GENE TUNNEY WINS HEAVYWEIGHT CROWN

Jack Dempsey, Mere Shell Of 'Tiger Man,' Goes Down Before 'Devil Dog' In Ten Rounds

SENATE FEARS SHARP TONGUE OF JOHN CAGE

But It Grants Use Of Legislative Hall To Ma's Nominee

AUSTIN, Sept. 23.(AP)—John Cage, highway commissioner whose confirmation was postponed until the 40th legislature in January, 1927, by the senate in special session of the 39th legislature Thursday was tendered use of the senate chamber Monday evening to tell the senators what he thinks about it. This was decided when Senator J .D. Parnell of Wichita Falls, finally succeeded in getting passed, his motion to grant Cage the privilege.

Senator Lloyd Price of Texarkana said that Cage "may come with his stinger out," but he believed the commissioner would use good judgment in whatever discussion he made and urged that he be given an opportunity to speak.

Abuse Is Feared.

The motion in its first form was vigorously opposed by Senator W. H. Bledsoe of Lubbock, and Senator A. E. Wood of Granger, who declared that the matter was a closed issue and that they believed Cage wanted to come before the senate for the purpose of abusing them. Senator Walter Woodward said he believed, judging from a conversation with Cage, that Cage intended to come before the senate for the purpose of maligning the senators.

Senator I. D. Fairchild of Angeline county scored the senator from Lubbock for his stand on not granting Cage a hearing and Senator T. J. Holbrook added a bit of criticism.

14 Nominees Oked.

The senate in executive session confirmed 14 more of Gov. Miriam A. Ferguson's recess appointees, three of wreom faced some opposition. They were Judge James W. Swayne, chairman of the industrial accident board, Robert M. Lyles, state's attorney attached to the court of criminal appeals, and Judge W. S. Moore of the 13th judicial district. The other appointees confirmed are: G. N. Holton, state fire insurance commissioner; Ralph Bailey and J. R. Frobese, of the state board of health; Richard Burgess, library and historical commissioner; Mrs. John A. Haley, director of Texas Technological college; S. A. Lillard, Jr., director of Texas A. and M. college; Eli Mar... E. C. Brand, Walton D. Hood, D. C. Giddings and R. L. Thornton.

Leases Submitted.

Validation of leases, grants and agreements for oil, gas and sulphur entered into by the governor, and the board of prison commissions, to the Roxana Petroleum Corporation was asked of the legislature by Governor Ferguson. In her submission the governor conveyed a letter from the Roxana company, stating that it requested validation of leases on the Clemens state prison farm, and two leases on the Retrieve prison farm. The letter said that the company had gone to considerable expense in drilling wells, none of which have produced.

In order to preserve its interests under the leases, the undersigned must either pay substantial cash rentals from time to time, or must engage in drilling operations upon said respective properties; and the undersigned have already drilled two wells on the Clemens state farm at great expense without obtaining production, the letter read.

Committee Gets Bill.

The message was referred to the committee on penitentiaries.

Governor Ferguson also submitted the matter of creation of the Hyman common county line school district in Mitchell and Howard counties, for district number 29; consolidation of school districts in Jasper and Newton counties and the creation of the "fastrill independent school district in Cherokee county."

The senate finally passed 43 road district validating bills.

The senate adjourned until 10 o'clock Monday morning. Before the adjournment the resolution of Senator Bailey, DeWitt county, on the 85th anniversary of the birth of Joseph B. Sayers, former governor, congressman, state senator and Confederate soldier was unanimously adopted.

Governor Ferguson submitted an act amending the law on public weighers, postponing the act of the 39th legislature to take effect on election of weighers except in county seat precincts until January 1, 1927.

Schools Consolidated.

Senator Archie Parr of Duval county succeeding in getting through both houses three school consolidation bills which were rushed to the governor for signature. Common school districts seven and eight in Hidalgo county and the Edinburg district were consolidated and districts five and six and the Tabasco districts in Hidalgo county were merged. Common school districts one, two and four and Rio Grande City independent districts were consolidated.

About three score bills have passed both houses and have been referred to the governor for her signature. The only bill thus far signed by the governor is the per diem and contingent expense bill.

COURT TRACES FRAUD FUNDS

Trial of Liberty Bonds Pursued In Trial of Daugherty

NEW YORK, Sept. 23 (AP) Over a partly obliterated paper trail the government today pursued its tracing of $200,000 reputed graft money from German ownership to its alleged final resting place in the pockets of Harry M. Daugherty and Thomas W. Miller, attorney general and alien property custodian of the Harding administration.

During the morning session the prosecution completed its attempt to show that of $441,000 paid John T. King, republican leader, to "help and speed" claims for $7,000,000 of impounded enemy interests in the American Metal company through government offices, $50,000 went to Miller.

$150,000 Traced.

The rest of the day was given over to testimony tending to show that $150,000 of the money King received from Richard Merton, German metal magnate sent to this country to effect the claims, went to Daugherty. At the close of the day's session evidence had been given through witnesses and documents concerning some $22,-000 of this account.

It was in tracing this latter amount that the government attorneys had to follow a trail which they claimed had been mutilated by the defendant or his associates in an effort to destroy evidence of guilt.

NEGRO KILLED UNDER TRAIN

Body of Man Ground To Bits In Local Rail Yards

A negro known only as "Benny" was instantly killed about 10:45 Thursday night when a Katy switch engine in front of which he fell cut him in two. The accident happened just behind the Wichita Falls and Southern freight house between Tenth and Eleventh streets on Michigan avenue.

Details of the accident were hazy last night, but reports gleaned by the police indicated that the negro was walking along the tracks and evidently did not see nor was seen by the engine crew. When pulled out from beneath the wheels, both legs had been cut from the body and the lower part of the torso had been cut away.

The body was removed to the Burris-Dalton undertaking parlors. Efforts were being made to identify him but these had met with no success at a late hour. Negroes near the scene who viewed the body said the negro was known to them only as "Benny," and so far as they knew had no relatives here.

MAN'S HAND HURT

L. B. Cummings, 1717 Lucille street, suffered serious injuries about the left hand at 10 o'clock Thursday night when he fell over a large crate in a local express office. The hand was badly cut and torn.

A Burris-Dalton ambulance was summoned and Cummings was taken to the Clinic hospital for medical treatment.

HOUSE LEADER WILL PRESIDE OVER PROBERS

Satterwhite Will Head Committee By Wish of Colleagues

AUSTIN, Sept. 23. (AP)—Lee Satterwhite, speaker of the house of the thirty-ninth legislature, here in special session, yielded Thursday to unanimous request of his colleagues that he serve as chairman of the house committee of nine that will investigate state departments.

The speaker will name the other eight members. Sitting after adjournment of the call session, the committee will report to the fortieth legislature.

Teer Bill Voted.

The house finally passed the Teer bill validating county-wide road bond issues. This bill was amended to prescribe its provisinos refer only to county-wide issues, and not to those of defined districts or political sub-divisions. Desire to protect districts four and seven in Shelby county, which have outstanding thousands in stolen bonds, was the prime factor in putting over the amendment. Representative Rogers of Shelby insisted the amendment be adopted, pointing out this district will not apply for validation until the bonds are recorded.

Appointment of the investigating committee was approved last week by adoption of the King-Purl resolution. Motion to reconsider and table was adopted then; but Representative Wallace of Freestone Thursday obtained unanimous consent to open the matter by offering resolutions that Satterwhite be made a member and chairman of the committee.

Speaker Cheered.

Representative McFarlane's proposed amendment that three of the nine committee members be Ferguson supporters was defeated with a resolution of substitution offered by Representative Purdue of Upshaw that the committee be composed of members fair to all administration, according to their merits Speaker Satterwhite was loudly applauded, after resuming the chair, which he had vacated when his serving on the committee was mentioned.

"Since the investigation resolution was adopted, I have been besieged by members of the house and by others, all asking that I serve," he said. "I persistently refused, until Wednesday when I said that I would serve if my colleagues unanimously requested.

"Regardless of the committee I select, I know I shall be criticized.

Expects Criticism.

"This will be true, even though I should name four members from the majority and four from the minority. It may interest you to know that only three committee members have been definitely appointed.

"There is no hatred in my heart for any man or any woman, and I assure you the speaker's conscience will be clear after he has named the committee, which he hopes and believes will do its duty."

The investigating committee will center its work about the highway commission, text book commission and pardon board. From the contingent expenses fund, $25,000 was appropriated for the investigation.

May Delay Naming.

Speaker Satterwhite said that if he did not announce the investigating committee Friday he would wait until next week. A large number of senate road district bond validating bills were passed by the house, as well as other local bills.

MOODY SEES SCHOOL GAIN

Next Governor Predicts More Help For Rural Schools

NEW BRAUNFELS, Sept. 23. (AP) — Dan Moody, democratic gubernatorial nominee, told an audience here Thursday at the opening of the Comal county fair of his plans for building a first class public school system in Texas "without any added burden to the taxpayer," Moody did not mention the proposed tax on gasoline suggested by Governor Ferguson but his speech indicated unalterable opposition to it.

"A slight modification of existing laws," he said would make available the oil royalties accruing from development of Texas school lands to "give every rural community in Texas a complete high school system."

Extension of the highway system as originally contemplated on the four-fold plan would be the next important move in taking educational facilities to the rural youths, he said, "provided the strictest economy is practiced at Austin," and that "the money go to the purposes for which it was intended."

6,000 Hear Him.

It was estimated that about 6,000 persons were on the grounds when Moody opened the fair at 2 o'clock. He was introduced by H. A. Triesch, mayor of Ned Braunfels.

Demands have been placed with Commissioner Crocker and C. W. Woodman of Fort Worth, in charge of the federal labor office in Texas.

No outside pickers can be expected in Texas, Commissioner Crocker said, because Arkansas, Louisiana, Oklahoma and Mississippi are begging for pickers.

HOUSE HEARS FRAUD CHARGE IN BOND DEAL

Hidalgo County Sale To Get Attention of Solons' Probe

AUSTIN, Sept. 23.(AP)—Charging $477,900 out of $1,644,300 realized from sale of Hidalgo county flood control bonds has never been placed in the county treasury, Representative T. K. Irwin of Dallas in the house of the 39th legislature, here in call session, by resolution Thursday asked appointment of a committee of eight to investigate all details of the bonds.

Five members would be appointed by the speaker of the house, and three by the lieuteant governor.

Certain Hidalgo county officials, an Edinburg bank official; and Edinburg bank, and two Austin bond brokers are charged with conspiracy to cheat and defraud and with cheating and defrauding the state, Hidalgo county, the taxpayers of Texas, and taxpayers of Hidalgo county. The 38th legislature remitted for a period not exceeding 25 years state ad valorem taxes in Hidalgo county to aid the flood control program.

Fraud Charged

Those charged with fraud are: J. C. Epperson, county judge; George W. Walton, county treasurer; W. D. Chadwick, Marvin Evans, George Brooks, and W. L. Lipscom, county commissioners; Came Hill, county clerk; E. A. Peffley, Edinburg; the Edinburg state bank and trust company; O. O. Norwood and E. P. Cravens of Austin.

Others "unknown to the author of the resolution," are charged with conspiracy to defraud and fraud.

By special order, the house set the Irwin resolution for consideration at 10:30 o'clock Monday morning. Representative Petsch of Fredericksburg raised points of order that will be ruled on at that time by the speaker. Petsch declared the question was not embraced within the subject matter of the governor's call for the session, that a suit on this matter is pending in the Travis county district court; that the resolution is an attempt to interfere in local affairs of Hidalgo county, and that the resolution is purposeless, and calculated to waste time and money.

The resolution provides as much as $1,500 may be paid out of the contingent expense funds of the house and senate in carrying out the investigation.

Representative W. R. Montgomery of Hidalgo told the Associated Press his information there had been no irregularity whatever in connection with the bonds. "I am reliably informed all the money due has been paid into the treasury," he said. "The successful bidder on the great flood control project was about $60,000 lower than all his competitors, among whom were some of the leading contractors of the state.

Suit Already Filed

"At time of remission of ad valorem taxes, taxable values were $26,000,000 compared with $42,-000,000 now. The 35 cent tax for schools and pensions was not remitted, so that now Hidalgo is paying nearly as much state taxes, despite remission of the ad valorem tax, as it did at the time of the remission. This is made posible, of coure, through the tremendous increase in taxable values."

A suit, making substantially the same allegations as contained in the resolution, was filed two months ago in the 53rd district court here by Irwin on behalf of a Hidalgo county taxpayer. Irwin said he had withdrawn from this suit to give more time to his efforts to obtain a legislative investigation.

The resolution set forth the bond issue of $1,620,000 was sold to J. L. Arlitt of Austin for par and accrued interest, or for $1,644,300, that the bonds were delivered September 15, 1924, to the American National Bank, Austin, on which date the Brown Crummer Company of Wichita, Kan., wired the American National Bank $1,644,-300.

Adverse Decision Ends Fistic King's Seven-Year Rule

132,000 Fight Fans Pay $2,000,000 to See Fighting Marine And Manassa Mauler Battle for World's Heavyweight Championship In Philadelphia Exposition Stadium.

LOS ANGELES, Sept. 23.(AP)—A. T. Jergins and J. R. McKinnie, Long Beach oil operators tonight announce that they had Telegraphed Jack Dempsey, former heavyweight champion, and Gene Tunney the title holder that they would hang up a $750,000 purse for a return fight between the pair to be held in an open air arena near Los Angeles before January 30, 1927. If the offer is accepted they said they would post $100,000 at once to insure the match.

RINGSIDE SESQUICENTENNIAL STADIUM, PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 23. (AP)—Gene Tunney, the fighting marine, is the new heavyweight champion of the world. He dethroned Jack Dempsey, king for the last seven years, tonight by smashing his way to decisive victory in a ten-round match that went the limit and finished one of the greatest upsets in boxing history. Dempsey, only a shell of his old fighting self, was outboxed and outfought from start to finish, groggy and bleeding in a one-sided battle that was decided in driving rain before a record crowd of 132,000 spectators.

This great throng, forming a spectacle unprecedented in sport annals paid close to $2,000,000 to witness a match that fell far from the sensational heights expected of it.

Crowd Cheers Gene.

Stunned at first by the amazing slowness, the lethargy and lack of old fighting fire in the champion's attack, the dripping throng cheered on the challenger as he steadily hammered and battered his way to triumph, piling up points that gave him an overwhelming margin and earned him the unanimous decision of the judges.

Tunney, reaching the pinnacle of fighting career that started when he was a buck private in the ranks of the marines, fought a masterful battle, out-generaled Dempsey at nearly every turn as well as outpunching the champion with convincing ease.

The battling product of the sidewalks of New York's Greenwich Village at the age of 28, fairly won his laurels and cleanly demonstrated his right to the purple robes of pugilism.

But the handsome rugged challenger dethroned a man who came to the end of his championship trail with few weapons and less stamina to defend his place at the top.

Dempsey Favorite.

Dempsey entered the ring a 4 to 1 favorite backed as heavily as any champion in history. Experts had proclaimed him fit, in spite of his three-year lay-off, but except for a gallant stand and a few flashes of his old self, he was outclassed.

Dempsey was far from the furious fighter, the "tiger man" who smashed his way to sensational victories over Jess Willard, Georges Carpentier and Louis Firpo. Gone was the devastating punch, the furious aggressiveness that marked him as one of the most feared man in the ring.

Instead, he seemed in a daze from the start, unable at any time to sustain his attack for more than a few seconds. Occasionally, he connected with long left or right hooks to the head and body, but these no more than jarred the challenger temporarily. Always Tunney came back, punching with rights and lefts from the shoulder, rocking Dempsey's head with short but powerful blows.

Terrific Right.

It was Tunney's terrific right hand blows to the head, chin and ribs that decided the battle. This blow, delivered like a ram-rod, broke upon Dempsey's rushes, opened cuts about his face and finally, in the last round, closed his left eye completely.

Dempsey was a sorry sight in the final round as Tunney, realizing victory and the goal of his fighting career was in his grasp, threw

Record News Announces Fight Returns To Huge Crowd of Over 2,000

A crowd of 2,000 or more jammed the Lamar avenue side of the Record News office from 6:30 until 8:30 Thursday night to listen to a running report of Gene Tunney's unexpected triumph over Jack Dempsey in the Philadelphia title bout.

With a special leased wire of the Associated Press running direct to ringside, the Record News relied solely on a leather-lunged Irishman with a four-foot megaphone to tell the world about it. The throng, even to its far flung edges, was able to catch every detail of the battle a moment after it was enacted in the Philadelphia ring.

It was a demonstrative crowd which whooped impartially through the early rounds but which yelled in high glee when the tide of battle swung to the ex- marine. Then, when a flash announcement came that Tunney had been given the judges' decision, it let out a screech that could be heard for blocks.

An extra edition, carrying a complete round-by-round report, was issued by the Record News in less than five minutes from the time the battle ended.

Author of "Love Bound" "Her Man"

Illustrated and Copyrighted by Johnson Features, Inc., 1819 Broadway, New York City

READ THIS FIRST:

MERRY LOCKE, pretty and gay as her nickname, is a born flirt. She's the kind of girl who has no ambition beyond having a good time and plenty of beaux. At 20, she fails at business school because she won't study. Then she takes a low-salaried job in LILLIE DALE'S little beauty shop.

At that time she is having the first real love affair of her life. The man in the case is TONY GAINES, a serious young lawyer, who wants to marry her. Their engagement ends when Tony learns that Merry goes out with other men. A year later Merry hears that he is going to marry a girl in Montana, where he has gone to live.

MOMS, Merry's widowed mother, takes Lillie Dale and a MR. HEFFLINGER into the house to board. Mr. Hefflinger begins to court Moms in his middle-aged way, to the disgust of Merry's youngest sister, JINNY, who elopes with DERRICK JONES and goes to live next door with his parents.

CASSIE, the oldest sister, marries her rich employer, MORLEY KAUFMAN. They quarreled constantly, but Merry envies Cassie her soft easy life.

Through the Kaufmans' Merry meets BILL ERSKINE, a wealthy bachelor. They become engaged, but Bill keeps putting off the wedding. Then Merry begins to go about with CABBY MARSH, who is the fiance of Morley Kaufman's sister, MURIEL. And when Merry gets herself tangled up in the divorce case of her old beau, LES PURCELL, and his wife, Muriel tells Bill all about it. He drops Merry like a hot cake and marries another girl. Merry feels that she never will fogive Muriel so long as she lives.

One day, a year later, Muriel drops in at the beauty shop to have Lillie give her a marcel. She tells Merry she is going to meet Cabby Marsh there, but after waiting for him an hour, she decides to leave. When Merry starts home a little later, she bumps into the tardy Cabby, and they decide to go for a drive, inasmuch as Muriel is out of the way. Just as they are starting off, they see Muriel coming along the street toward them. NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

CHAPTER LVI.

Cassie had always said that the Kaufman family were cheap and vulgar under their gilding of money.

And Merry saw, all at once, that this was certainly true of Muriel Kaufman, at least.

She came across the sidewalk toward Cabby's car, and as she came she screamed at him shrilly, like a fish-wife calling her wares.

"SO THIS is the way you wait for me, is it, Cabby Marsh?" she flung at him. Her hands were on her hips, and her face was scarlet with anger. "You're a fine kind of a Benny, I must say!"

Two or three passersby turned their heads to look at her. But she did not see them. Or, if she did, she did not care. She was going to make a scene, and the bigger the audience the better!

"And you!" Muriel all but shouted, turning her blazing eyes on Merry's lovely flushed face. "You! I'm not surprised at you! This is the kind of thing you've been doing all your life! Sneaking around on the sly with some fellow who wouldn't be seen dead with you if his own crowd were around! I should think you'd wake up after awhile, and realize that you've queered yourself with everybody you know. Even an old grand-daddy like Bill Erskine wouldn't have you on a bet!"

Merry's nose and her chin went up into the air. She kept her lips tightly closed, and on them was a superior little smile—the kind of smile that says, "How common and cheap you are!"

It maddened Muriel, that proud aloof little smile. She opened the door of the car, and stood there beside it, stamping one of her feet.

"You!—You!—You get out of that car!" She fairly stammered with fury.

"She Dosen't Know Anything About—Anything," Cabby Told HER.

Merry gace Cabby one swift glance from the tail of her eye, to see what he was going to do or say.

But it was perfectly plain that Cabby was not going to do or say anything at all. He was sunk down behind the driving wheel, looking as if he were wishing himself a thousand miles away.

There was surprise on his face, too, and fear. He was plainly afraid of Muriel's anger.

Merry was suddenly sorry for him, as any woman is sorry for any man who is a coward.

"Goodby, Cabby," she said, and put one foot on the step of the car. "See you later."

Her heart was full of things she longed to say to Muriel. Nasty, catty, cutting things. She wanted to pay her back for this thing she had just done to her, and for other things.

But without a word she turned and went. The setting sun shone through the gray clouds of later afternoon, and blazed full on her face. But she could not see.

Tears of fury sprang to her eyes, and her nails cut little half-moons into her palms, as she walked along with her hands clenched at her sides.

Moms and Lillie and Mr. Hefflinger were sitting down to supper when she got home.

"I don't feel very well," she told her mother, poking her head in at the door of the dining room for a moment. "I think I won't eat anything I'll just run upstairs and go to bed. Don't bring me anything."

She wanted to be alone. She had reached the point where she didn't want to talk to anyone, to listen to anyone, to explain to anyone why her eyes were red from crying.

But Moms guessed that something was wrong, as mothers are very apt to guess things about their offspring.

She followed Merry into the hall. "Wouldn't you like just a cup of tea?" she was saying in her very gentlest voice, when the telephone rang.

"Mr. Cadman Marsh for you," she said, handing the receiver to Merry. Cabby's name was Cadman, although no one ever called him by it.

"Hello, there," he said. "I just dumped Muriel at her house. I'm coming over to see you, if you don't mind, for a half-second. Want to talk to you."

Merry, still in her outdoor garments, went out onto the porch to wait for him.

There was something she wanted to ask him herself, and she did not want anyone to hear either her question or his answer.

It was getting dark when his car came hurdling into the street. Cabby drove like a speed king. He was a daredevil with an automobile, even if he were a coward before Muriel Kaufman.

Merry went down the front walk to meet him. The soft dusk made her eyes shadowy, and it wiped out any of the hard little lines that were beginning to show themselves at the corners of her marvelous sea-green eyes. She had never looked more alluringly lovely to Cabby Marsh, who secretly thought her the prettiest girl he had ever seen.

"Beautiful, but dumb," was the way Cabby summed her up in his own mind.

He opened the door of his car, and his teeth gleamed in tre twilight as he grinned.

"Well, now we can go on with our drive, can't we?" he asked with a laugh. "Hop in."

For only an instant Merry hesitated. Then she jumped into the roadster. Why not? She always had a beautiful time when she went anywhere with Cabby. And beautiful times did not come her way so often as they once did!

When they were half way downtown, she suddenly remembered that a dun-colored person named George Leet was coming to call on her that night. For an instant she thought of turning back. But only for an instant.

She could go out with George Leet any night in the week! And besides, there was nothing so delightful in the thought of seeing a movie with George, or of talking to him two or three hours in the shabby sitting room at home.

She snuggled up against Cabby with a soft little laugh.

"The last time I was out with you, Cokie Boy," she said to him in her light, sweet little votice that was music to his ears after Muriel's shrillness, "you bought me violets. Do you remember?"

"I'll buy you violets now if there's a florists' shop open, Gold Digger," Cabby chuckled, and Merry laughed with him.

"But I'm not a gold digger," she declared. "I'm a nice girl, and I love violets. I feel so dressed up when I wear flowers. Bill Erskine used to buy me orchids."

Cabby roared with laughter. "All right, I'll buy you orchids," he said, "but don't try to tell me you're not a gold digger! I suppose you'd like a five-pound box of candy, too, eh?"

Merry shook her head and gave him a soft half-wistful look.

"Never touch candy—not I!" she answered. "But perfume—I adore perfume."

She missed the wonderful bottles of it that Bill Erskine had sent to her, during the two years of their strange courtship.

Cabby bought her two orchids—a lavender one and a cream-colored one, freckled with gold color.

Then they parked the car and went to the Towers hotel for dinner.

Cabby asked Merry to order the meal, and she ordered the things that a man likes. Soup, and steak and potatoes, and fresh apple pie.

It was over the apple pie and small cups of coffee that Merry finally asked him the question that had been on the tip of her tongue all evening.

"Cabby," she began, leaning toward him across the little table, "I want to ask you something."

"Shoot," said Cabby cheerfully.

She cleared her throat. This was going to be hard to say.

"Cabby," she began, "do you remember what Muriel said thas afternoon? That I was the kind of girl that men take out on the sly? The kind of girl that they're ashamed of being friends with? AM I that kind of girl?"

Without a second's wait, Cabby shook his dark handsome head.

"Well, I should say not!" he declared. "I should say not!" He was most emphatic.

But Merry was not satisfied.

"Does Muriel know that you came over to my house when you left her tonight?" she wanted to know. Her eyes were big and serious.

"I should say not!" Cabby said again. "I've had enough bawling out for one day. She doesn't know anything—about anything."

Merry cupped her chin in her palm, and she gave him the kind of smile she had given Muriel pitying smile.

"Does Muriel know about all the times you've taken me driving?" she asked him.

He looked puzzled. He was beginning to wonder what she was getting at.

"Why, no, of course not!" he replied. "I don't let her know about every little thing I pull off. I'm not married to her—yet!"

"But you're going to marry her, aren't you?"

"I guess so," Cabby admitted, "when I get ready to settle down. But if I want to have a little fun with you in the meantime, it's my business, isn't it?"

He could not understand why Merry suddenly got up, and laid his orchids down on the table. "Goodnight," she said, "I'm going."

He got up, too. "Where are you going. What on earth's the matter now?" he demanded. "Sit down, Sit down 'till I pay the check, and I'll go with you! Please! Everybody's looking at us."

Merry sat down and waited until the waiter came with his bill.

Cabby thrust a greenback into his hands and rose. "Keep the change," he said hurriedly, and followed Merry out of the dining room.

He had the orchids in his hands, and when he and Merry were out in the lamp-lit street, he tried to give them to her. But she shook her head.

"No, I don't want them," she said, with that queer baffling smile on her lips. "I want you to take me home, please."

In silence they walked back to the parking place.

"I'd give a farm to know what ails you," he said sullenly, as they got into the car.

When they were almost back to Chester street, Merry told him what "ailed" her.

"Cabby," she said to him, I'm just what Muriel said I was—to you, at any rate! And I'll never go anywhere with you again."

He did not answer.

"You tell me you're going to marry Muriel," she went on, "but in the meantime you're perfectly willing to 'have a little fun with me,' as you call it! Well, you may think you are, but you aren't! I'll never go any place with you again, unless you're willing to let Muriel Kaufman and all the rest of the town know it."

Her shoulders sagged under her new spring coat as she went up the front steps and let herself into the dark house that was no longer home.

Long after she was in bed, Muriel's words came back to her, and rang in her ears: "This is the kind of thing you've been doing all your life—sneaking around on the sly with some fellow who wouldn't be seen dead with you if his own crowd were around! Not even an old grand-daddy like Bill Erskine would have you on a bet!"

That was what she had said. And Merry hadn't believed it. But now she knew it was true. Absolutely true.

She lay there in the darkness, too heartsick to even cry.

Merry makes an extraordinary discovery in the next chapter, something that sends her to Cassie in a rage. The discovery was a letter from Tony Gaines, hidden by Cassie. What did the letter say? Read the next chapter of "The Petter."

Humble Posts New Prices On Crude In Panhandle

HOUSTON, Sept. 23. (AP).—Effective Wednesday, the Humble Pipe Line company posted a new schedule of prices on Texas Panhandle crude oil.

On Gray and Wheeler county crudes no chahge was made, the old postings holding at $1.35 for 38.9 gravity oil to $2.15 for 44 gravity and above.

All crude purchased in Hutchinson and Carson counties were posted at $1.25 a barrel.

This action, Humble officials state is necessary on account of inability to secure a market outlet for Panhandle crude. TWO DEPUTIES FACE CHARGES

Extortion Claims Advanced Against Officers By Their Prisoners

HOUSTON, Sept. 23.(AP) — J. J. (Jim) Shown and W. C. Schubert, deputy city marshals of the city of Harrisburg, a Houston suburb, were indicted by the Harris county grand jury Thursday on charges of extortion and embezzlement.

The indictments were the result of a more or less extended investigation of the grand jury into charges of E. A. Welsh, oil company clerk, that the Harrisburg officers attempted to extort money from him when he was "arrested" with a girl companion, several weeks ago, as they were parked off the public road near Manchester.

Welsh said he gave the officers $16 in money and a check for $14 as a cash bond. Later, he stopped payment on the check.

Deputy Sheriff Shown said he was guilty of no wrong doing.

"If the public knew one-tenth of what we officers have to contend with, they would not be so ready to criticize," he asserted and added that "the whole truth will come out in the final trial. I am confident of an acquittal."

Deputy Schubert would make no comment on the indictments.

TROOPS CHASE YAQUI TRIBES

Mexico Enlarges Forces For Pursuit Against Rebel Units

GUAYMAS, Sonora, Mexico, Sept. 23.(AP)—The small military guard at Magdelene has been removed to augment the federal soldiery operating against the Yaqui Indians in southern Sonora. Similar shifting of troops is evident at Hermosillo, capital of the state, and at Empalme and Guaymas.

Although the communities are left unprotected, there is little fear of a Yaqui attack as their numerical deficiency makes it impossible for them ot hold the towns after capture.

A band of 60 Yaquis are known to be enroute to small towns near the international boundary line in search of supplies. Raiding parties yesterday raided a ranch at San Francisco, a village between Ures and Hermosillo, where they took provisions, but harmed no one. They told ranchers their quarrel was with the government, not with the people. Federal authorities expect the Indians between Ures and Hermosillo to strike a blow at the military's communication and transportation facilities, but immediate repairs are available in such an event.

CHILDREN'S FESTIVAL

The home of Mr. and Mrs. Chet Wims, at 508 West Elm street, was the scene of a gathering of happy children Monday afternoon, the occasion being in honor of the eighth birthday of James Clifford Wims.

Lawn games were features of the afternoon's entertainment, at the close of which delicious refreshments were served. Easier Riding and Longer Life for Your Car

How comfortably your car rides, and how easy it is to handle, depend to a great extent on the care you give it.

Less vibration and fewer road shocks; easier and safer steering; less wear and tear; and longer life for your car will result, if you will see that it is regularly greased.

The springs, shackle bolts, steering gear, brake controls, fan, wheel bearings and other points on the chassis require lubrication regularly—as well as do the motor, the transmission and the differential.

Most cars built today are equipped with Alemite or Zerk high-pressure fittings—and it is an easy job to give the chassis bearings a fresh supply of lubricant every 1,000 miles.

There is a Humble Dealer near you. He can supply the correct lubricant for every bearing in your car, and has the equipment to do the job for you quickly and efficiently.

The treasurer reported $1,250.50 collected by the class the past year.

HOOT GIBSON ON SCREEN AT GARDEN

"The Man In the Saddle," the latest Universal-Jewel production starring Hoot Gibson, will be the feature attraction here at the Garden Theatre Friday and Saturday, and the many fans of that popular western star have a decided treat in store for them, for this production has been heralded as one of the very best he has ever made.

The mixture of comedy and thrills which has made Gibson's pictures internationally popular are promised in large and pleasing doses in this production.

Gibson is supported by an unusually large cast of well-known players. Fay Wray, one of the most popular of the screen's young actresses, plays the feminine lead opposite the star.

Sally Long, formerly a well-known stage dancer, has an important role, as have Charles Hill Mailes, Emmett King, Clark Comstock, Yorke Sherwood, Duke R. Lee, William Dyer and others.

The picture is based on an original photoplay written by Charles A. Logue of the scenario staff of Universal Pictures Corporation and was directed by Clifford S. Smith.

Breckenridge Has Big School Gains

BRECKENRIDGE, Sept. 23.—Attendance upon the Breckenridge public schools which opened this week will be far in excess of that of last year, according to indications available on the second morning of the opening. The schedule of the new Junior high school had been made upon a basis of an attendance of 485 students, that number being entitled to attendance upon that institution upon the basis of last year's graduations, but the number which showed up for registration the first morning reached 536. The total enrollment in this institution is likely to be 600.

What is known as the platoon and junior high system, with modification by Superintendent L. T. Cook and his assistants, has been put into effect here this year. One new building is being added to the system, a structure to house the north ward, or platoon. This building is not yet completed and will not be for several weeks.

SCENE FROM "THE CAVE MAN," A Warner Picture

WILD HORSE STAMPEDE IS MISSION PICTURE

One of the most beautiful scenic spots in the world appears in "The Wild Horse Stampede" the Universal Blue-Streak western starring Jack Hoxie, which comes to the Mission Theatre soon.

Exteriors for the picture were made near Lone Pine, California, in the heart of the Sierra Nevada mountain range in Southern California and the camera has recorded some exceptionally beautiful shots.

Lone Pine is a little mining and ranching town, huddled in a broad valley, with towering mountains fringing it on all sides. Not far away stands Mt. Whitney, highest point in the United States, silently contemptuous of the lesser peaks.

Less than fifty miles away is Mt. Whitney's deady enemy—its exact opposite. It is Death Valley, the lowest point in America, and with one exception (the Dead Sea) the lowest point in the world. On Mt. Whitney is perpetual snow; in Death Valley is perpetual desolation, withering heat and waste spaces filled with treacherous quicksand and poisonous gases coming from the alkali formation.

Lone Pine itself is a typical mountain town, located in the midst of a succession of valleys. It is supported by ranches in neighboring valleys, and by the mines in the nearby mountains.

Hoxie, star of the picture, owns a ranch in the valleys surrounding Lone Pine, and spends most of his vacation periods in the mountains so whenever possible he arranges location trips there while making his film productions.

Albert Rogell, Hoxie's director included much of the beautiful scenery in "The Wild Horse Stampede," as a fitting background to the dramatic and thrilling story which is unfolded in the picture.

FLAPPER TAMED IN STRAND FILM

When a flapper tries to tame a cave man she is more likely to find herself the tamed one, according to the latest Warner Bros. film, "The Cave Man," which opens today at the Strand Theater.

Matt Moore has undergone an astonishing metamorphosis for this production and makes his characterization of Smagg, the coal heaver, stand out strongly after all the timid, faltering youths of his screen past. Moore is a grimy, husky, aggressive he-man in this film version of Gilette Burgess's story and does the best work of his career.

Marie Prevost, as ever, is a delight to watch, and is perfect as the pampered little beauty who goes in search of a thrill and finds more than she expected.

John Patrick, Myrna Loy, Phyllis Haver and Hedda Hopper give consistently entertaining performances in a photoplay packed with humor, romance and drama; and "The Cave Man" is certain to please all picture-goers. Lewis Milestone directed.

Burglaries Baffle Breckenridge Police

BRECKENRIDGE, Sept. 23.—Police are working on a series of burglaries here which have baffled all efforts to trace down parties responsible during the last week.

A number of prominent homes have been entered, usually in the early hours of the morning and considerable money, left in the pockets of trousers or in ladies purses stolen.

Among the homes entered was that of J. D. Sanderfor Jr., son of the president of Simmons university, who took two shots at the intruders when his wife awakened by the noise they made, screamed and aroused her husband.

SHALL DEBTS BE CANCELED?

SHALL the war loans be canceled? Newton D. Baker, formerly secretary of war in the cabinet of Woodrow Wilson, says they should be canceled. Irving Fisher, professor of economics of Yale university, says they should be canceled. William Jennings Bryan, now in his grave, was the first of distinguished Americans to advance the idea that the war debts should be canceled.

Newton D. Baker is the attorney of a great financial institution in the city of Cleveland, and he is the personal attorney of the Van Sweringens, the most remarkable railroad operators of the day. Fisher is one of the foremost of living economists. Newton D. Baker says every loan was due to the war. These are his words:

"The fact is that not a penny of this money would have been lent by us or have been borrowed by any of our debtor nations but for the war." Therefore, in the opinion of the former secretary, cancelation of war debts should be the order of the day. Speaking as an individual, the distinguished son of Ohio writes:

"It was bad policy for us to permit England to assume the burden involved in our settlement, and the dollars she pays will be dearly bought if they prolong by a day the recovery of England and her colonies from the sacrifices they made in the world war."

Canada made many sacrifices. Canada is more prosperous today than at any time in her history. Australia made many sacrifices. Australia shows no signs of financial decay or of approaching disaster on account of the world war. There is one telling point made by this former cabinet officer. It follows:

"In a very real sense, therefore, European buying in the world market is a decisive factor in maintaining the price of our entire home product. Any table which analizes and compares our exports and imports, will show that every industry in America, including agriculture, depends for its prosperity upon an overseas outlet for our surplus, and, of course, an overseas outlet depends upon there being people who not only want our goods but also have money to pay for them which we can afford to take. The argument is therefore irresistable, not only that America has an interest in general rehabilitation and the maintenance of world peace, but that our own continued prosperity requires it."

Before the coming of the world war Great Britain and Germany were the largest foreign buyers of American cotton. They are the largest foreign buyers today. American cotton growers realize that there must be a heavy foreign demand to take the surplus of the annual American crop. If this demand does not come, or is not created, then the price of cotton is certain to be below 20c. There are other countries besides ours where cotton is grown.

Speaking of wheat, there are 38 wheat producing countries. When the yield is normal in all these countries there is certain to be a surplus of low price American wheat. Foreign made goods are shut out of the American market by American tariff laws. Foreign hand workers and laborers are shut out of America by the immigration act. These nations of Europe owe the American people eleven billion dollars. They cannot sell their goods here. They cannot send their surplus workers here to earn a living under American skies. Most of the gold in the world is controlled by the United States.

Newton D. Baker is ready to exchange the war loans made by America for a European market for American goods and the good will of the peoples of Europe. He contends that if his observations are sound, "the United States is not justified either in morals or in a long view of its own best industrial and commercial interests in adhering to its present policy with regard to the settlement of the interallied debts."

And he makes bold to submit the following: "The time has come when these questions, including the British settlement, ought to be reopened. Personally, I believe that a mutual cancelation policy will be wise." This is the Baker plan for winning the markets of Europe for American products and the good will of Europe for the sellers of the United States. Of course, cancelation all around carry with it the information that if the war loans are canceled the people of the United States must pay the eleven billion dollars advanced to the allied nation before and after the war of wars.

Irving Fisher, the economist, makes this significant assertion: "Every economic argument against cancelation crumbles when we touch it. The eleven billion we would seem to lose is already virtually cut into, and what is left, if ever paid, will, in the effort to pay, so cripple Europe as a trader that we stand to lose in our foreign trade more than we stand to gain from the debt payments."

Professor Fisher is a direct action advocate. This is his slogan: "The great problem today is peace. Let us have peace. If canceling the debts fully will help us to peace, let us cancel the debts fully." Since the close of the war, American banks and American bankers have loaned to European nations and individuals billions of dollars.

Its a huge sum, in its bulk, and the cancelation of the war loan would make the private loans of American banks and bankers gilt edged to say the least. These socalled international bankers of America are almost to a man for the cancelation of war loans. And Andrew W. Mellon is quoted by Newton D. Baker as having said in a speech in Philadelphia on the 24 of March:

"The farmer or the laboring man would rather have a market for our surplus in Europe than save a dollar of federal taxes. A business man would prefer making a hundred dollars in his business than be repaid five dollars of a debt."

Is cancelation of war loans to be a paramount issue of the future? Unless the signs of the times are misleading the issue is coming.

MEXICAN JUSTICE

WHY point the finger of scorn at Mexico? Why sneer at Mexican law enforcement? Why speak of the Mexicans as ignorant and superstitious and lawless?

Jacob Rosenthal, an American citizen in Mexico, was murdered by bandits. First he was abducted and when the ransome was not paid Rosenthal was slain. Now what did the Mexican government do? How did all the powerful officials act? They sent a detachment of soldiers in pursuit of the bandits, the abductors and slayers of Rosenthal. They surrounded the band. They shot into bloody graves 13 of their rascals.

This should appeal to the Texas editors and law reformers who are groaning for swifter justice and fewer technicalities. Now what happens when a Mexican is murdered in an American commonwealth? Whoever heard of a governor or the president of the United States or a general in command of troops sending a detachment of soldiers to round up the slayer or slayers of the Mexican and shooting the fugitives into eternal sleep.

It is never done.

It is not the custom.

Truth is, the life of a Mexican is as cheap as the life of a dog in certain sections under the flag of the free. "He is just a Mexican" and let it go at that. The murder of Jacob Rosenthal has been avenged. There are 13 bloody bandits in bloody graves in Mexico.

Truth is, again, there are more murders in Texas or South Carolina or Tennessee or Florida in a year than happens in Mexico in five years. It may not be popular to discuss the red handed gunmen who flourishes under the folds of Old Glory but he is in Texas and every other southern state. He is to be found in nearly every northern state.

He isn't to be found in Canada or wherever the British flag floats in the upper country that east territory lying north of the United States boundary line and south of the North Pole. Gunmen are put away under the northern light and red handed murderers are sent to the gallows.

Former Governor Pat Neff is responsible for the statement that there was a thousand homicides in Texas during the four years he served the people as their governor.

If accurate, a most shocking condition of affairs.

Moreovor on the Texas side of the Rio Grande, the people are all civilized; on he Mexican side of he Rio Grande they are said to be superstitious and ignorant.

HAINES AS A PROPHET

COLONEL H. H. HAINES, nominee for governor on the republican ticket and touring the state, predicts many G. O. P. Legislators for Texas after the next election. There are two in the 39th. Senator Julius Real is a republican, elected from a democratic district by an overwhelming democratic majority two years ago. There is a republican in the house from the Guadlupe-Comal legislative district. The same district will send a republican this year. An aggressive minority party would be a grand thing for Texas. An aggressive minority party is a grand thing for any commonwealth.

The Answer Was "No It Didn't"

The Challenge of the Snake

Meigo O. Frost

"Months ago it began, that idiot quarrel, after the dance at 'Boulou Lafont's hall at Cheniere Crevette," the old man explained in the racing Cajun argot. "You Perrin, his skin full of vin rouge, like the other young fools, he danced that night with many. But much with Armaid Chighizola. Hot words he and Jacqueline gave one another, after the manner of children. In the morning, he sailed with the shrimp fleet. Jacqueline like the young fool she is, wept night on night, thereafter. Then she placed silver in the hand of that accursed Tante Melancon. For some magic power of love that would bring him back to her, comprehend? The young imbecile! And Tante Melancon, be sure, is nothing if she be not the creature of Zombi Le Veau."

A momentary picture of the old swamp negress, stooped, wizened of face, her agate-like animal eyes gleaming beneath the vivid colors of her bright turban, flashed before the little priest's brain.

"There is no more to tell, Antoine," he said.

"There is indeed," the old man's hoarse voice affirmed. "Name of a name, but there is more!"

He scowled blackly. "Day after day, I find, Tante Melancon plays with my little girl as cat plays with mouse. Love powders and little crossed sticks and waxen images. So Tante Melancon, she must make greater Voudou yet, she tells Jacqueline. That of a surety will bring back her lover. By then I think the girl was mad. And that witch of hell reveals to her that the king of all Voudou on the coast—he vral roi—he has consented to help her. Who, thinks you? Yes, indeed, Zombi Le Veau!"

"Ah!" The gaps were bridged now in the mind of Father Duchassois. All but one.

Antoine Paincourt spoke swiftly as the St. Rita drove on in the dark. "In the cabin of that accursed Tante Melancon they met Zombi Le Veau and my little girl," he said, deep in his throat. "All this, Pere Duchassois, she told her mother and her mother, me. That sauvabe, he tells her that she must bring Perrin Desmare close to the gates of death to win him back to life and her arms. Ah, the Diablerie to which they pledged her! Le signe de la mort! The mark of death!"

"Le signe de la mort?" questioned Father Girault.

"It was a piece of board made black with tar, Pere Girault," said the girl's father with a blasting curse at the deadly mummery. "Spotted with the grease of candle-driggins. On all four corners, candles of wax stuck in their own grease. Pins around the edges, as one places fence-posts. And in the center, formed of tar, a little coffin. In the coffin, a small waxen image. And in the breast of the image, a gilded mimosa thorn barely thrust so that it stood upright."

Ominously glittered the blue eyes of Father Duchassois. This is his parish!

"Go on, Antoine!" he commanded. "Go on."

"C'est incroyable, Pere Girault," said the old man hoarsely. "Could I believe it, had she not told her mother, and her mother, me? Jamais de la vie! Each day she was to press that gilded thorn a little deeper in the breast of that accursed figure of wax. Pains would strike at the heart of Perrin Desmare. He would come back to her. Dying. She would draw out the thorn. He would be well again—and hers. That pitiful girl; she was in their hands by then."

In the eyes of the little priest who listened, there shone clear and steady flame.

"And then, Antoine?"

"One night only my girl pressed in that thorn. It seemed to pierce her own heart, she told her mother. The accursed thing she took and threw in the fire, sprinkling on it holy water from the little shell by her Prie dieu and crossing herself lest the devil spring forth and seize her. Next day she went to the cabin of Tante Melancon and told what she had done. She would tell both you, Pere Girault, and young Perrin Desmare, of their unholy work, she said. That was the day, you see, old Pierre Tournelle was stricken by the fever. Then his wife died. Then their children. And the fever spread, as all men know.

"Then it was that Tante Melancon came shuffling up to Jacqueline one day to give Zombi Le Veau's message. Know you that message, Pere Girault? For her defiance, Zombi Le Veau through Voudou had sent the fever to the south coast. Her mother was to die. I, her father, was to die. Perrin Desmare was to die. There was but one way, said Tante Melancon, that the curse could be lifted. On St. John's Eve she must bow before the Altar of Gran' Zombi, the Voudou snake-god from which Zombi Le Veau takes his name. Then the fever would leave the coast.

"Night after night the girl prayed, her mother told me, Pere Girault. Cold fear was paralyzing her brain. Today she boarded Zombi Le Veau's boat down by Tante Melancon's shack. They went into the heart of the deep swamp. Children playing by the bank saw them leave, and told us. She is there, now, in his hands. There is no more to tell."

"From all that I have heard," the Priest then said quietly, "It is midnight at least before the Voudou rites grow uncontrolled. We will be at Ribault Cheniere an hour before then."

"We can't be there any too quick, padre."

It was the voice of Bink Buckingham, who stood framed in the little companionway.

"An' don't make no mistake, Padre," he added calmly. "There'll be hell a-poppin 'fore we get outa there, or Idone made a bad bust sizin' up that Zombi feller."

He stepped to the narrow berth. From its rough gray blanket he raised a heavy weapon he had tossed there in the swift transfer from the Wild Horse.

"Got any gun-oil aboard, padre?" he asked, unconcernedly. "I ain't used this baby for a long time. She sure needs t' have her innards greased."

Through black and winding bayous the St. Rita drove.

Hours it seemed to them they drove endlessly on. There was no talk among them now. Each man knew what he faced. Each man knew what he feared. Young Perrin Desmare held to the wheel. On deck beside him Pere Girault and old Antoine stood staring into the sluicing dark. Alone in the little cabin, the old guide labored with oil and cloth on the strange and heavy weapon.

It was the voice of young Perrin Desmare that broke the silence following a volley of rolling thunder of the south coast storm. They had surged around a bend, out from behind a high barrier of roseaucane. To the reach of the young man's hand the little searchlight of the St. Rita winked out; the motor was throttled to half-speed.

"Pere Girault," he called, his voice quivering within agony of youthful impatience. "That black ridge over the marsh to starboard—that is Ribault Cheniere."

Like fireflies in the distance over the level marsh, twinkled the fitful flame of pine-knot fires kindled beneath small shelters of palm thatch.

Questions from the World of Love Answered by a Noted Authority

Thousands of Men Fail in Business Because Their Wives Don't Know How to Feed Them or Because Their Minds Are Clouded by Nagging and Quarrels at Home—Keep the Husband Who Works For You Contented and He'll succeed.

Women think about making a happy home as merely an ethical problem, but it isn't only that. It is a business proposition as well, and it is just as much money in their pockets as it is happiness in their hearts to keep their husbands in love with them and the domestic machinery running on oiled wheels.

The average wife does not realize that the successful marriage pays dividends in dollars and cents as well as in bliss, and that the way she treats her husband determines his earning capacity to a large extent. And it would amaze her beyond measure to learn that a contented husband can get more credit at the bank than a disgruntled one. Yet such is the actual fact.

The other day the president of a large business concern said that he kept careful tab on the domestic relations of his customers, and that he extended liberal credit to a man who had a happy home, who was fond of his wife and proud of his children, because he had found that such a man was willing to work his fingers to the bone for his family, and he nearly always prospered.

But, on the other hand, he regarded as a poor risk a man whose home was a place of torment and who was always quafreling and fighting with his wife. Experience showed that such a man nearly always failed in business as he had in marriage.

Observation bears out this theory about a man's prosperity and his domestic happiness going hand in hand. Run over in your mind the list of your divorced friends and acquaintances and you will be amazed to find how often financial bankruptcy has followed spiritual bankruptcy.

You will also find that the fortunes of nearly every man who has forsaken an old wife for a new one have somehow been mysteriously blighted, and you will find that the solid men of every community, the men who own the banks, the factories and fine shops, and who run the big enterprises are nearly all Darbys who think their middle-aged Joans the most beautiful women in the world and who can't be pried away from their own firesides.

Now, inasmuch as a man's success depends largely upon what sort of a home he has, it is up to the wife to make him a happy home and to keep him in love with her, not only because it is the easiest thing to do, but just as a mere matter of policy. It is the easiest way for her to gratify her ambition, for whatever of power and place and luxury comes to the average woman must come to her through her husband. She rises or falls with him.

To begin with, a woman can increase her husband's earning capacity by the sort of housekeeper she is. A lot of women think that it don't make any difference whether you feed a man out of tin cans and paper bags or not, if he will stand for it, and they never realize that food supplies the fuel that makes the human engine go.

So they will send a man off to work in the morning with a skimpy breakfast, or no breakfast at all, or some indigestible mess that he has scrambled together himself, and then they wonder that he doesn't get along in business or that he breaks down with some sort of stomach trouble by the time he is 45,

Lyrics of Life

By Douglas Malloch

"AMERICAN"

No rich and proud and powdered dame
Grandmother was. This rugged land
To which she came
Required the sort of woman's hand
That fits the plough, the sort of heart
Courageous in a rainless year,
The sort of art
To spin a shirt or yoke a steer.

I know not whom or what her kin,
I only know she crossed the seas.
She may have been
Kindred of kings, or slave of these.
What matter? She was done with kings.
Whatever race she may have known,
Among new things
In this new land, she made her own.

And I would rather be the spawn
Of some new race, a race like mine,
A race at dawn,
Than weakling of some fading line.
Whatever ancient race or clan
Another boasts his house to be,
"American"
Is the race and clan enough for me.

Tomorrow: "One Little Lamp."

What Do You Know About It?

Daily Science Six

1. Why does the wind whistle when it blows.
2. Can sound be reflected like light?
3. Why is the noise of stones struck together when performed and heard under water so much louder than in air?
4. If there were no one to hear it, would an explosion make a noise?
5. Can the wind change the form of rocks?
6. Are there any sounds than cannot be detected by the human ear?

Answer to these questions in tomorrow's Record News.

Whispering Galleries

Accoustics, the science of sound, is imperfectly understood. Occasionaly it happens that sounds merely whispered in one part of a building are heard in another as a loud voice. This is usually not intended by the builder, and happens most often under domes. In the Capitol building at Washington, in the old central part built before the modern wings, there is a place in the crypt where the voice carriers in this way—two places, in fact. It so happens that they are in opposite ends of the rotunda which the legislators used to use for a meeting place, and the Demcorats gathered at one end and the Republicans at the other, until they found that their whispered words of colloquy were sometimes plainly audible to their opponents.

Now what do you know about that?

Answers to yesterday's questions:

1. The frilled lizard runs on two legs only.
2. The glass snake, which is not a snake but a legless lizard, has a tail which is so brittle that it will break off if seized.
3. The slow-worm is neither a worm nor a snake, nor is it blind as supposed, but a legless, earth-burrowing lizard.
4. The most important difference between worms and snakes is that worms have no spinal cord, nor distinct head and no scales; snakes have a spinal cord, a distinct head, with brain, eyes, mouth and nose, and are provided with scales.
5. Snakes, of a very poisonous nature, are found in the Indian Ocean.
6. A gila monster is a lizard-like reptile with a poisonous bite, living in the Southwestern deserts.

Caddie—Aren't you going to hit the ball, sir?

Boss—Tell Smith and Jenkins to come over here for a conference! Smith, what do you think about me hitting the ball under existing conditions?

Smith—Well, sir—

Boss—Don't argue with me! Don't you dare argue with me! I won't have it! Take the following letter, Jenkins: Gentlemen: Yours of 3rd. inst., at hand, and in reply to same will say that I will hit the ball—Jenkins, what do you think about this, anyway? Your opinion is highly valuable to me.

Jenkins—I think it would be a good idea to go ahead and hit it, sir.

Boss—Shut up! I'll do as I darned please! Who are you to talk to me like that? I don't need advice! Well, I guess I'll hit the ball. Hand me the putter, boy!

Caddie—But, please, sir, you surely don't want the putter! You mean the driver!

Boss—Shut up! You're fired! You too, Jenkins, you laughed just then—out you go! You're fired, too, Smith—get out! Will somebody please take this dictation? Gentlemen: Yours of 3rd, inst., at hand and contents duly noted. In reply to same, will say—Oh, never mind! It's five o'clock and time to go home!

I shake hands again and again. I see ther to the train and then I stand outside and insist that they talk through the window to me. Of course, folks don't like that kind of farewell. I don't care. I stand and talk until the train is gone and then I wave my hand sadly. Really, I am usually glad they are going but farewells are always sad to me.

THE PROPER END OF A CADDY

In a southern town is a lady, socially prominent, who enjoys the reputation of being a modern Mrs. Malaprop. She is credited with having said once that she intended to hire a local clay modeler to make a bust of her hand. On another occasion, referring to a trip she had taken in an aeroplane, she said she certainly was glad when the machine descended and she set foot once more on terra cotta. The latest speech attributed to her had to do with the ancient game of Scotia.

"I've often thought," she said to a friend, "that I'd like to take up golf, but somehow I've never gotten 'round to it. Why if I wanted to hit the ball I wouldn't know which end of the caddy to take hold of."

New Orleans Smashes Dallas In Dixie Series Opener By 5-1 Score

Pelican Bludgeoners Tear Back Against Slim Love in Seventh-Round Rally For Five Runs.

NEW ORLEANS, Sept. 23. (AP)—Dallas' Texas league champions succumbed before the slugging New Orleans Southern association pennant winners, 5 to 1, here today in the first game of the Dixie series. The Pelicans pushed across all their runs in the seventh inning at the close of which the tilt was halted by darkness.

Whaley, Hendrick and Deal proved more efficient than their team mates in solving the offerings of "Slim" Love, lanky Steer port sider. Love held the Pelicans well under control in the first half dozen innings, though he had men on the bases in every frame. The breaks favored Dallas until the seventh. During the early innings, several of Larry Gilbert's sluggers smashed balls into the stands or over the fence, which lacked only a few feet of being fair.

Martina, veteran New Orleans hurler, and Love, both were wild, "Oyster Joe" walking nine batters and the left handed Texan issuing six bases on balls. Their inability to put the ball across the plate with regularity was the main reason that the affair lasted two hours and thirty-five minutes.

Errorless Ball.

Although both clubs played errorless ball, they could have fielded much faster. The only sensational catch of the day was made by Martina in the fifth when he jumped several feet into the air and snatched a fast ball from Brainard's bat with his bare right hand and threw the runner out at first. The Pelican moundsmer also executed a "brainy" play in the seventh when he bunted with the bases full and two out.

Harvey Hendrick, runner-up to Tommy Taylor for batting honors in the Southern association distinguished himself on the bases.

Morse, Dallas second baseman, was the only Steer able to hit in a pinch. His playing on the defense also was flawless.

Many supporters of the home team had decided that Dallas would beat New Orleans when the last half of the seventh inning began. They were discouraged because ten Pelicans had died on the runways. However, when the birds finally began hitting one after another it seemed for a short while that Dallas would require an hour to retire them.

Hendrick, first Orleanean to bat in the final inning, beat out a grounder to short. He went to second when Vick, the next man up, singled. Love then walked Tucker and with the bases full, Manager Larry Gilbert sent Lengle in to pinch hit for Ostergard who had been fanned twice by the Steer pitching ace. Lingle hit a grounder to Love who relayed the ball to Billings, Hendrick being put out at home plate. The bases remained loaded as Lingle was safe at first.

Love Stronger.

The first New Orleans runs were made when Deal knocked a one bagger, Vick and Tucker scoring. Love strengthened momentarily, striking out Ewoldt. Then he walked Dowie, filling the sacks. Martina bunted down the first base line. Love grabbed the ball while it seemed headed for the foul line and failed in his attempt to throw Lingle out at home. With three Pelicans on the bases again, Whaley doubled to left field. Deal and Dowie both reaching home safely. Woeber then caught the ball Hendrick drove to left field and the contest was called off.

The Steers scored their lone counter in the second inning when a double by Morse came with Tate on second base. Tate had been walked by Martina.

Dallas had runners on the bases in every inning except the fifth, the only frame in which the Texas leaguers sent but three men to bat.

Officials announced that 8,663 persons paid $14,388 to see the initial game. Luther Roy, ace of the Pelicans hurling staff is due to undertake the task of repulsing Dallas tomorrow. Hunter, a fast ball artist, is expected to be the pitching choice of "Snipe" Conley, Steer manager.

PHILLIES HOLD CINCY TO 6-6 IN 15 INNINGS

Rixey And Donohue Give Up 11 Hits, Reds Wallop Out 15

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 23. (AP)—The battling Cincinnati Reds hanging desperately on the tail of the league leading St. Louis Cardinals, today forced the Phillies to go 15 innings before darkness finally ended the contest with the score 6-6. Carlson was invincible in the pinches and showed no signs of weakening under the Onionns attack although the game went well over two hours. Donohue also held the Phillies scoreless after the eighth inning when they took the lead by a two run rally, only to lose it in the same inning by the tying Cincinnati score. It was nip and tuck game throughout. Hal Carlson, was in a couple of tight places in the over-time innings, Dressen made four of the Reds' fifteen hits. Walker had three. Sothorn and Pipp hit home runs.

Trinity Looms Hard to Aggies

Bible's Farmers Square Off With Holton's Tigers Today

COLLEGE STATION, Sept. 23.—The A. & M. football team will go to Waxahachie for the game Friday with Trinity University realizing it will play a team that will be hard to defeat. Last year Barry Holton's Trinity Tigers outplayed the Aggies for three quarters, and only by a fourth quarter spurt was the A. & M. eleven able to come out on top of a 20 to 10 score.

Coach D. X. Bible of the Aggies points out that his team has an unusually large squad, and that in fairness to the men he must give every player a chance to make the eleven. In doing this he has no opportunity to develop thoroughly team play and will not have until after the season is well under way. Coach Holton has a small squad and already has determined upon his season's line-up, and has had a chance to develop teamwork. This fact gives the Waxahachie mentor a big advantage in the coming game.

Start Hunt at Quarter

Coach Bible is expected to start Joel Hunt of Waco at quarter, V. W. Woodmen of Austin and Happy Colgin of Gatesville at halves, and J. A. Simmons of Denton at fullback. Among the backfield players who are certain to be used in this game are W. D. Willis of Dallas, the star forward passers; D. C. Arnold of Del Rio, and H. E. Burgess of Hale Center. F. H. Weston, who is on the injured list, will be used if in condition.

Babe Watts of Austin will be center; J. A. Rektorik of Violet and H. P. Wylie of Dallas will be at guards; Captain "Ox" Dieterich of Dallas and Z. W. Bartlett of Marlin will start at tackles, and J. V. Sikes of Leonard and P. M. Price of Honey Grove will be at the end positions.

Play Straight Game

Among the other linesmen who are almost certain to be used during the contest are J. A. Deffenbach, Fort Worth, end; W. L. Crawford, Palestine, tackle; E. J. Mosher, Dallas, tackle; J. G. Holmes, Arlington, tackle; W. R. Bodine, Temple, and G. M. Wren, College Station, guards.

It is believed here that Coach Bible will resort only to straight football, with an occasional forward pass. Z. W. Bartlett, a tackle, will do the punting.

Given Little More Practice and Mitchell's Childress Club May Have Poured It On Amarillo

Bobcats Lost on Fumble, 6-0; But They'll Make it Tough on Grid Opposition Rest of Season.

BY BLONDY CROSS.
Record News Sports Editor.

CHILDRESS, Sept 23.—Just a gentle tip.

Football teams of north Texas and the panhandle • • • BEWARE!

Mitchell has a potential winner here in this city at present, a combination of raw-boned, clean-living farmer boys, ranchers and blacksmiths.

The Childress eleven stands on the files of the University of Texas interscholastic league office as a class B team, and being such mingles only with class B competition until it proves too good for its class and then goes after the larger clubs in the A division. But the Bobcats in the true sense compose no class B team. If prospects and pre-season dope means anything Coach J. O. Mitchell has a class double A machine in the embryo.

Brother, if you're not a real honest-to-goodness he-man weighing at least 170 pounds you're almost ineligible to try out for the Childress eleven.

They're nearly all big fellows, young giants competing for positions on Mitchell's squad.

Green Squad

Quite a coincidence, Mitchell's just a little man, while his athletes are heavyweights.

Mitchell has a comparatively green mass of first class material to work with. Not many of the boys are veterans. Some never handled a football before, but Mitchell is said to be thoroughly capable of working off most of the rougher edges, and turning out a finished product.

A green and untrained Childress team battled the formidable class A Amarillo eleven to a 6-0 score last week at the Childress state fair.

Childress lost the game, but in holding the Golden Sandstorm to such a close count Childress really scored a victory, if you know what we mean.

Mitchell's green and untried squad of young giants displayed the fighting spirit that wins in the end. Given several weeks of intensive practice and coaching, then Childress can whip the Amarillo team that invaded the Bobcat lair last week to a frazzle.

Capt. Sport Real Fullback

Amarillo was in far better condition than the Bobcats. But at that, the Childress defense was superb. The Sandstorm couldn't accomplish anything in the way of a consistant attack. The lone touchdown came as result of a fumble.

Childress' offense was ragged, ragged because the boys needed practice. But when Captain Ross Sport, 205-pound fullback and one of the fastest men who ever stepped upon a gridiron, gets started and the rest of his backfield begins swingin into condition somebody's going to realize a number of mighty tough breaks and it won't be Childress.

New Athletic Club At Childress Plans Grid Competition

CHILDRESS, Sept. 23.—A meeting of the West End Shop boys was held Tuesday nigh tat the Y. M. C. A. for the purpose of organizing an athletic club. The need of some form of organization to care for the athletic and recreational activities of the shop boys, has long been felt.

One of the first things to be undertaken by the new organization will be the organization of a football team, not for professional playing, but more for the recreation and sport.

It has been arranged for the club to get the use of the municipal gymnasium on Saturday nights when there will be boxing matches staged. Football practice will be held daily at 5:30. Coach Mitchell of the Childress high school Bobcats, has promised them a scrimmage game in the near future.

INDIANS SET FOR FT. SILL

Ludgate Grooms His College Crew For Battle Saturday

Coach H. T. Ludgate of Wichita Falls Junior college is figuring on the Saturday melee with the soldiers of Fort Sill to be the best way to take stock of his gang and is venturing no optimistic pre-season dope except to say that he believes that his bunch have it in them to win. In preparation for the contest he has been putting his two dozen aspirants through the hardest kind of training this week, including tackling and blocking, pushing cars full of spectators round the field, relays to develop speed, kicking and running down punts, and signal drill a plenty.

Here is the field from which Ludgate will choose his opening line-up: halves, Captain Stephenson, Peery, McConnell, Keller, Dixon; fullback, McAninch; ends, Bland, Ford, Scoggin, Williams, King, Woig, Young; guards, Thompson, Trevathan, Ricks, Shepherd; center, Patterson; quarters, Harvey and Coffey; tackles, Burks, Gilchrist, Mitchelrea, Rosser. In many positions it will be a toss-up as to who will get first call, according to Ludgate, and practically all men will get a tryout Saturday.

Mustangs Go To First Test Friday

S. M. U. Gridders Will Play North Texas State Teachers Team

DALLAS, Sept. 23.(AP)—The first college football game of the year is scheduled here Friday when the S. M. U. Mustangs and the North Texas State Teachers' college eleven of Denton meet in the new Owenby stadium. A crowd close to 10,000 are expected to witness the game.

Coach Ray Morrison put his squad through a light workout Thursday afternoon consisting of punting, passing and signal drill After the practice session Morrison said he would not name his opening line-up until five minutes before the game started.

"I may send in my shock troops to wear the teachers down and then rush my regulars into the game to bring home the victory," Coach Morrison said. "I do not know what to expect from the opposition. Apparently they have a strong team of veterans, I remember two years ago when we played them we were lucky to get away with a 7-0 victory."

R. L. Waters, guard; Count Mays, guard; Alex Hooks, end; and Earnest Hudson are not in shape to play and will see the game from the side lines.

The Mustangs will be without a captain. Coach Morrison said he would name a man to call the toss of the coin but he would not be in any way a leader. The Mustang's captain will be named next week when the Trinity Tigers play here.

Coyotes Expect Tough Game At Lawton Today

Sooner meat was the objective of Bud McCallum's Coyotes when they entrained a-Ford-back for Lawton, Okla., early this morning. The contest scheduled at Lawton for this afternoon will be the second practice match for the Red and Black, who won over the Walters, Okla., Purple Devils Saturday by three touchdowns, 19-0.

McCallum is expecting a much heavier battle in the Lawton game than the first one turned out to be. While some progress was made during the past week's scrimmage session, each scrimmage only served to emphasize more that the pack was relatively inexperienced and therefore of doubtful power in a real test with a team of veterans opposing. The line especially still seemed very much in need of plentiful corrective practice. The backfield, even though it showed much promise in the Walters set-to, is also relatively green for league competition. There is much hard work ahead of coach and team before a real contender can be shaped out of the group of a half dozen letter men and the new material.

A final survey of last year's letter men returned looks less promising than at first thought. Letter men include Downing, guard, Pinney, center, Dobson, end, Hunky Ray, guard, Dobson, end, and Francis, quarterback. Only three of these men are really ready for Saturday's fray, Pinney being out entirely with a shoulder injury that is not mending as rapidly as desirable, Mitchell finding it hard to get into form since coming out Tuesday, and Francis being handicapped by a recalcitrant ankle that has needed the support of bandages all the week. Francis is the only one of the trio expected to get in.

Golden's Outfit Goes To Oil Town For Embroglio Today

A change in plans sends the Coyote Pups of Junior High school against Olney High school today instead of Archer City as originally planned. Coaches Lewis and Golden will depart at noon with 23 grid warriors for an overland trip, the game being scheduled for four o'clock Friday. This will be the opener for the Junior practice season.

Coaches announced as the probable line-up the following: Jimmie Brannon, center; John Bell and W. T. Faye, guards; Clarence Bains and Ross Saye, tackles; G. O. Williams and Ray George, ends; Dale Carter, quarterback; O. L. Beach and Cleve Moss, halves; Spencer Delaney, fullback. Others who will probably see action are Hutchinson, Skeen, Withrow, Blanchard, Dickey, Beaty, and Chafin.

GUARD READY FOR MINSTREL

Sheriff Promises Protection At Lions Club Show Here Next Tuesday

Fun, foolishness and frolicking will predominate at the Lions' club minstrels next Tuesday night at the Majestic, according to the management. Interest is growing daily as shown by the ticket sales, declared Cress V. Millican, sales manager for the big show, last night.

Bert Wilburn's Blue Moon entertainers in the oleo will be worth the price of admission, so say the boys who are used to hearing big time stuff. Among the stars listed in that particular number are Merle Turner, Maxwell Jones, Dude Vance, Bob Totheroth, Ted Clifford, Joe Harris, Red Ford, Bert Wilburn.

"Gimme a Little Kiss, Will Ya, Huh," promises to be one of the hits of the evening. Bert Ripley and Raymond Smith as two of the end men class up with "Lasses White and Lew Dockstader."

One of the features of the evening will be the first appearance in public of the newly organized Lions club boys band of 65 pieces, which will appear on the stage.

A visitor in the city from Boston attended the rehearsal last night and after listening to the songs and gags said, "It's the snappiest minstrel that I ever saw and does credit to the old time Dockstader and A. G. Fields shows."

The doctors quartette composed of Drs Graham, Bolding, Prichard and Bailey has been guaranteed protection from the audience by Sheriff Smith who will have a force of deputies on hand.

C-C Campaign To Be Made In Fall

The annual banquet and membership drive of the Wichita Falls Chamber of Commerce has been scheduled for November 12 this year instead of in January as heretofore, it was announced from chamber of commerce headquarters yesterday. The membership campaign proper will commence November 15 and last for three days. Definite arrangements for the campaign will be arranged at the banquet.

A speaker of national prominence has been invited to attend the banquet which will be held in the Junior college auditorium.

Commenting on the action of the board of directors in voting the change the dates for the annual campaign, President J. C. Mytinger said:

"Heretofore the chamber of commerce campaign has been conducted in January. To our minds this is the most inopportune time of the year. It is in the middle of the tax paying period. Changes in business are taking place. Merchants are taking stock. The weather is unusually unsettled and all things combined make the campaign a most difficult task. By waiting until January we lose a full month of the calendar year, while under the new plan the organization will be ready to begin actual work at the beginning of the new year.

"On the other hand November is a month when business conditions are considered the best. It is easier to get men to work and the campaign, we believe, will be made much easier in November than in January."

Railroad Executives Visit Lake Kemp

That the railroad companies of the southwest are vitally interested in the future development of the Wichita irrigated valley is evidenced in the numerous visits paid to the big lake and irrigated sections by high railroad officials of different companies.

This J. G. Farmer, general passenger agent for the Rock Island Lines with headquarters at Dallas, was a visitor in the city and in company with the road's local representative, Ira Brown, spent two days at Lake Kemp looking over the big water project.

Gerdes was arrested and charged with holdig the stolen car. The jury deliberated for several hours yesterday and came in about five o'clock with a verdict of guilty.

TUNNEY WINS

caution to the winds and lashed the champion about the ring. Gamely, Dempsey, weaving and bobbing, bored in, but he only succeeded in taking a steady stream of punishment. With one eye closed, blood dripping from a gash under the title holder's right eye, his mouth was cut and he was reeling, his knees wobbly under the furious shower of Tunney's attack.

Gene Tries Hard.

Desperately as Tunney tried, however, he could not bring Dempsey down. The champion, as he had done thoughout the fight absorbed his beating without giving much ground. In a final wild sally he called his own guns into play, the weapons that had knocked out most the men he ever faced, but this time they weren't loaded.

The crowd gave Tunney a tumultous ovation before the judges' decision was announced. There was no doubt as to what it would be. Dozens of the more enthusiastic climbed into the rnig and a squad of police had to clear it so that the announcer could make known the formal decision.

Wins Eight Rounds.

Tunney won eight of the ten rounds by so decisive a margin that not doubt was left on his supremacy, the Associated Press score sheets showed. None of the rounds was scored for the champion and only in the sixth and seventh was he conceded better than an even break. In both of these, it was more a case of Tunney's cautiousness than Dempsey's own attacking success that affected the scoring.

Tunney Hesitates.

But for his hesitancy to open up and put all his guns into action, Tunney might have won by a knockout or scored an even more decisive victory. The challenger was cautious at first because he feared Dempsey was holding back purposely shifting his customary rushing tactics to upset the marine's plan of battle. But as Tunney found a ready mark for his blows, as he discovered himself outpunching Dempsey consistently at close and long range, he became more aggressive, more confident.

This confidence grew as the battle progressed through the drenching downpour, but Tunney always was a bit wary. Now and then, in such rounds as the fourth, sixth and seventh Dempsey connected with solid smashes to the head, driving in with a flash of his old ferocity, but the spark soen faded from these outbursts.

Few Thrills.

The champion's downfall in the disappointment of his showing was reminiscent of the defeat of James J. Jeffries by Jack Johnson, in the first heavyweight battle Tex Rickard ever promoted in 1910. Dempsey, like Jeffries, went into the ring a big favorite, only to exhibit little championship fighting qualities.

Chiefly because of Dempsey's lethargy and Tunney's intermittent cautiousness, the bout had few thrills, few spectacular moments of the sort that have punctuated most of Dempsey's battles since he dethroned Willard on July 4, 1919.

There were no knockdowns nor the semblance of any except for one or two occasions when the fighters each slipped on the soaked and slippery surface of the ring.

Gene In Command.

Tunney was in command from the start. Before the bell had ended the first round, with the crowd amazed at Dempsey's slowness the challenger had begun to seize his opportunities. As the champion swung wildly the former marine worked in his left jabs and crossed with solid rights that shook him up.

From then on with monotonous regularity Tunney beat off Dempsey's rushes with jolting blows to the head and body. The challenger gave ground more often than Dempsey, but it was for strategic purposes, not because he was suffering much punishment. Tunney's right eye was cut in one exchange in the seventh round and blood flowed from the re-opening of cuts on his lips, but these did not bother him to any extent. He took Dempsey's stiffest punches without flinching and ducked or blocked most of the others.

Rain Soaks Fans.

Tex Rickard's weather luck finally failed and for the first time since he began promoting boxing's biggest spectacles but the soaked tens of thousands, including many women, refused to leave their seats. Many had come prepared, but the big majority took their drenching smilingly and stuck to the finish to cheer the advent of a new reign in pugilism. The rain started lightly at first, shortly after Dempsey and Tunney entered the ring. During an unusually long delay caused by the taping of their hands it increased in intensity. By the time the final bell sounded the two gladiators were spattered by solid sheets of water. Tunney's gloves, soaked and crimson with Dempsey's blood, literally splashed their way to victory.

DALLAS LEGIONNAIRES CONGRATULATE GENE

DALLAS, Sept. 23. (AP) — "American Legion post, 404 of Dallas congratulates you on a victory of honor."

This message was dispatched to Gene Tunney, new heavyweight champion, tonight immediately after his victory over Jack Dempsey. It was signed by Dr. Charles L. Hatcher, post commander.

GALVESTON VETERANS CHEER FOR TUNNEY

GALVESTON, Sept. 23. (AP)—Argonne Post Number 20, American Legion, sent "congratulations to a real fighter in war and peace," to Gene Tunney, new heavyweight champion, after his victory tonight. "The ex-service men of Galveston rejoice in your victory," the messags said.

DEMPSEY WEEPS AFTER DEFEAT

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 23.(AP) Dethroned as heavyweight champion, Jack Dempsey wept when he reached the seclusion of his hotel room. Only Jerry, the Greek, his trainer, and Mike Trant, his companion were present to comfort him after he had bravery held up enroute to the hotel from the stadium. Dempsey, his left eye closed, and his right eye cut was a pathetic figure. He buried his face in his hands for a few seconds but quickly regained his composure and stretched out on the bed for a half hour's rub down. He went to bed happy in knowing his wife would join him tomorrow.

Wants Another Fight

Dempsey said he wants another fight with Gene Tunney, his conqueror. When he rushed to the center of the ring to greet Tunney, he asked him for another chance. Dempsey's handler said that Tunney had agreed.

Dempsey said he knew that he was licked as early as the eighth round. He did not want to wait for the verdict of the two judges to be announced before rushing over to greet Tunney, and his handlers had difficulty in keeping him in his seat until the new champion had been acclaimed.

Praises Tunney

Dempsey praised Tunney, declaring that he won fairly.

"I couldn't seem to get going," he said, "but I have no complaint to offer. I knew I was going to get licked sometime and I am glad I lost the championship to a American. I defeated all the foreigners they could send over. I think I have given the public a run for its money every time I started. I licked Firpo, I licked Carpentier. If I had to lose, I am glad that a fellow like Tunney won the championship. He is a credit to the sport, a clean fine fellow."

Eye Badly Cut

Dempsey had accepted an invitation to attend a banquet given by the sesqui-centennial officials tonight whether he won or lost, but his handlers induced him to break the engagement. He wanted to go anyway, even with the cut over his left eye. Two stitches were required to close the wound.

RINGSIDE, Sesqui-Centennial Stadium, Philadelphia, Sept. 23. (AP)—The heavyweight title passed tonight from Jack Dempsey to Gene Tunney on a judges' decision for the first time in nearly four decades of glove fighting.

Every previous champion, from the days of John L. Sullivan's reign has passed from the throne by way of a knockout. Down through an illustrious line—Sullivan, Corbett, Fitzsimmons, Jeffries, Burns, Johnson and Willard—the count of ten has been tolled to effect every shift of the scepter.

Dempsey's downfall ended a seven-year reign that shared the distinction of being the longest on record. Johnson was the only other title holder to rule for as long a period.

Bill Podraza In Hollow Victory

GALVESTON, Sept. 23.(AP)—Bill Podraza, Houston pugilist, experienced little difficulty in putting away Milton Montier of Lafayette, La., tonight. Podraza scored a rather easy victory in the fifth round of a ten-round go. Pontier took the first round by a shade, but Podraza opened up in the second and took all the rest of the rounds until he scored his knockout with a jolting left to Pontier's body just below the heart.

YELLOW JACKETS WIN

ABILENE, Texas, Sept. 23. (AP) —The Howard Payne Yellow Jackets from Brownwood took a slow football game from the Abilene Christian college team 22 to 0 here Thursday. Both teams resorted almost wholly to line plunging for gains.

Western Golfers Ousted From Contest For Pro Trophy

Swede Champion Whips His Rival

Harry Persson Awarded Semi-Final Victory At Tunney Tilt

RINGSIDE, SESQUICENTENNIAL STADIUM, PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 23. (AP)—Harry Persson, the heavyweight champion of Sweden scored a technical knockout victory over Sergeant Jack Adams of St. Louis in the fourth round of a six-round match semi-final to the Dempsey-Tunney title match tonight. The referee stopped the bout after Adams had absorbed a terrific battering. He was knocked down for a count of eight in the second round, of five in the third and collapsed on the floor against the ropes from the force of a right hander to the chin when the battle was halted. The Sergeant was a sorry sight, bleeding profusely from cuts about the nose, eyes and mouth. Persson weighed 203; Adams 196 1-2.

The fight was the feature of five preliminary six round matches.

RINGSIDE SESQUI-CENTENNIAL, PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 23. (AP)—Monte Munn, sensational Nebraska heavyweight scored a one-round knockout over Hughie Clements of Cloucester, N. J., in the first preliminary to the Dempsey-Tunney title fight.

Munn, touted by many critics as a potential champion, added Clements to his string of victims in such order that the crowd hardly knew what had happened. A succession of battering hooks to the head weakened Clements and he dropped to the floor for the final count from a right clip to the chin, delivered at close range. He was counted out after being in the ring only two minutes and 52 seconds.

Munn, a former football lineman and ex-Nebraska legislator outclassed his opponent from the tap of the gong. He had advantagesin every respect, weighing 210 1-2 pounds to 189 1-2 for Clements.

Capitalizing an advantage of nearly 43pounds in weight, George Godfrey, Philadelphia negro, carried off the judges' decision over "Fighting Bob" Lawson, Alabama negro in a six-round clawing match.

Godfrey towered over his opponent but Lawson was game and gave his big rival a lively battle on the few occasions when they stood up to trade wallops. Otherwise it was wrestling and mauling exhibition.

YAQUI LOSES TO MANTELL

Amarillo's ape-man has "won" another battle.

Dutch Mantell "defeated" Yaqui Joe, the Sonora Indian welterweight, last night in the greatest slam-bang wrestling match ever staged in the Eleventh and Ohio arena.

Mantell waged an uphill fight to "conquer" after having dropped the first fall.

'Twas a wonderful scrap but, as usual, something was wrong. Mantell tacitly admitted defeat on three occasions yet the Redskin didn't win. Offhand, that carries the earmarks of an unreasonable declaration. Nonetheless, the assertion is correct.

Tried to Undress.

Dutch was beaten three times before he "won" the verdict. Once did he slip through the ropes as a stall for time in which to clear his benfuddled brain following application of a series of headlocks by the Indian. Twice did Mantell, groggy and in a sad plight after breaking from punishing holds, deliberately untie the strings to his trunks in a crude slight-of-hand manner and then stall again. Just couldn't wrestle any more until he knotted 'em up again, might lose his pants in the scuffle. He hippodromed and argued with Referee Jack Vincent, all the time resting and becoming refreshed while supposedly industriously lacing his trunks secure again.

Mantell automatically disqualified himself on all three occasions. It is certain that he was in such bad condition that the Indian stood better than a two-to-one chance to beat him on each of the three occasions had there been no recess periods. In other words, Referee Jack unwittingly bilked the Indian out of his just dues. Vincent, however, did not favor Mantell intentionally. That was evident. He almost beat Mantell himself instead of letting the Dutchman's orthodox adversary do it.

Dutch, up to his usual boisterous tactics, aroused Vincent's ire before the match was five minutes old. At one stage, Jack kicked Dutch in the slats. On another, he cuffed him in the scruff of the neck and the two tangled up furiously with the Indian an interested and apparently very amused spectator. Police pried the impromptu combatants apart.

Yaqui Surprise.

Yaqui Joe surprised his most ardent admirers when he took the first fall in the short time of 17 minutes with a series of flying mares serving as the finishing process.

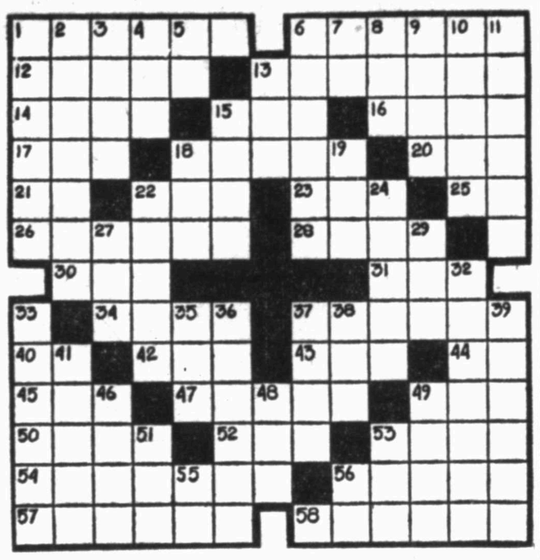

Joe looked like a sure and quick winner but on the return they wrestled an hour and 12 minutes. The Indian caught him with a flailing right hand clip to the chin, knocking Mantell to the floor in a dazed condition. Duteh was smart enough to double his legs up for a healthy kick should the aborigine dive at him. Joe tried to bounce over the menacing feet and on top of his fallen opponent. Dutch hunched still lower and as the Indian's body fell toward him, shoved both hoofs up with a piston effect that caught Joe in the pit of the stomach and sent him sailing. The Indian fell heavily. Mantell came up, grabbed a crotch hold and slammed his swarthy foe to the canvas. He repeated the procedure, knocking Joe almost unconscious, then rolled him over and pinned both blades.

On the comeback, the Indian was in a bad way.

The fall went to Mantell in nine minutes with a body scissors and full Nelson.

Joe Kopecky, the Chicago middle defeated Jack Vincent, two falls in three. The match was clean and comparatively fast throughout. Kopecky won the first fall in 18 minutes with a hook scissors but lost the second in 12 minutes under torture of a hammer lock, then rallied to win the third in 12 minutes with a body slam.

Latest News of the Markets

N. Y. Stocks

NEW YORK, Sept. 23.(AP)—Stock prices made irregular recovery from an early period of unsettlement today when the call money rate was lowered from 5½ to 5 per cent. Wall street, which has been greatly concerned over the credit situation, construed cheaper call money as an indication that no change would be made today in the rediscount rate of the New York federal reserve bank, and the surmise was correct as directors of the bank met after the close of the market and decided to maintain the 4 per cent rate for at least another week.

Chief speculative interest of the day, however, centered in the cotton market which broke $6.60 a bale to the lowest price in years on publication of the government estimate of nearly 16,000,000 bales.

Chesapeake and Ohio common stock was the outstanding individual feature in the stock market, soaring 9 points to a record high for all time at 179 as against a low of 112 earlier in the year. Nickel Plate common soared nearly 7 points to a new record top at 240½ and Pere Marquette advanced 4 points to 132, also a new top.

Little progress was made by recent industrial favorites, U. S. Steel common closing fractionally higher at 146¾ and General Motors and Allied Chemical lost ground. Pools were again active in a number of specialties, with some of the best gains being recorded by such stocks as Chrysler and Texas Gulf Sulphur.

Union Oil of California was marked up to 65¾ on unconfirmed merger rumors and then broke to 64½ for a small fractional loss on the day.

Call money renewed at 5½ per cent, but was lowered to 5 in the early afternoon when funds reached the market in large volume. In the "outside market" this rate was reported as low as 4½ per cent. Time money and commercial paper rates held steady.

Except for a further decline in silver, which carried the Chinese exchanges to the lowest level in years, there was little interest manifested in the foreign exchanges. Demand sterling held steady around $4.85 and French francs yielded slightly. Italian lire broke 5 points to 2.66 cents, but other changes were nominal.

Grain

CHICAGO GRAIN REVIEW.

CHICAGO, Sept. 23.(AP)—Higher prices for wheat resulted today from active buying based chiefly on persistent rain and snow in the Canadian northwest. Top quotations failed to hold, however, owing to a forecast of better weather. Wheat closed unsettled at ⅝ to ⅞c net gain, with corn ⅛ to 1¼c up, oats showing ⅛ to ⅝@1c advance, and provisions varying from 20c decline to a rise of 85c.

Corn proved responsive to unfavorable weather conditions, including a forecast of freezing temperature tonight in upper North Dakota and Minnesota. Oats displayed independent strength owing to damage to grain in shock both north and south of the Canadian line. Provisions advanced with grain and hogs but substantially tended to react as a result of profit taking.

NEW YORK COTTON.

NEW YORK, Sept. 23.(AP)—A decline of more than [illegible] the cotton market today followed publication of the government report. December contracts sold off to 14.55, a decline of 126 points from the close yesterday and 207 points from the high price of September 8. There was some trade buying and a good deal [illegible] the decline but rast prices were within 15 to 20 points of the lowest, December closing at 14.65. The market closed easy and irregular at net losses of 112 to 124 points.

The market was fairly active, but fluctuated within a comparatively narrow range during the earlier trading. A little buying was reported on the prospects for colder and rainy weather in the south, but hedge selling developed on bulges and after opening at an advance of four to 13 points, the market eased off a shade below yesterday's closing figures.

The government report placing the condition at 59.5 and the indicated yield at 15,510,000 bales evidently was far above expectations, being higher than any of the private mid-month figures and nearly 700,000 bales above the average of the private figures. As a result there was heavy general selling when the market re-opened after the usual 20 minute interval for the reception of the figures and remained under pressure the balance of the day.

The census ginning figures of 2,511,317 seemed light compared with the ginnings of 4,258,086 to the same time last year, but failed to bring in any buying of consequence in the face of the big crop indication and the market was heavy and unsettled on the break to 14.34 for October and 14.62 for January, representing net declines of 126 to 152 points on active positions. Some trade buying was reported on scale down orders while there was naturally a great deal of profit taking by shorts, but bearish sentiment created by the increased crop estimate was still much in evidence at the close.

Exports today 33,287, making 870,616 so far this season. Port receipts 62,192; U. S. port stocks 986,765.

NEW ORLEANS COTTON.

NEW ORLEANS, Sept. 23.(AP)—The cotton market today experienced probably the most active session of the season due to the heavy liquidation and general selling which followed the issuance by the government of a surprisingly large indicated crop total. The trade had been looking for a larger crop estimate than that issued on September 8, based on conditions existing September 1, and prices had accordingly declined considerably during the past week and even this morning after a slightly early gain, prices eased to levels six to seven points under the close of yesterday. When the indicated crop of 15,510,000 bales based on a condition of 59.5 was made public prices slumped at once 85 to 99 points from the levels that prevailed Thursday before the bureau report level down 101 to 103 points from the highs of the morning. Further liquidation during the period after midsession carried a crop of 14,900,000 to 142 points below the early highs or a loss of seven dollars a bale.

There was a rally of about 20 points from the late trading on profit taking by shorts and the close showed net losses of the day of 110 to 116 points.

Before the government report was issued, October was trading at 15.54, December at 15.76 and January at 15.80. Immediately after the report was issued October traded down to 14.68, December to 14.90 and January to 14.95, or 85 to 90 points decline and 101 to 103 points under the highs of the morning.

The market after a slight rally weakened again and made the lows of the day in the early afternoon at 14.31 for October 14.60 for December and 14.56 for January, or 140 to 142 points below the highs. There was a rally of about 20 points near the end.

Exports for the day totaled 33,287 bales.

COTTON FORECAST.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 23.(AP)—A cotton crop of 15,510,000 bales of 500 pounds gross weight is indicated by the September 16 condition of the crop, which was 59.5 per cent of a normal, the department of agriculture announced today.

COURT HEARS VENUE PLEAS

Defendant Contends He's Not Assured Getting Fair Trial

GEORGE WEST, Texas, Sept. 23 (AP)—A statement by a defense witness called to testify that Harry J. Leahy could not obtain a free and impartial trial in Live Oak county for the slaying of Dr. J. A. Ramsey of Mathis, surprised the 36th district court room Thursday afternoon.

M. K. Wright, the first of 12 witnesses called by the defense in support of its motion for a change of venue, declared he believed Leahy could get a fair trial here.

Wright testified that he had helped to raise funds after the disappearance of Ramsey for the apprehension and conviction of the guilty parties and that he was of the opinion that Leahy was the guilty party. In his re-direct examination by defense counsel, Wright said Leahy had been already accused of the crime when the body was being raised.

First To Accuse

"I think I was one of the first to accuse him of it," Wright declared.

The defense called Wright to show there had been an organized campaign to raise a fund to apprehend the doctor's slayers. Wright said he possessed two lists containing probably 500 or 600 names of persons who had contributed to the fund.

Questioned by the state, Wright said he did not believe that there was such strong prejudice in Live Oak county that Leahy could not obtain a fair trial. He denied there was any talk of threats of mob violence in Mathis or Live Oak near Mathis.

The alleged effect of the case on the race between district Judge T. M. Cox and District Attorney Sid Malone for the judgeship which Cox won, came up with each witness examined. The defense motion for change of venue stated that the prejudice against Leahy was so strong that it entered into this race. An issue was made against Judge Cox when he reduced Leahy's bonds from $66,500 to $20,000 in cases filed against the defendant in San Patricio county, it was alleged. Bond had been fixed at $65,500 by a justice of the peace soon after Ramsey's disappearance, it was declared, and although the body had not been found and no charges could have been sustained against any person, the court was harshly criticized and he reduced the bail after a habeas corpus hearing.

Case In Politics

Malone asked J. J. Baker of Mathis, if at political meetings at Mathis he, Malone, had said that the Leahy case had no place in the race.

"Yes," replied the witness.

Defense counsel brought out that Malone's remark was made while talking to some friends in Mathis. Sam Beall, deputy sheriff at Mathis testified that he heard of no "strong combination of influential persons" working against Leahy, as alleged in the defense motion. He was released after the defense had failed to draw from him the statement that he had heard Judge Cox condemned at political meetings.

Venue Change Foreseen

Because of the difficulty anticipated in obtaining a jury, due to the intense feeling existing in Live Oak county, indications this morning were that a change of venue may be ordered when Harry J. Leahy faces trial in the thirty-sixth district court here on a murder charge in connection with the slaying of Dr. J. A. Ramsey, aged Mathis physician.

While Judge T. M. Cox, presiding over the court, declined to forecast his action, he admitted that difficulties may present themselves when it comes to selecting the jury. If too many disqualifications are shown, carrying out this fact, Judge Cox admitted there is likelihood that the venue change may be ordered.

60 In Venire

A special venire of 60 men was ordered to report in court at 10 o'clock. It was freely predicted that this quota would be exhausted without getting a jury. Interested spectators from adjoining counties were mingling with the score or more witnesses prior to the opening of court this morning. Standing room in the court promised to be a premium long before the trial opened. Leahy who has been in jail under heavy guard here since his removal from San Antonio where he was arrested, was waiting in his jail cell for the opening of the trial. Sheriff C. E. Key, of Live Oak county prepared for a special guard to watch over him during the trial and every precaution was taken to preclude any possibility of violence.

Widow at Trial

Mrs. Ramsey, widow of the physician, was expected to be present during the trial and undoubtedly will be called to the stand by the state. District Attorney Sid Malone will be in charge of the prosecution. H. S. Bonham of Beeville, heads the defense.

Leahy has remained silent on the case since he was brought here from San Antonio, although he has repeatedly said he was ready to face trial.

Indictment charges Leahy with the slaying of Dr. Ramsey on or about May 23, this year.

Mexican In Plot

A Mexican, Roberto Martinez, who led officers to the body buried in a shallow grave near Mathis also is under indictment for the same offense. Dr. Ramsey according to his wife was lured from home by a strange Mexican, seeking aid for a sick man. From that time late in May until the Mexican, led officers to the shallow grave in August, Dr. Ramsey's whereabouts was shrouded in mystery. Mrs. Ramsey, however, insisted that her husband had been slain.

Leahy was arrested shortly after Dr. Ramsey's disappearance and placed under heavy bond. Following finding of the body he was arrested in San Antonio and after a futile legal fight to prevent it, was removed to George West to await trial.

OFFER STATE GUARD CAMP

1,300 Acres Located At Palacios Donated For Militia

AUSTIN, Sept. 23.(AP)—The present session of the legislature will be called upon to accept for the state 1,300 acres of land to be used as a camp site for the 36th division, Adjutant General Dallas J. Matthews said Wednesday. A deed is being prepared in the attorney general's office and will be tendered the legislature by Governor Miriam A. Ferguson.

The land was donated by the people of Palacios, where the camp site is located and is valued at $50,-000. The federal government has spent $228,335 in improving it, the improvements consisting of a water system and 200 buildings. General Matthews has a request for other improvements which will cost about $185,000. All of these expenditures are borne out of war department funds and the site has cost the state of Texas nothing, the land was deeded in trust to Major General John A. Hulen, commander of the 36th division, who in turn is deeding it to the state. The site is on the bay at Palacios and is an ideal place for the summer training activities of the troops, General Matthis, said.

Not only is this tract a gift of the state of Texas, but it means the spending of much federal money in Texas, according to the adjutant general. The state national guard now has a strength of about 8,100 officers and men, and more than $1,000,000 annually is spent by the federal government in its development.

SOLONS PLEAD FOR STUDENTS

May Get Posts Back For B. Hall Suit Leaders Ousted

AUSTIN, Sept. 23. (AP)—The thirty-ninth legislature here in call session Thursday may ask President Walter Splawn to restore three Texas university students to their university jobs taken from them because of their strenuous opposition to the closing of "B Hall" campus dormitory.

A resolution urging this action as a step toward healing the regent student break over the historic dormitory, will be drawn early Thursday. Representative John T. Smith of Travis county indicated he will assist in its preparation, and that there will probably be numerous signers. Men who lost their jobs were Percy Woodard of Austin, George Hefley and Bob Massengale of Cameron.

Adoption of the resolution was foreshadowed, it was said, by the overwhelming vote which adopted the other university resolution, that of an investigation of the compulsory blanket tax.

B Hall men, Texas exes, students in the legislature and others are to attend a meeting Thursday night to consider whether an investigation of the B Hall controversy will be demanded in this session.

Senator Tom Pollard of Tyler and ex-student members of the house indicated their intention of attending the student conference Thursday night.

25,000 Bale of Cotton Crop To Be Ginned In County This Year

CONDITIONS IN AREA BETTER

Government Estimates Found Correct In Territory; Some Damage Done

Following the recent estimate of cotton production which indicates almost a normal crop and which also indicates a normal crop for Wichita County, a survey of conditions here reveals that the government estimate was not far wrong.

Cotton in Wichita county will far exceed in production the estimate made by many leading local cotton men earlier in the season. There is open in the county fields now something like ten thousand bales of cotton, many farmers and cotton buyers state, and they have looked the situation over carefully. It is believed that the county will now gin something like 25,000 bales which will top the 21,000 bales ginned last year.

Pests Cause Trouble

"Pests and unfavorable weather conditions are all that kept Wichita county from producing 50,000 bales of cotton this year," one leading cotton man said yesterday. First came the boll worm and cotton hopper and later the leaf worm. Then wet weather prevented the cotton from maturing and opening as early as it should, and yet the county will exceed last year's crop in production.

Crops Are Better

One farmer, who prophesied a month ago that he would not get a quarter of a bale to the acre, is getting better than a half bale to the acre from the first picking. Another farmer believed that the leaf worm had ruined his entire crop but will get nearly a half bale to the acre from the picking.

There is not a single field in the county that is totally ruined, and every field is producing a greater yield than had been expected.

With the announcement of a $6.50 a bale drop in the cotton market, the crop in this county looks futile in the face of practically no profit, but experts declare that the price cannot remain at this low figure.

Scraps NewS

John Keevil. of the. Texhoma company has been sent to Nocona for a month's work for the company.

Members of the Gardner B. Y. P. U of the First Baptist church will be in charge of a social in the basement auditorium of the church Friday night at 8 o'clock when all young people and B. Y. P. U. members of the church are invited to attend, it was announced yesterday.

Mrs. W. A. Burrow of Amarillo who attended the national convention of the Lincoln National Life Insurance company at Estes Park, visited a short time in this city with her sister, Mrs. Hazel Morton, on her return trip.

Miss Ward Is Named President

Maurine Ward was elected president of the Fannin school Girl Reserve club in the initial meeting of the fall Thursday afternoon at the school; other officers are: Jessie Fay Cargill, vice-president; Fannie Keen, secretary; Kathleen Blackwell, secretary-treasurer; Miss Estelle Price, adviser.

Meeting with the girls were Mrs. Deane J. Wolff, Y. W. C. A. chairman of Girls' work; Mrs. Shattock and Miss Dorris Smith, assistant Y. W. C. A. secretary. The devotional was led by Mrs. Wolff and was followed by singing of Girl Reserve songs.

A meeting of cabinet members of the club will be held Tuesday afternoon at 5 o'clock at the Y. W. C. A.

Legion Drive Is Over the Top Here

Wichita county has obtained more than the pledged 100 new members for the American Legion, according to R. J. Claypool, Post Commander, yesterday. The local post is competing in the state contest in conducting a membership drives in the last two weeks in an attempt to surpass the record of Oklahoma. The state with the most members for 1926 will have the privilege of taking the Old Grey Mare to Philadelphia in October to the national convention.

TO DIRECT TRAFFIC

Lyle Donohue, member of the police traffic department of the city of Wichita Falls, will direct the traffic control of the crowds at the Texas-Oklahoma Fair this year, it was announced at police headquarters yesterday.

Donohue resigned from the police force in order to take the position, as the city charter will not permit a city officer acting in any private capacity. He will be reinstated to the police department after the fair is over.

Kell To Speak at Business Council

What promises to be one of the most important meetings of the year will be held today by the business council of the chamber of commerce when Frank Kell, nationally known business leader, will address the council on business conditions as he now views them.

Mr. Kell for several years past has been invited to make one of the early addresses of the business council fall season and his talks are watched for eagerly.

Several other important matters are to come up for attention, chief among which are reports on progress being made on signing up of landowners in the proposed new irrigation district in the Holliday territory.

102 DEGREES REACHED HERE

34 Degree Variation In Temperature Recorded Thursday

The widest range of temperature in Wichita Falls for several months was noted yesterday when at the maximum the thermometer registered 102 degrees, the hottest weather during the month of September, and at its minimum stood at 68, a difference of 34 degrees. At 5 o'clock the temperature was at 100.

The barometer has been dropping a few points daily for the last three days. Ordinarily within 24 hours after the barometer falls there is a change in the weather with a low barometer, the skies re condition, and a rain storm was expected Thursday afternoon, but with a low barometer, the skies remained clear.

At 5 o'clock Thursday afternoon, the barometer was 28.82; at the same time Wednesday, it was 28.92 and on Tuesday, 29.04.

Thursday a southwest breeze averaging five miles per hour was noticed, and for a short time during the morning a sandstorm threatened, and the maximum velocity reached 10 miles per hour.

Scholastic Scoops

"We are all going somewhere," said Leslie Miller, pastor of the Grace Methodist church, in an address to high school and college students Thursday morning at the chapel exercises, "and all are going in one of two directions—towards happiness and a higher degree of usefulness or towards unhappiness and a lower degree of usefulness. The speed of the individual matters not; the mediocre student may accomplish his goal first, as did the slow, prodding tortoise in the famous fable of the hare and tortoise." Examples were given to show the success of several who were at one time considered poor students, among which were Sir Walter Scott, Thomas A. Edison, and Dwight L. Moody, and the poem "It Couldn't Be Done" by Edgar Guest, delivered in the conclusion of the speech.

A piano solo "Mexican Serenade" was given by Miss Mary Beth Martin immediately preceding the talk by Rev. Miller.

Mrs. Deane J. Wolf led the devotional Thursday morning at the meeting of the Girl Reserves of the Junior high school, after which Miss Dorris Smith, new local secretary, was introduced to the girls. New songs were taught the girls by Miss Smith, after a short talk. 2 ARRESTED AS BANDIT PAIR

Duo Jailed Here Early Thursday And Taken To Arkansas

Local officers, working in conjunction with special officers from Arkansas, arrested two men at a house of Scott street early Thursday morning, who are believed to be the two ex-convicts who staged a daylight robbery of a bank at Alma, Ark., Tuesday of last week. The two prisoners were taken by the Arkansas officials to Almo, where an attempt will be made to connect them with the crime.

Watson has relatives here and it is believed the two came here after buying a Ford car in the mountains of Oklahoma.

Approximately $400 in money and the Ford car were confiscated by officers, but there remains about $4,000 of the bank's money to be accounted for.

Local officers had been advised of the suspected visit of the men here and had already spotted the house when the Arkansas officers arrived. The raid was made Thursday morning and the men taken in custody. Officers taking part in the raid were W. P. Belcher, M. A. Perdue, Pat Allen, and W. M. Davis of the city police force, and Sheriff A. D. Maxey of Van Buren, Ark., and some deputy sheriffs of Arkansas and Oklahoma.

A reward of $1,000 had been offered for the robbers and if any part of the sum accrues to local officers, it will be placed in the police relief fund, Chief Hodgins stated yesterday.

Postal Wires First Open After Storm

The Postal Telegraph company was the frist of the communication companies to re-establish contact between Miami and the rest of the country when its linemen succeeded in getting a wire through to the stricken city Wednesday morning, Sept. 22, according to word received by the local Postal management. The wire was immediately put into service with Jacksonville by means of high speed automatic telegraph machines and commercial service into and out of Miami was at once begun. Tuesday night, Sept. 21, the company's cable between Miami and Havana, Cuba, was recovered for service. The cable which runs into Miami over the several mile long causeway between Miami and Miami Beach had been out of commission because of several breaks in the Causeway and this had left the only direct means of communication with Havana the New York-Havana cable operated by the Postal Commercial Cable System. Re-establishment of the cable service furnishes another means for communication between Miami and the outside world.

The man was pulled out from under the car by Traffic Officers Stubblefield and J. H. Scott, after he had been dragged several feet.

Davis was taken to the Hargrave-Walker hospital in a police emergency car and after being treated was taken to his home on Lucile.

Dickey Addresses City Rotary Club

"The wealth of Wichita Falls lies not in its magnificent buildings we have, it is not dependent on the men of the city, but it is dependent on the welfare of the boys," J. S. Dickey, local attorney, told members of the Rotary club Thursday at noon in the weekly meeting at the Kemp. An investment in the life of the boys of a city brings greater dividends than anything else in the world, he said.

When men fail to minister to the little fellows, they get into a rut and they can be taken from the rut only by the boys themselves, the speaker said.

Albert Myles, president, asked that each Rotarian make as nearly perfect as possible his attendance record. C. U. Daniels asked the Rotarians to visit the Nocona club, which is sponsoring the erection of a building with dining hall and kitchenette. Dr. J. W. Cantwell, superintendent of city schools, asked the members to help find employment for two boys who are attending Junior college.

Two saxophone numbers were played by Paul Seeds with J. S. Pitman at the piano.

SUES W. U. AS DEATH RESULT

E. E. Alred Files Case After Father Dies In Lubbock

E. E. Alred, 1505 Kemp boulevard, filed suit in district court this week against the Western Union Telegraph company as the outgrowth of an incident connected with the death of his father at Lubbock some weeks ago.

The plaintiff alleges in his petition that on the date mentioned his father was very ill at his home at Lubbock, and that a sister of the plaintiff, Ethel Alred, wired him at his home at Wichita Falls that his father was not expected to live. This message came early in the evening, and later a message was dispatched from the same source which the petition alleges read as follows: "Papa gone to sleep Services this evening notify A. C. Howard." The plaintiff alleges that the local representative of the Western Union Telegraph company transmitted the message to him by telephone and failed to give all the message, and that the message phoned him was: "Papa gone to sleep notify A. C. Howard."

The plaintiff alleges that he interpreted the message to mean that his father was better and that he went about his daily affairs and did not know that his father was dead until after the burial.
