Along The Waterfront

Taylor Oak reports: Mrs. Jim Stansell of Taylor Oak Trailer Park, caught five rat reds, two flounders and two nice trout.

Mr. Wilbur Randle caught a sheephead and four flounders. Al Smith and Bill Evans, together, caught 12 trout Monday, six on Tuesday, 12 on Thursday, and ten on Saturday.

Tandy Sue Williams, age 7, of Norman, Okla., caught 55 piggy perch last week.

Conservation Ass'n Announces Program

The Rockport Conservation Association has announced the program for their quarterly meeting to be held at 7:30 p.m. July 10, in the Woman's Club building, according to Pat Greene, president.

Mr. Greene said that the Game and Fish Commission has known for years that the time would come when they would be called on to manage the salt water resources of the state. In order to be prepared for this, the Marine Laboratory at Rockport was built and biologists were put afield. These biologists have conducted fish, crab, oyster, and shrimp research. They have attempted to learn what each species needs in the way of habitat and food and what practices of man were detrimental to them and to what extent they were affected.

Coastal Fisheries Supervisor Ernest Simmons, one of the outstanding marine biologists on the Gulf coast, will present a summary of the research and management work done by the commission in the past and some proposed work to be done in the future.

Mr. Simmons is a graduate of Texas A&M College. After graduation he was with the fresh water division of the Florida Game and Fish Commission for one year, then returned to Texas in 1950 and went to work with the old Marine Division of the Game and Fish Commission. He has been doing this work ever since, except for eighteen months which he spent with the Scripps Institute of Oceanography.

It is believed that Mr. Simmons' presentation, followed by a question and answer period, will be both informative and entertaining.

SCHOOL OF FINE ARTS TO COMMENCE SECOND SESSION JULY 9

The second session of the Rockport School of Fine Arts, under direction of Simon G. Michael, will start on July 9 and makes the fourteenth consecutive summer that such classes have been held here.

The session, Michael says, will consist of instruction in portrait, figure, still life and landscape painting, and will be held at the studio, which has recently been enlarged, and in the field area around Rockport.

Michael has joined the two other studios that he had on the grounds with a third, arranged to partially enclose a patio.

Like the others built since he opened the school a decade and a half ago, it is of concrete block construction, with brightly colored Mexican tile floors.

Michael said that his classes had grown to the point where enlarged facilities were needed.

BILLY WILSON HURT IN MONDAY ACCIDENT

Billy Wilson, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. I. Wilson, of Picton Lane, Little Bay Shores, was seriously injured in an accident at Live Oak Street and Highway 35, about 6:30 p.m. Monday evening.

According to investigating officers, Wilson was riding a motor scooter which collided with a car driven by Ronnie Ray Valdez. Valdez had been headed east on Highway 35 and started to turn north on Live Oak Street. Wilson was headed west on Highway 35, and struck the Valdez car on its right front side. Wilson was thrown across the hood of the car, and fell in front of a car driven by Tommie Griffith, county surveyor, which was stopped on North Live Oak Street, waiting for traffic to clear.

Wilson was taken to Spohn Hospital, where doctors said he was suffering from concussion. Deputy Sheriff Bob Hughes investigated the accident.

Copano Causeway Scheduled '63-64

A request made by Judge John D. Wendell to the Texas Highway Department a year ago will bear fruit in 1963-64 when the new causeway across Copano Bay gets underway.

The Highway Department has just approved a new two-year consolidated highway road program for Texas, to be financed jointly by the State and Federal governments.

This will be known as the Consolidated Highway Program for 1963-64.

T. O. Foster, Jr., District Engineer for the Texas Highway Department in Corpus Christi, states that this program authorizes expenditure of $2,420,000 for the causeway, which has an approximate length of 2.3 miles, where it crosses between Aransas and Copano Bays, joining Lamar and Live Oak Peninsulas.

Highway crews have been engaged for some time in preliminary borings at the location proposed for the new roadway, and work on the project will begin as soon as planning is completed, Foster said.

Resident Engineer M. G. Yoes of Corpus Christi will be in charge of construction of the new bridge, which will be to the east of the present one.

Completion of the work, and of widening of Highway 35 in between the Guadalupe River and Port Lavaca will make this one of the best and newest means of access to the southern coast from Houston and Galveston.

Speaker For C of C Banquet Named At Director's Meeting

The speaker for the annual Chamber of Commerce banquet next spring has already been named. At a meeting of the board of directors Tuesday night, J. D. Gray told that he had been fortunate enough to obtain Dr. Dan Proctor, president of the Southern Engraving Company of Houston. Accompanying Proctor will be Jack Beard, who will furnish music for the occasion.

Jack Sanders reported that signs advertising Rockport had been completed and installed at strategic locations at Gregory and on the junction of the Rockport cut-off with Highway 77, between Refugio and Victoria.

Mrs. Mary Juergens told the directors that two new members had been obtained since last meeting, Carl Osborn and Mildred and Archie's Bait Stand.

President Bob Fleming reported on the meeting of local sportsmen with Senator Bill Patman, State Representative Elect Leroy Wieting, and County Judge John D. Wendell, to discuss a fishing pier, to be made of the old Copano Causeway, after the new one is constructed.

The directors also voted to aid in the VFW parade at Sinton, which will welcome Carter Younts, VFW official.

Mrs. James A. Jarboe was at the meeting on behalf of the Louisiana-Texas Hug the Coast Highway Association, to urge the Chamber to send representatives, and directors voted to aid her and County Surveyor Tommy Griffith to attend the meeting which will be held in Brownsville on July 16-18.

CORPUS CHRISTI MAN KILLED AT COPANO CAUSEWAY

A Corpus Christi man, Weldon L. Schumaker, was killed here last night a little before 11 p.m., when the 1958 Chevrolet Corvette he was driving crashed into the western abutment of the south end of Copano Causeway, almost demolishing the car.

Schumaker was pinned in, but had apparently been killed almost instantaneously, as the steering column was forced into his chest, and it was some time before his body could be removed from the death car.

Justice of the Peace F. Iansen presided at the inquest, but has given no verdict, pending the result of tests he requested.

Investigating the accident were members of the Highway Patrol, Sheriff A. C. Shivers, and Deputies Sherman Mundine and Bob Hughes.

If Schumaker's car had missed the abutment, and continued down the embankment at the causeway's end, the death toll would probably have been higher, as there were a number of people camped beside the causeway.

SENIOR HIGH DANCE SATURDAY

There will be a Senior High Youth Dance Saturday night, July 7, from 8 till 12 midnight.

Door prizes will be given.

Chaperones are needed for the summer dances and volunteers are asked to get in touch with Mrs. McCord at SO 4-2006.

"POOL ROOM"—Here, in what used to be the Bloxwich, England, school kitchen, youngsters enjoy swimming lessons in a huge glass fiber filtered pool that fills the room.

Houston Power Squadron Here On Annual Cruise

The Houston Power Squadron, bigger and better than ever, tied up in Fulton Harbor Monday, 60 boats with a couple of hundred people aboard, on their annual West-We-Go Cruise.

The cruise started Saturday, June 30, when members of the squadron rendezvoused at Freeport Marina, where early arrivals got in a little fishing before the big dinner that night.

Sunday morning the flotilla got under way for Palacios, a distance of 66 miles from Rockport, and Sunday night was spent at Palacios.

Monday morning early, the squadron headed out for Fulton, where they spent Monday night, Tuesday, and part of Wednesday, before going on to Bahia Azul Marina at Ingleside.

Thursday the boats made the run to Port Aransas, after which the fleet run was officially over.

A dinner was held at the Yacht Haven Cafe in Fulton Monday night, and Tuesday night the crews held a watermelon party at the picnic tables beside the harbor.

Wednesday they were guests for a shipwreck party at the Bahia Azul, in Ingleside, and tonight (Thursday), the members of the squadron will be guests at a dinner at Sands Restaurant.

Cruise officials are Dr. George Rohrer, safety officer; Dr. Charles K. Bruhl, fleet doctor; T. Don Clark, communications officer; Phil Brooks, flag and etiquette chairman; and Ken McLeod, district rendezvous chairman.

Co-chairmen along the way were Roy Rohrer, at Freeport; Herb Ulbricht at Palacios; Frank Colby and Ed Smith at Fulton; Phil Brooks, Bahia Azul; and T. Don Clark and Gene Lawson, at Port Aransas.

Boats and skippers taking part in the cruise were:

W. H. Hamrick, Chi Chi; Sam Mintz, Boats; L. I. Tavel, Belleview; Harry Dillashaw, Lady Eve; Raymond Devine, Betty K; Howard Noyes, Nautical Lady; Marshall Robinson, Cruzio; T. Clark Ruby C. II;

Toby Whitby, Scramble Two; Bob Stahman, Staco II; Bert Meine, Carranbe II; Jed Dailey, Cousie D; Roy Rohrer, Wessup; W. Scott Frost, Misery IV; R. F. Christy, Christy Su;

T. M. Keiller, Kitty II; Phil Brooks, Mohawk; L. Schumacher, Amigo II; W. H. Badger, Gold-digger; Ken McLeod, Lady Two; J. H. Modos, Dixiel; George Crate, Sea Fun; R. Cunningham, Miss Doree II; Vincent Smith, Dina-mo; Frank Colby, Mine Two II;

H. Ulbricht, Quinto; Harold Bigna, Hazel B; L. B. McManis, Delmac; Charles Steel, Cee Bee; William E. Ladin, Legal Eagle; W. B. Tilden, Tillie II; J. W. Harris, Edna H; E. W. Kimball, Honey Do; G. H. Turrentine, Honey; F. McCracken, Mary Mac; Walt Moshier, Wagnon; George Hodell, Flying Cloud; Ed Smith, Ruth's Rival II; J. Williams, Blue J; Carl Gren, Bernissimo.

Boats with the squadron whose owners were not identified included Miss Kate, Gypsy, Beverly Jean, Troller II, Sea Jay, Oroco, Lazy Daze, Tod II, Party Doll, Mr. Rock, Margaret L, Gerily II, and Lady Rowena.

The combined value of the boats on the cruise ranged between $500,000 and $700,000.

Tommy Picton, who has been attending the Summer Workshop, at Corpus Christi Minor Seminary, and was one of the prefects, has returned home to be with his parents and family, the Dick Pictons, for the summer.

Robert Arley Shivers, a student at Texas A&M, has been visiting his parents, Sheriff and Mrs. Arley Shivers and sister, Azalea.

Mrs. Nell Booth Has Belgian Art Treasures Here

Mrs. Nell Booth of Rockport has two most unusual bronze statues on her mantelpiece, her late husband's gift to her on their first wedding anniversary.

"We were living in Waco," Mrs. Booth said, "and I saw these in an electrical dealer's shop, and I wanted them very badly. But I didn't have enough money to buy them. My husband bought them for me as a surprise."

The bronzes are about 14 inches high, and one represents an old-time blacksmith at work; the other is a similar statue of a baker.

Both men are at work. The smith has one hand upon the bellows that forced the draft on his forge, and is standing before his anvil. The baker, naked to the waist, is loading an old-time bakery oven of masonry with big loaves of bread, using a long paddle to do it.

Research by friends of Mrs. Booth disclosed the fact that both were by a Belgian sculptor, Victor Rousseau, who was born at Fely-Arquennes, Hainault, Belgium, in 1865, and who started to exhibit his work when he was 25.

Rousseau later became a director and professor of the Brussels City Academy, and a member of the Royal Belgian Academy of Arts, and a number of his works are on exhibition in that country and in England where he was a refugee in World War II.

In Brussels Museum are his groups, "The Sisters of Illusion" and "Demeter." He was the sculptor who created the decorative figure on the Frangnee at Liege, the statue of "Nativity" and the Max Waller Memorial, one of which stands in the Place de Chancellerie of Brussels, the other elsewhere in the same city.

And he also is the artist who designed and carried out the monument signifying Belgian gratitude to England for the care of some 250,000 refugees during World War II. This stands on the Thames Embankment in London, close to Cleopatra's Needle.

He also created the War Memorial at Forest, near Brussels.

Of course, I didn't know all these things when I first saw the bronzes," Mrs. Booth said. "I just knew they were lovely and that it just as though I had to have them. And when my husband Fred gave them to me on that first anniversary, I was overjoyed."

Recently, a French friend of a friend walked into the Booth home, and became excited when he saw the statues. His father had been an art dealer in France, and the young man was familiar with Rousseau's work.

He tried to buy the bronzes, but he didn't have any luck.

"Many people have tried," Mrs. Booth said, "but they're not for sale at any price."

Former Rockport Woman Donates Scrapbooks On Area History To U of T

Newspaper clippings make up most of the 28 volumes of scrapbooks presented to the archives of the University of Texas library by Mrs. May Mathis Green Watson of Corpus Christi.

The 3,200 pages of scrapbook material, along with photographs and manuscripts, cover the operations of the Coleman-Fulton Pasture Co., also known as the Taft Ranch; the social, economic, and cultural life of Corpus Christi and the adjacent Gulf Coast area, and the activities of the Texas Federation of Women's Clubs from 1887 to 1959.

Most of the clippings are from The Corpus Christi Caller-Times, San Antonio Express, Taft Tribune, San Patricio County News, Rockport Pilot and Aransas Pass Progress.

Among the events covered are a 1909 visit to the Coastal Bend by President William Howard Taft, hurricane disasters of 1916 and 1919, significant activities of the Taft Ranch, its liquidation in the late 1920s and discovery of petroleum in San Patricio County in the 1930s.

Mrs. Watson was born in 1883 in Rockport. Her father, Thomas Henry Mathis, was a pioneer rancher in the Aransas-Refugio-San Patricio area and an influential citizen of that part of the state. He founded the town of Mathis in San Patricio County.

She was married in 1907 to Joseph French Green, who was superintendent and general manager of the Taft ranch until his death in 1926.

She moved to Corpus Christi after her marriage in 1928 to Harry H. Watson.

Mrs. Watson is co-author of a booklet on the Taft Ranch and the two towns it created, Gregory and Taft, and has written a number of newspaper articles. She is also an artist, best known for her sketches and paintings of South Texas and Mexican scenes.

SINKING ROCKPORT SHRIMPERS AND INJURED MAN MAKE IT IN

A fishing vessel in sinking condition made port at Port Aransas Saturday, and a crewman injured aboard the craft was taken to Spohn Hospital in Corpus Christi.

The Teet M. from Rockport radioed for help at 5:15 a.m. and a Coast Guard craft from the local lifeboat station went to lend assistance.

In the meantime, George Nava, Jr., 31, of Box 227 in Rockport, suffered a badly lacerated left hand when it was caught in the propeller shaft, and another Coast Guard vessel brought Nava into port.

The fishing vessel was 14 miles east-southeast of Port Aransas when she radioed for help. She made it into port under her own power, however, about 8:30 a.m., escorted by the Coast Guard craft.

JUNIOR ODDFELLOWS PLAN RUMMAGE SALE

The Junior Oddfellows plan a rummage sale to be held at the IOOF Hall on Saturday, July 7th; proceeds to be used in construction of the Band Shell on Rockport Beach.

Anyone wishing to contribute saleable articles, may call SO 4-6679 or SO 4-6893 and the items will be picked up for this sale.

COUNTY ATTORNEY RETURNS TO OFFICE

County Attorney Ellis Clark, after a siege in the hospital and at home, following a heart attack, is around the courthouse once more, for a few hours every day. Monday was his first day out in many weeks.

Brush Wagons To Be Rugged, Judge Says

Specifications Call for Powerful Equipment, Able to Go Anywhere, Carrying Own Water Supply

The specifications for the brush wagons needed by Rockport and Fulton fire departments to supplement their present fire equipment call for rugged powerful fire fighters, County Judge John D. Wendell said today.

Each of them has a 200-gallon rotary gear pump, mounted in front, the judge said, and they are provided with side discharges as well, for the firemen to use while moving and pumping.

Each of them has a reel on the stern that holds 150 feet of hose, with a SOS fog nozzle, and a 450-gallon booster tank to that it can carry its own water supply, and other necessary equipment. Equipped like this, and mounted on a chassis furnished by the county, the cost will be in the neighborhood of $9,000 each, Judge Wendell stated.

"They'll be mounted on rugged four-wheel drive equipment," he continued, "although, because we have to take bids, I can't say at this time whether it'll be Ford, Chevrolet, Dodge, International or some other make."

"As a matter of fact," the judge said, "I can't even tell whether we're going to have any of these things, for if that election authorizing the 30-cent ad valorem tax doesn't pass, we won't be able to buy them."

Additional equipment needed for each of the brush wagons will come to another $1,000 or so, the judge said.

This includes, pike poles, axes, crowbars, dry chemical extinguishers, back pack pump cans, and extra hose and fog nozzles.

Judge Wendell pointed out that practically the only way money can be obtained for this equipment is through a majority vote favoring the re-statement of the 30-cent ad valorem tax.

Tentative budget figures for next year show that, if the 30-cent ad valorem tax proposed as a means of financing fire department and library needs is voted in, a man owning a $10,000 homestead could save as much as $6 in county and state taxes in 1963, and needed facilities provided with no raise in taxes.

This would come about through a reallocation of the tax moneys collected, and figures have been prepared by County Auditor James Millikin to show why this is so.

At present, road and bridge and special road and bridge funds call for 22 cents a year, out of the money collected, by the county under its constitutional 80-cent level, and the special road and bridge tax voted a number of years ago. If the ad valorem tax is voted, funds from it can be used to release these two. The seven cent levy would go to the general fund, and the special road and bridge fund would not be collected.

The 1961 tax rate was $1.50, of which the county received 95 cents per $100 assessed valuation, and the navigation district 55 cents.

The county share of this was allocated as follows:

Road and bridge, 7 cents; special road and bridge, 15 cents; general fund, 52 cents; permanent improvement fund, 2 cents; mosquito control, 1 cent; courthouse and jail interest and sinking fund to retire bonds, 18 cents. Forty-five cents of the navigation district funds went for bond retirement; the other ten cents is for navigation district maintenance.

Under the budget plan proposed for next year, if the ad valorem tax passes, the total levy would still remain at $1.50 per $100 of assessed value, and would bring in the same amount of money, but would be allocated in this manner:

Farm to market roads and flood control, 30 cents; general fund, 57 cents; mosquito control, 5 cents; courthouse and jail interest and sinking funds, 18 cents; navigation district maintenance, 10 cents; and navigation bond retirement, 30 cents.

The 30 cents for farm to market roads and flood control would be furnished by the 30-cent ad valorem tax, which may legally be used for the same purposes as the road and bridge, and special road and bridge. The special road and bridge at 15 cents off the navigation district levy would be replaced by the 30 cents ad valorem tax.

On the face of it, there is no apparent saving, yet, Auditor Millikin's figures show that a man possessing a homestead with an actual value of $10,000 would actually pay less taxes than under the present set up.

Now, the homestead owner pays $30 a year in taxes on a property of this value. This money is divided as follows:

Road and bridge gets $140; special road and bridge funds get (continued on page 8)

REEL LIFE—Member of the film crew prepares to sound the clack boards before the next "take," as astronaut Capt. Virgil "Gus" Grissom appears in a documentary movie. The film was being shot at the Bermuda Tracking Station.

Harry Carter Writes Again from London

Mr. Harry Carter, lay minister from St. Peter's Episcopal Church is now visiting again in England, and, although he plans to be home about the 12th of July, took time out to write us another letter.

He says: Do you remember the story of the hillbilly who stood silently gazing at the tourist who was sprucing himself up outside the tent? Often watching the visitors to the mountains, hang a mirror on a tree trunk, complete a shave with shaving cream and after shave lotion, the hillbilly remarked: "Hey, mister, ain't you a lot of bother to yourself?"

It's a wonder the British of old did not feel that way when preparing a pot of tea. At least four stages were necessary in our house before the scalding beverage was poured. Heat the pot with boiling water, put in a teaspoonful for everyone and one for the pot, enclose the pot with sort of helmet called a cazy, wait ten minutes before pouring. There was also the slop basin into which fugitive tea leaves that had strayed into a cup were deposited before the second cup was poured.

I was reminded of all this when last week we attended a comical farce at the Whitehall Theatre in London entitled "One for the Pot." It is a fast-moving hilarious farce with a touch of satire as the following exchange of lines will illustrate: "I did not come here to be insulted!" I presume this is English humor. The Sunday Express calls the play "splendid Yany." Jersey, divided into 12 parishes is the largest of the group known as the Channel Islands that are tucked away unobtrusively nearer the coast of France than of England. They are in the Diocese of Winchester and are really part of England. St. Helier is the capital of Jersey, with a population of 28,000, about half that of the whole island. Guernsey, the next in size, has about 43,500 people, with St. Peter's Port, the chief city.

The beginnings of democracy were in evidence in these islands long before King John reluctantly signed Magna Carta in the year 1215.

The guide book says that "on the occasion of trespass on or against property, the aggrieved one, in the presence of witnesses and on his knees 'Help! My Prince they are wronging me.' In Guernsey, the cry is followed by the Lord's Prayer. On the cry being raised, every person concerned in the act complains of must cease operations immediately and allow the matter to be decided by the appointed court." The guide book states further that in 1087 the funeral of William the Conqueror was stopped until such a claim made in this manner had been investigated and allowed.

Here is a much more recent quotation. "Its in the book." "In 1918 an inhabitant who objected to a telephone pole being planted near his gate, raised the cry, and the Telephone Department had to come to terms with him or defend an action."

In Rockport I suspect, this matter would have been settled over a cup of coffee in a cafe.

All boarding establishments in Jersey, providing sleeping accommodations for more than five people must be inspected, described, graded.

The easy, quick access by phone has brought enormous crowds of tourists to these islands. Not only is St. Helier a free port, but, as in all the island group, the climate is sunnier than in England and the scenery exceptionally fine. Air and water are very much less than tropical, 60° yesterday, and the lifeguard who shares a table with me at this guest house, tells me he had to wrap a towel around his torso and get to leeward of a rock. A scot went water skiing today from this house. She tells us that the charge was one shilling per minute (about 14 cents), boat and skis provided. The operator clocks the customer from the word "go." Should the customer fall into the water, there is no reduction for ducking.

I think that with the ocean at its present temperature, I will pass up this sport and that work kiking looks very awkward.

Buddy Daniels left Saturday, June 30, for Blue Fields Nicaragua where he will work on the shrimp trawler, "Miss Linda," owned by Arno Paju. Enroute, he stopped over in Mexico City and Monagua. Buddy is a son-in-law of Clifton McElwee of Fulton.

Mrs. Edric Deason and Jackie visited in Brownsville and Baytown last week.

Mike Smith, son of Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Smith, who joined the Army June 20th, has been sent to Fort Leonard Wood, Mo.

The Pie is Steaming but the Kitchen's Not!

Everyone agrees that heat is the one thing we don't want to add to a kitchen in summer. Your kitchen will stay up to 16 degrees cooler when you cook with electricity. And you won't mind cooking good things in the oven with a cool, flameless electric range, because the heat is not wasted into the kitchen. Your electric oven requires no large vent so the heavy insulation keeps the heat inside. Roasts will stay juicy and all foods keep their proper moisture because the steam stays in, where it belongs.

See your dealer now about an electric range. Enjoy the many advantages of flameless electric cooking at low cost — less than $2 worth of electricity each month for the average family.

Mrs. Barnett Continues Travel Narrative of East

At six a.m. on May 14, we looked out the starboard side of our ship and there was world-famous Diamond Head, guardian of the island of Oahu, often called the "Gibraltar of the Pacific." Above and beyond were the high, rather barren mountains, with new subdivisions of homes climbing their steep slopes. Soon we were approaching the Oloha Tower, symbol of Hawaii's hospitality, where chimes play "Oloha Oe" on striking the hours. There on the quay was the Royal Hawaiian Band to welcome us to the islands. Also many people with leis in their hands, awaiting arriving friends. The lei is a symbol of Hawaiian friendship and is given on arriving or departing.

The Hawaiian Islands make up a chain extending 1500 miles in the Pacific. They consist of eight large islands and numerous small ones, some too small to be inhabited. They were ruled for many years by a line of kings, and two outstanding queens, but 1898, they asked to become a territory of the U. S. In 1959, they became the 50th state of the union.

The principal industries are pineapples, sugar cane, cattle and tourists. One of the first things we saw when the ship docked was the giant pineapple towering above the Dole plant. It is really a water tower, but how ingenuitive to turn it into a pineapple.

As we walked down the gang-plank, there were the beautiful Hawaiian girls in costumes doing the hula, to the accompaniment of a stringed band. But we could not tarry long to watch the show, as our bus was waiting to take us on a tour. Outside in the palm-fringed plaza were lei-sellers, all dressed in the muu-muu, the universal dress of women of all ages in the islands.

We drove through the old section of the city, Chinatown, with wooden buildings, soon to be torn down. It has twice been destroyed by fire, and now most of the buildings have been condemned, (Honolulu has "slum clearance," too).

The Jalina Palace, now serving as the State Capitol, is the only royal palace on American soil. It is a graceful two-story stone building with wide lanai or porch across the front. We were ushered into the Throne Room and seated on chairs of state to be given a talk by a gracious Hawaiian lady about the palace and the king who reigned there. When the legislature is in session everything in the room is dismantled and packed away to make way for its meeting in the chamber. In the plaza opposite the palace is the famous bronze statue of King Kahamehameha I, beloved of all Hawaiians. His figure clothed in a feather cape is the symbol used on street signs to indicate place of interest.

The Foster Botanical Gardens were of special interest to us. They contain trees and plants gathered from all over the world, all labeled with their names and places of origin. The hot house display of orchids was outstanding.

In the Bishop Museum, we found the world's finest collection of Hawaiian and Polynesian curios. One room was devoted to the gorgeous feather capes and head dresses used by the ancient kings. It is estimated that one cape alone required the feathers of 80,000 birds. Another hall was devoted to a display of weapons, utensils, handwork and cooking arrangements of the people of the islands. It even contained a life-sized grass hut, of the type used long ago.

One of the things about Honolulu which impressed us most was the beautiful residential districts. Actually the soil is arid with volcanic rock from three to six inches below the surface. Yet by hard work and the use of imagination and plenty of water, the island has been transformed into a flower garden. The houses, though attractive, are incidental to the beautiful yards. Each yard is perfectly planted and beautifully kept. There are flowering trees everywhere, plumeria of every color, whose blossoms are used in making leis, royal poinciana, shower trees, pink, yellow and rainbow, tulip trees and others. Many of the gardens are arranged in the Japanese style; sand, boulders and stone lanterns among the plants.

There was a note of sadness in our happy day when we visited the American Cemetery of the Pacific and saw the thousands of grave markers, each representing some young man who lost his life in World War II, or in Korea. When we walked among the graves we saw how very young most of these men were, and were impressed again with the horror and futility of war. There are 17,500 soldiers buried there. There is a section reserved for retired military personnel and their families, and for discharged veterans there are many, many Hawaiians buried in the cemetery and their graves are marked by bouquets of fresh flowers, put there by loved ones.

Still under construction is a very fine marble memorial with tablets inscribed with the names of all men missing in action in the Pacific Theatre.

The cemetery is located in the crater of an extinct volcano, called the Punch Bowl, one of the most perfect craters in the world. Beautiful plantings of plumeria and oleanders fringe the burial area.

Our drive took us around the base of Diamond Head to a look-out facing the Pacific. There we could see the indescribable colors of the water; all shades of blues and greens, topped by snow-white rollers.

Soon we were on the main avenue of Waikiki Beach, lined with luxury hotels, shops, restaurants and night clubs.

Wearily we returned to the ship from our morning tour of the city, and after a brief rest took a bus to the Ala Moana shopping center. This center is perhaps the largest anywhere in the United States. It is built on two levels with parking for thousands of cars. One can buy practically anything the heart desires. The center reflects the tremendous prosperity and growth of Honolulu. We were amazed at the growth that has taken place in the three years since we were here. Construction of apartments, homes, shopping centers, schools and super highways, seems to be going on everywhere one looks.

From Ala Moana we went to Waikiki Beach. The beach as well as the whole area is man-made, having once been a swamp. The unique feature of the surf is the way the waves roll in without breaking. With a little practice one may take a surf board and ride the crest of a wave almost all the way in.

Hawaiian entertainment is offered at many of the night spots. The show we saw featured Hawaiian folk dances, songs, a daring Samoan knife dance, and lastly, obviously thrown in for the benefit of the tourists, a hip vibrating routine that would make the most ardent twister pale. The suspense came in wondering whether the grass skirt is going to slip further from its already precarious position.

Back at the ship, we were given a farewell entertainment just before our midnight sailing. More hula songs and dances, and more hip vibrating.

We took our position at the ship's rail to watch the last-minute passengers dragging their feet up the gangway. Their leis were wilted and so were they.

The farewell Hawaiians give you really touches your heart. From the pier the orchestra plays and they all sing Aloha. The passengers all throw their leis in the water as a symbol that some day they will return.

It is a seven day sailing from Honolulu to Yokohama, that is seven days by calendar. Actually it takes only six days, as we cross the international date line and lose a day. Wednesday was the 16th and next day was Friday the 18th. We looked for yesterday's stock market reports in today's (Friday's) ship's newspaper but there were none because today is actually yesterday. It is all very confusing.

We go on and on at 23 knots per hour with an automatic steering device in charge of steering the ship (under the watchful eyes of the officers, however.) The sea is smooth and the temperature is around 76°. The lazy get lazier and the fat get fatter. We get so busy doing nothing, there is hardly time to read. There is plenty of planned recreation, such as calisthenics, deck games, swimming, music, movies and dancing.

People dress informally all day in shorts, slacks, sports clothes, but in the evening, they all appear glamorously dressed in tuxedos and dinner dresses, for dinner and the evenings' entertainment.

More and more we realize that a small segment of the American people are really world travelers. People we meet have been everywhere—some as many as three times around the world that is. Most of them are planning extensive European tours after we reach London.

Drinking is moderate on this ship, though most people seem to feel they must have their cocktail before dinner.

Among the fun events given this week was a country fair, given by the crew up on the wide sports deck. Each game cost only 6 pennies. The proceeds given to seamen's charities. It was a hilarious event with all the games of a midway and two brass bands. We were surprised to see the usually very dignified young men and women of the ship's staff dressed in every sort of costume and having the times of their lives. There were clowns, coolies, beatniks, London bobbies and hula girls. All the young folks on board "whooped it up," while we older one stood by and enjoyed the fun.

Today everyone is busy making paper leis for the Pacific Party, to be given this evening, where all of us can wear our Hawaiian buu-muu's, bright skirts, grass skirts or any other costume relating to lands bordering the Pacific. Early next Tuesday we reach Yokohama, and shall leave the ship for three days while making an overland tour of Japan. (continued next week)

ROCKPORT CONTINUES TO MAKE HEADLINES IN STATE'S PRESS

Rockport continued to make the headlines this past week, with an aerial photo and a short story in the Chronicle Rotogravure last Sunday, and an extensive article in the Woodsboro News. This will be presented to all the visiting newspaper men at the big convention to be held in Corpus Christi this week.

The Chronicle story was by Jack Baughman, with a photo by the Chronicle's flying photographer, Chaster Rogers, while the Woodsboro story came from material in the industrial survey of this area made several years ago for the Chamber of Commerce, which is now being revised.

And Tuesday, the Chamber of Commerce got a hurry up request from Bob Brister, of the Houston Chronicle, for information on the fishing in this area, to be used in a recreational issue of the Chronicle, probably next Sunday.

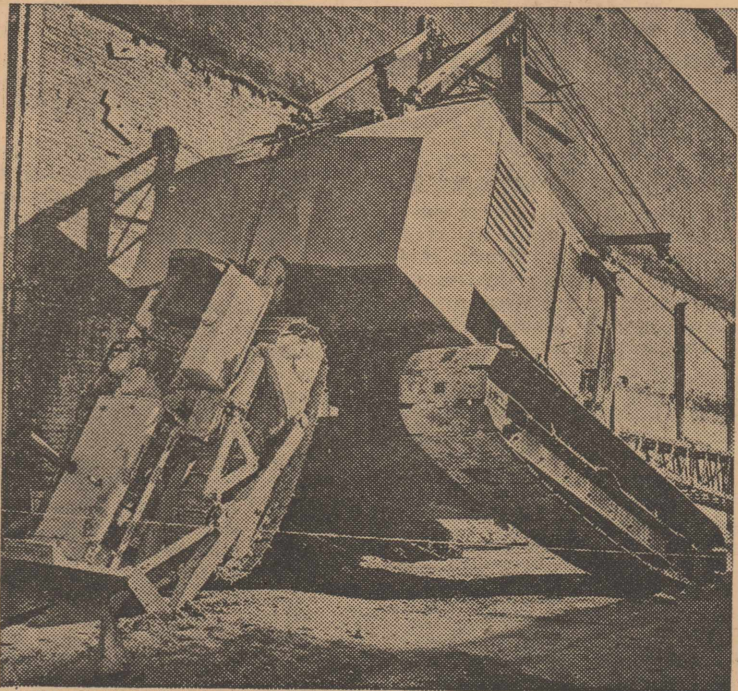

Add to these things the fact that in last Sunday's San Antonio Express there was a story and picture on the Chinese junk now in Rockport Harbor.

So, all in all, Rockport hasn't done too badly from the standpoint of publicity.

Mr. and Mrs. Jack Sparks spent the weekend in Houston with Mr. and Mrs. Rex Littleton. Becky Rouquette and Kay Sparks came home with them.

Mrs. Charles A. Roe, Jr., Teresa and Mrs. Floyd Smith were in San Marcos last Wednesday and Thursday. They went after Mrs. Smith's grand son, Bob, who will spend a week here.

BIG BULLY-DOZER—What looks like a fight between two mechanical monsters actually is the result of a freak accident. The small bulldozer was being used to help weight down the larger as it tried to lift its block-long boom. The boom was too heavy, and the weight lifted the cab off the ground, with the little one trailing behind in Dallas.

COUPLE SPEND GOLDEN WEDDING IN ROCKPORT VACATION

Mr. and Mrs. Duval Davidson, Sr., of Fort Worth, Mr. and Mrs. Duval Davidson, Jr., and son, Bill, and daughter, Mary, of Monahans and Mrs. T. W. Foster, of Pearlsall spent a week at Holiday Lodge in celebration of the Golden Wedding Anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. Duval Davidson, Sr. They reported a most enjoyable week at the Holiday Lodge and surrounding territory.

$3.00; $10.40 cents goes to the general fund; forty cents is allocated to permanent improvements; mosquito control gets 20 cents; the courthouse and jail interest and sinking funds get $3.60; the navigation district maintenance fund gets $2; and $9 of the money is used to retire navigation district bonds.

Under the proposed budget, using the 30-cent ad valorem tax, if it passes, the same homestead owner would pay only $24 per year. This would be divided in the following manner:

Farm to market roads and flood control, nothing; general fund, $11.40; mosquito control, $1; courthouse and jail interest and sinking funds, $3.60; navigation district maintenance, $2; and retirement of navigation district bonds, $6.

The difference lies in the fact that the farm to market and flood control levy does not receive any money from a man with a homestead with an actual value of $10,000, for there is a $3,000 homestead exemption for the ad valorem tax.

It will be noted that under the ad valorem tax set up the general fund of the county would gain 5 cents per hundred of assessed valuation, and this is the money that would be used.

Under the plan of financing worked by County Judge John D. Wendell and County Auditor James Millikin, time warrants would be issued and the money borrowed from the airport fund, to be repaid over a period of years from this five cent levy, which is perfectly legal to use for such a purpose.

Mrs. Dudley Prophet is in John Sealey Hospital, Galveston. She is in room 214, Unit D and would appreciate cards and letters.

C of C Speaker—

director, Louisiana Department of Highways will be on the program at the 7th meeting of the Louisiana-Hug the Coast Highway Association to be held at the Holiday Inn, Brownsville, Texas on Monday and Tuesday, July 16th and 17th, 1962.

Burgess will speak at a July 16th dinner opening the Association meeting, and Greer will address a luncheon on July 17th, concluding the session. Both men will be present for the entire two day get-together of coastal highway leaders from Louisiana and Texas. Both are expected to give progress reports on Hug the Coast Highway construction work presently underway.

More than 300 delegates from the two states will attend the Brownsville meeting at which the Association will for the first time distribute its own tourist and travel brochure. Both the Texas and Louisiana State Highway Departments, several travel associations and numerous oil company tour bureaus have been awaiting receipt of these 24 page booklets which will be available to them and the public for free distribution. Material for this was furnished by the Rockport Chamber of Commerce last year.

The Association, organized at Bay City, Texas in April, 1960, seeks the linking of the coastal highways in Louisiana and Texas under one common federal highway designation—preferably U. S. 11. This would make the Hug the Coast route a segment of a road extending from Upper New York State—just 40 miles from Montreal—down to Brownsville, Texas at the Mexican border. At that point the route connects with first class Mexican highways to Mexico City. Association leaders are already calling their road the "Montreto to Mexico City Highway." Presently the road in Louisiana follows U. S. 90 from New Orleans to New Iberia; Louisiana State Highway 14 to Abbeville and Louisiana Highway 82 to the Texas line. In the route follows the so-called Louisiana short line to Port Arthur; Texas Highway 87 to Galveston; Texas Highway 6 to Alvin; then Texas State Highway 35 (the original Hug-the-Coast Highway) to Port Aransas and Corpus Christi; then State Highway 44 and U. S. Highway 77 to Brownsville and Mexico. Ultimately the yet to be built Padre Island highway will also become a segment of the route—which is sometimes also dubbed the Blue Water Highway.

Rockport Publicity Continues to Emanate From C of C

Rockport publicity, emanating through the Chamber of Commerce, has reached a high point this past month, according to Chairman Jack Baughman, with wide spread dissemination of Sea-o-Rama news; a picture story on Rockport in the Chronicle rotogravure, and probably the largest individual write up on any city in the fishing news section issued last Sunday by Bob Brister in the Houston Chronicle.

The request for material to be used in this edition of the Chronicle was relayed to the Chamber of Commerce through Bob Conwell, Corpus Christi tourist organization head, and answered by pictures and a two page write-up listing the opportunities for fishing in this area, most of which was published.

In addition, the story from here on Rockport's seaweed-free beach secured wide publicity, appearing in the Caller, the Chronicle, the San Antonio Light, the Fort Worth Star Telegram, and going out over the wires of the Associated Press.

Numerous stories have appeared elsewhere, also. Latest is the one on Palm Harbor's prehistoric animals, which has been used by a number of newspapers throughout the state.

Baughman said that items of this kind always find a wide acceptance among editors, and urges that unusual snakes, bones, corpses, water-melons, candelopes and similar items be reported to him at the Pilot. People enjoy reading about these things, he said, and editors elsewhere will generally run such stories, keeping Rockport before the public.

Miss Elizabeth Pitts of Fulton, visited with friends in Freer last week.
