VOL. 4, NO. 4 — WICHITA FALLS, TEXAS, MONDAY, JULY 31, 1922 — FIVE CENTS EVERYWHERE

RAIL STRIKE MAY END TUESDAY

By Associated Press.

CHICAGO, July 30.—Peace terms already have been agreed to in the country-wide railway strike and formal ratification has been assured through President Harding's efforts, it was asserted tonight by a man in close official touch with the situation.

All that now remains before the strike which has cost the workers upward of $40,000,000 in wages passes into history, it was asserted, was the formal endorsement at the termsi of settlement by the railway executives' meeting in New York and the strike leaders who will convene in Chicago at the same hour.

"The acceptance of President Harding's proposal was a foregone conclusion before T. DeWitt Cuyler issued the call for the meeting of rail executives in New York and B. M. Jewell, head of the striking shopmen, summoned a similar meeting of the union chiefs for the same date." This man who has been in closest touch with the entire situation declared.

"The exact terms probably will decide to yield for the good of the country, sweeping aside the seniority issue," he continued, "but their gesture will give little consolation to the men who walked out on July 1, for besides their loss in pay they will lose some of their seniority rights to the men who remained at work, see their original grievances returned to the United States labor board for hearing and the question of a national adjustment board and certain other points taken up by congress.

"Thei exact terms probably will not be known until after Tuesday's meeting but whatever they are, the objections of a minority on either side will not be sufficiently strong to obstruct or prevent their ratification by both sides. The seniority issue has been raised since the beginning of the strike, it must be remembered and it is not as great a stumbling block as it has seemed at times. When the time comes it will be disposed of with justice to all and to the great majority of the workers."

SETTLEMENT REPORT NOT CONFIRMED

By Associated Press.

WASHINGON, July 30.—Great interest was indicated in official circles tonight in reports from Chicago that terms for the settlement of the railroad strike, "already have been agreed to," and that formal ratification of President Harding's plan at the meeting of railway executives in New York and labor leaders in Chicago was assured. Confirmation of the report could not be obtained from the government, railway or labor circles, most government officials who had remained in the capital over the week end contending themselves with expressions of gratification that an end was in sight to the controversy which had threatened to throttle the country's commerce.

Practically without exception leaders of the railway unions directly interested in the strike had left Washington for Chicago in order to be on hand when the labor group convened there Tuesday and the American Federation of Labor was said to be without advices as to the latest developments.

Representatives of railway managements also professed to be without information which would indicate that the executives had agreed to ac-

Our American Sport—Cotton—Pity the Rich—Where Is Difference?

MARK SULLIVAN SAYS THE republicans will not lose control of the lower house of congress in November and that they will retain their hold on the senate for years to come. Surface indications justify the Sullivan prediction. In 1290 the republicans swept all the states north of Mason and Dixon's line as well as Kentucky, Tennessee, Oklahoma, Missouri, Maryland and Delaware. They are wise and they know how to play the game. And now the latest is a majority report submitted to the upper house of congress by Senator Shortridge of California from the senate judiciary committee which declared the pending anti-lynching bill as amended to be constitutional and said it should be passed as "a shield of protection to every American citizen." Senator Shortridge's report denounced lynching as "a monstrous evil and a disgrace to the nation." Incidentally speaking, the very day the report was submitted to the senate, a white man and a negro in Arkansas quarrelled over the possession of a drinking cup in which the negro was worsted. And then the friends of the white man decided to hang the negro and so they made an Arkansas holiday and placed the brother in black under the sod. They were not natives of Arkansas. They were not natives of the south. According to the newspaper accounts the negro and his white boss were from Kansas where placarded expressions of sympathy with wage workers on strike is a crime against the laws and "Henry and Me" run the commonwealth. Henry is Henry J. Allen, governor of the state and Me is William Allen White, editor of the Emporia Gazette and one of the ablest writers and clearest thinkers between the two oceans. Senator Shortridge and his colleagues who reported the bill are reminded that lynching is one of the great national sports, and that it is akin to criminal to interfere with the favorite pastime of a people.

C. O. MOSER IS THE SECRETary and manager of the American cotton growers association. He says there are two great questions which confront the cotton grower of the south today, and the most important of the two is cooperative marketing. This association is like the fruit growers association of California and protects the members in the marketing of their commodity. Manager Moser does not hesitate to say that the man who runs down the association is not only hurting the members of the association, but himself, those who should be in the association and all legitimate businesses in a community. Nathan Adams is a Dallas banker who is as widely known in cotto as he is in financial circles. He is of the opinion that if Texas raises three million five hundred thousand bales of cotton, the outlook for fall business is better than he has seen it for the last five years. There is no reason for cotton not bringing a fair price with it marketed in an orderly way, according to this Texas financier. Europe is buying cotton on a cash basis, having practically no credit at the present time and speaking for the banks of the cotton belt, he says there should be no trouble in providing the neces-

Davis Cup Champs Stage Comeback

By Associated Press.

NEW YORK, July 30.—R. Norris Williams II, and Watson M. Washburn easily defeated Wm. Tilden II, and Vincent Richards 6-3, 4-3, 7-5, in the second match of the test today to determine which team will represent the United States in the defense of the Davis cup. The Tilden-Richards combination won yesterday, taking three out of four sets.

Williams and Washburn, who paired to form the American doubles team last year, had the aggressive throughout today's match and made the pace so fir mthat Tilden was thrown off form and Richards became unsteady, though both frequently made brilliant returns. The victors concentrated their attack on Richards.

OKLAHOMA KLAN TICKET IN RACE

Endorses Wilson for Governor

By Associated Press.

OKLAHOMA CITY, July 30.—Sweeping into the front rank as an issue in the Oklahoma primary August 1, the ku klux klan held the spotlight today as the last guns were being fired in the three-cornered race for the democratic nomination for governor between J. C. Walton, mayor of Oklahoma City; R. H. Wilson, state superintendent of public instruction and Thomas H. Owen, former justice of the state supreme court.

Copies of a model ticket, published in papers of the state, purporting to have been drawn by the klan, were distributed today at the doors of every protestant church in Oklahoma City, at the conclusion of morning services. Wilson's name headed this list and political observers pointed out that he may be expected to receive virtually the solid backing of the ku klux klan, which claims a membership in this state of approximately 100,000. On the other hand it was argued in the same quarters he is almost certain to be opposed by all elements not in sympathy with the klan.

COAL CONTROL TAKEN OVER BY U. S. TODAY

Government to Act Between Mines And Industries

By Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, July 30. — The government with the co-operation of the states will assume tomorrow the duties of a gigantic middleman passon the coal from the producing mines to the industries and localities which in the eyes of the government need it most.

The organization of the government's emergency coal distribution agency was pronounced tonight to be nearly complete and tomorrow Henry B. Spencer, the federal fuel distributor, his committee and advisory subcommittee, as designated by order of President Harding will begin active functioning.

Gains Are Slight

Just how much coal the government can count on remains as a matter of speculation. The first test of the response to President Harding's invitation to the mine owners to open their properties was revealed today in the weely report issued by the geological survey which showed an estimated production of bituminous for the week ending yesterday of 3,900,000 tons as compared with 3,700,000 tons the previous week.

"The increase is due," the reports said "partly to more men at work in Pensylvania, partly to improved car supply in southwest West Virginia and partly to heavier shipments from Alabama and the far west. Production of antracite remains practically zero."

Bituminous loadings on the first day of last week went up to 13,038 cars, figures assembled by the survey showed. This was 417 cars above the loadings for the preceding Monday, but 3,664 cars below the last Monday before the shopmen's strike. Loading on last Tuesday and Wednesday declined, but a slight recovery was made on Thursday.

TARIFF MAY BE DELAYED

Senate May Wait Until Election Is Over

By Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, July 30.—Whether the administration tariff bill will be enacted before the November elections again has become the subject of private discussion at the capital. There is a more or less general belief in the senate that the measure cannot be brought to a final vote in that body before September 15 and that the ironing out of differences between the senate and the house in conference will be such a slow and tedious process that it cannot be completed before congress goes home for the fall campaign.

The move from the democratic side yesterday for an investigation of charges that some senators are financially interested in the wool and other duties voted into the bill may operate to delay senate action. The democrats say they will press their resolutions for an inquiry and further heated discussion of the matter on the floor appears to be in prospect.

Texas Guardsmen Don't Play Any Favorites

By Associated Press.

DENISON, July 30.—Even the adjutant general of Texas and the officer commanding the military zone here must be recognized by guardsmen when challenged.

Saturday night while looking over a camp site near Ray Yards, a picket challenged the automobile which had stopped to permit Colonel Chas. W. Nimon, military zone commander to inspect the proposed site. Adjutant General Barton and several newspaper men were in the car. The picket ordered both the colonel and the general to advance and be recognized.

"That's fine," General Barton was heard to remark as he re-entered the automobile.

OBENCHAIN JURY LOCKED

Vote Said to Be 10 To 2 for Her Acquittal

By Associated Press.

LOS ANGELES, July 30.—The jury in the second trial of Mrs. Madalynne Obenchain for the murder of her sweetheart, J. Belton Kennedy, a broker, had been out approximately 49 hours at 5 o'clock this afternoon and there still was no indication of a verdict.

Unauthenticated rumors were that a majority of the five men and seven women on the jury favored acquittal, the reports gradually changing from 8 to 4, to 9 to 3, and then to 10 to 2.

Newspaper men assigned to the case declared they heard occasional bits of the jurors arguments such as "I think this woman has keen kept in jail long enough." In a man's voice and "my mind is made up, there is not use arguing. I will never change" in a woman's.

Anxious for Verdict

Judge John Shenk stated that unless the jury summoned him he would not confer with it before tomorrow. He intimated he would keep it locked up until every possibility of a verdict had been exhausted.

Mrs. Obenchain was not taken into the courtroom during the day, but at the county jail said she was confident a verdict would be reached. She did not say what she believed it would be.

Arthur C. Burk, her co-defendant, who has been tried twice, the jury disagreeing both times, expressed optimism as to the outcome.

The deliberations of the jury were disturbed once during the day by a demonstration of prisoners in the county jail.

The inmates gathered near the north wall of the jail only a short distance from the jury rooms in the hall of justice.

One called out: "Three cheers for District Attorney Woolwine." A loud groan was the response. Then came anotheri call:

"Three cheers for Paul Roman."

This was met by louder groans, cat calls and curses. Roman, a convict was prosecution witness. The jury reported the disturbance to the jail officials.

UNION HEADS TO STAND PAT ON SENIORITY

Rail Presidents Are Doubtful About Settlement

By Associated Press.

CHICAGO, July 30.—Union heads here tonight expressed the conviction that this week would see the end of the rail strike which began July 1. Leaders of the striking railway shopmen are now hurrying to Chicago from all sections of the country for Tuesday's conference on President Harding's peace plan.

Bert M. Jewell, head of the six striking shop craft unions, refused to comment on statements made by various railway executives that the question of the restoration of seniority rights of the shopmen might prevent a settlement. Other strike leaders, however, emphatically declared no settlement is possible which does not recognize and restore to the strikers their former seniority privileges and pension rights.

May Refuse Seniority

"Not only justice, but the public interests demands that in any settlement of the strike the seniority rights of all men who are now working shall be recognized," a statement issued by the western railway presidents committee on public relations, today declared. "If those who have struck against the decision of the United States united railroad labor board and tried to interrupt transportation are favored in any settlement that may be made, the incentive of men to stay at work in case of future strikes will be destroyed and the difficulty of maintaining transportation service increased. The new men in many cases left other employment with the understanding that if competent they would be retained in their present positions.

Similar sentiments favoring the utmost consideration to the men who had remained at their jobs and to those who had been hired in the

METEOR FALLS INTO PACIFIC

Girl Thinks Moon Is Coming Down

SANTA BARBARA, Cal., July 30. —Concensus of opinion here today was that the great flaming object which fell from the heavens into the ocean off Santa Barbara or on to Santa Cruz Islands, 18 miles south of here last night, was a meteor.

No reports came from the island that anyone there had seen the object strike the earth and the general belief was that it fell into the sea.

One peculiarity of the display reported by several persons was that the glowing object apparently divided into two parts as it reached the island or the water.

Miss Gertrude Wright-Knox, a relative of the late Philander C. Knox, said she was on a ranch ten miles north of here about dusk when she saw a huge ball of fire falling at terrific speed across the sky and emitting sparks as it fell.

"At frist I thought the moon was falling," said Miss Knox. "It appeared as large or larger than the moon."

MORE TROOPS SENT DENISON

Three companies then marched to Camp Leeper, a mile and one-half west of Camp Ellis, where they pitched their tents almost directly in the mouth of Ray yards, where the Missouri, Kansas & Texas railroad has suffered considerable damage lately. The camp also is within a few yards of the electric light line serving Ray, the wires of which were cut twice within the past three days.

Troops Build Camp

The companies at Camp Leeper are: Company E, Captain Ewell E. Morris; Company F, Captain D. Gamble; Company H, Captain N. S. Perinne.

Headquarters company and Company G, pitched tents on Camp Ellis grounds.

The troops were busy constructing Camp Leeper this afternoon, while the thermometer hovered around 101 degrees.

Sunday was very quiet. There was no meeting of strikers.

The fatigued guardsmen of the third battalion who have been doing subguard duty since their arrival three days ago were partially relieved by the arrival of the second battalion.

The new camp, Camp Leeper, is named in memory of Captain Dan C. Leeper of Denison, who was killed in action in France while serving with the nineteenth division.

Refuse to Halt Wher Challenged by Guards

By Associated Press.

An exchange of about 50 shots between the men and the soldiers followed. No casualties were reported.

The men used pistols and the guardsmen regulation army rifles.

The firing followed challenges earlier tonight by sentries who ordered two men near the west end of the bridge to halt. The men refused to obey the sentries' order and two shots were fired.

Lieutenant Lee Baker, officer of the day, was in command of the soldiers during the exchange of shots. The soldiers fired upon were Sergeant Joe Stone, Sergeant Gred Cox Corporal Jessie Parr, and Sentry Walter.

Lieutenant Baker telephoned headquarters and Colonel Charles W. Nimon, in command of the troops here, dispatched a squad of eight men to that section of the yards which is about two miles from the heart of the city. No arrests were made.

Women Running for Everything But Senator in Missouri Primaries

By Associated Press.

ST. LOUIS, July 30.—For the first time in the history of Missouri will women candidates for congress have a chance next Tuesday to show their political strength in a primary election and the effect is eagerly awaited by politicians as well as the women themselves.

Only one office for which the parties will nominate their candidates next Tuesday is not being sought by a woman, that of United States senator, for which 11 men, three democrats, six republicans, one socialist and one socialist-laborite are running.

Democrats will be called upon to decide whether the influence of former President Wilson and his principal issue, the league of nations, are still effective or whether the opposition to this international program is favored by a majority of the state's democrats, when they chose between United States Senator James A. Reed and Breckenridge Long, third assistant secretary of state during the Wilson administration, the principal democratic candidates. The third democratic candidate, R. L. Young of St. Joseph, has not injected this issue into his campaign.

While Mr. Reed has been urging the democrats of the state to turn their attention to "living issues" and discard the league of nations as a "dead" issue. Mr. Long has based his campaign chiefly on the issues favored by the Wilson administration.

The democratic race is looked on by politicians as a contest between "Wilson democrats" represented by Mr. Long and the "Reed democrats" led by the candidates himself.

To Reject Harding's Terms Would Fix Blame for Strike, Says Wharton

By Associated Press.

CHICAGO, July 30.—Railroad executives and striking shop employes must either accept the proposal to end the strike suggested by President Harding or face full responsibility for continuance of the walkout, A. O. Wharton, labor member of the United States railroad labor board declared tonight. Mr. Wharton, who was formerly head of the railway employes department of the American Federation of Labor, was one of the dissenting minority in the recent wage cut decisions handed down by the labor board.

"If either the railroad executives meeting in New York Tuesday or the shop crafts policy committee meeting in Chicago should reject Mr. Harding's peace proposal, the group that rejects it will face full responsibility for continuation of the rail strike and all that may result therefrom," Mr. Wharton said. "While I have not seen Mr. Harding's suggestions, I have enough confidence in the president of the United States —and I believe the public has, to feel that whatever plan he suggests will be just and fair.

"It must, therefore, be clear that the side that turns the proposition down will be to blame for the strike's continuation."

PARTY LEADERS LINING UP FOR SENATORIAL RUN-OFF

Mayfield Seems Sure Of Support of Most Of Former Entrants; Ferguson Gains, Too

By H. N. F.

DALLAS, July 30.—One by one the political roses in the flower garden of Texas democracy are falling on the Ferguson or the Mayfield side of the fence. James E. Ferguson has declared himself. He makes the klan issue the paramount issue of his campaign which will close with the final run-off August 26. Earle B. Mayfield makes the restoration of states rights and prohibition his paramount issues and the repeal of the Esch-Cummins act his "one heart's desire." Ferguson makes it clear that if a majority of the voters decide against the wines and beer proposition he will bow to their verdict. If elected to the senate and if a majority declares for light wines and beer he will make a fight for light moisture should he be elected to the senate.

This should clarify the political atmosphere. There is going to be a merry row until the senatorship is settled and the hottest campaigning of the year. It goes without saying that there are eleven hundred and fifty thousand qualified men and women in the state. Approximately six hundred thousand participated in the primary. This demonstrates that more than five hundred thousand voters are stay at home democrats, republicans or socialists. They boycotted the democratic primary. County contests drew a quarter of a million voters to the polls. There are not many run-offs for minor offices but regardless of this, a large vote is predicted in the balloting to decide which of the two Ferguson or Mayfield, shall represent the people of Texas in the United States senate as the successor of Charles A. Culberson.

Hard Place to Fill

Culberson was an intellectual giant in his prime and a statesman of the lofty calibre. In his old age he is the most powerful of democratic senators. He has been banished by his people from official life and the man who does succeed him will have a long and a rocky road before he measures up to the requirements and wins the position which Culberson holds in the halls of national legislation today. Speaking of the political roses, Oscar O. Touchstone did not fall on either side of the garden wall. He managed the campaign for Cullen F. Thomas who is his law partner and his friend.

A very fine type of the up-to-date American is Mr. Touchstone. He smiled when he opened the campaign. He smiled throughout the campaign. He smiled when the agony was over and he announced that he is back in the practice of law and not interested in politics except as a private citizen. He declared that he had positive opinions on the campaign, is decided in his views and if occasion requires it, he will make known his views.

Mr. Touchstone is going to take a needed vacation and he will not return to Texas in time to cast his ballot for either Ferguson or Mayfield August 26. He is a political rose who is going to take himself out of the state to a place where the zephyrs fan the feverish brow and snow on the mountain tops looks good to the tourist in the good old summer time. Mr. Cullen F. Thomas is a political rose of the ever-blushing Americana beauty variety. He is a good sportsman. He said he had nothing to fear, nothing to regret, no apologies to make, no malice in his heart and in the future as in the past, he would fight for the convictions nearest and dearest to his heart.

Thomas a Sportsman

There are many democrats who may dislike Cullen F. Thomas but he takes his medicine like a good sportsman just the same.

When the rusty iron entered his soul he accepted defeat like a thoroughbred and he did not squawk like a dunghill. There are men who are as great in defeat, if not greater than they are in victory. An office does not make the man. Victory does not make him a statesman.

Former Indian Commissioner Cato Sells, known to his intimate friends as Cato the Wise, blown from his Thomas bush, lit on the garden wall side where the Mayfield blossoms grow. There was a Cato in ancient times who was known as the Just. His contemporaries or fellow citizens grew tired of him and put him away. This fate will never overtake the former Indian commissioner. He began office holding in Iowa when Grover Cleveland was president of the United States. He was Indian commissioner eight years under Woodrow Wilson. He is a life long prohibitionists and swears that he doesn't even know the taste of whisky. He never had his foot on the brass rail in the good old days. A citizen of Tarrant county, he refused to vote for Clarence Ousley. A citizen of Texas, he could not win his conscience over to direct him to vote for Charles A. Culberson who as an American senator had voted for all the Wilson policies and had never flickered as a Jeffersonian democrat in the 32 years of his political life. Mr. Sells followed his conscience and voted for Thomas.

Sells for Mayfield

Now his conscience is working again and it tells him to vote for Mayfield. Clarence Ousley, intellectual and brilliant man of letters, for 30 years guide and friend of the farmers of Texas, traveller and thinker and writer and orator, does not favor either man in the run off. They are not in accord with the major policies advocated by Ousley in the recent contest and he must await further developments before making choice. He is unwilling even to seem to try to influence his friends. He says that those who were loyal to him will reach their own conclusions and do their duty as he shall do in the exercise of the privileges and obligations of private citizenship and party faith. Clarence Ousley ran true to form during the campaign. He ran true to form when the result was announced. He does not favor either man in the run off and prefers to await further developments. Messrs. Culberson, Thomas and Ousley have been heard from. They thanked their friends and turned them loose. Judge Harry Miller, the voice of Culberson has landed in the Ferguson camp. Chester W. Jurney, secretary to Senator Culberson for 24 years, has followed Judge Miller into the Ferguson camp. Oscar O. Touchstone, who managed the Thomas campaign, is going away on his vacation to be gone until September. He has a choice and his friends say that it would shock some of the "uncoguid." Jule G. Smith, the official head of the Ousley campaign committee has landed in the Mayfield camp. They were boys together in east Texas. Mr. Thomas swan-song closed with this verse:

"For the cause that lacks assistance,
For the wrong that needs resistance,
For the future in the distance,
And the good that I can do."

sary credit by the financing of the cotton crop as money is extremely easy all over the United States and the federal reserve banks are in the strongest position that have been in since the armistice. Now why shouldn't the cotton growers of the south enjoy a fair share of prosperity as a reward for their industry this year? There is no carry-over worthy of mention. There is a demand for raw cotton the world over. There is a growing demand for cotton goods. Some marketing should be the order of the day, and if the financiers or bankers make good their promises there is no reason why the cotton crop of 1922 should not be marketed along safe and sane lines. It means hundreds of millions of dollars to the southern people and southern enterprises.

MISS MATHILDE M'CORMICK has gone to Switzerland to marry her coachman; Father McCormick has gone to Paris to marry his singer; Muriel McCormick has gone to New York to open a million dollar hat shop and hopes some day to be a millinery queen; Mother Edith Rockefeller McCormick is planning the erection of a sixteen-foot brick wall around her vast estate in the city of Chicago, in the county of Cooke, in the state of Illinois, to prevent the prying eyes of the vulgar mob from glimpsing the scenery, the mansion, the gardens, the conservatory, the music hall and the garages of her wonderful show place. Mother McCormick never did like the mob. Now she is going to shut 'em out. As copy makers the McCormick family are among the most productive as well as the most prodigious of all American aristocrats. They have been holding down front page positions for months and if the brick wall doesn't shut out the reporters, who are a part of the vulgar mob, then Mother McCormick may lose her nerve and sail over the ocean where the people are so different. To quote from the vocabulary of Alkali R. E. Moore, "God pity the rich; the poor can beg."

A SMITH COUNTY TOMATO grower shipped his tomatoes from Tyler to Minnesota. They were sold to the hungry consumer and brought the growed ten cents a basket. They sold to the Minnesota consumers for one dollar a basket or exactly one thousand per cent more than the grower received. And the bible says that labor is noble and holy and the Old Alcalde said that "civilization begins and ends with the plow."

OFFICIAL WASHINGTON SAYS that President Warren G. Harding is ready to decapitate Governor W. P. G. Harding of the federal reserve bank board. President Harding is a republican; Governor Harding is a democrat. It isn't a matter of efficiency. It isn't a matter of politics. Governor Harding is an Alabamian. He was a successful banker when Woodrow Wilson placed him at the head of the federal reserve board. He is nearing the end of his second term. His term expires August 9. He carried out the deflation policy of the board. Southern democrats, mostly politicians say that he cost the farmers by his methods, eight billion dollars. They demand his scalp. There is a congressional bloc of senators, with a membership non-political and made up of democrats and republicans alike. This congressional bloc has tasted blood, and the president has been notified that the scalp of Governor Harding must be torn from him and his head thrown into the waste basket of the junk man. President Harding, although he thinks highly of Governor Harding, is a politician and it is hinted that the battle axe will be used without delay.

Denies Settlement

R. S. Parsons, vice-president of the Erie railroad sent out a telegram addressed to Chicago officials of the road denouncing as "untrue" reports that the "strike on the Erie railroad will be settled by some governmental authority.

"There is no strike settling power vested in any branch of the government," the telegram said. "It's function is to keep order, not to settle strikes. The Erie railroad will settle with its employes whenever they are ready, without any outside interference, and that is the only way."

In discussing the possible future course of negotiations a member of the labor board said it was probable that the decisions of the railroad executives who meet in New York on Tuesday simultaneously with the meeting of the strike leaders in Chicago would be reported back to President Harding.

He asserted that he did not expect the labor board to figure in the disputes for some time after the actual end of the strike when questions of wages and working conditions might be referred back to it for rehearing.

KEEPING BROWNS GOING

Kelp (at right) is right among the leading pitchers of the American league. When he had played in nine games, his record was seven won and only two lost, for a percentage of .778. Brillheart of Washington, who had pitched only two games and won both and Bush of New York, with a record of 11 won and three lost, were the only twirlers with better percentages at that time. Van Gilder at left), for four years a star on the Browns' staff, had then pitched twice as many games as Kolp, winning 10 and losing eight.

Six-Foot Catfish.

The Bureau of Fisheries has undertaken to encourage the propagation of the "bullheads" of the Mississippi which is a fish of the catfish variety and is often found as long as six feet and weighing 100 pounds. This "encouragement" consists merely of throwing over some pieces of drain pipe, old beer kegs, buckets and similar articles which will provide suitable places for their nests. The lower Mississippi yields the large size fish referred to.

Women Stage Big World Peace Parade

By Associated Press.

NEW YORK, July 29.—Heckled at intervals by soldiers and former service men, several hundred members of the Women's Peace society and other organizations tonight paraded from Union Square to Columbus Circle in a "no-more-war" demonstration.

As the various groups formed in Union Square there was mingled applause and jeers. One section of marchers was composed of bolshistas, a religious sect, led by Urban Leedoux, who gained notoriety in Boston and New York, last winter, as "Mr. Zero" when he auctioned the services of idle former service men. Another was formed by followers of Gandhi, the Indian atioalist leader.

SAWDUST IN A RIBBON

A sawmill has been recently put into operation at Jacksonville, Fla., cutting up the lumber by a new type of saw which throws off its refuse in the shape of a long, thin string. Sawdust in this shape is available for the manufacture of paper because it contains long fiber, while sawdust in the usual flake form is of on use for paper and pulp making.

MARINES WILL EJECT OIL MEN

Leave for Wyoming to Stop Drilling

By Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, July 30.—Carrying orders to eject forcibly if necessary representatives of the Mutual Oil company, from Teapot naval oil reserve in Wyoming, Captain George Shuler and four enlisted men of the marine corps left Washington today for a point 40 miles from Casper, where the company is drilling a well.

The orders borne by Captain Shuler and his men were issued by Major General LeJune on instructions given yesterday by acting Secretary Roosevelt of the navy department after the interior department had reported the Mutual Oil company was trespassing on naval reserve. Interior department officials reported that warning had been given the company to vacate but no attention was given and drilling started. Officials of the company in Denver said yesterday, after it had become known that the government had decided to act, that the company was operating under a contract with individuals who have a clear title to the land.

Officials here indicated today that they did not look for any trouble. Secretary Roosevelt's instructions to General LeJune called for the sending of an officer "of discretion" and H. K. Keoughan, vice president of the Mutual Oil company, said that if the marines appeared on the property and ordered company representatives to leave, the orders would be obeyed, but under protest.

Dispatches from Casper have asserted that the controversy between the government and Mutual Oil company resulted from a dispute between that company and the Sinclair oil interests, who recently were given a lease to develop the Teapot Dome reserve.

MAJOR PARTIES ON LOOKOUT FOR PRESIDENTIAL TIMBER

Cox and McAdoo Are Best Contenders on Democratic Ticket; Dark Horse Feared.

By BASCOM N. TIMMONS
Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON, July 29.—Both major political parties have begun to discuss presidential possibilities for 1924.

In republican circles up to a few weeks ago it was generally agreed that President Harding would be given the renomination without a struggle. It still is agreed that the president, as things are now, can have the renomination if he wishes it.

But purely on the guess that President Harding may not desire to stand for another term, adherents of the G. O. P. are talking about possibilities. Names mentioned in political circles here during the week include Senator Irvine L. Lenroot of Wisconsin, Governor Nathan L. Miller of New York, Senator James W. Wadsworth of New York, former Governor Frank Lowden of Illinois, Senator Borah of Idaho, and Senator Johnson of California, with an occasional mention of Secretary of State Hughes. Albert J. Beveridge probably will have his name added to the list if he succeeds in negotiating the fall election in Indiana.

Democrats Figuring

The democratic list is tentative. It is being pointed out that if Congressman Peter G. Ten Eyck of New York is nominated and elected governor of New York this year and has any sort of a successful administration, he will be a formidable candidate. If Ten Eyck were nominated and elected that, of course, would remove Governor Miller from the republican list.

Ten Eyck might repeat the history of Grover Cleveland if it were not for William Randolph Hearst, who has muddled the New York democratic situation until he has the democrats of the empire state in despair.

Sherman L. Whipple of Massachusetts is another big democratic "if." If Whipple unhorses Henry Cabot Lodge he may loom up formidably at the next democratic national convention. Then there is Senator Atlee Pomerene of Ohio, who has twice been elected United States senator in a normally republican state and is up for re-election this year. If Pomerene comes back after President Harding's smashing 400,000 victory in the buckeye state last year, he may be formidable.

Southern Prospects

Four southern senator are talked of by party leaders—Underwood of Alabama, Robinson of Arkansas, Stanley of Kentucky and Glass of Virginia. Underwood was a strong candidate in 1912. Glass had the vote of the Virginia delegation at San Francisco in 1920. Robinson and Stanley have been coming fast in party favor. But the booms of the southern senators probably will go the same way that the boom for Senator Charles A. Culberson went in 1908. Had Culberson been from a northern instead of a southern state, he might have been the candidate against Taft in 1908. But his residence weighed heavily against him and William Jennings Bryan was given the nomination for the third time, only to go down to defeat for the third time.

Senator Gilbert H. Hitchock of Nebraska, who has just been renominated, (has a hard race for re-election against R. B. Howell of Omaha, the republican nominee. If Hitchcock wins he may have some convention strength.

Cox Or McAdoo?

But the two men most talked of among democrats are former Governor James M. Cox of Ohio and William G. McAdoo of California. Cox is now in Europe studying conditions. His friends say that Cox feels that he did not have a chance to get his case before the jury" in 1920, because the people were determined on a change. They assert that Cox conducted the sort of a campaign that would win were he given another chance.

The McAdoo men point to the Cox defeat by 7,000,000 majority and assert there could be no life in a political carcass after such a drubbing. To which Cox men respond that McAdoo was afraid to take the nomination in 1920 because the former secretary of the treasury believed it was a republican year, that Cox took it and made the fight on democratic principles in a lean year, got as many votes as any one could have gotten running on the democratic ticket and therefore, is entitled to a chance in a normal year.

Dark Horse Probable

The concensus of opinion here is that there will be a vote minority against McAdoo in 1924 just as there was in 1920 and that he cannot possibly be nominated. Cox's chances of nomination are regarded as somewhat better, but it is possible that some man little known will flash across the horizon in the election this fall and then run away with the democratic nomination in 1924.

Insofar as the G. O. P. is concerned, if President Harding is not a candidate, some man of the type of Governor Nathan L. Miller of New York, or Senator Irvine L. Lenroot of Wisconsin, is believed to have the best chance.

As a matter of fact a boom for Miller is already under way in New York. The New York republican state convention at its recent session adopted resolutions characterizing Governor Miller as "the leading statesman of the day." Miller has been a remarkably successful executive, whose fame has extended far beyond the boundaries of the empire state.

Senator Lenroot is a hard-working type of senator, whose independence and constructive thinking have won him nation-wide fame. Moreover party leaders say that Lenroot and Miller are the type of men on whom conservative and progressive republicans would find it easiest to get together in convention.

And if President Harding is nominated Miller and Lenroot are the sort of men who will get rain-checks for 1928.

RAIL STRIKE—

cept the president's compromise proposal at their conference which will be held in New York.

Up to today the most optimistic forecast of the railroad's position on the compromise was that there would be at least prolonged discussion of the terms before it was accepted. The sentiment against acceptance was known to be strong, but whether this had been sufficiently offset as a result of Mr. Harding's several conferences with the transportation chiefs early this week was a matter of conjecture.

Executives who have refused to alter their announced position on the seniority issue have estimated that from 150,000 to 200,000 employes have remained loyal to the railroads during the strike crisis despite the strongest inducements. No settlement could be honorably made, some executives have insisted, which would jeopardize the positions of these men.

When Columbus and his caravans returned from the New World the first question shouted from the shore was, "What's the News?" That's always the question of paramount importance. Years ago folks asked it of the post rider, the soldier returned from the wars, the man who had been down to the settlements, or the neighbor back from the general store.

Oil Standing 1500 Feet in Silk Well in Panhandle Field

OIL SAND HIT AT 3,070 FEET

Caving Hole Will Delay Work

Special to The Record News.

PANHANDLE, July 30.—The fourth well to produce oil in the Panhandle field reached the oil sand Thursday. Silk-Bullington-Clark No. 1, Burnett, section 93, block 5, Carson county, is the latest producer and is located 14 miles north of Panhandle and is a mile south of the discovery well, Gulf No. 2 Burnett.

The sand was reached at 3070 feet and was penetrated eight inches where the well is shut down awaiting the arrival of officials from Wichita Falls. Oil is standing 1,500 feet in the hole.

The Silk well reached the oil bearing sand at the same depth as Gulf Production company well to the north with the exception of thirty feet more hole which was accounted for in the thirty feet of greater elevation in the Silk well.

The 6-inch pipe line in this well is in bad shape, it is twelve feet off bottom and refuses to be moved, a bad kink thought to be due to a crooked hole at 2,800 feet is giving trouble. The twelve feet of open hole is caving badly and will likely delay the completion of the well.

HOLMES WELL IS SHOT AGAIN

Special to The Record News.

PANHANDLE, Texas, July 30.—The Holmes, McIlroy & McGee well in section 10, block Y Hutchinson county was shot the second time at 2,800 feet Wednesday, the hole immediately bridged below the gas at 2,600 feet and is being cleaned out. The first shot increased the production from 75 to 150 barrels, however the first was a much small charge than the second and it is claimed that the first shot was not properly placed in the hole to get the best results.

Gulf No. 1 Dial section 90, block Z Hutchinson county has encountered the fourth oil strata at 3,150 feet. Limes containing oil was reached at 2900, 3000, 3085 and a sand at 3150. The well should produce over 500 barrels from the last three formations. The well is caving.

BIG GASSER ON SHOPTAW LEASE

Story of Tract Like Fairy Tale

By P. P. DUFFY
Staff Correspondent

DUNCAN, Okla., July 30.—Another chapter was written in the miracle story of the Shoptaw lease in section 5, 1s, 8w Thursday night with the bringing in of a 25 million cubic foot gasser. The complete story of this tract of land, since it has been in Mrs. Shoptaw's hands, reads like a fairy tale, and it is more than probable that the final chapter is yet unwritten.

Eight years ago this month Mrs. Shoptaw, acting as agent, sold this 160 acre tract to C. C. Shelly; some time later, as agent of a loan company she secured a loan for Mr. Shelly on the property. In her next transaction she bought the oil and gas lease for the entire 160 acres. Three months later in March 1918, she sold the lease on the south eighty for $2,000. In 1919, again acting as agent, she sold the deed for the land to Mr. W. L. Hood, and in the next deal, still acting as agent, she sold the 160 acre tract to the present owner, in 1920.

Sells Lease Again

The next transaction will be remembered by most of the local operators, as it was heralded by a special car from Tulsa and brought to Duncan, Mr. C. J. Wrightsman and others who were after leases in this territory. Mr. Wrightsman bought the oil and gas lease at this time on the north eighty for $450,000 cash, and a drilling contract that called for production in one year or forfeit the lease. He drilled a well in the west half that was later abandoned and on the 23rd of February of the present year the lease reverted back to Mrs. Shoptaw. Mrs. Shoptaw still had confidence in the lease in spite of the reports circulated by Mr. Wrightsman, and a little over a month ago she bought a rig and started drilling the present test herself.

Gas At 1858 Feet

Now as a fitting climax to her perserverance is the big gasser that was brought in Thursday night. The location of the well is in the ne corner of the ne quarter of section 5, 1s, 8w and the gas is flowing from a sand found at 1858 feet. The crew had just started bailing when the well blew itself in and it is thought that the bit had penetrated the sand about seven feet. Rock pressure and an exact gage on the well could not be secured last night, but its production was conservatively estimated by all who saw it as it was flowing from an eight inch line filling the atmosphere with gas fumes. The gas is as dry as a bone and is as fine as any found in the local field. The well is exactly five miles west of Duncan on the base line, and is Duncan's closest production. The closest production to the well in the Magnolia in section 32, 1n, 8w, one-half mile to the north.

FORDS MIXED UP

Special to the Record News.

STAMFORD, July 30.—A traveling salesman for Wooten Wholesale grocery who left his car a few moments to step into a gorcery house came back to find it vamoosed. Officers were put on the trail and cars from the wholesale house were started on several roads leadinng out of the city to apprehend the supposed thief. However, the whole thing proved a joke. The owner of a jitney which had been "tethered" near the place where the car was taken, mistook the car for his own and did not discover his mistake until he reached home. Presto! Then he broke the speed limit taking it back—fearing a noose.

Not all the money is tied up in tax-free securities. There still is enough for those who gamble in grain.

JILTED FOLLIES BEAUTY SUES SUITOR'S MOTHER

(By Central Press.)

CHICAGO, July 30.—Sue or be sued. That seems to be the motto of the wealthy and "blue-blooded" Thorne family which has been dubbed the "most sued family in America."

Right now Mrs. Thorne (Katherine Gordon being the rest of her name, widow of the late head of Montgomery and Ward, is suing her ex-husband, William C. Camp, to regain a $350,000 trust fund gift to Camp, who was her second husband.

Even the blase "boohounds" stopped and gave ear when Camp, testifying in his own behalf, described his trips with Mrs. Thorne before their marriage. His attorney even cautioned him to be careful lest Mrs. Thorne's reputation should suffer.

But that's only one of the suits in the Thorne family. Some time ago the younger Thornes, Gordon and his wife, Virginia Milner Thorne, were divorced.

Then Mary Lygo, former Follies beauty, stepped into the picture with two suits. One was against young Thorne for a cool hundred thousand, alleging that he promised to marry her and then changed his mind.

And just to prove that she was no piker and played no favorites Mary then followed suit with another against Gordon's mama, charging that she was responsible for her son's change of heart. Both these suits are pending.

Besides these court battles several verbal fights were staged by the former Mrs. Gordon Thorne, Jr., and the Follies girl.

On one occasion Mrs. Thorne expressed the fear that Mary was going to ruin her beauty by throwing acid or some other beauty destroying concoction in her face.

At which statement Mary laughed long and heartily.

In the suit now on trial it is said that Mrs. Thorne was willing to settle with Camp for $120,000, but her son refused to allow her to go through with it.

All in all the courts here will have to work overtime to take care of the Thorne cases which are awaited with considerable eagerness by members of the wealthier sets.

Little Stories For Bedtime

THE NEIGHBORS DISCUSS MR. AND MRS. BULLY

Of course such an unpleasant affair as the fight between Bully, the English Sparrow, and Skimmer, the Swallow, for the possession of Skimmer's house made a great deal of talk in the Old Orchard. Everybody felt sorry for Skimmer and told him so and said all the unpleasant things they could think of about Bully and his wife.

"Sympathy is very nice, but a little help from some of them during the fight would have been better," thought Skimmer, but he didn't say so. He and Mrs. Skimmer found an empty house, one that Drummer, the Woodpecker, built so long ago that he had quite forgotten it, and in this they once more started housekeeping. It wasn't as pleasantly located as the old home, but still it was in the Old Orchard. If Bully noticed that they had returned to the Old Orchard after he had driven them out the second time, he took no notice of them. As long as they kept away from him he didn't care where they lived.

Bully and Mrs. Bully worked very hard to build their home in the house they had stolen from Skimmer, and you may be sure that they were closely watched by their neighbors.

"Did you ever see such a mess of stuff for one home? Why, I could build three nests out of what they have already carried in there, and they are still bringing more. I see they use dead grass mostly, with some hay and feathers. They are not a bit particular where they get it, either, and some of it is the dirtiest stuff," remarked Welcome Robin.

"They don't use mud, anyway," said Pewee, slyly.

Welcome Robin flared up right away. "Mud, good mud, is clean, and it makes the best foundation in the world for a nest. I wouldn't give a flit of my wings for a nest without it."

"Such noisy people as they are! They are all the time quarreling, and they tell the whole neighborhood all their affairs," said modest Winsome Bluebird, who would never dream of doing such a thing.

Just then Jenny Wren came bustling up, and as usual her tongue flew so fast that no one else could get in a word.

"Did you ever see such dirthy things in all your life?" sputtered Jenny. "Why, this morning I happened to be over by the road, and there were those two taking a dust bath and seeming to enjoy it as much as if it had been a water bath. They threw it all over each other, and then when finally they flew back to the Old Orchard they didn't half shake the dust out of their feathers. Phew! If that's the way city folks live I don't want to ever go there!" Jenny could not keep still, but as she talked she hopped about looking at everything with her sharp eyes and jerking her funny little stick-up tail to emphasize her remarks.

"Any one who is careless about her clothes and how she looks as is Mrs. Bully must be a dreadfully slack housekeeper," continued Jenny. "I do detest dirt and dirty people. They are a disgrace to any neighborhood. The Old Orchard always has been a quiet, respectable place, and some of the very best families have lived here for years."

"Does that include your own?" asked Chippy Sparrow, while the others smiled.

"Perhaps it does, and perhaps it doesn't" retorted Jenny. "I'm not ashamed of my family or any of my relations."

Chippy looked a trifle embarrassed, for it had become generally known that Bully is a relative of his.

"As I was saying," continued Jenny Wren, "some of the best families have lived here for years, but I am afraid they will move away if any more such dirty, common looking, noisy people come here. Why, they'll make the whole neighborhood common! I think something ought to be done about it."

"But what can be done? This is a free country," said Brownie the Thrasher.

"Well, anyway, we needn't have anything to do with them. I won't for one!" snapped Jenny.

Before they separated it was agreed that no one would even notice Mr. and Mrs. Bully.

FASHIONS

Embroidery in Vivid Colors Trims the Waist of This Little Frock.

Very dainty and charming is the little crepe dechine frock shown in the sketch, with pleated skirt and tie-back waist, the latter embroidered in flowers of different shape and hue.

Ribbon either in black or color binds all the edges of the waist and bands the skirt about eight inches from the edge.

The dress might be made of two fabrics if preferred, although the plan outlined and employed for the frock sketched is decidedly smart and is more unusual than the two-fabric combination.

With the waning of summer the vogue of the tub frock is giving way in favor of the tub silk dress and crepe weave silks certainly continue to hold the very center of the stage. In the fall line-up there is quite a leaning to satin-finished fabrics also, but many of these have a crepe side, so that the frock, suit or coat may be made with the satin side out and trimmed with the crepe side or vice versa.

As has been repeatedly stated, increased skirt length is the dominant note in fall styles. This increased length is not a new note in that it was vigorously sounded last season, but not generally accepted.

There is no dodging the issue this season, however. Six to eight inches from the ground or floor seems to be the rule of all sides, and where there are still longer panels these touch the floor or at least so nearly touch that a casual glance leads one to list them as dust catchers.

For the majority of women skirts longer than those worn for several seasons are distinctly more graceful and becoming. The very young "flapper" may still wear her skirts quite short if she wishes to, as no rules ever seem to affect her point of view and will.

The straight line silhouette continues to be the thing, regardless of draperies and a bulletined circular skirt vogue.

TEXAS IS SOVEREIGN

THE eastern editorial writers have a tendency to settle questions all over the United States.

The most recent attempt to instruct fellow Americans in very distant places comes in the shape of political comment on the recent senatorial primary.

The Record News' Washington correspondent, Timmons, reports the editorial comment of certain eastern papers in Friday's paper, to the effect that Texas has disgraced herself in the defeat of Senator Culberson and that the senate should question the right of Mr. Mayfield, if elected and found to be a member of the ku klux klan, to his seat in the senate.

The fact is that Texas can send any person to the United States senate whom she chooses to send and the only qualification is that a majority of her citizens makes the choice. There are, of course, certain qualifications necessary to a senatorship and it is true that the senate committee of credentials has the right to investigate the credentials of any senator sent to Washington by any state.

But as a matter of fact, the only senators so challenged since the reconstruction period have been senators accused of corruption. In this case there has been no such accusation and there will not be.

The ku klux klan has been before congress in an official investigation and no action has been taken finding the same to be unlawful. It is highly questionable whether Mr. Mayfield's membership in the klan, if such is the case, will ever be brought before the senate committee should he be elected.

Certainly from the standpoint of a citizen of Texas any attempt to bar any person elected to the United States senate from Texas would be contested by the vast majority of Texas citizens.

Texas has the right to resent such positive and vigorous eastern editorials as have occurred in the last week. These editors do not know Mr. Mayfield and they cannot know the complexity of the political situation in Texas which led to his selection as first choice in the recent primary. They jumped to the conclusion that Mr. Mayfield's selection was a ku klux selection. They failed to give Mr. Mayfield credit for long public service in Texas, for a record on public issues in agreement with the vast majority of voters in the state and for an extraordinary ability to make friends. There is no question but that tens of thousands of members of the ku klux klan voted for Mr. Mayfield. Also tens of thousands voted for Mr. Henry. But it is also certain that tens of thousands of votes were cast for Mr. Mayfield by people not members of the klan and by persons who voted for Mr. Mayfield on other grounds entirely.

In no sense is the above written in support of Mr. Mayfield or because Mr. Mayfield needs any defense in advance of a possible journey to Washington. It is written merely as a protest against any eastern editorial opinion which seeks to pass upon the action of Texas voters without having full knowledge of the facts, also as a protest against an encroachment by citizens of one state upon the rights of citizens of another to do exactly as they please in the selection of their representatives in accordance with the constitution of the United States and the democratic doctrine of state sovereignty.

WHERE DO THEY GO?

MARK SULLIVAN says that the scepter of a coal famine is halting trade and industry is beginning to criticize President Harding's actions. Mark Sullivan should be more specific. Now just what are Harding's actions? What has he done to avert the famine? What does he hope to do? Soldiers maintain order but soldiers are not coal diggers. If the 650,000 American miners remain on strike, who is going to get out the coal for the American consumer and why not a living wage? Food prices are higher than they were a year ago. It costs more to keep a family than it did a year ago. Food producers are not getting it. Livestock producers are not getting it. Retail merchants say they are not getting it. Wholesalers say they are not getting it. In which direction do the profits or rich pickings flow?

FROM A SEAT IN THE GALLERY
By Herbert Corey

ONE of the best things about Washington at this season is that Coxey isn't here. If you do not believe it ask almost any congressman. Coxey is what might be described by the average congressman as a nervous breakdown. He asks so many questions that the congressman cannot answer.

Full name, Jacob Sechler Coxey. Address, Massillon, Ohio, when he is there. Business, owner of stone quarry. Profession, booster of Coxey's non-interest bearing bonds. Avocation, chasing congressmen into corners and shooting vicious queries. Age, 64.

Coxey began public life as the leader of the Keep off the Grass Army, way back in 1894. Hard times were rampant and he worked out what he believed to be a solution. Reduced to its essence, this involves the construction of public works and the payment therefor by non-interest bearing bonds and the redemption thereof at the rate of 4 per cent a year. He still wants to do the same thing.

"But that's Greenbackism," says the average congressman, who is confronted by Coxey in an unwary moment. "That's flat money. That's the same idea of finance that distinguished the soviets in Russia and Carranza in Mexico.

Fatal mistake. The proper reply to Coxey's argument is an interested smile and a noncommittal "just so." Because the congressman or any other man who tries to argue with Coxey automatically loses the decision. There is no chance of beating Coxey. In the first place, he has given almost every waking thought to his scheme for 26 years, and is primed with every sort of question, allegation, reminiscence, charge, and statement that can possibly be attached to it.

The other reason why Coxey cannot be beaten is Coxey. He eats debate. He devours argument. He had rather chase squeaking congressmen to their holes than hunt rabbits. He has never conceded that any mortal man ever won a single point from him and he never will. His delight is to testify before a committee of congress and overpower the committee. It is a corps of red steers to a butterfly that the committee quits first. He is a handy man in the rough and tumble style of retort. Any committeeman who sneers at Coxey is sure to get his sneer back in a form unpleasant for home publication.

That is why the few congressmen who are still here are happy that Coxey has gone home to Ohio. He may be a candidate for the United States senate out there on some sort of a ticket. He does not expect to be elected. He has been selfless in making his fight, for most of the money it has cost has come out of his own pocket, and no money could possibly go in. But he will have a bully time running.

Especially if some misled congressman attempts to heckle him.

AND THEY TALK ABOUT MEXICO

RUN-OFFS are growing in popular favor the country over. Now the Chicago coppettes have started a drive on deadly sidewalk flappers on Michigan boulevard and the run-off has excited 10 times the interest in newspaper and social circles in Chicago than the Ferguson-Mayfield run-off had precipitated or injected into the political or social life of Texas. More power to the coppettes. Down with the deadly sidewalk flappers. They are a menace and threaten to undermine the pillars of the republic, the constitutional rights of the millions and play havoc with the cherished doctrines of church and state. If it isn't one thing it's another in the United States and yet there are sane Americans who insist that Mexico should not be recognized by the United States on account of the few wild men and wild women of Aztec land.

HOW DOES HE GET THAT WAY?

SECRETARY OF WAR JOHN W. Weeks has issued an order forbidding members of the American army of occupation on the Rhine from marrying German women. Secretary Weeks must be an autocrat. If an American soldier wishes to marry a German girl it is his business. If the German girl is willing to take the chance and assume all the risks, why should the secretary of war butt in? It is neither his fight nor his funeral.

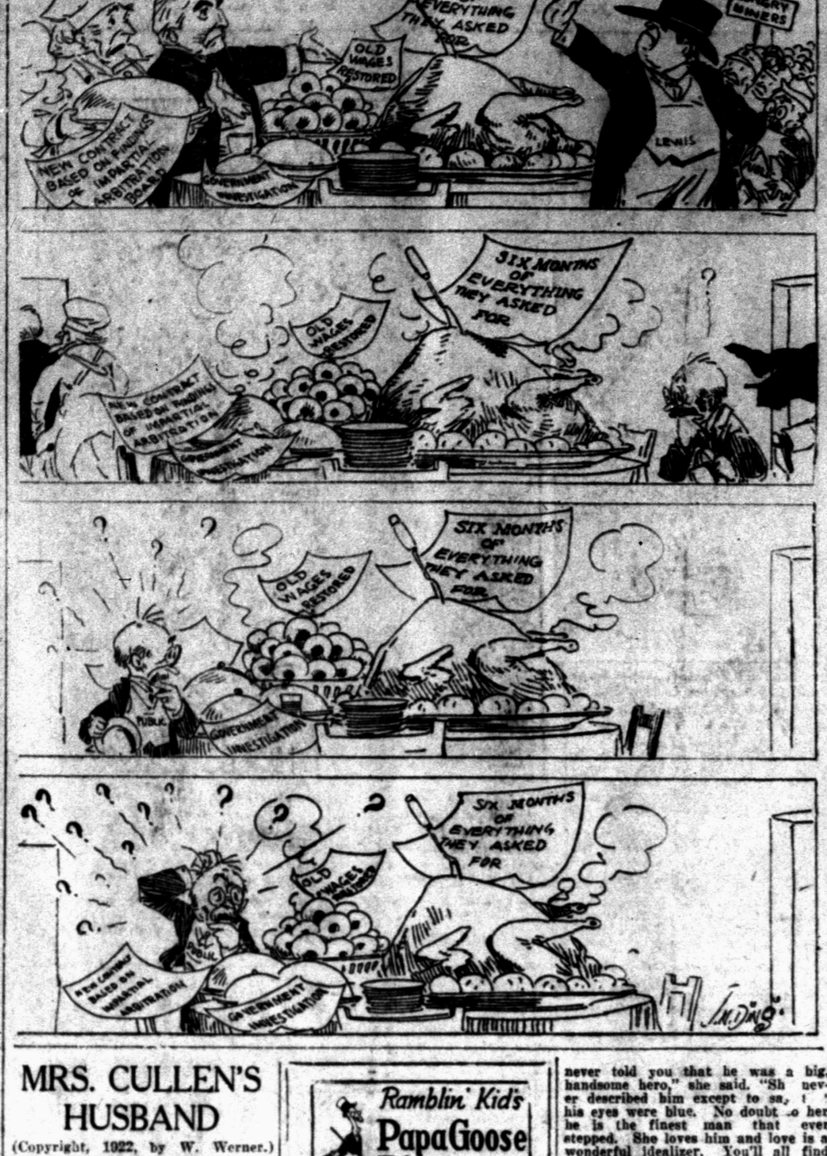

When a spinster at last gives up hope, she has one consolation. She is free to eat onions.

furs upon their bones, and send them through the furs upon their bones, and send them through the town; "The fact that I am heeled," I say, "with coin enough to load a dray, must have a wide renown. I represent the newly rich, and having clambered from the ditch up to a high estate, I want the whole blamed world to know that I have every kind of dough put down in keg and crate." My house is like a large hotel, and in it stately footmen dwell, a butler from abroad; with jeweled tools I swat the flies—and all is done to advertise the fact that I've a wad. My socks are brought from far-off France, and London tailors make my pance, my neckties come from Rome; and yet, with splendor all around, I heave a sort of doleful sound, as I sit in my home. For all my effects don't impress my mossback neighbors, I confess, and hence my weary sigh; those neighbors watch my trail of smoke and seem to size me as a joke, and smile when I go by. Old guns who sit in shabby nooks and paw the leaves of ancient books look on me with disdain, and residents whose only pride is that their dads for freedom died, observe me with a pain. With such a bunk account as mine, with all around me sleek and fine, my life should be a song; I am the man who cuts the ice, I am the one who has the price, and yet I don't belong.

We Still Can't See Anything the Matter With It

MRS. CULLEN'S HUSBAND

(Copyright, 1922, by W. Werner.)

Mrs. Cullen was, as usual, the centre of a small crowd on the hotel veranda. The Dawson girls were on one side of her, Mrs. Sherman on the other. Merle White sat on the railing.

Languid, lovely Irene Fuller stood near—Irene was one of those girls who can stand picturesquely for hours. And Miss Shinn was as close as she could get. Miss Shinn was the oldest member of the party. She said little, but she listened a great deal.

Mrs. Cullen was a small, plain, sweet woman at some indefinite point between thirty and forty. She had no style, although her clothes were of the expensive, refined sort, and she had but one topic of conversation. Yet she managed somehow to make this one topic so interesting that she never failed to hold her listener's ears. She was engaged upon it now, and the clever Dawson girls listened attentively. Beautiful Irene did not lose a word, Mrs. Sherman, fashionable little widow, smiled with interest, and Merle White stopped yawning, while her face, tanned by outdoor life, assumed something besides its usual bored expression. As for Miss Shinn, she kept right on crocheting and taking mental notes.

"Of course I never dreamed that Alexander would look at me," Mrs. Cullen was saying in her pretty way. "There were such a lot of delightful girls at the Cedarhurst that I cut a very poor figure. In those days I was quite dependent on my Aunt Julia, and she was not—well, she was not dressed. Aunt Julia always looked well, of course, but her clothes were old-fashioned, and what she had grown tired of she made over for me. So I usually wore black and gray, and I wasn't the kind of young person who could wear black or gray. I'm glad that nowadays girls can take their pick of beautiful, bright colors. She smiled at Irene's green sweater and Merle's rose-colored one. "I've always thought that but for one thing I might never have been brought to Alexander's notice, of course, he danced with me, but then he danced with all the girls. He was just that courteous. Then one night my hair came down. I had nice hair." She had still. "It came down in perfect shower and swung all round me before we could stop whirling. I was nearly mortified to death, but Alexander was so kind. He led me to a quiet corner, while I did up my hair, and after that he was attentive, and in a few days he proposed."

"How lovely!" breathed Merle. A faraway look came in Irene's magnificent eyes, and the Dawson girls sighed, and Mrs. Sherman bit her fan meditatively. Miss Shinn went right on crocheting.

"At that time," went on Mrs. Cullen, "Alexander was the handsomest man I ever saw, and he is to me still—the handsomest and the best. I wish I had his picture to show you, but he never has any taken; he is just so modest. However, he will be here this afternoon at 5, and then you can all see for yourselves."

Merle brightened. It only lacked an hour when the much talked-about gentleman would arrive. There was not a man at the Pine Inn then, and the girls had grown tired of dancing with one another. A handsome stranger, even if married, would be as acceptable as ice in one's lemonade on a scorching day. In the mean time it whiled away the minutes pleasantly to listen to Mrs. Cullen.

Five o'clock came and everybody on the Pine Inn veranda began to look down the road toward the station where at any instant might appear the hotel hack bringing Mr. Cullen. At last it appeared and Merle gave a shout:

"There it is!"

"But it's empty!" Mrs. Sherman said. "How provoking!"

Mrs. Cullen had arisen; she looked anxious. "Alexander never broke his word to me before," she said. "Something has happened! What can it be?"

"Oh I do hope he hasn't had a sunstroke!" said the Dawson girls. "Those big, florid men are so apt—"

Mrs. Cullen looked queerly at the Dawson girls, but she said nothing of what that look meant. Sitting down again she went on with her embroidery. "He'll send me a telegram if it's business, or anything like that," she said.

"Oh, how can you hold yourself in so?" cried Mrs. Sherman. "I used to have perfect fits every time Mr. Sherman left me. I always knew something was going to happen to him, and it did. He was one of those big, ruddy, magnificent—"

Mrs. Cullen cast another queer look at Mrs. Sherman, but just as her lips moved to speak, a boy tore up the walk on his bicycle.

"Telegram for Mrs. Cullen!" he announced.

There was a tense moment and then Mrs. Cullen smiled. "It was business. He was detained. He'll be here at 9."

"Three hours," mused Irene. "Nobody to dance with again tonight. Oh, hum!"

From this point time dragged. Dinner produced a pleasant interval. Afterward somebody started the phonograph and Irene and Merle stepped a few languid measures.

"It's so hot," Irene said. "Come out on the veranda where Mrs. Cullen is watching for her husband."

So they went out and sat down. It was moonlight, bright as day, and not a mosquito in hearing. The pines talked drowsily of youth and romance and waiting hearts. Then suddenly a light appeared at the bend of the road. It was the hotel hack.

Mrs. Cullen went down the steps alone to greet the new arrival. They kissed twice, then she led him up the steps.

"My husband, Mr. Cullen," she said, and began to name them all beginning with Mrs. Sherman.

Irene and Merle exchanged one glance, but they concealed their amazement. This was no big, florid magnificent man, but a little gray gentleman, a rather fussy little gentleman, who fiddled with his eyeglasses, a very ordinary, plain little man whom one at first sight could see had but two objectives in life, his business and his wife. The social graces obviously did not linger about Mr. Cullen. He was very hungry for there had been no dinner on the train, and he had to be fed, so Mrs. Cullen proudly led him to the dining room, where a tip provided him with a special little supper.

As they disappeared the girls collapsed. Merle laughed and laughed, but Irene sat like a stick.

"He never danced a step in his life," said the Dawson girls. "Why, he's just a nonentity. What a lot of whoppers she's told us! Making us believe he was a big handsome hero!"

Miss Shinn looked up quietly. She never told you that he was a big, handsome hero," she said. "She never described him except to say that his eyes were blue. No doubt she her he is the finest man that ever stepped. She loves him and love is a wonderful idealizer. You'll all find that out some day. If you love a man, even though his teeth are crooked and he hasn't a hair on his head, he'll be fine and handsome to you. Because Mrs. Cullen praised her husband and told how splendid he was to her you made mental pictures of him to suit yourself."

Merle twisted the ends of her sweater, Irene assumed her coldest stare, the Dawson girls and Mrs. Sherman looked foolish. And that seemed all there was to be of it.

A few minutes later Mrs. Cullen came out. She looked animated and pretty. "I left Alexander to drink his iced tea," she said, "while I ran out to tell you that his two nephews, Scott and Travis Walker, are due here any moment in their big twin-six. They're bringing a couple of friends with them for the week-end. Scott and Travis are splendid dancers, tennis players, and all that. You won't mind if dear Alexander does prove a little dull. He's so tired, you know, and he's come principally to rest."

GANADA FIRE RATE IS LOWERED

The Once Over

SIGNS OF SUMMER

Summer is running true to past performances. The signs are manifest.

Canoes, treaties, and statesmen are being rocked everywhere. Bathers who never swam a stroke in their lives are wading in over their heads far and near. Youths who have just learned to dive are plunging nimbly on to submerged ledges and jagged spiles. Sailing parties, neglecting to lower sail before the big wind, are being knocked for a row of Chinese channel buoys on every side.

Mad dogs, mad strikers and mad hatters are cavorting about from coast to coast. Weird murders are being reported daily. Sharks and sea serpents are being seen by water. African lions, aged tortoises with Washington's initials on their shells, pink alligators and strange gubernatorial candidates are being seen by land.

At all the select summer colonies millionaires' daughters are eloping with popper's red-headed chauffeur. Mrs. Van Goldengill is having her jewelry stolen for the home editions, and Mr. Van Goldengill's yacht is being raided by prohibition enforcement agents.

Golf balls, hydro-airplanes, mosquitoes, social asplartions and summer hotel rates are soaring everywhere.

United States congressmen are calling one another "liar!" The king of England is wearing a gray derby with quick detachable sweatbands. Heat wave victims are taking pop shots at European premiers. Pussyfoot Johnson is predicting world-wide prohibition.

Perfectly crazy men who would be speedily arrested if they openly tried murder in any other form are plotting motorcycles hell-bent-for-election over the highways with the if wires and kiddies in tin-bucket attachments that fly off at a given signal. Compared to these citizens Bluebeard Landru was a considerate family man and an opponent of violence. Put your wife in a metal basket, swing her against a stone wall and you'll be held for manslaughter. Put her in a motorcycle sidecar and it comes under the head of outdoor sports.

Automobiles are doing their stuff. People in limousines are driving off cliffs into space to see if the car will float.

Flivver drivers are driving between the headlights of motor trucks and parking themselves in the radiators. Sedan owners are parking on the railroad tracks at dangerous grade crossings and week-ending on the cowcatchers of through expresses.

Ptomaine picnic parties are filling the hills and dells. The 1922 colic crop is breaking all records. Jess Willard is challenging Jack Dempsey to a fight for the heavyweight championship. A New England shoemaker is sailing for Italy to lay claim to the throne as the rightful king.

Mothers-in-law are going out in open boats with their daughters' husbands.

The Bronx Zoo has instanced a platypus. Director Hornaday says it is half duck and half muskrat. A hotel guest at Worcester, Mass., insists he was attacked by a barracuda in the hotel bath room and asks damages. So does the hotel.

THE SONG OF THE TELEGRAPH WIRES

The humming noise made by a group of telegraph wires in familiar to almost everyone, and there is a variety of explanations of the phenomenon. A German scientist recently claimed that he had discovered that the weather could be predicted 24 or 36 hours in advance by observing the sounds made by these wires. In particular rain, snow and storms can be foretold with considerable certainty. In winter the tones are considerably higher than in the summer since the tension is increased by the cold. High shrill notes precede heavy but brief falls of rain or snow, while deep humming tones indicate rainfalls which are both brief and light. Buzzing tones indicate a change in the weather; indefinite soft, humming tones of medium strength indicate a longer continuance of damp weather. It is naturally difficult to describe the tones with precision in mere words. They must be heard repeatedly in order that the mind may form consciously or subconsciously an idea of the weather condition to which they correspond. At any rate the station master's prediction of a heavy storm upon the day following the interview proved entirely true.

Perdue and Wheeler Hurl Spndders to Double Win

EXPORTERS SHOW FIGHT IN FIRST BUT TAKE KALSOMINE COUNT IN ABBREVIATED GO

Summa Poles Another Homer; "Rip" Shows Ability to Hit as Well as Pitch; Doyle Leads Beaumont Team in First; Perdue Fans 10 In Last Game; Burk Semi-Pro Plays

By "SPIKE" COOPER

Behind Rip Wheeler and Hub Perdue, the Spudders chalked up straight wins Nos. 10 and 11 yesterday afternoon at the expense of the Exporters. Rip triumphed in a 9-5 contest, while Hub Perdue blanked the visitors in a seven-inning affair, 3-0.

While both games were hard fought and several flashing bits of play showed up, the day's feature came to light in the last game when Perdue whiffed 10 of the visiting hitters and let them down with three bingles.

Rip Wheele rturned in another bit of his high class hurling in the opening game and stopped the Exporters with six hits, but four passes and an error distributed amongst them netted the visitors five markers. Bits of fielding which bordered on the sensational helped him over, and although the Beaumonters had a lead of one run in the fifth, it did not last long and Wheeler was soon out of trouble.

Summa Comes Through

Homer Summa put the Spudders back in front with a neat smacker over the nether wall with Short Adams aboard. This was the deciding blow, though it came in the fifth inning and simultaneously with the game, went Joe Morris, the Exporter heaver. He failed to agree with Hunter Hill on a couple of strikes or balls and his majesty parked the scrappy moundist. Lurid Lou Kraft warmed up hastily and finished the route, allowing three runs and five hits for his four frames.

Perdue Runs Wild

The "Century Battery" were nominated for the last game and put the brakes on Joe Matnis and his gang. Three safe blows did they collect, one a welt nit double to left center by the boss himself. But Hub's slants slanted just right and his hooks hooked just right. Thereby hangs the tale of 10 of the 21 putouts of the seven inning game. Three times did Joe Mathis turn back and an equal number of trips were unhappily terminated in the same manner for Jimmie Doyle.

Morris came back the second game and had he not presented the Spudders with three runs, might have been pitching yet, for their hitting had not netted them anything until he heaved a couple into right field and chased Adams, Summa and Tex across the counting pan. Morris allowed but four hits, a couple of which were more or less juberous.

Visitors Use Rookie

There was a new face in the Exporter's club, for Boss Joe gave Neenely Vaught, the Burkburnett semi-pro, a place in right. While the youngster did not flash anything during the matinee, he did not show a hesitancy to tie into the game. He seemed cool and deliberate at the plate with the bags loaded, and when he failed to deliver, did not lose spirit. He may not be quite right for Class A ball yet, but he has prospects worth developing.

The Spudders started out in the first game with a marker in the opening round and counted in every one except the fourth and eighth. After Bescher had flied out to right, Tanner singled to right. Adams popped out to short, but Summa walked and Tex McDonald fired a stinging single to right and the parade had started.

Wheeler drove in the second run with a single to right while White waited on second.

In the third Adams and Summa singled through Mathis in rapid succession, Adams going to third on Summa's blow and Homer went to second on a play to third. White fired one to Doyle who juggled it long enough for White to reach first, while both runners scored.

Count Evened Up

The Exporters evened it up in their part of the fourth. Doyle tripled to right and Mathis singled to right scoring Doyle. Allen popped out to Tanner. Edington walked and Anderson was hit by a pitched ball, filling the bases. Wheeler then uncorked a wild pitch and Mathis counted. Stansbury singled to center and Summa let the ball get away from him and Edington and Anderson scored.

One run in the fifth put the visitors out in front for a short while. Doyle and Mathis doubled in succession for the run.

Only two hitters faced Morris in the fifth when he picked a work with Hill and was parked. Adams to right and Summa dropped one over the fence for a pair of tallies.

Wheeler got his second single in the sixth as lead off man. Bescher popped out to short but Tanner fired a knock into center sending Wheeler to second. Adams dumped one out in front of the plate and Kraft failed to get hold of the ball and everybody stopped safe. Summa flied out to left and Wheeler scored.

The last two of the game came in the seventh. Beck drew a pass and on an attempted sacrifice, White popped to Kraft. Bischoff also walked. Rip singled to center and filled the bags very full. Bescher was out short to first but Beck scored. Tanner walked and they were full again. Adams singled to center and Bischoff scored, but Wheeler was run down between third and home.

The Exporters got only one man to third base in the second game, but after a hit and two walks had filled every corner, Perdue tightened up and fanned Vaught and Morris for the final outs.

The Spudders got their first runs in the fourth. Adams, and Summa singled in a rush to open the roun. Tex bunted through the box and when Morris threw late to first, he also threw very wild and as the ball rolled to the negro stands, both runners in front scored.

The other marker came as a present also. Tex drew a walk and when Morris attempted to get him off first, he again threw wild and Tex went to third. A wild pitch a moment later permitted the last run to count.

The Exporters make their final appearance of the season here today.

THEY ARE KEEPING ST. LOUIS IN THE RACE

Lee Fohl's superb handling of his pitchers, old and young, and the brilliant infielding of McManus at second, are two of the high spots in the spectacular race the St. Louis Browns continue to run. Urban Shocker is a veteran of many campaigns. Bayne is an experienced hurler though still young. McManus, in a brief season, has made a bid for fame at second. Van Gilder's a youngster.

BIG LEAGUE SCOUT WATCHES T-O LEAGUE

STAMFORD, July 30.—Bob Connery, widely known scout for the New York Yanks, is giving players in the West Texas league close scrutiny, looking to the possible drafting of some for the major leagues. He has already visited Amarillo and Abilene. Connery last year signed "Lefty" Wilson, a Hamlin boy, and recently saw him at Sioux City, where he is apparently making good. Wilson has initiative and much enthusiasm, qualities which Connery says will make him a gilt-edge player.

COBB PASSES SISLER IN HITTING

Veteran Smacks 13 Hits in Last 6 Games

By Associated Press

CHICAGO, July 30.—Throwing a jolt and punch into the Detroit Americans which is being felt by every American league club, the veteran Tyrus Cobb, Tiger pilot, excelling his every past performance at the bat, today is out in front of all American league contenders for 1922 hitting honors, and is leading his mates convincingly in the close pennant race. Tyrus is showing his men how to hit, and this has carried him past George Sisler, St. Louis star, for the batting honors of the league, which he lost to Speaker and Sisler, in the past two seasons.

Cobb, in his last six games cracked out thirteen hits, better than two a game, and boosted his mark from .405 a week ago to .418, while Sisler, who led the batters with an average of .416 a week ago, dropped to second place with an average of .404. He was able to acquire only six hits in as many games. The averages include games of Wednesday.

Georve Veach has instilled a fighting spirit into the Tigers, with the result that they are topping all the clubs in team batting with an average of .307, while the leading St. Louis Browns are next with .301.

Sisler continues to lead in total bases with 255, his 155 hits including twenty-seven doubles, eleven triples and seven homers. He failed to increase his stolen base record, but is showing the way with thirty-four thefts.

Clarence "Tillie" Walker, the slugging outfielder of the Athletics, bagged another homer and is leading the home run clouters with twenty-four. Ken Williams, of the Browns being the runner-up with twenty-two, with Babe Ruth tagging along with seventeen.

Other leading batters for sixty or more games: Schang, New York, .357; Speaker, Cleveland, .356; Heilmann, Detroit, .348; Tobin, St. Louis, .347; Bassler, Detroit, .347; Ed Miller, Philadelphia .347; Meusel, New York, .345; Blue, Detroit, .333; Witt, New York, .338.

Hornsby Still Leads

There was practically no change in the relative standing of the batters in the National league. Rogers Hornsby of the Cardinals, who has been setting the pace, added one point to his mark of a week ago, and tops the list with an average of .398. Ray Grimes, the slugging first baseman of the Chicago Cubs, has maintained his mark of a week ago—.363, and moved up to second place, displacing the veteran Jake Daubert of the Reds who dropped eleven points, but is holding third place with an average of .360.

Hornsby crossed the plate five times in his last six games, and has taken the lead from Max Carey of the Pirates, as the best run getter. The St. Louis star crossed the plate 80 times, while Carey scored 79 runs.

Carey, however, increased his lead for the stolen base honors by three thefts, bringing his total to twenty-seven.

Other leading batters for sixty or more games: Hollocher, Chicago, .350; J. Johnston, Brooklyn, .357; Bigbee, Pittsburgh, .354; Duncan, Cincinnati .347; L. Miller, Chicago, .346; Schultz, St. Louis, .341; Carey, Pittsburgh, .338.

BOSTON, July 30.—Hugh McQuillan, pitching ace of the Boston Braves, has been sold to the New York Giants, George Washington Grant, owner announced today.

The price paid for McQuillan was not stated but President Grant said it was in six figures.

Notwithstanding the various kinds of trouble we are in, there can't be anything seriously wrong with the world that affords corn on the cob.

State Banks Ordered to Make War on Cotton Speculators

PROFIT SHOULD GO TO FARMERS

Hall Takes Steps to Finance Crop

BY S. RAYMOND BROOKS
Staff Correspondent.

AUSTIN, July 30.—Speculation on cotton this year will be practically on a large scale, it has been predicted by Banking Commissioner Ed Hall, in his annual letter to banks outlining a suggested bankers' policy with respect to financing the marketing of the cotton crop.

"Numerous people of no financial worth will enter the market as cotton buyers," Mr. Hall predicted, and said, "where a bank makes advances to this character of people the gain goes to them and the loss to the bank."

Mr. Hall declared that he will, in supervising state banks, "do such things as are necessary to eliminate the practice, even though it becomes necessary to eliminate from the bank the officers and directors responsible."

State banks, Mr. Hall declared in his annual cotton letter to the 906 state banks, lost less money on advances for the purchase of agricultural products last year than during any other recent year. The letter this year, he declared, was sent as a guide to bankers, calling attention "to the inherent danger of cotton accounts and advances on agricultural products.

Must Stop Speculators

"In making your advances against cotton," Mr. Hall told all state bankers, "several things are to be borne in mind. The primary thing of course, is the safety of your advance and whether or not you can secure the return of your funds with a legal rate of interest. Speculation in any form must be eliminated. The banker can determine speculation if he will analyze the accounts. I ask your hearty co-operation to eliminate any further speculation, for if necessity arises and the banker permits speculation, I will be forced to eliminate such banker. A bank should not advance money for the purchase of cotton or agricultural products when it is necessary for it to borrow money to carry on such advances. If a buyer has a tendency to hold for higher prices, close the account and do not reopen it.

Banks should not confuse advances for purchases of cotton with legitimate requests of producers for advances for the purpose of permitting orderly marketing of their products, Mr. Hall pointed out.

"I consider it an obligation of a bank to the producers of agricultural products that they should assist them in every legitimate manner to secure the highest price for their products."

"The banking system always has to deal with a few bankers," Mr. Hall declared, "who think they can go against the 'experience table,'" and for that class of bankers, he said, "as fast as we can locate them, it will be our policy to ask their resignations from state banks."

BALDNESS IS INCREASING.

Dr. Ales Hrdlicka, of Smithsonian Institute, thinks baldness is increasing, hair becoming unnecessary, and that in 2,500 years men's skulls will be as hairless as billiard balls. Plenty of bald-heads are mentioned in the Old Testament. The truth is, the amount of hair in all generations depends on the condition of the thyroid gland.

FREDERICK, Okla., July 30.—large crowds from all parts of the county are attending the big, annual picnic now being held at Manitou, 10 miles north of here. Although the grounds are covered with all sorts of entertainments which make up a real celebration, candidates speaking is the main attraction.

FREDERICK TO HAVE BOXING BOUT

Special to The Record News.

FREDERICK, Okla., July 30.—Fight fans will receive one of the best treats of the summer when Sailor Williams of Snyder and Country Boy Lance of Oklahoma City meets here Friday, August 4, in a 10-round bout. Persons who witnessed the fight between these two at the time Jack Dempsey visited Oklahoma City, state that the exhibition was of the first class and a fight the entire time.

In addition to the main bout, Donald Greer of Lawton and Kid Snyder of Burkburnett, Texas, lightweight, will box.

Williams and Lance are not amateurs but have a high standing in the professional class and will put up one of the best boxing exhibitions ever seen here," says S. W. Kerr, promoter.

Bees Pay Their College Expenses.

Two Seattle girls, Harriet Fuller and Ragna Carlton, recently invested in one hundred hives of bees and have located a honey farm in the country about seven miles from Nisqually, Washington. With the profits they expect to pay their way through college. They have located in the midst of a tract of land which was burned over by a forest fire a short time ago, which is now covered with what is called "fireweed." This blooms profusely and is very attractive to the bees.

ROARING SPRINGS DEFEATS PADUCAH

PADUCAH, July 30.—A fast ball game was played Friday at the Paducah ball park between Paducah and Roaring Springs.

The Paducah sluggers had the game well in hand up to the fifth inning, when Fromby, Roaring Springs fast twirler busted one over the fence and marked up two scores. Again in the sixth inning, Fromby hooked another for a homer and succeeded in running in three scores. The game was interesting all the way through resulting in a score of 9 to 3 in favor of Roaring Springs.

Market Says Little Early in Week

By Associated Press.

NEW ORLEANS, July 30.—Following small advances on the opening session, the tendency was to sag in the cotton market last week although the downward trend was not pronounced, the drouth in Texas being in the way of aggressive selling. At the lowest levels prices were 75 to 98 points under the close of the preceding week; the close was at net losses of 37 to 43 points. October rose to 21.58, fell off to 20.40 and closed at 20.96 in the spot department prices lost 25 points on middling which closed at 21.50 against 11.00 on the close of this week last year.

During a good part of the week it was a weather market with the hot and dry weather in Texas and Oklahoma the big feature. Claims of serious deterioration came from many points in Texas. Premature opening of boll was complained over large areas. The drouth became so important late in the week that the trade took less interest in the forthcoming government report on condition than would have been possible under other circumstances.

Early declines of he week were due to a private bureau report on conditions of 73.5 indicating a crop of 11,950 000 bales. As the week progressed many other private bureau condition estimates appeared. The average of 11 private reports on conditions was 73.2.

REST IS NEED OF MODERN PEOPLE

...wers Describes "...mericanitus"

...e as a people are afflicted with "Americanitus" and that in our social, political, church and private pursuits are rushing through life, running here and there until we are tiring ourselves without accomplishing what we should is the substance of a statement made Sunday morning by Dr. O. L. Powers of the First Baptist church in preaching to his congregation on "The doctrine of rest."

Dr. Powers told of Jesus calling his disciples apart into a desert place to rest awhile. He said that in this case the word desert meant a place where there was not so much coming and going of people—a secluded spot. He said he does not think the word desert meant the same in that case as it means now and that he pictured in his mind the spot as one of grass and trees and flowers with running water. Dr. Powers went on to give numerous instances where efforts were made to get Jesus to rush to places or to rush through teaching but said Jesus never rushed. He took his time and was thorough. He said we read the scriptures and think of Jesus as a man who was always in a rush and either working or planning work to do. "But if we will read the scriptures carefully and slowly and study them we will find that ...always left a place in his life ... and that he was never in a ...," the minister said. Dr. Powers ... of the time when Jesus was ... Lazarus, his friend, was ... still he tarried two days ... went to Lazarus. He said ... of well developed, well balanced characters such as ...ples took time to develop ... traits.

Need Time to Think

"Every man who works eight hours a day and really works those eight hours needs rest," Dr. Powers said. He told of our political, social and church life as well as our business life as being lived in a rush. He said we have rushed through things to ... an extent that we have lost the ability to think deep and to go into the bottom of things.

Dr. Powers told of leading a meeting in west Texas recently where a woman shouted. He said she almost frightened some of the congregation and that others bowed their heads as if ashamed. "I'd give a hundred dollors if that woman could come to this church in Wichita Falls and stir some of the old time emotion," he said. He said that in this day of rushing through life we find the old time emotional religion is most all found back in the woods among the people who live out there away from the mad rush of life. In conclusion Dr. Powers pleaded with his hearers to take time to live substantial, true, penetrating Christian lives and to accept the call of Jesus when he said "come unto me all ye who are weary and heavy laden and I will give you rest."

RANCHER'S DAUGHTER HELD

Mrs. Lewis Alterie

(By Central Press)

CHICAGO, July 30.—Police here, searching for bandits who robbed two women of $40,000 worth of gems, arrested Mrs. Lewis Alterie in connection with the theft while searching the Parkway hotel.

Mrs. Alterie was indignant—naturally—but not half so indignant as when police charged that her husband was nothing "but a cheap pug."

Mrs. Alterie then and there almost copped every ring championship in the department.

She was willing to battle about it, but police wouldn't make the weight or something, anyway Mrs. Alterie had to content herself with oral denials.

She told police that her husband, far from being a common prize-fighter, is a member of a prominent and wealthy New York family.

Police say he is known as Kid Hayes, a pal of Terry Druggan, an old leader of the "Valley gang."

Police were seeking the bandits who robbed Mrs. George A. Weinberger and Mrs. Joseph R. Mendelsohn when they nabbed Mrs. Alterie.

"Why, it's silly for the police to take me in connection with that theft," Mrs. Alterie said, "and it is sillier to say that my husband is a prizefighter. He's a member of a well-to-do New York family."

But so far Mrs. Alterie hasn't been able to convince the police.

TEXAS BECOMES AN ART CENTER

Art Collection Sent to State Fair

Special to The Record News.

WASHINGTON, July 30.—Texas, long looked upon as a cattle center, has now come forward as a patron of the arts. Each year the State Fair association sends a leading artist of the southwest to New York for the purpose of selecting pictures which are exhibited at the museum in Dallas, where native Texans may study them. This year Julian Onderdonk, landscape artist, of San Antonio, was commissioned to make the selections. On his return to Texas Dr. Onderdonk will take with him pictures valued at more than $5,000,000.

"These pictures," said Mr. Onderdonk, who is in Washington, "are for the most part by representative artists of the east. They are taken to Texas with the option of purchase. After they are exhibited at the state fair a committee decides upon a number of pictures wanted for the state collection, and these are purchased outright. The others are shipped back to the galleries in New York. In this way the state of Texas gives its people a liberal education in art.

OLYMPIC GIVES RECORD A PARTY

'Smilin' Through' Is Norma's Best

Love, hate, passion, emotion—all is contained in the gripping drama, "Smiling Through," as depicted by Norma Talmadge.

It is by far the best picture that Miss Talmadge has made in years.

Through the courtesy of the management of the Olympic theater, where "Smiling Through" will be played four days this week commencing today, the Record News business and editorial staffs were entertained with a private screening of the thrilling narrative Sunday evening.

"Smiling Through" is a masterful work of the screen. Every one of the interesting eight reels grips the audience, and through her winning smiles, Miss Talmadge was well chosen to depict the part of "Kathleen," living image of "Moonyeen," the love-dream of a man whom years had filled with a hate almost inexplicable.

And there are parts so touching in the picture that tears well the eyes, and just when the spectator is ready to choke away a lump and dry an eye, humorous occurrences which spring through at irregular intervals bring another touch of color to the performance.

"Smiling Through" is played by a star cast, and from the touch of the world war which adds pathos to the theme, to the gripping minutes when the man of hate is alone in his garden with his "Moonyneen" of the spirit world, the characters keep their audience spell-bound.
