DONLEY BOYS GO TO DALLAS TO EXHIBIT STOCK

HAVE LARGEST EXHIBIT OF PIGS AT FAIR; WILL ALSO CARE FOR POULTRY

Five Donley county youths attended the State Fair of Texas at Dallas this week where they showed the pigs exhibited by the local Future Farmers of America.

The pigs were shown Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday. The group returned Thursday morning. Those attending were Joe Williams, Clyde Peabody, Horace Greene, Carl Morris and Ray Isham. Carl Morris showed a litter of eight Hampshires, Pete Morrow a litter of five Hampshires, Clyde Peabody a single Hampshire, Ray Isham a litter of six Polands, Horace Green a single Poland and Joe Williams a single Duroc Jersey.

The Donley county exhibit of pigs is the largest and one of the best at the fair. Recognition of the group has come from fair officials and visitors from all parts of the state.

While in Dallas, the boys will also care for the Donley county booth and the poultry being shown by the Clarendon F. F. A. members.

The poultry exhibit won several first prizes. Carl Morris was awarded first on his Wyandotte pullet and young cockerel and on his three White Giants, Russell Morris of Ashtola won first for the finest White Orpington pullets. These awards mark a high point in the Donley poultry exhibits of fine birds.

American Legion To Meet At Canyon Thursday, Oct. 25

Another one of the monthly meetings of the 18th District of the American Legion will be held next Tuesday, Oct. 25, at 7:30 p. m., with Palo Duro Post No. 97 at Canyon, as hosts.

These meetings are held each month and all members of the American Legion are urged to attend. The last meeting was held at Tulsa, with over 200 present.

The Canyon Post is planning one of the best meetings that has been held within the district for next Tuesday night.

The commander of the local American Legion Post urges everyone that can attend to be present at this meeting. The final report on the veteran's hospital to be built in Amarillo will be given. Lou Roberts, past district commander and present district membership chairman will complete plans for the mammoth American Legion membership drive which will be carried on during American Legion Week, November 4 to 13, inclusive.

An outline of program at the two-day district convention to be held in Borger, November 19 and 20, will be given by the convention city committee.

Part of the program next Tuesday night at Canyon includes a big feed, music by the Canyon American Legion band and numerous other entertaining features. At this meeting will be an auxiliary meeting, presided over by Mrs. John Devers, 18th District Auxiliary president of Memphis.

Largest Group On Record Attends F. F. A. Meeting

The largest attendance ever recorded by the local F. F. A. chapter was present Tuesday, October 11, when 50 paid members attended the second regular meeting of the year in the chapter room at 7:30.

During the business session, October 25, was set as the opening date for the boxing tournament. Maschil Cole was appointed as chairman to arrange the bouts of the F. F. A. members. The initiation committee reported that plans for the initiation on the night of October 24, were almost completed.

Plans for cooperative buying and mixing of feed for the members feeding projects for the various shows were discussed.

A string band was organized. Games of dominoes, checkers, ping pong, horseshoes and marbles were enjoyed before the group adjourned.

Miss Elizabeth Halliday left Wednesday night for her home in Beaumont for an extended visit with Miss Berkely Ryan.

This week and next an organized effort will be made to secure from people in town the names and addresses of all their friends and relatives who are ex-students of Clarendon College. A house-to-house canvass will be made by the committee. They plan to have pennants and flags and all manner of green and white decorations placed in the most conspicuous places.

LIONS CLUB ENJOYS LADIES NIGHT AND BIRTHDAY DINNER

JUDGE HONTS, DALHART, DELIVERS INTERESTING ADDRESS TO GROUP

About seventy-five members of the Lions Club and their wives and guests enjoyed the Ladies' Night and Anniversary Celebration Tuesday night. The affair was held in the college dormitory in the Home Economics department.

President Patrick acted as toastmaster for the occasion. A trio composed of Mesdames J. H. Howze, E. D. Landreth, and J. F. Heath gave several delightful vocal numbers. They were accompanied by Mrs. Allen Bryan.

The main address of the evening was delivered by Deputy District Governor John Honts of Dalhart, who spoke on "Have You Got Rhythm?" Judge Honts' address was timely and very excellent. Judge Honts is a most eloquent speaker and his treatment of his subject was enthusiastically received by the group. Past District Governor Elmer Elliott of Dalart accompanied Judge Honts.

A delicious and appropriate dinner was served by the Home Economics class under the direction of Miss Barry. An evening of fellowship was thoroughly enjoyed by the Lions and their guests. This anniversary dinner was one of the highlights of the Lions' year.

Frances Grady and Jo Word spent the week-end in Canyon with Peggy Word.

Prospects For Best Show In History Seen At Present

At present, the prospects are that Donley county youths will have the best stock show in history next March. The largest number of pigs and calves ever fed are now being groomed for spring. About 35 calves are being fed now and at least ten more will soon be started by 4-H and F. F. A. members.

Boys in Donley feeding for the show are Darrell Bailey, Johnny Leathers, Floyd and Leland Lewis, Doyle Martin, Allen Hardin, Harley and Beryl Longan, Hershell Brinson, W. R. Pegram, Jr., Jelly McGowan, Risley, Cleo Russell, Joe Williams, L. B. Hartzog, Bobby Word, Cecil Hickman, Carl Morris, Joe Frank Heathington, J. H. Greene and J. D. Swift.

The swine production contest sponsored by the Swine Breeders Association has caused a great deal more interest in the pig feeding section than ever before. Twenty-five litters of pigs, totaling over two hundred pigs are now being fed. The breeds are evenly divided between Hampshires, Polands and Duroc Jerseys.

BRONCHOS TIE CYCLONES 6-6 FRIDAY NIGHT

FINISH SECOND CONFERENCE GAME WITH STANDING OF 750 PER CENT

In one of the hardest-fought games of their season the Clarendon Broncos fought the Memphis Cyclones to a 6 to 6 tie last Friday night in the Cyclone's new stadium.

Although Memphis was given the odds in the tilt, the locals played one of the best games of the season and gave promise of giving Wellington a real run-for-their-money tomorrow night when they meet on the local field.

The first quarter of the game was fairly evenly matched, neither team making more than ordinary progress, but in the second quarter, the Cyclones took the credit scoring in the first part with Lindsey running around right end. The Broncos retaliated in the third quarter when Allison, Broncho full back, plunged through the line for 16 yards to cross the stripe. Huffman's kick failed to be high enough only by inches.

The Broncos broke up the Cyclone passing attack by intercepting the first three thrown and made their own successful in gaining good yardage. Allison and Longan did the passing.

The Broncos stand at 750 per cent in the district, and their tilt Friday night with Wellington will wind up their conference games for the season.

Co. Agent Breedlove To Make Radio Talk Donley Farms Oct. 29

County Agent H. M. Breedlove will present a radio program over Station KGNC in Amarillo, Oct. 29, from 1 to 1:30 p. m. An exact program has not been completed, but the theme of the program will be Donley county agriculture. It will cover all the various phases of progress and experiments in this county.

Every week programs of this nature are presented by the county agents of the different Panhandle counties, telling of the agricultural conditions and work being done in their respective counties. Breedlove's address will be one of this series and will give a splendid opportunity for the agricultural work in Donley to be made known to the surrounding territory.

AGRICULTURAL STUDENTS TAKE PICTURES OF PROJECTS

Members of the Future Farmers of America are spending their time this week taking pictures of their projects. These pictures will be placed in the scrapbook. Those who are feeding pigs will take two pictures as they are required to put on in the report for the state swine production contest. In the scrapbook, each boy has a page for the record of his project.

Pampa Lions To Stage 15th Annual Carnival Oct. 27-29

There'll be live ducks and a live monkey in Pampa Oct. 28 and 29, and Top O' Texas citizens will try to throw rings around the necks of the ducks and hit the monkey as the Pampa Lions club stages its 15th annual carnival on the Santa Fe right-of-way on West Atchison street.

In addition to the attractions designated as duck ponds and chuck the monkey there will be a bingo stand, a stand for cigarette shooting, a souvenir stand, a hoop game and a clothes pin stand, and nine other attractions.

Preparations for the charity circus are progressing in good order, D. L. Parker, general chairman of the event, said Saturday. All of the prizes to be awarded have been received, and the 80x120 foot tent rented from a Waco concern will arrive in Pampa on Oct. 24, three days in advance of the carnival opening.

It's a Lions Club show from start to finish, put on by the Pampa Lions Club for the sole purpose of raising funds for the benefit of underprivileged children. This is a major project of the Lions Club. By use of these funds, children will have their eyes examined and treated, crippled children may be enabled to walk as other children, and needed medicines will be made available to these children who

Mercury Hits 37 And Locals Don Overcoats

Clarendon people were donning heavy coats and watching the thermometer Wednesday after the first norther of the fall season blew in Tuesday night.

According to Joe Goldston, government weather recorder, the mercury dropped to 37 last night and dispatches from the government weather bureau forecast frost for last night and tonight.

Stoves were being installed and main street was deserted except for the necessary pedestrians late yesterday afternoon.

It was believed that it did not frost last night, since no reports were received.

Laboratory Tests Electric Meters In Clarendon

Every consumer of electricity in Clarendon, either did during the last week or will during the next week, get a good-as-new night meter at his house, providing his present one is more than six months old.

This is part of the move made by the West Texas Utilities Co., to insure the amount of electricity consumed is recorded accurately, and that the customer is thereby protected.

Although this sounds like an unusually big job, the work is done rapidly, through the help of a portable meter laboratory, owned by the utilities company, according to Charles Lowrey, local manager.

The huge trailer which measures eight by twenty feet is accompanied by seven trained electrical men, which includes F. F. Campbell, foreman; L. D. Derryberry, Clark Gillham, A. H. Kuhlitz, Lee Halsey, Homer Pearce and Ralph Bernard all of Abilene.

Meter crews working from house to house, remove the present meters and install one already tested and approved by the Texas Bureau of Weights and Measurements.

At the laboratory the meter is torn down, cleaned and new jewels are put in. The testing is done on the new stroboscope test board, one of two in existence.

A master meter and a photo-electric cell are used in the testing. Of more than twenty thousand meters tested within the last year the utilities company have not received a complaint as to their service.

All meters installed will be checked at a later date by the Texas Bureau of Weights and Measurements to insure that they are still working.

Since considerable interest has been shown in the laboratory, Mr. Lowrey, Mr. Campbell and the crew have invited the public to visit the trailer during its stay in Clarendon. Visiting hours will be after 5 o'clock each evening.

Father of Local Man Is Buried At Bowie

W. T. Hays, Sr., 66, of Bowie, long-time newspaper editor and printer and father of W. T. Hays, Jr., advertising manager of The Clarendon News, was buried Monday at Bowie.

Mr. Hays had been in poor health for several years and suffered a paralytic stroke last Wednesday night.

W. T. Hays, Jr., left Clarendon last Thursday at noon, to attend the bedside of his father and returned early yesterday morning.

Mrs. O. W. Latson, had as guests over the last week-end, her daughter and granddaughter, Mrs. Bill Bentley and Nell of McLean.

might otherwise go handicapped through life, or possibly die if their ailments are not corrected in time. Every cent of the proceeds goes for this purpose. Not a single penny is for the benefit of the Lions Club, nor any individual connected with the club.

Not everything will cost those attending the carnival. For example, there's to be free entertainment on each of the three nights of the carnival, provided by a committee headed by Ken Bennett and John Sturgeon.

At the customary prices, hamburgers, hot dogs, coffee and soda pop will be sold at a stand at the carnival. Roy Bourland is chairman of the committee.

F. F. A. CHAPTER SPONSORS BOXING TOURNAMENT HERE

FIRST BOUTS TO BE OCT. 25; F. F. A. BOYS WILL BATTLE OTHERS

The annual boxing tournament sponsored by the Clarendon chapter of the Future Farmers of America will open Tuesday night, Oct. 25, at 1:30 p. m., at the College auditorium. Fifteen bouts will be fought each night at the tournament, each bout consisting of three one-minute rounds.

This year the tournament will be divided into two divisions. Members of the F. F. A. will form one division and all other students in Donley county will form the other group. The winners of each weight in each division will fight in the finals. All of the F. F. A. members who are physically fit will fight in the tournament and any other student in the county who desires to enter the tournament is encouraged to do so.

Various weight divisions will be made. Beginning with 88 pounds, weight will vary ten pounds. All boys weighing under 88 pounds will fight in one division. The other weights will be 88-98, 98-108, 108-118, 118-128, 128-138, 138-148, 148-158, 158-168, and 168-178. Gold medals will be presented to the winners of each division at the end of the tournament which will extend over a period of weeks.

A small admission charge will be made to the tournament to pay for the medals, and for a radio and additional games for the F. F. A. group and shop material for the agriculture department.

Clarendon Colts Defeat Mavericks

The Clarendon Colts, Junior High team, defeated the Amarillo Mavericks football team in a close game Tuesday afternoon here. The Colts scored in the third quarter when Raymond Johnson ran around end after the team had driven close to the goal line after receiving the kick-off. The pass for extra point from Smith to Thornberry was no good.

Both teams drove down near pay-dirt during every quarter, but could not get over. Johnson was the outstanding player both on offense and defense with Basil Kirtley also playing a good game. The Amarillo fullback was the chief offense player for the Mavericks. Although the game seemed a little slow at times, it was quite interesting and both teams gave a good account of themselves.

The Clarendon team used a double wing-back formation while the Mavericks used a single wing-back. Both teams were about evenly matched in size, although the Clarendon team was a little heavier and more experienced.

Sand-Blow . . Trees . . Watermelons (The Story of a Shelterbelt's Progress)

A farm that was blowing away in the spring of 1935 and which now grows watermelons in the protection of a field shelterbelt planting is pictured in a new bulletin of the Prairie States Forestry Project of the Forest Service, U. S. Department of Agriculture, entitled "Trees That Temper the Western Winds."

Not only is Ed Casey of Mitchell, South Dakota, growing and selling watermelons on a farm he once planned to abandon, but trees in his shelterbelt which were planted three years ago have grown to 20 feet tall and five inches in diameter since that time.

"Casey's results are typical of many that have been obtained throughout the states of North Dakota, Nebraska, Kansas, Oklahoma and the Texas Panhandle where shelters are being planted to protect crops and save topsoil," says the Forest Service. "Farmers in those states have been planting trees for generations but have often had difficulty in growing them because they were not familiar with the proper means, methods, and protection, and could not obtain the proper trees."

The Forest Service is growing all of its own trees, and estimates that it will have stock for planting an additional 6,000 miles of shelterbelts in 1939. It says that about eight and one-half acres of trees planted in the proper pattern will protect the average 160-acre farm.

Copies of the bulletin, "Trees That Temper the Western Winds" may be obtained free of charge while the supply lasts from the Prairie States Forestry Project, U. S. Forest Service, Lincoln, Nebraska, or the Forest Service, Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C.

300 FARMERS AT DONLEY COUNTY SHELTERBELT MEET

200 SIGNS ARE POSTED ON GAME PRESERVES; 100 MORE ARE BEING MADE

The meetings held recently over the county on the shelterbelt program soon to go into effect here were attended by about three hundred persons, County Agent H. M. Breedlove said this week. Much interest was shown in the shelterbelt and game preserve ideas, and the farmers were quite eager to cooperate with the officials in working out the plans for these programs.

Over two hundred game preserve signs have been posted over the county and one hundred more are being prepared this week. Under the new game preserve ruling, the producer is allowed to hunt on his land and to permit others to do so.

The work on the Donley county shelterbelt will be started very soon.

DAMAGE SUITS IN DISTRICT COURT THIS WEEK

SISSON CASE TAKES FIRST FOUR DAYS OF COURT

A damage suit filed against the Fort Worth & Denver Railway Co., by Grace Sisson took up the first four days of District Court this week and was still in progress today.

The suit was brought after a train on the Fort Worth & Denver hit a car at a crossing one and one-half miles west of Martin, fatally injuring J. W. Bozeman and his two grandsons, James Bozeman and James Williams.

The suit was first filed for the spring term of District Court but was postponed until this session.

The damages asked amount to $3,400, and two other cases from the same accident amounting to $610.50 and $20,000 brings the total to $24,010.50.

AGGIES ARE BUILDING SELF-FEEDERS FOR HOGS

Most of the agriculture students who are feeding hogs for a project this year will use self-feeders as a result of a building program now taking place in the class. Fourteen of the second-year members already have self-feeders of some sort. Fifteen of the first year class expect to build them soon.

Anyone who desires a self-feeder may have one built by the class free if he will provide the materials. Either the flat-sided or angle type will be built.

THE CONSUMER'S DOLLAR

A question which is often asked but seldom satisfactorily answered is: "Who gets the money we pay for food?" The farmer complains that he doesn't get enough of the consumer's dollar. The retail grocery and meat market complain that they don't make a fair profit on the fraction left in their hands after they have paid for the goods they sell.

The answer seems to be, according to the most recent study of the facts, that most of the consumer's dollar goes to the middleman who moves food products from the farm to the retail store. That includes, of course, the railroads or trucks which haul the farmer's produce over each stage of its journey, the costs of warehousing and of processing at various stages, and of all other business transactions required to bring foodstuffs to the place where the consumer finally gets them. This middleman's spread ranges from 52 cents for meats and 53 cents for dairy products to as high as 76 cents for bread and cereal products and 80 cents for canned goods. That the buyer of canned goods must pay five dollars for every dollar that the farmer gets seems exorbitant.

The big department store, the mail-order house, the chain-store company, and more recently the co-operatives, all represent efforts to avoid the high costs of our distribution system—to cut out, in part at least, the middleman. With each new type some of the less efficient of the older ones have been driven out of business. The earlier type have, nevertheless, persisted alongside the new.

Retailing and the distribution of goods are so highly competitive that the answer can only be that our complicated system does, after all, meet certain needs, that people will pay to satisfy them, and that, however large may seem the cost of getting goods from the producer to the consumer, that cost is paid primarily for services rendered and not for excessive profits.

The shortest route from producer to consumer, one which eliminates the largest proportion of middleman's tolls, should be the aim of business and the objective of all legislation affecting prices. The interest of the consumer is, or should be paramount to all other interests.—Kerrville Times.

HELPING ACCIDENT VICTIMS

At various times, safety advisors and physicians and other medical workers who have to do with accidents on the highways, have deplored the havoc worked by well-measuring persons attempting to succor accident victims. In most cases it is far better, they say, for the victims' ease and chances of recovery, to let them lie where they fell until the ambulance arrives or some person with medical experience can take charge.

Severe complications which aggravate the injuries of crash victims are often caused by efforts of bystanders to make sufferers comfortable. Especially is this true in cases of broken bones. The medical axiom, "Splint 'em where they lie," sums up a truth which is made known in grisly fashion to doctors, ambulance attendants and nurses who have had to attend the double victims of accidents and misguided kindness on the part of rescuers.

Of course, severe bleeding calls for immediate efforts to stop the flow by whatever person is the first on the scene. But, in all other cases, the best rule for would-be rescuers is to keep hands off and wait for somebody who knows what to do and how to do it.—Star-Telegram.

PEACE BETWEEN LABOR AND INDUSTRY

President Roosevelt was said to have recently intimated that business would have a clear track towards better times if industry and labor substituted friendly conferences for name calling and recrimination. The disclosure of this opinion did not necessarily mean that the President was preparing to act toward industrial peace, but the statement of his sentiments was conveyed without comment. Friends of Mr. Roosevelt said that the sooner labor and industry sat around the conference table and stopped hurling names at each other, the sooner the nation would see business make real progress.

As to the practical side of the current business situation, consumer demand seems to be under that for a year ago, but not so far down as some reports indicate. Bright spots in the economic picture were said to be more than seasonal increase in employment and the government's pump-priming program which will not reach its top in effectiveness until next spring. Thus, it is felt that the nation can look forward to pretty good business for the remainder of the year if prices are kept at a reasonable level. Mr. Roosevelt seems to favor holding to a policy that will keep prices on certain commodities from going too high, and trying to bolster prices on other commodities. Prices which need lifting, it was said, include those of cotton and wheat, which were said not meet the cost of production, and allow the farmer a profit.—Paducah Post.

NOBODY'S BUSINESS

By JULIAN CAPERS JR.

AUSTIN. — A definite loosening of the rigid proration restrictions which have governed production of oil in Texas for several years was anticipated by observers here this week, as they awaited issuance of the November proration order following the longest and most hectic proration hearing in many months, held last Saturday. Insiders predicted the order, which may be issued before this report is in print, would do away with the Saturday and Sunday shutdowns entirely, and authorize a daily average production slightly under the Bureau of Mines estimate for November, which was 1,370,000 barrels daily.

EAST-WEST TEXAS BATTLE

Questions by Chairman Ernest Thompson asked as the battle raged between East Texas operators, who favor more liberal allowances, and West and North Texans, who favor continued low allowances, indicated that the chairman may have become convinced the stringent proration policy of the past has failed to do what it was intended to do, and a long-range policy of gradually loosening up restrictions may follow. Lon Smith and Jerry Sadler, the latter to take office as commissioner January 1, succeeding C. V. Terrell, are known to favor more liberal allowances, and close friends of Thompson believe he now leans to that view.

Testimony at the hearing indicated Texas has lost substantial oil markets to other states, and to foreign oil, but cutting down its production. The policy has been nullified by other states, many with little or no regulation, stepping up production of oil as Texas has cut down. Oil from Venezuela has poured in, and confiscated oil, produced from American and British properties seized without payment by the Mexican government, has proved the straw that broke the camel's back, pouring into Houston at cut prices.

MARKET BREAKS

The heavy shipments of Mexican oil, together with published hints from Governor Nominer W. Lee O'Daniel that he might seek a higher tax on oil to finance his pension program, broke the market and brought a 25-cent cut in all fields last week. Operators in the flush East Texas field, having seen that rigid proration has neither protected their market nor their price, and has resulted in "dumping" of foreign oil on American markets, were loud in their demand for relief. The operators of marginal and stripper wells in North and West Texas still are demanding protection, but their opponents claim there is no economic production from these small wells, at the expense of the huge East and South Texas oil reservoirs.

LIFE COMMISSIONER RAISED

High tribute to the service of Judge R. L. Daniel, of Victoria, serving his second term as life insurance commissioner of Texas, was paid last week by President Harry R. Wilson, of the American Life Convention at their Chicago convention. Terming Daniel "one of the ablest commissioners in the country, with a record unparalleled in the history of the insurance business," Wilson said: "He has been insurance commissioner of Texas twice and served with distinction both times. His good, hard common sense and his ability to say forcibly and clearly any thought in his mind, together with his capacity for hard work, has caused him to be placed on some of the most important committees of the Association of Insurance Commissioners and to be regarded as one of the ablest commissioners in the country. During the trying times of the depression he never lost his head and with unfailing wisdom guided the Texas companies through that troublesome era. He brought 39 chartered Texas legal reserve life companies under his supervision through the depression without loss of a single one—a record unparalleled in the history of the insurance business."

Friends of Daniel, including leading insurance executives, are vigorously seeking his reappointment as life insurance commissioner by Governor Nominer W. Lee O'Daniel. Judge Daniel's term expires next January.

HALL OF FAME NOTE

Here are the names of four Texas citizens which deserve to be engraved in the Hall of Fame and preserved for posterity. They are Benjamin Clayton, Mertildy

Clayton, Leah Thompson and Centie Cox. They live on a rural route at Cedar Creek, Texas. They wrote Governor Allred, and asked that their old age pensions stopped because they are now able to take care of themselves.

ADVERTISING PROGRAM

Lieut. Gov. Walter Woodul who this week is serving his 21st term as governor, while Governor Allred hunted elk in Colorado, and addressed a Church of Christ convention, will be an unpaid lobbyist at the January session, sponsoring again constitutional amendment to permit the state to conduct an advertising campaign for industrial development and tourist business. Woodul pushed his amendment through the last regular session in the Senate, but it died in the House. He believes the success of other advertising states guarantees a large share of prosperity for Texas if the voters will authorize expenditure of state funds to tell the story of the Lone Star state to the rest of the nation.

WATCH FARM BATTLE

Politicians here are watching carefully the battle between Texas Agriculture Commissioner J. E. McDonald and backers of the federal crop control program in Texas. Farmers generally are dissatisfied with the federal program, according to reports here, and McDonald, long an advocate of the domestic allotment plan, has been telling his story to large groups of cotton raisers throughout Texas. The possibility that McDonald may have further official ambitions for a higher office is not being overlooked.

Antionette Was Would-Be Movie Queen of Her Day

Tyrone Power and Norma Shearer in "Marie Antoinette"

Marie Antionette was the movie queen of her day. She set the styles in clothes and hair-dress. She had ambitions to be an actress. She never turned her head to the right, because the left was her best profile.

Today, Norma Shearer, the actress, is portraying Marie Antionette, the queen, who dreamed of being everything that the popular star represents.

These facts were revealed during filming of the spectacular new picture, currently showing on the Pastime screen.

The queen's theatrical performances were confined to the little theatre adjoining her Petit Trianon and were attended by princes and princesses of the court.

Louis XVI, always present at the theatricals, could never, according to reports, stay awake.

Parent-Teacher Congress Is To Convene in Lubbock

The annual state convention to be held at Lubbock this year will be in full swing this time next month. It will be the thirtieth annual conference and the meeting dates are November 15-17, with the Hotel Lubbock as official convention headquarters.

In view of the fact that this is election year and officers of the Texas Congress for the triennium, 1938-41, will be elected, it is predicted that the number of delegates coming to Lubbock from all parts of the state will exceed the official registration figures of any previous convention.

Mrs. J. E. Griegs of Amarillo, who is now state recording secretary, has been placed on the ballot for the office of first vice president. Mrs. Griegs has served as Eighth District president and for some years has been one of the most active leaders in the state.

"Parental Guests" is the convention theme. Presenting it in general session addresses before the delegate body will be three nationally known figures: Cameron Beck, lecturer and vocational and industrial relations consultant of the School of Business Practices and Speech, New York City; Mrs. John Hayes of Twin Falls, Idaho, first vice president of the National Congress of Parents and associate editor of the National Parent-Teacher, and W. Roy Breg, executive secretary of Allied Youth, Inc., Washington, D. C.

WOMEN GET TOO CLOSE TO FAMILIES, SAYS EDITOR

"AMERICAN mothers become too closely involved and too tightly wound up in the lives of their husbands and children," according to Mabel Search, editor of Pictorial Review.

"This is one of the major causes of marital and family unhappiness," said the editor. "Under these circumstances women lose their perspective. They get a 'disapproval complex.' They feel they have not done an ample job of bringing up their family. In other words their whole lives seem to become hopelessly complicated."

Mabel Search, noted woman editor

"This seems to be one of the most common difficulties in American life," says Miss Search. "Yet, for some reason, one sees very little printed about it. Probably the best portrayal of this complication that I have ever seen is in a story written by Alice Douglas Kelly and published as the lead story in the November Pictorial Review."

Miss Kelly's story, according to Miss Search, is a simple piece of fiction built around a woman who has managed to make a great success of complicating her existence. She has trouble with her children and her husband, and, like most women in real life, she might never have had an opportunity to get a new perspective. But a doctor told her, rather abruptly, that she had but a single year to live.

With but a year to live, things which before seemed vitally important faded to absolute unimportance. As a result, the pressure of criticism and disapproval was lifted from her family; and the year that was to be her last became a year of release for her and her family.

Quivering nerves can make you old and haggard looking, cranky and hard to live with—can keep you awake nights and rob you of good health, good times and jobs.

What you may need is a particularly good woman's tonic—and could you ask for anything whose benefits are better proved than famous Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound? Let its wholesome herbs and roots help Nature build up more physical resistance and thus help calm your shivering nerves, give more energy and make life worth living again. More than a million women have reported benefit—why not let Pinkham's Compound help YOU, too, to go "smiling through" trying times like it has other grateful women for the past 3 generations? Texas' roads make possible a carefree vacation in your own automobile down any direction you choose to travel. As you ride, make a note of the things for which available highway funds are being spent: broader, smoother roads; over- and under-passes for safety; direction signs; protection markers; beautified roadides; hardened shoulders; easier curves and even grades. SIDELIGHTS

By MARVIN JONES

Chairman, House Committee On Agriculture

In the current discussions of the farm bill many of the most desirable features have been overlooked. Some people have thoughtlessly urged that the measure be repealed. They overlook some worthwhile features of the bill which I do not believe any thinking person would want repealed. Among these are the following:

1. The freight rate provision, which authorizes the secretary of agriculture to file applications to correct the rank discrimination against agricultural products in the freight rate structure of the country. This has been one of the greatest burdens agriculture has suffered. I do not believe any thinking person actually interested in the success of the American farm would want this provision repealed.

2. The research provision, which provides for the establishment of laboratories in the different sections of the country and for the search for new markets, new outlets, and new forms of distribution for the various farm products that are produced. Surely no one wants this desirable feature repealed.

3. The export provision, which provides for 30 per cent of the tariff collections to be devoted to exporting farm commodities and to distributing these commodities and their products among the needy people in America. Surely no wise person would want this provision repealed.

4. The soil conservation provisions. Every man, woman and child in America is interested in the conservation and rebuilding of the soils. Some of the finest work that has been done in this generation has been in connection with the soil conservation provisions of the act. I do not see how anyone can object to this provision.

5. The loan provision, which is intended to prevent complete price collapse. Last year we produced the greatest cotton crop in history. We produced the greatest wheat crop since 1915. In 1932, with a smaller cotton crop than in 1937, cotton sold at 4c and 5c per pound. In 1932 with a smaller wheat crop than in 1937, wheat sold at 20c per bushel.

Low and unsatisfactory as prices are now, they are infinitely better than they were in 1932. In addition, the cotton and wheat farmers are receiving soil conservation payments. The cotton farmer is receiving a price adjustment payment, and the cotton and wheat farmers are to receive some additional parity payments.

If any cotton or wheat farmer will take his pencil and figure these payments and prices along side the 1932 tragedy, he will find how much better off he is with the present program than he would be with no program at all.

At the beginning of the 1938 cotton picking period there was a carryover of 13,000,000 bales—more than twice the annual consumption of cotton in the United States. Any program, any plan that may be offered must deal with this tremendous carryover.

Everyone familiar with the facts knew that the new farm act of 1938 was going into effect during the most difficult period that could be conceived. The tremendous surpluses that had been produced in our major crops complicated the problem to an extreme degree.

It seems to me that anyone sincerely interested in the success of the farm program should be willing to wait until there is a thorough try-out of the new measure or at least until one season has passed before beginning to sow the seeds of discord and to stir up dissatisfaction.

No one claims the new law is perfect. On the other hand, no fair man can deny that it has many desirable features. No man is wise enough to predict in advance just how it will work out. This much is certain: Anyone who is attacking it when the new season has just started is not making a contribution to the welfare of the farmer.

No doubt in the light of the experience, some changes will be found necessary. These changes can and should be made. Congress does not meet until January. By that time I am very sure any needed changes will be much nearer. In the meantime, I hope that all farmers and every sincere friend of agriculture will refrain from interfering to the end that the best possible results may be obtained.

Any act, for its success, depends upon three things:

1. The form of the law.
2. The character of administration.
3. The cooperation of those in whose interest it is enacted.

No law however perfect can be successful unless it is well administered. No law however perfect, even if well administered, can succeed unless the people who are affected are willing to cooperate. He does the farmer no service who lights the torch of intolerance and who undertakes to create dissatisfaction at the very time during the most critical part of the work is being done.

The agricultural program today is not a bill. It is a movement, and the bills are but various steps in that movement.

It involves credits. We have the lowest farm interest rates that have ever prevailed in the history of this country.

It involves markets. We have a specific provision for widening the markets both at home and abroad.

It involves freight rates. We have provision for correcting the inequities in the freight rate structure.

It involves research and new uses. Provision has been made for work along these lines.

It involves the preservation of the soil. This is the heart of the present program.

It involves the handling of our vast surpluses which are sometimes produced within the borders of America. Provision is made in the act by which the farmers, under a two-thirds vote, can provide for regulating the disposal of excessive surpluses. At the same time it provides for widening of the markets and increasing the sale and distribution of these surpluses.

There are more than 200 commodities produced in America, involving some $9,000,000,000.00 in annual values. Any man who feels that he has a simple panacea that will fit the vast, intricate and complicated problem of the various farm commodities produced in this broad, big country, I believe has not thought the matter through.

I am sure that every true friend of the farmer is anxious to see the law improved as we go along. I am sure that by intelligent and cooperative effort great improvement can be made. This is the history of all great movements in America. I do not believe that the solution of this age-old problem can be achieved or even materially contributed to by extreme attacks and bitter personalities. I am sure that if all those who have a simple heart interest in the success of the greatest of all American busi-

Why You Should Patronize News Advertisers!

We believe that the proper course of action for residents of this section to take is to read The News ads carefully each week, then go and make their purchases from the listing contained in these ads.

News Advertisers are the ones to trade with because:

The fact that they advertise shows they are progressive and wide-awake business houses—the kind that will have the latest merchandise, and will give you the best service.

They are proud of their merchandise and their prices, otherwise they would not publish them for everyone to read. Their prices are likely to be in line with good business, and in all probability will be quite low, quality considered.

They are the leaders in prices. They set prices after careful and business-like consideration. Others may copy them, but the ones who make the prices are the ones who deserve your patronage.

They are most likely to be community builders; because as a general rule, those who advertise are the ones who are of the most good to their town and section.

They are making an effort to sell you, which should be rewarded with business. The man who pushes his business should be favored over the one who sits back and waits for business to come in.

So, as a favor to yourself, and to your community, trade at home and world and had very interesting the program at the regular meeting of the 1926 Book Club at the home of Mrs. Allen Bryan Tuesday afternoon. Miss Temple Harris reviewed the book, "American Doctor's Odyssey," by Heiser. Miss Harris gave a vivid and entertaining resume of the book. Mrs. Sammie Stewart sang a vocal solo.

REVIEW OF BEST-SELLER GIVEN AT BOOK CLUB

A short business meeting preceded the program.

Mrs. Edith Ballew was assistant hostess. An ice course was served to Mesdames H. Leathers, Porter of Tulsa, Everett Clark, Rayburn Smith, and Miss Nettie Sims, guests; Mesdames Florine Woods Dewey Clifford, Jennie Lowry, Mary Allensworth, Thelma Bairfield, Evadne Cox, Edith Mahyer, Delene Bagby, Alta Lane, Alma Landreth, Lena Morris, Jennie Dale Porter, Laura Penick, Cleotia Ray, Mary Thornberry and Dorothy White, members.

PATHFINDER CLUB HOLDS GARDEN PILGRIMAGE

The regular meeting of the Pathfinder Club Friday, Oct. 14, was in the form of a garden pilgrimage honoring the members of the Garden Club.

The members and guests met at the home of Mrs. Mollie Gray where they inspected the gardens of Mrs. Gray and Mrs. Stricklin, noting among other things, the fig trees. The next stop was at the home of Mrs. Joe Goldston, where the rockwork and many lovely flowers were enjoyed. The group then proceeded to the home of Mrs. Sella Gentry and Mrs. George A. Ryan. They also viewed the yards of Mrs. Meredith Gentry and Mrs. P. B. Gentry.

The business session and program were held in the out-door living room of Mrs. Gentry. Mrs. B. L. Jenkins, president, presided over the business meeting and Mrs. Fred Rathpen led the following program:

Roll call; Something of interest seen on the pilgrimage.

"Favorite flowers of the White House," Mrs. Drennan.

"Diary of a Plain Dirt Digger," Mrs. Kennedy.

Song, "In the Garden of My Heart," Mrs. Landreth, accompanied by Mrs. McMurtry.

Mrs. Rathpen closed the program with "A Sure Recipe to Make Women Beautiful," bringing out the thought that when women are working in their gardens with nature they come in closer contact with God.

The hostesses, Mrs. Gentry, Mrs. J. L. McMurtry and Mrs. Goldston served appropriate refreshments to fifteen guests and twenty-five members.

New Teaching Method Feature

An echo of the gay nineties is heard in the streamlined educational system of today. The old-fashioned stereoscope, which occupied a place of honor on grandmother's parlor table, is staging a come back in the public schools. Keeping pace with the trend toward visual education, school officials find that three-inches views of Texas shrines add interest and realism to the study of history. Use of the views will be demonstrated at the state department of education exhibit at the State Fair of Texas. In the picture, Miss Margaret Carnes, teacher at Ben Wheeler, Van Zandt county, appears to be sharing the enjoyment of her pupil, Margaret Stephens.

CHARLES HAROLD RUDDELL WEDS PHYLLIS POPE

The marriage of Miss Phyllis Pope to Mr. Charles Harold Rudell took place Saturday at noon in Fort Worth at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. James M. Pope.

The bride's brother, Mr. Marshall Pope, sang, "At Dawning" and "All For You," accompanied by Mrs. Charles M. Kella, Jr., of Dallas, who played "Traumeri," and Schubert's "Serenade" during the ceremony and the Lohengrin and Mendelssohn Wedding Marches. White baskets of fern and white gladioli flanked an improvised altar which was arranged among three windows and was lighted by white tapers in tall candelabra. Rev. E. B. King read the ceremony.

Mr. Clifton Blackmon of Dallas was the bride's only attendant. She wore a copper slipper satin gown and carried a bouquet of chrysanthemums in copper and russet tones. Mr. David Vest was best man.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, wore a gown of heavy oreole slipper satin with flower clips at the neckline. Her shoulder veil fell from a velvet turban of varicolored material.

Following the ceremony, an informal reception was held. The lace covered table was centered by a three-tiered cake topped by a miniature bride couple.

The bride is a graduate of Arlington High School and Texas Christian University. She is a member of the Junior Woman's and Muirda Clubs. Mr. Rudell is a graduate of Clarendon College and a former student of T. C. U.

After a trip to San Antonio and Monterrey, Mexico, the couple will be at home in San Antonio. Mrs. Rudell traveled in a black costume suit with black accessories.

Among the out-of-town guests was the bridegroom's mother, Mrs. Loula Duddell of Clarendon and Dr. and Mrs. Porter Rudell of Dallas.

CHURCHES

CHURCH OF CHRIST

H. V. Crumley, Minister

There will be discussed, this Lord's Day, the greatest curse that ever beset man. This curse will dam one's soul in a devil's hell; it will ruin one's character in the eyes of God-fearing people; all this it will do if we allow it to take hold on us. The curse that will do this to mankind is sin. Hence our sermon subject will be: "Sin and Our Fight Against It." You are invited to hear this great lesson. Won't you come?

FIRST METHODIST CHURCH

E. D. Landreth, Pastor
Church school 8:45 to 10:45, with a place and a welcome for everyone. Morning worship at 10:50.

The pastor will preach at both services Sunday. At the morning service Rev. and Mrs. Landreth will sing a duet. There are only four Sundays until the annual conference which ends our church year. Let us swell the attendance and interest that we may make the most of these last few services.

FIRST PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH

Robt. S. McKee, pastor.

Contrary to previous announcement, there will be the usual preaching and services Sunday.

FIRST BAPTIST CHURCH

There Is Always Worship—Fellowship—Service

The world has yet to find a better and more constructive program for happy living than Christianity. The programs offered by the isms in the world today are negative, not positive; destructive, not constructive. They solve no problems, remove no perils, soothe no sorrows, inspire no hopes, kindle no ambitions lasting and worthwhile. Where we find the best homes, the highest moral standards, the purest womanhood, the best institutions the place where investments are safest, we find the influence of Christianity. Where we find the greatest amount of debauchery, licentiousness, immorality the most prolific wickedness, we find the effects of all kinds of isms and infidelity. This is the time of all times when the citizenship of Clarendon should be true the teachings of Christ regarding the rules of right living. Faithfulness to your church now may mean more than at any other time in your life. If you have to leave off some of your activities do not begin with your church. Others have found such a course to be disappointing and disastrous.

The evening preaching service will begin at 7:15. The Training Union at 6:30 p. m. We will be happy if you are helped by these services. Your presence always

LITTLE JIMMY'S NOTEBOOK

Prospecting, that is what the entire school, in fact the entire town is doing. Prospecting as to what next year's Broncho team will do. C. H. S. has prospects for the best team in several years. We congratulate the team as a whole and their coach upon their success. With most of this year's team returning next year we are looking for an even greater football year in 1939.

While going about the campus I often hear the question: "Who is going to be the next football queen?" Kitty Ruth Bailey! This writer has it from a usually reliable source that Kitty is ahead now and will continue to be ahead until the end. She of course, doesn't have the race cinched. Bring your votes for Kitty Ruth. Contest closes Friday at 3:42.

The college sweaters finally came. They are quite neat in appearance, white with green CJC under a Bulldog. Several of the students are making plans for ordering another type of sweater. They are to be a heavy wool in college green with white letters.

The college basketball team is looking very promising this year. Eleven boys are coming out at present and more have been urged to come out. You will remember that last year's CJC basketball team established quite a reputation for themselves by defeating Amarillo Jr. College. We are looking forward to much greater accomplishments this year. Mr. Drennan is at present their coach, but Mr. Penick will take over the job at Thanksgiving, just before their first game. Their prospective schedule includes: Amarillo Jr. College, West Texas Freshmen, Hardin Jr. College, and Wayland Jr. College. Gordon Williamson and Ralph Grady are the only return lettermen. The likely looking prospects for this year's team are Billy Cooke, Craig Johnson, Forrest Adamson, Joe Spradlin, Ray Palmer, Lawrence Heckman, Led Jay and Gene Butler.

Plans for the old college reunion are now in progress. There have not been any definite plans made as yet by the present Jr. College students. All students are expected to do their part in making this first reunion a success. Several invitations have been sent to ex-college students from surrounding towns. There are several students whose addresses are not known. Everyone is urged to send the names and addresses of the ex-college students to the committee in charge so that they may notify all ex's.

Come on students, let's help make Clarendon Junior College live up to its good old hospitality.

More New Books Added To Library

More new books are being added to the high school and college library. Several entertaining biographies are found among the new books this week.

Albert Bigelow Pain gives the colorful life story of a great American humorist in "The Boy's Life of Mark Twain."

Stephen Leacock tells the story of Charles Dickens simply and vividly in "Charles Dickens, His Life and Works."

The story, "The Boy's Life of Abraham Lincoln," by Helen Nicolay, is a vivid and inspiring narrative of the life of one of the greatest Americans.

The life of Florence Nightingale is told by Laura E. Richards, whose father had a great part in persuading Miss Nightingale to become a nurse. This story is told in "Florence Nightingale, the Angel of the Crimea."

The existence of Rudyard Kipling's auto-biography, "Something of Myself," was unknown until after his death, but no auto-biography is needed to remember Rudyard Kipling.

A copy of Helen Hunt Jackson's "Ramona" and George Eliot's "Adam Bede," are two new books of fiction.

"Chiyō's Return," by Chiyōno Kiyooka is one of the first books to give young people of America a true and understanding picture of Japan today.

Helen Gardner's "Art Through the Ages" and Mary Evans' "Costumes Throughout the Ages," will interest every one who likes art and design.

Maxwell Anderson, author of the Pulitzer prize play, "Both Your Horses," is the author of "Mary of Scotland."

A clear cut picture of New Orleans is portrayed by Grace King in "New Orleans, the People and the Place."

Ann Merriman Peck, author of "Young Germany," gives a new book based on her travels in "Young Mexico."

In "My Life As an Italian," J. W. Schultz strikingly describes Indian life and customs in their stark reality. So does Fredrick Starr in his book, "American Indians."

For everyone who is interested in books of this sort is "Evelyn's Diary."

The story of the boyhood of Sir Walter Scott is entertainingly told by Elizabeth Janet Gray in "Young Walter Scott."

Arnold Bennett's "The Old Wives' Tale," a Journal of Daniel DeFoe's Works," edited by Arthur Secord, and "The Journal of a Tour to the Hebrides With Samuel Johnson," by James Boswell are other new additions to the library.

Three new chemistry books have been received. "Soilless Growth of Plants," by Ellis and Swaney is the most important. "My America," by Louis Adamic is an amazing story by an immigrant, who makes his book auto-biography, history, sociology, economics, reporting, narrative, literature.

"Christmas Everywhere," is an interesting book by Elizabeth Cachist. It is a book of Christmas customs of many lands.

In the library are the most important periodicals bound up to date. There is also a splendidly bound copy of the Golden Anniversary Edition of the Amarillo News.

The first successful adding machine was sold in 1884.

ASSEMBLY

Assembly was held last Friday, the fourth period. For the opening were the songs: "The Spanish Cavalier," "Work, For the Night is coming," and "My Bonnie." Mr. Drennan then made some announcements concerning fire drills and the football game at Memphis. The program originally planned was not given, but Coach Hutto was called on to say a few words about the game. He said he was confident our team would win for several reasons. One of these was the fact that one of the best Memphis players was unable to play; however, this was overshadowed by the fact that the new stadium was to be dedicated and the Memphis football queen crowned. He also said that, although not a great ball club, the Clarendon team is improving from week to week.

Mr. Drennan made some more announcements, mainly concerning studying, or the lack of it. He said a number of the students are not studying as much as they should and he urged them to improve.

In closing, "Row, Row, Row," and "Let Me Call You Sweetheart" were sung, followed by yells for the Bronchos, led by the pep leaders.

Bronchos Tie Memphis 3-6 In Thrill Game

The Bronchos walloped Memphis for a 6 to 6 tie Friday night in the new stadium at Memphis. They played the best game that the fans have seen this year.

Memphis scored in the second quarter, but the try for the extra point was muffed by the charging Bronchos. When they got the ball the next time, they scooped up several yards, but were unable to score.

The way big Boyd Allison toted the pigskin over for our only counter was enough to thrill anyone. He also booted many long punts that put his team out of danger. Many critics were thrilled when he stood on the 35-yard line and kicked the ball clear over the goal line. Memphis never returned a punt for any yardage whatever.

Tiny Dempsey Robinson smacked Lindsey, outstanding Memphis back, and put his light over for a while. Dempsey stiffened his back and shattered the Memphis line like it was mush, and stopped many plays for a loss. Boyd Allison never failed to do his part in making steady yardage either. McWhorter, little guard, always stopped his man on offense and was the first Bronco through the line of defense.

Broncos, you are tied with two other teams for district champions and they aren't any better than you are. We, the fans, are doing our best for you, and we really want you to win. Train hard, play hard, and fight. And you can always win.

CHI DELTA CHI

Members of Chi Delta Chi met at the home of Miss Nell Cook Monday night, October 17, at 7:30 o'clock. After the president called the house to order, Miss Cook took charge. She read skits of several plays and then took a vote as to which one the club would like to present. "His Ozark Cousin" was finally decided upon. No definite date has been set for the play, but it is to be presented around Thanksgiving.

After the business meeting, delicious refreshments were served to the following: Ruby Tucker, Jo Wells, Thelma Tate, Dot Watson, Phoebe Ann Buntin, Frances Grady, Jo Word, Ethelyn Drennan, Anna Sue Williams, Ruth Cornell, Theresa Bain, Inell Biffle, Bob Wilson, Bill Cooke, Ray Palmer, Charlie Murphy, Jack Reeves, Jelly McGowan, Homer Speed, guests, Kathleen Ryan and Madalyn Taylor, and the hostess, Nell Cook.

The addressograph was invented in 1892.

Sentinels of Health

Don't Neglect Them!

Nature designed the kidneys to do a marvelous job. Their task is to keep the flowing blood stream free of an excess of toxic impurities. The act of living—life itself—is constantly producing waste matter the kidneys must remove from the blood if good health is to endure. When the kidneys fail to function as Nature intended, there is retention of waste that may cause body-wide distress. One may suffer nagging backache, persistent headache, attacks of dizziness, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes—feel tired, nervous, all worn out.

Frequent, scanty or burning passages may be further evidence of kidney or bladder disturbance. The recognized and proper treatment is a diuretic medicine to help the kidneys get rid of excess poisonous body waste. Use Doan's Pills. They have had more than forty years of public approval. Are endorsed by the country over. Insist on Doan's. Sold at all drug stores.

BRONCHOETTA BACK WITH A KURE FOR ALL KASES

Dear Bronchoetta:
Has that century old rivalry between Memphis and Clarendon changed from football to personal affairs?

Just Wondering:
All I know is what I hear from Dona Adams, Yvonne Smith, and several other gad-about. Sunday night almost proved fatal to four Memphis football heroes, but according to the information I received, Memphis isn't licked yet!

Dear Bronchoetta:
Will Billy Goodman ever learn the right answers?

A Disgusted Junior:
You know the saying, "miracles happen every day." However, a few days ago someone asked Billy the price of putty and he told them the length of nails! Here's one that will beat that. He thought Lord Baltimore was a movie star. It's a hopeless case. Know-It-All Etta.

Dear Bronchoetta:
Why is Thelma Hardin always so anxious for noon to come? Is it because she just gets in a hurry to eat, or is there a boy mixed up in this?

Anxious:
If I didn't know who "Anxious" was, I might just overlook this question. I happen to know that you are interested in Thelma, and I intend to help you all I can. You see there is a certain boy who eats at Mrs. McGowan's who may prove quite dangerous to you. Maybe you had better start eating with Thelma, and keep this "Romeo" away from her. You have one consolation; she has a rival who seems to be doing very well. Shall we hope the rival wins?

ENGINEERING CLASS PROGRESSES RAPIDLY

If you meet someone in the hall or on the stairs struggling under a load of boxes and boards, don't be surprised or alarmed, it is probably one of the engineering drawing students.

In writing about the courses we have in C. J. C., not much has been said in regard to engineering drawing. This three-hour course is the basis for art as well as engineering and is quite interesting. This is the third year it has been offered in C. J. C., and those who have taken it are finding it quite a help. This year an extra hour a week has been added to comply with the requirements of the University of Texas.

There is a bit of rivalry in the Junior High and South Ward News

South Ward
Miss Polk's first grade pupils are getting ready for Halloween. In the second grade, Miss Cross' pupils are making Indian rugs and Halloween spelling books, and Miss Steven's room is to have a fire prevention program at the P. T. A. The room recently visited the fire station.

The third grades are busy getting prepared for Halloween. The fourth and fifth grade boys played a game of football last week. The fourth grade won 8-6. Mrs. Penick's room gave a fire prevention program last Friday afternoon. All of Mrs. Penick's pupils wrote poems about fire. The following by Willis Kelly was the best:

Little Boy Blue didn't mind very well,
"Don't play with matches," his mother said.
"I'll just strike one, there's no one to tell,"
Now he's lying on on a hospital bed.

Junior High
The tables and chairs were placed in the library last Thursday and were used for the first time last Monday. They are being enjoyed very much by the three grades. The eighth grade sold the most tickets and were awarded a half holiday last Friday afternoon. The money made on the tickets will help very much in paying for the library furnishings.

THE SNOOPING OF A SNOOPY SNOOPER

Lalar Belle Wilkerson seemed to have a good time yelling with the pep squad Friday night, or could it have been something else.....?

Marjorie Beverly can certainly pick them good looking on Saturday nights.
Colle Huffman will have to get used to being around girls since he is to crown the Football Queen this year.

The pep squad girls say that they are going to have a stunt this week. We hope they carry out their plan.

A certain blonde co-ed was the cause of Dempsey Robinson coming back to school.
Mildred Phelps was seen quite frequently over the week-end with Elmer Joe.

class to see who can stay ahead of the others, but that only adds to the interest and inspires each one to do his best. The class is really making very good progress, and hopes to continue to do so.

OBSERVATIONS OF THE MASKED STUDENT

We wonder why Dorothy Jean Bogard likes to make dates and then break them.

Ethelyn Drennan likes to be called by her nick names.

Love is brewing on the campus again. The victims are Maggie Lee Davis and Weldon Warren.

Dorothea Riley thinks that it is her responsibility to get dates for the pep squad girls.

We wonder what Anna Sue Williams did to get rid of Bob Wilson. The other girls want her prescription.

It is rumored that Craig Johnson and Mary Elizabeth are the victims of a sweet love affair.

We would like to know if Neel Thompson is still trying to make a golf champion out of Thelma Tate.

Why does Dan Boston like to go to Memphis? Does he like the local color better?

Will Carl ever forget about Baritone? Or will Robbins let him?

How does Weldon like the Memphis Queen? He seems to know all about her.

It seems that Jo Ann Smith is having trouble yelling with the pep squad and talking to the boys at the same time.

At last Elizabeth Morrison has found her throb.

Exposure At Football Games Is Prevalent

AUSTIN, Oct. 11. — Gridiron fans should take a tip from football players this fall and protect themselves at games by keeping in good physical condition, the Texas State Department of Health advises.

"The nervous strain brought on by the Southwest's razzle-dazzle style of play, exposure to extreme climatic conditions for long hours in an open stadium and sudden changes in weather are particularly dangerous to football spectators who have been leading sedentary live indoors," Dr. Geo. W. Cox, state health officer, warned.

"The healthy person, like the athlete who adheres to strict training rules, won't be kept away from games because of illness. The spectator who keeps fit maintains his 'eligibility' throughout the season. But one who is careless with his health is apt to miss a few games or be out for the season with a cold, influenza or more serious illness. This is particularly true of the late fall games when the weather varies greatly from week to week.

Again using the players as an example, Doctor Cox urges fans to dress carefully for the games. It is a foolish gamble with ill health to wear heavy garments to opening games when the thermometer is hitting 99, no matter what fashion decrees. And late season games necessitate warm clothes and wraps, of course.

Doctor Cox also asks football fans to cooperate with the Department of Public Safety in driving carefully and to from football games. Congested week-end traffic and the probability that some drivers are over enthusiastic and careless, add to traffic hazards, and serious accidents.

Illuminating engineers have demonstrated that many kinds of household plants can be raised successfully under large electric lights where sunlight is not available.

Tucson, Arizona, had the first airport.

Strip Crops Check Erosion

Strips of close-growing crops such as Sudan grass or other sorghums alternated with strips of clean-tilled crops such as cotton, corn and beans, afford protection from both wind and water erosion, Soil Conservation Service technicians report. On this farm in one of the demonstration project areas Sudan grass, which resists erosion, is alternated with cotton, which does not resist erosion.

"Pete" "Goes to Town"

By T. C. RICHARDSON, Secretary Texas Breeder-Feeder Association

A while back, Walter Peterson of Justin, Texas, was asked by the local vocational teacher to tell the local F. F. A. class something about his experience. "Pete" has regularly topped the Christmas beef market in Fort Worth for a good many years, which is "going to town" in a big way. He and his brother raise Short-horns and feed them out on their own oats, corn, sorghums, etc., and cottonseed meal for which they swap their own cottonseed.

These figures are quoted from memory and may be exact, but are accurate enough for practical purposes. Pete read from his records without any oratorical frills, about as follows: For ten years he has fattened an average of seven-and-a-half calves per year, they weighed an average of 900 pounds, and sold for an average of ten cents, or $90 a head. Prices in that ten years ranged from as low as six to as high as 14 cents.

Several valuable points are implied if not expressed. First, Walter and his brother kept good cattle, raised good calves, and fattened some every year regardless of price. Second, fat cattle could always be sold for some price, carrying a great deal of grass and feed that either could not have been sold at all or would have sold cheaply at harvest time. Third, the price variation was as wide as even cotton or wheat, but they did not go in and out on its ups and downs. Result, as average for the ten years shows a good market for the feed they ate. Fourth, they are not big farmers or big feeders. A good many people think less than a carload of beef is too little to monkey with. The Peterson boys don't; a truck-load a year has brought them an average of about $675 more net than ten bales of cotton would have averaged for the same period.

Assuming that they had the average number and the average weight in the six-cent year, Pete had only $405 to show, or $54 a head. Doubtless he lost money according to a strict bookkeeping account; but he sold some feed and some time that would have otherwise brought nothing, and $405 is more than ten bales of cotton is bringing now. In the good year, however, his returns for the same weight in beef would have been $945, the equivalent of more than a dozen bales of cotton at 15 cents.

Many a Southwestern farm this year has enough feed to fatten from one to ten calves or yearlings, and it is more profitable to feed two or three right than to merely warm up a carload. Few will make the profits or get the prices the Petersons do, for they are old hands at the game and don't have to buy the calves to feed, but if Southwestern farmers whose cotton or wheat acreage has been reduced go into the raising and feeding of livestock and poultry with as much interest and stick to it with as much persistence as they have shown in planting cash crops regardless of price variations, they will find that feed crops properly used in a long-time rotation system pay as much per acre and per hour of time as cotton.

No expert in Washington or at the State College of Agriculture, much less the author of these periodical comments, is competent to set up a detailed program for any particular farm or farmer. But the principles of good farm management are universal, and in their final analysis may be reduced to intelligent and complete utilization of labor and land. Bulletins on farm organization and planning may be had on request from state colleges of agriculture and the U. S. D. A., and will be helpful, but at last the farmer himself, perhaps with the assistance of his county agent, vocational teacher, or the farm management specialist from his state extension service, must work out the reorganization of his farm right to the ground. It is not too late to begin.

Using Up the Feed Crop

Someone has described a well-managed industry as a sort of perpetual motion, in which the processes of production are continuous throughout the year. The factory which runs only a few months and stops its machinery, closes its doors, and lays off its labor for weeks or months at a time has to make higher profits for its operating time or go out of business. The farm which loafers between crop seasons is in the same boat of inefficiency.

With the exception of the subtropical portions of the Southwest, where marketing crops may be harvested the year round, there is only one way of providing profitable use for the available farm labor and keeping the farm factory running twelve months in the year, and that is by keeping livestock and poultry in connection with crop production. Livestock and poultry grow while the farmer sleeps, and use much that would be lost without them, while crops await the season. The only perpetual motion farm therefore is a balanced farm, where plants and animals work together in their natural relation, each supporting the other.

With a surplus of feed on hand above normal needs, a good many Southwestern farmers this year will have to decide the best use to make of it. There are plenty of pitfalls for anyone who undertakes a new enterprise without previous experience, and this is particularly true in "going into" the livestock or poultry business on a commercial scale right out of a cotton patch.

Notice that we said "going into," not "growing into" the business, for there is a vast difference. We Americans like to do things in a big way, and the temptation is great to start with a big herd of dairy cows, a large flock of sheep, a carload of beef cattle or hogs. Those who go in with a bang too often go out the same way, and then say the business is a failure.

With pastures and roughage, and a small amount of grain, raising dairy cattle from calf-hood to milk-cow age carries about as little risk for the beginner as any livestock enterprise. W. R. Hancock of Erath county tells of wintering 29 head of grade Jersey heifers on pasture, about two bales of hay per day, and a light ration of oats and cottonseed cake. They cost him an average of $10.50 and sold when fresh at $35 to $50.

If pastures are available for summer, and the operator intends to finish them the second fall and winter, beef calves may be wintered on cheap feed and pastures. It has been found that weight lost during winter on pastures alone costs a good deal more to gain it back than it would have cost to hold it by supplementing maintenance ration sufficiently to keep the animals gaining slightly.

If there is a great amount of grain to be sold the preference should go to fattening for slaughter, or feeding for heavy milk production or eggs. On the average farm, however, under average conditions, stock cattle or sheep are safer for the beginner than buying feeders and finishing them for the killing market. Bred ewes and heifers, fed and cared for through one winter, begin to pay off within a few months, and require less time and less technical knowledge of feeding than slaughter animals.

No conceivable farm legislation and no predictable set of circumstances promises to make cash-crop farming profitable again. Wise farmers are acting accordingly, to set up some combination of crop and livestock suitable to their particular circumstances, which will utilize their land and labor to a better advantage, and greater profit.

"Perpetual motion" on the farm is more easily attainable than in the factory, for life goes on without artificial power. The natural cycle of plant and animal life is the answer to "God's plan," as an East Texas Negro farmer calls it.

ODD JOBS FOR STUDENTS OF THE UNIVERSITY OF TEXAS

AUSTIN.—Odd jobs for 168 students and permanent part-time positions for 86 students were obtained by the new Student Employment Bureau of the University of Texas during the first month of its operation.

Supervised by Arno Norwotny, assistant dean of men at the university, the bureau was established September 1 to facilitate student employment. Permanent part-time work and odd jobs for men and women students are handled through the bureau offices, Austin employers using it as a medium to find capable and worthy students.

"Of the 10,079 students registered in the university, we estimate that 50 per cent need work of some kind in order to go to school," Norwotny said. "Only 688 have National Youth Administration jobs, and there are about 1,400 student applications left unemployed. Practically all of these have been transferred to our bureau. We find that most of our requests from students have been for room and board in return for unskilled labor."

A glance at the panorama of jobs found for students show that the bureau has placed a candid camera operator, a printer, and a pianist, and has supplied a vanilla factory and local veterinarian with student help.

EVERYDAY RELIGION

By C. E. BRYANT, JR.

(Once each month, this column will have a guest writer, selected from the ranks of Christian workers, principally laymen. The featured worker this month is R.

A. Springer, state leader of the Baptist laymen of Texas—C. E. B.)

What a Power!

By R. A. SPRINGER

I have just returned from a meeting of the Baptist laymen of Texas. Some 3,000 Christian men—leaders not only in church work but in the business world—were present and resolved that they would stand together for the advance of the cause of Christ. These men represented 150,000 men in Texas, part of a group of a million Baptist men in the South.

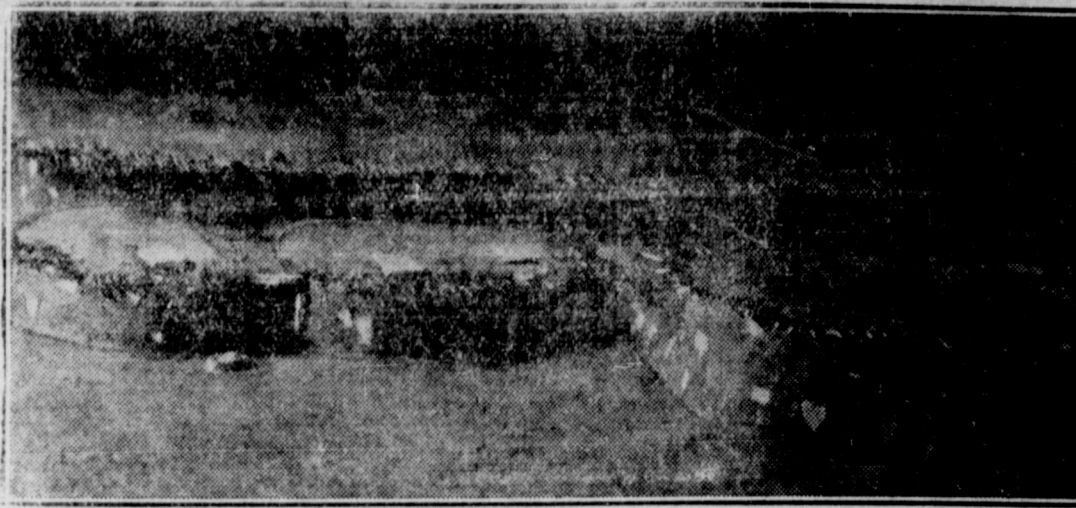

"The world has yet to see the power of a million men mobilized for Christ," one of the speakers said. Another followed with the statement that there was reason to believe that if this huge number of men had devoted their money and prayers for mission work around the globe there would not be the bloody conflict in Europe.

We at the conference were made to think of the immense power of any body of a million men with a common purpose. We thought still more of the million men united in a trust with Christ, for didn't he promise to guide these following His will?

David was a very small incapable lad in comparison with the giant Goliath. But David was fighting for God's cause, and, with His help, was stronger than the mighty giant. What couldn't a million men, each working for Christ's cause, do in winning the world to Christian ideals?

It is a marvelous picture in my imagination as I try to think of an earth in which all the nations are guided by Christian prin-

Abode of Panhandle Dwellers 600 Years Ago

The above photograph of a small portion of a new model in the Panhandle-Plains Historical Society museum at Canyon shows the type of houses used in this section by the Indian inhabitants of 600 years ago. The model is a restoration of the Panhandle Culture ruins on Antelope creek in southwest Hutchinson county.

Museum Models Panhandle Family Home In 1300

The average Panhandle family in 1300, A. D., may have had smoke in its eyes but it probably was quite proud of the architecture typical of that period—a kind of low flat communal structure built of abode and stone.

A restoration of the Panhandle culture ruins on Antelope creek in southwest Hutchinson county, 12 feet 6 inches long and built to scale, has been completed in the laboratory of the Panhandle-Plains Historical Society museum on the West Texas State College campus. It is the work of G. F. Sundstrom of San Antonio, who has given most of his life to such restorations. He is now with the museum here.

The model shows 27 ruins, all restored with the exception of the cross sections which reveal the interior arrangements. It is based on excavations made by WPA crews, who found well preserved rooms about 20 feet square, facing east on a flat hill overlooking Antelope creek. There were scattering houses down the hill but the model shows only the grouping at the top, where about 100 persons lived.

The skillfully made miniature shows thatched roofs, with the roof poles projecting from the covering of brush and abode. A smoke hole, well smoked, is in the center of each roof. Entrances in that day were low—only 2½ to 3 feet high and usually placed between low storage rooms built in front of the living rooms. The entrances were closed, in cold weather, by rock slabs and hide curtains.

The room floors show fire pits. In the actual ruins seven burials were noted beneath the floors. Burials under the living rooms were common before the coming of Coronado. The construction was nearly arrow and fire proof, and the location doubtless furnished an advantage for the defenders.

Outside but nearby are shown refuse heaps and storage crystals, the latter lined with rock.

The Indians who occupied the buildings were not unlike those living today, it is shown by the skeletons which were unearthed. They hunted the buffalo and other animals and also raised some corn and perhaps squash or other vegetables.

The restoration was made under the direction of C. Stuart Johnston, professor of geology and anthropology. A smaller model of the ruins has been constructed for the State Fair at Dallas. Valuable assistance in the projects has been given by Floyd V. Studer, Amarillo insurance man, who for many years has been locating and studying evidences of prehistoric life on the Plains.
