At Council

Highrise Coming Up

The Canoe Lake Corporation's request for a zoning change which would allow the construction of seven-story condominiums in the Harbor Oaks subdivision will head a short City Council agenda Monday night, July 25.

The request was tabled a month ago by the Planning and Zoning Commission after several citizen protests, and they'll have a recommendation hashed out in a workshop session when they take the matter up again in an open meeting.

First, however, they'll be considering two rezoning requests in a joint public hearing with Council that begins at 7:30 p.m. The requests are as follows:

County Values Up Slightly

It may come as a surprise to a lot of people, but the taxable value in Aransas County won't be rising more than three percent this year. And oil and gas values will be down.

County Tax Assessor-Collector Alena Jones has values for oil and gas and real estate on their way to Comptroller Bob Bullock, and they show a modest rise for real estate values of $7,906,137, an eventual assessed value of $2,327,840.

Oil and gas in the county this year is down by $2,273,200, or an assessed value drop of $681,960.

The County's total value was slightly over $74 million last year, and figures for personal property aren't in, but Mrs. Jones says the eventual total should be less than a $2 million increase, or approximately $75,315,625.

The final official totals won't be in for another six weeks.

Progress Edition Set For July 28

We're gratified at the response from the community to the publication of our upcoming "Progress Edition". The edition will be the biggest special publication yet for The Pilot, and we hope that in it we will be able to take an overview of the community with help from local club historians, and hundreds of hours of interviews with local public officials, businessmen, workers, retirees and young people.

Even a weekly too often mistakes the facts for the story, and loses something like tradition in the translation, so it has become a tradition with newspapers, as it will with this one, to take a look backwards and forwards from time to time to help keep things in perspective.

High sounding, of course, but then it's going to take 40 pages to cover this "sleepy little town," so something must be going on. And, of course, other businessmen make most of this possible. We say thank you to the following merchants (If you

Breakdown Stalling County Road Repairs

Commissioner Raymond Owens had bad news for the Commissioners Court and County residents Monday, July 11. The County grade-all and backhoe broke down at the same time last week, and the Road and Bridge crew will not be able to perform drainage work for at least a month while parts are found and repairs made.

Owens, like the other three commissioners, has the road equipment once a month for a week. Crew members will be performing maintenance and street repairs for each commissioner on the regular schedule.

The August 13 elections for five places on the Aransas County Navigation District Board are approaching, and the Court Monday named election judges and alternates in each of the county voting precincts.

In Precinct One, headquarters for the election is the Veterans of Foreign Wars Hall on Market Street in Rockport, the presiding judge will be Mrs. L.W. Hight, with Mrs. Vincente Corpus serving as alternate.

In Precinct 1-A, the Presiding Juldge is Mrs. Marie Baker, the Alternate Mrs. Maxine Howard. The Precinct 1-A polling place will be the Voting Center in Aransas Pass.

Precinct 2, located in the County Courthouse, Rockport, will have Mrs. Nina Garrett as presiding judge and Mrs. Ellen Greer as alternate.

In Precinct 3, the presiding judge will be Mrs. Gertrude Mills, the alternate Mrs. Adarth Rogers. Voting headquarters are in the Baptist Mission, Fulton.

Precinct 4 will be headquartered in the Fullton Fire Station, with Mrs. Harry McDow as presiding judge and Mrs. Dorothy Montgomery as alternate.

Precinct 4-A will be headquartered in the Lamar Fire Station, and the presiding judge will be Louise Wilken. The alternate is Mrs. Genevieve Heldenfels.

In Voting Central, where the votes will be tabulated, veteran Bill Walston will again manage the computer count. Democratic County Chairman Lola L. Bonner and Republican County Chairman Harold Shirey will serve as absentee judges for

Jail Standards Mean Bond Issue

Aransas County Judge John Wendell said last week it would take a bond issue to enable the county to comply with new jail standards handed down by the Texas Legislature.

But don't pull your hair out yet. The Texas Commission on Jail Standards has not set a deadline for submission of each county's mode of compliance with certain mandatory and recommended items, and the bond issue is six months to a year away.

Aransas County Commissioners two weeks ago appointed architect Walter Wilde to draw up plans for compliance with the standards, but his work is in limbo now while Sheriff Bob Hewes requests variances from the state commission on several items.

Present requirements call for 24 hour surveillance, day rooms, and, in the case of Aransas County, at least 12 more single-man cells. Hewes,

Dennis 'Critical' After Shooting

Edward Dennis of Rockport was in critical but stable condition at press time in Memorial Medical Center in Corpus Christi after an apparent suicide attempt Sunday afternoon at his 606 South Pearl residence.

Police are awaiting the medical examiner's report before ruling out attempted homicide in the shooting.

Police found a note apparently penned by Dennis at the scene. They were called in at Randy Jacoby, who was on the scene and who talked with neighbors later, said the shooting could have taken place as much as an hour before police approximately 5 p.m. by Dennis' wife, who became worried when she did not hear from him for more than an hour after a series of calls.

Rockport's emergency ambulance service arrived on the scene at 5:11 p.m. and treated Dennis at the scene. Officer

Shrimp Season Opens July 15

By July 15 most brown shrimp will have left Texas bays for the Gulf of Mexico, in time for reopening of the Gulf shrimping season.

The season has been closed since June 1 to give larval brown shrimp time to mature in bays and reach catchable size.

Texas Parks and Wildlife Department coastal fisheries officials say cooler weather has kept small brown shrimp in bays longer and they have reached larger size before returning to open water.

P&WD personnel have made recent samples off the central Gulf coast and brown shrimp seem to be abundant.

The Texas Shrimp Conservation Act calls for a closed Gulf shrimping season to run for at least 45 days and up to 60 days. Closed season this year is June 1 through July 15.

Little League All Stars Break AP, Ice

The Aransas County Little League All-Stars defeated Aransas Pass 9-3 behind the hitting of Orlando Pena and the pitching of John Mendiola Monday night.

The win was the first for any Rockport team since the local association gained Little League certification three years ago. And it sends the team against Odem, there, at 7:30 p.m. Thursday, July 21 in the second round of the playoffs.

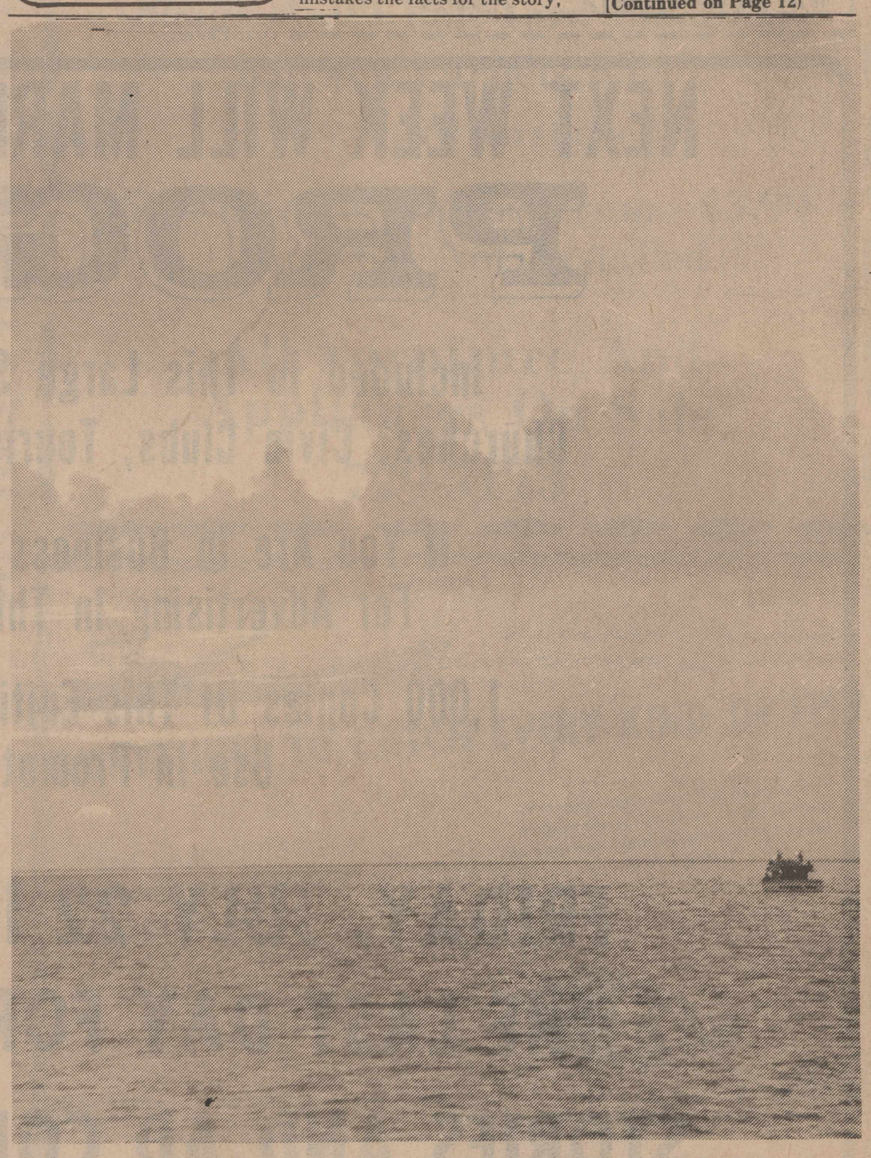

The All-Stars are coached by Elmer Redden and Eugene Sanchez.

City Absentee Voting Set July 25—Aug. 9

Absentee voting for the August 13 election that pits incumbent Charlie Garrett against challenger Joe "Pepe" Zambrano in a rematch for the Ward One seat on the Rockport City Council, will run July 25 through August 9 at City Hall.

An April 2 election for the seat was voided in May by 156th District Judge Rachel Littlejohn after Garrett successfully contested seven of the 204 total ballots, but a printing error made it impossible to match stubs with original ballots. Zambrano

Red Alert

The Texas Parks and Wildlife Department Commission will be ruling July 22 on whether or not to close all or portions of eight major Texas bay systems to commercial fishing. It is round two of a battle between sport and commercial fishing interests who first clashed over Senator A.R. Schwartz' Redfish Conservation Act. That act placed a catch limit for redfish on both commercial and sportfishermen. Proponents and sponsors said the limitations were needed to ease pressure on the species because of its five-year spawning cycle and its fragile population levels as revealed in bay areas tested by TP&WD field crews in ongoing surveys of catch abundance levels.

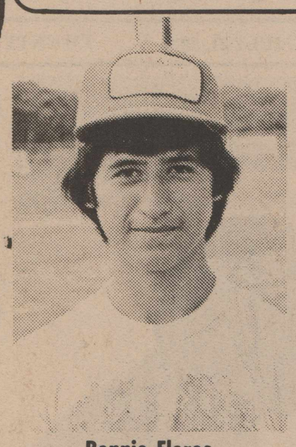

Opponents said the bill was a false alarm not justified by the facts. Commercial fishermen maintained throughout the debate that their catch levels were rising despite increased pressure, and that there was no cause for additional regulations.

New figures being gathered by TP&WD field crews such as those operating out of the Rockport Region V headquarters reveal, however, that there is a continuing decline in catch and abundance levels statewide, and that although Aransas Bay is in relatively good shape, levels have fallen by more than half in the case of redfish takes.

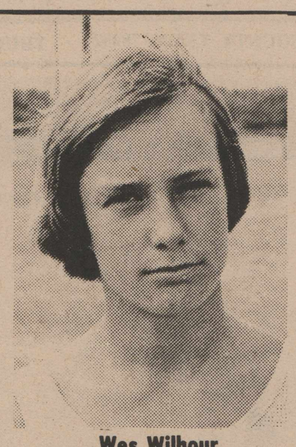

The sportfishermen and commercial fishermen both put money into the local economy, so it's not hard to see both sides of the economic issue, but the real issue is the future of the species, and downward trend of catch data and the growing concern among fisheries specialists is enough evidence for us that restrictions or a moratorium should be imposed on the taking of game and table fish in the bays. It should apply to both sports and commercial fishermen, and it should be rigorously enforced until present field surveys can give the Commission complete data on the strength and size of bay fish populations.

You Tell Us

The Navigation District Board has considered changing the saltwater swimming pool into a boat dock. Which would you rather have?

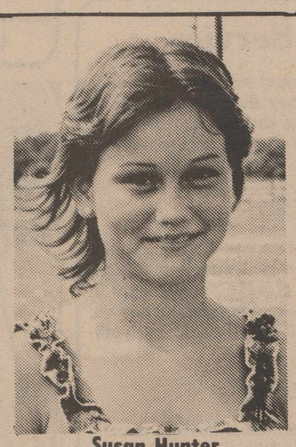

Bennie Flores

Wes Wilhour

Elida Garcia

Susan Hunter

Mike Allen

WES WILHOUR: I wouldn't like to see the salt water swimming pool become a boat dock or marina or anything like that. I don't go to the swimming pool very much because it is in such bad shape. It used to be real nice and I don't know what happened to it. If they want to do something with it, why don't they fix it up again like it used to be? That would be the best thing.

BENNIE FLORES: The saltwater swimming pool is a lousy place now. It's dirty and messy. It needs to be cleaned up and used again as a pool. It was a real great place to go when it had the diving boards and the ropes. Now it's dirty and muddy. At least you could swim in it. To go swimming on the beach, you have to wade out 100 yards before it's deep enough. I think it should stay a pool and be fixed up again.

MIKE ALLEN: I used to go down there and it was nice as a pool. I don't know why it is in the shape it's in now. I wish it would stay a pool, but get it fixed up first.

SUSAN HUNTER: The last time I went down there, it was so muddy and dirty, I haven't gone back. It was a real nice pool once. If they want to do something with it, why don't they clean it up? It's a mess now and the beach is a mess, too. It used to have diving boards and it was a lot of fun. Now it's dirty and there's stuff in the bottom of the pool. Leave it as a pool, but clean it up first.

ELIDA GARCIA: I don't think it should be a boat dock or anything like that. It should stay a pool, but somebody needs to clean it up and use it as a pool for the people of the city.

MARY ANN EVENS: I don't live in Rockport. I come down here from Austin. But I remember several years ago that the pool was a great place to go while my folks went fishing. There's really not a lot of things for a person my age to do here and it was fun to go to the pool. It had diving boards and ropes and it was a great place to go and meet other kids and have a good time. Now it's nothing and it's really gone downhill.

MARTHA HOWARD: I haven't been here to see it as a pool. I wish there was a nice pool where I could really swim. If it was built to be a pool, why doesn't someone fix it up again for a pool? It looks like it would be a nice place.

Letters To The Editor

Dear Editor:

Thank you for the exposure you have given concerning the affect the proposed high rise concrete buildings will have on Rockport and some people's attitude concerning these buildings.

In the final week before a decision is made I want to make a final attempt to present information that may have been glossed over or only partially presented.

There is proposed three seven-story buildings, not one. The probable rents will range from $800 to $1500 a month, not in the range of the real rental market or real need of Rockport. The promotional literature states the buildings will have an Acapulco type setting. If I wanted an Acapulco type setting I would go to Acapulco and get the real thing.

A single fire truck with the capability to reach seven stories will cost us taxpayers, one way or another, $135,000 to $150,000, plus the fact the developers don't plan to put in a fire sprinkler system.

It's hard to see any advantages to the high rise except to those who will have a direct financial gain. I hope the concerned citizens will join me and others at the council meeting July 25 at 7:30 p.m. and help stop this stupid project.

Thank you,
s/Henry L. Bent

Dear Editor:

I read with interest the answers people gave to the question posed in the "You Tell Us" column last week about the proposed high rise condominiums.

Several said they "didn't know much about it, but if it meant progress, they were for it." My question, "Does progress necessarily mean straight up into the air?"

Others commented, "We sure do need more rental units." My question, "Are you aware these condominiums will rent for eight hundred dollars or more a month, placing them out of the reach of the average working man who needs them the most."

I have heard comments "a high rise is the best possible land use." The best possible land use for who--the developers? The area in and around Rockport contains a great deal of available land for building without going over two and a half stories.

I am for progress, but controlled progress, progress and building in keeping with the existing structures in the area. Much of the charm of Rockport is the fact there are no stark cement towers jutting into the atmosphere.

Has anyone thought about the ecological impact on Canoe Lake and Little Bay? The site of the proposed condominium towers is on the side of Canoe Lake. To provide adequate parking for the two hundred apartments on the site, all the area not covered by buildings will be covered by asphalt. Each time it rains all of the runoff will dump into Canoe Lake carrying all the oil and road film of the cars and parking areas. The tide rise and fall is not enough to completely exchange the water in Canoe Lake. Ultimately, Canoe Lake will become another "dead" body of water.

The little bit of water which does flow out of Canoe Lake during the tide changes, flows into Little Bay. What could eventually happen to Little Bay, Connie Hagar Bird Sanctuary and the Ski Basin?

Tourism is one of Rockport's most important industries. Two important factors bringing tourists to Rockport are fishing and birding. Are we going to destroy more fishing and birding areas in the name of "progress?"

I fear this is only the beginning if the high rise is approved. In the near future high rises will begin to spring out of the ground like mushrooms until Rockport looks like a slice of the Florida coast. The time to stop it all is now!

If you have an opinion about the high rises, contact your alderman. Better still, write a letter to the Mayor and Council or to the Planning and Zoning Board. The time to do it is right now. It will be brought before the Council again July 25. Don't let a few people decide this issue. Make your feelings known.

State Of The Region

By Juliet K. Wenger
Coastal Bend Council of Gov'ts.

Wherever possible, the COG's programs are being designed to go out into the region for the convenience of people living there, rather than holding all sessions in the central city and requiring everyone to come there. This was true of housing workshops, will be true of energy workshops and water quality public meetings. Now it is true in a series of 20 seminars to be conducted on basic issues that confront the nation in relation to aging.

The seminars will be conduced in both English and Spanish and will be grouped in sets of three, each seminar in each set in adjacent cities so that no one will have to travel far to attend all three.

The three basic issues to be presented, each is in a seminar, are institutional care, medical payment plans and drug use; changing society's outlook from a strictly youth oriented culture to a more balanced concept, with emphasis on political realities; and citizen and community participation in federally funded progtams. Each seminar will be two hours long.

Faculty members of the Juarez-Lincoln University will conduct the seminars for the COG's Area Agency on Aging. They will be open to the public with no charge. Older persons, staff members of agencies serving older persons, and local public officials will be encouraged to attend.

The seminars will fill one of the responsibilities that the COG is charged with as an Area Agency on Aging. This responsibility is to provide trainig for individuals who are aged and who serve the aged. In the past, representatives of different communities were taken to college campuses to receive the training which is now coming to them.

In some instances, the building in which the seminar will be held has not been determined, but the location will be known later at local offices of aging services. Floowing is the schedule:

Health and medical issues, July 16, American Legion Hall, Benavides; July 23, Nueces Community Center, 710 E. Main, Robstown; July 30, City Hall, Aransas Pass; August 6, Alice; August 13, City Hall, Refugio; August 20, George West, all at 10 a.m.; and at 3 p.m. seminar August 27 in Corpus Christi.

Seminars on social and political concepts will be held July 16 at Rockport; July 23 in the Brooks County Courthouse district courtroom at Falfurrias; July 30 at Tuloso Midway High School Library in West Corpus Christi; August 6 in Portland; August 13 in the high school cafeteria at Freer; August 20 at George West; and August 27 in Corpus Christi, all at 10 a.m.

Seminars on program operations will be held July 16 at Mathis; July 23 at Ingleside; July 30 at Alianza de Oro Center at Kingsville; August 6 at Beeville; August 13 at Rob and Bessie Welder Park at Sinton; August 20 at the Civic Center at San Diego, all at 10 a.m., and August 26 in Corpus Christi at 3 p.m.

CHILDREN AND FIRES

Thousands of persons die each year in home fires, and one-third of these are children. Yet many of these young lives could have been saved if only precautions and general rules of fire safety had been followed. A child's natural curiosity can cause trouble when matches or lighters are left within their reach. They always should be put away after use. Other precautions are:

Never leave a young child home alone.

Show your babysitter the escape routes from the house [two from each room should be designated] and give instructions to get the children out of the house the first instant smoke or escaping gas is found, followed by a call to the fire department from an alarm box or a neighbor's house.

Teach children who are old enough how to get out of the house by following prearranged escape routes. Designate a family member to help a younger child to escape.

Caller Editor Speaks To Rotary

"What makes a good newspaper?" asked John Anderson, managing editor of the Corpus Christi Caller, at a luncheon meeting of Rtoary Club July 13 at Sandollar Restaurant. His answer was that nobody really knows what is "good" in the publishing field, adding that tastes and viewpoints of readers differ and are constantly changing.

He went on to say that the Caller has been financially successful for 80 years but that standards and formulas that once were accepted and successful may no longer work. As a result, Anderson said the Caller makes frequent surveys to determine what readers want.

As examples of changing times and changing tastes he cited the demise of the once popular and successful New York Herald-Tribune as well as the magazines, Life, Look and Saturday Evening Post.

In contrast he mentioned People magazine as an example of a publication with an entirely new type of format and contents.

Anderson said many newspapers are making a profit but are no longer as influential as they once were. Turning to television, he admitted that this medium has made the job of newspaper publishing much more demanding and complicated. "We were fat and sassy until television came along," Anderson admitted, recalling that when he started as a reporter 28 years ago, a newspaper reporter was regarded as someone of considerable importance. Not so today, he said, when as many as eight newspapers and television reporters may be covering the same story and each come up with a different view of the same event.

Once the Corpus Christi Caller published as many as 71 different stories in a single edition while television covered as few as 14. Yet, he said, the general public seemed satisfied with fewer and briefer reports on events. Apparently the public does not want all the news, he added.

Surveys of reader interest and tastes in the Corpus Christi area usually indicate that newspapers should publish more material of special interest to younger readers.

Anderson reported there have been some rather drastic changes in format and content of the Caller in recent months, which, he said, apparently is more pleasing to readers. He admitted that the paper had gone rather "far out" under previous news management, and is now returning to the concept that a newspaper should be something like an old shoe--comfortable and familiar. He said the Caller is planning further surveys of what readers like and what they dislike so as to adapt the paper more closely to the wishes of its customers.

In response to a question from the audience as to why so many reporters either don't know or ignore the rules of grammar and construction, he said that many of today's young reporters grew up as a part of the generation of "Johny can't read and Johny can't write," and they have never learned to do either.

Anderson was asked why local news, such as Rockport happenings, often are ignored by the Caller. He replied that it was Caller policy to cover only outstanding local news, leaving more extensive coverage to local newspapers.

He also was asked why some stories, especially "leads"--first paragraphs--were so cluttered with surplus verbage and obscure reference to mythological characters or events that the average reader was unable to understand what the writer was trying to say.

Anderson said he believed this is the result of the reporter trying to appeal to what he thought the younger generation wanted and partly to impress readers with his knowledge.

Cancer Society Chooses Volunteer Programs

Rev. J.A. Barton, president of the Aransas County unit of the American Cancer Society, has announced the volunteer programs that are offered by the Society.

Mrs. W.W. Janecek, Public Education Committee chairman, and her committee will offer programs on cancer prevention and detection to clubs, churches, schools, organizations and employee groups in the county. Those programs may include a physician or nurse speaker and are available on a variety of cancer sites. A popular ACTION program to be offered is the Stop Smoking Program - Group Leader Training. Clubs, churches, employee groups and other organizations interested in conducting their own Stop Smoking Program will be asked to participate. A prepresentative of their group will be given the necessary training and materials to conduct the program. Groups or individuals interested in the programs are asked to contact Rev. Barton or Mrs. Janecek.

Rev. Walter D. Clark, Jr., is the Service and Rehabilitation Committee chairman and reports that many services are available free of charge to cancer patients. Some of those services include sick room equipment loans, transportation, dressings, blood, information and referrals to other sources of assistance. Post Laryngectomy Speech Lessons, the Reach to Recovery Program for Mastectomy patients, and the Colostomy Visitation Program are three outstanding Rehabilitation Programs available in this area.

Mrs. Perry Carter will serve as Public Information Committee chairman and will work with all news media on all ACS activities.

Fund-raising responsibilities through August 31 go to Mrs. Robert Lawler, Unit Crusade Committee chairman. Mrs. Lawler and her committee will plan and direct all fund-raising efforts. The Memorial Giving Program is headed by Mrs. Patty McArdle. Memorial contributions can be sent to her at 1427 Paisano.

Council Considering Billfish Management

The Fishery Conservation and Management Act establishes a 200-mile fishery conservation zone (FCZ) seaward of the coastal states. The Act authorizes the development and implementation of fishery management plans.

The draft fishery management plan for billfish recognizes the importance of billfishes to domestic sport fishermen and to commercial foreign fishermen, both of whom fish inside the FCZ. The principal problem is the conflict between the foreign longline tuna fishermen who take billfish as an incidental catch and the United States sports fishermen. In recent years the Japanese longline fishing vessels have taken as many as 365,000 billfishes annually in the northwest Atlantic (including Gulf of Mexico). However, only about six percent of these were taken inside the FCZ. The United States recognizes billfish as a valuable recreation resource.

The preliminary fishery management plan would permit foreign tuna longline fishing inside the FCZ but would invoke the following conditions; all applicable within the FCZ:

(1) Prohibit the rentention of any billfishes captured during fishing operations and to ensure that billfishes captured alive will be returned to the water in such a fashion as to ensure maximum probability of survival.

(2) Establish an effective cooperative billfish tagging program between foreign nations conducting pelagic longline operations within the FCZ and the National Marine Fisheries Service.

(3) To proceed immediately toward developing and implementing an international plan for regulation of billfishes under the auspices of an international organization such as the International Commission for the Conservation of Atlantic Tunas (ICCAT). Additional elements of the plan would require foreign fishermen operating within the 200-mile FCZ to have a valid fishing permit; to report entering and departing the FCZ; U.S. observers would have boarding privileges without prior announcement; and no foreign longline fishing vessel would be permitted to have any billfishes on board while in the FCZ even though they were taken outside the FCZ.

Copies of the draft fishery management plan for billfish are on file for review by interested persons at the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department Region V office, 715 South Bronte, Rockport, and the office of Aransas County Marine Extension Agent Ralph Rayburn, County Courthouse, Rockport.

The Fishery Management Council will hold one of seven public hearings on its proposals in Corpus Christi August 18 at the Research and Extension Service Auditorium, Texas A&M University, Texas Highway 44 (five miles past airport), between 7-11 p.m.

Interested persons may make statements at the hearing or may submit written statements by September 10 to the Gulf of Mexico Fishery Management Council, Lincoln Center, Suite 881, 5401 West Kennedy Boulevard, Tampa, Florida 33609.

TP&WD Rulings To Have Local Impact

The Texas Parks and Wildlife Commission will be considering two measures of interest to coastal residents when it convenes July 21 and 22 in Austin.

The first day of the meeting will be a closed briefing session for Commission members and staff only, with subjects such as the 1978 budget and reports on several state historical sites and development projects due to be read.

The public hearing on July 22 is where coastal interests will be taken up in the middle of a long agenda. The Commission will be deciding on the basis of field reports from the Region V headquarters in Rockort and other Texas offices, whether or not to close portions or all of Texas bay waters to commercial fishermen. Proponents of a fishing ban say game fish populations in the bays have reached crisis levels of depletion because of over-fishing by commercial interests. Commercial fishermen say there are still plenty of fish in the bays, and feel desperate in light of passage of the Red Drum Conservation Act, a measure they considered unnecessary and a lobbying victory for sport fishing interests.

Commissioners will also be taking the second step toward restoration and opening of the Fulton Mansion. The TP&WD bought the home a year ago and the Commission recently approved preliminary plans calling for almost $400,000 worth of refurbishing, refurnishing and reconstruction. More detailed plans will be up for consideration July 22 when architect Jim Bigger makes his second report.

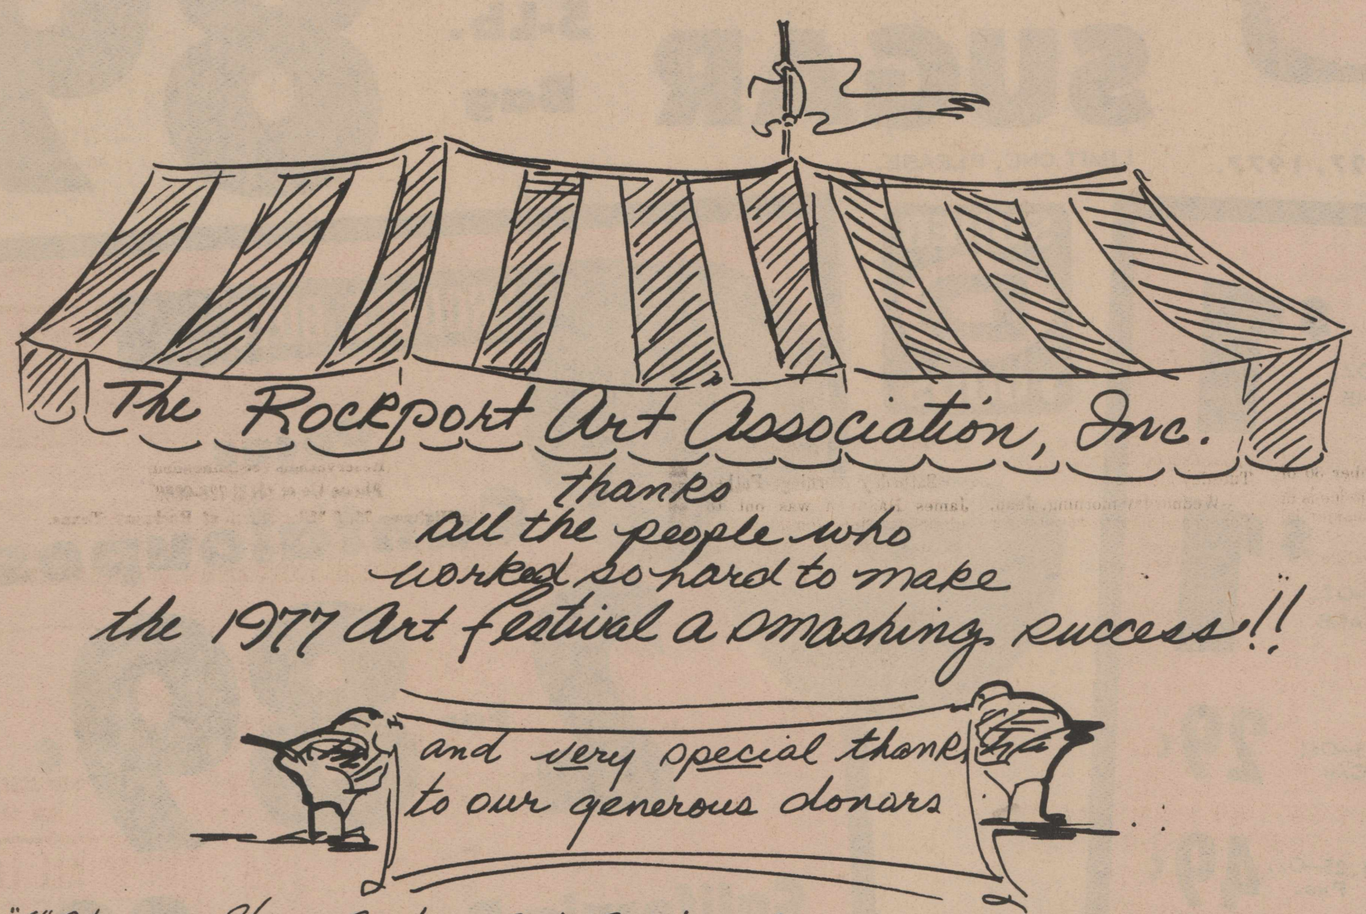

Food Poisoning Avoidable Summer Problem

It's unfortunate, but food poisoning is a frequent result of improper food handling, particularly when the weather is hot, says J.M. Doughty, Jr., Director of the Food and Drug Divison of the Department of Health Resources.

The Texas Department of Health Resources is so concerned with the problems of food-borne infections that it sponsors courses in teaching food hygiene. Its regional offices and local health departments help carry out training programs for food handlers.

"Improper sanitation or improper refrigeration and heating are the main causes of food poisoning in humans. Almost without exception in food poisoning cases, the food was contaminated after having been cooked and allowed to stand at temperatures which encouraged bacterial growth," says Doughty.

Harold Bredthauer, supervisor of the Bacteriology/Mycology Branch of the TDHR Laboratories, says these bacteria thrive at temperatures ranging from 45 to 140 degrees Fahrenheit--from cool to warm.

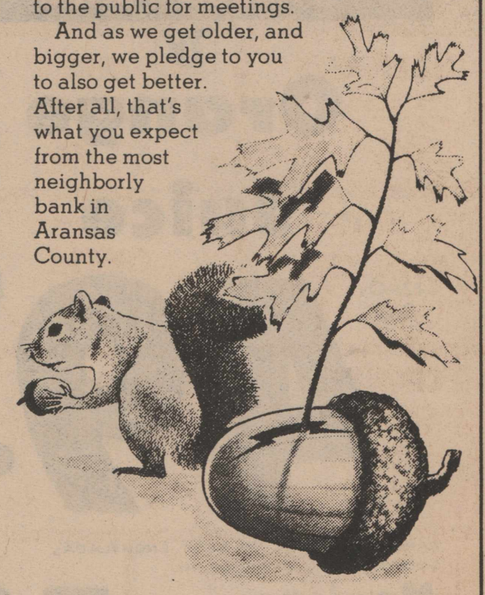

COME WATCH US GROW

The occasion of our third anniversary also marks a new milestone in Live Oak State Bank's physical growth and expansion.

Our new expansion project will add an additional 2,900 square feet of customer convenience to our building by early 1978.

That will give us—and you—a larger teller area, more space for officers, plus a community room that will be available to the public for meetings.

And as we get older, and bigger, we pledge to you to also get better. After all, that's what you expect from the most neighborly bank in Aransas County.

88 New State Laws Affect Outdoorsmen; Increase TP&WD's Power

Texas legislators in the 1977 session passed 88 bills which in one way or another affect the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department, legislation ranging from an increase in nonresident hunting license fees to a bill which raises fees for certificates of title on boats.

All of the new laws will affect outdoorsmen in varying degrees.

Two nonresident hunting license fees go into effect September 1--a general nonresident license for $100.75 and a small game nonresident license which sells for $37.75. The general license is valid for hunting any species of game which legally may be taken in the state and is required to hunt deer, turkey, elk, antelope, bear, javelina and aoudad only in those Panhandle counties where there is a season.

Nonresident fishing license fees will increase to $10.50 September 1. Citizens of the Republic of Mexico who are traveling in Texas with a visa and fishing in coastal waters require no fishing license.

Resident fishing license fees will post a modest 25-cent increase in September. Fifty cents of the $4.50 resident license will go to license sales deputies.

Exempt hunting licenses for Texas residents also increase slightly--from 25 cents to $1.25. These licenses are for Texans under the age of 17 or over 65 years of age.

Effective date of both hunting and fishing licenses has been standardized. Now both licenses will be valid from September 1 of one year to August 31 of the following year. This piece of legislation took effect June 1 and those fishing licenses purchased between then and Sept. 1, 1977, will be valid until Aug. 31, 1978. Those fishing licenses bought before June 1 will expire one year from date of purchase.

Residents of hospitals, state schools, and blind persons and disabled veterans of the armed forces will be entitled to special consideration when it comes to fishing licenses.

No license is required of those residents of state schools and hospitals who are engaged in recreational fishing as part of medically approved therapy under supervision of hospital or school personnel.

Veterans of the U.S. armed forces who suffer from service-connected disabilities rated at 60 percent or more may buy special fishing licenses of $1.25.

No single piece of legislation affecting the P&WD received as much emotional comment from sport and commercial fishermen as the Red Drum Conservation Act.

Senate Bill 624 limits the number of redfish or red drum to 10 per day and 20 in possession for sport fishermen as of September 1 and limits commercial fishermen to 200 pounds of redfish per day. And come Oct. 31, 1978, Parks and Wildlife Commissioners will have authority to close bays to commercial fishing of redfish if it's determined that more than 90 percent of the redfish quota from a specific bay has been harvested.

A special $50 red drum license was approved by the Texas Legislature which is valid from October 1 of one year through September 30 of the following year. The fee is in addition to regular commercial fishing license fees.

The Parks and Wildlife Department also was given authority by the legislature to construct or accept and maintain artificial reefs in state coastal waters and make it an offense to damage markers or signals on the reefs.

Inland fishermen in Texas will be prohibited from collecting and transporting as bait fish black bass, crappie, catfish except bullheads, walleye, striped bass and their hybrids, trout, white bass or northern pike.

Game fish taken illegally and confiscated by P&WD wardens now may be donated to charitable institutions, hospitals or needy persons.

In past years, native bass, catfish and hybrid sunfish were available free from P&WD fish hatcheries to landowners for stocking in private ponds. Now the legislature has given the department authority to charge for such stockings.

Parks and Wildlife Commissioners will consider rates for such fish as proposed by the departmen's inland fisheries staff at the July 22 commission meeting.

Game wardens now have authority to remove without a warrant illegally placed nets, seines, trawls, traps or other fishing devices from the state's inside waters. New laws give the P&WD's law enforcement division the right to hold as evidence such illegal fishing devices. And the devices can be destroyed if the person charged with illegal fishing is found guilty. They would be returned if the owner is found innocent.

A separate piece of legislation authorizes wardens to seize electricity-producing devices used to take fish illegally, devices used in "telephoning" fish.

The right to commission deputy game wardens was given the Parks and Wildlife Department. Such wardens would serve at the will of the department's executive director and be commissioned for a period of no more than four years. Deputy game wardens may enforce state game and fish laws within a geographical area prescribed by the department. The law specifies that no deputy game warden may operate on the coastal waters, bays or estuaries of the state. The wardens will serve without compensation.

During upcoming special archery seasons this year bow hunters may have a shotgun in their possession as long as they have shot no larger than size number four in general law counties and size number six in regulatory counties, and the gun is not used for taking deer, turkey or javelina. This provision should give archers the opportunity to hunt upland game birds during bow season.

In order to make the turkey bag limits uniform across the state, legislators approved a bill which makes it illegal to take more than two turkey gobblers in one open season.

This will affect hunters in those counties under general law. Counties under the regulatory authority of the Parks and Wildlife Department have had a two-turkey bag limit for the past few years. Turkey tags on hunting licenses sold this year will specify that two be used for the fall season and the third for spring seasons where authorized.

And another bill requires that such tags remain on the turkey until it reaches its final destination. "Final destination" is defined much the same as for deer--a commercial processing plant, permanent residence of the hunter or permanent residence of any other person receiving a dead wild turkey.

Hunters and fishermen are not the only outdoorsmen affected by laws of the 65th Texas Legislature;several bills were passed having to do with recreational boating.

Senate Bill 1052 makes it illegal for political subdivisions to charge a fee for the inspection of boats used on public waters.

A similar bill raises fees for the issuance of certificates of title on boats to $3.50 as of Aug. 29, 1977.

Previous legislation set the fees at $2 and lowered them to $1.50 as of Sept. 1, 1977. In the first year of issuing certificates of title for boats--1976-77--the Parks and Wildlife Department ran up losses of some $212,000.

Duplicate boat registration decals, the "TX" hull numbers, will cost boaters $1 in September. They had been free in the past.

Operators of boats who are involved in accidents which result in an injury, death or damage to property in excess of $100 value must file an accident report with the Parks and Wildlife Department. Previously the minimum property value was $50.

On Aug. 29, 1977, veterans of the U.S. armed forces who have a disability resulting from their service will be admitted to state parks free of charge with a permit issued by the P&WD. The Veterans Administration defines such disabilities as loss of use of the lower extremities or a 60 percent disability rating. The veteran must be receiving compensation from the United States Government because of the disability.

City Sales Tax Rebate Up 29%

State Comptroller Bob Bullock said Friday that city sales tax rebates to date for 1977 are running a healthy 20.3 percent ahead of last year.

Bullock said his office mailed rebate checks Friday totaling $23.6 million to 868 Texas cities for their July share of the one percent city sales tax.

The City of Rockport received a check for $6,240.59, pushing its receipts to date in 1977 to $74,374.56, an increase of 29 percent over the same period in 1976.

The July checks boost to $190.7 million the total that has been rebated to Texas cities for the first seven months of this year. This compares to $158.6 million for the same period last year.

"These rebates are just another sign of the strength of The Texas economy," Bullock said.

He also noted that state sales tax collections in Texas are registering a bigger percentage increase than any other state.

Bullock said the city of Houston will get a July sales tax rebate check for $4.7 million and Dallas and San Antonio will receive $3.2 million and $1.3 million, respectively.

HEAVY HITTER. Wayne Childers rapped a home run Monday night with a cut just like this one, but it was not enough to push the Aransas County Senior Little League Champion Dolphins past Gregory-Portland in the first round of a double elimination tournament. The Rockport reps were due to take on the loser of the Sinton-Aransas Pass game Tuesday night.

Dolphins At Play

Senior League Champs See Astros–Giants Game

The Senior League champion Dolphins saw an Astros-Giants game June 25-26 in Houston during an outing sponsored by Louis Hillyard and his wife, team parents Mr. and Mrs. Richard Dominguez and Mrs. Felipa Flores, and team manager Evelyn Hull.

The boys left at 8 a.m. the 25th in a four-car convoy, and stopped once for a break which included homemade burritos.

The team set up its headquarters in two tents at Houston's Leisure Park and checked out the pool, posing for "team" pictures with the best looking girl there.

The next day the boys showed up early for the game in Dolphin shirts and hats and got to talk to the teams prior to their warm-ups. Ronald Dominguez hustled a team-high nine autographs, Benny Flores talked to Giant mound ace "Count John Montefusco about the fine art of fastball, and Travis Huff received a bat from Astro Bob Watson that had also belonged to All-Star Astro Cesar Cedeno.

The morning after the game, the team toured the Battleship Texas and had a look at and from the San Jacinto monument.

The group returned the evening of the 26th happy, and the team says thanks to those who made the trip possible.

Regatta Winners Announced

Members of the Rockport Sailing Club met Thursday of last week at the Little Bay Club and viewed slides and heard Commander Bob Forest describe his experiences aboard the Chilian square rigger, Esmeralda.

Forest is executive officer at Corpus Christi Naval Air Station. Esmeralda was one of the "Tall Ships" which sailed last year in the Bermuda-Newport Race and participated in the July 4 parade of ships in New York.

Built originally for the Spanish Navy in 1946, Esmeralda was acquired by Chili as a navy training ship in 1954. Her 21 sails total 30,700 feet of canvas and her mainmast rises 159 feet above the water.

A career Navy officer, Forest is a native of Boston, Mass. and an adopted Texan. According to all information available, he, Dr. Park Gerdine of Rockport and his son, Warren, are the only South Texans to view the parade of tall ships from sailing vessels. The Gerdines departed Rockport in their 27-foot sloop, Karma, in May, crossed the gulf and sailed up the east coast to Newport and New York.

In a brief business session Park Gerdine and Walter Foster were named to the club board of directors by C.M. Henkel, Jr., commodore. They will serve until December and at that time a new slate of officers will be elected by the membership.

Henkel said verbal response to building a club house has been affirmative, but few members have answered questionnaires included in the July "Soundings," the club newsletter.

The next club cruise will be on July 30-31. Participants will sail to Shamrock Cove in Corpus Christi Bay off Mustang Island. Sailing skippers who are not members of the RSC are invited to participate. For further information, they may contact Park Gerdine, cruise chairman, or the commodore, 729-1636.

"I Can't Believe It's a Regatta," the annual Rockport Sailing Club classic for board boats, was held Saturday in Little Bay. Rain, threatening weather and light air reduced participation. Otherwise the event was a gala for several dozen skippers and crews. The regatta was coordinated by Gail Leslie and Jerry Shaw. Pat and Linda Daly, entertainment chairmen, furnished sandwiches, beer and soft drinks for thirsty sailors.

Winners of trophies and ribbons were as follows:

Overall, advanced division: Andy McMillan, first; Robin Wallace, second; Al Barnes, third. Overall, beginners: Trae Appling, first; Lynda Knox, second;Rob McMillan, third.

Advanced, around the marks: Andy and Rob McMillan, first; Barnes, second; Walt and Don Foster, third. Beginners: Mark Watson and Trae Appling, first; Lynda Knox and Laurie Karcher, second; Bonnie Cooper and Melissa Schultz, third.

Man overboard, advanced: Al Barnes, first; Robin Wallace and Scott Townsend, second; Scott and Rob McMillan, third. Beginners: Trae Appling and Mark Watson, first; Rob and Scott McMillan, second; Lynda Scott and Laurie Karcher, third.

Advanced capsize: Robin Wallace and Scott Townsend, first; Mark Watson and Trae Appling, second; Andy and Scott McMillan, third. Beginners: Appling and Watson, first; Rob and Scott McMillan, second; Knox and Karcher, third.

Overload: Andy, Rob and Scott McMillan, Wade and Nathan Taggart, first; Walt Foster, Cap Henkel, Kynam Connery, Pete Booth and Mike Smith, second; Murray McMillan, Gary and Karan Starzell, Al Barnes and Donna Henkel, third.

Advanced LeMans: Wallace and Townsend, first; Andy and Scott McMillan, second; Walt Foster and Peter Booth, third. Beginners: Appling and Watson, first; Rob and Scott McMillan, second.

The annual Corpus Christi Yacht Club-sponsored race to Rockport is expected to fill Aransas Bay with upwards of 50 sailboats by late Saturday afternoon. The Rockport Sailing Club is assisting in coordinating the event, according to C.M. Henkel, Jr., commodore.

A number of RSC skippers are expected to participate. They will sail Friday for Corpus Christi in order to make the 10:30 a.m. start Saturday. Registration will be between 8 and 9 a.m. at the Corpus Christi Yacht Club.

Following the race, skippers, crews and guests will meet at Paws and Taws, Fulton, for presentation of trophies, a hamburger supper and dance.

NO EIGHT BALL. Jim Hargrove, right, latches on to his first place trophy, won in a recent billiards tournament sponsored by the Anchor Inn, Rockport. Hargrove is getting the goods from Inn bar manager Eric Zuck. Hargrove edged Fred Gonzales and Ray Bock for the title.

SHE SHARKS. Debbie Brand, Davity Hollingsworth and Brenda Hargrove won first, second and third, respectively, in a July 12 billiards tournament for women held at the Anchor Inn on Highway 35 South. The Anchor Inn management says they'll schedule more tournaments if interest warrants. Call Margaret at the Inn to register.

TOPS. Sandy Johnson of Rockport landed a 57-pound sailfish with a 20-pound test line Thursday, and took runner-up honors in the light tackle division of the annual Port Aransas Fishing Roundup. Her catch, combined with husband Billy's 35-pound sail on another 20-pound line, gave the Johnson boat the overall Boatsman trophy in the division. The tournament was the first for Mrs. Johnson, and the sailfish was also her first. And, better yet, she landed it just 15 minutes before the deadline. The Johnsons co-own the boat with crew members and co-fishermen Ronnie and Jeanie Rutledge. From L to R are Jeanie, Ronnie, Sandy and Billy.

Depth recorders help people catch fish in more ways than one. They also warn you that you are getting into shallow water, help locate sunken objects, help you locate yourself in the Gulf of Mexico and just generally make boating safer and more enjoyable.

Many fishermen use the "depth indicator" rather than the recorder. This is a much more economical instrument and, in spite of its limitations, does a creditable job. It has two flashing lights that indicate the depth of the water and, it is said, the width of one of these lights will indicate the type of bottom such as rocks, hard sand or mud. It is also supposed to indicate fish with flashes of light between the two main lights. This, however, may be trash in the water, echos or single dead trees.

Even though it is much less sophisticated than one that actually records, it will tell you the depth of the water, the presence of underwater cliffs and the presence of underwater "structures"--all of which can contribute to better fishing.

Some of the actual recorders that show you a "picture" of the underwater world on a moving paper chart are very sophisticated instruments. They print out a graphic picture of the bottom showing trees, brush, rocks and anything else that changes the contour of the bottom. They also show schools of bait fish and individual game fish. By the shape of the marks indicating the larger fish the expert can identify even the species.

These are extremely helpful to the fishermen and their usefulness can be proven by the number of professional tournament fishermen who use them. They should be useful since they cost between $300 and $600.

Another way that these recorders make fishing better in Texas is by indicating to Texas Parks and Wildlife biologists where "fish shelters" made of brush, sawmill scraps or old automobile tires should be placed. When the shelters are in place the location can be rechecked to determine their effectiveness in congregating the fish. Once they become effective and the fish are found there the location can be marked and fishermen told how to find it.

Yes--depth recorders are expensive but they can make you a better and a safer fisherman.

ACCIDENT CONTROL--Safe operating practices for lawn mowers include shutting off the mower when moving it from one level to another, when leaving it unattended, and when removing debris, says the Texas Agricultural Extension

Commissioners had earlier approved a grant request for the secretary-baliff position, but the request was denied by the Criminal Justice Division of the Governor's office.

Addition rezoned from R-3 Duplex and Apartments to B-1 Business.

--C.D. Mayfield wants lots six and seven of Block 13, D&M Addition rezoned from R-3 Duplex and Apartments to B-2 Business.

Those requests, the high rise request and the formalization of amendments to the present zoning ordinance proposed earlier by the Commission will all be considered in open session after the conclusion of the joint public hearing.

Council will rule on the recommendations during its regular meeting.

In other business, the Council will:

--Approve the budgeting of $2500 for a sanitary sewer study of Rockport by City Engineer Gene Urban. The money will be placed in the 1977-78 budget, but Urban has told City Secretary Herman Johnson he will start immediately and perhaps have the report ready by October. Urban's bill, however, won't be posted until January. The Council is facing an apparent need for renovations at the present sewer system plant, and the possible construction of one or two more plants within the next few years.

--Consider offer from Edwin L. Cox, who earlier drilled a dry hole inside the city limits, for a non-production lease on the City water plant site because the average inmate population is so small, is requesting that the county be excluded from the day room and single-cell requirements. County officials are cautiously optimistic that the variances will be granted in those cases, but are resigned to complying with the demands for a fulltime jailer.

Jail Standards

And that compliance will be the item which will require a county bond issue.

County Commissioners had earlier discussed the possibility of building additional office space for the Sheriff's Department personnel into the Aransas County Library, and putting up a new library building.

Those options are still the most likely, and Wendell said the cost could run $100,000 and possibly much more if the library option is chosen. Additional office space might be completed for much less, however, and variances on other key standards could keep costs below the $100,000 mark.

Regardless of the outcome, a bond issue will be required because of the county's already strained financial position. A courthouse renovation already planned will cost $60,000 in budgeted funds, lawsuits on two accidents involving county employees and vehicles cloud all financial planning, and constantly growing expenditures for road and drainage work all make it impossible for the county to pay for additional work of any magnitude with current reserves.

Wendell said the Commissioners Court is awaiting the decision of the Jail Standards Commission on the variances before beginning any budgeting preparation for a bond issue. He did say, however, that a five cent increase in the tax rate is bringing in approximately $20,000 per year at present values.

and the ambulance were notified, but Paramedic Bill Aston and crew were able to stabilize Dennis at the scene and see him safely to Memorial.

Dennis had been hit by a 20-gauge shotgun shell, and received massive damage to the left side of his face. Miraculously, he did not sustain brain damage.

Hotel Manager Hosted State's Top Politicos

"They were never any problem," says John Ashbaugh, recalling visits from top Texas politicians like former President Lyndon Johnson and former Governors John Connally and Preston Smith. "They never made any unusual demands. There was security, of course, but the Secret Service and the DPS don't get in the way."

Ashbaugh, who retired five years ago in Fulton, is the former manager of the Paso Del Norte, one of Texas' finest luxury hotels. Built in 1912 at a cost of $1 million, the Paso Del Norte has 300 rooms, and features opulent touches like a dozen-chandeliered, Tiffany domed lobby. The oldest luxury hotel in Texas' largest border town, it has been headquarters for a steady stream of politicians and business leaders for more than half a century.

Most of the famous politicians were frequent visitors, and when Ashbaugh retired, he had accumulated a roomful of mementos, including a Texas flag that flew over the Ausitn capitol from Preston Smith, and autographed pictures of Johnson, Smith, Connally, former Lieutenant Governor Ben Barnes, Insurance Board Chairman Joe Christie, Senator John Tower and Congressman John White.

It was their impeccability about personal matters, however, that made them a host's dream. Ashbaugh says each would "take you aside and talk to you like you were a relative. They were all real likable people, Johnson especially."

Ashbaugh doesn't say what they talked about, but it could well have been management--Ashbaugh himself ran a staff of 136--on the long way up. Ashbaugh began in the restaurant business in 1937 in Galveston in a hotel which was part of the National Hotels chain. He worked his way up from busboy to storeroom manager, then assistant manager in charge of food and beverages, and then manager. He moved to El Paso for the first time in 1961 to work for National's Cortez Hotel downtown.

After four years there, he went to work for hotel magnate Conrad Hilton as catering manager at the famous Lake Arrowhead Resort in California. Lake Arrowhead was the "watering hole" for the biggest stars in Hollywood, and it may not have been Camelot, but Ashbaugh remembers it as formidably elegant.

"It was a 300 room hotel, with a casino and three bars. On Saturday nights, there would be three bands playing simultaneously--one in the lounge, one by the pool and another in the dining room."

It gave Ashbaugh a whiff of the rare air, and apparently tipped scales in his favor. When he came back to El Paso in 1967, it was as the manager of the Paso Del Norte. He was at the height of his career and skills. He served on the Board of Directors of the Texas Restaurant Association, as a Director of the International Innkeepers International and found time to work hand-in-hand with Christie and others in El Paso to secure passage of liquor-by-the-drink.

In 1967, Ashbaugh got his "biggest thrill" by hosting a dinner for then President Lyndon Johnson and Mexican President Diaz.

Security was so tight before the meal that Ashbaugh's wife was not allowed in the hotel by mistake. "I did what any red-blooded American woman would do," she says. "I went to the beauty shop. And when I got back, they let me in."

The banquet itself went off without a hitch. Ashbaugh says his help had served the powerful and the rich so many times before that it was only a little more challenging than normal. Some of the staff had been there for more than 50 years he says, including one woman who was then in her seventies, and is still a waitress today, despite being in her mid-eighties.

Other banquets and dinners stuck in Ashbaughs memory, including a reception for General Omar Bradley that drew 23 generals and high-ranking officers from all of the service branches.

Ashbaugh's talents and consistency won him the Restaurateer of the Year award in 1969, the same year he was named Kiwanian of the Year in El Paso.

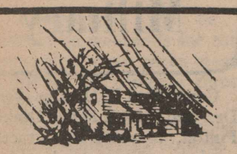

Living comfortably now in Fulton, he flies the flag Smith gave him and displays his pictures and memorabilia to visitors, but says it was the variety of the job, rather than any one thrill that makes his career memories pleasant.

"When you're in the hotel-motel business you have to be so many things--teacher, arbitrator, boss, host, accountant--that there's never really a down time. It really grows on you, gets under your skin, however you want to say it. If you like to meet people, there's not much better."

GOD and HIS CHURCH

AMERICA'S First Line of Defense

But wherever it shines . . . there are shadows.

Wherever there are golden opportunities there are also sombre tragedies. Some fail to grasp their blessings.

Ours is a nation which guarantees to every child the opportunity for religious training. Yet ours is a nation which smarts under the scourge of a moral disease — juvenile delinquency.

In blessing you with a son or daughter, God has entrusted to you a precious soul. You are required by law to give your child a secular education. But, despite the scourge of delinquency, a free nation must leave to your conscience the question of your child's moral and religious education.

God has blessed America. With a nearby Church ready and eager to provide Christian training for your child, and religious foundation for your family's life—the Sun shines bright. But there are shadows. You must decide!

Cadet Earl T. Dinkler, son of Dr. and Mrs. Fred Dinkler, Fulton, is receiving practical work in military leadership at the Army Reserve Training Corps advanced camp at Ft. Lewis, Wash.

The five-week ROTC advanced camp provides an opportunity for cadets to develop and demonstrate leadership capabilities in a field training environment.

Most cadets are fulfilling their advanced camp requirement during the summer between their junior and senior years in college. However, there will be a number of graduating seniors who will receive Army commissions at the completion of camp.

Cadet Dinkler attended State University of Iowa, Iowa City, and is a student at Iowa State University, Ames, Iowa.

Schwartz Wants Seadock In Special Session

Texas State Senator A.R. "Babe" Schwartz of Galveston today asked the Governor to open the call of the current Special Session for the consideration of a bill which would permit Texas to build an offshore terminal facility in the event that Seadock's license is rejected. Senator Schwartz said "The announcement by Exxon yesterday of its withdrawl from the Seadock consortium may not accept its license for an offshore terminal facility.

"I still believe Texas must have port facilities capable of handling supertankers, and that the most realistic and first possibility for Texas is an offshore port. I believe SEADOCK should have the first option to act as lessee and operator of such a facility.

"Further, I regret that the conditions placed on SEADOCK by the United States Department of Transportation and the withdrawal of Exxon and others may prevent SEADOCK from proceeding.

"I hope the remaining member companies of SEADOCK will be able to accept the conditions and build the facility. However, in the event that SEADOCK rejects the license and decides not to proceed, the state must be in a position to provide a backup alternative.

"My proposed legislation is very carefully drawn so that the state would take action only if SEADOCK is unable to proceed. Its major features include:

(1) The Governor would have to determine that SEADOCK had abandoned its plans and no private alternative exists. Only after such a determination could the Governor make appointments to the board that would govern the Texas Offshore terminal Authority.

(2) The credit of the state would not be pledged. Revenue bonds, backed by contracts with prospective users would be used to finance the facility. It could be built only if those oil companies now involved in SEADOCK--and other smaller ones--determined that the state-owned port was the best remaining alternative in the absence of SEADOCK.

(3) The authorization for the Governor to make his determination of need to create the authority expires on January 1, 1979. Thus if Governor Briscoe does not determine such a facility is needed by that date, there could not be a state effort. If he did create the authority prior to that date, it would continue operations beyond the 1979 cut-off date.

(4) The Authority would be empowered to acquire the license and purchase plans, designs, and other products from SEADOCK to expedite construction if SEADOCK is forced to terminate its efforts by rejecting the license.

(5) The Authority would be required to use private contractors for all aspects of construction.

(6) To expedite matters, the Governor would be authorized to waive the review provisions of the Texas Deepwater Port Act if he determined that the Authority's proposal was substantially similar to one which had already been reviewed and approved by the state.

"By using the same plans and designs that have already been approved by the federal government, including the preparation of a foot-thick Environmental Impact Statement, it will be possible to significantly shorten the lead time required in getting the license transferred to the state. There is a specific procedure in the federal law to allow a license to be transferred after it is accepted. Although there is not a specific provision authorizing such a transfer before acceptance, there seems to be flexibility to do so."

The license deals with two distinct elements: (a) environmental aspects, and (b) antitrust provisions. The first would be unchanged since the design and operating plans would be the same. The antitrust aspects would not be applicable since a public body, the State of Texas, would own the port and operate it as a common carrier facility.

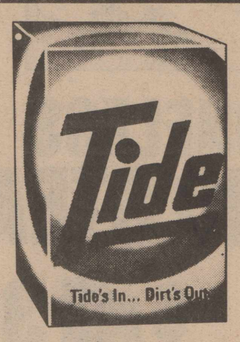

The Texas Legislature will consider Senator Schwartz' bill this week. (The Editor)

State of the Region

By Juliet K. Wenger
Coastal Bend Council of Gov'ts

Older people and other families on fixed incomes often find essentials take every available dollar in their budgets. Then utility rates go up again, and again. Many of these are people who have saved and planned for retirement during productive years. This they didn't and couldn't anticipate.

What are these people doing to pay the high utility bills? This question was put to Louise Smith, superivisor of the social service unit for aged, blind and disabled, State Department of Public Welfare. She said they are selling what they own, borrowing money, turning to family or friends for assistance, whatever they can. Most of the measures are only a temporary answer and eventually there will be no more avenues of help.

The COG's Council on Aging has appointed an Energy Task Force which is approaching the problem from two standpoints. One is to look for any possible financial help to meet a crisis, to prevent utilities from being turned off for lack of payment. The other is to compile information on possible ways of reducing utility costs and to get that information to the people who need it most.

Mrs. Smith says that sometimes an even greater need exists in the homes of families receiving no government assistance than in homes where food stamps, medical payments and other assistance supplement cash. The family whose income is just a few dollars over the established poverty line is cut off by all guidelines and in many respects is poorer.

Mrs. Smith is a member of the Energy Task Force, as is John Forehand, director of the Community Development Corporation, a private corporation that includes housing assistance in its work. Forehand, representing the Aging Council, attended an intergovernmental conference in Washington. There, spokesmen for all departments provided information on what help is available, either financial or instructional. In late summer or early fall, Forehand will conduct COG workshops throughout the region to pass on the information he learned to governmental entities and agencies.

He found the concensus to be an increasing need to use common sense, in some instances to revert to means our forefathers used to protect themselves from the elements before there was fuel readily available. Some of the steps which saved lives then could save money today.

Solar energy is new in the sense of collection systems and storage elements. Forehand found that it is cost effective now to use solar energy as a hot water heater. It is wise in many new buildings to install six-inch insulation and other prerequisites to converting to solar energy throughout when this will make economic sense, in the not too distant future.

Solar energy is as old as rubbing two sticks together when you think of it terms of using the heat of the sun most effectively in winter and shielding a building from it in summer. Plant fast-growing trees. Put up awnings. Use dark colors to intensify heat, white to cool it.

Cracks in the structure of a house which let in or out cool or hot air mean high utility bills. Nothing else that is done can really help the situation until that building is made air tight. In the most primitive dwellings this may mean stuffing rags or newspapers into cracks. For some houses it may mean obtaining scraps of carpet pads that furniture stores discard and weatherproofing the house with these. Where there is money to make an intitial investment, it may mean solar screens and storm windows. Pioneers used principals of solar energy in sod houses and banked houses in winter to keep cold wind from blowing in under them.

Some federal money is and is going to be available, to help a family in a utility bill crisis and to pay for materials needed to make a home air tight. Vocational training programs, school shop classes, neighborhood volunteers, are all possibilities to provide labor in homes where there is no able-bodied member of the family.

Reservations Required In 17 Texas Parks

Reservations will be accepted on weekends for campsites at 17 state parks starting June 26 and running through September 4.

Texas Parks and Wildlife Commissioners on June 24 approved a plan for the reservation of 1,624 campsites at 17 state parks scattered about the state.

Department parks director Paul Schlimper said for a $2 non-refundable reservation fee, a site may be reserved for Fridays and Saturdays only and then only for use at a specific park.

Schlimper said the reservation fee was in addition to the usual entrance and facility use fees.

"The reservation system as approved by the Parks and Wildlife Commission," said Schlimper, "is experimental and generally includes those parks with heavy demands for campsites on summer weekends.

"Such a reservation system has become necessary because of increased visitation in state parks during the summer. Many visitors to parks drive long distances only to find no campsites available to them when they arrive. A reservation system could prevent them from being turned away and also keep visitation within capacities of the park."

Depending on how the system works, it could be expanded to other parks at a later date.

Parks affected are:

Extension Notes

By Ralph Rayburn, Marine Extension Agent

The Coast Guard has published a new listing of Navigational Rules International-Inland (CG-169) dated May 1, 1977. This publication supersedes the Coast Guard pamphlet "Rules of the Road, International-Inland (CG-169) dated August 1, 1972. This edition contains the International Regulations for Preventing Collisions at Sea, 1972 (commonly called the 72 COLREGS) which must be followed by all public and private vessels of the United States while navigating upon the high seas (beyond the sea buoys). The 72 COLREGS are part of an international convention that was developed under the auspices of the United Nations' Inter-Governmental Maritime Consultative Organization (IMCO) in 1972. These rules enter into force at 12 noon, local zone time, on July 15, 1977.

Basically, Rule 26, which covers fishing vessels, has not significantly changed from what the previous rules stated, with the following exceptions: (1) that an after mast headlight is mandatory for trawling vessels greater than 50 meters (164 feet), with its location changed from below the green and white light to above the green light (2) vessels engaged in fishing, other than trawling, must show two all-around lights in a vertical line, red over white with no exception for boats under 40 feet long; (3) and new signals for vessels fishing in close proximity to indicate various actions being taken are also prescribed in the new rules.

Although probably not used very often by offshore shrimp boat operators, the new rules contain changes in the warning signals for maneuvering. These include a mixture of long and short whistle blasts depending on what action is being taken. Needless to say it should be interesting.

If you want to get a copy of the new CG 169, the Coast Guard Station in Corpus Christi has some, or you can get a copy by requesting it from Commandant (G-WLE/73), U.S. Coast Guard Headquarters, 400 Seventh Street, S.W., Washington, D.C. 20590.

TP&WD Notes

When returning a hooked fish to the water the watchword should be handle with care.

The fish is a delicate creature and few can survive improper handling by anglers who mean well and release undersized or unneeded fish.

Proper way to handle fish which do not have sharp teeth is to grasp the lower jaw between thumb and forefinger. This technique can be used on largemouth bass, crappie, catfish and saltwater redfish.

Don't lift the fish out of the water, if possible. Hold the lower jaw and leave the fish in the water to support its body and internal organs. Remove the hook and release the fish.

Toothed fish such as walleye, saltwater speckled trout and many other marine fish, call for a different technique to avoid lacerated thumbs. To release the fish grasp them across the gill covers with a wet hand while removing the hook. This should be done while the fish is partially submerged.

A wet hand will prevent loss of the protective layer of slime which covers the fish's body and guards against disease and infections.

A few fish such as snook have sharp edges on the gill plate covers which can slice a thumb like razor blades. They must be handled carefully by grasping the head.

Grabbing a fish around the middle and then squeezing is certain death for it. This bruises the body, mashes internal organs and probably breaks a few ribs.

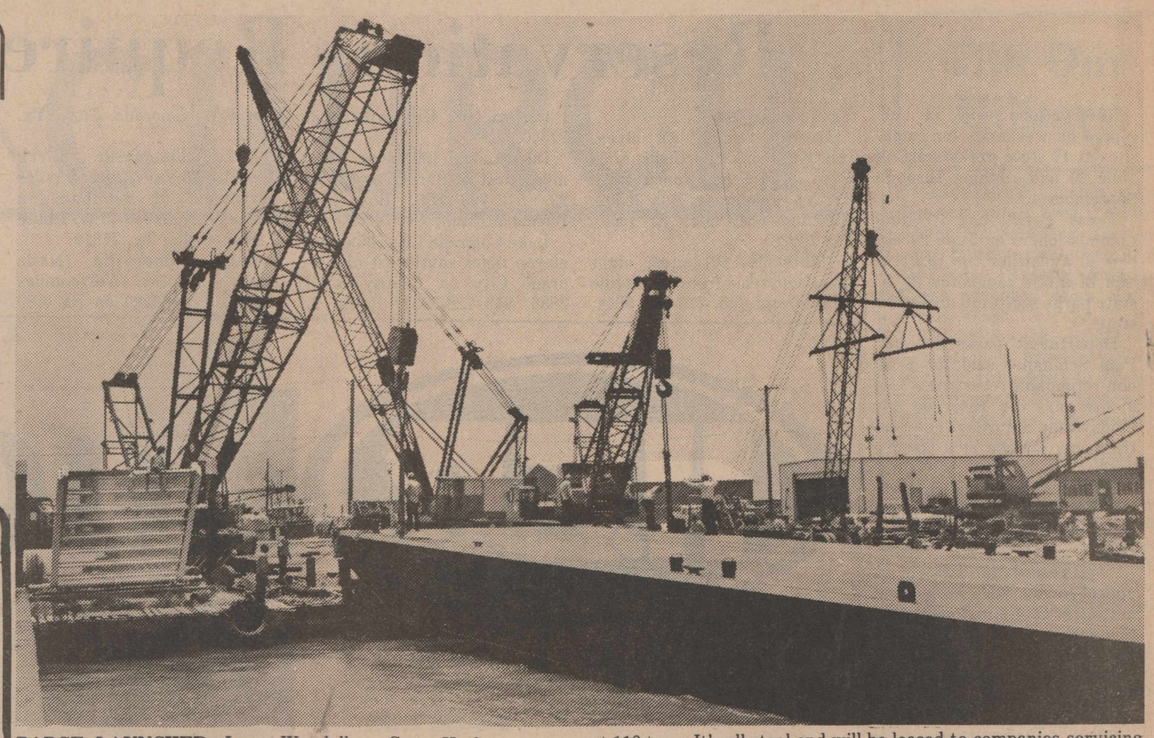

And in the process some of the slime is removed. Tests at the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department have shown that fish treated in such a manner take as long as 22 days to die from the infection they receive.

An additional 81 species of wildlife are due to receive protection from the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department after P&W Commissioners recently approved regulations for the taking, possessing and transporting of certain nongame animals.

The species to be protected are in addition to the 39 already covered under the state endangered species regulation.

Included in the recently approved listing are 17 species of mammals, 13 birds, 24 reptiles, 13 amphibians and 14 species of fishes native to Texas.

BARGE LAUNCHED. Lynn Wendell, a Cove Harbor manufacturer, recently completed work on the largest barge ever built at the harbor. The barge measured 130x30x7 feet, and weighed in at 110 tons. It's all steel and will be leased to companies servicing the growing number of offshore wells.

Sunlovers: Beware Overexposure

A strong warning about sunlight is one of the lead features of the June issue of TEXAS PARKS & WILDLIFE Magazine.

Welcome as it is for warmth, to grow crops, and as a source of energy, sunshine can be extremely harmful to humans who are not careful, the article points out.

The ultraviolet rays can cause mild or severe sunburn, depending on when and how long the body is exposed to them. Most dangerous time is between 10 a.m. and 2 p.m. Standard Time, when the sun is warmest. A cloudy day is no protection, since the rays can go through clouds; also, because of greater shadiness, people tend to stay exposed longer.

Other false illusions of safety can be given by beach umbrellas or the water. When a person is sitting in shade, the skin still is exposed to reflected sunlight. Sand, city paving and snow are good reflectors. So is water; however, ultraviolet rays will go through it. Waders wearing cutoffs or swimsuits, and children sitting in shallow water, often receive severe burns on their legs. It is a mistake to protect only part of the body with clothing or lotion and to think the water will prevent the other parts from burning.

Scattered rays, called sky radiation, are another problem. When ultraviolet rays hit dust, water particles and other objects in the air, they are deflected, or scattered, and can hit the body from all directions even when it is shaded from direct or reflected sunlight.

Of the five distinct layers in human skin, the innermost contains cells which produce a brown pigment called melanin. Fair skin with less melanin sunburns more easily and severely than dark skin.

About 20 percent of the ultraviolet rays pass through to the innermost skin layer and trigger release of the melanin, while 10 percent of the longer waves strike any melanin in the upper layers, immediately turning them a darker shade. The deep-working, shorter waves create the lasting tans, the darkening not evident for a couple of days but continuing for up to two weeks after exposure.

Therefore, gradual exposure is the best method to obtain a tan: no more than 10 minutes at first, increasing about five minutes on following days.

Although a good suntan eventually does protect the body from sunburn and allow a person to remain in the sun for longer periods without discomfort, it really is not good for the skin. According to the American Medical Association, overexposure to the sun for a period of years breaks down skin tissue, causing it to age faster. This aging process cannot be reversed. The skin becomes wrinkled, leathery and coarse, and prone to skin diseases including cancer.

Those who must be in the sun for long periods of time should protect the skin with clothing, a shielding compound such as zinc oxide, or chemical sunscreens contained in commercial lotions, creams and oils. Homemade lotions with such ingredients as baby oil, mineral oil or vinegar do not screen the ultraviolet rays and are not recommended.

Protective creams and lotions should be applied gently to the surface of the skin according to manufacturers' directions and reapplied whenever washed off in the water or weakened by perspiration.

Mild sunburn causes swelling of blood vessels, inflammation and redness. Severe sunburn breaks down the skin tissues, releasing fluids that form blisters, which eventually burst then the damaged cells peel off. With the blisters there may be danger of infection.

Advice given in cases of severe burn is to call the doctor, especially if the victim has chills, fever or delirium. Apply ice-cold milk compresses every half hour to less severe burns to help remove the heat. For a sunburn that covers the whole body, soak in a bathtub filled with cool water to which has been added a cup of cornstarch and one-fourth cup of baking soda. Use lotions containing painkillers such as benzocaine sparingly, since these sometimes cause skin reactions.

There is a last, important warning. Even mild exposure to bright sunshine multiplies the power of medication. Antibiotics are the most comon drugs involved, but tranquilizers, sulfa drugs, antihistamines and some compounds used to treat diabetes and high blood pressure may be dangerous also. Consequences may include hives or other skin reactions, vomiting, body tremors, even kidney and liver damage.

So in Texas, where we are blessed with plenty of sunshine, it pays to be careful so we can enjoy it.

"Broken Hair Was Breaking My Heart"

I cried every time I brushed

My hair was so thin and weak and brittle, I was breaking it off in bunches. I tried everything to stop it . . . protein treatments, conditioners . . . but nothing really helped.

Then I Heard about Avido . . .

the amazing new product with A-V-I*, the miracle "body-builder" that doctors discovered by accident! After using Avido for just a few short weeks, my mirror and my hair brush showed me the difference.

Now my hair is longer, stronger, thicker and shinier . . .

easier to manage . . . full of life and bounce. It styles and curls and bends without breaking. And I love brushing it because it's so beautiful!

*A-V-I is the trade name for a provitamin of the B complex family, a substance normally manufactured by body chemistry. Recent studies have determined it to be essential in the health and growth of hair. When massaged into the scalp, the A-V-I in Avido is absorbed by the subcutaneous layers where it directly nourishes hair follicles.
