

Rambles Over the County

J. W. L. COOK
The Leader's Rambling Editor

Going south out of town we stopped at the home of J. E. Langley who lives out on route 4. Mr. Langley has only been in this county about four years. He is a native of Arkansas, but has been in Texas several years before coming to Collingsworth county. He comes here from Eastland County. Mr. Langley has a good home about due south of Wellington three miles. He owns 100 acres of land, a fairly good house and barn and other outbuildings. He has a fair crop for this year. He is counting on one fourth of a bale to the acre. Mr. Langley is well pleased with this country and is not discouraged with the present crop.

We visited other places along route 4, but most of the owners were away, most of them at some of the Wellington gins. We stopped at the home of H. P. Thomas at whose home we spent the noon hour. We enjoyed a good dinner and left the Thomas home feeling that we had all profited by the visit as we left them with a "History of Collingsworth County and Other Stories" and his date set up to the Leader one more year. The Rambler had had another square meal so we were all happy.

We stopped for a short while at the home of J. K. Gant who lives just on the south side of Buck Creek on route 4. We failed to find Mr. Gant at home. He, like a majority of the farmers, was at the gin, but we took a stroll over some of his cotton crop. Mr. Gant has a fine crop of cotton. He has most of his cotton on low valley land, lying along the banks of Buck Creek. He has some cotton that will make a bale to the acre, most of his cotton is above the average. We finally met Mr. Gant on the road and he gave us an order for the Leader to be sent to his address.

Our next home to visit was that of Mrs. Julia Vaughan, about six miles southwest of Wellington. Mrs. Vaughan has lived in this county 19 years. She came to this county from Hunt County. She is a native of Texas, was born and raised in Kaufman county. Mrs. Vaughan is farming the Hugh Black place. She has a good farm and home. She says she will make near a half bale of cotton to the acre and will make plenty feed to run the place another year. Mrs. Vaughan is an old time reader of the Leader and set her date far enough ahead to get a history of Collingsworth County.

We went on west from the home of Mrs. Vaughan to the home of W. H. Box, which is 8 miles southwest of Wellington. We arrived at this place just in time to find Mr. Box at home as he was just starting to the gin with a bale of cotton. Mr. Box has lived in Collingsworth county 8 years. He is another Fannin County man. We are getting afraid that old Fannin will get ahead of Montague as we are finding a lot of people from that county. We think she is second in the population of this county. Mr. Box is farming one of the J. B. Long farms. He has a nice crop. He says he will get one-half bale of cotton to the acre all over his crop and his maize will make a ton to the acre. Mr. Box says he is well satisfied with the soil of Arkansas, but has lived in this year's crop. Mr. Box is a native Texas many years. He is a subscriber to the Wellington Leader and gave us an order for 108 more doses.

It was getting late and we turned back toward home but stopped at the J. C. Atwood home about 4 miles south of Wellington. We visited at this place last summer and wrote a short story of the home. Mrs. Atwood says she thinks she will get 15 bales of cotton from 45 acres. She says she is thankful for even that much as she thought at one time she would get nothing. She is a paid up subscriber but set her date far enough ahead to get a history of Collingsworth County.

We stopped for a short while at the home of M. C. Pigg, about four miles south of town. Mr. Pigg was busy picking cotton. He had just come from the gin, so you see it is no joke about all the farmers being at town having cotton ginned. Mr. Pigg says he is counting one one-third of a bale of cotton on all his crop. In our rambles over route 4 we found a very busy people. All the fields were white with cotton, some seemed to have hands enough to gather their crop but others were short of help and were wanting pickers. There are good crops on nearly every field we visited. Nearly everyone says their cotton is better than they thought, although it is not near as good as last year's crop. However, we find some few that says they will make about as good as they raised last year.

For local interest the best book of the year is "A History of Collingsworth County."

HOME GIRL WINS FIRST HEM PRIZE

Hazel Haralson Wins First On Patch At Dallas State Fair

Hazel Haralson, Katherine and Evelyn McMinn and Peggy Hill returned from the Dallas Fair Friday night.

Hazel Haralson won first State prize on her hemmed patch. The judges said it was the best patch they have ever seen.

The three hundred girls who attended the Educational Encampment were guests of the Dallas Fair Association. They were given passes into the Fair grounds, also the grandstand and Coliseum.

Besides seeing the entire Fair the girls were taken to the largest park and zoo in Dallas, also through some of the largest department stores and to the top of the Magnolia Building, which is twenty-nine stories high.

The girls say that they had a wonderful trip and it was worth working for and they want to thank everyone who had a part in giving them their trip.

C. E. BAGWELL SAYS THIS IS BEST COUNTRY HE HAS LIVED IN

C. E. Bagwell, 10 miles west and south of Wellington, says he will make about 50 bales from 150 acres of cotton. Mr. Bagwell says he came from Oklahoma and that he can cultivate the same number of acres here will less expense than he can one third that amount where he came from in Oklahoma. He says that country is so poisoned with different kinds of vegetation until the land owner will not rent one man a large tract of land to cultivate. He says from every point of view with reference to farming, this is the best country he has ever lived in. Mr. Bagwell says he has a small family, but he has not paid out anything toward making his crop in the way of hired labor.

HUFFMAN WILL MAKE 100 BALES FROM 140 ACRES

W. V. Huffman, a progressive farmer 8 miles southwest of Wellington, living on Mrs. J. C. Hampton's place, says he will make 100 bales of cotton from 140 acres. He will also make about 40 tons of maize from 35 acres. Mr. Huffman is formerly of Grayson County, lived there for many years. He says he can cultivate the 140 acres of cotton with much less expense than he could 50 acres of cotton in that country. He says this is the only place for a cotton farmer. Mr. Huffman has been here four years and has done extra well.

W. W. SUGG HAS PATCH WHICH WILL PRODUCE OVER BALE TO ACRE

W. W. Sugg has a patch of three acres of cotton from which one bale and a half has already been gathered, and it is expected that it will produce either a bale and a half or two bales more by the time it is all picked. This particular patch has received no extra cultivation this year. It is just a case of the soil being a little richer than in other places.

County Ginned 8,750 Bales to Saturday Night

Up to last Saturday at midnight the gins of Wellington had ginned 5,251 bales. The gins of Dodsonville had ginned 1,700 and the other gins had turned out approximately 1,800 bales up to Saturday night. This makes a total of 8,751 bales that had been ginned in Collingsworth County up to Saturday night. This mark will be pushed up near the 14,000 mark by Nov. 1 if the fair weather continues.

On Nov. 1 of last year 14,046 bales had been ginned in Collingsworth county.

The government estimate which was released Monday announced another great increase in production. The report gave the probable yield at 15,226,000 bales. This is nearly two million more bales than the estimate gave two weeks ago. The increase was due to the ginners reports and not to more favorable reports on crops. The ginners report was 9,519, 789 bales.

Some farmers and cotton men of Wellington believe that the great bulk of the cotton crop has been gathered early this year, and the fact that a large amount of cotton has been ginned is not a sure sign that 15,226,000 bales will be produced.

Here and There

A. B. Higgins thinks one reason the farmers make no more money is that they try to cultivate too much land and are out too much expense in gathering the crop. He thinks the country would be more prosperous if there were more farmers working smaller tracts of land and in this way they could gather what they raise.

George Richards thinks some farmers give too much publicity to the good crops they raise and this tends to make it seem like there is more cotton being produced than there really is.

All merchants of Wellington report an extra heavy business last Saturday, and it is interesting to note that the big advertisers had the biggest days.

J. E. Leggett, former mayor of Wellington, thinks that the proposed bond issue would be a good financial move for the city. He says that warrants eat up the credit of a growing city faster than a bond issue. He says the bond issue will give Wellington a credit margin of something between $50,000 and $75,000. He thinks the interest rate is also favorable.

Toliver Hayes, a farmer west of Wellington some six miles on H. B. Cox's place, says he has about 75 acres of cotton that will make 20 to 25 bales. Mr. Hayes came to this country from the east, this being his first year, says he is satisfied with the prospects of this being a fine farming country.

H. H. Driver, living in the southwest part of the county, says he has 40 acres of cotton that will make about 20 bales. He says his crop is an average yield of his community.

E. H. Vaughan, an energetic farmer living 5 miles southwest of Wellington, says he has raised a cotton crop of 180 acres with very little expense, and he is almost sure for 75 bales. He and his force of pickers have gathered 6 bales, he says the first going over will be mostly snaps, but the second will be picked cotton. Mr. Vaughan is a citizen that any community ought to be proud of, he also says he has 25 acres of maize that will make 25 tons of feed.

Mr. Vaughan states that he subscribed for the Wellington Leader and received a "History of Collingsworth County and Other Stories," and every spare minute that he has he is reading the history. He says it surely is worth the price, either to buy out right, or get it with the subscription price.

G. K. Patterson, a land owner of 160 acres, six miles west of Wellington, says he has 195 acres in cotton that will make 100 bales of which he has 26 bales picked. He also has 140 acres of maize that will make 100 tons, he has 12 acres of sorghum that he has harvested 5,500 bundles from. Mr. Patterson says he will have at least 50 tons of maize for sale but will not sell until after the first of the year, as he has plenty of barn room to store the feed away. He thinks after the first of the year he will get a better price.

HOLLIS WINS GAME FRIDAY BY 7-0 SCORE

One of Best Games of Football Played Here This Year

After exhibiting the best brand of football shown this year, Wellington lost the game with Hollis last Friday by the score of 7 to 0. Wellington made something like 150 yards as compared with forty made by the Hollis team. Wellington had the ball in her possession nine tenths of the time. Wellington should have won the game 14 to 0.

If Lloyd Powell had not been injured so that he was almost helpless during the fourth period even though he was left in just to keep up the morale of the team, Wellington would have won in spite of the breaks. It was Powell's inability to make his customary smashes through the line that prevented Wellington from scoring when they had the ball on the Hollis 5 yard line.

If Wellington had not been penalized fifteen yards, which though it was just, must be considered a break in the game, she would have scored. And if either of these two things had happened that long high kick that went so far over Bill Leggett's head would have never been booted. And it was that kick of forty-five yards which rolled into a ninty yard kick before it was picked up that changed Wellington from the offensive side to the defensive side. Stafford inability to distance on his punt kept Wellington from holding Hollis to 0 to 0 even after this.

But in spite of all this Wellington played a glorious game against the team that literally swamped Childress. The interference on the long end runs was splendid. On these runs it was nothing uncommon for Lloyd Powell to take four men out of the play before going down himself and generally he didn't go down. Red McInnis was the chief ground gainer.

Following the interference as long as he could and running a beautiful broken field after his interference was down, McInnis carried the ball on one forty yard run and on one 25 yard run besides other smaller gains. Stafford and Leggett ran good interference and both made good gains at times. Leggett almost went over for a touchdown on a long end run, but failed to gain when he attempted to carry the ball a second time near the end of the last quarter.

Ralph Long was the outstanding star on the line, but they were all so good that it is hard to pick stars in the line.

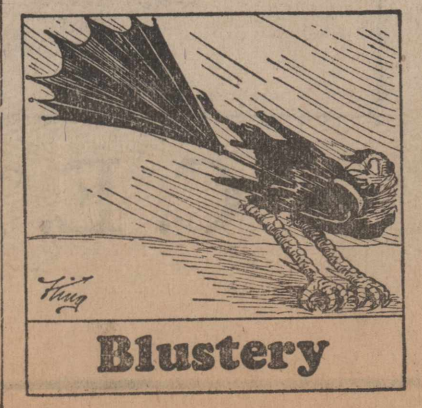

Wellington was hurt in two ways at the end of that game. One was the injury to Lloyd Powell who may not be able to play in the next two games. The other is the injury it may do quarterback Leggett. Bill had rather have Lloyd's fractured shoulder than the memory of that ball sailing over his head, and that may cause him to lose confidence in his generalship. He ran the team smoothly and well, and he should consider the game as a whole.

If Wellington recovers from these two injuries, she is going to win the next game. It wouldn't matter if it were with Childress, Clarendon or Shamrock, for Wellington has a real football team that has developed in the last three weeks.

W. J. BREWSTER OF GORDONVILLE DIES

H. L. Brewster a farmer of this community received a telegram from Gordonville, Texas, Grayson County, stating that his father, W. J. Brewster, had died. Mr. Brewster had been in failing health for some time, cause of death was attack of apoplexy of which he died very suddenly. The remains were laid to rest in the Gordonville Cemetery.

THE WEATHER

More Land to Be Broken Out In Near Future

More land is constantly being put in cultivation in Collingsworth County. Last week Walter Campbell, who has extensive holdings in Childress and Collingsworth County bought six sections of land from Frank O. Mills of Lewis, Iowa. This land is located south of Wellington in what is known as the Beggs pasture.

C. W. Roberts also bought one section of this land recently and John Barjenbrook and associates bought another section. Although some of this land will be allowed to remain grazing land a good part of it will be put in cultivation.

This land has been sold by a local real estate dealer who has been instrumental in turning several big deals in the past few months. He says more of the land is expected to move in h nearshrdluesshrduetoain move in the near future. This is a good thing for the county and the business people of Wellington.

COCHRAN TO MOVE DRUG STORE TO THE NORTH SIDE SQUARE

A. L. Cochran has purchased the building in which the Wellington Tailoring Co. and the Coe Barber Shop are located and will move his drug store to that location at the first of the year. The building in which Mr. Cochran is now located will be occupied by a dry goods firm under the ownership of Percy Wells. So many new business houses have come in and the old ones have changed around until anyone who was perfectly familiar with Wellington two years ago would not recognize the town now.

METHODIST GIRLS ELECT OFFICERS FOR COMING YEAR

The class of girls of the Methodist Church, age 14 and 15, organized their class last Sunday, October 18. The Class is under the instruction of Mrs. Lee O'Neil and will be called the S. A. S. Class. There are about twenty-five members in this class at the present and it is hoped this others will join this group of girls.

Officers elected for this class were: President, Mildred Scruggs, vice-president, Mildred Henard; Secretary, Faye Anderson; treasurer, Evelyn Conner; press reporter, Jane Pedigo.

BILL GODFREY IS MAKING RECORD AT LOUISIANA STATE

Reports from Baton Rouge indicate that the success of the Louisiana Tigers will depend a great deal this season on the field generalship of "Babe" Godfrey who is regarded as the find of the year. He is playing quarterback on the Louisiana team and has made an excellent record this year. Godfrey whose home is in Wellington and Travis Lackey, who is now working at the Watkins and Kimbell gin, were the mainstays of the New Mexico Military Institute for three years in which that school has one of the best teams it has ever had. Godfrey played half and full and Lackey played tackle.

FAIN STORE OPENS IN SHAMROCK THIS WEEK

The Fain Department of Shamrock, which is a branch of the Fain Department Store in Wellington, opens this week. Mr. Fain has moved his headquarters from Memphis to Wellington and will operate all three stores from this place. Mr. Fain considers these towns three of the best business towns in the Panhandle, but his preference for Wellington can be seen from the location of his headquarters.

REV. GAINES RETURNS FROM MEET

Rev. F. E. Graham of Lamesa Succeeds Retiring Pastor Here

Rev. Lee Gaines has returned from the district assembly which was held at Hamlin, Texas. Rev. Gaines says the meeting was the greatest that he has ever seen of its kind. All the churches over the entire district have shown a very substantial growth, according to Rev. Gaines. Large number of the churches paid up their apportionments in full. The young peoples societies have shown a very substantial growth. Rev. Allie Irick was re-elected district superintendent for the fifth year.

Rev. Gaines leaves this week for Little Rock, Ark. His position will be filled by Rev. F. E. Graham of Lamesa, Texas. Rev. Gaines has been at Lamesa for three years and has done a splendid work there. Although this community regrets to lose Rev. Gaines, it is fortunate in getting as able a minister as Rev. Graham.

MISS GILLENTE IS HONORED WITH BIRTHDAY PARTY

Miss Elizabeth Gillentine was honored on her twelfth birthday, Friday, October 23, with a Halloween-Birthday party.

Halloween decorations were carried out in the decorations of the rooms. The two ghosts, Lorenda McCommas and Rudine Wood, caused much fun and excitement among the guests. The ghosts admitted the little friends one by one to the fortune teller's room. When a guest entered she was escorted by one of the ghosts to the coffin where lay the dead spirit, then to the fortune teller's chair where she hear her future. During the evening many games were played. Miss Evelyn Joy Burt won the prize, a small witch doll, in the apple bobbing contest. The charming hostess received many beautiful gifts and many happy wishes and good luck in her twelfth year.

Tiny crepe paper baskets filled with assorted Halloween candies were given as favors. A menu consisting of sandwiches, hot chocolate with marshmelows, pickles, olives chocolate walnut cake and white cake was served to Carrie Nola Campbell, Mary Nell Keithley, Mary Anna Scott, Nov Camps, Nola Camps, Doty West, Faye Bell Annalou Harper, Ethel Graham, Lucille Stall, Evelyn Joy Burt and Dorothy Margaret Cocke.

TEACHERS TO GIVE RECITAL AT CHURCH THIS AFTERNOON

Mrs. Aubrey Dobbs, teacher of piano and violin, and Miss Leila Giles, teacher of expression in the Wellington schools, will present a number of their high school students in a recital at the First Baptist Church of Wellington Wednesday afternoon, October 28, at 4:30.

This is the first joint recital that has been planned for the year and the public is cordially invited to attend this program.

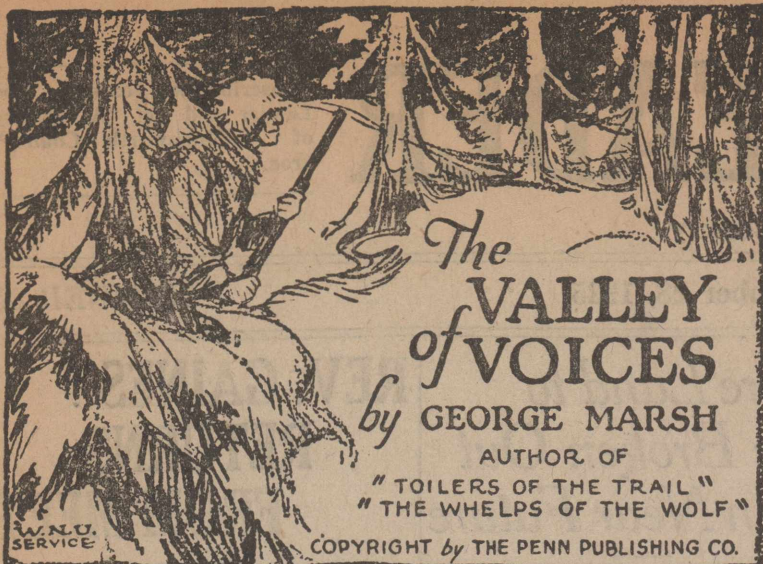

MISSIONARY BAPTIST MEETING

Rev. E. H. Kennedy of Lelia Lake will hold a short series of meetings, beginning Sunday, November 1, at 11 o'clock. Subject Sunday at 11:00 o'clock, "The Two Covenants," Sunday night, "What the Church by Jesus Christ Has"; Monday night, "Missions." Everybody is invited to come and hear him at the Primitive Baptist Church (or old Christian Church) one block east of First Baptist Church. J. R. LEARD

Thieves Take Near $5,000 in Two Robberies Over Week End

Merchants of Wellington had better be careful about leaving money in their stores over night. Two robberies amounting to near $5,000 have been committed in nearby towns in the last week. Thugs entered the Forbis and Stone Dry Goods Store at Shamrock last Saturday night and stole $1,850. Sunday evening robbers broke into the Wherry Jewelry Store at Memphis and took jewelry valued at $3,000. Elk City authorities have telephoned officers to be on the lookout for three men who stole $300 there Monday. The loss at Shamrock was in checks and cash, and the loss at Memphis was in diamonds. The County and City officials of Wellington have been on the alert since news of the robberies was sent in. Bloodhounds were used in an attempt to trace the thieves butthus far they have not been located.

SYNOPSIS

CHAPTER I.—With David, half-breed guide, Brent Steele, of the American Museum of Natural History, is traveling in northern Canada. By a stream he hears Denise, daughter of Col. Hilaire St. Onge, factor at Walling River, play the violin superbly. He introduces himself and accepts an invitation to make the post his home during his stay. From St. Onge he learns of the mysterious creature of evil, the "Windigo," and the disappearance of a canoe and its crew, with the season's take of furs.

CHAPTER II.—Steele hears the "Windigo." David and Michel, St. Onge's head-man, leave for the scene of the canoe's disappearance. St. Onge tells Steele that Lascelles, the company's manager at Fort Albany, seeks his ruin in order to compel Denise to marry him to save her father.

CHAPTER III.—Hearing her violin playing, Steele realizes that Denise is sacrificing a brilliant musical career to comfort her father. David and Michel return, but are uncommunicative.

CHAPTER IV.—Tete-Boule, Indian in St. Onge's employ, is caught listening to Steele's talk with David and Michel, and roughly handled. Steele learns that Louis Lafamme, factor at Ogoke, has made application to her father for the hand of Denise.

"What were they like, Michel?"
"They were long lak' de bear, but no bear eel des countree mak' dem so big."
"Queer ting de bear w'at mak' de track," broke in David, "was starv' for dey not seenk far een de mud. An' he have seex-seven toe on for feet."

"Just like the ones I'll show you in the morning!" exclaimed Steele.
"And you found no trail of the men with the canoe?"

"No sign but 'round de camp—no trail in muskeg."
"Well, Michel, what do you think? Could the brute that made the track you saw, howl like the one on the ridge here?"

The Iroquois' small eyes narrowed to slits. He puffed hard for a space before answering. "De howl on de ridge was no bear—bear onlee yell w'en he get hurt. Michel not know w'at howl on de ridge but he fin' out before de long snow melt."

"What do you think made the trail, David?" Steele grinned into the set face of his friend.

David shook his head. "I nevaire see so beeg bear track."

Then Steele told of his search of the ridge for signs of the night wailer, and of the tracks he had seen that afternoon. But cudgel their brains as they would, the three men were at a total loss for a solution of the riddle of their origin.

The night shut down but the three men on the river shore still sat smoking, hard at their council of war. In the middle of a sentence, David suddenly stopped, raising his head as though listening. Then, silently rising, he plunged into a clump of alders close by! A low curse—the sound of a scuffle.

"By gar! W'at you got, Daveed?" demanded Michel as he and Steele followed to the brush.

"I show you somet'ing!" was the muttered reply, as the dark shape of the Ojibway dragged an indistinguishable, struggling mass from the alders.

"Tete-Boule!" gasped Michel, peering into the face of David's prisoner. "W'at you do dere?"

"So you tink to hear somet'ing, Tete-Boule?" growled the angry voice of the Ojibway shaking the man he held in the vise of his two hands as a husky dog shakes a rabbit. "You crawl lak' de mink, but I smell you lak' de wolf smell de wood mouse," and the man from Nepigon shifted a hand to Tete-Boule's throat. The mouth of the trembling eavesdropper gaped for air.

"Now I geeve you somet'ing to leeson to, Wabeno! Shaman! Maker ov de Beeg Medicine! Eef you don't be ver' careful, David, de Nepigon Wolf, will tear de devil out ov your t'roat." And with a wrench he sent Tete-Boule sprawling on the beach.

"Guess he won't eavesdrop again in a hurry!" laughed Steele, as the cowed Indian disappeared in the shadows. But Michel seemed so strangely silent that the American asked:

"What's the matter, Michel, don't you like to see him handled so roughly?"

The Iroquois made no reply.
"Wake up, Michel, and tell us what you think?"

"I tink," said the head-man slowly, "dat de long snows will be red in dees valley."

"What, you don't think that fool Tete-Boule will make trouble?"
"Tete-Boule ees no fool," He would say no more.

The house was silent when Steele, filled with the events of the day, went to his room. Late into the night his thoughts were busy with the hours on the ridge with Denise St. Onge, with memories of her flushed response to his emotion, of her abandon, to the feeling which had swept her when she played her "Farewell," of her reticence and yet her desire to make clear the situation which her father seemingly feared to reveal to Steele. Then the matter of the tracks in the mud; what manner of beast could be loose in the "bush"? In the morning they would take up that trail and follow it, but when they lost it in the dry going, what next? Well, they had a plan for the next month, but the Frenchman would first have to show his cards. If he refused, there was nothing to do but get on to Nepigon. On the way there was Ogoke and Monsieur Lafamme. That ought to be interesting. But little did Steele realize as his drowsy brain dwelt for an instant on the call on Monsieur Lafamme, free-trader, just how interesting that visit was to be.

At daylight three men were bending over tracks which ran through a wet hollow less than a mile from Walling River.

"Well, Michel, did you ever see a black bear that would leave these behind him?" asked Steele as David and the head man carefully inspected the peculiar trail.

"Ver' beeg track but ver' strange bear," laconically vouchsafed the kneeling hunter.

"How about it, David?"
David bared a set of strong teeth in a characteristic smile.

"W'en we start up river for de Nepigon, I tell you. You laugh at me eef I say w'at I tink now."

Michel took up the trail forward while David and Steele followed it back only to lose it shortly in the dry birch leaves. On their return they found Michel waiting.

"She don't run far," he announced. "I don't followed eet far in de dry bush."

Then the three made a wide circle, but failed to pick up the elusive tracks. Disappointed, they were returning to the post by another route than the trail to the ridge overlooking the "Vale of Tempe," when Michel, who was leading suddenly stopped in his tracks, raising his hand in warning.

Stiff as the spruce around them, the three stood listening. Faintly to their straining ears came a low chanting, accompanied by the rhythmic beating of what sounded like a drum. Steele turned a questioning face to David, who grinned broadly, nodding his head in time to the far drum beats.

"What in thunder!" queried the curious scientist.

"You hear dot down on de Nepigon, one tam," dryly returned the Ojibway.

"It sounds like it. Somebody doing some conjuring, eh?"

"Tete-Boule, de beeg shaman, mak' heeself some medicine dees morning." "Is he driving away the Windigo, or is he trying to get you bewitched for shaking him up last night?"

"I tink he try to call de Windigo for to mak' de beeg medicine togeder," laughed David.

"Do the post people know that Tete-Boule is a Wabeno, Michel?" Steele asked of the silent man who had vouchsafed no comment.

"Tete-Boule mak' medicine for long tam, to drive away de Windigo. De people tink he ees beeg shaman, for sure."

"Well, the first thing for St. Onge to do is to get rid of this nuisance, Tete-Boule. He keeps the post Indians stirred up with his mumbo-jumbo, and ought to be kicked out. What do you think, Michel?"

For answer, the tall Iroquois drew an ugly skinning knife from its sheath in his belt. Then he said, "It be good t'ing eef I put dees een hees back?"

"No, not without orders from your chief," replied Steele, amused at the literal interpretation given to his suggestion. "But this Tete-Boule will make trouble all winter with his sorcery."

As they talked, the low droning continued, accented by the beating of the drum.

"Let's see what he is about," suggested Steele, and they crept forward.

Within a hundred yards they made out a small, round skin tipi from which the sing-song emanated.

"Naske awass, Windigo!" moaned the voice inside. "Ahuah! ahuah!" "He tell de Windigo to go away," whispered David to Steele.

The State of Texas,
To the Sheriff or any Constable of Collingsworth County, Greeting:
You are hereby commanded to summon Jennie B. Hauter Geesey and husband, C. L. Geesey and Jefferson E. Greer by making publication of this Citation once in each week for four successive weeks previous to the return day hereof, in some newspaper published in your County, if there be a newspaper published therein, but if not, then in the nearest County where a newspaper is published, to appear at the next regular term of the District Court of Collingsworth County, to be holden at the Court House thereof, in Wellington, on the 23rd day of November A. D. 1925, then and there to answer a petition filed in said Court on the 13th day of October A. D. 1925, in a suit, numbered on the docket of said Court as No. 1030, wherein Frank O. Mills is Plaintiff, and Jennie B. Hauter Geesey and husband C. L. Geesey and Jefferson E. Greer are defendants and said petition alleging that the defendant, Jennie B. Hauter Geesey is the duly appointed, acting and qualified Trustee of the estate of the late Jefferson E. Greer, the deceased father of the defendant Jefferson E. Greer, and that he herein complains of the defendant Jennie B. Hauter Geesey as such Trustee as well as in her individual capacity.
Plaintiff further alleges that on the 1st day of April 1925 he was lawfully seized and possessed of the following described land and premises, situated and being in the Counties of Childress and Collingsworth, to-wit:
All of Sections No. 5, 6, 15, 16, 17 and 18 in Block No. 14 H. & G. N. RY. CO. Surveys in Childress County, Texas; and all of Sections No. 26, 26, 35 and 39 and 43 in Block No. 14 H. & G. N. RY. CO. Surveys in Collingsworth County, Texas, said sections constituting one body of land known as the 'Frank C. Mills Ranch.'

Plaintiff further alleges, that on the day and year above mentioned and while he was owning and claiming said land and premises in fee simple, the defendants, Jennie B. Hauter Geesey, acting in her individual capacity and as Trustee aforesaid, and C. L. Geesey and Jefferson E. Greer unlawfully entered upon said land and premises and ejected plaintiff therefrom, and unlawfully withheld from him the possession thereof, to his damage in the sum of $100,000.00; that the reasonable rental value of said land is $5,000.00 per annum.
Wherefore, plaintiff prays that the defendants and each of them be cited in terms of law to appear and answer this petition at the next regular term of his court, and hat on final hearing hereof that he have judgment for the title and possession of the above mentioned land and premises; that writ of restitution issue; and that he have judgment for his damage, rents, cost of suit and for such other and further relief in law and in equity as he may show himself entitled to under the evidence.

Herein I fail Not, and have before said Court, at its aforesaid next regular term, this writ with your return thereon, showing how you have executed the same.

Given under my hand and the Seal of said Court, at office in Wellington this the 13th day of October A. D. 1925.

LENORA SHERWOOD, Clerk,
District Court, Collingsworth County.

CITATION BY PUBLICATION

THE STATE OF TEXAS

To the Sheriff or any Constable of Collingsworth County, GREETINGS:

You are hereby commanded, that by making Publication of this Citation in some newspaper published in the County of Collingsworth, if there be a newspaper published in said County, but if not, in the nearest County where a newspaper is published, for four successive weeks previous to the return day hereof you summons E. D. Dailey, whose residence is unknown to be and appear before the Hon. Justice Court in and for Precinct No. One, Collingsworth, at Wellington on the 23rd day of November, 1925. The number of said cause being 1566 then and there to answer the petition of W. C. Busser filed in said court on the 25th day of March A. D., 1925 against the said E. D. Dailey and alleging in substance as follows: Suit for money loaned defendant and which was due on March 20, 1925. Now past due and unpaid though payment requested. Plaintiff having caused writ of garnishment to issue against City National Bank in Wellington, Texas.

HEREIN FAIL NOT, but have you then and there before said Court this Writ with your return thereon, showing how you have executed the same. Given under my hand in Wellington, Texas, this 14th day of October A. D., 1925.

CITATION BY PUBLICATION

THE STATE OF TEXAS.

To the Sheriff or any Constable of Collingsworth County, Greeting:

You are Hereby Commanded to summon the unknown heirs of Robert Swearingen, deceased, by making publication of this Citation once in each week for four successive weeks previous to the return day hereof, in some newspaper published in your County, if there be a newspaper published therein, but if not, then in the nearest County where a newspaper is published, to appear at the next regular term of the District Court of Collingsworth County, to be held at the Court House thereof, in Wellington, on the Fourth Monday in November, A. D. 1925, the same being the 23rd day of November A. D. 1925, then and there to answer an amended petition filed in said Court on the 20th day of October A. D. 1925, in a suit, numbered on the docket of said Court as No. 886, wherein R. A. Campbell, joined by her husband, J. S. Campbell are plaintiffs, and unknown heirs of Robert Swearingen deceased are defendants, and said petition alleging R. A. Campbell, joined by her husband J. S. Campbell who reside in Collingsworth County, Texas, hereinafter called plaintiffs, complaining of the unknown heirs of Robert Swearingen, deceased, whose residence is unknown, and the way of First Amended Petition herein says: That R. A. Campbell and J. S. Campbell have acquired the interest in the subject matter of this suit of Lee C. O'Neil since the filing of said suit, and substituted themselves as plaintiffs herein, and after diligent inquiry and search have been unable to ascertain the whereabouts of the heirs of Robert Swearingen and the same are unknown. And for cause of action, plaintiffs represent to the court that on or about October 16th 1922, they were lawfully seized and possessed of Lot No. Eight (8) in Block No. 125 in Wellington, Collingsworth County, Texas, according to the original map of said town, holding and claiming said lot of land in fee simple; and that upon the day and year 1st aforesaid, and at all times since plaintiffs have been the legal owners of said lot, using and occupying same as part of their homestead. That plaintiffs deigned title to said lot from J. W. Swearingen by regular chain of title, but that after said J. W. Swearingen who is the common source of title as for this suit, had conveyed said lot to the grantors through whom plaintiffs so acquire title, he made a deed to said lot to Robert Swearingen, which deed is of record in Vol. 1, page 283 of the Deed Records of Collingsworth County, Texas, which said deed cast a cloud upon plaintiffs' title to said lot which makes it unmerchantable, and the same should be cancelled.

Wherefore, plaintiffs prays that said unknown heirs of said Robert Swearingen be cited by Publication as required by law in such cases, to appear and answer his petition, and that upon final hearing hereof, that they have judgment cancelling said deed and removing the cloud upon the title to said lot, and for cost of suit and all other and further relief, special and general in law and equity that they may be entitled to.

Herein Fail Not, and have before said Court, at its aforesaid next regular term, this writ with your return thereon, showing how you have executed the same.

Given under my hand and the Seal of said Court, at office in Wellington this the 20th day of October A. D. 1925.

AT THE CHURCH OF CHRIST

You should have been with us last Lord's day. There was a nice audience present at noon hours and our hearts were made to rejoice by three more grown people taking their stand with the Church of Christ in Wellington. Our interest in the Lord's day Bible study continues to grow. We have recently arranged two new classes but will have to arrange two or three more as the classes are getting too large again. Bro. J. S. Dorn addresses the audience at the hour of worship next Lord's day. It will do you good to hear him. Bible study begins at 10 a. m., prayer meeting on Wednesday nights.

Star Cars Win With R. F. D. Men

It takes a car that can stand hard knocks, and furnish plenty of power and at the same time do it at small cost to satisfy the rural mail carriers. That is the reason hundreds of rural carriers are changing to the Star Car every month.

The averages of 46 Stars in R. F. D. Service show why they do it:

1. Star automobiles still in active Rural Mail Service have been driven as far as 65,000 miles;
2. Several cars have been started and stopped upwards of 50,000 times and one car in particular 200,000 times, without injury;
3. They averaged 21 4-10 miles per gallon of gas under the trying conditions imposed by rural mail service;
4. They averaged 11,175 miles per set of tires, most of the mileage on fabric tires;
5. Mechanical repairs and replacements averaged approximately 1-9 cent per mile;
6. 56 per cent used no oil between changes and the remainder averaged 179 miles per quart of oil between changes;
7. Average operating cost, including expenditures for gas, oil, tires and mechanical repairs and replacements, approximated 2 1-4 cents a mile.

Treasurer Andrews says R. F. D. Men will find the Star most economical and best for Rural Mail Service

"It is by far the most economical machine I have ever used in the rural service. I am getting an average of about 24 miles per gallon of gas and seldom add any cylinder oil between oil changes.

"It is my opinion that if rural mail carriers will use the Star Car for service on their routes, they will find it the most economical and best way to render service." L. Andrews, White Wright, Texas, Secretary, Texas Rural Carriers' Assn., Treasurer, National Rural Letter Carriers' Assn.

About Face

THIS IS TO announce a change of Policy. Here-tofore the management of the Leader believed that a newspaper should run advertising from any source provided it was truthful advertising, and it practiced this policy. Recently one merchant objected because a mail order advertisement was run. The Leader immediately went to see the other merchants of the town. The consensus of their views is this:

They have no kick to make against outside advertising as it concerns their business. They are selling their merchandise at such prices and of such quality that they invite comparison. They say also that a newspaper has a perfect business right to sell its space to those who want to buy it just as they sometimes have their circulars and other printing done out of town. The only reason, they say, that can be pointed is that the local concerns are the institutions that support the local churches, schools, city and county government.

In view of this liberal attitude, in view of the fact that these merchants are selling products which give better value, and in view of the support they have given this paper, The Leader has canceled the advertisement which was to run thirteen weeks.

As one merchant said a paper has a perfect right to run such advertising, but it is not always wise to do something just because you have a right to do it.

Technique

DR P. W. HORN, president of the Texas Technological College, showed he knew something about actual conditions when he said: "We will have to develop our own technique for West Texas, in large scale operations. Also we intend to specialize in the development of textile engineering knowledge which will be developed until it becomes more prosperous per person than the state where the tall corn grows. It has been listed as a better business section for the past two years but this was due to unusually good years. It will take considerable development to make West Texas permanently prosperous, but the day is coming."

Friends

WHEN YOU HAVE made a mistake or fortune goes against you, you discover your real friends. You also discover those who are friendly simply because they think you have enough punch to come back, and you discover those who hope you stay down.

The first are to be treasured above material things, and it is sometimes a surprise to find just who they are. It is often the man who is only casually friendly in fair weather that stands back of you four square in times of stress. Such friends are to be remembered and loved.

But the friends which are the most valuable, not the most comforting, are those who are friendly simply because you can help them. They make you realize you must keep working, succeeding and advancing in order to hold their esteem. They are not entirely sincere, but they keep you struggling to go forward. If everyone were your stanch friend—a friend of the first class—you would have little incentive to improve yourself, little urge to do right, for your friends would stand by you regardless of what you did. But nine tenths of them are not that way, and thus you strive from young manhood to the beginning of second childhood to gain those things which make your status, namely: character, position, reputation, work and wealth.

And the third class of friends—your enemies: Really are there such things as enemies? If they are, they are only temporary. One year nations fight. The next they are allies. One day men fight. The next they are on the best of terms. But the enemies, they serve as standard of which you can judge yourself. Sometimes you become a better man and a more individual human by making an enemy.

One more observation and the preacher will close. To be in opposition is not to be in enmity. You sometimes find that your competitors are of the best friends you have, for they are working for the same principles.

What Other Newspapers Say

THE PRESIDENT says that the Government can't reform America. The idea will come as a shock to a certain class of people who think they are thinkers. But it really is pretty plain. Almost equally obvious is the President's further theory that religion alone can make the country respect law and obey it readily and loyally. There is more than alibi in these remarks.

The truth of the business is that the statutes have in some cases gone faster than the progress of religion's hold upon the daily lives of the people. In other words, the law has exacted in some degree a standard of morality higher than that exacted, apparently, by the conscience of the average citizen. That is a rather unfortunate situation. And yet a little sober thought will lead to the admission that it is easier to sign a petition or cast a vote than it is to concern yourself about how your own conduct may be influencing your neighbor. The question of whether your neighbor cares about God and his fellow man is a great deal more important than whether the criminal code requires him to do certain things and forbids him to do certain others.

We need the code. There is no question about that. But the code is a jumble of words, except as there is integrity to respect it and enforce it. And integrity flows from no stream so surely and continually as from religion. The kind of religion that the President talks about isn't within a mile and a half of an argument about fundamentalism and moderation. The kind Mr. Coolidge is talking about is the religion of personal faith in the Almighty and personal love for mankind. Unless a man thinks in personal terms about his religion—unless it means something in his own life and in the lives of those who come in contact with him—it may be philosophy, it may be creed, it may be theology, or sociology, or what not. But it isn't the religion that counts enough to help make his a law-abiding country. What the country needs is not your opinions or assents, but you—"a living sacrifice," as Paul called it, because a lifetime death was the tribute which man owed to deity, whereas now it is a life well lived and devoutly lived that all of us owe.

The President makes a pretty good preacher. But while we await the fruits of peachment we do well to go slow with enactments in order that conscience may lead the way, instead of this unseemly lagging behind which now shames us so.—Dallas News.

An Open Letter from Supt. L. T. Green

WE WOULD LIKE to do something or say something that would get the Wellington schools a little better established in the minds and hearts of the patrons. We would like for them to call it "our school." There are a great number of people living in Wellington that do not know the standing of the school. I would like to say that we have 19 1-2 units of affiliation. That means that the graduates of Wellington can enter any school in Texas without examination, or the work done here is accepted by all schools. The work is not only being accepted in Texas, but a number of our graduates are going to college in other states, and they have been entered without question. I think we should be proud of this attainment and it should arouse a great deal of local pride in our school.

But we do not want to stop with this. We must look forward. Our new High School building is crowded. With another good crop year, we are not going to be able to take care of our school situation. All the buildings are full this year but the West side, and there is only one vacant room there. We should be proud of this growth in our schools, for it is a good reflection on our progressive little city. The school is one of the biggest drawing cards a city has. It stands for every thing that is progressive in a town and at the same time it is trying to prepare men and women for the future in order to keep the good work going.

I would like to see West Side school remodeled by making it a two story building and eight new rooms added, equipped with a steam heating system and sewerage. We could convert the East Side into a modern Junior High school, including the sixth, seventh and eighth grades. We would have room enough to put all children from the first to the fifth grade inclusive at the West Side. That would enable us to take care of our future needs for several years and we could add a number of courses in the high school that are of more practical nature, such as commercial arts, shop work and manual arts. Now, to do this we would have to vote several thousand dollars worth of bonds, and the tax limit would have to be raised from 80 cents to a dollar limit.

I am proud of the work done by the Parent-Teachers Association. They are taking a live interest in the school. I am proud that every teacher in the faculty has paid the dues for this year. Why not expect that much of the parents, even though you are not able to attend the meetings. The ladies are spending the money wisely and judiciously. I am anxious for this to be the best year in the history of the school.

I appreciate all the co-operation we are getting from the patrons. I am open for any suggestion that you might give me that would help your child. We issue report cards every six weeks, please ask your child about them and keep up with them when they are due. Let's let the school be "our school" and Wellington will have a citizenship in the future that we shall all be proud of.

some small balsam near the tent, while the others watched.

Presently a low mewling from the Iroquois stopped short the wailing in the tent. Then from the balsam rose the caterwauling of a lynx in the mating season.

The drumming started furiously, accompanied by vociferous shouting. The scream of the lynx rose to a maniacal shriek. The drumming ceased, and the maddened cries of a creature frenzied with fear filled the tent. Presently the flap was thrust aside, and a grey-faced Indian scrambled out and fled like a deer in the direction of the post, leaving behind him a white man and an Ojibway doubled with laughter, and beside them, his face set like stone, a tall half-breed deep in thought.

"Why did you do that, Michel? He will only make things worse at the post."

"I try eef he scare ov de Windigo, heeself."

"Well, are you satisfied?"

"Yes, eet ees ver strange he ees so scare." And the head man shook his head doubtfully. "He talk to de Windigo, an' w'en he cum, he run." Back at the post Steele related to St. Onge the events of the morning.

"This Tete-Boule, Colonel, is only a source of trouble here. He is filling the minds of the Indians with the Windigo, and then makes medicine to drive him away, doubtless for a consideration."

St. Onge shrugged with indifference. "It will not matter. I am expecting a packet from Albany any day ordering me to abandon the post."

Steele stared at his host in surprise. Where was the old fighting blood in this veteran? What hidden cause had paralyzed his nerve? And his love for his daughter—that at least should drive him to fight through to the bitter end.

They were on the river shore and alone, so Steele grasped the opportunity for which he had waited. The matter between them had to be cleared up if he were to give his best efforts and those of David in the days to come.

"Colonel St. Onge," he began, "I am deeply interested in your situation here. I have offered the services of David and myself, in an attempt to aid you in your trouble; but I must say, candidly, that you are not meeting me half way. If I am to put in the next three weeks in an effort to run this thing down, I must first have your full and complete confidence. I must know—what you know—and think. This is due me. If you cannot take me into your confidence, I shall be compelled to thank you for your hospitality and bid you goodby, deeply as I shall regret it."

St. Onge listened patiently, as the speaker thought, hopelessly, to the ultimatum.

"Let us sit down and talk it over, monsieur," he replied.

The two men moved to a rock and lighted their pipes.

"Monsieur Steele," began St. Onge, "I am in a net from which I see no escape. You came here a stranger, claiming to be a scientist, interested in the study of Indian customs and folk-lore. That is all I knew about you. As it was, I told you too much that first night."

"What you told me has been respected, sir," interrupted Steele, irritated at the manner of the older man.

"Yes, monsieur," mollified the factor, "we have found you a gentleman. But for a time I suspected you of being a member of the provincial police, and that would have complicated matters."

"What do you mean?"

"Why, if it were ever known up river that the police had stayed here with me for some time before acting against Lafamme, the post might be burned over our heads. They are a lawless crowd, monsieur."

"According to your story you are bound to lose the post whatever happens."

"Yes, but there is Denise."

"I don't understand."

"Monsieur, Lafamme has never stopped at anything. He might not stop there."

"You mean that he is in love with Mademoiselle St. Onge?"

"Precisely!"

"And might attempt to take her by force?"

"He might attempt anything. He has never respected the law—is a desperate man."

"But they would hunt him down. He could not get away in this country. He would be a madman to attempt it."

"He is a madman, monsieur."

Steele was tempted to laugh in the face of his host. He would shortly have the opportunity of measuring this madman with his own eyes. St. Onge certainly was painting him in strong colors. But they had wandered from the point.

"I have asked you for your confidence," he began abruptly. "If you cannot see your way clear to allow me to aid you, I shall regret it." He was thinking of the girl up at the house.

"Monsieur Steele, we have decided that you deserve our confidence—Denise and I; but I fear it will do no good now. They have got us."

"They?" demanded the American.

"Yes," and the blood mounted to St. Onge's bronzed face as he talked.

"I told you that Lascelles had pursued my daughter since the winter we spent at Albany. And now, with the disappearance of this fur, the post can be closed, as it shows a loss under my management. He can force me from the company's service—ruin me. In France I have no property left; it is all gone, and I am an old man, monsieur."

The face of St. Onge was yellow and wrinkled.

"But you will not consent to your daughter—" vehemently protested the younger man, when he was interrupted, with:

"Ah, monsieur, you do not know her. I fear that already she may have involved herself. I have just learned that she sent a letter by the last canoe to Albany."

Steele's deepest instincts revolted at the thought. It was monstrous—unbelievable! Small wonder he had found her playing her heart out at the rapids. He knew now just what hopelessness, what heartache, lay beneath the "farewell" she had played on the hill. To shield her father's old age from the bitterness of failure and possible penury here, in this new land, she had deliberately offered to destroy that glorious youth of hers—at last capitulated to this intriguing cur

CHANGE OF LIFE

Virginia Lady Improved After She Took Cardui.

"I had been going through the change of life and it seemed to me that everything got wrong," says Mrs. Deala Hawks, of Bristol, Va. "I suffered from shortness of breath and I could not go up the steps without stopping to rest several times."

"When I would try to hoe in my garden I would soon give out. I could scarcely hoe two rows before my breath was coming in gasps."

"My sister-in-law had taken Cardui and she thought it might do me good, so she told me to try it. I got a bottle (of Cardui) and began to take it by the directions and I began to improve after a few doses. My general condition was so much better after the first bottle that I got another, and another, until I had taken six. Now I am a well woman."

"Cardui is a great medicine. Since I took it I feel like a new woman. I had had female trouble for years. I am glad to recommend to other women a medicine which has helped me."

"But that is not all," went on St.

"But That Is Not All," Went On St. Onge.

Onge. "Shortly before your arrival a canoe brought this letter from Ogoke."

Steele's lean face lighted with curiosity as he started to read the letter handed him by the factor. Then the muscles of his jaw bulged as his teeth ground in anger.

"Monsieur St. Onge, Revillon Freres, Walling River."

"For the third and last time I am writing you in an attempt to make you see the light as a sensible man. I have reason to know that Lascelles is now ready to force your hand. The post has proved a failure, as he intended it should, and you have now to decide between leaving the company or giving your daughter to a man you despise."

"The offer I have made to you, I repeat. From Ogoke Lake we can keep the Revillon Freres, and the Hudson's Bay company out of the Walling River valley, and control the Swift Current and Drowning River trade as well. In five years we will retire rich."

"I offer your daughter a name honored for generations in Three Rivers. Although I have spent my life in the North, my education has been of the best—not picked up in the barrack room like that of Lascelles. Monsieur le Colonel, the time has come when you are forced to make a choice between us. Join with me, and in a few years your daughter will live in luxury in Montreal or Quebec, and your old age will be provided for; choose Lascelles and you will never see the ice break up on the Walling, for your Indians will leave you. I have loved your daughter since I saw her at Albany, and can make her happy. Consider carefully before you decide to become the dog of Lascelles. If it is to be that rat of a sous-lieutenant, I warn you now that you will find my arm long. Until the snow flies I will wait for your canoe."

"LOUIS LAFAMME."

Steele returned the letter to St. Onge with the comment, "Monsieur, you were a soldier of France. To a letter like this there is but one reply—for a soldier." There was a glitter in the eyes of the American as they met those of the older man.

"For a soldier," repeated the Frenchman with excitement, "there is but one reply, 'On guard!' I would kill her with my own hand before giving her to that renegade. Why, there is a white woman now at Ogoke—and to write this insult!"

The American leaped to his feet. "Colonel," he cried, "Lafamme says you won't see the ice leave the Walling. Let's call that bluff! With your leave, I'll come back on the snow, and we'll watch the ice go out together!"

Legend of Lost Gold Mine In Great Picture

Wright's "The Mine With the Iron Door to Be Shown Here

A Spanish legend more than three centuries old of a mysterious lost mine fabulously rich in gold ore forms the background for the story of "The Mine with the Iron Door," just announced as the feature photoplay attraction for next Friday, Oct. 30 at the Rialto theatre.

That gold, like true love, is where you find it, and that neither is to be possessed without long and arduous struggle, is the guiding theme of this film version of Harold Bell Wright's latest and greatest novel which has been transferred to the screen by Sol Lesser of Principal Pictures Corporation with the faithfulness to the story text that is seldom found in picture adaptation.

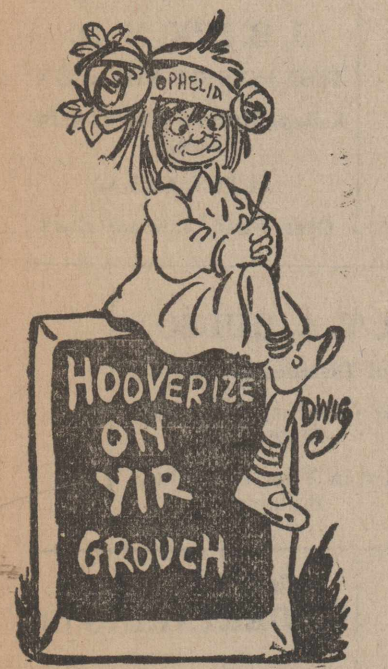

In addition to the lure of the lost gold, which never loses its fascination to the average person, "The Mine With the Iron Door" is said by the best known critics to have many other features that tend to make it one of the most widely appealing and absorbingly interesting pictures that have come to the screen this year.

In "The Mine With the Iron Door" there is deep love and tender romance, thrilling adventure and mystery that is solvable only when all the facts are known. The feature abounds with the spirit of the early days of the great southwest when the Franciscan Friars, drifting into that section of the country, made peaceful alliances with the Papago Indians, found rich gold veins and established their missions—many of which still stand intact—and set up their altars of solid gold.

Back of the romance of all this phase of that section of the country which now lies in the state of Arizona, and the patient and suffering prospector for the hidden yellow metal and the Catalina mountains are pictured rising into high peaks out of an arid and cactus strewn desert not far from the City of Tucson; three are the bandits that infested this country in the middle years of the seventeenth century; there is thrilling love of woman as well as love of gold; there are characters both beautiful and brutal, drawn as only the mind of such a master as Harold Bell Wright can depict, and the most beautiful scene settings that are possible.

AN ABBREVIATED STORY

THE BEAMING STRANGER

WITH a dull thud, Celluloid MacCollar realized that he was a pessimist.

"What's the good of everything? What's the use of anything?" he reflected cynically. "Nobody cares a shucks for anybody else in this world. Not a soul takes the slightest interest in me. Who cares whether I do or whether I don't? Nobody. I could go and drown myself from the nearest lamp-post and nobody would even stop to ask who made the splash! What's the use of everything? What's the good of anything?"

At that moment a beaming stranger approached him with outstretched hand, exclaiming:

"Well, well, well! Isn't this Celluloid MacCollar of the class of '99? Well, well, well! This is a pleasure and a privilege and an undiluted joy. Well, well, more wells! I'm sure you don't remember me. Perhaps you never even saw me, but I was in the class below you and I used to see you often going to and from about the campus. And I assure you this chance meeting fills me with jubilation, ecstasy and boundless rapture!"

Celluloid MacCollar shook the proffered hand fervently.

"How do you do!" he exclaimed. "You restored my faith in human nature, sir! How are you? I was never so glad to see anyone, I assure you. Folks all well?"

"Yes, thanks," replied the other heartily. "As for myself, I've gone into life insurance, and I trust I can interest you in—"

"Squolx!" howled MacCollar, and leaped unavailingly in front of seven automobiles.

WELLINGTON CLUB LADIES GUESTS OF PADUCAH CLUB

Thursday morning, October 22, at 7:35 o'clock, several of the 1924 Study Club members in company with Mr. R. R. Martin, Dr. J. W. Harper and Annalu Harper left Wellington for Paducah. After quite an adventurous trip the party arrived an hour later than they had expected but jolly and ready for an enjoyable day.

First we drove to the residences of Mesdames Pat Jones and Tom Williams where we found them in their elegant well appointed homes ready to meet our every wish and need while we made ourselves ready for the pleasures planned for us.

At one o'clock we drove to the commodious home of Mrs. O. L. Thomas where we found the other club members patiently waiting to make us feel at ease and at home.

Among the attractive things in this home is a table that is over one hundred years old and a magnificent tapestry hanging which adorned the living room. We could not forget that the time for ghost and goblins was close at hand for every where you turned a fierce looking creature was there to greet you, even the skeleton was at the door. The decorations in each room carried out the Halloween suggestions.

A three course luncheon was served to the members of both clubs, this was one that surely met the needs of the hour and was very much appreciated and enjoyed by every one, and especially the guests. In the place cards and favors the old witch held a place supreme, still riding her broom.

We were invited into another room where we fished for our fortunes and it was astounding to learn some of the things the future held in store for us.

Score cards were passed on which a wise old owl sat peacefully. A few games of progressive 42 was enjoyed by all until each visitor had had the privilege to meet each hostess.

Mrs. B. F. Hobson, Mrs. O. L. Youngblood and two other ladies took the visiting ladies for a sight seeing trip over the city.

The time had come and was passing fast when we should leave for Wellington. We all pronounced our trip a wonderful success and our visit a great pleasure.

Those who were present at Mrs. Thomas' were: Mesdames J. Ross Bell, O. T. Youngblood, Theo Combest, M. O. Hooker, Earl Backus, E. W. Moss, Walter Chalk, R. R. Martin, Joe Belote, Ray Loftis, Fred Watkins, Collie Briggs, Everet Godfrey, Bob Gully, Tom Williams, John Davis, W. H. Lynn, Chas. Pierson, J. W. Harper, Pat Jones, Harry Wright, Bill Bigham, Chas. Phillips, O. L. Thomas, Misses Thessia Godfrey and Frances Trenchard.
