Teachers At WTSU Battle Evaluation Proposal

CANYON (UPI) -- Threatened with reductions in funding because of declining enrollment, West Texas State University is considering a proposal to eliminate "deficient" teaching at the school.

That proposal has resulted in much controversy at the West Texas school, and this afternoon the school's Faculty Council and teachers from the College of Arts and Sciences are scheduled to square off on the issue.

School officials say the university must address the prospect of reduced state funding resulting from the school's declining enrollment. So the Faculty Council drafted the April 5 resolution providing for annual evaluations of each teacher's work for the previous four years.

The resolution provides that any "deficient" teacher face probation and have his salary frozen for a year. If improvement is not demonstrated in the period, the teacher would be fired.

Proponants contend such a review would help determine the teacher's "commitment" to his profession. They also say it would be a "grave injustice" to force only some faculty members to deal with declining funds and the frozen salaries and eventual layoffs that would result. Competent faculty, proponents argue, should not be punished because of "those who are failing to meet their obligation."

But members of the Arts and Sciences faculty oppose such thinking and, two weeks after the resolution was adopted, voted to ask the Faculty Council to repeal it, resulting in the scheduling of today's meeting.

Dr. Gail Shannon, WTSU executive vice president but not a Faculty Council member, emphasizes the resolution is a "recommendation" only. And it does not distinguish, he said, between tenured and nontenured faculty.

"Under the present tenure policies we could not carry out the full intent of the resolution," Shannon said. "Our faculty handbook clearly states the way in which we may consider any action against tenured faculty."

Each faculty member must be afforded "very clearly defined due process considerations," Shannon said.

Any shift in the university's policy, Shannon said, would be made by the board of regents and the administration, not the Faculty Council.

Leaders on both sides of the issue have declined comment in recent days, but Shannon said Monday the administration's policy on such matters always has been consistent:

"We've always been concerned about quality teaching and productivity. And that's what this is."

ID Project Launched In City

To coincide with the kickoff of Operation Identification, the Lubbock County Crime Council voted today to ask Mayor Dirk West to formally declare May as Crime Prevention Month in Lubbock County.

Operation Identification, a countywide effort by the LCCPC to get homeowners to mark their valuables, should get under way today, Hal Hensley, chief administrator for the Lubbock County Criminal District Attorney's office, said.

Hensley said he has ordered 10,000 brochures from the Texas Crime Prevention Institute in San Marcos and is waiting for them to arrive before sending out volunteers who will canvass neighborhoods explaining the marking procedures to homeowners.

Hensley added that persons wishing to do volunteer work in their neighborhoods should contact him at the District Attorney's office, 747-0111, or call the Crime Abatement Program number (763-1133), which has been set up at the sheriff's office.

LCCPC Chairman Sheriff C.H. "Choc" Blanchard said his office has been receiving a lot of calls on the CAP number, but not all have had to do with preventing crimes.

"We've been getting calls on everything from cats in trees to speeding through school zones," he said.

The council also voted to adopt guidelines drawn up by Criminal District Attorney John T. Montford stating how to mark valuable items and listing the most pilferable items in most households.

The guidelines also include a receipt

Rationing Issue Sent To House

WASHINGTON (AP) -- Despite heavy prodding from President Carter, the House Commerce Committee today refused to support the president's standby plan for gasoline rationing.

Instead, the panel agreed on a 21-20 vote to send the measure to the House floor without a recommendation. Carter in a news conference Monday had called the proposal "imperative" to the nation's energy future.

Efforts to approve the plan were rejected on a 21-21 tie vote.

Administration allies hoped the measure could be revived on the House floor. But today's vote marked a major setback to the president.

The committee voted the proposal down last week on a 22-20 vote. And a heavy lobbying campaign by the White House was only able to switch one vote between then and today -- that of Rep. Timothy E. Wirth, D-Colo.

Wirth credited a promise by White House officials that more gas would be made available to Western states where driving distances are large as the reason for his turnabout.

However, the one switched vote wasn't enough.

After the committee voted down the plan, it approved a motion by Rep. Albert Gore, D-Tenn., to send the proposal to the full House for a vote.

Enabling this motion to pass by a slim one-vote margin was the decision of Rep. Henry Waxman, D-Calif., who had voted against the rationing plan to agree to sending it to the floor without a recommendation.

"I just don't think it's fair," Waxman said. But he said he felt the measure was of such national importance that "the issue should be sent to the floor -- so our colleagues have a chance to vote for it or against it."

Rep. John Dingell, D-Mich., House manager of Carter's rationing proposal, said prior to today's meeting, "I think there's a good chance of turning it around. I think there's a very good chance."

A move was also possible in the committee sometime today by a group of liberals seeking to block Carter's decision to decontrol oil prices beginning June 1.

Led by Rep. Toby Moffett, D-Conn., the group is trying to stop Carter by attaching a decontrol ban to another bill. Dingell said he would fight this move but, "It's hard to tell you what their chances are."

Carter specifically urged the Commerce Committee to approve the backup gasoline rationing plan and to send it to the full House.

"It is imperative for our nation's energy preparedness that the committee approve this standby rationing plan," Carter said.

The Senate Energy Committee approved the standby rationing plan last week on a 9-8 vote. Both House and Senate panels have rejected another part of Carter's standby plan that would give the president emergency authority to close service stations on weekends.

Dingell said "there's been a good deal of work done" by the White House since the Commerce Committee rejected the rationing plan last Wednesday.

Giving the plan a new boost, Dingell said, was a letter to committee members from presidential adviser Stuart Eizenstat promising extra quantities of gasoline for states where there is extensive driving and automobile use -- such as in the West and in states popular with tourists.

The standby rationing plan would allocate gasoline on the basis of registered vehicles. Lawmakers from western states protested that such a formula would not be fair to their areas, where long driving distances are common.

Fire Deaths Bring Alert

By JACK DOUGLAS
Avalanche-Journal Staff

The March 25 deaths of three Lubbock firemen have prompted the federal government to launch a nationwide alert questioning the effectiveness of the type and make of some of the safety equipment being used by the city firefighters when they suffered their fatal injuries, The Avalanche-Journal has learned.

Following the deaths of city firemen Kenneth Haggard, Eddie Swafford and Larry Tucker, the National Institute for Occupational Safety and Health (NIOSH) began a study of breathing apparatus made by Scott Aviation -- the type worn by the three city firemen -- and found that "at least 10 percent" of the air regulator diaphragms were split or ruptured, resulting in a "significant loss of protection which may be life-threatening."

Dr. John Froines, deputy director of NIOSH, set up by the Department of Health, Education and Welfare, said the study's findings have caused the agency to begin a nationwide alert on the possible dangers in using the allegedly defective "Scott-Airpak" breathing apparatus.

The agency has asked the Lancaster, N.Y.-based manufacturer to stop sales of the respirators "pending determination of the reason for regulator diaphragm failure and (its) corrective action."

Jim Bailey, corporate communications director for Scott's subsidiary ATO, Inc., stressed this morning to The A-J that NIOSH has not established a link between the firemen's deaths and the use of Scott-Airpak equipment, adding that the company has not stopped the sale of the product at this time.

"Our officials at Scott Aviation are aware of this alert," Bailey said. "We are in contact with NIOSH and are working closely with them on the problem. At this point, the testing and investigation is not complete. We expect to have more information later this week."

An investigation by the Lubbock Fire Department and the city revealed that the diaphragms in the gear worn by Haggard, Swafford and Tucker the day they were killed while fighting a routine structure fire on 34th Street had pinhole-sized punctures.

However, neither city officials nor the fire department has released any answers for the mystery of why the firemen suf-

Heavy Rains, Hail Lash Texas Areas

By TOM GRIESS
Avalanche-Journal Staff

Severe thunderstorms pounded sections of Central and North Texas today as wet and murky weather held its grip on the South Plains. Forecasters said storms may pound the Lubbock region again this afternoon, tonight and Wednesday.

Fog and drizzle covered wide areas of the region this morning, hampering air travel but leaving only light amounts of moisture at most locations.

A series of thunderstorms rolled across the New Mexico border Monday night, drenching wide stretches of West Texas and pounding the northwest portion of the South Plains with hail.

The same weather system triggered storms in the southern Great Plains, dumping up to 10 inches of hail on Balko, Okla., and 3.5 inches of rain and hail on Hickock, Kan.

Forecasts indicate the possibility of more storms this afternoon and tonight. The National Weather Service said the probability of rain is 20 percent this afternoon, 40 percent tonight and 20 percent on Wednesday.

Caused by the potent mixing of a moist low level system with a series of upper level disturbances from the west, the thunderstorms moved in an arc over the South Plains, the full fury narrowly missing Lubbock.

Hardest hit in the South Plains was Bailey County, where hail reportedly broke numerous windows and injured livestock about 15 miles south of Muleshoe.

Bailey County Sheriff's deputy Irene Splawn said this morning that she had received reports of hail accumulations 6 to 8 inches deep near the Muleshoe Wildlife Refuge and up to 3 feet around the Longview Baptist Church, a church located about 18 miles southwest of Muleshoe.

"There were a bunch of trucks and a car stranded on State Highway 214," Mrs. Splawn said. "It was so slick that the trucks could not get up the hills. And FM 1760 had water all over the road."

She said snow-fighting equipment was called out to clear the roads of the hail accumulations Monday night.

Bailey County Agent Spencer Tanksley this morning said the hail was mostly pea-size but some stones ranged up to one inch in diameter.

"I heard there was damage to the J.E. Birdwell feedlot," Tanksley said of the effect of the hail storm. "I heard there was severe damage to his cattle and probably to others, too."

Early today the thunderstorm activity had moved eastward into North Central Texas, prompting the National Weather Service to issue a brief flash flood warning for Eastland and Commanche counties.

According to wire reports, however, the Eastland County Sheriff's office said at 8 a.m. today that rapid water run-off had prevented any major flooding.

Heaviest rainfall during the 24-hour period ending at 7 a.m. today in the north central region was measured at Mineral Wells with 1.05 inches and Stephensville with .78 of an inch.

Precipitation in the South Plains during the same 24-hour period was heaviest at Jayton, 1.50 inches; Snyder, .95 of an

Food Price Dip Shown In Survey

By CARRIE LINE CURTIS

An Avalanche-Journal marketbasket survey of 16 standard grocery items today indicated May's total was the lowest since October 1978 for the same items.

This month's total was $20.40, down from last month's $20.55. The October 1978 total was $19.54.

The low total can be deceiving, however, because one item, round steak, jumped from $1.98 a pound in April to

$2.59 a pound this month. The survey also noted a large jump in one dozen medium eggs, up to 79 cents this month from April's 69 cents.

A large loaf of bread increased from April's 69 cents to 73 cents. A 12-ounce jar of creamy peanut butter cost 92 cents this month, compared to April's 86 cents.

What made the difference in this month's total was a significant decrease in several items.

A one-pound can of regular coffee slid to $2.19, compared to April's price of $2.89 a can. Another large decrease this month was a head of Iceberg lettuce selling for 39 cents a pound, compared 49 cents a pound a month ago.

A one-pound package of hickory smoked bacon sold for $1.53 this month and $1.65 in April. A one-pound package of stick margarine sold for 71 cents a package this month, down from April's price of 73 cents.

A 49-ounce box of laundry detergent was marked $1.71 this month and $1.73 in April.

All other prices for the 16 standard grocery items remained stable this month:

A gallon of homogenized milk was still selling for $2.33 and a can of whole green beans was still selling for 46 cents.

A five-pound bag of sugar was marked at $1.29 and a five-pound bag of flour was selling at 99 cents, the same as for April.

A 10-pound bag of potatoes was fetching $1.19 again this month and a one-pound package of all-beef weiners was still marked at $1.99.

The price per pound for a chicken fryer remains constant at 59 cents a pound.

Bush Plans 'Campaign Of Candor'

WASHINGTON (AP) -- Former CIA Director George Bush formally announced his candidacy for the Republican presidential nomination today, promising Americans a "new candor" for tough problems.

"As a candidate and as president, I will speak not in terms of simple solutions but of hard choices," Bush said in his announcement speech.

And in a news conference following declaration of his candidacy, Bush accused Democrats of overpromising for the past two decades and said he would call instead for sacrifices by the American people.

"As a president, I would ask them to realize we cannot beat inflation, which is the No. 1 issue today, unless we curtail to some degree government spending and that will involve some sacrifice," he said.

"In the whole field of energy, there may be a real need to call on the American people for sacrifice," he added.

Bush said he hoped to run his primary campaign without attacking his Republican rivals, so that the nomination would "be worth something in the fall."

"I just don't want to divide an already minority party," he said.

But if Republicans can stick together they can oust President Carter in 1980, he said.

"The record of the Carter administration is so impotent any Republican winning the nomination would have a good shot in the fall," Bush said. "I just believe I would have a better shot."

Talmadge Aide Testifies At Ethics Panel Hearing

WASHINGTON (AP) -- The chief aide to Sen. Herman Talmadge said today the senator expressed surprise when he was told last August that he had an account at the Riggs National Bank.

But T. Rogers Wade also told the Senate Ethics Committee that the meeting at which Talmadge expressed surprise came after newspaper reports had revealed the account.

And he said the meeting also came more than a month after Talmadge and his attorneys had turned over two checks drawn on the account to the Justice Department.

The secret account is the basis for the major charge against Talmadge, a Georgia Democrat who is accused by the committee of five violations of Senate rules.

Talmadge contends he knew nothing of the account, which was set up by his former administrative assistant, Daniel Minchew, and contends Minchew is an embezzler. Minchew reportedly has told the committee he set up the account on Talmadge's orders and to benefit the senator personally.

Wade said he first learned of the account last Aug. 24 after he was interviewed by committee investigators. He said he told Talmadge and that Talmadge called the bank and asked for records of the account.

"I would say there was no question in my mind that he did not know of the account," Wade said. He told the man at the bank, 'As you have probably seen in the papers, I didn't know I had an account in my name down there.'

Wade also said, however, that Talmadge received copies of his checks from the Senate disbursing office in mid-July and "we found two checks at variance with the hundreds of others -- machine signatures, Riggs National Bank. We didn't have an account at the Riggs Bank."

Those two checks, involving office expenses, were for $10,604 in 1973 and for $2,289.99 in 1974, according to committee records. Minchew was Talmadge's chief aide during those years.

Wade said Talmadge directed him and his attorneys at that time to turn over the records to the Justice Department and to the Ethics Committee.

Wade said the records were turned over on July 17. And he said "we didn't make any accusations (against Minchew) as such. We just turned them over."

Wade also acknowledged that Talmadge's office collected $15,865 in excess expense funds in 1975.

Derby Becomes Extravaganza

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — There's a rumor that everyone swarms to Louisville on the first weekend in May each year to watch a bunch of horses run around a dirt track. Don't believe it.

At one time in its 105-year history, the Kentucky Derby may have been just a two-minute horse race. But it has become an extravaganza, a seven-day circus, a week-long excuse to go crazy, drink, party, swap lies and blow a year's savings.

The Kentucky Derby, today's version, is a young tradition. Not in years, certainly, but in spirit. It's almost as if someone sat up one Derby Day, looked at the Churchill Downs infield full of partying teen-agers, and said, "Why just one day of fun?"

And so it came to pass that Derby Day stretched from an afternoon into several days. And the fun multiplied with the hours.

There's a balloon race, a runner's marathon, a 100-kilometer bike race and a steamboat race on the Ohio River. There are picnics, concerts, all-star basketball games and a parade.

The super-rich throw parties, some of which would seem more at home in ancient Rome than in a normally quiet Midwestern town. Why, girls even jump out of cakes!

On the seamier side, the Derby week crowds provide a paradise for pickpockets, con artists and prostitutes.

And the whole thing is mixed thoroughly, and liberally, with that old favorite of drinks, the mint julep, as well as with anything and virtually everything that has a measurable alcoholic content.

And celebrities are everywhere. Each year, the Derby offers a veritable who's who of the year's big names. Last year, for instance, super-model Cheryl Tiegs and Jaclyn Smith of television's "Charlie's Angels" were on hand.

This time around, none other than Walter Cronkite, the Most Trusted Man in America according to one national poll, will be in attendance.

England's Princess Margaret was the big name in 1974, and President Nixon commanded the limelight in 1970. Any self-respecting autograph hound could fill a book in a week's time.

For some of the locals, Derby Week is an excuse to test capitalism's law of supply and demand. Hotel rooms that sit empty in January go for $100 or more a night in May. Residents who live near the track don't bat an eye in demanding $10 for the use of their lawn as a parking space or the roof of their house as a distant vantage point.

Somewhere in the middle of all this, there is indeed a horse race. Some 3-year-old thoroughbred will get his picture in newspapers around the world. His breeding value will skyrocket.

Some people would do almost anything, and pay almost any amount, for grandstand seats on Derby Day. There are only about 43,000 seats, "and we could do with about 143,000," says Bob Gorham, vice president of Churchill Downs.

Some of the juicier divorce cases each year involve Derby tickets, and the Louisville papers are jammed with outlandish pleas for tickets. One fellow offered a two-week vacation in the Caribbean to anyone who'd give up Derby seats. He got the tickets.

The easiest tickets are those to the infield. Sold on race day, these $10 ducats guarantee only breathing room.

The official reason for the whole carnival is lost to thousands of people even on the day of the race. The kids in the infield at Churchill Downs haven't a hope of seeing the race, but they don't seem to care.

The infield on Derby Day becomes a microcosm of what the city has been all week. Beer flows freely, clothes peel from male and female bodies as the sun reaches its zenith, Frisbees fill the air.

"With 100,000 people, we're the third-largest city in Kentucky, and we have all the same things happening that usually happen in a city that size," says Bill Rudy of the Churchill Downs publicity office. "There have been people born, heart attacks, marriages, divorces."

Some infielders are determined, just for form's sake, to place a $2 bet on the Derby. There's a story told of one poor fellow, thinking he was placing a bet, who stood in line for three hours only to find that he was next into the rest room.

For most people, the race is incidental.

"Hell, what more could you ask for?" asked one Derby Week visitor. "Everybody's either drunk or stoned. There's lots of nice ladies running around."

When the revellers drag themselves out of town on Sunday — hung over, dead tired and dead broke, with only a julep glass to show for it all — they'll wonder what it was all about.

And they'll begin the countdown to the next "first Saturday in May" so they can do it all over again.

Arthur Fiedler Conducting Boston Pops For 50th Year

BOSTON (AP) — A disco arrangement called "Saturday Night Fiedler" and a special tune built on the notes "A" and "F" and evoking the "jestful buoyancy" of the Boston Pops Orchestra highlight tonight's concert marking the start of Arthur Fiedler's 50th year of directing the Pops.

The event is a personal victory for Fiedler, for it is to be his first full-length performance in Boston since he underwent brain surgery last December.

The Public Broadcasting Service will televise the concert nationally.

As usual, members of the smooth, sumptuous-sounding orchestra will sit in light blue jackets on a stage decorated with colored lights and gold and green flowers. They will play to a background of popping champagne corks and tinkling glasses provided by a capacity audience gathered around tables on the floor.

The only difference is Fiedler himself. At 84, his face is haggard and tired, and his step is slow.

Fiedler underwent surgery Dec. 11 to relieve water pressure on his brain. Friends say the operation improved his condition considerably.

He seems better than he has in years in terms of conducting and staying on top of the music," said orchestra spokesman Peter Gelb. "He's very sharp and alert."

But during a weekend rehearsal, Fiedler's voice was so weak that he needed a helper to shout his whispered instructions to the orchestra. His directing seemed labored, though there were flashes of the old Fiedler vitality when the music required.

The program is full-fledged Fiedler.

It starts with "Cheers!" a march written especially for Fiedler by Morton Gould. The number is built around the notes "A" and "F."

"The piece is meant to evoke the virtuosity, the musicality, the jestful buoyancy, the sentiment and the dignity that is the hallmark of Fiedler and the Pops," Gould told Fiedler. "To this end, I have usurped your initials."

Then there will be a polka, waltzes and a solo by Earl Wild in George Gershwin's "An American in Paris" and "Rhapsody in Blue," followed by selections from "Hair," "Saturday Night Fiedler" and finally, "The Stars and Stripes Forever."

During the concert season, which runs through July 21, Fiedler plans to conduct one or two concerts a week, including the open-air Fourth of July performance on the banks of the Charles River.

His first Pops concert was on May 7, 1930, and orchestra sources say this will probably be Fiedler's last year of conducting the Pops.

NY Woman Wins Miss USA Pageant

BILOXI, Miss. (AP) — Mary Therese Friel's college education has been interrupted for at least a year, now that she's been named Miss USA.

The green-eyed blonde from Rochester, N.Y., will have to cut short her studies in pre-law and communications at St. John Fisher College, but she said Monday she would eventually return to the classroom.

As the winner of the national pageant, Miss Friel, 20, receives a $16,000 cash prize, a $10,000 personal appearance contract and a car.

She was the winner over 50 contestants from each state and the District of Columbia. She will represent the United States in the Miss Universe Pageant in Perth, Australia this July.

Miss Friel covered her face with her hands after host Bob Barker announced the four runners-up before 4,000 persons in the Mississippi Gulf Coast Coliseum and a national television audience.

The runners-up, in descending order, were Miss Washington, Tracey Goddard of Seattle; Miss Hawaii, Leialoha Maa of Kaneohe; Miss Illinois, Debra Niego of Oak Lawn; and Miss Mississippi, Laurie Kimbrough of Oxford.

"I had a gut feeling I could do it," said Miss Friel, who had never been to New York City before she began the round of pageants in her home state.

"There were some beautiful women in the pageant and you never know what the judges are looking for," said the winner.

"Part of it was luck. They liked me," she said. "I can't believe it. It'll hit me later."

Jesse Jackson Undergoing Tests

CHICAGO (AP) — The Rev. Jesse Jackson, who was admitted to a hospital after he complained of weakness and dizziness, is resting comfortably and undergoing tests, hospital officials say.

JACKSON

Dr. Andrew Thomas, Jackson's physician, said Monday the 37-year-old head of Operation PUSH is undergoing a "full and complete" checkup at St. Joseph's Hospital. Thomas said Jackson, who was admitted Sunday, is suffering from physical and emotional exhaustion and that further examinations continue. No details on his condition were given.

Jackson's father died March 29, and aides say that emotional strain, coupled with two weeks of hectic travel, could account for Jackson's condition.

Communists Honor Angela Davis

MOSCOW (AP) — American black activist Angela Davis has been awarded the Soviet Union's International Lenin Peace Prize for "strengthening of peace among nations."

The Soviet news agency Tass said Monday that the Committee on International Prizes, which hands out the awards, cited Miss Davis, 35, for working toward "friendship between the American and Soviet peoples, (and) for the development of all-around relations between the United States and the USSR."

Miss Davis, a professor in the ethnic studies program at San Francisco State College and a member of the American Communist Party, received another high Soviet award, the Lenin Jubilee Medal, in August 1972.

She visited the Soviet Union in January.

Prince Helps Save Rare Bird

MORGES, Switzerland (AP) — Prince Philip has yet to see the Australian scrub bird. But he did get to hear its shriek after he crawled through brush in a driving rain to help save the nearly extinct species.

The prince said in an interview published Monday in the newsletter of the World Wildlife Fund that he persuaded authorities in southern western Australia to shift a proposed town development plan to save the bird. The species once was believed extinct but has been spotted in the area.

The prince said he decided to visit state authorities and try to locate the bird himself.

"It was raining and there was a force eight gale," the prince said in the Buckingham Palace interview.

"The bird only lives in thick scrub. We crawled about in the bushes and got within about two yards of the thing."

The prince — who is president of the British branch of the Swiss-based organization — said that although he failed to see the bird; he identified its noisy shriek.

"It made a hell of a racket," he said.

Trio Challenges Mugshot Law

DENVER (UPI) — Three men who claim their religion prevents them from having their photographs taken for drivers' licenses intend to ask the U.S. Supreme Court to review their case.

The Colorado Supreme Court, in a 5-1 decision Monday, rejected claims of David Johnson, Anthony Vigil and Brent Perkins, members of a group called the "Assembly of YHWHHOSHUA." The court said there was a compelling state interest for requiring the photographs as identification.

The three argued their right to religious freedom was being infringed upon by a demand they be photographed before they could receive drivers' licenses.

Richard Borchers, a Denver attorney for the religious group, said Monday he will ask the U.S. Supreme Court to consider hearing the case.

The three men said the Bible directs they not allow any photographs of themselves, a belief based on a literal interpretation of the second commandment as pronounced in Exodus.

The commandment states: "Thou shalt not make unto thee any graven image, or any likeness of any thing that is in heaven above, or that is in the earth beneath, or that is in the water under the earth."

Borchers said the small group, based in Boone, Colo., and founded in the late 1930s, took its unpronounceable name because of a belief God's name should not be spoken on earth.

Gasoline Sold For 10 Cents

SALINA, Kan. (UPI) — A chance to buy up to 10 gallons of gas for a dime a gallon produced lines of cars about two miles long but authorities report the event went off without a hitch.

The event was all a part of a special promotion by radio station KSKG-FM, which will end up paying the difference between the 10 cents charged to the motorists and the regular price of the unleaded and leaded gasoline — 73.9 cents a gallon.

John Henshall, the station's news director, said cars, campers, vans and trucks began lining up at 11 p.m. Sunday — more than eight hours before the station opened — for the right to buy the gas.

Capt. Glen Kochanowski, of the traffic division, said there was a traffic tie-up when the service station began pumping the gas. He said police had to re-route traffic into one line because motorists were attempting to enter the station's lot from several directions.

"People were blocking intersections and driveways," Kochanowski said. "Once we got it lined up, the whole thing ran smoothly. I can't really say we had a traffic congestion or snarl."

Now Henshall is waiting for the bill, which he expects to receive within several days and figures will total more than $700.

Patient Shoots Doctor, Self

LOCKLAND, Ohio (UPI) — A 21-year-old man, apparently dissatisfied with the treatment his physician was giving him for a skin problem, shot and killed the doctor Monday and then turned the gun on himself.

Police said Joe Derminio walked into the house-office of Dr. S. Gregory Miceli, pulled out a .357 magnum revolver, and shot the doctor in the chest and then apparently shot himself in the chest.

Neighbors said Miceli had practiced medicine for more than 40 years in Lockland, a Cincinnati suburb. Derminio, who lived about a block from the doctor's house, had been treated for — but not cured of — a skin problem.

A police SWAT team, summoned by the doctor's nurse and two other patients who escaped, tried for three hours to contact Derminio before entering the house and finding the bodies.

National Smoker Study:

"Wish I'd Tried One Sooner."

Low tar MERIT proven major alternative to high tar smoking–see results below.

Can low tar MERIT packed with 'Enriched Flavor'™ tobacco measure up to the taste of high tar cigarettes?

Read the results from a nationwide research effort involving smokers who actually tested MERIT against leading high tar brands.

Results Confirm Breakthrough

Confirmed: Majority of smokers rate MERIT taste equal to—or better than—leading high tar cigarettes tested! Cigarettes having up to twice the tar.

Confirmed: Majority of smokers confirm taste satisfaction of low tar MERIT.

And in detailed interviews conducted among current MERIT smokers?

Confirmed: 85% of MERIT smokers say it was an "easy switch" from high tar brands.

Confirmed: Overwhelming majority of MERIT smokers say their former high tar brands weren't missed!

Confirmed: 9 out of 10 MERIT smokers not considering other brands.

First Major Alternative To High Tar Smoking

MERIT has proven conclusively that it not only delivers the flavor of high tar brands—but continues to satisfy!

This ability to satisfy over long periods of time could be the most important evidence to date that MERIT is what it claims to be: The first real taste alternative for high tar smokers.

OUR PLEDGE

We pledge allegiance to the Flag of the United States of America and to the Republic for which it stands, one Nation, under God, indivisible, with Liberty and Justice for all.

TODAY'S EDITORIAL:

It Won't Be Shangri-la

WE MAY BE certain that continuing delays in providing adequate energy for the future will have serious effects not only on all of our energy-related industries, but also on all aspects of the U.S. economy.

Until the end of the century, the available supplies are: oil, which we want to progressively de-emphasize; nuclear, which is facing almost a moratorium; and coal, from which much is expected—perhaps, too much.

"We all have been carrying this eminently rational story to the American people," said Thomas A. Vanderslice, senior vice president of the General Electric Co.

"We have been saying that coal and nuclear energy, along with oil and gas, are the available options until the next century."

BUT IT IS clear that the rational portrayal of options runs into the irrational concerns about nuclear safety.

The GE executive says he thinks we should recognize that what we, the American people, are being urged to accept is not an alternate energy system, "soft" versus "hard," but a completely different way of life.

It is a way of life, in Vanderslice's words, that is pictured as simpler, healthier, more harmonious with nature, and less exploitative of resources.

And the lever which is being used to move people toward this life-style, he says, is "fear."

FEAR OF endangering species, including the human race, is the bureaucracy's favorite weapon in its arsenal of scare tactics.

"We cannot combat this fear purely by documenting how irrational, unsupportable or containable it is," Vanderslice said in remarks prepared for the monthly journal Enterprise, magazine voice of the National Association of Manufacturers.

"Instead, I think, we should clarify for people how fearful are the alternatives to moderate energy growth and economic expansion."

We should be able to counterbalance the unprovable "dangers" of an energy system —which includes nuclear power—with the historically demonstrated terrors of hunger and joblessness.

To even the most vociferous critic it then should become obvious which is the better choice.

'That Nut Amin Deserves Whatever He Gets'

John D. Lofton:

'Morally Worse Than Murder?'

WASHINGTON—Capital punishment is again in the news, which is why I appeared recently on ABC's "Good Morning, America" show, where I debated Henry Schwarzschild, director of the American Civil Liberties Union's Capital Punishment Project.

The question was: "Should murderers be executed?" I said yes, Schwarzschild said no.

For the third time, the Supreme Court has refused to hear the appeal of a Florida Death Row inmate, John Spenkelink, who is seeking to avoid electrocution for the murder of his traveling companion in 1973.

In Alabama, John Lewis Evans has been sentenced to die for having shot his victim in the back as he moved to protect his two young daughters from thieves who had come to rob his shop. Evans would have already been executed a few days ago if no court intervened.

Nearly 500 other inmates are now awaiting the death penalty in 32 states.

Schwarzschild's position on capital punishment is, to put it kindly, rather bizarre. In that sense, it is consistent with his organization's position.

THE ACLU is strongly opposed to the death penalty for convicted murderers, but it is just as strongly in favor of abortion, which is capital punishment for innocent unborn children.

Schwarzschild is against the death penalty because "it is barbaric to put someone to death in order to discourage the entirely speculative future acts of others."

Executions, he says, are "morally rather worse than murder," since murder is "at least freakish, unexpected, and universally condemned," whereas executions are "done ceremoniously, under color of law," and teach us that "if the right people do it and they have a good enough reason for doing it, killing is all right. Which is precisely what every willful murderer thinks about himself."

Now, part of what Schwarzschild says deserves no response. The notion that a state-sanctioned execution, after due process of law, is somehow morally "worse" than a murderer taking his victim's life, with no due process of law, is ridiculous on its face.

The former act is clearly constitutional; the latter act is blatantly unconstitutional. As for the assertion that murder is "freakish" and "unexpected," this is simply not true in every case.

MANY MURDERS are committed with premeditation and malice aforethought. But even in these cases, Schwarzschild and the ACLU still oppose the death penalty—so his point is disingenuous.

If, however, the main argument for the death penalty was that it might deter future murderers from killing people, I would agree that such speculation about the future acts of others is not a sufficiently compelling reason to be for capital punishment.

I believe that murderers should be executed —that is, that they should have done to them what they do to their victims—because this punishment fits this crime. The death penalty for murder is a just and proportionate penalty.

Life imprisonment might deter murderers as much as the specter of death, but how many convicted murderers actually spend their lives in prison? Not many, if any at all. According to a Federal Bureau of Prisons study of 30 inmates serving time for homicide, the average time served by each was only 7.9 years, or 47 percent of their sentence.

THE QUESTION that must be thoughtfully pondered by those undecided about the deterrent value of capital punishment is this: Which is the greatest danger to society, if I am wrong or if Schwarzschild and the ACLU are wrong?

If I am wrong, a convicted murderer dies (which I argue he ought to because he has killed someone) and no one is deterred. But if Schwarzschild and company are wrong, and the death penalty does deter, a convicted murderer lives, serves a few years in prison and, as a result, more innocent people are murdered by killers who have not been deterred.

THE CRUCIAL distinction, however, which Schwarzschild seems unable to grasp, is that what is relevant is not what each of these parties thinks is right, but what is right. Murdering people is wrong, executing murderers is not wrong. One act is illegal, the other is legal.

But perhaps there is a compromise. Massachusetts State Rep. Gerald Cohen has filed a bill which calls for the execution of murderers. However, the bill says that if a person is strongly opposed to the death penalty he can file a sworn statement with the police waiving capital punishment if he or any members of his family are murdered.

How could anybody, even Henry Schwarzschild, oppose this idea? But I bet he does.

INSURED PROPERTY losses from the tornadoes which hit the Wichita Falls-Vernon area will be approximately $200 million, according to Tom B. Lee of Austin, general manager of the Texas Insurance Advisory Association.

That's more than four times the insured property loss from the previous most-devastating tornado to hit Texas—the May 11, 1970, storm in Lubbock, Lee said.

Total losses here were estimated at from $135 million to $150 million, but insurance covered only a fraction of that. Home insurance covered a greater percentage of the damage in Wichita Falls.

Property insurance rates won't be affected this year, Lee said, but homeowners throughout this part of Texas may as well get ready for the backlash of the Wichita Falls tornado to suck the dollars out of their pockets in future years.

Paul Scott:

Containment No Cure For Costs

WASHINGTON—Congressional hearings on President Carter's hospital cost containment legislation have raised some serious doubts about its effectiveness and whether Congress will approve it without some drastic changes.

Testimony and studies reveal there are major loopholes in the President's proposal for dealing with two of the main causes of soaring hospital costs—increased wages and government intervention.

As now pending in the Senate and House, the Carter administration's cost containment legislation would tend to increase these causes of inflated hospital costs rather than contain them.

Of major concern to the lawmakers is a "pass-through" provision for the wage increases of non-supervisory hospital employes in determining the amount hospitals would be allowed to increase their prices.

INSERTED IN the legislation by the White House to obtain organized labor's support, the controversial "pass-through" provision would exempt from control these wages which witnesses reported are the hospital's largest single costs.

Testimony at the hearings stressed that over 60 percent of a hospital's budget is due to non-supervisory labor costs. This exemption for wages was pictured as boosting hospital costs in the same way that fuel surcharges now boost fuel heating and other utility bills to consumers.

Another major factor in increased hospital costs not controlled in the administration's proposal is "government intervention."

Several witnesses warned that the legislation, as now drafted, would greatly increase this government intervention and thus add to the cost of hospital operations.

THE SOCIAL Security Administration, for example, has calculated that in 1975, the latest year for which figures are available, federal and state costs for administration of medicare and medicaid were $1.1 billion.

A graphic illustration of this broad-based "government intervention" in hospital operations was cited by officials of the Crouse Irving Memorial Hospital of Syracuse, N.Y. They reported that there are 164 different government agencies that supervise almost every aspect of their operations, thus greatly increasing their costs.

An analysis of the President's proposed legislation by the Heritage Foundation, a non-partisan public policy research organization here, stresses that it will greatly increase the government intervention into hospital operations, adding additional costs to hospital care.

It points out that "the extraordinary complexity of the methods of determining the 'price limits' for hospital care will force them to increase their staffs to handle the flood of new paper work." In turn, this increased cost of doing business will have to be passed along to the patients.

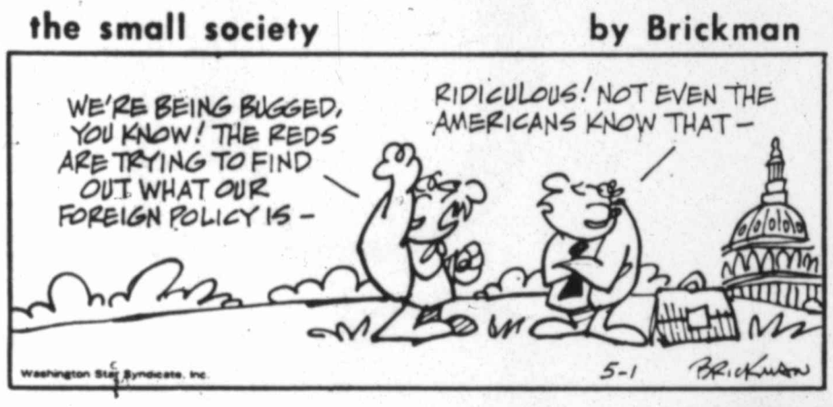

With President Carter pushing his hospital cost containment program as part of his administration's anti-inflation fight, the coming House-Senate debate on the legislation is expected to highlight these glaring deficiencies in controlling costs.

In the Senate, neither Sen. Russell Long, R-La., chairman of the Finance Committee, nor Sen. Herman Talmadage, D-Ga., chairman of the Health Subcommittee of the Senate Finance Committee, were willing to cosponsor the administration's bill because of these defects.

Senator Edward Kennedy, D-Mass., who is cosponsoring the legislation, has indicated considerable reservations and has announced plans to try to amend it to tighten control over most costs.

If these changes aren't made, the betting here is that the President's priority legislation will be sidetracked by Congress as it was in 1978.

Sylvia Porter:

Avoid Major Errors When Hiring Minors

IN JUST A few weeks, hundreds of thousands of you—perhaps millions—will be giving jobs to young teenagers out of school for the summer.

Many of you will be hiring your own kids, achieving your twin aims of supplying your child or children with spending money and gaining significant tax advantages.

Many others of you will be hiring children of friends or strangers and, in innocence, may make errors that will turn out to be irritations at best, painfully expensive violations of the Wage-Hour law at worst.

Do you know in detail the strict rules governing child labor in the U.S.?

Are you aware that there may be much more than a few bitter sentences behind a headline reporting that a 14-year-old had been permanently injured trying to operate a power-driven machine?

PROBABLY NOT—so here is a quiz which will reveal the rules you must obey when you hire minors this year.

Q: Can I hire anyone under age 14 for a summer job?

A: If you own the business and hire your own child, yes. In this case, there is no minimum-age restriction.

Also exempt from minimum-age restrictions, explains Prentice-Hall in a privately circulated letter on the subject, are children who deliver newspapers or distribute advertising handbills.

Q: What is the general minimum age for summer jobs?

A: It depends on the job. The minimum age for non-hazardous factory work is 16.

Q: WHAT IS "hazardous" work?

A: It's work entailing the operation of a motor vehicle or other types of machinery, work in a mine, or work that would expose the child to radioactive materials.

To illustrate: the under-16-year-old cannot work in a boiler room or in an engine room; cannot use greasepits, racks or lifting equipment in a service station; cannot work in a freezer, or cook or bake; cannot operate power-driven machines, load or unload trucks, or do warehouse work (except clerical).

Q: What work, then, can a 14 to 15-year-old do?

A: Clerical work, sales. As Prentice-Hall points out, this minor can pack customer's purchases in a retail store, make deliveries, run errands, do clean-up work, mark prices on the merchandise.

In a food service establishment, a 14-15-year-old can prepare and serve food, but cannot cook it. Also permitted is operation of equipment such as milkshake blenders, coffee grinders, toasters, dishwashers and dumbwaiters.

Q: HOW DO I get proof of the child's age? Ask for a birth certificate?

A: No. Federal and state anti-discrimination laws may forbid requests for a birth certificate, baptismal papers, the like.

The proper form to use is an age certificate or working papers, which the child can obtain from his or her school.

Q: Are there advantages in hiring a 16-year-old as opposed to hiring a 14-year-old?

A: Yes. The big difference is that the 16-year-old can work in or about manufacturing plants; under-16s cannot. Minors over 16 can work in all occupations that are not open to a 14 or 15-year-old (unless the occupation itself is among the 17 listed as "hazardous" by the Secretary of Labor).

Another advantage to hiring the minor, age 16 or older, is that this child is not bound by the same tight restrictions on hours worked as is the minor under age 16.

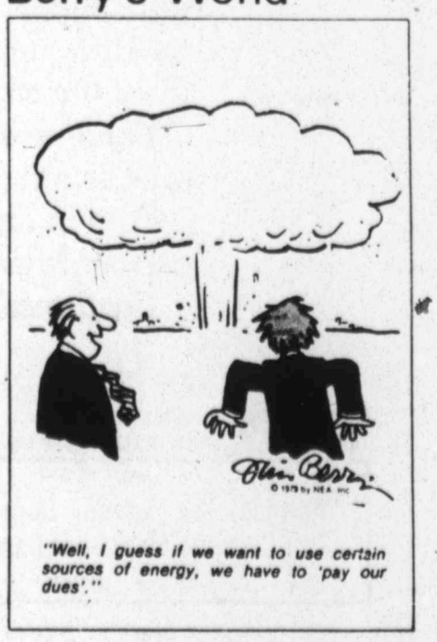

Q: What are those restrictions on hours worked that apply to the under-16?

A: Under the Wage-Hour law, the under-16 child is strictly prohibited from working more than eight hours in any day. When school is open, this child cannot work more than three hours a day—18 hours a week—hor can he or she start work before 7 a.m. or work beyond 7 p.m.

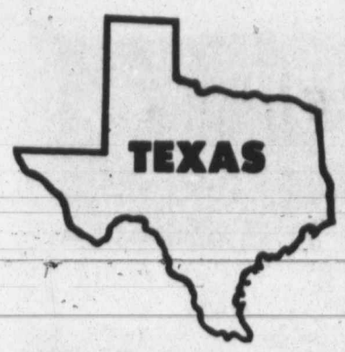

FROM JUNE 1 to Labor Day, though, the evening curfew hour is raised to 9 p.m. When school is closed (as it soon will be for so many millions of children) the maximum work week is 40 hours.

You are mandated not to withhold federal income taxes if the minor states on his or her W-4 that (a) he had no income tax liability for 1978, and (b) he expects to incur no tax liability for the year 1979.

High Levels Of Cyanide Found In Oil

PORT ARTHUR (AP) — Potentially dangerous levels of cyanide and other toxic chemicals have been found in road oil used to surface some rural roads in East Texas, The Port Arthur News has reported.

The Environmental Protection Agency in Dallas said Monday samples were taken late last week on a road in Corrigan, south of Lufkin in Polk County. The results will not be known for about two weeks.

However, the newspaper reported an independent chemical analysis by a Lamer University professor of road samples taken at subdivision known as Reily's Village showed potentially dangerous levels of toxic chemicals in 71,000 gallons of road oil used on a school bus route.

Dr. Edwin Eads, Lamar's director of environmental sciences, said cyanide nitrobenzene chloride and number of other chemicals that exist in the subdivision roads and nearby streams pose a threat to public health.

Records indicate the oil came from Browning-Ferris Industries, Chemical Services Division, Inc. of Nederland and was used by county or private developers to put on the roads. Browning-Ferris is a chemical waste disposal firm.

Browning-Ferris released a prepared statement in Houston Monday saying practices of the kind alleged in the News article "are completely contrary to BFI's policies and authorizied methods of operation."

"Should BFI's inquiries find any indication whatsoever that the allegations are even remotely correct, BFI would take prompt and effective steps to correct any deficiencies which are found," the statement said.

"BFI has begun its own internal investigation of the allegations in cooperation with the Texas Department of Water Resources and Region 6 of the Environmental Protection Agency. Laboratory test results from any source will not be available for approximately three weeks, however."

Reily's Village Mayor M.G. Reily told the News the road oil was available free to anyone who wanted it.

He said residents have complained about the smell and health problems, such as headaches, since the roads were coated last November.

Eads said the cyanide and other toxic chemicals he discovered in his analysis will utlimately wash away into nearby water bodies and finally large rivers which feed into the Port-Arthur-Beaumont area.

Eads said the presence of cyanide and other toxic chemicals in water can kill fish and other forms of wildlife.

Polk County residents said they have been sick more frequently since the sludge was put on the roads in November.

Houstonians Face Nervous Breakdowns

HOUSTON (AP)— Not that it comes as a surprise to many residents of the Houston area who have to drive to and from work each day, or hustle down the crowded sidewalks bumping elbows and shoulders, but the people of the nation's fifth largest city are facing a massive nervous breakdown.

That's the word from the Mental Health Association of Houston and Harris County after a study of the divorce rate, the juvenile crime rate, the drug and alcohol abuse rate, in this city called the "Golden Buckle of the Sun Belt."

The Houston metropolitan area, with an estimated population of 2.2 million, is growing by 1,000 persons a week, according to the latest Chamber of Commerce figures. Traffic is a daymare, with freeways bumper to bumper each morning and afternoon. After the rush hours, the major routes resemble a drag strip on a Sunday afternoon.

The Houston Chronicle even runs a daily report on Page One to report how many of the city's buses are out of service, how many runs have been canceled and how many late starts.

For example, Monday 166 buses of the total fleet of 499 were out of service, 14 runs were cancelled and there were 17 late starts.

This doesn't encourage people to use buses.

One driver, in a recent test, drove the speed limit the 13 miles from his office to his home. He was passed by 144 cars, 23 of them blowing horns because he was moving too slowly. He passed one vehicle and it was puffing smoke from an apparent over-heated engine.

The mental health association report stated, "Fifteen percent of the entire population of Harris County, or approximately 350,000 persons, will require some form of mental health care soon."

And, the report from a team of researchers added, "the most disturbing aspect of this increasing social disintegration is its effect on our children. Our figures on child abuse, the number of children who required mental health care, juvenile crime rates, show that our children are the victims of our inability to cope..."

The report concluded, "Unless the community and our public officials act on some of these urgent recommendations, the problems we are facing now in mental health care will soon become completely unmanageable."

Adding to the growing population and ever-increasing traffic, Houston was flooded last week by a heavy rainstorm that left 1,500 vehicles stalled, streets blocked, and tempers short. One wrecker driver admitted he had made $600 in cash in a few hours pulling away the drowned cars.

The mental association report listed several reasons for its findings of Houston's neurosis, including:

—There were 25,876 marriages, and 25,086 divorce suits filed in 1978.

—For the same year, there were 10,090 arrests for drunken driving and 14,125 arrests on drug charges.

The Crisis Hotline, a service that offers aid and counsel to distressed persons, received 60,099 calls last year, far above the preceding 12 months.

Several physicians contacted for comment refused to speculate on Houston as a flaky center until they had more time to study the situation.

But, Dr. James Watson, the Houston health director, said the addition of new mental facilities wouldn't solve the problem.

He said the trouble "is more and more emphasis on materialism. Possessions are becoming our masters rather than our being the masters of our possessions.

"The mental health needs or demands of a population can hardly be taken care of if they are the results of the maladjustment to prevailing circumstances," he said..

In other words, families should keep down their materialistic goals and set a more realistic approach to life.

That's fine. It was a silent weekend in Houston last Saturday and Sunday. Only one man held officers at bay with an arsenal of weapons for 12 hours, and three teen-agers were killed in a car wreck, and a store security guard was shot to death, and a man was found beaten to death, and there was a lot of little stuff.

Students Combine Fun With Learning

By LISA PAIKOWSKI
Avalanche-Journal Staff

Armed with balloons, postcards and homemade measuring devices, a group of Hunt Elementary students combined some fun with the scientific method Monday to learn about the weather.

Like the island castaway who sends a bottled SOS upon the sea, the young scientists sent aloft their balloons with attached postcards in hopes that someone will notify them of the fate of their projects.

Anita Smither, Hunt science teacher, hopes that the experiment also will teach her pupils the principles of wind direction and velocity.

The project was designed by Mrs. Smither to illustrate scientific principles to each of the 60 students in her fifth and sixth grade science classes. "It's important that each concept be illustrated by something concrete," she explained.

In order to illustrate wind speed and direction, each of the budding meteorologists was equipped with a helium balloon, a postcard and a clinometer (device for measuring angles and elevation) fashioned from a straw, protractor and a weighted string.

Each stamped and self-addressed postcard bears the name of the sender and a request that anyone finding the card return it to the sender and identify its landing site.

Though the fun of responses to their postcards is yet to come, the pupils already have begun their investigation of the scientific aspect of the project.

As each student released his balloon from a field adjoining the school, he charted the angle of the ascent of the balloon through the use of the clinometer at several 30-second intervals.

The angle was determined by observing the position of the weighted string against the degree marks on the protractor. The student sighted the balloon through the straw attached to the protractor and the string marked a new position as the balloon ascended higher and higher.

Today the students will analyze their data, and according to Mrs. Smither, "by calculating the time and the angle, you can calculate the speed of the wind."

As the pupils receive responses to their postcards, they will chart the locations of their balloons on an oversized map pinned on the classroom bulletin board.

Though Mrs. Smither has never attempted the project before, she said others have reported success in getting responses to their notes.

She doesn't have any idea how long it will take to get replies, but her students guessed at spans of anywhere from a week to two months.

Mixed with comments of praise for their teacher and dislike for science in general, the students also volunteered their preferences for the landing sites of their balloons.

"I hope mine lands in California," said Amanda Deshone. "I have a grandmother who lives there and I hope she gets it."

Katie Hawkins said, "I want mine to land in East Texas because that's where my kinfolk live."

In fact most wanted their balloons to land where they have relatives, except for Randy Cameron who didn't care where his lands and Audrey Johnson who wants hers to end up in Denver, Colo., "because it's the most interesting place."

Plainview Hires Administrators

A-J Correspondent

PLAINVIEW — The Plainview School Board Monday hired Jerry Don George as principal of the Plainview High School, effective July 1.

George, a Hereford school principal, signed to a three-year contract for a salary of $27,925. He will replace Bob Henry, who has resigned to accept a similiar position with the Carlsbad, N.M., school system.

The school board also named Vernon Norris director of curriculum. He will succeed newly named superintendent Lamont Veatch.

Larry Marshall of Lubbock was named director of special services for the Plainview school system.

Marshall currently is the regional director for Lubbock's Deaf Education Program and director of special services there.

Bill Designed To Cut Unemployment

AUSTIN (AP) — Employers could place job orders for their former employees under a bill whose sponsor says is aimed at getting more people off the unemployment rolls.

A person could lose between one to 13 weeks of unemployment pay if he or she refused to return to a former job, Sen. Roy Blake, D-Nacogdoches, told the Senate Economic Development Committee Monday.

Despite warnings that the bill probably violates federal law, the committee voted 6-0 to send the House-passed bill to the Senate floor.

"This will make sure that an employer can call the Texas Employment Commission and designate a particular person or group of individuals to come to work for him," said Blake.

"People are drawing unemployment compensation and their employer wants them back, but they won't come," he added.

Under present law, a person can lose unemployment benefits if they fail to accept "suitable employment" referred by the TEC, Blake said. However, employers cannot request specific indivduals an must consider all applicants referred by the employment agency.

The U.S. Labor Department said the original bill violated the Fair Labor Standards Act and the Federal Unemployment Tax Act, said Pat Joiner of the TEC.

Federal officials have not ruled on a revised version of the bill as passed by the House, he added.

"It is my opinion from informal discussions with them, that it does not (satisfy them)," he told the committee.

Blake disagreed and said the measure conformed with federal standards.

A former state employment commissioner agreed that the bill violates federal prohibition of profits being made on worker referrals from the state agency.

Joe Gunn, secretary-treasurer of the Texas AFL-CIO and former TEC member, said job placement services could request certain persons and then make money by using them to fill job orders.

The only witness testifying for the bill was Henry Rothell of the Texas Association of Business.

"This would be of benefit to all. If these people are taking off the unemployment rolls, there would be no further drain on the unemployment trust fund," he said.

Five Accused Of Theft At Policeman's Home

Theft and burglary charges were filed Monday against five young Lubbock men in connection with an April 20 break-in at the home of a Lubbock police lieutenant.

They are accused of stealing a television set, a pistol and other items from the home of Lt. Bill Knox in the 5400 block of 17th Place.

Burglary of a habitation charges were filed against Alton Ray Fulton, 17, of 1905 69th St. and Brent Kulik, address unavailable.

Fulton and Kulik also were charged with burglary of a habitation in an April 9 break-in at the 5400 23rd St. home of a Lubbock man in which two rifles, a shotgun and a microwave oven were taken.

Kulik had not been apprehended Monday.

Theft charges in the Knox burglary were filed against Raymond Leroy Amstead, 20, of 221 Indiana, No. A-101; Victor Puorray, 22, of 221 Indiana, No. A-101; and Willie Soliz, 17, of 618 39th St.

A 16-year-old juvenile also was arrested in connection with the Knox burglary.

Other charges filed by the criminal district attorney's office included three delivery of cocaine charges against Blas Marcus Torres Jr., 22, address unavailable.

Torres is accused of selling cocaine to Department of Public Safety narcotics agents on three occasions here last October.

Justice of the Peace Wayne LeCroy set bonds totaling $125,000 against him.

Aggravated robbery charges were filed against Carolyn Sue Heaton, 19, of 1514 23rd St. and Martha Maxine Heaton, 21, of 1119-C 43rd St.

Miss Heaton is accused of taking part in a Jan. 11 holdup at a 1601 66th St. convenience store and Martha Maxine Heaton of taking part in a Nov. 22, 1978, holdup at a 4201 Boston Ave. convenience store.

Three Lubbock men already have been charged in the robberies.

Grad Students Earn Honors

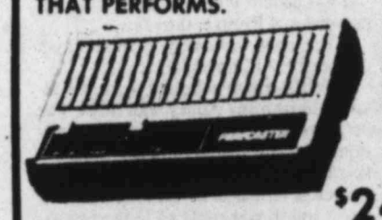

Eleven Texas Tech "outstanding graduate student-teachers" have been selected for special recognition and $100 cash awards from the Office of the Vice President for Research and Graduate Studies.

They were chosen from departments and programs in which the doctoral degree is offered and in which a number of teaching assistants and part-time instructors are employed.

This year's recipients are Mary Louise Ettel, chemistry; Gary K. Froehlich, engineering; Robert S. Hamrin, business administration; Lynda Ann Haynes, home and family life; Stephen C. Head, history; Rodney L. Honeycutt, biological sciences; Charles H. Neil, mathematics; Susan E. Pickett, music; William Doyle Smith, economics; Douglas F. Watson, English; and Patrick S. Williams, psychology.

This is the sixth year the award has been made for outstanding graduate student-teachers.

Crowds Protest Against Draft

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A House subcommittee's approval of resuming military registration for 18-year-old men for the first time since Vietnam already has brought shouting protesters into the halls of Congress.

There will be more of the same across the country.

The House Armed Services subcommittee on military personnel voted unanimously Monday to require the president to register all males who become 18 on or after Jan. 1, 1981.

The proposal, which must be approved by the full committee before it can be debated by the House as part of legislation authorizing weapons purchases and setting military strength ceilings, would not go into effect until after the 1980 congressional and presidential elections.

Several hundred young people, waving Vietnam-era signs that depicted draft card burnings and resist-the-draft slogans, protested against registration as a step toward resuming the draft and chanted, "Hell, no, we won't go!" outside the Capitol.

About 100 of them later jammed a House office building hallway outside the office of Rep. Paul McCloskey, R-Calif. They continued their chant and argued noisily with the congressman, who has proposed that all youths — men and women — be obligated to perform either civilian or military service.

Rev. Barry Lynn, head of the Committee Against Registration and the Draft, condemned the registration plan as "a fraudulent and cowardly act" and said, "We want a full-blown debate before they take any of us away again."

Congressmen who addressed the rally pledged to fight the proposal. The demonstration was one of 70 scheduled across the nation this week.

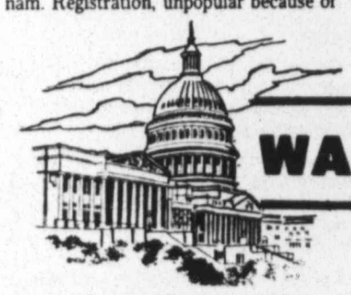

The last draft call-up was in 1972 as American troops prepared to leave Vietnam. Registration, unpopular because of the Indochina war and scorned by many young men who refused to comply, was scrapped three years later.

But registration and possible return of the draft now are being discussed because of claims the all-volunteer military system cannot draw enough qualified recruits.

The subcommittee's plan calls for the president to tell Congress whether he wants standby authority to impose actual call-ups for military service.

It would leave it up to Carter — who has said he opposes the draft and has taken no position on registration — whether he would require young men to report for registration and classification or simply take their names from existing lists such as Social Security and income tax records.

The subcommittee sidestepped the issue of whether women would be registered for the first time in history, even though men-only registration is sure to become the object of sex discrimintion lawsuits. The subcommittee tied its plan to the existing law, which specifies only

STILL FIGHTING — Four years after she was denied a job, Kathleen Bishop is still fighting a Justice Department policy that frowns upon its unmarried attorneys living with members of the opposite sex. Carter's Plan Faces Test In Committee

WASHINGTON (AP) — After clearing the Senate, a plan President Carter backs for a separate Education Department faces its toughest test yet in a House committee where critics hope to waylay it.

The Senate approved the bill, 72-21 Monday. Wednesday, the House Government Operations Committee begins to draft its own version of the plan.

Rep. John Erlenborn, R-Ill., and other opponents of a 13th cabinet-level department, are vowing to oppose the plan during the drafting process.

In the last Congress, the Senate passed a somewhat different Education Department bill. The House committee also approved authorizing legislation, but the plan fell victim to time pressures as the Congress ended.

President Carter, who endorsed a separate Education Department during the 1976 presidential campaign, said Monday the Senate vote "confirms the inadequacy of the existing administrative structure."

The department "will eliminate bureaucratic duplication necessitated by the current organization structure. It will cut red tape for states, local governments and others who deal with federal education programs," he said.

The proposed agency would have an annual budget exceeding $13 billion and more than 17,000 employees to oversee about 170 programs.

Opponents, however, claim many programs — including Head Start, Indian education, veterans' education and child nutrition — will be left outside the new department.

They also voice concern that a centralized Education Department would interfere with traditional state and local school matters.

Supporters counter that there's no intent to impose federal control over education. Instead, the new department would improve management and increase accountability by removing layers of bureaucracy now interfering with federal aid to education.

The Senate, during debate of the bill, rejected an amendment to forbid schools from offering sex-education programs without parents reviewing course materials and providing written consent.

Woman Continues Fight Against Policy

WASHINGTON (AP) — Four years after she was denied a job, Kathleen Bishop is still fighting a Justice Department policy that frowns upon its unmarried attorneys living with members of the opposite sex.

Now settled comfortably in another government job, Miss Bishop refuses to drop her 1975 lawsuit that charges the department with violating her right to privacy and her religious freedom.

"I would like to be vindicated and also make certain it doesn't happen to others," she said Monday. "My religious conscience does not believe I was committing a sin. I don't believe the Justice Department has an interest over whether I'm committing a sin or not."

In a similar case, the Virginia Supreme Court ruled April 20 that an unmarried female attorney could not be prohibited from taking the Virginia bar exam because she lived with a man.

Now 33, Miss Bishop is buoyed by a federal judge's ruling three days later that refused to dismiss the case. U.S. District Chief Judge William B. Bryant also criticized the department for saying in a September 1977 legal brief: "Cohabitation out of wedlock is ... widely regarded as a sign of low character."

Shortly after it was filed with the court, Justice officials tried to withdraw the legal brief. Bryant wouldn't let them.

The chief of the department's civil division, Barbara Babcock, said Monday that because of Bryant's ruling, she will call for a review of hiring policy. "I think it's good she (Miss Bishop) is pursuing it. Now we'll have to face it and decide," she said.

Two department officials stressed Monday that the policy expressed in the 1977 legal brief on cohabitation is not department policy in practice.

William R. Robie, the Justice official who makes final recommendations on attorney hirings, said cohabitation could be a factor in employment, but it "is not a priority consideration."

And Terrence Adamson, chief spokesman for Attorney General Griffin B. Bell, said he's aware of 10 cases in which an FBI background check indicated an unmarried applicant lived with a member of the opposite sex. "All the people were given offers," he said.

Still, the Justice Department has not agreed to bow out and concede to Miss Bishop, who seeks a ruling that "denial of employment to any unmarried applicant on the basis of ... personal and private living arrangements is unlawful."

In fact, the department contends the issue is moot because Miss Bishop applied for a law clerkship designed for a student. She has since graduated from law school and works as a program analyst for the Department of Housing and Urban Development.

Blumenthal, Japanese Friend Reunited

WASHINGTON (AP) — About 40 years ago, a young Japanese ship's purser befriended a poor German-Jewish lad traveling with his family to a new life in Shanghai, China.

The youth, now 53 and secretary of the U.S. Treasury, has not forgotten the kindness.

Monday, in his veloured and brocaded, third-floor office at the Treasury Department, W. Michael Blumenthal served tea and reminisced about that voyage with Tadashi Furuno of Tokyo.

"You became my friend," Blumenthal said. "You looked after me."

"Your family, too," reminded Furuno.

Blumenthal, his parents and an older sister had fled their native Germany in 1939 as the Nazis stepped up violence against Jews. They moved to Naples, Italy. Then, almost penniless, they boarded a Japanese steamer for Shanghai.

It was aboard the S.S. Haruna that Blumenthal met Furuno, then 26.

"The purser was a very important man on the ship," Blumenthal recalled.

"The (German) refugees were not allowed to take any money with them. The only way to get some cash out was to pay it into the (steamship company) office in Hamburg. It was 'board' money to buy cigarettes or drinks on the ship ... If you didn't use it, you could go to the company office after the trip in Shanghai.

"Our board money was about $150. It was all we had. We consumed nothing on the ship. What's important is that it was the purser who kept the accounts."

Blumenthal did not speak Japanese and Furuno did not speak German, but the two became friends during the month-long voyage "with a little French" and body language.

Blumenthal recalls sukiyaki dinners on deck, swimming lessons in a shipboard pool, and ice cream every night.

It was a picture Furuno had taken of Blumenthal that reunited the two, they explained.

When publications reported three years ago that Blumenthal was leaving as chairman of the Bendix Corp. to join President Carter's cabinet, Furuno remembered the photo of a child named Blumenthal. He wrote, picture enclosed, and the Treasury secretary responded.

The two had their first reunion in Tokyo two years ago. Monday, with Furuno, an English-language specialist for the steamship company Nihon Yusen, here on a pleasure trip, they met again.

On the street outside Blumenthal's office, flags of Japan and the United States flew in honor of Japanese Prime Minister Masayoshi Ohira, here to discuss trade and security issues with Carter this week.

"You'll notice that we put up all the flags for you," Blumenthal teased Furuno.

"I am honored, deeply honored," Furuno responded.

ANTIQUATED BRIDGES

WASHINGTON (AP) — The National Society of Professional Engineers says many highway bridges designed and built years ago are unable to hold the weight of today's large truck traffic. Of 235,000 bridges recently inventoried, 7,000 were deemed structurally deficient and almost 27,000 — more than 10 percent — were found to be obsolete, the society told a House subcommittee on transportation, aviation and weather in a recent statement.

Congressmen Want Budget Balanced

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congress first should concern itself with balancing the federal budget over the next two years, rather than slashing taxes, say two influential members of Congress.

While Congress traditionally tends to cut taxes in election years, the statements indicate a choice will have to be made between large tax reductions and a balanced budget.

Speaking at a seminar Monday, Sen. Russell Long and Rep. Al Ullman expressed their hope that their colleagues would approve a balanced budget for fiscal year 1981, which begins Oct. 1, 1980.

Ullman, an Oregon Democrat who chairs the House Ways and Means Committee, said the push to balance the budget by then would "virtually eliminate any possibility of major tax reductions."

Long, chairman of the Senate Finance Committee, said it seemed unlikely that the nation could afford a tax cut "unless we have something like a value-added tax that I would like to see."

The Louisiana Democrat has been a proponent of a new value-added tax to partially replace income and Social Security taxes. A value-added tax imposes a levy at each stage of production of goods.

The seminar was sponsored by the U.S. Chamber of Commerce.

Meanwhile, the House opened debate Monday on the budget committee's recommendation for a $532.7 billion budget for the 1980 fiscal year, beginning Oct. 1.

Rep. Robert Giaimo, budget committee chairman, warned that if Congress fails to hold the line on federal spending, it will probably be forced to do so by a budget-balancing constitutional amendment.

The Connecticut Democrat also cautioned against reducing spending much below the committee's recommendation. Substantial cuts "could turn what we see as an economic downturn ahead into a return to recession," he said.

But Republican committee members filed a dissent with the recommendation. They argued the panel's Democratic majority proposed a budget that "belongs to the free-spending heydays of the Great Society."

Brazilian Envoy Shuns Rules Of Diplomacy Game

By GEORGE GEDDA

WASHINGTON (AP) — "He can be charming for a while, and then the knives come out."

A knowledgable American student of Brazilian affairs was speaking of Antonio Francisco Azeredo da Silveira, Brazil's former foreign minister who has become a legend around the State Department because of his acid tongue.

American officials had assumed that a major side benefit of the change in administration in Brasilia last month was that Brazil would finally get a new foreign minister. Relations between the two countries, it was thought, would no longer be poisoned by Silveira's invective.

A new foreign minister, Ramiro Saraiva Guerreiro, was appointed. Then, President Joao Figueiredo dropped a bombshell: Silveira was being sent to Washington as ambassador.

Diplomacy was once described by a British cynic as the art of engaging in 'polite, optimistic guff." Silveira obviously doesn't see his role that way.

When President Carter visited Brazil a year ago, Silveira shunned the role of gracious host by pointedly telling reporters that Carter had, in fact, invited himself.

Undaunted, Carter invited then-President Ernesto Geisel to visit the United States. Thanks but no thanks, Silveria said. Geisel has no time for such things.

Earlier, the two countries had clashed over Brazil's plans to buy a nuclear reprocessing plant from West Germany.

Deputy Secretary of State Warren Christopher flew to Brazil shortly after the Carter administration took office to explain the U.S. position.

Afterward, U.S. officials said Silveira was responsible for a "totally distorted, self-serving" explanation to reporters of the results of the Christopher mission.

When Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance went to Brazil several months later to raise the nuclear issue again, Brazil again stood firm. Silveira, in a subsequent interview with the Washington Post, called Vance's position "childish."

Although the ground rules of the interview did not permit attributed quotes, officials said the remarks were Silveira's.

Silveira also took offense at the U.S. emphasis on protection of human rights. Seeing this as interference in Brazilian internal affairs, Silveira retaliated by canceling a 25-year old military assistance program with the United States.

When rumors began spreading earlier this year that Figueiredo might appoint Silveira as ambassador, a U.S. official said, "They wouldn't dare."

He, like all of those willing to talk about Silveira, asked not to identified by name.

It is not uncommon for nominally pro-Western Third World countries to stake out an anti-American position as a means of asserting an independent foreign policy.

President Carter found that out in February during his visit to Mexico when President Jose Lopez Portillo publicly accused the United States of fostering "mistrust and open hostility."

For Brazil and the United States, the most troublesome issue is nuclear power. Brazil felt the 1973-74 fourfold increase in the world price of oil was a threat to its economic growth — and to its aspirations of becoming a world power.

As a substitute for oil, Brazil turned to nuclear power and signed a contract with West Germany in 1975 to buy facilities that would give Brazil the capability to produce nuclear weapons.

The battle lines were drawn in 1977 when Carter took office determined to halt the spread of nuclear weapons. His effort to get West Germany and Brazil to call off their deal began during his first week in office.

Normally, when differences occur between countries, diplomats try to minimize them by avoiding public debate. By departing from the diplomatic norm, Silveira has made a bad situation worse, a U.S. official said.

Silveira's audacity, however, does not seem to have cost Brazil much in its relations with the United States. The Carter administration, rather than giving Brazil the diplomatic cold shoulder, appears to have redoubled its efforts to improve relations.

Vance visited Brazil in 1977, Carter in 1978 and Vice President Walter Mondale this year. Silveira's appointment was announced within hours after Mondale concluded a goodwill visit last month.

The Brazilian government offered assurances that Silveira's appointment should not be viewed as an impediment to better ties. American officials were unsure about that and wondered why Silveira wanted to come here. They also wondered why Silveira, given his penchant for plain speaking, wanted to be a diplomat in the first place.

Dog Causes Plane Crash

GEORGIA, Vt. (UPI) — When the dog saw John Kissane's plane coming in for a landing he dashed out on the runway to greet him.

Kissane, 64, of Georgia, told authorities he pulled up to avoid hitting the dog Saturday as he was about to touch down at a private landing strip.

When he did, the plane snagged a utility line and crashed upside down in a nearby field.

Kissane and a passenger, Werton Whiting, 64, also of Georgia, suffered minor injuries and were treated at a St. Albans Hospital and later released.

"That dog used to fly with me all the time, and when he saw me coming, he dashed out," Kissane said.

Train Station Up For Rent In Britian

LONDON (UPI) — For rent: Large rural residence with huge entry hall. Ideal for commuter and heavy sleeper with friendly outlook.

Contact British Railways.

The station at Roydon, 30 miles east of London, is up for rent.

Although the front hall — formerly the waiting room — might be a bit cavernous for most family's needs, it does offer the option of instant commuting for the head of the family. The tracks are a mere 10 feet away.

Being a sound sleeper helps. Some 133 trains roar past the station every day and last train from London chugs by at 12:20 a.m. The first morning train whips through roughly one hour later.

But there's always the opportunity to meet lots of new people —the 3,000 who walk past the door every week on their way to buy tickets at the new station across the way.

A British Railways spokesman said no price has been set for the station pending applications for several government grants. But he said the 135-year-old building would require at least $40,000 worth of renovation.

"Most people who think of using it as a house aren't too keen once they find out it's 10 feet from the line," he said.

Advice Offered On Resumes

NEW YORK (AP) — A job resume has only one purpose — to get an interview. You sell yourself at that interview, according to the new Sheer Energy Career Guide.

The guide offers this advice:

—Begin your rough draft by listing all information relevant to the job, including hobbies and volunteer work.

—Try your resume out on a few critical friends.

—Avoid cliches such as "Health: Excellent."

—Your marital status and age can also be excluded.

Virtually everyone you know is a "contact" when hunting down a job, the guide points out. Neighbors, old school friends, or your doctor — who may hear of a job through another patient — are all sources of job leads. Always ask permission before using a name for a lead.

Strauss Optimistic About Peace Talks

WASHINGTON (AP) — Robert S. Strauss says there are reasons to be optimistic that an agreement may be reached between Egypt and Israel on the future of Palestinians on the West Bank of the Jordan River.

Strauss, President Carter's newly named ambassador for the upcoming peace talks, declined Sunday to detail his reasons for optimism, other than to say "the will of the parties and the yearning for peace." In an interview on NBC's "Meet the Press," Strauss said there also were reasons for concern. But he said he met with Egyptian President Anwar Sadat and Israeli Prime Minister Menaihem Begin and found they had a "burning desire ... for peace."

Opening lead: King of ◇.

In days of yore, a military genius once stoutly maintained that Providence was on the side of the strongest battallions. It is much the same at the bridge table. Luck usually favors the player who is able to take care of himself.

The bidding was well judged. South's heart rebid confirmed that he had positive values, though not enough for a jump rebid of his own suit. North felt his trump holding and good five-card suit just merited a raise.

Obviously, a spade lead would have left declarer with no play for his contract, but West was not blessed with X-ray vision and made the normal opening of the king of diamonds. At one table in a team match, declarer won as East followed with the two and, observing that his combined trump holding was only eight, took the percentage play in the trump suit. He cashed the ace of hearts and finessed the jack.

West won the queen of hearts and, mindful of his partner's two on the first diamond lead, elected to shift — and spades was the obvious suit to attack. The queen of spades through the king netted the defenders three tricks there for down one.

Declarer's play in trumps would have been correct had there been no outside factors to consider. However, a glance at the hand should have warned South that the major danger lay in allowing West to regain the lead for a spade shift.

Since declarer could afford to lose a trump trick and two spades if he could keep West off lead, he should have followed the play adopted by the "lucky" declarer at the other table. At trick two, he led a heart but, instead of rising with the ace, he finessed the nine!

That allowed East to win a trick with the ten, but the contract was now almost guaranteed if trumps were 3-2. East has no way to reach his partner's hand for a lead through the king of spades. Suppose he returns a diamond. Declarer ruffs, crosses to the ace of hearts and returns to his hand with another diamond ruff to draw the last trump with the king. When clubs break 3-2, declarer can discard two losing spades on the clubs, and make an overtrick—lucky devil!

Fiesta Biscuit Tacos Add Flair For A South-of-the-border Meal

CHICAGO (Special) — Bring South-of-the-border flair to your kitchen or patio with everyday corn biscuits and a dash of ingenuity. A unique variation of biscuits spiced with pimento turns the ordinary into an adventure in foreign dining.

Better yet, it's fast and easy. Fiesta Biscuit Tacos made with enriched self-rising flour and corn meal are done in a jiffy. The filling, which relies on a package of seasoning mix, is just as convenient. So, even if you're the cook, practically all you have to do is eat and enjoy.

Enriched self-rising flour and corn meal make biscuit baking a snap. Since the baking powder and salt are already in the flour and corn meal, you simply cut in the shortening and add milk. Then roll or pat out the dough, cut and bake.

Browned beef and onion along with savory Mexican spices handsomely enhance the corny biscuit base. Shredded cheese, sour cream and avocado slices add the flourishes that have you believing that you are south of the border.

Whether in the United States or Mexico, nothing can beat enriched self-rising flour and corn meal. They are two of the world's oldest convenience foods. What makes them extra-special is the enrichment. It insures the essential B-vitamins — niacin, thiamin and riboflavin — and the minerals, iron and calcium.

FIESTA BISCUIT TACOS

1 cup enriched self-rising corn meal
1 cup enriched self-rising flour
¼ cup shortening
¼ cup (2 oz. jar) chopped pimento, drained
½ to ¾ cup milk
1 lb. ground beef
1 (1¼ oz.) pkg. taco sauce mix
½ cup chopped onion
1 cup shredded cheddar cheese
1 cup sour cream
1 sliced avocado

Stir together corn meal and flour. Cut in shortening until mixture resembles coarse crumbs. Stir in pimiento. Blend in enough milk to make soft dough. Turn onto lightly floured surface; knead gently 30 seconds. Roll dough out to ½-inch thickness. Cut with 3-inch round biscuit cutter. Place on ungreased baking sheet. Bake in preheated 450 degree oven 12-15 minutes. Meanwhile, prepare ground beef and taco sauce mix according to package directions, adding onion while browning beef. Split biscuits in half. Top each half with 2-3 tablespoons meat mixture, a heaping tablespoon of cheese and a heaping tablespoon of sour cream. Garnish with avocado slices. Makes 12 biscuit tacos.

DEAR ABBY

DEAR ABBY: My husband won't let me register to vote. He says I might have to spend a month locked up in a motel with other members of a jury and no way will he allow that!

I realize that the chances of this happening are remote, but I suppose it could happen. I run a business at home and have a 4-year-old child to take care of, so I probably could be excused from jury duty anyway.

Our marriage has enough problems without adding another one, so I've abided by his wishes, but I'd really like to vote in the next election because so many important issues are coming up.

Should I go behind my husband's back and register?

Wants To Vote

Dear Wants: No. Register in front of his face. And don't worry about being stuck with jury duty. If you have legitimate reasons for being excused, you will be.

The right to vote is not only a privilege, it's the responsibility of every citizen who wants a voice in how his country should be run and by whom. By choosing not to vote, you forfeit your right to criticize your government's policies and its elected officials. Edmund Burke said, "The only thing that is necessary for the triumph of evil is for good men to do nothing." I'm with Edmund.

DEAR ABBY: What do you think of a gentleman who lets a lady win in a game of sports or cards?

Gilda

Dear Gilda: If a gentleman lets a lady KNOW that he has let her win, he's either a bad actor or he's no gentleman.

DEAR ABBY: I've been widowed for six years and have two children, 8 and 10. For two years I've been living with a man who lights up my life. My children adore him (they think we're married), and we're a very happy family even though it's not legal.

My live-in friend and I bought a house together (as "Mr. and Mrs.") and we share all the household expenses.

A lot of people think we're married. We just never talk about our relationship. (I am "Mrs." on the mailbox, and we have "Mr. and Mrs." charge accounts, etc.)

I was recently left $100,000 by a relative. Ever since my friend heard about it he has been planning on how "we" will spend it. (He wants to buy a boat.)

I would like to put it in trust for my children. What I need to know, Abby, is this: What will happen to my children if I should die? He is not their real father, and he hasn't adopted them. And what will happen to ME if HE should die? I'm sure he's made no provisions for me in his will.

Needs Advice

Dear Needs: Both you and your live-in friend should see a lawyer and have these questions answered immediately. Don't put it off, don't assume anything and take nothing for granted! Take your legal questions to a lawyer and pay him for what he knows. It's the best investment you can make.

If you put off writing letters because you don't know what to say, get Abby's booklet, "How to Write Letters for all Occasions." Send $1 and a long, stamped (28 cents), self addressed envelope to Abby: 132 Lasky Drive, Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212.

Many Fall For Fad Foods

By GAYNOR MADDOX

A sensational tabloid recently headlined an article, "Vitamins will cure all your physical ills and also solve your emotional problems." This nonsense appeared not only in the newspaper, but also in a television advertisement for it.

The article could well have increased the ranks of the nation's health-food addicts, many of whom waste money needed for wholesome food on "magical" vitamins and other preparations.

With food prices continuing to rise every day, the growing food faddism has become a financial hazard as well as a health hazard.

Food advertisements make only partially verified claims for products' nutritional superiority. The extra cost is worth it, we are assured.

For example, they fallaciously claim that products rich in fiber prevent cancer. And that anything containing cholesterol is dangerous.

Unfortunately, countless Americans believe these frightening tales.

Remember that an advertisement's nutritional advice is not to be compared to that of a doctor or other health specialist. A visit to a health-food store is not the equivalent of a visit to an accredited nutrition scientist.

Philip L. White, director of the American Medical Association's Department of Foods and Nutrition, reports that a conference came up with these explanations for the current wave of food faddism, or experimention with alternative dietary regimens:

— The search for therapeutic miracles.
— The response to fear.
— The search for authority or rituals.
— The desire for a long life, "super" health or a "high."
— The search for "truth."
— The tendency to follow currently popular trends.

Certainly the environment today is more conducive to food faddism and cultism than ever before.

White notes in Contemporary Nutrition, that 42 percent of those interviewed in one recent survey said they would not be convinced by almost unanimous expert opinion that a so-called "cancer cure" was worthless. And only 45 percent thought such a product should be banned.

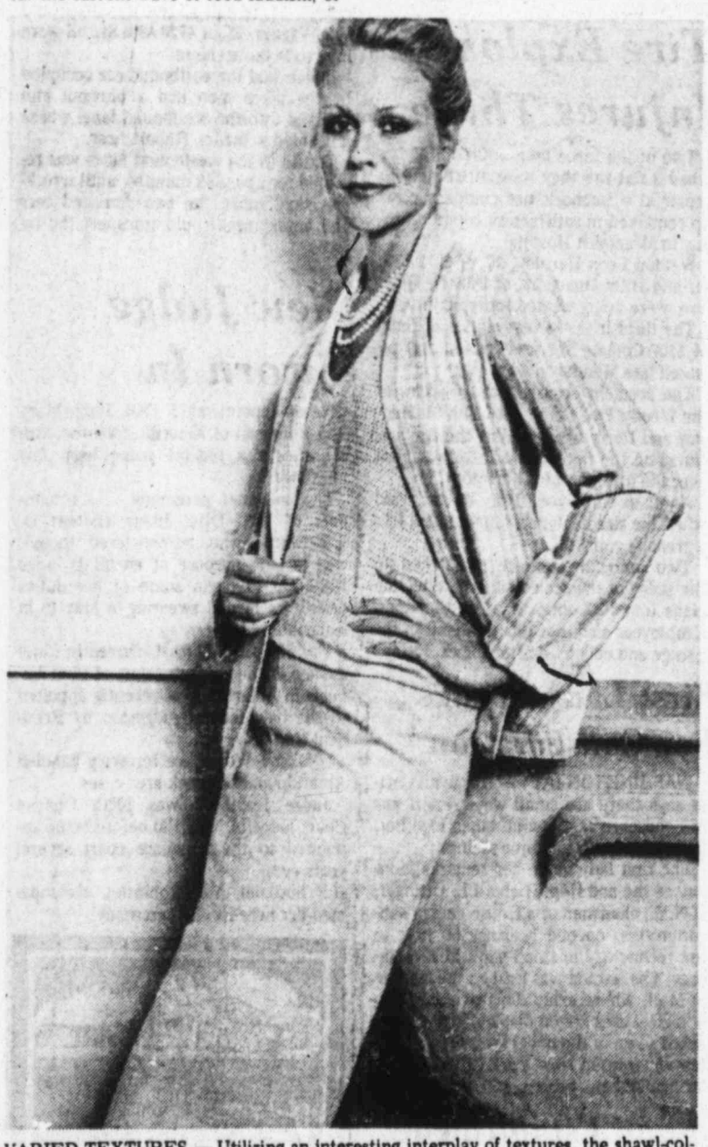

Is it any wonder that so many people are clamoring for laetrile?

About 75 percent of the public believes that extra vitamins provide more pep and energy. And 26 percent have used nutritional supplements expecting observable benefits — without a doctor's advice.

"While some people act on the basis of specific beliefs, true or false, many more make health decisions believing that 'anything is worth a try,'" says White.

As a result, White concludes that a majority of Americans are in danger of becoming food faddists to some degree — despite the fact that our national health has never been better.

Suicide Attempters Receive Assistance From Group

By PATRICIA McCORMACK
Women's News Service

Olean K. Swallen has a break in his heart.

But he is not alone.

As he tells it, hundreds of parents each year are wrenched from the inside out by an event identical to the one that broke his heart.

Swallen's daughter, an airline stewardess, killed herself in Urbana, Ohio, a while back. She was 29. She tried to kill herself once before the successful attempt.

"In six years," he said, "she never missed a flight and she was always on time. But all of us around her missed the signals that she was not getting over a depression that made her seek care from a doctor."

The retired Columbus, Ohio, businessman said he is making the rest of his life's work suicide prevention. So lives can be saved. So parents can be spared guilt and grief.

Thirty thousand Americans each year jump out windows or aim a gun at their heads and pull the trigger or gulp a lethal brew of booze and too many sleeping pills — or kill themselves some other way.

Suicide is second only to accidents as a cause of death among youths 15 to 25. For every suicide, there are 10 attempts among those whose interiors are a jumble of jagged emotions.

"Psychological autopsies," according to Swallen, "show depression over a broken home or a wrecked romance most often trigger suicides among young Americans."

He said in a psychological autopsy social scientists, doctors and psychologists look into the emotional, mental and social facts of a suicide victim's life — reading letters written to relatives and friends, talking with business associates and others, trying to isolate the probable cause.

"If I had known then what I know now about how attempters could be helped, perhaps my daughter would be alive today," Swallen said.

The attempters wake in hospitals. They are repaired physically, and through psychotherapy, emotional support and even prayer are put together again. Efforts are made to give them a brighter outlook, and guidelines for surviving disappointments.

Swallen wants to start a foundation that helps cut suicides in the nation — especially among those under 25.

"My initial feeling to my daughter's death was one of numbness and stunned disbelief," he said.

He said he could not comprehend how such a thing could happen — especially since his daughter, Linda, was under treatment for depression at the time.

Still gripped by grief, Swallen said he tried to find out what could have prevented the suicide. He did a lot of reading and went to a national convention on Suicidology in New Orleans.

"I immediately saw a big gap among families, psychiatrists and ministers on the problem," he said.

One thing led to another and soon Swallen became a volunteer director of Suiciders Anonymous in Ohio. He said the organization, patterned after Alcoholics Anonymous, is for attempters.

He also is starting up a voluntary health association that will educate the public in suicide prevention, set up a central clearinghouse for information on suicide, and train laymen and health professionals in ways to handle attempters — and run suicide hotlines.

"I want to touch the heartstrings of human beings interested in helping broken persons to reach for hope," he said.

"I want to raise millions and I know I will raise millions for this purpose."

Swallen showed an accountant's statement of his net worth. He has money in the bank and with the interest from that, plus his Social Security check, he said he is financially independent.

He had the certified statement on his personal finances drawn up to show he is not aiming at personal profits.

Swallen said Suiciders Anonymous is run by Robert Schuller Ministries in Garden Grove, Calif. It has about a dozen chapters, being young as an organization.

"It is not a suicide prevention program," says the Suiciders Anonymous information sheet.

"Prevention is an activity for which we are unqualified. For that service we refer to the experts in the field.

"We are not reformers. We do not try to force a particular belief or program on another person. We work with a person only when invited by that person.

"We are not the only answer to this problem. We provide one answer that we have found helpful having recovered ourselves from an attempted suicide.

"We are interested in sharing with others who have also attempted suicide our common experience of depths, recovery and growth. We are indebted to a Power greater than ourselves for the strength to recover and maintain. We seek to help others tap into this Power.

"We are indebted to Alcoholics Anonymous and to other self-help groups for whom these principles have been helpful."

As in Alcoholics Anonymous there are 12 steps in Suiciders Anonymous.

The steps include:

— I admit that on my own I cannot make life turn out right.

— I believe that only with the help of a Power greater than myself can I recover hope and harmony in my life.

— I make a list of all individuals whom I have wronged and become willing to make amends to them all.

— I make amends to such people whenever possible, except when to do so would injure them or others.

— Having had a spiritual awakening...I seek to relate them to others who are also seeking solutions to their problems and new hope for their lives.

For further information on Suiciders Anonymous, dial 714 and dial the letters N-E-W H-O-P-E. It answers 24 hours a day, seven days a week. A person with a consoling voice is at the other end. No recorded message.

For information about Swallen's foundation in the making, the one that is going to get the word out on suicide prevention and set up a clearinghouse for laymen and professionals, write to P.O. Box 28395, Columbus, Ohio. Zip: 43228.

Civil Service Commission Votes To Appeal Ruling

By NANCY ALLEN
Avalanche-Journal Staff

Lubbock Civil Service Commissioners voted this morning to appeal Judge John McFall's recent ruling in favor of two city police officers who last November sued the commission in a seniority points dispute.

Plaintiffs James H. Taylor and Ralph R. Bowen Jr. claimed in 237th District Court the commission illegally deprived them of the points in a promotional examination.

At issue was whether the two men, who were employed as officers, then quit the force and later rejoined, could count their total time in service, rather than just the period since they were last rehired.

McFall upheld the officers' contention that, according to statutes, they should be given seniority credit points for their total period of service.

Civil service commissioners opposed giving credit for all time served, in order to encourage continuous service.

Final decision on the appeal rests with the city's legal department, which offered no comment this morning regarding plans for an appeal.

Commissioner Max Addison recommended appealing the case, "in view of the ramifications of the decision and the importance of the questions involved."

No action will be taken by the city, however, pending further appeal. Another court decision could take six months to a year to reach.

Since the suit was brought to court, Bowen was promoted to corporal and Taylor currently is second in line for the same promotion.

Minority recruitment of police officers and firefighters, long an acknowledged problem in Lubbock, also came under scrutiny by civil service board members this morning.

Board members said recent coverage of the city's Human Relations Commission by The Avalanche-Journal indicated that group, and the public, may not have an adequate understanding of the efforts made by the city to recruit minorities for both forces.

"Minority recruitment has been a problem for a long time and we've worked hard to solve it," said Addison.

Since April 23 when the present police recruitment drive began, the city has received 150 applications. Of those, 28 percent were from minority groups and 22 percent from females, according to commission secretary Rita Harman.

"This compares favorably with other periods," Mrs. Harman stated, noting applications will be taken through May 18.

In order to collect as many minority applications as possible, the city advertises in minority newspapers, and airs public service announcements over radio and television.

Police recruitment at the college level, particularly colleges with law enforcement programs and high minority populations, also is an important thrust of the city's efforts, according to Mrs. Harman.

"We contact 24 colleges in Texas and six in New Mexico," she said. She indicated all of them had been found to have a high percentage of minority students.

In addition, "we have some 60 social agencies we contact with flyers on a weekly basis. We ask them to refer any possible applicants."

The city also has enlisted the aid of the 12 minority officers already serving on the police force, the Black Ministerial Alliance and the 30 churches served by it, COMA (the Mexican-American businessmens association) and the black businessmen's organization.

"We've made more of a concentrated effort to recruit minorities since 1976," commented Mrs. Harman. "Gains will be slow, but we expect them to be steady."

Efforts are strongest to recruit for the police department, since turnover traditionally is heaviest there.

Even with the cadet class graduating this week, however, the fire department has six vacancies, due to retirements and the deaths of three firefighters in March.

Police Chief J.T. Alley reported the new police academy graduates will make the Lubbock Police Department "exactly even" with incoming and outgoing officers.

Commission member Joe Minkley was appointed chairman of the commission this morning.

Among his first official tasks was joining Addison and new member Louis Trejo in signing three resolutions recognizing the services of firefighters Kenneth Haggard, Eddie Swafford and Larry Tucker, who died on duty in March.

The resolutions, offering the commission's condolences to the families of the three men, will be delivered to them.

Citizens Traffic Panel Approves Two Requests For Stop Signs

By SYVIA TEAGUE
Avalanche-Journal Staff

The Citizens Traffic Commission approved two requests for stop signs this morning, and deferred action on a third request to determine whether additional police enforcement could be used instead.

The commission recommended to the City Council that stop signs be placed at the intersections of Raleigh Avenue and 16th, 17th and 18th Streets.

Bill McDaniel, city director of traffic engineering, said traffic volumes and accidents at the intersections didn't meet state standards for installation of stop signs.

However G.G. Hammer presented a petition of residents in the area who asked that stop signs be placed at least at 16th and Raleigh because of high trafffic volume on the street.

"Everyone said the stop signs have been needed there for a long time," Hammer said.

The decision for board members seemed to be whether to place the signs on the numbered streets or on Raleigh Avenue. Commission member Lindl Graves' motion that the signs be placed on the three numbereed streets carried with new board member Danny McLarty siding with McDaniel in opposing that location of the stop signs.

If the city council approves, stop signs will be installed at a T-intersection at 77th Street and Quinton Avenue.

Mr. and Mrs. George Fletcher, who live near the intersection complained most of the residents in Quaker Heights use the intersection to get to their homes.

All the residents near the intersection wrote personal letters to the commission, Mrs. Fletcher said.

Commission Chairman Glad Norman said he recommended placing the stop signs at the intersection, adding he fought for a similar sign at an intersection in Melonie Park South.

Mrs. Graves asked that police enforcement be stepped up around the intersection when the signs are installed.

However commission members asked the police department to examine a speeding problem on 54th Street between Memphis and Quaker Avenues before the commission decides at its next meeting whether to place stop signs at 54th and Nashville and Peoria.

Neighborhood resident Bruce Simmons complained 54th Street, which has a speed limit of 30 miles per hour, has become "a race track."

However McDaniel argued a speeding problem is "an enforcement problem" which should be combatted by the police department.

Energy Conference Begins At Tech

By RAY WESTBROOK
Avalanche-Journal Staff

An energy seminar entitled "Coping with the West Texas Energy Crisis" today held the first sessions of a two-day program at the University Center at Texas Tech.

Initial speakers included Dr. James E. Jonish, chairman of the Department of Economics, and Dr. Lewis Hill, professor of economics.

The conference is sponsored by the Texas Tech Center for Public Service and the Division of Continuing Education to provide assistance in coping with aspects of the energy problem and its inflationary effects.

Dr. Jonish, lead-off speaker, described provisions of 1978 legislation which allow deregulation of natural gas in stages by January 1985.

He said the removal of many of the outmoded regulatory burdens on interstate gas is something that, if nothing else, will encourage conservation.

"It has been officially estimated that this program would save something in the neighborhood of 2.5 to 3 million barrels of oil per day. One of the major reasons for the National Energy Act was the reduction of oil imports," he said.

Jonish said the Carter 1979 energy program has a two-fold thrust: An emphasis on conservation, and an emphasis on supply initiatives — in this case to decontrol crude oil prices.

A component of decontrol, the windfall profits tax, is an attempt to insure that there is some recognition for the equity considerations involved in the estimated price impact that decontrol will bring about, according to the economics chairman.

"The windfall taxes — 50 percent on decontrolled oil prices — are to be generated for rebates to poor families, and investments in mass transit, but the largest form of investments, representing about 60 percent of this energy security fund, would be with energy investment, primarily in seeking alternative sources of fuel.

"I think that decontrol of both oil and natural gas prices would be a prerequisite to successful energy policy in other areas. Conservation will become much more meaningful, and mandatory conservation will be less necessary," he said.

Other speakers scheduled during the first day's sessions included: Chuck Royston, energy conservation specialist, U.S. Department of Energy, Region 6, Dallas; Pete Baldwin, program coordinator, Governor's Office of Energy Resources, Austin; and Milton H. Holloway, Texas Energy Advisory Council, Austin.

Wednesday's sessions include: "An Overview of Local Government Energy Conservative Programs," Rick Kerbel, Texas A&M University; "Governor's Office of Energy Resources Local Government Program," Tom Wright, program director; and "The Texas Industrial Commission's Energy Conservation Program and its Relationship to Texas Communities," Ted Waldrop, Texas Industrial Commission, Austin.

White House Using Solar Water Heater

WASHINGTON (AP) — The sun now is being tapped to heat water in part of the White House.

For the first time, the White House is using the sun's rays to provide energy to eventually heat about 75 percent of the hot water used in the west wing and staff mess, officials said Monday. Construction on the $28,099 solar heating system was begun April 2. By all accounts, there is no noticeable difference in the warmth of the water.

Car-Van Mishap Kills Couple

PORTALES (Special) — A 9-year-old Portales girl was reported in critical condition today at Health Sciences Center Hospital with head injuries suffered Monday in a car-moving van accident in which her grandparents were killed.

Robin Borden was being treated in the intensive care unit of the hospital. Her brother, 11-year-old Corey Borden, was treated and released last night from High Plains Hospital in Clovis, N.M. The driver of the van, Joe Rodriguez of Hobbs, N.M. suffered back injuries in the accident.

The accident occurred on U.S. Highway 70 about a mile south of the Curry-Roosevelt county line.

A Roosevelt County medical investigator pronounced Mr. and Mrs. Harley Borden dead at the scene of the 6:45 p.m. (MST) accident.

According to New Mexico State Police reports, the moving van jacknifed, slid across the median and struck the car. Reports indicate the moving van continued across two eastbound lanes and landed upright in a bar ditch.

The couple was taken to Wheeler Mortuary in Portales.

Borden was a prominent Roosevelt County farmer and his wife, Faye, was the assistant to the president of Portales National Bank.

Their grandchildren are the children of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Borden of Portales.

Teacher Union Challenging Feeding Ban

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (UPI) — One of Florida's major teacher unions is challenging an order forbidding an Orlando kindergarten teacher to breast-feed her baby at school on her lunch hour.

A U.S. District Court judge was asked to act immediately to let the teacher leave campus during her off-duty hours, or be allowed to feed the child at the school while the court considers the suit.

Janice Dike, a teacher at Azelea Park Elementary School, breast-fed her 4-month-old daughter on the advice of her obstetrician from Jan. 2 to March 26 without interference. Her husband, or a babysitter, brought the infant to school daily.

The feeding was done in complete privacy with no complaints, according to Florida Teaching Profession-NEA. But on March 26, she was notified by her principal that school board policy prohibits teachers from having their children at school.

She was told, Mrs. Dike said, that she would be charged with insubordination if she brought her daughter to school, and would not be allowed to go home on her lunch hour to feed the infant.

Since then, the suit said, the child developed an allergic reaction to formula milk and had to be fed with milk expressed from the mother by pump.

The suit also said the baby has developed "observable psychological changes," and that the breast-feeding is beneficial to a heart condition that the mother has.

Tire Explosion Injures Three

Two of the three men injured Monday when a flat tire they were attempting to repair at a Lubbock tire company blew up remained in satisfactory condition today in Methodist Hospital.

Weldon Leon Hensley, 26, of 2012 15th St. and Billy Duke, 22, of 3404 N. Quirt Ave. were being treated for leg injuries.

The third man, 18-year-old Leon Perry of 3307 Colgate St., was treated and released late Monday.

The accident occurred at 1:04 p.m. at the Woody Tire Co. at 1606 50th St. Hensley and Perry were holding the tire and wheel on the floor while Duke was bent over the tire, pumping air into it.

Another employee, Tom Porter, said when the tire exploded, "It sounded like a grenade going off."

Two ambulances were dispatched to the scene of the accicdent, where technicians found all three men on the floor. Employees said that Perry ran out of the garage and collapsed after the explosion.

First Lady Speaks For Conservation

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rosalynn Carter says there are small ways Americans can conserve energy and, taken together, they can add up to major savings.

The first lady made her remarks Monday as she and Rep. Richard L. Ottinger, D-N.Y., chairman of a House energy subcommittee, opened hearings on how to use technology in small ways to save energy. The session was held on the National Mall, where exhibitions of such technological uses are on display. Mrs. Carter noted some of the novel uses were a rooftop windmill in New York City and a solar-heated bank here.

Fund Established In Victim's Name

A fund has been set up at Security National Bank for 11-year-old cancer victim Norman Florence of 5006 36th St.

Contributions to the fund will be used to defray medical and other expenses. The child has been ill for about two years.

Crash Victims Remain On Serious List

All four persons injured in a head-on collision Monday on South Loop 289 remained in serious condition today at Methodist Hospital.

The two-car accident occurred about 9:45 p.m. near the Indiana Avenue intersection with the Loop.

Sherril Roberts, 43, of 4206 33rd St., driver of one of the cars; Juan Hernandez, 15, of 2107-B 35th St.; Greg Richards, 24, of Salt Lake City, Utah; and Van Wagner, 23, of 4720 40th St., all were injured in the accident.

Police said the eastbound car occupied by the three men had a blowout and swerved into the westbound lane, where it collided with Mrs. Roberts' car.

Traffic in the westbound lanes was rerouted for about 45 minutes, until wreckers could move the two damaged cars and ambulances could transport the injured.

Women Leaders Not Novelty

By GREGORY JENSEN

LONDON (UPI) — Even if Britain's May 3 election makes Margaret Thatcher the first woman to head a government in the Western world, there won't be much dancing in Britain's streets on that account.

"Bit of a novelty," said a London bobbie. "A change."

But basically not much more. There are many reasons.

Britain, after all, has had a queen on the throne for 27 years.

The reality of a woman running the country goes back at least as far as the first Queen Elizabeth, an absolute ruler — literally with power of life or death — 400 years ago. England has had many queens before and since.

Nor are women political leaders in Mrs. Thatcher's own time all that novel.

Any random poll before this campaign probably would have found as many people mentioning Jennie Lee, Barbara Castle or Shirley Williams as Mrs. Thatcher in that category.

Furthermore, Britain's long and intimate involvement in the wider world has left a solid awareness of precedents.

Voters here know about earlier woman prime ministers within the British Commonwealth, like Indira Gandhi of India and Sirimavo Bandaranaike of what was then Ceylon and is now Sri Lanka, and outside it, like Golda Meir of Israel.

The hit musical "Evita" and its razzmatazz publicity has even given many Britons some idea of Eva Peron's role in Argentina, though that of Gen. Juan Peron's widow Isabel, who succeeded him as president, is much hazier.

Besides all this, the British still cherish the idea that it is parliament which rules, not a prime minister. Mrs. Thatcher herself stressed that "we are not electing a president." For most British voters, the party matters more than the person.

With 27 women in the outgoing parliament, more women than ever before — some 200 of them — fought for seats this time. In Rochester, one woman candidate battled another. A newspaper interviewed four woman candidates and all said voter choice "has everything to do with her politics and nothing to do with her sex."

For all these reasons, feminist issues played little part in Britain's election campaign. Both parties deliberately played them down.

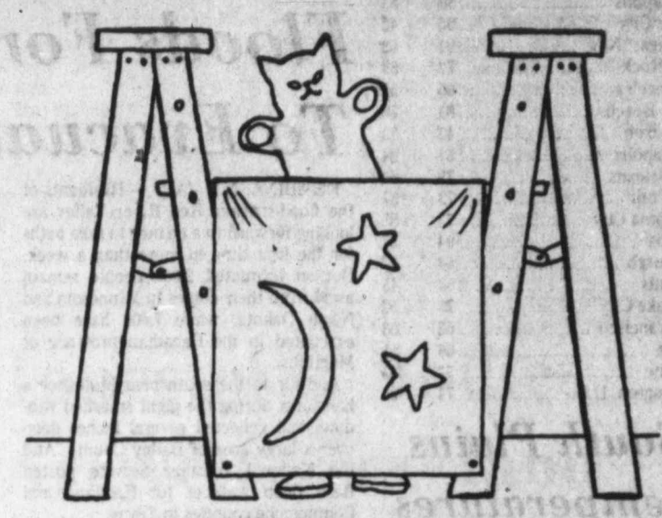

That was easier to do since there is no really militant feminist movement here. Which is not to say that there are no feminists.

"It is so terribly important to get a woman really to the top," said one. "Women will never be quite so looked down on again."

"It's a breakthrough for women," said a teacher.

"I've a bloody good mind to vote for Maggie just to show those men," said a staunch Labor party woman.

More typical, however, was the reaction of the policeman who thought a lady in No. 10 Downing Street would be a "bit of a novelty."

KIDS-ONLY CLUB

Two Ladders Used For Quick Stage

By SHARI LEWIS

Very often the people who do the funniest stuff with puppets take their work most seriously.

Are you like that? Do you feel the need to set up a big puppet stage, behind which a couple of kids can work hand puppets with you? Are you too lazy to start building one? Me, too! Here's how I sometimes whip up a big almost-instant stage.

Stand two ladders a few feet apart. Balance a broom stick so that one end rests on a step of one ladder, and the other end sits on the same step of the other ladder (you decide which step, depending upon how tall you and your other puppet-pushing pals are). With thumbtacks, attach an old sheet to the broomstick so that it covers the entire area between the two ladders. If you can decorate the front of the sheet with crayons or felt-tipped pens, all the better.

You and your fellow manipulators hide behind, and let your puppets work their magic over the top edge of the sheet. At the end of the show you can fold the sheet and put it away, ready to use on another day.

YESTERDAY'S BRAIN TWISTER: Jim and Jack played Ring Toss. Jim's score was 5 more than twice Jack's score. Jim's score was 141. What was Jack's score?

ANSWER: 68. Here's how I figured it out: I took 5 from Jim's score, which left 136. Then I divided 136 in half, which came to 68.

TODAY'S BRAIN TWISTER: What has a head and a tail but no body? (Look for answer in tomorrow's Kids-Only-Club column.)

Monks Bake Bread To Supply Income

By MARK D. FRANK

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (UPI) — Tucked away on the verdant banks of the Genesee River in the upstate New York hamlet of Piffard is a most unusual supplier of premium bread.

Although the bakery serves the general public it is separated from it — not by high fences and tight security precautions, but by religious cloister.

It is the Abbey of the Genesee, a Cistercian monastery that bakes Monk's Bread.

The monks here must deal with the fact they are a religious order choosing to live in isolation from society, although they derive much of their income from the society from which they've severed themselves.

"We have to constantly remind our distributing company that we are not a bakery attached to a monastery, but a monastery with an attached bakery," said spokesman Brother Anthony.

"Millbrook, the company contracted to distribute our bread, has advised us to expand to a six-day schedule," said Brother Anthony, a youthful-looking 40-year-old Cistercian who entered the abbey in his early 20s.

But the monks bake enough bread during their three-day work week to supply most of their customers and still collect a profit for the abbey.

"Our rules state that we are not allowed to beg," he said, "so we must have some source of income."

The profits are used to finance the monastery and various charity projects.

"People are always coming to our door asking for help," Brother Anthony explained, "and we cannot really turn them away."

The abbey, bringing ingredients from across the country and employing modern technology, bakes nearly all of the Monk's Bread on the market. Millbrook also has negotiated a special arrangement that allows it to produce additional bread, based on market demands, using the monks' formula.

That actually baked at the abbey, Brother Anthony said, always says "Made by Trappist monks."

Silence is the rule at the abbey. The monks have developed an elaborate system of sign language to communicate while working in the bakery.

"We have a great respect for another person's right to silence and try to preserve an atmosphere of peace and serenity," Brother Anthony said.

The abbey is situated in the Genesee Valley — an Eden to Seneca Indians who gave the valley its name, which means "Pleasant Banks."

Founded in 1951 on a donated tract of land, the abbey has grown and thrived since then, mainly on the success of its bread.

"I am not an objective critic," Brother Anthony admitted, "but I feel that our bread is the best in the area."

He credits that to the nature of the monk's life.

"It is more than simply taking pride in our work," Brother Anthony said. "Making bread or any work becomes for a monk an act of prayer.

"Our work is an external extension of the devotion we feel for God."

The monks arise about 2 a.m. from their narrow, straw mattresses for prayers and a light breakfast of bread and water. They begin baking at 5:30 a.m. and continue, with prayer breaks, until 11 a.m.

It's lights out at 7 p.m.

Theirs is a life without television and radio. The monks feel those communications devices would only interrupt the contemplative spirit of the abbey.

Not all modern technology is banned, however.

The monk's bakery is equipped with up-to-date machinery rivaling that of many of their bread-making competitors.

"There is nothing wrong with technology. It is the technocrats that must be faulted for modern technology's abuses," Brother Anthony said.

Agents Investigate Murder At Prison

ATLANTA (AP) — FBI agents are investigating the 11th killing in three years at the crowded Atlanta federal penitentiary. Prison spokesman William Noonan says no special security measures had been taken after Saturday night's stabbing of Harold W. Stansfield, 34, of Burlington, N.C.

Stansfield was serving a 14-year term for distributing narcotics. Extra security measures were instituted at the prison last year after a investigation requested by Rep. Wyche Fowler, D-Ga. The prison, designed to house 1,500 inmates, has operated with more than 2,000.

Swimming motions, by fish or people, create low-frequency vibrations that are picked up by sharks' acute hearing. If the sound is regular and rhythmic, a shark may ignore it, National Geographic says. But if it is irregular, indicating thrashing or struggling, the shark may sense easy prey and attack.

Floods Force More To Evacuate Homes

PEMBINA, N.D. (AP) — Residents of the flood-stricken Red River Valley are looking forward to a chance to take baths for the first time in more than a week. But an estimated 2,000 people remain away from their homes in Minnesota and North Dakota, while 7,000 have been evacuated in the Canadian province of Manitoba.

And far to the south near Muleshoe a hailstorm during the night smashed windows and collected several inches deep over a large area of Bailey County. And the National Weather Service posted flash flood watches for Eastland and Commanche counties in Texas.

The major crisis caused by the Red's worst rampage this century is over for most people in the 200-mile-long valley. It has forced thousands out of their homes and left more than $70 million in damages.

In the tiny border town of Pembina, the river rose slowly to a reading early today of 53.74 feet, or 11.6 feet above flood stage. Then it stabilized, and city officials said the dikes were holding.

"Sleep? Golly, yes. I've been in bed three hours tonight," said Charles Margerum, mayor of the town of 850. Officials said residents tore up half of southern Pembina Sunday to collect dirt that would maintain their dikes.

"We might need another row of sandbags," said Ed Jundt, who heads the town's flood control efforts. "But we can do it. We have to."

For most other points along the Red in Minnesota and Norh Dakota the news was better.

In East Grand Forks, Minn., the shifts of dikewalkers were reduced.

"I think Monday was really the first day they kind of relaxed," said "Boots" Kreun, who took her knitting along to the flood control headquarters where she answered telephones.

She was looking forward to a "good bath," when the water level diminished, she said. Residents were warned earlier not to use water for washing clothes or bathing.

The Red was said to have "basically crested" in North Dakota and Minnesota Monday, although the National Weather Service warned floodfighters not to let down their guard.

"Any moderate or heavy rainfall we get will go right into the rivers because the soils are highly saturated and it could cause the rivers to rise again," said NWS spokesman Bob Nordland.

President Carter has declared 11 Minnesota counties major disaster areas, paving the way for federal cleanup assistance. Forty North Dakota counties received similar designation.

The U.S. Army Corps of Engineers estimated damages of $47.4 million in North Dakota and $24.6 million in Minnesota. A record 829,950 acres were flooded in the two states, more than 500,000 of them in North Dakota.

To the north, Canadian officials reported, as of Monday, 7,000 persons have left their homes in the Red River Valley south of Winnipeg. Emerson, the point where the Red enters Manitoba from the United States, got peak flows Sunday that were slightly below earlier predictions.

"We're not out of the woods yet, but the situation certainly is optimistic,' said Manitoba Premier Sterling Lyon. He said predictions for peak stages at downstream points were lowered. The crest was expected to reach Winnipeg by the weekend.

Course In Filmwriting Techniques Offered

Filmwriting techniques will be taught June 4-29 in a course offered through the Texas Tech University mass communications department.

Entitled "The Cinematic Approach," the course is designed to provide a general overview of filmwriting techniques from the collection of ideas and material for the story to the marketing of a script.

The format includes classroom sessions, evening assignments and discussion groups covering such topics as censorship, budgets, filmwriting trends and industry requirements.

Vera Culwell, former director of the story department of Universal Studios, will conduct sessions. During her 30-year career she has worked with writers, employment agreements, purchase contracts, story analysis and editing. She has been employed by Regal Films, Desilu, Monogram and Republic pictures, and is now a freelance writer.

Course enrollment is limited to 25. Participants must be able to type, have completed all undergraduate English requirements and be able to develop a thematic idea. Fiction or creative writing experience should be helpful, said Dr. Dennis A. Harp, academic coordinator for the course.

Participants will earn six semester hours of undergraduate credit or 12 continuing education units.

Dormitory-style rooms have been reserved at Lubbock's College Inn for participants. Although other accommodations are available in the Lubbock area, participants are urged to stay at College Inn to promote discussion and development of ideas.

Registration deadline is May 15, and course tuition is $125. Additional tuition will be charged for persons desiring graduate or undergraduate credit.

Texas Tech students desiring credit may pick up registration materials at the Registrar's Office and submit the completed materials to the Division of Continuing Education by June 1.

Other persons desiring academic credit may request and complete a Texas Tech admission application. The completed application should be submitted in advance of the course to the Texas Tech Registrar's Office along with a transcript

Town Fighting Annexation

AUSTIN (AP) — Residents of suburban Clear Lake City thought they had won the fight two years ago to avoid being annexed by Houston.

The 1977 Legislature passed a law allowing the community to incorporate. Before it could act, Houston reached out and annexed the the suburb.

Clear Lake City residents are again before the Legislature trying to escape Houston. And Houston is fighting back.

"This would be a dangerous precedent," Steve Oaks, lawyer for the city of Houston, told the Senate Economic Development Committee Monday.

"This does in fact have statewide impact," said Oaks, former secretary of state. "Others will find ways to escape the financial burdens of a large metropolitan city."

Sen. Chet Brooks, D-Pasadena, told the committee that Clear Lake City was a "planned community" that grew up around the National Aeronautics and Space Administration manned spacecraft complex.

Houston thwarted the will of Clear Lake City residents two years ago, he added.

The committee voted 4-1 to send the House-passed bill to a subcommittee.

Midland To Dedicate Federal Building

MIDLAND (Special) — Dedication ceremonies for the George Mahon Federal Building, United States Post Office and Courthouse will begin at 11:30 a.m. Thursday at the entrance to the new facility.

Regional administrator Ann Doughty of the U.S. General Services Administration from Fort Worth will serve as master of ceremonies. The Austin Freshman School Band will present a concert.

The complex consists of a one-story building for the U.S. Postal Service and a three-story facility for U.S. attorneys, marshals, district courts, the Social Security Administration, Department of Agriculture, Federal Bureau of Investigation, Internal Revenue Service Investigation and Internal Revenue Service. It also houses the offices of U.S. Rep. Kent Hance.

Iran Workers, Leftists Clash During March

TEHRAN, Iran (UPI) — Workers' groups loyal to Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini today clashed with left-wing demonstrators in a march by thousands of Iranians celebrating their first "free" May Day.

The pro-Khomeini workers shouted "Death to the Communists" as they scuffled and pushed left-wing marchers in Tehran.

Other workers' demonstrations were reported throughout the country.

The May Day celebrations were organized both by right-wing and left-wing groups to mark "the first spring of freedom" since Khomeini overthrew Shah Mohammed Reza Pahlavi last February.

The 78-year-old revolutionary, in an address broadcast by Tehran Radio, urged workers to "give the government the opportunity to resume work, give it the opportunity to help you."

The appeal referred to labor unrest blamed by authorities on left-wing groups trying to pressure the government.

Khomeini Monday severed Iranian relations with Egypt in retaliation for the Egypt-Israel peace treaty, Tehran radio said.

Iran's move against Egypt also was seen as a response to energetic lobbying by Palestine Liberation Organization representatives in Tehran and radicals pressing for Iran's non-alignment.

Political sources predicted Tehran would soon resume diplomatic relations with Libya and Cuba, whose governments opposed the shah. Khomeini recently met with Libyan Prime Minister Abdul Salam Jalloud and a high-powered Havana delegation.

A commentary on Tehran radio described Egyptian President Anwar Sadat's peace treaty with Israel as "imperialist-inspired and reprehensible."

It said the breaking of relations reflected "the reality of our foreign policy which is no longer based solely on economic, military or similar considerations but is based on the revolutionary ideals of Islam."

Officials at the embassy from Egypt, whose relations with Iran soured when Sadat hosted the shah and his wife upon their departure from Iran in mid-January, said they had not been notified officially of the break.

The move against Cairo coincided with a stepped up campaign for the cancellation of the remaining military agreements between Iran and the United States following Iran's withdrawal from the Central Treaty Organization.

Khomeini's U.S.-educated foreign minister, Ibrahim Yazdi, was sharply attacked in newspaper articles Monday that accused him of unauthorized negotiations with Washington on breaking the agreements.

The allegations were made by Ahmad Salamatian, a former undersecretary for foreign affairs who resigned with former Foreign Minister Karim Sanjabi last month.

Yazdi refused comment on the accusations.

Salamatian said Yazdi and his son-in-law, Shahriar Rouhani, the acting ambassador in Washington, suppressed documents involving bribes allegedly paid to U.S. politicians and held secret talks with Pentagon officials and Secretary of State Cyrus Vance without Sanjabi's knowledge or permission.

Political analysts described Salamtian's disclosures as a "part of the complex political wrangling" going on among officials since the revolution.

Israeli Ship Traverses Suez Canal

TEL AVIV, Israel (AP) — The freighter Ashdod entered the port of Haifa today after completing the first passage by an Israeli ship through the Suez Canal and being cheered by thousands of Egyptians.

"The voyage was okay," said Eliahu Shragai, spokesman for the Ashdod's owner, the Israeli shipping firm Zim. "We haven't talked to the captain yet, but we will soon."

Shragai said the Ashdod was docking at 12:30 p.m. after a three-day voyage from Israel's Red Sea port, Eilat. Before Israel and Egypt put their peace treaty into effect, Israeli ships had to sail all the way around Africa to get from Eilat to Israel's ports on the Mediterranean.

Shragai said there would not be a very large celebration in Haifa since Israel was observing Memorial Day for the nation's war dead, but Israel had followed the voyage of the Ashdod closely since it represented a first fruit of the normalization of relations laid out in the Israeli-Egyptian peace treaty.

Thousands of Egyptians cheered as the Ashdod completed the 101-mile trip through the Suez Canal Monday night.

The Egyptians shouted from the shore as the 4,500-ton Ashdod arrived at Port Said, at the northern end of the canal after the day-long trip from Suez. Small boats sailed alongside and their owners waved.

The last Israeli ship to enter the canal, the Bat Galim, was seized by the Egyptians in 1954 and the crew held for three months as prisoners of war. One of the Bat Galim's crewmen was working aboard the Ashdod, Radio Israel reported.

Israeli shipping officials said although the Ashdod was the first ship flying the Israeli flag to pass through the canal, several Israeli-owned vessels whose ownership was hidden have passed through the waterway flying flags of convenience.

Labor Party Takes British Poll Lead

LONDON (AP) — With only two days left before Britain elects a new House of Commons, Prime Minister James Callaghan's Labor Party took the lead over Margaret Thatcher's Conservatives in a public opinion poll today for the first time in the campaign.

Callaghan was jubilant while Mrs. Thatcher remained calm at the news.

At his daily press conference, Callaghan, fighting to keep Labor in power after a disastrous confidence vote defeat in the Commons late last month, commented "the Conservatives ran out of puff some days ago. They hoped for a quick sprint to the polls — vote in haste, repent at leisure."

Mrs. Thatcher, hoping to be Europe's first woman prime minister when election results are known May 4, told her press conference she didn't intend to change her tactics as a result of the poll. She said she didn't attach much importance to polls anyhow, and added: "If they're good we try not to crow about them. If they're not very good we hope it would stir our supporters to go out and vote."

The Laborite lead in the National Opinion Poll taken Monday was only a minute 0.7 percentage point, an inconclusive margin. But it was registered after weeks of steady erosion in the sizable leads of around 20 percentage points which all the polls gave the Conservatives at the start of the campaign.

A National Opinion Poll two weeks ago put the Conservatives 6 percentage points ahead. Other polls in the past week have shown Tory leads of from 3 to 11.5 points, promising a big enough winning margin to form a government but not enough to push through the program of curbs on labor unions and reform of the welfare state which Mrs. Thatcher is promising.

The National Opinion Poll also indicated that one of the most vigorous media campaigns in British election history has failed to improve Mrs. Thatcher's personal standing with the voters. Asked which party leader they preferred for prime minister, 57 percent chose Callaghan, 28 percent liked Liberal Party head David Steel and only 23 percent chose the Conservative.

She has trailed Callaghan in all the personal polls throughout the campaign, but this was one of her poorest showings.

Meeting Fails To End Rhodesia's Problems

SALISBURY, Rhodesia (UPI) — Rhodesia's ruling Executive Council failed today to end a crisis sparked by a black leader's charge that the recent majority rule election was stage-managed to benefit his chief rival.

But at a two-hour meeting, which marked the start of a protracted wrangle, the four council members left themselves some room to maneuver.

Council member Abel Muzorewa, the election winner and prime minister-designate, would not speak to reporters when he emerged from the meeting but said before it started that he wants to move with "utmost speed in establishing the new majority-rule government."

The Rev. Ndabaningi Sithole, who ran a poor second in the election, came out saying his council colleagues did not reject his call for a commission of inquiry to investigate the election results but that they said its findings would not be binding.

Introducing a new element, the other council members said Sithole's complaints of "gross irregularities" could be taken to the country's high court, Sithole reported.

Asked if he would accept any findings by the high court, Sithole said he and his party's central committee members are still discussing the matter.

But Sithole said today's meeting resolved nothing and "I'm not satisfied."

He said Muzorewa is proceeding toward the formation of a black-led "national unity" coalition government but that he, Sithole, is boycotting the effort and his party would not take up the 12 parliamentary seats it won in the election.

Today's meeting also involved Prime Minister Ian Smith and tribal chief Jeremiah Chirau.

WHAT IS IT? — It may look like a fingerprint or the cross section of a tree trunk, but it's really a picture of an airfoil section of an aircraft wing in a wind tunnel under conditions near the speed of sound. The National Aeronautics and Space Administration released the photograph to demonstrate a new technique called holographic interferometry. Three-dimensional images are produced by splitting a laser beam into two beams, and a photographic plate records the interference patterns created by light waves reflecting directly from a mirror and from the airfoil. The dark irregular lines represent air density. From this data, NASA plans to use the technique to help develop aircraft wings and helicopter rotors. (AP Laserphoto)

Commission Rescinds Fuel Order

A-J News Services

Lubbock Power and Light's future is much brighter today because of the Railroad Commission's decision to rescind an order restricting the use of natural gas as a boiler fuel, said Carroll McDonald, LP &L director of sales and service.

McDonald said it was "wonderful news" that the commission had rescinded its 3-year-old Docket 600 ordering a phase-out of the use of natural gas Monday.

"Evidently there's a lot more gas than people think," McDonald said, adding, "the only reason anyone went away from natural gas was the possibility of it not being available."

A gas-fired electric generator is "much more economical to build, more economical to run and cleaner to operate," he said.

McDonald said he didn't know whether LP&L would construct another gas-fired plant as a result of the order, but said that was the plan before Docket 600 was issued.

The Electric Utility Board is negotiating with consultants to perform a feasibility study on what type and size generating plant LP&L should build to meet its future demands for electricity.

In addition, negotiations are beginning on an interconnect between LP&L and competing Southwestern Public Service.

Texas Railroad Commissioners said they unanimously repealed Docket 600 to keep from penalizing Texans more than out-of-state users.

The three said they still think the phaseout of natural gas to manufacture electricity and for other industrial uses is a good idea but they got no response from other states and the federal government.

"It is intended by this repeal that Texas energy users be allowed to make decisions on the use of energy without having sacrifices imposed upon them that are greater than those imposed upon energy users outside Texas," the commission said.

Under the order, boiler fuel users of more than 3 million cubic feet per day were required to reduce such usage by gas by 10 perecent in 1981 and by another 15 percent by 1985.

"Repeal of this rule will allow economic forces to govern allocation of natural gas and cause conversion of uneconomic applications of natural gas to other fuels in a more orderly and efficient manner than a conversion program prompted by administrative regulation," said the commission statement.

Chairman John Poerner said he thought "any message going to Washington on this matter should include the statement the the Railroad Commission led the way to bringing to the attention of the rest of the nation that there is a problem.

"The problem still exists but we are not going to penalize Texans more than the rest of the nation."

Commission member Mack Wallace that that the commission's boiler fuel phasedown order would have been a sound policy for the state and nation.

"Unfortunately, neither other states nor the federal bureaucracy responded with a similar effective program," Wallace said.

Wallace said that Congress, in passing the powerplant and industrial fuel act or "coal conversion bill," completely preempted the commission policy exept to the extent that the commission may impose more severe restrictions on the use of natural gas.

The federal act primarily mandates conversion to coal by 1990, prohibits the construction of new power plants that use only natural gas and does not allow the use of natural gas by certain industrial users without exemption.

City Police Continue Search For Armed Robbery Suspect

Police this morning continued to look for a white man, between 25 and 35 years old, who allegedly robbed the Twin Oaks Pharmacy, 3405 34th St., of about $100 cash Monday night.

A woman, one of five employees in the business, fainted when the pistol-wielding bandit entered the store.

Authorities early today were looking for a suspect, described as about 6 foot, 3 inches tall and weighing between 225 and 250 pounds.

The robber was last seen walking east on 33rd Street, clad in a bright-colored shirt, blue jeans and tennis shoes. He reportedly had long, black hair.

In other activity, George William Sterling, 21, of 2317 Auburn St., No. 65, was treated at Methodist Hospital Monday night after reportedly being beaten up by two white men armed with a pistol and knife.

Sterling told police the suspects kicked open the front door of his trailer home about 10 p.m. and struck him several times with the .38-caliber pistol. He said the men repeatedly threatened to kill him.

Both suspects were described as about 5 feet, 11 inches tall. They reportedly were traveling on a high-powered motorcycle.

In another report to police, a foreign student at Texas Tech University said he was verbally assaulted by a man about 7 p.m. Monday.

Shihab Saad Asfour, 27, of 2024 10th St., said he had read a letter to the editor in the University Daily concerning the Mideast war. He said he disagreed with part of what the letter stated about the war and wrote a letter to the school editor giving an opposite view of the Mideast conflict, and that it also was published.

Reports indicate that he received a call at his home Monday — after his letter had been published — and the caller said, "I am an American imperialist. I read your letter in the University Daily, and you are going to die."

Police are investigating the incident.

Pedro P. Gutierrez, 55, of 2407 Third St. said he attempted to rent a room at a hotel in the 700-block of 13th Street about 12:15 a.m. today, and that the hotel manager struck him over the head with a pistol.

Gutierrez said he knocked on the manager's door and the manager answered by coming out and hitting him with the butt of the weapon. The victim, accompanied by a friend, walked to West Texas Hospital after the assault and was treated.

In a house burglary between 8 a.m. and 11:30 p.m. Monday, Benny M. Barton of 4913 63rd St. said he lost $8,635 in property, including stereo equipment, jewelry and guns.

Judy D. Miller, manager of an apartment complex at 5204 50th St., said $710 cash was stolen out of a money bag in her office between 10:15 a.m. and 5:15 p.m. Monday.

About $500 in camera equipment was the apparent loot taken in a burglary Monday at Olga Vargas Rodriquez' 1707 71st St. residence.

A Texas Tech coed reported to police Monday two rapes that occurred in March.

The student told police that in early March she and her roommate went to a 19th Street club, where they met two Mexican-American males in their early 20s. She said she and her friend accepted the men's invitation to a party.

At an unknown house, the woman said, one of the men held her down on a bed and raped her. Then the other man raped her, and she blacked out, the victim told police.

The woman said she decided to report the rape because she became pregnant, but had the pregnancy terminated by an abortion.

The second rape occurred in late March in her apartment. She said she was raped in her room by two Mexican-American males while her roommate was asleep.

One of the men was armed with a pistol, she said.

The owner of Chance's Lawn and Leisure, 3604 50th St., reported to police Monday that 10 chain saws were stolen from his store last weekend.

Sidney Richard Chance, 28, of 5423 12th, told police that burglars broke the glass out of the store's front door to steal the 10 saws, valued at $2,592.

A Dunbar High School teacher told police Monday that about $1,200 of camera equipment was stolen either Thursday or Friday from his room at the school.

Larry Mankins, of 5521 Ninth St. said the equipment stolen included a Yashica camera, a strobe light and a zoom lens.

Califano Launches Alcoholism Drive

WASHINGTON (AP) — Attacking "the persistent myth that the typical problem drinker is a middle-aged man headed for Skid Row," HEW Secretary Joseph A. Califano Jr. today launched a new government drive aimed at helping women and youths with their alcohol problems.

Excessive drinking causes at least 100,000 deaths a year and costs society more than $40 billion in health costs, lost productivity, auto accidents, violent crimes, fires and other social service costs, Califano declared.

He said that so many of these deaths are "clearly preventable ... problem drinking, after smoking, (ranks as) preventable public health enemy No. 2 in America."

Califano announced plans to seek $22 million for new research, training, prevention and treatment programs on alcoholism. HEW's alcoholism agency already has a budget of $118 million.

The health, education and welfare secretary told the National Council on Alcoholism there 'is no typical problem drinker."

"The problem drinker is a woman, too ... whose outward life may seem perfect, even privileged, but who feels overwhelmed, who endures the disease of alcoholism alone, in secret," he said.

"The problem drinker is the clean-cut teen-ager in your neighborhood who may only drink occasionally, on weekends, at parties, but who drinks too much and then drives."

Califano recited these statistics from HEW's National Institute on Alcohol Abuse and Alcoholism in a report to Congress last fall:

— Nine million to 10 million American adults, or 7 percent of the population, are problem drinkers or alcoholics. "More than two million of them (are) women, and a significant number of them are elderly," Califano said.

— More than 3 million teenagers have problems with drinking that has affected their school work, home life or driving. Califano noted that the number of high-school students who admitted being drunk at least once a month jumped from 10 percent in 1966 to 19 percent in 1975.

At the same time, the death rate from cirrhosis of the liver has gone down in recent years for the first time in more than half a century.

"It is time to prove to the American people that alcoholism is not only a treatable disease, but a beatable disease," Califano said.

The HEW drive will include:

— New studies and treatment programs for women with drinking problems, including more warnings to the 48 million women of child-bearing age about the hazards of excessive drinking while pregnant. Califano said the 1,500 birth defects caused each year by fetal alcohol syndrome are "the third leading cause of birth defects and the No. 1 preventable cause."

— The surgeon general and the Food and Drug Administration will issue new warnings to physicians and the public about the dangers of alcohol in combination with certain drugs such as tranquilizers.

— The government, with the help of the alcohol beverage industry and the media, will launch a new publicity drive urging the 40 million Americans age 15 to 24 to take "sensible attitudes" about mixing drinking with driving.

— Special prevention projects will be aimed at 750,000 youngsters in the Boy Scouts, Girl Scouts, Catholic Youth Organization and other groups.

Companies Cut May Gas Allocations

NEW YORK (AP) — Motorists, who are using more gasoline despite higher prices, closed stations and occasional lines, face a longer wait to get to pumps in May as many oil companies further reduce the amount of gasoline they sell to service stations.

The companies say the cutbacks are due to tight supplies of crude oil and the government's request that they emphasize production of heating oil at the expense of gasoline production.

Oil companies have been limiting the allocations of gasoline to dealers for several months, generally to about 95 percent of the amount of gas the stations got a year ago. Demand for gasoline is about 4 percent higher than a year ago.

But many companies recently have been quietly announcing more drastic cuts.

Standard Oil Co. of California, maker of Chevron gasoline, is cutting its allocation of gasoline to dealers from 95 percent in April to 80 percent in May. Atlantic Richfield has cut from 95 percent to 85 percent, Standard Oil Co. of Indiana (Amoco) has cut from 100 percent to 90 percent and Exxon from 95 percent to 80 percent.

The cutbacks will probably cause a replay of the "closed" signs and occasional lines that popped up at the end of April as gas stations used up their monthly allotments, according to analysts.

"We're going to have more problems in May," said Dan Lundberg, publisher of the Lundberg Letter, a newsletter that covers the gasoline industry. "As time wears on, the impact of these allocations produces lines."

Although supplies are tight and prices are rising — an average of 8 cents a gallon so far this year — demand for gasoline is still running about 4 percent ahead of last year, according to the Department of Energy. This is exacerbating the supply squeeze.

Actually, however, the amount of gasoline the companies sell in May will probably not be quite as low as the allocation numbers indicate.

The reason is that the companies cannot limit all customers. They must supply certain customers designated by state governments as hardship cases at levels similar to last year.

The firms also say they will provide more gas to agricultural and public-service customers. And the companies say that a change in government rules on allocations since last month make the cuts appear greater than they are.

As a result, the amount of gasoline actually sold by the companies will be greater than the allocation levels. Shell, for example, sold more than 90 percent as much gasoline in April as it did the year before, although it was allocating on the basis of 85 percent to 90 percent of last year's levels.

Jonestown Bodies Arrive In Oakland

OAKLAND, Calif. (AP) — The bodies of nearly 300 Peoples Temple members, who left the Bay Area to find paradise in the jungle, began arriving from the East today, borne in stacked steel coffins inside huge moving vans.

The first of five 44-foot-long vans pulled up to the Oakland Army Base mortuary at 6:28 a.m. under cloudy, dawn skies. The bodies left Dover, Del., last week where they had lain unclaimed for five months.

Follow-Up

Army employees began lifting the steel coffins, wrapped in cardboard and tied with twine, onto a loading dock at the mortuary. As three military policemen stood nearby, a bright, yellow fork lift truck then carried the coffins into the 32-year-old warehouse, one of two Army mortuaries in the country.

Stamped on the side of the cardboard wrappings in big green letters was "HANDLE WITH EXTREME CARE." Three of the white, blue and gold trucks were expected to arrive today, with two more due Wednesday. All took different, secret routes across the nation to discourage publicity.

A sixth van, carrying 46 bodies, was also to arrive today at Fort McArthur near Los Angeles.

The 297 corpses trucked cross-country — and 248 unidentified bodies awaiting a similar trip — are what remains of 913 Peoples Temple members who died last November in Guyana.

The members had been led to the jungle from California by the Rev. Jim Jones, who then led them in the mass murder-suicide ritual following the assassination of Rep. Leo Ryan. Jones' body was cremated months ago.

Families of the identified victims have been notified by mail on how to claim their loved ones for burial. But officials said they will not be allowed on the base when the numbered coffins are unloaded.

"We're strictly a storage facility, nothing more," said assistant public affairs officer Vonnie Goss.

The unidentified bodies, 210 of them children, are still in Delaware, awaiting preparation of graves at an Oakland cemetary.

"As soon as 50 graves are available, the first truckload will leave," said Charles Wyman, a State Department spokesman in Delaware. He said that could happen as early as Monday.

The unidentified bodies will go directly to Evergreen Cemetery in Oakland for burial. Any identified bodies stored at the Oakland Army Base and not claimed by relatives within 30 days also will be buried at Evergreen.

The $300,000 cost of trucking and burying the bodies will be paid by assets of the defunct Temple, which has an estate of $10 million or more.

The burial plan was ordered by a San Francisco judge after officials from the federal government and various states haggled for months over what to do with the bodies.

Under the plan, families who claim their relatives at the Oakland Army Base can be reimbursed for up to $540 in burial expenses.

Doctor Finds No Evidence Of Cancer

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — Karen Silkwood didn't have cancer at the time of her death, according to defense testimony in a case in which her survivors are seeking $11.5 million from the Kerr-McGee company.

Dr. Richard Bottomley, a University of Oklahoma School of Medicine professor and a staffer at the Oklahoma Medical Research Foundation, said Monday he examined Miss Silkwood's autopsy results and reports on specialized diagnostic tests done while she was alive.

Elliott Fention, an attorney for Kerr-McGee, asked Bottomley if he had any "o-pinion based on reasonable medical certainty .. as to whether Karen Silkwood had cancer on Nov. 13, 1974."

"There was no evidence of cancer," Bottomley said. He said she suffered no acute injury, radiation sickness or pain.

Witnesses for the Miss Silkwood's estate have testified she was "married to cancer" because she was contaminated by plutonium.

She worked at Kerr-McGee's uranium and plutonium processing plant in Crescent, Okla. The facility closed in 1975 after her death in an automobile accident.

Her survivors are suing Kerr-McGee alleging negligence in connection with the contamination. The company claims she contaminated herself, possibly while spiking her urine samples.

Kerr-McGee's director of licensing, William J. Shelley, of Oklahoma City, was cross-examined just before Bottomley took the stand.

In addition to his testimony about detectors at the plant, Shelley said Kerr-McGee was to be billed for any unaccounted-for plutonium. He said the established rate was about $43,000 per kilogram for anything over 5 percent of the plant's receipts. A kilogram is a little more than two pounds.

Shelley was questioned about the possibility amounts greater than one-half gram could be removed from the plant.

"Certainly there is a way with collusion between two people," he said, acknowledging the possibility a guard could conspire with someone inside who had access to plutonium.

Ikard asked about the 10.9 kilograms of plutonium Kerr-McGee says is still trapped in the piping and equipment at its plant, and the 4.4 kilograms for which the company cannot account for.

"Today, when we sit here, there's 40 pounds of plutonium classified as either holdup or material unaccounted for, isn't that true?" Ikard asked.

"That's right," Shelley said.

Furnace Devised In Siberian Prison Camp

ST. PAUL, Minn. (AP) — It was in a Siberian prison camp, more than 30 years ago, that Laszlo the tailor started thinking about his aluminum-painted, wood-burning furnace.

Today it stands in the garage of his tailor shop in west St. Paul, a monument to his skill and imagination and a symbol of his past.

"I could have invented something else ... but thank God now that I survived the 19 prison camps they put me in from 1945 to 1948. It was so terribly cold. Fifty-two below, very little heat. We nearly froze or starved. And to stay alive, we had to develop some creative heating systems," he says, patting the 4-foot-high furnace.

Laszlo Tekler is a big, hearty, smiling man who invites visitors to drink wine with him and "chat like we used to in my home town in Hungary." They're likely to see pots of goulash and noodles simmering on the stove, and a newly-sown bed of Hungarian paprika in the window.

Tekler's furnace operates through burning wood that heats water pipes running from a false ceiling into every room of his two-story house and tailor shop in front.

"Now, when the furnace is working, a red light goes on in the kitchen behind the tailor shop on this panel, connected to the gas furnace," Tekler explains.

"So I never have to run out into the garage to see what's happening, unless it is to add a few pieces of wood. Maybe every four or five hours."

City inspectors were amazed by the safety devices the tailor installed.

First, when the water temperature reaches 180 degrees, an automatic thermostat banks the fire. In case that should fail, there is a pressure-release valve. And if that should ever forget to work, Laszlo has another valve that automatically opens and sends steam into the firebox to douse the fire.

"He was working on this for almost all the 11 years since we built this shop and house. He measured everything. He drew every inch of plan. He slept dreaming about it ... and I never thought it would work, frankly," says his wife, Maria.

It worked perfectly from the start, and it has never failed, Tekler says proudly.

It costs him nothing, he adds, because he gets the wood from his lake cottage property near Centuria, Wis. He still uses gas as a backup and in cold weather, but says he has already saved $169 a month.

Tekler escaped from his native Hungary in November 1956, when he was 32, frustrated and tired of wars. He had served in armies and the air force and had been taken prisoner by the Russians.

"But, you know, in that last moment, before I crossed the border, I fell on the ground and hugged it — my native land," he recalled.

He came to St. Paul under sponsorship of the St. Paul Cathedral. Maria had arrived earlier, with relatives. When they met, at a German-American gathering, neither knew enough English to find their way on a bus.

What followed was a period of hard work, hundreds of hours a week. Tekler worked at Minneapolis tailor shops, Maria at a candy company. They were married and had two boys.

Today, they own a comfortable house, and a "dream cottage" near Centuria, a house on the lake Tekler built himself.

He still works long hours. But once in a while he takes time off to show a visitor his remarkable stove, and invites him to the kitchen table for a toast to the old times.

Director Says CIA Better Organization

WASHINGTON (AP) — CIA Director Stansfield Turner says the CIA is a better organization now, after having gone through the recent period of changes.

In an interview with U.S. News & World Report, Turner agrees that the changes had been unsettling, but he said there is "no question it's been worth it, in my view." He said there have been some morale problems in the intelligence agency because of the frustrations caused by the changes. The interview was released Sunday.

Tomorrow's Horoscope

By Bernice Bede Osol

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) A situation you got yourself into that has more responsibility involved than you realized will work out, because others pitch in and help.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) You'll be in a happy frame of mind tomorrow and, even if you encounter someone who is abrasive or has a chip on his shoulder, you'll simply ignore him.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Have a little patience if things start out on the wrong foot tomorrow. Everything will work out better than you could hope for.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Because you keep your temper in check tomorrow, one who was trying to throw cold water on your ideas will fail. You'll have things your way.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Something that means a lot to you could get misplaced tomorrow. You're lucky an honest person will return it to you.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) You may not have full cooperation at first tomorrow. However, you handle dissenters so diplomatically that you'll have them eating out of your hand.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Someone may attempt to steal the limelight that is rightfully yours. This person won't get away with it; in fact, you'll only look better.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) You're very personable tomorrow, but be a little more discriminating in your friendships. One you could do without will attach himself to you.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Keep things light and breezy tomorrow and others will be behind you all the way. No one is in the mood for heavy, serious approaches.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) You'll look greater in the eyes of others tomorrow if you let them have their way, even though you may not agree with them. It won't matter anyway.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) A marvelous solution will be found tomorrow for a project heretofore far too costly for you to take one. It pays never to give up on something you want.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) A philosophical approach tomorrow will help you overcome the problem when a close associate refuses to go along with something important to you.

Growth Stocks Recommended For Income

By CHET CURRIER

NEW YORK (AP) — "Buy growth stocks for income."

If a financial advisor gave you that recommendation, your first response might be to get a new advisor. After all, the suggestion sounds ridiculous.

Everyone familiar with investing knows that growth stocks traditionally pay only skimpy dividends, plowing most of their earnings back into the business to finance future expansion.

If it's income you want, you buy high-yielding securities like bonds, or money-market mutual funds, or electric utility stocks. That's a basic principle from chapter one of the investment manual, isn't it?

Maybe so. But these days a number of analysts would urge you to give a little thought to that financial advisor's counsel before you bundle him out the front door.

Particularly in times of rapid inflation, they say, it is important to weigh not only a security's current yields, but also the prospects for future growth of that yield.

As analyst John Slatter wrote in "Investor News," a monthly publication produced by the brokerage firm of Prescott, Ball & Turben:

"In the short run, of course, a high yield may appear attractive. Unfortunately, it may not be nearly as attractive in the long run."

As an example, Slatter examined a random sample of 10 electric utilities, which are one of the most popular vehicles for income-seeking investors. The average increase in the dividends of those companies from 1968 to 1978 came to 23.5 percent, while the cost of living nearly doubled over the same period.

"What is sorely lacking with utilities is the opportunity for capital gains and consistent dividend increases," Slatter said.

A skeptic might well point out that, over the last decade or so, opportunities for capital gains have been sorely lacking in all kinds of stocks. The Dow Jones industrial average, as a matter of fact, today stands about 50 points below where it was 10 years ago.

To that, Standard & Poor's Corp. analysts respond: "Common stocks can serve as an inflation hedge in two ways: rising market prices and increasing dividends.

"Generally, they have not done well in the first respect in recent years. ... In many cases, however, dividends alone have advanced considerably faster than inflation."

SP calculated that dividends paid by the companies in its 500-stock composite index rose 74 percent from 1970 to date, just about equalling the 78 percent rise in the consumer price index.

Calculations from New York Stock Exchange figures show that dividend increases, after lagging for a number of years, have surged since 1975.

After rising at annual rates ranging from 2 to 9.9 percent in the late 1960s and the first half of this decade, payouts by Big Board companies jumped 13.8 percent in 1976, 18.5 percent in 1977 and 13.5 percent in 1978.

And much of that rise has come from so-called "growth" companies. American Home Products, to cite one example, has a middling current yield of a little more than 5 percent, but its payouts have increased 12.2 percent a year, on average, over the last 10 years.

Past performance carries no future guarantee, of course. And future dividend prospects, no matter how rosy, won't pay the rent this month for people who need the highest possible current income.

Still, as Moody's Investors Service put it in its quarterly "Handbook of Common Stocks:"

"For investors with long-range goals, stocks which offer the potential for steady dividend increases should turn out to be more rewarding than so-called income securities."

Police Officers Learn Skills

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The government is financing a "Fagin" school, teaching students to launder organized crime money, pick pockets by telephone, make successful drug deals and fence stolen goods.

But unlike the evil genius of Dickens' Oliver Twist, the government's effort is legal.

The students are police officers, investigators, prosecutors and auditors, learning new skills at the Dade County (Fla.) Institute on Organized Crime at Biscayne College in Miami.

The Law Enforcement Assistance Administration's chief Henry Dogin said past training for fighting organized crime was expensive and duplicative.

"Through training centers like the one in Florida, we offer valuable training, new techniques, and insights in the fight," he said.

In the next four years, the training center will add courses in rackets investigations, conspiracy investigation management, rackets profit investigations and computers in investigation and crime.

LEAA said one course on computer techniques shows how to write a check and, "figuratively speaking, pick a pocket by telephone, through the illegal transfer of bank funds from one account to another."

The Royal Canadian Legion approved use of the Maple Leaf flag as the national flag of Canada in 1968.

The Almanac
TODAY IN HISTORY

By United Press International

Today is Tuesday, May 1, the 121st day of 1979 with 244 to follow. This is May Day.

The moon is approaching its first quarter.

The morning stars are Mercury, Venus and Mars.

The evening stars are Jupiter and Saturn.

Those born on this date are under the sign of Taurus.

American entertainers Kate Smith aand Jack Paar were born May 1 — she in 1909 and he in 1918.

On this day in history:

In 1873, penny post cards went on sale for the first time.

In 1884, work began in Chicago on a 10-story building called a "skyscraper."

In 1931, the Empire State Building was dedicated in New York City — 102 floors, rising 1,250 feet.

In 1977, hundreds were arrested in Seabrook, N.H., in a protest demonstration against a nuclear energy plant.

A thought for the day: American humorist James Thurber said, "You might as well fall flat on your face as lean over too far backward."

DR. LAMB

Prostate Problem

By LAWRENCE E. LAMB, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I have a problem which is no doubt shared by many others my age and I'd be interested in some comments on the subject. My problem is slow, pressureless urinating which has developed over the past few years and it seems to get slower and slower. No pain — just annoying. The urine's clear. I'm 70 years old and have a little high blood pressure and I take Diazide for that.

DEAR READER — It would help if you had signed your name or let me know whether you are male or female. It does make a difference when you start talking about your problem. I'm goint to assume that you're a male and have a prostate gland.

The prostate gland encircles the urethral tube that drains the bladder. It's somewhat like a donut and the urethral tube goes through the hole in the donut. As you get older, the prostate gland either squeezes down or enlarges in such a way as to create pressure on the urethral tube.

It is this obstruction that causes a man to have difficulty in urination. It's a mechanical problem. The stream starts slowly, it often gets very small and sometimes it doesn't shut off completely. Most men who have lived to 70 years of age have such a problem.

If you had given me your name and address I would have sent you The Health Letter number 1-6, Prostate Gland, which would explain this subject more thoroughly. Readers who want this issue can send 50 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it. Send your requests to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

The only way to find out whether the prostate gland is enlarged enough to cause you trouble is to have a good medical examination. If that's happened and there's too much obstruction, you can have an operation for it. Whether you should or should not depends entirely on how much obstruction has developed and that can be determined only by examination.

DEAR DR. LAMB — Most of us nowadays have our television in the bedroom. What is the best position to assume for the back and legs while watching the tube in bed?

DEAR READER — Use whatever position is most comfortable for you. The body gets used to your habits. You might like to have a little pillow beneath the small of your back and a little pillow underneath your knees so that the knees can be flexed. That way you give some additional support to the small of the back and at the same time make the knees a little more confortable. Of course, you'll probably want to be propped up properly so you don't have to crane your neck out of position to watch TV.

Now I've answered your question because you asked me but I'd like to tell you that I'm not very fond of the habit of lying around watching television. A lot of our ails today are because the body is not used enough.

Bedrest can actually be harmful to your health. If you're too inactive, it can result in washing out water from your body, particularly the legs, which gives you a tendency to be faint when you stand up. You develop a form of fatigue and staleness that's associated with inactivity. Also lying prone in such positions for long periods of time results in mobilizing too much calcium out of the bones.

Students Have Difficulty Starting Relationships

NEW YORK (AP) — They are heirs of the sexual revolution, but many college students still find trouble when they look for love, say sex therapists at campus counseling centers.

Students find sex partners more easily today than they did in the past, and don't feel as guilty about sex as their parents did, counselors say. But, they add, even unmarried couples have problems common to marriages — forming relationships and making them last. The students are looking for intimacy, but don't know how to find it, the counselors say.

The problems surface as sexual dysfunction, and are treated in counseling or medical programs at many schools.

"I would say there are more relationship problems now than ever before, because there are more expectations about relationships than ever before," says Dr. Daniel B. Goldstine, a clinical psychologist who works with students at the University of California at Berkeley. "Often, a sexual problem is a metaphor for a relationship problem."

Sex is expected of couples now, and it's expected to be good, he says. If it's not good, the partners worry. Anxiety, the counselors note, is a prime cause of problems like impotence in men and frigidity in women.

"Non-intimate sexual intimacy ... I'd say it's the most significant and frequent problem in my whole practice," says Dr. Debora Phillips, a clinical psychologist in Princeton, N.J., who counsels Princeton University students. "A sexual relationship takes time. It involves a complex learning experience between two people."

And, she says, "this new phenomenon of people going to bed very quickly" gives couples "practically zero preparation for talking in an intimate way about sexuality with anybody."

This is not to say students are hopping from bed to bed. In fact, says Lorna Sarrel of Yale University's sex counseling program, there has been a decline in the number of coeds who lose their virginity simply for the experience.

"About five years ago, we feel there was tremendous pressure on the woman to have sexual experience," says Mrs. Sarrel. "Almost invariably, it wasn't a good experience. Women are a bit more thoughtful now."

But when it comes to putting in the effort it takes to keep love growing, many couples decide to quit, says Goldstine. Even in therapy, he says, they don't seem to want to put in the effort. And as a result, most of the couples he sees end up breaking up.

"I suspect it's a 'me generation' thing," Goldstine says. "It's the kind of 'go with your feelings' mentality that tells you that if you stub your toe, it's time to quit."

For those willing to put in the effort, Mrs. Phillips prescribes an old, familiar treatment: necking. She tells students how far to go, and where to stop.

"I think it's something that's been lost to a whole generation," she says. "I'm teaching them how to make out. They're learning a lot about each other."

Also a problem for achievement-oriented college students, experts say, is performance anxiety — sex problems simply because a person is worried about whether he or she will have problems with sex.

"People who got A-plus in everything want to get A-plus in sex, too," says Mrs. Sarrel. However, says Mrs. Phillips, sex is not like studying — worrying more and trying harder in sex can just make you more conscious of the problem.

The way to treat it, says Mrs. Phillips, a behavior therapist by training, is through behavior rehearsal — repeating sex techniques until one has learned how the body responds.

Dallas Demolition Expert Likes Money, Publicity Of Occupation

DALLAS (UPI) — A lot of puns and cliches fit Roy Lohden: a homewrecker who brings the house down with a dynamite performance — a one-man wrecking crew.

Lohden — 220 pounds, bearded, 39-year-old country boy — started out wanting to build buildings, but ended up tearing them down. His is a one-man operation, usually with a wrecking ball and caterpillar, but every so often with dynamite, such as the job on the 52-year-old Mayfair Hotel in Dallas last weekend.

"I've got a doctor's, master's and 'people' degree in wrecking buildings," said the native Oklahoman in an interview after dropping the Mayfair into a heap.

Lohden, who enrolled in an architecture course at Cisco Junior College and spent a year playing linebacker on the University of Texas-Arlington football team, got into the wrecking business through a fluke in 1964. A friend asked him to wreck a building one weekend.

"I made more money that weekend than I could have made in a month on my regular job," he said.

Two weeks later he handled his second wrecking job and picked up $8,000 for three days work. From that weekend on, Lohden has been a wrecker, and he takes pride in it.

He said if he had gone on to become an architect ("All that time on the drafting board bored me"), he would have loved showing friends his buildings. Instead, he is content to ride his friends around and point out empty lots, and telling tales about the demolition.

One of the best stories involves the demolition of an old three-story El Fenix restaurant building. Lohden was riding his caterpillar across the top floor, when the structure gave way, and Lohden rode his monster machine as it crashed to the ground, floor after floor. His wife, Jerry, readied to dig him out of the rubble, but then Lohden walked out of the dust and concrete, laughing heartily.

He always uses a caterpillar and wrecking ball, until the Mayfair job where he used dynamite. "It's safer, quicker and it'll get the publicity," he said.

"It's an exciting business," he said. "I like it and the money. It's not like most jobs where you go into work day after day, week after week and do the same thing."

Asked what job he would like better, he said, "Millionaire."

During his career, Lohden has knocked over such structures as the Brookhollow (Dallas suburb) water tower, most of the buildings where the new Dallas City Hall stands, the Burton-Dixon building and countless other structures in Dallas-Fort Worth.

Lohden destroyed the Mayfair Hotel — empty since 1970 — for the First Baptist Church of Dallas. The lot will be used for an eight-story, 1,000-car church parking garage.

Brown University To Observe Boycott

PROVIDENCE, R.I. (AP) — Brown University will observe the United Farm Workers boycott of Chiquita bananas, university President Howard R. Swearer has decided.

More than 1,600 students at the Ivy League school signed petitions urging university administrators to agree to the boycott, called for by UFW President Cesar Chavez, student spokesman Paul Cromwell said Monday. The UFW has been on strike since Jan. 17 against United Brands, which distributes the bananas, and other growers in a dispute over wages for field workers.

Stock Mart Breaks Out Of Slump

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market turned upward today, breaking out of the downtrend of the past three sessions.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials, off 12.56 points in the last three trading days, recovered 1.91 to 856.81 by noontime today.

Gainers held a 4-3 advantage over losers among New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

The Federal Reserve's actions in the money markets Monday tended to confirm analysts' presumption that the Fed decided late last week to push interest rates a bit higher.

But brokers voiced the belief that no extreme credit-tightening was in the offing.

They also noted some encouragement over word Monday afternoon that farm prices dropped 1 percent in April, raising hopes for a letup in food inflation.

LTV rose ⅝ to 9⅝ in active trading. The company posted a first-quarter profit of $40.5 million against a loss in the like period last year.

International Business Machines added ½ to 314¾ after a 3¾-point gain Monday, when the company reported heavy demand for its products and shareholders approved a 4-for-1 stock split.

The NYSE's composite index gained .12 to 57.48. On the American Stock Exchange, the market value index picked up .76 to 184.94.

Volume on the Big Board totaled 10.74 million shares at noontime, down from 12.85 million at the same point Monday.

Solon Pushes Paper Bill

BATON ROUGE, La. (UPI) — A Louisiana legislator wants newspapers with more than 200,000 circulation to state on their front pages that the contents "are not necessarily the truth."

Rep. Kenneth Leithman, D-Gretna, who filed the measure in the Louisiana House Monday, said the law was not exactly his idea. It was filed at the request of Jefferson Parish District Attorney John Mamoulides.

"I don't feel good about it," Leithman said. "I'm inclined to disagree with it."

Leithman said Mamoulides told him the proposal was supported by Gov. Edwin Edwards, who was upset at a state Supreme Court decision throwing out a libel ruling against the Baton Rouge Morning Advocate and State-Times newspapers.

The problem is the New Orleans Times-Picayune is the only Louisiana newspaper with more than 200,000 circulation. Gov. Edwards, who visited the House, said the measure is not exactly what he had in mind.

Extra Water Threatens Instruments

HARRISBURG, Pa. (UPI) — Spillage of suspected radioactive water in the reactor containment building at Three Mile Island has doubled since the March 28 nuclear accident and poses some threat to plant instruments, U.S. authorities say.

Ken Clark, spokesman for the Nuclear Regulatory Commission, said Monday experts on the scene don't know exactly how the extra water entered the containment building.

About 225,000 gallons of radioactive water spilled from the reactor's cooling system into the containment during the accident, and now another 200,000 gallons of water has gotten in, Clark said.

Clark said it was possible the additional water was radioative, and it could have seeped through a vent in the cooling system pipe. However, Denwood Ross, an NRC official in Washington, said it could be condensed water.

Ross, deputy director for project management at NRC, said there was no evidence yet the additional water was radioactive.

Clark said the containment was sealed and no radiation was being emitted from the building into the air.

The water is about 5½ feet deep on the floor of the containment, which is about 170 feet tall, Clark said.

"They'll eventually have to do something with the additional water. At present it's more of a nuisance than a threat. But eventually it could get up to levels in the building where it could affect instrumentation."

Clark said there were numerous instruments in the containment that could be affected. He said if they were put out of service, authorities could have trouble monitoring conditions in the plant, including the water level in the containment building itself.

Another problem was that pumps which normally soak up the water in the containment area were failing, Clark said.

In other developments, the NRC was checking what it thought could be a faulty reading of radioactive iodine levels detected in a vegetation sample taken near the plant Sunday. The reading was 270 picocuries, which could be the result of fallout from nuclear weapons testing.

The samples taken Monday showed no traces of iodine, the NRC said.

During the weekend, the NRC said a long-term cooling system implemented Friday was successful and it considered the plant to be in the equivalent of a "cold shutdown."

Steel Haulers Strike Fades

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Steel mills resumed shipments and some workers began returning to steel-clogged plants as a month-long strike by dissident Teamsters steel haulers faded with scattered picketing in some areas.

In Youngstown, Ohio, Teamsters voted to continue the strike. Limited picketing was also reported in the Detroit and Cleveland areas.

Steel mills shipped finished products which have jammed loading docks in Ohio, West Virginia and Pennsylvania, where the strike was concentrated. Some workers were recalled to plants but other layoffs were to continue until product backlogs were cleared enough for production to resume.

The strike kept most of the union's 17,000 steel haulers idle since April 1 and forced some 6,000 steel mill layoffs.

National Steel Corp., whose Weirton, W. Va., plant was hardest hit with 3,000 layoffs, reported limited truck deliveries Monday. A company official said workers would not be recalled for several days.

"Most drivers are back," Charles Carelli, secretary-treasurer of Teamsters Local 800, said Monday in Pittsburgh. "I was out at the terminals ... and there was a pretty good showing."

City Man Hurt In Shooting

A 20-year-old Lubbock man was hospitalized in serious condition with a bullet lodged in his liver, after being gunned down about 10 a.m. today in front of a supermarket.

Albert Marmolejo of 2911 Dartmouth St. was listed in serious condition at Methodist Hospital late this morning. He reportedly was shot once with a small-caliber revolver after an altercation with four Mexican-American men in front of Furr's Supermaret in the Town and County Shopping Center, at Fourth Street and University Avenue.

Police say Marmolejo had walked out of the store and was approaching his car, occupied by two of his brothers, ages 16 and 19, when four men drove up in a white and blue Ford.

Witnesses told police the men got out of their car, as did the victim's brothers, and all seven began arguing. The driver of the Ford reportedly displayed the weapon and handed it to one of his companions, who shot Marmolejo once in his right side.

The men got back in their car and drove off. Police at noon had not arrested any of the suspects, all thought to be about 17 years old.

SHERIFF SEEKS PROBE

MOBILE, Ala. (AP) — Mobile County Sheriff Tom Purvis, acquitted along with seven of his deputies accused in the death of an escaping jail inmate, says he will ask Alabama congressmen to investigate the circumstances of his prosecution. Purvis said the U.S. Justice Department spent more than $1 million prosecuting him and he wants to know why.

Carter Warns Soviet Union

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter says if the Soviet Union violates a treaty to limit nuclear weapons "it might very well escalate into a nuclear confrontation."

Other consequences of Soviet cheating, Carter said Monday at a news conference, might include U.S. nullification of the treaty and termination of "the good relationship" between the two countries.

The president's remarks were offered in defense of the nearly-completed treaty to limit U.S. and Soviet long-range bombers and intercontinental ballistic missiles.

White House press secretary Jody Powell said they also were intended as a public warning to the Kremlin.

However, Carter gave no indication he expects the Russians to cheat. And he reiterated his confidence in U.S. means of verifying Soviet compliance "to our complete satisfaction."

Meanwhile, Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance and Soviet Ambassador Anatoly F. Dobrynin scheduled another negotiating session today — their 22nd this year.

Critics of the treaty have doubted both Soviet intentions and U.S. monitoring ability, particularly with the closing of two bases in Iran that gave the United States a ringside view of Soviet missile launchings.

Carter acknowledged "there are limits on what we can do." But he said the Soviets are aware of the risks of violating the treaty and that this lends "an element of stability and rationality" to the pursuit of weapons controls.

He also told reporters that even if the Senate vetoes the treaty he would adhere to its key provisions — providing the Soviets do the same.

"I would do all I could, monitoring very closely Soviet activities, to comply with the agreements reached," he said.

This pledge could lead to new controversy, since it implies unilateral U.S. controls. Carter seemed to be aware of that prospect when he said he had "no inclination to minimize the importance of the constitutional process."

The Senate has the power to kill the treaty with 34 negatives votes. The administration needs the nod of at least 67 of the 100 senators for ratification.

Opponents are not likely to calmly accept the prospect of a treaty being put into effect informally if it is rejected in the Senate.

On another matter, Carter said he favors granting trade benefits to the Soviet Union and to China, but is still exploring the legal side of the question.

The move depends on a presidential finding that the Russians and the Chinese are permitting Jews and other minorities to leave freely.

Congress imposed that requirement in 1974, leading to a Soviet decision to give up trade benefits with the United States rather than comply.

China has never been permitted the advantage of lower tariffs. The administration would like to boost trade to cement new ties with Peking, but wants to follow a parallel track with the Russians.

Under the law, Carter can order tariffs lowered on Soviet imports into the United States for a year.

One of the questions he faces is whether the law requires a Soviet declaration of its intention to permit free emigration. The Soviets have been issuing exit permits to Jews at an annual rate of 50,000.

But there is considerable doubt that the Kremlin would agree to make a public statement in favor of free emigration.

On other subjects, Carter:

—Said the swap of two Soviets convicted of spying in the U.S. for five Soviet dissidents was a fair exchange. "We've not forgotten any human rights activists in the Soviet Union who is being punished or is in prison," he said.

—Rebuked Israel for authorizing new settlements on lands lost by the Arab countries in the 1967 Mideast war, but acknowledged the United States has limited influence.

—Predicted some tapering off of price increases in certain key areas of the economy that are beyond government control, particularly food costs.

—Said he would welcome a move by Congress to stiffen his proposed special tax on additional revenue earned by oil companies under price decontrol and urged Congress to approve his standby gasoline rationing plan, saying: "We must be prepared for the worst. We face the possibility of gasoline shortages as early as this summer."

FLIGHT OF FANCY — Japanese labor activists carry a model of an airplane lampooning recent scandals involving government purchases of U.S. aircraft at the traditional May Day parade in Tokyo. More than 100,000 spectators turned out for the event in mild weather. Similar celebrations were held around the world today. (AP Laserphoto)

ROAD HAZARD — A motorist halts his small car on a road in Yellowstone National Park to avoid a confrontation with three stubborn buffalo. The high snowbanks on each side of the road prevent the animals or the auto from taking a detour. Snowplows now have opened most roads in the park. (AP Laserphoto)

Workers, Troops March In May Day Observance

By The Associatiated Press

An ailing Leonid Brezhnev climbed slowly up the steps of the Lenin Mausoleum at May Day festivities in Moscow today as his Chinese rivals called for belt-tightening, Moslem revolutionaries celebrated their victory in Iran and other nations' workers marched on their international holiday.

An official on Brezhnev's left escorted the 72-year-old Soviet president up the stairs of the mausoleum in Red Square, but it was not possible to see whether the escort actually helped the Kremlin leader make the climb.

Soviet television, which broadcast the parade live, did not zoom in on Brezhnev going up the steps of the mausoleum as it usually does. Brezhnev has had difficulty walking in recent appearances and an aide usually is nearby to help him.

During last week's summit with French President Valery Giscard d'Estaing, Brezhnev was markedly less vigorous and alert than ever in his up-and-down health history.

Brezhnev and other Politburo leaders wore hats and topcoats against overcast skies and intermittent drizzles today. The Soviet leader waved to the crowd, estimated at 100,000, which cheered for at least 90 seconds when he arrived.

For the first time in 10 years, the Soviet parade spotlighted military marching units, which replaced dancing girls and gymnastic displays. There was speculation that the return of a military show was aimed at China after its month-long invasion of Vietnam, Russia's ally.

Red Square and the rest of Moscow were heavily decorated for May Day. Major avenues were decked out in Christmas-like lights, as well as red hammer-and-sickle flags atop street lamps.

Peking also was aglow Monday night with red lanterns and mile-long strands of electric lights, but for the second year in a row no government-sponsored May Day festivities were planned for economy reasons.

"An important task now facing the Chinese working people is to launch a nationwide movement to increase production and practice economy," the Peking People's Daily said.

The paper said it was essential to build new factories and mines in order to modernize, "but we must rely mainly on the existing enterprises ... improving and transforming them.

"We will be able to quicken our pace, turn out more and better products and make greater contributions to the state if this work is done well."

The Tanzanian national workers' organization, Juwata, also called for austerity, saying May Day will be a normal working day because Tanzanians need to rebuild their economy following the costly war against Ugandan dictator Idi Amin.

In Tehran, hundreds of thousands of jubilant May Day marchers paraded through the city, waved portraits of Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini and praised the February revolution that ousted Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi. Armed revolutionary militiamen, riding motorcycles, maintained order.

In Japan, the call was for higher wages nd more social welfare benefits as 5.5. illion workers held May Day rallies in ore than 1,000 cities around the coun-y.

In Tokyo's Yoyogi Park, a crowd of 40,-.00 heard speeches in praise of workers' rights then paraded downtown calling for better jobs for women, closer ties between city workers, farmers and fishermen and immediate anti-nuclear legislation.

No violence was reported.

In Ankara, martial law authorities arrested 500 youths and warned residents of the Turkish capital to avoid May Day rallies. Security forces in Istanbul banned a rally scheduled by DISK, Turkey's second biggest and most radical labor federation.

In Managua, the government of President Anastasio Somoza rounded up opposition leader Alfonso Robelo Callejas and at least 40 labor leaders in an attempt to prevent a banned anti-Somoza May Day march and rally.

The Somoza government planned an official May Day celebration and said 100,-000 persons were expected to attend. But the Sandinista guerrilla radio broadcast appeals to boycott the Somoza festivities.

Safety Devices May Be Faulty

fered fatal doses of smoke and carbon monoxide while wearing safety gear. Authorities here have been tight-lipped on what tests were being conducted on the equipment, and of any ongoing investigation.

Testing of the safety equipment began after the three Lubbock firemen were killed and were conducted in NIOSH laboratories in Morgantown, W.Va. A NIOSH spokesman there told The A-J that the bulletins were being coordinated this morning. "We're putting them in envelopes this morning and they'll be in the mail tomorow," she said.

Froines said the alerts were being mailed to fire departments across the nation, firefighter associations and unions, the State Health Department, the Office of Safety and Health Administration, Mine Safety and Health Administrations "and others." The deputy director, based in Rockville, Md., said NIOSH had been in contact with Scott Aviation officials.

"The warning is being sent nationwide," Froines said. "There are as many as 200,000, maybe 500,000 (of the respirators) out there. We need to touch as many people as possible."

Froines added that tests have revealed damaged diaphragms both before and after their use. He said they have talked to Scott officals on numerous occasions and they are "concerned with the problem."

A formal letter will be sent from NIOSH to Scott Aviation "basically asking them to determine the nature of the problem," Froines said.

Bailey, based with Scott in Willoughby, Ohio, when asked if there are plans to stop sales of the units and recall the ones used across the nation, he said, "I would have to check to see what the current state of the investigation is." He again stressed, "NIOSH has not stated that there is a connection between the fatalities and the Scott-Airpak equipment."

The warning by NIOSH, entitled "Respirator Users Warning," states:

"The National Institute for Occupational Safety and Health wants to advise users of Scott-Airpak 11 and 11A and pressure packs 11 and 11A self-contained breathing apparatus of the occurrences of split or punctured regulator diaphragms.

"Damage to the regulator diaphragm results in a significant loss of protection which may be life threatening if the respirator is used in the damaged state.

"NIOSH began this investigation following the deaths of three Lubbock, Tex., firefighters who were wearing this type of respirator.

"Laboratory tests performed at the Testing and Certification branch, Division of Safety Research, NIOSH, Morgantown, W.Va., have demonstrated that apparatus with split or punctured diaphragms provides reduced protection to the wearter. A sampling of that apparatus in the field has shown at least 10 percent of the units examined have ruptured or punctured diaphragms."

The warning goes on to tell of the danger and instructions on how users can check the equipment, and that inspection should be on a regular basis. It states, "It is not known if failure occurs during assembly, storage or use of the respirator regulator. Therefore, extreme caution must be employed..."

The written alert ends with, "NIOSH has recommended the manufacturer stop sales of the respirator pending determination of the reason for regulator diaphragm failure and (its) corrective action."

Scott-Airpak, along with a company by the name of Mine Safety Appliances, leads in sales of safety equipment for the country's firemen.

Sadat Takes Aim At Saudi Arabia

By United Press International

President Anwar Sadat today charged that Saudi Arabia had used influence and money to engineer a collective Arab break of diplomatic relations with Egypt.

In a stunning, no-holds-barred attack on Saudi rulers, Sadat said they were motivated by a desire to assume leadership of the Arab world and had also succumbed to pressure from anti-treaty radicals like Syria, Iraq and the Palestine Liberation Organization.

"This is something for which they will have to pay dearly," Sadat told a May Day rally at the Red Sea mining center of Safaga, about 300 miles southeast of Cairo.

In the same breath, Sadat assured Israel that the hostile Arab reaction to the treaty will not deflect Egypt from honoring all its commitments under the treaty, including the normalization of relations with Israel after a first-stage nine-month Israeli troop withdrawal from Sinai.

Referring to the 16 Arab countries with which Egypt has no diplomatic ties at present, Sadat said: "Some of them broke off in a gesture of courtesy to Saudi Arabia. The others were paid the price by Saudi Arabia. Countries from both catgories sent word to me about this and asked for understanding."

"Are they (Saudi rulers) out to frighten Egypt so it will retreat (from the treaty)?" Sadat asked.

"No, we are not going to be frightened and we shall normalize relations with Israel," he said in a defiant tone. "And every time Israel takes one step forward, we shall encourage her and take two steps forward."

"I tell Saudi Arabia: Egypt will not go back. The peace process will not stop under any circumstances. The business of severing relations will not impede us. It will not affect Egypt's prestige, leadership, strength and economy," Sadat said.

"It is true we have to make new calculations," Sadat said in an apparent reference to the cutoff in Arab economic aid decided last month as part of sanctions slapped on Egypt by anti-treaty Arabs gathered in Baghdad.

Sadat said the collective Arab aid Egypt lost was $500 million decided at the 1974 Rabat summit conference and about $140 million decreed at a 1967 summit in Khartoum.

"One project of our own can make up for this," he said.

He admitted he was uncertain what is going to happen to the massive aid Saudi Arabia has been giving Egypt on a bilateral basis. But he said in effect he did not care if it, too, were cut off.

ID Project Here Gets Late Start

which must be signed by homeowners in case they should lose or damage the marking devices or chemical pens. Volunteers also will provide homeowners with inventory sheets to keep track of all items marked.

Valuables should be marked with the owner's Texas driver's license number or Department of Public Safety ID number. Items too small to accommodate the whole number should be marked with the owner's initials. Credit cards, along with items too sensitive to be marked, such as watches and clocks, should be serialized and placed on the inventory sheet.

Hensley said all volunteers, who have been advised not to enter homes, will display ID cards from the District Attorney's office. They will distribute the brochures and logo stickers, and will leave the marking devices with the homeowners and go back to pick them up one day later.

Capt. Frank Wiley of the Lubbock Police Department suggested adding golf clubs and binoculars to the list of items most often stolen in home burglaries. That list ranges from such large items as air conditioners and television sets to small items like garden tools and calculators.

The guidelines also suggests that homeowners mark items in inconspicuous places, so that they can be readily identifiable by law enforcement agencies.

Chamber of Commerce representative Frank McGlaun brought up the idea of running in The Avalanche-Journal a "box score" in the newspaper of crimes committed in the Lubbock area.

"A lot of people are shocked when I tell them the crime rate," he said. "And people aren't going to get involved (in Operation Identification) unless they're aware that our sleepy little town has such a high incidence of crime."

Montford said the "box score" idea would be misleading in that some crimes are falsely reported to police authorities.

Montford agreed with McGlaun's idea of establishing a speakers' bureau in the LCCPC, and suggested crime statistics be included as part of their speeches to local civic groups.

The high incidence of crime "is more of an educational awareness program to be directed at the public," he said. The council approved setting up a speakers' bureau which will include some of the women members as well.

The Better Business Bureau this morning reported there still are plenty of tickets left to the Business Crimes Symposium scheduled Thursday in the Civic Center.

Interested persons may obtain tickets by calling the Bureau at 763-0456 or by stopping by the office at 1015 15th St. Mail orders should have checks made payable to the LCCPC and sent to Box 1178, Lubbock, 79408. Tickets also will be availabel at the door.

The symposium, which will be held in separate morning and afternoon sessions, will be highlighted with a speech by former con artist and master forger Frank Abagnale Jr., who now assists vulnerable businesses in curbing white-collar crime.

inch; Tahoka, .83 of an inch; and Muleshoe Refuge, .64 of an inch.

Further southeast, Abilene reported 1.11 inches, much of it dropped in a brief downpour when rainfall was measured at 4 inches per hour.

Lubbock received .22 of an inch of rain Monday, giving the city 5.30 inches in 1979 compared to 2.42 inches at the same date last year.

A light drizzle that began in the city early today had dropped .02 of an inch late in the morning.

Accompanying the misty rain, a thick fog blanketed the Hub City in the morning hours, causing problems for air travelers.

Ronald Moore, an air control supervisor at the Lubbock Airport, said that fog had reduced landing visibilities below the allowable minimum during the mid-morning, delaying or preventing incoming flights from arriving.

He said the fog thickened at about 9:30 a.m. and continued to pose a problem at 10:30 a.m. Earlier in the morning, he explained, flights had not been delayed because the fog was thinner.

As Lubbock temperatures reach an expected high in the mid-70s this afternoon, winds were expected to blow in a southerly direction at 15 to 25 mph with gusting, according to NWS forecasts.

Temperatures tonight are expected to cool to the mid-50s and heat to the low 80s Wednesday, with winds shifting to a southwesterly direction at 20 to 30 mph and again gusting.

Wind warnings have been issued for area lakes for today and Wednesday.

service, becomes the sixth announced Republican candidate.

The others are: former Treasury Secretary John Connally, Rep. Philip M. Crane of Illinois, Sen. Lowell Weicker of Connecticut, Harold Stassen, and Los Angeles businessman Benjamin Fernandez.

Taking a slap at Democratic slogans for the past five decades, Bush said "rhetoric is not enough to provide the kind of leadership our country needs and deserves.

"As a candidate for president I am not promising a New Deal, a New Frontier, a Great Society or a New Foundation," he said. "But I do plege a new candor.

"To be effective, leadership in the eighties must be based on a politics of substance, not symbols; of reason, not bombast; on frankness, not false promise," he added.

Before entering politics, Bush, a Connecticut native, founded a Texas oil firm and lived at Midland and Houston. He returned to business after leaving the CIA in 1977.

Texas House Passes Measure Allowing Local Tax Rollbacks

AUSTIN (AP) — Rep. Bill Clark, D-Tyler, says the average homeowner in his city pays the equivalent of a month's salary in local property taxes.

Clark's bill giving voters in every city, county and school district the right to call elections to roll back property tax increases exceeding 5 percent won House passage today.

The bill advanced to the Senate on a voice vote. It was tentatively approved Monday, 87-45.

"This bill gives taxpayers for the first time in this state the right to say no to large increases in property tax," said Clark.

Clark, son-in-law of former Attorney General John Hill, said taxes on a typical house in Tyler are $840 a year, "one-twelfth of a fella's take-home pay."

Since home rule cities already have initiative and referendum in their charters, the bill's main impact probably would be on school districts, whose taxes have steadily risen during the 1970s.

Clark had to weather a couple of setbacks in debate on the bill, which makes it more difficult to call tax rollback elections than he wanted.

Doubts also were raised on the House floor that senators will accept the measure.

The bill would allow local voters to call elections to roll back tax increases that boost property tax revenue by more than 5 percent. Income from taxes on newly constructed buildings would not count against the 5 percent growth limit, however.

As approved by the House, the bill would require a rollback election upon the petition of 25 percent of the qualified voters in the affected area.

Clark originally wanted an easier petition requirement — 15 percent of the voters or a total of 40,000 signatures, whichever was smaller. But he settled for 25 percent when it looked as if the House would impose an even harsher 35 percent requirement.

He won a significant victory, however, when the House tabled, 76-39, an amendment by Rep. Bill Blanton, R-Carrollton, that would have allowed only 30 days for gathering petition signatures.

The bill provides 60 days for collecting signatures on petitions for rollback elections.

House members also voted down, 76-53, an attempt by Rep. Frank Collazo, D-Port Arthur, to eliminate school taxes from the rollback provision altogether.

School board members, he said, can be voted out of office if they raise taxes higher than citizens will accept.

"That's your initiative and referendum. Get rid of them and get somebody who will listen," Collazo said.

Meanwhile, senators voted 26-5 to make Texas Eastern University at Tyler a branch of the University of Texas, sending the bill to the House.

Also sent to the House was a bill entitling children with cancer to services under the Texas Crippled Children's Program at an estimated cost of $1.5 million.

Cooperative Taking Electric Battle To Court

By SYLVIA TEAGUE
Avalanche-Journal Staff

The battle over which electric company or companies should serve annexed areas in Lubbock is going back to the courthouse after South Plains Electric Cooperative, Inc., filed a second suit against the City of Lubbock.

The cooperative is asking District Judge William R. Shaver to permanently enjoin municipally owned Lubbock Power and Light from serving the 160-acre High Country Addition located between 98th and 107th Streets and between Indiana and Memphis Avenues.

The suit is virtually identical to one filed by the cooperative last year in Shaver's court, which resulted in an injunction against LP&L serving another annexed area. That case is on appeal before the 7th Court of Civil Appeals in Amarillo.

In the petition for an injunction, cooperative attorney Dale Johnson says the cooperative is the only electric company certified by the Texas Public Utility Commission to serve the High Country Addition.

The co-op has served the area since 1938, Johnson says, and "in the future is ready, willing and capable of lawfully furnishing electric service to said area."

The petition alleges LP&L has "started construction of electrical facilities within the streets and alleys of High Country Addition" and "fully intends to furnish, make available, render or extend retail public electric service to the area without first securing a certificate of convenience and necessity from the (Public Utility) Commission to serve such area as required by the laws of this state."

Construction of LP&L facilities in the area "are an intentional and direct violation" of the Public Utility Regulatory Act "all to the irreparable injury and damage of property and rights of the Plaintiff," the petition says.

The document also states LP&L crews laying lines in the area have damaged lines installed underground by the co-op.

"By reason of the unlawful and illegal acts," the petitions says the cooperative "will be deprived of its legal exclusive right to provide retail electric utility service" in the addition.

In a press release prepared Monday, cooperative general manager W.G. Newton says Lubbockites "should become alarmed that LP&L has acted in defiance of the regulatory law that aims at holding down the cost of service by eliminating costly duplicating facilities."

Duplicate facilities are "only the tip of the iceberg" of higher costs because of competing electric companies, he said, adding there are "many hidden costs in the consumer electric bill used to support their (the companies') own competitive need rather than the service needs of the public."

Newton said the cooperative never has initiated service in an area being served by another utility and has "carefully avoided competing situations such as in Lubbock."

That is the "principal reason" the cooperative's cost of service "averages about 12 percent lower than in Lubbock, in spite of higher facility costs and operating expense inherent to utility operations in sparsely settled rural areas."

Noting city officials recently testified in Austin they had invested nearly $250,000 to extend electric service to the other annexed area they were enjoined from serving, Newton says it "seemed strange that on one hand LP&L complains of its $250,000 idle facilities enjoined for service in the Meadows Addition, and on the other hand hastens to add to their burden by doing likewise in a second area."

City Manager Larry Cunningham defended the $221,000 expense in the Meadows Addition in Southwest Lubbock and the approximately $50,000 cost in laying cable in the High Country Addition.

The cost of laying the lines now is "insignificant to what new construction costs would be" if the city waited until after the areas are fully developed, he said.

"It's more economically feasible to take this approach," he said, adding "it's a gamble" any time a utility prepares to serve a new subdivision because there's no guarantee how many customers will ask to be served.

Cunningham said the primary purpose of the lines in High Country were to power "municipal facilities and street lights."

"We believe we have the right to serve municipal facilities," he said, and "we further believe we have the right to serve other areas in the city.

"We believe we have the right and obligation to serve all the areas within our legal jurisdiction with all utilities" Cunningham said, and questioned why the city wasn't required to get PUC permission to provide water or sewer service to the annexed areas.

Cunningham said state laws seem conflicting on the point of utility service to annexed areas.

One law requires cities to provide a "comparable level" of city services to an annexed area three years after annexation, he said, but the courts and the PUC seem to be saying that doesn't apply to electric service.

"If they're telling you you've got to do it on the one hand, then say you cannot, some area (in the law) has been overlooked," he said.

The cooperative presently is serving about 80 homes in the Meadows Addition, with a development of 1100 homes planned, and the High Country Addition is platted for 471 total lots.

Houston-Based Oil Company Buys Subsidiary From SPS

By KIM PALMER
Avalanche-Journal Staff

Southwestern Public Service Co. officials Monday announced the sale of the company's controversial fuel supplier, TUCO Inc., to a Houston-based oil and gas company.

After seven months of sometimes secret negotiations, Cabot Corp. purchased the SPS subsidiary for $33.8 million, said Berl Springer, SPS president.

Springer said he believes the sale of the subsidiary will enhance the electricity company's fuel supply.

"Southwestern Public Service will have the first opportunity to purchase supplies of natural gas resulting from Cabot's exploration activities over a broad area," Springer explained.

TUCO Inc., was formed in May 1974, as a wholly owned subsidiary of SPS to provide the company with fuel, including natural gas, coal and fuel oil.

In January of this year, officials of several Panhandle cities served by SPS charged that TUCO Inc. was being used to create windfall profits for the parent company through a fuel cost adjustment or pass-through charge.

The criticism followed a request by SPS to add some $21 million to the rates charged to the company's residential customers. After lengthy public hearings, the Texas Public Utilities Commission (PUC) whittled that request to $15.9 million.

SPS representatives testified during the PUC rate hearings that it was advantageous to consumers for SPS to own its own fuel supplier.

But SPS officials now say consumers will be just as well off with the sale of TUCO Inc.

Because Cabot Corp. is "an old oil and gas company," its expertise and exploration capabilities will increase SPS oil and gas supplies, said Frank Lee, SPS manager of advertsing and public relations.

The customers will be "if not as well off, better off" because of the sale, Lee said.

Lee said he doesn't expect the sale of the SPS susidiary to increase fuel prices for SPS. "I expect the price to be competitive, just like TUCO's always been competitive," he said.

Current contracts between TUCO Inc. and SPS, including contracts for the supply of coal for the life of two SPS coal-fired plants, will remain in effect after the sale, SPS officials said.

TUCO Inc. is SPS's sole coal supplier.

In January, Lee denied reports that TUCO Inc., had prompted the sale of the subsidiary, but he added that publicity about the controversial fuel supplier had been a "thorn in the side" of SPS.

"It's strictly a business deal," he said of the sale.

Cabot Corp., explores for, develops and produces crude oil and natural gas. The independent oil company also owns gas gathering systems and operates four natural gas processing plants for the extraction of natural gas liquids.

Stafford Delays Ruling In Traffic Mishap Death

A ruling on the death of a Lubbock County man who was killed in a head-on collision has been delayed by Slaton Justice of the Peace Arvin Stafford until Wednesday.

Stafford said he would not make a ruling on the death of Elmer Earl Shanks, 49, until the Texas Department of Public Safety has completed its investigation of the accident.

According to police, Shanks was driving his car west on U.S. 84 southeast of Lubbock Sunday evening when he collided with a pickup truck traveling east in the westbound lane.

The pickup was driven by Roosevelt Benson, 42, of 9203 Boston Ave. Bensen was in critical condition late Monday in Methodist Hospital.

Shanks was pronounced dead at the scene of the mishap at 7:40 p.m. Sunday by Stafford.

Services for Shanks will be at 2 p.m. Wednesday in Jones Funeral Chapel in Burleson with the Rev. Bill Gibson, pastor of Temple Baptist Church in Lubbock, officiating.

Burial will be in Green Acres Memorial Park at Cleburne under direction of Jones Funeral Home. Local arrangements are by Henderson Funeral Directors.

Shanks, a Baptist, was employed by Heath Trucking Co.

Survivors include his wife, Mildred; two daughters, Anita Grammer and Belva Lackey, both of Burleson; a son, Earl Wayne of Burleson; his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Howell Shanks of Kennedale; two brothers, J.D. of League City and Herbert of Long Beach, N.Y.; and seven grandchildren.

Firms To Construct Disneyland In Japan

BURBANK, Calif. (AP) — The first overseas Disneyland will be a $300-million, 600-acre park on a landfill in Tokyo Bay, officials of the Walt Disney Productions and Oriental Land Co. have announced.

Final agreement for development of the park, scheduled to open in 1983 and expected to attract 10 million visitors a year, was signed here Monday by presidents of the California-based entertainment firm and the Tokyo firm.

City May Purchase Waterworks To Supply Southeast Addition

By PAULA TILKER
Avalanche-Journal Staff

Southeast Lubbock residents, their neighborhood recently added to the city after they complained of hit-and-miss water service, Monday learned the city may have to buy a waterworks to solve their problems.

Rick Childers, assistant to the city manager, told about 40 residents of the Yellowhouse Canyon Addition that the city is negotiating with Travis Martin, owner of the system that supplies water to the area.

The city wants to buy the waterworks, valued at about $70,000, instead of extending pipes into the isolated area that sits on the lip of the Yellowhouse Canyon in far Southeast Lubbock, Childers said.

Buying the waterworks would be cheaper than adding to the existing pipe system, Childers said, but it means the 74 families living in the area will have to keep coping with what they say are pressure problems and inflated rates.

Last summer, the residents went 15 consecutive days with virtually no water when machinery broke down while the owner was out of town. The disgruntled neighbors banded together and asked the city to annex the 151-acre addition.

Council members acquiesced, and on Jan. 10, the area officially became part of the city.

Since then, the residents have been placed on city tax rolls. They receive fire and police protection. And environmental control inspectors have tagged several structures as unsafe and have started the clean-up process for weed-and trash-filled vacant lots.

But the residents still complain of inadequate water service.

One man at Monday's meeting complained his bill went from $14 to $19 within a month, and that he was billed for using 10,000 gallons within 30 days.

"And I didn't even wash my car" that month, he said.

Childers told the group that because the system is privately owned, the city has no jurisdiction over it. Residents would have to appeal to the state Public Utilities Commission it the city's negotiations with Martin end, he said.

"It's a bad situation but it's one that hopefully we can work out soon," Childers said, adding prospects for the city buying the waterworks appear good.

The residents had a preview of what it will mean financially to receive city service. Childers said it will cost each family up to $250 to tap into the city service, as well as plumbing costs to change pipes.

That brought dismayed looks among the meeting participants, but the general consensus seemed to be that it would be worth it for better service.

Tommy McDonald of the city planning and zoning department also urged the residents to approach the city council en masse to request a zone change from transitional to single-family residential.

Initial Arts Festival Termed Successful

By WILLIAM D. KERNS
A-J Entertainment Editor

The final financial figures will not be tabulated for three to four weeks, but officials involved with the first Lubbock Arts Festival have labeled it a complete success.

Attendance at the three-day event which concluded Sunday at the Civic Center is estimated by festival coordinator James Toland at 65,000, though he added, "The police and the people selling concessions feel the actual figure is considerably higher. And the people here at the Civic Center told us that this is the first time the parking lot has been this full since the Civic Center opened."

Asked for his overall feelings about the festival, Toland said, "I'm euphoric. The people turned out in great numbers and all that turned out had a terrific time. There was an air of congeniality about the whole thing; it got so crowded that people were actually rubbing shoulders, and yet there was no sense of discomfort or hectic pacing."

All of the artists who displayed works have mentioned a desire to return for the second Lubbock Arts Festival in 1980. Toland stated that, though the crowds will probably be larger, the festival format will be much the same next year.

Participants may increase their stock, though, since the coordinator added, "Concessions went way up. People over here had to reorder twice. And while the artists all commented on the extreme friendliness of the crowd, several also indicated to me that they made more money at this festival than at any other. And that astonished me because this was our first festival."

Toland said the majority of performances during the 30-hour event played to capacity audiences, "no matter whether it was barbershop singing or string quartets, ballet or square dancing." The survey of the public response has not been tabulated yet, but of those read "the vast majority are enthusiastic."

Asked if the Cultural Affairs Council, which sponsored the festival, broke even financially, Toland said, "We still have a lot of bills to pay, so we won't know for three to four weeks. I wouldn't want to guess right now. But regardless, I'm extremely happy. So many felt this wouldn't happen, that people in Lubbock wouldn't care. But I think we proved the people in Lubbock really do care. They had to not only come once, but keep coming back over the weekend, as so many did."

The next Arts Festival, slated for the same time period next year, may earn more financial support from the state as well. Toland said, "We still have to write a formal evaluation to the Texas Commission on the Arts & Humanities. . . But there's no question that the public responding in such overwhelming fashion is justification for both doing it again and seeking financial support in the form of grants, as far as the funding agencies are concerned."

Asked if rumors that there would be an admission charge at next year's festival were true, Toland would only state, "The steering committee appointed by the Cultural Affairs Council for next year's festival will have to establish policies and governing procedures. I think, though, that having no admission charge really prompted a great many more people to turn out."

According to Toland, next year's festival will not suffer from lack of planning. Asked when formal meetings and planning will begin for the 1980 festival, his answer came without a moment's hesitation: "Two months ago."

Retrial Planned For Late July

CLOVIS (Special) July 30 has been set as the date for the retrial of Clara Wiehle, former Texico, N.M., city secretary, whose embezzlement trial ended Saturday with a hung jury.

Mrs. Wiehle, who had worked as Texico city secretary for 15 years, was accused of embezzling city funds.

A mistrail was ruled by 9th District Court Judge Rueben Nieves after the jury had deliberated four hours without reaching a verdict.

She was tried on 16 counts of embezzlement, 16 counts of failure to deposit public money and six counts of tampering with public records.

Five days of testimony in the trial ended Friday after Mrs. Wiehle took the witness stand and denied the charges.

An audit of Texico city finances last year detected a $27,000 deficit. Mrs. Wiehle, however, was charged only for the money missing between October 1977 and March 1978, estimated at between $5,000 and $6,000.

Sears Reduces Catalog Prices

CHICAGO (AP) — Sears, Roebuck and Co., the nation's largest retailer, is reducing prices in its current catalog by 5 percent starting today, in a move to comply with President Carter's anti-inflation guidelines.

Sears announced the across-the-board price cut for the spring and summer 1979 General Catalog on Monday, three days after Sears officials met in Washington with President Carter's Council on Wage and Price Stability.

Sears officials said Monday night they do not know how the price cuts will affect the company's net income, which last year was $922 million. Catalog sales accounted for about 20 percent of Sears' $18 billion in gross sales last year, Sears spokesman Ernest Arms said.

Sears, which has 866 retail stores and almost 3,000 catalog outlets nationwide, also is working on ways to reduce retail prices on selected items across the country, Arms said.

Catalog prices generally go up an average 5 percent from fall to spring, so in effect, the prices for the spring-summer catalog would be about the same as those in the fall-winter book, said Bob Shoup, another Sears spokesman.

However, customers buying items marked up more than 5 percent in the latest catalog still would pay more than in the past despite the reduction, which will remain in effect at least until July, Arms said. Customers who call in orders will find the 5 percent reduction listed on their invoices, Shoup said.

Carter telephoned Sears Vice President Charles A. Meyer last Thursday, telling him that government figures showed Sears to be out-of-line with the 4 percent profit margin under the wage and price guidelines. Carter appealed to the company to take some action to move in line with the national standards.

Meyer and Sears President Edward R. Telling went to Washington to meet with the wage and price council Friday. The same day, Sears announced that it would slash prices.

Catalog prices were cut first because sales are computerized. "The computerized system can be processed to automatically make the cuts," Shoup said. "It can almost do it overnight."

Sears officials said the catalog reduction is the first of its kind that they are aware of, but they were reluctant to comment on whether other catalog retailers might follow suit.

Shoup said the anti-inflation guidelines require that Sears follow the profit margin set in the 1972-77 fiscal years, which means it must show a net income growth of 4 percent or less. The guidelines, issued in January, were made retroactive to July 1978, causing problems for Sears, which was halfway through its business year, he said.

"The catalog was priced before the program on the part of the President, and certainly before the final guidelines to retailers," Arms said. "Our price increases have been for the past three years an average four percent per year."

Meanwhile, the May edition of a newsletter on race issues said Sears was accused of 74 instances of employment discrimination in a secret 1973 ruling by the Equal Employment Opportunity Commission.

Sears spokesmen could not be reached for comment on the report.

The newsletter, Chicago Reporter, said negotiations on a settlement of the charges broke off Jan. 16, prompting Sears to file suit in U.S. District Court in Washington against 10 government agencies. The suit claims that affirmative action laws are conflicting and confusing and asks the court to approve Sears' hiring policies.

Sears announced last Tuesday that it will stop accepting federal contracts, which represent .1 percent of its annual business or $20 million, because of what it called "a campaign of harassment" stemming from the discrimination investigation.

Four Texas Oilmen Sentenced In Fuel Price-Fixing Scheme

TAMPA, Fla. (UPI) — A federal judge has sentenced four Texas oilmen to three years in federal prison each for conspiracy and mail fraud in a fuel oil price-fixing scheme.

U.S. District Judge W. Terrell Hodges rejected motions for dismissal of the convictions after lengthy oral arguments Monday and then sentenced the four.

They faced a maximum of 35 years in prison each.

Sentenced were John L. Burns, former vice president of Charter International Oil Corp. of Houston; James R. Clark, president of Larcon Petroleum Corp. of Houston; Ronald Pruitt, part owner of Larcon; and Walter Ballard, formerly with Signal Oil and Gas of Houston and now a resident of South Fort Myers.

It was the second time Hodges has sentenced someone to prison in connection with the scheme which cost St. Petersburg-based Florida Power Corp. millions of dollars in 1973-74.

Angel Perez, 70-year-old former Florida Power chairman, pleaded guilty to one count of conspiracy and was a key witnesses for the government against the others. He was sentenced to six-months in prison and began serving his time April 16 at the minimum security facility at Eglin Air Force Base in the Florida Panhandle.

One of the seven persons indicted by the federal grand jury still is to be tried and one was acquitted of all charges.

Houston oil broker Raymond Granlund, 74, described by government attorneys as the mastermind of the "daisy-chain" operation, had his trial severed from that of the others after being hospitalized for heart problems and a stroke. He now is scheduled for trial in Jacksonville in July.

The four men sentenced Monday were convicted by a federal jury in Jacksonville in March. Richard Raymond, former senior vice president at Florida Power, was acquitted of all charges and since has filed a motion in federal court seeking to have his arrest record erased.

The trial was moved to Jacksonville from Tampa because of the publicity in the Tampa Bay area and because many potential jurors would have been customers of Florida Power.

The men also were charged with five counts of wire fraud, but the judge dismissed those charges during the trial.

The men were charged with fraudulently inflating the price of fuel oil sold to Florida Power during the 1973-74 oil crisis through a series of paper transactions in which the oil never changed hands.

Ginzburg, Vins To Live In Vermont

MONTPELIER, Vt. (AP) — Alexander Ginzburg and Georgi Vins, two of the five dissidents released by the Soviet Union last week, have decided to live in Vermont, at least temporarily.

Ginzburg is scheduled to arrive in Vermont today.

Ginzburg, a physicist, plans to stay at the home of Soviet writer Alexander Solzhenitsyn in rural Cavendish. Solzhenitsyn, a close friend and champion of Ginzburg's cause in the West, was exiled from the Soviet Union after winning the Nobel Prize for literature.

Vins, who is scheduled to arrive in Vermont on Wednesday, will be staying with a fellow Baptist minister, Middlebury College President Olin Robison, until his family arrives from the Soviet Union, college officials said Monday.

The five dissidents were released in exchange for two Soviets convicted of espionage in the United States.

Both Ginzburg and Vins have been described by their supporters in the West as in poor health and suffering from ill treatment in the Soviet penal system.

Ginzburg was jailed by Soviet authorities last year, after his conviction on charges of disseminating "anti-Soviet propaganda." The charges stemmed from the physicist's work in monitoring Soviet compliance with the Helsinki human rights accord.

Vins was sentenced in 1975 to five years in prison, to be followed by another five years in a Siberian labor camp, for his role in a group of reform Baptists called Initsiativniki.

Neither Vins nor Ginzburg has spoken about long-term plans.

Solzhenitsyn has asked Ginzburg and his family to come to Vermont "to live there as if they were coming home," Ginzburg said in an interview Sunday.

Solzhenitsyn has lived as a near-recluse in his 51-acre Cavendish compound since coming to the United States in 1976.

'Vikings' Slated At Museum

NEW YORK (AP) — "The Vikings" is scheduled to open at the Metropolitan Museum of Art in October of 1980.

The museum calls it "the largest and most comprehensive exhibition ever organized on the storied seafaring people of ancient Scandinavia."

It says objects in the exhibit will be drawn from museums and other collections in Denmark, Germany, Britain, Finland, Iceland, Ireland, Norway and Sweden.

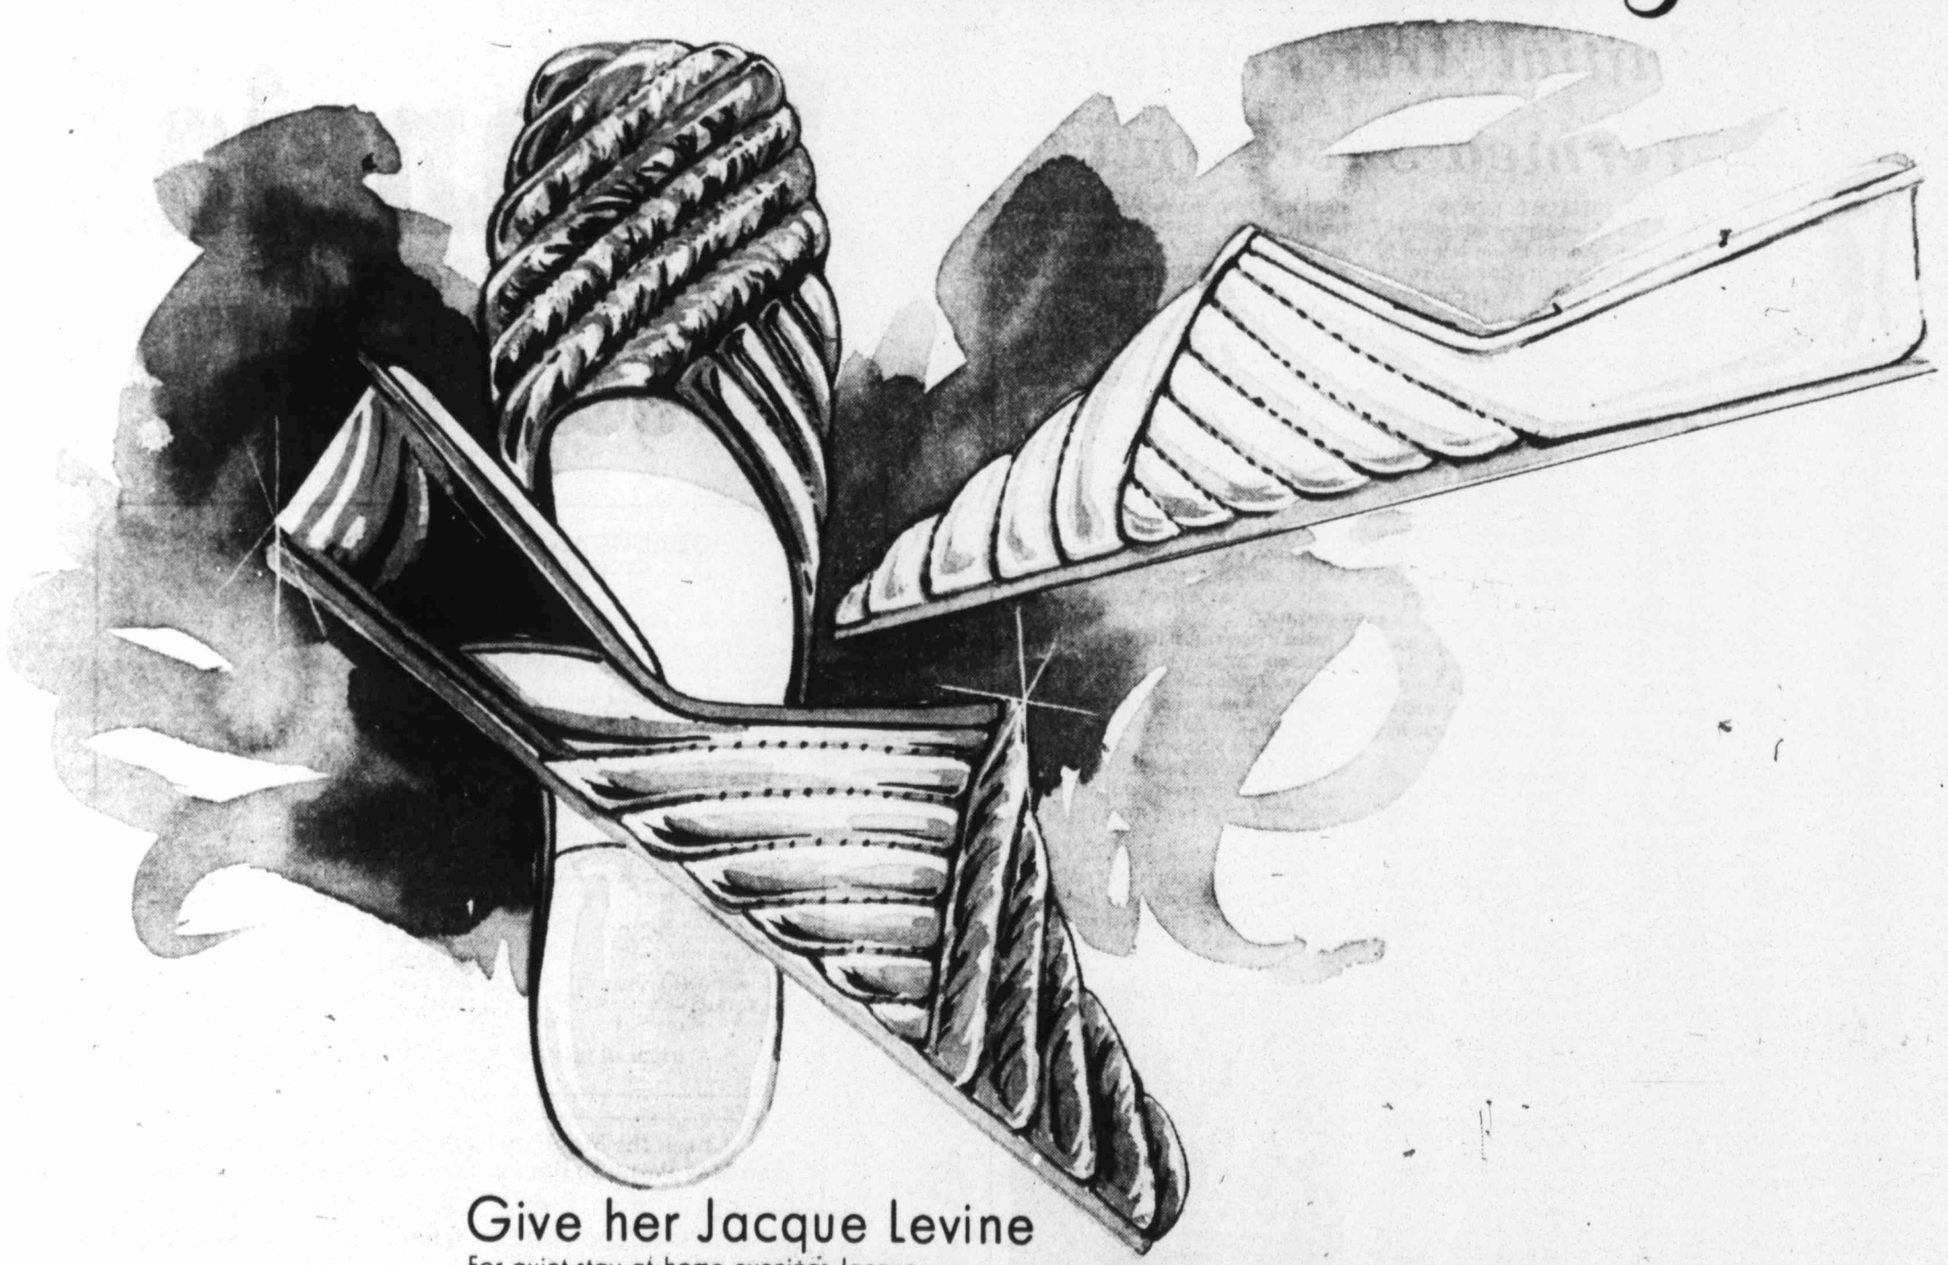

It says the objects "will be organized to reveal aspects of Viking religion and way of life as well as to show the Vikings as warriors, traders and explorers of Europe and the North Atlantic."

Before its New York showing, the exhibit will be at the British Museum in London, beginning Feb. 14, 1980.

Tim Leslie MVP As Chaps Win

For the second straight year, Chaparral first baseman Tim Leslie has been selected Most Valuable Player of the Texas Athletic Conference and for the first time since 1976 Lubbock Christian College has won its loop outright.

LCC now advances to the NAIA District 8 tournament next weekend in Ranger Stadium. The last two years, the Chaps finished second in the Texoma Conference but won the tourney anyway.

This is the sixth straight year Lubbock Christian College has advanced to the District 8 tournament. It has five championships and one runnerup in that span.

This year's all-star team has eight unanimous choices, and three others came within one vote of being unanimous.

In addition to Leslie, conference champion LCC supplied second baseman Steve Brigante and third baseman Kenny Toney.

It marked the third straight year that Leslie and Brigante have reaped all-conference honors. The only other player in that three-year category is Midwestern State pitcher Daryl Frazier, who also was unanimous for the second straight season.

Other unanimous picks: Midwestern outfielder Dave Connacher; Texas Wesleyan's designated hitter Rick Eberly, utility infielder Kyle Sanford, outfielder Tyle Maravich and pitcher Steve Dallas; and Dallas Baptist outfielder Kevin Smith.

Will Kelly of Midwestern, an outfield selection in 1978, was the all-conference catcher this time around, with Joe Guillot of Midwestern and Stan Baker of DBC sharing the shortstop honor. Rick Loesch of Midwestern rated the utility outfield spot.

DBC pitcher Robert Goins, all-conference in '77, and TWC hurler R.C. Castaigne round out the team.

Leslie currently owns a .411 batting average with 15 homers and 61 RBIs. He has scored 55 times and has made only six errors in 440 chances at first base, a percentage of .986.

The Chaps won the TAC title by three games with a 13-7 conference mark. Second-place Dallas Baptist and Texas Wesleyan were both 12-12.

LCC had been scheduled to play a pair of weekend doubleheaders with Midwestern State, the last-place team, but since the results wouldn't change the conference standings the date was scrapped.

Instead, coach Larry Hays is has scheduled Hardin-Simmons for a 12:30 doubleheader Saturday afternoon and is working on a four-game series with the University of Texas on Monday and Tuesday.

Suns, Sonics Begin Semifinal Series

SEATTLE (AP) — Phoenix guard Don Buse puts great value on tonight's opening game of the National Basketball Association Western Conference championship series matching the Suns against the Seattle SuperSonics in the Seattle Center Coliseum.

"If we can win one of these first two, we are sitting pretty," said Buse. "And if we can win the first one, we might be able to win the second."

Game 2 of the best-of-seven series is set for Friday night in the Kingdome.

A sellout crowd of 14,098 is expected in the Coliseum. The Kingdome, the Sonics' regular home, will house a baseball game between the Seattle Mariners and the Baltimore Orioles.

The Sonics, the defending conference champions, enter the series fresh from a 4-1 semifinal series victory over the Los Angeles Lakers. The Suns reached the conference championship round by dispatching the Kansas City Kings 4-2 in their series.

"They're a well-disciplined team," Seattle Coach Lenny Wilkens said of the Suns. "They like to run, and they run their offense very well and get more people involved.

"If the fast break isn't there, they're confident enough that they can go into their offense and get something."

Rebounding is expected to be the key in the Seattle-Phoenix matchup. Seattle runs when the opportunity exists. Phoenix prefers to run all the time. But without the basketball, that's impossible.

"Our front line is probably our biggest strength, that and our backcourt, because it adds so many things to the games," said Seattle guard Fred Brown.

"I would say the guards and rebounding will be the key. They (Suns) have guys who can get out on the break real fast, but you can't run without the ball."

Buse, the Suns' defensive specialist

Latins Came Up Hard Road

First of a 3-part series

EDITORS' NOTE — More and more Latin players are coming into big league baseball. And they are growing increasingly angry with what they say is a lack of full acceptance. Their complaints and the reality behind them are examined in Part I of a three part series.

By DAN SEWELL
AP Sports Writer

Luis Tiant has a fat, long-term contract now that keeps him well-stocked with those ubiquitous cigars. But injuries to his Cuban pride while coming up through the baseball ranks have left scars that no amount of money can erase.

"There is a lot of stuff that I will never forget. I remember when I first broke in, driving 40 hours on the bus from Mexico City to Tulsa, and I couldn't even get into the restaurant. Me and the other Latin players had to sit on the bus and our teammates bring the food out to us.

"It was hard to believe. Things like that, you don't forget," the New York Yankee pitcher said.

Last year, Puerto Rican Ed Figueroa had the best season of his career for the world champion Yankees. He was 20-9, with a 2.99 earned run average. And he sizzled when he picked up a New York newspaper that said Ron Guidry, Catfish Hunter and Rich Gossage carried the Yankees' pitching last year.

"I couldn't believe it. What do I have to do to get publicity?" he asked. "When I was in the minor leagues Roberto Clemente was the best player in the majors but nobody wrote that, and I couldn't understand why. Now that I am here, I know why that is."

In 14 seasons with Cincinnati and Montreal, Cuban Tony Perez has always been one of baseball's most popular players and has probably won as many games with clutch hits as anyone. But while players of comparable stature are augmenting their salaries by, in some cases, over 100 percent with endorsements, Perez has had only one of any consequence: a Cincinnati bank commercial that poked fun at his accent.

"You see a guy like Rod Carew, they don't give him one commercial," Perez said. "In all his years leading the league, Tony Oliva never got one commercial. You don't see Spanish-speaking players on television."

There are some 70 Latin-born players on major league rosters today, the most in baseball history. With the rise of increased player militancy, Latin players are no longer satisfied with the knowledge that they can make more money here than in their home countries.

They want the same things the American players can get: managing jobs, front office jobs, endorsements and publicity.

"They just want the Latin players here to play. When we stop playing, we don't get another job," Perez said.

Statistics can be cited to explain the players' feelings:

— 11 percent of major league baseball's players are Latin-born.

— 6 percent of the major league coaches are Latin-born.

— None of the major league managers are Latin-born.

— None of the major league club presidents and general managers are Latin-born.

— None of the presidents and general managers of the National Association of Professional Baseball Leagues (NAPBL) — minor league teams — are Latin-born.

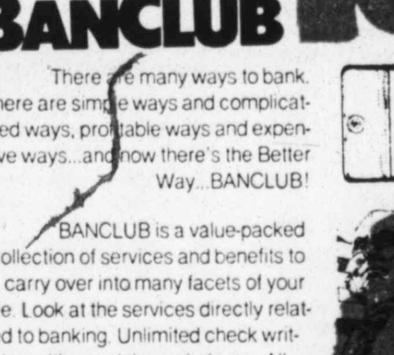

— 9 percent of the NAPBL managers (of 118 named at this time) are Latin-born, and six of the 11 are in the two-month rookie leagues.

— Of baseball's top 30 salaried players (one-year salary), only one, Panama's

Unhappy John McEnroe Answers Questions

Young McEnroe In Controversy

DALLAS (AP) — The World Championship of Tennis found itself involved in another injury controversy today.

Jimmy Connors was given a day's grace in his first round match at the expense of John McEnroe and John Alexander. McEnroe launched into a diatribe Monday because his schedule had been disturbed.

Bjorn Borg said if they had moved his schedule he wouldn't show up for the match.

Barring any last second whim by McEnroe, the match was on tonight at Moody Coliseum between the fiery 20-year-old American and Alexander, a 28-year-old Australian, who made the WCT semifinals in 1975.

Connors, if his injured left hand comes around, is now scheduleld to play 23-year-old Gene Mayer, a first-time WCT performer, Wednesday night.

Borg plays Geoff Masters and defending champion Vitas Gerulaitis plays BrianGottfried Thursday night.

The semifinals are Friday night with the survivors meeting Sunday afternoon for the $100,000 first prize.

Borg, who whipped Connors in straight sets last week in the Alan King Classic in Las Vegas, had to withdraw last year because of an injury and defaulted to Gerulaitis. WCT officials drew criticism in the way the announcement was handled. There were charges the announcement was delayed 24 hours after the WCT became aware Borg was defaulting. The WCT denied it.

Connors was supposed to play Mayer tonight and McEnroe and Alexander were originally paired for Wednesday night.

"I'm not happy about it," said the 20-year-old McEnroe, who like Connors is known for his on-court temper-tantrums. "I came here prepared to play Wednesday. Why can't both matches be played Wednesday?

"They can play Connors Sunday at midnight for all I care but I still want to play Wednesday."

However, WCT officials had Pat DuPree in the wings should McEnroe pull out.

Mike Davies of the WCT said there must be a match Tuesday night because tickets were printed and sold.

"If he (McEnroe) withdraws, he withdraws," said Davies.

Connors, who was in Las Vegas, failed to show Monday for the WCT press day.

He later flew to Dallas with his wife.

Dr. Richard Browning said from Las Vegas Monday that Connors had a infected little finger on his left hand caused from a broken callus. He also said Connors had respiratory problems and a swollen toe.

"I'm sure he (Connors) will play," said Dr. Browning. "He is very determined."

Asked what he would have done if they had moved up his match, Borg said "I wouldn't play. You prepare to play for the day they tell you."

Girls Eligible For Tourney

BEAUMONT (AP) — Six girls — unable to compete in a regional high school tennis tournament because floodwaters kept them from getting to the meet and from contacting tournament officials — have been ruled eligible to play in the state tournament this week.

A federal judge said the six athletes from Forest Park High School in Beaumont were denied their constitutional rights when their games were declared forfeited weekend before last.

'Derby Week' Attracts Own Share Of Attention

By MIKE CLARK

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — There's a rumor that everyone swarms to Louisville on the first weekend in May to watch a bunch of horses run around a dirt track. Don't you believe it.

At one time in its 105-year history, the Kentucky Derby may have been just a two-minute horse race. But it has become an extravaganza, a seven-day circus, a week-long excuse to go crazy, drink, party, swap lies and spend a year's savings

The Kentucky Derby, the 1979 version, is a young tradition. It's almost as if someone sat up one Derby Day, looked at the Churchill Downs infield full of teenagers having a ball, and said, 'Why just one day of fun?'

And so it came to pass that Derby Day stretched from an afternoon into several days. And the fun multiplied with the hours.

There's a balloon race, a runner's marathon and a 100-kilometer bike race for work's sake, and a steamboat race on the Ohio River for nostalgia. There are picnics, concerts, all-star basketball games and a parade.

The super-rich throw parties, some of which would seem more at home in ancient Rome than in a normally quiet Midwestern town.

On the seamier side, the Derby week crowds provide an open house for pickpockets, a cornucopia for con artists, a paradise for prostitutes.

And the whole thing is mixed thoroughly, and liberally, with that old favorite, the mint julep. And anything else that has a measurable alcohol content.

And celebrities! They're everywhere. Each year, the Derby offers a who's who of the year's big names. Last year, for instance, super-model Cheryl Tiegs and Jaclyn Smith of TV's "Charlie's Angels" were on hand.

This time around, Walter Cronkite, the Most Trusted Man in America according to a national poll, will be in attendance.

England's Princess Margaret was the big name in 1974, and President Nixon commanded the limelight in 1970. Any self-respecting autograph hound could fill a book in a week's time.

For some of the locals, Derby Week is an excuse to test capitalism's law of supply and demand. Hotel rooms that sit empty in January go for $100 or more a night in May. Residents who live near the track don't bat an eye in demanding $10 for the use of their lawn as a parking space or the roof of their house as a distant vantage point.

Somewhere in the middle of all this, there is indeed a horse race. Somebody's 3-year-old thoroughbred will get his picture plastered across newspapers around the world. His breeding vlue will skyrocket.

Some people would do almost anything, and pay almost any amount, for grandstand seats on Derby Day. There's only about 43,000 seats, "and we could do with about 143,000," says Bob Gorham, vice president of Churchill Downs.

Some of the juicier divorce cases each year involve Derby tickets, and the Louisville papers are jammed with outlandish pleas for tickets. One fellow offered a two-week vacation in the Caribbean to anyone willing to give up Derby seats. He got the tickets.

The easiest tickets are those to the infield. Sold on race day, the $10 ducats guarantee only breathing room.

The official reason for the whole carnival is lost to thousands of people even on the day of the race. The kids in the infield at Churchill Downs haven't a hope of seeing the race, but they don't really care.

The infield on Derby Day becomes a microcosm of what the city has been all week. Beer flows freely, clothes peel naturally from male and female bodies and frisbies fill the air.

When the revellers drag themselves out of town on Sunday — hung over, dead tired and dead broke, with only a julep glass to show for it all — they'll wonder what it was all about.

And they'll begin the countdown to the next "first Saturday in May" so they can do it all over again.

Ruidoso Gets Ready For Racing Season

RUIDOSO, N.M. (Special) — About 300 horses are now stabled at Ruidoso Downs, but the headcount will be up to near 500 by the end of the week, track officials reported.

And Monday, the running surface — completely renovated at a cost of about $60,000 — was opened for training.

According to new general manager Woody Erwin, the entire track base was checked, restructured and releveled, and "The running surface is will be in the best condition it's ever been in."

Horses will continue to arrive at the mountain track on a steady basis. When the current Sunland Park meeting closes next Sunday, there will be a final surge of horse-trailer traffic to Ruidoso downs, and the track's stable population will be at the maximum of about 1700 when the new season kicks off on May 11.

The demand for stall space was "extremely heavy," according to racing secretary Gordon Graham, who received more than 3,300 requests.

Heading the list of top-name trainers who will be campaigning at Ruidoso Downs this season is Jack Brooks. The standout in his stable is Moon Lark, the All-America Futurity winner of 1978. Moon Lark has now earned more than $635,000 and is the second-best money-winner in Quarter Horse history.

Bubba Werner, the defending champion trainer, will be shipping in 35 head. Included in his lineup is Gentlemens Feature, the upset winner of the '78 Kansas Futurity. Werner also plans to bring in Johney Mito, winner of last spring's Riley Allison Thoroughbred Futurity at Sunland.

Joe Merrick will be back at the mountain track, and his band will include perennial star, Real Easy Jet. J.B. Montgomery will have 35 head, including 2-year-old star Rocket Jet Bug.

The '79 Ruidoso meeting will cover 68 race days, mainly in a Thursday-through-Sunday pattern. The campaign, as usual, will wind up on Labor Day with the nationally televised All-American Quarter Horse Futurity, which has a gross purse this year of $1,280,000.

Other high points of the schedule include the $200,000 Kansas Quarter Horse Derby on May 20, the $525,000 Kansas Futurity on June 3, the $450,000 Rainbow Quarter Horse Derby on July 8, the $450,000 Rainbow Quarter Horse Futurity on July 22, the $1 million All-American Derby on Aug. 26, and the $125,000 Ruidoso Thoroughbred Futurity on Sept. 2.

Supreme Courts Announce Opening

By TONY BATT
Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff

Racquetball, perhaps the sweatiest of "in" sports, has taken on a refined image at the Supreme Court Racquetball Club on Brownfield Highway.

First, there are the 10 courts, all of which are underground. You can be six feet under and never feel more alive — or dead, depending on the outcome of your match. Then there's the elaborately equipped locker room replete with sauna and steam bath, showers with soft water, and a Jacuzzi whirlpool churning away at 110 degrees. In the lobby, the smell of new carpet is still strong and the wall facing the entrance sports a racquetball mural.

About the only thing the facility doesn't have is Nautilus equipment — and that's due to arrive for today's opening.

"We've got all the die-hards," owner Bob Heinsheimer says of the club's members. "Now it's a matter of educating the market. We're targeting to anyone who plays the game."

The Supreme Court opened its doors April 1 and already 43 per cent of its membership quota of 1,200 has been filled. A $200 down payment and monthly dues of $28 are required for membership, but Heinsheimer is quick to mention the April discount of $175-$25. The clientele is as affluent as the complex — bankers, lawyers, doctors, ranchers, and "a couple of college students" Heinsheimer says.

Of the 16,000 square feet occupied by the Supreme Court, only 5,000 are serviced by heat and air conditioning. "The rest is ventilated by fresh air, including the courts," Heinsheimer says. "This building is almost completely underground, so we don't need that much central air."

Heinsheimer is already making plans to buy more local land this summer to build another, even more elaborate, recreational center. Not only would the new complex offer racquetball, but there would also be tennis courts and a swimming pool.

All this seems to indicate Lubbock is more than ready for what Heinsheimer is selling. He spent a year and a half planning the $650,000 Supreme Court and is convinced he is in the right market.

"The secret to all this is that racquetball is fun," Heinsheimer explains. "And it's easy to learn how to play. You can learn how to play in ten minutes. It doesn't take a lot of skill, and you can't beat the exercise."

The efficiency of the exercise in racquetball is one of the game's big selling points. Heinsheimer realizes most of his members don't have a lot of time to spare. "They can come in here and get all the exercise they want in an hour," he says.

Two tournaments have been scheduled for the summer. The Lubbock Invitational and the West Texas Invitational are set for June and August respectively. Dick Lupia, who finished second in last year's senior nationals, has joined the club and will be conducting lessons for other members.

"We don't foresee any trouble getting 1200 members," Heinsheimer says.

Post's Track Crown First-Ever

By CHUCK McDONALD
Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff

Maybe if you spent a couple of days playing moon with the old-timers at the Longbranch Saloon in Post you could determine the last time Post won a regional championship in track.

Maybe if you invested a couple hundred dollars buying longnecks at the Western Dance Land to jog a few memories you could determine the last time the Post Antelopes captured a regional victory in football, basketball, golf or track.

But the long drought came to an end Saturday at the Texas Tech track where the Post runners parlayed a couple of solid finishes in the relay events to take the Region I co-championship with Colorado City.

"As far as I know it is the first championship, or co-championship that we've ever won at Post," said track coach Lane Tannehill Monday. "Now you might find some old-timers around here that might know different — but I think it's a first."

And, as can be expected on any first-time accomplishment it didn't come easily for the Antelopes.

For instance the Post 440-yard and mile relay teams both set school records on Friday — just to qualify for Saturday's finals. Then they came back on Saturday and broke both of those records to finish first in the 440 and second in the mile. And, although they finished second, the mile relay team knocked 4 seconds off of its previous best time to qualify for state.

Prior to the regional meet, the Antelope foursome had never run better than a 3:27.2. On Friday it clipped that to 3:25.1 and on Saturday the Antelopes turned in a 3:23.3. Now, that's making progress.

"To be honest," said Tannehill. "I really didn't think we could win the regional meet. We knew our sprint relay team had a chance to qualify for state but I really didn't know about our distance relay."

To make the story even more interesting, consider this: Five athletes scored all 47 points for the Post squad which hadn't even won its district meet the week before.

Probably the key to the Antelope success was Bryan Compton. He picked up 10 points by winning the long jump — for the second year in a row — and then ran the anchor leg on both relay teams.

Even though he was the defending regional champion in the long jump, Compton wasn't even in the top five until his last jump.

"He hadn't gone over 21 feet in his first five jumps," admitted Tannehill. "But he just made up his mind that he was going to do it on the last jump."

Compton went 21-9½ on his final try to win the event by a mere 2 inches, and the Antelopes were on their way.

Cliff Kirkpatrick, who also runs on the mile relay team, picked up another point with a sixth-place finish in the 330 hurdles and then Post got 36 points for their 1-2 finishes in the relays.

Running the 440 were Jackie Ayala, Johnny Ray Williams, Alonzo Luna and Compton. The mile relay team, with the exception of Kirkpatrick filling in for Ayala, is identical.

Last year Tannehill made the trip to Austin, but he only took Compton with him. This year things look bright for the Post coach, even if the traveling conditions might be a little cramped. (Drew Kirkpatrick, who is the alternate for the relay teams, also will be going to Austin).

"Our district (5-AA) is awful tough," said Tannehill. "I think if you look at Saturday's results you'll see that we probably did better than any other single district.

"So anytime you can get out of this district you've got a good chance. We'll have an excellent chance in the state meet since we're taking two relay teams."

But the state meet isn't until May 10-12 and until then Tannehill fully intends to soak up the glory of Post's regional victory.

"I'm still kind of in a daze," he said. "I never thought we would do that well. But the kids just made up their minds that they could run those relays. . ."

So if you run across anyone at the Longbranch who can tell you that this isn't the first regional title at Post, don't tell Tannehill about it.

He doesn't want to know.

Charlie O.'s Once-Proud Athletic Empire Crumbling Around His Head

By WILL GRIMSLEY
AP Special Correspondent

Shed a few tears — salty ones, if you must — for Charles O. Finley. The "O" stands for "Oh, No, No, No!" Or maybe, "Oh, my Goodness!"

It's hard to visualize how things could be worse for the snow-haired baseball maverick. With the season less than a month old, his Oakland A's are settling into their familiar pits in the cellar of the American League West. Charlie O. has to be on an aspirin diet. Every day brings a fresh headache.

Fans are staying away in droves. Average attendance is around 4,000 a game. Sometimes there are fewer fans than employees in the ball park, such as the 653 that showed up for a recent game against Seattle. Now the Coliseum has filed a $10 million suit against the Oakland owner, charging that since 1975 he has not lived up to his agreement to field and promote a big league baseball franchise on the premises.

Technically, Charlie O. can't run and can't stay. His original 20-year lease runs through 1987. When he says he'd like to move — there have been gestures toward Seattle, Denver and Washington, D.C. — the landlord responds, "Nothing doing." So the mad, sad circle goes on.

The saga of Charles O. Finley reads like a Horatio Alger paperback classic in reverse. It's sports' most compelling "riches to rags" non-thriller.

Five years ago, the Oakland A's were coming off their third straight World Series championship and were being proclaimed a "diamond dynasty", compared to the old Yankees. Charlie O. was defiant and flying high.

His free-spirited musketeers were the scourge of baseball in their beards, bright-colored uniforms and white shoes. Charlie's mule, Charlie O., had the run of the house. Charlie O., the man, was daily feeding the flames of feuds with the establishment, Commissioner Bowie Kuhn, Congress and his own fans.

Then the botton fell out. Erasure of baseball's reserve clause was the principal factor, but Charlie O.'s bull-headed stubborness had a lot to do with the A's sudden demise.

Today there's not a shred left of the great team Finley fashioned with his shrewd knowledge of talent and clever wheeling and dealing.

Where did they all go?

You can find most of them by reading the agate boxscores in your favorite newspaper. The best ones have signed million-dollar contracts and are toiling with rival teams. Some got as far away as possible, the Mexican or South American Leagues. Others retired and — poof — were gone.

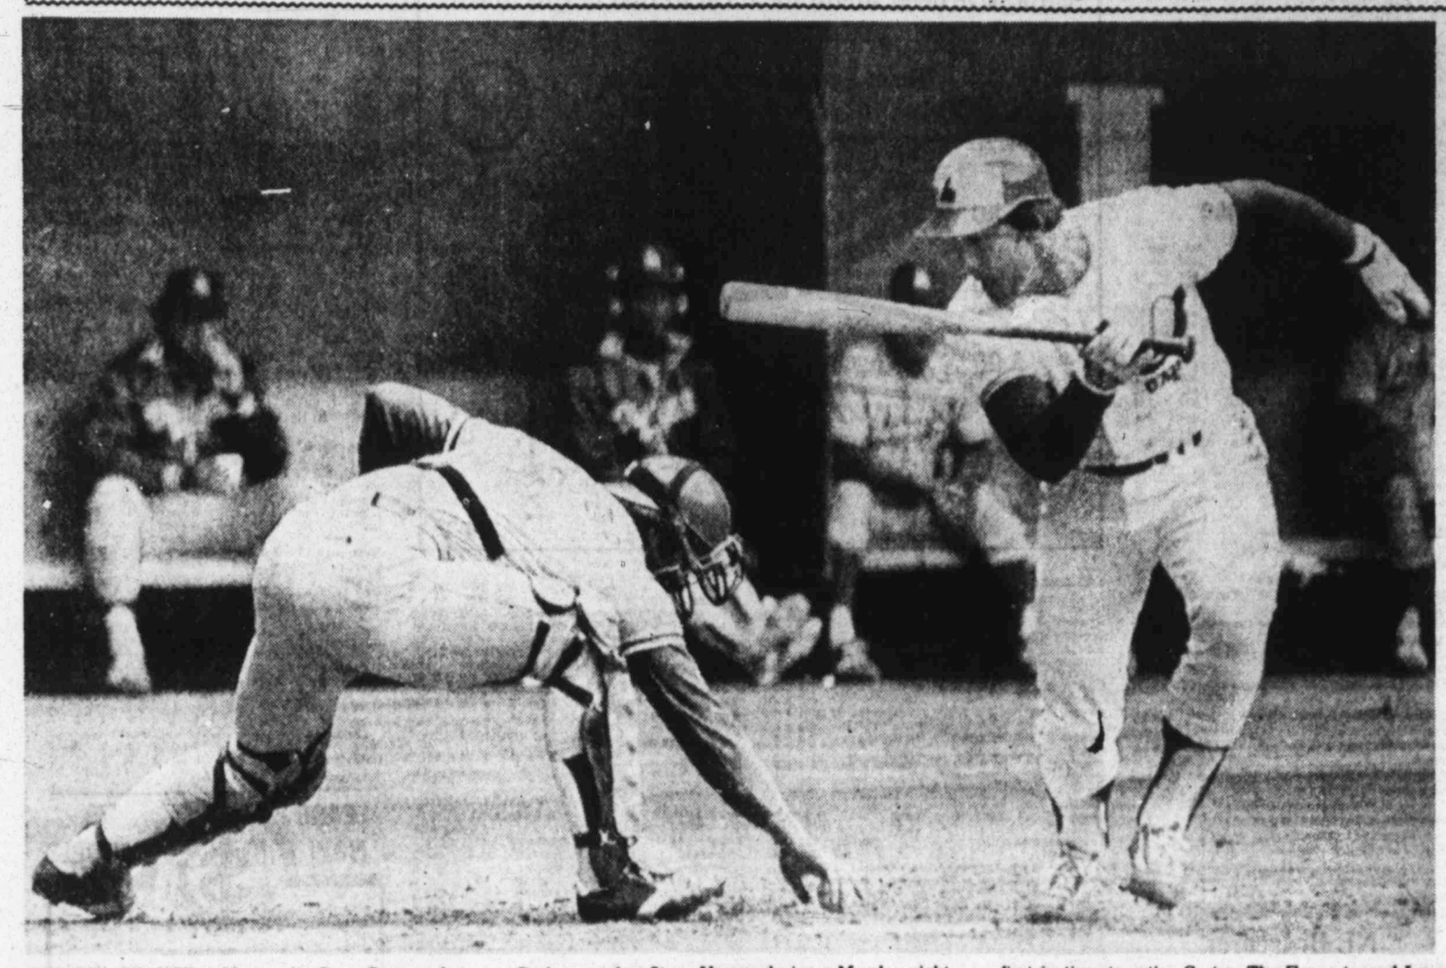

Outfielder Reggie Jackson ($2.9 million) and pitcher Catfish Hunter ($3.5 million) wound up with the New York Yankees, where they continued collecting World Series rings. Pitcher Rollie Fingers ($1.5 million) and Gene Tenace (c-1b, $1.2 million) were acquired by San Diego with some of Ray Kroc's hamburger money. Outfielder-first baseman Joe Rudi ($2.09 million) went to the California Angels.

Third baseman Sal Bando ($1.4 million) and catcher Ray Fosse helped make contenders of the Milwaukee Brewers. The Texas Rangers picked up a handful of disenchanted A's, but stayed only with shortstop Bert Campanaris ($950,000 for five years). Vida Blue signed a $1.5 million contract with the San Francisco Giants.

Pitchers Paul Lindblad and Darold Knowles and outfielder Claudell Washington had stints with the Rangers before moving to other pastures (Seattle, St. Louis and Chicago). Former 20-game winner Ken Holtzman vegetated on the Yankee bench before landing with the Cubs. Outfielder Bill North finally went to the Dodgers, then the Giants.

Mike Hegan became a broadcaster. Jesus Alou and Horacio Pina took flings in the Mexican League. Vic Davalillo gets his mail at Dodger Stadium. The others — Blue Moon Odom, Dick Green, Ted Kubiak, Angel Mangual, Mike Epstein, Dal Maxvill, Herb Washington, Matty Alou and Mike Andrews — heard from any of them lately?

And what of Charlie's favorite mule? Dead, and — like the A's — buried in a California graveyard.

SECOND CHANCE— Montreal's Gary Carter takes off for first base after a dropped third strike by Dodger catcher Steve Yeager during a Monday night National League game. Yeager made the throw to first in time to retire Carter. The Expos topped Los Angeles 8-4. (AP Laserphoto)

Baylor Red-Hot In April Starts

By The Associated Press

April was a hot month for Don Baylor — figuratively speaking, of course. And his figures include 28 runs batted in.

The California Angels' exalted outfielder simply tore through April and ripped up the American League record book in the process.

Continuing to produce in machine-like fashion, Baylor delivered a bases-loaded single in the bottom of the ninth inning Monday night to provide the Angels with a 2-1 victory over the New York Yankees.

Baylor's RBI broke Joe Rudi's mark of 27 in 1977. The major league mark for RBI in April is 29, set by Ron Cey in 1977.

"I wasn't thinking about the record — although I should have been, I guess," noted Baylor. "I had an opportunity to go after Cey's record about 10 days ago. I had the opportunity to drive in runs from third base with no outs a couple of times and didn't do it. It's like the 99 RBI I had last year — I'd rather do it early than later."

Baylor not only drove in the winning run, but was partly responsible for California's initial run. He broke up a no-hit bid by Ed Figueroa with a single in the fifth and eventually scored on Carney Lansford's base hit.

Incidentally, the Angels' victory set a club record for triumphs in April — 15.

"The more games you win in April, the less you have to win in September," said Baylor.

Orioles 8, Mariners 7

Eddie Murray's third RBI of the game, a bases-loaded grounder in the 10th, boosted Baltimore over Seattle. Billy Smith led off the Baltimore 10th with a single but was forced at second on Al Bumbry's grounder to third base. Rich Dauer then singled and Ken Singleton walked to load the bases, setting up Murray's game-winning grounder.

The Mariners tied the game 7-7 in the bottom of the ninth when Bill Stein walked to lead off and pinch-hitter Joe Simpson hit his second homer of the year.

"Seattle didn't quite make it tonight," said Baltimore Manager Earl Weaver, "They came back tonight, but we came back, too."

WOMEN'S WINNER

MONTREAL (AP) — Barb Weinstein of the United States won the women's 10-meter event at an international diving meet Sunday. She completed her program with 550.63 points. Elizabeth MacKay of Canada was second.

A's 5, Red Sox 4

Jeff Newman tied the score with a two-out home run in the bottom of the ninth inning and then socked a two-out, run-scoring single in the 11th to lead Oakland over Boston.

The A's totaled only five hits in the game played before their biggest home crowd of the year — 14,716 — but three of those hits were homers. Besides Newman, Dave Revering smashed a two-run homer in the fourth and a solo shot in the sixth.

Brewers 8, Indians 0

Jim Slaton fired a two-hitter, Ben Oglivie powered two home runs and Gorman Thomas slammed a three-run shot to pace Milwaukee over Cleveland.

A two-out single by Bobby Bonds in the fourth and Bo Diaz' leadoff single in the ninth were Cleveland's only hits and the Indians' only baserunners of the night off Slaton, 2-1.

Twins 6, Blue Jays 3

Butch Wynegar smashed a two-run homer and a run-scoring single to spark Minnesota over Toronto. Winner Paul Hartzell scattered seven hits.

Rangers 8, Royals 7

Richie Zisk keyed a five-run rally in the third inning with a two-run single and made a spectacular catch in right field to smother a Kansas City uprising in the sixth as Texas beat the Royals.

After the Royals tied the game 6-6 with two runs in the fifth, Bump Wills singled in a Texas run in the sixth and scored on a sacrifice bunt for the eventual game-winner.

Expos 'C'est Magnifique!'

By The Associated Press

The hottest sticks in Montreal aren't being wielded by Guy Lafleur, Jacques Lemaire and Steve Shutt of Les Canadiens but rather by Warren Cromartie, Gary Carter and Andre Dawson of the Club de Baseball Montreal Limitee — alias the Expos.

Cromartie and Dawson are voltigeurs (outfielders) and Carter is a receveur (catcher), but above all they are frappeurs (batters), even if they aren't French. Don't be fooled by Dawsen's first name; he hails from Miami, Fla.

Carter and Dawson each homered while Cromartie stretched his hitting streak to a club record-tying 18 games — c'est magnifique! — with a two-out infield hit that triggered a four-run first inning Monday as the Expos won their sixth game in a row, defeating the Los Angeles Dodgers 8-4.

The triumph enabled the Expos to remain tied atop the National League East with the Philadelphia Phillies, who handed the San Francisco Giants their eighth consecutive setback 4-1.

With two out in the bottom of the first, Cromartie outlegged a bouncer to short, equaling Pepe Mangual's club record hitting streak. In rapid succession, s'il vous plait, Tony Perez doubled for one run, Carter doubled for another, Ellis Valentine tripled, Larry Parrish doubled ... et voila! ... 4-0 Expos.

"He (Cromartie) ran it out hard and we end up getting four runs because of it," said Dick Williams, le gerant (manager) des Expos.

Carter hit a solo homer in the fifth inning, Dawson unloaded a two-run shot in the sixth and the Expos led 8-0 before the Dodgers broke through Montreal lanceur (pitcher) Steve Rogers, who hurled a seven-hitter.

"We're playing ball like we should be playing ball," said Cromartie. "You can tell that by the type of games we're playing — errorless ball and doing things properly in certain situations. We're for real. We're as serious as a heart attack."

Sacre bleu!

Phillies 4, Giants 1

Greg Luzinski's two-run homer and a solo shot by Garry Maddox powered Philadelphia over San Francisco. Dick Ruthven, 4-0, pitched six innings before leaving with a tender elbow. He was relieved by Tug McGraw, who hurled three scoreless innings. Luzinski singled a run across in the first inning, Maddox homered in the second and Luzinski connected in the third.

The eight-game losing streak matches the Giants' longest since they moved from New York to San Francisco in 1958. They also dropped eight in a row in 1972, 1977 and 1978.

Astros 6, Cardinals 5

Terry Puhl's two-run homer capped a four-run Houston rally in the top of the ninth. Trailing 4-2, the Astros teed off on Tom Bruno and Buddy Schultz. Enos Cabell's double and singles by Bob Watson and Art Howe chased Bruno. Pinch-hitter Jeff Leonard greeted Schultz with a sacrifice fly to tie the score and one out later Puhl hit his second home run in as many games. Ken Reitz homered for St. Louis, which collected six extra-base hits.

Mets 4, Padres 3

Doug Flynn singled home the winning run in the seventh inning after Joel Youngblood singled off reliever Bob Shirley, 0-4, with one out and stole second. The Padres had tied it on Fernando Gonzalez' home run in the top of the seventh off winner Craig Swan.

The Padres played the game under protest, claiming New York Manager Joe Torre was in the Mets' bullpen after being ejected in the third inning for claiming that San Diego starter Bob Owchinko had balked with a runner on third.

"If Torre will admit being in the bullpen, I'll admit that my pitcher balked," said Padres Manager Roger Craig. Replays clearly showed that Owchinko brought his hands together in a stretch position, then separated them before stepping off the rubber.

Torre insisted he listened to the final six innings on a radio in the Mets' clubhouse but Craig said he became suspicious that Torre was in the bullpen — which is against the rules if you've been ejected — when he saw Mets pitching coach Rube Walker on the dugout phone to the bullpen.

"I sent my right fielder (Dave Winfield) out there to take a look about the eighth inning," Craig said, "and he saw Torre in the bullpen. He was probably out there the whole game."

Success Puzzles Moegle

By BOB BAJACKSON
Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff

Bobby Moegle raised his arms in the air and shook his head in a negative direction.

The Monterey baseball coach's reaction stemmed from a question about the reason for the Plainsmen's successful season record.

"I have no idea," said Moegle. "That is one of the most perplexing things about this season. We haven't played nearly as well as other Monterey teams. Yet, our record indicates so."

Well, the Plainsmen mentor will get an extra day to come with an answer as Monterey enjoys the day off from the 4-AAAA baseball race.

The rest of the schedule has Coronado at Hereford, while Lubbock High visits Plainview.

Other city games includes Estacado visiting Levelland, while Dunbar host Canyon. The Panthers will host the Eagles in a single 1-AAA contest at Mackenzie Park. The action is slated to get underway at 4 p.m.

Meanwhile, the extra time hasn't brought Moegle any answers. As the 4-AAAA action gets underway, Monterey sits on top of the race with a 5-1 record. The Plainsmen are trailed by Plainview at 4-2, while Coronado is at 2-2 with Lubbock High sports a 1-3 mark, while Hereford rounds up the pack at 0-4.

"We're in a lot better position this time round than we were before the first Coronado game," said Moegle.

In fact, the roles were almost reversed. It was the Mustangs who stood 5-0 before the first showdown, and Monterey (4-2) needed a sweep to gain a share of the title. Well, by now it's past history that the Plainsmen were able to accomplish the task.

"I set a lot of personal goals before the season," said Moegle. "This is my 20th season at Monterey and I wanted to win 20 games. But how this team has been able to do that, I still don't know."

While the Plainsmen get ready for the Mustang showdown at Chapparal Field Saturday, Monterey sports a 23-6 record.

"Our fielding has been shabby, our pitching has been erratic, I just don't know," said Moegle. "Here we are though with the same credientals as the championship team."

Since Monterey and Coronado share the first half title, as a back ground, if the Plainsmen win the second half outright, then Monterey will represent the district in the playoffs. If Coronado is able to gain a share of the second half crown, then the two teams will face each other a in a one game playoff.

Scott Takes Dual Awards

Basketball standout, Rosemary Scott, led the list of eight Texas Tech women athletes recieving awards at the Women's Intercollegiate Athletic Banquet Sunday night.

Miss Scott, who played at Slaton high school, was honored as the outstanding senior athlete and she also picked up the outstanding basketball player award at the event hosted by Jack and Majorie Kastman.

Miss Scott is a two-year letterman and co-captain of the 1978-79 team, averaging 10.7 points per game.

Debbie Donley was cited as the outstanding tennis player. Miss Donley, a senior, played in the No. 1 singles slot and won 25 matches this year.

Denise Shipman, a junior who swam in the butterfly and sprint freestyle events, was chosen as the outstanding swimmer.

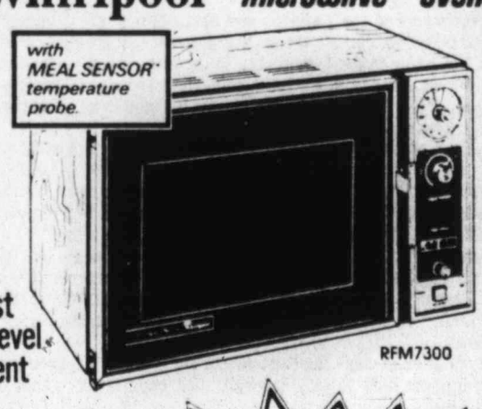

Isabel Navarro, a Brownfield sophomore, was honored as the top cross country performer after competiting in the AIAW nationals for the second consecutive year.

Pam Montgomery, a freshman from Ore City, was named the outstanding trackster. Miss Montgomery is a national qualifier in the 100 meter dash and is on the 440 yard relay team— which qualified for nationals also.

Latin Baseball Star Luis Tiant

Latins Came Up Hard Road

Rod Carew, is Latin-born, according to an Associated Press survey.

There are twice as many blacks as there are Latins in major league baseball, and their numbers in management positions aren't appreciably higher. But Latins believe they get the worst shake when it comes to salaries, endorsements and publicity.

And there are other perceived problems:

Although they can't prove it, there is a prevalant belief among Latins that many teams avoid keeping more than a handful of Latin players at one time:

— "I think the teams don't want too many Latin players. They keep us spread around the league," Perez said.

— "We have to work harder to make the big leagues. We only get one chance," said young Philadelphia Phillie pitcher Nino Espinosa, a Dominican. "We have to do better than the Americans. You don't see too many Latin ballplayers on the bench."

— "The Latin players get traded around all the time," Figueroa said.

"While some players may tend to try to find racial reasons for why things exist, you have to keep in mind that their perceptions are compounded by the fact that they have a difficult transition to make," said Chicago White Sox Vice President Bill Veeck.

While past players such as Ozzie Virgil, now an Expo coach, and Preston Gomez, a Dodger coach, say blatant anti-Latin prejudice today is almost nonexistent compared to 15-to-20 years ago, it still is apparent sometimes:

"Even now, I say words wrong, people laugh at me. It hurts you," Tiant said.

"When I came here people were saying I would be another Willie Mays and things like that, and I felt some people were jealous of me," said Cesar Cedeno, Houston Astros' center fieldr, a Dominican. "They didn't seem to want me to do well. I felt it was because I was from a different country."

"I don't think the writers are interested in us because we are Spanish," Espinosa said. "They say it's because they don't understand us, but a whole lot of Spanish players speak good English."

The problems of the Latin players, both tangible and intangible, are compounded by severe culture shock: learning one of the world's most difficult languages, adjusting to a different diet, living with a people who tend to show less emotion than those from the Latin countries, dealing with businessmen-owners who have little interest in helping players become better negotiators. The players have to learn on their own.

"It feels funny not having anyone to speak to. You can't understand the television or the movies," said veteran Detroit third baseman Aurelio Rodriquez, a Mexican. "My first two weeks here, all I know how to say is ham and eggs. Then the waitress asked me how I wanted the eggs. And I didn't know what she was saying. So I got the eggs however she felt like bringing them."

"Things like the endorsements are blatant and obvious, outright discrimination, and they bother the players," said Marvin Miller, executive director of the Major League Baseball Players Association. "Things like quotas, it's hard to find evidence of. But looking at the rosters of some clubs certainly makes you suspicious."

Baseball officials deny the existence of any quotas. But once the foreign players are brought here to play baseball, their expectation is that they would be treated equally.

"When you look at different clubs, what you find are different policies," says Los Angeles Dodger Vice President Al Campanis. "Some teams feel they can do better concentrating on American players. It's an expensive item to go after the Latin American players."

Tomorrow: the view in the front office

Semifinals Begin

who teams with shooter Paul Westphal to form a potent backcourt combination, said he fears Seattle won't run enough to keep a pace proper to the running game Phoenix likes.

"Seattle slows it down," he said. "Their game is a slower tempo. If we can get the lead, we can make them play our game."

Phoenix forward Walter Davis, one of the best small forwards in the NBA, says he thinks the Suns will be able to run against Seattle.

"The critical thing in running the break is to get the ball. You've got to force the other team to shoot the low percentage shot because you can't run when you're taking the ball out of bounds under the basket," Davis explained.

Seattle beat Phoenix in three of four regular season games and in the process held the Suns to an average of 104 points a game, far below their average of 115.

"We have as much quickness as they do. Boardwise we're a little stronger. They probably shoot a little better than we do. I look for a dynamite series," said veteran Sonic forward Paul Silas.

Pitching Consistency Favors Dodgers, Astros

If pitching consistency is tantamount to baseball success, the National League West should boil down to a shootout between Los Angeles and Houston. The chart shows that, since 1975, the Dodgers and Astros have had the most dependable mound corps. Surprisingly, the charts of San Diego, San Francisco and Atlanta have been almost identical to that of Cincinnati.

EPA ESTIMATED MPG

CITY ESTIMATE 24

38 HIGHWAY ESTIMATE

With standard 4-cylinder engine and manual transmission.

Remember: Compare the estimated MPG to the "estimated MPG" of other cars. You may get different mileage depending on your speed, trip length, and weather. Your actual mileage will be lower in heavy city traffic, and your actual highway mileage will probably be less than the estimated highway fuel economy, the "estimated MPG" is more likely to reflect actual overall mileage than the "combined estimate."

Chevrolet cars are equipped with GM built engines produced by various divisions.

YOU'LL BE DRIVEN WILD

SPECTACULAR DEALS ON NEW DATSUN 210 WAGONS AND SEDANS.

It's wild. It's crazy. But it's true. We are being driven up the wall to move out our new 1979's. So we're prepared to drive you absolutely wild with unbeatable prices on the Datsun 210 Sportwagon. It's our newest and lowest priced wagon. Or price the Datsun 210 Sedan...but get a grip on yourself first. It's an unreal deal. And just look at some of the standard equipment:
• Split, fold-down rear seats† • 4-cylinder OHV 1,397 cc engine • Power-assist front disc brakes • Cut-pile carpeting* • Fully reclining bucket seats* • 2-speed windshield wipers more, more, more!
So what are you waiting for? Come on down and be driven wild!

NOBODY DEMANDS MORE DATSUN
WE ARE DRIVEN

CHEVY CITATION
Citation goes a long way on a tank of gas. But that's just the start. Citation has the traction of front wheel drive, rack and pinion steering, front disc brakes, and a transverse mounted engine that's cradled in rubber cushioned mountings to reduce engine vibration. Sleek Citation is easy to park, yet big enough for five adults and lots of cargo. See Chevy Citation for yourself. And to really appreciate it, get behind the wheel!
EPA ESTIMATED MPG: CITY ESTIMATE 24 — 38 HIGHWAY ESTIMATE
With standard 4-cylinder engine and manual transmission.
Remember: Compare the estimated MPG to the "estimated MPG" of other cars. You may get different mileage depending on your speed, trip length, and weather. Your actual mileage will be lower in heavy city traffic, and your actual highway mileage will probably be less than the estimated highway fuel economy. the "estimated MPG" is more likely to reflect actual overall mileage than the "combined estimate"
Chevrolet cars are equipped with GM built engines produced by various divisions.

Zoning Board of Adjustment

PUBLIC NOTICE

The US Army Corps of Engineers has initiated several organizational and realignment studies aimed at identifying opportunities for improving the performance and management capability of its water resources (civil works) activities and military construction. As a part of this initiative, the Southwestern Division Engineer is conducting a specific study to assess the costs and benefits of possible realignment involving the Albuquerque, Little Rock, Fort Worth, and Tulsa Districts.

The Realignment Study will review workload requirements and investigate several realignment alternatives to determine the most efficient manner of accomplishing the workload within these district boundaries, consistent with the high quality of Corps work in the past.

The study will consist of an evaluation of the operational, budgetary, economic, environmental, community, and employee impacts associated with the final alternatives considered.

At this point we are considering the following alternatives in making this evaluation: (No district closures are being considered.)

a. To transfer the civil works design, construction, and real estate functions (in part or in total) from the Albuquerque to the Fort Worth District and from the Little Rock to the Tulsa District.

b. To consolidate military-real estate services in the Fort Worth and Tulsa Districts or centralize them in the Fort Worth District.

c. To change the Fort Worth, Albuquerque, Tulsa, and Little Rock Districts' internal boundaries to more closely align them with state boundaries and minimize the number of Southwestern Division districts in any given state, and the Galveston District boundary to eliminate two districts serving one city, i.e., Austin, Texas.

d. To change the Southwestern Division external boundaries to more closely align the boundary along state lines to minimize the number of divisions in a given state. This would include external boundaries of all Southwestern Division districts.

e. To transfer some civil works operating projects between Southwestern Division districts.

f. To establish a Corps of Engineers liaison office in some state capitol cities.

g. To transfer a portion of the military design and construction functions from the Fort Worth District to the Albuquerque District and/or Little Rock District.

You are invited to submit your comments and suggestions on these alternatives. Your comments should be mailed to US Army Engineer Division, Southwestern, ATTN: SWDDC-RS, Main Tower Building, Room 730B, 1200 Main Street, Dallas, TX 75202, to be received by 7 May 1979. All comments will be given full consideration in reaching study conclusions and recommendations.

House Defeats Bill For Asexualization

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — The Oklahoma House Monday narrowly rejected a bill to allow the sexual emasculation of certain sex offenders after some lawmakers contended it was barbaric and unconstitutional.

The bill, which called for convicted rapists and other sex offenders to be "asexualized" under certain conditions, appears dead for this session.

House members voted 48-46 in favor of the bill, three votes short of the 51-vote majority needed for passage. The proposal won a test vote last week by a 50-35 margin and House leaders had predicted it would win passage and go on to the Senate.

But some lawmakers said they had changed their minds over the weekend.

Rep. Frank Shurden, D-Henryetta, author of the bill, asked House members Monday to "send a message to the rapists across this nation that if they come to Oklahoma and rape our women and children, it's going to cost them."

The proposal defined asexualization as surgical "incapacitation of the external male genitalia." It would have authorized a jury or judge to impose such a sentence against a person convicted of rape or sodomy, provided at least two of seven aggravating circumstances existed to make the offenses more serious.

"Society has got to get rid of these mad dogs," said Rep. John Monks after citing several brutal rape cases.

But Rep. Don Davis labeled as "hogwash" remarks that opponents of the bill felt no compassion for the victims of crime.

He said Americans read every day of persons being mutilated in other countries as punishment for various crimes.

"What makes America different from those other countries is we have a system of reasonable laws," he said.

WATER-TREADING RECORD

ARNPRIOR, Ont. (AP) — Lifeguard Sandra Wells treaded water 60 hours over the weekend, set a new world's record and outlasted four male companions who left the pool because of cramps. The endurance test raised about $2,000 for an aquatic program at the civic center. The Guinness Book of Records said the previous best mark for treading water, 52 hours, five minutes, was set in July 1978 by Reginald Huffstetler of Belmont, N.C.

Grocery Bills Continue Relentless Advance

By LOUISE COOK
Associated Press Writer

Grocery bills continued their seemingly endless climb upward during April, with meat prices leading the way, an Associated Press marketbasket survey shows.

There are indications that the worst of this year's price increases may be behind us. But the AP survey showed consumers still have to shop carefully to keep the family budget within bounds.

The AP drew up a random list of 15 commonly purchased food and nonfood items, checked the price at one supermarket in each of 13 cities on March 1, 1973 and has rechecked on or about the start of each succeeding month.

The latest survey showed that the marketbasket bill increased at the checklist store in eight cities last month, rising an average of 2.4 percent. The bill decreased in five cities; the average decrease was the same as the average increase — 2.4 percent. On an overall basis, the marketbasket bill at the checklist stores was half a percent higher at the end of the month than it was in the beginning.

The situation was an improvement from March when the overall increase in the marketbasket bill was 1.8 percent.

The Agriculture Department said in Washington on Monday that prices paid to farmers declined in April for the first time in five months.

Government officials have said recently that the rate of increase in food prices is declining and should continue to do so.

Howard J. Hjort, the chief economist for the Agriculture Department, said stepped up production of pork and poultry has helped take the pressure off beef prices. He said pork prices in particular have dropped sharply at the farm level and added that he would be "surprised and disappointed" if the decline were not reflected soon in retail stores.

The AP survey found the pork picture mixed during April. The price of a pound of pork chops declined at the checklist store in five cities — generally by about a dime a pound. But the price increased in an equal number of cities and some of the boosts were substantial.

The beef situation was less encouraging. The price of a pound of chopped chuck increased at the checklist store in six cities last month and declined in only two.

The Agriculture Department's survey of retail beef prices finds them at record levels. By mid-April, the department's all-cut figure — an average of different cuts of beef — stood at more than $2.30 a pound, up almost a nickel from the mid-March figure.

Comparing grocery prices today with those a year earlier, the AP found increases at the checklist store in every year. On the average, the marketbasket bill at the beginning of May was 10.3 percent higher than it was 12 months ago.

The AP survey includes non-food items as well as foods, but most of the increases affect the things we eat. Non-foods represent 21 percent of the total number of items checked by the AP, but during April, for example, they accounted for only 12.5 percent of the increases.

A look at the overall number of items in the AP survey showed fewer increases during April than during March. Here are the percentages of increases and decreases:

	Mar.	Apr.
Up	33.0	22.0
Down	16.5	22.0
Unchanged	45.6	51.1
Unavailable	4.9	4.9

No attempt was made to weight the AP survey results according to population density or in terms of what percent of a family's actual grocery outlay each item represents.

The day of the week on which the check was made varied depending on the month. Standard brands and sizes were used when available. If the requested size and brand was not available on March 1, 1973, a substitute was selected. Items temporarily out of stock on one of the survey dates being compared were not included in the over-all total.

The AP did not try to compare prices from city to city — to say, for example, that eggs cost more in one area than another. Comparisons were made only in terms of percentages of increase or decrease — saying an item rose 10 percent in one city and 6 percent in another.

The USDA marketbasket issued each month is based on a complex set of statistics. It includes 65 retail items of U.S. farm-produced foods in amounts that theoretically could supply a household of 3.2 persons for one year. The department, which draws on information from 1,500 supermarkets in compiling its report, says the figures do not correspond to actual family food spending and are used mainly to illustrate changes in costs.

The items on the AP checklist were: chopped chuck, center cut pork chops, frozen orange juice concentrate, coffee, paper towels, butter, Grade-A medium white eggs, creamy peanut butter, laundry detergent, fabric softener, tomato sauce, milk, frankfurters and granulated sugar. A 15th item, chocolate chip cookies, was dropped from the list at the end of November 1977 because the manufacturer discontinued the package size used in the survey.

The cities checked were: Albuquerque, N.M., Atlanta, Ga., Boston, Chicago, Dallas, Detroit, Los Angeles, Miami, New York, Philadelphia, Providence, Salt Lake City and Seattle.

Here is a city-by-city breakdown of what happened during April:

ALBUQUERQUE: The total for 13 available items went from $15.34 to $15.92, up 3.8 percent. Pork chops, coffee, tomato sauce and sugar increased; chopped chuck, orange juice and eggs decreased. The checklist store was out of pork chops on one of the survey dates. Other items were unchanged.

ATLANTA: The marketbasket went from $17.75 to $17.84, up half a percent. Chopped chuck, pork chops and peanut butter went up; orange juice, coffee, eggs and frankfurters went down; the remaining seven items were unchanged.

BOSTON: The total went from $18.87 to $18.83, down two-tenths of a percent. Fabric softener and coffee went up; butter, pork chops, orange juice and eggs went down; other items stayed the same.

Grain Futures

CHICAGO (AP) — Corn futures rose today on the Chicago Board of Trade in response to traders' expectations that a government report after the close would show heavy U.S. corn exports.

An Agriculture Department report on last week's grain exports was expected to show large corn shipments, an analyst said. Also, long-range weather forecasts predicting more rain in the Corn Belt seemed to further threaten already-delayed corn-planting activities.

The government said after the close Friday that 340,000 metric tons of U.S. corn had been sold to unknown destinations, bringing the total such corn sales last week to more than 900,000 tons.

Nearby soybean futures fell up to 11 cents a bushel on heavy delivery notices against the maturing May contract. An absence of bullish news led to local and commission house selling, touching off automatic sell-order stops, a analyst said. More distant soybean contracts were slightly higher.

Carter Wants Meat Import Authority

WASHINGTON (AP) — A senior Agriculture Department official says President Carter will accept changes in meat import laws only if he can keep his authority to override the formula determining how meat enters the United States.

Carter also wants at least 1.3 billion pounds of imported meat allowed entry each year, he said.

After Congress adjourned last year, Carter vetoed a bill that would have changed a 15-year-old formula that calls for more foreign meat when beef production is high and retail prices relatively low.

Imports under the 1964 law are restricted when supplies are tight, unless a president overrules its formula so that more meat can come in.

The bill vetoed by Carter would have set up a so-called "counter-cyclical" formula so that larger imports would be allowed when domestic output is down as it is now, and less when output is increasing.

Howard W. Hjort, USDA director of economics and policy analysis, said Monday that the administration supports the counter-cyclical principle, as it did last year.

But, Hjort told the Ways and Means Committee's trade subcommittee, the conditions in the new bills are still too tight.

"No formula...can be relied on ideally to react to all unforeseen circumstances in which additional meat imports might be needed," he testified.

Hjort said that the president should be able to suspend quotas and adjust imports "in the national interest," not just in the case of national emergencies or natural disasters.

The leading bills also contain a minimum level of 1.2 billion pounds on yearly imports. The administration insists on a 1.3-billion-pound floor, he said, "to treat fairly the countries which supply meat to the United States.

U.S. negotiators have tried for years to have meat-export barriers removed in other countries. To reduce other nations' access to U.S. markets now would be "more than a little inconsistent," Hjort said.

This year, 1.57 billion pounds, mostly hamburger meat, are being allowed into the United States. That represents about 7 percent of normal U.S. consumption.

Farm Commodity Index Drops During April

WASHINGTON (AP) — Led by sharply lower prices for hogs, the government's price index for farm commodities dropped 1 percent in April, the first decline since last November.

Farm prices had gone up since December, shattering records for four straight months.

Despite the April decline, farm prices averaged 17 percent higher than a year ago, the Agriculture Department said Monday.

The department said lower prices for hogs, oranges, eggs, lettuce and milk contributed most to the decline from March. But higher prices for cattle, calves and tomatoes partly offset that drop.

Beef cattle prices, already at record levels, rose another 3.1 percent from March to April. Hog prices, however, dropped 10.3 percent during the month.

The index in December climbed above the previous high mark of 221 percent set in August 1973.

It jumped 5 percent more in January, the biggest gain in more than four years, 3 percent in February and 2 percent in March.

Howard Hjort, the Agriculture Department's chief economist, said last week — after new Labor Department figures showed retail food prices rose 1 percent in March, compared to 1.6 percent in February — that larger supplies of pork and poultry have helped ease the food-price spiral and will continue this trend in coming months.

He said retail food prices in 1979 will rise about 10 percent, or about the same rate as last year.

Sagging hog prices at the farm already have begun to show up at retail counters, according to preliminary USDA figures.

Prices paid by farmers to meet expenses, meanwhile, rose 0.75 percent in April and averaged 13 percent more than a year ago.

The April parity ratio for farm commodities was 73 percent, compared to a revised 74 percent in March and 71 percent a year ago, the report said.

A 100 percent reading would mean that, theoretically, farmers have the same buying power they had in 1910-14.

The report said the prices of poultry and eggs as a group declined 4 percent from March but still averaged 8 percent more than in April a year ago.

Vegetable prices, according to the preliminary figures, declined 4 percent.

Exchange Gets New Officers

Randy Canale, who began a career in the cotton merchandising business with Allenberg Cotton Co. in 1965, was installed here Monday night as president of the Lubbock Cotton Exchange.

Canale established his own firm, Canale Cotton Co., in 1975.

Officers were installed at the exchange's annual dinner party at the Lubbock Country Club. About 200 members and guests attended.

J. L. Brett of the Brett Corp.-Texana Cotton Co. is the new vice president. A native of Natchitoches, La., Brett began in the cotton business in 1929 with Stewart Bros. Cotton Co. He formed his own company in 1940 in Dallas and has been a director of the Dallas Cotton Exchange.

Canale succeeds Solon C. Huff of Solon C. Huff & Co. as exchange president.

New directors are Bill Colvin with Bill Colvin Cotton Co., John Ellis with Allenberg Cotton Co., and Fred Traylor with Traylor Cotton Co., Inc.

Holdover directors include George Clay with W. B. Dunavant & Co., Jim Gant with Gant Cotton Co., Inc., Henry C. Patton with Patton Cotton Co., Helmut Wierzba with Commodity Export Corp., and Huff.

Clyde G. Day is executive vice president.
