CLARENDON — Clarendon College will celebrate its annual Spring Break beginning Monday, March 9, until Friday, March 13. College offices, including the CC Library, will be closed during this time.

PAMPA — Immunization clinics offering vaccines that give protection against several childhood diseases are scheduled for March.

Protection is against Polio, Diphtheria, Lock Jaw (Tetanus), Whooping Cough (Pertussis), Measles, Rubella, Mumps and HIB (Haemophilus Influenzae Type B).

The Texas Department of Health is charging money to help with the cost of keeping the clinic open. The amount of money charged will be based on family income and size and the ability to pay.

Influenza and pneumococcal vaccines will be available.

HOUSTON (AP) — Topless dancers can touch their Houston customers, but only until April 1, a federal judge has decided.

Then, a new city ordinance that outlaws lap dances performed by the dancers will kick in.

The decision to delay enforcement of the lap dance ban came Monday from U.S. District Judge Nancy Atlas. The move clarifies the judge's Feb. 18 ruling in which she upheld Houston's "no-touch" provision in a 1997 ordinance governing the clubs.

The new ordinance prohibits dancers from getting within three feet of customers and forbids any touching.

Inmate medical dilemma solved Gray contracts with physician and former Rural/Metro EMT

By JEFF WEST
Staff Writer

The Gray County Commission approved a new contract to provide medical services to county prisoners Monday.

Dr. Laxman Bhatia has contracted to provide medical treatment in cooperation with Kevin Hull, an Emergency Medical Technician formerly with Rural/Metro. Hull would do initial evaluations of prisoners at the jail and would consult with Bhatia if medical treatment was necessary. In more serious cases, Hull would also recommend transporting the prisoners to Columbia Medical Center if needed.

The cost of the service would be about $4,000, with $1,250 each for the doctor and for Hull and up to $1,500 a month for continuing education for the EMT.

Some of the commissioners questioned paying for the classes for Hull, but he said Bhatia had requested it since Hull would be operating under the doctors mantle. Originally the contract called for a flat fee of $1500 per month because many of the courses are in Dallas and other distant cities. After Hull said some classes are offered occasionally in Amarillo Gray County Judge Richard Peet suggested that the language be changed to read up to $1500 based on invoices that Hull would present.

In other matters, Gray County Treasurer Scott Hahn informed the court about correspondence he received from the new NationsBank. The letter stated that as long as a county check has one authorized signature on it, the bank will clear it.

But state law requires two signatures for county checks, Hahn said. And the Gray County check policy, in effect when the contract was awarded, requires three signatures.

The county attorney said this is grounds to void the current contract and offer the contract for bid again.

Hahn, along with Sammie Morris, Gray County Tax Assessor Collector, and Wanda Carter Gray County Clerk, expressed additional concerns over new fees that have been announced by NationsBank.

Each said they had no money budgeted for such fees and that some of the things listed — such as charging for checks, a per check charge and fees for wire transfers, have always been provided as part of the county accounts.

After some discussion about canceling the contract because of these changes, the item was tabled until county officials can speak to local representatives of the bank about the problem items.

A presentation was given to the court about Tex Pool by one of its representatives, Corrine Steeger. Tex Pool is an investment pool of government and school bodies. It was set up by the state treasurer's office but is now managed by a team of private companies since the Texas Treasury Office was eliminated a few years ago.

The advantage to using Tex Pool, which Steeger likened to a money market fund, is the flexibility and liquidity of an entity's funds, as well as the safety of the money — since the fund is limited in the kinds of investments it can make.

The Court discussed with Steeger, Hahn and other county officials the advantages of the pool over keeping the money in a local banking institution. Hahn said that many banks would prefer not to have a lot of county funds because that ties up funds that could be used to make more profitable loans.

A decision as to whether to use Tex Pool was postponed until the situation involving NationsBank and the county's accounts is settled.

In other action, two long-time members of the Perry Lefors Airport Board were honored on their retirement. Lawrence Paronto has served on the board for 16 years and Vernon Stowers was recognized for his 14 years on the board. A contract of $17,360 was awarded to Culberson-Stowers for a pickup for Precinct 1.

Phone book recycling set

Clean Pampa says it is time to recycle old phone books.

Once again Clean Pampa is sponsoring phone book recycling in cooperation with the City of Pampa Recycling Center and several locations around the city.

"Our goal is to make phone book disposal so easy, no one will have an excuse to not recycle theirs," said Vic Cavalli, Clean Pampa Board President.

Phone books can be dropped off at the recycling center, on the east side of Hobart Street Park. It is open Thursday from noon until 6:00 p.m., and Friday and Saturday from 9:00 a.m. to 6 p.m.

Drop boxes are also available at the U.S. Post Office, Pampa Chamber of Commerce, Clean Pampa Inc., Pam Apartments, Pack-n-Mail, Country General, Robert Knowles, West Texas Ford, First American Bank, First Bank Southwest, NationsBank, and NBC Bank.

Cute and cuddly kittens stick together at Pampa's animal shelter. Shelter officials want to remind Pampa residents about the new "animal friendly" license plates available. The $25 purchase of a plate will go toward the spaying and neutering of these fuzzy, little guys. The program is operating for a limited time to see what kind of response it gets. Call 669-5775 for more information on how you can become a little more "animal friendly."

County clerk voices voting reminders

Gray County Clerk Wanda Carter today said 284 Republicans and 47 Democrats have cast ballots during early voting.

Carter said she wants to remind voters that Friday, 5 p.m. is the deadline for early voting.

She also announced that a school for elected officials, clerks and, "anyone who wishes to attend," is scheduled for Thursday, March 5 at 7 p.m. in the County Clerk's office on the second floor of the county courthouse.

And a public test of the vote tabulating machine will take place Friday, March 6 at 2 p.m. in the county clerk's office, she added.

The general election begins next Tuesday, March 10.

Lefors schools gain safety record award

LEFORS — Lefors School Superintendent Tom Alvis recently received a gold award for the school district's outstanding safety record. The honor was bestowed by the North Texas Educational Insurance Association at their annual Appreciation Luncheon in Austin.

According to the Association, the Lefors school district saved just over $15,000 for the 1996-97 school year.

"Our self insurance programs were created to offer the safest working conditions and the greatest potential for savings for Texas school districts," said Barry Jones president of Claims

Administrative Services Inc. (CAS).

"Regular visits from our team of safety professionals assist each district in implementing strict safety policies and procedures."

The gold award was given to Alvis and the Lefors schools because the actual losses suffered used only 30.81 percent of the money reserved for potential claims.

Wesley Slade, senior vice president of CAS said, "Taxpayers should be pleased to know that the board of Trustees and the administrative staff of Lefors ISD are working to provide the safest working environment possible for their employees and to reduce the cost of worker's compensation."

Healthy economy creates work for the nation's homeless

BOSTON (AP) — For Jeffrey Armstrong, the Pine Street Inn homeless shelter isn't just home. It's where he was recruited to work full time in the kitchen of an Italian restaurant, giving him not just money but pride.

"I was someone who wanted to work, but I didn't have to bang down the doors," said Armstrong, who earns $6 per hour and has been able to save $150 each week toward an apartment and child support for his two sons. "I enjoy the work, I feel better about myself."

With unemployment down to 4.7 percent nationwide, companies are hurting for help. Temporary employment agencies are aggressively recruiting employees from previously untapped labor pools, even groups once considered unemployable. With 1,000 temporary jobs to fill every day in Massachusetts alone, recruiter Jim Myers thought he had no place left to turn for workers. But there was one place he hadn't looked — the local homeless shelter.

"They're happy to have a competent worker and we're filling a need for the day," said Myers, a regional district manager for Labor Ready, a national agency that places blue collar workers.

Over the past six months, the Tacoma, Wash.-based company has approached shelters and churches in attempts to recruit workers interested in temporary, unskilled jobs.

The results have been excellent. "Some of these guys may not have it in them to find a job themselves, so we find it for them," said Myers, who estimated 10 percent of his company's Massachusetts work pool comes from homeless shelters.

Around the country there is also more corporate interest in the homeless as employees, not charity cases.

"We used to go to them, now they're coming to us," said Alfred Peck, director of homeless services for New York-area Salvation Army shelters. "These are 'someplace to start' jobs. They aren't going to be a life's work."

From the Borden Avenue Veterans' Residence in the Queens borough of New York City, the homeless head off to work at Bell Atlantic, Metropolitan Transportation Authority and Amtrak. Employment coordinator Janine Vendetto said one-fourth of her placements — in jobs from warehouse work to construction to clerical positions — have landed full-time jobs.

Not all homeless centers are attracting the interest of temporary agencies.

"We wish they would come to our door, but they're not," said the Rev. Sonja Rickette, director of Matthew House on Chicago's South Side.

And while the recent corporate interest in the indigent is a relief, people who work with the homeless say the new trend won't end the problem.

"The jobs, which pay $5 or $6 an hour, give them some walking around money and self-esteem," said Bob Leppanen, director of the Lynn Emergency Shelter in Massachusetts. "It's not rent money."

Court says Boy Scouts' gay ban violates anti-discrimination laws

TRENTON, N.J. (AP) — A gay scoutmaster can teach the traditions of the Boy Scouts of America as well as a heterosexual one, according to a state appeals court that said the Scouts' ban on homosexuals violates anti-discrimination laws.

The court on Monday said James Dale should not have been expelled from the Scouts because he is gay. It was the first legal defeat for the group in a series of challenges to its exclusion policies moving forward nationwide.

The court said "nothing before us even suggests that a male, simply because he is gay, will somehow undermine (the Boy Scouts of America's) fundamental beliefs and teachings."

The Boy Scouts plans to appeal to New Jersey's Supreme Court.

Spokesman Gregg Shields said the Scouts "have long taught traditional family values, and a homosexual is simply not a role model for those values."

The ruling is "un-American," said Robert H. Knight, with the Washington-based Family Research Council, a conservative think tank.

"It strips parents of the right to entrust their children to a group that reflects their values," he said. "It is a naked assault on the Scouts' freedom to set their moral standards without government coercion."

Challenges to the Scouts' ban on homosexuals and atheists are pending in California. In Chicago, the city last month severed its ties to scouting programs until the group accepts gays and stops requiring a religious oath.

After 12 years in scouting,

Dale, an assistant scoutmaster and an Eagle Scout, was expelled in 1990 after the group learned from a newspaper article that he was gay. He sued.

A lower court judge ruled in the Scouts' favor in 1995, calling homosexuality "a serious moral wrong" and agreeing that the group is a private organization and has a constitutional right to decide who can belong.

The state Appellate Division overruled that decision Monday, saying the Boy Scouts and its local councils are "places of accommodation" that "emphasize open membership" and therefore must adhere to New Jersey's anti-discrimination law.

It said Dale's "exemplary journey through the Boy Scouts of America ranks as testament enough that these stereotypical notions about homosexuals must be rejected."

Baby thought to have demons

HOUSTON (AP) — A woman has testified that her daughter killed her infant son thinking he had been possessed by demons.

The testimony came Monday in the trial of Evonne Rodriguez, who is accused of capital murder in the beating and choking death of her 4-month-old son, Ramiro Isabel Valdez Jr.

The woman admitted that she beat the infant, choked him with a rosary, wrapped his body in plastic and threw it into the Buffalo Bayou. The body has never been found.

Ms. Rodriguez initially told authorities the infant had been kidnapped from a restroom at a downtown mall. She later led authorities to the bayou.

Victoria Rodriguez testified Monday that her daughter told her on the phone on Jan. 29, 1997, that demons had entered her baby and she had tried to pull them out.

"Mama, I'm trying to get the demons out of the baby. Mama, I'm like an instrument," the defendant's mother testified.

Age at which children lose baby fat predicts nature of adult obesity

CHICAGO (AP) — Children who reach the thinnest point of childhood before age 5 are more than twice as likely to become obese adults than children who lose their baby fat later, researchers say.

The finding held true regardless of whether parents were overweight, which is already known to be a strong indicator of a child's future size, according to a report in this month's issue of Pediatrics.

All children grow leaner after the first year of life until age 5 or 6, when they become fatter again, said researchers led by Dr. Robert Whitaker, a pediatrician at Children's Hospital Medical Center in Cincinnati.

The age of greatest leanness is called "adiposity rebound," and researchers compared differing ages at which it occurred among 390 subjects who were tracked until they were 21 to 29 years old.

The children were divided into three groups, according to when they reached adiposity rebound. Those who did before they were 4.8 years old were compared with those who did between 4.8 and 6.2 years and those who reached the stage after 6.2 years. Whitaker said the age range apparently is a "critical developmental period, just as it is for language development or capacity for listening to music or any of a number of things."

The finding has no immediate practical implications, Whitaker said. But more research could reveal strategies to help early rebounders avoid obesity.

A researcher not associated with the study agreed.

"In terms of understanding causes and, possibly understanding intervention points, this is potentially very important," said Aviva Must, a childhood obesity researcher at New England Medical Center in Boston.

Meanwhile, federal researchers reported Monday that the number of overweight children continued to increase through 1994.

About 4.5 million children, or 11 percent of youngsters ages 6 to 17, were markedly overweight through that year. That compares with about 5.5 percent in 1980 and about 4 percent in 1963-65.

Jordan's testimony might not help Clinton

By PETE YOST
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — As longtime presidential friend Vernon Jordan tries to explain his assistance to Monica Lewinsky, the former White House intern's lawyer says he believes his client was alone a couple of times with President Clinton in the Oval Office. "Being alone doesn't mean they had a relationship," William Ginsburg said Monday of Ms. Lewinsky's visits to Clinton's office. Ginsburg said Ms. Lewinsky's visits to the White House after she left for a job at the Pentagon in 1996 were mostly work related and to see people other than Clinton but that there were a couple of times she was briefly alone with the president. But Ginsburg suggested there was neither enough time nor enough privacy for any "salacious event" to occur. Individuals familiar with Linda Tripp's tape-recorded conversations with Ms. Lewinsky said the former intern spoke of having oral sex with Clinton. She told Tripp that she once asked Clinton why they did not have sexual intercourse and the president told her he couldn't risk it, the individuals familiar with the Tripp-Lewinsky conversations said. Jordan's grand jury testimony might not help Clinton and could be a pivotal point in the investigation. One question is whether Jordan was an innocent dupe or a willing participant in an alleged scheme to keep Ms. Lewinsky quiet about an alleged presidential affair. Another question is whether

Speaking on condition of anonymity, the lawyers said Clinton provided assurances to Jordan that there was no sexual relationship.

Ms. Lewinsky's tape-recorded confidences about her relationship with the president were exaggeration.

Jordan's contacts with Ms. Lewinsky included four meetings, a ride in a chauffeur-driven car and approximately 10 phone calls, ending the second week of January.

While helping Ms. Lewinsky find a job, Jordan became concerned and spoke to the president when her name came up as a witness in the Paula Jones sexual harassment lawsuit against Clinton, according to lawyers familiar with Jordan's account of what happened.

Speaking on condition of anonymity, the lawyers said Clinton provided assurances to Jordan that there was no sexual relationship. Jordan then took Ms. Lewinsky to a lawyer who drafted an affidavit for her in the Jones case.

White House spokesman Mike McCurry said Monday there has been no estrangement between Clinton and Jordan.

"They are very good friends, remain very good friends," said McCurry. "I think they look forward to the day when they can be less circumspect with each other."

Jordan, who works at a prominent law firm in Washington and sits on a number of corporate boards of directors, was to have been questioned twice previously in the Lewinsky investigation. But both sessions were canceled. The first was to have been an interview with FBI agents. The second was a grand jury appearance that was put off two weeks ago.

Jordan has been under scrutiny in another part of Starr's probe — for providing a job for longtime Clinton friend Webster Hubbell. Jordan helped Hubbell find work at MacAndrews & Forbes, which owns Revlon, where Jordan assisted Ms. Lewinsky in getting a job offer. The job offer was rescinded when the Lewinsky controversy erupted in January.

It has been nearly six weeks since Jordan made his only public statement on the Lewinsky investigation, saying he would answer grand jury's questions "directly, completely and truthfully."

"This testimony is going to be key to what happens to Vernon Jordan, and will determine in a big way the future of this Kenneth Starr investigation," said Georgetown University Law Center professor Paul Rothstein.

"Vernon Jordan is the instrument, allegedly, of any witness tampering or obstruction of justice that the White House is alleged to have been involved in," Rothstein added.

In a related matter, Democrats critical of Starr kept the pressure on today. Robert Weiner, spokesman for Clinton's drug policy office, and his wife asked Starr in a letter to apologize for calling Weiner to testify before the grand jury Jan. 30.

Starr's prosecutors wanted to know whether the White House asked Weiner to call a local Democratic group that had requested Maryland authorities to investigate whether Tripp violated state law when she recorded her telephone calls with Ms. Lewinsky.

Weiner said he merely had called friends at the Democratic Club in Columbia, Md., to offer his congratulations for their effort.

"An apology would demonstrate good faith" and "restore our faith and that of many Americans in the judicial process," Weiner and his wife wrote. They said Starr's actions showed his investigation was a "hate hearing" against the president at any cost to the taxpayer and to individual rights.

Senator: More visas for foreign workers

WASHINGTON (AP) — With Silicon Valley and other high-tech employers complaining of a labor shortage, a key Senate voice on immigration is proposing a steep increase in the number of visas granted to high-skilled foreign workers.

Currently, the United States allows up to 65,000 foreigners into the country annually under a special visa category for high-skilled workers. Employers in the booming high-tech sector contend that annual cap is far too low, preventing them from hiring qualified foreigners for jobs they are unable to fill domestically.

Sen. Spencer Abraham, who chairs the Senate immigration subcommittee, said Monday he will seek to boost that visa category to roughly 90,000 people annually. The Michigan Republican's legislation also would allow the government to let in up to 25,000 more skilled workers under a different visa category if the quota for high-skill visas is exhausted.

High-tech companies have been vigorously lobbying Congress and the Clinton administration to let them bring in more talent from abroad, complaining of a shortage of computer programmers, systems analysts and engineers.

Last year, for the first time, the demand for "H-1B" visas — which entitle high-skilled workers to remain in the United States for up to six years — outpaced the availability. This year, the cap could be hit by May, four months before the end of the federal fiscal year.

One industry study estimates that more than 340,000 information technology posts are unfilled because of a shortage of qualified workers.

"Our cap currently is too low and it's going to cost America jobs and it's going to hurt our economy if we aren't able to fill these positions," Abraham said at a news conference.

Rep. David Dreier, R-Calif., who is introducing a companion bill in the House, added: "We need to do everything that we can to ensure that the best qualified people are here in the United States, so that our industries are able to remain on the cutting edge."

Susan TRIPPLEHORN for County Clerk

I'm Ted Simmons and I say.....

"Susan Tripplehorn is Right for Gray County"

During my years as a Gray County Commissioner (1974-1993), I had the pleasure of meeting all kinds of people. I can say without any hesitation that Susan is one of the most competent and efficient people I have ever known. Anytime she commits to something, you can count on it being done "first rate". She is also one of the most pleasant people you'll ever meet, and that is an important asset for a County Clerk. When you go to the polls on March 10th, remember...

Congress must not rest on its laurels

When the 105th Congress began its second session in January, it did so against a backdrop of positive indicators, economic and otherwise. But we will have to work fast and work smart this year to accomplish everything on our plate. This being an election year, we have only a few short months to get everything done.

The policies Congress has pursued in recent years have produced a stronger economy. We have passed the first balanced budget in 30 years. Unemployment is at an all-time low. Mortgage rates have gone down, allowing many more Americans to realize their dream of home ownership. Welfare is turning into workfare. Our borders are growing more secure. Our air and water are cleaner than they've been in a quarter-century. America remains the freest, most prosperous country on the face of the earth.

You might say we're on a roll.

But we can do so much more to improve the quality of life for Americans without expanding government and without busting the budget. Texans, and the rest of the country, have made it clear that they don't want bigger government, they want better government.

Foremost on my "to do" list this session is continuing to find ways to let hard-working families keep more of what they earn. I already have introduced legislation that will eliminate the marriage tax penalty. Soon, I will introduce a new bill to raise the cut-off point at which people are moved into higher tax brackets, roll back the capital gains holding period and cut the top estate tax rate.

In addition, if a budget surplus appears on our horizon, it seems to me that half-and-half is more than a rich dairy product - it's the right formula for dealing with any surplus revenue the government receives.

Half should go toward paying down our $5 trillion national debt. The other half should be the basis of direct tax cuts for the American people. It would be the height of folly to fritter away a budget surplus on new spending initiatives that enlarge the role of the federal government in our lives.

Another top priority for me this session will be to ensure that our armed forces remain the best trained, best armed and best equipped fighters in the world. Recently Secretary of Defense William Cohen admitted that we "have some problems as far as readiness goes." That is an ominous warning.

One of the major causes of those frayed defense edges is our seemingly endless mission in Bosnia - a mission that is consuming resources ($8 billion so far) we otherwise would dedicate to our readiness. Congress must address this dilemma. Such a situation cannot go on forever, and I am determined that we do not recreate the "hollow military" of the late '70s.

Also on my list is the continuation of efforts to fight crime and drugs by guarding our border ever more vigilantly. Congress approved my request to fund 1,000 additional new Border Patrol agents in the 1998 budget (two-thirds of which will be deployed in Texas), and now the administration has asked for another 1,000 for 1999. I will work very hard to see that funds for the additional agents are approved this year, as well.

Congress must support education on both the K-12 and college levels in a manner that in no way infringes on local control. I am also working with several colleagues to improve and update the Occupational Safety and Health Administration. And when the Senate takes up reform of the Endangered Species Act this session, I will work to ensure that the bill protects species - but not at the expense of private property rights protected by the Fifth Amendment.

Texas and the rest of America are, by and large, in a good mood, prompted by a strong economy. But we must all remain determined in our efforts to control government spending, reduce taxes and guard against the return of big government.

Thought for today

Public's right to know is vital

Every citizen of Texas has a fundamental right to know how elected and appointed officials are conducting public business. Two state statutes, the Texas Open Records Act (also called Public Information Act) and the Texas Open Meetings Act, provide that citizens may obtain copies of government documents and attend meetings of governmental bodies.

As Attorney General, I am charged with interpreting the open government laws. I am fully committed to the principle that governmental activity should be open to public scrutiny and at a minimum cost and inconvenience to taxpayers.

We advise and educate state and local government officials on their responsibilities under the open government laws. We also issue open records decisions whenever government agencies seek to withhold documents requested by citizens.

Any information in the possession of a governmental entity is generally available to the public. Public information includes phone logs, salaries, personnel evaluations, many transcripts and records of meetings and so on. Some kinds of documents are confidential by law and cannot be released. These include certain medical records, psychiatric records, juvenile offender records, student records and some personnel records.

The Open Records Division within the Office of the Attorney General issues decisions about whether particular records of governmental entities may or may not be withheld under the act's exceptions. In 1997, we issued nearly 3,000 decisions to governmental entities throughout the state.

Although the state's judicial system is not covered by the Open Records Act, records of the judiciary may be made available at the court's discretion or under other provisions of the law. Also, records of private companies, individuals or employees are not covered by the act, unless the private entity is supported in whole or in part by public funds.

Dan Morales
 Attorney General of the State of Texas

To make an open records request, write a letter to the governmental body from which you are seeking information. Do not call - the law does not require compliance with a verbal request. However, thanks to a recent amendment to the law, you can make your written request by fax or electronic mail. You may ask to inspect the documents in person or to have copies made for you.

Be as specific as possible about the information you want. A request for "all pertinent records from 1993-1994" will not be granted as such. You will get a letter asking you to narrow your request.

Governmental bodies must answer requests for documents or information that actually exist. They are not required to answer factual questions or to furnish information that has yet to be created, but might exist sometime in the future. If your request cannot be met within ten days, the agency will send you a written notice saying when the documents will be available. This can happen when documents are in use or in storage, if you have asked for a large number of documents or if one of the exceptions to disclosure may apply.

Many public records now exist in electronic form. If this is true for the information you want, you may ask for copies either in paper or in electronic format. An agency is required to provide copies in electronic format upon request, provided it has the technological ability to make the copies, does not have to buy any hardware or software to meet your request and does not violate copyright laws by making the copies.

Sometimes public information only exists as raw data, and may not be readily available in the format you need. In this case, a governmental body will send you a description of the data in its existing format, together with an estimate of the time and cost of reformatting it to meet your request.

The governmental body may require you to pay for photocopies. Cost guidelines, which are administered by the General Services Commission, state that the price of photocopies of readily available documents should be no more than the actual cost of reproduction. In other words, you should not be charged $5 a page when the going rate is approximately a dime a page.

If the estimated cost of the photocopies or data is more than $100, the governmental body may ask you to post a bond or cash prepayment for the anticipated costs of reproduction.

For more information on the Texas open government statutes, visit our home page at <http://www.oag.state.tx.us>, or call our Open Government Hotline at (512) 478-OPEN (6736). For a copy of our Open Records Handbook or Open Meetings Handbook, write to: The Office of the Attorney General, Research and Legal Support Division, P.O. Box 12548, Austin, TX, 78711-2548, or call (512) 936-1715.

Government exists to serve the people. This office will do everything in its power to make certain that you continue to have access to the information that your government possesses.

Wrong call was made on health club

When James Foster sued a women's health club for gender discrimination, he made a lot of women very unhappy. Many of the patrons of the Healthworks gym in Boston said they specifically went to the gym in question because it only admitted women. Their argument was that women were entitled to the privacy of an all-women gym, especially women who had been victims of rape or abuse.

One Healthworks member gave a moving explanation of why she believed the gym should be allowed to admit only women: "I joined Healthworks after many years in a relationship that left me clinically depressed and wholly lacking in self-confidence and I fully believe that my membership in the club, more than anything, rebuilt my sense of pride in myself and my physical strength. This could not have happened at a coed health club. As a result of my physical history, I would never have joined one and am still uncomfortable with the idea of exercising around men."

One can certainly feel sympathy for the author of this letter, and for the many women with similar feelings. And one can understand why Massachusetts governor Paul Cellucci deferred to this sensibility and passed a law that permits single-sex health clubs in Massachusetts.

Sara Eckel
 Eckel is a nationally syndicated columnist.

However, he was wrong to do so. As sympathetic as the arguments for women-only gyms might be, there is no getting around the fact that they are still perpetrating a form of discrimination. It is particularly dangerous to justify this kind of exclusion on the grounds that it keeps people from feeling uncomfortable. After all, most discriminatory behavior is not based in feelings of malice or hostility, but rather discomfort. The top executive feels more comfortable with male colleagues and unwittingly gives men the advantage when hiring senior managers. The blue bloods at the golf course don't feel comfortable with minorities so they prevent them from joining their club.

Indeed, with this new law in place what could possibly prevent men from forming the kind of all-male clubs and societies that many businesswomen believe have historically prevented them from moving up the corporate ladder?

Nothing, says the National Organization for Women, which is why they opposed the new law. Although Cheryl Garrity, the president of the Massachusetts chapter of NOW, told the New York Times that she believed such clubs were beneficial to women, "we have to give it up because discrimination is wrong."

Millionaire's attorneys seek to have contested will settled

GALVESTON (AP) — A judge wants to have more information from attorneys before deciding whether to transfer all legal challenges to the contested will of a 68-year-old millionaire to his court in Galveston County.

Retired Judge Jerome Jones on Monday gave lawyers until the end of the week to submit written briefs to him before he rules on a request from the attorneys for the $10 million estate of Absalom T. Webber Jr., who police say committed suicide on Dec. 5 at a Galveston beachhouse.

Webber's estranged wife, Donna Peterson, 37, contends she is due $4 million from the estate, plus another $1 million because she says she is pregnant.

Her attorneys are fighting to resolve the dispute in Orange County, where Ms. Peterson lives and where her petition seeking a judgment on her claim was filed four days after Webber died.

Webber's attorneys want the proceedings moved to Galveston County, about 100 miles to the west, where he died and where they say he owns property.

"Forum shopping — that's what they're doing here," said Ms. Peterson's attorney, Steve Carlton. He said Ms. Peterson, who did not attend Monday's hearing, should not have to travel so far to deal with the matter.

"This woman's been under enough pressure," Carlton said.

"It's as clear as can be," estate attorney Michael Hughes argued, citing what he said was Texas case law. "This case should be transferred here to allow for orderly administration of the estate. And that's what we're trying to do."

"He's got four million reasons to fight," Hughes said of Carlton.

Webber, who made his fortune selling oil field pipe, was found dead in his bed at the rented house. Police believe it was suicide. He had six cuts on his right wrist and a double-edge razor blade was found lying on his abdomen.

A Galveston County medical examiner, however, said he could not rule whether the man's death was suicide, accident or homicide. Cause of death, the coroner said, was a heart attack.

Webber and Ms. Peterson were married last August, two days after Webber filed a will in Jefferson Parish, La., naming her as the beneficiary of $4 million upon his death.

But 44 days later, he filed to divorce his young wife, a frequent but unsuccessful Republican congressional candidate in East Texas. At the time, Webber told his attorney and estate executor, Herbert W. Christenberry, that the marriage — his third, her first — was a sham. Two weeks later, on Oct. 28, Webber amended his will to cut Ms. Peterson out.

But Ms. Peterson claims in her petition that she has a document signed by Webber on Oct. 22 that gives her the money in the event of his death, plus another $1 million for any child she has, adopted or by birth. That document, however, was not notarized and lists Ms. Peterson's father, Richard, as the lone witness.

Attorneys for Webber's estate said they have been unsuccessful obtaining from Ms. Peterson results of medical tests to confirm her pregnancy and have not seen the original copy of the document she claims Webber signed.

Carlton would not confirm Ms. Peterson's pregnancy, calling it "irrelevant."

Both sides were set to appear today in an Orange County court where a judge was to consider a motion filed by Webber's lawyers to quash a request that Christenberry be deposed by Ms. Peterson's attorneys.

Ms. Peterson's lawyers also said they would return to Christenberry today several personal items he had requested from Ms. Peterson, including Webber's watch and a 1951 West Point class ring.

Webber's will calls for bequests to a number of universities and military schools. It also establishes a trust fund for his 34-year-old son, Michael Q. Webber.

A big loser if Ms. Peterson and her child collect from the estate could be an organization tied to the U.S. Military Academy at West Point. After the bequests are distributed, the organization is due to receive five-sixths of the remainder, according to Webber's will.

Wisconsin nearing landmark welfare overhaul

MADISON, Wis. (AP) — With a touch of a button, the governor printed the last batch of federal welfare checks, a final move in changing the welfare system of a state that has pioneered such overhauls.

Gov. Tommy Thompson on Monday finished printing the last 50 of 1,100 checks to be sent out this week under the Aid to Families with Dependent Children program.

The program is being replaced at the end of the month by the state's Wisconsin Works, or W-2, program.

W-2 requires all able-bodied adults to work or get job training. In return, the state will pay for their child care, transportation, and other related costs. It also puts a five-year cap on benefits.

W-2 requires all able-bodied adults to work or get job training. In return, the state will pay for their child care, transportation, and other related costs. It also puts a five-year cap on benefits.

W-2 follows a decade of welfare experiments in Wisconsin, starting with Learnfare, which reduced benefits for recipients whose children skipped school.

Since then, with varying results and heaps of both criticism and praise, the state tried Bridefare, Children First, two-tier welfare, Work First, Work Not Welfare and Pay for Performance.

In 1996, when the federal government overhauled regulations for welfare programs carried out by states, Wisconsin was the first to apply and the first to receive approval for its work-focused proposal.

President Clinton has called the program "one of the boldest, most revolutionary welfare reform plans in the country."

Thompson and state lawmakers said the last checks marked the end of an era in how welfare programs are run in Wisconsin.

"This machine's work is done and it is time for the people of Wisconsin to start to work," state Rep. Mike Huebsch said.

The program went into effect six months ago, and 12,127 families were registered as of Jan. 31, said David Blaska, a state Department of Workforce Development spokesman.

Couple's Breakfast Club Idea Turns Neighbors Into Friends

DEAR ABBY: I have a suggestion for "Lonely in New Mexico." When my husband and I moved to a small town in Washington, we located a vacant lot and bought it with plans to build a home there. As I walked around the neighborhood, I saw only one person outdoors. I approached him and said, "I'm going to be your neighbor." I invited him and his wife to meet us for breakfast once a week at a local restaurant, and told him that I planned to ask more neighbors to join us.

JEAN J. TVRDY, SEQUIM, WASH.

Little by little, more couples joined us for the weekly breakfast. As new neighbors moved in, I invited them to join us. As the "breakfast club" grew, I prepared a list of names, addresses and phone numbers to share so we would all know how to reach one another.

Now this club also has dinner together three times a year, and we arrange to have entertainment for those parties. "Lonely in New Mexico" should consider taking the initiative to organize her neighbors into a social group. At our meetings, we have discovered who has hobbies and common interests, so we can ask for guidance on projects or company on fishing trips. We have no agenda for the club other than friendship.

We have been meeting for eight years and greatly enjoy our weekly get-togethers. Of course, not all of our 80 neighbors attend every meeting, but enough show up so that a

However, our relationship has endured and strengthened. We have been married 13 years. We have two beautiful children in addition to my son and his son.

Where there is love, commitment and communication between two people, age and past history make no difference. Also, my husband has never been one to let others interfere in his life, not even his mother. After all this time, she finally has accepted me as her daughter-in-law.

If he really cares for his older girlfriend, he should stay with her. It's their future, not his family's.

TIME-TESTED IN ARIZONA

DEAR TIME-TESTED: I agree that the young man's future belongs to him. However, he may be emotionally tied to — or perhaps financially dependent upon — his parents, which is why they are giving him an ultimatum. The choice is his, but I cautioned him about making hasty decisions.

DEAR JEAN: Yours is an idea worth publicizing. Where there's a will, there's a way to accomplish almost anything. You are to be commended for originating such a far-reaching good-neighbor program. I hope "Lonely in New Mexico" heeds your excellent suggestion.

DEAR ABBY: In response to "Caught in the Middle in Connecticut," whose family disapproves of his love for an older woman who has a teen-age child, I would like to give him a bit of encouragement because my husband is six years younger than I am.

When we met he was 28 and I was 34. I am of Polynesian descent, was married twice before, and had a child out of wedlock. Believe me, my mother-in-law was not thrilled with me. She not only opposed our

Horoscope

Wednesday, March 4, 1998

There are indications you might make some type of career change in the year ahead. This alteration could produce positive results and help improve things for you materially.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Self-indulgent pursuits aren't likely to bring the enjoyment you anticipate today. You will find gratification in doing things for those you love. Pisces, treat yourself to a birthday gift. Send for your Astro-Graph predictions for the year ahead by mailing $2 and SASE to Astro-Graph, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 1758, Murray Hill Station, New York, NY 10156. Be sure to state your zodiac sign.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Trying to ignore an unpleasant matter will not eradicate it. Face up to the facts, regardless of content, and cut this paper dragon down to size.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Do not be too liberal with information today about your financial position. An associate with ulterior motives might try to use what you reveal in a penalizing way.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) How to ethically share something with others could be a major consideration for you today. You can't do all of the taking, nor should you be the only one giving.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Should someone who has helped you previously require assistance today, be the first to volunteer. Do not try to hide behind a bunch of lame excuses.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Follow your logical assessments today instead of yielding to the thinking of others who are only trying to protect their own positions.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Even if you feel certain you are right, adjusting your thinking and cooperating with another will net you more in return than insisting things be done your way.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) It might not be as easy as you thought finding someone to take care of a matter for you today that you have been ignoring. Unfortunately, if you don't do it, it's not apt to get done.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) It could put a strain on your pocketbook later if you fail to attend to something potentially profitable today just because you would rather play than work.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) A watchful eye and a firm grip pertaining to those in your charge might be required today, because a lack of discipline could turn your household into something a bit rowdy.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Your entire schedule could get foiled today if you fail to deal with developments as they arise. This isn't a day to sweep problems under the rug.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) If you think before you spend today you won't end up with merchandise of little use you won't need. Conversely, being a smart shopper will save you money.

ORCHARD PARK, N.Y. (AP) — Ted Washington became the highest-paid player in Buffalo Bills' history, signing a five-year, $27.3 million contract.

The deal, which includes a $6.5 million signing bonus, came days after haggling over whether the team's nose tackle was a franchise player or a transition free agent. The contract exceeds a six-year, $28.2 million agreement given to defensive end Bruce Smith last year.

Washington's agent, Angelo Wright, and Bills general manager John Butler intensified talks Friday after NFL Players Association and the league's Management Council agreed that Washington was a transition free agent, which meant he could have negotiated with other teams.

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — Derrick Alexander, a free agent receiver who had 190 receptions for 3,152 yards in his first four NFL seasons, signed a reported five-year, $17.5 million contract with the Kansas City Chiefs.

Alexander was a first-round draft choice of the Cleveland Browns in 1994, and has had consecutive 1,000-yard receiving seasons in the two seasons since the Browns moved to Baltimore.

BASKETBALL

KALAMAZOO, Mich. (AP) — Miami of Ohio coach Charlie Coles was in serious but stable condition, two days after an apparent heart attack during a Mid-American Conference tournament game.

Coles, 56, collapsed midway through the first half of Miami's 67-63 victory over Western Michigan. Assistant Ray Martin will direct the team in tonight's semifinal game against Kent at Toledo, Ohio.

PLEASANT HILL, Calif. (AP) — Former Golden State player Latrell Sprewell lost control of his car on a northern California freeway while changing lanes, causing another vehicle to flip onto its roof.

Sprewell, suspended by the NBA for his attack on coach P.J. Carlesimo, was not injured in the accident Sunday morning about 80 miles northeast of San Francisco. Two people in the other car sustained minor injuries. No tickets were issued, and the accident was under investigation.

BASEBALL

DEDHAM, Mass. (AP) — Mo Vaughn had been drinking at a strip club before he crashed into a car parked beside the highway and flipped his pickup, according to testimony in his trial on drunken driving charges.

"It was obvious that he was intoxicated," Trooper Paul McCarthy said, reaching the conclusion after the Boston Red Sox first baseman failed eight sobriety tests. "There's no doubt in my mind."

Vaughn was driving in Norwood early Jan. 9 when he struck a Ford Escort parked on the shoulder and rolled his pickup truck.

CHICAGO (AP) — Longtime Chicago Cubs broadcaster Jack Brickhouse, who collapsed while dressing to attend Harry Caray's funeral, has a brain tumor that probably is benign. The 82-year-old Hall of Fame announcer was scheduled to have the tumor removed today at Northwestern Memorial Hospital.

TENNIS

SCOTTSDALE, Ariz. (AP) — Andre Agassi, coming off his first singles title in more than a year, beat Spain's Albert Portas 3-6, 6-1, 6-2 in the first round of the Franklin Templeton Tennis Classic.

Second-seeded Albert Costa of Spain beat Slava Dosedel of the Czech Republic 7-6 (7-5), 6-1, and Carlos Costa of Spain defeated third-seeded Magnus Norman of Sweden 6-4, 7-6 (8-6).

All-Big 12 performers hitting their stride

Pampa's Young is honorable mention

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — In championship fashion, first-team selections to The Associated Press All-Big 12 basketball squad seem to be peaking at just the right time.

Nebraska point guard Tyrone Lue made all nine of his second-half shots in the regular-season finale Saturday, scoring 24 points as the Huskers beat Iowa State and stretched their winning streak to six in a row.

Oklahoma's Corey Brewer left Texas Tech in awe in the Sooners' final game of the regular season, hitting three 3-pointers and scoring 18 points in one 6-minute span of the second half.

Last week in No. 3 Kansas' final home game, Paul Pierce scored 31 points, including 15 in one 6-for-6 stretch on six consecutive possessions as the Jayhawks beat Oklahoma and extended their school-record home winning streak to 60 games.

Raef LaFrentz, bidding to repeat as Big 12 player-of-the-year, had 32 rebounds in Kansas' last two games, including 14 to go with his 17 points in Sunday's 71-67 victory over Oklahoma State.

And Cory Carr of Texas Tech, the other first-team selection by a panel of 24 media representatives, kept his game on a consistently high plane throughout the year, becoming the Big 12's scoring leader for the second straight year.

Texas Tech guard Rayford Young, a Pampa sophomore, made the honorable mention list. Young is Tech's second leading scorer at 15.3 points a game and leads the Red Raiders with 112 assists and 43 steals. He was also named to the

All-Underrated unit on the Big 12's speciality teams.

LaFrentz, Pierce and Carr were all unanimous first-team selections.

The 6-foot-11 LaFrentz, named Big 12 player of the year and a first-team All-American as a junior, is the only repeater on the No. 1 squad. He and Pierce helped Kansas win a fourth straight conference title and post back-to-back 30-win seasons for the first time in 100 years of Jayhawk basketball.

Baylor senior Brian Skinner heads the second team. The 6-10 center finished second in the conference with 9.5 rebounds and first with a field goal percentage of 56.5.

The other two top vote-getters on the second unit are a pair of Oklahoma State Cowboys. Senior Brett Robisch, 6-11, whose emergence helped the Cowboys go from 17-15 in 1996-97 to 21-5 this season, averaged 15.6 points and 8.2 rebounds and provided a badly needed presence inside. Joining him is teammate Adrian Peterson, a 6-4 junior who was eighth in the conference in scoring (17.3 points per game) and fourth in free throw percentage (79.9).

Rounding out the second team are Kris Clack, Texas' 6-5 junior guard who was slowed for much of the season by injury, and Kansas State junior Manny Dies, 6-8. Clack averaged 17.6 points and 6.6 rebounds while Dies led the improved Wildcats in scoring (16.3) and rebounding (7.5).

LaFrentz will finish his college career second on Kansas' all-time scoring list and is closing in on Danny Manning's school rebounding record.

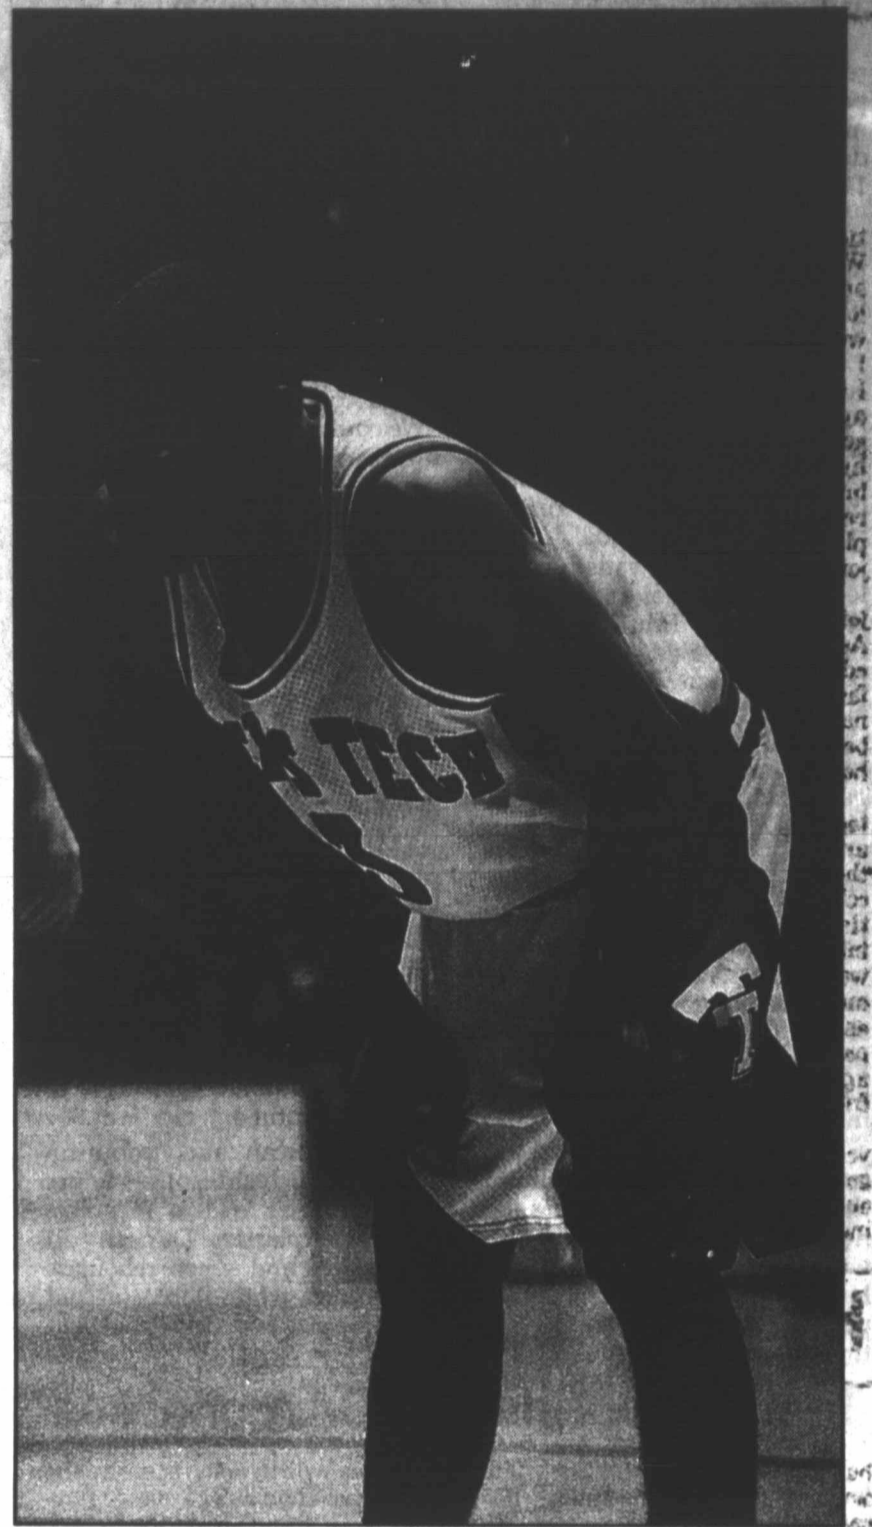

Kansas fans are worried that Pierce, a 6-7 junior, may also be winding down his outstanding college career a year early. He averaged 20.1 points for the 31-3 Jayhawks, who have lost only two Big 12 games since the conference began play in the 1996-97 season. He has said he won't think about going early into the NBA draft until after the season is done.

Carr, 6-4, faced the same decision last year after leading the Big 12 in its inaugural season with 23.1 points per game. He opted to stay his senior year and repeated as conference scoring leader, putting in 23.4 for the Red Raiders despite being the focus of the opposing defense virtually every game.

Lue, 6-0, 175, perhaps the quickest player in the conference, is another junior facing a tough choice. He averaged 21.4 points, right behind Carr, and will go down as one of the greatest players in Nebraska history even if he does skip his senior season.

Heading into the postseason, Lue has led the Huskers on a six-game winning streak while ranking among the Big 12's top five in scoring, assists, free throw percentage and steals. The Missouri native stands third on the school career charts in both scoring and assists, and fifth in steals. His 69 3-point goals are just one shy of the school record.

Brewer, a 6-2 senior, was the AP Big 12 newcomer of the year last season after transferring from Carl Albert Junior College and averaging 17.5 points, 4.5 rebounds, 3.5 assists and 1.9 steals. In his second season he finished third in the Big 12 with 21.2 points per game.

Pampa track teams to host TOT Invitational

PAMPA — The powerful Pampa High girls' track team will showcase their talents at the annual Top Of Texas Invitational on Saturday at Randy Matson Field.

The Lady Harvesters opened the track season last weekend at the Frenship Relays. They scored 239 3/4 points while Lubbock Estacado was a distant second with 104 points.

Pampa's 400 and 800-meter relay teams, both consisting of Jennifer Ross Audrey Wilbon, Lavonne Evans and Lacrease Ford, captured first-place medals. Jenny Fatheree set a new meet record in winning the 1600 with a time of 5:48.02.

She also won the 800. Katy Cavalier captured the triple jump and long jump events.

"We had some outstanding performances. Katy had an excellent meet and Jenny set a new record," said Pampa head coach Mike Lopez. "We've got some newcomers like Joy Young in the program who are really going to help us."

The Top Of Texas Invitational, which starts at 9 a.m. Saturday, has seven teams entered in the girls' division and six in the boys' division.

Girls' teams include Plainview, Canyon, Dumas, Tascosa, Dalhart, Perryton and Pampa.

Boys' teams include Dumas, Borger, Perryton, Dalhart, Canyon and Pampa.

Track workers are needed for the meet. Interested persons can contact Mike Lopez or Tad Smith at 669-4830.

Where's Lemke? Not in Boston, yet

By The Associated Press

Mark Lemke was a playoff constant for the better part of a decade with the Atlanta Braves.

With less than a month left in spring training, the 32-year-old second baseman still doesn't have a job.

Lemke's agent, Lonnie Cooper, said Monday that the Boston Red Sox made an offer, but not enough. Boston has a void at second base because Jeff Frye suffered a season-ending knee injury.

Red Sox general manager Dan Duquette said he offered a minor-league contract to Lemke and Greg Gagne, the Los Angeles Dodgers shortstop last season who played second base for Minnesota in 1988.

"My conversations weren't fruitful for Mark to consider it," Cooper said of his talks with Duquette.

Lemke made $2 million in 1997, the last of his 10 seasons with the Braves.

Duquette said he would consider trading for a second baseman, but claimed he was happy with the candidates already in camp — Mike Gallego, Lou Merloni and Donnie Sadler. Of the three, only Gallego has played in the majors and, at 37, is a part-time player.

Merloni went 3-for-4 and Sadler 1-for-2 in Monday's 13-8 victory over the Pittsburgh Pirates.

Boston scored 10 runs in the first two innings and Nomar Garciaparra homered for his first hit in 11 spring at-bats in the game at Fort Myers, Fla.

Dennis Eckersley retired all three batters he faced in the sixth inning, his first appearance for the Red Sox since he traded him to the Chicago Cubs in 1984.

In other games Monday:

Reds 7, Blue Jays 0

Roger Clemens was hit hard in his spring debut as Cincinnati shut out Toronto at Sarasota, Fla.

Dmitri Young singled in two runs and Eddie Taubensee had a two-run homer for Cincinnati, which scored five runs on seven hits in the first inning against Clemens. The AL Cy Young Award winner threw 75 pitches in

Harvesters take fifth at Randall

RANDALL — The Pampa High boys' track team scored 44 points to place fifth at the Randall Relays last weekend.

"We're going to carry a very small varsity team and a little bigger junior varsity this year," said Pampa coach Tad Smith. "We had some guys who looked pretty good in their first meet."

Pampa results are as follows:

Long jump: Curtis Johnson, first place, 21-2.

200: Curtis Johnson, second place, 23.42.

100: Curtis Johnson, third place, 11.41.

Long jump: Steve Johnson, fourth place, 18-6.

two innings, struck out five and walked three.

Reds starter Pete Harnisch gave up one hit in three innings.

Cardinals 13, Dodgers 5

At Jupiter, Fla., Mark McGwire hit a three-run homer, his second homer of the spring, as St. Louis piled up 15 hits and routed the Dodgers.

McGwire, who hit a 450-homer Saturday in his first spring game, connected in a five-run second inning off Dan Hubbs. Rookie Juan Munoz, 0-for-7 in the first two games, hit a three-run homer off Eric Weaver in the seventh.

Triple jump: Steve Johnson, fourth place, 38-6.

3200: Kelby McClelan, sixth place (no time listed).

1600: Kelby McClelan, sixth place, 5:23.0.

Pampa finished 10th in the junior varsity division with 18 points.

Pampa JV results are as follows:

Mavs roll by Kings

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) - Tim Duncan has David Robinson back at his side. And for the rest of the NBA, that's trouble.

Duncan had 29 points and 17 rebounds, and Robinson had 22 points and seven blocks Monday night as the San Antonio Spurs defeated the Sacramento Kings 116-95.

With Robinson injured and missing six straight games in February, Duncan held the Spurs together. They went 4-2 in Robinson's absence.

Reunited again for the second consecutive game, the pair left Kings center Michael Stewart and backup Otis Thorpe frustrated. Both Stewart and Thorpe fouled out after combining for only six points and 12 rebounds.

"They've been causing problems for everyone this year," Stewart said. "Tim Duncan is on fire lately. David Robinson has been hurt, but he's come back and hasn't missed a beat."

Robinson played 28 minutes in his second game after missing six games with a knee injury. He was satisfied with his play against Sacramento, which lost its seventh straight game.

"I had my minutes limited, but I tried to work them as well as I could," Robinson said. "I'm moving a little more freely, and defensively I felt better. Tim's been playing great; just real steady. His game complements mine so much."

The Spurs also showcased their league-leading defense, limiting the struggling Kings to 38 percent field-goal shooting — 32-of-85. It was the 48th game San Antonio has held an opponent under 100 points. The Spurs are 39-9 in those games.

"Since training camp, we have been committed to defense," Spurs coach Gregg Popovich said. "We wanted to be one of the top defensive teams in the league. We wanted to be tougher, more physical and hold teams down. Defense has kept us in a lot of games this year."

Robinson and Duncan combined for 18 points in the third period as San Antonio led 82-66 entering the fourth. The lead remained in double figures throughout the final quarter.

"We played a very good team," Kings coach Eddie Jordan said. "We couldn't match up with their big people. They made us shoot poorly, and that was the game."

Mitch Richmond led Sacramento with 21 points, and Lawrence Funderburke had 16. Point guard Anthony Johnson added 15 points.

"They showed exactly why they are a tough team," Johnson said. "They play a physical game in the paint, and with those two post players, they made it very difficult on our frontcourt."

Monty Williams scored 12 points for the Spurs, and Avery Johnson had 11 points and 11 assists.

Duncan and Robinson provided the Spurs with half of their offense in the first half. Robinson scored 13 points and Duncan had 11 as San Antonio took a 48-40 lead into halftime.

With Duncan and Robinson dominating inside, the Spurs increased their lead to 16 points after three quarters. Duncan had nine points and seven rebounds in the third, while Robinson had nine points and four blocked shots.

Tech responds to NCAA charges

LUBBOCK, Texas (AP) — Texas Tech has responded to 18 allegations of NCAA rules violations, but the university's top attorney says details from the cumbersome document won't be available until later this month.

It will take two to three weeks to delete athletes' names from the more than 600-page document, Tech general counsel Pat Campbell said Monday. By law, the students' names must be removed from records before they are made public.

The Associated Press has filed a written request to examine the response, which was sent to the NCAA last Thursday.

Tech is responding to NCAA charges released Nov. 3 after a 20-month investigation. At the time, NCAA enforcement director David Best called the case "major in nature."

On Oct. 2, the school admitted that administrative errors allowed 76 athletes to compete ineligibly in eight sports in the 1990s. Also, Tech awarded too many scholarships in football, baseball, men's golf and men's track.

The other 16 charges focus on men's basketball and football.

Mississippi coach Rob Evans envisioned success when he took over a perennial loser six years ago. While most people scoffed at his optimism, the long-time college assistant forged ahead with a plan.

Now the Rebels, who were never ranked or won any kind of regular-season Southeastern Conference title before last year, are No. 10. Not in one of the nation's toughest conferences, but No. 10 in the nation.

Texas Christian moved up to No. 13 after finishing as champion of the Western Athletic Pacific Division with out losing a game in the division.

Ole Miss (21-5) cracked the Top 10 in the AP college basketball poll for the first time Monday, two days after clinching its second straight outright SEC Western Division title ahead of Arkansas.

"This is not even the same program as when we got here six years ago. It is like night and day," Evans said. "We were ranked last in the league."

"I said when I got here that we wanted to have a program that was beating Kentucky, Arkansas and different people like that," Evans said. "At that time, I understood why people felt the way they felt."

After all, Ole Miss had just one winning record in the nine seasons before Evans arrived. The Rebels finished in the upper-half of the SEC standings only 11 times in six decades and made their only NCAA tournament appearance in 1981 after a surprising SEC tournament run for an automatic berth.

In the next-to-last AP poll of the 1997-98 season, Duke remained No. 1 after a dramatic 77-75 victory over North Carolina on Saturday.

Duke (27-2) was easily on top for the second straight week, with 48 first-place votes and 1,724 points from the national media panel. Arizona (26-3), with the nation's longest current winning streak at 19 games, was second with 20 No. 1 votes and 1,684 points.

Kansas (31-3) switched places with North Carolina, moving into third with the other two first-place votes and 1,580 points, 17 more than the Tar Heels (27-3).

The Ole Miss program didn't make an immediate turnaround under Evans, who served 25 years as an assistant coach at

SO WHEN ARE YOU GOING TO BREAK DOWN AND GET CELLULAR?

Don't get us wrong. We don't really want you to break down. But we do want you to know that cellular is a lot less expensive than you might think. In fact, for about the cost of a candy bar a day, you can have the security and convenience of a cellular phone and service from Dobson Cellular. Which is a lot less expensive than the price you'll pay for not having it in those times you really need it.

Break it down. Cellular is as low as 65¢ a day.

Dobson has affordable plans for everyone — starting with the Security Plan for just $20 a month. And if you travel a lot, check out our RoadRoamer Plan that gives you nearly 300,000 miles of coverage for just $35 a month. For more information on the affordable security of cellular service from Dobson, call or stop by one of our convenient locations listed below. Certain terms and conditions apply.

Sign Up This Month and Get:

- Double Airtime for 6 months!
- Your choice among a selection of phones and a car adapter included with most rate plans.
