Ice is suspected in fatal jet crash

DENVER (AP) — Ice buildup during a snowstorm has emerged as a prime suspect in the Continental Airlines jet crash that killed 27 people and left five in critical condition today.

A spokesman for federal investigators said today it it was too early to rule out any causes, but an outside expert, a witness and a report on a 1985 crash of a similar DC-9 jet fueled questions about whether a hazardous amount of ice accumulated on the plane's wings.

Flight 1713 rolled sharply left and right just after liftoff Sunday with 82 people aboard, then caught a wingtip, flipped onto its back and broke into three pieces as it slid down the runway.

"I would strongly suspect there was ice on the wing," said Richard Shevell, a Stanford University aeronautics professor who worked on the DC-9's design as chief of aerodynamics for Douglas Co. in the early 1960s.

Asked if icing was the prime suspect, National Transportation Safety Board spokesman Ted Lopatkiewitcz said today, "We at this point haven't eliminated anything ... that would be an area of investigation at this point, yes."

Investigators also are looking at snowy runway conditions, possible engine failure, wind shear and other factors, said Bob Sheldon of the Federal Aviation Administration.

Iran-Contra report...

Reagan said at fault

WASHINGTON (AP) — The congressional Iran-Contra committees conclude in their final report that President Reagan failed in his duty to see that the law was obeyed, but other criticism of the president was toned down from earlier drafts, a source says.

The committees' final report, due out Wednesday, said Reagan failed to "see that the laws are faithfully executed," according to the Senate committee source, who spoke Monday on condition of anonymity.

The language is a paraphrase of the Constitution's description of the president's duties. Article 2, Section 3 says "he shall take care that the laws be faithfully executed."

There was sharp debate among committee members about whether to include such criticism in the final report. Other criticism of Reagan was softened substantially, the source said.

However, eight minority Republicans on the Iran-Contra committees objected to the final report and said in a dissent that the majority reached "hysterical conclusions," according to today's New York Times.

The minority report said the Reagan administration made "mistakes in judgment and nothing more," according to the newspaper.

The House and Senate committees conducted four months of joint hearings into the administration's secret weapons sales to Iran and diversion of profits from those sales to the Nicaraguan Contra rebels.

The panels' final report says there is no evidence that Reagan knew of the diversion, but it does reflect many committee members' belief that Reagan created an atmosphere allowing it to occur.

The Senate committee source did not specify which laws the president is accused in the report of not adequately enforcing. But during hearings the committee often discussed three laws.

They were the Boland amendment, which over specified periods prohibited direct or indirect U.S. aid to the Contras; the arms export control act which restricts the sale of American arms abroad; and laws requiring that any funds spent by the U.S. government first be appropriated by Congress.

The final report was to have been issued Tuesday.

ISD trustee won't lose board tenure in possible switch

If a new single member district for Snyder ISD is created inside the city limits--a change still pending a possible appeal by plaintiffs in the lawsuit LULAC vs Midland ISD--it now appears the tenure of the local trustee most affected by the change will not be adversely affected.

School officials had earlier thought trustee Billy Bob McMullan--upon losing his "at-large" status on the board--might be asked to represent an area of the city where he did not in fact live.

A more detailed check of proposed new boundary lines for these single member districts, however, indicates McMullan now lives within the boundaries of the newly created district he would represent.

In fact, his residence at 2804 35th St. is two houses down from a dividing line between what would be Districts 3 and 4 in the new proposed plan.

Under the existing plan, McMullan lives in District 2 but does not specifically represent this area since he was elected as one of three "at large" board members, indicating he was chosen by a ballot of the entire district.

If the change in the single member district plan was implemented, McMullan would be changed to represent the newly created District 4.

School officials at first thought this would adversely affect his board tenure. In fact, however, he would be a resident of District

Company 'G' due 14th annual event

The 14th annual reunion of "Matney's Raiders," the men of Company G who served through the major battles of World War II, is scheduled here this weekend.

Approximately 100 veterans and their wives--many of them Scurry County residents--are expected.

The National Guard unit of Company G was mobilized out of Snyder on Nov. 25, 1940 for service through five years of the war.

The men of Company G meet each fall on the weekend nearest the 25th to observe these war years together. As part of the 142nd Infantry, 36th Division, Company G was part of the first American troops to invade Italy at Salerno on Sept. 9, 1943.

They then participated in six European campaigns to include Salerno, Foggie, Rome and Anzio. They found also in Southern France, at Ardennes and Alsace, in Central Europe and at Rhineland in Germany.

During the war, the 36th Division suffered 27,000 combat casualties, the third highest of any World War II division.

An historial marker honoring the men of Company G was placed in front of the Scurry County courthouse during the county's Centennial celebration in 1984.

The reunion will begin this year on Thursday with events planned through Saturday, when the annual business meeting of the group will take place on the campus of Western Texas College.

A special dedication is slated

AD ballot concludes with Monday deadline

Monday was the deadline for five taxing entities here to cast ballots for five men nominated to serve on the Scurry County Appraisal District Board.

The election outcome was never in doubt, however, since only five candidates were nominated for five seats.

The completed vote tally, with candidates listed alphabetically, was: Doug Flynn, 1,013.6 votes; Mairl McFaul, 873.6; Juluis Roemisch, 1,013.6 votes; Mickey Sterling, 1,015.6; and Dwaine Williams, 1,083.6 votes.

A total of 5,000 votes were cast divided among the entities based on each's tax base. The vote amounts included Snyder ISD, 3,320 votes; Scurry County, 1,040 votes; Ira ISD, 326 votes; City of Snyder, 218 votes; and Hermleigh ISD, 96 votes.

The new board will serve a two-year term and will take office effective Jan. 1.

The feller on Deep Creek says, "If 50 million people do a foolish thing, it's still a foolish thing."

A "widow" of a deer hunter dropped off the following item that logs a hunter's typical day. It seems appropriate this time of year.

1 a.m.--Alarm clock rings. At 2 a.m. hunting pardner arrives and drags you out of bed. At 2:30 a.m., everything but kitchen sink thrown in back of pickup.

3 a.m.--leave for deer lease. At 3:15 a.m., drive back home and pick up gun. At 3:30 a.m., drive like heck to get to the lease before daylight. At 4 a.m., start setting up camp and realize tent is forgotten.

Finally, at 4:30 a.m., head into woods. At 6:05 a.m., eight deer spotted. At 6:06 a.m., take careful aim and squeeze trigger. 6:08 a.m.--load gun while watching deer go over hill.

8 a.m.--head back to camp. At 9 a.m., still looking for camp. At 10 a.m., realize you don't know where camp is. At noon, fire gun for help, and eat wild berries.

12:15 p.m.--ran out of ammunition. Eight deer come back. 12:20 p.m. you get strange feeling in stomach. 12:30 p.m. you realize you ate poison berries.

12:45 p.m.--rescue squad arrives. 12:55 p.m.--rushed to local hospital to have stomach pumped. 3 p.m.--arrive back in camp.

3:30 p.m.--leave camp to kill deer. 4 p.m.--return to camp for bullets. 4:01 p.m.--load gun and leave camp again. 5 p.m.--empty gun on squirrel that's bugging you.

6 p.m.--arrive back at camp and see deer grazing in camp. 6:01 p.m.--load gun. 6:02 p.m.--fire gun. 6:03 p.m.--one dead pickup.

6:15 p.m.--Hunting pardner returns to camp dragging deer. 6:16 p.m.--repress strong desire to shoot hunting pardner. 6:17 p.m.--fall into fire. 6:20 p.m.--Change clothes and throw burned ones in fire.

6:25 p.m.--Take pickup, leave hunting pardner and his deer in woods. 6:30 p.m.--pickup overheats, hole shot in block.

6:32 p.m.--start walking, but stumble and fall. Gun drops in mud. 6:40 p.m.--Meet bear. 6:41 p.m.--take aim. 6:42 p.m.--fire and blow up gun as barrel plugged with mud.

6:44 p.m.--you climb tree. 9 p.m.--Bear finally leaves. You wrap gun around trunk of tree.

Midnight--home at last. Wife dosen't even wake up to ask if you had good time.

Sunday--Watch football on TV, slowing tearing hunting license into little pieces. Place small pieces into envelope and mail to Game Warden.

Q. — Have they changed the sequence of the red lights on College Ave. from 30th St. to the square and, if so, why?

A. — State highway department officials say the sequence has changed, although the lights are not sequenced to interact with the other. They said each individual light is timed to change from red to green based upon the amount of traffic in the intersection it serves. Repair work was recently completed to the lights at 25th and 26th Sts., and this likely changed these lights somewhat.

In Brief

Severe quake

ANCHORAGE, Alaska (AP) — A severe earthquake struck off the south-central Alaska coast, shaking Anchorage 270 miles away, authorities said today.

There were no immediate reports of injury or damage, but thousands of coastal residents awakened by sirens and police loudspeakers fled homes in low-lying coastal communities.

The quake struck at 11:46 p.m. Monday, (3:46 a.m. EST today), and had a preliminary Richter scale magnitude of 6.9, said Alec Medbery of the Tsunami Warning Center in Palmer.

The U.S. Geological Survey at Golden, Colo., said it recorded the quake at 6.8 on the Richter scale.

Officials issued a tsunami, or tidal wave, warning for most of the Alaska and British Columbia coasts.

Pre-summit

GENEVA (AP) — Afghanistan and other regional issues temporarily dominated today's U.S.-Soviet pre-summit talks, and Moscow reportedly considered offering a shortened timetable for withdrawing Soviet troops backing the Kabul government.

EPA announces new pollution crackdown policy

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Environmental Protection Agency lays down the law today to cities and counties that don't meet clean air standards, threatening them with construction bans and loss of federal highway money.

Although the construction bans would apply only to major pollution sources, non-complying areas also will have to reduce pollution 3 percent a year, over and above reductions brought about by national programs, or face loss of federal highway and sewer aid.

EPA officials estimate that 30 to 40 areas are likely to be hit with construction bans about three years from now, but say the probable targets won't be known until 1985-87 pollution figures are compiled next year.

However, all 26 of the nation's largest metropolitan areas were on at least one of two EPA noncompliance lists issued in August, covering 1984-86 ozone and carbon monoxide pollution. Twenty-three cities were on both lists.

In addition, EPA already has proposed construction bans for 14 areas. It said in June that their anti-pollution plans did not predict eventual compliance.

Original 1970 Clean Air Act amendments had envisioned all cities free of air pollution by 1977, but Congress rolled back the deadline twice, five years each time.

The draft EPA policy being announced today by Administrator Lee M. Thomas is based on the assumption that Congress will not make similar revisions this year. The act contains a Dec. 31 deadline for cities and counties to come into compliance with the concentration standards for ozone and carbon monoxide.

EPA had hoped to see progress without having to impose penalties, but while Congress has debated another revision this year, there is no assurance of action. In the last two weeks Thomas decided that the law left him no choice.

"Otherwise we couldn't defend it in court," said one official who spoke on condition of anonymity.

Ozone, the smog component that makes your chest feel tight, is produced by sunlight shining on mixtures of volatile compounds such as solvents, unburned gasoline or nitrogen oxides produced by combustion. Sixty-two urban or rural areas currently violate the ozone standard.

Carbon monoxide, produced mostly by vehicle engines, affects humans by reducing the blood's oxygen-carrying capacity. Current auto emissions standards took effect in 1981. As more pre-1981 cars are junked, fewer areas show excessive carbon monoxide levels, and officials expect only a half-dozen cities eventually to fall short of the standard even though 65 now fail.

Under the act, states must submit plans for EPA approval showing how they will meet the pollutant concentration goals.

The agency expects to call for new plans early next year, and most areas will have two years to submit them. EPA may then take up to a year to make decisions on the plans.

If a construction ban is imposed, it is "not a major economic blow," judging by the handful of areas where it has been used, said one EPA official.

EPA believes states must make most major decisions on what sources to control. Nonetheless, the agency earlier announced companion regulations, to lower the summer volatility of gasoline and to require larger vapor recovery systems on cars.

High court ruling applauded

WASHINGTON (AP) — Law enforcement officials are pleased with a Supreme Court ruling upholding a former newspaper reporter's fraud conviction, saying the decision will aid the fight against illegal insider trading on Wall Street.

Gary Lynch, chief of the Securities and Exchange Commission's enforcement division, said, "I think on balance it's an extremely good day for the government and the SEC. It's clear now there isn't going to be any kind of impediment" to prosecution of insider trading.

But others, including representatives of the news media, expressed concern and uncertainty over the court's decision.

The justices on Monday upheld the criminal convictions of former Wall Street Journal reporter R. Foster Winans and two others who profited from stocks about which Winans was writing.

The court ruled, 8-0, that federal mail and wire fraud laws could be used against the three defendants, but split, 4-4, in upholding securities fraud convictions in the case.

The evenly divided vote, caused by a vacancy on the court, means that no national precedent is established with regard to the securities law ruling.

Winans was sentenced to 18 months in prison for passing on to stockbrokers, prior to publication, information he gathered for an influential Wall Street Journal column called "Heard on the Street." The column is believed to cause sharp, if temporary fluctuations in the price of stocks discussed in the daily feature.

The brokers used the information to make $690,000 in profits in stock trades and paid Winans and his former roommate some $31,000 in kickbacks.

Prosecutors can now move to have Winans and the others imprisoned.

The court upheld the prosecution's claims that the defendants misappropriated the Wall Street Journal's property — namely confidential information — even though there was no evidence the newspaper suffered any monetary loss.

The mail and wire fraud laws were invoked because Wall Street Journal articles are transmitted by telephone lines to its printing plant and the newspaper is mailed to subscribers.

The 4-4 vote on the securities fraud conviction upholds a ruling by the 2nd U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals, which set a precedent for New York, Connecticut and Vermont. That means the SEC is free to prosecute similar cases in that jurisdiction, where most insider trading cases originate.

Groups which warned the 2nd Circuit court ruling could have dire consequences for press freedom said Monday's decision is troubling but may have limited impact in chilling free expression.

"I don't think it's a sweeping ruling for journalists," said Jane Kirtley of the Reporters Committee for Freedom of the Press. "It's drafted to be pretty narrow."

Food surplus supply down

NEW YORK (AP) — The free distribution of cheese, milk and rice will be cut in half during the next year as the government's surplus stock of those items begins to dwindle, a newspaper reported today.

Government programs to reduce the surplus, started two years ago, have succeeded, according to Reagan administration officials quoted by The New York Times.

Between 15 million and 18 million people have been getting some free food each month under the programs, according to the Agriculture Department.

Cutbacks are necessary because the inventory has been drastically reduced, officials at the department's Food and Nutrition Service told the Times.

Under the Food Security Act of 1985, the government started paying 14,000 dairy farmers to stop milk production by killing or exporting cows, calves and heifers. Also the price supports paid to dairy farmers have been reduced.

State treasurer addressed realtors

State treasurer Ann Richards visited with more than 200 realtors recently in Austin. Dolores Jones and Lenora Boydstun from the Snyder Board of Realtors attended the annual TREPAC orientation sponsored by the Texas Association of Realtors. TREPAC is the political action committee of the real estate industry in Texas.

Richards addressed the importance of involvement in the political process. In addition, realtors learned the history and purpose of their political action committee and studied the dynamics of conducting a successful TREPAC fundraising campaign at the local level.

Increase noted in bond sales

Sales of Series EE Bonds amounted to $6,724 during August 1987 in Scurry County, H. W. Cargile, Volunteer County Chairman, said. The October 1986 through August 1987 total for the county was $193,380, which represents 74.4 percent of the county's assigned dollar goal.

United States Savings Bonds sales in Texas for the period October 1986 through August 1987 amounted to $343,282,292, an increase of $5.5 million or almost two percent over the same period a year ago. These sales represent 88.5 percent of the state's 1987 assigned dollar goal of $388 million.

98-year-old obtains amnesty

BROWNSVILLE, Texas (AP) — Now that she's a legal resident, a 98-year-old woman whom officials call the oldest person in the nation to obtain amnesty under the new immigration law says she might work toward citizenship.

A legal resident card was scheduled to be ready today for Clara Escobedo de Martinez, who first came to this country 60 years ago.

When she applied for amnesty this summer, the government computer did not know how to process an illegal alien who was born in 1889.

"She's the oldest in the nation, not only for amnesty, but for any other (immigration) adjustment," said Charlie Perez, chief legalization officer with the Immigration and Naturalization Service's Harlingen District.

Mrs. Escobedo has lived in this country both legally and illegally since she first came here from Mexico in 1927.

It will be the second time for her to receive legal residency in the United States, which she lost in an apparent bureaucratic mixup 25 years ago.

She said she lived here legally from 1927 until 1962, and worked during that time at various babysitting, restaurant and vegetable packing jobs in Texas and California.

"In spite of the fact that I never learned English, they treated me well," Mrs. Escobedo said.

Then in 1962, she said U.S. immigration officials at the international bridge in Brownsville abruptly took away her resident alien card as she was returning from a regular visit to family members across the Rio Grande in Matamoros.

She never found out why the government revoked her legal status, and did not return to live illegally until 1979.

"I've always been very happy in the United States. I thank the Lord," said Mrs. Escobedo.

"I want to be legitimate and content, following the law," added Mrs. Escobedo, whose only husband, was killed in 1914 by Pancho Villa's men during a battle in the revolutionary turmoil that engulfed Mexico.

She lives in a spacious, modern Brownsville home with her daughter and granddaughter.

Mrs. Escobedo said the next logical thing to do is work toward citizenship, for which she would be eligible at the age of 104.

"I plan to be in heaven by then," she said.

Under the new immigration law, the Immigration Reform and Control Act of 1986, she first receives her temporary residence card Tuesday, and may apply for permanent residence 18 months from the date she submitted her original amnesty application.

A one-year amnesty period began May 5 for undocumented aliens able to show they have lived in the United States illegally since Jan. 1, 1982.

Mrs. Escobedo, with five grandchildren and six great-grandchildren, takes daily walks, attends a Baptist church twice a week, cleans the house and is planning a train trip with her daughter and granddaughter.

Delaying a discard

Sorry, but I would open the bidding with the North hand. North has prime cards, two and a half quick tricks, and 12 high-card points with a 10-spot for a kicker. But North did compensate for his original pass with strong subsequent bidding. I particularly like the four-spade cue-bid to tell partner not only that he had first-round control of spades but that he had passed a hand that many players would have opened. Still that's not the problem here. You get to five clubs, and West leads the spade queen. Blot out the actual East-West cards from your mind and plan the play.

It's tempting to shed a heart on the spade ace right away and then rely on the diamond suit behaving. Unfortunately that approach founders because the location of the diamond honors favors the defenders. But you can combine all your chances. Trump the opening lead, keeping the spade ace for later. Then play a low diamond toward dummy. When West plays low, insert the 10. Maybe that will force the king. But East wins the jack and returns a heart. Take the heart ace, cash two clubs (leaving a trump entry in dummy) and then play a diamond to dummy's ace. When the king does not pop up, play the spade ace and throw your diamond queen away. You can now ruff a diamond, and lo and behold, the diamonds are 3-3. You return to dummy with a club to pitch a heart loser on the long diamond, and you have taken 11 tricks and made your contract.

A new book by James Jacoby and his father, the late Oswald Jacoby, is now available at bookstores. It is "Jacoby on Card Games," published by Pharos Books.

Hearing aids for dogs are now available, officials say

COLLEGE STATION, Texas (AP) — Hearing aids for dogs are now available through Texas A&M, whose College of Veterinary Medicine is the only place in the state where hearing loss in dogs can be tested.

Older dogs who have lost their hearing are now able to hear oncoming cars, imminent danger and their master's call — all of which may have been silenced before — says the only board-certified veterinary neurologist in the state, Dr. Patricia Luttgen.

"It's not all that uncommon for dogs to live well into their teens these days — thanks to advances in veterinary medicine," said Luttgen. "With the hearing aid, they can have a better quality of life because that human-animal contact is being maintained."

The device used for testing the type and degree of deafness in dogs is called an electrodiagnostic unit. Texas A&M has the only technology in the state that tests dogs for hearing disorders. The hearing aids themselves were developed last year at Auburn University.

Luttgen said testing for deafness is essential to find out if a dog has conduction deafness, which is helped by the hearing aid, or nerve deafness, which is not.

Luttgen places electrodes under the dog's skin by its ear over the part of the brain where hearing is perceived. By stimulating the ear with sound, an electrical pattern of that stimulation is recorded. Luttgen is then able to discern which ear is worse and what kind of deafness is involved.

When dogs get older, the ossicles — little bones in the middle ear that transmit vibrations — don't vibrate as well as they should. The hearing aid assists the ossicles by replacing the transmission that is being interrupted, she said.

Dog hearing aids are just like human hearing aids in that they have a volume control and the same electronics. The only difference is they have a long neck which is nestled in a contractable cylinder of foam that expands to fit in the dog's ear.

"That's the way we keep the cost down — human aids have to be fitted exactly to an individual's ear and bought individually — dog hearing aids can be purchased in bulk and fit any dog over five pounds — from Pekingese to German Shepherd — because the foam makes it fit exactly," Luttgen explained.

Lady Tigers tip off tonight

Coach Ken Housden says he is looking forward to the 1987-88 basketball season which tips off here tonight, and well he should be. The Lady Tigers bring back three full-time and one part-time starter from a team that finished third in the league a year ago.

Snyder hosts Abilene Cooper at 7:30 p.m. in the high school gym. A ninth grade game is slated for 4:30 p.m., and a junior varsity game at 6 p.m.

"All of the girls are playing hard. I've been pleased with the scrimmages we've had, but we'll find out a lot more tonight," said Housden, whose Tigers were 19-10 last season.

Housden feels the team may not be as quick as in recent years - though it will continue to press a lot - but size and depth are pluses.

Returning starters include 5-7 senior Teri Sue Henry, a first-team all-district selection who will play post-forward for the Tigers, and 5-4 senior Christi Comer, honorable mention guard.

Also returning from a starting role is 5-10 junior post Melody Pickering. Rhonda Echols, a 5-9 junior post, started in a number of ballgames as well.

The other returning lettermen include 5-4 senior guard Deedra Tomlin, 5-7 senior forward LaFon Williams and 5-5 junior guard Holly Fuller.

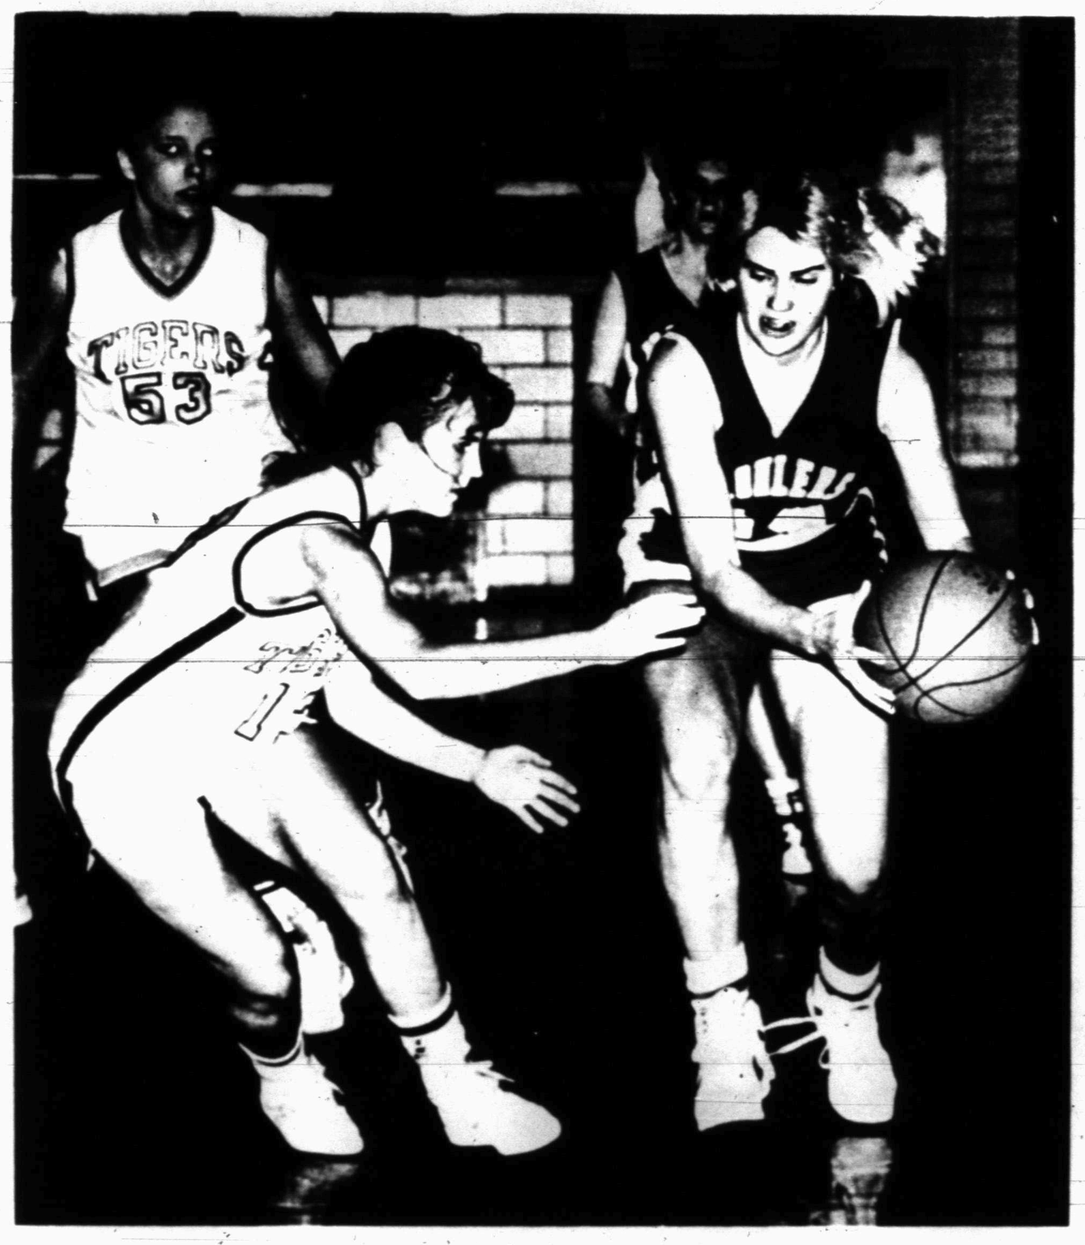

"I think we'll be pretty quick but not as quick as we have been in the last two or three years. We'll still press full court a lot, though," said Coach Housden. "We have a little more size, and I think we'll have real good depth."

Rounding out the team are a number of players who come up from a junior varsity unit that posted a 21-2 record. They include 5-1 senior Michelle Candanoza and 5-8 junior forward-post Melissa Williams. Sophomores moved up are 5-5 guard Evette Housden, 5-9 post-forward Shelly Tomlin and 5-7 post Dana Fenton.

"Because we have some size this year some of the girls will play post and outside both. It's different for them and it will take some time for them to adjust," noted Housden. "But we're ready to start playing. We're looking forward to beginning the season."

Great's not enough; Buckeyes fire Bruce

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) - Earle Bruce is proud of his accomplishments as the head football coach at Ohio State. Yet the winningest record in the Big Ten over the last nine years wasn't enough to guarantee his job.

The 56-year-old Bruce, 80-26-1 since replacing the late Woody Hayes at his alma mater, was fired Monday by Ohio State President Edward H. Jennings. The dismissal, following three straight losses by a combined 10 points, prompted Athletic Director Rick Bay to resign in protest.

"I'm a Buckeye and so is most of my coaching staff," Bruce said as he left the Ohio State football practice facility Monday night. "I'm kind of proud of what I've done here. Dog-gone proud."

Bruce's Buckeyes are 5-4-1 this season, the worst record for an Ohio State team since Hayes' 1966 team was 4-5. Just as the losing record wasn't indicative of Hayes' tenure, this season was an aberration in Bruce's career.

In eight previous seasons, all of which ended in bowl appearances, Ohio State had won at least nine games. The 1979 and 1984 teams won Big Ten titles and the 1981 and 1986 clubs tied for the league championship.

"I'm not allowed to have this year - one year, one bad year at Ohio State?" Bruce asked.

Bruce, working on the second year of a three-year contract that started at a salary of $87,120, had a 56-17 record in Big Ten games, a mark exceeded only by Michigan's Bo Schembechler, who is 59-15-1 over that stretch.

In an interview with The Columbus Dispatch, Jennings said pressure to dismiss Bruce came from "all over."

"In our judgement, it was time to make a change. That's all there is to it," Jennings said. "It was a personnel matter."

Bay, who announced the firing and his own resignation at an afternoon press conference, said Jennings "asked me to meet with him and informed me that he was under pressure to make a coaching change and that we had to do that.

"I think it was building and, in my own view, his detractors were just waiting for an excuse."

In a statement issued through Jennings' office, associate athletic director James L. Jones was named to replace Bay. Jennings said the university would fulfill the remaining financial terms of Bruce's contract.

Elway out-battles McMahon as Broncos nip Bears, 31-29

DENVER (AP) - Denver's John Elway and Chicago's Jim McMahon fought a dazzling passing duel that was decided, somewhat anticlimactically, by a pair of missed extra points.

Thanks to the failed conversions and a fumble by William "The Refrigerator" Perry at the goal line, Denver escaped with a badly needed 31-29 NFL Monday night victory over the Bears.

The Broncos' record rose to 5-3-1 and kept them 2½ games behind San Diego, 8-1, in the AFC West. Chicago fell to 7-2 but remained atop the NFC Central.

-Chicago dominated the first and third quarters, Denver the second and fourth as the teams played to a virtual standoff:

-Chicago had 446 total yards and Denver 439.

-The Broncos had 25 first downs to the Bears' 24.

-Both teams averaged 6.5 yards per offensive play.

-Elway completed 21 of 40 passes for 341 yards and three touchdowns, while McMahon hit on 21 of 34 for 311 yards and three scores.

"We didn't have much of a running game, and that makes it difficult, but John had a tremendous game," Denver Coach Dan Reeves said of Elway, who also led the Broncos in rushing with 35 yards on five carries.

If there was one turning point, it came midway through the second quarter. The Bears, leading 14-7, were threatening to score. Facing a third-and-goal from the Broncos' 1-yard line, McMahon handed off to the 315-pound Perry, a defensive lineman who was making his first appearance in the offensive backfield this season.

Perry was stacked up, however, and Mike Harden pried the ball loose. Cornerback Mark Haynes picked it up and returned it 24 yards, setting up Denver's tying touchdown drive.

Elway, who earlier in the quarter tossed a 22-yard touchdown pass to Vance Johnson, made it 14-14 with a 22-yarder to Mark Jackson.

Elway capped the Broncos' flurry with a perfectly thrown 35-yard TD pass to rookie Ricky Nattiel.

But McMahon, who had two TD passes in the first quarter, brought Chicago back after intermission.

He hit a wide-open Willie Gault on a 26-yarder for one score. Barely two minutes later, after an interception by linebacker Ron Rivera, McMahon sneaked over from one yard out.

Both extra points were botched, however. On the first, holder Mike Tomczak appeared to have trouble getting a low snap down and Kevin Butler hooked the ball outside the left upright. On the second, Tomczak again had trouble with the snap. He tried to run, eventually pitching to Butler, but they were stopped short of the goal line.

With Chicago ahead 26-21, a 42-yard Butler field goal appeared to put the game away.

Denver's Rich Karlis kicked a field goal early in the final quarter to cut the lead to 29-24, but Chicago began marching again, reaching the Bronco 31. Rookie cornerback K.C. Clark intercepted a McMahon pass and returned it 20 yards to the Denver 39. Elway passed 24 yards to Jackson to set up Steve Sewell's clinching score from four yards out with 4:58 left.

The Bronco defense secured the victory with three sacks.

The first pair of brothers to play in an NBA All-Star Game were the Van Arsdales. Tom played for Cincinnati and Dick for Phoenix in the 1970 game.

Reagan-Wright meeting does little to smooth controversy

WASHINGTON (AP) — A meeting between President Reagan and House Speaker Jim Wright has failed to soften the administration's bitterness over Wright's high-profile role in Central America's regional peace efforts.

Wright, D-Texas, sought the hour-long meeting Monday to explain why he met with Nicaraguan President Daniel Ortega, leaders of the U.S.-backed Contra rebels and Nicaraguan Cardinal Miguel Obando y Bravo, who is mediating cease-fire negotiations.

But after meeting with Reagan and his top advisers, Wright described the president as intransigent and suggested he was stepping in to fill a foreign-policy void created by the U.S. turning a diplomatic cold shoulder to the leftist Sandinista government.

"Perhaps if they had an open door policy to people in Central America, those people would go to see them instead of coming to see me," Wright said at a luncheon with reporters after the White House meeting.

The Reagan administration "sometimes gives the unfortunate impression that it looks upon people in Central America as inferiors, by scorning them, lecturing them, holding them up to public ridicule, refusing to see them," he said. "I guess I'm just more egalitarian."

Ortega, in Mexico City to brief Mexican President Miguel de la Madrid on his cease-fire proposal, said he had sought meetings with both Wright and Reagan, but only Wright agreed to see him.

"What the fact that President Reagan did not want to meet with me shows is the lack of willingness on the part of the North American government to support the initiatives for peace in Central America," Ortega said, adding he hoped the U.S. government had changed its attitude.

Wright met at least three times last week with Ortega and attended a session Friday at which the Nicaraguan president presented an 11-point cease-fire proposal to Obando y Bravo. The speaker's continuing involvement has prompted growing criticism that he is overstepping his role and threatens to confuse U.S. foreign policy in the region.

The Sandinistas and the Contras are seeking to devise a cease-fire plan to comply with a five-nation Central American peace accord signed in August.

A White House official, speaking on condition of anonymity, called Monday's meeting "a fairly tense discussion."

"We were unconvinced" by Wright's arguments, the official said.

White House spokesman Marlin Fitzwater said Reagan used the session to point out "the confusion that arises and the misleading impressions that can be left if members of Congress, without coordination with the Executive Branch, involve themselves in complex negotiations with foreign heads of government."

Fitzwater said: "The president expressed his concern over the speaker's role in getting involved in what should be essentially a matter between the Sandinista government and the Nicaraguan resistance."

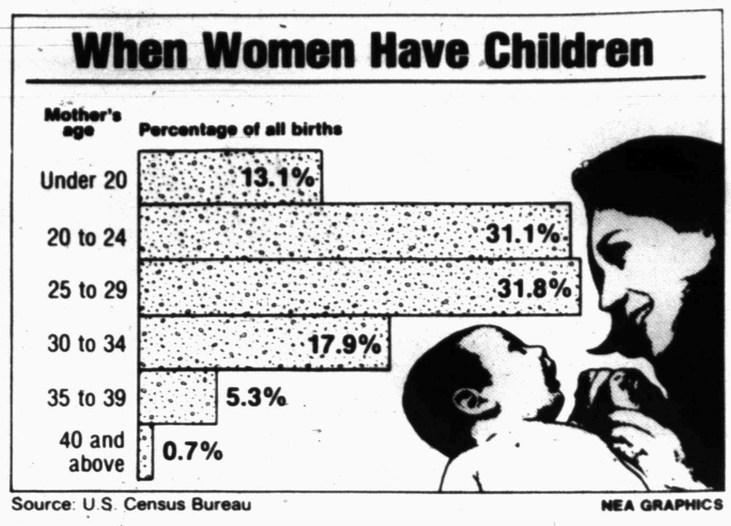

Wright gave no indication after the meeting that he intended to back away from his activism.

State Department spokesman Charles Redman rejected Wright's contention that the administration looks down on Central Americans.

"I'm not quite sure which Central Americans" Wright had in mind, Redman said. With "the Central American democracies, at least, we have very close, cordial relations."

The administration has said it may send a request to Capitol Hill this week for an additional $30 million in non-lethal "humanitarian" aid to the Contras.

Democrats have vowed to fight any such request.

About 3.7 million babies were born in the United States in 1984, the most recent year for which the mothers' ages are available. Many experts believe this number will drop as the baby-boom generation ages and the number of women in the peak childbearing years declines.

Professor halts sale of rescue video tape

ODESSA, Texas (AP) — Because state-owned equipment was used, a professor has pulled off the market a videotape showing the dramatic rescue of Jessica McClure, the toddler who was stuck for 58 hours in an underground well shaft.

The tape was made by Bob Wakefield, an adjunct professor at the University of Texas of the Permian Basin.

University officials say they're concerned that Wakefield, who teaches a television production class, might have used school equipment to produce the videotapes, which he sold for $19.95 plus $3 for postage.

Firm has bleak outlook for domestic oil

HOUSTON (AP) — Oil prices, which plummeted to $10 per barrel last year and now hover around the $20 mark, must exceed $30 per barrel to halt the growing dependence on foreign oil, a major accounting firm says.

In a bleak eighth annual oil and gas reserve disclosures survey, Arthur Andersen & Co. also said Monday that U.S. oil producers are trimming spending because of lower crude prices and cannot keep pace with domestic demand, meaning the nation will grow even more dependent on imported oil.

"Few expect near-term market and political forces to drive oil prices up to those levels," Richard C. Adkerson, managing director of the firm, said.

"Absent price increases, or government actions — about which there is great controversy — to compensate for lower prices, continuation of present conditions will result in a severe and inevitable increase in our nation's dependence on foreign oil producers."

"The plain fact is that current exploration and development spending is far too low to prevent a further and significant slide in domestic production of oil," added David Moore, director of the Arthur Anderson survey of 270 energy companies

Residents hopeful in cleanup effort following twister

PALESTINE, Texas (AP) — Whining chainsaws and the deep diesel drone of heavy machinery resounded throughout a devastated area of Palestine as crews cleared roads and streets of fallen trees and debris.

"The good Lord gave me this place, and I'm going to keep it," Teddy O'Neal said Monday as he and other residents surveyed the damage to their homes and studied how to rebuild.

Sunday's tornado ripped away half the roof of O'Neal's house and shifted the brick structure on its foundation, meaning any rebuilding effort would have to be from the ground up, he said.

"We're all just thankful to God that none of us were hurt," O'Neal said.

Under blue skies, as the weather cleared following two days of surprise November tornadoes to Central, East and Southeast Texas, Palestine residents tacked plastic and plywood over gaping holes in their homes.

One person in Palestine died in the tornado and police estimated 59 were injured, with about 32 of those seeking treatment at the local hospital, officials said. More than a dozen tornadoes hit Texas Sunday and Monday, killing 10 people.

"We're covered (by insurance) and everything. It'll just be awhile before they get somebody out here to check it," said Marilyn Groves as she stood with her husband, Tommy, outside their damaged home.

Like nearly everyone else in the neighborhoods that bore the brunt of the tornado Sunday, the Groves rode out the storm crouched in an interior room of their house.

"There shouldn't be any reason why we can't rebuild," Groves said.

The two families said their homes were uninhabitable. But most other residents apparently planned to stay in their damaged houses.

"We stayed in the living room last night," said Lynn Gibson, who with her husband, Gary, and three daughters were assessing the damages early Monday afternoon. "We'll stay if we can because we don't want looters coming in, and if it doesn't get cold. We don't have any electricity or gas."

Preliminary estimates indicate damages may run between $8 million and $12 million, with at least 86 businesses and more than 200 homes hit by the twister, said Palestine City Manager Warren Driver.

Many business owners spent Sunday night watching over their shattered buildings and soaked merchandise.

"We'll be spending a few (more) nights down here," said Rick Floyd, manager of Dealer's Electrical Supply, which like several other stores was open Monday. "Something like this, there's a big demand for electrical supplies."

"All of our neighbors seemed positive about building back," Floyd said. "Of course, I'm concerned about some people around town not having insurance money. Business has been bad, but this may give it a little boost," he said.

Disaster relief workers said there was no shortage of help.

"Right now, we've got more volunteers than victims, which is good," said Scott Turner, disaster services coordinator for the Anderson County chapter of the American Red Cross.

"We've got search and rescue teams out, we've got damage assessment teams out, we have one shelter active," he said. "I would estimate that we've already fed 300 to 500 meals at our mass feeding station."

The Red Cross was the lead agency for private relief groups which included the Salvation Army and the Texas Baptist Men's Group.

Gov. Bill Clements planned to visit Palestine and Jacksonville this afternoon, said his press secretary Reggie Bashur. Clements was scheduled to fly into Dallas at 1:30 p.m. and arrive in Palestine by 2 p.m. After touring damage in Palestine, Clements was scheduled to go on to Jacksonville, 25 miles to the northeast.

Government aid — the grants and low-interest loans that come with federal and state disaster area declarations — was still in the assessment stage, officials said.

"We're just getting all the numbers together, and then we'll evaluate the total situation," said David Barham of the Governor's Emergency Services Office.

Residents said they were optimistic they would bounce back from the storm, but also seemed to feel things would be all right simply because they survived.

"We didn't get killed," said 4-year-old Stacy Gibson with a smile.

National collection sought for nuns

WASHINGTON (AP) — Thousands of nuns who taught generations of young Catholics but now have grown old with little or no money would benefit from a huge new fund-raising effort being considered by Roman Catholic bishops.

"The collective Catholic conscience of the country demands this," Archbishop Roger Mahony of Los Angeles declared Monday as the bishops discussed a proposal for a special yearly collection in Catholic churches.

The proposal was expected to be approved today at the bishops' annual meeting.

U.S. religious orders — mostly nuns but also including some brothers — are as much as $2.5 billion short of the money needed to care for their growing ranks of retirees, according to some estimates.

The bishops aren't raising hopes that such an amount — about $47 from each of the nation's 52.9 million Catholic men, women and children — could be raised merely in Sunday collection baskets.

And Bishop Cletus O'Donnell of Madison, Wis., even pleaded Monday for fellow bishops to stop using such a figure.

"It turns people off," O'Donnell said. "Let's be reasonable. We can't raise that amount of money."

But the group made clear they were determined to make a major effort to help the denomination's religious orders, which have large and growing numbers of older members at the same time relatively few young people are joining to take their places.

In other measures scheduled for votes later this week, the bishops heard proposals Monday under which they would:

—Condemn as "morally objectionable" the practice of public school health clinics handing out contraceptives and giving abortion counseling.

—Declare that the U.S. government is following a "morally flawed" policy in supporting Nicaragua's Contra rebels and that the government should instead help impoverished Central American nations and "not use Central American lives as pawns in a superpower struggle" with the Soviet Union.

—Set up non-binding guidelines for avoiding or, if necessary, resolving disputes between bishops and theologians.

—Embrace a new national pastoral plan for Hispanic ministry, hoping to energize the church's efforts toward an ethnic group which is traditionally Catholic but which is deemed vulnerable to inroads by fundamentalists.

Some bishops expressed qualms about participating in the proposed national collection, saying their dioceses had already begun separate efforts.

But there was nothing but praise for the work of the nuns, with several bishops conceding that part of their current problem stems from the women having been paid so little by the church for their years of work.

The bishops were given copies of a Gallup Poll that had been commissioned to see whether Catholics would likely support such a fund-raising effort.

The answer was emphatically yes, according to an analysis of the poll by a tri-conference committee that included representatives of the national organizations of bishops, nuns and brothers.

Immigration laws may cause drop in students

AUSTIN (AP) — Foreign students may be discouraged from coming to study in the United States because of new immigration laws, a federal immigration official says.

Ed Dornbusch, special agent in charge of investigations for the Immigration and Naturalization Service at Austin, says the 1986 Immigration Reform and Control Act "may drop the amount of students coming over."

Fewer foreign students will be able to get jobs while in school or after graduation because the new law penalizes employers who hire illegal aliens, who will be more careful about hiring foreigners without work permits, Dornbusch said.

Work permits are difficult to obtain for foreign students, he said.

"Very seldom is it granted anymore," he said. "If you see a foreign student working at 7-Eleven or something, he is probably illegal."

"A legitimate, honest student, to get a study visa would have to convince the American consulate that he wants to study, not work," and foreign students must prove they have secure financial backing, Dornbusch said.

Deane Atkinson, an immigration adviser at the UT International Office, agreed it is "possible" fewer foreign students with the intent of working illegally will come to the United States.

But she said the new laws actually make it easier to authorize work permits.

"With the new laws, the immigration service is more fair," Atkinson said. "We've applied for lots (of work permits) and have gotten them."

The law has a provision allowing universities to authorize the student's first six-month work permit, Atkinson said. In the past, she said, foreign students always had to apply to the INS, and delays were common.

Dornbusch said while most students legitimately want to study, many use college as a pretense to live in the United States and then quit school, find a job and settle down.

"We have a lot of investigations of former students," he said. "Being a big college town, there are an awful lot."

Special week observed locally

Members of the Scurry County TSTA are asking parents, students, and civic and business leaders to join in the nation's annual salute to public education during American Education Week, Nov. 15-21.

This year's American Education theme--We The People: Building Schools Together--was specially selected to commemorate the bicentennial of the United States Constitution.

"American Education Week is our community's chance to spotlight the accomplishments and the needs of our local schools," said Betsy Griffin, TSTA president.

American Education Week was established as a national celebration of public education in 1921. The event is co-sponsored nationally by the American Legion, The National PTA, the National Education Association, The National School Boards Association, and the United States Department of Education.

Fugitive fascinated by war

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — Acquaintances of the former head of the Texas Ku Klux Klan, who was captured recently in Mexico, say he is an electrifying speaker with a fascination for the Civil War.

Louis Ray Beam Jr., who was on the FBI's 10 most wanted list, was captured by Mexican authorities last week near Guadalajara, Mexico and was flown to Fort Smith, Ark. where he is wanted for seditious conspiracy, or plotting to overthrow the government of the United States.

The man who built the Texas Knights of the KKK into one of the strongest state Klans always had the ability to impress an audience, acquaintances said.

"He could really stir a crowd," said Gene Fisher, a Kemah fisherman who was one of the leaders in the shrimp war. "He could just start talking and give you chills."

Beam's cousin, Allen Ray Repp of Huntington, added, "I've always said he has a big mouth."

Beam who was silenced by a court order in 1981 after the Vietnamese-Klan shrimp-fishing war on the Texas coast, was Grand Dragon of the Texas Knights of the KKK, which he built into one of the strongest state Klans.

He left the KKK in the early 1980s for The Order, an extremist group in the Northwest that sought to overthrow the U.S. government through violence and replace it with an "Aryan Nation" of white warriors.

The eldest of four children and son of a decorated World War II paratrooper who operated a motel and cafe, Beam was born on Aug. 20, 1946, in Lufkin.

He displayed a fascination for the Civil War as early as the fourth grade, when his parents sold the Lufkin business and moved to Lake Jackson in Southeast Texas.

"He was very learned in the Civil War," said classmate Alan Borel. "Even in grade school, he could tell you how many were killed on each side, who the generals were, the starting and ending dates."

Friends and acquaintances said Beam's fascination with the Civil War and his Klan involvement apparently sprang from the same source. Borel said that by junior high school, Beam was "trying to get the history club to join the KKK."

Beam grew up in an all-white school system, in a heavily segregated community.

"In Lake Jackson, it was pretty well known that the blacks weren't allowed in town," said Borel. "That was the real estate people — they wouldn't sell a house to the blacks. We had a colored lady come keep house for us, and I remember her saying she had to be out of town by dark."

Auctioneering service now offered by couple

A new estate auction and liquidation sale service is being offered in Scurry County--T Enterprises operated by Bob Traylor and his wife Carol.

Traylor received his auctioneer license one year ago and is now moving into the auctioneering business "full time," he noted.

For the past 16 years, he has worked as a salesman with Snyder Truck and Tractor.

He said the firm will specialize in estate auctions and liquidation sales of both businesses and farm equipment.

He is assisted in the operation by his wife Carol, who serves as office manager, Kay Shifflett, as clerk, and Beverly Mitchell, as cashier. The office number is 573-1443.

Resident has neck surgery

Snyder resident Bobby Staton was said recovering from neck surgery Tuesday in an Abilene hospital.

He underwent surgery Monday in Hendrick Medical Center. The operation was the result of injuries suffered in a wreck here Aug. 11.

The family notes cards could be sent in care of Bobby Staton, Hendrick Medical Center, Room C, 7705; Abilene, Tx. 79601.

ISD rechecks district lines

4 and, when the term expires in 1990, could run again to represent it.

McMullan was singled out since--in an agreement reached prior to his being elected--it was determined the at-large trustee receiving the largest number of votes last April 4 would be named to the newly added single member district.

Snyder's single member district plan might be expanded due to a decision from a federal appeals court involving the voter discrimination lawsuit against Midland ISD.

Currently, the Snyder board is a 4-3 arrangement--four trustees representing specific areas, so-called single member districts, and three trustees elected "at-large," or by a vote of all school district voters.

Following the decision of the Fifth Circuit U.S. Court of Appeals in the suit LULAC vs. Midland ISD, this representation may be required to change from 4-3 to 5-2, adding the additional single member district.

In the Midland lawsuit, LULAC alleges that school districts under the single member district system must have at least 70 percent of its board membership elected from a specific area.

Under Snyder's current 4-3 ratio, 57 percent of the board is elected from specific areas.

AIDS data said unreliable

WASHINGTON (AP) — Experts say they're just guessing at how rapidly AIDS is spreading through the American population, but a Pentagon study shows the fatal disease is on the rise among young people applying for military service.

Dr. Vernon Mark, chairman of the Harvard Medical School, said Monday that a Centers for Disease Control estimate of 1.5 million AIDS infections in the United States "is just a guess."

"The more I hear experts talk on this subject, the more I am convinced that the figures available now are quite inaccurate," said Mark. "Not only are they inaccurate about the numbers, but they are also inaccurate about how fast the disease is spreading."

Mark said estimates on the effect of AIDS range from a World Health Organization projection that "it will cripple civilization" to the view of some U.S. experts that the disease will make no significant inroads into the general population.

Mark was attending an AIDS virus conference Monday at the Department of Health and Human Services.

Army Col. Donald S. Burke, discussing the Pentagon study, said it can't be applied to the general population, but it does suggest that the disease is spreading.

Burke, a Walter Reed Army Institute of Research scientist, said the study showed an acquired immune deficiency syndrome virus infection rate of 1.5 per 1,000, based on tests of 4.5 million applicants for military service.

He said the two-year study showed that the disease is spreading, but the rate found by the military probably is low compared with the untested young American population.

"It's the best data we have, but it's not perfect because of a statistical bias," said Burke. He said applicants for military service include few homosexuals or drug addicts, the population groups with the highest incidence of AIDS.

"The more important question is, 'Is it (the spread of AIDS) getting better or worse?'" said Burke. "From our data it's getting worse."

Prison violence reduced by isolation

AUSTIN (AP) — The Texas Department of Corrections has reduced murders and assaults by isolating its most dangerous convicts, a report by a national prisons expert says.

Dr. James Austin of the National Council on Crime and Delinquency said Monday the "classification" system, or housing scheme at TDC, in which inmates are assigned living quarters based on sophisticated criteria, has ended the gang warfare in which 52 inmates were killed during 1984 and 1985.

Austin said that inmates remain fearful for their safety, though, and many of the newly hired security officers are reluctant to patrol some areas of the prisons.

The results of a survey Austin conducted on the TDC's housing plant for the court-appointed special master overseeing the prison system's operations concluded that "TDC is doing an excellent job of monitoring" inmate cell or dormitory assignments.

With about 2,800 inmates housed alone, Austin said his investigation revealed that "no doubled celled inmates were plainly too assaultive or too vulnerable to be housed in a double cell."

He also concluded that "homicide, suicide and escape rates within TDC are similar or lower than comparable state prison systems."

Five homicides have been reported at TDC this year, compared with 24 in 1984 and 27 in 1985. Non-fatal stabbings have dropped from 404 in 1984 to 58 this year.

Dear Abby

20-Year Air Force Marriage Bears Stamp of Holiday Mail

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1987 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: Nearly 21 years ago, an Air Force sergeant working in the mail room at Khorat Royal Thai Air Base in Thailand wrote to you saying that many young, lonely airmen stationed there received little or no mail, and perhaps you could generate a little mail to cheer them up during the Christmas holidays.

You printed his letter, and mail came in by the truckload — as many as 100,000 letters in a single week! That was December 1966, and I was one of the young, lonely airmen.

We shuffled through the mountain of mail searching for letters from our home states. I was particularly interested in those with New York addresses, as my hometown is in upstate New York. A letter from Kathy Birmingham from Long Island caught my eye. She sounded like my kind of girl, so I wrote to her. Surprisingly, she wrote back immediately. We were both 21, and had so much in common. By April 1967, we had a very exciting correspondence going and made plans to meet when I returned from my overseas tour.

In August 1967, I flew home, then drove to Long Island to meet Kathy and her family. It was love at first sight! I asked her to marry me on the third day, she accepted on the fourth, and we were married in November 1967!

We have remained an Air Force family, and have traveled around the world with our lovely daughter, Kelley, who is now 16. Every time we tell the story of how we met, people say, "You should tell Abby!" What more appropriate time than on our 20th anniversary!

So to you, Dear Abby, our thanks for a lifetime of happiness and memories. And to Kathy, the girl who wrote that letter to a lonely sergeant so long ago, my love, now and always. Happy 20th anniversary!

May God bless you, Abby.

CAPT. DAVE THURSTON,
BELLEVUE, NEB.

DEAR CAPT. DAVE AND KATHY: Please add my warm congratulations to those of your many friends. What an upper your letter was. And the timing was perfect, because Operation Dear Abby III is coming up in two weeks.

In conjunction with America Remembers, I will again publish the addresses of our servicemen and women who are far from home and need to know that their countrymen remember and support them. My readers are eager to send messages of love and support to those men and women who keep our country free.

DEAR ABBY: Please tell me why retired men tag along with their wives to do the weekly grocery shopping. I see this constantly. The poor wife has to listen to her husband tell her why another brand is better (or cheaper) than the one she selected. Then there's the hassle of taking items out of the cart and replacing them with others while they argue back and forth. Abby, these women have been shopping for 40 years or more without their husbands — now suddenly he's a maven.

When my husband retires, I will either leave him at home, or give him the shopping list and let him do the grocery shopping.

Please deal with this problem in your column.

SEEN IT IN TUCSON

DEAR SEEN IT: Retired men tag along with their wives because they have nothing better to do. Almost every community has a senior citizens recreation center, as well as volunteer programs. Retired people (both men and women) could enrich their lives and the lives of others by making themselves useful. Those who are not aware of programs for seniors should contact their local volunteer center or Chamber of Commerce.

Facts about organ donation

By Peter H. Gott, M.D.

DEAR DR. GOTT — I'm a senior citizen in reasonable health. Would my organs be suitable for donation?

DEAR READER — In all probability, yes. Some of your organs — such as your corneas — could be donated. Check with the pathology department of your local hospital to determine the method by which you could most easily donate organs. The need for transplantable organs varies from community to community and state to state. Your local pathologist can advise you.

DEAR DR. GOTT — Is it possible to drink too much water? I drink at least 12 glasses of iced tea, water and juices a day.

DEAR READER — People who force themselves to drink water when they are not thirsty can develop water intoxication, a medical condition called psychogenic polydipsia. This can cause enormous amounts of urine and low blood sodium. Since thirst is absent, this condition differs from an abnormal physical need for fluid.

Twelve glasses of liquid may not be excessive, depending on your fluid loss. For example, people who perspire heavily in warm and humid environments have to drink more to compensate for the fluid lost in sweat. However, it is not necessary to drink liquids if you are not thirsty. Let your body be the judge of your water balance.

People who suffer from a glandular or kidney abnormality may experience uncontrollable thirst. This is called diabetes insipidus and results in a large fluid intake and urine flow. Another possible cause of increased thirst and urine excretion is diabetes mellitus (colloquially known as sugar diabetes). In this case, a person has increased thirst because the body needs extra fluid in order to get rid of sugar.

Remember that iced tea and juices give you more than water — for example, tannic acid, citric acid and calories. In excess, these compounds can affect health.

As a general rule, I think that it's appropriate to limit the consumption of beverages to a reasonable amount and drink extra water only if you are thirsty.

DEAR DR. GOTT — Five years ago I suffered a stroke, which affected my entire left side. I'm 78, and aside from my physical disabilities, enjoy excellent health. I am left with one concern: My left outer ear is very painful, so much so that I cannot lie on a pillow. What could cause this?

DEAR READER — I do not know the cause of your ear pain. Such a consequence is not usual after a stroke. You may have an infection or a form of neuralgia. Ask your doctor to examine your ear and, if necessary, refer you to an ear, nose and throat specialist.

World not reacting to food crisis

NAIROBI, Kenya (AP) — The world is reacting too slowly to stop hunger from spreading in 15 sub-Saharan nations facing widespread drought, crop failure and effects of civil wars, the U.N. World Food Program says.

James Ingram, program director, said donor countries have pledged only 1.4 million tons of food — just over half of the 2.7 million tons needed by the African countries fighting food emergencies. An additional 115,000 tons of relief food was needed to feed war and drought refugees in seven countries.

"The world has largely failed to recognize the serious food shortages now facing countries in the Horn of Africa," Ingram said.
