RAYMOND GREENWOOD

This is the last old column that you will have to wade through from this many old editor as beginning Monday I will take over as manager of the Burk Burnett Chamber of Commerce.

My only regret at this point is the fact there are still several good people around that I haven't had time to publically harass. I've talked about Joe Ray McClusky and how that when he borrows pipe tobacco (which is the only kind he knows how to smoke) that he packs so much into his pipe that he can't draw through it. Then there were Jerry McClures pint size bass, and the time Fred Hunt lost his wife's rod and reel in the lake and tried to replace it before I had a chance to get something in the paper and let Loretta know about it (he was going to replace it as if nothing had ever happened).

There's been a lot we've found out about some of these local folks, but there are still a few running loose that someone should feel something on. I only regret I'll not have as much of an opportunity now.

There is one other thing I'll miss a great deal. No longer will I be able to write about our great football team and how they down their foes one by one as the Bulldogs march on toward the state championship.

This football team has to be one of the best teams I have ever come into contact with. They are great athletes, certainly or they wouldn't have been able to get this far in the playoffs. What I'm speaking of isn't their football ability, but rather they are just great kids.

They have great athletic ability, but they also have the desire to win and possibly even more important they are dedicated to their fellow members, their school and this town.

When you watch the game Saturday afternoon or as you think back over this past season, think of these young men as they have dedicated themselves to play to the best of their ability. Think back over the times our backs gave that little second or third effort plunge that netted the desperately needed first down or the score. Think of the many, many blocks that you have seen the linemen and the other backs lay as they opened the hole for the ball carrier or the times when our defensive players simply overpowered or outwitted their opponents as they stymied the on rushing offense.

This year's football team from the starters down to the very last substitute I feel are just great kids both on and off the field. It's these kind of individuals that win the state championships. I'm proud to have had the opportunity to work closely with the coaches and players as I wrote stories and shot pictures of their games. We have the ball club that can be the next AAA State Champions.

If, from now until the end of the championship game some three weeks away another team outscored our Bulldogs, I'll still be convinced that all in all the Burk Burnett Bulldogs are still the best team in the state.

Thanks for the many kindnesses through the years that I have received as the editor of your newspaper. You all have been great subscribers and advertisers.

Thanks again.

Bulldogs In Quarterfinals Here

Burk Gets Attention From National News

Burkburnett has received great fame these past few weeks since the announcement Sam H. Walton of his plans to drill an oil well in Bulldog Stadium. A winning football team, one of the best in the state and the best ever to come from Burk Burnett, plus the fact that Burk Burnett, is one of the oldest boomtowns in Texas made a great news story for local, area, and national news media. News excerpts have run on numerous television stations, across the nation including national CBS programs. Also several of the largest newspapers carried articles including the Wall Street Journal, Los Angeles Times, New York Times, papers in Hawaii and Florida, numerous Texas papers as well as the military's Stars and Stripes.

Status of Walton's project currently stands as it did some days ago. He hasn't applied for the city permit enabling him to drill within the city limits of Burk Burnett, nor has met with the local school board to make a formal offer for sale of his lease.

In the school board's meeting Nov. 20 Walton was represented by his attorney H.W. Fillmore who told the board that he was unable at that time to present a petroleum engineer's report of the proposed well location. The report would give a good indication of possible size of the underground minerals and an estimate of their productivity on the portion of Walton's lease underneath school property.

Fillmore related to the board that if the report showed no oil of any value existed on the lease then possibly Walton wouldn't want to drill, but if the report showed a good possibility of a good oil reservoir and if "drilling would pay off commercially, then we have another question."

Walton's two wells pumping just outside of the football stadium now only produce less than four barrels of oil per month.

At the board meeting, members voted to withdraw all former offers of purchase of the lease and at that time not to make any other offers. Earlier the board offered Walton $1,000 for the portion of the lease beneath school property.

Local citizens contend that if there is a sizeable amount of oil beneath the stadium, then it could be tapped by a slant well or by a well drilled some 200 feet away in the edge of the parking lot. Numerous suggestions from local citizens have

For the first time in the history of Burk Burnett High School its mighty Bulldogs will enter into the State Quarterfinals as they take on the powerful Dumas Demons Saturday in Bulldog Stadium.

The Bulldogs started their quest for their first District title early in the fall and defeated all seven of their district foes for the undisputed district champion berth.

Last week in a hard fought battle in Shotwell Stadium in Abilene the Bulldogs defeated Lamesa 19-16 for the Bi-District Championship, and won the right to enter the quarterfinals.

Bulldog Coach Bill Froman and other school officials met with Dumas school personnel Sunday afternoon in Childress to decide the playoff site. The schools decided to go for a home and home game and Froman won the coin toss. Thus, this will be the first quarterfinal game ever to be held in Burk Burnett which is also the first quarterfinal game the Bulldogs have ever competed in.

"To me this is as good a thing that could ever happen to this town," stated Froman expressing his joy over being able to play the game on his home field. "With the amount of travel involved for the visitors, it's a great thing."

That Saturday afternoon game would be best for all concerned," Froman related. Kickoff time for the contest is 2:00 p.m.

Tickets for the event went on sale yesterday at the price of $2.50 for reserved, $2.00 for general admission and $1.00 for students. Season ticket holders will have first priority for their regular seats, but are urged to come by the school tax office as soon as possible and pick them up.

Extra portable bleachers are being added to the stadium in the expectation of a maximum crowd. "We sent a large number of reserved seats on the visitors side to Dumas," stated high school principal Bill Darland. "It's entirely likely they won't use all the seats available for them. If that's the case then there will be some fine reserved seats available on the visitors side when the gates open at 12:30 p.m. Saturday.

The Bulldog opponent is expected to be coming to town with a win in mind. Froman describes the Demons as a very competitive team that has only lost to AAAA schools this season and according to Froman they play one of the strongest schedules in the state.

Against AAA opponents (including their Bi-district win over Pecos, 27-21) Dumas has scored 129 points and has given up only 42 for the best defensive record in their district.

They have won the district championship five times out of the last six years and are a two time state champion both coming in the early '60's. "Bill Spann, the coach at Dumas, is one of the most highly respected coaches in the state," stated Froman.

The Demons started slow as they dropped five straight games to AAAA foes, then hit their stride at mid season in defeating Altus Oklahoma 33-14 to begin a six game win streak to advance into the quarterfinal round of state play.

The team leaders for the Demons are Duane Sisson, senior running back who picked up over 1000 yards for the season, including seven games with over 100 yards per contest. Tommy, quarterback who came off a pre-season injury to take over the signal calling chores in the Altus game, and direct the six straight wins. Cook throws well and is an adequate runner when he has to scramble; Mike Dollar, a slight split-end who caught three touchdown passes against Pecos to keep Dumas in the game. Dollar has good hands and exceptional moves. Against Pecos he caught 6 passes for 187 yards.

Tim Bulkley, running back, has good speed and quick moves, this season he has two games in which he rushed for over 100 yards. He is also used as an alternate receiver; David Bonner, defensive nose guard and offensive tackle, Bonner a three year letterman anchors the forward wall in providing protection for Cook on passing attempts and moves well on blocking assignments for running plays. On defense Bonner is among the leaders in tackles. Miles Ledgerwood, backup quarterback and defensive corner back leads the team in tackles in secondary.

Dumas' success has been the result of an over all team effort, after they once got everything together.

Dumas' 6-5-0 season record doesn't look too impressive until one considers their schedule.

Palo Duro (AAAA)	7-42
Pampa (AAAA)	7-8
Tascosa (AAAA)	6-38
Borger (AAAA)	14-22

Clovie N.M.	20-35
Altus Okla. (AAAA)	33-14
Muleshoe	6-0
Canyon	34-14
Perryton	12-7
Levelland	50-0
Pecos (Bi-district)	27-21

Dumas is reported to have a real balanced attack coming at its opponents both through the air and on the ground. They run a very sophisticated type offense that utilizes a wing back set. They are a seasoned type team that is very play-off oriented.

Things won't be rosy for the Demons though as they have to deal with the Bulldogs "Orange

Less Discipline Needed By Youth Says Local Principal

By Sedelta Verble

"I don't feel you need as much discipline as when I was school, but in that time there was more respect for adults and more help from the home," commented Overton Ray, principal of Hardin Grade School in a recent interview when asked of any problems.

"It's not that parents aren't concerned anymore it's just that they're so busy with other things. They know the problem exists, but, parents aren't at home at the time children are at school. More and more mothers must work to help carry the financial load," he continued.

This is Ray's first year as principal of Hardin. So far, he commented that everything has gone smoothly with no major difficulties. Ray brings with him a B.S. from Xavier University at New Orleans, a Master's degree in elementary education from Midwestern University and is currently working on graduate courses at North Texas State. He adds to this many years teaching experience in the Burk Burnett School System.

"Curriculum has changed in the years I have been here. New teaching aides have been introduced along with new subjects and the modernization of standard courses. The educators now feel that these grades 1-5 can cope with elementary Algebra and Modern English.

Ray compared the children who now go to grade schools with those of yesterday, by saying "they have changed in that they are more aware of what's going on around them and television has a big influence on this new awareness. Sesame Street is helpful in that it exposes unfortunate children who have not learned the basic fundamental to this information and it teaches the more aware ones lots, too."

"Take a first grade child who is supposed to draw a giraffe, if this child is fortunate enough to have visited a zoo then he has no problems, but the other child would be handicapped."

enced him."

"Of course this is not to say that all television has a good influence on these young children. Some programs are shown that should not be viewed by a grade schooler."

He continued by stating,
"This is the vital time in a child's life. Right now the foundation is being laid and they need to learn as much in these years and the preschool years as possible. These children are forming ideas and attitudes which will shape their lives and this is why I have urged more involvement by parents."

Ray has five children of his own, David 14, Marty 13, Darrel 11, Kenneth 8, and James, 6 are five very important men in his life.

Ray was born in Greenville,
Texas, a small city in east Texas, much like Burk Burnett.

He commented that as a child
he wanted to become a doctor, but couldn't afford it. This was when he decided to become a teacher.

He is content with the principal position and stated that he intends to stay here in the Burk Burnett School System.

All in all, Ray must combine skills of several different professions in order to fill the job of principal. He must draw knowledge from his teaching abilities. The job requires psychology, administrative duties and many more that the surface shows. He actually coordinates the overall program at Hardin combining supervision of discipline and the small jobs which also need his aid.

The educator concluded the interview with this thought,
"When a child is hungry he can not learn. The Free Lunch program and other projects of this type are being accepted by less fortunate parents for their children. It seems that we can not really measure the tremendous results of these programs, but it seems that people have put pride aside and are now taking help that can help their children in this important time of their lives."

Twelve 28,000 BTU roof units will be installed by the PTA there. Mrs. Bill Wood, pre-that the group had hopes of having the units installed by the spring of 1973.

The PTA currently reports approximately $3,000 in their air conditioning fund and their hopes of the remaining amount can be raised by a few large small ones.

Local Chapter Represented At National Holiday Campvention

The annual fall Campvention of the Texas Association of National Campers and Hikers Association was in the Bues-cher State Park near Smithville during the past week. Approximately 155 units or 465 people attended.

Many activities were scheduled from a Thanksgiving Dinner by each chapter to programs on conservation and first aid. Also on the Agenda was an auction, bake walk and bingo. Several games were cancelled because of rain.

Several members of the Smithville Chamber of Commerce donated gift certificates as prizes and through the aid of local residents a hayride was arranged for teenagers.

Saturday, there was a parade of campers through downtown Smithville.

A high point of the Campven-tion was the selection of a Teen Queen Contestant. The girl selected will represent Texas at the National Convention to be held in California.

The National Campers and Hikers Association of which the Texas Association is a member was founded in 1954 by H.
Hank Ellsworth Nathan. The organization now claims members in every state of the nation, Canada and in several other nations.

The NCHA, which is the largest family organization in the world, aims at educating the public in the conservation of natural resources, and by enhancing recreational life.

Representing the Boontown-ers' Chapter at the Thanksgiv-

Football Contest Winners

The Burk Burnett Informer/Star Football Contest came to a close last week with the usual number of entrants, but the winners in the contest didn't have the percentage of winning teams as those in the past.

Rickey Sykes of 1005 Francis and Michael Sharpe of 217
Walnut Dr., both of Burk Burnett tied for first place with 15 correct picks each. Rickey was awarded first place and Michael second place due to their tie-breaker prediction.

Several upsets in high school, college and pro ball were blamed for the unusually low percentage of correct picks by those that entered the contest. In past weeks numerous persons have picked as many as 18 correct games and a whole host would follow with 16 or 17 correct picks.

The INFORMER/STAR would like to thank those that took the time to enter the contest each week and to the many

BULLDOGS TAKE BI-DISTRICT CHAMPIONSHIP WITH 19-16 VICTORY OVER LAMESA

RICK BRADLEY, #44, romps for a vital yardage gain as Lamesa's #12 tries to head him off at the pass.

Strategy, explosive running and a "crusher" defense combined to make for a victory as Sam Hancock and his Bulldogs brought home the Bi-District trophy defeating Lamesa 19-16.

The Shotwell Stadium showdown matched up the two district champs in a defensive struggle before an estimated 6,000 fans.

The Golden Tornadoes christened the scoreboard with an opening TD and extra point in the second quarter. The fumbles, that plagued both teams throughout the contest, made their first appearance as the Tors exchanged the ball with the Dogs. The Bulldog offense and Zac Henderson pushed Burk through when Henderson galloped 55 yards to tie the Lamesa Tors 7-7.

Before the halftime the Dogs racked up 6 more big ones to lead Lamesa 13-7. QB Hancock drove the Bulldogs from the Tornado 40 after a fumble steal by Vernon Fournier. The fumble set up the drive which ended with speedy Sam smashing through the heavy Tornado line for 6.

The Tornadoes took the opening kickoff but were unable to hold on as the grabby Dog offense snatched the ball.

The Lamesa team jumped ahead of the Dogs though when a Tor romped 32-yards to lead the Burk 14-13.

But Sam's super stars were determined to stay ahead as the Dogs capped a 46-yard drive with 9 plays and an 11-yard TD pass from Hancock to Bill Snowden. The score stood 19-14.

Fumble fever again took its toll as both teams had trouble holding the ball under such extreme pressure during the crucial contest. The Fournier brothers, Allan and Vernon, were cool-headed as both recovered fumbles which could have been used against the Dogs.

With 2:00 minutes left in the game the Tornadoes were forth and goal to go when Zac Henderson zonked Wayne Hogg for a loss. Now the strategy comes in as the Burk champs held the ball for three downs.

Burk took a delay of game penalty in their effort to run as much time off the clock as possible. Henderson took the snap for a punt, but then knelt in the end zone giving Lamesa a safety and two points. But the safety enabled the Bulldogs to a free kick from the 20 yard line and completely conceal Lamesa's hopes of a

With only 14 seconds left, Burk defense held the powerful Lamesa line and ended the contest 19-16.

The stars of the Burk team were evident with Zac Henderson, Bradley, and Hancock leading the offense. The defensive stars were harder to spot with the entire unit shining brightly. Neible, Allan and Vernon Fournier, David Spinks and the whole line deserve their hard fought victory.

GO BULLDOGS

SCOTT SMITH - #73, and Vernon Fournier, #70 keep the strong Lamesa line still after the Bulldogs tore open a hole for QB Hancock, #17 to score and pull the Dogs ahead of the Tornadoes 13-7.

DAVID SPINKS, #66 and Rick Bradley, #44 attack the explosive Lamesa back, Wayne Hogg. Hogg was a threat throughout the contest but hard hitting tackles like this prevented the runner from breaking loose.

BHS Basketball

By Sedelta Verble
Coach Jim Phillips and his round ballers will be hitting the road tonight to open the basketball season for the Burk Burnett Bulldogs. Skip Dean is the only returning letterman from last year's line-up that helped gain the 'Dogs a 21-7 season with a second in district standing. Mike Miller and Danny Nix will also head the ranks.

Today will also open the Pam-pa Tournament combined with the first out of town Burk game. The Jacksboro Tournament which covers the 14-16 of December will follow the Burk Burnett Tournament starting December 7 and continuing through the 9th.

"We have good potential and this year will be similar to last year," Coach Phillips commented, but Phillips pointed out that the Bulldogs lack height as Mike Miller is the tallest member at six foot three inches.

The Bulldogs have been practicing three hours daily but the schedule will be shortened as the year progresses.

With the basketball season opening this week and continuing through the second week in February plans should be made to attend the Tuesday and Friday night contests.

The B team is scheduled for 6:30 p.m. and the Varsity will follow.

"It is my pleasure to inform you that you have been selected a 1973-1974 President's Scholar at Texas A&M University."

These words began the letter

Barry Steele, a senior at BHS received on October 26.

In addition to the honor of being recognized as an outstanding student by the President, Barry will receive a scholarship to A&M which provides $1,000 a year for up to five years.

Barry's ambition to make good grades will not disappear. Certain requirements, including maintaining his present grade point average, must be met before he will receive the scholarship.

For the years he attends Texas A&M, he must be enrolled as a fulltime student, maintain a clean conduct record, and have a B average. "This money will go a long way to help pay expenses," Barry stated.

At A&M Barry hopes to major in micro-biology and minor in chemistry. Someday he hopes to be a physician specializing in surgery.

Susan Barad Good Citizen

Miss Susan Barad has been chosen this year's DAR Good Citizen Award winner from Burk Burnett High School. The Major Francis Grice Chapter, National Society of The Daughters of the American Revolution, Wichita Falls, Texas, presents each recipient with the DAR Good Citizen Award pin and certificate. Following faculty selection of each Good Citizen Award winner, the girl is sent a questionnaire to answer, which makes it possible for her to compete in the state contest. The state award winner will be the guest of the Texas Society, DAR, opening night of the State Conference at the Houston Oaks Hotel in Houston, March 19-21, 1973, and will receive a hundred dollar United States Savings Bond, Series E, along with the Texas Society DAR Good Citizen pin. She is the daughter of Lt. Col. and Mrs. Leonard R. Barad of 121 Falcon, Sheppard AFB.

Guidelines of Life

SKIPPING CHURCH WORRIES MANY

What are some concerns in your life that lead you to worry? It seems that some headaches and heartaches arise from non-physiological causes. If you kept a day-by-day worry list - how would you rank your anxieties as to the order of gravest concern?

Recently I came across a rather interesting Harris Survey which listed causes of concern and worry among Americans. Included in the list were those serious matters such as marital unfaithfulness, fast and loose sex play, excessive drinking and gambling, the padding of expense accounts, etc. Such actions outside the rules have always created deep-seated guilt complexes.

Yet, strange as it might first appear, forty-three percent revealed their greatest worry to be "Church Apathyism" - in fact, failure to worship regularly turned out to be the fourth major worry that bothered all the people sampled in the survey. Can it be that people are not as happy and self-sufficient as they would like to believe apart from the church?

If we knew ourselves better we would soon realize that our chief purpose in life is to adore and worship God our Creator. When we do not, guilt is awakened. Modern psychology backs up the age-old Scripture that affirms that true guilt is always found in the spirit of man. T.S. Eliot, famous poet-playwright has one of his characters in the "Cocktail Party" admit the gnawing sense of guilt: "It's not the feeling of anything I've done, which I might get away from, or anything in me I could get rid of - but of emptiness, of failure towards someone, or somethings, outside of myself; and I feel I must atone."

Folks try all sorts of tricks to get rid of guilt. In a way we are all like Jean Valjean in Les Miserables, who tries to remain the honored mayor of the city while hiding his hard past as an outlaw. Concealment may keep our neighbors from knowing the facts, but will not succeed with ourselves or with God. The 19th Century author, Edgar Allan Poe, relates the story of the "Tell-tale Heart." A murderer buried the body of his victim in the basement. But his conscience plays tricks on him. The heart lay under the floor, and the guilty killer imagined that he heard it beat louder and louder, drumming for everyone to hear. He could not erase the memory of his deed nor the indelible stain of guilt.

Happily no untested pill or long therapeutic process is required to "kick" the worry of ignoring God. Our community churches are programmed to provide worship opportunities both convenient and beneficial to you. For in your worship through the Gospel you will receive God's sure remedy for all fears. The Bible is still the enerrant and infallible guide for a life of freedom, joy and lasting significance. A hint of regular worship in the community church of your choice will free you from a "hang-up" with this big worry and enable you to reap a proportionate measure of happiness.

Mrs. Loyse Seism of Walters volunteered to get the art of beautifying common hangers underway last week when 10 senior students learned enough during one lesson to complete 25 hangers which will be on sale priced three for one dollar, according to Mrs. Louise Money, director of Temple's meeting place for

LIONS

Temple and Zone B, composed of Lion clubs in Duncan, Velma Alma, Comanche, and Marlow, were represented by Eddie Laxson, Zone chairman, at the second 3-L district cabinet meeting Sunday held in Lawton's Cameron College administration building under the supervision of district governor, Charles Markum of Clinton.

During the two and one-half hour meeting reports were given by zone chairmen outlining activities, clubs' interest, and other pertinent happening to clubs in their zones.

All committee chairmen, attending the meeting, revealed enthusiasm within their departments. Dr. H.R. Seesaran of Lawton substituted for chairman Herman Braswell and told of advancements and needs in the sight conservation and work for the blind backed by Oklahoma Lions. According to Carroll Ridgway, leading the CARE committee, his department could use more money. By far the most detailed reports were given on Lions' supported Youth Ranch and included in the remarks was the statement, "We're not at liberty to reveal recent plans, but you may rest assured outstanding advancements will be announced soon," leading listeners to believe the L.O.A facilities would be greatly enlarged to include girls and family life. Charles Shinnault, heading the Dr. Eugene Briggs Memorial Trustee committee, believes there is a good chance that two Oklahoma girls will receive scholarships in nurse's training in Oklahoma City. A Lion uniform has been agreed upon by a national committee and will be available in the near future, and Oklahoma Lion pins have been designed and strict distribution is in sore to insure enough pins for delegates attending the coming National convention. So the Lions magazine can continue arriving to members each Lion is asked to contribute one dollar to help defray publishing expenses. Next year annual dues will be raised one dollar to take care of the added costs, according to a public relation report.

To assist clubs' efforts to sponsor additional clubs into Lionism State Secretary, Odell Beck, showed slides fiving data and motivating reasons for a community organizing a Lions club. The slides are available, for the asking, to clubs wishing to promote Lionism.

Before adjournment it was announced Stillwater would host the two-day Midwinter convention where Paul Wigington will make his second attempt to be elected state president.

Temple Lions will welcome their district 3-L governor, Charles Markum, who has scheduled a visit to their next meeting, November 27.

Two Duncan ninth grade students, Tim Finucane and Faureice Faulk, both members of Duncan's Demolay chapter, and Dean Dugan, a retiring Frederick Demolay, presented an emotional program at Friday night's District 34 Masonic meeting in Comanche.

The program was under the watchful eyes of W.M. Weigley, Lawton district Demolay official and Dad McCall, assistant Demolay Dad of Duncan.

The Duncan team, dressed in their organizational robes, gave their Flower Talk. Finucane presented the talk and Faulk received the message surrounded by seven candles furnishing enough light to outline an improvised altar bearing a Bible, school books, a red and a white flower, all used to support the meaningful ceremony.

Dean Dugan, State Deputy Master Counselor, soon to be 21 and beyond the age of the 13 to 21 Demolay bracket, traveled from his Frederick chapter to present a sneak preview of a recently written message he is slated to give soon in a Kansas meeting for his last public appearance as a Demolay.

His 10 minute portion of the 18 minute program brought a timely message for Americans. Dugan extinguished one candle each time he named a privilege the United States was in danger of losing and finished his talk with an outline of why Americans should rally against any force that could put our country in total freedom blackout.

During a brief business session a standing ovation was given the host's Eastern Stars in

Ideas Exchanged About Environment Of Military Life At SAASS Conference

SHEPPARD AFB, Texas - In their two-day conference last week, squadron commanders had an opportunity to discuss mutual problems and were briefed on subjects relating to their function.

The School of Applied Sciences, Sheppard (SAASS) Squadron Commanders' Conference Nov. 16-17, the first of its kind, was attended by the commanders of all student and permanent party SAASS squadrons.

Colonel Carl L. Brunson, SAASS commander, said the purpose of the conference was twofold.

"In addition to allowing an exchange of information and ideas in the rapidly changing environment of military life," Colonel Brunson explained, "we wanted to foster better understanding of problems that confront student and permanent party squadron commanders as applied not only to military training and management aspects of student life but also to the multitude of classroom training activities and problems."

"Before the conference," Colonel Brunson continued, "some of the commanders did not even know their counterparts. It is very difficult to maintain continuity and harmony when dealing with student problems when good relationships do not exist between squadron life and the activities of the classroom."

Among subjects discussed at the conference, including legal ramifications of limited privileged communications, organization and benefits of SAASS and personnel problems, social actions occupied a good deal of the commanders' attention.

According to Colonel Brunson, this was in keeping with the conference theme—"People."

A high light of the conference was the opening remarks by Major General Robert L. Pettit, Sheppard Technical Training Center commander. He challenged the commanders to take a leading role in social actions. He indicated that, while the social actions field is complex, it is possible to create a proper environment of social understanding.

"You are the key men to start working on attitudes," General Pettit told the commanders. "To meet your responsibilities you must understand and implement the directives, goals and philosophy of the Department of Defense Human Relations program."

During his hour-long talk with the commanders, General Pettit cited guidelines to help implement social action on the squadron commander's level.

"Have empathy for people, not sympathy. Being sorry for someone is not productive; it is understanding that is useful. 'Treat individuals as individuals,' he continued, "and tailor programs to the needs of each individual."

General Pettit said that hard work, integrity, honesty, and sincerity are hallmarks of a successful social leader and "what you do speaks so loudly that what you say cannot be heard."

"You must help create an environment where all ethnic groups are comfortable in the Air Force."

General Pettit also mentioned the responsibilities and rewards of the squadron commander's job.

"This is where it all starts and where it all ends," he said. "There is no tougher position in the Air Force."

"You will get a lot of criticism," he warned the commanders, "but continue to work the problems and don't become discouraged. There is no greater satisfaction than doing a good job as a squadron commander."

donation during a staff meeting. Red containers will now be distributed throughout the base for donations.

At the luncheon were more than 90 squadron commanders and first sergeants. The first sergeants will select those families they deem needy. Checks of varying amounts will then be given to those according to financial condition.

Co-chairmen for the Project Christmas are Lieutenant Colonel Sebastian F. Soklic and Major Shural G. Knippers, both chaplains at Sheppard.

SAFB Sergeant Greets Mother As Air Controller

SHEPPARD AFB, TEXAS--A familiar voice is often heard in the Sheppard Control Tower by Staff Sergeant Roger C. Parker, an air traffic controller at Sheppard.

Sergeant Parker's mother, an avid aviatrix and president of the Kansas Chapter of the Women's 99 flying organizations, flies into Sheppard on a regular basis to visit her son.

According to Mrs. Parker, besides visiting her son, there is an ulterior motive behind her trips to Sheppard--"Finest air traffic control service anywhere," she claims.

SHEPPARD AFB, Texas - - BUILDING A BOAT - - Technical Sergeant David Armbruster, an instructor in the Department of Civil Engineering Training of the School of Applied Aerospace Sciences, Sheppard, works on the Deep Vee Sea Angler 20-foot cruiser he is building at Sheppard's hobby shop. He hopes to have everything but the engine completed by March, when he goes to Korea, and looks forward to a Lake Arrowhead cruise upon his return.

Select Group Of Airmen

Student Leaders Assist Instructors

SHEPPARD AFB, Texas - -

Anyone who has watched the long green columns of student airmen march to class at Sheppard has heard a strong voice ring out, keeping the mile-long parade in rhythm. That voice usually belongs to one of the students, an airman marching along side, wearing a red lanyard in contrast with his green uniform.

He is a student leader, one of the select group of people at Sheppard-- both men and women-- who are in the demanding role of leading and guiding their peers. They are responsible for discipline and standards and are also charged with maintaining the morale of their squadrons. Basically they are there to assist the military training instructor, but with a major difference. As Staff Sergeant Robert Roy, an instructor in the Student Leader School says, "They have perhaps the most difficult job on base. They have a great deal of responsibility, yet they also must live with the people they are leading."

The student leaders are the result of an Air Training Command directive that has sent hundreds of students through the Student Leader School of the 3750th Student Group of Sheppard. Taking only volunteers, Sergeant Roy and Technical Sergeant Gene Breeden, the two instructors, teach students drill, commands, voice, loyalty, discipline, safety, and the limits and responsibilities of authority and leadership.

How do students become leaders? First they must be volunteers. They are then interviewed by their military training instructors and squadron commanders and, if recommended, attend the school for two hours a day for two weeks. Then, if there is an opening in their squadron and their academic record is good, they may assume a position of responsibility.

There are three levels of student leaders: those who wear green aiguillettes, (commonly called ropes, a term which also applies to the wearers) who are bay chiefs; yellow who are barracks chiefs; and red, the shift leaders. Leaders move up through the ranks to attain higher positions to the point where a red rope may be responsible for up to 200 people.

The graduates of the course think highly of it. Airman Basic Ronald Williams, a yellow rope with the 3780th Student Squadron, says that the school,

What's Better Than A Cruise--- Than Building Your Own Boat

SHEPPARD AFB, Texas - - chance works, three days after he purchased his materials and began work on his cruiser, he received his orders for an assignment overseas.

"I always wanted to build a cruiser," said the sergeant. "I was looking through this guy's Boat Builder magazine from which he was working at the hobby shop, saw the Deep Vee and said 'I'm going to build it.'"

The Deep Vee is a popular style because it can provide high turn-speed with minimum pounding in rough seas.

Technical Sergeant David Armbruster, an instructor in the Department of Civil Engineering Training at Sheppard AFB, enjoys water activities as much as the next man, but he goes the next step --- you build a boat. In his case the boat is a deep Vee Sea Angler 20-foot cruiser.

Over in the base hobby shop it's slowly taking shape now. And sergeant Armbruster has his eye on a nice cruise on Lake Arrowhead --- after he returns from Korea. For as

The vessels plans called for a few types of wood which were difficult to get, so he substituted a high quality pine which he feels will work fine for the fresh-water voyages he plans. "I'd like to equip this thing so I can take off and not return for a week. It has two 19-gallon tanks planned for it, and I may add another."

Sergeant Armbruster began work in mid-September and, other than a two-week bout with pneumonia, has been working steady on it, several hours a day.

His deadline to finish is in mid-March, two weeks before he ships out to Korea.

"Everything should be completed by then except the engine. And I think I'll wait until I return from Korea to put that in."

Right now he plans on using the recommended Buick V-6 for an inboard engine. Its 155 horse power is expected to give the cruiser a top speed of 38 and cruising speed of 32 knots.

Sergeant Armbruster expects expenses for everything except the engine to cost between $350 to $400. Not bad at all for your own cruiser.

He's working now on your 1982 electric service.

He's one of the engineers at Texas Electric who is charged with the job of making sure this area continues to have enough electricity.

Developing our power system is a complex assignment. It requires teamwork, training, knowledge and experience. It continuously involves weighing alternatives in the selection and arrangement of facilities that will keep our power system reliable and efficient, and environmentally sound.

Ten years ahead may seem a long time, but in our business that's the normal planning cycle.

We're already at work on construction projects that will be completed in 1978. By then we will have added more than 2,000,000 kilowatts--about 2/3 of our present generating capability--as well as related transmission and distribution facilities. And we're now planning into the 1980's.

Being able to meet the electric service requirements of our customers tomorrow depends on sound planning today by the people at Texas Electric.

It's the job of every one of us to see that you get the most value from your electric service.

New books for adults are varied in subject. THE FOX-FIRE BOOK is a document of our peculiarly American heritage - a book to study, to make from, to laugh with, and to enjoy. Some high school students went into the Southern Appalachians with tape-recorders and cameras. This is some of the most exciting material they discovered.

Here, in Larry Collins and Dominique Lapierre's book, O JERUSALEM, is an account of the struggle in 1948 between the Arabs and the Jews. The city was, through forty centuries, the most bitterly disputed site in the world.

IN HIDING is the story of Manuel Cortes, the mayor of a village near Malaga, Spain before its fall to France during the Spanish Civil War. He spent thirty years in the nooks and crannies of a wall, before an amnesty declaration by the government caused him to emerge and tell his story.

For the complete story of aerial hijacking, read THE SKY

PIRATES, by James A. Arey. The book is based on official documents, interviews, and newspaper accounts and gives a vivid and detailed picture of the international problem.

Other non-fiction: THE RANDY MATSON STORY, by Carlton Stowers; ONLY A NOVEL: THE DOUBLE LIFE OF JANE AUSTIN, by Jane Aiken Hodge; PISTOL PETE MARAVICH, by Bill Gutman; TEXAS FOLK MEDICINE, compiled by John Q. Anderson; IF I CAN DO IT HORSEBACK, by John Hendrix; a view of West Texas ranch life; THE PYRAMIDS AND THE SPHINX, by Desmond Stewart; and REPORT FROM ENGINE CO. 82, by Dennis Smith—the story of the busiest engine company in New York.

Fiction: THE MAN WHO LOVED CAT DANCING, by Marilyn Durham; THE SETTLERS, by Meyer Levine; WEEP AND KNOW WHY, by Elisabeth Ogilvie; THE MOONRAKER MURDER - a sea story, by Antony Trew; and MY NAME IS ASHER LEV, by Chaim Potok - the author of THE CHOSEN.

with the development of insect and mite populations in the various fields and to use pesticides only in those cases where insect or mite populations are reaching an economically damaging level.

The farmer of 1980 will have to be a business man just as much as an agriculturist. He will also need an operation physically large enough to supply his family an adequate standard of living and still be able to generate enough capital to keep expanding. This means he likely will have to generate minimum farm sales of over $40,000 annually, which will require that he have control over farm assets (land, equipment) totalling over $250,000 to $300,000. Since profit margins have declined for most farm production, there will be greater stress on business and financial management skills.

To the surprise of no one with livestock, October was another record month in a record-breaking screwworm year. The month saw 15,743 positive cases recorded at the Mission Lab. It was the fifth straight month in which a new all-time mark had been established in the 10-year-old program. In fact only four monthly totals for 1972 have been surpassed in previous years, February through May.

As always, Texas set the pace with 14,503 infestations. Arizona followed with 531, Oklahoma had 350, New Mexico 345, California 5, Arkansas 4, Florida 2, and Kansas and Louisiana 1 each.

Records on the fields will be sent first to the County Extension agent who is working with the wheat scout and then to the Extension Area Entomologist, Emory P. Boring, III. The objective is to keep up WINS PUBLIC RELATIONS AWARD - Wichita County Farm Bureau is the winner in its membership class of the Information and Public Relations Award presented annually by Texas Farm Bureau. The award goes to the county which, through publicity and public relations activities, has done an outstanding job of promoting a better understanding of Farm Bureau's ideals and objectives. Presentation of the award was made at the 39th annual TFB convention held this year at the Rice Hotel in Houston, November 12-15. Pictured with the award are, from left T.J. Richards, state director, and Ruth Dorris Gand, office secretary.

Demonstration Agent

The annual Home Demonstration Council Christmas party will be December 13 at Furr's Cafeteria in Wichita Falls. Home Demonstration Club members may start through the line at 11:30 a.m.

Five members of the Family Living Committee of the Wichita County Program Building Committee attended a program planning meeting in Seymour, November 14. The committee membership is in the process of being revised; therefore, some of the members were new to the program planning process. In attendance were Mrs. R. C. Gilbow, vice chairman of the Program Building Committee, and Mrs. E. W. Roderick, secretary of the Program Building Committee, both of Burkburnett. Mrs. Lee Turner of Iowa Park; Mrs. George Emmert of Wichita Falls, and Mrs.

J.W. Tole, of the Friberg-Cooper Community, represented the subject matter groups of the Family Living Committee.

Mrs. Jack Marshall of Electra has accepted the position of Family Living Committee chairman.

Perhaps we have not counted our blessings in this business of producing food and fiber. Think of hungry nations of the world that would like to have our ability to produce agricultural goods. We worry about our agricultural surpluses. The hungry nations would consider these surpluses a blessing. November is Texas Food and Fiber Abundance Month. Let us count our blessings when we live in a state so abundant with food and fiber and in our nation who is so willing to share that abundance.

State's 3rd Experimental Either-Sex Deer Season

Texas Parks and Wildlife Department biologists are ready for the state's third experimental either-sex deer season. The number of counties involved in the experiment has steadily climbed since the initial four participating counties in 1970.

The number jumped to 25 in 1971, and 53 counties are involved in either-sex deer harvests this year.

The need to harvest both bucks and does became apparent to wildlife biologists back in the 1940's when massive die-offs struck the Edwards Plateau whitetail herds. Deer simply reproduced themselves past the carrying capacity of the range and starvation trimmed the excess.

Biologists implemented censusing techniques in 1953 and obtained population estimates of the Texas herds that showed excessive deer.

Accurate population data provided the initial management tool and the first doe harvest was started in 1953.

A review of landowner use of doe permits from 1953 to 1970 indicates that only 50 percent of the permits were passed on to hunters.

This conservative approach to antlerless deer harvest prompted the department to start the percent system of experimental deer "tags" in counties with an either-sex season.

Special tags were issued to landowners in unlimited numbers and the owner had complete control of the harvest.

The only requirement is that landowners obtain special identification tags from the department for issuance to hunters. These tags identify the deer as being killed within a designated county.

Such hunts have been held on the department's Kerr Wildlife Management Area near Kerrville since 1956. The area now has a herd composed equally of does and bucks. The experiment has shown that legal hunting pressure will not deplete a deer herd when adequate habitat and food is available.

Either-sex hunting reduces pressure on bucks and increases the food supply available for the remaining herd.

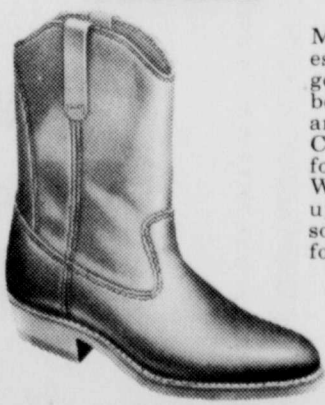

Since deer management may be compared with livestock management, it does not make sense to sell the best bulls and leave the immature animals to expand the herd.

Much the same applied to deer.

The tags which are available in unlimited quantities are not to be confused with doe permits. Permits are issued in limited quantities based on overpopulation of deer and the carrying capacity of the land in ratio to the proportion of land having surplus deer.

Dave Brock Named Rodeo Rookie Of Year

A 21-year old Kansas cowboy has been named pro rodeo's Rookie of the Year for 1972 the Rodeo Cowboys Association said.

Dave Brock of Goodland, reigning all around cowboy in the National Intercollegiate Rodeo Association, finished his first year in professional ranks with $9,953 in winnings.

The five-ten, 160-pounder collected $9,123 in calf roping, finishing 20th in the event, and picked up the balance in steer wrestling.

The Rookie award is given annually to the top money-winner who exhibits the greatest potential as a rodeo cowboy and proves an asset to the sport during his first year as a member of the association.

For the honor, Brock outdistanced his closest competitors, John Davis of Homedale, Ida., a bull riding specialist, and John Rothwell of Hyannis, Neb., another timed event hand.

Brock started in Little Britches competition when he was ten years old, and won the all around award at that level in 1968 and 1969. He was also Kansas State High School Champion calf roper in 1969, and led college ranks in ribbon roping last year.

The season's leaders for all around cowboy include eighth place Clyde Vamvoras of DeWitt with $14,465 in bareback bronc riding events, and Ted Smally of Burkburnett with $9,380 in calf roping competition.

Altus Cotton Division Graded Cotton Samples

The USDA Cotton Division Classing Office at Altus graded 21,300 samples for the week ending November 17, and the season total stood at 71,800 samples classed. The cotton harvest gradually regained momentum following the recent 5-year average, according to C.E. Cox, officer in charge at Altus. Last year at this date only 6,000 samples had been graded, and two years ago the total was 44,400 samples.

Total classed from North Texas counties this year stood at 8,200 samples, compared with 250 last year at this date, and 3,300 two years ago.

Grades on north Texas cotton classed during the week were 53 percent white and 46 percent light spotted. Predominant grades were strict low middling (41), accounting for 27 percent of the total, and strict low middling light spotted (42), with 30 percent.

Sportsmen In Pursuit Of The Evasive Bob White

Sportsmen will soon be taking to the fields in pursuit of the elusive "Bob White" quail. "This is a good time to take note of the things quail need to survive," said K.C. Willis, Jr. of the Soil Conservation Service.

The farmer or rancher should include in his operation provisions for conservation of quail and other wildlife, since most of our hunting is done on privately owned lands.

Quail thrive where there is plenty of food and cover. The farmer or rancher may increase the quail population on his place by leaving a portion of his undisturbed land such as turn rows, fence rows and add corners for quail cover. The Soil Conservation Service also recommends leaving or planting a few strips of grain around field borders for wild-life food. The conservationist said that control of mesquite and other brush in this area can be done in a way that will help quail and other wildlife. Strips or scattered spots of brush can be left in the pasture to provide cover. Also, brush can be left in piles or windrows instead of burning. Wildlife can serve as source of recreation, food, a form of Biological Pest Control, and for personal enjoyment. For further information, you may contact your local SCS office.

QUESTION: In which foreign country is this building?
CLUES

This building, although not in France, is on a street with a French name: Rue de la Loi, which in English means "Street of the Law," or "Law Street."

The city in which this building is located is the provisional capital of the European Economic Community, which starting in January, 1973, will include the present members plus England, Denmark and Ireland.

The building is headquarters for about 5,000 "supernational" officials - people who, like United Nations employees, work more for the organization than for their own countries.

The rules made by these officials to simplify such things as money exchange are expected by some experts to increase the number of jobs in America by increasing the ease of selling our products to people in Europe.

Two different languages are spoken in this country, which contains the famed village of Waterloo, site of Napoleon's final defeat.

If Trevi is Europe's most famous fountain, then this country boasts the second most famous-a fountain built as a reminder of a little boy who became lost, but was then found by his father.

Right now, without reading it, cover up the bottom line of this article-the line that is printed upside down.

Now, which of these countries is it: Belgium Holland Italy Luxembourg Yugoslavia.

Answer: Belgium

BURKBURNETT, TEXAS, THURSDAY, NOVEMBER 30, 1972

Burk area produces billion barrels of oil

Wichita, Wilbarger and Clay counties reached the billion barrel oil production mark recently. Many companies and independents have had a share in the three county area. This monumental milestone could not have been reached without the hand-in-hand effort of the people of the three counties and we acknowledge with gratitude the part that these oil people have played in the progress of the area in its development.

This three-county area, however, is not the largest producing area in our state as three counties, individually, recently reached the milestone in production of oil. These counties are, first the East Texas field, the Andrews following with Crane County which had its celebration recently in August of this year.

The history of oil goes back to the Indians who found oil seeping from the soils long before the first Europeans arrived. It was stated that at the time the fluid had medicinal values, and the first record of use was for calking ships or boats by survivors of the DeSota exposition in 1543.

Melrose in Nacogdoches county was the site for drilling the first drilled well, in 1866, and was the first to produce oil in the state. The driller was Lune T. Barret, and this was the first commercial oil field, and several thousand barrels of oil were produced there.

In 1867, Emory Starr and Peyton Edwards brought in a well at Oil Springs in the area. Other wells were crudely dug in the state, in the later years, principally in Bexar County in the 19th Century.

However, it was not until June of 1894 near the city of Corsicana that oil development really got underway. Corsicana was the site of Texas' first refinery.

The most famous of oil discoveries was Spindletop, by Capt. A. F. Lucas in 1901 near Beaumont. Thousands of barrels of oil flowed before it became capped. It was the first salt dome discovery, and created a sensation throughout the world.

Prices dropped to 3 cents a barrel.

A water well drilling firm on the W. R. Waggoner ranch in Wichita County brought in the Electra Field in 1911. In 1917 oil was discovered in the Ranger field in Eastland County. Famous in this era was the Burkburnett field in 1919.

Biggest field of them all, was the East Texas field discovered by Dad Joiner, veteran wildcatter near Turnertown, in Rusk County. This field discovery was brought in on land condemned by hundreds of geologists of major companies. This field later extended to Kilgore, Longview, and northward.

The Smoker number one which blew in on July 1, 1912 was the first well in the Burkburnett field but it was not until the Fowler No. 1 came in as a gusher in 1918 that the town became a forest of derricks and the northwest extension of the field caused phenomenal population growth of Burkburnett and Wichita Falls.

In 1918 S. L. Fowler persuaded a few men to back him with small funds to drill on his own land. W. D. Cline, an independent driller, put his rig to work for a small share, and in July 1918, 'Fowler's Folly' blew in a 2,200 barrel gusher from a sand depth of 1,734 feet. One of the great booms followed and was one of the wildest in the state of Texas. Measured by total production, it is not one of the larger fields but in excitement and color one of glamor and high financial dealings.

Burkburnett, today, now enjoys an estimated population of 9,250 and is still booming. In the early days of oil the population jumped from 1,500 to 15,000. In the early days, a bank capitalized at $25,000 received a monthly check revenue of $10,000 from a well at its back door.

Petroleum, natural gas and liquids continue to dominate the Texas mineral industry. Texas has the largest petrochemical industry in the world.

Oil has served the three counties well. Millions of dollars have gone into its economy. We are proud to 'salute' the oil fraternity of the area.

Burkburnett Lions, Rotary clubs mark 50th anniversaries

During the last two months of 1972 both the Burkburnett Lions Club and the Burkburnett Rotary Club celebrate 50th anniversaries.

The Rotary Club marked its occasion during a regular noon luncheon Tuesday, November 14, with a visit from the Rotary District Governor, K. R. "Moly" Molyneaux.

Other guests at the meeting were area Rotarians, well-wishers and the Rotary Anns of local members. An extra special guest, Sam Spence, was introduced to the group. Spence was the sergeant-at-arms of the Rotary during its first years in Burkburnett.

Spence reminisced to those attending, "I came to Burkburnett back in 1920 on a 90 day round trip ticket from Virginia, and I still have the other end of that ticket. "Spence, who related some of his early experiences here as well as those of the early day club, has lived in Wichita County since that day in 1920 when he stopped in Burkburnett.

Charles Aston, president, gave a brief history of the organization at its golden anniversary celebration while Governor Molyneaux presented a plaque noting the club's fifty years of community service.

Molyneaux challenged the officers to continue the traditions of Rotary International.

The officers of the local Rotary club include Charles Aston, president; Rev. Lamoin Champ, vice-president; Joe Janke, president-elect; Royce Miller, secretary; John Sweeney, sergeant-at-arms; and directors Cliff Wampler, Larry Watts, Don Forrest, Bill Froman, and Lester Yates.

The Burkburnett Lions Club will also be celebrating their Golden Anniversary, but theirs will come in December. Special activities are in the making for this special meeting of the club

Back in 1922--

Rotary Club's first meeting on Sept. 12

The Burkburnett Rotary Club was organized when a special representative from the Wichita Falls Rotary Club, Pete Rogers, met with a group of Burkburnett businessmen and civic leaders and explained the objectives of Rotary.

The first meeting was on September 12, 1922 in a hotel building located on the corner of Avenue "C" and Fourth Street.

The charter was presented to the club by District Governor John Singleton during a special banquet at the YMCA on November 2, 1922.

Twenty-three charter members elected E. B. Grennell as president; Floyd Covington as vice-president; W. H. Sieber, secretary; Dudley Ellis, treasurer; and Sam B. Spence as sergeant-at-arms.

Noon luncheons were held weekly by the club and in 1930 upon its completion the city hall annex became the home of the Rotary Club. The club now meets in the modern Community Center constructed by the City of Burkburnett last year.

The list of twenty-three charter members included W. B. Adams, J. W. Alexander, W. F. Billingslea, Ervin L. Blum, P. B. Browning, Dr. Edgar J. Cooper, Floyd Covington, W. S. Duvall, Dudley Ellis, W. P. Estep, R. M. Gilchrist, E. B.

AT CELEBRATION—

Harold Van Loh, left, long standing member of the Burk Rotary Club, welcomes well known Rotarian Pic Lamour and Mrs. Lamour of Graham to the club's golden anniversary celebration. Lamour is editor of the nationally known "Scandal Sheet," a Rotary club publication.

Of 38 wildcats drilled, 30 were dry holes. All eight producing wells completed were gas wells. Of six development wells drilled, four were dry holes, two produced gas.

Of approximately $27.3 million spent in offshore Texas drilling ventures in 1971, some $18.7 million went into dry holes.

Texas oil men drilled 7,728 wells in 1971 including 457 test and service wells; 28.3 percent of U. S. drilling.

GETS PAST-PRESIDENT'S PLAQUE—
Larry DiMarzio, current president of the Burkburnett Lions Club, presents the past president's plaque to Dr. Bill Boardman.

Fire Losses Down In Oil Industry

WASHINGTON — Fire losses in the petroleum industry last year were 69.3 percent lower than in the previous year, a survey by the American Petroleum Institute reveals.

The survey, which covered 137 U. S. petroleum companies and included fires involving losses of $1,000 or more, shows that a total of $18.3 million was lost through fires in 1971 compared to $59.5 million in 1970.

The survey also shows that there was a decline of 25.5 percent in the number of fires. A total of 519 fires was reported in 1971, compared to 697 in 1970. Last year, fires occurred at a rate of 0.248 per 100 properties, the API survey shows. During the previous year, the rate was 0.328 per 100 properties.

More than 209,000 petroleum company properties in 11 different categories were covered by the survey, including oil leases, tank farms, terminals, refineries, service stations, tank trucks, tankers and barges.

Some 44 wells, including 38 wildcats, were drilled in the Gulf of Mexico off Texas in 1971. Total depth: 446,522 feet.

Nearly one-fourth of Texas wells in 1971 were "wildcat" wells which seek new fields. Only 19.7 percent found oil or gas.

Texas consumes 6.7 billion gallons of gasoline a year, ranking second behind California.

Texas oil men drilled 7,728 wells in 1971 including 457 test and service wells; 28.3 percent of US drilling.

"Wildcat" wells were drilled in 198 of Texas' 254 counties during 1971.

Average depth of wells drilled in Texas in 1971: 5,088 feet.

Lions charter banquet held in YMCA building

The Burkburnett Lions Club was organized on September 22, 1922 and received its charter during special ceremonies on January 19, 1923. R. L. McKinney has been credited with the beginning of the club.

W. J. Dickson served as the first president of the club while C. O. Walling served as first vice-president; J. M. F. Gill second vice-president; R. D. Cunningham, third vice-president; J. F. Kelley, secretary-treasurer; W. R. Hill, lion tamer; and W. A. Scarborough, tail twister. Directors of the first year were J. S. Mills, J. D. Majors, R. E. Fisher and Rex D. Smith.

The club's charter banquet was held in the YMCA building at 505 E. Third Street and the program included addresses by local mayor W. B. Adams; President of the Chamber of Commerce and School Board, R. H. Henry; President of the Rotary Club, E. B. Grennell; and President of the Civic Improvement League, Mrs. Lulu Majors.

Of the twenty-five charter members J. Frank Kelley is the only one that still resides in Burkburnett. Kelley is still very active in the club as well as other organizations in Burkburnett.

Only three other charter members are believed to be living at this time, Will Brumbalow (address unknown), R. E. Fisher who resides in Ft.

Worth and A. W. White, who it is believed, lives on a ranch near Big Spring, Tex.

Brumbalow, Fisher and Kelley were all present for the club's 40th Anniversary in 1962.

The charter members of the club included: J. F. Kelley, J. M. F. Gill, R. F. Shoemaker, R. D. Cunningham, C. O. Walling, R. E. Fisher, W. J. Dickson, I. B. Persky, W. H. Henderson, W. A. Scarborough, J. D. Majors,

Texas Oil Powers Vehicles Across State

From crude oil at the wellhead to finished gasoline at the refinery, Texas is the major source of motor fuel for powering the state's 7 million vehicles over the nation's finest highway system.

But the growing transportation needs of Texans, like the needs of citizens in other states, have created an unprecedented demand for energy to continue the daily work of moving people and materials over roads and highways. For Texas, especially, the nation's energy gap has created a new look at the effort to supply adequate amounts of petroleum energy.

To meet the growing demand for fuel energy, Texas oil refineries are operating at virtually 100 percent of their daily capacity of 3.5 million barrels of crude oil, which is more than 26.5 percent of the nation's total capacity.

To further point up the growing demand for energy, Texas oil wells, chief sources of crude oil for the state's refineries, are operating at 100 percent market demand factor. But, the current production rate of about 3.5 million barrels of oil per day and the slow pace of new discoveries is exceeding the rate of replacement, resulting in a steady decline in Texas' recoverable reserves.

For Texas motorists over the years, gasoline has been one of the best bargains among major commodity purchases. Nationwide, the average service station price of gasoline advanced only 18.4 percent from 1961 to 1971, compared with 35.4 percent price jump for all consumer items. By comparison, food costs for the same period went up nearly 33 percent, rent 24 percent, apparel and upkeep 32.5 percent, and reading and recreational costs increased 33.6 percent.

However, developments in the U. S. and world energy picture point to rising costs for all energy uses, including motor fuel. Growing reliance on foreign oil, coupled with significant upward price demands by some foreign producing nations, will cost world oil consumers billions of additional dollars over the next few years. Americans, no longer able to rely completely on their own resources, are expected to share a significant portion of this burden.

Obviously, this would be a situation with many ramifications. For autodependent Texans, the 16,000 gasoline service stations alongside the state's streets and highways figure prominently in any business or pleasure trip.

In providing fuels and services for Texas' 7 million vehicles — including 5.3 million automobiles — the volume of fuel dispensed by service stations makes Texas the nation's second largest gasoline market. Only populous California has more automobiles and a larger gasoline consumption.

But Texas motorists have a significant advantage over those in other states: They drive over the nation's finest highway system and pay for 1 cent to 5 cent less gasoline tax per gallon than most other states.

The gasoline tax is a major source of income for the states, but no other state has a lower state gasoline tax than Texas' nickel per gallon. Since Texas lawmakers levied a motor fuel tax in 1923, Texas motorists have paid a total of $5.2 billion, most of which has gone into the building of roads. In addition, motorists pay a 4 cent per gallon federal tax on motor fuel.

Under Texas law, three-fourths of the annual state collections—$333.8 million last year — is earmarked for construction and maintenance of highways and roads, with one-fourth channeled into financial support of the state's public schools.

Total highway user taxes in Texas — which includes motor fuel taxes, fees and drivers licenses— accounted for nearly 23 percent of the state's tax revenues in fiscal 1971, according to the Texas Mid-Continent Oil & Gas Association. Highway user taxes accounted for $501 million of the $2.1 billion total collected by the state last year.

Although petroleum energy is the basis for significant support of state government through highway user taxes, it is only one measure of the impact the Texas oil and gas industry has on the ability of the state to provide public services.

Last year, state levies on the petroleum industry — not including motor fuel taxes — amounted to $359 million, or 18 percent of the state's total tax collections. Petroleum industry taxes paid 21.8 percent of the state cost of public education and 53.6 percent of teacher retirement costs. Industry levies also paid 53.6 percent of state aid to the aged, the blind, and to dependent children.

The Texas petroleum industry directly employs some 220,000 persons— about one out of every 17 Texas workers—and last year paid them $2 billion in wages. Further, the wages of some 36,000 refinery workers averaged about $4.91 per hour, one of the highest hourly wages

Over the years, Texas has derived $85.1 billion from crude oil sales; realized about $568 million last year alone from the sale of natural gas to other states. Likewise, in 1971, royalty owners received $700 million from oil and gas production in Texas. The state's treasury also collected more than $175.2 million in bonuses, rentals, and royalties from Texas' offshore oil and gas leases.

The point to be made is that it's difficult to overestimate the importance of the Texas oil and gas industry to the state's economy and the general welfare of its people—on the road as well as off.

Future Of Oil Depends Upon Several Factors

Rising energy prices, shortages, or reliance on uncertain foreign supplies are three manifestations of a scarcity of environmentally acceptable energy, according to the 1972 annual report of the President's Council of Economic Advisors.

In summarizing the Council's report to the President, Texas Mid-Continent Oil & Gas Assn. notes that the Council took a penetrating look at the nation's current energy problems, including in its analysis the need to unleash the energy potential of Alaska's North Slope, realistic price adjustments for domestic supplies of petroleum energy, and acceleration of oil and gas leasing on the Outer Continental Shelf.

The Association's summary of the report included these highlights:

...The Council of Economic Advisors notes the close relationship between energy consumption and standards of living. Future U. S. energy demand is seen increasing at about the same rate as gross national product, approximately four percent per year.

...Despite the anticipated growth of energy demand, the Council points to the declining trend of proved reserves of crude oil and natural gas relative to production. Some solutions to this problem were contained in the President's special message to Congress of June 4, 1971. The Council reiterates the recommendations in that message for acceleration of oil and gas leasing on the Outer Continental Shelf, a leasing program for oil shale and the need for stepped up research and development efforts in the field of energy.

...Turning to prices, the Council observes that over the long term, energy prices have not climbed as rapidly as prices of other goods and services, although energy prices have increased at a faster pace since 1965. With respect to prices, however, the Council specifically states that "Insofar as price increases are needed to call forth supply they are a proper response to an underlying condition of scarcity." As an example it cites the role of temporary sharp price increases, during 1970, in averting an impending shortage of heavy fuel oil.

...The Report attributes natural gas shortages to the fact that wellhead prices, regulated by the Federal Power Commission, have not been high enough to encourage adequate supplies and have even led to some distortion of supply. It refutes the argument that low ceiling prices for natural gas have helped to hold down prices of competing fuels. It concludes that "in the field of energy we see that a shortage and high prices of fuels may be caused by regulation intended to hold down the price of fuel." Elsewhere, the Report states "indeed, the sharp increases in the price of low sulfur fuel oil in 1970 came about partly because natural gas supplies were unable to respond to the increased demand for clean fuels."

...The Council finds that recent increases in ceiling prices for natural gas have not been large enough. For example, the price of imported gas at the refinery or vaporization plant averages almost double the new ceiling prices for domestic natural gas. Thus, the Council concludes that significantly higher prices for domestic natural gas would increase domestic supply and still result in lower prices than gas obtained from alternative sources.

...The importance of North Slope oil in alleviating U. S. energy supply problems is emphasized. The Council reports that its own economic study indicates that "the real resource cost of imported oil would be more than twice that of the Prudhoe Bay crude delivered to the West Coast. Development of the 10-billion-barrel field and transportation of the oil to the West Coast would save the nation $15 billion to $17 billion during the expected 20-year life of the field."

...With respect to the proposed trans-Alaska pipeline, the Report cautions that these potential savings must be weighed against environmental hazards, and warns that "there is no certainty that environmental contamination could be avoided altogether." However, the Council maintains that Federal, State and local governments must face these two problems: "First, the value of environmental resources in alternative uses must be assessed to provide a basis for determining a balanced use pattern. Second, governments must design rules that will achieve a balanced use at the least cost to the economy."

The Burkburnett Lions Clubs has purchased glasses for three children this year.

The Burkburnett Lions Club sent $50 to the Lions state central relief commission for the flood relief victims of North Dakota and the state of Texas.

G. F. Byerly holds the record of being secretary longer than any other in the Burkburnett Rotary Club. He served seven years, from 1946 until 1953.

The Burkburnett Lions Club will sponsor two scholarships this year.

Petroleum Impact On State Is Terrific

DALLAS — Despite a growing energy gap, declining oil and gas reserves, and a shortage of extra producing capacity, statistics by the Texas Mid-Continent Oil & Gas Association indicate that petroleum operations continue to have a major impact on the Texas economy.

The value of petroleum produced in Texas in 1971 was $6.1 billion, according to the Association. With the average price of Texas crude oil $3.52 a barrel, Texas' production of 1.2 billion barrels of oil was sold for $34.3 billion. Some 9.6 trillion cubic feet of natural gas (at average wellhead price of .2 cents per 1000 cubic feet) and gas liquids were sold for an additional $1.8 billion.

Texas' production of crude oil in 1971 represented 35.2 percent of U. S. production and amounted to 8.3 percent of the world's production. That's down from a 22 percent world share in 1950 and a 12 percent world share in 1960. But it's one barrel out of 12 of a valuable commodity.

The Association also has released figures on the strength as a generator of jobs. The Texas petroleum industry directly employs some 220,000 persons — approximately one out of every 17 workers in the state. Last year, they earned some $2 billion in wages.

The nation's No. 1 energy state is more than just the top producer of oil and gas. It is the home of other petroleum industry and industry-related facilities.

Association figures show:

—More than one out of every four gallons of major oil products produced in the United States last year was made in Texas' 40 refineries. Collectively, they represent 26.5 percent of the United States' refining capacity.

—Texas is the nation's No. 1 producer of chemicals from oil and natural gas and the location for 134 operating petrochemical plants.

—Texas' carbon black production of about 1.4 billion pounds last year from 15 plants in 14 counties made it the nation's leading producer.

The Association says the money represented by these payroll and production figures changes hands throughout the state, as does that from royalty payments and investments in the exploration, drilling, production, refining and distribution of oil and gas. The Association's statisticians note that last year oil or gas was produced in 209 of Texas' 254 counties, with royalty owners receiving some $700 million from this production. Producers paid production taxes of $192 million on oil and $109 million on gas.

Texas oil men drilled almost 7,900 wells in 1971 and the one-quarter of these that were "wildcats" were sunk in 198 counties. Some 39 million feet of pipe went into the ground at a cost of $658 million, with $197 million going for the one-third of the wells that were dry holes, according to the Association.

The Association points out that the petroleum industry's taxes in Texas — $359 million in 1971 — accounted for 18 percent of all state revenue collections. Moreover, Texas' oil and gas dollars paid 21.8 percent of the state's cost of public education last year. The industry's share of support for teacher retirement, assistance for the aged, the blind and families with dependent children is over half (53.6 percent). Also, in 1971, the Texas Permanent School Fund received $42.7 million from the petroleum industry for lease rentals, bonuses and royalty payments. The University of Texas' Permanent Fund received $20.5 million from the same sources.

Facts about oil make interesting reading

BURBURNETT INFORMER-STAR
Thursday, November 30, 1972

DALLAS — "72 Facts About Texas Oil and Gas," the perennial leaflet from Texas Mid-Continent Oil & Gas Association, is off the press and again filled with key statistics for the involved businessman, the serious student, the dedicated government researcher, and the mildly curious consumer.

In compiling the latest annual edition of "Facts," which is free to the public, the Association has combined some historical information with the latest available figures on industry operations, according to John W. Wagner, the Association's vice-president for public affairs. The facts have been grouped into eight classifications, including drilling, production, refining processing, employment, and taxation.

As in the past, the pocket-sized leaflet will be distributed by the Association to industry, government agencies, individuals who request it, and public, college and high school libraries, Wagner said.

For the historically minded, the leaflet points out that Texas' first well (in 1866) was 106 feet deep. By comparison, in 1972 oil men in Texas drilled 39 million feet of hole.

And where is the world's deepest producing well? According to "72 Facts," it's in Pecos County. It's 22,752 feet deep. And it's a gasser!

In a section on activities in offshore Texas, the leaflet says the drilling of 38 wildcat wells last year resulted in only eight producing wells. Of the $27 million spent in offshore drilling, $18.7 million was lost in dry holes.

Texas has produced a total of 35.6 billion barrels of oil — 36 percent of the US total. "72 Facts" also says that last year, the state produced 1.2 billion barrels of oil and marketed 8.6 trillion cubic feet of natural gas.

For the business executive or the college marketing major, "72 Facts" offers a quick answer to questions about petroleum processing:

Texas' 40 refineries processed 1.1 billion barrels of crude oil in 1971, with 86 percent of the state's refining operations being carried on along the Gulf Coast. The state's refineries have a 3.5 million barrel daily crude capacity — 26.5 percent of the US total. In addition, Texas is the nation's top producer of petrochemicals in its 134 plants, as well as being the No. 1 producer of carbon black.

The employment of 220,000 Texans in the oil and gas industry generates an annual payroll of $2 billion, according to the eight-page leaflet. When that is added to the $700 million paid to royalty owners, the $359 million paid to state government in oil and gas production taxes, and $334 million in motor fuel taxes collected by the state from motorists, the industry's impact on the state's economy comes into focus.

"72 Facts" also includes a reminder that although the production and processing of petroleum has provided a strong economic base for state and local governments, Texans are seeing their oil and gas reserves drop.

"Rising costs," the leaflet points out, "coupled with discouraging government policies, have forced producers to cut back the search for new reserves — reasons why Texas producers are looking toward improved technology to recover billions of barrels of Texas oil already discovered, but not producible under present conditions."

Single copies of "72 Facts About Texas Oil and Gas" are available at no charge from the Association's office, 2920 Southland Center, Dallas 75201.

Texas operators spent $658 million drilling in 1971; $197 million lost in dry holes.

Average expenditure for drilling wells in Texas is $16.00 per foot.

Petroleum accounts for nearly two-thirds of the tonnage handled in Texas ports.

Texas' deepest well, 25,340 feet, was drilled in 1958, Pecos County: a dry hole.
