Pan Am crash

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Drug Enforcement Administration said Tuesday night it is looking into the possibility that one of its undercover couriers carried the bomb that blew up Pan Am Flight 103 over Scotland 22 months ago, perhaps without knowing it.

Two hundred seventy people aboard the plane and in the village of Lockerbie died in the December 1988 attack, attributed by law enforcement authorities to a terrorist group favorable to Iran.

Bus collision

MANVEL, Texas (AP) — Twenty children suffered minor injuries Tuesday when a pickup collided with a school bus at a foggy intersection, police said.

The pickup burst into flames, and its driver, Horace Chrisman, 30, was taken to St. Luke's hospital where he was listed in fair condition with unspecified injuries.

The accident occurred at 7:15 a.m. on Highway 288 at County Road 58, a sheriff's deputy said.

Twenty of the 54 children on the bus from the Alvin Independent School District were taken to Alvin Community Hospital for treatment of minor neck and back injuries.

Although the truck caught fire, a propane tank on the bus withstood the impact, preventing a more serious explosion, officials said.

Hayes angry

HEMPSTEAD, N.Y. (AP) — Helen Hayes says some playwrights are encouraging censorship by relying too much on "shock, violence and sex" in their works.

Hayes

Hayes, the 90-year-old grand dame of the theater and screen, made her remarks Monday while accepting an honorary doctorate degree from Hofstra University.

She said she liked some contemporary playwrights but was disturbed by others.

"My outrage and anger is with those playwrights who have gone too far," she said. "As long as they continue to be boring, disgusting and disappointing in their works, the terrible curse of censorship is going to exist.

"They lean too much on four-letter words that any 6-year-old can write on a fence," she said. "There is too much leaning on shock, violence and sex."

Saddam Hussein said Tuesday that Iraq was making final preparations for war and expected an attack within days by the United States and its allies. A U.S. senator said President Bush's "patience is wearing thin."

In the Persian Gulf, 10 American sailors died when a steam pipe ruptured in the boiler room of the USS Iwo Jima. And in Saudi Arabia, a Marine was killed in an accident while driving in the desert.

Bush discussed possible military action against Iraq in a meeting with congressional leaders on the gulf crisis, but he told them he could not guarantee he would consult them before embarking on hostilities. He refused to comment publicly on a report the United States plans to discuss a timetable with U.S. allies for a military offensive.

Secretary of State James A. Baker III on Saturday will begin a weeklong visit to Arab and European countries to consult on future steps in the gulf, officials said. The visit will include a meeting with Soviet Foreign Minister Eduard Shevardnadze.

Asked about the potential for a U.S. military strike, White House spokesman Marlin Fitzwater said: "As these things unfold, of course, there are always scenarios for action that have to be considered ... but there is no timetable for action."

Fitzwater sought to dampen fears that fighting was imminent. "The attitude at the meeting was "play it down — be calm," he said.

The United States has more than 200,000 troops in the gulf region and has announced plans to send at least 100,000 more. It is the largest U.S. military deployment since the Vietnam War.

Saddam summoned his military commanders to a meeting in Baghdad to complete "preparations for urban warfare and necessary measures to be taken in the event of combat in (Kuwait)," the Iraqi News Agency reported.

"We must be prepared with all that God has given us of potential to thwart perfidious intentions by the United States and its allies to launch an attack in the next few days," the report quoted Saddam as saying.

The agency did not explain why Saddam believed an attack was imminent.

Bush named to Petroleum Hall of Fame

By John Paul Pitts
Business & Oil Editor

Bush

President George Bush was one of four distinguished petroleum pioneers named Tuesday to the Petroleum Hall of Fame at Midland.

Bush, a former oilman was selected for Hall of Fame honors Tuesday at a special meeting of the Board of Trustees and Board of Executors of the Permian Basin Petroleum Museum.

The president began his oil career in 1948, after moving to Odessa to work in an oilfield supply store, selling drilling tools.

While in Odessa, Bush worked for Ideco Inc. and lived in a duplex, sharing a bathroom with another family.

While on a campaign trip to Midland in 1988, Bush recalled: "I know what it is like to straddle a hot pump jack in 110 degree weather with a paint brush and bucket."

He moved to Midland in 1952, and with his friend John Overby, started a business to broker oil and gas leases. A year later the pair joined the Leidtke brothers of Midland to found Zapata Petroleum Corp.

In 1956 Zapata Offshore Co. was founded as a subsidiary to develop offshore drilling equipment, and Bush became president of the new company. The company split into two separate firms in 1959, and Bush moved his family and the headquarters of Zapata Offshore to Houston, where he served as chairman of the board from 1964 to 1966. Bush entered politics in 1964.

During his years in Midland, the president was active in political and community affairs. Bush is fond of recalling that the Midland County Republican Party was founded in his kitchen with three members, and that he and Barbara were two of them.

He was active in the Midland Chamber of Commerce and was an elder at First Presbyterian Church of Midland where he taught Sunday school.

Other members elected to the Petroleum Hall of

Bits of history found in vault at Odessa bank

AUSTIN (AP) — Newspaper articles reporting the deaths of George Washington and Abraham Lincoln were among unclaimed artifacts discovered in an Odessa bank vault and loaned to the Texas Memorial Museum.

The new acquisitions also include one Massachusetts Bay lottery ticket dated June 1779 and believed to have been engraved by Paul Revere, four years after his famous ride, the Austin American-Statesman reported Tuesday.

The bits of history were among possessions found in an abandoned safe-deposit box at Texas Commerce Bank in Odessa that the state treasurer's office turned over Monday to the museum on the University of Texas campus.

"It is unfortunate that their owners cannot be located, but on the other hand, it gives the public an opportunity to see such historically significant items that, in many cases, have been hidden for long periods of time," said Kathy Weir, treasury department spokeswoman.

William Reeder, the museum's curator, said, "These items have lost all but their intrinsic value. We do not attach any commercial worth to them, but we do emphasize their scholarly and future educational value."

The artifacts were found in 1985 in a safe-deposit box owned by Mr. and Mrs. Jack L. Hansen, Ms. Weir said.

For years the treasury department's

Williams unclear about proposed amendment

DALLAS (AP) — Republican gubernatorial candidate Clayton Williams stumbled Tuesday when asked his position on a proposed constitutional amendment on next week's ballot that deals with appointments by the state's chief executive.

In a session with reporters at KERA-TV studios in Dallas, which was seen in Midland on KOCV-TV, Williams said he was unfamiliar with the amendment, the only one on Tuesday's ballot, and was unclear how he had voted on it.

Permian coaches seek quick appeal

■ Lawyers representing the 12 Permian coaches and a student athlete asked that their case be heard without waiting for new briefs to be written, so a ruling can be obtained before state playoffs begin.

By Rick Brown
Reporter-Telegram Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — Odessa Permian High School football coaches are hoping for a quick hearing before an Austin appeals court as they attempt to resurrect their team's eligibility for the playoffs.

But an opposing attorney characterized their efforts as "desperate."

Lawyers representing the 12 Permian coaches and a student athlete asked the 3rd Court of Appeals Tuesday to hear their case without waiting for new briefs to be written. Their aim is for the six appeals justices to rule before state football playoffs begin Nov. 15.

Otherwise, the coaches' appeal broke virtually no new ground, acknowledged attorney David Minton, who represents the plaintiffs.

State District Judge Pete Lowry of Austin decided on Monday against issuing a temporary injunction that would have permitted Permian, the reigning state 5A football

Richards criticizes Williams' stance on income tax

DALLAS (AP) — Democratic gubernatorial candidate Ann Richards on Tuesday accused Republican opponent Clayton Williams of flip-flopping on the need for a state income tax, saying voters are fed up with insincere politicians.

Across Dallas, Williams picked up the endorsement of a Teamsters Union local and said it shows that his campaign philosophy "reflects the views and values of the working people of Texas."

Williams has been calling on Richards to say whether she would veto a state income tax, after pledging to do so himself.

Responding, Richards said, "No one in Texas is for an income tax. I, for one, do not think it is necessary...I don't like income taxes. I think they're inequitable. I think they hit the middle-class the hardest. So no, we're not going to have an income tax in Texas."

She also criticized Williams, saying he previously had said an income tax might be needed.

"It's real hard with Clayton Williams because he takes one position one month and then whatever's politically expedient the next month he takes another position," she said.

Richards was interviewed at KERA-TV in Dallas. The interview, and a similar session with Williams, were to be broadcast Tuesday night.

"I think that the voting public is really tired of politicians who come out and who say I am flat out going to do this ... read my lips, and then there's a total reversal," Richards said.

She compared Williams to Republican Gov. Bill Clements, who promised no new taxes while campaigning in 1986 but then signed a record $5.7 billion tax increase in 1987 after a long battle with Democratic legislative leaders.

"I don't like the position of anyone who continues to draw the line in dirt," Richards said.

With the state facing a $3 billion budget shortfall for 1992-93, Richards said she would pay for new state services through a combination of things, including a new state lottery.

A lottery game would generate $1.5 billion she said, to be combined with what she said would be an additional $3 billion from economic growth, and $800 million from closing unspecific "loopholes" in the corporate franchise tax.

In endorsing Williams on Tuesday, Teamsters Local 745 secretary-treasurer T.C. Stone said the union's 9,700 members had voted 66 percent to 33 percent in favor of the Republican. He said the ballots were mailed after both Williams and Richards addressed the membership.

"Our membership sent us a message that they truly support Clayton Williams, and in talking to our members we feel like his strong showing on drugs and his strong opposition to a state income tax are better things for their families," Stone said.

Williams said the endorsement "shows (that) my mainstream, conservative philosophy reflects the views and values of the working people of Texas. I want to protect the working people from new taxes that will shrink their paycheck."

Williams also said he would consider the death penalty in rape cases "in extreme cases."

The GOP candidate had been criticized earlier in the year for joking about rape by likening it to bad weather and saying if it's inevitable, "relax and enjoy it." He later apologized for the joke.

Sunny skies forecast

Staff Report

Today's forecast calls for sunny skies with a high in the mid-80s and southwest winds at 10 to 20 mph, according to the National Weather Service in Midland.

Tonight is expected to be fair with a low in the mid-50s.

Thursday will be partly cloudy with a high around 80.

Tuesday's high was 81 compared with the record high for that date of 88 in 1987. The overnight low was 50. The record low for that date was 32 set in 1949.

STATE

Lots of sunshine, warm south winds and only a few scattered clouds dominated weather reports from across the state Tuesday.

A few clouds scattered from the middle coast to the lower valley in South Texas.

High pressure systems, stretching from South Carolina to the lower Rio Grande plains, were credited with the pleasant temperatures in North and South Texas.

The high pressure in North Texas created southeast winds near Lufkin at 5 to 10 mph, while a low pressure system over Kansas turned the winds out of the south from Dallas to Abilene at speeds of 15 to 25 mph.

NATION

Rain moved into the Northwest on Tuesday, with snow in the mountains. Parts of Hawaii had heavy downpours.

A strong cold front ushered rain and wind and lower temperatures into the Northwest.

The Associated Press also contributed to this report.

WILLIAMS: Candidate stumbles with reporters

(From 1A)

Williams for his position on the amendment, Prop. 1.

"Now Prop. 1 is which, excuse me?" Williams asked.

Slater noted it was the only one on the ballot and dealt with confirmation of gubernatorial appointments.

"Oh, on the education commissioner," Williams said.

"No, changing the timing on gubernatorial appointments," Sanders interrupted.

"Are you aware of the problem?" Slater asked.

"I'm not aware of the problem," Williams responded.

"It was a major problem in the legislature last year," Slater said. He noted the amendment was drafted to clear up confusion over the status of gubernatorial appointments made between regular legislative sessions.

"Oh," Williams said, "between the changing of the guard? Well, I think it certainly needs to be remedied. I don't know... I really haven't taken a position."

Williams' opponent, Democrat Ann Richards, has criticized Williams, a Midland businessman, as a political amateur who doesn't understand government.

Asked if his confusion did not lend credence to Richards' charges, Williams said, "I'm not a politician."

"But you are running for governor," Slater said.

"Yeah, I can read and if you put that in front of me it would take me about thirty seconds to give you my opinion," Williams said. "I had the highest grade point in the school of agriculture at A&M my last semester."

Panelists reminded Williams that he had already cast his absentee ballot.

Williams said he voted "right down the ticket."

But when asked how he voted on Prop. 1, Williams said, "I voted for it. I think I voted for it."

After the session, Williams, standing with his wife, Modesta, told reporters, "I wasn't highly informed on Prop. 1, but my wife was. She told me what to do, I guess."

Richards said Williams' confusion was "just further evidence of what we've been saying, that this is not a toy."

"Being the governor of Texas is not something that you just take as a crown to some other career," she said. "And you've got to know your business to make government work. Frankly, I am extremely surprised that someone who has set out to be governor of Texas would not even understand the constitutional amendment on the ballot.

"This job is no place for on-the-job training," she added.

Richards said she voted for the measure.

Prop. 1 would reaffirm the state Senate's traditional practice of voting on gubernatorial nominees during regular legislative sessions. Attorney General Jim Mattox has ruled that the appointments must be considered at the next available opportunity, whether regular or special session.

Without the amendment, decisions by boards affecting prisons, electric rates, air pollution penalties and other functions of state government could be challenged in court and put on hold.

On the ballot, the proposed constitutional amendment reads:

"The constitutional amendment to clarify the authority of the senate to consider certain nominees to state and district offices and to provide for filling vacancies in those offices."

BUSH: Petroleum Museum honors president

(From 1A)

Fame — all posthumously — are: Halbert P. Bybee, former geologist in charge of University Lands; Edith Whatley McKenna, a Scurry County petroleum pioneer who becomes the first woman inducted into the Hall of Fame, and Frank Phillips, founder of Phillips Petroleum Co.

Bybee was a University of Texas geology professor, who helped organize the first geological field trips to West Texas in 1917. In 1925 he helped organize the West Texas Geological Society.

In 1923 the University Lands became valuable with the discovery of Santa Rita No. 1. Bybee was named geologist in charge of the University Lands in 1929 and played a dominant role in making them a major asset for the University of Texas System.

He remained involved with the University Lands and served as Chairman of the Department of Geology at the University of Texas. He gave up his consulting post at the University Lands in 1954 because of ill health and died in 1957. During his 25 years with University Lands more than $200 million was paid into the Univeristy's Permanent Fund from oil and gas rentals.

Edith Whatley McKenna's father was in the oil business and in 1920 she married oilman James McKenna. This gave her the background to become a successful oilman in her own right.

Being named the first woman to the Petroleum Hall of Fame is in keeping with her record. Not only was she one of the first and most successful women in the oil business in Texas, founding Imperial Oil Co. and Progressive Oil Co., she also took an active role in leasing and drilling and was responsible for a number of significant oil finds in the Permian Basin. She was also one of the first oil operators in the Permian Basin to become involved in carbon dioxide recovery.

She was the first woman in Texas to solo an airplane. She said she became a pilot to get to the "hot oil deals" quicker.

When the Canyon Reef was discovered in 1948, she was ahead of other oil companies in leasing, and in 1951 was named one of the seven most distinguished women of the Southwest.

In 1977, she received the first annual McLaughlin Award from the Diamond M Foundation of Snyder, for outstanding contributions to the oil industry.

Frank Phillips, founder of Phillips Petroleum Co. was a barber who left Nebraska to seek his fortunes in oil in Oklahoma. He and his brother, L.E., found it in 1905 with the discovery of the Anna Anderson No.1 near Bartlesville, Okla. The discovery led to 80 more producers and firmly established established Phillips Petroleum Co. as an up-and-coming major oil company. Unlike other oil companies which were content to sell their oil to others for refining, Phillips built his own refinery and string of service stations.

He was also interested in banking and in 1915 he and his brother organized the Citizens Bank & Trust Co.

Phillips came to the Permian Basin in 1926 and at the time of Frank Phillips' death in 1950, half of the firm's production came from the Basin.

Frank Phillips was a pioneer in many fields relating to the petroleum industry. He helped pioneer the natural gas liquids business, high octane aviation fuel and was a leader in deep drilling. In 1944, Phillips Petroleum set the drilling depth record with the Ada Price No.1 which was drilled to 15,279 feet in Pecos County.

His company was one of the first oil companies to lead in petroleum research. Phillips established research centers and hired hundreds of college graduates with degrees in science to apply their "know how" to industry problems.

During his lifetime, Phillips received numerous recognitions, but he was particularly proud that he was the only white man to ever become an official chief of the Osage Indian Tribe, an honor bestowed upon him for his fair dealings during the exploration of tribal lands.

Organized in 1968, the purpose of the Petroleum Hall of Fame is to recognize those members who have made significant contribution to the oil and gas industry. Inductees are selected, each year, by an anonymous committee. The committee this year was chaired by Bill Collyns, editor emeritus of the Midland Reporter-Telegram.

unclaimed property left in abandoned bank deposit boxes.

But about five years ago, State Treasurer Ann Richards developed a program allowing some of these items to be placed on long-term loan to museums, Ms. Weir said.

"Perhaps with the publicity, some family member will come forth," Ms. Weir said. She said the treasurer's office will turn over the items if the person can validate their claims.

Items in the acquisition include an April 15, 1865 front page of the New York Herald about the assassination of Lincoln the previous evening; and two pages from the Dec. 30, 1799 issue of the Connecticut Courant announcing the death of Washington.

Other items include a faded brass belt buckle with Lincoln's likeness, forged from a captured Confederate cannon; Confederate coins and currency and a pewter medal awarded to an unknown soldier for capturing British guns at Yorktown, Va. in 1791.

Another item is an undated, autographed and faded picture, ostensibly of legendary bandit Jesse James at age 23. Reeder said he is not sure the picture is of James. "That will be up to researchers and future historians to determine," he said.

PERMIAN: Lawyers file appeal

champ, to make the playoffs this year, if its record warranted.

Lowry had heard the coaches' attorneys argue that the University Interscholastic League executive committee during a Sept. 20 meeting had failed to provide the plaintiffs with due process before imposing the post-season ban.

During the same meeting, in which the committee acted on allegations Permian held organized practices during the summer, committee members suspended the varsity and junior varsity head coaches for two games and placed 12 coaches on probation for a year. That number later was reduced to four coaches on a year's probation.

The state executive committee was deciding punishment for the coaches after the District 4-5A executive committee and the Ector County Independent School District had already determined that rules violations occurred.

The appeal filed Tuesday observes that "although the UIL purportedly exists to teach, among other things, a sense of fairness ... plaintiffs and Permian High School went into the (Sept. 20) proceedings presumed to be guilty."

"It is ironic that the executive committee punished plaintiffs, Permian High School and its football players for violating rules, when in fact the executive committee followed no rules whatsoever in their proceedings," the appeal documents state.

Attorneys also argued before Lowry that the coaches and student suffer lower potential earning potentials because of the ban, which they said has adversely affected their careers.

Minton said the 3rd Court of Appeals should grant the injunction "for the same reasons that the (state district) court should have." He noted that Lowry's verbal order did not include specific reasons why the injunction was denied.

But Lucius D. Bunton IV, an attorney representing the UIL, said the appeal only serves to "tease" the school and football team.

"I feel sorry for the young men involved. I believe they've been mislead," he said.

Minton said he was unsure when the appeals court would decide whether to schedule a hearing on the matter.

GULF: U.S. sailors killed on board ship

(From 1A)

While he talked of possible hostilities, his foreign minister, Tariq Aziz, struck a more cautious note. Aziz told the Iraqi News Agency that Iraq is prepared to talk with "any Arab or international party" provided it is not "prompted by premeditated hostile designs."

There was some speculation that Saddam's warning may be a propaganda ploy by Iraq to drive a wedge between the United States and those of its allies who seek to avoid hostilities.

Diplomats in the Middle East, speaking on condition of anonymity, said Saddam was reacting to statements Monday by Baker.

Baker told a gathering in Los Angeles: "Let no one doubt: We will not rule out a possible use of force if Iraq continues to occupy Kuwait."

Congressional leaders emerging from their meeting with Bush said they had urged the president to explore all other avenues for resolving the crisis and got no indication that U.S. military action was imminent.

"His patience is wearing thin," said Sen. William Cohen, R-Maine, one of several lawmakers who met for an hour at the White House with the president. But Cohen added: "For the time being, he's going to continue to pursue the course that we're currently on."

Participants described Bush as highly disturbed by reports of atrocities in occupied Kuwait and the plight of U.S. Embassy personnel and other Americans who have been blocked from leaving.

Before the meeting, Bush declined to comment on a newspaper report that administration officials would discusss a timetable with U.S. allies for a possible military offensive.

The Los Angeles Times, quoting an unidentified senior government official, said he considers war almost inevitable and considers a strike most likely in December or January. The report said the United States now believes sanctions will not force Iraq to pull out of the emirate it invaded Aug. 2.

Souter asks tough questions about abortion rules

WASHINGTON — After weeks of being relatively quiet in his new job, Supreme Court Justice David H. Souter asked tough questions Tuesday in a case about federally funded family planning clinics, hinting he might not join court conservatives on the abortion controversy.

At issue was a challenge by the city and state of New York and Planned Parenthood doctors against the Reagan administration's anti-abortion regulations governing the clinics.

The rules, adopted in 1988, forbid health care workers in clinics that receive federal funds from discussing the option of abortion with pregnant patients.

Opponents say the rules violate free-speech rights of doctors and unduly burden the abortion rights of women.

The Bush administration has asked the high court to use the case to overturn Roe v. Wade, the 1973 decision that legalized abortion.

Souter had said little in high court arguments since being sworn in Oct. 9. But on Tuesday, he zeroed in on the administration's counsel, Solicitor General Kenneth W. Starr.

The jurist asked whether, in a case where pregnancy poses an "imminent danger" to a woman's health, a physician in a federally funded clinic could legally discuss the option of abortion with her.

Starr replied that a doctor could tell such a patient her health is in danger and that she should seek emergency care but could not advise her to have an abortion or direct her to an abortion clinic.

Starr insisted the regulations were consistent with the aim of Congress in authorizing federal funds for family planning clinics "not to bring abortion and the abortion controversy into the program."

Souter then asked if the White House is not in effect saying that "protecting the health of a patient from imminent danger ... is forbidden? Doesn't that go beyond the statute and the regulations?"

Starr said that a physician who gives advice about abortion "steps out" of the legal limits of "family planning" services that clinics are supposed to provide.

Souter wondered how the regulations might affect a doctor confronted with a woman whose "high blood pressure is going to result in a stroke within the next hour."

He told Starr that the administration is advocating a policy that "may preclude professional speech" and prevent a physician from "performing a normal professional responsibility."

Activists on both sides of the issue said it was too soon to tell whether Souter's questions indicate anything about his views on Roe v. Wade.

"What I see is an indication he will be unpredictable," said Gary Bauer, former White House domestic policy adviser under President Reagan who now heads the Washington-based, anti-abortion Family Research Council.

Some 3,900 family planning clinics nationwide serve an estimated 4.5 million women, most of them poor, and accept $139 million in federal funds. Congress approved the program in 1970 in Title X of the Public Health Services Act, earmarking funds only to clinics that did not provide abortion services.

But clinic doctors were able to discuss abortion with their patients, referring them elsewhere if patients said they wanted to end their pregnancies. That changed under the Reagan administration's 1988 reinterpretation of the 1970 law, which limited doctors to saying only that abortion was not an appropriate method of family planning.

The city and state of New York and physicians at Planned Parenthood clinics challenged the 1988 regulations as illegally interfering with women's abortion rights and violating free-speech rights of health care workers.

DEA courier may have carried bomb on Pan Am Flight 103

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Drug Enforcement Administration said Tuesday night it is looking into the possibility that one of its undercover couriers carried the bomb that blew up Pan Am Flight 103 over Scotland 22 months ago, perhaps without knowing it.

Two hundred seventy people aboard the plane and in the village of Lockerbie died in the December 1988 attack, attributed by law enforcement authorities to a terrorist group favorable to Iran.

The terrorist group put plastic explosive in a tape recorder in baggage that was shipped from Frankfurt, Germany, according to investigators

NBC News, which first disclosed the drug agency's new investigation Tuesday night, said it had learned that Pan Am's flights from Frankfurt had been used in a Cyprus-based undercover operation to fly informants and suitcases of heroin from the Middle East to Detroit.

Nazir Khalid Jafaar, 20, of Detroit, was killed in the bombing, and the network said part of the drug agency review was to determine whether he had been enlisted in the drug operation and whether he had been tricked into carrying the bomb.

Pan Am's baggage operation in Frankfurt was used to put suitcases of heroin on planes, apparently without the usual security checks, under an arrangement between the drug agency and German authorities, the network said. It cited only an unidentified "airline source" for that statement.

In a statement read by spokesman Frank Shults, the Drug Enforcement Agency said it was aware of "allegations made to the media" to the effect that a DEA operation was used in the bombing.

"Although no evidence has surfaced to substantiate such a claim, we are conducting an inquiry into these allegations, including a review of case files and DEA operations and activities in the relevant time period," the statement said.

Coast Guard seeks missing

GRAND ISLE, La. (AP) — An explosion and fire erupted from a shut-down petroleum well as workers tried to cap it Tuesday, killing one worker and leaving five others missing, the Coast Guard said.

Two Coast Guard helicopters and a search and rescue vessel searched the marshes of of Barataria Bay south of New Orleans for the missing Tuesday evening, said Petty Officer Gene Maestas in New Orleans.

The well is about 15 miles north of Grand Isle, which lies between the Bay and the Gulf of Mexico. Maestas didn't know if it was a gas or an oil well.

The cause of the blast wasn't immediately known, the spokesman said.

He said the dead and missing all were male employees of a Houston-based company called Pacer Atlas. There is no Houston phone listing for Pacer Atlas.

Wine worker convicted

REDWOOD CITY, Calif. (AP) — A former winery worker was convicted of six counts of first-degree murder Tuesday for a wine-country killing spree that left seven people dead, including his wife and two young daughters.

Defendant Ramon Salcido was found guilty of second-degree murder in the seventh slaying.

Salcido, 29, could be sentenced to die in the gas chamber at San Quentin Prison when the jury returns for the trial's penalty phase. Under California law, multiple murder is one of the "special circumstances" which can justify a death sentence.

The panel apparently agreed with Sonoma County prosecutor Peter Bumerts that Salcido methodically criss-crossed the fertile Sonoma Valley north of San Francisco, stabbing and shooting his family and co-workers the morning of April 14, 1989.

"What this means for the families is perhaps one chapter of this horrible nightmare will be laid to rest," Bumerts after the verdicts were read.

"I can't say I was delighted by it, but I wasn't shocked," said defense attorney Marteen Miller. "One way or another, I think this jury had its mind made up."

Squirrel feud turns nutty

MARIONVILLE, Mo. (AP) — The battle for the title "Home of the White Squirrels" is turning a little nutty.

Marionville and Olney, Ill., both bill themselves as top spots for white squirrel spotting. But Marionville boasts it has far more than Olney.

When Olney Central College biology instructor John Stencel recently doubted that Marionville has as many white squirrels as it claims, squirrel supporters in this southwestern Missouri community took offense.

"I would welcome people from Olney to come here to count our squirrels," said insurance agent Jim Smart, Marionville's leading white squirrel promoter.

Stencel and several volunteers recently counted 127 white squirrels in Olney, down from last year's 143.

Marionville in 1989 claimed to be home to about 1,000 of the white rodents.

Take this evil out of Halloween

Halloween wasn't always so evil.

Of course, the evening of Oct. 31st has been known as All Hallows E'ven for centuries since it falls just before All Saints Day. It's a time, tradition has it, when all the ghosts and goblins are unleashed to work their mischief on the people of the world.

As long as 2,000 years ago in what is now Great Britain, Ireland and northern France, the Celts celebrated their New Year on Nov. 1. The evening before, on Oct. 31, the Celts held a celebration in honor of Samhain, the Celtic lord of death. The Celts believed that on the evening of Oct. 31, Samhain allowed the souls of the dead to return to their earthly homes for the evening.

It's no wonder then that people came to regard Oct. 31 as a time of evil.

In the United States, children dressed up as ghouls, ghosts, gremlins and monsters traditionally prowled neighborhoods on Halloween evening, ringing doorbells to ask people for "treats." Houses at which they got no answer — and no treats — traditionally were subjected to juvenile mischief — soaping or shoe-polishing the windows, "papering" trees with toilet tissue and so on.

During recent years, however, the evil associated with Halloween has intensified to the point that many parents do not want their children participating in the traditional trick-or-treating excursions. Candy has been laced with broken glass, straight pins, small nails and other objects.

Poisonings have been reported in some cities and now it's more common for parents to send their children to a school carnival or a neighborhood party than to door-to-door trick-or-treating.

Halloween became too evil.

But in recent years numerous organizations have taken a leading role in making Halloween a safe festival once again, and they are to be highly commended. One of the most helpful has been Midland Memorial Hospital where employees operate a candy-screening service in which children's Halloween goodies are X-rayed to determine whether they are safe to consume.

That community-minded activity has helped to relieve worry for Midland parents, but even more importantly it has helped to keep a bit of our past alive for the present generation.

This evening, parents should make certain their youngsters are wearing light-colored clothing or costumes which are marked with reflective tape and that at least one child in the group carries a flashlight. Parents should accompany their children on their excursions and motorists should be aware of the danger that exists with so many children on the streets.

Let's all help take the evil out of Halloween.

Vote incumbents out to save money

WASHINGTON — If you're considering throwing the bums out on Nov. 6, here's some added incentive. If you don't vote congressional incumbents out this time around, you will buy them gold-plated pensions.

Anderson

Congress has written itself the fattest pension plan in the country, but in order to reap the full benefit, the member has to hold his or her seat until 1993. At that point, their future pensions will be based on the generous pay raise they recently slipped themselves. Anyone who loses this year will get a pension based on the old pay rate.

The difference is substantial. For example, if voters decided to dump Rep. Frank Annunzio, D-Ill., he will start collecting an annual pension of $53,897 next year. But if Annunzio can hang on another term, his pension will start at $73,996 and climb from there, according to calculations by the National Taxpayers Union.

For 20 members of the House, re-election this fall will ensure them a pension of at least $90,000 a year because of their salary record while in office. Rep. George Brown, D-Calif., is in a nail-biter of a race. If he loses, his pension will start next year at $69,898. If he wins, he could retire in 1993 with a more comfortable pension of $95,083.

The national disgust with those in power has made "incumbent" a dirty word this year and has given hope to challengers with no political resumes. That disenchantment has led to proposals for term limits so members of Congress will vote based on their consciences, not their campaign war chests.

The anti-incumbent crusade has spawned a cottage industry. One Florida-based group, "Throw the Rascals Out," has run newspaper ads expressing such sentiments as, "I'm not going to give in to those clowns!"

Lost in the populist fury is the simple money-saving potential of a rout. New faces would be cheaper.

The pension plan is based on a variety of factors including the number of years of government service and the member's top three years of income. For House members who lose their seats next week, the pensions will be based on their average salary over the past three years, or $91,699. But for those who survive another term, the average will reflect the 40 percent pay raise they gave themselves beginning next year.

If Congress were a private company, the IRS would call its pension plan illegal. The plan is unusual in that it keeps pace with the cost of living and insulates the lawmakers against inflation and recession.

Due to the self-serving foresight of the congressional pension plan and some generous cost-of-living increases, many former members make far more in retirement than they received in office. Sen. Albert Gore Sr., the father of the current Sen. Albert Gore Jr., D-Tenn., retired from the Senate in 1970 with a salary of $42,500. He is now entitled to a pension of $88,564.

Our associate Jim Lynch has learned that former President Gerald Ford will get more money from the federal pension plan this year than President Bush gets in salary. Thanks to ample presidential and congressional pensions, Ford will collect $219,000 this year, while Bush's salary is $200,000.

Despite the anger sweeping the country, the anti-incumbent crusade will be lucky to oust more than a handful of incumbents. The insiders simply have too much of an advantage — name recognition, free mailing privileges, their own recording studio and years of cultivating generous campaign contributors who expect nothing but the lawmaker's soul in return.

EXPORTING FUN — The movie industry is fast becoming a major American export product, second only to agriculture. Hollywood is still the pre-eminent entertainment factory, and the industry is taking steps to make sure that doesn't change. In some cases, studio executives have begun catering to foreign markets by premiering some of their hottest movies abroad first. In Europe, it is a point of pride for a theater to feature American films instead of local fare. In the Far East, fans can watch "Rambo" and Chuck Norris movies around the clock.

OTHER VIEWS

U.S. can wait without surprise

Nothing is likely to happen until after the election, but then the balloon may go up. Many think there will be war soon in the Persian Gulf.

Regardless, the Congress should be consulted before any offensive action is taken against Saddam Hussein. The Constitution gives the Congress sole power to declare war.

Sometimes, the president has to take immediate action in his capacity as commander-in-chief of the armed forces. This is not one of those times.

True, it would increase the danger to our troops to deprive them of the element of surprise in their attack. That is unfortunate but, in these circumstances, inevitable.

Before we attack, it would be necessary to get the approval of our allies and it would be advisable to get authorization from the United Nations.

That means the element of surprise would be lost in any case, so a surprise attack would not remain as an option to be sacrificed to the constitutional requirement for a congressional declaration of war.

Say our allies approve, the U.N. Security Council approves, and the Congress issues an ultimatum, a conditional declaration of war, giving Iraq an opportunity to withdraw from Kuwait by a time certain. That would be a powerful incentive for withdrawal.

If Saddam Hussein still refused to withdraw, he would know he was going to be hit, but he still wouldn't know when or how.

Does this scenario sound too cumbersome to be credible? It does indeed. Yet, the alternative is a lightning strike that splits the American-Arab alliance, splinters the Security Council, leaves Uncle Sam as the ugly American and hangs the Congress out to dry. Not a happy option either.

The third option is to wait him out. By the time that works, Operation Desert Sword will become Operation Desert Rat. Our troops in the desert may turn to sand. But they are professional and can be patient, provided only that we Americans at home are patient too.

TODAY IN HISTORY

Today is Wednesday, Oct. 31, the 304th day of 1990. There are 61 days left in the year. This is Halloween.

Today's highlight in history:

On Oct. 31, 1517, Martin Luther posted the 95 Theses on the door of the Wittenberg Palace church, marking the start of the Protestant Reformation in Germany.

On this date:

In 1795, English poet John Keats was born in London.

In 1864, Nevada became the 36th state.

In 1887, Nationalist Chinese leader Chiang Kai-shek was born in Chekiang Province.

In 1938, one day after his "War of the Worlds" broadcast had panicked radio listeners, Orson Welles expressed "deep regret" but also bewilderment that anyone had thought the Martian invasion portrayed was real.

In 1955, Britain's Princess Margaret ended weeks of speculation by announcing she would not marry Royal Air Force Capt. Peter Townsend.

In 1956, Rear Admiral G.J. Dufek became the first person to land an airplane at the South Pole.

In 1982, Pope John Paul II became the first pontiff to visit Spain.

Rewards go to lobbists brave under fire

They handed out medals on the shoulder of the Capital Beltway to lobbyists who had shown bravery and coolness under fire during the "Battle of the Budget."

It was a moving moment for the PAC soldiers who stood at attention with their checks in their hands as they presented arms.

Buchwald

Commended for bravery was Durban Dumbarton, chief lobbyist for the Golden Parachute Brigade. His citation read as follows, "Durban Dumbarton, by use of skillful maneuvers you single-handedly managed to stop any attempts to tax golden parachutes. In an effort to prevent the bill from getting out of committee, you threw your body on a surcharge amendment, thus saving the retirement incomes of thousands of high-priced executives, including everyone in the Fortune 500. Your President is proud of you."

The second was Sam Trubrinin.

"Sam Trubrinin, during a night patrol in the Senate halls, you spotted a resolution urging a sin tax on fast food, which you represent. You tossed three grenades of PAC money at the Chairman of the Committee. The Chairman cried, 'I surrender,' and retreated while you captured a majority of fast food votes on the House floor."

"Suzie Total, as a registered lobbyist for chewing tobacco and baseball playing cards, you have demonstrated that when it comes to fighting the regulations in the Senate, you are capable of anything. By threatening to go into a Senator's state and call him a closet heterosexual, you managed to get the Senate to pass a subsidy on chewing tobacco at a time when Congress was intent on reducing the budget by $500 billion. Not only did you risk your life for chewing tobacco, but you sacrificed everything to get a government subsidy on baseball cards. You are indeed a credit to your sex."

"Fred Dimbleby, on October 9, 1990, you were asked by the cellulite industry to reconnoiter the White House and find out if the President felt as strongly against taxing cellulite now as he did when he was Vice President. You risked your life by climbing over the fence and crawling through the Rose Garden into the President's office. You found him in his jogging suit, driving his golf cart over to the couch to talk with John Sununu. Despite a fierce battle between you and Sununu, you were able to ask the President how he felt about taxing cellulite. The President told you, 'I have never taxed anything in my life and I'm not going to start now.' You then escaped under heavy fire and brought this important intelligence back to all the lobbyists who were dug into the trenches surrounding the Capitol parking lot."

"Theo Fremont, we honor you today with this special citation for changing the hearts and minds of 60 Republicans and 59 Democrats, just before the budget vote. You courageously bought $1,000-a-plate dinners for 3,000 political fund-raisers, which provided key lawmakers with enough money to get re-elected for another term. Mr. Fremont, you were the point man for the anti-budget budgeteers, and the person responsible for sending our legislators back to the drawing board.

For delivering a defeat to those who would bring dishonor on this country, we present to you today this gold medal with a likeness of President Bush's lips on it, which are saying, 'Our country, right or wrong, as long as we don't have to pay for it'."

WILLIAM SAFIRE

Security more than just a polygraph test

WASHINGTON — The man responsible for subjecting scores of his fellow State Department employees to the mental torture of polygraph tests confessed at a Senate hearing last week that "I took a lie detector test and did not do well on it, and what I learned from that is that they are very unreliable devices."

Safire

Robert Lamb, as assistant secretary of state for diplomatic security, had asked for a leak investigation — complete with polygraph "fluttering" — into the revelation to the press that Felix Bloch was suspected of being a Soviet spy: "We had to find out how this was getting out there."

What Lamb found out instead was how a career can be jeopardized by a spike on a nervousness chart. He had spoken to four reporters about the Bloch affair, and what he told the FBI about what he had said triggered a negative polygraph report. That drew him into the web of an extensive plumber's operation.

"I was told by an FBI agent that I was not a suspect in any way on this," he protested to the Senate Foreign Relations Committee at an unreported hearing. He asserted, "I have dealt with some of the most sensitive matters that we have in the government."

But the needle had jumped. As a result, Lamb had been placed in limbo at the Baker State Department. Finally, he was designated to be ambassador to Cyprus, but six months passed before his nomination was sent up for confirmation.

I am told by one such investigative victim that 44 officials are now being "warehoused," some working in the mailroom; State won't say. (Only our State Department would put a suspected security risk in a position to examine mail.) At Defense, where the old Weinberger polygraph virus spreads unrestrained, the number may be higher.

In Lamb's case, however, Hill pressure was brought to bear because Sen. Joseph Biden and Paul Sarbanes consider Cyprus important and want a U.S. ambassador there to argue with the Turks.

Reluctantly, Justice cleared Lamb last week — it hates to open the FBI's lie-detector warehouse — and Foreign Relations immediately held its hearing.

One problem remained: On the committee questionaire that asked if the nominee "had been interviewed or asked to supply information" in an investigation, Lamb — who certainly had been interviewed, time and again — checked "no."

Asked to explain this apparent deception, Lamb claimed that Ivan Selin, in charge of management at State, had told him he was no longer being investigated, which was how he then chose to interpret the questionnaire. Biden said drily that the FBI had told him the opposite.

Shaken, Lamb then let the warehousing cat out of the bag: "I was told . . . that investigations of this type are kept open indefinitely, and in fact the investigation probably would never be closed. . . ."

Consider that: One assessment by an anonymous merchant of sweat that a subject hooked up to a machine made the needle move funny, and that person becomes a bureaucratic zombie — walking, talking, collecting pay, but dead.

I hold no brief for Lamb, who (a) will go to the Middle East to represent the Kelly-Glaspie School of Warped American Values and (b) is hostage to Sarbanes, who wants us to zap the Turks at a time we need Turkey for a coordinated assault on Iraq.

But even a slippery cookie-pusher with a headful of secrets to embarrass prosecutors has some civil rights. One is due process — not to be denied by a machine operator whom real spies are trained to defeat.

Government troops fire on Hindus trying to replace disputed shrine

AYODHYA, India (AP) — Government forces fired on thousands of Hindu fundamentalists who broke through police barricades Tuesday and forced their way into a heavily guarded mosque. Five Hindus were killed and 20 wounded.

At least 26 people were killed in other parts of India as the decades-old dispute between Hindus and Moslems over ownership of the site came to a head.

The controversy has left at least 138 people dead in the past week, brought Prime Minister V.P. Singh's government close to collapse and further strained already tense relations between India's Hindu majority and Moslem minority.

Singh, who opposes the Hindu campaign to replace the 16th-century Moslem mosque, on Tuesday repeated his offer to resign if his party thought it would help contain the sectarian violence. He made a similar offer Monday.

Hindu fundamentalists had said they would start construction Tuesday on a temple to the god Rama on the site occupied by the mosque. The government said it would block any attempt to destroy the small, one-story shrine and arrested 90,000 supporters of the fundamentalist World Hindu Council in the past week.

On Tuesday, 10,000 Hindus stormed police barricades outside the disputed shrine. Police first used tear gas and bamboo canes to beat back the crowd.

Then, after several hours of clashes as the crowds pushed closer and closer to the mosque, the police fired rifles.

Reporters saw four bodies, but a government spokesman in New Delhi later said five people were killed. Witnesses said at least 20 people were wounded.

S.K. Gupta, a doctor at a local hospital, said 13 of the injured were in serious condition. "They have only 10 percent chances of survival," he said.

Thousands of young men wearing orange headbands, the color of the Hindu faith, broke through successive police cordons, entered the small mosque, pried bricks from the wall and chipped bits of plaster from its three domes. They planted an orange flag on each dome before police chased them away.

Many Hindus said they were helped by policemen guarding the mosque, which the fundamentalists say stands on the spot where Rama was born. Most of the 20,000 policemen on duty in Ayodhya are Hindus.

While the crowds rushed toward the mosque, Hindu holy men screamed obscenities from rooftops and pelted police with stones. At least four policemen were injured.

As news spread that the police barricades had been breached, hundreds of Hindus poured into the streets of Ayodhya in defiance of the 4-day-old curfew that had confined them to their homes. Many distributed candy and exploded firecrackers to shouts of "Jai siya Rama!" — "Victory to Rama!"

The World Hindu Council said its success in penetrating police lines meant the temple project had begun.

WORLD IN BRIEF

Tunnel links up British, French

CALAIS, France (AP) — Britain and France were linked beneath the English Channel on Tuesday when workers used a two-inch probe to connect two halves of a 31-mile undersea rail tunnel, officials reported.

Management sources at Trans-Manche Link, the construction consortium building the "Chunnel" — the Channel Tunnel — confirmed the historic linkup occurred about 8:25 p.m. when British workers sent the probe through to French colleagues.

"It is an example of what Europe is about," British Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher said in London. "This is Europe in practice."

The linkup fulfills a dream by Napoleon in 1802, who thought he could defeat the English by connecting Britain to Europe with a land passage. The Chunnel is scheduled for completion in June 1993.

"This is a hugely historic moment because it means, in effect, that Britain is no longer an island," said a construction union official.

Tourists shot in Soweto

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — Assailants shot to death an elderly tourist and injured his wife Tuesday after the couple apparently became lost while driving and ended up in the black township of Soweto, police said.

Police Lt. Col. Tienie Halgryn said the couple were visiting from New Zealand and came under fire while driving through Soweto on Tuesday afternoon.

The couple's daughter, who lives in Johannesburg, said her parents had taken her car to go shopping and got lost. "They had apparently taken a wrong turnoff, and when they saw a sign saying 'Welcome to Soweto' they realized they were lost," the daughter, Georgie Braithwaite, told the South African Press Association.

Someone shot at the car, hitting the woman in the arm and the man in the stomach, Halgryn said. The man, 74-year-old Alfred Francis Harrison, died at the scene, the spokesman said. His 69-year-old wife Phyllis was hospitalized in satisfactory condition.

Victims remembered

MOSCOW (AP) — Thousands of Soviets, many holding photographs of relatives who died in labor camps, marched to KGB headquarters Tuesday for the unveiling of a monument to victims of repression.

"This building is a symbol — a symbol of lawlessness, inhumanity and illegality," historian Yuri Afanasyev told the crowd, estimated at 3,000 to 6,000 people.

The monument is simple but eloquent: a rough piece of rock, about 3 feet wide and 8 feet long, hewn from the harsh Solovetsky Islands in the freezing White Sea.

Commuter airline's debut approaches

■ Texas-based Metro Airlines Inc. begins servicing Midland International Airport Thursday with its American Eagle commuter flights.

By Brian Pearson
Staff Writer

The Eagle has yet to land officially, but flights offered by the newcomer to Midland's commercial air traffic already are booking up.

American Eagle, a Metro Airlines Inc. franchise affiliated with American Airlines, is scheduled to launch its inaugural flight from Midland International Airport on Thursday morning.

The commuter airline will offer two non-stop flights daily to Dallas-Fort Worth International Airport and complement existing service to that area. Departure times are 8:30 a.m. and 2:50 p.m.

Tickets went on sale Sept. 12, with some flights through Sunday already more than 70 percent full, Bill Thurmon, general manager of American Airlines' Midland offices, said Tuesday.

As of noon Tuesday, all 34 seats were booked on the Friday afternoon flight, while more than 50 percent of the two Thursday flights were reserved, Thurmon said.

"I think that's pretty good for starting out a service like this," he said. "We only were hoping for a 50 percent load factor. I think they'll really do well here."

If successful, American Eagle service here, which will fill flight gaps between American Airlines departures for Dallas, could lead to more jet service from its affiliate. American Airlines flights to Dallas from Midland depart at 6:25 a.m., 10:40 a.m., 12:30 p.m. and 6:05 p.m.

The airline has planned to add a 3 p.m. non-stop jet flight to Dallas starting in July 1992, but the date may be moved up if American Eagle prospers here, Thurmon said.

American Eagle ticket prices are the same as for American Airline service to Dallas, which costs an average $55 one way, depending on how far in advance flights are booked.

American Eagle flies into San Angelo, Abilene, Wichita Falls, Texarkana and Shreveport, La., among scores of other destinations nationally, but Midlanders only will be able to fly directly to Dallas.

The company uses twin-engine Saab 340 turboprops complete with restroom and flight attendant. The aircrafts travel 325 mph and at a 25,000-foot ceiling.

Passengers will board and deplane using ground-level loading ramps in Midland and Dallas.

Midland Fire Department officials conducted a crash, fire and rescue drill Tuesday on an American Eagle airplane flown in for the test.

"We need to be familiar with the aircraft," said Carl Rodgers, department aircraft fire and rescue chief. "It's something we do for every aircraft here.

"You don't want to wait until they come in here with a problem."

Rodgers said fire officials learned how to disconnect the aircraft's batteries and shut off its engines and fuel flow.

This American Eagle aircraft flew into Midland International Airport on Tuesday so Midland firefighters could familiarize themselves with the plane. American Eagle will begin serving Midland on Thursday.

Man's kidnap, sexual assault trial continues

■ A former Midland sheriff's deputy is on trial in connection with the kidnap and sexual assault of an Odessa woman earlier this year.

By David Morris
Staff Writer

John Edward Hudson told authorities shortly after his arrest that he threatened to kill his ex-girlfriend and himself on the night he allegedly raped her, a police document shows.

The statement, signed by Hudson, was read to jurors Tuesday in 238th District Court during day two of Hudson's trial on aggravated kidnapping and sexual assault charges.

Hudson, 30, a former Midland County sheriff's deputy, is accused of abducting the woman from Odessa on Jan. 9, driving her to his Midland home and raping her. He also is accused of threatening to imprison the woman in a pit beneath his house at 1500 Willeys Ave.

Although Hudson admitted to police that he threatened the woman with a gun and handcuffed her to a chair in his house, he said she willingly consented to sexual intercourse with him on the night in question.

The 33-year-old woman, with whom Hudson lived between 1986 and 1988, testified Monday that she agreed to have sex with Hudson only to protect her family — whom Hudson had threatened — from harm.

According to the woman's testimony, Hudson approached her and two of her sisters outside Odessa's Travis Elementary School about 7:45 p.m. on Jan. 9. She said he told them he needed a jumpstart for his pickup, and they agreed to help him.

After driving him to his truck, the woman said, Hudson pointed a handgun at her and told her she would be going home with him. She said she agreed because she feared for her sisters' lives.

One of her sisters testified Tuesday that she did not immediately call police after the woman left with Hudson because Hudson told her he meant no harm and would bring the woman back.

The sister said she contacted Midland police about the woman's possible abduction sometime after 3 a.m. on Jan. 10.

Hudson told police that after leaving the woman's sisters, he drove the woman to Midland and "showed her the hole that I had dug."

Investigators said the hole, located beneath a closet in Hudson's house, was about 12 feet deep. However, they said Hudson never told them he intended to put the woman in it.

The woman, meanwhile, said Hudson threatened to imprison her there if she attempted to get away from him.

According to his statement, Hudson had been drinking heavily

New MPD 'telephone patrol' ready to roll

By Michael Kashgarian
Staff Writer

The Midland Police Department hopes to improve its function by taking some of its reports over the telephone and freeing up patrol units for more important calls.

On Thursday, a Telephone Response Unit will begin operation.

"We can take the report over the phone and leave the patrol officers more time for priority-type calls," said Cpl. Jim White.

Reports will be taken for crimes where the presence of an officer is not needed, such as in "information-only reports." An example would be a theft reported too long after the fact to find evidence or a witness at the scene.

"If there is evidence or a scene then an officer will go," said Sgt. James Nettles.

In the case of a report where there isn't the need for an officer's presence, yet the complainant insists, then an officer will be dispatched.

Police are hoping the public will be receptive to the program and are hoping to cut calls made by patrol officers by 18 to 20 percent.

"We'd like the mass public to know we are trying to more efficiently use what we have," Police Chief Richard Czech said. "Our calls have gone up but our manpower has not."

Last year the patrol section of the police department had 56,000 calls for service. That many calls already have been received so far this year.

If patrol units are freed from taking reports where the solvability factor is not increased by their presence, then officers will have more time to work on crimes where their presence is vital, officials said.

In addition to saving officers' time, complainants will also save time by not having to wait for an officer to show up in person,

Gramm, Mosbacher in town for 'Victory Tour'

By Brian Pearson
Staff Writer

Midland, a recent GOP mecca for everyone from gubernatorial hopeful Clayton Williams to down-ballot candidates, was the site of another old-fashioned Republican rally Tuesday.

Mosbacher

It was Sen. Phil Gramm and Rob Mosbacher, Texas lieutenant governor candidate, who staged Tuesday's event at the Midland Convention Center.

Gramm

As part of their "Victory Tour," the two stumped for a straight Republican ticket before about 100 placard-waving supporters. The candidates were flanked by Mayor Carroll Thomas, Ed Jones, Texas Commerce Bank chief executive officer and president, and Don Evans, Tom Brown Drilling Co. president.

Thomas formally endorsed the two candidates. "These two men have not only worked for the betterment of Texas but the whole country," he told the crowd.

Gramm, who has visited Midland almost 80 times since 1984, said he does not expect a political backlash over the recent federal budget deadlock to hurt his campaign. It only would affect the "rascals" engaged in runaway government spending, he said.

"If I was one of those rascals I'd be frightened," Gramm said. "I'm not one of those rascals."

Mosbacher touted himself as fresh political face who can bring new ideas to state government.

"People want change," he said. "They want new faces. They want new ideas."

He even went as far as saying he would not allow himself to become an old face if elected.

"I will not serve more than two terms as lieutenant governor," Mosbacher said, adding that he will work to limit terms for all state lawmakers and even U.S. Congress members.

He criticized Democratic opponent Bob Bullock's long tenure in state government, calling him a "career politician."

"I'm convinced that if you've spent that long there, you're part of the problem," he said.

Gramm and Mosbacher also were greeted at the rally by the Midland High School Bulldog Band. "When I think of the high school I want every child to attend, I think of Midland High School," Gramm said.

On why he has made so many trips to Midland, Gramm said, "I have to come to the Permian Basin because it reaffirms in my mind

Incumbent talks budget reforms

By Michael Kashgarian
Staff Writer

The upcoming 102nd U.S. Congress needs to restructure the budget process and reform campaign financing, U.S. Rep. Lamar Smith, who represents the 21st District, said at a news conference at Midland International Airport on Tuesday.

Smith

In addition, Smith recapitulated accomplishments of the 101st Congress that he supported including enactment of legislation that will prompt oil research in the Permian Basin and laws that are "victories on the war on drugs."

In light of the Congressional budget agreement, Smith said "there are a number of lessons we've learned ... one is that we need reform ... which is a priority for me."

Smith expressed his dissatisfaction with the budget because of its failure to control spending, adding that spending will actually increase more than $200 billion.

"We need to rein in government spending," Smith said, which he described as out of control.

Smith relayed a plan to help restrain spending by reducing government overhead by 10 percent.

The intended cut in overhead — equal to the amount taxes rose — would stretch over five years with a first year savings of $27 billion and a five year savings of $143.2 billion, Smith said.

According to Smith, 20 percent of federal government spending is overhead. The savings would be accomplished by a 10 percent cut in the overhead during the first year with an increase no greater than the rate of inflation for the following four years.

Smith anticipates the 10 percent reduction in overhead plan to be introduced to congress in January.

At the same time, Smith supports re-introducing a campaign reform

Party monitoring voter sentiment

By Erin Blair
Staff Writer

Riding high on an anticipated voter backlash against incumbents, the Libertarians are hoping for their strongest showing yet in the general elections.

Owens

Midlander Tom Owens, the Libertarian candidate for lieutenant governor, said Tuesday in Midland that he has received favorable responses from Texans across the state who have heard his philosophy.

"We are for the individual and individual rights," he said. "The power lies with the people, not the government."

Owens said his and the party's worst problem is in getting the word out that Libertarians aren't "kooks or loonies."

If elected, Owens would promote a voucher system for public and private schools, letting competition between schools serve the students' interests. Ultimately he would prefer privatization of education.

He also favors economy of government. Owens said he doesn't know what the minimum amount of government is but "we'd know when we'd cut too much."

Top targets would be the state Board of Insurance, the Texas Bar Association, the Railroad Commission, he said. Welfare and farm and business subsidies would be abolished, replaced with private, community-based charities for the needy.

If the state could live within a limited budget, the people could spend their money on what they want, Owens said.

A major saving for the state would come if Owens' most controversial idea was implemented. He proposes eliminating moral or victimless crime laws.

"The government has no business legislating morality and we're squandering enough money" without prosecuting people for using drugs, engaging in prostitution, or failing to wear seatbelts and (motorcycle) helmets, Owens said.

He would make drugs legal because their prohibition hasn't worked.

"Prohibition has put huge profits in the hands of thugs, it has created an illicit chain of distribution, corroded law enforcement and sapped civil rights and freedoms," Ownens said.

He would also like to see a state referendum on whether Texas should stay in the United States or become a republic.

plan that would limit special interests within congress. Proposed legislation would limit political action committee (PAC) contributions to one-third of a candidate's total contributions.

Smith said such special interests' PAC contributions affect the budget process by influencing members of congress.

Smith substantiated his intentions in the upcoming congress by pointing out legislation he initiated or helped push through the 101st Congress.

Those included:

■ The Enhanced Oil Recovery program enacted into legislation as part of the Interior Appropriations bill. The legislation allows for a pilot program to showcase technology that could boost the oil industry in the Permian Basin. About $9 million will be spent over the next five years in the area to bring the technology together.

■ The Legal Immigration Bill which included various provisions to reform the legal immigration system. One provision — the Criminal Alien Bill — eliminated loopholes that allowed criminal aliens to avoid deportation. Another provision — the Border Patrol Arrest Authority — gave Immigration and Naturalization Service officers authority to arrest all criminals which includes drug smugglers.

■ Elimination of a provision in the Omnibus Crime Control Act that would have done away with financing drug task forces. The Permian Basin Drug Task Force, which relies on federal funding, would have been scratched if the provision had remained intact.

■ A bill increasing the number of federal judges. The bill adds 38 new federal judges that includes 11 in Texas and three in the Midland-based Western District of Texas.

the night of the abduction. He said he was distraught over his breakup with the woman, whom he hadn't seen since October 1989. He told police he had been "hearing voices" and thought he might be losing his mind.

Virginia Davis, Hudson's aunt, testified that Hudson's misery over the loss of the woman was compounded by the recent death of his grandmother, who had raised Hudson.

Under questioning by defense attorney Bob Stevens, Ms. Davis described Hudson as a compassionate man who took care of his grandmother during her terminal illness.

Hudson, who did not take the witness stand Tuesday, faces a maximum sentence of life in prison if convicted.

Attorneys are expected to make closing arguments in the case today before Judge John Hyde.

Art collecting topic of lecture

Staff Report

"Collecting Critically the New" is the topic of a lecture set for 7 p.m. Thursday at the Museum of the Southwest, 1705 W. Missouri Ave.

The lecture will be given by Tom Rush Moody III, who will discuss new trends in art and how to collect with a critical eye. A reception will precede the free lecture.

An artist, wirter and attorney, Moody is a former Midlander now living in Dallas. He writes as an art critic for the Dallas Morning News and contributes to other publications in the area of art and criticism.

His works are in the collections of Southwestern Bell Telephone Company, Mr. and Mrs. Clint Murchinson III, Charlotte Kennedy, The Summer Group, Inc. and others.

Moody is a graduate of baylor University School of Law with a juris doctor.

EAGLE: Flights fill void

(From 1B)

"It looks like it's going to be an extra-safe aircraft," he said. "It's got more than enough emergency exits on it."

The aircraft also was scheduled to undergo similar inspection at the Lubbock and Amarillo airports Tuesday. American Eagle has planned to start up service in those cities within 30 days.

Marcy Blauvelt, supervisor of airport administration in Midland, said American Eagle's service represents an important step to expanding Midland International's air service.

"It will eventually add up to more passengers," Ms. Blauvelt said. "They're here because they feel our market can support more flights. The American Eagle flights will fill a void in our flight schedule to Dallas."

OWENS: We aren't 'loonies'

(From 1B)

"Whether we won (became a republic) or not, we'd be sending a strong message to Washington D.C.: Get off our backs!" he said.

Carol Caul, the Libertarian candidate for the Court of Criminal Appeals, place 3, said Tuesday that she would not vote for to return to a republic, an indication of the difference of opinions existing within the party.

The Houston oil and gas attorney said she is a strong advocate of civil liberties and believes in the constitutional protection of those committing crimes.

"In terms of individual freedoms, I view them broadly in favor of the individual, not the state," she said.

Ms. Caul said she is sympathetic to victims' rights proponents but said the state's legal structure that allows victims to testify and juries to pass sentences on offenders adequately protects vicitims' interests.

Gary Johnson, candidate for the U.S. Senate, said he would bring Libertarian sensibilities to Washington, D.C., if elected.

"Bring the boys back home is my philosophy," he said. "The U.S. should not be the world's policeman . . . the allies should pay for their own defense and we should not be in Saudi Arabia."

Johnson and his colleagues believe that the Democrats and Republicans are more alike than different.

"The Democrat and Republican parties have brought the savings and loan scandal, the bipartisan budget agreement, corruption and ethics scandals, the congressional pay raise and negative campaigns that avoid the real issues. It's time for a change," he said.

"There are three choices on the ballot and if they're tired of what's going on in Washington, the only way to make a difference is to vote Libertarian."

GOP: Sen. Gramm hopes for landslide

once again that it's all those guys in Washington that are crazy and not me.

"People here have faith and they have vision and they believe anything is possible."

Gramm said he not only wants a victory in next Tuesday's election, he wants a landslide, possibly netting more than 60 percent of the vote.

But Mark Greene, press secretary for Gramm's opponent, Democrat Hugh Parmer, said controversy over the federal budget would catch up to Gramm and other Republicans.

"He's not going to get 60 percent," Greene said. "He can't hide from the fact that he was with George Bush on the original budget deal. George Bush will bring Phil Gramm back down to earth."

John Bender, spokesman for the Bullock campaign, said Mosbacher's "new ideas" were not necessarily good ones.

"His idea is to hire 10,000 more government employees and increasing his agency's budget by $2.5 billion," Bender said. "That's not the kind of new idea Texans want in state government."

VOLUNTEERING

Get out of the house on these sunny, crisp fall days and volunteer. Many opportunities are available for you to choose from. Here are just a few of the volunteer needs available:

■ A local agency is having a weekend-only special project and needs several volunteers to assist on Saturday, Nov. 17 and Sunday, Nov. 18 from 12-6 p.m. Meet people and help with a worthy cause during "The Jumbo, Colossal, Mammoth, Magnificent Garage Sale." Volunteers will be assigned to two-hour shifts in their areas of interest. Call the Volunteer Center of Midland today to sign up.

■ Paws need help! An organization that shelters small animals needs volunteers to assist any weekday morning with answering the phone, transporting animals to the veterinarian, and various duties with cats. You just need to like animals to be eligible for this volunteer opportunity. Training is provided and hours are flexible.

■ Sharpen your public relation skills. An agency needs your assistance in processing individuals for eye care needs. If you have the ability to work with people, and have organizational skills, this is the perfect job. Help is needed on weekdays and weekends and the hours are flexible.

■ Is your group or organization looking for a holiday project? Several agencies have special needs during the holiday season such as parties for children or senior citizens, toys, caroling, and whatever you can think of to spread the cheer of the season. Call the Volunteer Center of Midland for more information 697-8781.

■ 697-HELP — the only number you need to remember when you have a question or problem and do not know where to find the answer. Call INFORMATION AND REFERRAL MIDLAND — 697-HELP.

For more information on how you can volunteer, please call the Volunteer Center of Midland 697-8781.

Meteorite lights sky

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (AP) — A bright meteorite streaked across the southern sky Tuesday night, prompting calls to law enforcement agencies and media outlets.

The National Weather Service issued a public-information statement, saying it also received several calls. The meteorite was sighted about 8:15 p.m. CST.

A spokeswoman with Little Rock television station KATV said the station received about seven or eight calls from people in Wynne, Batesville and Little Rock. A state police dispatcher in Little Rock said she got two calls.

The weather service said the clear skies allowed Arkansans to get a good view of the meteorite.

DEATHS

Frances Toll

PECOS — Services for Frances Toll, 87, are to be at 10 a.m. today at St. Mark's Episcopal Church in Pecos. Burial will follow at Mount Evergreen Cemetery with Pecos Funeral Home in charge of arrangements.

She died Sunday at a Midland care center.

She was a longtime resident of Pecos, where she had lived since 1928. She was a retired schoolteacher and a member of the Episcopalian church.

She was born April 11, 1903 in Sioux City, Iowa.

Survivors include one son, the Rev. Richard K. Toll of Milwaukie, Ore.; two daughters, Mary Walker of Arlington and Nancy Englehardt of Midland; 12 grandchildren; 10 great-grandchildren.

Melani Rae Corless

Graveside services for Melani Rae Corless, infant daughter of Robert and Joni Corless, have been set for 3 p.m. Thursday at Resthaven Memorial Park with Ellis Funeral Home in charge of arrangements.

She died Monday at a Fort Worth hospital.

Survivors include the parents; one sister, Keverly Corless of Midland; and grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Troy Tindol of Big Spring and Mr. and Mrs. Robert J. Corless of Spring.

The family requests memorials be directed to the Ronald McDonald House, 620 S. Grant, Odessa, Texas, 79761.

Austin T. Nance

Services for Austin T. Nance of Sanderson will be held at 2 p.m. today at the First Baptist Church of Sanderson.

Interment will follow at Sanderson Cemetery with Ellis Funeral Home in charge of arrangements.

Pallbearers will be Jimmy Davis, Alister Dishman, Robert Joe Dishman, Richard Halley, Jack Hayre and George Eggleston.

JTPA seminar to offer answers to tight budgets

Staff Report

How can business owners cut costs and help train Midland workers at the same time?

The Job Training Partnership Act (JTPA) program offers some solutions to tight staffing budgets.

Wetendorf

Cookie Wetendorf of Midland's JTPA will explain the program today from 11:30 a.m. to 1 p.m. during the Midland Chamber of Commerce's Business Luncheon Forum, in the Chamber boardroom, 109 N. Main, second floor.

Sponsored by the Chamber's Business Council, the luncheon includes barbeque for $5. To reserve, call Paula Bledsoe, 684-5900.

The Business Luncheon Forum each month recognizes a person who has contributed to the growth and/or encouragement of small business in Midland. Nomination for this recognition may be mailed to the Chamber office, P.O. Box 1890, Midland, Texas, 79702.

MFD investigates 'suspicious' fire

Staff Report

Midland firefighters responded to a one-room structure fire in the 100 block of N. Lee St. about 8:30 p.m. Tuesday, fire officials said.

The fire, which was confined to a storage-shed structure located behind a closed business, was fully involved when firefighters arrived.

Cause of the fire, which was under investigation, was not available but was "suspicious in nature," firefighters said.

No electrical power was connected to the structure, which looked as if it may have been used as a one-room apartment, fire officials said.

No one was in the structure at the time of the fire, officials said.

Children's Services hosts costume party

Staff Report

ODESSA — The Ector County Children's Service is sponsoring the 5th Annual Halloween Party for Foster Children on from 2:30 p.m. to 5 p.m. today. The party will be held at the Department of Human Services' new building at 2525 N. Grandview in Odessa.

In the true spirit of Halloween, the staff will be decorating their offices, donning costumes and passing out treats. A wicked witch, making her fifth appearance, will be greeting goblins in the reception area. There will be contests for the best costumes and office decorations among the DHS employees.

"I'm excited about Halloween this year. We're in a new office and it will be fun and different to decorate," said Dana Beazley, personnel representative for the agency.

"This is our fifth year to do this and I look forward to showing these foster children another side to Children's Protective Services. It's not all drama and hard times. We want them to have some fun in their lives," said Vicky Ruiz, a caseworker assistant for Children's Services. Since foster children will be in costumes, the usual restrictions on picture-taking and filming will be lifted.

The trick-or-treating is not open to the public.

Foster parents provide a substitute family for children whose parents need extra help with their situations and the children would not be safe staying at home.

Openness brings a price, Cisneros tells A-P editors

DALLAS (AP) — Intense scrutiny of political candidates will continue and overall is beneficial, so long as the media practices "fairness to the max," former San Antonio Mayor Henry Cisneros said.

"I suspect what we're in for is a future where this kind of scrutiny becomes the order of the day," Cisneros told editors on Tuesday at the Associated Press Managing Editors Association convention in Dallas.

"The most open disclosures are the best," he said, but openness brings a price, he said.

"There will be no heroes, because there are no perfect people," he said, and "we're going to scare some people off."

Cisneros, who is expected to return to politics, said he felt he was treated unfairly near the end of his eight-year tenure as mayor in Texas' third largest city. After announcing in 1988 that he would not seek a third term in 1989, in part for personal reasons, reports surfaced about an extramarital affair.

There is a misconception that the revelation ran him out of office, Cisneros said. He said he already had decided to leave because of financial pressures exacerbated by his son's ill health.

Cisneros, who remains popular in San Antonio, said Tuesday he thought he was leaving office to take care of private problems outside the glare of publicity, but found that just the opposite happened.

Although Cisneros and his wife made joint public appearances recently, there remains widespread public speculation about his private life.

Despite his concern about the coverage, Cisneros said revelations about candidates' private lives have allowed voters to "chose between real people, not cardboard, paste-up people."

Cisneros predicted a near-Democratic sweep in next Tuesday's general election, including a victory by gubernatorial candidate Ann Richards. Cisneros is vice chairman of Richards' campaign.

Foes wonder about grave markers

AUSTIN (AP) — With Halloween here, there's a witch on the roof and a skeleton in the grass. But the tombstones on Austin lawyer Lee Biggart's yard are what's causing "R.I.P.ples" among environmentalists.

Biggart has put hauntingly real last names on his grave markers — names that call to mind foes of the former Texas Water Commission chairman.

Could "Bunch" be Austin attorney Bill Bunch, whose work for Earth First! and the Save Barton Creek Association has been a thorn in the side of Biggart client Freeport-McMoRan?

Biggart won't say.

North Texas man home after daring escape from Kuwait

GRAPEVINE (AP) — Arabs helped a McKinney man escape from the Kuwaiti hiding place he had occupied since Iraq invaded Kuwait in early August.

Upon arrival at the Dallas-Fort Worth International Airport Tuesday, Manfred Hoffman, 57, would reveal little about his escape on Friday. He said the State Department told him it might use similar methods to free others hiding in the occupied country.

He did said he was aided by U.S. officials and by Kuwaiti residents who had helped him hide.

Hoffman's wife, Barbara Hoffman, who was allowed to leave the Middle East on Sept. 7 without her husband, said she learned of the escape Monday night in a telephone call, but refused to believe it until Tuesday.

While also refusing to reveal details about her husband's escape, Mrs. Hoffman told the Dallas Morning News that the former executive for Sun Co. in Dallas was able to slip out of Kuwait undetected when the departure of French citizens caused enough confusion to distract occupying Iraqi troops.

Seven or eight other foreigners who had been living with Hoffman in a Kuwaiti safe house decided not to risk the journey, Mrs. Hoffman said.

"They all had small children, and they were all afraid of getting killed," she said.

"Manny just felt he was gonna get killed one way or another, so why not go for it? He said he was scared to death, but he knew he had to do it."

Mrs. Hoffman said her husband was suffering chest pains similar to those he suffered before a heart attack that led to surgery when she left Kuwait.

She said her fears for his health increased last week when the Iraqis allowed some sick Americans being held in Iraq to go home, but refused to allow any hiding in Kuwait to be evacuated, no matter how severe their ailments.

Hoffman sent his wife a letter for the news media pleading for an immediate U.S. military strike because he felt there was no chance of negotiations, Mrs. Hoffman said.

Optics conference draws world researchers to UTEP

EL PASO (AP) — Technology used to warn skiers when they've had too much sun and which may form the next generation of computers has drawn scientists and companies from across the world to this corner of West Texas.

UTEP scientist Jean Robillard, who holds more than 100 patents for his research in chemical and optical physics, is sharing his ideas with more than 100 scientists and engineers.

The weeklong symposium has drawn scientists from universities and companies in the United States, France, Japan, China, the Soviet Union and other countries. It is supported by a $5 million grant from the National Science Foundation to UTEP's Materials Research Center of Excellence.

"The field is advancing so fast you can't wait for (scientific) papers to be published to find out what other people are doing," said Francis Garnier, a French researcher who invented an optical transistor. "That's what makes a conference like this very important."

The conference focuses on nonlinear optics, crystals and chemical films that can be made to twist, bend and reflect light. When activated by laser light, the optics act like electronic transistors in conventional computers, except they're thousands of times faster.

The explosive new technology might let computers run at the speed of light.

Computer technology has become so sophisticated that maximum computing power is limited by the speed with which electrical current races across microscopic currents. Light in a vacuum, however, moves at 186,000 miles per second, the ultimate speed limit of the universe.

Optical computers are envisioned to be in use before the decade is out.

Robillard currently is experimenting with microscopic optical films to develop a light-responsive coating for bank notes that could prevent counterfeiting.

He also invented a patch that changes color when its wearer is in danger of overexposure to ultraviolet solar rays. A Robillard system that alerts skiers to such overexposure is being used in Aspen, Colo. and in Europe.

Robillard believes the technology could do for the El Paso-Las Cruces, N.M.-corridor what the computer chip did for California's Silicon Valley.

The job-rich Silicon Valley grew around Stanford University.

PEOPLE PERISH BECAUSE OF LACK OF KNOWLEDGE.

I GOT UPSET WHEN SOMBONE SAID A LITTLE HAUNTED HOUSE, GRAVEYARDS, HEADLESS DUMMIES ARE WRONG AND OF THE DEVIL. WHAT'S THE MATTER WITH A GOOD SCARE OR TORMENT?

LET'S ASK THE QUESTION WHAT'S RIGHT WITH IT. HAUNTED HOUSES REPRESENT DEMON POSSESSED, GRAVEYARD IS WHERE THE DEAD IS, AND FEAR AND TORMENT IS NOT OF THE LORD.
THESE ARE THE FACTS!!!
PEOPLE PERISH BECAUSE OF LACK OF KNOWLEDGE.

I GOT UPSET WHEN SOMBONE WROTE AN ARTICLE AND SAID IT'S WRONG TO HAVE A FUN PARTY WITH A LITTLE WITCH BREW. A LITTLE HEX OR CAST A SPELL IT'S ONLY FUN.

LETS ASK THE QUESTION WHAT'S RIGHT WITH DABBLING WITH SATAN AND ALL ITS EVIL WORKS. WHO DO WITCHES SERVE? THERE IS NO SUCH THING AS GOOD WITCH. SEARCH THE HISTORY . . . READ YOUR BIBLE . . . GET THE FACTS!!!
PEOPLE PERISH BECAUSE OF LACK OF KNOWLEDGE.

I GOT UPSET BECAUSE SOMEONE SAID TO PARTICIPATE IN HALLOWEEN IS IDOLATRY EVEN IF WE CARRY OUT THIS SEEMINGLY INNOCENT PRACTICE. HEY, REMEMBER TIME HAS CHANGED AND IT'S NOTHING.

LET'S ASK THE QUESTION IS IT SO INNOCENT WHEN THERE IS A ALARMING INCREASE OF MISSING CHILDREN, PEOPLE, INCREASE IN DRUG USE AND POISONED CANDY, DEATH AND TRAGEDY.
THE FACTS ARE YOU DO NOT LET YOUR OWN CHILD WALK THE STREET IN JUST ANY NEIGHBORHOOD BECAUSE TIME HAS CHANGED AND IT IS SOMETHING, ALRIGHT.
YES OR NO INDEED THESE ARE FACTS.

PEOPLE PERISH BECAUSE OF LACK OF KNOWLEDGE.
I GOT UPSET BECAUSE SOMEONE SAID HALLOWEEN WAS THE CELEBRATION OF DEATH, AND OTHERS BELIEVE SPIRITS OF THE DEAD RETURN TO THEIR FORMER HOME VISIT THE LIVING BY MEANS OF LIT UP PUMPKINS. AND TRICK OR TREAT MEANS "TREAT ME OR I'LL TRICK YOU." AND TODAYS GIVING OUT CANDY IS A REPLACEMENT OF HUMAN SACRIFICES OF OLD, AN APPEASEMENT TO THOSE DECEPTIVE EVIL SPIRITS.
NO WELL, NO BUTS, NO OPINIONS . . . JUST FACTS.
PEOPLE PERISH BECAUSE OF LACK OF KNOWLEDGE.

I GOT UPSET AND SAID "I'M FROM MISSOURI . . . SHOW ME." READ YOUR HISTORY, READ THE ALARMING UNSOLVED MYSTERIES OF DEATHS, MISSING CHILDREN, OCCULT AND OTHER PITFALLS OF SATAN.
GET THE FACTS. UNAWARNESS DOESN'T MAKE IT RIGHT OR LESSEN THE CONSEQUENCE. READ YOUR BIBLE!!!
WHAT ONE WANT TO KNOW YOU WILL SEARCH OUT. FACTS YOU DO NOT WANT TO KNOW OR ACCEPT WILL MAKE YOU UPSET!!!
PEOPLE PERISH BECAUSE OF LACK OF KNOWLEDGE.

I GOT UPSET BECAUSE IT WAS TRUE AFTER ALL. BUT I DID NOT WANT TO HEAR IT, SO WHAT, BIG DEAL, I'M GROWN AND JUST WHO ARE YOU?

I AM THE SOMBONE WHO SAID . . . GET THE FACTS, AND NOW I KNOW FOR A FACT NO ONE CAN CLAIM
PEOPLE PERISH BECAUSE OF LACK OF KNOWLEDGE . . .
YOU KNOW N O W !!!

I LEAVE YOU WITH AN ANSWER TO RENOUNCE ANY INVOLVEMENT WITH HALLOWEEN, RECEIVE JESUS CHRIST AS YOUR PERSONAL SAVIOR BY ASKING HIM INTO YOUR HEART AND THEN USE GOD'S BLESSING OF YOU TO ALTERNATE THIS TIME AND ACTIVITIES FOR HIS GLORY.

GET THE FACTS !!
I LOVE YOU
GOD BLESS YOU
JESUS LOVE YOU.

YES, MOST OF US HAVE PARTICIPATED IN HALLOWEEN IN SOME MANNER OR ANOTHER BUT . . .

Imported wildlife causes problems in other countries

SYDNEY, Australia (AP) — Australia and New Zealand are cursing the introduction of rabbits, foxes, opossums and other foreign animals, which breed virtually unchecked because their natural predators were not brought along.

"New Zealand could be said to be facing a creeping ecological disaster with the impact of introduced species on our environment," said Philip Woollaston, its conservation minister.

"We have a long and inglorious history of introducing new and alien elements into our environment. Homesick settlers brought familiar plants and animals to a country that looked foreign to them.

"It has taken a long time for us to shake off the settler mentality of wanting to create a Southern Hemisphere European country."

Some alien species were assets. Sheep, cattle and various crops have become economic mainstays of both countries, but the lists of foreign pests are long.

New Zealand's includes goats, chamois, opossums, wasps and deer. Predators or parasites sometimes have been brought in as controls, but they often created new problems.

"Foxes were once thought to be the answer to the rabbit menace," Woollaston said. "Fortunately, they did not take hold in New Zealand as they have in Australia, where they have done terrible damage to indigenous fauna.

"Unfortunately, stoats and weasels, which also were introduced for rabbit control, have found New Zealand a very suitable habitat."

The opossum, introduced from Australia in the 19th century for its fur, now is the main threat in New Zealand. The government has declared war on the animal, which outnumbers the 3.1 million New Zealanders about 23 to 1.

Opossums devastate foilage in many forests and carry a form of tuberculosis that has infected other species, particularly cattle.

There has been little resistance to poison pellets intended to kill opossums, even though other animals also die.

Agriculture Minister Jim Sutton said New Zealand needs a major research project to find biological methods of wiping out the opossum through disease or sterility without harming other species.

"We have to do the research ourselves because this is a uniquely New Zealand problem," he said.

Sutton said opossums could withstand a death rate of 5 million a year without a permanent reduction of their numbers.

Margaret Evans, mayor of the North Island city of Hamilton, has suggested an opossum-hunting program to give jobs to the unemployed.

Foxes and rabbits were brought to Australia by Europeans to be bred for hunting. They now are blamed for contributing to the extinction of 18 marsupial species and threatening 30.

There is not a dimes worth of difference between a Republican or Democrat.

New farm bill 'rotten, lousy,' corn growers' chief says

STATE

The new legislation would budget $40.8 billion over the next five years for farm programs, a 35 percent cut from the $78 billion budgeted in the bill's 1985 predecessor.

DALLAS (AP) — The 1990 Farm Bill will further harm an industry hit hard by rising fuel prices, Texas farm leaders said Tuesday.

The 5-year federal agricultural plan calls for a dramatic decrease in government farm program spending, which one industry leader said will spell disaster for Texas farmers.

"It's a rotten, lousy bill for the farmers," said Carl King, chairman of the Texas Corn Growers Association. "It's going to be a complete disaster."

The new legislation would budget $40.8 billion over the next five years for farm programs, a 35 percent cut from the $78 billion budgeted in the bill's 1985 predecessor.

Carl Anderson, an economist for the Texas Extension Service at Texas A&M University warned that the new bill could trigger a farm crisis within the industry similar to the depression experienced during the 1980s.

"I'm not very pleased with this farm program at all," Anderson said.

The federal cutback comes at a time when most farmers are facing an increase in production costs caused by rising fuel prices, experts say.

U.S. Rep. Eligio "Kika" de la Garza, D-Texas, chairman of the House Agriculture Committee, called the bill "grossly unfair."

A reduction in federal funding means farmers may face a reduction in their own income, because they cannot rely on government assistance.

Although the new farm bill would also freeze current target-price supports to farmers through 1995, it will eventually lower payments to farmers, economists say.

Among the stipulations is a controversial "triple-base" plan that will reduce eligible acreage by 15 percent.

Farmers growing subsidized crops such as wheat, cotton and feed grains must set aside an unused portion of their fields each year. This used portion of a field is called the program base.

The triple base plan requires farmers to reduce their program base by another 15 percent.

While producers would be allowed to grow any program or non-program crop, other than fruits and vegetable on the land, they would be ineligible for deficiency payments.

The Texas Department of Agriculture predicts state farmers would lose $1.9 billion in revenues because of the triple base plan.

Another item included in the 1990 Farm Bill would further reduce subsidies to wheat and feed-grain producers.

The item includes a proposed method of calculating deficiency payments based on an average of current prices instead of the most recent price.

HAPPY BIRTHDAY! IN THE NEXT YEAR OF YOUR LIFE: Put your personal priorities first. A career plan comes to fruition in December. Friends and family will play a special role in your professional life in early 1991. Heavy work demands next April could jeopardize an important relationship. Do not take romantic partner for granted. Plan several special family weekends for the summer. Extensive travel is best postponed until next September.

CELEBRITIES BORN ON THIS DATE: comedian John Candy, cowgirl Dale Evans, actress Deidre Hall, journalist Jane Pauley.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Pending residential or financial negotiations can be concluded with great success. Tap previously unavailable sources if an emergency arises. You could be getting the wrong romantic signals.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): A sudden windfall could expand your sphere of influence. Dreams can come true! Your friendships are lucky for you today. A social evening leads to an exciting session of brainstorming.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Some people want you to play both peacemaker and the Rock of Gibraltar. Be bold when pursuing your career goals; others will respect you more. A lost document will surface under mysterious circumstances.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Your words carry great weight today; think carefully before you speak. An old debt will be repaid. Reinvest the money right away. Trust your hunches when it comes to new relationships!

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Being too outspoken will land you in hot water. You know what you want and how to go after it. A loved one is your strongest ally. Be more open about seeking business introductions.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Be careful what you say to VIPs. Travel is linked to an increase in professional prestige. Good luck strikes if you mingle with the masses today. Dressing elegantly will boost your self-confidence.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Someone influential can provide you with guidance in your secret quest. Others are willing to grant you special favors. Be prepared to reciprocate. Public fanfare suits you fine.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Steer clear of angry people. A positive attitude will help you cope with contrary individuals. Confidential dealings are good for business. A fine time to play your romantic hunches.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Luckily, you can count on close friends or relatives to bail you out of a financial jam. Be careful not to go to the well too often! There may be friction on the social scene tonight.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): A hobby can be turned into a profitable business. Avoid taking others into your confidence. Do some research and planning before reaching out. A platonic relationship could ignite.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Do not neglect your health. Regular medical and dental checkups are essential. Practical career matters require your immediate attention. A strong authority figure plays a major role in your happiness.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Someone's words or actions may be misunderstood. Speak up. Do not let a loved one's problems interfere with your productivity during working hours. Be conscientious and very thrifty.

TODAY'S CHILDREN are passionate, proud and fiercely independent. Even as tots they will zealously guard their privacy. Wise parents will give these Scorpios as many choices and as much space as possible! Suggest fun but constructive outlets for their wonderful creativity. A few close friendships will mean more than a lot of casual acquaintances to these youngsters. They are experts at making their wishes known.

*—Major two-suiter

Opening lead: Two of ◇

Once in a while a hand turns up in a tournament which is a perfect double-dummy problem. This deal is from the recent World Olympiad in Geneva, Switzerland. The winning line was found by Jean-Claude Solari of France. Can you do as well looking at all the cards?

West's jump to three clubs promised a major-two-suiter and East's three diamonds showed no preference between hearts and spades. The rest of the auction was natural; however, we doubt whether we would have doubled a grand slam with the West hand!

West's trump lead got the defense off to a good start. With a sure spade loser and probable club loser, declarer's problem was to score two ruffs in dummy. Also, East had to be kept off lead to prevent the defenders from leading another trump.

Declarer did well by winning the first trick in dummy and leading a spade. East flew in with the king, declarer took the ace and made the key return of the eight of spades. West, who had unblocked the nine, was forced to win with the ten. On the spade continuation, declarer could not afford to ruff with the eight, since East would have been able to overruff. Declarer's solution was most elegant—instead of ruffing, South discarded a club from dummy.

Now declarer was in control. When West persevered with spades, declarer ruffed high on the table, came to hand with the ace of clubs and ruffed a club with dummy's last trump. A heart ruff provided the entry to draw the last trump and claim the doubled contract.

Guns N'-Roses singer arrested for allegedly hitting neighbor

WEST HOLLYWOOD, Calif. (AP) — Axl Rose, lead singer of Guns N' Roses, was arrested Tuesday for allegedly hitting a neighbor woman over the head with a wine bottle during an argument about loud music, authorities said.

Rose

Rose's neighbor Gabriela Kantor accused Rose of grabbing her keys and tossing them off a balcony before emptying a wine bottle and swinging it at her, said Los Angeles County Sheriff's Deputy Roger Hom.

Rose was arrested and booked for investigation of assault with a deadly weapon. His business manager posted the $5,000 bail, said Deputy Bill Linnemeyer and arraignment was set for Nov. 20.

Kantor was taken to a hospital for observation and released.

In an earlier incident, deputies went to Rose's apartment Aug. 1 to ask him to turn down his stereo.

Rose later filed a complaint saying one deputy forced his way into the apartment while others tried to provoke him.

Critics of the Los Angeles-based Guns N' Roses band have called the band's lyrics homophobic and racist. The band gained notoriety earlier this year after an obscenity-laced acceptance speech for a music award on live television.

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Country singer Crystal Gayle and 50 coughing school children stepped into a recording studio to create a musical appeal to keep students from smoking.

Gayle

Gayle and the Metro School School Children's Chorus on Monday recorded a song called "Don't Smoke" as part of the Smoke Free Class of 2000, a national anti-smoking project. The song features a chorus of coughs.

Gayle, best known for the hit "Don't It Make My Brown Eyes Blue," said she was glad to participate in the project, sponsored by the American Cancer Society, the American Heart Association and the American Lung Association.

"I think we should be using money for education and not just for research," she said.

HACKENSACK, N.J. (AP) — Jimmy Dean's wife of 40 years wants a divorce from the country music singer and sausage tycoon and is seeking $612,000 a year in support.

In papers filed in Superior Court, Mary Sue Dean accused her husband of having an affair with country music singer Donna Meade, 37.

Mrs. Dean, who still lives in the couple's home in Tenafly, claims her husband abandoned her in April, after she spent years helping him with his career and social obligations.

She said she needs the money to maintain the lifestyle to which she has become accustomed.

Accountants' estimates filed with the court show Dean earned almost $8 million in 1989 and has assets of more than $75 million.

Dean has offered his wife $120,000 per year, saying his career has always afforded the couple a "comfortable" lifestyle, not "opulent or extravagant."

Dean is best known for his 1961 hit "Big Bad John." His sausage company produces Jimmy Dean brand sausages.

NEW YORK (AP) — If eight dancers who played Cassie in "A Chorus Line" have their way, Broadway's longest running show will have a permanent tribute in the lobby of the Shubert Theater.

Donna McKechnie, Ann Reinking, Vicki Frederick, Pamela Sousa, Cheryl Clark, Deborah Henry, Wanda Richert and Laurie Gamache are part of a committee announced Tuesday to raise funds for a bronze sculpture honoring the musical.

The show closed last April after 6,137 performances over 15 years.

The committee hopes to raise between $35,000 and $50,000 for the sculpture, to be designed by Immi Storrs.

Two fans who saw the show at total of 70 times — Gary Stevens and Alan George — came up with the idea for the sculpture.

"We wanted to do something we hoped everyone would want to be a part of," Stevens said. " 'A Chorus Line' is not only a tribute to the creativity and magic of the Broadway theater, but to the memories and dreams of us all."

MADRID, Spain (AP) — El Greco's "The Disrobing of Christ" was sold at auction Tuesday for $2.96 million, the highest amount ever paid for a work by the 17th century master.

The painting, held privately for its nearly 400-year existence, was sold by Edmund Peel and Associates, the Madrid representative for Sotheby's of London. The names of the seller and buyer were not released. The government refused to issue an export license in order to keep the painting in Spain.

"The Disrobing of Christ," portraying the robed and bound figure of Jesus surrounded by Roman soldiers and onlookers, is a smaller version of a painting of the same name that hangs in the Toledo cathedal.

STATE IN BRIEF

Garland school official shot

GARLAND(AP) — The mother of a suspended Garland eighth-grader has been charged with attempted murder following the Tuesday morning shooting of an assistant high school principal.

Manuela Chacon Reyes, 32, was arrested shortly after she allegedly shot Steven Baker, one of three assistant principals at Naaman Forest High School.

Ms. Reyes was being held at the Garland City Jail Tuesday on $50,000 bond, a police spokesman said.

Garland school officials said Ms. Reyes, upset over her son's suspension, came to Naaman Forest High School to discuss the matter.

During a meeting in Baker's office, two shots from a .25-caliber pistol were fired, said Mary Ellen Marnholtz, spokeswoman for the Garland Independent School District.

One of the shots hit Baker, 35, in the thigh, Ms. Marnholtz said. A football coach saw the pair wrestline in the hallway and grabbed the gun away from Ms. Reyes, Ms. Marnholtz said.

Baker was listed in fair condition at Baylor University Medical Center.

Deer attacks, kills man

CALDWELL (AP) — An elderly man was mauled to death by an eight-point buck in the second attack in a week by deer made more aggressive by its mating season, wildlife officials say.

Charlie J. Coleman, 61, of Caldwell, was hunting for antique bottles along the side of the road when the buck attacked.

The 160-pound animal was still standing over Coleman's body when sheriff's deputies arrived at the scene Monday afternoon. The deputies shot the buck after it charged them.

An autopsy determined that Coleman died from a crushed skull, but he suffered more than 100 hoof and puncture wounds over his back, stomach and face, authorities said.

"It was the most unbelievable thing I've ever seen," Burleson County Chief Deputy Tom Randall told The Bryan-College Station Eagle. "It was more of a massacre than an attack.

Randall said a 15-by-15-foot area was covered with clothing and blood.

It was the second buck attack in four days. Mid-October to mid-November is rutting, or mating, season, a period in which usually docile deer can become aggressive.

On Friday, three surveyors were attacked by a buck in a rural area near Beaumont. The men were not seriously injured, but one was pitched about 20 feet into a creek. One of the men wrestled the deer to the ground and his partner slit the buck's throat with a machete.

Parmer to walk state

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — U.S. Senate candidate Hugh Parmer began a campaign walk around the state with a 10-mile walk through San Antonio that concluded at the Alamo.

Parmer, a Democratic state senator from Fort Worth, took the walk Tuesday before meeting with reporters. He criticized Republican opponent U.S. Sen. Phil Gramm, who he said travels the state in a plane that costs $650 an hour to fly.

Parmer has said he will walk 50 miles around Texas to attract attention to his candidacy.

After San Antonio, he said, he'll walk in Austin, Corpus Christi, Dallas, Houston and Fort Worth.

Official breaks fast

SINTON (AP) — County Commissioner Pedro G. "Pete" Rodriguez has ended a four-day hunger strike he began to protest a dispute with the county auditor.

Rodriguez began his hunger strike Thursday morning on the front lawn of the San Patricio County Courthouse. That was after County Auditor Michael Weisman refused to pay overtime to some of Rodriguez's employees or to allow the commissioner to transfer money within his budget.

The county commissioner ended his fast on Monday afternoon, following a meeting between Weisman, Rodriguez, County Commissioner Nina Trevino and 36th District Judge Ronald Yeager.

Mattox sues company

AUSTIN (AP) — Attorney General Jim Mattox alleged in a lawsuit that "PetroMizer," advertised as a fuel-saving device, is ineffective and its advertisements are false and misleading.

Mattox's lawsuit, filed in Harris County, is against Advanced Automotive Technologies Inc; Robert Morrison Jr.; and Gaetano Sarcona, also known as Frank Sarcone and Frank Johns.

The suit alleged the "PetroMizer" is nothing more than a magnet encased in plastic, which the user is directed to attach with plastic ties to the exterior portion of a vehicle's fuel line.

Bill extends federal oversight of Lake Meredith

AMARILLO (AP) — West Texas recreation is a winner in Congress' latest budget reduction plan thanks to a bill that will expand the role of the National Park Service at Lake Meredith.

The bill, which still must be signed by President Bush, establishes the lake as a permanent national recreation area and earmarks an extra $106,000 to the lake's current funding.

"We are pretty positive that Bush will pass the bill," said Joel Brandenburger, U.S. Rep. Bill Sarpalius' legislative director. "We have not had any indication he has a problem with the bill, because there is nothing controversial about it."

The bill also orders the government to complete surveys and create a 5-year development plan, costing $1 million, that includes a visitors center and better facilities.

The bill allocates $1.26 billion to extend the park service's supervision of Lake Meredith indefinitely. The additional $106,000 for operating costs was a benefit, Brandenburger said.

"We had initially requested a $300,000 annual operation increase for Lake Meredith, but unfortunately because of the budget situation, the full $300,000 became highly unlikely," he said. "We were very pleased to get what we got."

The National Park Service has administered recreation at the lake under a 1965 agreement with the Bureau of Land Reclamation, which built the lake to provide drinking water to Panhandle communities.

But the park service has been free to pull out of the agreement any time and has done little to develop the lake, located about 30 miles north of Amarillo.

The passage of the bill, Brandenburger said, enhances the lake's ability to compete for funds from the National Park Service.

"We will soon see the lake area and Alibates (Quarries National Monument) become more of a tourist attraction, which will create a ripple effect in the economy," Sarpalius said.

On October 31st, we'll be getting heavily booo'd by kids from all over town. And we'd like yours to take part! We're turning the entire mall into a frightfully fun (and safe) place for the little monsters to trick-or-treat this Halloween. So bring all your boys and ghouls. Or you might hear them do some real moaning and groaning!

Dome renamed

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — The city's new domed stadium will be called "Fiesta Dome" now that the original choice of Alamodome has been scrapped because of a trademark dispute, officials said Tuesday.

"After much discussion and in-depth consideration, a new name was unanimously selected, and we think it's an excellent choice," Jim Anderson, moderator of the city's Name the Dome Committee, had said on Monday.

The domed stadium is scheduled for completion in 1993. It is to be used for major conventions, San Antonio Spurs basketball games and the World League of American Football.

The new name officially was revealed Tuesday afternoon.

The committee wanted to name the stadium the Alamodome, which it has been called informally since its inception. Selection of the name Fiesta Dome came in the wake of a legal dispute between VIA Metropolitan Transit Authority and Alamo Dome Cos., which has taken steps to trademark the name Alamodome on souvenirs.

VIA, the agency that levies the sales tax to finance the stadium, will own the building, with the city leasing it for 99 years. Voters approved the sales tax in January 1989.

Jim Deleo, spokesman for the trademark division of Texas Secretary of State's Office, said the process to trademark the new name is under way.

And VIA spokeswoman Suzanne Detweiler confirmed T-Shirts and other souvenir items bearing the name Fiesta Dome are being made. She said the law requires the name to be used for a day before it can be trademarked.

Holyfield eyes fight possibilities

■ Newly-crowned world heavyweight champion Evander Holyfield feels so good he can joke about his next opponent, George Foreman.

Associated Press

NEW YORK — While he awaits the time and place for a more serious confrontation, Evander Holyfield is getting in some early jabs at George Foreman.

Holyfield

Verbal jabs.

The usually dour Holyfield said Tuesday he was anxious to face Foreman — all 250 or more pounds of him. So anxious, in fact, he made jokes about Foreman's prodigious appetite.

"Everybody talks about his weight but George makes a joke about it and says he's going off to eat some more Baskin-Robbins ice cream," Holyfield said. "You push him, it's like pushing a franchise."

Dealing with a franchised-sized opponent would be nothing new for Holyfield, who knocked out 246-pound Buster Douglas to win the championship.

Holyfield, in town to pick up the IBF championship belt, was disturbed over criticism he has heard of Douglas' performance in the title fight.

"I think they were too hard on Buster," he said. "He was sensational against (Mike) Tyson to become champion. To say he wouldn't get up takes something from him. He didn't quit. He got hit with a good shot. It was something I practiced against uppercuts."

He said cornerman George Benton had told him to counter Douglas' jab with his right. "A lot of times, I led with the jab and he countered with a left hook. I faked a jab and he went for it. I countered with a right cross."

Listening to this play-by-play of Holyfield's knockout was a group that promoter Dan Duva called "the United Nations of boxing."

Sprinkled around the room were representatives of rival casinos and cable networks, all angling for Holyfield's first defense of the title.

"Look," Duva said, "there's Caesars over there, (people from) Trump over there. HBO and Showtime are standing next to each other."

"Yeah," blurted Lou Duva, the promoter's father who works in Holyfield's corner, "but the Mirage ain't here."

Steve Wynn's Mirage Hotel and Casino, site of the title fight last Thursday night in Las Vegas, had cast its lot with Douglas, expecting him to dispatch Holyfield and move on to a mega-bucks rematch with ex-champ Mike Tyson.

Few challenge Big Three

■ Midway through the 1990 NFL season, the 49ers, Giants and Bears look to have their division races wrapped up.

By Barry Wilner
AP Sports Writer

The Giants and 49ers can start gearing up for each other. The Bears can start thinking about the playoffs, too, if they handle slumping Tampa Bay this weekend.

The NFC is the No Fair Conference this year. Much of the mediocrity rampant in the NFL this season has plagued the conference that has won the last five Super Bowls, resulting in runaways in the three divisions.

The 49ers and Giants, clearly the class of the league, are 7-0. Each had a scare or two, but both seem headed for a Dec. 3 showdown at Candlestick Park with not much else to keep them occupied — or drop them from the unbeaten ranks.

Things aren't quite as comfortable in Chicago. While the Giants have a three-game lead in the East and the 49ers are up by four in the West, the Bears lead the Bucs by two. A win in Tampa this Sunday pretty much would salt away the Central.

"We don't rate with those two teams," coach Mike Ditka said in comparing his division leaders to the others in the NFC. "We're not in that category, but we could be in time. The Giants and 49ers are a notch above the rest of the conference. We fall in the second area somewhere."

Actually, they might be the only team in that

Torborg honored again

Associated Press

NEW YORK — Jeff Torborg, who transformed the Chicago White Sox into baseball's biggest surprise team of the season, on Tuesday was selected the American League manager of the year.

Torborg took the youngest club in the majors and helped guide it to the best turnaround in the big leagues. The White Sox, picked to finish far back in the AL West after finishing last at 69-92 in 1989, improved by 24½ games to 94-68 and challenged Oakland through the final month.

Only Oakland and Pittsburgh had better records than the White Sox. Chicago also was the only team to hold an edge over the Athletics, going 8-5 against the pennant winners.

Torborg got 23 of 28 first-place votes and finished with 128 points. Oakland's Tony La Russa got four first-place votes and had 72 points and Boston's Joe Morgan got the other first-place vote and was third with 28.

Torborg was the only manager to be named on every ballot. Two members of the Baseball Writers Association of America from each AL city voted.

Eight of the 14 AL managers received votes. Detroit's Sparky Anderson was fourth with 12, followed by Toronto's Cito Gaston (6), Texas' Bobby Valentine (4) and Seattle's Jim Lefebvre and California's Doug Rader with one each.

The National League manager of the year will be announced Wednesday.

Frey heads for Carolina

Staff Report

The Midland Angels announced Tuesday that Assistant General Manager John Frey has accepted a similar position with the Greensboro, N.C., Hornets of the South Atlantic League.

Greensboro is affiliated with the New York Yankees. The Class A Hornets have applied for AAA status with the National Association of Professional Baseball Leagues in anticipation of the Major Leagues future expansion plans.

Frey came to Midland before the 1987 season as the Director of Operations, but has been the Assistant General Manager for the past three seasons. He began his

Bronchos deal Rebels strong lesson

The last time we turned to this saga, known as District 4-5A football, Midland Lee was waltzing toward a district championship, an eighth consecutive playoff berth and a lofty state ranking.

Williamson

What a difference a couple of hours can make. Odessa High 23, Lee 14.

With that turn of events, the Bronchos, who haven't been to the state playoffs since 1964, vault into playoff glory, and barring an upset at the hands of featherless Eagles from Abilene, will own at least a share of the district championship.

Lee could have won a playoff berth with a victory over OHS, but as things turn out, it was OHS and San Angelo who put the lock on playoff status. Lee is still looking for its ring.

Oh yes, we know that it would take a moving of the earth for the tradition-rich Rebels not to make the playoffs, but if they lose the next two games (Abilene High and San Angelo), they are staying at home.

Already gone is the sole possession of a district championship. Already gone is that state ranking. Is this Rebel a sinking ship or just a hibernating bear? The answer will come Friday when the Rebels host Abilene High.

Will it be the Rebels who defeated Odessa Permian or the Rebels who got clubbed into submission by Odessa High who will show up Friday? That will be the question waiting for an answer at Memorial Stadium.

Fortunately for Lee, the loss to OHS didn't really damage playoff hopes. They can lose one of the next two games and still get into the playoffs. A weak Abilene High team is one of those games. San Angelo, on the other hand, is another matter since the Bobcats have become the surprise story of the year in 4-5A.

If an opinion must be offered, it seems that the Lee Rebels got a little too big for their britches after an impressive win over Permian. This isn't to take away from the OHS victory, which was well earned. The Bronchos physically beat Lee Friday. Ball control is usually a good example of when one team is beating another at the line of scrimmage. OHS, again, did a good job of that.

Still, one feels that Lee was lifeless and devoid of emotion against the Bronchos. In sports, as well as many endeavors of life, living on past glories is dangerous at best.

But this experience could be a welcome tonic for Lee this year — one hopefully learned before the sudden death playoffs begin. Lee now knows that it must answer the bell every week.

Bell ringers win state championships by paying attention. Pretenders take naps during the learning process. Here's hoping Lee was paying attention Friday when OHS was giving a strong lesson. Playoff success depends on it.

Steeler defense means curtains for opponents

Associated Press

PITTSBURGH — Just a few weeks after Bubby Brister complained the Pittsburgh Steelers were coming unglued, they're sticking anything that walks or talks.

Just ask the Los Angeles Rams.

The Steelers not only punished the Rams 41-10 on the scoreboard, they punished them physically Monday night. You could learn as much about the Steelers' first Monday night victory in six years by listening as much as watching.

Close to the field, it sounded like John Madden was narrating the soundtrack. Wham. Woomph. Boom. Splat. Crunch.

If only the Pittsburgh Pirates had hit like that in the National League playoffs.

"We tried to let them know that we're going to knock you on your butts every chance we get," linebacker Greg Lloyd said. "Did we intimidate them? Defensively, I'd have to say so.

"We've got some people who will hit. They knew they were getting hit. Their running backs were supposed to run north and south, but they were running east and west, but there still wasn't anywhere to go."

Right now, the Rams (2-5) are going south.

As the Steelers (4-4) continue rebounding from a dreadful 1-3 start in which their offense didn't produce a touchdown, the Rams are all but out of the playoffs before Halloween. They trail NFC West leader San Francisco by five games, and even a wild card berth seems an impossibility.

Robinson, who complained the Rams were "in a fog" during their 1-4 start, used words like "embarrassing," "self-destructing" and "terrible" to describe the Rams' latest disaster.

"That was a terrible game for us," Robinson said. "We made about every error you could make. Pittsburgh is a good team and played well, but we are self-destructing in all phases of the game. It was embarrassing."

The Rams, coming off a 44-24 victory over Atlanta, threw two interceptions, had three fumbles, botched a punt, dropped five passes and missed two field goals.

"I think it was pretty obvious we got our butts kicked pretty good by a pretty good team," Jim Everett said.

Brister sensed as early as last Wednesday that the Steelers were ready to play their most physical game in years "because we had a lot of fights and everybody was ticked off. It carried over into the game," he said.

"We talked all week about showing the United States, the whole world how tough it's going to be when you play the Pittsburgh Steelers," safety Thomas Everett said.

The Steelers' turnaround is nearly as remarkable as that of a year ago, when they reached the second round of the American Conference playoffs after being outscored 92-10 in their first two games.

This season, their offense didn't score a touchdown in its first four games, but has scored 118 points in the last four.

NFC: 16-0 not impossible for 49ers

second area, at least in the NFC. Over in the AFC, there are three 6-1 teams, with Miami and Buffalo tied atop the East and the Raiders two games ahead in the West. If the Raiders win at Kansas City this week, they also can start thinking about January.

The Bears are the surprise leader among the three NFC powers. After their collapse last season to 6-10, with a season-ending six-game slide, it looked like the foundation of one of the great teams of the 1980s had rotted. Rebuilding seemed in order.

Instead, Ditka has retooled and the Bears have responded.

"It's a good feeling after last year," says defensive tackle Dan Hampton, the heart of the team whose knee injury in 1989 sparked the Bears' flop, "especially the way the ground gave out under us.

"In training camp I had some apprehensions but, except for the Raiders game, this team has played as well as can be expected and the team can play a lot better. It feels good. Everybody's chasing the Bears again."

The chase is lukewarm. The Bucs have lost three of their last four, twice to Dallas and once to San Diego. That's not exactly the way to prepare for a battle with the division leader.

The Lions are inconsistent but are getting healthy and could pose more of a threat to the Bears. They meet twice in a three-week span in December, but the Bears' defense is well-suited to shut down the run-and-shoot. Green Bay has shown little inclination to join the race and already has lost twice to Chicago.

Minnesota is 1-6 and sinking, the biggest disaster in the conference.

"I don't understand it," Ditka said. "It's hard to put a finger on our division on why Green Bay's record isn't better. Or Tampa Bay, or Detroit or Minnesota. I don't know."

But he'll take it.

The 49ers have taken everybody, beginning with a last-minute victory at New Orleans. At times, they have been as spectacular as a four-time Super Bowl champion should be. At other times, they've struggled.

Still, they have not lost since Nov. 19, 1989. With the Rams falling apart, the only true stumbling block before that Monday night game with the Giants would seem to be this week against Green Bay, the last team to beat San Francisco.

But the players aren't buying it.

"I'll tell you this right now, we're not a good football team," Ronnie Lott said after Mike Cofer's 45-yard field goal with five seconds left last Sunday gave the Niners a 20-17 victory over the Cleveland. "All this stuff about going undefeated is bull. All this stuff about being in a race with the Giants is bull. If you can't put teams away, you're not that great."

OK. The 49ers aren't that great. There are days when Joe Montana and Jerry Rice aren't super. There are days when the defense isn't making big plays all over the field.

Still, if not perfect, they're only the best around.

"I think it's extremely difficult," coach George Seifert said of completing a perfect season. "You look at the number (of games) and how we've played, having to win some of the games the way we have. I don't think it's impossible, by any means. But I think it's extremely difficult."

The Longhorns hold a 30-9 lead overall against the Red Raiders and have won 22 of 30 SWC encounters with Tech. Longhorns leader David Williamson is 28-23 (.549) overall, 21-19 (fourth season) at Texas, 10-14 in SWC games, and 1-2 against the Red Raiders. Tech's Spike Dykes is 22-20-1 (.516) at the Tech helm, 13-13-1 in SWC games and 2-1 against The Longhorns, with whom he served as an assistant coach with McWilliams and Fred Akers from 1972-76. Texas has been on a roll with four consecutive wins after a 29-22 loss to Colorado. The Longhorns have been executing their offense better, especially the running game, since the switch to quarterback Peter Gardere. Gardere, who is gaining confidence, Tech, hounded by some injuries to key performers in last season's 20-17 loss to Texas, is expected to start. Tech's Bill Bradley, continues to be one of the nation's top passing threats. Bunch has persevered through a rugged schedule and retained team emotion. Dykes and Jones and Anthony Carter (who was between them) have been a key reason for Texas' vast defensive improvement in 1990 while FS Stanley Richard (10 interceptions) is the Longhorns' career interceptions' list. QB Peter Gardere (87-of-153 passing for 1,143 yards) is both a SWC total offense and 187.2 yards per game. The Red Raiders sport potential "train" 1,000-yard passers in QBs Robert Bradley (79-of-163 for 1,178 yards) and Jamie Gill (60-of-110 for 994 yards) and a combined 10 TDs. Favorite targets are WR Rodney Blackshear (32 catches for 637 yards, five TDs) and freshman WR Lloyd Hill (23 receptions, 350 yards). LB Matt Wargo paces the Raider defense with 39 stops.

TEXAS A&M (5-2-1, 2-1-1) at SMU (4-3-1, 2-1 SWC), 1 p.m. (CST) — Texas A&M and SMU tangle at Ownby Stadium for the first time since 1985 when the Aggies were bring in a 35-29-0 series lead into the 71st meeting overall between the teams. Texas A&M leads RCC, Stoops (58, 13-of-twice), def. Magnus Gustafsson, Sweden, 6-2, 6-4.
Marc Rosset, Switzerland, def. Michael Chang (11), Placentia, Calif., 7-6 (7-2), 6-4.

Griffey Sr. wants to return to Mariners

SEATTLE (AP) — Ken Griffey Sr., who made baseball history by playing in the same outfield with his 20-year-old son last season, wants to return to the Mariners next season, Griffey and his agent said.

"Senior and I both have had discussions with the Mariners," Cincinnati-based Brian Goldberg said by telephone Tuesday. "I talked to the Mariners today as a matter of fact.

"As far as it stands now, the Mariners would like to have him back and he'd like to come back."

However, a contract for Griffey, 40, needs to be worked out, Goldberg said.

"We haven't discussed a contract at all," he said. "But I don't see any problem at all. I would say I'm real confident something can be worked out. I would say Senior probably will be with the Mariners next season."

After being released by the Cincinnati Reds, Griffey Sr. signed with the Mariners Aug. 29 and hit .377 in 21 games with three home runs and 18 RBIs.

"I was in a situation the past four or five years that took a lot of fun out of the game. I thought about retiring but I really wasn't ready to retire," Griffey Sr. told The Seattle Times.

After the season, the elder Griffey returned to Cincinnati to do local television commentary for the World Series.

Some of Griffey Sr.'s former Cincinnati teammates honored him during the Series by wearing his old number, 30, on their uniforms. The Reds also voted a full World Series share, about $120,000, for him.

"That really made me feel important," Griffey Sr. said. "And playing with Junior and how well received I was in Seattle, it was fun again."

Mariners manager Jim Lefebvre, speaking from his home in Arizona, said he was "thrilled to death" Griffey wanted to return.

"He's an experienced, polished veteran that the team needs. It was quite evident when he arrived, the whole team picked up."

Griffey Jr. started for the AL in center in the All-Star game last.

Oregon's Musgrave a true student-athlete

By Bob Baum
AP Sports Writer

PORTLAND, Ore. — Off the field, he's Bill Musgrave the soft-spoken scholar.

On the field, he's the record-breaking passer who has led Oregon to success it hasn't enjoyed in 25 years.

Saturday, he'll play his final game at Autzen Stadium in Eugene, where he's lost only once in four years as a starter.

"I'm trying not to think about it," Musgrave said Tuesday. "I'm trying not to jinx myself. I just want to go out there and have a good game."

Musgrave, 6-foot-3 and 200 pounds, had plenty of good games since he arrived at Oregon five years ago after an outstanding prep career at Grand Junction, Colo.

He holds virtually every school passing and total offense record, breaking marks held by Dan Fouts and Chris Miller. He's passed for 7,698 yards and ranks seventh in passing yardage and eighth in total offense on the all-time Pacific 10 Conference lists. His 56 touchdown passes are second in the Pac-10 to John Elway.

Last year, he led the team to its first bowl game in 26 years, and was named the most valuable player in the Ducks' Independence Bowl victory over Tulsa.

This year, Oregon is 6-2 and ranked No. 22 heading into its game against UCLA. The goal is a second consecutive bowl appearance, something that's never happened at Oregon.

Musgrave's personal record at Oregon is 24-9 and he's 18-1 at Autzen.

But with three games left, Musgrave said he isn't thinking about the past.

"We've still got a tough row to hoe with these three remaining games," he said. "We're trying not to get too teary eyed that it's about to come to an end."

Still, he admits he can't help but think about his fondest memories at Autzen — victories over Northwest rival Washington in 1987 and '88 and this season's triumph over Brigham Young on network television.

All this from a quarterback with questionable arm strength.

"I don't know how my arm compares with other quarterbacks'. I guess we'll probably find out after the season with the pro scouts evaluate me," he said.

Musgrave would like a pro career, but he isn't taking that for granted. He said he and many of his teammates see their football scholarships as a great opportunity for a free college education.

Unlike his counterpart at Southern Cal, Todd Marinovich, this is not a quarterback who skips classes. He's a finance major with a 3.5 grade point average. He'll graduate this term and has applied for a Rhodes scholarship.

"I had known that Pat Haden went over and did that and Bill Bradley was a Rhodes scholar. I thought that would be pretty neat. But I never thought I'd have a chance," he said. "The faculty rep suggested it last year and I thought I'd at least give it a shot."

In his application essay, he wrote "about how I think sports are a real integral part of today's society. I kind of wrote about how I'd like to do something in sports, like be an athletic director or conference commissioner, something like that."

But he's realistic about his chances for both a Rhodes scholarship and a pro career.

"I'm not really counting on the Rhodes or pro football either, for that matter," he said. "I think the Rhodes thing is a real long shot. Although I'd love to play in the NFL, that may be a longshot, too."

When he isn't playing football, Musgrave is quiet and shy. Fishing and video games occupy his spare time.

FREY: Position to be similar

From 1C

baseball career in 1985 with the Beloit Brewers of the Midwest League.

"I've been here four years and it's a bit like leaving home," said Frey, "but it's the nature of the this business that you don't stay in one place too long."

Frey and his wife, Kathy, were married in August and will be leaving Midland Saturday. He is looking forward to his new home.

"I think it is a pretty good step for me," said Frey. "It's a Class A ball club, but it is in a county with 350,000 people. They have applied for AAA status, and if that comes through, it will really turn out to be a good move.

"Basically, I'll be doing the same thing there as I have been doing here. It's an operations oriented position. My first job was in Beloit, but this is where I really learned the business."

Frey was often seen around the West Texas area as a basketball official and plans to continue with that in the Greensboro area.

"At this time, I don't know how much time I can devote to officiating until I check out the job."

Vincent expects deal

N.Y. Times News Service

Minor Leagues

Barring an unexpected reversal in the direction negotiations for a new player-development contract have now taken, the likelihood of a substantially altered minor league system has been drastically reduced.

"I'm encouraged by reports of considerable progress," Fay Vincent, the baseball commissioner, said Tuesday. "There is a reasonable prospect of a deal in the next few days."

The negotiations between the major league clubs and the National Association, the umbrella organization of the minor leagues, had threatened to force creation of a new minor league system for next year.

Only last Wednesday night, the talks broke off because the two sides were operating at opposite aims. The major league clubs wanted to provide less money for the minor leagues while the minors wanted them to give a greater subsidy than they had been providing.

In the event the two sides would be unable to reach agreement on a new player development contract, major league officials had been working on an alternate plan for their minor league clubs. For the most part, it was decided, instead of playing next season in their regular cities, the teams would play at their organization complexes in Florida and Arizona.

But negotiators resumed their talks in Chicago last Sunday and have met in Washington the past two days.

Bill Murray, the director of baseball operations in the commissioner's office, said the key to the turnaround in the talks came at the Sunday meeting, which was attended by owners of major and minor league clubs.

"We started to explore a few things," Murray said by telephone from Washington. "We agreed to continue to work to try and get an agreement, and we could have one shortly."

Sal Artiaga, commissioner of the National Association, did not return a call seeking comment.

In other baseball news, Dennis Rasmussen and Fred Lynn of San Diego and Ken Phelps filed for free agency.

Eighteen players, including four whose clubs have to decide on options for 1991, remain on the eligible-to-file list. They include Fernando Valenzuela of Los Angeles, Scott Sanderson of Oakland, Sid Bream of Pittsburgh, Mike Pagliarulo of San Diego and Ken Griffey Sr. of Seattle.

Candidates nominated for HOF

Basketball

SPRINGFIELD, Mass. — Bob Knight and Larry O'Brien, the former NBA commissioner who died last month, were among 12 candidates nominated Tuesday for election to the basketball Hall of Fame — even though they had said they wanted no part of it.

Hall of Fame president Bob Kurland said the trustees decided that "if an individual is worthy of nomination to this prestigious honor that person's name and qualifications will be submitted to the 24-member honors committee."

"The guts of it is that history should be reported in its true form," Kurland said. "Both these guys are deserving of being recognized under the standards of the Basketball Hall of Fame. I don't know how they are going to come out in the voting by the honors committee, but they are certainly deserving to be nominated. You can't deny history."

To be elected to the hall, nominees need 18 votes from the honors committee in its balloting next spring. Enshrinement ceremonies are scheduled for May 13 in this city, where the game began nearly 100 years ago.

O'Brien, who died on Sept. 27, withdrew his name from consideration last year in protest of the hall's secret elections.

Knight, the Indiana coach, asked that he not be considered for renomination after he failed to be elected in 1987. At the time, he called it a "slap in the face."

Knight said through a spokesman that he was unaware he was being nominated again and would have no comment.

Renominated as players were Nate Archibald, Dave Cowens, Bob Lanier, John Kerr, Calvin Murphy and Nera White, a women's Amateur Athletic Union star.

In addition to Knight, Jack Hartman, the winningest coach in Kansas State history, and Jack Ramsay, one of the most successful coaches in NBA history, were nominated a second time.

The late Larry Fleisher, who founded the NBA players association in 1962, was the only new name on the list. In addition to O'Brien, the late Carol Eckman, who organized the first national college tournament for women in 1969, was also nominated.

The names were announced at halftime of the NBA's Hall of Fame exhibition game between Detroit and Houston.

O'Brien, whose long political career included being an adviser to President Kennedy and national Democratic Party chairman, said before his death that he had tried unsuccessfully to make the election process public during his two terms as Hall of Fame president.

"I have no quarrel with the Hall of Fame and would consider election a high honor, but I'm a guy who believes in the Democratic process," O'Brien had said.

Kurland said Hall of Fame trustees decided to make some changes in the Hall of Fame voting at their meetings Tuesday, but the names of the honors committee and its vote will remain secret.

Bush welcomes world champs

Associated Press

WASHINGTON — President Bush talked baseball with the Cincinnati Reds and likened Eric Davis to a guided missile as the World Series champions were rewarded Tuesday with a special White House ceremony.

Bush called the team that beat Oakland in a four-game sweep the "newest Big Red Machine."

"When it comes to baseball, Cincinnati is truly No. 1," said Bush, who praised the Reds for "an unforgettable World Series."

Bush singled out the series' most valuable player, pitcher Jose Rijo, complied an earned run average of 0.59 in winning two of the four games, and Davis, who didn't make the trip because of a severe kidney injury he sustained in the final game.

"Maybe you can help us with the interest rates," Bush told Rijo. "You get the ERA down, now it's the interest rates."

The president drew a laugh with a reference to Davis — "When I talk to Mr. Gorbachev about offensive weapons, I'm going to tell him No.44's bat is not negotiable" — and told the team "I hope our guided missiles are as straight as Eric Davis' throw to nab (Pittsburgh's) Bobby Bonilla."

Davis threw Bonilla out in Game 4 of the National League playoffs as the right fielder tried to stretch a double into a triple.

Before accepting a gift jersey from the team's owner, Marge Schott, the president brought out the first family's dogs, Millie and Ranger.

Residents of Midland County:

Halloween will soon be here and the children will be out in search of fun and goodies. We want to offer a few tips to make this a fun and safe event.

1. Always have a parent or older brother or sister go along.
2. Wear bright, visible costumes and carry flashlights or lightsticks for safety.
3. Trick-or-treat only in your neighborhood or the homes of friends and family.
4. Throw away any candy or food that is not wrapped by the candy company.
5. If there are any suspicious treats, notify the Sheriff's Department or Police.

Come see us at Midland Park Mall on Saturday and pick up your free MCGRUFF TRICK-OR-TREAT BAG, while they last, and have a safe Halloween.

Prices slip

NEW YORK (AP) — Oil prices slid back Tuesday in a market that was so sluggish traders wouldn't even jump at rumors as they have for weeks.

West Texas Intermediate was up a little more than $1 per barrel early in the day, before dipping to close at $34.54 per barrel, down 14 cents, for December delivery contracts. Later delivery contracts followed a similar pattern, opening up and closing down.

Natural gas futures were mixed. December delivery contracts fell 2.6 cents to $2.408 per 1,000 cubic feet.

After the market closed, the American Petroleum Institute released weekly figures showing the nation's supply of crude oil had fallen below 1989 levels for the first time since Iraq invaded Kuwait on Aug. 2.

The U.S. stockpile of crude dropped to 339.5 million barrels last week, compared with 340.4 million barrels a week earlier and 345.4 million barrels a year earlier.

Auto talks

Bieber

The United Auto Workers and Chrysler Corp. announced that they have reached a tentative agreement on a three-year contract that matches an industry pattern. UAW President Owen Bieber said the union has accomplished its goal of similar contracts with the Big Three automakers.

Dollar mixed

NEW YORK (AP) — The dollar finished higher in Europe Tuesday following a better-than-expected report on the U.S. economy, but the advance ran out of steam in domestic dealings.

In Tokyo, the dollar rose to a closing 129.00 Japanese yen, from 127.35 yen on Monday.

In London, the British pound fell to $1.9485 from $1.9525 late Monday.

Other late dollar rates in New York, compared with late Monday's rates included: 1.5148 German marks, down from 1.5220; 1.2825 Swiss francs, down from 1.2920; 5.0695 French francs, down from 5.0930; 1,134.25 Italian lire, down from 1,140.50, and 1.1678 Canadian dollars, up from 1.1635.

Gold rose in London to a late bid price of $375.50 a troy ounce, from $372.75 bid late Monday.

Silver prices advanced. On New York's Comex, silver bullion for current delivery settled at $4.245 a troy ounce, up from $4.127 on Monday.

Earnings prove no gouging, API says

■ The American Petroleum Institute defended Big Oil, saying third quarter earnings proved there was no price gouging.

By Dirk Beveridge

NEW YORK (AP) — The petroleum industry as a whole did not reap a third-quarter windfall from the Persian Gulf crisis, a leading trade group said Tuesday in a defense of Big Oil against charges of profiteering.

"The third-quarter earnings statements released by several oil companies show that oil companies have not gouged the public," American Petroleum Institute President Charles J. DiBona said at a press briefing.

DiBona said total operating income was unchanged from the third quarter of 1989 and below the same period in 1988, based on reports from 18 top U.S. petroleum companies.

Industry earnings were actually something of a mix, ranging from double- and triple-digit increases in profits at some companies to double-digit decreases at others.

Amerada Hess Corp., for example, reported a 440.5 percent increase in earnings, based largely on profits from successful oil futures trading.

GNP report fails to ease economists

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. economy grew at a faster-than-expected 1.8 percent rate in the third quarter, the government said Tuesday, but the report failed to dissuade many analysts who believe the economy is entering a recession.

The Commerce Department report on the gross national product showed that consumers buying cars and other items had continued to drive the longest peacetime economic expansion in U.S. history through September. Whether the expansion reaches its eighth anniversary in November was a matter of debate.

"This release contradicts those who believe we are in a recession or are about to enter one," Commerce Undersecretary Michael R. Darby told reporters. His boss, Commerce Secretary Robert Mosbacher, added in San Antonio, "I hope all the doom-sayers and nay-sayers and cluck-cluckers go back in their holes for a while."

But economist Bruce Steinberg of Merrill Lynch Capital Markets in New York said, "I believe we're in a recession. I think that most of the things showing strength in the third quarter will be weak in the fourth, particularly consumer spending."

Robert G. Dederick, chief economist for the Northern Trust Co. in Chicago, also believes the economy is declining this quarter. He contended that much of the GNP strength "was concentrated early in the quarter. It is by no means certain that if was growing 1.8 when the quarter ended."

Indeed, Michael Boskin, chairman of Bush's Council of Economic Advisers, said, "While this is pleasant news about the third quarter, we are concerned about a sluggish fourth quarter and the early part of 1991."

He added that he "was certainly pleased" with the Federal Reserve's action Monday in pushing down a key short-term interest rate, a move that might be expected to boost economic growth.

The Commerce Department had continued bad news about the housing industry Tuesday. It reported that sales of new homes slumped 6 percent in September, the ninth decline in the past 12 months and the worst drop in half a year.

Declining home sales suggest continued contraction in the industry since builders often put off new projects when inventories climb.

Houston haven for Soviet oilmen

■ Soviet oil officials are flocking to Houston in search of oil partners, as two Houston energy companies announce new joint ventures.

Associated Press

HOUSTON (AP) — Two Houston energy companies are signing joint ventures with the Soviet Union to tap into its vast oil and gas reserves that are said to rival those of Persian Gulf countries.

Fairfield Industries announced Tuesday a joint venture with the Autonomous Soviet Socialist Republic of Yakut to market the region to Western companies for joint exploration ventures.

On Monday, Oyo Geospace Corp. of Houston announced it was entering a joint venture to build seismic instruments at a Soviet plant.

"The Soviets have always been anxious to conclude deals and get started with exploration and exploitation programs and have been very receptive," said Tom Russell, president of Houston's Professional Geophysics.

"That hasn't changed. What has changed is the interest level by the Western oil companies. We've seen a pickup since the Iraqi invasion," of Kuwait, Russell said.

Professional Geophysics and the Soviet Central Geophysical Expedition of the Ministry of Oil and Gas Industry on Wednesday will provide seismic data on nearly 25,000 miles of territory, with proven reserves of nearly 2 billion barrels.

"Houston is the capital of the world for the oil and gas industry," said Alexander Zoteev, deputy chairman of Yakut's Council of Ministers. "In Houston, you have good technology, and you have good technique in oil and gas production."

Oyo Geospace has agreed to buy a 40 percent interest in a $10 million joint venture that will build geophones, seismic instruments used to find and develop oil and gas deposits.

Other partners are a Soviet geophone manufacturer, Geophyspribor; the Soviet bank, Vostock Cooperative Bank; and the Japanese trading company, Chori Co., Ltd., which will help convert profits into currencies that, unlike Soviet rubles, are recognized in the West.

"We are taking some risks in transferring our technology and investing to get this joint venture started," said Oyo Geospace President Ernest Hall. "We think it is a reasonable risk to take."

Fairfield Industries, meanwhile, has teamed up with Yakut officials to sell seismic and geological data to Western companies interested in exploring for oil and gas deposits in Eastern Siberia.

Yakut is five times the size of Texas but has a population of only 1.1 million.

New Blockbuster Video under construction

By Mella McEwen

Ground has been broken on a new BLOCKBUSTER VIDEO, to be located across the Midland Park Mall, just south of the Courtyard at Midland Park shopping center.

MIDLAND PARK MALL is gearing up for an invasion of miniature Bart Simpsons, Teenage Mutant Ninja Turtles, ghosts, witches and other assorted spooks and goblins.

Mall merchants will be handing out Halloween candy to the trick-or-treaters beginning at 7 p.m. this evening. The project is sponsored by the mall, West Side Optimists Club and the Reporter-Telegram.

Susan Perkins, marketing manager at the mall, reports that mall officials have purchased 200,000 pieces of candy to give out.

Just a week after Texas and the nation celebrated "Red Ribbon Week" in which ribbon-wearers proclaimed they were "Proud to be Drug-free", a Midland couple is opening a drug and alcohol-free club for teenagers and youngsters to spend some recreational time.

THE WAITES' TEENAGE PLACE, 101 S. Mineola, will open at 10 a.m. Thursday with a ribbon-cutting ceremony attended by Mayor Carroll Thomas and featuring a speech by Mother Scott.

Owned by Mr. and Mrs. Charles Waite, the club features video games, pool tables, snacks and soft drinks. Mrs. Waite said that from 5 to 9 p.m. daily, there will be recreational activities for the younger children. Fridays and Saturdays, the club will have a disco for teen-agers.

"This gives a place for kids to go, to get off the street," she said.

The date is quickly approaching for the activation of cellular phone service to the rural area between Midland and Lubbock.

DIGITAL CELLULAR OF TEXAS, a division of Poka-Lambro Telecommunications, has only a few minor electrical adjustments left to make. "Basically the physical plant is in place and we're ready to go right now," said Mickey L. Sims, general manager of Poka-Lambro. "We already have the fiber optics cable laid, the cellular equipment is installed and the four towers are all built or leased."

The system has cell sites in Andrews, Lamesa, Seminole and Post and a fifth site in Tahoka is in the planning stages, awaiting approval by the Federal Communications Commission.

Thursday is the deadline to apply for the Midland Hilton's "Home for the Holidays" program, according to the hotel's general manager, Barry Smith.

Applications can cover one of five topics: "Most Interesting Holiday Story"; "Largest Gathering of Relatives"; "Families or Friends Traveling the Greatest Distance"; "Longest Separation" and "Largest Gathering of Grandparents and Grandchildren."

The families and friends selected will get complimentary accommodations at the Midland Hilton during the Thanksgiving holiday. A total of 25 rooms have been committed to the program. Winners will be notified the week of Nov. 5.

Those wishing to enter the program can fill out an application form at the Hilton or select community organizations.

GNP: Economists still predict recession

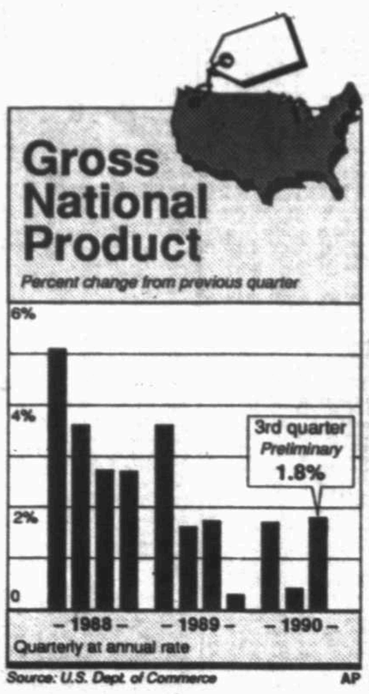
be revised twice in the next two months as more information is received. The final revision of the second-quarter GNP showed the economy grew just 0.4 percent rather than the 1.2 percent first reported.

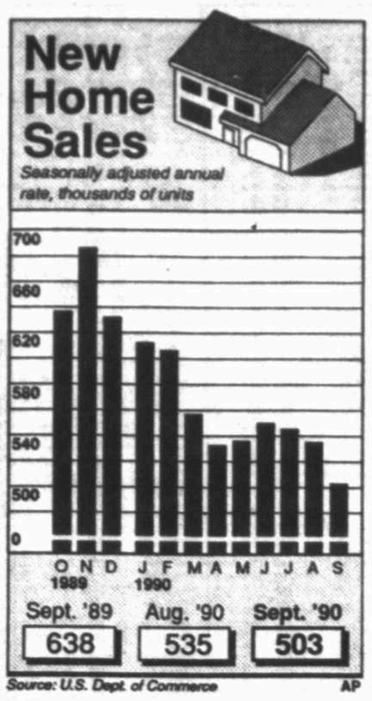
Consumer spending — two-thirds of the nation's economic activity.— jumped 3.6 percent in the third quarter compared to a 0.2 percent gain in the second. Much of the advance was due to a $3.4 billion increase in automobile sales, which had declined $6.1 billion from April through June.

But the Conference Board reported last Friday that consumer confidence in the economy plunged in October to the lowest level since the 1981-82 recession. The New York research group said its index tumbled more than 24 points, the biggest one-month drop in the 20-history of the survey.

"The fourth quarter is going to be sick," said Roger Brinner, chief economist at DRI-McGraw-Hill in Lexington, Mass. "The consumer is terrified about the future."

In addition to consumer spending, the department said third-quarter economic growth was fueled by a 7.4 percent increase in business investment.





That activity was partially offset by a $1.7 billion decline in inventories held by business and a $7.9 billion merchandise trade deficit.

Housing construction was off 15.4 percent and federal government spending was down 0.3 percent.

The Commerce Department also said that a GNP measure of inflation rose to 4.1 percent in the third quarter, up from 3.9 percent in the second. It was the first GNP report since the Persian Gulf oil-price shock pushed up the price of many consumer goods.

The third-quarter growth was an improvement over the meager 0.4 percent gain during the second quarter when consumer spending inched up just 0.2 percent.

Brinner said consumer spending was weak in the second quarter because it was stronger than normal during the first quarter due to unusually warm weather.

"If you take spending out of the second quarter and put it into the first, obviously it depresses second quarter and makes the third quarter look good," he said.

A survey this month of 52 economists by Blue Chip Economic Indicators showed a consensus said the "GNP is now expected to contract on an annualized basis in both the fourth quarter of 1990 and the first quarter of 1991, providing us with the generally accepted definition of a recession."

USX to spin off steel division

PITTSBURGH (AP) — USX Corp.'s steel operations will become a separate company under a plan approved Tuesday by the energy and steel giant's board of directors.

USX also reported its third-quarter earnings dropped 6.8 percent from a year earlier, with gains in the energy segment but a 26 percent income drop from the steel division.

The USX board voted to transfer the business carried out by the USS Steel division to a wholly owned subsidiary, the company said in a statement. USX Chairman Charles A. Corry said the move "will provide the flexibility for any steel restructuring undertaken by the company."

USX spokesman William L. Keslar said the move was not prompted by takeover strategist Carl Icahn's proposal to spin off at least 80 percent of the steel business in the form of a dividend to shareholders. The proposal by Icahn, USX's largest shareholder with a 13.3 percent stake, was rejected by other shareholders May 7.

Icahn considers steel a drain on USX's Marathon Oil Co. and Texas Oil and Gas Corp.

Keslar said the board's vote "simply puts USS on the same footing as Marathon, making it a subsidiary."

"Somewhere down the road if you want to spin it off, it's certainly easier to do it as a subsidiary than as a part of the company," he said. "It's simply providing the means to have that flexibility."

Greg Drahuschak, a steel analyst with Butcher & Singer in Pittsburgh, said the move was no surprise.

"Someday you're going to see this company in two major pieces, two separate entities," he said. "It's the only way I can ever see that the shareholder is going to get the benefits of the two businesses."

He added, "When it's good times for oil, steel is a drag. When it's good times for steel, oil doesn't seem to kick in."

API: Others don't buy explanation

(From 6C)

"It shows they were able to judge the future better than other people," DiBona said.

In response to the API report, some industry foes still contended the companies were taking advantage of the Gulf crisis, which began with Iraq's invasion of Kuwait on Aug. 2.

"It's wrong for them to say they're not doing quite well," said Edwin S. Rothschild, energy policy director for Citizen Action, a consumers group in Washington. "They are making lots of money while people are hurting."

While income from operations was unchanged, total net income for the 18 companies cited by DiBona showed an increase of 16.5 percent for the quarter, according to API's figures.

As analysts had predicted, the production branches of big oil companies — the so-called "upstream" end of the business — made plenty of extra money as oil prices shot up during the crisis.

But the refining and marketing divisions — the "downstream" end — generally did not do as well. They had to shell out higher prices for the crude oil they imported.

In addition, DiBona said, oil profits have been kept down as the companies refrained from passing along all of the higher crude costs in retail prices for gasoline and home heating oil.

Christopher Dyson of the Ralph Nader consumer group, Buyers Up, said he believes oil companies were trying to conceal how well they're doing.

"There's a lot of little accounting tricks which oil companies can do with their profit figures," Dyson said. "That tends to make them look less dramatic than they are."

Dyson declined to offer specifics, but said, for example, that oil companies can try to hide their profits by putting large sums into funds that will be used for eventual environmental cleanups at drilling sites. Industry analysts have said oil companies do this, but they point out it is an accepted accounting technique that shows up in public statements from the corporations.

Dyson also found fault with API's use of industrywide statistics.

Commission delays East Texas appeal

AUSTIN (AP) — The Texas Railroad Commission has delayed a decision on whether to appeal a court order increasing oil production in the East Texas Field to 100 percent.

Commissioners met Monday in closed session with Texas Assistant Attorney General Diane Morris to determine what legal avenue to take, Brian Schaible, a spokesman for the panel, said.

The commission will meet again privately with Morris on Friday and may file an appeal at that time, he said.

Travis County State District Judge Will Wilson Jr. issued an injunction Oct. 19 at the request of Oxy USA Inc. that would enable wells in the East Texas Field to increase production from 86 percent to 100 percent.

The field is located in Upshur, Gregg and Rusk counties.

ANALYSIS

NEW YORK (AP) — Prices ended mixed on Wall Street today as many blue chip issues recovered from earlier economic doldrums but the broader market remained on the downside.

Stocks were lower for much of the day following the release of third-quarter gross national product figures. The Commerce Department said the economy grew at an annual rate of 1.8 percent during the July-September period, a stronger than expected showing.

Analysts said Wall Street was not impressed by the figures, since much of the increase was due to consumer spending that was in turn boosted by higher sales of cars and trucks.

Analysts said there was also growing uneasiness about the Middle East that made many traders wary of the market.

In late afternoon, sellers left Wall Street and buyers moved back in, picking up some of the glamour stocks.

Boeing launches new 777

By Bill Richards
Hearst News Service

SEATTLE – The Boeing Co., which is warning of "substantial" company losses in the future from its defense and space businesses, has formally launched its long-awaited 777 twinjet.

"This is one of the really big events in world business," Dean Thornton, president of Boeing's Commercial Airplane Group, told reporters Monday after a college band and a bevy of high school cheerleaders roused some 5,000 Boeing workers gathered for the launch announcement.

At the same time, Boeing announced its third-quarter earnings rose 56 percent, primarily on strong sales of its high-profit 747-400 jetliner. The company said it expects to sell fewer 747s during the fourth quarter, hinting that its earnings may not be as strong for the remainder of the year as they were during the first nine months.

For the third quarter, Boeing earned $378 million, or $1.10 a share, on sales of $7.18 billion. That compares with year-ago earnings of $242 million, or 70 cents a share, on sales of $6.36 billion. Last year's data was restated for a three-for-two stock split earlier this year.

The only sour note to Boeing's celebration Monday was the company's warning that losses for the year from its defense and space businesses will be "substantial." The company didn't give specifics, but said it doesn't anticipate topping last year's defense-related loss of $474 million.

The launch party bore all the trappings of a football rally, complete with balloons, banners that said "Rah-rah" and "Touchdown 777" and Boeing executives in red and white football jerseys with the numerals "777."

The gathering, at Boeing's flight test center hangar at Boeing Field, cheered wildly as Frank Shrontz, the company's chairman and chief executive officer, called it "clearly a special day."

AP Laserphoto

In officially launching the new 777 twinjet, Boeing threw a splashy party for some of the 5,000 workers who will build the plane.

"This morning," said Shrontz, who went directly to the rally from Boeing's board meeting, "the board of directors authorized our newest jetliner – the 777."

"You've worked long and hard," Shrontz told the workers, most of whom are employed on the 777 development team. "You've done a magnificent job."

Referring to concerns voiced by analysts and others that Boeing had to delay the 777 launch by four months and that the new plane has just one customer – United Airlines, which ordered 34 of the jets two weeks ago – Shrontz said, "Our concern at Boeing has never been just to be first. We want to be the best."

Later, Shrontz told reporters "a number of carriers" had expressed "strong interest" in the new jet. He declined, however, to name prospective buyers or predict when orders would come in.

Last month, Phil Condit, executive vice president and general manager of Boeing's new airplane division, said in a memo to the 777 worker force sales proposals had been made to 14 airlines and was approaching two more.

Chrysler, UAW reach accord

By Frederick Standish

HIGHLAND PARK, Mich. (AP) — The United Auto Workers union and Chrysler Corp. reached a tentative agreement Tuesday on a three-year contract, matching an industry pattern the company repeatedly had said it couldn't afford.

"It's a pattern settlement and a pattern settlement in all respects," UAW President Owen Bieber told reporters.

He was referring to a union goal set in mid-July that the UAW would have similar contracts for the 450,000 workers at General Motors Corp., Ford Motor Co. and Chrysler.

Despite appearances, Chrysler didn't give away the store, said the company's chief negotiator, Anthony St. John.

"There are elements in this agreement that are particularly helpful to Chrysler's case," said St. John, a Chrysler vice president.

The agreement covers 63,000 workers in eight states — Michigan, Missouri, Delaware, Alabama, Illinois, Indiana, New York and Ohio.

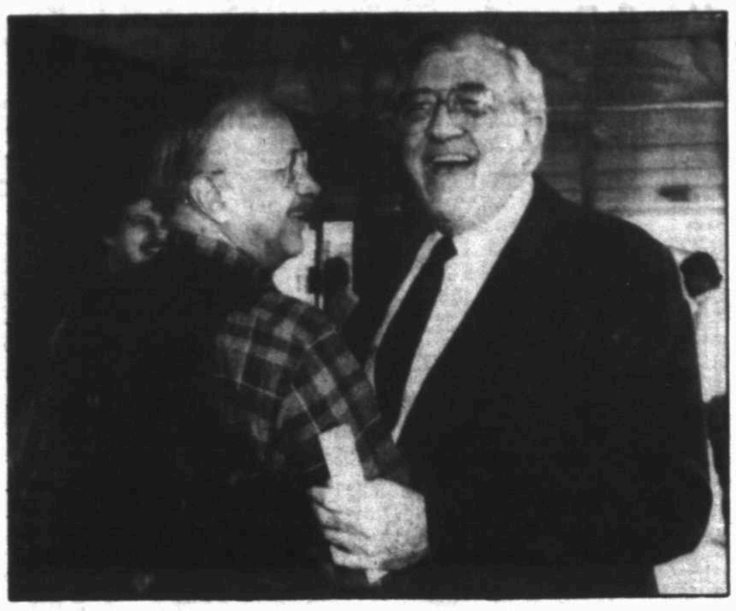
Details of the agreement were not released, but Chrysler appeared to have secured a new production plan at its minivan plant in St. Louis.

A year ago, members of Local 110, covering about 3,500 workers at the St. Louis factory, overwhelmingly rejected a proposal to change from two straight production shifts to a plan using three crews on two shifts. The company said that would boost minivan production by 20 percent and employment by 1,000 to 1,300 jobs.

UAW national leadership and the company backed the change, but plant workers said it denied them any chance of overtime.

The contract will be reviewed by the 200-member Chrysler bargaining council Monday in Detroit. Pending approval by that group of local presidents and bargaining council chairs, the contract will be sent out for rank-and-file ratification.

St. John said there would be no change in the union's "30-and-out" retirement plan, which allows workers to retire when they have 30 years of seniority, no matter how old they are.



AP Laserphoto

UAW president Owen Bieber, right, is congratulated by UAW-Chrysler worker James Barlow after the UAW and Chrysler announced a tentative new national contract.

Bieber and St. John declined to answer questions about health-care provisions, which were seen as a major sticking point in the talks. In the GM-Ford pattern agreement, there is no change in the method of coverage, but the union and the companies agreed to look for ways to cut costs.

Chrysler said it spent $684 million on health-care last year. A company's health-care bill is increased by a higher percentage of retirees, and Chrysler has nearly one retiree for every active worker — a higher proportion than GM or Ford.

Capital gains tax cut would benefit many

By Bill Doyle

Q. A "research report" quoted on radio, claiming that only 1 percent of Americans would benefit from a reduction in the capital gains tax, left me astonished and unbelieving.

Doyle

Like many other people, we have moderate income — all of which is from investments. This includes stock my husband was able to buy at low prices from the company at which he was employed. We are retired, but have no pensions.

We are paralyzed at the thought of selling any of our stock and paying capital gains tax. Certainly there are large numbers of elderly people who are not wealthy and are hampered by the capital gains tax.

When I hear some politicians say that only a minute portion of the richest people would benefit from a cut in the capital gains tax, I do not believe it. Do you?

A. Of course not. There are multitudes of folks such as you. Exactly how many is impossible to say. The percentages thrown around are strictly estimates. "Guesstimates" is a better word, often concocted to back up one side of the argument.

Your situation is called being "locked in." If you sell stock or any other capital asset at a price higher than you paid, you're hit with capital gains tax on the difference between the two prices.

Before passage of the Tax Reform Act of 1986, only 40 percent of capital gains were taxable. Back then, the top federal income tax bracket was 50 percent. Because 40 percent of 50 percent is 20 percent, the maximum federal capital gains tax bite was 20 percent. People in brackets below 50 percent paid less capital gains tax — some as low as 4.4 percent.

The '86 Act made the capital gains tax the same as the tax on ordinary income — 15, 28 or 33 percent, depending on your total taxable income.

Although there is no way of knowing how many people come out ahead by a reduction in the capital gains tax, one thing is for sure. The U.S. Treasury collects more money when the capital gains tax is reduced. That happened after the Economic Recovery Tax Act of 1981 lowered federal income tax brackets and the capital gains tax.

Why? Because investors are far more willing to sell stocks and other assets when they are not clobbered by tax.

Another, even more important, point in favor of capital gains tax reduction is that it stimulates investment, prompting people to put money into both new ventures and the expansion of existing corporations. That creates jobs and does wonders for the nation's economy.

Q. My young daughter has some investments in custodial accounts. Last March, I filed an income tax return for her and enclosed a $129 check for the tax due. A few weeks later, I received an $129 Internal Revenue Service refund check, for no apparent reason. I did not cash that check and still have it.

A few weeks later, I began to receive anonymous threatening notes, demanding the $129 plus interest and so-called penalty from someone at the IRS. On one occasion, I returned the IRS form and advised them of the check sent long ago. That had no effect. I'm still getting those threatening notes.

Is there an avenue through which I can collect a penalty from the IRS or, better still, from the arrogant individual responsible for this negligence and harassment?

A. You might get an apology, but you're not going to collect a penalty. Those dunning notes you're receiving, no doubt, are being kicked out by the revenooer's computers, which seems to have gone "tilt."

The IRS has a "problem resolution program" for taxpayers who have trouble getting their troubles squared away. Write, by certified mail, return receipt requested, to the Problem Resolution Office at the IRS district or service center from which those notes are coming. Explain the situation, as you did in your letter to this column.

You may also reach that office by calling the IRS taxpayer assistance number listed in your phonebook.

Ford reports earnings plunge 78.7 percent

DETROIT (AP) — Ford Motor Co. today reported a 78.7 percent drop in third-quarter earnings due to big losses in worldwide auto operations and slumping profits in its financial services group.

On Monday, No. 3 Chrysler Corp. reported a $214 million loss for the third quarter — its largest operational loss since early 1981 when the company was battling back from near bankruptcy. General Motors Corp. reports earnings Wednesday.

The decline at Ford, the No. 2 automaker, to $101.7 million or 22 cents a share, was worse than expected. The drop would have been even more drastic if Ford hadn't made one-time accounting changes in the quarter that inflated the earnings by $86.9 million.

Analysts said as recently as last week they expected Ford's earnings to be a little more than half of the $477.1 million, or $1.03 a share, the company earned in the third quarter of last year.

Ford common stock opened trading this morning on the New York Stock Exchange at $29.625 a share, down 12.5 cents from Monday's opening.

Ford said it lost $89 million on normally profitable overseas automotive business, which was particularly worrisome since that part of the company has helped carry the company's less profitable North American operations.

During the quarter last year, Ford's overseas operations earned $324 million.

The company said it made $50 million on its U.S. automotive operations, but that was offset by the accounting change for a net $17 million loss.

Ford's earnings came on $23 billion in revenues, up 13.9 percent from revenues of $20.2 billion during the July-September period last year.

IBM offers 486-based computers

N.Y. Times News Service

International Business Machines Corp. took steps Tuesday to make its personal computer hardware and software more competitive, introducing both its first PCs based on Intel Corp.'s powerful 486 microprocessor and a more efficient version of its OS/2 operating system.

IBM had been selling an upgrade kit that allowed customers to replace older chips with the 486 chip, which is at least twice as fast as earlier microprocessors, and its new machine had been expected.

The revised operating system, called OS/2 Version 1.3, requires less memory than earlier versions, and IBM has cut the price to make it more competitive with the Microsoft Corp.'s Windows program.

Rexene sees rise in quarterly income

DALLAS (AP) — Rexene Corp. reported a third quarter net income of $5.6 million, or 18 cents per share, as compared to a net loss of $9.1 million, or 29 cents per share, for the same period in 1989.

Operating income showed a climb to $22.4 million for the third quarter 1990, compared to $9.0 million for the same period in 1989.

Meanwhile, revenues for the third quarter of 1990 dropped to $130.4 million, compared to $139.7 million for the third quarter of 1989, a 7 percent decline.

Andrew J. Smith, Rexene president and chief executive officer, said Monday the Middle East conflict had little or no impact on the third quarter results. However, he said the company's feedstock costs have increased substantially beginning principally in October 1990.

That increase's impact may be felt in future quarters depending on several factors including the company's ability to pass on higher operating costs, Smith said.

For the nine months ending Sept. 30, 1990, net income for the company was $21.8 million, or $.70 per share, compared to a net loss of $48.3 million, or $1.53 per share, for the same period in 1989.

Rexene Corp., through its principal operating subsidiary, Rexene Products Company, manufactures thermoplastic resins and petrochemical products including polyethylene and polypropylene resins, styrene and plastic film.

General Dynamics to lay off Fort Worth workers

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — Budget cuts and an anticipated decline in demand by the Air Force for the F-16 Fighting Falcon will force General Dynamics Corp. to layoff between 700 and 1,000 salaried employees from its Fort Worth Division in January.

Edward Petrushka, vice president for research and engineering, said Monday the cuts will be made in the research and engineering department and will cut at least 10 percent of the employees from the 7,000-member unit's payroll.

"The number that we notify may be as high as 1,000," he said. "It will be at least 700. We're working the fine details right now. What we're trying to do is make a reduction that will get us to a level that we can stay at for a fair while."

"I don't want to just nibble away — letting people go every week," he added. "That's pretty demoralizing."

Lee closes plants, cuts 800 jobs

MERRIAM, Kan. (AP) — The Lee Co. announced Monday that it would close blue-jean manufacturing plants in Missouri and Texas and streamline operations at its headquarters here, cutting 800 workers off the payroll.

Lee President Fred Rowan issued a statement saying the moves were necessary "to enable Lee to position itself to compete successfully in the '90s." Rowan could not be reached for comment and other company officials did not return phone calls.

Officials said the plant closings were effective Dec. 31.

One of two Lee plants in Lebanon, Mo., will be closed, putting 298 people out of work, officials said.

Lee's Eagle Pass Processing Inc. plant in Eagle Pass, Texas, which employs 244 people, will also be closed, as will a plant in Hartville, Mo., that employs 129 workers.

The company statement said several positions at Lee's suburban Kansas City headquarters had been eliminated and the sales staff "streamlined and restructured."

Ron Burnett, manager of Lee's Lebcut plant in Lebanon, which employs 700 workers, said the closing of the smaller plant came as a shock. The laundry division at the Lebcut plant was also closed, affecting 24 workers.

"Everyone was very quiet. I think Hartville was a shock to most of them. A lot of them had family in both plants," he said.

Burnett said Lee's Lebanon employees thought they had escaped the closings that have occurred at other Lee plants around the country in recent years.

"We thought we were kind of charmed," he said. "It finally caught up with us."

No changes were planned at Lee plants in the Missouri towns of Richland, Houston, and Seymour, officials said.

The Lee Co. is a wholly owned subsidiary of VF Corp. of Reading, Pa.

Moody's warns tax initiatives threaten state bond ratings

BOSTON (AP) — Tax initiatives in six states could result in reduced bond ratings at state and local level if passed by voters in the Nov. 6 election, a Wall Street bond rating agency warned.

Moody's Investors Service said tax initiatives in Colorado, Massachusetts, Montana, Nebraska, Oregon and Utah could, if approved, lower the confidence financial advisers have in those states.

"They do introduce uncertainty," said George Leung, a Moody's analyst. "This year, I think certainly it's reflective of the mood — the discontent amongst voters, and also reflective of economic conditions."

Moody's said in a report released last week that the initiatives "could have serious consequences for state and local governments and result in reduced bond ratings."

"In all of these states, with the possible exception of Utah, many questions remain about how the proposals would be implemented," Moody's said in a report last week. It said courts and state legislatures would probably have to resolve the ambiguities.

Most states back their bonds with the full faith and credit of the state, making payment of debt the highest spending priority.

Financially ailing Massachusetts already has the lowest bond rating in the country. Bond rating agencies have warned that passage of a proposal to roll back certain taxes and fees there to 1988 levels could drop the state's rating from its current level of Baa to junk bond status.

In Colorado and Oregon, the tax initiatives set more restrictive limits on property taxes, other revenue sources and municipal debt.

In Montana, the initiative would replace all sales, income and property taxes with a trade charge on business and financial transactions.

One Nebraska initiative would impose a cap on annual expenditure growth while another would change the manner in which schools are funded. The Utah initiative would remove some items from the sales tax base.

Planning makes tailgate party fun

By Carla McKeown

LUBBOCK (AP) — True football fans spend more than a couple of hours at the stadium on game day. The die-hards often arrive in the parking lot hours before the game starts and begin getting into the spirit with a tailgate party.

To create a successful tailgate party, one must plan ahead — the week before the game, call and invite fellow fans and plan the menu; a couple of days before the game, check to make sure all of the ingredients are on hand and gather the items for the party. A large basket can be used to organize everything necessary.

The day before the game, cook the goods that need to be prepared in advance. And the day of the game, finish the food preparation, load the car or truck and arrive at the site 1½ to 2 hours before the game is to begin.

This checklist of items to bring and things to do should ensure nothing is left behind and the party gets off to a good start.

- Tickets to the game
- Tailgate basket full of necessary items.
- Paper or plastic plates in school colors
- Napkins in school colors
- Plastic utensils and cups
- Food
- Salt and pepper
- A small grill
- A cooler to keep food and beverages cold
- A portable table
- Folding chairs
- Camera and film
- Tape of the school fight song
- Blankets, gloves, hats and scarves
- Tote bag to carry leftover snacks and beverages into the game
- Bag for trash

The following recipes are for those who have the time to prepare a more elaborate party. Those with a little less time can pick up a box of fried chicken, a deli or seafood platter and/or salad bar items on the way to the game.

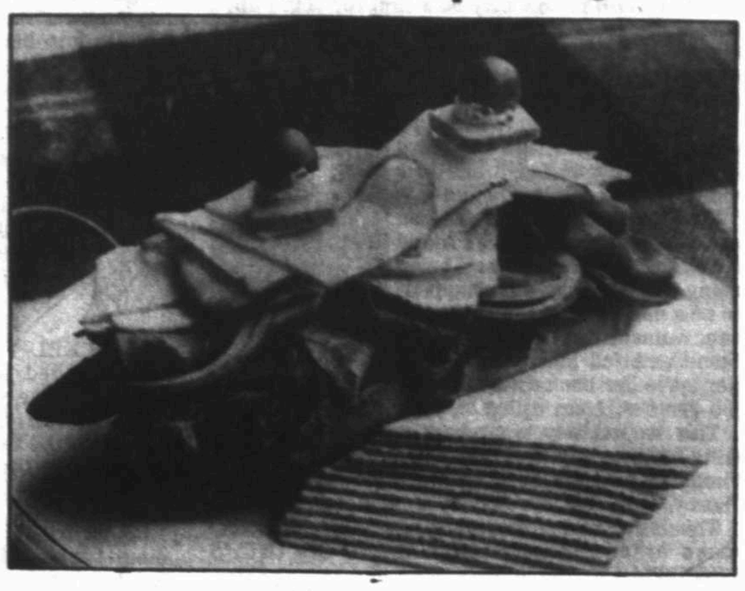
This recipe from the National Livestock and Meat Board is simple to organize ahead of the game. Assembly of the skewers can take place at the tailgate party. Guests can put together their own combinations of onion, sausage, bell pepper and shrimp.

SAUSAGE AND SHRIMP SKEWERS WITH RED PEPPER COULIS

2 medium red onions, cut into 1-inch chunks
2 green bell peppers, cut into 1-inch chunks
1 pound precooked white sausage (bockwurst, bratworst or other mild veal sausage), cut into 1½ inch rounds
1 pound precooked red sausage (kielbasa, hot links, smoked bratworst or andouille), cut into 1½ inch rounds
1 pound raw large shrimp (16 to 20 count)

Skewer ingedients in following order: bell pepper, onion, red sausage (push skewer through casing side of the sausage so the cut edges are parallel with the skewer), onion, bell pepper, shrimp, bell pepper, onion, white sausage, onion and bell pepper. Grill over medium hot coals for 3 to 4 minutes per side. Serve with grilled squash and dollops of Red Pepper Coulis.

Makes 8 servings.



Roll-up club sandwiches are a "hit" at tailgate parties given by diehard football fans.

For the Red Pepper Coulis:

4 tablespoons olive oil
4 cloves garlic, coarsely chopped
1 onion, chopped
2 red bell peppers, chopped
½ cup dry white wine
1 teaspoon dried basil or ¼ cup chopped fresh basil
⅓ cup chopped sun-dried tomatoes packed in oil, drained
2 tablespoons balsamic vinegar or red wine vinegar

In a heavy skillet, heat olive oil. Add garlic, onion, peppers, wine, basil and sun-dried tomatoes. Cover and cook over medium heat, stirring from time to time. When peppers are soft (about 10 minutes cooking time), add vinegar and coarsely puree in food processor or blender. Makes 2 cups sauce.

The following sandwiches are easy to make at home and transport to the site of the tailgate party. To prevent soggy sandwiches, add the vegetables and dressing just before serving.

ROLL-UP CLUB SANDWICHES

8 slices boiled ham
8 slices Swiss cheese
8 slices turkey breast
8 slices roast beef
4 8-inch Italian loaves
4 cups shredded lettuce
1 cucumber, sliced
4 scallions, trimmed
½ cup Italian dressing

Spread out ham slices. Top each with a slice of cheese, turkey and roast beef. Roll up into 8 rolls. Wrap and chill. Cut each Italian loaf horizontally. Place two rolls of meat on bottom half of bread. Top with shredded lettuce, tomatoes, cucumbers and scallions. Drizzle with dressing and replace top of bread. Makes 4 servings.

The following punch recipe can be served regardless of the weather. For those beginning of the season games when the temperatures are still a little warm, serve the drink over ice. Make the same punch and serve it hot to heat up the fans on colder days.

HOT/COLD PUNCH

1 46-ounce can red fruit punch
1½ cups cranberry juice cocktail
2 tablespoons lemon juice
6 whole cloves
1 large orange

Combine punch, cranberry juice, lemon juice and cloves. Slice orange and halve each slice. Refrigerate juice mixture for several hours. Strain into a container or heat and pour into a container to serve hot. Makes 6 servings.

Halloween a terror for real Kruegers

By Terry Mutchler
Associated Press

Freddy Krueger hates Halloween.

In fact, Oct. 31 is a nightmare for five Fred Kruegers who live in Pennsylvania, Virginia, North Carolina and Illinois.

It's particularly tough for the Fred Krueger who lives in Tobyhanna, Pa. His house is two blocks from Elm Street.

No kidding. Fred Kruegers, men with the same name as the star of screen, scream and gore, are alive and well but unenthusiastic about the holiday that is descended from the medieval All Hallows Eve.

The prank calls and weird stares, they say, will be relentless.

None of the Freds is maimed by scars, has pop-out claws or even dons a fedora. None has been accused of even one grisly murder, unlike the prolific maniac featured in the never-ending movie saga, "A Nightmare on Elm Street." But these disparities do not ward off pranksters.

"I got some regular customers on the phone," said Fred Krueger who lives in Olivers Mills, Pa., and works for Liberty Mutual Life Insurance Co.

"It's best to go along with them," he said, noting that kids will just harass him if he sounds mad or hangs up.

FRED KRUEGER, a retired banker from Charlotte, N.C., also plays the demonic role but said he tries to keep it simple because he once scared a little girl.

"She wanted to know if I was the Freddy and I said, 'Yeah' and gave her the laugh," said the 75-year-old retiree. "And then I said several other things and said I would be over to see her.

"There was silence on the phone," he recalled. Followed by a dial tone.

An understandable reaction. In his most recent movie, "A Nightmare on Elm Street: Dream Child," Freddy Krueger — created by Wes Craver and played by actor Robert Englund — invades the semiconsciousness of an unborn child, torturing her mother and killing off her teen-age friends.

Probably not the kind of guy you'd want to have over to the house. Unless, of course, you're Mrs. Krueger.

Ellen Krueger, who is married to the Charlotte Fred, said her husband doesn't look anything like the star.

"I got a good-looking husband with blue eyes and dimples," she said. "There's no resemblance."

MOST OF the Freds — and the Mrs. Freds — are good-natured about their namesakes. But sometimes people go too far, they say.

Fred Krueger of Norfolk, Va., gets "tons" of calls, according to his 17-year-old son, Philip.

"We get mostly little kids calling up. But we did get one guy that said he was Jason from (the movie) 'Friday the 13th,' who said he was going to kill us," Philip Krueger said.

ANOTHER FRED Krueger was listed in Chicago. But a woman who answered the phone was not amused.

"Look lady, I could care less," she said, before hanging up. "I'm tired of the prank calls."

Pumpkin adds seasonal flavor to autumn menus

NEW YORK (AP) — Holiday Pumpkin Loaves and Fruited Pumpkin Soup add a special touch to any autumn meal. For ease in preparation, both recipes use canned pumpkin.

The recipes are provided by the Canned Food Information Council.

HOLIDAY PUMPKIN BREAD

¾ cup butter or margarine, softened
1 cup granulated sugar
¾ cup packed light brown sugar
4 eggs
1 16-ounce can pumpkin
¾ cup orange juice
3½ cups all-purpose flour
1½ teaspoons baking soda
¾ teaspoon baking powder
1 teaspoon ground cinnamon
¼ teaspoon ground nutmeg
⅛ teaspoon ground cloves
½ teaspoon salt
1 cup coarsely chopped pecans
¾ cup golden raisins
1 tablespoon grated orange rind
Orange Glaze (recipe follows)

Beat butter and sugars in large bowl until fluffy. Beat in eggs, pumpkin and orange juice. Combine flour, baking soda, baking powder, cinnamon, nutmeg, cloves and salt; add to sugar-pumpkin mixture. Mix in pecans, raisins and orange rind. Grease bottoms of two 9x5x3-inch loaf pans; pour batter into pans. Bake in a preheated 350-degree F oven about 1 hour, or until toothpick inserted in center of loaves comes out clean. Remove bread from pans; cool on wire racks. Make Orange Glaze; drizzle over bread.

ORANGE GLAZE

2 tablespoons butter or margarine, softened
1 to 2 tablespoons frozen orange juice concentrate, thawed

Mix powdered sugar and butter, adding enough orange concentrate to make smooth glaze consistency. Drizzle over pumpkin bread.

FRUITED PUMPKIN SOUP

2 teaspoons minced fresh gingerroot
2 tablespoons butter or margarine
1 16-ounce can pumpkin
2 cups water
1 cup apple juice
¼ cup frozen orange juice concentrate, undiluted
2 to 3 tablespoons clover honey
1 teaspoon chicken-flavor instant bouillon crystals
½ to ¾ teaspoon ground nutmeg
⅛ to ¼ teaspoon ground allspice
⅛ teaspoon salt
1 cup half-and-half or milk
Sour cream
Grated orange rind

Saute gingerroot in butter in large saucepan for 2 minutes. Add pumpkin, water, apple juice, orange juice concentrate, honey, bouillon, nutmeg, allspice and salt. Heat to boiling; reduce heat and simmer uncovered, about 5 minutes. Stir in half-and-half; cook over medium heat until hot, 2 to 3 minutes. Spoon into bowls; garnish with dollops of sour cream and grated orange rind. Serve warm, or cool to room temperature, then refrigerate until chilled, 3 to 4 hours.

DEAR ABBY

Modern good samaritan feels sting of wagging tongues

By Abigail Van Buren

Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: This may be a first for you. I am a man in my late 50s, divorced, living happily alone by choice, and am well-respected in my community. I have no problems. But society has a tremendous problem.

If I found a hungry, homeless dog along the highway and brought it home, fed it and provided for it, everyone would say, "What a kind, generous man you are. God bless you!" But if I found a hungry, homeless human being along the highway who happens to be a middle-aged Native American woman, and I brought her home and fed and provided for her, gave her her own bedroom, and tried to find a job for her, I am called "a dirty old man"!

This is precisely what happened to me. When dirty tongues wag, and they will, how do I respond? Should I put her back on the highway and say, "Sorry, lady, but our society does not approve"?

This is for real, Abby, but please don't print my name or address. Just sign me ... SOCIETY'S PROBLEM

DEAR SOCIETY'S PROBLEM: Unless your friends and neighbors are told something about this woman who is living in your home, they will be naturally curious. There are many unanswered questions here. The most obvious: What was this hungry, homeless woman doing walking on the highway? Is she an amnesia victim? Is she mentally competent? Is she running from someone? Is she a "missing person?" Is she a fugitive from justice?

Stick to the truth — but don't tell anyone more than you want to.

DEAR ABBY: You may smile at our baby, coo at her, compliment her, but please do not TOUCH her! Our daughter is 6 weeks old, and she accompanies us on outings to the grocery store or the mall, where well-meaning people come up to her and without warning grab her little hands! Like most babies, our daughter is a world-class hand sucker, and whatever was on your hands gets on her hands, which go directly into her mouth!

Babies' immune systems are just developing, and the last thing they need is some unknown person spreading viruses and bacteria through touching the baby's hands. Would these strangers expect us to allow them to put their fingers into our daughter's mouth?

So, the next time you see a darling little baby, please don't put the parents in the position of having to say, "Please don't touch the baby!" — THOMAS FUNK, OR "KEEPING IT CLEAN IN ELK GROVE, CALIF."

DEAR KEEPING: You make an excellent point. I am reminded of a campaign the Mayo Clinic launched some years ago in an effort to remind people to wash their hands. They posted enormous signs with the following message: "The 10 Greatest Spreaders of Disease" — then portrayed a pair of hands.

DEAR ABBY: I am tired of people's complaints about barking dogs. Unless a person lives in the country with a couple of acres between houses, there is no way sounds can be eliminated, other than eliminating the dogs, cats, roosters, whatever.

People have gotten used to the sound of trucks, highway traffic, screeching tires, electric mowers, electric saws, airplanes, buses, sirens and dozens of other sounds but let a dog bark, and all h- breaks loose!

There's a barker across the street from us and a highway three blocks away, and I'll take the barker any day; I can't call the police about the highway noise. — JULIE IN TULARE

DEAR JULIE: You failed to mention that a barking dog discourages burglars — not only in the owner's home, but the neighbors' too.

Easy appetizer tasty, 'cheesy'

By Nancy Byal
Associated Press

Looking for a quick appetizer idea? This dish is especially good for a small, casual fall get-together plus it's a snap to make.

BAKED CHEESE

6 ounces chevre cheese
1 teaspoon lemon juice
¼ teaspoon cracked pepper
6 hard rolls, sliced, or melba toast

Pour sauce into a 10- or 12-ounce ovenproof baking dish. Using a pastry brush, brush cheese with lemon juice. Sprinkle with cracked pepper. Place cheese on top of the sauce in the dish. Bake, uncovered, in a 375-degree oven F for 6 to 8 minutes or until cheese is just heated and softened.

To serve, spread warm cheese and sauce on sliced rolls or melba toast. Makes 6 servings.

PERSIAN GULF CRISIS

Boiler pipe erupts, 10 sailors killed

MANAMA, Bahrain (AP) — A boiler pipe ruptured Tuesday on the USS Iwo Jima, spewing out super-heated steam that killed 10 sailors.

The accident aboard the amphibious assault ship and the death of a Marine when his jeep overturned in Saudi Arabia boosted the number of U.S. military deaths to 43 during the nearly 3-month-old Operation Desert Shield.

"Our thoughts and prayers are with the families of those who have departed us," said the Iwo Jima's commander, Capt. Michael O'Hearn.

The accident was the worst for the Navy in the U.S.-led air, land and sea mobilization that followed Iraq's Aug. 2 invasion of Kuwait. In the only other Navy fatality during Operation Desert Shield, a sailor was electrocuted in August aboard the USS Antietam.

The Iwo Jima, part of the amphibious task force and U.S. naval armada supporting Operation Desert Shield, left Bahrain an hour before the 8:15 a.m. accident.

"It was only a couple of miles from the pier when the accident occurred," said Lt. Kevin Wensing, a spokesman for Command Naval Forces, Central Command.

Wensing, who visited the ship after it returned to port, spoke of the "heroism" of a well-trained crew who quickly "secured the (ship's) two boilers, anchored the ship, evacuated the injured after their condition was stabilized, and collected the remains of the dead."

He said because the boilers were shut off, and although the vessel had emergency diesel generators for backup, it was towed back to port with the help of Bahraini tugs.

Six sailors died immediately after the accident. The Iwo Jima, which played a major role in evacuating the 241 Marines killed by a suicide bomber in Beirut in 1983, used its own helicopters to transport four injured sailors to the hospital ship USS Comfort.

Two of the injured died aboard the hospital ship, the Navy said. The last two survivors were reported in very serious condition, and late Tuesday afternoon the Pentagon in Washington confirmed they also had died.

Identities of eight of the killed were released by the Navy's Atlantic Fleet. Two names were withheld pending notification of next of kin. The Iwo Jima is based in Norfolk, Va.

- David A. Gilliland, 21, Warrensburg, Mo.
- Mark E. Hutchison, 27, Elkins, W. Va.
- Daniel Lupatsky, 22, Centralia, Pa.
- Daniel C. McKinsey, 21, Hanover, Pa.
- Fred R. Parker Jr., 24, Reidsville, N.C.
- James A. Smith Jr., 22, Somerville, Tenn.
- John M. Snyder, 25, Milltown, N.J.
- Robert L. Volden, 28, Rego Park, N.Y.

The Marine who died, identified as 1st Lt. Michael N. Monroe, 27, of Auburn, Wash., was with three others from the 1st Battalion, 3rd Marines when their jeep overturned and went down a 20-foot embankment, a military statement said. His companions were in stable condition.

Hostages' letters brief, bitter

By Leslie Dreyfous
Associated Press

Letters, mostly brief and bitter, have slipped out of Kuwait and Iraq.

The pleas have reached the United States circuitously: smuggled out by freed hostages then dropped in mail slots from Maryland to England to Bangladesh.

Addressed to loved ones, the letters are touched with black humor, daily trivia and tales of atrocity. They also carry the hostages' provisional attempts at proper goodbyes.

"The situation here is entirely out of control," wrote a Midwestern dentist whose letters from Kuwait were provided on the condition he not be identified. "I am in a 'safe' house with a good friend. We are surrounded by Iraqi troops ... and there is a great deal of shooting in the area at night."

Some letters are hastily scrawled on notepaper; others are typed. All offer stark, urgent views of the Persian Gulf crisis through the eyes of those trapped by it.

"This may be the last communication you get from me ... since almost everyone (who can) has departed," the dentist wrote in a letter dated Sept. 28.

"(The Iraqis) have destroyed all forms of normalcy here. Looting, rape and sodomy and wanton destruction ... Food stocks are almost gone and the garbage and rodent problems are increasing ... things here get worse by the day."

The estimated 1,000 Americans stuck in Kuwait and Iraq are from varied backgrounds. They were in the Middle East as teachers, diplomats, oil workers, engineers and consultants.

But in their letters are common themes: calls for quick and decisive American intervention, complaints about boredom and fatigue. For many hostages, time is measured by what they may be missing at home.

"Darling, the days and nights are long and boring," Fred F. Harrington, a Redmond, Wash., businessman held as one of Saddam Hussein's "human shields," wrote to his wife.

"I do lots of reading, American and British novels. There is TV and VCR in the lounge. Breakfast is at 9 a.m., lunch at 1 p.m. and dinner at 7 p.m. Food is lousy ... my back hurts," Harrington wrote in a letter dated Sept. 4.

"People here are terrified," a 26-year-old Kuwaiti wrote to H. Norman Angell, an old friend in Bainbridge Island, Wash. "One of my relatives was shot in front of his family after he was tortured for two months. He was 23 years old.

"Two of my cousins were taken away ... and nobody knows where they are now," wrote Angell's friend, whose cousin escaped and mailed the letter after reaching Germany.

"Tensions run high," wrote Mike Nickman, whose work on an irrigation project in northern Iraq was interrupted by Iraq's invasion of Kuwait.

"They have security police sitting outside our door, waiting for one of us to leave," he wrote in a Sept. 4 letter smuggled out of the U.S. Embassy in Baghdad by a British woman who forwarded it to Nickman's parents in Pleaston, Neb.

"My patience is in short supply. It is easy for my temper to rise up and of course in this situation that's not very wise," wrote Guy Seago, a 49-year-old oil worker captured by Iraqi troops while trying to escape Kuwait.

In their letters, many of the hostages mention their tempers. They are tired of listening to the Voice of America and waiting for the United States, which has deployed 220,000 troops, to strike.

"It has become a pretty tedious existence, but preferable to being in Baghdad or at some military installation," wrote the dentist, whose attorney provided copies of several letters. "Those poor people will be killed when the shooting starts, as the Iraqis have nothing to lose."

But for American hostages and their families, the loss could be enormous.

"You have given me great joy," Joseph Murphy, a 63-year-old teacher from Fremont, Calif., wrote to his daughter in a letter smuggled out of the U.S. Embassy in Kuwait.

"Be smart and strong and brave, my darling. You have a great life ahead of you," he wrote. "I love you."

Fresh units to be sent to Saudi Arabia

WASHINGTON (AP) — American soldiers in Saudi Arabia are suffering normal morale problems, but their spirits will rise when the Pentagon announces plans in November for replacing them with fresh units, a senior Army official said Tuesday.

Gen. Gordon R. Sullivan, the Army's vice chief of staff, said the service is taking numerous steps to improve morale, including the possibility of leasing large cruise liners in the Persian Gulf to give soldiers a break from desert training.

"It's tough. It's not an easy mission" for the more than 100,000 soldiers in Saudi Arabia as part of Operation Desert Shield.

The four-star general said the Bush administration will announce within a couple of weeks its decision on when replacement forces would be sent. He said the Army had not been instructed to increase its total force in Saudi Arabia, but that extra troops, if needed, likely would come from combat units at U.S. bases in Germany that are scheduled to be closed next year.

The Army also could tap the remaining three armored divisions based in the United States.

On Monday, Defense Secretary Dick Cheney said that as many as 100,000 more forces — beyond the roughly 240,000 soldiers, sailors, airmen and marines already there — might be sent to the region.

Sullivan said the full contingent of soldiers assigned to Desert Shield would be in place within a few days, and a shipment of several hundred M1A1 main battle tanks, which are capable of handling a chemical attack, also is en route to Saudi Arabia from Germany.

The biggest psychological lift for the troops, some of whom have been in the Saudi desert for two months, will come with the announcement of a timetable for a rotation of fresh forces, Sullivan said.

He said the Army already has set in motion the arrangements for mobilizing the first fresh units from the United States and Europe, although no individual units have been alerted.

Sullivan acknowledged that some soldiers are grousing about not knowing how long they'll be on duty in Saudi Arabia, where living conditions on the front lines are harsh, but he said he was satisfied that morale is not suffering unduly.

"The troops are in pretty good shape and they are not experiencing what I consider to be inordinate morale problems," he said.

HALLOWEEN SAFETY

Don't let the goblins get you!

Trick or treating can be safe and fun if you follow these simple but important tips.

- Make sure costumes are not so long that your child could trip on them. Reflective tape should be put on all costumes—especially dark-colored ones. Also, painted faces are better than masks since masks almost always affect vision.
- Instruct children not to eat any treats before you have inspected them.
- Trick or treat only in well-lighted neighborhoods—preferably only at homes where you know the occupants personally.
- Keep children away from lit jack-o'-lanterns.
- Carry a flashlight and walk on sidewalks, not on streets. Warn children not to run between parked cars to cross the street.
- Inspect treats closely. Candy with torn wrappers or any packaging that looks like it has been tampered with should be immediately thrown away.
- Fruit should be washed and cut into small pieces before eating.
