Ask Us

Q. — How many elementary schools are in the scout program and which ones?

A. — All of the six elementaries are involved in the scouting program locally at some level — generally as a coordinating entity. There are Boy Scout huts located on the campuses of Stanfield, West, East, North and Northeast Elementaries. The scouts meeting through Central meet at the Boys Club.

TOP GRAD — Shana Hart (standing), valedictorian of the 1985 Senior Class, is shown with her classmates during graduation ceremonies here Friday. She was among 46 members of the class who were announced as scholarship recipients. This number already constitutes the largest percentage of any graduating class to date with a total value of scholarships announced Friday in excess of $50,000. (SDN Staff Photo)

New site for SDN Monday

Saturday was moving day for the Snyder Daily News as the paper relocated into its new facilities at 3600 College Ave.

The delivery and "set-up" of two new Goss press units was completed last week, allowing the SDN to publish out of its new location this coming week.

All operations of the newspaper will be handled at the new location effective Monday.

The four presses now used by the newspaper will be moved during the next few weeks into a new 4,000 sq. ft. building added to the back of the new building. The addition brought the total space for the newspaper and its companion press operation to 10,000 sq. ft.

With the total of six presses installed, the single-run capability of the SDN will go from 16 to 24 pages.

Plans to relocate were announced last Jan. 6. A complete interior renovation of the former Owen's Department Store building has been completed by T.E. Shelburne and Son.

An open house of the new building is now planned June 2 — a Sunday.

46 scholarships to SHS grads Friday

Some 46 members of the graduating class of 1985 were announced as scholarship recipients Friday during commencement exercises in the Scurry County Coliseum.

SHS Counselor Janet Wesson read the traditional list of honorees. While noting scholarships presented Friday did not reflect all those that will ultimately be given, the 46 seniors now honored constitutes the largest percentage of any graduating class to date.

Total value of the scholarship awards announced Friday night was listed in excess of $50,000.

The 142 members of the Class of 1985 — the smallest class to graduate SHS in recent years — received their diplomas from SISD Board President Mike Reed.

The presentation of diplomas followed the traditional baccalaureate address — presented this year by Rev. Robert T. Metzger of the First United Methodist Church — and the presentation of honor graduates.

Scholarship recipients announced Friday were:

—Shana Hart: highest ranking student in the graduating class — a tuition scholarship granted by the legislature of the State of Texas to the college of her choice; and a scholarship from the Texas Council of Church Related Colleges. Also, the T.D. Wiman, Jr. Memorial Scholarship given in memory of T.D. Wiman Jr., principal of Snyder High School from 1948—1961. This $400 scholarship is given to recognize a graduating student who typifies the characteristics Wiman encouraged in his students; scholarship, leadership, personal integrity, and social awareness.

—Phyllis Whitfill: second highest ranking student in the graduating class — a scholarship certificate from the Texas Council of Related Colleges. Also, a $5,000 scholarship for academic excellence from Colonial Hill Baptist Church to the college of her choice; a $200 Cunningham Academic Scholarship to WTC; and a $100 scholarship from the WTC Instrumental Music Department.

—Sonya Adams: a $5,000 scholarship for academic excellence from Colonial Hill Baptist Church to the college of her choice.

—Audra Blackard: a $600 scholarship to the college of her choice awarded by the Snyder Classroom Teachers Association.

—Michael Bowlin: a $100 scholarship from WTC Student Services.

—Kevin Boyd: a $250 scholarship to WTC awarded by Snyder Noon Kiwanis Club. Also, $150 Nancy Caton Scholarship to WTC.

—Adam Brewster: $720 plus tuition and fees from WTC Rodeo Program and Booster Club. Also, a $50 scholarship from WTC's ag department and a $1,000 scholarship to the college of his choice from the Rodeo Youth National Finals.

—Keith Bryan: a $250 scholarship to the college of his choice from Beta Sigma Phi. Also, he is one of the highly selected students to receive a $1,500 Carr Academic Scholarship to Angelo State University.

—Dedra Crawford: a $250 scholarship to WTC from Snyder Noon Kiwanis Club. Also, a $200 Cunningham Academic Scholarship from WTC.

—Matt Cross: a $50 scholarship to WTC from the Agriculture Department.

—Connie Davis: a $125 scholarship to the college of her choice from Snyder NAACP.

—Tracey Davis: a $200 Cunningham Academic Scholarship to WTC. Also, Tuition and Fees Scholarship from WTC Art Department.

—Regina Dunkins: a $75 scholarship to the college of her choice from the NAACP.

—Virgil Feinsod: a $100 scholarship from WTC Student Services.

—Kyle Freeman: a full track scholarship to Angelo State University.

—Melissa Garcia: a $150 scholarship to WTC from the Scurry County Legal Secretaries Association.

—Becky Gray: $200 a semester for four years to Hardin-Simmons University given by the First Baptist Church of Snyder.

—Melissa Jane Garcia: a $200 scholarship sponsored through the WTC Journalism Department.

—Jonathan Garrett: a $100 scholarship to the college of his choice from the NAACP; and a $200 scholarship to Howard County College from the Band and Color Guard.

—Willie Greathouse: a $110 scholarship to the college of his choice from the NAACP. Also, the $200 Perry Kruse Memorial Scholarship to WTC given by Iota Psi Sorority.

—Philip Hagar: a music scholarship from West Texas State University. Also, a $100 Musical Coterie music scholarship to the college of his choice.

—Gabriel Hinojos: a Navy ROTC scholarship to any college that offers Navy ROTC.

—Carrie Housden: a basketball scholarship to WTC.

—David Jackson: a $200 Cunningham Academic Scholarship to WTC.

—Michelle Killian: a $100 scholarship from

Radiologist joins Cogdell staff list

A new medical doctor specializing in radiology has joined the fulltime staff of Cogdell Memorial Hospital, Dr. Buerk Williams, a physician with more than 28 years experience.

Williams has served the past 13½ years as the staff radiologist at the Malone-Hogan Clinic in Big Spring.

Currently, he is commuting back and forth from Big Spring, but future plans call for he and his family to move locally. He is at Cogdell Memorial Monday through Friday.

His practice is based on referral to other medical staffers at Cogdell. Regarding this, he will office at the hospital itself.

As a specialist in diagnostic radiology, Williams is involved with "interpreting" the internal condition of the body.

This is done through such familiar techniques as x-ray and includes the modern practices of ultrasound and the CAT scan technique.

Williams received his undergraduate degree in 1952 from Whitman College in Walla Walla, Washington. He earned his medical doctor degree in 1956 from the University of Washington in Seattle

He served a rotating internship at the University of Alabama in Birmingham from 1956-57; an internal medicine residency at the

Staffer's claim awarded

An 18-month-old workman compensation action involving Western Texas College was settled this week with the filing of a compromise settlement in 132nd District Court.

The agreement, dated May 1 and filed for record this week, stipulates the college — as a self-insured entity — will pay a one-time payment of $16,000 to former employee Mary Karen Burkett.

Burkett — who was employed in the college administration building — applied for workman compensation payments claiming permanent back injuries suffered Nov. 1, 1983 after falling in-

Lawsuit trial now in recess

A weekend recess was declared in 132nd District Court for the civil lawsuit styled Retha Everton and Michael Don Mayfield vs Richard Varin Walker and Charles Walker.

Court recessed shortly after 5 p.m. Friday with the completion of testimony in the case.

Attorneys for both parties and District Judge Gene Dulaney then convened to prepare the formal charge to the jury — completing that work shortly after 6 p.m.

Court will reconvene at 9 a.m. Monday for final arguments and the reading of the charge.

Everton and Mayfield filed suit against the Walkers in an attempt to gain compensation for injuries they say they sustained in a two-vehicle automobile accident on April 15, 1984.

The feller on Deep Creek says, "Everytime history repeats itself, the price doubles."

We had just gotten over the annual turmoil of filing our income tax when in the mail popped up one of those government brown envelopes inviting us to an audit.

According to the IRS, it's one of those routine deals--kicked out by some smart aleck computer. It's hard to believe that with all the folks in the U.S., the computer just happened to kick ours out for review.

Getting all the requested information together is the worst part--we think. Every year we pledge to keep better records and to be better organized, and this audit may just be the motivating factor.

Speaking of income tax, the advertising boys on Madison Avenue took advantage of the headaches associated with tax payments. Alka-Seltzer, a popular drink for those under tense conditions, had a contest recently.

Top prize in the sweepstakes was lifetime tax services from H&R Block.

Another popular way of reducing tax bites is buying an IRA account. Nearly everybody offers such an account, and advertising around tax time is hot and heavy.

It became so competitive out in San Francisco that one bank was brave enough to offer higher interest rates to women than to men. Nothing takes the mind off taxes like a little reverse discrimination.

While on the subject of taxes...The National Taxpayers Union's research director offered his own tax simplication plan: "Eliminate our income tax system and abolish the IRS by 1995 or sooner."

We're afraid that 1995 won't be soon enough to eliminate our appointment with the revenue agent. It's not a bad idea on the surface, but a betting man would probably put his money on the feds. And in 1996, he'd be paying taxes on his winnings.

SHS class signup due

Registration will begin Monday at Snyder High School for select courses to be offered in summer school.

The session of courses will meet from Monday through July 1 from 7:30 a.m. through 12:45 p.m. Enrollment Monday will be in Worsham Auditorium.

Courses to be offered include Junior English 1330 and Senior English 1440. These are available only to students who failed English at these levels.

In addition, Health 7182 will be offered for one-half credit and Physical Science will be offered if enrollment requirements are met.

The cost for summer school will be $100 per semester credit and $50 for one-half credit. This

In Brief

62 are dead

TOKYO (AP) — Sixty-two coal miners died in a mine explosion deep underground that may have been caused by a leak of methane gas, officials said Saturday.

The blast occurred Friday at the Mitsubishi Mining Co.'s Minami Oh Yubari mine near Yubari, a town on the northern island of Hokkaido about 560 miles north of Tokyo. It lifted coal carts from their tracks and many miners suffered broken bones from being slammed against mine walls by the force of the explosion.

More attacks

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — A telephone caller claiming to represent Islamic Holy War said Friday the extremists will attack U.S. diplomats because Washington rejected their conditions for the release of Americans it is holding.

The caller told a French news agency in Beirut: "The American government should await the largest military operation it has ever seen.

"The organization has been preparing for this surprise for a long time. The refusal of our demands will mean hell for its (America's) diplomats across the world."

There was no way of confirming the authenticity of the message.

Local

Set meeting

The Scurry County Commissioners will meet at 10 a.m. at the courthouse Monday. Items on the announced agenda include approving bills and minutes of the previous meeting and "any other necessary business."

Plant date

Monday is the day recommended as the uniform planting date for Scurry County cotton.

Farmers are asked to plant on this date to insure the first budding of cotton comes at a time sufficiently late to keep down the local population of boll weevils.

Burglar identified

HATTIESBURG, Miss. (AP) — A Texas judge who traded shots with a burglar has identified a photo of a man hospitalized here as the man who broke into his home last Sunday night, authorities report.

"John Evans, the man laying up there in the hospital with two bullet holes in him, has been identified by the judge as the man who burglarized his home," Hattiesburg Police Lt. Jimmy Dale Williams said.

A burglary charge was filed late Friday in San Antonio and bond was set at $100,000.

API SCHOLARSHIPS AWARDED — The Snyder Chapter of the American Petroleum Institute presented scholarships for 1985-86 to two Texas Tech students at their May meeting Thursday. Georgiana Parrish — junior petroleum engineering major — was presented with the M. L. Broman Scholarship named in honor of the former Snyder Mayor and chief SACROC officer. David Lofton — a junior mechanical engineering major — was presented the annual Snyder Chapter API Scholarship for the year. Pictured at the presentation are (from left) Terry Lewis, chairman of the Snyder Chapter API, Parrish, Lofton and M. L. Duke, co-sponsor of the Broman scholarship. (SDN Staff Photo)

Transit project bill nearly $39 million

HOUSTON (AP) — Houston's transit system will pay two Japanese firms $975,000 to get out of a contract for a mass transit system that now has cost taxpayers nearly $39 million but will never be built.

Harris County voters two years ago rejected a bond issue to pay for the rail system, but that was two months after the Metropolitan Transit Authority already had signed contracts for the construction of 130 rail cars.

The nearly $39 million in expenses have been incurred in the design, engineering and equipment for the nonexistent system, according to finance officer Chris Tomasides.

The latest payment, approved by the transit authority board on Thursday, includes a $500,000 penalty and $475,000 in costs to Hitachi America Ltd. and C. Itoh and Co. The penalty could have been $7 million, according to the terms of the contract, and John King, the Metro chairman, said the firms settled "very, very favorably to Metro."

King, who was not on the board when the contracts were approved at a controversial 1983 meeting, labeled the pacts an "albatross."

ADVISORY COMMITTEE OFFICERS — Members of the Scurry County Advisory Committee for United Blood Services of Lubbock elected officers for 1985 this week. Now in charge of heading up the bi-monthly blood drives in Snyder are: (seated) Carol Davis, president; (standing from left) Sallie Tate, vice-president; Marge Sealy, secretary; and Brad Fleet, United Blood Services liason to the local group. Lobby group formation announced

AUSTIN (AP) — Former Republican U.S. Senate candidate Rob Mosbacher on Friday announced formation of a lobbying group designed to create public support for budget-cutting proposals in the Congress.

Mosbacher, a Houston businessman, said President Reagan "has gone more than half way" in compromising on federal spending plans, and the Democratic-controlled House now must cut spending on domestic programs.

Letters have gone out to more than 150,000 people in selected congressional districts around Texas urging them to contact congressmen in the lobbying effort.

Pope celebrates birthday during visit in Belgium

MECHLIN, Belgium (AP) — Church officials planned special greetings and a lunch today to help Pope John Paul II celebrate his 65th birthday, but sources said they also feared the pontiff would run into opposition from young, liberal Catholics.

John Paul spent his first full day in Belgium on Friday. He used a trip to a World War I memorial to condemn the nuclear arms race, but spoke out in favor of the right to defend onself against unjust aggression.

The schedule for the pope's second day in Belgium included an ecumenical prayer service at a 14th century cathedral in Mechlin, and a visit to the tomb of Cardinal Joseph Mercier, a driving force in the ecumenical movement.

Church sources, who spoke on condition they not be identified, said John Paul faced likely opposition from young Catholics late today similar to the opposition he faced in the Netherlands on the first five days of his trip.

The sources said they expected young people to express their bitterness over high unemployment and their desire for peace and greater sexual freedom at a meeting in Namur, 40 miles southeast of Mechlin.

Jamboree organizers twice have refused to bill the pope as the main feature of the event, the sources said. They also said Belgian bishops had counseled the pope against going to Namur, fearing a clash with young, liberal Catholics.

World championship typist contest hard

BALTIMORE (AP) — The Eighth Annual World's Fastest Typist Contest was as much a test of nerves as of speed, says this year's winner, a repeat champion who won using the typewriter that was her prize last year.

The contest Friday for 25 women and one man ended five minutes and, for most of the contestants, 600 words after it began.

The winner, Linda Williams, a secretary for Chevron in San Francisco, was so nervous that at the bottom of the official contest sheet she put her home address in the space that called for her company's address.

"Nerves took over this year more than last," she said, although she still managed to break the record of 124 words per minute she set to earn the title last year.

The winning score: 126.2 wpm. After errors.

"They don't call this the Olympics of the keyboard for nothing," said Xerox Marketing Vice President Jere Rowland as he rang a bell to signal the end of the contest.

Winners share $10,000 in cash and prizes.

It has been a year since Michael and I had our accident. We wish to say thank you for all the prayers, flowers and the fund set up for me after the wreck. We truly appreciate everyones thoughfulness. Again let us thank you.

Will not talk with S. Fein

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (AP) — Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher's government says it will not talk with the political wing of the outlawed Irish Republican Army, despite the party's gains in Northern Ireland's municipal elections.

In final results announced Friday, Sinn Fein took more seats than the mainstream Roman Catholic party in Belfast's key Catholic stronghold and won 59 of a total of 566 seats across the province. It will be represented on 17 of 26 local councils.

But Nicholas Scott, Britain's undersecretary of state for Northern Ireland, said no British government ministers would meet with Sinn Fein councilmen until the party renounced its support for IRA violence.

Scott said in a statement that it would insult the people of Northern Ireland for ministers to do business with supporters of the IRA's armed struggle to drive the British from the province.

The mainly Roman Catholic IRA wants to unite the predominantly Protestant province with the overwhelmingly Catholic Irish Republic under socialist rule.

The government has consistently refused to have political dealings with Sinn Fein despite earlier wins in other elections.

Sinn Fein polled 10.4 percent in the election, held Wednesday. That was 1 percent more than in 1982 elections to the advisory provincial Parliament but nearly 3 percent less than in 1983 elections to the British Parliament, when it fielded its top names.

Sinn Fein refuses to take the seats it won in the Ulster and London parliaments. But the party said it will take its 59 council seats.

In the Catholic Falls Road area of Belfast, the IRA's inner city stronghold, Sinn Fein won five seats, two more than the mainstream Catholic-dominated Social Democratic and Labor Party.

All together, Sinn Fein will hold seven of the Belfast council's 51 seats. The Social Democrats will hold six. Belfast is Northern Ireland's capital and largest city, with one-third of the province's 1.5 million population.

Carriers are big winners

By The Associated Press

The first weekend of a strike by more than 5,000 pilots against United Airlines, the nation's largest air carrier, found passengers scrambling at airports around the country to make alternate arrangements.

With many of United's flights canceled, other airlines, as would be expected, are the big winners.

"It's like Christmas, " said Glenn Bozarth, a spokesman for Western Air Lines in Los Angeles, where United suspended all but seven flights and canceled service to 13 of the 14 other cities it serves in California. Limited service continued at San Francisco.

American Airlines set up special check-in areas at Los Angeles for people with United tickets, said American spokesman Lowell Duncan. And they were busy, he said.

"All of our transcontinental flights are full," Duncan said. "Our Hawaii flights are full. The New York-Chicago routes and Chicago-L.A. routes are very heavy."

United has been forced to cut back its operations sharply, with only 165 flights, or 11 percent of those normally scheduled, getting off the ground Friday, the airline said.

KARMEN HALL

Former resident is valedictorian

Karmen Hall, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Cliff Hall, Jr. of Rising Star, former Snyder residents, is valedictorian of the 1985 eighth grade class.

She is the granddaughter of Mrs. Cliff Hall, Sr. and the late Cliff Hall, also formerly of Snyder, Pauline Scrivner of Snyder and A. V. Scrivner of Dermott.

Hall achieved a 96.31 average. Graduation exercises will be at 7:30 p.m. Thursday, May 23, at the First Baptist Church in Rising Star.

LRC is to begin summer schedule

The Learning Resource Center at Western Texas College will begin its summer schedule on June 3, Larry V. Anderson, director of library science, has announced.

From June 3 through July 26, the LRC will open from 4 p.m. to 9 p.m. Monday through Thursday. The building will not be open on Sundays as it is during the fall and spring semsters.

Students who need to use materials in the LRC during summer school at hours other than those announced may call extension 303 to make arrangements, Anderson said.

Summer classes at WTC will begin on May 29. Day classes will meet Monday through Thursday through July 5. Evening classes will run nine weeks, ending on July 26.

More charges related to 1978 riot

HOUSTON (AP) — Three people calling themselves the "Moody Park Three" are facing charges for a second time in connection with the May 1978 riot at a Houston park.

Travis Morales, 32, Thomas Hirschi, 31, and Mara Youngdahl, 37, were convicted in 1979 of rioting in Moody Park on the city's northside. Morales and Youngdahl were sentenced to five years' probation, and Hirschi was fined $1,000.

However, their convictions were overturned last year by the Texas Court of Criminal Appeals in Austin.

They now face the same charges and are scheduled to go back to court next week.

The riot occurred about one year after Joe Campos Torres drowned while in police custody.

Search of MOVE area ends, death toll stands at 11 dead

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — The search for bodies in the burned-out MOVE headquarters has ended with the death toll at 11, and officials are turning to unanswered questions about the radical group and rebuilding the ruined neighborhood by Christmas.

Federal Housing and Urban Development Secretary Samuel Pierce Jr. on Friday toured the west Philadelphia area and pledged $1 million in federal aid to rebuild the 1½ blocks burned in a fiery confrontation between police and the radical group.

Mayor W. Wilson Goode said legal steps are being rushed to permit quick demolition and cleanup so construction can begin by July 1 and end by Christmas.

"But what also has to come out, and must come out, is who are the people behind MOVE? And why does a group that calls itself back-to-nature feel it is necessary to fortify themselves inside a house with machine guns, with automatic weapons and shoot thousands of rounds at police officers and firefighters?" he asked.

"There will be attempts at revenge, and I think we're far from out of the woods on this," he said. "This is not over yet."

He declined to say whether he, the police or any other authorities here have been threatened by MOVE.

MOVE is a radical cult founded in 1978 by a man who calls himself John Africa, and all members adopted his surname. The group shuns organized society and its laws and practices a back-to-nature philosophy that includes living in dirt and garbage with dogs, rats and roaches.

The MOVE house caught fire Monday afternoon when police dropped a bomb on the roof after trading gunfire with those inside.

The fire spread to adjacent houses after authorities, afraid of MOVE snipers, kept firefighters at a distance. The blaze destroyed 53 houses and severely damaged eight others before being brought under control six hours later.

House supports seat belts

AUSTIN (AP) — The Texas House, fresh from approving mandatory seat belts in cars, has given preliminary support to a measure requiring seat belts in new school buses.

But a lawmaker who said local school districts can't afford to buy the belts succeeded in adding an amendment that would make the state pay for them.

"It's time we started paying for things we tell school districts they have to do," said Rep. Milton Fox, R-Houston. "Let's us pay the bill."

Also Friday, the House gave final approval to an indigent health care package that would spend about $124 million in 1986-87 for improved care for the poor.

The school bus seat belt bill, sponsored by Corpus Christi Rep. Eddie Cavazos, would mandate the belts in all school buses put into service after Jan. 1, 1986.

Bob Doty receives honorary FFA degree

Bob Doty, assistant professor of agriculture at Western Texas College, was presented the Honorary State Farmer Degree by Area II of the Future Farmers of America at its convention in San Angelo on May 10.

Doty's award was presented by the state FFA vice president, Bill Clark of Eldorado. Other Honorary State Farmer awards went to Bill Stensell of Fluvanna, a dairy operator; Bill Tedder of Abilene, a West Texas Utilities employee; and Dr. Charles Hays of Big Spring, former president of Howard College.

Doty's award was based on his activities and services related to vocational agriculture and Future Farmers of America programs.

Doty has been a member of the WTC faculty for the past six years and serves as rodeo coach as well as teaching agrciulture courses. He graduated from Abilene Christian University with the bachelor of science degree and earned the master of education degree at Sam Houston State University.

TERRY L. LINSLEY

Airman Linsley assigned to base

Airman Terry L. Linsley, son of W. Wayne and J. Marlene Beck of Rural Route 3, Snyder, has been assigned to Kessler Air Force Base, Miss., after completing Air Force basic training.

During the six weeks at Lackland Air Force Base, Texas, the airman studied the Air Force mission, organizations and customs and received special training in human relations.

In addition, the airmen who complete basic training earn credits toward an associate degreee through the community College of the Air Force.

The airman will now receive specialized instruction in the computer systems field.

He is a 1982 graduate of Snyder High School.

New seminar slated at WTC

A 24-hour lease production seminar will be taught at Western Texas College in classes meeting from 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. on June 4-6.

George Stewart will be the instructor for the seminar. Topics to be covered are LACT units, separation of gas, free water knock-out, treatment of oilfield emulsions and separators. Other topics will also be covered as interest dictates and there will be a discussion period following each class.

Fees are $125 per person, which includes a textbook especially prepared for the seminar and handouts.

Stewart, a self-employed consultant, retired from CE NATCO with 38 years of service. He is approved by the Texas Education Agency as an instructor in the petroleum area.

Mexico agrees to seek change

WASHINGTON (AP) — It may take several months, but the Mexican government plans to replace its new peso so it cannot be used as a U.S. quarter in vending machines, says Texas Sen. Lloyd Bentsen.

Bentsen said he received a letter Friday from the State Department advising him that the Mexican government has agreed to change the shape and size of the peso, which is only one 14-thousandth of an inch wider than a quarter but is only worth about a half-cent.

Bentsen wrote the State Department in March after getting complaints from laundromat operators along the Texas-Mexico border.

William L. Ball III, assistant secretary for legislative and intergovernmental affairs, wrote to Bentsen in a letter dated May 15 that U.S. officials have met with Mexican officials about the problem.

Pro-choice women share experiences

AUSTIN (AP) — Participating in a pro-choice campaign, a woman studying at an Austin Lutheran seminary told details of three abortions she had.

"I've only shared my story with one or two people until now" Barbara Hennessy, 28, said at a Capitol building news conference Friday. "One-and-a-half million women have had abortions. I feel there are 1½ islands out there all feeling like they're the only ones."

Hennessy read a lettter she had written to the Texas Abortion Rights Action League telling why she had decided to have the abortions.

The organization is participating in a national effort to collect letters from women who have had abortions.

"The first one was in my sophomore year in college," Ms. Hennessy said. She said she decided to have the abortion because she wanted to finish her education instead of starting a family.

She said she had a second abortion while applying to seminary school.

Reasons for the final abortion, she said, were "economics" and lack of time.

Monday, a representative from each state will take the letters to Washington, D.C., to be read from 7 a.m. to midnight to show support for legalized abortions.

"We are encouraging people to feel the personal connections they share with women who have had to choose abortions. These are the people our opponents like to believe don't exist," she said.

The U.S. Supreme Court legalized abortions in a 1973 decision.

House okays increase in age

AUSTIN (AP) — The House has quickly and quietly approved raising the state's legal drinking age from 19 to 21.

After no debate, a 126-6 Friday vote gave the House nod to Senate amendments on a minor House bill. The amendments include the increased age and enhanced penalties for drunken drivers caught drinking behind the wheel.

Speaker Gib Lewis said he had anticipated some debate.

"Everybody just sat there. I guess they felt it was a done deal. I was surprised," he said.

House Liquor Regulation Committee Chairman Billy Hall, who made the motion to concur with the Senate move, said there was no choice. It's "federal blackmail," he said.

If approved by Gov. Mark White, the new drinking age would go into effect Sept. 1, 1986.

The enhanced DWI penalties would go into effect 90 days after White signs the bill.

Coaches, players encouraged by offseason weight program

By BILL McCLELLAN
SDN Sports Editor

When Dennis Tomlin took over as football coach, and later as athletic director at Snyder High School, he immediately realized that in order to stay up with the competition some work had to be done - quickly.

With the help of a professional weight training program, he set to work building a solid offseason program. The first full term of that program has ended with the completion of the 1984-85 school year, and already the coaches and athletes participating are realizing some dramatic changes.

"We got accomplished things we wanted to accomplish. We needed more strength, needed to add size and we needed to become faster," said Tomlin.

"We hired a consultant (Greg Shepard) who we felt was one of the most knowledgable strength coaches in the nation. He helped us set up our offseason program. We set a goal of breaking 16,000 personal lifting records. We ended up breaking that by over 2,000," smiled the coach, who noted that most of the students in offseason are lifting about 100 pounds more weight than they were at this time last year.

In addition to strength, charts show the athletes are putting on body weight. Some have gained as much as 35 pounds. Most have put on as much as 15 pounds.

"It has gotten a lot of our marginal athletes involved more. They are the ones that have seen the most gains. That will add depth to our overall program. Adding quality to that quantity should make us a much improved football team next year."

An example of the training program is Justin Webb, who holds lifting records at Snyder High in the bench, deadlift, clean and squat. A fullback for Snyder's Ragin' Tigers last season, Webb contended for the district rushing title before suffering a broken arm.

"I've improved a lot," said the junior, son of Coach Levon Webb. "I've improved my speed and my jumping. I feel like I look better," he grinned. "I can stand flat footed and grab the (basketball) rim now."

Webb was benching 205 pounds before he suffered the injury. He started back working with 175 and is lifting 285 now. He also increased his squat from 300 to 380 pounds.

"I'm confident," he says about the coming football season. "They guys are so much stronger and everybody is ready for two-a-days. We're looking forward to it."

Almost everybody. Jimmy Hunter isn't - but only because he welcomes the chance the summer will give him to improve even more.

"I've improved a lot but not as much as I'd like too," said the junior, who increased his bench press from 225 to 320 pounds over the past six months. "I hope to be benching close to 400 pounds by the time the summer ends."

To say that Hunter is a good example of how the Bigger, Faster, Stronger program works, is an understatement. He weighed 175 last football season and is up to 200 now. Consider than Hunter is a returning starter at outside linebacker, is 6-foot, 200-pounds and hopes to be benching 400 by two-a-days, and you get an idea how excited Snyder coaches are about the program and how it might affect next season's football team.

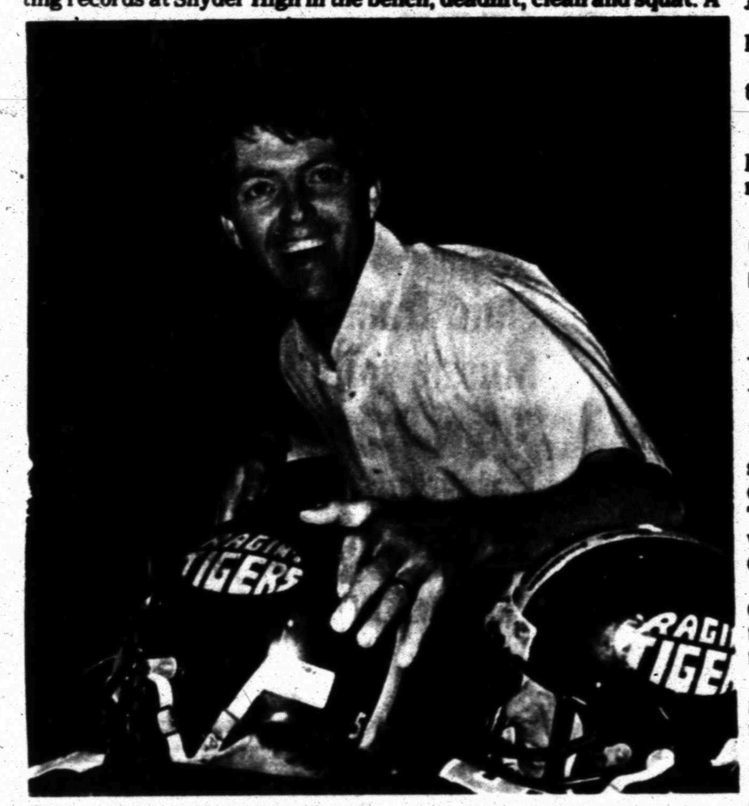
Not everyone in offseason is a big guy. But the "little guys" are making even more dramatic strides. Take Lou Vicknair, a 128-pound junior-to-be, who holds every record in his division.

Vicknair was benching 115 pounds last year as opposed to 200 now. His squat is up from 145 to 250 and his deadlift from 210 to 350.

"It's the coaches, really," says Vicknair. "They push us a lot. All the other players are real encouraging."

There are other benefits, too.

"It's helped me a lot mentally. I've got more confidence now. I've learned to set goals and get those goals in weightlifting and it's carrying over to other things. If you say you can do it, you'll do it."



DENNIS TOMLIN is pleased with the results his Ragin' Tigers have made during the offseason program and is looking foward to the beginning of footbal workouts in August. See related articles, this page. (SDN Staff Photo by Paul Gilbert)

Change in attitude helps Cat lineman

When Big Spring's Steers line up against the Ragin' Tigers for the first football game of the season next September, history shows they'll be in for a rough time. But at least one individual at Snyder High School plans on making it even tougher.

"One personal goal I have is to prove to everybody I am the best man in my position," said Juan Benitez, defensive tackle for the Tigers. "I plan on making sure no one runs over my side. They might do it once, but they'll pay for it."

That kind of attitude is was humming through the fieldhouse late in the week as the Ragin' Tigers filed out to begin the summer holidays. It is an attitude developed by a tough, grueling - yet promising - offseason program.

"The one thing I've got most out of the offseason is the attitude I've always needed," said Benitez. "Before, when I had a problem I'd face it and a lot of times I'd be intimidated. Now I've learned to face my problems and beat them. It's given me a lot more confidence."

At 5-8¾, Benitez is not tall, but his 200 pounds mix well with a renewed strength and confidence. He bench presses 400 pounds and runs the 40 in 5-flat or 5.1. Last year he ran a 5.5.

Despite his imposing size, it is in the heart that Benitez has excelled.

"Last year we didn't seem to want to believe we could do it," he said. "This year I look around and everyone has a positive attitude. Everyone is working hard and everyone is helping everyone else. I love these guys. A year ago I couldn't stand up in front of a group of guys and tell them that I love them. Now I can. We're close. I'm basically an individual person. I don't bother anybody else. But I'd do anything for these guys and I think they'd do anything for me."

SHS Ragin' Tigers shaping up bigger, faster, stronger for '85 grid campaign

Better quickness, strength and size - coupled with experience - could make Snyder's Ragin' Tiger football team a squad which will command the district's respect in 1985.

No one is talking playoffs, but Coach Dennis Tomlin is optimistic about what he sees for the future.

"Our quickness as a team has improved and that should be a real asset next year. We have much more size than what we had, too. I feel like more than anything, just us knowing the kids and the kids knowing us will be the greatest asset," said Tomlin, after the group completed offseason workouts this spring.

This has been Tomlin's first opportunity to work with the athletes in offseason with a full coaching staff. They apparently have made substantial gains.

According to the coach, most of the athletes in the offseason have gained from 15 to 35 pounds in body weight, are lifting an average of 100 pounds over what they were lifting a year ago, and are quicker.

The extra size, strength and quickness could give Snyder one of the better lines in the district next season. The Tigers return three offensive and four defensive starters along the line.

Back on offense will be guards Joe Rodriquez and Steve Parker and tackle Trey Tippens. Returning to the defense front are Parker and Robert Patterson at end and Juan Benitez and Arthur Robinson at tackle. Tippens also started a few games on defense. Other returning part-time starters among the 23 lettermen were Chris Garrett, Todd Pollard and Donnell Davis.

Returning as well are fullback Justin Webb and linebacker Jimmy Hunter - giving Snyder four offensive and five defensive returning regulars, along with at least three others who were part-time two-way starters.

"I think experience will definitely be an asset for us," smiled Tomlin. "It will provide us with a much better base to build a football team on."

The main concern heading into two-a-day workouts next August will be to fill the skills positions - quarterback, the other running back slots, receivers and the defensive back positions.

"We graduated most of our people in the skill positions. All of our backs except Justin Webb are gone. So we'll be unproven, for instance, at quarterback. We have several kids working at that position. After our spring offseason, Mike McWilliams and Tony Pineda have taken the lead," said the coach.

Candidates at running back include Scott Lanier and returning letterman Jeff Rose at tailback; Craig Watkins and Ricky Hunter at halfback; and Webb, Mike Long, Mike Carter, Lawrence Barrera and Toby Ubando at fullback.

"We have the numbers. We just need somebody to come out and be number one," said Tomlin. "We need some players to establish themselves as the leaders in their group when we

Doty signs Snyder graduates to rodeo scholarship at WTC

Western Texas College rodeo coach Bob Doty has signed two local athletes to scholarships.

Adam Brewster and Thad Springer, recent Snyder High School graduates, inked scholarships Friday afternoon.

"I'm real happy to sign both of them," said Doty. "I feel like both of them will fit in real well next year, even as freshmen."

Brewster is the current Tri-State Rodeo Association bull riding champion, the Texas High School bull riding champion, the Youth National Finals bull riding champion and the AJRA reserve bull riding champion. He was also third in the state in bareback competition in the Tri-State Rodeo Association and third in AJRA competition.

Springer, who competes in team roping, won the 1982 Scurry County Roping. He has been president of the Snyder High School chapter of the Future Farmers of America for the past two years and received his Lone Star farmer's degree.

"Thad hasn't won maybe as much as some other contestants have, but I think he is probably the best header coming out of high school," said Doty. "We're real glad to get him, and not just because he's local either. We think he will be a real asset to our program," he added.

"Adam was highly recruited by all the other colleges (in the Southwest Region). I feel real fortunate to get him."

Both young men said they chose Western Texas because of the closeness of the school, its rodeo program and the national success Coach Doty and his students have achieved.

The current WTC men's team will be competing in the College National Finals Rodeo in Bozeman, Mont., this summer. It is the sixth year in a row that WTC has qualified for the CNFR. Only the top two teams in the region can qualify.

Doty said he has several girls lined up for the WTC women's team next year but would probably wait until later in the summer to sign any men. He will return a number of solid contestants, including Bliss Mayhan and Tobin Tate to the men's squad and Niki Moist and Tana Whatley to the women's team.

Howard exits trainer's room

Rick Howard is boxing up his tape and ice packs after seven years at Snyder High School and will be accepting reassignment at East Elementary.

The veteran head athletic trainer said it is time to move to other things.

"I've enjoyed it. I've been involved in athletics for 14 years and I'll miss it, I'm sure. But I feel like it is time to move on to something else," said Howard, who plans to seek an elementary school principalship.

He will be physical education coach at East next school year.

Howard graduated from East Texas State University in 1976 and received his Master's in 1978. He received his state trainer's license in 1977 and his EMT certificate in 1981.

"I intend to be an avid Tiger booster and fan," he said. "I'll be officiating football and teaching PE so I'll still be involved."

Howard said he will retain some good memories. He has been to various state tournaments, including basketball and baseball, but he'll always remember Snyder's 1978 district football championship.

"I had never been associated with league winners, through high school or college, and when we beat Lake View that year that was a real thrill. We knew we would district after that," he said.

Snyder went on to win its bi-district game with Burkburnett before losing to Lubbock Estacado.

"I've had the opportunity to have been associated with a lot of good athletes and good coaches and I've enjoyed every minute of it," he said. "I'll enjoy kindergarten through sixth graders, too."

Howard and his wife Paula, a teacher at North Elementary, have two children. Jeremy is 7; Katie is 3.

Funds being accepted for Freeman endeavor

Kyle Freeman, state 4A discus champion, has been asked to compete in Korea this summer and efforts are underway to help the Snyder High School senior get there.

Glenn Patterson is spearheading the drive, which needs to raise approximately $1,795.

Freeman will be competing with the International Sports Exchange which has been invited by The Athletic Congress (the national governing body for track and field in the United States) to make the trip.

Coaches are to be Greg Guillory of Richardson High School and Jack Sands of Klein Forest in Houston.

Ninty-four athletes and eight coaches have been invited to make the trip. They will leave June 5 and return June 14. The trip includes a two-day stopover in Taiwan.

Four boys and four girls will compete in each event for the United States.

Contributions to help send Freeman to Korea should be made out to the Snyder Booster Club and mailed to 3801 Austin St. in Snyder (area 79549), in care of the Kyle Freeman Fund.

Anyone wishing more information may call Dennis Tomlin, SHS athletic director, at 573-1311.

start up next August."

Tomlin realizes that becoming a contender in District 2-4A is not an overnight or one-year task.

"I think overall our district will be stronger. By the number of returning lettermen, the stability of coaches and their staffs around the league and the fact that everyone's program is established, I expect it to be very competitive. Sweetwater and Monahans, our district representatives last year, have a lot of returning lettermen and starters. Down in the ranks, everyone has good lettermen returning. It's going to be an interesting and a very competitive season next year," the coach noted.

House honors former POW

AUSTIN (AP) — A House member who spent seven years as a prisoner of the North Vietnamese says American children don't seem to know much about what their nation stands for.

But Rep. Sam Johnson, R-Plano, told the House Friday that the children he saw in North Vietnam are fully indoctrinated about the communist system.

"I've often asked our children to explain democracy, explain freedom, tell me what our country stands for," he said. "You are going to find them hard-pressed to do that. Those people behind the Iron Curtain aren't. They're taught it four hours a day every day."

The House celebrated Armed Forces Day — which is today — with a Friday ceremony honoring Johnson. The House approved a Johnson resolution calling the Vietnam War a "noble and honorable defense of liberty" and a war "waged upon an honorable premise and for a noble purpose."

Speaker Gib Lewis introduced Johnson as a "true American hero." The House gave Johnson a prolonged standing ovation.

Johnson, a freshman Republican legislator, told the House he found the North Vietnamese to be child-like.

"In my opinion, they acted with the mentality of about a 12-year-old. All of the things they did were childish," he said.

"I suppose that's why Jane Fonda was able to relate to them so well," Johnson added, drawing applause.

Johnson was shot down during his 87th air mission. He spent 42 months in isolation, confined in a 24-square foot concrete cell with no windows. His captors allowed him out about five minutes each day.

Prisoners communicated by "tapping on walls, coughing and spitting," according to Johnson, who learned the "tap code" from fellow prisoner Jeremiah Denton, now a U.S. senator from Alabama.

"I lived under communism for nearly seven years. I saw how it twists men's minds. I saw how they live. They live on half-truths. They withhold information and that's the only way they can survive," said Johnson.

Grand jury probe continues into Hermann irregularities

HOUSTON (AP) — Harris County District Attorney Don Stricklin said a grand jury investigation into alleged criminal wrongdoing by Hermann Hospital Estate trustees will continue despite an announcement by Attorney General Jim Mattox that he is dropping a civil suit.

Stricklin is expected to talk Monday to a grand jury that is investigating former Hermann trustee Jack Josey.

Two estate officers were indicted and four other trustees resigned during an investigation into allegations that trustees had misused a fund set up by Houston philanthropist George Hermann upon his death in 1914 to provide hospital and medical care for poor people.

The state followed by filing a suit last month against the estate. But Mattox on Friday announced that he had reached agreement with the trustees on a settlement that calls for creation of a special endowment to fund indigent care and for the state to be involved in selecting new trustees.

Under the settlement, assets that had been bought with fund money will be liquidated to set up a $100 million charitable care endowment.

Among the assets to be liquidated to fund the endowment are a couple of ranches, properties and possibly the Hermann Hospital professional building, Mattox said.

Consequently, the attorney general said he is withdrawing the state's lawsuit.

Program on trusts slated

A program on trusts will be presented in the Senior Citizens Center dining room at 11:30 a.m. Tuesday. Senior citizens interested in knowing more about trusts are invited to attend the meeting and to ask questions.

A musical program is planned for 11:30 a.m. Friday.

Miniature golfers meet at Westerner Golfland at 8:45 a.m. on Thursdays each week. Thursday night will be game night in the center, with an evening meal served at 6 p.m. before bingo and the other games begin.

Senior citizens who give volunteer time through the center's VIVA program are reminded that they need to turn in their hours on May 28. Senior citizens who are interested in becoming involved in volunteer work are invited to contact Billie Smith, VIVA coordinator, at the center for more information about the types of work volunteers do.

Missing dog returns home

LA MARQUE, Texas (AP) — Bear, a 50-pound red chow dog who disappeared nearly two years ago during Hurricane Alicia, is finally back with his owners.

"After a year we had just about given up hope," Harriet Fretwell, 38, said. "But I just knew he wasn't dead. I felt like we would know if he were."

After months and months of advertising and offers of rewards, a friend of the family visiting the Galveston animal shelter recognized the dog there and led to the reuniting of Bear with the Fretwells.

"My friend was there looking for a cat. It was pure luck," Ms. Fretwell said Thursday.

"Bear didn't recognize me until I pulled the car keys out of my purse, shook them and said 'C'mon Bear, Let's go take a ride in the car.'"

A crooked tooth in the dog's mouth made her certain that the dog really was Bear, who disappeared in August 1983, when the hurricane blew down a backyard fence and the animal escaped.

"People would call and say they were convinced they had found our dog," she said. "We'd drive all the way there and the dog they were talking about would be an Irish setter or something like that. We drove all over chasing leads but without any luck."

Ms. Fretwell said the reunion between the dog and her two sons, Perry 16, and Richard, 15, was just like in the movies.

Richard Fretwell was so sure the dog never would be found that he convinced his mother they should buy another one. Six months ago they did, selecting another chow named Ivory.

Board of trade action reported

Purchase denied

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan, expressing frustration at publicity about Pentagon overpayments, says the military never bought a hammer costing more than $400. Yet, the Navy admits it did.

During a speech Friday, the president put himself at odds with previous Navy statements on the matter when he departed from his prepared text and ad-libbed that the Pentagon was successfully uncovering attempts to overcharge it.

Reagan, speaking before a Republican audience, said his administration is "talking about how to cure some great misconceptions that are the result of a drumbeat of ceaseless propaganda that's been prevalent in the land with regard to national defense.

"Just give you one line about it," Reagan added. "That $436 hammer — we never bought that.

"We're the ones that found out that that's what they'd been asking for it, and we didn't buy it," Reagan told the National Republican Heritage Groups Council. "And that's true of all those other horror stories.

to an open "manhole" on campus.

The incident occurred as she was walking between the business office and the registrar's office during the course of her normal job duties.

In addition to the payment for incapacity, disability and loss of wage earning capacity, the college agreed to pay for previous medical expenses arising from the accident as well as future medical expenses for treatment of Burkett's back for a six-year period dating from May 1.

The college originally filed the suit in 132nd District Court as an appeal of an award made to Burkett by the Texas Industrial Accident Board (IAB) on Oct. 24, 1984.

The styling of the suit was later changed to read Mary Karen Burkett vs. Western Texas College so that if the case went before a jury, it would be unaware the action was an appeal of an IAB ruling.

Teen worked undercover

BOSTON (AP) — A teen-ager who got the goods on every liquor store in one community for serving her as a minor says she agreed to take part in the undercover operation because a friend was killed in a drunken-driving accident.

Geraldine Bartlett, 18, said she went twice to every one of the 14 liquor stores in the town of Wareham and was refused service only two times. She said she was served on her third visits to those two stores.

"God, I was nervous so I grabbed whatever I could without looking. Some was beer, wine ... hard liquor. I knew I was underage and I thought they would card me," she said in a telephone interview Friday of the two-month investigation.

She said claims by store owners that she looked old enough to buy the liquor legally were not much of a defense. The legal drinking age in Massachusetts is 20.

"I still have acne," Ms. Bartlett said. She said she wore her regular clothes and was not made up to look older.

Town selectmen voted Tuesday to suspend the liquor licenses of two of the stores for 10 days and scheduled hearings about the licenses of the rest.

Plymouth District Court Judge Baron Martin on April 30 continued the cases against each of the 14 stores for one year without a finding, but he imposed $250 fines to cover court costs.

Ms. Bartlett, of Plymouth, said her participation in the investigation began when she answered a Wareham Police Department newspaper advertisement seeking part-time undercover operatives.

She said a friend died at 17 in a drunken-driving accident in which two other people were injured and she hoped that she could help reduce underage drinking and driving.

"I know people who go to school drunk ... some get in accidents," said Ms. Bartlett.

Dallas VA Hospital in 1957-58; his radiology residency at the same facility from 1968-61; and an American Cancer Society Fellowship at Baylor Hospital in Dallas from 1961-62.

He was in private practice in radiology for some 10 years before relocating to Big Spring in 1972.

He and his wife Jane have four children. These include two sons still living at home, Kevin, age 17, and Aron, 18, a graduate this year from Big Spring High School

They also have a daughter who is a registered nurse at Tulane Hospital in New Orleans; and a second daughter who is in a clinical internship for the ASCP lab technology program at Midland Memorial in Midland.

Williams is also serving as a visiting specialist with Medical Arts Hospital in Lamesa.

At Cogdell, he joins the second staff radiologist, Dr. Anil P. Goswami.

Four wrecks noted Friday

Four traffic accidents, including two with very minor injuries and one hit-and-run incident, were reported in Snyder Friday.

Three persons sustained minor injuries that did not require medical treatment in the day's first mishap at 8:10 a.m. in the 1000 Block of 28th St.

Listed as injured in the two-vehicle collision were: Elta Laverne Bolin of 702 28th St., driver of a 1978 Ford; Beatrice Martinez Solis of 510 28th St., driver of a 1975 Chevrolet; and a passenger in the Solis vehicle.

Listed as injured but not requiring medical treatment in the day's second mishap was Arlie Marise Rodgers of 212 North Elm St.

A 1981 AMC driven by Rodgers was involved in a collision with a 1978 Ford driven by Debra Kay Webb of Rt. 1, Snyder at 9:37 a.m. in the North 200 Block of Elm St.

No injuries were reported from Friday's third mishap at the intersection of Huffman Ave. and U.S. Highway 84 at 5:54 p.m.

Involved in it were a 1977 Peterbuilt truck tractor driven by Mark Bjornberg of Dawson, Minn. pulling a trailer owned by Schwann's Sales Enterprises and a 1981 Ford driven by Marvis Hendrix of Rt. 3, Snyder.

A.J. Boudreau of Rt. 3, Snyder filed the day's only hit-and-run report at 6:28 p.m.

He told police that his 1977 Pontiac had apparently been struck by an unidentified vehicle while parked at the Headquaters on the Old Lubbock Highway.

Arrests noted

Police logged 10 misdemeaor arrests Friday evening.

Eight subjects were jailed for public intoxication, one for driving while intoxicated and one for disorderly conduct.

Scurry County Folks...

By Linda Baylor

History comes to the front. It's time to review the memories, enjoy them, and renew old friendships. It's time for the Fluvanna Old Settler's Tea and High School Reunion. This event takes place every five years. This will be the third time for Mrs. Edith Whatley McKanna to host the tea at her home, Rock Ledge Farm, which is located three miles south of Fluvanna on the old Whatley property.

The house was originally occupied by Whatley share cropper tenants. It had two rooms and a lean-to shed and was designed simply as protection from the elements. "It's a shot gun house and don't forget that. You can shoot a shot gun from the kitchen through the living room door," quipped Mrs. McKanna.

Through the years, the house has grown into a rambling ranch house with landscaped grounds.

The Old Settlers Tea will be held from 2-5 p.m. Friday, June 7 and will serve as opening ceremonies for the reunion weekend. Old fashioned tea cakes and punch will be served in the dining room and lemonade and pound cake will be served on the patio where square dancers will dance to the music of bands utilizing Fluvanna talent. Organ music will be provided for those who prefer to remain indoors.

The school colors were red and black and will be incorporated in the decor.

Mrs. McKanna's family has been in Scurry County since 1880 when her grandmother, Mary Whatley McGregor, came to the Fluvanna area. Her uncle, Dougal McGregor, settled in the community of Light and was instrumental in the development of Fluvanna.

The first school was open for three months in 1891-92 with Mrs. John Ditmor serving as the first teacher. Jumbo School was located East of Light on the creek. In 1900 the school moved to a location West of Light and, for the 1901-02 year, had 18 students.

In 1903 a new building was constructed which measured 32X60 feet and was divided by curtains in order to provide facilities for two class rooms. The school term of 1905-06 lasted five months.

On July 17, 1919 the Faver school joined the Fluvanna school but this association was dissolved in June 1921 due to bad roads. However, in May of 1929 the schools of Fluvanna, Faver, Hackberry, Snellings and Moore were consolidated. A new building was completed in May 1930. The school had 11 teachers and 400 students.

In 1976 Fluvanna School consolidated with the Snyder Independent School District.

Former Fluvanna residents currently living in Scurry County will not be receiving invitations by mail because the committee for the reunion feels that each one is helping to host this gala affair.

Additional plans for the weekend of June 7-8 include using the Fluvanna Community Center as a visitors center. It will open at 10 a.m. and lemonade and cookies will be served.

Class parties will be held on Friday night with the classes of 1970-76 meeting at Ray Herring's home; 1961-69 at Sue Lloyd's home; 1947-60 at James Beaver's home; 1940 and 1941 at M.J. Merritt's home; and a party for all other classes at the Community Center. Any changes in times or locations will be posted at the Community Center.

On Saturday, June 8 the festivities will be held at the Scurry County Coliseum in Snyder starting at 9 a.m. A barbcue luncheon will be served at noon with a short program at 2 p.m.

Donations for the homecoming fund are being accepted by Margaret Beaver, Star Route Box 50, Fluvanna, Texas 79517.

MRS. EDITH WHATLEY McKANNA

Scurry Library News and Views

The Scurry County Library will hold a book sale May 21-24 during normal working hours. Hardbacks will be priced at 25 cents and paperbacks will go for 10 cents each.

These books have been withdrawn from the library collection because some of them have never been used and others are in poor physical conditions. The books on sale will be mainly children's books.

The library now has some new home videoes. Some of the titles include "That Darn Cat", "Pollyanna", "The Wind in the Willows", "Treasure Island".

Awards, installation dinner fetes workers

The Codgell Memorial Hospital Auxiliary held its annual awards and installation dinner Monday, May 6 at the Snyder Country Club with Jo Ann Nunley, out-going president, presiding.

Special guests included three commissioners and their wives, Mr. and Mrs. C.D. Gray, Mr. and Mrs. Hassie Sneed, and Mr. and Mrs. Eldon Perry; County Judge and Mrs. Preston Wilson; Dr. and Mrs. Nelson Brice, Dr. and Mrs. Mark Pate, Dr. and Mrs. Harold Miller, and Dr. and Mrs. Neil Gibson.

Special charter members present included Ruby Anderson, Inez Brown, Lucille Joyce and Ena Carroll.

Glenda Holly provided the entertainment and Pam Gibson accompanied her on the piano. Jayna Gilbert played dinner music.

Sue Mize, incoming president, presented the program.

The awards were presented by Cy Miller, hospital administrator. He has been with Codgell Memorial Hospital for the past 25 years.

Auxiliary members who received pins for 100 hours included Myrle Beal, Katherine Ervin, Pearl Waller, and Lloys Eades.

Bars were presented to Jane Taylor, Margaret Weaver, Mollie Byrd, Faye Mullins, Wyvone Davis, Elree Baremore, LaRuth Jordan, and June McGlaun for 500 hours of volunteer service.

Those receiving bars for 1,000 hours of service included Gelesha Baze, Virginia Grove, Pat Moffett, and Jo Ann Nunley.

Bars were presented to Carole Davis, Nell Green and Texa Jones for 1,500 hours of service and to Johnnie Herod for 2,000 hours.

Lounette Null, Sue Mize and Clara Tate had worked 3,000 hours and Wilma Dillard worked 3,500 hours. The each received special bars.

Inez Brown received a bar for 10,000 hours of volunteer service, Lucille Joyce received a bar for 11,500 hours, and Ruby Anderson received a bar for 12,000 hours.

The candy stripers received awards also. Sherry Hataway, Mitze Ward and Heather Roemisch all received bars for 200 hours of service. Melody Musick received a pin for 100 hours.

A special presentation was made to Ruby Hart, a snack bar worker, for 15 years of service.

The installing officer used the theme "Love" and told the new officers that..."Love consists in looking outward in the same direction".

MORE AWARDS — A 15 year pin for service was presented to Ruby Hart Monday, May 6 when the Codgell Memorial Hospital Auxiliary held the annual awards and installation dinner at the Snyder Country Club. Pictured from left to right (seated) are Mrs. Hart, Clara Tate, 3,000 hours; Wilma Dillard, 3,000 hours; (standing) Lucille Joyce, 11,500 hours; Inez Brown, 10,000 hours; Ruby Anderson. 12,000 hours; and Sue Mize, 3,000 hours.

Weight loss

Watch summer for weight traps. It's the junk food and ice cream season. You have to count these calories into your diet if you don't want to put on pounds.

Don't think that summer sports exercise will take care of the extra calories, not unless you know how many calories you put out and how many you're taking in. It's not so much the kind of food as it is the quantity you eat, in relation to the calories your body burns daily, which controls weight.

C-City Dance set

The Colorado City Dancers will host a dance Tuesday, May 21 from 7-10 p.m. at the Civic Center located on Second and Oak Streets.

Porky Proctor Band will be playing and the admission is $2.

Playwright Tennessee Williams died in 1983. He was 71. William plays were singular for their representation of the bittersweet side of life, and many of them were set in the South. Among his most famous works were "A Streetcar Named Desire," "Cat on a Hot Tin Roof," and "The Glass Menagerie."

VIDEO STORE CUTTING FEE

NEW YORK (AP) — Video stores are reducing membership fees and using other methods of attracting customers, including free delivery of motion pictures and other video cassettes.

"The video store has become an adult candy store," says Steve Savage, president of New Video. "A new kind of lifestyle has evolved from the freedom that comes from being able to act like a Hollywood movie mogul in your own living room.

"Market research tells us the VCR no longer is a high ticket luxury item, but is now viewed as a common household appliance."

Chocolate Chip Pecan Pie

3 large eggs
1 ¼ cups light corn syrup
½ cup suga
1 teaspoon vanilla
6-ounce package semisweet chocolate pieces (1 cup)
1 cup pecan halves
Unbaked 9 inch pastry shell

In a medium bowl, with a fork, beat eggs slightly. Stir in corn syrup, sugar and vanilla just until blended. Stir in chocolate pieces and pecans. Pour into pastry shell. Bake in a preheated 375 degree oven 45 to 50 minutes or until a knife inserted half way between the outside and the center comes out clean.

Clip out tornado warning signs

Tornadoes can occur any place in the United States at any time of the year. They happen most frequently in the midwestern, southern and central states from March through September. Over the years, tornadoes have been a serious and deadly threat to Texans.

Tornado "weather" can be hot, sticky days with southerly winds and a threatening, ominous sky. Familiar thunderstorm clouds are present. An hour or two before a tornado, topsy-turvy clouds appear sometimes bulging down instead of up. The clouds often have a greenish-black color. Rain or hail frequently precedes the tornado.

Tornadoes occur mostly between 3 and 7 p.m. but they have occurred at all hours.

Tornadoes in most cases move from a westerly direction, usually from the southwest. The tornado's path is usually 10 to 40 miles (the average length is 16 miles) but they may move forward for 300 miles. The average width of the path is about 400 yards, but they have cut swaths over a mile in width. Speeds within the tornado have been estimated at 500 mph.

Tornadoes cause destruction with violent winds which uproot trees, destroy buildings, and which create a serious hazard from objects blown through the air.

REMEMBER

A TORNADO WATCH means tornadoes may develop in the area. A TORNADO WARNING means a tornado has been sighted in the area. Should you hear the sound of local sirens, turn on your radio or TV for information. Do not call Emergency Preparedness, the police or the weather bureau except to report the sighting of a tornado.

Keep calm and help prevent public excitement and panic.

Establish emergency plans for every school, church, hospital, hotel, busness, house, industry, and trailer park.

WHEN TORNADO IS SIGHTED

Keep calm. It will not help to get excited. Remember you are safer indoors than out except in a mobile home. Flying debris is one of the major causes of death and injury during a tornado.

1. IF OUTDOORS:

Seek indoor shelter if time permits; if not, get into a ditch, ravine, or low-lying ara. If in a vehicle, park the vehicle and get into a ditch or ravine. A vehicle offers no protection from a tornado.

2. IN A HOUSE:

In houses, the basement offers the best protection. In houses without basements, go to the center hallway, bathroom, or closet. Stay away from windows - get under heavy furniture.

3. IN APARTMENTS:

Move to the center hallway, bathroom, or closet. Stay away from windows - get under heavy furniture if possible.

4. IN MOBIL HOMES:

Mobile homes are particularly vulnerable to overturning during strong winds and offer no shelter. Leave mobil homes. Seek mobile home trailer park shelter if available. Otherwise, look for a ditch, culvert, or low-lying area.

5. IN SCHOOLS:

Move to central hallways. Avoid gymnasiums and auditoriums with large, poorly-supported roofs. Stay away from windows. Follow the instructins of the principal.

6. IN HIGH-RISE BUILDINGS:

Move to the center of the building, the hallway or stairways. Avoid areas with large amounts of glass.

7. IN INDUSTRIAL PLANTS OR WAREHOUSES:

Move to an area that has interior walls. Avoid windows. Avoid areas with clear-span, lightly supported roofs. Follow company policy.

8. IN SHOPPING CENTERS:

Stay indoors. Stay away from glass. Move to an interior area close to interior walls. Sit on floors to avoid flying debris.

Polk nets $25

"From the 'Cookie' to the 'Chef'", submitted by Janet Polk, was the winning entry in the cookbook naming contest sponsored by the Scurry County Sesquicentennial Committee.

The title had to span the years from the trail drives to the modern day cooks. According to Mrs. Polk, the cooks on the trail drives were called 'cookie' and gourmet cooks are called chefs.

Jean Everett, chairman of the cookbook committee, announced the winner May 9 and presented Mrs. Polk with a $25 check. She was one of 64 entries.

Mrs. Everett has also announced that the deadline for submitting receipes for the cookbook has been extended until June 1. They may be sent to her at Route 3 Box 18, Snyder, Texas 79549.

Mrs. Moore feted at farewell party

Mrs. E.J. (Metta) Moore was honored with a going away dinner Friday, May 10 at Willow Park Inn. Co-workers and friends from the 37th Street Church of Christ hosted the dinner.

Mrs. Moore and her husband will be returning to Paragould, Ark. where their three daughters are living. The couple spent 17 years in Paragould teaching at Crowley's Ridge Academy prior to returning to Snyder four years ago.

Moore is planning to do part time teaching at the Academy, farm and complete their new home. Mrs. Moore's brother, Emmett Smith Jr., chancellor of Crowley's Ridge College, has appointed her as organizer for a Bible Institute for Christian Services which will honor a former CRC vice president.

The Moores taught in the Snyder public school system during the 50's and early 60's bfore moving to Paragould originally. He is a native of Snyder and the son of Mrs. Vera Moore.

Hester, the oldest daughter, is director of surgery at Arkansas Methodist Hospital in Paragould. Jessica teaches science and physica education at Crowley's Ridge College. Marilee, the youngest daughter, is also planning to teach at the college.

Mrs. Moore was presented with an oil painting of the old flat top mountain as a reminder of her years and friends in West Texas.

FARINA CAKE
1 cup butter
½ cup sugar
5 eggs, beaten
½ cup all-purpose flour
3 teaspoons baking powder
1 cup quick-cooking farina
1 teaspoon grated lemon peel
Whipped cream
Syrup, see recipe

Cream butter and sugar until light and fluffy. Gradually add the beaten eggs. Sift dry ingredients together and add to the butter-sugar mixture with lemon rind. Bake in a greased 9-inch square baking pan at 350 degrees for 30 to 35 minutes or until firm and golden on top. Pour cooled syrup over hot cake. When cold, cut into squares and serve with whipped cream. Serves 12.

Syrup: Combine 2 cups sugar, 2 cups water and a strip of lemon peel and gently boil 10 minutes. Add 1 tablespoon brandy. Cool slightly.

Women getting foothold as film directors

ITHACA, N.Y. (AP) — All the women who have ever directed a Hollywood film could probably fit into the ticket booth of the nearest movie theater, says Patty Zimmermann, assistant professor of cinema at Ithaca College.

According to the Directors Guild of America, of the 7,332 films produced in the United States between 1949 and 1979, only 14 were directed by women.

"Hollywood remains a basically male-dominated industry," says Ms. Zimmermann. "But women are finding ways to make movies outside of the bigmoney studio system."

Women directors have taken a leading role in the so-called American independent film movement, which began in the '60s when activists started making antiwar movies, Ms. Zimmermann said. She is one of the organizers of Ithaca College's annual "Women Direct" series, which over the past four years alone has hosted the regional premieres of about 50 recent films directed by women.

Many of the female directors began focusing on controversial issues that directly affect women — such as rape, sex discrimination and wife abuse — long before they were "safe" topics for television, she said.

Jill Godmilow, she notes, has won an Academy award for "My Antonia," a documentary about how a female concert conductor triumphed over sexism. A major studio gave Susan Seidelman a director's chair and the 32-year-old American turned out "Desperately Seeking Susan," the current romantic comedy starring rock star Madonna. Other female directors are bringing their perspectives to sex-neutral subjects such as alcoholism and race relations.

"This growth of women directors is not an isolated American phenomenon," Ms. Zimmermann said. "Women in Western Europe, Eastern-bloc countries, Africa and South America are producing films about women's lives and struggles. They are changing the look and feel of international cinema."

Diane Kurys, for example, is one of the hottest directors in France, said Frank Tomasulo, assistant professor of cinema at Ithaca College. Ms. Kurys made an instant reputation with a series of autobiographical films about a young girl growing up in a single-parent household.

To the editor,

On Sunday, April 28, my wife and I stopped in your community to eat at a restaurant along the highway on our way home to Kingsland, Texas. As we left and got back on the highway and about halfway to Hermleigh, I suddenly noticed the car was hot and boiling. I stopped, raised the hood of the car, and it was HOT.

In less than three minutes after stopping I noticed a suburban headed for Snyder slow down and cross over and come back to where we were. The young man got out and asked if he could be of any help. Yes he surely could. He towed us back to Rip's Truck Stop where a motel would be close in case of need to stay over. We found out that a drive belt had broken. This young man (on a Sunday afternoon) took his time to go call a friend who worked in an auto parts store and asked him to come down and get a belt for a stranger on Sunday afternoon. The man said "yes, I'll be there in five minutes" and he was (a Mr. Davis, I think).

We got the belt, drove back out to the truck stop where the car was parked. He then proceeded to go through the necessary work of putting the belt on the car for me and it was work for a good mechanic because it was a foreign made Audi — and took skill.

This young man did all this with an exceptional and joyful attitude. Never a cross word — never a curse word — just worked and was so pleasant to be around. He would not accept pay.

His father is deputy sheriff in Snyder and his mother is a nurse in your hospital. He is a young man any man would be proud to call "Son". His name is Monty Anderson. He is a proud citizen of Snyder and extolled its many good points.

My congratulations to Mr. and Mrs. Anderson on raising such a fine young man. With young men like him this country will be in good hands. May God Bless the parents and Monty.

Sincerely,

Alex H. Williams, CPA

Chief becomes target of legal action

PORTLAND, Ore. — Penny Harrington fought her way to the top in a police department that hired the nation's first female officer and now has more than twice the national average of women on the force.

When she was appointed by Portland Mayor Bud Clark in January, Ms. Harrington spent hours answering questions from reporters and talk show hosts about her battles against sex discrimination within the department. Now the tables are turned and she is the target of a lawsuit filed by male officers.

And one of her big problems right now has nothing to do with sex, but rather the death of a black security guard at the hands of white police officers last month.

Lloyd Stevenson, a 31-year-old father of five who wanted to be a policeman, was killed April 21 when officers applied a "sleeper hold" that cut off the flow of blood to his brain. Portland police use the hold to make a suspect faint long enough to be handcuffed.

Police say the off-duty guard was fighting outside a convenience store. But black leaders say witnesses have told them Stevenson had helped subdue a shoplifter and was helping to control a crowd that gathered after police arrived at the store.

Ms. Harrington first defended her officers, saying a preliminary review indicated they had followed bureau policies. She said she would appoint a citizens' panel to review the use of force by police.

Black leaders, however, demanded that the chief bar "sleeper holds," suspend the officers involved and order a biracial inquest.

At a news conference with the mayor the same day, Ms. Harrington suspended police use of the hold and reassigned two officers pending an investigation. Clark ordered the biracial inquest.

Previously, the 43-year-old chief's biggest headaches had involved reorganizing the department and budget cuts.

Ms. Harrington, a feminist who filed more than 40 complaints of sex discrimination during her 22 years with the Portland Police Bureau, finds it fitting that she leads the police department that hired the country's first female police officer in 1905. The bureau now has more than twice the national average of women officers. Of the 767 officers on the force, 81 — or 10.5 percent — are women, compared with 5 percent nationwide.

Weatherman likes to predict future events

OAKLAND, N.J. (AP) — On the cold April morning of the Mets' season opener at Shea Stadium, weatherman Bob Harris rose early, dressed in a sweatsuit and running shoes, and made his way in the dark to the large, chilly room over the three-car garage next to his house.

What he saw there, on the maps, charts and satellite pictures, was a patch of disturbed air heading east from the Ohio Valley — "a tiny fly in the atmospheric ointment" that had, the night before, dumped 5 inches of snow on Pittsburgh.

He also saw that the upper air winds were blowing westnorthwest to east-southeast, and that radar analyses of Pittsburgh, New York and Atlantic City showed the snow shield moving in a 310-degree configuration.

The storm could affect New York or pass to the south and hit Philadelphia.

"Weather is a game of miles," Harris said. "You can be right or wrong on the basis of no more than a few miles."

New York or Philadelphia. A capacity crowd or an empty stadium.

The people who follow the game of inches awaited the call from the man who follows the game of miles: cold and cloudy, with a few scattered flurries, but no measurable snowfall. Play ball.

Six years ago, the call went against Harris, whose professional reputation was tarnished by a controversy of his own making. "It was a dreadful time," he says. "I had my hell and my after-hell."

Now, he is making a comeback.

Harris is one of the predictors, the hundreds of forecasters who earn their living poring over the Limited Fine Mesh, the Primitive Equation Models and the Jet Stream Analyses looking for clues to what tomorrow will bring.

It is a game not only of miles but of chance.

Bob Harris' obsession began in childhood. Other kids worshipped Chuck Berry and Elvis. Harris, the son of a jeweler, worshipped Tex Antoine, a New York forecaster who drew mufflers and earmuffs on a cartoon character named Uncle Weatherbee on the evening news.

As a boy, Harris would intercept old maps and satellite pictures destined for National Weather Service trash cans, and scrounge textbooks from the library near his home in the Bronx.

He was thrilled and frightened by thunder and lightning. He dreamed of Bermuda highs and February blizzards, of funnel clouds touching down on distant prairies and thunderstorms rumbling out to sea.

He studied math, physics, and geology at three colleges, but left school without a degree. He spent his early 20s repairing cameras, teaching lifesaving, and playing piano in New York jazz clubs.

Maybe the best thing about Houston is that once you've paid the bills, filled the car with gas and find yourself reasonably broke, you can still find things to do. For little or nothing, you can go to the zoo, visit countless museums, take a quick drive to the beach or take in a free outdoor concert or play.

Come to think of it, I may try to visit my brother this summer. But I wouldn't want to live there.

LINE UP!!, someone must have shouted, and 52 Texas towns scrambled into order.

We're referring to the recent study called "The Quality of Life in Texas Cities," done by a very boring sounding entity called the Institute of Urban Studies, a division of the University of Texas at Arlington.

You probably read the story a few weeks back, where this study ranked 52 of the state's largest cities. The criteria used was an elusive little critter called "quality of life."

The "UT at A-I of US" research team only considered those of 30,000 population or so and up, so folks from Snyder shouldn't have their feelings hurt that we were neither listed nor considered.

Unless those big city types assume quality of life might be impossible to find in burgs this size or smaller.

So anyway, the top of the list had Austin, San Antonio and Dallas, in that order, and the bottom had Brownsville, Killeen and Paris, in that order.

Best and worst with a whole lot of territory and unknown factors in-between, courtesy of the "UT at A-I of US"

At the time the whole deal sounded to us like a Mr. Blackwell "best" or "worst-dressed list" applied to municipalities. Townships parading on the boardwalk for a ribbon of gold glitter and a crown of paste and tinfoil.

About the time the report came out, we had occasion to talk to another gentleman involved in the study of cities — a non-profit bunch called the Public Works Resource Center which is part of the A&M system.

We mentioned the ranking of cities to him, and got an unexpected response. He got mad. As near as we can remember, we quote:

"All the money they spent on that thing, and what they got was nothing. What good is a list like that going to do anyone?

"A million things that need to be researched about cities, and they give us the Top 10. It's great if you're number 1, but what about those cities on the bottom?"

"That whole deal was nothing but a ploy to stir up controversy and get publicity for the institute that did the study and it burns me up."

He finished his comments, and we had the feeling he'd run out of breath before he'd run out of opinions.

But his words made sense to us.

Talk about controversy, just do what the "UT at A-I of US" did and say Abilene is the state's 10th best city, while Lubbock is only the 17th.

For all you Baylor grads, Waco could only muster 22nd place, but it still managed to beat out San Angelo in 31st.

Quality of life indeed.

It reminds us of two guys we used to work with way back — so far back, in fact, that most soft drink machines only dispensed bottled drinks.

Every day at break time, both would buy a Coke, then bet to see who had the one bottled in a city the farthest away.

(By way of explanation to a whole generation used to drinking out of cans, a glass bottle's bottom is stamped with the city's name where it was bottled).

My question to one of them was, "What if you don't know exactly how far the two cities are from here?"

"Then we get to argue about that," he said.

John Dunnam

(Editor's note: For this issue, Bill McClellan is filling in for the AWOL columnist.)

John Dunnam is in Houston today, reaping the benefits — and hazards — of big city life.

I kinda' like Houston myself, though I don't think I could ever get too interested in moving back there. Especially on days like today. Today, it's raining in Houston. When it rains in Houston, it tends to flood. Flooding, as we all know, is not good. In Houston, it's worse.

There are a lot of things not good about Houston. Most people visiting the city complain about the freeways. Actually, the freeways are one of the good things. It's getting on and off the freeways that is tough. Once you get on, you just kick the speedometer up to about 70 and sail. If you don't, you get run over. A lot of people get run over in Houston.

My main complaint concerning Houston is the distance between everything. If you work downtown and live in the southwest part of Houston, for instance, it can take an hour and a half or more to get to work. Actually, it's only a 15-20 minute drive, but that's when traffic is at its ebb. Like about 2 o'clock in the morning.

Of course, there are thieves in Houston. And murders, and rapists and con artists. There are sections of the city that are best to avoid and there are people that are best to avoid.

Generally though, it has been my experience that thieves in Houston are pretty polite people. I recall my father went out to get in the car one morning and found the hood missing. All the bolts were placed neatly inside the engine compartment. Nothing else was disturbed. The hood was missing, that's all. Very professional.

Security is a number one item in Houston. My brother lives there, in a condo-type building. To get in, you have to pull your car up to the gate, buzz his apartment (several times, I might add), and wait for the gate to open. Then you have to park, walk around to the building itself, press another button to buzz him again, and he'll open the elevator door. You are being scanned by video the whole time, of course. All he has to do is see who is buzzing [illegible] to let them in or not. Door-to-door salesmen get very little respect in places like this.

Actually, there are some very good things about Houston. People talk about the high cost of living — and there is some truth to that. Apartments are out of sight and you can go through a tank of gas in no time. On the other hand, things like groceries, hardware and clothing are usually much less expensive because the stores deal in volume. In comparison, my brother and I recently purchased a starter for cars which are pretty similar. Mine cost $30. His cost $18. To top that, whatever you are looking for is likely to be on sale somewhere.

A couple of other nice things about the big city: 1.) Anything you want or need, and I mean ANYTHING, can be found there, and 2.) Most stores are open until 9 p.m. and many grocery and

FIVE YEARS AGO

The Exxon Company today — May 12 — announced the pending retirement of Senior Vice-President Roy A. Baze effective Aug. 1. Baze, a Snyder native, has logged 33 years in service of the company since joining the Humble Oil and Refining Co. in 1946.

CRMWD officials reported today — May 16 — that rainfall over the last two days had more than doubled the quantity of water impounded at Lake J.B. Thomas. Two day rainfall amounts around the county generally totaled in the 3-5 inch range but city and state workers say that they have found no major damage as yet to the numerous streets and highways which were flooded yesterday.

Two Snyder students were among the top four academic graduates at Western Texas College Thursday evening — May 15. Completing two years study at the local school with perfect 4.0 grade averages were Rudy England and Lynn Wimmer of Snyder along with Joan McCallister of Lorenzo and JoAnn Barfield of Sweetwater.

10 YEARS AGO

Graduates of the SHS Class of 1915 on hand for a reunion luncheon at the Martha Ann Woman's Club Friday — May 15 — were Anna Mae Klapproth, Vera Jones Starkey, Sims Palmer, Clifton Doak, Esther Periman Bell, LeClaire Stokes Winston, Reba Smith, Ilene Harpole Newton and Elvia Pierce Sartor.

The Scurry County Commissioners met with representatives of Wadleigh Construction this morning — May 19 — for an inspection tour of the newly completed ag annex to the Scurry County Coliseum. Following the inspection tour, the commissioners voted to approve formal acceptance of the building.

15 YEARS AGO

The top ten ranking members of the SHS Class of 1970 announced today — May 13 — were Linda Wesson, J.L. Pherigo, Mary Nell Holder, Arlie Eicke, Larry Allen, John Hood, Kay Nell Feather, Barbara Carter, Vicki Keller and Sarah Clark.

An average of 10 "medium to low risk" prisoners from Midland are now being housed at the Scurry County Jail, an accomodation for which the local lockup is paid $20 per prisoner per day, it was reported Sunday.

A fire of unknown origin did extensive damage to a mobile home residence located at 3009 Ave. E Sunday evening.

The home was listed as the residence of Greg Castillo.

According to Fire Chief Terry Don McDowell, the fire — first reported at 7:58 p.m. — apparently started in the living room of the mobile home.

MONDAY
May 13

Snyder's one-percent sales tax return from the state dropped into the minus 5.4 percent range with the latest report — a period which reflects sales made here during March.

It was reported Monday that for the first three months of 1985, Snyder's sales tax now equals approximately $361,000 compared to some $341,000 last year.

The Snyder Junior High School band was among 10 sweepstakes [illegible] fourth annual Snyder Band Festival, it was reported Monday.

In addition, local junior high bandsmen won 35 first division honors in solo and ensemble contests.

Western Texas College trustees approved a tuition fee hike effective next fall and discussed the possibility of converting the campus planetarium Monday night during the regular May meeting of the board.

Trustees unanimously voted to increase tuition costs to $8 per semester hour for in-state students. The fee this past semester was $6.

Snyder lawyer Steve Payson was chosen by Dawson commissioners Monday afternoon as the new county attorney there.

Payson was selected from a field of five candidates which were interviewed by the court at the end of April and first of May. His appointment will be effective June 1.

TUESDAY
May 14

Three new additions to the local AJRA planning committee were announced Tuesday.

New to the committee are Wayne York and Tim Riggan of Scurry Couty and Gary White of Borden County. Ralph Miller is [illegible] the effort.

The Scurry County Industrial Foundation board Tuesday declined a request from its tenant industry — King's Highway — seeking access to the foundation building to recover records maintained there.

Locks on the building were changed April 26 following a declaration from the foundation that its contract with King's Highway was officially in default.

American Food Management Tuesday was again awarded the Snyder ISD food service contract to provide cafeteria meals during next school year.

The contract was approved by a 3-2 split vote and followed an approximate 25 minute discussion related to three bids submitted for the service.

A group of some 10 Snyder parents again appeared before the Snyder school board Tuesday related to a series of meetings with trustees to discuss the classroom conduct of a local teacher.

It was the first session conducted in open session, and was done — at the direction of Board President Mike Reed — without names of involved individuals mentioned during the discussion.

THURSDAY
May 16

A major building project [illegible] Snyder's First Baptist Church — one now estimated in excess of $1 million — is now in the detail planning stage, it was reported Thursday.

The end result will be a new two-story "education building" addition to the church plant — an addition which will overall increase the church's facilities by approximately one-third.

A 26-year-old Snyder truck driver — Robert Dale Turnbo — was trapped some 1½ hours in the wreckage of his overturned rig Thursday afternoon before Snyder Fire Department and emergency medical personnel managed to free him.

Another in a series of welcome rains this spring for Scurry County produced some unwelcome results to include additional leaking roof problems at Snyder's North Elementary. Thursday's downpour deluged the city with more than 2 inches of rain.

FRIDAY
May 17

The combined commencement-baccalaureate exercises for the Class of 1985 were conducted Friday at the Scurry County Coliseum.

Some 146 seniors were presented for graduation. These included Valedictorian Shana Whitfill.

Letters to the Editor

To the editor:

The Thursday, May 9 SDN published a cry for help from the Noah Project, a shelter for battered families in the Scurry and Nolan counties. (Out of 51 families served, however, only 10 came from Nolan County.)

Scurry County alone possesses over 50 churches (37 of them in Snyder), and nearly two dozen men's and women's organizations. Not to mention an oil-rich tax base that furnishes the werewithal for coliseums and colleges.

Countless times in the past this community has garnered its forces to raise money to polish its image by planting trees, hauling off abandoned cars, renovating tumbledown buildings, and constructing parks.

Should we turn a blind eye to this cry for help right here in our own neighborhood and read the comics instead?

Some $8,000 is needed by the end of June with a possible $20,000 a year afterwards. I propose five suggestions to help this urgently needed safe-house to remain open for the desperate, terrified, and despairing women and children who have no place else to go:

(1) Each of Snyder's generous churches, particularly those with large memberships, could "adopt" the Noah Project for one month, donating a hefty percentage from its collection plates and perhaps offering its own creative fund-raising ideas.

(2) One or more of Snyder's hard-working men's and-or women's service organizations could take the shelter on as its own special project. Remarkable accomplishments have been made in the past for other causes by these fine organizations.

(3) The Noah Project could be added on to the list of United Way charities. (Often we prefer to

Tip O'Neill faces final term

WASHINGTON (AP) — It's his last hurrah, and Thomas P. O'Neill Jr. is having the time of his life.

The 72-year-old House speaker is in no rush to relinquish his reins as the nation's top elected Democrat or to slide into an early retirement.

Nor is he sitting back waiting to be named ambassador to Ireland, a goal he's pretty much abandoned as a flight of whimsy, given current political realities.

In fact, O'Neill, who announced in mid-1984 that this would be his last two-year term, has never been stronger, according to Christopher Matthews, his chief spokesman and publicist.

"In terms of his presence, he's all over the place," Matthews says.

After bounding back from a winter case of post-election blues, O'Neill has maintained a high profile in recent weeks — rallying Democratic votes against President Reagan's call for aid to the Nicaraguan Contras and the MX missile, leading a congressional delegation to Moscow, resuming daily presession news conferences and delivering the "Democratic response" to the president's Saturday radio messages more frequently.

Still, despite O'Neill's recent flurry of activity, veteran House Democrats observe that power is slowly — but unmistakably — passing from O'Neill to Majority Leader Jim Wright, the heir apparent for the speakership, and the "new breed" of younger Democratic leaders who will rule the chamber through the rest of the decade.

In tacit acknowledgement of this transition, O'Neill already has assigned to Wright many leadership duties — including negotiating with Republicans on committee memberships and other matters.

Wright, who has claimed commitments in his race to succeed O'Neill from roughly three-quarters of all House Democrats who intend to seek re-election, treads a careful path — giving O'Neill a wide berth while steadily working behind-the-scenes on his own agenda for 1987 and building his own leadership bridges.

"Tip O'Neill is still the speaker," Wright said in an interview. "I'm the majority leader. I'm not a pretender to his throne. He doesn't have to hire a food taster and never will."

The relationship between O'Neill, a no-apologies New Deal liberal, and the more-conservative Wright is delicate, aides to both men say.

Once they barely spoke to each other. Now they count each other as close friends.

In fact, O'Neill helped line up support for Wright in his bid for the speakership. "He's bright and able and talented, and probably the finest orator in the Congress," O'Neill says of Wright. "We get along beautifully."

But Wright, sooner or later, will have to move out front, colleagues say.

"Tip is transitioning out. There is quite a bit of movement. I don't think the speaker has been in a position to lead the Democratic Party for some time. But he's still the speaker, and Wright is going to have to test his own wings some time soon," says Rep. Charles W. Stenholm, D-Texas, a conservative who last fall toyed with the idea of challenging O'Neill for speaker, but then abandoned the quest.

At a recent Democratic issues conference in West Virginia, O'Neill was conspicuously absent — leaving the leadership of the conference to younger, more activist Democrats like Rep. Richard Gephardt, D-Mo., chairman of the House Democratic Caucus; and Rep. Tony Coelho, D-Calif., chairman of the Democratic Congressional Campaign Committee.

Already, a hideaway office once used by O'Neill for napping and watching television has been turned into a transition office — with aides sorting through years of mementos, laying them out on tables for cataloging and boxing.

O'Neill, speaker since 1977 and leader of the Democratic Party through some of its darkest days, says he's not ready to throw in the towel.

"There's no time while I'm the speaker that I am going to be a lame-duck speaker," O'Neill insists. "No time am I going to let the power out of the grasp of my hands as the elected leader of my party."

About his relationship with Wright? "There are some added functions that he's doing. Is it by design? I'd say, yeah, it's by design."

O'Neill says he and Reagan, both Irish-Americans, remain on friendly terms. "The president and I are friends. He's a great fellow to sit down and have lunch with. He's easy to talk to. But philosophically and politically, we're not in tune."

Image schedules Tuesday meeting

Image, a woman's support group, will meet from 10:30-11:30 Tuesday morning in the Western Texas College Student Center.

Information about summer classes at WTC will be given along with information about how to register. The meeting will be informal and there will be time for questions. Women who would like more information about Tuesday's meeting are invited to call the office of Bettie McQueen at WTC, 573-8511, ext. 320.

Image is designed to provide support for women at a life changing point. These women might include those left alone because of a death of a spouse or divorce, a single head of household interested in improving job skills, women returning to work or school and women entering a non-traditional career.

Dear Sirs:
Thought you might be interested in the great change of our utility (gas) bill since the installation of your windows and doors. You installed them the last of December, 1984 and [illegible] week of January, 1985.
December's bill was $153.62 (in [illegible], Jan. $220.10, Feb. $219.30)
January's bill was [illegible] (real cold weather, remember)
February's bill was [illegible] (several cold days)
March's bill was $52.04 (few cold days)
We are ready for summer and a lower electric bill.
We have had many compliments about how the windows and doors look and what a nice change in the looks of our home. Of course, we tell them where they came from and if they should want windows, doors, siding, trim or any type of remodeling to check with Golden Gate first.
Thank you.

Shocking proof of gullibility

By Peter H. Gott, M.D.

On occasion, marvelously unique experiments not only tell us about ourselves, but may actually tell us more than we want to know. The design of one such experiment and its execution were flawless; the conclusions, shattering.

Three instructors were interested in how students rate teachers. They believed that all of us tend to judge educators on the basis of personality variables rather than informational content of what is taught.

The instructors hired an extremely distinguished-looking and charismatic actor, whom they trained to teach a subject about which he knew nothing. They named him Dr. Myron L. Fox and provided him with a substantial but entirely bogus set of credentials. He lectured on "Mathematical Game Theory as Applied to Physician Education."

The actor was coached to present his topic and conduct a question-and-answer period with the use of nonsense terms, double talk, neologisms, non sequiturs and contradictory statements. The talk was sprinkled with meaningless references to unrelated topics.

His first audience was composed of psychiatrists, psychologists and social workers who assembled for a teacher-training conference. After a one-hour lecture and a half-hour of discussion, the educators were given questionnaires to which they were asked to respond anonymously.

The responses were as funny as the performance itself. Many said the presentation was excellent. They enjoyed listening. The teacher appeared to have a warm manner, a good flow of language and much enthusiasm. One respondent thought the presentation was too intellectual; another said he preferred a more practical lecture.

The first experiment was followed by another, which included mental-health educators. The favorable responses far outweighed the unfavorable answers. One educator indicated that he actually read some of the speaker's papers. Another listener wanted more visual materials. A third said there were too many gestures and not enough examples.

Eventually, a final group was assembled. This consisted of 33 administrators who were taking a graduate course in education philosophy. Of these, eight had bachelor's degrees and 21 held master's degrees. Again, the favorable responses outpointed the unfavorable. Some felt the speaker was knowledgeable. One listener remarked that the relaxed presentation was a major factor in holding his interest; another admitted that the lecture was disorganized.

The three study groups, made up of experienced teachers, were quite seduced by the actor's performance. None detected the lecture for what it was, although all the participants were ultimately told the nature of the experiment. Several educators requested copies of the scientific material from which the lecture was built. The investigators concluded that, for these relatively sophisticated audiences, style was more influential than substance.

Isn't that a sad commentary on the abilities of our so-called professionals? It makes you wonder, doesn't it? In a world that worships the jargon and sanctity of law, science, politics, medicine, academics — indeed, all professions — many of us find it all too easy to accept the unacceptable. The burgeoning amount of available knowledge seems to force us into a blind reliance on authority sources.

Nonetheless, reason and objective criticism must remain the cornerstone of intellectualism or we will cease to be in control of ourselves. Let's hope we never lose the ability to analyze and rationally evaluate our world despite the natural tendency of the learned to be impressed by double talk.

Send your questions to Dr. Gott at P.O. Box 91428, Cleveland, OH 44101. Due to volume of mail, individual questions cannot be answered. Questions of general interest will be answered in future columns.

Alexander Graham Bell was granted the first basic patent for the telephone March 7, 1876. Bell was born in Scotland but went to Canada with his family as a young man. He conceived the idea for the first phone in Canada and the first transmission of speech through his invention took place there in 1876. On March 7, 1926, exactly 50 years after the Bell telephone was patented, the first radio-telephone conversation between New York and London took place.

Crusader backs environment

LAKE GEORGE, N.Y. (AP) — To the readers of her best seller, she is the reclusive "Woodswoman," chopping kindling, embracing the trunks of ancient pines and serenely contemplating the mauve and lavender sunsets at the secret wilderness sanctuary she built from unpeeled logs.

To Maya Indians living near a mile-high lake in Guatemala, she is affectionately known as "Mama Poc," leader of an apparently doomed struggle to save a homely little diving bird whose existence was threatened by voracious bass, reed-cutting basketmakers, luxury condominiums, political turmoil and an earthquake that cracked the lakebed like a clay bowl and caused a devastating drop in the water level.

From her cabin of rough spruce in one of the most remote reaches of the six million acre Adirondack Park, Dr. Anne LaBastille conducts ecological crusades in some of the most remote jungles and savannahs of the southern hemisphere.

In 20 years as an ecologist and natural history writer, she has taken up the fight against acid precipitation, destruction of rain forests, the slow extinction of the flightless piedbilled grebe, or Poc, of Guatemala's Lake Atitlan. For her efforts, she has won the World Wildlife Fund's gold medal for conservation and, last spring, the Explorers Clubs Citation of Merit.

But while she speaks fervently against the multinational corporations which she says ravage a delicate tropical ecosystem in order to grow peppercorns, or cheap beef for American fast food places, Ms. LaBastille doesn't have the demeanor of the strident pursuer of a cause.

She is a small woman, with a soft, girlish voice and a broad smile that has etched long creases across suntanned temples. Her forearms, extending from rolled-up red flannel shirtsleeves, are lean and sinewy from a lifetime of woodchopping. Her coarse, greying blond hair is caught in pigtails, from which strands are snatched by the wind as she emerges from her pickup truck with her German shepherd, Condor, for a hike near Lake George.

She has insisted on Lake George, in the southeastern foothills of the Adirondacks near her rented winter house, for an interview. Her real home, her log cabin, is off limits to outsiders. "That's my home, my sanctuary. I don't let anyone up there."

It was her book about how she came to build the cabin and live in the woods that made Ms. LaBastille something of a cult hero among the down-vest-and-rucksack set of the '70s.

"Woodswoman," published in 1976 and now in its eighth printing, chronicles how the ecologist set out on her own after a failed marriage. It is a Thoreauvian celebration of self-reliance and communion with nature, in which the author tells of embracing trees to feel their "life energy," gazing at a scarlet sunset from a mountaintop tent, bathing in a horse trough under falling snowflakes.

To avoid visits by curosity seekers, she changed the name of the lake; but that was taken as a challenge to some who have figured out where the cabin is and shown up at the dock proud of their detective work.

"Creeps come out of the woods. One day I was out on the deck typing in my bikini," she says. "A guy came up in a kayak — said he'd been looking for me for a year and a half. He takes all these topographical maps out of his pack, said he put them up on the wall and used clues from the book to figure out where I was. I suppose he expected me to congratulate him, invite him in for a drink — but I was furious. I wouldn't let him set foot on my land."

Ms. LaBastille says she is working on a sequel to "Woodswoman." She says it will have a more serious, pessimistic tone, reflecting ecological problems like the acid rain that has depleted her lake of fish, otters, ospreys and other creatures, and is now killing the red spruce.

Her youthful optimism, she says, was devastated when political turmoil scuttled her years of work trying to save the pied-billed grebe in Guatemala.

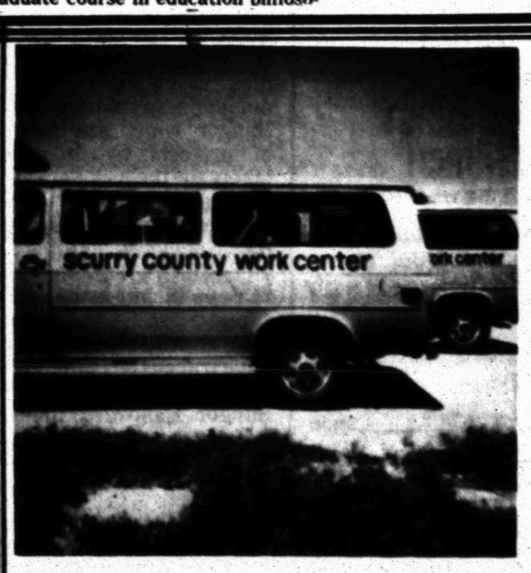
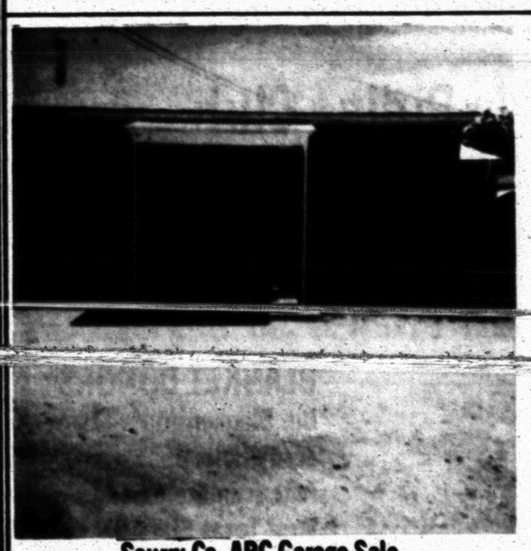
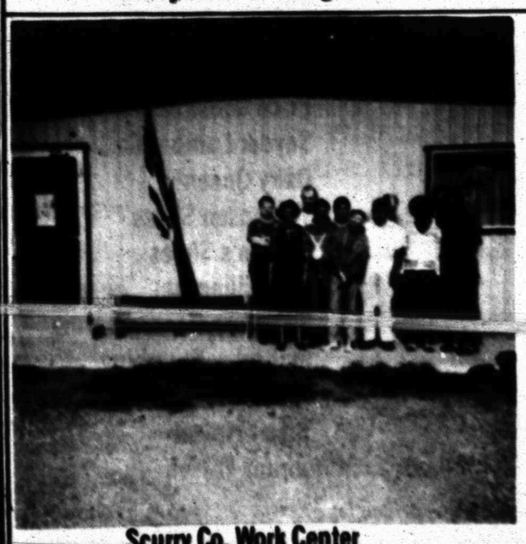
SCURRY COUNTY ASSOCIATION FOR RETARDED CITIZENS

TWENTY YEARS OF SERVICE FOR THE MENTALLY RETARDED





Scurry Co. ARC Garage Sale



Scurry Co. Work Center

On May 21, 1965, with the help of the Kiwanis Club, 9 persons met to form The Scurry County Association for Retarded Citizens to provide needed services for the mentally retarded.

Nellie Smith was the first president. At that time the only services being provided for the mentally retarded was through the Snyder Public Schools special education class located on Central Elementary campus. There were no other activities provided.

Since then the Scurry County Association for Retarded Citizens has initiated and provided camping, summer recreation programs, an opportunity center, special olympics program, field trips, parties, employment for some mentally retarded, sheltered work activities for the more severely handicapped, bowling trophies, Christmas donations to Abilene State School and Lubbock State School, a building for the Scurry County Work Center and transportation for the work center with the purchase of vans.

These services could not have been provided without the help and support of the people in Scurry County.

To finance these services we began by selling Christmas wreaths, swags and candles, had spaghetti and chili suppers and started occasionally having garage sales. Garage sales proved to be the most successful, so in 1972 we purchased the present building at 2504 Ave. W. The proceeds from the garage sale are the financial basis for our association.

We would like to take this opportunity to thank the many organizations and citizens of Scurry County for their past, present and future support.

Officers are: President, Wortham Loyd; Vice President, Lorena Cole, Treasurer, Joye Loyd; Secretary, Jo Flynn; Newsletter Editor, Ruby Gregory. Board members are: Evelyn Shifflett, Opal Chamness, Ruby Gregory, Yvonne Everts, Ida Mae King, Ruth Banks, and membership, Lorena Cole and E.E. Shifflett.

Leader dogs are filling in gaps

By TONY SAILER
Brainerd Daily Dispatch

WADENA, Minn. (AP) — Art Fischer grew up like most rural boys. He pitched hay, milked cows and worked in the fields throughout the summer. As an adult, he sold household goods door-to-door.

His wife, Denise, is a homemaker who took care of the couple's two daughters while her husband peddled his wares.

The family is as typical of America as a Norman Rockwell painting, with one exception. Art and Denise Fischer have been blind since childhood.

"I had an accident with a knife when I was 8 and Denise had scarlet fever when she was between 1 and 2 years old," said Art. "She doesn't remember seeing."

Art, 71, and Denise, 69, met while attending the school for the blind in Faribault. They married after graduation, moved back to Art's hometown of Wadena and had two daughters, Adelle and Lois.

"When they got older we had to talk to them when they were outside, because we couldn't watch out the window," Denise said.

"We made it plain to them that they had to answer us. And they always answered," Art said.

"When they moved we noticed it," said Art, who retired about two years ago. But having leader dogs for the last 20 years has helped fill the gap.

Beau, a black lab, joined the family after Art's previous dog died last fall. "When you lose your dog, it's like losing a member of the family," Art said.

Leader dogs are given special intelligence, physical and behavioral tests before they are selected for training, then spend a year with 4-H children who teach them obedience, help them adjust to people and housebreak them, Art said.

Penthouse Terrace Gives Widow a Disturbing View

By Abigail Van Buren
© 1985 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: I need your opinion as soon as possible on a rather delicate subject. I am an older widow, living alone in a penthouse apartment. There's not much to do up here all alone at night, so I sit on my terrace and enjoy the view. Directly across from me is another penthouse in which two young men live together.

Quite often I see them having parties with young (perhaps teenage) boys. I see them drinking and smoking, and Lord knows what else is going on over there. On some occasions I see them all in groups—all nude on their private terrace. I wonder if those young men are being raped, or if they're having sex willingly. Should I call the police?

If I report them to the police, will I have to give my name? I'm afraid I might be terrorized by these men if they found out who reported them.

NAMELESS
ON THE 25th FLOOR

DEAR NAMELESS: If you honestly believe that your neighbors are raping minors, you should notify the police and be willing to identify yourself. Be aware that the law states that whatever goes on between consenting adults in the privacy of their own home is not your business—or the law's.

For a woman of your apparent means, you are sadly impoverished. Enrich your life with friends—or a hobby.

* * *

DEAR ABBY: What happens to a patient's files and medical records after the physician (or psychiatrist) retires, dies, or the patient decides to change doctors?

I have seen both kinds of doctors, and I do not want my medical history read by anyone other than the doctors who have treated me. It's bad enough to know that the doctors' nurses, bookkeepers and receptionists who had access to my files might have opened their mouths at a party.

CONCERNED IN CALIFORNIA

DEAR CONCERNED: In California the patient's medical records are the property of the doctor. In almost every case, if the patient changes doctors, the "old" doctor willingly sends the patient's records to the "new" doctor, but no doctor is legally bound to relinquish a patient's records on demand.

The laws vary from state to state, but in all states, if a doctor believes that it would not be in the best interest of the patient to see his or her records, the doctor will not release them.

* * *

DEAR ABBY: Nothing in this world seems to interest me anymore since I broke up with my fiancee. I was so upset at the time, I wanted to commit suicide, but because I have my parents to support, I couldn't bring myself to end my life.

I cannot seem to get over the hurt of ending my relationship with what I perceived to be the perfect woman. We were so happy together and she seemed so right for me, then shortly before we were to be married I discovered that she had been a prostitute before we met.

Please advise me.

NOT HEALING

DEAR NOT HEALING: It's not where we came from that's important—it's where we're going that counts.

Jesus forgave the prostitute. ("Go, and sin no more.") Should you do less?

Protestors follow 'white train' route

BANGOR, Wash. (AP) — Alone, in pairs, or by the dozen, often carrying candles in the dark of night, demonstrators alerted by a telephone network take their places along the steel strands to witness the passage of a low-slung train carrying a deadly cargo.

The train, with its cars watched over by guards in turrets, has for more than two decades transported nuclear bombs and warheads from the Pantex Corp. plant at Amarillo, Texas, to military bases at opposite ends of the country.

It has traveled in anonymity most of that time, but protesters started lining the tracks a couple of years ago, using the distinctive train — until recently painted a startling white — to publicize their antinuclear message.

"This track campaign is an example of what a non-violent commitment by a relatively small number of people in their own towns can do," says Jim Douglass of Bangor, one of the founders of an anti-nuclear organization called the Agape Community.

Though many members of the organization have never met each other, they are linked by a web of railroad tracks and communicate by telephone as the "Death Train," as it is sometimes called, makes its infrequent and unannounced trips.

Like stationmasters, Agape members phone from town to town to track the train, and rush out as it draws near. Sometimes they will try to block its way to get their point across, but usually they simply watch.

During the train's most recent trip early this year, dozens of people walked onto the tracks, expecting to be arrested in a show of civil disobedience. Twenty-two were arrested in Topeka, Kan., four in Spokane, Wash., 106 in Vancouver, Wash., and 24 at the entrance to the Trident nuclear submarine base at Bangor, west of Seattle across Puget Sound.

Vigils were held at many communities along the tracks in Montana, Kansas, Texas, Wyoming and Washington.

The Rev. Arne Strandjord, 59, pastor of the Messiah Lutheran Church in Vancouver, was one of the 106 who stepped onto the tracks.

"There is an old Jewish proverb that if we keep going in the direction we're going, we will get there," Strandjord said after it was announced charges against the 106 would be dropped.

"And I think the direction we are heading with nuclear weapons is not good."

But not all the people turning out to watch the train are opposed to it. At Hanford, Wash., at least, a small group showed up with the train's arrival to wave flags and placards in support of the Reagan administration's positions.

Hanford has been involved in the nation's nuclear program since it was selected for plutonium production for the World War II Manhattan Project, the crash program to build the atomic bomb.

"By our presence we show the public there are people speaking out to support our defense policies, and they need to know it isn't just the other side speaking out," says retired Army Lt. Col. Peter Davies.

He is an organizer of a group he called Citizens for a Strong America. The group was formed, he says, to demonstrate community support for the Trident nuclear submarine base at Bangor, which has been the site of protests by Douglass and others for the past decade.

Douglass, who is also a co-founder of Ground Zero Center for Nonviolent Action located alongside the Trident base, spent 75 days in jail last year after a summer protest at Bangor.

From Amarillo, the protesters have traced the train, via several routes, to the Navy base at Bangor. Eastward, the train has been traced to the Navy's weapons station in Charleston, S.C.

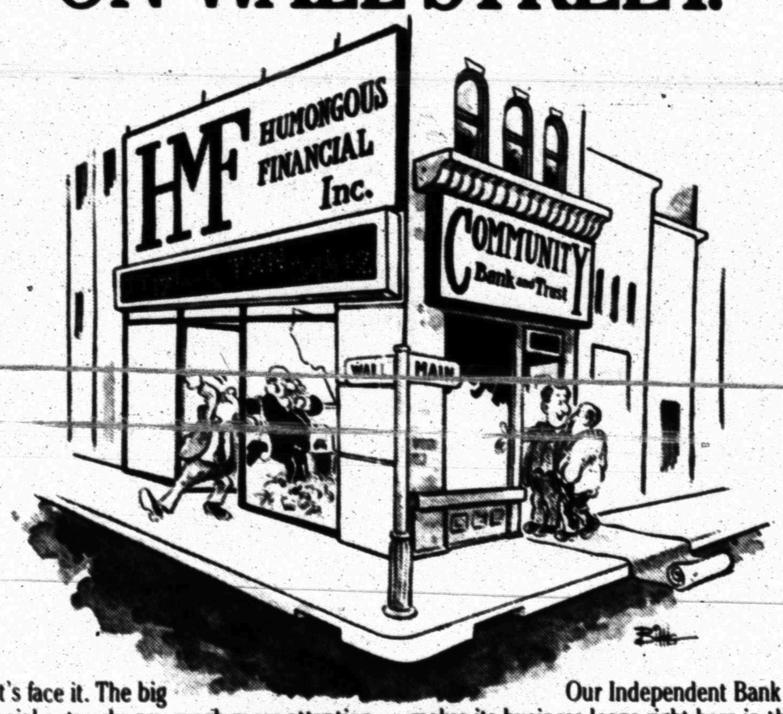
WE CARE MORE ABOUT BUSINESS ON MAIN STREET THAN ON WALL STREET.



Let's face it. The big financial networks pay much more attention to international economic trends than they do to what's happening here. If you've tried to get a small business loan from a financial network maybe you got the feeling they didn't really care about your individual needs. To them small loans and small businesses are peanuts.

Our Independent Bank makes its business loans right here in the community we serve. We understand the importance of your business and we respond to your individual needs. The next time you need a hand . . . turn to the bank that understands and is proud to share in what happens on Main Street. Our local Independent Bank.

Japanese subways virtually safe from crimes

TOKYO (AP) — With a gun in his holster and a parakeet chirping behind him, the man in blue surveys the busy street from his corner police booth. The door is open, as always, and his patrol bicycle is parked outside.

As much a neighborhood caretaker as an enforcer of the law, the Japanese police officer keeps watch from one of the 15,000 such "koban" across the country. The police officer is an important figure in the community, with influence reaching well beyond that of his colleagues in most other countries.

"I've heard that in the United States police officers or sheriffs are called law enforcement officers because their duty is mainly to enforce the law," says Shiro Hirohata, a senior criminal investigator in the National Police Agency.

But in Japan, where crime rates are only a fraction of those in the United States, the police officer is expected to be a "balancer, a conflict mediator, or advisor for domestic quarrels," says Hirohata, who last year visited the United States for six months to compare the two police systems.

Recently, however, Japan's 217,000 police officers have found themselves in an unaccustomed — and uncomfortable — public spotlight, their reputation for rectitude and efficiency tarnished by internal scandals and other problems.

Most embarrassing to the proud agency has been the brazen "Man with 21 Faces" gang, which has tried for a year to extort money from Japanese confectionery makers by leaving cyanide-laced candies in stores.

While nobody has been poisoned, the police are rankled by a stream of letters to newspapers in which the gang ridicules them for failing to solve the case.

Japan has long laid claim to having the lowest crime rates and one of the highest rates of criminal arrests among industrialized nations.

In 1984, for example, NPA figures showed 1,762 murders committed in a country whose population of 120 million is about half that of the United States. In 1983, the year for which the most recent FBI statistics were available here, the United States recorded 19,310 murders.

The NPA said that in 1983, 97.3 percent of Japan's murder cases were cleared from the books, compared with 75.9 percent in the United States.

Whatever the figures, Japan's reputation as a law-abiding society can scarcely be challenged.

In Tokyo and other cities, subway crime is virtually unknown. Women walk dark streets without fear of being attacked. Although burglary is the most common felony, many people don't bother to lock their doors. Among the worst menaces are flashers and obstreperous drunks on trains and railroad platforms.

One recent crime study by the Paris-based Insurance Center for Documentation and Information said Tokyo had 23.4 crime victims per 1,000 people, New York 97 per 1,000 and Paris 185.7 per 1,000.

Japanese police cite two factors as limiting violent crime. One is a culturally-ingrained respect for authority and abhorrence of antisocial behavior. The other is a strict gun control law, under which only police may carry a handgun.

Drivers education classes to begin

Driver education will be offered by the continuing Education department of Western Texas College in classes starting June 3 and concluding June 14.

Albert Lewis will be the instructor for the 32-hour course. Classes will meet from 8:30 a.m. to 10:30 a.m. for the first two weeks of classroom time. After that students will spend time in the simulator and driving.

No student will be allowed in this class who has not already had their 15th birthday.

Fees for the course will be $150. Maximum enrollment will be 30.

To reserve space in the class call 573-8511, etx. 240.

In 1861, Russian troops fired on a crowd protesting Russian rule over Poland in what became known as the Warsaw Massacre.

In 1933, the Reichstag, Germany's parliament building in Berlin, was burned down, and the Nazis blamed the Communists.
