Protest prayer

An ultra-Orthodox Jewish man tries to get a glimpse of his rabbi during a protest prayer in Jerusalem, Sunday. Ultra-Orthodox Jews gathered to protest a dig that unearthed a 2,000-year-old Jewish burial chamber that archaeologists believe may have been used by the Maccabees or their descendants. The protesters oppose tampering with Jewish graves.

Saga's effects

DALLAS — The lawyers and TV cameras — once drawn to the small East Texas town of Gilmer after a girl's mysterious disappearance and allegations of murder, child abuse and satanic cults — are gone. The effects of the saga, however, have taken their toll on many of those involved, and the town's 5,000 residents are left to wonder about truth and justice. Two years after the case garnered the national spotlight and four years after the 17-year-old girl vanished, Kelly Wilson is still missing. The murder charges have been dropped, along with several dozen child-abuse cases against a local family. Story page 3B

Holiday shopping

Consumers sent retailers a mixed message at the start of this holiday season: They hit the stores without spending a lot. Analysts expect this to be one of the toughest Christmas seasons in years. Consumers uncertain about the economy and their own finances already owe billions to credit card companies and banks. Story page 8A

Farmhand's tale: beatings, dog food meals

By Jeffrey Bair
Associated Press

TITUSVILLE, Pa. — If you believe Rodney Chappel, Barbara Burleigh See is a modern-day Simon Legree — in the flesh.

See hired this slender, simple-minded man to tend the 60 cows at her farm. But she thought he worked too slowly, he says, and she made his life hell.

In his soft, quavering voice, the 35-year-old Chappel told a court hearing how See — who outweighs him by at least 100 pounds — frequently confronted him, poked him in the ribs with a shovel handle (he had a bruised heart and broken ribs, doctors said) and boxed his ears until they were misshapen.

Three times, he said, she burned him with cigarettes when she caught him smoking near hay in her barn. Another of her workers, 18-year-old Larry Sopher, punched him and kicked him with steel-toed boots, he said.

A court will decide whether they did all these things; she and Sopher have pleaded innocent to charges of assault, harassment and reckless endangerment.

But many people in this economically depressed city about 100 miles northeast of Pittsburgh have already decided that something seriously wrong was happening at Barbara See's farm — especially since another farmhand made similar complaints six

U.S. officials: Dayton peace treaty is final

■ U.S. rejects demands from Bosnian Serbs to change provisions relating to future of Sarajevo.

Associated Press

WASHINGTON — The Dayton treaty on Bosnia is final, senior American officials said Sunday in rejecting demands from Bosnian Serbs that provisions relating to the future of Sarajevo be changed.

"We are not going to renegotiate this agreement," Defense Secretary William Perry said of the pact worked out last week in Dayton, Ohio, with the presidents of Bosnia, Serbia and Croatia.

Perry, chief U.S. negotiator Richard C. Holbrooke and National Security Adviser Anthony Lake appeared on Sunday news programs as a prelude to President Clinton's speech scheduled for tonight in which he hopes to win public and congressional support for his Bosnia policy.

Congressional Republicans have led the opposition to Clinton's plans to contribute 20,000 U.S. ground forces to a 60,000-member NATO peacekeeping force. But two key Republicans on the Senate Armed Services Committee suggested that the traditional tendency of Congress to follow the president's lead on major foreign policy issues might again prevail.

Congress hasn't defied a president on military matters since it cut off funding for the bombing in Cambodia in 1974, Sen. John McCain, R-Ariz., said on CBS' "Face the Nation." "I think the president can make the case."

Thousands of Bosnian Serbs in the capital of Sarajevo have protested the peace accord, which cedes control of their sector of the city to the Muslim-Croat federation. Bosnian Serb President Radovan Karadzic said Sunday that "a new solution for Sarajevo must be found" and that in the meantime, Serbs would not withdraw their troops.

Perry, also appearing on CBS, said such protests were expected, but stressed that the terms of the treaty are final and that "we fully expect that there will be compliance" from the Serbs as well as the other parties.

Holbrooke, an assistant secretary of state, also insisted on NBC's "Meet the Press" that

As year nears end, GOP has one big win but many other disappointments

By Jim Abrams
Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Republicans are nearing the end of their first year in control of Congress with the Holy Grail — a seven-year balanced budget plan — in sight but many other goals clouded by disappointment and delay.

GOP lawmakers celebrated their Thanksgiving this year with two giant achievements, passage of their spending and tax cut package aimed at balancing the budget by 2002 and the winning of President Clinton's commitment to their seven-year timetable.

But the heady first days of the 104th session of Congress, when House Republicans marched their "Contract With America" items to passage, has given way to more sober assessments of their legislative achievements.

Among key "Contract" items, a new crime bill calling for tougher sentences and more prisons and a bill to ease federal regulatory burdens are mired in the Senate. A proposed constitutional amendment on term limits failed in the House and another, on balancing the budget, passed the House but was defeated by one vote in the Senate.

"Republicans overreached and their

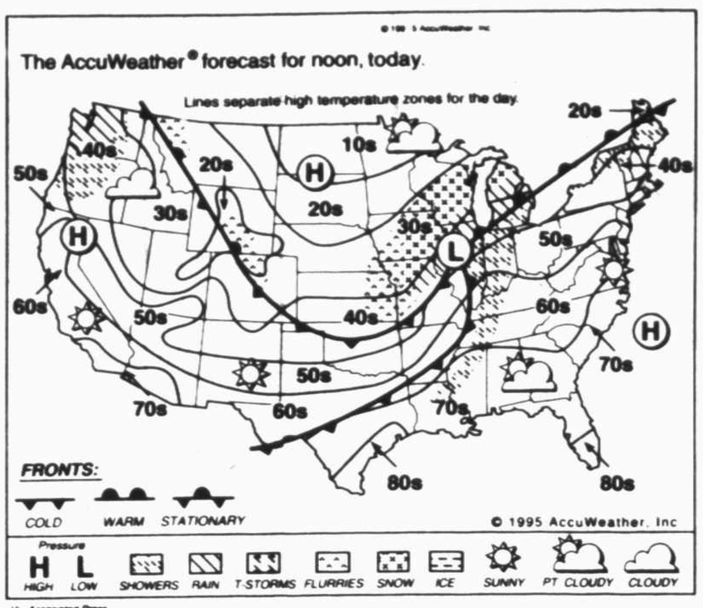
WEATHER WATCH



Via Associated Press

Today to be partly cloudy, mid-60s

Staff Report

The Indian summer that graced Midland over the weekend tied the record-high temperature of 83 degrees for Nov. 26 in 1990.

But Sunday's summerish warmth was kicked around by southwesterly winds that gusted up to 38 mph by mid-afternoon.

For today, the weatherman at the National Weather Service at Midland International Airport is calling for a substantial drop in peak temperatures from Sunday. The weatherman's thermometer is to rise up to 60 to 65 degrees today under partly cloudy skies.

Morning winds are to be westerly at 10 to 20 mph and gusty. By noon, the winds are to shift to the north at 15 to 25 mph and gusty.

Tonight's low temperature is to be near 30 degrees, which would be about 10 degrees lower than Sunday's low of 41 degrees.

The record low temperature for Nov. 26 is 13 degrees in 1993.

Tuesday is to be partly cloudy with a high to peak between 50 and 55 degrees.

STATE

It was partly cloudy, windy and mild across Texas on Sunday as southerly winds increased to 20 miles an hour and temperatures hovered in the 70s and 80s, breaking records in the Panhandle.

However, forecasters said an Arctic air mass over Alaska would knife quickly into the state, dropping temperatures today.

Fair skies statewide got cloudier Sunday as high level tropical moisture tracked eastward across the state. Winds picked up and advisories were issued across North Texas. Sustained winds of 15 to 20 mph with higher gusts were common.

Midland reported 83 degrees, tying the record high for the date set in 1990. Amarillo's 80 degrees broke the daily high of 78 set in 1894 and tied in 1970 and 1977.

The North Texas forecast is for decreasing cloudiness in western portions today, high winds and cooler temperatures. Highs will be near 60 in the northern areas and mid 70s in the south. Tonight and Tuesday should see partly cloudy skies and cool temperatures across North Texas with overnight lows in the low to mid 30s and afternoon highs from the mid 40s to lower 50s.

South Texas is to have partly cloudy skies and highs in the 80s today. Tonight will be partly cloudy, breezy and cooler. Lows will be in the 30s and 40s. Tuesday will be partly cloudy and cool with highs in the 50s.

NATION

Locally heavy snow blew through the mountains of the Northwest on Sunday, and fell across parts of the Great Lakes states and into the Northeast.

A strong low pressure system was pushing through the Pacific Northwest into the northern and central Rockies.

Some areas of the higher Cascades of Oregon and Washington had received nearly a foot of snow since Saturday, with 13 inches reported at Santiam Pass in Oregon by midday.

Snow began falling across the central and northern Rockies during the afternoon, spreading through Idaho and northern Utah into most of Wyoming and Montana.

Wind gusted to 52 mph at Burley, Idaho.

Up to 18 inches of snow was possible by this morning at higher elevations of northern Utah. Scattered rain was possible at lower elevations.

Across the eastern Great Lakes region, light snow fell downwind of Lake Ontario and Lake Erie.

The disturbance was expected to move into the Northeast during the night, dragging light rain and snow showers across eastern Michigan, northeastern Ohio, western Pennsylvania and into upstate New York. Up to 6 inches of snow was possible in places.

South of the snow belt, light rain was expected to extend into northern West Virginia and northern Virginia.

Sunday's temperature extremes around the Lower 48 states ranged from a morning low of 2 at International Falls, Minn., to an early afternoon reading of 83 at Imperial, Calif. The lowest wind chill, the rating based on wind speed and temperature, was 25 below zero at Roseau, Minn.

years ago.

At the converted feed mill known as the Powder Horn Cafe, the regulars expect she'll avoid jail. They don't like it, though; around Titusville, people tend to believe in their own laws, not the state's, but even they feel Barbara See has crossed the line.

"We may not all be wrapped together right, but by and large we're good people. If we run out of meat and we have no money, we go shoot a deer. Yes, we break some laws. But nothing like this, and no one should be able to get away with it, not even her," said Jim Slagter, a former Navy Seal.

The See farm had a history of high turnover, neighbors and townspeople say. People in this town of 6,800 people are still talking about the farmhand who left one day and hitchhiked as far as the Midwest before calling See to ask for money.

"She finds the boys who are a little slow and gives them a place to live, room and board. She makes it look like she's doing their families a favor, because otherwise they might end up in an institution," said Donna Appel, a Titusville resident and psychology student at Edinboro University.

See is 50 years old, husky and blond; her father owns a large patch of land, two dozen gas wells and one of Titusville's only barns with aluminum siding.

Farmhands came and went for years. Then, a half-dozen years ago, See was accused of wounding another worker, Danny Mott. That charge was dropped, according to court records, but See paid $112.50 in court costs.

Mott, now 40, says See nearly poked his left eye out with a pitchfork in 1989 because he wasn't milking cows fast enough. In an interview, Mott recalled having to beg for food from See's neighbors.

"If I saw her today, well, I would tell her, 'I do not appreciate what you did to me.' And I would want her to be in jail, because I would not want her anywhere near me," said Mott, a mechanic in Warren, 30 miles north.

He was replaced at the See farm by Chappel, a high-school graduate who took some special education classes. Chappel failed in the military in the early 1980s because he could not march in step.

Chappel said he took his beatings in silence because he needed the work.

"I figured they would just go away. The soreness always went away," he said in court. He added, "I had nowhere else to go."

He recalled two half-hearted attempts to flee this past spring, once through the woods behind the farm and once via roads. See caught up with him in her truck each time, and he said he got in without protesting.

Chappel said he didn't try harder to escape because See told him his mother and stepfather hated him. And he said See told him not to use the telephone to call them because it would interfere with her satellite TV reception.

He told a state trooper he got so hungry that he resorted to eating green apples off the ground and dog food out of the bag.

The 5-foot-7 Chappel weighed 100 pounds when he left the farm July 31 after a three-day bout with diarrhea, according to his medical records. He said See gave him three paychecks, drove him into town at his request and dropped him at a grocery store, where he called his mother.

See has been cleared of one charge already — unlawful restraint, a less severe form of kidnapping. Defense attorney Don Lewis successfully argued to a judge that Chappel was able to come and go from the farm as he pleased.

Lewis insists that See cooked Chappel regular meals. And he suggested in court that Chappel was clumsy, and had hurt himself. Under questioning, the farmhand acknowledged that he was knocked off his bike by a bull, fell down the stairs once and often whacked his own foot with farm tools, though he couldn't say when these things happened.

See and Sopher had no comment when reached by telephone.

But Chappel's family is not so reticent. His mother, Helen McCalmont, showed bingo buddies pictures of her shirtless son bruised from head to toe.

"Nobody has a right to do that to someone else," said Marilyn Hollabaugh, his aunt. "You don't even do that to an animal."

VICTIMS: GOP has one big success, other disappointments agenda is now considered too extremist by the American people," said Rep. Bill Richardson, D-N.M. "There's been a lot of rhetoric and a lot of press releases but hardly any bills signed into law."

But the House Budget Committee chairman, Rep. John Kasich, R-Ohio, said the occasional legislative logjam is insignificant compared to the GOP success in creating "a whole different culture" with their budget priorities.

"The budget is really everything," he said. Asking about other issues "is like asking who else besides Babe Ruth was on the Yankees."

There have been other successes. Clinton has signed into law legislation to restrict so-called unfunded mandates — federal rules imposed on local governments that Washington doesn't pay for. Also enacted was a law making members of Congress abide by the same labor laws that other employers must obey.

The House has changed its rules to restrict the receiving of gifts and to limit the terms of the speaker and committee chairmen.

Also near completion is a measure to strengthen the reporting requirements for lobbyists.

Another Contract measure, the line-item veto giving the president authority to eliminate specific spending programs, was recently revived by a House-Senate conference and could be passed by the end of the year.

Legislation to decrease the number of legal immigrants and increase border patrols is also near completion.

Others face far dimmer prospects:

■ An anti-terrorism bill rushed through committees after the April bombing in Oklahoma City has been effectively stopped by both conservatives and Democrats concerned about the civil liberties aspects of proposed new search and surveillance authority for law enforcement agencies.

■ Legislation sponsored by Senate Foreign Relations Committee Chairman Jesse Helms, R-N.C., to reshape the State Department is strongly opposed by the administration, leading to Helms' refusal to approve ambassadorial nominations.

■ Nearly two months after the fiscal year began on Oct. 1, Clinton has signed only six of the 13 spending bills needed to run the government. Among those still pending, Clinton is expected to veto the defense bill because he thinks it's too high, and bills to fund the departments of Labor, Education, Health and Human Services and Housing and Urban Development because he says they provide too little for social programs.

■ House-Senate negotiators are wrapping up work on the GOP plan to revamp the welfare system, but that, too, faces a presidential veto. A veto probably also awaits a bill to remove regulations and promote competition in the telecommunications industry.

■ Other major Republican initiatives, such as the $245 billion tax cut, overhauling Medicare and Medicaid and revamping the farm subsidy system, have been incorporated in the seven-year balanced budget plan. None are likely to survive in their present forms at the end of what is sure to be a fierce battle between Republicans and the White House on how to balance the budget.

TREATY: U.S. rejects Serb demands for changes

(From 1A)

the Serb leadership has accepted the pact. "Dayton was an initialing, Paris will be a signing. There will be no change between Dayton and Paris."

Lake, speaking on ABC's "This Week With David Brinkley," said that the Paris meeting to formally sign the accord would take place in mid-December and that U.S. troops could be in Bosnia a few days after that.

The three administration officials, echoing Clinton's Saturday radio speech, also were united in their message that American values were at stake in the commitment to join NATO in keeping peace in Bosnia.

"Our values really are at stake here," Lake said, saying that in addition to maintaining the integrity of NATO and stopping the war from spreading to other countries, Americans can't turn their backs on the reality that half the people in Bosnia have either been uprooted from their homes or killed since the civil strife began more than three years ago.

"Throughout history American soldiers have been called upon to take risks, to protect those values," Perry said.

McCain and Sen. John Warner of Virginia, two Republicans who have strongly opposed U.S. involvement on the ground and who carry considerable weight on defense matters, both pledged to keep an open mind when Clinton takes his case to Congress.

Warner, appearing on NBC, suggested that approval was possible with the addition of some limiting conditions. He also stressed that there could be no repeat of the mission in Somalia, when the killing of 18 American troops in a firefight in 1993 hastened the U.S. withdrawal from that country.

Sen. Phil Gramm of Texas, a Republican presidential candidate who was a guest on ABC, was adamant in his opposition to Clinton's policy and what he said was an "unworkable" agreement. "I don't think he has made the case. Foreign policy is not social work."

Holbrooke also made clear that two Bosnian Serb leaders, Karadzic and army commander Ratko Mladic, would be arrested if they appeared in Paris for the signing of the treaty.

"They won't be in Paris. They are indicted war criminals," he said. "If they set foot in Paris, or for that matter in any European or American country, they will be arrested."

Karadzic, however, said in an interview with the British Broadcasting Corp. that he would attend anyway, and he warned that NATO troops would be attacked if they tried to arrest him or other Bosnian Serbs under indictment.

Jackson is proud of name, ready to make own mark

CHICAGO HEIGHTS, Ill. (AP) — The stocky, bearded young man in a sleek gray suit leans over from his chair, surrounded by preschoolers who giggle and hang on his every animated word.

To the Head Start toddlers listening to him read a story, Jesse Jackson Jr. is just a visitor.

But to almost everyone else he meets, he is The Son, the presumed heir to his father's activist legacy.

On Tuesday, the eldest son of former presidential candidate Jesse Jackson tests his own appeal to voters. He is one of five Democrats vying for a ballot spot in a special election to fill the 2nd Congressional District seat vacated by Mel Reynolds, who was convicted of having sex with an underage campaign worker.

Four Republicans are also campaigning for a chance to run in the Dec. 12 general election, although winning the Democratic nomination is considered tantamount to victory.

In his first bid for public office, the 30-year-old Jackson must make a delicate transition — shifting from years of identification with his father's social agenda to try to make his own mark, and from within the system he has been taught to challenge.

No matter what he does, Jesse Louis Jackson Jr. learned early on that he cannot hide from his name. Nor does he want to.

"It's a name that's synonymous with public service, with helping people, and I've always striven to live up to that commitment," Jackson says with the practiced earnestness of a man who carries a Bible in his briefcase and passed his 21st birthday in jail for protesting apartheid in South Africa.

But the family name also "is a double-edged sword," he says. "You inherit your father's friends, your parents' friends, and you inherit their detractors."

Jackson, called Junior by friends, has traveled with his father to Cuba and Syria, met popes and presidents and broken bread with former Nicaraguan leader Daniel Ortega. He can boast he needs no introduction to Nelson Mandela or many members of Congress.

"Unlike other candidates in this race, I'm not going to Washington to get to know people," says Jackson, a member of the Democratic National Committee.

"He's been preparing for this all his life," says the elder Jackson, who was agitating for voting rights in Selma, Ala., the day his son was born. "It's a tender age, but he has a tough mind."

Jackson's name recognition seems to be paying off: A recent Chicago Tribune poll found he was the best-known of all nine candidates for Reynolds' seat, topping even Illinois Senate minority leader Emil Jones, a 22-year legislative veteran.

He led the Democratic pack with 33 percent support — but almost the same percentage of district voters had reservations about his lack of elective experience.

His name "may not get him to the finish line," says Paul Green, a political science professor at suburban Governor's State University, "but it gets him to the starting gate."

Supporters say Jackson is a dogged grassroots organizer who thrives on details and computer wizardry, a style distinct from his father's chaotic, seat-of-the-pants approach.

Rebel leaders demand protection for Serb-held portions of Sarajevo to save accord

PALE, Bosnia-Herzegovina (AP) — Rebel Serb leaders demanded international protection Sunday for Serb-held parts of Sarajevo, where residents' refusal to submit to government authority could jeopardize the Bosnian peace accord.

The accord, brokered in Dayton, Ohio, would unify the capital under the Muslim-led government. Sarajevo's 120,000 Serbs, however, fear for their homes and future if they come under government control.

Serbs in Sarajevo demonstrated for the third straight day Sunday to protest the accord, and rebel leader Radovan Karadzic called for protection for the city's Serbs while the peace terms are renegotiated.

"A new solution for Sarajevo must be found," Karadzic told Bosnian Serb radio said after meeting all night with representatives from Serb-held districts of the capital.

"Until a new solution is found, it is the international community's duty to protect Serbs in Sarajevo." In the meantime, he said, Serbs would not withdraw their troops as foreseen under the Dayton accord.

Complicating matters further, Karadzic also warned that NATO peacekeepers would face attacks from Bosnian Serbs if he were arrested as a war criminal.

Some 60,000 NATO troops — about one-third American — are to be sent to Bosnia as monitors once the accord is signed in Paris next month.

Karadzic insists only he can sign for the Bosnian Serbs, but he has been indicted for war crimes by a U.N. tribunal, making him subject to arrest if he leaves Bosnian Serb territory.

Karadzic says he plans to attend the Paris ceremony anyway. "I am a legal and legitimate representative of my people," Karadzic told the British Broadcasting Corp.

He added that if he or any other Bosnian Serb leader were arrested, "then our country will not accept NATO presence. They have to be quite clear that they are guests."

Karadzic has urged the Bosnian Serb assembly to accept the peace accord, but he is under pressure to get the terms for Sarajevo changed. Despite government assurances that they can remain in their homes without fear for their safety, Sarajevo Serbs are unlikely to accept the plan without some guarantees of protection.

Israeli police question rabbis about Rabin assassination

JERUSALEM (AP) — Police interrogated two rabbis suspected of giving an assassin religious sanction to kill Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin as a threat to the Israeli people, police sources said Sunday.

The rabbis allegedly reassured confessed gunman Yigal Amir that he would be justified in killing Rabin as a "rodef" — or persecutor — on the grounds that Rabin's peacemaking with Palestinians put Israeli lives in danger, said the police sources, who spoke on condition of anonymity.

Under Jewish religious law, a "rodef" may be killed to prevent him from causing the deaths of his victims.

Suspicion against the rabbis reflects the tension between Israel's secular majority and the extreme nationalist religious groups, which peaked in Rabin's Nov. 4 assassination after a Tel Aviv peace rally.

Amir and the other suspects under arrest for alleged involvement in the killing all are religious Jews who oppose the government's peace efforts with the Palestinians.

Rabbi Yehuda Amital, a moderate religious leader who was appointed by Rabin's successor, Shimon Peres, to the Cabinet last week to make amends with religious Israelis, told army radio that rabbis who had advocated violence against Rabin should be prosecuted.

"If they carried out incitement and encouragement of rebellion, they must be brought to justice, no doubt," Amital said of the two rabbis under interrogation.

Pamperers plus

The Hotel Inter-Continental London has just redone some of its biggest suites and created several new ones to meet the growing demand for luxurious homes away from home. The top-of-the-line Royal Suite, which includes a drawing room and library, also has a dining room that can seat 10 and a fully equipped kitchen. There is a music center with speakers in every room; and a bed that could sleep 13 people. The drawing room is big enough to park four Cadillacs. All this space and opulence doesn't come cheap: The rate is nearly $3,900 a night.

Revolutionary wear

Tom Paine helped rally the American colonists to revolution and now he's the guiding spirit for Tom Paine Products, a T-shirt maker in Tempe, Ariz. The company sells shirts in several categories. The Icons of Liberty line includes shirts with the likenesses of Voltaire, Thoreau and economist Milton Friedman, among others. Paine himself is in the Founders category, along with Washington, Franklin and Jefferson. There's also a line called Troublemakers, including John Wilkes Booth, socialist Emma Goldman and anarchists Sacco and Vanzetti. And one with quotations that the company says "pack the most punch." For example: "A good politician is quite as unthinkable as an honest burglar," from H.L. Mencken.

On the move

As more women and minorities move up the corporate ranks, they are also moving around more, finds the management consulting firm Runzheimer International. Women comprised 22 percent of employees who were transferred to other locations this year, up from 17 percent in 1993. Ten percent of employees who relocated this year were minorities, compared with 4 percent two years ago. But in spite of these changes, Runzheimer noted, the typical transferring employee is still a man, ages 35 to 45 with two children.

Smart watches

If you use a wristwatch only to see if you're early or late, you could be getting a lot more work out of a timepiece, says Home Office Computing magazine. In its December issue, Home Office reports there are watches that store data in much the same way as a pocket electronic organizer and others that work as pagers. The magazine says it's hoping someone will devise a watch that also operates as a cellular phone, but that's still in the planning stages.

For many investments, '95 hard to beat

By Chet Currier
AP Business Writer

NEW YORK — Here's a thought to keep your expectations from getting too high as you make your savings and investment plans for the coming year:

All three major categories of financial assets — stocks, bonds and money-market investments — will be hard-pressed in 1996 to match their 1995 performance.

This forecast isn't based on any gloomy view of the economy. It simply reflects the reality that the year now drawing to a close, an unusually generous one for investors, will be a tough act to follow.

Through the first 10 months of 1995, one commonly accepted gauge of stock-market action, Standard & Poor's 500-stock composite index, racked up a return of just under 30 percent.

That's almost double its average annual return over the past decade of a little more than 15 percent, as calculated by Morningstar Inc. in Chicago.

The Lehman Brothers aggregate bond index returned better than 15 percent from Jan. 1 through Oct. 31, more than 1 1/2 times its average return over the past decade of 9.91 percent.

The 10-year stretch from the mid-1980s to the mid-1990s has itself been an unusually good one for both stocks and bonds, encompassing a period of falling interest rates and improving internationally competitiveness for the U.S. economy.

So 1996 will also have to be unusually favorable for stocks and bonds just to keep them at or close to their recent pace.

Yields on interest-bearing money market investments have hovered in the 5 percent to 6 percent range through 1994. That's about average for the past 10 years' performance of this most conservative of the asset classes, which is exemplified by Treasury bills and money market mutual funds.

But most expectations are for the Federal Reserve to ease credit conditions in the months ahead, encouraging short-term interest rates to decline. So it would be no surprise at all if money-market investments returned less by early 1996 than they do now.

Nowhere is it decreed that events must follow these scripts. All the financial markets are prone to pulling surprises on everybody, and especially on the people who think they understand what's going on.

But veterans of the game say it isn't wise to expect above-average results from any financial market

Hot item at Christmas anyone's guess

Buying for the kids this year may be more difficult than other years

By Rachel Beck
AP Business Writer

NEW YORK — The Mighty Morphin Power Rangers' dynasty has ended, but there's no heir-apparent on toy stores shelves this Christmas season.

The helmeted action figures, which dominated the toy market the past two years but began fizzling in 1995, have some stiff competition: Star Wars action figures, Barbie, Sky Dancer and some classic toys are among those moving in on the evil-fighting team's turf.

"It's one of those years that we aren't seeing any blockbuster toys like Cabbage Patch Kids and Power Rangers leading the pack," said Frank Reysen, the editor of Playthings magazine, a New York-based trade publication.

"It's a healthy situation for the toy industry because it's spreading out sales and giving more toys a chance during the holidays."

Power Rangers had a virtual hold on the kid scene, with their manufacturer, Bandai America, unable to churn out enough of the karate-chopping action figures to keep stores stocked for long.

Toy retailers worry when there's no hot hit like Power Rangers to bring customers into the stores. Retail sales have already been sluggish this fall, and many analysts have issued grim forecasts for the Christmas season. Some, however, say the demand for a wider range of toys could benefit the broader market.

"The season is shaping up to be very competitive," said Jill Krutick, a toy industry analyst at the investment firm Smith Barney. "We are seeing a return to the basics, with no leader of the pack and that may be good for the industry in general."

The Toy Manufacturers of America, a New York-based industry association, estimates overall toy sales will be up 4 percent to 5 percent this year. In 1994, sales reached $18.7 billion.

Mattel Inc.'s Barbie, which comes in all shapes and sizes, again tops the list of top-selling dolls, followed by Lewis Galoob Toys Inc.'s Sky Dancer, a new sensation that's part ballerina, part helicopter.

Toy Biz's Gerber line of dolls, as well as Playmates' Baby So Beautiful, a line in which every doll is different, are also expected to be big sellers this season.

And while the Power Rangers have lost popularity, demand for other action figures is nonetheless heavy.

Batman, Star Wars and Spiderman are among the hot picks so far this season.

And, as usual, toys with movie and television tie-ins are expected to be on wish lists. Mattel is promoting a collection of toys hitched on Disney's animated film "Pocahontas", the children's television network Nickelodeon has a line out of toys, and Kenner Products, a Hasbro Inc. division, is pushing its Gargoyles fantasy-action figures based on the television show.

Making a comeback are a number of classic toys, including Etch-A-Sketch, Magna Doodle, View Master, Lego building blocks and Monopoly and other board games.

Dolls, books and games featuring old-time characters like Curious George, Madeline and Winnie the Pooh also have had solid sales so far this season.

"There is a real resurgence in the traditional toys," said Stephen Pagnani, a spokesman for Kmart Corp. "What we think is going on is the baby boomers are having kids and giving them the same toys that they used to play with."

Cabbage Patch Kids, a hot commodity in the mid-1980s, also are making a return.

'Tis the season to sell software

By Vivian Marino
AP Business Writer

NEW YORK — Silver bells and silver discs.

Both undoubtedly will adorn millions of homes over the holidays as visions of Just Grandma and Me, Doom II and other popular CD-ROMs scan through the heads of many a young PC user.

With more households owning a personal computer and even more planning to buy one — about two are sold per second worldwide — children's software will be among the hottest selling gift items for the Christmas season. Combined sales of interactive discs and floppy diskettes are expected to more than double from last year.

But choosing just the right program out of the 4,000-plus kids' titles available today can overwhelm even the hardiest of holiday shoppers. And at $30 to $100 a pop, a wrong choice can be a costly mistake.

Brenda Bouchard, a young mother from Hampton, N.H., has returned home with a few holiday turkeys over the years despite efforts to read up on the latest products beforehand.

"It was a risk ... an expensive risk," said Bouchard. "I ended up buying programs that I just wasn't familiar enough with. The clerks at the store were of little help."

This year, she says, she's buying all the holiday software for her 3-year-old daughter Briana and 8-year-old nephew Tyler through a service that sells directly to the home, much like Avon cosmetics. "I need to see it first."

Heeding similar cries for help, more and more software-buying clubs and services — like KidSoft Inc., a software distributor in Los Gatos, Calif., and BrightIdeas, the Concord, Mass., distributor from which Bouchard buys — are springing up to help in the selection process. Most allow customers to sample before they buy and have money-

An all-out bet on your stocks? Better to beware than be sorry

By Chet Currier
AP Business Writer

NEW YORK — In many a mutual fund portfolio, conservative money market and bond fund investments serve a crucial purpose by acting as ballast.

Like rocks loaded into the hold of a ship, they have the disadvantage of cutting down your maximum speed and the space you have available for other, more productive cargo.

But they also provide the enormous benefit of protecting you from risks — such as capsizing, for instance — that you can't afford and don't need to take.

These thoughts arise at a time when stocks have compiled such impressive performance records that they are starting to gain a reputation as the only choice a long-term investor needs.

Over the 10 years through Sept. 30, according to data from the research firm of Lipper Analytical Services Inc., an average of close to 3,000 stock funds of all types compiled a total return of 283.55 percent.

Through the same period, an average of about 1,500 fixed-income, or bond and bond-related funds, posted a return of 141.86 percent.

In the past five years, the stock funds also doubled the bond funds' results, 119.54 percent to 59.03 percent.

Since the mid-1920s, over a 70-year back guarantees.

Several new comprehensive books also have been released in time for the holidays, some with accompanying CD-ROMs that provide product demos, including "The Computer Museum Guide to the Best Software for Kids," "Newsweek Parent's Guide to Children's Software '96," and "That's Edutainment." Each provides detailed reviews of educational and entertainment programs.

"The amount of software out there is so overwhelming. It's totally hit or miss for most people," said Addie Swartz, founder of BrightIdeas, which has 200 sales reps in 38 states and whose sales so far are running around 2.5 times above last year.

Swartz says the best software programs enhance a child's strengths and interests just as good books or videos. She says parents and educators shouldn't be awed by the technology itself.

"Technology is just another learning tool," she said. "The parent has to understand that it doesn't always have the educational component just because it's running on the computer."

Cathy Miranker, coauthor of "The Computer Museum Guide to the Best Software for Kids," agreed, adding that software should satisfy what she calls the three L's: Learning, Looks and Longevity.

Programs should fit a child's developmental needs and have such a distinctive look as to sustain a child's interest over a period of time.

"The computer can do wonderful things for your kids, but ... if you're not careful it could be just another elevated baby sitter," said Miranker.

While children develop at their own pace and have their own interests, experts say certain programs are likely to appeal to specific age groups.

Preschoolers, for instance, respond best to bold graphics, lots of sound and constant reinforcement, all of which is necessary to teach early computing skills and whet their imagination.

By the time they're in school, children are likely to have mastered computer skills and should be given programs that reinforce reading, math or science skills — all in an entertaining way. Older kids are ready for more challenging programs that not only help them in school but foster creativity and imagination, such as simulator and art software.

This season, there are loads to choose from for all age groups.

Software publishers, large and small, have been clamoring to get their products out for the holiday shopping frenzy since late summer.

In September alone, 218 new children's titles were released, according to PC Data, a Reston, Va., research firm. The pace will pick up at year's end, with many companies offering far more products than a year ago.

"We've made a considerable investment in our R&D (research and development) departments ... (and) we're starting to reap some of those rewards," said Todd Coyle, vice president of consumer products for Davidson & Associates, which plans to release 16 titles from September through year's end, vs. seven in 1994.

Edmark is coming out with four new products, twice as many as last year. Maxis has three, including a one-of-a-kind voice-activated program for preschoolers, entitled Marty and the Trouble with Cheese.

TOYS: Creative, educational toys popular

(From 4A)

Mattel took over the licensing of the stuffed dolls earlier this year and is promoting them heavily in hopes of reviving consumer interest.

Parents are also turning to creative and educational toys, helped by the growing popularity of non-traditional toy stores like Imaginarium and Noodle Kidoodle. One big seller has been Toobers & Zots, a set of bendable and buildable foam pieces from Hands On Toys.

"Many parents are looking for toys that give kids the opportunity to explore and go on adventures with," said Judy Ellis, chairwoman for the New York's Fashion Institute of Technology's toy department. "And they are willing to spend on things that will excite their kids."

For the second straight year, the video game market is expected to flounder, due in part to growth in computer and CD-ROM games. However, the Sony Playstation System and Sega's line of video games are still selling well.

Some of the sales that went to video merchandise are being captured by radio-controlled cars and by other creative hand-held games.

Tyco Toys Inc.'s Rebound 4x4 car, which can flip over and still drive, is having a strong year, as are Tiger Electronics Inc.'s Dear Diary, an electronic datebook for kids, and Talkboy, a tape recorder featured in the movie "Home Alone 2".

The key to this holiday season will be enticing customers into the stores and getting them to buy toys. With retail sales depressed and consumer confidence low, this has been the retailers' most difficult task.

Since nearly 60 percent of all toy sales taking place in the fourth quarter, aggressive advertising and promotional campaigns are being used to attract buyers. Paramus, N.J.-based Toys R Us Inc., the country's largest toy store operator, released its holiday sales catalog in early November with $1,449 in coupons.

Retailers are also using in-store promotions and product circulars — by mail or enclosed in newspapers — to get customers into the holiday swing.

"Sales were very slow in the first half of this year, and many companies are depending on making up for that weakness during the holidays," said Gary M. Jacobson, an analyst at Bankers Trust.

Manufacturers are also intensifying their efforts to promote their products. Tiger Electronics, for example, is doing product tie-ins with Oscar Meyer's Lunchables and McDonald's Happy Meals.

"The key is that you have to get a product line that kids are asking for," said Marc Rosenberg, a spokesman for Tiger. With the current uncertain economy, "parents are taking more time to check out what their kids want."

And with the holidays just weeks away, many kids are fine-tuning their lists.

Karen Cohen, a 7-year-old from New York, said Sky Dancer tops her list — but she'd settle for Baywatch Barbie, a bikini-clad doll based on the popular television show.

"It's hard to know what you really want because there's like tons of toys out there," she said during a recent visit to New York's F.A.O. Schwarz store. "And then sometimes I hear about something new from a friend or TV and I want that too."

INVESTMENTS: Presidential election year forthcoming indefinitely.

A more modest return, however, would still be beneficial if the recent trend of inflation continues. The cost of living in this country has lately been advancing at a rate of about 3 percent a year or less, and it may slow further.

That leaves a "real" (inflation-adjusted) return on all categories of assets that bring in as little as 4 percent or 5 percent after taxes. It creates a favorable climate for paper investments, furthermore, by keeping inflationary pressures down in the competing markets for tangibles such as precious metals and real estate.

Another factor to consider: 1996 is a presidential election year, which usually means pretty benign conditions for the markets. Of all the serious bear markets for stocks over the past quarter-century — 1990, 1987, 1981-82, 1973-74, 1969-70 — none occurred in a presidential election year.

And although the markets are hardly at bargain-basement levels, investors determined to search for neglected opportunities still have some places to look. A couple of areas sure to be suggested by many advisers: International and global stock mutual funds, which have lagged behind domestic funds for two years now, and municipal bonds and muni-bond funds, which have been weighed down by talk of a possible overhaul of the nation's tax system.

BEWARE: Numbers would seem to hint an all-out stock buy smart, advisers say stretch that has included booms and busts, war and peace, and many different political climates, stocks have produced an average return of about 10 percent a year.

Given numbers like that, it's not surprising to hear some advisers suggesting that long-term investors who can ride out interim market cycles ought to put all their money into stocks.

But Mark Stumpp, chief investment officer at the financial advisory firm of PDI Strategies, demurs. "Let's not get carried away," he says.

"Advocates of 100 percent stocks argue that, while year-to-year results are highly volatile, good times cancel out bad ones and, consequently, stocks will outperform bonds and cash (money-market investments) over long intervals," Stumpp observes.

"While this is likely, it is not a sure thing, because risk never vanishes, even when measured over long time intervals."

To give the hazards a touch of immediacy, suppose you had invested heavily in the Japanese stock market at its peak in late 1989. This was no speculative flyer you took — Japan's economy had been a model of strong growth and low inflation for many years, and business people in many other parts of the world were scrambling to try to figure out how to do things the Japanese way.

Today, six years later, the stock averages in Tokyo have fallen by more than 50 percent. Perhaps Japanese stocks will rebound strongly in the future, but they have a long way to go just to produce any positive return at all for the late-1989 buyer, much less outperform bonds and money markets.

In the meantime, how do investors feel who staked their plans for retirement or their children's college education entirely on that particular stock market?

With a portfolio of Japanese stocks ballasted by bonds and money-market investments, the experience, while still upsetting, would have been a lot less severe.

Sure, ballasting your fund portfolio costs you a lot of what Wall Street calls "upside potential." The question is, how important is it to gain every last bit of possible return on your money?

A more modest payoff that keeps you ahead of inflation, while exposing you to less risk, may not make you rich — but it still may get you to your financial goal in one piece.

While many surgical procedures are classified as same day surgery, or 23 hour surgery which requires an overnight stay for observation, other procedures may necessitate a few days in the hospital. Westwood Medical Center's Perioperative Services Department oversees the care of all surgical patients during the procedure and initial recovery.

Westwood's highly skilled surgical teams work in five operating rooms, including two large rooms for surgeries that require additional personnel or equipment. After surgery, patients under general anesthesia are cared for in a 10-bed recovery unit.

Patients in the recovery unit are constantly monitored by a nurse whose sole responsibility is to ensure their well being.

The Beatles' 'return' took fans back

No one who was conscious in the early 1960s could mistake the sound that opened the Oct. 19 segment of "The Beatles Anthology." The communal squeal of Beatlemania became an aural icon for the baby-boomer generation. Now it is obvious that the screamers, despite the silliness of that momentary hysteria, were essentially right. The Beatles were the most creative rock 'n' roll band of all time.

The Beatles were great because they took the material around them — the music, the politics, the grist of the counterculture — transformed it and sent it back. The surprise here was that four working-class kids from Liverpool made art as they climbed the pop charts. By the end of their career, they had converted even the parents and grandparents of their screeching devotees. Those left cold by the raunch of John Lennon's classic version of "Twist and Shout" could not resist the grace and erudition of "Eleanor Rigby."

To look back is to realize that these lads earned their phenomenal success. Hearing Lennon, in an old interview, talk about his efforts to hit one note just like Roy Orbison reveals the passion that drove them in their early years. Their covers of other people's work were as inspired as their originals, and Paul McCartney's extraordinary vocal versatility, often overlooked, allowed the group to take on material from the sweet "Till There Was You" to the primordial "Long Tall Sally."

For a few halcyon years they used their success better than anyone had any reason to expect. They were smart and adventurous about their music. They ushered the traditional anti-intellectualism of rock quietly out the back door, introducing an omnivorous sophistication but never forgetting their Cavern Club roots.

They careened off each other, pushed each other, and continued to learn. With each album, their artistry grew.

As for the two new songs, well, there are echoes of the classic Lennon-McCartney ballad. They could be "Sergeant Pepper's" outtakes. The ghost of John Lennon hovers over them, because if he were still alive, he would never have settled for a simple revisiting of old territory.

Still, the songs will probably do respectably in the charts, and who will begrudge them a spot? If nothing else, it reminds us of another thing about this unique band. They knew when to quit.

Taxpayers pay for Labor's saving program

WASHINGTON — Labor Secretary Robert Reich has developed a "portrait of a super-saver" as part of a new campaign to get his fellow baby-boomers to be more thrifty.

But some officials inside the Labor Department think Reich and the other promoters of the well-intentioned Retirement Savings Education Campaign should take some of their own advice and save money.

Anderson

"It's a wonderfully noble cause," says one Labor Department official, "but it has absolutely nothing to do with" the mandate of Labor's Pension and Welfare Benefits Administration.

PWBA, which is supposed to investigate pension fraud, is having its budget slashed. "How are you going to justify eliminating investigators or anyone else (at PWBA) when you're spending this kind of money on a frill that you're not even supposed to be doing?" asked this source.

Labor sources speculate that when all production and personnel costs are figured in, the public education campaign could cost taxpayers as much as $2 million. The public face of the campaign will be the "super-saver" portrait of a female paramedic "in full uniform; arms crossed; upright and proud; big grin." In addition to saving lives, the ad explains, she saves a percentage of her take-home pay.

In reality, however, the "big grin" might belong to the spin-meisters who are being paid to promote the program. Although four Wells Fargo security guards were hired to carry in four canvas bags of cash into the campaign's kick-off event last July to dramatize the power of early investing, the Labor Department's decision to pay a public relations firm $250,000 to spearhead publicity suggests the department has money to burn.

The department spent $8,000 just to move an existing stage at its headquarters to enhance television coverage of the kick-off event, at which Reich complained that "Americans are not saving enough." In addition, $35,000 is being spent to produce televised public service announcements, while $40,000 has been budgeted for developing and distributing announcements for the print media.

The program has been so strapped for funds that officials have been shaking piggy-banks within the department looking for loose change, according to internal notes of a strategy meeting last month.

Officials noted that the PWBA has no extra funds to spend because of a nearly 12 percent cut in funding, but raised the possibility that other funds could be accessed. The financial squeeze might force cancellation of a major press conference planned for January.

A Labor Department spokeswoman told us they originally sought private-sector "partners" to "limit the expense," but now taxpayers are picking up the entire tab.

Officials have declared the initial phase of the campaign a success and are preparing to launch a second phase, which will include an aggressive print and electronic media campaign of public service announcements and "canned" articles that officials hope will run in thousands of newspapers.

Reich's aides are preparing a letter on the savings crisis to Ann Landers, whose nationally syndicated advice column is counted on to garner lots of free publicity. The David Letterman and Oprah Winfrey shows will also be targeted, presumably with Reich making guest appearances. Organizers are even trying to line up actress Alexandria Paul, who plays a lifeguard on television's "Baywatch" to serve as celebrity spokesperson.

The campaign belongs on a Letterman top 10 list of ways not to spend taxpayer money.

SNOW JOB — Republicans in Congress are slicing money from food stamps, Medicare and education programs in order to balance the budget by 2002.

But the Vermont Association of Snow Travelers will skate — thanks to a $240,000 federal grant that will help this group of snowmobile enthusiasts to repair flood-damaged trails.

U.S. taxpayers might react icily to the idea of bailing out snowmobile enthusiasts. But Wayne Pelkey, who is trails administrator for VAST, defends the outlay by the Federal Emergency Management Agency on the grounds that "the state of California has gotten more for earthquakes than the rest of the country combined." Pelkey explained that the trails are also popular among bicyclists during the summer months.

Civilizations fall when agriculture base wanes

Can New York City feed itself? Chicago? Los Angeles? The answer is no. No city can feed itself. There is neither game to shoot, fish to catch nor fields to plant.

All urban folk are dependent for their survival on rural folk. This is one of those truths that is so easily forgotten — or in some cases not even realized.

Reese

It probably also is the real answer as to why civilizations rise and fall. They rise on an agricultural base and they fall when the agricultural base declines.

You hear a lot these days about the air and water, but it is a few feet of topsoil that stands between the human race and extinction. You can't live without air and water but you can't live on them either.

Probably what kills empires and civilizations is that as they grow, they urbanize. The power of the king, caliph, emperor, prime minister or president is always based in the city. Today, about 70 percent of the U.S. population is located in about 130 metropolitan areas. Pretty soon, surrounded by opulence and power, both the ruler and the ruled forget that the opulence and power rests on the shoulders of the farmers who are out of sight and out of mind.

That is certainly true of us today. Rural America is sick. It's been depopulated. Revitalizing rural America ought to be the number one concern in Washington, but it is hardly even talked about. Most legislators now represent urban areas, come from urban areas. No presidential candidate can possibly win office with only the rural vote. There are far, far more people on welfare than there are people are who actually farm. That fact alone ought to set off alarm bells.

This neglect of our survival is further illustrated by the federal budget. Many urbanites think the government provides hundreds of billions of dollars to farmers. Not so. Agricultural subsidies amount to about $10 billion — out of a $1.4 trillion budget. The present Republican Congress voted to spend more on foreign aid than it is planning to spend on subsidies for American farms. That, too, ought to set off alarm bells.

Wendell Berry, a writer and farmer and probably the wisest living American, noted recently that "land is not productive; people are productive." If America's shrinking farm land is left to giant corporations, they will, in the manner of giant corporations, exploit and ruin it and move on to other investments.

Land has to be nurtured, otherwise it dies. To do the hard work of nurturing land requires people who live on it, love it, and know it and have the skills necessary to keep the land productive, not just for this year, but for generations. The problem with the family farm is that giant corporations in league with bad government policies make it virtually impossible for them to make a profit farming.

The difficulties are many but we will never solve them (and we will surely die as a nation if we don't solve them) until we solicit the counsel and listen to the advice of the family farmers.

I have seen many bizarre, outrageous, foolish and stupid acts by politicians in my lifetime, but none has ever topped the spectacle of a congressional committee inviting three wealthy Hollywood actresses who had played the roles of farm wives in movies to testify about American agriculture. Nothing so perfectly describes urban insanity as that comic spectacle.

Those of us in the city must find ways to make personal connections with those who farm so that we can understand their problems and help them solve them. Perhaps some of the nation's farm organizations ought to set up associate memberships for city folk so we can be educated.

If we do not nurture the farm land, we will die. There are 5,000 years of history as evidence. There will no escaping our fate.

School's sports program aids many inner-city teens

Inner-city teen-agers are in desperate need of structure and guidance. New York's Board of Education eliminated a vital source of both when it cut its junior varsity sports program.

Chancellor Rudy Crew's decision to restore the program for the rest of this year — and to seek money to sustain it in the future — deserves broad private-sector support.

The high school sports program, which includes nearly 40,000 students, is the only supervised after-school activity that many students experience. The junior varsity portion of the program includes 6,500 boys and girls, mainly ninth graders who are less physically mature or skilled than varsity players.

The sports include basketball, football, softball, baseball, track and lacrosse. The program supports education by requiring participants to maintain at least an 80 percent attendance rate as well as passing grades in science, math and English.

Fifteen-year-olds are particularly impressionable, eager to be part of a group. A sports team based at school is certainly more desirable than a street gang. The sporting events also pull in thousands of young spectators who would otherwise be idling in the streets.

Crew knows the story firsthand. Raised by a widowed mother, helped along by neighbors, Crew used sports to anchor his life. "This is a high priority," Crew said. "I believe that students who strive to be successful in athletics can carry that success into the classroom."

Junior varsity sports were cut last spring for want of $1.1 million. An outcry from parents and community groups caused the board to reconsider. The program was restored partly with money that had been tied up in a federal audit and partly with money from private donors.

Crew has pledged to find money for next year and the year after in the school budget. But given the dismal state of city finances, the chancellor will surely need help from civic minded New Yorkers.

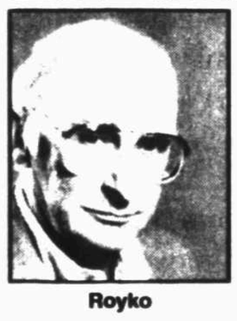
Disabled women are innocent victims in shooting

Maybe you noticed a brief story in the paper last week about a woman and a 12-year-old girl being shot while they sat in a parked car on Chicago's West Side.

The story was brief because there isn't anything surprising about people being shot in that part of the city. In those parts, you can be gunned down for not twiddling your fingers in a proper gang signal.



Royko

But this shooting was a bit unusual because of why the woman and girl were sitting in a car in so deadly a neighborhood.

Actually, there were two women sitting in the back seat and the child was in front.

The two women are in the care of Seguin Services, a private, not-for-profit organization that takes care of disabled clients in the western suburbs.

One of the women is retarded. The other is paralyzed on one side, uses a wheelchair and can't walk.

They live together in a group home in the suburb of Cicero, where an attendant takes care of their needs.

Earlier that day, the attendant took them to a 1 o'clock movie. At least that's where they were supposed to go.

The movie house was on the Southwest Side, a long way from where they were shot.

So if they were going to a 1 o'clock movie, what were they doing in a car on the West Side at 3 o'clock in the afternoon?!

It appears that the attendant has a boyfriend who lives at that location. The investigation is still going on, but it appears that the attendant may have been visiting her boyfriend and left the two disabled people in the car.

The 12-year-old girl is the kid sister of the boyfriend. It hasn't been explained why she was in the car.

But what is known is that a man about 20 years old came up to the car, tried to get in, and one of the women reached over and hit the button that locks the door.

So the young man took out a gun and opened fire. The girl apparently tried to curl up away from the shooter and was hit several times in the buttocks.

The retarded woman, in her 20s, was hit in the jaw. The paralyzed woman was grazed.

Why would someone shoot at two women and a child? There is always the possibility that it was a racial crime, because the gunman was black and the two women are white. But the girl was black. So he seems to have been an equal opportunity shooter.

The police aren't saying much. But they told the relatives of one of the women that it's possible that the shooting was gang-related.

Gang-related? When the victims were a kid and two handicapped women?

Yes, it's possible. The police told the relatives that the car belonged to the female attendant. But the boyfriend frequently drove it.

And he might be gang-affiliated. So in the world of gangs, it is possible that a rival gang member would have shot anyone who happened to be in that car. Even a child and women with disabilities. A target by any other name is a target in some parts of town.

They are also trying to figure out why the helpless women were left in the car in the first place.

Their attendant has come up with a story about being paged at the movie theater by a relative who said he was locked out of his home.

And that was why she drove there and left the women in the car. To help the relative get into his abode.

But nobody is sure if they ever went to the movies. It's also possible that the attendant went there to visit her boyfriend and was otherwise occupied.

Whatever the reason for the women being sitting ducks in an urban shooting gallery, the relatives are upset.

"We're really flipped out," said the sister of the paralyzed woman.

"She left them in a car in a gang area. That is just sick. And it is an appalling statement about our society that someone would shoot at a paralyzed woman, someone retarded and a young kid. How could anybody do that?"

Well, I'm sure the shooter didn't know about their conditions. Had he known they were totally defenseless, he might have taken his time, aimed and killed all three.

A spokesperson for the Seguin Services says they're looking for answers, too.

The attendant had a good work record, they said, and had several years of experience working with the disabled.

The sister said: "The police say they have no grounds for prosecuting her on criminal charges."

Since there are no parking meters at that location, she won't even get a ticket.

"But," the sister said. "she's been terminated, and they will go through channels to prevent her working with others."

Yes, it might be a difficult job interview:

"I was taking care of two people and I left them at the curb and they were shot."

Anyway, there is probably some kind of message here. If the woman was visiting her boyfriend, it proves that love is not only blind, but it can be kind of dumb, too.

Consumers send mixed message to retailers about Christmas shopping

Associated Press

Consumers sent retailers a mixed message at the start of this holiday season: They hit the stores without spending a lot.

Analysts expect this to be one of the toughest Christmas seasons in years. Consumers uncertain about the economy and their own finances already owe billions to credit card companies and banks.

Thanksgiving weekend sales, the traditional first hint of the season's flavor, were strong for household items from computers and electronics to tool kits and Snake Lights.

Pragmatic consumers, if they bought personal gifts, were choosing small items like perfume and cosmetics, or those with long-term value like jewelry.

Pragmatic consumers, if they bought personal gifts, were choosing small items like perfume and cosmetics, or those with long-term value like jewelry.

In mall shops, jewelry sales Friday rose 6.8 percent while music, video, electronics and software retailers saw a 9.3 percent gain. Clothing sellers managed only a 1 percent gain and home furnishings stores saw business fall 2.3 percent, said John Konarski, a vice president with the International Council of Shopping Centers.

The big picture was still blurry: While the International Council of Shopping Centers found business on Friday alone rose 5.8 percent over last year at mall specialty stores, TeleCheck Services Inc., a check approval service, said the amount of sales paid for by check that day fell 4.8 percent.

Still, there were spenders out there, and at all hours, too. Anna Coger was buying Christmas ornaments at nearly 4 a.m. at the Wal-Mart Supercenter in Benton, Ark.

"I just couldn't sleep," Coger said Saturday. "So I decided to come get some more of these so I could finish the tree."

Some retailers were equally enthusiastic.

Sears, Roebuck and Co., with its wide assortment of merchandise and big inventory of competitively priced appliances and electronics, "had the best Thanksgiving weekend in our history," said John Costello, senior executive vice president for marketing.

Sears' big sellers were computers, big-screen TVs, tool sets, cosmetics, fragrances, scarves and gloves.

At the Airmall at Pittsburgh International Airport, which includes stores like The Gap, Bally, The Nature Co. and The Athlete's Foot, sales rose 10.8 percent from last year, spokeswoman Leslie Lanier said.

But Saks Fifth Avenue, which had strong sales all year, saw them taper off at the start of the season. Exceptionally strong sales earlier in the month at the upscale fashion store probably siphoned off weekend business, chairman Philip B. Miller said.

And some people may just be biding their time.

New program shifts spy satellites' focus to study climatic changes

By William J. Broad
N.Y. Times News Service

With the cold war a fading memory, the nation's spy satellites are beginning to turn some of their attention to nature.

In addition to peering at the usual military targets, they are monitoring such natural phenomena as clouds, glaciers, sea ice, deserts and tropical rain forests to gather clues about long-term global climatic change and ecological threats.

At the urging of Vice President Gore, and with the support of Congress, the new program is directing spy satellites to study about two dozen ecologically sensitive sites around the world. Ultimately, it is to monitor about 500 sites. Scientists are programming the satellites to study diverse habitats vulnerable to environmental shifts and damage, including some that are unusually remote and forbidding.

"In terms of turning swords into plowshares, this is about as good of an example as I can think of," said Dr. Jeff Dozier, dean of the school of environmental science at the University of California at Santa Barbara and a member of the program's management team.

The data will be archived for future generations of scientists and will remain secret for now to conceal the abilities of the nation's reconnaissance systems, the scientists said. Intelligence experts always try to hide the exact abilities of their surveillance systems so foes are less likely to know how to evade and counter them. And in any event, the data will be most interesting in future decades because it seeks to reveal trends over time.

The program picks areas of the Earth that are thought to be particularly revealing of changes in the natural world and repeatedly photographs them on a fixed schedule, seasonally in some cases. Data are to be collected for decades, in theory revealing subtle ecological shifts that might otherwise be missed. For example, Mount Kilimanjaro in northeast Tanzania near the Kenya border is to be scrutinized for signs that the Earth's rising levels of carbon dioxide are changing its high forests.

Nurse provides warm, human touch at clinic

■ For over 12 years, Treva Beaty has been a comforting, dependable sight at the Community Children's Clinic.

By Tonie Miller-Uzzel
Staff Writer

Sick children need a reassuring face to let them know they're going to feel better soon. It's also nice for a kind hand to give them a pat as the medicine goes down.

Treva Beaty offers her time and talents as a nurse to help those poorly feeling children at the Community Children's Clinic.

Mrs. Beaty retired about eight years ago from Memorial Hospital and Medical Center, where she worked in labor and delivery and postpartum care.

Her tradition of nursing has been passed on to her daughter, who is a nurse, and her granddaughter, who is training to be a nurse.

She said she became involved with the clinic after receiving a call asking for help. The clinic provides low-cost health care and medication to children who don't have a regular doctor.

"My daughter volunteered there on the day it opened," she said.

The clinic director, Anne Swendig, said Mrs. Beaty has been the only nurse who has volunteered continually since the clinic opened its doors on June 21, 1983.

"She has provided us with years of service," Ms. Swendig said.

Mrs. Beaty said she never thought twice about using her nursing skills to help the less fortunate.

"The children's clinic needs so many different people ... and it's such a worthwhile cause," Ms. Beaty said.

The clinic allows children to go to the doctor before they are so sick they have to go to the emergency room, she said.

"So they're not as sick when they go," she said.

While she only volunteers at the clinic two days a month, she said she looks forward to the time she spends there.

"It's always a joy to go to work. The people there are fantastic — from the doctors to the volunteers and Anne does such a bang-up job as the coordinator," Mrs. Beaty said.

Mrs. Beaty has also inspired the women's organization at her church, Christian Church of Midland, to donate a certain percentage of their collection each month for supplies at the clinic.

She said she works at the clinic even though she's retired because, "I like to work with children."

'Officer Friendly' works to earn the faith of students

By Rachel Zoll
Associated Press Writer

MALDEN, Mass. — Malden police Sgt. Kevin Molis wades through the tables at the high school cafeteria, the gray shadow of his military buzz cut barely visible beneath his policeman's cap.

The 6-foot-2 former football center scans the rows of teen-agers as they exchange tales of the morning's classes. Lumps of mashed potatoes and cheese cubes sit on plastic trays before them.

Molis stops at one table of four boys and puts his right hand on a student's shoulder.

The conversation stops.

"Hey, how's your driving going," Molis asks, in a thick Massachusetts accent. "Do you think the rain will hold out for the game Saturday? I really hope so."

DREAM CATCHER

86-year-old Oklahoma Comanche honored as Elder of the Year for 1995

By Kim McConnell
Associated Press

LAWTON, Okla. — It took a court order before Dorothy Sunrise Lorentino's father could ensure that his oldest child would receive a quality education.

Decades later, Mrs. Lorentino was equally determined to shine education's light on other Indian children.

Years after she left the formal classroom, Mrs. Lorentino, 86, is being honored for her efforts in education by being named the 1995 elder of the year by the National Indian Education Association.

Mrs. Lorentino, a Comanche, spent 34 years in the classroom, then retired to be a substitute teacher and, in later years, a teacher of the Comanche language.

Cornel Pewewardy, who nominated his former teacher for the NIEA award, calls her a dream catcher: keeping alive the visions and dreams of Indian people.

Along the way, she also earned a place in American Indian history. The journey began in 1917, when 6-year-old Dorothy Sunrise was told she was to attend school. Mrs. Lorentino has vivid memories of that time.

Until then, she had lived with her grandmother, following an Indian cus-

'People just seem to get meaner' during holidays

We plopped down our turkey, our stuffing, our green beans and our dinner rolls onto the conveyor belt and waited for the gentleman in front of us to pay.

Patterson

As a rule, we've always made shopping for Thanksgiving Day dinner a family affair. Something in which we could all take part.

The man in front of us grabbed his bag and exited the store, and it was our turn. We looked at the checker, a grandmotherly sort who offered a slight smile when we approached.

The woman shook her head as she looked up at us.

"What's wrong?" my wife and I asked.

"The holidays," she said, a hint of disillusionment in her voice.

In just two words, she summed up what had gone wrong for her that day. But she went on.

"Every year," she said, "people just seem to get meaner the closer the holidays get."

I really didn't know what to say to her, but I sort of knew what she meant. Her opinion didn't come as a complete surprise. Look around and it's pretty easy to see stress levels rising this time of year. It's supposed to be a happy time, sure, but there's so much to do and there's so little time in which to do it.

There's little doubt that the woman knows what she's talking about. Checking out a hundred or so shoppers a day during an eight-hour shift, she clearly knows what people are like this time of year.

Still, what she said was a little sad.

"People just seem to get meaner the closer the holidays get." The words still echo.

"Why do you think that is?" I asked her.

"People just get in such a hurry, they don't have time for anybody any more," she continued. "They just want to get their stuff and go home.

"Most of the people who come in here get upset. They can't find something they're looking for, or they have to wait a few minutes in line, or their children are running them ragged. By the time it's their turn to check out, most of them aren't real friendly."

She continued to run our items across the scanner, and I looked at a couple of other cashiers. They were all busy, efficiently doing their work, offering little — if any — conversation. But the customers, too, were silent, all poised with pen in hand, waiting to write their checks so they could get home ASAP.

Then the woman said something else that struck me even more than what she had said before.

"Someone once told me," she said, "that if you take the time to tell one stranger every day to have a Merry Christmas or a Happy Holiday, there's a good chance you'll make it a better day for that person, and for yourself, too."

I thought for a moment about what she said. This woman sees countless people every day who offer her no good-luck wishes or conversation or smiles or "Have a Nice Day" sentiments. Yet she still holds on to the hope that she can make someone's day a little better with a few simple words.

I took the receipt from her, smiled and told her thanks.

"Have a nice Thanksgiving and a Merry Christmas," she said. I smiled back at her and felt pretty good the rest of the day.

She was right.

Fighting the real drug war: Child-proof aspirin bottles

Recently I had a simple, foolproof idea for eliminating the drug problem in this country. It came to me while I was making spaghetti sauce.

Barry

I use an ancient Italian spaghetti-sauce recipe that has been handed down through many generations of ancient Italians, as follows:

1. Buy some spaghetti sauce.

2. Heat it up.

Sometimes I add some seasoning to the sauce, to give it a dash of what the Italians call "joie de vivre" (literally, "ingredients"). I had purchased, from the supermarket spice section, a small plastic container labeled "Italian Seasoning." My plan was to open this container and sprinkle some seasoning into the sauce.

Already I can hear you veteran consumers out there chortling in good-natured amusement.

"You complete moron," you are chortling. "You actually thought you could gain access to a product protected by MODERN PACKAGING??"

Yes, I did, and I certainly learned MY lesson. Because it turns out that Italian Seasoning has joined the growing number of products that, For Your Protection, are packaged in containers that you cannot open unless you own a home laser cannon.

This trend started with aspirin. Years ago — ask your grandparents — aspirin was sold in bottles that had removable caps. That system was changed when consumer-safety authorities discovered that certain consumers were taking advantage of this loophole by opening up the bottles and — it only takes a few "bad apples" to spoil things for everybody — ingesting aspirin tablets.

So now aspirin bottles behave very much like stinging insects in nature movies, defending themselves against consumer access via a multilevel security system:

(1) There is a plastic wrapper to keep you from getting at the cap.

(2) The cap, which is patented by the Rubik's Cube company, cannot be removed unless you line an invisible arrow up with an invisible dot while rotating the cap counterclockwise and simultaneously pushing down and pulling up.

(3) In the unlikely event that you get the cap off, the top of the bottle is blocked by a taut piece of extremely feisty foil made from the same impenetrable material used to protect the Space Shuttle during atmospheric re-entry.

(4) Underneath the foil is a virtually unremovable wad of cotton the size of a small sheep.

(5) As a final precaution, there is no actual aspirin underneath the cotton. There is only a piece of paper listing dangerous side effects, underneath which is ...

(6) ... a second piece of paper warning you that the first piece of paper could give you a paper cut.

Even this may not be enough security for the aspirin of tomorrow. At this very moment, packaging scientists are working on an even more secure system, in which the entire aspirin container would be located inside a live sea urchin.

With aspirin leading the way, more and more products are coming out in fiercely protective packaging designed to prevent consumers from consuming them. My Italian Seasoning container featured a foil seal AND a fiendish plastic thing that I could not remove with my bare hands; which meant of course that I had to use my teeth. These days you have to open almost every consumer item by gnawing on the packaging. Go to any typical consumer household and you'll note most of the products — food, medicine, compact discs, appliances, furniture — are covered with bite marks, as though the house is infested with crazed beavers. The floor will be gritty with little chips of consumer teeth. Many consumers are also getting good results by stabbing their products with knives. I would estimate that 58 percent of all serious household accidents result from consumers assaulting packaging designed to improve consumer safety.

Anyway, I finally gnawed my seasoning container open, no doubt activating a tiny transmitter that triggered an alarm in some Spice Security Command Post (WHEEP! WHEEP! WHEEP! INTRUDER GAINING ACCESS TO ITALIAN SEASONING IN SECTOR 19!). While I was stirring my spaghetti sauce, it occurred to me that if we want to eliminate the drug problem in this country, all we have to do is:

1. Make all drugs completely legal and allow them to be sold in supermarkets ("Crack? Aisle 6, next to the Sweet 'N Low.").

2. Require that the drugs be sold in standard consumer packaging.

My reasoning is that if physically fit, clear-headed consumers can't get into these packages, there's no way that strung-out junkies can. Eventually they'll give up trying to get at their drugs and become useful members of society, or at least attorneys.

I realize that some of you may have questions about this plan. Your most likely concern is: "If dangerous and highly addictive narcotics are sold freely in supermarkets, will the packages be required to have Nutritional Facts labels, like the ones that now helpfully inform consumers of the protein, carbohydrate, Vitamin A, Vitamin C, Calcium and Iron content of products such as Cool Whip Lite?"

Of course they will. Even though, if my plan works as expected, an addict would be unable to consume his heroin purchase, he still has a vital right to know, as an American consumer, that if he DID consume it, he'd be getting only a ~~small~~ percentage of his Daily Requirement of dietary fiber. This is just one of the many benefits we enjoy as residents of this Consumer Paradise. My head aches with pride.

COP: Molis struggled with winning students' faith record.

Molis is among the first community police officers in Massachusetts assigned to patrol a suburban high school full-time. While some juvenile officers visit schools only when violence occurs, Molis has become Malden High's "neighborhood cop," who tries to stop trouble before it starts.

"I'm not here as a security guard. I'm not here to search kids," said Molis, whose job is funded through a grant from the state's Executive Office of Public Safety.

"I tell kids, I want you to trust me. I want to be your friend, but a friend tells you when you're acting badly."

Molis has had several chances for frank talk since he was assigned to the school of about 1,300 students two years ago. The high school has had an influx of poor students over the past 15 years, many from broken families, who were attracted by Malden's relatively affordable housing.

Minorities make up nearly 40 percent of the student body and 23 different languages — including Chinese, Vietnamese, Spanish and Portuguese — are spoken in the school, Principal John Wright said.

The quick change has strained the school, and Molis has been called on to stop fights, arrest abusive teen-age boyfriends and scare off a boy who was not a Malden student, but cased the school carrying a knife and trying to sell counterfeit crack cocaine.

But that drama contrasts sharply with the 8-10 hour days spent patroling the halls without incident, talking to students between classes and after school, he explained.

"It probably doesn't look that exciting to somebody from the outside, but it's one of the most important parts of the job," Molis said.

When he started the job, Molis struggled to win over wary students. Like a ward councilor seeking reelection, he shook hands at football games and school concerts, and daily sat through cafeteria lunches, although he said he never ate the food.

The payoff came when kids started using his beeper number to contact him with everything from questions about their homework to news about a fight planned for that night in a city park, he said.

ELDER: Honoree continued in school even after racism struck tom where the oldest child is reared by the grandmother. The elder and her grandchild lived in a tent in Cache, with a nearby brush arbor providing shelter from bad weather.

One day, her father took her to school in Cache — by horse and buggy, Mrs. Lorentino said. She remembers that school had just started when a teacher grabbed her and led her outside.

Her father talked to the principal and, although Mrs. Lorentino didn't know what was said, "We went home. Public schools were not for Indians."

The classroom has continued to call, however. Her home is near a school, and she often watched children as they walked to class.

"I wanted to go to school with every fiber of my body," she said, adding that her husband simply directed her to inquire about substitute teaching. Mrs. Lorentino was content to be a substitute teacher for years.

Today, the students are older, but she is still a teacher: She teaches her native Comanche every Thursday during classes on hymn singing.

BEATY: Illness can't slow woman

(From 1B)

But, children aren't the only ones who benefit from her volunteerism.

Recently, she was making a little table-top Christmas tree for an elderly friend who doesn't have room for a tree in her apartment. She just likes to do things for others, including using her bread-maker on a regular basis.

She does all of this despite suffering from Parkinson's disease.

"It makes all the difference in the world when you have someone like Treva," Ms. Swendig said.

Ms. Swendig said the years of nursing experience has been beneficial to the clinic as well as the help she has gotten from her church.

Mrs. Beaty has also served on the clinic's board of directors.

"She's been involved on a lot of different planes here," Ms. Swendig said. "I can't say enough good things about her."

DEAR ABBY

Bone-marrow donors of mixed racial backgrounds are needed to save a life

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: Like so many others, I never thought I'd be writing a Dear Abby letter.

My 16-year-old daugher, Michelle, has acute nonlymphocytic leukemia. Like too many other children, she is in need of a bone marrow transplant. Her doctor has said she cannot survive unless she receives a transplant with matching bone marrow. Time is running out for my daughter; the percentages are not in her favor.

Van Buren

There are 1.7 million wonderful people who are registered potential donors with the National Bone Marrow Bank. None of them has bone marrow that matches Michelle's. What makes our daughter "different" isn't that she has leukemia, nor is it because I am in the Baseball Hall of Fame. Michelle must find the "needle in the haystack" because I am African American and her mother is Caucasian.

People with African ancestry and other ethnic minorities are underrepresented in donor pools. The largest percentage of donors are Caucasian, followed by African American, Latino, Asian and, finally, a donor with mixed black and white blood types. The only donor who can give the gift of life to Michelle and others like her is a person 18 or older of mixed race — specifically African American and Caucasian.

Our prayer is that the awareness of our daughter's need, and the need of so many others, will motivate people to action. We hope your readers will step forward. The process is quite easy and virtually painless. Donors share only a small portion of bone marrow, and the body soon replaces it. A simple blood test can determine whether someone is a candidate to help Michelle and others like her.

Abby, we believe with today's technology and your wide readership, we can surely find that needle in a haystack. Time is short. The needle must be found today.

Not only for our daugher, but for all the children and adults in this country like her, my wife and I urge your readers to call 1-800-627-7692 to start saving lives today — before it's too late. — ROD AND MARILYNN CAREW

DEAR ROD AND MARILYNN: My readers are the most caring and generous in the world, and I know they join me in praying for your daughter's recovery. Please, readers, call the number for the National Bone Marrow Bank — 1-800-MARROW 2 — and obtain information on becoming a donor.

DEAR ABBY: I went to a coffee shop and sat at the counter to read my paper. I ordered a cup of coffee.

When I was ready to leave, I discovered that I had only enough money to pay for the coffee — and none for a tip.

I didn't want the food server to think I was a tightwad, so I took 35 cents from the tip left by the man who had been sitting next to me. I put it near my saucer as my tip.

I feel somewhat guilty for doing that. Was it wrong? And if so, what can I do about it now? — A READER IN OREGON

DEAR READER: Yes, it was wrong. Go back to the coffee shop and either 'fess up — or order another cup of coffee and double your tip.

To order "How to Write Letters for All Occasions," send a business-sized, self-addressed envelope, plus check or money order for $3.95 ($4.50 in Canada) to: Dear Abby, Letter Booklet, P.O. Box 447, Mount Morris, Ill. 61054-0447. (Postage is included.)

Kidnapping-abuse case takes toll on small town

DALLAS (AP) — The lawyers and TV cameras — once drawn to the small East Texas town of Gilmer after a girl's mysterious disappearance and allegations of murder, child abuse and satanic cults — are gone.

The effects of the saga, however, have taken their toll on many of those involved, and the town's 5,000 residents are left to wonder about truth and justice.

Two years after the case garnered the national spotlight and four years after the 17-year-old girl vanished, Kelly Wilson is still missing. The murder charges have been dropped, along with several dozen child-abuse cases against a local family.

Earlier this month, Assistant Texas Attorney General Lisa Tanner asked that 45 of 48 indictments against 10 people be dropped because the special prosecutor and a team who once handled the case "irreparably tainted" the children who were to testify.

In February, Danny Kerr Jr. will turn 10. But today he lies in an East Texas nursing center bed, unable to walk, talk or feed himself. With luck, doctors say, he could live another decade.

He is just one victim of a satanic cult scare that tore through Gilmer. His father, uncle and grandparents were among eight people charged with ritually murdering Miss Wilson. Also charged was the police officer assigned to solve her disappearance, Sgt. James Brown.

In November 1993, according to some of Danny's siblings, one or both his foster parents beat his head against the floor.

The children — social workers had assigned 10 to the home — said he was brutalized during a session of "holding," a technique that included forcing them to run up and down stairs until exhausted and squeezing them under the arms until they screamed.

DEATHS

Jose Martinez

Services for Jose "J.O." Martinez are set for 10 a.m. today in Our Lady of Guadalupe Catholic Church with the Rev. Domingo Estrada officiating.

Graveside services with military honors are to be held at 1 p.m. today in Resthaven Cemetery in McCamey.

Rosary was recited on Sunday in the Ellis Funeral Home Chapel.

Martinez, 69, died Friday in a Midland hospital.

Pallbearers are to be Bobby Acosta, David Acosta, Jimmy Gomez, Tony Gonzalez, Dominic Martinez, Ruben Acosta, and Sammy Acosta.

Ruby Trammell

Services for Ruby May Trammell of Midland are set for 1 p.m. today in the First United Methodist Church with the Rev. C. Lane Boyd officiating.

Burial is to be in Resthaven Memorial Park under the direction of Ellis Funeral Home.

Mrs. Trammell, 85, died Friday in a Midland nursing home.

She was born on Dec. 9, 1909, in Gunsight in Stephens County, Texas, to N.W. and Rebecca McClesky Tolle and attended schools there. Later, she moved to Cisco, where she graduated from Cisco High School. Afterward, she attended business college.

She was married to Fredrick Ray Trammell on June 16, 1937, in Abilene. He died in 1983.

Mrs. Trammell was a member of the First United Methodist Church in Midland.

Tom Zachry

Services for Tom Zachry, 90, of Midland are set for 2 p.m. Tuesday in the Ellis Funeral Home Chapel with Dale Kitchens of Church of the First Born officiating.

Burial is to be in Fairview Cemetery.

Zachry died Sunday in a Midland hospital.

Zachry was born on Nov. 13, 1905, in Big Sandy to Newton Thomas Zachry and Rosie Ann Landers and moved to Abilene at an early age.

In 1922, Zachry moved to Potosi, where he married Martha Burrow on Jan. 5, 1923, in Potosi. The couple moved to Midland in 1923. Mrs. Zachry died in 1990.

Survivors include three sons, Henry Zachry and Norman Zachry, both of Midland, and Billie Zachry of Navajo Dam, N.M.; a daughter, Elnora Harvey of Hillsboro, N.M.; nine grandchildren, 18 great-grandchildren, and two great-great-grandchildren.

Arthur Vaughan

Funeral services for Arthur Vaughan are pending with Ellis Funeral Home.

Vaughan died Sunday in his home.

Agnes Cockrell

WACO — Graveside services for Agnes Cockrell, 88, of Waco and formerly of Midland are to be held at 2 p.m. Tuesday in Westover Cemetery in Baylor County with the Rev. Lee Crouch of Lamesa officiating.

Archer Funeral Home of Seymour is in charge of services.

Mrs. Cockrell died Saturday in a Waco nursing home.

Mrs. Cockrell was born on May 21, 1907, in Clarksville and later moved with her family to the Westover community in Baylor County. She was married to A.B. "Abe" Cockrell, a Methodist minister, in Seymour in 1926.

She was preceded in death by her husband in 1926.

Survivors include a son, Ben Cockrell of Waco; two daughters, Sarah Moya Loveland, Colo., and Rebecca Shiverdaker of Gloucester City, N.J.; two sisters, Vita Ward of Megargel and Amanda Price of Savannah, Ga.; nine grandchildren and 15 great-grandchildren.

Betty Coon

Services for Betty Sue Burleson Coon, 68, are to be held at 3 p.m. today in the Ellis Funeral Home Chapel with the Rev. Terry Chapman of Second Baptist Church officiating. Burial is to be in Resthaven Memorial Park.

Mrs. Coon died Friday in a Midland hospital.

Pallbearers are to be George Anderson, Mike Schultz, David Burleson, Marvin Burleson, Ronnie Burleson, and Dewey Byers.

The family requests that memorials be directed to the American Lung Association, P.O. Box 2640, Austin, 78755.

POLICE REPORTS

Traffic patrols

In putting its warnings to motorists into action, the Midland Police Department this week will be attuned to traffic violations on highly-trafficked thoroughfares and intersections, including Andrews Highway, Loop 250, Midland Drive, and Midkiff Road.

"We will be working all hazardous violations in these areas, with a priority placed on red-light violations," said Midland police spokesman Sgt. David Garcia. "We invite the citizens of Midland to exercise caution and obey all traffic laws when driving anywhere but especially those areas."

Extra officers will be watching for violations "at various times of the day" this week at the following locations, Garcia noted.

Monday: Andrews Highway at Godfrey Street and Whitney Drive.

Tuesday: Loop 250 and Midland Drive.

Wednesday: Andrews Highway at Michigan and Louisiana avenues.

Thursday: Andrews Highway and Cuthbert Avenue, and Maberry Street and Storey Avenue.

Friday: Midkiff Road and Haynes Avenue, Midkiff Road and Loop 250, Andrews Highway and Cuthbert Avenue, and Andrews Highway and Midkiff Road.

Saturday: Midkiff Road and Haynes Avenue, and Midkiff Road and Loop 250.

Investigation

Midland detectives are investigating the Saturday-night assault of Midland businessman James Lester.

Lester reported to police that a black man, sporting a white ski mask and white T-shirt, entered his Jimi's Pit Stop grocery store at 200 S. Lee St. at 7:08 p.m. on Saturday, alerted Lester that "This is a stickup," and struck him several times in the face with a wooden stick.

Following a struggle between the Lester and the assailant, the would-be robber left the store and took nothing. Lester was treated for his injuries.

Saturday

Vandalism: J. Daniel at 2:38 a.m. reported the theft of tail-light lenses and the scratching of the driver's side of the vehicle at 4700 Polo Parkway.

Anyone having information concerning these crimes should call the Police Department at 685-7108 or Midland Crime Stoppers at 694-TIPS.

Race tracks lose money to lottery

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — Thoroughbred tracks are losing the race for Texas gambling dollars to the state lottery.

Texans now wager more than $3 billion a year on the lottery, 12 times the amount wagered on horses last year.

And the lottery's growing popularity may explain why tracks like Retama Park have a hard time keeping pace, both politicians and economists say.

State Sen. Jeff Wentworth, R-San Antonio, says people won't invest an afternoon at a race track, while buying a lottery ticket is a quick and easy way to gamble.

"It's the convenience; the easy availability, and the lure of the big payoff," he said.

A bone density test can provide essential information on bone health in five minutes or less

Osteoporosis and associated fractures can rob you of your mobility and your independence. Approximately 50% of women over the age of 50 have osteoporosis and are at risk of an osteoporosis-related fracture. A woman's risk of hip fracture alone is equal to the combined risk of developing breast, uterine, and ovarian cancer – and up to 20% of victims who suffer hip fractures die within one year of the fracture.

A bone density test is safe, fast, non-invasive, and painless – and it will provide essential information to help your doctor assess the health of your bones.

Ask your doctor about bone density testing, or call us for more information.

Tech to Copper

LUBBOCK — Texas Tech accepted an invitation Sunday to play in the Weiser Lock Copper Bowl Dec. 27 in Tucson, Ariz., against Western Athletic Conference co-champion Air Force.

The invitation must still be approved by the Texas Tech Board of Regents, which is expected to be just a formality. Game time for the contest is 7 p.m. and will be televised nationally by ESPN.

"I'm really thrilled for our players and our fans," Tech head coach Spike Dykes said. "This is a great reward for a great season. Arizona is a great place, especially in December."

The Red Raiders (8-3) won seven of their last eight games to secure their third straight bowl invitation, including a 14-7 victory over then-No. 8 Texas A&M. Texas Tech played in the John Hancock bowl in 1993 and made its first Cotton Bowl appearance as a Southwest Conference representative last January against Southern California.

Air Force (8-4) won the Commander-In-Chief's Trophy again this season by beating Army and Navy and finished in a tie with Colorado State

Thomas honored

NEW HAVEN, Conn. — Texas Tech middle linebacker Zach Thomas was named to the 1995 Walter Camp All-America Team.

Two other Southwest Conference players made the team, Texas A&M's Brian Mitchell and Ray Mickens.

Thomas ended the regular season with 131 tackles — 16 behind the line of scrimmage. He has also previously been named to All-America teams by the Football Writers of America and Football News.

The Walter Camp All-America Team is the oldest college all-star squad selected through balloting by coaches and sports information directors from Division I schools.

Big challenge for 'Small Schools'

District 4-5A's Lee, Cooper run into top teams in Week 3 of the state playoffs

By Terry Williamson
Sports Editor

Midland Lee vs. Arlington Lamar
5A Small School region playoff
Sat., Texas Stadium, 3:30 p.m.

This is "Hurdle Week" for District 4-5A as the Class 5A state football playoffs move into the third round.

District 4-5A is the only district in the state with three playoff teams still playing. And, at least in the Small School Division, this is a huge weekend. If Abilene Cooper and Midland Lee can survive Playoff Week 3, there would be a rematch between those two teams the following week in the quarterfinals.

Cooper owns the only blemish on the Lee record this year with a 21-21 tie, a game that vaulted the Cougars into the playoffs. Lee, the 4-5A champion, carries a 10-0-1 record into the third round.

But that is where "Hurdle Week" comes into play. Cooper, 6-4-1 on the season, meets No. 4 state-ranked Flower Mound Marcus, undefeated at 12-0, Saturday while No. 8 Lee takes on No. 9 Arlington Lamar, 11-0-1.

Marcus is a heavy favorite over Cooper while Lamar will be a slight favorite over Lee. But if you are interested in seeing if a Cooper-Lee rematch is a possibility, you can see for yourself in one afternoon.

Cooper will face Marcus at noon Saturday in Irving's Texas Stadium while Lee will play Lamar at 3:30 p.m. at the same site. It seems to be a perfect venue for 4-5A fans to see if the district can keep its perfect playoff streak alive for one more week.

Even though Lee is ranked ahead of Lamar in the Oilers find offense, win column, 42-33

■ Houston scores six touchdowns, three on Chris Chandler passes, to upset Denver.

By Michael A. Lutz
AP Sports Writer

HOUSTON — There was no figuring this one.

Chris Chandler outdueled John Elway with three touchdown passes and one of the NFL's worst offenses outproduced one of the best Sunday. The Houston Oilers crammed a season's worth of big plays into one game for a 42-33 victory over the Denver Broncos.

It was a game that even made the disgruntled and dwindling Oilers fans cheer. Only 36,113 attended the game, but they finally got into the flavor of the moment as the Oilers (5-7) took off — before they take off for Nashville.

"Somebody tell me this one is over," Oilers coach Jeff Fisher said. "Anytime you play an offense like that offense with John Elway, you've got to be able to do some things to keep the defense off the field."

Denver (6-6), with the sixth stingiest scoring defense in the league, gave up more than its 18-point average before halftime and eventually allowed more points than at any time this season.

"Today, we couldn't stop anybody," cornerback Lionel Washington said. "I really thought we were going to win this football game. We just didn't have enough time."

Elway completed 27 of 41 passes for 332 yards and two touchdowns and gave Denver hope of another miracle comeback with a 35-yard touchdown pass to Anthony Miller with 4:50 left.

But even Elway, who has 36 career fourth-quarter comeback victories, couldn't save the Broncos.

The Oilers lost to Kansas City 20-13 with 15 seconds left last week.

"It was very emotional for us after the loss to Kansas City," Haywood Jeffires said. "We just wanted to get back and play football. We couldn't have played a better game offensively."

The Oilers (5-7) started the game ranked 24th in the league on offense, but they matched Denver, ranked No. 4, yard for yard in a fast-paced game. Chandler completed 18 of 26 passes for 280 yards.

"Everybody did a heck of a job today," Chandler said. "We had big plays running the football. When we play well, it is because those guys (offensive line) are playing good."

It took Denver's final drive against the Oilers' prevent defense for the Broncos to outgain the Oilers 472-448.

"They controlled the tempo of the football game with their offense," Denver coach Mike Shanahan said. "We did manage to stop or slow them down, but you can't win on the road the way we've played.

"I really thought we were ready, but they did a better job than we did. We didn't play defense like I thought we could."

The Oilers cracked the Denver defense for a 28-17 halftime edge. They extended the lead with Chandler's 12-yard touchdown pass to Jeffires 1:20 into the third quarter. They got the clincher in the fourth quarter on a 5-yard run by Mari-

QBs make it hard to tell winners, losers

■ Rodney Peete and Bret Favre not happy with their situations despite wins.

By Richard Rosenblatt
AP Sports Writer

Listening to Rodney Peete, Brett Favre and Dan Marino, it was tough to tell the winners from the losers on Sunday. Steve Young, though, was just happy to be playing again.

Young made a triumphant return to the San Francisco 49ers, passing for 226 yards and three touchdowns in a 41-13 rout of the St. Louis Rams. Young missed the last five games with a shoulder injury.

Peete was peeved about being benched for two series in the third quarter of Philadelphia's 14-7 win over Washington, while Favre threw three TD passes and moaned about the cold

Aggies, 'Horns save their best for SWC's last

By Jaime Aron
AP Sports Writer

DALLAS — Texas vs. Texas A&M. The last Southwest Conference title on the line. A berth in the Sugar Bowl likely awaiting the winner.

Perfect.

As if it were scripted, the No. 9 Longhorns and No. 16 Aggies meet Saturday at College Station to settle it all.

"It's only fitting," A&M coach R.C. Slocum said Saturday, after a 38-6 victory over Texas Christian set up the showdown. "It can't get any better than this."

Forget that Houston plays Rice a few hours later in the final football game of the 81-year-old league.

All that matters is that the two teams that like each other the least will be playing the game that matters the most.

Couples wins Skins with playoff birdie

■ Champ wins his only hole with 10-foot putt to end string of second-place finishes.

The Associated Press

PALM DESERT, Calif. — Fred Couples finally made the winning putt, ending his string of second-place finishes in the Skins Game.

It took a while.

Couples, who had finished second in three previous appearances, didn't win a single hole in the 1995 Skins Game until rolling in a 10-foot birdie putt on the fifth playoff hole Sunday.

That putt gave him $270,000 — the richest hole in the 13-year history of the event — and the tournament title in the longest Skins Game.

Corey Pavin, who won $150,000 the first day and $90,000 with a 12-foot birdie putt at No. 11, lost his chance at a total payday of more than a half-million dollars when, on his third time at No. 18 Sunday, he hit his approach shot at the par-5, 426-yard hole onto the fringe some 45 feet from the pin.

Couples' sand wedge from 125 yards stopped within close birdie range and, after missing six reasonable birdie tries earlier in the day, he confidently knocked this one in.

■ Golf Roundup

Peter Jacobsen won one hole and $30,000, on the first day of play at Bighorn Golf Club, and Tom Watson, last year's winner with $210,000, was shut out this time.

Couples finished second last year when Watson made a 20-foot putt for $160,000 on the first playoff hole to beat him. Couples also lost in a playoff to Payne Stewart in 1992.

Couples sent the 1995 Skins into overtime by making a dramatic 10-footer for birdie on the final regulation hole after Jacobsen had applied the pressure by sinking a 20-footer.

Pavin and Couples made short birdie putts on the first playoff hole, No. 18, to tie, eliminating Jacobsen and Watson. On the second playoff hole, Couples had an 8-foot birdie try at the par-3 No. 17, but his putt stayed to the right and he settled for another tie.

NFL: Favre 11-0 in cold weather games

(From 1C)

weather in Green Bay's 35-13 victory over Tampa Bay.

And Marino was pleased with his record for most career TD passes — he now has 346 — in Miami's 36-28 loss to Indianapolis.

"It's something I'm proud of," said Marino whose 6-yard TD pass to Keith Byars in the second quarter moved him ahead of Fran Tarkenton's mark of 342. "But we're not winning games. It takes away from the record. It's hard to really sit back and appreciate it, but I tried to enjoy it as much as I could."

Peete, who took over for Randall Cunningham eight games ago and is 7-1 since, was perturbed about leaving with his team ahead 6-0. And, while Cunningham was in, the Redskins took the lead.

"I should be allowed to struggle in the first half and come back and play. Especially when we're winning the game," said Peete, who got back in and directed the Eagles on their winning drive in the fourth quarter. "I wasn't happy about it. That's the bottom line."

And then there's Favre, who's 11-0 in games he's started in cold weather.

"I can't explain it, because I sure hate it," Favre said. "If we're not playing, I'm inside."

Oakland is at San Diego on Monday night.

49ers 41, Rams 13

At San Francisco, Young was intercepted on his first pass, but was 21 of 32 as the 49ers (8-4) scored 35 straight points, including an 86-yard interception return by cornerback Eric Davis.

Young had TD passes of 16 and 18 yards to J.J. Stokes and a 2-yard score to Jerry Rice. Elvis Grbac replaced Young with 14:56 left and the 49ers ahead by 22 points. St. Louis (6-6), played the second half without Chris Miller (scratched eye).

Eagles 14, Redskins 7

At Washington, Ricky Watters (25 carries for 124 yards) ran 1 and 9 yards for TDs as Philadelphia (8-4) won its third straight.

Washington (3-9) has lost four in a row, guaranteeing the Redskins' third consecutive losing season for the first time since 1963-65.

Packers 35, Bucs 13

At Green Bay, Wis., Robert Brooks caught two of Favre's TD passes and had six catches for 144 yards as he went over 1,000 yards receiving for the first time. Favre, the NFL's leader with 28 TD tosses, completed 16 of 24 for 267 yards.

Errict Rhett, the NFC's third-leading rusher, was held to minus-1 yard on 13 carries as the Bucs lost for the fourth time in five games.

Colts 36, Dolphins 28

At the RCA Dome, Jim Harbaugh (12 of 18 for 180 yards) threw for three TDs and ran for another as Indianapolis (7-5) moved a game behind first-place Buffalo in the AFC East. The Dolphins (6-6), who trailed 24-6 at the half, have lost six of their last eight games.

Marino, 23 of 36 for 254 yards and four TDs, is 0-3 this year in games he's set a major NFL record. On Oct. 8, he set the career completions mark against the Colts, and on Nov. 12 he set the all-time passing yardage mark against New England.

Jets 16, Seahawks 10

Adrian Murrell carried 24 times for a career-best 116 yards and a 2-yard TD as the Jets (3-9) won their first road game in more than a year.

New York held Joey Galloway to three catches for 24 yards and Chris Warren, the AFC's leading rusher, to 63 yards on 16 carries, as Seattle's three-game winning streak ended. Warren went over 1,000 yards for the season.

Steelers 20, Browns 17

Norm Johnson's 27-yard field goal at the start of the fourth quarter lifted Pittsburgh (8-4) to its fifth straight win.

Neil O'Donnell, 21 of 30 for 251 yards and a TD, led the Steelers on a 16-play drive that consumed the last 8:52. Cleveland (4-8) has lost four straight since the move to Baltimore was revealed.

Cardinals 40, Falcons 37, OT

At Tempe, Ariz., this time Arizona won in overtime, getting a 28-yard field goal from Greg Davis 1:43 into the extra period. The Cardinals (4-8) are 2-2 in OT this year, with all of the games coming at Sun Devil Stadium. The overtime was an NFL-record 20th this season.

Dave Krieg passed for 413 yards and four TDs as Arizona snapped a three-game losing streak. Atlanta (7-5) fell out of a first-place tie with the 49ers in the NFC West. Jeff George had three TD passes for the Falcons.

Patriots 35, Bills 25

At Orchard Park, N.Y., Drew Bledsoe threw three TDs to Ben Coates, the last a 15-yarder with 1:23 left to cap a 22-point fourth quarter.

New England (5-7) put the game away when Chris Slade returned an interception 27 yards for a score with 57 seconds remaining.

Rookie Curtis Martin rushed for 148 yards on 27 carries and surpassed 1,000 yards for the season. Bledsoe completed 21 of 45 for 263 yards and three interceptions.

Bengals 17, Jaguars 13

At Jacksonville, Fla., Jeff Blake (19 of 39 for 210 yards) threw a 5-yard TD pass to Carl Pickens with 17 seconds left to lift Cincinnati (5-7). It was the 19th straight game with a TD pass for Blake.

The Jaguars (3-9) went ahead on a 39-yard field goal by Mike Hollis with 3:19 left.

Bears 27, Giants 24

At East Rutherford, N.J., Kevin Butler kicked a 37-yard field goal with seven seconds to play as Chicago (7-5) snapped a three-game losing streak.

The game-winning kick capped an eight-play, 48-yard march that started after Giants coach Dan Reeves decided to go for a first down on fourth-and-4 from the Chicago 32. That kept Brad Daluiso from trying a 49-yard field goal into the wind.

Erik Kramer was 25 of 38 for 268 yards, including a TD throw to Michael Timpson, who also ran 6 yards for a score. Rodney Hampton scored twice for the Giants (3-9).

Saints 34, Panthers 26

NEW ORLEANS — Mario Bates ran for two touchdowns and Derek Brown had one as New Orleans found its ground game against one of the NFL's toughest defenses in a victory over Carolina.

The Saints (5-7) ran for 180 yards against the Panthers, who had limited five of the last six opponents to less than 100 yards rushing. Bates gained 71 yards on 19 carries.

Chicago safety Marty Carter tackles Giant running back Rodney Hampton Sunday at Giants Stadium.

Cowboys say they need killer instinct to prevail

IRVING (AP) — Charles Haley comes across as the meanest man on the Dallas Cowboys. Teammate Nate Newton may be one of the jolliest guys in all of football.

Exact opposites in positions as well as personality, both agree the Cowboys (10-2) must be more Haley-like for Dallas to win the NFC East title, lock up homefield advantage for the playoffs and keep everyone healthy.

"We've got to find a killer instinct," Newton said. "We've got to start nailing people to the ground. We've just got to start crushing people."

Not surprisingly, Haley has that killer instinct. He just wishes more teammates shared it.

"The defense has to go out and just play nasty, tenacious football," he said. "We have to dominate on every play."

The Cowboys have been dominant in spurts this season, yet seldom for 60 minutes. It's a surprising development for a disciplined, veteran team that has the most productive offense in the NFL.

"The offense tends to get up early, so we've come to expect teams to be throwing, trying to come back with some quick points," defensive back Bill Bates said. "We are doing well back there, but we could do better."

Consider what happened Oct. 4 against Green Bay. Dallas led 24-3 in the third quarter, then Brett Favre rallied the Packers to within 31-24. The Cowboys eventually won 34-24.

The mental lapse struck late in the first half of Thursday's 24-12 victory over Kansas City. Dallas led 14-0 and was at the Chiefs' 40 with about 1 1/2 minutes left in the second quarter.

But instead of killing the clock and perhaps getting at least a field goal, the Cowboys punted, the defense went into a prevent too early, and the Chiefs got the field goal, putting them within 14-3 at halftime.

While that's not exactly closing the gap, the Cowboys obviously missed an opportunity to keep building momentum and send a message about not allowing comebacks.

Newton has a theory about why leads seem to erode.

"Every game is a killer game for us," he said. "People just play us lights out. There ain't anybody who's going to lay down against us because they still think we're the measuring stick."

The issue of complacency — something never a problem under Jimmy Johnson, yet definitely noticeable under the more laid-back Barry Switzer — is coming to the fore now that the playoffs are nearing.

The Cowboys hold a two-game lead in the NFC East. With only four games left and with four games left, they're almost certain to win another division title.

A more important goal is homefield advantage throughout the playoffs, a luxury Dallas didn't have when it lost last year's NFC Championship game.

College championship down to two, but Heisman three-man race

The Associated Press

While the national championship race may be down to two teams, the Heisman Trophy race is a three-man competition.

Barring a huge upset Saturday, top-ranked Nebraska (11-0) will play No. 2 Florida (11-0) for the national title in the Fiesta Bowl.

Florida made the matchup all but certain Saturday by beating No. 8 Florida State 35-24. The last roadblock for the Gators is this week's Southeastern Conference championship game at Atlanta, where they will be heavy favorites over No. 23 Arkansas.

Danny Wuerffel, considered a Heisman Trophy long shot last week, made himself a serious contender with a 443-yard, four-touchdown passing performance against Florida State.

The Heisman had been viewed as a two-man race, but front-runners Tommie Frazier of Nebraska and Eddie George of Ohio State ended their regular seasons with unimpressive performances.

Frazier threw for 128 yards and one TD and ran for 35 yards in Friday's 37-0 victory over Oklahoma, but he completed less than 50 percent and had a pass intercepted. George was held to 104 rushing yards, 48 below his average, as previously unbeaten Ohio State lost to Michigan 31-23 Saturday.

Their disappointing outings left an opening for Wuerffel, who has one more chance to impress voters against Arkansas before the Heisman winner is announced Dec. 9.

While the Fiesta Bowl has virtually locked up a 1-2 showdown between Nebraska and Florida, the matchups for the other two bowl alliance games still aren't set.

Spain wins third straight Fed Cup

VALENCIA, Spain (AP) — Spain again proved it's best on clay, winning the Fed Cup Sunday for the third straight year as Conchita Martinez defeated Mary Joe Fernandez 6-3, 6-4 en route to a 3-2 triumph over the United States.

"Next year, if we get into the finals — and there's a long way to go," said U.S. captain Billie Jean King, "we would play at home. And It won't be on red clay."

"It won't be on anything that's red," American Gigi Fernandez said jokingly.

The Americans were underdogs against Spain after world co-No. 1 Monica Seles withdrew with knee and ankle injuries last week. Still — even though they were playing on the slow clay surface — the Americans had chances to win. But they never seemed confident enough to take advantage.

"Even though we knew they were the favorites, it's always disappointing to lose," Mary Joe Fernandez said.

GOLF: Norman wins fourth Australian had birdie chances of 20 feet at the third playoff hole, and 40 feet at the fourth just slip by the lip of the cup. Pavin, meanwhile, kept it going by making a 9-footer at the fourth extra hole to save par.

Couples' birdie at the fifth extra hole ended a run of 11 holes without a winner, going back to Pavin's birdie at No. 11.

Watson made a 6-foot par putt at the 10th hole to tie Couples. That built the prize money to $90,000 at No. 11, including a $30,000 carryover from Saturday, when the ninth hole was tied.

Couples shot himself out of the picture when his tee shot at the par-3, 197-yard 11th sailed into the gallery alongside the green. Watson missed a 20-footer birdie try, then Jacobsen's putt from 35 feet crept just past the edge of the hole, opening the way for Pavin.

Pavin had a good chance to make it two in a row on the next hole after Watson drove out of bounds, Jacobsen hit into the water and Couples hit his third shot just off the fringe. But Pavin missed a 10-foot birdie try and he and Couples parred the hole.

Couples and Watson both made short birdie putts at the par-4 13th. Couples left a 10-foot birdie try on the right side of the cup that would have given him the $110,000 at stake at No. 14, then Watson, Jacobsen and Couples all had birdie 4s at No. 15.

His putting shaky, Couples missed a 6-foot birdie try on the par-4 16th hole, and all four players parred. Watson, Couples and Jacobsen each had par 3s at No. 17.

Australian Open

MELBOURNE, Australia — Greg Norman birdied four of the final seven holes and shot a 4-under-par 68 to win the $637,500 Australian Open golf championship for the fourth time.

Norman had a 72-hole total of 278 — 10-under-par — around the tricky par-72, 6,814-yard Kingston Heath layout to win by two strokes over fellow Australian Peter McWhinney, who carded a 70.

Frenchman Jean-Louis Guepy (70) and Australian Craig Parry (68) tied for third at 281.

Norman previously won the Australian Open in 1980, 1985 and 1987. This was his first win in his homeland in five years.

Gary Player of South Africa has won the Australian Open a record seven times and Jack Nicklaus has won six times.

Norman now has 28 victories on the Australasian Tour and 73 overall in his career.

"I just got better and better today," Norman said. "No matter how many times you have won, it is still a difficult thing to do. But I knew what I had to do. I stayed patient and hit the ball solid."

OILERS: Thomas scores

on Butts.

Rodney Thomas bolted 74 yards on the Oilers' second offensive play, and Chandler threw touchdown passes of 36 and 35 yards to Chris Sanders. Butts also ran 1 yard for a score, all in the first half.

Denver got a career-best 56-yard field goal by Jason Elam and Elway threw a 50-yard touchdown pass to Miller in the first quarter. Terrell Davis ran 60 yards for a second-quarter score.

Sanders beat Washington on both of his touchdown catches.

"You've got to give a lot of credit to him (Sanders)," Washington said. "I told him he's going to be a fine player. I hate being beat by a rookie, but it happens sometimes."

YOUR HOROSCOPE

By Jeane Dixon

MONDAY, NOVEMBER 27, 1995

HAPPY BIRTHDAY! IN THE NEXT YEAR OF YOUR LIFE: Be willing to forego immediate profits for what could be long-term gains. Dive into the passion that shapes your life. A love relationship grows stronger when you are open about your goals and desires. A business alliance could gradually change. Expect positive results! Greater productivity at work will increase your career options. Guard against having too many irons in the fire at one time. You need to focus on what you do best.

CELEBRITIES BORN ON THIS DAY: author Caroline Kennedy Schlossberg, actress Robin Givens, football player Don Strock, rock legend Jimi Hendrix.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): A relationship blossoms when you show greater understanding. Beware of temper tantrums. Gentle persuasion is the best way to reach a loved one. If unsure of your goals, meditate for clarity.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Plan a social event which will help sway a business contact to your way of thinking. Sugar-coating your words will work magic with certain people.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Steering clear of office politics will let you function more efficiently. Force yourself to compete tedious but lucrative work. An inability to compromise could prove costly.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Business dinners and social functions are linked to career progress. Discuss jointly owned funds with your mate before making new investments. An exciting project could yield extra income.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Not a good day to fight the system. New proposals prove lucky. An opponent may try to distract you from important issues. Refuse to be sidetracked.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): You must face facts; others are counting on your good judgment. Protect your reputation. Keep everything on the up-and-up. Loved ones are supportive. Get everything in writing even if dealing with friends.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): The emphasis today is on clear communication. Write concise memos. On-the-job relations are upbeat and enthusiastic thanks to the launching of a new project.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Refuse to pay for services until they have been performed satisfactorily. Be prepared to shop around for the best price and guarantee. Mutual goals can be set if others are in agreement.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Welcome an opportunity to make a fresh career start. Paperwork deserves prompt attention. Be diligent. Set deadlines for yourself and stick to them! Keep your plans for tonight flexible.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): You are able to bond with people quickly. Better alliances are possible. Although opposites sometimes attract, you and a new romantic partner have a lot in common. Happiness results when you celebrate shared interests!

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Someone who repeats tasteless gossip should be gently discouraged. Be honest but tactful in your comments. Buy something beautiful for your home. Romance deepens when romantic partner suddenly shows new appreciation for your talents.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Your determination to triumph over all odds reveals the true you. Be more gentle and reflective where your private life is concerned. Concentrate on projects that require real commitment. Define what you really want.

Q. 1 - Neither vulnerable, as South you hold:

♠Q 10 9 8 4 ♡10 ◇A K 9 2 ♣A K 5

The bidding has proceeded:

SOUTH	WEST	NORTH	EAST
1♠	Pass	2♡	Pass

What do you bid now?

A - It is simply a matter of whether your hand is good enough for a high reverse or whether you should be content with a quiet two spades. Your intermediates and the pair of ace-kings should sway you to three diamonds. If you even contemplated bidding some number of no trump, there's a lot you need to learn about bidding!

Q. 2 - Both vulnerable, as South you hold:

♠Q J 9 7 3 ♡7 4 2 ◇10 8 2 ♣Q 3

The bidding has proceeded:

WEST	NORTH	EAST	SOUTH
1♠	Dbl	2♠	Pass
Pass	Dbl	Pass	?

What action do you take?

A - Partner, who surely has a spade void, is still doubling for takeout. To force you to bid at the three-level, North should have a pretty good hand and you can expect to contribute two or three tricks to the defense. Convert to penalties by passing.

Q. 3 - Both vulnerable, as South you hold:

♠Q 8 3 ♡A Q 10 ◇K Q 9 3 ♣A J 10

The bidding has proceeded:

SOUTH	WEST	NORTH	EAST
1◇	Pass	1♡	1♠

What do you bid now?

A - Without East's intervention, a jump to two no trump would have been clear. Now you have to decide between the same action despite a tentative holding in the enemy suit, or a jump to three hearts with only three-card support and no ruffing value. Our vote goes to two no trump as the lesser evil.

Q. 4 - As South, vulnerable, you hold:

♠A 10 9 3 2 ♡A 10 9 ◇A 8 ♣A 7 2

The bidding has proceeded:

SOUTH	WEST	NORTH	EAST
1NT	Pass	2♣	Pass
2♠	Pass	3♠	Pass

What action do you take?

A - This is simply a question of valuation. The four aces and ruffing value make this hand worth more like 19 points than 16. To treat it as a minimum and pass is a gross dereliction of duty. Bid four spades, confidently.

Q. 5 - As South, vulnerable, you hold:

♠A K 6 ♡Void ◇A K J 7 4 ♣Q 9 8 4 3

The bidding has proceeded:

SOUTH	WEST	NORTH	EAST
1◇	Pass	1♠	Pass

What do you bid now?

A - Partner's spade response has improved your hand considerably. Had North bid one heart, you would have been worth only a two-club rebid. Now we feel you must do more, so we opt for three clubs — and will tread warily for the rest of the auction.

Q. 6 - Neither vulnerable, as South you hold:

♠A 8 7 6 2 ♡A 7 ◇A Q 8 ♣5 4 3

The bidding has proceeded:

SOUTH	WEST	NORTH	EAST
1♠	Pass	2♣	Pass

What do you bid now?

A - Obviously, the choice lies between two no trump or two spades. Hands with a wealth of aces usually play better in a suit contract, but try not to rebid weak five-card majors if there is an alternative. Here the spade suit is so shoddy that we would opt for two no trump.

Producer says Beatles are back to recording backward messages

LONDON — Kcab era seltaeB ehT. The Beatles are back — backward?

Nearly three decades after fans thought Paul was dead, a BBC producer said the three surviving Beatles are again recording secret messages backwards into a song.

Simon Clifford said he heard John Lennon say "Turned out nice again," backwards at the end of the Beatles reunion number "Free As A Bird."

Clifford first noticed the phrase while watching the video, which concludes with a man in 1940s dress mounting a stage and playing a ukulele. The song closes with a ukulele.

George Formby, a popular ukulele-playing music hall comedian from England's north — like the Beatles — used to end his act with the phrase, "Turned out nice again." Formby died in 1961.

"I regard it as being very spooky, almost like a subliminal message to fans," Clifford told listeners Friday.

The Beatles' use of tapes spooled backwards on songs like "Tomorrow Never Knows" (1966) and "Because" (1970) prompted rumors of secret messages.

Fans argued over whether what sounded like "I buried Paul" on "Strawberry Fields Forever" (1967) and "Turn me on dead man" on "Revolution No. 9" (1968) were clues that Paul McCartney had been killed and replaced by a lookalike.

Spokesmen for the group or for the recording label EMI could not be reached over the weekend for comment.

RADNOR, Pa. — "Peanuts" cartoonist Charles M. Schulz says he is "ashamed" of the artwork in "A Charlie Brown Christmas" and can't believe the TV special has been a hit for 30 years.

Charles M. Schultz is ashamed of artwork in Christmas special.

"The continued success of the special has surprised me as much as anyone," Schulz said in the Dec. 2 issue of TV Guide.

"A lot of the drawings are terrible, which (animation director) Bill Melendez and I are still ashamed of," he said.

Schulz, 73, speculated that the popularity of the score, by composer Vince Guaraldi, has helped. "You add that to Linus' recitation from Saint Luke and all the little things, and you had a show that worked."

If he could give his characters holiday gifts, Schulz said he would repaint Lucy's shabby psychiatric booth; give Linus "some books on self-help so he can get rid of his blanket" and give Snoopy his own hockey team.

Charlie Brown would get a new right fielder because "the one he has now is driving him crazy."

LOS ANGELES — Director Steve Oedekerk knows what he wants from the people who see his comedies.

"As long as people are laughing so hard that their tongues are shooting out of their noses and they are rolling on the floor with their Jujyfruits, I'm completely content," said Oedekerk, a veteran stand-up comedian who made his directorial debut with "Ace Ventura: When Nature Calls."

Oedekerk got his break when the film's original director, Tom DeCerchio, left shortly after filming began. Star Jim Carrey has said he and DeCerchio "didn't see eye to eye."

Although Oedekerk almost turned the job down because his wife, Tonie, was pregnant, she eventually joined him on the set and gave birth to a daughter, Zoe, in Charleston, S.C.

RADNOR, Pa. — Vanessa Williams, no stranger to racial and sexual controversy, is undaunted by her role in the TV remake of "Bye Bye Birdie" as half of an interracial couple.

The singer and actress said she took the part because it deals realistically with the family problems created by the couple's racial differences.

Williams was crowned the first black Miss America in September 1983 but renounced her title nine months later after Penthouse magazine printed nude pictures of her.

She stars in the musical, which was to air Sunday on ABC, with Jason Alexander, who plays George on "Seinfeld."

"When it comes to Jason and me kissing at the end, well, for the people who hate interracial couples, get those letters ready. We're waiting for them," she said in the Dec. 2 issue of TV Guide.

MHS grad Alcala scores seven in first game for Baylor

The Associated Press

HONOLULU — No. 18 Oregon State turned to its "Swedish Connection" of Tanja Kostic and Anette Mollerstrom on Sunday to rout Baylor 84-62 in the third-place game of the Rainbow Wahine Classic.

Former Midland High star Amy Alcala, a Lady Bear freshman, scored seven points in her first game for Baylor. Alcala hit two of seven field goals and three-of six free throws in the loss.

Kostic finished with 29 points on 11-of-20 shooting, while Mollerstrom had 26 points on 9-for-13 shooting.

The Beavers (2-1) raced to a 43-18 halftime lead as they were helped by a cold spell by the Bears, who made only five of 25 shots over the first 20 minutes. Meanwhile, Oregon State went 16-of-27 from the field with Kostic getting 12 points and Mollerstrom nine.

Baylor (1-2) led 11-10 eight minutes into the game, but Oregon State went on a 33-7 run to turn the game into a rout.

■ SWC Basketball

Texas Tech 101, Prarie View 54

LUBBOCK — Koy Smith scored 29 points, including six 3-pointers, and Jason Sasser had 18 to lead Texas Tech to a lopsided 101-54 victory over Prairie View A&M on Sunday.

SWC: 50 percent chance for UT's Brown

(From 1C)

game also features a quarterback subplot.

Will James Brown start for Texas? Will A&M's Corey Pullig come up big or falter?

Brown, the sophomore with a 12-1-1 career record and a gimpy left ankle, has been given a preliminary 50 percent chance of starting by coach John Mackovic.

If he can't go, the pressure will fall on redshirt freshman Richard Walton, who was 5-of-12 for 121 yards in a 21-13 victory over Baylor Thursday night.

Those were the kind of numbers Pullig had been putting up most of this season. They're not good enough for a senior expected to keep defenses from zeroing in on A&M's running backs, especially Leeland McElroy.

Pullig fired back Saturday by going 24-of-36 for 253 yards against Texas Christian. One game doesn't signify a comeback, but it was a personal best for completions and it made him the school's all-time passing yardage leader.

"This was the best possible scenario for us," Slocum said. "We had a good, solid performance. Our players feel good about themselves, and they're looking forward to a big game."

Texas is 8-1-1 overall and 5-0 in the SWC, more than enough for Mackovic to keep his job for a while. Had Texas not lost to No. 6 Notre Dame and tied Oklahoma, he'd probably already have a new contract.

The Aggies have rebounded from a midseason slump and are 8-2 overall, 4-1 in the league. They also have a four-game winning streak against Texas and a 31-game home winning streak, the longest in the country.

The last time Texas beat A&M was 1990, which also was the last time it won an SWC title outright, the last time the Longhorns were ranked this high and the last time Texas went undefeated in the SWC.

A&M missed a chance to go to a bowl last year because it was on probation. Not this year.

A win puts either the Aggies or Longhorns in the Sugar or Orange bowl, although they are more likely to be New Orleans-bound because the Orange Bowl probably wants to match Notre Dame and Miami.

The A&M-Texas loser likely will end up in the Dec. 28 Alamo Bowl at San Antonio. The probable opponent is No. 14 Michigan or No. 15 Penn State.

But don't expect to be seeing Baylor, TCU, SMU, Rice or Houston any more this season.

The only other SWC team likely to earn a bowl berth is Texas Tech, which beat Houston 38-26 Saturday.

"I'm really happy we're 8-3 and in the running for a bowl game," Tech linebacker Zach Thomas said.

The Red Raiders are hoping for a third straight bowl berth. It could be hard for any bowl committee to resist the lure of coach Spike Dykes' folksy charm. The fact Tech won seven of its last eight doesn't hurt either.

Next Week's Games

TEXAS (8-1-1, 5-0) vs. TEXAS A&M (8-2, 4-1), 2:30 p.m. — In tribute to the game being televised by ABC, just think of the late Howard Cosell saying, "It all comes down to this."

HOUSTON (1-8, 1-4) vs. RICE (2-7-1, 1-5), 4 p.m. — No truth to the rumor that taps will be played after final gun.

Rockets fall on 3-point shot

The Associated Press

■ NBA Roundup

AUBURN HILLS, Mich. — Terry Mills' 3-pointer with 0.3 seconds left gave the Detroit Pistons a 102-100 victory over the Houston Rockets on Sunday night.

The shot came after Hakeem Olajuwon scored on a baseline jumper with 3.5 seconds left to put Houston ahead. Mills took the inbounds pass from Grant Hill, turned and swished a 25-footer from well beyond the top of the key.

The loss was Houston's second in a row after a seven-game winning streak.

Allan Houston led all scorers with 35 points, while Mills had 19, including 13 in the fourth, and Lindsay Hunter added 16 points and a career-high 10 rebounds.

Clyde Drexler led the Rockets with 22 points and Olajuwon added 19.

Timberwolves 105, Bucks 102

MILWAUKEE — Christian Laettner returned to Minnesota's lineup and scored 25 points, including the go-ahead shot late in the fourth quarter, as the Timberwolves broke their seven-game losing streak by beating Milwaukee.

Hornets 111, Celtics 109

BOSTON — The Charlotte Hornets overcame a 22-point first-half deficit and got their first road victory of the season.

Boston took a 109-107 lead on Dee Brown's 3-pointer from the corner with 43.3 seconds remaining, and Khalid Reeves hit two free throws with 29.6 seconds left to tie it.

SuperSonics 97, Bulls 92

SEATTLE — Gary Payton scored six of his season-high 26 points in the last four minutes as Seattle ended Chicago' s five-game winning streak.

Kings 99, Nets 92

SACRAMENTO, Calif. — Rookie point guard Tyus Edney scored all 10 of his points in the fourth quarter and helped Sacramento overtake New Jersey.

Edney figured prominently in a 7-0 run that gave the Kings the lead.

Milwaukee trades Day to Celtics

MILWAUKEE (AP) — The Milwaukee Bucks, looking to jump start their offense, traded guard Todd Day and center Alton Lister to the Boston Celtics on Sunday for point guard Sherman Douglas. And Bucks guard Eric Murdock said the dealing isn't done yet.

"The team hasn't been playing that well and we were looking to make a change," Bucks coach Mike Dunleavy said.

Douglas is "a veteran point guard who ... can provide us with strong leadership. He has the ability to run a team."

Murdock said he believes he will be sent to another NBA team.

Douglas was caught in a backcourt logjam. Since last season, the Celtics acquired free agent Dana Barros to go along with guards David Wesley, Greg Minor and Dee Brown.

SMALL: Westlake barely gets by Marshall final regular season Associated Press poll, the Vikings will probably be the favorite in the game. A lot of rating weight will probably come from the showing of Cooper and Lee in the second round, where both 4-5A teams had more trouble winning than expected. Cooper defeated El Paso Irvin, 19-16, in El Paso's Sun Bowl while Lee escaped a charge by El Paso Socorro, 28-26, at home.

(From 1C)

But Lamar didn't exactly waltz into the third round, either. The Vikings escaped Lewisville, 20-18, in the area round. Marcus didn't even yawn in the second round, thumping Fort Worth O.D. Wyatt, 35-7.

Lee will be meeting Lamar for the third time in seven years. Lamar defeated Lee 17-3 in 1989's region round and the two teams tied, 29-29, last year, again in the third round. Lamar owns a 1-0-1 record against Lee in the playoffs, but the tie is actually a Lee victory since the Rebels earned advancement in the game on penetrations, 5-4. This is the first time, however, the two teams have played in the Dallas area.

Meanwhile, District 4-5A's third playoff team, Odessa Permian, will carry the favorite's role Saturday when Mojo meets Arlington High at Maverick Stadium at 2 p.m. at the University of Texas-Arlington. Permian is 11-1, losing only to Lee this year, while Arlington is 8-4. However, Arlington dealt 4-5A playoff misery last year, eliminating both Cooper and Lee from the playoff run on consecutive weekends. Now, the Colts are in the Big School bracket. Lamar, Lee's opponent Saturday, defeated Arlington, 60-10, during regular season play. It makes one want to lie about your school enrollment, just to get into the Big School bracket.

Playoff Notes: Midland Lee's Antwan Alexander, a stalwart at defensive back this season, is listed as doubtful for the Lamar game. He has a badly injured ankle. Alexander has been banged up with various nagging injuries the past month... Tickets for the Lee-Lamar game will go on sale from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. Wednesday and Thursday at the Memorial Stadium ticket office, and from 8 a.m. to noon on Friday. Tickets may be purchased at Texas Stadium for an increased price. Ticket prices had not been set as of Sunday... Richardson Lake Highlands has now emerged as the Region II favorite since both Dallas Carter and No. 1 ranked Tyler John Tyler suffered upsets over the weekend... No. 2 ranked Austin Westlake is still alive but survived a 15-15 tie with San Antonio Marshall on penetrations. Lee defeated Marshall 63-7 in the second week of the season. So much for Lee's supposedly weak schedule this year...

NEWSPAPER/PRINT TELEMARKETING SALES

We are looking for people who want to make above average earnings working with an outstanding sales team calling on Midland/Odessa businesses for the Midland Reporter-Telegram.

If you have a strong desire to succeed, good customer relation skills and want a new challenge that is exciting and financially rewarding, call Paige Moon at 687-8886

or send resume to:
Paige Moon
Midland Reporter-Telegram
P.O. Box 1650
Midland, Texas 79702

IF YOU ARE READING THIS AD, YOU ARE UNHAPPY, YOU ARE EITHER OUT OF WORK, OR YOU JUST HAVE A "JOB"

Do you want a career? Do you want to earn $30,000 + per year?
Do you want a benefit package second to none?

I am going to hire 5 people this week to service families in the Midland-Odessa area with funeral & cemetery pre-arrangements. The people I am looking for must be honest, sincere, self-motivated, and be willing to treat every person they talk to the same way they would want to be treated. I work strictly above the board, and I expect the same from the people that work with me. If you have these qualifications, I would very much enjoy talking to you, and explain the benefits our company has to offer you.

Interviewing at 10:00 to 11:30 and 2:00 to 4:00
Friday November 24th, Saturday November 25th
