Plan In Mothballs

VIENNA, Austria (AP)-President Anwar Sadat reportedly says he will mothball his peace plan, rejected by Israel, if the Israelis will discuss principles rather than details when the foreign ministers of the two countries meet in London next week.

Sadat met here Sunday with Shimon Peres, leader of Israel's opposition Labor Party. Afterward, Peres' spokesman reported Sadat said he would be willing to "put the plan aside if the discussions move toward declaration of principles and not detailed plans."

In Jerusalem, Prime Minister Menachem Begin's cabinet rejected the Egyptian proposal, disclosed last Wednesday, as "completely unacceptable." But the cabinet agreed to send Foreign Minister Moshe Dayan to meet July 18-19 in London with Egyptian Foreign Minister Mohammed Ibrahim Kamel and Secretary of State Cyrus Vance.

Feds Enter Talks

WASHINGTON (AP)-Federal mediators stepped into the stalled negotiations today between the Postal Service and unions representing more than 500,000 employees.

The Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service entered the talks as 10 days remained in a three-year contract. There has been no agreement on any major point in the nearly three-month-long talks.

Postal labor leaders, who have expressed resentment at White House "jawboning" in an effort to hold down inflationary effects of the postal contract, welcomed the entry by chief mediator Wayne L. Horvitz.

ERAers Lobbying

WASHINGTON (AP)-Backers of the Equal Rights Amendment, who marched by the tens of thousands Sunday in support of the proposal, were lobbying members of Congress today to extend the March deadline for ratifying the measure.

The National Organization for Women and more than 300 other groups staged the march and a rally on the steps of the Capitol to dramatize their stand that, even if the proposal dies next spring, the issue will not fade away.

Bella Abzug, co-chairwoman of the National Advisory Committee on Women, told the marchers to "lobby members of Congress and make as a condition of support of their re-election a vote for the ERA extension."

Congress Returns

WASHINGTON (AP)-A shopping list of $36 billion worth of weapons and research programs for the Pentagon is awaiting Senate action as Congress returns today from a 10-day holiday.

The Senate's agenda calls for action this week on the weapons authorization bill, a $4 billion military construction measure and a proposal to extend a law protecting endangered species of animals and plants.

The House on Tuesday takes up legislation authorizing $10.3 billion for educational programs, primarily those for disadvantaged children. Then it begins debate on a bill authorizing some $13 billion in energy programs, including the Clinch River, Tenn., breeder reactor program. President Carter wants the project killed, but Congress is trying to keep it alive.

Coup In Mauritania

PARIS (AP)-The military has seized power in the West African nation of Mauritania, deposing its longtime leader, President Moktar Ould Daddah, the French news agency Agence France Presse reported today.

An AFP dispatch from the Mauritanian capital, Nouakchott, reported the "Military Committee of National Redress" announced in a communique it suspended the constitution and "dissolved the government, the parliament, the People's Party of Mauritania and all its branches."

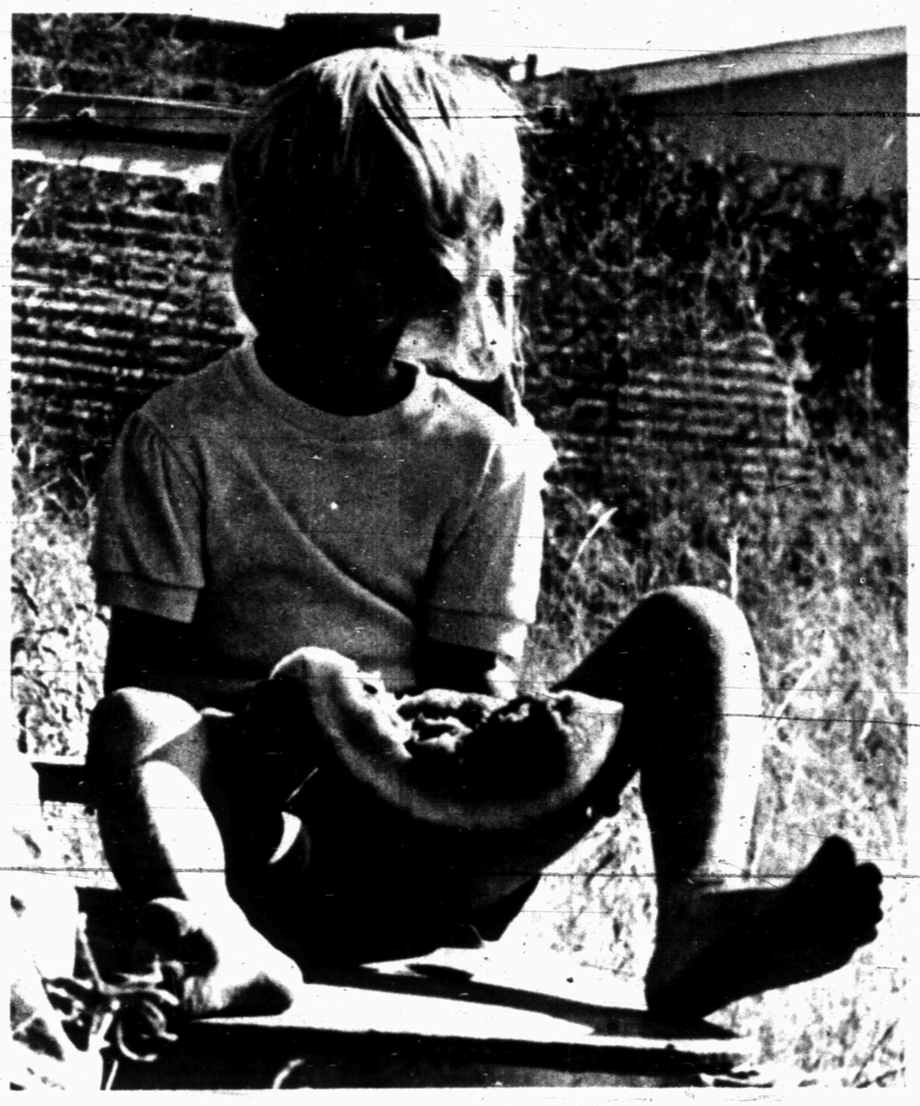

"The committee assumes all powers until democratic institutions are put into place," the communique said.

Blast Injures One

CLEBURNE (AP)-The second explosion at a munitions plant here in less than three months has seriously injured one employee.

Gerald Durgeon of Cleburne was rushed to a Fort Worth hospital early Sunday where doctors tried unsuccessfully to save his left hand. Plant officials said no one else was injured in the accident.

David Levey, president of the Goex munitions firm, said Durgeon was injured in a different part of the plant from where four workers were killed April 20.

Briscoe: Tax Relief History In Making

AUSTIN, Texas (AP)—Gov. Dolph Briscoe told Texas legislators meeting in special session today they would be writing tax-relief history in the state.

"You have been called to participate in one of the most important special sessions in our history," Briscoe said in a speech for a joint session shortly after the noon session opening.

"While reduction of various kinds have occurred in the past, never before has a legislature been asked to accomplish a tax relief program of the magnitude to be placed before you."

Briscoe said that the fact that the state may have a tax revenue surplus of about $3 billion for the next three years shows that it is "money taken from the people in excess of the needs of the state. The people are demanding that a significant portion of that money be returned to them. This is a legitimate demand, I know that you and I will respond."

Briscoe detailed his program, as he had done earlier in calling the session, and said "it is now for you to act upon this agenda. In my opinion the taxpayers of this state will not be satisfied with half measures or tokenism from elected officials. They want and deserve a substantial legislative product."

To hear Speaker Bill Clayton tell it, Briscoe was riding by himself on his vast South Texas ranch when he began to get serious about tax relief.

Texas, however, already ranks near the bottom in taxes as a percentage of personal income.

Briscoe has recommended $1.6 billion in tax cuts over the next three years.

Clayton says if the governor does not get a substantial part of his proposals approved, he "wouldn't be surprised" to see the governor hold lawmakers in session through August.

Briscoe first mentioned a special session after Californians approved the tax-limitation proposal known as Proposition 13, Clayton said.

Briscoe tried out the idea on a few reporters, Clayton said, and "a crescendo ion" triggered a surge of mail that made Briscoe sense the importance of a session.

Briscoe waited until Saturday afternoon-- 44 hours before the session-- to release the agenda for the special session:

--A constitutional amendment requiring a two-thirds vote of the House and Senate to raise taxes or enact a new tax.

--A constitutional amendment allowing Texans to order the reduction or increase of taxes.

-Repeal of the 4 percent sales tax on residential utility bills, with a provision that cities can also abolish the one-cent city sales tax on utilities by a majority vote.

--A constitutional amendment establilshing limits on taxing and spending by local governments.

--Increasing the state inheritance tax exemption of each estate from $25,000 to $200,000.

--A constitutional amendment requiring the Legislature to provide for taxing agricultural and timber lands on the basis of productivity, rather than market value, with the state to replace the loss in revenue to school districts.

--A constitutional amendment increasing the residential homestead exemption to $10,000 or $20,000 for those 65 and older, for school tax purposes, with the state making up losses to the districts.

Despite US Protests...

Soviet Trials Begin Today

MOSCOW (AP)-The Soviet Union put two of its most prominent dissidents on trial today despite vigorous protests from the United States. Both pleaded innocent to the charges against them.

Anatoly Shcharansky, 30, a key member of the Jewish emigration movement here, denied allegations that he had spied for the CIA, systematically feeding "state secrets" to known intelligence agents, a representative of the Soviet Supreme Court reported.

Shcharansky is charged with high treason. The maximum sentence is death, but he is expected to get a long term in a labor camp if convicted.

A court official said Shcharansky was accused of supplying agents with state secrets "including information about the locations of a number of defense enterprises which are secret."

Alexander Ginzburg, 41, an associate of exiled author Alexander Solzhenitsyn, went before a court in Kaluga, 100 miles south of Moscow, on the lesser charge of "anti-Soviet agitation and propaganda," and pleaded innocent at the opening of his trial.

Western reporters were barred from both courtrooms.

Ginzburg's wife, Irina, who saw her husband for the first time since his arrest 17 months ago, told Western reporters, "He refused to testify but made this refusal conditional on what witnesses said."

Officials of the three-judge court, in a pink and yellow former mansion, said Ginzburg told the court he might revise his plea if his guilt is proved.

Reshuffled Agency...

LEAA Plan Announced

By BROOKS JACKSON
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP)-President Carter today announced a reshuffling of the Law Enforcement Assistance Administration, which he said has suffered from a decade of "uncoordinated and ineffective" performance.

As a candidate for president, Carter had accused the LEAA of wasting millions of dollars "while making almost no contribution to reducing crime." But today he proposed to leave the agency's budget authorization intact, and he raised the possibility of an actual increase in spending.

Carter's proposal would, among other things, attempt to channel more money to crime-ridden areas, but without reducing the amount that any state could qualify for under present distribution formulas.

The increased money for high-crime areas would be available only if Congress increases the present $641-million LEAA appropriation, or if the agency is able to scrape up more money by making economies in such areas as administration.

White House domestic policy aide Stuart Eizenstat said the administration would not seek an increase in the authorized spending ceiling, which is now about $800 million. Actual appropriations could increase up to that amount without a boost in the authorization.

Carter also announced a reshuffling of more than $200 million in existing money to improve about 60 large public housing projects, which Eizenstat characterized as an "anti-crime" proposal.

It was not clear which federal programs would be cut to make the $200 million available. It would be spent for such things as improved locks, burglar alarms, lighting and better management of the projects.

One possible effect of the LEAA proposal could be to take the gathering of federal crime statitistics away from the FBI and give them to a proposed new Bureau of Justice Statistics. Benjamin Civiletti, head of the Justice Department's criminal division, told reporters that such a move would save money and "makes sense," but he indicated that it would not come for several years, if at all.

Carter's proposal would outlaw use of LEAA funds for police salary increases and most police hardware. Civiletti conceded, however, that the Justice Department had "cleaned up" the use of LEAA money for exotic police equipment years ago.

Baseball Field Sought At Ira

Scurry County Commissioners this morning took under advisement a request for assistance in providing facilities for kid baseball teams in the Ira Community.

Ron Plumlee, superintendent of Ira Schools, and Leon Huddleston told the commissioners court that the community has an active summer program for the youngsters interested in baseball, but they are limited on facilities. At present all such activities use the football field at the Ira Schools.

Ira has a program going for younger kids and also fields a team in a Pony League with teams from Hermleigh, Roscoe and Loraine.

They hope to provide a lighted field built especially for the young baseballers.

Commissioners told Plumlee and Huddleston that they would consider the proposal as they continue to work on the county budget for the coming year.

The commissioners were to confer this afternoon with Billy Gunter, district agent from Lubbock, on the county's agricultural extension service budget for the coming year.

Delay On Insurance Rate Urged

AUSTIN (AP)-State Insurance Board Chairman Hugh Yantis, still urging that no increase in homeowner's rates be approved this year, today suggested that the board wait a while before making its decision.

Yantis said at a hearing that the other two board members and himself should have time to consider what they had heard at their public hearings last week.

He stood fast by his own previous statements that homeowners rates were high enough now. He said companies were making money because insured values were higher without an accompanying rise in the risk of insuring homes.

Yantis also observed that 80 percent of the homeowner's business is written at rates of about 15 percent less than those set by the board.

Auto Accident Losses Are Heavy

NEW YORK (AP)-Economic losses resulting from auto accidents reached an all-time high of $47.7 billion in 1977, according to the Insurance Information Institute.

The institute said "a record number of traffic accidents together with continuing inflation in the costs of auto repairs, medical and health care contributed to the record loss figure."

It said the 1977 figure represented a 16.7 percent increase over the $40.9 billion in economic losses it had reported for 1976.

Sexual Abuse Cases Go To Grand Jury

Cases involving alleged sexual abuse, aggravated sexual abuse, and kidnapping were scheduled for presentation today before a grand jury.

The alleged aggravated sexual abuse case involves a black couple in their early 20s who are accused of forcing a 32-year-old Anglo woman to engage in various sex acts while photographs were taken. The incident is reported to have occurred June 17.

Raul Garcia, 19, is charged with two counts of sexual abuse of a child. He is alleged to have fondled two young girls outside a Southeast Snyder residence on June 30.

James May, 28, and his wife, Patsy, 24, are charged with kidnapping for allegedly abducting their own children outside the Safeway Supermarket on June 10.

The Mays, who reportedly lost legal custody of their three children last year, are alleged to have abducted the youngsters from Mary Clay, May's mother, who had been granted custody of the children.

Also scheduled for presentation to the grand jury was a burglary case involving Larry Castillo and Byron Keith Wortham.

The two allegedly broke into the Snyder Daily News and are accused of taking a money bag containing over $300.

Also scheduled for presentation to the grand jury were the driving while intoxicated case of Tony N. Tippitt, Paul Villanueva, Alfredo Chapoy, Carley D. Tidwell, and Allen Vansickle.

Hostages Held In NY Tower

NEW YORK (AP)--A man holding a package he claimed was a bomb was apparently holding four hostages in a room in the World Trade Center, a spokesman for the Port Authority said today.

"There are four people in the room with him apparently being held not of their own will," said Tom Young, a spokesman for the Port Authority of New York and New Jersey, which operates the twin towers of the skyscraper.

Young said the four reportedly were being held on the 36th floor of Tower Town, in a hearing room of the state Workmen's Compensation Board.

Police converged on the scene, but it was not immediately known if the report of a bomb was genuine. "All we know at this point is that he has a package," Young said.

average in minority

Short people may be getting the short end of it in popular music of late, but they have something going for them in another area—longevity.

We have this on the authority of a study, reported in Science Digest magazine, which took the measure of some 750 individuals who had made their marks in history—presidents, boxers, baseball players and successful businessmen.

In every category, the researchers found, the average lifespan of those notables measuring under 5 feet 8 inches exceeded those topping 6 feet. The shorties averaged 11 percent longer lives than the lanky types.

In short, to be short means being able to look forward to a longer life—at least if you happen to be a business success, boxer, ballplayer or president.

Being of average height, on the other hand, means being a minority.

According to Department of Health, Education and Welfare statisticians, the average for American men currently is 5 feet 9 inches. However, only 14.2 percent of the male population actually measures up—or down, depending upon the personal elevation from which you're viewing it. The largest single category of males is the 6-foot-and-over crowd—15 percent.

For women, it's just a bit less confusing. The average is 5 feet 3.6 inches and that takes in 15.2 percent of them, the largest grouping. But it still means the overwhelming majority, 84.8 percent, is shorter or taller.

In short, when it comes to height, it appears that being average is not the average situation, or being non-average is average, or...

Forget it.

narrowing the view

The National Education Association, formerly an organization of professionals which in recent years has appeared determined to shed the robes of professionalism as quickly as possible, has limited itself to a mere handful of potential sites for future conventions.

Concluding its session in Dallas, the NEA voted to eliminate states which do not permit collective bargaining for teachers from consideration as hosts for future national conventions of the organization. This followed earlier action which eliminated states which have not ratified the Equal Rights Amendment.

The action limits future convention sites to a few major cities, including Detroit and New York City, where, judging from reports emerging at the NEA session, teachers have not been faring well professionally or physically.

Thus, the organization is narrowing its views and expanding its role in politics.

(Author's Note: This is one of a series on How America Vacations and how shots can help. Today's column deals with Cruises.)

Cruises can best be summed up by a slide presentation of our trip to the Caribbean.

The first slide is of a marlin carved out of ice holding 175 pounds of shrimp. The next one is a picture of me stuffing pizza into every hole in my face. The third slide is of a buffet featuring 135 desserts. (This one gives you bad skin just by looking at it). All 96 slides have food as a focal point.

The truth is, most cruises are floating cookies. Like Pavlov's dog, you are conditioned to a series of chimes. Everytime the chimes ring, you loosen your belt, unzip your slacks if the zipper is concealed under an overblouse, and announce, "Let's go eat. They're playing our song."

An early-bird roll and coffee is followed by breakfast. This is followed by appetizers, which precedes lunch. Mid-afternoon snacks are followed by cocktails and hors d' oeuvres, which precedes dinner, which is followed by a midnight buffet and pre-dawn breakfast.

In addition to eating, there are all kinds of games to be played aboard ship. There's the deck chair shuffle. On your first day you are assigned your own personal deck chair. Most of the trip is spent making sure no one else sits on your personal deck chair.

There's the Beauty Shop Story Hour. This is a competition among all the women on the ship to see who can tell the saddest story of why her hair needs to be done before they reach port. (Whimpering and threats of reprisals are always effective.)

Watching one another grow. This is a favorite. Once I asked my husband why he was wearing a life preserver and he wasn't.

The "Irregularity Exchange Hour" in which passengers compare their degrees of nausea, queasiness, and frequency.

There are many pluses to a cruise. Clothes are hung up on hangers and stay there for the entire trip. The passengers are pampered and entertained and if they don't relax, it's their own fault.

But a word of caution: Take maternity underwear.

letter to editor

Hi Snyder!

I'm coming back for that big 20 year reunion! Twenty years later I am gladly and gratefully the wife of one man, Chester D.Christy, Dallas orthodonist, and the mother of two girls and one boy. I am a registered nurse, but currently work at homeology!

It seems somehow sacreligious that television and teen parties would find our 50's era a subject for jest. Imagine! Mocking our super styles: bobbie sox and multi-petticoats. It's amazing to me that anyone should make fun of our fantastic fashion and our forms of fun!

It's been some years since I've lived in Snyder, and I'm pleased to "remember when"..Snyder was a good supportive town for my youthful growing. I am grateful for the safety and security I had being reared in the 50's there. I was safe as I wandered barefooted in the area that became the Highland Park residential area. I was secure as I later sold Girl Scout Cookies up and down those streets (except for that skunk that once crossed 37th Street in front of me).

"Doc (Leighton) and Wanda Griffin, Gene and Maggie Best, Rex and Babe Miller--these were some of the warm friends of my family. They laughed with us and cried with us. I am glad to have known many such kind, good West Texans. These and others loved and encouraged us. Thanks to all of you, Dear Ones, who contributed to my life in the 50's!! People everywhere really do need people, don't they?--to love and encourage each other. As the caring is expressed, then a town has a glow of real beauty about it even in the red haze of a West Texas sand storm!!

Repeatedly we are called to adjust to change. It's funny how, after moving, I am almost sad at the changes. My old round red brick Methodist sanctuary is replaced by an attractive tan worship place. Our old courthouse is not at all recognizable with its new exterior. And dear, kind Rex is not in Everybody's anymore. Of course, he's just like that church and courthouse, he has something far better now than he ever knew in sweet Snyder.

Now most of my family is moving away from Snyder and I won't have much of an excuse for coming back here on a regular basis, but I'll alway have a smile in my heart when I remember...

The family times, the school days, you were wonderful Snyder. May you still be wonderful, may you be growing in richness, rich in real values, rich in people who care, rich in an awareness of God's goodness in times of hurt and pleasure.

So, thank you to those in Snyder who supported my days of youth. Farewell and thanks from one who cares—

Jo Ann Hamblen Christy

(Editor's note: Mrs. Christy's letter did not arrive for publication prior to the reunion, but we are publishing it anyway since it appears to reflect a typical reaction of many Snyder High grads who return for such occasions).

WASHINGTON (NEA)-When you've invented and perfected the atomic bomb, what do you do for an encore?

After a search that has consumed a quarter-century and more than $3 billion in public funds, there is still no answer to that question.

Developing the world's first nuclear weapon is, as they say in show business, a hard act to follow for the network of eight federal funded research facilities known as multi-program national laboratories.

The best known are the two key units of the "Manhattan Project," the World War II program that produced the atomic bomb - the Oak Ridge National Laboratory in Oak Ridge, Tenn. and the Los Alamos Scientific Laboratory in Los Alamos, N.M.

Although the basic research for the first nuclear weapons was conducted at Oak Ridge, that work now is performed at two other facilities, Los Alamos and Lawrence Livermore Laboratory in Livermore, Calif.

Engineering and production of the initial bombs was done at Los Alamos, but it has been moved to Sandia Laboratories in Albuquerque, N.M.

To the extent that national security continues to depend upon maintaining an arsenal of sophisticated nuclear weapons, the military work done at Los Alamos, Lawrence Livermore and Sandia is seldom questioned or challenged.

One measure of the importance of those three "weapons laboratories:" They received more than 60 percent of the $1.46 billion allocated to the eight labs in last year's federal budget.

But the remaining five facilities are facing increasing scrutiny - and criticism - from government officials who fear the labs may have become self-perpetuating bureaucracies lacking any legitimate mission to perform in the future.

In that category are Oak Ridge; Argonne National Laboratory in Darion, Ill.; Brookhaven National Laboratory in Upton, N.Y.; Lawrence Berkeley Laboratory in Berkeley, Calif.; and Pacific Northwest Laboratory in Richland and Hanford, Wash.

For several decades, those laboratories concentrated on perfecting nonmilitary applications for nuclear technology, with emphasis on nuclear reactors as source of commercially generated electric power.

But that era produced little more than a series of expensive failures. For instance, a major Oak Ridge program, the aqueous homogeneous reactor, was shut in 1961 because of insurmountable technical complications.

That project was succeeded by another flop, the molten salt reactor. Argonne's Fast Reactor Test Facility was abandoned in 1965, and Pacific Northwest's Fast Flux Test Facility produced massive cost overruns but few practical applications.

In more recent years, the national laboratories have sought to justify their continued existence by exploring non-nuclear energy alternatives. But at one point, White House officials discovered that Los Alamos, Lawrence Berkeley and Lawrence Livermore were unnecessarily duplicating research into geothermal energy.

The General Accounting Office has just issued a report criticizing the Department of Energy for its failure to provide centralized direction for the laboratories.

Other federal officials say they appreciate the need for high-risk "pure research" at the laboratories, but complain that the facilities have become high-priced "hobby shops" engaged in "a disturbing amount of wheel-spinning."

Says one high-ranking government policy-maker directly involved in monitoring the laboratories' performance:

"Overall, the quality of their work has been pretty damned good. But there's too much demand for 'sandbox money' to play around with interesting concepts at a time when the nation can no longer afford delay in developing new energy technologies."

inflation unity

NEW YORK (AP)-There is unity in inflation, or so it is said.

To many Americans this might not seem so, because with inflation comes conflict between buyer and seller, fear of the future, and tax and other dodges that enable people to keep more of their cheaper dollars.

But students of the political-economic scene note also that distress over inflation is bringing people together in opposition to federal deficits, wasteful government spending at all levels, and "handouts."

School and other bond issues have been rejected, rebellions against real estate taxes have occurred and politicians up for re-election are assuring voters they are in the forefront of the movement.

It goes further. After patiently and generously, almost religiously, supporting increased Social Security benefits for years, the public finally expressed its fear and anger over the resulting higher taxes.

And another big spender, President Carter, has been forced to trim his budget deficit, and even to trim his tax cut to lower deficits, and to call as well for a lid on Federal pay increases.

Analyzing these and similar events, Michael Levy, director of economic policy research at the Conference Board, observes that a common distaste for inflation and its consequences is uniting people.

"Inflation is the common cause that has brought together the business community, the Federal Reserve and the majority of working consumers in an unorthodox alliance favoring a new fiscal conservatism," he states.

Whereas the consumer movement tended to pit consumers and producers in opposition to each other, the new movement against rising prices and taxes, says Levy, is merging their mutual concerns.

While this new unity has expressed itself at the polls in California and in some other states, its real national strength, or lack of it, might be better observed in more general elections this fall.

Some economists now feel that, like Uncle Sam, the consumer has reached his debt limit and soon will be forced into a more conservative mode in which bills will be paid and purchases delayed.

Bankers and economists will tell you that consumers very accurately determine when they have reached their limit, it usually coming in a direct message from their wallets and pocketbooks.

In a sense, therefore, these economists are proclaiming another conservative unity, this one with Uncle Sam, and they say that if it doesn't come to pass we might be united in still another way.

That way is spelled recession.

She is a choir member at Our Lady of the Guadalupe. Her hobbies include tennnis, drawing, sewing, macrame, biking, camping and traveling mainly to New Mexico and Laredo. She speaks Spanish. Shower Curtain You Can Sew

By Joanne Schreiber

Have you ever thought about sewing up a shower curtain for your bath?

It's a super-easy project, guaranteed to give your bathroom a lift, at far less than the cost of a readymade curtain.

Shower curtains are usually two yards wide, so you will need either a twin-size flat sheet or four yards of fabric, plus a clear plastic shower curtain, a grommet tool with grommets, and a set of shower curtain hooks.

Measure the length from the shower rod to one inch above the floor, or cut the fabric to the same size as the plastic liner, plus six inches for hem and heading.

If you are using a sheet, use the smaller bottom hem as the top of your curtain, and cut from the other end. This is the opposite procedure from making curtains from sheets — there, you use the wide top hem as the bottom of the curtain and make length adjustments from the narrow-hem end.

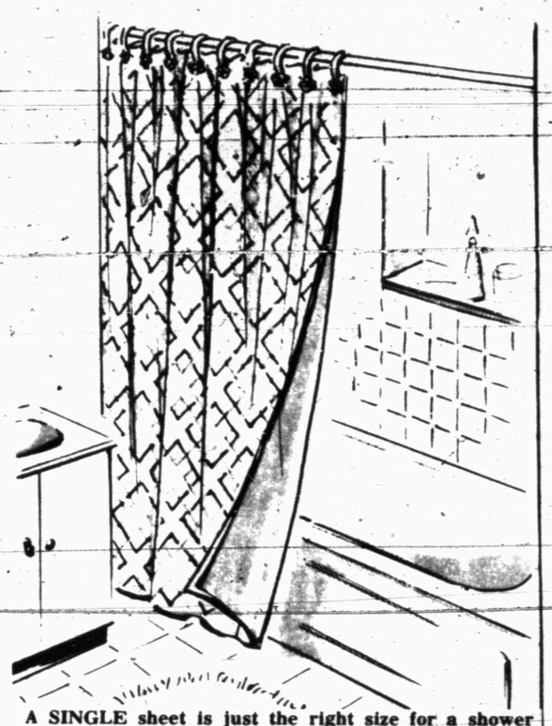

Seam fabric if necessary. Measure and stitch lower hem. Using the vinyl curtain as a guide, mark position for grommets. You may make eyelet buttonholes, or attach grommets.

You can vary the basic design in any number of ways. Make appliques of giant fish and seaweed, add a monogram, make a design with machine embroidery. Add a top trim such as a valance and make matching curtains. Apply decorative trim and repeat on bathroom accessories, such as wastebaskets and tissue box.

These instructions are from the new 1978 edition of Basic Fashion which contains an excellent Sewing Supplement in addition to its many fashion-right patterns. As part of a section on sewing with sheets, instructions are included for making a round tablecloth with matching napkins and attractive scalloped cafe curtains. All the patterns are mail-order, and there's even a coupon for a free pattern.

To get your copy, write to Basic Fashion, Stitchin' Time, c/o this newspaper, Box 503, Radio City Station, New York, N.Y. 10019. Send just $2 and be sure you include your own name, address and zip code.

A SINGLE sheet is just the right size for a shower curtain. Make it with grommets, to hang with a vinyl liner.

Alan: "How about some articles on planning our play?"

Oswald: "Good idea. Our rule of 'ARCH' with emphasis on C for Count winners and losers and H for How can I make my contract?"

Alan: "Here is a good example. East's king wins the diamond lead and shifts to the queen of clubs. South sees one potential loser in each suit. He wants to eliminate that club loser if he can."

Oswald: "If he had time to pull the trumps he could get rid of it on a heart. He hasn't time so must go after hearts right away. He leads a heart."

Alan: "West ducks one heart, wins the second and leads a club to knock out dummy's ace. South leads a high heart. If both opponents followed he would be home free, but East ruffs."

Oswald: "This doesn't upset South's apple cart. He overruffs, enters dummy by ruffing a diamond and leads another high heart."

Alan: "East has a Hobson's choice. He can ruff with the ace or discard. Either way South gets rid of his club loser."

Ask the Experts

A Kentucky reader wants to know if there ever was a time when five down doubled vulnerable cost 2,000 points.

In the early Thirties there was a sliding scale of penalties. The first trick cost 200, the second 300 etc. Five down came to 2,000, six down to 2,700 etc.

Consumer Food News

COLLEGE STATION—Budget buys center on vegetables and poultry at Texas grocery markets this week, according to Mrs. Gwendolyne Clyatt.

Also check for economy buys on cheeses--now in exceptionally large supply, she says.

Mrs. Clyatt is a consumer marketing information specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System.

FRESH VEGETABLES--Look for best buys on zucchini and yellow squash, carrots, dry yellow onions and cucumbers.

Also, corn, blackeye and purple hull peas, okra and potatoes.

POULTRY-Eggs still offer a good bargain for high-quality protein, valuable minerals and essential vitamins. Be sure to buy from refrigerated cases and keep eggs cool.

Look for some features on fryers and parts.

Turkeys and turkey roasts have reasonable prices.

FRESH FRUIT—Attractive prices appear on honeydew melons, cantaloupe and watermelons.

Varying price levels show on plums, grapes, nectarines, bananas and oranges.

Fruits with prices on the high side are Granny Smith apples (green in color) from New Zealand and peaches.

Peaches are more plentiful, but with the current high demand, prices are still high.

BEEF—Prices are steadily rising. Features are scattered, so check for advertised specials and in-store specials.

As cattle prices rise, however, cattlemen are more inclined to rebuild their herds, which eventually, will bring a larger supply of beef to market.

CONSUMER WATCHWORDS Get acquainted with salad greens other than head lettuce, which has been offered at high prices lately. Then put salads into the menu.

A failproof way to melt chocolate is to place it in a double-boiler over water; cover and heat until the water bubbles, then remove the double boiler from the heat and let it stand, still covered, until the chocolate softens and you can stir it until it is smooth.

Beer lacks cholesterol

By Lawrence Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I am 54 and weigh 184 pounds. I would like to know what my cholesterol should be. Also, when it comes to beer I'm sure there is cholesterol in it but I would like to know how much per 12 ounce bottle. Any help you can give would be appreciated.

DEAR READER — In general the lower one's cholesterol level is the better off he is in terms of avoiding a heart attack, stroke or other complications of fatty-cholesterol blockage of the arteries.

For an optimal value the reading should be below 220 using some of the research methods that have been used for scientific reports. Office readings using slightly different methods of doing the test, however, may be 10 to 15 percent higher than that and still be quite normal. How the test is done makes a difference.

I am sending you The Health Letter number 1-2, Cholesterol, Triglycerides, Blood Fats, Atherosclerosis to give you more information. Others who want this issue can send 50 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

Regarding beer — it doesn't contain any cholesterol. I'm continually surprised how difficult it is to get the point across that cholesterol is an animal product. There is no cholesterol in any vegetable product.

The confusion occurs because if you consume too many calories that causes you to be fat, or you eat foods that are too high in fat, particularly saturated fat, your own body may cause you to produce an excess amount of cholesterol. To the extent that drinking lots of beer or alcohol may contribute to obesity, then it can stimulate excess cholesterol production.

DEAR DR. LAMB — Could you please enlighten me as to just what polyps of the throat are and how they should be treated? I never noticed anything wrong with my throat until several weeks ago. I had my throat examined and was told I had polyps and only have to be careful about eating. If something can be done I feel it is surely worth doing. They told me that many folks have it. I never did hear about it before and otherwise I am in good health.

DEAR READER — A polyp is a little growth somewhat like a wart or larger. The term is commonly used for such small growths that stick out from the linings of organs in the body. Thus you can have a polyp in the throat or you can have a polyp in the colon or even a polyp in the sinus.

The treatment depends entirely on what causes it. If it's a reaction to an allergy, such as you might have with a nasal polyp, the correct approach might be to start with control of the allergy. Depending on the type and location of a polyp in the colon it might be wise to remove it. The same might be said about a polyp in the throat.

Your doctor has looked at it and knows by his observation just how important it is or is not in your case. If he thought it were important he could snip it off. Apparently he doesn't think it is that significant in your case. I would guess that he has asked you to return so he can look at it again in the not too distant future. That you should be sure to do.

Bodies Found Sunday...

Woman Charged In Murder Of Family

WINNIE (AP)-Southeast Texas authorities charged a woman with capital murder today in the disappearance and deaths of five family members from Winnie.

Linda Mae Burnett, 30, was arrested at her home in Nederland and charged before State District Judge Jack Cravey.

Family members disappeared from their blood-splattered rural home July 1, touching off an extensive search by authorities that ended Sunday night with the discovery of their graves.

A former in-law directed authorities to the gravesite in a wooded area in neighboring Jefferson County. Joe Dugas, 31, of Port Acres, had been charged in connection with the family's disappearance and was being held in Chambers County Jail in Anahuac in lieu of $500,000 bond.

A prepared statement from the Chambers County sheriff's office said, "Positive identification was established as members of the Phillips family missing from their residence in Winnie, Texas, since July 3."

Dead are Bishop Phillips, 64; his wife Ester, 66; a son Elmer, 31; his wife Martha; and their 4-year-old son Jason. Dugas was once married to a daughter of the elder Phillips.

Justice of the Peace Jack Cravy, who conducted a graveside inquest, said all of the bodies were close together. "The shallowest grave was 18 inches and the deepest was four to five feet."

Dugas pointed out the site after 6 p.m., Cravy said, but the bodies were not unearthed until about 9:45 p.m.

Autopsies were ordered by Cravy, and Jefferson County pathologists took custody of the bodies.

Cravy said authorities were still not certain what motivated the killings.

Chambers County Sheriff Doil Pounds said the investigation was continuing.

Dugas' brother, Richard Lee, has said in a sworn statement to authorities that the suspect told him on July 4 that he had kidnapped the family at gunpoint July 1 and had taken them to a "prepared gravesite."

In the statement, he said his brother told him he had "gone to the residence of Bishop Noel Phillips on July 1, bound the occupants of the residence, struck one of the occupants with a pistol, and in the company of an unknown female, transported Bishop Noel Phillips and the occupants of the residence...to a prepared gravesite."

Dugas had denied he had anything to do with the family's disappearance.

Hearings On Tires Resumes

WASHINGTON (AP)--A House subcommittee is resuming hearings on the Firestone 500 Steel Belted Radial tire, which the government claims is so unsafe it should be recalled.

Firestone officials are scheduled to testify today before the House Interstate and Foreign Commerce committee's oversight panel. The same subcommittee conducted hearings in May.

The Transportation Department said Saturday that the tires "have failed in significant numbers" and recommended that the firm recall them immediately.

But National Highway Traffic Safety Administration did not order the recall for the 13 of 15 million tires estimated to be in use. A final determination will be made after a hearing Aug. 7.

The company opposes the recall, said Bernard W. Fraizier, Firestone's public relations director.

"There is no safety-related reason for the public to be concerned about continuing to use the Firestone Steel Belted Radial 500 or any other properly maintained Firestone made tire," he said. "The 500 is providing reliable service to millions of motorists today as it has for years."

The company quit making the top-of-the-line tire early last year.

Miss Onassis Denies Rumor

MOSCOW (AP)—With a firm "No, no, no," Christina Onassis, daughter of the late Greek shipping magnate Aristotle Onassis, has denied reports that she will marry a Soviet bureaucrat in Moscow.

The 27-year-old Miss Onassis arrived in the Soviet capital on June 25 amid reports she has been dating Nikolai Kaosov, a former official of a Soviet freight organization. The reports say she met him in Paris.

But Soviet sources here insist that despite Miss Onassis' denials, she may very well marry Kaosov as soon as they have all the necessary legal documents. Published reports claim the wedding date was supposed to be today, but the sources say it will be sometime later.

Grass Fire Is Put Out

City firefighters doused a grass fire Sunday night.

The fire was reported at 8:55 p.m. and occurred about two miles north of Snyder on U.S. Highway 84.

Mishaps, Injury To Child Logged

A case involving an injured child, a reported criminal trespass, and several traffic accidents have been investigated by city police officers.

Police were told Friday of a 1-year-old child that was reportedly injured in a fight.

The fight, officers said, allegedly involved a 15-year-old girl and a 16-year-old girl. Police said it appears the child wandered into the affray and was injured, although it was not know how badly. Officers said the case is being referred to juvenile court.

Also investigated was the criminal trespass complaint made early Sunday morning by Joe Hernandez. He told officers that the air conditioner of his 604 College Ave. home had been pulled from the wall, apparently to provide entrance for an intruder. Nothing, however, appeared to have been taken from the residence, police reports show.

A Saturday morning traffic accident at the intersecion of 35th St. and College Ave. resulted in moderate damages to a 1975 Mercury driven by Austin Davis and a 1976 Oldsmobile driven by Tom Cheney of Sweetwater. The mishap was reported at 11:44 a.m.

At 1:30 p.m. Sunday a two-car collision was reported at the intersection of 20th St. and Coleman St. It involved a parked 1972 Ford owned by Terri Johnson and a 1973 Oldsmobile driven by Peggy Highfield. Only minor damages were reported.

Minor damages were also reported in a 7:15 p.m. Sunday mishap at 27th and Ave. Y.

Involved in it were a 1974 Buick driven by Opal Williams and a 1970 Chevrolet driven by Dolores Alderete Allen.

A hit and run was investigated early this morning by police.

The mishap was reported at 1:22 a.m. at the Kwik Car Wash on 25th St. Reports show that a gas meter was struck by a vehicle which left the scene of the mishap.

Queen Of C-City Rodeo Is Crowned

COLORADO CITY-Jana Shackleford was crowned queen of the American Junior Rodeo Association Rodeo prior to the closing performance Saturday evening. Runner up was Tracy Rees.

Winner of the calf dressing contest finals was the Westbrook Lions Club represented by Elidoro Reyes, Bobby Morris, and Gary Matlock.

The Mitchell-Scurry County Entomologists had the second team to dress its calf in a pair of bloomers. They are David Kattes, Allen Dockrey and George Hardegree.

The Chamber of Commerce, sponsors of the first AJRA rodeo in C-City, are still waiting for the final results of the contests that attracted some 320 young cowboys and cowgirls.

Larry Winders, chamber manager, said preliminary tabulations indicate that the rodeo was a huge financial success for Colorado City.

Name Wrong In Report

A police report Friday evening indicated the correct address but the wrong name in an incident involving sugar being poured into the gas tank of a car owned by R. C. Burditt.

The report listed Sonny Burditt as owner of the car in that incident.

Hirohito's Tapes May Be Released

TOKYO (AP)—They may not be as revealing as the Watergate tapes, but the public will soon get a chance to hear some of Emperor Hirohito's private, tape-recorded conversations.

The imperial household has announced that taped conversations between Hirohito and guests ranging from Sadaharu Oh, Japan's home run king, to famed aviatrix Yae Nozoki will go on sale Aug. 31 as a long-playing record.

The conversations have been recorded at the emperor's twice-annual garden parties since 1972. His household gave permission for 3,000 LPs to be made from the tapes. Some of the material has been aired on Japanese radio and television newscasts.

Polish Find Film Insulting

MILWAUKEE (AP)—The Wisconsin chapter of the Polish American Congress is trying to put an end to Burt Reynolds' new movie "The End."

The chapter, which claims more than 15,000 members, has proposed to state Attorney General Bronson La Follette that advertisements for the motion picture carry warnings that the script may be offensive to viewers because of Reynolds' Polish-joke dialog.

La Follette replied that he found the film insulting to Polish-Americans, but that there was nothing he could do about something protected by the Constitution.

New Image Sought By AL Stars

By HAL BOCK
AP Sports Writer

SAN DIEGO (AP)-Manager Billy Martin leads an American League All-Star team determined to shake the loser's image it has developed over the last two decades into Tuesday night's 49th matchup against the National League All-Stars.

The Americans have dropped six straight games and 14 of the last 15, turning a once close series into a 29-18 deficit. There has been one tie game.

Martin, manager of the New York Yankees, also was in charge of last year's AL stars who dropped a 7-5 decision to the NL at Yankee Stadium. He likes to point out, though, that he also lost the 1976 World Series in his first shot at it, but bounced back to lead the Yankees to the world championship last season - the second time around.

To break the NL stranglehold on this game, Martin has assembled a team that has raised some eyebrows.

The fan vote supplied an AL starting lineup of Rod Carew, Don Money, Fred Patek and George Brett around the infield with Jim Rice, Reggie Jackson and Richie Zisk in the outfield, and Carlton Fisk catching.

Martin filled out the rest of the roster, adding infielders Roy Howell, Frank White, Rick Burleson, Craig Reynolds, Larry Hisle, Jason Thompson and Eddie Murray, plus outfielders Chet Lemon, Fred Lynn and Dwight Evans, replacing Carl Yastrzemski, who is injured, and catchers Jim Sundberg and Darrell Porter, the latter replacing Thurman Munson. Hisle replaced Graig Nettles, who was injured.

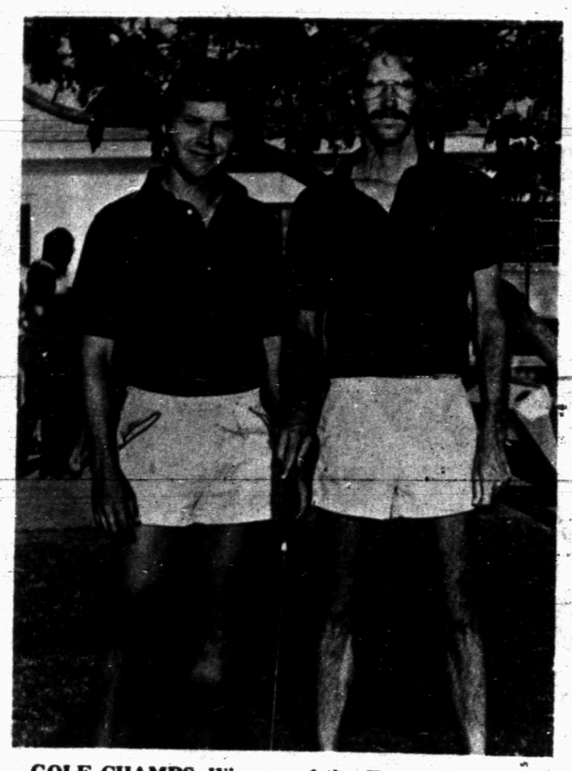

Among the missing were Rusty Staub, the league's No. 2 RBI man, Don Baylor, among the AL leaders in homers and RBIs all season, and Mike Cubbage, Sixto Lezcano and Lou Whitaker, all among the leading hitters.

Lee Elder Heading For Masters Again

MILWAUKEE (AP)-Lee Elder, once again an automatic qualifier for the prestigious Masters and Tournament of Champions, readily admits that the real winner was the Greater Milwaukee Open Golf Tournament.

The reason, Elder said, is the class of Lee Trevino, whom Elder defeated Sunday in an eight-hold sudden death playoff for the title in the star-slighted GMO and a $30,000 first prize.

"I'm sure Lee tried as hard as he could, but I believe that if he hadn't been in a hurry to meet his wife in Chicago and catch a plane for England for the British Open, it could have been a different story," Elder said.

WTC Athletic Director Named Head Of Arkansas Conference

Dr. Sid Simpson, who founded the athletic program at Western Texas College, is submitting his resignation to accept the position of Commissioner on the Arkansas Intercollegiate Conference.

Simpson who joined the WTC staff in 1971 as the local two-year college was launching its first session, will move to Little Rock, headquarters of the conference. He plans to begin his work there on July 24 and he and Mrs. Simpson will be moving there soon. Mrs. Simpson is associate director of library science at WTC.

"This was a difficult decision, but we have always thought that sometime we would be moving back home," said Simpson who came to Texas from Arkansas several years ago.

He will become commissioner of an athletic conference of National Association of Intercollegiate Athletics (NAIA) schools which includes the college where he played football, the University of Central Arkansas in Conway. The conference is made up of 10 colleges which compete in nine sports.

"I certainly was not dissatisfied with WTC or Snyder," said Simpson. "I believe WTC has the best president and board I ever worked with. And we have enjoyed living in Snyder and our associations there."

Simpson said he felt that he was leaving the athletic situation at WTC in good hands.

"Richardson (Nolan, head basketball coach) and O'Day (golf coach) are top notch people, and I know they will continue to do a good job," said Simpson.

As for the girls basketball program, which Simpson himself headed, he said he had recruited 17 girls whom he believes are capable of forming a strong squad.

Simpson was a one-man physical education department and coach at the outset of his career at WTC. He organized the first men's basketball team and coached it for two years before turning the reins over to Mike Mitchell after WTC joined the Western Junior College Conference. Subsequently, he continued to serve as athletic director and chairman of the WTC physical education department as well as coach of the women's basketball team.

Simpson came to WTC from North Texas State University where he received his doctorate. Prior entering the doctoral program at NTSU he was associated with Grayson County Junior College for six years and prior to that was at McMurry College in Abilene.

Dr. Ben Brock, vice president of WTC, said the search for a successor to Simpson would begin as soon as Dr. Robert Clinton, WTC president, returns to the campus. Dr. Clinton, who has been on vacation, is expected back by mid-week.

Busy Week For Tennis Buffs

Long hours and lots of time on the road made up last week's agenda for Snyder's school-sponsored tennis buffs.

June Blalock Wins Second Meet In Row

WHEELING, W. Va. (AP)--Nancy Lopez' one-woman domination of the LPGA tour may be short lived--just ask Jane Blalock.

Winning here a second LPGA tournament in as many weeks Sunday as Lopez took a week's break from the tour she has dominated all year, Blalock breezed to a seven-shot victory in the $75,000 Wheeling Classic. Then she took exception to several recent magazine articles that said Lopez is women's golf in the United States.

"That statement is ridiculous," said Blalock, who won last week in Noblesville, Ind., after a pair of second place finishes before that. "We had large galleries and the purses were a lot bigger this year before Nancy started winning. It's an insult to the (Judy) Rankins, (Debbie) Austins and (JoAnne) Carners to say that Nancy is women's golf."

Blalock won $$1,250 in capturing the Wheeling title for the second time in three years. In the past month she's finished no worse than second in any tournament and has boosted her season's earnings to more than $73,000.

Bengals Trade Ron Pritchard

CINCINNATI (AP)-The Cincinnati Bengals have traded veteran linebacker Ron Pritchard to the Oakland Raiders for a undisclosed future draft choice.

The 31-year-old Pritchard, who will be entering his 10th season in the National Football League, has been sidelined with injuries most of the past two seasons.

70 Rookies On Hand At Cowboy Camp

THOUSAND OAKS, Calif. (AP)-Dallas' No. 1 draft choice, Larry Bethea, was among 70 rookies and young veterans reporting Sunday to the Cowboys' pre-season National Football League training camp here.

Bethea, a 6-5, 254-pound defensive lineman from Michigan State, will join the other Sunday arrivals for a day of physical examinations and testing Monday before settling into a twice-daily practice routine.

King Fails In Bid For Record

WIMBLEDON, England (AP)-Billie Jean King was reflective after her failure Saturday to win a record 20th Wimbledon title.

Billie Jean - who shares with Elizabeth Ryan the record of 19 titles here - was beaten in the finals of the mixed doubles when she and Ray Ruffels were shelled 6-2, 6-2 by Frew McMillan and Betty Stove.

"Of course I'm disappointed," she said, "but at least I tried. How many people never get the chance to play at Wimbledon at all."

And the 34-year-old American was full of praise for her partners in both doubles events, Ruffels and Martina Navratilova.

"Both of them tried awfully hard," she said. "But Ray has never been in a final before. I would like to have won so he could get his first title."

And Billie Jean put it all into perspective when she said: "The press and the public seem to think the 20th title is very important. I think it is all relative."

Despite her disappointment, she was still willing to talk in glowing terms about other players.

"I think Bjorn Borg is one of the all time greats. Borg is just so good. He can do anything," she said of the Swede who routed Jimmy Connors 6-2, 6-2, 6-3 for the men's title. "If Jimmy wants to do better he is going to have to expose himself to more tournaments."

If the day was a disappointment for King, it could hardly have been better for McMillan. The South African took his third men's doubles title with Bob Hewitt when they beat John McEnroe and Peter Fleming 6-1, 6-4, 6-4, then McMillan teamed up with Betty Stove to down King and Ruffels.

Stalling Tactics Used On Hospital Costs Bill

By JANET STAIHAR
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP)-Congressional opponents are using stalling tactics to let the clock run out this year on legislation that is high on President Carter's priority list - a bill designed to control soaring hospital costs.

The measure will die automatically if Congress adjourns for the year, possibly in October, without acting on it.

The rein in runaway medical costs, Carter wants to put a 9 percent annual ceiling on increases in the costs of hospital care. Hospital construction also would be restricted.

Hospital industry officials reported last week that their costs rose at a annual rate of 12.7 percent during the first four months of 1978 - down from nearly 16 percent a year earlier. But they acknowledged that some hospitals might be deferring expenses instead of actually reducing them.

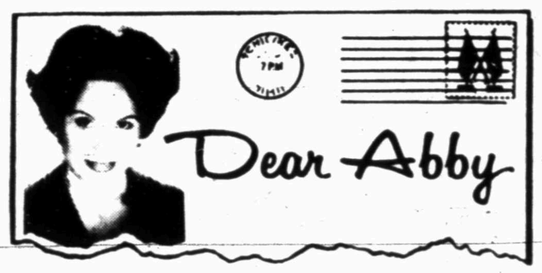

Legislation now being drafted in Congress would modify Carter's proposal, generally to give hospitals additional time to control their costs voluntarily before federal curbs are imposed. Under one version, the hospitals could escape federal controls altogether if they restricted their increases in 1979 to 12 percent.

Every time the House Commerce Committee meets to work on the bill, those who want to forestall action come in with dozens of lengthy amendments, hoping to tie the bill up in knots.

"Time is on their side," said one committee aide, who asked not to be identified. "It's better if they can stretch it out and let the bill die because of a lack of time rather than being the heavies, by killing it outright."

That's not the only pitfall. Another draft of the hospital cost control bill was written months ago by the House Ways and Means subcommittee on health, but the full committee has not yet scheduled a date for its consideration.

Both versions must be combined before being sent to the House floor. The congressional aide said that if the Commerce Committee's final bill is complex enough, there is little chance it could be resolved with the Ways and Means bill.

Man Indifferent To Wife's Need

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1978 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd. Inc.

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I have been married for 15 years and have two children. My problem is our sex life. It's once every three months for 10 minutes. (No kisses.) He's the only man I've ever had sex with, so I don't have anyone to compare him with, but I could have written that song titled, "Is That All There Is?"

This has been going on for about five years. Whenever I suggest that maybe he should see a doctor, he gets angry and starts to shout.

I find myself thinking it would be nice to have an affair. I've also thought of leaving him. I'm sure other women have had this problem. What do they do?

NEEDS AFFECTION

DEAR NEEDS: Some women have affairs and some suffer in silence. Some punish their husbands by becoming extravagant, abusive or belittling. And some leave their mates.

If your husband refuses to face up to the problem and do something to remedy it, your choices are obvious. Either learn how to live with him—or without him.

DEAR ABBY: I'm worried about my 6-year-old sister. She always wants to be someone's animal. One day she might want to be someone's horse, and the next day she might want to be someone's dog or cat. This may not seem like much of a problem, but she never wants to be the "master"—she always wants to be the animal.

Is she normal? Or is something wrong with her?

WORRIED

DEAR WORRIED: This has been the subject of many interesting psychological studies. The conclusions drawn are not surprising. One who prefers to be "mastered" wants desperately to please. This is usually the way the younger child wins favor with her older siblings and playmates.

Don't worry. She's normal.

DEAR ABBY: Yesterday was the saddest day of my life. I buried my mother. And now many thoughts come to mind that make me even sadder.

I recall the many times I meant to call her and ask if there was anything she needed, but I seldom got around to it.

I recall the day I ran into Mom in the bakery. Her winter coat looked so shabby and worn, and I thought, "Gee, I've got to take Mom downtown and buy her a new coat." But I never found the time. I was too busy.

On her last birthday I sent her an azalea plant, but I forgot to enclose a card. I had wanted to get over to see her, but there was a football game that day, so I never made it.

The last time I saw Mom was at my cousin's wedding. She looked so old and tired. I told myself, "I must send Mom to Florida to visit her brother and get a little sun," but I just never got around to buying the tickets.

If only I could turn the clock back, I'd buy Mom that coat and spend every birthday with her and take her anyplace she wanted to go. But it's too late now and I am heartsick.

Please print this letter. Maybe if I had seen one like it, I would have done things differently.

1977 Traffic Deaths Up 2,500

WASHINGTON (AP)-A total of 49,200 persons died in traffic accidents in the United States in 1977, an increase of 2,500 over 1976, according to the Highway Users Federation.

In addition, the federation says, "the number of deaths per mile driven also edged upward, reversing an historic downward trend in the fatality rate, measured in deaths per 100 million miles driven. The death rate increased from 3.31 fatalities in 1976 or 3.36 in 1977."

Freezer Food Can Be Salvaged In Blackout

By LOUISE COOK
Associated Press Writer

The lights flicker and fail. After the search for candles, the worries begin. What about all the food in the freezer?

You don't have to sit and watch your budget melt away during a power failure. Many of the items can be salvaged.

According to Frozen Food Facts, an industry information service, a freezer that is fully stocked, with food that is completely frozen will keep temperatures at a satisfactory level for two days, providing that it is not opened.

Resist the temptation to peek. "Keep that coldness inside. Don't let it out," said spokeswoman Marge Ferroli. Cover the freezer with a blanket or old newspapers to provide extra insulation.

The emptier the freezer, the greater the loss. If the freezer is less than half full, the food will keep for a maximum of one day only, Ms. Ferroli said. Food stored in the freezer compartment of a refrigerator - or in the refrigerator itself - is more difficult to save; don't take a chance with foods that look or smell spoiled.

If your freezer will be without power for an extended period of time, consider adding dry ice. Twenty-five pounds of dry ice will hold the temperature below freezing in a half-full, 10 cubic-foot freezer for two to three days. Do not place the dry ice directly on the containers of food; put a layer of cardboard in between.

Some items can be refrozen if they are only partially thawed. As a general rule, you may safely refreeze foods that are still under 40 degrees Fahrenheit. Fish is the exception; it tends to spoil very quickly and usually cannot be refrozen once it has reached 32 degrees. When in doubt, look for ice crystals in the food. The existence of the crystals means the food is between 32 and 40 degrees and can be refrozen, Ms. Ferroli said.

Foods that have completely thawed out usually should be discarded or, if still good, used immediately. You can, however, refreeze red meats and vegetables if you cook them first.

Note: Foods that have been refrozen probably won't taste as good as those that remained frozen. They also will not last as long; use refrozen items as soon as possible.

More and more people are using freezers these days to take advantage of specials on meat. Frozen foods also have increased in popularity because of the rising use of microwave ovens, the growth of one and two-person households and the rise in the number of working women.

Dollar sales of frozen foods in 1977 totalled $7.8 billion, an increase of 12.9 percent from 1976, Frozen Food Facts reported. In terms of tonnage, sales increased 3 percent from 1976 to 1977. The biggest growth came in the areas of pizza, prepared vegetables and so-called ethnic foods.

Skylab Shifts Attitude

JOHNSON SPACE CENTER (AP)--For the third time in less than two months, the Skylab satellite has lost its attitude orientation, causing solar cells to face away from the sun and resulting in a loss of power.

NASA spokesman Bob Gordon said engineers believe the attitude shift is the result of an on-board power problem which occurred between 12:09 p.m. and 3:14 p.m. Sunday.

Flight controllers made several attempts to reorient the spacecraft Sunday but were unsuccessful, Gordon said.

A NASA statement released Sunday night indicated the spacecraft has to be repositioned to recharge the on-board batteries. Evaluation of the power problem and plans for re-establishing spacecraft attitude control are now being analyzed at Johnson Space Center and Marshall Space Flight Center at Huntsville, Ala.

About a month ago a similar problem was corrected, and last week the spacecraft was put back into "minimum drag attitude," Gordon said.

"Currently it's in an attitude with its panels rolling to the right," he said. "It's not in the attitude we'd like it to be in. Basically, we lost all battery power today."

Gordon said NASA officials are working around the clock on the problem, but will not be able to see the craft in daylight until 9:24 a.m. CDT Monday.

Skylab is not currently being utilized for any in-space experiments. Gordon said the prime consideration is to maintain it in an attitude that would assure that it will be in position in late 1979 for a planned shuttle docking.

Patty Resists Suggestions To Write Book

ATLANTA (AP)--Patty Hearst, resisting suggestions that she write about her life, says she's too young to write an autobiography.

"People tell me I should write a book," Miss Hearst, who is serving a prison sentence at the Federal Correctional Institution in Pleasanton, Calif., said in an interview with the Atlanta Journal-Constitution. "My feeling has been that anything that smacks of an autobiography at 24 is arrogant to say the least."

Miss Hearst also said she continues to be fascinated, as well as puzzled, by her transformation from newspaper heiress to revolutionary.

Miss Hearst is serving a seven-year sentence for her part in a bank robbery staged by the revolutionary Symbioness Liberation Army. She will be eligible for parole in 14 months.

She apparently maintains a sense of humor about her ordeal: "I'd really like to travel again--anywhere but Italy," she said. "There's too much kidnapping there."

New Miss Texas Was Determined To Win

FORT WORTH (AP)--Sandi Miller has been watching the Miss America Pageant since she was a toddler.

Now, at 20, the five-foot, 10½-inch Mesquite model is headed for that pageant herself.

Miss Miller was chosen Saturday night to represent the Lone Star State in the national pageant in Atlantic City next fall.

And it was no accident that she was chosen.

Her determination to win the state title led her to enter four local pageants before she was selected the first Miss Red Bird Area, enabling her to compete for the Miss Texas crown.

Saturday night, the young women who beat her in her first three attempts at a local crown were among the 10 semi-finalists, but Miss Miller said she was still hopeful she would win.

"Everybody was on an equal basis when we got to the top ten," she said. "I wasn't discouraged."

First runner-up in Saturday night's competition was 23-year-old Margie Hooper, who edged out Miss Miller to win the Miss Hurst-Euless-Bedord pageant. Bobbie Candler, who bested Miss Miller for the Miss Haltom-Richland title, was named second runner-up Saturday night.

And Peggy Oliver, Miss White Settlement, was the fourth runner-up in the Miss Texas contest. Miss Miller had been her first runner-up in local competition.

The brown-eyed, auburn haired Miss Miller was watching pageants as a tot, and she began competing in them when she was 17.

"I've been working all my life to be able to handle the crown of Miss Texas," she said. "I can't think of anything more fulfilling than being Miss Texas."

Miss Miller says the hectic pace of preparing for the national pageant doesn't bother her, and says her social life won't suffer because of pageant preparations.

"I don't have a steady boyfriend," she said. "A social life is always there. It's (the pageant preparations) definitely worth it."

A fashion merchandising major at North Texas State University, Miss Miller says she supports the Equal Rights Amendment but "cherishes" her femininity.

The swimsuit competition in pageants is her least favorite, she said. But she maintains it's not sexist and is a worthwhile judging event.

"It's like athletes training and Mr. and America," she explained. "It gives you incentive to build your body and train your body. You won't alway be young."

Bits of advice
By Karen Blaker, Ph.D.

DEAR DR. BLAKER — I would like to change my name from Lee to Lisa because it sounds more feminine. But my parents don't like the idea.

They say it would cost a lot of money. My friends, however, say it is a simple matter of filling out some legal papers.

That makes me wonder whether money is really the reason for my parents' disapproval. Why would they be against a name change?

DEAR READER — They are probably attached to the name because they chose it for you. But why not ask them?

Your friends are partly right about the name-change procedure. Though in Europe a government decree is required for a name change, the process is fairly simple in the United States.

In fact, so many Americans change their names that it has been called one of our national pastimes.

But changing one's name does cost money, unless you decide to assume your new name merely by starting to use it. If you prefer to make the change official through the courts, the procedure costs about $200.

DEAR DR. BLAKER — I am 62 years old and very lonely. I go to the same park and coffee shop every day, where I watch people living happy lives.

It hurts. I watch and wish I could be one of them.

As I write this letter I am sitting three booths away from a young, newly married couple exchanging loving glances over ice cream sundaes. It makes me so upset maybe I shouldn't go out at all.

DEAR READER — Remember, it's all in the eye of the beholder. Are you really witnessing the loving glances of a happily married couple — or the seduction of a foreign spy by an FBI agent?

If you are lonely and depressed, you will tend to see other people's worlds through rose-colored glasses unless you watch yourself and control that impulse.

By all means, continue to go out. It provides you with exercise and some social contact.

Instead of withdrawing, try talking with people more often. A short exchange with the grocer, for instance, may eventually lead to enjoyable conversations on each outing.

I think you will find reality more satisfying — and less depressing — than fantasy.

DEAR DR. BLAKER — After just three weeks, I'm ready to quit my job. Who would have thought I'd have to wear a uniform in a sales office?

It reminds me of everything I hated as a child — parochial school, the Girl Scouts and singing in the church choir.

DEAR READER — For the next few years, at least, you will probably be able to find a non-uniformed job in a sales office. So go ahead and change.

But after that, you may have to conquer your childhood fears of conformity. The trend is toward more uniforms, not less. One out of 10 working Americans wears a uniform and the number is expected to double in the next decade.
