OKLAHOMA SAYS BALLEW'S DEATH TO BE PROBED

Widow Sending Man To Wichita, Reports State

"James Mathers has started for Wichita Falls representing Mrs. Ballew and friends, to investigate 'Bud' Ballew's death."

That was the contents of a message received last night by the Record News from the Daily Oklahoman of Oklahoma City, announcing that an investigation into the shooting of Ballew would be made.

Rumors current here earlier in the evening indicated that some person or persons representing Mrs. Ballew have been here for several days probing the affair.

Newspaper reports appearing Thursday in the Kansas City Star under an Oklahoma City date line, announced that former Attorney General S. C. Freeling of Oklahoma, and James Mathers, former county attorney of Carter county, had been retained by Mrs. Ballew and "Buck" Garrett to investigate Ballew's death. The report stated that Mathers would come here to conduct his probe, and that among others whom he would interview would be Tom L. Burnett of the Tri-Angle ranch.

Burnett Knows Nothing

In a conversation last night, Mr. Burnett stated that he did not know Mr. Mathers and that he had not seen him, and that if he did, "Mr. Mathers would be wasting his time, for I know of no information that I could give him."

Mr. Burnett stated that he was barely acquainted with Ballew, and that all he knew of the circumstances surrounding his death was what he had read in the newspaper reports.

His Name Not on Register

Chief of Police J. W. McCormick, who has been released on bond of $10,000 in connection with the shooting, made no statement when he was informed of the reported investigation last night at the police station. He intimated, however, that any investigation that might be conducted would reveal that all the circumstances have already been told.

Search of the local hostelries failed to reveal any person who might be connected with the reported probe, or who might have been here several days.

GASOLINE PRICE BOOSTED AGAIN

It'll Cost Autoists More Today

Gasoline, the juice that makes the modern buggies go, will cost Wichita Falls motorists, right in the middle of the greatest oil district in the world, just two bits a gallon, beginning this morning.

That became known yesterday when the Magnolia, Standard subsidiary, announced a two cent increase in the price of gasoline, to take effect today. Independents immediately followed suit.

This is an increase of a nickel a gallon since there has been an upward kick in the crude market, and representing an increase of slightly over 70 cents per barrel on the value of refined products since there has been an upward kick in the price for a barrel of crude.

GAS JUMPS UP IN DALLAS

By Associated Press.

DALLAS, Texas, May 18.—An increase of two cents in the price of gasoline bringing the retail price in Dallas to 25 cents, posted today by the Pierce Oil corporation, was met by the Magnolia Petroleum Oil company. Officials of the other companies said they had not as yet received any notice of an increase.

Ku Klux Dominant and Only Issue in Piney Woods Political Talk

Mayfield Apt to Run First; Culberson Is Picked as Second and Henry's Out.

By H. N. F.

HOUSTON, Texas, May 18.—Harris county and the territory of which Houston is the distributing point is the strongest and most militant in the Ku Klux Klan area. This condition in the public mind has been brought about by the bitter attacks in Houston proper made by the Chronicle on the Ku Klux Klan and the most aggressive battle waged for the Klan by Mayfield's Weekly.

A certain county office-holder was sure of re-election without opposition as regards the Ku Klux issue sometime ago.

Now he admits he probably made a political mistake by joining the Klan as it instituted a double daily newspaper fight on him. However, he still thinks he will win re-election and win even in Houston in spite of the newspaper attacks made on him alleging he is a Ku Kluxer which he has not denied.

Outside of Houston, and through the so-called Piney Woods country of southwestern Texas, and the Brazos Valley, the Ku Klux and anti-Ku Klux is an issue so strong that it is practically the only one mentioned in politics and the line-up at Beaumont, Port Arthur and Orange is almost as definite as in Houston. This may be said without fear of contradiction, the more militant the Ku Klux is the stronger the votes for Mayfield. There is no mistaking the fact that the militant Ku Kluxers who feel that they have been heralded abroad as undesirable citizens by judges, editors and preachers are on the war-path to prove that they are desirable citizens with the voting strength to elect a United States senator.

All the section is distinctly protestant and a church-going section in which outside the larger cities the church life is the social life.

It is an even bet that Mayfield is apt to run first in the field with Culberson second in this section.

Although the friends of Culberson and the friends of Thomas will not admit the possibility. There are Thomas men in this section however, who reluctantly say that he may run

MAINLY ABOUT People

Bonus is Walloped—Right Here at Home—Along With Miss Blanton

By H. N. F.

GIFFORD PINCHOT WON THE Republican nomination for governor in Pennsylvania. He smashed the old guard. He routed the bosses. He pulverized the Penrose machine in state and in the leading cities. He discussed state issues and gave little heed to federal issues.

George Washington Pepper won a senatorship. When Boss Penrose died, Governor Sproul named Pepper as his successor. Pepper voted for the vindication of Newberry. He declared against the soldier bonus. Congressman W. J. Burke, a Republican labor leader, was pitted against Pepper. Burke appealed for the labor vote; he appealed to the soldier vote. Peper's majority is 211,000.

THIS IS A VERDICT RETURNed by the people against the soldier bonus. Pepper is one of the foremost lawyers of Pennsylvania, a man of large wealth and an international reputation as an author and jurist and law writer. He was backed by the old guard.

Burke polled a tremendous vote but he was snowed under just the same.

COMING NEARER HOME, MISS Annie Webb Blanton declared for the soldier bonus. All other candidates declared against the bonus. Miss Blanton received less than 3,000 votes of a total of 28,000. Where were the former service men on election day? They did not rush to the ballot box in support of their only champion in the race.

There are thousands of former service men in the thirteenth congressional district. Are the former service men really in favor of the bonus proposed by American senators and congressmen who go before the people thus seeking renomination and re-election? Pepper refused to surrender to the former service men in Pennsylvania. He went over by a huge majority. Away down here in Texas a woman seeking election to congress consecrated herself to the bonus cause and in her home county, the home of young Colonel Alvin Owsley she ran third, and two rank outlanders run first and second.

NOW WHAT IS THE ANSWER? Colonel John Henry Kirby has a Southern tariff congress. Colonel Kirby and his lieutenants declared that the woods of Texas were crowded with protection Democrats and the prairies and ranges alive with them. Colonel Kirby's congress held a session in the city of Wichita Falls and three keen witted and expert politicul writers and propagandists came here from headquarters.

The writer has reference to J. A. Arnold, Mrs. Ida Darden and Vance Muse, all protective tariff Democrats. Charleston A. Kleinman lent the big three aid and encouragement. They figured out that with three Democrats in the running it was just as easy as falling off a log to put over a Republican-Independent. They had all the inside dope. They counted noses. The protection wave was sweeping over the district like a prairie fire.

ELECTION DAY CAME. GUINN Williams, running as a Woodrow Wilson free trade Democrat, gathered in more votes than all the other candidates combined and Guinn

Chickens Attacked By Flock of Frogs

BLACKWELL, Okla., May 18.—The Blackwell Tribune today investigated a report that carnivorous frogs were menacing chickens in the south portion of the city and found two residents of that section who declared they had been attracted by cackles of distress from the fowls to a nearby pond and found a large bull frog dragging a frying size hen into the water. The chicken was promptly rescued, but the people now say they are fearful that the "animals" will enter their homes and attack their children.

DID VALENTINO REALLY MARRY SECOND TIME?

That's What Officers Are Now Trying To Determine

By Associated Press.

LOS ANGELES, May 18.—District Attorney Thomas Lee Woolwine and Deputy District Attorney Tom McClelland, late today announced they would leave tonight for Mexicali, Lower California, Mexico where they will seek to verify the reported marriage of Rodolph Valentino and Miss Winifred Hudnut, with a view to instituting criminal process against Valentino for bigamy.

The officials will go via Palm Springs and will investigate a report that Valentino and the woman he wedded in Mexicali remained at a hotel there for a night or two following the wedding. They explained that the question of whether the two returned to California had an important bearing on future action.

Born In Italy.

Rodolph Valentino, according to his friends here, was born in Italy and there is no record available here to show that he has ever lost his Italian citizenship by naturalization although it was stated at his studio that he was commonly understood there to be an American citizen by adoption.

Valentino was married here in November, 1919, to Miss Jean Acker, from whom he was given an interlocutory decree of divorce January 10, 1922. His name was given in the marriage application as Rodolph Guglielmi and his place of birth as Italy.

Employed As Dancer.

He was then 24 years old. At the studio where he is employed it was said that the records disclose that Valentino had been born at Castell, province of Anita, Italy and that he was educated at Perugia. He came to America as a youth and was employed in New York and elswhere as a tango dancer. He entered motion picture work about the time of his marriage to Miss Acker in 1919.

To Probe Other Marriages.

Investigation of the marriage of two other prominent motion picture actors who took this step after obtaining an interlocutory decree of divorce and without waiting for a final decree, is under way, in addition to the inquiry into the marriage of Valentino, it was announced at the district attorney's office here today.

These actors are Frank Mayo and Henry B. Walthall, according to the district attorney's announcement. Mayo was married at Tia Juana, Mexico, after the granting of an interlocutory decree of divorce here. The bride of the second marriage at Tia Juana was Dakmar Godowski, daughter of Dr. Leopold Godowski, noted pianist.

Texas Mayors To Probe Utility Crisis

By Associated Press.

WAXAHACHIE, Texas, May 18.—E. R. Cockrell, mayor of Fort Worth, was elected president of the League of Texas Municipalities today at the closing session of the tenth annual convention here. C. H. Fulwiler, mayor of Breckenridge, was elected first vice president; E. E. McAdams, city manager of Bryan, second vice president; and O. B. Black, mayor of San Antonio, third vice president.

A comprehensive investigation of the public utility situation in Texas and the formulation of a plan for adequate regulation was authorized, following submission by a special committee of a report declaring the legal situation in regard to the utility control is in a 'tangled and dubious condition" and that recent supreme court decisions have raised entirely new questions.

Mayor Cockrell, who returned to Fort Worth tonight, expects to name tomorrow the committee of nine city officials to make recommendations to the legislature with regard to utility legislation.

The Bacharach bill was endorsed by the league and the governor urged to do all within his power to "relieve the financial crisis facing many schools."

Thousands of School Kiddies To Get First Taste Summer Freedom When School Stops This Morning

Ever hear that old, old rhyme:

"No more classes, no more books,
"No more teachers' saucy looks—?"

There are about 7,000 school kiddies in Wichita Falls who have heard it, and who remember it well.

And they've been looking forward to today for weeks and weeks, for this is the day that school is over for the summer months.

Ever sit in school just a couple of weeks before school's term was over and long for the beginning of that last day, and wonder how you'd feel, and what you would do, and how free it would all seem—and then suddenly there would come a pang of disheartening sickness, or some sort of feeling that reminded you that when school was over that that girl with auburn curls who used to sit across the aisle from you would be gone and that you would possibly not see her for three long months; and when you thought of that, it didn't seem quite so nice to be nearing the end, did it?

All those days—among the happiest of life—have been passing through the minds of the school children of Wichita Falls for the past weeks, until at last the final day, whose hours will seem to be ad infinitum to the tiny tot in the first grade as well as to the sophomore of the upper class, have drown to a sunrise.

And this afternoon, books by the bundles, trinkets and all the things that have remained in that desk all through the long nine months of the school year, will be bundled up and "school will truly be out."

Every school in the county will close, and many of the institutions over the county will celebrate the day with class exercises and other functions to which the parents will be the honored guests.

Merchant Marine Comes First In His Administration, President Tells Nation's Business Men

By The Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, May 18.—President Harding today told the chamber of commerce of the United States that the country "at this very moment is on the threshold of a new era"; that business is reviving and the "country is finding itself."

The government, he said, was greatly interested in restoration of normal world economic conditions and has no disposition to hold aloof from other nations. American industry, however, he said, should not be destroyed to build up the commerce of other lands.

The president declared there was no effort at constructive thought in the mind of the administration now which took rank over its desire to establish firmly and successfully an American merchant marine.

He doubted, he said, of the world war would have occurred had the United States possessed a merchant marine commensurate with the commercial importance.

"If there is any one realization," he said, "which fixes itself more firmly than another in the minds of one charged with great responsibility it is the conviction that the business life of the republic is the reflex of all its good fortunes. I think I can venture to say that commerce and civilization go hand in hand; and were it not for commerce there would be no civilization.

"From the viewpoint of one in authority and having responsibility comes another consideration.

"Commerce finds its place in all our considerations.

"Undoubtedly it had much to do with the bringing about of the world war and I think I can say just as confidently that it was never once forgotten in the negotiations for peace.

COAL OPERATORS WON'T PROFITEER

They'll Not Raise Price for Strike

By Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, May 18.—Coal operators from whose mines is coming the bulk of the non-union and open shop coal being produced in spite of the bituminous miners strike, agreed today with Secretary Hoover on an administration plan to prevent profiteering and high coal prices while the industry remains partially tied up.

The scheme adopted after Mr. Hoover told the operators—assembled in response to President Harding's invitation, that the "coal industry would either govern itself or the government would govern it," was drawn up in a formal statement by a committee of the operators present for reference to Attorney General Daugherty.

The plan will require the creation of clearing house committees in each producing coal district, made up of operators, consumers, representatives and a government agent who will supervise distribution of orders for coal and see that coal is sold direct to consumers at prices reasonable.

Cigar Causes Arrest Of Chicago Youth

By Associated Press.

CHICAGO, May 18.—If Willie Dalton hadn't smoked a cigar on his get-away journey from Chicago with $772,000 worth of bonds from the Northern Trust company, his capture might have been indefinitely delayed. Willie told the jury trying his case today.

How the cigar foiled the 17-year-old bank clerk, who walked out of the bank one noon for lunch, with bonds under his arm, was brought out in questioning by Assistant State Attorney Milton Smith.

"You say you smoked a cigar at Naperville," asked the attorney.

"Yes," was the answer.

"Do you often smoke cigars?" the attorney asked.

Willie smiled a wan smile.

"It made me sick," he explained.

"And delayed me. Otherwise—"

Here's Story of Rise of Wichitan Who Started 25 Years Ago With One Store and Who Now Heads Over Score

He Attributes Success of Mercantile Venture to Men Picked for Big Jobs

J. J. PERKINS

Just 25 years ago today a small store was opened in Decatur, Texas, the first business venture of a young man who as a boy only a few years before had walked from his home in Montague to Decatur to take his first job as clerk in a dry goods store.

Today that small store is represented by a syndicate of 25 retail stores and a large wholesale store, doing an annual business of over $15,000,000 in the place of the $27,000 record for the first year's business.

The young man who started this store was J. J. Perkins, Wichita Falls merchant, oil operator and capitalist, and the Wichita Falls store of Perkins-Timberlake in Wichita Falls is the finest of the chain.

First Year Profitable

It was after working for a time as a clerk for his brother-in-law, C. L. Mistrot, himself a member of a family of merchants, that Mr. Perkins decided to go into business for himself when his brother-in-law left Decatur. That small store was known as the "Red Front" store, and it had four people connected with it that first year. It did a good business for that time however, the gross business being over $27,000—nearly $28,000.

The year was a profitable one, and the next year, with the profits of the first, J. J. Perkins started his

Members of the mob, comprising nearly 2,000 people, then raised the body again, fastened it to a pine tree with trace chains and relighted the fire.

More than 200 shots were fired into the charred body following the boy's death.

Following the lynching of Atkins, the mob started out on a search for the negro he had named as his accomplice.

TIMBERLAKE IS GIVEN CREDIT

He's Director of Big Wichita Store

J. J. Perkins, Wichita Falls merchant and capitalist, whose 25th business anniversary and the 25th anniversary of the great Perkins string of stores throughout Texas occurs today, is the "daddy" of Newcastle, the thriving Young county town which was for many years the southern terminus of the Wichita Falls & Southern railroad. And, although he has been interested in nearly every industrial and commercial enterprise which has gone toward the upbuilding of Wichita Falls and northwest Texas, particularly since his moving to Wichita Falls 13 years ago, he probably takes more satisfaction in this fact than in any other of his accomplishments outside the founding of the great mercantile business which bears his name.

Newcastle was "put on the map" soon after it moved here in 1909, when he became associated with J. A. Kemp and Frank Kell, the builders of the Wichita Falls & Southern.

Interested in Coal Mines

Mr. Perkins became very much interested in the swing out of a town near Newcastle, and the developing of the bituminous coal mines at that place. He was largely instrumental for the organization of the Belknap Coal company, which opened the Newcastle mines, and he and Frank Kell are today the principal owners. Mr. Perkins is the principal owner of one of the Newcastle banks today, and has many other interests in and about that place.

Mr. Perkins' outside interests at the present time are largely confined to the railroad interests headed by Frank Kell, in which he is one of the principal stockholders, and in local oil and financial institutions.

He is an officer and director of the Wichita Falls & Southern railway, is a director and one of the largest stockholders of the City National Bank of Commerce, is a director and officer of the Empire Mortgage company, and of the Texhoma Oil & Refining company, one of the large independent companies operating in north Texas.

Oil Interests

In addition to his large Texhoma interests Mr. Perkins has great oil interests in practically all of the oil pools. Associated with Frank Kell and R. G. # FIREMEN PROTEST DECISION BY TAFT

By Associated Press.

HOUSTON, Texas, May 18.—A resolution introduced in the convention of the International Brotherhood of Firemen and Enginemen here today protesting the decision handed down by Chief Justice Taft declaring the child labor law invalid, was referred to a special committee.

The convention adopted a resolution calling upon delegates to contribute to the relief of Texas flood sufferers.

A motion that the brotherhood withdraw from the Chicago joint agreement was referred.

other brother, S. B. Perkins, into business at Kaufman, under the firm name of Perkins Brothers, and the largest dry goods store syndicate in Texas was on its way.

Stores have opened in succession after that at Commerce, Jacksboro and Quanah, and spread from those points throughout their sections.

String Gets Started

The stores in east Texas became the Perkins Brothers string, those spreading around Quanah became the Perkins Watkins stores (Frank Watkins was an early associate with J. J. Perkins) and the stores spreading from Decatur became the Perkins-Timberlake string after Frank Timberlake, nephew of J. J. Perkins, had worked his way to the top in several stores and acquired an interest in the business and became manager of the Decatur store.

The local store, the largest and finest in the chain, was not started until 1916, although there were stores in many other towns in the [illegible] and J. J. Perkins had active large interests and moved his home here seven years before that time.

At present the Perking-Timberlake string numbers seven stores, at Wichita Falls, Decatur, Jacksboro, Vernon, Frederick, Okla., Electra and Bowie. The Perkins-Watkins company has four stores at Quanah, Altus, Okla., Childress and Chillicothe.

14 in This Group

The Perkins Brothers string consists of a wholesale store at Dallas with 14 retail stores through east and north Texas. The great and uninterrupted success of the business speaks for itself as to the merchandising ability and straight dealing with the public exhibited by the founder of the business and those he has associated with him, and it is the latter to which J. J. Perkins personally attributes the great part of his success.

"No one man could have ever made a success of running all of these stores. I attribute my success in business to the ability of the men whom I have picked as my associates and to their ability in picking their assistants," he has declared on many occasions.

MAINLY ABOUT PEOPLE

is a stockman as well as vice-president of the First National Bank of Bowie, president of the First National Bank of Mineral Wells, president of the First State Bank of Perrin, president of the Bridgeport State Bank, president of the Paris State Bank, on the staff of the commander in chief of the sons of Confederate Veterans of the state, grand junior warden of the Masonic order in Texas, interested in the livestock industry in many counties and state senator representing the counties of Denton, Montague and Wise.

And, of course, brief mention could be made of the fact that he is a member of the state board of managers of the Anti-Saloon League of Texas, Colonel John Henry Kirby, the Southern tariff congress, the keen witted attaches of the congress and the Republicans and Democratic protectionists pushed the cause of protection along and Mr. Orville Bullington received less than 2,000 votes.

Warren G. Harding received 7,000 votes in the district in 1920, and there was a heavier vote cast to fill the congressional vacancy than was cast in 1920 when Harding and Cox carried the standards of the Republican and Democratic parties. Did the Republicans hide out on election day? Did the protection Democrats hide out? Of course Cooke county gave Guinn Williams an overwhelming vote. This is easily accounted for. Guinn Williams was born in Mississippi.

Joseph Weldon Bailey was born in Mississippi. Bailey's followers never say die in Cooke county. Charles F. Spencer fought for Guinn Williams. Joseph Weldon Bailey and Charles F. Spencer are political and personal friends. W. S. Moore got out of the race. He says he is coming back for the long term. Will he come back but back to the main issue: Is the soldier bonus popular with the rank and file in Pennsylvania or Texas? Is there such a thing as a protective tariff Democrat on election day? Is Colonel John Henry Kirby still of the opinion that there is an army of protection Democrats under the skies of Texas?

WE'RE ON—

We in America are commercially a great people and we ought to be. I like to say I believe we are unexcelled in genius, we are incomparable in our industry and we have the talent and the determination—the right of self determination—to be commercially one of the foremost nations of the world.

"If I were to bring only admonition to you I will be like to change my mind and women of influence and in particular with the task of eliminating from American commerce those who do not have conscience, whose conscienceless practices bring that criticism which sometimes attends our American activities.

Less Government

"Something has been said and I think opportunely said, that we want a period in America with less government in business and more business in government. If the commerce of America were always conscientious there would never be a single excuse for government in American business.

"Commerce cannot be adjusted alone to the fortune of the captains of industry. There must always be a thought of the great mass without whom there could be no productivity on the one hand and little consumption on the other.

"And I beg to remind you that the great world war would have been a complete waste, an utter sacrifice of every effort, if we did not find the great human procession on a little higher plane than that which it followed before. And American commerce must keep that in mind. There never will be a time when you can go back completely to the old order of American industry and exchanges in trade.

"I say this because at the very moment we are on the threshold of a new era. I undoubtedly there is more than a mere business revival in sight. Our country is finding itself again.

"Business is reviving and we are soon to resume our onward sway and I admonish you of the larger responsibility to keep in mind the new state of human affairs and the awakened aspirations of men.

"I do not think that any business can permanently succeed that is not honest.

"I am happy to come today because this is merchant marine day on your program. I am happy to come because there is not a constructive thought in the mind of the administration at this time which takes rank over that of a desire to firmly and successfully establish an American merchant marine.

An Insight on Business

"I do not know of a nation in the world that ever attained eminence in trade without it was eminent as a carrier of trade.

"No thoughtful producer turns to kill competitor for his deliveries, and you may apply that to nations. Just now the American republic finds itself in an unusual situation. During the world war we built ships and ships and ships. We expended billions to enlarge our shipping to meet the war need and peace found us the owner of the second largest tonnage in the world. We found government in business, not fortunately in business, either, so far as the merchant marine is concerned and so we are asking the congress to give us a merchant marine law under which we hope to put government out of the shipping business and under which we hope to put America conspicuously on the pathway of the seas.

"This is essential, not only for expending commerce, but it is exceedingly essential for American defense.

"I hope to see the day come when we may carry our products under the American flag with our messages of peace and good will to all parts of the world.

"I know you are interested in world restoration. So is your government. But I beg to remind you we must always be right at home before we can be very helpful abroad. We do not mean to hold aloof; we want to play a great nation, aye, a great people's part in the world. I do not know of anything that would help more than to give the world an example of a commercial nation with an abiding conscience."

KU KLUX—

behind Mayfield. Moreover, the Ku Klux vote will go practically ninety-five percent to Mayfield in this section. Henry was never accepted by the Ku Klux as a possible victor.

Impartial people in this section report that Mayfield has made an excellent impression by his speaking and has actually added to his Ku Klux strength somewhat by hammering on the railroad rate issue. People through the Houston trade territory, because of the flood and the depression in lumber and rice are pretty hard up and are looking for racks on which to hang their hats of misfortune. No one has projected a hat rack except Mayfield, he blaming the high freight rates and this has actually given the depressed ones something to blame.

For instance, Smithville in Bastrop county will go practically 100 per cent for Mayfield because the business men believe that the railroad shops were kept in that town through Mayfield's efforts and the railroad workers want to see the railroad rates sliced because their wages were sliced.

His Speech Well Received

Mayfield's speech at Lockhart was very well received. Consequently the man who thinks that Mayfield can not be elected because he has only the Ku Klux vote and then goes on the proposition that the Ku Klux vote can not elect, may be on the wrong track as Mayfield has presented the only economic issue, that of railroad rates. Incidentally, many people have been saying that Senator Culberson should put into the proposition a more vigorous physical body. From the standpoint of good looks and stature Mayfield is in position No. 1. Thomas does not stack up within 50 pounds of him, and there are scholars who say they are scientists who insist that women are new voters and that the impression upon the voting mind which has not been in the habit of digesting abstract principles is bound to have some weight on the feminine mind for some years to come.

This did not influence the feminine mind in the congressional election in the Thirteenth district, where State Senator Guinn Williams won the prize. Judge S. A. L. Morgan is tall, stately and commanding in appearance, and was the most eloquent of all the contenders. He ran a miserable second and the women voters of the district on election day appeared to have forgotten that there was a woman candidate in the race. She received less than 2,500 votes with 25,000 women voters in the district.

LLOYD GEORGE TRYING HARD TO "SELL" AMERICA

Others Also Hope to Have Yankees In At The Hague

By Associated Press.

GENOA, May 18.—The American ambassador, Richard Washburn Child, and Premier Lloyd George conferred again this evening concerning the American attitude on The Hague conference, and again hope was expressed among all the delegations that the United States will participate.

After formally adopting the plan of The Hague meeting and affirming the continuance of the truce throughout The Hague discussions and for four months thereafter, the economic conference did no other business today. The delegations are preparing to leave soon after the plenary session, which will be devoted chiefly to speech making.

Interest centers in the addresses of the British prime minister and M. Tchitcherin, head of the Russian delegation.

Lloyd George will speak after most of the other delegations have been heard and will endeavor to make his remarks a reply to them.

After the close of the plenary session the British delegation will give a luncheon to the Italian press, at which Lloyd George will make another address. The British and American press associations representatives, Premier Facta and Foreign Minister Schanzer will also be guests.

The British delegation will leave for London immediately after the luncheon. The Russian delegation will not leave before Monday.

There are many rumors that the soviet may conclude other agreements before they proceed to Berlin.

Several members of the bolshevik delegation intend to remain in Berlin until it is time to go to The Hague, and important developments are expected concerning Russian relations within the next few weeks.

A review of the conference shows that it never was quite able to recover from the shock of the separate treaty with Germany and Russia concluded on Easter Sunday. A collective agreement with Russia was one of the great aims of the Genoa deliberations and the sudden announcement that Germany had negotiated an agreement alone with Russia engendered suspicions among the powers which have never been removed.

Reconstruction Falls

The ultimate aim of the conference, namely, the reconstruction of Russia, where it is asserted 30,000,000 people will perish this year for want of food, has failed of achievement, though something may be done at The Hague. It has failed mainly because of the diametrically divergent views of the Russian soviets and western capitalists.

BEAUTY SPOTS

No. 3 of Series.

Nestling against a background of cool picturesque green, the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. W Silk, 1700 Tenth street, built of grey brick and architecture of the California bungalow type with double garage of the same kind, is truly one of the beauty spots of Wichita Falls.

A spacious lawn of bermuda grass generously sprinkled with shade trees surrounds the house, shrubbery of several varieties dividing the front from the back yard. Neat rows of hyacinths, roses and other flowers of gorgeous coloring surround the walks and house.

An inviting spot in the back of the front yard is a latticed summer nook, trellised with Dorothy Perkin's roses and trumpet vine. Both ramblers are now in full bloom, their delicate colors blending with the surrounding green of various shades. Benches and lawn swings are arranged in this spot.

Many shade trees in the parking give the finishing touches to one of the most beautiful homes in the city.

Tomorrow, Mr. and Mrs. W. W Silk's neighbors, Mr. and Mrs. Clint Wood's home will be described in "beauty spots."

POEM OF DAY

THE GARDEN

With a step so slow and stately,
Walking leisurely, sedately,
Came she to the sunny garden, with its radiant rosy bowers.
This way, that way, coyly glancing
At the blossoms so entrancing,
Yes, she thought that no one saw her as she walked amid the flowers.

Oh, she thought that no one spied her,
But that solace was denied her.
For, alas, to that fair garden, edict stern her path had barred.
So she fled in wildest panic.
As she heard a voice volcanic
Saying "Chase that pesky hen out!
See, she's digging up the yard!"

—Elsie Duncan Yale in the Country Gentleman.

Little Stories for Bedtime

By THORNTON W. BURGESS

(Copyright by J. G. Lloyd.)

Peter Rabbit hopped up the Lone Little Path brim full of news that Danny Meadow Mouse had a family. He fairly ached for some one to come along to whom he could tell it. Peter just loves to tell news. But no one did come along and Peter kept on, all the time watching out over so sharp for a little wee, lost Meadow Mouse. Way over on the Green Meadows he heard a frightened yelping growing fainter and fainter. He sat us as high as he could to look and way off in the distance he saw a black-and-white dog running so fast that his ears flapped. His tail was between his legs and he was crying "Ki-yi-yi! ki-yi-yi!" at the of his voice.

"Wonder what ails him," thought Peter. "Serves him right anyway. He had no business down here on our Green Meadows. I never could understand what possible good a dog is anyway. He is always poking his nose in and making trouble for the rest of us. There come the Merry Little Breezes and perhaps they know what it is about."

Sure enough there came the Merry Little Breezes of Old Mother West Wind dancing over the tops of the grasses. They were coming from the direction of the little dog and they seemed to be very merry and happy about something. As soon as they saw Peter they danced over to him.

"What's the matter with that little dog?" demanded Peter.

"He met Black Pussy and he didn't like the meeting. In fact, Black Pussy has frigthened him most to death and that is why he is running so fast," they replied.

Peter grinned. "I'm glad that Black Pussy is of some use," said he, "though for my part I had about as soon have the dog around as her. Now I wish something or somebody would come along and give her just as bad a scare as she has given that little dog. By the way, have you heard the news?"

"What news?" asked the Merry Little Breezes, looking at Peter suspiciously. You see Peter's news sometimes proved to be no news at all.

"Why about Danny Meadow Mouse! He has a wife and family!" Peter fairly shouted it.

Instantly the Merry Little Breezes crowded about Peter and demanded to know how he knew, and said that they didn't believe it because they didn't see how Danny could have kept it secret from them so long.

"It is so!" Peter was just a wee bit provoked to think that they should doubt his word. "Danny told me so himself. More than that he told me that one of his babies has run away and is lost. He's out hunting for it now, and so am I." Peter made ready to move on.

The minute Peter mentioned the lost baby Meadow Mouse the Merry Little Breezes became very much excited.

"That is just who Black Pussy caught!" declared one.

Peter looked startled. "What is that you said?" he cried.

Then the Merry Little Breezes told him how they had found Black Pussy tormenting a wee terribly frightened Meadow Mouse, and how they led the little black-and-white dog to where Black Pussy was just in time to save the wee Mouse, who ran away and hid, while Black Pussy was chasing the dog.

"But where is he now?" asked Peter.

The Merry Little Breezes shook their heads. "We don't know," they confessed. "We followed Black Pussy to see the fun and when we got back the little Mouse was nowhere about, although we hunted everywhere. If we had known he was Danny's baby we wouldn't have left him at all. We'll have to make up now by helping in the hunt."

"That will be splendid!" cried Peter happily.

And with that they all scattered to hunt for little Mite, the lost baby of Danny Meadow Mouse.

HOUSTON, May 18.—Little more than a month ago Jack Darling, a circus clown, rode a cow-catcher of a fast passenger train from Dallas to Houston in order to plead guilty to a stolen automobile charge.

Today, shortly after he had completed a 30-day sentence, a search was instituted seeking his arrest on a charge of impersonating a federal officer just after he was released from jail and obtaining $45 by such impersonation. His home is in Trenton, Missouri.

BIG STEERS'LL HAVE TO BE DIPPED TOO

By Associated Press.

FORT WORTH, May 17.—Request of south Texas cattle men that big steers be eliminated from systematic dipping for ticks in zone three until August 1, will probably be denied by the livestock sanitary commission, it was stated here today by attorneys for the commission. The argument against granting the plea is that such action, in extending favor to one class of livestock, would disrupt the entire system of dipping.

MOTHER TRIES TO SUICIDE

Miss Kittie Martel.

(By Central Press)

CHICAGO, May 18.—The long, lost trail of Mrs. Kittie Martel in search of her husband, her child and happiness ended here when she was taken to a hospital cot suffering from poisoning.

Pretty and just turned twenty-two, Kittie was happy in her Philadelphia home until her husband left her. For when he left he took with him their two-year-old child, Geraldine.

Days passed into weeks. Weeks into months. And George Martel did not return.

Then one day word came that he was in New Orleans with the child. With the few dollars she had saved she bought a ticket for the southern city. The trip was fruitless. She was penniless.

Once in the past she had been a phone operator. So she again turned to the switchboard which she had forsaken for a home.

She wrote his relatives, her relatives, their acquaintances. Finally word came her loved ones were in Chicago. And to Chicago she wended her weary way.

Here she weakened. Police found her near death from poison she had taken to end her vain search.

FASHIONS

The Strap Shoe is Here to Stay, Say Stylists.

Just about the time we all make up our minds that the trend in apparel for women is toward sports and masculine effects generally, especially in footwear, the shop windows bring out great arrays of dainty shoes and slippers so wholly feminine in style, coloring, and general line that we have to revise our opinions as to what is what on the subject of fashions. The sketch illustrates four smart shoes designed for summer wear, each distinctly feminine.

The upper one is one of the popular novelty straps an openwork effect being worked out in the forming of the strap. The shoe is patent leather model. The next shoe is of the Greek sandal type, low as to heel, but dressy in the fabric and leather combination, white kid and brocade being blended in this shoe.

The white kid pump next in line has novelty tongue of black kid, and the sports shoe at the bottom of the group demonstrates the continued leaning to two-color and two-leather combinations in shoes of this type.

The strap slipper certainly seems to hold the center of the stage, if not to occupy practicaly the entire style stage, this season. The number of Oxfords seen on a day's journeying, whether in the shop windows or on the feet of pedestrians, is indeed small when compared to the number of strap models seen. That the vogue has a strong hold is indicated by the fact that designers of shoes are playing up the strap styles as leaders for next fall. Strap shoes are certainly becoming to the feet, usually comfortable, and easier to get into than a shoe that has to be laced and tied, so why shouldn't they have a long reign of favor?

Sensible heels are the order of the day, whether for sports or dressy wear, the most extreme heels seeming low compared to many that were worn a few years ago.

Watson Protests Conviction of Man

By Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, May 18.—Protest against the conviction in France of Captain Rosser C. Maline of Albany, Ga., for killing a fellow officer who had broken up his home, was made in the senate today by Senator Watson, democrat, Georgia, after he with Senator Harris, democrat, Georgia, and Representative Park, democrat, Georgia, had visited the war department.

Senator Watson said that Captain Malone was sentenced to 20 years imprisonment by military court martial, although the senator asserted, the offense was beyond the powers of a military tribunal. Citing the constitution, the articles of war, and other statutes, Senator Watson contended that military court had no jurisdiction over other than military offenses. He said all such convictions should be set aside.

DEALING IN FUTURES

DEMOCRATS of the Thirteenth Congressional district decided by their ballot that they did not want a woman to go to Washington as the successor of Lucian W. Parrish.

Their verdict was sweeping. Perhaps 28,000 men and women voted.

Miss Blanton ran a miserable third away down close to the tail end of the procession of defeated candidates. Now students of political conditions and the psychology of defeat are asking what effect the defeat of Miss Blanton will have when it comes to selecting a democratic nominee for the office of state superintendent of public instructions. Her defeat in the congressional race was overwhelming.

Now will it be possible for a chief clerk or assistant to win the nomination to the position Miss Blanton now fills in the July primary? Or will the voters or a majority of the voters decide to pick an unknown or a man or woman who has never been connected with the state department of education?

Political observers tell their own story. If Miss Blanton had won the congressional race it would have been "all hail the winner" and this would have extended all down the line to her choice in the race for state superintendent of public instruction.

Politics is a funny game, a fascinating and a brutal game.

Ever the winner is acclaimed; ever the loser is overlooked.

Congressman Thomas Lynn Blanton invaded the Thirteenth Congressional district and made forty speeches. Mr. Blanton had a perfect right to do this. His sister was a candidate for a high office and blood is or should be thicker than water. He did not say that he invaded the district to urge the voters to support his sister nor did he advise them to send her to congress as their representative.

Read between the lines all his speeches had the same ring and told the same story. He had been fighting for the cleansing of the augen stables at the capital of the nation and he needed an assistant. He knew he said if elected that his sister would make the people an ideal representative.

It's ancient history now. Miss Blanton met with a defeat that was almost humiliating when one realizes that there are more than 25,000 qualified women voters in the Thirteenth district.

Did Blanton help his sister by his speeches?

Did Blanton drive voters away from his sister by his speeches? These are questions that are asked everywhere in the state.

Before leaving for Texas, Mr. Blanton on the plea that he had been overworked for five long years begged for a leave of absence. It was granted. He came to Texas and he overworked himself during his stay but if he made votes for his sister who was the candidate of his choice for congressional honors in a district not his own then Miss Blanton must have been without followers when the brother opened his speaking campaign in her behalf.

She is a splendid sportsman or sportswoman. This is what she said to a newspaper correspondent after her arrival in Austin following her rejection of the voters at the polls: "The result reminds me of the story of a little girl who prayed to God to make her beautiful. He didn't. I prayed to the voters of the district to elect me to congress. They didn't. That's all."

Thomas L. Blanton must go before the people of the Seventeenth district for a renomination. There are three well known democrats of his district who have announced as candidates. Judge J. W. Cunningham is in the field. Former Congressman Oscar Calloway is in the field and there is a young soldier, a resident of Brownwood, who won praise for heroic services in France who is going to be in the field.

In the old days when a plurality nomination carried off the honor Blanton would have been safe. Now a majority nomination must be won and Blanton has three aggressive and well known rivals in the field.

Cunningham is a trained speaker and a man of courage.

Oscar Calloway is one of the best rough and tumble debaters in Texas and the young soldier who is to be backed by the democrats of Brown county is said to be unusually well informed, an eloquent orator and popular with the former service men of his district.

Miss Blanton gambled for a congressional nomination. She lost. Her brother came to her assistance and made an adroit speaking tour of the district. He went down in defeat when his sister went down in defeat.

Miss Blanton has served two terms as state superintendent. Will the democrats of Texas name her chief clerk in July? Mr. Blanton is serving his third term. Will the voters of the Seventeenth district place him in the run-off in July and then shut him out of congress in August?

There are men in the Seventeenth district who had regarded their congressman as invincible. The result of the election in the Thirteenth district must have been a surprise as well as an eye opener to those political idolators.

There the Blantons went down. They fought heroically and were smothered. They are among the great army of the defeated.

Can they come back—first in the July primary in the naming of a state superintendent and lastly in the August run-off when Blanton maybe face to face with an aggressive campaigner who will have the backing of his own followers as well as the backing of those who were shut out at the ballot box in the July primary, in a fierce contest for a congressional prize?

DR. CRANE'S EDITORIAL

GEMUETHLICH

GEMUETHLICH is a German word which means comfortable.

It also carries with it a number of connotations of things German, which is why I use the word.

I have recently spent some six weeks in Germany, and I have never been more physically, intellectually, and morally comfortable in my life.

In the first place, every person with any claims to intelligence ought to recognize the fact that there are two classes of German people, just as there are two classes of any other kind of people. One is the class that brought on the war—the class steeped in mediaeval ideas, drunk with monarchism and militarism and rotten with ideas of conquest, the obverse side of which is cruelty and ruthlessness. There is no doubt there is such a class as this in Germany and they deserve all the cursing which the world can give it.

But there is another class, which includes the great body of the German people. There are law-abiding, hard-working, fair-minded and gentle folk. You will meet one hundred of these to every one of the other kind.

Under democracy in time this better class of German people will come to the top, and it is the duty of all allied nations to help them arise and shake off the dominance of their old and vicious rulers. Germany has sense enough to get rid of monarchy without flying into Bolshevism, as Russia did, if the other nations of the world will help her.

But, speaking concretely, life in a German city, to any one who is not interested in politics but rather pursues business or art or some other non-combative calling, is distinctly pleasant.

In the second place, the Germans are clean, their houses are clean, their doorsteps are clean. Naturally there are exceptions, but I speak of generalities.

And then the German people—that is, the common people, as the stranger finds them—are what the Italians call simpatico. That is, they are kindly and gentle.

The hotel servants are industrious and polite. The shopkeepers are genial and obliging. The man on the street is courteous. And altogether the impression of the populace is that it is composed of regular human beings.

We must do what we can to get rid of the vast and septic hates which the war created. To do this we should keep in mind that the vast majority of the German people were victims of an ancient and evil system, of a diseased partiotism, and that these noxious influences are not by any means confined to Germany.

Before the war those Germans who lived in the United States were considered among our best class of immigrants. There is plenty of the same class in Germany, and the problem of the future is to assist that class to its rightful precedence.

There was a larger vote cast in the Thirteenth Congressional district on Saturday, May 15, to name a congressman than was cast in November, 1920, in the district to name a president of the United States. Now what happened to the 7,000 republicans on election day? Where did they go? Did they go to the polls? If so, who was the man of their choice? More than 4,000 must have cast their ballots for a free trade democrat.

---

If you have any kind words to say, say 'em now.. Epitaffy has no value.

---

The writing men are telling us everything about Genoa except the gold sources of the diplomats.

And yet many an ardent advocate of democracy feels offended if the waiter doesn't show him proper deference.

Darn Germany. She doesn't show a proper willingness to co-operate with those who hate her.

Factors in Suggestion

By H. ADDINGTON BRUCE

Everybody is more or less suggestible. That is a psychological truism which not everybody appreciates. Still less generally is it appreciated that there are certain conditions under which the suggestibility common to all tends to be increased.

People, for example are more than ordinarily suggestible when they are fatigued. And, after all, it is not surprising that this should be the case.

To be suggestible, I might recall, means readiness to accept uncritically ideas presented to the mind, whether presented by a person, a letter, a book, a picture, or anything else in one's environment. Naturally, when one feels fatigued he is not in a mood to examine ideas critically—is, for that matter, to some extent incapacitated from thinking hard about anything.

So that even ideas which he would promptly reject were he fully fit physically may find acceptance by him if fatigue oppresses him. This is the more likely to result if, instead of being merely fatigued, he is in poor health.

For ill-health causes to still greater measure than fatigue an inability and unwillingness to exert the mind energetically. It may cause a positive clouding of the judgment, so that for the time being it is exceptionally difficult to draw correct inferences and reach sound conclusions.

Again, there is likely to be a temporary heightening of the suggestibility immediately after meals, and especially after meals that are unusually hearty.

Such meals cause a drowsiness which has a decline to reasoning power as an inevitable accompaniment. And similarly during the first stages of digesting any meal—when the blood flow is directed more vigorously to the stomach than to the brain—the power to reason is to some extent diminished. As reasoning power wanes, suggestibility rises.

All of which is not merely of theoretical interest. It has some very practical implications which it would be well for everybody to keep firmly in mind.

Thus, one aware that sugestibility tends to increase with fatigue, in ill health, and after eating, will wisely see to it that so far as possible he avoid business discussions of any great importance when fatigued out of health, or immediately following a meal.

For he will know that under any of these conditions he will be more suggestible than usual. This means that he will the more readily agree to, the less critically examine, anything said to him. And als interests may suffer as a consequence.

For the same reason, unless necessity compels, he will avoid reading any written business proposals when fatigued, when ill, or when just up from the dining table. He will rightly fear that the suggestfbility of the moment may sway him to pass favorably on that which, if he were his usual critical self, he would reject.

ONE THING SURE

One thing is true, when other things are lies—the taxes rise, and higher still they rise. I view the past, the golden yesteryear, when twenty bones would make my record clear. Yea, twenty bucks would cover all tax, and yet I yelled like forty-seven yaks. "The government," I used to sadly say, "just holds me up, and bears my wad away." A hundred bones, where once I coughed up ten. I now dig up for tax-collecting men; assessors come and cinch my bottom plunk; this thing is true, though other things be bunk. And yet, perhaps, if taxes were to shrink, the land we love would soon be on the blink. We're paving roads, and building finer schools, and ornate jails to house bootlegging fools; the money goes, blown in with princely grace, to make the world a nobler, better place. If this is true it is not wise to roar because we're cinched far tighter than of yore. If this is true, we should be dead game sports and gladly help our colleges and courts, help build the jails and boost the football team, while banners float and eager eagles scream. One thing is true, when other things are lies—if there's no gas the motor always dies. —(Copyright, 1922, George Matthew Adams.)

Operators Seek to Get Wages Lowered

By Associated Press.

NEW YORK, May 18.—Representatives of the anthracite coal operators today proposed that the miners accept wage reductions averaging 21 per cent in settlement of the strike called last April 1. The offer was refused point blank by leaders of the miners' organization headed by Phillip Murray, vice president of the United Mine Workers of America.

Red Geraniums

Leora Hawkins was late, after having carefully planned to be on time. But she had caught her voile skirt on a nail as she was rushing from the house and had had to go back and mend it. By the time she had hurried through the heat of the May afternoon to Mrs. Rounds her plump middle-aged face was as red as a beet and her breath was almost too short for her to make a graceful entrance into the large parlor where 15 of the most active members of the Woman's club were seated. As it happened, the first face her glance fell upon was that of her neighbor, Mrs. Cora Lull, to whom she had not spoken a word in three whole years.

"Well! I never dreamed they'd ask her," Leora commented to herself as she sat down and tried to be cool and collected. "If I'd known they'd asked her I'd have stayed away. I thought when I tore my skirt and had to go back that no good would come of it. No good ever comes of one's going back. Of course, I sat down, and that's supposed to take the curse away, but, all the same, I wish I'd stayed at home."

All this inwardly. Outwardly she smiled and accepted the loan of Mrs. Sherman's fan.

The meeting had opened, and the president, Mrs. Bradley, was explaining that the question of keeping Floral Park in order was becoming a matter of some importance to the whole town. The city fathers had turned the whole thing over to the Woman's club, parks apparently being considered as coming under the jurisdiction of the city mothers, not to say sisters. And for the purpose of gaining aid and counsel Mrs. Bradley had asked in a few women who were not club members, but, because they lived nearest to the park, should have its best interest very close at heart. Mrs. Gally was out of town, Miss Watrous was sick, Mrs. Warren had a houseful of company, but Mrs. Lull and Mrs. Hawkins had very kindly lent their presence to the meeting. Would Mrs. Lull and Mrs. Hawkins say a few words on the subject?

Leora Hawkins gasped. She felt that Cora Lull gasped also. But she could not speak. She knew all about that park; did she not love it and cherish it? Did she not look upon it with fond eyes every afternoon when she changed her dress and took her mending basket or darning bag out upon the veranda? But in the presence of the enemy she was tongue tied. She thought with bitterness that very likely Cora Lull, who lived beside her, would say something, for Cora was one of those talkative women who never avoided an opportunity to express themselves. But, to her astonishment, Cora merely reddened and sat still.

Mrs. Bradley, seeing that neither woman could be persuaded to speak, laughed lightly. "It is evident," she said, "that both Mrs. Lull and Mrs. Hawkins art too modest to say what they know. For I'm sure that, as they live opposite the park, they must see it in all its phases, as perhaps none of the rest of us do. Therefore I am going to name Mrs. Hawkins and Mrs. Lull as a committee to take charge of the park this summer."

Henrietta Dibble giggled. Mrs. Arnold smiled. Both knew of the relation which existed between the women, but Mrs. Bradley did not. She had acted innocently.

Leora could not refrain from glancing at Cora. She found Cora glancing at her. Their glances crossed like swords. "If she thinks I'm going to back out she's mistaken," Leora thought defiantly. "I'm not afraid to be on a committee with her." Undoubtedly Cora was thinking the same thing, for she sat silent and acceptive.

At the close of the meeting Mrs. Bradley called them to her. "I hope you will get together and begin to work as soon as you can," she said. "You know what should be done. Go buy what you think is needed and the club will foot the bill."

Leora went home in a high state of agitation. She did not know what to do. It was evident that something must be done.

Within half an hour Henrietta Dibble called up on the telephone. "Leora," I expect we'll see shows in this neighborhood now you and Cora are on that committee."

"I don't know that you will," replied Leora crisply, and she hung up. She felt she hated Henrietta Dibble.

A few minutes later Mrs. Arnold called up. "Leora, I just want to ask which is going to speak first, you or Cora?"

"You'll have to ask her," Leora snapped, and again hung up. "If my neighbors are going to sit round to have sport at my expense they're mistaken," she said.

Suddenly she snatched the receiver and called Mr. Peck, the florist. "Send me five dozen red geraniums," she commanded.

"Tonight?" Mr. Peck's mild voice held a note of surprise.

"Yes, tonight. I want to set them out first thing in the morning," answered Leora.

It was after dark before the geraniums appeared. "Tomorrow morning," Leora said to herself, "as soon as it's light enough to see, those geraniums are going into the park. Cora Lull can plant what she pleases, but I'll plant geraniums."

Leora arose at dawn, leaving her husband asleep. "I'll get them all set out and be back in time to get breakfast for him," she said to herself.

Laden with the great basket of geraniums, a trowel, and a pail of water, she made her way to the park and began to work on the nearest bed. It was a warm, sweet morning, with rising mists. Leora worked rapidly, setting her geraniums. Suddenly she became aware that she was not alone. There were sounds on the other side of a huge clump of shrubbery. Another empty flower bed was there. Arising from her knees, she went to investigate. As she peered round a corner of the shrubbery she looked into the face of a woman who was looking straight at her.

"My goodness!" They both spoke the words.

Leora stared at the red geraniums in Cora Lull's basket and in the ground. She smiled faintly. "Great minds run in the same channels, I see," she murmured. "Well, I guess this park will have red geraniums enough for once."

"They'll be beautiful," Cora said. "I got five dozen. How many did you get?"

"Five dozen."

Cora smiled in her turn. "The club won't pay for ten dozen geraniums! We're in for it," she said.

"I guess we'd have done better if we'l held a little consultation beforehand," slowly conceded Leora.

"I suppose so," sighed Leora.

They now became aware they were talking to each other rather freely. They grew as bashful as two school girls. Then Cora gave one of her hearty laughs.

"My! It does seem nice to be talking to you, Leora!" she exclaimed. "You don't know how hard it has been to live beside you three years without speaking."

"Well, there!" said Leora. "I was just thinking that same thing."

An hour later two comely middle-aged women might have been seen emerging from the park. They were walking close together and talking as if they were trying their best to make up for lost time.

A Quarter Century of honest effort Has Built a Great Mercantile Institution

The Crucible of Time Has Proven Our Business Supremacy—

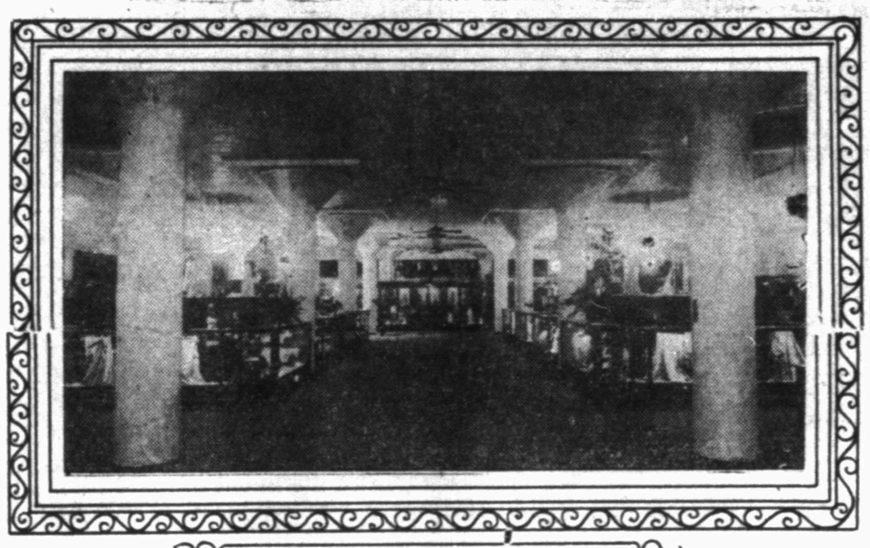

As we pass the twenty-fifth milestone in our business career and view with a great deal of pride our remarkable achievements, we pause and look back through the vista of time to our modest beginning a quarter of a century ago.

At Decatur, Texas, exactly twenty-five years ago, a small store opened its doors to the public. Behind this business venture were men of vision—they made a marked success, and today they are operating the leading mercantile institutions in twenty-five different cities in Texas and Oklahoma. Ever since that little store opened its doors on the morning of May 19, 1897, this firm has identified itself with every progressive movement for city, state, or nation. Ever since the opening day, twenty-five years ago, it has enjoyed the confidence of the people of Oklahoma and Texas—not because it has better merchandise at a lower price, but rather because of those ideals early established which have securely upheld the policies of the the business to the present day.

Interesting Statistics Showing 25 Years of Steady Growth and Development—

In 1897 J. J. Perkins and associates opened what was then known as ' The Red Store" at Decatur, Texas. During the first year the working force in the store was composed of only four people. The amount of business done the first year was $27,964.00. This store contained 2500 square feet of floor space.

Today, the Perkins Syndicate in twenty-five different cities in Texas and Oklahoma employ more than 500 people, using over 300,000 square feet of floor space, and selling $15,000,000.00 annually.

Wichita Falls Store Greatest in Entire Chain—

Being alert to every progressive movement, Perkins-Timberlake Company in the year 1916, opened what was then the most modern Department Store in this fast growing city.

The city continued to grow, and in 1920 these men of vision saw the need of a much larger store—a store in keeping with the growth and progress of Wichita Falls, and having faith in "THE CITY THAT FAITH IS BUILDING," the result was the erection of the handsome building at the corner of Ninth St. and Indiana Ave., opening a modern Department Store. This beautiful and handsomely equipped building stands as a monument to the untiring efforts of the founders of that little store at Decatur, Texas in 1897.

We should feel indeed very ungrateful if we did not, on this our twenty-fifth birthday, offer our deepest and most sincere thanks to that vast army of people throughout Texas and Oklahoma who have made it possible for us to attain such a marked success during the quarter century just passed.

Truthful Advertising One of the Principles On Which We Base Our Success

At the bottom of this page is reproduced the first advertisement ever run by the Perkins Syndicate. This advertisement appeared in THE DECATUR MESSENGER, on May 20, 1897, and carried a message of economy and truth to the people in that early day.

Throughout the entire twenty-five years of our existence as a business institution, TRUTHFUL ADVERTISING has helped us to build and maintain that enviable reputation which we enjoy on this, our birthday.

We are always striving to conduct our publicity along the high plane of "Truth" and never allow a statement or expression to creep into our advertising that will be misleading to the people.

"Whe" Wheeler Wins Own Game With Knock in Ninth

SUMMA SLAMS DOUBLE WITH THE BAGS FULL

Booe and Beatty Only Bears to Belt Blows

By "Spike" Cooper

Wheeler thumped a single into right scoring Beck from second in the last half of the ninth inning yesterday, winning his own game, 5 to 4. Two batters had been retired at the time and the blow broke in a good ball game. Although the new Spudder seemed unable to locate the plate at times he came through in fine style aided by a bit of flashing support. Six Bears were passed to first but the heaver offset the advantage by allowing only five hits, properly mixed out between Booe and Beatty. Two errors in the fifth by Wheeler's mates, responsible for the San Antonio count which had been knotted at four rounds.

A bit of real baseball instigated the winning run in the final inning. Beck walked as a starter and White advanced him with a perfect sacrifice. Bischoff fanned for the third time but Wheeler bumped in with the joker and dropped a single into right, sending Fred Beck rambling to the clubhouse.

Bears Even Count

The Bears got back their two runs they had given up in the fifth. Beatty singled to left. Henry moved him on when he was safe. Kelly advanced both runners when White threw him out at first. Lee drove a fast grounder past Wheeler and as White raced for the ball, it hopped between his legs, rolling to center and the runners scored up. Lee stopped on third. Gross walked. Lee was safe at third when Tex dropped the ball on an attempted steal.

Gross was passed and the two runners executed a double steal. Lee scoring. Kirkham popped to Adams and Booe shot another single to center. He was out stealing.

Bescher fanned for the second time as he came up in the fifth. Summa lined out to left and Adams was thrown out at second after he had been passed.

Wheeler got into another bad hole in the sixth. Fuller was thrown out by Adams and Hiller flied out to Bescher in deep left. Beatty doubled into left and Henry and Kelly were walked, filling the bags. Lee was gracious and grounded to the box for the final out.

Spuds Threaten to Count

McDonald singled through the box in the sixth. Miller drove him up with a nice sacrifice and he swiped third cleanly. Beck sent a short fly to right and Tex tried to score on the play, but was out at the plate when Kirkham threw beautifully to the catcher.

Gross led off in the seventh, fanning to Bescher. Kirkham sent Summa against the fence after his drive, but was out. Booe got his third hit, a single to right, and stole second, but White robbed Fuller of a hit and retired him at first.

Al White was safe when Gross booted his grounder in the seventh. Bischoff attempted to sacrifice, but fouled two and fanned as he swung at the third one. Wheeler hopped a single over Kelly's head and White tried to make third but was out, Lee to Hiller. Bescher flied out to right.

Wheeler was fielding his position in a great fashion. Hiller rolled to the box and was out. Adams cut down Beatty with a nice throw and Wheeler retired Henry at first.

The Spudders threatened in the eighth but failed to connect. Adams walked to center. Adams said he was as nice as any ever pitched to. Al White sent M. Donald moved Summa up when he grounded out, Kelly to Beatty. Miller fouled a moment. Hiller made the second out to Beatty and threw out the batter at first.

In the ninth, White threw out Kelly. Lee tripped out to White and Bescher threw Gross out at first.

Wheeler Breaks It Up

Wheeler opened the game in the last half of the ninth. Beck worked Kelly for a walk after having the count two on nothing against him. White fanned him for second. Bischoff waffled again, and Wheeler came up. He fouled the first pitched ball, and after passing one, looped a Texas leaguer into right for a ball game.

RUSSIAN MAIL RATE PUZZLES THIS FELLOW

(By International News Service)

LOS ANGELES, Cal., May 14.—Joseph Berg today found himself pondering over the question of the high postage rates from Russia. For in the day's mail came a letter for him from his mother to which was attached 25,000 rubles' worth of postage stamps.

Before the war that amount would have been about $12.50 in American money, but at the present rate of exchange they are worth only about 20 cents. The letter exhibited by Berg was a novel sight, resembling a sea board. The postage far outweighed the letter.

CATTLE RUSTLING REVIVED ON COAST

(By International News Service)

LOS ANGELES, Cal., May 14.—The wave of criminal activity which has swept over the larger cities of the country has extended to the California cattle ranges, and cattlemen throughout the state are organizing to battle a band of rustlers who have revived practices of the early west.

At least such is the deduction made by E. E. Leighton, attorney for the state department of agriculture, following disclosures at the trial of an alleged cattle thief in Visalia, when it was developed that one leather firm had purchased $1,700 worth of hides from the "agent" of the rustlers.

HIGH LOOPERS PLAN FOR BIG YEAR IN 1922

Coyotes Loom Up As Likely Champs

BY "HANK" HAYES

Heretofore basketball had played only a minor part in the athletic activities of the Wichita Falls schools. In the fall of 1921 and early part of 1922, under the supervision of Coach Claude Tate, the Red and Black basketeers had the most successful season that they have had during the history of the school.

Eleven high schools of this district and Oklahoma were met by the high school quintet, with only four resulting in defeats for the locals. The squad was placed into the City league loop and made a great showing among the other cagers, finishing third in the loop.

Graduation takes only the captain and center, Carrol "Cherry" Johnson from the team; while Palmer Herrod and Perkins Ray, star forwards of the Red and Black moved out of the city and will not be here next season. The balance of the letter men, Anderson, Coffey, Shaw, Deems and Howle will be in school next year from all indications at present.

The Red and Black cagers went into every game with a fighting spirit and fought to the last second. The Electra Tigers were overwhelmed twice, and the football defeat was avenged. Cashion, Iowa Park and Devol all of this vicinity, were defeated. Grandfield, the Oklahoma champions gave the locals their worst drubbing, while Archer City and Goree defeated them at the first of the season.

Runners Up in Tourney

In the tournament held here which eleven county champions met to choose the best to compete for state title, the locals, in the most hard-fought and prettiest played contest of the race, won their way into the semi-finals by winning from Bryson, the Jack county champions, by 6 points. In the next series Clara defeated the lads by a close margin and later won the tournament. Clara is only a little oil town of this county, and when their quintet swept the field, the rest were taken by surprise, not realizing what a powerful machine Coach Rogers had built with his limited material.

Of the eight games of the City league, the high school won all theirs except three. They lost to Varsity club, Legionnaires and the fighting Caseys, finishing tied for third place. The placing of the school cagers in the league was a thoughtful policy of the management for many reasons. The townspeople could see the lads at the Legion hall and then the youngsters pep, which was always prevalent at the games, stirred more enthusiasm among the rest of the players.

5 Letter Men Back.

With five of the star letter men back to school, and some likely recruits from the junior high team, the Red and Black will go a long way in the race for the state championship next season. Different authorities of the tournament this season, picked Coffey and Anderson as the best pair of guards entered. Coach Rogers of the Clara cagers, stated that his "Triumvirate" of the three Chambers brothers, who were he strength of the district winners were through with his school and would like to attend the school of this city if they could get jobs to keep for the year. If this is the case, and even two of the lads could enroll in the Wichita Falls high this fall, the Red and Black quintet will without doubt have a five that could stand up against any other in the state.

RUTH'S RETURN WILL BE DUEL WITH WILLIAMS

May 20 Will Find Browns in Gotham

The afternoon of May 20 at the Polo Grounds promises to be a very ponderous occasion, indeed, with cash customers as numerous as flies in a restaurant kitchen.

First off, it is the day when the eminent B. Ruth is released from the official displeasure of Judge Landis. Official attendance figures at the Polo Grounds to date have been a right fair indication of Ruth's popularity.

But if the event needs any further recommendation, consider the freak of schedule-juggling which brings the St. Louis Browns to New York on the day of Ruth's return. The Browns are not only one of the leading pennant contenders but they happen to have right and title to Kenneth Williams, and Ken is the young man who has been Ruthing them over the fences ever since the season started.

Ruth versus Williams. The king meeting what may be the heir apparent in a man to man duel. That ought to pack them in.

In fact, the reserved sections at the Polo Grounds are sold out in advance, this being not only a testimonial to Ruth as Ruth, but recognition of the fact that Williams, as a slugger, is no temporary institution. He is coming to his best just as was Ruth the first year he broke the record, and the time may not be far distant when comparisons will be taken for granted.

Williams Is the Smaller.

Of course, Williams does not hit the ball as hard as Ruth does, or did, and possibly never will. For one thing, he hasn't the physique. For another, he probably lacks the Babe's coordination of eye and muscle. For a third, the ball has been made less lively, and perforce the pitching is becoming better.

Yet Williams, stalled to a five weeks' start, might very easily head off Ruth for the home run honors this year and, batting them as he has been, would possibly top the Babe even up.

Even if he seriously challenged Ruth's supremacy it would be a great thing for baseball attendances. They would want to compare the two stars in action, and we can think of no types more dissimilar in style and appearance.

Everyone is familiar with Ruth's man in the moon countenance, his barrel of a chest and pipestem legs. He and Williams have about as much in common there as Mrs. Asquith and Ivan Tangusky.

The St. Louis outfielder is a lean, subtle type, a blend of sour, ingrown expression and few words at least so far as the ball club is concerned. He would make an excellent undertaker.

SAME KIND OF FEELING

A Kansas City railroad official awoke in Topeka one morning recently and found somebody on the train had picked his pocket and stolen his money. "He now knows how the public feels after it has been forced to pay the present freight rates," remarks the Osborne Farmer.

YANK JOCKEYS RIDE WINNERS ON OTHER SIDE

New Season Has Big Prospect for Owners

(By International News Service)

PARIS, May 14.—Horse racing in France is again in full swing and this year, in the Paris district at least, looks as if it will be as prosperous for the directors of various racing societies as in the past.

While the season is as yet too young to reveal any horses of merit American staples already have shown that they mean to make a bold bid for high honors during the year. American jockeys are a senthusiastic.

What now are old celebrities of the French turf, where jockeys are concerned, have reappeared this year. Foremost among them is Frank O'Neil who finished top of the winning jockyes last year. O'Neil has signed on again for A. K. Macomber, owner of one of the biggest stables in the country. Already his horses have showu good qualities, and of six seen out at the time of writing four have been winners.

Guy Garner, antober American, this year will pilot Prince Aga Kahn's horses, trained by William Duke, former trainer for the stable of the late W. K. Vanderbilt. Prince Aga Kahn is newcomer to French racing. He possesses some thirty first-class animals, which he bought at high prices. He is put on record as having paid Duke and Garner the highest retaining fee ever given a trainer or jockey. Matt MacGee, another American, will continue to ride for Baron Edouard de Rothschild.

Three new American jockeys here are being closely watched and followed by French fans. Two of these jockeys were brought back from America by Eugene Leigh, the dean of American trainers here, who has some eighty horses belonging to French owners in his care. W. Miller was out here last year, but did little riding. This year he will ride for Duc Decazes, probably the wealthiest French owner on the tracks. E. Haynes already has ridden several of Leigh's horses, and though he has not yet scored a winner French critics are loud in praise of Haynes and consider he is the material of a first-class horseman.

Another of Leigh's "importations," Englander, was unlucky on the first count he had in France. In going to the post the horse kicked and pulled all ways, finally throwing Englander, with the result that the latter had to remain in bed ten days. But Englander is not downhearted, and he says he is going to cop some of the important events of the year and go back to the States in the winter with "beaucoup francs."

BEING BASEBALL DADDY REAL JOB

The sound of the trumpets that sounded the purchase of Jimmy O'Connell for the stupendous price of $75,000 by the Giants, has died out.

Cartoonist Probasco's Impressions of Jack Miller.

O'Connell is now receiving his final course under Jack Miller, manager of the San Francisco team, before joining McGraw next spring. The care of a $75,000 beauty weighs on Jack's shoulders a bit. He has to report on Jimmy at regular intervals and guard the "baby" against mishaps. When McGraw bought the wonder he ordered Miller to switch O'Connell from first to the outfield and make a finished gardener of him. Which added to Miller's responsibilities. Reports from the coast say Miller is putting the finishing touches on Jim in good shape, however. Which ought to please John McGraw.

BAPTISTS TAKE UP EVOLUTION

Women Admitted to Boards

By Associated Press.

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., May 18.—The southern Baptist convention today instructed its education board to provide text books on science "free from erroneous statements on evolution," admitted women to membership on its boards and its legislative committee and adopted resolutions congratulating President Harding and Secretary Hughes for their work at the arms conference and their influence toward international peace.

Adoption of the recommendation regarding evolution, does not mean, it was said by officials, that belief in the subject will be made a "test of orthodoxy." Dr. Height O. Moore, Nashville, senior recording secretary, explained that "it might be possible," some members believed God chose to create man through evolution but added there is a wide difference between "atheistic evolution and theistic evolution."

It was announced tonight that the foreign mission board would start theological schools in Spain, Rumania and Hungary.

Mexican Oil Tax To Be 10 Per Cent

By Associated Press.

MEXICO CITY, May 18.—A decree signed yesterday by President Obregon and issued today by the treasury department gives the basis upon which export oil taxes are to be computed in the future in accordance with the agreement reached recently between Minister of the Treasury De La Huerta and the five leading American oil men, who came to Mexico City for a conference on the subject.

The taxes hereafter are to be reckoned at 10 per cent of the market value of oil using the price of bunker crude oil at New York as the criterion. Provision is made for the monthly publication of values on which taxes are assessed, and as a supplement to the president's decree. Manuel Padres, sub-secretary of the treasury, today posted the prices and taxes for May. The decree is lengthy and technical. It shows tax computations on every kind of Mexican oil.

ITALY RECOVERING ITS TOURIST TRADE

ROME, May 11.—For the first time since the beginning of the great war Italy has recovered her tourist trade. Already her hotels are filled from one end of Italy to the other. In Florence, where Princess Mary and Viscount Lascelles spent a part of their honeymoon, it is almost impossible to find rooms, and even Venice has an extraordinary number of tourists.

"Italy is recovering," say the Italians.

For the first time since 1914, a shipment of more than 1,000 game birds for stocking the game preserves of the west has come from Europe to the United States.

Local Youths Have Chance Today

Wichita Falls youths today will be given an opportunity to sign up for one grand and glorious summer vacation, one which will help them mentally and physically and provide a unique experience as well as valuable training—all free of expense to them.

Qualifications for the beginners course, the only course are simple.
