Aquifer issue

AUSTIN (AP) — The U.S. Interior secretary has joined those urging the Legislature to act to regulate the Edwards Aquifer.

"I fully share your sense of urgency, and of the need for a Texas solution to this problem," Interior Secretary Bruce Babbitt said in a letter to Gov. Ann Richards, Lt. Gov. Bob Bullock and House Speaker Pete Laney.

"Anything you and other Texas leaders can do to implement a fair and reasonable framework for resolving this problem will be applauded for generations to come," Babbitt said as lawmakers near their Monday adjournment date.

Richards has said that failure to approve aquifer legislation could force her to call lawmakers back into a special session.

Legislature passes $70.1 billion budget

Represents 11.4% hike over current spending

AUSTIN (AP) — There will be no new taxes, but many of the same old problems under a $70.1 billion, two-year state budget approved by the Legislature and sent to Gov. Ann Richards.

The budget is about an 11.4 percent increase over current spending.

"They said this couldn't be done without a tax increase, but we did it," said Lt. Gov. Bob Bullock.

But the state will continue to battle shortages of funding for public schools and assistance for the needy, lawmakers said Thursday.

"Nobody got everything they wanted," said Rep. Robert Junell, D-San Angelo, chairman of the House budget-writing committee. "But we have kept people at what we funded them last year or greater in many instances. And we have tried to maximize the use of federal funds."

Sen. John Montford, D-Lubbock, and chairman of the Senate Finance Committee, described the budget as "a Chevrolet with no white walls."

State leaders refused to support a tax increase while facing large jumps in demand for welfare programs and public school enrollments.

To combat the shortfalls, lawmakers adopted about $2 billion in cuts that were identified in audits by the state comptroller's office, scrounging for federal funds and making more programs pay for themselves.

Prison construction, assistance for higher education along the Texas-Mexico border and an immunization program for Texas children emerged as funding priorities in the budget, budget leaders said.

"This is a good news budget for Texas. There are no new taxes and we held the line on spending," said Richards' spokeswoman Margaret Justus.

The spending plan is about 11.4 percent more than the 1992-93 budget total of $62.9 billion.

The estimated total also is more than earlier versions passed by the House and Senate, which were about $67.5 billion and $69.7 billion, respectively.

City rejects TU rate request

For the second time, Snyder City Council has denied a 15.32 percent rate increase requested by TU Electric.

In a special meeting Thursday, council members unanimously voted that the request be denied on second reading. The council had also denied the request on first reading May 3.

Council members met Thursday in special session to take action on the request because the Public Utility Commission (PUC) only allows 120 days consideration of a rate request before passing automatically. Thursday was the deadline.

If TU Electric does not accept the decision of the council it will have to go to the PUC for consideration.

City Manager John Gayle briefed council members on the request prior to Thursday's vote. He explained that Snyder joined a steering committee which reviewed the request and recommended either denial or to pemit a 3.6 percent, or $180 million, increase.

TU's request, 15.32 percent, amounts to $760 million.

"The minimum justification they (the steering committee) could find was 3.6 percent. Some cities have denied the increase and said the decision should be left up to the PUC," Gayle told council members.

Councilman Dayton Robertson said he would rather deny the request and "start from zero" rather than start with a 3.6 increase.

The rate request was the only item on the agenda.

Council members present were I.E. Martin, Ron Shaw, Vernest Tippins and Robertson. Jack Denman presided in the absence of Mayor Paul Zeck and Mike Post, mayor pro tem.

In addition to council members, those present included Ernie Armstrong, city attorney; Jeanie Johnson, city secretary; and Gayle.

The council's next meeting will be 6:30 p.m. Thursday, June 10, at City Hall.

Auxiliary to begin Buddy Poppy sales

POPPY SALES — VFW Ladies Auxiliary member Shirley Hines displays the poppies that are on sale today and Saturday.

Buddy Poppy sales begin today throughout Snyder.

The sales are being conducted by The Ladies Auxiliary of the Veterans of Foreign Wars.

All the money contributed by the public for Buddy Poppies is used in the cause of veterans' welfare or for the well-being of their needy dependants and the orphans of veterans.

Poppies will be sold today at West Texas State Bank, Snyder National Bank and AmWest Savings.

On Saturday, sales will be held at IGA, Furr's, Kmart and Wal-Mart.

The first nationwide distribution of poppies by the Veterans of Foreign Wars was in May, 1922. Today, VFW Buddy Poppies are assembled by disabled, needy and aging veterans in VA hospitals and domiciliaries across the country.

Chamber says..

July 4th booths still available

Snyder Chamber of Commerce July 4th committee discussed fireworks, arts and crafts and food and activity booths Thursday afternoon.

The committee has been working for months to ensure a successful celebration at Towle Park.

According to members, everything is in place and ready except for the rental of a few booths. There are several arts and crafts booths and a few food and activity booths available. Anyone wishing to rent a booth should contact the chamber.

Chairman Travis Bunch said the chamber will be selling novelty items as in the years past. In addition to traditional items, the chamber has ordered 1,000 special fireworks glasses, which will be sold before the fireworks display Saturday night. The glasses, which look like 3-D glasses in appearance, illuminate the brightness and the flare of fireworks.

At this year's celebration, Towle Park Barn will house several commercial booths and as well as the Palette Club art show. The show is open to everyone. Those wishing to enter should bring their work to the barn Thursday afternoon, July 1.

Entry fee for the art show is $3 for adults and $1.50 for ages under 18. For more information, call Karen Rinker at 573-1808, during the day.

Scurry County Senior Citizens Center will have concessions in Towle Park Barn.

Dan Howell of Mason's Automotive Service addressed committee members with the idea of a free towing service for people who should not be on the road July 4, because of alcohol consumption.

He said he had checked with a service in Abilene that had great success with a program of towing people for free so they would not drive.

Committee members approved of the idea. Howell said he will work on plans for the service.

The feller on Deep Creek says, "It's too bad that even rusty brains tend to squeak."

Keeping tabs on our neighbors:

James Roberts, in the Andrews County News, mused that Congress again is making one set of laws for us, yet living by another standard.

"Doesn't it seem strange to you that the U.S. Senate spends $168,000 a year for a chaplain to give a morning prayer at the day's opening session...yet the same group has outlawed prayer in public schools, public arenas, and any display of religious figures?"

Howard Clemmons, in the Hood County News in Granbury, said:

"Men of genius are admired. Men of wealth are envied. Men of power are feared, but only men of character are trusted."

It's baseball season, and all the teams are trying to find the right combination to win the pennant. The Wall Street Journal reports that major league baseball managers need a good match with players.

WSJ reported that the chemistry between the manager and players is more important than talent, based on an complicated formula or equation developed by a University of Buffalo managerial economists.

Looking at all big league managers from 1930-88, researchers have concluded that basics such as hitting, fielding and pitching are not changed significantly by the manager.

"Considering the many managers who switch from team to team, their real coaching ability comes out only when they've found the right team."

[illegible] Texas, in the Rotan Advance, had this observation about the economy:

Tax bill passes House, faces tougher test now

WASHINGTON (AP) — Democrats gave President Clinton a badly needed triumph when they muscled his massive deficit-reduction tax increase through the House. Clinton said today "I'm very optimistic" as the package moves toward a tough Senate test.

"I think the country should be encouraged that the tough decisions are being made," the president said at an Oval Office ceremony. "We're going to bring this deficit down, we're going to try to get the economy to [illegible] going to try to get incomes up again. It has to be a balanced, balanced program and I think we can do it. I'm encouraged."

On a close 219-213 vote, the House late Thursday approved the $340 billion mix of tax increases and spending cuts. Clinton said today he already has opened talks with members of the Senate.

Sen. John Breaux, a member of the Senate Finance Committee and a Democrat from the oil-producing state of Louisiana, praised Clinton for doing "a heck of a job to get this victory" but predicted the legislation is "going to have a tough time in the Senate."

"I think [illegible] the direction of cutting spending more and raising taxes less ... there are going to have to be some changes," Breaux said on ABC.

Hutchison accused by Demo lawmaker

AUSTIN (AP) — Republicans are crying foul over a speech made by a Democratic lawmaker in which he accused GOP Senate candidate Kay Bailey Hutchison of hiring a person in return for an endorsement in her 1990 treasurer's race.

"It's just a cheap political trick," Sen. J.E. "Buster" Brown, R-Lake Jackson said Thursday.

"To say this isn't politically motivated just flies in the face of common sense," said Sen. David Sibley, R-Waco.

In a privileged speech on the Senate floor, Sen. Eddie Lucio, D-Brownsville, alleged that there was "hard evidence" Mrs. Hutchison gave the "job-for-endorsement."

He refused to identify the person. But he made references to Tom Bowden, a former San Saba County judge who unsuccessfully sought the Democratic Party nomination for state treasurer in 1990.

Bowden was defeated in the Democratic runoff, and then endorsed Mrs. Hutchison.

Less than two weeks after Mrs. Hutchison took office, Bowden was given a $31,000 job at the state Treasury, according to a Houston Chronicle report.

Lucio called for an investigation by the Travis County District Attorney public integrity unit. "This is not just unethical. This is potentially criminal," he said.

Mrs. Hutchison's campaign spokesman David Beckwith said the accusation was a desperate move by the Krueger campaign, which is trailing in the polls.

A statewide poll published Thursday by The Dallas Morning News showed that 54 percent of likely voters favor Mrs. Hutchison, compared to 35 percent for Krueger.

"This is clearly a political act, coordinated with the Krueger campaign that is 19 points behind and sinking fast," Beckwith said of Lucio's charges.

Beckwith defended Mrs. Hutchison's hiring of Bowden. "Who is she supposed to appoint, her enemies? Bob Krueger just appointed nine people to the federal bench who gave money to his campaign," he said.

The Krueger campaign said it had nothing to do with Lucio's statements. Spokeswoman Sam Smoot, however, said, "From the newspaper reports of Tom Bowden's hiring, it looks shady from just about every direction."

Bowden could not be reached for comment. A person answering the telephone at the Treasury's tobacco enforcement office said Bowden would be working in the field and probably not return until June 7.

Bowden earlier told the Chronicle that he never talked about working for the agency at the time he endorsed Mrs. Hutchison, and that he didn't believe his endorsement helped him get the job.

Lucio said he disclosed the allegation because former Texas Railroad Commissioner Lena Guerrero was dogged by an investigation during her campaign. He said it was only fair that the Travis County district attorney investigate Mrs. Hutchison too.

But the district attorney's office said it hadn't investigated Ms. Guerrero.

VALARIE WINKLES

Local picked for volunteer work in July

DALLAS — Valarie Winkles of Snyder, daughter of Wayne and Cheryl Winkles, will serve two weeks (July 4-17) as a missions volunteer along the Rio Grande as part of the Texas Baptist River Ministry's first ever Helping Hands Brigade.

Winkles will work in the Rio Grande Valley on both sides of the Texas/Mexico border. She will do manual labor and personal evangelism, including leading Vacation Bible Schools.

The 1993-1994 senior at Snyder High School is one of six teen age volunteers from Texas who will be participating in this program. She is the only person from Snyder scheduled to help with Helping Hands Brigade.

The Helping Hands Brigade is a pilot missions program being launched this summer by the River Ministry of the Baptist General Convention of Texas. The program offers Southern Baptist young people who have completed their junior or senior years in high school an opportunity for hands-on-missions experience along the Rio Grande.

Since 1967, the River Ministry has helped to coordinate and facilitate the work of the Southern Baptist churches in missions enterprises along the Texas/Mexico border, including agricultural-economic development programs, health care services, church planting and evangelism.

The River Ministry is funded by the Mary Hill Davis Offering for State Missions, taken each autumn in the 5,500 Southern Baptist congregations in Texas, and by the Cooperative Program, the Baptist General Convention of Texas' unified budget plan for missions support.

Fans line up

BOZEMAN, Mont. (AP) — Country-western fans began lining up at Montana State University 12 hours before tickets for a concert by Clint Black and Wynonna Judd went on sale.

Gina Best was the first in line at 5 a.m. Thursday.

"You don't get this kind of opportunity in Bozeman very often," said Best, who brought along four books to pass the time.

Voters may decide

AUSTIN (AP) — Voters would have the final say on whether to impose a state income tax under a proposed constitutional amendment that moved a step closer to being placed on the November ballot.

"This makes the people of Texas full partners with the Legislature in any future decision on this matter that affects everyone's pocketbook," said Lt. Gov. Bob Bullock on Thursday.

In the past, Bullock has supported a state income tax.

If the House adopts the conference committee proposal, it will be placed on the Nov. 2 ballot.

Voters will be asked if they want to place a constitutional ban on a personal income tax. That ban would remain in effect unless an income tax is later approved by the voters.

Currently, the Legislature could pass an income tax, although politically that would be impossible. Texas is one of only seven states without a personal income tax.

If an income tax is later given the green light by voters, two-thirds of the revenue would go toward reducing local property taxes, and one-third for education, under the proposal. Subsequent increases in the tax would also be subject to voter approval.

Sen. John Leedom, R-Dallas, voted against the measure. Sen. Jane Nelson, R-Flower Mound, was present but did not vote.

In 'New' Wedding Tradition, Receiving Line Is Obsolete

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1993 Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: In reference to receiving lines at weddings:

Twenty years ago, when my children were married, receiving lines were considered a must. Just before one of the weddings, my husband was told it wasn't required that the father of the bride stand in line. He was relieved, so he went around greeting everyone. I wanted so to join him, but felt obligated to suffer through the receiving line.

Since that time, many Chinese and Vietnamese have moved into our city of Garden Grove (Calif). They work hard at learning our language and customs.

I have attended several of their weddings, and they have a lovely custom: After everyone is seated for the dinner, the wedding party goes to each table and greets the guests. That way, none of the guests are left out, and it is very gracious having the bride and groom come to greet you.

BETTY LANDEY

DEAR BETTY: Thank you for sharing that sensible and charming custom of the Garden Grove Vietnamese and Chinese citizens. We can all learn from others.

* * *

DEAR ABBY: Now that we are into the wedding season, I'd be ever so grateful if you would put this in your widely read column.

When a couple receives an invitation to a wedding, and the invitation reads, "Adults only, please," they should not take offense.

Last year, we gave a party at our home. We have a swimming pool in our back yard. Well, a couple brought their 4-year-old son, Johnny, along. (We didn't think we had to put "no children" on the invitation, but now we are sorry we didn't.)

Everyone was having a good time, when Johnny jumped into the deep end of the pool — white suit and all! His father jumped in after him, as Johnny is no swimmer. Needless to say, it put a damper on the party.

PALM SPRINGS

DEAR PALM SPRINGS: The fault belongs to Johnny's parents who brought him, uninvited, to an adult party — and failed to keep an eye on him.

* * *

DEAR ABBY: My experience with UPS is entirely different from those of your readers who had experienced problems. I, too, am handicapped like the gentleman from Portland, Ore. I am alerted to a UPS delivery by a ring of the doorbell followed by "Frank" calling out "UPS." Frank then brings the package upstairs, makes his way past my large dog and puts the parcel on my kitchen counter, taps the delivery code into his handheld computer, and is on his way.

I have never asked for this service. Frank started doing it on his own. Perhaps those who have had problems should move here to Seymour, Wis., or maybe get a Frank of their own.

BILL KORANDA

DEAR ABBY: My sister, who lives in Ohio, is visiting me and my husband for three weeks. (We live in Florida.)

"Sis" received a telephone call the other evening, and my husband answered the telephone and asked the caller who was calling.

I told my husband that he was rude to have asked who was calling, since the call was not for him.

My husband thought he did the proper thing to have asked the caller who was calling. Who was correct?

DEBBIE

DEAR DEBBIE: Your husband. (I am assuming he inquired in order to tell your sister who was calling her — not out of personal curiosity.)

Your Birthday

May 29, 1993

In the year ahead you might become involved with two distinct groups of friends. One group will share your interest in worldly events, the other your interest in social areas. Each will offer unique benefits.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Domestic matters should be given priority over your other activities today. After these obligations are met, you will be free to spend your time any way you like. CANCER (June 21-July 22) In matters where you let your emotions dictate your behavior, the results might not be to your liking. However, you will appreciate results when you logically work out the details of the project.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) If there is something special you want and you have been looking for a good buy, do your shopping early in the day. Your chances for getting it at the right price look good.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Situations you personally control should work out rather well for you today, but you still might overlook some minor factors that could make things even better.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) You are basically a compassionate and tolerant person who is ready to help others whenever possible. When you exercise these noble qualities today, keep your good deeds to yourself.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Assess developments in a logical manner today, but also give credence to your intuitive insights. Your perceptions could fill in blank spots where your practicality can't.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) If you are involved with people today who share your work-world interests, it's OK to talk shop. But if you try to do this with pals, they might find you boring.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Activities that offer elements of friendly competition might be extremely appealing for you today. The important thing is to involve pals who like games as much as you do.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) If you find yourself in a competitive situation today, don't despair, because you have mental and physical reserves upon which to draw in these areas that your opposition lacks.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Don't jump at the first offer today if you are negotiating an important contract. If you hold fast to your terms, you might eventually get them.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) New knowledge of a practical nature that you've been unable to utilize to your advantage will be better understood today. All of a sudden the light may go on.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Things in general look very favorable for you today with one exception — the management of your resources. Be cautious in this area.

Hutchison leads

DALLAS (AP) — With just over a week remaining before a June 5 runoff, Republican state treasurer Kay Bailey Hutchison has a commanding lead over Democrat Bob Krueger in the special U.S. Senate race, according to a poll of likely voters by The Dallas Morning News.

The survey in the June 5 runoff showed Hutchison favored by 54 percent and Krueger by 35 percent. The poll showed Krueger running strongly only among loyal Democrats and minority voters. The rest were undecided.

"You never say never, but it is highly improbable he could catch her at this point," poll director Julie Weprin said.

Gov. Ann Richards appointed Krueger in January to serve in the Senate until a successor to Lloyd Bentsen could be elected in a special election. Bentsen is now Treasury Secretary.

The poll of likely voters was conducted May 20-25 by the polling firm Blum & Weprin Associates Inc. of New York. All of those questioned were reported to have voted in the first round of balloting May 1. The poll has a margin of error of four percentage points.

Both camps said polls can be wrong and they would continue to campaign hard.

David Beckwith, communications director for Hutchison, said polls can be unreliable in a special election in which turnout is uncertain. "We're going to continue to run as if we were neck-and-neck with the temporary senator."

Monte Williams, spokesman for Krueger, said, "Polling in a special election is very difficult, and quite often a pollster misses the dynamic of turnout in a race, and we believe that's what happened in this case."

Play planned by next fall

NEW YORK (AP) — "The Madness of George III," featuring Nigel Hawthorne in the title role, will be performed in four American cities next fall by the Royal National Theatre of Britain.

Director Nicholas Hytner on Thursday called the play by Alan Bennett "fantastically humane." The play is about England's King George III, who went insane.

Hawthorne said he welcomed the chance to star in a play that features 23 characters.

"It isn't often a man of 64, which I've just turned, gets an opportunity to play a glorious part like this in a modern play. It's a fantastic role," he said.

Hawthorne previously was on Broadway as C.S. Lewis in "Shadowlands." He also played Sir Humphrey Appleby in the TV comedy "Yes, Minister."

"The Madness of George III" opened in London in November 1991.

Marshall wanted to burn his papers, but changed his plans

WASHINGTON (AP) — Supreme Court Justice Thurgood Marshall told Library of Congress officials he always had planned to burn his papers. But shortly after his retirement, to their surprise and delight, he called a meeting in his office and said he had changed his mind.

The library could have his judicial papers, Marshall said.

And it could make them public as soon as he died.

The library did just that — and touched off an uproar. His family and his peers on the court said he couldn't possibly have intended to have his papers released so soon after his death.

Marshall died Jan. 24, leaving the library 173,700 documents, including secret memos and unpublished draft opinions by justices still on the court about cases decided as recently as 1991.

News organizations began publishing stories based on the documents this week, prompting an angry letter to the library from Chief Justice William Rehnquist chastising the library for "bad judgment."

But three library officials who sat in Marshall's office at the court on Oct. 7, 1991, three months after his retirement, say his intentions were crystal clear.

"It was a great moment, it was a thrilling moment, because we knew the papers would be preserved," Librarian of Congress James Billington, one of the three official, said in an interview Thursday.

I would open that North hand with one no-trump, not one club, if my range were 15-17 points. It is an excellent 14-point hand with a strong five-card suit and good intermediates. I would treat it as 15.

West was right to lead his lowest diamond as he hadn't supported his partner's suit.

East had to find four defensive tricks. Well, there was probably one available in diamonds. And if West won a trump trick, a heart switch at that point would hopefully net the required two more tricks. But how do you get West to switch to a heart?

The authors recommend East's playing a discouraging diamond five at trick one. An alternative approach is to drop the queen, which technically denies holding the king. Placing South with king doubleton of diamonds, West will have no reason to continue the suit. A heart switch will stand out like an elephant train in the Kentucky Derby.

Every year a surprisingly large number of bridge books appear. But recently, perhaps for economic reasons, there has been an upsurge in booklets. These contain around 24 pages and give information about one specific topic. Last year saw the appearance of the 10-volume Bridge Mini Series by Norma Sands and Jan Janitschke (Devyn, $37.95, 800-274-2221). The set concentrates mainly on bidding topics, but there is advice on opening leads and defensive signals.

Today's deal comes from the booklet on defensive signals. West leads the diamond four. After declarer wins with dummy's ace, how should East

Unknowns lead Colonial field

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — Is this Colonial or the Twilight Zone?

Can this be the golfing gala immortalized by Ben Hogan and embraced by such legends as Sam Snead, Julius Boros, Cary Middlecoff, Arnold Palmer and Jack Nicklaus?

Hardly.

Atop the leaderboard entering today's second round of the $1.3 million Colonial Invitation were Dick Mast, Jeff Maggert and Duffy Waldorf, three non-winners on the PGA Tour.

In order, that's an activist in the circuit's Bible study group, a Texas Aggie and a wine collector who wears funny hats.

What's more, Ian Baker-Finch contributed a dubious footnote to Colonial lore. In the water at the par-3 13th, he removed shoes, socks and slacks and blasted out.

Cable TV recorded the episode, including a lingering shot of the popular Australian as he slipped back into his pants and proceeded to bogey the hole.

Mast seized the lead Thursday with a 6-under-par 64, a shot ahead of Maggert and Waldorf and two in front of a quintet at 66: Russ Cochran, John Huston, D.A. Weibring, Fulton Allem and Steve Pate.

Mast holed out a 60-footer from the sand for an eagle 3 on the first hole and toured the 7,010-yard Trinity River layout in 30-34 in his first appearance here since 1974.

"That'll get your attitude going pretty good," said Mast, 42, a pro since 1972 but whose best finish ever was runner-up last year at the Greater Milwaukee Open.

"It could have been really low," he said of Thursday's round, which included two 20-foot birdie putts, two 15-footers and two of 25 and 5 feet.

"I hit two balls in the hazard and missed a 3-foot putt."

Maggert, meanwhile, made out like a bandit, banging the ball into the sand and the grandstand but rescuing himself repeatedly with wedge shots and par-saving putts.

"I had a lot of good saves for par when I needed them," he said.

Several of the big names remained within easy striking distance at 69, one under par. They included Greg Norman, Tom Watson, Payne Stewart, Fuzzy Zoeller and Mark Calcavecchia.

Baker-Finch sloshed in with a 74.

Frenship faces Lions in playoffs

The District 2-4A baseball champion Frenship Tigers will take on the Brownwood Lions in a one-game playoff at 2 p.m. Saturday at Abilene's Hunter Field in a Region 1-4A semifinal matchup.

The Tigers, 21-9, topped Big Spring, 15-7, a week ago in the area round of the playoffs to earn a spot in Saturday's tilt.

The expected starter for FHS is senior B.J. Krier.

Krier carries a 9-4 season mark, including the win over Big Spring in which he scattered eight hits, walked four and struck out four in a complete-game outing.

The Lions bring the District 6 title and a 23-6 season slate, including a 2-1 area round victory over Ft. Worth Eastern Hills last week.

The Frenship-Brownwood winner will face the winner of the Andrews-Ft. Worth Arlington Heights matchup, a best-of-three series slated to start at noon today at Crutcher Field in Abilene, for the regional title.

Ira, Cougars battle today

The Ira Bulldogs will meet Ft. Elliott in the area round of the Class A baseball playoffs at 6 p.m. today at Jaycee Park in Plainview.

Ira, 7-9, is coming off an 8-7 bi-district win over Paducah last week, after finishing the regular season as the District 4 runner-up.

Sophomore standout Jake Swigart will start on the hill against the Bulldogs. Ira is expected to counter with senior Wyatt Webster, the winner in the 'Dogs' bi-district victory over Paducah.

There is no admission charge to Friday's battle.

Price cracks '93 All-NBA lineup

NEW YORK (AP) — Making the 1993 NBA All-Star team was no new experience for Charles Barkley, Michael Jordan, Hakeem Olajuwon and Karl Malone. It was the first time, however, for Mark Price, and he was delighted to be in such elite company.

"I wouldn't even have to shoot the ball playing with those guys," Price said Thursday, after becoming the first Cleveland player ever selected to the first team.

"You look at the other four guys on the team. Coming out of college, everybody predicted that they would be first team All-NBA. But a lot of people didn't even expect me to stick around the league that long."

Barkley, Phoenix's powerful forward and the league's most valuable player, and Jordan, Chicago's premier guard and the league scoring champion for a record-tying seventh time, were unanimous selections to the team.

Each was named on all 98 first-team ballots by a nationwide panel of NBA writers and sports broadcasters — three from each league city and 17 representing the national media. Each received the maximum 490 points, with points awarded on a 5-3-1 basis for first-, second- or third-team nominations.

Price got the fewest first-team votes (44) and the fewest points (344) of any player on the team.

Olajuwon, Houston's 7-foot center and the NBA's Defensive Player of the Year, was third in the voting with 83 first-team votes and 455 points, while Malone, Utah's high-scoring forward, got 45 first-team votes and 377 points.

Barkley, acquired from the Philadelphia 76ers during an offseason trade, did exactly what the Suns wanted him to — lead them to the Pacific Division title and the NBA's best record (62-20). He topped Phoenix in scoring with a 25.6 average, in rebounding with a 12.2 average and in total assists with 385, a 5.2 average. This was the fifth time he was chosen to the All-NBA team.

Jordan's first team selection was his seventh. He topped the league in scoring with a 32.6 average, joining Wilt Chamberlain as the only players to lead the NBA in scoring seven consecutive seasons. He was No. 1 in steals with a 2.83 average as the two-time defending NBA champion Bulls won the Central Division championship with a 57-25 record.

Upsets continue at French Open

PARIS (AP) — Iva Majoli, a 15-year-old Croatian playing in only her second Grand Slam event, upset 15th-seeded Sabine Hack today to advance to a fourth-round clash with top-seeded Steffi Graf.

Majoli, the youngest player in the tournament, breezed through the first set and held off the German to win 6-0, 7-6 (7-5).

Graf, the favorite in the absence of defending champion Monica Seles, beat Laura Gildemeister of Peru 6-2, 6-2. She beat Majoli earlier this year in their only previous match.

Fourth-seeded Conchita Martinez of Spain and eighth-seeded Anke Huber of Germany also advanced to the round of 16. Martinez beat Natalia Baudone of Italy 6-0, 7-5 and Huber routed Patricia Hy of Canada 6-1, 6-2.

The men's No. 1 seed, Pete Sampras, followed her on Court One to complete his suspended second-round match with Marcos Ondruska of South Africa. Sampras won the first set 7-5 on Thursday.

Five seeded players lost Thursday, including two highly ranked men upset by young Germans. Even though Germany's top player, Boris Becker, was ousted, five of his compatriots were safely into the men's third round, the second biggest national contingent after the United States.

Both delegations include some relatively unsung players who are matching or surpassing their career-best Grand Slam performances.

Goellner, 22, ousted No. 6 Petr Korda, last year's runner-up, 6-3, 7-6 (7-4), 7-6 (10-8). Karbacher, 25, calmly dispatched former champion and No. 8 seed Michael Chang 1-6, 6-3, 6-4, 6-2 in the completion of a suspended match.

Goellner was asked if they were the crest of a new wave of German tennis.

"I don't really think about this," Goeller replied. "Tennis is a sport where one has to fight for himself ... I'm very happy that there are others who are playing as well as I am."

The other Germans still in the field are ninth-seeded Michael Stich, Patrick Kuhnen and Carl-Uwe Steeb.

Goellner was ranked 107th at the end of last season, and has surged to 48th now, partly thanks to winning a clay-court tournament in Nice, France, in April, where he beat Edberg and Ivan Lendl. This is his first French Open.

The Americans have clinched at least six berths in the 32-player third round, seven if Sampras wins his suspended match.

In addition to powerhouses such as Sampras and two-time defending champion Jim Courier, the U.S. group includes 16th-seeded MaliVai Washington; veterans Brad Gilbert and Derrick Rostango; and outsiders Jeff Tarango and Jonathan Stark.

Stark, 22, and Tarango, 24, each have reached the third round of a Grand Slam event once before. They may get no farther this time, either, since Stark's next opponent is third-seeded Stefan Edberg and Tarango was matched today against second-seeded Courier.

For a while Thursday, it appeared another American could work a miracle and reach the third round. Aaron Krickstein, totally outplayed by Edberg after two sets, rallied spectacularly to win the third and take a 5-2 lead in the fourth.

Serving for the set at 5-3, Krickstein took a 40-0 lead with three straight aces, only to have Edberg save four set points, win the game, and go on to take the match 6-3, 6-1, 5-7, 7-5.

Hard time for hard criminals...

Revision of penal code ok'd

AUSTIN (AP) — Hard criminals would do hard time and the backlog of state prisoners in county jails would be relieved under bills approved by the Texas Senate.

Senators overwhelmingly approved a revision of the state's penal code Thursday and adopted a second measure creating 22,000 new "state jail" beds for nonviolent offenders.

"These bills are definitely going to make Texas a safer place to live and work," said Sen. John Whitmire, D-Houston, chairman of the Senate Criminal Justice Committee.

Currently, people convicted of crimes like murder and rape are required to serve at least one-fourth of their sentences. But the revision of the penal code would require them to serve at least half of their sentence.

"Instead of a guy going to prison for 40 years and serving 10, he will serve at least 20," Whitmire said.

"I think that the penal code and the jail bill will go a long way in keeping the violent criminals locked up for a longer period of time — that's the bottom line," said Gov. Ann Richards' press secretary, Bill Cryer. He said the governor likely would sign both measures.

The House was expected to consider the bills today.

Child molestation would be added to the list of the state's most violent crimes and the minimum time served for capital murder would increase from 35 to 40 years under the penal code revision.

"This legislation will do more than anything that has been done at anytime in the last 20 years to make Texas a safer place to live," said Lt. Gov. Bob Bullock.

Other notable changes would allow the state to prosecute the intentional transmission of AIDS as attempted murder, and increase punishment for solicitation of a child by making it a felony instead of a misdemeanor.

The new penal code would not allow off-duty police officers to carry weapons, as many police departments across the state had hoped.

House and Senate members who worked out differences on the bill in a conference committee could not agree on a statute in the legislation that would continue to outlaw sodomy between same-sex couples.

Whitmire said he had hoped the statute would be repealed, but House members of the conference committee said they had enough support for the ban on sodomy to kill the entire penal code bill.

"We felt they were wrong," Whitmire said. "But I felt it was too important for the people of Texas to have an improved penal code, so we yielded to the House on the sodomy issue."

Under the new jail system, nonviolent criminals would go to a "state jail," while violent offenders would go to state prisons.

Voters will be asked in November to approve a $1 billion bond issue to construct the new state jail beds.

"For the first time we are distinguishing between violent offenders that we want to lock up and throw away the key versus nonviolent criminals that we are going to stick in a state jail," Whitmire said.

State jail felonies would include many property and low-level drug offenses. Defendants with a violent criminal history are automatically excluded from this category.

The state jail measure would help unclog the backlog of more than 20,000 felons currently cooped up in county jails.

Landmark school graduates last class

LUBBOCK, Texas (AP) — The last class of seniors has passed through Dunbar-Struggs High after a bitter 21/2-year battle over the landmark school's fate.

But the last day of school today brings hope that Dunbar reborn as a junior high will foster the pride and tradition East Lubbockites fear they're losing.

Dunbar, a historically black school that has anchored its neighborhood for 70 years, is being converted as part of a final step to desegregate the Lubbock Independent School District. Dunbar students next year will transfer to three of the LISD's four remaining high schools.

In 1991, when the plan was up for federal approval, East Lubbock residents blasted it as educationally unsound and racially insensitive.

"The wounds have not healed," acknowledged Principal Virgil Johnson, himself a Dunbar graduate. "Everybody knows what's scheduled to happen in the fall, but they don't talk about it."

"We realized after the court made the decision that we would have to accept it," said school board trustee Kathyl Anderson. "People are still upset and still disappointed because it's a viable high school."

Ms. Anderson, a 1966 Dunbar graduate, helped lead the rally to keep the high school open. Supporters held candlelight vigils, signed petitions and filed reams of court papers emphasizing Dunbar's role as a community cornerstone.

LISD officials remained convinced, though, that Dunbar's dwindling enrollment and high cost-per-student made some kind of change unavoidable. A citizens' committee endorsed the junior high proposal.

"I'm proud of Dunbar ... and the work that's gone on there," said Superintendent Mike Moses. "There will continue to be outstanding education opportunities at that school. I hope that what we have done was done in a caring manner."

Just 175 juniors and seniors — no sophomores — attended Dunbar this year. But the small class sizes help many of the students who come from broken homes and poor backgrounds, Johnson said.

He remembers Panther academic and athletic successes, as well as the years in the 1970s when Dunbar flourished under early desegregation mandates. Equal numbers of white, black and Hispanic teen-agers flocked to Dunbar's special vocational classes; the enrollment grew as large as 800, he said.

No ceremony is planned to commemorate the end of Dunbar as a high school.

"We treat it like cancer," Johnson said. "Do you know many people dying of cancer who want to celebrate?"

Joyce Bowers

1912-1993

CONROE — Services are pending with Cashner Funeral Home for Joyce Bowers, 80, who died at 12:55 a.m. today in a Conroe hospital.

Mrs. Bowers, a former resident of Lamesa, was the mother of Nancy Peterson of Snyder.

Police note one arrest

Snyder police made one arrest early this morning.

Officers arrested a 16-year-old male for misdemeanor driving while intoxicated at 1:36 a.m. at Avenue Y and Huffman. The juvenile was transported to the sheriff's office and later released to his parents.

At 7:44 a.m. Thursday, officers worked an accident in the 3100 block of 25th Street. Involved were a 1992 International Tractor Trailer driven by Marshall Finley of Rt. 2 and a 1982 Chevrolet pickup driven by Charlie Gibson of 4505 Garwood. The International was towing a 1992 Strick trailer owned by Northern American Van Lines of Ft. Wayne, Ind.

At 8:02 a.m., officers worked a minor accident in the Furr's parking lot. A 1979 Chevrolet pickup driven by David Yanez of 321 29th St. struck a light pole owned by Furr's.

Police were notified of damage to a front plate glass window at Williams Systems, 1909 25th St., at 8:10 a.m. Thursday. A report for Class B criminal mischief was filed.

At 9:26 a.m., David Chandler notified police that someone had taken a tackle box, tool box and tools from his vehicle while it was parked at 3009 Ave. T. A report for Class A theft was filed.

Police also worked a hit-and-run at 2:23 p.m. Thursday. An unknown vehicle struck a retaining wall at Nix's Auto & Tire Service.

San Angelo man gets 12-year term

A 30-year-old San Angelo man was sentenced to 12 years in prison Thursday after pleading guilty to indecency with a child.

Charley Henry Standley II pled guilty to a March 20, 1993 offense of indecency with a child. The offense is a second degree felony. According to the district attorney's office, the offense occurred when Standley was visiting friends in Snyder.

In addition to receiving 12 years in the Texas Department of Criminal Justice Institutional Division, Standley was ordered to pay $84.50 in court costs.

Free mail boxes made available

Snyder Post Office is offering free mail boxes for customers who switch from door to curb delivery.

"We are asking our customers to contact us if they are presently receiving door delivery and we will install free of charge a new mail box at their curb," said Postmaster Steve Justice. "We have purchased these boxes in hopes of providing our Snyder customers faster, more efficient service."

Over 1,800 Snyder customers have converted to curb delivery, according to Justice, who said the free offer will continue through June.

Anyone interested in making the switch should call the post office at 573-2261. Installation can be made within a week's time.

Bombings reignite fear of terrorism

FLORENCE, Italy (AP) — Two bombs in the night in two great cities in two weeks have shaken Italians, who worry about a return to a long siege of terrorism.

Thursday's bombing at the Uffizi Gallery killed five people, ruined centuries-old works of art and shut down Italy's most popular museum for weeks, if not months.

A May 14 car bombing wounded 23 people and wrecked a block of an affluent Rome neighborhood. A popular TV talk show host who dedicated shows to denouncing the Mafia narrowly escaped death.

Authorities said the attacks had but one purpose — to create panic like that triggered by left- and right-wing terrorists in the 1970s and '80s. In one attack, a bomb in the waiting room of the Bologna train station in 1980 killed 85 people and wounded 200.

Then, as now, the attacks were launched in tense times, at possible turning points in history. Back then the Communists were rapidly gaining electoral strength.

Now it's fast growing reformist parties that are challenging political alliances that have governed the country since World War II, and questioning the rules those coalitions play by.

What's more, prosecutors up and down the peninsula have been pressing corruption probes for more than a year, leading to the jailing or investigations of hundreds of business and political figures.

The main suspect in the recent bombings is the Mafia, the Sicilian syndicate of drug traffickers and extortionists that, at least up to now, had targeted for death rival mob bosses, police investigators, judges and other anti-Mafia crusaders, and almost always in their power base Sicily.

Car bombs were used against top mob-fighters Falcone and Borsellino.

Company seeks way to link personal computer, machines

NEW YORK (AP) — Microsoft Corp. is spearheading the development of software to link personal computers with copiers, fax machines and printers that would radically change the machines' roles in the office, chairman Bill Gates says.

Microsoft, the nation's largest software company, and several large office product makers on June 9 will announce the new standard that could eliminate the overlapping functions of printers, copiers and fax machines.

"Everyone who makes a fax, printer, copier or phone should be aware of this and take a hard look at participating in making products that conform to this architecture," Gates said in an interview with The Associated Press on Thursday.

The standard is the first step to a "digital office" that distributes documents more efficiently and securely, he said.

The road to the software standard is being paved by some advances in infrared technology led by Hewlett-Packard Co., analysts say.

"They've got some very good patents that they have received in the area of infrared that they're licensing to the competition to help assure there's an open standard," said Ken Jacobsen, consultant with Stanford Research Institute in Menlo Park, Calif.

Hewlett-Packard unveiled some palm-sized computers that incorporate the infrared technology this week.

"Today, it exists in some small products. You're going to see it in some large products down the road," said Roy Breslauski, an HP product line manager in Corvallis, Ore.

Although many office machines can already "talk" to computers, the new standard will be based on Microsoft's Windows operating system, popular in many personal computers.

Monitoring a weakened heart muscle

By Peter H. Gott, M.D.

DEAR DR. GOTT: I have trouble breathing, which my doctor has diagnosed as congestive heart failure. Please explain this disease and why it causes breathing problems.

DEAR READER: Congestive heart failure is an abnormal accumulation of fluid in the lungs. As the lungs become saturated, oxygen is prevented from entering the body. Patients literally drown in their own secretions.

CHF is caused by a weakened heart muscle that cannot circulate blood through the kidneys, where fluid is extracted. Thus, fluid pools in the lungs — and in the legs, too, because of gravity. This leads to ankle edema (swelling), breathlessness (especially when lying down or exercising), coughing and progressive difficulty breathing. The condition can appear suddenly and constitute a medical emergency called pulmonary edema.

CHF is not a disease, it is a symptom. Therefore, doctors usually search for a reason why the cardiac muscle malfunctions. Heart attack, heart infection (myocarditis), a sudden change to a high-salt diet (which holds fluid in the body), unaccustomed strenuous exercise (which stresses the heart), hypertension, and a leaky heart valve are common causes for the affliction and must be treated.

The therapy for CHF is diuretic medication, which stimulates the kidneys to excrete more fluid. Lasix is the most frequently prescribed drug for CHF. Other medications include morphine (for pulmonary edema), digitalis (to strengthen the heartbeat), nitroglycerine (which helps prevent pooling of fluid in the lungs), oxygen to aid breathing, and ACE inhibitors (to reduce the blood pressure against which the heart must beat).

Using modern drugs, physicians are usually extremely successful in treating CHF. This is a far cry from when digitalis, an extract from the foxglove plant, was first used more than a century ago by Dr. William Withering, an English physician who treated the ailment, which was then known as "dropsy."

To give you more information, I am sending you a free copy of my Health Report "Heart Disease." Other readers who would like a copy should send $1.25 plus a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to P.O. Box 2433, New York, NY 10163. Be sure to mention the title.

Concert date reserved

EAST RUTHERFORD, N.J. (AP) — Bruce Springsteen is returning to familar stomping grounds next month for a benefit concert: the Meadowlands Arena.

The concert June 24 caps off a nine-week European tour, unidentified sources told The Star-Ledger of Newark in Thursday's editions.

"We are holding a date for him, but other than that we can't comment," Meadowlands spokesman Michael Graime said.

A second benefit concert reportedly will be held at New York's Madison Square Garden on June 26.

The New Jersey concert would be the Springsteen's fourth visit to the Meadowlands as a featured artist. Last summer, the New Jersey native sold out an 11-show stand there.

Bugs might be vulnerable to some insecticide strains

WASHINGTON (AP) — Agriculture Department scientists say crop-threatening insects resistant to one type of a natural insecticide called Bt may be vulnerable to other Bt strains.

That suggests "using more than one type of Bt with different toxins may at least hinder the development of resistance," said microbiologist Donovan E. Johnson of the U.S. Grain Marketing Research Laboratory in Manhattan, Kan.

The soil bacterium Bacillus thuringiensis, Bt's full name, has been used for 30 years as an alternative to chemical insecticides. When it is sprayed on crops, the Bt's natural toxins kill insect pests but do not harm humans, animals, beneficial insects or the crops.

Studies conducted at the Kansas lab found that Indianmeal moths resistant to the toxins in some types of Bt may fall prey to toxins found in other Bt types.

Johnson said that in some cases, avoiding the use of Bt for a short time may cause insect pests to become susceptible again to the toxins.

He and entomologist William H. McGaughey subjected Indianmeal moths to five different Bt types in the new tests. After 20 generations, the insects' resistance to the most widely used commercial version of Bt had increased 300-fold, Johnson reported. Resistance to other types of Bt increased 20-fold to 100-fold.
