

Survey Draws Response

By Sarah L. Durdin

"On weekends, all traffic through the Ski Basin should be restricted to skiers only."

"Widen the channel on the west side of the basin, and remove the fishing piers. The channel is too narrow for even one boat and skier; if two or more get in that area at one time you have a potential disaster."

"Eliminate the skiers and preserve the area for marine life. Allow boats in the launch area only to navigate to the bay. Maintain the area for family activity and persons of all ages."

"Put small bouys along the picnic table side about 30 yards off the beach for swimmers."

"Make skiing a summer sport, say May through September, and allow sailboats and fishing in all areas October through April."

The above are just a few of the suggestions The Pilot received in response to our Speaking Out In Aransas County survey concerning ways to make the Ski Basin a safer place.

The 19 persons answering the survey ranged in age from 22 to 77 years old, and their occupations included retirees, housewives, an export shipper, a corporate vice-president, a car dealer and a meat company manager. The newest resident of Aransas County to fill out the survey had been here four months, and the resident who had been here longest claimed 28 years in the county.

Their responses are presented here, along with the survey questions:

- 1) Do you think the Ski Basin needs more safety measures? Seventeen said yes, two said no.
- 2) Would you be in favor of increasing taxes if they were necessary to increase

Council Number To Be Topic At Next Meeting

The number of members on Rockport's City Council --whether it will be five or seven--will be reconsidered at next week's Charter Commission session.

The decision to reconsider the matter was announced during the commission meeting that began at 7 p.m. Tuesday, August 14.

Also in the August 14 meeting, members of a three-man subcommittee presented a rough draft of the entire proposed charter to the commission for its consideration.

The subcommittee, composed of Larry Boone, Ed Armstrong and Richard McMakin, was charged with reviewing the charter articles as approved in earlier meetings of the charter commission, making any changes they felt necessary and putting the articles together in charter form.

Armstrong told the commission Tuesday the subcommittee did not change anything in substance. Changes made were primarily to correct spelling and errors in grammar to make the charter read smoothly.

Councilman Charlie Garrett attended the Tuesday session of the commission. He told the commission members, "I haven't been for the Charter," and expressed concern over the cost involved, particularly in hiring a city manager.

Commission member Delmar Hiller pointed out the city has a full year in which to implement the charter after its adoption. He also said the charter does not mandate any increases in city expenses.

Commission members pointed out that the city manager--if the charter is approved and this form of government adopted for Rockport--is hired by the city council which sets his salary.

Navigation Board Sworn In Tuesday

Commissioners for the Aransas County Navigation District No. 1 were officially sworn into office August 14, with County Judge John Wendell performing the swearing-in duties and offering the commissioners his congratulations.

Chairman Dave Maguglin opened the meeting, and after canvassing the votes, Wendell swore in Maguglin as commissioner at-large, Jimmy Anders as commissioner of precinct one, Hillis Dominguez as commissioner of precinct two, R.W. Landrum as commissioner of precinct three and Ken Faulkner as commissioner of precinct four.

Commissioners then turned to the business of electing new officers for the next two years. Motions were made and accepted to elect Maguglin as chairman, Anders as vice-chairman and Dominguez as secretary.

The next regular meeting of the navigation district will be held at 7:30 p.m. September 4, at the navigation district office.

Rockport Sales Tax Receipts Up

Rockport is due a check for $19,228.37--the city's August sales tax allocation--State Comptroller Bob Bullock has announced.

This brings the city's sales tax receipts for the first eight months of 1979 to a total of $121,302.56, a 23 per cent increase over the $97,839.77 collected for the same period last year.

The city's tax rebate for August, 1978, was $6,474.24.

In a comparison with other towns and cities in the area, Rockport showed one of the larger gains in sales tax revenues for the first eight months of this year as compared to the same period last year.

Aransas Pass showed an 18 per cent increase this year over last year's collection. Corpus Christi showed a 14 per cent increase for the period, Gregory a two per cent increase and Portland, one per cent.

The one per cent city sales tax is collected along with State taxes by the State Comptroller's office, and the city's share is rebated monthly.

Fulton Council Approves GSM

Fulton City Council members adopted an insurance plan proposed by Glass, Sorenson and McDavid of Rockport for the city Tuesday night.

In other action during the session, the Council canvassed the votes in the Saturday, August 11, city sales tax election. The official count was 103 persons for the tax and 18 against. A total of 121 votes were cast.

She requested anyone who might have information to contact her.

Oil From Mexican Blowout Reported East Of Port Aransas

An L-shaped concentration of oil, with mouse in the leading edge, was reported about 25 miles east of Port Aransas in the latest Coast Guard update Friday morning.

Broken patches of sheen, varying in width from five to 30 miles and about 200 miles long, were reported about 95 miles south of the Louisiana coast. Officials said the origin of these patches was undetermined.

Mousse was reported to be three miles from the shoreline of North Padre Island National Seashore in the general vicinity of Baffin Bay, and a small sheen was reported having gotten past booms into the Laguna Madre.

Officials Friday were working on new boom placements in Mansfield Pass in an effort to halt the flow of oil.

Local Man Among Entries In Key Allegro Fishing Tournament

By Pat Blair

Frank Shumate got hooked on fishing tournaments nine years ago, when he entered the Deep Sea Roundup in Port Aransas.

This year, he's part of that select group--winners of fishing tournaments throughout Texas--who are competing in the third annual Key Allegro Texas Tournament of Champions. The tournament ends Sunday, August 19.

This is Shumate's first year in the tournament which is an invitation-only event for billfishing teams who have already won division or grand championships in other Texas tournaments during the 1977, 1978 or 1979 seasons.

Although new to this year's tournament, Shumate is not new to this area. "My parents have had a house in this area since I was about nine years old," he said. "I've been coming to the coast for about 29 years."

"We love the coast--the easy life, the water, the boats, the relaxed atmosphere...the good life."

"We" includes Shumate's wife, Patti, and his children. He has three, daughters Ann, 18, and Michele, 10, and son Tom, 16.

Shumate said he spends about six months of the year in Rockport. About three months ago, the family acquired a condominium on Key Allegro, "but we've had a house here for years," he added. The part of the year the Shumates aren't in Rockport, they live in Dallas.

Shumate's wife and children are part of the members of his fishing team, which also includes Floyd Appling Jr. of El Campo and Richard Loden. His boat, the "Makaira", was purchased about a week ago.

"I had a 38-foot boat, and a guy made me a deal I couldn't refuse. This is a bigger boat--faster." The 38-footer was also named "Makaira", Shumate said, adding that's the name all of his recent boats have carried.

"Makaira" means

"Marlin" in Latin, he explained, adding, "I got that out of a dictionary." Marlin's are primarily what he's fishing for because "they're the best fighters."

However, he added, he'll take what he can catch. Shumate won the grand championship at this year's Poco Bueno Fishing Tournament in Port O'Connor to assure his place in this year's Key Allegro event. He also finished second in the 1979 Texas Billfishing Championship on the last weekend in June. Shumate said he usually fishes about 50 to 70 miles offshore and admitted he's "semi-superstitious" about the sport. "I sleep on the boat--that's about it," he said.

"We always think we catch more fish if we sleep on the boat."

All boats in the Key Allegro tourney are due back in at 5 p.m. Sunday.

That's when Shumate will learn if sleeping on the boat helped him get the fish he needed this time out...

State Of The Region

Success has to be measured on different scales.

Career-wise, most of us think of success in terms of having a job or position which can lead to greater things and in time pay us handsomely in satisfaction or salary or both. But workers in a program recently instituted count it success if a man or woman works enough of the time to pay for necessities and doesn't find it necessary to steal or commit some other crime.

This is the LULAC Rehabilitation Program for Ex-Offenders. It is financed with Criminal Justice funds and has been underway for six months. Those who are being helped are either probationers, those convicted of a crime and under supervision, or parolees, who have served time for a crime and are now out conditionally, also under supervision.

Each reports to a parole or probation officer. These officers find employment for most of the people under their supervision. But they have a huge case load. They cannot take the time to give individual attention to some ex-offenders who do not have the education, the training, the motivation to get or hold the least demanding of jobs. The Rehabilitation Center is set up to give these people the individual attention required, as an alternative to giving up on them, knowing most of them will commit more crimes and have to be supported in institutions off and on the rest of their lives.

Grace Navarro, director of the program, is a realist. She and her staff recognize the odds. They are frustrated when someone fails to show up for an employment interview after an appointment is made for them, or someone quits a job for a trivial reason. But they feel they can't give up because this is a last resort. Among the difficult things they must do is find a way to try a person in a second, third and fourth job without letting the person get the attitude, "I can quit if I want to, they'll find me another job."

The first thing they do when an ex-offender is referred to them is to have that person fill out a mock application for employment. This tells them immediately whether the person can read and write with understanding.

From there, they can provide or arrange for the counseling, the training, the advice that might make this individual employable. Ms. Navarro says you have to be optimistic and feel, "This time, it will work." There's great thankfulness when it does.

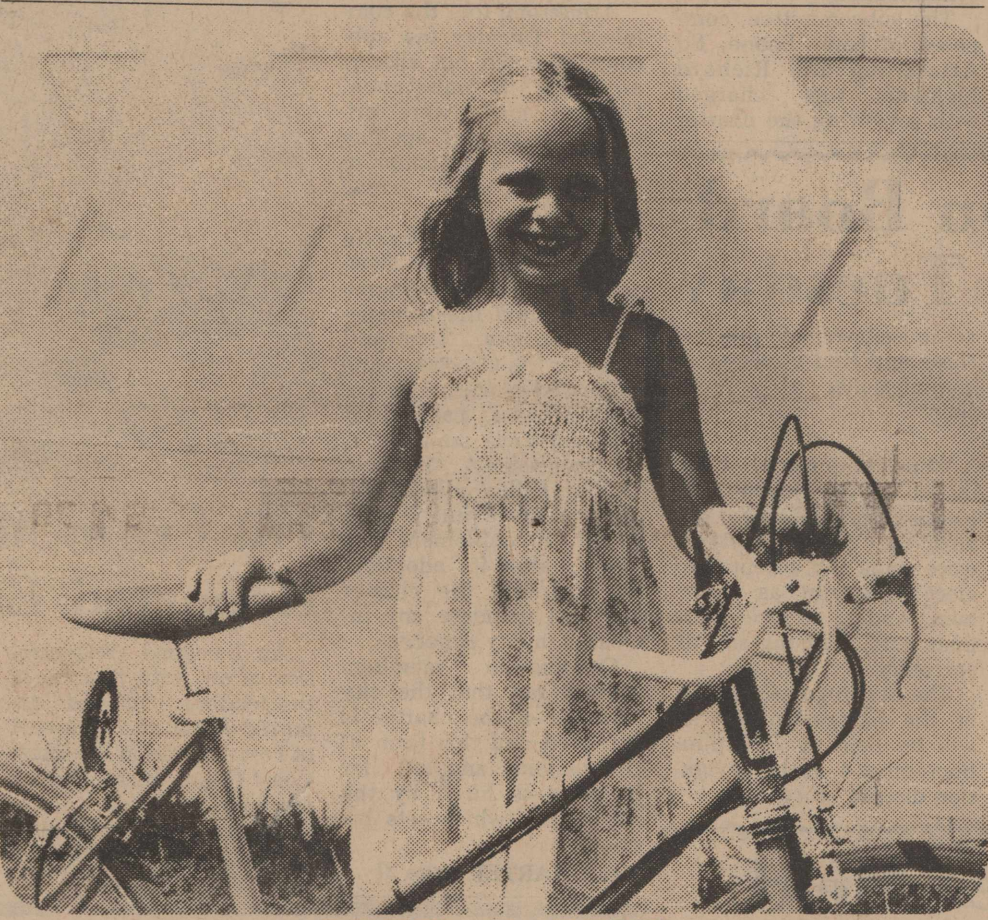

Staff members talk to employers, finding those who are willing to hire an ex-offender. The jobs in question usually are not white collar or skilled. It may be a porter's job or manual labor. An employer who is reluctant to hire an ex-offender may do so after a discussion of the fact that this is a person who has been caught, it is known what he did. That may be more than the employer knows about other applicants.

Staff members have found parolees to be more cooperative than probationers. Apparently, those who have already been in the penitentiary have more incentive to avoid return that those on probation have to stay out.

Ms. Navarro feels experience is teaching her staff possible ways of making the ex-offenders part of the solution instead of part of the problem.

"I FEEL HAPPY"

That was the comment of 8-year-old Dina Hill, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Willie D. Hill of Peninsula Oaks, after she won the second bicycle given away in the Rockport Pilot's circulation contest. Dina spent about two and a half or three hours Sunday afternoon, August 12, selling 15 new subscriptions to The Pilot. Mrs.

Donna Hill, Dina's mother, said, "I'm so proud of her. The only thing I did was drive her around Monday to collect the money [for the subscriptions she sold]." Dina sold all her subscriptions by phone. The contest will continue through September 15, and there are lots more of these 10 speed bikes to be given away...

the safety measures? Thirteen said yes, five said no, and one was undecided.

3) Would you use the Ski Basin more often if the safety measures were increased? Twelve said yes, five said no, and two were undecided.

4) What safety measure do you think would be most effective? (several people chose more than one answer for this question.) Nine people picked answer A: A patrol boat to regulate boat speeds and the number of boats operating in the basin. Two people picked answer B: Restricting certain water sports to specified hours. Nine people chose answer C: Stiff penalties for persons who cause accidents in the basin. Ten people chose answer D: Restrict the various water sports to separate areas of the basin with no overlapping of areas. Twelve people chose answer E: Other.

5) If you chose answer E in question 4, briefly explain the safety measure you prefer, and include the reasons why you think it would be the most effective-brought the following answers:

"Put a sign at the launch ramp to say 'Please operate boats safely' and remove all other restrictions."

"Require a watcher on ski boats, a mirror is inadequate. Outlaw skiing after sundown."

"Allow only skiing, no swimming or sail boats. Permit wade fishermen along the edges but no fishing from boats in the ski area."

"Mark a one-way ski course from starting and stopping points on the east shore, around the center island with channel buoys, and restrict the water skiers to that course, at certain speeds to promote safety."

"Set a minimum age for operators for better experience and reaction time. Stiffly penalize drinking operators."

"Deepen and widen all the basin, and remove all docks. Reduce speed to 30 miles per hour."

6) If you were a boat owner, would you be willing to drive at lower speeds in the Ski Basin? Fifteen said yes, three said no, and one was undecided.

7) If you were a fisherman would you be willing to fish only in certain areas of the Ski Basin? Seventeen said yes, no one said no, and two were undecided.

8) Do you feel the Ski Basin is capable of handling three different water sports: swimming, fishing, and water skiing? Four said yes, fourteen said no, and one was undecided.

9) Do you think widening the channels on either side of the Ski Basin would provide more safety to skiers? Fifteen said yes, and four said no.

10) Do you think the fishing piers on the west side of the Ski Basin create a hazard for skiers? Nine said yes, nine said no, and one was undecided.

11) What do you feel is the change most needed to make the Ski Basin safer, and explain why you think the change is needed-brought the following answers:

"I believe the Ski Basin should be for skiers only, and that other boats should not be allowed in for cruising around or fishing. Boats with skiers would be more considerate of other skiers."

"I feel the Ski Basin cannot handle three sports in the summer. From June to September it should only be used for skiers on the weekends. There is plenty of room for other sports in the bay."

"A Navigation Board at all times alert to our present and future needs."

"Outlaw glass containers on the beach. Broken glass can severely cut feet, and floating bottles can probably kill you if you land on them."

"Enforcement of life preservers on small children is needed."

"We need a check to insure the safety of the boat and the driver."

"Strictly enforce the speed and general safety rules, part-time enforcement is useless."

"Do not allow sailboats and high speed boats in the Ski Basin, restrict it to skiing in wider deeper channels and allow fishing only on the eastern edge."

On the subject of salary, Armstrong said the city of Sinton recently rehired the man who had been its city manager, at a salary of $22,500. Armstrong said he didn't think Rockport would have to pay more than $20,000.

Commission members also pointed out that, as a home rule city, Rockport would be able to annex the oil and gas fields that are now outside but adjacent to city limits in the bay.

As a general law city, Rockport is unable to annex these areas.

Commission members observed that if these fields were annexed, they would generate additional tax revenues for the city.

Bill Walston, acting chairman of the commission Tuesday in the absence of Chairman N.F. Jackson, said Aransas Pass, which is a home rule city, is annexing these fields now. "If we don't do something," he said, "Aransas Pass will be up to your (Garrett's) ward."

Armstrong added Aransas Pass "will be surrounding Rockport before long."

In his appearance before the commission, Garrett also touched on the salary for Council members: "In most of these home rule cities I hear about," he said, "the mayor and councilmen get $1 a year."

Commission members indicated they will reconsider the council's salary at the August 21 charter meeting.

Hiller told the commission he will have a brief summary of the charter ready for presentation at the August 21 session. This is in keeping with the timetable adopted by the commission and leading up to a charter election on November 6.

The November 6 date has not been officially set but is the target date proposed by the charter commission.

Austin— At Wharf

"WE HAVE ROOM FOR BUT ONE LANGUAGE here, and that is the English language, for we intend to see that the crucible turns our people out as Americans, and not as dwellers in a polyglot boarding house."

Theodore Roosevelt said that more than half a century ago and my resurrecting the passage may in some quarters serve to identify me as a cultural chauvinist. Baloney!

Those making the charge, in South Texas at least, are a handful of bandits bent on keeping a prominent segment of the region's people ignorant of English in order that they may better control them.

The simple truth of my stand is realistic recognition of a fact of life: The only way for minority groups to succeed in America is for them to integrate themselves into the economic and cultural mainstream. It has nothing at all to do with renouncing ethnic pride or forgetting one's heritage.

Irish, German and Czechs, all extremely numerous in this area, have not forgotten, are not without pride in their origins, but they have joined the American mainstream and have prospered accordingly.

Citizens of South Texas who elect to see themselves as different, an exception to the Rooseveltian contention, only do themselves a disservice. Hence I might say let them go leave them alone if they want to be that way.

Unfortunately such a stance is costly for the rest of us. Unfortunate, because the Voting Rights Act of 1964 has led to some ridiculous interpretations, the most outstanding example of which is the requirement that legal notices and ballots be printed and published, in this area, in Spanish.

Here we are fortunate because in California several other languages are included, in some parts of the state Tagalog, Cantonese and Mandarin—oh yes, and of course English.

As a newspaperman I should perhaps be envious. Here in South Texas my revenue from legals is only doubled. In California it is increased four and five times! In any event, all this cost comes from the taxpayer's pocket.

NOW I AM NOT ACQUAINTED WITH THE CALIFORNIA Asiatic, although I do know that many of the Filipinos, especially, are field hands or do other forms of common labor and so may become conversant with English very slowly.

On the other hand I know and have known many Asiatics in this country and found them to be hard working and intelligent people who are determined to become thorough going Americans. English has become their first language and many of the younger generation don't learn the language of the old country.

There are amusing aspects to the requirement that legal notices be published in Spanish. In one small community which I know, public officials once drove themselves into a frenzy when they sought someone to translate and write their notices in Spanish. No one was found—until a high school teacher came to the fore.

He didn't have a drop of Latin blood in his veins, incidentally. In any event his ability to write in Spanish provided him with a tidy supplement to his income, $ does, I believe.

I HAVE JUST FINISHED READING A RATHER timely report from Hong Kong. Timely because many members of the Congress have fled the humid banks of the Potomac and are junketing around the world in search of fine cameras, perfume, etc. at low, low prices. For a month they can forget the complaints of their constituents, the energy crisis, the Middle East crisis, and Crises otherwise here and otherwise there. Perhaps the fellows deserve a break, but well paid as they are, I for one am not happy that they junket at my expense—and yours.

There is nothing new about this, not the complaints whispered in confidence by diplomats. It was the same a quarter of a century ago, when I spent my time roaming this world so wide.

When Congressmen junket, diplomats become babysitters, booking accommodations, giving advice as to the best restaurants, the best places to buy, and so on. Their real work necessarily, is neglected. The State Department has no lobby and so depends upon the good will of the Congress. They can't afford to meet Congressman Zilch an hour late at the airport.

However, as I see it, the real rub is in the fact that even the very brightest representative can't learn much in a few days in Tokyo, Singapore or wherever, even and despite the fact that he arrives equipped with the right introductions to the right people. And even that can be dangerous. If I ever perchance hear of a junketing Congressman who speaks Cantonese and spends his time in the bazaars and tea houses instead of the airconditioned lounge of the best hotel or the embassy I'm likely to change my mind about junketing, but until then—well I'm not waiting.

LET ME NOT BE MISTAKEN. I'M NOT PAINTING our foreign service types as abused saints. I've seen their bad side. I well recall a young man enroute to his first assignment in a Middle Eastern country. He was full of ambition and idealism. In the weeks we were together aboard ship I made gentle efforts to get him off Cloud Nine. To no avail.

Six months later I met him again, sadly disillusioned. Among other things he had been severely reprimanded for consorting with the natives and attempting to learn Arabic. In no uncertain terms he'd been advised to improve his French because that was the language of the diplomatic corps in the country, and French was naturally spoken by the natives who counted.—ahab

Letters From Our Readers

Dear Sir,

I was happy to see the recent letter to the editor that focused some needed attention on the loose dog problem in our community, and even more pleased to learn that Councilman Dan Ward is working on a proposed leash law!

The fact that several people have already been bitten is only part of the problem. There are also the messes loose dogs leave on their neighbor's lawns and the trash strewn around the garbage cans they regularly raid. More important, however, is the danger they are to traffic when they chase cars, and the sheer panic they instill when they run barking and snarling up to bicycle riders and pedestrians on the public streets.

Many of our people are elderly. The intense fright of even what appears to be a dog attack could result in a serious fall or even heart failure. Hopefully, we will not need a rabies epidemic, a serious injury or a major law suit for us to realize that a responsible community does not allow loose, uncontrolled dogs to menace its citizens and defile its streets. Dan Ward, I'm with you! s/Dale Rolland

Sheriff's Report

Aransas County Sheriff's deputies were called out for cases of criminal mischief and theft during the week.

Mr. Mandell called deputies August 13, saying someone had sprayed his 1979 black Cadillac Seville with white spray paint enamel. The windshields, top, sides, and tires were sprayed while the car was in the parking area of a local night club. Damages to the car are not yet known.

Gregory Kaminski lost a backpack valued at $200 when he was assaulted at the south end of the LBJ Causeway. Kaminski was transported to Lyman-Roberts Hospital by Officer Oscar Rivera, a trooper with the Texas Highway Department. Deputies are looking for two suspects in the case.

The theft of a 22 Magnum pistol was reported by John Strickland on August 10. Strickland told deputies the pistol, which was taken from the cabin of a boat he is repairing, is valued at $150.

Roy Lee Sarver was arrested on charges of criminal mischief August 10, when H.A. Brundrett advised deputies his boat stalls and office had been damaged. The stalls had trash, oil and paint scattered over them, and some of the windows had been broken out. The walls had also been slashed.

(Hank) Harkins of Alice, an independent producer and drilling contractor.

In addition to paying local, county, and state property taxes, producers in the county also supported state government through production tax payments estimated at $1.3-million, according to the Association. Crude oil taxes amounted to $308,000 while natural gas levies totalled $968,000.

Based on Texas Employment Commission figures, some 169 oil and gas industry employees in the county received wages of about $2.3-million in 1978.

The county's wells produced 721,000 barrels of crude oil, valued at $6.7-million, and 12.8-million Mcfs of natural gas, valued at $12.9-million. Owners of royalty in the county received $2.5-million as their share of the output, the Association said.

"Considering the shortfall in total U.S. petroleum production relative to our nation's energy needs, production from every Texas county is more vitally important today than ever before," said the Association's president, H.B.

Charter Article IX Provides For Boards And Commissions

Articles IX--the shortest in Rockport's proposed city charter--empowers the city council to create "such boards, commissioners and committees as it deems necessary to carry out the functions and obligations of the City."

In giving the council the right to create boards and commissions, article IX also empowers the council to "prescribe the purpose, composition, function, duties, accountability and tenure of each board, commission and committee" unless those things are already set out by the charter or state law.

Under Article IX, any qualified voter in the city may be appointed to "one or more" board, commission or committee.

On compensation, Article IX states: "Except as otherwise provided in this Charter, members of any board, commission or committee shall serve without compensation, but may be reimbursed for actual expenses as approved by the City Council."

The one exception to the rule of "no compensation" is the board of equalization. Equalization members' compensation is provided for in article VIII, "Tax Administration," which states that "members of the board... shall be paid such compensation, if any, as may be determined by the Council."

The charter commission provided for this one exception on the basis that the board of equalization is the one board whose members must meet during working hours--and therefore should receive some compensation to make up for the time they are taking from their regular jobs.

Article IX requires all boards and commissions to "keep and maintain minutes of any proceedings held" and requires a written report of such proceedings be submitted to the City Council at least once a month.

The last provision of Article IX is that "No officer of the City nor any person who holds a compensated appointed position with the City shall be appointed to any board, Commission or committee created or established by this Charter other than an advisory capacity."

This would prohibit appointment of city employees or members of the Council to a board or commission except as advisors.

City, Highway Department Meet On 35 North Widening

Members of Rockport's City Council will meet with Texas Highway Department officials at 7 p.m. Tuesday, September 18, to discuss a proposal to widen Highway 35 North.

The joint meeting, in the District Court Room, was announced during the Council session Monday, August 13. The proposal involves making 35 North into a four-lane highway from Super D to Airport Road.

In other action during the meeting Monday night, the Council approved the city's participation in legal action concerning city sales tax and a rate request by Southwestern Bell Telephone.

The Texas Municipal league will represent member cities in a lawsuit filed by U.S. Steel attacking the constitutionality of city sales tax in Texas. Rockport's share of costs is expected to be $97.59.

TML also will represent Texas cities in an action concerning the rate increase request filed by Southwestern Bell. Rockport's share of cost is expected to be $77.58.

Council members Monday voted to reappoint the firm of Porter, Frazier, Brooks and Company--the city's present auditing firm--to examine the city's records and books for the fiscal year that ends September 30, 1979.

The Council gave conditional approval to requests for sanitary sewer service to the Pine Tree Office Complex, located between Live Oak State Bank and Palo Alto Trailer Park, and for reimbursement of the cost of water line construction in the Bahia Bay Subdivision.

Council members voted for an updated service credit under the Texas Municipal Retirement System covering city employees. The new credit, to go into effect January 1, 1980, will increase retirement benefits by 20 percent, according to City Secretary Herman Johnson.

Council members received notice of an increase in transfer fees charged the city by San Patricio County. As of September 1, rates will go up from the present $1.05 per cubic yard to $1.37 per cubic yard for the use of the San Patricio sanitary landfill.

Mayor Walter S. Falk read a letter from Rockport-Fulton High School senior Laura Hatt, expressing interest in a skating rink "for young people" in Rockport. The Council referred the letter to the park board.

In other action, the Council:

--Approved payment of bills.

--Reviewed the city's financial statements as of July 31, 1979.

--Reviewed the July police report.

--Approved a request from L.A.W. publications to solicit ads for a magazine on drug abuse, for use by the police department in an adult drug education program.

The Council tabled, until the August 20 budget workshop, a request from Police Chief James Craigmile to adjust the top patrolman's salary to $1,100 per month--with other salaries in the

Aransas County Wells Prove Boost To Economy

The sale of crude oil and natural gas from Aransas County wells in 1978 boosted the county economy and accounted for $19.6-million of the $17.1-billion value placed on Texas production last year, according to Texas Mid-Continent Oil & Gas Association.

In a report on the economic impact of oil and gas industry operations in the top producing counties of Texas, the Dallas-based Association said the county ranked 128th among the 202 counties having marketed production valued at $100,000 or more, not including the sale of natural gas liquids.

The county's wells produced 721,000 barrels of crude oil, valued at $6.7-million, and 12.8-million Mcfs of natural gas, valued at $12.9-million. Owners of royalty in the county received $2.5-million as their share of the output, the Association said.

"Considering the shortfall in total U.S. petroleum production relative to our nation's energy needs, production from every Texas county is more vitally important today than ever before," said the Association's president, H.B.

(Hank) Harkins of Alice, an independent producer and drilling contractor.

In addition to paying local, county, and state property taxes, producers in the county also supported state government through production tax payments estimated at $1.3-million, according to the Association. Crude oil taxes amounted to $308,000 while natural gas levies totalled $968,000.

Based on Texas Employment Commission figures, some 169 oil and gas industry employees in the county received wages of about $2.3-million in 1978.

Boating Classes Begin

Persons who want to learn about boating--the safe way to do it--should mark September 11 on their calendars.

That's the date a safe boating class, sponsored by the Rockport Flotilla of the U.S. Coast Guard Auxiliary, will get underway.

Classes will be from 7:30 p.m. until 9:30 p.m. each Tuesday and Thursday through October 23 at Live Oak State Bank.

Classes are free to the public, although a book is available at a cost of $5.

Topics included in the course are boat handling, navigation, "rules of the road," marlinpike seamanship, piloting, legal requirements, marine engines, aids to navigation, weather, radiotelephone and trailering.

Petroleum processing also contributed to the county economy, with one natural gasoline plant, having a total daily capacity of 75 million cubic feet of natural gas, and one carbon black plant in operation.

Additional information can be obtained by calling George or Grace Moore at 729-7882, or Leonard Specht at 729-7042.

A butterfly is a fragile thing, so light that it doesn't even ruffle the petals of a flower when it alights. Its life span is short, but its beauty is total. And, butterflies have memories or, at least, such strong instincts that, for example, thousands of Monarchs make an annual pilgrimage back to a single bush on the Monterey Peninsula in California.

What makes these insects continue their strange safaris year after year, through generation after generation of their kind? Scientists discover the answers to some of the endless questions life poses, but we can never know it all. We were never meant to know it all. That's where faith comes in; faith in God, His works, His creatures.

If you've been wondering just what life is all about, why not turn to the Church? It's the first step toward finding out.

I have discovered a whole new meaning for the word "patience."

"Patience" is trying to untangle 10 thin-chain necklaces that have tied themselves into the grand-mother of all knots--and then fused.

"Patience" is trying to do this at 10 p.m., at the end of a long day, in the presence of two bouncing dogs who really want to help...

(The cat is no dummy--she disappeared as soon as she saw what I was doing. She knows this is not the time to come snuggling into my lap, and any furry paw that starts reaching for those tempting dangling chains is going to get smacked.)

The dogs aren't so smart. They want to know what doing and it takes a few pops on their noses, a few firm "no's" (followed up by a few threats) before it starts to dawn on them that maybe...just maybe...I'm less than thrilled by their presence.

Back to the chains. You try giving yourself pep talks. ("Come on, now, you can do it. You've only been at this half an hour and you've already got two necklaces untangled. You only have eight more to go. Just keep at it...")

You give yourself encouragement. ("Look, you work mazes--you love 'em! You've done jigsaw puzzles--really complicated ones. You're crazy about 'em. This isn't so different." Wanna bet?)

You get firm with yourself. ("No, you are not going to pick up this tangled mess and throw it across the room. That's silly and childish and accomplishes nothing. Besides, they'll just tie themselves tighter and you'll never get them undone...")

You ask yourself stupid questions. ("How could you let this happen?" Well, I was moving, and I was in a hurry, so I just dropped the necklaces in a box...I knew they were going to tangle, but I was prepared to accept that--at the time...Oh, boy, did you make a mistake!" Oh, boy, do I know it!)

Progress report: at the end of 40 minutes, I have six necklaces untangled. Only four to go...

Observation: If you lay a tangle of necklaces on the bed, and do not touch them, and do not look at them--they somehow manage to tangle themselves worse.

Another observation: This is the type of activity that makes you aware of words you never knew were in your vocabulary...

But at last, an hour after you started (not too bad--an average of six minutes per chain) the task is done, a pleasant calm descends.

You apologize to the dogs for yelling at them. You hunt up the cat and give her a few minutes in your lap. You feel quietly elated, pleased with yourself. You have accomplished the impossible!

The cat rises from your lap. She stretches. She leaps onto the armoire, studies the necklaces which you have carefully hung on pegs in the wall.

She lifts a dainty, furry paw and bats at the necklaces...and they fall like a shot duck.

It's never too late to scream...

New Owners Take Over At Tropics

The Tropics Motel on Laurel Street is under new ownership--it was taken over effective August 1 by Joan Dulski and Felicia Ratajski.

The new owners--who are sisters--say they were originally looking for a small motel to buy, but when the opportunity came up to get the Tropics, they took it.

"I always said, and my husband did too, that if the Tropics ever went up for sale, we'd buy it," said Mrs. Ratajski. She and her husband, Dick, have been coming to Rockport for about seven years and have purchased property in City-by-the-Sea.

The Ratajskis are from Sylvania Township, Ohio, and Mrs. Dulski is from Erie, Michigan. The two sisters decided about a year ago they wanted to buy a small motel.

At about the same time, John Gimler, then owner of the Tropics, told them he was looking for a buyer for the Tropics. The sisters started negotiating immediately.

Mrs. Ratajski has always felt "the Tropics is the best!" and she and her sister both saw an opportunity to buy something they "could be proud of from the start."

Jerry Lewis Telethon To Be Live On KIII

The Jerry Lewis Labor Day Telethon has been called "the TV super special of the year." The entertainment spectacular, broadcast live from Del Webb's Hotel Sahara in Las Vegas, will be seen this year in the Corpus Christi area over KIII-TV, Channel 3, starting at 8:00 p.m., Sunday, September 2, and ending at 5:30 p.m., Monday, September 3.

The annual 21½ hour marathon to benefit the Muscular Dystrophy Association will again feature comedy, music, and dance by some of the biggest names in show business, in addition to reports on the progress being made in the fight against neuromuscular disease. Ed McMahon will back up Jerry as anchorman for the seventh consecutive year.

Telethon '79, the 14th Labor Day Telethon to benefit MDA's research and medical service programs, will be carried by over 200 stations in the continental U.S., Alaska, Hawaii, and Puerto Rico.

According to Joel Rogosin, producer of Tele-thon '79, this year's show will take on a fresh and exciting new look. Mr. Rogosin is working with Jerry to line up a cast of superstars, all of whom volunteer their talents as contributions to MDA.

Last year's Telethon raised $29 million, and Jerry Lewis predicts that this year's show will do even better. He says, "Concern and generosity are part of the American spirit. We have helped each other in the past and will continue until the cure for muscular dystrophy is discovered. Each year I get more charged up by the Telethon because it reflects the goodness of the people in this country and I am proud to be a part of it."

KIII-TV will cut away from the network show for 15 minutes every hour to introduce leading MDA supporters in the community and to present reports on MDA activities in the Coastal Bend area.

Family reunion

How To Feed Them When They're "Home To Roost"

America is ever on the go, families no longer stay put. They move to the east, they move to the west, they go up north and down south.

Perhaps this summer is the time to end all that, at least for one wonderful weekend. Call a family reunion and bring home the clan...grannies and gramps, aunts and uncles and cousins.

Above all, feed them well with the "Home to Roost" Menu:

Fried Chicken, Potato Salad, Corn on the Cob, Old-Fashioned Baked Beans, Fruit Salad with Dressing, Relish Tray, Assorted Rolls and Bread, Oatmeal Bars, Homemade

Ice Cream, Iced Tea, Lemonade.

Fried chicken used to mean either laboring in a hot kitchen over a hotter stove, or trudging out and standing in line to pick up chicken-to-go. No more.

Now there is frozen fried chicken specially formulated to taste like the kind you used to go out for. Maybe a little better. Certainly less expensive. And so convenient, it usually needs only a quick 30 minutes oven heating (or 10 minutes in the microwave) before you pack it up. It bakes up as crisp outside and juicy inside, as if you deep-fried it yourself.

POTATO SALAD
1 can (10¾ ounces) condensed cream of celery soup

½ cup sour cream
1 tablespoon vinegar
¼ cup chopped onion
2 tablespoons chopped fresh dill

¼ teaspoon salt
Dash pepper
4 cups cubed cooked potatoes

1 cup sliced celery
Combine soup, sour cream, vinegar, onion and seasonings. Add potatoes and celery; chill. Serve on salad greens. Makes about 5 cups.

OLD FASHIONED BAKED BEANS

6 cans (28 ounces each) pork & beans with tomato sauce

1½ cups ketchup
¾ cup packed brown sugar
1½ cups finely chopped onion

3 tablespoons prepared mustard
12 slices bacon, partially cooked

Combine all ingredients except bacon. Divide between two 3-quart shallow baking dishes (13x9x2"). Top with bacon. Bake at 350 degrees F. for 1 hour. Makes about 21 cups.

CREAMY APRICOT DRESSING

1 can (10½ ounces) condensed cream of mushroom soup

1 package (3 ounces) cream cheese, softened
¼ cup milk
3 tablespoons apricot preserves

1 tablespoon lime juice
To make salad dressing, in blender, combine soup, cream cheese, mild, preserves and lime juice. Blend until smooth; chill. Makes about 1½ cups.

OATMEAL BARS

1½ cups all-purpose flour
1 teaspoon baking powder

½ teaspoon baking soda
2 teaspoons ground ginger
1 can (11 ounces) condensed Cheddar cheese soup

1½ cups packed light brown sugar
2 eggs
½ cup salad oil

1 teaspoon grated lemon rind
1 cup quick oats, uncooked

1 cup chopped walnuts
Preheat oven to 350 degrees F. Grease and flour a jelly-roll pan (15x10x1"). In large bowl of electric mixer, sift flour, baking powder, baking soda and ginger.

Add soup, sugar, eggs, oil and lemon rind. Beat at medium speed for two minutes, scraping side and bottom of bowl often. Stir in oats and walnuts. Pour into jelly-roll pan; bake 25 minutes or until done. Cool; spread with lemon glaze if desired. Cut into squares.

Grace And Contact Paper A Sticky Mix

Before I even begin to tell this story, I want you all to understand that I am a graceful person.

Granted, I have been around klutzy people, and I willingly admit to claiming a few relatives who can't use a fork without stabbing their cheek at least once during each meal, but I AM a graceful person...sometimes.

The reason for all this declaring of personal agility and ability is that I recently faced the ultimate in futility. Translation: I am redecorating (Oh God! am I redecorating!).

Actually, it all started because of the lizards (those of you who have already heard this story can skip down a few paragraphs).

I don't like lizards, I never did, and never will. I don't want them in my house, and I especially don't want them in my bathroom. My own personal theory is that if God had intended lizards to live in a house he would have taught them to eat something more civilized than bugs.

Anyway, lizards were coming in through the cracks between the walls and the floor, and they were not welcome. I'm fairly open minded about most things, but my values change when I'm shampooing and look up to see some slimy looking little pink lizard-like THING checking me out to see if the suds are safe for wading. And it's not like I can just drop what I'm doing to chase it out of the house.

But through patience, and occasional shots of straight rum, I managed to close up most of the cracks. I also managed to rip up most of the old wallpaper in the bathroom while I was closing up the cracks.

Which was just as well. The tenants before me had put up some really tacky (and I mean tacky as in a girl chewing tobacco on her wedding night) green and yellow contact paper that combined squares, semi circles, fleur-de-lis and most of the shapes drug addicts report seeing during really bad acid trips.

Now, the paper was bad enough all by itself, but whoever had the audacious taste to choose it also had the ineptitude to mismatch the print when they were applying it to the wall. The result of all this was that if you spent anymore than, oh, 45 seconds in the bathroom, you began to feel...um, sort of, you know, dizzy.

The only good thing lizards ever did for me was to get me going once I began to peel the citrus salad off the walls. I started out telling you that I'm graceful, right? Okay then.

When I was putting up the new contact paper (a much better choice this time around, I might add) I felt distinctly ungraceful.

I would have the section measured just right, all cut out and ready to apply to the wall, when it would fold over and stick to itself. Or it would stick to the wrong section of the wall. Or it would stick to my arm. Speaking of which, do you have any idea how loud a person can scream when their little arm hairs are ripped out by daisy covered plastic sheets?

Now that you have the basic idea of the frustrations I accumulated just from the materials, add a minimum of ventilation, a small working space, and not much sleep the night before. Taa-Daa!

You have just read the recipe for clumsiness in a well-brought-up young lady who uses profanity only when awake.

But I really am graceful. It's just that I can't master the techniques of handling a force more powerful than myself...the glue on the contact paper.

Thank You! FOR THE Support and Votes

To backslide is to go back, to fall down, to fail, to sin . . . Many are guilty of this very thing . . . Peter did (Matt. 26:69-75). The prodigal son did (Luke 15).

How long has it been since you were at worship?

Remember its possible for any one to backslide--don't let it happen to you.

Plan Ahead For A Perfect Potluck Picnic That You Can Enjoy

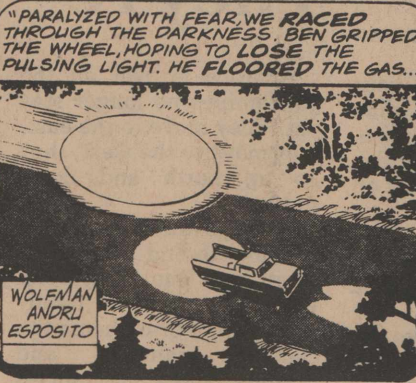

When the picnic is large, the menu is often pot-luck with everyone bringing something to add to the feast. Without careful organization, however, the pot-luck picnic can be found lacking.

There are twelve elements to the successful large picnic, once the site has been selected. One or more can be assigned to each person or family attending:

1. Paper goods and plastics-including ground or table covering, plates, forks, knives, napkins, can opener, garbage bags for the residue.
2. The entree-an all-American favorite, fried chicken, for instance.
3. Salad, green. With salad dressing to be added at serving time.
4. Salad, other. Five bean, gelatin, potato, whatever.
5. Rolls or breads, with appropriate spreads.
6. Munchies, chips of any sort.
7. Goody dessert-check the grocer's freezer for something like a chocolate fudge cake. Packed frozen, it will thaw by the time the entree has been eaten.
8. Non-goody dessert. Irish oatmeal cookies or molasses crisps, perhaps.
9. Beverages. (Don't forget the kids!) Drinking glasses, if necessary.
10. Condiments-salt, pepper, pickles, olives, etc.
11. Activities supplies-a deck of cards, a ball and bat, whatever suits the crowd.
12. First aid kit, insect repellent, tanning lotions.

These dozen duties, appropriately apportioned, can make all the difference between a pot luck picnic that holds no hope and one that pans out perfectly.

Q. I know it is not good for my children (or me either) to eat sweets, candy, cookies, cake, etc., but my problem is how do I keep my children from wanting this type of food?

All their friends are used to having it and even if I don't keep it in the house, they will get it from outside. How do I make them now want it?

A. You're asking the $64,000 question. How do we direct our children to like what is good for them?

The key to this problem is found in the method which we use to train our children or in the type of child guidance we use. It is based on the principle of reward and punishment.

Frequently children are told that unless they eat their vegetables, they won't get any dessert. This implies that eating the vegetable is some sort of challenge or obstacle and if the child will only accomplish this great undertaking all kinds of good things will come his way in the form of sweets and sugar-coated goodies. This kind of programming is naturally going to establish these goodies as a desirable goal.

One obvious way of changing the pattern is to invest those foods which we want the child to have with a positive attitude and discourage the use of sweets as any form of reward.

Encourage your children to eat raw fruits and vegetables as snacks. Frozen or refrigerated hard vegetables are often preferred by children over cooked, mushy, softened preparations.

Many children will eagerly eat hard, raw cauliflower but won't go near the same vegetable when it's cooked, soft and warm. The same holds true for carrots, celery, squash and many others.

Ask The Doctor

Other kinds of foods should be served for desserts such as fresh fruit, apples, orange slices, grapefruit, etc., or cheeses of various kinds.

Q. I am 95 years old and have severe arthritis in my right knee and plenty of water in my legs and ankles. I have been under treatment for these conditions for some time.

What causes this water to accumulate? I do not drink alcohol.

A. Water in the legs or ankles is commonly called edema. Anyone can develop it without having anything wrong with them. All you have to do is sit for several hours without moving your feet too much.

If you happen to eat salt and drink lots of water too, you're practically certain to find some swelling of your ankles at the end of that time.

Since the body consists of such a large proportion of water normally, there is some surrounding all the tissues all the time. If the drainage channels collecting this fluid (lymphatic channels) are working and the veins aren't blocked, this water is normally collected into the veins and goes back into the circulation.

If you have varicose veins or obstructions in the deep veins, the pull of gravity creates a downward pressure on the blood flow and the water fails to get back into the veins as well, so it begins to collect around the tissues in the lowest part of the body.

For the person who has poor venous circulation or varicose veins, the best solution is to keep the legs moving as much as possible and avoid sitting or standing for long periods without at least wiggling the feet around a bit. Elastic stockings help some individuals.

The commonest pathological conditions associated with ankle edema are congestive heart failure and kidney disorders. These are commonly treated with salt restriction and diuretic drugs to increase the amount of water excreted through the kidneys each day.

Alcohol itself doesn't cause edema unless it is complicated by liver disease or severe malnutrition.
