Bush woos South Texas Hispanics

By DAVID SEDENO

HEBBRONVILLE (AP) — Vice President Bush, leading a contingent of Republicans wooing Hispanic voters, told a mostly Mexican-American crowd Saturday that he was glad to be in an area where people revere family traditions and patriotism.

"I guess the thing that unites us today, transcending parties or political ideology, is this question of family and patriotism and love of family and these are the reasons I feel so at home here in South Texas," Bush said.

Bush, who was in San Antonio on Friday for a fundraiser, was invited to this community of 5,000 by the local GOP chairman, Tony Salinas, who has been friends with Bush since the 1970s.

"Vice president and Mrs. Bush, mi casa es su casa (my house is your house,) but by the same token I hope you don't make me the same offer because I'll take you up on that" Salinas told the couple.

Salinas, the publisher of the Jim Hogg County Enterprise, invited thousands and about 2,000 people showed up at his ranch outside of town.

Marching bands and drill teams also were part of the ceremonies.

Also attending the event, which included free barbecue and all the trimmings, were U.S. Sen. Phil Gramm, R-Texas; U.S. Rep. Tom Loeffler, R-Hunt; ex-U.S. Rep. Kent Hance, a Democrat-turned-Republican; and Texas GOP chairman George Strake.

Loeffler has announced his intention to run for governor in a race pitting him against former Gov. Bill Clements. Hance also is expected to throw his hat in the ring.

Gramm, who introduced Bush, also is a converted Republican, who chastised his old party for not doing enough for the people.

"We knew the problem was the government, not America and so in the time honored tradition of democracy we changed the government ... we elected Ronald Reagan and George Bush and under their leadership we've brought the inflation rate to a standstill," Gramm said.

He also talked about foreign policy.

"I believe in strong good relations with our neighbors," Bush said of the Mexico-U.S. relationship. "It's absolutely certain, absolutely essential to our foreign policy, that we continue to keep these good relations."

OPEC anniversary statement criticizes overproduction

By LARRY GERBER

VIENNA, Austria (AP) — The Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries said Saturday that overproduction and price cuts would backfire on non-member nations that sell their oil too cheaply and could lead to market chaos.

"Those who adopt an uncooperative attitute to OPEC in favor of short-term price cutting will discover, perhaps too late, that the economics of the short term are also the economics of the short-sighted," said a statement issued by the organization's secretariat to note OPEC's 25th anniversary.

The unsigned statement accused OPEC's adversaries in consuming and producing nations of "refusing to learn from the lessons of history." The current soft market conditions "cannot continue indefinitely," it said.

C-5A Galaxy 'just an airplane'

By ED TODD
Staff Writer

The U.S. Air Force's C-5A Galaxy is a flying cavern.

But it's still just an airplane despite its massive size.

"It's a credit to man's ingenuity that the thing even flies," said Dale Sorensen, a Midland pilot, as he viewed the jet-powered transport camouflaged in olive-drab colors. "These guys do such marvelous things with aerodynamics these days."

The Galaxy, the world's largest operational aircraft, is, at 248 feet long, almost the length of a football field, can fly at 500 mph while carrying almost 125 tons of cargo, has a gross take-off weight of more than 384 tons, and can stay aloft without refueling for 15 hours while burning 3,333 gallons of jet fuel per hour.

THE AIRCRAFT can haul six Greyhound buses or at least nine aerobatic airplanes and other cargo. But it is designed to carry military cargo, including tanks, helicopters, scissor bridges, missiles and other equipment and supplies.

Nevertheless, it's just an airplane and a big one at that.

"As far as flying, the airplane is very easy to land," said the aircraft's commander, 39-year-old U.S. Air Force Reserve Maj. Craig French of Atlanta, Ga. "The most difficult thing is taxiing. You just don't realize how much is behind you."

The airplane's tail towers the height of a six-story office building.

"Once you get off the ground, it's all the same," he said of the commonality of airplanes in flight.

But French, a Delta Airlines DC-8 pilot, said the Galaxy is not the most difficult aircraft to fly.

"I would venture to say that the C-5 is easier to fly by a large margin" than the comparatively tiny aerobatic Pitts Special biplane.

Last year, a U.S. Air Force C-5A Galaxy flew intact nine aerobatic airplanes, including the Pitts, in its belly from the United States to Europe for the world aerobatic championships.

FDIC task force accomplishes its mission in Roswell

By MARK LEWIS
Staff Writer

ROSWELL, N.M. — When Moncor Bank opened its doors at 9 a.m. Thursday, its 35 employees had no way of knowing how their day would end.

Bank examiners from the Office of the Comptroller of the Currency were on the premises, but that was hardly unexpected — the bank's Albuquerque holding company, Moncor Inc., had filed for protection under Chapter 11 of the Federal Bankruptcy Act only two weeks before, less than 24 hours before Moncor Bank of Hobbs was declared insolvent.

Bill McCafferty, president of the Roswell bank, had told the news media his bank would not be affected by the problems of its parent company and sister bank, but privately, his employees were less sanguine. They knew Moncor Inc. had pressured officers of the 3-year-old bank for rapid growth, which can be fatal for small banks which overextend themselves.

As it turned out, the examiners determined the bank had $31.5 million in assets and $32.2 million in liabilities, and $6.5 million of its $22 million loan portfolio was classified as problem loans. Moncor Bank was teetering on the brink of insolvency. But at 9 a.m. Thursday, its employees didn't know how close the bank was to collapse.

ACROSS THE STREET at the Sally Port Inn, about 50 employees of the Federal Deposit Insurance Corp. were gathering in a meeting room reserved under the name of A&J Associates, a fictitious computer company. Most had driven up from Midland the previous afternoon, slipping quietly into this southeast New Mexico town of about 45,000 in anticipation of Moncor's failure.

"Right now it's pretty iffy if the bank's going to close at all," Closing Manager John Vella told the assembled task force. Vella had arrived in Midland Tuesday from the FDIC's Dallas office to pick out his crew and start organizing. At 25, Vella is already a veteran of 75 bank closings, including the October 1983 crash of Midland's First National Bank. An ex-football player from Brooklyn, he conducted the meeting like a coach getting his team up for the big game.

"Our main job is to finish our closing procedures and get out of the way of the assuming bank," he said. The group would work through the weekend, and longer if necessary — "Nobody's leaving until the job is done."

The OCC examiners would decide Moncor Bank's fate by noon, Vella said.

"Just sit tight and wait for your phone call," he told the group, and emphasized the need for secrecy: "Don't even talk about it in the hall."

The group passed the day shopping, watching television and stretching lunch out as long as possible. By the time they reassembled at 3 p.m., the OCC examiners had decided to close the bank, and the FDIC had conducted a secret auction of the bank's assets in Dallas and forwarded the two best bids to Washington.

Water plan would have big impact

By GARY RASP
Reporter-Telegram Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — Architects of a statewide water plan have labeled the legislation one of the most important issues Texas voters will address for years.

Critics of the package say it does not provide adequate protection of Texas waters and could lead to an abuse of state funds.

In the middle, pointing to both good and bad aspects of the plan, is the Lone Star chapter of the Sierra Club, one of the more visible and influential environmental groups in the state.

After two years of lively public hearings, prolonged committee meetings and intense debate, legislators developed a compromise plan that they say will answer the state's most urgent water needs for 20 years.

"I think it's probably one of the most important votes for the economic and social development of Texas that will be on the ballot for many years," said Lubbock Sen. John Montford, chairman of a Senate subcommitte on water and sponsor of much of the water package.

"I think it's the best broad-based plan that Texas has ever had a chance to look at," said Midland Rep. Tom Craddick, chairman of the House Natural Resources Committee. "It's got something in it for every area of the state."

Voters must endorse two constitutional amendments this November before the plan becomes law. The state Constitution requires voter approval on any extension of state credit — in this case $1.43 billion in bonds for a variety of water projects.

One of the amendments would authorize $980 million in bonds for reservoirs, pipelines and water treatment plants. It would also create a $250 million state insurance fund to guarantee water bonds that local governments issue.

A second amendment would authorize $200 million in bonds for low-interest loans to farmers who use water-saving irrigation methods. The agriculture loan program is contingent upon the success of a $10 million pilot program.

"I think with the draught situation we've seen in the last two years people are very aware that we've got a critical water shortage and that something needs to be done about it," Craddick said.

Big job is selling package

AUSTIN — State lawmakers, intent on reversing past defeats, put aside their differences last session and passed a comprehensive statewide water plan.

Now all they have to do is sell that $1.43 billion plan to voters.

The package is the result of a hard-fought compromise between two very different House and Senate versions of water legislation. The final product is designed to address the divergent water needs of all Texans, whether they live along the Gulf Coast, in the Panhandle or in the Big Thicket.

Critics of the plan say it does not provide adequate protection of the state's waters while opening the door to possible abuse of state funds for reservoirs and other projects. Proponents of the package say it is a broad-based plan that addresses the state's most urgent water needs and offers something for everyone.

Voters will have to make up their own minds at the polls this November.

Miss Mississippi wins new crown

Susan Akin

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP) — Miss Mississippi Susan Akin was crowned Miss America 1986 on Saturday, fulfilling a computer prediction that she would win the title.

The first runner-up was Miss South Carolina, Shery Annette Thrift, 23, of Westminster. The second runner-up was Miss Texas Jonna Fitzgerald, 21, of Greenville. The third runner-up was Miss Washington, Honey Castro, 19, of Moses Lake. The fourth runner-up was Miss Alabama, Angela Tower, 25, of Birmingham.

Wearing a lace gown accented with rhinestones and crystal drops and topped with white fox, the 21-year-old Miss Akin, from Meridian, cried and blew kisses to the crowd after her name was announced before a national television audience and a crowd of 21,300 at Convention Hall.

Miss Akin was crowned by Miss America Sharlene Wells, 21, of Salt Lake City. She took her victory stroll down the runway as host Gary Collins sang, "There She Is," a pageant hallmark missing for the past three years because of a dispute with its composer over money.

The other finalists were: Miss Indiana Laurie Jean Broderick, 21, of Elkhart; Miss Kentucky Laurie Janine Keller, 21, of Nippa; Miss Michigan Alecia Rae Masalkoski, 23, of Muskegon; Miss New Mexico Valerie Joy Faber, 26, of Hobbs; and Miss Ohio Suellen Cochran, 21, of Heath.

George Miller, a retired business professor now living in Bellevue, Wash., said earlier this month that based on his computer analysis, Miss Akin had the best chance of becoming the fourth woman from Mississippi to become Miss America.

Miller assigned odds to all 51 contestants by feeding into his computer their personal statistics and then comparing them to a composite of the winners from the past 20 years.

Miss Akin, a senior at the University of Mississippi, has said that word of Miller's selection thrilled her because she has wanted to be Miss America since childhood. But one of the judges said she told them in her interview that she thought the 7-1 odds assigned her by Miller also put her at a disadvantage.

The winner, who has had voice training for 10 years, sang an Italian love song, "You're My World," in the talent competition. She wore a lilac one-shouldered gown with a flowing skirt that was covered with glitter.

She said she used to perform magic tricks in talent competition for local and state pageants, but decided that the small portion of time allotted contestants did not permit her to do such tricks.

The finalists were selected from among representatives of 50 states d the District of Columbia on the basis of their scores in a week of preliminary talent, swimsuit and evening gown competitions and interviews with the seven judges.

After the announcement of the finalists, the 10 women were to compete anew in the swimsuit, talent and evening gown divisions.

Miss Cochran was the only contestant to win two preliminaries, the swimsuit competition and the talent category for her piano performance of "Variations On Chopsticks."

Miss Tower and Miss Akin won preliminary swimsuit awards while Miss Broderick and Miss Fitzgerald, who took up the fiddle four years ago, won talent preliminaries.

Miss Masalkoski broke new gryd in Miss America talent competition with her demonstration of kata karate. Her "martial ballet" came between an entrance in which she stomped barefoot through 100 pounds of broken soda bottles and a finale in which she pushed her foot through four inch-thick pieces of cement.

Miss Thrift brought the Southern art of clogging to Atlantic City for her talent presentation while Miss Fitzgerald flirted playfully with the audience with her eyes while she fiddled knee-slapping versions of "Csardas" and "Orange Blossom Special."

Miss Akin, a "tired statistics professor's" favorite to win the crown, sang an Italian love song. Miss Castro, a Filipino who became an American citizen at age 6, sang a Broadway show tune.

Miss Broderick, a University of Iowa senior who has the only full tuition baton twirling scholarship in the Big Ten Conference, performed a dance and twirling number to a medley of songs. Miss Keller combined sining and ballet to "Don't Cry For Me Argentina" from the Broadway show "Evita."

Miss Tower, in a flaming red costume she designed herself, performed ballet en pointe to "Chariots of Fire." Miss Faber played on the piano "Polonaise Opus No. 6."

Miss America receives a $30,000 scholarship, can expect to earn more than $100,000 in appearance fees during her year's reign, and may gain a springboard into a career.

The first runnerup wins a $17,000 scholarship and the other eight finalists get scholarships ranging from $15,000 to $11,000 each.

Pageant officials selected the theme "The Spirit of America" for the two-hour, $1.6 million live Saturday night telecast and spent $200,000 on a flashy new set for the stage of the refurbished Convention Hall. Collins, husband of Miss America 1959, Mary Ann Mobley, served as host for the fourth year.

"There She Is," the song made famous by former master of ceremonies Bert Parks, returned this year after pageant officials reached a 15-year agreement with composer Bernie Wayne, who estimated it took him about an hour to pen the simple song.

WATER

"Virtually every part of Texas has not gone unscathed with water problems," Montford added. "This is the closest we're ever going to come to balancing a package that can pass statewide."

In addition to the bond proposals, the plan also establishes a mechanism for local governments to create ground water districts in critical areas of the state. Lawmakers ultimately struck from the package a controversial provision that would have allowed the governor to step in and create such districts even if local residents opposed the idea.

Critics of the plan say the final version does not go far enough in dealing with ground water shortages.

"There are critical needs in some parts of the state, and the Legislature and the governor saw fit not to address these in a meaningful way," said Howard Saxion, chairman of the Lone Star Chapter of the Sierra Club. "We don't think that's going to get the job done."

Saxion criticized the legislation on several other counts, including a section dealing with bays and estuaries. He also had praise for other portions of the plan, including additional financial assistance for the construction of wastewater treatement plants.

In the long run, Saxion said, the club decided to remain neutral on the November election.

PLAN

Under the Texas Constitution, any legislation requiring the issuance of bonds - in this case to finance water projects - must first meet with voter approval in form of a constitutional amendment.

Two years ago, state lawmakers could not resolve differences in a water package and saw it die in committee. In 1981, voters turned down yet another plan, setting the stage for this year's new and improved legislation.

Voters will see two amendments on the November ballot. Proposition 1 would:

— Authorize the issuance of $980 million in bonds for water treatment plants, reservoirs, pipelines and flood control projects across the state.

— Create a $250 million insurance fund to guarantee water bonds cities and other political subdivisions issue. The state guarantee is expected to help municipalities sell bonds at lower interest rates, since the chance of default would be diminished.

Proposition 2 would:

— Authorize $200 million in bonds for low-interest loans to farmers who purchase irrigation equipment designed to promote conservation. The agriculture loan program is contingent upon the success of a $10 million pilot program.

A separate piece of legislation, which becomes effective only if Proposition 1 passes, would require cities seeking state aid to implement water conservation projects. The law also provides a mechanism for local governments to create ground water control districts.

"Based on the 'mixed bag' nature of the water package ... the Sierra Club wants Texas citizens to evaluate the water package closely and then determine on an individual basis whether they will vote for against the proposed constitutional amendments," he said. "The club intends to do its part before the election to publicize the good and bad aspects of the package."

Dede Armentrout, vice president of the Southwest Region of the National Audubon Society, criticized a section of the plan authorizing lawmakers to appropriate funds for water projects without first getting voter approval.

"This particular legislation is a perfect set-up for the pork barrel system that started and ran for so long in Congress," she said. "What it brings about is a lot of unnecessary and expensive water projects that are bad for the environment."

Armentrout added that legislators may allow such projects to "move along with their own momentum because everybody wants to bring a project home."

Craddick and Montford refuted that contention, arguing that adequate protections against such abuse of funds are contained in the bill.

"We talked about that in the conference committee at length," Craddick said. "I really don't think there will be any abuses."

Despite their differences, nearly everyone involved in the water plan can agree that the effectiveness of the legislation depends on how it is implemented. Gov. Mark White recently appointed Houston lawyer John Houchins to the Texas Water Commission. Houchins has no proven track record in water issues.

"There's just no way to tell how he's going to make the judgment calls and whether he's going to interpret the law generously or conservatively," Armentrout said.

"The Sierra Club is going to be actively involved in monitoring the implementation of this water package," said Ken Kramer, club lobbiest. "We want to make sure that it is implemented in an enviromentally sensitive way - that's where the real battleground is going to be."

White said he is confident that Houchins and the other two members of the water commission will "protect the water resources that are so vital to our state's quality of life and future business growth."

AIR

French likened the aerobatic aircraft to a TR-6 sportscar and the Galaxy to a Cadillac El Dorado limousine. The Pitts has the turning capability and agility not inherent in the Galaxy. The Galaxy has a somewhat more complicated checklist.

"ONCE YOU GET IT (the Lockheed C-5A Galaxy) on the road," said French, "it's a Cadillac."

The Galaxy, which is assigned to the 433rd Military Airlift Wing at Kelly Air Force Base near San Antonio, flew into Midland Regional Airport on Friday afternoon to be the star attraction at the International Aerobatic Club (IAC) Air Show.

It performed well. The craft even took a bow, as its massive landing-gear system settled down to allow for boardings.

Airplane fanciers by the hundreds strolled through its spacious cargo compartment and looked into its cockpit.

"It's fantastic," said Midlander Johnny Rister. "It's really something to see up there. They've got all kinds of room. They've got their own kitchen up there and places to bunk."

Junior Smith ambled into the Galaxy.

"We're going to get that Pitts and fly through this son-of-a—," jested Smith, a 51-year-old Midland pilot. "They all fly alike; there ain't no difference. Jets are just a little easier to fly than piston-powered airplanes."

Outside the Galaxy, he glanced toward its cockpit.

"It's kind of like being on the third floor of the Wilco Building (in downtown Midland)."

WHILE THE GALAXY was in repose, an aerobatic show was to take place. But the overcast skies, drizzle and rain restricted IAC pilots Gene Beggs, Dr. Julie Pfile and Ole Olsen to low-level fly-bys in their biplanes.

The rain and hovering clouds knocked out most of the flying portion of the air show but didn't seem to dampen curiosity seekers' enthusiasm for browsing through the Galaxy and touching and viewing other airplanes.

"Ranchers and farmers are just jumping up and down (with delight over the rain)," speculated Don Haeffner.

Beggs and Dr. Pfile and their airplanes were among the IAC pilots and their nine aerobatic aircraft which were flown to Europe last year for world competition in Hungary. Dr. Pfile, an Albuquerque, N.M., physician, is the reigning IAC national women's aerobatic champion.

Jokingly, pilots had talked about flying the biplanes in barnstorm fashion though the wide-open belly of the Galaxy. That would give added dimension to the air show.

"I'm a good pilot," Dr. Pfile said, as she was readying her aircraft for take-off, "but not that good. The C-5 might move on me." The Pitts Special S1-T has a 17-foot wingspan; the Galaxy's cargo compartment is 19 feet wide.

Aircraft on display included the F-4 Phantom, a Mach 2.5 fighter which was the workhorse in the Vietnam War; the F-15 Eagle; the T-37 Tweety Bird; the World War II SNJ and T-6 trainers; the Cessna Caravan; and the U.S. Navy's T-2C Buckeye, a basic jet trainer flown by Capt. Larry Hall of Chase Field at Beeville and formerly of Midland.

"It's a good stable training platform for introduction to jets for pilot training," said Hall, 35.

Olsen was watching his biwing Christen Eagle II, while spectators looked it over and gently — if at all — touched it.

"This thing is extremely strong in the air," said Olsen, "but on the ground, it's very vulnerable. It's covered with fabric; it'll rip or tear."

GROUNDED DUE to the overcast was Texas Air National Guard Maj. Burt Ballentine of Midland. He had planned to blast off in his Phantom jet to give the spectators a sudden meaning to "fast."

Gary Covington, a former pilot of the F-111 "swing-wing" jet fighter, sized up Ballentine's Phantom, which was a favorite among pilots despite its ungainly appearance, sea-monster look and drooping tail fins.

"By golly," he suggested aerodynamic engineers must have reasoned, "if we can put enough power in this steel barn-door, we can make it fly."

OPEC

Oil production by Britain, Norway, Mexico, and other non-member countries has helped drive prices down and reduced OPEC's share of the world market. Conservation has also played a large role.

OPEC's supplied 60 percent of world oil needs six years ago, but now has a share of about 30 percent of the market. Prices have dropped from a base of $34 a barrel in 1983 to $28 now, with even lower prices on the spot, or non-contract, market.

Oil ministers plan to meet in Vienna Oct. 3 to discuss the situation, and the meeting is likely to focus on the production quotas that have caused dissension in the past.

The organization sets price rates for various grades of oil and production ceilings for its members in an attempt give each member a fair share of the profits and keep demand steady, but has no way of enforcing its decisions.

Independent analysts say some members, especially the poorer ones, have overproduced and discounted prices, undermining the organization's efforts.

Saudi Arabia, the cartel's largest producer, is the key to stabilizing prices and demand, but Ahmed Zaki Yamani, the Saudi oil minister, on Saturday spoke of the possibility of a price war next year.

Yamani, in a separate statement released by the OPEC News Agency, said prices should firm up this winter due to the seasonal demand.

However, he said if non-member producers do not cooperate with OPEC and if the 13 OPEC nations do not stick to the guidelines, "Then I expect there will be a price war.

"Under the assumption of a price war, and under that assumption alone, I would expect the price would drop to a level between $15 and $18 dollars per barrel after the winter if non-OPEC producers do not cooperate with the organization and we in OPEC do not discipline ourselves."

The statement from the secretariat said OPEC had contributed "a quarter-century of useful service to mankind" by helping poorer countries and by bringing oil prices into line with the value of the resource.

Low prices will stifle the search for alternative sources of energy, the statement said.

Without the cartel's efforts, "the price structure would have collapsed and real chaos would have prevailed on the oil market," it said.

OPEC warned of damage to Western economies and banks and of serious problems for the Third World if prices collapse.

"Non-OPEC countries, in maximizing production at the expense of OPEC, are depleting their limited oil reserves so fast that they will soon have to invest huge and exorbitant capital in order to prevent a drastic fall in their production," the statement said.

Vella was already across the street, accepting the receivership of the bank from the OCC official and making his usual speech to the employees, preparing them for the night ahead. By 3:30 p.m., when the first wave of FDIC workers entered the bank, the ex-Moncor employees still seemed slightly dazed by the speed of the transition.

"I FEEL LIKE I've been kicked in the stomach," one woman said.

Their mood improved at 4 p.m., when Vella called them together for another announcement.

"We've got good news for everybody," he said. "The bank will be reopened tomorrow. It's just going to be business as usual."

The FDIC had accepted the bid of Rio Grande Bancshares of Las Cruces, N.M., which paid a premium of $505,000 to take over Moncor's assets. Rio Grande officers arrived at the bank later to assure Moncor's employees their jobs were safe with the new First National Bank of Chaves County. But after the new owners named a new president, McCafferty's status was less clear.

Turned out of his office by Vella, the former bank president stood awkwardly by his secretary's desk with arms folded and watched with bewilderment as FDIC workers who had been in the building less than an hour rushed purposefully about as though they'd worked there for years.

"You try to put them (the old employees) at ease as much as you can," said Gene Shrode of the FDIC's Midland office, but speed was also important — all the old bank's work had to be processed so the new bank could reopen the next morning.

"Our main objective is to avoid any interruption of banking services," Vella said. "The first wave comes in, counts the cash, inventories the desks and gets all the work processed," while the Pro Forma section balances the bank's accounts.

"We take the assets the new bank purchases, add the premium and subtract the liabilities" to determine what the FDIC must pay Rio Grande Bancshares out of its insurance fund, according to Bert Conly of the Pro Forma section. The rough estimate: $6.42 million.

"This will give the new bank an opening balance sheet," Vella said.

MEANWHILE, THE Facilities section was changing the bank's locks and closing out its accounts for things like utilities. By morning, Moncor would no longer exist: even the metal letters would be removed from the outer wall, and a temporary cloth banner with the new bank's name would be hung over the old "Moncor" sign that once proudly announced the bank's presence on North Main Street.

By the arrival of the second wave of clerical people at 4:30 p.m., the old Moncor employees seemed to have gotten over their shock, and the two groups merged easily to deal with the evening's tasks. Except for McCafferty; he sat by himself and smoked a pipe. By early evening his bewilderment seemed to have turned to anger, but he wouldn't comment on the day's events.

As bank failures go, this wasn't a large one, though as the 80th closing of 1985 it broke last year's record for post-Depression bank failures.

Many of the Midlanders in the Roswell group had also been at the Hobbs closing two weeks before.

"It's a funny situation," said Tony Santelli, an accountant who has been on 13 closings in his 4½ months in the Midland office.

Pat Crosby was especially understanding with the Moncor employees, because she was a secretary for First National Bank of Midland in October 1983 when about 380 FDIC employees descended on that bank to conduct a similar operation.

"I can be sympathetic because I've been there," she said. "It's very frightening. They're very nervous."

BUT FRIDAY MORNING, when the new First National Bank of Chaves County opened at 9 a.m., the old Moncor employees seemed comfortably at home.

"The customers are still friendly, I'm still friendly — everything's the same" except the name, said Jo Francis, a teller. "And I like the new name better."

So smooth was the transition that many customers didn't seem to notice the difference. There had been no news reports until after the bank closed, so the old bank's customers had no chance to remove their money until the new bank opened. But no lines of anxious depositors formed Friday morning, and the few people who did enter the bank conducted routine business.

"Nobody's been closing accounts — they've been putting money in," said Grace Bailey, who works the window next to Ms. Francis.

The bulk of the the FDIC group was to continue working through Monday, and five were to remain in Roswell for another two months. But by noon Friday, Vella was ready to declare the Roswell closing a success.

"The bank reopened, nobody lost any money," he said. "We accomplished something."

Botha calls white negotiators 'weak'

WORLD

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — President P.W. Botha accused white business leaders of showing "signs of weakness to the enemies" by meeting with black guerrillas fighting apartheid, a newspaper reported today.

Overnight, renewed anti-apartheid disturbances broke out with youths stoning vehicles or hurling gasoline bombs near five cities, police reported.

In Cape Town's Athlone mixed-race suburb and Port Elizabeth's New Brighton township, police opened fire on rioters, wounding one person in each of the clashes.

In Johannesburg's black Soweto township, some 20 black taxi drivers stabbed to death a young black and shot and wounded another in an attack on mourners at a riot victim's funeral this afternoon after youths hijacked cabs parked at a hospital, witnesses said.

Police headquarters in Pretoria could not confirm the slaying which witnesses said took place while troops fired tear gas at part of the funeral crowd of about 10,000, but away from the attacking drivers.

As word of the reported killing spread, mourners returning from the funeral in Soweto's Diepkloof district stoned at least half a dozen passing taxis, wrecking the vehicles while the drivers fled, witnesses said.

The government restricted funerals for five black victims of unrest scheduled today in Pretoria's Mamelodi and Atteridgeville townships, declaring "peace would be seriously endangered."

In Mamelodi, where a combined funeral for four victims was scheduled, a magisterial order decreed separate funerals except for two slain brothers.

New restrictions imposed in both townships said only the immediate family could attend and they had to travel in vehicles, not walk.

The government has imposed similar restrictions on funerals in dozens of black townships. Funerals for victims shot by police often trigger more violence.

On Friday, top South African executives met in neighboring Zambia with Oliver Tambo, leader of the outlawed African National Congress. Botha was quoted today as saying he could not forbid the businessmen to talk to the guerrillas.

"But I do not know what they are going to achieve, other than to show signs of weakness to the enemies of South Africa," Botha was quoted as saying in an interview with Johannesburg's Afrikaans-language Beeld, which supports the white-minority government.

A delegation of seven businessmen and newspaper editors met for six hours with Tambo and five other guerrilla chiefs at a lodge in Luangwa Game Park, about 250 miles east of Lusaka, Zambia's capital. President Kenneth Kaunda of Zambia organized and attended the meeting.

Both sides said afterward they hoped the meeting might be the start of an effort to bring peace to South Africa.

"We felt, they and us, that this has been a very important contribution to the process of seeking ways and means of ending the violence of apartheid," said Tambo.

Gavin Relly, chairman of South Africa's giant Anglo American mining and mineral-marketing company, said he left "with a good sense that more talks might lead to some fruitful conclusion."

Tambo and Relly said they were likely to meet again, but set no date.

On their return to South Africa Friday, the businessmen said in a statement: "There was no question of any negotiations, agreement or decision, but it was felt that ground existed for further valuable discussions."

Zac de Beer, Anglo American's chief executive, was asked in a televised interview with the MacNeil Lehrer Newshour if he thought the government should negotiate with the ANC.

"Yes," he replied on the American broadcast, "I would think that sooner or later and in some fashion, they must do so."

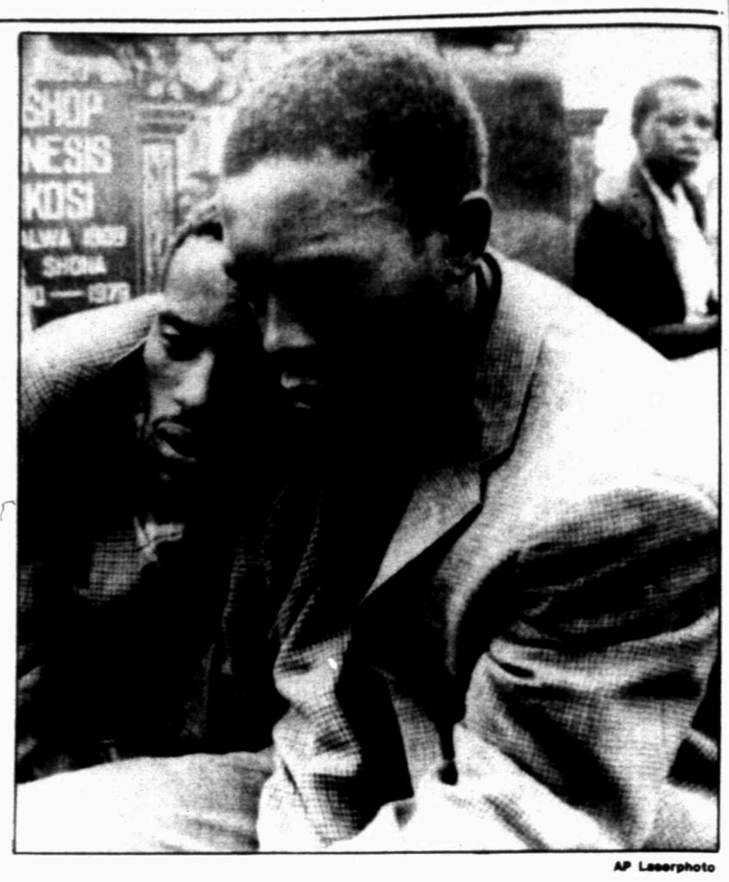

On the same program, Tarbo Mbiki, Tambo's top aide, said he felt the businessmen "came genuinely concerned to discuss with the ANC, as an important force in...any resolution of the South African trouble."

Botha's reaction appeared to quash speculation that the meeting could lead to discussions with the ANC, which the government regards as a terrorist and Communist organization. Botha has said he will never meet with the ANC or release its top jailed leader, Nelson Mandela, unless it renounces violence.

The talks followed months of increasing criticism by white business leaders of the government's failure to propose race reforms. Racial turmoil has sent the country's currency, the rand, plummeting and hindered the country's repayment of loans.

Reforms in the system that control movements of South Africa's 24 million blacks were proposed this week, but President P.W. Botha had opposed any meeting with the ANC.

Not all black reaction to the meeting was positive.

South African issues to grip 40th United Nations session

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — A record number of heads of state and government leaders, including President Reagan, will attend the 40th anniversary session of the General Assembly opening Tuesday.

Close to 150 items are on the agenda for debate, but the session's overriding issue most likely will be South Africa, which has been barred from the General Assembly since 1974.

The U.N. protocol chief, Ali Teymour, estimates that as many as 95 national leaders will speak either during the Sept. 24-Oct. 11 general debate or a special anniversary session, Oct. 14-24.

Reagan is expected to speak Oct. 24, the date the U.N. Charter came into force in 1945.

The deluge of dignitaries, including Col. Moammar Khadafy of Libya and Gen. Wojciech Jaruzelski of Poland, presents security problems, according to U.N. security chief Agustin Vaz of Spain.

"We are very much concerned about the situation and taking every possible step to make this place as safe as possible," he said in an interview.

On South Africa — "the only real point of excitement," according to one European diplomat — the Assembly is expected to renew its efforts to get the 15-nation Security Council to adopt tough, mandatory sanctions. The council, which imposed an arms embargo on South Africa in 1977, recently called for a series of voluntary sanctions against the South African government.

A special 11-member panel appointed by Secretary-General Javier Perez de Cuellar has scheduled four days of public hearings here on the activities of transnational corporations in South Africa and whether those operations helped sustain the system of apartheid.

The assembly also may set the stage for a special session next year on another long-standing southern African problem: the South African-controlled territory of South-West Africa, also known as Namibia.

Because it has refused to comply with U.N. rulings on independence for Namibia, South Africa has been deprived of its General Assembly seat since 1974, although it remains a U.N. member. Because it is not a General Assembly member, U.N. spokesman Francois Guiliani said, South Africa would not be allowed to take part in any of the debates.

With an eye to the impending U.S.-Soviet summit, the Soviet Union is expected to push for a proposed international conference on prohibiting the militarization of outer space.

But this and many other issues are expected to go unresolved until after the November meeting between Reagan and Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev in Geneva, Switzerland.

Edward C. Luck, president of the United Nations Association of the United States of America, said the Reagan-Gorbachev negotiations come at a time when U.S.-Soviet relations are "so tender" that many countries will play down the usual harsh East-West rhetoric in the assembly "to try to contribute to a positive atmosphere prior to the summit."

He added that envoys of many countries normally hostile to the United States will also muffle criticism to give the new U.S. envoy a chance. He is Vernon Walters, who has replaced Jeane Kirkpatrick. Walters and his newly appointed aides have been meeting other delegates to hear their views.

The first order of business for the General Assembly will be to elect a president. This year it is Western Europe's turn to fill the chair, and a senior Spanish diplomat, Jaime de Pinies, is the unopposed candidate.

Presidents of at least eight Latin American nations, including Brazil, Mexico, Venezuela and Peru, will be present to speak in the general debate, making it inevitable that the problem of debts of developing countries will be featured. President Alan Garcia Perez of Peru has already announced a program of restricted debt repayments.

Seven General Assembly committees will start work during the debates on an agenda which will include at least 147 items.

Some are hardy perennials like the question of Palestine, calls for nuclear disarmament, demands for withdrawal of foreign troops from Afghanistan and Cambodia, and the situation in Central America.

One new resolution, introduced by Communist-governed Romania, makes a "solemn appeal to states in conflict to cease armed action forthwith and to settle disputes between them through negotiations."

Honduras, Nicaragua clash; Ortega wants negotiation

MANAGUA, Nicaragua (AP) — After a day of border clashes, President Daniel Ortega called Saturday for an immediate meeting with Honduran President Roberto Suazo Cordova to prevent further bloodshed.

At the same time, he vowed on national television that "the people and armed forces of Nicaragua will repel and destroy any foreign aggression."

He accused neighboring Honduras of trying to provoke U.S. intervention and said Honduras' actions were the result of pressure by the United States.

The Reagan administration opposes Nicaragua's leftist Sandinista government and has supported rebels, called Contras, who are trying to overthrow it.

A Honduran military spokesman said in Tegucigalpa, that nation's capital, that Honduran warplanes shot down a Nicaraguan helicopter Friday and strafed mortar batteries that had fired into Honduras hours earlier.

Suazo Cordova called the Honduran Congress into urgent session to consider defense. Foreign Minister Edgardo Paz Barnica convened a meeting of the diplomatic corps seeking support for Honduras.

Suazo Cordovo accused Ortega's Sandinista government on television late Friday of maintaining "a permanent attitude of harassment against Honduras....and for that reason I have ordered the armed forces to repel with all energy that aggression."

The Honduran military spokesman, who asked not to be identified for security reasons, told The Associated Press "the army still maintains a state of alert on land, sea and air on the border with the neighboring country...and is prepared to repel any criminal action by the Sandinistas against national territory."

Capt. Rosa Pasos, spokeswoman for Nicaragua's Defense Ministry, said Sandinista forces were not on a state of alert.

Honduras moved 2,000 troops to the border Friday before the air attacks. The military spokesman said they remained there Saturday, and air patrol of the area continued.

Ortega, speaking in Managua before 20,000 high school students at a ceremony marking Central American independence, accused the United States of instigating Honduras' actions.

"We ask them (Honduran government officials) not to assume they will destroy Nicaragua with the help of U.S. troops," he said. "To attack Nicaragua would be to attack Central America, to burn down Nicaragua would be to burn down Central America."

"These actions are not the expression of the will of the government of Honduras, but they are imposed on it by the government of the United States which is trying to end once and for all the efforts of Contadora," he said.

The Contadora group, made up of Mexico, Panama, Colombia and Venezuela, is trying to refine a draft peace agreement acceptable to all five Central American nations involved.

Ortega said he was asking Suazo Cordova to meet with him "in Tegucigalpa or in Managua to put an end to the confrontation, to the military escalation, to prevent our being led by the policies of those who divide Central America."

A Honduran military spokesman said the Honduran attack came after the Sandinista army fired mortar shells at a Honduran outpost, killing one soldier and wounding eight. The attack was at the village of Espanolito, 1½ miles inside Honduran territory.

Maj. Ricardo Borjas, spokesman for the Honduras armed forces, said it was inevitable that there were casualties on the Nicaraguan side.

Ortega said Nicaraguan forces were repelling an attack by 800 Contras who tried to invade from Honduras in the area of El Rosario, Boca de Poteca, in the northern province of Nueva Segovia. He said the rebels were supported by Honduran armed forces.

He said fighting began in the morning and continued until afternoon, when Honduras launched what he called the "criminal attack" which he said violated Nicaraguan airspace. Nicaraguan forces returned the fire, he said. He did not mention casualties or the helicopter Honduras claimed to have shot down.

Honduras was trying to provoke a confrontation between the two countries that would provide a pretext for U.S. intervention, Ortega claimed.

Border clashes between Nicaraguan and Honduran troops over the past six years have killed 60 Honduran civilians and military personnel. The Contras operate from bases in Honduras and at times have been pursued across the border.

WORLD IN BRIEF

Chinese leader surfaces

PEKING (AP) — Former Communist Party Chairman Hua Guofeng, chosen heir of Mao Tse-tung but ousted from power in 1981 by China's current leader, Deng Xiaoping, resurfaced Saturday in apparent good health.

Hua, 64, was last seen in April 1982 when he was shown on Chinese television in pajamas, reportedly recovering from an illness in a Peking hospital. Hong Kong press reports said he had cancer or heart disease, but Chinese authorities declined comment.

Japan's former foreign minister, Masayoshi Ito, told Japanese reporters here that he met Hua for 40 minutes in a luxurious, guarded house in north-central Peking that he believed was Hua's residence.

Ito, president of the Japanese Parliament's League for Japan-China Friendship, said they discussed Chinese-Japanese relations and did not touch on current Chinese politics or Hua's personal circumstances.

Italian Chianti tainted

MUNICH, West Germany (AP) — Bavarian authorities have issued a public warning after hazardous amounts of sulphuric acid were found in two bottles of Chianti wine from Italy.

Bavaria's Interior Ministry said Friday the acid was found in two bottles labeled "Mondial Chianti D.O.C. confezionato da GFA-SNC-Borgo San Lorenzo."

A customer had brought a bottle to the official laboratory for testing, complaining about the wine's strange taste.

The laboratory checked another randomly chosen bottle and again found the acid, a highly corrosive chemical also used in automobile batteries.

Rescued destitute die

CALCUTTA, India (AP) — Mother Teresa said more than half the destitutes she took off the streets of Calcutta in the past 33 years died after The 75-year-old Roman Catholic nun, who won the 1979 Nobel Peace Prize, told reporters Friday she had rescued nearly 49,000 lepers, beggars and other destitutes from the streets of this city of 11 million since 1952.

Of that number, she said, only 20,000 recovered.

"The rest died," she said.

The Yugoslav-born nun, now an Indian citizen, heads the Missionaries of Charity, which operates 297 relief centers for orphans and the destitute in 72 countries.

Liberian vessel explodes

TOKYO (AP) — An explosion ripped a Liberian tanker in the Pacific on Saturday, and a Filipino deckhand is missing, an official said.

The missing man was identified as Angerito Amanaroto, a sailor on the 16,423-ton Sinoda, according to Yuichi Hamayama, spokesman for the Maritime Safety Agency in Yokohama. He said six patrol boats from the agency and three aircraft were searching for the missing man.

He said a nearby Panamanian vessel rescued the other 22 crew, all Filipino.

The explosion occurred while the tanker was being cleaned 150 miles south of Yokohama, he said.

Italy plans long bridge

ROME (AP) — Italy plans to build the world's longest suspension bridge to link Sicily and the Italian mainland, the Rome newspaper Il Messaggero said Friday.

The span would be 10,800 feet long, more than double the 4,626-foot length of the Humber Estuary Bridge in England — the longest existing suspension bridge.

The government has commissioned several studies over the past decade. The newspaper quoted Transportation Minister Claudio Signorile as saying the state-run railroad and state-run highway company will sign a preliminary agreement with a consortium of construction firms by October.

Trains crash in Portugal

LISBON, Portugal (AP) — A station master has been blamed by government officials for causing the head-on collision of two speeding passenger trains in which at least 52 people died.

Carlos Melancia, minister of public works and transportation, said investigators ruled out equipment trouble and cleared the two locomotive engineers of error. Both were killed in the crash.

"It has been established that the blame lies with a station master who allowed the trains to move on in opposite direction on the single track," Melancia told The Associated Press.

The minister refused to identify the station master involved.

Catholics in Mexico battle threat of U.S. evangelists

MONTERREY, Mexico (AP) — Roman Catholic officials say U.S. Protestant evangelists are a threat to the church's dominance in Mexico.

Baptists, Methodists, Jehovah's Witnesses, Mormons, Seventh Day Adventists, Pentecostals and Nazarenes are among the dozens of faiths the Catholic Church calls "Protestant sects" now preaching in Mexico, especially along the nation's northern and southern borders.

"With very rare exceptions, all the sects that come to Mexico come from the United States," said the Rev. Dizan Vazquez, director of the Center for Diocesan Communication in the northern border state of Chihuahua.

Vazquez said the church "is worried because many Catholics are dissatisfied inside the church" and are finding "momentary, but incomplete answers" in the sects.

"From the point of view of the Catholic Church, all the Protestant groups present a danger because they take people from the church," he said.

Statistics are unavailable as to the number of non-Catholics in the country today. But Mexico's bishops said religious sects have grown 183 percent in the past five years.

"While it is true that the number of Catholics has declined from 98 to 93 percent of the population in the last decade, this should not be attributed to neglect by the clergy, but rather to the proliferation of various ideologies," said a statement released last spring in the name of Mexico's 88 bishops.

The bishops called for church unity against "religious sects that have sprung up like mushrooms."

Baptists, Jehovah's Witnesses and Methodists interviewed in this northern industrial center in the border state of Nuevo Leon all said their mission in Mexico was to share their own version of divinity, not undermine Mexico or the Catholic Church.

Jehovah's Witness leaders, who asked not to be identified because "we want to give the honor to Jehovah, not to ourselves," maintain Mexicans have a passive attitude toward the Catholic Church.

"Many people who say they are Catholic really are nothing," said one man, describing himself as former Catholic who converted to the Jehovah's Witnesses 10 years ago.

Heron Perez, a researcher in Monterrey's Autonomous University of Nuevo Leon, has been studying religious groups in the state for two years.

> "From the point of view of the Catholic Church, all the Protestant groups present a danger because they take people from the church."
> — Rev. Dizan Vazquez

"I noticed that in the new low-income neighborhoods one of the first things they build are Protestant churches," Perez said.

Evangelists, often bringing food, clothing and medical supplies, pitch tents for religious worship while the neighborhoods are being settled and then, with the community's help, they build a church, Perez said.

Although there are many American missionaries in Mexico, Perez said, most churches have become "Mexicanized — the origin of the religions is from the United States, but in the phase we're in now, the churches are led by Mexicans."

There are some exceptions. In the state of Veracruz on the Gulf of Mexico, 13 American evangelical preachers recently were told the leave the country on grounds that they violated the country's laws on religion. By law, only Mexican-born citizens can preach a religion here without special permission.

Perez and religious leaders said the Catholic Church fears losing economic power and church members to the sects.

Sociologist Victor Zuniga said the still-high percentage of Catholics reflects Mexico's Catholic "cultural tradition," dating to the missionaries who followed the Spanish conquest of 1519-21.

Most Mexicans describe themselves as Roman Catholics as casually as they describe their physical appearance, he said.

"I have a beard, I'm short, I'm Catholic," he said, noting that many haven't stepped inside the church for years.

Rising heroin abuse prompts British anti-drug campaign

LONDON (AP) — Britain has declared war on drug pushers on the heels of an alarming rise in heroin abuse in recent months. Victims have ranged from a 14-year-old child of Liverpool's slums to the wife of a nobleman.

A Parliament committee has called the surge in drug use "the most serious peacetime threat to our national well-being" and proposed using the armed forces to combat smugglers.

Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher has warned pushers: "We are after you. The pursuit will be relentless....We shall make life not worth living."

An anti-drug TV publicity blitz has been launched, new laws and funds have been thrown into the fight against pushers.

Princess Diana has appeared on a British Broadcasting Corp. series whose title urges young people to "Just Say No" to drugs.

Just-published figures for last year show heroin seizures in Britain have quadrupled in three years, from 93.4 kilograms (205.48 pounds) in 1981 to 361.6 kilograms (795.52 pounds) in 1984. Last year, the number of under-17s convicted of drug offenses was up by more than 16 percent.

The number of addicts registered for state treatment programs jumped 20 percent last year to 12,489. But that figure is widely believed to be a fraction of the true number. Police generally multiply by 10, suggesting that one in every 5,000 Britons is addicted.

"The figures provide clear confirmation — if confirmation were needed — that drug misuse is a major social problem in this country," Home Office Minister David Mellor said.

In December, a coroner's court in London heard testimony that Lady Gormanston, wife of the top-ranking English viscount of Ireland, went to a party, snorted a mixture of cocaine and heroin, began vomiting and choked to death. She was 29 and a mother of two.

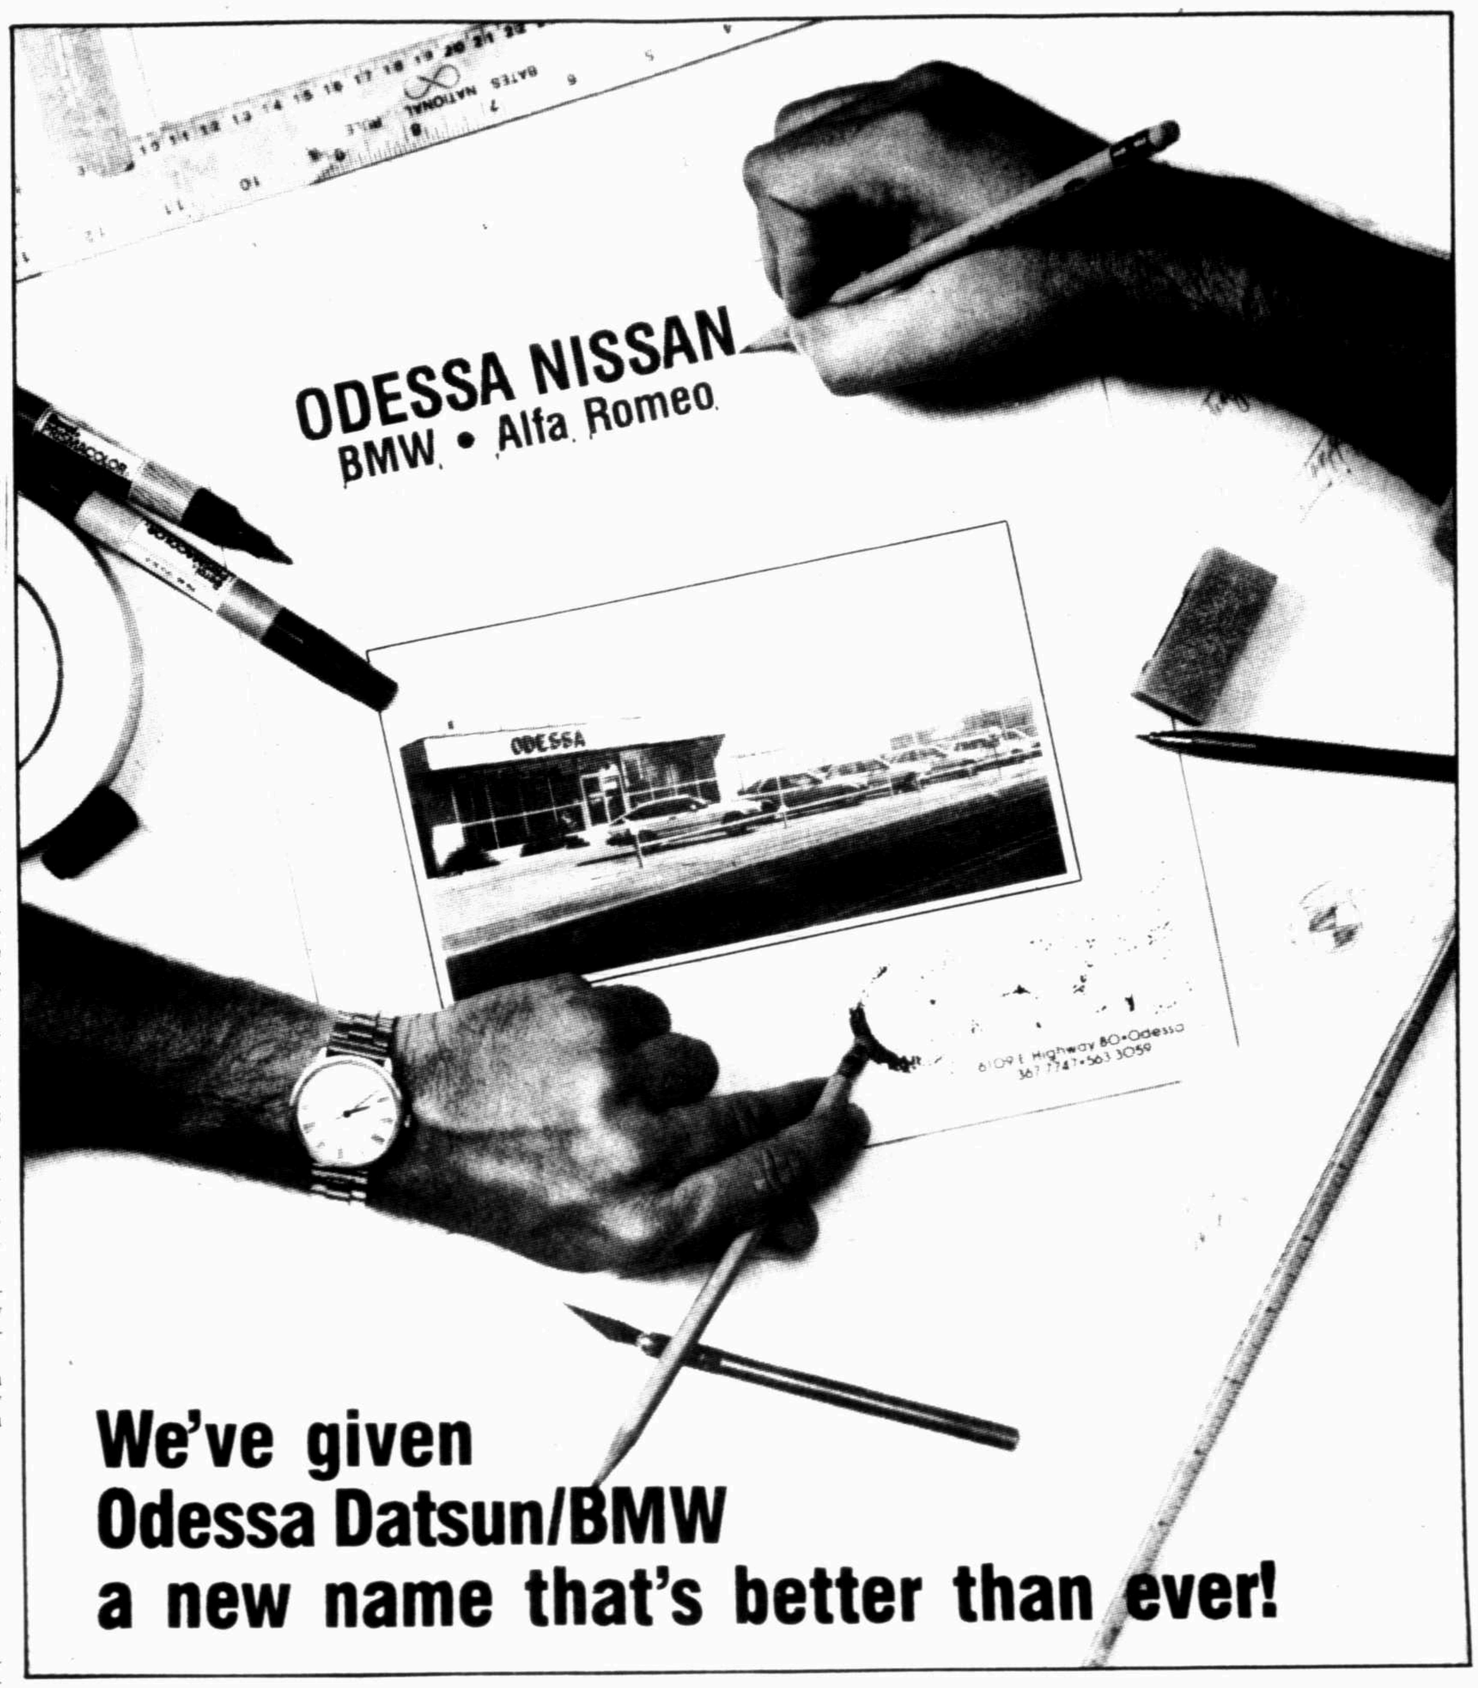

On July 30, a 14-year-old boy from Liverpool's Toxteth slum district, Jason Fitzsimmons, bought a lethal drug cocktail containing heroin just a few minutes' walk from his home. After swallowing it, he slipped into a coma and died four days later.

Those were just two among scores of stories that have hit Britain's front pages, in which the victims have ranged from the high to the low born:

— Patrick Melly, stepson of jazz singer George Melly, took an overdose of heroin and died, age 24.

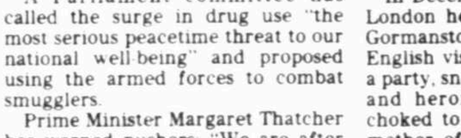

— Jayne Harries, a jet set London debutante, was found dead of an overdose in a public lavatory, age 25.

— The Marquess of Blandford, 29-year-old son of the Duke of Marlborough, entered a drug treatment program this past spring after burglarizing a pharmacy to satisfy his heroin habit. The marquess is heir to a reputed $85 million estate that includes Blenheim Palace.

U.S. nuclear missiles on stand-by in Turkey

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States, in a general strengthening of military ties with Turkey, has placed its nuclear forces there on a standby alert status similar to that of land-based missiles and B-52 bombers at home, according to a civilian analyst.

The change in nuclear readiness came over the last two years, writes William M. Arkin, an Institute for Policy Studies researcher, in an article to be published Monday in the "Bulletin of the Atomic Scientists."

As evidence, he cited an October 1983 "Munitions Bulletin" published by the headquarters of U.S. Air Forces in Europe. It recently was obtained through the Freedom of Information Act.

The publication said the U.S. nuclear weapons mission in Turkey "is in an aggressive growth stage" and that its four munitions support squadrons "are actively pursuing resumption of alert."

The squadrons guard nuclear bombs that would be used in wartime by the Turkish Air Force. Turkey is a U.S. ally in the North Atlantic Treatry Organization.

"The bottom line is that the United States views the Turks...as willing and reliable partners in a campaign to turn up the heat under the Soviet Union," Arkin said.

The Institute for Policy Studies is a liberal, Washington-based think tank that is frequently critical of the Reagan administration and Pentagon programs.

Bill 'allows' U.S allies to aid Contras

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Reagan administration engineered a last-minute change in the new foreign aid law that apparently allows it to reach an "understanding" with other countries to ship military aid to Nicaraguan rebels, government officials say.

Congressional Democrats who accepted the behind-the-scenes change shortly before the law's enactment, now say they were unaware that several U.S. allies reportedly had already cleared with the White House their plans to send military aid to the rebels.

Those "third-country" shipments, still cloaked in tight secrecy, have helped the rebels sustain their war against Nicaragua's leftist government despite the congressional cutoff of CIA aid in 1984, according to private and government sources close to the rebels.

Government officials and other sources spoke about the change in the aid provision on condition they not be identified by name.

Some congressional aides say they now believe the administration's tacit approval of those "third-country" shipments might have conflicted with the foreign aid bill's original language barring an "understanding, either formal or informal" between the United States and any U.S. aid recipient on sending arms to the rebels.

The new language in the bill, ultimately signed into law by Reagan, bars any "arrangement...expressly or impliedly" for U.S. aid to a country in exchange for its helping the rebels.

— New foreign aid law

Various sources close to the rebels have said assistance has come from Israel, South Korea, Taiwan, Guatemala, Honduras and Venezuela, but it is often unclear if the providing of weapons and sometimes advisers has been sanctioned by those governments.

The change in the bill's language came in an unusual parliamentary move after House and Senate negotiators had finished work July 26 on the measure, which provides $12.7 billion in assistance worldwide and $27 million in non-lethal aid to the Nicaraguan rebels.

When the conference broke up, the bill contained language stating: "The United States...shall enter into no understanding, either formal or informal, under which a recipient of U.S. economic or military assistance...shall provide assistance of any kind to" the Nicaraguan rebels.

Earlier, Rep. Benjamin Gilman, R-N.Y., had told the negotiators about White House displeasure over the language, and after the conference, administration representatives informed staff aides that President Reagan might veto the entire bill if the wording was not changed.

Sen. Claiborne Pell, D-R.I., the author of the original language, said he then agreed to revise the language, replacing the ban against any "understanding" with a prohibition against the White House promising a country military aid in exchange for it helping the rebels.

Although acknowledging that the revised language might create "more of an opening for government lawyers" trying to defend White House actions, Pell said he believed the two versions "really say the same thing."

One State Department official, knowledgeable about the congressional maneuvering, said the administration was concerned the Pell language would "take away from the sovereign decisions" of other countries to aid the rebels. He also complained that the orginal wording was "not specific."

One Republican congressional aide, who insisted on anonymity, said State Department officials felt the original Pell language would have "hampered" administration plans and might even have blocked the White House from talking to countries about providing non-lethal aid to the rebels.

The aide said the change would appear to allow the administration to solicit military aid for the rebels from friendly governments as long as the flow of U.S. assistance to those countries is not used to coerce their help.

The new language in the bill, ultimately signed into law by Reagan, bars any "arrangement...expressly or impliedly" for U.S. aid to a country in exchange for its helping the rebels.

From 1981 to 1984, the CIA spent an estimated $80 million to train and supply the Nicaraguan rebels. But in the spring of 1984 — following disclosures that the CIA had mined Nicaragua's harbors — Congress refused to provide more money.

Proposal requires approval of trips for Congressmen

WASHINGTON (AP) — One congressman's trip to Brazil on a big military jet, at a cost of over $50,000, has prompted renewed efforts in both the House and Senate to tighten the rules governing foreign travel by members of Congress.

"We need to do a better job policing ourselves," said Rep. William Hughes, D-N.J., author of a resolution that would require committees to justify and publicly vote on trips before taking them.

Hughes and a handful of members on both sides of Congress are pushing to end the long-standing system under which foreign travel, much of it aboard Pentagon aircraft, is approved by committee chairmen and House and Senate leaders in the privacy of their offices.

Their efforts come in the wake of publicity over the trip by Rep. Bill Alexander, D-Ark., who was the only member of Congress in a seven-person delegation that took a 42-seat Air Force jet to Brazil last month. The Pentagon says the trip cost $56,364.

Sen. Don Nickles, R-Okla., has revived a bill he introduced unsuccessfully last year that would require the cost of congressional travel to be listed as a specific item in the federal budget.

There is no requirement that any trip be announced in advance, and expense records published after the fact in the Congressional Record often understate the cost of travel, Nickles said. He said the actual cost, estimated by one study to be as much as $15 million a year, is hidden in other accounts.

Last week, Rep. Joseph J. DioGuardi, a freshman Republican from New York, introduced the Nickles bill in the House.

Nickles said Alexander's trip to Brazil "might be an example of a trip showing the need for legislation" designed to make members think twice before taking questionable journeys.

Alexander, the No. 4 man in the House Democratic hierarchy, said the trip was to study alcohol-fuel production.

In an Aug. 7 letter to the Pentagon requesting the plane, House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill Jr., D-Mass., said that four other members would make the trip with Alexander. Alexander, who supplied the names to O'Neill, has said he knew on Aug. 6 that his four colleagues were not going.

DioGuardi said that while his bill was not a reaction to the Alexander trip, "what happened to Mr. Alexander presented me a chance to push for more accountability."

"I'm not against traveling, but it's important for members to view it as importantly as any other appropriation," he said.

With the public able to see how much is budgeted each year for travel, "members will ask themselves more than once whether a trip is necessary," he said.

Hughes has tried for several years to interest colleagues in his plan to require committees to prepare a written justification for trips, give detailed itineraries, list all participants and use the lowest-cost form of transportation that is reasonably available.

Before anyone could go overseas, a committee would have to hold a recorded vote approving the trip.

"I believe this plan would give much greater credibility to those trips that are worthwhile and justified and at the same time make more likely the disapproval of trips that may be unnecessary, unjustified or of marginal value," said Hughes.

"We would not approve the expenditure of millions of dollars for any other government activity without some formal legislative review," he said. "Congressional travel, which has an aggregate cost in the millions, should be no exception."

This week, Rep. Tommy F. Robinson, D-Ark., is planning to introduce yet another bill to allow more public scrutiny of travel. Among the group of members pushing for change, all but Hughes are in their first terms.

Introducing legislation is one thing. Getting a hearing on it and then getting it enacted, especially if it deals with the internal conduct of Congress, is far more difficult.

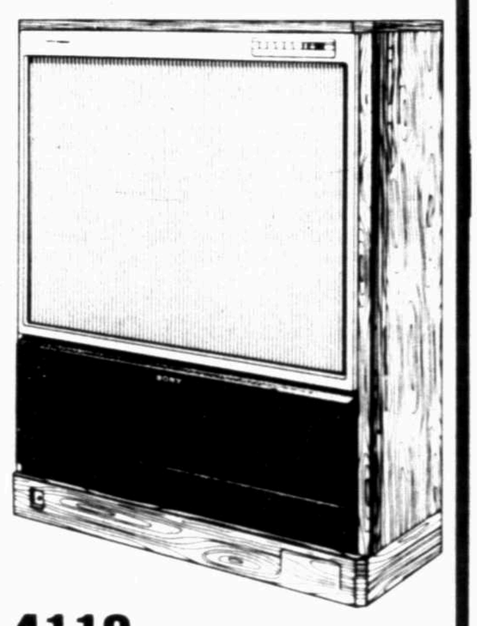

A secretary at the House Rules Committee said Friday that there was no senior staff member available to say when the panel might consider Hughes' proposal.

HOW THEY VOTED

Area congressmen support Amtrak cuts

Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON — Votes of area members of Congress on key issues during the week ending Sept. 13, 1985.

KEY HOUSE VOTES

House Rejects Additional Cuts in Amtrak Subsidy. An amendment to reduce the federal subsidy for Amtrak, the nation's passenger railroad system, by $22.1 million was easily defeated in the House Sept. 11 by a vote of 173-245. Over $80 million already had been cut from the subsidy in committee and on the House floor.

Last year Amtrak received a $684 million subsidy, which the Reagan administration had proposed eliminating entirely. The amendment to the fiscal 1986 Transportation Appropriations bill would have reduced Amtrak's subsidy to $581.5 million, down from the $603.5 million contained in the appropriations package.

The amendment's backers said that the additional $22.1 million cut in the Amtrak subsidy was necessary to bring the transportation appropriations package in line with the budget targes approved by Congress in August. Further cuts, they argued, would not have a significant impact on Amtrak service.

Opponents said that additional cuts in Amtrak were unnecessary because the overall transportation package had already been trimmed to meet the goals of Congress' budget. Amtrak could only be squeezed so much before consumers would suffer, they warned.

Voting for additional cuts in the Amtrak subsidy: Reps. Tom Loeffler, R-Hunt; Larry Combest, R-Lubbock, and Beau Boulter, R-Amarillo.

Voting against: Rep. Henry B. Gonzales, D-San Antonio.

KEY SENATE VOTES

Senate Refused to Vote on South Africa Sanctions. Despite months of emotional debate, a bid in the Republican-controlled Senate to end a filibuster and force a vote on the congressional version of sanctions against the white-minority government of South Africa failed Sept. 11 by a vote of 57-41. Sixty votes, or three-fifths of the Senate membership, is required to bring the measure up for a vote.

President Reagan, in an attempt to head off congressional action, issued an executive order Sept. 9 that imposed a milder version of the sanctions now being blocked in the Senate. Both chambers of Congress easily passed legislation containing sanctions earlier this year, and the House approved the conference report on the sanctions bill by an overwhelming margin Aug. 1. The Senate originally passed the bill July 11. This compromise package, however, contains tougher sanctions than those originally approved by the Senate, and President Reagan has said he will veto the measure if it gets to his desk — the next step if the Senate adopts the measure.

Supporters of the notion to end debate and vote on the issue argued that the violence in South Africa was a direct result of that nation's policy of institutional racism, known as apartheid. The Reagan administration's policy of "constructive engagement," they said, had obviously failed.

Opponents charged that the bill's backers, largely Democrats, were attempting to politicize what had been a bipartisan issue and embarass the president. The sanctions imposed by President Reaga, they said, were more than adequate to influence the South African government.

Voting to end debate and vote on South Africa sanctions: Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, D-Texas.

Voting against: Sen. Phil Gramm, R-Texas.

Senate Allows Federal Judicial Review of School Prayer Cases. The Senate quashed an attempt to prohibit the federal courts from hearing ay case involving prayer in public schools, tabling (killing) the measure by a vote of 62-36 on Sept. 10.

The measure, introduced by Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C., would not have allowed opponents of public school prayer to challenge school prayer legislation in the federal courts, leaving authority in the hands of state officials. The U.S. Supreme Court has barred virtually all forms of public school prayer since 1963.

Supporters of the motion to table the proposal rejected what they called the interference of Congress in the affairs of the judiciary branch. "This is not a debate over school prayer," said Sen. Patrick J. Leahy, D-Vt. "Today we are debating the temptation of one branch of government to subdue another branch by relieving it of its authority."

Opponents of the motion to kill the measure argued that every child has a right to prayer in an educational system that ignores all instruction on morality but promotes all other facts of learning. "The question is freedom of religion. It is not a question of freedom from religion," said Helms.

Voting against killing the measure barring federal court review of school prayer: Bentsen, Gramm.

After six years, man must return to prison

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — When he was released on parole six years ago in Georgia, Gary Pierson says he was told no one else wanted him for any other violations, so he found work, married, had four children, studied a trade and bought a house.

But now North Carolina authorities say he is still considered an escapee there from a prior prison sentence. Pierson was told Friday he must return to North Carolina by Oct. 1 to serve at least two months and three days.

"It's a mess," said Pierson, 35. "I feel like I haven't been treated honestly. After being out so many years working, having children, now my family suffers. We'll have to go on welfare. It's crazy."

"It's vindictive," said his wife Sue, 32. "Gary has led a good life since he was in trouble, and now this. I don't understand the system at all."

Pierson walked off the grounds of a North Carolina prison hospital in August 1973. North Carolina officials say the two months and three days is how much time he had to go before he would have become eligible for parole on a sentence for breaking and entering.

"A debt is a debt," said Roger Knight, assistant legal counselor to North Carolina Gov. James Martin.

Pierson was arrested in Georgia on a burglary charge just one month after he walked away from the North Carolina facility. He served five years there before being paroled in 1979.

"When I finally made parole in Georgia, I asked if there were any outstanding warrants on me from North Carolina and I was told no," he said.

Since then, Pierson has been working full time at a Minneapolis nursing home and, on an educational grant, studying hydraulics at a vocational school.

The fact that he was still considered an escapee surfaced last summer after he and his wife visited her relatives in England. When they returned, a routine U.S. Customs computer check in Minneapolis found that a North Carolina escape warrant was on file against him.

During the past year, Pierson and his lawyer have tried to get North Carolina authorities to let him stay in Minneapolis and work out a parole arrangement under which he would either serve a two-month sentence or report weekly to a parole officer.

Gerry Nelson, press secretary for Minnesota Gov. Rudy Perpich, said Saturday that members of the governor's staff would work Monday with North Carolina officials to see if there is any way Pierson can stay in Minnesota.

Gary Pierson of Minneapolis, here with wife, Sue, and three-week-old son, David, has been told he will have to return to a North Carolina prison, six years after he was paroled from a Georgia prison.

Congress eyes limit on textile imports

U.S. would become international trade 'outlaw'

By MIKE ROBINSON
Associated Press

WASHINGTON — With growing pressure for get-tough trade measures, Congress is preparing to limit clothing and textile imports — a step hailed as a potential job saver and attacked as certain to make America "an outlaw" in world markets.

The measure, the spearhead of a drive to protect U.S. products from import competition, would sharply reduce the quotas on burgeoning imports of clothing and textiles.

With 304 announced House supporters and 53 in the Senate, the textile bill is riding the crest of heightened concern over the U.S. trade deficit and appears likely to become an unwelcome item on President Reagan's desk, perhaps within weeks.

The White House has made clear a veto is all but surely in store for the measure, which flies in the face of Reagan's determination to uphold the free-trade doctrine that has been the dominant policy since World War II.

Highly favored by Southern lawmakers with districts dotted by textile mills, the measure attracts critics among export boosters. They say it would spur retaliation against U.S. products abroad and send consumer prices skyrocketing here.

"This in and of itself is dreadful legislation," says Sen. Dan Evans, R-Wash. "In fact, it's a complete sham."

South Carolina's two senators, Republican Strom Thurmond and Democrat Ernest Hollings, retort that vanishing U.S. jobs can be saved only by reducing imports, primarily from the "Big Five" textile exporters, Taiwan, Hong Kong, South Korea, China and Japan.

The textile bill would cut existing quotas for imports from those nations and seven others by an estimated 25 percent to 45 percent. It would limit their market growth here to 1 percent annually.

CRITICS CONTED THE quote reductions would be a blatant violation of the Multi-Fiber Agreement, which governs the textile trade among most nations.

"It would make this country an outlaw in international trade," Rep Ed Zschau, R-Calif., says.

Rep. Ed Jenkins, D-Ga., who holds the so-called "textile seat" on the House Ways and Means Committee, scoffs at such charges. Backers say the bill follows the spirit of the fiber pact, a measure designed to assure orderly trade but often violated, marred by loopholes and set to expire next year anyway.

As for the free-trade doctrine, textile forces raise the specter of a menace so great that such considerations pale beside it.

"The bottom line is jobs," Thurmond declares. He told the Senate Finance Committee on July 15 that imports have doubled since 1980 and "the cost has been 300,000 fiber, textile and apparel jobs."

The U.S. Bureau of Labor Statistics reported in July that that 80,000 textile workers and 132,000 apparel industry employes suffered layoffs between January 1979 and January 1984 because of plant closings or slackening demand.

The August unemployment rate was 7.6 percent in textiles and 12 percent in apparel, the bureau said. The U.S. jobless rate for the month was 7 percent.

BACKED BY THE industries and two major unions, the International Ladies Garment Workers and the Amalgamated Clothing and Textile Workers, the bill appears set for swift House action.

Rep. Dan Rostenkowski, D-Ill., chairman of the Ways and Means Committee, said Thursday the measure probably would emerge this week from his panel's trade subcommittee, whose anti-protectionist chairman, Rep. Sam Gibbons, D-Fla., had been mulling it.

Rostenkowski said his committee would act Sept. 26, possibly sending the bill to the floor under a blueprint assuring quick action and no hostile amendments aimed at sinking it.

Under that special handling, however, passage would require two-thirds approval.

"I can count," said Rostenkowski. "With 304 co-sponsors it shouldn't have much trouble on the House floor."

At a Senate hearing, however, Sen. Spark Matsunaga, D-Hawaii, questioned whether two-thirds approval in the 435-member House was quite so likely. Prodded by Matsunaga, Rep. Cecil Heftel, D-Hawaii, acknowledged he is among the 304 co-sponsors but no longer a supporter.

Heftel said he signed on because the "terrible bill" would "send a message" to Reagan by forcing a veto. He said he now has second thoughts.

Episcopals choose activism

ANAHEIM, Calif. (AP) — The Episcopal Church ended an eight-day convention Saturday, having set a course of vigorous social activism in line with its new leader's commitment to grapple with public issues from nuclear arms to apartheid.

"However uncomfortable at times it becomes, the gospel of Jesus Christ requires a pastoral ministry which leads to prophetic witness and action," declared the Rt. Rev. Edmond Lee Browning, chosen to head the diverse denomination for the next 12 years. "I pledge to you the exercise of both."

The Texas-reared bishop of Hawaii, a white-haired, liberal churchman of 56, is to be installed in January as the church's presiding bishop, primate and chief pastor, succeeding the Most Rev. John M. Allin.

Browning, in his acceptance address last week, reeled off an agenda on which to mobilize the 3-million-member denomination, including help for America's "overburdened poor," battling the nuclear arms buildup as inconsistent with the gospel, fighting the "brutality of apartheid" in South Africa, and challenging U.S. policies in Central America.

The suffering in Central America is "in its poverty and injustice, not in communism," he said.

Goldwater's son testifies

CHICAGO (AP) — Prosecutors say the last known contact with a woman missing since November was a call to Barry M. Goldwater Jr., son of the U.S. senator from Arizona, who says he was "romantically involved" with the woman.

Loretta Clark Guinan, 27, disappeared after agreeing to testify against her estranged husband, attorney Michael J. Guinan, before a federal grand jury.

Guinan was convicted of tax fraud on July 26 after being accused of using 16 aliases and 42 bank accounts to conceal $300,000 in income.

Assistant U.S. attorneys Joseph Duffy and Thomas Durkin say Guinan, 50, is being questioned in the disappearance of his second wife, whom he married in January 1984.

"It was obvious she was scared and didn't know what to do," said Goldwater, who testified he became "romantically involved" with Mrs. Guinan shortly after they met in June 1984.

Recruiting goals met

WASHINGTON (AP) — Re-enlistment rates for the nation's military services continue to dip slightly, but each of the services met its goal for signing up new recruits during the first nine months of fiscal 1985, the Pentagon said Friday.

Moreover, the rate of new recruits who have a high school diploma is nearly as high as last year's record-breaking rate. Overall, 91 percent of the 214,700 new recruits signed up over the past nine months have a high school diploma, compared to 93 percent of 225,400 recruits at this time last year.

The latest "manpower strength assessment" shows 156,200 individuals, or roughly 67 percent of the 234,300 eligible, signed up for another hitch in the military between Oct. 1, 1984, and June 30, 1985. That is slightly less than the results turned in during the same period a year ago, when 164,900 or 70 percent of the 234,500 eligible re-enlisted.

Reagan: Third term?

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan told a group of state legislators he believes the Constitution should be changed to permit presidents to serve more than two terms, White House spokesman Larry Speakes said Saturday.

Speakes said the question was raised by a long-time Reagan supporter at a private meeting with legislators on Thursday in Tampa, Fla., where the president had just given a speech.

He said Reagan responded "in a light-hearted manner" but went on to say in a more serious vein that, while such an amendment would not apply to him, he believed that "the people ought to have a right to decide who their leadership would be."

Speakes said the question was couched to Reagan in terms of whether he felt handicapped by being considered a "lame duck" in his second term "and he was indicating that he was going to be an active president."

FBI: Bombings down

WASHINGTON (AP) — The number of bombings in the United States during the first six months of this year decreased by 6 percent, compared to the same period a year ago, the FBI said Saturday.

The bureau said explosive bombings were down 3 percent, while incendiary bombings declined 20 percent.

Of the 362 incidents reported this year, actual detonation or ignition happened 306 times, a bureau said.

It said that of the total bombings, one was attributed by the FBI to a terrorist group, although it did not identify the group involved.

Salmonella not sabotage

CHICAGO (AP) — A unique strain of salmonella that sickened 18,000 people in six Midwestern states last spring also infected at least 23 people several months before the outbreak, a team of experts said Saturday.

The experts also affirmed an earlier report, blaming the outbreak on milk that was contaminated at the suburban Hillfarm Dairy because of a valve that malfunctioned.

Louisiana governor, before trial, says 'Don't bet more than you can afford'

BATON ROUGE, La. (AP) — Flamboyant Gov. Edwin Edwards, who faces trial this week on federal racketeering charges, says he follows one rule whether he's hunting an 800-pound grizzly or shooting craps on the French Riviera: "You just don't bet more than you can afford."

"I am a risk-taker, but I'm also aware of the odds," Edwards said during an interview at the Governor's Mansion.

The governor agreed to talk about his hunting exploits and his gaming philosophy on the eve of his federal trial on racketeering and conspiracy charges, scheduled to begin Tuesday in New Orleans, as long as he wasn't asked about the charges against him.

He said both hunting and gambling challenge his intellect and sharpen his instincts. "There's a sense of achievement," said Edwards, the first Louisiana governor ever elected to three terms.

U.S. District Judge Marcel Livaudais has prohibited everyone involved from publicly discussing the Edwards case.

That barred any questions about reports that huge gambling debts prompted his participation in an alleged scheme to broker state permits for nursing homes and hospitals.

Edwards has said that he always paid all his losses promptly. However, several Las Vegas casino employees have been subpoenaed by prosecutors.

The governor and seven others, including his brother, were indicted on charges that they conspired to give favored treatment to associates who applied for permits to construct state nursing homes and hospitals.

Edwards and the others have pleaded innocent to the charges.

Edwards said his biggest thrill is stalking his favorite prey through the mountains of Idaho, Wyoming or New Mexico.

"There's nothing like tracking an elk up in the mountains when it's snowing and cold," he said. "Matching your stamina and cunning against an animal's instincts — that's real relaxation."

The 57-year-old Cajun said he began developing his hunting eye during Depression days at his family's farm in the bayou country of Avoyelles Parish in east-central Louisiana.

"I was about eight years old and killed a blackbird with my slingshot," he said. "A flock of them were eating corn. I just shot a rock and hit one of them in the head."

Edwards said his mother often made gumbos from blackbirds and robins he killed during those lean years. The family also ate squirrels and rabbits he bagged.

His horizons have broadened since then. After he won re-election in 1983, he rounded up political supporters willing to pay $10,000 a ticket and put them aboard two chartered 747s for an eight-day trip to Europe. The object of the trip was to have fun, while visiting casinos, and retire his campaign debt.

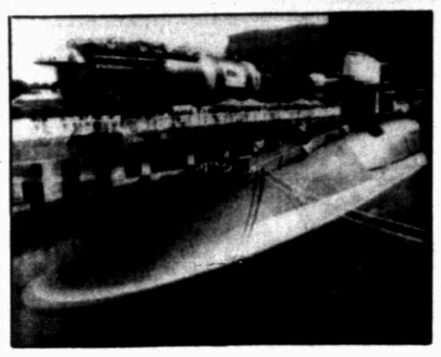

He said he didn't start hunting bigger game such as deer and elk until he entered his 40s.

He said his biggest challenge came in 1982 when he bagged an 8½-foot grizzly bear while it ran straight at him during an Alaskan hunting expedition.

"I remember vividly the way he crashed through the trees," he said. "It looked like the wind moving through a grain field."

Edwards said he waited until the bear was about 40 yards away and then dropped it with a single shot from his .375-caliber rifle.

"People ask me if I was scared. I wasn't. It looked like he was going to attack me, but I don't think he was. I have enough confidence in my shooting ability so that I stayed calm."

Trident sub launched

GROTON, Conn. (AP) — President Reagan's "star wars" space defense initiative is the best hope for "a more stable and secure world," U.S. Sen. Paul Laxalt said Saturday at the launch of the Trident submarine Nevada.

The launch of the eighth Trident class nuclear-powered, missile-armed submarine at the Electric Boat shipyard also drew protests by anti-nuclear weapons demonstrators.

"President Reagan and I, together with millions of others on this planet, believe it is far more rational and moral to have a policy that will enable us to destroy missiles in space rather than kill people on earth," Laxalt, R-Nev., said of the space defense proposal.

Laxalt's wife Carol broke the traditional bottle of champagne against the submarine. Also at the ceremony were Nevada Gov. Richard Bryan and two officers from the battleship USS Nevada, which was hit by the Japanese during the bombing of Pearl Harbor.

The 560-foot-long submarine, which will carry 24 Trident missiles, is the third Navy vessel to carry the name Nevada this century.

STATE

SBOE rejects textbook proposal

Set price on workbooks would save 'millions'

AUSTIN (AP) — The State Board of Education rejected a textbook proposal Saturday that one member claimed could save local school districts millions of dollars.

But the proposal to require textbook publishers to provide supplementary materials, such as workbooks, at a set price over a certain period could still be reviewed at another board meeting.

Board member Jack Strong, Longview, said publishers already are giving Arkansas and Florida fixed contracts on supplementary materials, and had told him that the only reason "they had not done it in Texas was we hadn't asked for it."

Strong said the price of items such as workbooks have been going up 11 to 13 percent a year in Texas.

He wanted the board to go on record as favoring a fixed price before it adopts textbooks in November so publishers might be persuaded to volunteer fixed prices. He said he would be more inclined to vote for a textbook if the publisher would agree to a fixed contract on workbooks. His proposal, which failed 4-10, could be made binding the following year.

Strong noted that the state no longer pays for what the board calls "consumables," so the savings would come to local districts, who pay for extra materials out of local funds, or students who have to buy the materials individually.

State Education Commissioner William Kirby said he had no recommendation because he needed more information.

"Could it have any result except to save money?" asked Strong.

"I'm not adequately informed to give a recommendation at this time," Kirby replied.

In other action Saturday, the board:

— Authorized spending $116,000 to continue a program to train "gifted and talented students" and their teacher-coaches to seek solutions to problems of the future such as the impact of robots and the industrialization of space.

Last year, 6,000 students and 850 coaches from 140 school districts participated in the statewide Texas Future Problem Solving Program.

— Adopted a 1985-86 operating budget for the Texas Education Agency of $38.2 million, which includes nearly $24 million in state funds and the remainder in federal funds.

Kirby reported to the board that the TEA has been reorganized to "get away from the 'I gotcha' attitude of the past, where TEA concentrated primarily on monitoring school districts' compliance with technical regulations, toward a new 'How can I help you?' attitude.

Patrolmen may buy own cars

DALLAS (AP) — Police department officials want to let officers buy their own patrol cars in order to increase neighborhood police visibility and save the city money.

"Research indicates that about three-fourths of all crimes at least partially occur within public view, and we're hoping that this increased visibility will reduce crime," said Assistant Police Chief Leslie Sweet.

The more marked police cars on the street, the fewer traffic violations, too, he said.

Dallas police officials also contend the plan could save the city at least $100,000 a year in vehicle purchase costs and mean less upkeep on police cars.

In Honolulu, the only other major city where officer-owned cars have been tried, it works well, officials there said.

"It's something we've always done," Honolulu police Lt. Dennis Eng said.

"I think it saves both the department and the officer money. You'll find that maintenance of the cars is much better since the officers own them, because you take better care of something you own," he said.

If the plan is approved by the City Council, about 60 officers would be allowed to buy patrol cars at a cost of about $11,000.

The officers would have to buy their own gasoline and pay for maintenance in return for reimbursement for on-duty mileage, Sweet said. He said there would be no reimbursement for off-duty driving.

If the voluntary program is successful, it would be expanded after the first year.

The police department currently leases cars from the city's Equipment Services Department, paying a mileage rate of 45.7 cents, Sweet said.

Dallas police hope that making officers responsible for car maintenance will translate into less time out of service. Currently, about 50 of the department's 345 squad cars are idle or being serviced at any given time.

"The benefit to the officer is he would be the only one who would drive his car, so he could maintain it as he desired," Sweet said.

An added benefit would be increased visibility of police officers in neighborhoods, Sweet said.

The officers driving their own marked cars would be subject to certain rules.

"There would be a requirement that any officer driving a marked car would stop at accident scenes and assist stranded motorists or anyone else who flagged him down," he said.

"If it was just a momentary thing, they would probably receive no compensation, but if he got involved in providing a public service that took some time, then he could file for overtime."

While driving the car off-duty, officers would be expected to monitor the police radio.

"It's not mandatory that he get involved; it's just mandatory that he knows what's going on," Sweet said.

Officers would be required to live in the city limits and buy the same model car the police department is buying that year.

Divergent U.S. Hispanic population seeks cohesive voice

By PEGGY ROBERSON
Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON — The fast-growing Hispanic population, now numbering 16 million or more, will become the largest minority in the United States by the year 2000.

If Hispanics could place all their muscle behind a given political policy or issue they would be a formidable force in American affairs. But, until now, their impact has in no way matched the size of their population.

A number of Hispanic leaders have been searching, therefore, for ways to merge the divergent Hispanic factions into a forceful unit which could have an impact on both domestic and hemispheric affairs. One of those leaders is Rep. Bill Richardson, D-N.M., chairman of the Congressional Hispanic Caucus.

Richardson believes Hispanics have long been interested in U.S. foreign policy, particularly with regard to Latin America, but have concentrated primarily on domestic issues.

Now, Richardson suggests, the most useful and lasting contribution they can make to their country is to help the government develop "a well-informed, sensitive, politically sustainable" policy toward Latin America and Central America.

By that he means a policy that pays attention to the social and political problems that are the root of the region's troubles.

Richardson, writing in the fall issue of "Foreign Policy," a quarterly journal published by the Carnegie Endowment for International Peace, said most Hispanics agree that U.S. leaders have never taken Latin America seriously.

With the exceptions of President Franklin Roosevelt's Good Neighbor policy and President John Kennedy's Alliance for Progress, U.S. policy has been oriented toward crisis, Richardson said.

"As a result, U.S. administrations have too often treated Latin American countries as pawns in the East-West struggle or as repeatedly rediscovered 'amigos' in need of a handout," he added.

Richardson makes the case that in prescribing one policy for all of Latin America, rather than considering the special needs and problems of each country and addressing them accordingly, Washington has failed to give Latin American countries the individual, long-range economic and political attention they deserve.

The problems of immigration, the social and political strife, and the major difficulties of the struggling democracies in Central and South America all are economic, Richardson argues.

He advocates a new Marshall Plan, similar to the one that rebuilt Western Europe after World War II, to fight massive problems of poverty, illiteracy, hunger and unemployment. Such a plan, advocated by the late Sen. Henry Jackson, D-Wash., and proposed formally by former Secretary of State Henry Kissinger, has not attracted a great deal of attention.

Richardson's own plan, which he introduced as legislation in July, would set up a Free Trade Co-production Zone for the 2,000-mile U.S.-Mexican border area. He believes it would ease the immigration problem by attracting industry to both sides of the border.

Among other things, his plan would set up a commission composed of U.S. and Mexican officials and academicians to work out an agreement on a method of dealing with uncontrolled immigration.

Mexico and the United States would contribute equally to the capital and administration of a bank to make development loans and give financial and technical aid to any cooperative or private business in the border region.

Gaining the most attention is Richardson's idea for a free trade zone on the border. He proposes that any goods grown, produced or manufactured within the zone, on either side of the border, could move duty-free throughout the zone.

A united Hispanic community could persuade Congress to seriously consider Richardson's bill.

The truth is, there is no such thing as a Hispanic community — only a collection of diverse communities.

Hispanics came to the United States from many countries for many reasons. Cubans came to escape communism, and more than 90 percent voted for President Reagan in the last election. Mexican immigrants in the early 1900's were seeking freedom as well as opportunity, but in recent years most Mexicans come looking for work. In the five Southwestern states, where 9 million Hispanics live, more than 70 percent voted Democratic in the last two presidential elections.

Central Americans now pouring into Washington and other big cities are fleeing political oppression. Puerto Ricans, who are U.S. citizens, are coming to the states for better jobs and living standards.

When Hispanics begin to build coalitions among their diverse groups and — on some foreign and domestic issues — with blacks, Asians and women, they surely will have a dramatic and profound impact.

DID YOU KNOW?

In Texas, more than 664,650 adults abuse alcohol. Each one, in turn, affects a minimum of four other people - spouses, friends, children, employers, fellow employees.

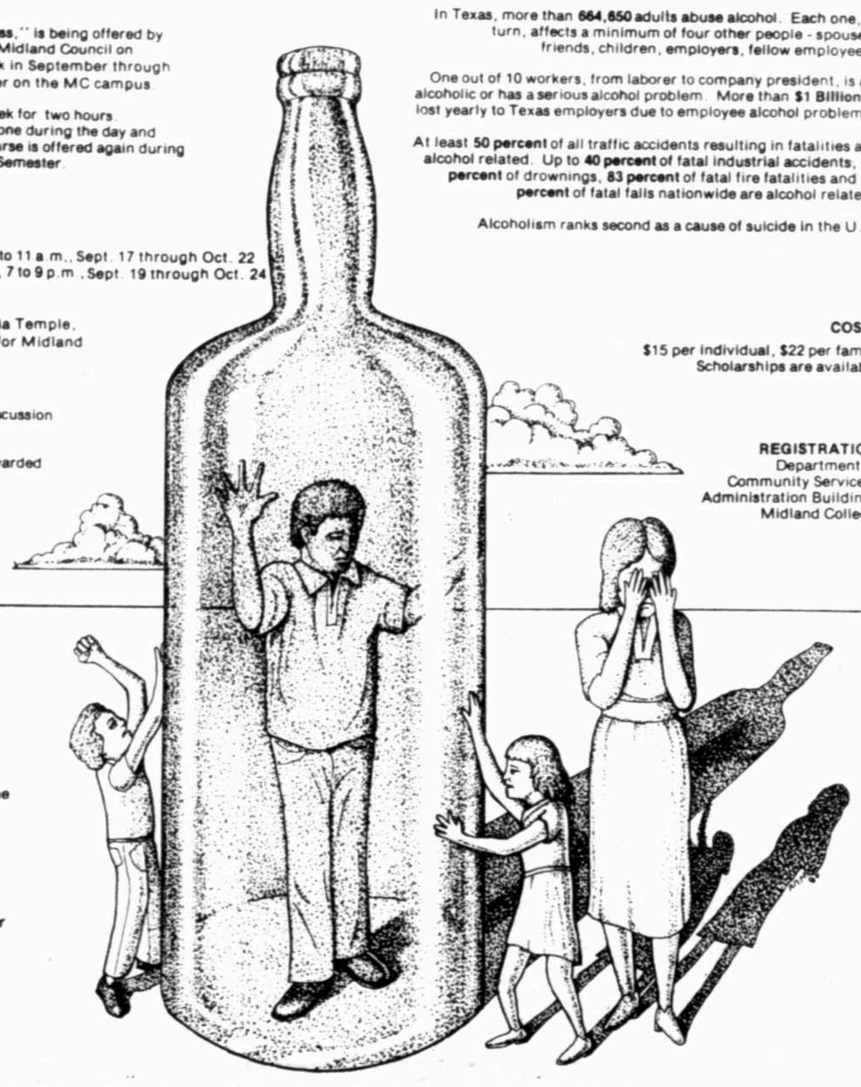

One out of 10 workers, from laborer to company president, is an alcoholic or has a serious alcohol problem. More than $1 Billion is lost yearly to Texas employers due to employee alcohol problems.

At least 50 percent of all traffic accidents resulting in fatalities are alcohol related. Up to 40 percent of fatal industrial accidents; 69 percent of drownings, 83 percent of fatal fire fatalities and 70 percent of fatal falls nationwide are alcohol related.

Alcoholism ranks second as a cause of suicide in the U.S.

Border forecasts

NEW MEXICO: Widely scattered afternoon and evening thundershowers. Highs Sunday and Monday mostly in the 80s and 70s. Lows Sunday night from the 30s to the lower 50s mountains and northwest, 50s and 60s elsewhere.

OKLAHOMA: Clear to partly cloudy and warmer through Monday. Highs Sunday and Monday in the 80s. Lows Sunday night mostly 60s.

Cloudcover expected to continue

From Staff and Wire Reports

Cloudy skies should continue today, but the chance of showers will decrease to 20 percent, according to the National Weather Service at Midland Regional Airport. The high will be near 80, and winds will be from the southeast at 10-15 mph.

Tonight and Monday will be mostly cloudy, with a low tonight in the mid-60s and a high Monday near 90, with a slight chance of thunderstorms in the afternoon.

Rainfall this month has been measured at 2 inches, pushing the year's total up to 9.20 inches.

Friday's high of 74 was 25 degrees below the 1965 record for the date of 99, while the overnight low of 68 was 18 degrees above the 1961 record of 50.

STATE

Cloudy skies and cool temperatures covered most of North and West Texas Saturday as a blanket of low clouds covered the state.

Late Saturday afternoon, heavy thunderstorms in Austin with rains falling at a rate of two inches an hour flooded low-lying areas and water crossings in the city before the storms slowly moved eastward.

Gulf moisture overran a weak frontal boundary in South Texas to bring the cool weather and rains, the National Weather Service said. Along and south of the boundary, showers and thunderstorms were scattered from the Edwards Plateau region across south central Texas to the upper coast.

Isolated thunderstorms also were reported from the Rio Grande Lower Valley into the Trans Pecos region.

NATION

Rain fell on Texas and part of the Gulf Coast on Saturday, as clear weather predominated over most of the nation.

Showers and a few thundershowers were reported over western and central Texas, the northern Gulf of Mexico and the Florida Peninsula. Rainshowers were scattered from the northern Pacific Coast to the northern Intermountain region.

It was cool in the East, and a frost warning was posted across much of western Pennsylvania and the northern mountains of West Virginia.

Temperatures around the nation at 3 p.m. EDT ranged from 50 degrees at Klamath Falls, Ore., to 98 at Palm Springs, Calif., and Phoenix, Ariz. The nation's low Saturday morning was 25 degrees at Gunnison, Colo.

Midlanders facing higher property taxes

By RAMONA NYE
Staff Writer

If you are the average Midlander with property assessed at $75,000, you will be paying an extra $75.63 in property taxes this year.

"We have a significant number of very high valued homes in Midland compared to other communities our size," said Roland Wilkinson, chief appraiser with the Midland Central Appraisal District.

In 1985, city residents saw an increase in property taxes by the five taxing entities in Midland, which include the city, county, Midland Independent School District, Midland College District and Midland County Hospital District.

The largest tax increase occurred with the Midland Independent School District. Midlanders with $75,000 worth of property will be paying an extra $36.25 in taxes this year to MISD. The district's tax increased from 71 cents to 76.8 cents per $100 assessed value. The actual percentage increase is 8 percent, but with the money the school district loses from all tax exemptions, the effective property tax increase is 5.1 percent, Wilkinson said.

The school taxing district is required by state law to give Midland residents a $5,000 deduction on their original assessed property value, Wilkinson said. A second homestead exemption became effective in 1984 and takes 10 percent off the original property value. For example, a house assessed at $100,000 would only be taxed at $85,000 after the $5,000 and 10 percent exemption.

A third exemption enacted in 1979 freezes the school's tax rate for homeowners 65 and over. A homeowner who turned 65 in 1982 would pay 1982's tax rate and not be affected by any future increases in the school tax, he said.

Midland County property taxes involve the second highest increase this year, with property owners assessed at $75,000 paying an extra $25.50. This is a 7.9 percent effective tax increase from 16.5 cents to 19.9 cents per $100 valuation.

A homestead exemption of $20,000 off the total assessed property value is allowed by the Midland County taxing district for property owners over the age of 65, said Frances Shuffield, county tax assessor. Senior citizen property owners with land valued at $100,000 would only be taxed on $80,000 under this exemption.

City property taxes will increase $6.60 for owners with $75,000 property. Taxes will go from 39 cents to 39.88 cents per $100 valuation. The effective property tax increase for the city is 3 percent.

Owners with $75,000 of property will pay an extra $5.10 this year to provide funding for Midland College. The college property tax increased from 8.72 cents to 9.04 cents per $100 valuation. This is a 7.06 percent effective property tax increase.

The increase will help fund two new programs at the college, said Bob Phillips, vice president for the college's business affairs.

The taxes will fund a radiation technology program and a child care/day care program, Phillips said.

The Midland College taxing district created in 1973 is one of the newer taxing districts in the city. The college was formed in 1969 as part of the Odessa system, but became a separate taxing entity in 1973, Phillips said.

The smallest tax increase for average homeowners with $75,000 property is $2.18 with the Midland County Hospital District. The hospital's effective property taxes will increase 3 percent from 6.24 cents to 6.53 cents per $100 valuation.

The hospital district is the youngest of all taxing entities with its incorporation in 1977. Almost all the tax money collected by the district goes to pay for patients who can't pay their medical bills, said Cynthia Brust, the hospital's public relations director.

In the future the creation of another taxing district for Midland residents is conceivable, but unlikely, Wilkinson said.

Some counties have special water and mud districts, he said. However the city and individual wells provide residents with water now.

"Most of your rural residents have their own wells and are generating their own water. And the city of Midland takes care of water for city residents," Wilkinson said.

Also, the topography of the land does not make Midland a likely candidate for a mud district that uses tax money to keep irrigation and drainage ditches clear, he said.

State won't adopt math textbook tested by Trinity

By JULIE HILLRICHS
Staff Writer

In Texas, the state textbook committee refused to sanction for public schools a mathematics textbook authored by Norman, Okla., resident John Saxon, despite enthusiastic praise from many who had tested it.

A review in The Mathematics Teacher, a professional journal, called Saxon's book "sterile" and his test results "meaningless," Reader's Digest reported in its March issue.

But Saxon remains undeterred by the criticism. He says the success stories far outweigh commentaries that claim disapproval.

One in particular: At Trinity School in Midland, students' test scores jumped when they used Saxon's material.

At Texas State Technical Institute, remedial math students' test scores reportedly rose three full grades just six months after the school adopted the book, the magazine reported.

As Trinity School teacher Mary Rula explains: "It's not watered down. You have good, solid math problems. And the students like it when they get in it."

Then why all the disparaging comments?

"It's such a radical departure from conventional mathematics textbooks," Saxon explained in a telephone interview. "It results in a whole new approach to learning in the field of mathematics and science."

In conventional math, Saxon charges, "The teacher introduces one subject one day and another subject the next. Eventually, there is a review section, but by then the pile of forgotten topics is so high that there isn't time to review."

Arthritic diseases: No age is immune

By RON GILMORE
Staff Writer

Gazing out her front window, she looks with some remorse at the grazing horses in a nearby field — perhaps realizing that her days of horseback-riding are long over.

"Please don't use my name," said the 32-year-old Midlander. "I'm trying to get a job and if an employer knows that I have trouble sometimes, they may not want to hire me."

The woman, to be referred to as "Ms. Jones," suffers from a disease often associated with the elderly — arthritis.

"No age is immune," said Dr. B.K. Khandelwal, a Midland rheumatologist. "I've seen them from two months of age to 95 years."

Among young, career-aged individuals, arthritis can be a devastating disease, causing career changes, loss of jobs, problems in sexual relations and even in holding a marriage together.

"THE DIVORCE rate is really high among arthritis patients," said Ms. Jones. "Fortunately, I have a husband who has been a real help."

For Ms. Jones, formerly employed in a medically related field, the disease began at an age when most people are actively pursuing careers, relationships and social lives.

"I was 25 years old when I first started to notice a pain in the balls of my feet," she said. "It was tender to walk and one finger knuckle was swollen real bad."

The first signs arose when she was horseback-riding — a favorite pastime.

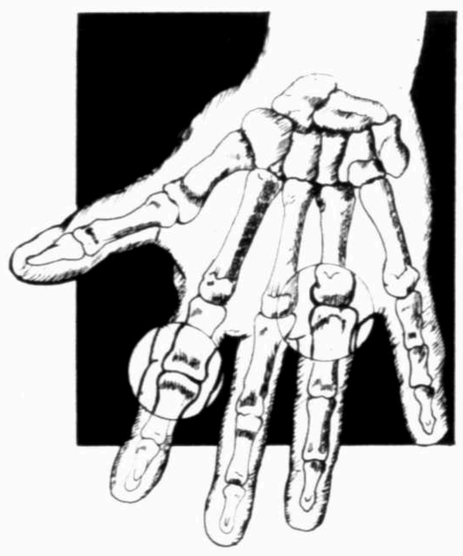

"I was out riding when I noticed that both my knees were hurting," said Ms. Jones. "That's also when I noticed the balls of my feet hurting and the swollen finger knuckle. When I went dancing later that night at a wedding, I really felt pain. That's the last time I danced."

The disease, later diagnosed as rheumatoid arthritis, drastically altered her lifestyle.

"I WAS VERY athletic," said Ms. Jones. "You name it, I could do it — but not anymore. I can't go shopping at malls or go on rides at the amusement park. I used to love to play tennis and cross-country ski."

Today, she gets strange looks from other people when parking in the handicapped zone at the grocery store. "You can't really tell I have arthritis by looking at me and I just know they are thinking 'What's she doing parking there?' " joked Ms. Jones.

Council, Midland officials begin three-day retreat

By LANA CUNNINGHAM
Assistant City Editor

Midland City Council, department directors and administrative staff members will be meeting in Ruidoso, N.M., starting today for a three-day retreat.

The first session will start at 7 p.m. today in the Apache Treaty Room at Inn of the Mountain Gods. The meeting should be concluded Tuesday evening.

Assistant City Manager Mike McGregor said the retreat is a "goal-setting" meeting. "We get input from the council and department heads about possible projects for the next 12 to 18 months, such as water and street projects."

According to the public notice that was posted at City Hall, the group will "discuss and consider public policy and operational procedures of the city, but no formal action will be taken."

Councilman Steve Davidson, who has attended the retreats in previous years, said positive results have come from the gatherings.

"We've come back with a very clear sense of goals with high, moderate and low priorities," for operating what he called a $60 million business.

He said the group assesses what has been accomplished with the previous year's goals and then looks at what needs to be tackled for the next year. Of last year's goals, he said, most have been addressed or are being addressed.

Street improvements and employee morale are on-going projects, he said. Water supply was answered with the Stacy Dam project that will send water to Midland starting in 1990. Putting in data processing systems for the police and court systems has been completed. And the municipal court reorganization and airport concourse addition are being addressed, according to the councilman.

GARY OTT

Prejudice: Hatred cultivated by circumstances

The setting was simple. I was waiting in line at the Post Office, passing the time by watching the assortment of people there buy stamps, mail packages and argue with the personnel over why that long-awaited item hadn't arrived yet.

Granted, it wasn't the most exciting way to spend 10 minutes, but still, it beat sitting in the office answering angry phone calls.

Besides, the Post Office isn't a bad place to people-watch. It is a gathering place, of sorts. You see all kinds — rich, poor, young, old, black and white. On the day in question there was a heavy run on the young variety.

Two in particular caught my attention. The first was a baby girl, probably less than a year old, who was being held by her mother. They were white. The other child was a young boy — I'd guess him to be no more 4 years of age — who was with an older man, presumably his father. They were black.

The little boy was infatuated with the baby. He would sneak up to her and touch her toes. Then he would run off and hide behind his father. This continued for several minutes. The baby seemed to enjoy the attention, grinning broadly each time the little boy approached.

Her mother appeared nervous when the game started, but she soon relaxed once it became obvious the boy's actions were motivated more by curiosity than anything else.

Both children were having fun. They were engaged in a harmless interaction between two human beings of diverse backgrounds and their behavior reminded me that small children are basically color blind. You see it all the time, especially on school playgrounds. Children, of all colors, playing side-by-side.

Then something happens as they grow older. They start distinguishing between the races and those ugly stereotypes become a part of their memory banks, getting stored away only to re-surface when an event comes along that reinforces them.

These reinforcements serve as "proof" that members of other races — we tend to overlook them within our own — possess certain unflattering characteristics. When they are spotted, we become convinced they represent the norm rather than the exception.

It is especially true when there is a heavy population of that particular minority group.

I'll give you an example.

My hometown is a small farming community near the Texas Panhandle. Farming is to it what oil is to Midland. Everything. There is a large percentage of Hispanics there, and, originally, they worked almost exclusively in the fields, doing manual labor no one else wanted. But as more Hispanics moved in and fewer jobs became available, many moved to other occupations.

Common sense tells you why. They had to eat. But in the process they were seen as a threat by many whites, especially those who had the jobs the Hispanics were now looking for.

As a result, the white townspeople began to focus on those "unflattering characteristics" of Hispanics and blatant racism against them became increasingly common.

By contrast, the town had a relatively small black community. Most of them lived in an isolated part of town — across the tracks — and they were not nearly as visible as the Hispanics. They were not viewed as threats. There were prejudices against them, of course, but it never seemed as vicious as it was against Hispanics.

Carrying the theory one step further, there were practically no Jews in my hometown. If they existed, I didn't know about it. My only contact with the Jewish community was through Woody Allen movies and so, understandably, I thought they were all skinny and funny.

It was not until I entered college that I heard my first Jewish joke. It was told by my roommate, who was from New York. His hometown had — you guessed it — a heavy Jewish population.

What does this all mean?

Nothing, really, except that racism is a part of our lives and, unfortunately, always will be.

Indeed, best I can tell, there are only two ways to avoid it. They are:

1) Live in a small South Dakota town where everyone is related, or;

2) Hang out with little children.

DEATHS

Irvin Wiley Dodd

Services for Irvin Wiley Dodd, 79, of Midland will be at 3 p.m. Monday at Ellis Funeral Home chapel with Al Jolly of the Westside Church of Christ officiating. Burial will be in Resthaven Memorial Park.

Dodd died Saturday in a Lubbock hospital after a lengthy illness.

He was born Oct. 8, 1905, in El Campo. He was married May 22, 1926, to Allena Maud Fugate, in Okmulgee, Okla. He moved to Midland in 1950 and later moved to Lubbock in 1978. He was production superintendent for Ashland Oil Co, retiring in 1970 after 25 years. He then worked for Seco Production Co. for five years. He was a Mason and a Shriner.

Survivors include his wife; two sons, Jimmy Wiley Dodd of Chico and Dennis Irvin Dodd of Lubbock; three daughters, Freida Louise Frankina of Westlake Village, Calif., Helen LaRue Mason of Midland and Joyce Carol Martin of Rockdale; four sisters, Nettie Jung, Pearl Dodd, Estelle Dodd and Jimmy Jean Dodd; eight grandchildren and two great-grandchildren.

Ejinio Bustamante

PECOS — Ejinio Bustamante, 82, of Pecos, father of two Midlanders, died in a Pecos hospital Friday following an illness.

Services will be at 2 p.m. Monday in the Barstow Catholic Church. Burial will be in Barstow Cemetery, directed by Pecos Funeral Home.

Bustamante was born Sept. 10, 1903, in Mexico, and had been a resident of the Pecos and Barstow areas most of his life.

He was a retired farmer and rancher and was a member of the Catholic church.

Survivors include his wife, Santos; four sons, Gregorio Bustamante of Big Spring, Reyes Bustamante of Eunice, N.M., and Ramon Bustamante and Rafael Bustamante, both of Midland; a daughter, Lupe Vasquez of San Antonio; 40 grandchildren and 72 great-grandchildren.

Santos Franco

Santos Franco, 68, of Midland, died Thursday at a local hospital after a lengthy illness.

Rosary will be recited at 7:30 p.m. today by Jesse Guajardo in Thomas Funeral Home. Services will be at 10 a.m. Monday in Our Lady of Guadalupe Catholic Church with the Rev. James R. Foelker, O.M.I., officiating. Burial will be in Fairview Cemetery.

Pallbearers will be Jerry Rodriquez, David Arenivas, Julio Guerrero, Tommy Gonzales Jr., Jessie Villa and Mike Franco.

Franco was born Aug. 13, 1917, in Carlsbad, N.M. He had been a Midland resident the past 50 years.

Survivors include his wife, Consuelo; six sons, Santos Franco Jr., Francisco Franco, Elejio Franco, Ismael Frano Freddie Franco and Cicel Franco, all of Midland; four daughters, Maria Elena Gonzales, Sheila Valdez, Elva Mata and Yolanda Villa, all of Midland; a brother, Thomas Franco of Balmorhea; five sisters, Emelia Lopez of California, Celia Cantu of Big Spring, Lenore Lerma of Merkel, Otelia Munoz of Midland and Juana Barrera of Pecos; 44 grandchildren and 14 great-grandchildren.

Nancy Trauber Cryer

Nancy Rebecca Trauber Cryer, 52, of Mount Vernon and formerly of Midland, died Sept. 10 at Mount Vernon.

Services were Sept. 12 at Mount Vernon with burial in a Mount Vernon cemetery.

She was born Aug. 9, 1933, in Midland and was raised here. She was a graduate of Midland High School and received a degree from the University of Missouri in Springfield. She was married in 1951 in Midland.

Survivors include her husband, John; four children, Jan of California, John of Colorado, Mark of Springfield, Mo., and Julie of the home; her mother, Vivian Lackey of Midland; and a brother, Charles Trauber of Midland.

F.R. 'Ron' York

Pallbearers for F.R. "Ron" York of Midland were Emile Farha, Bill Heath, John Crawford, Jim Murphy, Phil Whitsett, Joe France, Ben Gould and Douglas Elich.

Honorary pallbearers were Leroy Minni, Gene Monroe, Ed Darnell, Spencer Blocker, David Stephens, Brooks Robertson, Dan Burton, Bobby Kyle, Frank McCabe, Bill Robbins, Dr. Robert Johnston, Bill Johnson and G.W. Green.

He died Thursday morning and services were Saturday.

ARTHRITIS

Still, she maintains a positive attitude.

"I'm a real 'up' person," said Ms. Jones. "I do have hope. Currently I'm taking oral gold and have another six weeks of treatment to see if it will help. I've been through everything that's legally available. The only thing that's left is chemotherapy drugs, but I'm not too excited about that."

The constant use of new drugs has taken its toll.

"I can't have children," she said. "Fortunately, we didn't choose to have a family anyway."

The six-year ordeal has left Ms. Jones with a great respect for physical therapy and an enduring hatred of quackery.

"I go for short bike rides and take short walks and try to force myself to get some exercise because they say that it helps."

Also beneficial is hydrotherapy (doing exercises in warm water), swimming and using special equipment such as splints for exercising and custom-designed shoes for walking.

AT HER YOUNG age, Ms. Jones owns a cane, but rarely uses it because of the pain in her wrists.

Despite the problems that arthritis has caused in her life, she urges other arthitis patients not to give up or resort to paying money for quack cures.

"My number one complaint is quackery," she said. "People with arthritis should stay away from all that and go see a rheumatologist and contact the Arthritis Foundation. They can provide general knowledge about the disease and help ease their minds — especially over financial worries."

Ms. Jones suffers from only one form of the malady — rheumatoid arthritis, which according to the Arthritis Foundation, affects about 1 percent of the population. This form can begin at any age, stated a report from the group, but typically occurs between ages 20 and 55.

Khandelwal believes the number could be even higher.

"Rheumatoid arthritis affects between 2 and 3 percent of the general population," he said. Khandelwal estimated that he is seeing around 100 patients in their 20's, 30's and 40's who have the disease.

Another form of arthritis — osteoarthritis — affects mostly older people and is attributed to wear and tear in the joints, while rheumatoid arthritis is believed to be caused by a defect in the body's own immune system, indicated the foundation's report. "Scientists believe that heredity makes people susceptible to rheumatoid arthritis," it added.

While no known cures have been discovered, Khandelwal stated that several drugs are effective in combatting the disease.

"At first, we use simple anti-inflammation medications," he said. "There are about 10 or 12 kinds available (aspirin among them)." The drugs help reduce the redness and swelling which produces the joint pain.

"If, after three or four months, they are not responding and they have not gone into a spontaneous or 'God-given' remission, we start a second line of drug treatment."

KHANDELWAL, TOO, warned against quackery, saying that when arthritis goes into remission by itself, people often associate it with a "cure" they are using at the time — such as the infamous copper bracelet often associated with quacks.

"The second line of drugs are not anti-inflammation drugs," he said. "They are slow-action remittive drugs that can often induce remission."

Among this category are anti-malarial drugs such as methotrexate, penicillamine and Imuran as well as injectable gold treatments and a newer form — oral gold.

"Injectable gold has been used for the past 35 to 40 years, but oral gold was just released in June," said Khandelwal. "It's still too early to tell how well it works, but it is similar to injectable gold."

Arthritis among children, while rare, still affects one out of every 1,000 American children, but fortunately the disease often disappears as the child matures, stated the foundation's report.

"There are much fewer incidences among children," said Judy McGookey, a physical therapist with the Permian Basin Rehabilitation Center. "However, I know of one 14-year-old boy in Odessa who has it and another 11-year-old who has arthritis in the jaw joints and can barely open his mouth."

McGookey stated that often children who have had a sports injury will show signs of arthritis. She recommends such children exercise in hot water to gain "full range of motion" in the affected joints.

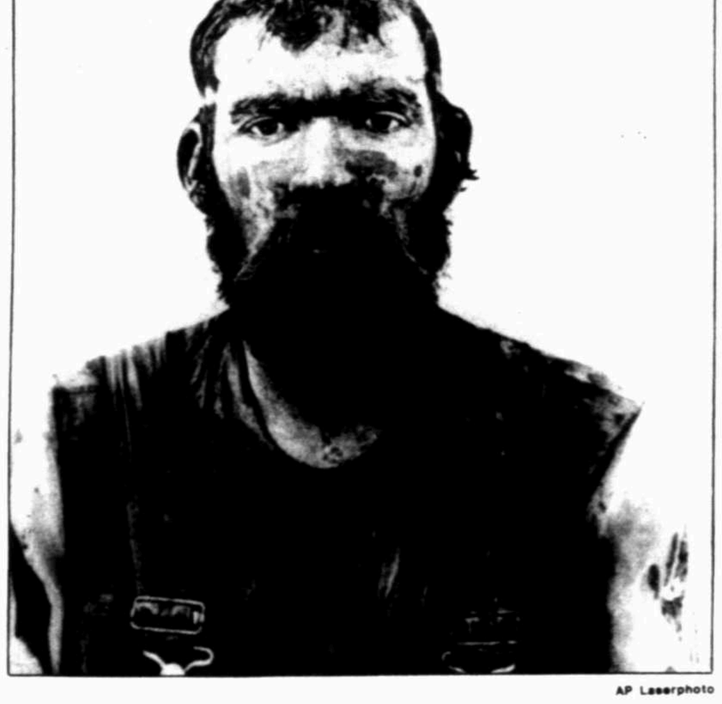

"We have a pool in the Odessa center that can be be set at up to 103 degrees," said Ms. McGookey. "All the arthritics love it because they can get in it from their head to their toe."

Arthritis, meaning literally "inflammed joints," strikes more than one million people per year, according to the Arthritis Foundation and involves more than 100 related rheumatic diseases.

The foundation estimates that more than $5 billion is spent annually on medical care for the disease with more than $1 billion spent on quackery and unproven remedies.

"In the workplace, arthritis is responsible for the annual loss of 26.6 million work days, $4.8 billion in wages and $1 billion in income taxes," said the report. "Overall, arthritis costs the American economy more than $14 billion annually."

Avedon brings faces to Fort Worth

AP Laserphoto

One of the faces from a Richard Avedon display at Fort Worth's Amon Carter Museum is that of "Red Owens, oil field worker."

By DOUG CRICHTON
Associated Press Writer

FORT WORTH (AP) — The eyes stare, almost glare, from faces that seem brutalized by the Western landscape that Richard Avedon doesn't let us see.

The faces are varied, gleaned from the master photographer's years of wanderings throughout the American West, but the backdrop is always the same — a sheet of paper that bleaches the background to a stark whiteness.

Avedon says he wants nothing to distract the viewers' eye from the sometimes pathetic but always fascinating people whose images he captured in the Amon Carter Museum-commissioned photographic project that premiers here today before beginning a nationwide tour in November.

"In The American West: Photographs by Richard Avedon" required 5½ years and 752 people to complete and took Avedon to truck stops, rodeos, ranches, mines and stockyards from Texas to the Rocky Mountain and Great Plains states.

And even before the exhibit opens, its has garned so much attention that Amon Carter officials abandoned plans to take reservations for an Avedon lecture this morning, says spokesman Irvin Lippman.

"After getting hundreds of phone calls, we realized the demand was going to be too great," he said.

Avedon, who once photographed for magazines such as Harper's Bazaar and Vogue, began his sweeping journey in 1979 at the urging of Mitchell Wilder, the museum's late founding director, who wanted to enlarge on the theme of the western explorer-photographer.

But unlike his predecessors, who specialized in the vast Western landscapes, Avedon chose to focus on the people whose faces radiate the West's power — its wind, sun and heat.

"The pictures show people who have been brutalized by a land almost too powerful to live on," writes novelist Larry McMurtry. "The land may be shown only by implication, but the implication is that it's cruel and the struggle for survival on it still intense."

Avedon began his odyssey at a Sweetwater, Texas, rattlesnake roundup, where he made an unforgettable portrait of a 13-year-old rattlesnake skinner. The blond-haired boy grips a gutted rattler, its entrails gooing his spattered apron, as he looks almost defiantly into Avedon's camera lens.

Perhaps inspired by that experience, it was Avedon who later photographed Nastassja Kinski draped in a snake.

"I stand next to the camera, not behind it, several inches to the left to the lens and about four feet from the subject," Avedon says.

BOOK

His book, on the other hand, stresses review. Students are given the chance to practice every night, for months at a time, everything they learn in class, he says.

The result, Ms. Rula says, "is fantastic. Our test scores have gone up and retention from summer to fall is much better."

The 61-year-old graduate of West Point began his crusade to change the way schools teach math in 1971.

A retired Air Force test pilot and flight instructor, he also taught electrical engineering at the U.S. Air Force Academy and picked up three engineering degrees along the way.

After he retired in 1970, Saxon became an algebra teacher at Oscar Rose Junior College near Oklahoma City, Okla. But at the end of his first semester, only 10 percent of his students passed the final exam.

The problem, he says, was the conventional textbook he used.

"Math is not difficult," Saxon reasoned. "It's just different, and time is required for things that are different to become familiar. If a student who is tone deaf goes to a piano teacher for three years, he will acquire some piano playing ability."

However, "some students who go through three years of math, come out with little or no mathematics skills at all," he says.

Then one day Saxon conducted an experiment. Working without a textbook, he says he developed lesson plans that stressed review. The book followed six months later

But months of snubs and setbacks from publishers of high school texts who refused to publish his teaching methods haunted Saxon. So he decided to publish the book on his own. He founded Grassdale Publishers, spent $80,000 — enough to fund a first printing of 10,000 and set out to persuade Oklahoma schools to test his methods.

The results certified by the Oklahoma Federation of Teachers "were phenomenal. Saxon's students outscored the others at least two to one," Reader's Digest reported.

It went on to say that "Saxon's book today is required at such prestigious private schools as Kent School in Connecticut, Deerfield Academy in Massachusetts and Georgetown Day School in Washington, D.C."

In 1981, Saxon reported he sold only 3,000 copies of the book. Last year, he says he sold more than 100,000 copies.

Still, other states refuse to accept the text.

In Texas, "not only did they vote against the book, they voted against it overwhelmingly," Saxon says.

He claims Texas denied the adoption of the book because "I attacked the conventional math establishment and Texas likes to play the establishment game."

Saxon asserts, "Ironically, Texas has never been outstanding in any area of academic achievement except at the college level."

Lawyer says state liable in nursing home death

HOUSTON (AP) — An attorney representing the family of a Houston woman who died with maggot-infested bedsores at a local nursing home, argued the state could be held liable since it failed to properly regulate the facility.

In a pretrial hearing Friday, State District Judge Geraldine Tennant said she would consider several issues, including whether the state is immune from being sued over death of Jeannie Jones.

The 54-year-old quadriplegic was admitted to Blalock Nursing Home-North in Houston in February 1982. Two months later, she was hospitalized and died of kidney failure on April 12, 1982.

But her daughters, Beatrice Carpenter and Elteasa Ward, did not file a lawsuit against Blalock, now known as Northway Healthcare Center until last January.

Attorneys for the nursing home, corporate owner ARA Health Facilities Inc., the Texas Department of Health, doctors and the nurses listed as defendants claim the statue of limitations has long since run out.

Assistant Attorney General John Minor also argued that the court lacked jurisdiction, saying the state should not be prosecuted because of sovereign immunity.

But Ed McAninch, the family's attorney, said, "The Texas Department of Health knew of Blalock-North's violations and allowed the atrocious conditions and did nothing but apply a slap to the wrists of administrations, nursing staff and employees."

He said his clients waited so long to file the suit because Blalock "fraudulently concealed" that the bedsores were maggot-filled and were a factor in the cause of their mother's death.

James L. Moore, attorney representing the nursing home, said the family knew about the bedsores but did not file a lawsuit at the time of Ms. Jones' death.

Police benefit tickets go on sale

From Staff Reports

Tickets for the Nov. 12 Midland Police Officers Association benefit go on sale Monday, Lt. Gale Reeves, the Midland Police Officers Assocation and the Midland Police Department announced Friday.

The show will feature Wally Fowler and his Country Music Holiday Show with the Country Time Jamboree, Queen of Gospel Music Jeanette Lunsford, and Sheriff Bill Burrows. Also, a special guest will be announced later. Show times are at 6:30 and 8:45 p.m. at the Civic Center Auditorium.

Business professionals and individuals are urged to purchase tickets

Singing Nelsons to give concert

The Singing Nelsons will be presenting a concert at 7 p.m. today at Calvary Assembly of God Church, 908 S. Johnson.

Tommy Nelson started singing at a young age and traveled as a song evangelist before he married Dorothy. He served as minister of music 11 years. They both appeared on television eight years.

They have three teen-age daughters. The oldest, JaNa, has composed music since she was 10. She plays the piano, electronic keyboard and all percussion instruments. Cheryl plays the clarinet and Rae Jean plays the flute.

The Rev. Gayle Reeves, pastor, said the public is invited to this concert.

Another Delta crash victim dies

DALLAS (AP) — The crash of a Delta Air Lines jumbo jet last month has claimed its 136th victim, a 23-year-old Miami man who was burned over 80 percent of his body.

Gregg LaPedus died Friday afternoon after contracting pneumonia, said officals at Parkland Memorial Hospital.

He has been in the intensive care burn unit at Parkland since the crash of Delta Flight 191, which went down at Dallas-Fort Worth International Airport during a thunderstorm on Aug. 2.

TAXES

In 99 percent of the cases mortgage companies pay property taxes, but Wilkinson said those people who have paid off their homes should receive tax statements by Oct. 1.

The Midland County Tax Assessing Office, 707 W. Washington Ave., gives discounts to those who pay their taxes early, Ms. Shuffield said.

A 3 percent discount is given on taxes paid by Oct. 31, a 2 percent discount for taxes paid by Nov. 31 and a 1 percent for taxes paid by Dec. 31.

The county charges penalties and interest on taxes not paid by Feb. 1.

The Midland Central Appraisal District, Dellwood Mall, Suite 160, does not give discounts for early tax payment. But it does allow property owners to pay half of their taxes before Dec. 1 and the other half by July 1. On July 1 penalties and interest will be charged to the homeowner who has not paid the second half.

A full payment of taxes is due to the appraisal district by Feb. 1, Wilkinson said.

To figure your property taxes move the decimal place two points to the left on the tax rate and then multiply that figure by the assessed property value. For county taxes, property assessed at $10,000 would be multiplied by .1996 with a final tax of $19.96.

RETREAT

"It allows the council and staff to be in a different kind of atmosphere, more free-wheeling," said Davidson. "Everyone says what they think. The staff leaves with a better understanding of the pressures and challenges we face as elected people."

Davidson said another advantage is that the council can agree as a whole as to what the goals will be, rather than having the council going in seven different directions. "We come back a more effective, cohesive group," he said.

League seeking new members

Midland's League of Women Voters will hold its annual membership coffee at 7:30 p.m. Thursday at the home of Cookie Wetendorf, 2010 Harvard.

Guest speaker will be John Deats, head librarian at Midland County Library. League members will hear recommendations of the Library Advisory Board regarding library expansion and improvements. Members will be asked if they want to support these recommendations.

The League is a non-partisan organization open to all citizens of voting age. The League works to promote political responsibility through active and informed participation of citizens in government. The League may endorse or oppose issues but not political candidates.

LETTER FROM COLLEGE

Wednesday last day to enroll for fall credit work

By H.A. TUCK

Wednesday is the absolute final day for registrtion for a person to sign up for fall semester credit courses. At this late date, three classes is the maximum number a person could attempt.

Hours for late registration are 8 a.m.-6 p.m. Monday through Wednesday in the Office of Student Services, Administration Building.

Until late registration is concluded, we're not sure exactly how this year's registration count will compare with last fall's record...but it should be fairly close.

College president Dr. Jess Parrish had a birthday earlier this month and one of his administrators invited him out for lunch that day.

It turned into a delightful affair for the president but a source of embarrassment for the administrator. Seems the host was counting on using a credit card to pay for the meal, but the restaurant wasn't accepting credit cards. So, the president had to dig in his pocket for the cash to pay for his own meal...as well as that of his would-be host!

Congratulations to Quinn Carroll, who has been elected president of the Permian Basin Society of Radiologic Technologists. Quinn came to Midland this summer to head the college's new Radiology Department.

Plaudits also are due Dr. Michael Jordan, coordinator of vocal music, who has been nominated for inclusion in the 1985 edition of Who's Who in American Music. Jordan teaches studio voice and conducts the college chorale. He received his doctorate from the University of Michigan and has appeared at Kennedy Center. He's also performed with such notable operatic stars as Joan Sutherland, Brigit Nilsson and Louis Quilico.

By the way, if you enjoy singing then you should sign up for Jordan's chorale program. He's always interested in finding more people who enjoy singing and the deadline's Wednesday.

Chaparral golfers get their first conference action Friday in the South Plains College-hosted tournament in Levelland. The Chaps finished second in an invitational at Hobbs in their only pre-conference action.

One of the dramatic stories was in that tourney was sophomore Leon Van Rensburg, who was rushed to the hospital on a Wednesday morning after collapsing during a class. But it was nothing serious and Van Rensburg led the Chaps through the 54-hole event in Hobbs. Of course, he gave a bad moment to the coach who saw Leon stretched out on the course during the first round. But it wasn't a medical problem. The South African had holed a tough birdie putt and was expressing his delight!

MC is hosting all the conference golf teams on Oct. 4 at Greentree Country Club. That is the second of six tournaments which comprise the conference circuit.

The exhibition of photographs by Todd Walker of Arizona continues to draw excellent comments. A recently-retired professor of photography form the University of Arizona, Walker's works are delicate pastel photolithographs.

Displayed in the McCormick Gallery, Allison Fine Arts Building, the show may be viewed Sunday from 1-5 p.m., Monday throgh Thursday from 8 a.m.-10 p.m., Friday from 8 a.m.-5 p.m. and Saturday from 10 a.m.-5 p.m. This exhibition remains at the gallery through Sept. 27.

Probably brcause the cost of attending even state universitites has gone up this year, I've been visiting with more parents and high school students about MC for the first two years of college.

Many of them weren't aware of MC's "early admission program," which allows a high school senior to take college courses while still in high school. It works like this: As soon as a student has completed his or her junior year in high school, that student is eligible to enroll for credit courses at MC. The credits are held in escrow until the student has graduated from high school.

By attending college the summer after the junior year, the fall and spring semesters and the summer after the senior year...that student could enroll in the fall semester of college with about 16-20 hours of credit. That's about one very full semster.

To qualify for the Early Admission Program, the student must have approval from parents, high school counselor, and the college admissions ofice.

For more information about Early Admission, you should contact the Midland College Student Services Office in the Administration Building.

MC is hosting a one-day Texas State Library Workshop Wednesday in the new Health Science Building lecture hall. Topic is "Library Software for Microcomputers: A Closer Look."

It is not necessary to pre-register. Persons wishing to attend the day-long event may register at 8:30 a.m.

Dr. Weldon Horton, director of the Murray Fasken Learning Resource Center, is local host for the meeting.

We've been having some telephone problems on the campus, so please be patient if you call and don't get an answer.

Seems we have a couple of dead trunks (whatever those are) which cause some incoming calls not to be completed. The caller can hear a ringing, but the call isn't getting as far as the switchboard. The operator isn't hearing those calls.

If ir seems the campus is closed when it shouldn't be when you call, please hang up and dial our number (684-7851) again.

The college switchboard is open from 8 a.m.-9:45 p.m. Monday through Thursday and 8 a.m.-5 p.m. on Friday.

H.A. Tuck is public relations director for Midland College.

Newspapers care

Celebration of National Newspaper Week and the 100 years of existence of the National Newspaper Association comes at a time when newspapers — and the media in general — are being viewed under a magnifying glass of public scrutiny.

That is acceptable practice because it is the same litmus test the media performs on public officials and all those who fall into the glare of the public spotlight. It's a rigorous test, this question of credibility and professional accountability. Newspapers must face that test not only during the confines of National Newspaper Week, which begins today and runs through Sept. 21, but on every day of every year.

Because of their weighty responsibility, news organizations cannot fall into the deathtrap of marching to one set of standards while holding the rest of the public accountable to another. No, journalists are cast into the position of being judged by the same standards as those who daily fill the news columns. In most instances they are, appropriately, judged not by the same exacting guidelines as those in the news but by even more rigid standards.

That's a difficult standard of conduct to meet, but it's necessary in order to retain the trust of the public. More than any other commodity, that's what a newspaper strives to develop: Credibility among the reading public.

Credibility doesn't come to a newspaper easily or quickly, although it may be lost in just that manner. It must be built day after day, story after story, editorial after editorial until, eventually, the public grasps the notion that not only does the newspaper report the news evenly and fairly, without regard to vested interests, but it does so consistently and in the community's best interests.

A newspaper has to care about the community. That caring can be seen in the stories on local people and events, in the features about the unusual people and happenings in town, the crime, the trials, the public records. It can be seen in the coverage on local sports teams, their wins, losses, their achievements and disappointments. In the weddings, the engagements and obituaries, the vital life of a community of people is chronicled for time immemorial. And in the editorials and columns, the people who make the newspaper a living institution reflect a little of the heart and soul of the community — its dreams, aspirations, pretensions and hilarity.

How can a newspaper's credibility, its caring, its believability be measured? Well, forums offered the public by the Reporter-Telegram give a clue. Forums such as letters to the editor, Speaking Out, and Action Line give readers an opportunity to have their voices heard throughout the community. In recent years, the Reporter-Telegram initiated new features designed to make the newspaper even more responsive. Each week now, questionnaires are sent to those in the news soliciting their comments about the fairness and accuracy of the news stories in which their names appeared.

And when errors recur, it is our policy that corrections be published as soon as the error is brought to our attention.

In these and many other ways, the newspaper hopes to make your life fuller and more comprehensible. A newspaper is people — and the most important is the reader because without the reader, little else is worthwhile.

Another View:
GOP's trade coup

Donald Regan's announcement at a meeting with Republican congressional leaders that the president is willing to support some form of trade legislation establishes where the real debate on trade is going on: within the Republican Party.

The Democrats have advanced some get-tough-on-trade bills. But the Democrats are just making gestures. The Republicans could end up making policy.

Leading the opponents of trade restriction are enthusiastic supply-siders such as Jack Kemp.

Kemp comes from Buffalo, an old steel-mill town that was one of the few metro areas to support tough-on-trade Walter Mondale. But Kemp believes the economy will bloom if you just strip away government restrictions and penalties, such as taxes and tight-money policies and trade barriers.

Protectionism may help establish industries in the short term, but free trade helps existing and potential industries in the long term. Practically every economist shares this view.

But for the moment Kemp and those who agree — and they have long seemed to include the president — are on the defensive.

Congressmen returning from recess have been hearing plenty from constituents who are convinced current trade rules are hurting them: businessmen fearful of foreign competition, workers concerned about losing jobs, local politicians concerned about established industries.

The congressmen have heard as well, personally and through their political consultants, about what trade can do in 1986 for the Democrats: it gives them for the first time in years an issue on which their posture is aggressive and nationalistic, and on which they have a chance to recoup the vast number of white male votes they've lost over the years.

So it's not a coincidence that the most articulate Republican proponent of trade restriction is the political analyst Kevin Phillips. He and others, including a number of Republican politicians, see the supply-siders as too theoretical and ignorant of the way the world works, economically and politically.

They believe Joe Sixpack is demanding tough action, and they want the Republican Party to deliver at least some tough rhetoric, as it has on foreign policy, crime and racial quotas.

It was to them that Regan was responding Tuesday, to them that Majority Leader Bob Dole was responding when he said that the Senate may well pass trade restrictions, and to them that President Reagan will be responding if and when he advances the kind of trade initiative Regan promised.

That would be too bad. This is one issue on which Reagan's tendency to stick to a course despite the complaints and dire predictions of others has generally served the nation well.

TODAY IN HISTORY

Today's highlight in history:

On Sept. 15, 1776, British forces occupied New York City during the American Revolution.

On this date:

In 1789, the U.S. Department of Foreign Affairs was renamed the Department of State.

In 1821, independence was proclaimed for Costa Rica, Guatemala, Honduras, Nicaragua and El Salvador.

In 1857, William Howard Taft — who would serve as president of the United States and as chief justice of the Supreme Court — was born in Cincinnati.

In 1935, the Nuremberg Laws deprived German Jews of their citizenship and made the swastika the official symbol of Nazi Germany.

In 1940, during the Battle of Britain in World War II, the tide turned as Royal Air Force planes inflicted heavy losses on the Luftwaffe.

Thought for today: "I never think of the future. It comes soon enough." — Albert Einstein (1889-1955).

THE REAL LINK BETWEEN EDUCATION AND RELIGION...

JACK ANDERSON
Experts disagree on outlook

WASHINGTON — As practitioners of the "dismal science," economists disagree with each other vociferously and eternally. Sometimes it seems as if they take some kind of Hippocratic oath to disagree whenever possible.

Jack Anderson

Yet rarely have we encountered such emphatic disagreement among the members of the distinguished fraternity as they are now expressing on the future of the American economy. Their forecasts run from gold-plated prosperity to hair-curling recession.

We've studied government reports and picked the brains of leading economists, trying to synthesize answers to the questions that, to judge by our mail, are bothering or baffling most Americans these days. Here are the results:

Q. Is the economy heading up or down?

A. Barring some unforeseeable calamity, there should be a modest rebound before Christmas. Over the longer range, however, the outlook is gloomy: A recession is likely in 1986. The moderate economic expansion in the next few months won't be enough to keep unemployment from increasing.

Q. What about interest rates?

A. Look for only minor fluctuations. Generally, the cost of money will stay about where it is. The chief determining factor is the Federal Reserve Board, whose chairman, Paul Volcker, is playing the money supply like a Stradivarius, hoping to stimulate the economy enough to avoid a recession, but not enough to cause inflation.

As one internal government study, seen by our associate Mike Binstein, put it: "Presently, the chief policy risk appears to be a future tightening by the Fed in reaction to several successive months of fast money growth. However, a slower-than-expected gross national product growth rate in the coming months would reduce the demand for funds, and perhaps prompt further easing by the Fed."

Q. Has President Reagan stopped worrying about the huge budget deficit?

A. He's just stopped talking about it, that's all. The deficit is still there, bigger than ever, and something will have to be done about it.

Even while the president was campaigning last year on a promise not to raise taxes, his claim that the country could "grow" its way out of the deficit was greeted with skepticism. This skepticism has grown since then, as it became clear that the administration's rosy forecasts were cockeyed. The White House originally projected a real economic growth of 3.9 percent this year and 4 percent in 1986. Now it seems certain that growth won't even reach 3 percent this year, and may be even less next year. This means billions less in tax revenues and, thus, an even bigger deficit.

Q. Is there any way the deficit can be made manageable?

A. There is, but only the president and Peter Grace seem to realize it. Reagan argues — correctly, we believe — that the budget can be brought under control if Congress will just force the government to stop wasting billions of dollars every year on poorly administered programs. Grace has identified the areas where cuts can and should be made, but Congress has shown no inclination to follow the recommendations. The savings announced with much fanfare after the congressional budget compromise are overrated to the point of fantasy. Congress must screw up its courage and make the tough decisions necessary to reduce the deficit (but don't hold your breath).

Q. What will become of the president's tax "reforms?"

A. White House chief of staff Donald Regan has made a personal push on Capitol Hill to get tax reforms passed before Christmas. His argument is that Americans need to know what their new taxes will be so they can plan their finances at the outset of the new year.

Q. Who will benefit the most from the president's tax plan?

A. The biggest beneficiaries would be the poor, whose taxes would be reduced 17 percent. But the rich (those with incomes over $200,000) would save 10 percent, 3 percent more than the middle-class. This is impossible to defend politically; already the White House has signaled that it will withdraw its proposal to cut the capital gains tax.

Q. Has the banking industry weathered its crisis?

A. It's ironic in a way, but the bankers' survival may depend on how big a break the rest of us get on our oil and gasoline costs. If the price of oil stabilizes, overextended banks in the Southwest will get back the energy loans they made in expectation of rising oil prices. But nobody we know thinks the price of oil is going anywhere but down — and this could leave the banks stuck, with serious ripple effects elsewhere in the country.

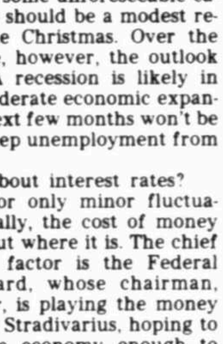

The same holds true on the international scene, where many loans were based on illusory oil-price increases. The big banks could take a terrible beating if oil prices continue to skid.

GEORGE F. WILL
'Porn Rock's' blushing factor

WASHINGTON — Here is a question that might cause you to blush: What causes you to blush?

When considering the campaign against "porn rock" — vulgar and obscene lyrics in rock music — consider that question, and this one: Would you want to live in a world in which no one, not even the young, blushed?

George F. Will

Various parents' groups are putting wholesome pressure on recording companies, radio station and the makers of rock videos to exercise discretion and self-restraint. Approximately one-third of the nation's radio stations have rock formats, and many are behaving responsibly. But the sort of people who profit from aggressively marketing porn rock have the morals of the marketplace, and the marketplace is the place to get their attention. In addition, putting labels on records with vulgar lyrics is going to help parents exercise supervision.

Rock music has become a plague of messages about sexual promiscuity, bisexuality, incest, sado-masochism, satanism, drug use, alcohol abuse and, constantly, misogyny. The lyrics regarding these things are celebratory, encouraging or at least desensitizing. By making these subjects the common currency of popular entertainment, the lyrics drain the subjects of their power to shock — their power to make people blush. The concern is less that children will emulate the frenzied behavior described in porn rock than that they will succumb to the lassitude of the demoralized — literally, the demoralized.

As people become older they become less given to blushing. This is, in part, because they lose that sweet softness of youthful character that is called innocence and makes one's sensibilities subject to shock. People blush for various reasons. Sometimes it is because we suddenly have embarrassing attention called to ourselves. Sometimes we blush when utterly alone, when we think of something about ourselves that is shaming — such as the fact that almost nothing causes us to blush.

Often people blush because they are exposed to something that should be private or is shameful. This may be an endangered species of blushing, thanks to omnipresent vulgarities like porn rock making even the vilest things somehow banal.

Walter Berns, the political philosopher, asks: What if, contrary to Freud and much conventional wisdom, shame is natural to man and shamelessness is acquired? If so, the acquisition of shamelessness through the shedding of "hang-ups" is an important political event. There is a connection between self-restraint and shame. An individual incapable of shame and embarrassment is probably incapable of the governance of the self. A public incapable of shame and embarrassment about public vulgarity is unsuited to self-government.

There is an upward ratchet effect in the coarsening of populations. Today's 12-year-olds can not enjoy — can hardly sit still for — the kind of 1950s Westerns that enthralled their fathers. Today's 12-year-olds are so addicted (that is not too strong a word) to the slam-bang nonstop roar of Steven Spielberg movies, their attention is not held by, say, John Wayne in "She Wore a Yellow Ribbon."

The social atmosphere is heavily dosed with sexuality, from the selling of blue jeans to the entertaining of prime-time television audiences. Thus it is perhaps reasonable to have feelings of fatalism. Perhaps societies, like rivers, run naturally downhill. Perhaps the coarsening of a public is irreversible, especially when the coarsening concerns a powerful and pleasurable appetite such as sex. But it is demonstrably not true that societies can not move away from coarseness toward delicacy of feeling.

In the first half of the 18th century, the dawn of the Age of Reason, a form of English merriment on Guy Fawkes nights was to burn an effigy of the Pope. The belly of the effigy was filled with cats whose howls of agony in the flames were supposed to represent the voice of the devil emanating from the Catholic Church.

That kind of cruelty to animals is, by today's standards, obscene. Sensibilities can change for the better. So fatalism is wrong and the porn rock fight is worth fighting.

Mass culture, and especially music, matters. Nothing is more striking to a young parent than the pull of popular culture on even 3- and 4-year-olds. And perhaps good music can make good values more adhesive to children.

People can reasonably argue about what is the second finest work of music — a Mozart concerto, a Beethoven symphony, this or that Bach tune. But everyone knows that the acme of the art of music is the currently popular song that says, "Put me in coach, I'm ready to play .... Look at me, I can be centerfield." The Republic has a fighting chance as long as the popularity of porn rock can be rivaled by the popularity of its moral opposite, baseball rock.

RUSSELL BAKER
Here come charges of 'elitism'!

NEW YORK — I am too disdainful of shoddy goods. The word for this condition is "elitist." It is a bad word which is meant to make the person to whom it is applied seem despicable. The air is filled with such words. Notice how rotten you feel when somebody calls you a "sexist," a "Yuppie"? You don't like feeling rotten, do you? So you stop saying "lady," you sell your BMW. Anything to avoid further assault, right?

Russell Baker

That's the way I am about "elitist," so when shoddy goods are being offered I am now very careful not to curl my lip. I sometimes even hear myself — hypocrite! — defending inferior stuff. Plastic, for instance.

Until a few years ago, it was obligatory to be scornful of plastic. No more. Now journals of advanced opinion, the sort that use words like "synthesis" and go on about neo-this and neo-that, speak disparagingly of people who speak disparagingly of plastic. Intellectually, plastic is in. I now speak well of it.

I have a typewriter that is mostly plastic and rubber bands. Between us, it is an infuriating piece of junk, but you won't catch me saying so, and if anybody else says so, I'm likely to reply, "So you're one of those tiresome elitists who are always putting the knock on plastic, eh?"

Not long ago I heard myself denouncing somebody for saying a television show called "Lifestyles of the Rich and Famous" was vulgar and trashy. Americans have always enjoyed vulgar trash, I said, and why not? What could be healthier than the whole darned country sitting by the TV set enjoying some good, innocent, healthy, vulgar trash?

Then, to put the boot into this critic of "Lifestyles of the Rich and Famous," I said, "People like you would rather see the whole country reading Virginia Woolf instead of having a little harmless entertainment."

This was a neat way of calling the poor devil an "elitist," as I knew too well, having had the trick pulled on me many years ago after telling a small audience that when it came to comic strips, "Rex Morgan, M.D." was not even in the same league with "Li'l Abner."

"Sure," some coarse Voice of the People replied, "and I suppose you think America would be a better country if everybody went to the Uffizi Gallery every Sunday instead of reading 'The Katzenjammer Kids.'"

This exchange occurred during the early Eisenhower Period, when there was a brief attempt by a few brave pioneers of conservatism to rehabilitate middle-class tastes. These had been so ridiculed over the last 30 years that millions of Americans actually did prefer the anarchistic "Li'l Abner" strip to solid, good, boring "Rex Morgan, M.D."

I don't know what prompted my recent defense of "Lifestyles of the Rich and Famous," because I have never seen it and probably never will. That's because I can't stand hearing about "lifestyles." Nobody with any self respect would permit his life to be "styled."

Local TV news performers have their hair "styled," and considering how fantastically overpaid they are, I suppose they've got no right to resist it. People who permit their lives to be "styled," though, strike me as being beneath contempt, and I don't want to look at them on television no matter how rich and famous they are.

Naturally, I would not say this aloud nowadays; it would sound too "elitist." Come to think of it, though, what is so salt-of-the-earth about having your life "styled"? If this were really the Age of Respect for the Common Man, instead of the Age of the Sales Scam, we would all nod with approval whenever somebody said, "God must love the common man because he made him so magnificently unstyled."

As with so many other aspects of modern life, the struggle to avoid charges of elitism is a reaction against recent history. For most of the century the terrible words that made people sound despicable were "middle class."

From the age of Harding to the dawn of Reaganism, it was a dreadful judgment to hear one say, "so middle class — you're so hopelessly middle class." The party thus denounced was made to feel despicable because of the implication that he hadn't the discrimination necessary to disdain shoddiness, avoid plastic and stay out of the clutches of quacks exploiting the gullible who believe that life, like a TV weatherman's hair, can be styled.

Those attitudes, of course, were "elitist." They were swell once, but they're out. "Middle class" is now where it's at.

BILL MODISETT

Going back to country gives you clearer view of life

Bill Modisett

I fall into the same rut a lot of journalists end up in day-after-day, year-after-year. The federal, state, and local governments seemingly occupy such a large part of the news in general that journalists come to assume that government action is all that matters in life.

It isn't. By a long shot, as my father would say.

If you want to understand what I'm talking about — and that isn't necessarily easy because of the overwhelming emphasis placed on government action by politicians, bureaucrats and the media — get away from the routine of everyday life in a city. Go out to the country and spend some time doing what your grandfather and great-grandfather did in years gone by. Live, in other words.

Don't listen to television or radio; don't read a newspaper or magazine. Think only in terms of what is necessary in order to exist from day-to-day. When you come back to civilization, as the world of modern conveniences and confusion is known, for a brief time you'll see the world clearly. That will be depressing because what you will see will be:

— The United States and the Soviet Union still inching toward confrontation. Eventually that confrontation is bound to come, despite what the liberals contend, because of the two nations' competing ambitions. One wants to free the world; the other to dominate it. You can't talk a tiger into changing his spots, so...

— The Middle East will still be embroiled in vicious and bloody border disputes. That's been the history of the region virtually since time began. You don't expect the hostilities to cease tomorrow, do you? I remember 20 years ago watching the Middle East fracas. The only thing that has changed since are the names of the players; the game's still the same.

— Politicians here in the United States will still be talking out of both sides of their mouths, lauding fiscal conservatism on the one hand and, at the same time, approving new record spending and raising taxes.

— Crime and disease will still exist, in varying amounts. Maybe there'll be a slight improvement here or a noticeable worsening there, but — overall — life's miseries will continue unabated.

What I'm saying is simply that a clear vision of the world will allow you to see life for what it is. And, no, not all in life is either bad or tragic; life merely continues.

So, once you see life as it truly is, what is to keep you from going out and jumping off the nearest tall building? The realization that regardless how high you climb on the ladder of influence in the world, the fact you'll really effect little in terms of meaningful change can be devastating.

Where you can bring about a realistic difference is where all real change actually begins — in the home and in your own community. That is where the groundswells of revolution that rock the world start and, ironically, end.

If cream started at the top, there'd be nowhere for it to rise. It has to start at the bottom of the churn. At least it did when churns were still in use, and I assume it still does.

Don't assume that to change the world for the better you start at the top. Start at the bottom, where meaningful change counts.

LETTERS

'Colored' visitors might view nation differently

Well, here we go again! Someone is waving the flag and raising the spectre of communism taking over our good friends in the Wonderful, Stunningly Beautiful, Economically stable South Africa.

The letter opposing South African sanctions sounded so familiar. I could almost smell the magnolia blossoms and feel the "cotton" settle down in my "sack" as the soft strains of Dixie played in the background. So, South Africa must dismantle apartheid carefully, or the country might fall into desolation. I read nothing of the desolation of the millions of black people who are forced to live under circumstances that are less than human.

I have heard that verse here in the United States in the '50s and '60s, except then the words to the song were "separate but equal," "integration a little at a time" or "sure, you can vote just as soon as you are educated enough to participate in the political system."

It is incomprehensible to me that anyone could still think it is better to live in an economically secure environment such as slavery and apartheid, than to struggle and, yes, even die for freedom. Certainly the writer must have forgotten the words of one of America's own revolutionary figures, Patrick Henry, who when feeling oppression said, "Give me liberty or give me death."

I would also challenge the validity of spending "two weeks" in a country and becoming a supporter of a system you don't live under. Might I suggest that if one chooses to learn about being a citizen of South Africa and living in a separate society, you might declare yourself to be "colored" and go live there for awhile under those circumstances. If one finds that impossible, find a Southern black who is at least 50 years old, and they will be glad to fill you in on the details of what it feels like to eat, sleep, ride and go to school in a society which is regulated by the color of one's skin.

I certainly hope that the writer of the letter is wrong when she expresses the view that "their society is not different from ours." I would certainly not like to believe that after everything this country has been through in the last two decades our society still clings to racial bias and prizes its economic resources over the human resources.

The song of South African apartheid can best be silenced by opposing the hateful system in any way possible, and if this includes economic sanctions, so be it!

Sausage, beer don't make it Germanfest

Sausage and beer alone does not make it a Germanfest. In the beginning the participants were from Fredericksburg with their German oompa band. Their food and wares gave it a distinctive flavor. This Septemberfest was at its best a glorified carnival. This area has so much colorful history of its own, why not use it for a theme instead of a watered-down version of a custom from abroad.

It was very disappointing not to see any local artists and their work. This is a community affair and it is most reasonable to assume to see local art displayed. I am not saying the artists who were there were not good. Indeed they were impressive, but let their work be shown in the "Museum of the Southwest" with the other "out of town" artists.

I understand the ruling to use out of town artists only has been made several years ago; well, this is 1985-86. Rules change and things do improve all the time. Let's get with it and make the next Septemberfest a Midlandfest with Midland people for Midland people to enjoy.

Planned Parenthood charade unmasked

For several years Planned Parenthood of the Permian Basin has been playing an amusing public relations game. The game is called "The Merry Masquerade (or Manipulating the Media and the Masses With Taxpayer Money)."

The current round began, as usual, with Planned Parenthood's play of a media ploy card (promotion of the Teen Esteem Machine drama troupe).

A group of citizens countered with a facts about Planned Parenthood card (Aug. 4 paid newspaper ad quoting Planned Parenthood literature).

When the morally offensive nature of the Planned Parenthood organization is exposed, our local Planned Parenthood hastens to distance itself from other Planned Parenthood affiliates, much as a social climber might disdain a scandalous relative.

So the next move was predictable; Planned Parenthood played a smokescreen card (Aug. 25 column by Planned Parenthood of the Permian Basin Director Dana Frazee). The card read, "We don't use part of that disreputable literature (never mind that we're quite proud to use the rest of it). And you've made a mistake! We're not like other Planned Parenthoods! Look how respectable we are!"

Then Ms. Frazee played into her opponents' hands when she suggested that they "~~check~~ the facts."

What does it mean that PPPB is a dues-paying affiliate of the Planned Parenthood Federation of America? Quoting from their Standards of Affiliation (isn't it ironic that Planned Parenthood's own literature unmasks them?):

"PPFA is an organization in which policy, goals, and standards of operation are established by the Membership, that is, the local Affiliates.

"Section 3. The (local) Board shall establish policy for the Affiliate, in conformity with Federation policy.

"Section 4. Each Affiliate shall conform to all policies adopted by the Membership (emphasis mine)."

By definition then, PPPB is philosophically united with the national organization and all its other affiliates. A review of their local activities confirms the connection, dispels the smokescreen, and the facts again rip Planned Parenthood's costume of respectability, baring their perverse nature.

Perhaps the hundreds of signers of that ad were not naive, as Ms. Frazee suggests, but rightfully wary of yet another "innocent" Planned Parenthood vehicle for spreading their do-your-own-thing morality.

I have seen the Teen Esteem Machine perform. Planned Parenthood would have us laugh at the clever skits and fail to notice that our principles and families are being undermined once again.

The public has begun to realize that Planned Parenthood is playing for keeps. It is a high-stakes game, for the moral fiber of our society is at risk — and the pawns are our children.

Performance was uplifting, insightful

After reading the letters to the editor and the full-page ad denouncing Planned Parenthood and the Esteem Machine, my curiosity was piqued so I attended an Esteem Machine performance. Evidently many other Midlanders felt likewise, for the auditorium was filled.

We saw an insightful, uplifting, and often deeply moving series of skits dealing with the turmoil and uncertainties which surround the teen years. I found absolutely nothing objectionable or morally degenerate in their content and can only wonder at the negative responses I had read earlier. Since the skits touch on many sensitive subjects about which teens find it difficult to initiate conversation, they could serve as a wonderful springboard for family discussion. I therefore strongly encourage parents to take their children to see them. When my little boys are teen-agers, I hope that they will have access to a thoughtful and positive presentation such as this.

My thanks and congratulations to Planned Parenthood, the young actors, and to Tricia Shelton for providing our community with a valuable new resource.

SPEAKING OUT

Midland schools benefit from good teachers, high standards

By GLENDA WALKER

Glenda Walker moved to Midland three years ago from Tennessee. She is employed by the FDIC. She is married and has two teen-aged children.

When we moved to Midland three years ago, my daughter entered eighth grade at Goddard Junior High, and my son was enrolled in fifth grade at Rusk Elementary. Between the two of our kids, my husband and I had invested 13 years in private education. Rusk and Goddard were our very first experiences with public schools.

That first week at Goddard was a disaster. My daughter cried every day, and, on one occasion, even refused to go to school. By the end of the week, she had become acquainted with the complete office staff, including the nurse with whom she spent an hour one day crying her heart out. We began to wonder if perhaps we had made a mistake moving from the comfortable setting of our small, private school in pastoral Tennessee with its 175 students to the desert of West Texas and its massive Goddard with over 1,200 students. Our daughter, who had always gotten along well with her teachers and classmates, was miserable. But the beginning of the second week of school brought fewer tears. My daughter got tough and so did her teachers. With the administering of a math achievement test and the talk of honors courses, we immediately sensed that the school system in Midland was academically sound.

The experience was the same at Rusk — good teachers and an emphasis on high academic standards. And with determination and hard work came an opportunity to participate in the GEM classes at Carver.

What had forced us into private education in the first place was a failure on the part of the public school system to offer quality academics and adequate protection for our children. Although all school systems are not the same, it was our misfortune to live in communities where the schools fell way short in obtaining both of these goals. Students often ran wild with little or no respect for their teachers and administrators. A friend, a secretary at one of the local high schools, had been instructed by her supervisor to remain in her office during the changing of classes for her "own protection." My sister had told me of how, in her hometown, it was necessary to have armed guards with rifles from a nearby military base monitoring the hallways for the safety of the students. The threat of violence to one's child is as displeasing to a parent as academic inadequacy. The balance between academics and discipline is important in order to create an atmosphere where learning is a pleasure, not a drudgery.

Moving to Midland was a Godsend. Not only was our family more comfortably situated financially, we were also blessed with wonderful public schools strictly maintained and controlled for the nurturing of our children.

And the move also gave our children a chance to grow. It placed them in the midst of an unfamiliar culture and a different language. New friends were made, and with those friends came an acceptance of others unlike ourselves.

Many have said it takes a tough, determined soul to make it in West Texas. That's true. The terrain, lack of moisture and constantly shifting economy of our area can cause even the strong of heart to lose faith. But one thing is for certain. Our outstanding schools can equip every child in Midland with a good education in his preparation to face the world.

As we start another school year, let me urge every parent in Midland to get behind their schools and their teachers. Stress the importance of a good education to your own children. Go to the ballgames, cheer for the home team, support the band, and know that we and our children are living in the greatest nation on the earth, and we should be very proud of our own Midland Independent School District.

Reagan wins tactical victory on South Africa sanctions

By WILLIAM RANDOLPH HEARST Jr.
Editor-in Chief, The Hearst Newspapers

Hearst

NEW YORK — The big news this week was the tactical victory won by President Reagan in the U.S. Senate for his executive order imposing economic sanctions on South Africa. It will allow the administration breathing space for the embargo to sink in and, hopefully, for the South African government to make needed reforms.

The victory for the president was important since only a few days earlier many Republicans predicted that he would be defeated had he not introduced his own program of sanctions.

There were other doomsayers who predicted that even if the president vetoed a congressional bill against South Africa he would have been confronted with the possibility of having his presidental veto overridden.

Critics in the Senate only had one more wan shot at trying their own package. But with the defeat — the second in less than a week — the outcome for its sponsors was a no-no and still the critics persist in trying to push their ideas ahead of the president's.

President Reagan, who sharply criticized apartheid in presenting his bill for sanctions, showed that he remains responsible for implementing and creating major foreign policy. This is an executive privilege which some of his critics sought slyly to remove from Mr. Reagan with their own South African program, largely fought on partisan politics.

VIRTUALLY ignored by the opponents has been the critical requirements of the U.S. for essential minerals like chromium and cobalt. The Pentagon has a large stockpile of these minerals and has been working without public fanfare on substitutes should any cataclysm occur in South Africa.

Despite the president's tough declaration assailing apartheid, Democratic congressional critics maintain he didn't take stern action, namely, a time limit by their standards to impose even more stringent anti-South African measures. President Pieter W. Botha of South Africa was indignant. He assailed the president's executive order as "pressure," claiming this was no way to coerce a sovereign state into agreement.

In South Africa as well, Anglican Bishop Desmond Tutu lost his cool and attacked President Reagan as a "racist" which he certainly is not; given the Reagan record in aiding blacks and other minorites in this country as well as rushing assistance to famine-stricken regions throughout Africa.

In South Africa, black businessmen, including a banker, have agreed with President Reagan's application of sanctions. They are deeply concerned, though, about the plight of working blacks who will add to the growing unemployment rolls and thereby suffer even more severely than the white minority.

Interestingly, white South Africans received news of President Reagan's sanctions with good cheer and understanding. They are fearful of an internal explosion fomented by Soviet agents who operate in upheavals and await the aftermath of chaos by which to install their own surrogates. This, of course, is what occured in Cuba, Eastern Europe and parts of the Middle and Far East.

IN ANY CIVIL war there obviously can be no guarantees that the pro-left black organizations within South Africa will seize control. For one thing, there are flinty Afrikaners who have a long history of fighting against great odds. They are presently well-armed and equipped with the latest devices in modern warfare. The Cubans, who were ambushed and decimated last year by South African commandos can attest to that prowess.

Next, the situation arises in such a scenario of blacks against blacks. In this instance we must recall the warrior capabilities of the Zulu tribes. They fought the British units to a standstill less than a century ago and regard themselves today as the blacks who should ultimately be a governing force in Africa through evolutionary methods. Zulu tribes will not tolerate forced adherence to any alien ideologies such as those holding sway in Zimbabwe (formerly Rhodesia), Angola and Mozambique.

The Soviets, through Cuban legions, keep both the Angolian and Mozambique regimes barely ticking.

As for sanctions, South Africa has endured them in the past. The country has maintained its high level of technical excellence despite embargos because countries ready to apply sanctions rarely interfere with their own business concerns who sell needed materials to South African recipients. Moreover, South Africa also used its initiative to stockpile a large range of commodities and is in sounder shape for that inventive ability.

President Reagan also is buying time for South Africa to enable its government to effect substantive reforms. The blue ribbon panel of personalities he will ask to oversee the progress of the sanctions is certain to include men and women in America of all races.

There is no question but that President Reagan managed a stunning victory from what only a short time ago appeared as a political tidal wave intended to engulf his administration.

He showed clearly that he is in charge.

MC's fall enrollment nears last year's record level

From Staff Reports

A late surge of students has pushed Midland College's fall semester enrollment to within 13 people of last year's count at the same period. There are three days remaining to register for as many as three credit courses.

Late registration is conducted in the Office of Student Services, Administration Building. Hours are 8 a.m. to 6 p.m. Monday through Wednesday, which is the final date for enrollment.

"We had quite a number of students come in during the past week and we've gradually pulled up almost even with last year's record count," said Dee Windsor, associate dean of students and registrar.

By Friday morning the count this semester was 3,437 students, compared with 3,450 at the same time in 1984. Midland College's all-time enrollment record came last fall when 3,502 students enrolled.

"Since classes have been under way for two weeks, we are urging students not to take too large a class load or attempt those courses which include a great deal of reading assignments," Windsor said. "However, there are quite a number of courses which students can enter this late and still have a great chance for success."

Information about those courses which still have openings may be obtained at the Student Services Office or by calling 684-7851, extension 166.

Friends set library's book drive

From Staff Reports

Friends of the Midland County Public Library will hold a book drive Sept. 23-27 to build up its inventory of books for the 18th Annual Friends Book Sale in October.

The book drive will be from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. at the Friends' book storehouse, 619 W. Wall Ave. The storehouse is open from 9 a.m. to noon each Wednesday for receiving books.

Friends Mary Mann and Mary Hughes will be receiving donated books and magazines at the storehouse.

"We can always use more books," said Mrs. Mann, who noted that between 25,000 and 30,000 hardback and paperback books usually are in the book sale.

Books of virtually every subject area in the fiction and non-fiction realms are needed for the sale, she noted.

Proceeds from the sale benefit the Midland County Public Library and are used to buy equipment and materials not provided for in the county budget. Last year, the Friends netted $11,816.98 on sales of $12,910.62. In 1983, the net was $10,439.90 on sales of $11,445.06.

Hardback books sell for 50 cents each, and paperback books and magazines sell four for $1.

The 1985 Book Sale will be held in the Midland County Exhibit Building off U.S. Highway 80 East from 6 to 9 p.m. Oct. 18; 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Oct. 19; and 1 to 3 p.m. Oct. 21. Admission to the Early Bird Sale on opening night is $3 per book buff. After that, admission will be free.

The Book Sale will feature a trash-to-treasure garage-type sale sponsored by the Midland Genealogical Society.

"It's an opportunity for people to come and have a lot of fun," said John Deats, county librarian. "People who enjoy reading can find their favorite books which other people have discarded. Sometimes they find treasures."

EDUCATION IN BRIEF

Teachers group to meet

The Classroom Teachers Association of Midland will have its first general meeting at 4:15 p.m. Monday at Midland High School.

A program, entitled "The Professiona Rights and Responsibilities of Teachers" will be presented. All faculty representatives and alternates should attend.

Open house scheduled

The Santa Rita Elementary School Parent-Teacher Association will sponsor an open house at 7 p.m. Monday for parents of all kindergarten, first- and fifth- grade students; and again at 7 p.m. Wednesday for parents of all second- and third-grade students. Parents are asked to meet in the school cafetorium.

Anita Bryant to speak

Entertainer Anita Bryant will speak and perform Monday during a luncheon at Greentree Country Club. The luncheon, hosted by Midland Christian School, is held in conjunction with fundraising activities for the school's Tree of Life program.

Texas Gun & Knife Association planning show at Midland Center

From Staff Reports

The Texas Gun & Knife Assocation will hold the Midland Gun and Knife Show Sept. 21 and 22 at the Midland Center. The Texas Gun & Knife Association has been in operation for six years, bringing their gun and knife shows to cities all over Texas and New Mexico.

Collectors and exhibitors from all over the area will come to Midland to buy, sell, and trade some of the most unique guns and knives ever made. In addition to guns, knives, and accessories, the show offers an eclectic selection of wildlife art and historical artifacts, as well as fine displays of gold and silver jewelry at unbeatable prices.

Don Hill, president of the Texas Gun & Knife Assocation, has recently moved with his family to Kerrville. Hill's wife Deressa, is business manager for the assocation and does the planning and organization for the shows. Don and Daressa are well known by the exhibitors and they are at each show to visit with the public.

This is the second of two shows in Midland this year. The dates for this show are Satruday from 9 a.m.to 6 p.m. and Sunday from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. The show will be held at the Midland Civic Center. The public is invited to bring their own guns and buy, sell, trade, or just browse.

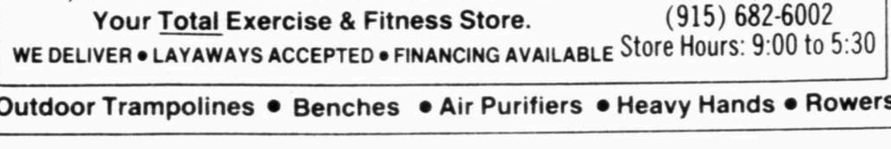

Nature talk to focus on birds

From Staff Reports

Frances Williams, regional editor of American Birds, will speak on fall migrating birds at 7:30 p.m. Monday at the Allison Fine Arts Auditorium. The talk and slide show are being sponsored by the Friends of the Midland Nature Center.

Ms. Williams has written parts of, or has supplied information to a number of books including Birds of Texas by Peterson, Life Histories of American Birds by Bent, and Bird Findings in Texas by Kutac. She is one of the four people who decide the validity of all bird records in Texas and has completed the checklists of birds to the Monahans and Fort Davis State Parks. Ms. Williams was recently elected as one of the approximately 100 United States members of the American Birding Association.

Beginning Tuesday, the Friends of the Midland Nature Center will sponsor nature walks at the Nature Center at Hogan Park. The 1½ hour walks begin at 8:30 a.m. Tuesdays and Saturdays and will continue through Oct. 26. Participants should meet at the first parking lot past the Women's Club building parking lot.

ACNE

Acne is a major skin problem in teenagers & young adults caused by excess sebaseous gland activity & hormonal influences. It can also affect people in their 30s. Acne is not caused by foods, drink, what you use on your face or improper cleansing. However, all of the above factors along with stress can cause the condition to worsen in some individuals. Many people try over-the-counter products unsuccessfully for long periods of time before they seek the advice of a dermatologist. Scarring, infection & pigmented (dark) spots can result from picking at the acne. There is no medication that can permanently cure acne. But, there are medications your dermatologist can prescribe to control acne & produce long remissions. If you have an acne problem, see your dermatologist.

Odessans' trial to begin in El Paso

By FRANK TROMBLEY
Staff Writer

ODESSA — The new trial of Ector County Commissioner Willie Hammond Jr. and former Odessa City Councilman Keith Weddel on arson-conspiracy charges is scheduled to begin Monday in federal court in El Paso.

The charges against Hammond and Weddel grew out of the November 1981 O'Michael Building fire in downtown Odessa.

A federal trial in Midland ended Feb. 19 in a mistrial when jurors deliberated about 12 hours without arriving at a unanimous verdict.

U.S. District Judge Lucius Bunton subsequently transferred the trial to El Paso and set May 28 as the date. However, Hammond's attorney, Warren Burnett, fell and broke his hip in Galveston and Bunton reset the trial date to Sept. 16.

Hammond and Weddel were jointly indicted by a federal grand jury in September 1984 on two counts of conspiracy to commit arson and aiding, abetting and counseling the malicious destruction of a building used in interstate commerce.

Hammond was additionally indicted on two charges of perjury in connection with depositions he gave concerning an insurance claim on the O'Michael Building.

Prior to the fire, Weddel, former Odessa Mayor Bob Bryant and attorney Ray Stoker Jr. jointly had owned the O'Michael Building.

The grand jury indictments alleged Weddel bought an interest in the building in July 1980, speculating that a proposed civic center in downtown Odessa would be built near the building. The indictment further alleged that following defeat of the civic center bond proposal, rent from building tenants failed to cover expenses, that in May 1981 insurance on the building was doubled and Weddel and Hammond later entered into a conspiracy to burn the building.

Hammond is alleged to have met with John Peterson, an ex-convict, in October 1981 and asked him to help burn the building. The actual fire is alleged to have been set by Peterson's brother, Lawrence "Cotton" Peterson of Odessa and L.C. Burditt of Midland.

All three appeared as government witnesses, with promises of immunity, during the trial last February. Burnett criticized the federal witness program that protected Peterson, saying Andrews County prosecutors had been unable to convince federal authorities to release Peterson for trial on the same burglary for which his brother, Lawrence, had been sentenced to 50 years in prison. "Mr. Peterson has purchased his way out of the pen and has stayed out of the pen. He has, in effect, sold his testimony," he stated.

During the Midland trial, Burnett, Hammond's attorney, and Travis Shelton of Lubbock, representing Weddel, sought dismissal of the charges against their clients because of what they termed prosecutorial misconduct. The two attorneys contended government prosecutors had failed to release all documents in evidence to defense attorneys.

One of the documents sought by defense attorneys was a June 1982 statement by John Peterson, which was read into the court record by Burnett.

The statement had Peterson denying any involvement in burning the building and absolving Weddel and Bryant of blame in the incident.

Bunton, in the early stages of the trial, had ordered U.S. Assistant Attorney Ellen Byers and FBI agent Billy Kirkwood to provide defense attorneys with all evidentiary documents expected to be used in the case.

Concerning the Peterson statement, Ms. Byers said she had not been aware of the statement. "You should have known it was there," admonished the judge.

Bunton criticized Ms. Byers concerning the document, saying, "That is a slipshod, shoddy way to handle a case," and, noting he had ordered an "open book policy," warned her that "we're not going to ambush anyone in this court."

Although prosecutors had failed to turn over all documents to the defense, Bunton denied the motions for dismissal.

The judge did disallow the testimony of El Paso FBI agent Charles Riley, who conducted an interview with Weddel at his North Dotsy Street home in July 1982. Weddel's attorney objected to the introduction of Riley's testimony, contending Weddel was not advised of his legal right to have an attorney present during the interview.

After Bunton declared a mistrial, Ms. Byers, who is no longer with the U.S. Attorney's office, filed an appeal with the U.S. 5th Circuit Court of Appeals in New Orleans, seeking reversal of Bunton's ruling on Riley's testimony, contending the FBI agent's testimony was crucial to the case. The appeal remains unresolved and indications are Bunton will hold no pretrial hearing on the matter but will rule on the question when, and if, it arises again during the El Paso trial.

The judge has indicated he expects the trial to last most of this week, with some of the daily sessions extending into the night.

Casting agency seeks boys to perform role of Amahl

From Staff Reports

A nationwide search for boy soprano soloists to perform the role of Amahl in the Gian-Carlo Menotti opera "Amahl and the Night Visitors" has been undertaken by Shallway Foundation, child-talent casting agency.

The foundation is providing casting services free to churches and schools which plan to perform the opera during the forthcoming Christmas season. A foundation spokesman estimates the opera will be produced in at least 250 American cities.

Parents of boys, ages 7 to 12, with high soprano voices may send names to Shallway Foundation, Connellville, Pa., 15425. Parents of boys who have already performed the Amahl role should send casette tapes.

STATE in brief

Principal arrested for cocaine possession

HOUSTON (AP) — A longtime Houston elementary school principal was arrested and charged with cocaine possession and carrying a weapon, sending a wave of shock through local school officials.

Curtis McNeal Jr., 56, principal at Langston Elementary and an educator for 30 years in Houston schools, was arrested about 3 a.m. Friday near downtown. He was released on $5,800 bond from the Harris County Jail, a jail spokeswoman said Saturday.

Houston Independent School District Superintendent Billy Reagan said Friday that McNeal "has a very long and very fine record of performance."

"If this is true, then we in this society have a far greater problem than we realize."

'Cruisers' not guilty

DALLAS (AP) — Two Lancaster teen-agers who were the first of 28 people indicted for cruising in DeSoto to have their cases heard in court have been found not guilty.

The four-woman, two-man jury acquitted the teen-agers Friday.

"I think it was right because we didn't do anything," said Tracy Caughron, 17, a senior at Lancaster High School.

She and Sandy Medford, 18, were charged with criminal trespassing. If convicted, the teen-agers could have been fined $1,000 and jailed for six onths.

DeSoto police arrested more than 50 people May 3 during their crackdown on cruising. Twenty-eight people were later indicted by a Dallas County grand jury.

Local businesses have complained about trash and vandalism at their stores and parking lots they say is caused by teen-agers gathering in the lots at night, and others have complained about traffic congestion.

Missing child found

DALLAS (AP) — A 21-month old Maryland child missing for more than a month was found here Saturday after a 14-year-old babysitter turned herself in to authorities in Pittsburgh, an investigator said.

Michael Fitzgibbon, who was listed as abducted in a report from the Charles County (Md.) Sheriff's officer, was found at the Dallas Inn Motel, where he had been since Sunday after the teen-ager left him with a couple, said investigator Cathy Harding of the police department's youth section.

The child was in the care of the Dallas County Children's Shelter and "I understand his mother's taking a flight to Dallas," Ms. Harding said.

"Basically, the girl ended up in Dallas somewhere around Aug. 10 and first came into contact with the people that ended up with the baby somewhere around that time," the investigator said.

"Contact was made when this girl went door to door looking for somebody to babysit for this child," she said.

Retail stores 'milked'

AUSTIN (AP) — The state health board adopted a rule Saturday allowing only the sale of pasteurized milk and milk products in what the board called "traditional" retail stores.

The new rule does allow the sale of Grade A raw milk by the producer at the point of production — the dairy farm. Producers must obtain a raw milk permit and the raw milk must meet the same bacterial standards as pasteurized milk.

Although milk products used or offered for sale at traditional retail outlets must be made from pasteurized milk, raw milk cheeses that do not require pasteurization and are produced in accordance with federal regulations can be sold at retail stores.

Shoe store 'crashed'

AUSTIN (AP) — For the third time since January a car has gone through the front of Navell Garcia's boot and shoe repair shop.

On Friday when he went to open his South Lamar shop, Garcia found a blue Chevrolet poking through the front of the building. His workbenches and equipment were strewn on the floor. Rocks from the building facade were on the hood and windshield of the car, and the driver was gone, he said.

Book reveals how to survive sorority rush

Author: Don't discuss sex, politics, and wear appropriate clothes

AUSTIN (AP) — Playing the game. That is what "Rush: A Girl's Guide to Sorority Success," the book by Austin-born Margaret Ann Rose, is about. Playing the sorority rushing game and winning it.

Rush is a process students go through when they apply for a sorority. Ms. Rose, a third-generation Zeta Tau Alpha at the University of Texas, said she wrote the book after watching many young women not get accepted into a sorority because they did not know how to play the game.

"Too many girls do not know what to expect during rush," said Ms. Rose, 24. "They don't know how important it is to look good."

When Ms. Rose was growing up, her mother was the adviser of the Zeta Tau Alpha chapter at UT. But that didn't give her a big edge over other students when she rushed for a sorority.

"I wouldn't say it was easy for me. I was cut from a sorority. That was disappointing," she said. "But I knew not to pref (express preference) just one sorority. I knew it was important to try to look nice."

In the summer of Ms. Rose's last year at UT, she was rush captain for her sorority. She spent the summer meeting sutdents who were coming to UT and trying to interest them in joining the sorority. "I got to know them and see whether if they were the kind of person we would want to join our sorority.

"Rush was really tough for me being the rush captain. I'm sort of against that whole system of judging other people, but it happens in everyday life," she said. "It happens when you interview. It happens when you have a job and people are deciding whether you get a promotion or not. You are being judged."

Ms. Rose said it was as hard for a freshman to deal with the judging process as it was for her to tell some students that they didn't make the sorority cut.

"I remember some girls I met during the summer who I thought were darling girls," she said. But they didn't receive a bid to join her sorority.

They were cut because they couldn't talk or wore "inappropriate" clothes, or talked about "inappropriate" things, and made bad impressions, Ms. Rose said.

Inappropriate clothes may be defined as "tight and revealing" and inappropriate topics of conversation may be "sex — especially if you've done it or politics — it's boring," according to Ms. Rose's book.

"It's just like interviewing for a job. Not everyone is going to get a job offer," she said. "You have to wear the right interview suit, have the right credentials."

Ms. Rose said many people have a negative picture about sororities, especially at UT where a majority of women students are not in sororities.

Leftovers, some choice tidbits, on 70th Legislature's menu

By BILL KIDD

AUSTIN — Going through the list of interim charges to house committees is like going through the refrigerator to check the leftovers.

Some of what turns up looks pretty good. And some causes one to wonder why there was any attempt made to save it in the first place.

Much of what Speaker Gib Lewis has told House committees to look at before the 70th Legislature convenes in January 1987, is left over from 1985's efforts (with some items having been left over for many years).

There are some new items as well.

Still, many of the topics are as familiar as the macaroni and cheese remnants.

Urban Affairs, chaired by George Pierce, R-San Antonio, is to examine "pari-mutuel wagering on horse and greyhound racing and its impact on urban areas."

Liquor Regulation, chaired by Billy Hall, D-Laredo, is to look over open-container legislation, and "happy hour" regulations.

And the Energy Committee, under Chairman Ed Emmett, R-Kingwood, is to look at the feasibility of "mandatory unitization" of oil and gas reservoirs.

Those topics were ideas whose time hadn't come in 1985.

Many of the subjects being looked at deal with financial matters, including a study by the Ways and Means Committee on "the potential use of a state ad valorem tax" to finance public education.

New taxes aren't ever popular, but with legislators, and local officials, hard pressed for money, the attitude appears to be that the ad valorem tax option is worth examining.

Texas did have a state property tax — which was used to fund construction at public universities not under the Permanent University Fund — but abolished that tax as a result of efforts to overhaul the property tax system.

Ways and Means, which is chaired by Stan Schlueter, D-Killeen, also is to look at extending use of the sales tax "by local entities fo the purpose of financing local spending needs," and "local revenue alternatives to the ad valorem tax, including the bonding authority of local units of government."

House Appropriations Committee (headed by Jim Rudd, D-Brownfield) is charged with developing an "appropriate economic forecasting model" to project current state spending patterns and trends to the year 2000, and to look at various possible cost-savings measures for state government (including use of electric hand-dryers instead of paper towels in washrooms).

Law Enforcement Committee work includes a study of various prison matters, such as conjugal visits at Texas Department of Corrections units, and various sentencing options.

The panel, chaired by Ray Keller, R-Duncanville, also is to look at regional deployment of Department of Public Safety personnel for "tactical weapons units as SWAT teams to deal with terrorism."

State Affairs, under Pete Laney, D-Hale Center, will be looking at problems in the townhouse and condominium industry, and whether there should be regulation of kennels and locksmiths.

One of the more interesting new proposals is under the State, Federal and International Relations Committee (headed by Paul Ragsdale, D-Dallas).

That committee is to consider an exchange program with Mexico, under which Texas teachers would spend time in Mexican schools to learn the language and culture, while Mexican teacher candidates would attend Texas colleges to study teaching.

Implementation of the Texas Brush Control Program, established by this year's Legislature, and the effectiveness of Texas' brucellosis control program will be looked at by the Agriculture and Livestock Committee (headed by Robert Saunders, D-La Grange).

Business and Commerce (chaired by Lee Jackson, R-Dallas) will review Texas' standards for manufactured housing, worker's compensation programs, safety standards for construction workers in trenches, and local affirmative action contracting programs.

The grand jury system, legislation on inhalant abuse (aimed at wholesalers and manufactureres of abusable substances), and organized criminal activity statutes will be considered by the Criminal Jurisprudence Committee (under Terral Smith, R-Austin).

And Environmental Affairs (chaired by Fred Agnich, R-Dallas) will look at hazardous waste injection wells, regulation of exotic game animals, and state park needs.

That's just sampling of what House committees are to examine before the 1987 session convenes.

Of course, not all of that will prove palatable to the public or lawmakers, but it does indicate what may be on the menu the next time legislators return to Austin.

Bill Kidd is a columnist for the Reporter-Telegram's Austin Bureau.

Governors voice primary concern

By STEVE LEVINE
Reporter-Telegram Austin Bureau

What if...fresh out of his drubbing in the 1984 New England Democratic primaries, U.S. Sen. John Glenn had marshaled his forces in the South and won big in a concentrated, one-week series of primaries and caucuses that included Texas, North Carolina and Florida?

What if...Glenn, flushed with the southern victories, rolled on to beat Walter Mondale and Gary Hart in enough western and midwestern states to capture the nomination and pick U.S. Sen. Lloyd Bentsen of Texas as his running mate?

What if...Glenn pushed his conservative credentials as a moderate alternative to Ronald Reagan, made no promise to increase taxes and took advantage of Reagan's age and wavering on the social security issue to win a narrow victory in November?

While that's obviously a rather far-fetched scenario, the prospect of a united South pushing conservative candidates — and pushing conservative views on more liberal candidates — caught the attention of southern governors gathering last week in Miami. The governors agreed to help a group of state legislators from the South explore the possibilities at a meeting in Green Briar, W.Va., late next month.

"This is one of the most important things the South can do as a region," said Gov. Bob Graham, D-Fla., outgoing chairman of the Southern Governors' Association. Although Graham said Democrats have had the most trouble with the current system — caucuses and primaries in the 19 states stretch almost three months now — he said southerners of all party affiliation could benefit from the plan.

With hordes of cameramen and reporters in tow, the candidates now spend the early months tramping through the New Hampshire snows and Iowa cornfields, knowing that a strong showing in those two early states compensates for the relatively small number of delegates to be won there. By the time they reach Texas in early May, the field has narrowed considerably and the candidates still in the running have committed themselves to positions many southerners find contrary.

"They go to Iowa and find out who's got an intact organization and say, 'What do you want?' " Graham said. "The candidate sells 1 percent of himself in Iowa...in New Hampshire....By the time he gets to November, he doesn't have anything left to sell."

The 19 southern states — from Delaware to Florida, from Kentucky to Texas — account for about one-third of the delegates to the party conventions. They produce almost two-thirds of the delegates a candidate needs to win the party nomination.

Primaries and caucuses in Texas, Florida and North Carolina, the three southern states with the most clout, stretched last year from March 13 to May 8. By then Walter Mondale and his liberal platform had almost sewed up the nomination. Mondale lost more southern support after choosing liberal New York Congresswoman Geraldine Ferraro as his running mate.

Ronald Reagan won every one of the South's 185 electoral votes in November. That accounted for 69 percent of the 270 he needed for victory.

With those same arguments in mind, Texas Democrats began a two-pronged attack on the system during this spring's legislative session. First, they said, the antiquated caucus system reminiscent of old-time, smoke-filled-room politics had to give way to a direct primary.

Secondly, they proposed moving the Texas presidential election from the first Saturday in May to "Super Tuesday," the first Tuesday in March. That would align the state with Alabama, Florida and Georgia and force the candidates to "sell" some of themselves to southern interests but keep the non-presidential elections at their traditional May date.

The plan flew through the Democratically controlled Senate but stalled for several months in the House Elections Committee. With conservative Democratic legislators concerned that many of their supporters would leave the party by voting in the earlier Republican presidential primary, the House compromised by moving all presidential-year elections to the March date. Republicans fought the bill from the start, knowing that a more moderate Democratic candidate would attract voters from the GOP.

House-Senate negotiators worked until the session's final hour, but the bill died when they could reach no agreement. While most of the southern state's legislatures meet in 1986 and could move their election date without much pressure from possible presidential candidates, Texas lawmakers are in recess until 1987.

That, said state Sen. John Traeger, D-Seguin, the chairman of the Southern Legislative Conference and the man who pushed the governors for help on the project, may be too late. By then, he said, presidential-hopefuls and their various allies in the House and Senate will be working too hard to find a date that works to their benefit alone.

Not so, says Texas Gov. Mark White, also a Democrat. We've moved primaries for the benefit of candidates in the past," he said, referring to the attempted 1980 change for Republican John Connally and the 1976 move for Democrat Lloyd Bentsen.

We simply don't focus on those things politically until we come close to the event," White said. The governor also proposed a southern primary week," which would allow candidates to concentrate their time and money on the region and still permit Texas to hold its unique Saturday election.

White, Traeger and Graham all said they thought Republicans would benefit as well from a regional primary. Last year there was a smugness on the part of the Republicans because they didn't have any candidates, but this time we feel they're going to have a real dogfight," Traeger told the governors.

He found a lukewarm response from the GOP.

"It's not my personal crusade, but I'd be glad to cooperate and collaborate," said Gov. James Martin, R- N.C., the new chairman of the governors' association. "It would bring our candidate to our state when there's still time."

Texas Republican Party Chairman George Strake said he has "no problem" with the regional primary concept itself. But Strake, who predicted politics might soon supplant gift-opening as a Christmas Day activity, said he still opposes any move that stretches out the campaign season or separates the presidential primary from state and local elections.

Texas timeshare promoter gets three years for deceptive practices

SEATTLE (AP) — Texas timeshare vacation promoter Theodore Weiswasser has been sentenced to three years in prison with one year suspended for violating a court order prohibiting deceptive timeshare practices, the Federal Trade Commission says.

The sentence handed down last week by U.S. District Judge Donald Voorhees was "the longest prison term ever imposed in an FTC criminal contempt action," George J. Zweibel, Seattle FTC regional director, said Friday.

Weiswasser, a lawyer, also was placed on an additional five years probation and was ordered to pay $250,000 to a restitution fund for consumers who bought timeshares at four resorts in the Galveston, Texas, area.

He had been accused of violating a 1981 preliminary injunction that resulted from an FTC complaint accusing Weiswasser and others of misleading consumers in timeshare sales in Hawaii, Lake Tahoe, Nev., and Washington state.

The sentence stems from charges that Weiswasser violated the injunction when selling timeshares in four Texas vacation resorts: Captain's Cove and Four Seasons on the Gulf in Galveston; Tiki Island Resort & Yacht Club near Texas City, and Peregrine Townhouses near Freeport. Most of the timeshares sold for $4,000 to $8,000 each.

Hurricane levels Rice

By MICHAEL A. LUTZ

HOUSTON (AP) — Miami running back Melvin Bratton scored three touchdowns, including a one on a 69-yard touchdown bomb from quarterback Vinnie Testaverde, to lead the Hurricane to a 48-20 college football victory over the Rice Owls Saturday.

Bratton scored on runs of 24 and three yards to help the Hurricane to a 27-17 lead in the fourth quarter.

Then with 6:19 remaining, Bratton hauled in a pass from Testaverde and eluded five would-be tacklers en route to the game-breaker.

Miami's backup quarterback Geoff Torretta continued the late surge with an 80-yard touchdown pass to David Kintingh with 2:59 left in the game and scored on a 2-yard quarterback keeper with one second remaining.

Miami, 1-1, took a 14-10 halftime lead over the Owls, who have posted a 2-32 record over the past three seasons, but pulled away in the third quarter on Bratton's second touchdown run, a three-yard dive.

Bratton's three-yard touchdown run and field goals of 31 and 48 yards by Greg Cox in the fourth quarter, followed Rice turnovers.

The Hurricane, which lost to Florida 35-23 last week, took a 14-3 lead early in the second quarter on a zig-zagging 24-yard run by Bratton and a 39 yard touchdown pass from Testaverde to Mike Irvin.

Rice got its first points on a 49-yard field goal by James Hamrick in the first quarter following an interception by linebacker Joe Heikkinen and a 32-yard pass from Comalander to tight end Kenny Major.

The Owls pulled within four points with 1:48 left in the half on a five-yard quarterback keeper by Comalander.

Miami's second half surge was aided by a fumble recovery by Miami's Rod Carter and interceptions by George Mira Jr. and Benny Blades.

After falling behind 27-10, the Owls rallied on quarterback Mark Comalander's two-yard touchdown pass to Marc Scott with 7:33 left and a 42-yard field goal by Hamrick.

It was Rice's season opener.

Ex-Reb hero in Tech win

By GIL BROYLES

TULSA, Okla. (AP) — Texas Tech quarterback Aaron Keesee hit split end Tyrone Thurman, who last year starred at Midland Lee, with a 20-yard touchdown pass with 11 seconds left, giving the Red Raiders a 21-17 victory over Tulsa in nonconference college football Saturday night.

Tulsa, which fell to 1-1, had taken a 17-14 lead with 4:52 left when quarterback Steve Gage's 61-yard sideline gallop to the 17 set up his own touchdown on a 2-yard keeper.

Texas Tech scored two quick touchdowns in the third quarter after Jason Staurovsky's 32-yard field goal staked Tulsa to a 3-0 halftime lead.

Halfback Timmy Smith scored from three yards out to cap a 78-yard Red Raider drive with the second-half kickoff. Four minutes later, Keesee scored on a 1-yard plunge after Tulsa fumbled the ball on its own 16.

Tech, which improved to 2-0, set up Staurovsky's field goal when Keesee fumbled at his own 13 on the Raiders' first possession. A second-quarter Tech drive ended at the Tulsa 17 when Keesee was intercepted.

Tulsa quarterback Richie Stephenson shared duties with Gage, scoring the Hurricane's first touchdown with 1:46 left in the third period.

Texas Tech, which came from behind to upend New Mexico, 32-31, in its opener, chalked up its first victory outside Texas since 1978.

Neither team could mount a serious offensive threat in the first half of the Skelly Stadium contest witnessed by 29,972.

Tulsa suffered seven fumbles, but the miscues evened out as the Hurricane lost only two of those. Texas Tech gave up one of its three fumbles and the interception.

Tech, playing its second contest with a wishbone offense, used eight ballcarriers. Fullback Isaac Garnett's 62 yards on 14 carries topped Red Raider rushing efforts.

Keesee, who completed three of seven passes, made two of those completions in the closing seconds. A 25-yard strike to split end Wayne Walker put the Raiders in business at the Tulsa 20. His touchdown pass to Thurman came three plays later with the tiny receiver breaking free in the middle of the end zone.

Tulsa holds a 12-10 series advantage, but Texas Tech has won the past two contests.

Georgia's big play defense squashes Bears' upset bid

ATHENS, Ga. (AP) — A big play defense took the sting out of a big play offense Saturday as Georgia snapped a five-game winless string by trimming Baylor 17-14 in an intersectional college football game.

"The pass rush allowed our secondary to play well under the difficult circumstances," Coach Vince Dooley said after Georgia survived a passing assault by the Bears.

"We minimized their big play potential," Dooley added. "It's very good to win."

Although the Bulldogs yielded 308 yards in the air, they came through with a pair of pass interceptions, tipped away five others in the secondary and also had three quarterback sacks.

"Baylor has two very good quarterbacks who kept our secondary under great pressure," Dooley said.

Fred Lane scored on a 33-yard reverse and freshman Tim Worley on a 1-yard plunge following a turnover to put Georgia in control, and the Bulldogs survived several late Baylor threats.

"Football is a crazy game," Baylor Coach Grant Teaff said. "We did enough self-inflicted damage to keep us from winning. We could've won, and I guess I'd say we should have won. A couple of little things really hurt us."

Lane's scamper broke a scoreless deadlock in the first quarter and Worley put Georgia ahead to stay at 14-7 early in the third quarter after Kenny Sims had pounced on a Baylor fumble at the Bears 24.

Georgia survived a pair of Baylor threats later in the game when Miles Smith picked off a Cody Carlson pass at the Bulldog 1 on the second play of the fourth quarter and again when Bill Mitchell stopped Ralph Stockemer for no gain on a fourth-and-two at the Georgia 11 with seven minutes left in the game.

Panhandle beats SRC

GOODWELL, Okla. (AP) — Panhandle State running back Ray Williams ran for three touchdowns in the first half and the defense shut out Sul Ross State, Texas, for a 28-0 victory Saturday night.

Williams ran for touchdowns of 3, 8 and 7 yards in Panhandle's second victory of the season.

Panhandle's other touchdown came on a 31-yard pass from Mike Whiltter to Mark White.

Sul Ross State fell to 1-1.

Ankrom rallies Frogs over Green Wave

By BOB BRUNDAGE
Sports Writer

FORT WORTH - Texas Christian University had trouble with the Tulane Green Wave here at Amon Carter Stadium Friday night, but in the end the Horned Frogs prevailed, 30-13.

After spotting Tulane early 10-0 and 13-3 leads, the Horned Frogs came alive in the remaining three quarters to overcome the margin and claim the victory.

TCU, after being stopped early in the second quarter with nothing on first and goal inside the five, scored its first touchdown of 1985 when quarterback Scott Ankrom rolled out to pass, scrambled up the middle, juked a defender and rolled into the end zone from 19 yards out. Ken Ozee added the extra point for a Green Wave 13-10 lead going into halftime.

The Frogs scored again in the third quarter to take the lead for the first time in the game, using three straight quarterback keepers inside the Tulane 11. Ankrom finally broke the goal line plane from one-yard out with 1:09 left in the period. Again, Ozee added the PAT for a 17-13 score.

The Frogs mounted a third TD drive at the end of the third and start of the fourth quarters, quickly covering 55 yards. All-American running back Kenneth Davis provided two big runs of 13 and 16 yards in the drive and Ankrom capped it with a 20-yard TD pass to flanker Ricky Stone. Ozee's PAT made it 24-13.

The final points in the game came on TCU's next possession and this time it was running back Tony Jeffery notching the points, running off left tackle for the final yard of an 80-yard, 11-play drive and a 30-13 lead.

In all, TCU covered 497 yards, 355 on the ground and 142 through the air.

Davis, who finished fifth in '84 in the Heisman Trophy balloting, led all rushers with 156 yards, barely edging out Ankrom's 138-yard effort.

Most of Tulane's damage came through the air with quarterback Ken Karcher hitting 10-of-26 passes for 195 yards to set up all 13 Green Wave points.

However, Tulane never managed to get much of a rushing game going, covering only 126 yards on the ground.

The victory gives TCU a 1-0 record on the year while Tulane drops to 0-2. The Green Wave's first loss came at the hands of Florida State two weeks ago, 38-12.

Next week, the Horned Frogs take to the road for the first time in a meeting with Kansas State and follow the week after with their Southwest Conference opener against Southern Methodist at Amon Carter.

The Green Wave played tough defense in the first half, stopping TCU with first and goal to go at the Tulane three.

Rover back Garry Cumby stopped Davis on fourth and one. Cumby, one of Tulane's best defender, suffered a fractured fibula in the second half and his loss hurt the Green Wave defense.

Miami halfback Melvin Bratton breaks tackle and heads for Rice goal on a 24-yard touchdown run Saturday.

Alabama boots Aggies, 23-10

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (AP) — Placekicker Van Tiffin kicked three field goals, two in the fourth quarter, to lead No. 20 Alabama to a 23-10 college football victory over Texas A&M Saturday night.

Early in the fourth quarter, Tiffin broke a 10-10 deadlock with a 40-yard field goal and six minutes later added a 51-yarder, lifting undefeated Alabama to its second victory of the season.

With just over a minute left in the game, Alabama scored on a 32-yard touchdown run by Craig Turner and Tiffin added the extra point.

Tiffin's first field goal came in the first quarter with Alabama leading 7-3. His 57-yarder broke the school record of 53 yards he set last year against Penn State.

Alabama opened the scoring with a 64-yard drive in the first quarter, capped by a two-yard run by Chester Braggs. Tiffin added the extra point and Alabama led 7-0. Texas A&M, in its season-opener, narrowed Alabama's lead to 7-3 with a 45-yard field goal by Eric Franklin in the first quarter. But Tiffin's record-setting field goal late in the second quarter gave Alabama a 10-3 halftime lead.

Texas A&M tied the score in the third quarter when running back Anthony Toney went in from the 1-yard line and Franklin added the extra point.

Ozzie Smith show puts Cardinals ahead of Mets

Associated Press

Ozzie Smith had two hits, two walks, two steals and doubled home the winning run as the St. Louis Cardinals beat the Chicago Cubs 5-4 Saturday and moved back into first place in the National League East.

But it was another "two" that had Smith talking after the game.

"At least I was aggressive on the second one," said shortstop Smith, one of the best fielders in the history of baseball, after making two errors on grounders by Ron Cey. One of the grounders went through Smith's legs, although neither miscue proved costly.

The victory, coupled with New York's 5-1 loss to Montreal, moved the Cardinals one-half game ahead of the Mets in the NL East.

St. Louis Manager Whitey Herzog downplayed his team reclaiming first place.

"First place doesn't make any difference now," said Herzog. "It only counts on the last day of the season."

Reliever Bill Campbell, 5-3, got the victory.

Dodgers 7, Reds 0

Bob Welch scattered six hits, Mariano Duncan went 4-for-5 and scored three times and Mike Marshall hit a two-run homer as Los Angeles reduced its magic number for winning the NL West to 13.

The Dodgers increased their lead over second-place Cincinnati to 9½ games.

Welch, 11-3, won his sixth straight game against the Reds. He is 12-6 in his career against Cincinnati.

Marshall hit his 23rd homer during a three-run ninth. It was his sixth homer in the last 10 games.

Expos 5, Mets 1

Tim Raines singled twice and scored two runs, pacing Montreal over visiting New York.

Winner David Palmer, making his first start in seven weeks, pitched five innings and raised his record to 7-9. Jeff Reardon went the final two innings for his league-leading 36th save.

The Expos took the lead for good in the third when Raines led off with a single of the leg of Sid Fernandez, 6-9, and continued to third when third baseman Howard Johnson fielded the ball and threw wildly to first. Vnace Law followed with a sacrifice fly, giving Montreal a 2-1 lead.

Pirates 6, Phillies 3

Mike Brown hit a two-run homer and Tony Pena had three hits, including a two-run triple, as Pittsburgh beat visiting Philadelphia.

Steve Carlton, 1-8, took the loss. He left the game after walking the first two batters in the sixth. It was his first decision in three starts since returning from the disabled list with rotator cuff problems.

Astros 4, Padres 3

Dickie Thon hit a two-run homer and Bob Knepper pitched seven innings for his fourth straight victory. Houston, in winning for the 15th time in its last 18 decisions, tied San Diego for third place in the NL West.

Giants 3, Braves 1

Jeff Leonard doubled home the tie-breaking run and scored on a double by Rick Adams as San Francisco scored twice in the ninth inning to win in Atlanta.

The Giants scored in the eighth on a sacrifice fly by Ron Roenicke to tie the game 1-1.

Blue Jays 7, Yankees 4

Rance Mulliniks hit a tie-breaking double and Lloyd Moseby and Cliff Johnson delivered two-run singles during a five-run sixth inning that led Toronto over host New York.

The victory boosted the Blue Jays' lead in the AL East over second-place New York to 3½ games. Toronto has beaten the Yankees two straight times after losing the opener of the four-game series.

The Blue Jays are now 90-52, the most victories in the team's nine-year history.

Winner Jimmy Key, 13-6, gave up six hits, including Rickey Henderson's 21st homer. Jesse Barfield homered and doubled for Toronto.

Royals 2, A's 1

Bret Saberhagen pitched a three-hitter and Hal McRae hit a two-run homer as Kansas City won for the 12th time in its last 13 games.

The victory moved the Royals 2½ games ahead of California in the AL West.

Saberhagen, 18-6, stuck out 12 in winning for the 16th time in his last 19 decisions. He retired the last 11 batters.

McRae hit his 14th homer in the sixth off Tommy John, 4-8, after an error by second baseman Mike Gallego.

Tigers 10-4, Orioles 3-5

Darrell Evans drove in three runs with four hits, helping Detroit end its eight-game losing streak by winning the first game of a double-header with Baltimore.

The Tigers scored six runs in the fourth. Lou Whitaker doubled home two of the runs and scored on a single by Evans.

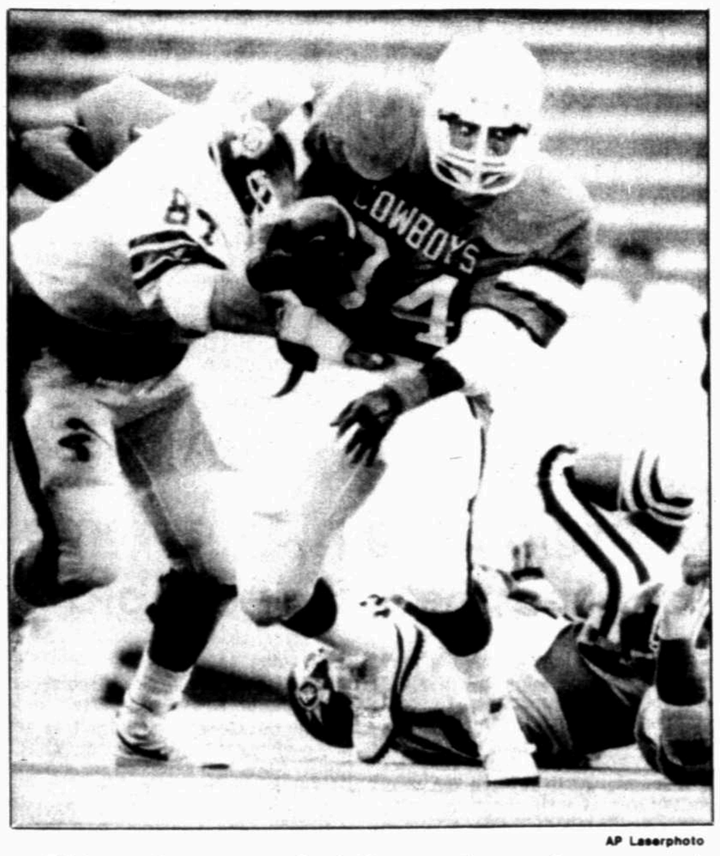

Baltimore won the second game as Rick Dempsey's two-run double keyed a three-run rally in the sixth inning.

Indians 11-3, Twins 9-5

Joe Carter and Mike Hargrove each drove in three runs as Cleveland rapped out 13 hits and took advantage of five Minnesota errors to win the first game.

Carter hit a two-run homer in the third, giving the Indians a 3-2 lead. Carter also had a double and a single.

In the second game, rookie Mark Funderburk hit a tie-breaking sacrifice fly in the ninth as the Twins scored twice.

Oklahoma State holds off Eagles

Buckeyes nip Pitt on late touchdown

Associated Press

STILLWATER, Okla. — Tailback Thurman Thomas rushed for 191 yards and a touchdown and No. 8 Oklahoma State used outstanding defense to hold off North Texas State 10-9 in college football Saturday night.

Thomas, a 5-foot-11, 186-pound sophomore, carried 40 times for the second week in a row. He had 237 yards against Washington last week.

He needed plenty of help from the Oklahoma State defense, which time after time took over in poor field position due to second-half turnovers but wound up limiting the Eagles to just three field goals by Todd Smith.

The defense set up Oklahoma State's only touchdown which came early in the third quarter with the score tied 3-3.

Defensive end Harry Roberts caused a North Texas State fumble on the opening kickoff of the second half and kicker Joey O'Donnell recovered at the Eagle 29.

Three players later, Thomas leaped in from the 1-yard line and O'Donnell's conversion made it 10-3.

On its next possession, North Texas moved from its own 22 to the Oklahoma State 23 in 16 plays to set up Smith's second field goal of the night, a 40-yarder.

Oklahoma State quarterback Rusty Rankin then fumbled on the next possession and North Texas recovered at the Cowboys' 24.

But the Oklahoma State defense took over and North Texas lost three yards in three plays and Smith missed a 44-yard field goal try.

Rankin, starting for the first time in place of injured Ronnie Williams, fumbled again on the next Cowboy drive and North Texas recovered at the Oklahoma State 18 with 2:54 to play in the third quarter.

The Eagles were stopped again, however, and had to settle for a 35-yard field goal by Smith.

North Texas was stymied twice more in the fourth quarter after grabbing two Cowboy turnovers in Oklahoma State territory.

Oklahoma State, a member of the Big Eight Conference, improved to 2-0, while North Texas, from the Southland Conference, fell to 1-1.

Late Games

Ohio State 10, Pittsburgh 7

COLUMBUS, Ohio — Quarterback Jim Karsatos hit wide receiver Cris Carter with a 1-yard touchdown pass with 4:19 remaining Saturday night to lift No. 9 Ohio State over Pittsburgh, 10-7.

The victory moved Ohio State to 1-0 on the season, while Pitt fell to 1-1.

The defensive struggle, played before a crowd of 88,518 in the first collegiate night game ever at 63-year-old Ohio Stadium, was decided on fourth-and-goal at the Panther 1.

After Carter's touchdown, Pitt had two more possessions, but a pass from quarterback John Congemi was intercepted at the Ohio State 43 by cornerback William White with 1:45 remaining, and a last-minute Panther drive died as time expired.

Ohio State's winning march covered 65 yards in 12 plays with the key play being a 19-yard pass from Karsatos to tailback John Wooldridge on third-and-16 at the Pitt 27.

Pitt took a 7-3 lead at the 13:43 mark of the fourth period when Congemi engineered a five-play, 45-yard drive that culminated in a 14-yard pass from Congemi to Chuck Scales. Mark Brasco's conversion made it 7-3.

The Buckeyes broke a scoreless tie with 1:01 remaining in the first half, on a 29-yard field goal by Rich Spangler.

Illinois 28, S. Illinois 25

CHAMPAIGN, Ill. — Illinois Quarterback Jack Trudeau, after a shaky start, passed for one touchdown and ran for a second Saturday as the No. 19 Illini rallied for a 28-25 victory over surprisingly tough Southern Illinois.

Illinois was down by 11 points in the third quarter when Trudeau, who lost a fumble and two interceptions during the game, hit Cap Boso with a two-yard touchdown pass and then ran five yards for another score to regain the lead before the period ended.

Southern battled back and it was not until Ron Miller's last minute 48-yard field goal attempt fell short that Illinois could feel certain of victory over the Division 1-AA Salukis.

Minnesota 28, Wichita St. 14

MINNEAPOLIS — Quarterback Rickey Foggie ran 15 times for 140 yards and three touchdowns and completed eight of 10 passes for 151 more yards Saturday night as Minnesota spotted Wichita State 14 points before roaring back for a 28-14 non-conference college football victory in its season-opener.

Foggie passed for 44 yards before scrambling for a five-yard touchdown 2:44 into the third quarter, giving the Gophers the lead for good at 21-14.

Gary Couch's eight-yard run later in the third quarter closed out the scoring.

Wichita State, 1-1, moved the ball easily early.

The Shockers marched 80 yards in its first 14 plays, with Eric Denson scoring on a two-yard run 5:50 into the contest. Wichita State took a 14-0 lead after Couch fumbled a punt. The Shockers recovered on Minnesota's one-yard line and Dwight Eaton leaped in from there with 2:08 gone in the second quarter.

Foggie rallied the Gophers to a 14-14 halftime tie. He ran for 42 yards and passed for 20 more during a nine-play, 80-yard drive culminated by his 11-yard scoring run with 8:32 left in the half.

On Minnesota's next possession, Foggie sparked a 65-yard drive with a 32-yard pass to Anderson and a 21-yard touchdown run 3:52 before intermission.

Mississippi St. 30, Syracuse 3

STARKVILLE, Miss. — Sophomore tailback Rodney Peters raced 16 yards for his second touchdown of the game Saturday night as Mississippi State crushed Syracuse 30-3.

Peters' fourth-period touchdown climaxed an 11-play, 80-yard drive powered by the running and passing of Bulldog quarterback Don Smith, who earlier in the game broke loose for a 59-yard scamper.

Peters dashed into the end zone when less than three minutes had elapsed in the game, capitalizing on a Bryan Hudson interception of the game opening pass by Syracuse quarterback Mike Kmetz. Mississippi State's moving wishbone offense, plagued throughout the game by penalties, three times settled for field goals by place kicker Artie Cosby, from 23, 27 and 36 yards.

It was the tough Bulldog defense that kept the independent Orangemen off-balance all night. Syracuse got its only score against the Southeastern Conference team with a second quarter, 23-yard field goal by Don McAulay. The Orangemen recovered a backup quarterback Orlando Lundy fumble at the State 21.

Early in the fourth quarter, Bulldog halfback Jeff Patton scored on a 21-yard pass from Smith. Cosby added this third extra point of the night.

K-State upset by No. Iowa

MANHATTAN, Kan. (AP) — Sophomore halfback Carl Boyd scampered for 111 yards, including a 4-yard touchdown, and Mike Angell kicked a 33-yard field goal Saturday to lead Northern Iowa to a 10-6 upset of Kansas State in a non-conference football game.

The Panthers are now 1-1 after losing their season-opener to Drake last weekend. Northern Iowa held the Wildcats scoreless until Greg Strahm's 1-yard touchdown plunge with 3:52 remaining in the third period. The Wildcats are now 0-2 after last week's 16-10 loss to Wichita State.

K-State coach asked to resign

MANHATTAN, Kan. (AP) — Kansas State Coach Jim Dickey has been asked to resign after two unexpected defeats in his eighth season with the Wildcats, according to a report in the Sunday editions of The Manhattan Mercury.

Sources at Kansas State said Dickey had been asked to resign after the Wildcats' 10-6 loss to Northern Iowa, The Mercury reported.

Athletic Director Larry Travis would neither confirm nor deny that the coach was being fired.

Midland Christian wins

CARLSBAD, N.M.— Down 18-0 at half and showing nary a first down and only nine yards gained rushing, Midland Christian rallied for a last gasp 33-30 win over Carlsbad, N.M., Bethel Christian in a "Rain Bowl" Six-Man football game here Saturday afternoon.

Todd Mims lit a fire under the Mustangs by galloping 73 yards with the second half kickoff for a touchdown and then he saved it with a pass interception in the final minute as Bethel appeared headed for the winning TD.

Midland never led until Danny Sartain passed 58 yards to Tony Corona for a TD with 1:40 to go and Robert Willoughby added the PAT that put the West Texans ahead.

Corona had a big day. He scored from 16 yards out after the kickoff return by Mims and later scored on a 66-yard Sartain pass. In between Robert Willoughby raced to pay dirt on an 85-yard pass from Sartain.

Willoughby also added two extra points and was a defensive demon with 16 tackles.

In the second half, Midland Christian amassed 261 yards total with 52 rushing and 209 passing.

The win leveled MC's record at 1-1. MC plays Ira in Midland at 5 p.m. Friday.

Benched QB rescues UCLA, 26-26

Associated Press

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. — Senior quarterback David Norrie came off the bench to rally 10th-ranked UCLA to two fourth-quarter touchdowns and two-point conversions as the Bruins salvaged a 26-26 tie against Tennessee Saturday in an intersectional college football game.

Norrie replaced Matt Stevens with 11:51 remaining and capped a 97-yard Bruin drive with an eight-yard scoring pass to Al Wilson. Jeff Nowinski caught Norrie's pass on the conversion attempt to draw UCLA within 26-18 with 4:46 left in the final quarter.

With 37 seconds remaining in the game, Norrie hit Willie Anderson with a 25-yard scoring pass and Gaston Green ran around right end for the conversion that tied the score.

The nationally televised game left UCLA, a member of the Pacific 10 Conference, with a 1-0-1 record while Tennessee, a member of the Southeastern Conference, was playing its season opener.

Tennessee erased a 10-0 first-quarter deficit by reeling off 26 points on touchdown passes of four and 68 yards by Tony Robinson and field goals of 31, 33, 40 and 49-yards by Carlos Reveiz.

Brigham Young 31, Washington 3

PROVO, Utah — Lakei Heimuli and Vai Sikahema rushed for two touchdowns each as No. 16 Brigham Young traded their vaunted passing game for the run in crushing mistake-prone Washington 31-3 in the first football meeting between the two schools Saturday afternoon.

Athough BYU quarterback Robbie Bosco threw for 279 yards, the Cougars boosted their record to 2-1 by running the football effectively against a Pacific 10 opponent which finished as the runnersup to national champion Brigham Young last season.

Washington, which suffered its second consecutive loss, turned the ball over five times, failed to convert three straight fourth-down plays in the third quarter and fumbled on the BYU 1 in the final period.

Sikahema scored on runs of 29 and five yards and Gary Webster kicked a 34-yard field goal to give BYU a 17-0 lead with about six minutes left in the first half.

Far West

Stanford 41, San Jose St. 7

STANFORD, Calif. — Fullback Brad Muster rumbled for four touchdowns while gaining over 200 yards and quarterback John Paye passed for 283 yards as Stanford opened its season Saturday by whipping San Jose State 41-7 before 68,000 fans.

Muster, a junior who red-shirted his freshman year, rushed for 95 yards on 24 carries and caught 11 passes for 107 yards before sitting out most of the final period.

Stanford marched to a 31-0 halftime lead behind Muster's first three TD runs, Paye's 29-yard TD pass to Greg Baty and David Sweeney's 39-yard field goal just before intermission.

Air Force 49, Wyoming 7

LARAMIE, Wyo. — Air Force quarterback Bart Weiss ran for three touchdowns Saturday as the Falcons routed Wyoming 49-7 in Western Athletic Conference action.

The loss was 0-2 Wyoming's worst at home since losing 52-3 to Arizona State in 1970 and its worst ever to 2-0 Air Force.

Wyoming scored its lone touchdown in the first quarter when Air Force fumbled five times, losing three to Wyoming. The touchdown came on Scott Runyan's 38-yard pass to split end Allyn Griffin. Andy Cottingham hit the extra point to give Wyoming its brief 7-0 lead.

Air Force, which generated 477 yards in total offense, got two second-quarter touchdowns from Weiss on keepers from Wyoming's 1-yard line. Tom Ruby converted both extra points.

Miners drop conference opener

Associated Press

FORT COLLINS, Colo. — Fullback Steve Bartalo racked up 174 yards and three touchdowns and quarterback Kelly Stouffer tossed a pair of TD passes as Colorado State rolled to a 41-24 victory over Texas-El Paso in Western Athletic Conference football action Saturday.

With the victory, Colorado State boosted its record to 1-1 overall and 1-0 in the WAC, while Texas-El Paso fell to 0-3 and 0-2, despite getting 232 yards and three touchdowns from freshman tailback John Harvey.

After moving out to a 3-0 first-quarter lead on a 21-yard Steve DeLine field goal, Colorado State pounded the Miners with three second-quarter touchdowns to take control of the game.

Bartalo scored from 15 yards out for the Rams' first touchdown and Stouffer mangled the Texas-El Paso defense with big pass plays, including a 47-yard scoring strike to flanker Sanjay Beach.

Abilene Christian 45, N. Colorado 23

GREELEY, Colo. — Abilene Christian's Scooter Phillips caught four touchdown passes, setting a school record and pacing the Wildcats to a 45-23 win over the University of Northern Colorado on Saturday.

Phillips caught touchdown passes of eight, 20, 14 and four yards from quarterback Rex Lamberti, who threw for 243 yards on 17 of 29 attempts.

Bishop College 7, Arkansas-Pine Bluff 0

DALLAS — Bishop College's Tyrone Brooks ran around the right side for a 7-yard touchdown with 8:44 left in Saturday night's game to lead the Tigers to a 7-0 win over the University of Arkansas at Pine Bluff.

The game was UAPB's season opener; Bishop evened its record at 1-1 with the win.

E. Carolina 27, SW Texas St. 17

GREENVILLE, N.C. — Senior tailback Tony Baker rushed for 164 yards and a touchdown, while Jeff Heath kicked two field goals to lead East Carolina to a 27-17 college football victory over Southwest Texas State Saturday night.

Baseball's image taking beating from drugs

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Baseball's image took a beating as the prosecution made its case in the trial of Curtis Strong, the former Philadelphia Phillies clubhouse caterer accused of dealing drugs to players.

The tarnish could deepen as the defense takes over this week and presents "two or three days' worth" of players as witnesses.

"What kind of affect will this have on America's young baseball fans?" asked defense attorney Adam O. Renfroe Jr. "These people are supposed to be their heroes. But these heroes are criminals. These heroes are junkies. These heroes bought and sold drugs like the criminal element you find on street corners in any city."

He was talking about two-time National League batting champion Dave Parker, Keith Hernandez, a co-winner of the National League's Most Valuable Player Award, and five other present or former big league ballplayers who told how they and their teammates snorted cocaine.

"Dave Parker said enough on the witness stand that he'd being going to jail for 150 years if he didn't have immunity," said Renfroe of the Cincinnati Reds outfielder.

Thus far, 30 players have been linked to drug use, and in some instances not very far from the playing field where they earned the big money that enabled them to spend big money for the drug — one player was said to have spent $100,000. Former Pirate John Milner told of one drug transaction taking place in the Pittsburgh lockerroom while a game was being played.

The Pirates also were tied to use of ampethamines, a stimulant whose purchase by law requires a prescription. Parker and New York Yankees infielder Dale Berra both said former Pirates captains Willie Stargell and Bill Madlock freely handed out the green pills — a charge vehemently denied by Stargell, now a Pirates' coach and Madlock, who now plays with the Los Angeles Dodgers.

"I don't know what kind of friend Dave is, but he's lying," Madlock said of Parker's testimony.

'This case is showing what dope, greed and money have done to what was once our national pastime," said Renfroe. "I was once a baseball fan, but after hearing this testimony, I am no longer a fan. And I suspect many other people are no longer fans."

Renfroe claims that while Strong, whom he described as a "poor, pitiful jock groupie," is the only defendant of record, baseball is on trial as well. At times, Strong's name was forgotten in the stories that enfolded.

Milner gave a chilling scenario of how baseball became secondary in importance to a player more concerned about getting his daily dose of drugs.

"You'd stay up all night doing coke and wouldn't get to bed until 3 a.m., 3:30," he said. "Your heart is pounding and you're tired but you can't sleep, so you don't get up until 2 p.m. or 3 p.m. There's no time to relax because it's time to go to the ballpark. So you take a few 'greenies,' and some coffee to wake up. Then you have a few reds before the game."

Parker told that to maintain a supply of cocaine for him and some of his Pittsburgh teammates, he arranged for his own most trusted drug supplier to accompany the Pirates on road trips.

He told of how baseball has long suspected that winter league players stuff large quantities of cocaine into their gloves and other equipment to smuggle them back into the U.S.

The name of Willie Mays was brought into the case.

Milner said that when he and the Hall of Fame outfielder were teammates on the New York Mets in 1973, Mays kept "a real potent speed" called "red juice" in his locker. Milner never saw Mays use the potion, but said one swig of it was more than enough for him.

"It was really nasty," he said.

A stunned Mays, retired for more than a decade, angrily denied the charge. Being linked to this trial, he said was"un-American ... This is a trial of a different meaning. These guys are into hard, hard drugs," he said.

The Milner-Mays incident was only one contradiction that developed from the stories being weaved daily before a packed courtroom.

The tying of Stargell and Madlock to the distribution of ampethamines was another.

And others:

— Kansas City Royals outfielder Lonnie Smith said he once shared cocaine with former Phillies teammate Gary Matthews. Matthews claimed he never has used drugs.

— Berra said he was once warned by Pirates Manager Chuck Tanner "to stay away from that gentleman" in the runaway of the Pirates dugout. The gentleman turned out to be Curtis Strong. Tanner said he never specifically warned Berra about associating with any particular person.

— Parker said Tanner and other Pirates management, even Three Rivers Stadium security, warned players against being seen with Strong and Shelby Greer, who is also accused of dealing drugs to players. Tanner said he never knew either man.

Renfroe said he may call as witnesses Stargell, Madlock — and even Pete Rose, the player-manager of the Reds, who last week broke Ty Cobb's record for career hits.

More tortured tales of athletes with too much time and too much money and too many drugs on their hands almost surely will follow.

When in doubt don't kick ball

By CHARLES RICHARDS
Associated Press Writer

When in doubt, DON'T punt.

Not if you're playing the Electra Tigers, Texas' No. 1-ranked Class 2A schoolboy football team.

The Tigers threatened to open a new statistical category Friday night. Electra blocked three Haskell punts and turned them all into touchdowns that helped carry the Tigers to a crushing 39-2 victory.

Electra also took advantage of two fumble recoveries near the Haskell goal, turning them into touchdowns. The Tigers had all 39 of their points by halftime, then turned the game over to substitutes.

Hempstead, the top-ranked team in Class 3A, was idle Friday night, but the three other No. 1 clubs in The AP's Top Ten followed Electra's lead in marking up victories by lopsided margins.

Odessa Permian, the 5A kingpin, routed El Paso Hanks 62-0; Tomball, No. 1 in 4A, thrashed New Caney 41-0; and Munday, the top-ranked 1A team, disposed of Hawley 45-7.

Electra quarterback Rodney Bell scored on a 57-yard bootleg and tossed a TD pass. Charlie Lott scored on runs of 2, 7 and 2 yards. Haskell's only points came on a safety in the third quarter after Bell fumbled in the end zone.

It was Haskell's second game against a No. 1-ranked team in as many weeks. The Indians were beaten by Munday in their season opener.

Munday scored 25 points in the second quarter Friday night against Hawley. Tim Collier scored three times for the Moguls on runs of 30 and 4 yards and on a 10-yard pass from Anthony Stinnett.

Quarterback Lance Pavlas and senior running back Bubba Greely — both of whom were on the 1984 all-state team, were the star of Tomball's runaway win over New Caney before 5,000 fans.

Greely ran for 149 yards and Pavlas threw for four touchdowns.

New Caney held the Tomball offense to only eight yards in the first quarter. But Tomball defensive lineman Scott Stevenson blocked a punt with 43 seconds left in the quarter and linebacker Jeff Scales returned it 27 yards for a score that ignited the Cougars.

In one of two games pairing ranked teams, No. 3 Houston Yates stunned No. 8 Beaumont West Brook 6-0 in 5A, 46-16. Two field goals by Layne Talbot gave West Brook a 6-0 lead, but halfback Johnny Bailey returned a kickoff 95 yards for a touchdown that got Yates rolling.

Midland Lee, 5A's No. 10 team, also lost, falling to Temple, 19-7.

In 4A, No. 2 Sweetwater was beaten 18-0 by Abilene, a 5A opponent.

Two of 3A's Top 10 were defeated. Bandera (No. 4) lost to San Antonio Alamo Heights 14-0, and Port Isabel (No. 7) was upset by Edcouch-Elsa, 10-6.

In 2A, three ranked teams lost. Fourth-ranked East Bernard fell to Needville 7-6, seventh-ranked Abernathy lost to Lubbock Roosevelt 14-7, and 10th-ranked Grand Saline fell to ninth-ranked Crandall 26-22.

None of the ranked 1A teams was beaten, but No. 7 Flatonia had to settle for a 7-7 tie with Weimar.

Needville held East Bernard at the one-foot line at the end of the first half, then escaped with its one-point upset victory when East Bernard missed a 32-yard field goal try with seven seconds left in the game.

"We had several shots at it. We just couldn't get it in," East Bernard coach Dale Lechler said of Needville's second-quarter goal line heroics.

While Tomball's closest rival in 4A was falling, other No. 2 clubs rolled on. Conroe, second in 5A, scored in the fourth quarter on a 17-yard pass and Tyke Tolbert's two-point conversion to beat Lufkin 15-14.

Navasota, No. 2 in 3A, shut out A&M Consolidated 35-0. Hamlin, No. 2 in 2A, blanked Clyde 38-0, and Union Hill, No. 2 in 1A, blasted Harmony 51-14.

Hamlin's Mike Howerton threw touchdown passes of 30 and 33 yards and ran for two other touchdowns, including one 85-yard scoring jaunt.

Union Hill's John Clemens threw for three touchdown passes.

Guy heads NFL's 25-Year all-star team

NEW YORK (AP) — Ray Guy, booming punts for the Los Angeles Raiders since 1973, when they called Oakland their home, heads the first team of 25-year all-stars from the National Football League.

The team, chosen by the selectors for the Pro Football Hall of Fame, covers the 1960-84 era, from the birth of the American Foorball League and through the merger with the NFL.

The other Raiders are linebacker Ted Hendricks, tackle Art Shell, guard Gene Upshaw and a trio of Hall of Famers — quarterback-kicker George Blanda, center Jim Otto and cornerback Willie Brown.

The Packers are safety Willie Wood, kick-returner Travis Williams and five Hall of Famers — cornerback Herb Adderley, defensive end Willie Davis, tackle Forrest Gregg, linebacker Ray Nitschke and center Jim Ringo.

The first-team quarterback is Johnny Unitas, who played for the Baltimore Colts during 1957-67 and the San Diego Chargers in 1973. His receivers are Colts teammate Raymond Berry and Lance Alworth of the Chargers and Dallas Cowboys, plus tight end Kellen Winslow of the Chargers.

Jim Brown of the Cleveland Browns and O.J. Simpson of the Buffalo Bills and San Francisco 49ers are the first-team running backs.

Six of the players are still active — Guy, Winslow, Chicago Bears running back Walter Payton, New England guard John Hannah, Minnesota Vikings (and former Kansas City Chiefs) kicker Jan Stenerud and kick-returner Billy "White Shoes" Johnson of Houston and now Atlanta.

Penalty on Trojans may be light one

By Mike Braham
Copley News Service

LOS ANGELES — If the football recruiting violations USC admitted to Friday are deemed major, it would mark the school's second such indiscretion in five years.

But USC would escape the National Collegiate Athletic Association's new "death penalty" because of a complex formula and an ex post facto clause.

The Trojans could nonetheless receive severe penalties comparable to those handed down in 1982, when the NCAA put USC on a three-year probation for a ticket-selling scheme that provided cash for football players and for giving players academic credit for a speech class they never attended.

USC officials call the lastest problem "a limited case of NCAA football recruiting violations." A Pacific-10 source said: "On the surface, these do not look like major violations."

Since the most recent violations occurred before Sept. 1, the Trojans are off death row.

For the NCAA to apply the "death penalty," which could mean the suspension of a sport for up to two years, a school would have to commit two major violations in any five-year period retroactive to Sept. 1, 1980.

There is a catch: A school would have to commit one of the two violations after Sept. 1, 1985 but before the expiration of its five-year period.

This provision was included because the severe new penalties were legislated retroactively.

Thus, while a school's five-year period can begin before the implementation of the penalties this past Sept. 1, it cannot receive the "death penalty" for repeated violations that occurred before then.

For example, USC's five-year period began on April 23, 1982, when the NCAA announced its three-year sanctions. Its five-year span expires on April 23, 1987.

If the Trojans were found to have committed a major violation between Sept. 1 and April 23, 1987, they would be subject to the "death penalty," which the NCAA instituted at its June convention as part of a get-tough stance by the presidents of its member schools to discourage and reduce chronic cheating.

If the current violations are determined to be major ones by the NCAA, then USC's five-year period of vulnerability to the "death penalty" would be extended five years from the time of sanctions.

Lamar 30, Prairie View 7

BEAUMONT — Berton Murchison set a school record and scored two touchdowns as Lamar downed Prairie View A&M 30-7 Saturday night.

Murchison's 222 yard rushing total surpassed Sammy Carpenter's 1952 record by 12 yards.

Hogs hold off Rebels

JACKSON, Miss. (AP) — Carl Miller ran five yards for the go-ahead touchdown with 8:47 to play Saturday night as No. 14 Arkansas held off stubborn Mississippi 24-19 in a nonconference football game.

In its season-opener, Arkansas, its flexbone offense sputtering at times, came from behind twice and capitalized on two late turnovers before stopping Mississippi, 0-1-1.

Cornerback Kevin Wyatt's recovery of a fumble at the Mississippi 30-yard line with 11:04 remaining set up the decisive Arkansas touchdown. The Razorbacks then scored on six plays — all on the ground. Sophomore quarterback Greg Thomas' 10-yard run was the big gain and Miller's score gave Arkansas a 17-12 lead.

Arkansas linebacker David Dudley scored a touchdown with 46 seconds to play when he took a tipped pass back 30 yards for an insurance touchdown.

Ole Miss scored with four seconds left when Jamie Holder grabbed a batted pass to complete a 39-yard play. The Rebels tried an onside kick after the touchdown but Arkansas recovered and ran out the clock.

After Arkansas took a 5-0 halftime lead on a safety and a 37-yard field goal by Greg Horne, Mississippi twice took the lead in the second half. The Rebels' first lead came on Nathan Wonsley's 10-yard pass from Kent Austin and again with 13:22 to go when Joe Mickles ran three yards for a touchdown.

Thomas, making his first start at quarterback, rushed for a game-high 115 yards.

Washam, Pulz in front

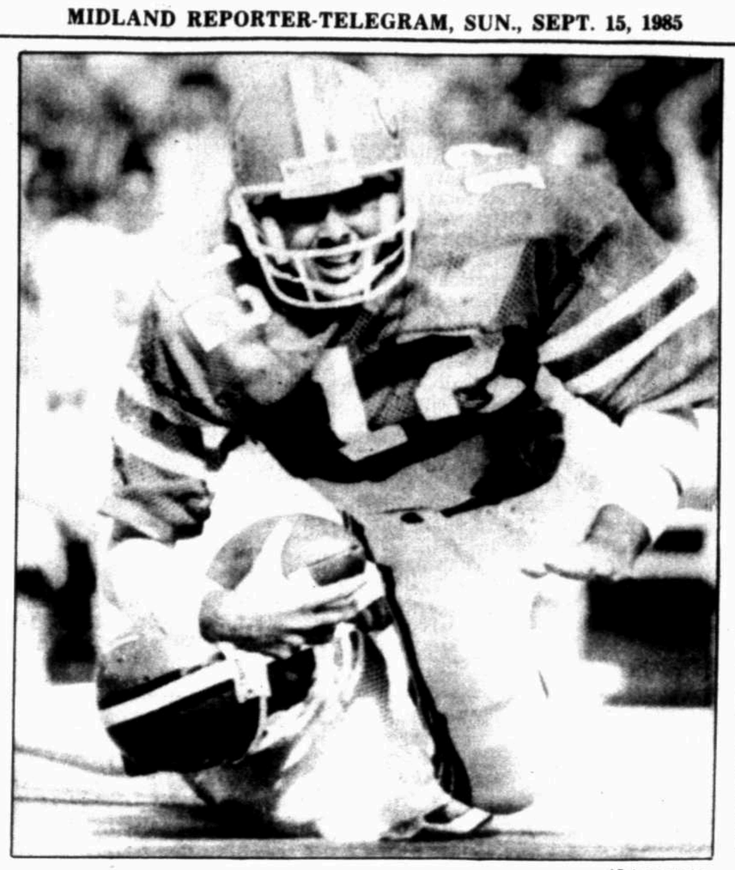

KENT, Wash. (AP) — Jo Ann Washam and Penny Pulz shared the lead among the early finishers after lightning and a rainstorm on Saturday afternoon delayed the third round of the $200,000 Safeco Classic Ladies Professional Golf Association tournament for 90 minutes.

Washam's 4-under-par 68 and Pulz's 70 gave them 216 totals, even par for 54 holes on the 6,202-yard Meridian Valley Country Club course.

They led Val Skinner and Cathy Marino by a stroke. Skinner and Marino both carded third-round 70s.

Alexandra Reinhardt, first-round co-leader who went into the second round all to herself, held it through 45 holes at 6 under par. But Beth Daniel, with six holes to play, moved into a tie with Reinhardt and Jo-Anne Carner was one shot behind with three to go.

LeeAnn Cassady, who trailed Reinhardt by a shot going into the third round, double bogeyed the third hole and was five strokes off the pace as she made her turn.

Michigan sacks Irish in opener

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (AP) — Jim Harbaugh and Gerald White scored touchdowns and the Michigan defense came up with six sacks Saturday as the Wolverines beat 13th-ranked Notre Dame 20-12 in a nonconference football opener for both teams.

Harbaugh, a senior quarterback who got the Wolverines off to a 3-1 start last season before suffering a broken arm, scored on a 10-yard run 1:40 into the second half to put Michigan ahead for the first time, 10-9.

Notre Dame placekicker John Carney kicked his fourth field goal of the game at 6:46 — tying a school record — to put the Fighting Irish ahead 12-10.

But Michigan took the ensuing kickoff and Harbaugh drove the Wolverines 80 yards in 13 plays — aided by a roughing the passer penalty against Notre Dame tackle Wally Kleine. Fullback White capped the drive with a 3-yard TD plunge to put the Wolverines on top to stay 17-12.

On their next possession, the Wolverines went 74 yards in 14 plays before freshman Mike Gillette kicked his second field goal to provide the final margin.

The Irish got the ball back on a Jamie Morris fumble with 3:43 remaining and drove to the Michigan 11. There, a third-down sack of quarterback Steve Beuerlein by Mike Hammerstein — his fourth sack of the game — set the Irish back to the 22-yard line and Beuerlein's fourth-down pass attempt was intercepted by Doug Mallory.

Carney had field goals of 34, 31, 47 and 25 yards. Gillette was good from 21 and 23 yards.

Northwestern 27, Missouri 23

COLUMBIA, Mo. — Mike Greenfield threw a fourth-quarter touchdown pass to Curtis Duncan and Stan Davenport ran for a pair of touchdowns as the Northwestern Wildcats defeated the Missouri Tigers.

Northwestern, 1-1, built a 17-7 halftime lead as Davenport scored twice and John Duvic booted a 31-yard field goal.

Missouri, losing its debut under Coach Woody Widenhofer, rallied in the third quarter to tie the game at 17-17 on Tom Whelihan's 35-yard field goal and an 11-yard run by senior fullback Manny Henry.

Duvic then kicked a 42-yard field goal for a 20-17 Northwestern lead after Wildcats defensive back Todd Krehbiel intercepted a Marlon Adler pass at the Missouri 46.

Missouri failed to move on its next series, and Northwestern drove 83 yards to eat up 6:07 of the fourth quarter before Greenfield hit Duncan in the end zone with 5:20 left.

The Tigers came back to score on junior fullback Ed Essian's 3-yard touchdown run with two seconds left in the game. An attempted conversion pass failed and Northwestern recovered an on-side kick to end the game.

Iowa 58, Drake 0

IOWA CITY, Iowa — Chuck Long passed for two touchdowns and Ronnie Harmon ran for two more as fifth-ranked Iowa, exploding for 37 points in the third quarter.

Iowa led the Division I-AA Bulldogs only 7-0 with less than a minute left in the first half, but Long teamed with Harmon on a 60-yard pass to set up a 4-yard touchdown strike to Scott Helverson with two seconds left in the period.

The Hawkeyes then capitalized on two Drake fumbles and a bad center snap on a punt to score on all five of its third-quarter possessions and break the game open. The 37 points was the most ever scored by an Iowa team in one period.

Long, the first-team all-Big Ten Conference quarterback the last two years, completed 21 of 31 passes for 248 yards and was not intercepted while playing less than three quarters.

Wisconsin 38, N. Illinois 17

MADISON, Wis. — Larry Emery and Tim Fullington each scored two touchdowns as Wisconsin overran Northern Illinois.

Emery, a junior tailback returning from a knee injury last year, scored on 47- and 13-yard runs in Wisconsin's first two possessions. Emery gained 122 yards on 17 carries.

The loss gave the Huskies a 1-1 record for the season. It was Northern Illinois' sixth loss to Wisconsin in as many meetings.

Michigan St. 12, Arizona St. 3

EAST LANSING, Mich. — Tailback Lorenzo White dashed 42 yards for an early touchdown and Chris Caudell added two field goals Saturday as Michigan State downed Arizona State, 12-3, in the season opener for both teams.

The only score the Sun Devils could manage was a 25-yard field goal by Kent Bostrom in the fourth quarter.

For most of the contest, tough defenses and early-season mistakes and penalties on both sides thwarted almost every scoring opportunity.

White racked up a career high 174 yards rushing on 39 carries to provide the punch of Michigan State's attack. Highly touted Arizona State quarterback Jeff Van Raaphorst never managed to mount a consistent passing game.

Indiana 41, Louisville 28

BLOOMINGTON, Ind. — Quarterback Steve Bradley passed for 274 yards and one touchdown and ran 64 yards for another score Saturday as Indiana ended major college football's longest losing string at 16 games with a 41-28 season-opening victory over Louisville.

The victory, sealed by junior tailback Damon Sweazy's 15-yard touchdown run midway through the fourth quarter, gave second-year coach Bill Mallory his first victory with the Hoosiers and the 100th of his career after suffering an 0-11 campaign in 1984.

Louisville fell to 0-2 under first-year coach Howard Schnellenberger and dropped its eighth straight game overall.

Cent. Michigan 27, Pacific 10

MOUNT PLEASANT, Mich. — Quarterback Ron Fillmore fired two touchdown passes Saturday to lead host Central Michigan over Pacific in a non-conference contest.

The game was Central Michigan's season opener, while Pacific fell to 1-1.

Late TD can't topple Mountaineers

MORGANTOWN, W.Va. — Linebackers Van Richardson and Matt Smith sacked Duke quarterback Steve Slayden on an attempted two-point conversion pass with 29 seconds remaining Saturday as West Virginia withstood two fourth-quarter touchdowns to beat the Blue Devils 20-18.

Fullback Tracy Smith plunged in for a 2-yard touchdown, capping a 71-yard drive, to move the Blue Devils within two points. Slayden then rolled left and was tackled at the 13-yard line by Richardson and Smith as the Mountaineers moved their record to 2-0. Duke fell to 1-1.

Trailing 17-6 after three quarters, the Blue Devils drove 61 yards, scoring on Smith's 2-yard run with 10:38 to go to make it 17-12. Smith's 45-yard run was the big play in the drive.

West Virginia then chewed up nearly seven minutes with a drive of its own that ended on Charlie Baumann's 30-yard field goal with 3:50 remaining, making it 20-12.

But the Blue Devils rallied one last time as Slayden passed to Chuck Herring for 15 yards and carried for 16 on a keeper. Smith, who also had a 16-yard run to move the ball to the West Virginia 11, scored on a fourth and one at the West Virginia 2-yard line with 29 seconds to go.

West Virginia quarterback John Talley, who missed on his first nine passes, threw for one touchdown and ran for another as the Mountaineers built their lead.

Maryland 31, Boston College 13

FOXBORO, Mass. — Rick Badanjek, Tommy Neal and Alvin Blount scored on short runs to lead a punishing ground attack that powered 17th-ranked Maryland to a 31-13 football victory over Boston College Saturday.

Leading 17-13 after three quarters, Maryland, 1-1, took control with two touchdowns in 11 seconds. Boston College, which got both its touchdowns on passes from Shawn Halloran to Kelvin Martin, dropped to 1-2.

Badanjek carried four times for 43 yards in the Terrapins' opening drive of the final period. Quarterback Stan Gelbaugh capped the 80-yard march with a 10-yard scoring strike to Eric Holder with 9:57 left in the game.

On the first play after a touchback on the ensuing kickoff, Halloran fumbled while under pressure and Scott Tye recovered for Maryland at the Eagles' 1-yard line. Badanjek, the Terrapins' all-time leading scorer, dove in on the next play and now has scored in 12 consecutive games.

Maryland dominated the first half, but penalties limited it to a 10-7 lead.

Ramon Paredes kicked a 32-yard field goal nine minutes into the game, and Neal scored on a three-yard plunge early in the second quarter.

Blount made the score 17-7 with a four-yard run midway through the third quarter. It ended an 11-play, 71-yard drive in which the Terrapins ran 10 times for 49 yards.

Clemson 20, Virginia Tech 17

BLACKSBURG, Va. — Clemson's David Treadwell booted a last-second, 36-yard field goal Saturday to give the Tigers a 20-17 win over Virginia Tech's Hokies in a fumble-ridden game.

Clemson coach Danny Ford said his team may not have deserved to win.

"I don't want to take anything away from a win .. but we're not close to doing the things we're supposed to be doing," Ford said. "I don't know if we deserved to win or not."

The winning boot came after Virginia Tech was called for roughing the kicker and penalized five yards when Treadwell's 41-yard attempt with 4 seconds left fell short.

Virginia Tech quarterback Todd Greenwood and tight end Steve Johnson had combined for a 21-yard touchdown pass on a fourth down and 14 with 5:48 left to give the Hokies a 17-17 tie.

Clemson took a 17-10 lead at 8:14 of the fourth quarter on a 46-yard pass from quarterback Randy Anderson to wide receiver Ray Williams. Anderson got off the pass as he was being knocked down by Tech defensive back Noland Hazzard.

Clemson, 1-0, lost the ball on fumbles five times to tie its school record. Virginia Tech converted two of the miscues into touchdowns.

Virginia Tech coach Bill Dooley praised his team's performance in its third consecutive loss. "Our effort was terrific. We played hard enough to win the game. But we didn't, and close is not good enough."

Ga Tech 28, N. Carolina St. 18

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — John Dewberry passed for three touchdowns, two to Gary Lee, as Georgia Tech beat North Carolina State 28-18 in Atlantic Coast Conference football Saturday, giving the Yellow Jackets their 500th victory.

Dewberry's touchdowns, all in the first half, wiped out N.C. State's early 7-0 lead and the Yellow Jackets used seven sacks — five from defensive end Pat Swilling — to keep the Wolfpack in a hole most of the game.

N.C. State quarterback Erik Kramer hit Rickey Isom on a 23-yard scoring pass with 1:13 left and teamed with Ralph Britt for a 2-point conversion to get within 10 points, but an onside kick failed and time ran out.

Dewberry, completed 10 of 20 pass attempts for 197 yards in the regionally televised season opener for the Yellow Jackets.

Tailback Cory Collier rushed for 80 yards and Jerry Mays added 69, as the Yellow Jackets piled up 411 yards in offense to 269 for N.C. State.

Kramer led the Wolfpack passing with 181 yards and two touchdowns. Running back Vince Evans rushed 90 yards on 16 carries.

Wake Forest 30, Boston U. 0

BOSTON (AP) — Senior quarterback Foy White passed for 126 yards and two touchdowns Saturday as Wake Forest scored three times in the third quarter to trounce Boston University 30-0.

Deacon running back Michael Ramseur rushed for touchdown and caught eight of White's 18 completions for 59 yards.

The Division I-AA Terriers trailed the Division I-A Deacons 10-0 after the first half as the loss of starting quarterback Pat Mancini to bruised ribs in the first period crippled their offense.

Virginia 40, VMI 15

CHARLOTTESVILLE, Va. — Tailback Howard Petty ran for touchdowns on Virginia's first two possessions and the Cavaliers scored six of the first eight times they had the ball in a 40-15 football victory over Virginia Military Institute's Keydets Saturday night.

Virginia senior kicker Kenny Stadlin tied a school record with four field goals in the season opener for both schools.

Jayhawks riddle Vandy, 42-16

LAWRENCE, Kan. (AP) — Mike Norseth riddled a porous Vanderbilt defense for 480 yards and four touchdowns Saturday, smashing Big Eight passing and total offense records and leading Kansas to a 42-16 college football victory over the Commodores.

Norseth, a rangy 6-foot-3 senior, hit 24 of 38 passes and erased the conference record of 461 yards set by Kansas State's Lynn Dickey against Missouri in 1969. He added 29 yards rushing for 509 yards in total offense that toppled Dickey's conference record of 411 yards set against Colorado in 1969. Dickey lost considerable yardage while being sacked in the Missouri game.

Willie Vaughn caught touchdown strikes covering 65 yards in the first quarter and 10 in the second for Kansas.

The Jayhawks, 2-0, soared 78 yards in only two plays to open a 28-7 lead with 2:42 left in the first half. Norseth hit Richard Estell on a 49-yard pass play that carried to the Commodore 29, then Ronnie Caldwell snared a touchdown pass on the next play.

Estell caught a 15-yard scoring pass in the third quarter that gave the Jayhawks a 35-10 lead.

Vanderbilt, 1-1, lost quarterback Mark Wracher when he tore a hamstring midway through the third period. He had passed for 212 yards.

Colorado 21, Oregon 17

BOULDER, Colo. — Quarterback Mark Hatcher dashed 22 yards for a fourth-quarter go-ahead touchdown, and cornerback David Tate and safety Mickey Pruitt protected the lead with brilliant defensive plays to lead Colorado over Oregon 21-17 Saturday in college football.

The victory raised Colorado's record to 2-0 — already more games than the Buffaloes won in all of 1984 during a dismal 1-10 campaign. Oregon fell to 1-1.

The Colorado wishbone ground out two touchdowns in the first quarter for a 14-0 lead, but Oregon chipped away at the deficit.

After a field goal, the Ducks capitalized on a Colorado fumble and scored on Tony Cherry's 2-yard run to draw within 14-10 midway through the second quarter.

Oregon then converted an interception into a third-quarter score. Chris Miller fired a 5-yard TD pass to tight end Bobby DeBisschop for a 17-14 lead.

But the Buffs countered with a nine-play, 87-yard scoring drive. Hatcher flipped a 28-yard pass to a diving Jon Embree to set up his own score with 12:34 to play.

Oregon mounted two subsequent scoring threats, but Tate intercepted Miller at the Colorado 10-yard line to halt the first drive with 7:25 left.

Then, on the final play of the game at the Colorado 3, Pruitt blitzed Miller and sacked him for a 7-yard loss.

Iowa State 10,Utah State 3

AMES, Iowa — Reserve tailback Andrew Jackson caught a 19-yard touchdown pass and Iowa State held on for a 10-3 non-conference win over Utah State in an error-plagued college football game Saturday.

Jackson's catch from quarterback Alex Espinoza capped a 54-yard, 10-play drive that started when tackle Perry Laures pounced on a fumble by Aggie quarterback Brad Ipsen at the Utah State 46.

The only other scoring came in the first half when the teams traded field goals, including a 47-yarder by sophomore Dene Garner of Utah State, which dropped to 1-1.

Iowa State threw away numerous scoring opportunities on mistakes, losing the ball on four of seven fumbles and twice on interceptions. The Cyclones, playing their season opener, were also penalized 13 times.

Will 'real' Skins, Oilers stand?

By IRA ROSENFELD

WASHINGTON (AP) — Will the real Washington Redskins and real Houston Oilers show up Sunday?

The two National Football League teams will clash in sold-out Robert F. Kennedy Stadium in Washington off first-game outings that were 180-degree turnarounds from last year's performances.

The Oilers, 3-13 in 1984, upset the American Conference champion Miami Dolphins 26-23 last Sunday. The Redskins, winners of three straight National Football Conference Eastern Division titles, were run out of Dallas Monday night 44-14 by the Cowboys.

What has happened to last year's Oilers?

"This is not the same team as last year's outfit," Redskin assistant coach Richie Petibon said after viewing films of the Oilers. "This is a very improved football team with excellent running backs and young kids who are hungry to win."

"We still have a long way to go," countered Houston Coach Hugh Campbell. "But we needed some success to prove to our team that we are improving."

Against Dallas, the Redskins proved only that seven turnovers can be fatal.

"That loss in Dallas might make them madder or might discourage them," Campbell said. "I would guess it would make them stronger."

The Redskins have come back from opening-week losses the past two seasons to win the division title.

"The players have shown an ability to bounce back in the past. There is no panic here. We will just use common sense, correct things, and come back on course," said Redskin Coach Joe Gibbs.

Unless the Redskins have completely reversed their form of recent years, the Oilers would appear to overmatched this week.

The Redskins have won 14 of their last 15 regular-season homes games and 22 of 25 dating back to 1982. The team's 7-1 record against AFC opponents over the last three years is the best of any National Conference team.

"They're awesome," Campbell said. "We haven't faced such a team with as much talent at every spot. Usually the teams we face are little soft or have a weak spot. The Redskins may not have the best people at every position but they have one of the best."

Quarterback Joe Theismann, intercepted five times against Dallas, will test his arm this week against a Houston secondary that intercepted just 13 passes last season.

John Riggins
...Oilers' main chore

His Houston counterpart, Warren Moon, completed 12 of 17 passes for 270 yards against Miami.

It's exam time for new coach

PONTIAC, Mich. (AP) — Darryl Rogers has proven he's a good teacher, but now he gets to show what kind of student he's been over the years.

Rogers put together a solid track record during 20 seasons as a college football coach and notched his first National Football League victory when his Detroit Lions edged Atlanta 28-27 last week.

But on Sunday, in his second game as coach of an NFL team, Rogers is going to be tested as a former student of his opponent, Coach Tom Landry of the Dallas Cowboys.

"I've been in the Cowboys' camp, attending clinics, for the last 20 years as a college coach," Rogers said. "I've seen their plays so many times I feel like they're my own. In fact I did take many of them back and put them into my collegiate programs."

Maybe so, but Rogers couldn't deny that watching Dallas tear apart the Washington Redskins 44-14 on national television Monday night gave him cause for concern.

The Cowboys' defense will present great problems for the Lions' still-unproven offense. Against the Redskins, Dallas intercepted six passes, returning two for touchdowns.

With that in mind, Rogers could take little comfort in the fact that his quarterback, Eric Hipple, completed only nine of 23 pass attempts, with two interceptions, against Atlanta last week. But, as the coach noted, three scored touchdowns and the Lions won.

Dallas quarterback Danny White wasn't that sharp against the Redskins, either. He completed 14 of 33 for 219 yards and one TD, with no interceptions.

Atlanta (0-1) at San Francisco (0-1)

As far as 49ers Coach Bill Walsh is concerned, this marks the beginning of the rest of the season.

"We've got 15 games left and we'll have to start there," the coach of the Super Bowl champions said after the Vikings scored twice in the last three minutes to hand the 49ers a 28-21 loss, just their second in the last 20 games.

The Falcons lost 28-27 to Detroit before just 37,785 at Atlanta's Fulton County Stadium. They surrendered 14-0 and 21-14 leads.

Indianapolis (0-1) at Miami (0-1)

As if the Colts didn't have enough troubles following a 45-3 loss to Pittsburgh, they now have to meet a Miami team angry about its own embarrassment in Houston.

Marino, who stayed out of training camp for 39 days and returned just five days before the Houston game, was lifted by Coach Don Shula after completing 13 of 24 for 159 yards and two interceptions. But he'll start ahead of Don Strock again this week.

New Orleans (0-1) at Denver (0-1)

Denver's loss to the Rams, a playoff team last season, was the least surprising of the losses by division champions.

The biggest blow in fact, was the loss of three starting defensive backs — Dennis Smith with a shoulder separation, Steve Foley with a twisted knee, and Steve Wilson with a bruised knee. Wilson was filling in for Louis Wright, still recuperating from a preseason knee injury.

But New Orleans may not be able to attack the weakened secondary that well Coach Bum Phillips says he will start Dave Wilson at quarterback. Wilson was replaced by Richard Todd in a 47-27 loss to Kansas City after going 2-for-22, including 18 straight incomplete passes.

Cincinnati (0-1) at St. Louis (1-0)

The Bengals lost 28-24 to Seattle, one of the favorites in the AFC, and now go up against one of the favorites in the NFC. The Cardinals beat Cleveland in overtime 27-24 after blowing a 17-3 fourth-quarter lead, then driving 66 yards in the final 38 seconds to tie the game.

The Cardinals lost two defensive backs — Jeff Griffin and Bobby Johnson — in the Cleveland game. Ken Anderson, who left last week's game with stomach cramps, will be back at quarterback for the Bengals.

New England (1-0) at Chicago (0-1)

The Patriots, who entered the season with a suspect defense, had seven sacks in a 26-20 wi over Green Bay as linebackers Andre Tippett and Don Blackmon each got to quarterback Lynn Dickey three times.

The Bears, who specialize in sacks but entered the season with a suspect attack, had 436 yards in total offense as they rallied from a 28-17 deficit to beat Tampa Bay 38-28. Jim McMahon, who was 23 of 34 for 274 yards, was named NFC offensive player of the week for his effort.

New York Giants (1-0) at Green Bay (0-1)

An irresistable force, a New York pass rush that had eight sacks in a 21-0 win over Philadelphia, meets a movable object — a Green Bay offensive line that allowed seven to New England.

But Packers Coach Forrest Gregg, who said he was embarrassed by the New England loss, says he hopes an offensive line riddled by injury and contract problems is starting to come together. Greg Koch, who walked out of training camp and returned last week, returns to his starting tackle position.

Minnesota (1-0) at Tampa Bay (0-1)

Bud Grant, who made a triumphant return as Vikings coach in the win over San Francisco, considers this game as important or more so because it comes within the NFC Central. The Bucs will have Steve Young, the United States Football League's $40-million man, in uniform, but Steve DeBerg will be the quarterback.

Seattle (1-0) at San Diego (1-1)

While the win over Cincinnati was welcome, the Seahawks were even more enouraged by the performance of Curt Warner, who made a dazzling cut on the 11-yard touchdown run that won the game. Warner missed nearly all of last year with a knee injury.

Pittsburgh (1-0) at Cleveland (0-1)

Despite it''s long-term domination of the AFC Central, the Steelers haven't won in Cleveland since 1981.

Pittsburgh did what it pleased in its win over Indianapolis last week but the Browns, 5-11 last season, got off to a discouraging start. They rallied from a two-touchdown fourth-quarter deficit to take the lead from St. Louis, only to see the Cards tie it and win in overtime.

Los Angeles Rams (1-0) at Philadelphia (0-1)

After the eight-sack disaster against the Giants, Eagles Coach Marion Campbell changed quarterbacks instead of blockers, installing mobile rookie Randall Cunningham in place of Ron Jaworski. The Rams, meanwhile, continue without Eric Dickerson and will have Charles White and perhaps Barry Redden in his place if Redden's injured ankle improves.

Buffalo (0-1) at New York Jets (0-1)

Neither team scored a touchdown the first week, though the Bills got three field goals from Scott Norwood in their 14-9 loss to San Diego. Vince Ferragamo was 31-46 for 377 yards but couldn't get the Bills in the end zone.

The Jets, who allowed 10 sacks in a 31-0 loss to the Los Angeles Raiders, opened their coffers this week to lure back walkout offensive tackles Marvin Powell and Reggie McElroy and sign wide receiver Al Toon, their top draft pick.

Popham's TD pop ruins Wildcats

WATER VALLEY— Steve Popham scored on a couple of 23-yard runs as Greenwood rushed for 359 yards in a 34-0 rout of Water Valley Friday night to raise its record to 2-0.

Brad Rose cashed in with 4:17 left in the first period on a seven-yard jaunt and at 2:51 of the second period, Popham scored his firfst touchdown and Glenn Peal passed to Mark Graham for a 14-0 halftime lead.

Mitchell Russell broke loose on a 24-yard TD canter in the third period and Todd Martin followed Popham's second TD saunter at 6:32 of the fourth period with a five-yard TD burst with 2:25 left in the game.

Monahans 30, Hobbs 6

HOBBS — A tough Monahans, Texas, defense held Hobbs to one first down and Robbie Ysalde and Dana Ames carried the offensive load as the West Texas team trounced the Eagles 30-6 Friday.

Ames and Ysalde each scored twice and Ames, the fullback, finished with 154 yards on 15 carries.

Hobbs, still winless at 0-3 under first-year coach George Janes, took an early 6-0 lead when Juwan Dobbins recovered a Monahans fumble and returned it 28 yards for a score.

However, Monahans, 2-0, completely dominated the game the rest of the way.

Ysalde scored from 4-yards out early in the second quarter and added a 25-yard touchdown later in the period. Ames tacked on a 64-yard TD scamper as Monahans broke out to a 21-6 halftime lead that was never threatened by the hapless Eagles.

U.S. trails in Ryder

SUTTON COLDFIELD, England (AP) - The British-European team, given the break they needed when Craig Stadler missed a two-foot putt, took a two-point lead over the stunned Americans going into Sunday's final 12 singles matches of the Ryder Cup golf matches.

"I know a two-shot swing — even with 12 matches out and one point on each match — two points is a lot of points," said Lee Trevino, who faces the possibility of serving as captain of the first losing American Ryder Cup team since 1957.

"That's why I put my strongest players off first (in Sunday's matches), to try to get my two points back as soon as I can.

"If I don't get some points from those first four matches, we're in trouble," Trevino said after the British-European forces had taken 5½ of a possible eight points in Saturday's play and moved into a 9-7 lead.

The matches are sponsored by Bell's Scotch.

It was the first time since 1949 that the Europeans had taken a lead into the last day's play in these biennial matches that started in 1927. The United States holds a 21-3-1 lead in the series.

The prospect of an end to that long American domination prompted the gallery of 24,532 to abandon their usual courteous reserve, to laugh at poor American shots, to applaud the splash of a ball in the water and to hiss at the wives of American players who walked the Belfry Golf Club course with their grim-faced husbands.

"There was a lot of hissing. There's no place for that in the game of golf," Trevino said. "We're all friends. And we'll be friends when it's over, no matter who wins."

His bid to make it another American triumph, centered on the opening matches, which send Lanny Wadkins against Manuel Pinero of Spain, Ray Floyd against Paul Way of England, Tom Kite against Spanish ace Seve Ballesteros and Stadler against Ian Woosnam of Wales.

And it was Stadler, red-faced in anger, who provided the swing in momentum from the Americans to the Europeans.

He missed a two-foot putt on the 18th green in the final match of the fourball play Saturday morning. It deprived the Americans of what appeared to be a sure point, enabled the Europeans to gain a tie and "had my team buzzing," British-European Captain Tony Jacklin said.

Trevino attempted to shrug it off.

"As long as the game of golf is played, short putts will be missed," he said.

"I'd already given him the putt in my mind," Jacklin said. "It changed everything."

CITY

Most of her opponents wish she had stuck to tennis, where she first gained attention. "I don't remember how many I've won," says the defending champion. Like some golfers fighting the sand and mesquite roughs, sometimes it's hard to keep track of all the strokes, but it's 13.

Thirteen straight years! Amazing. They might just as well forget the tournament and start with the presentation ceremonies. Even the Yankees of the '20s, '30s, '40s and '50s never strung together 13 in a row.

Mrs. Britton figures, however, her days may be number, "Ann Coombes is coming over from New Mexico State to play in the tournament. It's about time for somebody else to win one."

But don't get the idea Mrs. Britton plans an abdication without resistance. "I've driven about 9,000 miles this summer taking the kids to college (Conn. and Arizona) and I'm not sure my golf game is what it should be.

"I hope I have saved one good round for when I need it."

Although she is exempt from Tuesday's qualifying, Mrs. Britton will play, "They are having the special competitions like the long-driving contest that day."

Coombes, a former Midland High star, is attending New Mexico State University in Las Cruces, and now that her college eligibility has been used up , she is teaching a class. She graduates in the spring.

The City is a tournament she has wanted to compete in and this year, with new collegiate obligations, she is free to participate and keep her competitive edge. Her last tournament was the Women's West Texas. She will arrive Monday and also play in Tuesday's qualifying round.

Last year, Mrs. Britton defeated Jo Dickson, 5-4, in the finals.

"I'm sure they'll put Ann and I at the opposite ends of the bracket." she says.

After 13 years, Mrs. Britton assures that habit or over-confidence is no factor. "I never go into a tournament thinking I'm going to win."

The City tournament opens with match play Wednesday through Friday.

Thomson opens three-shot lead

RICHMOND, Va. (AP) — Australian Peter Thomson shot his second straight 3-under-par 69 Saturday and opened up a three-shot lead with a 36-hole total of 138 after the second round of the $250,000 United Virginia Bank-PGA Senior golf tournament.

But for bogeys on the 13th and 14th holes, the 56-year-old leading money winner on the tour would have been out of sight heading into Sunday's final round of the 54-hole tournament over the 6,644-yard Hermitage Country Club course.

Nothing like baseball's fair weather friends

"Hello, operator? Get me Al Campanis, the head honcho of the Dodgers. Don't tell him who's calling. No, I don't want to surprise him, I just want him to take the call.

"Hello, Al? Hey, the Chief! El Heffy! Hail to the Chief! Dum-dum-da-dum-da-da-da-da-da-da-dum-dum!

"How's the old front office, Jefe? The old pennant-winners, eh? What a job you're doing there, Chief! Everybody's talking!

"What? No, I haven't changed my mind. I always knew you guys had it in you. What do you mean, why didn't I write that way? Chief! What's a few adjectives here and there among friends? I mean, come on!

"Chief, I got to thinking. What with the playoffs and the World Series coming up, how's the old ticket situation? Eh? I was thinking maybe 10 or so along the third base line and a dozen behind home plate for openers. Front row. I got friends in Hollywood. My people like to be seen. I mean, what are we, Bob Uecker?

"What do you mean, how can I be asking for World Series tickets for a team I said couldn't pick up a rolling ball? Chief, where's your sense of humor? Now, about those tickets ... are we talking sense of humor here or what?

"What? How can I want to see a Dodger team in a World Series that doesn't have Garvey, Lopes and Cey on it? Chief, who are they?

"ALL RIGHT, all right, listen! I know I said those things! I just wanted to see if you were paying attention. Look, Al, if you got rid of Garvey, Cey and Lopes and Baker, that should be good enough for me, right? I mean, who am I, Branch Rickey? Al, in addition to those on the first base side, I'll want some in the shade. Will a check be all right?

"What? Aren't I afraid those guys who can only hit home runs in the rarefied atmosphere of Albuquerque will blow it? How can I have faith in guys I said couldn't hit home runs at sea level? Al, be serious. What am I, a meteorologist? Do I look like a guy who knows anything about isobars, barometric pressures, inches of mercury? Now, let's get back to the subject, which is World Series tickets.

"Al, I never said you traded the pennant to Chicago and San Diego. What I said was, wasn't it a lousy stinking coincidence that Ron Cey's and Garvey's teams were in the playoffs last year and yours wasn't. I was as surprised as you were. Not as surprised as Peter O'Malley was, to be sure, but surprised.

"Tickets aren't going to be hard to get are they, Al?

"What do you mean you have to take care of your friends first? Al, look at it this way: I'm just protecting the fans' interest. Keeping you on your toes.

"WHAT? They take care of their on interests? Come on, Al! You know the L.A. fans. Go home in the seventh inning. Go out for a hot dog with the bases loaded and the game on the line. You know how they are. They'll say, "Well, gee, the poor fellows are trying." In New York, the fans'll say, "Who told you you were a pitcher, ya dummy!"

"Look at it another way: you ever heard an L.A. crowd boo? Somebody's got to stick up for them, Al. They just don't understand the situation. They'll boo a quarterback but give a standing ovation to a pitcher who goes an inning and a half.

"You think they don't need education? They're like a journalist who'll take a second carbon. They forgive, Al. Forgiveness and understanding just don't have any place in baseball, Al. You know that. You ever forgive the guy who sold you Dave Goltz?

"Look, Al, I know your first baseman has a natural home run stroke. Who was it pointed out that every fifth hit he had was a home run? Ask yourself that. What? You say then I added that on his good months this came to two home runs. Chief, that wasn't me. That was Don Rickles.

"What do you mean, sometimes it's hard to tell us apart? Who was it told the fans you had the greatest double play combination in the history of baseball? No, I did not say it was your No. 3 and No. 4 hitters, I meant in the field!

"Al, what it boils down to is, am I going to get the tickets or not? Enough of this silly love making, let's go to business. What? You've already committed your share?

"OK, WISE guy! You asked for it! You think you can win the pennant with that bunch of humpties? If you can get in the World Series I can get in the House of Lords! Tell me, was Chaplin ever funnier than your infield? Mack Sennett would have paid a fortune for their routines.

"Where'd you get that lineup anyway, out of the Yellow Pages? Where did they get their gloves at, a foundry?

"I'll tell you one thing: Branch Rickey would be ashamed to put that team on a field. It looks like it belongs at Lourdes, not Shea Stadium. Can't you tell a ballplayer from a headwaiter? Why'd you pick Albuquerque for a farm? The Matterhorn taken, was it? all you can learn at 5,000 feet is how to yodel. Tell me, does your team play with brooms in their hats?

"Keep your World Series tickets. It's going to be played in New York anyway. That's a team that was put together! Tell me, does it bother you that Darryl Strawberry, Gary Carter and Keith Hernandez all grew up around here? Couldn't use 'em, could you?

"No tickets, eh? All right, no more Mr. Nice Guy!"

North Carolina's Earl Winfield (21) is tackled by LSU defenders during first half action at Kenan Stadium Saturday.

Hilliard sparks LSU over Heels

CHAPEL HILL, N.C. (AP) — Dalton Hilliard took his first step Saturday toward what he hopes is a run at the Heisman Trophy, but the senior running back said his top concern was that No. 12 Louisiana State didn't slip in its season opener.

"I'm hoping it will be the start of a good season for me, but it was more important that we get that first win," Hilliard said. "If we have a good season as a team, the individual honors will come."

Hilliard, a 5-foot-8, 180-pounder, rushed for 142 yards and two touchdowns and Ron Lewis booted a school-record 54-yard field goal as the Tigers beat North Carolina 23-13.

Hilliard, who rushed for 1,268 yards last year, said the Tigers, who never led in the first half, had their problems early with the Tar Heels.

"I think some of the players lost their composure ... and some of the players got panicky," Hilliard said. "But I talked to them and told them to relax. They were just over-eager."

North Carolina Coach Dick Crum said he was impressed not only with Hilliard, but with the Tigers as well.

"I don't know if we will play a team with an arsenal like that again," Crum said. "I don't know if we're going to see a back like Hilliard. He is a great, great player."

Lewis' kick, which surpassed by one yard the school record set by Juan Roca in 1972 against Rice, broke a 13-13 halftime tie and gave the Tigers their first lead with 5:24 left in the third period.

Hilliard, who carried the ball 31 times, muscled in from three yards out with 12:20 left as LSU won its season-opener. North Carolina is 1-1.

Quarterback Jeff Wickersham, who completed 23 of 34 for 206 yards, hit fullback Garry James with a 34-yard pass to key the Tigers' 70-yard drive.

The Tar Heels drove to the LSU 30 on its next possession, but Kenny Miller missed a 46-yard field goal. Later in the period, UNC drove to the LSU 14, but on a fake field goal attempt, holder Wes Sweetser overthrew tight end Damon Hueston with 4:23 left.

Quarterback Kevin Anthony completed 31 of 53 passes for 302 yards and one touch

PUBLIC NOTICE

On August 20, 1985, Westar Transmission Company, a Division of Cranberry Pipeline Corporation, filed with the Railroad Commission of Texas a Statement of Intent to change its City Gate Rate. This rate applies to sales by Westar to Energas, Andrews Gas Company, Inc. and the City of Whitedeer.
The proposed change increases the cost of service component to $0.75 and alters the definition of weighed average cost of gas. The proposed change will increase to annual revenues of Westar by $26,185,504 and is a "major change" as that term is defined in TEX. REV. CIV. STAT. ANN. art 1446e, Sec. 5.08. The proposed change will take effect on September 25,1985. Further information or a copy of the Statement of Intent can be obtained from Westar at P.O. Box 90, Amarillo, Texas 79189 or from the Railroad Commission of Texas at P.O.Drawer 12967, Capitol Station, Austin, Texas 78711-2967.

A fatal automobile accident occurred on August 11, 1983, on Loop 250 at approximately 10:15p.m. in the vicinity of what is now Chili's Restaurant. The car, a 1981 red Audi 5000, struck the curb and rolled into the field north of the Loop ejecting and killing the driver. Several people may have witnessed the accident and others came upon the scene shortly afterward. One passing motorist, is thought to have used his headlights to help illuminate the scene so that rescue efforts could be undertaken. If you have any knowledge of this occurrence, please call Wendy at 684-5782.

WE'RE LOOKING FOR THE CREAM.

GRANDY'S HAS WHAT IT TAKES TO ATTRACT THE VERY BEST.

Grandy's is one of the best fast food chains today. Growing rapidly and doing one of the highest average unit sales volumes in fast foods.

It takes the best company to get the best people. And Grandy's gets the creme de la creme by offering tremendous working advantages.

For example, an average of five managers per unit allows a five day work week and two consecutive days off. And most restaurants close by 11 PM, not 2 or 3 AM.

Another advantage at Grandy's. Unit Managers enjoy above-average earnings including bonuses and benefits. First Day medical and dental coverage are in the package.

Structured training program at full salary is yet another plus. And it's one of the best programs in fast foods.

New opportunities are opening up every day. During 1985, more than 50 new Grandy's will have opened. We're going nation-wide and our expansion is backed by our $1.2 billion parent company, Saga Corporation.

Ideally, you should have one or more years successful experience in restaurant management or a service-related field.

Like they say, the cream always rises to the top. And that's what you can do at Grandy's.

For more information, please call Ginger Tessier collect at (214) 420-8022. 997 Grandy's Lane, Lewisville, TX 75067.

BUYERS GUIDE

IMPORTANT: Spoken promises are difficult to enforce. Ask the dealer to put all promises in writing. Keep this form.

VEHICLE MAKE ____ MODEL ____ YEAR ____ VIN NUMBER ____
DEALER STOCK NUMBER (Optional) ____

WARRANTIES FOR THIS VEHICLE

☐ AS IS—NO WARRANTY
YOU WILL PAY ALL COSTS FOR ANY REPAIRS. The dealer assumes no responsibility for any repairs regardless of any oral statements about the vehicle.

☒ WARRANTY
☐ FULL ☒ LIMITED WARRANTY. The dealer will pay 100 % of the labor and 100 % of the parts for the covered systems that fail during the warranty period. Ask the dealer for a copy of the warranty document for a full explanation of warranty coverage, exclusions, and the dealer's repair obligations. Under state law, "implied warranties" may give you even more rights.

SYSTEMS COVERED: Engine: Cylinder Block and All Internal Parts, Cylinder Head Assemblies, Timing Case, Chain, Gears, Belt and Sprockets, Harmonic Balancer, Oil Pump, Water Pump. Transmission: Case and all Internal Parts, Torque Converter, Drive Plate, Flex Plate, Fly Wheel, Bell Housing, Transaxle Case or Rear Axle Housing and all Internal Parts, Drive Shaft and Axle Shaft Assemblies and their Housings, Axle Shaft Bearings, Drive Shaft Center Bearings, Constant Velocity Joints, Universal Joints and Yokes

DURATION: All listed components are covered for 3 Months from the vehicle sale date or 3,000 miles from the vehicle's odometer reading at the time of vehicle sale, whichever comes first, after payment by the customer of the first $50 of covered repair costs for each repair visit.

☒ SERVICE CONTRACT. A service contract is available at an extra charge on this vehicle. Ask for details as to coverage, deductible, price, and exclusions. If you buy a service contract within 90 days of the time of sale, state law "implied warranties" may give you additional rights.

PRE PURCHASE INSPECTION. ASK THE DEALER IF YOU MAY HAVE THIS VEHICLE INSPECTED BY YOUR MECHANIC EITHER ON OR OFF THE LOT.

SEE THE BACK OF THIS FORM for important additional information, including a list of some major defects that may occur in used motor vehicles.

380 Auto Services

Most cars today use a new body design called "Unibody". the days of the heavy steel frame have come and gone.

These new "Unibody" cars have advantages and disadvantages. One of the disadvantages is that they cannot be repaired using the same tools and techniques as those used on cars with steel frames. All wrecked "Unibody" cars should be repaired with special frame and welding equipment.

We at Sloan Brothers Buick have all the new frame and welding equipment. We can repair all cars to their original factory specifications.

Kitchens and Baths: Looking Good and Working Well

With the many decorative ideas now available to consumers, most any kitchen or bath can acquire that "magazine look."

But several homes in various areas of Midland have that look "built into" their basic floor plan designs.

One home such as this is located at 1704 Castleford (pictured center left). With approximately 2,369 square feet of living space and listed at $149,500 by Regency Realtors, this two-story modern traditional home features 2 1/2 baths and a spacious kitchen with breakfast nook and wet bar area.

The kitchen has a fresh, clean look accented by stark white wallpaper with a multicolored pastel plaid pattern. An island bar/buffet easily accommodates a dishwasher, sink and decorative additions. An L-shaped cabinet area features all-electric appliances with a self-cleaning oven, microwave and cooktop.

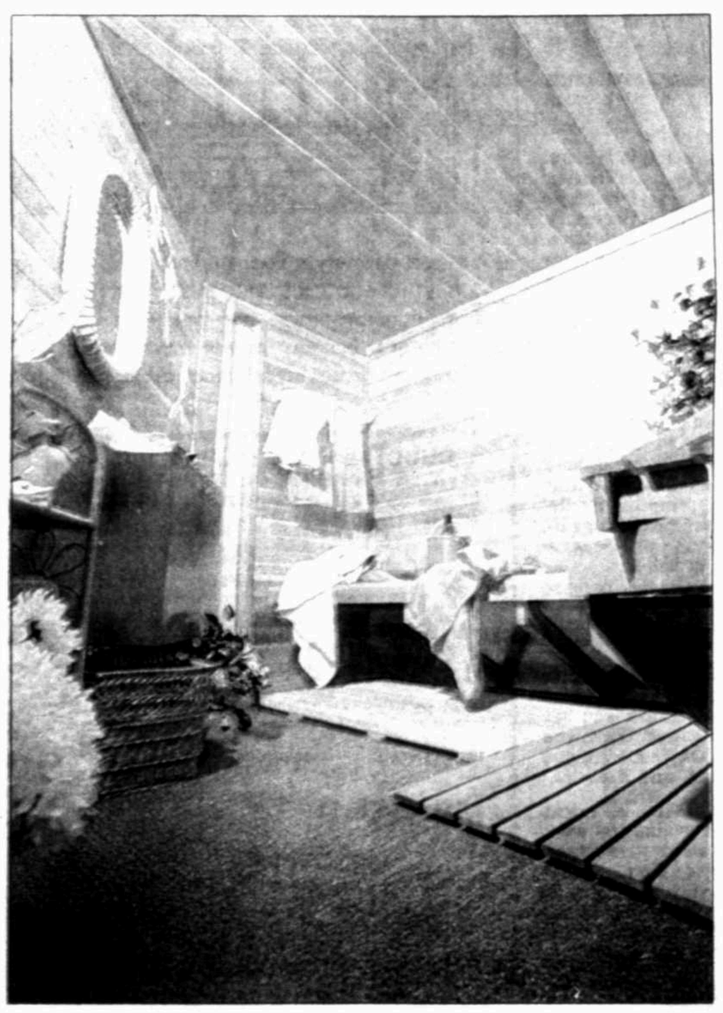

A closet pantry and desk add convenience for the user.

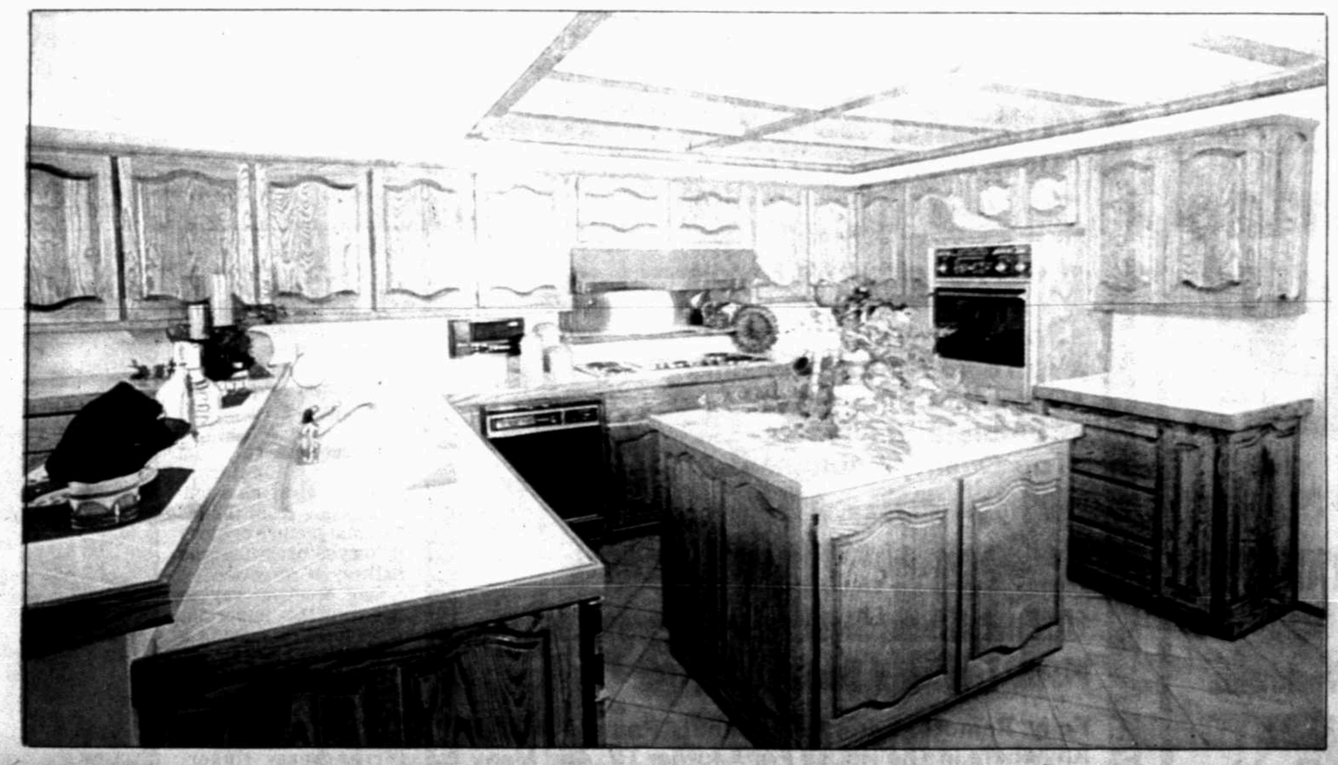

With doors into the formal dining room and two-car garage, this room is not only workable; it is also private from the entertaining and living sectors of the home.

A large, curved wet bar, designed as an extension to the kitchen, poses as a leisure area for guests and residents alike. Under soft lights, a mirrored wall contains sturdy glass shelves. Spacious cabinets easily stock a variety of bar items. A parquet floor and taupe walls piped in stark white wood enrich its luxury design. The entire area onlooks a large fenced backyard and covered patio.

Located in the heart of the very elite Racquet Club addition at #6 Greenwich is a large, luxury class established residence with extensive features throughout (pictured on cover, center right). Listed by Carriage Company Realtors, this luxury home lists for $475,000.

And one of its many amenities is in the master bath area, which includes two vanity areas, separate water closets, bidet, jacuzzi tub, shower and large closets. A sheek skylight illuminates the coral and creamy brown palm-leaf patterns in the wallpaper and plush champagne carpet.

But the star of the show in this area is a large walk-in steam sauna. Offering two long redwood benches and worlds of wallspace, this room, when not in use, is perfect for an "all-redwood sitting room" marvelously displaying decorative touches.

Moving onto one of the newest sections of Midland at Greentree Country Club, lie The Oaks Townhomes at 4804 Oriole. One of these luxurious domains boasts approximately 3,200 square feet of living space and is listed by Chapparal Realtors at $210,000 (pictured on cover, bottom right).

With Italian tile floors and cabinet tops, stark white walls and bulb-enclosed bamboo lights, the look is sheek and clean.

A work island topped in durable butcher block stands ready for use.

A Thermador double range and hooded electric cooktop with folding shelves and grill are perfect for even the non-professional gourmet chef.

Many custom-built oak cabinets with a glass-inlayed china hutch line the perimeter of the area.

Three large closet pantries with folding oak doors along one wall of the breakfast nook can easily store ample quantities of food for any size family. A built-in desk with bookcase services the recipe needs of the chef while he/she is in the kitchen area.

But a most worthwhile luxury in this area is its lush view of the landscaped courtyard and residential area.

In the split-level kitchen with a vaulted ceiling, all new electric appliances grace the area.

Under recessed lighting, the carpeted room features white mini blinds, contrasting white cabinets with sleek black formica tops.

Ample storage and cabinet space add convenience for the user.

Easy access to the great room and nearby utility room through 2 large airy openings complete the convenience and extraordinary size of this area.

All of these homes boast many other luxurious features as well. For more information, contact your realtor.

In the kitchen of this home located at 5501 Castleford, listed by Coldwell-Banker Adobe Realtors, lies a roomy area for a family of any size. Featuring the newest technology in an all electric kitchen, wood cabinets with convenient pull-out shelves, a snack bar and a work room as a useable extension of this area, this home has amenities each member of the family will enjoy.

This beautiful master bath at 5501 Castleford complements the modern traditional style of the home. It is furnished with rich blue and champagne accessories and features separate his and her marble vanities, tub, shower and large walk-in closets. Rich wood tones and a beautiful floral arrangement bring a warm quality to the bath. Wallpaper and specially-designed recessed lighting add to the beauty of the room. The home is currently listed by Coldwell-Banker Adobe Realtors.

European-style cabinets: How are they different?

There's more to European-style cabinetry than immediately meets the eye. Inside as well as outside, its look is different from that of most American-made units for kitchen, bathroom and storage elsewhere in the home.

It's built differently, too. Granted, it was largely the appearance of European cabinets that captured the American consumer when it began to appear here about 10 years ago. Many people liked the idea of replacing their traditional cabinetry with something that looked really different.

Now the European production method is beginning to catch on in this country, too.

The European production system, basically, is a 32 millimeter boring system - an assembly system that permits the drilling of all necessary holes (for shelf brackets, for hinges) at one time. It also permits the cabinet to be frameless, so there's more space inside.

Here, cabinetry has traditionally been of wood, with a front frame attached, so that what you typically see when looking at an American-style cabinet are a door and a drawer surrounded by a front frame.

The Europeans asked themselves what function the front frame serves and simply eliminated it, thus saving money and prompting the development of a new type of hinge by which the doors of the plastic laminate cabinets are attached.

The cabinets are laminate because in Europe there's a shortage of wood, and the hinges are completely concealed.

When you look at a European cabinet, instead of seeing a door and a drawer on a front frame, you see only a door and a drawer. When you look at a European-style kitcen, you see only flush doors and drawers.

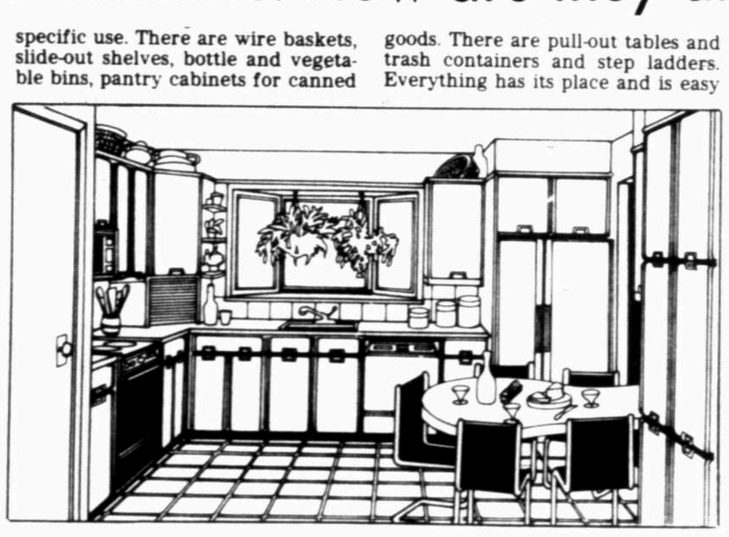

The backbone of the American cabinet industry remains the wood cabinet with a raised panel door. That hasn't changed. What's changing is our production technique to that of the Europeans, and our increasingly greater interest in the cabinet without a front frame.

specific use. There are wire baskets, slide-out shelves, bottle and vegetable bins, pantry cabinets for canned goods. There are pull-out tables and trash containers and step ladders. Everything has its place and is easy to put back where it belongs.

While many of the specialized storage systems were already available in American cabinetry when the Europeans arrived, it was the Europeans who really promoted them, in the process markedly changing both face and function of the kitchen/bath cabinet.

It's exciting to change the total look of your kitchen in the course of remodeling - from a raised panel wood door, say, to an almond or white laminate cabinet with full overlay door.

If you're a traditionalist at heart, it can be just as rewarding to retain that classic raised panel look in cabinets that simply have more built-in conveniences and more space inside.

The European-style cabinets in this kitchen were produced in the U.S. but have all the elements of European design. With high-pressure laminate inside and out, they're frameless and have concealed hinges. Built-ins include tray dividers, cutlery drawer, bread box, pull-out trash basket and appliance garage.

Start with floorplan

If you're thinking of remodeling a bathroom, do as the experts do.

The National Kitchen and Bath Association suggests starting with two things: The floor plan of your existing bath, bare of its fixtures and a list of the conveniences you'd like the new bath to include.

The reason for starting with a bare floor plan is that the average person, when remodeling, tends to replace tub, toilet and lavatory without seriously considering their relocation to improve the room's layout and function. Yet moving a tub or lavatory even six inches may make it possible to compartmentalize.

This is the kind of dreaming you can more readily indulge by moving cut-outs around on a sheet of blank paper. Don't handicap yourself with existing error. It needn't cost you a fortune.

If the bath you plan to remodel is on the first floor and piping is readily available from the basement, moving fixtures might stretch your budget to no more than $500. At its most difficult - suppose the piping for a second story bath is buried in the first floor ceiling - the extra cost shouldn't exceed $1,500.

Windows deserve full treatment

Windows have come a long way. From the slit in the castle wall to glass houses where the walls have disappeared altogether, windows have always been an integral part of our shelter. As our source of daylight indoors, and our view of the world outdoors, windows are key elements in our homes and the way we decorate them.

Or should we. They return the attention they get in the multiple ways they add to the appeal and comfort of any room particularly if they have the softer look of the latest window treatments.

Because a softly draped fabric imparts an air of relaxed comfort and luxury, today's trends in draperies show the use of extra fullness in the pleats and gathers, often with ruffled edges and other nostalgic details.

It's a traditional look, but the difference is one attuned to modern lifestyles: it all comes pre-packaged. Drapery manufacturers see an ever-growing demand from consumers for a dressy look at windows, but one that is easy to achieve. So, they are adding what were once custom-only details to the ready-made collections.

There are richer, more formal fabrics in the new styles as well as valances and cornices. All are packaged and easily installed with standard hardware. And they fit beautifully with the more classical styles of furniture that are returning to popularity. Energy-saving properties are a consideration, also. The layered look is very popular, not only for its appearance but for its practicality since the pleats and layers entrap warm air. Thermo-suede backings also provide energy conservation assets.

It couldn't be easier with new ready-made draperies: pick them out and put them up at the windows to embellish the whole room.

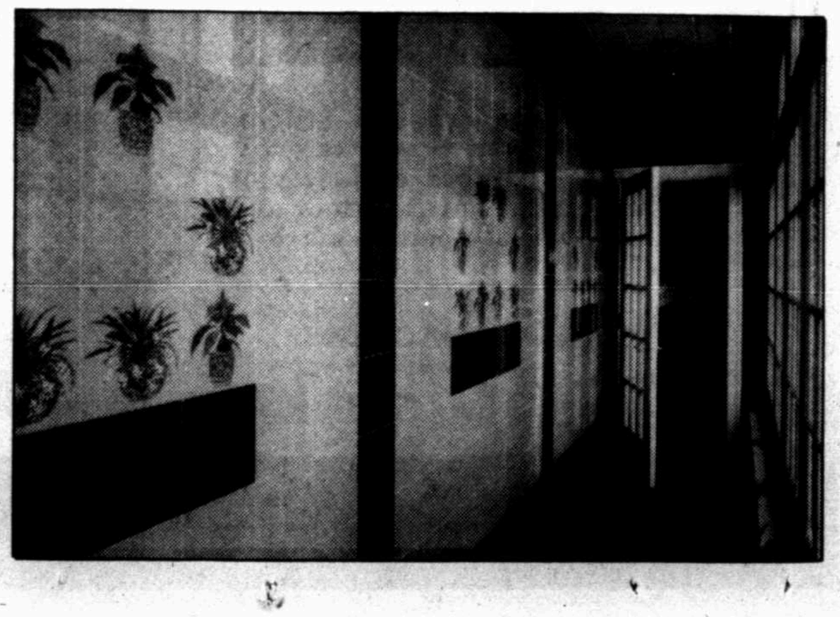

The important drapery treatment is the focal point of this dining room off an open kitchen. Very full pleating lends a luxurious air and a deep ruffled valance emphasizes the treatment.

Tile mural can brighten hallway

What room in the house is most often overlooked? The hallway may seem a surprising answer, but for a spot that receives so much traffic, it certainly doesn't get much attention. Aside from the occasional picture or clock or maybe bookshelf, the hallway is forgotten.

One creative way to liven up this important passage is by making a tile mural. Italian ceramic tiles come in every color and style to suit any home. The benefits are numerous. Dirty, greasy fingerprints wipe right off, the hall will never need repainting and the wall can be a do-it-yourself project the whole family can enjoy.

Windows can add to expensive heat loss

Windows in your home can be energy disasters. Up to 30% of the heat in a typical home can escape through uncovered windows. Although this varies with climate differences, the right window covering can go a long way in preventing expensive heat loss through your windows. Surprisingly few people consider energy-saving potential when choosing window coverings.

Even though any drapery will form a barrier between the room and the window, creating improved comfort, only the right choice of material and correct fit will help energy savings.

Draperies that part in the middle are still the most common window covering. However, just hanging them on a traverse rod will not save you energy dollars. Maximum benefits come from a tightly woven lined drape that fits properly and is sealed at the top, sides and bottom when hung.

To seal the draperies at the top, install a wood valance that closes off the entire top, keeping cold air behind the drapery. Wood valances are often very decorative and can be covered to coordinate with the color scheme of the room.

Sides can be sealed by tacking draperies to the window frame. If the window is not framed in wood, magnetic strips attached to the drape and the frame are useful.

To improve the closure at the bottom, add weights inside the hem of draperies that go to the floor. For sill-length draperies, add magnetic strips to the hem and another to the sill.

Make sure the draperies overlap sufficiently in the center. Most drapery experts will suggest at least a three-inch overlap. For maximum money-saving benefits, keep drpaeries closed during cold weather a minimum of 12 hours a day.

Various types of shades can also help keep out winter drafts and help lower heating bills. Heavy vinyl shades that roll up and down are relatively inexpensive. To improve their energy value, when hanging, place the brackets on the inside of the window frame. This allows the shade to hang as close as possible to the glass. Make sure, when drawn, that the bottom rests firmly on the sill. The vertical edges can be sealed by having the edges run up and down in grooves installed on the inside edges of the window frame.

Insulating Roman shades add a decorative touch and are more energy efficient than vinyl shades, but the best cloth-type shade is the window quilt. With five layers of quilted material, its insulation value is considerably higher than either vinyl or Roman shades.

State-of-the-art tech comes home

While kitchen appliances haven't changed a great deal in the past 35 years, you can expect major developments in the next decade, Ray W. Afflerbach, Certified Kitchen Designer, told editors of the nation's leading consumer magazines at a seminar organized by the National Kitchen and Bath Association in New York.

Afflerbach is executive director of NKBA.

Many of the changes we'll seee over the next ten years, said Afflerbach, have been slowly developing during the 1970s and 80s.

"Already our major state-of-the-art home appliances monitor, flash, beep and signal," observed Afflerbach. "Now they're starting to talk. The trend to give-and-take communication, with continuing advances in computer and sensor technology, can't help but accelerate."

Tracing the kitchen through the 35-year period since its design first became a profession, Afflerbach cited solid state controls, more sophisticated cycles of operation and self-defrosting, self-cleaning, self-venting capabilities as some of the subtle changes in the appliance marketplace prompted by competition.

Ranges, he commented, remained basically the same until the ceramic cooktop was introducded something over 10 year ago, followed by the electromagnetic unit. Next on the scene was convection cooking, either complementing the microwave (now a fixture in some 40 percent of American kitchens) or with a conventional oven.

The newest development is the European-style range unit with solid burner core and no drip pan — "a concept that's catching on quickly," the NKBA executive said.

Afflerbach foresees "benefits of computerization we couldn't even imagine a few years ago," including appliances that "will think for us, tell us whether they're healthy or not, and ask us for more information so they can perform more efficiently."

Since statistics indicate that in the year 2000, more than 70 percent of American homes will be those in existence today, it's likely appliances will remain much the same in size and configuration for some time, forecast another speaker at theNKBA meeting.

"But they'll definitely be smarter and more energy-efficient," she promised, "thanks to microcomputers that can be programmed to perform multiple cycles, possibly recover and reuse waste heat and water, monitor performance and communicate with one another.

Rugs insulate and decorate

The Fiber Information Center offers ideas that, with a little imagination, will add extra insulation and beauty to your walls.

If you're an antique lover, compliment American country style furnishings by hanging bright quilts made of polyester-and-cotton blended calicos or luxurious velvets of high-performance rayon on walls. Stitch a 2-inch or 3-inch-wide piece of muslin to the top of the quilt back and run a curtain rod through the openings at each end. Then, hang on the wall with decorative hooks for attractive, easy-care, and practical energy efficiency!

For a contemporary home, cover existing walls with fabric stapled to wood lathes nailed vertically at equal intervals around the walls. Add an inner layer of non-woven batting of polyester, olefin or rayon between the lathes to hold the heat inside in winter and retain cool air in summer. For a finishing touch, trim baseboards and other outer edges with matching fabric cording.

Another way to "insulate" walls is with colorful rugs. Search local craft fairs for rag rugs made of soft acrylic blend flannels or brightly colored nylon jerseys and other easliy washed fabrics. Or, look for attractive area rugs made of durable olefin fibers that duplicate the rich look of higher-priced Oriental carpets. There are also many beautifully patterned nylon, acrylic and polyester carpets that, when bought as remnants, give added interest and warmth to a stairwell or hallway wall. Again, stitch a strip of fabric across one end to hold a sturdy curtain rod and hang on the wall with hooks.

When hot weather comes round, take those "tapestries" down and use them as change-of-pace accessories on beds or floors throughout the house. Using man-made fibers will assure you of long-lasting, durable, fade-resistant wall coverings that are a breeze to clean.

For drafty windows, consider adding window shades quilted with polyester fiberfill interlining. The extra padding insures energy retention.

A LETTER TO:

Ms. Krances Limberlips, Manager
Dead Beat Apartments
666 Crab Grass Alleyway
Bug Gulch, Texas 7777

THE JUNCTION APARTMENTS

Dear Ms. Limberlips.

This is to advise you that I have moved from apartment #13 at the Dead Beat Apartments. Ms. Limberlips, do you remember last Monday, when I called to inform you that my air conditioner was out and it was 118 degrees inside my refrigerator and that my cat, Rufus, had died of a heat stroke? (God rest his nine lives). And when I asked when my air could be repaired you suggested a long vacation to Siberia...and you even offered to loan me your skunk parka and your St. Bernard. Now, Ms. Limberlips, I thought that suggestion was in very poor taste. I can't forget the fact that your St. Bernard ate my poor parakeet, "Tweety Pie." (God rest his soft feathers).

So my dear lady, on FRIDAY, I moved to the JUNCTION APARTMENTS and they are PAYING MY ELECTRIC BILL!! (and all my utilities) I'm relaxing in front of this sparkling pool right next door to my apartment. I have a fireplace washer/dryer connections, an all electric kitchen, a gigantic storage closet, a lofted bedroom and a bathroom that is really unique. My rent is only $390.00, and I only have one check to write each month!

The JUNCTION management team have a warm and friendly (PROFESSIONAL) attitude, sort of likened to Mary Poppins, but I've heard that they are worse than Adolph Hitler's Third Reich when it comes to dealing with inconsiderates and undersirables. (So, I will keep my nose clean and my stereo turned down.)

The maintenance guys are courteous and prompt. They are on call 24 hours.

The JUNCTION security officers are BIG fellows, and to be respected. The Manager tells me that the JUNCTION staff is the best in the west! And I agree...

So, Ms. Limberlips, you can send all my mail to THE JUNCTION APARTMENTS, 1902 Midland Drive, Midland, Texas... Instead of a Siberian vacation, please send all your unhappy residents to the JUNCTION, or have them call 699-5168.

Yours truly,

John Henry

Heart disease kills.

In fact, said Mike McElwrath, statewide vice president of the American Heart Association, "Heart disease and cardiovascular disease is still the number one killer in the nation. Nearly 50 percent of the deaths in the United States each year are attributed to heart disease. Up until last year it killed more people each year than all other causes combined," including other diseases and accidents.

The good news is that simple changes in daily diet can be big guns in the war against heart disease.

The Midland County Division of the AHA has just marked its first "American Heart Food Festival" by stressing tasty and nutritious meals that are also healthy for hearts. The Festival is a way of making the public "more aware of the nutritional aspect of heart disease and the importance of maintaining a healthy diet," McElwrath said.

The AHA is being joined in this effort by various supermarkets and restaurants, who are providing customers with information on consumer products and menu items.

Dr. Brian H. Mohr, a Midland cardiologist who has worked with the AHA for many years, said there are many risk factors in heart disease and "one of the most important is the amount of cholesterol in the blood stream. Cholesterol (levels) can be lowered by diet alone."

Some of the high-cholesterol foods that should be avoided are fatty meats, such as beef or pork, organ meats such as liver and egg yolks.

Chicken and fish are good choices in a heart-healthy diet, Mohr said.

KELLI BURKETT, clinical dietitian with Midland Memorial Hospital, said "Egg whites are one of the most perfect sources of protein." And while whole milk, with its high milk-fat content, is not the wisest choice, low-fat and skim milk are valuable for proper nutrition.

"Any animal protein is a complete protein," she said, and low-fat, low-cholesterol animal proteins, such as chicken, fish or lean meat, are healthier than fat-laden meats.

Although liver has long been touted as a good source of dietary iron, the meat is high on the AHA's list of good foods to avoid — much to the relief of children all over the world.

Instead of liver, the AHA recommends other sources of iron, such as dark green leafy vegetables, legumes such as peas and beans, prunes and prune juice and red wines, Ms. Burkett said.

"Diet is not the only factor" in the body's cholesterol content, she said. The liver manufactures a large percentage of the body's cholesterol, and "the (dietary) take of cholesterol can only influence about 20 percent of the cholesterol in the blood." But even a small reduction in blood cholesterol is significant, she added.

The AHA representatives and other health officials stressed that the organization does not seek to completely eliminate high-fat and -cholesterol foods from the diet, but to limit their use and serve them in smaller portions.

They agreed a T-bone steak or a couple of eggs now and then will probably not hurt anyone, but if the wrong foods are eaten too often, heart problems can result.

The Plaza Club, on the sixth floor of ClayDesta National Bank, offers many heart-healthy items on its menu. Kent Cronkite, executive vice president for Club Corporation of America, The Plaza Club's parent company, said, "We try to make it look ... and taste just as good as anything on the menu. We just try to make it another choice."

These items have proven extremely popular in the restaurants and clubs where they are offered, he said. "It has worked well for us" and has proven "very successful."

STRAWBERRY PINEAPPLE TART

¼ pound margarine, room temperature
⅓ cup sugar
1 whole egg
1 egg white
½ cup cake flour
2 teaspoon almond extract
1 pre-baked tart or pie shell
1 pint strawberries (or other seasonal berries may be substituted)
1 Hawaiian pineapple
Commercially prepared apricot glaze

Cream margarine and sugar until light. Whip in whole egg and half the flour. Whip in egg white, remaining flour and almond extract. Pour into pre-baked tart shell. Bake about 20 minutes at 375°, until top is golden brown. Cool completely before arranging fruit on top.

Peel and core pineapple; slice ⅛-inch thick. Arrange pineapple slices and berries on top of tart; lightly glaze with thin coat of apricot glaze.

Yield: One 11-inch tart; about 23 milligrams of cholesterol, 16 grams of fat and 13 milligrams of sodium per slice.

AS PART of its Food Festival, the AHA has devised its own five-day American Heart menu plan:

MONDAY:
Five-minute soup
Beef-lamb pitas with cucumber and yogurt dip
Fresh vegetable salad
Lemon sherbet

TUESDAY:
Crispy baked chicken
Scalloped potatoes
Sliced tomatoes with basil
Green beans with mushrooms
Deep-dish fruit pie

WEDNESDAY:
Beef stew
Cornmeal-whole-wheat muffins
Coleslaw
Fruit cup with vanilla yogurt
Oatmeal-raisin cookies

THURSDAY:
Chilled orange juice with seltzer
Spinach and brown rice casserole
Italian bread
Green salad with Italian dressing
Fresh fruit with spice cookies

FRIDAY:
Poached fish fillets with lemon-parsley sauce
Stuffed baked potatoes
Sauteed broccoli
Vegetable salad
Ice milk with chocolate sauce

THESE ARE the recipes for the Monday portion of the suggested healthy heart menu:

FIVE-MINUTE SOUP

A quick-cooking soup, this is best served immediately while the vegetables are fresh and colorful.

4 cups chicken broth
½ raw unpeeled cucumber, scrubbed and sliced very thin
4 raw mushrooms, sliced
2 cups shredded raw green leaf vegetable, such as spinach, lettuce or cabbage
1 tomato, cubed
½ cup leftover lean meat, shredded

Heat broth. Add vegetables and meat. Bring to boil and simmer 5 minutes. Serve immediately.

Yield: approximately 1½-quarts; about 45 calories per 1-cup serving.

BEEF-LAMB PITAS

8 ounces lean ground beef
4 ounces lean ground lamb, or substitute beef
1 tablespoon fresh parsley, minced
1 teaspoon fresh garlic, minced

LINDA EWAN and Jerry Roudebush, who were united in marriage Saturday evening in the First United Methodist Church, are now en route to the Hawaiian Islands for a honeymoon. Upon their return, they will live in Houston. Linda is the daughter of longtime Midlanders Betty and Don Ewan.

The beautiful candlelight ceremony was followed by a reception in Midland Country Club, which had been transformed into a Polynesian setting for the occasion. In the main ballroom, a South Seas food and refreshment table was flanked by palm trees made of whole pineapples and fresh fruit hors d'oeuvres to dip in chocolate. Centered over the table and visible from the front foyer was an erupting volcano.

The upper dining room held three additional serving tables decorated with Hawaiian flowers. Located in the Fireplace Room, the wedding cakes were decorated with tiny white baby antheriums and orchids, with ti leaves at the bases, and backed by latticework intertwined with native flowers. Fern baskets hanging from the ceiling added to the tropical atmosphere.

Guests enjoyed dancing to the music of the Steve Green Trio of Fort Worth. In lieu of rice bags, potpourri bags were distributed to the guests by Amy Lambert of Odessa and Jennifer and Shelly Davis.

After the reception, family friends Dr. and Mrs. Lawrence Mann of Paris, Texas, flew the newlyweds to Dallas, so they could catch an early Sunday morning plane to Hawaii.

The week prior to the wedding was filled with festivities. On Monday, the bride, her mother and her sister, Brenda (Mrs. Jim) Shute of Dallas entertained friends at a "Sip and See" coffee in the Ewan home. A get-acquainted dinner was held Thursday evening at the Ewans for the families of the bride and groom. Friday's events included the bridesmaids' luncheon given by Brenda at the Plaza Club and the rehearsal dinner hosted by the groom's parents, Barbara and Gene Riggle of Humble and Jack Roudebush of Pasadena, at the Petroleum Club.

A wedding day brunch was given for the family, wedding party and out-of-town guests at Jerry Stengl's home. Co-hosts were the bride's grandfather, George W. Scott of Pampa; Jerry's daughter, Susie Kieke and her husband, Dan of Houston; former Midlanders Pat and Charley Canfield of Dallas, Janet and Lee Foster and Betty Jo Morgan.

The Ewans are entertaining today at their home with a brunch, which will give the family and out-of-town guests one more chance to visit before departing for home.

The last of the many summer parties given for Linda was a Shower of Flowers in late August at the home of Janet (Mrs. Bob) Pollard. Mothers and daughters of all ages were invited to make the potpourri bags to be used at the wedding reception. Co-hostesses were Betty (Mrs. Bill, Jr.) Gilmore and former Midlander Jane (Mrs. Howard) Parker of Austin.

GUESTS AT KATHRYN and Max Crunk's annual fall barbecue were instructed on their invitations to BYOC (Bring Your Own Chairs) and PFCS (Pray For Clear Skies). Although threatening skies caused the Crunks a few anxious moments when the party was held a recent evening, they did not dampen the guests' pleasure as they visited and dined in the couple's backyard.

The Crunks were delighted that their daughter, Kathryn, and her husband, Russell Laughlin, were able to come out from Dallas for the party. Among the other 200 guests were Frances and Max Levin, Pat and Tom Schnieder, Mary and Tom Mann, Pam and Bill Isom, Jan and Bill Kalil, Carol and Jim Hartman and Carol and Bob Hobbs.

THE MINUET CLUB held a Fall Fling dance recently at the Petroleum Club. Members enjoyed being together again after the long, hot summer and catching up on one another's news.

The lively music of the Levee Singers of Dallas set the mood for a fun evening, and no one wanted to leave when the bewitching hour arrived. A delicious cocktail buffet was served from a table decorated with bubble bowls filled with colorful arrangements of mixed gladioli. Greeting members was the club's board of directors, headed by Patti (Mrs. Watson) LaForce, president.

Study says wives face increased risks if husbands smoke

NEW YORK (AP) — It's not as bad as even light smoking, but living with a smoker can double a non-smoker's risk of lung cancer, according to a new study by the American Cancer Society.

The study, published in the Journal of the National Cancer Institute, is the latest in a series by various researchers on so-called "passive smoking," the inhaling of somebody else's tobacco smoke.

Past studies of non-smoking women married to smoking men have split on the question of whether their lung cancer risk is increased. The cancer society has said since 1981 that more research is needed to decide the question.

The new study, of 134 female lung cancer patients who had never smoked, found that living with a smoking husband or other cohabitant could double the risk of lung cancer if the husband smoked heavily at home.

It found that non-smoking wives of smokers overall ran a 23 percent greater chance of getting lung cancer than women whose husbands did not smoke.

The risk increased with the number of cigarettes smoked at home, jumping to more than double the risk of an unexposed wife if the husband smoked more than 20 cigarettes a day at home, said Lawrence Garfinkel, one of the researchers and the cancer society's vice president for epidemiology and statistics.

He said Wednesday that the increase in risk "is nothing at all like even light smokers versus non-smokers," where the risk can be increased by four times or so. In general, lung cancer among non-smokers is rare, with maybe 10 per 100,000 non-smokers getting lung cancer every year, he said.

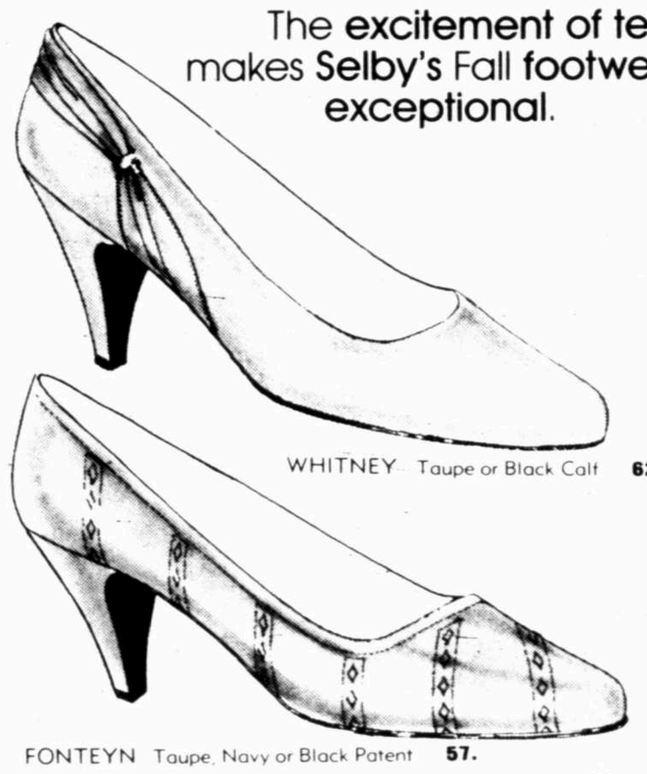

It took a search of four hospitals to find 134 non-smoking women diagnosed with lung cancer from 1971 to 1981, he said. Forty-four had not been exposed to a husband's smoke at home, Garfinkel said.

The women, or close relatives if the women had died, were interviewed and asked about the smoking habits of their husbands at that time or up to the time the husbands died.

Study: Hearts of wealthy more likely to be healthy

NEW YORK (AP) — Rich people are more likely to beat heart disease than those with lower incomes are among the findings of a study done by the American Heart Association's Los Angeles Chapter, reports Feeling Great Magazine.

It says the study shows that men with household incomes of $13,600 and under have a 40 percent greater chance of dying from coronary diseases than men with household incomes of $28,550 or more.

Also, as income increases, the risk of heart attack, stroke, and hypertension decreases.

Not only can the wealthier afford better medical care, but they also tend to exercise more and have diets that are lower in salt and cholesterol, according to the magazine's report.

HEART

Dash freshly ground black pepper
Dash oregano
2 teaspoons polyunsaturated vegetable oil
⅓ cup onion, sliced
1 medium red bell pepper, cut into strips and roasted (broil until charred on all sides)
1 medium tomato, peeled, seeded and chopped
3 pita breads (1 ounce each), heated
Prepared mustard to taste

In bowl combine beef, lamb, parsley, garlic, black pepper and oregano. Moisten hands with warm water and roll mixture into 2-inch-long pieces. Place on rack in broiler pan and broil on all sides until evenly brown. Keep warm.

Heat oil in skillet; saute onion until soft. Add pepper strips and tomato; saute 1 minute longer. Cut each pita to form pocket. Stuff each pocket with ⅓ meat and top with ⅓ vegetable mixture. Serve with mustard or Cucumber and Yogurt Dip.

Yield: 3 servings, about 265 calories each.

CUCUMBER AND YOGURT DIP

1 cucumber
1 (8 ounce) container plain low-fat yogurt
Garlic powder to taste
Dash Worcestershire sauce

Scrub cucumber to remove wax. Grate unpeeled cucumber and drain very well until almost dry. Drain yogurt in cheesecloth. Combine with other ingredients. Can be served with snack crackers.

Yield: about 1¾ cups; about 45 calories per ½-cup or 5 calories per tablespoon.

FRESH VEGETABLE SALAD BOWL

1 head romaine lettuce
½ pound fresh button mushrooms
1 pound cherry tomatoes
1 small head cauliflower
1 pound very young raw asparagus spears

Remove outer leaves of romaine, separate stems from the mushrooms and snap off stem ends of tomatoes. Break cauliflower into florets and trim stalk end from asparagus.

Wash all vegetables except mushrooms. Drain well. Wipe the mushrooms with paper towel.

Place inner leaves of romaine upright around sides of deep, round salad bowl. Arrange remaining ingredients neatly in center. Chill until serving time. Serve with favorite dressing.

Yield: 8 servings; about 50 calories each.

LEMON SHERBET

1 envelope unflavored gelatin
½ cup skim milk
1½ cups evaporated skim milk
1 cup sugar
1 teaspoon grated lemon peel
½ cup fresh lemon juice
2 egg whites, stiffly beaten

Soften gelatin in skim milk. Heat evaporated milk with the sugar. Add softened gelatin and stir until dissolved. Cool.

Slowly add lemon peel and juice to cooled gelatin mixture, stirring constantly. Pour into ice cube trays and place in freezer. When mixture is mushy, remove from freezer and fold in stiffly beaten egg whites. Return to freezer until firm; then remove, place in chilled bowl and beat until fluffy.

Refreeze and serve.

Yield: 8 servings; about 150 calories each.

SWEET AND SOUR PORK

½ cup pineapple juice, unsweetened
2 teaspoons vinegar
1 teaspoon sherry
½ teaspoon soy sauce
Dash sesame hot oil
Dash freshly ground ginger
Dash ground allspice
1 teaspoon cornstarch, dissolved in 2 tablespoons water
2 tablespoons onion and leek (or scallions), minced
¼ cup green pepper, sliced
¼ cup onion, sliced
12 ounces loin pork, ¼-inch-thick strips
2 teaspoons fresh parsley, chopped
Freshly ground black pepper

In small saucepan combine first seven ingredients. Heat mixture until hot. Stir in dissolved cornstarch. Cook over medium heat, stirring constantly, until sauce comes just to boil and begins to thicken. Keep warm.

Spray nonstick skillet with vegetable spray and cook pork until no longer pink. Set aside. Sprinkle onion-leek combination, sliced green pepper and onion over bottom of skillet. Place cooked pork over vegetables and sprinkle with parsley and freshly ground black pepper. Cook about 4-5 minutes, add sauce and serve.

Yield: 4 servings; about 210 calories each.

MANDARIN ORANGE PUDDING (TANJULIN)

A good "pantry-shelf" special to make for unexpected company.

1 package vanilla pudding mix
2 cups skim milk
1 (11 ounce) can mandarin oranges, well drained
1 tablespoon sherry
Toasted almonds, slivered

Prepare vanilla pudding according to directions of package or make "from scratch" pudding using skim milk. Cool.

Before serving, fold in drained mandarin oranges and sherry. Serve in individual glass dishes garnished with toasted slivered almonds.

Yield: six servings; about 135 calories each.

Food festival promotes 'hearty' eating nationwide

Associated Press

NEW YORK — Customers at a Washington, D.C., grocery store received tape-recorded guided tours as part of a nationwide effort to inform 90 million shoppers about eating less cholesterol and fat to fight heart disease.

More than 8,000 grocery stores participated in the "American Heart's Food Festival" last week, said Dr. Antonio Gotto, immediate past president of the American Heart Association.

While portable tape recorders at the Washington store relayed nutrition information about foods sold there, other stores offered recipes, lists of recommended foods, taste tests and other promotions for "heart-healthy" eating, the association said.

Gotto said the project is meant to increase public awareness about cutting back on cholesterol and fat to reduce the risks of hardened arteries and heart attacks.

Levels of cholesterol and saturated fat in the diet affect the amount of cholesterol in the bloodstream, where it can accumulate in the arteries that carry blood to the heart muscle. The buildup progressively narrows the passageway for blood, and finally a blood clot can stop the flow and bring on a heart attack, Gotto said.

Lifestyle policies

The policies for publication of announcements in the Lifestyle Department of The Midland Reporter-Telegram are:

Information for Sunday pages must be in our office by 5 p.m. the preceding Tuesday. For publication in a weekday paper, we must receive the information by noon two days before the information is to run. For example, an item to appear in Wednesday's paper must be received by noon Monday.

Engagement announcements must appear at least four weeks before the wedding date. Wedding stories must be submitted within five days of the event.

Engagements, weddings, anniversaries and club notices must be submitted in writing. All materials should include the name and telephone number of the person submitting them. These items appear in the Sunday paper only. The Reporter-Telegram has forms for announcements of engagements, weddings and anniversaries.

We cannot mail pictures or forms to persons within Midland. Pictures must be obtained in the Lifestyle office within one month after publication.

Portraits of the future bride and bridegroom in one photograph may be submitted with engagement announcements. Wedding photographs should be of the bride only.

Photos should be black and white, glossy finish, studio portraits. Studio color pictures may be submitted, but they may reproduce poorly. Quality reproduction cannot be assured when color prints are used.

There is no charge for publication of photographs and stories.

Raggedy Ann will help present "Let's Be Friends." For reservations call 694-5700 or 684-7707.

Chinese give advice to lovelorn

PEKING (AP) — Advice to the lovelorn has come to the Chinese press, but with a difference. Readers give the advice.

A husband, Jin Ru, complained that his wife spends two days out of three looking after and feeding her parents, but when his side of the family visits, they don't even get a cup of tea.

"I feel like giving her a good beating and then demanding a divorce," he wrote.

A woman technician from Liaoning Province responded that she and her husband reared two children of their own, as well as four of her late brother, while looking after elderly parents and supporting two nephews. Her advice was for Jin's wife to be congenial and accept in-laws as her own kin.

"When the letter arrived, it touched me very deeply. I thought it would touch readers too," said Yang Lanyuan, co-editor of the column that appears weekly in the Workers' Daily under the title "One Hundred Questions on Love, Marriage and Family."

It began June 27 in the Communist Party organ, which has a circulation of 2.3 million. The paper said it has since received more than 1,000 letters.

The column signals a new, public acknowledgment of emotional problems in China, but the contributions are heavily edited.

"Propaganda work is as important as laws and decrees in solving family and marital problems," explained the section's ideology chief, Xu Jihua.

AREA RUGS

Area rugs used on smooth floors sometimes can be a more interesting treatment than the somewhat anonymous wall-to-wall look. It is not only more personal, it plays an architectural role as well by integrating or unifying a furniture grouping. It can separate a larger living area from the dining ell. It can visually alter the barnlike proportions of an overly large room. Area rugs can also supply the only powerful pattern in a room with plain fabrics. On the other hand, a fair amount of pattern may be preferred in upholstery and drapery fabrics. If so, the area rug then should be one solid color or, at most, have a simple border design.

We can supply you with a wide selection of fabrics for draperies at WINDOW DECOR, 30 West Industrial Loop, 685-0875. These are available in many different colors as well as patterns and we can make them to your specifications in our own local workroom. Upholstered walls, and custom made bedspreads are also available. Open: Mon. thru Fri. 8a.m.-4:30p.m. and by appointment.

Hint:

Once available only in expensive custom designs, area rugs now are made in every fiber, texture, pattern and price range.

Library programs planned

The Children's Department of the Midland County Public Library will present several children's programs this fall.

Back-to-School Story Time will be from 4-4:30 p.m. Thursday. Children ages 4-9 are invited. Registration will not be required.

National Children's Book Week, themed "Good Books, Good Times," has been scheduled for Nov. 11-17, said Allene Kleweno, children's librarian. To mark this special week, the library will present a Bedtime Story Time at 7:30 p.m. Nov. 12. Children aged 3-6 are invited to attend this program in their pajamas and with favorite teddy bears or other stuffed animals. Registration will not be required. The program will be free.

Sally Cooke's kindergarten class at Santa Rita Elementary School will have an art display at the library throughout November.

December's art display will feature the works of 3-year-old students of Elva Vitela of Hillander School.

The final 1985 program will be a Story Time for all ages, children and adults, on Dec. 27. The half-hour program will be presented at 10:30 a.m. and again at 2:30 p.m. For this special holiday event, groups of 10 or more are asked to make reservations.

Story Hour for ages 3-5, sponsored by Midland Junior Woman's Club, will continue September through May at the library each Tuesday at 10 a.m. This week's theme will be "Sports."

In addition to Mrs. Kleweno, staff members of the Children's Department are Connie Roe, assistant children's librarian, and Leighsa Jones, circulation clerk.

For more information call the library at 683-2708.

Anniversary celebrated

Charles and Paula Shepherd of Midland celebrated their 30th anniversary with a renewal of their wedding vows Monday in their home. The Rev. Ron Hathcoat of Greenwood Baptist Church officiated the ceremony.

Grandpa can prevent poisoning

WASHINGTON (AP) — Many Americans eagerly look forward to visits from their grandchildren, but those no longer used to having tots around need to to exercise extra care with such potentially dangerous items as prescription medicines.

Having the medication handy becomes so routine for many persons that they hardly notice the pills.

But to small children pills can look like candy, and they may eat a large quantity of the medicine before anyone notices it — possibly poisoning themselves.

Indeed, a study by the Consumer Product Safety Commission and the Birmingham, Ala., Children's Hospital indicated that more than one out of every three accidental poisonings of children occurs this way.

Half the battle of preventing accidental poisoning is keeping medicine out of sight. Hiding medication or locking it up helps prevent accidents, explained Gary L. Smith of the University of Maryland Cooperative Extension Service.

The other half of prevention is using child-resistant containers.

If using child-resistant containers all the time is too hard for the adult, Smith suggests keeping them on hand, and using the containers for medications at least when the tots are visiting. That little bit of extra trouble could save the life of a child.

Study said to strengthen case against drug use during pregnancy

BOSTON (AP) — The discovery that cocaine is linked with spontaneous abortions and behavioral problems in newborns strengthens the case against needless drug use by expectant women, a researcher says.

Earlier studies have found that the abuse of other drugs, such as heroin and alcohol, can harm babies in the womb. But the latest research is the first to associate newborn abnormalities with cocaine.

The study, conducted at Northwestern Memorial Hospital in Chicago, found that heavy users of cocaine appear to be at high risk of spontaneous abortions and that their babies may be passive and emotionally erratic during their first days of life.

"This is surely very worth reporting because it's worrisome how many people in the child-bearing age are using cocaine and ignoring the notion that one who is pregnant should not use any drug unless its absolutely essential," said Dr. Lester Grinspoon of Harvard Medical School.

When tested three days after birth, the cocaine mothers' babies often failed to respond to talking, cooing and other attention from their parents. They were also emotionally fitful, for instance screaming uncontrollably when startled, then abruptly falling asleep.

"It's a yo-yo effect," said Dr. Ira J. Chasnoff, who directed the study. "Their emotions are right on the edge. These infants don't have the ability to respond with the proper emotions."

Chasnoff said the researchers would continue to follow the babies to see if the emotional abnormalities persist past infancy.

The researchers said they were unsure how cocaine might have caused the behavioral abnormalities. However, Grinspoon said the babies could still have been feeling the effects of cocaine that passed from mother to child just before birth.

No one knows precisely how many Americans have used cocaine, but some estimates range from 10 million to 24 million.

Cocaine interferes with the body's use of chemical transmitters, including norepinephrine, which raises blood pressure and stimulates uterine contractions.

'Mom on Strike' campaign worked, housewife says

HOLLAND, Mich. (AP) — A homemaker says publicity about her five-week strike designed to teach her children to help with housework prompted her charges to clean up their acts.

"I think what really got to them ... was the embarrassment of the media attention," Fran Mervau said Wednesday, noting that people who had seen them on television recognized them in a restaurant.

Mrs. Mervau said brown paper "Mom on Strike" signs no longer adorn the house she shares with her husband, two daughters and two nieces.

Her strike against domestic drudgery officially ended Monday evening when a TV news crew showed up at the Mervau home while Mrs. Mervau was out bowling.

"They asked my husband and kids if the strike was over and they said 'Yes' and took the signs down for the camera," she said.

During Mrs. Mervau's five-week strike her daughters Rachel, 15, and Heather, 7, and her nieces, Jennifer, 7, and Maureen, 15, had to clean their own rooms and wash their own dishes and laundry. Now she says they've cleaned up their acts.

"The kids drew up a job list and voluntarily took on a lot of the things that I was always expected to do before, like cleaning the bathroom and the kitchen," Mrs. Mervau said. "Last night Rachel did an incredible job of cleaning the kitchen."

By Monday, the kids were consistently helping out around the house enough to convince Mrs. Mervau they were sincere.

But she's not convinced they'll always remember the lesson. "The signs are never going to be thrown away," she said.

Dorm rooms small

NEW YORK (AP) — Exercise restraint and "think small" when getting ready for the big move to the campus dormitory, suggests Laura Flynn McCarthy, author of a feature on college life in Seventeen magazine.

"The average size of a double dorm room is 200 square feet," she points out, adding that beds, dressers and desks will take up a good deal of that space.

Tennis star nets award for cancer foundation fundraising

NEW YORK (AP) — Butch Walts, 30, not only has returned to tennis on a professional level after undergoing three operations and months of chemotherapy for testicular cancer, but has turned to the sport to raise funds for fighting the disease.

In 1983, he established a foundation at the Kenneth Norris Cancer Hospital at USC-Los Angeles, his alma mater. To raise funds for it, he started the Butch Walts and Friends Tennis Exhibition, played in Scottsdale, Ariz., a celebrity event which this year raised $125,000 for the research fund.

Walts' personal and professional comeback, plus his philanthropic activities, earned him the Omega Award, presented to him by Omega Watch Corp. at the 1985 U.S. Open Tennis Championships. Past recipients include Arthur Ashe, who underwent two bypass operations and continues to serve as the Davis Cup American team captain.

Carry me back to old Virginia

I have often wondered if my ancestor knew when he accepted a Virginia land grant from King Charles I in 1652 that Oliver Cromwell would overthrow the king that year and allow the colonists to take charge of their own government.

It had been less than half a century since the settlers at Jamestown had almost starved, but my relative, who was in his 20s when he left England, was ripe for adventure in this new colony where land was easy to acquire and his to develop without hindrance from the Crown.

Planter John Rolfe had introduced tobacco to Europe in 1612 and Virginians had been reaping the riches of fine tobacco crops for more than 40 years. Their years of hardship had been forgotten by the time young John Battle decided to join them.

Under self-rule, the next 10 years were prosperous for Battle. Then Charles II became king of England in 1660, reinstalled a colonial governor and began piling restrictions on the Virginia planters.

In 1676, Battle was part of a group of angry plantation owners who rebelled against the Navigation Acts that restricted colonial trade. He continued to wrangle with British rule until he died in 1693, about the time the College of William and Mary was established in Williamsburg.

Over the next 100 years, the family produced many patriots and politicians. John Battle's descendents marched off to the Revolutionary War and then helped Virginia become the 10th state in the Union in 1788. After the congressional Embargo Act of 1807 restricted the export of tobacco, many branches of the family left the state, but their sons continued to return to the University of Virginia, which Thomas Jefferson established in 1819, in Charlottesville.

Shortly after the War Between the States began in 1861, cousins John Battle and Charles Battle, along with some of their friends, were engaged in fiery conversation in front of the south portico of the University of Virginia's rotunda.

Patriotism generally runs high in youth, and as boys will, they made a hurried decision to join a group of Virginians who were marching to Harper's Ferry to seize the U.S. arsenal.

Neither boy came back to the University after the war, and my branch of the family lost not only their lands, but also their ties with the family in Virginia when they decided to come to Texas and begin a new life.

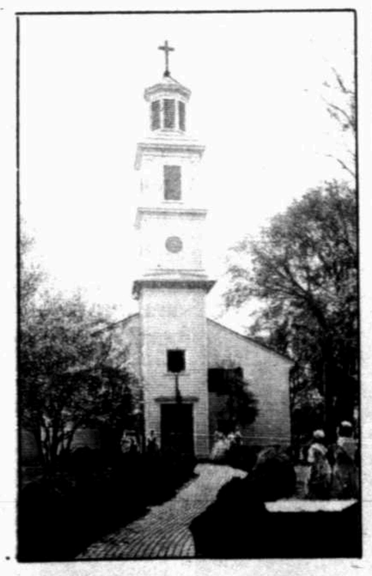

Now another century, plus a few years, had passed and my high school graduate daughter wanted to consider the University of Virginia in Charlottesville and see Richmond, where President Jefferson Davis issued orders from the Confederate White House. So we were off to storm Richmond in our own way.

Approaching Richmond by air, we were struck by the beauty of lush plantations, such as Shirley Plantation along the silver line of the James River. The city was originally built on seven hills, just like Rome, and the similiarity continues with the Capitol building, which Jefferson patterned after a Roman temple. Looking down on Monument Avenue, bronze statues of Generals Robert E. Lee and "Stonewall" Jackson are mounted as if ready to fight off the Union invaders who once sacked and burned Richmond — what was left of Richmond, that is, after citizens set fire to their own homes rather than see them fall into enemy hands.

We want to try one of the famous inns of Richmond, but the first night we check into the Commonwealth Park Hotel directly across from Capitol Square. The Commonwealth has no rooms, just 49 suites.

Please see VIRGINIA, Page 2F

After we dine with a roomful of lobbyists and legislators, we are delighted to retire to the luxury of two rooms decorated in soft colors. We enjoy the breathtaking view of the capitol and its spacious grounds flanked by the Governor's Mansion where Texan Lynda Bird Johnson Robb graces events as first lady of Virginia.

The next morning I'm eager to explore the capitol — more eager than my daughter who is still sleeping. I can barely get into the building because the grounds are so inviting. Besides the lushness of the vegetation and the enormous trees, I love looking at the old bell tower and the equestrian statue of George Washington surrounded by six other famous Virginians including Patrick Henry.

Henry was, perhaps, more responsible than anyone else for galvanizing the Revolution with his "Give me liberty or give me death!" speech at St. John's Church. I make a mental note to go to St. John's Church as I enter the capital.

Suddenly I am awed by the fact that this is where Aaron Burr was tried as a traitor, where General Lee accepted command of the Confederate forces, where the Virginia constitution was drafted. I am impressed by the life-sized marble sculpture of Washington.

I GO UPSTAIRS to see the portraits of the past governors. When I get to the 1950s I see a name I recognize — John Battle. Could this be a great-great-great-great-great-great-great-grandson of our John Battle? (I lose track of the greats.) It has been a long time since 1652 and the trunk which stands in my hallway bears John Battle's name but no date.

I reach back three centuries. I look at John. How can I know if this is the descendent of our tobacco planter? I decide that he has a look of my mother's family around his eyes — a downward slant to the corners, an upward arch to the brow. He looks like Cousin Jack and Cousin Charlie; he looks like my daughter Mab. Rather than shuffle through records, I devise a test. If my daughter can recognize and separate him from the others without looking at the name, then he is ours.

I collect my daughter and we hurry back. We do not hurry fast enough. It is Saturday afternoon and the upstairs gallery is closed on Saturday afternoon, says one of three lady volunteers from the historical society. I explain the problem. Graciously, the Virginia ladies rise to the occasion and amid jangling keys we are escorted upstairs.

MY DAUGHTER walks the gallery rapidly; she does not have time to glance at the names. There have been many governors since Virginia became a state. She is approaching the 1950s and I hold my breath. "That's John Battle," she declares and echoes, "He looks like Cousin Charlie." We return to the hotel feeling that we have conquered Richmond.

The Commonwealth Park Hotel offers free limousine service within a 10-block area and we take full advantage of this. We tour the financial district, the Valentine Museum — which is dedicated to Richmond history — and we ask the driver to leave us at the Confederate Museum and White House.

The museum houses the greatest collection of memorabilia from the War Between the States. General Lee's sword of surrender looks as if it were sheathed just yesterday. His uniform, tailored to perfection and resplendent with braid, makes General J.E.B. Stuart's makeshift greys look more authentic in light of the Confederacy's chronic lack of funds. Tattered flags, dented mess kits and ladies' sewing baskets are part of the array as are, sadly, wedding rings and brooches donated to the support of "our boys."

NEXT DOOR, the Confederate White House, home of President Davis and his family, is having the last touches of paint put on the pale walls. Its magnificently curved stairrail has been refurbished. Some of the carefully restored original furniture will be in place soon.

The director tells me that expenses have been so great that the price of benefactor membership is doubling. I prepare myself for what it must cost to be among the elite who are invited to Davis' Birthday Party each June, the trustees' dinner and other events in this citadel of history.

"We really feel that we must raise the benefactor fee from $100 annually to $200," he says. It seems a small price to pay in order to belong where President Davis lived and where Lincoln was received two days after Davis' departure.

I TAKE A MEMBERSHIP card with me and we head for Catlin-Abbott House on Broad Street where the very best rooms are reserved for guests. Mrs. Abbott welcomes us like long-lost relatives. We feel that we are part of Richmond's past when we see our canopied bed and cherrywood washstand with delicately decorated china pitcher and bowl. A step upholstered in petit point stands by the high four-poster.

Mrs. Abbott takes us on a stroll of Church Hill and the nearby historical Grace Street. We stand where Patrick Henry stood at St. John's Episcopal Church and then see the house where Richmond poet Edgar Allen Poe courted his sweetheart. Her father intercepted Poe's letters and she was married by the time Poe returned from college. Years later, when she was widowed, Poe died in New York as he was engaged in moving his belongings back to Richmond in order to marry Elmire Shelton. She is immortalized in his poem, "Lost Lenore."

That night we dine at the historic Tobacco House which is three floors of Southern dining at its best. The food is excellent, the service swift but unobtrusive. True to Richmond's heritage a cigarette girl in a black costume glides around offering Virginia's favorite brands from a tray.

The White House of the Confederacy in Richmond, Va., has recently been refurbished to its original state, circa 1818.

Ashlawn, near Charlottesville, Va., was the home of James Monroe, fifth president of the United States.

THE NEXT MORNING we are off to Charlottesville. On the way we stop at historic Michie Tavern where we can almost hear the stagecoach horn sounding the arrival of overnight guests as it must have in 1735. Here guests were treated to spoon bread with ham and urged to sleep "no more than five to a bed."

Next is President James Munroe's home, Ashlawn, which he was forced to relinquish because of a $75,000 debt, incurred from attending to the affairs of the nation to the disadvantage of his own. The grounds are lovely but the house is spare compared to Jefferson's Monticello, which we glimpse through the mist.

To arrive at Monticello is to know Jefferson: self-taught architect, inventor, statesman, man of genius in agriculture and education.

For 40 years Jefferson was constantly improving and building Monticello. His loving attention shows in each column and cornice of the 35-room home. The broad windows were planned to give a view of his ornamental gardens, orchards and the Virginia hills that he loved.

Nowhere is Jefferson's personality more apparent than in his study or "cabinet." An alcove bed and an armchair with an unmatched bench pulled to it eased his rheumatism as he kept up his correspondence, drafted his many inventions and laid plans for the University of Virginia.

JEFFERSON LOVED things that revolved — he worked on a revolving desk that slipped over his bench, designed a revolving chair and installed revolving food servers in the dining room.

Monticello was open to the great statesmen and academicians of the time, and Jefferson went heavily into debt because of his gracious hospitality. Often he said, "All my wishes end where I hope my days will end ... at Monticello." Jefferson died in his beloved home in 1826.

Full of history, we drive the few miles into Charlottesville and check into a new Hilton Hotel on the edge of town. We lunch in quiet elegance amid the treetops. Our rooms look out on a view that is reminiscent of a mountain resort. That evening we dine at historic Boar's Head Inn, where the dining room was once an old mill. The waiters must have been chosen for their charm and good looks. In addition, the food is divine.

It is time for Mab's interview at the University of Virginia and we arrive to tree-shaded lawns and gardens separated by serpentine walls that Jefferson designed. Silently I wonder if any part of the walls revolve.

I WALK THE RED BRICK walkways and see the cornerstone which Jefferson laid in 1817. The white columns and pavillions have endured just as Jefferson intended.

My daughter takes the student tour and returns with wonder in her eyes. But Texas has a powerful hold on her heart.

"Maybe I will apply next year," she says of this beautiful place where more than 100 years have passed since her family members lived in the dormitories and studied in the library.

We returned to Richmond to leave our rental car, but on impulse we stop at Hollywood Cemetery and then St. John's Church again to try to find the graves of our kin. We do not find John Battle, but we do find a gentleman who also died in 1693. He will do. His tombstone reads, "To Live in the Hearts of Those We Leave Behind Is Not To Die."

Hearst News Service

Many travelers wouldn't think of packing their bags without first consulting a travel agent. The problem is picking a travel agent who can help. That means finding someone who is interested in the kind of traveler you are.

The first step in selecting a travel agent is to ask friends, relatives and co-workers for the names of agents they have used and been satisfied with. A good travel agency is one that has a high level of repeat business.

Once you have the names of a few travel agencies, here are some tips that might help:

• Determine if the agency is a member of the American Society of Travel Agents. The ASTA membership seal is usually displayed on the window or counter of the agency. Membership in ASTA means the agency has been in business at least three years under its present ownership.

To receive a list of ASTA members in your area, write to: ASTA World Headquarters, 4400 MacArthur Blvd., N.W., Washington, D.C. 20007, (202) 965-7520; or the ASTA West Coast Office at 4420 Hotel Circle Court, Suite 230, San Diego, Calif. 92108, (619) 298-5053.

• Find out whether the agent is a Certified Travel Counselor. A CTC agent has had at least five years' experience in the travel business and has successfully completed a two-year, graduate-level program developed and administered by the nonprofit Institute of Certified Travel Agents in Wellesley, Mass. For a list of the nearest CTCs in your area, write to: The Institute of Certified Travel Agents, P.O. Box 56, Wellesley, Mass. 02181.

• Be aware that agents make their living on the commissions paid by members of the travel industry: airlines, hotels, cruise lines and car-rental companies. The agents act as brokers for these companies, and reservations and bookings do not cost the traveler anything.

• Shop around before making a decision, however good one travel agency might appear. Compare agencies by asking about their policies regarding refunds and cancellations, whether they add any service charges, how they bill, what protection or insurance they offer. In a good travel agency, the answers to those questions should be clearly explained.

• Observe how the travel agent treats you. Good travel agents will have some questions of their own to determine what you want in a vacation and the kind of traveler you are. They should ask where you've traveled before and how you like to spend vacation time. If an agent has a good idea of what you like and dislike, chances are better for you having the kind of vacation you expect.

• Be as specific as possible about your travel plans when you go to see a travel agent. Know when you plan to travel, how flexible those dates are and how much you want to spend. With this information, the agent will be able to match you with what he has to offer.

• Ask agents whether they've traveled to the spot you've chosen.

Portable pothole patcher praised

WASHINGTON (AP) — A portable pothole patcher is among the latest energy-related inventions recommended by the Commerce Department's National Bureau of Standards for financial support and-or marketing help.

The recommendation for such assistance was made to the Department of Energy under the energy-related inventions program, which was started in 1975.

The standards bureau says the pothole patcher — developed by Carl Sterner of Bakersfield, Calif. — is a portable self-propelled pavement patching machine which uses an unheated mixture of crushed rock and asphalt which can be operated by one person.

Normally, the bureau noted, a crew of three or more plus several trucks and other equipment are needed to repair potholes. It estimated that savings through eliminating drying and heating of the mixture alone could amount to 90 million gallons of fuel oil a year.

Since the program started, grants to inventors have ranged from $50,000 to $200,000.

Hance to be luncheon speaker

Kent Hance, former member of the Texas State Senate and the United States Congress, will be guest speaker at the luncheon of the Lt. William Brewer chapter and the Col. Theunis Dey chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution. The luncheon, in celebration of Constitution Week in Midland, will be at noon Tuesday at the Midland Woman's Club.

Hance won the Leadership Award of the Coalition for Peace Through Strength in 1980, was named a "Guardian of Small Business" by the National Federation of Independent Business, named "Best Inflation Fighter" of the 97th Congress by the National Association of Realtors, and was cited by the Veterans of Foreign Wars for his efforts to "keep America strong and free." Hance is now a partner in the Texas-based law firm of Boyd, Veigel and Hance.

Kent Hance

Cost of the luncheon will be $6.50 per person and reservations will be required. To make reservations, members of the Lt. Brewer chapter call 694-3745; members of the Col. Dey chapter call 682-6665. All members are urged to attend and bring husbands and other guests.

Employers provide child care

New York Times News Service

NEW YORK — A rapidly growing number of American employers are providing some form of child-care assistance to workers. More than 1,800 companies are now doing so, compared with 600 in 1982, according to a study announced Thursday by the Conference Board, a nonprofit business research organization in New York.

An estimated 120 companies and 400 hospitals and public agencies sponsor day-care centers at or near their facilities. More than 300 companies are providing child-care information and referral services to their employees. Some 50 corporations provide after-school care, and 20 companies are offering nursing services for sick children so their parents can work. And 30 companies have undertaken to train and license family day-care providers — those who care for children in their homes.

"The rest of the companies — the majority of these employers — are providing direct financial assistance to employees through a variety of programs," said Dana Friedman, a senior research fellow at the board's Work and Family Information Center, which issued the report.

According to the study, corporations are increasingly providing child-care assistance because affording child-care has become a critical problem for their employees who are parents. Away-from-home care for one child can range from $1,500 to $10,000 a year, the report said, with a majority of parents paying $3,000 a year.

The report said that several factors have created an "unprecedented" need for child-care services: the increase in the number of women in the labor force; inflation, which increased the number of two-paycheck families, and divorce, which contributed to the rising number of single parents serving as sole support of their families.

"Now 60 percent of men in the labor force have wives who are working full or part time," Friedman said, adding that in 1984, 48 percent of the mothers of preschool children were working, compared with 34 percent in 1975.

The study suggests that the need for child-care services will continue to increase. By 1990, 60 percent of new entrants in the work force will be women, according to extrapolations from census data. Currently, 80 percent of women in the work force are of childbearing age, and an estimated 93 percent of them will become pregnant during their work careers, the report said.

"The financing plans and the information and referral plans seem to represent the future in this field," said Friedman. "Many companies are interested in them."

She said the Conference Board had received 500 inquiries from corporations about child-care-assistance options during the last eight months.

Companies are using four techniques to provide financial assistance to employees, the report said. About 25 companies, including the Polaroid Corp., are using voucher plans that add money to employees' paychecks to pay for child care, or that pay child-care providers directly.

Some 300 employers, including Honeywell Inc., have negotiated discounts with local child-care centers for their employees, reducing the cost of care as much as 20 percent.

An estimated 75 corporations, including American Can Co., are offering child care as an option in their employee benefit plans that can be selected like dental or optometric care. Five hundred other companies are reducing employees' salaries by up to $3,000 per year to establish spending accounts for child care. This reduces not only the employees' taxable income but also allows them to use the money to pay for child care in pre-tax dollars — a substantial saving, according to the study.

Since Jan. 1, 1982, all of the previous plans have been tax-deductible benefits under Sections 125 and 129 of the Internal Revenue Service Code, the report said. "Under the president's tax-reform proposals, child care is slated to become taxable again," said Friedman, "and many companies are currently examining other ways of providing such benefits to their employees."

American population aging

WASHINGTON (AP) — The aging of the American population could cause sweeping social and economic changes in the future, notes Family Practice News.

The medical publication reports there were 27.4 million Americans aged 65 and older in 1983, the latest year for which such figures are available. The total represents 11.7 percent of the nation's population.

By 2020, they are expected to increase to 64 million, or 21 percent of the population, according to the journal, which notes the elderly themselves are aging with ever-larger proportions in the over-75 and over-85 age groups. By 2050, there are expected to be as many as 16 million Americans over age 85.

This growth comes at a time when lower fertility levels are leading to a smaller growth in the number of people under age 65, leading to a drop in the "support ratio" — the number of working age people compared to the number of elderly.

At 1900, there were 100 people of working age to support seven retired persons; by 1982, the number of retirees had increased to 19 per 100 workers, and by 2050, the estimated ratio will be 38 elderly per 100.

Tiny town hosts annual reunion

SOUTHWEST CITY, Mo. (AP) — This town of 500 people, one fire truck and a nightwatchman, runs an annual reunion and golf tournament without a budget.

More than 300 people, including former residents and their families, travel to Southwest City every year on the last weekend in June for a golf tournament, buffets and social events. The winner in each of five golf categories has to get his own name engraved on the trophy, and has to bring the trophy back the following year.

Dewey Collingsworth, a local optometrist, is volunteer chairman. He says, "People come from more than 12 states. Everyone makes their own reservations, pays their own bills and can't wait to come back next year."

VCR finds home

By ERMA BOMBECK

Remember the good old days when a sign would flash across the TV screen, "IT'S 11 O'CLOCK. DO YOU KNOW WHERE YOUR CHILDREN ARE?" And you wouldn't have a clue?

Now we know where they are. They're sprawled all over the living room in front of the TV set with a stack of rental video cassettes, eating and drinking their way through the house like a plague of locusts.

The VCR and the baby boomers have found one another, and the combination is revolutionizing the American family as we know it.

The other night as our kids were watching "Flashdance" again, my husband and I tiptoed through the room to the door.

"Where are you going?" asked my son.

"Out," we said.

"Out where?"

"Just out."

"Do you know what time it is?" he asked.

"Ten or so, why?"

"It's time when most people are going to bed. The only thing you can get into at this hour is trouble."

"Look," we said, "we don't tell you what to do. Besides, we're just going to bum around."

My daughter said, "I don't know why you can't just spend a night at home once in a while and watch television with us. Would it kill you? We could pop a little corn and be a family."

"It's boring," we said. "Besides, how many times can we watch 'Flashdance' and 'Romancing the Stone'? You never watch our shows."

"We'd watch them if you didn't watch trashy things. The only things you want to see are people with English accents."

"Well, we'd like to know where you get all this money to run around," said my son.

"That's our problem," said my husband.

"So, what time are you coming home?" asked our daughter.

"I don't know," I said. "Whenever we get here."

"That's not good enough, mom. You know you have to go to work tomorrow. Let's make it no later than midnight."

"Give me a break," I said. "I'm 57 years old."

"No, you give me a break. I lose another night's sleep and I'll look like an unpaved road."

Later, my husband and I returned to see them slumped in their chairs and the VCR playing "Raiders of the Lost Ark."

My daughter stirred, "It's about time. You know I can't go to bed until I hear the motor turn off and you're home. Lock up before you go to bed and turn off the VCR."

Kids can be so cruel. She knows I don't know how to turn it off. I'll be glad when we get our own apartment!

Chilean government declares seige

By 'GENE BURKE
Copley News Service

TRAVEL ADVISORY — CHILE: The State Department advises that a siege has been declared by the government of Chile.

There is a late-night and early morning curfew in much of central Chile, including Santiago. Arriving and departing air passengers with tickets in their possession are exempt from the curfew, but should immediately stop if ordered to do so by police or military authorities. Some curfew violators have been fired upon when they refused to stop.

Chilean cities have experienced numerous terrorist incidents, especially bombings. Some buildings identified with the United States have been among those targeted. Business, industry, tourist and travel facilities are operating normally and most visitors encounter little inconvenience other than the curfew.

U.S. citizens are advised, however, to avoid demonstrations, obey curfew restrictions and contact the U.S. Embassy upon arrival in Santiago to register and obtain the latest information and advice.

Q. Where can I get application forms to file for a passport?

A. Applications are available at passport agencies and such acceptance facilities as post offices authorized to accept passport applications and county clerks of court offices accepting applications.

Q. My birth was not recorded because I was not born in a hospital. I do have a State Registrar's notice that there is no record and two notarized affidavits from people present at my birth. Will this evidence be sufficient to file for a passport?

A. You have the main ingredients of secondary evidence, but you should also submit one public record, such as an early school or church record with the date and place of your birth, or a U.S. Census record created in a year early in your childhood.

Burke is a former consultant to the assistant secretary for consular affairs at the State Department.

Jazz musicians featured on October cruises

New York Times News Service

With names such as Mel Torme, Woody Herman, Dizzy Gillespie and Gerry Mulligan, the subject is definitely jazz. But it is also travel, because when October rolls around, they will all — literally — be at sea. All these musicians — and more — will be involved in Norwegian Caribbean Lines' Great American Music Month.

On the line's one-week cruises to the Caribbean, leaving the port of Miami every weekend during October aboard the Norway, Starward, Southward and Skyward, jazz will hold sway, with the Harlem Blues and Jazz Band, Eddie Daniel's Washboard Band, Joe Williams and the Fat Cats Festival Jazzers among the contributors. Performances will be scheduled at various hours of the day; and passengers will have an opportunity to meet the stars informally.

Calling at such ports as Ocho Rios, St. Thomas, Grand Cayman, Cozumel and Cancun, and based on double occupancy, the cruises range in price from from $1,195 to $2,810 a person on the Norway, and from $975 to $1,995 on the Southward, Starward and Skyward.

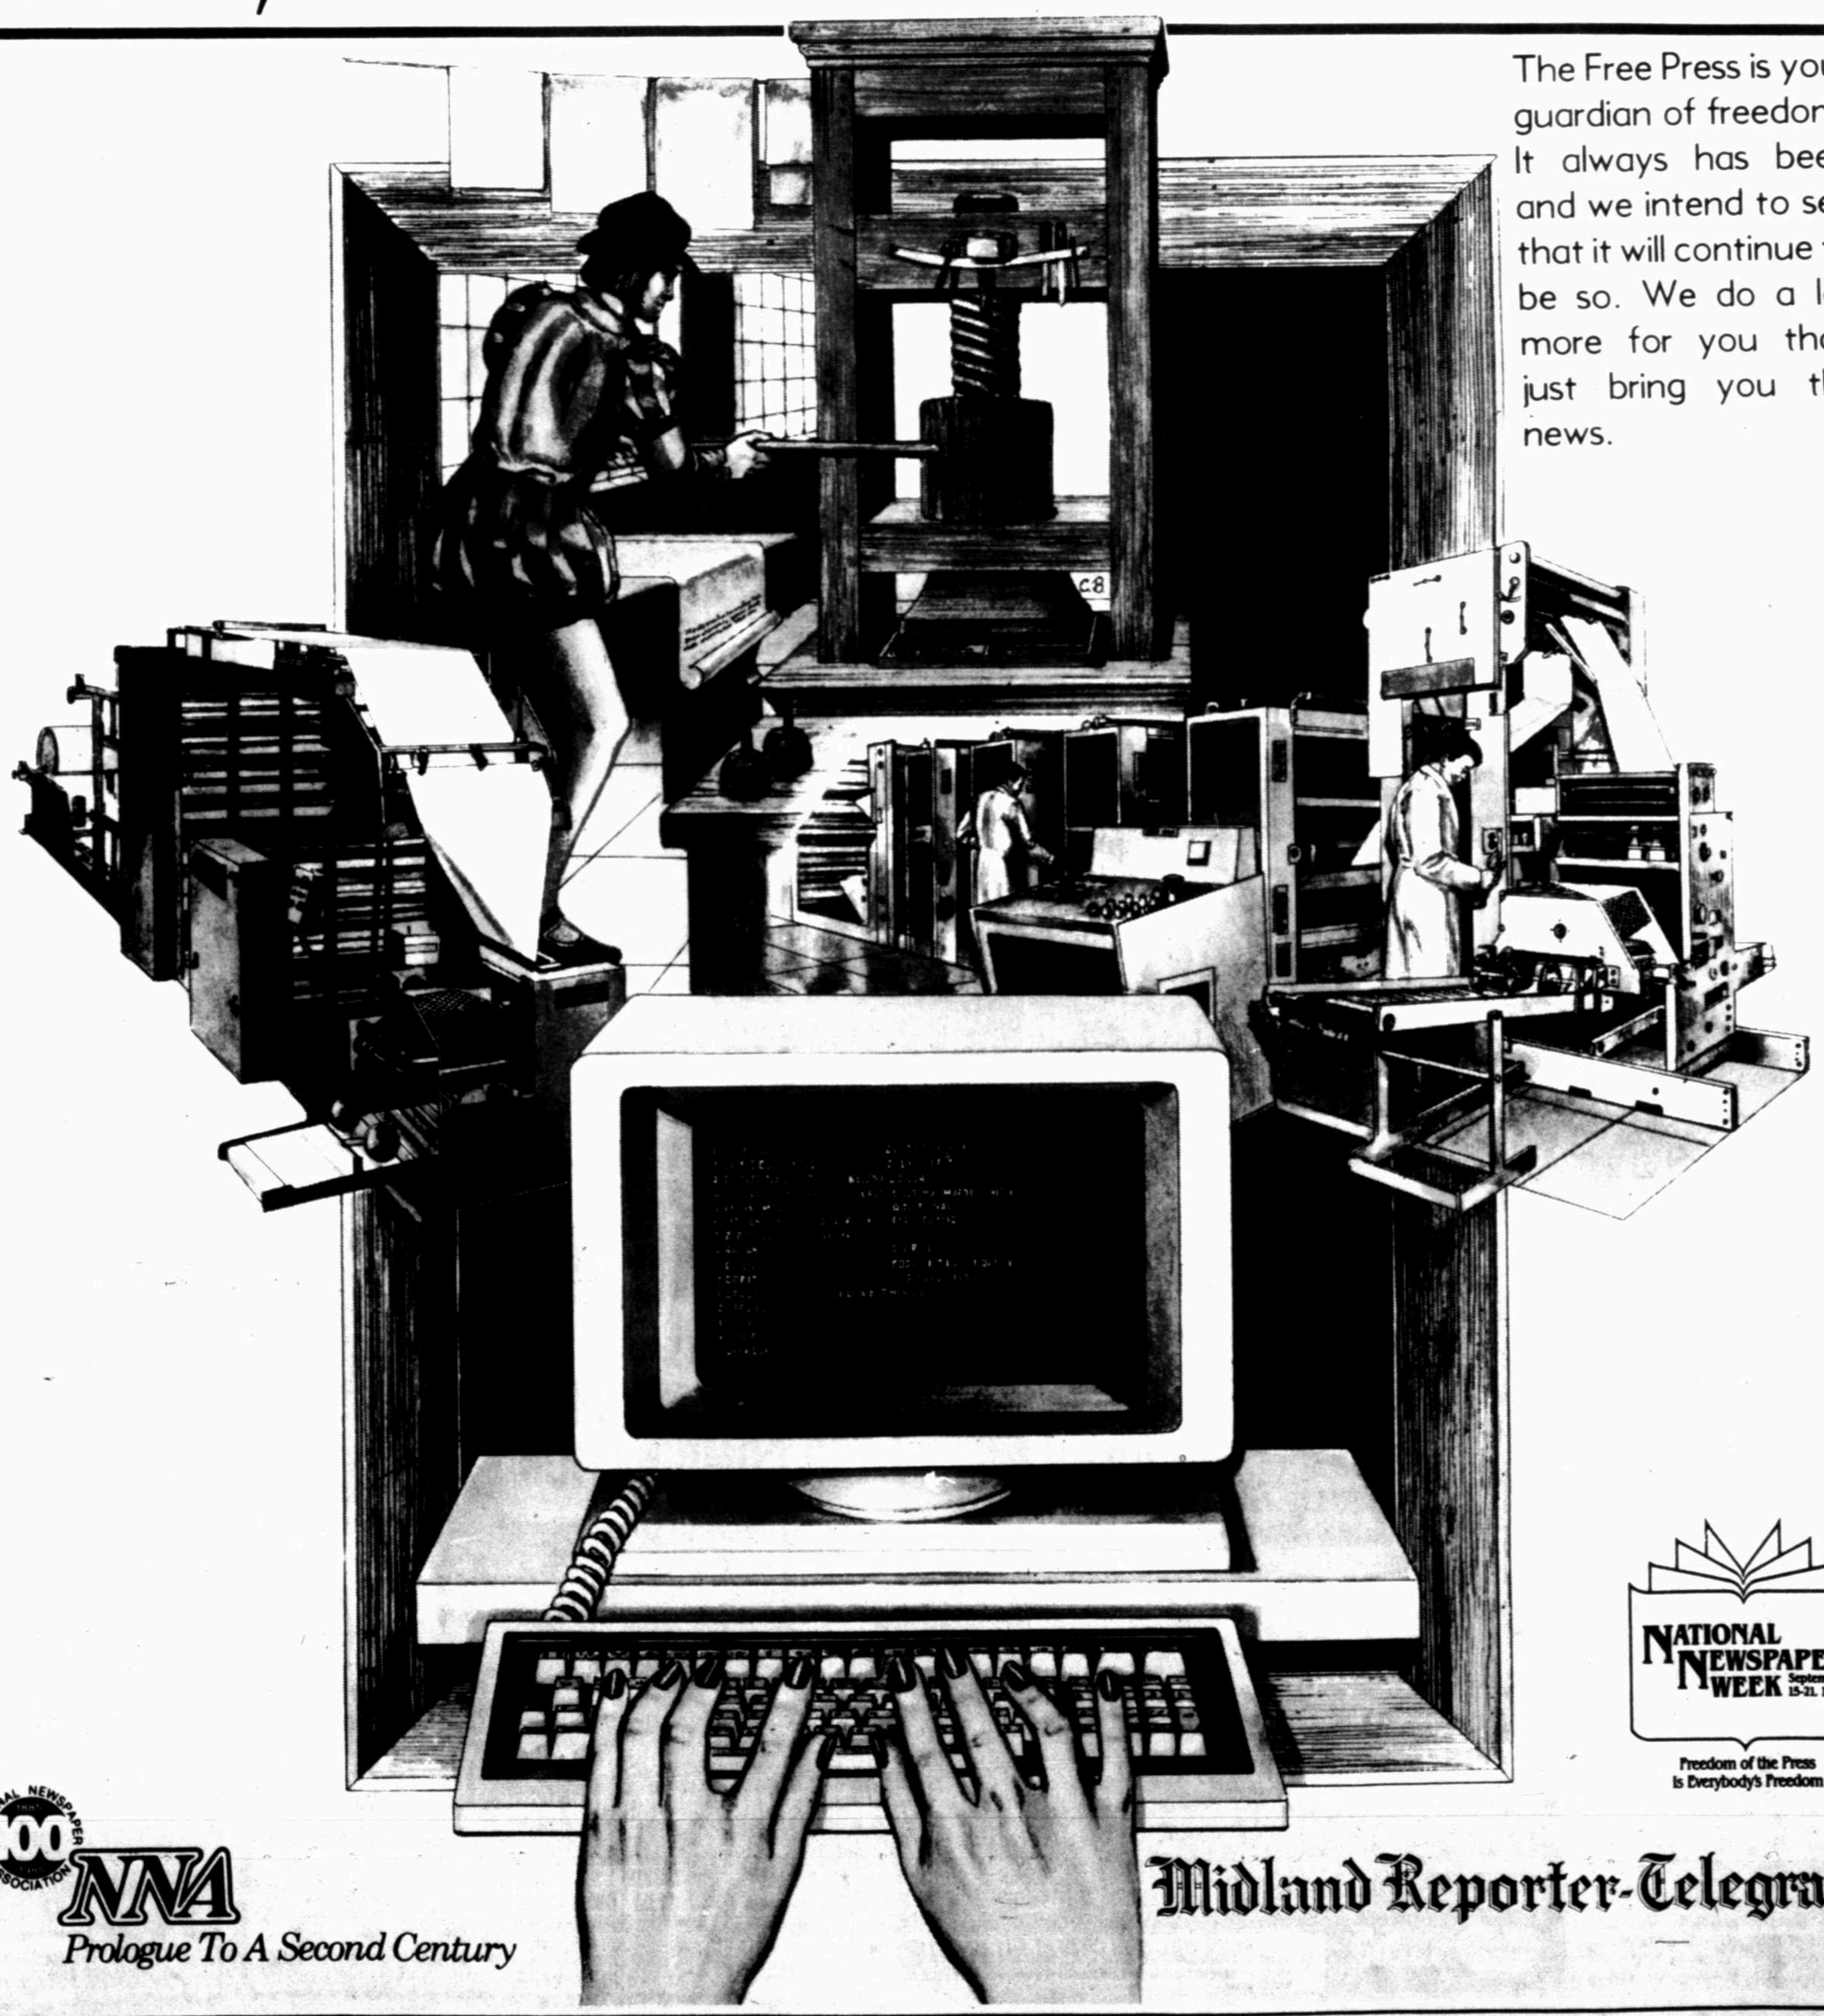

More information and a brochure are available from Norwegian Caribbean Lines (1 Biscayne Tower, Miami, Fla. 33131).

DEAR ABBY

Teen pulled between parents tired of stretching truth

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: I am 16 and my problem is my parents. I love them both and hope they aren't staying married because of me, because I think they both would be happier if they were divorced.

They lie to each other and they both ask me to lie for them. My mother has several boyfriends, and my father has one ladyfriend that I know about for sure. Neither of my parents knows what the other is doing, but I do. They are not being fair to each other, they are not being fair to me and they are not being fair to the friends they are lying to. I don't know how to handle it.

I need some advice, but please don't say where this is from. Sign me ... TIRED OF LYING

DEAR TIRED: Talk to both parents privately. Tell them that you are tired of lying, and urge them to get counseling so that they can quit lying to each other and asking you to lie for them.

This is a heavy load for you to bear alone, so for the good of all, I strongly recommend family counseling. You are a very intelligent 16-year-old, and I admire you for trying to find a solution to this family problem.

DEAR ABBY: "Cliff" and I have been married for 23 years, and we've had what I consider a good marriage, but something bothers me. Before we met, Cliff was engaged to "Ellen," but he caught her with another man and broke off with her. Soon after, we met, fell in love and were married. Ellen is also married and lives in another state, and Cliff has kept in touch with her all these years. He's especially close to Ellen's son, who is being married next month.

Cliff plans to go to the wedding and says I am welcome to go with him, but I don't really want to go.

This has me so upset I can't think straight. I've always wondered why Cliff has taken such an interest in that boy. I've even wondered if the boy was his.

I don't know what to do. Should I go with him or not? Or should I try to stop him from going? — AFRAID TO DIG DEEPER

DEAR AFRAID: Your signature shows you to be a very perceptive woman. Not knowing is worse than knowing. I think you should share your innermost feelings and nagging doubts with Cliff. You need to clear the air and put your mind at ease. Don't ask him not to go. Go with him.

DEAR ABBY: You will probably not print what I have to say, but at least I will get this off my chest.

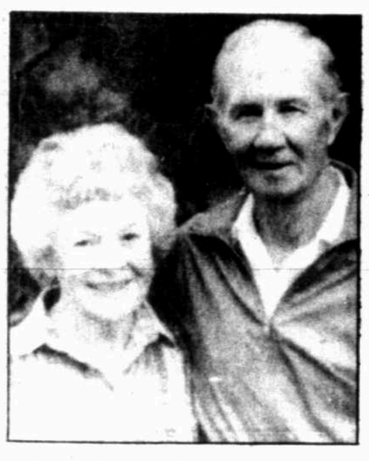

Before I read my newspaper, I put on a pair of rubber gloves and a plastic apron, as the black ink comes off onto my hands and the garment I'm wearing. Needless to say, this is not very comfortable, but it's necessary.

I am enclosing a pair of new rubber gloves to show you the condition they are in after reading my newspaper. The apron is in the same condition. Filthy!

Can't something be done about this? — FILTHY FINGERS

DEAR FILTHY FINGERS: Perhaps if enough readers inquire about it, some action will be taken.

Abigail Van Buren is a columnist for Universal Press Syndicate.

Mr. and Mrs. Max W. Cooper

Anniversary celebrated

Mr. and Mrs. Max W. Cooper of Midland celebrated their 50th wedding anniversary with a family reunion and dinner party this weekend in Houston. Hosts at the gathering were Mr. and Mrs. Doug Barkley, Mr. and Mrs. David Holder, and Mr. and Mrs. Joe Adams.

The couple was married Sept. 15, 1935 in Pampa. They have three children, Sally Cooper Barkley of Bryan, Blanch Cooper Holder of Houston and Sue Cooper Adams of Plano, six grandchildren and one great-grandchild.

The Coopers have lived in Pampa, Amarillo, Hobart, Okla., Borger and since 1950 in Midland. Max Cooper retired from White's Stores in 1970 as district manager for West Texas and New Mexico, after a 35 year career.

Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Skelton

Skeltons mark 50th anniversary

Ralph and Nettie Skelton of Midland celebrated their 50th wedding anniversary with a reception Sept. 7 at North "A" and Tennesse Church of Christ. Hosts at the gathering were the couple's three children, Jack L. Skelton, Wilma D. Box and Ralph C. Skelton.

Skelton and the former Nettie Geaslin were married Sept. 6, 1935, in New Mexico. In addition to their three children, the couple also has five grandchildren and one great-grandchild.

The family moved to Midland in 1947. Skelton is retired.

The couple attends the Church of Christ.

Noncustodial mothers form nonprofit group

New York Times News Service

NEW YORK — Eight years ago Cathy Knapt's husband told her that he had filed for divorce and that he wanted custody of their two sons, Russell, 10 years old, and Marty, 8.

"I wanted the children but I didn't know how I was going to be able to afford them," Mrs. Knapt said. "I was just a housewife with a high school education. Besides, I knew he would outlast me in court."

Mrs. Knapt didn't fight for custody, and she believes that was the right decision. Still, life without her children has been difficult.

So she joined Mothers Without Custody, a nonprofit group that began in 1981. It is made up of women who, like Mrs. Knapt, have either voluntarily given up custody of their children or have lost in custody battles. The women lend support to one another at monthly meetings and talk about their frustrations.

Mothers Without Custody has more than 500 members nationwide and about 25 local chapters. Mrs. Knapt, who joined in 1982, has been president of the national organization since last September.

In Mrs. Knapt's group in Houston, a family therapist attends each meeting. Occasionally a lawyer will visit and advise the women of their rights.

'Hints from Heloise'

By KATHY LARKIN — King Features Syndicate

Heloise, the world's most famous household-hints syndicated columnist is describing...not her column appearing in over 500 newspapers, not her 130 TV spots and an equal number of radio bits, not even her latest project, "Heloise's Beauty Book," due this fall. No, this instant, Heloise — really Ponce (pronounced PonSEE) Kiah Marchelle Heloise Cruse Evans — is lyrical describing the joys of hot-air ballooning. Not cleaning household chimneys, but soaring far above them.

A decidedly unexpected side to her. But then Texas-born, San Antonio-based aka Heloise (dispensing offbeat tips such as using toy handcuffs to lock cabinets under the kitchen sink to make them baby-proof) also fences, scuba dives, snowmobiles and goes dirt-bike riding.

She inherited the "Heloise" beat and her risk-taking character from her very lively, very offbeat mother, a Texas-born twin who got "A" in her Fort Worth public-school shop class, paid for private lessons on smoking gracefully, dyed her hair a rainbow of shades to match her clothes and considered homemakers "the backbone of the world."

Married to second husband Air Force Capt. Marshall ("Mike") Cruse, she launched her column on a party dare. She stormed the offices of "The Honolulu Advertiser," offering an irresistible bargain: to work free for 30 days.

Just three years later, the paper's circulation was up 40 percent, a feat its editor credited "mostly" to Heloise. The local post office was registering statistics too. Shortly after Heloise in her "Reader's Exchange" (the column's original name, based on its ongoing shared information) declared Hershey's cocoa butter was just the thing to soothe tired dish-pan hands, the island stores sold out and a new supply had to be flown in from the States.

By the time Heloise, never really healthy — plagued by miscarriages, arteriosclerosis and other problems — died in 1977, her daughter — a business major and math minor at Southwest Texas State University — had already been coping with the enormous volume of now-syndicated Heloise mail.

Her mother was unique; her father, was an Air Force Captain whizzing around the globe. With that background, it is not surprising that Ponce, inheriting a zest for adventure, loves to go hot-air ballooning with husband David Evans, rising on a blast of a propane gas-powered flame in her own gold and red flowered balloon (marked with her name in towering letters).

"We like to fly low, maybe 300 or 500 feet," she explains. "It's more enjoyable, especially over the country. You see things. Over the city 1,000 feet is minimum for the FAA regulations, but at that level or 10 times it, ballooning is no fun. You look down and everything looks like ants. It's more enjoyable to fly and see the rabbits run and the deer..."

She adds, "We fly early morning and early evening because-...when the winds blow eight or 10 miles an hour, it's too breezy to take off. So you want a little wind but not too much. Still, there are some mornings, especially if I've been on a trip, that 4:30 a.m. rising time comes real early."

One pleasant aspect of ballooning, adds Ponce, is its aftermath. "We're back by 10 a.m. for breakfast, mostly Mexican food, then we crawl back in bed and take a nap."

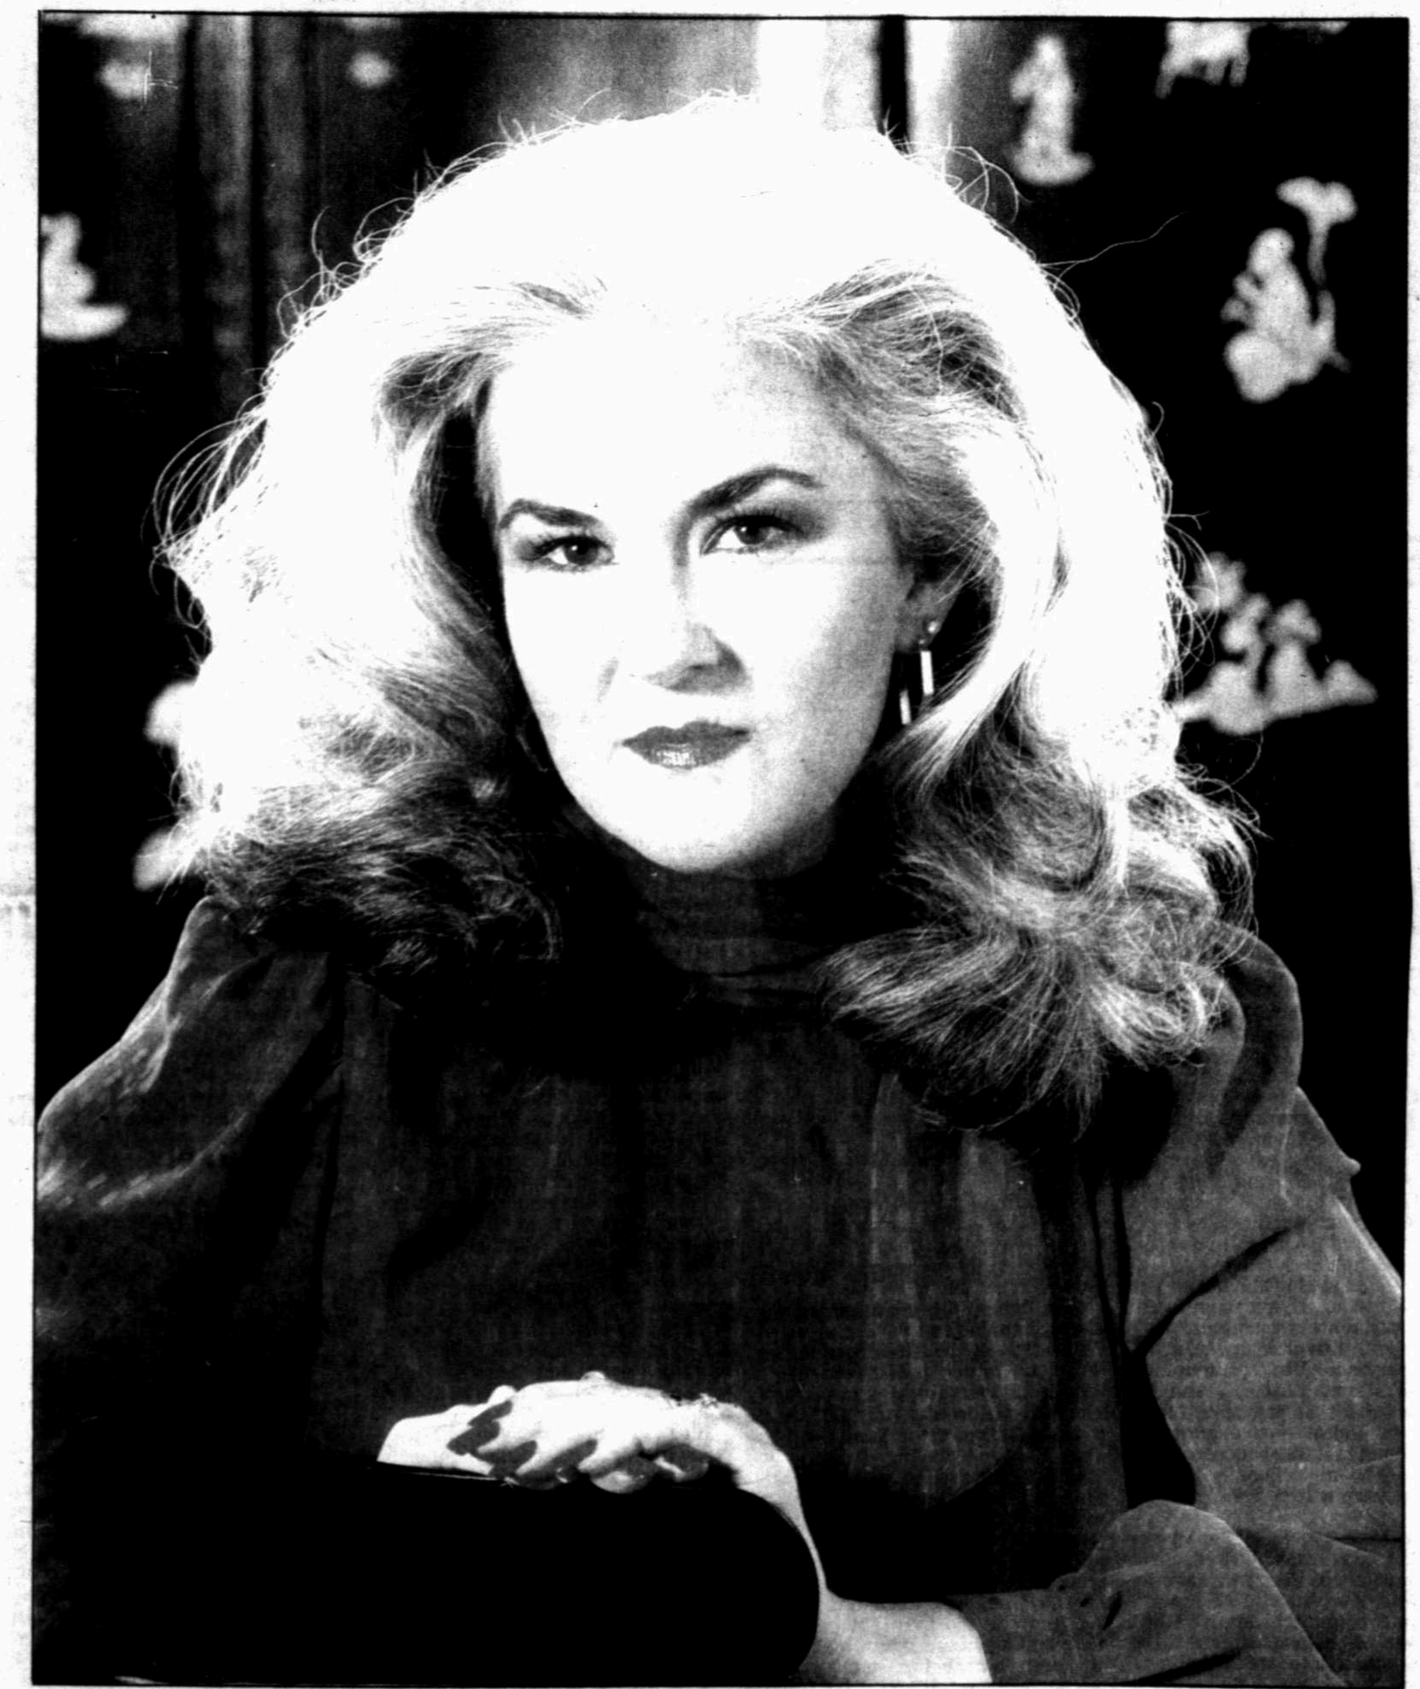

Sometimes, of course, Ponce and her husband literally "drop in" for breakfast somewhere else. "Out in the country on Sunday morning, where the nearest neighbor may be 10 miles away, the farmers are out in bathrobes feeding chickens. And there they are, below, like good Texans, shouting, 'Come on down for coffee.'"

They've landed in one farmer's pasture so often, it's become a habit. "Now," Ponce chuckles, "we just call, warn him the winds are blowing his way. And he says, 'Fine. I'll get the cows out of the pasture.'"

And, of course, after their 1981 wedding — at which bridesmaids wore tuxedos provided by Ponce "because attendants' dresses are too expensive and can't really be worn again," the happy couple lifted off on their honeymoon in a hot-air balloon.

Home for Ponce and David is the modern ranch they designed and built together. It stretches 180 feet beneath a clay-tiled blue roof. It runs from the office, deluged with an estimated 3,000 weekly letters — where Ponce works with her staff, typewriters, copying machines, a word processor and a filing system of over 50,000 household hints — through den, dining room, the living room decorated with Chinese art, two guest bedrooms, sauna, climate-controlled "wine cellar" to the master bedroom. Ponce describes this room as "a sanctuary for me to read and lie down." There are also "his" and "hers" bathrooms: his, blue and hers, bright red.

"We did the house in zones," she explains. "I love red and I've inherited lots of Oriental things from my parents who lived in China at one time. That's not really David's taste. So I have red and black in the living room; he has earth tones in the den."

Ponce Cruse Evans, better known as "Heloise," has a hectic schedule between her column, TV and radio appearances and upcoming book. But she finds time to go hot-air ballooning with her husband David Evans, a hot-air ballon pilot and advertiser.

She says mot reader questions center around basics such as cleaning problems; others are more quixotic.

A Spokane, Wash., disc jockey once dialed to ask what she would do if the president were to come knocking on her door within five minutes. Ponce coped with that one easily: "Pick up the big chunks. Hide the stray shoes. Open drawers and shove everything in off the countertops. Clean the bathroom mirror. Make the bed."

And, ah yes, dump some cinnamon in a pan and turn the oven on low. "That way, when the president pops in, the whole house will smell like cinnamon rolls."

The deluge of mail means Ponce can personally answer a minimum of letters, a truth which bothers her. "It's hard. We do have a form letter. But if it's an 86-year-old grandmother who writes that she's read the column since my mother started, or something I can answer quickly, just jotting on the bottom of the letter, I'll do that."

She adds, "I do try to make myself get into the office by 9 a.m. because the self-discipline of working at home is real difficult. It's hard to walk down the hall. You can always water the plants and play with the dog and dust instead. So now, when I get up, I wash my face, brush my teeth, put on some moisturizer and throw on some jeans and a T-shirt and get through that office door. Then I can stay there, with no trouble."

Having a husband in the house — round-the-clock togetherness or too much?

She laughs. "I like it. Sometimes we see each other during working hours. But usually he's in his office and I'm in mine. With all five telephone lines working. So it's not, as they say..." Her voice sinks to a Mae West parody. "Quality time."

Then she grins. "Of course, I do get an occasional hug."

For Ponce, her husband is a special person, the other half of herself. "Before we married, I warned him. For me to be Heloise and do it successfully meant speaking trips, television, public appearances. I had no real doubts about picking up the column, only about how it would affect my life. I had just met David before my mother died. And I said, 'Look, you marry me, you marry the whole package. It's not going to change. It will probably get worse.' And David said one word: 'Fine.'"

BETWEEN THE LINES

Michael J. Fox

Q. Could you please tell me about Michael J. Fox? He's adorable.

Shashi Bains
Clovis, Calif.

A. He's 24, one of five children of Bill Fox, a police dispatcher who was formerly in the Canadian Army, and his wife, Phyllis, a payroll clerk. The family lives in Vancouver, where Michael (the J. doesn't stand for anything; he had to change his name slightly because the Screen Actors Guild already had a Michael Fox) got his introduction to show business at the age of 15.

His drama teacher had heard that the Canadian Broadcasting Company was looking for a 10-year-old for a series called "Leo and Me" and she suggested he audition. He's always looked younger than he is, so he did and got the role. Because of his work on the series, he missed so many classes that he didn't get his high-school diploma, but it gave him the experience and confidence to go to Los Angeles and try for a career there, which he did at the age of 18.

He was hired for a Disney feature called "Midnight Madness" and a short-lived TV series called "Palmerstown." A long drought followed and, as he explains it, "Family Ties" came along just as he was about to starve.

Since his last reported fee was $10,000 per show, he's certainly not in any danger of that now, especially since the series is going strong. It even just expanded its horizons by going overseas for a couple of weeks. Watch for English vistas as the season opens. The plot explanation is that Alex won a summer scholarship to Oxford and the family decided to go along.

As you're undoubtedly aware, Michael is also a movie star now, as a result of the smash status of "Back to the Future," which he shot at night, while shooting "Family Ties" during the day. After that kind of schedule, according to an associate, he's happy just to do the series for the time being.

Michael has been linked with actress Nancy McKeon for quite a while and doesn't lead the typical Hollywood bachelor life at all. He prefers to stay in or go to hockey games rather than hit the party scene.

Despite the healthy paychecks (which, his mother explains, he is terrible at managing), he has a fairly modest apartment. His one extravagance seems to be a flashy Datsun sports car, the type he always made fun of, he says, when he was an out-of-work actor.

Q. I think Lauren Bacall is wonderful. Will she be in anything soon?

J. Crawford
Mays Landing, N.J.

A. She is in something right now, but it's on the other side of the Atlantic. She's starring in a production of "Sweet Bird of Youth" onstage in London. It has had mixed reviews, but her performance has gotten raves and you may get to see it. "Right now, they're talking about extending the London run until the end of December," explains a Bacall representative. "And, after that, there's a chance they could move the production to Broadway."

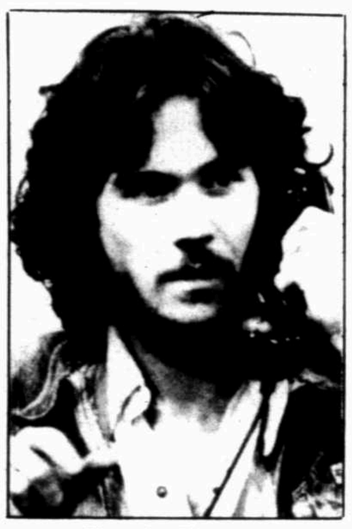

Lauren Bacall

Q. I think Timothy Hutton is wonderful. Can you tell me where he grew up and what he'll be doing next?

B. Curll
Lahaina, Maui, Hawaii

A. Hutton, 25, was born in Malibu but following his parents' divorce and his mother's move back East, he grew up in Harwinton, Conn. They later moved to Berkeley, Calif., and at 16, he moved back to Los Angeles to live with his father, the late actor Jim Hutton. For the last few years, he's been back in Malibu, but recently gave it up to base himself in New York.

Regarding future projects: He seems to be moving more into directing. With videos for The Cars and Don Henley already under his belt, he's taking on an episode of the new series "Amazing Stories."

Timothy Hutton

Q. Please tell me what my favorite, Pearl Bailey, is doing.

S.R.
Chattanooga, Tenn.

A. Picking up degrees, it seems. She was awarded an honorary doctorate from Syracuse University; but, more important, she also recently earned her B.A. in theology from Georgetown University, 40 years, as she explains it, after she'd dropped out of school to go into show business.

And now that she's done it? "Since she graduated, we've been putting her work," explains her manager. There's a CBS series, co-written by Renee Taylor and Joseph Bologna, in the works, as well as a movie-of-the-week and a syndicated series called "Pearl's Kitchen," intended to be "inspirational, culinary, full of good talk, and semi-musical." She also intends to continue her lecture and concert appearances.

Pearl Bailey

Q. Sylvester Stallone is the best. Will he have any more action films soon?

Lynda Schoorl
Vale, Ore.

A. Given the box office successes of the "Rocky" and "Rambo" movies, you can be sure of that. Next up, at Christmas, is "Rocky IV," which takes our boy into international/political circles. This opponent is a Russian fighter. Interesting side notes: The fighter is played by Dolph Lundgren, Grace Jones' boyfriend, and his wife is played by Stallone's newest romance, Brigitte Nielsen.

After that, Stallone gets to show off his pecs again in a movie with an arm-wrestling background called "Over the Top." It's scheduled to start shooting in January with a remarkable budget: $25 million for the production, of which a reported $12 million is for Stallone.

Sylvester Stallone

Q. I haven't seen Gary Sandy in anything in ages. Is he still working?

J.H.
Cedar Rapids, Iowa

A. According to his agent, he's been doing a lot of theater. Currently he's in the musical "Windy City," an adaptation of the play "The Front Page" at the Paper Mill Playhouse in Millburn, N.J. It runs through the end of October and after that, could be brought to Broadway. He's also in a film called "Troll," a fantasy-adventure, that should be released later in the fall.

HELOISE

Ponce does perhaps 30 speeches a year, catapulting by plane from Florida to Las Vegas, whizzing within a nine-day span through appearances that hopscotch from Maine to Oregon.

It is not easy.

She says, "I miss David on promotion tours. You get into a city the night before. You get up early and do the TV show. You do the interview. You do a radio show or or another TV appearance or another interview, and by 5 p.m. you're off to another city to do it all over again. It's sometimes fun, but mostly work. And David is one of the few people who understand that."

She met her husband, who went to the University of Texas, through a friend. "David was a commercial balloonist. He's been flying since 1971, when there were perhaps 30 others in the country. When he met me, David said he wanted to do something more stable and grown-up than fly balloons, so he became a plumbing contractor for three horrible years, hating every minute. Now, thank God, he's back to what he really loves — ballooning and hot-air balloon advertising, flying them in for special corporate promotions."

She adds, "David is my pilot. He has experience. He's cautious and safe. He's also a husband. And I'm learning still." Slicing one finger across the throat, Ponce grimaces, "And sometimes husband teaching wife to fly hot-air balloon is like husband teaching wife to drive car. Not good."

Ponce doesn't spend all her leisure hours up in the air. If she's abandoned motorbike riding through local streets, she can still be spotted carooming across the dirt fields. "I had a wreck when this car made a left-hand turn into me. I fell and broke my leg. I was lucky..."

An Air Force brat, Ponce has lived in Virginia and Hawaii. Some years ago, she and her father shared a sentimental journey — heading back to rediscover remnants of the China that existed in 1946, when he and Ponce's mother lived in Shanghai, then Nanking, sharing a household without stove, heat or running water. At one point, Heloise shot a 22 rifle to frighten people stealing clothes from her clothesline.

Heloise, aka, Ponce Cruse Evans

Says Ponce, "I grew up on stories about Shanghai and Peking, so when China first opened its doors to the West, my father and I went. They wouldn't let Mother back in because she was considered a journalist. Still, it was really special walking through Shanghai and having Daddy say, 'This building used to be the Russian Embassy, and your mother and I went to parties there 30 years ago.'"

Says Ponce, discussing her mother now, "She had a little business schooling. But she also had this feeling that there were certain things to do. And she did them. My mother was a punk dresser, flaunting purple or green hair before today's kids were even born. She said she knew she had to be remembered. And she was. Mother was dumb like a fox."

Despite her public-relations flair, Ponce's mother was also shy. "She went from being a mother and housewife to Heloise celebrity. And she didn't handle the recognition all that well. She hated doing live television. She'd throw up three times on the way to the set."

After two miscarriages, Ponce's mother — convinced she could never have a child — adopted a boy, Louis. When Ponce did arrive, after still more miscarriages, her parents were ecstatic. "I was a little princess."

Still, there was one problem. Ponce, born with severe astigmatism, endured six operations to bring her vision to where it is now. She sees with alternate eyes (the vision still does not fuse), has little binocular vision and very little depth perception. But for Ponce's mother, who promised God she'd tithe her income to the blind in exchange for a cure, the overall results were good enough.

Even today, 10 percent of the income from that first Heloise's estate goes to the Perkins School for the Blind, applied to projects such as purchasing Braille typewriters for children who can't afford them.

Ponce still remembers something of those days. "I used to crawl into chairs as a baby. That must have been hard for them to watch. The first operation came before I was a year old and the hospital put my hands in cast so I couldn't scratch my eyes. My father said: 'Walking into the hospital and seeing you that way, I never felt so helpless in my life.'"

If she inherits her savvy with people from her mother, Ponce inherits her business sense from her father. "I like numbers. I play with them the way some people play with crossword puzzles. I even enjoy balancing my checkbook."

It is a life that has brought her money, fame, 24-hour bylines. Somewhere, every day around the world, someone is reading "Hints from Heloise."

And Ponce/Heloise loves it. But she adds one rider. "Even though it's fun to do TV shows and ride the limo, when I go home, I take the garbage out and I'm in my bathrobe. I clean my own house and I tote my own luggage. Those are the things that keep you normal."

Cliffhangers will soon be unhung

NEW YORK (AP) — Meanwhile back at the ranch, Bobby Ewing is dead, the cast of "Dynasty" has been leveled by bullets, Sam is chasing Diane in Italy and Capt. Frank Furillo may be back on the sauce.

That's where we last left our television favorites last spring. With summer reruns about over, the top-rated shows can get back to the business of tying up last season's loose ends while unraveling some new ones.

When we last left Moldavia, stars Joan Collins, John Forsythe and Linda Evans and practically everybody else from top-rated "Dynasty" were on the floor after a devastating attack by terrorists. Who survived? Whose contract wasn't renewed? ABC will have the answers Sept. 25.

Poor Bobby. Patrick Duffy tired of the role, and the "Dallas" producers had Bobby run over by a car. Is there life after Bobby for "Dallas"?

"There could be a falloff," said Bob Igiel, senior vice president at the NW Ayer advertising agency. "Bobby Ewing was a very key character."

The good-guy foil to slimy J.R. may be long-lost cousin Jack Ewing (Dack Rambo). Barbara Bel Geddes returns to the role of Miss Ellie after a one-year absence because of poor health. Donna Reed performed the role last season.

The premiere of CBS' "Dallas," last season's No. 2 series, is Sept. 27 when it runs into a two-hour premiere of the surging "Miami Vice" on NBC. Detectives Crockett and Tubbs bring their expensive threads to New York for the opening episode.

Back at the bar on NBC's "Cheers," Sam, after a fruitless search for Diane in Italy, learns that she dumped her wimpy fiance and now is working in a convent. With the death of Coach (actor Nicholas Colasanto died earlier this year), Sam hires a young, wet-behind-the-ears farmboy as the new bartender.

On NBC's "Hill Street Blues," the season ended with Furillo, a recovering alcoholic, showing traces of alcohol in his system.

"Hill Street" is against the same competition as last season, CBS' "Knots Landing" and ABC's "20-20," and industry observers note how difficult it is for a show in its sixth season to reverse a slide.

There will be changes on the hill. According to David Milch, co-executive producer, the opening roll call no longer will be a weekly fixture, storytelling techniques will vary and only Furillo, Hill, Renko and Belker will be in every episode.

Over at "St. Elsewhere," also an MTM series, Dr. Westphall, the head of the hospital who walked off the job at the end of last season, will begin the season in Ethiopia, where he's been spending the summer helping famine victims.

Sensitive social issues becoming TV films

NEW YORK (AP) — Today's headlines and social issues are tomorrow's TV movies.

That's the philosophy behind some of the most recent film successes, and ABC, CBS and NBC again will be looking to dramatize real life this season.

Movies based on fact in 1985-86 will include CBS' "Out of the Darkness," about the Son of Sam murders that terrorized New York a decade ago, and ABC's "The Jeanne Eckmann Story," about a former nun who is raped and becomes a single parent.

Films focusing on modern social concerns include NBC's "An Early Frost," about a family trying to cope with its son having AIDS; NBC's "Crime of Innocence," about delinquent youths exploited in adult prisons; ABC's "Toughlove," about the organization that helps parents deal with their wayward children; ABC's "Shattered Spirits," about a family dealing with a father's alcoholism, and CBS' "Welcome Home, Bobby," about a teen-age boy and an older man in a homosexual relationship.

With cable making adult themes more acceptable in the home and theatrical movies favoring escapist fare over serious issues, network television in the 1980s has gradually moved to the most significant social concerns of contemporary America.

"Now we're the medium of first choice for these stories," said Steve White, NBC's senior vice president for movies, miniseries and special projects.

Two years ago, the nuclear aftermath film, "The Day After," was the biggest ratings winner, closely followed by "Something About Amelia," about incest.

Last season, the top-ranked TV movie was "The Burning Bed," based on the real-life story of a battered woman who killed her husband. "Fatal Vision," the story of the former Green Beret doctor convicted of murdering his wife and two young daughters, ranked second.

In the early 1980s, many advertisers were reluctant to sponsor these sensitive subjects, but that doesn't seem to be the case now.

"There's been general acceptance by the public," said White.

'Hell' stupid plot lot of vile nonsense

By DAVID LEE FORREST

Forrest

The 1985 summer movie season ended when the kids started heading back to school, but, unfortunately the fall films haven't really started arriving yet.

An unusually large number of movies were released this summer. The season saw a few big moneymakers — "Rambo," "Back to the Future" and "Pale Rider" — a couple of artistically sound, intelligent films — "Prizzi's Honor" and "The Emerald Forest" — and a whole slew of so-so sound-alike teen movies — at least one wit labeled them the "My Real Weird Genius Science Project" flicks.

The past few weeks have turned out to be a gap between the youth-oriented summer onslaught and the somewhat more adult-oriented fall. The flood of summer films has finally dried up, but little new has arrived here to take their place. Local theaters have resorted to bringing back old hits like "Ghostbusters," "Gremlins" and, interestingly, "Amadeus."

Into the remaining schedule gaps have fallen such junk as "American Ninja," a martial arts movie with surprisingly little action, and the dreary "Guardian of Hell."

"Guardian of Hell" is actually a five-year-old, low-budget Italian horror movie that has simply been dubbed — very poorly — into English and re-released.

This movie opens with a nun lost in the dark catacombs underneath her convent; it should immediately strike most viewers that one reason she's lost is because she keeps shining her flashlight right into her face. "Guardian of Hell" manages to get even stupider from there.

The plot is a lot of vile nonsense about a bunch of demonically-possessed nuns. It's so poorly paced that sporadic jets of blood spurting out of someone's arteries are the only things in the film that might keep the audience awake.

In all probability, however, the audience would be better off just dozing comfortably until some new, better-quality films show up.

"Guardian of Hell," rated R for considerable violence and some brief and singularly unappealing bits of nudity and sexual innuendo, is now showing at the Midland Park Mall Cinemas.

David Lee Forrest is film critic of the Reporter-Telegram.

ENTERTAINMENT IN BRIEF

Midland's annual Jazz Classic to start Oct. 1

Midland's 9th Annual Jazz Classic will be held at the Holiday Inn Country Villa Oct. 1 through 6. Some 20 nationally well-known jazz musicians will provide the nightly entertainment.

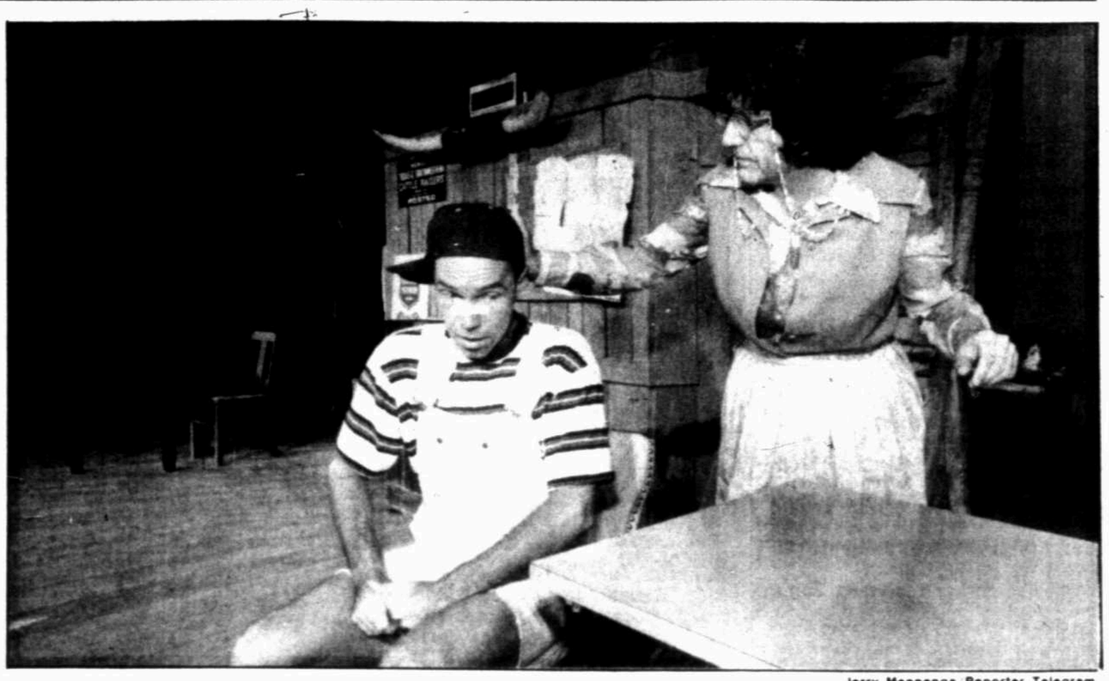

Performances begin at 8 p.m. and end at midnight. The Oct. 6 performance will run from 2 to 6 p.m.

Tickets are not sold at the door. They can be purchased from the Midland Jazz Association, P.O. Box 3790, Midland, 79702. For more information call Max Christensen, 682-5334. A limited amount of seats are available and reservations are now being taken.

Ticket price is $125 for the six performances. Single performance tickets are not available; however, it is possible to share a ticket if the ticket holder does not wish to come to each performance. Reservations for seating outside of the sponsor table area is sold on a first-come basis. Those wishing to seat together need to make their reservations at the same time.

The classic offers one set of three or four numbers of two piano jazz every session. These involve any two of the pianists on grand pianos accompanied by drums and bass playing boogies, ragtime or blues.

Musicians invited to attend the 1985 classic include: Jack Lesberg (who is also the musical director for the event), Milt Hinton and George Mraz, Bass; Dick Hyman, Dave McKenna and Ralph Sutton, piano; Butch Miles, Gus Johnson and Jake Hanna, drums; Joe Wilder, Jack Sheldon and Ruby Braff, trumpet and flugelhorn; Carl Fontana, Bill Watrous and George Masso, trombone; Flip Phillips and Scott Hamilton, tenor sax; Bud Shanks and Christ Wood, alto sax and flute; Johnny Mince and Kenny Davern, clarinet; Tal Farlow, guitar; and Red Norvo, vibes.

Hey, Sonny!

Bertha Bumiller (Jim Slaughter) talks with her son (Buster Tieman) in this scene from Midland Community Theatre's production of "Greater Tuna," onstage at Theatre Midland, 2000 W. Wadley Ave., through Sept. 21. Written by Jaston Williams, Joe Sears and Ed Howard, the play is a comedy about "the third smallest town in Texas." The two-member cast plays multiple roles. For reservations call Theatre Midland's box office, 682-4111.

Symphony auditions set

The Midland-Odessa Symphony Chorale is holding auditions at 6:30 p.m. Tuesday at the Symphony rehearsal Hall located at Terminal. Other audition times may be arranged by appointment through the symphony o ices.

This seaso ., the symphony welcomes Edward Eugene Pierce into the position of chorale director. Pierce has conducted college, church and community choral ensembles, is an experienced orchestral conductor and has taught at Temple University, the University of Northern Colorado and Adams State College, Colorado.

Pierce received his academic and musical training at Westminister Choir College, Florida State University, where he earned his bachelor of music, Temple University, where he received his master of music degree, and the University of Northern Colorado, where he is a candidate for the doctor of arts degree in chroal conducting. His principal teachers include Joseph Fulmmerfelt, Elaine Brown, Howard Skinner and Alice Parker.

The Symphony Chorale traditionally offers the opportunity to perform a broad repertoire ranging from traditional masterpieces to Broadway show tunes. Not only does the chorale perform on the symphony's Master Season, but it also performs a fall and spring choral concert. The 1985-86 season includes Tchaikovsky's "1812 Overture," Mozart's Requiem Mass and works by Ravel, Boito, Handel and Bruckner as well as others.

Musuem to be 10 years old

The Permian Basin Petroleum Museum, 1500 Interstate 20 West, is celebrating its 10th anniversary with special festivities planned on the grounds Sept. 21.

Midland mayor Thane Akins and Odessa mayor John Minor have proclamed Sept. 21 as Petroleum Museum Day in the Permian Basin and they will be on hand at the 10 a.m. opening ceremonies to award their respective proclamations. Various other community leaders will also be there.

Sky divers from "Our Parachute Club," representing the Midland/Odessa area, will join the party at 11 a.m. when a birthday cake is cut to officially mark the occasion. The Midland Barber Shoppers will conclude the opening ceremonies as the full day's activities get under way.

"Chek-Point" will provide live entertainment throughout the afternoon with special appearances and performances by square dancers, Boy Scout Explorer Indian Guides (dancers), fiddlers and piano players, mimes and Tommy the Clown.

The public may tour the museum throughout the day and a showing of oil-related movies will play continuously in the museum auditorium. Festivities will end at 5 p.m.

There is no charge for any of the oustide activities and for Sept. 21 only, the charge to tour the Museum will be $1 instead of $2.

All visitors will receive a birthday gift and everyone is eligible for the door prize drawings.

Playhouse to do 'Cabaret'

ODESSA — "Cabaret," the multiple prize-winning Broadway musical success that launched one of the major song-hits of the 1960s, is the opening presentation of the 1985-86 season at Odessa's Permian Playhouse. The production runs through Sept. 28.

Opening on Broadway in November 1966 and continuing until September 1969, "Cabaret" won all three of the "best musical of the year" awards in its first season — Tony Award, N.Y. Drama Critics' Circle Award and Outer Circle Critics' Award. when the show was presented in London, it won London's Variety poll and the Evening Standard poll as the best musical of the year.

Based by Joe Masteroff on John van Druten's 1952 play "I Am a Camera" and Christopher Isherwodd's 1938 book of "Berlin Stories" which inspired van Druten, "Cabaret" is a tale of tarnished innocents abroad in a land with no time for innocence, Berlin in the years just before Hitler came to power. Music is by John Kander and Fred Ebb.

The production is directed by Coy Sharp. Vocal direction is by Ronald Bennett and choreography by Cherry Jones. Costumes are designed by Kerry Pell.

Last demolition derby set

The Midland Suburban Lions Club is sponsoring the final demolition derby in a series of three at 2:30 p.m. Oct. 6 at Twin Cities Speedway.

Total prize money to be awarded that day is $2,700. In addition to prize money, special awards, including three 6-foot trophies and 10 2-foot trophies, will be given away.

Twin Cities Speedway is located 15 miles west of Midland on Highway 80. Capacity crowds have attended the previous derbies. Gates open at noon Oct.6.

Entry fee for a car in the derby is $25 per-car. Individual or team entries are accepted. A cash prize of $500 is being given for the most cars entered in a derby team as well as a 6-foot trophy. No experience is necessary. The derby is open to anyone who wants to test his or her skill in wiping out the competition. Pre-entry deadline for derby cars is Oct. 5.

In addition to the derby, a spectator drag, which offers a 6-foot trophy and $200 purse to the winner, will be held. In this event, those spectators who want to participate enter the car they drove to the track.

For more information, call J.A. "Monty" Coldwell, a member of the Midland Suburban Lions Club, 683-8541.

MC to sponsor art show

A record number of entries is expected from area artists for the eighth annual Juried Art Exhibition, co-sponsored by Midland Arts Association and Midland College.

All area artists are invited to enter the show which will hang at the McCormick Gallery, Allison Fine Arts Building, MC campus.

Entry date is Sept. 28 between the hours of 10 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. Works sent by commercial carrier must arrive at MC Art Department by 5 p.m. Sept. 27.

Juror for the exhibiton will be Thomas A. Livesay, assistant director of the Dallas Museum of Fine Art. At 10 a.m. Sept. 30, Livesay will lecture at MC in the Allison Fine Arts Building on "Texas Regionalism: Then and Now." The lecture, sponsored by MC, is open to the public.

Artists are limited to three entries. Accepted media includes ceramics, sculpture, glass, drawing, graphics, painting, fibers, photography and mixed media. Cost is $7 per-entry.

A prospectus may be obtained by writing to Midland Arts Association, P.O. Box 4252, Midland, Texas 79704. There will be a minimum of $1000 cash and /or purchase awards.

Tole painting classes given

The ability to draw is not an essential tool in Louise Reynolds tole painting and pen and ink classes.

"In both classes we work from patterns, so no drawing ability is necessary," she says. "In tole painting, we begin by learning different ways of preparing and finishing wood and tin. Three different painting techniques are used as well as different kinds of shadowing."

Some of the tole painting is devoted to Christmas creations, working from patterns and learning how to paint glass Christmas ornaments. The pen and ink class offers information about pen and ink and the use of gold leaf. Content of the class includes oil color with recessed backing, three-dimensional work, snowing of glass and framing.

Tole Painting II is scheduled to begin Oct. 21.

The Pen and Ink Class begins Wednesday. It meets from 7 to 10 p.m. for four weeks. Cost is $19.

Persons interested may register at the Department of Community Services, Administration Building, between 8 a.m. and 6 p.m.

Search on for 'Amahl'

A nationwide search for boy soprano soloists to perform the role of Amahl in the Gian-Carlo Menotti opera "Amahl and the Night Visitors" has been undertaken by Shallway Foundation, child-talent casting agency.

The foundation is providing casting services free to churches and schools which plan to perform the opera during the forthcoming Christmas season. A foundation spokesman estimates the opera will be produced in at least 250 American cities November through January.

Parents of boys, ages 7 to 12, with high soprano voices may send names to Shallway Foundation, Connellville, Pa., 15425. Parents of boys who have already performed the Amahl role should send casette tapes.

"Amahl and the Night Visitors" is the story of a crippled boy living near Bethlehem who is miraculously cured when he offers his crutch as a gift to the infant Jesus.

Free noon concerts continue

Roberts

Midland Arts Assembly is presenting a series of free noon concerts at RepublicBank First National's plaza during September. Remaining concert dates are Wednesday and Sept. 25.

The soloists from Ballet Folklorico of Midland and the Permian Basin Chapter of the Society for the Preservation of Barbershop Quartets in America, directed by Tom Roberts, perform Wednesday and dancers from Ballet Midland and soloist Jane Debenport Sept. 25.

Those attending are welcome to bring lunch and enjoy these outdoor concerts. The bank will furnish tea and lemonade.

Guitarist-pianist at Custer's

Classical guitarist and pianist Henry Lewis is performing Tuesdays through Saturdays at Custer's, 2800 N. Big Spring St.

Lewis begins at 7:30 p.m Tuesday through Thursday and at 8 p.m. Friday and Saturday. The Lounge is open until midnight Tuesday through Thursday and until 1:30 p.m. Friday and Saturday.

Lewis has just recently released "Jalapeno Lips" through Burgundy Records.

Company wants Mr. Clean

HOLLYWOOD (LAT) — The search is on for Mr. Clean — as a real-life product spokesman. The bald and burly genie, who returned to TV last September in animated form following a 10-year absence, is being sought in a nationwide manhunt by Procter & Gamble.

Ron Smith's Celebrity Look-Alikes is assisting in the search for the new spokesman (who will push the liquid cleanser countrywide, but not on TV). The contest begins officially July 18. Regional runners-up will receive $1,000 and a trip to New York to compete this fall for $30,000 and a personal appearance contract.

Like Miss America, the next Mr. Immaculate will have to have more than a look-alike appearance. According to Kevin Hassey, Procter & Gamble's brand manager for Mr. Clean: "Mr. Clean is a warm, friendly guy who's real helpful.... This isn't just a guy with a bald head."

For the (trivia) record, Mr. Clean was earlier brought to life, back in 1965, for some TV spots. Reported Hassey, "But it was only for a fleeting moment and I have no idea who he was."

Museum pays homage to Bugs Bunny

NEW YORK (AP) — Ssshh. Be wewy, ve-wy quiet. You're in the Museum of Modern Art — and it's Wabbit season.

There they all are, cheek to fuzzy jowl on that venerable Manhattan museum's walls — Picasso, Van Gogh, Degas, Yosemite Sam, Foghorn Leghorn, Daffy, Speedy, Tweety, Elmer and...Bugs Bunny.

It's the 50th anniversary of Warner Brothers' Looney Tunes and Merrie Melodies cartoons which combined the bite of adult satire with childlike sight gags and belly laughs as none before or since.

The museum is paying homage to these Warner Brothers cartoons, recognizing them as the art works that they truly are, in a special exhibit titled "That's not All, Folks!"

On hand for the show's opening last week were Friz Freleng, 79, and Chuck Jones, 73 — names any Bugs buff instantly recognizes as longtime animators of the whole stable of Warner Brothers characters. Freleng, in addition, created the Pink Panther after Warner closed its internal animation department in 1963. Both are doing only occasional cartooning these days.

Their favorite? No surprise, really.

"We both favor Bugs Bunny," said Jones. "He's the kind of character I'd like to be. Bugs became a sort of male Dorothy Parker, always quick with the one-liner.

"And he was a counter-revolutionary, and I guess that's why people have a certain affection for him. He would not, as a Woody Woodpecker might, bedevil people just to bedevil people," he said.

The exhibit includes early sketches from the 1930s, when Freleng, Jones and the other underpaid, wisecracking animators toiled unobtrusively in what they dubbed "termite terrace," a back-alley building on the old Warner movie lot.

The museum exhibit shows the cartoons in their formative stages, from pencil drafts to vivid color.

There are sketches of rarely seen oldies from the World War II days when Bugs and Daffy worked shifts with Rosie the Riveter or shot down Messerschmidts.

And there's a color sketch of perhaps the greatest cartoon of all, "One Froggy Evening," a tale of what happens to a man who believes he has found his pot of gold in a frog who sings "Hello, My Baby" — but only when the mood strikes him.

In the golden era of cartooning from the 1930s through '50s, Freleng recalled, six-minute cartoons cost about $10,000 to make. Today cartoons made with the same time, care and skill would cost about $1,000 a second — about $360,000. That price-tag, along with the demise of the movie double feature and short subject explains why they don't make them like that anymore.

But a cartoon fanatic cannot live by art exhibits alone. The museum will run uncut, uncensored Warner Brothers cartoons Saturdays and Sundays through Jan. 26.

And Looney Tunes remain a Saturday morning television fixture as they have for the last 25 years — only this year they've switched from CBS to ABC.

As an added bonus for museumgoers, Jones spent last weekend doodling his characters all over the museum's walls in magic marker.

Near the museum elevator, Porky and Daffy's graffiti likenesses confer:

The Warner Brothers Cartoon Golden Jubilee, says Porky, is "on fift- fifty thir- third Street, buh between fuh Fifth Avenue and Avenue of the Am- Am- Amer-Am...oh, to heck with it!"

"Oh yeah?" Daffy replies. "That's easy for you to say!"

College-cost hikes to continue

But, first class schools not out of reach

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the second of a four-part series examining aspects of college education.

By Susan Crain Bakos
King Features Syndicate

The average cost of tuition, room and board for the '83-84 school year at a state-supported public school was approximately $4,700. The tab at private colleges averaged $7,500. And the costs at the most expensive private colleges and universities go up to $15,000.

Yet college administrators nationwide claim they are trying to hold the line on tuition increases.

Still, the numbers keep climbing.

The cost of tuition, room and board is jumping higher than the national inflation rate; and the leaping figures are forcing many students to re-think their college plans. According to Money magazine, private college enrollments of students with family incomes of less than $25,000 have dropped by 50 percent in the last two years.

And John Phillips, president of The National Association of Independent Colleges and Universities, sounds like a Midwestern weatherman in the winter when he predicts: No relief in sight.

"We can expect double-digit percentage tuition hikes for the next year or two at least at private colleges," he says. "We're looking at an average schooling cost of $9,000 by 1986."

Why is the cost of a good education going so high?

School officials say the increases are absolutely necessary — and are, in fact, not even enough.

Private colleges depend on tuition for more than half of their income. When inflation was at its peak in the late '70s, school administrators were reluctant to raise tuition enough to cover their operating costs. Many schools put a freeze on faculty salaries.

Now they're being forced to make up for those postponed increases — or lose top-ranking professors to private industries or other universities, particularly those in the Southwest, which has not been as hard-hit by economic problems as other parts of the country.

GOVERNMENT RESEARCH grants, which have traditionally sustained 50 to 60 percent of the large universities, both private and public, have leveled off during the Reagan years.

The state universities have also been hurt by recent decreases in state tax revenue. In Ohio, appropriations per students have declined by 29 percent since 1978; in New Hampshire, by 24 percent. Most other states have cut appropriations per student even though the total budgets are higher.

As a result of budget cuts, school administrators have eliminated some programs and combined others. Most feel they've gone about as far as they can go in this area without seriously undermining their schools' academic reputations.

Research facilities and classroom buildings, neglected in the past few years, are in desperate need of repair. New equipment purchases, too long delayed, have become mandatory now.

And, finally, when they can least afford to do so, schools are required to provide more financial aid to students whose families' incomes have not kept pace with tuition increases.

Obviously, selecting the right school and gaining admission are only the beginning for today's students. Scraping together the tuition is a problem, and will continue to be one, for all but the richest, the brightest and the poorest. Others look for alternatives; and sometimes those second choices provide a second-rate education.

Where can the middle-class B-minus student who doesn't have a trust fund, an old family school tie in the attic or athletic prowess buy a good education?

Is College Worth the Cost?

"First, never rule out the first-class college which has accepted you just because you find you can't afford it. Applications for government aid were down 30 percent last year, while the appropriations aren't down that far. People think the money isn't there, so they don't apply.

"And a lot of middle-class families are eligible for aid now. They don't realize it from just glancing through a form from the financial office of a university," says Fred Hansen, financial aid consultant.

THE SVOBODAS from suburban Chicago have three children in college. Their annual income is slightly over $60,000. Because they are already paying tuition, room and board at the university of Illinois for their two older children, they qualified for aid when they sent their third daughter to a private college this fall.

Carol Svoboda says, "We aren't unusual. Other families in our neighborhood are getting help with college costs too. But you have to be aggressive about asking for the help sometimes. Colleges may not offer it until you ask."

Financial need is determined by adjusted gross income figures as computed by each school. While they use different standards for determining need, nearly all credit the family for expenses incurred in keeping siblings in college too. Families with more than one child in expensive private colleges may qualify for some aid — even if they're earning $75,000 a year.

Schools which are heavily endowed have the most money available for student aid; and they can somehow usually take care of all the students accepted.

If you still don't qualify for aid, many private schools offer payment options. Washington University in St. Louis pioneered the prepayment tuition plan six years ago; and several other institutions, including Harvard, Yale and Brandeis, have adopted it. Students pay the entire four years tuition costs in one lump sum (if they choose) at the beginning of freshman year. They don't have to pay extra for the tuition increases which are bound to occur during their undergraduate years.

While this is an option for the wealthy or for families who can and want to borrow a large lump sum, many schools have other plans. In New Hampshire and Massachusetts, state bond issues have created available money for low-interest loans to students.

And most colleges and universities, public or private, will work hard at arranging a combination aid-loan-student-work package for those who've met their admissions requirements.

Still, everyone can't go to Harvard, but says educator and author Graham Bond, "There are some excellent large public colleges and universities offering superior educations at a lower cost. Students who live in Michigan, Texas, Wisconsin, Virginia and California can study in some of the country's best undergraduate programs for a tuition of less than $2,000 a year."

It's possible your home state can provide a good education at a bargain price. State schools even represent a substantial savings for out-of-state students — over the cost of the top private schools.

BUT HOW do you know if your State U. is good — or merely mediocre? If it operates on something other than the non-selective basis, check its ratings in one or more authoritative guides.

Because a state has one superior school, don't automatically expect all of its universities to be above-average. The University of Illinois, for example, is consistently ranked as one of the nation's best, but other Illinois schools do not approach this level of quality. Few states' systems are like California's which is singled out for UCLA and Berkeley, but is also given general high marks too.

A high-ranking state school is a superior educational buy. Even a lesser-rated school can be a good buy, if you select a major in its strongest department. A strong graduate program in your major area is a plus, even if you don't go on to graduate school there. Undergraduates also benefit from the upgraded lab and research facilities.

"One word of caution: A state-supported school in an area hard-hit by the recession might be in trouble soon, if it isn't yet," Bond says. "Severe budget cuts will probably necessitate cuts in their programs which will weaken the overall quality of the school."

So, the economic health of the state which supports the school should be a factor in decision-making.

Those lesser-known private colleges with meager endowments and small student bodies have suffered most in the money crunch.

Necessary steep tuition hikes have discouraged the very students who provided the bulk of their admissions in the past: the middle-class student of modest abilities. Still, you shouldn't rule out one of those schools as a good buy without investigating.

"A lot of students want and require the intimate setting of a private college; and small liberal arts schools are famous for their dedicated attention to the individual," Bond says.

Swarthmore, Smith and Bowdoin cost over $12,000 a year. But there are 800 other small private colleges in the U.S. Seventy-five percent enroll less than 2,500 students. Half charge around $7,500 for tuition, room and board.

BUT HOW can you be sure the small college which has a good rating today won't have lost much of its educational luster in another four years?

Bond says, "The church-supported schools with a rich historical tradition are the best bet. They can count on funding from the church. Many have been in existence for 75 to 100 years. Losing them, or devaluing them, would damage church prestige."

Students don't need to be church members to attend these schools. While some of the on-campus rules regarding drinking and cohabitation are stricter than those at state schools, most don't chafe students with other religious prohibitions.

Brigham Young University in Provo, Utah, is an exception. The quality of education is high; the price right, $3,400 a year for Mormons, an additional $680 for non-Mormons. However, students must sign a pledge promising to avoid everything from coffee drinking to shorts.

A small school which has no religious affiliation can still be a good choice — if it has a strong identity.

"The small colleges that go under will most likely be those which do not have a clear sense of their mission and do not cultivate a definite constituency. Schools that try to be all things to all people will be hardest hit," says John Phillips, president of the National Association of Independent Colleges and Universities.

People all over the country have heard of tiny Loyola University in New Orleans. And Loyola is particularly known for its pre-med program. It sends 90 percent of the pre-med students on to medical school. The national average is only 45 percent.

If you settle on a school like Loyola, select its strongest program.

Finally, some small colleges are good candidates for longevity because they are finding resources other than tuition and endowments to fill their coffers.

They are selling unused campus land or leasing buildings to community groups. Arkansas College in Batesville is building a power plant at a dam owned by the college and will sell power to a public utility. Schools which have such secondary revenue sources are more likely to survive continued hard times — and are safer places for your investment of time and money.

IF YOU still can't afford four years at a respected school, there are alternatives to a Brand X degree.

Some students alternate work and study. They may take longer than four years to finish an undergraduate degree, but have solid work experience and solid degrees.

More than 1,000 colleges offer co-op programs which combine liberal arts studies with vocational training. Northeastern University in Boston has the most extensive program in the country, placing its 18,000 undergraduates in jobs with blue chip firms such as G.E., Honeywell and IBM.

Other students spend their first two years in a community college to save money, then transfer to a college or university which can award them a prestige degree.

Community college tuition ranges from nothing to $1,500 a year. Most cost between $300 and $700. Some are no better than their nickname, Crayola Tech. But a community college can be a good buy if it meets the following criteria:

A high percentage of Ph.Ds on the faculty (which is more likely now because the marketplace is glutted with Ph.Ds).

More than 60 percent of their students go on to four-year colleges. (Consult "Barron's Guide to the Two-Year Colleges" for this figure. Austin Community College, in Texas, for example, sends 70 percent on.)

A chapter of the Phi Theta Kappa Honor Society exists on campus.

If you really have no other option than the non-selective state institution in your home town, you can still parlay that degree into a good job.

J.S. Ferguson, a former admissions counselor at a large state university, says, "Look very hard at all the degree programs the school offers and settle on the one which leads most directly to local employment. Chambers of Commerce can tell you where the jobs are and will likely be in four years.

YOUR HOROSCOPE

By Jeane Dixon
Monday, September 16, 1985

YOUR BIRTHDAY TODAY: A corporate recruiter may have that job you are seeking. Emphasize your managerial talents and analytical skills. The financial outlook is excellent. Set aside part of each paycheck for investment purposes. Family relationships improve as the year draws to a close. Show that you are sincere in wanting a reconciliation. A new business venture could bring lasting financial security. Romantic partner shows greater understanding.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): A relaxing lunch will be followed by a highly productive afternoon. You tackle your work with new zeal. Romance gets the green light. Children are delighted when you attend school events.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): A coveted award comes your way. A career change will be for the best. Call someone at a distance. You would be wise to consult experts when developing a financial plan.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Technological changes and a new independence are the key to bigger profits. A romance is headed for the rocks unless you change your approach. Avoid making too many demands.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): A straightforward attitude makes you a winner. You charm a friend into helping out. Travel inspires you to do something wonderful. Have faith in the future.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Invite a fresh face to a meeting or party. You may have to change your work routine to produce the results higher-ups expect. Be consistent. Get more protection for cash and jewels.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Let others know exactly what you expect and they will respond in a positive way. A friendship's dissolubility warms your heart. Do not return to someone who is not good for you.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Attention to detail is essential now. Focus on those business opportunities that seem most lucrative. Complete the paper work on one project before starting another. Make a date and keep it!

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): You may have to put pressure on someone to get the results you need. A hunt for a job or lost article proves successful. Postpone signing an agreement until more information is available.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Do not let a war of words get you into trouble. Seek a quick settlement and you come out ahead. A financial matter requires your personal attention. A miracle is possible!

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Behind your every effort is one objective: to improve the lot of others. You reach a new milestone where your career is concerned. Share the spotlight with those closest to your heart.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): A world of good could come out of something you do today. A self-made individual has great influence with you. There's a real art to selling. Observe a pro's methods.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Travel enjoys favorable influences. An exchange student has a unique experience. An unforgettable work triumph makes you feel very good about yourself. The future looks bright. Tension evaporates.

GOREN BRIDGE

BY CHARLES GOREN AND OMAR SHARIF

©1985 Tribune Media Services, Inc.

DEAR MR. GOREN

Q.—This hand caused quite a bit of controversy in our regular game:
♠K5 ♡QJ3 ◇AQ542 ♣K73
After a one spade opening bid on my left and a one no trump response to my right, I overcalled two diamonds. That was doubled and down four tricks vulnerable. My partner criticized me for overcalling, but what would you have done with 15 HCP and a five-card suit?—S.L., Madison, Wis.

A.—In his book "Why You Lose At Bridge," S.J. Simon wrote that, if you have never overcalled and been doubled for 1,700, you are not bidding enough. However, if you make a practice of going down 1,100 points on the above hand, you are bidding far too much!

First of all, points are the last factor to take into consideration when making an overcall. You must consider your margin of safety, the quality of your suit, the location of your high cards, and the nature of your hand.

Here, your soft values suggest a hand better suited to defense rather than offense. Your suit quality could hardly be worse, your king of spades quite probably is worthless and even your queen-jack of hearts are doubtful offensive values—if partner does not have a heart honor, you might not be able to get to his hand twice to lead hearts toward your hand to establish a trick.

The hand below has only 10 HCP. However, it is a far better hand for a two-level vulnerable overcall than is your 15 HCP example:
♠xx ♡xx ◇KQJ9xx ♣Axx

The quality of your suit makes it unlikely that either opponent has enough in diamonds for a low-level penalty double. And even if they do double you, they won't get rich. Your hand should be good enough for six tricks on its own, and if that's all you can make, the opponents surely has a game somewhere so the net loss should be little if anything.

Q.—Why do you insist that, for a jump to three no trump over an opening bid, you have not only 16-18 points but that your distribution be 4-3-3-3?—E.J., Little Rock, Ark.

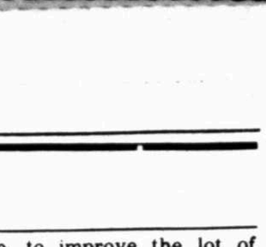

A.—It's simply a matter of arithmetic. Let's give opener a minimum opening bid of 13 points. When responder jumps to 3 NT, opener knows that there is no slam if he, too, has a relatively balanced hand, since the combined count, even with distributional adjustments, cannot be more than 31-32.

If responder has 18 HCP and a 4-4-3-2 distribution, there is now the possibility of a 4-4 fit in one of responder's four-card suits. As a result, responder's hand could increase in worth to 19 or 20 points.

Now opener might find himself in an untenable position. If he has a side four-card suit, he will then have to choose between missing a slam or bidding on and risking defeat on hands where responder has only a minimum 16 points and no particular fit for either of opener's suits.

Blenders handy kitchen gadgets

BONNIE MANDOE
King Features Syndicate

Kitchen gadgets come and go; my trusty blender sits on the countertop purring contentedly. Nothing will ever take its place, it knows. We've been friends too long.

The blender is not the latest in culinary aids, not the appliance most likely to succeed, not the most sought after device in the department store.

Why not? Because almost everyone has one already. The product has been on the market for over 40 years. It's proved itself. But does it move to the tropics and retire? No! It suns itself lazily on the countertop, ready, at the push of a button, to do my will.

That's my kind of a tool. Consider the various tasks it can perform:

It grinds and chops nuts and seeds.

It makes smooth gravies and sauces.

It makes creamy salad dressings, mayonnaise, smoothies, puddings, pie fillings, milkshakes and soups.

It chops vegetables.

It makes bread and cracker crumbs.

It purees foods, including baby food.

Not least, it washes itself.

Are you using your blender to its fullest potential? Are you considering new tools when your blender could be working harder for you? Let it. That's what a blender loves to do best.

To begin with, be sure it's stationed permanently on the countertop, within easy reach, a convenient arm's length from your preparation area.

And look what it can do... An inexpensive, irresistible dip with corn chips.

SPICY BEAN DIP

½ cup bean cooking liquid (or bouillon)
2 cups cooked pinto beans
½ cloves garlic
1 teaspoon salt (or to taste)
¼ teaspoon cayenne pepper
1 teaspoon vinegar
1 teaspoon soy sauce
1 cup diced Cheddar cheese
3 mild chilies, fresh or canned, chopped

Place in the blender in the order listed. Blend on low speed, then on medium, until an even consistency is achieved. Scrape the dip into a saucepan and heat it briefly, just to melt the cheese. Then add the chilies. Place in a serving bowl and surround with the chips.

Makes about 3 cups.

CARROT SALAD

The blender is great at chopping carrots. It makes fine, even pieces in no time at all. Simply cut the carrots into one-inch pieces, place them in blender one cup at a time, and blend on medium speed until chopped. Remove from blender container to a small bowl, add raisins to taste, and dress lightly with lemon juice and honey.

Here is the blender at its best. As it whips the ingredient in this dish, it aerates them, and the souffle rises nicely with no eggs in it at all.

TOFU SOUFFLE

2 pounds tofu, drained and towel dried
¾-1 cup water
3 tablespoons soy sauce
2 tablespoons olive oil
2 teaspoons seasoned salt
4 cups chopped spinach, raw

Blend first five ingredients until creamy and smooth. Remove from blender and add spinach. Place in an oiled baking dish and sprinkle with paprika. Bake 40-45 minutes, until browned and puffy, at 350F. Eat immediately, for this souffle, like any other, is prone to fall.

Makes 6 servings.

Why is it said that popovers are tricky to bake? These are not. Just be sure to butter the muffin tin thoroughly, using ample butter or margarine.

POPOVERS

1 cup milk
3 tablespoons melted butter
3 large eggs
¼ teaspoon salt
1 cup sifted whole-wheat flour
¼ cup grated cheese (Parmesan is good)

Place all ingredients in blender container. Blend until smooth, about 40 seconds, on a medium speed. Pour batter into a well-buttered muffin tin, filling the spaces no more than ¾ full. Bake 40 minutes in an oven preheated to 375F, and don't peek during baking. Remove from oven and serve at once, filling the popover cavities with either butter, jam, ice cream or a less traditional filling such as the following.

• • •

You'll need cooked kale for this recipe, about 2 cups. Spinach may be used instead, if desired.

CREAMED KALE

2 cups milk
2 cups cooked kale or spinach
4 tablespoons each butter and whole-wheat flour
2 teaspoons honey
½ teaspoon salt (or to taste)
Dash black pepper

Blenderize. When the blender has chopped the greens finely, heat the mixture in a saucepan for 10-15 minutes, stirring frequently, until thickened. Serve the creamed vegetable over hot, buttered popovers or over toast, topped with a poached egg.

Makes 4 servings.

• • •

Here's a recipe that has saved me thousands of calories over the years, and more than a few dollars. It is my standard cake frosting because it's light and neither too rich nor too expensive.

JUST LIKE CREAM CHEESE FROSTING

1 cup creamed cottage cheese
2 tablespoons honey (or to taste)
½ teaspoon vanilla

Blend. When mixture is absolutely smooth, remove from blender and chill. It is easier to make several small batches than one larger batch. What could be simpler than this low-cal frosting? But without the blender, it's impossible.

• • •

BAKED POTATO TOPPING

1 cup cottage cheese
⅓ cup buttermilk or yogurt
1 tablespoon lemon juice
¼ teaspoon salt, optional

Blend until creamy. Chopped chives may be added after blending.

• • •

Here, everyday ingredients combine to make a delightful fresh dessert with comparatively few calories.

BANANA ICE CREAM

2 cups whole or low-fat milk
2 tablespoons honey
1-2 tablespoons carob powder, optional
Frozen bananas, coarsely chopped

Place milk, honey and carob powder in blender and blend on medium speed. Slowly add as many bananas as you can for the most ice-cream-like result. Use a rubber spatula to help ease the mixture into the blender blades. Remember, use the spatula on the surface of the mixture only when it is running. Stop blending if you need to mix more deeply. Fewer bananas may be added to make a milkshake. Serve immediately.

• • •

Use leftover rice in this dessert; no one will know you did. The taste is decidedly lemon, the texture is chiffon.

LEMON PUDDING

2 cups cooked rice (brown is best), separated
¼ cup water or milk
2 tablespoons melted butter or oil
⅓ cup honey
1 teaspoon lemon extract
2 egg yolks
1 ripe banana
6 soft, pitted dates

Blend on medium speed 1 cup rice, water or milk, butter or oil, honey, lemon extract and egg yolks. When blended smooth, add remaining 1 cup rice, banana and dates. In a separate bowl beat 2 egg whites until stiff. Fold blender mixture into beaten egg whites. Pour pudding into individual serving bowls and sprinkle with chopped walnuts. Chill at least 2 hours before serving.

Makes 6 ½-cup servings.

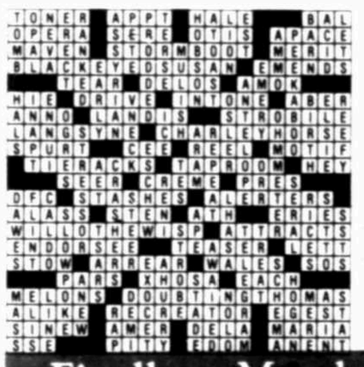

• • •

To chop walnuts, place one cup nuts into blender container, and with an on-and-off motion, process nuts until chopped. Use the rubber spatula to redistribute nuts around blades when blender is stopped. Use medium speed.

Job transfer can be stressful experience

By MARY MALONE
King Features Syndicate

According to the social readjustment rating scale developed at the University of Washington School of Medicine, the personal and family experiences involved in a company transfer can add up to more than 100 "stress points." At more than 100 points, stress begins to have a negative effect on health.

In fact, the most common reason for refusing a transfer is the inconvenience caused to a working spouse. In a two-career family, a transfer offer can force the thorny issue of whose job is more important.

Research shows that about 15 to 30 percent of employees refuse transfers. Reasons vary from financial considerations to the more complex question of family satisfaction. Still, most companies offer little more than verbal encouragement in helping working spouses find jobs.

If the employee is prized, some organizations will try to develop his career by another route. A refusal, however, poses considerable inconvenience for companies that have targeted specific people for career growth.

If the route up involves transfers, turning one down may be seen as a reflection on the employee's company loyalty.

If you do decide to accept a transfer, remember that the key to a successful move lies in the amount of control you and your family have over the experience. A satisfied family will provide important emotional support for the transferred employee.

Learn about your company's moving benefits; get a detailed list of what the company will recompense before you begin spending money.

Make sure you house-hunt efficiently. The neighborhood is the single most important factor in determining your satisfaction with a new home, realtors say.

Study shows Midland office occupancy at 77 percent

Leasing economy not the best of times, nor the worst

By SUSAN LINDSAY
Business/Oil Writer

Those crazy days of the boom when companies were scrambling to find office space in Midland and were willing to pay a premium price for just a closet are only memories. The bust hit and builders completed what they had planned to find no takers for the spacious, luxury offices. But the economy has leveled off and today it's neither the best of times nor the worst of times in the leasing of office space here.

The Midland Chamber of Commerce 1985 Office Study reveals that 77 percent of Midland's 6,798,000 square feet of leasable office space is occupied.

"This is really a pretty accurate number and we are fortunate to have that occupancy rate," said Mike Lewis, vice president of Sentry Property Management, Inc. "We haven't dropped to the level of many hard-hit oil areas. Midland is faring pretty well, but things are still stagnant here."

According to surveys, cities with the highest amount of surplus office space are Dallas, Houston, Tulsa and Denver.

A report published last week by Office Network, Inc., ranked Dallas second nationwide in the amount of surplus office space. About 72 percent of Dallas' 137.2 million square feet is occupied while Houston reported a 73 percent occupancy rate of its 138.5 million square feet.

In Midland, the buildings hurting the most are those built during the boom and which carry a high interest loan. When built brokers had planned to charge $16-$20 per foot and were anticipating 80-90 percent occupancy.

NOW RATES AVERAGE about $12 to $14 per square feet, and many of the newer buildings are only at 50 percent occupancy.

Independence Plaza is one of these. Built in 1984, the building is now 48 percent full. Mark Chesson, property manager, said he is hoping the building will be full by the first quarter of 1986, but it is able to break even now.

"Most buildings can break even at 50 to 60 percent occupancy. But, obviously, if a building stays at this rate, it can't pay its debt and will run into trouble," he said.

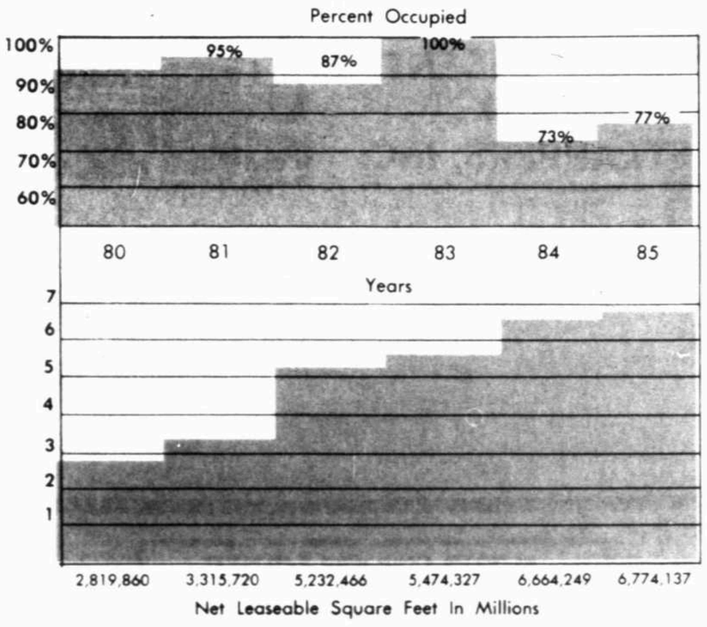

According to the Chamber study, the area with the highest occupancy rate in Midland is ClayDesta Plaza, located at North Big Spring and Wadley Avenue.

The six buildings there have an average occupancy rate of 90 percent. Both the Southland Royalty and Williams Accounting buildings report a 100 percent occupancy rate. The ClayDesta National Bank building is 76 percent full, the largest percentage of unoccupied space among the plaza buildings.

The downtown area indicates a 77 percent average occupancy. Of the 49 buildings in this area, ClayDesta Center Downtown, currently under construction, showed the lowest occupany rate of 29 percent, while six downtown buildings were at 100 percent. These were Discovery Plaza, Empire Plaza, 414 W. Texas, Slaydon Buildings, Sun Building and 206 N. Main.

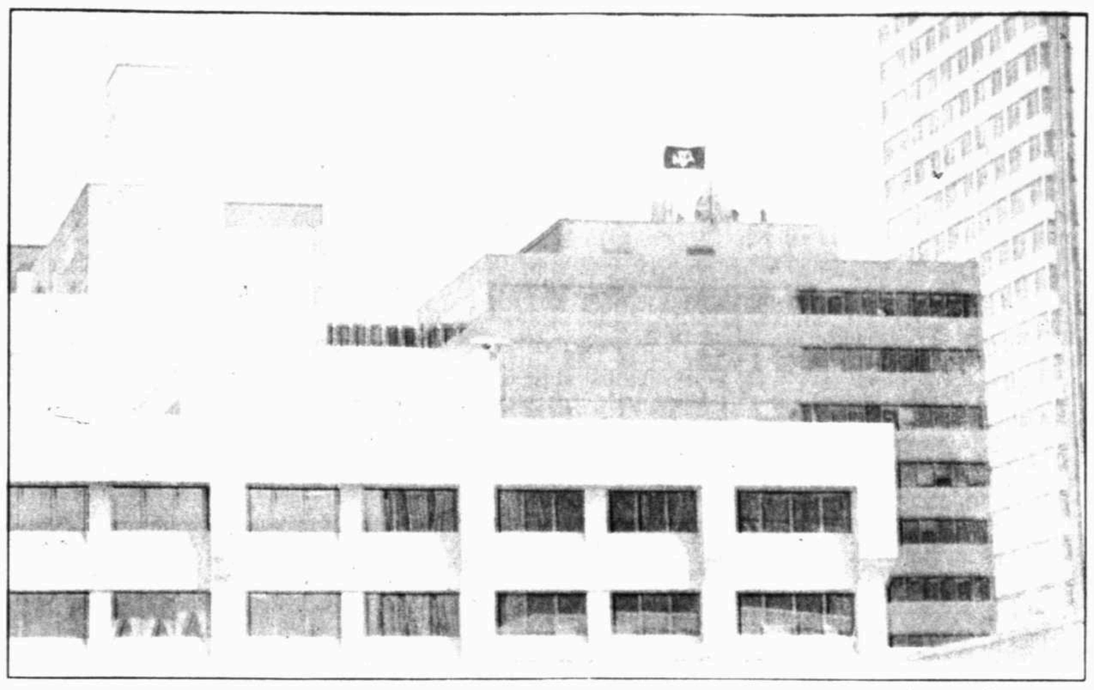

THE NEWER downtown buildings also had consistently higher occupany rates than the older buildings.

MULTI-TENANT OFFICE GROWTH
IN MIDLAND, TEXAS

Suzan Conder/Reporter-Telegram

Midland office space has grown each year since 1980, and now totals over 6.7 million square feet. However, Midlanders have not been able to keep a high occupancy rate each year, causing some people to think Midland is overbuilt.

Cody Bell/Reporter-Telegram

Figures released by the Midland Chamber of Commerce indicate that 77 percent of Midland office space is occupied presently. The figures show that Midland's absorption rate is better than Dallas or Houston, who report 72 and 73 percent, respectively.

Office buildings other than those in ClayDesta Plaza and downtown seem to be hardest hit by the downturn, with an average occupancy rate of 69 percent. Woodhill Office Park at 3000 N. Garfield has the highest occupancy rate at 100 percent. Mission Square office complex with only 10 percent occupancy was the lowest. The facility has been in foreclosure since March.

Brokers say the major cause of the unoccupied space in Midland is the downturn in the oil industry. Without another oil boom or an influx of new businesses into the state, absorption of available space will be slow.

Local brokers predict it will take between three and five years to fill available Midland office space based on normal growth.

"There needs to be a new demand to fill the buildings, especially the older ones," said Dode Harvey, president of Don Harvey Properties. "The market is soft right now. The main activity is companies moving from older buildings to new ones."

"In some instances there was a net gain in square footage after mergers and in other cases, a loss of square footage was the result," Lewis said. "However, the recent mergers between oil companies have not had a significant effect in office space absorption."

The Getty-Texaco merger is an example of much of Midland's current office movement. Getty Oil Co. has occupied three floors in the First City National Tower I since its opening in 1974.

"I'm expecting Getty to move to Texaco's offices in Heritage Center by the end of the year. Right now, I'm sitting at 85 percent full, but by the end of the year I expect it to be a different story," said Daryl Williams, property manager for Gerald D. Hines Interests.

HE SAID he expects the space will be difficult to fill because of its large square footage and because people are looking for lower rents.

Besides price, parking and location seem to be the key factors to choosing a building. Some brokers said functionality of space, lower rents and prestige of location are other factors tenants look for when renting office space.

"People are also looking for a building that they don't have to worry about mechanical things and reputation has a lot to do with it," said Williams.

He added that people are also interested in the company running the building. "They want to know that the company is not going to go under and jeopardize the tenants."

Studies indicate about a 25 percent average vacancy rate among all shopping centers in Midland. The recently completed Colonade, shown here, contines to work to fill some of its vacant units.

Shopping center surplus continues to grow

By JOHN PAUL PITTS
Business/Oil Editor

Everyone keeps asking the same questions: "Who in the world is going to move into all these shopping centers being built in Midland? Can Midland support all these shopping centers?"

The predominant answer that keeps coming back from the experts is: "I honestly don't know. Maybe someone knows something I don't know."

In an effort to assess the shopping center situation, a group of graduate students from Stanford University School of Business set out in August of this year, at the request of a client, to study the shopping center market in Midland.

Their conclusions basically were:

■ First, there is a currently 25 percent gross excess of retail space in Midland without the addition of new space.

■ Second, while some shopping centers have not been unduly affected by the downturn in the oil and gas economy others are suffering.

Not exactly an earth shaking revelation, the information nevertheless formalizes what many had already suspected while providing a body of useful information from which to make certain determinations.

But with or without official surveys shopping center owners and managers in Midland have developed opinions of their own, based on personal observation of the market.

Said Mrs. A.L. Attaway, who owns Imperial Shopping Center with her children. "We are 96 percent occupied, but this is still the worst time I have ever seen for Midland. In all the years past I never had to advertise — never even had to put a sign in the window. I have seen Midland up and down many times. Every time Midland goes down it always comes back stronger."

"I think we are overbuilt by about 100,000 square feet without the addition of any more space now being built," said Karen Dempsey, manager, Woodmont Corp. which handles the Courtyard at Midland Park Mall.

"It's a tough market that is going to get toughter," said Prudy Martin, manager for La Villita. "I hope they stop building."

Some are slightly more upbeat in their feelings about the retail market. Realtor Charlie Linebarger manages Mesa Verde Shopping Center and feels the worst may be over in the retail market. "I think we have bottomed out and will see a turn around from this point. It won't be any explosion, but it will be a slow improvement in the retail market." He said out of town investors were already looking at land in Midland. Another Realtor, Don Harvey, whose firm manages Tierro Del Sol Shopping Center, also sees improvement in the retail market. "I think the retail market is the most active right now. I think it is seeing some growth," said Harvey.

There is little divergence of opinion, however, on how long it will take to fill the available retail space in Midland. Most feel it will take about three years.

"Retail is getting better, because the retailers are still coming into town," said Larry Sutton, who oversees Western Park Plaza, "but I think it will be two to three years, maybe longer before we fill up retail space." He said some centers were still too high on price and would have to come down, before they would be able to improve their occupancy.

Mike Lewis, vice president Sentry Property Mangement, says that three years is about right to flesh out existing retail space, barring another unforeseen development.

"It appears to me that it would take about two to three years to absorb the current retail space, maybe longer with newer shopping centers coming out of the ground," said Randy Isenberg, owner of Dellwood Lanes and Fairmont Park Lanes bowling alleys in Midland and an informed student of marketing in Midland. "We have a ton of retail space available on the market today, but I think it can be absorbed with good entrepreneurial practices." The University of Texas marketing graduate said Midland still has a strong market, but there were a lot of choices out there for the consumer, and businessmen would have to listen to the customer, identify their needs and wants and respond to them quickly.

Said Isenberg: "Midland is still a place where a sharp businessman can come into town and be somebody if he meets the needs, but it takes a strong entrepreneurial spirit. I am confident we can take up the slack in the retail space with the right spirit."

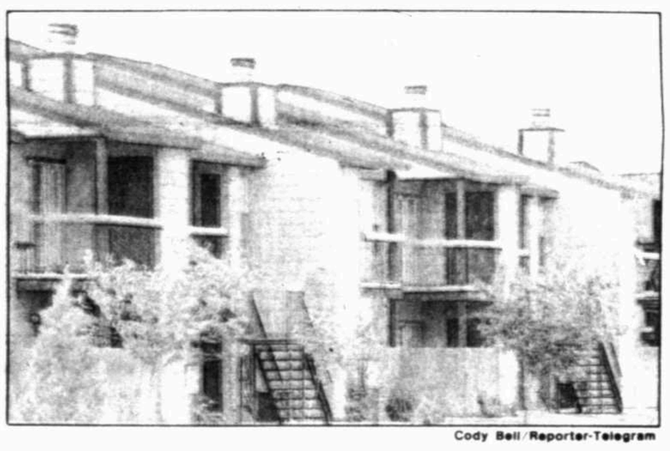

For the record, the Stanford University research team found there was a total of approximately 2,608,870 square feet of retail space in Midland shopping centers and concluded that about 75 percent of that space is occupied. It also determined that another 300,000 square feet of proposed shopping center space is now under construction.

For purposes of classification, the study broke shopping centers out into three categories:

■ REGIONAL CENTERS such as Midland Park Mall and Dellwood Mall are mixed. While Midland Park Mall with 101 stores enjoys an occupancy of 95 percent with only six stores empty. The mall, however, is facing the loss of a major anchor (Sakowitz) later this year.

Dellwood, on the other hand, with 195,000 square feet is only 45 percent occupied. Street talk for sometime has had it that something good was about to happen to the ailing Dellwood Mall and that may be in the process now. Sherry Rose, Dellwood spokesman, reports that two major tenants will probably be signed for the mall before Christmas.

The once depressed Midland apartment industry has shown strong signs of recovery in recent months.

Apartments showing healthy come-back

By JOHN PAUL PITTS
Business/Oil Editor

In the downturn period of the past six months, an unusual upturn phenomenon has been taking place in Midland — once vacant apartments have begun to fill up again. That bit of positive news, however, does not necessarily spell good times again for apartment owners.

First came the boom. Apartments, if you were lucky enough to find one, were renting for grossly inflated rates, and builders tried to line the loop with apartments to cash in on the bonanza.

But then boom turned to bust. Within months, a modest two-bedroom apartment that rented for $600, during the boom days, was soon going begging at $300. Hard-to-find tenants rambled around in half-empty complexes and apartment owners launched a new game called: "Name Your Deal."

In an effort to promote their particular deal and entice renters, apartment managers flooded the classified pages of the Reporter-Telegram with display ads touting low move-in costs, free cable, free utilities and above all low rental rates. Now, according to classified manager Dan Danser, advertising for such intensely competitive campaigns has dropped 35 percent. The reason: Midland now has an apartment occupancy rate of 85 to 92 percent, well above the normal of 80-85 percent. And while some wheeling and dealing is still going on apartment management companies are no longer as desperate to fill empty apartments. The move now appears to get rental rates to a higher level.

EVEN WITH high occupancy rates, many apartment owners are still in trouble. Many newer projects were built during the boom and financed on the basis of inflated rental prices. Apartment investors who predicated rental income at $600 per month per unit have suddenly found that income cut in half, and are having a difficult time servicing their debt and continuing to meet high overhead costs which have not decreased.

Still, even with low rental rates, there is indication that some investors would like to buy into the Midland rental market, banking on the notion that rates will go back up.

"Anytime you have a 92 percent occupancy, you have a strong rental market, and a basically healthy economy" said Janet Garth, a commercial real estate broker and owner of Apartment Locators of Midland, Odessa and San Angelo. "Already, I am seeing investors in town, looking to purchase select Midland rental property, because when you get to an 80-85 percent occupancy, apartments will usually produce a cash flow if the rental rates are in line."

She says there is evidence that apartment rental rates are moving up again in Midland. "From our calculations, rental rates have gone up about 8 cents per square foot since February. That translates out to about a $56 increase on a 700 square foot apartment." While rates are on the increase, she says they may never reach the level they once were during the boom.

Petroleum Museum celebrates 10 years

From Staff Reports

At the forefront of the petroleum industry is the Permian Basin, but it is the Permian Basin Petroleum Museum that has captured the area's achievements the past 10 years.

The museum, which opened Sept. 13, 1975, with a dedication ceremony with President Gerald R. Ford, will be recognized September 21 when its celebrates its 10th anniversary.

Opening ceremonies are scheduled for 10 a.m. September 21 on the grounds of the museum, 1500 Interstate 20 West. The celebration is expected to last until 5 p.m.

Midland Mayor Thane Akins and Odessa Mayor John Minor have proclaimed the day Petroleum Museum Day in the Permian Basin and will be on hand to award their respective proclamations.

Sky divers from "Our Parachute Club" representing the Midland/Odessa area are scheduled to arrive at 11 a.m. A birthday cake will also be cut at this time.

The Midland Barber Shoppers will perform later in the day. Other acts, provided by Chek-Point, are scheduled throughout the day. These include square dancers, Boy Scout Explorer Indian Guides (dancers), fiddlers and piano players, mimes and clowns.

President Gerald Ford and Midlanders are shown viewing the exhibits of the Permian Basin Petroleum Museum after its dedication in 1975.

Public tours of the museum will be available throughout the day and a showing of oil-related movies will play continuously in the facility's auditorium.

Chartered in 1967, the $3.5 million facility was conceived, designed, constructed and landscaped by local professionals to pay tribute to the petroleum industry. Funded entirely by contributions, it is the only museum of its kind in the southwest. It is non-profit and tax-exempt. Public education of and for the petroleum industry is a primary purpose of the museum.

Soon after its opening in 1975, the exterior exhibit the "Oil Patch," believed to be the world's largest collection of antique drilling and production equipment, opened immediately afterward. The Archives opened in 1978 and in November 1981, Vice President George Bush opened the North Wing.

The museum focuses on the history and activities of oil in the Permian Basin and the tribute of 64 of the oilmen who pioneered development of petroleum comprise the Hall of Fame. The Archives Center houses in excess of 7,000 photos from boomtowns and oil fields to 700 taped and transcribed interviews with industry pioneers, micro-filmed newspapers, aerial photos, diaries, maps and other documents.

Executive director of the museum is Ed Rowland. Deputy director is Carey Behrends. Susan Williams is education director. Betty Orbeck is archivist.

Church's acquires other assets

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — Church's Fried Chicken Inc. has agreed to acquire certain assets of B&M Foods Inc., which operates restaurants under the name "Chicken Country," Church's said Wednesday.

B&M Foods, based in Jonesboro, Ark., operates five and franchises approximately 40 fried chicken restaurants in Arkansas and East Texas.

Under the terms of the transaction, Church's will acquire three company owned stores and expects to convert up to 30 stores to Church's franchises.

San Antonio-based Church's Fried Chicken Inc. sells fried chicken and other fast foods through company-operated and franchised stores.

Tom Craddick

Craddick to speak on oil regulation

The Permian Basin section of the Society of Petroleum Engineers will meet Tuesday at the Ranchland Hills Country Club. Social hour will begin at 5:30 p.m. and diiner at 6:15 p.m.

Guest speaker for the meeting will be Tom Craddick, State Representative for District 76. Mr. Craddick will discuss "The Legislative Climate for Oil and Gas Regulation."

Craddick received both his bachelor's and master's degrees in business administration from Texas Tech. He has served as District 76 Representative to the Texas State Legislature for the past 17 years. During the 69th Legislative and Special Sessions, he served as the chairman of the Natural Resources Committee and vice-chairman of the Joint Committee on Water Resources.

He was named one of the ten Outstanding Representative Legislators in the Nation for 1984 and the Texas Water Conservation Association's 41st state convention in 1985 was dedicated to him.

UOPSC to offer two petroleum safety courses

The University of Oklahoma Petroleum Safety Center will offer two courses in petroleum safety at the Midland Holiday Inn Country Villa Sept. 24-26.

The first, a two-day course scheduled for Sept. 24-25, is entitled "Accident Prevention for Rig Supervisors."

The bottom line in the oil patch is staying in business in these difficult times. An important way is to reduce worker's compensation premiums through a better safety program. Serious injury or property loss can result in extensive litigation taking everyone's mind off producing income.

This course offers an effective and efficient training program for the people who must make safety happen on the rig.

The second course offered is a one-day course, scheduled for Sept. 26, entitled "Safety Professonal's Workshop." This course is intended for the person whose primary responsibility is directing a safety program as well as supervisors and managers who want to extend safety training beyond the basic leve.

The person who completes the workshop will be able to go beyond the usual approach to analyze why accidents happen and how to motivate people to work safely. Those attending will also gain a working knowledge of system safety and how to apply it in the oil patch.

Both courses are accredited by the University of Oklahoma Center for Continuing Education. Certificates will be presented.

The course will be taught by Dr. Jerry Purswell, program director, and Ron Provence, program specialist. To register for the course, phone the Petroleum Safety Center at 405/321-7305. The fee for the two-day course is $175 and $100 for the one-day workshop. Both courses will begin at 8 a.m.

STOCKQUOTE HOTLINE℠

HOW TO USE STOCKQUOTE HOTLINE

1. Call the StockQuote Hotline number listed below. A computer voice will answer and ask you for the Account Code.
2. Enter the Account Code, then depress the star key (*) on your telephone. The computer will then ask you to enter your Stock Code.
3. Enter the Stock Code for the stock you wish quoted, the computer will quote the Ticker Symbol; Current Price and Net Change from the previous day's close.
4. After the stock is quoted, the computer will ask you to enter another Stock Code. You have two options:
A. You may request the quote for another stock simply by repeating Step 3, or
B. You may request additional information on the stock just quoted by once more depressing the star key (*) in which case the computer will respond with the Price, Net Change, Volume, High and Low. The computer will then ask you to enter another Stock Code (repeat Step 3)
You may enter up to 10 requests per call.

STOCK CODES
All Stock Codes are based on industry standard Ticker Symbols provided by your broker or available from any Standard & Poor's Stock Ticker Guide. Codes are made up of a series of two-digit numbers, each representing one of the letters in the Ticker Symbol.
To determine the two-digit code for any letter of a Ticker Symbol, remember: The first key to be depressed is always the one on which the letter appears. The second key is always a "1," "2" or " indicating that letter's position on its own key (first, second or third position). EXAMPLE: "IBM" = "43 22 61"; "BX" = "22 92." Remember to depress the star key (*) after entering each code.

ADDITIONAL ASSISTANCE
Call the StockQuote customer service number (915) 682-5311 (Monday thru Friday 8 a.m. - 5 p.m.) for additional information or to report any problem with the service.

PERMIAN BASIN RIG COUNT

U.S. RIG COUNT

U.S., Permian drilling activity slow

Rig activity in the U.S. as well as in the Permian Basin slowed this week. The U.S. count was down 15 from last week's total of 1,932 to post a 1,917 total for the week ending September 9. The Basin total dropped four, down to 273 this week.

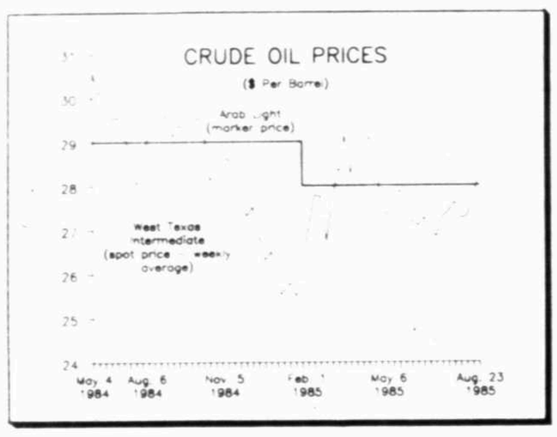

Locally, Midland County experienced its largest decline in six weeks, slipping three rigs to leave only 11 working. Ector County managed to hang on to last week's 13 count total after several weeks of decreased activity there.

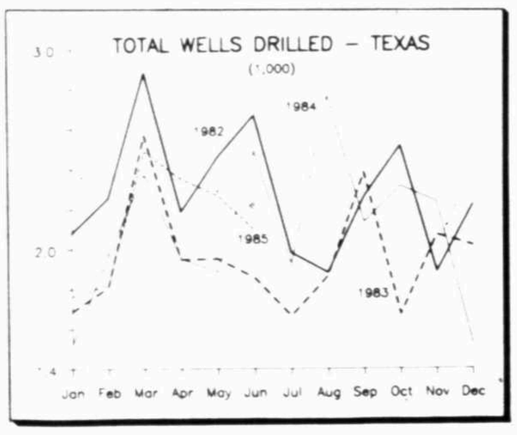

Andrews County also saw its first drop in six weeks, down three for a 28 count total. That total, however, was still the highest posted by any area county. Two southeastern New Mexico counties, Lea and Eddy, were second and third most active, having rig totals of 22 and 17, respecitively.

The U.S. slump can be attributed to a 12 rig decline in Oklahoma and a drop of 8 in Texas. Texas totals stand at 623 for the week, 39 of which are working offshore and 5 in inland waters.

New Mexico gained five to bring the total there to 69 and North Dakota showed a six rig increase, up to 49. Canada recovered from its big drop a week ago to tally a 15 rig rise.

U.S. totals a year ago were at 2,377 while Permian totals were at 330.

1985 'best year' for drilling in Texas since 1982

DALLAS — Despite a continued decline in the rotary rig count, 1985 will be the best year for drilling in Texas since the height of the oil patch boom in 1982 — but don't look for any significant gains in energy industry jobs, says RepublicBank Corp. Regional Economist Dr. Edward L. McClelland.

"If nothing unforeseen dampens the seasonal year-end increase, more wells will be drilled in the state this year than the 25,000 bored last year. Total footage drilled will also exceed last year's mark of 124 million feet," Dr. McClelland states in the new September issue of the corporation's monthly Economic Perspective.

Drillers are taking on fewer speculative ventures and are sticking to infill drilling or new wells in proven, high probability fields. And most new holes are shallower: more than three of every five wells drilled today are less than 10,000 feet in depth, compared with half in 1982.

"As a result, rig productivity, as measured by number of wells and total footage drilled per rotary rig, has risen sharply," Dr McClelland says. "For example, last year the average rig drilled 30 wells and 146,000 feet, compared with this year's annualized estimates of 37 wells and 190,000 feet, respectively."

However, increased drilling activity this year is not expected to translate into any significant gains in employment in the energy industry, he says.

"Oil field employment has decreased by 1,400 workers from a year ago, while job levels in the important oil field equipment industry are just holding their own," he states. "In the past 12 months total employment in oil field equipment has risen 2.6 percent to a total of 40,000 workers. That is well below the peak of 90,000 in 1982, and recovery remains a long way off.

A slowdown in energy demand has been one of the major reasons for the weakness in drilling activity, but the overriding concern has been the uncertainty over the future of oil prices.

"Given the huge production potential throughout the world and continued energy conservation, crude prices will remain under downward pressure for some time. Just how fast or far they may fall continues to stir much debate," Dr. McClelland states.

"The future for drilling will be little changed from the current level of activity. Crude prices will drift down but remain high enough for experienced, efficient drillers to squeeze out profits," Dr. McClelland says. And because of its large number of oil fields, Texas will maintain its lead in the number of wells and footage drilled."

Metro Airlines revenues up

Rig utilization down 2.8 percent

Rig utilization in the Permian Basin was down 2.8 percent from last week, according to the latest figures released by Smith Tool.

Utilization in the Basin this week was at 42.4 percent, compared to last week's percentage of 45.2. Rigs working from 2,500 to 5,000 ft. saw the largest decrease in utilization, down from 35 percent to only 13 percent. The intermediate depths saw an increase in the utilization of rigs drilling at those depths but not enough of an increase to overcome utilization losses at shallower depths.

The totals on the utilization chart represent the depth at which each rig is rated. However, some rigs that have been depth-rated for deeper depths and drilling at shallower depths. That will account for some disparity that might appear in the above tables.

U.S. DRILLING PERMITS

THIS WEEK — 1,284
LAST WEEK — 1,756
YEAR AGO — 1,722

Activity down

A total of 1,284 permits issued to drill for oil and gas were issued in the U.S. during the week ending September 9, according to Petroleum Information Corp. This figure represents a decrease of 26.9% from the previous week. During the same week one year ago, 1,722 permits were reported issued. New field wildcat permits are down 8.5% for the year while other development permits are down 15.9%.

PBGC offering title options course this fall

The Permian Basin Graduate Center has schedule the following courses to be held this month.

"Title Opinions, Curative Materials, How To Acquire a Valid Oil and Gas Lease" will be held Thursday from 7:00 pm. to 10:00 pm. Allen D. Cummings, Attorney at Cotton, Bledsoe, Tighe & Dawson, will instruct the session for a fee of $25.

"Drilling Contracts Used for Drilling Oil and Gas Wells" is scheduled for Thursday, from 7:00 to 10:00 pm. A discussion and analysis of provisions of the International Association of Drilling Contractors' drilling contracts will be covered, including a discussion of how the drilling contract should be written to meet the objectives of the oil and gas operator as well as the incentives of the drilling contractors. Ray Peterson, president at Peterson Drilling Co. will instruct. The fee for the course is $30.

"Federal Income Tax" in the CPA Review Program is set for Friday, from 6:00 to 10:00 pm, Saturday from 8:00 am. to 5:00 pm. and Sunday from 1:00 pm. to 5:00 pm. Dr. Gary White, Ph.D., CPA, at Southwest Center for Accounting Education in Lubbock will instruct. The fee is $84, plus $63.50 for CPA Review Manuals.

"Oil & Gas Accounting — Level I" will be held September 24-25, from 8:30 am. to 4:30 pm. This entry level course covers the basic elements of oil and gas accounting. No previous oil and gas accounting is necessary, although registrants are assumed to have an elementary accounting background. Dr. Bob Koester, Professor of accounting at Texas Tech University, will instruct. The fee is $260 and participants will be eligible for 16 CPE credits.

"Oil and Gas Fields in the Permian Basin" will be held Wednesdays, September 25 through October 30, from 7:00 pm. to 10:00 pm. The course is team taught and designed to acquaint new geologists with the different producing provinces in the Permian Basin. It will cover the principal trapping mechanisms within the primary producing zones of each province. The fee is $180.

For registration or further information, call 683-2832.

Midland Commercial Realty has announced three new appointments.

BRYAN GOETTLICH will be a sales representative, upon completion of his license. He has a BS degree from Southern Utah State College in Cedar City, Utah. A native of Lewiston, Montana, he is a member of the Midland Jaycees.

GLENN DUNLAP will also be a sales representative upon completion of his license. He is a 1973 graduate of Midland High School and holds a BS degree in geology from the University of Texas at Austin. He was previously working in New Mexico for a small oil firm.

LETA HOGUE has been appointed executive assistant at the firm. She is a Midland native and a 1977 graduate of Midland High School. Hogue also holds a BS degree from the University of Texas at Austin and is a graduate of the American Institute of Real Estate. Previously employed as a teacher in California, she is also active with the Midland Jaycees.

K. DALE MILLER has been appointed director of financial services for Clearview Hospital. He will be responsible for all aspects of patient and financial accounting, including business office, patient and financial accounting, payroll and data processing.

Miller served as vice president of finance for Midland Memorial Hospital from 1981 to 1983, and was construction manager for the 77 bed expansion of the hospital prior to joining Clearview.

He holds a BBA degree in finance from Texas Tech University and is a member of the board of directors of the Texas Association of Hospital Financial Administrators.

MARY L. DILTS, MA, MSW, has been elected to develop the Parents Anonymous Program at Family Services of Midland. Her primary responsibilities will be to train volunteers and organize the self-help groups for families suffering from child abuse.

Dilts earned a master's in clinical psychology from Ball State University and a master of social work from Our Lady of the Lake University in San Antonio.

Prior to joining Family Services, Dilts was employed by the Department of Human Resources where she worked with foster care and adoption.

LAURIE W. HARDWICK recently joined the staff of Dominey & Etheridge, Inc., a Midland based advertising and public relations agency, as an account executive.

Hardwick will service both existing and new accounts as well as assist in the creation of advertising and publicity copy.

Graduated from the University of Texas at Austin in 1982, she holds a BA degree in journalism with an emphasis on news and public affairs reporting. Prior to joining the firm, she worked in public relations and marketing for David Weekley Homes in Houston and the American Heart Association in Austin.

Namedropping policy

Business Namedropping is intended to inform our readers of promotions, achievements and changes among the professional, business personnel and leaders of Midland.

New presidents, chairmen of the board, directors of major corporations or new officers of organizations are normally treated separately as free-standing stories.

Namedropping generally appears in the Sunday edition but may be published during the week if necessary.

Information for Sunday pages must be in the Business-Oil Department by the preceding Thursday at noon. Items published during the week should be in the department two days in advance.

All information must be submitted in writing and include the name and telephone number of the person submitting it.

If a photograph is included, the person in the picture must be dressed professionally.

Pictures should be black and white, preferably glossy finish, studio portraits. Studio color pictures may be submitted, but they may reproduce poorly. Good reproduction cannot be assured when color prints are used. In general, snapshots are not acceptable.

There is no charge for publication of photographs and stories.

Firm launches 'liberty chips'

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — The chairman of Advanced Micro Devices Inc. says the company plans to "out-invent" its Japanese competitors with a new program that will deliver one new AMD product a week for the next 12 months.

At its annual meeting Wednesday, held in Austin for the first time in four years, W.J. "Jerry" Sanders said the program beginning Oct. 1 is designed to help AMD "create its own upturn" at a time when the semiconductor industry is enduring a prolonged collapse in demand.

Sanders compared the program to the World War II shipbuilding effort that launched the Liberty ships.

"Because these new chips hold the key to our economic upturn, because they offer us freedom from the tyranny of the commodity marketplace, I call them liberty chips," said Sanders, who also is president of AMD.

The time-honored responses to a competitive challenge — cutting costs, increasing productivity and increasing efficiency — don't constitute a winning strategy for American semiconductor firms, Saunders told stockholders.

He championed AMD's strategy of "growth through innovation."

BUSINESS NOTEBOOK

Board studies request to up insurance rates

By BILL KIDD

AUSTIN — State Board of Insurance members are studying an insurance industry request for major increases in general liability rates, which industry officials have asked to have effective on Dec. 1.

Insurance Services Office has requested an increase of 20 percent in basic limits for bodily injury and property damage for products/completed operations; an increase on bodily injury of 30 percent for owners, landlords and tenants premises/operations; and 25.3 percent for bodily injury and 55.7 percent for property damage for manufacturers and contractors premises/operations.

Increase limits would rise by 15.3 percent and 7.4 percent for owners, landlords and tenants, and manufacturers and contractors bodily injury, respectively, with a 9.5 percent increase for manufacturers and contractors property damage.

SBI officials say the calculations by the industry include a profit loading of either zero or five percent, while the SBI staff is recommending a factor of minus 14.7 percent, but the exact figure wasn't included in the filing.

Staff members also report SBI can't amend the filings, but must either approve or disapprove them — with ISO able to refile in the case of disapproval.

Texas Department of Banking's first two applications for foreign bank agencies under a new law enacted by this year's Legislature have come from Japanese banks.

Fuji Bank has applied for an office in Houston, while Sanwa Bank is seeking an office in Dallas.

Sanwa, the world's seventh largest bank, already has a representative office in Houston, and recently signed an economic cooperation agreement with the State of Texas through the Texas Economic Development Commission.

That agreement provides for exchange of information between the bank and the State, to assist efforts by Sanwa clients interested in investing in Texas, and Texas companies interested in investment in, or trade with, Japan.

The new law provides for foreign bank offices, licensed by the Department of Banking, in Dallas and Harris conties, and 25 application forms have been sent to banks or their attorneys.

William Aldridge, director of corporate activities for the deparmtent, says more applications had been expected, based on initial contact by overseas banks, but he feels the lack of final regulations by the department for approving such offices has delayed at least some requests.

Those regulations are expected to be adopted later this fall, Aldridge says.

In reviewing the applications, he reports, the department will look "more than anything else at whether the foreign country's law would allow reciprocity to our State banks and National banks domiciled here in Texas."

Applicants for offices in Texas must file a copy of their country's banking laws (in translation if the laws aren't in English) with the department.

Applications will be referred to the commissioner of banking for action, with approval resulting in a one-year renewable license.

Savings and Loan Section, State Finance Commission, has approved revisions to proposed regulations on net worth and lending practices of State-chartered savings and loan associations, which were considered at a public hearing last month.

Savings and Loan Commissioner L.L. Bowman III says the changes are "not a significant rewrite" in most areas, but changes were made regarding requirements for associations to increase their net worth, and on "interest carry" on some real estate loans.

"We've softened considerably from our first position" on net worth increases, Bowman says.

The proposals which have been submitted for industry comment call for an increase from three percent to six percent in net worth, at the rate of 25 basis points a year — meaning 12 years to complete the change.

The other major change, Bowman says, from the regulations proposed previously is in the method for associations to finance "interest carry" on acquisition loans.

"On those loans that do not involve development and construction, if you want to build the interest into the loan, you must not exceed 80 percent loan to value," Bowman says.

The revisions will be considered, after a 30-day comment period ends, at a section meeting this fall (expected to be set sometime in October).

State Board of Insurance will consider changes in private and commercial automobile insurance rates and regulations at a hearing at 9:00 am., September 19 in Austin.

The commercial rate changes are to recognize changes in rating territories (recently increased from 40 to 52), SBI reports.

Arlington polishing its image

ARLINGTON, Texas (AP) — The city of Arlington can now boast of a glossy annual report to rival those published by major corporations and businesses.

In step with City Manager Bill Kirchhoff's aim to portray the city as the municipal equivalent of IBM or Nissan, the Arlington government recently compiled its first "annual report."

Printed on heavy white paper and including three-color charts and pictures highlighting photogenic staffers, the $14,500 publication often mirrors a business report.

On page one, for example, of "Performance Report: Corporate City Arlington," there is a message from the manager with a photo of Kirchhoff in a conservative gray suit, white shirt and tie. Even the booklet refers to him as the chief executive officer he resembles.

"The Arlington city government is structured and operated like a private corporation," Kirchhoff's message reads.

"We make no apologies for that," he later said. "We are running the city like a business. The parallels are very clear."

In the 20-page report, residents are referred to as stockholders and the City Council is called Arlington's board of directors.

Arlington, located midway between Dallas and Fort Worth, has about 230,000 residents, according to the city planning department.

Earlier this year, city spokeswoman Barbara Burke instructed some council members how to look their best at televised meetings. Her message: look corporate.

SHARP

Imagine a copier that "reads" the size of your original, chooses the proper paper size and automatically switches to the correct paper cassette.

Imagine a copier that takes all the fuss and bother out of zoom copying.

Imagine a copier that makes red, blue, brown and black copies with a snap.

Imagine a copier that does all this and is still priced competitively.

No need to imagine, the Sharp SF-8200 VMR Copier is here.

NAMEDROPPING

Milton Rister

Michael Landrum

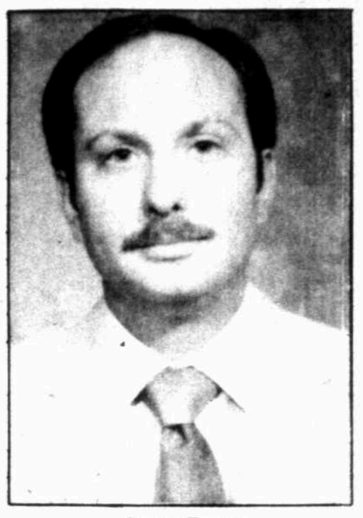

Les F. Burke

James W. Riggen

Tony Montez

Steve Foster

MIDA Corp. recently announced two appointments.

MILTON RISTER has been named director of Administration and Marketing for MIDA. He has previously served the company as a systems consultant and as support group manager.

Rister attended the University of Texas at Austin and is currently an active member of Midland Chamber of Commerce Small Business Council.

MICHAEL LANDRUM has joined MIDA as director of sales after three years with Computer SuperStores in Midland. Prior to that he was a teacher at Goddard Junior High in Midland and has also taught in Sweetwater, Texas.

Landrum has a BS degree from McMurry College and an MAT degree from Angelo State University. He has done additional course work at Midland College and computer oriented training through IBM, Apple, Xerox, Compaq and Valcom.

LES F. BURKE, AIA, and JAMES W. RIGGEN, AIA, CSI, Associates of Pate & Associates, Architects-Planners, recently attended a seminar on computer aided design and drafting systems. The course featured software and programming instruction on AutoCADD, the most popular computer aided design/drafting system among architecture professionals.

Burke earned his BA degree in architecture at Texas Tech University and is a professional member of the American Institute of Architects and the Texas Society of Architects. A native of Midland, he serves as a chapter director of the West Texas Chapter of the AIA and is the project architect for the new northeast YMCA.

Riggen, a native of Lubbock, is a graduate of Texas Tech University with a BA degree in architecture. He is a professional member of the American Institute of Architects, Texas Society of Architects and the Construction Specifications Institute. Riggen serves as treasurer of the West Texas Chapter of the AIA and is the project architect for the renovation of the Midland County jail.

TONY MONTEZ has been named business consultant for Qualitech Computer Center of Midland. His primary responsibility will be to conduct an in-depth business analysis to determine the needs of potential clients and help the clients with the business decisions involved in a recommended system solution.

Prior to joining Qualitech, Montez held positions with IBM as administrative account specialist and more recently as systems consultant for R & M Construction of Edwardsville, Illinois.

'Coke is it' to be retired as cola's ad slogan

Los Angeles Times —
Washington Post News Service

Just when it seemed the advertising war between Coca-Cola and Pepsi was abating, television may get another advertising windfall as Coke drops its 3-year-old "Coke is it" advertising theme and presents a new slogan.

The new campaign, designed to promote both new Coke and Coca-Cola Classic, is intended to run for several months until the soft drink company has time to regroup and work out a strategy to fit its long-term marketing plans, according to Advertising Age. The magazine said that longtime Coke spokesman Bill Cosby will have little or no role in the commercials because the comedian was used so heavily and convincingly to introduce new Coke.

Coca-Cola officials in Atlanta could not be reached for comment. Officials of the Coca-Cola Bottling Co. in Los Angeles declined to comment.

Since Coca-Cola astounded experts and consumers alike this spring — first by reformulating its 99-year-old flagship cola, then by resurrecting the original taste two months later as Coca-Cola Classic — Coke has been spending heavily to promote its flagship cola.

IRS official to speak at PAS meeting

The Petroleum Accountants Society of the Permian Basin will resume its monthly meetings Wednesday, September 18. The meeting is to be held at the Ranchland Hills Country Club and will begin with the Technical Session at 5:30 pm.

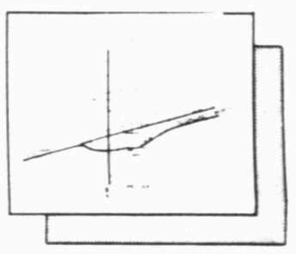

The guest speakers will be a problems resolution official from the Internal Revenue Service and Roy G. Shrode, Jr., CPA from Coopers and Lybrand Certified Public Accountants.

The Council of Petroleum Accountants Societies (COPAS) which was organized in Midland on April 25, 1961 unites the many local societies throughout the U.S. The objectives of COPAS are to study and analyze accounting issues to formulate and disseminate accounting practices, procedures, and pronouncemnts related to the extractive industry. COPAS also provide educational and professional development programs for its members and the public including financial and technical assistance to many educational institutions.

OFFICE

However, during the boom people were not so choosy.

Midland had about 2.8 million square feet of office space in 1980. Of this amount, 93 percent was occupied. In 1981, 95 percent of the office space was full. Two years later, 100 percent of the 5.4 million square feet of office space was full. In 1984, several new buildings opened and 73 percent of the 6.66 million square feet was leased.

Most agree that intense building activity during the boom is the major cause of vacant office space now.

"The slower real estate market is based on the economy. The oil business is uncertain, so people aren't willing to move to new office space," said Chesson.

"The oil business is really the only industry we have in Midland. When it's depressed, so is the office market," said Mitch Malouf, property manager for HBF Corp.

STILL OTHERS have specific problems. Elliott Yell, building manager of the 26-year-old Midland Savings Building, said his building needs remodeling for better efficiency and to compete with newer buildings. In addition, it doesn't have parking and its loading zones are blocked due to downtown construction, he said.

"We're set up for major tenants, which need two or three floors each. But, they are already located somewhere else with parking," he said. "If the building was remodeled for smaller companies, this might help fill it up."

Others have undergone management changes and foreclosures, such as Mission Park Plaza, constructed in 1983. The present lender is in the process of re-evaluating the development for future use.

One Petroleum Center and North Petroleum Center have undergone management changes.

"Management in the building changed five to six months ago. We are just now looking for prospective tenants," said Scooter Brown, manager of the two buildings. "We've been contracting companies that we know need more space and feel confident we can fill the building."

Other companies are also taking a more aggressive, innovative approach to find tenants.

Mid-America Petroleum is offering fully furnished, private offices to geologists and geophysicists along with benefits, such as office help, telephone service, parking and financial and technical benefits for an overhead fee of $400 to $500 a month per office and right of first refusal on prospects generated.

Mike Pollard, president of Mid-America, said the response to the offer has been light because the deal has not been advertised extensively.

Also, Texas American Bank Leasing Agent James Kruez said his building is considering offering free parking or free rent for a certain period of time when tenants sign a lease with the building.

HOWEVER, MANY brokers say that ample available office space is beneficial to Midland because it allows new businesses to move to Midland.

"I feel the available space is good. It benefits our recruiting efforts. It does us no good to find new businesses, if there are no offices for them to move into," said Steve Hardin, Chamber manager of economic development.

He said he is hoping to attract new businesses other than oil to Midland. One example of such an effort is the Texas Employment Commission's recent announcement to move its regional office here from San Angelo.

"Any time the price of oil increases, office space is absorbed," said Hardin. "If we were to have more than one industry in Midland, then maybe our economy would be more stable."

■ SPECIALTY CENTERS which comprise about 770,000 square feet of the total retail space in the city and have about a 55 percent occupancy rate are the hardest hit among the centers. Among the specialty centers are: San Miguel Square, Angora III, Fairmont, Lone Star Plaza, The Courtyard, Northwest Crossing, Mission Square, The Fountains and Colonade at Polo Park. It should be pointed out, however, that the average 55 percent occupancy rate may not be a true picture of the real occupancy rate. Centers such as Mission Square which has been in foreclosure litigation since March and has an occupancy of only 10 percent serve to pull down the average considerably, as do recently-opened centers which have not had time to recruit renters.

■ COMMUNITY CENTERS are in substantially better shape according to the report. These centers which would include North Park, Western Park Plaza, Westwood Village, Town & Country, Northland, Plaza Center and Imperial have about 894,000 square feet of the total retail space and a healthy occupancy rate of 85 percent.

Why do they keep building shopping centers? Russ Beckner, vice president Dean A. Beck Associates, a Los Angeles firm which is developing Midland Plaza on Loop 250 across from Walmart, offered his opinion. "We are bullish on Midland," says Russ Beckner. "Despite a softening of oil prices and a downturn in the industry, our research indicates Midland is still a good town to do business in and will continue to grow. The people are here. They have the money to spend and they spend it. That was our reason for building here."

He said Midland was very strong in all the marketing indicators. "Midland at $25,923 is third in the nation in retail sales per households. Anchorage Alaska at $29,122 is first and Laredo, Texas is second at $26,688 and Odessa forth at $25,265. In terms of reality Midland is probably number one because of higher prices in Alaska and the fact that most retail sales in Laredo are made to Mexican citizens." He compared Midland's third place ranking to Dallas who holds down 37th place with $18,699; Houston in 45th with $18,300; Austin in 82nd place with $16,834 and San Antonio who is ranked 102 with $16,287. The national average is slightly under $15,000.

"Things will have to get pretty bad in Midland, before Midland is even with Dallas," said Beckner.

He said the effective buying income for Midland was $32,817 making it 18th in the nation and number one in Texas. The national average for the effective buying income, which is the amount of money left to spend after taxes, is $18,500. The developer said that major users such as Mervyns and Service Merchandise which will occupy 75,000 ft. and 50,000 ft. in the new Midland Plaza Shopping Center were all impressed with the economic indicators for Midland. "These people have their own research departments and they just don't move unless all the i's are dotted. They don't make major mistakes." He said that several other major users had also approached him about space in the new center, after the anchor stores had already been contracted, indicating continued interest in Midland by major users of retail space.

"All indicators are good for Midland. Population is up. Bank deposits are stable. Unemployment is low. Airline boardings are up. But even with all the positive indicators, we probably would not have come to town if the site had not been available. We consider the site we have to be probably the best in town, with the exception of the Midland Park Mall site. It has a built-in retail focus." He said that site was all important, and some of the smaller retail businesses in non-destination type centers could be hurting because they didn't have the "big boys" to draw the customers in for them.

Beckner said Midland was at a point now where most of the retail dollars would be spent at home. "At one time people may have had to travel to Dallas or some other place out of town to do their shopping, but not any more. Midland can now meet nearly all the needs of the shopper.

Deauville expects to break ground by year-end

By JOHN PAUL PITTS
Business/Oil Editor

Deauville Corp. expects to break ground on its 530,000 square foot, specialty mall before the end of the year, according to Tom Gordon, chairman of the board of the Deauville Corp.

When completed the Deauville Mall at Loop 250 and Highway 191 will have 485,000 square feet of leaseable space, that will be dominated by seven anchor stores and a food court, and will be situated on 40 acres. There will also be additional sit-down restaurants located within the complex, according to Gordon.

Gordon says that two anchors have already signed and three more are in the final stages of lease signing and should be formalized within one to two weeks. The two anchor tenants which have signed leases are Federal Electronics, and House Wares.

"Federal Electronics is an adult Toys R Us store, with everything you can imagine in electronics," said the chairman. "It will be a lot of fun and benefit to Midlanders." The store will occupy 27,500 square feet. He describes House Wares as 20,000 square feet of china, crystal, and other table and home decor.

"It's a very unique operation," he said.

The three anchor stores that are expected to formalize leases within two weeks include an apparel store, a national theater chain and a general merchandise store. The three anchors are expected to rent 160,000 square feet between them. "We have another anchor that is involved with us in several other malls, that is expected to take about 25,000 square feet, but we are not in the formalizing stages yet, even though we expect them in the Midland Deauville Mall. If they sign, we will have only one anchor spot open." He said he was also negotiating with two other major apparel stores but would probably finalize a lease with only one.

Gordon said he thought Midland could support another retail mall, along the lines of the proposed Deauville Mall. "We have a unique, specialty mall, that will have retail tenants not already in Midland. It will offer a whole new group of retailers for the community. We see Midland as a good market for what we want to do, but I can't speak for anyone else."

Gordon said the mall would highly promotional and an aggressive advertiser and would seek to draw customers from great distances into Midland.

APARTMENTS

WHY ARE the apartments filling up? "Simple," says Garth. "More people are moving to town." She says her Midland apartment locator service receives about 30-35 calls per day, and that about 75 percent of them are from people who are moving to town. "Most are from the oil industry, but they also come from all walks of life — school teachers, store managers and other professionals. We have been swamped."

Julie Dodd, manager of Polo Park and president of Midland Apartment Managers Association echoes Garth in most categories. "We are definitely seeing more people moving in, and most are oil-related professionals. I think we have had a net increase in jobs as a result of recent oil company merger activity." She said occupancy rates in the high eighties or low ninties were about average in Midland at this time and predicted that rental rates which have already started upward again would continue to climb.

"However, I certainly don't think they will go as high as they were during the boom," she said. "I think now with normal demand and normal occupancy rates, we should begin to see normal rental rates."

She added that it was still not an owner market: "The gimmicks, with the free rent, free cable and no deposits, may be gone, but it is still an intensely competitive market. We seem, now to be facing a more sophisticated renter who does a lot more looking, and there are still a lot of apartments out there."

SHE SAID she didn't think Midland would boom again anytime soon, and there was really no need to build more apartments in Midland.

Wanda Hayes, manager of Hyde Park and secretary of the Apartment Managers Association, noted that it would probably take three years before the Midland apartment market would see 100 percent saturation.

She said her complex was approximately 87 percent occupied and that many of the renters had come from out of town, but others had moved out of high priced homes they were renting to take advantage of low apartment rent, and still others had moved out of mobile homes into apartments.

"Also, we are still seeing a lot of apartment to apartment mobility, as renters move around to take advantage of bargains," she said.

Some of that mobility may be an upgrading process, as renters suddenly find themselves able to afford a nicer apartment. Research conducted by Sentry Property Management tends to confirm this.

The firm found that there were approximately 12,000 apartment units in Midland, which fell into three distinct classifications: luxury, professional and family. Luxury units were classified as those renting for 50 cents per square foot and upward, professional units were those built after 1981 and family units those built prior to 1981.

OF THE THREE classifications luxury units were fewest in numbers with only 2,000 available, 4,700 were available in the professional class and 5,300 in the family. This availability status, in turn, corresponds directly to occupancy rates for the three classifications. Sentry found a 92 percent occupancy rate in the luxury apartments, an 87 percent occupancy in the professional group and 85 percent in the family apartments.

"The demand is definitely higher in the luxury market category," said Mike Lewis, vice president Sentry, "and this has resulted in a trickle down effect into the other classifications in the last three months."

He said a big factor in firming the market in the past three months had been intense merger activity within the oil industry. Said Lewis: "Employees are moving in and renting an apartment until they can buy a house, others are electing to remain in apartments until the dust has settled in the shakeout activity and they are certain they have a job or not." Lewis said he anticipated occupancy rates would remain high in the apartment market for some years to come as a result of elimination of the five percent downpayment.

The real estate executive also points out that many in the Midland job market are highly mobil and geared to apartment living. "A typical resident profile for Midland is single, young (23-28 years of age), with a good income and high mobility. Some don't even own their own furniture."

Lewis said rental prices were still 30-40 percent below what they were three years ago and that apartment owners may have to "bite the bullet" a bit longer until there is a new influx of renters into the market.

If things look good for Midland in terms of high occupancy rates, they are equally well in other parts of the Basin. According to Apartment Locators, Odessa enjoys an approximately 94 percent occupancy, and while San Angelo is lower at 84 percent it is still in a respectable cash flow percentage.

It should be pointed out that all the surveys conducted were obtained by a telephone poll of approximately 95 percent of the apartment projects in Midland and that the occupancy rates may be slightly inflated, because of apartment manager's reluctance to report low occupancy rates. Still they are considered by most in the industry to represent a fairly accurate picture of the state of the apartment market in Midland within 2 to 5 percentage points.

RepublicBank Corp.to buy Richardson bank

DALLAS (AP) — RepublicBank Corp. has reached an agreement to acquire Richardson Bank & Trust for approximately $19 million in cash.

The agreement, announced Wednesday by both institutions, calls for the Dallas-based multi-bank holding company to purchase 481,158 shares of the Richardson bank's common stock at $39.49 a share.

The merger is subject to approval by shareholders and regulatory authorities.

UNIQUE OPPORTUNITY FOR INDEPENDENT GEOLOGISTS AND GEOPHYSICISTS

Mid-America Petroleum, Inc. has a sequestered area in its prestigious office building with ten fully furnished, private offices that it will provide to qualified geologists and geophysicists.

Mid-America will provide:

- Nicely furnished, exterior offices
- Secretary-receptionist
- Local telephone service
- Membership in log library
- Land, engineering and geological technical support, if desired, including possible funds for seismic data and lease acquisition
- Unlimited free parking, some covered
- Access to photocopier, coffee bar and conference room

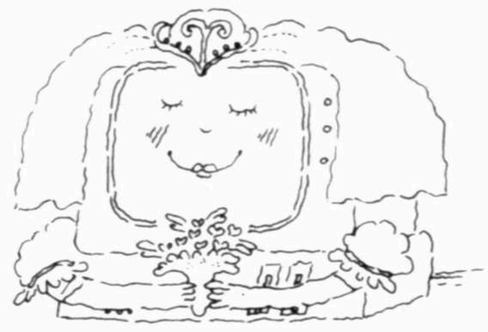

Mid-America requires:

- Overhead fee of $400 to $500 per month, per office (payment deferral plan is available, if needed)
- Right of first refusal on prospects generated.

This beautifully landcaped building is located at the corner of Louisiana and Carrizo, just four blocks north of First City Center.

Now you can begin generating prospects for your own account without incurring excessive overhead costs. For an appointment, call Mike Pollard or Jim Starrak at 684-7005 or write us at P.O. Box 3120, Midland, TX 79702.

We would like to propose the marriage of your business with the future.

If you're ready to make a serious commitment to computerizing your office for the future, then we'd like to make a proposal.

Our proposal is based on a complete analysis of your business needs, which a QUALITECH Computer Specialist will discuss with you at length.

As a result of the discussion, we'll present you with a "Management Blueprint." It's a comprehensive proposal, tailored to your specific requirements, including: hardware and software recommendations, training schedule, implementation timetable, service and support information, and of course, a cost breakdown.

Normally, a proposal of this nature costs up to $500. But right now, for a limited time, QUALITECH is offering this service for free. If you're interested, call us today.
