Second wave of attacks launched

WASHINGTON (AP) — Defense Secretary Donald H. Rumsfeld said only military sites were targeted and at least two dozen were hit in the first U.S.-British counterblow to the terrorist attacks on America.

The second wave today would hit more Taliban military sites and weaponry, a senior official said.

"We have approved every single target — and each one is a military target," the defense secretary said in an interview with The Associated Press. "There were two or three dozen targets."

British defense officials said 30 targets were hit, including three in the capital city of Kabul, in the first day of strikes Sunday.

Rumsfeld said the targets included terrorist training camps, military airfields, military aircraft, air defense radars and surface-to-air missile sites.

One military airport, he said, had both a civilian and military sections and only the military aircraft on one side of the field was targeted.

First reports of damage from the U.S. and British assaults indicated most targets appear to have been hit.

A senior defense official, speaking on condition of anonymity, said the next wave of attacks would hit again at the Taliban's military airfields, tanks and fighters. The attack would use hunter-strike aircraft from naval ships in the region and fewer long-range bombers, the official said. Before Sunday's attacks, the Taliban was believed to have about 15 operating fighter-bombers of Soviet vintage, and several hundred tanks and armored vehicles.

Appearing earlier in television interviews, Rumsfeld denied Taliban claims that an aircraft had been shot down in Sunday's attacks.

"There was fire from the ground by various types of surface-to-air missiles," he said on CBS' "The Early Show." But none of the U.S. or British planes was hit and all returned safely, he said.

The bombing attack was only one element of the U.S. and British campaign. It also includes humanitarian food drops.

Sunday's attack threw Tomahawk cruise missiles, 500-pound gravity bombs and computer-guided bombs at targets in at least three cities. The targets included early warning radars, surface-to-air missiles, airfields, aircraft, military command-and-control installations and terrorist camps.

Two C-17 cargo planes followed, dropping some 37,500 packets of food and medicine. The Bush administration hoped the supplies would soften the war's blow for hungry Afghans and those who had fled their homes in anticipation of fighting, as well as help convince them the strike was aimed at terrorists and not them.

Air Force EC-130 Commando Solo aircraft equipped for radio broadcasting flew over the area and broadcast the same message, officials said. Other undisclosed radio messages were directed at the Taliban.

The Taliban's ambassador to Pakistan said 20 civilians were killed in the strikes on the Kabul area. A check of four Kabul hospitals found no casualties. A Pentagon spokesman said it was too early to say if there were any.

Sources in Afghanistan said the strike began in the capital, Kabul, and that a loud explosion came from the area of an Osama bin Laden training camp about 12 miles south of Jalalabad. Taliban headquarters in Kandahar, that city's airport facilities, housing for followers of bin Laden and the home of a Taliban leader also were hit, Afghan sources said.

The strike was the first major military action to bolster the diplomatic, economic and financial anti-terrorism campaign started after the Sept. 11 attacks on the World Trade Center and Pentagon.

An initial goal of the strikes was to disable air defenses and to wipe out the military aircraft of Afghanistan's ruling Taliban militia, thus making conditions safer for further U.S. military and humanitarian action, he said.

Five U.S. airmen who flew missions Sunday said they faced some anti-aircraft fire from Taliban forces but didn't feel threatened.

Ridge sworn in to head U. S. security

WASHINGTON (AP) — With an anxious nation on high alert for terrorist reprisals, President Bush installed former Pennsylvania Gov. Tom Ridge as head of a new Office of Homeland Security. "America is going to be prepared," Bush pledged.

"I know that many Americans at this time have fears. We've learned that America is not immune from attack. We've seen that evil is real," Bush said at an East Room ceremony for Ridge. "They've roused a mighty giant."

Ridge, who had already taken a West Wing office and a seat in Bush's morning FBI briefing, was sworn in by Supreme Court Justice Clarence Thomas. As if to underscore the real threat of additional attack, original plans for Vice President Dick Cheney to give Ridge the oath of office were scrapped so that Cheney could remain at an undisclosed location.

Bush promised that civil liberties would not fall victim to new security. "We will defend our country and while we do so we will not sacrifice the freedoms that make our land unique," Bush said.

Ridge said his new task as one to "detect, prepare for, prevent, protect against, respond to and recover from terrorist attacks — an extraordinary mission but we will carry it out."

"The terrorists will not take away our way of life," Ridge said.

His assignment came a day after the United States and Britain launched attacks against military targets and bin Laden's terrorist training camps in Afghanistan.

The rocket and bomb attacks brought a fresh threat from bin Laden, who promised in a videotaped message on Sunday that Americans "will never dream of security or see it before we live it and see it in Palestine, and not before the infidels' armies leave the land of Muhammad."

Bush watched bin Laden's chilling broadcast on Sunday from the White House residence, White House press secretary Ari Fleischer confirmed Monday. "His reaction was first that this is much bigger than any one person. This is not a war against Osama bin Laden, this is a war against terrorists. ... He also noted that bin Laden virtually took responsibility for the attacks on the United States."

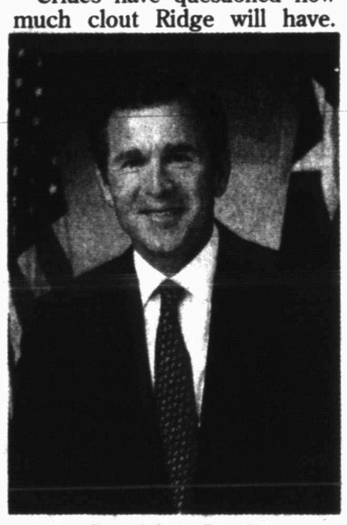

Fleischer added, "If Osama bin Laden was gone today, the war would continue tomorrow."

The FBI said Sunday night it was urging law enforcement agencies nationwide to "be at the highest level of vigilance and be prepared to respond to any act of terrorism or violence."

Bush gave Ridge a West Wing office just a few paces from his own, and a broad mission: Develop a "coordinated, integrated, national strategy to combat terrorism," White House spokesman Scott McClellan said.

Ridge was getting a staff of nearly 100, most of them currently working for the White House or other agencies, and a dozen employees of his own. He will report directly to the president, McClellan said.

Critics have questioned how much clout Ridge will have.

President Bush

Although Bush was naming him to his Cabinet, Ridge is not one of the 14 Cabinet members installed under federal law, each with his own budget and authority. Each president may designate any number of other top advisers as "Cabinet level," and that is what Bush did with Ridge.

McClellan said Ridge will have "significant input into the budgets of agencies involved in homeland security," though his own budget will be part of the White House's. "Governor Ridge will have all the authority he needs to get things done."

A Homeland Security Council consisting of Bush, Cheney, Ridge and various agency heads will tackle domestic terrorism much as the National Security Council advises the president on international affairs.

As the nation went to battle, the administration sought to heighten Americans' awareness of possible terrorist retaliation, without alarming them. "The American people need to be alert — threats do remain," White House press secretary Ari Fleischer said. "This is a war."

Throughout the weeks following the Sept. 11 attacks on New York's World Trade Center and the Pentagon, Bush has sought to project an air of normalcy. That was true today, as he was celebrating Columbus Day at the side of singer-actress Liza Minelli.

After delivering his address to the nation, Bush spent Sunday monitoring the military action from the White House.

He began the day at Camp David, Md., and attended a memorial service nearby for the 99 American firefighters who died in line of duty last year. Some 343 firefighters are dead or missing at the World Trade Center.

"Our nation still mourns," Bush said. "They did not live to know who had caused the destruction, or why, they only knew their duty, and that was to go in, to follow the faintest cry, to search for the trapped and helpless, and to save those who could be saved."

He had already ordered retaliation for their deaths.

Western Texas College board will hear small class report

The Western Texas College board of trustees will hear just one item of new business when it convenes for its monthly meeting at 7 tonight.

Dr. Jim Palmer, dean of academic instruction, will present the board with a small-class report. The small class report is required by the higher education coordinating board to justify classes with fewer than 10 students enrolled, according to WTC vice president Bettie McQueen.

Five items are on the agenda for information and discussion. They include pre-bid consideration for the 2002-2003 college catalog, permission to obtain requests for proposals on utilities, Texas Department of Criminal Justice contracts, the October calendar of events and the president's report.

The board also will consider accepting minutes from its last meeting and approval of the financial information report for Sept.

The meeting will be in the boardroom in the administration building on campus.

Gramm to honor local fire fighters

The safety promotion efforts of the Snyder Fire Department will be honored at 1 p.m. Tuesday at the department's headquarters at 1911 27th St.

Matt Schaefer, West Texas regional director for U.S. Sen. Phil Gramm, will present the department with a certificate of appreciation, and read a letter from Gramm recognizing the fire department's efforts to protect the community.

The recognition is part of National Fire Prevention Week celebrations this week.

National Fire Prevention Week was initiated by a presidential proclamation to promote and support local fire departments and to make the public aware of the many services firefighters provide to their communities.

American, 2 British researchers share Nobel

STOCKHOLM, Sweden (AP) — An American and two British researchers won the 2001 Nobel Prize in medicine today for basic discoveries in cell development that are expected to lead to new cancer treatments.

Leland H. Hartwell, 61, director of the Fred Hutchinson Cancer Research Center in Seattle, R. Timothy Hunt, 58, of the Imperial Cancer Research Fund in Hertfordshire, England, and Paul M. Nurse, 52, of the Imperial Cancer Research Fund in London will share the $943,000 award.

The scientists were honored for discovering key regulators of the cell cycle, which is the process cells go through to divide. Cells must grow, duplicate their chromosomes — the tiny DNA segments that contain genes — and divide the chromosomes to be distributed precisely to the cells that result from the cell division.

The discoveries are important to understanding how chromosome defects arise in cancer cells, the Nobel committee said. These alterations probably arise from defects in the control of the cell cycle, the committee said.

Research into the cell cycle field is about to be applied to diagnosing tumors and may eventually open new doors for therapy, the committee said.

Members of the prize committee stressed the research was still in its beginnings, but could have implications for all kinds of cancer.

"We are in an early stage; this will take time," said Klas Wiman, professor of cell and tumor biology at the Karolinska Institute. "All cancer cells have something wrong with the cycle and these discoveries have laid the foundation for understanding how the cell cycle affects cancer."

Hartwell studied yeast to identify more than 100 genes involved in controlling the cell cycle, starting around 1970. Nurse isolated the human version of a key cell cycle gene, called CDK1, in 1987. He also shed light on how regulating proteins called cyclin-dependent kinases, or CDKs, work.

Hunt, in the early 1980s, discovered "cyclins," proteins that bind to CDK molcules to regulate their activity.

CDK and cyclin work together to drive the cell through the cell cycle, said the Nobel Assembly at Stockholm's prestigious Karolinska Institute.

"The CDK molecules can be compared with an engine and the cyclins with a gear box controlling whether the engine wil run in the idling state or drive the cell forward in the cell cycle," the Nobel Assembly said.

The winners were selected from nominations received from professors, past laureates and other specialists from around the world, but the final choice for the prize in physiology or medicine was made in a morning vote today by the 50 professors who make up the Nobel Assembly.

"We've only just heard the news, so it's all a bit frantic here," said Dawn Boyall, spokeswoman for the Imperial Cancer Research Fund in London. "But they (Hunt and Nurse) are both absolutely delighted."

The physics prize is to be announced Tuesday, the prizes in chemistry and economics on Wednesday, and the peace prize on Friday. Because the nomination period ended Feb. 1, this year's peace prize is very unlikely to reflect developments since the Sept. 11 terror attacks on the United States.

In keeping with tradition, the date for the literature prize will be revealed only two days beforehand, although it is usually a Thursday in October.

The awards are always handed out Dec. 10, the anniversary of prize creator Alfred Nobel's death in 1896. The laureates arrive to receive gold medals, diplomas and checks in the presence of the king of each country, followed by banquets laden with pageantry.

The Nobel Memorial Prize in Economic Sciences was established separately in 1968 by the Swedish central bank but is grouped with the other awards To mark the centennial this year, all living laureates have been invited to the ceremonies and related seminars, with some 150 expected in Stockholm and 30 in Oslo, including former South African President Nelson Mandela and former Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev.

The medicine prize, which was first received by Emil Adolf von Behring of Germany for his discovery of a diphtheria vaccination, was to be given to "the person who shall have made the most important discovery within the domain of physiology or medicine," according to the will.

Last year's winners were Arvid Carlsson of Sweden and Americans Paul Greengard and Eric Kandel for research on how brain cells transmit signals to each other, thus increasing understanding on how the brain functions and how neurological and psychiatric disorders may be better treated.

Nobel, a Swedish industrialist who invented dynamite, established the awards in his will.

Security tightened at Texas airports

By The Associated Press

Texans praised retaliatory strikes against terrorism and also prayed for a return to peace as state security measures were tightened and residents braced for a protracted allied response that could trigger more domestic attacks.

"It's about time to get on with it," said Mike Currie, who was awaiting friends at Dallas-Fort Worth International Airport on Sunday when the American-led attack began on Afghanistan and Osama bin Laden's terrorist network. "There's a job that has to get done."

Travelers at DFW and other airports found stricter security measures as attacks began. The number of uniformed soldiers on patrol at DFW increased Sunday. At Dallas Love Field, soldiers have helped police prescreen passengers before they reach normal security checkpoints.

Some Texans had been impatient about the U.S. response to terrorists' destruction of the World Trade Center and damage to the Pentagon on Sept. 11.

"I thought it was about time," said investment banker Sara Little at Houston's Memorial Park. "I think there are a lot of people who feel that way."

Carpenter Philip Newmons, entering a department store in west Harris County with friend Jeff Hattenbach, had been impatient for military action.

"Let's get it over with," said Newmons. "Let's bring (bin Laden) back here and hang him from the nearest tree."

Hattenbach agreed, saying, "About time we get on with it."

The state activated its State Emergency Operations Center in Austin after the United States and Great Britain launched military strikes.

Some stricter security measures were added at Bush Intercontinental and Hobby airports, said Ernie DeSoto, spokesman for the Houston Aviation Department.

"This is one of those times we need to emphasize (to travelers) to come early" to the airport, he said.

"You may be checked twice or three times," DeSoto said. He also said passengers might be subject to a hand search even after they have gone through a metal detector.

But no flights were altered on Sunday as a result of the military attacks.

Jackie Mayo, spokeswoman for Austin-Bergstrom International Airport, said additional police were on patrol there.

About 40 people from various state agencies quickly took their positions at the State Emergency Operations Center as the Division of Emergency Management for the Texas Department of Public Safety activated the center at a Level II, escalated response phase.

After President Bush announced the attack on Afghanistan, congregants and guests entered Shepherd King Lutheran Church on Sunday night. Each stopped to light a candle before praying for peace.

The pastor, the Rev. John R. Braulick, was joined at the service by Imam Muhammad Amin Aziz of the Islamic Center of San Antonio and several people of the Jewish faith.

The service, which was supposed to honor those who died in the terrorist attacks in New York City, Pennsylvania and at the Pentagon, changed in scope after the air war began earlier Sunday.

"There's an added emphasis on the unity that we need and the faith that we have in a God who is ultimately in control," Braulick said. "Love will prevail over hate, and we should pray for our nation."

Prayers went up all over the city at churches and at the Northwest Side Islamic Center mosque, where Aziz prayed for peace with several other Muslims before attending the Lutheran service.

Retired Col. Archie Donahue of the U.S. Marine Corps, who lives in Harlingen, said he was confident that attacks by allied warplanes and cruise missiles were only the beginning of the campaign's success.

"The president's handled this just right," Donahue said.

Jury selection now underway for man's competency hearing

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — A Salvadoran man accused of taking Texas' top-ranking Catholic clergyman and another person hostage with a fake grenade will receive a competency hearing.

Jury selection was scheduled to get under way today. The hearing will determine if Nelson Escolero is mentally fit to stand trial on charges that he held Archbishop Patrick Flores and his secretary hostage last year.

Escolero, 40, is facing two counts of aggravated kidnapping. Several doctors, including the Bexar County Jail's medical director, already have diagnosed Escolero as mentally unfit to stand trial.

The defendant would be sent to a state mental facility if jurors believe the doctors. He would be treated there until he is capable of understanding the charges against him if ever.

"Maybe it'll only take several weeks, or several months for him to get well," defense attorney Patrick Hancock said, "maybe not at all."

The El Salvador citizen's court-appointed attorney said earlier that if Escolero is cleared to stand trial, he will argue that his client was insane when he walked into the Catholic Chancery last June claiming he was armed with a live grenade.

Distraught over his immigration status and other personal problems, Escalero held the archbishop and his secretary hostage in Flores' second-floor office for nine hours. Hundreds gathered outside the Chancery to pray for Flores' release.

While law officers tried by phone to talk Escolero into surrendering, Flores' secretary finally slipped away. Flores eventually persuaded his captor to give up.

Escalero was escorted late last month from a courtroom after he became unruly and rambled on incoherently.

The trial of Escolero was moved because of publicity to Rockport, 173 miles southeast of San Antonio.

Texas lawmakers support U.S. retaliation

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Bush and America's military drew bipartisan support from members of Texas' congressional delegation as the United States retaliated against terrorist leader Osama bin Laden and his Taliban backers in Afghanistan.

"As America strikes back against terrorism today, I want to express my full faith and confidence in President Bush, our commander in chief, and in the men and women in uniform serving our great country," House Majority Leader Dick Armey said.

"They have prepared well and they are ready to serve in this noble and righteous purpose," he said.

Rep. Martin Frost of Dallas, chairman of the Democratic Caucus, said Sunday's military action was justified and necessary.

"President Bush rightly stated that our patience will be our strength in the war against terrorism," Frost said. "We have resolved ourselves for this fight and now must see it through."

While praising the response to the Sept. 11 terrorist attacks on the East Coast, the congressmen emphasized the strikes are only the opening salvos.

Several warned the attack will be different from the Gulf War, which was short, involved ground troops and resulted in few casualties, and Bosnia, where the U.S. engaged in continuous bombing.

"We cannot put too much value into one day or one week. We have to be clear-eyed about how this is a different kind of war," said Rep. Mac Thornberry, R-Clarendon, a member of the House Armed Services Committee. "We should not underestimate how difficult it is to attack an enemy that is spread throughout the world and lays low."

"I do not know exactly how long this war will last, but I do know that America is right and those who attacked us are terribly wrong, and I know that the storm unleashed today will continue until the evil is eradicated," said Republican Sen. Phil Gramm, who was home Sunday when news of the strikes broke.

"My thoughts are with men and women who are defending us by hunting down the fanatics who murdered our countrymen," Gramm said.

"Our resolve to defeat the cancer of international terrorism is fixed and unshakable," said Majority Whip Tom DeLay, R-Sugar Land.

"This is something I believe needs to be done, that is going in and ferreting out the terrorists in Afghanistan and continuing to recognize that there are tentacles worldwide we need to also eliminate," said Rep. Silvestre Reyes, D-El Paso.

Rep. Nick Lampson, D-Beaumont, said humanitarian aid drops would be key in the success of the attacks and overthrow of the Taliban, Afghanistan's ruling government.

Since the Sept. 11 attacks, Lampson has been involved in efforts to secure Texas' petrochemical and aviation industries to shore up their security.

"My feeling is these people will attempt to retaliate somehow, someplace. I hope that it is not on our soil," Lampson said.

Others shared the fear. But they all said it should not prevent the United States from continuing its assault on the Taliban, said Rep. Ken Bentsen, D-Houston.

"Even if we didn't respond, I think they (the Taliban) would still try to do something. We have no choice," Bentsen said.

Rep. Henry Bonilla said he was home Sunday with his children, watching coverage of the attacks, answering their questions, while still trying to keep life normal.

"Osama Bin Laden wants to see us cower. He wants to see our American life change. He wants to see fear in eyes of Americans," Bonilla, R-San Antonio, said. "The more we do to stay on track with every day activities, the more that is a slap in the face to him."

Gunman kills veterans' center resident

TEMPLE (AP) — Three men wrestled a gunman to the ground and held him for police after shots were fired in a cafeteria at a Central Texas veterans' center, killing a resident and injuring two others.

Temple police Lt. Lyn Salvany identified the man killed as Michael Kinsey, 43. The two wounded were taken to Scott and White Hospital, where they were listed in serious but stable condition today morning.

The 73-year-old suspect was also identified as a resident of the Olin E. Teague Veteran's Center. He suffered minor injuries when others in the residential unit's cafeteria wrestled him down.

He was treated at Scott and White and then placed in Bell County Jail, said police Lt. Edward Best. He was expected to be arraigned on today.

Police, dispatched to the scene at noon Sunday, found the suspect being restrained.

"He was completely subdued when we got there," Best said.

Daryl Rogers, 45, a resident at the unit who was in the cafeteria, told the Temple Daily Telegraph that the man fired three shots.

"And when I looked up, the shooter was panning around the room with a pistol looking for someone else to shoot," he said.

Rogers said he ducked behind a column when the pistol was pointed at him.

"I heard someone yell 'get him,'" Rogers said, before two men tackled the man and a third pinned him down.

Resident Barry Chatman, who said he was one the three who subdued the suspect, asked the enraged man why he had opened fire.

"He said that the man he killed had tormented his father for 17 years and it was time for him to go," Chatman said. "I asked him about the two he had injured and he replied that they were there."

John Howell, 76, and Bob Tobin, 71, said they knew the man who had done the shooting. They described him as quiet and unassuming.

"In my own opinion, he would be the last person I would pick out as an assassin," Tobin told the newspaper.

Best and Salvany said the suspect knew the victims.

Salvany said a 9 mm Beretta semiautomatic pistol was recovered.

Best said the Police Department was not releasing any suspected motives.

"The only thing we're releasing now is he did know the victims," he said. "We're letting the public know it was a personal matter."

Best said police estimate there were between 30 and 40 people in the cafeteria at the time of the shooting.

Kinsey's body has been sent to Dallas for an autopsy.

Temple is 120 miles south of Dallas in Central Texas.

Retailer will sell bin Laden pinatas

McALLEN (AP) — A border retailer who initially decided not to sell pinatas made to look like terrorist suspect Osama bin Laden has changed his mind.

Rene Karam, owner of JJ's Party House in McAllen, said he's going to sell the papier-mache bin Ladens but at least 10 percent of the proceeds will go to New York firefighters, who were some of the thousands killed when two hijacked airplanes crashed into the World Trade Center Sept. 11.

To avoid offending anyone locally, the pinatas won't be sold in the store, but Karam said he will sell them over the Web and on Ebay.

The Mexican packages of paper or clay that spew candy when children hit them with a stick will sell for $30 plus $35 for shipping.

Lady Luck could open some doors for you in the year ahead that would further your ambitions. When you see your chances, be prepared to utilize them to the fullest.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) — Merely relying on your assertiveness and force of will to accomplish your objectives today won't work. The harder you push, the harder you're apt to be pushed back. Trying to patch up a broken romance?

The Astro-Graph Matchmaker can help you understand what to do to make the relationship work. Mail $2.75 to Matchmaker, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 167, Wickliffe, OH 44092-0167.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) — In your haste to get issues on the table today, you might be tempted into being argumentative. It won't save time; it'll end up complicating the matter.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) — Financial conditions appear to be a bit more troublesome than usual today. Don't do anything that could further jeopardize your holdings and resources.

CAPRICORN (Dec, 22-Jan. 19) — Be careful with whom you lock horns today. If you get a bit too pushy for your own good and attempt to dominate one who won't be ordered about, you won't like the results.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) — If you don't know what you're doing today when attempting a job you've never done before, don't try to wing it, especially when working with unfamiliar tools. Be safe, not sorry.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) — Should you get involved in a competitive sport today and someone begins to take things a bit too seriously, tempers could fly. Don't let things get out of hand.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) — The reasons why it may be difficult for you to achieve an important objective today is because of the ill-prepared methods and procedures. Sheer force alone won't cut it.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) — It isn't worth getting in a dither today over someone whose views diametrically oppose yours. Keep a cool head so that things won't get heated.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) — With the discovery that a business transaction isn't good for either the buyer or the seller today, don't waste time trying to make a bad deal better. Bite the bullet and pull out.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) — You must take measures to make certain that any disagreement between you and your mate isn't aired in public today. Both parties' images will be tarnished.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) — Although you've got plenty of industriousness going for you today, if you attempt to operate above your skill level, there isn't much chance you'll produce anything of worth.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) — If you exercise little tolerance today for those who, in your opinion, aren't politically correct, be prepared for others to start grading your behavior as well.

Dear Abby

By Abigail Van Buren

Generosity of strangers is sign of American's strength

DEAR ABBY: I had searched all over the city of Los Angeles for an American flag for my car. Saturday afternoon, around 2:30, I stopped for a red light on Wilshire Boulevard. In the car next to mine were two young women who had a flag mounted outside their window. I lowered my window and asked where they got their flag. They said they had waited in line two hours to purchase two flags, and then the passenger reached into the back seat and handed me one.

I don't know their names. I do know that it is acts of patriotism like theirs that will keep this country strong and proud. Please print this so they'll know their kindness and generosity were appreciated. — DR. DOROTHY NEUMAN, BEVERLY HILLS, CALIF.

DEAR DR. NEUMAN: I'm pleased to do it. Your benefactors deserve to be saluted. I have heard stories about opportunistic people who stormed flag stores and bought flags by the dozen, only to resell them at double or triple the usual price. Greed at the expense of patriotism is shameful. Read on:

DEAR ABBY: I am 12 years old and am concerned about how people are treating each other.

After the terrorist attacks on Sept. 11, many people have been treating Muslims badly because they suspect that the people who were responsible came from the Middle East. That is not fair! We should not hurt people who probably were not even connected with these attacks. It's like saying one person killed someone, so their sister must have killed someone, too.

Please print this, Abby. In times like this the people in our country should join together, not tear each other apart. — RACHAEL ERICKSON

DEAR RACHAEL: Well said. I am also concerned about reports of the scapegoating of Arab-Americans (both Christian and Muslim) and of brown-skinned people who happen to resemble them (for example, Hispanics, Indians and Southeast Asians). I hope your letter will make the guilty parties stop and rethink what they are doing. Such acts are a reflection of panic and ignorance, not patriotism. Read on:

DEAR ABBY: Your recent column about rape and the stigma that goes along with it got me to thinking. I was raped 19 years ago on Sept. 11. The violent acts of terrorism that occurred on Sept. 11, 2001, are much like being raped. It was not our fault. We were unable to see it coming. We couldn't stop it from happening. Americans lost their sense of security and became afraid. This is what happens to rape victims. Just like rape victims, Americans' lives have been forever changed. — DOUBLE VICTIM IN INDIANA

DEAR DOUBLE VICTIM: Thank you for a thought-provoking letter. Our country has much to be proud of. Our people are united in a way we haven't been for 60 years, and we're receiving overwhelming support from the family of nations. These are challenging times, but America is at her best when faced with challenges.

Westerners capture Sul Ross rodeo title

ALPINE — After dominating the long round, the Western Texas men's squad continued its success in the finals Saturday to capture the title of the Sul Ross State University rodeo.

The Westerners tallied 195 points to hold off Vernon by five points in the final standings, while the WTC women finished only 20 points behind Eastern New Mexico for second place.

"Our men have been performing this well for most of the season, but this time we came out on top," said WTC coach Greg Rhodes. "Almost everybody picked up points in the short round. We did leave some points on the table, but in the future we're going to bring home those points, also."

The Westerners were spurred by the performance of bareback rider Tyson Thompson who tallied a score of 83 points to win the short round and finish first in the average.

Fellow bareback rider Lane Morrow earned third place with a 77 to put him third in the overall standings.

Clint Cooper carried the Westerners in the calf roping with a time of 9.7 seconds to secure second place in the finals and overall standings.

In the saddle bronc event, Dalton Kraft and Clint Cooper tied for fourth in the finals with a 64. The ride gave Kraft third in the average.

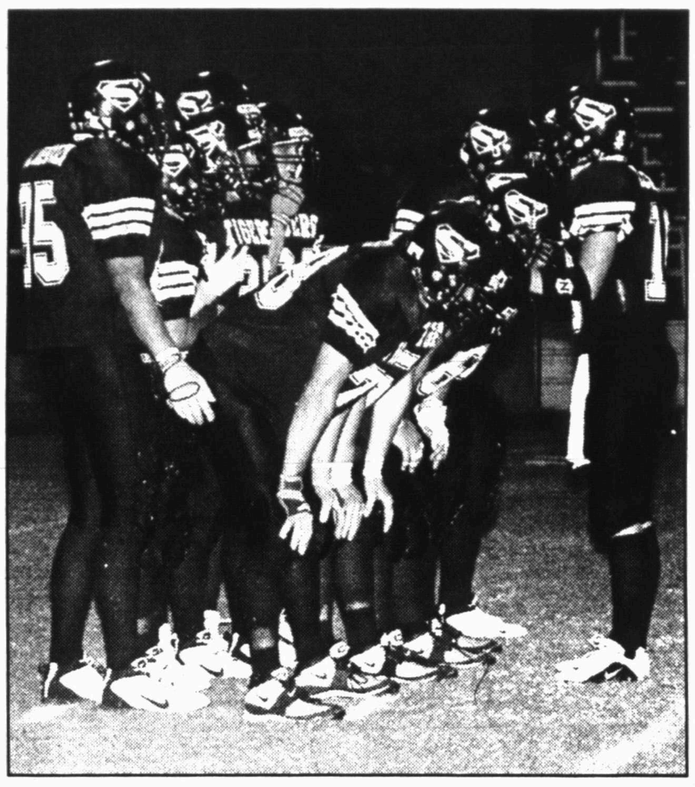

Jonathan Cogar grabbed fourth in the final round with a time of 5.4 to finish fourth overall.

On the women's side, Tasha Stevenson registered a time of 8.5 seconds to win the final round of the goat tying, and finish as runner-up in the average.

Kassie Mowrey was third in the finals of the barrel racing with an 18.82, and was second in the overall standings.

"We've been one of the most consistent women's teams so far," Rhodes stated. "A different team has won it almost every week, but we've consistently been in the hunt."

Western Texas is in competition again starting Thursday at Vernon before closing out the fall schedule Oct. 18-20 at Texas Tech.

CALLING THE PLAY — Snyder quarterback T.J. Jones directs the huddle during district action against Plainview earlier this season. Jones missed last week's contest at Frenship due to a sore knee, but is expected to be back in the line-up Friday when the Tigers host Andrews. (SDN Staff Photo)

Lady Tigers finally hold off Frenship

It took just over two hours, but the Snyder Lady Tigers stayed alive in the playoff chase Saturday with a 13-15, 15-7, 15-7 victory over Frenship at the SHS gym.

"It was a marathon," said Snyder coach Patty Grimmett. "But I'm proud of the girls for hanging in there. They kept battling, and it paid off in the end."

The victory, combined with Big Spring's loss to Andrews, puts the Lady Tigers one game up on the Lady Steers for third place. Snyder travels to Big Spring at 7 p.m. Tuesday for a key district match.

A win on Tuesday would give the Lady Tigers a two-game lead over Big Spring with only three to play.

"We took care of business against Frenship," Grimmett stated. "Now we need to do the same thing against Big Spring."

Frenship built a considerable lead in Saturday's opening frame before Snyder rallied. The Lady Tigers had a chance to serve out the game, but a service error proved costly as Frenship went on to close out the game.

Errors from the service line were Snyder's biggest problem on Saturday. The Lady Tigers had a total of 10 miscues on their serve, and Frenship tried to take advantage.

In the second game, Snyder overcame six service errors with strong play at the net, then continued its solid play in the third game.

Senior Kallie Billingsley finished with 10 kills and nine blocks, while junior Chaelyn Robinson tallied 12 kills. Junior Zipporah Peoples registered eight kills and 10 blocks.

"We ended up with a lot of kills, because there were so many long rallies," said Grimmett. "But I don't think we were as aggressive as we have been in the past. We need to be more aggressive when we attack from here on out."

Following Tuesday's match at Big Spring, the Lady Tigers wrap up district play against Estacado, Plainview and Andrews.

Gators still atop college football poll

By RICHARD ROSENBLATT
AP Football Writer

Florida is No. 1 again.

The Gators grabbed the top spot back from rival Miami in the AP media poll Sunday on the strength of overpowering victories the last two weeks.

While Miami defeated Troy State 38-7 on Saturday, Florida beat LSU 44-15 after its 52-0 win over Mississippi State the week before.

Florida (5-0) soared ahead of Miami in The Associated Press Top 25 with 30 first-place votes and 1,739 points from the 72 sports writers and broadcasters on the AP panel. The Hurricanes (4-0) had 23 first-place votes and 1,719 points.

Last week, Miami led Florida in first-place votes, 34-22, and points, 1,744-1,725.

Voters were obviously more impressed with the Gators' win at LSU in a Southeastern Conference game than the Hurricanes' easy win over a weaker team playing its first season in Division I-A. LSU (2-2) was No. 18 entering the game.

In the USA Today/ESPN coaches poll, Miami remained first and Florida second, just two points behind.

Oklahoma (5-0) held firm at No. 3 in the AP poll, with 16 first-place votes and 1,700 points after its 14-3 win against Texas in Dallas. The Longhorns (4-1) tumbled from No. 5 to No. 11 after the loss.

Nebraska (6-0) remained No. 4 with two first-place votes after its 48-14 win over Iowa State. Oregon (5-0) jumped two places to No. 5 off its 63-28 victory at Arizona.

Sooners capture Red River battle again

By The Associated Press

No. 3 Oklahoma 14, No. 5 Texas 3

DALLAS (AP) — The Oklahoma Sooners didn't dominate the Texas Longhorns this time. They tricked 'em instead.

Third-ranked Oklahoma set up its only touchdowns by running an option on fourth-and-2 and pooching a punt on a fake field goal, leading to a 14-3 victory over No. 5 Texas on Saturday.

The game was much more dramatic than last year's 63-13 stomping by the Sooners. Oklahoma led only 7-3 and Texas was driving late in the fourth quarter.

But the Sooners' defense came up big, intercepting three straight passes by Chris Simms — in their own end zone, at the Texas 2 and at midfield — to seal their second straight victory in the 96-year, 101-game rivalry. Oklahoma beat Texas twice in a row in 1987-88, the tail end of a four-year winning streak.

"We couldn't be more pleased," said Oklahoma coach Mike Stoops, who won his eighth straight game against a ranked team since losing to No. 23 Texas in 1999. "This is a special game for our players. Just coming down that tunnel, the atmosphere — the players enjoy that. The OU-Texas rivalry is back to where it should be."

Oklahoma: 5-0, 2-0 Big 12. Texas: 4-1, 1-1.

Kansas 34, Texas Tech 31, 2 OT

LUBBOCK, Texas (AP) — A couple of freshmen got the job done for the Kansas Jayhawks.

Johnny Beck kicked his fourth field goal in the second overtime and Mario Kinsey came off the bench to lead the comeback as Kansas rallied to a 34-31 victory over Texas Tech Saturday night.

"This is what I live for, I live for the big-time situations like this so we can make the play and I can hush everybody up," Kinsey said. "It just feels good to beat Texas Tech at their homecoming."

Kansas: 2-2, 1-1 Big 12. Texas Tech: 2-2, 0-2

Colorado 16, No. 12 Kansas St. 6

MANHATTAN, Kan. (AP) — Gary Barnett's "return to dominance" theme has become such a focal point for Colorado, the players have made it an acronym.

With a few more performances like Saturday's 16-6 victory over No. 12 Kansas State, they'll make it a reality.

"This is going to put us on the way to our RTD," said tackle Brandon Dabdoub, who had five tackles on his 20th birthday to help a smothering defense intercept two of Ell Roberson's passes and sack him six times.

Barnett, who became head coach in 1999 and took plenty of heat for his "return to dominance" promise after last year's 3-8 flop, said he had "never seen that defense play better."

"We wanted a Big 12 North title and we know we had to win this game to get it," he said.

Colorado: 4-1, 2-0 Big 12. Kansas St.: 2-2, 0-2.

No. 24 Texas A&M 16, Baylor 10

COLLEGE STATION, Texas (AP) — Texas A&M's defense is still perfect in the last quarter. The Aggies are unblemished, too.

No. 24 Texas A&M , which has yet to allow any points in the final quarter, spotted Baylor a 10-3 first-half lead Saturday, then held the Bears scoreless in the second half and avoided some last-second heroics to scratch out a 16-10 victory.

"I was pleased our guys showed character enough to hang in there and win the game," said coach R.C. Slocum.

"The defense controlled the game, not giving up any big plays," Aggies linebacker Brian Gamble added.

Keith Joseph ran 6 yards for a touchdown and Cody Scates kicked three field goals to account for all the A&M scoring and send Baylor to its 23rd straight conference loss.

"We just didn't play nearly as sharply as we needed to, particularly from an offensive standpoint," Slocum said.

Texas A&M: 5-0, 2-0 Big 12. Baylor: 2-2, 0-2.

No. 4 Nebraska 48, Iowa St. 14

LINCOLN, Neb. (AP) — Eric Crouch set an NCAA Division I-A record for rushing touchdowns by a quarterback Saturday night, scoring four times to push his total to 51 as No. 4 Nebraska beat Iowa State 48-14.

Crouch broke the mark of 49 set by Kareem Wilson of Ohio from 1995-98 and set a Nebraska record for rushing touchdowns, passing 1983 Heisman Trophy winner Mike Rozier's 49.

Missed opportunities cost Cowboys

OAKLAND, Calif. (AP) — Rich Gannon figured the Oakland Raiders had their game against the Dallas Cowboys under control in the third quarter.

The Raiders had just gone up 28-7 on Tyrone Wheatley's 1-yard touchdown run.

But the surprisingly resilient Cowboys didn't give up. They withstood the loss of their starting quarterback and two blocked field goals to score two late touchdowns — including one on a fake field goal — coming within 28-21 of the Raiders on Sunday.

"It seemed like every time we got momentum," Gannon said, "they snagged some of it back."

But the Cowboys ultimately fell short — again. Dallas has started 0-4 for the first time since 1989, when it lost the first eight games and finished 1-15.

Jerry Rice caught his third touchdown pass for the Raiders, while Wheatley contributed two scores and Zack Crockett ran for a third. Gannon finished 21-of-28 for 209 yards for Oakland (3-1).

It was supposed to be a bye week for both teams, but because of a potential conflict with the Oakland Athletics and baseball's playoffs at the Coliseum, both teams agreed to move the game from Oct. 21.

Dallas had problems from the start. The first blow came when rookie quarterback Quincy Carter left in the first quarter with a strained left hamstring. Carter, who also missed the last two games with an injury to his right thumb, was replaced by Anthony Wright, who wound up 14-of-22 for 126 yards.

When the Cowboys did score, it was dramatic. Wright hit Joey Galloway with a perfect 40-yard TD pass and Tim Seder faked a field goal for an 8-yard touchdown dash. Dallas also got a last-minute scoring pass from Wright to Darrin Chiaverini after Oakland's Charlie Garner fumbled.

And they threw everything they could at the Raiders — including the option.

"We don't have anything to lose," guard Larry Allen said. "We might as well give them our all."

The Raiders' banged-up defense was without end Trace Armstrong, out for the season with a ruptured Achilles' tendon, and tackle Roderick Coleman (hamstring injury). Defensive tackle Darrell Russell was serving the last of a four-game suspension for a violation of the league's substance abuse policy.

But before the first half was over, the Raiders had blocked two field goals and the Cowboys' young offense couldn't manage to score when an Oakland fumble put Dallas at the 7.

The Raiders struck on their first possession, with Gannon's 5-yard scoring pass to a wide-open Rice. Crockett's 3-yard scoring run opened up the second quarter.

Wright's entry briefly sparked the Cowboys, who scored on the first play of his first series with Galloway's 40-yard TD catch.

The Raiders marched right back to Wheatley's 4-yard scoring run to make it 21-7. Wheatley added a 1-yard run in the third quarter.

Seder's first two field goal attempts were blocked: a 34-yarder was knocked down by William Thomas, a 41-yard attempt was blocked by Charles Woodson.

So after Wheatley's scoring run made it 28-7, the Cowboys set up for a field goal, but Seder scooped up the ball and ran it in from the 8.

Late in the fourth quarter, after Garner's fumble at Oakland's 34, Wright hit Chiaverini with the 3-yard TD pass on fourth down.

Emmitt Smith said the effort was there.

"Now we've got to learn how to convert that playing hard into making something special," said Smith, who carried the ball 16 times for only 25 yards.

Rangers' GM fired after dismal season

ARLINGTON (AP) — Doug Melvin's past success as the Texas Rangers general manager wasn't enough to save his job after two straight last-place finishes.

Melvin, the architect of Texas' only three division championships, was fired Sunday after the Rangers, even with All-Star shortstop Alex Rodriguez, finished a 73-89 season and 43 games behind AL West champion Seattle.

While Rodriguez — who came to Texas last winter with a record $252 million, 10-year contract — hit .318 with an AL-leading 52 homers, the Rangers pitching staff had the highest ERA in the majors for the second straight year at 5.71.

Hicks said that was a primary reason he fired Melvin, who had two years left on his contract.

"Others organizations have developed pitching a lot better than ours has," Hicks said. "It's not Doug, it's not one person. It's our whole system. We are going to take a careful, fresh look of how to make sure we have to ability to pick and trade and develop players."

Hicks said the search for a new GM will begin immediately, and that Melvin's replacement will come from outside the organization. Hicks said he will be aided by a professional search organization and hopes to have a new GM in place within six weeks.

The owner refused to detail that group or possible candidates, but gave an indication of what he's looking for.

"I'd love to hire a GM with a proven track record that has developed great young players. That will be our first goal," Hicks said. "You have to develop your own talent, particularly with pitching."

Melvin, who just finished his 30th year in professional baseball, said he was proud of a lot of the things he was able to accomplish in Texas, primarily the division titles of 1996, '98 and '99.

"We lost more that we would have liked the last two years," Melvin said. "But we always fielded a team of character. I am proud of that."

Even before he was fired, Melvin had already been considered a top candidate to replace fired Toronto Blue Jays GM Gord Ash.

Snyder netters fight off Levelland, 13-6

After cruising to convincing victories in their last two district matches, the Snyder High School tennis team fought off a pesky Levelland squad to maintain its unblemished record.

Snyder won its fifth consecutive district match Saturday with a 13-6 victory over Levelland. With the win, Snyder retained its seat atop the district standings, heading into the final two matches against Big Spring and Estacado.

The SHS girls paced Saturday's victory by winning eight of nine match-ups, with two of the matches going to three sets.

Top-seeded Pat Vargas knocked off Katy Coriens, 7-6, 4-6, 6-0, while Jackie Beccue downed Miranda Murillo, 4-6, 6-3, 6-2. Andra Dunham, Cozy Jones and Stephanie Williams also picked up points in singles play.

Snyder swept all three girls' doubles matches, and picked up two of the three points in boys' doubles.

The Snyder boys split their singles matches with the Loboes, 3-3, with Horacio DePaz, Adam Rodgers and Curt Phillips notching victories.

Snyder hits the road Saturday to square off with Big Spring before closing out district play Oct. 20 against Estacado.

Astros secure NL Central title

ST. LOUIS (AP) — The Houston Astros let the NL Central race go down to the last game before they finished the job.

Behind Shane Reynolds' 100th career victory, the Astros won their fourth division title in five years by beating the St. Louis Cardinals 9-2 Sunday. The loss left the Cardinals with the wild card spot.

Both teams clinched playoff spots on Friday night, and on Sunday, they were playing for homefield advantage throughout the postseason.

The Astros led by 51/2 games on Sept. 24, but lost nine of 11 before winning Sunday. They open at home Tuesday against the Atlanta Braves, and the Cardinals open at Arizona later that day.

It's not that much of an advantage, according to manager Larry Dierker.

"I guess it might be more intimidating to face Curt Schilling and Randy Johnson because they throw harder," Dierker said. "But I don't know of any team that wants to face Greg Maddux and Tom Glavine."

The Astros and Cardinals finished with 93-69 records. Houston won the division because of a head-to-head tiebreaker, going 9-7 against the Cardinals.

"Today wasn't a do-or-die game where the loser had to go home," said 22-game winner Matt Morris.

Golf booster club drawing

The Snyder Golf Booster Club is holding a drawing for a cord of mesquite wood. Tickets are $1 and proceeds benefit the SISD golf program.

The drawing will be held Nov. 9 during halftime of the Snyder-Estacado football game. For more information, call 573-0931 or 573-5437.

City tournament

The Snyder City Golf Championship will be held Saturday and Sunday. Western Texas College will host the first round, with Snyder Country Club hosting the second.

Shotgun starts will be at 1 p.m. both days, and entry fee is $20. There will be open, senior and super-senior flights. Players can sign-up at the WTC or SCC pro shops.

Drawing for Red Raider hoops tickets

The Lady Tigers Basketball Booster Club is holding a drawing for Texas Tech basketball tickets. Tickets are $25, and can be purchased from any booster club member. The drawing will be held Nov. 9 at halftime of Snyder's football game with Estacado.

Two winners will be drawn. The first winner will choose between two tickets to either the Tech men's game against Oklahoma on Jan. 26, 2002, or the Tech women's contest against Colorado on Feb. 3, 2002. The second winner gets tickets to the other game, and both receive dinner for two at Abuelo's.

For more information, call Melanie at 573-8511 ext. 200 during the day, or 573-3395 after 5 p.m.

Men's basketball league

Snyder Men's Basketball League is accepting individual entries. Players aged 18-over are eligible, and league play begins next Monday. For more information, call 573-3916 or 573-2865.

Softball tournament

Price Daniel Unit will sponsor a softball tournament Saturday at Winston Field to benefit the State Employee Charitable Campaign. Entry fee is $110 per team, and deadline to register is Wednesday.

Trophies will go to the top three teams. The top two squads will also receive T-shirts. For more information, call Valerio Torres at 574-2297, or Sal Gonzalez at 573-0696.

Western Texas MGA

The Men's Golf Association of Western Texas College holds a weekly event at 6 p.m. each Tuesday. Players need to register in the pro shop by 5:30.

Bonds finishes with 73 HRs

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Barry Bonds hit his 73rd home run, further extending the major league record he broke two days earlier.

Bonds connected off Dennis Springer in the first inning of San Francisco's 2-1 victory over Los Angeles. It was the 567th homer of Bonds' career — leaving him six behind Harmon Killebrew for sixth all-time.

Bonds finished the season with a slugging percentage of .863, easily surpassing the record of .847 set by Babe Ruth in 1920.

Emmy telecast called off once again

LOS ANGELES (AP) — First there was terrorism. Then there was war. The Emmys just couldn't keep up.

The 53rd primetime Emmy Awards show was called off for a second time Sunday and whether they ever will be held depends on the mood of the TV industry and the nation, organizers said.

"This has all happened so quickly," said CBS Television President Leslie Moonves, whose network was to air the ceremony. "It's really one day at a time, like it is for everything in America right now."

The awards telecast, which was delayed three weeks by the Sept. 11 terrorist attacks, was called off after the United States and Britain launched a military attack in Afghanistan.

"We are not at this point calling it a cancellation. We are looking into all the options," said Bryce Zabel, chairman of the Academy of Television Arts & Sciences, which presents the awards. "We have had very little time to think about this."

Even if the show isn't rescheduled, Zabel said they would get the trophies to winners "even if we have to drive them over to someone's house and shake hands with them."

Other networks and industry members will be consulted on the decision about the ceremony, Zabel and Moonves told a news conference. The show has never been canceled before.

"We turned on our TVs again and here it was a war action again," said academy President Jim Chabin. "We thought this is not the time to have a celebration, as much as we wanted to do it."

Host Ellen DeGeneres was rehearsing on stage at the Shrine Auditorium when the show was called off. Outside, workers soon began rolling up the red carpet, removing floral displays and carting off oversized decorative statuettes.

There were no Emmy security concerns, only questions of whether it was appropriate to stage the program under the circumstances, Chabin said.

"It's a sacrifice we gladly make for the country," he said. "There will be another time for another awards show."

TV stars such as Dennis Franz of "NYPD Blue," a best dramatic actor nominee, said through publicists that they agreed with the decision. He had been scheduled to make a pre-recorded tribute to New York City police officers.

The television industry had grappled in the weeks since the attack with the propriety of holding a celebration such as the Emmys, which would have been the first major awards show to go ahead. The Recording Academy canceled its second Annual Latin Grammys, which had been scheduled the same day as the terrorist attacks.

The Television Academy and CBS had hoped that a three-week delay from the original Emmy air date of Sept. 16, and a more solemn ceremony would be seen as acceptable.

Virtually all of the nominees and presenters had reaffirmed their willingness to take part in the ceremony after revisions were announced, including less glamour and celebration.

Emmy organizers asked participants to cut back on red-carpet arrival fanfare and forgo showy gowns and tuxedoes in favor of business attire. Newsman Walter Cronkite would have taken part in the ceremony, which was to include tributes to heroes and victims of the Sept. 11 attacks.

In deference to East Coast-based nominees, part of the presentation of 27 awards was to take place in a Manhattan studio. A bi-coastal Emmy broadcast would have been the first in more than two decades.

Florist Amy Child said the 221 centerpieces of flowers and fresh fruit that were to adorn tables at a post-show dinner would be donated to hospitals.

Denzel Washington tops the box office in 'Training Day'

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Even mean and crooked, Denzel Washington can pack a movie theater.

"Training Day," in which the nice-guy actor departs from his typical heroic roles to play a villain, debuted as the No. 1 weekend film with $24.2 million, according to studio estimates Sunday.

"Serendipity," a romantic comedy starring John Cusack and Kate Beckinsale, opened in second place with $14 million.

Last weekend's top movie, "Don't Say a Word," slipped to No. 3 with $10 million. "Zoolander," the second-place film a week ago, fell to No. 4 with $9.9 million.

Two other new movies debuted in the top 10 this weekend. The highway thriller "Joy Ride," with Steve Zahn, Paul Walker and Leelee Sobieski, was No. 5 with $7.4 million. The junior-high comedy "Max Keeble's Big Move" was No. 6 with $5.5 million.

Hollywood did healthy business for the second weekend in a row after a sharp drop last month in the aftermath of the Sept. 11 terrorist attacks. Several big films, including "Training Day," were bumped from their scheduled Sept. 21 openings, leaving a dearth of new movies.

Overall, the top 12 movies took in $86.9 million, up 14 percent from the same weekend last year and up 35.5 percent from a week ago.

It was the second straight weekend that a violent, R-rated thriller topped the box office, indicating that audiences were not shying away from intense subject matter in the wake of the attacks.

"I think this will embolden studios to not be as shy of releasing these types of films," said Paul Dergarabedian, president of box-office tracker Exhibitor Relations. "People can differentiate fantasy from reality. The world changes, but as long as the movies are good and marketed well, it's pretty much business as usual. Except terrorism. I think that's still a taboo subject and may be for a while."

Arnold Schwarzenegger's "Collateral Damage," in which he plays a firefighter seeking vengeance against terrorists who killed his family, was scheduled to open this past weekend but has been put on hold indefinitely.

Tim Allen's comedy "Big Trouble," scheduled to open Sept. 21, also was delayed indefinitely because it includes a scene about a bomb on an airplane.

"Training Day," co-starring Ethan Hawke and directed by Antoine Fuqua, was held for two weeks so Warner Bros. could advertise it more effectively, said Dan Fellman, the studio's head of distribution.

"Even though subject matter was not in conflict with the events of the day, I think we needed time to publicize the film properly," Fellman said. "Denzel and Antoine both were very distraught, like all of us, over the events. It just was not in our best interest at that time to go on television and sell the movie."

Washington plays a flamboyantly corrupt narcotics detective who bullies his way through a day on the streets with a rookie cop (Hawke).

It was almost exactly a year since Washington led the box office as a high-minded football coach in "Remember the Titans," which had been his best previous opening at $20.9 million.

"Serendipity," largely set in New York City, also was affected by the terrorist attacks. Distributor Miramax removed a shot of the trade center towers from the finished film.

In interviews with people after seeing "Serendipity," Miramax found many movie-goers saying the light comedy was "just what I needed right now," said David Kaminow, senior vice president of marketing for Miramax.

"It really is a terrific love letter to New York, the way people want to think about New York."

Estimated ticket sales for Friday through Sunday at North American theaters, according to Exhibitor Relations Co. Inc. Final figures are to be released today.

1. "Training Day," $24.2 million.
2. "Serendipity," $14 million.
3. "Don't Say a Word," $10 million.
4. "Zoolander," $9.9 million.
5. "Joy Ride," $7.4 million.
6. "Max Keeble's Big Move," $5.5 million.
7. "Hearts in Atlantis," $5.4 million.
8. "Hardball," $3.7 million.
9. "The Others," $3 million.
10. "Rush Hour 2," $1.8 million.

How would you try to sail this three-no-trump contract, like Columbus, safely into Watling's Island, Bahamas? West leads his fourth-highest spade to dummy's singleton king.

Note West's spade-five start. With only two honors, it is normal against no-trump to lead fourth-highest (unless you are certain partner is also long in the suit). However, against a suit contract, one should (almost always) attack with the queen: top of touching honors.

First, count your top tricks. You have six: two spades, two hearts and two clubs. There are various possibilities, but the wise line is to call for dummy's diamond king at trick two, squashing your own queen. Let's suppose East ducks. Continue with the diamond 10. East wins with the jack, but what can he do next? If he shifts to the club queen (or an unexpected heart 10), you win with dummy's king, drive out the diamond ace, get back to the dummy with its remaining king, and take 10 tricks: two spades, two hearts, four diamonds and two clubs. Instead, if East returns the spade eight, you put in the 10 (or nine). West wins with the jack, but cannot continue spades with effect. Again, you finish with an overtrick.

Sailing the ocean red to shore

You can guess what's coming in today's quotation. But it is well hidden.

Ralph Waldo Emerson wrote, "Raphael paints wisdom, Handel sings it, Phidias carves it, Shakespeare writes it, Wren builds it, Columbus sails it, Luther preaches it, Washington arms it, Watt mechanizes it."

Wagner is inspiration behind Gilman song

DALLAS (AP) — Billy Gilman finally met his muse.

The rising country star met Elisabeth Wagner, 21, for the first time Saturday at the State Fair of Texas. She is the inspiration behind the song "Elisabeth" on Gilman's new album, "Dare to Dream."

The song details a strong woman's fight against disease. Wagner has had neurofibromatosis, a genetic disorder that causes small, mostly benign growths to form on her nerves, since she was 2 years old.

Wagner never imagined her struggles would one day be inspiration for a song. It was written by Wagner's aunt, Liz Rose, and her friend Kim Patton Johnston.

"Who gets a song written about them — much less a song on the radio and a video? I mean, that's cool," Wagner said.

The recent discovery of a malignancy forced the Dallas resident to postpone college at Texas A&M University while she undergoes treatment. But the setback hasn't upset her.

"College will still be there when I'm done," she said.

It was Wagner's positive attitude that inspired Rose to write the song. Rose said it took about hour to write.

Enema therapy is unproven

DEAR DR. GOTT: Please discuss a taboo subject: therapeutic enemas. Once or twice a week, I self-administer enemas for colonic cleansing. However, a nurse friend told me that enemas in general can not only be addictive but may contribute to colon and prostate cancer. I've heard that Dr. Kellogg, the founder of the breakfast cereal empire, was an advocate of "high colonics" to sustain good health. I'm confused.

DEAR READER: You needn't be. Here's the scoop.

No valid scientific study has yet shown that standard enemas or high colonics (with more pressure, the fluid may reach higher up) produce any benefits whatsoever when used by normal people as an adjuvant to maintaining health. Nonetheless, there is a dedicated subculture of adults who mistakenly believe the contrary view. In fact, there are now "licensed colon therapists" who do their best to convince perfectly normal people that aggressive therapy with enemas clears "toxins" from the intestine and is, therefore, necessary.

Based on the available scientific evidence, I — and most physicians — believe that such a pseudo-religious fervor does more harm then good. Except in specific instances, such as serious constipation secondary to disease, enemas are unnecessary. In the presence of chronic constipation, more benefit can be derived by dietary alterations (more roughage and fruit), increased exercise, occasional use of mild laxatives (such as Senacot or milk of magnesia) or regular administration of a stool softener (Colace and others).

While I don't mean this to be a criticism, it's true that many of us, as we age and experience malfunction of various organs, may become overly concerned — even to the point of obsession — about bowel function. This is unfortunate because it's not the end of the world; there are other health issues — such as hypertension, obesity and smoking — that would be more appropriate to address.

I advise you to forget the enema-routine. While it will not contribute to cancer, it is superfluous.

Hot Tip: if you are constipated, try drinking 8 oz. of hot prune juice in the morning. This natural laxative may work wonders. Or, if you choose, try this combination: prune juice, bran and applesauce in equal portions (the total amount depends on your needs).

Finally, Dr. Kellogg. His unique and extensive dietary principles were the rage a century ago, when the medical profession was sadly deficient in scientific knowledge. Based on this fact, he was able to build a hugely successful business enterprise on what would today be considered tenuous principles.

If you would like some really entertaining literature that will shed light on Dr. Kellogg's orientation, I urge you to read "The Road to Wellness" by T.C. Boyle (1993, Penguin Books). Boyle is one of my favorite novelists; you won't be disappointed in this book — or in the many others he has written. (Mr. Boyle, I request a signed copy of "Water Music," your first novel (preferably a first edition), for this unabashed plug of your literary genius.)

With your permission, valued readers, I'd like to make an aside and endorse another American writer who deserves increased recognition: Richard Russo, whose recent novel "Empire Falls" is a masterpiece. He has written several other books, all good. (I have no request to Mr. Russo, but — hey! — if Oprah can do it, why can't I share important literary advances with my readers?)

To give you related information, I am sending you a copy of my Health Report "Constipation and Diarrhea." Other readers who would like a copy should send $2 plus a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to Newsletter, PO Box 167, Wickliffe, OH 44092-0167. Be sure to mention the title.

Hallmark Cards want to capture patriotism

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — Before Sept. 11, Hallmark Cards was touting a line of cards celebrating the small moments of normal life — a child losing a tooth, buying a first car or even successful potty training.

Now the company is trying to capture something deeper: patriotism.

"I personally hope we have entered a patriotic phase in this country," said Irvine Hockaday, Hallmark's president and chief executive officer. "I think that's been lacking for a while in America. If Hallmark can help support that with its product we will."

The greeting card company swiftly designed a new batch of patriotic cards after Sept. 11 and re-emphasized its core responsibility to help customers find the right words during emotional times.

"Even in typical times, when unnerving things happen people tend to want to reassure each other," said Hockaday. "They will gravitate to cards and cards shops because they are comforted by them."

Six new cards — featuring the flag, an American eagle, the Statue of Liberty and verses thanking the military for serving — will soon reach shelves nationwide. Four others will be available in boxed sets for Christmas.

American Greetings Corp. also will have new cards and other accessories in stores by mid-October, with new Christmas ornaments available by mid-November.

The company will offer 38 cards, some geared toward Veterans' Day on Nov. 11 and others with verses specifically mentioning Sept. 11, said Laurie Henrichsen, a spokeswoman for the Cleveland-based company.

Both companies scrambled to produce the new cards, which will generally cost $1.99.

"With the sudden demand for cards, they had to be turned around in record time," Henrichsen said. "But our people were really clamoring to work on this project. Both our creative and manufacturing people have put in hours of overtime to do this."

Unlike other businesses, greeting card companies may be immune to criticism over responding to a perceived market created by the attacks.

"Hallmark can get away with it because of the nature of its product," said Carrie Heilman, an assistant professor at the John M. Olin School of Business at Washington University in St. Louis. "If consumers are going to those stores to buy something, they aren't going to be thinking about any ulterior motive."

Preliminary figures seem to support that claim. Sales dropped dramatically in the days immediately after that attack, when many people stayed home. But since Sept. 17, card sales have increased 4 percent, with the biggest impact in the east, south-central and northeast states.

Sales of Hallmark's core sympathy cards increased 10 to 14 percent in the two weeks after Sept. 11 and a three-month supply of a card featuring an American flag sold out almost immediately, the company said.

Hallmark anticipates sales also will rise during the upcoming holiday season, company spokeswoman Rachel Bolton said, although it is not currently planning any new products other than the four patriotic cards.

Many current cards simply took on more significance.

No term limits extension for mayor of NY

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — The Democratic leader of the state Assembly said Sunday that his chamber would not consider any legislation to extend the term of New York Mayor Rudolph Giuliani.

"It's not going to happen," Assembly Speaker Sheldon Silver said.

Silver said he had not told the Republican mayor of his decision and wasn't sure if he would bother to do so.

Giuliani spokeswoman Sonny Mindel declined to comment on Silver's decision.

Giuliani is barred by term limits from running for a third consecutive term. His term ends Dec. 31.

In the wake of the Sept. 11 terrorist attacks on the World Trade Center, Giuliani said he wanted at least a three-month extension of his term to help ease the transition for the city's next mayor.

While the term extension idea had the support of Gov. George Pataki and state Senate Majority Leader Joseph Bruno, the steam appeared to go out of the plan when Democratic mayoral candidate Fernando Ferrer said he opposed it.

Giuliani had wanted the support of all three major mayoral candidates for the term extension, but only Democrat Mark Green and Republican Michael Bloomberg agreed. Ferrer and Green face each other in a primary runoff Thursday.

"There is no chance that we would be doing the extension no matter who wins the runoff for mayor because a sufficient number of (Democratic Assembly) members are absolutely, unequivocally opposed to it," Silver said.

Workers at WTC ruins hail military action

NEW YORK (AP) — Workers helping clear the rubble of the World Trade Center learned of Sunday's military strikes against Afghanistan by word of mouth and from a television that had been set up in a makeshift washroom.

The reaction was relatively subdued — no cheers arose, no backs were slapped — but the ground zero crew nevertheless hailed the reprisals.

"It's big-time payback," said construction worker Charles Rios, 38. "I'm so happy now."

"There's definitely a patriotic sense of revenge," said Duane Hinkson, who has been working to restore telephone service around the debris-strewn site.

Joseph Bonneau added that he agreed with the strikes "as long as they make sure they get (Osama bin Laden) and we don't lose any soldiers over there."

Earlier Sunday, several hundred workers took part in a half-hour prayer service amid the ruins of the twin towers, which collapsed after the Sept. 11 terrorist attacks.

"The work that all of you are doing here is God's work, it is holy work, and we appreciate it and love you for it," Fire Department Chaplain John Delendick said.

For Jimmy Morrison, who was removing asbestos from the site, Sunday's strikes were overdue: "It's about time. They're about three weeks late in my opinion."

Morrison's construction helmet bore a purple skull and the words "Time's Up."

Co-worker tests positive for anthrax

BOCA RATON, Fla. (AP) — Anthrax bacteria have been detected in the nasal passage of a co-worker of the man who died last week from the disease, health officials said today. The building where both worked was closed after the bacteria also were detected there.

The latest case, a man whose name was not immediately made public, was in good condition today at an unidentified hospital, according to the Florida health department. He has not been diagnosed with the disease.

A nasal swab from the patient tested positive for the anthrax bacterium, said Tim O'Conner, regional spokesman for Florida's health department.

It was not yet clear if anthrax had only infiltrated his nose or had gotten into his lungs, officials said. Relatively large anthrax spores that lodge in the upper respiratory tract are less dangerous than smaller spores that get into the lungs.

Doctors "describe his condition as good right now," O'Conner said. "He hasn't been diagnosed with the disease, there's just a presence of (the disease) in his nostrils."

"He was given a nasal swab because he happened to be in a hospital and he was ill," said Barbara Reynolds, a spokeswoman for the U.S. Centers for Disease Control and Prevention in Atlanta.

O'Conner and Reynolds said they did not know what symptoms of illness the man displayed or whether any of the symptoms were consistent with anthrax. The disease in early stages may resemble the flu.

A co-worker of the man, Bob Stevens, died Friday, the first person in 25 years in the United States to have died from the rare inhaled form of anthrax.

Stevens, 63, was a photo editor at the supermarket tabloid The Sun. Environmental tests performed at the Sun's offices in Boca Raton detected the anthrax bacteria, O'Conner said.

The Sun's offices were shuttered, and law enforcement, local and state health and CDC officials were to take additional samples from the building today, O'Conner said.

Some of the other environmental samples taken at the newspaper office last week are still being tested, said Reynolds. She would not say just where the sample that tested positive for the bacteria was found.

About 300 people who work in the building were being contacted by the Sun and instructed not to come to work today and to undergo antibiotic treatment to prevent the disease. Nasal swabs will also be taken of all the other workers, said Reynolds.

Fiery plane crash kills 114 in Italy

MILAN, Italy (AP) — An SAS airliner slammed into a private jet during takeoff, then swerved into an airport building and burst into flames, killing all 114 people on both planes today, officials said. Four ground workers were missing.

The Interior Ministry ruled out terrorism and said the crash was most likely the result of human error and poor visibility from the heavy morning fog at Milan's Linate airport.

The small jet, a Cessna carrying four people, entered the takeoff runway by mistake after having been directed by air traffic control to taxi to a different runway, the Interior Ministry said in a statement.

The SAS plane, an MD-87 carrying 104 passengers, six crew members and a full tank of fuel, was accelerating for takeoff when it hit the twin-engine Cessna Citation II, which had taxied onto the takeoff runway, said Alessandra Tripodi, a spokeswoman at the central government's office in Milan.

The SAS airliner then hit a baggage handling depot and caught on fire, the Interior Ministry said.

Transport Minister Pietro Lunardi put the death toll at 114 with four missing. Fifty-six of the SAS victims were Italians, he told an airport news conference.

"The cause seems for now attributable to human error," he said, refusing to elaborate on who specifically was to blame. He said the investigation was in the hands of a magistrate.

The Cessna was destroyed by the fire and collision.

Officers arrest man for assault, family violence

Arrests

Officers arrested Alonso Arreola, 32, of 1208 19th Street at 11 p.m. Saturday for aggravated assault with a deadly weapon and family violence. He was arrested in the 3000 block of Ave. C and transported to the county jail.

A 41-year-old Lubbock woman was taken into custody at 8 a.m. Sunday for a grand jury indictment. Connie Gonzalez of 1910 62nd Street in Lubbock was arrested at the sheriff's office for felony driving while intoxicated.

A DPS trooper arrested a 30-year-old man on Highway 350 at 8 p.m. Saturday for driving while intoxicated. He was transported to the sheriff's office, then released.

A juvenile girl was taken into custody at 8:40 p.m. Saturday for consuming alcohol as a minor. 9-1-1 dispatchers were alerted to a disturbance behind the Cinema and also were advised a female subject had been injured.

Snyder EMS responded, but no one was transported. Officers advised two girls were involved in the altercation, but no report was requested. The girl taken into custody was released to family members.

At 5:30 p.m. Sunday a 37-year-old woman was arrested at Ave. T and Gilmore for driving while intoxicated. Her vehicle and her child were released to her mother.

Assault

A woman requested an officer just after midnight Sunday in reference to a male subject being assaulted. The responding officer advised an offense report for assault, family violence would be submitted. The subject was transported to Cogdell Memorial Hospital by private vehicle.

Harassment

A woman requested to speak with an officer at 8:30 p.m. Saturday in reference to a 15-year-old girl harassing her 13-year-old daughter. Officers contacted the 15-year-old and her aunt and advised them of the complaint.
