House Adopts Bill to Return $6,000,000 Annually To Counties

AUSTIN, Sept. 23. (UP)—Texas today practically repudiated salary reductions for state employes and raised the state tax rate 5 cents. Adjournment of the special session of the legislature tomorrow is possible.

The tax raise to 74 cents came from the state automatic tax board, consisting of Gov. Ross Sterling, State Comptroller George Sheppard and State Treasurer Charles Lockhart, after the legislature had failed to make effective a proposed bill fixing the tax rate at "not to exceed 69 cents."

Unfavorable action on salary reductions then came from the senate finance committee. By vote of 12 to 6 they opposed bills making a 10 per cent reduction.

House Continues Work

Meantime the house went ahead passing 10 per cent salary reduction bills. Attempts to halt them with notice that the senate had "killed" the bills brought denial.

Officially the bills still can pass the senate. Practically the chance seems small. Tomorrow morning Senator Tom Deberry proposes to ask that the bills be taken up in spite of unfavorable report. The Work on the 1931 county and state rolls was being crowded at maximum speed in the office of the tax assessor Wednesday afternoon subsequent to the announcement of the state rate.

Record News Cotton Table

For Northwest Texas and Southern Oklahoma

Cotton movement was well under way Wednesday in this section as the product flowed in large amounts to ginners. Ginnings are said to be far in advance of ginnings of this same time last year. This condition is attributed to unusually hot and dry weather.

Prices paid for cotton this season are in wide variance to the prices paid last year. Cotton, now ranging from 5 to 5.95 cents, is bringing approximately half of the price paid in September, 1930. Cottonseed prices show an even wider difference. Prices of September, 1930, were as high as $27, compared with a range of from $6 to $8 for seed this season.

Below is listed cotton figures of towns in this section, as reported by Record News correspondents:

American Farmer May Wear Patches But His Cellar Bulges With Foods

Canning and Storage Activity Over the Nation Passes All Records, Press Survey Reveals

By ROBERT ST. JOHN
(Copyrighted, 1931, by the Associated Press)

NEW YORK, Sept. 23.—Record-breaking storing and canning activity has placed American farmers in a better position than in many years to face the winter so far as food is concerned.

This was revealed tonight with the completion of a national survey by the Associated Press which shows that with unprecedented foresight farmers in general began months ago to prepare for a hard winter.

They now have enough food and foodstuffs in cellars, storage houses and on pantry shelves to last until next spring. Farmers in some instances may wear patches on their clothes but they will have a full larder for their families.

Live at Home Program

In one state alone, North Carolina, home club women have filled 4,608,000 containers of fruits and vegetables in comparison with 1,250,000 last year. Gov. Max Gardner said the "live at home" program was responsible for the production of $25,000,000 in produce which in 1929 was bought outside the state.

Furthermore, farmers spent less than usual in cultivating their crops, as a result of the lack of financial assistance. Low prices prevented, with few exceptions, appreciable profits, but the margin of loss has been smaller.

The survey revealed that in many states, notably Virginia, Alabama, Colorado, Mississippi, Missouri, Oklahoma and Pennsylvania, more garden crops were planted this season than ever before, the farmers in some cases even figuring out in advance a budget of their families' winter requirements.

Texas' Report

A report from a county agricultural agent in Texas was typical of statements received from all parts of the country. It read:

"He may not have enough to buy radios, automobiles and spiffy clothes, but the Texas farmer will have plenty to eat this winter."

The average farmer is fattening his cattle on unmarketable grain and will slaughter them during the cold months to provide a meat supply for his family.

In Pennsylvania the increase in canning is estimated as high as 200 per cent. In Oklahoma a typical family on the Red Cross list last year now has more than 500 jars of food stored away.

In Minnesota pork, lamb, beef and even chicken meat are being preserved.

Vegetables Stored

In all except a few states the farmers' storage bins and underground pits are filled to the point of overflowing with potatoes, apples, cabbage, turnips and other non-perishable edibles.

Many schemes have been effected to take surplus crops off the farmers' hands and can them for distribution to the needy later. In Tennessee, the preserving was done by workhouse inmates and the jars are being stored in the Memphis courthouse. The state penitentiary in Washington has charge of the canning.

Only four states reported less activity along these lines than in previous years—Nevada, Nebraska, New Hampshire and South Dakota. In all other states the vast store of preserved food was seen as the farmer's bulwark during the winter.

CHEST DRIVE ENDS TODAY

$18,000 Needed to Reach City's Goal

Subscriptions obtained during three days of campaigning by community chest workers for the 1932 budget amounted to $41,503.37 when tabulated Wednesday night, according to Walter D. Cline, general chairman of the drive.

Mr. Cline voiced an appeal to the citizenship of the city to make a special effort on Thursday, the announced closing day of the campaign, to provide the remaining $18,000 required to meet the announced budget.

"Successful completion of this campaign is going to call for the very greatest effort which we can muster," Mr. Cline said. "I should like particularly to appeal to those who unintentionally have been overlooked in the campaign thus far. We beg such persons to call the community chest headquarters, 2-0727. We shall have a worker ready to call at once relative to a subscription to the chest fund."

The total number of subscribers reported up to Wednesday night was 2,120, of which 574 were secured Wednesday. During the day,

OKLAHOMA CITY, Sept. 23. (UP)—Two bands of bank robbers made raids on Central Oklahoma banks this afternoon, kidnaped an assistant cashier and escaped with about $6,000 in cash.

Two bandits entered the Lindsay State bank and found Assistant Cashier F. R. Stephens alone. Forcing him to hand over all available cash, the bandits kidnaped him.

Stephens was released 14 miles southwest of Lindsay and was taken to Marlow by an officer.

The bandits obtained about $3,500 in cash.

Deaf Mute Uses Sign Language To Testify in Anson Slaying Trial

ANSON, Texas, Sept. 23. (AP)—Earnest Saffel, deaf mute, testified in district court here today, by sign language, on events leading up to the fatal shooting of Will Windham and the wounding of Frank Windham, by his father, Jim Saffel, last June. Arthur T. Buchanan, principal of the Texas School for Deaf, Austin, interpreted.

Young Saffel described how his father had poured lead slugs down the barrel of his gun when the Windhams approached and how he had run away from the scene of the shooting.

The defendant testified he cried to the Windhams, "don't come on. I don't want to kill you." The defense contends a plot existed between the Windhams to kill Saffel. Saffel denied he had drugged Frank Windham with poison liquor and sought to become intimate with his wife.

Testimony was expected to be completed tomorrow and the case to be ready for the jury Friday.

300 DELEGATES REGISTER FOR COTTON MEET

Shippers' Advisory Board And Traffic League Plan Program

OPEN TO PUBLIC

Business Men Invited to Attend Sessions of Two Groups

Traffic, rail and cotton men began arriving here Wednesday from all points in the Southwest, preparatory to attending the fall meeting of the Southwestern Shippers' Advisory board here Thursday. Late Wednesday night an estimated 300 delegates had arrived. As many as 200 more were expected to arrive before the session opens at 9 a. m. Thursday.

Due to the delay in the arrival of members of the Southwestern Industrial Traffic league, which was to have met here Wednesday afternoon, that organization postponed its session until 8:30 a. m. Thursday.

The board meeting is primarily for the discussion of cotton and its shipment, although other industries will share in the comment. Numerous reports will be made by committee chairmen on subjects of interest to shippers.

Two committees of the board, the executive and contact groups, met Wednesday afternoon to prepare reports which will be read Thursday morning. Other committee reports have already been compiled.

Matters to be presented before the advisory board are to be prepared at the league meeting.

The shippers' advisory board holds three meetings annually. The fall meeting is known as the "cotton" session. In the spring the grain meeting is held. During the winter a session is held for discussion of matters of particular interest to the Gulf Coast.

The board meeting was brought here this fall for the first time, largely through the efforts of Dudley B. Foy, traffic manager of the chamber of commerce, and Wilburn Page, conventions manager.

Of delegates present for the two meetings, many are leaders in the cotton and shipping industries. Representatives of four states, Louisiana, Oklahoma and Texas, of which the district is comprised, are present.

Golf at Weeks park has been provided for the visitors both Wednesday and Thursday.

The Southwestern Shippers' Advisory board will adjourn at about 1 p. m. Thursday, it was announced. The session will be open to the public, and chamber of commerce officials urge that the meeting be attended by interested persons. Members of the chamber particularly are urged to attend the session as much as possible. It is requested that local delegates register in order that the attendance figure may be swelled.

The advisory board meeting will be presided over by Cecil E. Munn, president. The league meeting will be called to order and presided over by Carl Giessow, chairman.

Silver Prices Gain On Mexico Exchange

MEXICO CITY, Sept. 23. (UP)—A slight improvement in the price of silver bullion has occurred in the last few days, but well informed financial sources said the movement was in no way related to the British suspension of the gold standard.

The exchange value of the peso also has improved slightly, dollars being available today at two pesos, 85 centavos. Bankers attributed the fluctuations to superficial reasons and misinformation regarding the true character of the British action.

Bond and Commodity Marts Reflect Confidence Of Traders

BROKERS 'JUBILANT'

Issues on London Exchange Show Strength After Two-Day Close

NEW YORK, Sept. 23. (AP)—Convalescent Wall street hurled security prices jubilantly upward today as the doctors hinted that the more important surgical operations upon the economic structure may have been about completed.

Share prices registered one of the widest advances of the year, but the sweeping upturn of the normally more dignified bond market was even more spectacular. The cheerfulness spread to commodities and cotton, silver and grains were higher.

Bonds $30 to $100 Up

Shares gained $1 to $15, the widest advance since the war debt moratorium rally of June. In bonds, there were numerous upturns of $30 to $100 per bond of $1,000 par value, particularly in the foreign issues and the domestic rails and the average advance was the widest in more than a year.

The 10 per cent wage reduction announced by United States Steel corporation, and followed by similar announcements by several other large concerns, was widely interpreted in Wall street as one of the final capitulations to the forces of deflation. It was asknowledged it will probably have a retarding influence on trade for a time, but Wall street felt it removed one of the major elements of uncertainty.

The London crisis had a decidedly disturbing influence for several days, even before it broke, but with trading confidently resumed in the London stock exchange today, Wall street hoped the British situation had become definitely a thing of the past as a dominant influence here.

Rally Overdue

There was considerable difference of opinion in speculative quarters as to how much weight should be given the upturn in stocks, for the share market had been under pressure long enough to make a technical rally overdue, and the abrupt rebound was not appreciably different from the many that have

LEGION TO VOTE ON BEER ISSUE

Prohibition Finally Comes Before Veterans

DETROIT, Mich., Sept. 23. (US)—The prohibition question was ordered onto the floor of the American Legion convention today.

The powerful resolutions committee late in the afternoon voted 25 to 19 to submit to the convention a resolution calling on the federal and state governments to submit the issue to the people of the United States in a referendum.

The policy committee of the convention was instructed to withdraw and draft a resolution covering the intent of the resolution for formal presentation.

The referendum resolution was adopted over another resolution calling directly for repeal.

It was supported by the liberal delegates on the ground that a referendum resolution had a better chance for adoption by the convention because it provided only for a public expression on the subject.

Shortly before announcement of the committee's action scenes of the wildest enthusiasm had greeted the report of the legion's national unemployment commission recommending that the delegates give serious consideration to the legali-

Pangborn and Herndon May Try Japan Flight

NEW YORK, Sept. 23. (AP)—A one-stop flight from Japan to Dallas is the latest undertaking being contemplated by Hugh Herndon Jr., and Clyde Pangborn, who originally started out to break the Post-Gatty globe girdling record.

Their flight headquarters here today announced the airmen would attempt such a flight if a reported prize offer of $25,000 by Col. W. E. Easterwood, Dallas, could be verified.

In addition, they would be eligible for another $25,000 offered by Asahi, a Tokyo newspaper, for a flight from Japan to the United States. This offer permits a takeoff from Samushiro beach, 50 miles from Tokyo.

Sterling Waits Reply To Cotton Telegrams

AUSTIN, Sept. 23. (UP)—No reply was received today by Gov. Ross Sterling to telegrams sent last night asking governors of other southern states to follow Texas in reducing the cotton yield.

Texas lawmakers, their answer to pleas for cotton relief formally embodied in a 30 per cent cotton restriction law, tonight looked forward to going home.

Proof that they were through "meddling" with the labor of Texas farmers came today in a senate vote killing outright a bill requiring farmers to terrace their cotton patches.

Two Independent Refineries Close And Another Cuts Crude Prices

TULSA, Okla., Sept. 23. (AP)—Two refineries were ordered closed today and a small purchasing company reduced prices for Oklahoma and Texas oil 20 cents per barrel in a day that was marked by considerable tensity in the oil industry.

The attitude of expectancy that has hung over the industry since all major producing states of the mid-continent area swung into line and ratified a definite controlled production policy recently formulated in Oklahoma City, grew as the perplexity increased over what move if any would be made immediately by the major independents.

The H. F. Wilcox Oil and Gas company ordered its Pampa, Texas, refinery shut down for an indefinite period and the discharge of its 30 employes. H. F. Wilcox, president, announced also the company's Bristow, Okla., refinery, em-

Giant Ship Successfully Conquers Air in Trip Above Ohio

112 PERSONS ABOARD

Prominent Naval Officials Passengers on First Flight of Craft

AKRON, Ohio, Sept. 23. (US)—The U. S. Akron, world's largest dirigible, took its maiden flight today with 112 persons on board.

No American aircraft ever has carried this number before.

The giant ship after cruising over Akron for some minutes, headed northward for a brief visit to Cleveland.

Less than three hours elapsed before the silver sheen of the returning craft was seen in the skies by the great crowds which had watched its departure.

Officials Pleased

David S. Ingalls, assistant secretary of the navy in charge of aeronautics, and Lieut. Com. Charles E. Rosendahl, master of the craft on its initial flight. Both had high praise for dirigible and the success of the trip.

"Everything was extraordinarily smooth in the operation of the ship—it was perfectly balanced at all times," said Ingalls.

"The operation personnel of the Akron is well satisfied with the performance of the Akron," said Commander Rosendahl.

P. W. Litchfield, president of the Goodyear-Zeppelin company, which built the Akron, was jubilant.

Flight Success

"The first trial flight was a complete success. The ship handled beautifully," he said.

The Akron took the air at 3:36 p. m. Shortly after 6 p. m. it was sighted on its return here from Cleveland. At 7:24 it was back in its dock at the Akron airport.

Only a slight breeze swept across the airport when the Akron swept first into the air, but rain had been intermittent throughout the day and heavy clouds obscured the sun most of the time.

"Ship up" came the command from Lieut. Commander Charles E. Rosendahl, and after ballast was discharged the ship rose easily into the air.

AKRON MAKES MAIDEN FLIGHT

World's Largest Airship Up Nearly Four Hours

ship was reported over Bedford, a suburb of Cleveland.

Then over Cleveland it soared with rush-hour traffic becoming snarled and twisted as motorists and pedestrians sought to gain a glimpse of the ship.

It was sighted over downtown Akron once more on the last leg of its trip shortly after 6 p. m.

Fifteen minutes later the ship arrived at its dock where the ground crew, officials and newspaper men were waiting to greet it. It was safely moored by the ground crew with little difficulty.

The Akron began its maiden voyage from Akron airport at 3:36 this afternoon.

Rises Slowly

The huge aluminum structure, as high as a 15-story building and a city block long, rose slowly into the air when the order was given to "up ship" by Lieutenant Commander Charles E. Rosendahl, the ship's skipper. It rose about 200 feet as a free balloon without any motive power.

When it reached this height its motors were cut in.

Difficulty was experienced in getting the craft off the ground and water ballast was discharged to lighten the ship.

Its course was set in a southwesterly direction heading into a wind of about five miles an hour. The ship was proceeding at about 30 knots.

Fleet Follows Ship

A fleet of four Goodyear blimps and a dozen planes followed the mammoth as it started its cruise. They remained about 1,500 feet in the rear of the ship in accordance with naval orders.

As the ship took off the horns of thousands of automobiles and the cheers of thousands of spectators rent the air even at the air dock a half mile from the closest point of vantage.

Shortly after 1 p. m. rain began to fall and for a while it appeared as though the ship's flight would again be delayed. The skies cleared, however, and as the sun peeped from behind threatening clouds the order was given to bring the ship completely out of its dock for the first time.

Crew Takes Posts

The crew went aboard the giant shortly after 2 p. m. and went to their assigned stations. The mechanics started all eight of the huge motors each of which is bigger than some motor cars.

They were working perfectly as they were warmed up for the flight. Their deep-throated roar echoed through the huge air dock.

At 2:40 the order was given to clear the floor of the dock in preparation for the flight. At the same time the huge 600-ton doors of the dock began opening.

The prominent persons flying as guests then were taken aboard.

The official passenger list included Assistant Secretary of the Navy David S. Ingalls, Rear Admiral William A. Moffett and P. W. Litchfield, president of Goodyear Zeppelin corporation, builders of the Zeppelin. One hundred and twelve persons including 57 members of the crew were aboard for the take-off.

Provisions Carried

Provisions were taken aboard the ship just before it was taken out of its dock. They were placed in store rooms in both sides of the craft.

Lieutenant Commander Herbert V. Wiley acting as mooring officer first gave the order to "stand by to walk the ship out" and at 3:01 p. m. the second order was given to "walk the ship out."

Simultaneously the ground crew begin moving the ship out stern first. Six minutes later the aeronautical Goliah was free of the dock for the first time in its history.

The ground crew and the mechanical apparatus took the ship to a point about two lengths of the ship from the dock, where Wiley commanded the ground crew to halt.

Lines Cast Off

There was a pause of several minutes while Wiley surveyed the situation and then the command to "trip the mechanical landing gear." With this command the landing lines on the lee side of the ship were cast off and the windward lines slackened to allow the ship to swing into the wind.

With the order to "up ship" the great dirigible was released from the mooring mast. As the water ballast was dropped the ship lifted into the air.

Slowly the ship rose, and the cheers of more than 125,000 presons clustered on the hillsides and other vantage points rolled across to the air dock.

Only officials were allowed in Akron airport and squads of police and national guardsmen partoled the area keeping the crowd off the forbidden section.

Giannini Opens Fight On Bank Chain Sale

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 23. (AP)—Firing his second broadside at the new transamerica plan, A. P. Giannini declared late today he would throw his full force into the fight to prevent disposal of the giant California banking chain, Bank of America, at a "ridiculously low" price.

Giannini, who founded the holding company, announced yesterday he had resigned as a member of the transamerica board of directors last June because "I could not approve the plan, policies and procedure of my successor, Chairman (Elisha) Walker."

Thirty ounces of ambergris, valued at $900, was picked up near Jacksonville, Fla., this summer.

Housewives 'Can the Surplus' for Needy

A "Can the Surplus" campaign, the object of which is to preserve the surplus fruits and vegetables of the present bumber crops for distribution among the needy this winter, is spreading among Ohio housewives and seems likely to find favor in other states. Above is a group of women of the Grace Reformed church at Akron canning fruit, donated by farmers, in the church kitchen. At the left is Mrs. Daniel E. Morgan, wife of Cleveland's city manager, at work. The movement is supported by newspapers, city officials, women's clubs, church organizations and other groups.

Rear Admiral Moffett Swells With Pride After Akron's Perfect Flight

By OSCAR LEIDING
Associated Press Aviation Editor

AKRON, Ohio, Sept. 23.—Take it from Rear Admiral Moffett, a bright chapter in the world affairs was written today by the successful maiden flight of the U. S. S. Akron.

Chief of the bureau of naval aeronautics, champion of airship development for more than a decade, and aboard the new air queen on her first sky conquest, he observed keenly the monster's performance.

Thrills? No, this veteran sea dog who has had his share of them and holds the congressional medal of honor for one exploit, wouldn't admit to thrills. But pride? He showed plenty of that in his face.

Greatest Ship

"She's a great ship—the greatest ship of the air," he said as he followed Secretary of Navy Adams and Davis S. Ingalls, assistant secretary of navy for aeronautics, to the ground.

"The first flight could not have been better. There was no vibration. The ship was steady—she acted fine in the air.

"Her initial journey harked one of the most important events in America's aviation history and perhaps one of the most important in the world.

"I am particularly pleased because the people of this country have the courage to carry on in this development despite the losses that have been suffered here and abroad. They should be proud of today's successful flight.

New Improvements

"The ship is the first to be completely designed and built in this country and she incorporates many new and important improvements in structural design. The Shenandoah was our only other domestic built dirigible—but it was based on foreign design.

"By her use, the navy will be in a position to find out definitely what value airships have in naval operations. Her long range will give us a scout with a capacity unrivalled.

"We will find out exactly how practical airships are for long distance cruising and, outside the military field, just really how adaptable to commercial work.

"She will be able to maneuver over long distances, her huge range being approximately 11,000 miles at 50 knots. This range should be of great value in fleet operations and something we have not had available for test before.

Long Trips Planned

"We expect to learn lessons far beyond those taught by the operation and experiences of the Los Angeles and the Graf Zeppelin because of the designed superiority of the Akron.

"Perhaps there will be trips over the Atlantic, perhaps to far-off lands now inaccessible, and perhaps over the Pacific—to Hawaii, Guam, and maybe beyond.

"This country now has an unequalled instrument to sound out the possibilities of the airship. The Akron in her flights will show by what she carries in fuel, supplied and passengers just what an airship can do in commercial and military work. We have rich opportunity.

"Truly, with the completion of the Akron the United States resumes world leadership in lighter-than-air craft."

The company now is purchasing about 3,000 barrels each from southern Oklahoma and North Texas areas.

BRADFORD QUITS AS FIELD UMPIRE

OKLAHOMA CITY, Sept. 23. (UP)—Otto Bradford, oil umpire for the Oklahoma City field since Sept. 25 1929, resigned late today.

Bradford sent letters to the corporation commission and to the city operators' committee, by whom he was first employed.

His letter said:

"Owing to the existence of martial law in the Oklahoma City field and realizing that when the field is opened for production, the umpire's office will have to furnish certain information to military authorities since it is believed the field will be under martial law for the time being;

"And desiring to cooperate with the authorities in every particular, I today am resigning. I am requesting the operators committee immediately take charge of the office and fully and completely investigate records pertaining to the city field."

W. N. Stokes, Slick estate attorney and chairman of the committee, said he would name a committee to take charge of the post.

You can save penalty, interest and cost on your 1930 County and State Taxes if paid by October 15, 1931.

SENATE BLOCKS SALARY CUTS

State Tax Rate Fixed at 74 Cents

deciding vote will come then. Beside 12 committee members who voted against cuts, it is expected four other senators will oppose reductions. Sixteen is a majority of the senate.

"We are going to pass the reduction bills," said Representative Alfred Petsch house leader. "If they are killed it will be in the senate."

In place of a cut in the advalorem tax rate, the house voted counties and districts which have issued road bonds a bill relieving them from interest and sinking fund taxes.

The house passed a bill by Ben Brooks of Red river county under which, if the senate concurs and the governor signs, one cent out of the four-cent-a-gallon gasoline tax will be used to pay off these local road obligations.

Outstanding obligations have been estimated at $80,000,000. Approximately $6,000,000 a year will be needed to meet the interest and sinking funds, Brooks estimated. He estimated that one cent of the gasoline tax will yield $7,000,000. If it does not provide enough to pay off the bond obligations, the bill says pro rata distribution shall be made to the counties.

Legality Questioned

The Brooks bill was passed over numerous objections. Its constitutionality and its right to be considered under the governor's call were questioned, but decided in favor of the bill.

The new state tax rate is divided into a 32-cent levy for general purposes, 7 cents for confederate pensions and 35 cents for schools.

It is the highest rate since 1925. It then reached the maximum possible, which is 77 cents. The new rate takes the place of a 27-cent levy for general purposes, 7 cents for confederate pensions and 35 cents for schools.

The levy is upon each $100 valuation of assessed property. Based on tax rolls reported by counties it will raise approximately $32,000,000.

CHURCH ARGUES MARITAL CANON

Episcopal Deputies Adopt, Then Rescind Provision

DENVER, Sept. 23. (AP)—The House of Deputies of the protestant Episcopal church today adopted then later rescinded a provision which would have required presentation of medical certificates by parties to a prospective marriage.

Lively debate marked a prolonged session at which the deputies considered the report of the committee on canons. The report included the revision of the canon on matrimony, offered as a substitute for the report of the joint commission on marriage and divorce.

Court Approved

Establishment of an ecclesiastical court in each diocese to consider marital cases was approved, proponents overcoming the opposition led by Roswell Page, lay deputy from Virginia. Page and his followers also opposed a provision of the proposed canon which recites that "in every parish, mission and congregation, instruction shall be given both publicly and privately, on the nature of Christian marriage, its responsibilities, and the mutual forbearance which it requires." This opposition was overwhelmingly downed.

Under provisions of the canon approved, the judge or judges of the ecclesiastical courts would be appointed by the bishop, with the advice and consent of the standing committee.

Counsel Close Voted

The deputies also approved a section which requires "if one party to a marriage so grievously offends the other that security or permanence of the home is imperiled it shall be the duty of the offended party before instituting legal proceedings of any nature to lay the matter before a minister of the church; and it shall be the duty of such minister to labor that the parties may be reconciled."

Action of the deputies in first voting approval of an amendment to the canon requiring parties to a proposed marriage to present medical certificates stating each free from mental and physical impediments to marriage, came as a surprise. The vote was 240 for the amendment and 215 against. Those favoring the amendment offered to reconsider when it was learned the vote was so close. Only a few dissenting voices were heard on the second vote which defeated the certificate amendment.

Eight of nine impediments to marriage listed in the proposed canon were adopted without debate. On one which set forth that "impotence of either party, undisclosed to the other," argument was spirited and at times the Rev. Z. B. Phillips, Washington, D. C., had difficulty in preserving order. The Rev. Robert Johnson, Washington, D. C., proposed elimination of the words "undisclosed to the other." The question was defended by Prof. Joseph Beale, Cambridge, Mass., and Rev. Mr. Johnston's amendment finally was defeated.

Shamrock to Play Canadian Tomorrow

Special to The Record News.

SHAMROCK, Texas, Sept. 23.—After a week of the hardest grilling the Irishmen have known this year, a fast, interesting game is expected when the Canadian gridsters invade the Irish town Friday.

Canadian fought the strong Follette eleven to a scoreless tie at Canadian recently and are reported to have a husky string of players. An Amarillo star is one of the feature players of the team and dealt the Irishmen much misery when his team met the Shamrock squad last year.

Shamrock high gridsters are being whipped into excellent condition and should be worthy opponents for the Canadians in the clash Friday. The game will be played on the grass-covered gridiron here, one of the best in the Panhandle.

At both games played so far record crowds have been in attendance and much favorable spirit has been displayed while the Irish pep squad is one of the best in recent years.

TEXAS GANG'S ACTIVITY TOLD

'Keggy' Jones' Brother Gives Story as Revenge

HOUSTON, Sept. 23. (AP)—Details of gang operations, including a series of robberies in various parts of Texas, were revealed in the confession of Jack Jones, bother of the slain gang chieftain, Chester A. (Keggy) Jones. The confession was made public by officials today.

Jones expressed eagerness to tell everything because he said members of the gang had killed his brother. "Keggy" Jones and his wife were murdered in an apartment here a few weeks ago. Reconstructing the story, officials have expressed belief the slaying of Jones was in retaliation for the John Cherris "ride" murder. Cherris was a member of the Jones gang.

In his confession Jones described a series of robberies committed by the gang. He told how they robbed the Humphrey wholesale grocery and feed store at Paris and escaped with $2,000 loot after a running gun fight with officers.

A. M. (Bundy) Jenkins was released today on $2,500 bond. Jenkins and Walter Shanks are charged with murder of Mr. and Mrs. Jones. Shanks waived examining trial today. Officials questioned J. H. Johnson today on activities of the Jones gang. Johnson was involved by Jones in his confession as a member of the gang.

New York Traders Regain Confidence

marked the course of the bear market.

LONDON ISSUES SHOW BUOYANCY

LONDON, Sept. 23. (AP)—Swarms of stock brokers, laughing and cheering like schoolboys, invaded the stock exchange today for the resumption of trading after the two-day compulsory close-down—and their buoyancy was reflected in the prices of many securities.

Industrials showed considerable strength, due mainly to covering by bears and adjustments to the new off-gold-standard sterling quotations. French bonds were good and German bonds showed a sharp advance. Gilt-edged issues, which were marked down at the opening, improved toward the close.

The new spirit was apparent at opening of the session as smiling brokers jammed the exchange. There were bears present but, as one trader remarked, they seemed mostly to be "bears in sheep's clothing."

The house of commons spent the evening in long debate on the second reading of the finance bill which makes effective the emergency budget of Philip Snowden, chancellor of the exchequer.

QUINN'S JURY NEARLY FILLED

Testimony Expected to Open Today

NEWKIRK, Okla., Sept. 23. (UP)—Complete selection of a jury to hear the trial of Earl Quinn, charged with the brutal murders of two Oklahoma school teachers last Christmas time, was virtually assured for tomorrow when court adjourned late today.

The state had five challenges left; the defense six.

Testimony probably will begin late tomorrow or Friday morning.

Quinn, admitted bootlegger and former Missouri convict, will be fighting to save himself from death in the electric chair. The state, represented by County Attorney Bruce Potter, will ask the jury to assess Quinn the death penalty if he is found guilty of murdering Jessie and Zexia Griffith as they drove along a lonely county highway near Tonkawa last Dec. 28, after spending their Christmas vacation with their parents.

Potter's case is circumstantial. Quinn, state witnesses will testify, was seen driving along the highway shortly before the hour the girls are believed to have been killed. He was armed and intoxicated, testimony will show, Potter said.

Quinn's case, as presented by James Mathers, chief defense attorney, will be divided into two parts. Mathers will attempt to prove an alibi for his client, presenting witnesses to show Quinn was in Wichita, Kan., shortly after the time set by officials for the double murder. The other half of the case, Mathers said, will be devoted to proving to the jurors that some one else, not Quinn, committed the crime.

Court Calls Special Petit Jury Panel

Plans for dispatching a lengthy docket of civil cases in the 78th district court beginning next Monday was seen Wednesday in the summoning of a special petit jury panel of 50 men by Judge W. W. Cook for service next week.

In the 89th district court, before Judge P. A. Martin, John Alsup, former Fort Worth police officer will go on trial on a charge of murder. The charge grew out of his alleged killing of two negroes following an attempted robbery of a Fort Worth bank.

Sure, It's Lindbergh—But Which One?

You've seen plenty of photographs of Col. Charles A. Lindbergh. All right—but which of the pictures above are of him, and which are the likeness of Armand Chantraine, the young Parisian bank clerk who strikingly resembles him? . . . Give up? Well, the photos upper right and lower left are of Lindy. The other three are of his double.

By MINOTT SAUNDERS

PARIS, Sept. 23.—The more glory and success that comes to Col. Charles A. Lindbergh, the better it pleases Armand Chantraine, 24-year-old Belgian who has lived in France since childhood.

Chantraine's only claim to fame so far is that he looks like Lindbergh. He has blue eyes, blond hair, strong regular teeth and much the same shaped lips. His chin is similar. His nose, which turns up, is somewhat different. He parts his hair on the right side, while Lindy parts his on the left. But their facial expressions are remarkably similar. Chantraine has Lindy's fresh complexion and he, too, blushes easily. He is over six feet in height and has the slim, boyish build of the American flyer, with long legs.

Chantraine looks and moves more like Lindbergh of four years ago when he arrived in Paris on his famous flight, than the Lindbergh of today, who is, of course, more mature in appearance. But it is the Lindbergh of four years ago that Paris knows and for that reason Chantraine's appearance often makes people stop and stare.

Chantraine is a clerk in the Morgan bank here and his fellow workers first noticed the resemblance the day after Lindbergh landed at Le Bourget field and the newspapers were full of photographs of him. They started to call him "Lindy" and the name has stuck. If you call up the bank and ask for "Monsieur Lindbergh," any operator will know immediately who is wanted.

But the "Lindy" of the Place Vendome is not content with his inconspicuous business role. He is studying seriously for the stage and the screen. Some day he hopes an opportunity will come that will take him to America.

Chantraine has never flown in an airplane.

JIM REED BIDS FOR PRESIDENT

Roosevelt Club Abandoned In Missouri

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Sept. 23. (UP)—Former United States Senator James A. Reed would "consider it a compliment" to have the Missouri delegation support him as a candidate for the Democratic presidential nomination, he said tonight.

That statement of Reed was taken by Missouri politicians as the militant senator's announcement that he again was a candidate for the nomination. Alfred E. Smith won the nomination from Reed at the last Democratic convention at Houston, Texas.

"I would consider it a great compliment to have the Missouri delegation support me," Reed said. "That statement is sufficient for the present."

Reed's statement came after his friend, Ed White, vice president of the Missouri Pacific railroad, was organizing a "Franklin D. Roosevelt-for-president" club in St. Louis. White started the organization, he said, because he felt certain Reed would not be a candidate again this year.

Reports from St. Louis said the Roosevelt group would be abandoned and a club of Reed supporters started.

Reed announced his retirement from active politics in 1928, following the Democratic convention. He has, however, made addresses from time to time, assailing the Republican party and its administrative policies.

Reed made his last speech Labor day at Columbus, Ohio.

Texas Drouth Borrowers to Be Given Extensions Where Merited

STAMFORD, Texas, Sept. 23. (AP)—Texas farmers who received crop production loans from the federal government will not be compelled to make repayment upon maturity dates, when such repayment will work undue hardship, but will be granted extensions "in whole or part," it was announced today from the headquarters office of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce.

A statement of the attitude of the government as to the 15,030 loans made in 67 Texas counties, aggregating $2,418,103.90, was given in a telegram from Arthur M. Hyde, secretary of agriculture, to Amon G. Carter, and released by the West Texas chamber today. Carter is chairman of the regional body's production loan committee.

After a lengthy exchange of telegrams and letters between Carter and Hyde, in which the former asked the government to adopt a policy toward repayment of loans "enabling our farmers to make another crop," Hyde telegraphed.

"Department makes allowance for picking and ginning expenses and also allows borrowers to store crop and deposit warehouse receipts as collateral, borrower determining when crop is to be sold.

"All our field representatives have instructions to consider each loan on its individual merits, granting extension of time in part or all where repayment would work undue hardship. Our desire is to occasion minimum amount of disturbance."

D. A. Bandeen, manager of the West Texas chamber, said that "under this policy the farmers can go ahead and deposit one-half of their cotton with the government or such amount as they can afford to store, and extend their loan for the balance, selling the remainder to enable them to get by and be prepared to make another crop."

Fourteen agents of the U. S. seed loan office have been placed in Texas areas in which loans were made. They are working under Carl C. Ellis, state supervisor, who has opened offices in Abilene.

GUN TOO TAME

Giant Sheriff Rules His County Without Use of Gat

SAN ANGELO, Texas, Sept. 23. (AP)—West Texas has another gunless sheriff. He is "Sandy" Willis of Crockett county, who weighs 245 pounds and stands six feet, seven inches.

Tales of his physical prowess are many. Once a man at a dance is said to have reached for him with a knife and Willis held him off with one hand, slapping him "to sleep" with the other.

Another concerns the offer of a bully who asked him to pull off his gun. "I don't wear a gun," the sheriff is reported to have said and convinced the challenger that his apparent strength is real.

Dinner Program Marks Fall Opening Of Business Group

Ray H. Knoohuizen of Plainview was the speaker at the dinner program given by members of the Business and Professional Women's club at the Wichita club Tuesday evening marking the opening of their season. His talk emphasized the power of women in the business world at the present time.

Rev. J. E. Montgomery, pastor of the Highland Heights Christian church, gave the invocation. Miss Glenna Miller, president of the club, gave the welcoming address and introduced the program chairman, Miss Erma Schnelle, who in turn introduced the number on the program.

Miss Harriett Bradley sang "Down in a Forest," and "Mighty Lak a Rose," with Mrs. R. E. Shepherd accompanying and Mrs. Shepherd also accompanied Miss Bradley and Baldwin Montgomery in their duet "Home to Our Mountains," from Verdi's "Il Trovatore." This duet, which was first given by the two in costume last spring at the Mother's day program of the Junior forum, has been repeated a number of times with great success. Miss Bradley's and Mr. Montgomery's voices blend beautifully in the haunting music.

A surprise for many members of the club and guests was the presence of Miss Ida Catherine Walker, former general secretary of the Y. W. C. A., who was stopping in Wichita Falls en route to her new post in Miami, Fla. Miss Walker made a short talk.

Misses Norvell, McCarty and Anderson furnished music through the evening.

Autumn Motif

Brilliant flowers in rich autumn colorings an drichly colored leaves on which the evening's program was printed, marked the seasonal decorations. No prettier annual occasion has been featured by the Business and Professional Women who have done outstanding work in the city in the past years.

A delicious menu was served, covers being laid for Misses Glenna Miller, Mayme Kuhfuss, Catherine Walker, Lillian Pardew, Ethel Glasgow, Anna Siepelmeyer, Elizabeth Hall, Erma Schnelle, Maude Thomas, Helen E. Nixon, Susie Downing, Frances Brooks, Lena Derzpah, Zula McKay, Cleo Bowers, Minnie Bedford, Lucille Campbell, Alta Saye, Claudia Hardy, Wallace, Howell, Virginia Tabb, Covan, Marguerite Peery, Ruth Downing, Fern Kolb, Anne Edwards, Helen Talmadge, Alice Ammons, Juanita Safford, Harriet Bradley, Mildred Anderson, Claudine McCarty, Thelma Nell Norvell, Katie Reeves, Avalon Rines, Johnnie Groves, Mildred Sturdevant, Juanita Kinsey, Marion McGinnis, Arnie Smith and Mesdames Joella Terrill Butler, T. PEEPS AT PEOPLE

By MRS L. N. CASON

With autumn (did you know autumn is here? Can you feel the tang of frost in the air?), the time has come to make grape jelly; to get those last clear glasses on your pantry shelves that will guard against the lean days when winter comes.

—At any rate, we bought a basket of grapes and hied our way home to our small kitchenet with a sinister doubt darkening our hopes as we remembered the strength of two full grown men necessary to crowd our Christmas turkey into our small oven. Not that we make jelly in the oven, but that the top of the gas range compares in extent with the inside.

We made jelly and put away a number of clear glasses, but autumn has slipped upon us with a crust of jelly on that range and a semi-house cleaning stares us in the face. Small vessels are not adequate when one wishes to get through with the process of jelly making all at one time. There we learned the lesson that has oft been pressed upon us; jelly is better when it is made in small quantities.

We dreamed last night of the wide kitchen in our girlhood home. It had windows to the south and west and a wide door to the east; there was a range that burned wood and heated quickly on frosty days and a gas range for use in warm weather.

In spite of white wood ashes, and of a wood box that seemed constantly empty, that range still holds a pleasant place in our memory. There were large iron pots for pot roasts and cooking green vegetables; heavy iron skillets that were better for frying or broiling than any shining aluminum ware and a griddle unsurpassed for pan cakes, "batter cakes" we called them, and for steaks. In the winter time, the cook cut those steaks from a quarter of beef that hung frozen in a pantry on the back porch—the very thought makes my mouth water.

Doubtless people ate too heavily in those days; the problems of proteins and calories had never risen and many a grave was "dug with the teeth," as they tell us now. Yet, I remember no illness in our own family and without being a fanatic on the subject of food, I remember things I do not even hear of now.

We had to help "Mammy Lily" out in the autumn; my father was fond of pumpkin fried as well as in pies and he brought home the great golden balls and my sister and I stood and stirred for hours. How we detested it! Then it took days to make hogs-head cheese and liverwurst and I have stood at the old sink in the corner and rubbed for hours to get skin from corn that had, I think, been soaked in lime to make the hominy we had in winter. At least lime and ashes had something to do with it.

There were quince preserves always on our shelves; it has been years since I saw a quince. And we had damson jelly and damson jam and preserves—damsons, the queen of the plums.

When there was a wide board and always a house full of company and sugar cane in 50-pound buckets, it was somehow different. Would women have time for such things in 1931?

Our Children

By ANGELO PATRI

Seeing Dimly

A great artist, Sir Joshua Reynolds, once said, "The eye sees no more than it knows." This is essentially true for little children. They cannot see what they do not know through the senses, by experience of smell and touch and taste and temperature and hearing. The more varied the experiences associated with an object, or an idea, the more the child can see in it.

"What ocean lies west of America, Jack?"

Jack hesitated, looked blank, swung his gaze across the map in bewildered agitation. The teacher impatiently tapped the map. "Look Jack, look. Can't you? You're looking right at it?"

Jack looked wildly up and down the room and his classmates laughed.

"Sit down," thundered the teacher. Jack sat down crushed in spirit.

"The Pacific ocean is west of America," said Chauncey Bailey blothely.

"Of course," said the teacher scornfully, her eye fixed upon the shrinking Jack. "Now come up here Jack and lay your hand on the Pacific ocean."

Slowly Jack eased himself out of his seat. Slowly he neared the big wall map. "For pity sake, Jack, wake up. You're keeping the whole class waiting until you discover the Pacific ocean. Quick now. Point it out and go to your seat."

But Jack didn't point it out. In fact he didn't know where it was nor what the map meant, not having been brought up with maps as many of the children in the class had been. Jack had never seen a map although one had hung in the room for a long time. You see a map is a queer picture with spots of color and queer marks on it until you have been trained to see it as a country with people and animals and shops and roads and life in every inch of it.

If you want to remember how it feels to take hold of something new, work with it before an audience. Try learning to dance a new rhythm or a new step, try learning to drive a car, manage an airplane, dig for clams, or speak a foreign language. There will be so much that you didn't see, didn't hear, didn't know, for ever so long. Have a little consideration then, for children struggling with a strange world for the first time. Be patient while they learn to see, to hear, to talk and to behave in this strange place.

When you feel tempted to grit your teeth and inquire, "Can't you see?" Just choke a little and say to yourself, "No he cannot. I must be eyes for him, just now, so that his seeing will be surer and clearer."

Point out the characteristic features of the new object, or the new situation. Show the child what there is to be seen. Let him handle and taste and weigh and see with all his senses so he has an idea with which to see as well as a material eye. The material eye is only the beginning of vision.

Bulbs May Be Chosen Now For Beauty In Spring

By BERTHA M'KEE DOBIE

"So from the mould
Scarlet and gold
Many a bulb will rise."
—EMIL DICKINSON.

Doubtless because their blossoms come with the awakening year, when human as well as natural life is freshest, the planting of bulbs in the fall stirs expectation more keenly than any other garden activity. We hold in our hands brown-coated lumps, but in our imagination chalice and trumpeted daffodils, stiff tulips with colors various as those in Joseph's coat, nodding snowdrops, and hyacinths fresh like dawn or young people's hope. It is a good time of year, this when we set bulbs deep in the ground, and a better when they rise scarlet and gold.

September is not too early to plant daffodils, but we must usually wait until October, since few local dealers receive their supply of daffodil or other bulbs earlier, and eastern bulb houses wait until Oct. 1 to make shipments. Tulip-planting belongs to November. But September is the time for deciding—if we have not already decided—what bulbs we shall plant and what varieties, for placing orders, and for getting ground in readiness. Many gardens are spoiled by a too tardy taking-off. In buying bulbs of local dealers, we should ask for specific varieties or at least inquire the names of varieties that are offered us. The stage in Texas gardening is past when it sufficed to ask for "some daffodil bulbs" or "some red tulips." Part of the pleasure of gardening is lost when we can not tell a friend the exact name of an admired flower, and much of the interest when we can not compare the points of one variety with those of another. The advantage of buying bulbs from local dealers is that varieties offered have been tested for the section.

Jonquils and Daffodils

When a narcissus is a daffodil and when a jonquil seems to be about as confused a question as "Who Killed Cock Robin?" It is safe to call them all narcissus, which is a generic name. The daffodil of which Shakespeare wrote that it "takes the winds of March with beauty" and of which Wadsworth saw "ten thousand at a glance" blooming wild on the margin of a lake, has a long trumpet, and all hybridized varieties having a long trumpet, as well as the double varieties developed from them, are properly called daffodils. The old classification of intermediate narcissi has been redivided by the Royal Horticultural society, upon the dual bases of color and length of parts, in Incomparabilis, Barrii, and Leedsii. Jonquils are yellow, very fragrant narcissi, blooming in clusters of from two to six flowers. Many dealers cast all distinction to the discard and catalogue all forms indiscriminately as "narcissus or daffodils." The paper-white and yellow Polyanthus, the Poeticus, and the Poetaz forms should be called narcissi and never daffodils.

The giant trumpet daffodils always attract attention. They range in color from pure white through combinations of white and yellow to deep yellow, or gold. Good white varieties are Alice Knights, Peter Barr, and Beersheba; good white and yellow bicolors are Empress, Spring Glory, Weardale Perfection, and Duke of Bedford; among the many fine yellows, some in one tone and other in two, are the old Emperor, Glory of Leyden, Van Waveren's Giant, Cleopatra, and King Alfred, often regarded as the finest of all. The best of the doubles for Texas is Primrose Phoenix. Van Sion almost invariably flowers on ugly greenish-yellow after the first year.

The medium and short trumpeted, or chalices, narcissi are not so showy as the great-trumpeted varieties, but the introduction of orange and scarlet into the colorings of the cups makes them very beautiful. Some good varieties of the division known as Incomparabilis are Will Scarlet, Bernardino and Lucifer.

Neither the trumpet daffodils nor the Incomparabilis are useful in Texas for naturalizing. They will multiply in a bed or border and continue to produce fine flowers from year to year, but the soil must be fertilized and cultivated. The Poetaz varieties, however, which are a cross between the Poeticus and the Polyanthus, and the jonquils are excellent for naturalizing along the edge of a woodland or among deciduous trees that do not leaf until after the narcissi have bloomed.

Narcissus bulbs should be planted as soon as possible in the fall. The soil should be deeply and loosely spaded. Fine flowers can come only from rich soil. Manure, if it is used, must not touch the bulbs lest it cause them to rot. Prepared bone is a safer fertilized. After the first year a top dressing of ashes and completely rotted bone meal should be applied in the spring. Some growers fertilize after the bloom has shed, since the food made by the leaves before their dying down is stored in the bulb for the next season's flower. If leaves are cut to put with blossoms in a vase, the plant will likely not bloom the next year, and many people dislike to cut the blossoms. If the flowers are left to wither on the stem, the seed capsules should be cut immediately in order that no strength be spent upon developing seed, and the stem left. Daffodils welcome a partially shaded situation and look best in rather closely plant clumps or drifts.

Texas Tulips

Tulips are divided into several classes, chief among them being the Darwin, closely cupped; the cottage, more loosely cupped; the lily-flowered, with still more flaring and pointed petals; the breeder, much

Mrs. O. L. Powers Honored On Birthday By B. Y. P. U.

Mrs. O. L. Powers was surprise honoree at a banquet and program at the First Baptist church Tuesday evening given on the occasion of her birthday. The host group honoring her included members of the Intermediate B. Y. P. U. of the church.

Seated with Mrs. Powers as honor guests were Dr. Powers, Mesdames Homer McGregor and J. C. Mathis, Messrs. J. W. Marshall and Carl Taylor.

Harold Davis gave the invocation and J. W. Collins acted as toastmaster, introducing each speaker with appropriate remarks. Mathis and on the violin by Miss Loraine Mathis. Miss Mathis also played a lovely violin number and Mary Sue Allen gave two delightful readings.

A delicious three course menu was served to approximately 40 members and guests.

No More Fear of Coffee Nerves

Doctors Now Tell Us

2,571 Physicians Approve This Rare Central American Coffee That Nature Grows Without Rank, Noxious Oils*

THERE'S nothing to fear in coffee—if you drink the right kind. In fact doctors now say it's not only good—but good for you.

2,571 physicians* who recently tested Folger's rare Central American coffee tell us that in their opinion it is not only free from all harmful after-effect, but actually beneficial.

From Central America

Folger's coffee is not just another "brand," it is an entirely different kind of coffee. It is grown in tiny mountain districts along the west coast of Central America. A region where nature gives coffee a far richer, smoother flavor—and leaves out the rough offensive oils that abound in cheap and doubtful coffees.

It is nature's gift that her finest flavored, most invigorating coffee can be enjoyed with all of its "kick" and without a "kick-back."

Folger brings you this unique Central American coffee packed in key-opening vacuum tins that keep it always as fresh as it was 30 minutes after it left the roaster.

Why not try it for a week. Note its finer flavor. Note its wonderful invigoration. Note its after-effects. Then you'll see why this coffee which is the choice of coffee experts is also endorsed by physicians.

Signed statements to this effect, from 2,571 physicians who have actually tested Folger's Coffee, are on file in our offices.*

Read this before you take a substitute for Kotex

STOP and think before accepting a so-called substitute for Kotex! Who made it? Where? Under what conditions? How do you know it's fit for this intimate hygienic purpose?

Surface resemblance to Kotex is not enough. Demand the purity of Kotex. Accept nothing less. Your health is involved. You can't afford to risk health for the few pennies you may save by accepting a questionable substitute of whose makers you know nothing.

Kotex is a hospital product. Hospitals used more than 10 million pads last year. Kotex is scientifically made of Cellucotton (not cotton) absorbent wadding.

In addition, Kotex offers every comfort. It is skilfully shaped. Treated to deodorize. Amazingly soft—and the softness lasts.

UNIONS DENIED BRIDGE ORDER

Treasury Refuses to Close Juarez Gates

WASHINGTON, Sept. 23. (AP)—Efforts of organized labor to have the government ban Mexican laborers from Southwestern Texas by closing the international bridge between El Paso and Juarez for 16 out of 24 hours failed today with treasury department disapproval.

Organizations affiliated with the American Federation of Labor petitioned the treasury to close the bridge across the Rio Grande except from 10 a. m. until 6 p. m.

Such action would have prevented about 1,800 Mexican laborers from crossing to work in El Paso and on small farms in the valley around that town.

The petition was denied on the ground that eight hours' opening of the bridge was inadequate to care for the traffic and business between Juarez and El Paso. Treasury officials took the view also that little additional work could have been provided for Americans by such a move.

The treasury is still considering petitions of El Paso business men urging the international bridge be closed at night. It is now open until midnight and the El Paso business organizations urged it be closed earlier on the ground that gambling in Juarez attracted money that should be spent with the American merchant.

Rain Badly Needed In Cattle Country

SAN ANGELO, Texas, Sept. 23. (AP)—Rains are needed over the cattle country of West Texas today to make grass for winter, and some shifting of cattle to grass is under way from the Big Bend country to South Texas.

Trading in cattle is fairly active with calves being bought in all parts of the country for delivery to northern feeders. Many, however, will be fed in Texas in line with the new feeder-breeder movement.

Kincaid Brothers of Wichita Falls are reported to have paid six cents a pound for heifer calves and seven cents for steer calves from the McIntyre ranch near Alpine. H. B. Oliphant of Wichita, Kan., has bought the Pryor and Wilson calves at Fort Stockton for fall delivery. W. H. Waggoner of El Paso has bought 781 head of cows and calves from Charles Cannon of Sheffield and John F. Lane of Rankin. They were loaded for Upson, N. M.

Other cattle trades have been made in the territory in the last few weeks. West Texas ranchmen, with cattle on Oklahoma and Kansas grass, are moving them to market now.

Midget Star Is Boss of Elephant Herd

A girl must needs be versatile about a big circus, must be talented in a dozen different spheres, and it may be said of pretty Irene Ledgett, to be seen here with the Sells Floto circus on Tuesday, Sept. 29, that no feminine member of that organization displays her diverse entertaining gifts over a wider or more varied field than does she.

Miss Ledgett, a miss towering not much over five feet and with a wealth of dark hair framing a piquant little face, with every outward indication that she would scream and run at the first sign of a terrible mouse, enters the Sello Floto arena with a herd of mammoth elephants and sets them through their paces as easily as she would a bevy of fluffy kittens at home. At other intervals in the Sells Floto program Miss Ledgett rides jumping and dancing horses. After passing through this routine twice daily, to the delight of Sells Floto circus fans, Miss Ledgett has all the rest of her time to herself. Versatility is Irene Ledgett's other name.

Sells Floto is the only big circus coming to Wichita Falls this year. The show comes here from Dallas, via. the M.-K.-T. railroad and goes to Fort Worth.

Marriage Insurance Racket Found To Extend Through Four States

DALLAS, Sept. 23. (AP)—Disclosures concerning the marriage insurance racket uncovered here by postal inspectors were extended today to include the state of Arkansas, Oklahoma and New Mexico, when charges were filed against 36 persons for their alleged activities in connection with the scheme.

United States Commissioner Lee R. Smith, with whom the charges were filed, said that he was not at liberty to make them public yet, for the reason all of the persons charged were not in custody.

Promoters of the racket were believed to have swindled the public out of more than $750,000 in Dallas, Houston, San Antonio, Oklahoma City, Little Rock and other cities in the territory.

Indictments of the 36 persons charged will be asked of the federal grand jury, now in session here.

The indictments were to be sought under the federal laws against conducting a lottery through the United States mails, and also for using the mails to defraud.

Numerous instances of persons being swindled by the marriage insurance game have been developed in this section within the past year. Prosecutions have been conducted by state and federal authorities in a number of them.

The principle of the game is for the victim to take out insurance for himself or some other person, payment depending on fulfillment of an anticipated matrimonial contract.

Wilbarger Clubs Send Exhibits to Fair

VERNON, Texas, Sept. 23. (AP)—Forty-four Wilbarger county home demonstration club members entered exhibits in a competitive group here for selection of a county exhibit to be sent to the Tri-State fair at Amarillo. The entries included canned food, children's clothing, rugs and household linen.

TRACTOR KILLS BOY

LAREDO, Sept. 23. (AP)—Alberto Pena, 12, was killed at Nuevo Laredo yesterday when run over by a street tractor operated by Armanro Trevino, 29. Mexican police charged Trevino with responsibility for the boy's death. Trevino claimed the tractor's brakes failed to function. Two other boys narrowly escaped being injured by the machine.

RIVER YIELDS BODY OF MAN

Investigation Under Way at Houston

HOUSTON, Sept. 23. (AP)—An investigation is being made of the death of H. W. Toliver, 41, whose body, with a bullet hole through the temples, was taken from the San Jacinto river a few hundred yards below the old Spanish trail bridge early today.

Justice Campbell Overstreet, conducting the investigation, believed Toliver's death occurred Monday, the day he disappeared from his home.

Capt. W. W. Carlisle, skipper on a dredge near the San Jacinto river bridge, found a car, later identified as Toliver's, near the place where the body was found later.

Toliver was a past master of Reagain lodge No. 1037, A. F. & A. M. He was employed as a salesman for a Houston hardware firm.

A poll tax receipt bearing Toliver's name was found in the pocket of the dead man's clothes. His pockets also contained $4.17 and a worn Mexican penny, a fountain pen and a few receipts for gas and water bills.

Extortion Suspect Under Heavy Bond

SAN ANTONIO, Sept. 23. (AP)—William Nile Wright, held in connection with the alleged extortion of $75,000 from R. W. Morrison, local capitalist, was placed under bonds totaling $42,500 after a habeas corpus hearing today.

Wright was the object of a 11 months chase which carried Bexar county officers from one end of the county to the other before he surrendered to Sheriff Hausser in July.

Wright, who has been indicted in connection with several robberies, is also indicted for the fraudulent acquisition of property from R. W. Morrison on May 17, 1930, and attempted fraudulent acquisition of property from Isaac Bledsoe on July 24, 1930.

J. B. Conner, member of a band of which Wright was the alleged leader, has been sentenced to 15 years in the penitentiary and is serving his sentence. T. B. Edmundson, also alleged to have been a member of the gang, testified against Connor and is at liberty under bond.

Canaries Inhabit Bosque Valley

WACO, Texas, Sept. 23. (AP)—Wild canaries, the majority of the Mexican species but other of several different varieties, have multiplied to such a degree that they are now quite numerous along the Bosque river valley above Waco, according to T. Gooch, federal wild fowl census taker, who is making a check for the federal wild fowl and bird authorities at Washington, D. C.

There has been a decided increase in the number of wild canaries in this section during the last decade, according to reports received by Gooch.

Many of the Mexican canaries and other types of canary birds have made this area their home, and the birds have mingled until there are many varieties, among them some warblers of unusual beauty. Amateur naturalists have obtained numerous specimens which have been mounted.

The little songsters are rather prolific and are becoming more widely diffused all the time, according to Gooch.

She: But, dearest, you mustn't feel that way.

Pecan Culture in Texas Is Lagging

DALLAS, Sept. 30. (AP)—J. F. Rosborough, extension horticulturist of Texas A. & M. college, in an address here today at the annual convention of the National Pecan association, said Texas had lagged behind other states in the quantity of improved pecans, but is making rapid strides in that field.

He told of the 8,000 miles of river front in Texas which aided in giving the state its claim to first place in pecan production.

"Most of these are native forest trees," he said. "They put Texas first in ordinary seedling pecan poundage, but the first man to 'top work' a native pecan tree in Texas pioneered in that field less than 50 years ago. In some sections there is extensive top working today, but budding and grafting of trees in the state are in their infancy."

Of the three principal plant foods Germany leads the world in production of nitrogen and potash; the United States uses more phosphates than any other country, and France leads in their production.

Texas Facts

By BILL EDWARDS

Texas will produce this year almost one-half of the entire pecan crop of the United States, according to recent estimates—32,000,000 out of a national total of 76,000,000 pounds. Predicted production for 1931 is thrice as large as the 9,500,000 pounds produced in 1930.

HELPING BUILD TEXAS

Miscellaneous things. . . . In wages to cotton pickers alone, Texas will pay out this year $18,000,000, according to estimate of the Fort Worth office of the federal labor bureau, figuring on a 5,000,000-bale crop. Pay of other workers, directly or indirectly coming from the cotton crop, is not included, but it will provide work for gin men, compress and oil mill men directly and railroad and storage labor indirectly. The Fort Worth bureau alone has application for 16,000 pickers for Texas fields. . . . Mexia celebrates the opening of its $100,000 postoffice. Site ($25,000) has been selected for the $170,000 Harlingen postoffice, work on it is soon to begin. . . . Low bid of $676,000 on the big engineering shops at Duncan field, San Antonio, was received. Sub-contracts on the $400,000 federal prison near El Paso and on the $525,000 remodeling and enlarging of the Houston postoffice have been let. . . . Work on a $60,000 bank building at Liberty starts. . . . New air line, Laredo to Mexico City, starts service soon. Scheduled to start some weeks ago, difficulty was met with in securing planes of a type that would climb from the low altitude along the Rio Grande to the 8,000 feet required for the Mexican capital. . . . Large and rich deposit of barium sulphate is reported from Gillespie county, close enough to the new Gulf & West Texas railroad survey for development. The chemical is largely used in paint, rubber goods manufacture, x-ray and fluorescope work, is quoted now at $48 a ton and recently brought $100.

Officers Near Solution Of Texas Bank Robbery

GREENVILLE, Texas, Sept. 23. (AP)—Solution of the Campbell bank robbery, which occurred in April, 1927, was anticipated here today. Officers arrested one of the alleged robbers and lodged him in the Hopkins county jail while continuing their search for another suspect.

Three men were involved in the Campbell robbery, one of whom is serving a prison sentence in Oklahoma. Complaints were filed today against the three men by District Attorney Henry Pharr.

Mexican Air Mail Halted For Lack of Finances

MEXICO CITY, Sept. 23. (AP)—Dispatches from Tampico and Vera Cruz today said the postal authorities there had announced suspension of air mail service throughout the country due to lack of an appropriation for continuing the service. The postal authorities here have not confirmed the suspension.

A Move Toward a Better Balance

ANNOUNCEMENT of a wage cut affecting a great body of workers would under normal conditions be considered a backward step for it has come to be accepted in this country that high wages benefit both worker and employers. But the announcement that seven big units in the steel industry will put into effect a wage reduction of 10 per cent will be considered even by many workers as a constructive measure toward ending the depression that has held all industry and business in its grip.

If the wages were being lowered to increase the profits of the employing corporations the reductions would be a backward step. But it can be assumed that these reduction are being made to lower the prices of steel products and bring not only the wages paid steel workers but the prices charged for steel products more into line with lowered prices that are now in effect in nearly all commodities and products.

The return of business activity is being delayed by adjustments in the prices of products. If all commodities and products could be immediately brought to an equable basis there is little doubt but that business would be quickened, and employment increased to the benefit of everybody. But as long as the wages of some classes of workers remain high while others are low and there is a corresponding disparity in the prices of the product and services which these wages represent so long will business activity be retarded.

Wholesale prices have now dropped to the level prevailing in 1913. Statisticians tell us that counting the wholesale dollar as worth 100 cents in 1926, it now has a purchasing power of $1.43. The increase in the price of the retail dollar is not quite so great, but it is estimated that it costs 30 per cent less for the American family to live in 1931 than it did at the peak of post war prices. Food and clothing have receded more than any other items in the family budget.

Profits have practically disappeared in the steel industry, the dividend rate has been cut, officials have been called upon to readjust their salaries and bonuses. Now the wages of workers are to be cut. Out of it all we can expect lower prices of farm machinery, oil well equipment and other products in which steel is such a large factor. And with lower prices ought to come a larger use of these products.

The quicker prices and wages can be brought to an equable balance the sooner can we expect the end of the depression.

Braced for a Heavy Pull

ULTIMATE results of immeasurable value to Wichita county are made more sure of realization by the fact that it required four days to secure seven men for the irrigated valley improvement project committee authorized by a meeting of about 250 citizens here last Thursday afternoon.

The chairman of that meeting was authorized to name seven citizens of the county who will comprise a planning committee. From this group will be asked soon definite recommendations as to how adequate drainage, marketing, and colonization of the irrigated district may be obtained.

The dimension of the assignment, and the incalculable work which must be given to it, are indicated by the hesitation with which leaders in this community accepted appointment on that committee. Had the duties been purely nominal, the committee could have been named within five minutes. But it was apparent to those who attended Thursday's review of the situation that many years will be required to attain the desired objectives. Many months may be required even to formulate a definite program for any or all of the three major avenues of improvement. For those reasons, men whose business activities are far more enslaving now than in former years debated seriously their eligibility for this new and important committee.

That four days elapsed before the names of seven committmen could be announced is proof in itself of the serious determination which they now will bring into the project. They realize the enormity of their task. Their acceptance indicates their confidence that all of Wichita county will lend every possible assistance. Their acceptance also should win for them just that kind of cooperation.

Air Transportation Progress

THE steady increase in commercial aviation's safety factor is strikingly illustrated in the recent report from Assistant Secretary of Commerce Clarence M. Young.

During the first six months of this year commercial transport planes flew a little better than 20,000,000 miles, and nine passengers lost their lives. In the first six months of last year the planes flew less than 17,000,000 miles and killed 22 passengers.

The only thing that stands in the way of a tremendous boom in the air transport business is the fact that the average man still has a faint, lingering fear of trusting himself to an airplane. Let commercial aviation hang up just a few more records like this one and the last traces of that wear will vanish.

THE GIRL WHO WON

By May Christie

Nollie Day, pretty and ambitious, longs to escape the unhappy life she leads with her aunt and uncle in the small town of Yapahunk. She wins a $50 newspaper prize and goes to New York. After three days of fruitless search for a position, Nollie's funds become depleted. Exhausted she faints on the street and later finds herself in a tawdry house, where a woman called "Daffy," tells Nollie she could make "easy" money.

One of Daffy's "friends" makes advances to Nollie. She strikes him and flees from the house in fear.

Nollie secures a position as public stenographer in an exclusive hotel. Mrs. Virginia Judson, a wealthy widow, takes an interest in her. Mrs. Judson asks Nollie to model some of her gorgeous gowns for her.

Later while she is preparing to sail for Europe, she asks Nollie to substitute for her at a theater party.

Instead of the elderly Mr. Hiram who was expected, a handsome young man enters the theater and sits next to her.

He is Tony O'Brien whom Mr. Hiram sent in his place. Tony and Nollie are attracted to one another immediately. Nollie tries to explain that she is not Mrs. Judson but Tony does not hear her.

CHAPTER XI

In an expensive New York night club sat Miss Nollie Day, and beside her the handsome young Irishman.

He had insisted that she come here after the theater. There was no gainsaying Tony O'Brien.

Not in this happy mood of his. He had an eloquent tongue and eloquent eyes. There was a magnetism about him.

He was obviously and boyishly delighted with the young lady who was with him.

Tonight Nollie was beautiful.

And it wasn't due alone to the nimble fingers of the operators who had worked over hair and fingernails and complexion. Nor to the exquisite blue gown and wrap that had been bequeathed her by one Mrs. Judson.

These things helped, of course. But tonight Nollie, with this wonderful companion and in this magic environment, bloomed with an inner radiance that outshone any cosmetic.

Under the shadowing that the beauty-shop assistants had put there, her eyes shown like stars... looked, as Tony thought and finally told her (being Irish) "like bluebells under water, or, begorra like a little bit of heaven."

"I'm going to call you Gloria, because you're the most glorious-looking girl I've ever seen . . ."

Oh! magic words like these she heard. Was it a dream? Was she alive? Were not these hours amazing pages torn from a fairy-tale?

Prince Charming and the Princess who, after all, was only humble little Cinderella?

But not tonight! Tonight she walked in beauty . . .

His eyes told her so. And that charming Irish voice of his that would beguile a very bird from the bough . . ., it was all mixed up with the splash of a miniature waterfall that was part of the scenery close to their table, and the croon of the high-priced orchestra.

Go on. Oh! talk, Tony O'Brien. Listen to those tones of his, this night of nights, and let the memory of that voice sink into the very soul of her.

He was telling her about himself. His life. He hadn't long started in business on his own. He was a lawyer.

Oh yes, he knew a host of people in this town. The summer exodus had started now. A whole flock of clients—women mostly—were setting sail for Europe.

"And I hear that you are going too," he remarked in the middle of a sentence, a sudden anxiety in his eyes seemed beseechingly—at Nollie.

"I? How d'you mean?" She was startled.

"Why, Gloria—Mrs. Judson. I really ought to say, only the first name fits you like a glove and I love the sound of it!—old Hiram told me on the way down from the dinner party this evening that you were soon off for Paris."

"Mrs. Judson," he had called her! He hadn't heard her explanation in the theater. Didn't understand that she was merely a deputy!

All this time, paying her compliments and all, he had been mistaking her for wealthy "Jinny!"

Nollie went white under her make-up.

He didn't know . . . he didn't guess . . .

What an awful dilemma!

How to tell him now, after leting him say those beautiful, beguiling things to her, that she was nothing more or less than the hotel's stenographer?

Her glamor would be gone. He would regret his words to her.

But why tell? Why not live for just this little hour, playing the part of Princess even though soon she'd be just ordinary Cinderella?

Yet . . . false pretenses! . . . this was wrong. He'd been so kind . . . so extraordinarily nice to her.

"Is it because he thinks I'm rich? That I'll be . . . what's the world? . . . a client?"

But no! Tony O'Brien had no calculating look. His eyes expressed a warm admiration.

She couldn't bear that look to fade. He called her Gloria. Play the part. Act like a young princess.

She said in a stifled voice. "No, Mr. O'Brien, I'm not going to Europe."

He grabbed her hand, so pleased was he. He beamed at her.

"And you'll be right in New York at your hotel? I shall see lots of you?"

"I shall be at the Hotel Luxor for just another week," said Nollie dully, and truthfully.

She did not add: "As the public stenographer on the balcony."

They danced. They moved beautifully together, almst like one person.

He danced effortlessly, guiding her in the throbbing rhythm.

The lights were low. The walls were Italian water scenes, so cleverly designed that one might really think one were in Venice.

Italy! Passion! Moonlight!

Guitars playing.

And that song? The leader of the orchestra was singing a divine song of love—she knew that it was love—even though the words were in Italian.

The strings of the steel guitar plucked at her heart. So did the eyes and the voice of Tony O'Brien.

They ate. What was it? Ambrosia of the gods?

Or was she merely toying with a chicken salad?

Tony talked to her. Told her stories of his life in his beguiling Irish voice.

And Nollie listened, fascinated.

"You're like an Irish girl, you know," he said, his grey eyes drinking in the beauty of her. "If I were a painter I would like to paint you as the Colleen Bawn—or—what was the other Killarney beauty's name? —Kate Kearney . . ."

"You flatter me," she said in a low voice, her eyelids lowered.

"I don't. May the saints be my witness you're the most hauntingly lovely thing I've seen in years, I mean it, too," said Tony O'Brien earnestly.

"But there's lots of other ways a good-looking girl like you can make a living—" Yellow Hair broke off.

Q.—In what supreme court decision was it said that good will is the disposition of a pleased customer to return to the place where he has been well treated?—J. F. T.

A.—Apparently the phrase is one derived from the accepted definition of Lord Eldon's of the term "good will"—"the probability that the old customers will resort to the old place." Mr. Justice Day of the supreme court in the case Des Moines Gas company vs. Des Moines, June 14, 1915, cited Lord Eldon's definition as follows: "Good will of the business is that amount of value which inheres in the fixed and favorable consideration of customers occurring from an established and well known and well conducted business."

Q.—What kind of a party is one which says on the invitation, "Progressive Salmagundi?"—A. R. M.

A.—The tables are arranged for different games. One table may be lotto, another dominoes, another flinch, etc. Card games may be added, or the salmagundi may be entirely card games, such as bridge, pedro, euchre, five hundred, etc.

Q.—Why do air bubbles appear on a pond of water during certain showers and remain until struck by raindrops?—J. J.

A.—When the raindrops are quite large, as they are near the beginning of certain showers, they fall into a body of water with sufficient force to drag after them, as small pebbles do, bubbles of air which are entrapped by the closing water above. These bubbles are small and often do not break immediately. They break when struck by a raindrop, or, sooner or later, even when not struck.

Q.—Who is Jimminy, in the expression, By Jimminy?—S. I. K.

A.—It refers to the Heavenly Twins of the Zodiac, the Gemini, patrons of ancient Rome.

Q.—Did the wearing of steel helmets lessen the loss of lives in the world war?—W. C.

A.—Steel helmets lessend scalp and skull wounds and injuries of the upper portion of the face and neck by a large percentage.

Q.—When was the casino at Monte Carlo opened as a gambling establishment?—B. M.

A.—In 1858. It is said to be the most luxurious gambling establishment in the world.

Q.—Have colored sidewalks ever been used in city paving?—J. A.

A.—Canal street, New Orleans, La., is said to be one of the first cities to use colored pavements. They are terrazzo-like made of chipped rock, laid in a series of diamonds, shaped with brass stripping, and then sanded down and polished.

Q.—What is the inscription over the entrance to the crypt where Napoleon is buried?—T. N.

A.—It is taken from Napoleon's will: "I desire that my ashes shall rest on the banks of the Seine, in the midst of the French people that I have loved so well."

Q.—What causes mahogany to look blue?—R. B.

A.—The bluish haze that is often noticed on a polished surface is nothing more than the accumulation left by moisture and dust from the atmosphere. This may be washed off with a damp cloth or soft material, wrung out of tepid water in which a little pure soap may be used if necessary, or a few drops of olive oil may be put on the cloth. Wipe off with a soft dry cloth or clean chamois.

Q.—Are the original Weber and Fields still living? R. B.

A.—These comedians are still living. They have been before the public for about 57 years.

Q.—Did Betty Carstairs serve in the War? S. L.

A.—Marion Barbara Carstairs, who distinguishes herself in boat racing, went to France in 1916 at the age of 16 and served until the armistice as an ambulance driver. Miss Carstairs objects to the nickname, Betty, given her in print, saying that her friends call her Jo.

Q.—How long had the postage rate to Great Britain been two cents? J. L.

A.—It had been two cents to all parts of Great Britain since 1907. The rate was raised to five cents, September 1, 1931.

Q.—Are the western mountains or eastern mountains considered more dangerous for airplanes? P. F. G.

A.—While the Rocky mountains are far higher than the Appalachian mountains, aviators consider the Appalachian mountains more dangerous as fogs are more prevalent over this range.

SOVIET-JAPAN CLASH LOOMS

Unconfirmed Reports Bode Ill Feeling

MUKDEN, Manchuria, Sept. 23. (UP)—The threat of a clash between the interests of Japan and Soviet Russia in Manchuria was rumored tonight as Japanese troops extended their area of occupation.

Although it was previously said that an understanding had been reached to prevent interference of Japan in North Manchuria, where Russia holds joint control of the Chinese eastern railroad, the occupation troops were reported to have entered that area and to have approached Harbin.

There were many unconfirmed reports of threatened trouble, including one that Soviet forces were being mobilized at various points along the Manchurian border. One of these points was Manchuli, the scene of military hostilities during the Chinese-Soviet clash over the Chinese Eastern railway two years ago.

Other sources contended, however, that Japanese troops were merely extending their control to a point south of Harbin, which is the junction of the Chinese Eastern railroad and the spur connecting with the Japanese-controlled southern Manchurian road. Such a move would not necessarily infringe on the Soviet sphere of influence in Manchuria.

The Japanese met little resistance in extending their control to the last of the Chinese railroads at Tunhwu, east of Kirin. They now control all Japanese and Chinese railroad zones in Manchuria.

Casualties in the five days' hostilities were indefinite, but on the Japanese side were estimated at 200.

GENEVA, Spt. 23. (UP)—New instructions received from Tokyo by Kenkichi Yoshizawa, Japanese delegate to the League of Nations council, were expected tonight to speed the league's action in the clash of Japanese and Chinese forces in Manchuria.

Hugh Wilson, United States minister to Switzerland, consulted with Sir Eric Drummond, secretary-general of the league, while a five-power session of the Manchurian question was being conducted secretly. It was understood Wilson previously had telephoned to Washington.

Bitterweed Tests Planned in Texas

SAN ANGELO, Texas, Sept. 23. (AP)—A recent meeting of the Bitterweed association of West Texas resulted in the vesting of power to ask for bids on the three laboratory buildings to be erected at the ranch experiment station, near Sonora, in Judge J. A. Whitten, chairman of the livestock sanitary commission.

The bitterweed is a range pest that annually kills thousands of sheep through poisoning. W. H. Dameron, superintendent of the stations, will act with Judge Whitten on the bids.

Judge Whitten has three sets of plans and will ask bids on them soon. He believes work on the weed will be under way in the completed station by Dec. 1. The state legislature has appropriated $20,000 for the work and the federal government will furnish three men for the study of the problem. The state will give two. The buildings will cost around $15,000 and will be of concrete.

Buildings will consist of a barn, a laboratory and quarters for the workers. Judge Whitten said the plan is to exterminate the weed rather than to seek methods of counteracting its poison.

Season at Hand For Choice of Spring Bulbs

like the Darwin, but larger and colored bronze, buff, brown, and related shades; the charming parrot types, with feather-edged petals only and the double sorts having flowers somewhat like peonies. Of these first two can be relied upon for Texas gardens, and even the Darwins fail sometimes. Last winter, for instance, was so warm that the blooms came too early on stems only a few inches above the basal cluster of leaves, and tulip season lost its beauty. In the most southern parts of the state an artificial winter is sometimes produced by planting the bulbs first in six-inch flats and placing them in cold storage for two months before planting them in the ground. That is one way; another is to plant Easter lilies instead. For all but those with a passion for the inherently difficult, it is better to go along with natural conditions than against them.

In the northern part of the United States, election day is the traditional date for planting tulips. That is too early for Texas. The movable date when the leaves of deciduous trees fall plentifully is preferable. If planted too early, tulips will make so much growth in the fall that they will come up too early in the spring and begin to bloom with an insufficient root system. Tulips should be planted more deeply in warm climates than in cold, eight inches being not too deep. Care shoud be taken to plant all the tulips in a bed at the same depth, so that they will bloom at the same time and have stems the same height. Fertilization, sun and good drainage are essential to the raising of fine tulips. As a precaution against rot, it is well to surround the bulbs with sand. Bone meal is a safer fertilizer than manure, though well-rotted cow manure may be used provided none touches the bulbs.

A pretty way of planting such bulbs as daffodils and tulips is to use as a ground cover some low plant that blooms at the same time. The bulbs are then spaced a little farther apart, though never farther than eight or ten inches. Rock cress, both single and double, is particularly good for this purpose, but apparently rock cress does not withstand our hot summers and so has to be renewed each year. Alyssum saxatile compactum citrinum, which does withstand summer heat, and the blue and the white forget-me-not, which, if given some shade, does much better in Texas than is commonly supposed, are useful as ground covers for bulbs. The native bluets, Houstonia, in several species, planted very thickly, would make a particularly fine ground cover with white or pink hyacinths and the early daffodils. It is one of the first wild flowers to bloom.

Bulbs of Color

In point of permanence hyacinths stand between tulips, which are ordinarily discarded after one year, and daffodils, which last on indefinitely. They bloom for several years with decreasing splendor. However, some people prefer them when they have lost their look of fat prosperity. They should be planted in rich, well-drained soil from six to eight inches deep and about six inches apart. Manure should be placed deep down in the bed with unmanured soil at the base of the bulbs. Re-inrichment of soil each year is essential to the continued production of blooms. In the South hyacinths should not be planted too early; November and December are better than October. It is advisable to keep them on cold storage for a time before they are planted, so that they will not sprout too early.

Spanish iris blooms profusely in Texas, as any one who passed through New Braunfels last April remembers. This iris makes an exceptionally good cut flower, lasting a week or more. The bulbs—for, unlike the German, or bearded iris, which grows from rhizomes, the Spanish iris grows from bulbs—should be treated like narcissus.

Lily bulbs of several sorts can be planted in the fall. Among those of relatively easy culture are the Easter lilies, Lilium giganteum and L. longiflorum, L. regale, L. auratum, L. speciosum rubrum (one of the most beautiful lilies), L. speciosum album, and the well-known tiger lily. The necessity of good drainage cannot be brought too often to the attention of those who plant lilies or, for that matter, any bulbs, all of which are highly susceptible to rot.

A few other bulbs should be more often planted. Among them are grape hyacinths (Muscari), which thrive well in Texas. The following varieties are offered: M. armeniacum, which is cobalt blue; white, also called Pearls of Spain; and Heavenly Blue, a clear light blue. A few months ago one of the best garden magazines in America carried an article on two bulbs that grow natively in Texas and are thought little of. These are Cooperia, or white rain lily, and Zephyranthes, or yellow rain lily. Of the latter, three species are found in Texas: Z. longifolia, which ranges over Texas westward to Arizona southward into Mexico; Z. pulchella, which has been observed near Corpus Christi; and Z. texana, copper yellow, occurring on Texas prairies. All there look very fair springing up on a not too well-tended lawn a day after rain has quickened them. The finest species is introduced from Jamaica, Cuba, Gautemala and Mexico—Z. incarinata. Z rosea, which is pink, is also listed in several catalogs. Snowdrops (Calanthus) and their larger kindred the Snowflakes (Leucojum vernum) are among the daintiest of early spring blossoms. They grow quite well in Texas. In the fall the lovely species of wood sorrel Ionoxalis drummondi) blossoms. Those who enjoy collecting the most beautiful of our native flora will do well to watch for it and scatter its seed in their gardens. Though relatively little known, it is one of our most beautiful wild flowers.

Dried Fruits

Dried fruits furnish a very valuable fruit supply during the entire year, especially during the winter months when there is a scarcity of fresh fruit.

If you have eaten properly dried fruit you have noticed that its flavor is richer than the fresh fruit. The secret of this wonderful flavor is because the fruits for drying are allowed to become fully ripe before picking, while most of the fruits shipped to market in the fresh state must be picked while partly green. Most of the finest food and flavoring materials of the fruit are produced in the last day or two before perfect ripeness is reached, and fruit picked before this time never attains the same flavor.

The drying of fruit is sometimes resorted to to save a crop when the market price for fresh fruit is low, but this is by no means the usual practice, because farmers have found that certain varieties of figs and grapes, for example, contain a larger amount of sugar than others, and are therefore more suitable for drying and have a richer flavor.

The fruit may be either sun-dried in warm localities, or dried in dehydrating plants especially built for the purpose. Either of these methods is quite wholesome. Some of the fruits, such as prunes, are dipped in lye to facilitate the peeling of the fruit or to soften the skin so that the moisture will evaporate. This lye solution does not injure the fruit because it is carefully removed by rinsing in pure water. However, many fruits are subjected to fumigation with sulphur fumes. This adds a small amount of sulphurous acid to the fruit and while it gives keeping qualities, I believe it is a bad practice from a health standpoint, and therefore recommend the unsulphured.

The dried fruits are much more concentrated than the fresh and are therefore quite a nutritious food. They are relished by children and are very desirable as a means of satisfying their craving for sweets. Dried figs, dates, raisins, and prunes are known and used throughout the world. However, there are a number of other fruits which are less known but equally as valuable in a dried state.

In this country we use considerable quantities of dried peaches, apricots, pears, apples, nectarines and currants, but it is also possible to dry cranberries, raspberries, rhubarb, cherries, persimmons, mangoes, and a number of other fruits.

The dried fruits do not contain as much acid as the fresh fruits because as the fruit acids are reduced, they are slowly transformed into sugar by the ripening process. The dried fruits are excellent energy foods and at the same time are useful for increasing the alkalinity of the body.

All dried fruits should be well washed before using, and may then be eaten dry, or soaked for a few hours in a small amount of water and then eaten with their juices, or prepared in the usuay way by soaking over night and cooking for about 10 minutes over a slow fire. No sugar should be added as this is unnecessary and only detracts from their natural delicious flavor.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Shipshod Girl

Question—Mrs. C. L. Writes: "My girl, aged 13, has a pale face and is lazy and shipshod. She is intelligent but thinks it is too much trouble to bother to wash her ears and neck or keep herself clean. I am wondering if it is my disposition that is at fault. I work all day, have four children, am very irritable, nasty, bossy, and expect kiddies to tidy up the house like I would myself, and, as I have forgotten how to laugh and always criticize and never praise, it is making them very nervous. What would you advise either for myself or for the kids' sake."

Answer—It would be a good plan if you could get some good books on child psychology from your public library and study them carefully. You would undoubtedly be able to handle the situation at home much better after a careful study of these books. You should also try to overcome your own nervousness as this undoubtedly makes the children more irritable. You will notice a big change if you will begin praising your little girl for the good things she does and not nag her for the things she doesn't do. She could probably be persuaded to keep herself clean and neat and also tidy up the house if you will have a heart-to-heart talk with her, telling her the necessity of personal cleanliness and making her feel a responsibility for keeping the house in order. Don't forget to tell her how nice she looks whenever she takes your advice.

Pumpernickel Bread

Question—Florence asks: "What is pumpernickel bread and is it wholesome?"

Answer—Pumpernickel is the black bread commonly used by German and Russian peasants, being made from course unbolted rye flour. Pumpernickel, as ordinarily sold in this country, consists of a mixture of wheat and rye flour. The real article is an excellent starch food.

New Power Line Goes to Odell

QUANAH, Texas, Sept. 23—Crews from the district office at Quanah, and the general engineering department staff of the West Texas Utilities company are busily engaged in surveying the new transmission line from the super-power plant of the company at Lake Pauline to Odell, just over the Hardeman county line in Wilbarger county. Construction of this line will start in the immediate future. Easements have been acquired over a portion of the way.

This line will be tied in to the distributing system of Odell which has just been purchased by the West Texas Utilities company. It is expected the hook-up will be made during the early part of October.

The company announces that a rate reduction which will lower the cost of electric service to Odell customers by approximately 30 on the first step and over 50 per cent on each of the second and third steps, will bring rates at Odell to the low level charged by the company throughout its widespread properties.

BARNETT AND DONOVAN TIE FOR MEDAL HONORS WITH 79'S

The Rambler's Corner

By FRED THOMPSON

The complete, or almost complete impotence of the Barons at bat in the early games of the Dixie series, while they were being provided with excellent pitching, scorched the soul of Zipp Newman, said Zipp being the sports editor of the Birmingham News.

And Zipp bared his scorched soul on paper. The fact that the paper was pretty well scorched is borne out in Zipp's article, which we reprint below, after clipping it from the Houston Post-Dispatch, which also reprinted it for the edification of its readers.

Zipp is talking about last Sunday's game, in which Dizzy Dean beat the old master, Ray Caldwell, 2 to 0. Now go on with it:

"Ray Caldwell, the 43-year-old right-hander, stole the show from Dizzy Dean before 13,684 understanding souls. There have been baseball dramas and baseball dramas, but none to compare with the second meeting between Dizzy Dean and Ray Caldwell. A game in which an old man with a semi-pro hitting club and a wretched fielding outfit behind him, refused to admit defeat. Caldwell's head was bloody from wounds inflicted by his own men, but his head was high and his heart unconquered as he walked off the diamond Sunday among the thunderous applause of strangers.

Caldwell Alone

"Dick McCabe and George Washington Payne mystified the Barons with their brilliant technique. They were never in danger of being toppled over by blunders of their own team mates. They sped down a road of rose blooms. But this Ray Caldwell had to go it alone Sunday. He had only one friend to help him in the crisis and Clyde Milan could only advise him what to pitch. Old Deerfoot could not help Caldwell with a bludgeon nor hound the balls.

"For pure raw courage Ray Caldwell's pitching with only three days of rest will stand as one of the greatest chapters ever written into baseball. Here was a 43-year-old man, standing alone on a raft fighting a brilliant commodore aboard a powerful man of war.

Refuses to Quit

"The Barons couldn't have played any worse baseball, nor the Buffs any better. Yet Caldwell refused to surrender. He held on until the last out, hoping to get something akin to a break, although he must have known after the Barons' failure to take advantage of their first scoring chance that he had no chance to win. Just a hope that he might be able to shut out the Buffs until darkness ended the game.

"Homer Peel, the hero of the Saturday night game, broke up the ball game for Caldwell. He drove in the first run in the fourth with a double that would have been only a fly ball at Rickwood. And the Houston fans booed Steamboat Johnson for giving the Buffs their second run in the eighth. Johnson watched Sturdy slide around the plate and Little Zack Taylor tag him after taking a throw from Woodley Abernathy—yet he called Sturdy safe at the plate and ran Taylor out of the game for protesting the decision.

"Dizzy Dean pitched a great game and should have won—but in victory Dean played second fiddle to Ray Caldwell. The wonder of the game is how Caldwell could show as much courage with his team in a state of coma as he did.

Dixie Series Record

"The Barons staggered by their 27th consecutive milestone without scoring—a new Dixie series record for a hit blight. No one would be foolish to wager that Lefty Grove, George Earnshaw and Wesley Ferrell could pitch 27 innings of scoreless baseball against a sandlot team, let alone dream of three class A pitchers hanging up 27 innings of scoreless baseball in a playoff series where the breaks should be good for at least a run.

"In the four games played to date, the Barons have hit exactly 36 balls out of the infield. And with Dean's three-hit game Sunday, they are now batting less than the size of a decayed olive. Yet the failure of the Barons to hit, has only made the Barons' hurlers pitch their hearts out. The Buffs in four games have only scored three really earned tallies and the record would read four 1 to 0 scores, if the Baronial pitchers had been supported to the best ability of the Barons.

"Houston has shown to be a far superior baseball club to the Barons in this series—but Houston would never have only one game to win for the series, if the Barons had of hit the ball, instead of the air with their bats. There hasn't been a hit depression in baseball to compare to the one that has hit the Barons squarely between the eyes. The Barons have been so plainly pitiful that it has taken prestige away from the Houston pitchers.

May Shift Players

"It wouldn't be a surprise to see Judge Abernathy playing first and Prerost back in right. Susko's failure to hit has been a mystery. And it looks like Milan's one move left to get a little punch in the lineup is to put Abernathy on first and play Prerost in right. However, Milan may ask for five volunteers from the police band, and again he may give the pitchers a chance to do some hitting. It's a cinch they couldn't do any worse than some of the big guns have done.

"Again the attendance was disappointing, 13,684 witnessing the fourth game, where Dizzy Dean was expected to fill the park. But it is much nicer to sit by a radio and listen to a game and avoid the crowds. The Southern league surely will not stand for the series being broadcast next year. Of course, the Texas league may decide to call off the series for lack of competition from the Southern league."

3,000 Plants Identified By Field Museum Experts

CHICAGO, Sept. 23. (UP)—More than 3,000 specimens of plants, the majority from South America, submitted to the Field museum for determination and study by herbaria in London, Paris, Stockholm, Geneva and Berlin, have been identified recently by Associate Curator Paul C. Standley. All of the specimens, Standley said, were returned to the cooperating institutions.

HIGH SCORES FEATURE PLAY

Record Field of 119 Golfers In Tournament

By FRED THOMPSON
Record News Sports Editor

A record field of 119 golfers made links history in the qualifying round of the fourth annual Wichita Falls Golf and Country club invitation tournament here yesterday, but it was not the kind of history the shot makers will fondly relate to their grandchildren.

For in the field sprinkled with West Texas champions and others who comprise this section's best golfers there were few good scores. S. J. Barnett of Eastland shortly before noon posted a 79 for the par 72 course, this mark being regarded as certain to fall as other crack marksmen came in during the afternoon. But the afternoon wore on, and still nothing better appeared. Finally, just as the shades of night were falling, Buck Donovan, an outsider from San Angelo rolled in with exactly the same score, 79—to tie Barnett for medalist honors.

Last night, as the golfers sat around the banquet board at the clubhouse, or as they participated in the Calcutta pool, the best minds sought for an explanation. But there was none offered that was satisfactory, unless it was that Lady Luck took a train from Wichita Falls just as the biggest field ever to participate in an invitation tourney here rolled in. It was an ideal day for play. The wind, usually a great obstacle in these parts, wafted at an even tenor and could not be used by the most argumentative as an alibi.

Early Start Today

Match play will start promptly at 7 o'clock this morning, with the second flighters due to tee off first. Part of the third flighters will follow, with the championship flight scheduled to get off at 9 o'clock.

Donovan attained the distinction of co-medalist with an uninspiring round that included one birdie for the 18 holes. His card follows:

Out .....3 5 4 4 5 4 5 5 5—40
In .....4 3 4 5 4 6 4 4 5—39—79

Barnett, shooting far below standard, was not the same Barnett that has blistered par over West Texas courses all this season. He made the first nine in 42, five over par, and came in with a 37, two over, for his 79. His card:

Out .....4 4 3 3 5 3 6 6 8—42
In .....4 4 5 3 5 4 4 4 4—37—79

Several crack shots with a little luck could have equalled or bettered the co-medalists' 79. Charles Qualls, the postmaster from Post, Texas, who shot an 83, threw his chances away on the seventh hole when after making a pretty 285-yard drive down the middle he twice landed in traps. Then he lost his temper and took no less than a dozen strokes to hole out. J. H. S. Bonner, who came in with an 82, could have done much better had he not gone haywire on the last nine, making it in 11 over par.

Duncan Shoots 80

Probably the unluckiest of all, however, was T. P. Duncan, who three-putted the 17th green to eventually come in with an 80, just one short of making the medalist honor a three-cornered affair.

And so on down the line. Each golfer as he turned in his "balloon" score came in with plaints about his sad luck.

Morris Norton, defending champion, though he landed easily in the championship flight, turned in a none-too-good medal score of 82.

An 88 was good enough to get in the championship flight, and only two of the five golfers posting these scores made the riffle, three having to drop into the second flight because there was no room for them in the championship division. Roy Lebus of Electra, and E. A. Gebert and Hal Kelleher of Wichita Falls, who posted 88's, were eliminated by the flip of a coin, while Paul Landes, former Wichita Falls all-city champion, and L. S. (City) Walker of Quanah, thrice Greenbelt champion, the remaining two who posted this score, were given berths in the top flight.

The Same Old City

Walker, the veteran, lived up to his reputation today by barely squeezing into the championship flight. His record as a golfer is that he always manages just to get in the top flight, but becomes a tough customer once match play starts.

In the following list of qualifying scores, all golfers are from Wichita Falls unless otherwise designated:

Barons Square Dixie Series With 14 to 10 Victory

BIRMINGHAM GOES WILD

Deciding Game to Be Played At Houston Friday

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., Sept. 23. (AP)—The Birmingham Barons, Southern association champions, batted out 23 hits to defeat Houston, 14 to 10 today, tieing the score in games at three-all in one of the wildest base hit sessions in Dixie series history.

For seven innings the Barons hammered the offerings of four Buffalo pitchers before "Dizzy" Dean came to their rescue in the eighth and retired the side without a hit. The Buffaloes had their long range guns in action also, marking up 18 hits off two Baron twirlers.

Leading the Baron attack was Art Weis, who hit a home run, two doubles and two singles for a perfect day at bat. Weis, who had gotten only one hit in the series until today's game, accounted for three runs.

Billy Bancroft, Baron second baseman and leadoff man and Woody Abernathy, right fielder, hit home runs and each accounted for four runs. Guy Sturdy, first baseman, was the star at bat for the Buffs, collecting four hits, two of them homers and accounted for three runs.

Birmingham started in the first, putting across one run, the result of a single by French and a double by Art Weis. Weis added another with a home run in the third and in the sixth the full force of the Barons attack broke loose, six runs crossing the plate before the session ended.

The teams left on a special train tonight for Houston where the seventh and deciding game will be played Friday. Today's victory was the second straight for the Barons. Their first victory was in the series opener and they dropped three games before scoring their second victory Monday night at Houston.

Plans Launched for Independent Football League in This Section

Plans have been launched over this section of the state for the organization of an independent football league which will give fans of this section many chances to see once more the stars and idols of past gridiron fame. At the present time the league lists but two members, the Wichita Falls Pups and the Burkburnett All-Stars. It is being rumored that teams in Electra, Vernon and Nocona may be interested in entering the league, and independent teams anywhere in this section who are interested should get in touch with Mack Turner, in care of The Record News sports department by mail as soon as possible. Hopes for a six or eight-club league are being held by the league heads. As soon as enough teams have been heard from a meeting will be called and final plans and schedule made.

Football in this district has been confined almost solely to the high school sport with little chance left to play upon leaving school. In forming independent teams, the matching of games has been the big handicap with the present interscholastic league rule barring class A high schools from playing other than high school teams and the heavy class B schedule which makes games with the smaller schools impossible. The organization of the league will furnish competition for the independent teams, and at the same time furnish an interesting race for the fans. The league should help greatly to stimulate football interest in this section.

The first team to enter the league was the Wichita Falls Pups, local organization which for two years has played over this section and banded together a good following. All but two of their present players were with the team last year.

The present outlook for the first string lineup with the Pups will find Clois Keyes, last year with the Coyotes, and Bailey Craig, former Reagan Junior high star, on the two wing posts. L. A. Dickerson and Jack Lynch loom as the most likely tackles, Lefty Fleming and Pete Heffington loom as the two guards on the team. Cecil Scott and Loopy King loom as the centers. King was the powerful stalwart of the Coyote line last season. Paul Robertson at present holds a slight edge over the rest of the field for the quarterback position. Elvis Stovall and Spider Corbin are the first string halves. Corbin starred a few years ago on the Simmons university freshmen. Oliver Fudge, formerly of the Wichita Falls Junior College Indians, is the regular fullback. The reserve strength is made up of Willard Norris, Harry Baumgardner, Capt. Joe Deal, Morris Brooks and Bill Hardy.

Wildcats Open Conference Season at Munday Friday

Special to The Record News.

ARCHER CITY, Texas, Sept. 23.—Coach Bill Cooper, taking note of the old adage of "as goes the first game so goes the season," is whipping his team of Wildcats into what looks like an invincible pack.

They open their class B conference season at Munday Friday. The scouts report the Munday team to be far superior to the Iowa Park team that Cooper's Kittens had no trouble in lacing 44 to 0. Munday showed power in defeating Haskell 13 to 6 last Saturday. That very fact has kept the Archer City team from feeling so sure of itself. Munday has a forward wall that would be hard for any one to pierce.

Cooper's four horsemen, Strahan, Larkin, Kinker and Horany seem to improve with each day out, this coupled with the hard hitting of the forward wall composed of Wright, Fish, Threet, Ray and the brilliant ends, Fleming and Bailey, leaves no doubt in the minds of the home fans as to the outcome of the coming contest. The reserves, Beavers, Brewer, E. Hays, Strawn, Long and J. Horany, are good at any position and hence the Archer City fans think that Bill has a nest of demons that will be found fighting from the Brazos to the Red river to win the class B honors of district No. 3.

HAWKS DOWN REAGAN, 13–0

Passes Net Counters for Iowa Park Team

Special to The Record News.

IOWA PARK, Texas, Sept. 23.—Coach A. D. Neal's Hawks won a hard fought 13 to 0 victory over the Reagan Junior High school of Wichita Falls here this afternoon.

Reagan's superiority in punting, aided by several miscues by Iowa Park, kept the ball in the Hawks' territory most of the first half. In the fourth quarter Clark tossed a 30-yard pass to Cowart for the first touchdown and a short time later Clark passed to Thurber for the second counter. The try for point failed on the first score, but on the second Clark passed to Cowart for the extra point.

The work of Cowart, end, and Eddie Maier, center, stood out in the Iowa Park line. The Hawks scored 12 first downs to four for the Reagan eleven.

Sens Strengthen Hold On Second Position

NEW YORK, Sept. 23. (AP)—The Washington Senators increased their hold on second place in the American league pennant race to one and one-half games as they defeated the New York Yankees, 3 to 2, today in the first of four-game series. Vernon Gomez on the mound for the Yanks, had one bad inning resulting in his downfall. Score:

BUZZING BEE BLAMED

WOOSTER, Ohio, Sept. 23. (UP)—R. L. Cordtz attributes the injury of his wife, loss of his pet dog and the destruction of his car to an untimely buzz. A bumble bee flew into the Cordtz automobile while Cordtz was driving over a bridge.

"Do those bristles mean he's ceased to care?"

"I'M having trouble with my husband. Our honeymoon days are over and I've come back to earth with a sort of a dull thud. Not that he isn't good to me, because he really is. I guess I couldn't ask for a more kind and considerate partner. In fact he's still a lover in every way but one. He's gotten careless about shaving. Probably he doesn't realize how much this means to me. But before we were married I never saw him without a clean shave. He must have thought shaving was important then. I wonder if he feels that he can afford to neglect his beard now that he's got me. I've hinted once or twice that he looks much sweeter with a clean shave, but he's as careless as ever. Of course he shaves regularly, but not often enough or close enough. And I didn't count on bristles when I married him. Well, I guess I have to be fair. He says that shaving is a nuisance and I suppose all razor blades are alike. Maybe I can get used to a slight growth of stubble, but I do wish my husband would be as particular about shaving as he was when we were engaged."

You are right on one point, but wrong on the other. You must be fair and overlook your husband's negligence in the past because shaving was a more or less unpleasant task. But all razor blades aren't alike. Today Gillette has a splendid new blade that is decidedly different and better. It is almost certain to change any man's idea about shaving.

The new Gillette blade is guaranteed on a money-back basis. Men are invited to buy a package and try a blade or two at our risk. If you don't agree that this blade is far better, if every shave isn't free from smart or irritation, return the package to your dealer and he'll refund the purchase price.

NEW YORK COTTON

NEW YORK, Sept. 23. (AP)—Trading in cotton showed increased activity with prices advancing approximately $1.80 per bale on continued covering and Liverpool buying promoted by firmer markets abroad and the better tone of the stock market.

December contracts sold up to 6.73 or 35 points net higher and after reacting to 6.59 under realizing and southern selling, stiffened up again, closing at 6.62 compared with 6.38 at the close of Tuesday. The final tone of the market was steady at net advances of 24 to 26 points.

The report of the census bureau showing 2,091,513 bales ginned prior to Sept. 16 compared with 2,736,120 bales to the same date last year was without apparent effect on the market. Liverpool attributed its advance to heavy general buying, covering and trade calling on the firmness in Bombay and Alexandria. Egyptian cotton futures in Alexandria closed 60 to 96 points higher and there was an advance of 30 points in the Liverpool spot quotation for East Indian cotton.

Exports today 6,725 making 549,008 so far this season. Port receipts 26,668. U. S. port stocks 3,015,644.

NEW ORLEANS COTTON

NEW ORLEANS, Sept. 23. (AP)—Cotton was very active today and prices scored good advances. The firmer tone was in spite of rather larger ginnings than expected and a generally favorable weekly crop review. Liverpool cables were better than due which accounted for an opening gain here of 9 to 10 points.

A sharp advance in stocks caused active covering by shorts and induced more or less trade buying which easily absorbed hedge selling. Near mid-session prices showed gains of 34 to 35 points over the previous close.

This advance attracted profit taking and early in the afternoon prices showed reactions of 12 to 14 points, but ruled steadier later, keeping within the earlier range. Fluctuations were influenced by the stock market. The close was called steady, showing net advances of 26 to 28 points on the day. Liverpool is due on New Orleans tomorrow unchanged to 1 penny point net up.

Port receipts 26,718; for week 145,046; for season 855,454; last season 1,858,694. Exports 6,725; for week 50,999; for season 538,223; last season 925,555. Port stock 3,013,574; last year 2,415,597. Fair-Sized Boom in Stock Market Proves Jolt to Skeptical Crowd

By BROADAN WALL

NEW YORK, Sept. 23. (US)—The securities markets today staged a fair-sized boom which confounded those skeptics who had predicted distress with resumption of free and open markets. The ban on short-selling was rescinded and whatever portion of the speculative world which accepted this as an opportunity to make profits on the bear side found themselves severely chastened before the market closed.

Overnight news, including reduction in the Steel corporation wages and similar action on wages and salaries by other outstanding corporations, was hailed by the markets seemingly as inaugurating a more favorable era, regardless of immediate repercussions. It could not be accurately measured, but sizeable buying orders, as anticipated by some, had accumulated for foreigners who were endeavoring to shift out of their own currency issues and transfer their funds to the United States. From opening to close of the stock market and in bonds the constructive forces were in complete control and at several stages of the session there was evidence of a complete rout of the bears.

Trading volume expanded close to 3,000,000 shares and over $15,000,000 in bonds.

Except for certain foreign obligations directly affected by the British gold standard suspension the bond market entered into a recovery which attained rather sensational proportions in numerous instances. Especially were the railroad obligations in demand, with gains of five points or more recorded in many such bonds.

This display of strength among bonds gave added impetus to the buying movement among stocks. It has frequently been remarked here that nothing would give greater confidence to would-be stock buyers than maintained firmness in bonds, and this was amply confirmed in today's stock market.

The railroad department of the stock market virtually ran wild on the upside, with net gains at the close of the market averaging more than 7½ points, an advance greater even than among the usually more volatile industrials. The whole market participated in the rally, and there was evidence that some high-grade buying had been attracted in addition to the short-covering which, starting in small volume, swelled to a considerable portion of the day's total transactions.

Under the strain of the excitement attendant upon the rapid developments of recent days, it has been difficult to discern the true character of the buying and selling taking place. However, as the week enters its second half it is evident that long-pull investment buying has been taking place in large amount, especially during Monday and Tuesday markets. Among the bonds, particularly, there has been strong buying as prices in numerous instances discounted virtually all possibilities including receiverships.

There was a rumor today that the Federal Reserve of New York rediscount rate may be advanced, but the logic of such an action was not apparent. More specifically, the market was concerned with the decision of the U. S. Steel corporation and other gigantic employers to effect wage and salary reductions long delayed.

The steel action more than any other single development was responsible for the greater cheer prevalent in market circles. The more conservative element, while accepting the reduction as a step in the right direction, were reluctant to interpret the action in the light of immediate prospects. Its full import is yet to be weighed, it was asserted, while some went back to the post-war precedent, when three successive reductions in the steel corporation's wages were effected before the depression and the bear market terminated. Nevertheless, as frequently remarked here, lower steel wages will bring into the market, very slowly at first a new class of buying. This buying will be for the account of hard-boiled investors who have insisted that such action was necessary to reestablish industrial activities on a sound basis. The full influence of such buying however, may not be felt for months, since such buyers are extremely discriminating and "price-buyers," never participating on the buying side of exciting advances.

Wall street, reflecting the attitude of the business community in general, turned its attention toward the possibility of the railroad industry following the action of the steel industry with respect to wages. In this respect, the story was repeated that the railroad unions have been quietly sounding out sentiment toward a possible voluntary wage reduction of smaller proportion than might be forthcoming if the carriers' rate increase petition be denied.

Grain

TEXAS CASH GRAIN

FORT WORTH, Sept. 23. (AP)—Steady demand for all commodities on the cash grain market was reported today. Exporters bidding 47½@48½c for wheat delivered Texas gulf ports.

Quotations ranged as follows, basis carloads delivered Texas gulf ports, export rate, or group three points:

Wheat—No. 1 ordinary hard milling 48½@49½c; No. 1 hard 13 per cent protein 50½@51½c; 14 per cent 54½@56½c; 15 per cent 58½@60½c; 16 per cent 61@63c.

Corn—No. 2 mixed 40@42c; No. 2 white 42½@43½c; No. 2 yellow 49@51c.

Barley—No. 2, 35@38c.

Sorghums—No. 2 milo per 100 pounds 70@73c; No. 2 kafir 73@76c.

Basis delivered group three points: Oats—No. 2 red 23½@24c.

CHICAGO GRAIN

CHICAGO, Sept. 23. (AP)—Led by stocks and cotton, the grain markets joined the general procession today toward higher prices. Previous sellers of grains became uneasy, and there was plenty of buying from other sources, more than enough to take the slack out of all the cereals. Widespread sentiment prevailed that bear factors in the grain trade had been overemphasized for at least the present.

Wheat closed unsettled, ⅜@1⅛ cents up, corn unchanged to ⅜c advanced, oats unchanged to ⅛c higher, and provisions varying from 10 cents setback to a rise of 12 cents.

Briskly keeping step with Wall street securities, wheat reached its highest levels in the late dealings. Offerings of wheat were light until prices showed a rise of more than a cent a bushel. Then, profit-taking sales increased, and grains were checked. The broadened activity and strength displayed by wheat was in the face of the fact that export business was modest, a circumstance regarded as natural, owing to disturbance of foreign exchange rates.

Seeding difficulties in the western part of the United States winter wheat belt, a result of absence of rain, especially in western Kansas, tended to promote wheat price upturns. Notice was also taken of comment from a trade authority that regardless of the world's unsettled financial situation, people must eat, that there was no cheaper food than wheat, and that European root crops were poor, a condition which should develop a greater demand for wheat. He added that low prices had increased both human and animal use of wheat, as well as brought about wastage and lessened production.

Although corn temporarily touched a new bottom price record for the season, coarse grains gathered strength with wheat. The transient downturn of corn was due to further big deliveries on Chicago September contracts, 1,618,000 bushels today in addition to 2,021,000 bushels yesterday. Oats sympathized with wheat.

Provisions reflected weakness of hog values. Cash lard prices were the lowest since 1905.

Closing indemnities: Wheat—Sept. 49⅝c, offers; Dec. 48⅝c, 49⅛@50c; March 51⅝c, bids; May 52⅝c, 54⅛@54⅝c. Corn—Sept. 37⅜c, 40⅛c, Dec. 37⅛c, 38c, May 41c, 41⅞c.

It Was a Bird of a Case

By MILTON BRONNER
NEA Service Writer

LONDON, Sept. 23.—He testified in Sheffield police court. Not being a Christian, he did not take the oath on the Bible. Not being a Jew, he did not take the oath on the Old Testament. Not being a free-thinker, he did not affirm. He did not even talk. He took his out in acting and he did it most effectively. A queer witness. In fact, a bird of a witness.

He is a jackdaw, and his name is Jack.

The defendant in the case was Ernest Antcliffe, who was summoned for committing cruelty to the bird. A representative of the Society for Prevention of Cruelty to Animals testified that on the day in question the bird was flying toward the defendant's house when the accused struck it with a stick and seriously injured the creature. Defendant was heard to say:

"I am not going to have that bird in my house."

Feared for Baby

The defendant said he and his wife were afraid that the jackdaw, which belonged to a neighbor, might peck out the eyes of their 8-week-old baby. His wife was terrified by the bird. He had shooed it out of the house with a newspaper, but it returned. It was flying about his head, when he hit out blindly with a stick and the bird fell, squawking loudly. He immediately told the owner and expressed his regret.

Jack's boss, Freeman Threadgold, gave evidence, telling of the good character of his pet. The court asked if the bird was really hurt.

"Let him testify for himself," said Threadgold.

"Walk in front of the judge, Jack," his master ordered.

The bird witness stepped down and walked on the bench, showing an injured leg and wing.

"Is he likely to peck at a baby's eyes?" queried the attorney for the defense.

"Watch him," said Threadgold.

He called the bird and it jumped on his owner's shoulders, placing its beak near the man's face, but making no attempt to peck.

"Now watch him some more," said the owner.

He took out a packet of cigarets. Jack pecked at the packet, got out a cigaret and promptly put it in the mouth of its master.

It was this trick of placing a cigaret in his master's mouth . . . that helped to win an English court victory for "Jack Daw" . . . in his case against a man who struck him with a stick.

The bird was put back on the bench and looked at the judge and the lawyers as if he understood what was going on.

The court found the defendant guilty and imposed a fine of $3.75 and costs.

Just as if he knew that things had gone satisfactory, Jack immediately flew over to his master and perched triumphantly on the man's shoulder.

Almost by himself he had won the case.

RIVER LEASING BILL STRANDED

Senate Committee Votes Bill Adversely

AUSTIN, Sept. 23. (UP)—A bill allowing the state to lease river beds in Texas for oil development was orphaned today by the senate committee on state affairs. The committee voted to recommend to the senate that the bill be not passed.

Fear of polluting streams of Texas, from which many cities secure their water supply, prompted the negative vote.

While the bill would apply to all streams, belief that vast stores of oil lie beneath the bed of the Sabine river, which winds through the extensive East Texas field, prompted its submission. Senator George Purl of Dallas was its chief proponent.

Purl declared that the state, now on a deficiency basis, should avail itself of the oil beneath the Sabine before adjacent wells drain it into the pockets of private companies. Gov. Ross Sterling, R. D. Parker, chief of the oil and gas division of the railroad commission, and others appeared before the committee to testify that it was possible to drill without polluting the stream.

Citizens of Longview, who secure their water from the Sabine river, had protested.

The committee's action does not kill the bill outright, but places a new obstacle to its passage in the senate.

Ancient Easter Egg Found in Pennsylvania

YORK, Pa., Sept. 23. (UP)—A colored Easter egg, dated 1879, was found during house-cleaning at a home at Shrewsbury, by Mrs. Louisa Young. The egg was described as about as light as a feather, the gas forming when the interior decayed evidently having escaped through pores. It was colored dark blue, with etchings of a rabbit and chickens on the shell. It bore the name of Mrs. Young's son, Robert.

LEGION TO VOTE ON BEER ISSUE

Prohibition Finally Comes Before Veterans

zation of the manufacture of beer as a means of putting "hundreds of thousands back to work."

Of equal significance was the 23 to 20 vote by which the resolutions committee decided that "gag rule" should not prevail when the discussion of prohibition came upon the floor of the convention. This victory came after three hours of stormy and often disorderly debate.

Thus one by one the precedents of other legion conventions, which detoured the wet and dry issue as a purely political question, have been thrown in the discard.

The beginning came yesterday when a subcommittee of the resolutions committee by a vote of 9 to 2 framed a set of modification and repeal proposals for the consideration of the entire committee.

The legislative committee spent a major share of the day debating the bonus proposal, having before it the subcommittee's divided report. Indications were that the veterans would not demand the bonus payment. The full committee was split chiefly over the proposition of demanding lower interest rates on bonus loans.

Apparent unwillingness of a majority of the leaders to force through the bonus demand was due to the address made before the veterans Monday by President Hoover and to another address made today by Gen. Frank T. Hines, administrator of veterans' affairs. Hines warned the men in this emergency not to risk losing the good will of the public by demanding further payment on their adjusted compensation certificates.

The legion selected Portland, Ore., as the 1932 convention city.

The report of the unemployment commission was presented by its chairman, Howard P. Savage of Chicago, former national commander, after listing a series of suggestions by which veterans may be provided with more work, Savage said:

"I have something else to report which I hope will not knock you out of your seats.

"Your national employment commission feels it to be the duty of the commission to present the following to the attention of this convention:

"That, when it shall properly come before this convention, due consideration be given to the modification of the Volstead act to legalize real beer without conflict with the constitution of the United States in the interest of furnishing added employment.

"Your commission believes that hundreds of thousands of jobs may be created through such action."

The commission also recommended to employers and employed a consideration of the five-day week and six-hour day; prevention of migration of workers from place to place; creation of employment wherever possible rather than direct relief or charity, and the creation of a general sentiment in behalf of increased public works, local, state and national.

PEDDLER TAX REPEAL BALKED

Bill Held Invalid on Technicality

AUSTIN, Sept. 23. (UP)—Repeal of the state peddler tax, now tangled in a net of court injunctions, was jeopardized today by a ruling from the state attorney general's department.

Though not included in the governor's call of the present special session, Texas lawmakers voted a bill striking the peddler tax from the state statutes. Elbert Hooper, assistant attorney general, ruled that all bills enacted by the present session not included in the governor's call were invalid. The ruling also endangers nearly a dozen local bills passed by both houses.

Hooper ruled also that such bills cannot be made valid by the signature of Gov. Ross Sterling. The ruling was made for the committee on state affairs at the request of Senator George C. Purl of Dallas.

Condemned Man In Good Health

M'ALESTER, Okla., Sept. 23. (UP)—Warden Sam Brown of the state penitentiary said today that Henry Lovett, condemned to die Thursday midnight was not on a hunger strike in an attempt "to cheat the electric chair."

Lovett, convicted on a murder charge at El Reno in the bank robbery slaying of Dee Foliart, high school coach, had refused to take any nourishment other than liquid food. He was taken to the hospital for a short time.

Warden Brown said the condemned man was in good health today, and had gained weight since coming to the penitentiary to take his place in death row.

Not more than 20 will witness the execution, the warden said.

Friends of the dead woman stated that her relatives are citizens of Cuba.

Today

At the Theaters

By ELLEN SEE

MAJESTIC: Nancy Carroll in "Personal Maid," with Pat O'Brien and Gene Raymond. Our Gang comedy, "Helping Grandma." "Mickey Steps Out," cartoon and Paramount talking news.

STATE: "Daughter of the Dragon," with Anna May Wong, Warner Oland and Sessue Hayakawa. Novelty, "Hot and Bothered," Flip the Frog cartoon and Universal news. At matinees only, new serial, "The Vanishing Legion."

GEM: Richard Arlen and Mary Brian in "Gun Smoke." "Aunts in the Pants," comedy.

If you want to laugh and are ready to laugh at pure nonsense (previews do the play wrong when they give an idea at times that it might be impure), then you will welcome the four Marx brothers who will appear at the Majestic theater Saturday and will continue their hilarious scenes through Tuesday.

The play, which begins in mid-ocean is a series of mad capers by a troop of regardlessly goofy humans. And there's a big bunch of Wichitans who get an enormous kick out of their escapades.

It will not hurt a child's morals and lots of dignified people will catch their breath to say "Oh the fool thing," then laugh again.

There are plenty of wise cracks and a mere skeleton of a plot, but what does a plot matter when it's as mad as the proverbial mad hatter?

Beginning Wednesday Nancy Car-roll made her apeparance in "Personal Maid," at the Majestic. Well, Nancy is pretty. We went in on the wind up of the Paramount news and found Aimee Semple McPherson telling of her marriage as she sat beside her 250 pound annex. But we are going back; there's an "Our Gang Comedy" and we always like them.

Members of the local board of education decided to keep on file in the superintendent's office permanent record cards of each student now in any of the Wichita Falls public schools. A special form for the cards was decided on also, according to Superintendent H. D. Fillers.

The permanent record cards will be the means of easier and more thorough check-ups on every child in the public school system, the superintendent explained. On each card is a place to tell family name of each child, parents' names, whether or not each parent is alive, guardian's name, his relationship to the child the other children in the family, sex, date of birth, age last birthday, name of school attended and grade of child, name of adult with whom the child lives, his relationship to the child, street address, school district, and date.
