Prophet Sees Great Growth For Wichita

This City is the Cat's Meow, Says Felix, and He Proceeds to Give His Reasons for Being and for Talking; Is a Close Observer.

THIS IS FELIX.

"IN the first place, esteemed sir, I wish to assert that Wichita Falls is the cat's meow. I say this without qualification, and with full appreciation of the fine shade of meaning of this much-abused term, because I am a cat myself."

Thus did Felix Meow, Esquire, Wichita Falls' most famous cat, unburden himself in an exclusive interview Sunday morning with a Record News reporter.

Talks About Progress.

"THE marvelous growth that is in store for this city will reveal the astonishing fact that Wichita Falls has never really begun to grow," said the Honorable Felix, as he curled his whiskers and settled down on his haunches while he pounded a desk with his forepaw to press his point. (Felix, is quite active, you will agree.)

Why, would you believe that this town is getting so progressive that it is becoming unsafe for a self-respecting cat to go through a back yard. Say, mister, these folks are so hot on the trail of safe blowers and burglars that they are just itching for something to shoot at," he opined, as he purred forth his message of Wichita's advances.

Close Observer.

FELIX is one of the city's closest observers. He holds a back stage position at one of the theaters here and in addition, he sees thousands of good citizens of Texas and Oklahoma each Sunday morning who pay him a visit on the Record News comic page.

"The most serious problem confronting Wichita Falls is the shortage of good mice," he lamented. "I deplore the trend of modern society which has made food scarce in the average American kitchen.

3 Things About Mice.

"THERE are three things about mice nowadays: They are skinny, hence undesirable; they have poison in their stomachs; or they suffer from halitosis. And the insidious thing about the latter is that their best friends will not tell them.

"But all this has nothing to do with Wichita's growth. Why it would not surprise me to see a street car running out to the suburban districts of the city some day bearing such signs as "Fort Worth," "Gainesville," "Lubbock," or "Frederick."

"It's only a matter of time," he smiled, waging his tail with an air of certainty. "But you must excuse me now. I have an appointment with the butcher. I am trying to increase the apportionment. What this town needs is more liberal butchers and better liver and sleeker mice."

Missouri Woman Is Beneficiary in Mysterious Bequest

IDENTITY IS SECRET

Lawyer Hints Benefactor Loved Her For 25 Years

ST. LOUIS, Nov. 1.—(AP)—Mrs. Mary Cheatham Kleiner of Bismark, Mo., is the "Marie Cheatham" to whom an unnamed client of J. R. Davis, attorney, desires to bequeath $100,000, Davis announced here tonight. He said identification was virtually established.

"Marie Cheatham" was a golden haired image the mysterious client carried in his heart for 25 years in the northwest lumber camps. "After DeSota, Mo., I lived in DeSota until 1910," the woman wrote, explaining she married a Missouri-Pacific train dispatcher and is the mother of two children. Davis said he would interview her in a few days.

The anonymous client chose to leave his fortune to a former friend rather than to a few distant relatives, with whom he had quarreled, Davis added. Since the quest for "Marie" began last Tuesday, Davis' office has been deluged with offers from fortune hunters. A Hannibal, Mo., widow suggested matrimony.

Cold Weather Due To Follow Balmy Sunday, Is Belief

A minimum temperature of 35 degrees gave Wichita Falls a fairly crisp and chilly autumn day Sunday—one which saw a fall temperature that was tempered by a brilliant sun that beamed down from a cloudless sky from morning until night.

The weather man was in an amiable mood and as a result the day was in ideal one for driving. Thousands took advantage of the occasion to get out on country roads again and all of the principal highways were crowded.

Advance predictions for the fore part of this week indicate possibly a return of cold weather with partly cloudy conditions prevailing.

Scene of Mitchell Trial, and Opposing Counsel

REAL BATTLE BY MITCHELL STARTS TODAY

Prosecution to Make Statement at Today's Sessions

MAY DRAG IN CAL

Consider Subpoenae for President As a Witness

WASHINGTON, Nov. 1.—(AP)—Opposing counsel tonight had taken full advantage of the week-end recess to work out their prosecution and defense plans and were ready for resumption tomorrow of their legal struggle before the court of general court martial in the case of Colonel William Mitchell, critic of the war and navy departments.

The prosecution officers, headed by Colonel Sherman Moreland, had concluded preliminaary examinations of several witnesses summoned by them to appear by Colonel Mitchell to support the charges of conduct prejudicial good order and military discipline. These included three Texas newspapermen who disseminated the statements the defendant made public in San Antonio, charging the two executive departments with incompetency, criminal negligence and aviation affairs, which gave rise to the court martial proceedings.

Prosecution Busy.

Colonel Moreland also had as a result of the court's recess from Friday afternoon until tomorrow morning, to work out much of the statement he will make before the court, probably at tomorrow's sessions, which will forecast briefly the points on which he will seek conviction of the accused officer.

So far as the defense's preparations were concerned, Representative Frank Reid of Illinois, civilian counsel for Colonel Mitchell, said he was "thoroughly prepared." He, too, had made preliminary examinations of the newspaper writers from Texas, who were turned over to him by the prosecution for that purpose. As regards the future court strategems that Colonel Mitchell and his counsel will employ, Mr. Reid had little to say.

Seek to Prove Truth.

"This case has been so abnormal-irregular and extraordinary," he said, "that I cannot anticipate future developments. We are thoroughly prepared, however, to meet the issues as they are presented and to prove the truth of the statements issued by Colonel Mitchell."

The defense attorney still was undecided whether he will yield to advisers who have urged him to seek a subpoenae for President Coolidge, or ask deposition by him, which would disclose the name of the official who ordered the arrest of Colonel Mitchell. Mr. Reid is aware that such a plea would be certain to be rejected by Colonel Moreland or the court in whose powers such affairs as the calling of witnesses are placed under the courts martial manual regulations.

CROOKS HAVE DAY OF REST

Sunday, in the matter of criminal activity, passed in pleasing contrast to Sunday of a week ago when police police department records failed to reveal any robberies of hold-ups in the city. Officers said last night that if any safes had been blown or cash boxes rifled no reports had been made to them.

LYRICS OF LIFE.

By Douglas Malloch.

Just a Little Sing-Song.

Oh, have you ever heard it, the song the children sing,
The song that hasn't any words, that doesn't mean a thing!
It's just a little sing-song, they sing it when they're glad,
And yet I know a sweeter song the world has never had.
They sing it on the sidewalk, they sing it in the hall,
A little song that doesn't mean a single thing at all!

The sing-song of the children, a song without a tune,
As merry in the month of March as in the days of June,
A song without a reason, a song without a rime,
Yet just as happy in the snow as in the summertime.
The wintry days are chilly, the winds of March are wild,
But nothing very long can still the sing-song of a child,

The children have their sorrows, they have their troubles, too,
They have their hours of grief and pain the same as I and you,
But even when they're crying I know it won't be long,
I know I soon shall hear again a funny little song,
For, when they have their troubles, they find some other way,
And, when they lose some little game, some other game to play.

God bless them for their sing-song! The world has lots of art,
But what it needs is little songs that blossom in the heart.
I hear the children humming, I wish we all could hum
Some little song, some sort of song whatever troubles come.
For life is full of blessings, and folks could all be glad
If we would just forget about the little humps we had.

Man Who Made Sahara of the U. S., Andy Volstead Himself, Now Busies Himself Enforcing the Law He Wrote

He Gets Threats by the Bushel, But He Pays Them No Heed; Tells Agents Americans Have Killed Saloons

ST. PAUL, Minn., Nov. 1.—A bland, pewhiskered little man sits in the legal department of the northwest prohibition enforcement offices here doing mighty little talking, but a great deal of intensive labor. He is at his desk early and late, and a steady stream of men come to that desk to get an order given in a curt sentence or two.

Not much of a talker, this man Andrew J. Volstead. Besides, he is in a difficult position. He is the author of the act which has legally made the United States arid, and now he is importantly identified with the enforcement of his own law.

Of Different Timber

Many congressmen have had a hand in the passage of legislation but have called it a day when the act became a law, thankful that they did not have to take a part in its enforcement.

But Mr. Volstead is of different timber. He is quietly enjoying every minute of his new job. As legal chief of the northwest division. He is interpreting his own law—and finding new wrinkles in it every day, much to the discomfort of bootleggers, both in the Twin Cities and along the leaky Canadian border.

Threats by the Bushel

But when it comes to discussing the enforcement of the law and its future, Mr. Volstead is cannilly reticent. Under those whiskers is a sensitive skin and besides, in his barn up at Granite Falls, Minn., are three bushel baskets filled with letters threatening his life, his family and generally condemning him to all manner of misfortune.

In his talks to agents, Mr. Volstead has laid down this viewpoint: "Make up your minds to this: The American people are never going back to the saloon. This law is just as easy to enforce as any other law, and it is going to be enforced or the people are going to know the reason why."

Wife's Palpitating Heart May Be Due to Fear That Her Husband Does Not Love Her, Says Doctor

50 Per Cent of So-Called Ill Persons Only Are Suffering From Their Own Delusions, Dallas Physician Declares

DALLAS, Texas, Nov. 1.—(AP)—Fear as a disease is to be given special attention at the Southern Medical association convention here November 9-12, Deep within the hidden recesses of personality, doctors are discovering fears and terrors that cause disease, said Dr. George L. Carlisle of Dallas, publicity chairman for the convention. Many late discoveries in this branch will be considered at the meeting.

A sour stomach may be caused by worry, a wife's palpitating heart may be caused by fear that her husband does not love her, he explained. These are well known manifestations, but there is a range of other cases not so well known. Dr. Carlisle estimates that 50 per cent of the persons who consult physicians are suffering from fear or a constant state of anxiety and not from any real physical ill.

"The modern physician must be something of a father confessor. He must bring the fears to the surface and then allay them, sometimes with soothing syrup," he said.

GEO. SIMMONS GIVEN HONOR AT KAY CLASS

Oldest Man of Sunday School Class Is Honored

George Simmons, oldest member of the Kay Bible class, received a white chrysanthemum from the class yesterday as a token of esteem for its 83-year-old member—82 years yesterday but 83 today. Mr. Simmons, usually rather reluctant to assume a position in the public eye was asked to carry the reporter's table to the front of the theatre yesterday morning. He willingly obliged, and when he reached the front of the audience he was manhandled by Oral Jones, who pinned a chrysanthemum on him as he announced to the class that Monday was Mr. Simmons' birthday.

Mr. Jones told of meeting J. Howard Ardery, vice president of the National Bank of Commerce in the east this summer. Ardery, Mr. Jones explained, is also a "pillar" in the Baptist church of which John D. Rockefeller is a member. Simmons holds just the relation to the Kay Bible class that Ardery holds to that church, Mr. Jones added.

Judge Kay's lecture, deliverey to 284 men, follows:

"I am much delighted to see Brother Simmons onored this morning. I think I wouldn't teach this class, or at least try to teach it, if a fine lot of elderly men didn't come here. You know, we young fellows haven't much sense at the best. It is a fine thing to grow old gracefully, and to keep young. The Greeks thought that while the human body grows older, that the human soul worked the other way, and grows younger. It is a beautiful thought. That soul, infinitely more precious than the body, going to last a million times as long as the body, and forever growing younger, and finer and better.

Be a Big Man

"Now, the lesson this morning is one of those lessons of St. Paul which are so numerous, in which he is trying to have ou be a big man. There was one thing that seemed to worry that great apostle more than anything else, and that was his great fear that you would be a little, narrow, one-sided man. He says: 'Put on the whole armor of God,' making a comparison with the soldier and military matters, as he liked to do. You know, Paul was a strong life man, with some fire, and vinegar, and pep in his veins. He liked to talk about a horse race, and a foot race, and any kind of a fight. He did. But, here he is talking to you about the kind of armor that you ought to put on, and he says to put it all on.

"Now, here is the church fellow that has just got one idea; just got one piece of armor. I knew a preacher to preach a week about baptism. He was like one of these South Sea Islanders, just wearing a 'G' string around his waist, and nothing else. That's the trouble with the modernist and the fundamentalist; that he is looking only at one side of the picture; prepared to meet the storms of life with one little piece of armor, and one defense. And, here is another fellow that says: 'I am deeply religious. I just take the communion in a certain way.' Standing up, sitting down, kneeling, or what not. That fellow hasn't got on enough armor to dust a fiddle.

"One-Crop Man"

"The trouble is, in war and in fighting, that an arrow may come from any direction whatever, and a blow from any source. A farmer goes out here, plants nothing but cotton and keeps on at it. He has never failed to fall yet, and you know it, and I know it. What would you think of a lawyer who didn't believe in anything but the statutes of the state? There is an old story among the lawyers, that they were examining an applicant for license to practice, and they said: 'What have you studied?' And he said, "the statutes." And they said, 'What if the legislature would meet and repeal all that you know?' That is the kind of a fellow that St Paul was talking about when he said: 'Put on all of the armor.' Put it on for what? For a fight. You know there are a lot of fellow never intend to have any kind of battle in life. There are a lot of fellows that just want a place to bunk, and board and washing and hope to slip through without any further effort, or without any fight. You don't want to be that kind of a man. Let not some body else do the fighting, somebody else do the thinking, someone else do the planning, someone else furnish and wear the armor, while you slip through silently, and uselessly to the end.

Honest Effort

"You know, I never felt so badly about a man that failed in effort to do something, if he failed in business, or failed at school, or failed at any enterprise or undertaking. All I want to know is, did he make an honest, sincere effort? And, if he did, he didn't fail wholly.

"'Put on the whole armor.' That means something more than being good to the folks at home. And, I think I believe in that as much as anybody. That means something more than buying a fine limousie for your wife and children. You know, these socialists maybe are about half right anyhow, and some day they may eat us all up. You have got no right to strut and put on airs before your fellowmen, if there is suffering in the sound of your own church bell. You have got no right to strut, as long as there is one widow in Wichita Falls that needs a sack of flour. And, when you get the fine limousine, and go sailing down the street, about all the armor that you have got on, is a 'G' string, if you neglect your fellowman.

"There is an old fellow over there in the Bible that just naturally got his hired hands, and his negroes, and fixed to tear down his barn, said it wasn't big enough to take care of what he had. Now, he died that night, and the Bible doesn't say anything about his body. The trouble with you and I, we have been interested too much in the body. It is a mighty funny thing to me, and a queer thing, that the Bible never said anything about his body. But, there came to him a voice that no man can dispute, and none can deny, and said 'This night, thou fool, this night thy soul shall be required of thee.' And, a barn full of hay is a mighty poor armor, when the angel strikes once for the soul. He had lots of hay, lots of cows, lots of lumber to build more barns. He was what you fellows would call 'mighty well fixed,' but, was he? What good is all that junk going to be to him, when they said: 'This night shall thy soul be required of thee.' And, when that voice comes to you and to me, as it must come, you are not going to say to your hired man, 'Please run down and see what the bank balance is.' You are not going to say: 'Run out here to the barn and see how the cows are getting along,' after you hear that awful voice. But, you are going to say: 'In what sort of armor am I going to meet those that come with hastening feet to take me away from here?'

Big Things of Life.

"All I want us to do here is to get an idea of all that constitutes the big things of life. I want the men of this class to so live that they think more about 'he soul than they do about the body, and that they have armor for the soul. It is easy to get armor for the body. What is the armor of the soul? Nothing but those simple, far brought things of life like clean living, and clean thinking, and upright conduct, and the love of your fellowmen, and devotion to Christ. That is the armor. Such is the armor of the soul. See that you wear it. Not some little piece or part, but that you put it all on.'

Hallowe'en Safe And Sane for Wichitans

Wichita Falls got busy on a cleaning-up process Sunday and after more or less work succeeded in removing most of the traces of Saturday night's Hallowe'en revelry.

There wasn't a great deal of damage to be repaired, it was found, for the celebration was to all accounts one of the most sane and sensible, albeit the most noisy and colorful the city has ever seen. There was plenty of soap to be removed from windows; garden products to be swept off front porches and standard Hallowe'en confetti and other litter to be cleaned away. Otherwise, though, nothing much was found amiss.

Police department records showed that fewer complaints were made Saturday night because of vandalism than on any Hallowe'en in years past. Less than half-a-dozen arrests were made because of unlicensed pranks.

American Women Take All Principal Parts in "Giaconda," Opera Which Opens the Season in N. Y. Tonight

Signor Gatti Strikes Back at Critics Who Charge Preference for Europeans; Society Out In Its Finest Raiment

NEW YORK, Nov. 1.—The dim interior of the Metropolitan Opera house with its shrouded golden horseshoe, its half-set stage and its dingy offices, pulsed with an extra thrill of excitement today as preparations were rushed for the openin next Monday night of the 1925-26 opera season. The reason for the excitement, one gathered from a group of swarthy singers congested in the wings off stage, was that Signor Gatti had taken his thumbs out of the armholes of his vest.

And things are certainly set to happen on Monday nigh to Signor Gatti's critics who have had a termitity to charge rcently that an American singer never gets a chance at the Metropolitan—that this, the greatest of American operatic institutions, seeks its favorites among the opera singers of Europe—and more specifically among those of Signor Gatti's native Italy.

All Women Americans.

Signor Gattis is going to strike back at his critics with an opening night performance in which every woman principal is an American born and bred.

"Giaconda" will be the offering. Rosa Ponselle, who was born up in Meriden, Conn., will sing the title role; Jeanne Gordon of New York will sing the role of Laura Adorno, and Merele Alcock, who hails from Missouri, that of Laceica, Carr—critics, kindly as the saying is, laugh that off.

For Tuesday.

There would have been some Americans in the masculine side of the cast, except for the unfortunate fact that the male roles are best sung by such foreign born stars as Gilgi, Daniz and Mardones.

But Signor Gatti is coming back at his critics on Tuesday night with Edward Johnson, a full blooded American, as Musetta, in a popular election night presentation of "La Boheme." And it will be pretty much the same thing all the first week—Gustafson and Wells on Wednesday night as the American members of the cast of "Aida;" Chamlee and Bonetti on Thursday night as "Tosca;" Howard, Hunter, Johnson and Mitchell on Friday night in "Pelleas et Melissande," Guilford, Gustafson and Alcock Saturday night in "Fedora."

The recent statement of Otto Kahn, chairman of the opera's board of directors in which he asserted the Metropolitan gave the preference to an American every time, seems to be pretty thoroughly borne out by the roster of this season's company.

Of the 32 sopranos, exactly one-half are American born. Of the 16 mazzo sopranos and contraltos, 10 out of 16 are Americans. The men don't do so well. There are only five American tenors among the 19 listed, three among the 14 baratones and one among the 12 bassos.

Society in Its Splendor.

As for Monday night's opening, besides being the retort direct to Signor Gatti's critics, it promises to be the usual brilliant social event. Everybody who is anybody will be there in the finest rainment New York and Paris can produce—and with most of the rich jewel collections as yet unstolen by international crooks, exposed for envy on the necks, fingers and heads of their owners.

THE ELECTIONS.

The off-year elections of next Tuesday are about as thin and ephemeral in national interest as the ghosts and hobgoblins of hallowe'en. Two governors are to be elected and there are two stray congressional contest going on somewhere. It is believed here that one of these contests is in Kentucky, and the other in New Jersey. This may be a mistake but in any event, Washington won't set up late waiting for the returns. No request for special election wires into the White House have been made by President Coolidge.

Governors are to be elected in Virginia and New Jersey. In Virginia there is a lurking suspicion that the democrats will win the heat. In New Jersey both sides as claiming victory, but impartial observers are of the opinion that the democrats, clinging to "wet" side will win. New Jersey hasn't had a republican governor for some time.

Legislative elections will be held in New York, New Jersey, Virginia, Kentucky and Mississippi.

Chief interest in Tuesday elections really centers in three municipal contests and in the five which Governor Al Smith of New York, is making for the adoption of four amendments to the empire state constitution. Something always seems to be bobbing up to have an effect upon the political future of Al Smith. Just recently he was at death grips with Mayor Hylan of New York City and it was said that if Hylan won Al Smith would have to go. Of course Hylan didn't win. Now it is stated that Governor Smith is standing his future on the four constitutional amendments, he has sponsored and for which he recently has made a state-wide tour. If the amendments are repudiated it is said the governor will have received a political body blow from which he may not recover. In New York they are betting 2 1-2 to 1 that the governor does not lose. Meantime the governor is busy declaring himself out of politics for all time, just as soon as he can finish his term of office a year from December. To be on the verge of retiring, Al Smith is about the busiest person in 17 states.

The municipal elections of interest are to be held in New York, Boston and Detroit. The republicans are making a brave fight in the metropolis, with Frank D. Waterman, the pen manufacturer, as their standard bearer, but at last reports Tammany's only concern was as to the size of the majority which will be recorded next Tuesday evening. When, unless all signs fail, there will be a real old time Tammany jubilee along the great white way. State Senator James J. Walker, with Al Smith's hand on his shoulder, the democratic nominee and will be the next mayor of New York.

AMERICANS AT OXFORD.

The United States can point with pride to the honor list issued as a result of the final Oxford examinations last summer. The list shows that the Americans in the Eighth university maintained a standard of scholarship far above that of the aver-English student and only a little below that of the holders of the college scholarships.

For a number of years Americans have been at the head of the Oxford law classes, and this year they also have taken high rank in the medical courses. It is a tribute to the ability of the Rhodes scholars that a number of them who knew no Latin on their arrival have mastered Roman law courses and obtained honors.

The Oxford examinations disclose also that intellectual ability in confined to no one district or one university in the United States. The highest honors go as often to the West and South as to New England and to men from small and unknown colleges as often as to men from the great easter universities. Of the outstanding law students of the past few years, one came from Missouri, one from Idaho, one from Michigan and one from New York.

HORNSBY AND COBB.

One crowded hour of glorious life may transform a man into a national figure, but records are also attained as a result of years of effort which entitle the holder to great honor. Consider the careers of two men who play baseball but did not play in the World Series. Ty Cobb and particularly Rogers Hornsby.

Both are capable of great performance in emergencies but they are respected for their consistent, seven-day-a-week, year-after-year, ability at the game. No batsman in the annals of the diamond has maintained the pace Hornsby has set for the past six seasons, 1925 averages show—a batting average of .397 as the result of 1,298 hits made in 1920. Ty Cobb in his last six seasons turned in a the 3266 times he has stepped to the plate since batting average of .361, slipping slightly below the lifetime record.

Baseball history contains to record of a batsman in six cons ecutive seasons producing a mark equal to the one set by Hornsby. Cobb in his best six consecutive seasons, from 1909 to 1914, had a batting average of .394. Billy Keeler is third base. Burkett, Sisler, Lajoie, Brouthers, and Stovey follow in order.

Great hitters such as Harry Heilman, Joe watson, Sam Crawford, Honus Wagner. Tip O'Neil. Sam Thompson, Pop Anson and the spectacular Babe Ruth have failed to approach their records.

IMMIGRATION INJUSTICE

An immigration official has a mighty mean job. Out of the clear sky comes situations which make the public regard him as a mixture of pig-headed obstinacy and supermoronic foolishness. For example. Patience Goodheart, 12 years old, was sent from England to America without a passport, and so it would have been Ellis Island for her if hasty telegrams and cablegrams had not disclosed that the passport was en route by another ship. But if little Patience had been sent back to England, whose would have been the fault? Why, the law—a cast-iron congressional statute that can not distinguish between a bomb-thrower and a schoolgirl. —Baltimore Sun.

Uncommon Sense

B JOHN BLAKE.

The Doped Conscience.

Of a man who was once honorable in all his dealings, but who had become a little tricky, an acquaintance said:

"He's been doping his conscience lately. It's got to be a habit."

It is very easy to administer a sedative to a troublesome conscience.

To give it a second dose is still easier.

And presently the conscience is put to sleep very easily, and stays asleep whenever it is inconvenient for its owner to have it nagging him about what he ought to do.

The young man who is tempted to play the races or invest in wildcat stocks can without much difficulty persuade himself that a man on small wages has no other way to earn a competence than to find some way to get rich in a hurry.

That is the first dose he gives his conscience.

By and by he persuades himself that inasmuch as he is sure to win it will do no harm to borrow a little money from his employer's till, with the honest intention of paying it back when the winning is made.

If the winning isn't made, it can not be put back. The result is exposure and disgrace.

A great many men in prison can tell you about that.

They have found out that the conscience, like most other human qualities, is implanted in a man for a definite purpose, and that it is very risky to give it opiates.

One of the forms of dope that leads hundreds of boys to dishonesty is the belief that if they do not do some particular bit of trickery somebody else will, and profit by it.

I have heard that expression used by dozens of young men in justification of something they had done that they knew was wrong.

They find out a little too late that they might better have let the other fellows do it—and get into the trouble that always follows it.

Unfortunately some crooked people do manage to get along without discovery, and this leads plenty of others who know about them to follow their example, doping their conscience into quietude when they object, as conscience always do.

But for every one rascal who is undetected a hundred are detected. And after their detection they are sorry—too late.

The knowledge of right and wrong is in almost every man, no matter what his upbringing. It is the Creator's method of keeping the race as a whole honest and fair dealing.

In young people consciences are always active.

Any child suffers torture when he has been naughty, and is not easy in his mind till he has confessed to his mother, and been forgiven, or punished, according to the nature of the offence and the disposition of the mother.

A conscience that is allowed to have its way, and is given a respectful hearing will keep active and alert, and will prove the best friend a young man or woman can have.

But once get in the habit of doping it, of putting it to sleep whenever it tries to remonstrate, and it will soon be useless. And without a conscience, trouble and sorrow have no difficulty in taking possession.

OF WORLD USE

Dr. A. C. Fieldner, chief chomist of the United States bureau of mines, believes that this country is lagging behind in the search for practical gasoline substitutes. France and Germany, he points out, are conducting motor fuel laboratories in the hope of making their motorists independent of petroleum supplies. A good deal of work along this line has been going on in America in spite of what is said to indicate that we are not alive to the existence of the problem. But we have not the incentives that are spurring on France and Germany. We have petroleum resources within our own borders and the day of their exhaustion, though bound to come, is still some distance away. Necessity is not laboring with our chemists. It is unlikely that any country which develops a cheap substitute for gasoline can keep the matter secret for even a little while. The fuel and the process of making it is certain to become the property of the whole world once the substitute is placed upon the market. It seems, therefore, a small matter for this country to worry about just now. The important point about the problem is that certain skilled men are working upon it. Where it is done cuts no figures.—Toledo Blade.

COLLINS ON SNIFFING

In language refreshingly modern, Chief Collins comes round to the way of perceiving that the duties of a municipal police department require first the protection of persons and property and, only after this has been assured, the regulation of conduct which affects individual rather than public welfare, and which many think should be left to the realm of personal determination. "It is applesauce," says the chief, when questioned concerning possible police assistance in the proposed prohibition department raids on hip liquor and liquored breaths. "The police department has no time to go about looking for liquor on the hip or to stop citizens to see if their breaths are alcoholic. We are too busily engaged," says the chief, and [illegible] his department are, or should be, engaged in preventing murders, and hold-ups, and burglaries. In addition, perhaps the chief is thinking of the automobile death clock, whose pointing hand ticked up to and beyond 600 as he talked.—Chicago Tribune.

A SPINNING SONG

A spinning song far removed in tone from the melodious, touching composition in "Faust," but which is music sweeter to the ears of everyone at all concerned with the cotton industry is described by the Wall Street Journal (New York). During September 37,865,000 spindles were active in American mills, establishing a record of 7,102,000,000 hours' work, as against 6,415,000,000 hours for September last year. This revival of the long-quiescent textile trade is reflected in the domestic merchants' brisk buying and an increased export demand for cotton goods and yarn.

Both at home and abroad better days are ahead for cotton—which means American prosperity and European economic recovery. Even 15,226,000 bales of American cotton, with the small carry-over, will be none too much. There is no occasion to be pessimistic over a temporary price-slump.

GOOD SUGGESTIONS

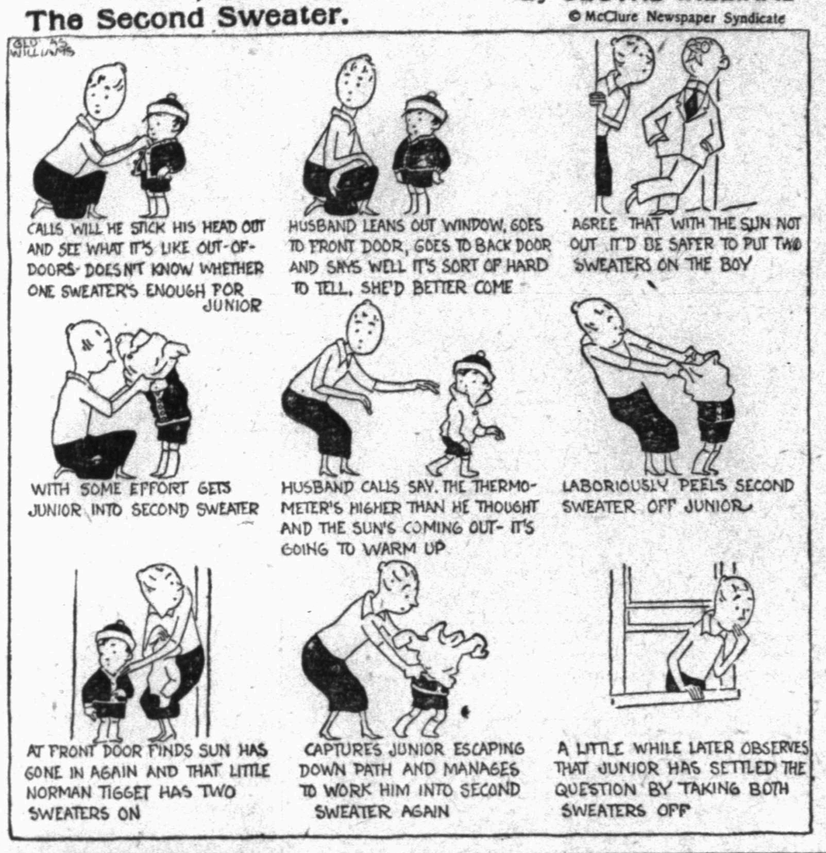

Rep. Madden holds that the nation has no present adequate air policy. He gave the board and the department some advice. He intimated that they might get their money's worth if they should follow it. He called attention to the fact that the appropriation is now $86,000,000 for both services. He proposed the building of 1,500 new airplanes of various designs annually at a cost of $20,000 each, amounting in the aggregate to $30,000,000; adequate ground service to be provided at a cost of $22,500,000; 1,500 officers, at a cost of $7,500,000 with $22,500,000 cost of maintenance of planes and $5,000,000 for maintenance of flying fields necessary as bases of operations. These are practical suggestions that may assist in the working out of the problem.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

WHAT TODAY MEANS TO YOU

Today's planetary aspects are, on the whole, favorable, although there is an absence of any vibrations of a stimulating character. It would be impolitic to initiate any task of far reaching ramifications, but it is an auspicious occasion for changes or improvements that will lead to greater efficiency, either in the home or business. It is also a good opportunity for renewed interest in the ordinary affairs of life, as the signs denote that, with proper deliberation and thought, many small difficulties can be overcome and differences adjusted. Judged generally, it is a day that had better be spent in reflective adjustment than in active endeavor.

Children born today will, if boys, enjoy during their early years, exceptionally good health, and the indications are that they will attain a healthy and vigorous manhood. Girls, however, will not be so fortunate; but, although they are fated to suffer from some serious ailments in their childhood, there will be nothing except lack of care, to prevent them reaching physical normalcy in their teens. In character and disposition, both girls and boys will be very similar. They promise to be quick-tempered, yet, withal, generous; ready-witted and courageous, both mentally and physically; affectionate and sincere, but rather averse to demonstration, studious and industrious, but not to the extent of becoming self-centered or of holding themselves aloof from their companions.

If today is your birthday, you are very complacent and easy-going, and will put up with a great deal before you turn. You will always make sacrifices for the sake of peace, and contentment, but when your limit is reached, you show, not only ability, but strength of character in asserting what you conceive to be your rights.

People often mistake your usually apathetic attitude for weakness, and many, as a result of their mistaken judgment, unashamedly try to "put it over on you." They sooner or later learn their error and always regret it.

You are a very loyal friend, although of real friends you have but few. This condition is brought about by your own reserve and your natural inability to become a "mixer." Your home life is very happy and animated by an atmosphere of consideration for all.

HOW IT STARTED

"GALORE"

"We have company galore," we may say, when we mean "plenty" or more than enough."

This word, which we use idiomatically, is an interesting example of the in becoming members of our lexicon. journey which many words have made

"Galore" is a corruption of the Irish "golore," an adverb meaning "enough," which is derived from the old Galeic "gu leor," and with the appropriation of the word into our common parlance went the shading in its significance from merely "enough" to "plenty," "in abundance" and sometimes "more than enough."

Our acquisition of "galore" we owe doubtless to the immigration from Ireland to England, whence the word found its way to our shores.

Through a Woman's Eyes

Friendship and What There Is in It.

I know a woman who frankly admits that she likes to make friends because she has never known anyone who has not been of some use to her. She cultivates people for what they may mean to her in material advantages.

It may be that directly or indirectly her business will be benefited by them; or they might know people whom it would be valuable to her to know; or they may have a country house that would some time solve a week-end problem for her. You never can tell—"friends come in handy."

That is her philosophy, and every body knows it.

Somehow her calculating is obvious. People just seem to sense that she is deliberately cultivating them and so they fight shy of her, so that even the the things she does from sincere motives are questioned. She really has no friends—only acquaintances who "have her number."

I cannot help thinking here of the case of a man who went into a very difficult business and extraordinarily soon had met with unusual success.

When I asked him how he managed it he said. "I myself was surprised. The reason was, I think, that I had so many friends who happened to be in a position to help me start off. Most of them were old friends and colleagues whom I had not seen in a long time and certainly did not expect to meet in this game."

That is the type of person who is likely to be benefited by his friends—the one who never expects to be, who makes friends for the sake of friendship and nothing else. That is the only friendship that is worthy of the name and it is the only kind that ever brought anyone anything in satisfaction or material benefits.

We are eager and happy to do anything we can to further the interests of a friend. But we are resentful of being cultivated deliberately for the purpose. It hurts our self-esteem to realize that someone cares for what we have to give and not for ourselves. And then too, deep down within us is our ideal of friendship that we will not permit to be besmirched.

Friendship is to be valued for what there is in it, not what can be gotten out of it.

SUB ROSA BY MIMI

When He Becomes Generous.

Is your birthday coming along one of these days very soon?

Are you rather excited and curious as to what he intends to give you? (for you know perfectly well he remembers the date—you've reminded him enough!)

Then watch your step when the natal day arrives and the ardent suitor appears with his offering.

Whether he gives you a platinum and diamond wrist watch, or a handsomely bound edition of last year's almanac, it's up to you to exclaim and enthuse at the top of your lungs.

Be ready to grin and bear the worst shock—he may easily bring you a nice green umbrella when you are pining for a feather fan.

Don't let him see that you're disappointed. Don't think of venturing a tactful inquity such as: "Don't you really think, Billy, that it's rather a waste for me to have so many umbrellas? Mightn't it be better for me to change this for something else

That sort of remark will destroy all his pleasure in making you so handsome a gift.

And it will probably militate very strongly against his getting in the habit of making you little presents now and then.

It isn't only at birthdaytime that it's necessary to be cautious in accepting the attentions of the boy friend.

Sometimes he will have a sudden rush of blood to the head—and one night when you're preparing to go to a dance with him, you'll be amazed to receive a dozen stunning red roses. He hopes you'll wear them that evening, etc.

You are, as it happens, donning a very fetching pink frock for the dance, and the red roses add just enough color to make you look like a comic valentine.

But you can't break the bad news to your generous suitor—you can't appear without his floral tribute.

So the only thing for you to do is to give up the pink gown and put on the old white dress against which the roses will look rather attractive.

If you refused to wear his flowers—even on so sensible a ground as the above—he'd probably understand perfectly—but just the same it would be a long time before he'd thing of sending you any shrubbery again.

If on an impulse, he buys tickets forthewrong show—don't murmur. Just thank Heaven that you have a man who doesn't consider your living room his permanent evening's camp.

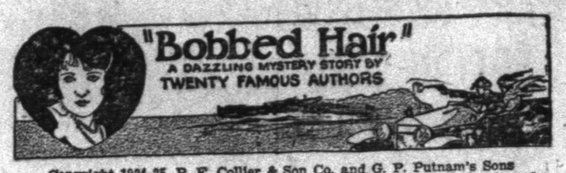

After all, you know the boys aren't plunging recklessly on us girls these days—and when you find a man generous enough to plunge a little for you, be grateful for his good intentions, and don't groan if his taste has been unfortunate.

You'll make him happier by cooing with delight over his offering, and you'll be happier too—it really is nice to be remembered, even if it's with a pair of red crocheted bedroom slippers.

"Bobbed Hair"

A DAZZLING MYSTERY STORY BY TWENTY FAMOUS AUTHORS

SYNOPSIS

David Lacy, victim of a nocturnal motor accident on Long Island, is making his way out of the ditch when he is halted by two strangers, who make him accompany them and board a rowboat on the Sound. One of his companion's is "Doc." The other, a young woman, is "Sweetie." Meanwhile, Connemara Moore, a young heiress, garbed now as a nun, finds herself aboard a yacht, being chased by revenue officers. Connie was to have announced her engagement tonight—but didn't.

He smiled tenderly at her. "I knew you'd do it for me," he said softly.

The little boat rolled crazily through the waves. The big man seemed to be taking a well-known course, for he steered purposefully, guiding himself by the rays of the flashlight. They toiled on in silence, soaked and tempest-tossed.

Abruptly the engine gave a petulant sigh and ceased functioning. Doc used language, then resorted to manual labor. In vain he pulled and oiled and wrenched. The Idle Hour tossed miserably, going as the waves took it.

"Hey, you," the big man growled at David. "What do you know about engnies?"

"All," said David modestly. He bent beside Doc, and together they strove to make the aged engine listen to reason.

Across the water came the throbbing of a powerful motor and the swish of waves severed neatly by a sharp bow. Sweetie caught Doc's sleeve.

"Just a minute, there, feller," she said.

There was a curious dull sound, as the revolver butt met his head.

The big man raised his head and listened. Cautiously he used his flashlight, as the sounds drew nearer. Crossing their path was a big black motor boat, long and flowing of line. David sat up sharply, his hands gripping the edge of the seat.

From the larger boat came a woman's voice, high and shrill with terror.

"McTish!" it soared desperately, "McTish!"

David leaped to his feet in the wildly rocking boat.

"McTish!" he roared across the angry water.

As he called the girl had sprung up on the seat behind him. Her arm came swiftly down; there was a curious dull sound, as the revolver butt met his head.

Slowly and not ungracefully Mr. David Lacy crumpled up in a heap in the bottom of the boat.

CHAPTER VIII

H. C. Witwer

By H. C. Witwer

In the same instant that the fear-stricken Connemara screamed wildly for McTish, with the prehensile fingers of Mr. Pooch pawing at her throat, the utter absurdity of her appeal struck her. The idea of the little, flame-haired, candidly drunk Scotchman in the role of knight errant would have changed her shriek of fear to one of mirth—under other circumstances. Just now, however, Connemara's sense of humor was conspicuous by its absence! A panicky terror gripped her, mingled with amazement. Where was the owner of the familiar voice that had just echoed her frenzied scream "McTish!" across the water? Who was——?

But Mr. Pooch gave Connemara no time for conjecture. This gentleman of the new school was all business! One hand almost encircling her quivering throat, he clenched the other and drew it back ominously.

"Gimme that fifty grand or I'll bump you off!" he yelled. "C'mon—make it snappy!"

Connemara gulped and moved her neck painfully in Mr. Pooch's iron grasp. With frantic glances she signaled her captor that speech was practically an impossible feat under his restraining influence. Slowly and cautiously Mr. Pooch relaxed his grip, like a fisherman playing his victim by the feel of the reel. Connemara gingerly rubbed her aching neck and glared at him indignantly.

"You are frightfully rude!" she said haughtily. "And I do not desire your company further. Put me ashore at once!"

For a moment Mr. Pooch eyed her almost incredulously. He actually looked abashed and retreated a step, and Connemara had a wild hope that her suddent assumption of an imperious manner might be effective where her shrinking feat had failed. At least it might allow her to temporize with her assailant. She continued to regard him fixedly, in a desperate imitation of icy anger, but Mr. Pooch quickly dashed her bried optimism.

"Put you ashore, hey?" he chuckled sneeringly, again advancing toward her. "Where d'ye get that stuff? As long as y' don't 'preciate me askin' for that sugar in a nice way, I'm gonna take it off ya'!"

A lurch of the yacht enabled Connemara partly to evade his vicious lunge at her arm, and as she sprang away there was a sound of ripping cloth. Mr. Pooch sprawled back perilously close to the low rail, mouthing strange oaths and tightly clutching one sleeve of her bedraggled nun's robe. Connemara stared wildly up at the bridge, where she now, to her amazement, discovered McTish, white cap cocked rakishly over one eye, calmly surveying the scene below with the detached air of a spectator at a particularly boring performance. He might have been a hod carrier at a Greek drama; or Noah viewing Niagara Falls. And not many moments before she had seen the red-headed Mr. McTish most thoroughly slammed and padlocked in the forecastle. Mr. Pooch regarded the sleeve in his hand with a baleful eye, hurled it overboard, and grimly resumed the attack.

"Help! Help!" wailed Connemara, ducking and dodging the grunting Pooch in the narrow space of the cock-pit. The waves swishing callously against the yacht's sides seemed to mock her.

"Where d'ye think y'are, kid—in Times Square?" chuckled Mr. Pooch, edging her relentlessly into a corner. "Go on, squawk yer head off and see if I care! The only ones whieh can hear you is me and the fishes!"

Connemara felt like adding bitterly, "And that poor fish up on the bridge!" as she stared scornfully at the seemingly unperturbed and still watching McTish. But she saved her breath and concentrated all her efforts in avoiding the rushes of the determined Mr. Pooch.

Within the space of the next five minutes, Connemara's costume had been ripped and torn to fluttering ribbons by his hungry hands. Darkly purpling bruises were appearing on her naked arms and shoulders, but the constant rolling of the yacht and her dexterous squirming and clawing at Mr. Pooch's curiously working face enabled her to break away time and again from his embrace. The sight of her bared loveliness had swiftly brought a desire, in no way connected with the fifty thousand dollars into the glittering slits that were Mr. Pooch's eyes, and Connemara's pulses leaped madly with a new and numbling fear.

At last, with Pooch so close to her that his panting breath beat on her face and his groping hands were within an inch of her throat, Connemara wrenched away, sprang to the rail, and gasped over her shoulder:

"If you touch me—I—I'll jump overboard—I mean it!"

To her surprise, Mr. Pooch fell back a step.

"Can you swim?" he inquired, almost casually.

"Yes—very well indeed!" panted Connemara, on the verge of hysteria from this sudden application of the brakes to the heroics of a moment before.

More Truth Than Poetry

A POLITICAL CINCH

Time was, when a member of congress
For votes had to barter and trade,
And to tell all the hicks who abode in the sticks
What a wonderful record he'd made.
He had to point out many measures
He had valiantly helped to put through,
Or a different face would appear in his place—
When the congress assembled anew.

But now he goes back to his district
And says with a wan, weary smile:
"I have come here to say that I only can stay
Among you a very short while.
I love all the friends that I see here,
I love this delightful home town
But I cannot remain, for my duty is plain,
I am cutting the income tax down.

"A terrible task is before us,
Who stand for the people like me,
Who are plying the axe at the root of the tax
That is rotting this land of the free.
Grim forces are marshalled against us,
But we never shall falter or pause
Till we've lifted this yoke from the necks of the folk
Who have sent us to fight for their cause."

No matter what party they train with
Their speeches are always the same,
They stoutly affirm at the end of the term
That to cut down the tax is their aim.
At last they have hit on an issue
Which none is prepared to attack,
And there's reason to fear at the end of next year
That they'll all of 'em likely get back.

Aggies Loom As Conference Champions First Time In Three Years

THREE GAMES STILL IN WAY OF BIBLE CREW

Rice, T. C. U. and Texas Come After Baylor and S. M. U. Downed

(By The Associated Press)

"It's an Aggie year," the followers f Dana X. Bible are crying. Well night the Aggies rejoice following heir one-sided victory over Frank ridges' Baylor, champions of 1924, aturday at Waco.

The Aggies smothered the Bears ith even greater ease than they did he S. M. U. Mustangs two weeks reviously at College Station. When a aylor team, coached by Frank ridges and Jim Crow, is outplayed, s outsmarted as were they by Bible's rmers, then there is reason for the oyous cry of College Station cohorts.

Thanksgiving Game

Conference football fans who have llowed the race closely do not hesate to say that the championship ill be decided at College Station o hanksgiving when the Aggies clash ith the Texas Longhorns in their nnual Turkel Day bout.

Until Doc Stewart's Longhorns ere so roundly outclassed by Ray orrison's Mustangs in the scoreless e at Dallas Saturday the Orange rd was favored to emerge from the hanksgiving contest undefeated. But ith the humiliating tie the Longrns were lucky to get at Dallas nd the impressive victory over the ears a glowing maroon tide is now sing to the horizon of the 1925 conrence gridiron chase.

Heralded as the greatest offensive am in the southwest the Longhorns ere never able to get going at Dals, registering the measly total of one rst down against the ponies. On e other hand S. M. U. crashed rough the thin Orange line and airaned over the Fa ir Park stadium idiron for nine first downs. Only magnificient stand by the Orange rwards, Heinie Pfannkuche and Bob oman in particular, kept the Longrns in the conference pennant chase r S. M. U. had the ball on the one-ot line, but on fourth down Chrisopher Cortmeglia held without the in of an inch.

Longhorns Weak

The Longhorn offense was smear- at every attempt. Yet, the overxious Texas forwards handicapped e Steer offensive even more than e Mustang defense. Numerous offle penalties forced Texas to discard e running offense for the punting fense.

For the first time since the race ened this week will see three conence games with the Baylor-Texas lood battle" at Austin the header. The Texas Aggies go up against e Horned Frogs at Fort Worth, peting a team that outplayed Bay- in a 7-7 tie. Madison Bell and lvin Kubale have an eleven greatimproved over the one of last year, spite the fact that the Oklahoma gies took them into tow for a 22 7 count at Stillwater recently. It uld behoove Bible's boys to take ings seriously from now on out and dge the over-confidence element, for y have yet to beat the Frogs, Owls d Longhorns.

S. M. U.-Arkansas

Morrison's speedy Mustangs should ak into the win column for the st time Saturday at Dallas where y meet Francis Schmidt's Arkansas ozorbacks. Arkansas' only conferce game was with Rice' the Owls nning 13 to 9. Arkansas achieved s feat Saturday that it may look to th great pride, downing the L. S. Tigers for the fourth straight year their annual game at Shreveport, score Saturday being 12 to 0.

Missouri Tigers Now Ride Tide Toward Their Second Successive Valley Title

Overcome Their Greatest Obstacle and Now Have Only Tail-Enders to Face; Drake Bulldogs Nearest Contender

KANSAS CITY, Nov. 1.—(AP)—Their greatest obstacle out of the way and only the tail-enders yet to face, the University of Missouri Tigers are riding the tide toward a second successive Missouri valley conference gridiron title.

Launching a savage attack against Iowa State in the second period at Columbia yesterday, the Tigers shoved their co-leaders from the top of the valley standings and established themselves as the only undefeated team in the conference. Besides Ames, the Nebraska Cornhuskers and Kansas Aggies have fallen prey to the Tigers.

Next Saturday the Tigers will stalk the valley weakling—Washington at St .Louis, then Oklahoma and finish up the season with Kansas at Lawrence.

The deadly cyclone combination of J. Behm, N. Behm, and Cary gave Missouri a bad half hour yesterday and succeeded in getting over one touchdown and threatening several more before the Tigers got under way and trampled, rough shod, over the Ames defense. It was a brilliant attack the Tigers launched in the third period, the team working in perfect unison in battering away for gains. The score was 23 to 8.

The Drake Bulldogs, Missouri's nearest contender for the title strengthened their position at the expense of the Kansas Jayhawkers at Lawrence yesterday, winning 7 to 0. Drake still has two hard games ahead however, having yet to meet Nebraska and Iowa State.

Michigan on Top In Western Conference

CHICAGO, Nov. 1.—(AP)—Michigan still tops the heap in the Western confernce football race tonight with not a point scored against her. The Wolverines now tackle three Big Ten opponest in a row, Northwestern, Ohio and Minnesota and championship hopes at Michigan are high.

Iowa is likewise undefeated with two victories against Michigan's three. The Hawkeyes play Wisconsin and Minnesota, then go to Los Angeles to meet Southern California on the closing day of the season.

Chicago added another conference victory over Purdue Saturday, but has a tie with Ohio State on the records.

SEYMOUR AND BURK APPEAR EVEN MATCHED

North Texas Teams Play Two Ties; Both Scoreless

The Burkburnett Bulldogs and the Seymour gridsters appear to be the best matched football clubs in class B of this district. This statement is taken from the scores of their two meets this year. In Burkburnett they played to a 0 to 0 tie.

They received word from headquarters in Austin from Roy Henderson that the game must be played off by the following Saturday. Further arrangements were made and the game postponed until the following Wednesday.

Wednesday they met on the Seymour grid and again battled to another scoreless deadlock. There is some question as to when Henderson will order this tie to be played off. Sidden, Seymour quarterback, has proven himself to be a powerful man on both the defense and offense, but has no backing when the scoring punch should have been used.

Burkburnett, flashing a backfield of Buckner, Warren, Jarrell and Wolfe, was unable to gain through the Seymour line when gains meant scores. McClure, Watson and Crawford proving a bulwark in the Seymour defense.

TASTY PIGSKIN MENU SLATED FOR WEEK-END

Harvard Faces Princeton, California Hooks With Washington

The last month of the football season is starting and those who have charge of the distribution of tickets for the big games are glad of it. hThe demand has been in excess of accommodations everywhere.

The big game for next Saturday is that between Princeton and Harvard. It is to be played at Princeton, where every seat has been sold, including the temporary stand, in spite of the fact that neither of the colleges has played better than ordinary football. This lends weight to the argument that it is not the game so much as the college function which attracts the thousands. On the form which has been in evidence thus far, a victory by Princeton in this game seems certain.

Crimson Weak.

Harvard is disappointingly weak. It has not functioned very well in the games played and the coaches are frank enough to concede that they are not over-hopeful of their players. The line is mediocre, the back field has nothing but pluggers in it and the team doesn't seem to assimilate football. The University of Cambridge attracts plenty of strong and well built young men each year but they just play football since Houghton got away.

Princeton didn't have a promising squad when the season began but Roper has whipped some football sense into it and in every way it appears to be better than Harvard.

The next game in general appearance will be the Dartmouth-Cornell contest at Hanover, N. H. There is so much reserve and so much self assertion in the Dartmouth team that the chances favor the green mountain eleven against Gil Dobie's sons of gloom, although Cornell will give Dartmouth fight.

Yale Plays Maryland.

Yale tapers off with Maryland for the Princeton game, which comes the following week. Maryland is a good eleven for Yale to face because it will pull out the backs. They need it.

Illini Battle Chicago.

In the conferspce, Ilnois will play Chicago at Urbana and if Chicago doesn't get over the 20-yard line with more effectibeness that it has been doing to date the Illini will win.

Iowa plays Wisconsin at Iowa City. Looks like an Iowa day.

JUNIOR COLLEGE FACES HARD THREE GAME SCHEDULE MINUS SERVICES OF BIG STEVE WEST

John Tarleton First, Then McMurray, and Then Weatherford College Will Try Mettle of Wichita Falls Indian Team

After their thrilling win over the Aggies Saturday the Junior College Indians are expected to get together and bear down hard for their coming week-end of games. Through the last of this week and the whole of next week the tribe has a very tough schedule to pull over, two of the next three games being on the road. Friday the club will be in Stephensville battling the John Tarleton club, favorite for the Junior college championship.

On Armistice day the Redskins are in Abilene playing McMurray. The Tribe should be very well worn out from the frolic with John Tarleton, but this game plus the trip should have them well worked over for the coming game here Saturday week with the Weatherford college.

The club will possibly be composed of about 20 men, which will mean that a few of their number will be left behind. This will give the second stringers something to fight for to get to take the trip, as Mosley likely will take the men that show up best during this week of practice.

A few minor injuries resulted from the game with the Aggies here Saturday, but only one looks like anything serious, Steve West injured his knee and may be kept out of the trip, but should this heal up by Thursday West is pretty sure of being among those that leave Wichita Falls.

The Indians have unearthed a great passing combination in Jack Thurman and Skinny Crites and there is a great outlook for these in the offense of the club. Saturday Thurman was by far the outstanding passer of the game, yet the Aggie men uncorked some good heaves. On the other hand Skinny Crites was snaring passes from all sides as well as heaving a couple himself that were good for first downs.

Hard as the coming schedule is the tribe should win at least the last two of the the three games yith ease if they show the determination and fight they displayed in the Aggie game.

Eastern Critics Say Red Grange Is Greatest Grid Hero

Red Grange Runs Wild for Sensational Illinois Win

NEW YORK, Nov. 1.—(AP)—Any hesitation the east may have had in placing the laurel wreath upon the Sorrel Thatched head of Red Grange or any skepticism as to the greatness of this artful dodger of the gridiron has vanished in the wake of the meteoric swath he cut through the mud of Franklin Field, where he led the Illinois attack that crushed Pennsylvania and simultaneously any national championship hopes entertained by the Red and Blue.

Grange, averaging more than a first down about 11 yards—for every one of the 32 times he handled the ball, fully lived up to the most extravagant claims previously made for him and established beyond question his place among the greatest football players of all time. Seasoned critics, veterans who had seen in their prime such stars as Willie Heston, Jim Thorpe, Ned Mahan, Ted Coy, Charley Barrett, George Gipp and Eddie Kaw, were a unit in proclaiming Grange the greatest ground gainer, the most elusive runner of them all.

Hobbs and Caskey Useful to Teams

Two men that are every day out for the practice sessions of the high school and Junior college, but who have received but very little mention from any, are Marconi Hobbs and Mike Caskey.

Hobbs, one time center of the Coyotes, who flunked out, has been with the club under the general role of business manager of the Coyotes. Hobbs is always on the field with the club and in the dressing room offering advice and aid.

Mike Caskey, last year star half of the tribe, is in no condition to stand the jolts of the game, but puts in his time with the boys as does Hobbs. Mike can be seen any day the Indians practice making himself useful about the field. Some of his duties are keeping the key to the dressing room, carrying helmets and watching the footballs when they are not being used.

PUP-OLNEY GO TO BE PLAYED HERE, NOV. 7

Coyotes Opponents Have Two Games Scheduled For This Week

Coach Montgomery has lined up another match for his Coyote Pups on the home field with the Olney club. With the continued improvement and the fight they displayed in the Iowa Park game the club should be in great shape for the coming tilt with the Hillbillies.

The Olney eleven has a pair of stiff fights on for this week, the first with Bellevue Friday and then the Pups here on Saturday.

Coach Montgomery hopes to have his club in the field for the game. Captain Farris, who was out of the Iowa Park game with an injured shoulder is expected back in the game Saturday.

COYOTES ARE CRIPPLED BY VERNON GAME

Wainscott Out to All Appearances; Others, Too, Perhaps

The Coyotes, priming for their game next Saturday with the Quanah Indians on the Quanah grid, are somewhat crippled from their Vernon invasion and may not have their full force in the game, it was learned Sunday.

Swede Wainscott, powerful tackle seriously hurt Saturday, may be out of the Quanah game due to injuries in the Vernon clash. The big Swede will be g re atly missed, but if he should be in condition to play will be a great help to the club on both the offense and defense.

In the meantime Coach Bud McCallum has a hard time with his other tackles. Both Wilks Dobson and Zeke Taylor are out of the game with injuries. In fact they went in the Vernon game suffering bad bruises and sprains which were only made worse by the Saturday battle.

Ed. Powell, quarterback, acted as captain in the Vernon game, and is the most likely man to fill the field-generals' shoes since the busting out of Captain Rowdy Curtin. Powell has been making a great showing all year at the quarterback role, and is a great favorite in the new role of captain.

Cuts Practice; Coach Is Worried

Haskell Giles is the biggest individual problem Coach Montgomery has to face. This rangy wingman has been causing Monty plenty of worry. Giles has been showing up great in the practice, or when he is in practice. Giles has been working with the second string eleven, and on every occasion the coach attempts to place him with the first string club, Giles cuts practice for some reason. If this youngster can be brought out regularly he will stand a good chance of starring in the coming games.

U. S. BUSINESS IS NOW AT PEAK LEVEL OF YEAR

Earnings of Rail and Industrial Firms Show Big Gain

NEW YORK, Nov. 1.—(AP)—Business activities last week continued to vibrate at the fastest pace yet attained this year, giving impetus to the rising tide of optimism which recently had swept over the country. All the diversified measures of trade improvement stood near the highest levels of 1925, with gains over corresponding periods last year becoming more pronounced each week.

One of the most singnificant features of the week was the striking improvement in earnings reported by both railroad and industrial corporations. Net incomes of the class one carriers for September, based on the first seventy road to report, was estimated at $132,000,000, a new high record for the month. Car loadings continued at the rate of more than a million a week.

Total earnings of the U. S. Steel corporation, accepted as a barometer of industry, were more than $42,000,00 for the third quarter and about $12,-000,000 above the corresponding period of 1924. The industry continued to operate well above 80 per cent of capacity and was visibly cheered by Elbert H. Gray's recent prediction that manufacturers, would be turning away business by next spring.

Prosperity of the automobile companies, as indicated by the earnings of three large motor manufacturers in the third quarter, has been unequalled at any previous period since the war. Net earnings of the general motors, Studebaker, and Chrysler corporations showed gains over the preceeding quarter and striking increases over the corresponding period of last year.

Surveys of commercial activity revealed that the imprivement was not confined to a few industries. The National City bank reported the trend of business over the country in the past month had been to increased activity, which was in line with normal development at this season and fully realized expectations.

"Trade is excellent," said the bank's review and the industries are running about as near to capacity as they can do when not under unhealthy stimulus. There is no sign of the class of buying which signifies fear or scarcity of rising prices.

U. S. Bonds Sink To New Low Levels During Last Week

NEW YORK, Nov. 1.—(AP)—With trading interest again overshadowed by the more sensational speculative activities in stocks, the bond market made no visible progress last week. Prices of domestic corporations issues on the whole came virtually to a standstill, although special developments brought flurries of iseling in a few groups and stimulated a demand for others.

Weakness of United States government obligations, several of which broke into new low ground for the year, was one of the most discussed developments of the week causing investment bankers to scan the horizon closely for indications of a general weakening of prices. Growing demands for credit from many sources, in addition to the great expansion in brokerage loans, coused the money situation to be viewed with some apprehension, but this in itself, it was felt, would not necessarily forshadow a downward trend in the bond market.

The sluggishness of bonds in the face of the broad upward movement in the stock market nevertheless was disappointing and resulted in a transfer of operations in more than one instance to the more active field. This development accounted for the liquidation of several large investment holdings of liberty bonds which have become less attractive because of the prevailing high money rates and prospects that tax legislation will deprive these issues of some of their attractiveness as tax exempt securities.

Although the French financial and debt funding situation was clouded by the fall of finance Minister Caillaux and the re-organization of the cabinet, much of the uncertainty surrounding the financial plans of other European countries was cleared away during the week.

Flotation of a $25,000,00 loan for Czecho-Slovakia with the promise of $75,000,000 more at later dates, indicated that the administration's policy of opening America's credit resources only to those nations which have arranged for settlements of their war debts was being carried out. Belgium which earlier in the year agreed to fund its debt, has been granted a temporary credit by New York bankers and has been promised a large loan, possibly $75,000,000 or $100,000,000 whenever it undertakes to revalue its currency and return to the gold basis.

Germany continued to seek funds in this market, being represented during the week by three municipal bond offerings. Despite attempts of German financial authorities to restrict municipal borrowings in favor of industrial loans, the government continued to place its approval on applications from the cities and several of the flotations of this sort have been scheduled.

The bond market continued to register its emphatic approval of the modification of the Mexican debt agreement which will bring about a resumption of interest payments next year. It was made clear, however, that no new loan to Mexico was under consideration.

The ladies were seated at the dining table and served a lovely family style luncheon. Those present were Mesdames G. F. Hagan, M. D. Goldsmith, L. E. Sheldon, Louise Freer, J. M. DOROTHY DIX ADVICE

Men do not appear to object to silent wives. I have never heard a man complain that the lady to whom he was married did not talk enough, but one of the chief grievances of wives is the dumbness of husbands in the family circle.

Wives say that, instead of their husbands entertaining them of an evening with bright chit-chat and merry cracks and jests, they bury themselves in their papers and only grunt by way of answer, even when they are asked questions. Further, they aver that if a wooden Indian should be substituted for their lords and masters, they would never find out the difference. One would hand out about as interesting a line of conversation as the other.

This charge is, alas, too true. No matter how loquacious the average man may be abroad, he can give a clam points on how to keep its mouth shut at home. He may set other dinner tables in a roar with his wit, but he doesn't waste it on his own board. He keeps his good talk, as he does his pre-war cocktails, for company. They are not for a every-day home consumption.

It is natural that the wives should resent this. What a woman really marries for is to get a fireside companion, some one with whom she can gossip endlessly, as she does with another woman. And when she finds out that instead of having got a chatterbox she has acquired a life companion afflicted with the lock-jaw, she feels that she has been defrauded.

What she would like would be for her husband to regale her with choice bits of office scandal and repeat to her the good stories he has heard, and tell her of what he said, and the boss said, and the customer said, and so on. Instead of which, mum's the word.

In thousands of homes wives, with undying optimism, attempt every evening to open up a conversation by asking their husbands, "Any news?" "Nope." "What did you do today?" "Same old thing." "Who did you see?" "Same old crowd." "Hear anything interesting?" "Nope." After which silence descends that you could cut with a knife until visitors drop in, when husband arouses up and becomes the life of the part.

Now there are several explanations to be offered of why men do not talk at home. One is that they are tired and nerve worn, and when they get home they want to slump. They have been talking all day in business, arguing, persuading, combating, trying to hold the attention of others, and they are talked out. They are weary of babbling voices, and they don't want to hear their own or anyone else's. The thing they long for more than anything else is just silence.

Another reason that men don't talk at home is because they are selfish. They make no effort to entertain their wives because they are concerned only with their own comfort and pleasure, and are not considering hers.

There are women to whom any subject is as good for an argument as a nickel is for a ginger cake. They never by any chance agree with their husbands' views on anything, from politics to pie. A husband cannot even discuss the weather with such a one without getting into an acrimonious debate, and so, unless he enjoys fighting as much as she does, he learns that the only way to keep the peace is to keep silence.

Perhaps if wives were better listeners, husbands would be more fluent talkers. Perhaps the silence of men is self-protection. You might look into the matter, you wives who complain that your husbands never have a word to say at home.

Cotton Market In Good Position To Go Up, Is Belief

NEW ORLEANS, Nov. 1.—(AP) The most important development in the cotton market last week was the government's crop estimate Monday indicating a total yield of 15,226,000 bales exclusive of linters. The utmost immediate effect of this was a decline of prices of about six dollars a bale, compared with closing prices of the preceeding business day.

While the market recovered nearly 50 points of this in the two days following the estimate owing to trade buying on the scale down and more or less covering by shorts in fear of the effects of freezing weather and rains in the belt, the demand thinned out and prices weakened again under the growing conviction that the crop was so large that frost or other weather damage would not be sufficient to court materially.

Toward the end of the week there were evidences also of a falling off in spot demand with October comitents out of the way and there also developed a general liquidation of the December interests by large spot concerns. As a result prices, declined rather sharply in Friday and Saturday finally breaking through the 18 cents line and establishing not only the lowest prices of the season but the lowest in several years.

As a result of the liquidation of the long interest the technical position of the market is believed to have been strengthened and the general expectation is for a fair rally if any development of a conservative character. The weather in the cotton region has been unfavorable and there have been several days of freezing temperature over the greater portion of the northern section of the belt. Just what damage such weather has wrought to crop prospects remains to be seen. That it has put a stop to any profit making by late cotton seems certain.

Legal Notice 91

NOTICE OF ELECTION.
Ordinance No. 629.
An ordinance providing for the holding of an election in the city of Wichita Falls, Texas, for the purpose of submitting to the qualified voters of said city who are property tax payers therein a proposition for the issuance of bonds of said city in the amount of seventy-five thousands ($75,000) dollars for the purpose of raising funds to pay the cost of construction of public buildings for housing fire apparatus in said city, and levying a tax on all taxable property in said city to pay the principal and interest of said bonds.

Whereas the board of aldermen of the city of Wichita Falls deems it necessary and expedient to borrow money on the credit of the city in the sum of seventy-five thousand ($75,000) dollars and to secure the payment thereof by the issuance of bonds of said city in that amount for the purpose of raising funds to pay the cost of constructing public buildings for housing fire apparatus in and for said city.

Now therefore, be it ordained by the board of aldermen of the city of Wichita Falls, Texas:

1—That an election be held in said city on the tenth day of November, 1925, at which election the following propostion shall be submitted:

Shall the board of aldermen of the City of Wichita Falls be authorized to issue the bonds of the City of Wichita Falls in the sum of one hundred thousand dollars ($100,000) to mature serially in from one to thirty years from the date thereof, bearing interest at the rate of four and three-quarters per centum per annum, payable semi-annually, for the purpose of providing funds for the construction of permanent street improvements in and for said city and to levy a tax sufficient to pay the interest on said bonds as it accrues and the principal thereof at maturity?

2—The said election shall be held at the city hall and in Wichita county court house in the City of Wichita Falls and shall be conducted by the following named persons:

Nat L. Inge, presiding judge, city hall box.
R. E. Strange, clerk, city hall box.
Boyd Dooley, clerk, city hall box.
Mrs. Kathleen Gorsline, clerk, city hall box.
Dan White, presiding judge, court house box.
F. B. Mashburn, clerk, court house box.
Robert McCulloch, clerk, court house box.
Walter Robbins, clerk, court house box.

Voters living east of Lamar street and northeast of the Wichita river and southeast of the Wichita Valley railway track in said city shall vote at the city hall box; all voters living west of Lamar street in said city shall vote at the court house box.

3—The said election shall be held in accordance with the general election laws and only qualified voters who are property taxpayers in said city shall be allowed to vote.

4—The ballots to be used at said election shall contain the proposition substantially as above set forth, followed by the words "for the issuance of bonds" and "against the issuance of bonds."

5—Notice of said election shall be given by the mayor by publishing a copy of this ordinance with the words "Notice of Election" prefixed thereto ten days next preceding the date of said election in the Wichita Falls Record News, a newspaper published in said city.

6—That because of inadequate fire protection now existing in the city of Wichita Falls, due to not having sufficient number of buildings for housing fire apparatus endangering the property of the citizens of said city, creates an urgent necessity demanding and requiring that the provisions of the city charter providing for the reading of the ordinances three separate days, and providing that ordinances shall not go into effect until thirty days after passage be suspended, and the same are suspended, and this ordinance is passed as an emergency measure and shall take effect and be enforced from and after its passage.

Mayor.

NOTICE OF ELECTION
Ordinance No. 628.

An ordinance providing for the holding of an election in the city of Wichita Falls, Texas, for the purpose of submitting to the qualified voters of said city who are property taxpayers therein a proposition for the issuance of bonds of said city in the amount of $375,000 for the purpose of raising funds to pay the cost of extending and improving the sanitary sewerage system in said city and levying a tax on all taxable property in said city to pay the principal and interest of said bonds.

Whereas the board of aldermen of the city of Wichita Falls deems it necessary and expedient to borrow money on the credit of the city in the sum of three hundred and seventy-five thousand ($375,000) dollars and to secure the payment thereof by the issuance of bonds of said city in that amount for the purpose of raising funds to pay the cost of extending and improving the sanitary sewerage system in and for said city.

Now, therefore, be it ordained by the board of aldermen of the city of Wichita Falls, Texas:

1. That an election be held in said city on the 10th day of November, 1925, at which election the following proposition shall be submitted:

Shall the board of aldermen of the city of Wichita Falls be authorized to issue the bonds of the city of Wichita Falls in the sum of three hundred seventy-five thousand and no 100 ($375,000) dollars to mature serially in from one to forty years from the date thereof, bearing interest at the rate of four and three-quarters per centum per annum payable semi-annually for the purpose of providing funds for the extension and improvement of the sanitary sewerage system in and for said city and to levy a tax sufficient to pay the interest on said bonds as it accrues and the principal thereof at maturity.

2. The said election shall be held at the city hall and Wichita county court house in the City of Wichita Falls and shall be conducted by the following named persons:

Nat L. Inge, presiding judge, city hall box; R. E. Strange, clerk, city hall box; Boyd Dooley, clerk, city hall box; Mrs. Kathleen Gorsline, clerk, city hall box; Dan White, presiding judge, court house box; F. B. Mashburn, clerk, court house box; Robert McCulloch, clerk, court house box; Walter Robbins, clerk, court house box.

Voters living east of Lamar street and northeast of the Wichita river and southeast of the Wichita Valley railway track in said city shall vote at the city hall box, all voters living west of Lamar street in said city shall vote at the court house box.

3. The said election shall be held in accordance with the general election laws and only qualified voters who are property taxpayers in said city shall be allowed to vote.

4. The ballots to be used at said election shall contain the proposition substantially as above set forth followed by the words "for the issuance of bonds" and "against the issuance of bonds."

5. Notice of said election shall be given by the mayor by publishing a copy of this ordinance with the words "Notice of Election" prefixed thereto ten days next preceding the date of said election in the Wichita Falls Record News, a newspaper published in said city.

6. That because of the unhealthful condition existing in the city of Wichita Falls, Texas, due to not having a complete sanitary sewerage system endangers the health of the citizens of said city, creates an urgent necessity demanding and requiring that the provisions of the city charter providing for the reading of ordinances on three separate days and providing that ordinances shall not go into effect until thirty days after passage be suspended and the same are suspended and this ordinance is passed as an emergency measure and shall take effect and be in force from and after its passage.

ADMISSION TO "CHEST" FUND IS UP TUESDAY

Committee to Pass On Charity and Welfare Organizations

Shall the purely welfare organization be admitted to the community chest along with the charitable and relief agencies? This is the first big question of policy to come before the campaign committee for decision when it meets to hear applications for admission to the "chest" tomorrow at 10 o'clock at the chamber of commerce. Joseph Huckins, III, is chairman, Mrs. C. R. Hartsook is vice-chairman; Mrs. Kathleen Gorsline, secretary, and Hubert M. Harrison, general manager of the chamber of commerce, has been asked to direct the campaign for the fifth time. Mr. Huckins and Mrs. Hartsook will be in charge of the hearings of the committee at which time it will be decided which organization shall be admitted and how much money each is to have of the fund that is to be raised in the city-wide campaign November 23, 24, and 25.

Every year since the Wichita Falls community chest was organized in 1921, there has been some difference of opinion concerning the admission to the fund of such organizations as the Young Woman's Christians association, the Boy Scouts, the Camp Fire Girls and the Red Cross, says the director of the drive. There are some Wichita Falls citizens who think that the "chest" should include only the Salvation Army, the Day Nursery, the Children's Home and Aid society and similar relief and charitable agencies.

"It is sound economics to save lives and to keep them clean and wholesome instead of making no effort as a community to do anything until after these lives have been soiled and broken and have become charity cases," said Mrs. Hartsook yesterday.

"I am in favor of providing for both, the soup, soap and salvation of the Salvation Army, the milk and clean beds for the babies at the Day Nursery, for better homes for the Children's Home tots and also for the character building work of the Y. W. C. A., the Boy Scouts and similar agencies."

IRRIGATION

At the recent meeting of the Texas Conservation association held here, Mr Kemp, the president, introduced to the members an old gentleman named Sam Bellah and said that Mr. Bellah was the engineer who was responsible for the finding of the two reservoir sites on the Wichita river now occupied by Lake Kemp and the Diversion lake.

Mr. Kemp related how in the early days of our irrigation project some 30 or more years ago Mr. Bellah had been the engineer and how through his efforts and skill the two reservoir sites had been located.

At a recent session of the business council Mr. Dan Carithers suggested, that to honor this pioneer engineer, our Diversion lake be now named Lake Sam Bellah.

Whether or not the same Sam Bellah should be given to this lake thus creating a monument to him greater than will come to most of our citizens depends upon the value of the services rendered by Mr. Bellah and the will of our people.

One thing is sure that it is rare indeed for an member of that humble but great profession, the engineers, to receive compensation either in money or monuments equal to the services they render.

No doubt there are a number of men who would like to have their names perpetuated by having it given to such a lake and dam as we have at the Diversion. It should go to the man most worthy of the honor.
