Two Texans Drown In Gulf Waters While Companion Swims Mile For Help

SAN ANTONIO MEN LOST AS BOAT CAPSIZES

Army Lieutenant Goes Ashore, Leaving Friends to Wait Assistance

BODY OF ONE FOUND

Trio Fishing in Aransas Bay When Waves Turn Boat Over

SAN ANTONIO, Nov. 3. (AP)—Two San Antonio men were drowned and a third saved his life by swimming ashore when their small outboard motor boat capsized in Aransas bay, near Rockport, Saturday night.

The dead are Clifford H. West, 27, advertising manager of La Prensa, Mexican daily paper and Joseph Brim, 30, San Antonio representative of the Sprague-Warner Mercantile company of Chicago.

Lieut. James B. Flannery of Brooks field, the third member of the fishing party, was saved when he swam about a mile to shore.

The body of West and the boat were found Sunday on the shore near where the party put to sea.

Brim's body had not been found Sunday night although two airplanes assisted in the search during Sunday afternoon. Two coast guard cutters and five searching parties were assisting.

According to Lieutenant Flannery who arrived back in San Antonio Sunday night, the three men were fishing about a mile from shore near San Jose island.

About 7 p. m. the wind began blowing and the waves splashing into the boat. They started to shore but the motor failed three times. The last time they were unable to start it.

They tied the boat to a trot line, but a big wave capsized the boat. Flannery agreed to swim to shore and bring help while Brim and West clung to the overturned craft.

Aided by the only life preserver carried, Lieutenant Flannery followed the trot line until he got about a quarter of a mile from shore and he swam the remaining distance, guided by a light. He estimated it took him about two hours to swim the distance.

Lieutenant Flannery organized a party which returned to the spot where he had left the capsized boat but was unable to find any sign of the boat or the two men. Brim and West, it is supposed, decided Lieutenant Flannery had failed to get to shore and had attempted to float the boat.

Twin Boys, 3, Die Of Poisoning, Two Others Ill, As Police Quiz Father

ST. LOUIS, Mo., Nov. 3. (AP)—Elmer and Delmar, three-year-old twin sons of Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Reppy of St. Louis, died today apparently of poisoning, and two other children of the family are in City hospital, not expected to live. They were said to have eaten some green walnuts but physicians declared symptoms indicated another poison was the probable cause of death.

The four children, with the mother, had been visiting Mr. and Mrs. Forest Dillow at Cuba, Mo., when the twins became sick last Tuesday. Their condition did not seem to warrant a physician's attendance until early today when one was called. He arrived as Elmer died. Delmar was rushed to City hospital here where he died in a few hours and authorities made arrangements to perform autopsies to determine the cause of death.

The two other children, Clarence, 1, and Rosie, 4, were being treated at the hospital here.

Authorities could not explain why only the Reppy children were ill and the children of the Dillows, with whom they had played all week, were in good health. They said if four of them had eaten green walnuts or a herb it was likely the others also did.

The father of the twins was questioned at his home here by police tonight but he refused to talk to reporters.

THREE HURT IN TRAIN CRASH

Fort Worth Woman Injured In Crossing Mishap

Mrs. T. J. Bowles, 37, of Fort Worth, was painfully injured, and her daughter, Mrs. Dorothy Hooten, also of Fort Worth, and the latter's 18-months-old child, Fannie Katherine, suffered from shock when the automobile in which they were riding was struck by a northbound Fort Worth and Denver passenger train at a grade crossing just south of the city early Sunday afternoon.

Mrs. Bowles, in the Wichita Clinic hospital with a broken ankle and severe scalp lacerations, said that she did not know the exact manner in which the collision occurred. Her daughter, Mrs. Hooten, was driving, she said. Hospital attendants gathered that apparently Mrs. Hooten was unaware of the approach of the train, and drove the car onto the tracks just as the locomotive reached the crossing.

The trio, only occupants of the car, which was headed in the direction of Fort Worth, was rushed to hospitals for medical treatment by bystanders and passers-by. Mrs. Hooten and her infant daughter were taken to the Hargrave Walker hospital, which they left after being restored from a nervous condition.

The accident occurred about 2 p. m. near the Denver water tank at the junction of the Denver and Katy tracks just south of the city.

Mrs. Bowles and Mrs. Hooten, it was said, were returning to Fort Worth after a visit with Mrs. O. H. Earl, another daughter of Mrs. Bowles, who lives here.

DUNDEE WOMAN INJURED HERE

Attendants at the Wichita Clinic hospital Sunday reported the condition of Miss Lorraine Cook, of near Dundee, injured Saturday night when the car in which she was riding with several others collided with a mule, to be "very satisfactory," and that the patient is expected to leave the hospital Monday.

The accident occurred near Holliday. At the impact of the collision the car overturned several times, it was said. Miss Opal Jones, G. D. Noles, and Roy Stone, all of near Dundee, received minor injuries. Miss Cook was injured internally.

TRAIN HITS CAR CARRYING NEGROES

A car occupied by L. R. Jenkins and his wife, negroes, was demolished early Sunday night when struck by a string of box cars being switched in the Fort Worth and Denver yards. BULL RUSH

Active Sabbath Augurs Big Stock Session For Monday

NEW YORK, Nov. 3. (AP)—The stock exchange was a hum of activity today for the second successive Sunday in preparation for what many brokers predicted would be the heaviest volume of business on the opening tomorrow that has ever piled up in advance of an opening.

Indications were that unprecedented amount of buying was accumulating, with interest intensified by the reduction from 5 to 5 per cent of the New York federal reserve bank's rediscount rate and a drop of $1,096,000,000 in brokers' loans for the week ended last Wednesday.

VIRGINIA VOTE TO BE WATCHED

Old Dominion Ends Bitter Political Campaign

WASHINGTON, Nov. 3. (UP)—National Republican and Democratic leaders here will watch the gubernatorial election in Virginia Tuesday as a test of the permanence of the Republican invasion of the South in the last presidential election.

For the first time since that election, anti-Smith Democrats and Republicans have joined in the Virginia contest to put up a candidate in a southern state carried by Mr. Hoover. If their candidate, Dr. William Mosely Brown, head of the department of psychology at Washington & Lee university, should win, Republicans would think better of their chances of holding their gains in the South.

Democrats, on the other hand, look for the election of the regular Democrat, John G. Pollard, which they say will bear out their contention that Mr. Hoover's successful invasion of the South was due to the prohibition and religious issues in the last campaign, and its not permanent.

On the eve of the election, each side is making no extravagant claims, which indicates the vote will be close. Informed observers seem to think that Pollard will be the winner by a majority ranging up to 15,000 votes. But no one seems over-confident of the result.

Coming in an off-year, the election will attract unusual attention and probably will have a psychological effect. It is particularly interesting in the case of Virginia, too, for that was the last state in the South expected to go Republican.

Colorado Pen Fugitive Arrested Near Grandfield

GRANDFIELD, Okla., Nov. 3.—Tom Crow, escaped prisoner from the penitentiary at Canon City, Colo., where he was serving a five-year term on a liquor conviction, was recaptured by Tillman and Cotton county officers about five miles southeast of Grandfield late Saturday night. Crow was taken to the county jail at Frederick by Deputies O. W. Crane and Killgore. The arrest was made at the home of John Crow, the prisoner's brother, after officers had guarded the house for several hours while a warrant was being secured. Crow escaped from the Colorado penitentiary after the recent riot there had been quelled, officers said.

HOOBLER CASE BEFORE COURT

Attorneys to Argue Death Sentence Appeal

District Attorney Sam B. Spence and his chief assistant, George W. Anderson, will leave here Tuesday morning, they announced Sunday, for Austin, where they will urge the court of criminal appeals to sustain a district court sentence of death for D. J. Hoobler, alleged slayer of Arthur Pendergraft, wealthy Cotton county, Oklahoma, farmer.

Their arguments before the higher court will be met by those of Joe Carrigan, chief of the defense counsel.

Hoobler was sentenced to death by a district court jury here which found him guilty of a charge of murder in connection with the shooting of the Oklahoman near Wichita Falls late in December of last year. The shooting occured on the Henrietta road. The body was later discovered near the head of Lake Wichita. Hoobler, Pendergraft's employe for about 12 years, led officers to the spot where the body lay after he had been arrested.

The defense, in its appeal, seeks a new trial on the ground of alleged misconduct on the part of the jury which convicted Hoobler. It is alleged that M. H. Pearce, foreman of the jury had expressed an opinion in the case before he was called as a juror. Pearce, at a hearing here later on an application for a new trial, denied he had expressed an opinion.

HOLMES DEATH MYSTERY MAY BE FATHOMED

Officers Grill Two Men Charged With Killing State Attorney

AUTHORITIES SILENT

Solution of Murder Case to Have 'Wide Ramifications,' Is Hint

BORGER, Texas, Nov. 3. (AP)—The Holmes murder mystery, which persuaded Governor Moody to declare martial law in this turbulent oil town, and which has lain dormant since that time, eclipsed all other considerations in Borger here today as officers questioned the first two men to be arrested and charged with the crime.

Sam Jones, a former deputy constable and Jim Hodges, manager of a boiler works here were charged with the crime after almost two months of investigation by state rangers, District Attorney Clem Calhoun and national guard officers.

Jones Arrested Early

Jones was one of the first men arrested when the troops came to Borger. He was held without bond on a liquor charge, but with the expiration of martial law was allowed bond. Deputy Sheriff "Red" Burton returned him to Borger from New Mexico Friday on another liquor charge and after he was here lodged the murder complaint.

Hodges was arrested at his home here. Holmes, who was district attorney at the time of his assassination, once prosecuted Hodges on a theft charge. Officers investigating the case were very close mouthed about the latest developments, but indicated that they felt they were nearing solution of the case which they said they expected would have "wide ramifications."

State rangers, early in the investigation, said they had affidavits which would show that a conspiracy existed between some county and city officials and the criminal element. Later Governor Moody and his representatives here insisted that the old county and city administrations resign as the price for restoration of civil law. Jones was one of those forced out of office.

Calhoun Confident

So confident was District Attorney Clem Calhoun that the investigators were on the right track that he predicted that a jury would punish Holmes' assassins before New Years.

Beyond Hodges' denial of guilt or knowledge of the crime no word came from the prisoners, unless those who questioned them obtained further statements.

No effort was made today to obtain bond for either Hodges or Jones, and while each maintains his innocence, neither has commented further on the case. District Attorney Clem Calhoun planned to question Hodges tonight.

WAURIKA GIRL CLINGS TO LIFE

Special to The Record News.

WAURIKA, Okla., Nov. 3.—With part of her brain torn away by a pistol-shot fired while she was alone in her home here Friday, Mrs. H. V. Melton, 23-year-old bride of a year, had an apparently firm grasp on life tonight, which, if maintained, physicians said, will lead on to recovery.

"I don't want to die, and I'm not going to; I'm going to live, and get well," the patient, still conscious despite the frightfulness of her wound, declared to friends and relatives today.

Physicians, who have called on their ultimate skill in efforts to save the woman's life, resorting to a blood transfusion, and lining of the skull with paraffine to halt bleeding, said tonight that the girl bride has a good chance of recovery, provided no complications develop.

Mrs. Melton, wife of a railroad fireman, was found wounded in her home Friday by a sister-in-law, Miss Grace Melton. Mrs. Melton's parents reside at Tulia, Texas.

NEW EVIDENCE FERRETED OUT BY PROSECUTOR

Thomerson Spends Sunday In Dallas on Handwriting Angle

THREE MORE DAYS

Attorneys Expect Trial of Amarillo Man to End Wednesday Night

By Staff Correspondent

WEATHERFORD, Texas, Nov. 3.—The fate of R. H. Hamilton, Amarillo attorney, charged with the fatal shooting of Tom Walton Jr., his school boy son-in-law, in Amarillo on May 4, will, in all likelihood be in the hands of the jury by Wednesday night next.

This was the concensus of opinion of attorneys representing both the defense and the prosecution late this afternoon.

Sensational surprises in the trial of the accused attorney are promised Monday when the state begins its rebuttal testimony. District Attorney Thomerson is said to have gone to Fort Worth and Dallas Saturday to investigate material matters concerning handwriting and other evidence which has a bearing on the case. The defense rested its case Saturday afternoon at 2:05 p. m.

Week of Sensations

The defense rested its case Saturday afternoon at 2:05 o'clock after Hamilton had testified for six hours relating his experiences of the unfortunate tragedy which resulted in the killing of Tom Walton. The past week has been fraught with sensational disclosures the testimony including letters from the victim of the shooting to his secretly wedded wife.

Upon these sensational disclosures the defendant's counsel have worked diligently to establish their case on the theory of self defense based upon alleged threats and real or apparent danger.

The case started Monday morning with the selection of a jury which was completed Tuesday afternoon and the taking of testimony was begun. Prosecution attorneys rested their case Thursday afternoon at 3:25 o'clock and the defense immediately began with its testimony tending to build up its self-defense theory. The defense testimony included many letters from Tom Walton to his wife Theresa Hamilton Walton while she was attending school at the University of Texas and several letters

NEW YORK, Nov. 3. (AP)—Rainey Cawthon, captain and fullback of the University of Florida football team, today accomplished what he would undoubtedly describe as the longest run of his career.

It consisted of six or seven steps up to the altar in the Little Church Around the Corner, where he was married to Miss Sarah Lovell Payne, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Eugene S. Payne of Nashville, Tenn.

The entire Florida squad which yesterday fulfilled an engagement with Harvard up in Cambridge, attended the wedding, together with John J. Tigert, president of the University of Florida and former national commissioner of education, Coach Charles W. Bachman, and Dale Van Sickle, Florida's all-American end of a year ago.

Some of the guests bore evidence of having been in a football game yesterday. The bridegroom himself had a bright, new bruise across the bridge of his nose, and so did the best man, Ben Clemons of Tallahassee, center on the Florida team.

Judge Hamilton Becomes Boy Again When 82-Year-Old Mother Arrives

WEATHERFORD, Texas, Nov. 3.—Tears were in evidence in the lobby of the Parker hotel here this morning when Judge R. H. Hamilton's aged mother from Corsicana surprised her boy. The 82-year-old mother slipped up behind the back of her son who is on trial here for the slaying of Tom Walton Jr., as he sat talking to a newspaper reporter in the hotel lobby.

She threw her arms about him and showered him with kisses while tears filled the eyes of everyone in the hotel room. Hardly a word was spoken and after the maternal greeting and formal introduction the mother and son went to the seclusion of the Hamilton suite.

The stern faced former judge of the court of criminal appeals became a boy again as he gathered his mother into his arms and kissed her with the impulsive intensity that a history of his life shows to be so characteristic of him.

The visit was a surprise to Judge Hamilton but it apparently brought joy to his heart to know that she will be with him in his present trouble.

Judge Hamilton was born and reared on a farm near Corsicana and the pride and dignity he had in introducing his father and mother at Baylor university recalled during his trial here was noticeably evident in the introduction of his mother to friends here today.

STATE OPENS FIGHT TODAY

Prosecution Seeks to Shatter Hamilton's Claims

Threats Shown

The letters were calculated to show communicated threats against the life of the accused attorney and members of his family, and laying the foundation to show that R. H. Hamilton shot and killed Tom Walton to save his own life. Just how well the defense has succeeded with its plan will not be known until the jury deliberates upon the facts and brings its verdict in under the facts and law as given in charge by the trial judge.

That the defendant's attorneys are ready to combat any new charges which may be brought out by the prosecution in its rebuttal testimony was not only indicated but assured emphatically by Judge C. B. Reeder late Sunday afternoon when he said the defense was holding sub-rebuttal witnesses for that purpose. The trial during the past week moved with dispatch and Judge J. E. Carter adhered to the letter his practice of opening court on the minute and closing exactly on time. Judge Carter has been referred to as a judge punctually plus.

30 State Witnesses

Approximately 30 witnesses are being held here for the rebuttal testimony with the defense witnesses required to await the outcome of the state's plan. The number of witnesses not released now number about 50.

Arguments in the trial are expected to begin not later than Wednesday morning and it is estimated that Judge Carter will announce four hours speech-making to each side. It is understood that four speeches on each side will be made.

District Attorney Thomerson, Judge Hugh H. Craven, Judge F. H. Grindstaff and County Attorney V. P. Cravens will speak for the prosecution. Judge C. B. Reeder, Judge R. E. Underwood, Judge Sam Shadle and Judge R. B. Hood will speak for the defense.

Interest in the trial from a spectator standpoint, has not waned and the courtroom will not be able to accommodate the crowds on the final days of the trial, attorneys and court attaches believe.

Evidence Not Disclosed

The state has not indicated what line its rebuttal testimony will take. In cross examination, however, it was hinted that it might try to show that Hamilton did have some suspicion that his daughter had married Walton. It also has sought to minimize some of the threats attributed to Walton and to show that the judge suffered from a high temper and shot without sufficient provocation.

Hamilton, on the stand, did not admit firing any shots. He said that when he saw Hamilton in his office the youth's hand was in his coat pocket and that he moved, as if to draw a gun. The judge said that he drew his own gun and the two immediately engaged in a "mortal battle" for the weapon. The first shot, he said, was fired as Walton wrenched at the weapon. Hamilton said that it went directly over his own shoulder.

It was thought the state might place on the stand other college friends of Walton and his secret bride in an effort to present a more favorable picture than that delineated by the defense witnesses. So far the prosecution witnesses have had nothing to say of the college love affair and the other romantic phases of the tragedy.

Many of the witnesses, newspapermen and others here for the trial, left Weatherford over the weekend. Many visited Dallas and Fort Worth, giving Weatherford a rather deserted appearance after the crowds of the past week.

Judge J. E. Carter spent a large part of Sunday writing a tentative charge to the jury. The draft was submitted to opposing counsel for objections.

The charge prepared is subject to revisions necessitated by testimony yet to be presented.

Judge Carter said the same procedure would be followed after testimony is completed before he prepares the final draft. His task was said to have been complicated by recent changes in Texas laws on killings as the charge of manslaughter was abolished.

Probably the most sensational evidence to date has been the letters introduced for the jury's inspection. Letters written by Tom Walton to his bride and others written by Mrs. Hamilton and Helen Hamilton to the defendant were introduced. The last letters exhibited are printed below.

From Mrs. Hamilton to Judge Hamilton, dated May 1, 1929.

Dearest, oh, why don't you come on. You told me a few days ago you would come as soon as you got through with the cases you are working on, but I want you to come now. I have written you so often that your life is in danger there. Tom Walton intends to kill you. I have sent you several letters he has written Theresa which contain threats against your life. He told persons here in Austin that he was going to put you out of the way.

He told Christine Campbell that he had expert gunmen on your trail and that he was going to have you shot but he was going to kill Helen himself. Think of that dirty Indian putting a hand on Helen! He said also he had plenty of money backing him if he did anything to you. He told Doctor Chambers the same thing he told Christine. While I was writing a messenger boy came in with a telegram for Theresa. I received it and read it. I am not going to give it to her. It was signed Howard and says "If you care for happiness in the future you would better be here by this week-end." Dear, I have suffered as I hope few ever suffer. I am constantly in an agony of fear that Tom Walton will stab you in the dark or slip up to your window at night and shoot you. Neither your practice nor all that you might make out of it is worth anything in comparison to your life. So come on dear, we must go to another place to live.

Lovingly, Myrtle.

Helen's Letter

From Helen Hamilton to Judge Hamilton, Wednesday morning, April 17.

Dearest Papa:

Alice Pierson told me something last night that has been worrying me considerably. When Tom W. was down here a few days ago he was very angry.

I guess mama told you what he said at the hospital but it seems he made some threats to Alice, too. He told her he was going to kill you and then have mama declared mentally incapable of taking care of Theresa or managing the property and that there were men from Amarillo who would help him dispose of you. I know that mama has been upset for some time and I don't want to alarm you unduly, but you know that Walton tribe—they are part Indian and Tom is a vicious animal when he is mad. I know you can take care of yourself but for goodness sake watch your step. I am beginning to share mama's apprehension.

I think it was wise for Theresa to be withdrawn since she could scarcely do anything in the remaining time. I believe she intends to finish Greek by correspondence.

We are having the second set of intra-semester exams this week. I have had three already; one in economics, tomorrow and probably one in German Friday. So far I haven't busted anything. Physics keeps me working all the time but though I make low grades sometimes I am generally in the top pew of the class. I think I much prefer chemistry. It is time for 12-1 class in English. I am at the library now. — Lovingly yours, Helen.

Football Star Weds Teacher

tor of the Little Church Around the Corner, performed the ceremony. Miss Virginia Payne of Nashville, sister of the bride, was maid of honor, and Dr. Thomas Alexander of New York, a friend of both families gave the bride away.

Neither the bride's parents nor Mr. and Mrs. W. S. Cawthon of Tallahassee, parents of the bridegroom, were here for the wedding. It was planned rather suddenly, their friends explained just before Captain Cawthon and his team left for the North last week.

Cawthon and his bride met last summer while she was teaching dramatics at the University of Florida summer school.

"Rainey was all interested in the coming football season and said he wasn't going to have a date all summer," one of his friends said today. "But when he met Miss Payne, right away he went in for that course in dramatics. And it wasn't long before they were engaged."

The bride is studying for her degree as doctor of philosophy at Columbia university this year. The bridegroom will remain in New York for two days and then will go back to football and his college work. Cawthon is a senior in teachers' college at Florida. He and his bride will meet again during the Christmas holidays.

WOULD IMPORT MORE NEGROES

R. B. Creager Sponsors Plan To Bring in Laborers

HARLINGEN, Texas, Nov. 3. (US)—A proposal to import thousands of negroes from Porto Rico to Texas to take the place of Mexican laborers who have been deported by the United States department of labor and immigration has met with protest here.

There are few negroes in South Texas, especially in the lower Rio Grande valley where thousands of Mexicans have been employed in the grapefruit industry and in raising winter garden truck for northern markets, J. E. Bell, secretary of the chamber of commerce of San Benito pointed out. To import negroes would seriously disarrange the social structure of the community, he said.

The movement to replace Mexican labor with Porto Rican negroes was initiated by John L. Gray, attorney general of the United States in Porto Rico according to information received by Mr. Bell.

R. B. Creager, Republican national committeeman for Texas, residing at Brownsville, has been in communication with Mr. Gray and submitted the proposal to the Rio Grande valley communities, according to Mr. Bell.

Col. Sam Robertson, of the committee of immigration of the chamber of commerce of the United States, who has spent several months here studying the Mexican labor situation, advised against the importation of the negroes. He pointed out that 400 Porto Rico negroes were taken to Arizona as cotton pickers a few years ago. They were unaccustomed to American ways, demanded equality with the whites, refused to pick cotton and ultimately became public charges.

Thousands of Mexicans, many of them land owners, have been deported to Mexico by the department of immigration during the last 12 months.

The movement was initiated by the department of labor with a view to opening the way for employment of white labor. But northern whites, with few exceptions, decline the work and planters face heavy loss and ruin in some cases because of their inability to secure field hands.

First Christian Crowded for Finnell Talks

Congregations which filled the auditorium of the First Christian church almost to capacity both morning and evening Sunday marked the fifth day of evangelistic services being conducted there by Dr. J. L. Finnell, pastor of the Magnolia Avenue Christian church of Fort Worth. The meetings will continue daily through Friday of this week.

Speaking Sunday morning on "The Kingdom of Heaven," Doctor Finnell declared that according to Jesus Christ, the important question in life is not how "to get into the kingdom of Heaven, but how to get the kingdom of Heaven into our own hearts."

Illustrating the Christian plan for the solution of humanity's problems, the speaker likened Christ's advent to the world to the United States' entry into the affairs of the Philippine islands three decades ago. It was apparent, he said, that this government could have given the islands their complete independence at that time, and could have permitted them to work out their own governmental salvation. Their demonstrated lack of experience proved their incapacity, however, Doctor Finnell declared, and the decision to teach that people the principles, history, and traditions of the United States as a means to their learning self-government was the only course which wisely could be pursued.

"The world was in a similar condition when God sent Christ among men as governor," the speaker continued, "for the experience of man had revealed his need of teaching. He did not wish men to be slaves but to be free moral agents, with good and evil set before us that we might choose for ourselves. The greatest code of ethics ever given to man is the Mosaic law, given at Mount Sinai. But when God thought that man had progressed far enough to grasp the finer motives of life, he sent his only begotten Son as governor of the minds and hearts of men, to teach humanity that God is not a being of justice only but a being of love, mercy, and forgiveness."

Doctor Finnell's subject Sunday night was "The Greatness of Christ," his sermon stressing the significance of the birth, the life, the teachings, death, and resurrection of Jesus. The evangelistic services will be continued on Monday night at 7:30 o'clock.

The Sunday night service opened with a 30-minute song service, conducted by R. E. Shepherd, who used as a solo for the service, "I Have a Friend, You Ought to Know Him," with Mrs. Shepherd accompanying.

D.A.R. Luncheon at Club Is Lovely Autumn Event

Food, decorations and emotions all carried out the Thanksgiving idea at the luncheon Saturday at the country club of the Major Francis Grice chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution.

The table, set in the form of a hollow square, was decorated with baskets and bowls of fruit. Grapes, apples, oranges, bananas and pomegranates made a beautiful autumn motif and autumn leaves were used between the lovely masses of fruit, with orange candles making golden gleams at stated intervals. In the hollow square, was another table and on it, in a nest of autumn leaves, an enormous pumpkin held fruit piled high. Even the lovely little orange place cards emphasized the Thanksgiving colors.

The luncheon served was a real Thanksgiving dinner featuring turkey, cranberry sauce, pumpkin pie and all the things that are accessories to the season.

Business was postponed until the luncheon was finished. Mrs. A. H. Carrigan, vice regent, presided in the absence of the regent, Mrs. Fred T. Couper. Plans were made for a bridge and 42 tournament to be held Nov. 16 for the benefit of student loan fund.

Mrs. Louis H. Gould announced the program numbers. Mrs. William Olmstead gave two beautiful piano numbers; Mrs. W. H. Sanford talked interestingly on patriotic education and Mrs. Lillian Kerr made an outstanding talk on the aims and accomplishments of the D. A. R.

Hostesses for the day were Mrs. Sterling Crumpler, chairman, Mesdames V. W. Cain, W. J. Burt, Charles Birk of Iowa Park; A. W. Burnside, A. H. Carrigan, J. D. Hall, Clifford Deaton and Miss Frances Smith. They were responsible for the unusually lovely luncheon.

Places were marked for the members as follows: Mesdames Laura Bristol, J. R. Hyatt, Eleanor Pace, M. M. Garrett, J. L. Waggoner, James P. Waggoner, W. L. Herbien, Misses Frances Smith, Sara Sue Denny and Mary Ann Denny, Mesdames Dan Rubsam, S. Y. Ferguson, J. E. Hall, W. H. Sanford, C. W. Beavers, Charles Borland, A. H. Carrigan, L. H. Gould, L. O. Landon, Nannie Rowe of Electra, V. W. Cain, R. B. Kerbow, Sterling Crumpler, F. W. Fischer, Paul Pond E. B. Bailey, Clifford Deaton, Carrie Joline, J. D. Hall, Charles Birk, Clark Wilcox, Carrie Wilcox, Ed Gardner, C. L. Granberry, Roy King, and Charles Reid. The guests who enjoyed the luncheon were Mesdames R. H. Schultz, Julia Furgesson of Kansas City, Lillian Kerr, C. L. Apple, C. W. Johnson of Graham, William Olmstead and C. Copelin.

PEEPS AT PEOPLE

By MRS. L. N. CASON

We get a little sermon every time we see the silver leaf poplars on Harrison street, though it is only the old adage that "every cloud has a silver lining."

From the time they bud into the the image of pussywillows in the spring until winter comes, they are things of beauty. The quivering leaves of the trees turn shining sides to the sun.

◆ ◆ ◆

Mrs. Ola G. Hamlin has one in her back yard which she planted herself, and she says it has grown at least 10 feet high. Lovely things like silver leaf poplars shame the sycamore.

◆ ◆ ◆

And speaking of Mrs. Hamlin's tree, reminds us of her two redberried calicarpa shrubs, mentioned previously in this column.

◆ ◆ ◆

We want calicarpa to be introduced to the Garden club. It is one of the beautiful things like pomegranates. There's no use being satisfied with mere utility when splendor and utility can be combined.

◆ ◆ ◆

At least nine tenths of the women of Wichita wish for beauty. And it gives us a thrill when one of them calls us and tells us of some beauty spot.

◆ ◆ ◆

Just this day we heard of flowers that are hidden from the general public. But they are worth anyone going out of the way to look upon.

◆ ◆ ◆

Mrs. C. L. Garrett has spent this summer in the care of chrysanthemums. Not in her front yard, but at the rear, where they had the chance for becoming their best.

◆ ◆ ◆

That chrysanthemum garden at 1402 Monroe is as beautiful as if it had been the work of a professional gardener. The fluffy flowers have grown to full stature, and masses of orchid and gold glorify the entire surroundings.

◆ ◆ ◆

When we were first told of them, we asked if they were to be shown at the flower show and heard that Mrs. Garrett had cared for them just to be able to give flowers to her friends. One who raises flowers for that purpose must have a flowering heart.

◆ ◆ ◆

Flowers open the hearts of women, we know. Standing at the front and sides of the Wichita Falls Academy of Fine Arts, are three gorgeous urns of yellow marigolds. They trail over the sides with a bravery that dares the frost. And when we asked Mrs. Wyatt about them, she told us they were flowers she had brought from the Country Club Estates and transplanted the first day of July. Then, with a sweet generosity, "And I'll save the seeds for anyone who wants them."

◆ ◆ ◆

There's one thing at which we wonder. Though the sycamores in yard of the old Huff place at Eleventh and Brook are almost white and bare, the grass is still a tender green—greener there we believe than any other spot we know.

Mr. and Mrs. Duke Entertain at Lunch

At their prettily decorated table were Dr. J. Lester Finnell, Messrs. and Mesdames R. E. Shepherd, Harry Hines, R. E. Strange, Mesdames L. E. Trout and Floyd A. Bash.

Sunday Schools Show Good Gains

The largest percentage of increase in any week of the year was registered by Sunday school attendance in the city Sunday, that achievement being made possible by the very small total reported for Oct. 27 rather than by unusually large attendance Nov. 3.

Reports from 29 church schools in the city Sunday showed a total of 7,308 pupils present, as compared with 3,425 for the preceding week. No report was obtained from the Highland Heights Baptist church.

The First Baptist again topped the list in point of numbers, with 1,296 in attendance.

'BLUE RIBBON' BILL APPROVED

But Comedy Trio Steal Lead In Week's Vodvil

By W. L. UNDERWOOD
The Record News Staff

There is vaudeville and vaudeville—the sort that gets a good laugh and which recurs frequently to the mind of the customer to remove his troubles with another spontaneous chuckle; and the sort that gets a laugh when projected from a colorful stage setting with the glare of footlights, but which leaves the customer wondering a half hour later just what it was that seemed funny. The Blue Ribbon bill which opened its two-day stand at the Majestic Sunday afternoon leans noticeably toward the latter classification.

Not all of the current of the current bill is designed to produce the maximum amount of amusement. Two numbers particulraly, Don Galvan and the athletic act of "The Lamys," make their stand on the basis of meritorous performance, and get away with it completely. Holding the attention of a large audience with one banjo isn't the easiest assignment on a program, and Senor Galvan's appeal lay in his ability to produce an unusual amount of surprising quality from his instrument. The aerial acrobatics from the Lamys is a crossection from the best of circus exhibitions—with effective relief furnished by the agile Irish clown.

Edith Evans and Ray Mayer, advanced as the headline attraction, feature a group of songs and several minutes of patter which managed to rush across the line with the pantomimic clowning of the pianist just before the final whistle blew.

As often happens, the applause of the audience plays havoc with the advance ranking of the various numbers, and the schedule was all upset when Lubin-Larry and Andre were compelled to use every means except sedition to get away. The finals of lightning footwork supplied by the black-face member of the trio put the finishing touch on an act which was already in debt to the same comedian's limber stammering. Characteristic "blues" songs were given double harmonic treatment, and there was a neat bit of toe-dancing.

Clever dancing by Lew Murdock and Mildred Mayo with new slides introduced, opened the bill, which closed with Dorothy Mackaill's "The Great Divide," on the screen.

Epworth Young People Give Splendid Program

Mrs. Joe Richker opened the program of the Epworth Young people of the Floral Heights M. E. church Sunday evening, and sentence prayers, led by Thomas C. Scott and closed by Mary C. Boone, followed.

Side No. 2 took charge of the program and the fourth chapter of "When Knighthood Was in Flower" was reviewed by Elizabeth Albritton, Mabel Rowe, Barbara Martin, Phoebe Jane Filgo and Betty Jane Sehmann.

This chapter, the story of the crusaders, shows how suddenly, after the spread of Christianity, all Europe was going to Jerusalem. Elizabeth Albritton told why these pilgrimages were undertaken and described the pilgrim's journey to the Holy land, at this time in the hands of the Mohammedans.

Mabel Rowe told of the most important of the crusades—the first one, led by Peter the Hermit; the third, which is told in the story of Ivanhoe and the "Children's Crusade," which took place in the year 1212 A. D.

The results of the crusades were given by Barbara Martin. Little was accomplished, she said, in a religious way. The two good results were the breaking down of feudalism and an increased knowledge of geography.

The life of St. Francis of Assissi, "one of the most lovable men who ever lived," who went as a crusader and told the story of Christ in the camp of the Mohammedans, was given by Phoebe Jane Filgo.

Leon Deaton Jr., president, took charge of the business meeting and reminded the members that only a short time was left in which they might pay their dues and pledges. Everyone was requested to be putting money in envelopes for the self denial fund. A vote of thanks was given to the social committee and to all who helped in the Halloween party. In the counting of points for going to Jerusalem, side No. 2 was ahead 185 points. Forty-five members were present Sunday evening.

Two names were given as new members, Helen Simpson and Dorothy McPhail.

The meeting was closed with a benediction by Dr. C. M. Simpson, the new pastor.

Greenville Negro Held By Wichita Deputies

Raymond Johnson, negro, convicted in Greenville, Texas, about a year ago on charges of burglary, who disappeared while on bond pending an appeal, was jailed here Sunday night by Deputy Sheriffs Charlie Gant and H. L. White, and will be held for Greenville authorities, officials announced.

Johnson's conviction on the burglary charge, which grew out of pillaging of a boxcar, has been confirmed by a higher court, officers here were informed. J. E. Waddle of Greenville, who said he went on Johnson's appeal bond, assisted officers in identifying the negro. Johnson was sentenced to two years in prison.

Students assembled at the opening of the term at the Harvard law school were startled when two speakers urged them not to work too hard.

Alexander-Smith Wedding Pretty Event Saturday

A simple but lovely ceremony was performed Saturday afternoon at 3 o'clock when Miss Gladys Smith and William Alexander were united in marriage at Miss Smith's home on Avenue H.

The rooms were beautifully decorated with chrysanthemums, and before an improvised altar of ferns and palms with tall candelabra at each side, Dr. Gaines B. Hall performed the impressive ring ceremony in the presence of only a few intimate friends and relatives.

Mrs. Alexander wore a handsome traveling gown of brown crepe with accessories to harmonize, and carried an arm bouquet of red and bronze chrysanthemums. Her sister, Miss Helen Smith, was attired in dark blue crepe and carried yellow chrysanthemums.

Mr. Alexander is a young business man of Wichita Falls and after a short trip to Fort Worth, San Antonio and other Texas towns, Mr. and Mrs. Alexander will be at home at 2307 Avenue H.

SELL high tariff short, too. There's another form of security that will never overcome bear sentiment.

Consensus of opinion is now aligned against that brazenly inflated measure. The country is convinced it won't pay common dividends and refuses to subscribe to the issue.

The Hawley bill can't vindicate its exactions and therefore must be revised or retired.

Congress dare not enact a statute so manifestly conceived to return election favors, and plainly designed to satisfy special interests, wire-jerkers and persuasive lobbies.

The Bingham-Eyanson disclosures attaint the entire act with suspicion and justify agricultural claims of class favoritism and confiscatory discriminations.

Connecticut "brass" sha'n't saddle eight hundred million dollars' worth of trick nutmegs on the farmer and the householder.

The fact that manufacturers in a single state conspired to raise living costs by almost a billion, brings America to the realization that Mr. Hawley and his confreres were prepared to extract from consumer incomes a greater sum than speculation's recent losses in Wall street.

PREVAILING confidence and the ready cash position of business, after weathering the severest storm in financial history, prove that the average profits of our production units have been quite sufficient to maintain maximum wage levels, dividends and reserves.

Mr. Joseph Grundy doesn't think so. But if Mr. Grundy is aware of popular reception of his conclusions, he will appreciate the extent to which they destine the defeat of a super-protection.

Mr. Grundy, who pulls political strings for Pennsylvania pap-seekers, has been speaking his mind to the senate investigating committee.

He resents the intrusion of trans-Mississippi influence in matters, which shouldn't concern "small Western states."

Mr. Grundy, besides suggesting Republican platform planks, feels called upon to rebuke the "indelicacy" of Messrs. Walsh, Borah and Caraway, as expressed in their opposition to pocket-picking monopolies.

Their particular constituencies shouldn't break in on a game to which they contribute so few chips.

It hardly behooves parvenu communities to criticise their elders. The East, according to our venerable lobbyist, is exclusively entitled to shake federal plum trees.

And mining, lumbering, food and fiber raising regions, show scant respect for economic etiquette when they demur.

Mr. Grundy regrets that the American system of government impartially distributes senatorial authority among the 48 commonwealths, thereby confounding the pet aims and lofty purposes of capital and fabrication: "It's a tragedy."

After reading Mr. Grundy's views, his employers and associates will certainly concur in that observation.

If any thing were needed to complete the mess that Senator Bingham started, friend Grundy has furnished the missing ingredient.

There stands the co-assassin of high-tariff hopes. It's fool talk, like his, that produces schisms in the national establishment, sets section against section and inspires party splits.

This is his own swan song. His usefulness to Steel, Coke and company hereby resigns. He talks too much—a fatal disqualification for secret service.

And that means "the end of Solomon Grundy."

The electric light has not sounded the doom of the old-fashioned oil lamp, for more than 35,000,000 glass chimneys are manufactured yearly.

The University of North Carolina has a new library which cost $625,000.

Supporting a Socialist

ONE OF the healthiest indications American politics has shown in many months is the fact that Norman Thomas, Socialist candidate for mayor of New York City, has drawn more influential support and is expected to poll a larger vote than any Socialist candidate in that city's history.

To make that statement does not in any way imply a fondness for Socialist doctrines or a dissatisfaction with the existing economic and political structure of the country. There are things in the New York mayoralty campaign, however, which make the strength of Thomas' candidacy an encouraging sign.

Mayor Walker, who probably will win re-election by an overwhelming vote, is Tammany's man, and proud of it. One hears little of the "new Tammany" these days. The Tiger seems to have all of his old stripes. Ample reason, right there, for any Democrat refusing to support Walker.

The Republican candidate is Congressman Fiorello LaGuardia. In congress, LaGuardia has made a consistent record as a liberal. In the present campaign, however, he has been noisy and empty. Furthermore, the New York Republican machine is in no way better than Tammany. To put it in and put Tammany out would simply be to continue misrule under a different set of masters.

The third candidate is ex-Police Commissioner Richard Enright. Neither his record nor his campaign utterances provide any reason why a voter desirous of restoring good government to Manhattan should vote for him.

There is left, therefore, Norman Thomas—a man of undeniable ability, courage and intelligence. The Morning World and the Evening Telegram have decided that he is so far superior to the other three candidates that his party affiliations can be disregarded; and there is every indication that thousands of ordinary Democrats and Republicans are coming to the same conclusion.

All of that, we repeat, is a very good sign.

We do too much of our voting by rule, by tradition. Even the most enlightened voter has a tendency to place too much emphasis on a label. When a political campaign comes along we hesitate to think for ourselves.

The support Thomas is getting indicates a breaking of this custom. The bulk of his votes will come from people who are not Socialists and who have no especial sympathy with Socialist doctrines.

That means that people are learning to disregard labels, to ignore traditions, to do a little thinking for themselves. He will be getting a big vote, not because he is a Socialist, but in spite of that fact.

And that, we repeat, is a healthy indication.

Toll of the Oil Scandals

A FORMER cabinet officer, the first ever convicted, on his way to prison is a pathetic figure to say the least. It tells the story of the fall of a man from high place to the ditch of degredation. A jury of his peers found him guilty of acceptance of $100,000 bribe, paid to him by Edward L. Doheny, for a betrayal of trust.

Albert B. Fall is 68. He was born in Kentucky. He moved from Kentucky to Texas more than 40 years ago. He divided his time between the wild frontier town of El Paso and the Mexican village of Las Cruces. He became a lawyer. He switched from the Democratic to the Republican party. He invaded politics. He became a boss.

In territorial days he was judge of the high court of New Mexico. When statehood came he was elected to the United States senate. He was thrice elected senator. He was the chum and confidential friend of Warren G. Harding, who sat in the senate as a representative from the state of Ohio.

He assisted in the nomination of Harding in the city of Chicago and was one of the powerful cabal of senators who made that nomination possible. Harding was elected. He made his chum and confidential friend secretary of the interior.

It was then that the naval oil reserves which had been protected by Roosevelt and Taft and Wilson and their secretaries of the navy were delivered over to Doheny and Sinclair.

Nemesis came in the shape of Thomas J. Walsh, a senator from Montana. This eight years ago. Ever since Fall has been on trial before a jury of his countrymen. He is the only one of the conspirators convicted by a jury of 12 for the grossest betrayal of the people's trust in the history of the republic.

Edward L. Doheny said the $100,000 was a loan. Edwin Denby, Republican secretary of the navy at the time the transfers were made, declared that he had recommended the transfers and assumed all responsibility. Harding is dead, Denby is dead. Sinclair is in prison for contempt of court for the shadowing of jurors. Doheny is old and broken. Not long ago his son, who carried the black satchel from his father to the broken chieftain of the New Mexico Republicans, was shot to death by a confidential secretary.

Doheny has his millions. He has his load of sorrows and humiliations. It is a terrible toll fate has taken of the proud men who figured in the bartering of a nation's resources eight years ago.

Our Efficient Railroads

THE growing efficiency and skill with which American railroads are being conducted is strikingly shown in statistics recently published relative to the country's class one railroads.

During the first eight months of 1929 these roads had gross earnings of $4,208,000,000—a bare 5 per cent over the corresponding period of 1928.

But their net earnings for the same period were $827,735,000—20 per cent over the net earnings for the first eight months of 1928.

Contrasted with the small gain in gross earnings, this sharp rise in net earnings bespeaks an efficiency in railroad operation that is little short of amazing.

'EASY' The Love Story of a Modern Girl

By BEATRICE BURTON

CHAPTER XXIX

The upshot of the argument was that Neal finally went across the street to the drug store and telephoned to Jim Goodwin.

"He's coming. I knew he would," he told Ann Marie when he got back to the flat. "He'll be here at seven."

Early in the afternoon Ann Marie began to get ready for him.

While Neal took a Sunday afternoon nap on the narrow bed in his dressing closet, she dusted the big studio and set the small table before the fireplace for three.

Then she went out to shop for things for a cold supper. Rye bread and thin slices of boiled ham. Roquefort cheese and olive oil and a big head of lettuce for salad. Six rolls and a half-pint of cream for coffee.

Ann Marie had to break another $5 bill to pay for the things. She stood beside the counter in the little delicatessen, counting the money that was left in her handbag . . . She had spent almost $20 for food in three days!

She had known that Neal was "broke," and so she had said nothing about splitting their expense fifty-fifty, but had bought all the food they had eaten and paid for it herself.

"But I won't be able to do it much longer," she thought dismally, "unless Jim Goodwin does find some work for me to do."

Back in her own little apartment she opened her trunk and took all of her drawings from the bottom of it. She frowned as she looked them over. Once she had thought they were very good, but now they struck her as being ordinary and flat-looking.

But she took them with her when she went into Neal's flat at 6 o'clock and began to get the supper.

He had gone out and had bought the Sunday papers in her absence. They were strewn all about him on the floor now, and he was smoking a cigaret, dropping the ashes on the rug.

"Neal, you ought to get dressed. It's almost time for Jim to get here." Ann Marie said to him at 10 minutes to 7. "And I must pick up those papers, too, if you don't mind."

"Gosh, you look pretty in that little apron," he said. "You look like somebody's cute little wife."

But he didn't get out of his chair to dress.

At five minutes to 7 Ann Marie spoke to him again.

"Neal, I hate to have Jim Goodwin see this place looking so untidy," she said, pleadingly. "Please do go and put on your coat and a clean collar, and let me clean things up."

A blank expression came into his face.

"Gosh, I don't own a clean collar," he said. "I forgot to go to the Chinaman's for my laundry yesterday. His shop's over on Charles street. I suppose, if you went to the back door, he'd give you my clean collars, wouldn't he?"

Three minutes later Ann Marie was out in the wind-washed street, racing along towards the Chinaman's shop. She found it, went down a narrow little alley, and knocked on the back door.

She waited in the darkness while he hunted through dozens and dozens of marked bundles of laundry. At last he found Neal's and brought it to her.

It was a big one with shirts and undersuits and handkerchiefs in it, along with the collars. Ann Marie gave the Chinaman a two dollar bill and started back to Susquehanna hall.

As she opened the door of the dimly-lighted vestibule a big shining car came swinging into the street—Jim Goodwin's car.

Ann Marie saw it and flew up the stairs as fast as she could fly. She didn't want Jim to see her, carrying this big bundle of washing into the building.

"Hurry up and dress! Jim's here!" she said breathlessly to Neal when she reached the flat on the top floor, and thrust the bundle into his arms.

She had her coat and hat off, and her apron on, by the time Jim's knock came on the door. Her run in the cold wind had whipped bright color into her cheeks and there were stars in the depths of her eyes.

She didn't know what a picture she made when she opened the door and stood there against the candlelight of the room behind her.

And a smile was in Jim Goodwin's steady brown eyes as he took the hands she held out to him.

"It's fine to see you again," he said.

It was fine to see him again, Ann Marie told herself. She had forgotten how nice his voice was and how easy it was to talk to him. He struck her now as being a very comfortable sort of person to be with.

She had been half afraid to see him again, and Neal had said he was in love with her—"hay-wire" over her, as Neal had put it.

But now that she was with him, she wasn't the least bit afraid of him. She simply felt friendly and happy and contented, somehow.

"I'm getting supper," she said to him, vanishing for a moment behind the screen. "That is, I'm making coffee. I bought everything else at a store down the street."

As soon as she had said that she was sorry . . . She had not meant to tell Jim or anybody else that she was paying for the food that was set out on Neal's table these days.

But Jim didn't seem to notice it.

"I'm sure it will be very good coffee," he answered cheerfully. "Do you mind if I smoke my pipe?"

Ann Marie came out from behind the screen.

"No. I love to see a man smoke a pipe," she said, filling the water goblets on the table. "It looks so—Oh, I don't know—Anyway, I like to see a man smoking one."

She watched him light his and settle down in a big chair near the fireplace.

"Neal will be here in a second," she said. "He's putting on his coat."

She could feel his eyes on her as she turned away from the table and began to stack the folded Sunday papers at one end of the long table in the middle of the room.

"Where do you live? In this building?" he asked, after a long silence and she nodded.

"Next door."

Another silence.

"Neal says you want to get some work," he said next. "He thought you might be able to do some pictures for a child's book, or something like that."

"Oh, I couldn't! I'm not good enough—not yet!" And Ann Marie's face flamed. "You see, I thought if I could get to a school where they taught drawing and painting for a while—"

She broke off in the middle of a sentence. Then, after a moment, she went on:

"I know I can paint pretty well—but not well enough. So I thought, if I could get some work and pay my way through a good art school of some kind, perhaps I would be able to make money painting later on."

Jim nodded. But before he had time to answer her the door of the dressing closet opened and Neal came out into the room. He had on a clean collar and shirt.

Ann Marie watched the two men shake hands.

"Sit right down at the table," she said to them. "Everything is ready but the coffee."

She turned to get it. But Jim was too quick for her.

"Here, I'm the butler in this outfit," he said, and brought the pot to the table.

He held her chair while she sat down.

Neal never had done that for her, she couldn't help thinking as she began to pour the coffee.

Neal never did anything for her, as a matter of fact. He was one of those careless men who never opens a door for a woman or helps her into an automobile, or holds a chair for her at the table . . . But then most men were like that, thought Ann Marie, who really knew very little of men . . . Most men were thoughtless and careless creatures. Just big, grown-up boys, that's what they were.

She smiled into Neal's face as she handed him his cup, and all her love for him was in her smile.

"I think Ann Marie would like to read a book for my uncle," Jim said when the little meal was over and the dishes cleared away.

"Read a book?" asked Ann Marie, puzzled.

Neal laughed. She doesn't know what you mean, Jim," he said. "For a girl whose father owns a book store she knows less about books than anybody I ever knew before."

And then he explained what "reading a book" meant.

"Jim's uncle owns a big publishing house, as I told you," he said, while Ann Marie listened intently. And they hire a lot of people to read books to see if they are the kind of books they want to publish . . . And Jim thinks perhaps you'd like to read one for his uncle's company."

Ann Marie shot a quick glance at Jim from her corner of the sofa. He was smiling at her in his friendly, kind way.

"You say, yourself, that you aren't ready to try your hand at real pictures yet," he said to her, "and you do want to make some money. So if you want to read and shorten up a book for us, I'll be glad to fix it up for you. It would be a child's book in all probability."

Ann Marie sighed doubtfully. She wasn't sure that she could do that sort of work. And yet she needed money.

"Then there's another thing. You could do advertising drawings for a company I happen to know about," Jim added. "Black-and-white sketches of girls in fashionable dresses—"

"Oh, yes, I could do that! I know I could!" sang out Ann Marie, all self-confidence suddenly. "That's the sort of thing I really can do!—Wait! I'll show you my drawings . . ."

As she started across the big shadowy studio there came a loud pounding on the door that led into the hall. There was a sound of voices out on the landing. High, shrill voices and a sudden shriek of laughter.

"Visitors," said Ann Marie, stopping in her tracks. "Oh, isn't that too bad! We were having such a nice time, weren't we?"

Neal stood up and walked to the door.

"It's a lot of people who live in this neck of the woods," he said. "They're not bad."

He opened the door.

DAVID BRANCH'S DAILY FILOSOFY

"He who cries, 'it can't be done' insults his God and damns (stops the growth of) his own soul."

There is nothing desirable that is impossible for men to achieve through faith and obedience to God's will. The man who is without faith himself and denies it in others eliminates himself from the Father's favor, until he repents of his error. With God all things are possible.

The Once Over

By H. I. PHILLIPS

Brokers' Views on the Market Future

Tweekle, Tittlebaum & Fonk: We believe the recent debacle was a good thing for the market and for the country. Thousands of people who had been treating their jobs as of secondary importance can now go back and do a little work. It will be a great benefit to amateur art in America, too, as countless persons who have been using their pencils to figure up paper profits on the backs of envelopes can now return to the good old practice of drawing funny faces.

PHILLIPS

Gook, Haywire & Schmalz: We see nothing to worry about. Stocks are down where they ought to be and so are the players. We regard the break as having come just in time to dispose of the conviction that the cookoo was America's national bird. Two more months of making crazy calculations on tablecloths and there wouldn't have been a dozen sane men left in the country. Nor a clean tablecloth.

Biffle, Waffle & Wimp: No matter what you may think of the market collapse, it must be pretty generally admitted that it will be a great thing for conversation. With chatter almost completely limited to stock dividends, split-ups, brokers' loans, the rediscount rate and the question whether the sausage industry merger would go through or not, it had become very difficult for a man with something really interesting to say to get a hearing at any gathering. Bridge games were becoming an intolerable bore with one's partner yawping on about his profits in public utilities, you couldn't play golf without hearing eighteen holes of merger prospects, and even at weddings the parson frequently forgot his lines and asked the bride, "What do you think about the steels?" It was high time the country got back to talking about something else and the market break will make America a better place to live in.

Speevis, Zilch & Applebaum: We look for a period of uncertainty in the market and a return of the American family to the small-car class, with less emphasis on the electric cigar-lighter, vanity-case and trunk-carrier. Certain stocks will advance and certain stocks will not, but we feel safe in predicting that hunters for bargains in slightly used yachts are going to run into amazing opportunities. It is all just as well. Our harbors were becoming too crowded with boats exceeding 35 feet over-all, anyhow, and the empty gin bottles on the beach in the morning were a constant menace to bathers.

Civilization Was Built on Wheat

Although wheat's original home is not known exactly, it was probably a native of western Asia. It is difficult to find any authentic information about the true beginning of this valuable and most important cereal because it was cultivated long before recorded history or even historical tradition. Even the oldest of monuments show that wheat must have been an important article of food before they were constructed.

The Greeks had a legend that the Demeter or Ceres presented it to them as a divine gift. Among the Chinese it is also held to be a direct gift from an obliging heaven. We have found evidence in the shape of charred leaves that it was known as early as the stone age by some of the lake dwellers in Switzerland, and the Chinese were known to be cultivating it 3,000 years before the Christian era. Wheat was unknown in America before the coming of the Spaniards.

It is interesting to note while studying the romance of wheat that white flour is not a modern discovery. The sifting away of the outside of the grain was practiced during the more prosperous years of the Greeks and Romans. Even the Gauls used a bolter made of woven horsehair. The sieves of Spain were made of flax, while the Egyptians used screens made of papyrus and rushes. The oldest grinders, of course, were men's own molars, and some of the early skulls show the grinding teeth worn down as though they had actually been used to grind hard grain for a long period. However, the grinding or milling goes back beyond history. It has written its own history in the smooth grinding stones which we have found. They are romantic and beautiful reminders of a time when man's tools were crude—of a people that are gone, though their implements remain. It is as though man learned to take up a rock and grind his grain before he learned to take his pen in hand and write.

The first special grinder was a hollow stone upon which the grain was placed and rubbed or pounded by another smaller stone held in the hand. The next improvement was to put two round stones together with a hole in the upper one through which the grain could be dropped in. By means of a stick or iron handle, the upper stone was revolved upon the bottom one. This work was usually done by two women, one would push the handle half a revolution and the other would return it. Grinding seems to have been one of woman's most important vocations. After many long and weary years, the women became tired of this job, and we found animals doing the drudgery, and finally man used his brain and harnessed waterpower and steam, and used great rollers to do the grinding. Rollers are even used today in preference to grinders in the majority of mills, especially in the preparation of white flour. However, in producing wholewheat flour it has been found that the bran will be burnt out, due to the heat generated and for this purpose the stone milling system has been recommended, since the flour remains cooler and does not become burned.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Delayed Walking

Question: Mrs. O. L. F. writes—"My baby of a year and four months does not walk, while my other children walked at 14 months. He can stand alone and walks around chairs or other objects. He eats and sleeps well.

Answer—Do not worry too much about your child not walking. No doubt he is just a little late in learning, as is often the case. As he is able to walk around chairs and eats and sleeps well, I feel quite sure there can be nothing organically wrong with him. Keep him on a well balanced diet. Instructions for which I will be glad to send you.

Grape Juice

Question: Mrs. K. G. writes—"I would like to know if grape juice is harmful to people having high blood pressure. I am very fond of it, but having high blood pressure would like to be sure whether or not I should drink it."

Answer—Grape juice is an excellent food drink and when used should be taken in place of a meal or between meals, but not in addition to an ordinary meal. Those with a tendency to high blood pressure should use grape juice to which no sugar has been added.

Dry Skin

Question: Mrs. M. W. asks—"Is excessive dryness of the skin due to a deficiency in the thyroid gland. What is this deficiency, and is there a cure for it at all?"

Answer—Dryness of the skin would not necessarily indicate a deficiency of the thyroid which could only be determined after metabolism tests. You can supply the lack of natural oil somewhat by rubbing olive oil on the skin after bathing and the use of more fats in the diet. It would be impossible to determine the real trouble from the information given in your letter, and a thorough examination would probably be necessary.

The East Moves West

Harvard and the Army move west this week in one of the leading intersectional excursions of the year. Harvard moves on Michigan and the Army unfolds its tents upon the plains that surround Bob Zuppke's stronghold at Illinois.

Michigan hasn't set the West on fire this season, but there is still good stuff playing under the Maize and Blue that might hit its stride at any moment. Illinois looks stronger than the Army, but there is always Cagle to reckon with. Zuppke has prided himself upon his ability to rig up a defense that will stop any star, and it will be interesting to see what he can do against this elusive back, aided by Murrel and others. The Illinois jump comes in the line where the Orange and Blue should have a decided advantage—and a line advantage is always a large one.

Illinois is one of the strong teams of the conference—while Michigan has yet to hit its expected pace. It will be interesting to see what young Willie Heston can do in his first intersectional shot. Old Willie would have given one of his arms to carry the ball against Harvard, Yale or Princeton 25 years ago, but he was never given the chance.

The Michigan coaching staff will have had two weeks in which to oil the machinery and get it spinning, while Harvard will face its fourth hard battle in a row—Army, Dartmouth, Florida—and then Michigan.

On the same Saturday Minnesota gets its hardest test against Iowa, the team that is now waiting to spill both Minnesota and Purdue, who have been leading the conference march most of the year. The best that Illinois could get in Iowa City was a draw—and Minnesota's big team will need everything it has to do any better.

"Heston, Heston!"

Dear Sir: The Old Trapper removed his pipe.

He was suggestively Coleridge—the "long, gray beard and glittering eye" type.

"Listen, stranger," quoth he. "Thare was a heap o' raw, naked drammer a-packed into that Michigan-Ohio skirmish." And he sketched it roughly for me as follows:

Michigan was trailing, 7 to 0, with two minutes of the first half left. A quick, high-strung, slender youngster raced onto the field, and promptly the Michigan stadium, jammed with its 90,000 spectators, roared its first official welcome to Willie Heston Jr. Willie had gotten into earlier games for a few minutes, but now the full-throated acclaim of the Big Mob greeted him, and greeted him royally. Wasn't he the Old Man's son?

On the first play Willie was given the ball, and he whirled, sidestepped, twisted and slashed his way forward 12 yards—the longest gain his team had made from scrimmage. Now the 90,000 arose to their feet in a flash and across a Michigan gridiron for the first time in 25 years came the once familiar cry of "Heston, Heston!" reverberating again and again. This was the real thing, a spontaneous tribute to an old name, but a new bearer.

When the second half began Willie was "in there," and he gained more ground in the next 30 minutes than the entire Ohio squad had done in the full 60. Would any fiction writer dare to aspire to such heights for his heroes?

Young Heston ducked and dodged his way around left end and through the line time and again for substantial yardage. Only Fesler, Ohio's grim all-America at right end, stopped him consistently. Once Willie was almost loose, and as he sped over 25 yards of turf, "Heston, Heston!" became the chant-and war cry of the present generation, just as it had served 25 years before. Another time Willie gathered in a pass and raced onward for a 40-yard aerial gain as the throng again screamed "Heston, Heston!"

Willie Heston Jr., son of the only and incomparable Willie Heston, one of football's all-time three or four greatest stars, had found a friendly welcome and had delivered the goods. How the heart of that great warrior of a quarter of a century ago, now a spectator, must have gone out to the high-strung, nervous, colorful boy down there who was playing his own position, left half, for the Wolverines.

Right now young Heston looks like one of the best ball carriers in the Middle West. Speed is his keynote, and 165 pounds of the latest deluxe edition of Hestons fairly quivers until it is buried beneath an avalanche of opposition.

C. B.

This football situation can change in a hurry. Four weeks ago Princeton and Michigan were rated up with the best. Then in six games, between them, they got one tie and five defeats. Both Princeton and Harvard were rated big favorites over Yale in early October, but early November has brought on a new setting.

After a breathing spell against Drake next Saturday, Notre Dame then moves against Southern California, Northwestern and the Army for a drive down the stretch, where the far-away westerners look to be the tallest barrier left in the road.

Eight Lettermen Will Be Back on Texas Net Squad

AUSTIN, Nov. 3. (AP)—Eight lettermen from last year's championship team form the nucleus of one of the strongest tennis squads ever to represent the University of Texas, long famous for its net stars.

Berkeley Bell of Austin, national intercollegiate champion, captain of the team and Bruce Barnes, also of Austin, who beat Bell in the Southwestern conference tournament last spring, is giving the captain a race for No. 1 honors.

Other veterans engaging in intensive practice under Dr. D. A. Penick are Earl Taylor of Austin, Lucien LaCoste of San Antonio, W. T. Johnson of Gainesville, J. B. Caldwell of Austin, David Minchen of Houston and Searcy Ferguson of Dallas.

Enrollment in Tennessee high schools more than doubled between 1919 and 1928.

SAM MANDELL VS. M'LARNIN

Flyweight Tourney Slated At Garden

NEW YORK, Nov. 3. (AP)—Despite the appearance in the Middle West of two world's champions, Jackie Fields and Sammy Mandell, the fistic spotlight this week will center on New York where a flyweight tournament designed to bring about the crowning of a generally recognized champion will begin at Madison Square garden tomorrow night.

Eight 112-pounders, one of them from France, will participate in the tournament with the winners of the 10 round bouts on tomorrow's card meeting in the semi-finals. Survivors of that round will clash over the 15-round route in the finals.

French Boxer Bids

Chief attention has been directed toward Eugene Huat, of France, European title-holder, who meets Izzy Schwartz of New York in the windup. Midget Wolgast of Philadelphia battles Johnny McCoy of Buffalo; Willie Davies, Charlerio, Pa., takes on an old foe in Black Bill of Cuba, and Ruby Bradley, Holyoke negro, clashes with Ernie Peters of England.

Huat and Davies are favored by most experts to reach the final round with the Frenchman expected to take the title, now lacking any generally recognized holder.

In Chicago tomorrow night, Mandel, the lightweight champion, meets Jimmy McLarnin, Los Angeles slugger, in a 10-round bout at 145 pounds. Mandell gave McLarnin a boxing lesson when Jimmy sought to relieve the champion of his laurels at New York last year, but he might find the coast lad harder to beat at the heavier weight.

Fields, the welterweight champion, takes on Dummy Mahan, tough deaf mute boxer from the Pacific coast in a 10 rounder at Kansas City tomorrow night.

Another all-star card will attract fans to the Philadelphia arena tomorrow. Sammy Baker, erstwhile welterweight contender, meets Young Ketchell of Chester; Joe Dundee, former 147-pound champion, takes on Billy Angelo of Leiperville, Pa., and Bruce Flowers, New Rochelle, N. Y., negro lightweight, faces Pinkey Kauffman of Hartford, Conn., in the three main 10-round bouts.

George Godfrey, negro heavyweight, returns to the ring at Boston Thursday night in a 10 rounder with Jimmy Byrne of Boston. Another negro, Kid Chocolate, Cuban featherweight, returns to the ring wars in a 10 rounder with Johnny Erickson of New York at the Olympia A. C., New York, Saturday night.

Kiwanis Club to Name New Officers Today

In place of the usual program of instruction and entertainment, annual election of officers and directors will be held at the weekly meeting of the Kiwanis club at the Kemp hotel Monday noon, according to Roy Haynes, secretary.

Homer Sanderford is the present head of the club.

Southern Methodist Grid Captain

Southern Methodist, always a strong gridiron threat and bidding strong for Southwest conference championship since the tie with Texas U. on Saturday, is captained by Choc Sanders, 6-foot Indian guard.

Mustangs Game With the Longhorns Fails to Brand Them as Champions

By GAYLE TALBOT JR.
Associated Press Sports Writer

DALLAS, Nov. 3.—Except to remove Southern Methodist university fairly definitely from the list of outstanding contenders for the Southwest conference title, Saturday's warfare did little toward clarifying the conference race.

Although the Mustangs managed to play a scoreless tie with the powerful Texas university Longhorns in the week's big skirmish, the Methodists showed nothing to brand them championship material. They were roundly outplayed. Their disappointing showing made it evident that the fight is a three-cornered one between Texas, Baylor and Texas Christian.

Even though their draw with S. M. U. toppled the Steers from the conference pinnacle, the concensus was that the big Orange machine today has the inside track. It has gone half way through its conference schedule without meeting defeat. Baylor and T. C. U. still have the heavy end of their program before them, and both have to face the Longhorns at Memorial stadium, Austin.

The Arkansas Razorbacks were the only conference members to improve their position Saturday. The Porkers 32 to 0 victory over Louisiana State on a muddy field at Shreveport brought their standing up to .500 per cent.

Rice Has Dismal Season

Rice continues to have one of its most dismal seasons. St. Edward's university, the team that Jack Meagher left to take up the reins at Rice, trimmed the Owls, 20 to 7, at Houston. The Saints hard plunging backs ripped up the Rice defenses.

Baylor, Texas Christian and the Aggies romped through their last warm-up battles without breaking their stride. Led by Cy Leland, who ran wild to score three touchdowns, the Frogs defeated the North Texas Teachers, 25 to 0, at Fort Worth. Baylor, apparently recovered from its daze of the previous week, stopped Texas Tech, 34 to 0. The Aggies overwhelmed Stephen F. Austin, 54 to 0, using a flock of substitutes.

Texas-Baylor Game

Next Saturday the spotlight will play on the Texas-Baylor conflict at Austin, featuring two of the circuit's outstanding elevens. It will be the first crucial test for the Baylor machine that started the season a topheavy favorite to capture the title, but which since has shown symptoms of missing on from one to three cylinders.

If Baylor wins, as any number of observers believe it will, the Bears will regain all their lost prestige and again stand out as the big threat. The victor, whichever it is, will be favored to scrap it out with T. C. U. for the title. Texas, playing in its home stadium and with a superior record behind it against the major elevens, probably will enter the game a slight favorite.

Perryton Training For Armistice Day Battle With Pampa

Special to The Record News

PERRYTON, Nov. 3.—Preparations are being made here for the hardest fought game of the season and many thrills are promised on Nov. 11, when the strong Pampa Harvesters come here to battle the Perryton Rangers. Both will be fighting for a higher step in the race for class B honors in the state race of the Interscholastic league. The Harvesters will also be fighting to revenge the 17 to 7 defeat handed them on their own gridiron last year by the Rangers.

Both teams have been training for weeks just for this one game, and both teams will be keyed to top form for the battle. The Pampa team has the advantage in weight, and reports are that Coach Mitchell's Harvesters are not only big but fast. Coach Shupe of the Rangers will have to use all his skill and cunning, to overcome the advantage of the Harvester's weight. Local fans are looking for a real battle but they will not concede a victory for the Harvesters. Barring accidents in the game early next week with the Borger eleven, the Rangers should take the field in good shape.

W. Texas Teachers Trim the Daniel Baker Bills 7-0

CANYON, Texas, Nov. 3.—The West Texas State Teachers college defeated the Daniel Baker Hill Billies in a very spectacular game of football here today 7 to 0 the game was played as the annual home coming for the West Texas alumni and ex-students both teams threatened repeatedly to score but when the goal line was approached the team on defense would tighten up and hold.

Taylor halfback of Daniel Baker was the best ball carrier for the visitors while Miller at guard was cutstanding for the Buffaloes. Gerald was again the outstanding man carrying the ball approximately three out of four times and never was thrown for a loss on most plays he netted substantial gains. His passing to Bandy resulted in the touchdown that gave the Buffaloes the game. Jones played a steady game at quarter and kicked the extra point after touchdown tie. Blocking by Newman and Powell was outstanding. Logan played the best for the Buffs in the line while the work of both lines was outstanding. The Buffaloes first downs 10, passes 15 attempted, 3 complete for 27 yards. Intercepted 1 for a touchdown, yards gained 211, punts 13 times for an average of 27 yards, penalties 3 for 15 yards.

Hill Billies first downs 7, passes 19 attempted, 3 completed for 79 yards, two intercepted, penalties six times for 30 yards, punts 16 times for an average of 28 yards, fumbles twice and lost both times.

Coach Dutch Smith's Amarillo Golden Sandies took undisputed possession of the district 1 first place by virtue of their 13 to 7 win over Coach Frankas' Lubbock Westerners. This game was the first real test of the year for the Sandies and they were hard pushed to win. As a result of their victory, the Amarillo eleven became heavy favorites to win the district rag. Coach Stanford's Electra Tigers walloped the Plainview Bulldogs, 18 to 0, and Coach Barry Holton's Coyotes showed a sudden reversal of form from the previous week at Wichita Falls by taking Coach Hienie Wier's Vernon Lions into a 14 to 0 camp. Teams on the home field seemed to have the advantage over the visiting team.

No other team in the remaining district schedule is conceded a ghost of a chance to defeat the Sandies. With an all-star backfield and a capable line along with plenty of excellent reserve power the Sandies are proclaimed the cream of the district. In her remaining three games with district foes the Smith charges have no set up. Electra, Vernon, and Wichita Falls taking on the Sandies in the order named. The Coyotes are the most serious threat of the lot.

Three teams are in a deadlock for the second place slot. Lubbock, Wichita Falls and Electra, all are tied with two won and one loss. One of these four remains idle this week and either Wichita Falls or Lubbock will occupy the runnerup slot. Plainview is expected to give the Wichita Falls Coyotes a stiff battle while Amarillo is taking on the scrappy Electra Tigers. Vernon meets Lubbock in the other game of the week-end.

The hardest game of the week-end will probably be between the Lions and the Westerners. Both teams had strenuous games last week and both came out of the scrap defeated but not discouraged. This game is likely to furnish the feature game of the week.

Quanah maintained her pace last week by dropping a heated contest to Olney High school in a non-conference scrap, 20 to 0. Olney is an undefeated member of district three, class B and is considered a strong team. Quanah again remains idle this week while watching some other members of the district fly at each other's throat.

Sport Loose Ends

By W. G. CHAMBLESS

A strange metamorphis has come over the Wichita Falls Coyotes. Last week against the Electra Tigers they fought a timid and cautious game, sometimes approaching the point of shyness. Saturday against the Vernon Lions the Coyotes launched out boldly and played an aggressive, wide-awake, up and at 'em and fight 'em game. The tackling and blocking were well nigh perfect. Never have we seen surer or harder tackling in prep school football. It was a beautiful sight to see those Coyotes leave their feet and sail with all their fury through the air and make a long shoestring tackle. And when the Coyotes tackled Saturday they stayed tackled. So strong and effective was this department of the Coyote game that the Vernon backs found it difficult to initiate their offense and get it started beyond the line of scrimmage. Again and again the Lion ball toters found themselves downed behind their own line of scrimmage before they could get going.

What a contrast in the playing of the Wichita Falls High school football team of last Saturday and the playing of the same team Saturday before last! If the team could show the same improvement during the remainder of the season that they showed during the interval of time between the Electra game and the Vernon game, well, we tremble to prognosticate the future for them. Such a contingency, not at all improbable, would easily place the Pack back in the running for District 1 honors.

In the glamorous march of recent football affairs we have seen nothing and can conceive of nothing more futile than the Vernon Lions' football team trying to complete a forward pass. Like the moth futily wearing out its life buzzing against a window pane, the Lions almost fruitlessly wasted their time trying to work their aerial attack. Though it is erroneous to say that they had an attack for they didn't even have the menace of an attack. They tried no less than 30 passes and completed only two of them. And pitiably enuf at the end of the game they were still attempting passes. The Coyote defense was too strong to permit them ever to threaten with their aerial game.

Speaking of football thrills, the 22,000 fans gathered at Ownby stadium Saturday must have got their's of a life time when Nona Rees, Longhorn quarterback, received the opening kick-off near his own goal line and raced for a sensational 86-yard run through the enemy tacklers to the Mustang 19-yard line before he was finally brought down by Mason. Then the awful 'let down' to the Longhorn partisans when the Mustang line stiffened like taut bands of steel, and the glad elation to the Pony followers when their favorites would not yield to the powerful plunges of the Longhorn backs. It must have been a great game for the players on the field and the spectators in the stadium alike.

The Wichita Falls Junior college Indians are veritably under some black, eniquitous spell, sort of. Either that, or 'Ole man Jinx' has a half Nelson firmly fixed on the Baggett Redskins. Nothing else can explain the situation. The Indians have played a good brand of football, but unquestionably they have played hardluck football, too. The breaks of the game have been every conceivable way but in favor of the Wichita Falls collegians. In games where the Indians have shown an edge on their opponents, they have lost by a shade. Against the Gainesville Tigers Friday the Wichita Falls boys showed a slight superiority over Gainesville team but they lost the game. The Indians made 10 first downs to the Tigers nine and in the punting the Indians had a slight superiority, though the Tigers gained 100 yards off of passes while the visitors gained 96 yards.

If it is not one for the Redskins it's two. When they played Terrell school, the forward wall was only the shell of its regular strength on account of injuries and ineligibility which slashed their ranks for four of the best men. And when they played Friday last their vaunted aerial attack was rendered almost helpless, due to the heavy, muddy field. So it seems as if even the natural elements have contrived in their workings to defeat the Wichita Falls collegians. To this they can only bow in meek subserviency.

TEN-DAY RACE MEET OPENS

Inaugural Program Opens Arlington Downs

FORT WORTH, Texas, Nov. 3 (AP)—Arlington Downs, the scene of the 10-day horse race meeting which will get under way Wednesday, was a popoular point Sunday with motorists. From early until late, thousands of residents of Fort Worth, Dallas and adjacent territory, inspected the $2,000,000 racing plant which is rapidly nearing the final stages of completion.

Those who came early also had the privilege of witnessing a rather unique sight as eight carloads of thoroughbreds were unloaded at the Arlington Downs siding. The consignment, a special made up at Exposition Park, Aurora, arrived late Saturday night, but the work of unloading and placing the racers in their respective quarters did not start until after daybreak Sunday morning. By noon the task was completed and all the new arrivals were safely tucked away in the comfortable, new barns.

Horsemen who traveled on the Pullman coach attached to the special said they had a good trip, leaving Aurora at 2:30 Friday afternoon and arriving at Arlington Downs at 11 o'clock Saturday night.

A large number of thoroughbred stars came on the special including Golrmint, Uluniu, Princeton, Kukui and four other members of the stable owned by Ray Pollard, a resident of Dallas. Pollard had a great season on the Chicago circuit of tracks this year and is eager to show the home folks his string.

There is another Texan who accounted for a number of purses on the Illinois tracks who is anxious to display his thoroughbred wares in this section. This is O. L. Foster of Bridgeport, who has brought the sensational sprinter Old Kickapoo, a four time winner at Aurora this fall. "Cigars that safeguard your peace of mind"

"Smokers of Cremo run no risk of spit-tipped cigars . . . Cremo is certified sanitary and safe," says

Alfred W. McCann

D. Litt., A.B., LL.D., famous pure food expert, long active in crusades for pure foods and sanitary factories.

"You can smoke all the Cremo cigars you want, with complete confidence and peace of mind . . . knowing all the time that every Cremo is made as you would have it made—as safe as certified foods.

"Every tobacco leaf entering the Cremo factory is scientifically treated by U. S. Government approved methods. And every sanitary precaution known to science is taken to safeguard its purity along every step of the way.

"Cremo cigars are folded, wrapped and tipped by amazing inventions without the menace of spit . . . in factories that are models of cleanliness . . . air-flooded, sun-bathed, spotlessly clean!

"This Cremo purity is sealed . . . in separate sanitary foil wrappers. Thus the method of manufacture insures a cigar that aims to give you the same standard of purity as found in certified milk."

* * *

Here's a suggestion deliberately made with the confidence, which you smokers of imported cigars will appreciate: Try a Certified Cremo. You will recognize the superiority of Certified Cremo which starts with the choicest and tenderest leaves, ripe and mellow, and continues in goodness through a slow, expensive maturing and mellowing process . . . topped off with the finest imported wrapper! For 5 cents you get the delight of a high priced cigar, for Certified Cremo contains no scrap—no floor sweepings—all long filler—all fresh, tender leaves. Over $7,000,000 was spent in perfecting the method of manufacture used by Certified Cremo that insures uniformly fine, clean cigars. Foil-wrapped . . . sanitary . . . crush-proof . . . the kind of cigar the late Vice-President Marshall must have had in mind when he said: "What this country needs most is a good 5-cent cigar."

How often have you been disgusted with the filthy, germ-breeding places where some cigars are made . . . dark, stuffy factories . . . warm, dingy shops and windows . . . where cigars are rolled by careless, dirty lips and fingers and spit on the ends! What a far cry this is from the modern method of manufacture used by Certified Cremo.

"I certify Cremo sanitary and clean" Alfred W. McCann

LOOSE MORALS AUGUR DIVORCE

Temperance Secretary Explains Views on Marriage

WASHINGTON, Nov. 3. (UP)—Loose morals—an aftermath of war—are largely responsible for the divorce evil, according to Dr. Clarence True Wilson, general secretary of the Methodist board of temperance, prohibition and public morals.

"It is a deplorable situation when about one-sixth of the marriages land on the rocks," Doctor Wilson told the United Press, commenting on commerce department statistics which showed that in 1928, there was one divorce to every six marriages.

"It is short-sighted policy to abuse divorce. It ought to be called by its right name—unfortunate marriage. Fortunate marriages have no relation to the divorce courts."

Doctor Wilson said bad choices and unequal matings land couples in separations and divorces. He said that the excessive use of cosmetics by young girls, extreme style and the sowing of wild oats by youths, lead to bad choices.

"The place to remedy it is at the marriage altar or before. It is too late when the divorce is pending.

"You can't sow your wild oats as young men and have the girls imitate the young men's vices, obliterating moral distinctions and throwing to the wind conventions, and promise happy marriages to anybody."

Doctor Wilson said he believed there were signs of better conditions in the future.

"The press is toning up public sentiment, the church is becoming more outspoken against vice and physicians are warning women smokers that although men have furnished all the deaths through cancer of the tongue, mouth and throat, this disease will break out among women if they become tobacco addicts," he said.

"But all in all, there is a better moral sentiment and increasing concern for higher moral standards, a better standard among men and marked improvement in the enforcement of the prohibition law, which is a symptom of better, more patriotic, more loyal and more law-abiding sentiment."

FOUR BIBLE CLASSES HEAR ADDRESS BY JUDGE MARTIN

MANY FAIL IN CITIZENSHIP

Christian's Duty to Church And State Reviewed

"The malady extant in this country to which Chief Justice Taft and President Hoover have called our serious attention is a fundametal one for which the only real and adequate remedy is to be found in the teachings of Jesus Christ," declared Judge P. A. Martin Sunday morning at the Floral Heights Methodist church in an address before members of the Floral Heights Methodist, Kay, Grace Methodist, and Highland Heights Christian church men's Bible classes.

"We are not only refusing to render unto God the things that are God's but we are failing to pay the tribute due our government, national and state. Not only falling down in our duty as citizens of the kingdom of God, but in our responsibility as citizens of this country," the speaker continued.

True Christian's Duties

Refusal to "render to Caesar what is Caesar's" applies not only to reception of criminal law, according to Judge Martin, but to the general citizenship's attitude toward taxation. Practically every man connives to avoid payment of taxes because he knows that the other fellow is doing the same thing, the speaker declared.

"The true Christian loves God, his fellowman, and his country, and follows the golden rule toward God and man because of that love," the speaker concluded.

The full text of the address follows:

"The general topic of this quarter's lessons is Christian citizenship; the duty a Christian man owes to his country and his fellow man. There is no uncertainty about the teachings of Christ and the sacred writers upon the subjects. Christ said in regard to paying tribute to the Roman government 'render unto Caesar the things that are Caesar's.' The Apostle Peter quoted in today's lesson says 'submit yourselves to every ordinance of man for the Lord's sake' and the Apostle Paul says 'render therefore to all their dues; tribute to whom tribute is due, custom to whom custom; fear to whom fear; honor to whom honor.' So we see that obedience to law is one of the demands of Christian citizenship.

"If it were the duty of the Asiatic Jew to pay tribute to the Gentile government of Rome, in obedience to a Roman emperor, as a Christian duty, how much more is it the duty of Christian Americans, who make their own laws through their representatives in congress and the state legislatures to honor and obey the laws of their free country.

Lawless People

"We people in America are widely advertised as the most lawless people in the world, on account of our record of crime; such high authorities as Chief Justice Taft and President Hoover have publicly called our attention to our criminal record, the latter in a memorable utterance giving expression to the fear that we are slipping from our very foundations as a people and an able commission under his direction are even now studying the question from every angle, seeking a way out of the obloquy into which we seem to have fallen.

"I am personally of the opinion that conditions can be somewhat improved by certain changes in the laws of the land but the only real and adequate remedy is to be found in the teachings of the Christ, as set forth in Holy Writ. I think the malady is fundamental. We are not only refusing to render unto God the things that are God's but we are failing to pay the tribute due to our government, national and state. Not only are we failing down in our duty as citizens of the kingdom of God but we are failing far below our duty and responsibility as citizens of our country.

"In the matter of paying our just share of taxes we might well be described as a nation of liars and perjurers. Under the blasting influence of an antiquated system of taxation here in Texas millions and millions of dollars worth of property escapes taxation year by year, while the poor man, with his little home, has to pay because his property is visible and pay till he is bled white. It is not wonderful that we hear so much complaint about high taxes when the man who cannot hide his wealth pays it all or practically all of it. And of late we have the sorry spectacle of different counties in different portions of the state vieing with each other it, the effort to see how little they can pay into the state treasury, by reducing valuations just as low as they can to meet the budget of local expenses and the fellow who secures the deepest dig into the taxable values is a public hero. We all beat our taxes because the other fellow does it. We lie to the tax assessor because we know if we tell the truth and render all our taxable property we will pay far more than the other fellow does in proportion and we justify our mendacity by the reflection we probably do not take from our Caesar more of his tribute than the average fellow situated as we are. A few years ago the legislature of Texas passed a full rendition bill, requiring all property in the state to be rendered at its market value. It is a dead letter because no county in the state would enforce it, and it has remained on the statute books of the state, a monument to the dishonesty of the people. Of course our unscientific system invites and rewards just such infamies as this. If all the counties in the state were to enforce it there would be no injustice in it but unless they all join in it there would be such glaring injustice that our people would revolt.

Other Tributes Due

"But it is not in taxation alone that we are robbing our Caesar of the tribute justly due. Men dodge jury duty, as I happen to know and dodge duty when serving on the jury. They also dodge the duty of voting an intelligent ballot at our frequent elections. Quite recently two important constitutional amendments were submitted in Texas and not 20 per cent of the voters of the state took sufficient interest in them to cast a vote for or against them.

"And it has happened more than once in our history that men of low standards have been elevated to high places of authority by appeals to the lowest and basest passions and prejudices of the electorate. No we do not render the tribute at the ballot box that our country needs and demands, for the best results.

"But perhaps the most dangerous tendency of the times is the widespread contempt for the restrictions of law classified as police regulations; included in such classifiation is the law against gambling, against smuggling, national and state prohibition and other laws regulating human conduct outside of the domain of things prohibited in the decalogue, yet necessary for the peace and good order of society. The fact that so-called Christian men indulge in such things is an everlasting reproach to the church of God and the fact that we look lightly upon such violations of the law of the land is a stigma upon our entire citizenship.

"The conclusion of the whole matter is that the true Christian loves God; loves his fellowman; loves his country and cheerfully bears his part of the burdens of his citizenship. He obeys the laws of God because of his love and reverence for Him. He follows the golden rule in his conduct toward his fellowman because he loves Him. He obeys, honors and respects the constituted authority of his country because he loves his country and because he cannot please God otherwise. He 'renders unto Caesar the things that are Caesar's and unto God the things that are God's.'"

Drop in Cotton Market Reduces Charge Held Against Man

STILLWATER, Okla., Nov. 3. (UP)—Lewis White was informed by authorities here that a drop in the market price of cotton saved him from a grand larceny charge.

White was arrested on a charge of stealing cotton valued at $20.12 last Oct. 8. At that time the market price was 16¼ cents a pound. A charge of grand larceny threatened, authorities told White when the price of cotton placed the valuation of the stolen goods well above $20.

When the preliminary hearing was called, however, the market had slumped, White's alleged theft amounting to less than $20 and he was arraigned only on a misdemeanor charge.

VESSEL SAVES LOST SEAPLANE

Norwegian Freighter Picks Up Naval Flier

NORFOLK, Va., Nov. 3. (AP)—Lost in the clouds with his fuel supply running low, Ensign George P. Hatfield, pilot of the naval seaplane reported missing Saturday on a flight from Philadelphia to Norfolk landed his plane alongside the Commodore Rollins, Norwegian fruit steamer, 15 miles off the Virginia capes Saturday night shortly after 7 o'clock.

Learning his position, Ensign Hatfield requested that he be towed inside the capes and the little fruit steamer, bound from Philadelphia to British Honduras, took the seaplane in tow.

Hatfield, with his two companions, aviation machinists mate, J. F. Reeves, and Radioman K. Hair, remained aboard their craft after it was taken in tow.

Since the rescue steamer had no wireless, news of the safety of the missing plane and its occupants was first received at the Hampton Roads naval air station early this morning when five searching planes, which shoved off from the local air station at dawn, sighted the steamer with the missing plane in tow.

Showmen Weep at Rites for Slain Man

EL PASO, Texas, Nov. 3. (AP)—Standing on the bare boards of a platform in a carnival tent Sunday afternoon, where but a few hours before the carnival dancers entertained, the Rev. H. D. Tucker, pastor of the fashionable Asbury Methodist church of El Paso, read a funeral service for Glenn Jones, murdered carnival man with the John M. Wortham shows.

Many of the showmen, traditionally hardened by years of "trouping," wept as Doctor Tucker said, "I do not know this man you have gathered here to honor, but as a Mason he believed in a Heavenly Father. I trust all is well with him now."

Jones was slain Saturday night by two unidentified men who were said to be posing as officers. Police have made no arrests.

The body is to be sent to Waverly, Mo., where Jones' relatives live.

Olney Gets Equipment For Soil Acidity Tests

OLNEY, Texas, Nov. 3.—Equipment for running tests in acidity of the soil for growing legumes has been recently secured by the vocational department of the Olney school. Experiments will be made at once. The seeds are to be furnished the boys in the class free of charge.

Several farmers have already been successful in growing sweet clover, but a thorough test of the soil in the county will be made in order to determine what per cent of acidity it contains. Lime applied to the soil neutralizes the acidity so that legumes may be grown. As such crops are essential to every farm these experiments will prove very beneficial to the farmers throughout the county.

Court to Issue Edict On Car Strike Today

NEW ORLEANS, Nov. 3. (AP)—As efforts to stem the bombings by street carmen sympathizers were continued tonight by shotgun armed police detectives, jitney operators awaited tomorrow a court decision in Public Service's injunction against jitney operations.

No explosive demonstrations were experienced today or last night when first the armed detectives were placed on patrol by Police Superintendent Theodore Ray, who has threatened a shake up in the detective department unless an end is brought to the bombings.

UP FROM THE GRIND ORGAN

MECHANICAL music is a modern convenience, not an artistic triumph. When that truth is appreciated the menacing cloud, now hanging over American music will disappear.

Many a fine talking machine enters a home as an honored guest to be played and played for a week or a month, then to be left in silence except for special moods and occasions. The family's habits of attending places of public amusement to hear Real Music are not changed—or at least are not reduced. Rather, the evidence seems to be that the phonograph in the home serves the laudable purpose of exciting greater interest in the music of theatre and concert hall.

But now comes the promoter of "sound" Pictures who imagines that the same Mechanical Music, available at home for nothing, will thrill theatre patrons just because it is "synchronized with a motion picture." Is that a compliment to the theatre-goer?

The motion picture theatre, in the past, has served the cause of good music wonderfully well by embellishing its program with the human touch of the orchestra and organ. Now, with strange perversity, this same institution aims a devastating blow at cultural progress by introducing a substitute, which, however perfect it may become, can never escape the embarrassment of its blood relationship to the grind organ.

In view of the present plans and developments within the organization, it is reasonable to assume that its activities will continue to expand and the trend of its earnings continue upward. The demand for the Company's services and products has increased out of all proportion to the increase in population.
