 3-under before his putting suffered.

Dundas said his putter was responsible for his turnaround after five holes.

"The one that got me going was on the sixth hole," Dundas said. "It wasn't a spectacular shot, but it was an eight-foot putt. I birdied two of the next three holes."

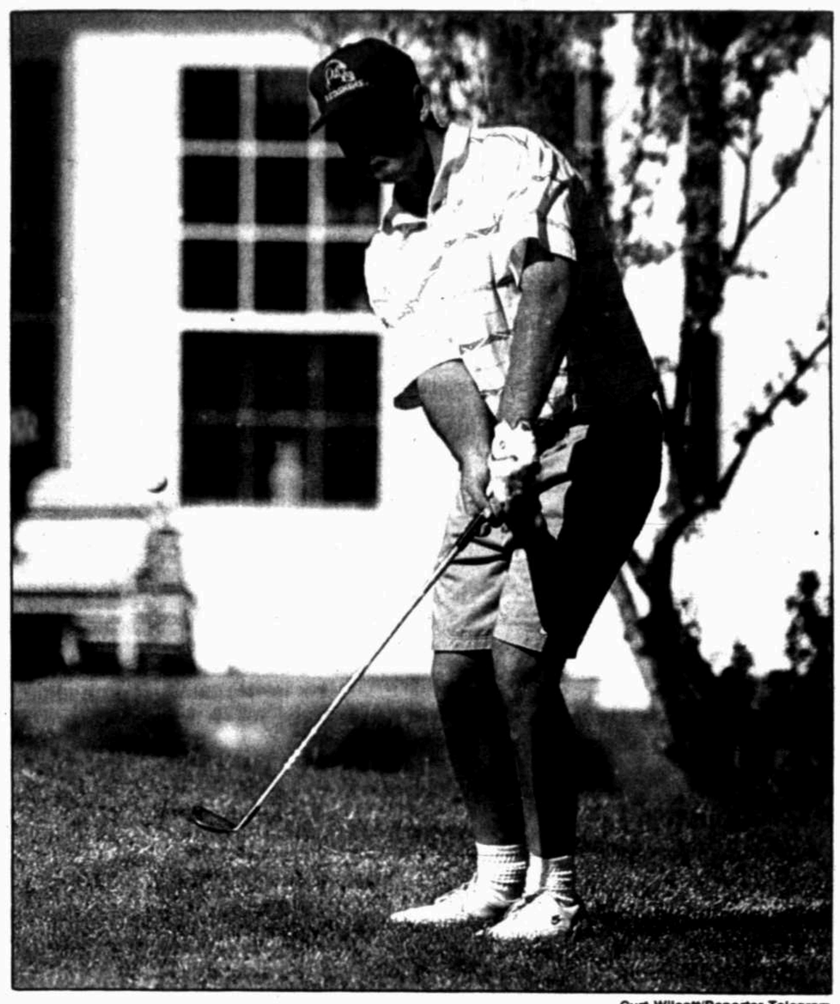

The battle between Dundas and Redford helped MC run away with the title of all three tournaments. The Chaparrals finished at 6-under par, 870 over three days. Odessa College was second at 919.

Dundas and Redford were both selected to the all-state team, as were MC golfers Shawn Savage, Chad Campbell and Darren Summers. Javier Molano of Lon Morris was the other all-state selection.

Midland College's Luke Mongrain finished the tournament a stroke behind Dundas, but was not eligible for all-state honors because he was competing unattached.

The all-state selections were based on the best five scores for the tournament. Savage finished at 1-over for third place. Campbell and Summers tied for fifth at 5-over.

Dayley signs

LOS ANGELES — The Los Angeles Dodgers signed left-handed relief pitcher Ken Dayley to a contract with their Albuquerque farm club of the Pacific Coast League on Tuesday.

Dayley, 34, has a 33-45 lifetime record with a 3.64 ERA and 41 saves in 10 major league seasons. He was released by the Toronto organization last Thursday.

In seven spring training games for the Blue Jays, Dayley pitched seven innings, allowing five hits and four earned runs while walking 10 and striking out two.

Dayley has played with Atlanta, St. Louis and Toronto and has been a member of four division championship teams. He was limited to eight games over the past two seasons with the Blue Jays due to an inner ear problem and an injured left elbow.

Dayley will join Albuquerque on Wednesday, the Dodgers said.

Hebert tries

SUWANEE, Ga. (AP) — Bobby Hebert, the former quarterback for the New Orleans Saints, Tuesday took a physical and worked out for Atlanta Falcons coaches seeking a backup to Chris Miller.

Wade Wilson, who replaced Miller when the No. 1 Atlanta quarterback was injured last season, earlier signed as a free agent with the Saints.

On Monday, unrestricted free agent Jay Schroeder worked out for Falcons coaches. Schroeder played with the Los Angeles Raiders last season.

Hebert dined Monday night with Falcons officials, including president Taylor Smith and coach Jerry Glanville.

Hebert's agent, Greg Campbell, will attempt to negotiate a contract with Falcons vice president Jim Hay. That could be difficult, since Hebert rejected a two-year offer worth more than $6 million in New Orleans, and Miller's base salary for 1993 is $1.8 million.

MHS falls from 4-5A race

By Bill Price
Staff writer

Though the game was of singular peculiarity and convolution in form, the final result of Midland High's 6-3 baseball loss to Odessa High was easy enough to understand — the Bulldogs were eliminated from a possible playoff appearance Tuesday at Angels Stadium.

From the time OHS base runner Ryan Roman was called out at the plate and ejected for trying to run over MHS catcher Tim McLaughlin in the fourth inning — resulting in another ejection for Broncho head coach Milton Thompson after a perceived malediction made its way to umpirial ears — to a 10-minute discussion on the use of the OHS designated hitter, the game had an eerie feeling.

Then there was the undetected out-of-order Broncho at-bat in the sixth, OHS starter Erik Hartman taking a no-hitter into the fifth, and the constant woofing of the Broncho outfield in the latter innings. But hey, as the saying goes, that's baseball.

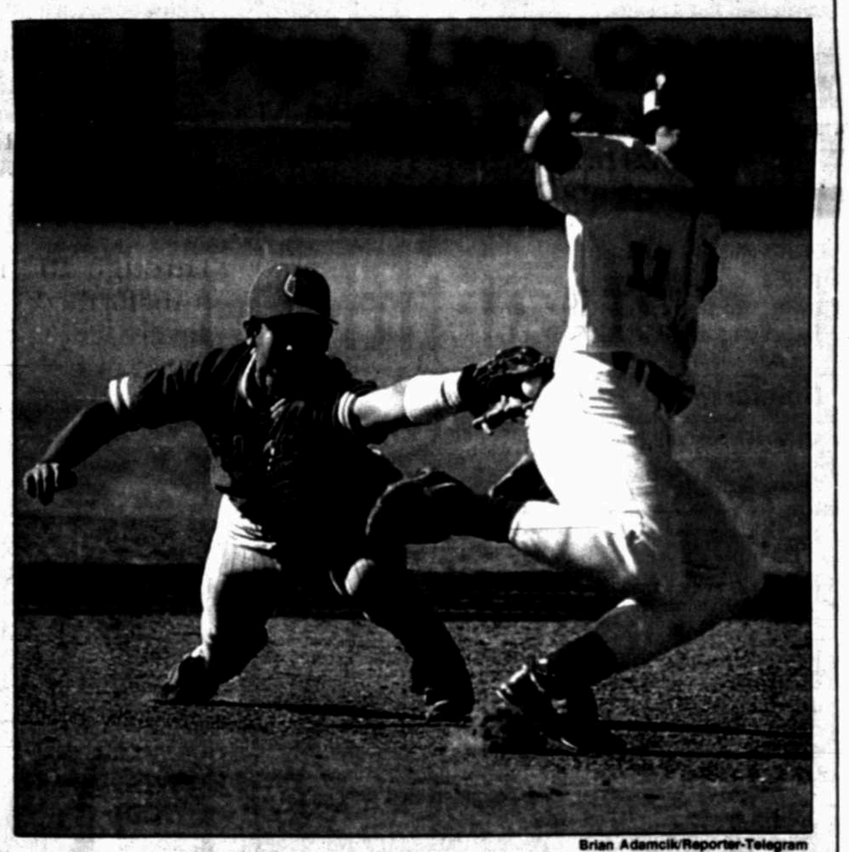

It's also a different kind of baseball for the Bronchos, who went winless in the first half of District 4-5A play but have knocked off Odessa Permian, San Angelo and MHS in the second half. And Hartman (1-2) had plenty to do with the victory.

Though MHS' Mike Melzer broke up Hartman's no-no with a two-out single in the fifth, his 6⅓-inning outing ended with only one earned run allowed on four hits.

"I knew I had a no-hitter in the fifth, but when he (Melzer) got his hit I turned to him and said 'good hit,'" Hartman said.

And the senior lefthander only be-

Montana now 'Chief'

By Doug Tucker
AP Sports Writer

KANSAS CITY, Mo. — Joe Montana is now a Kansas City Chief.

The saga surrounding the star quarterback ended Tuesday night when the San Francisco 49ers completed a deal with Kansas City.

"The Montana deal is done," said Jim Carr, assistant public relations director for the Chiefs.

Chiefs president and general manager Carl Peterson said he would have an announcement later Tuesday.

Terms of the trade weren't immediately available, but a source close to the 49ers said Montana, safety David Whitmore and a third-round draft pick in 1994 would be sent to Kansas City in exchange for the Chiefs' first-round pick, the 18th overall in next weekend's draft.

The Chiefs and 49ers had haggled over compensation for Montana, who led San Francisco to four Super Bowl title, since Montana made a second visit to Kansas City last Saturday and came to a tentative 3-year agreement.

The announcement ended a bizarre week during which the 49ers said Montana would be the club's "designated" starting quarterback over NFL MVP Steve Young, only to have Montana say he'd rather be traded to Kansas City rather than remain in San Francisco.

Peterson, in a statement issued before his news conference, said he reached an agreement with 49ers president Carmen Policy, and the trade will "include a second player and two draft

Carr, Jenkins meet on UH grid allegations

By Michael A. Lutz
AP Sports Writer

HOUSTON — Bill Carr's first appointment as the University of Houston's athletic director was to meet Tuesday with embattled football coach John Jenkins concerning allegations against the football program.

"I want to become aware with all that's happening with the football situation and all the details surrounding that so we can address that," Carr said.

"That simply happens to be the issue that must be addressed immediately. The entire process will be getting to know our coaches and meeting with our teams before the term is over."

Carr was named Friday by President Dr. James Pickering to replace Rudy Davalos, who resigned last Nov. 16 to become athletic director at the University of New Mexico.

Former players have accused Jenkins of requiring summer workouts and extending in-season workouts longer than the NCAA-mandated 20 hours per week. They also said Jenkins spliced pornographic material into game film to assure player attention.

Jenkins has denied breaking NCAA rules or showing pornography. He admitted that on several occasions bare-breasted women appeared in teaching films. He said the diversions were not pornographic.

Former walk-on Tim Woods last week said the Cougars were forced to work out in the summer time if they wanted a chance to play in the fall. Former guard Jeff Tait said the team once practiced during a lightning storm and worked overtime during practice.

Tait later said he had no proof the team worked longer than the limit but there was a perception that drills went overtime.

Carr, formerly athletic director at the University of Florida, said he would develop a five-year plan for the school's athletic program to bring respect to the school.

"If we don't work together, it won't happen," he said.

Harkey, Smith halt Houston

■ NL Roundup

CHICAGO — Mike Harkey pitched seven strong innings, and Dwight Smith had three hits and scored both runs, leading the Chicago Cubs to a 2-1 victory Tuesday night over the Houston Astros.

Mark Grace and Derrick May had RBI singles got Chicago.

Harkey (2-0) had his scoreless inning streak snapped at 14 1-3 when he issued a leadoff walk in the seventh to Craig Biggio, who later scored on Jeff Bagwell's double play grounder. Randy Myers, fourth Chicago pitcher, got his fourth save.

Harkey struck out out four and walked five in winning his sixth straight decision and raising his career mark against the Astros to 4-0 with a 0.96 ERA. Mark Portugal (1-1) gave up two runs on six hits and three walks in six innings, while striking out one.

Smith opened the Chicago first inning with a single and scored on May's single. It was May's 13th hit and 11th RBI in his last 30 at-bats (.433).

Chicago made it 2-0 in the third on Smith's leadoff double, a sacrifice by Rey Sanchez and Grace's single to left through a drawn-in infield. Grace has 11 RBIs in his last 12 games.

The Cubs won for the fourth time in five games. The Astros lost for only the third time in their last 10.

The Cubs have won three of four. Houston lost for only the second time in seven road games this year.

Gametime temperature was 36 degrees with a wind-chill of 11.

Braves 5, Marlins 4

MIAMI — Greg Maddux pitched well until the ninth inning, and helped himself with an RBI single as Atlanta Braves hung on to beat Florida.

He carried a 5-1 lead into the ninth, but Benito Santiago followed a leadoff double by Orestes Destrade with the first homer ever by a Marlin at Joe Robbie Stadium. Alex Arias hit his first career homer one out later to finish Maddux (2-1).

Mike Stanton came on to get his sixth save. Maddux worked 8 1-3 innings, allowing seven hits and three walks while striking out seven.

Ryan Bowen (1-1) walked the bases loaded to begin the fourth, and Mark Lemke drove in a run with a grounder. Maddux followed with a run-scoring single. One out later, Jeff Blauser hit an RBI grounder.

Florida scored in the second when Jeff Conine singled in Santiago, who had singled and stolen second.

Atlanta added two runs in the eighth. Lemke opened with a single, moved to second on a sacrifice by Maddux and to third on a wild pitch.

Reds 5, Pirates 0

PITTSBURGH — Tim Belcher pitched a three-hitter, and Barry Larkin continued his assault on slumping Pittsburgh with three hits and two RBIs.

Belcher (1-1) held the Pirates to three singles after allowing 14 hits and 10 earned runs over eight innings in his first two starts. He struck out nine and walked one, improving his career record against Pittsburgh to 9-4.

The Reds are 4-9 this season, but avoided matching their worst start since 1982. It was the first of their victories not decided by one run.

Belcher's last complete game and shutout was last May 10, 6-0 over Chicago.

Larkin, who left the game with a thumb injury in the seventh inning, also scored from second base on a passed ball as the Pirates lost their fourth consecutive game. Larkin, 14-for-28 against Pittsburgh last season, is now 8-for-11 in his career against Randy Tomlin (0-1).

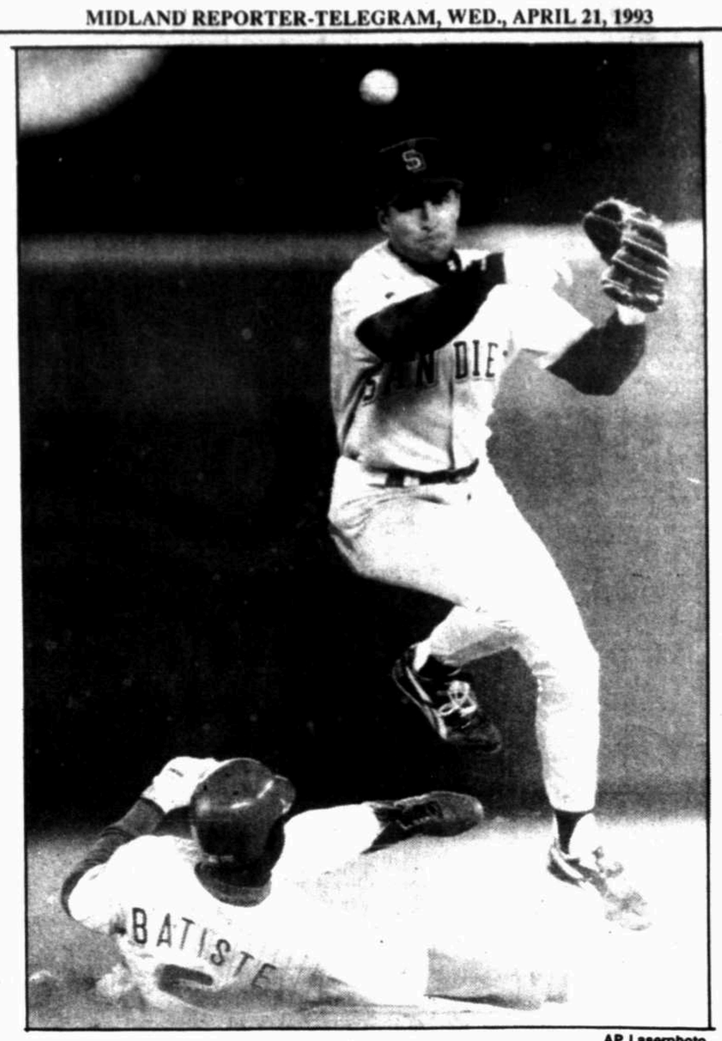

Tomlin sustained his first career loss in April. He had been 6-0 over the last two seasons in the first month.

Expos 7, Dodgers 3

MONTREAL — Torrid rookie Mike Lansing tied a club record with three doubles, and drove in four runs in support of Chris Nabholz as Montreal beat Los Angeles.

Lansing, who made the club out of spring training from Double-A, is hitting .418 with three homers and 14 RBIs.

Larry Walker added a two-run homer and rookie Wil Cordero a solo shot as the Expos raked Tom Candiotti (0-2) for six runs in 5⅓ innings.

Phillies 4, Padres 3 (14)

PHILADELPHIA — John Kruk hit his National League-leading fifth home run with two outs in the 14th inning, giving Philadelphia the victory after 4 hours, 27 minutes.

Jeremy Hernandez (0-2), the sixth Padres pitcher, struck out the first two batters. But Kruk connected on a 3-0 pitch.

Giants 4, Mets 1 (11)

NEW YORK — Barry Bonds hit a two-run homer in the Giants' three-run 11th inning, and San Francisco ended a six-game losing streak against New York.

Darren Lewis opened the 11th with a triple off Mike Maddux (0-1), the third New York pitcher. Will Clark singled to break a 1-1 tie, and one out later Bonds homered over the center field fence, his fourth this season.

Dave Righetti (1-0), pitched a hitless 10th. Rod Beck earned his fifth save, retiring all three batters in the 11th.

Bill Swift allowed only one hit through seven innings, striking out three and walking one. He retired the final 13 batters he faced before being lifted for a pinch-hitter in the eighth.

The Mets' Sid Fernandez had a National League season-high 14 strikeouts while limiting the Giants to three hits over eight innings. The left-hander who retired 10 straight at one point — five on strikeouts — now has fanned 10 or more 32 times in his career.

Cardinals 5, Rockies 0

ST. LOUIS — Rookie Rene Arocha — who left with a broken finger — won his third straight start, and St. Louis beat former Cardinal Bryn Smith and Colorado.

Arocha (3-0) allowed four hits and struck out five before leaving with a broken left little finger with two outs in the sixth. He was hurt when Dante Bichette's line drive tipped off his glove for an infield hit.

The Cardinals said the injury may require surgery. In his first three major-league starts, Arocha has allowed four runs in 21⅓ innings for a 1.66 ERA.

Tigers defeat Rangers, 3-1

Associated Press

■ AL Roundup

DETROIT — A game between two of baseball's top hitting teams turned into a pitcher's duel Tuesday night when David Wells led the Detroit Tigers past the Texas Rangers 3-1.

The Tigers began the day leading the majors in scoring with 92 runs in 12 games and Texas was tops with 17 home runs in 11 games.

But Detroit managed only five hits off Kenny Rogers (1-1) and one reliever and Texas had only four hits, including Dean Palmer's sixth homer, off four pitchers.

Wells (3-0), released by Toronto a week before opening day, made another strong start and reduced his ERA to 0.95. He shut out Texas until Palmer homered through a strong north wind with two outs in the seventh inning.

Wells worked seven innings, allowing three hits. He struck out six and walked one. Mike Henneman pitched the ninth, striking out Jose Canseco and Juan Gonzalez to start the inning, and got his third save.

Rogers (1-1), taking the place of injured Nolan Ryan in the Rangers rotation, allowed two hits in 6⅓ innings. He walked five and struck out six.

Rogers made his first career start against Detroit. In his previous 15 games against the Tigers, he had not allowed a run in 16⅔ innings.

With the score tied at 1, Mickey Tettleton started the Tigers seventh with a single and moved up on Chad Kreuter's sacrifice. Whitaker hit an RBI double and scored on Tony Phillips' single.

Texas nearly tied it in the eighth, but Rafael Palmeiro's two-out fly ball was caught at the fence by right fielder Rob Deer.

Detroit scored in the third when Alan Trammell walked, moved up on a sacrifice and Travis Fryman singled.

Twins 10, Brewers 0

MINNEAPOLIS — Dave Winfield hit a three-run homer in the first inning and Minnesot went on to rout Milwaukee.

Willie Banks (2-0) gave up six hits in 6⅓ innings and relievers Pat Mahomes and Brett Merriman finished the Twins' first shutout of the season. Banks struck out seven and walked two.

The Twins, who began the game tied for last in the American League with a .228 batting average, roughed up Jamie Navarro (0-1). Minnesota scored six runs in the first three innings and led 10-0 after the sixth.

Brian Harper hit a pair of RBI singles and Winfield scored three runs.

Navarro retired the first two batters in the first inning before Kirby Puckett singled. Kent Hrbek walked and Winfield hit his third home run of the season.

Navarro had an 0.75 ERA in his first two starts. Puckett singled home a run during a two-run second inning and Chuck Knoblauch hit an RBI double in a three-run fifth.

Royals 8, Blue Jays 2

KANSAS CITY, Mo. — Kevin Appier pitched a three-hitter and Kansas City beat Toronto for its first two-game winning streak of the season.

The Royals, whose 4-9 record is tied for the worst in the majors, set season highs with their eight runs and 16 hits. Felix Jose, who doubled twice, and Chris Gwynn each had three hits.

Appier (1-3) struck out eight. Todd Stottlemyre (2-1) gave up five runs in the first two innings.

Jose, batting .147, led off the first inning with a double and scored on Gwynn's single. Jose doubled again in the second and scored on another single by Gwynn.

White Sox 2, Orioles 1

BALTIMORE — Frank Thomas hit a sacrifice fly in the 14th inning and Chicago beat Baltimore.

Starter Wilson Alvarez and three relievers held the Orioles to one hit in the final eight innings. Chicago ended a three-game losing streak.

Joey Cora drew a leadoff walk in the 14th from Alan Mills (0-1) and advanced on a passed ball. Cora took third on Lance Johnson's single and scored on Thomas' fly to center field.

Donn Pall (1-1), the fourth Chicago pitcher, struck out the side in the 14th.

Baltimore had chances to win in the ninth and 10th innings against Roberto Hernandez. But Tim Hulett struck out with runners on first and second to end the ninth and pinch hitter Chito Martinez grounded out with runners on first and third to finish the 10th.

Bulls win Central title

Associated Press

■ NBA Roundup

CHICAGO — Michael Jordan scored 28 points and hit three 3-pointers in a 24-3 run at the start of the second half Tuesday night as the Chicago Bulls defeated the Philadelphia 76ers 123-94 to clinch first place in the Central Division.

The Bulls remained one game behind the New York Knicks for the best record in the Eastern Conference. The Knicks defeated Miami 109-97.

Clarence Weatherspoon led the 76ers with 17 points and Hersey Hawkins had 16, all in the first half. Trent Tucker finished with 16 for the Bulls.

Clippers 107, Mavericks 98

DALLAS — Ron Harper scored 22 points as Los Angeles snapped an eight-game road losing streak.

The Mavericks (9-70) failed in their second attempt to win their 10th game and break a tie with the 1972-73 Philadelphia 76ers for the fewest victories in a season.

Dallas gets another chance for win No. 10 in Denver on Wednesday night. Dallas beat Denver 99-86 at home on April 16 for its ninth victory.

Magic 105, Bullets 86

ORLANDO, Fla. — Shaquille O'Neal had his seventh game with at least 20 points and 20 rebounds and Orlando stayed in contention for its first playoff berth.

The victory moved the Magic within one game of eighth-place Indiana in the race for the last Eastern Conference playoff spot. The Pacers started the night tied with the Hawks for the seventh-best record in the East, but fell into eighth place after a 111-102 loss at Atlanta.

Hawks 111, Pacers 102

ATLANTA — Kevin Willis scored 10 of his 31 points during a 23-4 fourth-quarter run that carried Atlanta over Indiana.

In snapping a three-game losing streak, Atlanta moved out of a tie with the Pacers for seventh place in the Eastern Conference playoff race with three games remaining for both teams.

It was the first loss in four games for the Pacers, who had only two field goals in the first 11 minutes of the final period.

Cavaliers 105, Pistons 81

RICHFIELD, Ohio — Former Odessa College player Craig Ehlo opened the game with a 3-pointer and Cleveland never let up, beating Detroit for its ninth straight win.

The loss left the Pistons on the verge of missing the playoffs for the first time in 10 seasons. With three games left to play, Detroit has the tenth-best record in the Eastern Conference and is two games back in the battle for the final playoff berth.

Knicks 109, Heat 97

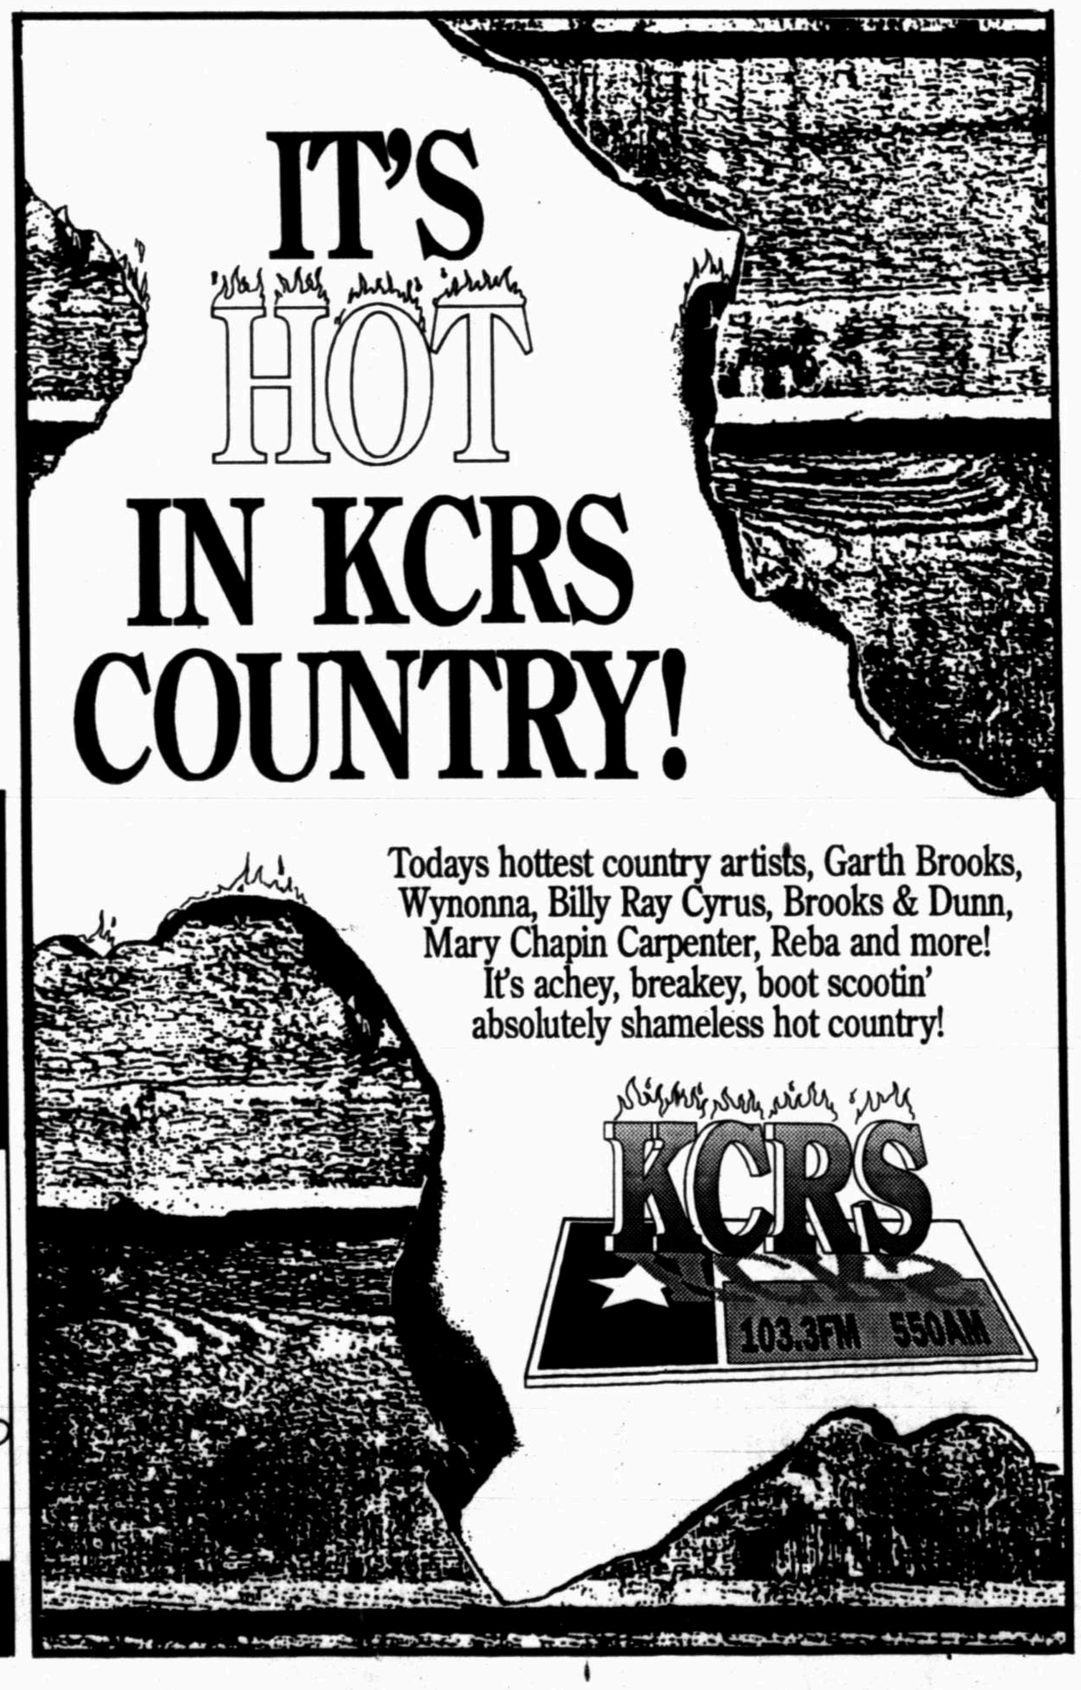

MIAMI — Charles Smith scored a season-high 36 points and New York limited Miami to 34 percent shooting in a foul-filled victory.

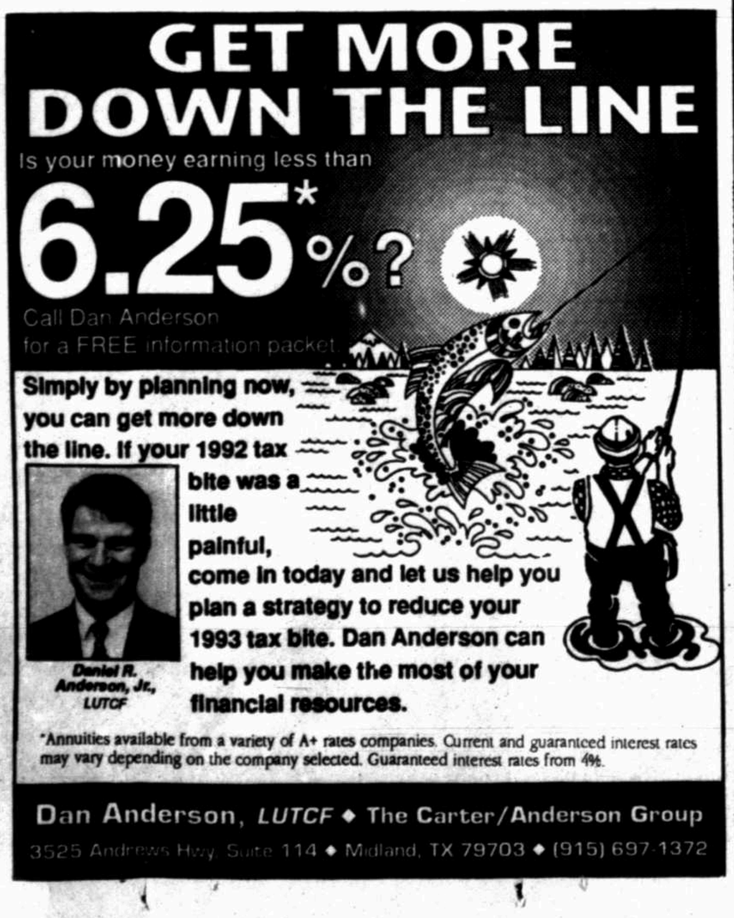

The win kept the Knicks in first place in the Eastern Conference. They began the night with a one-game lead over Chicago, which plays at New York in the final regular-season game Sunday.

Lakers 107, Timberwolves 95

MINNEAPOLIS — The young guard trio of Anthony Peeler, Doug Christie and Tony Smith helped Los Angeles pull away in the fourth quarter for a victory over Minnesota, the Timberwolves' 10th consecutive loss.

Peeler, the team's No. 1 draft pick, had been listed as questionable with a hip pointer but scored five of his 18 points during a 7-0 run that gave the Lakers an 88-80 lead with 6½ minutes to go. Minnesota got no closer than six points the rest of the way.

Becker makes early exit

MONTE CARLO, Monaco (AP) — Boris Becker made another early exit from a clay-court tournament and looked to the future as he lost to Olympic champion Marc Rosset at the Monte Carlo Open.

Rosset, of Switzerland, beat the three-time Wimbledon champion 7-6 (7-3), 6-3. Stefan Edberg, the top seed, came from behind to beat France's Henri Leconte in a second-round match, 3-6, 7-5, 6-1.

Andrei Medvedev of Ukraine continued his hot clay-court play with a 6-4, 6-0 victory over Tom Nijssen of the Netherlands.

Becker lost in the second round of the Nice tournament last week, when he returned to the circuit after almost two months battling viral infections.

"The problem is that I didn't play a tournament in seven, eight weeks," Becker said. "My problem now is that I start again on clay which, even if I am in good shape, it is a bit harder for me than on any other court."

Becker looked ahead to more clay court play.

Mark Grace and Derrick May had RBI singles got Chicago.

Harkey (2-0) had his scoreless inning streak snapped at 14 1-3 when he issued a leadoff walk in the seventh to Craig Biggio, who later scored on Jeff Bagwell's double play grounder. Randy Myers, fourth Chicago pitcher, got his fourth save.

Harkey struck out out four and walked five in winning his sixth straight decision and raising his career mark against the Astros to 4-0 with a 0.96 ERA. Mark Portugal (1-1) gave up two runs on six hits and three walks in six innings, while striking out one.

Smith opened the Chicago first inning with a single and scored on May's single. It was May's 13th hit and 11th RBI in his last 30 at-bats (.433).

Chicago made it 2-0 in the third on Smith's leadoff double, a sacrifice by Rey Sanchez and Grace's single to left through a drawn-in infield. Grace has 11 RBIs in his last 12 games.

The Cubs won for the fourth time in five games. The Astros lost for only the third time in their last 10.

Braves 5, Marlins 4

MIAMI — Greg Maddux pitched well until the ninth inning, and helped himself with an RBI single as Atlanta Braves hung on to beat Florida.

He carried a 5-1 lead into the ninth, but Benito Santiago followed a leadoff double by Orestes Destrade with the first homer ever by a Marlin at Joe Robbie Stadium. Alex Arias hit his first career homer one out later to finish Maddux (2-1).

Mike Stanton came on to get his sixth save. Maddux worked 8 1-3 innings, allowing seven hits and three walks while striking out seven.

Ryan Bowen (1-1) walked the bases loaded to begin the fourth, and Mark Lemke drove in a run with a grounder. Maddux followed with a run-scoring single. One out later, Jeff Blauser hit an RBI grounder.

Florida scored in the second when Jeff Conine singled in Santiago, who had singled and stolen second.

Atlanta added two runs in the eighth. Lemke opened with a single, moved to second on a sacrifice by Maddux and to third on a wild pitch.

Reds 5, Pirates 0

PITTSBURGH — Tim Belcher pitched a three-hitter, and Barry Larkin continued his assault on slumping Pittsburgh with three hits and two RBIs.

Belcher (1-1) held the Pirates to three singles after allowing 14 hits and 10 earned runs over eight innings in his first two starts. He struck out nine and walked one, improving his career record against Pittsburgh to 9-4.

The Reds are 4-9 this season, but avoided matching their worst start since 1982. It was the first of their victories not decided by one run.

Belcher's last complete game and shutout was last May 10, 6-0 over Chicago.

Larkin, who left the game with a thumb injury in the seventh inning, also scored from second base on a passed ball as the Pirates lost their fourth consecutive game. Larkin, 14-for-28 against Pittsburgh last season, is now 8-for-11 in his career against Randy Tomlin (0-1).

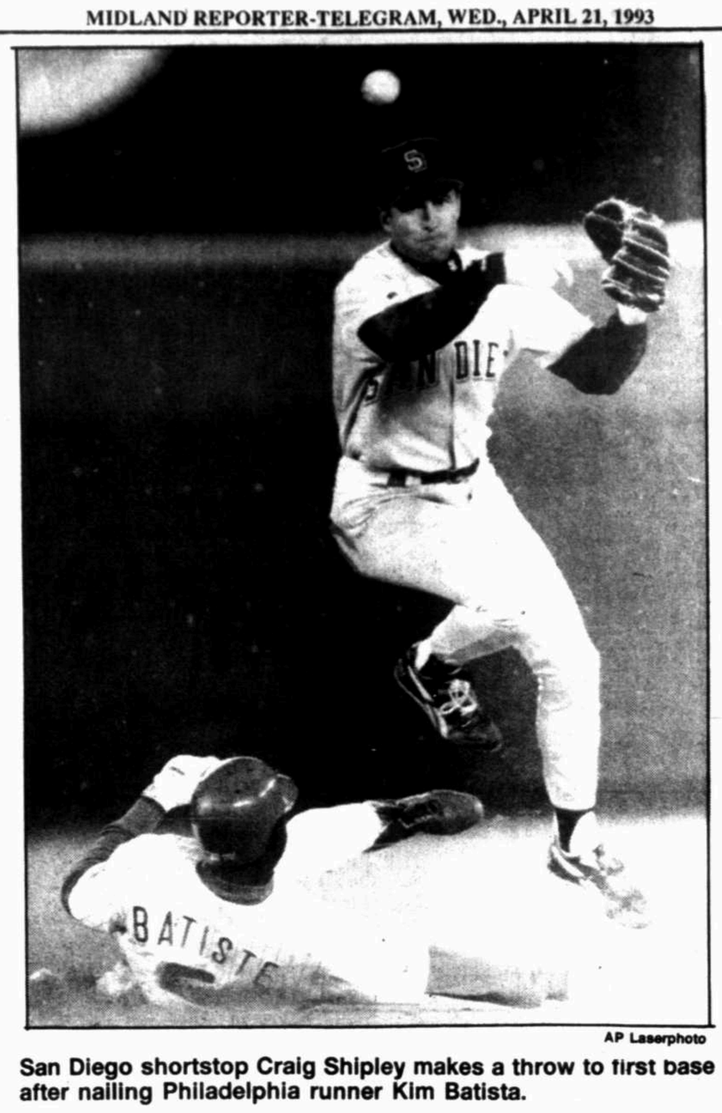

Tomlin sustained his first career loss in April. He had been 6-0 over the last two seasons in the first month.

Expos 7, Dodgers 3

MONTREAL — Torrid rookie Mike Lansing tied a club record with three doubles, and drove in four runs in support of Chris Nabholz as Montreal beat Los Angeles.

Giants 4, Mets 1 (11)

NEW YORK — Barry Bonds hit a two-run homer in the Giants' three-run 11th inning, and San Francisco ended a six-game losing streak against New York.

Darren Lewis opened the 11th with a triple off Mike Maddux (0-1), the third New York pitcher. Will Clark singled to break a 1-1 tie, and one out later Bonds homered over the center field fence, his fourth this season.

Dave Righetti (1-0), pitched a hitless 10th. Rod Beck earned his fifth save, retiring all three batters in the 11th.

Bill Swift allowed only one hit through seven innings, striking out three and walking one. He retired the final 13 batters he faced before being lifted for a pinch-hitter in the eighth.

The Mets' Sid Fernandez had a National League season-high 14 strikeouts while limiting the Giants to three hits over eight innings. The left-hander who retired 10 straight at one point — five on strikeouts — now has fanned 10 or more 32 times in his career.

Cardinals 5, Rockies 0

ST. LOUIS — Rookie Rene Arocha — who left with a broken finger — won his third straight start, and St. Louis beat former Cardinal Bryn Smith and Colorado.

Arocha (3-0) allowed four hits and struck out five before leaving with a broken left little finger with two outs in the sixth. He was hurt when Dante Bichette's line drive tipped off his glove for an infield hit.

The Cardinals said the injury may require surgery. In his first three major-league starts, Arocha has allowed four runs in 21⅓ innings for a 1.66 ERA.

Tigers defeat Rangers, 3-1

Associated Press

■ AL Roundup

DETROIT — A game between two of baseball's top hitting teams turned into a pitcher's duel Tuesday night when David Wells led the Detroit Tigers past the Texas Rangers 3-1.

The Tigers began the day leading the majors in scoring with 92 runs in 12 games and Texas was tops with 17 home runs in 11 games.

But Detroit managed only five hits off Kenny Rogers (1-1) and one reliever and Texas had only four hits, including Dean Palmer's sixth homer, off four pitchers.

Wells (3-0), released by Toronto a week before opening day, made another strong start and reduced his ERA to 0.95. He shut out Texas until Palmer homered through a strong north wind with two outs in the seventh inning.

Wells worked seven innings, allowing three hits. He struck out six and walked one. Mike Henneman pitched the ninth, striking out Jose Canseco and Juan Gonzalez to start the inning, and got his third save.

Rogers (1-1), taking the place of injured Nolan Ryan in the Rangers rotation, allowed two hits in 6⅓ innings. He walked five and struck out six.

Rogers made his first career start against Detroit. In his previous 15 games against the Tigers, he had not allowed a run in 16⅔ innings.

With the score tied at 1, Mickey Tettleton started the Tigers seventh with a single and moved up on Chad Kreuter's sacrifice. Whitaker hit an RBI double and scored on Tony Phillips' single.

Texas nearly tied it in the eighth, but Rafael Palmeiro's two-out fly ball was caught at the fence by right fielder Rob Deer.

Detroit scored in the third when Alan Trammell walked, moved up on a sacrifice and Travis Fryman singled.

Twins 10, Brewers 0

MINNEAPOLIS — Dave Winfield hit a three-run homer in the first inning and Minnesot went on to rout Milwaukee.

Willie Banks (2-0) gave up six hits in 6⅓ innings and relievers Pat Mahomes and Brett Merriman finished the Twins' first shutout of the season. Banks struck out seven and walked two.

The Twins, who began the game tied for last in the American League with a .228 batting average, roughed up Jamie Navarro (0-1). Minnesota scored six runs in the first three innings and led 10-0 after the sixth.

Brian Harper hit a pair of RBI singles and Winfield scored three runs.

Navarro retired the first two batters in the first inning before Kirby Puckett singled. Kent Hrbek walked and Winfield hit his third home run of the season.

Navarro had an 0.75 ERA in his first two starts. Puckett singled home a run during a two-run second inning and Chuck Knoblauch hit an RBI double in a three-run fifth.

Royals 8, Blue Jays 2

KANSAS CITY, Mo. — Kevin Appier pitched a three-hitter and Kansas City beat Toronto for its first two-game winning streak of the season.

The Royals, whose 4-9 record is tied for the worst in the majors, set season highs with their eight runs and 16 hits. Felix Jose, who doubled twice, and Chris Gwynn each had three hits.

Appier (1-3) struck out eight. Todd Stottlemyre (2-1) gave up five runs in the first two innings.

Jose, batting .147, led off the first inning with a double and scored on Gwynn's single. Jose doubled again in the second and scored on another single by Gwynn.

White Sox 2, Orioles 1

BALTIMORE — Frank Thomas hit a sacrifice fly in the 14th inning and Chicago beat Baltimore.

Starter Wilson Alvarez and three relievers held the Orioles to one hit in the final eight innings. Chicago ended a three-game losing streak.

Joey Cora drew a leadoff walk in the 14th from Alan Mills (0-1) and advanced on a passed ball. Cora took third on Lance Johnson's single and scored on Thomas' fly to center field.

Donn Pall (1-1), the fourth Chicago pitcher, struck out the side in the 14th.

Baltimore had chances to win in the ninth and 10th innings against Roberto Hernandez. But Tim Hulett struck out with runners on first and second to end the ninth and pinch hitter Chito Martinez grounded out with runners on first and third to finish the 10th.

Bulls win Central title

Associated Press

■ NBA Roundup

CHICAGO — Michael Jordan scored 28 points and hit three 3-pointers in a 24-3 run at the start of the second half Tuesday night as the Chicago Bulls defeated the Philadelphia 76ers 123-94 to clinch first place in the Central Division.

The Bulls remained one game behind the New York Knicks for the best record in the Eastern Conference. The Knicks defeated Miami 109-97.

Clarence Weatherspoon led the 76ers with 17 points and Hersey Hawkins had 16, all in the first half. Trent Tucker finished with 16 for the Bulls.

Clippers 107, Mavericks 98

DALLAS — Ron Harper scored 22 points as Los Angeles snapped an eight-game road losing streak.

The Mavericks (9-70) failed in their second attempt to win their 10th game and break a tie with the 1972-73 Philadelphia 76ers for the fewest victories in a season.

Dallas gets another chance for win No. 10 in Denver on Wednesday night. Dallas beat Denver 99-86 at home on April 16 for its ninth victory.

Magic 105, Bullets 86

ORLANDO, Fla. — Shaquille O'Neal had his seventh game with at least 20 points and 20 rebounds and Orlando stayed in contention for its first playoff berth.

The victory moved the Magic within one game of eighth-place Indiana in the race for the last Eastern Conference playoff spot. The Pacers started the night tied with the Hawks for the seventh-best record in the East, but fell into eighth place after a 111-102 loss at Atlanta.

O'Neal had 20 points and 25 rebounds — his second straight 20-20 game — and Nick Anderson scored 30 as the Magic, chasing Indiana and Atlanta for a postseason berth, never trailed against the Bullets.

Hawks 111, Pacers 102

ATLANTA — Kevin Willis scored 10 of his 31 points during a 23-4 fourth-quarter run that carried Atlanta over Indiana.

In snapping a three-game losing streak, Atlanta moved out of a tie with the Pacers for seventh place in the Eastern Conference playoff race with three games remaining for both teams.

It was the first loss in four games for the Pacers, who had only two field goals in the first 11 minutes of the final period.

Cavaliers 105, Pistons 81

RICHFIELD, Ohio — Former Odessa College player Craig Ehlo opened the game with a 3-pointer and Cleveland never let up, beating Detroit for its ninth straight win.

The loss left the Pistons on the verge of missing the playoffs for the first time in 10 seasons. With three games left to play, Detroit has the tenth-best record in the Eastern Conference and is two games back in the battle for the final playoff berth.

Knicks 109, Heat 97

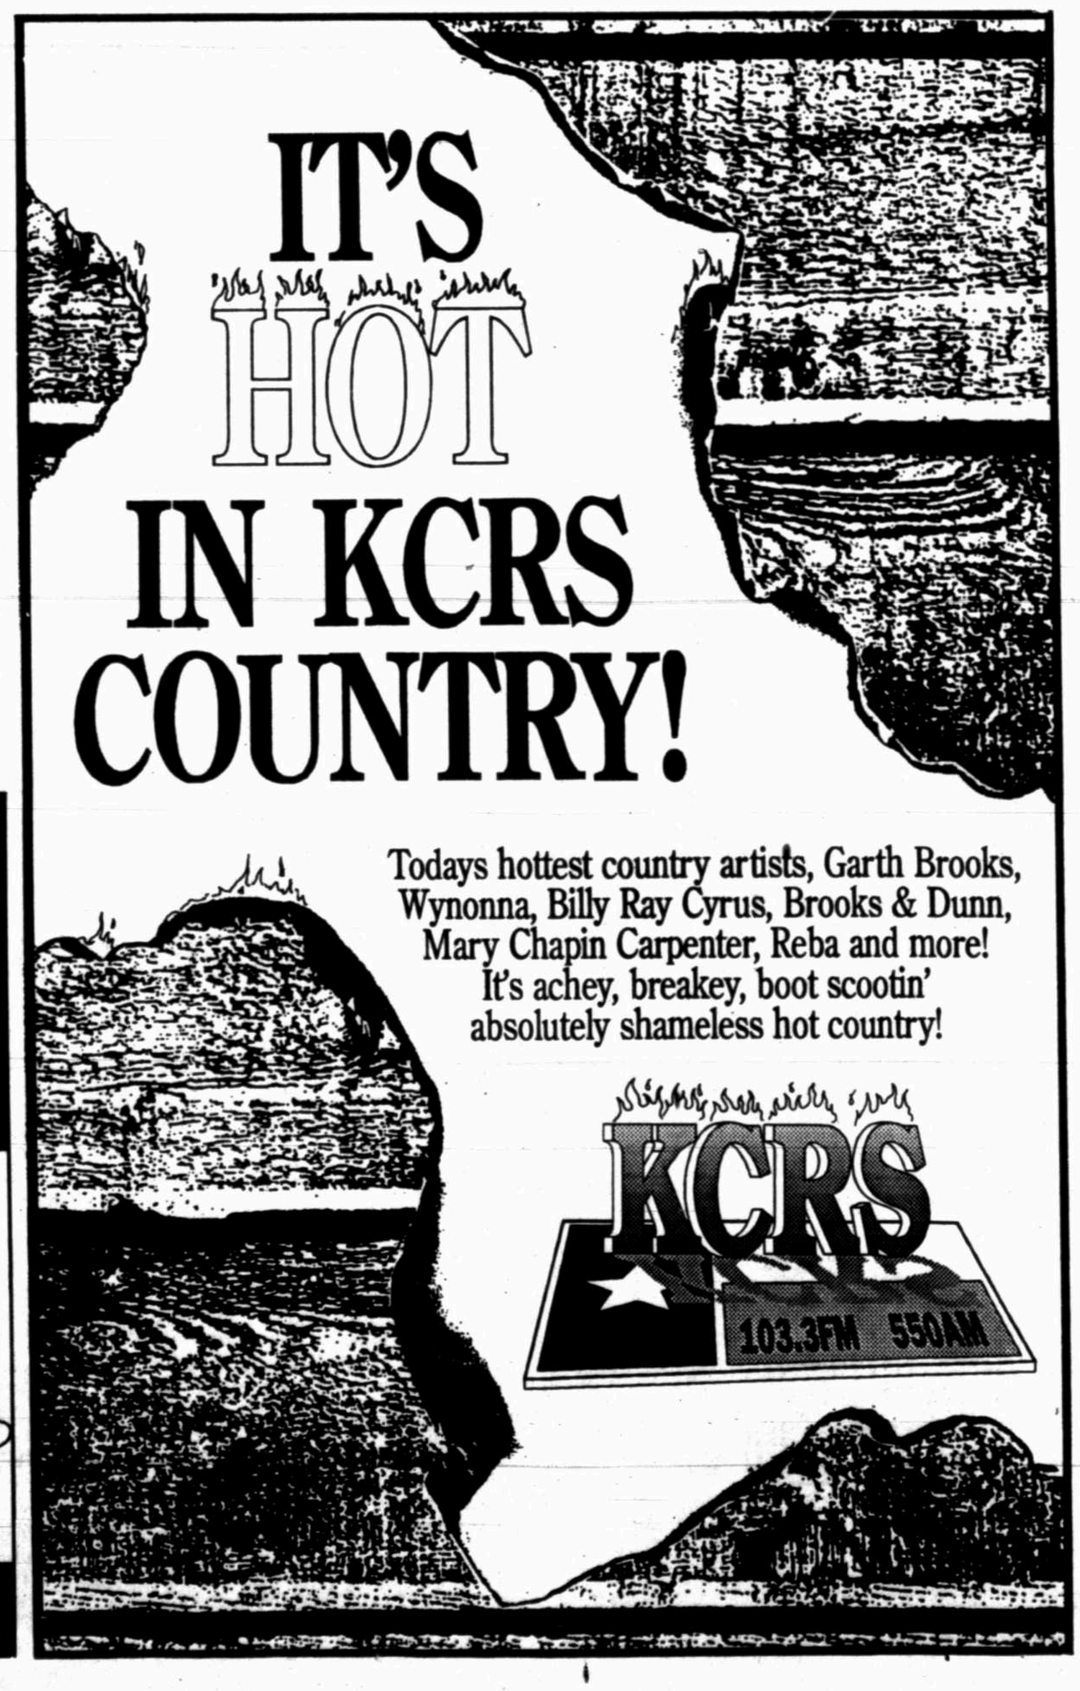

MIAMI — Charles Smith scored a season-high 36 points and New York limited Miami to 34 percent shooting in a foul-filled victory.

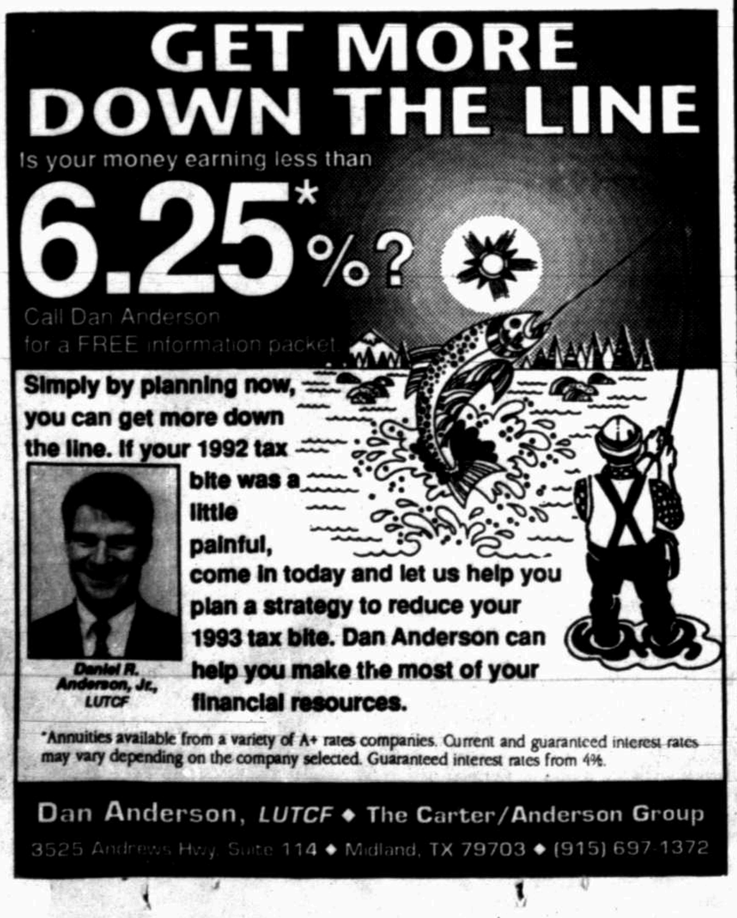

The win kept the Knicks in first place in the Eastern Conference. They began the night with a one-game lead over Chicago, which plays at New York in the final regular-season game Sunday.

Lakers 107, Timberwolves 95

MINNEAPOLIS — The young guard trio of Anthony Peeler, Doug Christie and Tony Smith helped Los Angeles pull away in the fourth quarter for a victory over Minnesota, the Timberwolves' 10th consecutive loss.

Peeler, the team's No. 1 draft pick, had been listed as questionable with a hip pointer but scored five of his 18 points during a 7-0 run that gave the Lakers an 88-80 lead with 6½ minutes to go. Minnesota got no closer than six points the rest of the way.

Becker makes early exit

MONTE CARLO, Monaco (AP) — Boris Becker made another early exit from a clay-court tournament and looked to the future as he lost to Olympic champion Marc Rosset at the Monte Carlo Open.

Rosset, of Switzerland, beat the three-time Wimbledon champion 7-6 (7-3), 6-3. Stefan Edberg, the top seed, came from behind to beat France's Henri Leconte in a second-round match, 3-6, 7-5, 6-1.

Andrei Medvedev of Ukraine continued his hot clay-court play with a 6-4, 6-0 victory over Tom Nijssen of the Netherlands.

Becker lost in the second round of the Nice tournament last week, when he returned to the circuit after almost two months battling viral infections.

"The problem is that I didn't play a tournament in seven, eight weeks," Becker said. "My problem now is that I start again on clay which, even if I am in good shape, it is a bit harder for me than on any other court."

Becker looked ahead to more clay court play.

MHS: OHS on a roll

(From 1C)

came less effective after Chad Benson's liner ricocheted off the inside of Hartman's right knee with one out in the sixth.

"At first it shook me. That's when I started throwing the ball high. It was because I was too shaky. It's one of the strangest games I ever been in. I never seen so much delay because of mess ups or ejections," Hartman added.

The longest delay came after the ejections of Roman and Thompson, when OHS inserted DH Nicky Canava at third base for Roman and tried to let Hartman (who Canava was the DH for) hit in Roman's batting spot. MHS head coach Rick Wood questioned the move that was vaguely resolved after the officials checked a rule book from the OHS dugout.

"That's a rules interpretation. I've got it underlined in yellow in my rule book because it happened to me a couple of years ago," Thompson said.

"I though you could only put the DH in the defensive lineup for the player he was hitting for. But that's not the way it was interpreted today," Wood said.

As for the game itself, OHS (6-15 overall, 3-8 in 4-5A) took a 2-0 lead in the second as Daryl Shields hit an RBI single and Roman drew a bases-loaded walk. The Bronchos scored their other four runs in the fourth inning, sending MHS starter Tim Beard (0-2) off the mound to be replaced by Joe Urquidez.

The Bulldogs (7-13, 3-7) scored all three of the runs in the last two innings, when three OHS errors accounting for two unearned runs. After MHS scored its run in the seventh, Nate Patton came from behind the plate to pick up his second save of the season.

"It's the kids. They're the ones who have turned it around. In their defense, they played well in the other ball games too, but we just committed too many errors to win," Thompson said.

"I was disappointed in the way we started the game. We had our dinner set on the table (MHS stranded 10 base runners) and we didn't take it. But you have also got to give Milt and his kids credit for taking the game the way they did," Wood said.

"To our credit, we came back in the last couple of innings. But you can't fall behind like that on a consistent basis and win."

Rebels vault into playoffs

ODESSA — Midland Lee's baseball Rebels laid claim to a playoff berth here Tuesday, as Lee defeated Odessa Permian 8-0 behind Kirk Ulrich's one-hit shutout.

Ulrich threw a complete game while striking out 13 Panthers and walking none, as the Rebels (21-4 overall, 9-2 in District 4-5A) nailed down at least a second-place finish in the district.

While Permian was committing seven errors, Lee mounted plenty of offense to take the win anyway. Senior first baseman Sean McIntosh smashed his fourth home run of the season on his way to a 3-for-4 day at the plate, scoring three runs and driving in two. Also, David Galvan (2-for-5) and Chris Connally hit doubles for Lee.

Permian now stands at 9-11 overall and 5-5 in district, one game behind third place San Angelo.

The Rebels will take a day off Saturday before returning to action in the regular season finale next Tuesday against first-place Abilene Cooper at Lee's Johnson Field. The Rebels can tie Cooper (9-1 in district) for the 4-5A championship with a victory.

Staff report

WICHITA, Kan. — In a game that saw Midland turn a triple play, Wichita came from one run back in the bottom of the 13th inning for a 3-2 victory over the Angels here Tuesday night.

Despite the triple play that Midland's Kevin Davis started in the 10th inning, and despite Davis' two-out RBI single in the top of the 13th that broke a 1-1 tie, the Wranglers were able to score two runs in the bottom of the 13th.

The Angels got on the board first with Brian Grebeck's third home run in as many games in the first.

Then in the top of the 13th Midland's Luis Raven hit a one-out double to left-center field. Emmitt Cohick was hit by a Nick Felix pitch and Mark Brakebill reached on a fielder's choice that saw Cohick put out at second 4-6. But the play also put Raven on third base with two away. Davis then came up and hit a single to center field to score Raven.

In the bottom of the 13th, Midland releiver Jose Musset gave up a game-tying triple to Duane Hosey with one out. After Midland intentionally walked Paul Gonzalez to set up a double play, Mark Gieseke hit a hit hopper to Grebeck at second base, but the ball was too high to turn a double play and Hosey scored to end the game.

The statement did not elaborate.

"Obviously we are pleased to finish the last aspect of acquiring Joe Montana to what we hope will be three exciting years for the Kansas City Chiefs," Peterson said.

Chiefs coach Marty Schottenheimer, quoted in the release, said: "Our offensive coaches are going to be busy, but we think he will obviously give this organization an opportunity to improve."

One of the offensive coaches is Paul Hackett, who was offensive coordinator with the 49ers when Montana led the team to four Super Bowl titles.

The 49ers said they will hold their own news conference Wednesday in Santa Clara, Calif., with Montana and 49ers' owner Edward DeBartolo, Jr. to attend.

"Both teams are pleased that the matter has reached a conclusion on terms that they feel are fair and reasonable," Policy said.

Montana lost his job to Young during a two-year recovery from an elbow injury. He has played only 30 minutes of football the last two seasons.

On April 7, after the 49ers had re-signed Steve Bono as Young's nominal backup, Montana was deemed expendable and the club gave him permission to shop around for another team.

Last Friday, Montana agreed in principle on a 3-year contract with Kansas City, ending a two-week search. But the 49ers blocked the move, complaining the Chiefs hadn't offered enough compensation. Then the issue was further clouded when the team offered Montana his old starting job.

That tactic was seen by some as a calculated effort to drive up Kansas City's bid to bring it into line with one from the Phoenix Cardinals, who proposed giving San Francisco a first-round draft pick in return for Montana.

"The offer that was made to Joe Montana to be the starting quarterback was a sincere, open, honest offer," Seifert said.

JAMES DEVENPORT
CITY COUNCIL, DISTRICT 1
Pol. Adv. Pd. for by Committee To Elect James Devenport, 500 W. Wall, Suite 306, Midland, TX 79701, Elsie Hugly, Treasurer

Dear Neighbors,
Serving as your City Councilman these past two years has been a privilege. In that time we've seen many improvements, but there's more work to be done. It's the kind of work I enjoy.
On issues which have faced the City Council, the concerns of Midlanders have been reflected by my votes. I have voted and will continue to vote for spending restraint and a balanced budget, avoiding tax increases, and investing in necessary drainage improvements and other city services.
The need for new and expanded industry still is with us. My goal is to help create the climate for economic growth and creation of employment opportunities.
I know you share my concerns for the future of our city. We have the resources if wisely managed.
As residents of Midland for over 30 years, Judy and I care about the quality of life in Midland, and have long supported community and civic affairs. I am eager to continue my work with the City Administration to make Midland a better place to live, and will commit the time necessary to acomplish that goal.
Sincerely,
James Devenport

Pens stage scoring binge against Devils

Associated Press

■ NHL Playoffs

PITTSBURGH — The Pittsburgh Penguins set their second NHL record winning streak in 11 days, burying New Jersey with six goals in little more than a period to beat the Devils 7-0 Tuesday night for their 13th consecutive playoff victory.

The Penguins — already establishing themselves as the early Stanley Cup favorite — broke the Edmonton Oilers' 1984-85 record of 12 consecutive playoff victories while remaining unbeaten in 20 games (19-0-1) since March 5. They won a league-record 17 games in a row before tying their final regular-season game against New Jersey.

Ron Francis had four assists, Shawn McEachern scored twice and Mario Lemieux scored shorthanded for his third goal in two games as the defending Stanley Cup champion Penguins took a 2-0 lead in the Patrick Division semifinal series. Game 3 will be Thursday in the Meadowlands.

Just as they did in winning 6-3 in Game 1 on Sunday, the Penguins did it with offense, offense and more offense. Goaltender Tom Barrasso also was considerably sharper than in the opener, turning away 36 shots for his third career playoff shutout.

Devils coach Herb Brooks' game plan was to play a tight checking game to contain the explosive Penguins' big guns of Lemieux and Co. and keep Pittsburgh's No. 2-ranked power play off the ice. The strategy worked — for 15 minutes.

McEachern scored at 15:09 of the first, taking Ron Francis' pass from the right circle to flip the puck past goaltender Chris Terreri from the slot.

The rout was on.

Sabres 4, Bruins 0

BOSTON — Grant Fuhr stopped 34 shots and Buffalo smothered Boston's attack with superb forechecking to beat the Bruins and take a 2-0 lead in their Adams Division playoff series.

Wayne Presley, Randy Wood, Alexander Mogilny and Dale Hawerchuk scored for the Sabres, who head home for the next two games in the best-of-7 series.

Fuhr, who made several acrobatic saves in Sunday's 5-4 overtime victory to open the series, had an easier night Tuesday. Though the Bruins outshot the Sabres, many of the shots were from long distance and the Buffalo defense prevented Boston from mounting any sustained pressure.

Nordiques 4, Canadiens 1

QUEBEC — Scott Young scored twice in the first period as Quebec beat Montreal in an Adams Division playoff series.

The victory gave Quebec a 2-0 lead in the best-of-7 series, which moves to Montreal for Game 3 on Thursday and Game 4 on Saturday.

The Nordiques stormed out with 18 first-period shots and three goals with Young's pair and another goal from Curtis Leschyshyn.

Cincinnati businessman DeWitt ready to buy Orioles

BALTIMORE (AP) — A lawyer for Baltimore Orioles owner Eli Jacobs said Tuesday a group of investors led by Cincinnati businessman William DeWitt is ready to close the deal and buy the team.

"We're very much along in completing a sale to the DeWitt group," New York attorney Robert Drain said. "I'd say we're at the very end of negotiations. ... An announcement should come within two weeks."

For the past several months, Jacobs has been negotiating with the DeWitt group. Having entered into Chapter 11 bankruptcy in a New York court Monday, Jacobs now has no choice but to sell the team to pay some debts.

Jacobs and DeWitt have not publicly acknowledged their negotiations for the club.

Dewitt did not return a telephone call from The Associated Press on Tuesday. Jacobs declined comment on the bankruptcy filing and the pending sale of the team, said spokesman Jeff Taufield.

That should not be a long time coming, he said.

Opening lead: Queen of ◇

It is not always easy to spot the extra chances available. And when you do, it is essential to test the priorities in the right order, to make sure you get to try them all.

Once North could raise spades, South became interested in game. To allow North to judge which values would be working, South made a game try in a suit where help was needed—clubs. With a maximum raise and a top honor in clubs, North had no problem about accepting.

At the table, declarer won the opening diamond lead in hand and immediately played off the ace and queen of spades, to learn the bad news. South continued by cashing the king and ace of clubs and conceding a club. West won and led another trump and in the fullness of time declarer had to lose a trump, another club and two hearts—down two.

Once trumps are 4-1 declarer is no favorite. Yet better timing could have landed the contract.

Since declarer must concede a club, correct technique is to do so immediately by playing a low club from hand at trick two and ducking in dummy. East wins and returns a trump, as good a defense as any. Declarer takes the king in hand, crosses to the queen of trumps and, on learning of the bad trump division, abandons trumps in favor of ruffing a diamond.

Now declarer can cash the king and ace of clubs. Although the suit doesn't break, declarer is lucky enough to find West with the long clubs. That permits declarer to ruff in dummy, ruff another diamond and cash the aces of spades and hearts for 10 tricks in all. Declarer scores three high trumps, three ruffs, two red aces and two club tricks.

Quayle: Now that he has private life, he can eat at Dairy Queen

INDIANAPOLIS — Dan Quayle was greeted with cheers Tuesday as he returned to Indiana for the first time since leaving office.

Travelers welcomed the former vice president as he stepped off a commercial flight with his wife, Marilyn Tucker Quayle.

Quayle said he wants to keep a low profile.

"I can go to the Dairy Queen, I can go to the movies," he said of his life as private citizen. "I enjoy doing everyday things like taking the kids to school."

Asked about his political future, he said, "I think the only job I'd be interested in pursuing is (U.S. president)."

But for now, Quayle said, "I need a little time out."

Quayle was recently named a trustee at the Hudson Institute, a conservative think tank. He said he'll move back to his home state in mid-June when his children are out of school.

NEW YORK — Deborah Norville is helping promote an all-women event to raise awareness — and money — for the medical fight against breast cancer.

Norville

Norville, a correspondent for CBS' "Street Stories" and contributing editor at McCall's magazine, will co-chair the Susan G. Komen Breast Cancer Foundation Race for the Cure in Vermont Aug. 1.

"I am proud to be involved with such a worthwhile event that not only brings families and women together to support this critical cause, but also provides recognition and awareness to an issue of great importance to all women," Norville said in a statement Tuesday.

The 5-kilometer race in Manchester, Vt., will raise funds for breast cancer research, screening, education and treatment programs.

Norville, formerly a host on NBC's "Today," won an Emmy in 1989 for her reporting on the fall of communism in Romania.

NASHVILLE, Tenn. — David Letterman said the loss of NBC and parent company General Electric as foils for gags won't make his new CBS talk show less funny.

In spite of his frequent pot shots, Letterman said Tuesday he was "always happy at NBC."

"Granted, at any daily job, there may be things that upset you, wherever you work," he said during a promotional stop. "But overall my life at NBC was not fueled and perpetuated by anger."

Letterman was lured away by CBS with more money and the promise of the 10:30 p.m. CDT time slot, where he will compete against NBC's "The Tonight Show." His current "Late Night With David Letterman" airs at 11:30 p.m. CDT on NBC.

Members of the Yale class of 1951 who assembled in Washington over the weekend for what was billed as a mini-reunion, enjoyed a rare experience when they went to the Supreme Court.

O'Connor

They spent an hour learning how it works — from Justice Sandra Day O'Connor.

O'Connor described everything from how the seating arrangement is determined (by seniority) to the volume of reading she must do (1,500 pages a day) to how much orientation newly sworn-in members of the court get (none).

In her first days there, she recalled, "I found myself sitting on the floor with my four clerks facing thousands of writs of certiorari, and trying to figure out what to do."

The Yale alumni also learned from John W. Eden, chairman of the weekend, who was an assistant secretary of commerce in the Ford administration, that "she has the lowest golf handicap in the history of the court." Eden sometimes plays golf with the justice.

"I'm glad that you touched on all the important things, John," O'Connor said. "It just means that I have the lowest handicap of any female member of the court."

TAMPA, Fla. — A prosecutor ordered an investigation of allegations by Watergate whistle-blower John Dean that he was illegally tape-recorded by a Tampa author.

Dean leveled the accusations in September against the authors of "Silent Coup: The Removal of a President," a book on the Watergate affair that claims Dean was the mastermind of the scandal.

In addition to the investigation ordered by Hillsborough State Attorney Harry Lee Coe, Dean also filed a libel lawsuit last year against the authors, Len Colodny of Tampa, and Robert Gettlin; their publisher; and G. Gordon Liddy, the Watergate burglary mastermind who helped hype the book.

Dean said Colodny, while in Tampa, illegally recorded their telephone conversations during interviews for the book.

Roasted tomatoes top tasty white bean salad

Associated Press

Roasting tomatoes intensifies their flavor, and it's easy to do. There's no peeling necessary. Serve with a white kidney bean salad tossed with bottled Italian dressing.

Ripe tomatoes are a rich red color and slightly softened. If they're still firm and pink, ripen them on your kitchen counter for a few days. Don't refrigerate tomatoes. Cold prevents ripening and kills flavor.

WHITE BEAN SALAD WITH ROASTED TOMATOES

19-ounce can white kidney beans (cannellini), drained and rinsed
½ cup diced sweet red bell peppers
½ cup sliced zucchini
¼ cup sliced green scallions (green onions)
¼ cup bottled Italian salad dressing
Lettuce leaves
Roasted tomatoes (recipe below)

In a medium bowl, combine beans, red pepper, zucchini and scallions; toss with salad dressing. Line four serving plates with lettuce leaves. Top with bean mixture. Serve with two or three roasted tomato halves. Makes 4 servings.

ROASTED TOMATOES

6 medium (about 2 pounds) tomatoes
2 tablespoons vegetable oil
½ teaspoon basil leaves, crushed
¼ teaspoon thyme leaves, crushed
¼ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon ground black pepper

Preheat oven to 425 degrees F. Use tomatoes held at room temperature until fully ripe. Core tomatoes; cut tomatoes in halves horizontally; gently squeeze to remove seeds. Place cut side up on a rack in a broiler pan; set aside. In a small bowl, combine oil, basil, thyme, salt and black pepper; brush over cut sides of tomatoes. Place tomatoes cut side down; bake in a 425-degree F oven until well browned, about 30 minutes. Remove tomato skins if desired. Serve, hot, warm or cold. Makes 4 to 6 servings.

Recipe from: Florida Tomato Committee.

EPIC program receives grant

Staff report

EPIC (Effective Parenting Information for Children), a program of Family Services, is the recipient of a $10,000 grant from the Arco Foundation. The grant was requested for the purpose of expanding the availability of EPIC's Parental Support Groups in Spanish.

"EPIC also serves as a support mechanism and a source of good, usable information for parents," wrote Forrest L. Allen of Arco.

Judy Roper, joint interest superintendent of Arco Western Division, wrote: "The culturally diverse nature of the group indicated various sectors of our community."

The funding has been allocated for the increase in hours for the bilingual EPIC coordinator, Oscar Bejil.

Arco has funded the EPIC program for two years. "We depend on foundations and grants to be able to provide resources which address child abuse in each community," said Carol Steele Boyd, vice president of Family Services. "We are grateful to them and, especially, the local employees who are dedicated to helping Midlanders build a stronger future through our children."

For more information about EPIC, call 699-2474.

CONSUMING INTERESTS

There's no cookie like homemade

By Linda Anderson

The youngest taste-tester and I got together recently with some Friends of the Library for a little demonstration on taste-testing. It was a very pleasant time with good company, friendly conversation — and three different kinds of chocolate chip cookies. What could be better than that?

Anderson

The cookies were: (1) one batch of low-cholesterol cookies made from a recipe in a Betty Crocker cookbook found in the Midland County Public Library (which, by the way, has a very extensive collection of cookbooks with many styles of cooking represented); (2) one batch of chocolate chip cookies made from the original Toll-House recipe; and (3) one bag of Chewy Chips Ahoy! picked out by the young taste-tester and a friend. All three batches were thoroughly sampled and voted on by the Friends of the Library.

Chewy Chips Ahoy! (the exclamation point is part of the name — I really didn't add it on there), as the only commercially-prepared cookies, of course were the only ones with label information and advertising. An 18-ounce bag cost $2.39 and contained almost four dozen cookies.

Nutrition label information listed each Chewy Chips Ahoy! cookie as containing 60 calories and 3 grams of fat (in other words, 27 calories from fat).

Label advertising claimed "Chewy Chips Ahoy! chocolate chip cookies are great because they're packed with lots of real chocolate chips in a delicious soft, chewy cookie. They'll melt in your mouth!" The cookies are said to contain "No Cholesterol" and "Low Saturated Fat" too. Then the advertising went on to add: "Chewy Chips Ahoy! Cookies are delicious when warmed!" (Someone seems to have gone overboard on those exclamation points.)

Unfortunately the exclamation points didn't seem to influence any of the taste-testers — Chewy Chips Ahoy! came in third (seven votes) in the taste test. The low-cholesterol cookies (which one taster described as definitely tasting low-cholesterol) received 10 votes, but the clear winner was the original Toll-House recipe, with 16 votes.

Most of the tasters were very definite about their choices; but let's face it, how can you beat rich, homemade chocolate chip cookies?

Price listed is from a local supermarket? Prices at other locations may vary.

Magazine sponsors 'Glorious Kitchens Contest'

NEW YORK (AP) — Food & Wine magazine is sponsoring its first "Glorious Kitchens Contest." Readers have been asked to send in photos of their kitchens along with the story of how they were designed.

Food & Wine will judge the pictures and stories and publish the winners' kitchens in the magazine's "At Home" section of the March 1994 issue. The announcement and contest rules appear in the magazine's April issue. The deadline for entries is Sept. 1. Food & Wine will contact winners by Oct. 1.

The magazine says winners will be judged on the design of the kitchen and the entrants' thoughts about what they did to make their kitchens the heart and soul of their homes. Entrants have been asked to include their solutions to storage, food preparation, cleanup and recycling.

Book: All aboard for look at dining on train

By Kelly P. Kissel

ABOARD THE BROADWAY LIMITED (AP) — In their heyday, railroads offered more than the sights of Chicago, Chattanooga and Omaha — they offered the tastes of barbecued lamb shanks, apricot pie and hot chile roquefort canapes.

The Great Northern baked huge Rome Beauty apples on its treks. The Northern Pacific touted two-pound baked potatoes purchased from farmers in the valleys the train traversed. On the overnight route from Chicago to Minneapolis, you could only get the special sleep-inducing onion soup on the Milwaukee Road, but for a special salad dressing, you had to take the Burlington Route.

"These were the best restaurants in America in their time," said James D. Porterfield, a marketing instructor at Penn State University.

Porterfield has taken a sentimental journey back to the golden age of railroading, and has come back with "Dining By Rail: The History and the Recipes of America's Golden Age of Railroad Cuisine."

The book, published by St. Martin's Press, features 325 recipes from 46 national and regional railroad lines. They have historic and nostalgic value, but gastronomic use, as well — meals that were originally prepared in small kitchens hurtling along rails and relatively easy to prepare at home.

"On land, you kill time to eat, but on a train you eat to kill time," said Ike Greenberg, steward on the Illinois Central's Panama Limited.

IN THE EARLY days, "They didn't even think about feeding the passengers," Porterfield said. Scheduled runs were short, though often prolonged by derailments, cattle on the track or delayed connections. After one accident, passengers delayed eight hours attempted to cook an ox struck by the train.

Young boys hawked food on trains in the 1840s, and in the 1850s eating houses sprouted along the tracks.

"They would stop the trains and let people off to get lunch. As competition for speed grew, stopping for an hour didn't make sense," Porterfield said.

Wounded soldiers were fed on "hospital trains" during the Civil War and in 1862, the first meal for regular customers was served on the Philadelphia, Wilmington and Baltimore Railroad. A newspaper man remembered being served "oyster stew, pie, crullers and coffee" prepared at the station.

George Pullman introduced the "hotel car," with its on-board kitchen, in 1867 — two years after introducing the sleeper car. The best service came on "limited" trains like the Broadway, which catered to long-distance travelers.

"Businessmen were accustomed to fine service hotels in the cities they were staying in," Porterfield said, and railroads followed suit.

The different lines competed with their menus.

The lamb shanks, apricot pie and canapes were specialties of the Union Pacific, which opened up the West from Omaha. The Atcheson, Topeka and Santa Fe won acclaim for its French toast. The Seaboard Railway specialized in cream of peanut soup. Steak and apple pie were big sellers on any train.

THE TYPICAL menu selection on a Chicago & Northwestern train from Chicago to Omaha: 13 entrees, six types of game, 25 desserts, all for 75 cents.

Train service also marked the birth of fast food — both at 120 mph and with reliable, delectable and uniform portions.

"A passenger who liked the roast beef au jus and tossed salad he had on No. 5 out of Jersey City wants to have the same quality and taste the next time he travels, though next time may find him going from Chicago to Jamestown," wrote J.M. Collins, dining car superintendent of the Erie Railroad.

Service hit its height in the 1920s and 1930s — before airplanes bit into business. In 1930, there were 1,742 dining cars riding the rails.

Most private railroads ended their dining operations on May 1, 1971, when Amtrak began. The Denver & Rio Grande Western, the Rock Island and the Southern continued their own operations but by 1983 were a part of the Amtrak system. By 1992, there were just 67 dining cars in service.

Through the years, Amtrak has won few raves for its cuisine, and short runs still feature hotdogs and hamburgers, fresh from the microwave. But Porterfield finds the national carrier making culinary strides.

"They've got a growing number of young and aggressive chefs," he said. "They also serve 22 million passengers a year. With that as an overview, I think they do an excellent job."

"We have a new thing now, a return to elegance," said Gerald Nocentino, 24, a cook aboard the Crescent that runs from New York City to New Orleans.

THERE IS CHINA and pedestal wine glasses, "a far cry from the plastic flowers and the metal vases and the diner look," Nocentino said.

The railroad now sends its chefs to the Culinary Institute of America. Last year, Nocentino, 24, won the railroad's food specialist of the year award after preparing a butterflied pork chop stuffed with a spicy rice dressing and accompanied with basil-buttered vegetables.

"What we're trying to do is get people back on board," said Nocentino, the son of an Amtrak conductor who talks as though it's natural to work at haute cuisine at high speeds. "It's just like any other restaurant, just that it moves."

Recipes bring taste of historic past

Associated Press

Selected recipes from the book "Dining by Rail: The History and the Recipes of America's Golden Age of Railroad Cuisine," by James D. Porterfield.

PICKLED SHRIMP AND ONIONS
The Union Pacific Railroad

1½ pounds shrimp, smallest type
¼ cup celery tops
3 tablspoons mixed pickling spice
½ teaspoon salt
½ cup sliced onion
2 bay leaves
½ cup salad oil
½ cup white vinegar
1 tablespoons capers and juice
1 teaspoon celery seeds
3 drops Tabasco sauce
1 teaspoon salt

Shell and devein shrimp, bring 3 quarts water with celery tops, pickling spices and 1 to 2 teaspoons salt to a boil. Allow to boil 15 minutes, then add shrimp, cover and cook at a boil for 6 minutes. Drain shrimp and plunge into ice water to arrest cooking. Drain shrimp well again. In a covered container, alternate shrimp and onions. Add bay leaves. In a small bowl, whisk together the remaining ingredients and pour over layered shrimp and onions. Chill at least 24 hours. Shrimp pickled in this manner will keep about 1 week in the refrigerator. Serves 6.

FILLET OF SOLE AS YOU LIKE IT
The Southern Pacific Lines

1 12-16 ounce sole fillet
Salt and pepper to taste
Juice of ½ lemon
6 oysters
6 shrimp
2 fresh mushrooms, sliced
2 tablespoons butter
1 tablespoons flour
¾ cup heavy cream, warmed
½ cup fresh bread crumbs

Season sole filet with salt and pepper and sprinkle with lemon juice. Fold as needed and place in buttered, fire-proof baking dish. Arrange oysters and shrimp along sides. Meanwhile, in small skillet, saute mushrooms in 1 tablespoon of the butter and add to the baking dish. In a small saucepan, make a roux with the other tablespoon of butter and the flour, then slowly add cream and simmer until thickened. Pour cream sauce over sole. Sprinkle bread crumbs over all, dot with butter and bake in 375-degree oven until nicely browned and bubbly, about 30 minutes. Serves 2.

SALAD DRESSINGS
The Great Northern Railroad

Pinch of salt
Pinch of dry mustard
1 tablespoon white vinegar
1 egg yolk
1 cup pure olive oil, very cold
Juice of one lemon
1 teaspoon Worchestershire sauce
1 teaspoon chili sauce
2 ounce Roquefort cheese, crumbled fine
1 small pickled beet, chopped fine
¼ hard-boiled egg white, chopped fine
⅛ green pepper, chopped fine
1 teaspoon paprika

Dissolve salt and mustard in vinegar and set aside. Beat egg yolk until of a light lemon color. Continue beating and add olive oil, one drop at a time at first, then slowly increasing quantity. When mixture begins to thicken, slowly add the lemon juice and vinegar-seasonings mixture. When mayonnaise forms, stir in Worchestershire sauce and chili sauce. Add cheese, beet, egg white, green pepper and paprika. Mix thoroughly and refrigerate in airtight container before serving. Yields 1 pint.

LEHIGH VALLEY BAKED APPLE DISH
The Lehigh Valley Railroad

4 cups of granular sugar
6 large Rome Beauty apples
3 maraschino cherries, halved

Spread sugar in bottom of baking pan. Core apples and cut ¼-inch from top of each apple so that the top of apple can set upside-down on bottom of the pan in the sugar. Place apples in this position. Sprinkle water lightly along the edge of the baking pan to keep sugar from burning. Place baking dish in a 300-degree oven and bake until apples are fork-tender, about 1 hour. Baste occasionally as sugar forms syrup to coat each apple with a glaze. After apples become thoroughly glazed, turn them over and place half a maraschino cherry in center of each. Continue to baste until cooked through, about 15 minutes more. Serve hot. Serves 6.

DEAR ABBY

Should boss's wastebasket be considered off limits?

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR READERS: Yesterday I published some responses to this question: "If you saw a co-worker going through the boss's wastebasket after hours, would you inform the boss?" Today's column is a continuance of that discussion.

Van Bur

DEAR ABBY: Shame on you! No one should go through another person's wastebasket without his knowledge. Executives often just "drop" things of a confidential nature into the wastebasket, assuming that only the janitorial staff handles that material. A loyal employee should certainly let the boss know that his/her wastebasket is being monitored by someone. You don't have to identify yourself or the "snoop," if you don't want to ... just write a note and let the boss know what you observed. — H.G. FROM N.Y.C.

DEAR ABBY: I work for a high-powered executive in a large corporation, and I can think of many legitimate reasons why I would go through my boss's trash: to retrieve something he has thrown away and shouldn't have, or to get the correct spelling of a name from a letter he has answered and tossed.

I've heard of secretaries getting blamed for something their boss has thrown away more times than I care to remember. — ADMINISTRATIVE ASSISTANT IN OMAHA

DEAR ABBY: I agree with you. Don't tell. Butt out, and if the person who was going through the boss's wastebasket is doing wrong, she will get caught eventually. — BEEN THERE IN OREGON

DEAR ABBY: "Witness" should keep her mouth shut. If she thinks she can curry favor with the boss by ratting on a fellow employee, she's not very smart. Nobody likes a snitch. — NO SNITCH IN SACRAMENTO

DEAR ABBY: If I thought a co-worker was undermining my boss, for any reason, I would not hesitate to tell the boss — especially if I saw it with my own eyes. That's the way I would want to be treated if I were the boss. I do not answer to my co-worker. I answer to my boss! — MS. C.J. SMITH, C.P.S., SECRETARY TO CHERYL LAU, NEVADA SECRETARY OF STATE

DEAR ABBY: Your answer, "No," was right on the mark. "Witness" is too suspicious. Did she ever consider that the typist was going through the boss's wastebasket to check the spelling of a name or address the boss had inadvertently tossed out? I would hate to have "Witness" on my staff. — RETIRED, BUT UNDERSTANDING

DEAR ABBY: I am a student studying management at Tennessee State University in Nashville. I think "Witness," out of loyalty to her boss, should tell him (or her) privately what she (or he) had observed.

I know that I would appreciate knowing if a fellow employee were going through my wastebasket. — THOMAS C. SHEFFIELD

DEAR ABBY: Tell "Witness" to mind her own business. If her co-worker was looking for something for a legitimate reason, "Witness" would look like an idiot tattling on her. And if her co-worker is being nosy, she will trip herself up soon enough. — SARAH JANE

DEAR ABBY: Three weeks ago, my boyfriend surprised me with a diamond ring and asked me to marry him. We have been going together for more than a year. We are not teen-agers. I am 35 and he is 39. I have been telling all my friends and relatives and showing off my beautiful ring.

Last week, I had reason to believe the diamond he gave me wasn't real. When I confronted him, he insisted that it was a real diamond, and he even told me the name of the jewelry store where he had bought it. I have since found out that no such jewelry store exists. To make a long story short, he finally told me that the diamond isn't real, but the sentiment behind it was.

I feel betrayed and humiliated. I would have been happy to wait until he could have bought me a real diamond. He is not broke. He could have bought me a ring on the layaway plan.

I truly believe that if I hadn't found out the ring was a fake, he never would have told me. This has put a strain on our relationship. Am I wrong to have lost faith in him? Or should I forget about it and try to pick up where we left off? What would you do, Abby? — NO CITY, PLEASE

DEAR NO CITY: I would return the ring and say goodbye. There is no misery like being married to a man (or woman) you can't trust.

DEAR ABBY: Since you enjoy limericks, here's one I wrote to illustrate what it's like to be friends with a frustrated poet:

Pity the poet's friefds —
Their misery never ends.
Bombarded by the curses
Of their friend's awful verses

— PRISCILLA A. MALTBIE, NORTH LONG BEACH, CALIF.

Unless They're Stopped, Southwestern Bell Will Know More About You Than Even The IRS.

By keeping track of who you call, how often you call and how long your conversations last, Southwestern Bell and other Texas telephone companies can create an alarmingly detailed profile of your life.

Fortunately, they have never had any reason to do this.

Until now.

The telephone companies are no longer satisfied with owning a monopoly over local telephone lines. They now want to own and control the information services that flow through those lines.

By using their file on you, these companies could make you the target for all kinds of sales messages involving your business, your health, your finances, your family life and more.

Call an obstetrician and you could be hounded by diaper services and daycare centers. Call for stock quotes and the telephone company could try to sell you their stock selection service. Call a dating service and the next thing you know the telephone company could try to arrange your social life.

The Texas legislature can go a long way towards preventing this abuse by supporting a two-year study that will provide the true facts behind the telephone companies' desires to be deregulated and free to set their own policies and rates.

Urge your legislator to vote in favor of a two-year, fact-revealing study that will protect Texans from the monopolistic whims of Texas telephone companies. Because if you remain silent now, everything you say later can, and just might, be used against you. Support the two-year study and protect your pocketbook.
