Hambone's Meditations

Yes, Sir, She's a Marvel!

"Marvel Quivey? That's a good moniker for an actress, but what's the girl's real name?" Folks were always asking that question, and they never failed to marvel somewhat skeptically when it was explained that Marvel's real name was Marvel. So when Marvel left the west coast to star in a Broadway production, she determined to change her name to something less "theatrical." So here you see Miss Marcia Manning. Just the same, she's the daughter of Claude E. Quivey, famed miniature painter.

Henrietta Man, Here in '71, Heads 60 Old Timers at C-C Luncheon

W. S. Ikard of Henrietta, who came to Wichita county in 1871, was the oldest of the pioneers in point of residence in this county to attend the business council meeting of the Wichita Falls Chamber of Commerce Friday noon in the Kemp hotel. About 60 of the old timers were present, and the entire meeting was in their honor.

The firm foundation, on which Wichita Falls and Wichita county are built, was illustrated by R. E. Huff who said that there was a church here before 20 houses had been built.

Tales of early days were recounted by the old timers and many friendships were renewed. J. B. Marlow's painting of the city in 1880 was exhibited along with a group of 125 pictures of the olden times collected by Lester Jones.

Mrs. A. H. Carrigan played "The Spanish Cavalier" on a little organ the first ever to come to Wichita Falls, which was given to her by her father, the late J. H. Barwise.

Miss Johnnie Morgan, local teacher, read the first chapter from the history of Wichita Falls. She is the author of the book, Luther T. Hoffman, chairman of the council, presided at the meeting, and the

SMITH HAILED BY THOUSANDS IN MILWAUKEE

'Hello Al' Is Cherry Way Wisconsin Citizens Greet Warrior

WILL TALK DRY LAWS

Candidate Is Highly Pleased By Receptions Given By Twin Cities

MILWAUKEE, Wis., Sept. 28 (UP)—Milwaukee greeted Gov. Alfred E. Smith and his brown derby with red fire and an enthusiastic whoop when he arrived here tonight.

Thousands milled about the depot when the train arrived at 8:30 o'clock and gave the Democratic candidate for president the familiar "Hello Al."

Milwaukee, thousands strong, waved its red fire welcome and sent up a lusty shout along the route of the parade. After the parade the governor went to his quarters at the Schroeder hotel.

Smith will respond to Wisconsin's demand for modification of the prohibition laws with a speech tomorrow night on the Volstead act and the Eighteenth amendment, in which he will outline in more detail his proposal for a change in both of them

Smith Impressed

The Democratic candidate left Minnesota today "tremendously impressed and very much heartened" by his reception at Minneapolis and St. Paul, and the wild demonstration over his speech in the latter city. He entered Wisconsin for his bid for the LaFollette support in that state with assurances he would carry it by between 50,000 and 60,000 votes. This assurance came from Democratic national Committeeman John M. Callahan, of Milwaukee, who boarded the train at St. Paul for the trip to Milwaukee, together with National Committeewoman Mrs. James Carrigan, Milwaukee, M. K. Riley, Fon Du Lac, Wis., Democratic senatorial candidate and Alfred E. Schmedeman, Milwaukee, democratic gubernatorial candidate.

On Water Power

Smith discussed water power today when he was asked whether he would extend the formula expressed in his Denver speech to include government operation at great power sites, as Muscle Shoals.

"It would all depend upon the plant," he replied, "if the power authority can make it desirable and agreeable and bargain for the other operation, provided the government can control the rates, that's one thing. It may be possible at other sites that you could not get any private operation.

"Someone must operate the plant. It will not operate itself. In the state of New York we operate the plants."

Girl Killed in Car Wreck Is Identified

MILWAUKEE, Wis., Sept. 28. (UP)—Mildred Irene Petit, 16, is the true name and age of the girl known as Joyce Dyvone who was killed on the Green Bay road during a joy ride Saturday night.

The identification was made through tracing the number of a prescription on a Topeka druggist's label on a bottle of medicine found in the girl's room. She was to have been buried Thursday, but a telegram from her father postponed the rites.

LAWTON CROWD HEARS CURTIS

G. O. P. Candidate Injures Hand in Auto

LAWTON, Okla., Sept. 28 (UP)—Military forces of the United States must be maintained despite recent progress toward world peace, Senator Charles Curtis, campaigning Republican vice-presidential nominee, said here tonight after a visit to Fort Sill, Okla., the army's largest artillery post.

"The essential purpose of good government is to maintain peace and promote the happiness and welfare of the people," he said. "To this end, the policy of the United States has been, is and will be, to maintain the military forces at sufficient strength to defend the country in event of attack.

Pleads For Peace

"As one of the biggest and most powerful civilized nations, the people and the government of the United States owe it not only to themselves but to all mankind to make every reasonable effort to establish, maintain and preserve universal peace. There is a need for international agreements with this end in view."

Curtis said the Kellogg treaty "represents the crystallization of a universal desire for peace" and is "the greatest step ever taken in the struggle to abolish war." He reminded his audience that it was consummated by a Republican administration.

His speech, delivered in a pavillion at the Lawton airground, completed the second day of Curtis' Oklahoma campaign. The one other formal address of the day was made this morning at Oklahoma City. Representative Fred Purnell, of Indiana, substituted for Curtis at all train stops between Oklahoma City and Lawton.

The strain of his campaign is beginning to tell on the 68-year-old senator. He looked tired tonight and his voice was husky.

Thumb Crushed

Curtis' right thumb was crushed in the door of an automobile when he arrived here this afternoon, adding to his discomfort. Although not serious, the injury was extremely painful. He was hurried to a physician's office to have his hand dressed.

He refused, however, to cancel tomorrow's hard schedule. He will speak at Perry, Guthrie, Ponca City, Kaw, Pawnee and Enid. Arrangements are being made to travel by train rather than automobile as originally intended because Curtis finds long motor trips tiring.

He visited the Kiowa Indian school and hospital here this afternoon, motored to Fort Sill for a brief visit at the home of his daghter, Mrs. Permela Curtis George.

Robinson Speaks in G. O. P. Convention Hall

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Sept. 28. (UP)—The Republican platform was again under scrutiny in the same convention hall where it was adopted by the Republican party three months ago, but the examination was made unfavorably by Senator Joseph T. Robinson, Democratic vice presidential candidate.

Contrary to the boasts of the Republicans in their platform that the last eight years have been notable for lofty achievements, Senator Robinson declared the period is marked by mediocrity and its leaders are mediocre.

RECORD CROWD JAMS STREETS FOR PARADE

Auto Dealers Sponsor Last Event of Anniversary Celebration

1901 MODEL IS WINNER

Prairie Schooner Presents Strange Contrast to Modern Autos

Including in its colorful ranks the battered prairie schooner and presumptuous Ford of other days, a parade sponsored by the Wichita Falls Auto Dealers' association which struck a bewildering contrast with modern "flappers" driving powerful modern-day automobiles wound its way through massed thousands Friday evening, bringing to an official close Wichita Falls' celebration of its 46th birthday.

Early Days Recalled

The parade, apparently, included everything but the modern electric locomotive in the line of old and new methods of transportation. But the toot of nearby switch engines reminded the historically minded that 46 years ago at that very minute a much smaller crowd was celebrating the entrance of the first railroad into this region, and that records were being filed in a tiny courthouse of the first town lots to be sold here.

The parade, contrary to schedule, was not led by the driver of the "earliest form of transportation." For, in a very modern automobile, at the head of the column rode Julian McFall, auto dealer, and president of the association of auto dealers here.

Behind him, however, rode a reminder of the early pony express, in the person of Pay Taylor, one of the earliest of Wichita Falls' pioneers. Erect he sat on a prancing pony, as if he had forgotten his horse's feet at that moment were nicking hole sin bitulithic pavement.

Indians Also March

Then followed an array of cowboys and girls, the latter riding their ponies comfortably on side-saddles, and a few carefully groomed girls dressed in modern vogue who somehow seemed out of place amongst the reminders of other days.

A troop of Oklahoma Indians interspersed the first section of the parade, which, after the Lions' club band had passed, was made up of Electra Boy Scouts, painted and dressed in the manner of the real warhoop experts who rode ahead.

The ramshackle prairie schooner won by far the most admiration as being something that actually breathed the spirit of the past. In the first place, an aged man, bearded, wearing a shaggy hat, rode in the front seat, a symbol of the era which knew no other means of travel than this. A companion was with him, apparently to keep a balance between the front and the rear of the wagon, the latter of which was laden with kids. On the side of the vehicle was the water barrel. And behind there trailed the family cow.

As to Automobiles

Then came the buggy with the lazy nag, and the Indian contraption—two poles pulled by a lone rider—which served that race even before the prairie schooner rolled through their country driven by white men.

"Still Doing My Stuff," was the sign on something between a steam engine and a distillery which followed, and which later, through another sign, it carried on the rear, proved to be a Pierce-Arrow of the vintage of 1901. And then there was an alleged Hupmobile, which carried the blushing sign "One More Year and She Can Vote."

One of the early brain childs of

Mail Bandits Kidnap Negro and Make Big Haul

RAHWAY, N. J., Sept. 28. (AP)—Twelve men kidnaped a negro porter at the Pennsylvania railroad station here today and escaped with a mail pouch estimated to contain $10,000 to $30,000 in cash and securities after leaving their victim handcuffed to a tree about 25 miles from Rahway. Joseph Van Cline, the porter, who weighs about 125 pounds, and is but 5 feet tall was taking the pouch from a train to guards at the lower level of the station, when one of the men shoved a gun against him and escorted him into one of their three limousines in the street.

U. S. REJECTS NAVY PROPOSAL

France and Britain Are Sent Blunt Objections

WASHINGTON, Sept. 28 (AP).—London and Paris were officially advised tonight that the Franco-British naval limitation agreement was wholly unacceptable to the United States.

The American note characterized the cruiser and submarine restriction proposals as "even more objectionable," than the similar plan offered by the British delegation at the abortive three-power naval conference in Geneva.

Washington has again declined flatly to accept an distinction for limitation purposes between eight-inch and six-inch gun cruisers or between submarines above and below 600 tons in size. That is the gist of the Franco-British accord as made public textually in the American note.

Stating reasons for this blunt rejection of the accord theory of cruiser limitation, the note said it was "clearly apparent that limitation of this type only would add enormously to the comparative offensive power of a nation possessing a large merchant tonnage on which preparation could be made in times of peace for mounting six inch guns." As to submarines, it said the United States "would gladly, in conjunction with all nations of the world, abolish submarines altogether," but could not assent to a size distinction as little submarines were just as deadly within their operating radius as big ones.

CLINTON CARNES ARRESTED IN WINNEPEG, MAN.

Canadian Officers Hold Suspected Embezzler for Atlanta, Ga.

ADMITS HIS IDENTITY

Prisoner Is Wanted for His Shortages in Church Accounts

WINNIPEG, Man., Sept. 28. (UP)—Clinton S. Carnes declared tonight he was ready to return to Atlanta, Ga., and face those who accuse him of misappropriating funds of the Southern Baptist Mission board in his official capacity as treasurer.

WINNIPEG, Man., Sept. 28. (UP)—Clinton S. Carnes, missing treasurer of the Home Mission board of the Southern Baptist convention, Atlanta, Ga., was arrested by Winnipeg police late this afternoon. He is being held pending word from the southern city.

Carnes is said to have disappeared on discovery of a shortage in his accounts. Winnipeg police have been on the lookout for him for some time, having been advised that he was making his way toward the Canadian border.

He admitted his identity when arrested but would not discuss the case.

Chief of Police Newton was unable to state if Carnes was accompanied to Winnipeg by a woman.

Carnes is lodged in a cell at the city police station and will likely appear in police court Saturday morning. This will only be a formality, however, and he will be remanded until extradition proceedings are taken. This may not be necessary as he can be deported by the immigration authorities and handed over to American officials at the border. This is the simplest procedure and usually adopted in cases of this kind.

Police stated that Carnes was not to be questioned. He remained silent during his first hours in custody, not offering to discuss his travels since his disappearance from Atlanta a month ago or the charges against him.

Since his arrival in Winnipeg Carnes has conducted himself in a quiet manner and is said to have been preparing to establish himself in business. His particular line was that of a breakfast food manufacturer. He came to Winnipeg unaccompanied, and although police admitted they had traced his movements since his arrival, refused to discuss it further. Chief Newton likewise was silent on the manner in which Carnes' identity was made known. Carnes was under surveillance by police for 10 days, it was learned. He was arrested on a street, and carried a large sum of money.

CARNES WANTED FOR EMBEZZLEMENT

ATLANTA, Ga., Sept. 28. (UP)—Clinton S. Carnes, who was reported arrested in Winnipeg, Man., today, is wanted in Atlanta on indictments charging embezzlements totalling more than $140,000 from the Southern Baptist Home Mission board of which he was treasurer.

Carnes disappeared from his home here Aug. 15 but his absence was not made known until ten days later, A check of his accounts revealed shortages totalling nearly $2,000,000, church officials said.

Chief of Detectives A. Lamar Poole, who has been in charge of the case, told the United Press he had been advised of Carnes' arrest by Winnipeg authorities but had no definite plans early tonight.

Chairman Pleased

Dr. L. R. Christie, chairman of the home mission board, expressed pleasure when informed by the United Press that Carnes had been apprehended.

Negro Slays Four of His Race After Bullet Grazes Head in Card Brawl

DALLAS, Sept. 28 (AP)—De Witt McKinney, 39, negro, was in jail here tonight facing four slaying charges and one assault to kill charge as the result of a wholesale shooting which terminated a card game early today near Rowlett, Dallas county.

Four negroes, C. B. Adams, "Crip" Fayte, Walter Sparks and a woman, Willie Lewis, were dead and a fifth negro, Haywood Washington, was near death.

McKinney in a written statement to Assistant District Attorney Hurt admitted he had shot the five negroes with a single barrelled shotgun after he had become angered in the card game and had been fired on with a pistol by Sparks. The bullet, he said, grazed his head, on which he left the house where the game was in progress and got his shotgun.

BARNES HERE 25 YEARS AGO

Circus Man Returns With Great Show

Twenty-five years ago a little wagon show meandered into Wichita Falls, unloaded its one elephant, its handful of lions and tigers, a few other performers and "hands" and proceeded to show the town its stuff in a vacant store room.

Wichita Falls wasn't so grand herself in those days. Hitching posts where garages now stand; croquet and high seated bicycles instead of golf and high powered cars.

Friday, Oct. 5, the same circus, grown up, headed by the same man, Al G. Barnes, will roll into a changed Wichita Falls in its long, orange colored trains, to give two performances under its own spreading "big top."

Many of the same folk who 25 years ago came in trailing skirts, bowler hats, huge hair bows and Little Lord Fauntleroy collars "for to admire and for to see" what the young Mr. Barnes had to offer will be there Friday in quite different attire to view with astonishment the 5-ring circus which in a quarter of a century has grown from the store room class into one of the world's largest wild animal shows and a most complicated organization.

Where the 25-year-ago-folk saw one elephant, today's crowds will see an immense herd; where they oh-ed and ah-ed over a few mangy lions and tigers, they will gaze at 2,500 strange beasts from the far-away places of the globe, headed by Tusko, the titanic old mastodon, reputed to be the largest creature walking the earth today. Where the "old timers" were entertained by a small company of players, with Mr. Barnes directing all the wild animal acts and serving as ringmaster, handyman, announcer and general master of ceremonies to boot, they will be amused by 1,080 people,—acrobats, singers, arealists, accomplished riders, trapezists, stuntsters, giants, midgets, clowns, wire dancers, animal trainers.

A pageant of a magnificence not to have been even dreamed of by the little show of 25 years ago serves as a prologue to the "big top" presentations. It is called "Aladdin and the Parade of Gold," and has included in its cast a fairy queen, a Prince Charming and a satisfyingly wicked devil. The performers' jewel-encrusted costumes, and the ornate trappings of the animals are of rare beauty.

Mr. Barnes is to accompany his grown up circus to Wichita Falls. He will greet his guests twice at each performance, mounted on "Full Dress," his own gaited saddle horse, and driving a handsome pair of Arabian steeds.

Performances under the big tents are to begin at 2 and 8 o'lock. The extensive zoo, where Tusko looms like a mountain among the other curious creatures, is to be opened at 1 and 7 o'clock. For the pleasure of early visitors at the circus lot, there will be complimentary open air programs at 12:30 and 6:30 in front of the side show tents.

Modern Youth Is More Frank and More Religious, Says Noted Pastor Here

Rev. Goodell Sees an Improvement in Search of Many Thousands for Higher Education

Present day collegians are more frank but surely no worse than those of any other generation, believes Dr. Charles L. Goodell of New York City, who was pastor in New York City of the largest Methodist church in the world for 20 years and at present conducting a series of services in the First Methodist church, South.

"We live in cycles which may be compared to the coming in and the receding of the tide—when one tide rises above the last, then there is hope in the flood tide," was his simile in explaining the optimism he feels in the young people of the present age.

Many in Church Service

"There has never been a time when nearly so large a number of young people gave themselves to life service. The large number of Christian Endeavor societies and young people's leagues and unions are testimonial that the youth of the nation taken as a whole, is sound at heart, and are moving forward in a crusade for Christ. The number of young people who are enrolled in our colleges and universities is another sign that they seek to improve themselves that they might be of greater service to their fellows."

And Dr. Goodell is in a position to have authentic information on the life and the integrity of the younger generation, for his work brings him into direct contact with tens of thousands of collegians yearly. He is secretary of the Department of Evangelism and Life Service in the Federal Council of the Churches of Christ in America and in his capacity as secretary of life service over 28 Protestant denominations in America, he addresses more than 30 colleges and universities each year, delivering courses of lectures and conducting forums for young people as well as acting in the capacity of chaplain for weekly periods among students in the largest denominational colleges in the country.

Only two students in Yale university 125 years ago were members of a church, Dr. Goodell pointed out, a number in no way commensurate with the large percentage of students in the colleges of today who are affiliated with a church and the increase in church membership today is greater than the increase in population.

Excesses among the small percentage of young people who indulge in them will in time prove an object of disgust to them, and bring them back to normal and temperate living, is the hopeful opinion expressed by the evangelist.

Dr. Goodell had little to say concerning the advisibility of a minister discussing political issues from the pulpit. He expressed himself, however, in favor of a preacher taking up moral issues regardless of politics, when they have a direct bearing on the well being of society.

Author of Text

Among books of which Dr. Goodell is author is, "Pastoral and Personal Evangelism," which has been adopted for use in most of the theological schools in America and in Europe. The pastor has spent several months in Palestine and in Egypt studying the life of the natives. He has also traveled extensively in Europe and has made these countries the subject of lectures.

He received his theological training in Boston university, in New York university, and was granted the doctor of divinity degree at Wesleyan college, Middletown, Conn., the largest Methodist school in the north.

A half million miles of travel within the last ten years is the within the last ten years is his record Dr. Goodell claims, and he has traveled in the north and south alike. His home is in New York City, where Mrs. Goodell and their one daughter live. They have two sons who are graduates of Yale university and a third son who is yet in college.

Dr. Goodell's office is a sort of clearing house for the commissions of evangelism in the 38 different churches represented in the Federal Council of the Churches of Christ in America, he explained. Each large city has a church federation with a paid secretary, whose work it is to gid in co-operation between the churches. And the work of Dr. Goodell is to get together all these churches, sometimes addressing 1,000 or more ministers in one assembly. The last two weeks in January are devoted to this work. He also makes addresses at annual assemblies of synods of the various denominations in which are represented the leaders of the work of those churches.

Dr. Goodell spends little of his time at his office. He betrays years spent in the various parts of the country by speaking a brand of English which shows little accent. His dark eyes flash with kindly humor as he displays a lively interest in the welfare of young people.

Auto Dealers Sponsor Last Event of Anniversary

Henry Ford was also included in this aggregation of boilers and wheels. It really did look something like a Ford, the crowd admitted. It was even admitted that some spectators were homesick for that chug-chug-chuggy noise that in other days made them say $!:;&!&: and other things—especially when the noise stopped.

Two Bands Give Music

There followed two early models of Wichita trucks, manufactured here—one of them a model of 1902. They were followed by a five and a 10-ton modern type of this vehicle.

Conspicuous for their drivers as well as for their mechanical beauty, a long line of up-to-date cars concluded the parade. These, for the most part, were driven by girls.

The parade passed south on Indiana, went west on Ninth, and came through the thickest of the crowds on Scott, finishing its journey after it had passed the reviewing stand at Tenth and Scott. The two bands which played doubled back to Eighth and Scott to give concerts before the wrestling match and other events closing the celebration.

Police Relief Fund Gets $500 Reward

A $500 reward paid two years ago for the capture of two Arkansas bank robbers by local police will go into the Wichita Falls police relief fund, a jury in the county court at law decided Friday. W. M. Davidson, former policeman, who participated in the capture, claimed $125 as his share while other officers signed waivers.

Since the reward check came the money has been held in escrow in the Wichita State bank pending the court's action on Davidson's claim. His attorneys informed Judge C. M. McFarland they likely will take an appeal.

STRONGER AND SLEEPS BETTER

Took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Ogden, Kansas.—"For three or four months before taking the Vegetable Compound I was run-down, didn't feel like doing any work and could not sleep at night. The least thing would upset me. We live on a farm and I have my housework to do but often I could not do it. My mother told me of the good Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound had done her so I am taking it. I am feeling fine, can sleep good and can do my work without getting over-tired. I recommend the Vegetable Compound and will answer letters."—Mrs. Lester Cummings, Box 331, Ogden, Kansas.

GENE IN ROME FOR WEDDING

Details of Ceremony Kept Secret

ROME, Sept. 28. (UP)—Gene Tunney reached Rome today and at once began preparations for his forthcoming marriage to Miss Mary Josephine Lauder.

Tunney maintained strict seclusion and gave orders that he was not to be disturbed by interviewers under any circumstances.

During part of the morning he lolled in the gardens of the Hotel De Russie, and hotel attendants kept close guard over him to prevent intrusion.

Then Tunney called on United States Ambassador Henry P. Fletcher. Later he telephoned the American consulate at Naples and was understood to have discussed formalities connected with the wedding. He also made personal calls in this city to arrange preparations of the necessary legal documents.

Miss Lauder, now en route to Italy, is booked to stay at Naples. Whether the wedding will be there, or at Sorrento, nearby, or in Rome, has not been disclosed definitely. The United Press learned, however, that a report printed in Rome yesterday saying the wedding would be in the Sorrento hotel dedicated to the poet, Tasso, was incorrect.

Webb, assistant to the president of the Texas and Pacific railroad, with headquarters at New Orleans, declared while on a visit to Breckenridge Thursday that business conditions in this section of the country and in North Texas in general were in the "pink" of condition. "Cotton crops are fair throughout the country, and prices are due to be somewhat better this year," he added.

Mr. Webb did not come to Breckenridge on business, but rather to carry back to Paris, Texas, Mrs. W. H. Wiggs, wife of a Paris minister, who broke her hip two weeks ago while visiting a daughter here. He left for Paris Thursday afternoon, after spending the day here.

CIVIL SERVICE 'GAG' SCORED

Senator Champions Workers' Right to Opinions

WASHINGTON, Sept. 28. (US)—A demand for removal of the political gag affecting 100,000 classified civil service employes of the federal government, who are "denied the privilege that every free American citizen enjoys," was made by Representative Addison T. Smith, Republican of Idaho, today.

Smith voiced his demand in a letter to Chairman Hubert Work of the Republican national committee, protesting against the rule of the civil service commission which bans political activity by classified civil service workers. He said:

"The members of the cabinet and heads of bureaus are active in urging the people to support one or the other of the political parties because they believe in the principles and policies of their party, but if the employes should undertake to do so, they are threatened with dismissal.

"Why should it be considered dishonorable or criminal for them to express an opinion concerning their government's policies in a great political campaign? What has occurred to justify a great bureau of the government to point the finger of suspicion at such a body of worthy men and women?"

Despite Smith's plea for aid in removing the ban, Chairman Work said he would make not attempt to overturn the ruling of the commission.

Oklahomans Dispute Republican Strength

OKLAHOMA CITY, Sept. 28. (UP)—Statement of J. B. Rone, Oklahoma anti-Smith leader, that he has the signed pledges of 76,000 Oklahoma Democrats to vote for Herbert Hoover was characterized as "ridiculous" by George D. Key, state Democratic chairman today.

"Rone and his associates are seeking to give a satisfactory report to Republican state headquarters," Key said.

"The Republicans are seeking to make a smoke screen behind which they may explode their shells of hatred and intolerance," he added.

STATE WARDS MAY GET JOBS

Employment for Patients at Austin Sought

Special to The Record News

AUSTIN, Sept. 28.—Recommendations will be made by Dr. H. H. Harrington, member of the state board of control, to the 41st legislature, for the enactment of a bill authorizing the superintendent of the colony for the feeble-minded at Austin, to "farm out" healthy inmates of the institution, thereby reducing, if not eliminating, the burden of the state of support and maintenance of these wards of the state.

Dr. Harrington said he could see no valid reason why male inmates could not be made to work on the farms and industrial pursuits, and the female inmates employed as household domestics, and thus earn sufficient money to make them self-supporting. Harrington's plan is to allot these inmates in groups of 15 or 20 under the direction of an overseer in the case of the male inmates and a matron to take care of the female inmates.

The plan will include only that class of feeble-minded that may be termed subnormal.

Dr. Harrington said that he found that only one other state in the union has adopted this plan to keep its unfortunate employed, that being the state of Iowa. The plan in that state has proven a success. The majority of the inmates of Iowa's colony for the feeble-minded are virtually self-sustaining, he said.

HUERTA ISSUES CALL TO PALS

But 'Army' Is to Be Only Political

LOS ANGELES, Sept. 28. (AP)—Adolfo de La Huerta, former provisional president of Mexico, exiled here since 1924, has issued a new call to his widely scattered followers, designed to rally them to the polls and not to the battle field as in the past.

Following a conference yesterday with leaders of his party, De La Huerta announced he had thrown his forces with the partido anti-reelectionista (anti-re-electionist party of Mexico) and its activities would be purely political.

He refused to say what part the move would play in his possible return to his native land. De La Huerta has made his home in a modest bungalow here since 1924 when his insurrection in Mexico failed and he was forced to flee the country.

They gave their names as Elmer Wackbart, Earle Steele and Dwight Jones. Wackbart was named by Capt. Emil Clausen of the Kenosha police as the man who had confessed.

SERVE SUPPER BUFFET STYLE

Sunday Night Meal Delightful Affair

By IDA M. CHITWOOD
Noted Culinary Expert

The very term "Sunday night supper" has a flavor of its own. Immediately it conjures up freedom from the usual routine. Often the man of the family who has secret yearnings to cook has his chance on Sunday night, and turns out something staggering to the imagination of the family. One nationally known literary man has made almost as much of a reputation among his intimate friends for his Welsh rarebit as for his novels of contemporary life. Almost anything is likely to get into the making of it, while his wife stands by in apprehension. But the result without fail is delightful.

In no way can a family more truly express hospitality than by giving a standing invitation to their friends to "drop in" for Sunday night supper. Especially can the family without a maid entertain easily in this way, making the Sunday evening at home an occasion of real delight to their friends.

The dinner table should be prettily set and lighted with candles. If there are a number of guests, it is best to serve the meal "buffet" style—that is the food is placed on the table, the guests help themselves and carry off their plates to small tables (card tables with luncheon cloths will do) scattered through the dining room and possibly the living room.

The fare usually consists of cold meat, salad, a hot food prepared in the chafing dish, or scalloped potatoes or Boston baked beans, or spaghetti with a wonderful Italian sauce, brought very hot from the kitchen. Tea and coffee are available and there are lots of hot rolls or biscuits. The dessert may be layer cake or cream puffs or delicate home made tarts. Some one, usually the host or hostess, replenishes the hot dish and biscuits from time to time, but with this exception, very little service is necessary. It is an easy and a delightful way to gather together a number of friends who "mix" well.

If the guests are few on Sunday night, the dining table will be set just as it is for luncheon, and every one will sit down at a regular place.

CORSICANA, Texas, Sept. 28. (AP)—In a letter received today by W. A. Tarver, permanent chairman of the state Democratic convention in Dallas, from the Rev. C. H. "Resolved, that a dry southern Democrat ought to vote for Herbert Hoover rather than for Governor Alfred E. Smith," was the subject suggested by Rev. Mr. Booth.

Tarver has the challenge under consideration.

CHIC CHERI

(Copyright 1928 King Features Syn., Inc.)

Latest Fashions

Cherie finds it hard to concentrate. She can't concentrate on this set of bag and matching slippers (velvet and so smart with her folded velvet turban) because she is thinking of Andy and Eustace. She can't really settle the question of Andy and Eustace because this strange young man seems to be staring at her.

Except that the front view of this suit would also show Cherie's face there is no fault to be found with the back view. The suit is of velveteen trimmed with badger and shows its chic by the flat bow, the straight short lines of the jacket and the curved lines of stitching. Here's this staring young man again!

Now, she remembers. His name is Tommy Tompkins and she met him two months ago . . . he looks as though he might be glad to have her remember him . . . Cherie is feeling charitable to all the world partly because of this . . . velvet evening wrap with its shirred puffs pretending to be sleeves and its very wide fur collar.

She was right. He seems to be quite pleased that she remembered she had met him. Cherie's evening gown has the low back-decolletage that everyone is wearing now and is even smarter because of the shirring at the waist. Cherie had a problem a little while ago concerning Andy and Eustace. Where is that problem now?

Man's Muleishness Aggravated By Nagging, Dorothy Dix Asserts

Dorothy Dix Talks of the Futility of Nagging to Cure Bad Habits—Unconscious Cruelty of a Daughter-in-Law; Why It Would Be Folly to Marry a Girl Who Had Had an Affair With Married Man.

Dear Dorothy Dix—My husband read your article about nagging wives aloud to me and agreed with every word of it. But I ask you what a wife should do if her husband is untidy in his habits, drops his cigar ashes on the floor and all over his clothes? When a girl marries, she does not know a man's personal habits and it is frequently a cruel shock to her to find herself tied for life to a husband to whom cleanliness is unimportant, whereas it is of great importance to her.
—YOUNG WIFE.

Answer: If a wife did any good by nagging, I should be for it first, last and all the time. My objection to it is solely on the ground that it stirs up trouble, alienates a husband's affection and does no good.

I have never yet known nagging to correct a single bad habit in a man. On the contrary, there is something in it that rouses all of the obstinacy and muleishness that he possesses, and makes him set his back up and be darned if he'll give in.

I have known wives that nagged their husbands for 40 years about smoking and the men went on smoking. I have known wives who nagged their husbands about going out of evenings, night after night, week after week, month after month, and year after year, and the husbands continued to put on their hats as soon as dinner was over, and the last sound that they heard as they slammed the door behind them was their wives' voices pitched on the same key of complaint. I have known wives who told their husbands every time they came in the house about hanging up their hats, and they continued dropping them in the first handy chair. And so on, ad infinitum.

If nagging reformed husbands, I would advise wives to go to it, tooth and nail, hammer and tongs, but it doesn't. It is just a waste of breath and energy and a promoter of discord and friction. So why not abolish it and try a new method? Of course, husbands have plenty of aggravating ways that get upon their wives' nerves. Nobody will deny that. And it is certainly a disillusioning thing to a delicate, refined, dainty woman to find herself married to a man who is, as they say in Pinafore, "a very imperfect ablutioner," and who is slovenly about his dress.

For if a sloppy, untidy woman is repulsive to a man, a sloppy, untidy husband is even more unattractive to a woman. There is small choice between kissing a woman with cold cream on her face and a man with a three-day stubble of beard on his, and no allure in either proceeding.

But after a wife has called her husband's attention about a million times to the fact that cleanliness is next to godliness, and he still shies at a safety razor and has hydrophobia at the sight of the bathtub, what's the good of fighting over the same old battle every day, and a battle in which she invariably gets licked?

Why not try some other tactics, since nagging does no good? I knew a woman who confronted exactly the same problem that you do. Troubled Wife, and the way she dealt with it was by taking all of the clothes that her husband had worn during the day out of the room as soon as he had gone to bed, and substituted clean linen and a freshly pressed suit and newly blackened shoes for the ones he pulled off.

It was some trouble, of course, but it was less wear and tear on her nerves than having an argument about it, and, of course, the husband didn't object, because it was just as easy for him to put on the clean clothes as the soiled ones. It is laziness that makes both men and women sloppy about their clothes.

You will also find that it calls for less expenditure of nervous force to sweep up your husband's cigar ashes and pick up his papers and his towels after him than it does to nag him about doing it himself.

I am not condoning husband's shortcomings. I am just pointing out to wives the folly of beating themselves against a stone wall. For you have to take a husband as he is, and make the best of him on that basis. You can't change him.
—DOROTHY DIX.

Dear Miss Dix: I love my daughter-in-law and I adore her little baby, but she will not let me take the baby out, though she lets her own mother take it whenever she wants to. This nearly breaks my heart, because as the child gets older he will not be allowed to know that I am related to him. I do not tell my son about this because he loves me dearly and he would be very much offended with his wife if he knew that she treated me this way. Please tell me what to do.
—A HURT MOTHER.

Answer: You are a very wise and good woman not to go to your son with any complaint of his wife, because you don't want to make trouble between them. His happiness is your happiness and you can best assure that by not pointing out to him his wife's faults.

If your daughter-in-law is a sensible, broad-minded woman, why not have a frank talk with her and tell her how dear to you is your son's little son, and how much you want the child to love you, and to feel close to you, and that that can only come about through intimate contact with him in his early years?

Doubtless your daughter-in-law has never realised that she is preferring her mother to you. She just turns the child over instinctively to her mother because she is in the habit of deferring to her, and thinking she is the authority on every subject.

But certainly a great many women do their children and their husband's people both a great wrong by assuming that their children belong to their people and are closer to them than they are to the father's people. Many children grow up scarcely knowing their father's family and thereby miss many advantages that they otherwise have.

And it a cruel thing to cut a woman out of the joy of holding her son's first-born in her arms.
—DOROTHY DIX.

Dear Dorothy Dix: I have been going with a young lady for quite a while and hoped to marry her, but I have found out recently that she has had an affair with a married man and almost broke up his home. This man's wife told me the sordid story, and how she and her children had suffered, and I am thankful I have found out in time. A woman who could do all of this to another woman and to helpless little children is without a heart, and God pity a heartless woman! Do you not think I am right in thinking I have made an escape in not marrying this girl?
—PAUL.

Answer: If I were a man, I should not care to marry a girl who had an affair with a married man, because she must be either a fool or a gold-digger, or else had been so deeply in love with him that she has given all the treasure of her heart to him, and has nothing left to give another man.

Any girl who has a love affair with a married man risks her own good name and does a desperate wrong to her sister woman and to that woman's little children. If she does this just for the sake of the kick she gets out of a flirtation, she is an idiot. If a girl has an affair with a married man for the money she can get out of him, she is as bad as the robber who loots a home. But if a girl has an affair with a married man because she loves him so much that she is powerless to resist him, and lays her own dignity and conscience at his feet, it is a passion so great that it burns out her very soul and there is nothing left but cinders and ashes in her heart.

So I shouldn't care for any married man's leavings, if I were a man.
—DOROTHY DIX.

Herbert Operetta Brings Back Days Of French Regime

The setting of "Naughty Marietta" Victor Herbert's operetta booked for presentation at the Memorial auditorium under auspices of the Woman's Forum, Monday evening, October 6, as the first of four benefit attractions for the forum season, is laid in New Orleans in the picturesque period of the French regime.

The date is 1750 and the life and characteristics of that age are brought back to life by the musical production of Victor Herbert. The story of the operetta is as follows:

Story of Operetta

The king of France has sent a number of beautiful girls to that city, each one bearing a casket containing a gift from the king. It is designed that these girls shall become the wives of the settlers.

A charming young Italian lady of rank, the Naughty Marietta of the play, smuggles herself into the group in order to avoid a marriage with an old nobleman whom she dislikes. Upon arrival she escapes and hides herself. She is found by Captain Dick, an American officer, and they are very much attracted to each other.

The captain with his friend, Sir Harry Blake, and their company of soldiers are bound to secure the capture of a great pirate chief, who really turns out to be Etienne, a man of standing, and son of the lieutenant governor of the province.

The opera opens in the Place D'Armes. At the rise of the curtain it is dawn. The sky shows crimson and gold. Beggars are asleep at the fountain, and the music is soft and low. The night watchman enters. Beggars bestir themselves. The lamplighter comes in and extinguishes the lights, and then, as day breaks, the flower girls come upon the stage singing their songs and offering their flowers for sale. All at once the place is a scene of action. Peddlers, soldiers, quadroons, Indians, come into the scene. All are eagerly looking forward to the coming of the casquette girls. With this group is Lizette, the outstanding comedienne. Captain Dick and his men arrive, and Marietta is discovered hiding in the fountain. Etienne has designs upon Marietta and for protection she is dressed as a boy and entrusted to the care of Rudolfo, an Italian proprietor of a marionette show. With the inevitable conflict between the two men interested in the same girl the action takes its way.

Colorful Period

It culminates in the last act when the duplicity of Etienne is discovered and when Marietta and Captain Dick really find that they are in love with each other.

In the meantime, great excitement and many complications are caused when Etienne decides to sell his girl, Adah, at the quadroon ball. The dramatic action rises to great heights. Captain Dick buys the girl really for the purpose of freeing her, but this makes Marietta angry. She promises to marry Etienne and as the moment for the wedding arrives it is discovered that Etienne and his followers are ready the pirates and the whole scene is thrown into an uproar. Swords flash, the music increases in volume and a tremendous ensemble dramatizes a thrilling denouement.

No period in early American history was more colorful than 1750, and no place more attractive than the New Orleans of that day. It is not strange that Victor Herbert was inspired to write one of his greatest works.

Mothers are certainly growing more rational as the modern age has pushed away fancy for fact. Can you imagine the mother of the little girl shown above saying that she knows her little girl is just average, just like other little girls of her age?

Mary Elizabeth Little is well named, for though she weighs as much as she should at her age, she is small. She has blue eyes which will probably remain that way, and light wavy hair that will grow dark as the years pass. You see, she is slated to be a sort of brunet and no one must be disappointed.

Mary Elizabeth is the only child in the family of Dr. and Mrs. J. A. Little of 2006 Taft street. She is 1½ years old. Dr. and Mrs. Little have been residents of Wichita Falls for nearly two years, coming here from Fort Worth.

NEW YORK G. O. P. HOPES TO WIN

Jew Pitted Against Smith For Metropolis' Vote

Editor's Note: Following is the fourth of a series of dispatches written by Raymond Clapper of the United Press Washington staff who is making a tour of all the major political battlegrounds to report trends in the presidential campaign. Clapper is a political writer of long experience at the national capital and his dispatches present an unprejudiced view of conditions as he finds them.

By RAYMOND CLAPPER

NEW YORK, Sept. 28. (UP)—Republican leaders here expect to strike at Governor Smith's large New York City majorities by nominating Attorney General Ottinger of this city for governor. He is a Jew, the first to be offered for such a high office in this state, and Republican leaders expect his candidacy, if it materializes at the state Republican convention opening at Syracuse Friday, to make a powerful impress on the heavy Jewish vote in New York City.

It is New York City which has elected Governor Smith four times. He has never carried more than a handful of upstate counties, depending for his tremendous majorities upon the city vote which has a heavy Jewish strain.

The fact is that Republicans, regarding New York as absolutely vital to Smith, are counting upon Ottinger to carry the burden of the fight in Smith's city strongholds. Hoover is strong upstate and is expected to carry the upstate counties easily. In New York City, however, he is too dry to be popular. Charles D. Hilles, Republican national committeeman, makes no secret of his difficulties in this wet territory. He has never been enthusiastic for Hoover and fought him hard before his nomination.

Senator Uncertain

The senatorial nomination is uncertain with Alanson B. Houghton, ambassador to Great Britain and former congressman, leading.

Republicans feel optimistic, supported by some sentiment in Wall street against a change of administrations at Washington, a feeling that Republican administration means prosperity, and some feeling that while Smith has been a good governor he might not fit into the White House so well.

When Governor Smith comes back to the state Oct. 1, to attend the Democratic state convention at Rochester, he will find the opposition just launched upon a vigorous campaign and in a confident mood. However, New York has seen Smith come through with a final sweep too often to place many bets at this time that he will lose New York.

Furthermore, if the attacks of Mrs. Willebrandt continue, the Republicans will be seriously weakened in New York, especially in the city where they must cut into Smith to have any chance at all. Her attacks have caused general sympathy for Smith, so much that Hilles and Mrs. Charles H. Sabin, Republican national committee woman, have this week appealed strongly for tolerance on the Republican side.

Rather See Defeat

"I would rather see the Republican party go down to defeat in November than to win as a result of religious intolerance," said Mrs. Sabin. Both she and Hilles hope that Hoover will do something to stop the woman assistant attorney general.

In fact, the silence of Hoover and the attitude of his campaign manager, Work, who said he had not read her speeches, are creating much ill will for them in New York. Neither has been popular among Republicans here and their apparent inclination now to grind along silently while their official supporters like Mrs. Willebrandt go about the country arousing prejudice is resented among many of their party. In fact unless something is done to correct the situation, the Republicans may wake up the morning of Nov. 7 to find that Governor Smith had carried New York state along with a Republican gubernatorial candidate.

This Lady Could Not Do Her Housework. Finally a Friend Advised Cardui Which Helped Her

Brinkley, Ark.—In telling how she had been helped by taking Cardui when in ill health about four years ago, Mrs. T. M. Davis, of this city, recently wrote:

"I was very weak and run-down, simply dragged around.

"I was not able to do my housework on account of that tired, miserable feeling.

"I suffered with my back. I could hardly turn over at night, and I would feel so tired and worn when I got up in the morning. My head and down the back of my neck ached so.

"A friend advised me to take Cardui. By the time I had taken one bottle, I was better, but I kept on taking it, and when I had taken three bottles, I was doing my work and feeling fine. I was in good health.

"I have taken Cardui since then. It sure helps me."

TOAD RACES

Old Rip to Enter Eastland Fair Derby

EASTLAND, Texas, Sept. 28. (UP)—Old Rip, Eastland's famous horned toad who spent 31 years sleeping in the cornerstone of the county courthouse, is going to have a chance to show that he can keep up with this modern age of speed.

Rip, who has been feted and gazed upon by everyone from Texas to President Coolidge, has been entered in the horned toad races which will feature the Eastland county fair here today and tomorrow.

The races were modeled after the terrapin derbies, now popular in Oklahoma.

Parole Talk for Killers Continues

CHICAGO, Sept. 28. (UP)—Controversy over the possibility of parole for Nathan Leopold Jr., and Richard Loeb, serving life terms in Joliet prison for the "thrill murder" of young Bobby Franks, became more involved today.

Loeb and Leopold have served five years of a sentence of life for murder and a 99-year sentence for kidnaping.

The statement of Hinto G. Clabaugh, chairman of the Illinois parole board, that, through an error in error in commitment papers, Loeb and Leopold would be eligible for parole in five years, was met today by Warden Elmer J. Green of Joliet prison, who declared the two slayers will not be eligible for parole until they have served 53 years.

"The law specifically states that the parole board cannot consider the case of a man sentenced to life until he has served 20 years of his sentence," the warden said.

X-RAY CURE IN CRIME LIKELY

Specialists Agree Brains of Criminal Abnormal

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Sept. 28. (INS)—The X-ray may reveal new and heretofore unthought of methods and principles in the treatment of criminals.

This was the opinion expressed by a majority of the delegates attending the annual convention of the X-ray specialists here today.

The opinions centering about defects of the brain as affecting a person's actions digressed from the subject of the diseased brain to those which were disintegrated because of some blow or sudden shock.

Dr. William A. Evans, Detroit, today showed graphically that the brains of criminals were abnormal, proving that they were really diseased.

Graphs were shown by Dr. Temple Fay of the University of Pennsylvania, on which he pointed out the part of the brain which, being disintegrating, that would cause criminal tendencies.

Dr. Fay agrees with Clarence Darrow, noted criminal lawyer, that many criminals are sick and should be treated as sick persons.

The general consensus of opinion, however, is that, although the X-ray may be used to discover the nature of the treatment needed, it cannot be used successfully to reveal whether a man is a criminal or not.

"If the X-ray could reveal whether a man is a criminal or not, there is nothing that can be done about it," says Dr. E. H. Skninner of Kansas City, president of the American Roentgen society.

"There is no cure," he added. "Whether a man is mean by birth or environment or by a blow on the head does not affect society if he commits a crime. He must be put away in any case."

In an interview Dr. Fay pointed out that a blow on the head had changed many men from loving, affectionate types to brutes with no sympathy or kindness.

Ohio Republicans Launch Campaign

COLUMBUS, Ohio, Sept. 28 (AP)—Ohio Republicans, formally launching their state campaign here today with an old fashioned rally, heard Gov. Alfred E. Smith characterized as "the great promiser"; Herbert Hoover held up as the "friend of the farmer" and pledges made to "shake up" the state public utilities commission.

More than 4,000 persons heard Secretary of Labor James J. Davis call Governor Smith "the great promiser," denounce the aims of the "wets" and reveal that unemployment is passing away, crediting his party with this accomplishment.

The secretary touched on immigration, telling how restriction of immigrants has benefited the country.

"Tammany does not like restriction," he said and he predicted that if Smith were elected, the bars against immigration would be lowered at once, with hordes of cheap labor flooding the country again.

Senator Simeon D. Fess called Hoover "the acknowledged peer of any statesman in America or Europe," and said he is, confident Hoover will do for agriculture what he has done for industry.

OKLAHOMA CITY, Sept. 28. (UP)—A six month leave of absence from the state penitentiary was given Eugene P. White, Sulphur baker, under five years sentence for violation of state banking laws, by Governor Johnston today.

CLAUDEL TELLS VIEW ON DEBT

Ambassador Doubts U. S. Will Cancel Claims

PARIS, Sept. 28.—On the eve of leaving for Washington to return to his post as French ambassador to the United States, Paul Claudel today revealed that he entertained no hope whatsoever that the United States would annul the inter-allied war debts.

"I am certain that the United States will never annul the inter-allied debts," he asserted in an interview.

"If one were to ask an American whether he thought the inter-allied debts should be annulled the reply probably would be something like this: 'Why annul the debts when I am obliged to pay such heavy taxes? The United States had heavy losses in the war, too, and wasn't it we who struck the final decisive blow which ended the war?'

"And his answer would be justified. France musn't look forward to the annulment of the debts."

Ambassador Claudel admitted that his task in Washington in 1929 would be "particularly difficult" on account of the fact that France's $400,000,000 debt to the United States for war supplies falls due on Aug. 29 of that year.

"I have held many conversations upon this matter with Premier Poincaire and Foreign Minister Briand, and I can assure you that France is making all necessary preparations to meet this obligation," he added.

The French statesman is leaving Sunday aboard the French cruiser Duquesne, which is going to the United States by way of Guadeloupe. He will arrive in Washington on Oct. 20.

Al Smith Shows Crippled Veteran How Game of Checkers Is Played

ST. PAUL, Minn., Sept. 28 (AP).—Governor Smith, Democratic presidential nominee, held up departure of his special train today to play a game of checkers with a war veteran at the Veterans hospital near Fort Snelling.

Before departing at noon for Milwaukee, where he speaks tomorrow night, the governor visited patients at the hospital, and there espied Patrick Meehan and Charles Mickel deep in a game of checkers. After watching the latter win, the governor said:

"Get out. You lost, Pat. I'll play the champion."

Mickel got an early advantage, capturing three of the governor's men, including a king, in one move, while his distinguished opponent voiced his disgust in his own playing.

But in a few minutes the governor had turned the tables, did some even more effective jumping himself while cameras clicked and wound up victor when his four remaining men cornered Mickel's single survivor.

SHERIFFS PICK SAN ANTONIO

Harris County Officer Elected President

AUSTIN, Sept. 28. (INS)—San Antonio was selected as the 1929 convention city for the Texas Sheriffs association at the organization's 50th annual convention here today. San Antonio got 26 votes to El Paso's 22. Attractive wine lists from Juarez cafes failed to have the desired effect upon the peace officers.

After electing T. A. Binford, sheriff of Harris county, as the association's president for the coming year, R. E. McWilliams, sheriff of Runnels county, was elected vice president, and R. E. Goodfellow, clerk in the comptroller's department, secretary.

Goodfellow succeeds Miss L. M. Kirk of Austin, who has been secretary for the past 17 years.

An economy idea long used in foods now applied to soap

KWIKSOLV has taught women a new way to judge soap. One that you will want to adopt in your buying, too. Kwiksolv is soap in condensed form . . . a Palmolive triumph. Just as 60% water is removed in condensing milk, so we now remove 57% air, 20% moisture, from soap. The result is that in one 25c package of Kwiksolv you get over 1½ pounds. That's 2⅓ times as much as would be possible if Kwiksolv were not condensed. Think of the saving!

Because condensed, Kwiksolv cleans with uncanny speed. A special water-softening agent is included to hasten still more its cleansing action. Thus the soap is left free to do soap's big job, which is to clean.

Condensed soap will win you as a dirt-remover. Badly stained clothes, the soil-line of cuffs and collars, Kwiksolv brings these to gleaming whiteness with a speed that will be new to you. Use this condensed soap just as you would any other: for dishes, cleaning, laundry. It keeps your hands soft and white, powerful detergent though it is.

Now you needn't be out of soap "every few minutes." The Kwiksolv package lasts and lasts. The savings it brings are too great to be ignored. And the way it lightens your work will delight you. At all grocers'.

Our laboratories regard Kwiksolv as their greatest triumph in soap-making

The Day Book of a New Yorker

By GRANT DIXON

NEW YORK, Sept. 28—A Broadwayite who knows all his electric signs, but who never misses anything out of the ordinary, said to his cabby the other night as the traffic lights stopped them:

"Do you see this cab to our right? Did you notice that it is a white cab and has a Potomac telephone number painted on it? That's a Washington cab. That's unusual. I wonder what it's doing here."

The New York cabby forthwith spake across the narrow gap between the vehicles like this:

"Hey! Buddy! Whatcher doin' here?"

"I'm from Washington," said the other cabby, cheerfully, apparently flattered by any attention at all, especially from the profession. "I just wanted to come to New York, and so I came. I picked up fares all the way and here I am."

The New York cabby's fare noted that the Washington cabby also had a fare and remarked upon it. He asked if the Washington cabby were not likely to get into trouble for hauling persons about New York without a New York license.

"Don't worry, chief," the New York cabby answered. "I guess a guy like that will take care of himself."

The New York cabby's fare noted the Washington cab here two days later, hauling some kind of fare around. He cannot swear, of course, that it was not a Washington fare brought to this city several days before and then headed for Washington.

"Stage Row" would be an appropriate name for the rows of benches that line both sides of the walk leading into Madison Square park from Madison avenue and Twenty-fourth street.

Only occasionally will one see a woman seated there between the hours of 4 and 6 in the afternoon. It is not that a woman wouldn't care to sit there, but simply because during those hours the seats are occupied by men of all ages and description.

Obviously the fascination held forth by these benches is that they serve as a sort of reviewing stand for those lucky enough to obtain the seats, due to the fact that many of the girls employed in the large office buildings on Madison avenue and vicinity take this route through the park toward the subways, els and surface cars to get home.

Many of the girls apparently are unaware of the numerous eyes fastened upon them as they play the part of the parade. Others, however, are very well aware, and therefore put on their best manikin performance for the benefit of the gallery.

A middle-aged man with a lusty baritone voice was singing on the sidewalk of one of the winding little streets in the village. He sang "Sweet Rosie O'Grady" and "Russian Lullaby," and a shower of nickels and dimes rained down upon him. He picked them up and sauntered away still singing. He looked like a truck driver out of work.

"That's a nice way to make a living if you have a voice and don't know what to do with it," said an onlooker. "People appreciate the picturesqueness of the street singer and are quite willing to pay him their nickels and dimes for entertainment.

"Encouraged, I suppose, by the street singer's success, a man with a saxophone invaded our street one evening last week and played half a dozen loud tounes. He got no money at all, but he almost got a shower of milk bottles and vegetables. It may be that a lot of people were just revenging themselves on some saxophone player who kept them awake of nights!"

Dock Strikers Blast Homes of 'Volunteers'

SYDNEY, N. S. W., Sept. 28. (UP) Attempts were made tonight, apparently by striking waterside workers, to destroy the homes of two foremen employed by a Melbourne stevedoring firm.

Terrific explosions damaged the fronts of the houses. No one was injured except a child, who suffered slight cuts.

A protective force of 2,000 special constables is expected to be encamped at Port Adelaide, where clashes have occurred between the strikers and volunteer workers, by tomorrow night.

Under Which Flag?

INDEPENDENCE in political thought and action is a fine thing, but in these irrational times it is somewhat refreshing to find a state official who can take his stand without apologies, explanations or alibis. State Treasurer W. Gregory Hatcher seems to be the man, if he is correctly quoted by press associations.

"The Democratic party of Texas has a uniform on me and I am going to wear it," the state treasurer is quoted as saying.

Now what more could a state official say? He is either going to wear the uniform of the party that put him in office, or he is going to don the regalia of the enemy. He must either "soldier" for the principles for which his party stands or desert to the cause of the party he has previously opposed.

To Treasurer Hatcher there appears only one course. He is a Democrat and the issues and personalities of the present campaign are of passing moment compared to that designation. His loyalty goes to his party, and correctly so. The Democratic party has falsely enlisted the devotion of many brilliant and good men in the past if its principles are less important every four years than personal prejudice against the man who is its nominee.

Paying for Fire Losses

WICHITA FALLS can afford to give serious attention to the lessons of Fire Prevention week to be observed here Oct. 7-13. As a matter of community safety and welfare, we should seek to prevent fires; but probably more important to most of us, we should join such work because each purchaser of fire insurance helps pay the cost of his neighbor's loss.

When John Doe's house next door burns down, he has our sympathy, our hope that he carries insurance, but little of our reckoning as to whether or not Mr. Doe perhaps by carelessness has added something to our own annual living expense. According to leaders of the local fire prevention program, Wichita Falls pays something like $700,000 annually for fire insurance, although it enjoys a 15 per cent credit on its record for low losses.

The careless, negligent and indifferent are to blame for most fires, and the amount of loss in these blazes in a large part determines the rate others pay for insurance. A loss of its good record credit would cost Wichita Falls residents $200,000 or more a year. That's a considerable item worth thinking about during the year, as well as during the week of Oct. 7-13.

The Old Time Religion

FORTY-SIX years brought Wichita Falls from a village of a few score residents to the present city, and we have properly paid tribute during the last week to the men and women who have had a part in this building. Much has been said of their work and their accomplishments for the town, the physical hardships which they faced, and the natural difficulties which they surmounted to build a city here. All the praise and honor we can give should go to these early leaders, and it is in no spirit of disrespect that the Record News points out that the problems which face this city today are no less important nor difficult of solution than those of the days of covered wagons, cattle ranges and open saloons.

A few years should tell us if our program of agricultural diversification, colonization and improvement is to take the place we know it should. Less time than that should find a municipal government clear of debt and entered on a constructive program of city building. Industrial development and trade expansion should show huge gains if given the proper support. The oil industry should again be at its former peak of prosperity or more or less extinct.

Wichita Falls in the past has heaved itself along by its bootstraps through a citizenship united and determined for progress and growth. The problems today are different but it's quite likely they will be solved by the same methods as of old. And if the modern city has forgotten what built it, we can be thankful there are "old timers" left to preach and practice their doctrine of faith.

PRESENT IS GOOD ROADS AGE

The present era in the United States might aptly be called the "Age of Good Roads."

There has never been a country to which highways were so necessary or where the need has been so rapidly supplied.

Not a great many years ago the amount spent for building roads and maintaining them was negligible. Today it is one of the outstanding items in governmental budgets.

America has made an investment of hundreds of millions of dollars in providing highway facilities. And it is an investment that has paid dividends in attracting industries, residents and tourists.

URGE BAN ON TENT SHOWS

More and more there grows a sentiment to do everything possible under the law to prevent the coming of tent shows and carnivals to Clarendon. A move is under way to get a united effort among the business men to urge the application of a city law which will in effect prohibit this class of entertainment coming within the city limits of our town. Good crops always attract a flood of such attractions, and with them comes the fakir, the grafter and worse. They hurt business in all lines, they are often immoral and never uplifting, and within the fire limits are a potential fire hazard of no small magnitude. We can protect ourselves from such molestation, and it is the act of good citizenship to do so. Lend your support to their exclusion.

GOLF POPULARITY EXPLAINED

The ancient Scotch game of golf, once exclusively the pastime of the idle rich, has become enormously popular in the United States during the past decade. There is hardly a country town that does not boast at least one golf course; in the neighborhood of a big city one cannot drive two miles without passing two or three of them.

A number of reasons have been advanced for the game's sudden rise in popularity. It is a fine game, good exercise and excellent sport, and we Americans are an outdoors people; yet we have a hunch that the real reason for the game's growth in public favor has yet to be made manifest.

To our way of looking at it, that reason is simply this:

It gives the great American male a chance to dress up in the gaudiest colors he can possibly desire.

The Baffling Story of a Man Who Read of His Own Murder

By HERMAN LANDON

Copyright by G. Howard Watt — Serialized by Ledger Syndicate

Synopsis of Preceding Installment

Thomas Dean, well-known writer of mystery novels, has buried his past in his present success. No one knows that he is Paul Forrester, who as a youngster, had been mixed up in a chorus girl's breach-of-promise suit, and had also figured in a self-defense killing out West. As a result of the latter he bears a scar on the right side of his neck. Dean, therefore, is dumfounded to read in the morning paper the death-bed confession of Paul Forrester's murder made by Martin Lamont, western business man on a visit to New York, in which the dying man repents his five-year-old crime. Matters are further complicated by a visit from a strange lady, mysterious Ilie Viola Gray, who tries to connect one of Dean's stories with Forrester's deed.

Miss Gray, the Mysterious

"It made such an impression on me I could think of nothing else for days." Miss Gray went on in enraptured tones. "I could picture Jimmie Ferguson as he rushed out of the cabin to find a doctor. And that blizzard! It was so real it positively made me cold all over. And there was Jimmie Ferguson lost in it for days, not knowing whether he had left the man in the cabin dead or alive. How perfectly splendid he was through it all! I cried in sympathy with him. Honestly, Mr. Dean, didn't you take that scene from life?"

Dean gave her another keen look, then smiled. "That question doesn't leave much credit to my imagination, Miss Gray."

"But it was so real I don't see how you could have taken it out of your imagination."

"An author's chief task is to make the unreal seem real."

She pondered this for a moment. "It sounds dreadfully difficult, but I suppose that's so. Anyhow, Jimmie Ferguson is real to me. I shan't ever forget how he felt about the scar on his cheek, always trying to hide it, and always imagining that everybody was looking at it. I suppose a man in his position would feel just that way about it."

"Doubtless," said Dean noncommittally, almost certain now that there was a deeper purpose behind her questions. He was fervently wishing that he had consigned the manuscript of "Crossroads" to the flames. What an ass he had been to expose Paul Forrester's secret with such a reckless fidelity to facts! He thought he had disguised the truth but the disguise was too thin. He had merely shifted the scar from Paul Forrester's neck to Jimmie Ferguson's cheek, and the rest was little more than a juggling with names and places. Strange that no one had seen through such shallow dissimulation before. He was almost sure now that this trifling chit of a girl, as she appeared to be at first glance, had seen through it.

"I'm afraid I am boring you with all these silly questions," she answered contritely, then rose and came closer to where he sat. "You have destroyed an illusion of mine, Mr. Dean," she added with a pout. "I have been imagining that Jimmy Ferguson was you."

"Indeed?" His eyes narrowed a trifle as he saw her at close range. The child receded into the background as the woman came forward. She seemed more mature now, and there was a furtive glint of shrewdness in the depths of her eyes. "I can't believe it," he added. "Illusions don't die so easily. They generally survive us—some of them do, at least. If you have taken a fancy to Jimmy Ferguson, you ought to be thankful that he is made of sturdier stuff than flesh and bones."

"That's a charming way of putting it." She smiled brightly and the candor of her smile clashed oddly with his new conception of her. "Let me come again, won't you? And do call me up when you are in town and take me out for tea somewhere. I'll teach you the latest steps and bore you to death with a lot of foolish questions. That's a threat and a promise in one."

She laughed gayly, and in a moment she was on her way. Dean, standing at the front door, saw her drive off in a racy little roadster she had parked just outside the gate. He shook his head bewilderedly as he re-entered the house. He did not know which was the more puzzling—Martin Lamont's confession or the personality of little Miss Gray. Why had she come, and what had she accomplished? Did she suspect that he was Paul Forrester and, if so, what did she propose to do about it? What did Paul Forrester mean to her? Dean didn't know what to think of her. The mind inside her pretty little head seemed to work in strange ways, a veritable Pandora's box of surprises.

But the dominant impression she had left with him was that of an adventuress treading dark and mysterious paths.

Late in the afternoon he instructed Mrs. Blossom to pack his bag, announcing that he was going to New York and might not be back that night.

The House on Hudson Street

As he rode into the city Dean determined that his first step should be a visit to the old family home on Hudson street. It was obviously the hub of the whole mystery, for it was there the crime mentioned in Lamont's confession had been committed. At any rate, it seemed the logical starting point for the investigation he intended to conduct.

Repeatedly he told himself that he must keep an open mind until he could learn the true state of affairs from first-hand inquiry. He could not hope to discover much, for five and a half years had elapsed since the commission of the crime of which the dying man had spoken, and time had doubtless obliterated whatever clews had existed. Yet he felt he would be in no mood for either work or rest until the tantalizing riddle had been solved, and it was just possible that the gloomy nooks in the house on Hudson street would yield up a hint that might shed some light on the mystery. In the meantime, he tried to dismiss from his mind the perplexing phases of Lamont's confession. The whole thing was so incongruous; it caused his reason to shrivel up.

He stepped from the suburban train, and then another difficulty presented itself. He had not visited the old house on Hudson street since he closed its doors more than five years ago, and to do so now might result in complications. With a lack of acumen characteristic of many in his profession, he had neither rented the property nor offered it for sale, although for sentimental reasons he had paid the taxes on it through an attorney. With this slight exception there was no link that connected Thomas Dean with the ownership of the place. It would be humorous, though embarrassing, if any one should question his right to enter the place. Too, there was the ever present chance, given added importance since Viola Gray's call on him that morning, that some one might recognize him as Paul Forrester. But that, he promptly decided, was a hazard he would have to risk.

As he passed a news stand in the Pennsylvania station he stopped and stared at a photograph conspicuously displayed on the front page of an afternoon newspaper. Dropping a coin on the stand, he snatched up a paper and walked on. The photograph was of himself as he had appeared several years ago, and evidently it had been exhumed from the newspaper's files, where it had reposed since it was first printed at the time of his affair with Beulah Vance. Dean studied the picture as he walked out of the station. At first he was impressed only by the great change his appearance had undergone since the picture was taken; then the significance of its republication at this date struck him with stunning force.

While crossing the street, unaware that he was risking life and limb in the swirl of trucks and taxicabs, he ran his eyes down the column of print accompanying the photograph. It seemed that an enterprising reporter, desiring to settle all doubts concerning the identity of the man whom Martin Lamont had confessed to murdering, had taken 12 photographs from the newspaper's files, all representing the likeness of men around the age at which Paul Forrester had been at the time of the murder, and these he had taken to Lamont's bedside and requested the dying man to identify his victim. Without hesitation, Lamont had selected the photograph of Paul Forrester, thus disposing of all possible doubts in the matter.

It was the final straw. Dean, blinking his eyes at the sunlight, asked himself if he was going mad. Or was the whole outside world in a suddenly acquired state of dementia? Trying to get a grip on his senses, he entered a hotel, sat down in the lobby, and in a spirit of grim fortitude read the article from beginning to end. Until now it had seemed possible that Lamont had made a mistake in the name of his victim, but this latest development shattered that theory to bits. It had been far-fetched, anyhow, for the collateral facts had pointed unmistakingly to Paul Forrester as the dead man. Now the web of perplexities was drawn into an inextricable knot.

The dying man had identified him, Thomas Dean, alias Paul Forrester, as the man he had murdered in the Hudson street house five and a half years ago. It was a bit uncanny; Dean's mind turned into a lump as he contemplated the situation. His repeated assurance to himself that there was still a mistake somewhere did not seem sufficient.

The concluding paragraph of the article stated that Lamont's death-bed confession had solved the mystery of the disappearance of Paul Forrester, who, it was recalled, had dropped out of sight and become forgotten shortly after a showgirl had instituted suit against him for breach of promise. It was also mentioned that the police and the district attorney were at work verifying the various statements made by Lamont, although there appeared to be no doubt of their accuracy.

In a sort of dogged humor, Dean stuffed the paper into his pocket and walked from the hotel, but not until he had given the picture on the first page another close glance. There was very little likelihood, he thought, of his being recognized as Paul Forrester. True, there was a hazy resemblance, but it would take a keen pair of eyes to see it, and there was no reason why any one should look for it. It was gratifying, for on this whole he preferred to remain Thomas Dean for the present.

He jumped into a taxi and gave the driver the address on Hudson street. He had promised his mind a rest until he should make some tangible discovery on which to base his inquiries, but the loose ends of the mystery kept dangling teasingly before his mental vision. This man Lamont evidently was under the impression that he had committed a murder in the old Hudson street house. The dying man's conviction on that point was apparently so strong that he had sought to ease his conscience by making a formal confession. So far there was nothing incongruous about the matter. Lamont might have been laboring under a dying man's hallucination, or the murder might have been actually committed; in either event, up to this point his statements were susceptible to logical interpretation. But Lamont had gone further; he had given his victim's name as Paul Forrester, and he had supported the identification of the murdered man with a staggering mass of names, dates and circumstances.

Yet, even so far it was possible to explain matters without stretching one's imagination to the snapping point. Lamont might, through some queer mental aberration, have been mistaken in his victim's identity. The corroborative incidents could possibly be explained in the light of what psychologists called association of ideas, granting that Lamont had heard of Paul Forrester or met him personally. Such a hypothesis was at least within the range of reason. Dean had seen and talked with thousands of people in his life, many of whom he had completely forgotten, and Lamont could have been one of them.

But the dying man had not stopped there; he had put the final touch of grotesquerie to the matter by positively identifying Paul Forrester's likeness from among a dozen photographs of men of similar ages. No amount of sophistry and specious reasoning could evade that argument.

Dean's mind had rounded the circle of incongruities when the taxi stopped. He paid the driver, then lingered on the sidewalk while he contemplated the weather-bitten stucco front of the old house, consisting of three stories and attic, with three dormer windows projecting from a steeply sloping roof. It was more than five years since he had set foot within, and a queer hesitancy, amounting almost to a dread, seemed to hold him back. To disturb the ghostly memories slumbering in there would be akin to an act of profanation. He could picture the quaint furnishings of the rooms, arranged in accordance with his father's peculiar tastes, a heterogeneous collection gathered from many strange lands. He wondered if the large stuffed trout was still hanging over the mantel, and what had become of Caesar, the mongrel pup with whom he had romped on the narrow strip of lawn in front of the house. Everywhere, from attic to cellar, he could visualize relics of intimate history.

A blue-coated officer at the door caught his eye, and the spell was broken. The profanation was already an accomplished fact, for it appeared that the police were conducting an investigation inside. He approached the guardian at the door, who brusquely inquired his business and interposed a stalwart form against further progress. It was odd to be treated like that at one's door, but Dean's mind was too full of other things to catch the humor of it. He was in a ticklish situation, of how was he to explain his right to enter without letting out the troublesome fact that his rightful name was Paul Forrester? He was pondering the problem when the door suddenly opened and a broad-shouldered man with astoundingly blue eyes came out so hurriedly that he all but ran into the novelist.

"Why, hello, Dean!" He exclaimed briskly, checking his catapulting exit.

Dean congratulated himself on his luck. Lieutenant Shane and he had been friends for two years. The detective, a strangely many-sided man, often helped him with technical points in connection with his mystery novels. Shane was not only one of the shrewdest men on the force, but an obliging and likeable sort as well.

"Looking for material again, I suppose," remarked the detective, unconsciously supplying the very subterfuge that had been on the tip of Dean's tongue when he encountered the policeman. "Well, you've come to the right place." Hurriedly, as he did all things, from consuming a sandwich to catching an express train, the lieutenant looked at his watch. "Just going out for a bite. Come along and I'll tell you about it."

Dean had no appetite, but he accepted the invitation, and they went to a restaurant a short distance down the street.

T. S. T. A. TO HOLD MEETING

Superintendents Meet in San Antonio

Special to The Record News

STAMFORD, Texas, Sept. 27.—The section of the superintendence of the Texas State Teachers association will hold its fifth annual meeting in San Antonio, Nov. 30, according to N. S. Holland, Stamford, president of the organization. All public school superintendents of the state are urged to be present. The object of this section of the T. S. T. A. is to encourage and to undertake the scientific study of education, especially in regard to problems of administration and supervision of public schools, to discuss these problems at regular meetings and to publish reports of this section's committees on research.

One of the special features of the meeting will be the report from the research committee on its major project for 1928, "A Texas Diagnostic Arithmetic Test." This study has involved the best of a year's work of Chairman Leonard Power and an expenditure of nearly $2,000. Dr. Rollo G. Reynolds of Teachers' college, Columbia university, will address the body on a subject of importance to people engaged in school administration, that of school publicity. His researches are well known.

The program follows:

1. "How This Section May Aid the State Department of Education," State Superintendent of Public Instruction S. M. N. Marrs, Austin.

2. "To What Extent May the School of Education, University of Texas, Assist This Section in Realizing Its Object," Dr. B. F. Pittenger, University of Texas, Austin.

3. Report from the research committee, "A Texas Diagnostic Arithmetic Test," Director Leonard Power, chairman of the research committee, district superintendent, and Miss Mary Thompson, both of the Dallas city schools.

a. The purpose of the tests.
b. The construction of the tests.
c. Giving and scoring of the tests.
d. Tabulating the scores and interpreting the results.
e. The future testing system for this section.

4. "Services Teacher Placement Committee May Render This Section," Prof. E. H. Farrington, North Texas State Teachers college, Denton.

5. Report of the research committee apropos second major study for this section." Director Leonard Power and members of his committee.

6. "School Publicity," Dr. Rollo G. Reynolds, professor of educational administration and principal Horace Mann Elementary school, Teachers' college, Columbia university, New York city.

7. Unassigned time—fifteen minutes will be allowed for questions to be asked Dr. Reynolds by those present who may be interested in school publicity.

Texas Pharmacists Push License Law

GALVESTON, Sept. 28. (AP)—A talk on the proposed pharmacy bill requiring a licensed pharmacist in every drug store, which failed to pass the last legislature, featured the opening session of Southeast Texas retail druggists, who began their annual meeting here today.

R. Emmett Morse, Harris county representative, who discussed the measure, said the bill failed to be sanctioned largely because of unwieldy amendments tacked to it by a committee.

He declared the law was needed to protect the public from illegitimate drug vendors who have no knowledge of pharmacy, and said it again would be introduced.

BONDS APPROVED

AUSTIN, Sept. 28. (AP)—Sewer bonds of the town of Dilley, in Frio county, aggregating $35,000 were approved today by D. L. Whitehurst, assistant attorney general.

A NICKEL'S WORTH

Alas, a nickel used to be
A quite substantial sum to me
When I was just a growing boy;
It opened many fields of joy.
And I felt it was Croesus Day,
If ten whole cents should come my way.

But now a boy's well planned request
Is for a dollar, at the best;
Perhaps the times have changed somewhat
Since I was just a little tot.
But had a dollar come to me
In eighteen hundred ninety-three,
I would have shouted, sung, and rolled,
Or from pure gladness, fainted cold!

Health and Diet Advice

By DR. FRANK McCOY
Author of "The Fast Way to Health"

Questions in Regard to Health and Diet Will Be Answered by Dr. McCoy, Who Can Be Addressed in Care of This Paper

Tuberculosis

The number of deaths from tuberculosis per thousand population is steadily decreasing each year. In 1912 the number of deaths per 100,000 was 120, and this number has gradually decreased until the latest censuses have shown a reduction to 97.7 per 100,000. This steady decrease in the number of deaths is probably due to improved sanitary measures that are now being employed throughout the world, and to a better understanding by the general public as to good foods.

The anti-tuberculosis societies have been of much value in spreading information about this disease and in teaching people to avoid becoming overly tired. It is likely that the number of deaths from this disease will be still further reduced as the information about how to build and maintain health becomes more popular.

From my personal experience in diagnosing and treating thousands of cases of tuberculosis, I have been forced to believe that the most common causes of tuberculosis are; first, an immovable diaphragm and a small chest capacity; second, becoming over tired, which lowers the resistance and permits the toxins to accumulate within the body; third, wrong eating, which permits the body to become seriously deficient in alkaline elements.

Tuberculosis of the lungs originates with foreign material which accumulates in the lungs of the sufferer. I do not believe that the bacillus of tuberculosis is a primary cause of this trouble, since I have seen many advanced cases where it has been impossible to find any trace of this bacillus.

A quick form of tuberculosis known as galloping consumption usually caused death between the first and third months. Those cases which recover usually settle into chronic tuberculosis.

This disease may lurk in any portion of the body, but is most frequently found in the lungs, usually beginning in the apex or upper lobe. The onset is quite gradual and there usually is a period of months or even years of a noticeable tendency to become easily tired. This condition, accompanied by a persistent cough and large quantities of mucus should arouse suspicion and one should immediately begin a process of strengthening the body.

Night sweats often occur in the earlier stages of the disease and a patient may feel as tired in the morning as when he retires.

Tuberculosis gives plenty of warning, and one who has a tendency to have this trouble should lose no time in attempting to overcome the condition.

In tomorrow's article I will give you the dietetic and hygienic measures which I have found most satisfactory in preventing the serious development of tuberculosis.

Questions and Answers

Question: H. A. asks: "Can you give me a little information about St. John's Bread?"

Answer: St. John's Bread is the common name for the fruit of the Carob tree. Although a tree in form, it is a species of legume and the fruit is shaped like a bean. The trees are very beautiful and are being used to some extent along the highways. They are very productive even in arid climates. The fruit imported from Europe is of a good quality and full of crude fibre. Large plantations are now being tried out in California and other parts of the United States. The fruit contains as high as 12 per cent of sugar. With the process of cultivation, it is likely that this fruit will become valuable. It can be made into a very good substitute for maple syrup.

Question:—Mrs. K. J. writes: "On three occasions during the past year I have been awakened from sleep with a numbness creeping over me. Have tried to call for help but could not move my lips, neither could I raise my hand or any part of my body for about a minute. I would appreciate it if you would inform me of the cause, and if there is danger of paralysis. I am 50 years old and weigh 180 pounds."

Answer: The numb attacks you have at night are probably caused from nervousness and would be classed under the name of hysteria. There is no reason for suspecting you are subject to paralysis because of this, but you certainly should have a good diagnosis made and study how to remove the cause of your nervousness.

Question: J. L. asks: "Can a loop in the colon be cured by dieting?"

Answer: A loop in the colon can be corrected through proper manipulative treatment, supplemented in some cases by certain electrical treatments. If these treatments are not taken we cannot expect diet to produce a cure, although one with a kinked or looped colon will certainly be in better health on a well-balanced diet than when eating haphazardly.

Football Games Feature Annual Spur Fair

Special to The Record News.

SPUR, Texas, Sept. 28.—The opening day of the Northwest Texas fair at Spur was the biggest in every way of any first day in the history of the association. The parade by the old-timers and the crowning of the queen of the flower show were interesting features of the morning. The American Legion football team of Stamford and the American Legion eleven of Spur played a 6 to 0 game in favor of Spur. Big rodeo stunts made up the afternoon free attractions, while a pageant staging 300 characters entertained in the evening.

Second day of the fair opened with a parade of Kent county school children and several hundred Kent county citizens. The game between the high school of Crosbyton and Spur football squads was the big event of the afternoon.

THE BOOK OF KNOWLEDGE — (411) OUR PRESIDENTS

Claes van Roosevelt, destined to be the grandfather of one of America's greatest presidents, came to America from the Netherlands in the middle of the seventeenth century. One of his sons, Theodore, married Martha Bullock of Georgia. Theodore Roosevelt, future president, was born in the house sketched above in East Twentieth street, New York City, Oct. 27, 1858.

By NEA Through Special Permission of the Publishers of The Book of Knowledge, Copyright, 1928-29.

The boy was delicate almost from birth. His father's wealth, however, provided private tutors and the opportunity of travel in Europe.

The young man showed a keen interest in natural history. His father built a gymnasium in which young Theodore worked hard to strengthen his frail body.

Theodore Roosevelt entered Harvard College in 1876 and was graduated with honors four years later. While in college he continued exercises to build up his body and was always fond of hunting, horseback riding and other outdoor sports. Soon after leaving college he married Miss Alice Lee of Boston and began the study of law.

DECATUR BAPTISTS CRUSH FIGHTING COYOTE ELEVEN, 25-0

PREPS BESTED BY COLLEGIANS

Mills Stars in Futile but Game Stand of Pack

By GORDON FULCHER

Fighting a losing battle from the first whistle to the last, the Wichita Falls high school Coyotes took a 25 to 0 trimming from Decatur Baptist college in their home debut Friday afternoon at Athletic park.

It wasn't a case of fighting but of being overpowered by a more formidable and experienced eleven. Coach Bud McCallum's men put up a real battle and despite their top-heavy defeat showed considerable improvement over their showing last week against Lawton high school.

Kenneth Mills, the ace of the Coyote machine, was the outstanding player on the team. The big fellow stopped many Decatur gains at the line and ripped off several nice gains through line plunges.

Other Coyote Stars

Pete Powell at end and fullback, Clarence Bains at end, Captain Black and Jud Bell showed considerable ability in their play.

Coach Penn Dixon's Indians have one of the most formidable and hardest working teams that the Coyotes will probably go against this season.

Hatch, Boley, and Elders tore through the Coyotes time after time for lengthy gains and long runs while Roach, Boyd, Liles and Spain shone in line play for the Indians.

Decatur received the ball on the opening kickoff and marched it straight through the Coyote line to the 1-yard line. The Wichita Falls line held when they were backed to the goal line. Mills stopped Boley at the line on the fourth down. Black kicked out of danger after receiving a bad pass from center.

Score in Second Period

After Hatch had made first down in two plays the Indians were held for downs and the ball went over. The Coyotes recovered a Decatur fumble of a punt in midfield and it looked that the Pack was headed straight for a touchdown, but with two failures at the line, and two incomplete passes the ball went over. The first period ended without a score.

The first Decatur score was made in the first few minutes of the second quarter on a straight march down the field. The Coyotes rallied at the goal line but Boley tore through for the touchdown.

Hatch scored the second touchdown before the end of the second half with another brilliant trip down the field.

Neither team scored in the third period. Both aggregations opened up passing games in the final quarter. The Pack completed several passes from Lee and Black to Hambrick but these rallies were quickly squelched by the rushing Indians. Long runs and accurate passes over the tired and beaten Wichita Falls team netted 13 points for the Indians in the last five minutes of the game. Lineup:

WICHITA FALLS (0)	Position	DECATUR (25)

Keep Your Money in Your Pockets

But Here's How Larry Dailey Picks Football Scores For Today

(Editor's Note—Larry Dailey, sports editor of The Record News, will forecast the winners and scores of all major football games in all sections of the country, every Saturday. For several seasons he has had success as a football prognosticator and last year as sports editor of the Tulsa, Okla., Evening World, picked about .800 winners throughout the season. He does not expect the scores to be correct, of course, merely giving them as a basis of the comparative strength of opposing teams, with an eye, however, of attaining as near the actual score as possible.)

HALL VICTOR IN FAST BOUT

More Than 8,000 See Auto Dealers' Show

By LARRY DAILEY
Record News Sports Editor

Well, you gotta hand it to the Wichita Falls Automobile Dealers association and Alexander Ross. They certainly put it over. It was a wow of a show that free grappling-boxing card last night at Eighth and Scott streets, and it was a mighty big crowd that saw the program, part of the Wichita Falls birthday celebration.

More than 8,000 persons must have been in that gathering. Mr. Ross had asked me to referee one of his boxing bouts. I tried to reach the ring from the office and after half an hour of futile milling gave it up, and staggered, weak and wan, into the Kemp hotel and saw the bouts from Mr. Joe Huchins' offices, thanks to the kindness of some of his kind people.

After fighting to reach the ring it seemed to me there were 8,000,000 grouped about, but I may have been prejudiced.

Cyclone Hall of Childress scored a technical knockout over Country Boy Owens in a corking mill. The end came in the sixth round of the scheduled eight-round ring windup when Owens, who had been battered to the floor in the previous round, failed to come out from his corner.

Hall Tires in Third

After the first round, which was about even, Hall shot a left to Owens' jaw that floored the local youngster, for a count of four as the bell rang. Owens was in good shape as he went to his corner, and forced the milling in the third round. Hall seemed tired in the last minute.

Owens made his greatest bid to win in the fourth. Hall was sent to his knees with a right to the chin but was up without a count. Owens was trying for a haymaker, but failed to land another direct punch.

The fifth was the beginning of the end for Owens. Blocking the Country Boy's efforts to land, he launched a terrific body attack. The ripping punches of the Childress socker into the midriff of Country Boy were landed with such telling effect that Owens was reduced to a state of only feeble defense. Then Hall sent Owens to the canvas, and the bell at three saved the Country Boy from a K. O. then. But so severe had been the punishment that he was unable to continue.

Owens claimed a foul, saying that one of the last punches that brought him down was on the groin. A doctor's examination is said to have substantiated that claim. The referee, however, saw no foul and as it is the third man's word and nobody else's in deciding boxing bouts, Hall is credited with a technical K. O.

From my high perch I was unable to determine what sort of a punch it was.

Country Boy, only a 17-year-old kid, made a gallant and excellent stand against a more experienced and somewhat heavier adversary.

Grapplers Draw

Matty Matsuda and Nick Kabaros wrestled 30 minutes without a fall. It was a gruelling and at times sensational go, with neither having perceptible advantage over that distance.

In a preliminary boxing bout Curly Robertson won the decision over Whirlwind Kelly in a fast and close mill. Curley thereby was awarded the Harry Katz medal, emblematic of the paperweight championship of West Texas.

R. E. Shepherd was master of ceremonies and broadcast the entire affair from the ring over KGKO. The lions club band played and the Electra Boy Scouts gave an Indian dance.

Collett and Van Wie Meet In Golf Finals

HOT SPRINGS, Va., Sept. 28. (UP)—Glenna Collett of Providence stands once more upon the threshold of a national golf championship.

Barring her way in the finals will be her old arch-enemy, Virginia Van Wie of Chicago, who today defeated Mrs. Dorothy Campbell Hurd of Philadelphia in the semi-final round 2 up.

Miss Collett defeated Mrs. G. H. Stetson of Philadelphia, 4 and 3.

INDIANS MEET VERNON TODAY

Improved Tribe Battles on Lions' Gridiron

After a week of conditioning the line that proved so weak against Electra High school, the Wichita Falls Junior college Indians are in good condition for the second skirmish of the season Saturday afternoon with Vernon on the Lions' home field.

Several plays which the Indians lacked in their tilt last week have also been perfected by Coach E. A. Baggett during the week's practice. Jimmy Harvey, first string quarterback, seems to be the class of the Redskin aggregation in receiving passes, while the greater part of the throwing will be handled by Olin Dickey.

Harvey has been the most dependable field general that Baggett has uncovered, in addition to being a punter of fair ability.

Weller at Fullback

Dickey will do the greater part of the punting and passing, though it is doubted that he will carry the ball to any extent.

John Weller, big fullback, is the most likely candidate as a starter, while Ray Mitchell will be Dickey's running mate at halfback.

Jake Castelberry, Tommy Hutcheson, Bill McMillan and Donald Penn, all of whom are dependable ball carriers, will no doubt get chances against the Lions.

Stephens Sure to Start

Gabbert Stephens, plucky end and ace of the Indian defense, is sure to start the game, while Howell will probably get the opening assignment on the other wing.

Bill Habern at guard and Capt. Ox Edmondson at tackle promise to be other shining lights in the Redskin wall.

The Indians will leave for Vernon Saturday morning and return to Wichita Falls Saturday night after the game. The probable starting lineup is as follows:

World Series Contending Clubs Have Abundance of Vet Hurlers

Pennock Ace of Yankee Staff While Cardinals Have Balanced Corps, With Benton Star of Giants

(This is the final of a series of articles in which Louis A. Dougher, Universal service baseball expert, discusses the merits of the teams which are contenders to figure in the world series.)

By LOUIS A. DOUGHER

NEW YORK, Sept. 28.—As pitching counts for most in a short series, those interested will do well to study closely the accompanying figures showing what the hurlers have done in preparation for the blue ribbon tilt.

There is this to be said at once, no pitcher will have much of a chance to rest. The A's and the Yanks fought hard right down the line and the same goes for the National league outfits. Indeed, it may be that two tired twirling staffs will oppose each other next month for the big title.

There is plenty of experience and seasoned craft in every staff with a chance of getting into the series. Pennock, Hoyt, Pipgras and Zachary have been through the mill.

Until that fatal last series in New York, Connie Mack's staff was thought far superior to that of the Yankees. Now the Yankee corps is considered quite good enough to oppose the National league winner and hold its own. This will be especially true if Herb Pennock can deliver at least two well pitched ball games.

Pennock is almost a necessity to a Yankee triumph. Without him the Yankees may not look so good, especially if the St. Louis Cardinals are opposing the American leaguers.

The Cardinals have a veteran pitching staff with Haines, Alexander, Sherdel, Rhem and Mitchell ready to bear the brunt of the big series.

The Giants' outstanding star is Larry Benton, the league's leading flinger, but Fitzsimmons is the only other member of the McGraw staff of which much might be expected. The principal weakness of the Giants is in its pitching.

Quanah Is Victor Over Crowell, 7-6

Special to The Record News

CROWELL, Texas, Sept. 28.—Crowell lost the only class A grid game it will play this season, when failure to score a point after touchdown cost a 7 to 6 defeat today at the hands of Quanah.

Frazier, Quanah quarterback, scored a touchdown in the third quarter and Hall kicked goal for the point. Langford, Crowell left end, went over the line for a touchdown in the third period, after a series of forward passes from Quanah's own 30-yard line, but the try for point via a forward pass, failed.

Frazier and Trippet for Quanah and Langford for Crowell were stars.

Reagan Junior High Ties Henrietta in Grid Game

Coach A. D. Beck's Reagan junior high football team battled Henrietta high school at Henrietta to a scoreless tie Friday afternoon in the first game of the season.

Leo Voss, plucky little Reagan end who played his first game yesterday, was the outstanding star of the contest. The little fellow tore through the line time after time and threw the opposing backs for losses.

Captain Theo Williams, quarterback, also showed up well for the Wichitans.

DAILY DOPE

By LARRY DAILEY

COLLEGIATE GRIDDERS fight all over the white-marked fields today, as the start of the 1928 season ushers in openers of elevens in all sections. Except for eight Big Ten teams and Yale, Princeton and Harvard, every major squad is in action today. While a majority of contests this afternoon are of course little more than practice affairs, they will offer basis of comparison of the so-called foremost clubs. There are a few clashes that loom as hard-fought affairs and there doubtless will be a few upsets, if not in the defeat of favorites, at least in unconsidered low scores.

All Southwest conference elevens are in action today but except for one, Arkansas in its mill with Mississippi, should win without great difficulty. Mississippi may give the Razorbacks a gruelling fight down in their own ballwick. This is the first game of the year for the Porkers, as it is for Texas, meeting St. Edward's in their "city championship" affair, and Rice, facing Sam Houston Teachers.

SOUTHERN Methodists, pointing for their Army engagement next week, face Howard Payne. The Texas Christian Frogs meet Daniel Baker, Texas Aggies clash with Southwestern university and Baylor has a joust with Denton Teachers.

SIMMONS university, foe here of Southern Methodists Oct. 13, meets Sul Ross normal at Big Spring. Regis from Denver journeys to the southwest to test the mettle of John Maulbetsch's Oklahoma Aggies.

LITTLE DIFFICULTY is anticipated for leading southern teams in today's affairs. Centenary, Vanderbilt, Tennessee, Virginia Military and Washington and Lee encounter adversaries of inferior strength. One combat in the southland is an open affair, that between Tennessee and Maryland. Whatever edge there seems to be for this game seems to be held by Tennessee.

There are a flock of interesting games in the East, but with few exceptions the score may be forecast with a degree of certainty. The service elevens face hard engagements, the Army with Boston university and the Navy with Davis and Elkins, conquered last week of West Virginia, Fordham, Lehigh, Syracuse and West Virginia may be fought to a standstill, while members of the "little three," Amherst, Wesleyan and Williams loom as victors but only after strenuous play. Other so-called leading eastern teams should win their games without great difficulty.

TWO BIG TEN machines unlimber for action today, or rather three teams of two Western conference institutions get the jump on their other rivals of that body. Chicago inaugurates the novelty of football double-headers, meeting South Carolina and Ripon. Indiana takes on Wabash. Knute Rockne's Irish play at home, with one of the numerous Loyolas, this from New Orleans, as their setup in preparation for another intensive campaign. Carnegie Tech and Marquette, other foremost middle western teams, have their first contests with decidedly inferior opposition.

BIG GUNS of the far West unlimber in first shots at easy targets, though California seems in for a rather hard game from Santa Clara. California, the Los Angeles branch, now a member of the Pacific Coast conference and under the coaching of Bill Spaulding, former Minnesota member, probably will reverse a defeat last autumn at the hands of Arizona. Stanford will get its usual stern battle from Olympic club.

Coyotes to Play At Olney Today

Playing the second game of the week the Wichita Falls Coyotes journey to Olney high school Saturday afternoon for a practice game.

It is likely that most of the men taken on the trip will be second stringers or men who saw little service in the game Friday with Decatur Baptist college.

Baer Facts

By ARTHUR "BUGS" BAER
(Copyright, 1928, by Universal Service)

NEW YORK, Sept. 28.—October the first doesn't mean much in small towns except that it is the first pallbearer of the melancholy days.

But in New York it means that you must pick up your bed and motor.

When the leaves of the dining room table start fluttering and the wall paper turns brown we know that October is here and the lease is flickering in its socket.

Which indicates that you must either move or pay your rent. With the result that the piano never gets a chance to get its land legs and a man is safer when he sees a corner lamppost for a hat rack.

Over 100,000 families will move in New York next Monday. Some of society's most notable functions will be held in moving vans.

Mrs. Van Wrestler will be at home Tuesday afternoon in her new palatial furniture truck in a traffic jam on the corner of Park avenue and Fiftieth street.

If you have never seen a sore-footed caravan anchored between an artesian well and the next oasis, then you cannot picture a family with its furniture strung out between the Palisades and the parlor.

There have been many famous migrations in history but when you live in New York you don't know whether your ancestors were visigoths or seventeen-year locusts.

When you live in a small town, you are born in the family homestead, live there, and all the friendly neighbors hope you will die there.

But in New York, your lease expires every October and only the man who stagnates is ever so foolish as to commit the social crime of nailing his carpets down.

On October first we spend the day chasing moving vans in order to keep within a nibilick shot of the refrigerator. Under our arms will be doormats enscribed welcome, a word obsolete in the dictionary of living.

New York is the only town where home, sweet home signs are hung in telephone booths and where a man's residence is always between given points.

By the time you get settled in your apartment and the parrot gets enough nerve to come down off the chandelier it is October again and the next time you recline in the morris chair you are obstructing traffic.

Rochester Evens Series With Indianapolis, 10-5

ROCHESTER, N. Y., Sept. 28 (AP)—Rochester evened the count in the little world series with Indianapolis today, winning 10 to 5 in the second tilt of the series. Four Indianapolis pitchers faced the Red Wings, who got to them for 13 hits. The decisive scoring came in the sixth when Southworth rapped out a triple with the bases full.

St. Louis Fans Baseball Mad

Cards Idols and Game Supplants Politics

ST. LOUIS, Mo., Sept. 28. (UP)—Idolatry has been embraced by this baseball mad town in its efforts to aid the quest for another National league pennant.

Huge papier-mache replicas of Red Birds—symbolical of the Cardinals—have made their advent on nick-knack stands and reports indicate they will outsell Smith and Hoover buttons ten to one.

Furthermore, literally thousands of automobile wind shields and windows have been plastered with blazing red paper stickers in the form of that same red bird, perched on a horizontal bat.

If a bit of harmless idol worship in the absence of the real thing will help the cause, St. Louisans have demonstrated plainly they certainly are not above giving it a fling.

Meanwhile, with a one-game lead and with three games to go things today looked "on the up and up," to quote one of the office boys who wasn't fired.

"They made six in the first inning; are you happy?" one St. Louisan advised and asked a perfect stranger yesterday afternoon, typifying the municipal elation.

The atmosphere was just that "collegiate," indicating probably the wildest athletic "bust out" St. Louis ever saw when the Cardinals bring home the bunting, as everyone here now believes they will do.

Builders of a Greater Southwest

Commercial Aviation

Fast and safe transportation, in which the modern airplane is proving itself pre-eminent, is destined to play an important part in the growth of a Greater Southwest. Commercial aviation finds that the Southwest offers ideal conditions for development. Distances are great and the character of the country makes the preparation of a fine landing field and air port near any community a simple matter. Weather conditions are most favorable for completely safe flying with the dependable ships developed in recent years.

Nearly all of the large cities now have air ports completed or under construction. Passenger planes make any city in the United States only so far away from you in hours as it is in units of one hundred miles. Plans in operation and being developed will crisscross the Southwest with scheduled Air Transport lines for passengers, mail, express and freight, placing the borders of the United States, and points in Cuba, Canada and Mexico within a few hours' flight of your home. Facilities for fast communication and travel, superior to those of all other ages, are waiting to help us build a Greater Southwest.

The Magnolia Petroleum Company co-operates with the developing Aviation industry in the Southwest by providing special equipment for rapid fuelling of airplanes at the principal airports within its territory. It also refines special motor oils to meet the open-throttle operating conditions under which airplane motors perform. The company is advancing step by step with the Aviation industry. It is giving to the airplane the same dependable support that it is giving the automobile. Throughout the Southwest motorists are learning that their cars will perform better with:

Magnolia
ANTI-KNOCK
Gasoline
A motor fuel for high-compression motors and motors troubled with combustion knock. Contains no foreign poisonous chemical compounds.

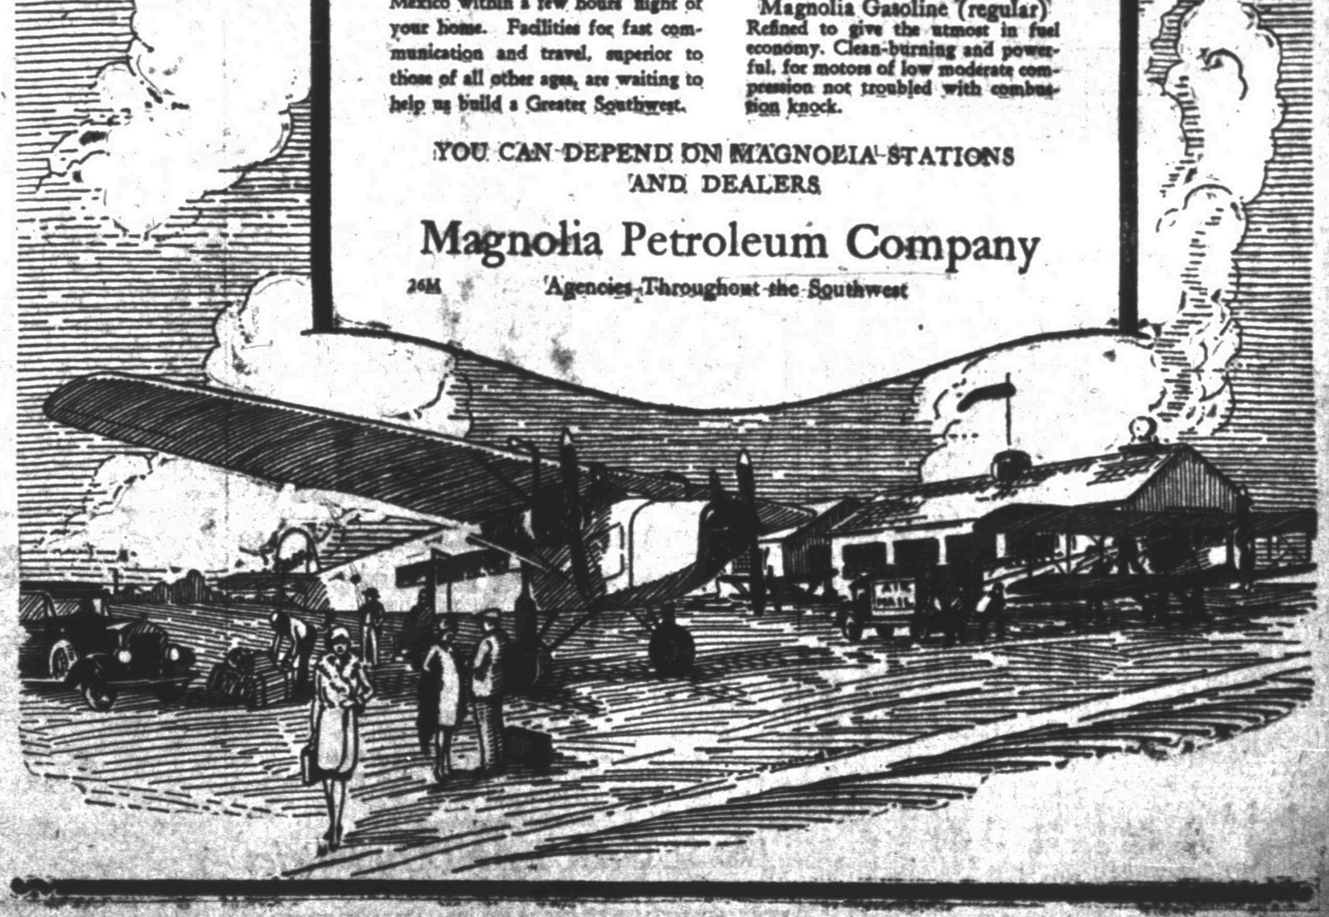

Magnolene Motor Oils and Lubricants

Magnolia Gasoline (regular)
Refined to give the utmost in fuel economy. Clean-burning and powerful, for motors of low moderate compression not troubled with combustion knock.

NEW YORK COTTON

NEW YORK, Sept. 28. (AP)—A more favorable view of weather conditions seemed to promote reactionary sentiment in the cotton market today after recent advances, and there was rather a sharp decline in prices. December contracts sold off to 19.00 or 29 points net lower and 35 points below the high level yesterday, and closed at 19.02. The general market closed barely steady at net declines of 17 to 27 points.

The market opened steady at unchanged prices to a decline of 9 points in response to relatively easy cables and more favorable weather news.

October contracts declined to 19.01 and March to 18.86, or 26 to 29 points net lower.

Part of the selling was attributed by local brokers to a feeling that the advance of more than two cents a pound from recent low levels had been to discount a readjustment of the technical position to reduced crop ideas.

Port receipts today, 65,849. U. S. port stocks, 1,012,624. Exports, 27,381 making 879,408 so far this season.

NEW ORLEANS COTTON

NEW ORLEANS, Sept. 28. (AP)—The trend of prices in the cotton market was towards lower levels today under increasing offerings brought out by a weaker technical position, favorable weather and more cheerful crop news from Texas. Although there was a rally of about $1 a bale after mid-session, the market weakened again in late trading. December contracts selling off from 18.56 to 18.40 and closing at the latter figure, net 26 points down for the day. The general market closed steady at net declines of 23 to 33 points.

The opening was easier in sympathy with lower Liverpool cables and first trades showed losses of 5 to 7 points. Prices continued downward after the start when traders sold on the weaker technical position of the market and recent buyers liquidated. A statement from Dallas, Texas, claiming that the crop in that state would be the second largest on record added to the weakness. Before the offerings were absorbed December and January sold off to 18.36 and March 18.35, or 28 to 30 points below the previous close. The comparatively dry weather map, showing rains only in the southern section of the belt also helped the decline.

Right after mid-session the market rallied sharply on Secretary Hester's mill takings for the week of 283,000 bales, which was larger than the trade expected. On the bulge December recovered to 18.56, January 18.55 and March 18.54, or 19 to 20 points up from the lows. When this demand was supplied the market turned weak again on realizing and some hedge selling. Prices eased off 15 to 16 points from the highs and January closed at 18.40, May 18.27, and October 18.33, or 23 to 33 points net lower, with the May option showing the maximum decline.

Bulls' 'Selected Stocks' Soar When Call Money Is Raised to 8 Per Cent

By BROADAN WALL
Universal Service Financial Expert

NEW YORK, Sept. 28.—Bull leaders returned to the stock market when call money was raised to 8 per cent from the renewal of 6 per cent today. It was sorely needed and accomplished its purpose for the "selected stocks" were skyrocketing in the final moments of trading in a manner that wiped out the nervousness created by continued weakness in the market during the morning.

Chrysler was the outstanding performer as it soared more than 7 points from the low of the early afternoon to a new high record price. Allied Chemical jumped over 6, Montgomery Ward 4, and Radio more than 3 points. General Ice Cream advanced 4 and Famous Players over 3 with reports that new interests had entered both companies. Rails remained dull and somewhat irregular while the utility group continued to display a firm undertone. Total trading remained around the 4,000,000 share level.

Radio Bears Trapped

American Can was another to fulfill indications given by its action recently and the shorts therein received a bad 20 minutes before the final gong. The trapped bears in Radio scurried fast but there were several left with contracts outstanding that again showed a loss when the stock was closed near its top. Together with Allied Chemical and Montgomery Ward, these stocks are the favored stop-gap for any selling wave. This is because the dominant market groups have such a big position therein at prices so far below the current market to trade against that they have nothing to fear in the event an unexpected bearish influence caused selling they could not cope with.

Mexican Seaboard Active

Utilities and oils, with the exception of Mexican Seaboard, did not share in the final excitement, but were better taken than the industrials during the earlier weakness in the general market as there are plans under way for consolidations and other favorable developments in both industries.

Mexican Seaboard buying, it was learned, was due to the approach of consummation of one of these deals, as announcement is expected in the very near future of the closing of favorable contracts in connection with its natural gas output. Favorable reports of operations in Venezuela were received also.

If any demonstration were needed that the more powerful groups had not finished distribution, it was evidenced when rally was engineered in the face of 8 per cent money. The extent of the advance in the call rate was almost as great a surprise as the 6 per cent renewal which was the lowest in many months. That renewal caused belief that the banks would not have to call loans to meet October 1 interest until Monday at the earliest.

Rate Averages 7 1-4 Per Cent

Selling increased when the rate started to advance, but the leading bull group threw in the support that has been missing for the last four sessions. They concentrated in issues they know were harboring a fairly large short interest with the result that the speculative community was in a "buying mood" again at the close.

Very few realized that the average call rate for September was 7 1-4 per cent, which means that those who carried stocks through the month pay their brokers about 8 per cent for the money advanced.

Chrysler demonstrated that its sponsors have been quietly coaxing in a short interest as was pointed out here over a week ago. It is but one of those "selected stocks" that are in a position that enables the interested group to twirl it in sensational manner and thus give the appearance of strnegth to the market as a whole.

Grain

CHICAGO GRAIN REVIEW
By THOMAS TEMPLE HOYNE

CHICAGO, Sept. 28 (U. S.)—There was nothing bearish about the grain market today. Most of the wheat futures closed lower, to be sure, but the losses were inconsequential, and the September future closed higher. But it was the deferred futures of corn that showed the real strength, for they walked upward in the face of pounding selling, while most bulls at heart were too timid to buy.

At the close wheat was ⅛ to ¼ higher; corn was ¼ lower to ⅝ higher; oats were up ⅛ to 1; rye was up ¼ to 2⅝.

All the markets looked to be in a very strong position at the close. They may have a good advance today, especially if they show any weakness at the start. In such a case, it seems to me, they may not only advance, but hold their gains.

This is the last delivery day of this month and the exeunt of the September futures will add a good deal of interest to the session. It seems unlikely to me that they will go out weak.

If September corn goes out as high as 90 cents, even, it seems to me it will leave a bullish wake that will influence the attitude of the trade toward the deferred futures. If the underlying situation in corn were really weak the market, I think, would have broken today.

But the market took all the corn that was poured into it from the start, and never budged so much as a sixteenth below the bottom of the opening range, which was the bottom of the closing range the day before. As the session advanced there were plenty of bear predictions that the September future would break badly and the other futures follow.

But the September future recovered all of its early loss except one-fourth, and the other futures never followed it downward in its preliminary decline.

Should the September future go out with great strength, instead of at or below the present level, thre might be a rush by shorts to buy the other futures. Longs should remember, however, that the last delivery day of any future often furnishes an erratic market.

Wheat gave a remarkable account of itself under the circumstances. The general feeling was bearish and December wheat was poundd from the start. But the market would not break through 118.

In the cash market wheat was unchanged to 1 lower; corn was 1 to 1 off; oats were unchanged to ½ up; rye was ½ up; barley was steady.

ARCHBISHOPS DEFY RULING

To Use New Prayer Book Despite Parliament

LONDON, Sept. 28.—The Archbishops of Canterbury and York today issued a joint statement in which they indicate they will use the new Church of England prayer book, recently rejected by parliament, regardless of the legislative body's action.

The statement said the archbishops "cannot regard the use of the new prayer book as inconsistent with loyalty to the principles of the Church of England."

This is interpreted to mean the bishops will defy parliament unless their parishioners, through the parochial church councils repudiate the new prayer book.

A GREAT CAR MADE GREATER STILL

Bigger, faster and in every detail finer, the New Senior Six represents the most impressive value ever produced by Dodge Brothers.

Its long, sweeping lines, artistic coachwork and luxurious appointments identify it as a car of exceptional style and distinction.

Moreover, Dodge Brothers have built into the New Senior that precision and dependability of construction you invariably associate with their name.

Performance of a new and vivid character is the result. In pick-up, acceleration, ease of operation and masterly utilization of power, the New Senior surpasses even the very high standards set by its brilliant predecessor.

Beautifully appointed interiors, longer bodies, spacious and deeply tufted seats, striking color effects and complete fine car equipment, further emphasize the regal luxury of New Senior design.

We will be proud to show you this beautiful car, and when its remarkable performance, beauty and comfort are brought home to you by a demonstration on the highway, you will want it for your own.

TWO HELD AS HOME LOOTERS

Police Arrest Pair After Series of Burglaries

Two men believed to have participated in the robbery of four homes in Wichita county Thursday while owners were attending the circus here were arrested Friday by Wichita Falls police. With the arrest police found two huge crates filled with merchandise in a house on Travis street.

Chief of Police Frank Burns estimates the value of the goods in the two crates at $2,000 and immediately following the arrest of the two men he notified owners of the homes burglarized in the Cashion neighborhood and near Burkburnett Thursday. Some of the persons visited the police station Friday night but police announced the crates would not be opened until Saturday when all who were robbed will be on hand to inspect the goods.

If the merchandise, mostly clothing, is identified, charges will be filed immediately against the pair, Chief Burns said, but if Wichita residents do not claim the property he said the pair held may have participated in several Clay county house robberies during the last few days.

The arrest of the two men resulted in information received by police Friday when citizens in the Burkburnett neighborhood gave a description of an automobile seen in that vicinity Thursday. The car was seen in Wichita Falls Friday afternoon by Detectives Luke Hart and Pat Allen who trailed it to a house on Travis street. The auto bore an Oklahoma license.

In the house the officers found the crated goods and other articles were found in second hand stores. A woman who was taken into custody with the two men was released following questioning.

Four homes near Burkburnett and Cashion were ransacked of clothing and other articles Thursday. These house burglaries followed closely upon similar robberies in Henrietta and Friberg.

Pastor Talks on 'Playing Fool'

"Playing the Fool" was the sermon subject Friday night of Rev. W. B. Walker, pastor of First Nazarene church, who is conducting a revival.

He said in part:

"Saul was Israel's first king. It was not God's original plan for Israel to have a king, but because of their cries he permitted it. Saul was head and shoulder above all the other people.

"It is interesting to note the ways in which this man played the fool. He played the fool in disobeying the voice of God. God commanded Saul to slay the enemies of Israel, but he failed. It is impossible to retain the favor of God, and at the same time disobey him.

"He played the fool in letting jealousy enter his heart. Coming back from the field of conflict the women sang praises to David who had been victorious. They sang, "Saul has slain his thousands, and David his tens of thousands." Immediately Saul became jealous of David and sought to take his life in a number of ways. Jealousy is a terrible thing, and will run people insane.

"Again, Saul played the fool by going to the witch of Endor. God had commanded him to drive out all those that had familiar spirits. When Saul was forsaken of God he sought help from this witch. When his faith was connected with the eternal world he had no use for a witch, but when he lost God, he sought help from an evil source.

"There are people today playing the fool in forsaking all that is good to make money. To make money to use for God's glory is right, but to forsake God in order to make money for selfish purposes is only playing the fool. Other people are playing the fool in seeking earthly pleasure. Pleasure is all right if sought in the right way.

"The moral man is playing the fool in depending on morality to give him enterance into the eternal city. The infidels of the world are playing the fool. The backslider who refuses to return unto the Lord is playing the fool. People who hear the call of God to seek salvation and refuse it are also playing the fool."

Right on the eve of the leading, week-in-week-out amusement of the fall and winter months, is this little old town of Wichita Falls, for the Keith-Orpheum-Interstate vaudeville is opening at the Majestic Thursday.

While announcing that much, we might just as well go right along and tell a good part of the story as to what it is all about.

The show is what is popularly known as a unit show. That means one big theatrical troupe, traveling as a unit and containing many individual vaudeville acts which are combined into one bill, presents the entire show.

Roscoe Ails, the producer, dancer, musician and general all-around theater man, is heading the entire bill which is divided into three parts. Part one contains 10 separate scenes. They include "That Hottest Jazz Orchestra," scenes of laughter, comedy, dance and music.

Shirley Dahl is Roscoe's dancing pal, and they do say as how she is just exactly what her last name sounds like. Another team that is featured is the Ralph Fenton-Dorothy Ellsworth combination.

Part two is something else again. Miss Marion Peck, Miss Theresa Alger and Miss Meredity Gregor work in a skit called "Campus Harmony."

Part three brings out Lester and Irving in the spectacular "double lift," something which is announced as a new athletic treat. They have a number of stunts which are announced to amuse as well as please.

Then there will be the usual Paramount news reel, the short movie cartoon features and the full length movie feature as in years past, so that the audience will get its full money value, according to Hans Smith, the theater manager.

Monday will see the start of the new policy of "China afternoons" instead of "China nights" at the Olympic theater, according to Manager Charlie Moorehead. Charlie explained that women seem to like the afternoon shows better when it comes to getting their free chinaware, so he has decided to accede to their many requests and switch to the afternoons.

Marion Davies is in her last day at the Majestic in "The Cardboard Lover" Saturday. Not such a bad show.

A. C. Ansley Buys Clayton Cafe

The Clayton cafe in the Waggoner building has been sold by T. B. Noble to A. C. Ansley, according to announcement made Friday. The sale price was not revealed. Mr. Ansley will take charge Monday morning.

Ansley will continue his job as manager of the Wichita club until a new manager is named for the club in the next few days. He has been with the club for seven years and has been manager since 1923.

Wichitan Survives Fall From 50-Foot Tower

Fred D. Miller who was injured in a fall from a 50-foot steel tower at the Continental Oil company refinery on the Burkburnett road Friday morning, was reported resting well by attendants at the Wichita General hospital Friday night. No serious internal injuries have been discovered, itwas said.

Mr. Miller was at work on the tower when he fell. Braces between the top of the construction and the ground broke his fall and probably kept him from being fatally injured, witnesses said.

City Permit Granted For $25,000 Residence

A permit for the construction of a $25,000 brick residence was granted Friday by the city clerk's office to Dr. H. P. Ledford. Construction is starting at once at 3212 Beech street by J. L. Blair, contractor. It will take four months to complete it, according to the permit.

CHARGE FILED IN SHOOTING

Vernon Judge Sets Berry's Bond at $1000

Special to The Record News

VERNON, Texas, Sept. 28.—Sam Berry waived preliminary hearing in Justice of Peace H. V. Justin's court here this afternoon after a charge of assault with intent to kill had been filed against him in connection with the shooting of H. D. Roberts at the latter's filling station four miles north of here last Friday night. Bond was set at $1,000, which Berry had not made late Friday.

Roberts, who is 52 years old, is in a hospital with a bullet wound in the hip. His condition is not grave.

Two other suspects in the shooting were apprehended this morning after an all night search by officers which resulted in Berry's arrest early today. The two were not placed under arrest.

Roberts said he was shot in a row with one of three men who came to his establishment late Thursday night for cigarets. One of them, he said, flourished a pistol, and in the ensuing scuffle he was shot. A motorist brought him here for treatment.

DAMAGE SUIT ASKS $35,250

Wichitan Is Defendant in Henrietta Case

A suit for $35,250 was filed in district court at Henrietta Friday afternoon alleging that J. S. Nichols of Wichita Falls had falsely accused his nephew, W. T. Nichols, Jr., of Bellevue, with having been responsible for the death of Bill Nuckols, who was killed in an automobile accident between Bowie and Bellevue two or three years ago.

W. T. Nichols, a nephew of J. S. Nichols, alleges in the petition that the charges were made by J. S. Nichols Thursday night by long distance telephone. He (W. T. Nichols) also alleges that he was in his office at the time Nuckols was killed and that he did not learn of the accident for several hours afterwards.

Mr. Nuckols, a rancher, was fatally injured when an automobile he was riding and another driven by a tourist collided, it was stated.

The petition asks $25,000 as actual damages, $10,000 as exemplary damages and $250 as the retainer fee paid attorneys in the case.

The plaintiff is represented in the suit by R. E. Taylor of the firm of Taylor, Muse and Taylor.

Missing Baptist Treasurer Held

taken," Dr. Christie said, "and I hope we can get him back and get it over with as quickly as possible."

Dr. Christie said prosecution of the case was entirely in the hands of Solicitor General John A. Boykin of Fulton county and his associates.

Former Governor Clifford Walker, of Georgia, who is assisting in the case, told the United Press there was no question of convicting Carnes. The only question, he said, had been of arresting him.

"We have had so many reports of Carnes' whereabouts that one feels a little hesitant about accepting this," Walker said. "I only hope it's true."

More Charges Likely

Walker said further indictments of Carnes probably would not be sought until auditors, checking his accounts, completed their work. He said the auditors were satisfied that there was a million dollar shortage; but the work was not yet completed.

After the audit is finished and indictments returned for specific amounts, a general indictment covering the entire shortage probably will be sought, Walker said.

Neither Solicitor General Boykin nor his assistant, E. A. Stephens, could be located tonight. Solicitor Boykin was reported out of the city for the week-end.

Investigation of Carnes' personal affairs after his disappearance revealed he had invested heavily in real estate in Atlanta and Florida. Much of this has been turned over to the Southern Baptist church to help make up the shortage, and contributions have been made by individuals and churches through the south.

It was found also that Carnes had contributed generously to two young women to enable them to attain their ambition of becoming motion picture stars. About $10,000 had been paid to the two, it was disclosed.

Girls Given Money

The girls, Sonja Nordia, also known as Alfhild Nordlie, and Lois Griffin, admitted they had received money from Carnes, but denied they knew of his movements since several weeks before he disappeared from Atlanta.

The shortages in the board's accounts worked havoc among Southern Baptist churches, particularly small ones, and among the home mission forces. Many churches were building on the strength of loans made by the board, and were aided only by personal contributions.

The mission work of the board also was carried on by contributions while steps were taken to straighten out the tangle left by Carnes.

The second million dollars believed missing from the home mission board's funds was a bond issue floated at Carnes' suggestion two years ago. As auditors continued their check of the accounts it became apparent that most, if not all, of the money had disappeared.

Plans Go Awry

Church officials here said they believed Carnes left when a second financing scheme he had suggested indicated it would not be successful. This plan was to issue debentures to retire a large part of the board's floating debt, and officials said they believed he expected to use part of the money to retire his personal notes. After inquiring at banks and finding there would be no ready sale for the debentures, he disappeared rather than face his unpaid creditors, they said they believed.

Bond for Carnes has been set for $50,000 on each of the two indictments, and two warrants for his arrest exist. One was sworn out by Dr. Christie soon after the shortages were discovered and the second was issued by Judge E. D. Thomas, of Fulton county superior court, immediately after the first indictment was returned.

Christianity's Triumph in Nation Depends on Home, Says Speaker

"Religion in the Home" was discussed Friday night at the First Methodist church by Dr. C. L. Goodell, executive secretary of the Federal Council of Churches of Christ. The talk was one of a series Dr. Goodell is delivering at the church.

Holding up the house of Obed-Edom as an example, Dr. Goodell told what a good example can effect. He also flayed Ingersoll as a scoffer who "read the same Bible that Lincoln read prostrate on his face before God in the White House. Ingersoll scoffed; Lincoln prayed."

Reading the Bible

These men were brought into the sermon when the speaker was talking about the treatment of the Bible in the home.

"In one home the Bible may be read as an ancient document to be criticized or rediculed," the speaker said. "It might better never be opened. In another, it is opened with reverence, read with delight and treasured in an honest heart. If one is not minded to know and love the truth, he will never find it.

"Obed-Edom signifies obedience. To obey is better than sacrifice. He who does most for God, receives most from God. This is sensible. 'Know ye not to whom ye yield yourselves servants to obey; his servants ye are?'

"In the days of Obed-Edom only one house could have the ark. Now every home may have what the ark stood for—worship and devotion. I make my plea for a family altar in every Christian home. How can God's cause prosper when His altars are broken down? How can Christianity triumph in the nation if it fails in the home? You ask people to give one-tenth of their income to the Lord, but the church wants praying members as well as paying members, and it will appear that prayer will open the purse strings as nothing else can do. Prayers and alms go together. The evangelistic spirit of the pastor can find no better place for expression than in the family life.

Family Altar

"Set up the family altar! See that your people honor God and He will honor them. The fame of one home has come out of the long ago. After almost three millenniums, we are repeating a name which had otherwise been buried and forgotten. Nobody cares about the plan or the size of the house of Obed-Edom, whether the painter had done his first work, or the rooms had only the fresco of the smoke of years. Nobody cares how much the house cost, or who built it. One fact rises out of the dust of its timbers and will be remembered as long as stars shine and rivers run. It held the Ark of Jehovah and for that reason God blessed the house of Obed-Edom."

Forum Officers Hear Report From Operetta Agent

Officers, directors and heads of departments of the Woman's Forum were called together at a luncheon at the club house Friday, an interesting feature of which was a talk by Miss Era Worden, advance agent of "Naughty Marietta." The operetta is to be presented by the Woman's Forum as a benefit performance at the Memorial auditorium, Oct. 8.

Something of the unusual beauty and finish of the production was explained by Miss Worden in her talk. Lights enough for the Zeigfeld follies, the best singing chorus on tour and a special orchestra were some of the features mentioned by Miss Worden as making "Naughty Marietta" one of the most colorful operettas. Gorgeous scenery depicting the French colonial days of New Orleans is also provided, Miss Worden said.

Following Miss Worden's talk, members of the forum assured Miss Worden they expect the same success for "Naughtly Marietta" as has favored previous benefits sponsored by the organization.
