DEMOCRATS NOMINATE AL SMITH

Demo Platform Stresses Farm Relief And Law Enforcement

PRINCIPLES OF PARTY GIVEN TO CONVENTION

G. O. P. Failure to Carry Out Liquor Laws Is Rapped

REMEDIES NAMED

Support of Legislature To Help Farmer Pledged

HOUSTON, June 28. (UP)—A pledge for honest enforcement of the eighteenth amendment and all other constitutional amendments, with accompanying enforcement laws, was laid before the Democratic national convention tonight in the platform or statement of party principles, adopted by its platform committee.

The prohibition plank denounced the Republican party for its failure to enforce laws and promised the Democratic nominee would enforce them.

Flays Republicans

"The Republican party, for eight years in complete control of the government at Washington, presents the remarkable spectacle of feeling compelled in its national platform to promise obedience to a provision of the federal constitution which it has flagrantly disregarded and to apologize to the country for its failure to enforce laws enacted by the congress of the United States," the prohibition plank said.

"Speaking for the national democracy, this convention pledges the party and its nominee to an honest effort to enforce the eighteenth amendment and all other provisions of the federal constitution and all laws enacted pursuant thereto."

These two sentences under the heading "Law Enforcement" were the only references to the issue which some party leaders had feared might cause a serious disturbance in the convention.

Farm Relief

Behind this brief but terse expression in the middle of the platform, the resolutions committee built up a declaration of principles in which agricultural relief occupied the most space.

The farm plank charged the Republican party with practicing deception upon the agricultural interests. It condemned President Coolidge for vetoing the McNary-Haugen bill and failing to offer anything in its stead.

As the Democratic program, it pledged support to legislation "for the control and orderly handling of agricultural surpluses in order that the price of the surplus may not determine the price of the whole crop." This was the theory of the McNary-Haugen bill, but the bill itself was not mentioned by name.

Four Remedies

The remedy for agricultural ills must be found in one of the four following things, the platform committee told the convention:

1.—Credit loans by the government to cooperate on a basis similar to governmental aid for the merchant marine.

2.—Creation of a federal farm board to assist the farmer in marketing as the federal reserve board has done for the banker and business man.

3.—Reduction of the spread between the price the farmer sells for and the price the consumer pays, aimed apparently to reduce the profits of the middleman and the cost of transportation.

4.—Consideration of agricultural conditions in formulation of governmental financial and tax measures.

Tie That Binds—Strong, Says George—Mark the Day—How to Swim—

W. E. George, returning from a tour of Hall and adjacent counties, brings cheering news not only of crop conditions there, but of the interest of the people in Wichita Falls institutions, business, newspapers and civic organizations. Oil made Wichita Falls into a city overnight, and it is only in recent years this city has had opportunity from many other duties to extend its services in a comprehensive way to its neighbors.

Mr. George ventures the opinion "so far, I believe we have always done our part in being good neighbors." It is to be hoped residents of northwest Texas agree with Mr. George. It is quite likely they do. Friendship, respect and loyalty in a trade territory are not acquired by idle words, but by fair dealing and real service. And the strength of any city lies in the tie that binds it to its neighboring towns and communities.

There can be little doubt but that the colonization project of Charles Weeks, now under tentative agreement, is the most ambitious and important here in many years. Mr. Weeks and chamber of commerce leaders have agreed on terms which will prove liberal for the Californian, and he has in turn pledged his best efforts and the use of a marketing organization already developed. There seems no reason why Sept. 1 should not see the first real step in the program which will bring hundreds of settlers to the Wichita valley.

As this writer has said previously, the attractive feature of the Weeks' program is that he not only sells land, but helps his settlers succeed in their undertakings. This is of vital importance to Wichita Falls, which hopes to add hundreds of new residents to this area who will produce farm products worth thousands of dollars each year. Every person and every landowner in Wichita county should give such assistance to the plans of Mr. Weeks and the chamber of commerce as seem practicable.

This white clothing is unsuited for summer wear, according to a Dallas expert, who advocates coarse white material for use during the hot days. When the mercury hits 108 in Wichita Falls, then expert advice is really needed on the matter of keeping cool. Any clothing at all seems too much, unless you are in one of T. B. Noble's iced theaters or in a swimming pool.

C. C. Bunnenberg undertakes a worthwhile program in his plan to give free swimming lessons to any and all who care to attend the classes at Wichita Falls pools. Teaching swimming to novices cuts down accidents of course, but equally important, it opens an entirely new field of pleasure, recreation and exercise to those who "don't go near the water."

Rain Threatens Damage To Kansas Wheat Fields

TOPEKA, Kan., June 28. (UP)—Forecast of continued unsettled weather increased fears that wheat in sections of Kansas already drenched will seriously endanger the crop. Rain soaked fields in southern Kansas may be too wet for combines to be used in the ripe grain next week, it was feared. Despite wet grounds, binders in Smith county started cutting the wheat today. Few combines probably will be used.

Bootlegger Charged In Conspiracy to Kill Cops

JOPLIN, Mo., June 28. (UP)—Charges that Frank "Chee Chee" De Mayo, former king of bootleggers of Kansas City, had conspired to hire a prohibition agent to murder two other dry agents were made in a federal indictment made public here today. Henry Prudhome, dry agent, told a federal grand jury he was hired to kill Gust West and James Komanakis, fellow agents.

FIVE DROWNED

TOKIO, June 28. (UP)—Five persons were drowned and 26 others reported entombed by a landslide following heavy rains near Hiroshima and Kyushu.

COLONIZATION PROJECT TO OPEN SEPT. 1

Weeks Makes Tentative Agreement With C-C Leaders

FIVE-YEAR PROGRAM

Californian to Bring New Families to Wichita Valley

Charles Weeks, California promoter of small farms and poultry projects, will start active operations about Sept. 1 in the Wichita irrigated valley if the directors of the chamber of commerce approve a tentative plan and contract when they meet at 3 o'clock Tuesday afternoon, according to Hubert Harrison, manager of the chamber.

Recommendations of the committee along with a tentative contract approved by the agricultural committee of the chamber will be presented to the directors at that time.

"Mr. Weeks will establish a trap nest factory and an egg crate and box factory here if the deal goes through," Mr. Harrison said. "The trap nests are primarily for blooded fowls.

"All of the stock for the small farms will be obtained from the M. Johnson poultry ranch which Mr. Weeks characterized as one of the finest in America.

"For the next 10 days, Mr. Weeks will be in Florida and New Orleans on business. Meantime, the chamber directors will have taken action on the colonization plan so that when Mr. Weeks returns he will be in position to close up the deal and prepare for operations."

5000 Acres Sought

Under the plan, a syndicate will then be formed to obtain 5000 acres of land to be put at Mr. Weeks' disposal for colonization purposes and otherwise to take care of the contract, Mr. Harrison explained.

The Weeks plan is to gather sufficient land together to put on a large colonization drive to populate the valley and to place the new comers on small farms of two, four, and six acres or multiples thereof.

The tentative contract which the promoter signed with the agricultural committee Thursday gives the promoter $25,000 cash in advance, and also 33 1-3 per cent on all land sales he makes. Mr. Weeks' plan also calls for naming the project the "Charles Weeks' Texas Community of Intensive Little Farms." All eggs sold on this project will be sold through a marketing organization the promoter now has, known as "Weeks' Community Eggs."

Community Plan

The tentative contract also provides that should Mr. Weeks sever his connection with the syndicate after five years, it would have the use of his name, influence, marketing organization, and trade name for 50 years.

A model small farm is to be built to demonstrate a small practical working unit, and also the possibilities under the Weeks system.

The tentative plan also calls for the erection of a small poultry packing and egg grading and storing plant. A buying organization also would buy feed and other supplies in carload lots.

Nobile to Aid Search For Missing Companion

ROME, June 28. (UP)—Gen. Umberto Nobile, partially recovered from his injuries, will accompany two Italian aviators on a search for the missing members of the Italia's crew, it was announced tonight. Nobile, now on the Citta di Milano, near Spitzbergen, was resting today while rescue planes made ice landing tests.

Renewal of Chinese Warfare Is Expected

LONDON, June 28. (UP)—Dispatches from Peking indicate a possible renewal of hostilities between northern and nationalist forces in China. An advance by nationalists on the Mukdenite armies in the Kailan mining area is considered inevitable. Commander Chiang Kai-shek, nationalist leader, is reported moving to Peking, now occupied by his men.

Here's the hope of democracy, the habitual winner, Governor Alfred Emanuel Smith of New York. He received the Democratic nomination for the presidency on the first ballot last night at the Houston convention.

"Revolution" in Democratic Party Visible Contrast With Bryanism

By MARK SULLIVAN

CONVENTION HALL, HOUSTON, Texas, June 28.—To realize the revolutionary this convention has been, think of it in terms of William Jennings Bryan. In a keynote address Bowers delivered a thoroughly Bryan speech. A few paragraphs of it were directly reminiscent of Bryan's cross of gold speech. But although Bowers called the roll of Democratic worthies nowhere did he mention the name "Bryan." He could hardly do so without recalling 1924 and the factional memories of the New York convention. He could hardly do so without recalling 1912 when Bryan deprived Champ Clark of the nomination, for the mere reason that Tammany was voting for Clark. The Democratic speech that Bowers delivered here was directed against Republicans only. The similar speeches that Bryan had delivered many times had been almost as often and usually more fiercely against Tammany than against the Republicans. Now Tammany's friends claimed it had reformed. It was in control of the convention and the keynote speech could not include Bryan in the roll call of the worthies nor mention him at all.

The following day, an old friend of Bryan, Josepheus Daniels, of North Carolina, introduced a brief resolution, rather pathetic under the circumstances, recalling Bryan and his services to the Democratic party. Altogether it was the dramatic landmark of a revolution that has taken place before our own eyes, much of it here in this convention as important historically and as deep reaching serially as any political revolution that has occurred in America. This was the first convention in 52 years at which Bryan was not present. He had attended 11. At three, 1896, 1900 and 1908, he had nominated himself for the presidency. At a fourth, 1912, he had brought about the nomination of Woodrow Wilson. At a fifth, 1916, he had seen Wilson renominated and had sat in the convention as Wilson's secretary of state. At a sixth, 1924, he had seen his brother nominated for vice president. At a seventh, in his earlier years, he had sat as a member of congress.

Cahoon Asks Noted Flyer To Celebration

Charles A. Lindbergh, the sea hopper, and William P. McCracken, assistant secretary for aeronautics of the United States department of commerce, may be guests of the city at the formal opening celebration of the Wichita Falls municipal airport July 4.

Telegrams inviting them to be the guests of Wichita Falls were sent Thursday by C. W. Cahoon, Jr., president of the airport.

"We hope one or both of them will be able to accept," Mr. Cahoon said.

Announcement was made Thursday at the airport headquarters that B. B. Owen, past president of the Dallas Flying club, will fly to Wichita Falls in his new Swallow plane for the celebration. Many invitations have been sent to cities in all parts of the state and to nearby states to individual flyers, to cities and to chambers of commerce to be represented at the celebration. Acceptances are being received daily.

Paul Seed's Panhandle Refinery band was also announced Thursday as one of the attractions. The band will play at the 12 o'clock luncheon in the Wichita club and again for the celebration at the field at 3:30 o'clock.

HEAT RECORDS TOPPLE UNDER SIZZLING SUN

Temperature at Highest Level Thursday In Three Years

MERCURY HITS 108

Previous Record in 1925 Sent Thermometers To 111 Degrees

Breaking all heat records for the last three years, the temperature in Wichita Falls Thursday afternoon soared to the pinnacle of 108 degrees, the highest since July 19, 1925. On that date the temperature almost went the limit and reached 111 degrees.

The high mark in temperature set Thursday afternoon made the May record of 102 degrees seem almost like October. It beat by two degrees the highest temperature of 1926, which was 105 degrees on Aug. 6 of that year; and beat by one degree the record of 107 degrees set on May 26, 1927.

The lowest temperature of the day was registered early in the morning when the thermometer stood at 77 degrees. The peak of 108 degrees was reached early in the afternoon, and stood at this mark at 5 p. m., when the last weather report was received.

Citizens were apprehensive of storms or some kind of disturbance early in the afternoon, when it became evident that the thermometer was in for a big test, and when reports from the weather bureau said the barometer was gradually falling lower, a sign of approaching disturbance.

At last reports from the local hospitals, no cases of heat prostration had been treated.

Racketeer Charged In Murder of Gangster

CHICAGO, June 28. (UP)—John Hand, organizer of an alleged racketeering organization, was booked formally on a charge of murder in the slaying of "Big Tim" Murphy, labor leader and racketeer. WASHINGTON, June 28. (UP)—Secretary of the Treasury Mellon announced today the treasury will close its fiscal year on June 30 with a surplus of more than $400,000,000. The entire surplus will be applied to public debt reduction, reducing the national debt in 1928 by about $1,000,000,000.

Wichitans Correct Story of Death

C. E. Flowers and wife of Wichita Falls and Mr. Flowers' brother, R. C. Flowers of Dallas, have just returned to their respective homes from Cushing, Texas, where their father, S. G. Flowers, and their brother, Glen Flowers, were buried at 4 o'clock Wednesday afternoon. They were buried in the same grave, which was next to that of Mrs. Flowers, wife and mother of the two men. She was buried five years ago.

A mistake was made in the report of the deaths, according to C. E. Flowers.

The deceased were visiting at the home of the elder Mr. Flowers' niece at Cushing, and had not moved from Nocona.

S. G. Flowers was in good financial condition, but was subject to spells of despondency since he was slugged about two years ago by hijackers at Nocona, Texas.

The tragedy is believed by Mr. Flowers to have resulted from the father's fear of what might happen to Glen in case of his death as the boy was an invalid. They had been inseparable.

Glen Flowers was shot to death as he slept. The body of his father was lying close by.

First Ballot Victory For New York Governor Comes With Ohio's Vote Switch

Numerous Other States Change Their Vote After Nomination of Empire State Executive Is Assured—Indiana Ohio's Rival in Change

CONVENTION HALL, HOUSTON, June 28. (UP)—Alfred E. Smith of New York was chosen Democratic presidential candidate on the first ballot tonight.

Previously the convention adopted a platform with a law enforcement plank on prohibition which avoided any reference to modification.

Nomination of Senator Joseph T. Robinson of Arkansas for presidential candidate was generally expected to take place at tomorrow's sessions.

Ohio Switches Votes to Smith

Smith's nomination vote crossed the two-thirds line when Ohio switched its vote to him after the first roll call of states showed Smith 724 2-3, about 10 votes short.

Dozens of delegations clamored for the honor of swinging the ballot to "Smith by prearrangement. Apparently the honor went to the great state of Ohio.

Ohio's switch gave Smith 45 of its vote and Pomerene 3, running Smith's total to 769 2-3 as against 733 1-3 necessary to nominate.

After Smith's nomination had been assured by Ohio's change of vote Mississippi announced it intended to change its vote and the chairman of the delegation cast the state's 20 votes for Smith. An uproar in the delegation ensued and H. W. Wall, one of the delegates, challenged the vote and demanded the delegation be polled.

The chair then proceeded to poll the delegation. On the poll Senator Harrison voted for Smith in a loud voice, bringing cheers from his many acquaintances in the Smith camp.

The total on the first ballot before any changes in the votes cast occurred, were as follows:

Smith 724 2-3; George 82 1-2; Hull 71 5-6; Jones 43, Reed 48; Woollen 32; Donahey 5; Ayers 20; Harrison 29; Hitchcock 26; Pomerene 67; Thompson 2; Watts 15.

The change of Ohio's vote, turning 45 votes to Smith, brought his total to 769 2-3, with only 733 1-3 required to nominate.

Smith thereby was nominated officially on the first ballot.

Delegations Continue Arguments

Many delegations were still arguing among themselves as to whether they should change their votes and climb on the band wagon before the final vote was announced. In contrast with the intense activity among the delegates on the floor, the galleries began to thin out rapidly once it was evident that Smith had gone across. Some sections were almost barren of spectators.

But the arena resembled a huge bull pen with dozens shouting at Chairman Robinson simultaneously, some of them being boosted up on the shoulders of their comrades hoping the better to obtain recognition.

Indiana was the chief rival of Ohio for the honor of switching but lost out.

Such was the scene as the Democratic party made one of the most significant choices in its long career reaching back to the days of Jefferson.

Here in the heart of the south the party came to choose, almost without a struggle, the hero of Tammany hall, the man who rose from the sidewalks of New York to become governor of the nation's largest state; a man whose views on prohibition and whose outlook on life are in many respects alien to those of the south which holds the veto power of the Democratic party under the two-thirds rule.

Only once before in recent years has the party shown such unanimity in selecting its candidate—in 1916 when Woodrow Wilson was named by acclamation.

Contrasts to Madison Square Fiasco

In contrast with tonight's speedy action was the battle of Madison Square garden four years ago when Smith was held down by a powerful bloc led by William G. McAdoo whose name has not been heard in this convention.

Mrs. Smith, who as Katie Dunn, a little Irish girl, from the lower east side of New York married the Democratic candidate when he was a stripling errand boy for Tammany hall, sat in a box on the edge of the arena tonight and looked on calmly at the scene where the triumph of her husband was being registered.

Alfred Smith Jr., was the first to embrace and kiss his mother when the vote was announced. Then others of the family joined in.

Mrs. Smith tried to smile happily through tears that welled in her eyes and her sister-in-law, Mrs. Glynn, cried openly.

The uproad of switching of votes continued for some time, arguments being so violent that police had to step in to separate little groups peaceably.

Smith's total was officially announced as 849 2-3 votes.

Before the words had actually come from the lips of the official announcer a terrific roar was set off, state banners were jerked up and a parade around the hall was started to the tune of "The Sidewalks of New York."

Chairman Robinson stopped the din to make official announcement over the radio of Smith's nomination.

The demonstration then resumed, spotlights playing over the mass of humanity which was seething all over the arena floor.

New York delegates up to this time had been sitting in their regular seats. George Olvany, grand sachem of Tammany hall; George R. Van Namee, Smith campaign manager, and Mayor Jimmy Walker with his hat on flipped down.

Texans Fight for Their Flag

A fight started in the Texas delegation when an attempt to lift the Lone Star flag and place it in the Smith parade was made.

Some anti-Smith delegate grasped the flag and pulled it half way down the mast. A scuffle ensued in which a half dozen went to the floor with police tangling in their midst. A terrific din of sirens added to the pounding of bands made the midnight scene in the pine tabernacle one of wildest bedlam. Mrs. Smith, sitting in a box with her children, and sister-in-law, was embraced and showered with kisses by the supporters of her husband.

Senator James A. Reed of Missouri, a leading rival candidate, who had heard the result while at his hotel, started for the hall immediately. It was said he would declare to the convention his wholehearted support of the ticket.

Jimmy Walker was finally pulled into the parade around the hall. Jeweled women in evening dress were jostled among shirt sleeved delegates from the south and the sweating bands.

Practically every state standard was in the parade, indicating the determination of southern delegates to present a solid front. However, the standards of Iowa, Louisiana, Georgia were still in their places. There was a continuous demonstration in front of Mrs. Smith's box and she picked up New York's standard and waved it aloft.

Chairman Robinson invited John W. Davis, the candidate in 1924, and Senator James A. Reed of Missouri, one of the party's leading orators to address the convention following the tremendous Smith demonstration.

Although it was after midnight, it was apparent that the leaders of the convention desired to have a few remarks made which would solidify the party front at once.

Davis received a cheer when he stepped before the convention.

Senator Reed appeared on the platform at 12:20 a. m. and received a great ovation.

He was smiling and calm. Missouri led three cheers for its vanquished hero.

Whatever disappointment Reed suffered it did not show.

"If the democratic party is as lively in November as it is here tonight,

Wichita Falls Woman Assume Concert Contract Held by Bureau

Paul Whiteman and his orchestra will be presented in concert in Wichita Falls, Nov. 6, by Mrs. Lois Parker, according to an announcement made by Mrs. Parker Thursday.

The announcement was made immediately upon receipt of a telegram from the Metropolitan Musical bureau, 33 West Forty-second street, New York City, transferring the attraction to Mrs. Parker from William Ward and the Wichita booking bureau.

The contract was one of two which were the cause of protests being made before the city council some time ago against Mr. Ward booking shows as a private enterprise and at the same time managing the city autorium for the city. The other contract was a Sousa band contract and has been transferred to Mashat temple of Wichita Falls.

Mrs. Parker handled the publicity for the grand opera season here a few months ago and established contacts with friends in Childress, Altus, Abilene, and many other cities in this district so that she hopes to bring a good crowd to the concert, she said.

Number of Men Nominated Proves Party Is Big One, Will Rogers Says

By WILL ROGERS

HOUSTON, June 28.—If you think the Democratic party is not a large party, you just sit day after day and count the men in it that are nominated. There was candidate names presented down here that the newspaper men had to go back to old United States census reports to find any mention of them.

Most of the speeches were not nominations, they were letters of introductions. I knew Kansas would furnish the comedy. What Georgia was to the Republican convention, why Kansas was to the Democrats. Some fellow talked for two hours, nobody knew who he was. You couldn't tell who he was talking for or against, and when he finally finished and mentioned his man, we were more in the dark than before. If I had been him, out of respect for my candidate after I finished my speech, I wouldn't have mentioned who it was. No one would ever suspected and perhaps a good man's name would have been saved.

CORRUPTION HOTLY RAPPED

Strong Prohibition Law Plank Inserted

HOUSTON, Texas, June 28. (UP) Text of Democratic party platform follows:

Mr. Chairman: The committee on resolutions begs to submit the following report:

We, the Democratic party in convention assembled, pauses to pay our tribute to a man who, in his official actions, voiced the hopes and aspirations of all good men and women of every race and clime, the former president of the United States, Woodrow Wilson. His spirit moves on and his example and deeds will exalt those who come after us as they have inspired us.

We are grateful that we were privileged to work with him and again pay tribute to his high ideals and accomplishments.

We reaffirm our devotion to the principles of Democratic government formulated by Jefferson and enforced by a long and illustrious line of Democratic presidents.

We hold that our government must function not to centralize our wealth but to preserve equal opportunity so that all may share in our priceless resources; and not confine prosperity to a favored few. We, therefore, pledge the Democratic party to encourage business, small and great alike; to conserve human happiness and liberty; to break the shackles of monopoly and free business of the nation; to respond to popular will.

The function of a national platform is to declare general principles and party policies. We do not, therefore, assume to bind our party respecting local issues or details of legislation.

We, therefore, declare the policy of the Democratic party with regard to the following dominant national issues:

The Rights of the States

We demand that the constitutional rights and powers of the states shall be preserved in their full vigor and virtue. These constitute a bulwark against centralization and the destructive tendencies of the Republican party.

We oppose beaureaucracy and the multiplication of offices and office holders.

We demand a revival of the spirit of local self-government without which free institutions cannot be preserved.

Republican Corruption

Unblushingly the Republican party offers as its record agricultural prostrat; industry depressed; American shipping destroyed; workmen without employment; everywhere disgust and suspicion; and corruption unpunished and unafraid.

Never in the entire history of the country has there occurred in any given period of time or, indeed, in all time put together, such a spectacle of corruption as that which has characterized the administration of federal affairs under eight blighting years of Republican rule. Not the revels of reconstruction, nor all the compounded frauds succeeding that evil era, have approached in sheer audacity the shocking thieveries and startling depravities of officials high and low in the public service at Washington.

From cabinet ministers, with their treasonable crimes, to the cheap vendors of official patronage, from the purchasers of seats in the United States senate to the vulgar grafters upon silent trust funds, and upon the hospital resources of the disabled veterans of the world war; from the givers and receivers of stolen funds for Republican campaign purposes to the public men who sat by silently and never revealing a fact or uttering a word in condemnation, the whole official organization under Republican rule has become saturated with dishonesty, defiant of public opinion and actuated only by a partisan desire to perpetuate its control of the government.

As in the time of Samuel J. Tilden, from whom the presidency was stolen, the watchword of the day should be: "Turn the rascals out." This is the appeal of the Democratic party to the people of the country.

To this fixed purpose should be devoted every effort and applied every resource of the party; to this end every minor difference on non-essential issues should be put aside and a determined and a united fight be made to rescue the government from those who have betrayed their trust by disgracing it.

Economy and Reorganization

The Democratic party now stands for efficiency and economy in the administration of public affairs and we pledge:

(a) Business-like re-organization of all the departments of the government.

(b) Elimination of duplication, waste and overlapping.

(c) Substitution of modern business-like methods for existing obsolete and antiquated conditions.

No economy resulted from the Republican party rule. The savings they claim take no account of the elimination of expenditures following the end of the world war, the large sums realized from the sale of war materials, nor its failure to supply sufficient funds for the efficient conduct of many important governmental activities.

Finance and Taxation

(a) The federal reserve system created and inaugurated under Democratic auspices is the greatest legislative contribution to constructive business ever adopted. The administration of the system for the advantage of stock market speculators should cease. It must be administered for the benefit of farmers, wage earners, merchants, manufacturers and others engaged in constructive business.

(b) The taxing function of governments, free or despotic, has for centuries been regarded as the power above all others which requires vigilant scrutiny to the end that it be not exercised for purposes of favor or oppression.

Three times since the world war the Democrats in congress have favored a reduction of the tax burdens of the people in face of stubborn opposition from a Republican administration; and each time these reductions have largely been made for the relief of those least able to endure the exactions of a Republican fiscal policy.

The tax bill of the session recently ended was delayed by Republican tactics and juggled by partisan considerations so as to make impossible a full measure of relief to the greatest body of taxpayers. The moderate reductions afforded were grudgingly conceded and the whole proceeding in congress dictated as far as possible from the White House and the treasury, denoted the proverbial desire of the Republican party always to discriminate against the masses in favor of privileged classes.

The Democratic party avows its belief in the fiscal policy inaugurated by the last Democratic administration, which provided a sinking fund sufficient to extinguish the nation's indebtedness within a reasonable period of time, without harassing the present and next succeeding generations with tax burdens which, if not unendurable, do in fact, check initiative in enterprise and progress in business. Taxes levied beyond the actual requirements of the legally established sinking fund are but an added burden upon the American people, and the surplus thus accumulated in the federal treasury is an incentive to the increasingly extravagant expenditures which have characterized Republican administrations. We, therefore, favor a further reduction of the internal taxes of the people.

Tariff

The Democratic tariff legislation will be based on the following policies:

(a) The maintenance of legitimate business and a high standard of wages for American labor.

(b) Increasing the purchasing power of wages and income by the reduction of those monopolistic and and extortionate tariff rates bestowed in payment of political debts.

(c) Abolition of log-rolling and restoration of the Wilson conception of a fact-finding tariff commission, quasi-judicial and free from the executive domination which has destroyed the usefulness of the present commission.

(d) Duties that will permit effective competition, insure against monopoly and at the same time produce a fair revenue for the support of government. Actual difference between the cost of production at home and abroad, with adequate safeguarding of the wages of the American laborer, must be the extreme measure of every tariff rate.

(e) Safeguarding the public against monopoly created by special tariff favors.

(f) Equitable distribution of the benefits and burdens of the tariff among all.

Wage earner, farmer, stockman, producer and legitimate business in general have everything to gain from a Democratic tariff based on justice to all.

Civil Service

Grover Cleveland made the extension of the merit system a tenet of our political faith. We shall preserve and maintain the civil service.

Agriculture

Deception upon the farmer and stock raiser has been practiced by the Republican party through false and delusive promises for more than 50 years. Specially favored industries have been artificially aided by Republican legislation. Comparatively little has been done for agriculture and stock raising upon which national prosperity rests. Unsympathetic inaction with regard to this problem must cease. Virulent hostility of the Republican administration to the advocates of farm relief and denial of the right of farm organizations to lead in the development of farm policy must yield to Democratic sympathy and friendliness.

Four years ago the Republican party, forced to acknowledge the critical situation, pledged itself to take all steps necessary to bring back a balance in the condition between agriculture and other industries and labor. Today it faces the country not only with that pledge unredeemed, but broken by the acts of a Republican president who is primarily responsible for the failure to offer a constructive program to restore equality to agriculture.

While he has no constructive and adequate program to offer in its stead, he has twice vetoed farm relief legislation and has sought to justify his disapproval of agricultural legislation partly on grounds wholly inconsistent with his acts making industrial monopolies the beneficiaries of government favor; and in andorsing the agricultural policy of the present administration the Republican party in its recent convention served notice upon the farmer that the so-called protective system is not meant for him; that while it offers protection to the privileged few, it promises continued world prices to the producers of the chief cash crops of agriculture.

We condemn the policy of the Republican party which promises relief to agriculture only through a reduction of American farm production to the needs of the domestic markets. Such a program means the continued deflation of agriculture, the forcing of additional millions from the farms, and the perpetuation of agricultural distress for years to come, with continued bad effects on business and labor throughout the United States.

Problems Differ

The Democratic party recognizes that the problems of production differ as between agriculture and industry. Industrial production is largely under human control, while agricultural production, because of the influence of weather, pests and other causes, is largely beyond human control. The result is that a large crop frequently is produced on a small acreage and a small crop on a large acreage; and measured in money value it frequently happens that a large crop brings less than a small crop.

Producers of crops whose volume exceeds the needs of the domestic market must continue at a disadvantage until the government shall intervene as seriously and as effectively in behalf of the farmer as it has intervened in behalf of labor industry. There is a need of supplemental legislation for the control and orderly handling of the agricultural surpluses, in order that the price of the surplus may not determine the price of the whole crop.

Labor has benefited by collective bargaining and some industries by tariff. Agriculture must be as effectively aided.

Reaffairms Stand

The Democratic party in its 1924 platform pledged its support to such legislation. It now re-affirms that stand and pledges the united efforts of the legislative and executive branches of government, as far as may be controlled by the party, to the immediate enactment of such legislation, and to such other steps as are necessary to restore and maintain the purchasing power of farm products and the complete economic equality of agriculture.

The Democratic party has always stood against special privilege and for common equality under the law. It is a fundamental principle of the party that such tariffs as are levied must not discriminate against any industry, class, or section. Therefore, we pledge that in its tariff policy the Democratic party will insist upon equality of treatment between agriculture and other industries.

Farm relief must rest on the basis of an economic equality of agriculture with other industries. To give this equality, a remedy must be found which will include among other things:

(a) Credit aid by loans to co-operatives on at least as favorable a basis as the government aid to the merchant marine.

(b) Creation of a federal farm board to assist the farmers and stock-raisers in the marketing of their products as the federal reserve board has done for the banker and business man. When our archaic banking and currency system was revised after its record of disaster and panic under Republican administrations, it was a Democratic congress in the administration of a Democratic president that accomplished its stabilization through the federal reserve act, creating the federal reserve board with powers adequate to its purpose. Now in the hour of agriculture's need, the Democratic party pledges the establishment of a new agricultural policy fitted to present conditions, under the direction of a farm board vested with all the powers necessary to accomplish for agriculture what the federal reserve board has been able to accomplish for finance, in full recognition of the fact that the bankers of the country, through voluntary co-operation, were never able to stabilize the financial system of the country until government powers were invoked to help them.

(c) Reduction through proper government agencies of the spread between what the farmer and stock-raiser gets and the ultimate consumer pays with consequent benefits to both.

(d) Consideration of the condition of agriculture in the formulation of government financial and tax measures.

Gives Marketing Aid

We pledge the party to foster and develop co-operative marketing associations through appropriate governmental aid.

We recognize that experience has demonstrated that members of such associations alone can not successfully assume the full responsibility for a program that benefits all producers alike. We pledge the party to an earnest endeavor to solve this problem of the distribution of the cost of dealing with crop surpluses over the marketed units of the crop whose producers are benefited by such assistance. The solution of this problem would avoid government subsidy to which the Democratic party has always been opposed. The solution to this problem will be a prime and immediate concern of a Democratic administration.

We direct attention to the fact that it was a Democratic congress in the administration of a Democratic president which established the federal loan system and laid the foundation for the entire rural credits structure, which has aided agriculture to sustain in part the shock of the policies of two Republican administrations; and we promise thoroughgoing administration of our rural credits laws so that the farmers in all sections may secure the maximum benefits intended under these acts.

Mining

Mining is one of the basic industries of this country. We produce more coal, iron, and copper than any other country. The value of our mineral production is second only to agriculture. Mining has suffered like agriculture and from similar causes. It is the duty of our government to foster this industry and to remove the restrictions that destroy prosperity.

Foreign Policy

The Republican administration has no foreign policy; it has drifted without plan. This great nation cannot afford to play a minor role in world politics. It must have a sound and positive foreign policy, not a negative one. We declare for a constructive foreign policy based on these principles:

(a) Outlawry of war and an abhorrence of militarism, conquest and imperialism.

(b) Freedom from entangling political alliances with foreign nations.

(c) Protection of American lives and rights.

(d) Non-interference with the elections or other internal political affairs of any foreign nation. This principle of non-interference extends to Mexico, Nicaragua and all other Latin-American nations. Interference in the purely internal affairs of Latin-American countries must cease.

(e) Rescue of our country from its present impaired world standing and restoration to its former position as a leader in the movement for international arbitration, conciliation, conference, and limitation of armament by international agreement.

(f) International agreements for reduction of all armanents and the end of competitive war preparations, and, in the meantime, the maintenance of an army and navy adequate for national defense.

(g) Full, free, and open co-operation with all other nations for the promotion of peace and justice throughout the world.

(h) In our foreign relations this country should stand as a unit, and, to be successful, foreign policies must have the approval and the support of the American people.

(i) Abolition of the practice of the president of entering into and carrying out agreements with a foreign government, either de facto or de jure, for the protection of such government against revolution or foreign attack, or for the supervision of its internal affairs, when such agreements have not been advised and consented to by the senate as provided in the constitution of the United States; and we condemn the administration for carrying out such an unratified agreement that requires us to use our armed forces in Nicaragua.

(j) Recognition that the Monroe doctrine is a cardinal principle of this government promulgated for the protection of ourselves and our Latin-American neighbors. We shall seek their friendly cooperation in the maintenance of this doctrine.

(k) We condemn the Republican administration for lack of statesmanship and efficiency in negotiating the 1921 treaty for the limitation of armaments, which limited only the construction of battleships and ships of over 10,000 tons. Merely a gesture towards peace, it accomplished no limitation of armament, because it simply substituted one weapon of destruction for another. While it resulted in the destruction of our battleships and the blue prints of battleships of other nations, it placed no limitation upon construction of aircraft, submarines, cruisers, warships under 10,000 tons, poisonous gases or other weapons of destruction. No agreement was ratified with regard to submarines and poisonous gases. The attempt of the president to remedy the failure of 1921 by the Geneva conference of 1928 was characterized by the same lack of statesmanship and efficiency and resulted in entire failure.

In consequence, the race between nations in the building of unlimited weapons of destruction still goes on and the peoples of the world are still threatened with war and burdened with taxation for additional armament.

Water Power, Waterways and Flood Control

The federal government and state governments respectively now have absolute and exclusive sovereignty and control over enormous water powers, which constitute one of the greatest assets of the nation. This sovereign title and control must be preserved respectively in the state and federal governments, to the end that the people may be protected against exploitation of this great resource and that water powers may be expeditiously developed under such regulations as will insure to the people equable rates and distribution.

We favor and will promote deep waterways from the Great Lakes to the Gulf and to the Atlantic ocean.

We favor the fostering and building-up of water transportation through improvement of inland waterways and removal of discrimination against water transportation. Flood control and the lowering of flood levels are essential to the safety of life and property, and the productivity of our lands, the navigability of our streams, the reclaiming of our wet and overflowed lands. We favor expeditious construction of flood relief works on the Mississippi and Colorado rivers and such reclamation and irrigation projects upon the Colorado river as may be found feasible.

We favor appropriations for prompt co-ordinated surveys by the United States to determine the possibilities of general navigation improvements and water power development on navigable streams and their tributaries and to secure reliable information as to the most economical navication improvement, in combination with the most efficient and complete development of waterpower. We favor the strict enforcement of the federal waterpower act, a Democratic act, and insist that the public interest in water power sites, ignored by two Republican administrations, be protected.

Conservation and Reclamation

We shall conserve the natural resources of our country for the benefit of the people and to protect them against waste and monopolization. Our disappearing resources of timber call for a national policy of reforestation. The federal government should improve and develop its public lands so that they may go into private ownership and become subjected to taxation for the support of the states wherein they exist.

The Democratic administration will, actively, efficiently, and economically carry on reclamation projects and make equitable adjustments with the homestead entrymen for the mistakes the government has made, and extend all practical aid to refinance reclamation and drainage projects.

Transportation

Efficient and economical transportation is essential to the prosperity of every industry. Cost of transporation controls the income of every human being and materially affects the cost of living. We must, therefore, promote every form of transportation in a state of highest efficiency. Recognizing the prime importance of air transportation, we shall encourage its development by every possible means. Improved roads are of vital importance not only to commerce and industry, but also to agriculture and rural life. The federal government should construct and maintain at its own expense roads on its public lands.

Labor

(a) We favor the principle of collective bargaining and the democratic principle that organized labor should choose its own representatives without coercion or interference.

(b) Labor is not a commodity. Human rights must be safeguarded. Labor should be exempt from the operation of anti-trust laws.

(c) We recognize that legislative and other investigations have shown the existence of grave abuse in the issuance of injunctions in labor disputes. No injunctions should be granted in labor disputes except upon proof of threatened irreparable injury and after notice and hearing, and the injunction should be confined to those acts which do directly threaten irreparable injury. The expressed purpose of representatives of capital, labor and the bar to devise a plan for the elimination of the present evils with respect to injunctions must be supported and legislation designed to accomplish these ends formulated and passed.

(d) We favor legislation providing that products of convict labor shipped from one state to another shall be subject to laws of the latter state as though they had been produced therein.

Unemployment

Unemployment is present, widespread, and increasing. Unemployment is almost as destructive to the happiness, comfort, and well being of human beings as war. We expend vast sums of money to protect our people against the evils of war but no governmental program is anticipated to prevent the awful suffering and economic losses of unemployment. It threatens the well-being of millions of our people and endangers the prosperity of the nation. We favor adoption by the government, after a study of this subject, of a scientific plan whereby during periods of unemployment appropriations shall be made available for the construction of necessary public works and the lessening as far as consistent with public interests, of government construction work when labor is generally and sufficiently employed in private enterprise.

Veterans

Through Democratic votes and in spite of two Republican presidents' opposition, the congress has maintained America's traditional policy to generously care for the veterans of the World war. In extending them free hospitalization, a statutory award for tuberculosis, a program of progressive hospital construction and provisions for compensation for the disabled, the widows and orphans, America has surpassed the record of any nation in the history of the world. We pledge the veterans that none of the benefits heretofore accorded by the Wilson administration and the votes of Democrat members of congress shall be withdrawn; that there will be added to more in accordance with the veterans and their dependents' actual needs. Generous appropriations, honest management, the removal of vexatious administration delays and sympathetic assistance for the veterans of all wars is what the Democratic party demands and promises.

Women and Children

We declare for equality of women with men in all political and governmental matters. Children are the chief asset of the nation. Therefore their protection through infancy and childhood against exploitation is an important national duty.

The Democratic party has always opposed the exploitation of women in industry and has stood for such conditions of work as will preserve their health and safety.

We favor an equal wage for equal service; and likewise favor adequate appropriations for the women's and children's bureau.

Immigration

Laws which limit immigration must be preserved in full force and effect, but the provisions contained in these laws that separate husbands from wives and parents from infant children are inhuman and not essential to the purpose or the efficacy of such laws.

Radio

Government supervision must secure to all the people the advantage and likewise guarantee the right of free speech. Official control in contravention of this guarantee should not be tolerated. Governmental control must prevent monopolistic use of radio communication and guarantee equitable distribution and enjoyment thereof.

Coal

Bituminous coal is not only the common brother of manufacture, but is a vital agency in our interstate transportation. The demoralization of this industry, its labor conflicts and distress, its waste of a national resource and disordered public service demand constructive legislation that will allow capital and labor a fair share of prosperity with adequate protection to the consuming public.

Congressional Election Reform

We favor legislation to prevent defeated members of both houses of congress from participating in the sessions of congress by fixing the date for convening the congress after the biennial national election.

Law Enforcement

The Republican party, for eight years in complete control of the government at Washington, presents the remarkable spectacle of feeling compelled in its national platform to promise obedience to a provision of the federal constitution which it has flagrantly disregarded and to apologize to the country for its failure to enforce laws enacted by the congress of the United States. Speaking for the national Democracy, its convention pledges the party and its nominees to an honest effort to enforce the 18th amendment and all other provisions of the federal constitution and all laws enacted pursuant thereto.

Campaign Expenditures

We condemn the improper and existence of democratic institutions as a danger threatening the very xistenc of Democratic institutions. Republican expenditures in senatorial primaries and elections have been so exorbitant as to constitute a national scandal. We favor publicity in all matters affecting campaign contributions and expenditures. We shall, beginning not later than August 1, 1928, and every 30 days thereafter, the last publication and filing being not later than five days before the election, publish in the press and file with the appropriate committees of the house and senate a complete account of all contributions, the names of contributors, the amounts expended and the purposes for which the expenditures are made, and will at all times hold open for public inspection the books and records relating to such matters. In the event that any financial obligations are contracted and not paid, our national committee will similarly report and publish at least five days before the election all details respecting such obligations.

We agree to keep and maintain a permanent record of all campaign contributions and expenditures and to insist that contributions by the citizens of one state to the campaign committees of other states shall have immediate publicity.

Shipping

We reaffirm our support of an efficient, dependable American merchant marine for commerce and for the national defense.

The Democratic party has consistently and vigorously supported the shipping services maintained by the regional United States shipping board in the interest of all ports and all sections of our country and has successfully opposed the discontinuance of any of these lines. We favor the transfer of these lines gradually to the local private American companies when such companies can show their ability to take over and permanently maintain the lines. Lines that cannot now be transferred to private enterprise should continue to be operated as at present and should be kept in an efficient state by remodeling of such vessels and replacement of others.

We are unalterably opposed to a monopoly in American shipping and are opposed to the operation of any of our services in a manner that would retard the development of any ports or sections of our country.

We oppose such sacrifices and favoritism as exhibited in the past in the mater of alleged sales and insist that the primary purpose of legislation upon this subject be the establishment and maintenance of an adequate American merchant marine.

Mexican Saloons Closed On Eve of Election

MEXICO CITY, June 28. (U)—A general order forbidding civilians to carry pistols and closing saloons from 6 o'clock tonight until Monday morning was issued today in an effort to prevent disturbances during the elections Sunday.

Despite the fact that ex-President Obregon is the only candidate for President Calles' office, the government is taking elaborate precautions.

Mellon Takes Criticism Of Demos as Compliment

WASHINGTON, June 28. (UP)—Friends of Secretary of Treasury Mellon said today he took criticism of his administration of the department at the Democratic national convention as a compliment. He refused to be quoted on the subject, but predicted a Republican victory at the polls in November. He expects to sail for Europe for a brief vacation, July 12, he said.

Poincare Victory Slated In Chamber Vote Today

PARIS, June 28. (UP)—Premier Poincare, given a vote of confidence in the chamber today, told the United Press tonight that he will resign rather than surrender to demands of socialist radicals. Indications are for another Poincare victory Friday when the chamber will vote on the premier's recent declaration of policy.

Texas Mother Praises Nurse

There isn't a mother living who won't agree that no half-sick child should be the subject for an experiment with medicines of uncertain merit. When your child is bilious headachy, half-sick, feverish, restless, with coated tongue, bad breath, no appetite or energy, you know that nine times out of ten it's a sign his little stomach and bowels need purging. And when you know that for over fifty years leading physicians have endorsed one preparation for this condition, there doesn't seem to be any reason for "trying" things.

Rich, fruity California Fig Syrup cleans the little stomach and bowels gently, harmlessly and in a hurry. It regulates the bowels, gives tone and strength to them and to the stomach; and helps to give your child new strength, energy and vitality. Thousands of Texas mothers praise it. Mrs. Valerie Adams, 1033 Castro St., San Antonio, says: "I'll never forget the nurse who got me to give my baby boy, John, California Fig Syrup. Nothing else seemed to help his bowels, which were left weak after an attack of measles. That was when he was just eighteen months old. He suffered, for many months before I gave him Fig Syrup, but it stopped his trouble quick. I have used it with him for colds and little upset spells ever since. I consider him a Fig Syrup baby."

Insist on the genuine article. See that the carton bears the word "California." Over four million bottles used a year.

REED PAINTED AS BATTLER

Law Partner Nominates Missouri Senator

HOUSTON, June 28.—James A. Reed was represented as the best fitted man to oppose Herbert Hoover in the presidential campaign by Charles T. Howell of Kansas City, Mo., former law partner of the Missouri senator.

Howell's eulogy of Reed follows:

"Missouri presents as her candidate for the presidency, Senator James A. Reed—the iron man of the nation's democracy.

"In offering our distinguished statesman, we are not appealing to you because of state pride—that would be selfish. We do not address ourselves to any section or any class—that would not be democratic. We talk to you from a national standpoint because he stands for those fundamental principles upon which all Democrats can agree and which they have loved and fought for and are willing to fight for again and again; because he is at once the creator of the great burning issue of this day and the pitiless sword of its executions; because he is a great American and if president would be an American president.

Serious Business

"We are here for serious business. Under our plan of government, political conventions to a large extent shape the destinies of this republic. We meet at a time of golden opportunity with success waiting impatiently to be beckoned if by what we do we rise to the high level of the country's need and the people's hope.

"There are great issues which have the support of all Democrats, there are other matters concerning which we are not in exact accord but about which we do not seriously agree. We should stand together upon the issues we all agree upon and leave other matters for discussion and decision until the battle is over and the victory has been won.

"Let us consider what some of those issues are and where Missouri's candidate has stood with respect to them. For almost 15 years he has played a conspicuous part in the deliberations of the United States senate. During that time, he has never dodged an issue and has never even by his silence left doubt as to his position.

Rights of Property

"We stand for the rights of property as well as for the rights of man. No statesman, living or dead, has held more firmly to this doctrine than has Senator Reed.

"We are in favor of free, local self-government and in the preservation of the sovereignty of the states. We are in favor of extending the dominion of the federal government to the limits of the constitution and no farther—that is, we support the constitution. Reed is in harmony with Democratic doctrine in this respect.

"We agree that the maddening rush toward the concentration and centralization of power at Washington must be stopped. Reed is and always has been right on that question.

"We are all against trusts, combines, monopolies and conspiracies which seek to destroy honest business and to create an economic empire for the great and powerful. This has been Reed's fight all his life.

"We are also against the interference of the government in the business affairs of honest men through bureaus, boards, commissions and other titled dignitaries who delight to interfere with and prey upon the business that other men have created. That is an unwarranted assumption of governmental authority that should not be tolerated in any civilized country. Reed believes the government should let honest private business work out its own problems and achieve its own success.

Fair Taxation

"We favor a fair and equitable system of federal taxation. That is Reed's position and his record so shows.

"We are not only for an honest administration in government but we demand of those in power that public plunderers be scourged from office bearing no letters of recommendation but wearing instead upon their brows the scarlet marks of their everlasting infamy. As to this, it would seem that in the affairs of men and nations, as in the affairs of nature, providence has adjusted its compensation. And so it was that the same era which produced the shameless debauchaeries which have become the open scandals and disgrace of this country also brought forth the grim avenger.

"We are not only in favor of honest elections and the prosecution and punishment of every criminal that betrays his country by polluting the ballot, but we are in favor of keeping out of office and driving out of office every man directly or indirectly benefiting from election frauds.

Cites Crusade

"If in his long career in the senate Reed had performed no other service to his country, the fight he was made for honest government and free and pure elections would stand as his everlasting monument.

He drove Newberry from office and from that day to this senatorships have not been for sale in Michigan.

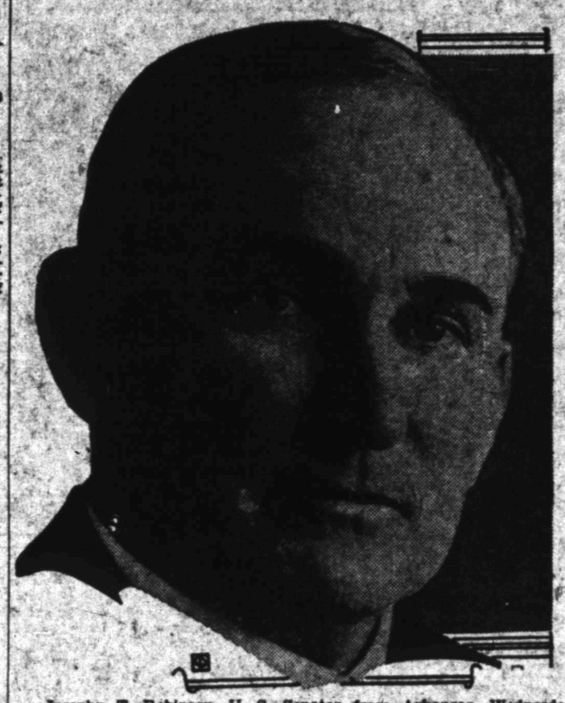

"It was Reed who also barred the doors of the senate to Vare, whose latest conspicuous achievement was to swing the Pennsylvania delegation to Hoover, thereby inspiring his nomination. If Hoover should win the coming election, would he fail to remember the man who helped him in his hour of need?

"In the coming campaign the Democratic party faces a tremendous task. Make no mistake about that. Democracy's battle is always a fierce one for the reason that its cause is unselfish. The forces of greed and privilege can always be rallied because of the pulling power of selfish motive. With oriental cunning they settle their differences within their own circles or temporarily put them aside. In the name of expediency they can abandon principle and when they face the enemy, they face it with a united front. Witness the recent Republican convention at Kansas City. Eminent, distinguished and disappointed statesmen swore vengeance immediately before the nomination of Hoover and swore allegiance immediately afterwards. It will be a united Republicanism rallied under the banner of imaginary prosperity, financed and provisioned by privilege, cheered on by every reactionary influence and led by the supersalesman of this age which Democracy must face in November.

Reed Versus Hoover

"Against the advancing column, a human thunderbolt must be hurled and James A. Reed is that thunderbolt. He is made to order as a candidate for the presidency against Herbert Hoover. With their records, their ideals and their accomplishments put down side by side, and their real abilities and their true worth judged in the open court of public opinion—the greatest court on this earth—what chance would Hoover have against the greatest orator of the English speaking race?"

Pleads for Tolerance

Josephn T. Robinson, U. S. Senator from Arkansas, Wednesday morning was named permanent chairman of the Democratic national convention. In his speech of acceptance Senator Robinson prompted one of the greatest demonstrations in a plea for religious tolerance. Observers see the Arkansan as the outstanding candidate for the vice-presidential nomination.

AL TAKES ON NEW OUTLOOK

Certain Victory Increases Responsibilities

ALBANY, N. Y., June 28. (UP) The flush of victory has made a new man of Governor Alfred E. Smith, marked chiefly by a shy reticence hardly in keeping with the "happy warrior."

Governor Smith is jovial as ever, but as the hour approaches when the former New York newsboy is to be elevated to the highest honor his party can bestow, he takes on a new dignity and diffidence.

Close friends ascribe the change to a realization by the governor of the immense responsibilities that are about to become his as the standard bearer of his party.

Governor Smith has waited a long time for the prize. This time he knows he will not lose and that very realization seems to have changed his outlook.

Victory is nothing new to the man who has set a precedent by winning the New York governorship four times in 10 years. But victory which carried him into what may be the last great fight of his political career leaves the governor with a quiet determination contrasting sharply with the exuberant confidence that has marked his entry into former battles.

Works Harder

He goes about his duties as chief executive of New York state working harder than ever before. He has buried himself in work at the executive offices during the past few days, and only in the evening has he taken notice of the convention, when he would listen to the proceedings by radio.

He will talk about anything and everything but the convention.

His one relaxation seems to be the company of his elder daughter, Mrs. John A. Warner. She has been with him almost constantly since the opening of the Houston convention.

Smith is affected by the situation as he never before has been affected. This was shown last night when he listened to the speech of Franklin D. Roosevelt, former assistant secretary of the navy who placed him in nomination.

The governor sat within three feet of the radio, with Mrs. Warner by his side. His facial expression was unchanged during the entire talk, but a cigar he lighted as the speaker began was chewed rather than smoked. At times he puffed furiously and at other times he chewed with fast working jaws.

Shows Nervousness

As Roosevelt cited his record and praised his ability, Smith's nervousness was demonstrated by his thirst. In the half hour that Roosevelt spoke, Smith drank large glasses of ice water.

When the nomination speech was ended, the governor left his seat and walked into the reception hall of the mansion. He did not resume his seat near the radio until the demonstration in his behalf had neared its close.

Mrs. Warner was affected visibly by Roosevelt's talk. At times it appeared that she was about to cry. Several times she reached over and laid her hand on her father's knee.

With the governor at the mansion were 20 newspapermen, Mr. and Mrs. Warner, Representative and Mrs. Parker Corning, Dr. and Mrs. Henry Moskowitz, Charles M. Winchester and William A. Humphrey, the latter two close friends of years' standing.

Today Smith again planned on spending most of the day in his office at the capitol.

Airport Held as Utility In Court Decision

LINCOLN, Neb., June 28. (UP)—An airport is a public utility, in the opinion of the Nebraska supreme court which today held that $100,000 in airport bonds, issued by the city of Lincoln, are valid. The city voted the bonds but the state auditor refused to register them, declaring the city could not issue bonds for such purposes.

Dance Marathon Now 100 Per Cent American

NEW YORK, June 28. (UP)—The international dance marathon isn't international any more. It's 100 per cent American.

Now the marathon has settled down into a contest for the glory of Passaic, N. J., Johnstown, Pa., Pittsburgh, Brooklyn, New York and Pompton Lakes, N. J.

HAPPY DEMOS NOW UNITED

Klan Furore Dies Amid Brown Derby Cheers

HOUSTON, June 28. (INS)—The Ku Klux Klan is buried politically today beneath the multi-colored carnival confetti of the happy-go-luckiest Democratic convention in history.

The rank and file of the party came to Houston disposed to believe the best of everyone, and harmony was in the air of sunny Texas. They brought more bands than ever have come upon a convention city in modern times and began forthwith to play "He's a Jolly Good Fellow," under the hotel windows as early as 4 a. m. and as late as 5 the next morning. They filled the air with "Ramona," "Highways Are Happy Ways" and "My Blue Heaven" until it was just natural to laugh right out loud at the slightest provocation.

When they went into convention, the spotless white hood which was almost slipped over the head of the Democratic donkey at Madison Square garden four years ago was handed back as a mortuary shroud and the spirit of the hooded night rider shimmered out of Sam Houston hall holding its ghostly sides for laughter over the mournful funeral dirge of—

"East Side, West Side, All Around the Town."

The Brown Derby

Atop the chimerical casket, which the party sees contains not a man nor even a body of abandoned ideals, but merely the white shroud or clownical mask of America's post-war social neurosis, there sits today a little brown derby. It is about the funniest thing you ever saw and you simply can't help laughing. Instead of arousing in the hearts of the erstwhile foes-to-the-death bitter memories of the stand-off feud, this derby brings only a cheery smile.

A brown derby is, after all, an irresistible thing, and as the merry mourners read in their party history of the last eight years, "The Decline and Fall of the Invisible Empire," the heroic soldiers of Madison Square, who lashed each other so unmercifully with such high loyalty "to the right, as God gives us to see the right," they wipe the perspiration of eight feverish years from weary brows and vow, in the spirit of the funny little hat, "and that's that."

Not Invisible

That is the spirit of the Democratic party today. It is an intangible thing, but it's anything but invisible.

You walked down the long hotel corridors in the gray dawn at New York four years ago and found a guard at every important door. Behind each door was a conference in snarls.

The hotel corridors of Houston resound to hearty guffaws of good fellowship at most all hours. The nasal snarl had developed to a hail "Howdy, Bill!"

At New York more than a thousand police were in the hall when the convention undertook to "debate" the Ku Klux Klan plank.

Houston did the first half of her nominating speeches with a bare 150 police.

At New York William Jennings Bryan fell to his knees in the deadlocked platform committee at 2 o'clock one morning and almost wept as he prayed for the coming of the spirit of Christian fellowship upon the deliberations; and once when he arose on the convention floor to explain Florida's vote on something or other, he ended by invoking the "Prince of Peace" against the galleries. Late last night the Democratic convention sat in respectful tribute during a eulogy of Bryan by his cabinet colleague, Josephus Daniels, and then put away its business for a moment while the bands played "Rock of Ages" to the memory of a venerable and honored leader.

Since Woodrow Wilson surrendered the torch of his militant idealism and leadership at San Francisco in 1920, the Democratic party has been a house twice divided against itself. The line of cleavage was deeply cut from California to Maine and from Florida to Washington. When Democrat met Democrat it was a spiritual reaching for the hip pocket. Heads were hurt in all directions and every man replied in kind.

Today the Democratic party takes on a semblance of unity and cohesion. It was leadership in its councils and coordination in its conduct. For better or for worse, it has a program which it is about in a position to carry out. It has to a remarkable degree purged itself of bitterness and distrust—and it is able to laugh and be young, militant and gay.

Hoover Grants Rector Authority in Squabble

LOUVAIN, Belgium, June 28. (AP) Herbert Hoover, who is still director of Belgium relief, sent a cable message to Monsignor Ladeuze, rector of Louvian library, granting full jurisdiction to the university over what inscription is to be placed on the memorial.

The rector has been engaged in a heated controversy with Whitney Warren, American architect, who has insisted on the inscription used in the original plans, including the words "Destroyed by German Fury."

"Why, Oh, Why, These Favorite Sons?" Wails Damon Runyon

By DAMON RUNYUN
Universal Service

CONVENTION HALL, HOSTON, Texas, June 28.—Don't get impatient.

They have signed and sealed Al but they haven't delivered him as yet.

Everything takes time.

They ought to get him down here in Houston, however, before the next edition meets your eye, or at least the edition after that.

You see, a lot of "favorite sons" got to cluttering up the premises today, and that made the labor of the Democracy most laborious indeed.

It seems that a lot of the delegates came here with speeches that had been fermenting in their systems for four years, and it was deemed a matter of politeness to let everybody unload. They were mostly pretty terrible. Only one man got the slightest attention and that was the old blind warhorse of the Oklahoma Democracy, Thomas P. Gore.

No Worse Oratory

He seconded the nomination of Jim Reed, of Missouri. He is the only speaker who wasn't chock-a-block with moss grown platitudes. It is doubtful if there ever was more or worse orating in a national convention with the possible exception of the Republican gathering at Kansas City.

Gore put a little vim, vinegar and vitrol into his remarks. He had the delegates in an uproar as he wisecracked about the Republicans. He didn't speak of "the galling yoke of oppression," and things like that, which figured in some of the other speeches.

Next to the Smith demonstration last night, the greatest uproar of the convention was created when Jim Reed was nominated today, although those demonstrations mean mighty little.

Perfunctory Response

But in the main the responses to these "favorite sons" nominations were so perfunctory as to increase the mystery of the "favorite son." Why are they? Why? Why? Why?

Al Smith's mob sat out the various demonstrations very quietly. They are under strict orders not to create too much fuss around here. They knew the thing was "in the bag," as we say on the sidewalks of New York, and they just waited. That's all. Just waited.

It won't be long now.

Senator Robinson boomed into the mumbling at 10:40 and got sufficient quiet for the Rev. J. Frank Smith, pastor of the First Methodist church of Houston, to say a prayer. The Rev. J. Frank Smith is a smart man. He made his prayer very short.

Orioles Recognized

The roll call of the states for nominations, seconding speeches and what-not was resumed, and when Maryland was called, Senator Robinson recognized Governor Ritchie of the land of the Orioles. The delegates applauded furiously and one of the bands hit up "My Maryland," as the finest looking figure the convention has yet produced, stepped to the rostrum. He was seconding the nomination of Al Smith.

Governor Ritchie looks better than he talks.

The Smithites stood and veiled awhile as Governor Ritchie concluded and a band played the dirge "The Sidewalks of New York."

Senator Robinson then presented Andrew J. Peters, formerly mayor of Boston. Mr. Peters is a severe looking gentleman, somewhat bald, and with features suggestive of the rockbound shores of old New England.

Delegates Tire

The delegates' attention to Mr. Peters was anything but "extraordinary." They were getting a little tired of hearing all that whanzdoodle about Al Smith repeated over and over.

Andrew Nelson, of Minnesota, had a speech for Smith. Mr. Nelson called the attention of his hearers to the fact that in 1916 Wilson lost Minnesota by only 360 votes, and Mr. Nelson said, confidentially that if California hadn't done her Democratic duty, Minnesota would have done here—on a recount.

Not one extemporaneous speaker had showed up so far. They all had their speeches written out, the fruit, no doubt of much thought and burning of midnight oil.

Senator Robinson got an amazing amount of order by announcing that the official photo of the convention was about to be taken. All hands stood stock still, their faces frozen for the flash and all eyes turned to the corner of the meeting house where the cameras were posted.

Reed Cheered

Missouri was called, and a patter of cheers swept the hall as Charles M. Howell, law partner of Jim Reed in Kansas City, reached the rostrum to nominate the fighting son of old Mizoo. The Missouri delegation planted almost in the center of the hall, stood up yelling and waving flags, fists, pictures of Reed, and hats. The bands helped them out. The delegates from the surrounding states stood up watching the excited Missourians. It was the most spontaneous outburst of the convention but it didn't last long.

Howell is only a fair talker, with no facility for putting the rousements on the rabble.

As a matter of fact, even a good speaker is killed off by the amplifiers. They have put political speaking out of business. They make all voices sound very tinny.

Before Howell was half way through his speech the convention was fairly humming with conversation. Only the Missourians kept attentive ears. Howell's estimate of his law partner remains a secret to 85 per cent of the audience. It is only fair to report that Mr. Howell thinks well of Jim.

Florida for Al

Mr. Howell finally got his man placed in nomination, just before high noon, and the Missourians immediately hopped out in the main aisle with the state standard borne aloft by a perspiring delegate and began a tramp around the hall. Florida joined in. The Floridans seem to be natural born marchers. Some of them have been in every parade yet launched.

The Missourians carried big pictures of Reed borne aloft on poles. They had a huge sign that read, "Win With Reed."

Another huge sign, a canvas streamer stretched between two poles, was hoisted over the Missouri section, flaming the words "Turn the Rascals Out—Reed." Some of the New Yorkers looked very indignant at this uncalled for crack.

Senator Robinson let the demonstration continue about 15 minutes, then when it showed signs of simmering down he hammered heavily for order, and the roll call went forward. Nebraska's name produced Eugene D. O'Sullivan, big, bald, and bland, and with no nonsense about him. He wore no oratorical cuffs or moustache to deceive those delegates.

Steam Roller Hits

"I wish to present the name of the Hon. Gilbert M. Hitchcock," he said right off the reel. Then he settled down to a matter of fact recital of what Mr. Hitchcock is all about. The delegates dismissed Mr. O'Sullivan from their minds forthwith and returned to their gabble and gossip.

Nebraska let fly a light spatter of applause as Mr. O'Sullivan made a dead game finish.

Old John McCooey, the boss of Brooklyn, bald, corpulent, and as red as a boiled lobster, moved for an adjournment until 3 o'clock. Over a wild chorus of noes and demands for a roll call, Senator Robinson declared the motion carried and the folks departed oozing indignation. They didn't realize the steam roller of the Democracy had hit —n.

There was plenty of band music and some singing during the intermission between sessions today.

Senator Robinson tried to get some order at 3:10 o'clock, but no one would listen to even him.

Short Prayer Said

The Rev. J. M. R. Score said a short prayer.

The roll call went on. North Carolina yielded to Tennessee, and Harry H. Hannah, of that state, a chunky man with a stubby moustache and specs, stated in a round, rolling voice the qualifications of Judge Cordell Hull for the presidency of the United States.

I'll say one thing for Mr. Hannah. He was the first speaker to talk without manscript, and he was as good an orator as had yet appeared. Still he could have saved a lot of breath.

Californians Squirm

Mr. Hannah put the blast on Mr. Herbert Hoover to some extent, at which the Californians present squirmed uneasily. Of course the Californians here are not for Mr. Hoover, but neither are they for anybody who puts the blast on anything belonging to California.

"Go on Harve," bawled a Tennesseean as Mr. Hannah waxed flowery. It was evident that "Harve" is some oratorical pumpkina down home.

As he mentioned the name of his man somewhat hoarsely, the loyal sons and daughters of Tennessee stepped out into the aisle and began a march. North Carolina's banner trailed Tennessee, and there wasn't even a cross word among the battling tar heelers about it. The ever ready Floridans fell in, of course. Alabama joined. A few Georgians borrowed their state banner and dropped in line. Oklahoma and South Carolina, added something to the hi-hi. One of the bands played "Dixie."

Short Demonstration

The demonstration fizzled out after a few minutes, and roll was resumed. When North Dakota was called, J. L. Page of that state stepped up with a speech designed to second the nomination of Al Smith. Senator Robinson explained that Mr. Page was too hoarse to talk, so Pat Haltigan read the speech.

The Hon. Joseph C. Breitenstein of Ohio, a man who looks as well rounded as his name, named Atlee C. Pomerene, ex-senator from the Buckeye state, who has as much chance as some of the other entries, at that. He was only about 1,000 to 1. Mr. Ayres of Kansas, was 16,000 to 1.

Gore Real Orator

Now came the blind former senator from Oklahoma, Thomas P. Gore, gray-haired, commanding. He gave the convention some real oratory as he seconded the nomination of Jim Reed. In a moment the delegates were alternately cheering and laughing at his remarks, especially when he got to working on Herbert Hoover.

"There seems to be some doubt as to whether Mr. Hoover can get his final papers," commented the blind man, caustically. A master hand at good old time political satire, this Oklahoman who won his way to high renown against the most terrific physical handicap that can befall a man.

He literally set 'em afire.

Feels His Notes

He produced a little slip of paper from his pocket and kept running his fingers over it. This slip carried notes, and he was reading his notes by the strange sense of feeling of the blind.

He referred to the language of the Republican platform, which says "we favor honesty in public office," adding, dryly, "but why bring that up?"

"Will Hays says 'give me liberty bonds, or give me death,'" said the blind statesman, satirically. He said the Republicans pledged themselves to integrity in their platform, "but how the hell do we know they ain't a-gonna steal no more," he inquired plaintively, in the drawl of the southwest.

G. M. Fuller of Oklahoma and Bert Haney of Oregon, made seconding speeches, the former speaking for George and the latter for Smith.

Ball Startles

Thomas H. Ball, elderly, and ministerial, and white moustached, startled the New Yorkers out of their late afternoon doze when he said his state of Texas is a dry state and is for a dry candidate. He was nominating none other than Jesse Jones, of this man's town.

"We believe in religious tolerance in Texas," he thundered, "but we don't believe in intolerance to the constitution," he added.

Somehow Mr. Ball didn't seem to excite much enthusiasm among the delegates by his remarks on prohibition. They'd really rather not talk about that just now. The old gentleman seemed almost overcome by his own emotions as he spoke.

Inviting a convention to a town and then asking it to nominate a local citizen for the presidency smacks somewhat of bidding a guest to your home and trying to collect the price of his dinner off him. None the less the convention returned Houston's hospitality in some measure by giving Mr. Jesse Jones a terrific hand.

As Mr. Ball mentioned the name that is magic in these parts, the Texans poured out into the aisles, yip-yip-yipping, the Old Gray Mare band of Brownwood, Texas, at their head, blasting away like good fellows.

The old gray mare herself led the march, a docile creature that looked somewhat startled by the din, with a beautiful girl in cowpuncher attire astride it. The other hands joined in the march. Houston is paying for this music, and if it can't be used for Mr. Jesse Jones, what good is it.

Alabama, Georgia, the inevitable Florida and a number of other states paid Texas the compliment of sending forth their banners to join the procession.

Mrs. Lee Rountree of Bryan, Texas, a lady with a very pleasant voice, seconded the nomination of Mr. Jesse Jones. She was all in white.

Senator Robinson said Gov. Dan Moody, of Texas, wished to second a nomination and wanted to know if there was any objection. There being none, Moody stepped forward.

Moody Like Lindy

Moody somehow suggests Lindbergh. He wore a Palm Beach suit with a high white linen colar from which dangled a dark blue four-in-hand.

The crowd thought Moody would put the blast on somebody, or something, and listened intently, but he merely seconded the nomination of Jones, and trailed off into the usual flapdoodle about the merits of his candidate, then retired.

R. O. Evans, of North Carolina, seconded the nomination of Mr. Hull.

"Sixteenths" Al

Senator William H. King, of Utah, won a round of applause when he said he could speak but a few minutes. He was seconding Smith. As a matter of fact Smith had by this time been only only seconded but sixteenthed.

Park H. Pollard, of Virginia, a cousin of Coolidge and with a Coolidge cast of countenance, at that, seconded Smith in a somewhat excited address.

Well, a roll call is a roll call, and Washington was called, which brought up Stephen H. Chadwick, of Seattle, Wash., who was for Smith, but he withheld the info until the boys were hollering, "name him."

Mrs. Frank Mann, of West Virginia, a stout lady in an orchid gown, and a wide purple hat, was for George of Georgia and was short and eloquent in telling about it.

Gruff Virginian

Samuel T. Spears, a gruff looking man, with a gruff voice, and also from West Virginia nominated Huston Thompson, of Colorado, but only after impassionate demands to "name him" from the delegates.

Next we had a delegate from Hawaii, a dark skinned Kanakee, who got silence and attention mainly because he slipped a lei, or double rope of yellow around his neck as he advanced to the platform. The delegates thought he had brought his ukulele. He turned out to be one of the best talkers of the day, and while I admit that this didn't take a lot of oratorical ability, he was pretty good.

His name is W. H. Heen and he used gesticulation in seconding Smith.

Rev. Atticus Webb, of the Anti-Saloon league, of Texas, handed up a statement that was read by Senator Robinson. It announced opposition to the nomination of any candidate for president or vice-president who had declared against the 18th amendment.

Norman Davis of New York moved an adjournment to 8:30 tonight, and this carried while the delegates were running for the lunch counter.

His Followers in Control

Governor Alfred E. Smith, above, is in control of the Houston convention although he is not present.

RITES HELD FOR COOMBS

Storm Victims Improve Of Injuries

W. N. Coombs, 16, son of Mr. and Mrs. L. Coombs of 201 Plum street, victim of the cyclone which struck the farmhouse of T. W. Williams, six miles out of Wichita Falls on the Henrietta highway, where he had been working, was buried in the Rosemont burial park Thursday afternoon. Funeral services were held at the Hines mortuary chapel at 4 o'clock with the Rev. L. S. White, pastor of the First Church of Christ, officiating.

Mrs. Williams, badly bruised by timbers and hailstones during the storm, was reported to be improving at the Hargrave-Walker hospital Thursday night. Wilma Champmond, 11, who was spending the night at the Williams home, also is recovering from bruises in the hospital.

Describes Storm

D. M. Splawn, who was injured about the abdomen when blown from his home by the wind into a barbed wire fence some distance from the house and who was severely beaten by the hail, was recovering from his injuries at the home of his mother, Mrs. Lou Splawn, 1513 Seventh street.

Mr. Splawn, who had been trying to hold the door of the building, was picked up by the wind just as the house crumpled on his wife and 18-month-old daughter, Dana Lou. Mrs. Splawn and the little girl suffered only minor bruises.

Mr. Splawn told the story of the cyclone to a Record News reporter.

"I was awakened by the lightning," Mr. Splawn said. "The windows were clattering a little. Then, without a warning the cyclone struck. The lightning was continuous now. I could see everything in the room where we were sleeping.

"I told my wife to wrap the baby and herself in blankets and I tried to hold the door. The door blew open and as the house began falling in I was picked off my feet, hurled over the fence around the house and against a fence about 100 feet from the house.

"Then the cyclone picked me up again and hurled me against a barbed wire fence, which cut me badly.

"I looked back at the house. It was in ruins. Then it began to hail. I don't know how large the hailstones were, but they pelted me all over the head and body.

"As soon as I could I pulled myself to the house and could hear my wife and baby breathing under the wreckage, but when I called they did not answer.

"I tugged at the timbers which covered them, but was too weak to move the wreckage. Then the hail kept bothering me.

Neighbor Aids Rescue

"I suppose the hail lasted about 20 minutes all together. The wind was strong just a little while, a minute or two, I guess. It did not even blow the walls entirely down, but what the wind started the hail finished. The house was flat.

"After trying to tug my wife and baby out of the debris I crawled about three-quarters of a mile to the home of a neighbor, who went to the house and rescued my wife and the baby. Neither of them were hurt."

Mr. Splawn suffered severe bruises about the body and head where he was pelted with the hailstones and was severely cut about the abdomen when hurled against the barbed wire fence.

N. Y. SILENT ON SECOND CHOICE

Others Await Word of Al's Delegation

HOUSTON, June 28. (AP)—With a dozen or more delegations cocking their ears for a signal from New York which would send ther trailing after a vice presidential band wagon, the boosters of more than a score of aspirants for second place on the Democratic ticket spent today in efforts to maneuver their men itno a favorable position for the starting gun.

The colors of Senator Robinson of Arkansas still cling close to the rail, with those of Hull of Tennessee, Barkley of Kentucky, Mrs. Nellie Taylos Ross of Wyoming, Evans Woollen of Nebraska and several others bobbing about in the mad scramble on the short side of the track. A dozen or more others flaunted on the outskirts.

Wait for New York

Admittedly, however, several delegations were reserving tehir choices of a vice presidential nominee until after a man has been to head the ticket, and so confident were they that his identity would be Smith that their ballot for second place man had been checked "like New York." Meanwhile, they awaited word of the choice of New York.

But that thoroughly scrutinized delegation gave no sign of its intentions. Leaders said that they had received no word from Albany which would indicate that Gov. Smith had any preference. The hall of Tammany still was pervaded by the quiet that has been unbroken since it opened its headquarters in Houston.

Moody Mentioned

There was talk again of Newton D. Baker, secretary of war, in the Wilson cabinet, but the impression that grew was that Robinson probably would draw the support of New York. Should that delegation split, or should it fail to express any preference, the race for the vice presidential nomination would be thrown into a mad melee from which any one of the dozen or more candidates still in the runing might emerge as winner.

Some of the ultra-dry southern delegations were thinking of Hull and there was a move toward Governor Moody of Texas, but there was little by which the extent of these moves could be measured.

Then one day a friend told him about Coolene. He tried it—and lucky for him! Here's the story in his own words:

"Being a traffic policeman may have its advantages—but it certainly is hard on the feet! There was a time not so long ago when I thought corns and sore feet were part of the job. Not any more! Ever since one of the men on the force put me wise to Coolene I haven't known what it means to have burning, aching feet. You can use my 'say-so' for whatever it's worth—Coolene ended my foot troubles almost at once."

Coolene soothes and heals sore, aching feet—instantly! It contains rare, penetrating oils—and two world-old, soothing unguents—frankincense and myrrh, used by the ancients for centuries.

Doctor Found Women and Children Sick More Often than Men

H. B. Caldwell M.D. AT AGE 83

As a family doctor at Monticello, Illinois, the whole human body, not any small part of it, was Dr. Caldwell's practice. More than half his "calls" were on women, children and babies. They are the ones most often sick. But their illnesses were usually of a minor nature—colds, fevers, headaches, biliousness—and all of them required first a thorough evacuation. They were constipated.

In the course of Dr. Caldwell's 47 years' practice (he was graduated from Rush Medical college back in 1875), he found a good deal of success in such cases with a prescription of his own containing simple laxative herbs with pepsin. In 1892 he decided to use this formula in the manufacture of a medicine to be known as Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, and in that year his preparation was first placed on the market.

The preparation immediately had as great a success in the drug stores as it previously had in Dr. Caldwell's private practice. Now, the third generation is using it. Mothers are giving it to their children who were given it by their mothers. Every second of the working day someone somewhere is going into a drug store to buy it. Millions of bottles of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin are being used a year.

Its great success is based on merit, on repeated buying, on one satisfied user telling another. There are thousands of homes in this country that are never without a bottle of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, and we have gotten many hundreds of letters from grateful people telling us that it helped them when everything else failed.

While women, children and elderly people are especially benefited by Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin it is promptly effective on the most robust constitution and in the most obstinate cases. It is mild and gentle in its action and does not cause griping and strain. Containing neither opiates nor narcotics, it is safe for the tiniest baby. Children like it and take it willingly.

Every drug store sells Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. Keep a bottle in your home—where many live someone is sure to need it quickly.

We would be glad to have you prove at our expense how much Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin can mean to you and yours. Just write "Syrup Pepsin," Monticello, Illinois, and we will send you prepaid a FREE SAMPLE BOTTLE.—Adv.

DOCTOR FEARS FOR DELEGATES

Senator-Physician Regrets Convention Extremes

By HON. ROYAL S. COPELAND
United States Senator From New York

HOUSTON, June 28. (US)—Up to the adjournment of the morning session today there had been little of general interest. But, of course, there were occasional movements this morning which appealed strongly to isolated groups of delegates. For instance, when Charles M. Howell of Kansas City, was introduced to the convention there was an immediate demonstration from every part of the hall. Cowbells, bands and human voices joined in a bedlam of noise.

But his friendly rival, the gifted son of New York, will be the nominee. In that event, there will be no more loyal supporter and no more effective campaigner for Smith's success than this same eloquent, handsome, inspiring, forceful and irresistible orator, the idol of his homefolks and a pillar of Americanism.

Sorry for Reed

I feel sorry for the thousands of Reed supporters in this vast hall. The delegates are tired, worn, and impatient. From the moment the convention was called to order the first day, the ultimate nomination had been discounted. Nobody doubts what the result will be. The nomination of Governor Smith is inevitable. But it is just as hard for his followers to wait for the actual voting as it is for a kid to wait for the ice cream. On this account there is scant patience over the necessary delay. Relatively few are listening to really powerful speeches being made.

I wonder if there is not some better way to determine an issue so vital as the choice of a candidate for president. The present method is trying, physically and mentally trying. Weather conditions, living conditions, change in food and drink, late hours, crowds, noise, excitement—all these are bad for the participants and perhaps they are bad for the country.

Yesterday there were physical contests over the possession of certain banners. The hotel rooms and lobbies are filled with persons in heated debate. Would it be the same if the "electoral college" met under like surroundings? Would not the 'presidential electors' be tempted to indulge in athletic debates.

Gets Medic Badge

That is the trouble with being a doctor—at some time or other the medical training makes me resent unnecessary extremes. Certainly there are many such in a national convention.

By a strange coincidence, just as I wrote this, the genial Colonel 'Ed' Halsey, sergeant-at-arms of the convention, came to my seat in the press section with what he called a 'permanent souvenir.' It was a badge inscribed 'medical officer.'

Instead of writing political news, perhaps I should move down on the floor and give medical advice. But frankly, it is always a hopeless thing to advise an excited and enthusiastic citizen. He is too much engrossed in his emotions to care a rap how they may affect his health.

At this moment I cannot refrain from speaking of the good work done by Colonel Halsey and his charming wife. The management and control of the convention have been the best I have ever witnessed. The good folks of Houston should thank the Halsey family, as all the visitors do, for administering so well the beautiful and impressive convention hall.

So far, we have listened to speeches in behalf of Candidates George, Woollen, Hitchcock, Reed and Smith. Naturally the appearance of Franklin Roosevelt was of chief interest to the delegates. Everybody knew that this veteran of conventions was to nominate Governor Smith.

Audience Moved

I had read Roosevelt's speech and admired it in the manuscript. But the human touch of the speaker, the vibrant voice, the handsome face, and his simple, but heart-stirring eloquence, added immeasurably to the well chosen language. It moved the audience to tremendous enthusiasm. Nobody could have done better in nominating the outstanding candidate.

When I look over this story of the day's proceedings, I realize how impossible it is under these circumstances to use simple, unornamented language. There is something so compelling and stimulating about the atmosphere of the whole town that it gets the brain over-congested. I have referred to that fact before.

Even the bad elevator service and impossible telephone service in the hotels, the scarcity of ice water and the many inconveniences of sardine-packed hostelries—all these registered but dimly. The excitement of the actual proceedings, the rumors of platform disputes, the uncertainty of the times of meeting, the whispered hints of old friends—these keep your head in a whirl.

There is but one certainty today. This is that Governor Smith will be nominated. Every friend of his is in a fever of expectancy. Certainly I have this symptom. Tomorrow there may be a calmer report of the proceedings. Now I will go and answer the invitation to broadcast my impressions of the convention.

They All Love Al, Says Roosevelt For Fourth Time

By ARTHUR (BUGS) BAER

HOUSTON, June 28. (US)—One thing we agree with the Democrats about the oil scandal.

We bought liberty bonds for five years and then discovered that an oil duke was giving them away free.

Frank Roosevelt says that children, the birds and the animals all love Al Smith.

Which makes Al the next president, if the children, the birds and animals have a vote.

Even if the children and the birds bolt the ticket, Al can still be elected curator of the zoo.

Extract from the Houston platform:

The last two administrations have been so putrid that they would make a polecat climb his own pole.

The foe is bow-legged with success.

The Republicans have made a bum out of the American farmer. The farmer has been driven bankrupt into the city. Going bankrupt in a city is a farmer's vacation. We hope the Democrats do not deprive him of that pleasure.

Sinclair owns the Republican party, lock, stock and barrel. The Republicans stole from the sick and wounded soldiers. The two bright angels of the last two administrations are the Dolly Sisters of politics, privilege and pillage.

Brother, that ain't no platform. That's a complaint blank.

George of Georgia was tendered an honorary nomination and donated a testimonial panic.

Saying it with flowers in political campaigns means a beautiful bouquet of skunk cabbage brightened with sparkling sprays of poison ivy.

Al Smith listened to his nomination over the radio. Frank Roosevelt was singing Al's favorite selection. By request.

Jesse Jones of Texas claims to be carrying 40 votes for president. But if Jesse eats any on the way he will get an awful spanking.

No matter who is nominated, the split delegate from Guam grabs his banner and dashes around the aisles.

For the benefit of the bewildered majority, we wish to explain that a split delegate is not divided up the back like a breakfast mackerel.

A split delegate is physically whole, but mentally, he is a split delegate.

This is the fourth time Frank Roosevelt has nominated Smith. As Tex Ginsberg says, "Better luck next time."

Pilsudski's Polish Cabinet Leaves Office

WARSAW, June 28.—(UP)—Joseph Pilsudski, premier and minister of military affairs and first marshal of Poland, and his cabinet have resigned. President Noscicki designated M. Bartels to form a new cabinet, which was made virtually identical with Pilsudski's except for the ministries of education and transport. Pilsudski retained the war portfolio.

CORDELL HULL BEFORE DEMOS

Tennessean Called Second Andrew Jackson

SAM HOUSTON HALL, Houston, June 28. (INS)—"A second Andrew Jackson" was the description applied to Correll Hull today when his name was placed in nomination before the Democratic national convention by Col. Harvey H. Hannah, of Tennessee.

Colonel Hannah made a departure from the usual nominating speeches by devoting most of his speech in praise of Hull, to a scorching attack upon the Republican record at Washington.

Denounces Scandals

His opening words were that "Tennessee is profoundly happy to be in a convention where a man can strike a match and have no fear of starting a conflagration of oil like the fear that hung over the Republicans at Kansas City." From that point he went on to denounce the Republican scandals in even more vigorous terms than did Claude G. Bowers in his keynote speech.

"American farmers, he asserted, "never will be driven from the doors of this convention like Russian peasants with the bull-whip of plutocracy, as they were at Kansas City by the overlords of the East and the negro delegates from the South at that convention of dives."

After tracing the Republican record, he continued:

"I would not raise the curtain on the Bacchanalian revel which disgraced our nation before the world, or the foul indecencies of Belshazzar's feast which followed in the wake of the war; but shall this Jezebel be continued in power? Shall the young men and young women of America be taught that it is right to graft and steal in high places if they are not caught, and if they are, a sufficient defense will be that they divide the swag by returning the Republican party to power. If such is the verdict, may God have pity on our country.

Conscience Lives

"I do not, however, believe that the conscience of the American people is dead.

"In this great crisis, Tennessee, true to her traditions, offers you such a man. Not a mere favorite son to be complimented, but a man who in every way measures up to the crying needs of the nation, a man with the prophetic vision of Jefferson, the intrepid courage of Jackson, and the sublime belief in honest government of Woodrow Wilson."

Drafted Tax Law

Colonel Hannah declared that to Cordell Hull should go the major credit for drafting the income tax amendment.

"It was his all powerful mind," he said, "that drafted the income tax law that has stood the acid test of the courts. He is probably regarded as the highest authority in America on the question of taxation and finance.

"It was this great Tennessean who was elected chairman of our national committee in 1921 and served until 1924; that brought together our scattered ranks, financed and paid off every dollar that we owed without contribution from corruption funds. We needed no Senator Borah to pass the hat to take up a collection to pay back Sinclair or any other grafter.

"I therefore present, in the name of Tennessee, to this convention her matchless son, one of the foremost statesmen in America; plain, simple, honest, a mountaineer, an Anglo-Saxon, coming from the same breed and the same ability that gave the nation Andrew Jackson, James K. Polk and Woodrow Wilson—the Honorable Cordell Hull, of Tennessee."

Manufacturers Named In Glass Conspiracy

CHICAGO, June 28. (UP)—Indictments charging conspiracy in which $1,000,000 annually was extorted from glass manufacturing industries were returned by a federal grand jury today against two Chicago glass manufacturers and three leaders of the Chicago Glaziers' union.

JESSE JONES GETS OVATION

Thomas Ball Nominates Houston Leader

By JOHN GOULD

HOUSTON, June 28. — Three bands, scores of flags, hundreds of toy balloons, a pretty girl on horseback and all the other paraphernalia for the manufacture of enthusiasm, produced a great demonstration for Jesse H. Jones of Houston late today after Thomas H. Ball of Houston had placed his name before the convention.

Mr. Ball's speech was one of the longest and dullest the convention has heard, but the crowd's determination to demonstrate persisted in spite of it. A report that Dan Moody had been slated to do the nominating but got cold feet, was current.

Extemporaneous Speech

Mr. Ball spoke extemporaneously, and it sounded that way. Dan did make a seconding speech.

Tennessee, South Carolina and Oklahoma delegates joined Texas in the demonstration. And of course Florida, whose delegates seem ready to join anybody's party. The Florida delegates haven't missed a demonstration yet.

In between the nominating speeches, two or three seconding speeches for Smith are sandwiched. Smith now has almost as many seconds as the timekeeper gave Gene Tunny at Chicago.

By long odds the best speech of the day was that of Oklahoma's blind ex-senator, Thomas P. Gore, seconding Reed's nomination. It gave Will Rogers material enough for six months.

Dan Moody got something of an ovation when he arose to second Jones' nomination. His speech was nothing to blow the whistles for.

San Angelo Delegation Urges Dam Petition

AUSTIN, Texas, June 28. (AP)—Immediate decision on the Concho Water Development company's petition for permission to dam the Concho river near San Angelo for irrigation and municipal supply purposes, was urged on the board of water engineers today by a San Angelo delegation.

John A. Norris, board chairman, was absent and no action was taken.

A. H. Dunlap, member, said "difficulties," the nature of which he did not explain, might arise in connection with the application.

Defendants in Oil Suit File for New Trial

AUSTIN, June 28. (AP)—Motions for new trial of the state's thus far unsuccessful suit for more than 500 acres of Hutchinson county oil lands, were filed today in district court here by some of the sixty odd defendants, present holders of the tract.

A jury Tuesday, upholding the theory that the area is vacant of legal title and should revert to the state, rendered a verdict involving several millions.

The motions will be acted on late in July.

BISHOP ATTENDS

Dry Strategist Writes On Convention for Church Papers

CONVENTION HALL, HOUSTON, June 28. (US)—Bishop James Cannon Jr., of the Methodist Episcopal church, South, master strategist of the bone-dry forces of the country, sat in the Democratic national convention today.

Although not a delegate, Bishop Cannon occupied a seat with the Minnesota delegation, but at arm's length from Judge George Olvany of Tammany hall.

Bishop Cannon wore a press badge upon the lapel of his coat. He said he was "writing for some religious papers."

KANSAS CITY, Mo., June 28. (UP)—One of the heaviest sentences ever passed for forgery in Jackson county courts was assessed today against Nathan Fradin, 29, of Chicago. Pleading guilty to three charges of forgery, he was sentenced to 17 years in the state prison.

PRYOR MAKES $1000 BOND

Shook Still Lodged in County Jail

Ed Pryor, Electra constable charged with concealing a criminal and lodged in the county jail last Monday, was released on $1000 bond Thursday afternoon.

Pryor and Tom Shook, former chief of police of Electra, were arrested Monday following the escape from the county jail of Henry Shumate, Robert Moore and J. D. Whitt Sunday morning, and the subsequent recapture of Shumate while he was sleeping with the Electra constable.

Shook had not made bond Thursday night.

Following Pryor's arrest sureties on his bond of office in the amount of $1000 asked that they be excused from the obligation. As a result Pryor is out of office until he secures a new bond, according to Wayne Somerville, county attorney.

Pryor, Shook and Shumate were arrested after investigations of Sheriff W. G. Bralley.

A Student Salesman's Polite Request

He will ring your door bell, one day this week—not noisily and insistently, but politely like a gentleman. For he is a gentleman; son of a good southern family with respect enough for education to work for it if necessary. This appealingly polite young man will be one of over two hundred, hand picked for places on the student salesman staff of Holland's Magazine. Many of them are "letter men" from foot ball or track teams; honor students, etc. They are types you might recognize in an own son or brother. Remember, they are salesmen, not sympathy seekers or grafters. They ask no "favors" except a minute of your time and surely they're entitled to a courteous hearing.

Welcome Him at Your Door

He Carries this Credential . . .

So that you may be sure that you are dealing with an authorized student salesman of Holland's Magazine, each of these Holland's College Boys has been issued the credential letter signed by Mr. S. G. Milner, Manager Educational Division. The young man will show you this letter to re-assure you that any money paid him will be properly credited to you.

You'll be Rewarded by an Amazing Offer

He will show you a current issue of Holland's—The Magazine of the South. Please note the lovely cover—glance through the seven or eight, beautifully illustrated fiction stories by nationally favorite authors—take a glimpse at the smart fashions, the home-plans department, the Southern cookery columns, and the loads of alluring articles on domestic arts, travel, literature, drama, poetry and features for the children. Some of these boys will call at offices. Business men generally accord them a courteous hearing and are amazed at the complete and rapid manner in which these young salesmen present their proposition and show the many things of interest in Holland's for men. You'll surely be intrigued. You'll say it's worth $2.00 a year — but when you hear the young man's bargain offer, you'll hardly believe your ears. He'll thank you for your subscription—and you'll thank him for coming—and you'll continue to thank him for sixty delightful issues, each month as they come to you.

Ramblin'

with Marie Theresa

THERE was no mistake about it, she had on no stockings and she was walking the streets with the boy friend. Isn't it too bad that no chemist can ever hope to achieve the exact color of nature's handiwork? So the venturesome ladies are taking the law into their own hands and accomplishing what chemistry cannot do.

The idea of no hose is not new, but hitherto has been practiced only by those whose adventurous spirits would not otherwise be satisfied.

THIS corner is rather in favor of the idea. Just think how many different colors and tints would be brought into existence which have never been seen out on the streets. Just think of the original and different bits of costuming on the streets if each woman would let nature decide the tint of her hosiery. And how much more simple!

Whereas now the fastidious woman spends 15 minutes in selecting the exact shade she shall wear, and another 15 minutes in matching the outcoming hosiery with the new purchase, she could just let nature take its course and have the question settled by the amount of sunshine encountered and the care taken of aforementioned properties.

I'm in favor of simplicity and comfort, and the least amount of laundry possible!

CHIC CHERIE — LATEST FASHIONS

Cherie and Dina are unpacking their trunks, Paris trunks, trunks filled full of pretty things and if Kitty lingers by, looking wistful, she will get some of them. That's Kitty's theory. Dina has lapsed into normalcy almost immediately by putting on a frock of the sheerest handkerchief linen (doesn't it seem warm here after Paris?) and the linen, moreover, is printed—it is one of the smartest fashions of the season and one of the most extravagant considering the way the linen has of wrinkling. Kitty's printed frock is voile, simply made, with a rippling collar. Cherie looks cool and comfortable in a green and white printed silk with back-dipping ruffles on the bodice and the skirt.

These are the presents Cherie brought from Paris. Emily draws the afternoon bag and shoe ensemble because Cherie knew Emily's shoe size. They are of woven fabric trimmed with petit point embroidery and are most appropriate for presents on the theory that presents should never be commonsensible. No one could say that a fabric shoe trimmed with petit point is sensible—but no one could say it isn't smart! The handkerchief is one of a half a dozen for different friends. A wide square of voile de soie with an embroidered monogram motif in a color to contrast with the fabric—in only one corner or in three. The purse is of woven leather—meant to be used for sports or street.

Wedding of Olney Couple Solemnized Wednesday Evening

The home of Mrs. R. E. Bridges, 2200 Tilden street, was the scene of a pretty wedding Wednesday evening, when Miss Roberta Alexander of Olney, sister of Mrs. Bridges, was married to Bruce Nesbit, also of Olney. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. S. A. Barnes, pastor of the Floral Heights Methodist church.

The Bridges home was pretty with baskets of cut flowers and lighted white tapers. The pre-nuptial solo was Cadman's "At Dawning," sung by Mrs. Bridges, who also played the bridal chorus from "Lohengrin" as processional.

The bride wore an imported organdy gown made in bouffant style and carried a shower bouquet of pink roses and baby's breath. She was attended by her sister Mrs. Leon Hays of Olney, as matron of honor. Mrs. Hays wore a gown of pale green organdy. Flower girls were little Misses Bebe Marie Hays and Ann Clair Bridges. The bride entered on the arms of her father, George W. Alexander.

Mr. and Mrs. Nesbit left immediately following the ceremony for a two weeks' trip to the Ozarks. She wore a going-away costume of light and dark orchid. They will make their home in Olney, where the bridegroom is engaged by the National Supply company. Mrs. Nesbit was a teacher in the Olney schools last year.

Dorothy Dix Urges Marriage Contract for Domestic Woes

If Every Man and Woman About to Commit Matrimony Would Go to a Lawyer and Have a Marriage Contract Drawn Up, It Would Prevent Domestic Squabbles, Discourage Divorce and Solve Alimony.

It is the custom to think of a marriage contract as something concerning and appertaining to those who contract all alliances, suchas when Miss Million Bucks espouses the Principe of Spaghetti, and her fortune must be safeguarded for her sake and that of her heirs. It would strike our funny bone merely to suggest going through such a formality when a young couple get married who have nothing but the clothes on their backs and a salary envelope between them.

Nevertheless, I believe it would be a salutary thing if every man and woman who are about to commit matrimony would go to a lawyer and have him draw up a marriage contract, setting forth in solemn and ponderous legal phraseology the duties and obligations of the party of the first part and the party of the second part, and what the perquisites and emoluments of each were to be.

I believe that it would do much to impress upon the minds of both the man and the woman that marriage isn't just the culmination of a romance. It is a business partnership as well as a union of hearts and hands, and that it isn't enough for husbands and wives just to be fond of each other and intend to make each other happy. There are certain specific things that they are bound to do in order to make their marriage a success.

As it is now, marriage is a sort of gentleman's agreement, with its fate dependent upon the way the individual man and woman interprets it, and his and her sense of honor. The marriage contract would take it out of this realm of glittering generalities and make its provisions concrete. It would specify what per cent of his income a man meant to give his wife when he said "with all my worldly goods I thee endow," and whether when a woman swore that she would cherish her husband she meant getting up and getting breakfast for him, or whether that was just a sentimental gesture.

Certainly it would save a lot of misunderstandings and domestic squabbles if, before marriage, every youth and maiden took his or her individual copy of their marriage contract apart, and, alone and away from the disturbing influence of the other's presence and kissing lips, studied its cold and unimpassionate provisions.

Then they could take it or leave it, as they saw fit, but they would know what they were agreeing to do.

The man would know that just vaguely promising to be a good husband didn't cover the bill. He had contracted to deliver the goods by giving his wife a definite allowance; by being a fireside companion; by treating her as politely as he would any other woman; by taking her out to places of amusement at least once a week; by giving her a home of her own, and not inflicting his relatives upon her, etc.

And it would be borne in on the woman's mind as she studied her contract, that she was signing up for a life job at hard labor, and that matrimony wasn't to be all billing and cooing. It was to be cooking and washing and babytending as well, and that she was binding herself to make a comfortable home for her husband; to be thrifty and economical, to put a silencer on her tongue and not nag, and to allow him a night out every week and a reasonable amount of personal liberty in return for the support and love and affection of the party of the first part, as hereinbefore set forth.

Of course, it may be truly said that there would be no way of enforcing the provisions of such a contract, but the moral effects of such a document would be incalculable. Most husbands and wives would feel an obligation to live up to their contract, and it would be a handy referee in family arguments.

It also seems to me that only by means of a marriage contract can the alimony problem be justly settled.

No one will deny that at present many men suffer a grievous wrong in being forced to support former wives who were quitters, who never did their duty in any way as wives, or made the slightest effort to get along with their husbands, who even, perhaps, forsook their husbands for other men, or who made themselves so disagreeable that their husbands were glad to get rid of them at any price.

There are plenty of delicate, fragile men toiling to pay alimony to husky young women 10 times as able to work as they are. There are plenty of men forced to live in penury because the most they make goes to a divorced wife who is living in luxury. There are even men whose hard earnings go to support in idleness their former wives' second husbands.

Certainly the abuse of alimony is one of the crying evils of our day. But, on the other hand, the woman who has been a good and faithful wife, who married a man when he was poor and slaved and pinched to help him along, and, in reality, did as much as he did toward making his fortune, should have her just share in it. It is not fair that she should be turned out like a worn-out workhorse to starve because her husband happens to get tired of her and to fall in love with a flapper.

Just as the man should not be made the victim of the alimony grafter, the good wife should not be the victim of the philanderer, and for the safety of both the man and the woman this question of the woman's compensation in case fo divorce should be settled before marriage in the marriage contract.

It would do much to discourage divorce if men knew how much they had to pay for it and women how little they would get out of it.

If a woman knew that she had signed a contract in which she agreed not to ask for alimony unless she had remained in the firm 10 years and given good service, she wouldn't be so quick to leave the first time anything went wrong, secure that a sentimental judge would give her a divorce and make her husband support her, especially if she were young and good-looking. And many a man would think a long time before he divorced his old wife if he had contracted to give her half of his property in such an event.

Therefore, for these and other reasons, I think it would be an excellent idea for every young couple to have a marriage contract.

—DOROTHY DIX.

WE have astounding values in Oldfield Tires, which have been taken over by Firestone from the Oldfield Tire Company. For over four years these tires were sold by Oldfield distributors and dealers at higher prices than for any other high grade standard tire. We are now selling all sizes of these quality tires for less than any other standard tire.

with Marie Theresa

THERE was no mistake about it, she had on no stockings and she was walking the streets with the boy friend. Isn't it too bad that no chemist can ever hope to achieve the exact color of nature's handiwork? So the venturesome ladies are taking the law into their own hands and accomplishing what chemistry cannot do.

The idea of no hose is not new, but hitherto has been practiced only by those whose adventurous spirits would not otherwise be satisfied.

THIS corner is rather in favor of the idea. Just think how many different colors and tints would be brought into existence which have never been seen out on the streets. Just think of the original and different bits of costuming on the streets if each woman would let nature decide the tint of her hosiery. And how much more simple!

Whereas now the fastidious woman spends 15 minutes in selecting the exact shade she shall wear, and another 15 minutes in matching the outcoming hosiery with the new purchase, she could just let nature take its course and have the question settled by the amount of sunshine encountered and the care taken of aforementioned properties.

I'm in favor of simplicity and comfort, and the least amount of laundry possible!

CHIC CHERIE — LATEST FASHIONS

Cherie and Dina are unpacking their trunks, Paris trunks, trunks filled full of pretty things and if Kitty lingers by, looking wistful, she will get some of them. That's Kitty's theory. Dina has lasped into normalcy almost immediately by putting on a frock of the sheerest handkerchief linen (doesn't it seem warm here after Paris?) and the linen, moreover, is printed—it is one of the smartest fashions of the season and one of the most extravagant considering the way the linen has of wrinkling. Kitty's printed frock is voile, simply made, with a rippling collar. Cherie looks cool and comfortable in a green and white printed silk with back-dipping ruffles on the bodice and the skirt.

© 1927, by King Features Syndicate, Inc., Great Britain rights reserved.

These are the presents Cherie brought from Paris. Emily draws the afternoon bag and shoe ensemble because Cherie knew Emily's shoe size. They are of woven fabric trimmed with petit point embroidery and are most appropriate for presents on the theory that presents should never be commonsensible. No one could say that a fabric shoe trimmed with petit point is sensible—but no one could say it isn't smart! The handkerchief is one of a half a dozen for different friends. A wide square of voile de soie with an embroidered monogram motif in a color to contrast with the fabric—in only one corner or in three. The purse is of woven leather—meant to be used for sports or street.

Wedding of Olney Couple Solemnized Wednesday Evening

The home of Mrs. R. E. Bridges, 2200 Tilden street, was the scene of a pretty wedding Wednesday evening, when Miss Roberta Alexander of Olney, sister of Mrs. Bridges, was married to Bruce Nesbit, also of Olney. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. S. A. Barnes, pastor of the Floral Heights Methodist church.

The Bridges home was pretty with baskets of cut flowers and lighted white tapers. The pre-nuptial solo was Cadman's "At Dawning," sung by Mrs. Bridges, who also played the bridal chorus from "Lohengrin" as processional.

The bride wore an imported organdy gown made in bouffant style and carried a shower bouquet of pink roses and baby's breath. She was attended by her sister Mrs. Leon Hays of Olney, as matron of honor. Mrs. Hays wore a gown of pale green organdy. Flower girls were little Misses Bebe Marie Hays and Ann Clair Bridges. The bride entered on the arms of her father, George W. Alexander.

Mr. and Mrs. Nesbit left immediately following the ceremony for a two weeks' trip to the Ozarks. She wore a going-away costume of light and dark orchid. They will make their home in Olney, where the bridegroom is engaged by the National Supply company. Mrs. Nesbit was a teacher in the Olney schools last year.

Dorothy Dix Urges Marriage Contract for Domestic Woes

If Every Man and Woman About to Commit Matrimony Would Go to a Lawyer and Have a Marriage Contract Drawn Up, It Would Prevent Domestic Squabbles, Discourage Divorce and Solve Alimony.

It is the custom to think of a marriage contract as something concerning and appertaining to those who contract all alliances, suchas when Miss Million Bucks espouses the Principe of Spaghetti, and her fortune must be safeguarded for her sake and that of her heirs. It would strike our funny bone merely to suggest going through such a formality when a young couple get married who have nothing but the clothes on their backs and a salary envelope between them.

Nevertheless, I believe it would be a salutary thing if every man and woman who are about to commit matrimony would go to a lawyer and have him draw up a marriage contract, setting forth in solemn and ponderous legal phraseology the duties and obligations of the party of the first part and the party of the second part, and what the perquisites and emoluments of each were to be.

I believe that it would do much to impress upon the minds of both the man and the woman that marriage isn't just the culmination of a romance. It is a business partnership as well as a union of hearts and hands, and that it isn't enough for husbands and wives just to be fond of each other and intend to make each other happy. There are certain specific things that they are bound to do in order to make their marriage a success.

As it is now, marriage is a sort of gentleman's agreement, with its fate dependent upon the way the individual man and woman interprets it, and his and her sense of honor. The marriage contract would take it out of this realm of glittering generalities and make its provisions concrete. It would specify what per cent of his income a man meant to give his wife when he said "with all my worldly goods I thee endow," and whether when a woman swore that she would cherish her husband she meant getting up and getting breakfast for him, or whether that was just a sentimental gesture.

Certainly it would save a lot of misunderstandings and domestic squabbles if, before marriage, every youth and maiden took his or her individual copy of their marriage contract apart, and, alone and away from the disturbing influence of the other's presence and kissing lips, studied its cold and unimpassionate provisions.

Then they could take it or leave it, as they saw fit, but they would know what they were agreeing to do.

The man would know that just vaguely promising to be a good husband didn't cover the bill. He had contracted to deliver the goods by giving his wife a definite allowance; by being a fireside companion; by treating her as politely as he would any other woman; by taking her out to places of amusement at least once a week; by giving her a home of her own, and not inflicting his relatives upon her, etc.

And it would be borne in on the woman's mind as she studied her contract, that she was signing up for a life job at hard labor, and that matrimony wasn't to be all billing and cooing. It was to be cooking and washing and babytending as well, and that she was binding herself to make a comfortable home for her husband; to be thrifty and economical, to put a silencer on her tongue and not nag, and to allow him a night out every week and a reasonable amount of personal liberty in return for the support and love and affection of the party of the first part, as hereinbefore set forth.

Of course, it may be truly said that there would be no way of enforcing the provisions of such a contract, but the moral effects of such a document would be incalculable. Most husbands and wives would feel an obligation to live up to their contract, and it would be a handy referee in family arguments.

It also seems to me that only by means of a marriage contract can the alimony problem be justly settled.

No one will deny that at present many men suffer a grievous wrong in being forced to support former wives who were quitters, who never did their duty in any way as wives, or made the slightest effort to get along with their husbands, who even, perhaps, forsook their husbands for other men, or who made themselves so disagreeable that their husbands were glad to get rid of them at any price.

There are plenty of delicate, fragile men toiling to pay alimony to husky young women 10 times as able to work as they are. There are plenty of men forced to live in penury because the most they make goes to a divorced wife who is living in luxury. There are even men whose hard earnings go to support in idleness their former wives' second husbands.

Certainly the abuse of alimony is one of the crying evils of our day. But, on the other hand, the woman who has been a good and faithful wife, who married a man when he was poor and slaved and pinched to help him along, and, in reality, did as much as he did toward making his fortune, should have her just share in it. It is not fair that she should be turned out like a worn-out workhorse to starve because her husband happens to get tired of her and to fall in love with a flapper.

Just as the man should not be made the victim of the alimony grafter, the good wife should not be the victim of the philanderer, and for the safety of both the man and the woman this question of the woman's compensation in case fo divorce should be settled before marriage in the marriage contract.

It would do much to discourage divorce if men knew how much they had to pay for it and women how little they would get out of it.

If a woman knew that she had signed a contract in which she agreed not to ask for alimony unless she had remained in the firm 10 years and given good service, she wouldn't be so quick to leave the first time anything went wrong, secure that a sentimental judge would give her a divorce and make her husband support her, especially if she were young and good-looking. And many a man would think a long time before he divorced his old wife if he had contracted to give her half of his property in such an event.

Therefore, for these and other reasons, I think it would be an excellent idea for every young couple to have a marriage contract.

—DOROTHY DIX.

The Day Book of a New Yorker

By CLARK KINNAIRD.

NEW YORK, June 28.—Helping visiting women sow tame oats is an established profession in New York, the city of strange occupations. There are several bureaux devoted to supplying women escorts for women visitors, or chaperones for parties of young girls.

Most of the clientele of the bureaux are middle-aged and elderly women. Some of them are alone in the city and unable to enjoy solitary sight seeing; others are playing hookey from families that were disposed to show them Grant's Tomb and the Woolworth building when what they really wanted to see was Greenwich Village and Harlem.

The women on the staffs of the bureaux are all married and between 35 and 40 years old. For managers of the bureaux quickly found that even grandmothers prefer as companions young appearing women who are smartly dressed and festive.

There also are agencies which undertake to supply women companions for lonely young men visitors to the city who have character references.

New Yorkers find it convenient to turn over visiting Aunt Hettie or Joe's mother or Cousin Sue to one of the bureaux for entertainment.

New York speakeasies are to be closed on Sunday. Not by the police, however. Bartenders want a day off.

While the British shop is rapidly becoming Americanized, the American shop is going in for the British way of doing things. London stores now emulate the organization and methods of New York shops. In turn, New York shops are copying the sociable methods of British department stores. Tea is now served in Fifth avenue shops to all customers who come in between 3 and 5, and clerks are encouraged to build up personal followings. Fifth avenue shops also curtain their windows nights and Sundays, just as British stores do.

Variegated notes of a reporter covering the biggest beat in the world:

His Eminence, Cardinal O'Connell, of Boston, is an avid reader of detective stories, and when he is in New York searches bookshops for books devoted to mystery.

Texas Guinan, the queen of clubs, says "Good night" at 11 a. m. She does her sleeping between noon and midnight.

Adolphe Ménjou, the cinemactor, wears sport shirts with both collar and tie attached to and laundered to the shirt.

Florenz Ziegfeld, who wrote a letter to the Federation of Women's clubs denouncing beauty contests, has six contest winners in the chorus of one of his shows.

Augustin Duncan, for 35 years an outstanding figure in the American theater, now is blind, but he continues to serve as a stage director.

Ham garnished with strawberries is a dish featured at the exclusive Sherry-Netherland, and it is a gastronic creation worthy of a poet's paeans.

THE GAME

What matter if the rent is due,
If bankroll's weak and mauled?
How secondary life becomes
Whene'er the game is called.

Up in the stands sits capital
And labor, side by side;
For at the game, men melt into
One common, surging tide.

And when the umpire calls the game,
It's there that you will see
More life, more hope, more vital force,
More true democracy.

Within the stands you'll see men's hearts
Combined in common aim;
All else forgot . . . the common thought:
"We've got to win the game!"

And when the game of ball is done,
We turn . . . regain our breath,
And go back to our game . . . of Life.
They call its umpire Death!

One-Minute Sermon

Two are better than one; because they have a good reward for their labour.

For if they fall, the one will lift up his fellow: but woe to him that is alone when he falleth; for he hath not another to help him up.

Amelia Takes the Test

IT IS becoming evident that Miss Amelia Earhart is going to emerge from the present glare of publicity that is beating upon her just as unspoiled as Lindbergh did.

In some ways there is no greater test of one's character than to occupy the spotlight as she is doing. It brings out every aspect of one's character, the bad as well as the good. It proved Lindbergh's mettle, and accounts for much of his great popularity. And apparently Miss Earhart has her feet planted just as firmly on the ground as Lindy did.

We're glad to hear it. From the first she looked like a real American girl. Her actions now—modest, cultured, unruffled—are confirming our belief that she, like Lindy, will be a mighty good idol for young America to have.

Aviation As a Vocation

A YOUNG man planning to take up aviation as a profession would do well to heed the most recent bulletin of the Daniel Guggenheim Fund for the Promotion of Aeronautics.

This organization recently questioned leading air transport companies about new pilots. The majority of the replies received stated that experience has shown that the best pilots come from the regular army and navy flying schools. Commercial air schools, it was said, do not quite offer pilots the variety of experience needed to make first-class fliers.

It was added, however, that as aviation grows the commercial schools undoubtedly will increase in effectiveness. One interesting comment was that barnstorming by the individual pilot after graduation from flying school is an excellent means of training. It will be recalled that Lindbergh had a good dose of that.

A Thought on Enforcement

READ these two paragraphs from a recent United Press story from Chicago:

"A huge graft plot in which 30 Chicago dry agents were said to have been paid more than $100,000 in bribes was investigated by the district attorney's office today.

"The evidence indicated, federal officials said, that a large percentage of the city's prohibition staff may be in collusion with alcoholic racketeers, and a drastic shake-up was predicted."

Chicago, of course is Chicago. Yet it would seem within the realm of possibility for an energetic, wealthy government such as ours to handle the problem of law enforcement with just a little less scandal than that.

The argument about the benefits of prohibition is going on apace. Meanwhile it seems safe to remark that there are sections where prohibition has hardly had a real chance.

Meaning of Titina

FOR some obscure reason it did us a great deal of good to read that Titina, the bright-eyed little dog that Gen. Umberto Nobile has taken with him on his aerial excursion to the North Pole, has survived the crash of his dirigible and is awaiting rescue, with her master, on a drifing ice floe in the Arctic.

The aviator who circled over the stranded party and dropped supplies reports that Titina was in the best of health. Unworried by her plight, she scampered about over the ice, yip-yipping and chasing the speeding shadow of the airplane as it slid over the snow drifts.

And, as we said, for some reason we're extremely glad to hear it. There is something extremely appealing about the thought of that little dog riding clear across the top of the world in an airship, surviving the perils of shipwreck in the far north and living to gnaw bones in Italy after an adventure such as few men have ever had. Titina has been so unconscious of what was happening; to her, undoubtedly, the whole thing has just been a new kind of outing—a bit unusual, perhaps, but nothing to get excited about.

Titina, however, is not so much different than the rest of us, after all. We'd realize the gravity of the situation if we were wrecked on an Arctic ice floe; but in our daily life at home we utterly fail, for the most part, to see where we are going or to appreciate the significance of our life-long voyage through the world.

No more than that frisky little dog knew what her ride to the Pole was all about do we grasp the real purport of our lives. It seems to us that we are here quite comprehensibly, and our obvious duty is to work, marry, raise children and live as comfortably and decently as we may; but beyond that we are befuddled. The tremendous implications of the fact that we are here at all; the illimitable possibilities of mankind's never-ending voyage upward from savagery to civilization; these things never bother our minds.

We always underestimate life. We do not realize that it is an everlasting, flame-girt mystery. We fail to see that humanity's slow progress up from ignorance, barbarity and superstition to freedom, intelligence and idealism is the most magnificent, awe-inspiring spectacle in the universe. The thing is as much outside our comprehension as Nobile's flight to the North Pole was outside the comprehension of his canine mascot.

Some day we will have better vision. Then we will do away with wars, which blast the miracle of life out of millions of young men; with poverty, which cramps immortal souls in strait-jackets of want and disease; with hatred, which poisons hearts that were meant for brotherhood. And then we shall begin to really live.

HE WAS HONEST, ANYWAY

A good deal of hard talk is being addressed at Al Smith and Jim Reed, just now, but it seems that a man who honestly tells his views on prohibition and yet has a record for enforcing the law should not be an object of loathing for any Democrat.

Governor Smith, it is said, believes that it should be in the province of every state to determine the amount of alcoholic contest that shall constitute a beverage intoxicating. While that does not meet the views of ultra-prohibitionists, there is no need for it to make them wroth, inasmuch as the governor also says that he is not seeking a modification of the prohibition law as it now stands and that he is willing to run on a platform declaring for rigid enforcement of the law.

As for Senator Reed—no man in the United States or in any other country has a better record as a fearless and successful prosecutor of lawbreakers and for law enforcement.

Hazel's Two Husbands and What Became of Them

By GEORGE ADE

Once there was a nice girl who graduated from high school in a white organdie, and read an essay, on heliotrope paper, entitled "Life and Its Opportunities."

The girl's name was Hazel, and about the time she drew the diploma she was eating sour pickles and just crazy to be an authoress. A few months later she debutted with a fanfare of trumpets, after which she was so busy straightening out her dates and sorting over her dance programs that she forgot all about her literary ambitions.

Hazel was built on the Gibson plan, and it looked as if a good fresh breeze might blow her away. Just the same, when she went to a hop she was good for everything from the first squawk of the saxophone to the last strains of "Home Sweet Home." All she needed to keep her on the jump throughout the entire night was a dab of chicken salad and a macaroon about 1 a. m.

Hazel stood in with the real rowdy-dows and was present at most of the tall doings, but she was a trifle shy on wardrobe. Papa had a large family hitched to his lowly apple-cart, and he could not provide Hazel with very many snake rings and diamond belt-buckles.

So foxy Hazel had the weather eye at work. She was looking for something kind and easy.

Of course she liked the boys she met at the dances. They were lovely chaps and kept their hair combed nicely. Each one of them owned another suit of clothes and either a camera or a ukulele. She was hoping for a perfect gentleman who would hand her a check-book and tell her to wear it out.

Therefore, when an elderly bachelor with an income of several dollars per minute began to hang around, she hearkened to the voice of reason.

Hazel found herself in a swell shack right on the boulevard, with 14 vassals to do her bidding and a change of jewelry for every hour in the day.

Husband would arise at 7:30 and pike to the office, but Hazel would take her coffee in bed about 10:30 and then read Sussiety notes, for fear that her name had got into the papers. Then she would have her hair done up and permit two or three servants to lift her into her clothes. Then she'd go out for a little ride in a limousine about a half block long.

All this time the money-getter would be answering the telephone with one hand and dictating contracts with the other.

At 6:30 when the producer showed up for dinner, he was a faded flower, and had about as much ginger as a wet towel. But Hazel, when she began to sniff the night air, was just as kittenish as a broncho and keen for a frolic.

The Usual Finish

She was for taking in a chaste and instructive musical comedy and then having a tasty little supper of about 11 courses.

If the producer tried to lie down and claimed that it had been a hard day at the office, Hazel accused him of being a quitter, and intimated that he had ceased to love.

After sitting around all day, Hazel was not hankering for any quiet evening in the library. She wanted to get out and hit up the the high spots and dazzle the public with her A-1 exhibit of precious stones.

Papa knew that if he did not go she would call up some of the live ones and leave him behind. He wanted to be game, so he would trail along and hover like a dark cloud at the outskirts of the happy group. The only time anyone paid any attention to him was when the check came.

Hazel had him going South most of the time.

If he ever started to rise up and declare himself she would give him a sweet little kiss, right on the forehead and tell him to lie down and behave.

There is only one finish for the deluded mortal who tries to work on a day schedule and at the same time cover the bright-light district with the night shift. He winds up as the principal attraction of a daylight function at which six of his old-time friends wear white gloves.

Everyone sends flowers, but he does not have to acknowledge them.

Hazel looked very well in black, but it was hard lines for her to stay indoors. She knew it would cause talk if she cut loose before the grass was green in the family lot, so she was pulling for an early spring, and plenty of rain.

When she bought her second ticket for the merry-go-round, she was determined on one thing.

"The next one I pick out will not be tied down to any office," she told herself. "I want a man who can keep awake all evening. What we need in this country to put ginger into our social affairs are gentlemen of leisure who begin to get good along about midnight.

So she picked a handsome wretch of good family who never had worked a moment in all his life and who hated the sight of a bed.

He argued that it was bad form for any one to suggest going home before daybreak.

They went traveling together as soon as she had settled the insurance. When they arrived in a new town he would go out to buy a package of cigarettes, and then he would return in three days to find out if everything was O. K. and she was having a nice time.

Safe on One Score

But you could say one word to his credit. He never interfered with any of her arrangements, for the reason that when the arrangements were being made he was not est.

He belongs to several clubs, at which the members removed their pajamas to put on evening clothes.

Sometimes he met his wife at dinner parties, and when he did so he showed her every consideration and asked her if she was still living at the same place. He never forgot to be a gentleman, even at a dinner party.

Although she saw him only about once a week, she always had this consolation: She knew he was not working himself to death in any office.

When she applied for a divorce, the officers had to hunt a long time before they could serve the papers.

He was much pained, and said he had never used a harsh or cruel word to her, because he always talked over the phone, with central listening.

She obtained a decree, and as she was leaving the courtroom she was met by a sympathetic friend.

"What are you going to do next?" asked the friend.

"I am going to buy a dog," was the reply.

Moral: It is often necessary to try two or three before the right kind is landed.

When A Girl Loves

© 1928 by NEA Service by RUTH DEWEY GROVES

THIS HAS HAPPENED

Nathaniel Dann, struggling artist, is engaged to Virginia Brewster, whose father is a prominent Wall street financier. After losing his fortune in speculation, Brewster dies suddenly of heart failure and leaves his daughter penniless.

Niel urges Virginia to marry him at once, but an old family friend, Frederick Dean, and his daughter, Clarissa, persuade her to make her temporary home with them. This decision angers Niel, for he suspects Dean's motives and does not like Clarissa.

Returning to his studio he finds his model, Chiri, waiting with hot coffee for him. He knows that Chiri is jealous of Virginia and, fearing that she will become a nuisance, he repulses her and she leaves in a temper.

Meanwhile, Virginia is puzzled and unhappy by the insinuations of Clarissa to the effect that now she will have to marry for money and a veiled warning against trespassing where her fiance, Russell Waingould, is concerned. She is also worried by the attentions of Mr. Dean, and resolves to tell Niel her fears. She phones his studio in the evening and is surprised to hear the voice of Chiri over the wire.

Now Go On With the Story

CHAPTER VIII

Virginia recognized that slow, drawling "hello," instantly. It was the same voice that had answered her early that morning when she had called Nathaniel and been told that she had the wrong number.

What could it mean? Surely it was not possible that she would get the same wrong number a second time. Virginia was stunned into silence, held in the grasp of a great fear. Then her faith in Nathaniel reasserted itself, and she felt herself prickling with shame at the thought that had flashed through her mind.

"Oh, I'm sorry," she said politely. "I'm afraid I have the wrong number."

She started to replace the instrument on the stand when the other voice stopped her. "Are you Miss Brewster?" it asked.

Virginia's hand paused in midair. She was, for an instant, unable to move. Again doubt of Nathaniel was filling her mind with torturous conjectures. Then she lifted the instrument and brought herself to say with a brave measure of calm, "Yes, I'm Miss Brewster; may I speak to Mr. Dann?"

"Niel is out," the other voice returned brightly. "This is Chiri Mond. I recognized your voice, Miss Brewster. Shall I ask Niel to call you when he comes in?"

"No, thank you, Miss Mond. I'm going out immediately. Just tell Nathaniel I called, will you?"

When the connection was broken Chiri congratulated herself upon her good luck. She had found Nathaniel at work a few minutes before, as he had told Virginia he meant to be, and as Harkness was not using her that afternoon Nathaniel had asked her to pose for half an hour or so. He wanted to finish up the illustrations in which he was using her before beginning work upon the murals.

He had discovered himself to be short of colors and had gone out to get them only about a minute ahead of Virginia's call.

"Fat chance I'll tell him she called," Chiri cloated while she waited for Nathaniel's return. "And if she recognized my voice she'll have something to think about."

Virginia did indeed have something to think about. She understood that Chiri might be in the studio at this hour as a model but . . . why had she been there so early that morning? And why had she pretended, when she answered the telephone at that time, that it was not Niel's number . . . then he must have known what Chiri had done.

Virginia's cheeks blazed with outraged pride. Could Niel deceive her for a girl like Chiri Mond? And now—at this time when her head was already bowed with grief for her father! It was too cruel—too cruel to believe of Niel.

"There must be some explanation," Virginia protested against her fear that the only true explanation was one that would break her heart. "Niel couldn't do that," she cried over and over to herself.

She was sorry after a while that she had told Chiri she was going out. It had been a gesture of pride to say that. And to pay for making it she must forego asking Niel to spend the evening with her. The lingering bit of doubt that she could not remove from her mind made it impossible for her to telephone again and let Chiri know that she had been piqued if nothing more. The girl was sharp enough to see that. Virginia surmised.

Perhaps Niel would call her. Virginia found some comfort in the thought but it left her as the day wore on and she did not hear from him.

Niel, working away at high speed, forgot the hours, until the arrival of dusk compelled him to lay aside his brushes. Then his thoughts turned to Virginia. He would have liked to go to her but he knew that he never could bring himself to be a familiar of the Dean household. No, he would wait for her to call him; he believed it was understood that she would arrange their next meeting.

"Niel is out. This is Chiri Mond. Shall I ask Niel to call you?"

Virginia did not call him.

Just before dinner Clarissa had come to her room to tell her they would have company—Russell and a woman Virginia did not know.

"Sorry, dear, if it appears inconsiderate, but you see Mrs. Farley comes in rather often. I'd chuck her out tonight only it's just as well that you should meet her now as later. She's a widow Dad got chummy with while I was abroad. I rather hate her, myself."

Virginia gave up the idea of communicating with Nathaniel that evening. She felt she hardly could ask to be excused from dinner and then spend the evening in seclusion with Nathaniel. Neither could she think of seeing him with the others present—not with matters as they were between them.

"You'll be down, won't you?" Clarissa was saying, and Virginia thought she detected a note of anxiousness in her friend's voice.

"Yes," she nodded.

"That's fine," Clarissa declared earnestly. "Wear something attractive."

She did not stay to answer any questions as to why she wanted Virginia to "wear something attractive" for Mrs. Farley, and Virginia set the remark down as having no particular meaning.

But the question was brought to her mind again when she met Mrs. Farley in the drawing room. She was there when Virginia came down, looking very lovely despite no attempt to do so. Her thin black dress enhanced the rose-tinged whiteness of her skin and brought out the undertone of gold in her hair.

Virginia was aware that Mrs. Farley was taking her measure, weighing her appearance, even as the latter made some sympathetic remark about her loss. Why should any woman be particularly interested in her appearance, Virginia wondered?

Besides, she was a trifle disturbed. Mrs. Farley's manner appeared friendly, but Virginia was not obtuse, and she sensed a hidden animosity behind the soft hand pat and low-pitched words.

Clarissa was watching with poorly concealed interest the effect Virginia's beauty was having upon the older woman. She seemed satisfied with what she saw. At any rate her lips curled slowly in a smile of triumph.

And when Mr. Dean came forward and placed an arm in fatherly attitude across her shoulders Virginia was certain she detected disapproval in the slight lift of Mrs. Farley's eyebrows.

At the table there was a moment that threatened to become uncomfortable before Mrs. Farley turned it off with a hollow little laugh.

She had gone to a place beside Dean, with the manner of one accustomed to sitting there, and stood waiting for her chair to be pulled back for her.

Clarissa floated us and said easily, "Oh, my dear, would you mind sitting over there beside Russell? You know so much psychology. He's dying to discuss the Oedipus complex with you."

Russell was heard faintly to gasp and mutter something dark and dismal. Frederick Dean started slightly and Virginia stared at Clarissa in amazement, but sensing that she was asking Mrs. Farley to take another place so that she, Virginia, could have the place of honor.

Slight as the incident was it seemed to hold them all in a spell of awkwardness for no one could mistake the flash of real anger that flared in Mrs. Farley's countenance. Clarissa waited, with an insolent air of satisfaction, against which Mrs. Farley was helpless.

Virginia was just going to say she'd like to sit by Russell herself when Mrs. Farley broke the tension with a laugh and moved away from the place that she knew Clarissa meant for Virginia.

Clarissa motioned Virginia to it. The dinner was a failure so far as the conversation was concerned. There was talk, of course, but it was not spontaneous, not friendly. Only Clarissa appeared to be pleased, except when Russell looked at Virginia too long and too admiringly.

Afterward no one objected when Virginia said good night and left them to a game of bridge. Russell would have done so but he caught a glance from Clarissa that silenced him.

"Beautiful, isn't she?" Clarissa murmured, addressing Mrs. Farley. "For her type," she replied. "Pity it's so common."

"It's about as common as hen's teeth," Russell remarked inelegantly.

"Oh, well," Clarissa said, backing wafer now, "of course gray eyes and brown hair aren't rare, Russell."

"Maybe not," Russell admitted, "but there's something to Miss Brewster besides hair and eyes; she's got IT."

It was now Mrs. Farley's turn to smile at Clarissa's expense. She knew that Dean's daughter wanted to worry her about Virginia Brewster; and in doing so Clarissa had caused the weapon she used—the girl's beauty—to be pointed directly at herself.

Clarissa threw down the cards. "I can't stand this stupid game any longer," she cried petulantly. "Let's do something."

"How about a club?" Russell contributed.

"I hear the Chez Secret Service has some devilish dancers," Mrs. Farley remarked disinterestedly.

Clarissa glanced at her keenly. "I know what you're after," she thought. "You want us to get out and leave you alone with Dad."

"Care to go out, old boy?" she asked her father.

"I think not. I'm sure you three will have more sport without me."

Mrs. Farley looked at him hard. "I'm not up to a club tonight," she said firmly. "I'll stay for parcheesi."

Russell groaned. "Come on, Claret,"—he called Clarissa that at times—"these people are dangerous."

Clarissa saw that her father was annoyed. She pushed back her chair and got up.

"I hope you won't lose your heads at . . . parcheesi," she said with a taunting smile.

Harris County Berry Crop Huge Success

HOUSTON, Texas, June 28. (AP)—A farmer by birth but a civil engineer by trailing, Harry K. Johnson, now of Houston, has combined his engineering knowledge with his farming heritage to develop one of the best strawberry farms in this section of the state.

Mr. Johnson has under cultivation 446 acres of strawberries on the Baytown road, 16 miles from the city limits of Houston. The berry crop, planted by hand, followed peas and beans earlier in the year, and Mr. Johnson expects the 4,600,000 strawberry plants to bring him $800 an acre this season. The plants will produce for three additional seasons.

JOSEPH FORT NEWTON

By JOSEPH FORT NEWTON

Dr. Joseph Fort Newton was preacher at the City Temple, London, during the world war. He is the former editor of the Master Mason, The Christian Century, and is connected editorially with McCall's Magazine.

He has also served as grand chaplain of the Masonic lodge, is the author of 16 books, many pamphlets on Masonic and patriotic topics, and has written countless essays. Is now pastor of the Memorial church of St. Paul at Philadelphia.

"My favorite joke," the reverend one told me, "must be preceded by some atmospheric description.

"All over England there are quaint little inns with picturesque signs hanging over the front door—usually carrying a picture which tells the story of the inn's name. Near Oxford is one inn call The Old Man of Troubles, and over the door hangs a picture of an old man with a pack of troubles on his back. The bag is open, so that one can see the things that make the troubles of the world—a woman, a pack of cards, a bottle of gin and a monkey.

"One day a student of Oxford, a huge, husky athlete, came to this inn and stood studying the sign. He found that he liked it very much. After satisfying himself as to its accuracy, he went inside and filled up with beer. Being in a rather happy and groggy mood when he came out, he lifted the sign down, tucked it under his arm and started back to Oxford.

"Naturally the innkeeper was greatly distressed, but he did not want to tackle a man of such dimensions, so he called his neighbors to his aid and together they followed the athlete down the lane. At the next village others joined in, and by the time they reached Oxford there was quite a congregation. The student was not in the least disturbed. Finally he turned into the campus and was confronted by the dean, who said:

"'I say, old chap, is this your crowd, and if so, what do they want?'

"In words as unsteady as his gait, the athlete replied: 'A wicked and adulterous generation seeketh for a sign, but no sign shall be given.'"

HEALTH and DIET ADVICE

By DR. FRANK McCOY
Author of "The Fast Way to Health"

Questions in regard to health and diet will be answered by Mr. McCoy who can be addressed in care of this paper.

Our Third Set of Teeth

There were teeth before there dentists—but there were also tooth aches. Since a tooth pain is about as agonizing a thing as one can feel, various races in the past have found means of extracting the teeth. Tongs or pincers were used by some of them for this purpose, but the original method was to hammer the tooth loose with a mallet and crude bone maul so that it could be pulled out with the fingers. In some countries, various prayer methods were used in cases of tooth ache, and even yet in Catholic territories, St. Appollonia is the patron saint of tooth ache.

The Chinese have a very effective method of curing tooth ache by puncturing the gum under the aching tooth and inserting capsicum or some other counter-irritant into the wound. This is still a useful remedy. You should have a small vial of tincture of capsicum in your home, and the next time you have a tooth ache, just dip a small piece of cotton on the end of a toothpick into the capsicum and then place the cotton in the cavity of the tooth. This will usually give immediate relief. Be careful not to get any of the capsicum on the tongue, however, since it is manufactured out of the same kind of hot stuff as Tabasco sauce.

The art of manufacturing false teeth is not a new one, since the Eskimo and a few other primitive races manufactured false teeth by carrying them out of tusks, hard bones, and horns of various animals.

Some aborigines have a very painful and useless custom of mutilating the teeth by knocking out or filing down to a point some of their front teeth. This is considered a proof of their courage and an enhancement of their beauty. At least there may be some truth in the first statement.

There are said to have been several individuals who grew a third set of teeth, but most of us will have to be satisfied with our third set in the way the dentists make them.

The dentists have developed a wonderful skill in advancing their profession. It may be interesting to my readers to know that many dentists are referring their patients to my menus for keeping their teeth in good condition. They are realizing that teeth may be destroyed as much by acidosis as by uncleanliness, and that the daily use of the tooth brush will not magically brush away the cause of tooth decay when the teeth require special foods containing mineral elements for their nourishment.

In treating pyorrhea, it is advisable that a patient go on an orange juice fast for a few days to alkalinize the blood and then to a dentist for local treatments. If the patient will then follow a correctly combined diet during the course of his dental treatments he is sure to get more permanent results.

Do not have teeth pulled unless absolutely necessary. Children should be encouraged to chew whole raw vegetables, such as carrots, turnips, cucumbers, beets and celery. The fibers of these vegetables will require enough chewing to strengthen the teeth and pretty nearly keep them clean. And, most important, these vegetables will supply the elements to maintain the teeth's nourishment.

The foods that are best suited for tooth development are: spinach, lettuce, tomatoes, celery, beets and beet greens, blackberries, figs, asparagus, cucumbers, dandelions, strawberries, watercress, cabbage, turnips, milk, rutabagas, pine nuts and cottage cheese.

Questions and Answers

Question: Anxious writes: "Please tell me is it possible for a person to have pernicious anemia and high blood pressure at the same time? What would be the cure?"

Answer: Pernicious anemia and high blood pressure seldom go together but it is quite common to see secondary anemia with arterial hypertension. Diet is the most prominent factor in the treatment of any of these conditions, but I would have to know more about the particular case in question before it would be wise to give any definite advice.

Question: Mother writes: "My baby two years old has 15 teeth, but there are two milk teeth that will not come through. Why is that, and should the gums be lanced?"

Answer: Do not be too quick to lance the gums. The full set of milk teeth, 20 in all, does not come through until the child is about three years of age. If you will give the baby plenty of greens and milk he will be sure to develop a good set of teeth.

Question: Reader asks: "Can a dropped stomach be cured, and how?"

Answer: A prolapsed stomach can always be raised to its proper position through taking the "setting-up" exercises. If any adhesions exists which are holding the stomach down, these must be broken loose first by manipulative treatment.

Question: Mrs. H. G. writes: "I read your article in which you stated that asthma could be cured by diet. Will you kindly tell me what the diet is?"

Answer: The answer to your question is too long to be printed in this column. If you will send me a large, self-addressed, stamped envelope, I will be glad to send you full instructions.

Texas and Arizona Get Protection in Hearing

WASHINGTON, June 28. (AP)—Arizona and Texas were declared to be entitled to protection as fully as Florida by J. E. Bristol of the Nogales, Ariz., Chamber of Commerce, who appeared before the tariff commission to oppose an application for increased duty on tomatoes.

Bristol also introduced credentials from the chambers of commerce of Yuma, Tucson and Phoenix, Ariz., naming him to represent them in opposing the higher tariffs sought by Florida growers and the American Farm Bureau Federation.

GENEVA, June 28. (UP)—Canada today ratified the League of Nations opium convention, and thus made it possible for the convention to become operative next September, as but one more ratification was needed.

SPUDS TRIM BUFFS THIRD STRAIGHT AND NEAR SECOND PLACE

WITCHES BAT 10 TO 1 WIN

Mike Cvengros Holds Snyders to Six Hits

HOUSTON, Texas, June 28.—The Wichita Falls Spudders will be champions of the Texas league until the end of the first half of the 1928 season tomorrow. And the Spudders played like real champions again today, to trounce the Houston Buffs, who tomorrow night will be the new titleholders. The score today was 10 to 1 and it was the third straight victory scored by Jim Galloway's men over the Buffaloes.

The Spudders hammered Lindsey and Carleton for 14 hits, while Mike Cvengros chucked superb ball. The southpaw permitted only six blows, struck out three and issued only one base on balls.

Ed Roetz, Spudder rookie, led the attack with a home run, double and single. Eldred banged two doubles; Fitzgerald a double and single; Jenkins two hits and Stanton a double. Every Spudder batted safely except Turgeon.

Fast Fielding Helps

Both clubs fielded sensationally, Cvengros making the only error of the game. Roetz, Swenson and Eldred in particular flashed some nifty defensive work.

The Spudders now are only half a game out of second place, by winning today, while Fort Worth was losing one to Beaumont. Victory tomorrow in the final of the first half would give Wichita Falls the runnerup berth if the Cats lose.

Wichita Falls tallied in the first inning when Roetz doubled and scored on Fitzgerald's single to center. The Spudders counted again in the second, when Stanton hit for two bases and was sent home on Cvengros' single. Doubles by Fitzgerald and Eldred scored Howard in the sixth.

Carleton to Mound

Carleton went to the hill in the seventh and allowed a run that round, when Roetz hit for the circuit over the left field fence.

The Spudders scored three in the eighth. Fitzgerald and Eldred strolled. Jenkins singled, Eldred scoring. Swenson sacrificed to Carleton. Stanton lifted to Worthington, Eldred scoring and Jenkins going to third. Tom ambled home on Smith's single to left.

Just to help the old averages along, the Spudders marked up a trio of tallies in the ninth. Fitzgerald and Eldred walked again after one was out. Jenkins doubled to center, scoring Brick and Howard, or rather, in their sequence, Howard and Brick. Jenkins went on to third on a wild pitch while Swenson was striking out. Stanton strolled. Jenkins scampered home and Stanton to second on a double steal.

Barr Struck by Bottle And Escapes Other Missles

SAN ANTONIO, Texas, June 28. (AP)—Shreveport won the first game, 5 to 4, in 11 innings, while San Antonio copped the nightcap, 5 to 3, but not until a cushion and pop bottle shower was staged as the outgrowth of an umpirical boot.

In the fourth Umpire Hayes at first base called Meyers of the Bears safe on a double play and after the Sports protested he conferred with Umpire Countryman, and declared the runner out.

Then Umpire Barr at third base ordered Riviere, coaching at first base, out of the game, which started an uproad from the fans, and cushions and pop bottles were hurled at Barr, one bottle narrowly missing his head and another striking him on the hip. Score:

DAILY DOPE

By Larry Dailey

THE "SLUMP" of the New York Yankees, feared by some scribes of Manhattan following the unimpressive trip west of the champions, has failed to materialize. The Yankees have gone along, winning enough games to hover around the .750 mark or better, while their foremost threat, the Athletics, apparently have been removed as a serious menace.

BUCKY HARRIS' Senators knocked off the Mackmen this week, and the hopes of the tall tactician again are blighted. The veterans assembled by Connie could not deliver a smashing blow to Mack, who since dismantling that wonderful machine of 1910-1914 has been striving desperately and futilely to win a pennant. The Yankees won't be halted this season and maybe not next year. All American league clubs, excepting the Athletics, are in the throes of rebuilding. It is youngsters who must stop the champions. The success of the youthful Browns and Red Sox has been the only highlight in the American league campaign. Detroit, like Philadelphia, has been a flop and reconstruction of the Tigers will be under way soon. It is hinted that George Moriarty will be deposed as boss of the Jungaleers. However, that is only a rumor. That Frank Navin will send a flock of his athletes on their way seems certain, but the Detroit boss is said to highly regard Moriarty as a manager and will retain him.

THE CARDINALS are making something of a runaway race in the National league, but the halfway mark isn't reached yet and the end isn't in sight. The Cubs have been disappointments and the Reds faltered after a brave start and seem to be out of the reckoning. The Pirates loom as the club to make a fight and the Giants are highly rated. Brooklyn recently showed a rejuvenation, after a fast start and sudden ascension.

Add last words: "Is it hot enough for you?"

THE FIGHT BY ROUNDS

HOUSTON, Texas, June 28.—Alabama delegate led with a hurrah for Heflin. California delegate countered with three cheers for Al. They clinched. Iowa delegate landed three boos on Oklahoma delegate. Oklahoma delegate countered with four hisses. They clinched. Missouri delegate sent uppercut of five cheers for Reed. New York delegate shot six huzzas for Smith. They clinched. Eight policemen landed with night sticks and the delegates hung on. One-Eyed Connelly crashed the gate. New Jersey delegate sent an effective shout for Smith but Texas delegate countered with a vociferous roar for Moody. They clinched. Tex Rickard counted the house. Wyoming delegate won the round with a volley to the Glass chin but Tennessee delegate rallied in a sensational comeback by massing its attack with a Daniel stand. They clinched. The bell ended the fight with the principals, spectators and cops exhausted and everybody wondering what it was all about. Referee Joe Robinson called it a draw but the popular verdict was for Smith. Al has been named by the promoters to meet Herbert Hoover, the G. O. P. heavyweight hope, for the championship in November.

PARELLI MEETS SINGH MONDAY

Ladies' Night Is Observed At Wrestling Show

Another rough and tough mat battle, with Joe Parelli and Bansanta Singh, the wrestling Hindu, locking horns, has been scheduled by Alec Ross on a mixed wrestling and boxing card to be staged Monday night in Spudder park.

Monday night will be "ladies night," according to Ross.

Hard Mill Forecast

Parelli and Singh, from past performances in Wichita Falls, should put up a batle worth seeing, according to Ross.

On the last card, staged Tuesday night, Parelli came within an ace of trimming Billy Hallas.

Singh whipped Jack Reynolds in a mat "revue" staged here several weeks ago. And whipping Reynolds is something rather difficult to perform.

Owens Boxes Anderson

Johnny Owens and Alvie Anderson, who were compelled to stop a six-round bout Tuesday night due to an injury sustained by Owens, will start another six-round battle Monday night.

Tommy Walton, who took a decision over Kenneth Adams, will hook up with Martin Craig and the opener will be a bout between Henry Adams and Jim Newell.

Ross has scheduled the card for Monday night in order that Wichita Falls merchants, who will be busy Tuesday night, can view the scraps.

THREE U. S. STARS ELIMINATED IN WIMBLEDON TENNIS MEET

HENNESSEY AND TILDEN VICTORS

Lott, Coen and Wood Lose; Miss Jacobs Defeated

WIMBLEDON, England, June 28. (UP)—Three United States tennis stars—George Lott, Wilbur F. Coen, Jr., and Sidney Wood—were swept out of the men's singles today, leaving only William Tilden II and John Henessey to carry on the campaign in the all-England tennis championships.

As if to warn the United States of the tremendous task it faces in attempting to wrest the Davis cup from France, seven Frenchmen gained places in the last 17 of the men's singles.

John and Bill Win

Henessey beat G. R. Sherwell of England, 6-4, 7-5, 6-2, and Tilden beat Baron de Kehrling of Hungary, 6-2, 6-3, 6-1.

Rene La Coste, French ace, defeated Lott, the young Chicago star, 6-1, 9-7, 6-8, 6-2. Pierre Landry, young Frenchman, eliminated Wood, 4-6, 6-1, 6-1, 8-6. H. W. Austin, young Engishman, outsteadied Coen to win, 6-1, 9-7, 6-8, 6-2.

The gloom which cast its shadow over the United States in the men's singles extended to the women's singles when Miss Daphne Akhurst of Australia eliminated Miss Helen Jacobs, California girl, 6-8, 6-1, 8-6.

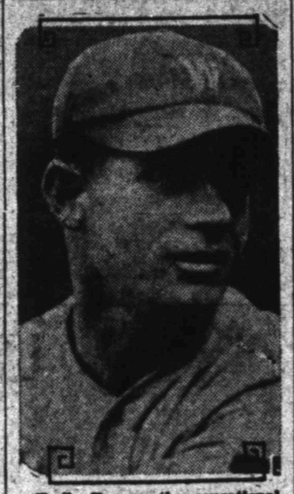

Three U. S. Women Win

The United States has three representatives left in the women's singles, Miss Helen Wills, Miss Penelope Anderson, and Miss Elizabeth Ryan. Miss Wills entered the last 16 by crushing Mlle. V. Gally of France, 6-0, 6-0.

Miss Wills and Francis T. Hunter won their first round match in the doubles from J. Koszeluh and Miss M. Slaney, 6-1, 6-2.

Rookie Star

Emile Barnes, the sensational rookie of the Washington Senators, whose batting and fielding has been a feature of the recent excellent play of the Nats.

Ritt's Ritticisms

By BILL RITT

St. Louis, says a report, is getting ready for a world's series for the Cardinals this year. They might buy those seats Brooklyn built several years ago and didn't use.

Ruth's batting average has fallen off so these last few days that the only thing the Babe hits is homers.

This new book about life on a submarine may have been written by one of the Chicago White Sox.

The golf cuss is that part of the links where most balls are lost.

Most Americans will soon forget how President Woodrow Wilson looked. His picture now appears only on $1000 bills.

The coffee guzzling champ who lives in Newark, N. J., must feel pretty old-fashioned now that an English girl has won the cocktail shaking title.

The Chicago White Sox have just signed up a kid pitcher who wants to make good in the big leagues. A glance at the standings makes it look as though someone has played a trick on him.

GARDEN CITY, Kan., June 28. (UP)—Wheat and sugar beet growers expressed fear today that rains which were continuing this morning would damage their crops severely.

TUNNEY PLANS SECRET DRILLS

Gene's Move Viewed Hokum To Create Interest

Reports from Speculator have it that Gene Tunney has not only resorted to secret training several times to date, but plans to continue these private workouts much of the time while tuning up for his match with Heeney.

The battle occurs five days after the anniversary of the first battle of Bull Run, which may or may not have any tangible significance regarding the exact status of these reports.

In drawing the curtains about the ring at times Tunney is not only departing from his usual custom, but is joining the ranks of the usual—which is unusual for the Shakespearian Gene.

Tunney trained in the open during his contender days, for his title fight with Dempsey and his second meeting with the dethroned king. There was no mystery thrown around his condition at any of these training camps.

Why the Atmosphere?

Why the need of creating such an atmosphere now?

Has his increased weight and the year's layoff checked his speed, timing and punching to the point where he is worried about it?

Is it merely a "press agent" move to draw his training camp activities out of the routine?

Is it a lot of hokum to create the impression that he is really worried over the outcome of his meeting with the Englishman and to thereby increase interest in a fight that isn't arousing the expected amount of hysteria?

Most likely the latter.

Gene Does Odd Things

One interesting angle of the matter, however, is brought up by one who was close to Tunney the day he ascended the throne and still remains among his admirers. That is that Tunney at the time of signing for his second battle with Dempsey, bemoaned the fact that other interests prevented him from devoting more than eight weeks to training for the bout. Now, however, he elects to spend a bit less than six weeks in preparing for Heeney. This despite the fact that the champion is older and heavier, and with a year's inactivity to be overcome.

Does Tunney belittle Heeney's ability? Is the champion falling into the groove that has tripped other champions—the hatred of the training grind?

Tunney has done many odd things since hopping into the fistic limelight, but his most recent moves have—on the face of things—been the most mysterious of any.

55 MILLION RUBBER TREES may still be enough for Dunlop

HOW is it that 55,000,000 rubber trees may still suffice to supply Dunlop . . . despite the great gains in Dunlop sales?

The reason is as important as it is simple:

Working on Dunlop's own rubber plantations, Dunlop scientists have made astounding strides toward increasing the yield per rubber tree.

Do you realize the importance of this achievement? Of Dunlop's many contributions to the progress of rubber, this is the greatest. It has tended to lower rubber prices throughout the world. It has helped to broaden the market for rubber products.

And, it has made it possible for you to buy peak-quality tires such as Dunlops, at the lowest price-per-mile of all time.

How has Dunlop grown so great that the rubber from 55,000,000 trees is required? Has this success been due to more and better rubber . . . more and better cotton in each tire? Is it due to the superb service rendered by Dunlop dealers?

Those are incidental causes. The bigger fact is this:

Millions of motorists have stuck to Dunlops year in and year out. Their friends have been amazed at the endurance of Dunlops. Each year, thousands of new users have adopted them.

26,000,000 Dunlop tires are now in use. If you would profit from the experience of these millions of motorists, your next tires will be Dunlops.

DUNLOP

"DUNLOP CITY"

Supreme in quality for 40 years, Dunlop has grown until its productive properties—if combined in one place—would form a vast "Dunlop City" of over 100,000 acres. . . . 4 times as big as the great city of Pittsburg

Dunlop challenges the world for the title, "THE WORLD'S GREATEST TIRE." Buy one for your car, run it against any tire; keep track of the cost per mile, and then buy your future tires as the test shows you should. FOR ECONOMY'S SAKE YOU OWE YOURSELF THIS TEST.

SECTIONS LOSE IN POLITICS

Victory of Al and Hoover Mark New Era

By RODNEY DUTCHER

CONVENTION HALL, HOUSTON, June 28.—There was a situation at Kansas City and there was a situation at Houston.

Through these two situations ran a remarkable parallel. At Kansas City they were going to stop Hoover. They didn't. At Houston they were going to stop Al Smith. They didn't.

The backbone of both attempts was sectional. The middlewest was going to stop Hoover. The south was going to stop Smith, with the aid of the two-thirds rule. Both flopped miserably. Perhaps that proved no section of this nation—no sectional interest and no sectional prejudice—will ever again exert a dominating influence on the national politics or a vote on the presidential nominations.

Battle Ahead

But the academic angle may be left aside. The question that is bothering the politicians—the boys whose business it is to get the votes, the boys who feed at the trough—is the question whether these two candidates can break into the states which, under ordinary circumstances would be reserved for either the Republican or Democratic candidate.

Your correspondent, whose guess is no better and no worse than that of any one else, suspects that the states which are normally Republican and Democratic will be respectively Republican and Democratic in 1928.

This suggestion is not based upon the prophesy of any seer or soothsayer. It is based only upon the past performances of these states and confidential advices of the political leaders of these states, interviewed first at Kansas City and then at Houston.

"They're giving us an awful job, but we'll break our necks trying to do it and with good luck we can elect him," said the politicians from Nebraska, Iowa, Kansas and the Dakotas as it became perfectly obvious that Hoover would be nominated.

"It's a tough proposition, but we'll break our necks trying to put him over and we ought to be able to do it," say the politicians of Texas, Tennessee, Kentucky, Florida and the rest of the so-called solid south, following the nomination of Smith.

Doubtful States

They are, unquestionably, doubtful states this year. The border states, for instance, are doubtful. The eastern states, such as Massachusetts, New Jersey, Connecticut, Rhode Island and, some Republicans will add, New York, are doubtful.

In these states one will find, right up to the November election, Republicans predicting victory for the Republican ticket and Democrats predicting victory for the Democratic ticket.

But for that matter, the negro Republican politicians of the solid south will be predicting victory for Hoover, which indicates that the word of a politician doesn't mean very much anyway. When a Republican in an ordinary Republican state expresses doubt of the result in an ordinary Republican state after the nominations are over, that is likely to be significant, and when a Democrat in an ordinarily Democratic state does as much as regard his state, the same thing follows.

Today one finds Republicans in Wisconsin predicting that Wisconsin will go for Al Smith. Republicans in Minnesota perdict a tough fight. Republicans in the Dakotas say they will have to work but Nebraska and Iowa seem to be fairly safe for the Republicans, and there is no question about Kansas, of course.

Democrats in the border states of Tennessee, Kentucky and Oklahoma have been promising the Smith leaders that they would deliver a Democratic electoral vote. North Carolina leaders have not been promising anything of the sort and Republicans are jubilant over Smith's nomination. But the powerful machine of Senator, Furnifold Simmons, which opposed Smith so bitterly, will swing in behind Smith and do its best to carry the state for him, if only to save its present majority of Democratic congressmen.

"We could have nominated a dry Protestant and have won with the West and the South," a leader of the machine told your correspondent.

"But now we're nominating a wet Catholic. It will make the fight a great deal harder, but I don't see why we can't win with a combination of the North and South."

Up to Smith

Southern Democratic leaders already reconciled to the Smith nomination, are almost unanimous in repressing the idea that it is up to Smith to make good in the northeast. They believe they can hold the South, even the border states. But they are not optimistic over Smith's chances of penetrating the farm belt.

They realize that with the South and with such northern states as he hopes to carry, he can win with a modicum of electorial votes from the West. But they are skeptical as to his ability to carry those states which have not gone Democratic since the Civil war or since the disastrous Republican split of 1912.

One hears from members of the Tennessee delegation that the recent order of Secretary of Commerce Hoover which ended race segregation in the offices of the census bureau in Washington offers them the best talking point in their repertoire.

Some other delegations do not seem even to have heard of this order, but the Tennesseeians are vociferous in their insistence that it will have an important effect on the election in their state.

Refuse to Vote

Nearly all the southerners agree that a large number of Democrats will refrain from voting in November this year, either on account of Smith's religion, his wet record or his Tammany affiliations. Those from the border states say this is their biggest handicap, that Smith will clean up in the southern states but will be ignored by stay-at-homes in the rural districts.

An Alabama state official who is a member of the Ku Klux Klan, said to your correspondent, perhaps significantly: "Originally I would have voted for Hoover. But I've got to thinking. Down here we're all Democrats. Why give up our tradition. That nigger order of his isn't going to appeal to the klan. I've about decided that I'll stay home on election day."

"Huh," said the Georgian who introduced your correspondent to the Alabama man, "by election day he'll be voting for Smith."

Georgia, the same speaker explained, can't possibly go Republican because the Republican party there is entirely negroid. The same goes for several other southern states.

How States Voted On First Ballot

Demo Platform For Farm Relief

was a declaration for state's rights, cherished by southern leaders and used by northern wets as a basis of attack upon the eighteenth amendment.

The second plank, headed "Republican corruption," sounded the keynote of the platform.

It described agriculture as prostrate, American shipping as destroyed, workmen without employment and "everywhere disgust and suspicion."

"Sordid corruption and unabashed rascality," "compounded frauds," "shocking thieveries," and "startling depravities," were some of the terms used in this plank.

"Turn the Rascals Out"

"The watchword of the day should be: 'Turn the rascals out'," the plank stated, borrowing a phrase from Andrew Jackson and the Senator James A. Reed campaign.

"To this end, every minor difference on non-essential issues should be put aside and a determined and a united fight be made to rescue government from those who have betrayed their trust by disgracing it," the corruption plank concluded.

The platform promised stringent economy in government by business-like reorganization of the departments; elimination of waste and substitution of business-like methods, for existing obsolete and antiquated conditions."

Debt Retirement

The finance and taxation plank promised retirement of the public debt within reasonable time and denounced the policy of levying taxes for revenue beyond the necessities of government.

In regard to the long disputed tariff issues the platform said Democratic tariff legislation would hereafter be based upon theories of maintaining legitimate business in the tariff commission, levying duties to permit effective competition, insuring against monopolies and yet producing fair revenues, equitable distribution of the tariff burden among all.

The Republican administration has no foreign policy, the foreign relations plank charged. It stated the United States could not afford to play a minor part in world affairs. It laid down a dozen principles upon which it would base its foreign policies.

Foreign Problems

It included: Outlawry of war; "freedom from entangling political alliance with foreign nations;" protection of Aemrican lives and rights; non-interference in the domestic affairs of foreign countries, including particularly Mexico, Nicaragua and all other Latin-American nations; promotion of international arbitration, conciliation and limitation of armaments by agreement and free competition with other nations for promotion of peace and justice; abolition of the practice of permitting the president to enter de facto or de jure agreements with foreign countries; recognition of the Monroe doctrine.

The foreign relations plank also condemned the administration for failure to enforce limitations of armaments and charged there is now a "race between nations" in the building of unlimited weapons of destructions.

Waterpower, waterways and flood control were written under the same heading in a plank which favored a Great Lakes to Gulf and Atlantic waterway; and favored expeditious construction of flood relief works on the Mississippi and Colorado rivers; promised surveys to determine feasibility of developing navigable streams and favored strict enforcement of the water power act.

Labor Plank

The labor plank offered to defend the right of collective bargaining. It stated labor should be exempt from operation of anti-trust laws. It condemned abuse in issuance of court injunctions against labor and pledged its support to legislation to correct this evil. It favored legislation to prevent shipment in interstate commerce of goods made by convict labor. The plank offered virtually all that labor asked.

Restrictive immigration was adopted as a policy in the immigration plank but the statement was made that provisions of the present law separating families should be repealed.

Other Planks

Following is a summary of other important planks:

Coal—The party promised constructive legislation to allow capital and labor a fair share of prosperity with adequate protection to the consuming public.

Campaign expenditures—Favored publicity of contributions and expenditures. Promised as the Republicans did, to file reports every thirty days during the coming campaign.

Merchant marine—Favored retirement of government-operated lines to private interests as fast as feasible. Opposed monopolies.

Anti-trust laws—Promised vigorous enforcement, saying "dishonest business should be treated without influence at the national capital."

Congressional elections—Favored legislation to eliminate lame ducks.

Unemployment — Favored adoption of a scientific legislative plan to regulate government construction work and thus diminish unemployment.

Veterans — Generous appropriations, honest management, removal of vexatious administrative delays and sympathetic assistance.

Women and children—Protection of children against exploitation: opposition to exploitation of women in industry; favor an equal wage for equal service.

Transportation—Promised equal opportunity to compete by land, water or rail, "so that governmental regulations against exorbitant rates and inefficiency will be aided by competition."

Will Rogers At Dem Convention

about him last night, but when they left the hall and the Smith delegates got their corkscrews working, George was left stranded on a pile of emptys higher than the convention hall. Everybody was disappointed that Jim Reed didn't nominate himself, and after Jim heard the man that did it, I imagine he wished he had. Jim Reed could have taken that convention crowd and had 'em hollering their badges off.

Franklin Roosevelt, a fine and wonderful man, who has devoted his life to nominating Al Smith, did his act from memory. Franklin Roosevelt could have gotten far in the Democratic party himself but he has this act all perfected and don't like to go to the trouble of learning something else. So he just seems satisfied going through life nominating Al Smith.

It was a fine speech. It always has been. But it's always been ahead of its time. Now he has 'em believing it. The only part I didn't agree with is where he said Al was "good to women and children and dumb animals," and he insinuated that the Republican president and nominee were not.

Now Franklin, you are wrong about the Republicans and the dumb animals. They just thrive on dumb animals. They are like Lincoln with the poor. They must love 'em for they have so many of them in the party, and I even believe that the Republicans like children, not perhaps as children, but they are the material of which voters are made in a few years. So I believe the Republicans would be kind to 'em just so they would grow into manhood quicker.

Governor Ritchie, who jumped when he saw the horse first get scared, and not after the runaway had gotten dangerous, made his usual to the point, and forceful speech, seconding his own farsightedness. It was just on the verge of a cabinet speech.

I have heard so much at this convention about "getting back to the old Jeffersonian principles" that being an amateur, I am in doubt as to why they left them in the first place. All you hear about here is the amount of graft and corruption, but each man wants to put his nominee where it is going on. Why, if these officers are as bad as they say they are, I wouldn't want a decent friend of mine to even want to go in them.

They are stalling with the platform, and when it is ready there is not a wire walker in America that can stand on it.

But, say, the jokes are all on the convention, and no one can find one on the town. I haven't heard one speck of criticism of the way the whole thing has been handled. It's been simply marvelous. The whole state has done its part. Beautiful hall, hospitality and how, and the weather has always been a cool breeze, and nights you sleep good when you get a chance. Old Texas has done herself proud, and if they don't get a winner out of it, it won't be the fault of hers.

It's got to a point here now where state delegations will "caucus" on a half quart. For Texas, and Houston, Viva Senor Smith!

Wichita State Votes Dividend

The board of directors of the Wichita State Bank and Trust company declared a 5 per cent semi-annual dividend, payable June 30, at a meeting Wednesday afternoon. The directors expressed themselves pleased with present business conditions and the outlook for this section.

Good Crowd Attends Vaudeville at Park

Pierce Arrows and Fords rubbed bumpers as their owners listened to the vaudeville program at Bellevue park Thursday night. It was the largest crowd of the season, according to C. C. Bunnenberg, superintendent of parks.

The high wind made it difficult to understand some of the songs in parts of the park, but the majority of the numbers were distinct. The Panhandle band was the feature of the evening.

Owl and Two Hawks Added to Muny Zoo

A new monkey faced owl and two hawks are now watching the crowds file by their cages in the Lions club municipal zoo at Scotland park, according to C. C. Bunnenberg, park superintendent. G. W. Touchtone, 101 Oriole, gave the owl and Bass and Dillard are the donors of the hawks.

200 ATTEND LIONS PARTY

Iowa Park Club Host At Meeting

Special to The Record News

IOWA PARK, Texas, June 28.—More than 200 members of Lions clubs of seven north Texas towns attended an inter-city meet and picnic given by the local club at Coleman park here from 4 to 8 o'clock Thursday afternoon.

Dr. R. H. Graham, president of the Wichita Falls chapter and other Lions from Olney, Electra, Burkburnett, Vernon, Archer City, Wichita Falls and Iowa Park were present. Mr. and Mrs. Sam B. Spence were guests of R. O. White, secretary of the Iowa Park club.

A ball game between members of the Iowa Park club and a team selected from the visiting clubs ended in a 5-all tie.

The boy scout band of Wichita Falls and the Triangle band of Iowa Park furnished music for the evening.

Watermelons furnished by J. W. Belcher of Iowa Park topped off basket lunches before the inter-city meeting broke up.

Revolution Of Demos Visible

the Biblical phrases that would have come to Bryan's own lips to describe this ending of him and his influence and this change in the party he led. Bryan's heart lies in a hill-top grave looking down on the distant Washington.

Necessarily the passing of the glory of one man is merely the colorful symbol of something deeper. What the new regime signifies it is much too early to say. Certainly the leaders of the new regime have acted here with an urbanity and intelligence that makes the revolution less provocative of angry feelings than revolutions usually are. They have been all-powerful but they have not used their power ruthlessly. They have restrained themselves from using all the power they had. They wanted a prohibition plank more wet than the one they are getting. They could have produced a majority vote for any plank they wanted on any subject. They practiced moderation. They were far less ruthless than Bryan was when he, in his early turn, seized control of the party from an earlier regime.

Third Party Unlikely

Out of this convention, it is apparent there will arise no resentful third party, like the gold Democratic ticket of 1896. There will be, though, much voting the Republican ticket and, in the South especially much staying away from the polls. The precise extent of that will be a determining influence on the coming election.

That and the whole significance of the revolution that has occurred in these four days, will occupy many a thoughtful mind not only for the months until the election but for years to come. Historians and social philosophers will be identifying new meanings and new results of 50 years from now. Doubtless, as always before, they will discover some good and some not so good. The inquiry will include wide spreading fields, the city against the country, the influence of the metropolis on the nation, religious tolerance and religious prejudice, the budding industrialism of the South which wants a tariff, an apparent decline of the influence of the churches in the South, increasing city populations and desiring voting strength on the farms, the influence on eastern cities of the newer immigration of the past 40 years, the passing of old Bryan issues associated with banking and the arising of prohibition issue.

Hoover Busy With Farm Issue Work

WASHINGTON, June 28. (AP)—Republican position on farm relief legislation absorbed Secretary Hoover's personal attention today, although most of the day he shunted aside presidential campaign matters to plunge into a whirl of departmental business.

On the farm relief subject, the Republican nominee had the counsel of Governor Hammill of Iowa. The governor who was one of the corn belt leaders in the agitation for farm marketing legislation last winter, not only saw the secretary of the commerce department, but also went with him later to the Hoover home.

Secretary Work, now Republican national chairman, likewise was engaged chiefly in clearing up departmental business preparatory to resigning. But he also went over campaign problems, discussing its financing with J. R. Nutt, the national committee's treasurer.

The other leading Republican campaign figure, Senator Curtis of Kansas vice presidential nominee, however, left Washington today for a brief rest before launching his campaign fight. He went to Providence, R. I., to visit his daughter, Mrs. Webster Knight II.

Wichita Falls Pastors Have Picnic Today

Picnic fires will be burning for the ministers of Wichita Falls and their families in Boone's park Friday afternoon.

Dr. S. A. Barnes, pastor of the Floral Heights Methodist church, in charge of arrangements for the picnic, announced Thursday that those attending the picnic would meet at the Floral Heights church at 4 o'clock Friday afternoon, bringing their baskets. From the church they will proceed to the picnic grounds, where the "groceries" will be cooked.

City Lets Contract For Sewer Support

A contract for $275 to support a city drainage sewer in the Country Club estates park just off of Hamilton boulevard about a half a mile south of Speedway, was let Thursday by George D. Fairtrace, city manager, to R. C. Cato.

This is a trunk line sewer, Mr. Fairtrace explained, which drains a large district of the south portion of the city and is in need of support where it crossed a 30-foot depression. Building of the support will start at once.

STREET PATCHES

City at Work Repairing "Worst 100" Holes In Pavement

The "worst 100" holes in the streets of Wichita Falls are being filled with concrete by the street department.

Bad holes in the pavement in the business and near business districts have been cleaned out so that they will hold the repair cement. When enough are ready for the filling, the cement is mixed in the morning and the holes are smoothed over as quickly as possible.

George D. Fairtrace, city manager, said Thursday that this work is fully provided for in the budget for the year.

KILGORE TAKES ROTARY CHAIR

Hoffman Tells Appreciation Of Work

Luther Hoffman, retiring president of the Rotary club, spoke briefly of his appreciation for the work of members of the club in the work done during the year, as he delivered his swan song at the Rotary luncheon Thursday noon. He then introduced John Kilgore, new president, as "one of the best men in Wichita Falls."

Mr. Kilgore told the members that he planned to put the entire bunch of them to work in various ways and would stand for no "laying down on the job."

Walter Cline, international vice president, told of attending the convention of Rotary International at Minneapolis. Mr. Cline told local club members of a request he carried to President Coolidge that he address the gathering, but the president was so busy fishing, Mr. Cline said, that he did not have time even to send a greeting to the club.

This action of the national executive was contrasted to that of King Albert of Belgium, when the organization held its 1927 convention there. King Albert gave the official welcome in person.

The 44 nations in Rotary were represented by about 10,000 delegates, Mr. Cline said.

Gov. Al Smith As Nominee

we will have no trouble in outrunning the Republican party," Reed said.

Senator Reed, speaking to the convention, and through the radio, congratulated "the great governor of New York," and called upon every Democrat in the country to unite behind him to save the country "from what I regard as the greatest menace that the country has faced in my lifetime."

Reed expressed thanks to his friends for their support. Davis had previously called on the party to unite and go forward behind Smith.

Having nominated Al Smith, the convention recessed at 12:50 a. m. until 10:00 a. m. Friday.

SMITH'S HEART SUPPLANTS PALATE

ALBANY, N. Y., June 28. (AP)—Governor Alfred E. Smith heard himself nominated for the presidency tonight.

"My nomination on the first ballot," he said immediately after the balloting, "fills me with joy and satisfaction that I know is shared by family and friends, and my heart is where my palate ought to be."

This statement was all he would say at the time.

DETAILED ACCOUNT OF NIGHT SESSION

SAM HOUSTON HALL, HOUSTON, Texas, June 28. (AP)—Alfred E. Smith, four times governor of New York and long the favorite son of the Empire state Democracy, was nominated for the presidency tonight by the Democratic national convention.

A single ballot was sufficient to break through the last resistance of the group of candidates opposing him. Although at the conclusion of the roll call of the states he was a handful of votes short of the two-thirds needed to nominate, he was so near the mark that state after state broke away from the favorite sons they had been supporting, and vied in a noisy bandwagon rush to be the first to lay their support at his feet.

The official tabulation, after all changes of votes in favor of the leader had been recorded, gave the New Yorker 849 2-3 of the 1100 votes in the convention. He needed but 733 1-3 to nominate.

It was a weary set of delegates who straggled back to the auditorium after two tiresome day sessions, heavily laden with oratory in praise of favorite sons whose cause obviously was lost before the convention began.

As a preliminary to the session, the three big brass bands in the bleacher settings, got into a musical wrestling match of their own.

Moody Quits Fight

Just before the convention was rapped to order, word reached the auditorium that Governor Moody would wage no fight on the prohibition plank in the platform, apparently removing the big threat to a quick decision on nominees and an early edjournment.

Chairman Robinson called for attention at 8:38 p. m.

The invocation was delivered by the Rev. E. P. West, pastor of the Second Baptist church of Houston. He invoked blessings on the important session of the convention, as those in the convention hall stood at dead quiet.

Platform Read

Senator Key Pittman of Nevada, chairman of the resolutions committee, then brought the platform to the stand to read it to the convention.

The Nevada senator said farm leaders were called in the dealing with the farm plank and that expert testimony was heard on the prohibition plank. The farmers, he said, had told the committee they had received the sympathetic consideration they expected at the hands of the Democratic party. There was no complaint against any feature of the farm plank, he declared.

While Pittman was explaining his platform, word came that Governor Moody, while not disposed to make a fight on the prohibition plank calling for the enforcement of the eighteenth amendment and all other provisions of the constitution, would file a minority report for the record.

Tired With Oratory

The convention was fired with oratory and would hardly listen as the Nevada senator explained the efforts by which the committee had arrived at the platform pledges. There was much noise and confusion and once, when a gate-crasher at a far entrance was eased out with some show of force, Chairman Robinson broke in to beat a mighty tattoo with the heaviest duty weapon of his collection of gavels. Folks who wanted to talk could go outside, he said, and those who failed to do it voluntarily would be summarily "removed from this presence." Galleries and floor clapped loudly but kept right on talking more or less.

Pittman finally gave it up. He turned the platform reading over to "Pat" Haltigan of the house in Washington and "Pat's" tremendous tones roared out the remainder of the message so lads two blocks away could hear. The galleries cheered him appreciatively.

Hall Is Jammed

The limits of the hall's seating capacity were far overtaxed at tonight's session—overtaxed everywhere but in that little corner coop for "colored." There were still vacant seats there although it would hold less than 200.

Nobody could do more than guess how many thousands were under the vast roof. Guesses ran as high as 20,000.

There was a stir of excitement in the center aisle before the grind of platform reading was completed. A. S. Ashton, a delegate from Meadow View, Va., was overcome by heat and carried out.

A moment later Haltigan's leather lungs also surrendered under the platform reading strain and he gave place to Delegate Michael L. Igoe of Illinois, who was the third relay reader on the job. When he got to the prohibition plank, a whoop of delight swept through the hall, which was about the only visible or audible notice the delegates had taken of proceedings up to that time.

Drys Applaud Moody

When the reading of the platform was concluded Governor Moody took the speaker's stand amid great applause from the dry element of the convention.

"I am in a rather unfortunate position. The platform contained a plank on law enforcement mentioning the 18th amendment and pledging the party enforcement of the constitution. For some time in committee we have been discussing this question. The authorship of the plank belongs to Senator Glass of Virginia." Believing that any political party can afford to endorse any part of the constitution of the United States, Moody said he had advocated in committee a plank declearing against any change in the prohibition amendment.

"I accept the matter," Moody concluded, "and I shall not carry the minority report to the convention."

When Moody concluded, Governor Ritchie of Maryland, took the stand to answer him. Ritchie wanted to oppose the Moody report, which had not even been submitted and Chairman Robinson interposed an objection. Ritchie was permitted to continue.

Following the Maryland governor Senator Carter Glass of Virginia, a member of the resolutions committee, took the stand.

Glass said it had seemed unnecessary that he should have to say a word in explanation of the platform declaration on law enforcement. The enforcement plank, he said, contained but two sentences. The plank, he said, could not be misinterpreted.

Glass gestured vigorously as he pounded on the table, telling the delegates that the man who took the office of president of the United States on the Democratic ticket must stand on the platform.

He demanded honest and uncompromising enforcement and moved the adoption of the platform. The convention approved the document with a roar.

Ritchie said the criticism of the Democratic party was that it would always "make a fool of itself." He urged that this ground of criticism be removed for the sake of success at the polls.

"Let wisdom rule," he said time after time.

"Let us be hereafter a united party. North and South we are wedded as one. In behalf of the great cause of Democracy let us unite to carry our party to victory."

Ritchie's address brought a roar of applause from the convention and the bands struck up "Maryland, My Maryland."

Then amid a great uproar, Chairman Robinson ordered the roll called on the nomination of a candidate for president.

PLATFORM MAKERS ADOPT PLANK

HOUSTON, June 28. (US)—The Democratic party will go before the voters next November on a dry platform which specifically mentions the eighteenth amendment, but is not as arid as the radical prohibitionists wish.

The convention platform makers completed their work at 5:30 o'clock tonight.

Governor Moody and former Secretary of the Navy Daniels expect to carry their battle for a out-and-out prohibition plank to the convention floor.

They drafted a minority report

SHEP SINGS

clusion of the committee's work tonight.

Early this morning the subcommittee completed its draft of the platform proper.

Full Day's Battle

This was presented to the full committee at 9 a. m.

A full day battle over the platform followed with the ultra-drys demanding that the Moody plank be adopted instead of the subcommittee draft.

Finally this evening Senator Carter Glass, one of the middle-ground "strict enforcement" proponents, obtained the adoption of his plank. It calls for strict enforcement and sharply criticizes the Republican administration for failing to enforce prohibition during the past eight years.

Following the meeting of the full committee which voted down the Moody proposal the Texas governor and four other committeemen, Daniels, North Carolina, H. M. Ayres of Alabama, H. E. Fala of Florida, and G. E. Maddox of Georgia retired to draft a minority report.

The fact that five states joined in the minority report makes it possible to bring the wet-dry battle to the floor.

Moody-Daniels Plank

At the conclusion of the meeting Chairman Key Pittman called up Chairman Robinson of the convention to announce that the platform would be ready for presentation to the convention proper at 8 o'clock.

The Moody-Daniels plank in addition to naming the eighteenth amendment asked the party to pledge its candidate to refrain from seeking the repeal of any prohibition law. It was the last thrust of the dry South at the candidacy of Gov. Al Smith of New York.

Leaders of the party strove throughout the day to induce Moody and the other dry "bitter-enders" to drop their fight after the committee itself reached a decision.

Moody Adamant

The Texas governor, however, who is a candidate for re-election, felt that he must obey the mandate of the Lone Star state convention which called on its delegation to fight to the end for an ultra-dry plank.

The blank as finally adopted represented a different statement of principles than contained in the subcommittee's report.

In the subcommittee the Glass plank was rejected by vote of 11 to 2.

The full committee then replaced the subcommittee draft with the Glass plank by a close vote.

Farm Aid Endorsed

In addition to the prohibition plank the platform contains a strong endorsement of suitable aid for the farmers and a major declaration scourging the Republican administrations of the past eight years for corruption in office.

The farm plank, which was drafted in the hotel room of Bernard M. Baruch, New York financier and leading Democrat, criticizes the Republicans for failure to solve the farm problem.

It promises "immediate" legislation for the solution of the agricultural problem and a supply of credit to the farmers on terms "equally as advantageous as those given to shipping interests under new merchant marine act."

Satisfies Farmers

It proposes to have the federal farm loan board aid in the orderly marketing of crop surpluses.

Farmer representatives have expressed themselves as "completely satisfied" with the plank.

There were indications as the evening grew on that the Moody forces would abandon their fight, but this was denied by the Texas governor.

GATLIN MAKES $10,000 BOND

Appeal Filed After Murder Conviction

Special to The Record News.

GRAHAM, Texas, June 28.—B. A. Gatlin of Breckenridge was released on $10,000 bond by Judge E. G. Thornton in 30th district court here this afternoon after he had been denied a new trial on a murder conviction and had filed notice of appeal.

The motion for a new trial was heard by Judge Thornton after Gatlin had been convicted of the murder of Oscar N. Miles, his son-in-law, in Graham several months ago. R. E. and Cedric Taylor, attorneys for the defense, based their motion for a new trial on the alleged disqualification of a juror.

In an affidavit presented by the defense in its motion for the new trial one of the jurors is alleged to have said, prior to his selection as juror, "If I had my way Gatlin would be hanged."

After the motion for a new trial was denied by Judge Thornton, defense attorneys filed notice of appeal and Gatlin was released on $10,000 recognizance bond pending the decision of the court of criminal appeals.

Gatlin, during the course of the trial, declared that he fired shots which killed his son-in-law while Miles was threatening him with a pair of shears.

Mrs. Miles, widow, testified to mistreatment by her husband.

The state introduced evidence to show that Miles had made his wife the beneficiary of $3000 in life insurance a short time before his death.

The state was represented by Ben F. Allred, district attorney, George Berry, assistant district attorney, and James V. Allred, special prosecutor.

The case went to the jury about 3:30 o'clock Wednesday afternoon and the verdict was not reached until late Thursday morning.

Rains Aid Crops In Iowa Park Region

Special to The Record News.

IOWA PARK, Texas, June 28.—The rainfall during this month has amounted to 5.15 inches according to the report from the state experiment station, 60 per cent of that amount having fallen this week.

This month's rainfall has been of inestimable value to the growing crops, according to J. E. Wilson, superintendent of the station, because the later rains have refreshed and loosened up the soil, while a great deal of damage was done to the crops by the earlier rains on account of their tendency to pack the ground.

Small grain harvest is on in full blast in this vicinity. Combines are being used more extensively this year than heretofore, and are proving quite successful in spite of the heavy weather.

Waite Phillips, Wildcatter De Luxe, Realizes Another Dream in Deal

By PAUL S. HEDRICK

TULSA, Okla., June 28.—Waite Phillips, wildcatter de luxe, and chairman of the board of the Independent Oil and Gas company of Tulsa, has put over another dream, thereby proving himself to be one of the ablest of oil country executives.

The Independent Oil and Gas company now becomes a 100 per cent complete oil company, having production in Oklahoma, Kansas and Texas; pipelines in those states; two refineries, one in Oklahoma, and another in Kansas; bulk and service stations, and with its assets adequately spread over the three states so its expansion can be made with the slightest ease. While the Independent was made a big independent by Ed H. Moore, it took the addition of Mr. Phillips to its directorate to push it into the really major class of oil firms.

Deal Consummated

The acquisition of the Manhattan Oil company of Kansas City has been practically consummated, and the option that the Independent has in hand will be exercised on July 1 when it expires. By this move the Independent steps from the rank of being a $25,000,000 oil concern to one of $40,000,000, with unlimited opportunities for future expansions, and all through the initiative, vision and farsightedness of its dominant leader.

Tulsa will continue to be the executive and financial headquarters of the enlarged Independent Oil and Gas company, division and operating quarters for the Manhattan division, as it will be called, being established at Kansas City, Mo.

To bring about the physical amalgamation of the Independent with the Manhattan considerable money will have to be spent in building an extension from the Manhattan's pipeline in Greenwood county, Kansas, to the Independent's refinery at Okmulgee.

Plan Agreed

"We are buying the Manhattan company," remarked Ralph B. Pringle, vice president and general manager of the Independent company, on his return home Monday from Kansas City, where he and Mr. Phillips and R. Otis McClintock, vice president, conducted the negotiations with Albert R. Jones, chairman, and E. W. Goebel, president of the Manhattan company.

Continuing, Mr. Pringle said, "The option which we now hold to buy the Manhattan company expires July 1, and we have agreed on the plan for us to exercise our option. The Manhattan will help the Independent to round out its program of being a complete oil company, it having an efficient refinery right in Kansas City, and with some 450 bulk and service stations, through which to market the combined products of the two refineries, at Okmulgee and Kansas City. That territory has an unlimited future, is steadily advancing in importance and population, and we feel certain that this step is justified, both from our present position and the future of our company and the oil business."

Nine Men in Control

The Manhattan company was organized in 1919 under the laws of Delaware, and has a complete issue of 900,000 shares of no par value, with 85 per cent of them owned by nine men, notably Messrs. Jones, Goebel, and other officials.

The Independent buys the Manhattan on an exchange basis, of one share of Independent stock for one and one-half shares of Manhattan, making it appear to be a $15,000,000 deal.

The Manhattan has a 6000-barrel skimming refinery at Kansas City, Kan., and right near the mouth of the Kaw river into the Missouri river. Cracking equipment increases its capacity to better than 7000 barrels. It also has two natural gasoline plants in Greenwood county, Kansas, one being an absorption and the other a compression plant.

A six-inch pipeline extends from Thrall pool to the refinery, and is capable of handling 9000 barrels of oil a day. In addition the Manhattan has 150 miles of gathering lines in Butler and Greenwood counties, where it has some 8000 acres of developed acreage, besides some 60,000 acres that are untested.

Expansion Necessary

Approximately 225 miles of pipeline would be necessary to link the Independent's refinery with the Manhattan line, and thus give the Independent a complete pipeline from Seminole field to Okmulgee and thence to Kansas City, around 400 miles in length, not including gathering lines.

E. H. Moore, president of the Independent company, is in Washington on tax matters, and was not present at the conclusion of the negotiations for the acquisition of the Manhattan.

Early in the year, the Independent tried to buy the White Eagle Oil and Refining company, also of Kansas City, but it fell through on the rate of exchange. L. L. Marcell, its president, insisting on an equal exchange, which Waite Phillips refused to approve.

CONSOLIDATED LOCATION

The Consolidated Oil company made location for its No. 1 W. T. Waggoner test to be drilled 535 feet west, and 150 feet south of the James Baker well in the Thomas D. Purnell survey, and southwest of the Consolidated pool, in Wilbarger.

GOLDING-MORAN, JACKSON

Golding and Moran have set casing and will bail a good looking sand at 1579 feet in their No. 1 well located in the center of lines of blocks 148 and 149, Jackson subdivision of Aldridge survey, Archer county.

WELCOME TO OUR CITY

O. C. Needham, assistant production superintendent for the Gulf Production company in the north Texas division, is a visitor to the Wichita Falls zone for the day.

PREPARING TO BAIL

Trout, Lambert and Duke will bail a sand at 1785 feet some time Friday in their No. 1 Kemp-Kemper test located in block 55 W. V. F. L. southwest Wichita county.

EASTER-WAGGONER

The Easter Oil company No. A-1 W. T. Waggoner located in section 26, block 4, H. T. & C. R. R. survey Wilbarger county, is drilling at 600 feet.

TEXAS CEMENTS TWO

The Texas company set casing and cemented its No. E-5 and E-6 wells on the 2300-foot sands and will drill in the next few days. Both wells located in section 24, block 4 H. T. C. survey, Waggoner lands Wilbarger county.

STILL MAKING LOCATIONS

Consolidated Oil company No. 1 W. T. Waggoner will be drilled 1345 feet south, and 2490 west of northeast corner of section 36, block 4, H. T. & C. R. R. survey, about six miles south of Harold in Wilbarger county.

OFFSETTING BASS-DILLARD

The Simms Oil company made its No. 1 location 150 feet east and west of the southwest corner of the north half of northeast quarter of section 5, block 5, H. & T. C. R. R. survey, W. T. Waggoner land and will offset the Bass-Dillard well to the east.

FAIN-McGAHA WILDCAT

Fain-McGaha No. X-1, W. T. Waggoner is erecting their derrick for a test to be drilled in northeast corner of section 1, S. P. R. R. survey, northwest of the Consolidated pool about one and a half miles in Wilbarger county.

Big Coleman Gasser Only 765 Feet Deep

COLEMAN, June 28.—From a total depth of 765 feet the Mid-Sun Oil corporation, et al, No. 1 M. T. Overall, 200 feet from the north and west lines of section 10, G. H. & H. survey is gassing at the rate of 11,000,000 cubic feet daily, according to reports reaching Coleman today.

The well is nearly two miles from the Continental-Humble-Midwest-Anzac and M. G. Cheney No. F-L Overall and No. 6 Overall, but is considerably higher than the pay in either of these two wells. However, less than one-half mile west, the Continental, et al, No. 2 Hutchings is reported a 4,000,000 cubic foot gasser from 2180 feet indicating still further the versatility of the sands in the Overall pool 8 miles southwest of Coleman.

Following the successful plugging off of slight showing of bottom hole water in the Sterling Oil & Gas company, et al, No. 1 Weir and Kemp, 200 feet from the south line and 200 feet from the east line of that tract in the M. Lapp survey No. 744, the well gauged 11,400,000 cubic feet of gas which is shut in from a total depth of 2118 feet.

W. A. Moncrief Latest Marland Head to Quit

TULSA, Okla., June 28.—And another Marland executive has quit to engage in business for himself.

W. A. Moncrief, vice president of the Marland Production company, and in charge of the Texas division, has resigned to enter the oil and royalty business, with headquarters in Fort Worth.

Moncrief was in the land department at Ponca City for some years, going to Texas, when F. Park (Spot) Geyer resigned. Successor to Mr. Moncrief has not yet been designated.

Magnolia Reported With Big Gasser in Gray

In the Bowers pool south of Pampa, in Gray county, Panhandle field, the Magnolia Petroleum company is reported to have a 15,000,000-foot gas well in the northwest corner of the southwest of the northwest of section 63, block B-2, H. & G. N. survey. The sand record was not available. When the gas was encountered the control head was blown off, and the derrick damaged, which is now being repaired. The well had been making some oil.

This well offsets on the southeast the lease of the Operators Oil company, the north half of the northeast of section 88, on which there are two producing wells.

A well is due in soon in the northeast corner of the south half of the northeast of section 88.

Change in Winkler Proration Rule Calls for Well to 40 Acres

FORT WORTH, June 28. (AP)—Change in Winkler proration rules which would limit drilling to one well in the center of each 40-acre unit, in the north Winkler or Leck area instead of one well to 10 acres, as in the older field, was unanimously approved at a conference of operators of the district here today.

Proposal of allocating production on the basis of average potential, instead of the sum of potential of wells on each unit was also favored, though not as decisively.

The sense of the meeting is to be embodied into a proposed order, which will be submitted to the Winkler advisory committee at another meeting Tuesday for transmission by the latter to the railroad commission. Rules calling for fewer wells, it is believed, will get all of the oil and eliminate considerable waste, as well as simplifying over production problems in the field, operators expressed themselves as feeling.

Only one new test is under way. It is a location by the Texas Pacific Coal and Oil company, and is made on the old basis of a well to 10 acres.

LITTLE RIVER WATCHED NOW

79 New Tests Under Way; Seminole Down

TULSA, Okla., June 28.—The Little River drilling in the southern part of Seminole county continues to occupy the attention of Seminole field operators.

If the 79 new tests, one to a 20 acres, prove up the territory around them, it is possible that additional new drilling wells will start later in the year. In this new area may be a test by Stearns Drilling company on the acreage of Omar Oil Refining company. The Omar gave the Stearns the right to drill a shallow test on its leases, situated in the west half of the southeast, and the northeast of the northwest of 31-7-6.

Independent Oil and Gas company in an old test in the southeast of the southwest of 30-7-6, had showings of oil from 1175 to 1210 feet, the last showing being at 2547 feet.

Daily production of the Seminole field is again slipping. Wednesday's gauges showed an output of 247,482 barrels from 1094 wells, a gain of one new well, but a loss of 3360 barrels over Tuesday's production. The comparative output report follows:

Pools—	Wednesday	Wells	Tues.
Little River	41,716	134	42,640
Bowlegs	58,214	315	59,376
Earlsboro	83,875	273	83,277

Baxter, Gammon Beasley, Metz, H. M. Smith, O. M. Jones, P. G. Kildow and Miss Vera Gammon. Mrs. A. C. Golden, president of the union, was a visitor with the circle.

Officers Meet

The officers of the Ladies' auxiliary of the Presbyterian church met Monday afternoon in an executive meeting to plan and discuss the work of the auxiliary. The meeting was held at the home of Mrs. F. P. Stryker.

The officers present were: Mesdames King Abernathy, Maggie Cobb, G. C. Richards, Scott Ralston, C. Birk, Gayle Park and Miss Clara Lowrance.

Cadets Feted

The Marthas, a class of girls of the intermediate department of the Methodist Sunday school, were hostesses to the Cadets, a class of boys in the same department, Friday evening at a jolly picnic at Freis' grove. The girls, who are taught by Mrs. James A. Sewell, planned and carried out the picnic and proved to be delightful hostesses for the occasion. They were taken to the grove by W. F. George in his big car, and they were accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. Sewell. After many lively games they enjoyed a picnic lunch very pleasingly ended with a freezer of home made ice cream.

Missionary Society

About 25 members were present at the meeting of the Woman's Missionary society Monday afternoon at the church.

Mrs. Carroll Hester read the minutes for the last two meetings and presented the news of the bulletin.

Mrs. J. A. Bevill led the devotional service, using the voice lesson. Mrs. Cheeves was discussion leader, assisted by Mrs. Luton and Mrs. Sherwood.

Mesdames Bishop, Love, Hogan and Monroe were hostesses for the afternoon, and they served refreshments of gold and white cake with vanilla ice cream.

This will be the last meeting until the fourth Monday in July.

NEW YORK COTTON

NEW YORK, June 28. (AP)—Continued nervousness over the coming crop prospect was reflected in an advance of about $2 a bale in the cotton market today. After selling off to 22.18 early, October sold up to 22.75, a net advance of 41 points and a new high record for the season, and closed at 22.69. The general market closed steady at net advance of 31 to 37 points.

The opening was steady at a decline of 5 to 9 points, active months quickly showing net losses of 11 to 18 points under realizing and local selling. No very particular news factor was mentioned in connection with this initial decline, but buyers found little encouragement in the ruling of Liverpool, while there was talk of domestic mill curtailment which probably accounted for some of the pressure.

Offerings were readily absorbed on the dip to 22.02 for July and 22.04 for December, however, and the market later firmed up on the continued bullish average of private crop advices reaching here from the South, prospects for further showers over the greater part of the belt, and reports that there had been some trade buying on the early decline.

Prices reached the highest figures of the day later, July selling up to 22.57 and December to 22.60 or about 36 to 42 points net higher and half cent above the low levels of the morning. The 22½ cent level for October attracted considerable realizing, with the close showing reactions of a few points from the best.

Exports today 4586 bales, making 7,-430,189 so far this season. Port receipts 3651. U. S. port stocks 905,834.

NEW ORLEANS COTTON

NEW ORLEANS, June 28. (AP)—Cotton prices advanced nearly $3 a bale from an early decline today under good trade and speculative buying inspired by unfavorable weather and crop advices. October contracts after easing off to 21.69 soon after the opening, advanced 56 points to 22.25, and closed at 22.17, 35 points net up. Profit-taking in the final trading carried prices off a few points from the top and the general market closed steady at a net advance of 35 to 37 points.

Liverpool cables were 1 point down to 1 up and the market here opened easy in sympathy. Prices continued to decline after the start on the comparatively small amount of rain in the belt overnight. October traded off to 21.69 and December 21.65, or 11 to 13 points below the previous close.

Trading became active after the weather map was posted showing more rain in the west than was indicated earlier and as the official forecast promised further unsettled weather, good trade and speculative buying developed. Prices advanced sharply towards the middle of the morning, being helped on the upgrade by private reports of crop damage in the interior and a private condition report of 67.7 per cent of normal, which was considered rather low for the end of June.

At mid-session October sold up to 22.20 and December to 22.12, or 47 to 51 points above the lows and 34 to 38 points over the previous close. Some realizing developed and prices reacted 10 points, but later the market soared to new high levels for the season with October at 22.25 and December 22.20, or 55 to 56 points up from the lows and 43 to 44 points above the previous close. A renewal of profit-taking towards the end caused a recession of 6 to 8 points from the top and October closed at 22.17 and December 22.12, or 35 to 37 points net up.

Arrival of Canadian Gold Eases Call Rate to Bolster Stock Market

By BROADAN WALL
Universal Service Financial Expert

NEW YORK, June 28.—Stocks added to their recovery today in another session of light trading as gold came in from Canada and call money eased from 7½ to 7 per cent.

General Motors, as forecast here, was the outstanding leader but the best individual gains were scored by such technically cornered stocks as Case Threshing. The market had hesitated during the early hours, but on the receipt of announcement of gold arrival from the north the market gradually gained momentum and most active issues closed at or near the top.

Nervousness as to what the reserve bank reports would show disappeared as the belief grew that Cutten, Durant, et al., were resuming bullish activity. The French franc slipped in a generally quiet but otherwise firm foreign exchange market. Cotton moved ahead vigorously on buying by Chicago interests who have made a cleanup in stocks while the grain market turned slightly firmer in a rather dull session.

The 7½ per cent renewal was the highest since 1921 and caused more widespread fear that an 8 per cent or higher call rate was not far off. However, constant support was evidenced in the early unsettlement and outside following was attracted by the gold import.

Shipments of gold from Canada have been expected for the past fortnight as a result of the decline in the Canadian dollar and the advancing money rates here.

A total of $8,000,000 was reported to have been received by local bankers but the most bullish factor was the report that at least $40,000,000 is due to be shipped from Montreal and Quebec to this city within the next fortnight. This was taken that continued high money rates here would stop the flow of gold to Europe soon and possibly result in imports.

Case was skyrocketed 41 points on comparatively few transactions as those controlling the market forced short covering. Wright corners sent out warning that their pet was in a similar position and shorts therein facing similar punishment. General Motors buying, however, was the main factor to the better sentiment in speculative circles.

The stock climbed over 6½ points with operations again credited to "insiders" who presumably are discounting issuance of a highly favorable six months income statement and a stock dividend in August. Chrysler, Hudson and other motors continued to hang back, however, as quiet but steady profit taking continued.

Grain

By THOMAS TEMPLE HOYNE
Universal Service

CHICAGO, June 28.—Corn took shorts into camp again today, the July future advancing 2 cents. The other grains were dull during most of the session, but seemed to be slowly gathering strength.

Wheat was unchanged to ½c higher at the close; corn was up ⅝c to 2c; oats were ⅛c lower to ¼c higher; rye was 1½c lower to ⅝c higher.

At the end the markets gave the impression of having developed a strong undertone made highly resistant to downward pressure by short selling that has put them in a sound technical condition. More rainy weather today in the southwest is predicted, with a shift to colder weather before night.

Wheat continues to look as if it were working into a decidedly bullish situation. Small fluctuations in the market have little meaning now; what counts is the way in which the market struggles back after breaks in the face of bearish sentiment and the selling which that implies.

Any weakness at the opening of the wheat market tomorrow may be taken advantage of by buyers—by shorts who want to get in before the markets get away from them. It may still be too soon to look for any decided increase in outside buying, but that seems to be all the market needs now to start it persistently upward.

The corn market continued to look way oversold. Yesterday it climbed steadily, but in the main slowly. This creeping up is the worst kind of market action to keep in an unfavorable position.

Corn looked as if it was going much higher. The July bulls seemed to have the upper hand now. September and December corn have been heavily sold on the brilliant prospects of the new crop. But July is the critical month for growing corn.

In the cash market wheat was unchanged; corn was unchanged to 2c up; oats were unchanged to 1c off; rye was quiet, 5c to 6c over July; barley was steady.

PERU AVIATORS PASS COURSES

Master English Language To Pass Tests

SAN ANTONIO, Texas, June 28. (AP)—In spite of the fact that they were forced to master the complicated and technical engineering courses, which United States army aviators must study, in a foreign language, Lieutenants G. Concha and M. E. Escalante of the Peruvian army have successfully completed the United States air corps training and will graduate at Kelly field here in July.

The difficulty of the feat they have accomplished can only be appreciated when it is remembered that as high as 75 per cent of each class of English speaking students fall by the wayside sometime during their primary courses at Brooks field, or advanced courses at Kelly field. For this reason it is seldom that any of the guest students from Latin-American countries complete the course, inasmuch as there are only a very few of them and they are handicapped by a strange idiom.

Excellent Flyers

Lieutenants Concha and Escalante, according to their instructors, have both proved excellent fliers. Captain Arnando Zena Terre of the Cuban army is another graduate of the government air school plant here, but he specialized in aviation medicine, rather than the flying end of the subject, and returned to Cuba to be his country's first flight surgeon.

A number of other Latin-American students, who are not as far advanced as Lieutenants Concha and Escalante as yet, are on the rolls at Brooks field. Captain Emilio Zenteno of Mexico, First Lieut. Miguel R. Rodrigues of Venezuela and Sergeant Mendez of Peru have all studied during the past winter.

Others will probably replace them in the new course which starts this summer. The United States throws open its big flying plant here, which is the result of years of study and millions of dollars worth of research, to officers and enlisted men whom the Latin-American countries select for training in order to improve the relations between the Americans and to promote flying all over the western hemisphere.

Two Boy Scout Groups Formed in Iowa Park

Special to The Record News.

IOWA PARK, Texas, June 28.—Gerald Phillips, field man of the Boy Scouts organization of this district, was in Iowa Park last night in the interest of that movement and organized two groups of Boy Scouts. The meeting was held in the basement of the First Baptist church. One of the groups will work under the auspices of the Baptist church, the other under the First Methodist.

Eleven boys were enrolled in each group and more will be added.

Otis T. Weaver was elected scoutmaster of the boys of the Baptist church, and John Moore was made assistant scoutmaster.

Troy P. Hagar will be scoutmaster for the group from the Methodist and his assistant will be Taylor George.

A committee of three will be appointed for each group. These committees will be chosen from the men of the churches, and will help the boys by suggestions and aids in their work.

The first meeting will be held Friday night and the date of the regular meeting definitely decided upon at that time.

There is a certain girl who, on a certain night of each week, sits in a certain rear, dark and secluded seat of one of our major movie houses and has a great time. Whether the show is good or not she should have a good time.

Now, far be it from this poor colyumn's idea to even suggest that such a thing as spooning might be going on, but th's good looking little miss is never alone when she sits in that sheltered corner. A loving arm is usually around her, and many are the gentle bits of pressure that might be registered without anyone else really knowing.

And there's another good show, too. It is at the Majestic where William Haines is bowling them over with a line of good live love and action. It is named "Telling the World."

William Boyd in "The Night Flyer," is the new attraction billed to open Friday at the Olympic. It is odd that another flying idea is presented in an opening at the Strand in "Across the Atlantic."

Air vagabonding and lots of it is seen by Monte Blue, filth star, as the result of the great advances made in flying in the past few years.

"Flying ships are tomorrow's answer to wandering youth with an urge for the far corners of the earth," Blue says. He should know as he was more or less of a wanderer himself before he became an actor for the silver sheet.

Charley Moorehead, manager of the Olympic, was telling one the other day of a drummer in a theater orchestra where Charlie used to work before coming here. "The drummer had a mother-in-law," said Charlie. "In fact the drummer said he had one of those mother-in-laws. He had her in his own home and couldn't get her out. He finally evolved the happy idea of bringing her picture to the theater, pasting it on the stick hitting side of his bass drum, and letting the old lady have it. After that he was normal again."

Assessment Notices Completed Saturday

The probable completion Saturday of 5000 notice cards to taxpayers was announced Thursday by W. R. Hyer, city tax assessor, and collector.

The cards probably will be mailed out Monday or as soon thereafter as the city board of equalization gives notice to the tax office of what dates the board will be sitting to consider the pleas of the taxpayers.

These cards are to be sent only to those on the rendered tax rolls whose valuables are lower than the values deemed proper by the board of equalization. The property owners will be invited to appear before the board to talk over the matter.

NO SHOW
Circus Raided By Dry Officers, Who Cop Liquors

OGDENBURG, N. Y., June 28. (UP)—Ogdenburg will not see the circus this year. The show is ready to go on. The birds and the beasts are here. The big tent is up and none of the performers is ill.

Prohibition violations did it. When the first three sections of Ringling Brothers and Barnum and Bailey train pulled in from Canada, federal officers got a tip that pay day and the plentitude of liquor in Quebec had combined to make the train a bowery on wheels.

Then the federal inspectors started a thorough search, announcing it would take them all day and that the show could not go on. The latest count showed that 4000 bottles had been seized.

Prisoner Who Escaped Jail Gets $20 Fine

Fred Keyes, who slipped through a hole in the wall of his cell and slid down an improvised ladder to freedom, entered a plea of guilty to charges of vagrancy in county court Thursday morning and received a fine of $20 and costs.

Keyes and Ernest Delaney escaped from the city jail last week after they had scratched a hole in the wall with a piece of wire. Keyes was captured a few minutes after the break, but Delaney still is at large.

HARVEST IN FULL BLAST

Stephens County Promises Good Crops

Special to The Record News

BRECKENRIDGE, Texas, June 28.—With six or seven combines and one threshing machine in operation in Stephens county this week, the 1928 harvest season is on in full sweep and swing.

The combines are busy in the communities of Crystal Falls, Hubbard, Caddo and La Casa, while Tom Landreth is reported to be threshing near Wayland.

According to Frank Lochridge, county farm agent, the various grain crops are considerably short of normal this season, but the pessimism that such a situation would ordinarily engender is being offset by the promise of the greatest feed crop in the history of Stephens county.

Around the La Casa community, south of Caddo, the average is probably better than elsewhere in Stephens county.

Cotton High

Mr. Lochridge estimates that oats are about 40 per cent of normal; wheat about 25 per cent and barley about 25 per cent.

Cotton generally is about six inches high, corn is head high and "corn on the cob" will in a few days be on every menu.

Cotton is doing well while the chinch bug is doing some damage to corn and sorghum fields. Recent rains have caused the bugs to let up to some extent, according to the county agent.

Mr. Lochridge points out that the growing feed crop which promises to attain bumper proportions will be a boon to farming and dairying generally.

The last days of June never saw the ranges in Stephens and Shackelford counties in better condition than they are now.

Six Candidates File Accounts Of Expenses in County Campaign

Six candidates for office in Wichita county had filed the first campaign expense reports Thursday without any "prodding" by a senatorial investigation committee.

Each candidate is required to file these reports on campaign expense. The first is due this year between June 28 and July 3. The second report should be made between July 16 and 20. The third and final report must be in the hands of the county clerk within 10 days following election.

The first reports show that advertising schemes in the form of baseball score cards, railroad timetables and desk blotters were widely patronized by candidates. The newspapers have also been used extensively.

Those filing a report with the county clerk and the office which they seek, together with the amount spent in campaigning, follow:

W. G. Bralley, sheriff, $262.36; Eunice Jackson, district clerk, $221.50; Elizabeth Hall, county clerk, $165; P. A. Martin, judge of 89th district court, $156.65; Burl Bryant, county school superintendent, $145.50; O. L. Gibbs, justice of the peace, precinct 1, place 2, $71.50; C. L. Bradford, constable, precinct 1, $60.75.

John H. Curl, 80, Claimed by Death

John H. Curl, father of Mrs. B. T. Burgess, 1011 Fourteenth street, died at the Burgess residence Thursday afternoon at 2:15 o'clock. Mr. Curl was more than 80 years old and had made his home with the Burgess family for the last four years.

He is survived by three daughters, Mrs. Ruth Muzingo of Council Bluffs, Iowa, Mrs. E. Z. Morrow, of Long Beach, Calif., Mrs. Burgess and one son, William Curl of Wichita Falls.

CITY WARNS ON SEWER TAX

Water Department Ready For "Cutoff"

Only one more full day remains for the payment of the city sewer rentals, according to announcements made Thursday night by Dr. A. H. Douglass, manager of the water and sewer departments.

"We will have a good and adequate force at work to take care of the crowds Friday, and we hope that everyone who can possibly get in to the office to pay the sewer rentals will do so.

"The ordinance requires that the sewer rentals be paid up to and including July 1. After that the sewer rental charge is off. However, it is mandatory under the ordinance that we collect the rentals or disconnect the sewers and cut off the water service to properties which have not paid. There is no choice for us as the ordinance is clear and definite.

"The water department is ready to cooperate in every way with the citizens, and will make every effort to take care of everyone who comes to the office."
