Funeral Held Tuesday for Mrs. Henry Vaughan

Mrs. Henry Vaughan, 70, who had lived east of Wellington since 1906, died in St. Joseph's hospital Sunday evening, about 7:30 o'clock. She had been critically ill for about two weeks. She had undergone surgery twice, then on Saturday she suffered the first of several heart attacks from which was unable to recover.

Funeral services were held at the First Methodist Church Tuesday afternoon, July 1. Officiating was the Rev. T. M. Johnston, now of Pampa, a former pastor here and friend of the family. He was assisted by the present pastor, the Rev. J. F. Michael.

Pall bearers for the service were Bill Adams, Loren Thompson, Barney Glenn, Merritt James, John D. Glenn, Frank Fourmontin, Lloyd Holloway and F. O. Masten. Flower bearers were Mrs. Effie Patterson, Miss Lena Ball, Mrs. Loren Thompson, Mrs. Claude McKinney, Mrs. Merritt James, Mrs. Bob Bowen, Mrs. Jack Hurst and Mrs. B. W. Baird.

Burial was in the Wellington Cemetery, directed by the Kelo Funeral Home.

Mrs. Vaughan was born in Independence County Ark., February 6, 1880. While still young, she married at Rockwall September 21, 1902. Four years later they moved to Collingsworth County.

Mrs. Vaughan had been a member of the Methodist Church for most of her life.

A woman who liked people, she found many ways of expressing her friendship. A friend through all the years she had lived here remarked at her passing that she had lived among the people and did kind and helpful things for them, adding, "I doubt if anyone had ever lived in her community that she had not done some kind or thoughtful thing for. You could truly say that her friends were legion."

Mrs. Vaughan is survived by her husband, but their only child, Mrs. Jewel Johnson, preceded her in death more than 20 years ago. Other survivors are three sisters and four brothers, Mrs. W. F. Vaughan and B. H. Brewer of Wellington, Mrs. L. Bratten of Hollis, Mrs. N. B. Caughan of Houston, Texas, and Mrs. J. E. Roberts of Dallas. There are also several nieces and nephews.

Cloice Roberts Flies Down From Chicago For Short Visit

Cloice Roberts of Chicago, Ill., arrived in Wellington Wednesday morning, for a few days visit with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Roberts.

He flew here in a Piper Cub Cruiser.

Roberts left on the return trip Saturday morning at 7:00 a.m., and landed in Chicago at 5:00 p.m., which his family feels is something of a record for such a small plane.

Roberts, who was reared here, is a commercial artist in Chicago.

He is post commander of the Glenn Moore Post of the Veterans of Foreign Wars, and active in veterans work.

Aberdeen Revival Loses Friday

Revival services, conducted by the Rev. L. D. Cleveland, pastor, closed at the Aberdeen Methodist Church Friday night, June 27. Four persons joined the church on that day.

On Sunday afternoon, baptismal services were held and those joining the church were baptized by immersion.

On this 176th birthday of the Declaration of Independence the people of the world look with still-burning hope to the statesman who shouted man's "Unalienable rights" to "Life, Liberty and the pursuit of Happiness." As we celebrate the glorious Fourth we might well reflect how appropriate it is that Thomas Jefferson, who spelled out our abhorrence of tyranny, was our country's first Secretary of State. So it is fitting that the oppressed and dispossessed of the world should look to Jefferson on this anniversary of his truly enduring blueprint for the house of liberty. And well we might recall, in these times of international tension, that the bell which rang so jubilantly in Philadelphia that July afternoon the Declaration was ratified has inscribed upon it: "Proclaim Liberty to All the World and the People Thereof."

Harry James Comes to Wellington

Alumni Association Resets Reunion Date to August 9

Date of the second Wellington High School Alumni homecoming has been moved up to Saturday, August 9, to coincide with the appearance here of America's No. 1 dance band, Harry James and his orchestra.

This announcement was made by Dr. C. B. Jones, president of the alumni association, following a meeting of directors Monday night, June 30. The reunion originally had been set for later in the month.

Harry James and his orchestra will be sponsored here by the Veterans of Foreign Wars, Post, for the Alumni Association. Russell Yates heads the entertainment committees of both organizations. This dance is for the public, and Panhandle-wide attendance is expected.

This year's reunion is expected to draw an even larger crowd than the first one last August. The reunion will be held in the community building, with registration beginning at 10:00 a. m.

The business meeting is scheduled for 3:00 p. m. The period between will be given over to visiting and renewing school-day friendships.

From 5:00 to 6:30 p. m. the Alumni Association will serve dinner for all ex-students and their families and tickets for the dinner will go on sale within a short time.

Open House for reach of the classes will be held from 6:00 to 8:00 p. m., and all ex-students and their families are invited to attend the open house for their class, and as many others as they wish to visit with old friends. These entertainments will be in the homes of ex-students who live in Wellington.

The dance follows at 9:00 o'clock. Invitations are being mailed out this week to all ex-students whose addresses are known, but more addresses are needed. Anyone knowing of an ex-student who has moved or who has changed addresses since last year is asked to contact Dr. Chas. B. Jones, Miss Dora E. McClaskey, or The Wellington Leader.

Mrs. Donald Curry is in charge of securing the Wellington homes for Open Houses, and she has requested that anyone interested in playing host for one of these entertainments to contact her by phoning 131-R.

The next meeting of the Alumni Association directors will be held Monday night, July 21.

Don't Waste Water Yet

Water from New City Well Turned in Tuesday

Water from one new city well was turned into the standpipe Tuesday night, July 1, and to all appearances, this will carry the city through the current water shortage, although users are still urged to be careful as to water wastage. Bura Handley, city manager, announced Wednesday morning.

At the time the new well was turned in, the water reserve was considered dangerously low, and residents of the north side of town had been without water after 10:00 a. m.

"We believe this well will increase the production capacity of the city wells by one third. It looks almost too good to be true," Mr. Handley commented.

The new well was drilled to a depth of about 130 feet and is the first test of that depth drilled by the city. The present 13 producing wells are to a depth of 40 to 50 feet, Mr. Handley explained. Work is under way on a second new well.

"We turned the new well into the standpipe Tuesday night, and by Wednesday morning the reserves were up and the standpipe full. The new water is still a little sandy, but it is absolutely clean and pure. We are keeping a close check on that. While the water hasn't been analyzed, to all appearances it is a little softer than that of the other wells," Mr. Handley said.

"We are asking the city water users to use the water they need, but please do not waste any until further notice."

Co-operation was excellent on the city's request two weeks ago for voluntary water use curtailment, and has been highly praised by city officials. Not until early this week did the consumption rise again to the point where the city's supply was endangered.

Mrs. H. M. McCaskill Dies Saturday Of Year's Illness

Mrs. H. M. McCaskill, a resident in and near Wellington for the last 30 years, died Thursday morning, June 26, at 7:00 a. m., at the home of a daughter, Mrs. Velma Boyles in Amarillo, where she was visiting. Mrs. McCaskill had been ill since suffering a stroke a year ago.

Funeral services were held at the First Christian Church Saturday afternoon at 3:00 o'clock, with the Rev. Archie Gray of Littlefield, former pastor here, officiating. Pall bearers were six grandsons, James Van Pelt, Don Van Pelt, Jerry Cogswell, Scottie Witt, Carl McCaskill and Olan Alexander. Flower bearers were Mrs. Bob Wilder, Mrs. Jess Wilson, Mrs. Fred Williams and Mrs. Zook Thomas.

Burial was in the Wellington cemetery under the direction of the Ellis Funeral Home.

Mrs. McCaskill was born at Royce City November 20, 1874, and at the time of her death was 77 years, 7 months and six days of age. She was before her marriage Miss Ida Newell, daughter of Ezekial and Mary Alice Hardy Newell. She grew up at Royce City, and was married there to Mr. McCaskill Nov. 17, 1895.

They continued living there until 30 years ago, when they moved to Collingsworth County. The family lived for many years north of Wellington, but after Mr. McCaskill's retirement from active farming a few years ago, they moved to Wellington.

Mrs. McCaskill was a member of the First Christian Church, and as long as her health permitted, she was a devoted and active worker in its behalf.

Her family and home, her friends and her church came first in Mrs. McCaskill's life, but outside of these, her flowers were her greatest interest. She had the knowledge and the ability of making them grow, adding beauty to her surroundings. Not only did she enjoy them herself, but Mrs. McCaskill's generosity with her flowers was well known to all her friends, whom she always wished to enjoy them with her.

Surviving Mrs. McCaskill are her husband, H. M. McCaskill of Wellington, five children, Mrs. Grady Van Pelt and Garvin McCaskill of Wellington; Mrs. Era Witt, Mrs. Velma Boyles and Mrs. Kathryn Cogswell of Amarillo. There are also 16 grandchildren, 5 great grandchildren, and a sister, Mrs. Lillie McCaskill of Houston.

Her twin sister, Mrs. Fred Beall, of Portland, Oregon, preceded her in death several years ago, shortly after a visit here that reunited the sisters following a 40 years separation.

Grandchildren unable to attend the funeral were Newel Van Pelt, on a Naval Reserve cruise in Cuba; DeAnn Witt of San Diego, Calif.; Billy Mac Braboy of Miami, Florida and Garvin McCaskill Jr. of Amarillo.

C. T. Roberts Installed As Rotary Club Head

Charles Roberts, superintendent of the Wellington Schools, was installed as new president of the Rotary Club at their regular luncheon meeting Tuesday, July 1. He succeeds Zook Thomas who was the outgoing president.

Other officers installed with Mr. Roberts were vice-president, Sam Ghoslin; and Secretary, Kelly Pigg. The Directors are Sandy Parsons, Jr., Dr. Charles Jones, J. W. Wells, and Zook Thomas.

Mr. Roberts is assembling his official committees to assist him in guiding the club during the coming year, and these, along with plans for the 1952-53 year will be announced within a short time. Mr. Roberts has been active in Rotary work since coming here, and as president elect of the club, attended the meeting of Rotary International in Mexico City recently.

Patriotic Program Set For July Fourth Observance

A patriotic program will be presented by the Wellington Rotary Club Friday morning at 10:00 a. m. at the First Baptist Church in observance of the Fourth of July.

The guest speaker will be Ed Keefe, director of public relations of Oklahoma College for Women, Chickasha, Oklahoma, one of the area's most dynamic patriotic speakers. His talk will be on "Time for Decision."

The program will be opened by the Rev. C. C. O'Brien, pastor of the First Baptist Church, who will give the invocation. Two musical numbers will precede the main address, a violin solo by Mrs. Pat Swift and a vocal solo by John King. Mrs. Lowell Wells will be the accompanist. Giving the benediction will be the Rev. J. F. Michael.

Mr. Keefe's talk here is expected to be along the lines of talks he has given before other groups. He tells in plain but interesting language the way the average thinking American citizen can make his voice heard in community, state and national affairs.

He takes the position that individuals and organizations must take part in politics. A member of the Kiwanis Club, he supports the new stand taken by that civic group in its departure from the traditionally hands-off attitude as regards national or world events.

Mr. Keefe spoke before the Wellington Kiwanis Club earlier in the year and was enthusiastically received.

"We are hopeful that every thinking man and woman in this area will hear Mr. Keefe Friday morning, even though it may mean a few hours away from your holiday celebrating. What he has to say is worth listening to. It is essential that we think about these things in this vitally important political year," Dr. C. B. Jones, who is helping with arrangements for the program, said.

The Rotary sponsored program will be one of three events of Friday, July 4. The others will be the traditional Samnorwood Rodeo and picnic, which will continue throughout the day, and the Dukes of Wellington-Hobart baseball game scheduled for Friday night at Marian Airpark field.

Introducing L. A. Gilmore and Elmer Hiatt

Few business firms in Wellington draw their customers from a wider territory than Gilmore Locker Plant, and the owners, L. A. Gilmore and Elmer Hiatt believe it's because they offer services not available in surrounding towns, and because they operate under the policy of doing a job like the customer wants it done.

Gilmore Locker Plant was established by Mr. Gilmore in late 1945, as soon as he was released from the Air Force. It went into operation in 1946, and two years later, Mr. Hiatt bought an interest and the business became a partnership.

Mr. Gilmore was born in Johnson County, Arkansas, October 25, 1913, and first came to Collingsworth when he was 16.

He was married to Miss Lucille Martin in 1934, and they have two sons, Glenn, five, and Michael, two.

He and Mrs. Gilmore are members of the Church of Christ and he is serving as church treasurer.

Mr. Hiatt was born in Tarrant County September 21, 1909, and came to Collingsworth County with his parents, the late Mr. and Mrs. G. T. Hiatt, when he was three years old.

He attended school at Lone Mound and Wellington and in 1929 married Miss Beatrice Blevins. They have four children, Donald, 19, who has finished his second year at Abilene Christian College; Calvin, 16, a high school student; Mary Jane, 12, in junior high; and Dan, Cotter, nine, in the fifth grade.

He is a former member of the school board.

The Hiatt family are members of the Church of Christ, and he is a former church treasurer.

The capacity of the Gilmore Locker Plant has been enlarged three times since it was built, the last addition of lockers having been in spring.

The owners L. A. Gilmore and Elmer Hiatt serve the territory they serve their customers come as distant as 20 miles north of Shamrock, McLean, Estelline and Amarillo. These are people who bring their meat here to be slaughtered and processed.

"We process the meat any way our customers want it done," the owners say, but their hickory smoke treatment has won a host of fans in the area.

"We like to think that we operate a one-stop service in meat processing, for most of our customers bring in their animals alive and take out their meat in packages," Mr. Gilmore and Mr. Hiatt explained. They handle around 2,500 animals—beef and hogs—a year.

Their locker plant service is one of the most popular in this section. Their latest battery of lockers are in a room of normal temperature, rather than in the cold storage rooms. They not only serve their own locker patrons, but they keep everything for resale in the way of packing for those people who have their home freezers.

At present they have three year-round employees, Clyde Wisdom, James Underwood and Jimmy Powell. Other help is hired as the need arises.

COUNTY SENTENCES TO STATE PRISON DURING LASTEN YEARS

HUNTSVILLE — Collingsworth County in the past ten years has committed 25 prisoners to the Texas Prison System.

This was revealed recently in a study conducted inside the prison by graduate students at Sam Houston State Teachers College, under the supervision of Dr. Rupert C. Koeninger, head of the college's sociology department.

In number of commitments per thousand population, the County ranked 82nd in the State with 2.74 persons per thousand committed, the study further showed.

Ten counties during the period, 1942 to 1951, representing 41.73 per cent of the total population based on the 1950 census, committed 50.27 per cent of the prisoners.

In the order of the number of commitments they were Harris, Dallas, Bexar, El Paso, Tarrant, Hidalgo, Jefferson, Travis, Cameron and Wichita. These counties committed 11,424 of the 22,705 total commitments.

Highest among them in percentage of population in commitments was El Paso County, which sent 5.77 men per thousand and ranks ninth in the State in percentage of commitments. Next was Hidalgo, which committed 4.51 per thousand, nineteenth in the State. Others are number per thousand committed were Harris, 4.07, Wichita, 3.88, Cameron, 3.18, Bexar, 2.87, El Paso, 2.74 and Tarrant, 2.66.

In the order of number of commitments according to the ten average, except that Nueces County, which ranked twelfth in population, is twelfth in number of commitments.

In number of commitments per thousand population, the County ranked 82nd in the State with 2.74 persons per thousand committed, the study further showed.

Counties — Kennedy and Lovi — have not committed any one to prison in the ten years. Meriersons were committed to the prison in 1951 than in any other year during the study. There were 56. The lowest year was 1943 when 1,579 were committed. The number has increased each year, except in 1948 when the number fell below the 1947 mark.

Percentage of increase in number of commitments in 1951, however, fell below that of the previous four years. There were only one per cent more in 1951, as compared with a 13.7 increase in 1947.

Mr. and Mrs. Newt Price and daughter, Betty, spent the week end of June 22 in East Texas visiting with a daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Claudia McCulloch and children of Dallas. The McCulloch family accompanied the Prices on to Brush Prairie, their former home, where they attended the homecoming of the church there. This was the third consecutive year for the home coming. EDITORIAL COMMENT — THE WELLINGTON LEADER

Thursday, June 27, 1952

Freedom on the Defensive Is Not Defensible

One of the most important speeches made by any statesman on U. S. Foreign policy was made by John Foster Dulles before the National Editorial Association in Buffalo on June 22. The full text should be required reading for person who really wants to know how this nation got in the mess it is in today internationally and what if any is the solution.

Dulles said that freedom on the defensive is not defensible and urged a return to what he called creative Democracy in the fight against the moral monstrosity of communism.

In a strongly-worded criticism of American's post-war foreign policy, the chief advisor on foreign affairs to the Republican convention platform committee attacked the idea of containing Communism. He declared in a prepared speech:

"We have acted belatedly and inadequately, merely as a response to Soviet pressures. We have been trying to plug a hole here, to stop a gap there, always awaiting bad news before we acted."

Dulles, a former State Department advisor and architect of the Japanese peace treaty, spoke before 400 editors and publishers of weekly and small daily newspapers at the 67th annual convention of the National Editorial Association at Hotel Statler.

"These deficiencies and inadequacies are, I suspect, largely due to the fact that our nation seems to have lost, at least temporarily, the dynamism which until now has characterized our conduct," he declared. "Our policies have been almost entirely defensive policies of so-called containment. That marks a serious retrogression . . .

"Every since its birth, this nation has conducted a political and psychological warfare against despotism, and we have done so with outstanding success. Our nation was founded as an experiment in human liberty, not merely for ourselves but that all men might benefit. We sought here human institutions which would help men to develop their God-given possibilities . . .

"We became a sort of magnet which set up such attractions that people subject to despotism could no longer be held under despotism. Thus we helped to roll back a tide of despotism which, until our nation was formed, flowed even into this hemisphere under the leadership of Czar Alexander and his Holy Alliance.

Threat Not New

"What we face today is really nothing new. We have faced it before. The solution is not obscure. We have found it before.

"Today one-third of the human race is subject to the despotic terrorism of a new dark age. It is morally impossible for us to reconcile ourselves to that as a permanent condition or to buy security for ourselves by some 'deal' which would confirm that servitude. We cannot settle for a containment which contains 800,000,000 captive souls.

Our forebears would have considered it simple and inevitable to break up this moral monstrosity. It could never stand against an attack as this nation launched during the first century of the republic and, indeed the German despotism of 1918 and which led the Germans to surrender while their armies still stood unconquered on foreign soil."

Prestige Beclouded

Dulles said that this country's greatest weakness today in dealing with other nations was that "the prestige of freedom has been dimmed so that it is no longer the tremendous moral power that it used to be."

"In much of the world," he said "people wonder whether they want freedom which produces the kind of fruits they see in this country. They are not much interested in the fact that we have a vast supply of material gadgets. What they see is a freedom which shows itself as license; . . . which involves a decline of moral standards to a point where it seems that men do not discharge honorably positions of high trust unless they are compelled by a network of laws enforced by an omnipresent police force."

Thus, he said, America has lost its goodwill and prestige and needs first to regain it by "a rededication to the faith and works of our fathers."

Dulles said the present Administration had become "a victim of its own war propaganda about Soviet Russia."

"During the war," he said, "as a war necessity, it had portrayed Soviet Russia as a freedom-loving, peace-loving democracy, and it had said that so often it had come to believe it . . .

"The result was that we got off to a bad postwar start. We were cut off balance and have never yet regained our balance."

He declared that the U. S. had failed to take into account these aspects of Communism and its program of world domination:

1—That it is concentrating first on controlling Asia.

2—That it is essentially political instead of military, using its influence to foment revolution and its armed might only as a threat.

3—That it is not a short-term threat that can be met with "a burst of effort to meet some early deadline."

Space Cadet Corbett Reporting for Duty, Sir

The Man-Made Moon envisioned by Werner von Braun, German scientist, who developed the V-2 rocket used during World War II, may seem like pure fantasy to practical-minded people, but so at one time was the idea of a bomb as powerful as the one exploded over Hiroshima. We regard this latest speculation with considerable respect, although the prospects of such a device in a world torn asunder by hatreds and violence is anything but reassuring.

According to Von Braun, the visian is one of a military space station over 1000 miles above the earth. The station would circle the globe twice every 24 hours and the men stationed in it would be able to observe comparatively small objects such as human beings within a strip 1000 miles wide.

The significance of such a development is staggering. No place on earth would be secret from the inquiring eyes and cameras of the men on the space station. Atom bombs and guided missiles could be launched from it to any place on earth.

Military men have long talked wistfully of being able to get a base on the moon from where they would be able to observe all parts of the earth and, if necessary, launch projectiles. But getting to the moon involves a knotty transportation and logistics problem. The idea of Von Braun seems much more plausible, if less reassuring.

There is one bright spot in the picture, however. Prof. Von Braun is taking out American citizenship papers. But we wonder if there aren't scientists on the other side of the iron curtain who might have conceived of such a plan. It would be foolish to assume we have all the brains on our side. — The Farmington (Mo.) Press.

The Buck Creek Philosopher

Editor's note. The Buck Creek Philosopher on his Johnson grass farm on Buck Creek has been listening to the candidates, his letter this week reveals.

Dear editor:

For a while, the various campaigns for the Presidential nomination had me worried.

There wasn't anybody running on a platform of reducing taxes, and it just ain't natural, it's like getting married without promise to support your wife, but startin last week I notice most of em are fallin in line and you can now take your pick of havin taxes reduced by any where from 15 per cent to 50 per cent. So far ain't none come out in favor of wipin em out altogether, but I'm willin to listen.

As long as I can remember, candidates have been running on platforms of reducing taxes, and as long as I can remember taxes have been goin up, and while I had rather see a man run on a platform of less taxes than more, if nothin else it just sounds better, still I would like to see some of em accomplish their ends occasionally and I have figured out a way.

When a candidate stands up and says "I will reduce your taxes 15 per cent the first year I'm in office," we ought to believe him and sort of take him at his word, and at the end of that year, if he rides into office, what we ought to do is take off 15 per cent of the previous year's tax total and send him a bill for it.

This would have one of two results! Either it would reduce taxes 15 per cent, or it would reduce promises.

Of course you understand when I say I'm in favor of reducing taxes, it goes without saying the reduction should come through cuttin out waste and extravagance in Washington or Austin or at the court house, and not through cuttin down on any road improvements or other governmental service slated for this area out here. We ain't quite getting our share like it is. Anybody can reduce taxes by lettin things slide, what I want is reduced taxes and increased services both in the same year.

As I see it, everybody running for anything this year is opposed to graft and corruption and high taxes, so all we got to do is get the election held and everything will be straightened out, no matter who gets in where.

Yours faithfully,
J. A.

Bible Comment

FOR JULY 6

Attitude of Mind Is Essence of Faith

At the outset of Job's sufferings his wife appears. Many wives have been a support to their husbands in times of need, but such was not the case with Job's wife.

Apparently without any vital faith herself she virtually taunted Job with his own faith, saying to him, in effect, "Now, where's your God? What's the use of your faith, when you're covered from head to foot with boils? You'd better curse God and die."

What a woman! A man covered with boils could be pardoned for being irritable, but Job surely was doubly justified in losing some of his patience, and telling her that she was speaking like a fool: "Thou speakest as one of the foolish women speaketh."

But in the rest of his reply wisdom conquered impatience. In memorable words he said: "What? Shall we receive good at the hand of God, and shall we not receive evil?" The record truly says that "in all this did not Job sin with his lips."

There were times when Job's faith and patient endurance were not so strong, when his suffering seemed greater than he could bear, and when he felt as Jesus was to feel on the Cross, as if God had forsaken him. One might call such a mood a not unnatural reaction to intense suffering. The outcry of Jesus was more an agonizing prayer than an expression of lack of faith. Did He not say to the penitent thief, "Today shalt thou be with me in Paradise?"

It is not the mood of the moment, but the attitude of mind and heart—and will—that is the essence of faith, and of trust in God.

The Bible teaches consistently that the good and upright are secure in God's keeping, no matter what may befall them, but it does not teach that they are immune from trouble. The prophets held their faith and were true to their mission through deep persecution

Emmett, the five-year-old "Alligator boy" of Florida was in Wellington this week with his parents. He was on exhibition on the east side of the square. He is as any other except his skin is like that of an alligator.

His father is known in Florida as the "Alligator King," because of his alligator hunts. One day while his father was skinning an alligator his wife came out to watch. While she was standing there, the alligator floundered and struck her with its tail, frightened her, and when the child was born it had skin like an alligator. He can not go to school, so they are putting him on exhibition so they can make money for a private tutor.

Looking Ahead With George S. Benson

A good psychiatrist once told me that the basis of much of the mental illness among mankind was man's habit of "doing things he ought to do." Once he forms the habit of doing the things he wants to do, he becomes mentally frustrated when the time comes that he cannot do some of those things. Such frustration, or the lack of ability to adjust oneself to it, is the root of many kinds and degrees of mental illness.

If for no other reason than for the sake of his mental health, man should be either less selfish or more adjustable, according to our psychiatrist friend. The Bible admonishes that "The love of money is the root of all evil." This supports the more fundamental axiom: "Selfishness is the root of all evil." We need to better understand this basic impulse — selfishness — for it is common to all humanity, and while Christianity seeks to temper and discipline it, charlatans and demagogues appeal to it to gain political office and power, and, finally, to enslave the people.

NORMAL SELFISHNESS

It's normal for me, or you, to want to get "the most for our money." Likewise the inclination to accept all proffered gifts is normal. When we see our neighbor with a shiny new automobile, which we can't afford on our income, it's normal to want one like it. If we cannot adjust ourselves to not having one, we either become frustrated or we buy the new automobile and plunge ourselves head over heels in debt.

Most of us adjust ourselves to living within our incomes. But should someone come along and offer us a new automobile, just like our neighbor's, in exchange, for our old one plus only a few dollars, our impulse would be to take it. An acquaintance of mine did that one time, and the new automobile turned out to be a "hot" one, stolen in another city. The police soon came and took it. His old one never was found.

"PROMISING" CANDIDATES.

In many states political primary campaigns now are underway. The other day one of the candidates for governor said, "When I'm elected I'm going to give the 'old folks' more money." Such "promising" politicians have frequently dominated the political stage in America. Since one form of selfishness is to want to come by things for the least cost, the politicians who have promised the most things for the least cost, to the most people, quite often have won the elections. When these politicians are elected they usually try to fulfill their promises regardless of cost — if for no other reason than to retain the votes of all the groups to which the promises were made. That's how government grows big and costly and political power becomes entrenched and dangerous.

During the 12 years of our Harding College National Education Program we have recognized the existence of man's normal selfish impulse. The various phases of our program have constantly discussed the nature and value of liberty, man's individual freedom. But in striving to awaken a better appreciation of our American freedom system we've placed the heavy emphasis on how the individual's personal economic we being can best be served. For people who have experienced freedom all their lives, the term "freedom" has only an abstract meaning. But "plenty to eat and plenty to wear, good housing and a college education for the kids" — these are meaningful things. The "promising" politician touches this sensitive point over and over again.

OUR REAL SELF-INTEREST

Where, actually, when we stop to think, does the best self-interest of the American voter lie? In reliance on political office holders? Or does it exist in the kind of wide-open opportunity every citizen has in our great productive private enterprise system? Are politicians more reliable as producers of wealth, goods and services, than the men who have built factories and developed such wonderful devices as the automatic washing machine?

And if we're to be helped financially by the "promising" politicians, where does the money come from? If it is to come out of somebody else's pocket, extracted forcefully by "equalizing" law, would we be morally justified in taking it? And even forgetting the morals, would this kind of socialistic "equalizing" in the long run work to our best economic self-interest? As the political candidates take the stage this summer, these are questions every American should ask himself, searching deep in his soul and his rational mind for the answers.

Here is more about agriculture in New York State.

I suppose that many of you readers of The Wellington Leader wonder why I continue to write about agriculture in New York. The reason is simple. Most of us in Texas think of New York City, Wall Street, and some eight million teeming people huddled together when we think of New York. I have been to that great city three times before and it is wondrous to see but it is not New York State.

Rich alluvial soil formed by the grinding of the glaciers at the end of the ice age made this a rich land in the days of the Mohawks, the Mohicans, the Senecas, the Geneseees, the Iroquois and other notable tribes who had reached a degree of human understanding and relationship that was better—far better—than any that exists among the nations of the world today.

This rich land where rivers and lakes provided an adequate means of travel, was never despoiled by the Indians. And the foliage from the trees of the deep forests added appreciable humus and fertility to the already rich glacial cultivated land through the centuries. The Indians did not disturb the forests to a great extent. They burnt off small patches to make clearings where they could raise some corn and a limited number of vegetables and where they could get a better chance to shoot the game they needed as meat to go with the fish they got from the rivers and lakes.

Then came the coming of the so-called white man who by improved weapons and superior numbers drove the native Americans farther and farther west. The English drove the Dutch out of New Amsterdam—now New York City—and they were joined by others who had a love of the land. They took care of it and cherished it from generation to generation. And so it is today about as fertile as it was in the beginning of its use by the people who came from Europe.

Last week I wrote that New York produced more hay annually than any other state in the nation. We moved through some of the great hay producing regions yesterday and the day before in coming from Corning through Ithaca to Syracuse. (You tend to think of Corning as glass manufacture and the others in terms of industrial output; but I am writing about agriculture).

It is interesting to note how the farmers of New York State handle their hay. They plant a combination of desirable grasses and legumes in the same field. For instance, a few fields that included timothy grass, Laydonia clover (won't do good at home) and some other legume—probably white clover. They gather this and put it in the barns for their cows. Another of their hay practices is to plant winter wheat and alfalfa at the same time. They do not gather the wheat as grain as the farmers in the Panhandle do. Instead they cut as hay and make it into silage about the time the alfalfa is getting ready to start growing good. Then they get two cuttings of rich alfalfa hay to store in the great lofts above their big dairy barns.

I could read the signs in the fields fairly well until I came to a field of golden yellow and turned to ask Don Christie, a New York editor, what kind of grass or legume that was. He snorted: "that is a field of mustard for Mr. Heinz." First time I ever knew that they raised mustard in whole sixty acre fields like we raise alfalfa in Collingsworth.

Believe it or not, New York State ranks about third in its production of agricultural products in dollars and cents. Part of this is due to the fact that their transportation facilities are unexcelled. They have water transportation with its consequent low rates; they have rail transportation; they have rail transportation by freight and for real quick transportation they get some vegetables and fruits to the markets by plane.

I mention transportation in connection with Agriculture in New York; because it is most important. A lot of you farmers and stockmen there in the Wellington area think that you are doing all the work and that such transportation agencies as the Denver, the Katy, Cudd Brothers, Harwell and Horton and other trucking agencies are simply living off of your bounty. That is a fallacy in thinking. It is the transportation facilities and their variety that gives the farmer in New York State such an advantage over the farmer in our inland area.

A New York farmer can find a ready market for anything he can raise. He does not have to study a lot of figures and statistics that our dry land farmers have to study. He can sell anything that he can raise the mostest of the fastest of. He raises everything including cabbage, eating corn, beans, potatoes, and other vegetables. He raises high quality apples, peaches and grapes—grapes for jellies and grape juice and grapes for fine wines and champagne.

Interruption of this agricultural discourse to comment on the weather: It is as hot as everything up here in New York State. For three days the editors from Washington, Maine, Oregon and especially New York have been kidding me on how hot it must be in Texas. I took it with my usual pleasant smile for about three days; but I blew my top today and proceeded to give them a lecture on humidity, aridity and temperature. I did not call any of my other editor friends any names; but I notice that they have not mentioned the weather in Texas to me since that time.

Yesterday we toured through one of the great dairy regions of New York. It is rolling country and sometimes there are great valleys; but all of the land is protected by grass or planted fields or trees and there is no sign of erosion as can be seen in some places of our section of the nation. We passed field rich with new mown hay and the fragrance came up stronger than the fumes of the buses on which we were traveling. There were the big farm homes and the bigger dairy barns and the silos. And there were the herds of Holstein cows with their bags so full of milk that you could see some of them break into a run when the farmer called. It was not food they wanted. They wanted to get relieved of the tremendous amount of milk they produce each day.

The cows are Holstein for a definite reason. The farmers of New York want to produce milk for the millions of children in this ready market. They have selected the Holstein because of its great productivity of raw milk. Other states favor the Jersey and the Guernsey because of their richer butter production.

But in addition to the milk, there is the tremendous production of poultry in New York State. You could see it as you drove along the countryside. Some were the places where they allowed breeding stock to roam in the green enclosed fields; but others were buildings where they raised broilers. All and all this is a rich agricultural state. Wisconsin produces more dairy products; but New York is close behind although theirs is mostly milk and Wisconsin's is cheese. California produces more grapes; but the wines of and champagne of New York are considered superior. I could go on with these comparisons no end; but I am in a mellow mood. I like the boasts of the New Yorkers about their agriculture. Not a single one of them has claimed that they produce more cotton than Texas.

Social Security Man Due Here Wednesday, July 9

Social Security Tax returns for April, May and June are to be filed in July, according to J. R. Sanderson, Manager of the Amarillo Social Security Field Office. This schedule applies to all employers, including employers of domestic help and farmers.

Every new employee hired should be asked to produce his Social Security Card. In this way the employer can be sure his tax return will show the employee's name and number correctly. Wages reported under an incorrect name or number, or without a number, cannot possibly be credited to the employee's account until the error is corrected. Such correction involves correspondence and sometimes personal contacts with the employer or employee and could be avoided by careful reporting by the employer.

In conclusion, Sanderson states that any employer or employee in the Panhandle Area with social security questions should contact or write the Social Security Field Office, New Post Office Building, in Amarillo.

A Representative from the Amarillo Social Security Office will be in Wellington at the County Court Room on Wednesday, July 9, at 9:00 a.m.

News Letter

From Congressman WALTER ROGERS

THE CONTROL PROGRAM: As most of you know, the House action on controls virtually eliminated all controls that the Members of Congress felt were unnecessary and detrimental to the economy. This bill goes to a conference committee between the House and the Senate to reconcile the differences between the two Houses. A number of the controls that were killed by the House are still in the Senate bill, and it is entirely possible that the conference committee will be confronted with some difficulty in agreeing on a final bill. In any event, the action of the House of Representatives was another step away from federal regimentation and government control. There are a number of strategic materials and supplies that are in short supply, and these must necessarily be subject to proper allocation in order to insure their availability for defense purposes. It has always been my position that this matter should be set up and treated in separate legislation so that the Congress would not be placed in the position of having to accept undesirable and unnecessary controls on materials and products not in short supply in order to insure proper allocation of these strategic products and materials. It was interesting to note in the proceedings that twelve of the Texas members cast identical votes on this legislation on all roll calls. These included four amendments and the vote on final passage. It was also interesting to note that all during the debate on this bill the gallery was well filled with employees of the OPS and many OPS cars were parked around the Capitol. If the House version of this bill prevails, it will mean that there will be a sizable reduction in the federal payroll insofar as the OPS and similar agencies are concerned. It will also mean that many small merchants in all fields will be relieved of the tremendous burden of having to devote most of their time to filling out government forms and trying to understand the double talk that is contained in most orders and regulations issued by these agencies. I know that will be a relief to these merchants and small business people and that they will certainly welcome it. You will no doubt be told that such a course will inevitably lead to inflation. Such is not the case. If any inflation results, it is going to be strictly man-made, and the people of this country can prevent it. There will no doubt be attempts by some selfish interests, political and otherwise, to frighten the American people by forcing prices up on some articles. This situation can be remedied very quickly by retaliation on the part of the house wife, who does most of the buying, and I hope that the people of this country will not permit themselves to be taken advantage of by selfish interests, either local or extra profit seeking.

During the debate I offered an amendment to try to correct the wrong that has been imposed upon the farmers under the Fair Labor Standards Act. It is that provision in the Fair Labor Standards Act that caused the farmers of our section of the country so much trouble the past two years during harvest. However, absenteeism caught up with us and cost us the amendment. There were only approximately 110 members present when this amendment came up, about one-fourth of the membership of the House. A great majority of these were big city members, and you can imagine what happened to us country boys when we tried to help the farmers and the migrant workers. It was another case of these so-called coalitions in the House falling to pieces. The extreme liberals teamed up with the so-called extreme conservatives and snowed the country boys under. We got two votes on the Republican side of the Aisle and eight on the Democratic side. However, this is not a new experience for those of us from the South and Southwest, but we never give up, and that is what worries the big city boys. We knew that we didn't have a chance of passing the amendment under the circumstances, but I wanted to separate the sheep from the goats, and that is exactly what we did.

THE NEW IMMIGRATION

LAW: The House soundly overrode the President's veto on the new immigration bill, and I sincerely hope that the Senate will do the same.

TIDELANDS: The tidelands bill is still in the Senate waiting to be voted on, on the question of overriding the President's veto. It presently appears that this vote will not be taken before fall. It was originally agreed, as I told you in a previous newsletter, that the vote would be taken between June 5th and the 10th. However, both sides were rather reluctant for an immediate showdown and postponed the matter. Unless there is a change in the plans, it could well be that the vote will not be taken until Congress reconvenes after the November elections, which is not improbable. This is one reason that I will hesitate to vote for adjournment sine die, as I want to see this tidelands veto overridden as soon as possible and these lands returned to their rightful owners, the States.

VISITORS from the district this week were Mrs. Louise Bowers and Miss Alyeen Ater, from Childress; Mrs. Bob Bradshaw and son Randel Bradshaw, from Borger; and Robert S. Rudd, from Amarillo, and Mrs. Effie Jewell Baggett, also from Amarillo.

SALT FORK

By MRS. R. H. ISBELL

We had a very quiet week end out this way — seems that June is going out like a lamb. Well, it came in like a lion and has blown the entire month. But in spite of the hard blowing, lots of crops look good in our community.

Cotton is really growing. Folks are really getting busy killing weeds now. It's cotton chopping time in a big way. Saw several hoe hands in Elmer Peemster's fields all last week. He has the biggest cotton I've seen anywhere.

We regret very much the serious illness of Mrs. Charlie Ogletree hope she will improve soon. The Ogletrees are long time residents of the county. They raised a large family of boys and girls on their farm in the Marrella community. Mrs. Ogletree moved to Wellington a few years ago.

Mrs. G. C. Wright is feeling very bad. Wasn't able to attend church Sunday.

Mrs. Gracie Mize of Wheeler visited her brothers family, the U. S. Boltons, two days last week.

Mrs. U. S. Bolton accompanied by Mrs. Bill Clifton returned Mrs. Mize to her home in Wheeler last Thursday afternoon. Mrs. Mize works in the hospital at Wheeler.

Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Wright, Charles and Edna Ellen were visitors in the Bill Clifton home in Wellington Saturday.

Rev. and Mrs. Cleveland and daughter, Bessie were in Amarillo Saturday on business. They stopped by the Wright and Isbell home for a short visit on their way home.

Mr. and Mrs. C. D. Messer were callers in the C. A. Wright home Saturday night.

Mrs. Maxwell is visiting her daughter's family in Dill City, Oklahoma, the Rev. Tom Boltons.

Mrs. G. C. Wright, Mrs. R. H. Isbell, Mrs. U. S. Bolton, Elena Nell, and Richard made their usual trip to the doctor Friday morning and rested a few hours in the Clifton home before driving home.

Mrs. Isbell and Richard Bolton are improving nicely. Mrs. Wright is not feeling so well lately.

Mr. and Mrs. Dee Harris of Leila Lake spent the week end in the Gollighugh home here.

Several from out here attended the singing in Wellington Sunday afternoon. Among those from here who went were Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Cummings.

We had two little visitors in our Sunday School Sunday. Bobbie and Sebern Groves who are spending the summer with their grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Buck Morris. Their mother, Mrs. Zora Bell Groves is improving slowly from her recent operation.

Mr. and Mrs. C. D. Messer spent Sunday in Clarendon with her parents. They returned their daughter home. The girls have been visiting the grandparents the past two weeks.

Folks, do you know that school begins in about four weeks? Hurry up kiddies and get your hoeing done and be ready for school. Heard one child say "We never have time for anything — it's just go to school—hurry to field between times." Oh well children, that is what makes smart minds and strong muscles.

Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Wright and Edna Ellen, Mrs. Bill Clifton, and Mr. and Mrs. R. H. Isbell attended church at Quail Sunday night.

Mr. and Mrs. Jess Cook visited their son and family, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Cook and daughters, Karen and Nikki of Smith Field, Texas, over the week end. Mr. and Mrs. Cook have a new baby son. He weighed 8 lbs. and 5 ozs. They named him Frank Cook, Jr., and he was born June 22.

V. C. Saied visited in the home of a friend over the week end in Lubbock.

Dr. Green explaining spinal nerves and their part in the function of various organs and glands throughout the body.

WHAT IS ARTHRITIS?

Arthritis is essentially an inflammation of the surfaces of the joint. This inflammation involves not only the bony surfaces, but the musculature and the ligaments surrounding the joint. In many instances, this joint inflammation results from excessive stresses and strains arising from improper functioning. This is a matter of faulty body mechanism, arising from bad posture, curvature of the spine, bones out of place, and other conditions which would induce body unbalance.

Another factor that is often involved in arthritis is faulty calcium metabolism. This means the body's ability to utilize for its own purpose the natural calcium salts found in certain foods.

Recent research has demonstrated that there is definite relationship between arthritis and an upset nervous system. Disturbances in the nervous system interfere with metabolism.

The chiropractor, in dealing with arthritis, seeks to restore normal body balance, and normal functioning of the nervous system. By removing the pressures which clog, re-establish the body's proper calcium metabolism as well as the correct mechanical functioning of its joints. When he does so, symptoms of arthritis disappear.

"Governments are instituted among Men, deriving their just powers from the consent of the governed. That whenever any Form of Government becomes destructive of these ends, it is the Right of the People to alter or to abolish it, and to institute a new Government..." (From the Declaration of Independence now 176 years true).

-- and the fight for Freedom must never cease!

Absolutism Government is no respecter of person or place. It can and does raise its ugly, ungodly standard over traditionally free soils as it does over England and the land of the Czars. None of the real, pretended, or promised benefits of Absolutism Government can in the end justify its existence.

The freedoms for which generations of Americans have fought and died are slipping away from us...centralized government and bureaucratic directives are nibbling away at our American heritage.

Freedom is not free—it had to be fought for, and you will have to fight to maintain it. Now is the time for everyone to come out, stand up, be counted, and vote the way he desires to vote, regardless of those who would perpetuate power politics.

Here's Exactly Why:

Just two ounces of aldrin per acre give more than 90% kill within one day... for even the worst infestation. And aldrin keeps killing hoppers that arrive up to five days after aldrin-izing. No other insecticide gives such fast control at such low cost.

Since even a light infestation—6 hoppers per sq. yard—can reduce range grass by 50%, aldrin's hopper-killing power is essential to maximum beef production on range.

WAS $6.25

NOW $1.37

It's getting to be a rare day when you see a real, genuine bargain advertised. In these days of planned economy everything seems to be included in the plans except economy.

But we have here an honest-to-Pete bargain to tell you about. It's a bargain because it's much more useful than it once was, and costs much less than it used to.

It's the television set.

In 1948 our 10-inch screen set cost $6.25 per square inch of picture. Today, our 20-inch set costs only about $1.37 per square inch, and gives you a much finer picture almost four times the size.

So, you see, with all the forces of inflation, a counterforce has been quietly at work. Research and engineering are steadily plugging along—improving products—making them do more, cost less, and last longer.

At least, that's the way it is at General Electric.

Sure, it's smart to look at the price tag. But it's also smart to look beyond... to the performance of the product and the name of the maker. The best possible products at the lowest possible prices—that's G.E.'s idea of good business.

Leggitt Seed Harvest HighSpraying Makes Money For Alfalfa Grower

By J. W. THOMAS
County Agent

When C. R. Leggitt's alfalfa comes into a good bloom and the thrip population builds up he sprays using two pounds of toxaphene per acre; in ten days to two weeks he repeats this spray. We find that this holds the bloom long enough to get an increased seed set.

Last year he harvested 230 lbs. of cleaned seed per acre from this 74 acre plot, which was considered a fine seed yield for our county. The year before, Mr. Leggitt sprayed once and harvested 220 lbs. of cleaned seed per acre. Before taking over this seed plot which was four or five years old at the time, the highest yield had been 160 lbs. of seed per acre. This field received 400 to 500 lbs. of superphosphate every other year which keeps the plants healthy and vigorous.

For the past two years we have noticed the difference between the production of corners in the field where the airplane would have to pull up for a hay barn and also a highline. The blooms in these corners are continually blasted by insects and there are usually only a few curls of seed set per seed stem. These plants never hold bloom long enough for a profitable seed stem. Often the leaves in this corner are very yellow through sucking by leaf hoppers and the growth of plant is stunted. This field, although a few years older than a field to the east, is in excellent stand and is very productive while the east field is spotting badly in stand and the plants are showing a phosphate deficiency through dwarfing and dying. This field produced 125 lbs. of seed per acre last year.

We are making slides of this field showing the difference in bloom on sprayed and unsprayed portions. Mr. Leggitt is spraying this field three times this year.

We notice that our bees, which are good alfalfa pollinators, always go to the sprayed fields within 24 to 48 hours after one of the farmers spray around our house. I guess they like the clean flower or do not like the competition for the nectar and pollen as afforded by the thrip.

This spraying costs the farmer $1.92 per acre for each spray and many farmers are beginning to use this step in management since the returns are so great—usually 50 per cent to 100 per cent increase in seed yield, with seed prices usually ranging from $25.00 to $45.00 per hundred lbs.

Jolly Family Here From California To Visit Friends

Mr. and Mrs. Grant Jolly of Bellflower, Calif., accompanied by their daughter-in-law, Mrs. J. L. Jolly and three children, were here last week visiting in the home of his sister, Mrs. J. A. Gordon, and with Mr. and Mrs. Elihu Johnson and other friends.

The family lived in the Lurie community for many years before selling their farm a few years ago and moving to California.

In Texas they also visited a daughter, Mrs. Ernie Robinson, the former Nellie Florence Jolly, and family in Amarillo.

Mr. Jolly said they were liking their present home very much, and Mrs. Jolly's health has improved since going there. Six of their children live in the vicinity of Los Angeles: Coleman Jolly, J. L. Jolly, Jr., Andy Jolly, Dodson who is the former Katherine Jolly, and Mrs. Carl Van Rie who is the former Lorene Jolly.

Cubs Hike, Picnic At Lugert Lake

They were accompanied by a group of parents.

During the coming six weeks, the Cubs will receive swimming instruction at Marian Airpark, Ed Poole, Cubmaster, has announced.

Teaching the boys will be Donald Briggs, pool manager, Joe Lynn Moore, life guard, and Mr. Poole.

Miss Pat Flow left Sunday to visit her parents at Jones, Oklahoma. She will later leave for Colorado where she will teach this fall.

Co. Represented In State Fair Wheat Exhibit

How the Panhandle produces wheat for the United States and the world will be shown in the Panhandle's chapter of the all-new "Story Book of Texas Agriculture" at the 1952 State Fair of Texas in Dallas, Oct. 4 through 19.

The Panhandle is included in the Texas A&M College System Extension District 1, which covers the following counties: Armstrong, Carson, Castro, Collingsworth, Dallam, Deaf Smith, Donley, Gray, Hansford, Hartley, Hemphill, Hutchinson, Lipscomb, Moore, Ochiltree, Oldham, Pomeroy, Potter, Randall, Roberts, Sherman and Wheeler.

A miniature combine in the Panhandle Story Book diorama will thresh real wheat all during the fair and dump it into small trucks in a manner designed to show the proportion of wheat that goes from Panhandle fields to U. S. and foreign consumer.

A small ramp across the front of the miniature "wheat field" will feature Master Mix, a wonder dough developed by extension workers and its variations for cakes, breads, and biscuits.

Vegetables will bank the sides of the "field," and triangular panels at each side will reveal color photographs of Panhandle scenes.

The Story Book will be one of the 1952 fair's most spectacular exhibits. It will include colorful, animated dioramas devoted to each of the 12 extension districts, plus displays telling of the work of Four-H clubbers and Negro Extension workers. Many of the "show window" type displays include live animals, growing plants, sound effects and clever mechanical figures.

A mammoth central exhibit will feature a huge map of Texas which shows the various soil areas of the state. The map is portrayed in phosphorescent paints that will glow dramatically when pinpointed by hidden spotlights. Bluebonnets, wheat, rice, sorghum and cotton will represent West Texas, and roses and pine trees will lend an East Texas flavor.

Pastors to MeetYOUTH RELIGIOUS COUNCIL FORMED BY CITY CHURCHES

A group of approximately 25 young people representing five of the city's churches met at the First Baptist Church, Sunday afternoon, June 29, to organize a city-wide youth fellowship for all churches.

The purpose of this organization will be to promote better understanding among the youth of various churches, to provide recreation and fellowship, and to solve teen-age problems through co-operative study and discussion.

Each church will elect one or more representatives to serve on a Youth Council to direct the movements of the organization. There will also be an Advisory Council consisting of two adult sponsors selected by the young people of each church.

There is to be another meeting Sunday, July 6, at 3:00 p.m. in the First Christian Fellowship Center directly behind the Church, to complete plans for the organization. A short talk dramatizing the need and purpose of the fellowship group will be presented after which will be games and refreshments for everyone.

Rev. Jack Garrett, pastor of the First Christian Church asked that the young people of churches not represented at the first meeting be present if they are interested in such a project. Effort is being made to contact the youth of all churches, but if for some reason we are unable to contact you, please consider this an invitation.

There will be a meeting at 2:00 p.m. of all pastors and sponsors who are interested in the organization. Parents who are interested in learning more about the project are invited to sit in on the youth meeting at 3:00.

Rev. Garrett stated that the interest of the youth is very encouraging and we hope that more young people will get behind this plan as it will be something that they will enjoy.

From 8 to 20 Bushels Per AcreWATER CONSERVATION PAYS OFF IN WHEAT YIELD FOR ALEXANDER

Here in Collingsworth county conservation of our water resources is being increasingly recognized as an essential part of soil conservation, says J. A. Coleman, chairman of the county PMA committee. Farmers who have carried out water conserving practices under the Agricultural Conservation Program find that measures taken to make better use of available water adds up to better land use and increased production.

Although no figures are available on the exact increases in production resulting from water conserving practices, there are enough examples of increased yields to show that results are significant. This is important, says Mr. Coleman, when the nation must depend so much on the land now being farmed for both present and future production.

On the E. C. Alexander farm west of Dodson the production of wheat has been stepped up 12 bushels per acre through the subsoiling practice. On 50 acres of land that was subsoiled 12 inches deep last summer produces 20 bushels per acre and in the same field where subsoiling was not done only produced 8 bushels per acre. This, according to the chairman, is but one of many examples of how ACP is helping the farmers of Collingsworth county to conserve water as a means of improving the productivity of their land.

He points out that the experiences here indicate that conservation is more than just keeping land from washing and blowing away and water from being wasted. The aim is to protect and improve the nation's source of food
