IN EVERY STATE? Nominating Convention Changes Due

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. George S. McGovern says an analysis by his Democratic party reform commission shows every state may have to revise delegate selection procedures before the 1972 nominating convention.

"It now appears there may not be a single state that won't have to make changes," McGovern said in an interview.

The degree of change to be required will depend on guidelines to be adopted by the commission, probably later this year.

The resolution of the 1968 convention which established the commission set two broad criteria for delegate selection: that the unit rule be abolished at all levels of the process and that delegates be selected within the calendar year of the convention through processes open to all.

The commission is expected to recommend that the present mixed system of primaries, state conventions and precinct caucuses be maintained, and that states retain maximum freedom within general guidelines.

In some states where one man or a small group of men have had the power to pick all of the state's delegates changes are certain if the directive are followed.

But the commission has yet to come to grips with situations such as California and Massachusetts, whose winner-take-all primaries are viewed by some as a violation of the prohibition on the unit rule.

In between these are many other states where some or all of the delegates are selected in ways likely to require changes.

Commission sources said it appears that less than a dozen states will require changes in laws to comply. In such states there will be a further complication since it would mean in many cases that Republican support would be needed to push changes through legislatures.

In other states, they said, the changes could probably be accomplished through revision of party by-laws.

The most pressing problems are in states where delegate selection procedures are scheduled to start in the 1970 elections. A number of these are in the states where laws would have to be changed to meet expected commission standards.

Win First Place In Wagon Race

The Howard County Sheriff's Posse has two national champions in its ranks today.

Patricia Cherry and Valerie Gamble won first place in the wagon race national finals of the American Association of Sheriff's Poses and Riding Clubs in Fort Worth this weekend. They were representing District Five.

Other District Five representatives were C. E. Airhart, Nina Airhart, Cecal Allred, Ruby Allred, Mack Gamble, Max Roberts, Frances Nix, Perry Gamble, Michael Gamble, Joe Ellen Gamble and Steve Fryar.

To reach the finals these horsemen participated in five district playdays to earn qualifying points.

The local posse was fourth in the nation in parade points for 1968 and has already won eight first places and two second places this year. They will make a try for the ninth first place trophy at the National Junior Rodeo Association finals this weekend.

Cigs Warning

Sheriff A. N. Standard is asking Howard County citizens to be more careful in discarding cigarettes while traveling on county roads.

"Our grassland is extremely dry, and fires can be started by lighted cigarettes, low-hanging exhaust pipes and even reflections of the sun from broken glass," Standard said.

Pasture fires have been keeping the county fire units busy this month. Volunteer firemen answered two firecalls Sunday, and Standard said this is about an average day for the fire-fighters.

Desegregation Guidelines

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP) — An executive committee has been named here to organize Southern governors, school officials and others into a united front against federal desegregation guidelines.

The move came Saturday in a meeting called by Gov. Lester Maddox of various officials representing 10 Southern states.

Maddox, Gov. John Bell Williams of Mississippi and Ernest Stone, state school superintendent of Alabama, make up the executive committee.

The Georgia governor had invited hundreds of federal, state and local officials but only a minority showed up.

Durbin Gets 99 Years In Prison

AUSTIN (AP) — The jury assessed Clyde Durbin Jr. 99 years in prison for the shooting and beating death of John Albert White, a University of Texas student.

Durbin is accused also of slaying White's picnic date but has not been tried.

The defense claimed insanity. Durbin's father declared, "We'll appeal it."

Durbin, standing before the judge, slowly closed and opened his eyes but otherwise betrayed no emotion.

The jury convicted him Saturday night. Under Texas law the jury must retire a second time to set the sentence unless the judge sets the sentence by agreement.

The jury required an hour and 16 minutes to reach a verdict on the sentence.

After the jury announced it had reached a verdict but before it returned to the courtroom, Durbin's chief defense counsel, Frank Maloney, crouched in front of Durbin, talking intensely to him.

The defense had sought a verdict of innocent by reason of insanity and asked that he be sent to the Rusk State Hospital for the criminally insane.

As the jury returned to its box, several members looked at Durbin but there were no smiles. Durbin's eyes were misty and red as he was led from the courtroom after the sentence.

Arguments by lawyers on the sentence were made this morning.

Assistant Dist. Atty. Bob Huttash told the jury "the only verdict you can return that will guarantee to your community that this defendant will never kill again is death."

Huttash said that on Jan. 8 John Albert White was illegally executed. And that on that same day Keitha Morris was illegally executed. Durbin was tried only on the White charge. The other trial is pending.

Defense lawyer Paul Holt quoted the Bible: "Thou shalt not kill. There is no exception," he said.

Holt said that if the jury brought in a death verdict "you (jury) have to leave the courtroom with human blood dripping from your hands. What are you going to be doing the night he is executed? You are going to be awake, with all 12 of you with your hands on the switch."

Defense lawyer Douglas Hearne said, "It is not the type of crime that you take a boy's life for." He said if they gave death to Durbin "What do you do with a calculating killer who sits down and schemes and premeditates?"

Camille Claws Inland, Death Count Hits 14

CAMILLE DAMAGE—Hurricane Camille which struck the coast of Mississippi early this morning picked up a huge house from its foundation and dropped it on train tracks between Gulfport and New Orleans. Winds of 150 miles per hour hit the coast.

Great Exodus Of Tired, Thirsty, Hungry Youths

WHITE LAKE, N.Y. (AP) —

The great rock festival ended today in the same spirit of peace and sharing that enabled 400,000 young people to gather for three days of music, marijuana and mod living without a major incident.

"There has been no violence whatsoever, which is remarkable for a crowd of this size," said Dr. William Abruzzi, the festival's chief medical officer. "These people are really beautiful."

As the great exodus of tired, thirsty, hungry youths began Sunday, security officials reported three deaths and close to 5,000 persons treated for injuries, illness or adverse drug reactions during the three-day span.

A late afternoon thunderstorm speeded departures. But thousands of determined fans remained and huddled around flickering campfires through the chill night to hear the final concert.

Despite the rain that turned the farm fields of the festival site into seas of mud again, despite the shortages of water and food and the lack of sanitary facilities, the spirits of the audience remained high at the end.

Everything from drugs, to rides to sandwiches donated by local residents and merchants was being shared. Volunteer doctors and nurses were treating the sick in hurriedly set up clinics to keep the hospitals free for emergencies.

"Today," said Michael Lang, 24, one of the festival organizers, "is a time to think about what happened here—the youth culture came out of the youth culture and streets. This generation was brought together and showed it was beautiful. 'The peace they were screaming about is what they really want—they're living it. They value each other more than material things,' said Lang, who had anticipated an attendance of only about 50,000 each day.

The extraordinary response created traffic jams, health problems and material shortages beyond anyone's expectation.

Fires Burning Out Of Control

GULFPORT, Miss. (AP) — Hurricane Camille churned inland into central Mississippi today, leaving at least 14 dead with fears that "many more bodies" would be found along the smashed gulf coast resort area.

The entire coast—from the Louisiana line to Alabama—was without communication in most of the area. There was no electricity, no gas.

Biloxi Mayor Daniel Guice estimated damage to his city at $10 million after a pre-dawn inspection. But after daylight appeared he said "that's a very conservative estimate."

Tangle Of Wreckage

Downtown Gulfport was in shambles. The storm's 150-mile an hour winds took roofs from buildings, smashed signs and destroyed 40 of the 250 frame structures at the big Naval Seabee base north of Gulfport.

Camille's fury pushed waters from the Gulf across four-lane U.S. 90 and flooded it. The road was impassable in and out of Gulfport.

The storm knocked out several sections of a bridge on U.S. 90 between Biloxi and Ocean Springs, the only southern route to Mobile, Ala., on the east.

Gulfport had no drinking water but Civil Defense authorities said "the prospects are good" for getting some in the next few hours.

National Guardsmen sealed off downtown Gulfport, a city of 30,000 and normally a center for summer vacationers, to prevent looting.

Hundreds of cars were parked around the sprawling Seabee base, where many took refuge along with the 4,000 men and their families who are stationed there, but few had any windows left.

Emergency Calls Slowed

The Gulfport hospital reported it treated about 50 persons but released all after treatment or examination.

Gulfport is fronted by a white sand beach, an area filled with sunbathers late Saturday. The beach is 60 yards wide and separates U.S. 90 from the water's edge.

But Camille pushed waves high over the protective seawall during the night's furious hours when it howled inland after battering coastal Louisiana and skirting New Orleans.

Reports of damage, particularly from fire, from other points along the coast—Waveland, Pass Christian, Bay St. Louis, Henderson Point—could not be confirmed because of the difficulty of communication. Telephone operators cautioned that even emergency calls would be slowed because of the heavy load on facilities and storm damage.

"We had winds of 150 miles an hour or better for two hours," Police Supt. Ray Decelle said.

The U.S. Weather Bureau in New Orleans, tracking Camille as she moved inland, said she was dying but still dangerous—with winds of 125 m.p.h. around her eye as she headed north toward Jackson.

Every Street Blocked

She was moving north-northwest at a speed of 15 to 20 m.p.h. Tornado warnings were up for most of the southern half of Mississippi until 9 a.m.

In Jackson, Gov. John Bell Williams said he would make an inspection tour of the disaster area later in the morning.

Decelle said every street in Gulfport was blocked by fallen trees and wreckage, with some buildings demolished and nearly all damaged.

Radio reports from the highway patrol said fires burned out of control for hours in both Gulfport and Biloxi after Camille passed, with fire fighting units unable to reach them.

Biloxi police said flooding due to heavy rain or raging high tides was 10 feet deep or more in some sections of the city and the bridge between Biloxi and Ocean Springs was knocked out. Keesler Air Force Base at Biloxi reported that tides 20 feet high—15 feet above normal—were jammed ashore by the first of Camille's winds.

The center of the tightly compressed circular storm, one of the most violent in Weather Bureau annals, smashed ashore out of the Gulf of Mexico near Gulfport Sunday night.

Her Shrieking Winds

Camille's shrieking winds mounted to 200 m.p.h. as she swerved northward.

Her worst fury was near her center but even on her outer edges Camille packed a wallop.

On her way across Chandeleur Sound she lashed New Orleans, on her western edge, with winds up to 100 m.p.h. Mobile, Ala., on her eastern rim, had winds up to 75 m.p.h. with tornadoes skipping through rural areas.

Gale winds extended another 120 miles or so on all sides of the storm.

The U.S. Weather Bureau said Camille would weaken rapidly as it moved across the inland area, moving generally northward at about 15 m.p.h.

The Red Cross said more than 44,500 persons took refuge in 394 emergency shelters it set up along the hurricane warning area—which had extended from Grand Isle, La., to Apalachicola, Fla., during the period when weather forecasters were trying to plot the storm's expected course.

Course Changed To Westward

At the first, Camille was expected to hit land in the vicinity of Fort Walton, in Florida's panhandle, but the storm never took the predicted curve north that would have carried her there.

Instead, Camille leaned to the west, skirting the mouth of the Mississippi River, which is some 90 miles southeast of New Orleans at the bottom of the long finger of flat delta land created by centuries of silt deposits.

Latest Heart Transplant Dies

STANFORD, Calif. (AP) — A Phoenix, Ariz., man lived only 10 hours after becoming Stanford University Hospital's 16th heart transplant patient.

Doctors said Herman Scales, 54, died Sunday. Scales underwent a 4½-hour operation late Saturday by a team of surgeons headed by Dr. Norman E. Shumway. The donor of the heart was not named.

After retiring as a Detroit nursing home operator last year, Scales moved with his wife to Phoenix.

Scales was the 142nd person in the world known to have received a heart transplant.

Delbert Stanley Turns In County's 1st Cotton Bale

The first bale of 1969 cotton in Howard County was ginned Friday at 7 p.m., four days earlier than last year.

Delbert Stanley, who has 1,050 acres in cotton, received the $500 "First Bale Award" from Alton Marwitz, chairman of the Agriculture Committee of the Chamber of Commerce.

"This award is to focus attention on the cotton industry in Howard County," Marwitz said.

"Businessmen from all over the county make contributions for the award to show their appreciation for the contribution the cotton industry makes to the economy of Howard County."

Stanley has been growing cotton in the Big Spring area 24 years, but this is the first time he has tried for the first bale.

"I noticed that it was real dry up at the Monty Hamlin farm that I operate," he said, "so I knew the cotton would be ready soon and I decided to try for it. We had to hand-pick 18 acres to get this bale," he said. "What a time we had finding cotton bags." We don't pick cotton that way any more so they don't manufacture the bags. I ended up borrowing most of them from my neighbor, Lester Newton. But even then we had to go out and buy needles and thread to patch them up."

"It took from 15 to 30 people, working from late Thursday until Friday night at 5 o'clock to pick it," he said.

Lester Adams, manager of the Planter's Gin Co., said the bale weighed an even 500 pounds.

"It'll be another month before the gin is in full operation, and another six weeks before the big rush is on, Adams estimated.

"The ginner in the area always gin the first bale free of charge," he explained, "but it's good for us to get our equipment in shape and ready to go ahead of time."

Last year's award ginner by Planter's Gin Co. in Luther, went to H. L. Moates.

Dates Set For Fall Art Shows

Art show dates, as well as possible judges, were considered when the Big Spring Art Association hosted an area seminar for all West Texas Art Clubs Thursday at Cosden Country Club.

The local association will begin the new season Sept. 21 with a member's art show and tea to be held from 2 to 5 p.m. in the home of the president, Mrs. Daryle Hohertz, No. 7 Highland Heather.

According to Mrs. Hohertz, limited memberships are available for persons interested in developing more awareness of fine arts in the community. It is not necessary to be a practicing artist to be a member of the BSAA, since it is an educational organization. The patron memberships are $25 per year.

The Odessa show, the first juried one for that city, will be held in conjunction with the Permian Basin Oil Show. The annual Fall Festival will be held in Lubbock, Sept. 6. Margaret Haltom, Texas Fine Arts Association president, will be in Lubbock for the festival at Municipal Garden and Art Center and for the state board meeting to be held during the festival. The festival will begin with a coffee at 10 a.m., Sept. 6, to be followed by a covered dish luncheon. Demonstrations and a painting sale will be held from 2 to 5 p.m.

Big Spring's annual spring show will be held March 27-29 in the First Federal Community Room.

Federal Stylesetters Skirt Hemline Issue

By MARTHA COLE
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The federal government's stylesetters deftly skirt the battle of the hemline for women in uniform.

The government diplomatically eschews the ruler or the tape. Instead it uses such negotiable guidelines as "good taste," "conservatively fashionable" and "adjusted to current styles but not extreme."

Those are the skirt-length edicts of the military services, Post Office Department, General Services Administration and National Park Service who have gals in uniform.

At the GSA, which prescribes uniforms for women elevator operators in government buildings, officials aren't about to be hemmed in by the hemline. "Due to fluctuations of style, we try to maintain a stylish length and a uniform look," said one male GSA official.

The Park Service has dropped its regulation that a girl's hemline could be no more than one inch above the floor when she is kneeling.

The Post Office has gone mad in a few locations to promote use of the five-digit ZIP code. It has employed girls to aid customers in Louisville, Memphis and Cincinnati Post Office lobbies as "Miss Zips" — and their skirts are four inches above the knee.

Other female postal workers abide by the edict to "dress appropriately from the standpoint of appearance and safety."

For the women in the military services, hemlines are all close neighbors to the kneecaps.

For women Marines, "It's conventional sweep and length and adjusted to current styles but not extreme," says Lt. Col.

GRADUATES — Mrs. Dana Whitley, Route One, Smithfield, was among the 31 Tarrant County Junior College students who completed work in the Associate Degree Nursing Program and have been awarded Associated in Applied Science Degrees. Mrs. Whitley is the daughter of J. J. McClanahan of Big Spring. The graduates are now eligible to take the state board examinations slated in October.

Margaret Brewer, deputy director, That dictum currently is interpreted as mid-knee.

"Of course we do keep re-evaluating our regulation. A few years ago it was mid-calf," she says.

For women in the Air Force, it's no lower than the bottom of the kneecap and no higher than the top of the kneecap. For WAVES, the women in the Navy, the guidance is that hemlines should be on the conservative side of current fashion. As of today, that's the top of the knee.

For the Army's WACs, it's "a conservative fashionable length," says Col. Marie Kehrer at WAC headquarters.

None of the services report trouble with young recruits insisting on miniskirts. "But occasionally you have a girl come in who needs a little instruction," Col. Kehrer says.

A LOVELIER YOU Fall Fabrics Offer Variety In Textures

By MARY SUE MILLER

Fall fabrics are prime news. Their variety gives all fashion new looks. Not just one, but dozens!

Surely, the point is not to be missed when planning a wardrobe. For instance:

• There are cing fabrics in silky matte surfaces, in sheer wool jerseys, in fluid wool and silk crepes.

• "Wet" fabrics grow in numbers, offering light-refracting satiny finishes, plastic leathers and reptiles.

• Luxurious fibers make a comeback. Among their number count mohair, angora, cashmere, fleece, velours, man-made furs. Not to mention natural furs and leathers.

• Classic materials arrive on the scene in such guises as plaid wools on a huge scale, marvelous loopy tweeds, and argyle knits. Or in beloved menswear — gabardine, twill flannel, corduroy, glens and chevrons, double face wools brushed cottons.

• Newsy prints take abstract geometric forms — loose, soft-edged squares and triangles. Tumbling after are patchwork, gypsy, fowlard, challis and tapestry themes.

• See-through sheers intrigue in such fancies as knits with holes, transparent knits evening chiffons and sari gauzes.

• As for color, darks are richly cast in burgundy, aubergine, deep green, maroon, rust, antique brass. Mid-range colors fall into old tapestry tones — bois de rose, mauve, smoky blue and green, blanché yellow. Pastels run to brights like bittersweet. Neutrals go black, storm gray, winter blue, taupe and dark brown.

ARMSTRONG AVAILABLE 'IN ANY CAPACITY'

Astro Collins Grounds Self

SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP) — Apollo 11 astronaut Michael Collins, the man who orbited the moon while his crewmates made history, says he is hanging up his spacesuit and will take a nonflying job in the space program if it's offered to him.

Edwin E. Aldrin Jr., another of the Apollo 11 crew and the second man to walk the moon, also casts doubt on his specific future plans.

'LAST FLIGHT'

The third crewman, Apollo 11 commander Neil A. Armstrong, says he would serve the space program "in any capacity," including space flight.

"Apollo 11 is my last flight," Collins said Sunday during a televised interview on the CBS program "Face The Nation." "I think it's difficult to keep up year after year, to really approach the training, the living in simulators, with the zeal that you have to in order to do a good job," Collins said. "Of course there are a lot of encroachments on my family life which I have not enjoyed."

NOT SURE

Collins said he intends to contribute whatever he can to the space program in another job, but the 38-year-old Air Force colonel said he didn't know what that would be.

Aldrin said he expects to continue in the program, but has not decided about going back into space.

"Whether I'll remain on flight status or not, I haven't had the opportunity to make that decision yet and we have not been in a rush in making up our mind as to what we'd like to do," he said.

"I'm available in any capacity in which I could serve best," Armstrong said. He also indicated he would like to make a long space journey, such as to Mars.

Armstrong said he and Aldrin were determined to land on the moon despite alarms given out by their on-board computer during the final seconds of flight to the lunar surface, but they were ready to give it up if necessary.

MATTER OF TIME

"We were concerned primarily for the success of the flight," he said. "We did not want to come back without landing, but we were certainly willing to do that and that would certainly be much better than not to come back at all."

Armstrong said he expects man to some day go to Mars and to other planets.

"We do have and will continue to have an unquenchable curiosity to understand our solar system," he said. "I'm quite sure that now that we believe it's within our means to look, we will. It's just a matter of time now, when you'll do it, not whether you will do it."

DEMONSTRATE AGAINST NORTHERN IRELAND GOVERNMENT — Marchers of Ulster Civil Rights Solidarity Campaign march from Shepherd's Bush Green in London Sunday as they demonstrate against the Northern Ireland government. Mounted police later charged the crowd as the demonstrators threw rocks and one fire bomb at the office of the Northern Ireland regime near Berkeley Square.

British Troops Enforcing Uneasy Peace In Ireland

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (AP) — The crisis in Northern Ireland moved into the talking stage today as British troops enforced an uneasy peace.

Prime Minister Harold Wilson flew back to London from an island vacation to formulate proposals he hoped would ease the likelihood of further religious warfare.

The Irish Republic asked the U.N. Security Council to meet and send a peacekeeping force to Northern Ireland. British opposition appeared certain to prevent any such action.

Pope Paul VI appealed for "reciprocal pardon and mutual agreement" between the Catholics and Protestants.

In Belfast and Londonderry, thin lines of British soldiers kept the peace since Saturday night. But Protestants and Roman Catholics remained behind their barricades, wondering who would make the next move and contemplating the results of five days of destruction and bloodshed.

In one isolated incident Sunday night, armed raiders opened fire on a police station in Crossmaglen, a small market town in County Armagh two miles from the Irish Republic border. Police said they returned the fire, and the raiders fled. No one was hurt.

In London, 100 police fought 1,000 demonstrators outside the Ulster Office in the fashionable Mayfair district. Sixty-five persons were injured in the battle, which followed marches by three Irish organizations. At least two gasoline bombs were thrown during a barrage of stones and milk bottles.

Wilson was formulating his Irish proposals at meetings with Foreign Secretary Michael Stewart, who cut short a holiday in Switzerland, and Home Secretary James Callaghan. Wilson will present his proposals to Prime Minister James Callaghan tomorrow.

Government sources in London predicted that Wilson would insist that the Ulster government speed up reforms to give the Catholics more political representation, better jobs and more housing.

Wilson may also suggest that Ulster's 8,000 special police reserves, a Protestant force whose members keep their weapons at home and are trusted by the Catholics, not be used in troubled areas.

Meanwhile, Chichester-Clark lashed out at the Irish Republic's government, asserting that it had "behaved much like those hooligans who have used the present troubles as an excuse to burn their neighbors out." He said Dublin's callup of army reserves and sending of troops to the border was "tailor-made to inflame opinion on both sides."

Northern Ireland's latest and bloodiest religious rioting began Aug. 12 with a Protestant march through dominantly Catholic Londonderry, Ulster's second city.

Since then, eight persons have been killed, according to official figures, and 514 civilians, 226 police and one soldier have been injured. More than 160 persons have been arrested on charges ranging from disorderly conduct to carrying gasoline bombs.

In Belfast, 1,000 British soldiers were on patrol. Damage in the state capital is estimated as high as $5 million.

Streets are littered with paving stones, felled trees and telegraph poles, smashed glass from thousands of gasoline bombs and rubble from collapsed buildings.

Hundreds of families are without homes. Many are being sheltered in five large schools and a teachers' college. Others are staying with friends or relatives or have fled to refugee centers in the republic.

Hundreds are faced with the prospect of lengthy unemployment because their places of work have been destroyed.

Texas Spared Camille Wrath

By The Associated Press

Apparently spared the wrath of Hurricane Camille, Texas got forecasts for slightly damp weather today that seemed mild in comparison.

The widely scattered showers that began Sunday night were predicted to continue through this evening in East and South Central Texas. The rest of the state was expected to be clear to partly cloudy with more hot temperatures.

Hurricane Camille moved northward through Mississippi loosing force as she went. The only apparent effects in Texas of her sweep were high tides on Mustang Island south of Corpus Christi and high waves with strong undertows at Galveston. Two swimmers were drowned in those undertows off the island city Sunday.

While coastal dwellers were watching the waves rise, their Texas inland neighbors were watching the mercury rise to oppressive heights of 109 at Del Rio, 108 at Cotulla and Wink; 107 at Laredo; 106 at Alice, Midland and San Angelo; 105 at El Paso; 104 at Abilene, Big Spring and San Antonio; 103 at McAllen and Waco; 102 at Dalhart and Victoria; 101 at Lubbock and 100 at Amarillo and Houston.

Some relief was offered Panhandle residents when thunderstorms came down in the Amarillo area Sunday night.

New Version: CIA Didn't Order Killing

SAIGON (AP) — The slaying of a Vietnamese double agent for which eight American Green Berets are under arrest was done without any authorization from the Central Intelligence Agency, a source with contacts among the Saigon intelligence community said today.

George Gregory, a South Carolina lawyer for one of the Special Forces men, charged last week that the CIA ordered the killing. Other sources said the CIA withdrew the order about a week after issuing it, but they were not clear as to whether the man had already been killed then.

This was the version of the killing told today:

The Green Beret command began to suspect one of its Vietnamese agents used on clandestine liaison missions in Cambodia and asked the CIA for advice.

The agent was a relatively low-ranking man, and the CIA advised the Green Beret command in Nha Trang that it should "dispose" with him if he was under suspicion. The CIA itself was unable to determine whether the man was a double agent.

There was never any consideration among the CIA directors in Saigon that the man should be killed. There may, however, have been some misunderstanding in the relay of information between Saigon and Nha Trang. But at one unspecified date, some officials in Saigon contacted Nha Trang with specific orders that the man should not be killed.

The Green Beret command replied that it was too late, that the mission was already in progress. The command had set up an operation during which the suspected double agent was to be shot.

The Army has announced that the killing took place on or about June 20. A month later, Col. Robert B. Rheault of Vineyard Haven, Mass., the commander of all Special Forces in Vietnam, was relieved of his command and placed under arrest along with seven of his subordinates. Two weeks later the Army announced their arrest and said they had been charged with murder and conspiracy. It added that an investigation was under way to determine whether they would be brought to trial. Since then the Army has refused to give any details of the case, and the U.S. Embassy in Saigon has maintained a hands-off policy.

The Columbia Broadcasting System had still another version of the murder story Sunday night. In a telecast from Saigon, CBS said it learned from a top source that the murdered man was a "triple agent"—a captain in the South Vietnamese army, a spy for the CIA and an agent for the North Vietnamese Communists.

According to the CBS report: The agent gave the North Vietnamese only incidental information while supplying top-secret matter to the CIA. A low-echelon man in the CIA heard that the captain was spying for the North Vietnamese and, not knowing that he was also a spy for the CIA, ordered the Green Berets to kill him. By the time higher ranking CIA men found out about the execution order, the man was dead. The "infuriated" CIA men went to Gen. Creighton Abrams, commander of U.S. forces in Vietnam, and Abrams ordered the Green Berets arrested in an attempt to improve "already shaky relations" between the CIA and the Army.

Another civilian attorney entered the case today with the arrival in Saigon of Henry B. Rothblatt of New York City. He said he would defend Maj. David E. Crew of Cedar Rapids, Iowa; Capt. Leland J. Brumley of Duncan, Okla.; and CWO Edward M. Boyle of New York City.

Pilot Posts Speed Record

EDWARDS AIR FORCE BASE, Calif. (AP) — A speed record for piston-driven aircraft set by a German Luftwaffe pilot in 1939 has been broken by a jet pilot accustomed to speeds of 2,000 miles an hour.

Darryl Greenamyer, a test pilot of high-speed reconnaissance planes, zoomed low over a three-kilometer course four times Saturday in his vintage, remodeled Grumman F8F2 Bearcat for an average speed of 478 m.p.h., eclipsing the old record of 469.2 m.p.h. set by Fritz Wendel of the German Air Force.

Greenamyer, 33, said he wanted to bring the speed record back to the United States, where it was once owned by such pilots as Howard Hughes, Jimmy Doolittle and Billy Mitchell.

May Be First Yank Megapode

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Zoo officials are watching a rotting mound of organic matter and hoping a megapode or two will emerge.

The megapode, also known as the brush turkey, is an Australian bird which does not incubate its eggs by sitting on them, a rarity among fowls.

"This may be the first American hatching" of the bird, said Jim Wilson, a zoo keeper.

Wilson said the megapode male incubates eggs by covering them with organic matter. Decay produces much of the required warmth. The male produces the rest with tongue or wattle, the flesh around his neck.

Wilson said the male challenges hens attempting to get near the mound. Another male, one of four megapodes received in a trade with a German zoo last year, has been kept away to prevent trouble.

Col. Lingo Dies Of Heart Ailment

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (AP) — Former Alabama Public Safety Director Albert J. Lingo, 59, died of a heart ailment in a Birmingham hospital Sunday.

Col. Lingo headed the highway patrol from 1963-65 during the administration of former Gov. George Wallace. He resigned in 1965 to run for sheriff of Jefferson County against incumbent Mel Bailey and lost.

Lingo's state troopers scattered demonstrators attempting to march from Selma to Montgomery in 1965. He charged later that he was made the scapegoat of the incident.

Dear Abby

—ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: My husband tells me not to call his office as it annoys his secretary, whom he calls his "office wife." How about that?

My husband never turns a hand to do a thing for himself. His shoes are shined, his clothes are cared for, and he rides in a golf cart to save his feet. He exercises on an electric "exercycle," which cost 500 bucks.

Contrast this with my lot: I may go anywhere I can take my four small children, because my husband doesn't want me to have a babysitter. If I entertain, I can't have my own sister and her husband, because my husband doesn't care for HER husband.

I mow the lawn in the summer and shovel the driveway in the winter. I wash the walls and paint them myself, clean the garage, haul the trash and do all the work most men do around the house.

Then he tells me, "Think cheerful thoughts," be happy when I get home!"

What do you think of this set up, Abby? I haven't told you even half the story. The "problems" most people write to you about make me envious. I am so dominated I hardly know my own name. What do you suggest? Sign me, "DOORMAT."

DEAR "DOORMAT": I suggest you address your complaints to your husband. No woman can be a doormat unless she lies down first.

DEAR ABBY: I am 17, and have a few words for OFF MY CHEST who accused the younger generation of calling his the "do nothing" generation.

Sir, I grant that all you say is true. Your generation has accomplished much. You made it possible for the common person to obtain a college education. Now college is for anyone who can make the grade. So don't tell us to get started early to "beat the record" you set in accomplishments. You gave us the earliest start possible. You made our education possible.

Now that you have put us on the right path, who is to say what we will accomplish in the next 30 years, before our time is up and the next generation takes over? As you have done much. WE will do more. In fact, we will do more, just as you did more than your parents. And do you know why? Because whatever we do, we will have done standing upon your shoulders, as you have stood upon the shoulders of those who came before you. We have your accumulated wisdom to draw upon, and your accumulated experience to guide our future actions. The accomplishments of men are not competitive among the generations. They are cumulative.

To say that your generation did nothing is the worst possible error. Your generation gave life to OUR generation, and that accomplishment alone merits my thanks and respect. My congratulations. I think you have done a great job of it. Sincerely,

JEFF DUNTEMANN, CHICAGO

Dairy Cows Number Dips

WASHINGTON (AP) — A mid-year report by the Agriculture Department shows a continued decline in the number of dairy cows.

Officials said milk cows on farms in June totaled 12.7 million, down 3 per cent from a year earlier.

But the decline was less than what the trend has been recently, the department said. Decreases averaged 4 per cent each year from 1963 through 1965, 6 per cent in 1966, and 4 per cent from a year earlier in 1967 and 1968.

Regionally, the report said, the largest declines from June, 1968, were in the west north-central area and in the south-central, each down 5 per cent.

Wisconsin reported the largest number of milk cows in June—1,847,000 head, a decline of 2 per cent from a year earlier. New York was second with 1,825,000, down 1 per cent, and Minnesota was third with 1,612,000 head, a decline of 3 per cent.

The department also reported that milk production in July was 10,165 million pounds, slightly less than a year earlier and the least for the month since 1938.

Cops Guard Train With Deadly Gas

LOCKPORT, N.Y. (AP) — Railroad police guarded a train carrying 210 tons of poisonous gas today as it sat at a secluded siding on the outskirts of the city waiting to take the last 4 1/2 mile leg of a cross-country journey that stirred widespread controversy.

The train was to be moved to the VanDeMark Chemical Co. which uses the gas in the production of pesticides, dyes, pharmaceuticals and plastics.

The gas-surplus phosgene from World War I is part of two shipments to different sections of the country from the Army's Rocky Mountain Arsenal in Colorado. The other shipment was to Geismar, La.

State Rep. Richard D. McCarthy, D-Butte, had called the canisters in which the gas was being transported unsafe. He said they were corroded.

A VanDeMark spokesman, however, said the canisters were in good condition.

Guards Foil Try By Men

BERLIN (AP) — East German border guards, firing automatic weapons from a watch tower, foiled an attempt today by two young men to reach West Berlin.

A West Berlin police spokesman said the incident occurred alongside the West Berlin farming district of Luebars.

Witnesses said the East German soldiers fired 30 or 40 shots at two young men, 20 to 22 years old, who had reached the "death strip" frontier area. The pair was seen being led away by soldiers with drawn pistols.

Plane Returns With Passengers

ATHENS (AP) — An Olympic Airways plane returned to Athens Sunday with 24 passengers and three crew members aboard after a Greek doctor and his family forced the pilot to fly to Albania Saturday.

Informed sources said the doctor had been under investigation in Athens for activities against Greece's military regime.

Police With Riot Gear End Second Night Of Looting

LAKEWOOD, N.J. (AP) — Fourteen persons were arrested early today when police with riot gear dispersed a crowd of 200 Negroes to end the second consecutive night of looting and vandalism in this central New Jersey resort.

Four of those arrested were charged with firebombing.

No injuries were reported, although police were pelted with bottles and rocks as they advanced on the crowd.

Disorders began Saturday night following the arrest by a Negro patrolman of three black youths who were in a street fight. Authorities said false rumors circulated that the youths had been killed.

Bomb Causes Heavy Damage

QUEBEC (AP) — A bomb exploded Sunday in a suburban Quebec government labor building, causing heavy damage but no injuries. Two other bombing incidents in the province were reported during the weekend.

Police said the explosion in the government building was caused by seven sticks of dynamite. The blast shattered windows on the first two floors of the 14-story building and damaged some homes nearby.

A bomb exploded Saturday at the Montreal headquarters of the Confederation of National Trade Unions. Police said it caused "considerable damage."

Eight incendiary bombs were discovered Friday night in a Montreal department store. A security guard was injured when one of the devices burst into flames as he tried to douse it in a bucket of water.

A Montreal police officer said Sunday most of the recent bombings in the province were carried out by a terrorist group that wants independence for French-speaking Quebec.

Talmadge Faces Surgery Today

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP) — Sen. Herman E. Talmadge, D-Ga., undergoes prostate surgery at Atlanta Hospital today.

Talmadge entered the hospital, a two-year-old limited specialty facility, Sunday. Aides said he will be hospitalized for about a week, but that he is expected to return to Washington for the reconvening of the Senate Sept. 3.

TRUCKER DIES IN TANKER BLAZE — Firemen try fruitlessly to halt fire from an exploding fuel oil tank truck off the Pottstown-Reading, Pa., by-pass near Pottstown, Pa., as a trucker identified yesterday as Kenneth L. Kalbach, 26, of Reading, died in the fire. The fire blasted into the home of Paul Wagner, in background, and destroyed the house. Two occupants of the house fled out the back door when the truck crashed through a guard rail on an exit ramp and upset.

VA, FHA Loans Might Disappear

WASHINGTON (AP) — Federal officials predict government-backed home mortgages will disappear if Congress allows the interest limit to revert to 6 per cent this fall.

But they are confident lawmakers will act in time to continue suspension of the ceiling and thus save the popular Federal Housing Administration-FHA-and Veterans Administration-VA-loan programs.

"There just won't be any more VA or FHA loans at a 6 per cent interest rate," said John Darvan, director of the VA loan guarantee program. "No one will write them at that rate."

Statutory limit for the guaranteed loans is 6 per cent. Congress suspended the ceiling until Oct. 1. And it gave the secretary of housing and urban development discretionary authority to set the rate, now at 7 per cent.

The maximum rate will return to 6 per cent Oct. 1 if Congress doesn't act. Mortgage money is short even at 7 per cent because of the record 8 1/2 per cent charged to prime bank borrowers. Funds are flowing out of mortgages and into higher yield loans.

About one-third of the FHA's district offices report money is no longer available in their areas for the government-backed mortgages.

The FHA and VA programs account for about 20 per cent of the mortgages written each year for new and used homes.

The Senate Banking and Currency Committee approved legislation last week that would extend the ceiling suspension for another six months. The Senate is not expected to begin considering the bill until late September.

The House Banking and Currency Committee has yet to act.

Fame Is Fleeting

ROCHESTER, Minn. (AP) — In one of the rare public appearances since leaving the White House, former President Lyndon B. Johnson walked down the street of this city without attracting a crowd.

Johnson was here Friday for a one-day meeting of the foundation that runs the Mayo Clinic.

THREE MEN MISSING Korea Claims Copter

SEOUL (AP) — The pilot of a U.S. Army helicopter shot down by the North Koreans Sunday probably lost his way and strayed over the border, a U.N. Command spokesman reported. North Korea gave no indication of the fate of the three men aboard the craft.

The spokesman said the pilot radioed about an hour after he took off on a training flight that "he had become disoriented, he was being fired upon, was hit and was going down over unknown territory."

"There was strong evidence," the spokesman added, that the unarmed OH23 helicopter was hit by North Korean ground fire.

Radio Pyongyang said North Korean forces downed the aircraft at Kumchon, about 15 miles north of the demilitarized zone between North and South Korea and about 50 miles northwest of Seoul. The broadcast called the incident another "provocation by U.S. imperialism in violation of the Korean armistice agreement."

U.N. and Pentagon officials withheld the names of the missing crewmen pending notification of relatives.

The Army said those aboard the plane were Capt. David H. Crawford of Pooler, Ga.; WO Malcolm W. Loepke, the pilot, of Richmond, Ind., and Spec. 4 Herman H. Hofstatter of Lowell, Ill.

The U.N. Command said U.S. Marine Maj. Gen. Arthur H. Adams, senior member of the command on the Armistice Commission, had asked the North Koreans for assistance "in returning the helicopter and personnel."

It was the second U.S. Army helicopter shot down by North Korea since the Korean armistice was signed 16 years ago. A helicopter carrying two American officers on a routine flight was downed by ground fire near the Panmunjom truce village on May 17, 1963. The two officers were captured and were returned a year later after the U.N. Command signed a note saying they were engaged in espionage activities from their helicopter.

The command later said it had to sign the note in order to obtain the men's release.

On April 15, North Korea shot down an American EC121 electronic intelligence plane in the Sea of Japan more than 100 miles off the Korean coast. All 31 men aboard were presumed killed. The United States charged that Pyongyang had violated international law by downing the plane over international waters and assigned a special Navy task force to guard American planes operating off the Korea coast.

LET'S PLAY GUESS WHY

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla. (AP) — Deputies ran down prisoner Ozzie Brown after a two-block chase.

The deputies said they weren't certain why Brown was running. The officers had taken Brown to a dentist's office when he jumped out the window.

DR. BLAIBERG DIES; AUTOPSY Second Heart Fails

CAPE TOWN, South Africa (AP) — Dr. Philip Blaiberg, the retired South African dentist who survived longer than any other person with a transplanted heart, died from heart failure brought on by failure of his kidneys and pneumonia, the death certificate said today.

The certificate was signed by Dr. Marius Barnard, younger brother of Dr. Christian Barnard, the pioneer transplant surgeon who gave Blaiberg his new heart 19½ months ago on Jan. 2, 1968. The younger Barnard is also a member of the Groote Schuur Hospital heart transplant team.

The certificate did not indicate whether any rejection of the heart took place.

Blaiberg, who was 60, died Sunday at 7:40 p.m. An autopsy was performed afterward but its results were not immediately disclosed.

Blaiberg's wife and their daughter Jill were with him when the end came. A relative said he was conscious until the last few moments and suffered no pain.

His funeral was to take place at a Cape Town crematorium late today with a rabbi of the Jewish Reform congregation conducting the service.

Dr. Barnard said after learning of Blaiberg's death: "I am afraid I have nothing to say. That is all."

Barnard has been ill with influenza and was unable to see his famous patient before his death for fear of infecting him.

Dorothy Haupt, widow of the 24-year-old mulatto whose heart Blaiberg received, said she was unable to sleep Sunday night after hearing of his death. She added that she felt no regrets at having authorized the use of her husband's heart.

Despite South Africa's race segregation policies, the transplant of a mulatto's heart to a white man caused little comment. Before Blaiberg's operation there had been exchanges of other organs such as kidneys across the color line.

Blaiberg's death left a French Dominican priest, the Rev. Charles Boulogne, 56, as the longest surviving heart transplant. He received his new heart May 12, 1968, in Paris. The surgeon was Prof. Charles Dubost.

Father Boulogne, known in his Marseille monastery as Father Damien, was hospitalized with slight rejection symptoms last May but has since recovered and says Mass regularly. He said today that his doctors "do not foresee a rejection in my case."

A total of 142 persons have received heart transplants since Barnard made medical history by implanting a heart in Louis Washkansky on Dec. 3, 1967. Of these, 37 patients still are alive, including two of the five heart recipients operated on by Barnard.

Although Washkansky died of pneumonia 18 days after his operation, Blaiberg was not discouraged at the prospect for his operation. In failing health since a heart attack 12 years before, he said: "I want to be next."

After his operation, Barnard showed Blaiberg a bottle containing his old, badly fibrosed organ. Blaiberg became the

Runaway Range Fire Burns 23,000 Acres

HUNT, Tex. (AP) — Firemen, volunteers and the National Guard halted a massive range fire again this morning and held hopes that the thousands of small blazes still in the burned area could be contained.

The fire burned 23,000 acres after being started by lightning on the L. R. French Ranch Thursday.

It occurred in one of the best game areas in the state.

The burned area was between Texas 39 and Farm 1340. The big problem was to keep it from jumping the roads as it had done several times only to be beaten back by the firefighters.

There were no injuries. Loss of livestock and game could not be assessed.

The wife of a rancher told Bob Heaton of the San Antonio News that ranchers cut fences ahead of the flames so livestock could flee.

Heaton said he watched a magnificent 14-point buck lead five does out of the smoke and between two National Guard trucks without any sign of fear of the humans and their equipment. Other game fled the fire everywhere.

The grass in the unburned area was damp from condensation this morning and there was no wind. The same conditions occurred Sunday but the wind arose and evaporated the moisture.

Men of C Company of the 4th Battalion of the 38th Brigade of the National Guard stood on the perimeter of the fire all night, beating out any flames

ANSWERS TO BRIDGE QUIZ

Q. 1—As South, vulnerable, you hold:

♠Q7 ♥KJ9432 ♦5 ♣A92

The bidding has proceeded:

North East South West
1 ♠ 2 ♣ 2 ♥ 2 NT
4 ♥ Pass ?

What do you bid now?

A.—Five clubs. Prospects for a slam are very good. A 11 trick contract should be safe. Showing the ace of clubs will induce partner to contract for slam if he has the other controls.

Q. 2—As South, with both sides vulnerable, you hold:

♠AQ865 ♥K9 ♦AJ2 ♣1065

The bidding has proceeded:

South West North East
1 ♠ Pass 2 ♥ 2 NT ?

What do you bid now?

A.—Pass. East has relieved you of the obligation to rebid and you should be pleased to defer temporarily to partner. East may be using the unusual no trump overall or he may just be up to monkey business, but in any event North has opened the bidding and the next decision should be his.

Q. 3—As South, vulnerable, you hold:

♠1098 ♥74 ♦AQ10 ♣108432

The bidding has proceeded:

North East South West
1 ♠ Pass 1 NT Pass
3 ♠ Pass ?

What do you bid now?

A.—Two. It is true that you have already shown your six points by the original response, nevertheless your hand contains two features which it might not have possessed, namely, three trumps to the ten, and the ruffing value in hearts. Therefore, bid four spades.

Q. 4—Neither vulnerable, as South you hold:

♠K62 ♥J75 ♦K108 ♣10963

The bidding has proceeded:

North East South West
1 ♥ Pass 1 NT Pass
2 ♠ Pass ?

What do you bid now?

A.—A bid of three hearts is clearly indicated, because partner presumably has five hearts and four spades. It is your duty, therefore, to return to the suit in which your side has eight trumps rather than seven.

Q. 5—As South, vulnerable, you hold:

Says North Korea Plots New Invasion

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — President Chung Hee Park of South Korea, who says North Korea is plotting a new invasion of his country, arrives Wednesday for talks with President Nixon.

Park said Sunday, "Korea's national security will be the major topic of our conversations." He told the magazine U.S. News and World Report in a copyrighted interview in Seoul that Kim Il-Sung, the North Korean dictator, "is dedicated to reunifying Korea—forcefully if necessary—by 1970" and added: "As I understand it, the United States feels Asian problems should be solved by Asians. The idea is essentially right. But the goal cannot be reached overnight. And we do not believe the United States would withdraw its forces—or influence—from Asia hastily."

Plans are still tentative, but Korean sources say President Park will land Wednesday at the Naval Air Station at Monterey. Park, his wife and his 10-man entourage, including his ministers of foreign affairs and national defense, will spend Wednesday night at Del Monte Lodge near Monterey.

Thursday morning the party will travel by helicopter to San Francisco for a morning conference with Nixon at the St. Francis Hotel.

Among likely topics to be discussed:

—Strengthening and modernizing the Republic of Korea's armed forces.

—Opening up new trade channels for Korean export products.

—A review of the American posture in Asia, including an end to the war in Vietnam and return of Okinawa to Japanese rule.

Czech President Denies 'Rumors'

VIENNA (AP) — President Ludvik Svoboda of Czechoslovakia denies that his country is going to be absorbed by the Soviet Union.

by the news agency CTK, Svoboda said:

"Various alarming rumors are spread about Czechoslovakia being joined to the Soviet Union, that I was interned in the Soviet Union and that they forced me to sign some kind of statement, etcetera. These are naturally complete lies and fabrications."

The Lord thy God, he it is that doth go with thee; he will not forsake thee. (Deuteronomy 31:6)

What Causes Vandalism?

It was once commonly supposed that vandalism was a capricious, random and motiveless kind of behavior. Students of this phenomenon, which annually drains society of many millions of dollars, are beginning to reject this view. Their studies and conclusions may point the way to means of dramatically reducing the toll.

It is no accident that sociologists interested in the subject have directed particular attention to New York City. Its size, coupled with the conditions of life that prevail, has given it a vandalism problem of colossal proportions. Damage to schools alone cost the city nearly three million dollars last year. Losses to park vandals were figured at $862,194, and the Transit Authority had to pay $360,000 for damage to its buses and other equipment. Private property owners suffered losses amounting to an unguessed number of millions more.

Other large cities also pay heavily for vandalism. It is not wholly an urban problem, however. Smaller communities, down to the smallest, are hit too as we can testify.

The important question is: Why? What prompts vandalism, most of which is perpetrated by children and youths?

Prof. John M. Martin, a Fordham University sociologist, believes that vandalism is never motiveless but always "both meaningful to the participants and understandable in terms of the situation in which it occurs."

Another American sociologist, Stanley Cohen, now at the University of Durham in England, says: "The highest rates of school vandalism tend to occur in schools with obsolete facilities and equipment, low staff morale and high boredom among the pupils."

Specialists believe, in other words, that vandalism cannot be shrugged off as senseless and random; they think such behavior has definite causes which can be identified. That is the first step toward dealing with this destructive phenomenon. More study of the matter should be encouraged, with a view to getting at the causes of vandalism and changing the conditions that lead to it.

Water Costs To Climb

Traditionally, Americans generally and Texans in particular have weighed the merits of a water plan on the basis of how much the water will cost. This criterion is fast disappearing from the American scene.

One of the assumptions of the Texas water plan embodied in the constitutional amendment defeated by voters Aug. 5 was that West Texas farmers would be willing to pay $30 or more an acre-foot for irrigation water. That water under the programs outlined by the Texas Water Development Board, would be pumped in part from a point on the Mississippi River below New Orleans 2,000 feet uphill to the Great Plains. Yet there are statistics indicating that irrigation for grain and cotton land increases productivity only about $20 an acre.

In California, state authorities are well along on the most ambitious undertaking of its sort ever attempted in the United States. The State Water Project, taking waters from the Feather, Sacramento, the Eel and other rivers, will deliver approximately 4,230,000 acre-feet a year, mainly to Southern California, at a cost of more than $1.7 billion. In the early 1970s, if the present construction schedule is maintained, water will be delivered to the Los Angeles area. There it will wholesale at approximately $80 an acre-foot, versus approximately $37 an acre-foot for water now being taken from the Colorado River.

By now it should be obvious that conventional thinking in terms of water costs will have to be discarded. All users will have to become conscious, as they now are not, of the cost of water they use.

At some time in the future — not far off in some localities — the cost of delivering water will be almost immaterial. For the people will have to pay whatever it costs, or do without.

David Lawrence The Taxing-And-Spending Problem

WASHINGTON — President Nixon is different in many ways from his predecessors, but most unprecedented is the kind of statement he has just issued telling Congress that appropriations in excess of the ceiling on spending imposed for the current fiscal year will not be carried out by him. He states that it is his intention not to make any commitments to spend additional sums until Congress has completed action on all appropriations bills and revenue measures now pending. He will then determine which programs must be cut.

THE PRESIDENT says, in a nutshell, that the policies of Congress "add up to taxing less and spending more" and that, "appealing as this may be at the moment, it promises long-term grief for the people."

In congressional circles, the President's declaration is being approved by some and criticized by others. It is significant that the chairman of the House Appropriations Committee, Representative George H. Mahon, Democrat of Texas, is supporting the President's stand. He had voted against the tax-reduction bill, and he makes this significant point:

"TAX RELIEF is a highly desirable objective, but we can afford it only if the federal government is also willing to cut spending. A democracy just simply cannot avoid chaos over the long pull if it cannot discipline itself."

There has been a tendency on the part of many members of Congress to imagine that they are following a popular trend by "tax-relief" proposals, but this is not the way to revise tax rules that have been in effect for many years. Upsetting them now can have serious consequences.

ONE ASPECT which has not been emphasized is that tax reform is not something that should be accomplished in just a few weeks. If it would have been far better if the committees in Congress could have made arrangements for extensive hearings on the specific changes now being proposed. A revision of tax laws needs considerable attention, and it would not have been an unwise policy to spend at least a year in studying modifications in the tax rules.

Congress in recent years has passed tax laws which merely increased or decreased the rates on incomes. It has not tackled comprehensively the question of deductions and studied them from the viewpoint of their effect on the operations of the national economy. Unquestionably some rules do need revising, but to alter them hastily can do more harm than good.

THE UNITED STATES today is in the midst of inflation and high-interest rates, and is facing a shaky international situation in the monetary field. Some of these same factors existed between 1929 and 1931 when America felt the impact of developments abroad affecting the value of currencies. The net result was a depression which was the most serious in American history.

CONGRESS is taking a vacation of three weeks, and the President a new headquarters where cabinet officers and other high officials will meet with him. It is unusual to have such a recess in governmental activity in Washington, but the vacation will be fruitful if members of Congress who return home are able to get an understanding of the real trend of public opinion. For the American people are more interested today in maintaining financial and economic stability than at any time since the upheaval of four decades ago.

Maybe Congress will come back with the recognition that fiscal soundness and anti-inflationary steps are more important to the nation's welfare than additional spending or a tampering with tax rules.

BIT AND BRIDLE

John Cuniff Antitrust Problems Posed?

NEW YORK (AP) — A big increase is under way in purchases by corporations of minority interests in other companies, with ramifications for American industry that are far from clear.

Management analysts note that the trend is several years old but claim that in the past few months there appears to have been a surprising surge of activity, some of it by companies that never before purchased another's stock.

A minority position means that the purchasing company acquires a stock position less than necessary for control but large enough in many instances to give it considerable say in management.

In some respects the development has gone unnoticed because federal officials and others have concentrated on a related and more noticeable activity—corporate acquisitions and mergers, in which control passes from one group to another.

According to W. T. Grimm & Co., Chicago-based management consulting firm, merger activity in the first six months of the year rose 65 per cent, from 1,703 in 1968 to 2,815 through June, 1969.

However, estimates by Peter Fillion, Grimm executive vice president, indicate that the rate of increase in minority purchases is two or three times as great as for majority purchases. Hard statistics are not available, but Fillion believes the is about 180 per cent.

This intertwining of corporate affairs might create serious antitrust problems, for it could tend to reduce competition in the marketplace or at least create the suspicion of favoritism or reciprocal buying and selling.

Reciprocity involves buying and selling by two or more companies to the exclusion of others. Products and services of the companies are purchased on the basis of favoritism, sometimes in complete disregard of price factors.

Ironically, some of the minority-purchase activity is being generated by corporations which themselves are considered candidates for being taken over by more aggressive enterprises. Goaded by this threat, they seek to diversify.

Although the reasons for the surge are not completely known, Fillion postulates one likely set of circumstances:

An old established company with a mature product line, markets and executives—and lots of cash in the bank—realizes that it is not making the advances it would like and that its image could suffer.

To Your Good Health How To Cope With Bronchiectasis

By G. C. THOSTESON, M.D.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Please discuss bronchiectasis, symptoms and treatment. Chest X-rays reveal some slight bronchial disorder, but my doctor does not seem concerned. I cough up phlegm several times a day and often when lying down at night. — Mrs. H. D.

Dear Doctor: You wrote of the offensive breath that goes with bronchiectasis. Have you any remedy or even a small help? — M. C.

Bronchiectasis is a widening of the bronchial passages in various areas — perhaps a few, perhaps many. These areas permit phlegm to form in puddles. If this material becomes infected, it can produce a foul odor, but that does not mean that all cases of bronchiectasis will cause such smell. Many don't.

Chief symptom is cough, and usually copious sputum (phlegm). The sputum often is blood streaked. Bronchiectasis, indeed, is the commonest cause of bleeding in the lungs.

Other symptoms may include fever, weakness, chest pain. Or none of these may be present, but the cough and sputum will be.

Keep in mind that there are varying degrees of bronchiectasis from very mild to dangerously severe, and if Mrs. H. D.'s physician "doesn't seem concerned," then I assume that he feels that it can be brought under adequate control without too much difficulty — although it usually takes some time.

In milder cases, principal treatment is to use antibiotics to control any infection, and postural drainage to help get rid of sputum — which is a way of saying that if, from time to time, you lie with head and chest lower than the rest of the body, it helps get rid of the accumulated sputum.

Cases can range in severity from up to extensive or very persistent ones in which removal of a segment of the lung offers a cure — getting rid of the overexpanded bronchial passages.

As to ordinary X-ray, it may or may not disclose bronchiectasis. Sometimes a fuzzy pattern appears in the lower lung fields. Accurate diagnosis is by lung-mapping, a special form of X-ray, with a special opaque material introduced into the lungs to give a clear, sharp image of the puddled areas.

Bronchiectasis is not to be ignored, but in many cases conservative treatment succeeds in keeping the bronchial passages adequately clear and the patient comfortable.

Arthritis sufferers can be helped. Dr. Thosteson's booklet discusses many types of arthritis and related joint diseases as well as outlining effective treatments and medications. Burleson Reports Solutions Will Not Wait

REP. OMAR BURLESON, M.C. WASHINGTON, D. C. — A surprising response has been received from the article of two weeks ago on the passing era of the passenger train.

SOME HAVE written because it stirred within them a nostalgia; some who have recently experienced difficulty with public transportation, or the lack of it. One reader complained that the idea and some passages had been lifted from something he had read elsewhere. It is entirely possible he is right since a great deal of interest has been raised on this question in the last few months. Two Committees of the Congress have delved into the numerous aspects of the problem.

The president has just sent a message to the Congress on the subject. He recommends action to meet this challenge.

THE PRESIDENT'S communication begins with a description of the heart of the issue. "Public transportation has suffered from years of neglect in America. In the last 30 years urban transportation systems have experienced a cycle of increasing costs, decreasing funds for improvements, cutbacks in service and decrease in passengers."

Statistics show that fares on transit systems have about tripled since 1945 and the number of passengers decreased to one-third the level of that year. In the same period industry profits before taxes have declined from $13 billion to $25 million. During this time, 235 bus and subway companies have gone out of business. The remainder have progressively deteriorated. Today, where there is any service at all, there are fewer runs, older cars and poorer accommodations.

The president points out that this is not a problem of our larger cities alone. Every small and medium-sized town and city has seen a decline in service or a complete close-down.

WHEN OUR NATION realized the importance and necessity for improved highways in the last decade, the Congress responded with the Highway Act of 1956. The fact remains that highways are only one element in national transportation need. It is estimated that a quarter of our population lacks access to an automobile. For these people, especially those who are most dependent on public conveyance — the aged, the very young and the handicapped — decent public transportation is the only answer.

Moreover, until we make public transportation an attractive alternative to private car use, we will never be able to build highways fast enough to avoid congestion. Detroit can simply build automobiles faster than roads can be built. We can imagine what the plight will be when our population increases another 100 million by the year 2000.

The president proposes a $10 billion program over a 12-year period to help develop and improve transportation in local communities. He requests contract authorization totaling a little over $3 billion for the first five years to get development underway. The proposal would authorize assistance to private, as well as public transit systems, so that private enterprise can continue to provide public service.

WHATEVER SYSTEM is eventually developed, it must be of such a nature as to provide a choice for people who use them rather than simply for those who must use them. This is recognized in the President's proposal when he says that there must be research and technology involved to find new ways of making public transit an attractive choice for owners of private cars. Towards this goal: Advanced bus and train design to permit easier boarding and dismounting; improved interior for increased convenience and security for riders; new traffic control systems to expedite the flow of traffic; tracked air cushioned vehicles; better services and schedules; new propulsion systems to reduce noise, air pollution and costs.

Those who must use public transportation would be able to get to work; to reach new job opportunities and better trading advantages in downtown areas; and relieve pressure on highways.

THESE IMPROVEMENTS will be costly but, we are a mobile people. Solutions will not wait forever.

Holmes Alexander The President Rides At Anchor

WASHINGTON — Here, at summer's end, we find the President taking his ease in his California mansion. Somehow, the almost Gaullian self-assurance presents a truer picture than we got in such arbitrary time-frames as his first Hundred Days or his first six months or his first or second trips overseas. Mr. Nixon enjoys being President. It is no splendid misery to him. It is no prison. It is no headache. Past Presidents have used these job-descriptions, but for Mr. Nixon the presidency is the enjoyable outlet of what he trained himself to do and to be.

IT IS A GOOD time to catch him, while he's there in relative repose, for an appraisal. His increasing resources in foreign, domestic and political bank accounts may be examined while the presidential career rides briefly at anchor.

There is no doubt any longer that his earth-circling search for a world constituency has been a surprise success. We have only to turn the tables imaginatively and ask how it would have been for us if Premier Kosygin had been the star of that tour. Suppose Kosygin had greeted Moon-walking Russian cosmonauts on the deck of a Soviet flagship, and then had gone into contested territory, like Latin America, calling on the natives to unite against the Free World, and finally had received a hero's welcome in some semi-dependency like Puerto Rico.

THE PRESIDENT, to be sure, is not the architect of the American Space Age, but he was there for the celebration of it with a marvelous stage-presence that will serve him and us for years to come. He did not enunciate any immutable Nixon Doctrine for Asia and East Europe, which is probably just as well. But he personalized the American presence in foreign parts as nobody has done since the strong alliances that won World War II.

CRITICS WHO carped at Mr. Nixon for being the most insouciant fiddler since Nero will have to play another tune since the unveiling of the President's social welfare plan. At last we have a President's word for it that the leisure class of welfare-eaters will have to go to earn their keep if they expect aid from the rest of the population.

It may seem a come-down after these foreign-domestic feasts to consider Mr. Nixon's party-building. But his regime needs a life-expectancy if the President's recent investments in leadership are to mature. A quick look shows that the administration is rich in political futures.

TRANSPORTATION Secretary Volpe could conceivably take the once-impregnable Senate seat of Ted Kennedy in Massachusetts. Postmaster Winton Bunt, a pre-Goldwater Republican of Alabama, shapes up as the answer to George Wallace who nearly cost Mr. Nixon the last election. HEW Secretary Finch, HUD Secretary George Romney, and National Committeeman Rogers Morton are good choices to win any crucial contest in California, Michigan and Maryland.

QUICK ON HIS FEET — Dallas Cowboy quarterback Roger Staubach lost little time making tracks as the 49ers' Bill Belk (on ground) and Charlie Krueger (70) gave him the big rush in second quarter of game at Kezar Stadium Sunday. Staubach followed Craig Morton in the quarterback slot. The Cowboys won the game, 20-17.

Cowan Blows Signal But All Is Okeh

By The Associated Press

Somewhere in the mumble, jumble of coach's hand signals, the word had gone out. Billy Cowan was supposed to punt.

Jay Johnstone, leading off third base, knew it. Manager Lefty Phillips, in the dugout, knew it. Coach Mike Roarke, who flashed the signal from third, knew it.

Just about everybody who had to know about it, knew about it. Everybody that is, except Billy Cowan.

California was trailing Cleveland 6-5 in the eighth inning with runners on first and third and Cowan was pinch hitting for Bill Voss. A good spot for the squeeze, decided Manager Phillips.

Johnstone broke from third on Juan Pizarro's pitch and Cowan, realizing too late that the squeeze was on, missed his hurried swing and Johnstone was an easy out.

TWO-RUN SHOT
Cowan then smacked Pizarro's next pitch for the two-run homer that won the ball game for the Angels, 7-6.

In other American League games Sunday, Detroit battered Oakland 9-4. Baltimore tripped Seattle 4-1. Boston shut out Kansas City 1-0. New York dropped Chicago 5-2 and Minnesota edged Washington 4-3 in 13 innings.

The homer was Cowan's second of the season and the fifth of the game, tying a club record for the Angels.

Rick Reichardt had opened the eighth with his second homer of the game, narrowing Cleveland's lead to one run. Bubba Morton and Jim Spencer also connected for the Angels.

Ken Harrelson had a two-run shot for the Indians.

Denny McLain rode a six-homer Detroit attack to his 19th victory of the season, becoming the first major league pitcher to reach that total.

IN CITY MEET Barron, Waters Win 2 Matches

A new champion is assured in the City Golf tournament, which is scheduled to end next Sunday at the Munny course.

Phil Howe, the defending titlist, was knocked out in the first round of competition over the weekend by C. D. Ewell 1 up.

In other first round matches, Jerry Barron turned back Don Lovelady, 2-3; Marvin Williams measured Bob Smith, 2-1; Charles Bailey trounced Ted Griffin, 2-1; Ted Gross nudged Ronnie Broadrick, 2-1; Bob Waters lashed Jimmy Newsum, 3-2; Jimmy Welch manhandled Jackie Thomas, 1 up 19 holes; and Bernard Rains decisioned Buck Drake, 2-1.

Barron then hurdled Williams 2-1; and Waters upset Gross 1 up, in second round play.

Carol Mann Wins Southgate Open

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Carol Mann has an obsession: Until she catches Nathy Whitworth on the women's golf tour, nothing else matters.

"I've just been aiming for Kathy Whitworth," Miss Mann conceded Sunday as she posted a one-stroke victory for the $3,000 top prize in the Southgate Open Women's Golf tournament on the suburban Leawood South Country Club course.

The victory, Miss Mann's fourth on the women's tour this year, gave her $32,547 in 1969 winnings. Miss Whitworth, winner of five tournaments this year and $32,704 to tie the girls tour, finished in a tie for eighth, taking home only $712.50.

Met's Win Two

Elsewhere, the Mets swept San Diego by identical 3-2 scores. St. Louis trimmed Atlanta 5-3. Pittsburgh topped Cincinnati 8-5. Los Angeles trounced Montreal 9-3 and Houston edged Philadelphia 3-2.

That left the NL West in its daily state of confusion, with the Reds one game in front of the Dodgers and 2½ ahead of the Astros, Giants and Braves.

The Cubs-Giants ope was a cut-and-dried affair. Jim Hickman's 11th homer gave Chicago a 1-0 lead, Mays' 11th homer

HOUSTON DEFEATS PHILLIES

Cubs Salvage Split

By The Associated Press

When Leo Durocher had his famous bellyache several weeks ago he turned to a boys camp in Wisconsin. When he has a headache he turns to his bullpen.

The manager of the Chicago Cubs wig-wagged for relief twice Sunday and, quicker than you could say "the other pain-reliever," first Rich Nye and then Phil Regan came on to cure what ailed Durocher.

The outcome was a 3-1 victory over San Francisco in the nightcap of a doubleheader after the Giants took the opener 5-3 on Bobby Bonds' tie-breaking two-run single in the seventh inning. Still, the Cubs saw a full game sliced from their lead in the National League East. They lead the New York Mets by 7½ games and St. Louis by eight.

METS WIN TWO
Elsewhere, the Mets swept San Diego by identical 3-2 scores. St. Louis trimmed Atlanta 5-3. Pittsburgh topped Cincinnati 8-5. Los Angeles trounced Montreal 9-3 and Houston edged Philadelphia 3-2.

Omaha Slams Rufnek 11

MIDLAND — Omaha's Mustangs gave the West Texas Rufneks a good going-over in a charity football game played before 5,000 spectators here Saturday night, winning by a score of 31-0.

The Rufneks played creditable defense but couldn't mount a scoring drive. They made only 49 yards on the group and picked up another 93 in the air on eight completions.

Levelland Game Won By East

LEVELLAND — The East All-Stars defeated the West, 24-14, in the annual eight-man football game here Saturday night, a feature of the Texas 68 Man Coaches Association school.

Guy Zant of Gail scored one of the West's touchdowns on a 41-yard run.

Local Horse Is First At Raton

RATON, N.M. — Ybooy, a three-year-old owned by J. O. McCrary of Big Spring, won the six-furlong 11th race at La Mesa Park here last Friday.

Ybooy returned $11.40, $5.60 and $3.80 to his bettors and negotiated the distance in 1:13.4. Second was Tarcolli and third Pretty Classic. The latter is owned by E. M. Hafer of Perryton, Texas.

McCrary's share of the purse amounted to $425.52.

Austin Is Named Outstanding Back

CHILDRESS — The East defeated the West, 20-7, in the annual Greenbelt Bowl football game here Saturday night.

The West led early in the game and the East actually didn't take charge until late in the contest.

Jerry Austin of Lubbock Austin was named the game's Outstanding Back while Kevin McClellan of Phillips was chosen the top lineman.

Ray Floyd Hangs On To Win PGA Crown

DAYTON, Ohio (AP) — Ray Floyd, one of the young rising stars on the professional tour, says he learned a lesson from his one-stroke victory in the 51st PGA Championship.

"After today, I know I'll never play safe again. It's not my game," he said after edging slick Gary Player for the coveted title.

The 26-year-old native of North Carolina skidded to a 74 Sunday for a 72-hole score of 276 en route to his third tour victory and his first major triumph in an eight-year career. He was eight-under par for the distance.

WASN'T PLEASED
"I feel lucky," said the handsome, curly-haired pro. "It's a good thing none of the others had a hot round. I can only remember five or six shots I was pleased with."

Player, the diminutive South African bidding for his second PGA conquest, finished with a 70 for 277. He started the day five strokes back, rallied to within one shot going to the 16th hole but missed a six-foot putt for a crushing bogey while Floyd was rolling in a 35-footer for a birdie.

Young Bert Greene closed with a 71 for 278, two back of Floyd, while Jimmy Wright finished fourth at 279 after posting a 71. Larry Ziegler, 70, and veteran Miller Barber, 68, tied at 280.

Deadlocked at 281 were Charles Coody, U.S. Open champ Orville Moody and Terry Wilcox.

Player, apparent target of civil rights demonstrators Saturday, finished second for the fifth time this year.

Threats of further disturbances aimed at disrupting the tournament failed to materialize. Not one single incident occurred on the rugged par 71, 6,915-yard NCR course, which at times resembled an armed camp with about 125 special security officers bolstered by some 90 uniformed policemen from Dayton and other cities.

Floyd and Player, paired in the last playosome, were accompanied by a cordon of eight uniformed police officers.

DYNASTY CRUMBLES

Namath For Real, Giants Discover

By The Associated Press

The saddest faces in pro football today belong to the New York Giants.

The reddest faces belong to that army of National Football League die-hards, who argued in January after Joe Namath pitched the American League victory over the NFL kingpin Baltimore Colts that Namath wasn't really for real and that the Jets played far over their heads.

The Giants, who occupied the New York football throne for nearly 4½ decades and saw it crumble beneath them in less than three hours Sunday, will vouch for the fact that Namath is very much for real and that the Jets deserve their status as pro football's world champions.

Some 70,874 spectators jammed Yale Bowl in New Haven, Conn., and watched the Jets clobber the proud Giants 16-7.

Namath insulted the Giants pass defense by completing 14 of 16 tosses for 188 yards and three touchdowns.

So, once again, the cocky and controversial Namath, as he did in the Super Bowl, made good his pre-game boast:

"I don't think too many people are going to take the Giants seriously any more."

In Sunday's other exhibition games, the Atlanta Falcons bombed the Boston Patriots 34-16 and the Dallas Cowboys nipped the San Francisco 49ers 20-17.

Seven games were played Saturday night. The Cleveland Browns downed the Los Angeles Rams 10-3, the San Diego Chargers edged the Oakland Raiders 10-7, the Chicago Bears routed the Green Bay Packers 19-9, the Kansas City Chiefs tripped the Cincinnati Bengals 23-7, the St. Louis Cardinals tripped the Pittsburgh Steelers 27-13 and the Philadelphia Eagles defeated the Miami Dolphins 14-10.

Friday night's only action saw the Baltimore Colts squeeze by the Houston Oilers 33-29 and the Detroit Lions beat the Buffalo Bills 24-12.

Namath and the Jets wasted no time taking charge against the Giants. They zoomed to a 24-0 lead almost before the Kansas City's victory over Cincinnati was highlighted by Emmitt Thomas' 51-yard interception return for a touchdown and Jan Stenerud's three field goals.

Hulme, Unser, Pearson Post Racing Victories

By The Associated Press

Denis Hulme, Al Unser and David Pearson added their already healthy bankrolls in auto racing during the weekend, while old pro Ernie Derr purred merrily along toward his 10th short track driving title.

Hulme, former world Grand Prix champion, sped to his third victory in the $1 million Canadian - American Challenge Cup series for sports-racing cars at Mansfield, Ohio, and picked up a check for $12,700.

Unser, hard-luck guy of this year's Indianapolis 500, won the 200-mile Tony Bettenhausen Memorial race for USAC championship cars at Milwaukee and was paid $15,543.

Pearson, aiming for a third NASCAR Grand National title, won the rain-shortened Yankee 600 for stock cars at Cambridge Junction, Mich. His $21,950 check boosted his purse money for the season to $135,095.

Derr, showing no signs of faltering at 47 years of age, won two 100-mile short track events in the Midwest. He was paid $1,850 for both victories, but more importantly padded his lead in the International Motor Contest Association championship point battle. He has won nine IMCA titles in a career that started shortly after World War II.

GI Protest Group Meets At El Paso

EL PASO, Tex. (AP)—Student body president Russell Bass of San Francisco State College, disrupted by demonstrations this year, says "the only tool that student government has after futile talks with the administration is physical confrontation."

He addressed student leaders Sunday night who are in El Paso for the 22nd Congress of the National Student Association, which opens Tuesday.

"Confrontation" is one of the most often heard expressions at the pre-Congress sessions but it is not always associated with the hint of violence. West Chester, Pa. State College student president Sol Fleider told of the success students at this school had when they disapproved of a man who was expected to be appointed president of the school.

"Instead of a physical confrontation, a group of students got haircuts, put on nice clothes and approached the regents," Fleider said. "The regents listened to us and they decided to appoint another man as president."

A few of the students took time out Sunday afternoon to attend an anti-war rally in a mountain canyon park northeast of El Paso sponsored by a group of 10 soldiers at nearby Ft. Bliss. About 250 persons attended the rally.

The GI protest group was led by Army Spec. 4 Paul Nevins who was a graduate student at New York University when he entered the Army. Nevins' "GI's For Peace" group received official support from the NSA national supervisory board.

Says Elite Enemy Troops Committed To Campaign

SAIGON (AP) — A top-ranking American commander said today that more enemy regiments are in position between Saigon and the Cambodian border to the north than at any time since May 1968.

Lt. Gen. Julian J. Ewell, commander of the U.S. 2nd Field Force, added that many of the units are "first-line regiments traditionally kept up to strength" but are now operating under strength.

"I can't figure out the meaning," Ewell said in an interview. "It's the first sign we've seen of elite troops being put into battle in less than a real good solid strength figure."

The general, whose command stretches from Saigon to the Cambodian border, said parts of at least five enemy regiments have been committed north of Saigon, and at least seven fresh regiments are hidden in the jungles and available for future attacks. Total enemy strength in the 11 provinces around Saigon where the 2nd Field Force operates is estimated at 65,000 troops.

Asked if the large number of under strength units had some political significance, Ewell said: "I think you could read into it whatever you wanted. From my point of view, it's quite clear that they're making a major effort to achieve military success. That's what they say they're trying to do."

gunships and river patrol boats killed 35 enemy troops in two clashes 18 miles northwest of Saigon during the night.

Armed reconnaissance helicopters with special night-sighting devices detected one group of enemy soldiers on the move and illuminated the area with searchlights. U.S. headquarters said gunship helicopters attacked about 50 to 70 enemy soldiers with machine guns and rockets, and 27 were reported killed.

Navy patrol boats engaged an estimated 50 to 60 enemy soldiers near the Saigon River in the same area, killing at least eight.

There were no U.S. casualties in either engagement, spokesmen said.

The enemy troops apparently were trying to get into position for a new round of attacks on allied forces when their formation was broken up, the spokesmen said.

The U.S. Command reported 24 enemy rocket and mortar attacks on allied bases and towns from 8 a.m. Sunday to 8 a.m. Monday. Five of the attacks caused casualties or damage, including three Americans killed and six wounded, headquarters said.

U.S. headquarters also announced the loss of three more small American observation helicopters to enemy ground fire, with two crewmen killed and three wounded. The crashes raised to 2,919 the total of American helicopters reported lost in the war.

The U.S. Command announced the end of operation Montgomery Rendezvous, a sweep begun June 8 in and around the A Shau Valley to cut North Vietnamese supply lines from Laos.

The command said paratroopers from the 101st Airborne Division killed 393 North Vietnamese and seized 221 weapons. U.S. losses were put at 87 killed and 408 wounded.

Quang Ngai City, the provincial capital in the coastal lowlands 80 miles south of Da Nang, was reported under round-the-clock curfew after enemy troops infiltrated the city Saturday night and attacked several government installations. Scattered fighting has been reported around the city for the past two days.

Four units from the 9th Infantry Division totaling 476 men left Vietnam for Hawaii, and Ft. Lewis, Wash., where the men will be reassigned or discharged.

The U.S. Command also announced that the 480-man 9th Signal Battalion of the 9th Infantry Division will leave Vietnam Tuesday. This will mean about 19,500 troops withdrawn of the 25,000 that President Richard Nixon has ordered out by the end of this month.

Celebrated Communion On Moon

NEW YORK (AP) — Astronaut Edwin E. Aldrin Jr. has revealed that he celebrated communion in the Apollo 11 lunar module before stepping out onto the surface of the moon.

In a Life magazine article, Aldrin wrote, "When we knew we were going to be on the moon for a while, I unstowed these (communion) elements and put them on a little table I had in front of the abort guidance-system computer."

He said he requested air-to-ground radio silence and "read some passages from the Bible and celebrated communion."

Aldrin used a chalice given him by his pastor, the Rev. Dean Woodruff of Webster Presbyterian Church in Houston, after a special communion two weeks before the flight.

He said he stowed the chalice in the lunar module with a small amount of bread and wine to prepare for the lunar communion.

Search For Killer Centers In Canada

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The search for a solution to the bizarre killings of actress Sharon Tate and four other persons centered today in Canada.

Police in Vancouver said they had been asked to watch for four young persons wanted by Los Angeles police for questioning. They said the Royal Canadian Mounted Police reported the men might be headed toward Edmonton, Alta.

Los Angeles police would not comment on the report and Canadian authorities did not elaborate on it.
