MARSHALL FORMBY

Highway Chairman to Address DSA Banquet

A West Texan with aspirations for governor will speak here Feb. 23 when Colorado City honors its outstanding young man.

Marshall Formby, now chairman of the Texas Highway Commission, has notified Jaycees he is accepting their invitation to be principal speaker at the banquet.

The Plainview radio executive, formerly a partner here in Radio Station KVMC, already has revealed that he plans to be a candidate for governor in the next campaign.

And to strengthen the likelihood of his gubernatorial campaign Formby last week revealed he was planning to retire from the highway commission at conclusion of his current term.

Formby is placing the Jaycee Distinguished Service Award banquet on a busy schedule that had only a couple of open dates during January and February.

Master of ceremonies for the DSA banquet will be Johnny Grubbs, former Jaycee president and an employee of the State Highway Department.

The banquet, an annual highlight of each Jaycee year, is scheduled for Civic House.

To be revealed at the banquet will be the identity of the winner of the Jaycee Distinguished Service Award, the community's outstanding young man for 1958.

A special committee representing civic and service organizations of the city are in the process of selecting the DSA winner.

Twenty young men have been nominated for the award and their records are being investigated by the committee composed of two members each from Jaycees, Chamber of Commerce, Kiwanis, Lions, American Legion, Veterans of Foreign Wars and Ministerial Alliance.

Selection will be based on citizenship, contribution to community and personal achievement. Membership in Jaycees is not a requirement for the award.

Nominees for the award are:

Persons interested in the course are requested by Mrs. Cherryholmes to contact her by phoning, RA 8-4107, or phone the Chamber of Commerce office, RA 8-2211.

Keister, who now lives in Westla, formerly was president of the Palette & Chisel Club, famed artists' academy in Chicago. He has conducted one-man shows in Washington, Chicago, New York, and in numerous other cities across the nation from Arizona to the States of Washington and Maine.

Heading arrangements for his course in Colorado City is Mrs. G. J. Cherryholmes, who previously studied in his art classes.

The instruction by Keister will be for adults (no children under 12 years of age), but he encourages beginners in his classes.

He will instruct in oils, portrait, landscape and still life. The course will consist of 12 lessons with teaching schedules from 8:30 to 11:30 a.m., 1:30 to 4:30 p.m. and 7 p.m. to 10 p.m. Monday through Saturday for the two-week schedule.

At least 25 students are necessary for Keister to instruct here, Mrs. Cherryholmes said.

STAMP MACHINE FOR P.O.

Two More Curb Mailing Boxes Asked Downtown

Two additional mail deposit boxes—snorkel type that extend letter openings to street curb for convenience of motorists—are being ordered for Colorado City.

The boxes, same type as the courtesy box at the W. Third St. curb west of the Post Office, are being sought for two key downtown locations.

At the same time, Postmaster Slim A. Palmer has been informed that a stamp vending machine has been approved for the Post Office lobby.

Congressman George Mahon informed the postmaster the stamp machine has been authorized.

"Plans call for delivery of the machine within the next month," the congressman wrote from Washington.

Request for the vending machine was submitted to the Postal Department almost a year ago.

It will be installed in the lobby for convenience of citizens after Post Office windows close at 5 p.m. Need for the stamp machine has been emphasized long by a group of business men led by J. Ralph Lee, local laundry owner.

Request for two additional market-type curb mailing boxes is being made jointly by the Post Office and City Manager Rollin K. Sneathen.

One of the boxes is sought for mid-block on the south side of 100 block of W. Third St., just across the street from the present Post Office curb box.

This new Third St. box would facilitate traffic safety in front of the Post Office and erase the problem now created by east-bound traffic cutting north across west-bound traffic to the snorkel box at the Post Office. Assistant Postmaster T. J. Caddell at that time suggested that an effort might be made to obtain additional boxes.

The second box would be installed on the south side of E. Second St. at intersection of Chestnut, south and across the street from Bob Thompson's Humble Station. It would be for convenience of business personnel posting mail while en route home from work.

Letters seeking approval of the two new curb snorkel boxes were sent this week to the postal field service officer in El Paso.

Move for the additional boxes came during an informal discussion last week by city councilmen. They called City Manager Sneathen's attention to the traffic problem resulting now with only one snorkel-type box at the Post Office.

Assistant Postmaster T. J. Caddell at that time suggested that an effort might be made to obtain additional boxes.

PRESENTED BY MRS. DORN

'Seven Wonders of the World' Topic of '21 Club Program

Mrs. E. L. Dorn was program speaker Friday afternoon for a regular meeting of the 1921 Study Club in the home of Mrs. Lee Lavender.

Mrs. Dorn discussed "The Seven Wonders of the World" by Lowell Thomas.

"No one knows for sure the origin of the phrase "Seven Wonders of the World," Mrs. Dorn said. "The first known author of such a study was a Greek philosopher, Philo of Byzantium. It is his list that is commonly used today."

"Of all the wonders of the ancient world, only one has withstood the ravages of time and plunder - The Pyramids," Mrs. Dorn added.

"Lowell Thomas, in his exciting new book does not deal with the tourist attractions of antiquity. It is a thrilling and colorful, up-to-the-minute magic carpet journey to the wonders of the world today, not seven, but sevenfold. This quest for modern wonders took the author to five continents."

Mrs. Dorn described many of these wonders, naming the Taj Mahal as the most famous. "Lowell Thomas has made thirty pilgrimages to the Taj Mahal drawn back by its incomparable beauty," Mrs. Dorn emphasized.

In describing the Great Wall of China, Mrs. Dorn stated, "The Great Pyramid was a pigmy in the amount of stone it contains, compared with the wall."

"I'm a farmer. To make my work pay, I've got to keep on the lookout for improved farming methods. Through Advertising I can do this without leaving the farm. That saves valuable time. So - I can honestly say I'm making my farm pay - thanks to Advertising!"

Tough "Halibut"

An extremely unostentatious for an enemy would be this "Halibut," Circle Sam's newest nuclear sub. Launched at Mare Island Naval Shipyard near Vallejo, Calif., it is the first nuclear-powered submarine capable of firing guided missiles. Rear Adm. E. W. WEAVER AND WINANS SCORE 25

Lake View Streaks By C-City Quintet, 75-59

First Period Fatal For Wolf Quint

Billy Joe Winans, a "Presley-type" basketball player with black hair and long sideburns, shook up the Colorado High Wolves Tuesday night as he rocked in 25 points to lead the Lake View High Chiefs to a 75-59 victory.

The San Angelo team—rated the best in District 3-AAA—proved it here in Wolf Gym as they displayed a balanced scoring attack with a terrific defensive quintet.

The win over the Wolves solidly established the Chiefs as the leaders in the conference with possibly only Lamesa a threat to their superiority.

Lake View was exceedingly hot on their field goal attempts, hitting 29 of 56 attempts for 52 percent. In contrast, Chiefs caught Wolves when they were cold, hitting only 21 of 73 shots for 29 percent.

Wolves looked good at the free-throw line, connecting on 17 of 21 tosses for 81 percent. Lake View hit 17 of 37 for 46 percent.

It was the highest point total for Lake View this year, pointing out the fact that the Wolves caught the Chiefs on one of their hot nights.

Both teams hit well the second quarter with a total of 50 points in one eight-minute quarter.

Wolves' center Raymond Weaver matched Winans in the point-making department, but Weaver didn't have the additional help that Winans received from his 6-6 center William Keel and the 5-10 guards Jimmy Tomlinson and Bobby Shuffield.

A tremendously cold first quarter started the Wolves off on the wrong foot and they never recovered. Coach Homer Jefferson's Wolf Pack did not score a field goal during the first eight minutes of the game, using only free throws to score their nine points as Lake View built up a 20-9 advantage.

Colorado City outscored Lake View in the second quarter, 26 to 24 points, and in the third period, 15 to 14 points, but that same 11-point spread haunted the home team throughout the game.

Weaver sent the ball whirling through the basket on a driving lay-up shot as the fourth quarter began to pull the Wolves within six points of the Chiefs, 58-52.

That No. 25 Winans—followed up with another of his spectacular one-hand jump shots but Weaver countered it with another crisp shot to leave the count 60-54.

Wolves' Jerry Haley, who sat out more than one quarter of the game with three personal fouls, came through with a free throw to pull the Wolves within five points, 60-55, the narrowest margin all night long.

But that pesky Winans socked in another bucket and Keel dropped in a charity toss to widen the lead again, 63-55.

With 3:36 left in the game, the Chiefs put on the freeze to match the freshly-falling snow outside the gym.

For 1½ minutes, the Wolves didn't touch the ball until Jerry Treadwell fouled Keel.

But the Chiefs got the rebound on Keel's miss and took advantage of the Wolves' desperate tries to gain possession, pushing in several last-minute goals.

Wolves were hurt the first quarter by absence of Treadwell, who is suffering with an infected knee. Jefferson put him in the lineup for the remaining three quarters and the little southpaw performed nicely despite the hurt knee.

Kerry Kendrick, Wolves' junior guard, did an outstanding job in the ball-handling department, in addition to scoring eight points.

Kerry Kendrick, 5-10 junior, has been one of the mainstays of the Colorado High basketball team this season. He is a starter at forward on Coach Homer Jefferson's quintet.

less from the field. In the woolly and wild-scoring second quarter Winans and Keel kept the Chiefs going while Weaver whipped in 11 and Dwain (Shorty) Thomas 6 for the Wolves as C-City outscored the opponents, 26 points to 24.

Lake View held a nine-point lead at halftime, 44-35.

The teams exchanged goal for goal the third quarter but the Wolves were unable to make up the ground they had lost the first period.

Again it was Weaver that

Editorially Speaking

We're Just Not Used To It, Max

Texas Legislature is beginning a new session, burdened with some of the heaviest financing and tax problems in recent history.

Representing Mitchell County, along with Nolan and Fisher, is a member of the lawmaking body, is a newcomer to the state government scene, Max Carr.

The Roby citizen, who carried Mitchell County in a runoff last summer, moved with his family to Austin a few weeks ago for the legislative session.

Maybe you noticed or maybe you did not. But before Carr left for the capitol, he made numerous trips to Mitchell County and other areas of his district in a person-to-person attempt to obtain local ideas on state problems.

That wasn't enough, so he added a mail questionnaire to a cross-section of citizens in order to obtain grass roots opinion.

Plain fact of the matter is this: Carr's bonified effort to learn the will of the people is something new for citizens of 91st District. In previous years except in a few campaign appearances — citizens of Mitchell County never saw their elected representative, much less heard him ask for advice.

We are not saying Max Carr will be the best state representative. Neither do we expect him to please all the voters throughout the long, tiring legislative session. But we do believe his studious approach, his careful search for the facts and the will of his three-county citizenry is the freshest, cleanest approach the 91st District has made for representative state government in many a year.

Respect For Sale

Mitchell County Hereford Breeders annual sale is coming into its own.

The fact was demonstrated here Saturday when association members sold 28 bulls for $10,305 and eight heifers for an additional $2,515.

Saturday's prices were highest the 10-year history of the association's sales — an indication of the increasing respect for this county's registered cattle.

Adding emphasis, also, to the association's reputation for quality stock is the fact that only four of the buyers were local. All others were from outside the county.

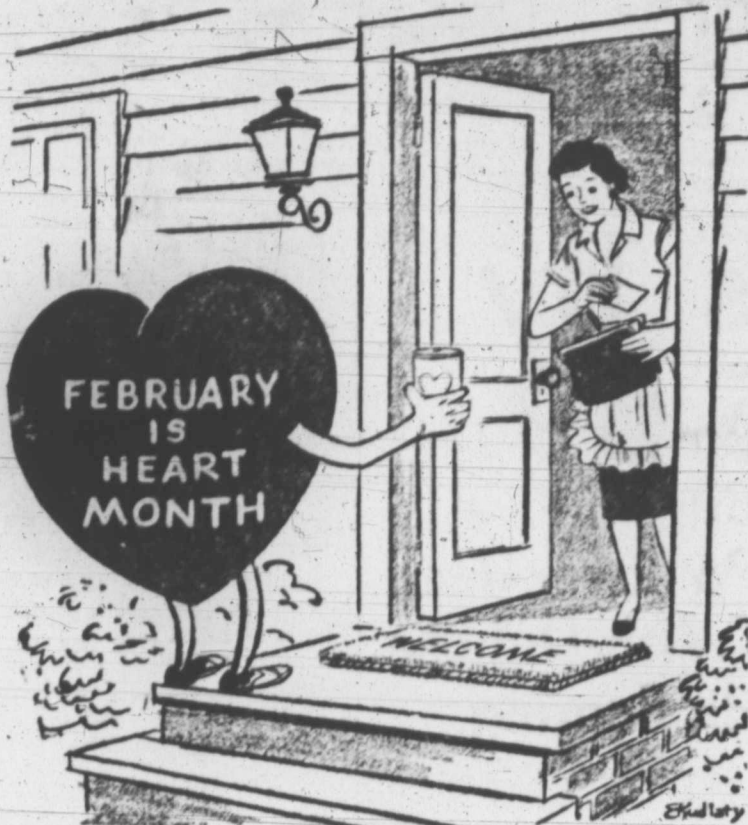

Success of the latest sale should be extra incentive for the association, for other ranchers and stockmen to join the ranks in the effort to make Mitchell County a respected center for quality, registered beef cattle.

Careful Deals

Filing of felony swindling charges here last week against an out-of-town roofing man emphasizes the fact that serious situations can result when citizens do not know with whom they are dealing.

The Record has long advocated doing business with local merchants and firms — not just for hometown loyalty, but because their reputations are here for day in, day out scrutiny, and because they usually can provide just about every quality service or material you need.

PHILOSOPHER SAYS

Ike's Writers in Need of Coaching

Editor's note: The Shiner's Flats Philosopher on his Johnson grass farm on Bone Hollow Creek reviews the state of the union this week, in his own language.

Dear editor: I was figuring up my income and expenses for 1958 the other night and trying to remember where my money went when I decided to rest my mind and pick up a newspaper a man had handed me in town earlier in the day to keep the wind off my neck. It was a copy of the Fort Worth Star-Telegram and I don't care what some people say about it, it cut the wind pretty good.

and got to reading a review of President Eisenhower's State of the Union message.

I have come to the conclusion that the president's speech writers ought to bring their language up to date.

For example, trying to bring home to the people the high cost of defending America, the president said "new bombers now cost their weight in gold."

This is what I'm talking about. It would have brought the message home a lot stronger, if he'd said "new bombers now cost their weight in groceries."

When he said fighter planes "now cost 50 times more than they did 15 years ago," he would have brought me face to face with reality more if he'd said "fighter planes have gone up even higher than new automobiles."

Or if he'd said "it costs more to train a jet pilot than it does to send a kid to college."

I have a great deal of sympathy though for the president. He and I are working on similar problems.

For example, while new tractors don't cost their weight in gold yet, I think they're working on it.

I don't know what it costs to repair a 27-million-dollar bomber, but what it costs to overhaul a 10-year-old tractor is inching up in the same direction.

I don't know what a guided missile costs, but I know what a box of shotgun shells costs, and it's something to make Congress and me both sit up and do some thinking.

I don't think groceries cost their weight in gold yet, but it may not be long before they'll be saying gold costs its weight in groceries.

I don't know what it costs to keep our defense program really healthy, but I know what it costs to restore a man to health, especially if he has to go to the hospital for any length of time. It's enough to put him back in the hospital.

Everything just costs a lot more these days, everything, that is, except some of the things I produce out here, and if it was left to me, they'd be higher too.

Yours faithfully, J. A.

SPEAKER CARR MAKES HISTORY

2 Tax Theories Shape Up as Legislature Begins Busy Job

By Vern Sanford
Texas Press Association
Some cheered and some wept, but none will soon forget the eventful, suspenseful opening day of the House of Representatives of the 56th Legislature.

Waggoner Carr became the third man in recent history to win a second term as Speaker of the House; and Joe Burkett became the only one in many years to lose by a vote — 79 to 71.

Burkett and Carr had been in a hard-fought contest for a year and a half. Burkett, from Kerrville in the Hill country, is a staunch conservative. Carr, from Lubbock in the South Plains, had more liberal support.

When the day came, every representative was present, and the floor and galleries were jammed with spectators. Secretary of State Zolite Steakley served as temporary presiding officer. An elaborate voting procedure was agreed upon to safeguard secrecy and assure fairness.

Representatives filed to the front of the chamber, one by one, had their folded ballots initiated by the clerk and then placed them personally in the ballot box. Six watchers, three representing each candidate, stood by.

The ballot box was opened and results called out, one by one. Only sound in the large chamber was the scratching of the pens of many score keepers, and the occasional fidgeting or gasping as the lead saw-sawed between the candidates.

A cheer went up as Carr received his victory-assuring 76th vote. A round of hand shaking, back slapping and congratulating began. Following the final count, a procession composed of Carr's family and supporters escorted the Lubbock representative to the rostrum to take the oath of office.

ON WITH THE SHOW — After the opening dust had settled, Legislators turned to their everyday concerns.

Most immediate and pressing problem was finding money to operate the Legislature. Since the state's main monetary cupboard, the general revenue fund, was bare (worse still, in debt), there wasn't so much as a nickel on hand to pay salaries of the lawmakers and their helpers, not even for stamps, stationery, phone calls and travel. A bill was offered to appropriate $2,300,000 that had accumulated in two special funds.

Several plans were being talked about to solve the even more vexatious long-term problem of overall budget balancing. To do so will involve finding money to pay off an expected general fund deficit of $65,000,000 plus some $130,000,000 in new money to meet expected expenses for 1960-61. Only alternative would be numerous and painful economies.

Generally, there seem to be two schools of thought developing on taxation: (1) those who hope to avoid a new tax by upping many present levies, such as selective sales taxes, removing several exemptions and reshuffling funds here and there and (2) those who say the present tax blanket can't be stretched any further and that "pot shot, patch work" taxation should be replaced by an overall plan to distribute the tax burden.

but the increasing cost of government among more people.

PANORAMA — Other items for the record of what promises to be an historic Legislature:

Senator George Parkhouse of Dallas is new president pro tempore of the Senate, and as such, third in line to the governor. An outdoor advertising executive, Parkhouse is beginning his third Senate term.

No free overtime, resolved Senators in one of their first official acts, a resolution to quit on the dot May 12 when the 120-day pay period runs out. House members cheered the announcement.

A famous name returned to public life as Martin Dies Jr. of Lufkin took the oath as senator. Former Congressman Martin Dies Sr., long identified with the Dies-American Activities Investigating Committee, came to see his son sworn in.

"Baby of the house" is Rep. Jack Connell Jr. of Wichita Falls, youngest person ever to sit in the House. Connell was 21 years old plus 14 days on general election day.

A football star when he's not a lawmaker is Yale Lary, freshman representative from Fort Worth. Lary, a defensive back for the Detroit Lions pro team, was a college star for Texas A&M.

One governor's son succeeded another as W. P. Hobby Jr. was named parliamentarian of the Senate, a post held last session by Dan Moody Jr.

An early crisis was averted when the House sergeant-at-arms rushed a spittoon to the desk of snuff-dipping Rep. Jerry Sadler of Pecos. Spittoons, once a standard accessory, had gotten lost in the chamber's revamping.

FOLKS with money-spending ideas had best be armed with money-finding ideas when they come to the Legislature this year. This warning was issued by Sen. William S. Fly of Victoria in an Austin address.

Third house has its own ceremonial this year as, for the first time, lobbyists are required to register under the new law. From the length and variety of the list, there's a lobbyist for practically everything and everybody — teachers, farmers, firemen, policemen, labor unions, industries and even church groups.

GOVERNOR'S appointments — Gov. Price Daniel has appointed Secretary of State Zolite Steakley to a second term and promoted two assistants in the governor's office.

George Christian, former press assistant, becomes executive assistant, taking over non-legal duties of Jake Jacobsen. Jacobsen left to enter private law practice.

John Goldsum was promoted to administrative assistant and will take over Jacobsen's legal duties.

PAY FOR SECRETARIES

Debated — One of the first issues for debate in the 56th Legislature was pay for secretaries of Senate and House members. Generally accepted rate is $14 per day for Senate secretaries and $10 for the House. But a resolution must be passed setting amounts of the salaries, at the beginning of each session. Rep. Obie Jones of Austin said House secretaries should receive $12 a day because the $10-a-day figure was embarrassing to House secretaries when they met their Senate counterparts during coffee breaks. Rep. R. H. Cory of Victoria pointed out that the state couldn't afford the increase. "Maybe," he said, "we'll have to pay them out of our own pockets," and he pointed out that not all Senate secretaries received $14 — that some of them were paid as low as $7 per day.

BIBLE COMMENT

Jesus' Religion Is Matter of Joy

Shortly, the season of Lent will be here, and the story of the ministry of Jesus will move inexorably toward the Cross.

He came not only to minister, but to give His life as ransom for many.

It is remarkable how apparently disproportionate a part of the four Gospels, so far as actual pages and space are concerned, is taken up with the happenings of the last week or so before Calvary, and especially the very last days.

It was during those days that the ministry of Jesus began to be realized.

Those who would be truly disciples of Jesus must be as their Master.

If any man would come after me, let him deny himself and take up his cross and follow me.

But the religion of Jesus, even in its sacrificial demands, is not a matter of gloom. We must look ahead to the ultimate triumph of Easter.

Paul, who was a supreme disciple, sounds constantly the note of joy.

That note is the paradox of the Christian experience and the Christian way — that the religion of the Cross should be the religion of joy, of gentleness and peace.

It is the paradox of inward satisfaction, of rejoicing in all that God has given in nature and grace for joy, ment and blessing.

WASHINGTON LETTER

Mobilize Minds, Senator Urges

(Editor's Note: Following is a Washington News Letter written by Senator Lyndon B. Johnson for Record readers.)

A new Congress, confronted by new problems, convened one week ago tomorrow. Important work has been accomplished. But the major tasks are ahead.

Overriding all issues is the major problem facing all the people of the world — peace.

At home we face the challenge and opportunities of a growing population's ever-increasing need for homes, schools, medical facilities, and food.

These challenges must be met; the opportunities seized. I am confident they will be. But the attack must be based on bold thinking and creative ideas.

This calls for knowledge based on intensive studies that need be started now. But these studies should be in the true meaning of an inventory — not in the sense of an investigation.

We must determine what we have. This calls for searching examination of such possible fields as: natural, human, cultural, and scientific resources; cities and the scope of urban renewal; educational opportunities; disease and care of our senior citizens.

The list is long. Some studies are underway. This includes gaining and maintaining the nation's lead in the race for outer space. This we cannot now claim. But it must be achieved. I am confident it will be.

It was one year ago this month that the Senate Preparedness Subcommittee concluded its hearings into the satellite and missile program. The final act of that bipartisan group was unanimous adoption of a statement. It urged decisive action by the military on 17 specific points.

The first hearing by the new Senate Committee on Aeronautical and Space Sciences is now being planned. Its first work will be to determine progress made in the last 12 months.

But this is now evident. The people of this nation must mobilize their minds, their unity, they will do. And this is imperative not simply to exceed the Soviets. It is the launching point from which we move to new frontiers of freedom.

LOCAL BUSINESS

Homemakers Can Cut Food Costs

By JOE ED BOATRIGHT
Record Staff Writer

"Eat big, spend small." This is the slogan for a campaign recently started by a national association of food stores to help homemakers with food budgets.

The program is keyed to the idea that the homemaker can reduce food costs considerably if she plans her shopping around newspaper advertising.

The homemaker who plans her menu around the newspaper ads may be able to save $3 to $5 a week on food costs, the association estimates.

The cost of food is not as high as it often seems, the association claims. The prices of different foods vary from week to week or from season to season. "Specials" advertised in the newspapers serve to guide the homemaker in making economical selections.

Although the association's current program is concerned with helping the homemaker build menus around specials, newspaper advertising helps to keep down the cost of foods in other ways.

Advertising works in selling the same way that an automobile machine does in production. It does the work of many clerks when it provides shopping information to thousands of customers.

And when advertising sells groceries on a volume basis, it reduces storage costs. The increased volume makes it possible for the retailer to operate on a lower margin of profit. The retailer passes the savings on to the consumer.

Regular newspaper advertisers sell at lower prices because of savings created by advertising.

Chevy Adds Bel Air Hardtop

Prompted by popular demand for hardtop styling, Chevrolet has added this Bel Air sports sedan to its 1959 line. The new four-door hardtop now is on display at Jay Adams Chevrolet.

OPEN HOUSE SHOWING

New Hardtop At Jay Adams

A new sport sedan is making its debut here at Jay Adams Chevrolet.

The car is in the Bel Air Series and it was inspired by reception for the 1959 hardtop styling introduced in Chevrolet's Impala sports sedan.

Jay Adams has scheduled a special open house showing today, Friday and Saturday to introduce the new four-door sedan to Colorado City and area.

The Bel Air model makes available the same sportive appearance of the Impala sports sedan, but at a more moderate price.

According to E. N. Cole, general manager of Chevrolet, the new model results from retail market soundings that indicated strong sales sentiment. Production has already started and dealers are being stocked.

The sport sedan, or "four-door hardtop" as it is more popularly known, is comparatively new in the postwar automotive field. Patterned after the two-door hardtop, in which side windows roll completely into body, the car boasts superlative visibility and a light, airy appearance. In the 1959 Chevrolet overall design, the sport sedan is especially attractive and two inches lower than other Bel Air models. The roof is flat and overhangs the compound curvature of the broad rear window. Features of the two other sedans in the Bel Air series are otherwise incorporated.

Luxury interior appointments and upholstery keyed to exteriors are points in common. Body identifications include a full length, stainless steel molding with

Cowboy Driving is KID STUFF

Today's holiday-crowded highways are no place for adults to drive high wide 'n' handsome.

Too many drivers fail to act their age as they whoop it up toward vacationland's wide open spaces. They'll learn too late that a thoughtless swerve out of line or brakes applied an instant too late can turn a long-awaited vacation into a nightmare.

Good drivers know that childish horseplay on the highway can quickly turn to tragedy. If all drivers knew it, countless American homes would be spared much needless sorrow every year.

An official public service message prepared by The Advertising Council in cooperation with the National Safety Council.

The Place To Go For The Brands You Know

By Vern Sanford
A fellow told us quite some time ago that the happiest day in his life was the day he bought a boat. Then he added, "and the next happiest day was the day I sold it."

Of course he said that in jest! But we later learned that he meant it.
However, that was back in the days when there were few boats as large as his and not a great deal of interest in water sports. Boat building is a new thing, and it is a great change has taken place, especially during the past few years.

Frankly our happiest Christmas was the one we had in December, 1957, when Santa Claus brought us a brand new 18-foot runabout and two 25 hp motors.

That was a beautiful job. It provided fun for the entire family, and by using skunk and fishing pleasure for friends and business associates for months and months to come. All of us will remember that Christmas forever.

Fact of the matter, we were so happy that we printed "FREE BOAT RIDE" cards and distributed them where ever we went. Men and women were entitled to a 30 minute ride, children one hour, and grandchildren all day.

We had fun with that boat. Used it a lot in business entertainment too. When our kids married and left we sold the boat with much regret.

Arkansas has gone all out to lure fishermen to the Ozarks and the Ouachitas. Shorelines at Lake Ouachita, for example, just out of Hot Springs, are marked with billboards carrying huge numbers that indicate choice spots to fish. There are fifty such boards on this one large lake. They serve also to guide the stranger back to camp. Free maps are available at hundreds of places about the lake.
