Immediate burial urged

Quake toll nears 2,000

GUATEMALA CITY (AP) — The government, fearing an epidemic, today urged Guatemalans to forego legalities and immediately bury the estimated 2,000 dead from Wednesday's earthquake.

Hundreds of thinly covered corpses were stacked in the streets and coffin-makers said they were running short of wood.

American tourists returning to Miami from Guatemala City said the quake felt like "we were going down a huge coffee grinder" and "like a huge train at full speed hit our room."

Residents of poor districts in the city said they had neither the time nor the means to bury their relatives as they sifted through the rubble of their shattered homes in search of the missing.

The streets were lined with personal goods stacked outside collapsed homes. In many houses only the front walls had fallen away, exposing the iteriors like doll houses.

The government declared a state of emergency and relief aid began to pour in from other Latin American countries and elsewhere.

"The 2,000 death figure is conservative," said Col. Manuel Angel Ponce, head of the Emergency Rescue Committee. "We think it may be higher. We are still receiving reports from the interior of the country."

Officials said at least another 3,000 were injured.

The U.S. Embassy reported no American casualties although it was the height of the tourist season. Several tourist hotels were damaged, but none collapsed.

The earthquake struck shortly after 3 a.m. Wednesday across 2,000 miles stretching from Mexico City south through the heart of Guatemala and into Honduras and El Salvador. The epicenter was located 30 miles southwest of Guatemala City.

Ambulance sirens screamed through the night and morning. Hospitals overflowed with the injured and the less seriously hurt spent the night in makeshift litters on the street.

Relief officials appealed for plasma, antibiotics and other medical supplies. The government also asked for tents, food, portable electric generators and earth-moving equipment to open roads.

President Kjell Eugenio Laugerud said about a tenth of the housing across Guatemala — mostly frail adobe construction — was destroyed. He said it would be at least 20 days before the rubble is cleared.

"As usual, it is the people with the least means that suffer the most in these tragedies," he said. Laugerud officially confirmed 800 dead and 3,000 injured, but he said the figures would climb far higher.

Guatemala City's population of 1.5 million spent the night in fear and discomfort as dozens of strong aftershocks collapsed shaky walls and sent up billows of dust that hung over the city as a chilly dawn broke. Many people slept in tents or under makeshift shelters made of bedsheets and pieces of plastic.

SURVIVORS — Residents gather in Guatemala City after they, but not their homes, survived a strong earthquake in the city Wednesday. Casualties numbered about 2,000.

May have skull fracture

Patty has X-ray

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Patricia Hearst had a skull X-ray shortly after dawn today in a defense effort to determine whether she suffered a hairline fracture when she was kidnaped two years ago.

Federal marshals confirmed she was taken from her San Mateo County jail cell before daybreak to an undisclosed location to undergo the medical examination that chief defense attorney F. Lee Bailey requested on Tuesday for possible use as evidence in her bank robbery trial.

Her lawyers refused "for security reasons" to comment on the examination until it was completed.

Bailey had told the jury during his opening statement on Wednesday that Miss Hearst was clouted "hard in the cheek with the butt of a rifle causing her a serious injury" on the night she was abducted by terrorists.

The X-ray was not expected to delay the opening of government testimony later today in the newspaper heiress' trial.

The prosecution planned to reconstruct the bank robbery that it says is symbolic of Miss Hearst's conversion to terrorism — the same holdup the defense portrays as her ultimate struggle for survival.

Jim Smith, manager of the Hibernia Bank held up by the Symbionese Liberation Army April 15, 1974, was lined up as the trial's first witness today. Miss Hearst held a submachine gun during the robbery.

A jury of seven women and five men was sworn in Wednesday and heard chief prosecutor James L. Browning Jr. describe the 21-year-old newspaper heiress as a willing and profane bandit.

Her chief defense counsel, F. Lee Bailey, in his opening statement, called the pale defendant "a prize pig" tortured by a convict self-taught in the rudiments of mind control and determined to have Miss Hearst branded an outlaw.

From the time of her Feb. 4, 1974, abduction until the bank robbery two months later, Bailey said, Miss Hearst was taunted daily by the SLA, told her family had abandoned her, that the authorities wanted her dead and that she had nowhere to go.

She was mentally and sexually tortured, he said, and was ordered to participate forcefully in the bank holdup or the SLA would "blow her to bits" if she "messed up."

She became convinced that cooperation with her captors was "her only means of survival" he said. So, she rushed into the bank with the others, was introduced as a revolutionary called "Tania" and helped the SLA speed off with $10,690.

"Miss Hearst was a prisoner of war for 20 months" until her capture in San Francisco last Sept. 18, Bailey said.

Bailey said SLA leader Donald "Cinque" DeFreeze studied mind control books while in prison and used the techniques he had learned on Miss Hearst.

Browning, in his opening argument, said he would offer testimony that Miss Hearst wielded her submachine gun with apparent sincerity and uttered obscenities as she ordered customers to the floor.

The jury also will hear tape recordings of Miss Hearst before and after the holdup in which she said she had joined the SLA, taken the name of Tania and freely participated in the crime.

Earlier Wednesday, the defense fought to have the tapes banned from the trial, but U.S. District Court Judge Oliver J. Carter denied the motion.

Udall slams Reagan and Wallace

By The Associated Press

Rep. Morris K. Udall, seeking the Democratic presidential nomination, today called Ronald Reagan and George Wallace "the twin horsemen of the radical right," who symbolize a threat to America's future.

Udall said the Alabama governor and the former California governor are fostering cynicism about self government and a suspicion of democracy itself. He said they should not be underestimated.

"They are well-financed, they are well-organized, they are well-publicized, they are clever and they are dangerous," Udall said in remarks prepared for a speech at Boston's Faneuil Hall.

He said Reagan and Wallace "are ruled by ambition — and ambition drives them to pander to keep prejudices, fears and resentments they can uncover or create. They are spearheading an assault on our common sense, our compassion and our confidence in democracy itself."

The Arizona congressman said it's the Republicans' business if they want to nominate Reagan.

"But George Wallace is my business — the business of the Democratic party and of the working people who are the backbone of our party," he said. "It's up to us to send Wallace a message. It needs to be sent four weeks from now in Massachusetts."

Both of Udall's targets were also in New England, campaigning for bouts on Feb. 24 in New Hampshire and March 2 in Vermont and Massachusetts.

In Warwick, R.I., Wallace, still showing strains from a campaign accident earlier in the week, told reporters he plans to run in Massachusetts and Rhode Island but that he doesn't expect to find much support because newspapers had painted an unfair picture of him.

Trial ends after 13 days

A 118th District Court jury today awarded nothing to any of the parties involved in the consolidated suit over the gas explosion at the Skelly Oil Co. plant.

The trial lasted 13 days.

District Judge Ralph W. Caton said it was the longest civil-suit jury trial he had been associated with in 25 years in the legal profession. He has been district judge for 16 years here.

Survivors of Byron Conway, who died after the accident, and three employes of Snyder Well Servicing Co. were involved in the suit.

Shades of 17th Century

Physicians asking officials to improve ambulance service

By JOHN EDWARDS

"You might as well decide to go along with the rest of the world and quit staying in the 17th century," the president of the Permian Basin Medical Society told city and county officials today.

A number of heart attack victims can be saved if they get treatment within 15 to 30 minutes of an attack, Dr. William Riley said.

Representatives of the Permian Basin Regional Planning Commission (PBRPC) and local physicians wanted local governments to improve the ambulance service here.

City and county representatives expressed concern about the cost.

"You're not the one sitting up here involved in taxes," County Judge Bill Tune told Dr. Riley. "And this is what we're talking about."

Riley said he would be willing to pay $4 or $5 more yearly in taxes for better emergency service.

The emergency medical system proposed would cost $185,000 to $196,000 yearly, Ernie Crawford, PBRPC executive director, said.

If the city and county do not participate in the federal program now, legislation later might force local governments to make improvements at totally local cost, Harley Reeves of the PBRPC said.

"We might be penny wise and pound foolish in passing up half an apple," Dr. Jim Cowan said referring to the federal grant available.

"We have a multi-million dollar medical establishment here now," Dr. C. B. Marcum said. "And we ought to have the best auxiliary equipment to go with it, and this includes this system."

Although Alert Ambulance attendants "do the best they can," Dr. Marcum said they are "poorly trained." Frequently, only one man runs an ambulance here, Dr. Marcum said, and ambulances are poorly equipped.

The length of time required for ambulance service is "prohibitive," Dr. Marcum said.

Judge Tune said a local doctor who has been here a number of years has never known a patient to die because of ambulance service.

"He (the doctor) doesn't know how sick he (the patient) was when he comes in DOA (dead on arrival)," Dr. Marcum responded.

A committee of city and county representatives was appointed to study the proposal with L. A. (Red) Hiltbrunner, owner of Alert Ambulance.

Gas bill opponents offer compromise

WASHINGTON (AP) — House opponents of a measure to lift government price controls from natural gas are offering a compromise proposal that would remove only small independent gas producers from government regulation.

Opponents of decontrol won consideration of the proposal Wednesday after a day-long debate on deregulation. The compromise offer is aimed at blunting the efforts of congressmen pushing for total decontrol of natural gas prices.

The compromise proposal, offered by Rep. Neil Smith, D-Iowa, would free some 3,500 independent producers from government price regulation if they do not turn their gas over to the major producers.

Under the proposal, 25 major producers would continue to be subject to government controls on the prices they could charge.

Opponents of deregulation hope the move to lift controls from small producers will draw votes away from an amendment by Rep. Bob Krueger, D-Tex., that would lift price controls from nearly all natural gas.

Smith's proposal to lift controls from small producers would affect those who produce less than one billion cubic feet of gas a year, provided that gas is sold in the interstate market.

It also sets a national average price on all sales of natural gas by the major producers in both the interstate and intrastate markets. This is considered by some decontrol supporters as tantamount to extending price regulation into the intrastate market, which now is unregulated.

Intrastate gas is that sold in the same state in which it is produced.

The national average price would be established only after the Federal Power Commission considered such factors as production costs, a reasonable rate of return on investment and added price incentives for more difficult drilling, such as deep wells.

Smith contended that under his proposal the prices that major producers would be able to charge for most gas would rise from about 35 cents per thousand cubic feet to more than $1. He said Krueger's deregulation amendment would increase these prices to between $1.75 and $3 per thousand cubic feet.

Cool and damp

Partly cloudy and cool, with a slight chance of showers tonight and Friday. The high today and Friday will be in the low 60s and the low tonight near freezing.

The world at-a-glance

Milk veto saves or costs?

WASHINGTON (AP) — White House officials claim President Ford's successful veto of a bill to increase federal price supports for milk saved grocery shoppers from sudden confrontation with higher prices for milk, cheese, butter and other dairy products. But backers of the bill say the veto may lead to higher prices because it could drive some dairymen out of business. The Senate voted 51 to 37 on Wednesday to sustain Ford's veto after the administration argued that the bill would have cost an estimated $1.38 billion in higher dairy prices over the next two years and some $539 million in U.S. price support payments.

Concorde trail still turbulent

WASHINGTON (AP) — Despite federal approval, the supersonic Concorde jet still must fly through the turbulence of court battles and attacks from Congress and local governments before carrying its first passengers to New York or Washington. The fast but noisy plane faces a particularly stiff battle in New York, where officials may veto the decision issued Wednesday by Transportation Secretary William T. Coleman allowing the Concorde to land at Kennedy International Airport, which is owned by the local Port Authority. The 1,400-mile-per-hour aircraft appears to have a better chance of eventually flying into Washington's Dulles International Airport, which is owned by the federal government.

Hostage child missing

DJIBOUTI, Afars and Issas Territory (AP) — One of the 30 children aboard a school bus held by Somali guerrillas for 36 hours was missing today, and the French government asked the government of Somalia to return him. French sharpshooters opened fire on the bus late Wednesday afternoon and killed the six guerrillas who had seized it Wednesday morning as the children were being taken to school. But one of the gunmen, before he was shot, got off a burst of automatic fire that killed a little French girl and wounded four other children, the bus driver and a woman social worker who had gone aboard to tend the children.

Plants could change weather

WASHINGTON (AP) — Proposed giant clusters of power plants may produce drastic changes in nearby weather, causing thunderstorms, whirlwinds, fog and increased rainfall, scientists say. Such energy centers would dissipate great amounts of waste heat into the atmosphere that could result in a variety of local weather changes, they say. The parks would generate 10 to 50 billion watts of electricity. The maximum amount of power currently now from a single site is about three billion watts.

Doctors end work slowdown

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Physicians protesting huge increases in their malpractice insurance premiums have ended a 35-day slowdown and say they'll go back to work as usual starting today. But the doctors warned that unless the state legislature acts quickly to resolve the problem, "next time everyone will go out." Late Wednesday, The United Physicans of California, which spearheaded the protest, voted to end the slowdown even though all major issues in the controversy remain unresolved.

KING OF THE COWBOYS — Roy Rogers gentles a bucking bronc in a scene from the film "Mackintosh and T. J."

Roy Rogers returns to West Texas

'Good Guy' still riding 'Happy Trails'

By JAMES WERRELL

Roy Rogers, king of the cowboys, now appears on the silver screen with a bit longer hair, a slightly larger midsection, and a little stiffer walk. But he still has the same craggy face, squinched-up eyes and smooth, even-toned voice.

After a 20 year absence from the movies, Roy still looks tall in the saddle in his new film, "Mackintosh and T.J.".

'GOOD GUY'

He is still the "good guy" who just barely avoids being a prude by today's standards. He reads the Bible while his fellow ranch hands play poker.

He orders coffee at the bar in town and shuns the cheesecake pin-ups gracing the walls of the bunk house. He is gentle with the ladies, and "does the jobs that need doing".

There are a few changes though. Roy now rides tall in the seat of an old pickup instead of Trigger's saddle. His fringed rawhide duds and white ten gallon Stetson have been replaced with faded jeans and a beat up straw hat.

He is also fighting age now as well as the guys in black hats, and he makes no bones about it. Unlike John Wayne in some of his recent movies, Roy manages to remain dignified. He is never embarrassing. As he puts it in the film, "time take the bite out of your vinegar, but you keep on trying."

OVER THE HILL

The movie, which had its world premiere in Lubbock and comes to the Cinema Theater in Big Spring Friday, revolves around the growth of friendship between the characters of the title.

Mackintosh (Rogers) is an over-the-hill, top cowhand, down on his luck and short of money. T.J. is a spunky, 14-year-old kid (well played by Clay O'Brien) who meets Mackintosh after being let out of a West Texas county jail where he spent the night for vagrancy.

After some chip-on-the-shoulder sparring with Mackintosh, T.J.'s respect for him grows. A father and son relationship soon develops between the parentless T.J. and Mackintosh, who lost his family in a car accident.

The two of them eventually get work on the Four 6s Ranch east of Lubbock, where most of the movie's action takes place.

FLAT AND DUSTY

The main reason for going to the movie is to see Roy Rogers back in action in his 89th feature and a realistic view of life in West Texas. The movie is filmed entirely on nearby locations and many of the real citizens from Texas towns appear in the movie.

The Four 6s Ranch is also an authentic working ranch. Many of its actual cowhands appear in the film.

The scenery is genuinely flat and dusty, minus the usual fake backdrops of snowcapped mountains, and pine forests.

There is also a fantastic bronc busting sequence midway through the film that is one of the best I have seen. The stunt man, stepping in for Roy, nearly broke his neck while filming the sequence and was later hospitalized, according to the film's producer.

The plot line of the movie, however, is pretty familiar and never develops much tension. Although some of the scenes between Mackintosh and T.J. are touching and funny, most of them have been done too many times before.

Roy, who is a good natural actor, never gets to play much more than the stereotyped, patron saint of stray kids.

Strangely enough, the movie is rated PG instead of G. Maybe some strong language and a sub-plot about a peeping tom explain the rating. It is all pretty tame, though.

The film had a press screening Tuesday, and its world premiere in Lubbock Thursday. The premiere was a black tie affair with patrons paying up to $50 for a ticket.

Roy Rogers was unable to attend the press screening because of an upper respiratory infection that sent him to bed. In his place, however, came his wife of 28 years and a celebrity in her own right, Dale Evans.

LOVES WEST TEXAS

During a luncheon at the Ranching Heritage Center of Texas Tech University, following the showing of the movie, Dale received a phone call from her husband. The call was broadcast to the audience and Roy apologized for being unable to attend.

He said that there may be other films in his future, and maybe even a sequel to "Mackintosh and T.J."

Dale discussed briefly her childhood in San Antonio and her lasting love of West Texas.

'IN OLD AMARILLO'

She also explained that Roy was very pleased with his emergence in the world of today's movies.

"It allows him to show a new dimension of himself as an actor, not just a personality," she said.

All in all, the afternoon with the Rogers' brought back memories. Walking out of the museum with walls covered in posters from such films as "In Old Amarillo" and "Under California Stars", you could almost hear strains of "happy trails to you, 'til we meet again..."

Randall seeking council position

KENNETH W. RANDALL

Kenneth W. Randall, director of cardio-pulmonary services at Malone and Hogan Hospital, has filed for Place Two on the city council.

Randall resides at 2402 Alabama with his wife Brenda and five-year-old daughter, Christie.

Randall says he would like for Big Spring to have progressive guidance from its government in order to provide all of today's needs and for the demands of the future. His interest in the council position, he adds, is derived from deep feelings which cultivate the use of progressive government action which benefits the citizenry as a whole — not separate factions.

Randall states that although past government has produced some benefits, the needs of the future, both in services and tax control will be more demanding. Needs have not been fulfilled in the areas of public health services, city beautification, recreational facilities, transportation and business growth, he adds.

According to Randall, this city vitally needs the development of emergency medical service and transportation at a minimum cost to the citizens.

Adequate mosquito control must be provided along with improved drainage of city areas, Randall contends. Strict enforcement of city regulations concerning loose dogs and cats must be provided, says Randall, particularly in view of the increasing instances of rabies in West Texas during the past few years.

Full utilization of the existing city-county health facility and its services must be encouraged, according to the candidate.

Many vacant lots as well as alleys are now filled with weeds and refuse, says Randall. These need to be cleaned up and maintained in order to minimize health and safety hazards and present the desired image to prospective citizens and businessmen, he adds.

As for recreational facilities, all of our citizens, especially the youth of our community, are in dire need of indoor and outdoor recreational facilities, Randall points out. By construction of facilities at the existing parks and the Comanche Lake, cost to the public could be minimized, he insists.

He also takes a stand on transportation. Our city government must now take an active role in providing adequate transportation services, Randall states. "We must provide a governmental and business climate conducive to the establishment of long term airline service and rail service. Both of these will become more important as business growth is stimulated," he says.

"Present intra-city transportation is inadequate. An in-depth study needs to be undertaken in order to determine specific needs and remedies, with special consideration being given to the needs of the aged."

Business growth must be given special emphasis in order to secure an improved economic level, states the candidate. "Since our unemployment rate is among the lowest in the nation, we must depend on new business to stimulate our local economy. As business growth is rising in West Texas, we must actively compete with other cities for the establishment of new business concerns," Randall suggests.

Randall feels that sound management principles should be applied to our city government in a professional manner in order to provide for the needs of all the people.

'Hirsutism' speech topic

Dr. Jose R. Beceiro, part-time physician on the VA Hospital staff and assistant professor with the Department of Medicine, Division of Endocrinology, at the Texas Tech University School of Medicine, Lubbock, will lecture at the VA Hospital on Friday, 2 p.m. in Room 219.

His topic will be "Hirsutism." All area physicians and medical personnel are welcome to attend.

Jewish worship services Friday

Jewish worship services will be held at Webb Air Force Base chapel at 8 p.m. Friday. Mr. Sol Cohn will conduct the services. The topic of his sermon will be "The Evolution of Christianity from Ancient Judaism." All persons interested in the subject are invited to attend.

To show armed services film

A film depicting the role of the Armed Forces has played in the history of the country, supplied by the Visual Aid Department of Webb AFB, will be screened for the benefit of American Business Club members at their luncheon Friday at the Settles Hotel.

Ambuc officers here report their plans for the organization of ABC chapter in Midland are progressing. Several members of the local club are planning to visit in Midland tonight, when ABC aims and objectives will be discussed at 7 o'clock meeting scheduled to be held in the Rodeway Inn there.

Paul Murphy recently was introduced as a new member of the local club.

School count down by 13

Schools showed an enrollment drop this week of 13 students including six at a secondary level.

Seven students were dropped at the high school, but Goliad Junior High gained one student.

There was a loss of seven at the elementary level with three each in Park Hill and Boydstun, a loss of two each in Washington, Lakeview and Kentwood and a loss of one at Airport and Cedar Crest.

Rain drops

Big Spring received .06 inch of rain Wednesday. Only the second rainfall for the city this year, total precipitation still registers under an inch at .07.

Court of honor held by Scout Troop 249

Boy Scout Troop 249 held a court of honor at their scout hut on Bell Street Wednesday night. The troop is sponsored by the West Side Community Center and the Kiwanis Club with many scouts receiving recognition.

Skill awards went to Edwin Mathews, citizenship in the community; Mark Sherman, cooking; Frankie Saiz, cooking, hiking and camping; Eric Sanchez, camping, citizenship and hiking; Hiram Garcia Jr., camping, citizenship and hiking; and Timothy Huff, camping, citizenship and hiking.

Merit badges went to Hiram Garcia Jr., fishing; Del Cantenell, fishing; Timothy Huff, fishing and scholarship and Mark Stephens, fishing and communications.

Certificates went to Mark Stephens, troop scribe; Hiram Garcia Jr., patrol leader of the Proros; Edwin Mathews, patrol leader of the Flaming Arros; and Mark Sherman, senior patrol leader.

New scouts joined the troop, including Danny Smithwick, David Rawls and Thomas Payne. Timothy Huff and Hiram Garcia Jr. advanced to the tenderfoot rank. All scout parents were present including Art Hyman, district scout executive and Roy Salome of KHEM. Troop 249 has as adult leaders, Richard Acuna and Hiram (Mando) Garcia.

Deaths

Roy Sapp

Roy Sapp, 64, Midland, died Monday in the VA Hospital here following an extended illness.

Services were held at 10 a.m., today in the Fairview Cemetery. A native of Ozona, where he was born June 9, 1911, Mr. Sapp was a retired cement worker.

Survivors include three brothers and four sisters.

Jose Garcia Jr.

Jose Antonio Garcia Jr., two-day-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Jose Garcia, Big Spring, died 9:05 p.m. Wednesday in a local hospital. Graveside services will be held 2 p.m. today at Mount Olive Memorial Park with the Rev. Leo J. F. St. John officiating.

Jose Garcia Jr. was born Feb. 2, 1976 and is survived by his parents; maternal grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Antonio Martinez, Ackerly; and paternal grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Willie S. Garcia, Big Spring.

WTCC tax issue survey released

By an overwhelming majority, members of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce feel that state government spending can be cut or held to a level that will not require new taxes from the next Texas legislature.

This opinion came from a recent mail survey on state affairs issues made among WTCC members. The results of that survey were released today by the WTCC.

The results of the state issue survey showed, by those responding, to be as follows:

(1) Do you feel state government spending can be cut and-or held to a level that will not require new taxes from the next legislature. Yes, 92 per cent; No, 7 per cent; No Opinion, 1 per cent.

(2) Do you feel that state employees should not be appointed to state advisory or policy making boards by the Governor? Yes, 80 per cent; No, 14 per cent; No Opinion, 6 per cent.

(3) Do you feel the local schools and higher education are doing an adequate job of teaching the benefits of our private free enterprise system over other forms of government? Yes, 40 per cent; No, 56 per cent; No Opinion, 4 per cent.

(4) Has the Texas Lobby Control Act intimidated and-or discouraged you from having your say about state government affairs? Yes, 39 per cent; No, 49 per cent; No Opinion, 12 per cent.

Nurse killed in shootout

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — A 26-year-male nurse was shot and killed Wednesday in an emergency treatment room where he was working by a patient who became upset, police said.

Immediately after the shooting, a policeman critically wounded the gunman in the doorway of the emergency treatment area where the nurse was fatally wounded.

The dead man was Steven Paul Lulenski of Austin, a native of University Heights, Ohio, who had been in Austin since 1966. He was a graduate of St. Edwards University who began working in the hospital while a student at the University of Texas School of Nursing.

Police Lt. Colon Jordan said a 36-year-old Manor man who was being treated in the emergency room at about 5 p.m. became upset and left the hospital without permission of the attending physician. Jordan said the man returned carrying a 20-gauge shotgun.

He entered the hospital's main entrance, returned to the emergency room and shot the nurse, who died about 40 minutes later of a massive wound to his left shoulder.

Justice of the Peace Jim McMurty, who assisted police at the investigation scene said, "The nurses who saw the man walking through the corridor were, of course, terrified. In at least one case, a nurse dived for cover."

McMurty identified the police officer who shot the man as Officer Greg D'Amore, who was in another part of the hospital when he heard a shotgun blast in the emergency area.

McMurty said D'Amore rounded the corner to find the gunman standing in the door holding a shotgun. The wounded man underwent emergency surgery for gunshot wounds to the arm, leg and side.

Police Chief Bob Miles said an inquiry would be held today.

No charges have been filed against the gunman.

Sunny winter creates grain, cattle crisis

By The Associated Press

Texans may be welcoming this year's relatively mild, sunny winter, but wheat and small grains farmers are watching their winter crops dry up and cattlemen are running critically short of drinking water and green grazing land for their stock.

Jack Jenkins, an economist at the Texas A&M Research Center at Renner, says cattlemen had to begin feeding cattle months earlier than usual this year because pastures are so poor, particularly in West and Central Texas.

John Jack Bowen, editor of "Water for Texas" says the dry spell may be the beginning of a major statewide drought. He says droughts seem to hit every 20 to 25 years.

The last major dry period in Texas ended in 1957 with 235 of the state's 254 counties declared disaster areas by the federal government.

Mrs. J.E. Pybas, who with her husband Jay has farmed four miles from the Red River in Cook County along the Oklahoma-Texas border, says the dryness is the worst she's seen. "The Red River's never been lower. It's not even red any more. It's clear."

And Skeet Fambro, who is the third generation of his family to raise cattle in Palo Pinto County south of Mineral Wells, says, "It's plenty dry. As dry as I've seen it in 50 years."

Fambro also said, "The stock tanks are getting low, but we're not desperate yet.'

Richard Douglas, a meteorologist with the National Weather Service in Fort Worth, said the dryness is spread across a wide area of the southern Great Plains, including parts of Colorado, Kansas and Oklahoma as well as Texas.

"The jet stream coming into our area from the northwest has been diverted," Douglas said. "Those strong winds whipping along at 20,000 to 30,000 feet are moving northwestward from the Rockies instead of southeastward."

Douglas said the Dallas-Fort Worth area got only .13 inches of rain in January. The normal January average is 1.8 inches. For the six months since August, the National Weather Service has recorded only 3.21 inches of rain. Normal rainfall for that period is 13.74 inches.

It is feared that the prolonged dry spell may be setting the stage for devasting erosion when spring winds begin. It happened in 1936 when the great black clouds of the "Dust Bowl" blew away fertile topsoil and the hopes of thousands farmers.

Continued dryness and heavy wind erosion could wipe out the winter wheat crop, and anyone who buys bread or white flour would feel the cost.

But because of last year's bumper wheat crop, no shortages are seen for the United States.

Bond election in Stanton

STANTON — Stanton voters will vote again Feb. 26 to decide the fate of a $125,000 bond issue for the refurbishment of Stanton city streets.

In a previous election, a $200,000 bond issue was defeated by the electorate. If this issue is approved, no paving will be done on the south side of the city.

The voting booth will be located in the Stanton City Hall and the polls will be open from 7 a.m., until 7 p.m. Mrs. Opal Jones and Mrs. Margaret Roueche will serve as election judge and alternate, respectively.

Thugs steal shotguns, rifles worth $4,000

COLORADO CITY — Twenty-five shotguns and rifles valued at upwards to $4,000 were taken in the burglary of Sparks Hardware Store here sometime before daylight Wednesday.

The intruders gained entry by breaking out the glass in the front door. The broken glass was spotted by R. T. Lopez, a street sweeper, who notified police about 5:22 a.m., Wednesday.

Bobby Sparks, owner of the firm, says that the burglars had first attempted to gain entry through the back door but were unable to break it open.

The firearms were secured to the wall by a chain but the robbers pried loose the ends of the chain, then took the chain as well as the guns.

JP West completes certification course

Bob West has completed the 40-hour justice of the peace certification course.

Southwest Texas State University sponsored the course. Attending the course at San Antonio were 55 justices of the peace.

They studied rules of evidence, bond settings, attorney general opinions, game laws, traffic laws, peace bonds, lawful arrest, search warrants, examining trials, and civil law.

Justice Charles Reynolds of the 7th Court of Civil Appeals instructed the group in civil procedure. George Gilkerson, a Lubbock lawyer, spoke about judicial ethics.

The course and yearly supplemental courses are required.

County Commissioners Court appointed West effective Oct. 1, 1975, justice of the peace of precinct one, place one. West is completing the unexpired term of Walter Grice.

QUALITY CHEKD®

He may be just the man

He has drawn some fire for being too thoroughly a political animal but that one-time West Texan, George Bush, may be just the man needed to direct the CIA.

Bush takes over at a time the agency is absorbing heavy fire from critics who reason the CIA has abused its power. Quite probably, it has.

Bush, no doubt, is more deeply involved than any director the CIA has ever had. His friends won't argue that point. Some of the career workers within the CIA are dubious of Bush's talents, for that reason.

There is the possibility, though, that Bush's political background, for which he is so roundly chastised, may be an asset to both him and the intelligence establishment.

Since its creation in the post-World War II cold war, the CIA has been headed by professionals — men trained and grown to maturity within the intelligence establishment. These men have virtually been born to a world of secrecy, anonmity and non-accountability. They operated, lived and died in a gray world very infrequently to the innermost secrets.

The club's inbreeding was perhaps its undoing. Insulating themselves from the outside, they also insulated themselves to the outside. Output from the establishment was proscribed and conversely input from the outside was proscribed. They believed themselves acting in the American interest though. Their view of the American interest was untempered by outside influence, at times leading to tunnel vision that blinded them to all except their own gray world.

The political nature of George Bush can perhaps change that. Bush, as a political animal, knows a political risk when he sees it. He has an intuitive grasp of what is acceptable, what is questionable and what is unforgiveable to the American psyche. Bush knows of the real world's potentialities and pitfalls, rather than just those at Langley.

The dangers of having the CIA used for political ends within the United States can be minimized if the CIA is confined to its statutory scope — affairs outside American boundaries.

Much the same as maintaining civilian control of the military, the CIA can benefit by having outside leadership — leadership that knows more of the world than the shadowy happenings in intelligence.

The appointment is also a challenge to Bush, to see if from chaos he can mold an agency that is effective and worthy of carrying our banner, an agency of which we can be proud and which other nations will respect, if not love.

George Bush as CIA director could prove to be one of President Ford's wiser appointments.

Problem needs attention

Corporate contributions to Texas politicians is something that could stand a lot of scrutiny.

It was revealed not long ago that Gulf Oil Corp. for more than a decade made secret cash payments to a variety of Texas officials — railroad commissioners, Supreme Court candidates, a governor, a candidate for attorney general. The revelations were made by a panel appointed by Gulf's own directors; the report they made is not a complete story. Some names are omitted, and of course the independent panel lacked subpoena powers and legal standing.

It seems highly likely that some violations of the law were involved in the Gulf payments. That means a cloud is once again over Texas government. Certainly it's too massive already to sweep under the rug.

The Texas secretary of state is charged with investigating supposed election law violations — such as illegal contributions. But the secretary of state is a gubernatorial appointee, and lacks the facilities and staff to do a thorough job in any case. What is called for is an extensive investigation and full public disclosure of the extent of corporate contributions — who gave them, who got them, and for how long.

It's a challenge for the attorney general, or perhaps a special investigation and prosecution team. If legislation is needed to get the ball rolling, then it's a fit subject for a special session.

Last laugh

William F. Buckley, Jr.

The domino theory, seen in retrospect, was really more of a metaphor than the term originally suggested. They used to say that if South Vietnam fell, so would Laos, and then Cambodia, and eventually Thailand; and, perhaps after an interval, Taiwan, and the Philippines. Cambodia and Laos are gone, of course; and Thailand is catapulted into a neutrality which will probably leave it looking something like Burma in a matter of time. But the domino theory's next victim, all this time our parochial gaze was focused on Indochina, is really Angolo.

There are very few individual pieces of real estate, viewed only as real estate, that the United States needs to defend in order to defend its own sovereignty. Most of what we have defended we have defended because of its symbolic value. The freedom of Berlin preeminently. Taiwan, and South Korea; and, even, Quemoy and Matsu.

THE CONGRESS of the United States has now taken a flat position on Angola. We are not going to defend Angola with American troops — that was always pretty clear. But we are not going to give any aid to Angola. Although President Ford, as commander-in-chief, has asked Congress for extensive aid to Angola, he will apparently be rebuffed. In the words of Senator Dick Clark, chairman of the relevant subcommittee, "No proposal of any kind of continuing American involvement is going to be accepted by a vast majority of Republicans or Democratic members of Congress."

I do not see the meaning of Senator Clark's flat statement unless it is this, that the Russian military is welcome to initiate aggression against any country in the world with which we do not have a mutual defense treaty. Angola if it wants to. Zaire — why not? South Africa — and more power to them.

Indeed the question arises whether our mutual defense treaties would really be sufficient to change the mind of Senator Clark. We had such a thing centered around the SEATO nations, and although never formally repealed, it is for all intents and purposes dead. The Democratic Party platform of 1972 proposed that we officially terminate our mutual defense treaty with Taiwan.

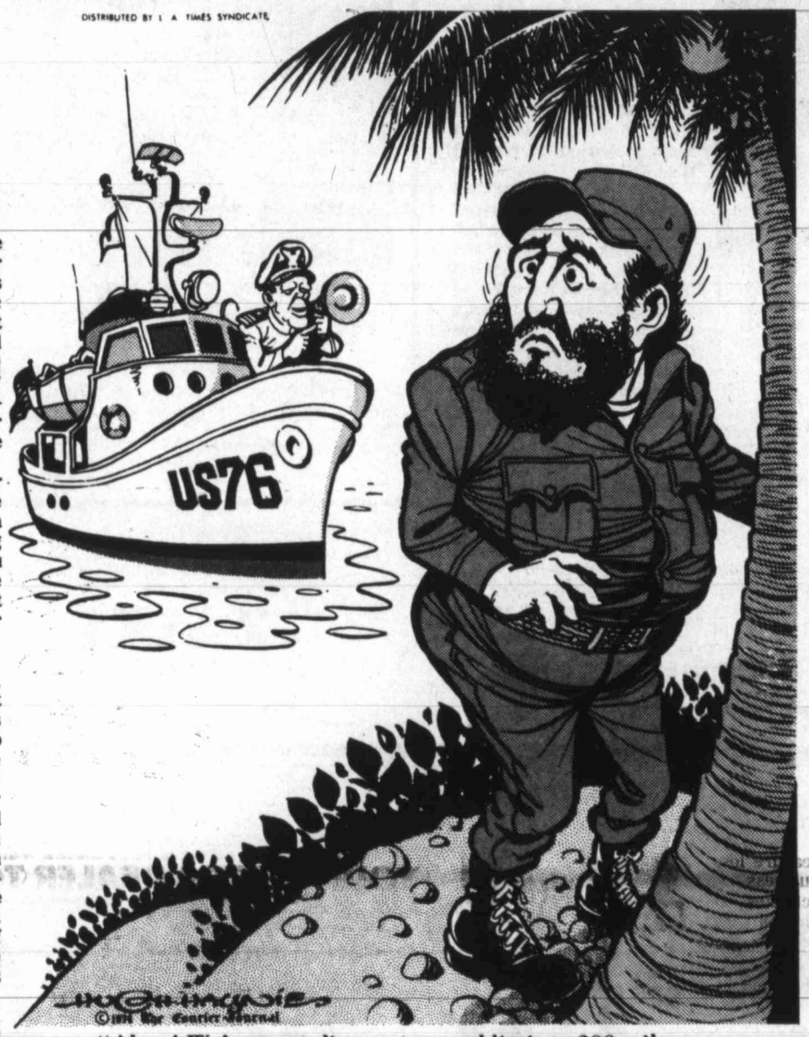

By what spirit are we guided? What would we do if the Communists, through the use of their agents in Italy, took control of the government there?

Perhaps the best caricature of our current mood was caught in the ceremony at the airport in Havana where Fidel Castro was saying goodbye to Prime Minister Trudeau and Mrs. Trudeau. When the photographer snapped the picture, it happened that Castro was bent over tying his shoe-lace.

AFTER READING the caption, the wonder is that Trudeau was not leaning over kissing Castro's behind. He chose, instead, to do so verbally. What he said about the toughest slavemaster in this hemisphere was that he is a leader of "world stature." What he said about Castro's sending Cuban combat troops to interfere in African affairs on the side of the Communists there, to seek to subjugate the country to the will of a Soviet dictator, was that "a great deal of thought and feeling for the situation" went into Castro's decision to send troops to Africa.

One wonders whether Mr. Trudeau would say that a great deal of thought and feeling had been put into a move by Fidel Castro if he sent troops to Quebec to liberate the people from Canada.

Trudeau's abject treatment of Castro is exactly in the spirit of those who salivated every time Hitler or Mussolini roared, and who now establish their manhood by going to horror movies about Nazi concentration camps. The domino theory, in a shrunken globe, foretold that the Trudeaus of this world would be bellicose in their treatment of America, and oleaginous in their treatment of Communist dictators, if we lost the war. Well, we lost it, and we are reaping the harvest. As, incidentally, are innocent Angolans.

"Ahoy! We're extending our coastal limit to 200 miles. I hope you don't mind moving your island."

My answer

Billy Graham

DEAR DR. GRAHAM: You have perfected your crusade techniques for helping people make a "decision for Christ," but I have a question. How can you tell people they can become Christians merely by "inviting Christ" into their hearts? I have never found that in the Bible. — S. H.

DEAR S. H.: I remember seeing a church bulletin board that read "All theology is just four words — Christ died for me." There is a lot of truth in this, for the heart of the gospel message is very simple. Theologians can spend a lifetime exploring the profound implications of our salvation, but the simplest child can enter Christ's kingdom by an act of faith.

When I ask people to believe, I am asking them to take the first step of a long journey. Conversion is the first step, and Christian growth represents the walk of the Christian throughout the rest of his life. When people come forward in a crusade, I tell them plainly that an act of faith means commitment to Jesus Christ. I feel a great responsibility when I give an invitation to make it clear that "inviting Christ into their hearts" means accepting Him as both Saviour and Lord of every area of our lives.

John 1:12 says, "But as many as received him (Christ), to them gave he power to become the sons of God, even to them that believe in his name." Dozens of other references provide this same assurance.

The truth is there

John Cunniff

NEW YORK (AP) — Many wise men have correctly observed that it isn't only the facts that are important in assessing the conditions of an economy but also the way in which the facts are interpreted. Up and down can be good or bad, you see, depending upon moods and attitudes that even economists with an understanding of politics and a degree in psychology sometime cannot properly evaluate.

Those who engage in stock market activities are aware of this phenomenon, even if they don't understand it. They have seen bleak despair magically evolved into uproarious enthusiasm while the facts remain little changed.

In one week, for example, the market might be weak, and commentators grimly described the economic events that justify a low estimate of the future. Gloom reinforces itself by being an ingredient of gloomy predictions.

A week goes by. The economic statistics change perhaps, but not totally. The attitude of investors might, however. Now, for reasons that lie in the study of mass psychology, the low prices represent buying opportunities.

In the good old American tradition of seeing in every obstacle a challenge, in every misfortune an opportunity, you can also find a bright side to almost every dark statistic.

Realize this and you understand one of the dynamics of economic change, as well as the possible irrationality of some markets at certain times, and the explanation of why economists can gather supporting data for almost any position under the sun.

"Dropsy' — water retention

Dr. G. C. Thosteson

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Would you please explain dropsy and its causes? — Mrs. M.E.H.

Today we call the condition "edema," the old name (dropsy) derives from the Greek "hydor," meaning water. The disorder was first known as "hydrops," from which comes the term "dropsy." Call it edema for simplicity.

By edema we usually mean abnormal accumulation of fluid in tissue spaces. There can be a variety of factors involved — malfunctjoning kidneys, a heart problem, cirrhosis of the liver, or something called "hypoproteinemia," a lowered concentration of blood proteins which changes the permeability of blood vessels, This latter allows excess fluids to escape into the tissues. Fluid accumulating in the abdomen is called ascites. This can occur from the above causes as well as from malignancy within the abdomen.

There can be localized swellings (caused by the fluid accumulations). Treatment often is with diuretics to increase elimination of the fluid through the kidneys.

There are so many causes and symptoms of this condition I cannot do much more than make these general comments about it. If you have any unexplained swellings it would be well to have a medical examination to trace the cause.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I have a fungus condition of both of my big toenails, and I've been told one must use both an external solution as well as take medicine internally. Can this disease definitely be cured?

What is generally used for this? Would an M.D. be able to prescribe for it, or would I have to see a foot doctor? Would there be any side effects in taking medicine internally for this? — Mrs. J.J.

First of all, you would have to be certain it is a fungal infection. There would be a chewed-up appearance and a thickening of the nails. Definite diagnosis can be made by scrapings taken from the affected nails.

The condition can be treated by either local application of fungicide or by use of griseofulvin, which must be prescribed. Griseofulvin can have side effects if used over a long period, and it is usually prescribed in cases where locally-applied medicines have no effect. It is an antibiotic which works especially well against fungus.

One more tale

Around the rim

Marj Carpenter

The average American housewife says thank goodness that the football season, which begins on television in August and extends into January, is over.

But I have to tell one more tale about the football season. This really happened in Big Spring. It was in a home where the wife knew nothing about football. All through the season, she suffered listening to all of the programs. Finally her husband hit his hand in his fist and went hopping around the house hollering "Sudden death, we've got a sudden death."

SHE SUDDENLY grew interested. She sat and watched the proceedings. When one team won, her husband jumped up from his chair and said, "We won. We won." The wife looked at the set.

She pointed to one of the opponents lying out on the field? "Is that the one they killed?" she asked sadly.

I notice that one of the candidates for office in the city pointed out that I didn't understand what he was talking about in a recent meeting. Well, he's right, that I'm just a country girl and when he got up and started trying to subtract 8,000 plus from 2,000 plus, I didn't understand it at all.

I thought maybe it was new math, but the mayor also pointed out that he didn't understand either. At that point, the figures were erased on the blackboard and we started all over.

I understand that often before elections, candidates like to use the news media for political addresses, so I tried to keep up. But, like I say, I'm a country girl and I hadn't gotten to see the city audit figures yet, since they haven't been released, so I was a little confused.

I do understand rate increases, because I'm a little bit poorer than the man who was doing the talking. I hate rate increases. But my old Daddy used to run a store and the man that was talking used to run a store.

Well in my old Daddy's store, when the wholesale price of the merchandise went up, he also put the retail price of the merchandise up. The wholesale price of water to the city just went up. I understand that. Well, we can't all be smart.

WE MAY all be wishing for football season again. It's going to be political season from now until November at a local and national level. We're going to have to dodge all of the mud and sort out the sincere from the angry.

My old Grandmammy used to say, "Beware of the fellow or fellows, who conducts his campaign on hate. Look out for the guy who simply hates somebody and wants to get rid of him and sets up a platform or 'If I am elected I will get rid of Johnny Jumpup.'"

Her theory was that a candidate full of hate would think about it so much that he would get a rut in his brain and couldn't get out of the rut to do anything worthwhile. She may have had something. From time to time through the years, I keep running across people with ruts in their brain. It usually gets me into trouble, because when you oppose those people with ruts in their brain, they almost always get upset.

Speaking of ruts and roads, I simply have to repeat a story told this week by Perry Culwell, who works at the Farm Bureau office ofn 4th Street where the CRMWD offices used to be.

He laughs when he tells it, but it might have been disastrous. A man from Snyder came into town and somehow turned west by the Wagon Wheel and headed up that one-way street going the wrong way.

Cars veered and wheeled and honked and carried on something terrible. Finally, the Snyder man managed to cut across all three lanes of traffic into the parking lot.

"Whew," he says, "Big Spring is sure growing. Traffic here is really awful."

EDITORIALS/OPINIONS

'Everyone CIA?'

Art Buchwald

WASHINGTON — In the early 1950s, thanks to Sen. Joseph McCarthy, the words "commie," "pinko" and "red" were bandied about so freely that no one could be sure where anybody stood. It was a period of blacklisting, blackballing and name-calling, the likes of which the country hadn't seen for a long time.

WE ARE NOW going into a new phase of paranoia and it has to do with the CIA hearings. Where once everyone was suspected of be ng either a member of the Communist Party or a "fellow traveler," now everyone is accusing everyone else of working for the CIA.

The recent unsubstantiated and reckless charge that both Walter Cronkite and John Chancellor were reporting to the CIA is an example of how this country can go ape when it wants to.

My interest in the matter is very personal. As a friend of both Cronkite and Chancellor I am afraid that I also will be accused of working for the Central Intelligence Agency through guilt by association.

I wish to say for the record that although I have been to Chancellor's house for dinner and have spent time on Martha's Vineyard with Cronkite, playing tennis with him, I have never passed on any secrets from the Russians to either of them.

IT ISN'T because they didn't try to get anything out of me. It was just that I was too smart to get caught in their web.

For example, I recall some time back seeing Chancellor at a party and he said to me, "What do you think of Ford going to Vladivostok?"

"Why do you ask?" I said suspiciously.

"I'm going with him."

"Why would you go with him?" I asked.

"Well, as anchorman of the NBC News show I think I should."

"What a beastiful cover," I thought to myself. Here was Chancellor going to Vladivostok ostensibly to cover President Ford's trip for NBC, when he probably was going to photograph the largest Soviet naval base in the Far East.

"I can't talk about Vladivostok," I said, not falling for his trap.

Later I heard Chancellor has told several people he thought I worked for the CIA because I wouldn't discuss Vladivostok with him.

I WENT to Tahiti a few years back with Cronkite and we visited Bora Bora, one of the most beautiful islands in the world.

One night I said to my wife, "Have you noticed how many pictures Walter's taking of the island?"

"What's wrong with that? Everyone's taking pictures. We'll probably never get to this place again."

"I know, but Walter's been taking them underwater."

"That's because he has an underwater camera."

"I wonder who gave it to him," I said.

When we got back to the United States I asked Walter if I could see his pictures and he said, "Something happened to my camera and most of them didn't come out."

The pieces started to fall into place, but I never said anything to anybody about it.

But I thought to myself, "Only the CIA would give someone a faulty underwater camera."

It isn't just Chancellor or Cronkite. I've had suspicions about many other people whose behavior has been very strange. For example, who put up the money for Howard Cosell's live TV show from New York? Why did Barbara Walters go to China with Mrs. Ford? Who told Sally Quinn to quit the CBS morning show? Why does Joe Namath always call a girl from a different telephone booth? Doesn't it seem more than a coincidence that Bob Hope didn't go to Vietnam this Christmas?

THESE ARE tough times for all of us. Just the other day my wife bought a tiny Kodak Instamatic camera, the day after she sat next to Bill Colby at a dinner party. She said she wanted it to take pictures of the children. Maybe so, but I've decided it wouldn't hurt to tap her telephone line. When you live in a world where anything is possible a husband can't be too careful.

Sheriff's job attracts 13

ODESSA — No fewer than 13 persons are candidates for the Ector County sheriff's position. Republican Elwood Hill, 47, the incumbent, announced recently he would not run again.

One of the candidates is A. M. (Slim) Gabrel, a one-time sheriff who was in office for 16 years. Gabrel now owns an army-navy-type surplus store.

The sheriff's job pays $18,600 a year.

Piggy banks, $500 stolen

A thief broke into the Albert Deanda home at 3700 Parkway Wednesday and stole three piggy banks.

The banks contained close to $500. The family had their daughter's flute stolen at Goliad Junior High earlier this month.

Nab juveniles in stolen car

A maroon Buick reported stolen at Lamesa at 8:51 a.m. today was recovered at 9:30 a.m. by State Trooper Bill Jennings of Big Spring.

The car, occupied by four juveniles, was stopped 14 miles east of Lamesa on a farm to market road after a high speed chase.

The juveniles were taken to Lamesa this morning by the state trooper and released to juvenile authorities there.

Ye Olde Pottery Shoppe opening celebrations

The grand-opening-day festivities for Ye Olde Pottery Shoppe at its new location, 502 Gregg, will take place from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. Saturday.

Refreshments will be offered, and prize drawings will take place every hour. At the end of the day, a grand prize drawing for a Signor oil painting and a macrame hanging will be made.

Neighboring shops, Curiosity Antiques and Wilma's Corner, will join in the opening day celebrations.

Those interested may register for prizes all this week and Saturday.

Ye Olde Pottery Shoppe offers a large selection of many kinds of pottery, stoneware, plants, macrame designs and kits, wrought iron ware, original art works and turquoise jewelry.

Thefts

Larry Greenfield reported two rifles with scopes and an automatic rifle stolen from his vehicle while parked at 204 Gregg. Value: $400.

Donald Owens, 1804 Hearn reported four wire hubcaps stolen off his vehicle.

Volunteers needed

Unwarranted fear slows blood gifts

If you are between 17 and 66, you can lend a helping hand to someone who may need it urgently.

This is the age span, Ginny Galan of the West Texas Blood Center at San Angelo, said is listed generally for blood donors, although older persons frequently are cleared by doctors to give blood.

The center, which operated a station Wednesdays from 12 noon to 6 p.m. at Malone-Hogan Hospital, furnishes blood at only actual cost of drawing, testing, etc., to 36 hospitals in this area. Big Spring uses around 100 to 150 units per month, and at the moment it normally lacks a little of getting as much blood as is needed.

The problem of obtaining enough donors is compounded by several factors, among them unwarranted fear of giving blood and medical background. Only about 17 persons out of every 100 are finally elegible as donors, but only 3 out of 100 actually do this.

In a few metropolitan centers, surgery has had to be postponed in some instances because of lack of blood. So far in the West Texas area served by the centers, this has not happened.

Ms. Galan said that the reception in Big Spring had been good, especially on emergencies. Three weeks ago, when an urgent appeal went out for 22 units of A negative blood, the response far exceeded the demand.

The critical need is for volunteers to give blood each week. This helps insure an ample supply for all hospitals, she pointed out. With her at the Downtown Lions meeting Wednesday at the Settles was Ray Perkins, director of the center. Dick Klein was program chairman. Joe Horton, president, announced a board meeting for Thursday evening when one of the topics may be blood center aid as a project.

Ex-Ackerly teacher to measure loss control in oil business

A former resident of the Big Spring area heads up a new engineering department, which United General Insurance Agency has established to measure loss control in the oil business.

The firm specializes in insurance for the oil industry, so they now offer a new engineering department staff as a consulting service available to their clients and to the industry as a whole on a fee basis.

Rick Poynor, who at one time taught science in Ackerly and later in Lamesa heads the staff.

He is a native of the Rankin area and a second cousin to Supt. J. F. Pynor of the Forsan Schools. He taught school at Ackerly from 1969-71 and in Lamesa after that, where he also served a stint as a Boy's Club director.

He received his B.S. degree from Tarleton State and later was associated with the safety department of Highlands Insurance Co. in Midland and was executive vice president of Safety Consultants, Inc. in Odessa.

Poynor also holds an all-lines adjusters license and has completed all prerequisite requirements for Certified Safety Professionals of America.

Possibility of retail skills workshop talked

The possibility of conducting a Professional Retail Operating Skills Workshop here was discussed at a meeting of the Chamber of Commerce's Economic Development Council held at noon Wednesday at the Rip Griffin Truck Terminal Restaurant here.

Such a workshop would be sponsored by the Texas Retail Federation and would extend for two days during the week of Feb. 15. Al Stephens chaired the meeting.

Bill Fryrear, superintendent of the U.S. Experiment Station, spoke to the group, giving facts concerning the proposed Sandyland Research Center here.

Fryrear said wind erosion contributes an estimated 77 million tons of particulate load to the atmosphere in a severe drought year, adding that only six scientists are conducting research on wind erosion problems in the entire country. Big Spring is the only field location in the Southern Plains where dryland soil research is conducted.

Fryrear revealed that a Department of Agriculture feasibility study conducted ten years ago concluded that there was a need to expand dryland research and that the research could scientifically and economically be conducted here.

Cong. Omar Burleson has recommended that Congress approve a $50,000 increase in fiscal year 1977 for agricutural research here.

Ron Mercer, executive vice president of Trans Regional Airlines, spoke briefly and urged the local Chamber to follow an example set by the City of Big Spring to file a letter of protest with the Texas Aeronautical Commission, protesting an application made by Chaparral Airlines to fly the same routes Trans Regional is seeking to fly.

Women guards feelings mixed

EL PASO, Tex. (AP) — Inmates at the medium security La Tuna Federal Correctional Institute have expressed mixed reactions to an announcement that women prison guards will begin work there this spring.

"Letting a woman in here is the biggest mistake they've ever made," said Fred Candelaria of El Paso, who has been in prison seven years on a 10-year term for extortion and possesion of a machine gun.

John Lietaert of Clovis, N.M. said, "I think it would work, but there are some who won't let it." He is serving a five-year term for cashing a forged money order.

"It don't make no difference to me," said a 26-year-old Missouri man who declined to give his name. He said he has been at La Tuna nine months for distributing narcotics.

"I figure a man would be harder on a man than a woman," the inmate said. But he added he doesn't think women guards would be effective "because you have men here and kids."

La Tuna Warden J.D. Riggsby said the women should begin duties at the prison within three or four months and will have the same jobs as their male counterparts. But he said the women will be college graduates while men guards have no educational qualifications to fulfill.

He said the decison to add women guards is in line with the Bureau of Prisons policy of "tapping a previously untapped" manpower service.

Riggsby said he sees no problems in the change and said women guards may improve the prisoners manners, grooming and attitudes. But the inmates do not agree.

Candelaria said, "They're trying to run this place like a nursery school. It ain't gonna help me serve my time. And it ain't gonna rehabilitate me."

Lietaert said women guards might be more understanding. "They are housewives and they bring up their families and this makes them more understanding. You can talk to them and you don't have to lie and be ashamed."

Lietaert also voiced worries about whistles and cat calls. "I've lived in dorms," he said. "I know what happens."

FORECAST FOR FRIDAY, FEB. 6, 1976

GENERAL TENDENCIES: Now you have a day when you are able to put in motion a new plan you have in mind that is expansive and requires a considerable amount of energy. Be conservative in promises.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Discuss a plan now with allies that will bring more mutual success. Take time for the social tonight and enjoy yourself.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Quietly meditate so that you know how to plan your future more intelligently. Be with the one you love and be happy.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Being with good friends and making the right plans for the future is wise today. A new contact can be very helpful now.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Talk over with higher-ups how you can become more influential and happier. Involve yourself in a civic venture.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Make those changes you have long thought about and you advance more quickly now. Avoid the temptation to overspend today.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Find the right system with which you can operate more successfully in the future. Have greater rapport with creditors.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Talk with associates and gain their ideas so that relationships can be better in the future. Strive for happiness.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) You have fine ideas for improving the quality of your work and should put them in operation quickly. Improve your health.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) A creative talent you have should be put to good use during your spare time. Engage in favorite hobby this evening.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) If you change your attitude at home, you find you can have more accord there. Avoid one who is a fair-weather friend.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) You are thinking very clearly now and will be able to get much accomplished. A flattering invitation may arrive today.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Concentrate upon how to have more of this world's goods by utilizing your finest talents. Consult a business expert.

Baseball report

New owners, good news...

SEATTLE (AP) — After an absence of six years, major league baseball is returning to the Pacific Northwest.

Radio executive Lester Smith and American League President Lee MacPhail held a press conference today to reveal details of the agreement to operate an expansion franchise here in 1977.

The league was represented here by the ill-fated Seattle Pilots during the 1969 season. The Pilots went bankrupt and were sold to Milwaukee interests, touching off a bitter legal dispute that expansion now is designed to quell.

American League owners formally voted to award the franchise to Smith on Monday. He will head a group that includes his business partner, entertainer Danny Kaye, and four others.

The Smith-Kaye combine tried and failed to buy the Chicago White Sox and the San Francisco Giants before hitting a lawsuit-assisted ownership home run on expansion.

Two conditions have been placed on the deal. First, the league wants to be sure that a satisfactory lease is signed for occupancy of the King County Domed Stadium, a $60 million structure conceived as a home for the Pilots and now nearing completion.

OWNERS ALSO want a lawsuit, seeking up to $32.5 million in trebled damages, dismissed in Superior Court at Everett. That suit was filed by the city, King County and the state because the Pilots were moved.

Trial of their claim that the league committed fraud, breach of contract and antitrust violations has been under way for more than three weeks.

The county and city must be convinced that expansion will occur before the suit will be dropped, officials have said. Steps in that direction will not be taken until legally binding agreements are signed, they have said.

...and bad news

NEW YORK (AP) — Will baseball's owners, with two strikes against them, come out swinging? Or will they give up their turn at bat so the real game can begin?

That's the predicament in which the sport finds itself today after the second of two umpires turned thumbs down on the owners and their interpretation of baseball's historic option clause.

On Wednesday in Kansas City, Judge John W. Oliver of U.S. District Cout upheld the Dec. 23 ruling by arbitrator Peter Seitz that pitchers Andy Messersmith and Dave McNally were free agents because they had played one year beyond their contractual commitments.

Seitz' ruling, which the owners sought unsuccessfully to overturn, struck down the ancient interpretation of the option clause that had kept a player with one team as long as that team desired. The new interpretation, which the owners insist would destroy the national pastime, says a player becomes a free agent, available to all 24 major league clubs after he exercises the option year of his contract.

THE OWNERS swung and missed against Seitz and didn't connect with Oliver, but another swing — an appeal of Oliver's decision — could jeopardize the 1976 baseball season.

The labor contract between the owners and the Major League Baseball Players Association expired Dec. 31. Negotiations have been under way but fruitless. The union says that the sides will get no closer to an agreement if the owners continue taking their case to court. The owners, meanwhile, have threatened a delay in spring training if there is no signed agreement by then.

"I don't like the idea of them constantly running to court," said Marvin Miller, executive director of the players association, who insists that collective bargaining and litigation just don't mix.

"What we have here is a labor relations problem and it can only be solved in one way — at the bargaining table," Miller said. "We have to negotiate a change."

Miller said the owners are listening to the advice of their lawyers who are not versed in labor relations and have steered a steady course in the direction of the courts.

John J. Gaherin, the owners' bargaining agent and their principal labor relations expert, says his preference is for a negotiated settlement but the owners have the right to take every legal avenue open to them.

CHIP SAVES PAR — Defending champion of the Bob Hope Desert Classic, Johnny Miller chips from back edge of the 10th hole of Indian Wells golf course Wednesday.

There is Hope for Nicklaus

PALM SPRINGS, Calif. (AP) — Jack Nicklaus sighed, happy and relieved.

"Now," he observed, "I can say my last round was a 69, not an 82."

Nicklaus wiped out the unpleasant memory of his career-high round with a three-under-par effort Wednesday that left him just two shots back of leaders Jim Colbert and Buddy Allin in the first round of the marathon Bob Hope Desert Golf Classic.

Nicklaus, considered the greatest player of his age, shot an incredible 82 in his last previous outing, two weeks ago in Pebble Beach, Calif.

Former Masters champion Charles Coody had a 68 despite chilly temperatures and winds that gusted to 40 miles an hour and trailed the two leaders by one shot after the first 18 holes of this unique, five-day, four-course, 90-hole tournament.

Nicklaus was tied at 69 with Australian David Graham, Rick Massengale, Bill Rogers and Bob Payne.

Nicklaus and Colbert played at Bermuda Dunes, one of four desert courses used for the first four rounds. Allin and Graham were at Indian Wells. Mason Rudolph, Mike Reasor and Gary McCord with 71s were the best at La Quinta. The 128 pros play one round on each par 72 layout before the final round Sunday at Indian Wells.

Defending champion Johnny Miller had a 71 and Arnold Palmer, a five-time winner here, shot 74, both at Bermuda Dunes.

Lee Trevino, Tom Watson and Ben Crenshaw, the winner of the last two tour events, are not competing.

OLYMPIC FLAME BURNS — The Olympic flame of 1976, right, and the old one of 1964 Winter Olympics burn in their trays after being ignited in Wednesday's opening ceremonies for the 12th Olympic Winter Games in Innsbruck's Bergisel Stadium.

Hawks vs. OC tonight at 8:00

After three games on the road the Howard College Hawks return home for a game with Odessa College tonight at the Hawk gym tipoff 8:00.

The Hawks play the three bottom teams in the Western Conference before finishing their schedule with four contenders. So far Howard's losses have all been against contending teams, and they can't afford to start losing to the bottom teams now.

The latest release from the National Junior College Athletic Association (NJCAA) shows Howard still leading the country in scoring, 104.7 points-per-game, but Hawk Marvin Johnson has dropped to second in the individual race. Johnson trails Cleveland Eugene of Luther College, in Teaneck, N. J., 34.6 to 33.1.

Johnson probably has total points locked up, no one is within 150 points of his 728 in the top 15 average scorers. Next highest is 568 by Tom Florentine of Oakton CC, Morton Grove, Ill.

XII Winter Olympic Games

U.S. wins first Nordic skiing medal

INNSBRUCK (AP)—Bill Koch, a 20-year-old cross country skier in his first Olympics, and Sheila Young, a 25-year-old multitalented speed skater from Detroit, gave the United States its first medals—both silver—and Americans placed three skiers in the top 15 of the downhill today at the 12th Winter Olympic Games.

Austrian ace Franz Klammer captured the downhill as expected, but Andy Mill of Aspen, Colo., with a sixth-place finish, led a creditable U.S. showing in the showcase event of the Alpine program as the Winter Games moved through their second day.

Koch, from Guilford, Vt., turned in the day's biggest surprise when he gave the U.S. its first medal ever in a Nordic skiing event. Koch followed Sergey Saveliev of the Soviet Union across the finish line in the 30-kilometer cross country event, clocking one hour, 30 minutes, 57.84 seconds as compared to Saveliev's 1:30:29.38.

"I felt fine right from the early morning," said a jubilant Koch. "I was up at six and had breakfast with cornflakes, pancakes and rolls. I knew I would go fine. There was no problem."

Koch failed to make the Olympics four years ago as a ski jumper but immediately set up a five-year timetable for himself and has skiied some 5,000 miles in preparation for these Games. "I drew up my own five-year plan in 1972 after I failed to qualify for the Olympic team. I never touched the jumping skis after that and decided to go all out for cross country skiing," he said.

"My five-year plan goes through 1978. By then I hope to be the best in the world. If I'm not the best then, I'll quit."

This was only the third 30-kilometer race for Koch and he was less than confident about winning a medal.

"Finishing as the second man across the finish line I did not dare to hope for a medal until all the others had finished," he said.

Third-place went to another Russian, Ivan Garanin, in 1:31;09.29.

The Soviet Union, with two gold medals and two bronze, took the early lead in the medals race. Austria, with one gold, was second and the U.S., with its two silvers, was third. Switzerland, with one silver, and Italy, with a bronze, were the only other countries to pick up medals.

Positions in the medal standings, which are kept unofficially, reflect only the number of golds a country wins.

Other American finishers in the cross country event were Tim Caldwell, 22, of Putney, Vt., 27th in 1:35:57.97; Chris Haines, 24, of Anchorage, Alaska, 52nd in 1:40:58.43, and Bela Bodnar, 23, also from Anchorage, 59th in 1:43:10.73.

Miss Young, a veteran of the last Winter Games at Sapporo as well as the last Summer Games at Munich as a cyclist, turned up for the Olympics by setting a world record at 500 meters last week: She was not expected to do well at the longer distances here, but she flashed around the 1,500-meter speed skating course in two minutes, 17.06 seconds to wind up second only to Galina Stepanskaya of the Soviet Union, who won the event in 2:16.58.

"It was a warmup for me," said Miss Young. "I consider the 500 my best race but I thought it would be good to scat another distance. I was psyched up. I didn't expect to do that well."

Miss Young announced earlier this week her engagement to James Ochowicz, an Olympic cyclist from Milwaukee. She also said this will probably be her last Olympics.

"I really plan on getting married and settling down," she said, "Maybe go to school."

World champion Tatiana Averina of the Soviet Union was third in 2:17.96. Leah Poulos of Northbrook, Ill., finished sixth in 2:19.11 and 18-year-old Cindy Seikkule of Minneapolis rounded out the American contingent in 2:24.06, finishing 18th out of a field of 26 skaters.

Miss Poulos, 24, saw her hopes for a medal end as she tired going into the final lap. "She just didn't have all her strength going into the last lap," said her father, Sam Poulos, one of a large contingent of Northbrook residents here. "But I am proud of her."

Klammer captured the prestigious downhill in a brilliant one minute, 45.73 seconds over the icy Alpine Patscherfokel trail. He flung his arms in the air when his winning time—which broke his own record on this run by 10 seconds—was announced.

"This is the happiest day of my life," said the 22-year-old Klammer, an idol in this ski-crazy country. "Nothing can compare with an Olympic victory. I am so happy.

"I had a lot of trouble along the whole course," he said. "I couldn't believe I had the best time. I thought I was going to crash all the way."

Defending Olympic champion Bernhard Russi of Switzerland was second in 1:46.06 and Herbert Plank of Italy was third in 1:46.59. Italian ace Gustavo Thoeni, considered to have the best chance to win all three Alpine events, finished a disappointing 26th in 1:49.25.

Mill, who injured a leg in a spill during a training run on Monday, was clocked in 1:47.06 in what must be considered an impressive showing for the young American Alpine team. "I was in agony all the way down because of the pain in my injured leg," said Mill. "I could hardly stand it. This was too bad because the course was good for me."

Mill packed his leg at the top of his boot with ice and snow about 20 minutes before the race to ease the pain. Just before the start, he replaced the snow and ice with a cardboard support.

"The snow made my leg as numb as possible and I gave it all I had."

Mill was one of three U.S. skiers in the top 15. Greg Jones, 21, of Tahoe City, Calif., was 11th in 1:47.84 and Pete Patterson, 19, of Sun Valley, Idaho was 13th in 1:47.94.

American Coach Hank Tauber hailed the outcome as the best American showing in the downhill since 1952. "It was an exceptional day for us," said Tauber. "We've always had guys falling, but this time I think we showed how far the United States has come."

"I didn't ski as well as I thought I would," said Jones, "but three out of the top 15—I think that's pretty good."

The only other American entered in the downhill was Karl Anderson of Greene, Maine, who came in 24th in 1:49.08.

In the single-seat luge competition, East Germany's Detlef Guenther has the best time after the second of four runs that make up the competition. Guenther's combined time was one minute, 44.488 seconds. East and West German athletes had a stranglehold on the event at the halfway mark with the first five places.

The East Germans were disqualified from luge competition in 1968 for heating the runners on their sleds. An anonymous letter circulated here earlier in the week accused them of doing the same thing this time around but, after heated protests from the East Germans, officials threatened criminal action against the letter writer.

The American team, underfinanced, undertrained and virtually unknown, was not expected to do well in the luge and it didn't. Jim Murray of Steamboat Springs, Colo., is the leading U.S. competitor thus far and he is 29th in 1:51.823. Richard Cavanaugh of Hermosa Beach, Calif., is 30th in 1:51.855 and Terrence O'Brien of Pease Air Force Base, N.H., is 32nd in 1:52.013.

In women's competition, Monika Scheftschik of West Germany led after two runs with a combined time of 1:25.595. Again, Germans filled out the first five places.

Kathy Homstad of Goleta, Calif., leads the U.S. contingent in 21st place at 1:31.157. She is followed by Maura Joe Haponski, Lake Placid, N.Y., 24th in 1:32.424, and Karen Roberts, Miles City, Mont., 25th in 1:32.508. Miss Roberts is Mrs. Homstad's sister.

Other events on todays' agenda included six Group B hockey games—the U.S. is in Group A—and preliminary competition in ice dancing and pairs figure skating.

DOWNHILL RACER — Peter Patterson, 19, of Sun Valley, Idaho, speeds down the Olympic course at Innsbruck Tuesday while preparing for Thursday's downhill ski competition at the Winter Olympic Games. His back broken once, his legs broken twice, he skis at 85 miles an hour down a madman's funnel, the Olympic downhill.

Going down at 85 mph

EDITORS NOTE: Peter Patterson competes in today's Olympic downhill race. In the following story, he and AP writer John Vinocur take you down the trail at 85 miles per hour.

By JOHN VINOCUR
Associated Press Writer

INNSBRUCK (AP) — One minute and 47 seconds with Peter Patterson: his lungs roaring, his back whining where it has been broken, his brain pinched into a white tunnel where there is only ice and the words "down" and "speed."

Hunkering into himself, slipping his skis back and forth to make his legs go loose, sucking air, and saying, "Relax, baby, relax and run." And then the start.

Patterson, from Sun Valley, Idaho, at 19, is one of four of America's downhill racers. His back broken once, his legs broken twice, he skis at 85 miles an hour down a madman's funnel, the Olympic downhill final. There is no greater sports event to measure a man's courage, cowardice or brainless refusal to accept danger.

Patterson is in the starting gate. The white chute opens up in front of him, the kind of place where 13 skiers have died in international competition since World War II. And then: "Trying to get myself calm and excited, trying to get really psyched out, trying to blow myself out the gate. To explode!"

Patterson sees the more than two miles of Innsbruck's Patscherkofel run in delineated segments: don't lean back here at 35 miles an hour, watch out there where the road runs across the track at 60 miles an hour, get down, get down, get down in the flat where the speed edges near 80.

"You've got to take it turn by turn," he says. "The top is really slow for a ways. You just concentrate on keeping good body position, keeping your line and staying on the good, hard snow so you don't slow down. You're only going 30 or 40 into the first flat, then it's 60 or 70 into the first curves. You start to bounce. There's no more time. The idea of thought is not a good description of what happens in your brain. You are just reacting totally, wanting to go faster, wanting to stay alive."

Five high-speed turns. Maybe 35 seconds gone on the big computerized clock at the bottom of the hill. All Patterson's weight thrust downhill, his body pitched forward like a man leaning out a window. Hoping the slipstream doesn't catch under his skis and send him screaming into the nets and haybales stretched in front of the tree line that only people watching television ever really see.

And then worse, 50 seconds gone on the clock, and what the skiers call a compression. A high bump and then a deep swelling, like a valley on the track, but taken so brutally fast that the racers who lose their nerve do it like a ski jumper: rising into the air instead of fighting down and into more speed.

"You know," Patterson says, "that's the place you could hang it up forever."

Two roads slap across the track. The skis hurtle into them, the racer trying to keep his body low. Blow the turn and you run into bumps. Six of them. More bouncing, more chattering, more time lost, if it's not done right. Then a 90-degree turn. Icy. A bummer. Driving into it, thigh muscles screaming.

More than a minute gone and close to the finish. "Not a fraction of a second to relax, to sit back in your head and say 'C'mon Pete,' or to get yourself up," Patterson says.

What's it all about, Alfie?

BIG STEP FOR USA — Bill Koch of Guilford, Vt., crosses the finish line to win the silver medal in the men's 30-kilometer cross-country ski race Thursday in the Winter Olympics.

FRED BREWER

Edward Bennet Williams, owner of the Washington Redskin, has a favorite line he tells everyone, "When George Allen came here I gave him an unlimited expense account—and George exceeded it."

What Williams doesn't mention as often is all the swag he used to lure Allen to the Redskins. A million dollar, long-term contract, with all those nice little extras top coaches get today, a new home, cars, insurance policies etc.

The new entry into the National Football League wars, Tampa went the same route to sign up John McKay. From the reports it sounds like they offered him everything in South Florida but the Miami Dolphins.

For years star players pulled down the big money while the coach lived on a second string tackle's salary. No More. Pro owners have finally realized — the name of the game in football is coaching.

There's a wide difference between a John Madden and a Tom Landry or a Bud Grant and a George Allen. In personality, appearance and actions that is, in one thing they are very similar — they win.

Most important, they win enough to reach the playoffs consistently. While winning the Super Bowl is every team's dream, making the playoffs keeps the fans coming ergo money.

Everyone depends on the coach. The players: not only do winning teams receive larger salaries but endorsements come fatter and quicker. The fans: for bragging rights, nobody feels too bad when his team reaches the playoffs. Even if they lose the first game they've outdone 18 other teams. And of course, the owners: making the playoffs can mean the diffference between a profit and a loss.

No coach would suggest he could win without the right players, but the point is certain coaches get the right players no matter what the circumstances.

Today, the coaches that have proved they have that ability are: Don Shula, of the Miami Dolphins; Tom Landry, of the Dallas Cowboys; Bud Grant, of the Minnesota Vikings; Chuck Noll, of the Pittsburgh Steelers, Allen and John Madden of the Oakland Raiders.

Chuck Knox, of the L. A. Rams and Don Coryell, of the St. Louis Cardinals, have almost been around long enough to put them in that category, but not quite. Paul Brown would be, of course, but he announced his retirement.

These coaches have dominated the playoffs since the NFL adopted the current championship playoff system. Shula, Landry, Grant, Noll, Allen and Madden have all taken their respective teams to four playoff births in the past five seasons. That doesn't leave many spots for the rest, and Brown, Knox and Coryell with two apiece have the lion's share of those.

Shula was a winner at Baltimore and then he took over an expansion team that hadn't been doing anything and won there also. He continues to win despite always receiving low draft picks, losing top aides to other teams and this year (10-4) losing top players to another league.

The amazing thing about the top coaches is — they all continue to win with low draft choices.

Landry has had ten winning seasons in succession; Grant eight of the last nine; Madden nine in succession; Allen ten (five with the Rams and five with Washington) and Noll four in a row.

Many owners are worried that teams with super coaches will dominate the scene for decades. When the emphasis was on players there was a big turnover every few years, but that hasn't been the case recently.

The Cleveland Browns never had a losing season under Paul Brown in twenty years. If Coryell and Knox prove to be for real, Pittsburgh, Dallas, Miami, Minnesota, Oakland, Los Angeles, Washington and St. Louis could dominate the playoffs for years to come.

Almost the same situation exists in college ball. No matter what year you want to cut it, the winningest coaches in the country were in bowls this season.

Paul Bear Bryant, Alabama (243-72-16)	Sugar Bowl
Woodie Hayes, Ohio State (213-63-8)	Rose Bowl
Darrell Royal, Texas (178-56-4)	Astro-BlueBonnet Bowl
Frank Kush, Ariz. State (151-39-1)	Fiesta Bowl
Frank Broyles, Arkansas (144-57-5)	Cotton Bowl
Bo Schembechler, Michigan (106-26-6)	Orange Bowl
Vince Dooley, Georgia (88-41-5)	Cotton Bowl
Doug Dickey, Florida (86-43-5)	Gator Bowl
Jerry Claiborne, Maryland (91-55-3)	Gator Bowl
Joe Paterno, Penn. State (94-18-1)	Sugar Bowl
Barry Switzer, Oklahoma (32-1-1)	Orange Bowl
Tom Osburn, Nebraska (28-7-1)	Fiesta Bowl

Johnny McKay, who led USC to the Liberty Bowl, takes a 126-40-8 record into pros. While the super coaches have shown they can move from place to place within their own milieu in one category it still remains to be seen if successful college coaches can make it big in the pros. If McKay can't cut it, owners will become leary about luring others from their ivy-covered walls.

On Jan. 11th one of my headlines read, "Weiskopf takes Tuscon lead". I received a note from Joe Pickle. "Congratulations," it said, "you misspelled both names."

Troy Bryant says the reason Oklahoma State adopted the name 'State' for A&M was, "The school felt it was too much for their students to be known as an Oakie and an Aggie at the same time."

Ex-Tech grad sues school

LUBBOCK — Greg Lowery, former Texas Tech basketball player, has sued the school for $783,000.

Co-defendants in the suit will be Gerald Myers, head basketball coach at Tech; Dr. Wallace Hess, team doctor; and Jim Juvenal, former team trainer of the Red Raiders.

Lowery is charging the defendants with negligence in treating injuries he says he suffered while playing for the Tech team.

Lowery still holds the school record for most points scored in a three-year career with 1,476. He claims he was injured in 1971, when he hurt an ankle.

Tech women doing it all this weekend

LUBBOCK — There will be a little bit of everything this weekend for Texas Tech's women athletes.

The basketball team opens the weekend hosting South Plains College at the Intramural Gym in a 7 p.m. non-zone bout on Thursday.

South Plains defeated the Raiders in earlier play, 71-58, and Tech will be trying for revenge.

Coach Susie Lynch, who was Big Spring's volleyball coach last year, plans to go with Carol Dudensing, Libby Keller, Jill Owens, Teri Dixon and Rhonda Askins as starters. Then Saturday at 3 p.m. the women will host Abilene Christian, traveling to McMurry on Monday.

Tennis coach Emilie Foster will have a tough battle Friday, taking on UT-Permian Basin in a dual match beginning at 1 p.m.

"UT-PB is probably in the top ten in the nation this year," said Foster. "They have very strong players."

Joneen Cummings, Seminole junior will play No. 1 for Tech. Playing behind her is junior Carla Weathersby from Odessa High, followed by Mame Bevers. Foster says No. 4 is still up for grabs with Sally Meyers, Stephanie Ketter and Laurie Hutson in the running.

Cummings-Bevers will play No. 1 doubles, with Weathersby and Meyers No. 2.

Tech swimmers also compete Friday in Tucson at the University of Arizona Invitational Meet.

"There will be more competition out there than at our state meet," said coach Millie Roberts. "There should be some really fast times and we should do well."

Besides Tech, Arizona State, national runner-up last year; Arizona, fifth nationally last year; and Colorado State, ranked in the top ten this year, will compete. Others are Brigham Young, New Mexico, Utah, Central Arizona, Junior College and several California schools.

The meet will go through Saturday.

Train crash kills four

WAUSEON, Ohio (AP) — Four crewmen were killed and two others injured today in the collision of two Penn Central freight trains near this northwest Ohio community, authorities said.

Penn Central officials said the trains should have been on separate tracks.

Authorities identified the dead as Eugene O. Fuller, Brooklyn, Mich.; Robert E. Green and P. E. Spray, both of Elkhart, Ind.; and W. H. Davis, Toledo, Ohio.

Three other crewmen in the rear of the trains escaped injury, said Howard Gilbert, a Penn Central spokesman.

Gilbert said the railroad operates parallel tracks at the accident site, a rural area about 35 miles west of Toledo, and the trains should have passed each other safely.

Rescue workers said two of the men killed were in the engine of the eastbound train and the other two in the westbound train's engine.

One of the injured was in the engine of the westbound train and apparently jumped out just before impact, Gilbert said. He said the other injured man was a conductor riding in the caboose of the eastbound train.

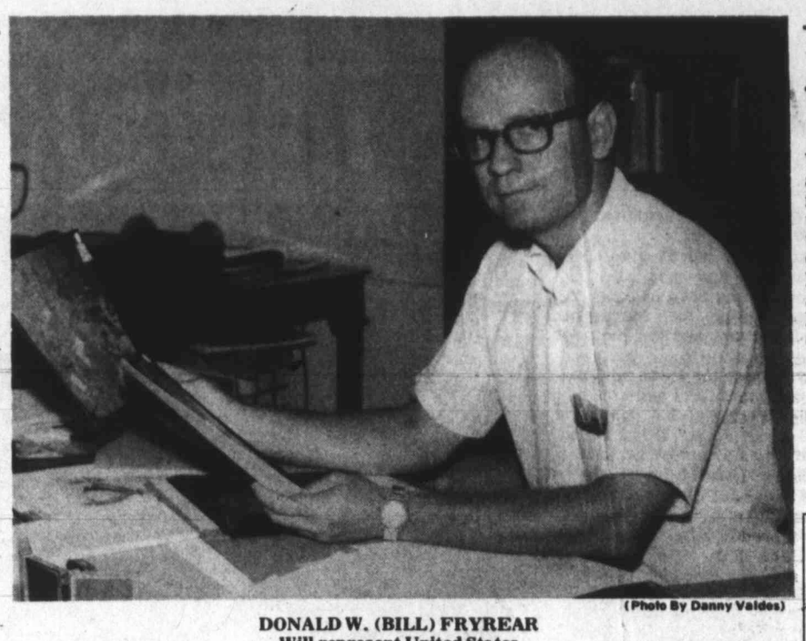

The injured men were admitted to the Fulton County Health Center at Wauseon. Authorities there said both were in fair condition.

Local authorities said fuel from the diesel engines exploded and burned immediately after the collision. The fires and wreckage reportedly hindered recovery of the four dead crewmen.

Gilbert said one of the trains was a 70-car freight operating from Elkhart, Ind., to Selkirk, near Albany, N.Y., and the second was a 91-car freight traveling from Syracuse, N.Y., to Elkhart.

Railroad officials said about 20 cars left the track. The trains were carrying general freight.

Gilbert said Amtrak's Chicago-to-New York passenger train which normally uses the tracks would be rerouted south through Fort Wayne, Ind., today.

Valhi offers bankrupt firm purchase

DALLAS (AP) — Valhi, Inc., is offering to buy for cash $25 million in debentures of Omega-Alpha, the bankrupt firm founded by entrepreneur James Ling, at a rate of $30 net per $100 principal.

Valhi's offer, announced Wednesday, states that the company will purchase any and all of the $25 million principal amount of 6.5 per cent subordinated debentures due July 15, 1988, at $30 net per $100 principal amount of debentures.

Will review soil erosion projects for UN group

Donald W. (Bill) Fryrear, location leader at the U. S. Spring Experiment Station, said Wednesday he accepted appointment to a United Nations work group for soil erosion research.

Sponsored by the U. N.'s World Meteorological Organization (WMO), the group of seven persons will review soil erosion projects. The group will recommend funding research projects deemed worthy.

Fryrear will represent the United States on the advisory group. The Soviet Union, France, Brazil, the Netherlands, the Food and Agricultural Organization (FAO) and the United Nations Educational, Scientific and Cultural Organization (UNESCO) will be represented also.

"Most of the work we will do on a correspondence basis," Fryrear explained. Once every four years, the committee will gather in Geneva, Switzerland.

An official with the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration recommended Fryrear for the nonpaying position.

This work will enable Fryrear to become acquainted with soil erosion problems in areas like West Texas.

Fryrear compared the Senegal region of the Sahara desert to the sand dunes at Kermit.

This area of Africa has been suffering from a drought so "devastating" that people are starving, Fryrear said.

"Their farming methods are different from ours," Fryrear noted. "But their soil and rainfall are not that much different."

"We can look at conditions there," he said, "and we can look at what can happen here."

Fryrear has degrees from Colorado State University and Kansas State University.

To drill near Cisco producer

Miller Exploration Co., Midland, will drill the No. 1-4 Wright as a location north offset to the opener and current lone Cisco producer.

The well will be 1¼ miles northeast of the firm's recent Dean re-opener of the Brooking, Northeast field, ¾ mile southwest of the initial portion of the Modesta, South (Cisco) field, and five miles north of Knott.

Location, exception to Rule No. 37, is 200 feet from the south and 1,980 feet from the east lines of 31-33-3n-T&P. Contract depth is 9,100 feet.

The Cisco opener, Apache Corp. No. 1 Adams, was finaled June 28, 1965, for 240 barrels of 43 gravity oil, with gas-oil ratio of 1,120-1, through a 10-64 inch choke and perforations at 8,933-44 feet.

Borden County was also slated for a confirmer. General American Oil Co. of Texas, Dallas, will drill the No. 1-312 Miller as a ½ mile northeast outpost to the opener and lone producer in the Lucy North (Pennsylvanian) field. It is 11 miles east of Gail.

Location is 1,980 feet from the south and 1,200 feet from the west lines of 312-97-H&TC. Contract depth is 8,600 feet.

The discovery, George Mitchell & Associates, Inc., Houston, No. 1 Miller, was finaled June 1, 1973, for 250 barrels of 48 gravity oil, plus 16 barrels of salt water, through a 12-64-inch choke and perforations at 7,824-830 feet. It also recovered 585 feet of oil and 360 feet of heavily oil-and-gas-cut mud on a drillstem test at 7,752-830 feet.

Glasscock candidates

GARDEN CITY — A. F. Henrich, incumbent, and Fred J. Hoelscher, both farmers, have announced they will be candidates for the position of Glasscock County Commissioner, Precinct One.

Running unopposed for other Glasscock County posts are Sheriff Royce Pruitt; Randell Sherrod, for the position of County Commissioner, Precinct Three; and Marguerite Phillips, incumbent Precinct Three chairman.

Dallas land sells for $19 million

DALLAS (AP) — About $19 million worth of property in downtown Dallas has changed hands in three recent real estate transactions, it was disclosed Wednesday.

The largest single purchase, by a British investor, was the $11.5 million Insurance Plaza, a 690,000-square-foot office and parking structure formerly owned by Mayflower Investment Trust. Mayflower is a wholly owned subsidiary of Fidelity Union Life Insurance Co.

In a separate transaction, Atlantic Richfield Co. bought for $4 million the entire downtown block on which its headquarters here are located. Atlantic Richfield was a large property owner on the block before transactions began.

In the third sale, Holders Capital Corp. of Santa Monica, Calif., purchased the Hyatt House near downtown. The Hyatt Corp. of Burlingame, Calif., reportedly paid $3.5 million for cancellation of its lease in order to turn the hotel property over to Holders Capital.

School race attracts trio

STANTON — Three more candidates are in the race for positions on the Stanton school board.

They are Loyd Mims, offering for Place Five; incumbent Gerald Hanson, Place Three; and incumbent J. N. Woody, Place Four.

Three other men had announced previously for places on the board. They are Herb Sorley and Terry Franklin, both competing for Place Three; and Larry Adams, Place Five.

The election will be held April 3.

Houston firm complains of phone 'bug'

HOUSTON (AP) — The Federal Bureau of Investigation says it has received a complaint from a Houston oil and gas company that the firm's telephone lines are being illegally tapped.

R. H. Martin, president of Tri-State Oil and Gas Inc., made the complaint Wednesday.

A spokesman for the FBI offices here confirmed that the complaint had been received.

"We have received the complaint and the appropriate investigation will be conducted," the FBI spokesman said.

The Houston Post said the firm is under investigation by state, federal and local agencies for possible violations of laws governing the sale of interests in oil and gas leases under Regulation B, Schedule D of the 1933 Securities Act.

Trustee says blacks distrust school district

DALLAS (AP) —A Dallas School Board trustee says blacks "basically distrust" the school district and are concerned about the treatment of black students.

The trustee, Mrs. Kathlyn Gilliam, a black, testified Wednesday in federal court during a hearing on the proposed desegregation plan submitted by the Dallas school district. Mrs. Gilliam voted against the busing plan saying it would leave too many one-race schools intact.

Mrs. Gilliam criticized the school board saying she was "hassled" when she tried to get a copy of the board's revised desegregation plan. She said she often had trouble getting information she requested from school officials.

She said that the board had not even discussed a plan to facilitate execution of a desegregation plan.

In answer to a question by attorney Sylvia Demarest, Mrs. Gilliam said the board's explanation was that "the plan could not be discussed because it was in litigation."

The plan submitted by the district to U.S. District Court Judge William M. Taylor would cost $6.8 million and would mean the busing of 15,447 students.

USDA officials only visit

HOUSTON (AP) — An official with the Grain Inspection Division of the U.S. Department of Agriculture has not been interviewing members of his staff in connection with grain inspection scandals.

However, Jack Cheatham, field office supervisor of the division, said Wednesday investigators with the Agriculture Department have made regular visits to his office the past year.

Under Secretary of Agriculture John A. Kneble reportedly told a House Agriculture Committee that the FBI is investigating various USDA employes, including some in the department's office of investigation.

Cooks experiment with recipes for Pillsbury Bake-off

You may think there are tricks you need to know to win a recipe contest.

But Mrs. Luella Maki, Ely, Minn., who was a $25,000 winner in the last Bake-off contest, says the most important thing you can do is to study the rules. The Bake-off rules describe the kind of recipes judges are looking for. Cooks should follow them exactly, so the recipe will be considered.

To develop her prize-winning recipe for Sour Cream Apple Squares, Mrs. Maki started with Syrian Nutmeg Cake, a long-time favorite with family and friends. Her first step was to turn it into an apple cake. Adding apples suggested changes in flavorings from the original recipe. Seven experiments later, she finally was satisfied, and so were the contest judges.

This year the Bake-off rules have been modified so that recipes need not be original, as long as they have not been winners in national contests or been published in national cookbooks or magazines or by food companies.

Mrs. Maki believes this will make it easier for more people to enter with favoirite family recipes, although she still enjoys the challenge of creating a recipe.

A catchy name that describes the recipe is a plus, Mrs. Maki believes. She emphasizes that ingredients in a contest recipe should be generally available and should be ones that most people like. The best recipe in the world for Lamb and Eggplant Casserole would never reach the Bake-off contest finals.

Since this contest searches for recipes for family use and casual entertaining, rather than gourmet recipes, costs should be in line with use. A recipe for entertaining might call for more expensive ingredients, but one for everyday family meals should be more reasonable.

Two recipes of the kind that might be picked as finalists are Saucy Cheese 'N Beef Squares and Butter Crisp Cookies. The Beef Squares, a former Bake-Off finalist, extends one pound of ground beef with a cheese-flavored crust made from pancake mix to make a hearty, economical main dish for six.

The surprise ingredient in the macaroon-flavored cookies is mashed potato flakes. Used dry from the package, they add a delicate flavor and crunchiness to this crisp cookie. Both the pancake mix and the instant mashed potatoes are eligible products in this year's package mix category of the Bake-off contest.

Flour is in a category by itself this year, giving "scratch" bakers an opportunity to compete with their best recipes for main dishes, desserts or breads and rolls. Typical of the kind of recipe that might be chosen is Banana-Wheat Quick Bread, winner in a recent Bake-off contest. This moist, flavorful loaf also gets a plus for nutrition, by adding fruits and whole wheat flour to a basic quick bread.

Hungry Jack Flaky Biscuits are eligible in the Refrigerated Foods division for the first time. They can be entered as a sandwich or main dish or a dessert. The kind of recipe that might be selected is Stack-A-Biscuit Stroganoff. Ground beef makes for hearty eating at a reasonable price. The touch that turns this into a dish you might serve for company is the topping of the flaky biscuit halves, glazed a golden brown and richly flavored from a baked-on sour cream topping.

The 100 finalists selected to take part in the 27th event in Boston, Mass., August 28-31, will compete for 13 cash prizes, totaling $81,000. Entry blanks are in food stores now, or you can write to Dept. 1177A-Pillsbury, 608 Second Avenue South, Minneapolis, Minn. 55402.

STACK-A-BISCUIT STROGANOFF — Stroganoff flavor is here in this family favorite. doesn't have to be expensive, fancy fare. All the good

Saucy Cheese 'N Beef Squares

1 lb. ground beef
1-3rd cup chopped onion
½ cup chopped celery
1 tsp. salt
1-3rd cup grated Parmesan cheese
1 egg

CRUST

¾ cup milk
¼ cup cooking oil
1 egg

11-oz. can condensed cheddar cheese soup reserve part for sauce)
2 cups Hungry Jack Buttermilk, Extra Lights or Complete Pancake Mix

SAUCE

Reserved cheddar cheese soup
½ cup milk
¼ tsp. Tabasco, if desired

Preheat oven to 400 degrees. Grease (not oil) 8 or 9-inch square or 11 x 7-inch baking dish. Brown ground beef with onion, celery and salt; drain. Stir in cheese and egg; set aside. In large bowl, combine first 3 crust ingredients with 1-3rd cup soup; blend well. (Lightly spoon pancake mix into measuring cup; level off.) Stir in pancake mix until moistened. Spread half of batter in greased pan. Cover with meat mixture. Spread with remaining batter. Bake uncovered for 20 to 30 minutes until golden brown. In small saucepan, combine sauce ingredients. Cook over low heat until smooth and bubbly, stirring constantly. Top each serving with sauce, 9-inch square, 6 servings. (Refrigerate any leftovers.)

High altitude — 5000 feet: Bake at 425 degrees for 20 to 30 minutes.

Stack-A-Biscuit Stroganoff

1 lb. ground beef
4-oz. can mushrooms, drained
3 ½-oz. can French fried onions (reserve ½ cup)
10 ½oz. can condensed cream of mushroom or celery soup (undiluted)
½ cup dairy sour cream
10-oz. can Hungry Jack Refrigerated Flaky or Buttermilk Flaky Biscuits

TOPPING

½ cup dairy sour cream
1 egg
1 tsp. celery seed
½ tsp. salt

Preheat oven to 375 degrees. Brown ground beef; drain. In ungreased 2 ½ to 3-qt. shallow casserole or 10-inch oven-proof fry pan, combine ground beef, mushrooms and french fried onions. In medium saucepan, heat mushroom soup until bubbly; stir in ½ cup sour cream. Pour over meat mixture. Separate biscuit dough into 10 biscuits; cut each in half forming 20 half-circles. Place cut-side-down around edge of casserole. Sprinkle reserved ½ cup onions between biscuits. Combine topping ingredients; pour over biscuits. Bake 30 to 40 minutes, until deep golden brown. 5 to 6 servings. Refrigerate any leftovers. To reheat, cover with foil; heat at 375 degrees for 30 to 40 minutes.

Pillsbury Bake-Off August 28-31

Banana-Wheat Quick Bread

1 ¼ cups Pillsbury's All Purpose or Unbleached Flour
½ cup Pillsbury's Whole Wheat Flour
1 cup sugar
1 tsp. soda
1 tsp. salt
1 ½ cups (3) mashed bananas
¼ cup butter or margarine, softened
2 tbsp. orange juice
¼ tsp. lemon juice, if desired
1 egg
¼ to ½ cup raisins

Whole wheat flour teams with banas and raisins in this moist flavorful quick bread.

Preheat oven to 325 degrees. Grease and flour bottom of 9 x 5 or 8 x 4-inch pan. (Lightly spoon flour into measuring cup; level off.) In large bowl, blend all ingredients. Beat 3 minutes at medium speed. Pour batter into prepared pan. Bake 60 to 70 minutes, until toothpick inserted in center comes out clean. Remove from pan to cool. Makes 1 loaf. Refrigerate any leftovers. If using Pillsbury's Best Self-Rising Flour, omit salt.

High altitude — 5000 feet: Bake at 350 degrees, for 55 to 65 minutes.

Butter Crisp Cookies

1 cup butter or margarine, softened
1 cup sugar
1 cup firmly packed brown sugar
1 tsp. vanilla
1 egg
½ tsp. salt
1 tsp. soda
2 cups Pillsbury's Best All Purpose or Unbleached Flour
1 cup Pillsbury Hungry Jack Mashed Potato Flakes
1 cup flaked coconut

Preheat oven to 375 degrees. (To measure flour, lightly spoon into measuring cup level off). In large bowl, cream first four ingredients until well blended. Beat in egg. Add remaining ingredients and mix thoroughly. Shape into 1-inch balls and place on ungreased cookie sheets. Flatten with the bottom of a glass dipped in granulated sugar. Bake 6 to 8 minutes until light golden brown. Store in lightly covered containers. 5 dozen cookies. If using Pillsbury's Best Self-Rising Flour, omit salt and soda.

High altitude — 5000 feet: Reduce sugar to ½ cup; use 1 cup brown sugar. Bake at 400 degrees for 6 to 8 minutes.

SAUCY CHEESE 'N BEEF SQUARES — A zesty cheese sauce enhances this tasty main dish, which extends ground beef with a pancake mix crust.

Okie 'poke ropes $3,000 at Fat Stock Show rodeo

DENVER, Colo. — Arnold Felts of Woodward, Okla., took the first go-round of calf roping at the Fort Worth Fat Stock Show rodeo, and won better than $3,000 for the effort.

Felts roped and tied his calf in 9.5 seconds, and he'll have another chance at winning in the rodeo, which winds up next Sunday.

The first three places in the opening go-round of steer wrestling were split between Bob Marshall of Chowchilla, Calif., Doyle Schardt of Hereford, Tex. and Tom Ferguson of Miami, Okla. Each had a time of 4.3 seconds, and each won nearly $2,000.

Marshall, 1973 steer wrestling champion, won first in the event at the Denver rodeo last month for better than $6,000. Ferguson, 1974 all around calf roping champion, leads the Professional Rodeo Cowboys Association North American all around standings with nearly $7,000 in earnings so far this season.

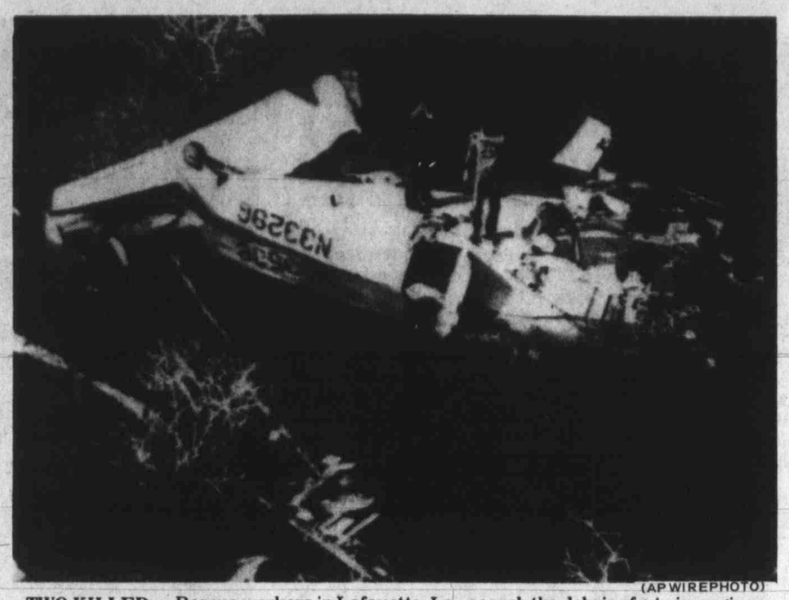

Another major rodeo wound up over the weekend in Scottsdale, Ariz., and the big winner there was Terry Davidson of Wayne, Okla., who took first in the opening round of calf roping, and tied for first in the average payoff for better than $1,000. Davidson also won third in the first round at Fort Worth for more than $2,000.

At Scottsdale, he tied with Jeff Copenhaver, reigning calf roping champ from Spokane, Wash.; both had 22.6 seconds on two calves, and Copenhaver won $617.

Other Scottsdale winners included Pat Staves of Spangle, Wash., $1,006 in bull riding; Bill Pauley of Miles City, Mont., $665 in saddle bronc riding; Dale Trottier of Calgary, Alta., $588 in bareback riding; and Carl Hansen of Livermore, Calif., $956 in steer wrestling.

Those standing first in the divisions include:

ALL AROUND COWBOY — Tom Ferguson, Miami, Okla., $6,921; SADDLE BRONC RIDING — Bobby Berger, Norman, Okla., $3,411; BAREBACK BRONC RIDING — Royce Smith, Challis, Idaho, $2,763; BULL RIDING — Marvin Shoulders, Henryetta, Okla., $3,569; CALF ROPING — Bobby Goodspeed, High Ridge, Mo., $5,963; STEER WRESTLING — Bob Marshall, Chowchilla, Cal., $7,137; TEAM ROPING — Leo Camarillo, Oakdale, Cal., $2,733; GRA BARREL RACING — Jimmie Gibbs, Valley Mills, Tex., $1,759.

TWO KILLED — Rescue workers in Lafayette, La., search the debris of a twin-engine plane which crashed in a marshy area just off the runway of the regional airport Tuesday morning, landing upside-down, and killing the two Texans inside. Killed were Robert Gordon Rawls, 24, and Larry Wayne Lancaster, 27, both of Dallas.

Bond election in Midland

MIDLAND — Midland voters will go to the polls Feb. 10 to decide the fate of a $2.6 million bond issue, money from which would be used to construct a multi-purpose building on the Midland College campus.

The building would embrace about 61,000 square feet, would feature about 3,700 permanent seats, plus about 1,400 moveable pull-out seats. An additional 1,500 chairs could be placed on the floor for some events.

Reader's hearing problems fall on deaf ears

DEAR ABBY: I wonder how many other people have my problem. I have suffered a 75 per cent hearing loss. You wouldn't believe the amount of money I have spent on hearing aids and therapy. All were useless because my loss is due to nerve damage, which can't be helped.

Abby, everyone shows so much kindness and compassion for a blind or crippled person, but if you happen to be hard of hearing, you are on your own!

If I ask people to please repeat what they've said, they either turn away and ignore me, or say, "Oh, forget it," or "Never mind." Believe me, there is no greater insult to a deaf person.

Abby, please ask people to be a little more patient with those of us who are hard of hearing. All they need do is to speak distinctly and raise their voices just a little. Thank you.

DEAF AND DISCOURAGED

~~DEAR DEAF: All right, here's your letter.~~ READERS, CAN YOU HEAR ME OUT THERE?

DEAR ABBY: Concerning the elderly Florida couple who were "shacking up": There is nothing immoral about a couple living together without a so-called marriage license.

Remember, Joseph and Mary lived together and were not married until after Jesus was born.

IRVING B.

DEAR IRVING: According to Jewish customs of Biblical times, Joseph and Mary were "betrothed"—a commitment so binding that if Joseph were to die before taking Mary under his own roof, Mary would become a widow. Or if Joseph backed out, he and Mary would require a legal divorce.

Although Mary and Joseph indeed shared one house, according to Matthew 1:25, "He did not know her (have sexual relations) until she brought forth her first-born son." This means that even though Joseph and Mary lived together, they did not have relations up to the birth of Jesus.

DEAR ABBY: This is for HAD IT, who has been often fooled by married men who say they're single:

Anyone can find out the marital status of anyone else by calling the reference section of his local public library (or by going there in person) and checking the city directory.

It lists the husband's name, the wife's name and their places of employment.

Any city too small to have a city directory is small enough for there to be no question about its citizens' marital status, anyway.

Sign me...

BEEN THERE IN TULSA

DEAR ABBY: So SERIOUS IN N.Y. wants to sue his parents for having him circumcised, thereby "maiming and disfiguring" him. Well then, why not sue parents for having their children vaccinated? That also leaves a scar, doesn't it?

ALSO SERIOUS IN INDIANA

Capt. Elmadolar is Boss of Year

Capt. Vivian K. Elmadolar was named Boss of the Year of the Scenic chapter, American Business Women's Association, at the Boss Night banquet on Tuesday.

Capt. Elmadolar is accounting and finance officer, Webb Air Force Base. Mrs. Hazel D. Mixon, chapter member, nominated Capt. Elmadolar for the honor.

Cletus Piper, 1975 Boss of the Year, presented Capt. Elmadolar with the Boss of the Year trophy.

Mrs. Opal Wooten welcomed guests to the banquet held at the Big Spring High School cafeteria. The theme of the banquet was "Beyond Our Heritage."

Toastmistress Mrs. Gene Haston introduced guests present including chapter members' bosses and their wives.

Mrs. Lambert Miseck, program chairman, introduced the guest speaker, Col. Norma E. Brown. She is Commander 6940th Security, Goodfellow Air Force Base. Col. Brown based her program on the success and motivation of an individual.

Col. Brown emphasized that each person should rededicate himself to his country, his position in life and to himself. She said that persons should strive to maintain excellence and loyalty in service.

Mrs. Nancy White gave a brief history of ABWA.

The vocational talk was presented by Mrs. Barbara Leugoud.

The next meeting will be at 8 p.m., Feb. 9 in the Settles Hotel.

Mrs. Wright demonstrates wire sculpture

Mrs. J. L. Wright crafted a tree sculpture from wire at the Tuesday afternoon meeting of the Airport Home Demonstration Club. Members met in the home of Mrs. Garland Irons.

Mrs. Vern Vigar gave the HD Council report.

Mrs. R. D. Key will host the next meeting in her home at 1109 E. 6th. Mrs. Vigar will be the hostess. The meeting will begin at 1:30 p.m., Feb. 17.

Metric system

By 1985, the U. S. will most likely be using metric measurements for length, temperature, weight and volume, Claudia Mitzel, consumer information specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System, predicts.

PTA Council studies parenthood education

Mrs. Nell Burgess summarized current Texas school programs on parenthood education during the Tuesday morning meeting of the Big Spring PTA City Council.

The meeting was held in the Veterans Administration Hospital.

Mrs. Burgess reviewed her trip to Austin last weekend to attend a conference on parenthood education.

Mrs. Burgess announced that the March of Dimes will sponsor a parenthood education conference in Dallas this spring.

Mrs. Vonda Townsend presided at the meeting. She read a thank-you note from Mrs. Nell Beistle, director of the Westside Day Care Center. She thanked the council for the Christmas party the council gave for the children.

Mrs. Janette Burns reported on PTA City Council activities involving Westside Day Care Center. She reminded members to attend the work session at 9 a.m. Friday at the center. Members will paint and install seats on a merry-go-round donated by E. F. Henderson.

Members discussed possible cancellation of school carnivals at Halloween and eliminating school fund-raising events. The council representatives will present these suggestions to the individual PTAs.

Membership dues in the local PTA would be raised to furnish funds for the schools in place of fund-raising events.

A nominating committee for officers will be headed by Mrs. Thelma Ditto, representing College Heights. Other members are Mrs. Sara Lee Stokes, Kentwood; Mrs. Nell Burgess, Airport; Marvin Wise, Washington; and Mrs. Darla Furgeson, Boydston.

Alternates are Mrs. Carol Reeves, Marcy; and Mrs. Glenda Bartee, Moss.

Twins born to Spiveys

Mr. and Mrs. Timothy Ray Spivey, Garden City Route, announce the birth of twin boys on Jan. 29 in Medical Arts Hospital.

Christopher Ray was born at 2:50 a.m. and weighed three pounds, five and one-fourth ounces.

Michael Ray was born at 3:10 a.m., weighing four pounds, two and one-half ounces.

Grandparents of the boys are Mr. and Mrs. D. R. Bates, Garden City Route, and Mr. and Mrs. Roy M. Spivey, 1301 Madison.

Great-grandparents are Mrs. Nellie Gaskin and Mr. and Mrs. Roy Bates Jr., Big Spring.

Duplicate bridge winners named

A duplicate bridge game was held Wednesday morning at the Big Spring Country Club.

Mrs. Adolph Swartz and Mrs. Elmo Wasson placed first. Other winners were Mrs. Rogers Hefley and Mrs. D. A. Brazel, second; and Mrs. Hayden Griffith and Mrs. James A. Raoul, third.

Another duplicate bridge game will be held Friday afternoon at the Country Club.

Soil Builders view films

C. R. Smith, Colorado City, showed two slide presentations at the Monday evening meeting of the Organic Soil Builders held in the home of Mr. and Mrs. M. B. McFall.

The first film, "The Great Grain Robbery," illustrated how milling grain strips all the nutrients from the final product.

The second film was entitled "Water" and documented the importance of water to human life.

John Payne presided at the business meeting. He appointed Mrs. M. B. McFall as chairman of a committee to draft a new constitution for the club. He also appointed Preach Martin and Mrs. J. D. Leonard as committee members.

Guests attending the meeting were Mrs. J. E. Sorrells, Mrs. H. S. Van Raeder, Mrs. Olen Horn, Mrs. D. F. Williams, Mr. and Mrs. D. E. Powell, Mrs. L. A. Yater, Russell Johnson, Mrs. B. H. Lee and Mr. and Mrs. C. R. Smith.

The next meeting will be at 7:30 p.m., March 1 in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Spencer Wolfe, 2604 Cactus. The film "Plan, Prepare and Plant" will be shown.

Mrs. Green honored at baby shower

Mrs. Floyd Green was honored at a surprise baby shower Friday afternoon given by the women employes of the Big Spring Herald.

Mrs. Green is the AKI superviser at the Herald.

Cake and punch were served to the guests and employes of the Herald.

The honoree was presented with individual gifts. Special gifts included an automatic baby swing and a nurser set.

Squares to host dance Saturday

The Big Spring Squares will host a dance Saturday evening at the Squares Corral.

The square dance will start at 8 p.m. James Moore will be the caller.

Dance fee for members will be $2 per couple. Guest dancers will be charged $3 per couple.

TEXTURE is "where it's at" in rugs and carpets for today's home interiors . . . so here are a few words-to-remember so you can sound like an expert, or understand the ads better.

SHAG and PLUSH are very big right now. Shags use long yards, straight or twisted, creating a loose long pile texture that is "shaggy." They're casual and fun to live with. PLUSHES are straight cut pile carpets woven very densely, so that they look soft but solid. The effect is elegant. SPLUSHES are what they should like, in between a shag and a plush.

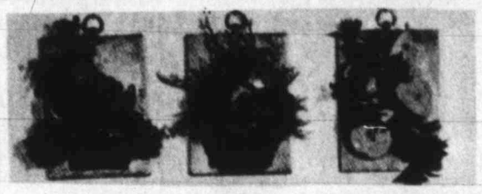

SCULPTURES are pile carpets with design carved into the surface, either by hand or new machine techniques.

MULTILEVEL LOOP carpets combine loop piles of different heights to create interesting textures in a very practical, hardwearing carpet type.

FRIEZE means tightly twisted yarns that create a rough-textured surface. RANDOM-SHEARED carpets combine cut and loop piles in many lengths and patterns. The effect provides surface variety that is both pleasing and practical.

There's more to learn about today's new carpets, much more . . . and the place to find your answers is our showroom, where carpet specialists will be glad to show you all that's new and beautiful in carpets for every taste, every budget.

Check children for tooth loss to insure dental health

This is the second in a series of articles by Dr. Ben Anderson on dental health. The Big Spring Herald in cooperation with the Permian Basin District Dental Society is printing the articles in observance of National Children's Dental Health Week, Feb. 1-7.

Dr. Anderson explains dental health procedures involving premature loss of primary teeth and fluoride treatments.

PREMATURE LOSS OF TEETH

"According to our dentist, my daughter lost a baby tooth early so that the permanent tooth is not ready to appear. Can't I just wait until the second tooth comes in?"

The primary teeth should be given the best of care because they assist in the chewing of food. Primary teeth contribute to facial development and expression. They preserve space for the incoming permanent teeth and serve as part of the child's speech apparatus until the permanent teeth erupt.

A child usually keeps the last of his primary teeth until he is 11 or 12 years old.

As a child approaches the age of six, jaws grow and provide room for the permanent teeth. The roots of primary teeth slowly dissolve in a process called resorption. As the roots dissolve, the permanent teeth develop in preparation for their eruption.

When a permanent tooth is fully formed and ready to erupt, the primary tooth that it will replace should simply loosen and come out of the jaw by itself.

A healthy tooth serves as a natural space maintainer. When a primary tooth is lost prematurely, the space tends to close unless a space maintainer is inserted.

Premature loss of primary teeth may cause the permanent teeth to erupt out of their proper position or become impacted and fail to erupt at all.

In some instances, the dentist may want to observe the space regularly to determine whether a space maintainer will be needed.

FLUORIDE TREATMENTS

Parents sometimes ask the question, "My dentist wants to put fluoride directly on my child's teeth even though we use a fluoride toothpaste. Is this procedure important for his teeth?"

The public water supply in some communities does not contain fluorides in desirable amounts naturally or through controlled fluoridation. Dentists in these communities recommend that a child's teeth be treated with a fluoride solution from their earliest appearance and regularly thereafter.

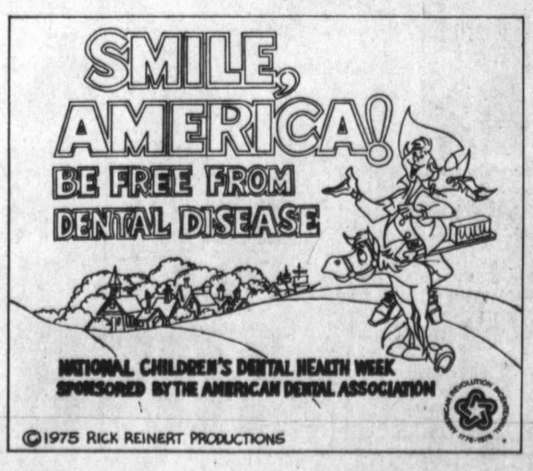

A dentist or dental hygienist will clean the teeth and apply a fluoride preparation. The application should be repeated at intervals as the dentist recommends.

Studies have shown that topical applications of fluoride are of some additional value in preventing tooth decay even in communities with fluoridated water supplies.

Children who drink fluoridated water from birth have up to 65 per cent less tooth decay. Fluoridation programs provide the most dental benefits to children because fluoride is incorporated into the structure of the enamel as it is being formed.

In non-fluoridated areas dentists may also prescribe fluoride tablets for children — in addition to topical applications. The success of such a program depends upon the child's taking the tablets daily over a period of eight to twelve years.

The council on dental therapeutics of the American Dental Association has recognized some toothpastes containing effective fluoride compounds as being of value in the prevention of dental decay.

Soviet Union will move in

OMAR BURLESON, M.C.
17th DISTRICT

WASHINGTON, D. C. — Angola, on the west coast of Africa opposite Brazil, is more than twice as large as France. Its ports and airfields are ideal and have the potential for bases to control the south Atlantic and the passage around Africa.

It has the most fertile soil of any African nation with only two per cent under cultivation. It is one of the few countries in that part of the world which can raise enough to feed its people and have left over supplies to export. Its oil fields are netting royalties in the sum of about $500 million annually.

Its diamond production ranks among the top in the world and is increasing. Coffee, sisal and sugar production are its principle agricultural exports. Iron ore deposits are believed to be among the world's richest but largely undeveloped. Copper, manganese, phosphate, talc, quartz, silicates, alabaster, and other minerals are just beginning to be exploited.

Angola's strategic location and its richness in resources does not entirely reflect the importance of a vote in the Congress last week to deny any aid in opposition to the communist forces about to take over that country.

The Senate added an amendment to the $36 billion military appropriation bill, specifically prohibiting that any funds be used in support of the large faction in Angola opposing Russian and Cuban forces which appear to be winning control in that nation.

No specific funds were authorized to go to Angola but the Senate amendment simply says that no funds out of the appropriation or funds on hand may be used to supply arms or ammunition or any other aid to the faction fighting the Communists.

The real importance of this action, as it is interpreted here and around the world, is that we abandon our policy of opposing Soviet expansion and its export of revolution. Even though there is little likelihood that any amount of assistance at this time will save a communist takeover, the fact that the Congress, by this action, prohibits any policy in this direction leaves the impression that the United States is withdrawing its interest and support from nations which oppose a communist takeover.

Some months ago it was estimated that $28 million in military supplies to friendly forces in Angola would have enabled them to resist Russia and their Cuban mercenaries.

Now, with Russia spending $200 million and with thousands more Cubans in that country, the situation is desperate. It is thought that the faction fighting for survival from these external forces is at this time a lost cause, but for the Congress to signal disinterest will be discouraging to those everywhere who seek freedom and look to us for moral leadership if nothing more.

This, of course, is an aftermath of Vietnam. In the debate on the question, frequent references were made to our becoming involved in another situation which is none of our business. This argument has substance insofar as it goes, but the issue was definitely not involving ourselves in a war. This has been somewhat the attitude of our Government following all conflicts in which we have been engaged but which later costs us dearly.

The action last week by the Congress is further reflected in efforts to dismantle our intelligence gathering and our defense preparedness.

If we show no will to keep our place in the sun, we should know very well that the Soviet Union will move in to every void we leave.

ELDORADO CONVERTIBLES HARD TO FIND — Tony Cammarata, salesman at Seymour Cadillac, Inc., stands beside an Eldorado Convertible on display in the dealer's showroom in Detroit. It will be going out of production within a couple of months — marking the end of the American soft top. Several Cadillac dealers, besieged by requests for one of the last convertibles, say they're willing to pay other dealers a $1,000 to $2,000 bonus to get one.

New Mexico attorney indicted

ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. (AP) — Former New Mexico Atty. Gen. David Norvell has been indicted on charges arising from an alleged scheme to extort $50,000 from a bank president and a rancher, the Justice Department says.

The federal grand jury indictment alleged that while in office Norvell conspired to extort $25,000 from rancher James Jenkins in return for helping Jenkins win a dispute with the state engineer about the drilling of irrigation wells.

Norvell also was accused of extorting $25,000 from the New Mexico Savings and Loan Association in return for an opinion which had the effect of approving the association's sale of three branch office franchises to the Sandia Savings and Loan Association.

CAPTAIN WELCH

Army Captain Thomas A. Welch Jr., son of Mrs. T. A. Welch, 1500 Harding, was awarded the meritorious service medal at Schofield Barracks, Hawaii recently for exceptionally meritorious service from August 1972 to December 1975.

The award was for a period in which the captain served as battalion motor officer, as commander of Battery A and as fire support officer, Headquarters and Headquarters Battery, 2nd Battalion, 11th Field Artillery, Division Artillery in the 25th Infantry Division.

He holds the Bronze Star with a V device, the Air Medal and other awards.

A 1962 graduate of Big Spring High School and graduate of Texas Tech, Capt. Welch entered the army in 1966, completing officer candidate training at Fort Sill, Okla. He also served in Germany and Viet Nam before his assignment at Schofield Barracks.

Capt. Welch has now been assigned as recruiting officer in Canton, Ohio. He and his wife, the former Sandy Lee, and two children are now living in Canton.

Goodwin's announcement

Taxpayers should get fair return for their tax dollar

Aubrey S. Goodwin, an oil field pumper for the past 29 years, has announced he will be a candidate for the office of Howard County Commissioner, Precinct 3, subject to action in the May 1 Democratic Primary election.

Goodwin has resided in Howard County the last 34 years and in Precinct 3 the last 29 years.

He is married to the former Francis Murphree. Two children, both since deceased, were born to the marriage. Goodwin finished high school at Howard College under the GI Bill. He is an Army veteran, having served 3½ years with the Army Engineers. He served a 2½-year tour of duty in the Pacific theater.

AUBREY S. GOODWIN

Goodwin has been a member of Masonic Lodge 598 for 24 years. He holds membership in the Westside Baptist Church, which he serves as a deacon.

In making known his plans to run for the office, Goodwin said:

"I think and believe that the taxpayers should get a fair return for their tax dollar. I think there should be a closer and better understanding between city and county government.

"It will be one of my goals to promote this. Without it, you accomplish nothing. If elected, I also promise to be present and vote on each and every project brought before the commissioners court unless illness prevents it."

Pioneer declares dividend

AMARILLO — The board of directors of Pioneer Corporation at a meeting in Amarillo declared a stock dividend of 20 per cent and continued the dividend rate of 30 cents per share. This would indicate an annual rate of $1.20 per share on the increased number of shares.

The stock dividend will be issued on March 15 to stockholders to record Feb. 19 and the 30 cents dividend will be paid on March 4 to stockholders of record Feb. 19. The cash dividend will not apply to the new shares issued pursuant to the stock divident for the first quarter only.

It was also announced that consolidated net income for 1975 was $26,951,226 which amounted to $3.63 per share on the average number of shares outstanding during the year. This compares with a consolidated net income of $19,316,171 and earnings per share of $2.59 in 1974. Consolidated net income for the fourth quarter of 1975 was $,472,830 or 87 cents per share compared with $4,511,478 or 61 cents for the same period of 1974.

In making the announcement, Pioneer President K. B. (Tex) Watson stated that the improved performance of the oil and gas exploration and production and liquid extraction operations of the subsidiaries continued into and was strengthened in the fourth quarter when compared with the previous year.

By the end of the quarter production from the Jennings field in South Louisiana was approaching the completion of first stage development with daily rates of 1,075 barrels of oil and condensate and 9 million cubic feet of gas attributable to Pioneer's interest.

The annual report for the year 1975 will be mailed on or about March 15.

In no hurry to use ambulances

MIDLAND — The three Emergency Medical Service ambulances delivered to the City of Midland last week have yet to be accepted by the city.

The city council must sign a lease with the Permian Basin Regional Planning Commission for the vehicles, yet the council reportedly has no clear-cut understanding of 15 components of the projected agreement.

The ambulances are now parked at the Midland Fire Department.

Cotton markets

NEW YORK (AP) — Cotton futures No. 2 were mixed in midday dealings today.

Yesterday's declines attracted further commission house liquidation and prices fell almost one cent a pound. The lower prices attracted buying by textile mills and other commercial interests seeking to assure prices and supplies, brokers said.

The average price for strict low middling 1 1-16-inch spot cotton was unchanged at 57.29 cents a pound Wednesday for the 10 leading markets, according to the New York Cotton Exchanges.

Midday prices were $2.25 a bale lower to $1.50 higher than the previous close. March 60.26, May 61.05, and July 62.10.

New lives finale

Wife moves out—for good

Editor's Note: An increasing number of Americans are making major lifestyle changes which often bring emotional turmoil to their families. Here is the last of four portraits of people who changed their way of living.

By VICTORIA GRAHAM
Associated Press Writer

"I wanted to walk out the door and march to the horizon and never stop.

"My kids were unhappy, my husband was unhappy and I was miserable. Who benefited? Why stay?"

Karen didn't stay. Two years ago she left her marriage of 26 years and her seven children. There had been boredom, drudgery, baby after baby. There was an alcoholic husband, a nervous breakdown, little money. There was no time for literature and the things she loved.

"I felt as though I was dying," recalls Karen, now 46 and a Richmond, Va., resident.

She moved in with a lover, went to graduate school, became a feminist — and deeply missed her 13-year-old son, Bobby.

After six uneasy months she moved back home, she and her college professor husband leading separate lives, sleeping in separate bedrooms. He called her "the star boarder," "the golden girl."

Life didn't get better.

She moved out again — this time for good — in May of 1974. Today she is an administrator with a small company, making $250 a week, sharing an apartment with another woman.

Karen, not her real name, is active in the National Organization for Women and organizes conferences for older women.

"We have to realize that we did what we did, did the best we could. Now we look ahead," she says.

"Leaving was the right thing to do. I should have left sooner," Karen says. "But I wrote half the script. Recrimination and resentment are acids that burn you up inside and don't do anyone any good."

Karen looks back on her marriage as being "one baby after another. I was scrubbing floors and running the house. I was barefoot and pregnant. There wasn't enough money.

"I put my husband through graduate school. I had been educated to higher expectations. Then he, an English professor, was doing what I wanted to do.

"I was in the harness and my mind was stagnant," recalls Karen, a strong, energetic, animated woman. She was a brilliant and precocious student, the first woman in her family to attend college. She earned a master's degree in English literature.

"I felt guilty because I wasn't happy in my marriage," she says. "I had beautiful children, a handsome professional husband and a house in the suburbs. I felt it was my fault.

"I would get depressed. My husband found me unsexy and uncommunicative. I wasn't easy to live with."

Karen first decided to leave her suburban marriage after she and her teen-age children took part in a psychodrama that left her "wrecked and bleeding inside."

They accused her of not being loving toward her husband, a brilliant, sometimes charming, sometimes helpless man. He himself once walked out briefly, saying he needed peace to write his dissertation. By the time Karen was 35, he was having a love affair with a 20-year-old woman.

Once she packed his bags and school books and papers and asked him to leave. He returned in the snow at Christmas time, tears in his eyes. She took him back.

In the psychodrama, Karen literally shrank into a fetal position.

"I felt such pain, and yet it was therapeutic," she says. "It made me ask basic questions about my life:

"Why all this sacrifice? What about the things I wanted: the literature, the art, the music, the travel?

She sat down and listed all the worst and best things that could happen if she left, "and the good outweighed the bad."

Karen had been working in a computer firm, rising rapidly in a new field to earn $15,000 a year to put a daughter in a hospital and private school.

"I ran the house, I worked, I went to graduate school. My husband and I were strangers."

She walked into the kitchen one night as he was preparing a gourmet dinner.

"Why do you look so grim?" he asked.

"I have something important to say," Karen said.

"I want to leave."

"Is that a threat?"

"I mean it. I feel I am going under and I need a period of regeneration. I must get out."

She recalled that "he was rather pleased. He had his routine and a 10-year-old son and 15-year-old daughter at home to keep house. The older children were away.

"The only one who wasn't pleased was my little one," said Karen, a catch in her throat. "We were such pals."

"No, Mommy, I don't want you to go," Bobby cried.

"Sweetheart, I won't go far," she told him. "I'll call you every Wednesday night at 7 o'clock. I'll put in a special telephone and give the number only to you. On weekends we'll go horseback riding."

She said: "He had friends and a school, and I couldn't uproot him, for his own sake. I hoped he and his father would become closer. It's painful to me, but they have and my husband has bent over backwards with him."

Finally, she said: "I was the odd man out." Her love affair came apart.

Karen moved back home, holding a job, helping with the housework, but refusing to assume the household. "We slept in separate bedrooms," she said.

"I came to realize that I had married a man who was not the marrying kind.

"I had one foot in and one foot out the door. I asked if we could work something out."

They did.

Now Karen lives apart, missing her son, hoping, finding her own way.

Shelton named bank president

James C. Shelton, formerly assistant county agent in Big Spring, was named president of the First National Bank of Lampasas on Jan. 13.

He had been serving as vice president. He is a native of Moran, a 1962 graduate of Moran High School and a 1966 graduate of East Texas State where he obtained a BS degree in agricultural education.

The Shelton family includes Sarah, the former Sarah Ann Mason and two daughters, Shannon, 9 and Stacey, 7.

Shelton is the son of Mrs. Garland Shelton of Moran and the late Mr. Shelton.

Blacksnake surrenders

Charles Blacksnake, 22, of Washington D.C., turned himself in at the local police station Sunday night telling the officers that he had stolen a pickup in Odessa.

The pickup had been abandoned at Stanton and was recovered. He was charged with auto theft. A bond of $2,500 was set by Municipal Judge John Coffee and Odessa law officials came for Blacksnake Tuesday.

Detective Richard Cantwell revealed Blacksnake was headed for Forth Worth and decided to surrender.

Crown Mr., Miss Coahoma

Lynda Franklin was crowned Miss Coahoma High School and Mike Henry Mr. Coahoma High School at the annual pageant held Saturday night.

First runners-up were Nancy Wood and Robert Williams. Second runners-up were Toni Hale and Jim Bob Coates. Third runners-up were Lori Broughton and John Mulkey.

Theme of the pageant was "Hats Off to America" Valrae Best and Jay Phinney, last year's winners, officially crowned the new royalty.

Fires

Mattress fire at 508 S. Nolan, 8:38 a.m. Tuesday. Quickly extinguished.

Vandalism

Mrs. Hugh Lee, 901 Runnels reported a side glass window broken on her vehicle. Charles Harrington, 709 W. 17th, also reported a side glass window broken on his vehicle. Both reported Monday morning.
