Senate Republicans considering tax increase

By DAVID ESPO
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senate Republicans, reshaping President Reagan's latest austerity package to their liking, are considering a $6.2 billion tax increase as part of a plan to cut the 1982 budget deficit by $14.7 billion, sources say.

The plan envisions selective tax increases of more than $27 billion over three years, a figure that sources say could rise as Republicans struggle to come up with $115 billion in spending cuts and extra revenue to balance the budget by 1984.

Benefit programs such as food stamps and government pensions would be cut by $25.8 billion over three years, although no reductions in Social Security are anticipated, sources familiar with the program said Monday.

The sources said the actual legislation to raise taxes and cut the benefit programs would not be debated until next year, although the Senate would be asked to mandate them next month when it debates a budget plan.

These sources, who asked not to be identified, said the plan under consideration would be discussed at a meeting today of all 53 Senate Republicans.

They added that while changes were possible, it appeared certain that the GOP majority is inclined to back a plan that cuts spending less over the next three years than Reagan wants, and raises taxes more.

The administration, meantime, is studying its own plan for reducing deficits, sources say. They said the plan envisions higher cigarette and alcohol excise taxes, elimination of credit-card interest deductions and limits on exemptions for health insurance premiums.

These proposals, among a variety being analyzed by Treasury Department officials, could increase revenues by more than $9 billion in 1982 and $17 billion by 1984, according to administration estimates.

Several sources, who asked not to be identified, said White House budget director David A. Stockman is the administration's leading advocate of increased taxes to curb a growing 1982 deficit and fulfill President Reagan's pledge to balance the budget by 1984.

The details of the proposal under consideration by Senate Republicans came as Reagan, budget director David A. Stockman and Senate GOP leader Howard H. Baker Jr. all denied an agreement had been reached on modifying the program Reagan outlined in a nationally broadcast speech last month.

In all, the plan under consideration in the Senate calls for spending cuts and revenue increases of $73.4 billion through 1984, short of the $80.1 billion in "identified savings" that Reagan has requested from Congress. It will take $35 billion in addition to that to balance the budget, according to most experts.

For 1982 alone, the $14.7 billion in the Senate package would fall slightly short of Reagan's recommendations for $16 billion in spending cuts and tax increases.

Small plane crash lands

A man and a woman escaped injury when their twin-engine Cessna 320 Aircraft crash-landed at Midland Regional Airport at 9:10 a.m. Tuesday.

Names of the pilot and passenger were not released by airport officials.

According to control tower chief Bill Hill, air traffic controllers identified a problem with the craft's nose gear while it was still airborne.

"It appeared (the nose gear) was not fully extended and we suspected it would collapse on landing," said Hill.

A Midland Fire Department witness indicated the nose gear "would support no weight at all — it was just dangling. He (the pilot) held off the nose gear as long as he could when he landed. You can see what kind of job he did by the propeller."

The propellers suffered only minimal damage, the forward six inches of each bending upon impact with the runway as the nose wheel crumpled against the fuselage. The Cessna was left tilted forward at a 30-degree angle as gasoline spilled out onto the ground.

Midland Fire Department already was standing by, and three units were on the scene immediately, dousing the spilled fuel with Aquis film-forming foam, described by a MFD spokesman as the latest innovation in aircraft fire-prevention.

Firemen and airport personnel spent approximately 45 minutes spraying the runway with the snow-like foam and righting the aircraft.

Pilots oppose new FAA reservation program

By GAIL BURKE
Staff Writer

To ease the burden on non-union air traffic controllers, the Federal Aviation Administration began its general aviation reservation program Monday, but some Midland charter and corporate pilots are outraged by the imposed flight restrictions.

Ray Burton, chief of flight service at the Midland Regional Airport, said when Professional Air Traffic Controllers Organization members left the Midland airport Aug. 3 in the nationwide illegal walkout, the flow of air traffic was altered drastically. Commercial airline flights were reduced, but general aviation (private and corporate aircraft) continued to fly with minimum restrictions.

To reduce the burden on the non-union ATC's limited tower crews, the government spent approximately two months designing the GAR contingency plan.

Burton said this plan, designed to include general aviation, requires pilots to reserve time slots for flight schedules not more that 16 hours and not less than one hour before departure with Midland's airport flight service with a restriction of two flights per hour allowed to leave the airport.

However, in an interview this morning, Bill Hill, FAA control tower chief at Midland Regional Airport, said he was advised today by the Fort Worth Center that the overall number of aircraft in the system will allow three general aviation aircraft to leave an hour as opposed to the two an hour on Monday.

"The numbers will be evaluated on a daily basis," Hill said, "and increases will be made as the system permits."

BURTON SAID EMERGENCY medical flights will not be included in the program and some air taxi flights are exempt because they were under another system devised in the beginning of the strike.

Burton said, "If they (pilots) make their reservations, they're assured a time slot to leave. However, depending on the traffic saturation and the weather conditions, the alloted two aircraft could change to three."

But many Midland charter pilots contend that the reservation program is going to affect not only their business but also their clients' businesses.

Related story, Page 2A

"We have not lost any business today (Monday)," Paul Cousineau, chief pilot for Petro Jet Aviation Inc., said, "but we take pride in our 24-hour service — on demand — being ready when the customer is ready."

Cousineau explained with this new imposed government reservation program "we must ask our customers to give sufficient notice."

The reservation restrictions are in effect from 6 a.m to 10 p.m. daily, according to Cousineau.

HILL SAID FROM the ATC point of view the reservation program went well because there were less aircraft for the controllers.

"The objective of the program is to reduce the total number of aircraft to 5,000 in the Fort Worth Center airspace," Hill said. "That means each terminal in the airspace area has to do its part for these restrictions."

He added that by restricting general aviation the controller's job will become easier and the airways will be safe.

But for now Cousineau said these restrictions are hindering and "pop-up trips will be difficult."

Ole Olson, president of Petro Jet, said the company "will do everything in our power to accommodate our customers, but if the customer should be held up in business or traffic and is late for the scheduled flight, he may have as much as a six- to eight-hour delay."

"This is going to hurt us dearly," Brad McKeller, pilot for Browne Aviation based at Midland Air Park, said, adding that "it also is going to hurt the oil man downtown."

MCKELLER SAID a businessman may call at 9 a.m. to make arrangements to leave on a noon flight for a meeting that afternoon.

"I'm losing money because I may not be able to schedule the flight and the oil man who wants to close that big deal won't be able to," McKeller said.

An alternative for the businessman may be to use the commercial airlines, but Bob Hoyer, pilot for Tri-Service Drilling Company, said this will not always be possible.

"In corporate aircraft you're not carrying people for hire, you're carrying the people you work for," he said, "and corporate flights are more economical for the businessman because it could take up to two days for the boss to get where he wants to go."

Hoyer added that he understands the non-union controllers' workload is heavy and "they're doing a good job; however, this two aircraft per hour is going to restrain a lot of aircraft."

Hoyer said if 10 corporate aircraft want to leave at the same time, it will no longer be possible and "spot trips are going to have to be carefully scheduled — we are upset with it (GAR), especially the pilots in corporate aviation."

AN ALTERNATIVE, Hoyer speculated, could be a possible "time-share" — a doubling up system for

Solidarity will avoid showdowns but won't renegotiate

WARSAW, Poland (AP) — Solidarity says it will avoid showdowns with the ruling Communists since their latest shakeup, but the independent union refuses to renegotiate rights won last year and warns some strikes are inevitable.

Union leaders telegrammed locals nationwide Monday to end "unjustified protests," but thousands of workers stayed off the job anyway. In Zydarow west of Warsaw, 12,000 strikers went into the eighth day of a sit-down strike at textile plants to demand more food; in southwest Zielona Gora province, 3,000 more downed tools over a management dispute, the union said.

Marek Brunne, Solidarity spokesman, issued a statement saying the union would "make all efforts to achieve agreements with the authorities before the emergence of explosive situations and conflicts."

The statement came one day after the party's 200-member Central Committee ousted Stanislaw Kania as chief and replaced him with Wojciech Jaruzelski, who is also premier and defense minister. He promptly warned the 9.5-million member union to stop strikes and help restore Poland's shattered economy.

The committee also demanded suspension of the right to strike and no more free Saturdays. Those concessions were won last year by Solidarity, which has challenged the Communists for power since it was formed during strikes in August 1980. It is the first union in the Soviet bloc free of government control.

"Our union cannot agree to any kind of renegotiation of the agreements," Brunne said.

Solidarity leader Lech Walesa, visiting Paris, said he hoped Jaruzelski's concentration of power would help Poland solve its economic crisis but that "small strikes might continue."

"We have been betrayed many times," Walesa said. "We don't trust the government. We need control over our own fate. Protest is necessary in a democracy."

Jaruzelski spent his first full day as party chief reassuring Warsaw Pact allies of "fraternal cooperation," and conferring with army generals, the official PAP news agency said.

In Moscow, Soviet President Leonid I. Brezhnev congratulated the new chief and urged him to fight "encroachments by counter-revolution," a reference to Solidarity.

The Soviets have complained about reforms won by the union, criticized Kania's lenience and hinted they would intervene in Poland to restore the Communists' unchallenged authority.

Jaruzelski had backed Kania's policy of peaceful solutions to Solidarity's demands but in recent weeks hardened his stance. When he replaced Kania he said the government would not retreat further.

Testimony begins in discrimination suit

From Staff and Wire Reports

Government attorneys were expected to call more witnesses today in an effort to prove the Ector County School District has a pattern of racial inequality as alleged in a discrimination suit filed 10 years ago.

Testimony started in federal court in Midland Monday in the trial that has started a decade after the Justice Department and a disgruntled minority group filed suit against the Odessa school district.

The district has traditionally operated a "dual school system...resulting in the assignment of white students and faculty and black students and faculty to separate schools, the suit charges.

The suit also contends there has been discrimination against hispanic students "by assigning them to schools on the basis of ethnic origin."

The case is being heard by visiting U.S. District Judge Fred Shannon of San Antonio.

Two witnesses were called Monday by Justice Department attorneys in an attempt to show that the school district has had a long-time pattern of racial discrimination, said Assistant U.S. Attorney Richard Epps.

Both witnesses testified that the consolidation of two south Odessa schools in 1965 created an all black-hispanic high school.

Ethel Geers, a south Odessa resident, and Joe Rutledge, assistant principle at Permian high school in north Odessa, said courses and facilities at the southside schools were inferior to those at north Odessa schools.

Rutledge, who worked at a southside school in 1964, said the student body and faculty at that time were all-black.

School officials deny the discrimination charges, saying "in times past, a dual system based on white and negro races did exist" but the ratios now are determined by where people live.

Shannon accepted a motion Monday by a West Odessa parents' group petitioning to enter the trial in support of the school system. The group is opposed to busing.

Testimony may help Vickie's case

By MIKE COCHRAN
Associated Press Writer

LIBERTY, Texas (AP) — A prosecutor in the Vickie Daniel murder trial says it is "conjecture only" that the defendant's husband grabbed the death weapon moments before he was shot to death.

But a Houston pathologist testified Monday metal-trace tests performed on the hands of former Texas House Speaker Price Daniel Jr. do not rule out that possibility.

Harris County Medical Examiner Joseph Jachimczyk said the tests reflect a metal-trace pattern "consistent" with such a theory.

THE TESTIMONY plunges to the heart of a defense contention that Daniel might have grabbed the .22-caliber rifle his wife was holding and caused it to discharge accidentally, causing his fatal wound.

"You can't say with any certainty that he gripped that gun, can you?" asked District Atttorney Carroll Wilborn.

"No, sir," Jachimczyk replied.

He also said the metal-trace pattern could have been made had Daniel picked up a handful of coathangers.

It was Wilborn who later told newsmen that it was "conjecture only" and that he and the defense could swap such conjecture indefinitely.

Mrs. Daniel, 34, the victim's second wife, all but admitted shooting her husband but said it was an accident.

Daniel, 39, died Jan. 19 at the couple's home on a sprawling 3,000-acre ranch just outside Liberty.

Jachimczyk, the state's sixth witness, told the jury Daniel died of an abdominal bullet wound that severed the body's main artery.

HE SAID THE missile entered just below and to the right of the navel, penetrated the intestine, cut the aorta and lodged in a vertebra. Jachimczyk said Daniel might have lived 10 or 15 minutes after the shooting but would have lost consciousness very quickly because of heavy internal bleeding.

The pudgy, widely respected pathologist said the bullet was fired at close range and traveled upwards at a 20-degree angle.

Mrs. Daniel had testified during a bitter child-custody hearing she did not remember firing the fatal shot but said the rifle discharged as Daniel descended an attic stairwell.

Jachimczyk's testimony appeared to corroborate contentions that a physical confrontation between the couple preceded the shooting. He said he found bruises, cuts and scratches on Daniel's nose, chin, chest, knuckle, wrist and shin and said they were "consistent with a struggle."

Lead defense lawyer Jack Zimmerman asked Jachimczyk if the marks could have been made if Daniel were the aggressor in the struggle.

Could Price's knuckle bruise, for example, be the result "of a punch being thrown?" Zimmerman asked.

"YES, SIR," Jachimczyk replied.

Mrs. Daniel maintains she and her husband argued over their pending divorce and that he struck her shortly before the shooting.

She has portrayed the widely known, generally respected Daniel as a hard-drinking, drug-using womanizer with homosexual tendencies and no qualms about abusing her or her children.

Jachimczyk said at the time of death, Daniel's bloodstream contained the equivalent of one and one half ounces of hard liquor and he conducted no drug tests.

Outwardly, however, Daniel was circumspect, a reform legislator and the namesake son of three-time Texas Gov. Price Daniel, himself a former U.S. Senator, state legislator and Texas Supreme Court justice.

Corporate, charter pilots oppose FAA program corporate aviation.

"This could possibly lead to time sharing — you scratch my back, I'll scratch yours — but if more pleasure trips were restricted, instead of us, we probably could fly," Hoyer said referring to small aircraft that must fly IFR (instrument flight rules) during bad weather.

During clear skies small-plane pilots can fly VFR (visual flight rules) without help from the control towers and they will not be affected by the GAR program if they don't use airports manned by ATCs. But, if the weather is bad, these pilots must comply with the government restrictions of the new quota and reservation system.

"I can see the other guy's (small-plane pilot) view, but we're not working under normal flight conditions anymore and if this pleasure flight makes a reservation before us and gets the slot, we're going to lose money."

Fred Michna, operations manager for Basin Aviation Inc., said the main problem is not out of Midland, but it is in the Fort Worth Center, where the tower crew was hit the hardest by the PATCO strike. He added that there have been fewer problems at the Houston Center and "virtually no problems at Albuquerque, N.M."

HIS REACTION TO the GAR program was that many flights must be rescheduled and some pilots may fly after the 10 p.m. restriction to take advantage of the late night hours. But he also commented that there have been problems with flying even before the imposed restrictions.

"We lost quite a few trips last week because of the weather," Michna said. "We had to get clearance and we couldn't — more than one of our customers had to drive to their destination."

Bob Merrill, vice president of operations for Tiger Charter Corporation, said at the present time, "we're not sure how it (GAR) will affect us," adding that everything except IFR can fly if the weather is good.

"It is going to hamper us everyday in using the jets," Merrill said. "Our business, in the past, has been somebody calling in the morning for an afternoon flight, but now, reservations will have to be made."

Rare handgun used in holdup

Police today are looking for a man who used a rare British handgun to hold up a westside liquor store shortly before 9 p.m. Monday.

According to a clerk at the Desert Inn Liquor Store, 3416 Thomason Drive, a man wearing a checked shirt and light blue jacket entered the store about 8:45 p.m., brandished a .455-caliber Welbey revolver and escaped on foot through an alley after taking an undisclosed amount of cash.

The Welbey was used by the British during the Boer War and is now a collector's item. One city officer said the bore is so large "you could talk down the barrel and get an echo."

In a burglary complaint, an employee of the Music Box store at 111 E. Indiana Ave. told police someone entered the establishment through an air conditioner duct on the roof and took two 12-gauge shotguns and $25 in change. Total loss was placed at $1,375.

Warmer currents to move in

The cool temperatures that sent Permian Basin residents scurrying for jackets Monday and early Tuesday should be replaced by warmer air currents for the next couple of days.

The high for the 24-hour period ending at 6 a.m. today reached only 72 degrees and the low a nippy 48. Those marks were well off the all-time extremes for the date of 90 in 1936 and 36 in 1976.

The low tonight should be in the low 50s, according to the National Weather Service, while Wednesday's high should reach the low 80s.

Southwesterly winds are expected to be 5-10 miles per hour tonight and 10-15 mph Wednesday.

The NWS recorded an official trace of rain Monday.

Industrial bonds approved

Faced with imminent restructuring of industrial revenue bonding by the Reagan administration, Midland County Commissioners Monday unanimously approved industrial revenue bond applications by two oil-field related corporations.

Applications were approved for projects planned by DRECO, Inc. of Houston and Dow Chemical Corporation of Midland.

DRECO, which manufactures drilling rigs and supplies, proposes to construct a 25,000-square-foot plant at County Roads 1286 south and 127 west. The application calls for a $1.5 million structure to employ 16 persons.

The project is anticipated to take three to four months once it is financed, said Grant Billingsley of the Chamber of Commerce.

Dow Chemical wants to construct a $3.5 million plant, at a yet-to-be-determined site, which would manufacture fracking and cementing compounds. It would employ 25 persons.

"What we have here is a unique situation," Joe Kloesel, president of Midland Industrial Development Corporation, told the board in presenting the applications for approval. "There's a possibility there may not be industrial revenue bonds in the future (perhaps as early as later this week), and if there are, they may be severely changed or restricted."

Kloesel told newsmen later that Sen. John Tower's office had informed him that the industrial revenue bonding program probably would be changed considerably as a result of the Reagan administration's crackdown on abuses of federal programs.

Coleman throws hat in 16th District race

By LANA CUNNINGHAM
Staff Writer

Ron Coleman

Ronald Coleman is willing to give President Reagan's economic package a try, even though he doesn't agree with all aspects of the plan.

The El Paso Democrat announced Monday during a news conference at Chaparral Aviation that he is seeking the 16th Congressional District seat being vacated by incumbent Richard White, also a Democrat and of El Paso. That area includes Ward, Winkler, Loving and Reeves counties and circumnavigates the far western district of Texas.

Coleman has served as a State Representative for 10 years and said he has "received a great deal of support to carry the Democratic banner. What the citizens of this district will want is not a rookie, but someone with a track record. My five terms in the State Legislature will stand on that record, particularly in the field of education."

He pointed to the economy as turning into the major issue of the 1982 campaign. "It will be of paramount importance," said the 39-year-old legislator. "All of us should give Reaganomics a chance to work."

But he later explained that he personally doesn't support the entire package.

"In the election of Reagan, the nation felt it was time to evaluate the programs. I feel all of Middle America will be glad to tighten its belt.

"The tax cut is totally unnecessary and unwarranted. But I'm willing to see if it works," Coleman said.

He added that the idea of wrapping funding for several programs into one package known as a block grant to the states, rather than doling it out to the various agencies, is "a chicken way out for the senators and congressmen. That way they didn't have to vote to cut various programs."

One inadequacy of the program, he said, is that while the money should be coming to Texas this month, the state government has no "method of doling out funds in between sessions. I don't believe they (block grants) are the wave of the future."

To rectify this situation, Texas voters will have a chance to approve a constitutional amendment at the Nov. 3 general election which sets up a committee to handle the block grant funds, according to Coleman.

National defense is another critical issue, said Coleman, who admitted he didn't know enough about the AWACS proposal to decide if he is in favor of selling the high technology radar planes to Saudi Arabia.

He sees the B-1 bomber as being "obsolete by the end of the 1980s and may be a waste of money. We need to develop anti-ballistic missiles."

He also favors the MX program, which calls for land-basing missiles. But he didn't go along with the president's plan to store these in Titan silos.

While Social Security came close to falling prey to the knife of the budget-slicing administration, Coleman pledged to "work to solve the Social Security problems. I don't want it in any way to be damaged."

And in answering why he feels he can win as a Democrat, Coleman replied that "Democrats don't have anything to be ashamed of. Democrats promulgated the program called Social Security. We are really the party of the people."

While calling White's tenure in the House as "years highlighted by his handling legislative duties" in a quiet manner and calling White's record a good one, Coleman indicated his style would be different:

"I'm known as an activist — one who speaks out on legislation."

PATCO pickets air terminal

By GAIL BURKE
Staff Writer

A decision by the Federal Labor Relations Authority on decertification of the Professional Air Traffic Controllers Organization is expected soon, so Midland's PATCO members picketed the Midland Regional Airport Monday to make the public aware they are still waiting for negotiations.

"We are picketing today to re-emphasize to the public that the labor dispute is still in progress," Barry Vaughn, president of PATCO Local 428, said, adding that the PATCO situation is "just that — a labor dispute."

Col. Wilson Banks, director of aviation at the airport, said the PATCO members had a picketing permit and were allowed to demonstrate as long as they did not interfere with the airport's regular activity.

The five members with signs in hand walked the median in front of the terminal about three hours.

Vaughn said the FLRA decision could mean one of three things: permanent decertification of the union, temporary decertification or the board could order the two parties, the Federal Aviation Administration and PATCO, into negotiations.

"Of course," Vaughn said, "if the board chooses permanent decertification, PATCO will appeal the decision and if they choose negotiations, FAA will appeal."

Vaughn added that they would continue to picket until the public understood that the strike is "nothing but a labor dispute, but it has gotten out of hand and because of the legal ramifications, people (the public) have overlooked this aspect of the situation."

Mengden launches campaign

Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — State Sen. Walter Mengden of Houston officially launched his campaign for the U.S. Senate with an Austin press conference Monday, telling reporters he anticipates spending $3-4 million in the general election effort against incumbent Sen. Lloyd Bentsen.

Mengden, who was to hold a press conference in Midland today at 2:15 p.m., said he expects to spend $300,000 to win the Republican nomination in the primary contest with Congressman Jim Collins of Dallas.

Mengden said Bentsen "admits he is not a conservative," and cited Bentsen's votes to "give away the Panama Canal," and "for creation of the departments of Energy and Education" as among Bentsen's "bad votes."

Mengden said he favors legislation for "initiative and referendum on a national level," a constitutional amendment to prohibit deficit spending, "sunset" legislation to terminate federal agencies every 10 years unless they're renewed by Congress, election of federal judges and abolishment of the defense of "temporary insanity" in criminal cases.

Mengden, elected to the House of Representatives in 1970 and the State Senate in 1972, is beginning a nine-day campaign tour of Texas, accompanied by his wife, June.

A poll by Houston analyst Lance Torrance comparing his name identification with that of Collins will be released late in November or early in December, Mengden said.

The state senator said he believes his name identification is better than that of Collins, and agreed that Collins' voting record is similar — but said Collins "votes against legislation" while he offers legislation promoting "conservative solutions" to problems.

Mengden said Bentsen is out of step with the majority of Texans and that his philosophy reflects the views of that majority.

He said he anticipates his financing will be based on individual contributions with no indication of special funding considerations from the Texas Republican Party.

Teen-agers escape

HUNTSVILLE, Texas (AP) — Three teen-age inmates escaped early today from the Texas Department of Corrections first offender Ferguson Unit near here, a TDC spokesman announced.

TDC spokesman Rick Hartley said personnel at the Ferguson unit discovered the escape early today following a regular roll call of all inmates.

Non-prescription diet pills are safe, manufacturers say

By BETTY ANNE WILLIAMS
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The makers of several non-prescription diet pills say their products are safe despite a consumer group's charge that they have been linked to high blood pressure, poisoning and occasional psychotic incidents.

Citing those purported links, the Center for Science in the Public Interest, a non-profit consumer group with an interest in health issues, petitioned the Food and Drug Administration on Monday to ban use of an amphetamine-like drug in the over-the-counter diet pills.

Bambi Batts Young, director of the group's environment and behavior program, said the active ingredient in those preparations, phenylpropanolamine, or PPA, is only minimally effective for weight loss and is potentially dangerous.

PPA is used in about 25 popular brands of diet pills and in numerous cold and sinus remedies. CSPI did not seek a ban on its use in cold and sinus remedies.

CSPI also asked the Federal Trade Commission to halt advertisements for Dietac, one of the most popular non-prescription diet pills. The group argued that the ads make false and misleading claims about the product's safety and effectiveness and that they wrongly claim the government has approved it.

Two leading drug manufacturers were quick to take issue with the group's claims.

Alan Wachter, a spokesman for SmithKline Corp., which makes Dietac, said the company had not seen the petitions and could not respond in detail. But he said, "We remain confident that Dietac is safe when taken as directed."

Dr. Edward L. Steinberg, research director for Thompson Medical Co., a leading marketer of over-the-counter diet-aid products in the United States, disputed most of the consumer group's charges.

He cited a vote by an FDA advisory panel in 1979 which endorsed PPA as safe and effective as an appetite suppressant and weight-loss aid. The FDA has not acted on that recommendation, and the consumer group maintained that only final action by the agency can be considered a government endorsement.

Steinberg also said the company knows of 15 scientific studies that document the safety and effectiveness of PPA.

"The clinical and animal studies showed the ingredient in Dexatrim to be twice as effective in achieving weight loss as a placebo, equal in appetite suppression to prescription drugs but without the side effects and with no potential for abuse," he maintained. "We believe the vast majority of available research and information on PPA points to it as a safe, effective adjunct to a dietary program to help the motivated consumer take off weight."

Thompson Medical Co. makes Dexatrim, Control, Prolamine and Appedrine, all of which contain PPA.

The over-the-counter diet pill market generates between $125 million and $250 million a year.

Paper says test drugs may cause deaths

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Washington Post says a one-year study of experimental cancer drugs found 620 cases in which the compounds have been implicated in the deaths of cancer patients.

That number is only a fraction of the thousands who have in recent years died or suffered pain from experiments conducted in the nation's hospitals, say Post reporters Ted Gup and Jonathan Neumann.

"The litany of death and suffering from experimental drugs has become an accepted part of life at some hospitals around the nation," they wrote. "These human experiments have gone largely unchallenged and unquestioned by Congress, the medical profession and the scientific community at large."

The study is running in the Post as a four-part series, which began Sunday. The newspaper said it has detailed reports on each of the more than 150 chemicals used in human cancer experiments in the last decade and that its reporters conducted more than 600 interviews, examined hundreds of patient files and thousands of government documents from the National Cancer Institute and the Food and Drug Administration.

In today's installment, Miami physician Michael Troner said the experimental drug program is better than ignoring patients.

"I know sometimes we even make them sicker by treating them," said Troner, who treats patients at the Comprehensive Cancer Center of the State of Florida in Miami. "But I'd rather try (to treat them) than pat them on the back and tell them to go into the corner and die."

Vincent DeVita, director of the National Cancer Institute, said in a statement the Post carried on Monday that Sunday's installment "presented a tragic lack of understanding of cancer treatment and the national program to develop drugs that are effective in treating cancer."

DeVita said of 785,000 patients diagnosed with serious cancers in 1980, 356,000 are potentially curable. The number, he said, includes 46,000 curable as the result of using chemotherapy.

He said the Post failed to mention that cancer mortality rates are falling in the age group under 45 and that survival rates increased significantly for 7 of the 10 major cancers in whites and 6 of 10 in blacks.

But Robert Young, of the Food and Drug Administration's drug review section, had harsh comments for experimental drug use. He told the Post of a Boston hospital which tested an NCI drug on children and "their kidneys were lost within days."

Brown warns of water shortage

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Agriculture Commissioner Reagan Brown says Texas has "10 years of grace" before water becomes a serious problem for its food producers.

Brown testified Monday before the Senate Subcommittee on Agriculture, which is looking into problems of the state's farmers and ranchers.

"The Lord has smiled on Texas," Brown said, adding that the state has "10 years of grace" before the availability of water becomes a serious problem.

Sen. Bill Sarpalius, D-Hereford, said, "This will be one of the first major Senate studies on agriculture" and will culminate with recommendations to the 1983 Legislture.

The next hearing is Oct. 29 in Fort Worth, followed by hearings in Corpus Christi, Amarillo, Abilene, Lubbock, El Paso and Brownsville.

Brown told the subcommittee "the No. 1 consideration in agriculture today is a profit for our farmers."

He said American consumers "have the best deal on food in the world," spending only 14.9 percent of their disposable income on food.

He also said "migrant labor is dying in this state, and I'm going to help kill it. ... The aspirations of Hispanics in the Rio Grande Valley are a lot higher than spending the summer in a Brazos Valley shack, picking cotton."

"One of the biggest tasks I have," said Brown, "is interpreting to the 97 percent who don't understand agriculture how important it is."

Dr. Neville Clark, Texas Experiment Station Director, said limited natural resources, inflation and low prices for crops have combined to create a serious "crunch" for farmers.

He said the investment in agricultural research brings a return of 20 percent to 50 percent in taxpayer dollars.

Tobacco growers and anti-smokers on collision path

WASHINGTON (AP) — Government policies of supporting tobacco prices and discouraging tobacco use are on a collision course in the House, which already has voted to shelve sugar and peanut subsidy programs.

"As a matter of principle, it is wrong for the government to say on the one hand the results of growing tobacco are wrong — that is smoking — and on the other to support the business," says Bob Weymulller of the American Lung Society.

But Bob Tarczy of the Agriculture Department's Economic Research Service counters that tobacco price supports have "no influence over smoking. If anything, it probably makes smoking more expensive."

Tobacco is the only non-food, non-fiber commodity under federal price supports, and Southern congressmen hope five days of intense lobbying have broken the momentum that critics of commodity supports gained with last week's defeat of peanut and sugar programs.

"It's going to be close," Rep. Charlies Rose, D-N.C., the chairman of the House Agriculture subcommittee on peanuts and tobacco and the leading defender of the tobacco program, said of today's battle over tobacco supports.

Rep. Robert N. Shamansky, the freshman Ohio Democrat spearheading the tobacco opposition, agreed that the vote could go either way.

Since Thursday's sugar and peanut votes, "you can be sure the phones have been burning off the hooks," he said.

The House voted to deny resumption of price-support loans for sugar and to abolish special treatment for peanut growers. Peanuts would be put on the same footing as other commodities, with all producers eligible for price supports.

Shamansky urged President Reagan to speak out against tobacco supports, reminding him that he campaigned on a platform of less government intervention in the market place.

Attempts to kill the tobacco program were defeated last month in the Senate, largely because of the efforts of Agriculture Committee Chairman Jesse

AGRICULTURE

Helms, R-N.C., who represents the nation's largest tobacco-producing state.

The Reagan administration has not backed any of the attempts to eliminate or change support programs for the traditionally Southern crops; it made commitments last summer to retain the subsidies in return for the votes of Southern Democrats on its budget-cutting program.

Supporters of the Southern crops say some of the votes against peanuts and sugar were cast by Democrats angered by last summer's deals, and they fear the same thing could happen on tobacco.

Critics of tobacco supports have been bolstered by the apparent contradiction in the government policies of supporting tobacco prices while paying for anti-smoking campaigns and medical research on tobacco-related diseases.

In the last year, the government has spent some $28 million on anti-smoking campaigns and medical research on tobacco-related diseases.

Tarczy says abolition of the support system and the resulting increase in tobacco production would depress the market price for tobacco. Weymuller said the government should increase tobacco excise taxes to keep the price at present levels.

The Agriculture Department estimates that tobacco subsidies cost taxpayers $100,000 in 1980 and $57 million over the course of the program's 48-year lifespan.

Shamansky claims, however, that the government has spent an additional $600 million to $850 million over the years in interest rate subsidies for the program. Even the direct costs could skyrocket in the next few years, he says, because of the impact that increasing foreign imports are having on the demand for domestic tobacco.

But Shamansky's opposition is focused on the program's production restrictions, which concentrate control of the tobacco crop in the hands of people or organizations holding 550,000 federally-issued acreage allotments.

The allotments, issued when the program began in 1933, are traditionally handed down from father to son.

About half the allotments are held by people who lease their franchise to others for up to $1,000 an acre, Tarczy said. Shamansky puts the percentage even higher.

"We have a new oligarchy set up by the federal government and it goes by inheritance," Shamansky says. "It doesn't benefit the tobacco farmer. The beneficiary is the allotment holder. ... It's people in our (corporate) board rooms who don't want to lose this bonanza."

But the program's supporters argue that the cash value of the crop, maintained by the complex support program, has kept many small Southern farmers in business and off the welfare rolls.

Senate votes to roll back supports

WASHINGTON (AP) — A $1.5 million drain on the federal Treasury is being plugged with the Senate's vote to roll back dairy price supports to last month's level.

But the Senate action, nearly two weeks after the House took the same stand, could ultimately cost the government more in dairy price supports than President Reagan wants to spend.

The rollback legislation awaiting Reagan's signature had been the target of a short-lived filibuster by Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., whose state is among the nation's leading dairy producers.

Proxmire dropped his opposition Monday only after receiving assurances from Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C., chairman of the Agriculture Committee, that the committee would consider endorsing a long-range House plan that requires an increase in dairy price supports next fall.

The Senate's own long-range plan, adopted last month, would effectively freeze price supports at the September level for at least three years, according to congressional estimates.

Agriculture Secretary John R. Block has endorsed that proposal, warning that the House version exceeds budget limits by more than $500 million over the next four years and could be vetoed by the president. A veto, however, could require milk price supports to be returned to the higher level.

The emergency rollback legislation, blocked by Proxmire for a month, was necessary because final congressional agreement has not been reached on a price support package for commodities, including milk, to replace the one that expired Sept. 30. Because no new package was in place at that time.

Pamphlet changes are consumer group's goals

By KEN HERMAN
Associated Press Writer

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — A consumers group that complained about portions of the State Board of Morticians' information pamphlet on funerals has won some revisions, but might have to go to court to force others.

Consumers Union in August asked the board to change several passages in the pamphlet, including those regarding caskets, funeral costs and embalming.

In a letter received by CU on Monday, the board said some of the changes would be made. However, no change will be made in the section on embalming. That long-standing fight could wind up in the courts.

CU lawyer Carol Barger said the organization is considering filing suit against the board.

Embalming is a procedure that has sparked angry words between the funeral industry and consumer groups, who say the industry misleads people into believing embalming is necessary.

CU complained about the pamphlet's answer to the question, "What is the purpose of embalming?" The answer begins with the words, "Embalming sanitizes ..."

The dictionary says "sanitary" means pertaining to preservation of health, according to CU. The State Health Department has declared that embalming serves no public health purpose.

CU wanted a revised answer, saying, in part: "What embalming achieves is a subject of much scientific debate. ... It is largely a matter of personal choice and no claim that embalming is a sanitary or public health measure should be accepted."

Defending its decision not to make changes in the embalming section, the board said, "The term 'sanitizes' means to reduce the number of bacteria to an acceptable level; the embalming process accomplishes this function..."

Ms. Barger said the funeral industry is against any changes regarding embalming because "it's the big-dollar issue in the industry." She said the word "sanitizes" in the pamphlet has a strong influence on consumers' decisions on embalming.

The board OK'd changes in the section on funeral costs. Future editions of the pamphlet will say consumers are entitled to a price statement "during" the time that arrangements are being made. The pamphlet now says the statement should be available when arrangements "are completed."

However, the board refused to add a CU-proposed paragraph telling consumers that funeral directors could lose their licenses for "stating or implying that your concern with the cost of any funeral service ... is improper or indicates a lack of respect for the deceased."

No explanation was given for not including the paragraph.

CU also complained that funeral directors display cheap caskets in an unattractive way. The organization wanted the pamphlet to say that a funeral home must "display its least expensive casket in the same general manner as other caskets are displayed."

The board agreed to some revision of the casket section, but did not include the passage about displays.

'Home on the Range' composer dies

BALLINGER, Texas (AP) — The composer of "Home on the Range" and other popular songs has died at age 88 in a Dallas hospital.

Services for David Wendell Guion will be at 11 a.m. Wednesday at Evergreen Cemetery in this West Texas city where he was born. He died Saturday.

Guion was one of the first composers to transcribe American folk music into fiddle tunes such as "Turkey in the Straw," and "Arkansas Traveler." He also composed a wide range of other music, including orchestral suites, ballets, religious selections, piano pieces, children's music and folk songs. His works include "Cavalcade of America," commissioned for the 1936 Texas centennial, and "Texas Suite" in 1952.

Guion's long music career began at age 12 when he played the piano at an outdoor theater in Ballinger for $6 a week. He later studied at the Royal Conservatory of Music in Vienna and composed in New York. His first fame came when his song, "Old Maid Blues," was performed by Nora Bayes with George M.Cohan. He also taught at Southern Methodist University in Dallas and Howard Payne University in Brownwood, Texas.

Guion maintained a home in Dallas, but spent much of his later life in New York at his Greenwich Village studio and on a Pocono Mountains estate in Carbon County, Pa.

He is survived by a brother, Wade Guion of Wimberly, Texas, and two nieces.

Dorchester Gas president dies

SALIDA, Colo. (AP) — Alfred D. Wandke, president of Dorchester Gas Corp.'s coal mines near Fruita and Canon City, died in a weekend car accident about 35 miles east of Salida, authorities said.

Wandke, 60, lived in Dallas, where he was a member of the board of directors of Arabian Shield Development Corp., in which Dorchester holds an interest.

According to the Colorado State Patrol accident report, Wandke was killed when the car he was driving missed a curve, hit an embankment and rolled several times.

Hospitals join the ad crowd to sell their services

By SHARON COHEN
Associated Press Writer

CHICAGO (AP) — Faced with rising costs and fewer patients, some hospitals are turning to flashy gimmicks and catchy advertising to compete with each other and attract patients.

"It's no longer a seller's market for health care," Jeff Goldsmith, director of health planning at the University of Chicago Medical Center, said Monday. "The impetus to market comes from a scarcity of dollars and patients."

About 20 percent of the nation's hospitals are now marketing their services, says Judith Geduldig, editor of the Profiles and Hospital Marketing magazine.

A number of hospitals compete for maternity patients by offering new parents free wine or champagne with a steak dinner.

In Schaumburg, Ill., Suburban Medical Center promises service to its ailing emergency room "customers" within 60 seconds flat.

And Glenbrook Hospital, in Glenview, Ill., said its advertising campaign increased emergency room visits by 32 percent.

In Las Vegas, Nev., the Sunrise Hospital Medical Center — one of the pioneers of hospital marketing — offers "baby bonds" where a woman buys a bond during pregnancy and cashes it in when her child is born — with interest.

Doctors probably "will be publicly damning it and privately praising it," said Dr. George Miaoulis, professor of marketing at the University of Hartford in Connecticut.

Arthur Sturm, president of Sturm Communications Group Inc., a marketing firm representing 10 hospitals across the nation, said the surge in marketing shows hospitals are no different than other companies.

"Hospitals have to do business just like everybody else," he said. "It (marketing) really is appropriate behavior."

But Sturm also concedes that promoting an institution for the sick has its limits.

"Obviously there are some approaches that aren't applicable to hospitals," he said. "I don't think we'll have a hospital saying 'Weekends are made for open heart surgery.'"

Boy dies in train–car crash

DALLAS (AP) — A 6-year-old boy was killed and five other people were injured Monday when a hotel limousine and a train collided at a railroad crossing, police said.

Gregory McGruder Jr., of El Paso, died. His mother, Frances McGruder, 30, was critically injured when the limousine crossed the tracks and was struck by the train, police said.

The boy's father, Gregory McGruder Sr., 40, was treated for minor injuries and released, said officials at Parkland Memorial Hospital.

Pat Donelson, 36, and his son Tyler, 6, both of Stratford, Texas and Mona Mullins, 37, of El Paso also were treated and released, hospital officials said.

The driver, Mohammed Amirani, 33, was not injured, officials said.

The limousine belonged to Regent's Hotel in Dallas.

Morgan Dollar Find

Available Only Until Midnight Tonight

October, 1981, Philadelphia. IMM announced today the discovery of a MINT bag of original 1904 New Orleans MINT Morgan Silver Dollars. The 1904 was the last Morgan to be struck at the old U.S. Government New Orleans mint. Moreover, this discovery comes at a time when mint condition U.S. Morgan Silver Dollar issues—of the same uncirculated condition—are commanding as much as $500 each. And extremely limited supply coupled with fierce bidding among collectors continue to push prices steadily higher. International Monetary Mint is releasing for sale these brilliant uncirculated Morgan Silver Dollars at the Special Investor Opportunity price of only $95 each. You may never have a better opportunity to own rare Morgan Silver Dollars. Investors who respond from this publication by midnight, tonight, may purchase from 1 to 5 individual coins at this price. Because of the extremely limited number available, orders will be filled on a first come, first-served basis with a strict limit of 5 coins per customer. All 1904 Morgan Silver Dollars from this mint bag grade B.U. MS-60 or better and are accompanied by a certificate of authenticity to that effect. Coins classified "Brilliant Uncirculated" have never been placed in general circulation and are still in mint state condition. To qualify for this offering, call Lee Collins toll-free at 1-800-345-8502. Orders will be accepted on major credit cards only. An additional $2.75 is requested to cover insurance, postage, and special handling per order. If not satified, you may return your Morgan Silver Dollars in the original condition within 30 days for a full refund.

Protecting tribals

Children ran and played in the CARE outpost in the Amazon jungle. But from the missionary's hut came the sound of wracking coughs. A visitor asked the missionary who was sick. "That is the Auca chief and his sons," the missionary explained. "Why are they ill?" asked the stranger. "They have just made their first contact with civilization," the missionary answered.

Contact with modern civilization, no matter how well-intentioned on the part of outsiders, can bring illness and death to natives with no immunity to foreign diseases. Flu viruses in clothing that missionaries give to Amazon Indians have killed entire tribes. Natives living on the fringes of modern civilization are often as threatened by efforts to "civilize" them as by outright attacks on their land and persons.

There are 200 million tribals now living in the Third World, a protection organization estimates. Hunters and gatherers, like the Yanomani of Brazil, the bushmen of Namibia and the tribesmen of New Guinea, constitute the most endangered minority on earth. Few people in modern countries know that tribal peoples are not a small quaint remnant of native populations, but that their number almost equals America's current population. Few realize that the slaughter of tribes is not a thing of the past, but that many natives face loss of land and dignity, rape, disease and death — today.

The modern world's restless search for petroleum and other resources has thrust roads, airfields and settlers into remote tribal lands. The building of the trans-Amazon highway in Brazil cut off tribes from their hunting grounds, exposed them to attacks from land-grabbers, and introduced them to measles, chicken pox and cachaca, cane whiskey. A series of bombings of Indian villages by settlers drew international protests that made the Brazilian government clamp down on Indian killers. But the insidious process of alcoholism, commercial exploitation and attraction to cities is decimating once-independent tribes.

This process is not new. The Spanish and Portuguese conquest killed, through the sword, disease and slavery, millions of Aztecs, Incas, and Amerindians. America's own record of assault against Indian natives, as documented by Dee Brown's book, "Bury Me at Wounded Knee," showed the tragic fate of Cheyennes and Apaches caught in this country's march toward a "manifest destiny."

But Western civilization is not only to blame. The tribes now living in the Amazon were pushed there by warlike Indian civilizations that commanded the Andean mountains.

And there are dilemmas. Should the progress of Third World countries with huge, impoverished urban populations be halted to protect natives living in the Stone Age?

How important to the civilization we seek to extend is our commitment to the value of each individual human life, no matter the person's culture?

Handwringing can do little to help tribals. But consciousness of their situation by international organizations, such as the United Nations, could lead to a declaration of the human rights of tribal peoples. Private protection groups, like the Anthropology Resource Center and Cultural Survival in Boston, and Survival International in London, are working to publicize the plight of tribals, and to bring expertise about how to deal with them to multinational corporations and Third World governments.

Tribal people understand that they, like all humans, must adapt to new circumstances. But adjustment need not mean loss of dignity, disease or death. Our humanity is tested by the way we treat fellow humans in the name of modern civilization.

WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

Egyptian officials lied to mask arms deal

WASHINGTON — A flurry of coded messages between Egyptian and American businessmen reveals the backroom manipulations by high Egyptian officials that gave a small company with Palestinian connections exclusive control of billions of dollars' worth of U.S. arms shipments to Egypt.

Jack Anderson

The cables between Cairo and Washington from May to December 1979 trace the progress of the businessmen's state of mind from suspicion through alarm to final confirmation that they had been royally lied to by the men who now run Egypt. Copies of the cables were obtained by my associates Indy Badhwar and Dale Van Atta.

The messages used code names for the principal figures and institutions involved in the arms deal: "Fathers" for the U.S. Congress; "Plasma" for the U.S. aid program; "Wedding" for the arms shipping contract; "Cage" for the Pentagon; "Umpire" for Kamal Hassan Ali, now Egyptian deputy prime minister, and "Shortstop" for Abu Ghazala, now the defense minister.

In addition, there were uncoded references to Hosni Mubarak, the new president of Egypt, and his brother-in-law, Mounir Sabet, now chief of military procurement. There was no suspicion that Mubarak was actively involved in the secret deal, only that he was told about it but apparently failed to take action because of his brother-in-law, who was deeply involved.

The background of the scandal starts with the Camp David accords, signed in March 1979. To sweeten the pot for Egypt, President Carter promised billions of dollars in U.S. military aid. Several prominent American and Egyptian firms submitted proposals for the lucrative contract to ship the arms to Cairo, and were assured by Ghazala, Ali and Sabet that they were being given favorable consideration.

Actually, an exclusive contract was secretly awarded to a Geneva-based company named Tersam in April 1979. Yet the Egyptian officials continued to pretend that the bidding was still open — a charade that became more and more apparent to the frustrated legitimate businessmen as the months rolled by.

In early May, a cable from one East Coast businessman to a Cairo associate gave no hint that anything was wrong: "Contacted key Fathers (congressmen) and basically a blank check for both countries to draw upon ... 2 billion to Egypt next two years ... Umpire (Ali) must have strong Washington support to fight for Egypt's fair share (of arms contracts) ... Fathers and Cage (Pentagon) agree central procurement will save millions and assure quality control ..."

The first note of alarm came in a cable from Washington to Cairo on May 15: "Our people say Salem (Hassan Salem, Tersam's Egyptian front man) has exclusive contract with Umpire's signature on it. Is this true?" This, of course, was all too true.

But the response from Cairo was reassuring: "Position still strong as secured (by) Umpire Saturday ... Umpire office will arrange all necessary instructions for registration at once. We are in the race in advanced position. Umpire insists on fact that no wedding (shipping contract) without our prior knowledge." This assurance from Ali, who was then defense minister, was given a month after the secret deal was made with Tersam.

Next, from Washington: "We have found out from Army Security Assistance Center that a company headed by Hassan Salem of Alexandria, Va., has been given the authority by the Egyptian government to do all freight forwarding ... We have all been made out to be fools ..."

From Cairo: "Detailed report was delivered to the Vice President (Mubarak) by hand. Mentioned all high standing persons by name as presented from Cage (Pentagon) and Fathers (Congress). Umpire recognized and promised to change all matters."

From New York: "This project involves the national security of Home Base (Egypt) and Umpire has placed it in the hands of your declared enemy (Palestinians). If this vital disclosure does not get an instantaneous reaction, all is for nothing."

From Cairo: "Authorities insisting that report to Vice President is not true and that there is no exclusive contract signed with Tersam."

But the cat was out of the bag. Letters from Ghazala and from Ali's office acknowledged that the Tersam deal had been cut months before. Both these letters are in my possession.

DERAILING AMTRAK: Mass firings or demotions of key personnel by the Reagan administration have effectively sabotaged Amtrak, the government passenger-train agency. Unable to persuade Congress to cut Amtrak's budget, the administration is accomplishing the destruction of the agency by executive fiat.

More than 100 experienced middle-level management professionals have been purged in recent months, while almost all the political hacks installed by the Carter administration have been kept on the payroll to mollify congressional Democrats.

Some of the dismissals had a surrealistic quality:

— Industrial Liaison Chief Joe Bellano was fired a week after he got a sizable merit raise. He has just received an engraved bronze plaque for his outstanding work on an Amtrak-Pentagon project.

— Fletcher Prouty, the public relations boss, was promoted last year, given a fat raise this year — and then fired.

— Assistant Vice President John Lombardi was bounced just as he was organizing Amtrak's takeover of several commuter rail services.

Ironically, 1980 was Amtrak's best year.

TODAY IN HISTORY

Today is Tuesday, Oct. 20, the 293rd day of 1981. There are 72 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On Oct. 20, 1918, Germany accepted U.S. terms to end World War I and ordered its submarines back to home bases.

On this date:

In 1897, the King of Korea proclaimed himself emperor.

In 1945, the Arab League was formed amid warnings that creation of a Jewish state could lead to war in the Middle East.

In 1968, Jacqueline Kennedy and Aristotle Onassis were married.

And in 1977, the civilian government of Thailand was ousted in a bloodless coup by a military junta that had installed the regime one year earlier.

Ten years ago: West German Chancellor Willy Brandt was awarded the Nobel Peace Prize for his efforts to lessen East-West tensions.

Five years ago: President Ford said his administration would not tolerate another Arab oil embargo.

One year ago: The speaker of Iran's parliament said it was unlikely the 52 American hostages would be tried as spies.

Today's birthdays: Columnist Art Buchwald is 56; baseball hall-of-famer Mickey Mantle is 50.

Thought for today: "Men are great only if they are determined to be so." — Charles de Gaulle, French statesman-general (1890-1970).

BIBLE VERSE

Herein is my Father glorified that ye bear much fruit. John 15:8

CHARLEY REESE

Welfare programs ineffective

One reason so many government welfare programs are ineffective and deserve to be abolished is that they violate Charley's Good Samaritan Guideline.

Charley Reese

That guideline is that you should never allow a third party to make money from charity. Most of the government's welfare programs do that and that's why they become boondoggles.

Medicaid, for example, has become such a lucrative racket that it's attracted the Mafia. Francis Mullen, assistant director of the criminal investigation division of the FBI, has testified that corruption permeates virtually every area of the Medicare and Medicaid industry.

Next year the government will spend about $64 billion on the two programs. Common sense tells you something is wrong. We have not gotten that much older, poorer and sicker. In fact, since World War II, we have gotten healthier and wealthier.

Why then is the bill so enormous. Well, inflation is one factor. The purchasing power of the dollar has declined so much that all government budget figures are somewhat misleading. Each dollar just buys less.

Another reason is the fraud which has been and continues to be documented. Still, a third reason is that very human trait which sees nothing wrong with picking an apple since the tree provided it.

Liberals often argue that government programs are a result of public demand. In nearly every case, this is not true. In nearly every case the reverse is true. The government initiates the program in response to a stage-managed request and then proceeds to create the demand.

For example, if I announced that I was offering $1 million for research into the sex life of centipedes, you can be sure the poor centipedes would soon lose their privacy. Whenever you put money out on the table, somebody is going to take it.

Colleges, universities and private schools are full of people getting degrees they don't need or especially want because they are eligible for GI bill education benefits. They reason that the money is there so they might as well take it. Medicare created the nursing home industry.

Americans, of course, are geniuses at making a buck and since 1960, the really hot game in town has been figuring out a way to tap into the government till. Just remember that government is nothing but a horseshoe-shaped pump which sucks money out of some pockets and pumps it into other pockets. The taxpayers are on the sucker side of the pump and the pun is intentional.

I, like most Americans, believe that the truly indigent, the truly disabled, should be given a minimum base of care. The trick is to devise ways to do this without: (1) destroying all incentive of those who are able to do so to become self-sufficient; and (2) preventing third parties from profiteering.

Liberalism has failed in its attempt. If you stipulate good intentions which I'm not always willing to do, the liberal welfare state has become a racket and an embittering, expensive experience for the productive people in our country who have seen their own welfare diminished and threatened in the name of welfare.

The screams of protest that are being directed at Ronald Reagan are coming from those with a vested interest in the quarter of a trillion dollar a year industry. Those of us who are providing the money but not receiving any benefits should support the president.

HEMISPHERE REPORT

United States may have power to decide El Salvador's fate

WASHINGTON — Whether Marxists take control of El Salvador or not may well be decided in the United States.

The armed forces of the tiny Central American country and the Marxist guerrillas have battled to a military stalemate.

William Giandoni

True, of course, the Christian Democrat-military junta that runs El Salvador beat back two guerrilla offensives since the beginning of the year.

But, after being defeated in their head-on clashes with the military, the Marxists turned to sabotage, destroying bridges, mining roads, bombing power transmission lines and blowing up businesses, working toward the deterioration of the Salvadoran economy.

Such hit-and-run tactics will not bring the Marxists quick victory.

But, as Clito de Giovanni, formerly of the Central Intelligence Agency, told Copley News Service, the relative impunity with which the guerrillas conduct their sabotage operations does project an image of strength.

De Giovanni, recently returned from a trip to Central America, says that while the guerrillas are not winning, they are not losing. Nor are the Salvadoran armed forces.

That means a protracted conflict and predictably more of the slaughter that has given rise to charges of "genocide" against the ruling junta.

Even observers sympathetic toward the Duarte government concede that lots of innocent people are being killed in El Salvador because they are in the wrong place at the wrong time.

But wanton killing of uninvolved civilians is not official policy.

President Duarte, a graduate of Notre Dame University, South Bend, Ind., not only is well aware of the negative impact that allegations of human rights violations of any sort have on his government's image, but also is morally opposed to political violence.

El Salvador's military leaders, too, know that the survival of the regime may depend in great part on foreign, chiefly U.S., public opinion.

Because the conflict in El Salvador seems to be settling down into a war of attrition, and because additional U.S. aid may well be needed, the Christian Democrat-military junta has endeavored to avoid doing anything that might further arouse its critics in the United States.

However, the fear in El Salvador is that the United States may be starting to relax its stand against the Marxist advance in Central America.

For one thing, the United States now seems to think that the Marxists can be convinced that they should participate in elections that the Duarte government has scheduled for next March.

Assistant Secretary of State Thomas O. Enders gave official voice to the "hope that some elements of the FDR (Democratic Revolutionary Front) might yet be willing to come to negotiate in good faith about the electoral process" in a statement to the House subcommittee on inter-American affairs Sept. 24.

The FDR, generally recognized as the Marxist front, has rejected the suggestion that the guerrillas put down their arms and start dealing with the Duarte regime.

The Salvadoran military, too, is opposed to talks with the FDR. The Frente already has said that one of its preconditions to negotiation is "restructuring the army." In the Central American context today, that could mean imprisonment if not execution of loyal military men.

While results of the elections that the United States wants probably will just show that the Marxists do not have the strength they claim, any representation the guerrillas get in the assembly that is to draw up the country's next constitution, would help demoralize the anti-communists, and open the way to a Marxist takeover in El Salvador.

DR. NEIL SOLOMON

Curing birth defects before birth being researched

Dear Dr. Solomon: I read with a great deal of interest your item on amniocentesis, and how it permits a pregnant woman to know if she will give birth to a healthy baby. If a defect is shown, many of these women choose to have an abortion.

What I'd like to know is if there isn't another solution. Can't anything be done about correcting the defect before the mother gives birth? — Anne, Oklahoma City, Okla.

Dear Anne: A researcher at the University of North Carolina is conducting experiments with mice in an effort to determine if it is possible to do what you suggest. Dr. Guillermo Millicovsky has studied cleft lip and cleft palate, the third most common malformation in humans. He says that work with the mice indicates it might be possible to reduce some common birth defects by manipulating the pregnant woman's environment in some fashion.

In one experiment, Dr. Milliocovsky placed pregnant mice in a chamber in which he could regulate the amount of oxygen in the air. This particular strain of mice had been bred so that about 40 percent of the offspring would be born with cleft lip.

The results showed that when the oxygen levels in the chamber were reduced for a 24-hour period from the usual 22 percent to 10 percent, nine of every 10 mice were born with the defect. Conversely, when the amount of oxygen was increased to 50 percent for the same period, the incident of cleft lip was reduced to 13 percent.

Whether these findings are transferable to humans and to other types of birth defects is not known. But they at least offer the hope that the incidence of birth defects can be reduced by taking action before a woman gives birth.

Dear Dr. Solomon: A niece of mine had German measles during her last pregnancy about two years ago, and gave birth to a child with serious birth defects. She says she is afraid of having another child because she is worried that the same thing might happen. Is there any reason for this concern? — Mrs. A.J., Towson, Md.

Dear Mrs. J.: When a pregnant woman has German measles (rubella), only the child in the womb at the time of the mother's infection can be harmed. The birth defect is not hereditary, but due to an environmental factor.

While no one can guarantee a healthy child from any pregnancy, your niece should realize that the German measles she had two years ago will not affect a new pregnancy.

Dear Dr. Solomon: Do you know how many people die of lung cancer in the United States each year? — Miss T.A., York, Pa.

Dear Miss T.A.: Approximately 85,000 people in the United States die of lung cancer each year.

Dear Dr. Solomon: I used to go for routine chest X-rays, but have stopped because I am afraid that chest X-rays can cause lung cancer. Am I right? — Mrs. D.A., Dallas, Texas

Dear Mrs. D.A.: No, diagnostic X-rays, as utilized by physicians today, do not cause lung cancer.

Suit filed against schools

By STEVE BREWER
Associated Press

LAS CRUCES, N.M. (AP) — The Las Cruces School District's policy of holding a daily "moment of silence" in public schools has been challenged in federal court by a Las Cruces man and the American Civil Liberties Union.

The lawsuit contends that the policy violates the constitutional guarantees of separation of church and state because it supposedly promotes religion in the classroom.

The lawsuit was filed in U.S. District Court by Las Cruces attorney Dan A. Gonzales on behalf of Jerry Duffy of Las Cruces and his son, John, a fourth-grader in the school system. The elder Duffy operates a Montessori school in Las Cruces, Gonzales said.

Gonzales said the lawsuit is based on the separation of church and state derived from the First Amendment of the Constitution.

The school system began holding the daily minute of silence Oct. 12 on a trial basis, said Jim Carpenter, spokesman for the district. The new policy took effect following a September decision by the school board reached after months of haggling over whether it should be implemented.

Carpenter said local groups pressured the school board to implement the period of silence following legislative passage earlier this year of House Bill 205, which allowed school districts to set aside up to one minute per day for "contemplation, meditation or prayer."

Carpenter said the school district merely has been providing the silence without any recommendation to students whether to pray.

"Mr. Duffy feels that when you clear away all the smoke and clear away all the fancy language, it is promoted by people who want to put religion back in the public schools," Gonzales said. "There were a lot of people who were not happy with (the decision). I think they thought they were forced into it."

The lawsuit asks for a declaratory judgment that would declare HB 205 unconstitutional and enjoin the district from enforcing the law.

"Basically, we're asking the court to prohibit the period of silence," Gonzales said.

Mike Paulowsky, the Las Cruces attorney representing the district, said Monday he had not yet met with school officials to discuss the case, but said, "We feel that the school system is sufficiently neutral to not be in violation of the Constitution."

Paulowsky said the question in the case will be whether the period of silence is a promotion of religion or whether it is, as school officials contend, merely a time for the student to think about whatever he wants.

Carpenter said school officials were not surprised by the lawsuit.

"We had heard rumors for some time that something like this was coming," he said. "Probably, it needs to be tested in the courts."

World leaders attend summit on how to help poor nations

By CHARLES HANLEY
Associated Press Writer

CANCUN, Mexico (AP) — Leaders from five continents start flying in to this posh playground of the rich today for a historic conference on how best to help the world's poor.

Mexican authorities, the assassination of Egypt's President Anwar Sadat fresh in their minds, have ringed the Caribbean island resort with gunboats and guards for the meeting Thursday and Friday of 22 world leaders, including President Reagan.

Security officials will not say how many military men and police will guard the visitors, but the local press puts the number at 5,000.

Six gunboats cruise offshore, and marine patrols walk beaches. There also are armed frogmen watching below the waves, with their focus on the pale blue waters off the Cancun Sheraton, site of the talks and hotel for the chiefs.

Reagan's stay will give him a look at a Third World phenomenon his administration repeatedly rejects — state planning and investment.

Cancun, a desolate, 12-mile-long sandspit a decade ago, was determined by government computers to be ideal for a resort. It was developed by a government tourism corporation. Two of its 28 hotels are government-owned; others were built by the state and sold to private interests. All are expensive.

Wealthy tourists crowd the beaches and bars; few poor are seen here, though Mexico has rampant poverty. Like other developing nations it is hosting, Mexico wants changes in the world economic system to favor the poor.

Reagan, who leads the wealthiest nation, says private enterprise must take precedence over actions of rich governments of the Northern Hemisphere in developing Third World countries, which are mostly to the south.

In a speech last week, Reagan said the first issue that should be addressed here is government policy in poor nations that block development.

Some central issues that will probably be raised:

—Third World countries want more direct foreign aid from northern governments. A special North-South commission, headed by former West German Chancellor Willy Brandt, urged $8 billion more a year for agriculture alone.

—Less developed nations, often dependent on exporting raw materials to earn "hard" foreign currency, want to raise and stabilize prices for these commodities, which they say lag behind prices of manufactured goods they import.

—Third World countries want help in developing their own energy, particularly through a proposed $30 billion fund affiliated with the World Bank.

Other issues include poor nations' demands for greater role in international financial institutions and a bigger break on industrialized countries' tariffs.

No final communique is expected from the summit. Mexican President Jose Lopez-Portillo, as chairman, will probably issue a statement summarizing results.

Leaders of seven countries arrive late today, including Chinese Premier Zhao Ziyang. The majority of the leaders, including Reagan, arrive Wednesday. The Soviet Union declined an invitation.

The other countries represented are Japan, West Germany, Britain, Sweden, Austria, Algeria, Bangladesh, Brazil, Guyana, India, Ivory Coast, Nigeria, Philippines, Saudi Arabia, Tanzania, Venezuela and Yugoslavia.

Soviets assessing need for raising number of troops in Afghanistan

By BARRY SHLACHTER
Associated Press Writer

ISLAMABAD, Pakistan (AP) — A high-level Soviet military delegation arrived in Kabul this month with the apparent aim of assessing the need for raising the level of Soviet troops in Afghanistan, now estimated at 85,000, Western diplomatic sources said today.

"The Soviets must have gotten to the stage where they have to consider sending in reinforcements," said one Western European analyst, who declined to be identified. "In our view, the question is not whether to bring in more troops but when."

He said the Afghan rebels appeared to be in a stronger position than they were at the start of the Soviet intervention in December 1979. However, American officials say the situation is a military stalemate.

The delegation, believed headed by an army marshal, arrived in the Afghan capital during early October and was known to be still in the country on the 14th, a diplomatic source said. A Soviet marshal is equivalent in rank to a U.S. Army three- or four-star general depending on his responsbilities.

A sizable percentage of Soviet troops is committed to garrison duty and protecting supply convoys from the Soviet Union. Rugged terrain and frequent guerrilla ambushes have created a formidable logistics problem which complicates the question of reinforcements, according to a Western military specialist here.

"If you reinforce, will the security situation be improved enough to offset the increased supply problems?" he asked. "The Soviets are probably wondering whether two or three added divisions will make any difference."

It recently took a Soviet convoy five days to travel 300 miles from Kandahar to Kabul "fighting all the way," said the source.

The specialist, who requested anonymity, said the Soviet delegation also was likely to have examined the state of the Afghan army which, he asserted, "continues to disintegrate."

The Afghan army, wracked by desertions and defections, has shrunk from 90,000 in 1979 to about 30,000, according to Western estimates.

The dwindling number of loyal fighting men forced the Kabul regime of President Babrak Karmal to recall army veterans under 35 for a year's active duty. Only truck drivers, students, teachers, merchants engaged in foreign trade and bank personnel who operate office machinery have been declared exempt.

The move, announced Sept. 7, has been largely a failure, a Western diplomatic source quoted a Kabul report as saying. Although the regime has a potential pool of some 1 million reservists and other veterans, only between 10,000-12,000 have been inducted.

Observers said the poor showing stemmed from general opposition to the Soviet-installed Karmal regime and the fact that much of the countryside, where the bulk of the population lives, is under insurgent control.

Bomb kills one, injures 95

ANTWERP, Belgium (AP) — A bomb-laden car exploded near a synagogue in the city's diamond district early today, killing one woman and injuring at least 95 other people, 12 of them seriously, police said.

The blast wrecked a nearby building and shattered windows, police said. The district was cordoned off as ambulances and fire trucks were rushed to the scene after the explosion at 9 a.m. —4 a.m. EDT.

Today is the Jewish holiday of Shemini Atzereth and the synagogue was conducting services when the car exploded, police said. The victim was described as a 35-year-old woman but police did not further identify her.

The bomb had been placed in a small car that was hurled into the air as it exploded in a narrow street near the synagogue and the Jewish-owned Antwerp Diamond Club, one of the main diamond exchanges, police said.

A nearby building was damaged so severely it threatened to collapse. Some windows of the Antwerp central railway station a few blocks away were shattered.

Donald J. Fernbach, M.D., of Houston was elected president of the Texas Division at the meeting of the board of directors. Mrs. Alton Zamzow of Three Rivers was re-elected chairman of the board.

Theme of the meeting attended by more than 250 delegates from local ACS units throughout Texas was, "Thirty-five Years of Progress in Cancer Control."

The theme traced the increasing sophistication of the Society's education, research and patient services programs since 1946, the year the Texas Division was founded.

Mrs. Lacy was also elected as treasurer at the meeting.

According to Mrs. Gifford, the annual meeting is held each year to elect a new board of directors and officers; to recognize outstanding volunteer work around the state and to formulate program plans for the coming year.

"The meetings were very worthwhile and it is certainly gratifying to see more than 50 volunteers from all over the state get together for a common cause," said Mrs. Gifford.

Book focuses on Texas women

NACOGDOCHES, Texas (AP) — They may not all be as well known as rock singer Janis Joplin or outlaw Belle Starr, but women have played an important role in Texas history, according to the Texas Folklore Society, which has just published a book about some of them.

The biographical sketches in "Legendary Ladies of Texas" range from athlete Babe Didrikson to killer Bonnie Parker. The book, edited by Francis E. Abernethy, secretary-editor of the society, was produced in cooperation with the Texas Foundation for Women's Resources.

The foundation's Texas Women's History Project based the 26 articles in the volume on "scraps of historical facts, documents, records, letters and journals," says Mary Beth Rogers, project director. "For the first time this information is being organized to illustrate the nature of the female experience, a distinct and largely ignored part of our social and political heritage as Texans."

"Texas women were influential in the development of the state," she writes in the introduction to the book. They were "gun runners, cotton pickers, politicians, mothers, ranchers, bridge builders, do-gooders, capitalists, telephone operators, labor organizers, institutional fund-raisers, community leaders, military pilots, physicians, rodeo queens, rock stars and more.

"Texas women were activists. They ran ranches, branded cattle, lobbied the halls of the Texas Legislature with the most hardened 'good ole boys,' wrote books, invented products, made big money, negotiated treaties, led strikes, ran hospitals, preached the gospel, got elected to public office and built major institutions."

Among those spotlighted is Miriam "Ma" Ferguson, who in 1925 was inaugurated as the first women governor of Texas — the second woman governor in the United States, having been beaten to the honor only 15 days before by Mrs. Nellie Tayloe Ross as Wyoming's governor.

Others whose stories are told include Angelina, the Indian interpreter; Adah Isaacs Menken, theatrical toast of Europe: Elisabet Ney, unorthodox sculptor; Sally Skull, straight-shooting rancher; Mollie Bailey, circus entrepreneur; and Emily Morgan, who is believed to have inspired "The Yellow Rose of Texas" song.

And — legends in their own time — the Dallas Cowboy Cheerleaders.

Next to the American Folklore Society, the Texas Folklore Society, founded in 1909, is the oldest folklore organization still functioning in the United States. The society's offices are on the Stephen F. Austin State University campus in Nacogdoches, where Abernethy is professor of English.

Postlewait wins Putt-Off contest

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — Kathy Postlewait, who earned only $47,507 in 25 Ladies Professional Golf Association tournaments this year, defeated Patty Sheehan by 5 strokes Sunday to win the $50,000 first prize in the $100,000 J&B Scotch Putt-Off at the Desert Inn Country Club.

Sheehan, 24, never led in the 36-hole championship match after being the sensation in Saturday's competition. She was 4 shots behind Postlewait after the first 18 holes and fell back another stroke in the afternoon.

In the match for third place prior to the main event, Amy Alcott defeated Donna Caponi, the 1981 LPGA champion, by 1 stroke in an 18-hole match.

Alcott, who was 3 under par, received $7,500, while Caponi, who was 2-under, collected $5,000.

"I'm not quite sure I still won but I'm going to call my broker and find out what to do with it (the money)," said Postlewait, 31, who hasn't won a tournament in eight years on the LPGA tour while earning $188,981.

"I had the butterflies, I was conscious of them, but I felt I kept them under control. I didn't have time to get nervous."

Postlewait's biggest purse before Sunday was $10,500 for a second-place finish in a tournament last year.

Pierre Cardin taking his fashions to China

By CAROLYN LESH
Associated Press Writer

PARIS (AP) — Designer Pierre Cardin plans to extend his ready-to-wear fashion empire to Peking in the hopes the Chinese are ready — and able — to wear his high-priced clothes.

The 58-year-old designer will travel to the Chinese capital Nov. 15 to open a showroom as the first part of a plan that also includes a Peking boutique in 1982 and a complex featuring a hotel and a branch of Paris' famed Maxim's restaurant.

"The showroom will not be directed at Western tourists visiting Peking," Cardin spokeswoman Elizabeth de Molliens said. "We hope the Chinese population will visit too."

Pierre Crey, head of public relations at Cardin, said the showroom would be strictly for exhibiting the Cardin line and that no styles would be for sale until the Peking boutique opens next year.

"We want the Chinese to be able to learn about Western styles," Crey said of the showroom's purpose.

Mrs. de Molliens said prices at the boutique would be comparable to those that Cardin styles fetch in the West — where one outfit can run into the hundreds of dollars.

"I suppose the prices could be adapted somewhat," Mrs. de Molliens said.

A hefty amount of adapting would have to be done to put the clothes in the reach of the average Peking worker, who earns about $40 a month.

On Peking streets these days, dress is still primarily baggy trousers, loose jackets and drab colors, although women are starting to show a bit more color in jackets and sweaters. Summer skirts also are seen more often these days and there is even an occasional chi pao, the traditional Chinese long slit skirt.

The Chinese government has encouraged greater diversity in clothing styles, but change is coming slowly. Many older Chinese tend to be critical of flared trousers and other styles once considered to be "decadent."

But Cardin has built an empire on innovative ideas and is banking that there is a market for his goods among some of China's one billion people.

Cardin was one of the first Westerners to go to China after it opened its doors to capitalistic enterprises. He was also the first noted designer to show ready-to-wear clothes in Paris, as far back as 1959.

More importantly, Cardin introduced the licensing idea to the fashion world in which his name is attached to everything from garments to cigarette lighters to furniture. Crey said about 100,000 people now work in the Cardin licensing field and that Cardin products are sold in 40 countries, including the Soviet Union.

Cardin plans to put on a fashion show upon his arrival in Peking, featuring styles from his haute couture and ready-to-wear lines. His showroom, scheduled to open later in November, will include styles from the designer's lines for men, women and children.

It will be Cardin's third trip to Peking since 1978 and the second time he has paraded his Parisian styles in the Chinese capital.

HINTS FROM HELOISE

Carbon copy family letter

DEAR HELOISE:

Letter writing is more of a challenge than a chore when you can make one family letter do for all.

With parents in one state and children away at school or military duty, and each member eager to hear all the news, a single letter with carbon copies is the answer.

I keep the original and file it by date. This weekly account over the years has been sort of a diary and a good record of events — everything from where we went on vacation that year, to when Johnny had the mumps. — Mrs. Robert Hargreaves

+ + +

We all enjoy hearing from family and friends, and the only way to do so is to keep in contact ourselves.

So here's an easy way to let everyone know what's happening at one writing — and think of the replies you'll receive (hopefully) ere long! — Heloise

DELICIOUS AND NUTRITIOUS

Dear Heloise: When fixing fried steak, I always have mashed potatoes. I save the potato water for the liquid to make the gravy.

More vitamins to add to the gravy, and is it good! I could eat the gravy just by itself! — Ruth Burns

LETTER OF THOUGHT

Dear Heloise: Since my husband's work has not been steady lately, I'e been cutting all corners: groceries, utilities and extra unnecessary items.

Our friends and relatives are all in the same position due to industrial layoffs in our town.

As I was reading a Bible story to my child, a reality of the times came to me. The verse referred to God wanting us to be good to each other. If we have two coats and someone else has none, give him one of ours. This is the true way to be happy, He says.

I've since been sharing things that I no longer use with my friends and relatives in need. I'm saving them money and in return they are sharing with me.

May God bless you. — Cindy H.

+ + +

God has already richly blessed you with a kind heart and a sharing spirit. Thanks for sharing with us. — Heloise

TRAVEL BED

Dear Heloise: When my grandson was 3 months old, he and my daughter were able to travel with us.

Travel beds are expensive, so I purchased a storage box about the size of a filing cabinet drawer (companies use these for storing old records, etc.).

I made a liner for the box, dropping it over the sides about 3 inches. I cut a piece of four-inch thick foam rubber to fit for the padding, then covered it with a matching slip cover.

While driving, the box folded flat and was set on top of the luggage in the trunk. At motels and our final destination, it was a snap to unfold and set up for the baby.

The "bed" has since become a toy box, and the foam made great stadium cushions. — Ruth Bock

STAYS PUT

Dear Heloise: I've tried many things to make my knife and fork utensil tray stay securely put in my kitchen drawer.

Then I found that an empty match box, placed at the back of the drawer, took up the unused space and the tray now fits snuggly in the drawer. — Claudia Halterman

HANDY MEASURE

Dear Heloise: A standard check is exactly six inches long. This is helpful to know when you're shopping and need to measure something.

Your tape measure or ruler may be in another purse but that good old checkbook rarely is left behind. — Mrs. Walter Deal

Aren't these readers ingenious? If you are too, send your cleverest hint to Heloise, P.O. Box 32000, San Antonio, Tx. 78216. She can't answer your letter personally but she'll use the niftiest hints received in her column.

DEAR ABBY

Men don't measure up to her standards

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: I'm 32, single, and all my life I've been just plain big! (I'm 5 feet, 10 inches and weigh 200.)

There's a single man who just started working where I work and I think he finds me attractive. He hangs around my desk and greets me every morning with, "Good morning, Beautiful!" Abby, does he really mean it, or is he making fun of me? Are men really ever attracted to big women, or do they think we're desperate?

I like him, but I'm afraid he is just out for what he can get. Not long ago, a man I hardly knew propositioned me, and I said no. Then he said, "Don't hold out too long, Honey. A girl your size doesn't get many chances." I'm beginning to think he was right. — BIG AND HURTING IN N.J.

DEAR HURTING: Don't fall into that trap. Many heavy women suffer from low self-esteem and are inclined to take anything they can get because they're lonely and their chances are few.

Please get IT'S ME — an excellent new magazine especially for the big woman. The current issue addresses itself in particular to the problem of weight-related promiscuity. The article titled "Sex — a Weighty Problem — In Your Head or in Your Bed?" deals realistically with this problem. I urge you to read it!

DEAR ABBY: This problem really bothers me. My only grandchild is 3 1/2. When he sees his mother and her boyfriend drinking, which is nearly every night, he grabs for their can or glass and they let him drink a swallow or two. I am so afraid that this will turn the boy into an alcoholic. His mother disagrees. She says it will keep him from drinking later on.

She also lets him walk around with a cigarette in his mouth (unlighted) so he can pretend he's "smoking" while she smokes. She says there is nothing wrong with letting him "pretend." I say it will encourage him to smoke eventually.

Abby, wouldn't you say my daughter is guilty of child abuse? I love that little guy so much, I hate to see anything happen to him. What can I do? — HEARTSICK GRANNY

DEAR GRANNY: Yes, I agree, your daughter is guilty of child abuse. And if you "love the little guy," don't risk alienating his mother, because the child needs as much of your love, concern and wholesome influence as he can get.

DEAR ABBY: I am enclosing a copy of your column I have kept for nearly 20 years. This column was a constant help during a very difficult period of my life when I often felt I just couldn't make it through another day.

"Very Poor" gave me the courage to do so, and perhaps if you print it again it may help others as it did me. I still carry a copy in my purse and reread it when the going gets difficult. — J.J. IN N.Y.

DEAR J.J.: I agree. "Very Poor" richly deserves a rerun. And here it is:

DEAR ABBY: I've been reading the "problems" sent to your column, and I hope you print this because it might do a lot of people some good.

I'm in a charity hospital with arthritis, TB, heart trouble, and I am gradually losing my eyesight. I'm only 38, but I can't remember being free from pain in 22 years. If I could wake up one morning feeling good again I wouldn't care if my wife (if I had one) flirted with another man.

What I am trying to say, Abby, is if a person can get up in the morning and go to work on his own two legs, he should get down on his knees and thank God, for without health, you have nothing — even if you are rich. — VERY POOR

(Everybody needs friends. For some practical tips on how to be popular, get Abby's Popularity booklet. Send $1 plus a long, self-addressed, stamped (35 cents) envelope to Abby, Popularity, 12060 Hawthorne Blvd., Suite 5000, Hawthorne, Calif. 90250.)

'Weak' women urged to use their powers

By CATHY LAWHON
Copley News Service

Elizabeth Janeway is an enthusiastic and lifelong feminist, and although she is sad about the current conservative wave of anti-feminist politics, she is not despairing.

"You can repeal the Great Society and you can repeal the New Deal," she says, her soft smile barely emerging. "But you cannot repeal the industrial revolution and since the industrial revolution, women have worked outside the home in increasing numbers."

Janeway, who describes the plight of working women in her book, "Power of the Weak," says conservative pro-family groups are too unrealistic to have much lasting impact in this day and age.

"Women have always worked," says the native New Yorker. "It's just that in the past, they were able to do it at home. They made things for exchange or for use in the home.

"It's not that women just suddenly took it into their heads to work, but that the place and reward of that work changed."

The only problem, according to Janeway, is that those rewards could be larger. To this end, she encourages "the weak" to use their power.

"I use the word 'weak' provocatively," she explains. "What I mean by that is that women are the governed majority. Men are the governing minority."

In the fledgling stages of the modern feminist movement, which is about 15 years old, women weren't very effective in wielding that power, Janeway says. But they're learning.

"We have very real powers to intervene and affect the world and our own lives, but we have been programmed to think about power as a thing that exists, like a football to be taken away from somebody else."

In reality, she continues, power is an ongoing process of interaction, bargaining, argument, negotiation, confrontation and compromise. It's a process that works on an interpersonal or global level.

It does require having someone to negotiate or compromise with, however, and while Janeway characterizes feminist women as humanists, they're not quite so confident about the men in their lives.

"I think the women's movement has something to offer everyone," she insists, "but what men get out of it pretty much depends on what they're willing to accept."

Janeway says fathers could benefit from more direct involvement in child-rearing, for example, and share some of the responsibility women have traditionally shouldered for keeping the family structure sound.

"It would help close the generation gap, too, if a child has two active parents with knowledge of the outside world, rather than being isolated with a mother who doesn't know what's going on. That's tough on kids."

Having raised two sons, Janeway is all for home and motherhood. She says she doesn't even mind being described once in a while as "wife of economist Eliot Janeway."

But she also says part of the beauty of the women's movement is that it's giving men and women more overlapping areas of interest — more possibilities for relationships outside the lover, wife and mother roles.

"Women are becoming a more normal presence in the business world," she says, "and men are having an opportunity to see us as human beings. When they see us as human beings, they can expand the definition of woman."

While that expansion has begun, Janeway says, she's not sure women have "come such a long way, baby."

"I'd like to see a general acceptance of women as being capable of undertaking all kinds of activities. When I think of the waste — of the symphonies that never got written, of the architecture and buildings that were never designed, of the poetry that was written under 'anonymous' or lost forever — I realize we have a long way to go."

Wheat and steak

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — A salute to Midwest agribusiness, opening with a parade of marching pork chops, walking sheaves of wheat and harvesting machines decked out as scarecrows, will be staged here this autumn by the Spanish artist Antoni Miralda.

Miralda's "Wheat 'n Steak" harvest festival Nov. 7-15 will be a city-wide celebration that embraces the annual American Royal Livestock, Horseshow and Rodeo, the 54th annual convention of the Future Farmers of America, and the 125th anniversary of the Kansas City Board of Trade, the world's largest market for hard red winter wheat.

Lower prescription prices. That's what made Revco grow from one store, with one pharmacist, to the largest drug chain in America. For over 25 years, our prescription prices have been lower than the rest. We've filled over 300 million prescriptions, more per store than any other drug chain in the world.

We urge you to compare Revco's low price for the prescription you're now taking with the price you paid elsewhere. Call our pharmacist and he'll quote you Revco's price over the phone. You'll find it will make the price of your prescription a far less bitter pill to swallow!

Here are some of Revco's prescription services that will bring you fast relief:

- Tax receipts. Your prescriptions are deductible and Revco gives you proper receipts with every prescription purchase.
- Refill service. No matter where your prescription is being filled now, bring the bottle to our pharmacist. He'll call your doctor and arrange for it to be filled at Revco.
- Generic drugs. Ask your doctor if it's possible for him to specify a generic drug rather than a more expensive name brand. We can fill your prescription either way.
- VISA or Master Card acceptable for prescription.

Your horoscope

By JEANE DIXON

Wednesday, October 21, 1981

YOUR BIRTHDAY TODAY: Aspiring young actress Patti Davis, daughter of U.S. President Ronald Reagan, celebrates a birthday today. Use your common sense in the year ahead and the business outlook will be much improved. Employment affairs will be rewarding despite an occasional disappointment. Although things seem to move slowly at times, you are making steady progress. Capitalize on an unexpected opportunity! Your financial fortunes fluctuate, but you are able to accumulate more savings than in the past. Romance is exciting, and your social calendar will be full. Married couples find new meaning satisfaction in their relationships. Avoid taking financial risks in the spring.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): An excellent financial opportunity appears from out of the blue! Romance will be very active over the next few days. Be discreet and choose your companions with special care.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Think about what you can do to improve a difficult situation. Your enthusiasm helps you to advance an important cause. Do not waste your abilities by failing to act!

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): You may now feel a need to work in seclusion. Travel is part of the picture. New ideas are more productive than old ones. Keep an open mind about a sensitive subject.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): The plans you made for today could be affected by events beyond your control. Strangers are involved. Although profits are up, savings may be difficult to accumulate.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Keep calm if things do not seem to be going your way. A family powwow could result in a constructive plan. Tricky situations call for diplomacy, self-control.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Defer to member of opposite sex's judgment. Friends may be planning a pleasant surprise for you. Include member of older generation on your social plans.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Some long-sought goals are now within reach. People you meet on trips can have a profound effect on your professional and personal fortunes. Trust your intuition.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Rely on older person's experience if faced with a crisis situation. Listen carefully to the word of someone who has been a success in his or her field.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Getting to know a newcomer makes you more aware of what is really going on at work. Your talents could be put to a test. Circumstances beyond your control limit money supply.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Your creativity and imagination carry you far today! Close friends may not approve of a romantic alliance. Realize that they may have been misinformed.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Be sure you have all available facts and figures before accepting an unusual offer. Your strong ties to a business associate could earn you new respect.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Changes could come very quickly today. You may be stunned at first, but you later realize the advantages involved. Your influence is greater than you think!

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1 NT	Pass	2 ♣	Dble
2 ♦	Pass	3 NT	Pass
Pass	Pass

Opening lead: Seven of ♣.

When your contract is in jeopardy, consider your alternatives carefully. The percentage play may not be the right play, as South demonstrated on this hand.

South's hand did not meet the strict requirements for a one no trump opening bid because of his low doubleton club. Despite that, he chose to make that bid to avoid later rebid problems. North's bidding does not fill us with admiration. We would have preferred any sequence that at least gave his partner the option of a heart game. Four hearts is a superior contract that would have been made easily with careful declarer play.

Declarer held up the ace of clubs until the third round. He discarded a spade from his hand. He did not like his chances—there was no way he could come to nine tricks without developing the heart suit, and he was faced with the problem of keeping East off lead while doing that. The normal way to tackle the suit would be to take a finesse for the jack of hearts, but that would give East two chances to gain the lead—he would win a heart trick with either the ace or the jack and cash enough clubs to defeat the contract.

Obviously, declarer could do nothing if East held the ace of hearts, but he found a way to prevent East from gaining the lead with the jack. After winning the ace of clubs, declarer crossed to his hand with the king of diamonds and led a low heart to the king. When this won, he continued with a low heart from the table. East played the nine and declarer ducked!

Since the only missing hearts were the ace and jack, South knew that West had to win the trick. Even if he lost two heart tricks to West, there would still be time to set up the heart suit and make three no trump. When in fact West had to win the trick with the ace, declarer was home with an overtrick.

Area oilmen plan 16 'cats for northern and eastern Basin

West Texas oilmen will be taking on 16 new wildcats in the days ahead. The new projects are scattered around the eastern and northern portions of the Basin.

BORDEN VENTURE

Texas American Oil Corp., Midland, will drill the 9,450-foot wildcat No. 1 Everett six miles west of Gail.

The location is 1,980 feet from the north, and 660 feet from the east line of section 7, block 31, T-4-N, T&PRR survey.

The drillsite is a little more than one mile southeast of the Coquina No. 1Brennand, abandoned January 24, 1950 at 9,513 feet.

GARZA WILDCATS

J-D Oil Co., Ralls, will drill three 4,200-foot wildcats on the H.V. lease, 15 miles northwest of Post.

The No. 1 will go down 467 feet from the north, and 3,633 feet from the west line of survey 1, block 3, K. Aycock survey, Abstract 498.

The drillsite is about 4/5 of a mile northwest of the J.C. Stelzer No. 1 Sims, abandoned June 11, 1978 at 3,800 feet.

The No. 2 well will be sunk 467 feet from the north, and 4,833 feet from the west line of the same survey. Its site is about one mile northwest of the Stelzer Sims-1.

The No. 3 H.V. will be drilled 467 feet from the north, and 2,867 feet from the east line of the survey. It will be located about 3/5 of a mile northwest of the Sims.

GAINES VENTURES

Forrest Oil Corp., Odessa, will drill the No. 1 Hunter, a 13,650-foot wildcat, 7 miles northeast of Seminole.

The drillsite is about 5/8 of a mile east of the Hayes Goetz No. 1 Willard, drilled to 13,623 feet and abandoned February 15, 1961.

The location is 1,980 feet from the south and east lines of section 121, block G, WTRR survey.

****

Hanover Management Co., Dallas, will drill the 12,600-foot wildcat No. 1 Patschke, 23 miles southeast of Seminole.

The stake is driven 660 feet from the north and west lines of section 19, block 291, Lynn CSL survey.

The drillsite is 4/5 of a mile west of Pan American's No. 1 Haddle, abandoned December 2, 1963 at 12,847 feet.

GLASSCOCK PROSPECT

Diamond Shamrock Corp., Amarillo, will sink the wildcat No. 1-18 Brunson to 11,200 feet, 10 miles southeast of Garden City, according to the drilling permit request filed with the RRC.

The location given is 660 feet from the south, and 2,250 feet from the west line of section 18, block 35, T-3-S, T&PRR survey. This location spots 12 miles northwest of Garden City.

It appears, that around the location northwest of Garden City, there are no wells of comparable depth.

HOWARD WILDCAT

Bonanza Petroleum, Midland, will drill the 9,400-foot wildcat No. 1 Myers "35", 9 1/2 miles north of Big Spring.

It's staked 1,310 feet from the south and west lines of section 35, block 33, T-2-N, T&PRR survey.

The drillsite is about 1 mile southeast of the Blue Danube No. 1-A Gay, abandoned at 8,939 feet February 14, 1957.

MITCHELL EXPLORER

Bonanza Petroleum, Midland, will take a shot at the wildcat No. 1 Brennand "1", to be drilled to 8,300 feet, nine miles northwest of Westbrook.

It appears there are no wells of similar depth in the vicinity.

The location is 660 feet from the north, and 1,310 feet from the east line of section 1, block 29, T-1-N, T&PRR survey.

RUNNELS WILDCATS

CETO Oil & Gas, Miles, has staked a location for a 5,200-foot deeper pool test, 2 1/2 miles southeast of Miles in Runnels County.

It is the No. 1 A.J. Glass, located 1,633 feet from the south, and 467 feet from the west line of section 141, WCRR, A-536 survey.

The site is 1 1/2 miles southeat of 4,242-foot Dog Bend oil production in the Urban, South field.

****

Energy Methods Corp., Denver, will drill the No. 1-129 A.E. Schwertner as a 5,050-foot new field wildcat, five miles northeast of Miles.

Drillsite is 660 feet from the north, and 1,980 feet from the east line of section 129, WCRR survey, A-532. It is two miles northeast of 4,282-foot production in the Urban Miles field.

****

The Desana Corp., Midland, has scheduled a 3,300-foot deeper pool wildcat, two miles southeast of Winters.

Designated the No. 1 Tinkle, location is 700 feet from the north, and 1,578 feet from the west line of section 333, block 64, H&TC survey.

The site is 5/8 mile northeast of 2,662-foot Home Creek oil production in the Winters (multipay) field.

STONEWALL VENTURES

Bandera Energy Co., Midland, has staked a 6,700-foot test, 12 miles southwest of Aspermont in Stonewall County.

The venture is the No. 1 Gannaway "311", located 660 feet from the south, and east line of section 311, block 2, H&TC, abstract 97, survey.

It is 9,600 feet east of 3,737-foot Noodle Creek production in the Rough Draw field.

****

G.B. Production Co., Dallas, will drill the No. 1 C.C. Branch Estate as a 6,500-foot wildcat, 15 miles southwest of Aspermont.

Drillsite is 2,176 feet from the south, and 467 feet from the west line of section 322, block 2, H&TC survey, abstract 1693.

The site is also 8,650 feet northeast of 3,737-foot Noodle Creek production in the Rough Draw field.

****

Barbee Inc., Abilene, will drill a 6,400-foot wildcat, 10 miles southwest of Aspermont.

The No. 2 W.F. Martin is located 3,020 feet from the south, and 1,660 feet from the east line of section 12, block U, T&P survey, and is 8,800 feet south of 5,112-foot Strawn oil production in the Frankirk, Southwest field.

FISHER SEACHER

J.B. Terrell Jr., Hamlin, will drill a 3,200-foot wildcat in Fisher County, three miles northeast of Hamlin.

The wildcat is the No. 5 Raymond E. Scifres "A", located 1,650 feet from the south, and 1,551 feet from the west line of section 201, block 1, BBB&C survey.

It is 6,500 feet west of 4,365-foot Canyon oil production in the Rice Brothers field.

OPEC planning price meeting in Geneva

JAKARTA, Indonesia (AP) — The Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries will hold a special session Oct. 29 in Geneva, Switzerland, with "unification of the oil price" at the top of the agenda, the cartel's leader announced today.

OPEC President Subroto said, "We are hopeful the unification of price at $34 per barrel will be reached. My feeling is that there is not too much problem to that."

It would be the organization's second effort in as many months to unify world oil prices.

Subroto, also Indonesia's oil minister, was accompanied by OPEC Secretary-General Marc S. Nan Nguema of Gabon.

The cartel's current president said the price unification would be made effective prior to the OPEC annual meeting scheduled for December in Abu Dhabi.

Subroto said seven of the oil cartel's 13 members have confirmed they will attend the special meeting. "I am positive that the other six members will also agree to participate at the meeting," the Indonesian leader added.

Subroto said it would be left to the oil ministers to decide how long the conference will be and what other items they want to discuss.

Nguema, who arrived Monday in Jakarta, was scheduled to leave today for Kuwait and Abu Dhabi. He said the purpose of his tour was to consult with oil ministers about the Geneva meeting.

The cartel failed to agree on a single OPEC price during a tense, three-day special session in August. That meeting also was held in Geneva.

OPEC has been selling petroleum under a two-tier pricing system — $32 per 42-gallon barrel for Saudi oil, and at least $36 a barrel for other countries' oil. OPEC has not had a unified price since early 1979.

In August, Saudi Arabia refused to raise its price above $34 a barrel, and OPEC sources said Libya, Iraq, Iran and Venezuela would not agree to a base price below $36.

Saudi Oil Minister Sheik Ahmed Zaki Yamani said when those talks broke down that his country would hold its price at $32 a barrel through 1982.

SPE meeting Thursday

The Texas Society of Professional Engineers will meet Thursday at 6:30 p.m. at the Odessa Holiday Inn Holidome.

D.E. Dorchester, western division engineering manager of Texas Electric, will speak on the Texas water crisis.

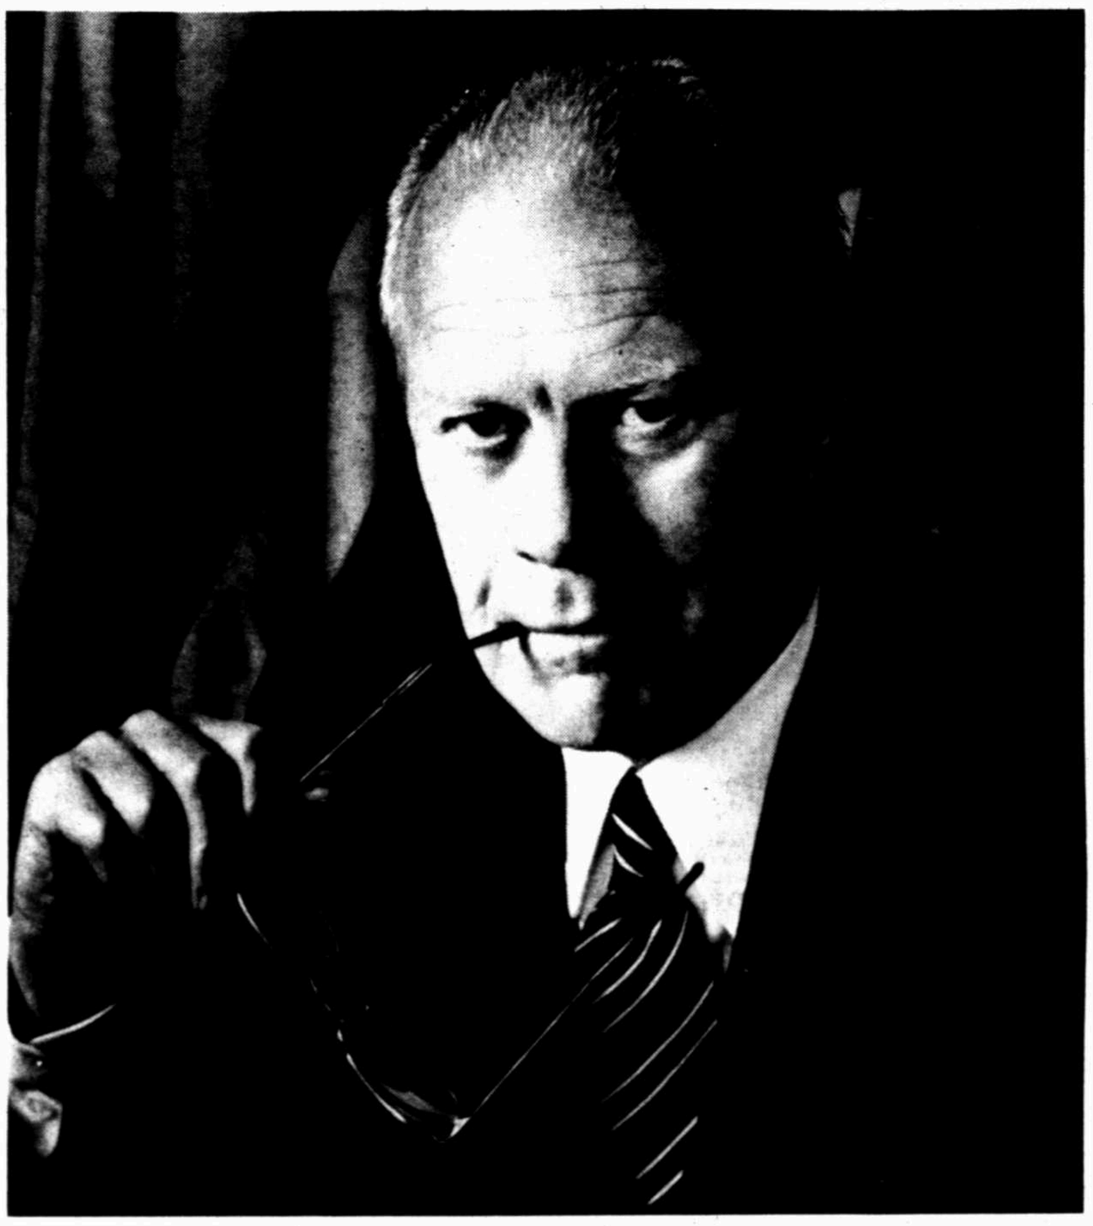
Welcome, President Ford.



President Gerald R. Ford will address the Permian Basin Chapter of Associated Builders and Contractors tonight in Midland.

Texas Commerce Bancshares, which is pleased to have President Ford as a member of its Board of Directors, takes special pride in welcoming him.

Responsive to President Ford's economic policies, inflation dropped from 14.4% to 4.8% and the prime rate dropped from 12% to 6¼%. It is this demonstrated seasoned judgement and broad experience which makes President Ford a valued member of Texas Commerce's Board of Directors.

Presley's blood contained 12 drugs at death

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — When Elvis Presley died, his blood and tissues contained toxic levels of the sedative methaqualone, 10 times more codeine than needed for therapy and low levels of 10 other drugs, including morphine, a biochemist testified.

The testimony Monday in the drug trial of Dr. George Nichopoulos, Presley's physician, marked the first official release of any of the evidence that went into the rock 'n' roll idol's autopsy.

Presley's death on Aug. 16, 1977, at the age of 42 was said by the medical examiner of Shelby County to be the result of heart disease. Published reports have said Presley's death was related to drug abuse, but the autopsy itself, requested by the singer's family, and conducted by nine doctors, including Nichopoulos, has been kept secret.

"I have not seen the number of drugs in one serum or blood sample as we found in this person," said Norman Weissman, a biochemist with Bio Science Laboratories of Van Nuys, Calif., one of five laboraties that tested tissues and blood from Presley's body.

Nichopoulos, a 53-year-old internist, went on trial Sept. 30 charged with prescribing excessive amounts of amphetamines, barbiturates and painkillers for himself, Presley, rock 'n' roller Jerry Lee Lewis and others. Nichopoulos isn't charged with causing Presley's death.

WEISSMAN SAID Presley's body contained levels of the sedative methaqualone, "above the line of toxicity."

He said preliminary reports sent to Baptist Hospital by his lab said the level of the painkiller codeine in the singer's body was 10 times the therapeutic level. He didn't say what ailment might have been treated by therapeutic levels of codeine.

Because he is not a physician, Weissman wasn't permitted to testify on the effects of combining the drugs.

Weissman said in Criminal Court before Judge Bernie Weinman that Presley's body contained therapeutic, non-toxic levels of the following drugs: morphine, a pain-killer; Amytal, or amobarbital, a sedative; pentobarbital, a sedative and sleep-inducer; phenobarbital, a sedative; amitriptyline, a sedative; Demerol, or meperidine, a painkiller; Valmid, or ethinamate, a sleep drug; Placidyl, or ethchlorvynol, a sleep drug; Valium, or diazepam, a muscle relaxant; and phenyltoloxamine, a pain-killer.

The chief pathologist at Baptist Hospital testified Monday that tissue and blood samples sent to the laboratories didn't include the contents of Presley's stomach, which was pumped when the singer arrived at Baptist Hospital. The pathologist, Dr. Eric Muirhead, said he didn't know what happened to the contents.

MUIRHEAD SAID HE, Shelby County medical examiner Dr. Jerry Francisco, Nichopoulos and six other doctors performed the autopsy. Nichopoulos' attorneys have argued that the document is a private document that should not be released.

Prosecutor Jewett Miller asked Muirhead how Nichopoulos had reacted to the report from Bio Science, and Muirhead said Nichopoulos told him he couldn't control the singer's drug intake.

"There was a bedside table ... filled with bottles of drugs ... He would go out and remove all the bottles and a few days later they would be back," Muirhead said.

Weissman also testified that three of the drugs found in Presley were mentioned in the indictment against Nichopoulos. He said 50 prescriptions written for Presley in 1977 included eight of the drugs found in Presley's tissue samples by Bio Science.

PBRPC to meet Wednesday

The Permian Basin Regional Planning Commission Board of Directors will meet at 1:30 p.m. Wednesday in the Conference Room of the PBRPC office building.

The agenda includes considering a resolution authorizing the executive director to submit an application for continuation of the State Planning Assistance Grant; accepting the review and comment of the Regional Development Review Committee on the grant application from First Savings and Loan Association of Odessa for East Park Addition feasibility analysis. The board also will accept review and comment on the pre-application from Midland Regional Airport for improvements and expansion. Two resolutions of appointment will also be considered: appointment and confirmation of new members to the Permian Basin Area Aging Advisory Council and appointing a member of the PBRPC Board of Directors to serve on the Texas Association of Regional Councils Board of Directors.

Lefties Reuss, Guidry open World Series

Dodgers make it to 'Fall Classic' by outlasting Expos in playoffs

By HAL BOCK
AP Sports Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — The World Series makes its latest start in history tonight with a duel of left-handers as Jerry Reuss of the Los Angeles Dodgers faces Ron Guidry of the New York Yankees.

The Dodgers qualified by surviving a battle of endurance for the National League pennant, outlasting the Montreal Expos in five games. Los Angeles finally nailed down the title with a 2-1 victory Monday, delivered in dramatic fashion on a ninth-inning home run by veteran Rick Monday.

"The Fall Classic," Monday shouted in the happy Dodger dressing room. "We're going to the Fall Classic."

The Yankees have been waiting for them. New York eliminated Oakland in three straight games to capture the American League pennant and has been sitting back, marking time, while the Expos and Dodgers settled the National League title.

"If we lose (tonight), it will be because we were rusty," laughed Yankee Manager Bob Lemon. "If we win, it will be because we were well-rested. I've been asked about the layoff a lot, but it really doesn't matter that much."

Dodger Manager Tommy Lasorda said he wasn't certain about his pitching after Reuss in Game 1, although it seems likely that playoff Most Valuable Player Burt Hooton, a right-hander who won two games against Montreal, will get the Game 2 nod.

Noting the Yankees' left-handed power, Lasorda said he'd love to have another southpaw to follow Reuss.

"But Reuss is the only one I have (available). If you could get Koufax to throw the second game for me, I'd be more than happy," he cracked.

Using Hooton in Game 2 would leave lefty Fernando Valenzuela, who pitched a three-hitter over 8 2-3 innings against Montreal in Monday's clincher, for Friday night's third game in Los Angeles. Projecting even farther, if Valenzuela pitches Game 3, it would make him available for a possible seventh-game assignment with a full four days of rest, should the Series go the limit. That prospect doesn't disturb Lasorda in the least.

"Back in July, I said if we were ever in the fifth (final) game of a playoff or a Series, that Fernando would be the guy I would want on the mound for me," he said. "That's not taking anything away from Hooton and Reuss."

Lemon, meanwhile, will feed the Dodgers a diet of three straight left-handers. After Guidry, there's veteran Tommy John for Game 2 and young Dave Righetti, who'll face Valenzuela in a battle of rookies Friday night.

Because of the strike-split season and additional layer of playoffs, this year's Series is the latest-starting in history, easily beating the old record of Oct. 17, the starting date for the 1917 Series between Philadelphia A's and the Chicago Cubs.

The Series marks the renewal of one of the most exciting rivalries in baseball history. It will be the 11th time these two teams have collided with baseball's world championship at stake. The Dodgers have won only two of those showdowns, in 1955 and 1963.

"A Dodger-Yankee World Series is always a great one," said Yankee owner George Steinbrenner. "Good never gets old."

Players do, though, and this Series will be particularly significant to a lot of veterans on both teams.

The Yankees, threatened with wholesale remodeling by Steinbrenner, dedicated themselves to winning their postseason series against both Milwaukee and Oakland for their veterans.

"Veteran Power," was the slogan in the dressing room.

There also have been rumblings in Los Angeles that the Dodgers might be ready to begin reconstructing their team as well, especially in the infield where Steve Garvey, Davey Lopes, Bill Russell and Ron Cey, are completing a record eighth season together as a unit.

"We have a situation similiar to the Yankees," said Monday. "We're proud of our old folks here, too. We've got that same situation here."

Monday is the perfect example of the veteran syndrome. Almost 36 and completing his 15th major-league season, he has been relegated to part-time status by the Dodgers. His contract is expiring and he is thinking of retirement, but he will always remember the pennant he won on a damp, dreary day in Montreal.

With the Yankee pitching tilting decidely to the left, it's possible the lefty-hitting Monday will be back on the bench tonight. If that's the case, he'll understand.

"We all want to be in there playing, but we want to win any way possible," he said.

The Yankees may be without slugger Reggie Jackson, who has been nursing a strained calf muscle in his left leg. This year's Series will be played without the designated hitter so, if Monday or Jackson play, they would have to take the field as well as bat.

Los Angeles pitcher Fernando Valenzuela is doused with champagne by teammate Tom Niedenfuer after he pitched the Dodgers to a 2-1 victory over the Montreal Expos Monday night for the National League pennant. Tonight, the Dodgers are in New York where they will face the Yankees in the first game of the best-of-seven World Series. It will be the 11th time the two teams have met and the second since the Dodgers moved from Brooklyn to Los Angeles.

Third string QB rips Bears 48-17

By HARRY ATKINS
AP Sports Writer

PONTIAC, Mich. (AP) — It was perhaps only fitting that the network that owns the smash daytime soap "General Hospital" also brought the nation the Eric Hipple saga in prime time Monday night.

Hipple completed a storybook week that saw him elevated from third string to starting quarterback by hitting on 14 of 25 passes for 336 yards and four touchdowns and running for two other scores. That paced the Detroit Lions to a 48-17 rout of the Chicago Bears in a National Football League game televised by ABC.

Coach Monte Clark went to Hipple, a fourth-round draft choice out of Utah State, after No.2 quarterback Jeff Komlo turned in a pair of lackluster performances as the Lions suffered two straight losses after regular Gary Danielson suffered a dislocated wrist.

"I can't remember a quarterback having a better debut than Eric Hipple did," the Detroit coach said. "He worked very hard all week and played beyond all our expectations."

Hipple, whose only play in a regular season NFL game consisted of a quarter of mop-up duty in the defeat at Tampa Bay two weeks ago, had to pinch himself to believe what he had done.

"Well, I don't know if it's a fairy tale feeling," Hipple said. "I've always had confidence in my ability. I had a good game — better than average."

Hipple said he was glad the Lions only have a few days to prepare for Sunday's game with the Green Bay Packers.

"The short week will help because after you have a game like this, you ask yourself 'did that really happen?'"

Hipple had touchdown runs of 1 and 4 yards, and tossed a 2-yard touchdown pass to Rick Kane as Detroit stormed to a 27-14 halftime lead.

Hipple, who completed 14 of 25 passes, hit David Hill with a 10-yard touchdown pass in the third quarter and connected with Freddie Scott on a 44-yard TD pass play in the fourth quarter. Late in the game, he hit Leonard Thompson on a 94-yard play, the third-longest scoring pass in club history.

Eddie Murray booted field goals of 49 and 53 yards for the Lions, who improved their record to 3-4.

Chicago wide receiver Marcus Anderson scored an 85-yard touchdown after taking a short pass from quarterback Vince Evans, Walter Payton dove 1 yard for another score and John Roveto kicked a 22-yard field goal as the Bears' record fell to 1-6.

Hipple threw only four passes in the second half, but completed all four and connected for touchdowns on his last three.

The 48 points were the most for a Detroit team in a regular-season game since the Lions beat San Francisco 48-7 in 1954.

The Lions won the toss and Hipple set the tone for the entire ball game on the very first play as he lofted a perfect pass to Scott for a 48-yard gain. Hipple, a 6-foot-1, 196-pounder, capped that 79-yard, nine-play drive by rolling in from the 1.

Kane, playing for the injured Billy Sims — who was nursing a sore toe — was the Lions' leading rusher with 101 yards on 20 carries, his second best day as a pro.

Payton, playing on a tender knee injured while trying to prevent his 10-month-old son from falling down a flight of stairs, gained 89 yards on 19 carries.

However, the Detroit defense — playing most of the game without star defensive end Bubba Baker, who went out in the first quarter with a toe injury — twice stopped Chicago inside its own 5-yard line in the second half.

The Bears became so frustrated by the Detroit defense at one point that they sent in Roveto to kick the 22-yard field goal early in the fourth quarter, even though they trailed by 20 points.

Evans, who left the game dazed after a crunching hit late in the game, completed 18 of 30 pass attempts for 294 yards. Anderson was Evans' favorite target, hauling in six passes for 176 yards — the most productive day for a Bears' receiver since 1970 — before leaving the game with a rib injury in the third quarter.

Penn State, Pitt top AP top 20

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON
AP Sports Writer

Penn State and Pittsburgh moved into the top two positions in The Associated Press college football today, the first time in 36 years that two Eastern teams have been ranked 1-2.

With Texas, last week's No.1 team, falling to 10th after a 42-11 rout at the hands of Arkansas, the way was cleared for Penn State and Pitt, 2-3 a week ago, to move up in a tight race.

Penn State, a 41-16 winner over Syracuse, received 36½ of 66 first-place votes and 1,283½ of a possible 1,320 points from a nationwide panel of sports writers and sportscasters.

Pitt, which trounced Florida State 42-14, received 26½ first-place votes and 1,277½ points. The loss sank Florida State from 11th to 20th.

The other three first-place ballots went to North Carolina, which defeated North Carolina State 21-10 and rose from fourth to third with 1,155 points.

The last time two Eastern teams led the poll was in 1945, a war year, when Army and Navy finished 1-2.

Penn State is the fifth team to be ranked No.1 this season. There have never been more than five No.1 teams in one year since The AP poll began in 1936. The other 1981 leaders were Michigan, Notre Dame, Southern California and Texas.

Clemson, a 38-10 winner over Duke, jumped from sixth place to fourth with 1,033 points. It marks the first time that two Atlantic Coast Conference teams — North Carolina and Clemson — have ever been among the top five.

Southern Cal climbed from seventh to fifth with 994 points by defeating Stanford 25-17 and giant-killer Iowa shot from 12th to sixth with 928 points for a 9-7 upset of Michigan, which skidded from fifth to 18th.

Georgia's defending national champions moved up from ninth to seventh with 902 points after mauling Vanderbilt 53-21, while Southern Methodist climbed from 10th to eighth with 848 points after a 38-22 trouncing of Houston. Missouri, last week's No.8 team, dropped to 19th after losing to Iowa State 34-13.

Rounding out the Top Ten are Mississippi State, up from 16th following a 14-10 triumph over Miami, Fla., that knocked the losers out of the Top Twenty, and Texas with 641 and 618 points, respectively.

Rankin, Wink score BIG wins

By MIKE CRUVER
Sports Writer

High-scoring games highlighted the seventh weekend of the area high school football season.

Rankin rebounded from its loss to Wink to smother Balmorhea, 90-12 in a District 6-A encounter. Despite the point total, Wink did one better as the Wildcats bombed Sanderson 91-0.

Terry Turner caught two touchdown passes and returned an interception for six points to pace the Red Devils. Dennis Balck rushed for 123 yards on 12 carries and tallied three times while Keith Kevil rushed for 110 yards on 14 carries and scored once. Quad Midkiff scored twice and Bo Rose, Ronald Plegens and Dane Lee made it to the end zone once in the romp.

Rankin's defense held the Bears to -14 yards rushing but did give up 131 yards through the air on six completions out of 30 attempts.

In another key District 6-A contest, Greenwood shutout Iraan 21-0 to run its record to 5-1, 1-0 in district. The shutout was the Ranger's third of the year.

Ranger coach Joe Longley said, "The win was important to us. We want to build some tradition in the football and track programs to go along with our basketball tradition. He added, "We are still young and have to play each game one at a time. Our next big game will be Friday at Balmorhea."

Greenwood rushed for 310 yards and passed for 56 more as they continually kept the pressure on the Brave defense. Todd Brooks led the way for the Rangers with 167 yards on 13 carries, including an 81-yard jaunt.

Senior quarterback Kyle Longley had a good night as he passed for one touchdown and rushed for two more.

Greenwood's young defensive unit bent but never broke. Every time Iraan moved deep into Ranger territory, the Rangers were able to come up with a big defensive play to blunt the Braves.

Stanton rode the shirttail of tailback Kevin Newman to a 38-18 come-from-behind win over Morton. Newman rushed for 272 yards on 32 carries and turned the tide in Stanton favor with a 53-yard scoring run in the fourth quarter. The victory keeps the Buffs undefeated in District 5-AA (3-0) and sets the stage for Plains (3-0) next Friday in Stanton.

The Buffalos' usually sturdy defense has some rocky moments against the Indians. After Stanton went ahead on a field goal by Scott Church and a 10-yard touchdown run by Newman, Morton's Jerry Williams returned the kickoff 85 yards for a score, quarterback Billy Cadenhead hurled a 93-yard scoring bomb to Vinnie Evans and then rifled a 24-yarder as the Indians to an 18-10 lead in the second quarter.

Stanton rallied behind the passing of quarterback Wally Hazelwood and tied the score when Hazelwood hit Tommy Ezparza with a 24-yard touchdown pass and then the same duo teamed for a two-point conversion to tie the game at 18-18.

Hazelwood's one-yard dash in the third quarter gave Stanton the lead for good and Church added a field goal and Newman's 53-yard gallop wrapped up the contest.

Keith Brooks came alive in the second half against Odessa Ector to keep Andrews undefeated. Brooks rushed for two touchdowns and 122 yards. Of that total, 93 yards came in the second half as the Mustangs downed the Eagles, 21-6, and set the stage for Friday's clash with unbeaten Monahans in District 2-AAAA.

Andrews rolled up 329 yards of offense but coach Bill Shipman wasn't completely please. Shipman felt the Mustang offense was still to inconsistent. Of course, Tudy Gonzales, Darrell Ray and Brooks missded several days of workouts because of illness.

In the battle for the District 2-AAAA basement, the Snyder Tigers blasted Lamesa 28-7 behind the running of Raymond Jeffrey who scored two touchdowns and rushed for 100 yards.

The win was the first of 1981 for the Tigers while Lamesa remains winless in seven outings, 0-5 in loop action.

Nothing was too surprising in the McCamey-Crane ballgame. The Badgers, as expected, dominated the contest enroute to a 28-0 win.

Quarterback Jerry Stacy was the offensive spark for the Badgers. He ran for two scores and hurled a 30-yard scoring strike to Tony Velasquez as McCamey ran its record to 6-0-1. Crane, who managed only 127 yards of total offense, falls to 0-6.

Reagan County had eyes for the District 9-AA title. But those aspirations were dented Friday when Junction's Bobby Hurley rushed for three touchdowns and 287 yards on 42 carries to led the Eagles to a 35-22 win over the Owls in a league battle.

The victory was the fifth in a row for the Eagles, now 5-2 overall and 3-0 in loop play. The Owls are 1-1 and 4-2.

At the half, Junction was up 21-19. In the second half the Eagles kept the Owls bottled. Junction pushed across 14 points in the final two periods while holding Reagan County to a Torin Burlson field goal as the Eagles won going away.

Burleson led the Owls rushing attack with 110 yards on 12 carries. Gregg Fisher, who hadn't been held under 100 yards rushing this year, managed only 44 yards on 16 carries against the rugged Eagle defense.

In a Saturday afternoon ballgame, Midland Christian ran its record to 4-3 with a 45-0 win over New Life Academy of Lubbock at Simon Field.

Bamberger can have Mets manager's job

NEW YORK (AP) — The New York Mets manager's job is George Bamberger's if he wants it, General Manager Frank Cashen says.

Bamberger, 56, said at his Reddington Beach, Fla., home Monday, "I haven't made up my mind yet." But the Mets scheduled a news conference for today in New York, apparently to name the former Milwaukee Brewers manager to succeed Joe Torre, who was fired on the final day of the regular season Oct.4.

Cashen has admitted that Bamberger is his first choice and said it was up to him to accept the job.

Bamberger's current job is farm director for the Brewers.

"They've treated me so good," he said. "I've got lifetime job there. Bud Selig (president of the team) and Harry Dalton (general manager) have been terrific. On the other hand, I know Frank Cashen very well, too."

Yankees hold edge in history over Dodgers

By DENNIS D'AGOSTINO
Associated Press Writer

It happens every October. Well, almost.

When the National League champion Los Angeles Dodgers and the American League champion New York Yankees open the 1981 World Series Tuesday night at Yankee Stadium, they'll be adding still another chapter to the most enduring rivalry in World Series history.

This will be the 11th time the Yankees and Dodgers have met in the Fall Classic. No other two teams have met so frequently, nor produced such consistently unforgettable Series.

When the rivalry began, it was played entirely within the boundaries of one city, and a nickel subway ride could take you between the two home ballparks. You have to endure a couple of six-hour, coast-to-coast plane flights to sit in on a Yankee-Dodger World Series these days, but no matter. Even at long distance, the rivarly is as intense as ever.

In the 10 previous Yankee-Dodger World Series battles, the Yankees hold an 8-2 edge. The two Dodger victories came in 1955, when the club was still located in Brooklyn, and in 1963, five years after owner Walter O'Malley moved the team to the West Coast.

Here's a capsule summary of the 10 Yankee-Dodger World Series battles:

1941
Yankees 4, Dodgers 1

The first Yankee-Dodger World Series will forever be remembered for the famed Mickey Owen play in the ninth inning of the fourth game.

With the Yankees having won two of the first three games, the Dodgers seemed set to tie the Series as Hugh Casey carried a 4-3 lead into the ninth inning of the fourth contest. After retiring Johnny Sturm and Red Rolfe, the game seemingly ended as Tommy Henrich swung and missed a third strike. But the pitch (many say it was a spitball) got away from Dodger catcher Owen, enabling Henrich to reach first base. The Yankees then got two walks and three hits — including two-run doubles by Charlie Keller and Joe Gordon — to win the game, 7-4.

The Yanks wrapped up the Series the next day with a 3-1 victory. Gordon led the regulars with a .500 average, while Casey was a two-time loser for the Dodgers.

Yankees 4, Dodgers 3

The Dodgers lost the Series but produced two shining moments — Cookie Lavagetto's two-out, two-run pinch-hit double in the ninth inning of the fourth game that robbed Yankee hurler Bill Bevens of a no-hitter and gave the Brooks a 3-2 victory, and Al Gionfriddo's circus catch that robbed Joe DiMaggio of a three-run homer in the sixth game.

But the Yanks were able to win the first televised World Series on the strength of a 9-for-18 performance by left fielder Johnny Lindell and a clutch five-inning relief stint by Joe Page that nailed down the 5-2 verdict in the deciding seventh game.

1949
Yankees 4, Dodgers 1

The most memorable game of this Series was the first, as a scoreless duel between Dodger Don Newcombe and Yankee Allie Reynolds was broken up when Henrich belted a ninth-inning homer for a 1-0 Yankee victory.

That shot took the steam out of the Dodgers, and the Yanks wrapped up the title in five games, with Bobby Brown going 6-for-12 and Reynolds pitching 121-3 shutout innings.

1952
Yankees 4, Dodgers 3

Dodger slugger Duke Snider belted four homers and Yankee first baseman Johnny Mize countered with three, but this Series was decided on a heads-up play by scrappy Yankee second baseman Billy Martin.

The Yankees were leading the seventh game, 4-2, when the Dodgers loaded the bases with two out in the seventh. Jackie Robinson then lifted a pop-up near the mound that no one seemed to be able to reach, but Martin dashed in and made a shoestring catch to kill the rally. Bob Kuzava hung on for the victory with 22-3 innings of no-hit relief.

1953
Yankees 4, Dodgers 2

Despite a 14-strikeout effort (then a Series record) by Dodger hurler Carl Erskine in the third game, the Yanks won the Series for a record fifth straight year. Martin was again the hero, going 12-for-24 and knocking home the Series-ending run with a single in the ninth inning of the sixth game.

1955
Dodgers 4, Yankees 3

"Wait 'til next year," the long-time lament of the Dodger fan, became "Wait 'til this year!" as the Dodgers finally won their first Series. Johnny Podres pitched Brooklyn to a 2-0 victory in the deciding seventh game, helped by a game-saving catch by left fielder Sandy Amoros, who speared Yogi Berra's line drive and turned it into a double play. Snider again had a four-homer Series, while Whitey Ford chalked up a pair of victories for the Yankees.

1956
Yankees 4, Dodgers 3

The final "Subway Series" featured one of the immortal moments in American sport — Yankee pitcher Don Larsen whipping a called third strike past Dodger pinch-hitter Dale Mitchell to complete the first and only perfect game in World Series history.

Larsen's 2-0 gem in the fifth game, coupled with a 9-0 seventh game rout which featured Berra's two homers and Moose Skowron's grand slammer, helped lift the Yanks to victory.

Dodgers 4, Yankees 0

The Dodgers capped their sixth season in Los Angeles by stunning their long-time October rivals in four straight games. Sandy Koufax posted a Series-record 15 strikeouts in winning the first game, 5-2, then came back four days later to win the 2-1 finale. Podres and Don Drysdale were the other Dodger winners, as the Yankees hit only .171 as a team.

1977
Yankees 4, Dodgers 2

Reggie Jackson christened the rebirth of the Yankee dynasty with his amazing performance in the sixth and final game — three mammoth home runs off three Dodger pitchers: Burt Hooton, Elias Sosa and Charlie Hough. The Yanks' 8-4 victory capped a .450 Series for Jackson, while Mike Torrez picked up his second victory of the Series.

1978
Yankees 4, Dodgers 2

Jackson again led the way with eight RBI and two homers — including a sixth-game shot off Bob Welch, who had fanned Reggie to end the Dodgers' 4-3 second-game victory. Unlikely Yankee heroes were second baseman Brian Doyle and shortstop Bucky Dent, who hit .438 and .417, respectively. Shortstop Bill Russell went 11-for-26 (.423) for the Dodgers.

There will be a new entry in a week or so, as the Yankees and Dodgers get ready to uphold an October tradition which has spanned forty years, 3,000 miles ... and 10 memorable World Series.

Murcer remembers Yankee bad times

By JOHN NELSON
AP Sports Writers

NEW YORK (AP) — Bobby Murcer remembers when the New York Yankees were no better than a 10th-place team going nowhere.

He was the heir apparent to Mickey Mantle, the great slugger whose knees finally gave out on him. Murcer was born in the same state as Mantle, Oklahoma. He was a shortstop converted to center field, like Mantle.

But from their first major-league at-bats, the careers of these two took widely divergent paths. Mantle played in 12 World Series with those great Yankee teams. Murcer is about to play in his first.

Murcer joined the Yankees briefly in 1965, three years before Mantle retired. It was the beginning of the end of an era for the Yankees, who finished sixth that year and were destined to spend the next 12 years rebuilding.

It was a team much like the team of 1981, a team of veterans nearing the end of their careers.

"I came up after '64, the year after the Yankees won the pennant," Murcer recalled. "That was a time when all the great players were beginning to retire.

"When they all retired at once, the Yankees underwent a complete rebuilding. What happened to the Yankees then was that there were so many greats, their young ballplayers were getting sold in the minor leagues," Murcer said. "I was lucky. They all retired, and I had a good year in the minor leagues."

In his first stint, Murcer played all or parts of 10 seasons with the Yankees, who finished as low as 10th (in 1977), while he wore pinstripes and never better than second (in 1970 and '74). He missed two years at New York while he served in the U.S. Army, and in October 1974 he was traded to the San Francisco Giants.

Two years with the Giants and 2½ years with the Chicago Cubs brought him full cycle back to the Yankees, who had won three pennants and two World Series in his absence.

"As a kid, everyone wanted to play for the Yankees, but realistically, it was one of the worst teams to play for," Murcer said. "You couldn't break into the lineup."

Still, he says, he's glad to finally be in the Big One, beginning today against the Los Angeles Dodgers, even if it's as a pinch hitter.

"The World Series is the ultimate," he said. "Over the years, you'll notice that a very low percentage of players make it to the World Series, no matter how long they play. You just have to be there at the right time, when someone's put together a group of the right players.

"When we were going through the rebuilding process, I was a young player. I was just happy to be there at that time. How many of the guys on this club can say they played with Mantle, Maris, Pepitone, Richardson...In my mind, these were some of the best ballplayers of all time," he said.

Ironically, Murcer nearly was cut in spring training this year.

"I know I can still play," he said. "Nothing has dwindled. They have put me in the most difficult situation in baseball. The toughest job in baseball is coming off the bench and trying to do something with one at-bat.

"If I get 500 or 600 at-bats, I can hit 20 home runs, have 80 to 85 RBI and hit between .280 and .300," Murcer said. "They told me all season, though, that pinch hitting was the role I could best help this club in. It's hard to realize that after the year I had in 1980 (.269 with 57 RBI and 13 homers), that I'd come back in 1981 and nearly be released in spring training."

Rogers was beat with victory near

MONTREAL (AP) — For pitcher Steve Rogers of the Montreal Expos, it was defeat in the face of victory.

"I could see the two faces of the Great Tragedy," said Rogers, "the smile and the frown. They were both right there about to be put on the wall.

"I got the frown."

Comedy and Tragedy are often a thin line apart, as the Expos found out Monday when they lost the National League pennant to Los Angeles 2-1 in the fifth game of the championship series.

The Expos had won the second half of the season, and Rogers had put them in position to do that with a brilliant two-hitter against the New York Mets. They clinched the title the next day.

Then he beat Philadelphia and Steve Carlton twice in the division playoffs.

His success continued into the championship series, when he beat the Dodgers 4-1 in the third game.

He was called upon in relief Monday, his first bullpen assignment in three years, but yielded the winning home run in the ninth inning to Rick Monday.

It was a crushing blow.

Club President John McHale hugged Manager Jim Fanning in the solemn Expos' locker room. The tears in McHale's eyes told the story.

It was also told in first baseman Warren Cromartie's tears and in the quiet stares into lockers by Andre Dawson, Bill Gullickson, Charlie Lea and starting pitcher Ray Burris.

Rogers told it, too, by his first reaction.

He pulled off his socks and threw them angrily onto the floor.

"You aren't going to come over here, are you?" he yelled to some approaching reporters.

Said Fanning: "I have great compassion for Steve Rogers. He has carried us on his shoulders for four weeks. But he'll be a better man for this. He will accept it and be better for it."

Fanning, who took over as manager from the fired Dick Williams in September, also said the team would learn and grow because of defeat.

"Don't feel sorry for us," he said. "Each of them can savor something they want. They battled an outstanding team to the final out of the fifth game. If they think about it, they'll realize they can win something bigger next time.

"But right now the feeling of all of us is one of great loneliness."

Dawson, who finished the season in a terrible slump and hit into a first-inning double play that halted a potential big inning, felt particularly bad.

"I didn't contribute. I'm disappointed not only for myself but for the other ballplayers," he said.

Tim Raines led off the Expos' first with a double. Rodney Scott then sacrificed and reached first when Valenzuela tried unsuccessfully to get Raines going to third.

Then came Dawson's double play. The Expos' only run of the game scored, but the threat of more runs died.

"The key play was that double play," said Coach Vern Rapp. "But they learned how good they were. They learned that it's hard to lose, and they would have learned, had they won, that it is hard to win."

Burris, who pitched eight innings and allowed only five hits, agreed with Rapp.

"There's always something you can gain from losing," he said. "We have to sit down and analyze the little things we did and didn't do. There's going to be a lot of soul-searching on the part of Ray Burris to maintain consistency."

Rogers will also do some soul-searching about the pitch to Monday.

"It was a mechanical mistake," Rogers said.

"The feeling's more acute now, but we know both clubs played good baseball. We climbed a notch. We climbed over a hump.

"We won and got into the playoffs and we played some good baseball.

"It may seem like Death Valley now, but it's not."

Sports in brief

GENERAL

NEW YORK (AP) — Pete Rose, the Philadelphia Phillies record-setting first baseman, was voted the Athlete of the Decade in a poll sponsored by the American Cancer Society.

The vote was conducted of a panel of 300 sports writers and broadcasters and takes into account athletic achievement for the years 1971-1981.

Former football star O.J. Simpson, who set the single-season rushing record of 2,003 yards in 1973, finished second in the voting, followed by center Kareem Abdul-Jabbar of the Los Angeles Lakers.

HOCKEY

NEW YORK (AP) — Right wing Rick Middleton, who scored five goals and two assists for the Boston Bruins in three road games, was named National Hockey League Player of the Week for the period beginning Tuesday, Oct. 13 and ending Sunday, Oct. 18.

BOWLING

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Earl Anthony held off a late sixth-round challenge from Steve Cook to nail down the top-seeded position going into the finals of the $110,000 Kessler Classic on the Professional Bowlers Association tour.

Anthony won four of his last eight matches while rolling 1,670 in the final match play session to finish 64 pins ahead of Cook, who had charged into contention for the lead with the help of a 300 game.

The other qualifiers for the chance at the $15,000 winner's check were Pete Weber, Jay Robinson and Paul Moser.

HORSE RACING

BOWIE, Md. (AP) — Phoebe's Phancy beat Bishop's Ring by three-quarters of a length to win the $45,750 Tosmah Handicap at Bowie Race Course.

CHICAGO (AP) — Really Royal, $6.80, beat Fancy Thoughts by 2¼ lengths to win the first division of the Miss Mommy Handicap at Hawthorne Park, and Plain Speaking, $31.60, took the second division by 4½ lengths over Fiddleatune.

EAST RUTHERFORD, N.J. (AP) — Tax Holiday, $2.60, drew away to post a 2¾-length victory over O.K. Doll in the $25,000 Dainty Dotsie purse at the Meadowlands.

NEW YORK (AP) — Explorare, $29.40, won the $29,000 Minnie Purse at Aqueduct by three-quarters of a length over Gimli.

Donahue unhappy

LOS ANGELES (AP) — UCLA Coach Terry Donahue makes no attempt to hide his displeasure with what the Bruins have done so far this season, but he's hopeful that things will get better.

"With a 1-1-1 record, we obviously are not (a factor in the Pacific-10 Conference race)," Donahue said Monday at his weekly meeting with the media. "I hope we can become one in the next five weeks.

"I'm disappointed we're 3-2-1, I think we can improve a lot in the next five weeks. We have not been eliminated from the conference race, in my mind."

The Bruins tied league-leazing Washington State 17-17 last Saturday. The Cougars, 2-0-1 in league action, are the conference's only unbeaten team.

"They're a good, solid football team and can play with anybody," said Donahue of Washington State. "I'm sure they're going to have a good season. But I think they're going to lose a game."

Hightower returns to Tech lineup

LUBBOCK, Texas (AP) — Fullback Wes Hightower, missing from all four Southwest Conference games because of injuries, will be back in the starting lineup for Texas Tech's intersectional game Saturday, said coach Jerry Moore.

Center Jeff Crombie also will be ready for the Red Raiders' 2 p.m. contest with Washington, Moore said Monday.

However, injuries apparently will keep quarterback Ron Reeves, tailback Anthony Hutchison and offensive tackle David Joeckel on the sidelines, the coach said.

WAC honors two players

DENVER (AP) — For 18 unassisted tackles and four quarterback sacks against previously undefeated San Diego, linebacker Kyle Whittingham of Brigham Young has been named the Western Athletic Conference's defensive player of the week.

On Monday, defensive back and return specialist Darnell Clash was named offensive player for his performance in Wyoming's 63-12 romp over Texas-El Paso on Saturday. Clash had six punt returns for 94 yards and three kickoff returns for 113 yards.

Whittingham's stunning performance helped BYU to a 27-7 victory over San Diego State. He also had three assisted tackles as well as one forced fumble, one pass deflection and three hurries.

Other candidates for WAC defensive honors this week were defensive back Johnny Jackson of Air Force, punter Frank Natividad of Hawaii, linebacker Johnny Jackson of New Mexico, defensive back Vernon Dean of San Diego and linebacker Bill Gompf of Utah.

Women's City Golf play begins

Play gets under way today in the Midland City Women's Golf Tournament, sometimes referred to as the Susan Britton exhibition and clinic, at Hogan Park Golf Course with qualifying round play.

Players will be flighted on the basis of today's scores and a medalist will be determined.

Two rounds of medal play will follow Wednesday and Thursday.

Mrs. Britton is the defending champion, as she has been for several years. In fact, no one can remember when she wasn't the defending champion. However, contrary to the prevailing rumor, Mrs. Britton has not been the champion all 18 years the tournament has been conducted.

A Susan Alstrin reportedly won some of the early tournaments. However, Susan Alstrin hasn't been a contender since she married...someone named Britton.

Thursday's final round will be followed by an awards luncheon at Ranchland Hills Country Club.

Lee, MHS need volleyball wins

By MIKE CRUVER
Sports Writer

If Midland Lee and Midland High want to stay in the hunt for the District 5-5A volleyball title a win is a must tonight.

Lee (17-10, 2-1), coming off a lackluster effort against Abilene Cooper Tuesday, hosts Big Spring (18-6, 3-0) in a very important battle. The Lady Steers finished the first half one game behind San Angelo and just ahead of the Rebels. The winner of tonight's contest will still have an outside shot at the title while the loser will be all but eliminated.

The Rebels have already lost to San Angelo in the second half, so they must defeat the Lady Steers and hope for some help from Midland High.

The Bulldogs (14-11, 2-1), coming off an impressive win over Abilene High, are faced with a very tough assignment tonight.

MHS must battle San Angleo (26-3, 3-0) on the Bobcat's floor. The Bobcats won the first half title and would capture the title outright if they should finished tied with any team for the second half battle.

A loss tonight to the Bulldogs would not necessary hurt the defending district volleyball champions' chances of winning another title. The Bobcats are in a position when they can suffer one loss and still be in fairly good shape for the district crown.

Midland Lee and MHS, on the other hand, are faced with a win or wait until next year situation. With two losses, the Rebels and Bulldogs would have no chance of overtaking San Angelo or Big Spring with only three games remaining on the schedule after tonight — including the annual Tall City battle in the last regular season encounter.

Action gets underway tonight at 6 p.m. with the junior varsity with the varsity play tipping off at 7 p.m. at the Lee gym and in San Angelo.

Cloutier scores two as Nordiques beat Canucks

QUEBEC (AP) — Hard work does not always produce goals, and Real Cloutier knows that better than most.

Cloutier has been one of the Quebec Nordiques' hardest-working forwards in the young National Hockey League season, but until Monday night he had yet to beat an opposing goaltender.

Cloutier, who scored 42 times in Quebec's maiden season in the NHL in 1979-80, broke a modest six-game scoring slump and fired two goals to lead the Nordiques to a 6-3 victory over the Vancouver Canucks in the only NHL game Monday night.

"You bet I'm happy to get a couple," said Cloutier. "I've been working hard in all the games."

Several potent scorers have been added to Quebec's lineup since they joined the NHL and Cloutier no longer feels the burden of carrying the team offensively.

"We have a lot of great scorers on this team this year," said Cloutier, who enjoyed 66-and 75-goal seasons with Quebec in the defunct World Hockey Association.

"I know I can't score all the goals, but I knew I would get a couple eventually," he added. "I want to play more of a two-way game and I know you just don't score because you work hard.

"You have to be a little lucky as well."

Peter Stastny also scored twice for the Nordiques, while Jacques Richard and Pierre Aubry added singles. Curt Fraser, Lars Molin and Blair MacDonald countered for the Canucks.

Dan Bouchard faced 29 shots in the Quebec goal, while this teammates fired 28 shots at Vancouver goalie Glen Hanlon.

"I know I gave up a goal at the end of the second and third periods, but no one is perfect," said Bouchard. "The important thing is that we won and we can learn from our mistakes.

"When you get ahead by four or five goals in a game you tend to relax a little and I think I even deflected one of the shots in myself." Bouchard explained.

Tex-Tronics saves money; Makes business mailing simpler

One concern of business people, whether they are connected with a large or small business, is saving money while increasing efficiency. Basin Tex-Tronics, 2514-B W. Ohio, can save your business money and make your mailing process simpler.

Basin Tex-Tronics is an authorized agent for Friden electronic mailing equipment. Boyd Bowen has been in business 17 years and has been an agent for Friden mailing equipment for the past 4 years.

Friden has mailing equipment to handle small businesses, as well as complete systems for the large business. A small business could use a postage meter to save money. Meter mail moves through the mail faster and there is the convenience of having the machine in the office. Time that used to be spent buying stamps at the post office now may be spent productively. Large businesses could benefit from a complete mailing system that could include an all-electronic postage computing scale, an electronic UPS register, and an all-electronic accumulating printer. Bowen says electronic scales are the most money-saving, time-saving item they have. Friden is now selling a line of newly-designed mailroom furniture, which Bowen feels is the best on the market.

Basin Tex-Tronics also sells and services Toshiba and Canon calculators.

Basin Tex-Tronics is an established, long-time business, and as an agent, can give their customers more time and personalized attention.

Boyd Bowen, Mary Lue Schmitt, and Mark Bowen of Basin Tex-Tronics are shown holding a Friden electronic scale. To see how the scale or other electronic mailing equipment can help your business, stop by 2514-B W. Ohio or call 683-1351.

Midland Freight Salvage is the place to decorate your home

The showrooms of Midland Freight Salvage, 503 W. Florida, are full of nice furniture and household goods. Among featured brands are Lane, Hickory, and Stratford. GM drops interest rate

DETROIT (AP) — Hoping to spur sales, General Motors Corp. has dropped the interest rate on loans made by its financing subsidiary to buyers of certain new GM cars.

The rate charged to buyers of 1981 X-body models and 1982 J-body cars has been lowered to 12.9 percent from 13.8 percent, GM said Monday. Buyers of 1981 X-body models also are eligible for savings through a new program that offers $400-per-car cash incentives to dealers.

Carson, classmates relive scene from old home movie

Carson

NORFOLK, Neb. (AP) — There on the screen was talk-show host Johnny Carson, but the setting was Nebraska instead of downtown Burbank, there was no orchestra and the director was Carson's father.

It was an old home-movie that Carson's father made when some of his son's classmates left Norfolk to join the Navy. A film crew studied the movie and afterward Carson, 55, and some of his classmates re-enacted the scene on the front lawn of the home that Carson lived in here.

The NBC late-night TV star, six of his school chums, the film crew and some fans are in Norfolk for a week for the filming of a TV special called "Johnny Comes Home." The filming started Sunday at Norfolk Junior High School, where Carson attended high school.

When Carson arrived at the Norfolk airport Saturday, the 1939 Chrysler he once drove was awaiting him. It had been restored to its original condition by Bob Means of Norfolk.

LONDON (AP) — During those hard days of speeches and royal appearances, Prince Charles says he finds his energy flagging.

"I fall asleep very easily, standing up sometimes," he was quoted as saying in a magazine article.

But Charles continues to meet grueling schedules of engagements, and the magazine says part of the reason he goes out of his way to make contact with minority groups when he's touring the country is that back at Buckingham Palace, he gets racist hate letters.

The weekly magazine Woman's Own said today that after a visit to Preston, a Lancashire textile town with a large population of Asian immigrants, the prince said: "Perhaps by going to a Hindu temple, like today, I can help in some way to bring people together. There's so much bigotry about, it's appalling.

"Fear...ignorance...whatever the reasons behind racialism, it's such a tragedy. Because in the end we've all got to get along together, or what's the future going to be?"

The comments by the 32-year-old heir to the British throne were carried by the weekly after a reporter accompanied him for a day to see how he handles public appearances.

Bryant

SELMA, Ala. (AP) — It's been more than a year since Anita Bryant gave a concert, but the singer and former crusader against homosexuals is planning a benefit show next month.

Miss Bryant's concert Nov. 9 at Selma High School is to benefit Protect America's Children, a Selma-based organization that she founded. The non-profit religious organization, formerly based in Florida, was instrumental in repealing a homosexual-rights ordinance in Dade County in 1977, and it gave assistance to groups that overturned gay-rights ordinances in Minnesota and Kansas.

The concert will be Miss Bryant's first since she moved from Miami to Selma in 1980 after her divorce from Bob Green, who also was her manager.

●

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — Mormon Church President Spencer W. Kimball is to stay for a while at the Hotel Utah under nursing care while he continues his recovery from skull surgery, a church spokeswoman says.

Kimball was released Monday from LDS Hospital, where he underwent surgery Sept. 5 for removal of an epidural hematoma — a collection of blood and scar tissue between his skull and brain, said spokeswoman Janet Brigham.

She said the 86-year-old president of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints would be staying temporarily at the Hotel Utah under nursing care.

Kimball, considered a prophet by the 4.9 million members of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints, encountered respiratory problems and internal bleeding during his recovery, and underwent minor surgery last week to correct a urinary tract defect.

●

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer has been told that actress Raquel Welch had presented enough evidence to justify a trial in her suit against the studio for infliction of emotional distress in her firing from the film "Cannery Row" last December.

Miss Welch is also suing the studio, producer and others for libel and breach of contract and is asking for $7.4 million.

Claudine (Sally Mogford), left, and LuAnn (Jeanine Matthews) talk about LuAnn's day at school in this scene from the first act of Preston Jones' "LuAnn Hampton Laverty Oberlander," the third play in "The Texas Trilogy." The play is being held over in Theatre II at Theatre Midland, 2000 W. Wadley Ave., for three additional performances. "LuAnn" was set to close Saturday, but due to popular demand, its run has been extended to include shows Thursday through Saturday nights.

Appeals court ruling may hurt video tape recording industry

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The future of the booming business in video tape recorders was cast into doubt by a federal appeals court ruling that millions of Americans are violating copyright laws when they use the machines to tape television shows.

Under the ruling, the makers of the machines could be required to pay royalties to the owners of television programs or even be forced to halt the manufacture and sale of the devices.

The 9th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals ruled Monday that the estimated 3 million home video recorders in America exist for "copyright infringement," and makers and sellers of the machines are liable for damages.

The appeals court reversed U.S. District Judge Warren Ferguson in the case, and sent the matter back to his Los Angeles courtroom for consideration of what should be done about what it said was an "exceedingly complex" problem.

The three-man appeals court suggested he look into the possibility of royalties or even an injunction barring the manufacture and sale of the machines. But the court acknowledged that an injunction could result in "great public injury."

Appeal of the decision to the U.S. Supreme Court was a strong possibility.

Kenji Tamiya, top officer of Sony Corp. of America, chief defendant in the lawsuit, said: "All parties to this litigation always have expected that the final decision in this case will be made by the U.S. Supreme Court."

In Tokyo, Naozo Mabuchi, managing director of the parent Sony Corp., also a defendant, called the ruling by the Ninth Circuit Court of Appeals "anachronistic."

He said that video tape recorders sold in the United States are used by consumers "for their own personal use."

Officials of the Electronic Industries Association of Japan also expressed anxiety over the ruling, pointing out that private recording of copyrighted television programs is allowed in Japan and parts of Europe.

Trinity's headmaster attends TANS meeting

P.D. Peterson, headmaster of Trinity School and a member of the Board of Directors of the Texas Association of Non-Public Schools, attended a TANS meeting in Lubbock last week.

TANS, composed of several hundred independent and church-related schools, has a goal of promoting public awareness of non-public schools and the bolstering of a spirit of cooperation among all non-public schools in Texas.

Trinity School faculty members Mary Rulla, Peter Clark and Laura Morrow went to El Paso recently for a two-day meeting of the National Council for Teaching Mathematics. They attended lectures and workshops while at the conference.

Trinity also will be represented at the next Math Council, which will be a state convention in Austin in early November.

Yorktown Bicentennial ends with fanfare

By R.D. GERSH
Associated Press Writer

YORKTOWN, Va. (AP) — The fifes and drums are silent, the real and make-believe armies filing out of town. Yorktown is reverting to the peaceful memorial to the nation's birth it had just grandly celebrated.

The four-day Yorktown Bicentennial ended Monday with fanfare and a fly-over of F-15s, with presidents, politics and the precision of 6,000 troops marching on the site of Britain's last stand 200 years ago.

President Reagan and French President Francois Mitterrand watched from behind bulletproof glass as mock troops in the white uniforms of France, the red coats of Britain and the blue of the colonists were joined by their modern American counterparts for review.

"Let the struggle that took place here remind us all: the freedom we enjoy today has not always existed and carries no guarantee," Reagan said.

Mitterrand, representing America's oldest ally, was joined by Lord Hailsham, Britain's Lord Chancellor.

"The second battle of Yorktown has come to an end," said Nelson Crockett, owner of the town's only hotel.

The first battle of Yorktown ended Oct. 19, 1781, when Lord Charles Cornwallis surrendered the crown's crack army in the colonies to Gen. George Washington in what would prove to be the end of the Revolutionary War.

About 180,000 visitors crowded the town of 260 for the last fling of the nation's Bicentennial, which began six years ago in Concord and Lexington, Mass.

The 4,000 men, women and children who recreated the costumed units of soldiers were pulling out of town today.

During final remarks on the meaning of the American Revolution, Reagan took the occasion to tout his economic and defense policies.

"Our people are struggling under a punishing tax burden many times heavier than that which ignited our first rebellion," he said.

Mitterrand sounded a warning that the battle fought at Yorktown is not over, saying "The struggle for freedom and justice of the insurgents of the Revolutionary War continues in other forms and in other places in our world of today."

Lord Hallisham, who represented the enemy-turned-ally, also spoke of the lesson of Yorktown.

"We three nations, here reunited after two centuries, must ponder the future too," he said.

Process of settling U.S. claims commences

WASHINGTON (AP) — The lengthy process of settling U.S. financial claims against Iran, stipulated in the agreement that freed the 52 American hostages last January, is beginning before a joint U.S.-Iran tribunal at The Hague in The Netherlands.

Claims exceeding $250,000 are to be filed with the tribunal between today and Jan. 19.

A State Department legal officer said it may be a long time before Americans receive actual payments of their claims, stemming from the fall of the government of the late Shah Mohammed Reza Pahlavi.

The nine-member Iran-United States Claims Tribunal consists of three Americans, three Iranians and two Swedes and a Frenchmen. The latter three were selected jointly by the United States and Iran.

David Stewart, administrator for Iranian claims in the State Department's legal office, said claims against Iran probably would exceed the $1 billion balance set aside in a special security account to settle them.

"The claims run the gamut...from breach of contract, to expropriation, to nationalization of industries, to joint ventures...and defense contractors," Stewart said Monday.

Many, if not most, are from corporations that did business with the shah's government and which claimed losses after the Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini came to power.

The tribunal will decide whether the claims are valid and how much the claimants are entitled to receive.

Stewart said that among smaller claims, there is a $20 X-ray bill for an Iranian student. There also are claims for Americans whose homes and furniture in Iran were seized.

Nixon doesn't carry Reagan messages

WASHINGTON (AP) — Former President Nixon carried no messages from President Reagan when he traveled to Saudi Arabia, Jordan, Tunesia and Morocco last week, spokesman for both men say.

And Richard V. Allen, Reagan's national security adviser, said Monday that he knew of no plans for discussions with Nixon on his travels to the volatile region, although he did not rule out the possibility.

Nixon, who made the trip after serving as an American representative at the funeral of Egyptian President Anwar Sadat in Cairo, issued a statement in Paris Sunday calling Libyan leader Col. Moammar Khadafy "an international outlaw" and recommending the United States stop purchasing Libyan oil. President Reagan later rejected that proposal..

Allen, as have most administration officials, said he did not know of Nixon's plan to leave the U.S. delegation, which included former Presidents Ford and Carter, until the day of Sadat's funeral.

"I talked with President Nixon four or five times," said Allen. "I did not know about his trip until Saturday."

White House spokesman Larry Speakes said, however, that Nixon informed Reagan of his plans before the delegation left Washington Oct.8.

Nixon aide Nicholas Ruwe said the former president purposely did not make his plans public. "From Nixon's point of view it was vital that nothing detract from the funeral," Ruwe said. "Our overriding emphasis...was not to make news until the last volley was fired over that coffin."

On the morning he left, Nixon talked by telephone with Secretary of State Alexander M. Haig Jr., Deputy Secretary of State William P. Clark and then briefly, in person, with President Reagan at the White House, said State Department officials.

Ruwe said Nixon called Haig either the day he left or the day before. The former protocol officer said there was no intention to keep Nixon's plan secret from Reagan. "None whatsoever," Ruwe said in a telephone interview.

"He was not a message carrier for the administration," Ruwe said. "The trip was put together in a matter of hours."

Let Valero give you a better Data Processing career in San Antonio.

Valero Energy Corporation is a FORTUNE 500 company with significant involvement in the natural gas transmission and processing industries. It has an expanding interest in refining, exploration and production and many other key energy-related activities.

San Antonio, corporate headquarters for Valero, has grown to be one of the largest cities in the country. And it is laying the groundwork for a stronger and even more dynamic future. An exciting city and a growing company: it's a good combination for developing a career.

The following positions are excellent opportunities to help build batch processing and interactive applications for use throughout the corporation. Corporate computer support facilities include an IBM 370/303x with MVS, TSO/APL and IMS/ADF.

Computer Systems Analysts
VARIOUS LEVELS Will design, develop and implement computer and manual systems to solve business problems. Senior positions have some supervisory responsibilities and may lead to management positions. Minimum requirements for lower level positions include a Bachelors degree and 1+ years COBOL programming experience. Additional experience may be substituted for formal education.

Systems Analysts-Refining
VARIOUS LEVELS Will design and install manual and computer based systems to solve business problems and improve planning, control, and operating results in a large refining environment. Senior positions have some supervisory responsibilities and may lead to management positions. Requires Bachelors degree with a minimum of 2 years programming and analysis experience in support of a refining operation. Additional experience may be substituted for formal education.

Information Center Analyst
Will provide interactive users throughout Valero with programming assistance and system design consultation, as well as help users interface with their data in a TSO environment. Knowledge of user oriented tools (i.e. EASYTRIEVE, IFPS, APL or SAS) a definite plus. Requires a college degree in business or science, good communications skills and a demonstrated ability to function independently.

Technical Specialist
Will provide operating system and technical support for corporate computer center. Specialists support a variety of IBM and non-IBM software products. This position offers an opportunity for professional achievement in a progressive environment. Requires college degree with computer background and 2 years of support experience in an MVS/JES 2/IMS environment. Additional relevant experience will be considered in lieu of degree.

IMS Data Base Specialist
Will interface with system development staff in the design, review and implementation of IMS Data Base systems. Candidate must have a Bachelors degree or equivalent data processing experience with a minimum of 2 years experience in data base design, application program support, data dictionary support and data base performance tuning procedures.

Opportunities exist in this growing organization for personal and professional advancement.
