Himmler Crunches Poison Vial, Dies

Tube Concealed In Mouth Broken By Teeth While Doctors Examine Him

By WILLIAM F. BONI
Associated Press Staff Writer

BRITISH SECOND ARMY HEADQUARTERS, May 24 — Heinrich Himmler, arch-executioner for Hitler's Third Reich, died last night by biting into a tiny glass vial of potassium cyanide he had concealed in his mouth.

The owlish chief of the German Gestapo and of Hitler's SS troops, whose orders condemned hundreds of thousands of conquered civilians and Germans to death, took his own life in the parlor of a house in Lueneberg as a British medical officer searched him.

The man for whom the Allies had conducted an intensive manhunt since Germany capitulated died clad only in a pair of socks.

Civilian clothes had been stripped from him as a medical examiner made an exhaustive check.

It was when the physician ordered him to open his mouth and forced back his tongue for a closer look that Himmler decided the end had come.

With a quick shake of his head, Himmler dislodged a tiny glass container which he apparently had kept lodged along his gums since his capture three days before.

He crushed the vial between his teeth and fell to the floor. Fifteen minutes later, at 11:04 p. m. (4:04 p. m. central war time) Germany's No. 1 war criminal was dead.

Unrecognized Three Days

The British Second Army headquarters disclosed that he had been picked up unrecognized three days before as he and two SS bodyguards attempted to slip across a bridge west of Hamburg.

At the time of his arrest, Himmler was disguised with a black patch over his right eye. His moustache was shaved from his thin, upper lip.

He was in civilian clothes and he carried forged papers purporting to identify him as "Hitzinger."

The papers failed to satisfy the guards, who took all three men to the field security police who in turn passed the trio back to a detention camp.

There, Himmler still remained unrecognized, but some time later he demanded an interview with the camp commander.

Calmly Removes Disguise

Summoned before a British officer at 7 p. m. Wednesday, he calmly removed the black patch and donned glasses.

Thus, with a dramatic touch, he revealed himself as Hitler's terrorist.

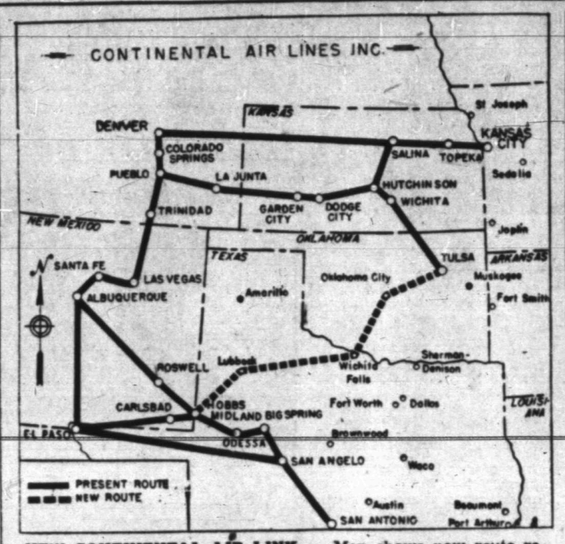

British officers immediately ordered Himmler stripped of all clothing and despite vigorous protests searched him carefully for hidden poison.

A small blue vial was found in his clothing.

Unknown to his captors, he apparently had a second vial in his mouth, and presumably had kept it there continuously since he was taken into custody.

Himmler was biven the choice

NEW CONTINENTAL AIR LINK — Map shows new route recently approved for Continental Air Lines (dotted line), connecting El Paso and Tulsa via Hobbs, Lubbock, and Wichita Falls, and its relation to other Continental routes in the area (solid lines).

Succession Of Events Gives Hope For Early Air Service

In a succession of events reportedly assuring early airline facilities for Lubbock, Braniff Airways Thursday notified the chamber of commerce the line is planning to inaugurate service to Lubbock on July 1, subject to necessary wartime approvals, Essair, Inc., officials were here to install radio equipment prior to starting service, Lubbock Airport board met and approved alterations of the airport, and further details were received here regarding a Continental airline route through Lubbock.

The alternations will provide office space for those three airlines which now have Civil Aeronautics board permits to serve Lubbock—Braniff, Essair and Continental.

Board Sends Telegram

In a telegram to the chamber of commerce, Charles E. Beard, vice president of Braniff airways, Inc., said, "Braniff airways is about to shatter the isolation of Lubbock and connect it by air with other important sections of the United States. Subject to necessary wartime approvals by the CAB, Army and CAA, applications for which we are now preparing, we are planning the inauguration of service to Lubbock on July 1, 1945. Service at the outset will be rendered with one trip daily in each direction and the schedule will be devised so as to connect Lubbock with Amarillo, Pueblo, Colorado Springs and Denver on the north and, on the south, with Fort Worth, Dallas and other points on Braniff airways system in Texas.

"Trunkline service of the same standard," the telegram continued, "as that we now render to all other major communities on our routes will be inaugurated, including the use of Douglas DC-3 21-passenger aircraft, hostess service, meals in flight, etc. Our superintendent of operations and such other technical personnel as may be required from time to time will be in Lubbock within the next few days to complete local arrangements. We are looking forward to a good deal of pleasure to the inauguration of this service for which both the City of Lubbock and its surrounding trade territory and Braniff airways have been waiting so long." He closed with suggestions regarding publicizing the information.

Later information was received that Braniff officials will be here from Dallas today.

Prepare For Runs

An Essair crew arrived Wednesday night. A. W. Meadows, operations manager of Essair, and A. A. Childers, who has charge of radio equipment, and others were here, to install radio equipment prior to trial runs, which will be made preparatory to initiating two flights daily from Amarillo to Houston, by way of Lubbock, San Angelo, Abilene and Austin. According to tentative schedules, a plane would leave Lubbock at 7:34 a. m. and arrive in Houston at 12:29 p. m., and a plane would leave Houston at 2 p. m. and arrive here at 6:42 p. m. The line recently signed a temporary lease agreement with the city for use of the hangar.

The chamber of commerce also notified Continental airline headquarters at Denver of the impending alterations and invited the line to send representatives here.

Continental received a Civil Aeronautics board permit last week to serve Lubbock on an El Paso-Tulsa route. Establishment of the lines' new route promises to provide local service in an area in which northeast-southwest surface transportation is "inadequate," in which there is no direct air transportation, it was said in a statement received here from Robert F. Six, Continental president.

The route is an extension of Continental's route 29, and extends the present El Paso-Carlsbad-Hobbs leg to Tulsa, via Lubbock, Wichita Falls and Oklahoma City.

Establishment of the new route will provide Lubbock, Wichita Falls, Hobbs, Carlsbad, Roswell, Big Spring, and Midland-Odessa with northeast-southwest air transportation for the first time.

Interests Oil Industry

The route is of particular interest to the petroleum industry as it will tie together Tulsa, Oklahoma City, Wichita Falls, Lubbock,

Mighty B-29 Blow Leaves Tokyo Aflame

By HAMILTON FARON
Associated Press Staff Writer

GUAM, Friday, May 25.—Flames swept the Shinagawa industrial area of Tokyo for hours after the biggest Superfortress raid in history—more than 550 planes—showered 9,000,000 pounds of incendiary bombs on the Nipponese capital yesterday.

Japanese imperial headquarters, never prone to give an expansion report on aerial raid damage to the homeland, said that five and one-half hours after the big planes struck the city at 1:30 a. m. (12:30 a. m. Wednesday, U. S. central war time), "almost all fires" were extinguished.

Carriers Lash Airfields

Tokyo radio broadcast also an unconfirmed report that around 180 American carrier planes raided Nipponese airfields on the southern-most home island of Kyushu. Domei, Japanese news agency, said the attack lasted about two hours and inflicted "relatively light damage."

The Superfortress squadrons smashed Tokyo under a full moon, dumping their loads on a concentrated area of Japan's precision instrument and machine tool industry.

Returning fliers said the flames licked through factories and waterfront railyards which handle one-third of Japan's rail traffic, and the fires were visible 200 miles away.

Japs Minimize Blow

Japanese headquarters reported only "some 250" B-29s made the attack and while omitting mention of damage to industrial plants said an arbor in the imperial palace was hit and "an establishment" inside the Akasaka palace grounds was destroyed.

The Nipponese communique also made the unconfirmed claim that 27 Superforts were shot down and 30 more heavily damaged.

Yank Forces Bisect Mindanao; Fresh Troops Move Into Naha

Bridges Erected On River Despite Heavy Jap Fire

(By The Associated Press)

GUAM, Friday, May 25—Across bridges thrown over the Asato river under enemy fire, Sixth division Marines reinforced their forces fighting inside the capital city of Naha on the west coast of Okinawa Thursday.

Marine patrols fought throughout the day inside the rubble of the city to reduce Japanese strongpoints.

On the east coast, Seventh division infantrymen in the face of stiff resistance drove farther south below captured Yonabaru in what today's fleet communique reported as "important advances."

Heavy mud restricted operations elsewhere along the "Little Siegfried line."

Two Bridges Built

In the Naha sector, while Japanese artillery poured shells on the river area, Marine engineers built two bridges across the Asato.

One was of sufficient size to accommodate vehicles bringing supplies for the expanding bridgehead inside the ruined capital.

The Seventh division's gain expanded a bulge in heights south of Yonabaru from which the Yanks are in position to swing in behind fortress Shuri.

Bomb-harassed Japan sent down more planes to relieve the worsening situation of the Nipponese garrison on southern Okinawa. Raiders succeeded in damaging a "light unit" of the American fleet Wednesday night.

Jap Planes Attack

Thursday numerous groups of Japanese planes began attacking American forces ashore and afloat on the island of Ie a mile west of Motobu peninsula on the northwest coast. Acknowledging "some damage to installations," the communique said that at 10:30 p. m. the attacks were continuing. By that time, 15 raiders had been destroyed.

U. S. military government authorities are developing facilities on Okinawa for the administration of more than 139,000 civilians already under their control. Eighty-two percent of these are women and children under 17. The majority of adult males were drafted into labor service by the Japanese prior to the U. S. landings April 1.

Carriers Pound Ryukyus

American escort carrier planes continued Thursday to pound Japanese airfields on Sakishima, in the southern Ryukyus.

Today's communique reported that light naval units, presumably destroyers, bombarded Surabachi port and installations on the east coast of Paramushiro in the Kurliles Sunday. Fires and explosions resulted. Two enemy planes were driven off before they could cause damage to the warships.

Remnants Of Japs Once Numbered At 50,000 Doomed

By FRED HAMPSON
Associated Press Staff Writer

MANILA, Friday, May 25 — Three American divisions joined along a north-south highway on central Mindanao Wednesday, and Gen. Douglas MacArthur reported today the campaign on that big Philippine island had reached the "mopping-up stage."

The juncture bisected Mindanao from Macajalar bay on the north to Davao on the south, and served to doom remnants of an enemy garrison once estimated at 50,000 troops.

Japs Pull Out To Hills

Maj. Gen. Clarence Martin's 31st division made contact with the 40th, under Maj. Gen. Rapp Brush, and the Americal division under Maj. Gen. William H. Arnold along the Sayre highway against only slight resistance.

The biggest part of the central Mindanao Japanese force withdrew to the hills east of the road to fight it out.

Maj. Gen. Roscoe Woodruff's 24th division to the southeast fought a slugging battle with a large Japanese force entrenched between the Davao and Talomo rivers on Davao gulf. One regiment going up the coast joined a guerrilla force moving south.

Three Airfields In Use

Three airfields in the Davao area already are in use by American planes.

On Luzon, stiff fighting continued in the Ipo trap northeast of Manila but a headquarters spokesman said organized resistance ceased on Wednesday, with the Japanese no longer under central control.

A powerful aerial blow against Formosa was reported. Escorted heavy and medium bombers dropped 235 tons of explosives on air bases, rail yards, barracks and industrial plants in widely separated parts of the big island.

Three freighters and a large ocean-going tug were sunk and nine landing craft set afire in raids on the Asiatic coast. Rail yards in French Indo-China were severely pounded.

Bombers sprayed 130 tons of bombs on targets in the East Indies and sank a cargo ship.

Australian ground troops secured Cape Moem, four miles east of captured Wewak on northeastern New Guinea. The Aussies have killed an additional 1,091 Japanese and captured 57 in operations on New Guinea, Bougainville and New Britain islands.

Parley Takes Up Use Of Troops

By DOUGLAS B. CORNELL
Associated Press Staff Writer

SAN FRANCISCO, May 24.—The United Nations conference for the first time tonight dipped into the question of how armed forces will be put at the disposal of a world organization so it may take "urgent military measures" to prevent war.

With gold braid, Navy blue and Army khaki of many lands present in profusion, a committee deferred a decision on whether the new league should be able to strike originally with an air force alone or with a mixed contingent.

Part of Dumbarton Plan

What the committee tackled was a portion of the Dumbarton Oaks formula for a world charter dealing with how a proposed security council would use forcible means to keep peace if diplomatic, economic or other pressure failed.

The blueprint says the council "should be empowered to take such action by air, naval or land forces as may be necessary to maintain or restore international peace and security."

Members of the new league would be expected to sign special agreements on the size of the forces they would make available to the council on call. Dumbarton Oaks says, however, that for urgent military measures, members of the organization should hold air force contingents immediately available for peace-enforcement action.

Action Postponed

Action was postponed on French and Australian amendments proposing the mixed forces be held in readiness for emergency operations. Some delegates said the Big Four nations sponsoring the conference wanted delay because they are still consulting on the subject.

A military staff committee, made up of chiefs of staff of the Big Four powers plus France, would have "strategic direction" of the forces used by the council. An amendment of the sponsoring nations to let the staff committee establish regional subcommittees was approved 40 to 0.

Coming up for a vote, probably by tomorrow, is an amendment by Uruguay suggesting that the world be divided into regions, each with its general staff representing all the member states in the individual regions. The regional staffs would elect a chief, who thereupon would become a member of the world organization's

House Votes Down Adjournment Plan

AUSTIN, May 24 (AP) — The House today refused to join the Senate in adjourning the general session of the legislature one week from today and threw the question of adjournment back to a free conference committee for adjournment of differences.

By a vote of 63 to 57 the House refused to accept a conference committee report recommending adjournment at noon May 31, a report which the Senate previously had accepted by unanimous vote.

House opponents of voting immediately for adjournment pitched their argument mostly on the fact that conference reports on three big appropriation bills have not reached the floor for examination.

This was despite an announcement by Rep. M. B. Morgan of Denison, chairman of the House Appropriations committee, that conference reports on these bills would be available Monday, May 28.

Two veteran members, Reps. S. J. Isaacks of El Paso and C. E. Nicholson of Port Neches, argued for acceptance of the conference report on sine die adjournment.

Isaacks said not in his memory had a legislature failed to adopt a sine die resolution about a week in advance of the adjournment date.

Nicholson raised the question of public reaction to prolonging the session.

He recalled that when the primary period of general sessions was extended from 60 days to 120 days by constitutional amendment the people evidently "thought 120 days were enough to complete the work of a session."

Only Halfway Efforts

He asserted that the work accomplished in the first 120 days of the current session (it was in its 136th day) was no more than formerly accomplished in 60 days.

Nicholson added:

"I find from a study of the Journal that we have worked about six hours daily compared with 10 or 12 worked when 60-day sessions were in effect.

"With a record like that I can't understand how this house can continue to hang on. In deference to the members I shall recite no more statistics but the record is here for inspection."

Rep. Jo Ed Winfree of Houston, the only conferee who did not sign the May 31 adjournment recommendation, argued against its adoption addressing his remarks particularly to "you country school teachers in the House and those of you who have devoted your time to the aid of the old people."

He contended the House should not agree to an adjournment date

Bond Drive Passes Two Billion Mark

WASHINGTON, May 24. (AP) — America's extra cash pouring into the vault in the 7th war loan has passed the two billion dollar mark.

The treasury announced sales are $2,101,000,000. All of this represents war bond purchases by individuals. Corporation sales haven't begun.

The sales figure now is 30 per cent of the seven billion dollar quota for individuals. The total sales goal is $14,000,000,000.

Of the sales so far, $1,366,000,000 was in E-bonds. That's 34.1 per cent of the E-bond quota of $4,000,000,000.

Negro Group Asks Clark Withdrawal

SAN FRANCISCO, May 24. (AP) The National Negro council today telegraphed President Truman a request he withdraw the nomination of Tom C. Clark of Texas as attorney general.

Edgar Brown, council president, said the plea emphasized that Clark as assistant attorney general failed to carry out a Supreme court decision nullifying the Texas state Democratic "white primaries," which barred negroes from a vote in that state.

Brown added that inasmuch as Clark, to his knowledge, has never issued any statement to uphold the decision, he must be a party "to disfranchise more than one-half million negroes in Texas."

Japs Reinforce Menaced Coast

CHUNGKING, May 24. (AP) — The Japanese have rushed reinforcements by warships into the critical east coast sector 30 miles northeast of the liberated port of Foochow, where they fear American forces soon may strike from the sea, the high command announced today.

A special communique said the enemy — routed from seaboard positions he had fortified against an American invasion—had thrown these fresh forces into battle in an attempt to stem a Japanese retreat which had rolled back to near Loyuan, 31 miles northeast of Foochow.

Landings Made Tuesday

The landings were made Tuesday north of Loyuan from "several warships," all fully loaded with enemy troops, but the high command said the Japanese were being checked with the help of "local militia."

While the Chinese braced to meet this fresh but not unexpected onslaught, they were bolstering their positions about Foochow, mopping up the last enemy resistance on the north bank of the Min river—the old treaty port's outlet to the sea.

The Chinese were nearing Loyuan after advancing nine and a half miles yesterday beyond captured Lienkong, 20 miles northeast of Foochow. Kwantow, four miles southeast of Lienkong near the coast, also was seized.

Far to the west in inner China, Chinese troops broke a Japanese stand 19 miles west of Shaoyang (Paoching) and pressed on east toward that former air base 340 miles southeast of Chungking. The fall of Shaoyang would expose the enemy's lifeline to Indo-China to a terrific aerial pounding.

Agriculture Official Gloomy About Crops

COLLEGE STATION, May 24. (AP) — Equipment moving to Texas from as far distant as North Dakota will not be needed to harvest the Texas small grain crop, D. A. Adams, A. & M. extension farm labor assistant, reported today from Plainview.

Wheat, oats and barley crops have deteriorated so rapidly recently that local and custom combines can more than handle the harvest, he said.

Reports to A. & M. college indicated probable abandonment of 30 to 50 per cent of Texas acreage.

Anti-Discrimination Bill Is Near Vote

AUSTIN, May 24. (AP) — A bill making it unlawful to discriminate against persons of Latin American, Indian or Caucasian extraction in business catering to the public made further progress in the Texas legislature today

The measure may be brought up for final action tomorrow.

RESTRICTIONS REMOVED

WASHINGTON, May 24. (AP) — The War Production board today removed its restrictions on the manufacture of table flatware and metal sugar bowls, creamers and similar dining accessories.

Food Shortages Inquiry Ordered

WASHINGTON, May 24. (AP)—The man President Truman chose for secretary of agriculture tonight ordered a country-wide congressional investigation of food shortages and black markets.

Chairman Clinton P. Anderson (D., N.M.) of the House Food Investigating committee announced the group will leave Washington June 11 for a cross country probe of butter, eggs, poultry, fruits and vegetables, meat and fish.

New Job July 1

Anderson will become secretary of a reorganized agriculture department on July 1.

"There is a black market in poultry," Anderson told a reporter, "and there is a strong possibility of a black market in eggs.

"We want to finish the food investigation program I planned at the outset before I leave the committee so the Congress—and the government—can have a complete picture of the entire situation."

He'll go before the House committee on accounts to ask for $15,000 committee expense money to finance the inquiry which will take the congressmen to the west coast. The committee started out two months ago with $10,000—most of which was spent during investigations of meat and sugar.

Anderson said the committee hopes to return to Washington with an over-all food report before he leaves the chairmanship to become secretary of agriculture.

In unanimous preliminary report already filed the committee criticized what it called lack of coordination in the government's food policies, particularly in the handling of sugar and meat.

WPB Authorizes Car Production

DETROIT, May 24. (AP)—Production of 200,000 passenger automobiles this year was formally authorized today by the War Production board, carrying out decisions reached at WPB-industry conferences in Washington a week ago.

Tied to the authorization, however, was a stipulation that the industry must find its own materials in the "free market"; that it could not be accorded materials priority.

Can Place Orders

Under the authorization car manufacturers are permitted to place orders now for materials, livery to start after July 1. Henry P. Nelson, WPB coordinator for the automotive industry in the reconversion effort, said few if any manufacturers would be able to get cars off the assembly lines before October 1.

Nelson added that WPB had been advised by Chester Bowles, head of the Office of Price administration, that rationing of new cars would continue until essential users' needs can be met. Nelson expressed it as his own opinion that rationing could be terminated by next January 1.

Nelson said the exact date that each car maker will begin production after July 1 would depend upon his own individual circumstances with respect to tooling up and the availability of materials and facilities. He added that the WPB probably would authorize production of 400,000 cars in the first quarter of 1946 and probably 2,000,000 vehicles by the end of the industry's first year of production.

Slays Move In, Lay Claim To Villages

TRIESTE, May 24. (AP) — The Yugoslavs have moved additional forces into the region north of Trieste and have notified Allied troops that several of the villages they occupied there on Tuesday were in the Yugoslav occupation zone, it was learned tonight.

Disputes over the villages were being worked out at the scene, with no incidents reported. In general, Allied forces were informing the Yugoslavs that they could not move out of places they occupied in Tuesday's "peaceful penetration," but they were permitting Marshal Tito's men to billet in available buildings.

In Trieste itself the tension appeared to have relaxed as few Yugoslav patrols moved about the streets, but the population was growing hungrier with each day. Food supplies brought in by the Allies have been going directly to their troops. Lines formed at dawn for the daily bread ration, now reduced to about the size of a hamburger roll.

Harvest of oats and barley has been underway in Wichita Falls vicinity for some time.

Texan Second To Win Every Valor Medal

By A. I. GOLDBERG
Associated Press Staff Writer

WERFEN, Austria, May 24.— Lt. Audie L. Murphy, of Greenville, Texas, wears the Congressional Medal of Honor today—and that makes him the second man in the Army to win every existing American medal for valor.

The Congressional medal, the nation's highest, was conferred on the boyish-looking, 20-year-old Texan after he beat off 250 attacking enemy infantrymen—and six tanks—almost single-handedly in the battle of the Colmar pocket.

Murphy also wears the Bronze Star, two Silver Stars, the Distinguished Service Cross, and the Combat Infantryman's badge as well as a unit presidential citation.

The only other man entitled to wear every existing individual medal is Capt. Maurice "Footsie" Britt, Fayetteville, Ark., one of Murphy's fellow officers in the Third division. The Third has 29 Congressional medals—more than any other division in the Army.

The young Texan chalked up a personal score of nearly 100 killed and wounded Germans in the action that won him his country's highest military honor.

He was huddled in a foxhole well in front of his company, directing artillery fire.

A tank destroyer ten yards to his rear was hit and abandoned. He left his position and clambered onto the machine while it was still burning.

Then, silhouetted against the skyline, he manned the tank destroyer's 50 caliber machine guns, spraying German tanks and infantry while smoke curled above him and enemy fire centered above him.

Twelve enemy infantrymen tried to outflank his poistion, but Murphy shifted the gun and killed the entire group.

Swinging the gun back, he concentrated his fire on the tanks, which lost their maneuverability. The enemy infantry began to withdraw—and the tanks followed.

Murphy was wounded but he continued to fire.

Later, refusing medical aid, he organized his company and pursued the retreating Nazis.

When news of the award came, Murphy was sunning himself on the Riviera beaches, having a well-earned holiday, but today he is back at his regular duties.

The Texan has risen in 30

Pacific Civil Affairs Problems Less Complicated Than In Europe

By ELTON C. FAY
Associated Press War Analyst

The Army's staff of civil affairs officers for the Pacific war is expected to reach a total of about 2,200, substantially less than the 3,500 officer specialists who were trained and sent to Europe.

Part of the explanation of this difference seems to rest in comparative statistics. Germany is a country of 225,000 square miles and about 80,000,000 population; the Japanese homelands have 148,000 square miles and 72,000,000 population.

Another reason may be a belief by this government that politically the problem of military occupation of Japan will be less complicated than that of Germany, on the basis of the present situation in the Far East.

Started Early In Europe

The civil affairs organization in Europe went to work long before advancing Allied forces reached the German border. Great areas of Europe had been subjugated by the Nazis and Fascists and the original governments and economies disrupted. It was the task of the Army's civil affairs officers to untangle these situations as the forces of liberation moved toward the eventual and most difficult problem—hostile Germany.

In the Pacific conditions are different. The populations of all Pacific islands at which the Japanese flung their military forces at the outset of the war would number less than a mere handful of cities in Europe. The economy and government of the islanders are simple, more easily restored than the complex systems of Europe.

Operate Largely Alone

Moreover, in much of the Pacific war to date the United States has been operating alone. Its problems of military government, like those of military operations, do not involve the complications existing where several Allies are operating in the same general area, each trying to accomplish the same general purpose but with different techniques. This makes for simplification in the Pacific situation.

The War department's military government system began its own redeployment program early this year. By last month it had converted its chief military government school at Charlottesville, Va., and several other schools elsewhere in this country exclusively to the training of personnel for Far Eastern duties.

Taking 250 A Month

Currently, it is selecting about 250 persons a month for this special Far Eastern training. A two months course at Charlottesville is followed by six months of training at one of several civilian universities selected to help in this work.

In addition to standard subjects covering civil affairs administration—language, local government, sanitary and municipal projects, commerce and kindred problems—the courses deal with particular problems not encountered in Europe. Local customs and traditions, sensitive points, taboos, and religious observances among a people little understood by Occidentals require highly specialized coaching of civil affairs personnel.

General Hodges Back At Home

ATLANTA, May 24. (AP)—General Courtney H. Hodges came home today to his native Georgia and the wife he left behind 15 months ago to lead the U. S. First army in its victorious march through France, Belgium and Germany.

Mrs. Hodges was a good soldier herself and waited patiently in her new "little red hat" at a hotel for their reunion, while the general and his party took part in a parade and a reception at another hotel.

46 Are In Party

With the general came 46 officers and enlisted men, including seven other Georgians. Met by scores of Army bombers and fighters, the huge transport planes which brought them here from New York landed at the Army air base at 1:05 p. m., Central War Time.

The party included: Lt. Gen. Lewis A. Brereton, San Antonio, and Lt. Gen. Walton H. Walker, newly appointed commanding general of the Eighth Service command with headquarters in Dallas.

Greeted at the airport by Gov. Ellis Arnall, Mayor W. B. Hartsfield and Maj. Gen. Frederick E. Uhl of the Fourth service command, the bronzed gray-haired Hodges said "I am very glad to be here." He kept looking around, apparently seeking that "little red hat."

Home Town Closes Shop

Hodges' home town of Perry, Ga., virtually closed for the day as all of the 2,000-odd residents who could arrange transportation flocked to Atlanta. The old timers remembered Hodges as a boy, when he worked in a grocery store before starting as a buck private his 40-year Army career. They held out hope he could come to Perry Saturday for a celebration before going to Washington for conferences preceding transfer to the Pacific.

Racket In Captured American Fliers In Yugoslavia Reported

DALLAS, May 24. (U.P.)—A good American flier was worth about $30 to the Germans, who dealt in cash-for-fliers with supposedly Allied sympathizers in Yugoslavia.

That was the story that came back to Dallas today from 1st Lt. Edwin Richard Bentley, husband of Dallas' former Betty Ashley.

Bentley said he and two of his crew members were picked up by supposedly friendly soldiers in Yugoslavia after bailing out of a mortally wounded Flying Fort. Two hours after their rescue their "friends" sold them to the Germans for $30 each.

Bentley said the Germans flew them to Belgrade and placed them in solitary confinement. Later they were taken to Stalig Luft III. When the Russian offensive reached out, they were moved again to Stalig 13-D, near Nurnberg.

Bentley was rescued from Stalig 13-D by his father, Lt. Col Edwin Ray Bentley, of Lakeland, Fla., who sought his son for months after being notified on the continent that he was missing in action. A few days before Germany's formal surrender, the elder Bentley found his son and flew him back to his own headquarters.

The son told his father that during his internment, he and the other fliers lived mostly on cabbage soup "with bugs in it" which they called the "green death."

U-Boats Believed Still On Prowl

LONDON, May 24 (AP)—Allied navies are searching the Atlantic on the possibility 12 to 15 German "pirate" submarines still are at large there.

The U-boats have had more than two weeks to answer surrender signals and are subject to being sunk at sight.

Unofficial figures account for approximately 250 Nazi submarines at various Allied and controlled ports.

Instructions Broadcast

Surrender instructions still are being broadcast daily for U-boats that might not have heard the warnings before but navy men express belief that some of the undersea craft are commanded by fanatical commanders and will have to be hunted down and exterminated.

Based on their own intelligence reports and on information given by Grand Adm. Karl Doenitz after the German surrender, Allied naval chiefs know how many submarines to expect altogether.

Until all are located, Atlantic shipping will not be considered free from the danger of sneak attacks.

BABY CHICKS INCREASE

AUSTIN, May 24 (AP)—With demand continuing strong Texas commercial hatcheries produced an estimated 13,200,000 baby chicks in April, approximately a million above the five year average, the United States Department of Agriculture reported today.

Krauts Still Defiant, Spirit Is Uncrushed, Says Red Cross Girl

ORANGE, Tex., May 24. (U.P.)—The victory in Europe "seems to be a strange one," according to a Texas girl now serving with a club-mobile unit of the Red Cross along the Austrian border.

Sylvia H. Simmons, the Red Cross worker, wrote in a letter to a United Press reporter at Orange that despite the fact that the enemy in Europe has lain down its arms, its "spirit does not seem to be crushed."

"In most places," wrote Miss Simmons, "they walk the streets freely beside our own men. Our boys had all spoken of the great celebrating they were going to do when this thing was over; yet, no one got drunk and no one celebrated.

"You couldn't really feel it was over being up here in the midst of Germans, many of whom look on us with scorn, sneering as we go by them."

Miss Simmons described the Austrian towns as "silent with a deathly quiet." She said that although crowds walk the streets, no noise is heard, apart from the occasional passing of a trolley or the rumble of an army truck. The shops were bolted and the windows guarded by iron bars, she added.

"The German civilians are wary of Americans, are no more eager to fraternize with us than we are with them," the Texas girl wrote.

Miss Simmons is attached to the club-mobile unit directed by Fannye Beaty of Orange.

Authority For Changes Limited Only By Veto Asked By Truman

By W. H. MOBLEY
Associated Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, May 24.—President Truman asked today for continuing authority, subject only to an affirmative veto from Congress, to make unlimited changes in the administrative set-up of government.

Such legislation is needed, he said, to make the executive branch, "more business-like and efficient."

The requested legislation would extend to non-war operations, and into peacetime years, the reshuffling power which the chief executive now holds on a wartime basis over government offices and affairs having to do with the war.

Wants Only Veto Strings

Mr. Truman, in a message to Congress asking for the authority, was very specific that he wanted no strings on it other than the veto.

"The legislation should be of permanent duration," he said.

"No agency of the executive branch should be exempted from the scope of the legislation.

"The legislation should be sufficiently broad and flexible to permit of any form of organizational adjustment, large or small, for which necessity may arise."

The veto proposed for Congress would arise from a provision which Mr. Truman suggested be incorporated direct from the reorganization act of 1939. Under that legislative administrative shifts proposed by the President went into effect unless both houses of Congress, by majority vote within 60 days, passed a resolution of disapproval.

The permanent nature of the power asked by Mr. Truman would be a major departure from past practice. The 1939 act was called permanent legislation but it provided only for shifts made effective by January, 1941. It therefore was permanent only insofar as it gave continuing legal backing to reorganizations carried out by that date.

President Roosevelt set up such executive offices as the Federal Security agency, the Federal Works agency, and the Federal Loan agency, under that law.

Some More Temporary

The President's wartime power over some government functions is still more temporary. It stems from the first war powers act of 1941. Its application is limited to war-connected operations. Without some such law as the President proposed today, any shifts made under it will be nullified six months after hostilities end, and the affected agencies will revert to their original status.

The President's call for reorganization authority over all administrative agencies without exception appeared certain to meet some opposition.

Truman Plans Flying Trip To Conference

WASHINGTON, May 24. (AP)—President Truman decided today to travel to the San Francisco conference early next month by air.

He thus will establish a precedent since no chief executive has ever flown across this continent while in office. The nearest thing to a domestic presidential flight was the late President Roosevelt's take-off from Miami for Casablanca via Brazil in 1943.

Mr. Truman also may make an ocean flight soon—if the coming Big Three meeting which the White House said today is "definitely in the works"—is held outside the United States.

Incidentally, Charles G. Ross, the president's press secretary, said the special missions of Harry L. Hopkins to Moscow and Joseph E. Davies to London were "part of a general pattern" of the projected Truman - Stalin - Churchill meeting and not a substitute for such a meeting.

Hopkins left for his conference with Stalin yesterday morning. Davies departed last night or early today.

President Truman will return to Washington from San Francisco also by air after a tentatively-set side trip of a day or two to Olympia, Wash., for "rest and recreation."

In all, the President will be gone less than a week. Only two secretaries—Ross and Matthew J. Connelly—will accompany him from his official staff and no members of the family will go.

Lloyd Douglas' adult life was spent as a Lutheran minister until after he was 50 years old, when he wrote his first novel, "Magnificent Obsession."

One Of War's Biggest Jobs Done By Men Who Put 'Em On Land

By RICHARD C. BERGHOLZ
Associated Press Staff Writer

IN THE PHILIPPINES—Almost every day something pops up to remind you how far this war against the Japanese has gone in the past three years and which makes you humble in recognition of the heroism which has carried the American flag as close to Japan as it is.

For instance, it comes to light now that during the recent amphibious assault on the north coast of Mindanao, in the southern Philippines, the 2nd Engineer Special brigade landed its two-millionth combat infantryman on Japanese-held territory.

Travels Widely

Furthermore, to turn this trick, landing craft of the 2nd ESB have had to travel more than 3,000,000 miles—covering all their operations from their first combat landing at Nassau bay, New Guinea, in June, 1943, to the Philippines.

Obiously, that doesn't mean 2,000,000 individual Yanks have been carried in on assault waves by the 2nd EBS. Many have made the trip numerous times in different operations. If it had been 2,000,000 troops total the war might be much nearer victory than it is now.

But somehow the work of this one outfit—Brig. Gen. William F. Heavey's 2nd ESB—makes you realize the burden many outfits have borne during the lean days of MacArthur's campaigns.

Face Damage, Too

This group of approximately 8,000 men has brought its landing craft into the beach on 82 operations—20 in New Guinea, 11 in the Bismarck archipelago and 51 in the Philippine islands. These are the boys who man the landing craft and can make or break an amphibious operation by the way they deliver the infantrymen on the beach.

Many is the time these coxswains and crews have headed into enemy fire and kept right on going until the ramp was down and the troops unloaded. Maybe that's why 35 per cent of the men in the 2nd ESB have earned combat decorations, including one Congressional Medal of Honor.

The primary job of the engineer special brigade is to deliver assault troops on the beach. Then they have to keep them supplied.

So, 2,000,00 doughboys have been put on the beach by this one brigade. How many more will it take before we all can go home?

Anderson Is Said 'Close To Soil'

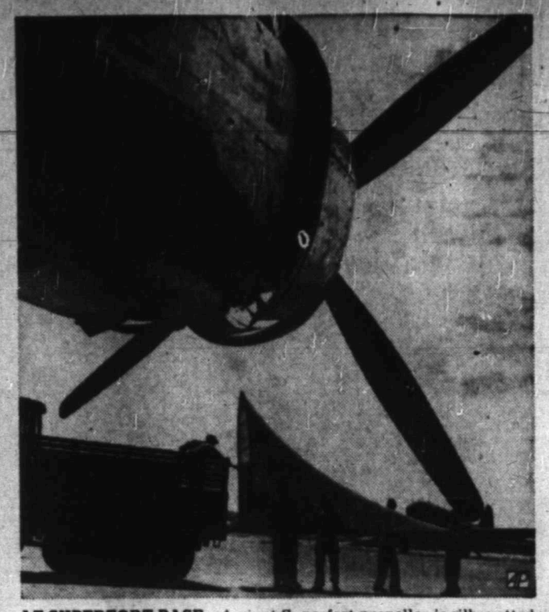

ALBUQUERUE, N. M., May 24. (U.P.)—President Truman, in naming Clinton Presaba Anderson as the new secretary of agriculture, has chosen a man close to the soil and with a first-hand knowledge of farmers' problems. This was the general opinion in Albuquerque as friends commented that Anderson was known throughout the state as a man who loved a farm and has always evidenced interest in agriculture methods, soil conservation and irrigation.

Raised On a Farm

Anderson was brought up on a farm near Centerville, South Dakota, where his family still owns a number of farm and ranch properties. Whenever he returns to Albuquerque to care for his insurance business, the new secretary manages to spend part of his time on his farm, known as the "Lazy V" ranch five miles south of town.

At the "Lazy V" Anderson has a considerable sized dairy herd and raises Palomino ponies, in addition to having some 900 acres under cultivation.

He came to New Mexico for his health when he was 22 and worked as a newspaperman before entering the insurance business 19 years ago.

Hotel Employe Is Held After Employer Killed

DALLAS, May 24. (U.P.)—Robert L. Collum, 49-year-old manager of the cheap-rate Plaza hotel here, died last night of injuries suffered in a fist-fight with a hotel employe.

Stanley Weske, 36, was in city jail, expected to be charged with murder in connection with Collum's death.

The fight began, witnesses said, when Collum went to Weske's room to arouse him to assume his duties as day clerk at the hotel.

Inquiry Sets Off Probe By WPB

DALLAS, May 24. (U.P.) — A nationwide investigation by the War Production board was underway today following an innocent inquiry by a Dallas dress manufacture regarding "Dolman sleeves"—a sleeve cut to fit a very large armhole and give capelike appearance as to a coat.

In the early part of the war the WPB issued orders restricting manufacture of feminine wearing apparel, as a material conservation measure, prohibiting manufacture of dresses and coats with the Dolman sleeves.

Recently the Dallas manufacturer went to the WPB offices here to inquire if the order had been revoked, calling attention to advertisements of retailers in newspapers, and advertisements and articles in fashion magazines were picturing garments with Dolman sleeves although they carefully avoided saying so.

As a result of the inquiry George L. Noble, jr., regional WPB chairman said a widespread investigation will be made and will include retailers who may have advertised and sold garments made in violation of the order.

The Woman's Angle

By Margaret Turner

IT'S a good idea to cultivate the habit of liking the things you can get now-a-days, if you can't get the things you like.

Did you hear about the man who didn't speak to his wife for three days? He was too polite to interrupt her.

YANKS TAKE CANDY

AMERICAN soldiers during the time they have spent overseas have acquired a sweet tooth about three times as large as the one they left home with, according to the Quartermaster Corps which has worked on the development of types of sweets to be included in rations.

Don't know how it is at your house but at ours in peace times a box of candy would go begging if left to the boys, and about the only time icing seemed tempting was just after a cake was frosted. Consequently we were as surprised as anyone when a request for a box of candy came one day but weeks later we were informed on its arrival it had the appearance of having been used as a hand ball just before a GI planted a size 12 foot square in its middle.

Because of their ability to withstand climatic condition hard candies were the first to be included in the soldier rations. When fighting men tired of this type of candy, others were added. A malted milk dextrose tablet, sometimes flavored with lemon, was added. Then came the chocolate bar—a bitter variety meant for emergency use only because it was such a good energy builder. Later caramels and a sweet chocolate fudge bar were added to the rations, as well as fruit jelly slices and coated bars.

In order that enemy planes overhead could not spot the presence of American troops from a trail of bright colored candy wrappers, the candies for a time were wrapped in olive drab or khaki paper. As the Allies gained air superiority, candy manufacturers were allowed by the Army to design their own wrappings, in the belief that a familiar wrapper has a homey look appreciated by men far from home.

WOMEN WANTS JOBS

WOMEN are assured a permanent place in organized labor, according to an article in "Business Week." A large majority of women now holding non-agricultural jobs (some say as many as 70 per cent of them) intend to keep on working in industry after the war production emergency is over. This in spite of V-E day with its promise of 2,000,000 veterans returning to civilian life, and its threat of 2,500,000 unemployed.

"Efforts already are being pressed to make their job tenure more secure," says the article. "In this drive, the nation's women workers not only have the support of labor unions, but of the government itself. The principles of equal pay for equal work and of equal seniority rights with men have received general acceptance through sponsorship by the National War Labor board.

Women now constitute 37.7 per cent of the industrial work force, as compared with 26.5 per cent in June, 1940.

WOMEN ANNOUNCERS

MANY fields were opened in England for women during the war, with its heavy demand on the nation's manpower, but in few activities have women gained so marked an ascendancy as they have in radio broadcasting.

If you ever dial the shortwave and get BBC you'll likely hear a sister spieler. Overseas broadcasting, not including continental Europe, boasts 12 women announcers for every ten men and 40 per cent of the number of London "home" announcers is feminine.

It's said these announcers are enormously popular with the armed forces and their fan mail in some instances is as staggering as that of a movie star.

Although their ranks have been greatly depleted in the last five and a half years, the men announcers still hold forth, exclusively in the sphere of sports and except for an occasional special discussion, they have not yielded their place as news commentators.

Some people have said that in normal times hardly anybody could put up with a woman's voice reading a news report for 15 or 20 minutes, a view which we call impertinent.

We think a man announcer who gave up his job to serve with the forces should have that job back, whether it is announcing radio programs or clipping hedges. Naturally, many men will not want their old jobs back and if women are needed for a further projection of the warmth and deftness which have characterized their handling of many radio programs, we are sure they will continue in those spots.

Homemaking Project Starts Thursday

Taking part in the annual Senior High school summer homemaking project which began Thursday are 36 students. A plan which provides for the students to work on their individual projects in the classroom under supervision is being carried out. Formerly the individual work was done in homes.

Mrs. Emma May Hastings is instructor for the work.

The following projects are being worked on: Construction of clothing for the students and for small children, the making of various kinds of household linens, the making of accessories for clothes closets, such as shoe and laundry bags, the covering of dressing table stools, the making of toys for small children, canning foods, baking food, collecting and organizing recipes, repairing and remodeling clothing, and making curtains and rugs. When students cook or can, they furnish the ingredients used and take the food home.

For the required 40 hours of home work the students are improving yards, gardening, raising poultry, caring for children, managing households and improving rooms.

Mullican Explains High Hopes In Peace Parley And Dumbarton Oaks

Hopes for an international community where wars not only are supressed, but peace enforced, were expressed when former 99th District Judge Clark M. Mullican addressed the Kiwanis club Thursday on the Dumbarton Oaks conference and its interrelation with the San Francisco parley.

Mullican, relying on historical events leading to the important worldwide conferences, his knowledge of international law and voluminous reading of sociopolitical authorities, broke down its structure so that Dumbarton Oaks and its effect on the San Francisco parley could be readily understood in its multi-categoried significance.

Crowd Stays Overtime

He spoke 35 minutes past the blowing of 1 o'clock whistles, yet none left the big East room of Lubbock hotel, and President W. C. Wood, at conclusion of applause, was moved to say that the program had been "the finest so far this year—probably is the finest we may expect for the rest of the year."

Mullican said the hopes of the world hang on drafting at San Francisco of international statutes that will cause nations by negotiation, mediation, conciliation, arbitration or judicial settlement or peaceful means of their own choice to settle their differences; on laws that, in the alternative, will allow other powers to enforce peace by force, contributing force commensurate with the comparative size of the individual peace-loving nation. Such a draft, he said, would go for its basic inception to Dumbarton Oaks, which looked forward to realization of peace "sometime" by refinements of the world's nations around the parley table.

Confidence In Session

He saw "boogers," to be sure, but said his conviction that the San Francisco conference—"I don't know how long it will require"—will weld peace-loving nations into a front so solid that aggressor nations will find themselves, in moments of threatening other nations, gripped in powerful diplomatic, economic, transportation, communication and other sanctions that would immediately discourage further show of force. And he could foresee fundamental amelioration of th estate of the entire world, through resultant contributions in such fields as money structure, international bank credit, better food, improved agricultural possibilities, and the right to better health, education, culture—in effect, through worldwide guaranty of the Four Freedoms.

Mullican warned that democracies are "too disposed to forget," that their very disposition to attend to their own business makes them "more vulnerable to aggressors." He said we "forgot" at conclusion of the last war. "It behooves every man and woman, every child to let Washington know that every attempt to perfect a world understanding must be supported, and promptly," he said.

Delves Deeply

Mullican delved deeply into the background that shaped Dumbarton Oaks and the San Francisco parley—the Jan. 6, 1941, joint session of Congress broadcast to the world by the late President Roosevelt, enunciating the Four Freedoms; the August of 1941 meeting of Roosevelt and Churchill in the North Atlantic and the resultant declaration of the Atlantic Charter; the June of 1943 United Nations meeting at Hot Springs, Va., and a drafted program for food and agricultural advancement internationally; the November through December Cairo and Teheran conference; the July of 1944 Bretton Woods monetary conference; the August and October, 1944, Dumbarton Oaks conference at Washington, D. C.; the February and March, 1945, Chapultepec Pan-American welfare parley; the February Crimean conference at Yalta—and the all culminative April 25 convention of the San Francisco conference.

Newsprint Outlook Is "Not Too Favorable"

WASHINGTON, May 24. (AP) — Newspapers heard today that the outlook for increased supplies of newsprint paper in the July-September quota is "not too favorable" at present.

The War Production board's printing and publishing division announced yesterday that Canada had agreed to ship 215,000 tons of newsprint a month to U. S. papers during the quarter, an increase of 50,000 tons monthly.

Director J. Hale Steinman, division director, reported however that this increase is cancelled out by a back log of 50,000 tons of deferred newsprint orders on the books of paper mills. This backlog has accumulated since the start of the year because newspapers and federal agencies have been ordering in excess of available supplies.

A task group of newspaper publishers who met here on the problem, Steinman said, has recommended that the situation be rectified by requiring publishers to reduce their inventory supplies as of June 30. The group suggested that the inventory ceilings be cut from 40 to 30 days' supplies for publishers in the Northern, Eastern and Central states, and from 65 to 50 days for publishers in Western and Southern states.

By dipping into inventory, it was held, publishers would be permitted to use their full consumption quotas but would be required to refrain from ordering more paper during the rest of the quarter.

Steinman gave no indication whether WPB would adopt the recommendation.

Churchill Has Strong Supporter In Texas

ITALY, Tex., May 24. (AP) — Winston Churchill has a strong supporter in Ferrell Windham, Ellis county farmer and chicken hatchery operator.

In the early days of World war II, Windham sent a personal check to Churchill, directing that it be applied wherever most needed. The money was turned over to a London war relief agency and Windham has the cancelled check, which bears Churchill's endorsement, as a souvenir.

When the prime minister made a speech recently intimating that he might be "turned out to grass," Windham wrote him:

"Should England ever turn you on grass, just come to Italy, Texas and help me with the hatchery and if it is grass you need Johnson grass is plentiful and we will provide a good range where there are no fences."

One member of the mob twice pulled the trigger of a gun he held against the accused man's stomach, but each time the gun misfired.

Arkansas Governor Booms His Contest On Victory Gardens

LITTLE ROCK, May 24. (AP)—Governor Ben Laney, former Camden farmer, today gave "six good reasons" why he has no fears in his hoe-and-trowel challenge to governors of the six adjoining states for a five month's victory garden contest.

The multi-talented governor who can prove himself the best farmer between June 1 and November 15 will sit down next Thanksgiving—to feat on a fat Arkansas turkey—the prize offered by Laney.

Other Contestants

Chief executives of Missouri, Oklahoma, Tennessee, Mississippi, Louisiana and Texas are the other contestants.

"If I turn that turkey loose, it will be over my dead body," Laney said.

Asked how much time he planned to devote to his garden plot in Little Rock, the former Ouachita county soil-cultivator replied: "Enough to win that turkey." Laney's reasons are:

(1) Governor James H. Davis of Louisiana: "Jimmy is a musician. (He composed "You Are My Sunshine.") He doesn't know anything about growing a garden."

(2) Governor Kerr of Oklahoma: "His feet are too big. He'll trample down all the vegetables while walking around his garden."

(3) Governor McCord of Tennessee: "He once was a farmer . . . Uses old methods. We'll beat him with our modern, improved technique."

(4) Governor Bailey of Mississippi: "He's a little bit too old to bend down over the weeds."

(5) Governor Donnelly of Missouri: "I'm not worried about him up there in Missouri in all those rocks. He's practically eliminated before he starts."

(6) Governor Stevenson of Texas: "Texas—well, Arkansas can do anything Texas can do, only better."

According to Laney's proposal, the National Victory Gardening institute will judge the contest—40 per cent on the governor's personal plots and 60 per cent in the participation by residents of their states.

All six of the chief executives have accepted the challenge, and —come June 1—the dirt will begin to fly.

Some Tomato Sheds In Valley Closing

WESLACO, May 24 (AP)—With the peak of the shipping season past, some tomato packing sheds have started closing in the Rio Grande valley. Approximately 7,000 out of an estimated 10,000 carloads have been sent to market.

Green corn growers were still enjoying a heavy demand for their crop and corn loadings were running as high as 20 carloads per day.

The citrus movement, expected to end in about a week, still is heavy enough to make up approximately 50 cars of grapefruit and a few cars of oranges daily.

Labor Choice Is Praised By AFL

WASHINGTON, May 24. (U.P.)—President Truman's choice of a new labor secretary drew cheers from the American Federation of Labor today. The Congress of Industrial Organization was silent for the moment.

Mr. Truman yesterday appointed Federal Judge Lewis B. Schwellenbach of Spokane, Wash., to replace Frances Perkins in the cabinet.

No Gratitude Voiced

Union leaders generally looked on the resignation of Miss Perkins with the attitude that "any change would be good." They voiced no gratitude for the lady who conceived many of the policies which in the past 12 years gave organized labor its greatest power in American history.

Mr. Truman, however, did not let her work go unpraised. He said in accepting her resignation that during her administration "unsurpassed progress in position, influence and prestige has been made by American organized labor."

The change, effective July 1 given Senate confirmation, will mark the end of an era. It will be the first time that a labor secretary has come from a section of the country other than the highly-industrialized, strongly unionized East. It will terminate the regime of the only woman ever to hold a cabinet office.

AFL President William Green was the first labor leader to approve Schwellenbach's appointment. "A most capable and well-qualified man," Green said.

He added that the AFL would urge the new secretary to consolidate all government labor agencies in the one department and to create an advisory committee of union leaders.

U. S. Casualties Nearing Million

WASHINGTON, May 24. (U.P.)—Officially reported U. S. combat casualties edged close to 1,000,000 today with losses in all theaters totaling 996,089.

Of army wounded, Undersecretary of War Robert P. Patterson told a press conference, 302,910 have returned to duty, and 25,856 Army prisoners of war have been exchanged or returned to U. S. military control.

The overall casualty table:

	Army	Navy	Total
Killed	181,739	42,807	224,546
Wounded	550,506	52,005	602,511
Missing	57,802	10,505	68,307
Prisoners	96,478	4,247	100,725
Totals	886,525	109,564	996,089

The new total was 9,875 more than a week ago, the smallest seven-day gain in many months.

The overall total included 886,525 Army and 109,564 Navy, Marine corps, and Coast Guard casualties. The Army figure reflects actual fighting through the greater part of April, before the German surrender.

White Sox Errors Costly As Yankees Close In On Leader

NEW YORK, May 24. (AP)—Four errors, two of them by rookie shortstop Cass Michaels, all but cost the Chicago White Sox the American League lead today as the New York Yankees rapped out a 6-3 margin to take second place.

Atley Donald tossed the Yanks to within a half game of the Pale Hose but he was touched freely for 12 hits, one more than the winners collected off Orval Grove, Johnny Johnson, Fran Papish and Earl Caldwell.

Bud Metheny drove in half the New York scores, starting with a single after George Stirnweiss tripled in the first, cashing Donald with a double in the second and singling home Herb Crompton in the fifth.

Frank Crosetti's single, a passed ball by Mike Tresh and Michael's second misplay on Donald's bouncer produced the first of two second inning tallies. After Roy Schalk booted Stirnweiss' roller, Metheny followed with his double.

Metheny walked in the fourth, moved on Hersh Martin's single and came across as Johnny Lindell rapped into a double play. Crompton doubled and made the final run in the seventh when Stirnweiss cam ethrough with a two-bagger.

The White Sox broke the shutout in hte fifth on Michael's double to legt, a force out and Oris Hockett's single to left. Daddy Of Night Ball Fears For Own Idea

NEW YORK, May 24 (AP)—Ten years to the day after introducing night baseball to the major leagues, Larry MacPhail is "extremely concerned over the unlimited growth" of the after-dark phase of the sport.

"Unlimited night baseball as we have now in both of the major leagues defeats itself. Not only that, but it is likely to ruin attendance at the day games. I always have believed that seven night games at home for each club is enough," MacPhail said.

Asked if the New York Yankees, of which club he now is part owner and president, would install lights after the war MacPhail said "Yes, they probably will, but they will never play more than seven games a year after dark at home."

Ten years ago tonight Cincinnati, where MacPhail then was general manager, inaugurated major league night baseball with a 2 to 1 verdict over the Philadelphia Phils. The game attracted 20,422 paying fans.

MacPhail said it was the increased attendance brought about by night games that enabled him to lay the financial foundation for the Reds' pennant winning teams of 1939 and 1940.

The added revenue from night games also helped Brooklyn buy the stars it needed for its 1941 title club, MacPhail declared.

Only the major league parks used by the two Boston clubs, Yankees, Chicago Cubs and the Detroit Tigers now are not equipped for night games.

Giants Homers Nip Reds Again

CINCINNATI, May 24.—The New York Giants added a bit more proof to their cause here today in offering rebuttal to the claims that the short corners of their Polo Grounds was putting the TNT into the bats of Mel Ott's blasters, and beat the Cincinnati Reds again, 7-6.

Danny Gardella delivered the telling blow, a lusty pinch hit homer in the eighth inning with Buddy Kerr on base to bring the Giants from behind for the second time in the ball game.

Bill Voiselle, the winningest pitcher in the major leagues, started for the Giants, seeking his ninth in a row. He was blasted from the mound with a barrage of five hits in less than two innings. Ace Adams, reliefer deluxe of the Giants, was the winning pitcher.

The Giants got back in the ball game in the second inning with a five-run explosion that featured Manager Mel Ott's lusty double with the bases full, and another long home run smash off the bat of Phil Weintraub.

The victory moved the Giants five and one-half games out in front in the league race.

Medal Tourney Here This Week

In keeping with the nation-wide movement, sponsored by the National PGA, the Lubbock Country club golfers will be given their chance this week-end to help along with the rehabilitation program for wounded veterans of World War II.

Herbert Schroeder, club pro, received a letter Thursday from the president of the PGA, Ed Dudley, urging that the local club join with others throughout the nation in this worthy cause.

Following receipt of the letter from Dudley, Schroeder announced the first plans for the medal play tournament carded for May 26 and 27, at the same time that other clubs in the United States will be holding the same type of play.

Golfers can shoot their round either day.

There will be an entry fee of $1 per golfer. The entry fee will be divided to provide prizes with 50 cents of each entry fee, and the remaining 50 cents will go to the national fund.

All local golfers are urged to enter the tournament, and turn in their entries at the local club at the earliest possible time.

Schroeder also announced that the semi-final pairings had been completed in the championship bracket of the high-low tournament that has been in progress for several weeks.

John Kattman and J. O. Kuykendall completed the semi-final bracket with a victory over W. L. McAfee and H. T. Luther this week. The match was a hold over from last week.

The other holdover match in the semi-finals of the consolidation bracket had not been played Thursday night.

DALLAS, May 24 (AP)—Cpl. Don Cherry of Sheppard Field, Wichita Falls, and Bill Skeeters, former Southern Methodist university football tackle, carded three-under-par 68's to pace a qualifying field of golfers in the second annual Dallas Athletic club-Glen Lakes country club amateur invitation championship today. Match play will get under way tomorrow with two rounds daily until the finals Sunday.

UPSET VICTORY SCORED

LOUISVILLE, Ky., May 24 (AP)—Mrs. W. C. Lewis' Darby Dieppa scored an upset victory over Bymeabond today in the Idle Hour purse, feature race of the Keeneland program at Churchill Downs. Both colts are Kentucky Derby eligibles.

Day To Play Gober For Senior Crown

AMARILLO, May 24 (AP)—E. B. (Red) Gober of Austin, one of the longest drivers in golf, meets lawyer Frank Day of Plainview tomorrow for the championship of the eleventh annual Tri-State Senior tournament.

Gober will enter the finals a strong favorite to win the title and become the first man in the history of this "tournament of millionaires" to take the crown twice in a row.

Day, former Hale county judge, has been at it longer than the broad-shouldered recreation man from Austin and while his game is not so spectacular, he is consistency itself.

Gober entered the finals today by beating Roy Allen of Oklahoma City 5 and 4 while Day reached the championship play-off with a 3 to 2 decision over H. W. Myers of Electra.

Gober and Day will battle 18 holes for the title tomorrow starting at 10 a. m.

It will end a tournament that drew 152 entries—largest number ever to play in the tri-state. There were nine flights.

A man has to be 50 years or over to participate. Day is one of the youngest players in tourney. He's 51. Gober is 57.

The tournament has grown from 36 entries the first year. It was founded by Gene Howe and N. D. Bartlett of Amarillo and B. F. Holmes and O. T. Nicholson of Shamrock. Gus Leftwich of Amarillo is president.

Entries came from Oklahoma, Texas and New Mexico.

Oldest entry this year was Dick Reeves of Shamrock, 85, but he did not play because of sore feet. Elmer Winn of Plainview, 82, thus retained his title as "world's oldest tournament player." He lost in the second round of the seventh flight after qualifying with a 98.

Amarillo Field Nine Is Primed

AMARILLO, May 24. — The Amarillo Field Sky Giants, although crippled by the loss of key personnel and injuries to several star players are not expecting too much competition from the Lubbock Army Air Field nine when the two teams clash at Lubbock this week-end. The two teams are scheduled to play single games Saturday and Sunday.

A change in starting time for the Saturday game at Lubbock Army Air field's encounters with Amarillo Army Air field was announced Thursday night by the local officials. The game Saturday will start at 5 o'clock, with the Sunday game billed for 1:30 o'clock. Johnny Davis and Paul Boddo were named to do the chunking for the LAAF nine.

Transfer of five players and an injury to their shortstop will slow up the visitors considerably but there will be still plenty of hitting power in the lineup.

Chet Ziemba, the husky Sky Giant catcher, has been banging the ball hard and so far this season has a batting average near .500. Ziemba, who was wit the Cincinnati Reds, hits a long ball and twice this season has cracked homeruns.

The Sky Larks will be seeking their ninth and tenth wins of the year when they play Lubbock AAF. They are undefeated this season and closed up last year with eight wins for a ocnsecutive victory streak of 16 games.

In the eight games this year, the Amarillo Field nine has scored 89 runs. They have also garnered 89 hits of which 10 were homeruns, seven were triples, and 23 were doubles.

Paul Walko, who shutout the Big Spring Army Air Field team with one hit last Saturday, will probably start this Saturday's game. He faced only 22 men in the seven inning game against Big Spring. Either Lefty Satterfield or Ronald Cook will get Sunday's assignment. Satterfield is a fast ball hurler with plenty of stuff while Cook, Albany Senator pitcher, throws a speed ball and a curve with good control.

Last Rites Held For Ex-Manager Of Cats

NEW ORLEANS, May 24. (AP)—Funeral services were held today for Jake Atz, one of the original Chicago White Sox "Hitless Wonders" who died at his home here Tuesday.

Atz, connected with organized baseball for all but 23 of his 64 years, was manager of the Fort Worth Cats of the Texas League and later served as an umpire before the circuit disbanded for the duration of the war. He won the pennant there six straight seasons, taking the Dixie Series from the Southern Association champions five or six years.

Atz was with the New Orleans Pelicans of the Southern Association before moving to the White Sox in 1908. Later, he managed the Pelicans. He was umpire-in-chief in the Texas League from 1933 to 1942.

He is survived by his widow, a son, Jake Atz, jr., now overseas with the Seabees, and a daughter, Kalma Atz of New Orleans.

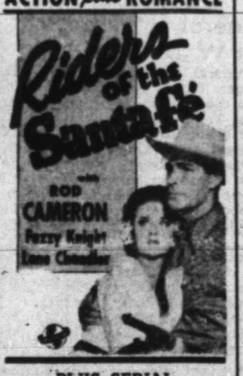

The first wine growers in Australia were Greek pirates, prisoners of the English.

Rites Set For Wreck Victim

Funeral services for Fairy Lou Bounds, 13-year-old daughter of Cpl. and Mrs. James Bounds of 905 Ave. M, who was fatally injured in the collision of a cab and bus early Thursday morning at Eighteenth and Texas Ave., will be conducted at 4 o'clock this afternoon in Plains chapel.

The girl, a passenger in the cab, died at 3 o'clock yesterday morning in Lubbock General hospital. Mrs. Harry Todd, 23, of 512-B Eighteenth, and A. J. Johnson, 48, of 512-A Eighteenth, also passengers in the taxi, remained in the hospital last night but their condition was said satisfactory.

Inquiry Continues

Police said they were conducting further investigation. No charges had been filed in the case.

Fairy Lou's father is believed en route home after two years with the Third Marine division in the Pacific theater.

Mrs. Todd received a fractured collar bone and Johnson lacerations about the face, and bruises. Mrs. Todd's 2-year-old daughter escaped serious injury.

All those hurt were riding in a Domino cab driven eastward by D. B. Hampton, 34, of 1221 Ninth. The Texas, New Mexico and Oklahoma bus was driven by D. H. Ellison, 25, of 1802 Ave. H.

Other survivors of the girl are a brother, James Darby, 14, and her grandmother, Mrs. Mary Friday of Paris.

Funeral services will be conducted by Dr. H. I. Robinson, pastor of the First Methodist church.

The death was the first resulting from Lubbock traffic since Sept. 25, when Larry Watson died of a Sept. 7 collision at Twenty-fourth and Ave. N, according to Capt. Lewis Kittrell of the police traffic department.

Midland-Odessa, Big Spring, Hobbs and Roswell—cities with a strong community of interest because they are key cities in one of the most important oil producing regions in the world, a region which includes the great West Texas-Permian Basin oil fields.

Sizeable savings in travel time will be made possible by the establishment of this route. For example, travel by surface transportation between Lubbock and Wichita Falls requires 7 hours and 30 minutes. Via air the trip will take only 1 hour and 5 minutes. It now requires 19 hours and 30 minutes to go from Tulsa to Lubbock, but the new air route will reduce the time to 2 hours and 45 minutes. Travel time between Lubbock and Hobbs, where surface travel facilities are virtually non-existent, will be 40 minutes by Continental's new route.

The Hobbs-Tulsa route extension will add 516 miles to the Continental system, which now totals 2333 miles and serves 25 cities in 5 states. Establishment of the route will bridge together two of Continental's present routes, thus further integrating the Continental system and making possible more efficient operation.

of donning British battle dress or wrapping himself in blankets. He chose the latter and was removed by automobile to a house in Luenberg for detention.

There he quickly was confronted by a British medical examiner who ordered him stripped for the fourth inspection since his arrest.

The physician then made a painstaking examination of his feet, hands, his entire body — even the ears. Then Himmler was ordered to open his mouth and roll back his tongue.

His response was unsatisfactory and the doctor ordered him to approach the light and open his mouth again. The examiner probed inside with his finger and as he did so Himmler jerked back and shook his head. There was a crunch of glass and he fell to the floor.

Disease Rate Rises Sharply In Germany

WITH AMERICAN OCCUPATION FORCES IN GERMANY, May 24. (AP)—A sharp increase in venereal disease among American combat troops since assignment to guard duty in Germany was disclosed tonight by Army medical reports.

One typical veteran infantry division in which the rate of venerial infection was more than doubled in three weeks was known to have intensified its system of prophylactic safeguards in an effort to cope with the growing problem.

Medical officers of battle-tested regiments now converted into security patrols in German towns and countryside told reporters they believed most of the current venereal cases were acquired in contact with displaced women workers of foreign nationality.

BUYING PROPS STOCKS

NEW YORK, May 24 (AP)—Last-hour investment buying of rails and selected industrials put props under today's stock market after declining tendencies had ruled throughout the greater part of the session. Transfers of 960,000 shares compared with 1,310,000 yesterday.

Dividends, earnings and post-war hopes for business inspired much of the revival. The Associated Press 60-stock composite was up .1 of a point at 64.7, first advance this week. The utility group gained .3 to equal its 5-year peak.

Northern Pacific and Foster Wheeler touched new highs for the bull move. Nickel Plate preferred jumped 4½ points and lesser plus signs were attached to Santa Fe, Chesapeake and Ohio, Southern Pacific, K. C. Southern, American Telephone, Western Union "A", Du Pont, Phelps Dodge, Douglas Aircraft and Sears Roebuck.

In the minus ranks were Bethlehem, General Motors, Chrysler, U. S. Rubber, Consolidated Edison, Standard Oil (NJ), Texas Co., Boeing, Montgomery Ward and Allied Chemical.

Bonds were mixed.

NEW YORK FUTURES

NEW YORK, May 24 (AP)—The cotton futures market made new seasonal highs in all deliveries today on broad trade and commission house buying, stimulated by unfavorable crop prospects and a growing belief that the present government price support program will be continued.

Mills were large buyers of the nearby months with commission house and New Orleans demand centered in new crop months. After reaching gains of 70 cents a bale, the market eased off partially on considerable profit-taking and some hedging to close 5 cents a bale lower to 45 cents higher. Sentiment was influenced partly by predictions from some trade quarters that the cotton purchase program due to expire on June 30 will be extended another season.

Opinion generally has been that it would be supplanted by some new form of parity support plan.

Minor Leagues Set Plans For Agreement

NEW YORK, May 24 (AP)—Relations between the major and minor leagues, including recognition of Commissioner A. B. (Happy) Chandler by the little fellows, hinged today on a future "bargaining" session between representatives of the two factions.

A six-man committee from the National association continued work on a new major-minor pact but indicated final details would depend on the degree of co-operation given by the big boys.

Thomas H. Richardson, chairman of the minors executive committee, said their version of the new agreement would be ready for submission to the lower class leagues by next week.

After the pact is finished the majors will be notified and a joint committee session scheduled probably in late June or early July.

The minors are prepared to demand territorial guarantees, increased draft prices to $15,000 for Double A and revision of the option system. Approximately 20 changes will be asked.

If no consideration is given to their requests, the little fellows may refuse to adopt any agreement and go their own way after Jan. 12, 1946.

"Most Shot Up" GI Credits God With Saving His Life

ABILENE, May 18 (UP) — The 45th Division's "most shot up soldier to return alive" is back in the States and a firm believer that Almighty God took care of him through the times he was wounded in Sicily, Italy and France.

He is Lt. Charles A. Brandt of Muskogee, Okla.

The first five times the Nazis got him, he returned to action with new medals to show for his "extraordinary heroism and aggressive leadership" that brought on his battlefield promotion from sergeant to lieutenant.

Brandt, who stopped off here to visit Camp Barkeley, where he trained for war, while en route back to a California hospital, wears the Distinguished Service Cross, the Silver Star, the Bronze Star, a Presidential citation and the Purple Heart with five oak leaf clusters.

Before he finally was put out of action near the Swiss border in France, Brandt suffered the following wounds:

1. Shrapnel in the arm (Sicily).
2. Knee injury (Italy).
3. Shrapnel in both ankles (Venafro, Italy).
4. Chest injury (Anzio beachhead).
5. Shrapnel in elbow (Anzio).

An artillery shell that exploded in his foxhole in France spelled the end of action. It wounded him in nine places and shattered his left leg.

TWINS WOUNDED

SESSER, Ill. (UP)—Russell and Randall McBride, twins from here, have been living identical lives during their three years in the Army. Both were wounded at Torigny, France, on the same day and by the same mine blast, one in the leg and the other in the arm. They entered the hospital together and were released to return to the 35th Infantry Division the same day. Russell is a first sergeant and Randall is a technical sergeant.

Russia took more time to study the Uruguayan amendment and won delay by a 16 to 14 vote.

The way the argument on the Uruguayan proposal went today, it looked like four of the great powers would try to head it off and probably would succeed.

Nothing is to be done at this conference about the size of the forces to be made available by various states. The world league would do that after organizing.

The great nations continued efforts to stave off a small-power revolt against the veto power over use of force — or over investigation or peaceful settlement of disputes — which they would exercise in the security council under the Yalta Big Three agreement.

Statement Of Policy

Technicians of the Big Four were reported working on a general statement of policy that may supply an interpretation along these lines.

Action on any international controversy would require a unanimous vote of the Big Four and France. Any of these Big Five thus could veto action. But the council could discuss disputes without the veto applying.

The problem of rebuilding war-ravaged lands also came into the conference as a new problem today. A proposal was put forward that the world organization assume general supervision over reconstruction problems.

Greece, tattered as war swept her land, and pillaged under enemy occupation, advanced the idea in a committee considering creation of a council for social and economic cooperation.

It was so well received that a drafting committee was asked to put the proposition in final form for a vote at the next committee meeting.

Central Clearing House

Apparently, delegates said, it would mean that the economic council would go far beyond any objectives outlined for it thus far, and become a central clearing house for handling reconstruction problems, perhaps smoothing the way for loans or the flow of materials.

France came along with a suggestion that the social and economic council try to promote logical and orderly distribution of raw materials throughout the world. This, too, was turned over to a drafting committee.

In the same committee, American delegate Virginia Gildersleeve dropped her battle against listing the promotion of full employment as an aim of the council. Some United States delegates feared inclusion of this goal might open the way for a world organization to interfere in domestic affairs.

No Internal Dabbling

To counter this apprehension, the committee was reported to have revised the wording to make clear that international collaboration in the interests of full employment did not mean dabbling in a country's internal business.

Small nations have submitted in writing 22 questions to China Britain, Russia and the United States, the countries sponsoring the conference, in an attempt to get them on the record on just how the veto power would operate.

Their action necessitated consultations with the home governments in Chungking, London, Moscow and Washington.

Secretary of State Stettinius, who has been conferring with President Truman in Washington, may fly into San Francisco tomorrow with an enunciation of American views.

Answer Due Tonight

Foreign Minister Herbert V. Evatt of Australia, leading the lesser-nation scrap to whittle down big-power control of peace-enforcement machinery, told Australian reporters a Big Four reply could not be expected before late tomorrow night.

Norway argued that some settlements worked out before war broke in Europe left small nations insecure, and she wanted no more of that.

But Senator Connally (D-Tex) contended the Norwegian amendment was unnecessary. Sir Alexander Cadogan, the British representative, said it would leave a loop hole for law breakers.

In the same committee, Connally assured Canada the security council could be unable to call on any country to supply armed forces for an international police force unless that country specifically had entered into an agreement with the council on that point.

A BRIGHT IDEA—Close relatives, but a generation apart, are the crude wooden model pictured at top and the M-12 self-propelled cannon in lower photo. The model is American's first attempt at self-propelled artillery, designed in 1917 by the late Col. James B. Dillard, of Cleveland, Ohio, an Army Ordnance officer in World War I. The potentialities of the weapon were developed for World War II, and it and similar self-propelled guns have played a major role in the global war. Mrs. Dillard, who lives at Charlottesville, Va., will be presented with the original model.

GOP Voters Split With Leaders Of Party On Tariff Reduction

By GEORGE GALLUP, Director
American Institute of Public Opinion

PRINCETON, N. J., May 22 — If public opinion may be taken as a guide, traditional Republican thinking on the tariff issue, as reflected in current opposition to renewal and extension of the Reciprocal Trade Agreements act, may be due to break down before very long.

GALLUP

A nation-wide survey among voters who know what the Trade Agreements act is, finds a substantial majority of best informed Republican voters in favor of renewing the life of the act. Following tradition, the best informed Democratic voters are found overwhelmingly in favor of the renewal of the act.

The bill under consideration would authorize a further reduction of tariff of not more than 50% below the level of January 1, 1945.

Democrats who are familiar with the principle of reciprocal trade agreements are overwhelmingly in favor of this crucial issue of a further reduction in tariffs. Republicans who are familiar with the agreements are more evenly divided. A slight majority of those interviewed in this survey favor further reductions.

Question Complicated

The whole question of trade agreements and tariff cuts is of course extremely complicated. For this reason, the Institute limited this survey to those familiar with the Hull agreement; that is, able to tell what they are.

The questions put to this small group which amounted to about one in 10:

"Congress has to decide whether or not to continue the trade agreements program. What do you think — should the program be continued or not?"

Replies of those included in the survey:

Should be continued	75%
Should not be continued	7
Undecided	18

"Would you approve or disapprove using this program to get further reductions of tariffs in both the United States and other countries"

Approve	57%
Disapprove	20
No Opinion	23

when it does not know how rural schools and the aged fared in appropriation bills still in conference.

Morgan told the House that reports old age assistance funds had been cut in conference committee were not true.

Speaking against Winfree, Isaacks said:

"I appeal to you as representatives of the people of Texas, not the old people and the school teachers, to accept the report of the conference committee."

The House storm on adjournment broke after approval on second reading of a bond issue proposal for a building program at the University of Texas and Texas A. and M. college.

During debate on the adjournment proposition Rep. W. L. Smith of Beaumont asserted the recommendation of the conference committee "reflected only the prejudice of the conferees."

Apology Offered

Rep. Lon Messer of Corpus Christi, a House conferee, took exception and Smith apologized to the House, declaring he meant to say that "the members of the conference committee voted their convictions."

By a vote of 95 to 32 the House approved on second reading a Senate-approved joint resolution submitting a constitutional amendment under which $9,000,000 in bonds could be issued for construction at the two colleges.

Because the proposition did not receive 100 affirmative votes it must be considered again and will not finally pass until it does receive 100 or more.

When and if it is passed it must return to the Senate for consideration of House amendments.

Would Share In Funds

The House rejected many proposed amendments but attached one which would give Prairie View Normal college for negroes the status of a university and permit it to share with Texas and Texas A. and M. in the income from the university permanent fund.

Other developments in the 136th day of the general session:

A secret ballot bill was sent to a free conference committee for adjustment of differences between the House and Senate.

The Senate refused to take out of its regular order on the calendar a House bill extending mineral leases on submerged school lands. The bill was passed on second reading by the Senate after a 17-hour filibuster last week.

Passed on second reading in the Senate was a House bill creating a state advisory aviation commission. An amendment reduced from $25,000 to $20,000 an appropriation for the commission.

July Liquor-Making Holiday Approved

WASHINGTON, May 24. (AP)—The War Production board today released the facilities of the nation's distillers for a one month liquor-making "holiday" in July.

The facilities have been devoted to the production of industrial alcohol for war purposes.

WPB Chairman J. A. Krug, in authorizing the third four-week holiday within a year, said at a news conference that it was made possible by:

1. Suspension of shipments of industrial alcohol to Russia because of diminished need of it there.

2. Increasing use of petroleum instead of industrial alcohol in the manufacture of synthetic rubber in this country.

As in the case of holidays last August and January, liquor producers are expected to be able to turn out more than 50,000,000 proof gallons of distilled spirits. This the industry has reported, is the equivalent of one year's normal supply of drinking liquor.

The alcohol produced will be used for making blended and straight whiskey, as well as gin.

NEW HONOR GOES TO BEMEDALLED VETERAN

FARMERSVILLE, Tex., May 24. (AP)—Lt. Audie L. Murphy, 20-year-old fighting Irishman from Greenville, Tex., tonight held just about every medal in the book.

From Washington today came the announcement that Murphy will receive the Congressional Medal of Honor. Already he holds the Distinguished Service Cross, the Legion of Merit, the Silver Star, the Bronze Star and the Purple Heart with two clusters.

Stopped Nazi Assault

Murphy is getting the Medal of Honor for killing or wounding 50 Germans during a lone stand atop a blazing tank destroyer. He stopped a tank-led assault by 250 Germans and when his ammunition was gone he ignored his own wounds, reorganized his company and routed the Nazis.

Today's announcement said the blue-eyed fighter will receive the nation's highest honor in Europe.

Mrs. Corrine Burns, Murphy's sister who lives here, said her brother was "just a little fellow but he never would let anybody run over him."

Small and Powerful

"Why, he's only five feet three inches tall and he doesn't weigh more than 135 pounds but maybe it's because he's so little that he gets around so well."

Murphy will be 21 June 20. He was born on a farm in Hunt county and attended schools in Celeste and Greenville. He worked as a farmer's helper and held jobs at Greenville in a grocery store and radio shop.

Enlisting in the Army at Greenville in 1942, he was trained at Camp Wolters, and Fort Meade, Md. He went overseas about 30 months ago and saw action in the African, Sicilian, Italian and French campaigns.

Famine in Athens was reported to have caused 100,000 deaths in 1942.

That, said the court, constituted cruelty. She was awarded a divorce and possession of the car.

Churchill's Resignation

It's Hard To Judge From Here

ALTHOUGH the resignation of Winston Churchill as Prime Minister of Great Britain marked merely a formality traditional in English politics—and which has no parallel in the American system of government—it is important because it officially admits that Britain's war-born coalition government is on the way out and makes mandatory the calling of a general election.

In this country, should the Secretary of State, or, for that matter, the entire cabinet, resign, the President merely would appoint successors and the new men would carry on. Under the British system, however, Mr. Churchill will continue as head of the government through reappointment by the king until such time as the elections can be held and a new, permanent government be organized. Thus, even though he resigned in British tradition, Mr. Churchill will continue as the active head of state until such time as he may be permanently unhorsed, or, by his own volition, step down.

From now until the British elections have been held and results tabulated, interest will center upon the probable way the British people will express themselves at the polls. Whether they will swing toward radicalism, as was the case in the recent French elections; go conservative to a greater extent than in the early and middle 1930's, or whether they will choose a position between the two, remains to be seen. So does it remain to be seen whether or not Mr. Churchill, later this year, shall continue in his present position. It is possible that he might be retired by action of the people at the polls in repudiating his leadership; it is possible that he may retire of his own free will. It also is possible that he will be upheld by the people and elect to remain as the king's first minister until the Jap end of the war is won, or victory is in sight.

It is difficult for us in the U. S. to understand how the British people could repudiate the government of the man who came out of retirement to chart them through the most dangerous days in all the history of the vaunted British empire. But let us not forget that the average Britisher was astounded to learn that in 1940 and again in 1944, between 22,000,000 and 24,000,000 Americans voted in opposition to a continuation of the late President Roosevelt's administration and that at both elections the President captured only a few million more popular votes than his opponents. In short, we do not understand the personalities and the issues of British politics any better than the average Britisher understands those of our politics.

Mr. Churchill, as was Mr. Roosevelt, is a very great man and one whose qualities of leadership cannot successfully be denied. As Mr. Roosevelt did in this country, Mr. Churchill in England has captured the fancy of the world's peoples and the respect and admiration of millions away from his home as well as of millions within it. Yet Mr. Churchill is certain to have made political enemies—and a lot of them—just as was the case of Mr. Roosevelt. So only a general election—England's first in a decade—can mirror the verdict of the majority of Britons.

This much is certain. England's answer at the polls will show which way the world's political winds are blowing and will indicate, at least, whether the majority of her people are prepared to veer far toward radicalism as seems now to be the case of the peoples of most of continental Europe.

Mr. Murray And Economics

IN his statement calling for an immediate increase of 17 cents an hour for steel workers and "similar amounts in other industries," President Philip Murray of the CIO has again emphasized the problem facing the government as it seeks to guide the nation along the difficult road leading to prosperous peacetime economy.

Mr. Murray makes no bones about demanding higher wage rates now and for the future. He insists that there must be a new wage policy to meet the situation created by the movement toward reconversion. He argues that the objective must be "expansion, not contraction, or purchasing power," that take-home pay must be at least as high as it is now to sustain national income, and that wage rates must rise to offset the reduced work week, downgrading, and the shift to lower-paid occupations.

Heads of government agencies that must deal with the demands of labor have already shown considerable sympathy with this point of view. But it is hard to see how prices are to be kept in line pending return to normal conditions if industry must meet such demands. Take-home pay today not only represents increases in basic rates since the prewar period, but time-and-a-half for overtime and also important "fringe" adjustments.

Mr. Murray rests his case partly on advances in living costs. He talks about restoring prewar relationships between wage rates, prices and productivity per man-hour. But these relationships have been disturbed largely because organized labor insisted on pay increases during the war. His program, we think, would maintain the unbalance rather than remove it.

EXPLANATION OF CARTOON

THE GROWING STATUE

In the capital of Okinawa there is a gigantic statue of an ancient idol which is now about 40 feet tall. The natives claim that it was the statue of one of their early kings. It was originally of the normal human size, 5 ft. 5 in., but gradually through the years it has grown until it is now 40 feet tall, and it still continues growing at the rate of about 1½ feet per century.

AN UNWILLING TOOL?

XVI

I went into the cellar. Eric had just finished putting coal on the fire and Charley was standing by the corridor entrance scratching his chin thoughfully.

"Look." He pointed beyond the set-tubs to a door that I had noticed before. Apparently it gave access to the south wing of the house. "We found a bed in there, Nick, recently slept in, some cigaret butts, and a pair of sport shoes."

"Shoes?" I looked carefully at Eric's feet. I had never noticed them before. They were big, but not big enough to make the footprints I had seen. I went through the door into the room. The stale odor of cigarets assailed my nostrils. There was a cot against the side wall and by the cot a pair of white and tan saddle-straps. And they were as big as Erie canal boats. The maker's name was plainly visible: Blakely and Hodgon. They made a good shoe.

There was nothing whatever in the room besides the bed—not even a window. Evidently, the space had been used for storage and our intruder had utilized it for the simple expedient of storing his big-footed body by night.

When we got back upstairs Pat had a cup of black coffee for me.

"It's the best I could do, darling." She smiled contritely. "You've a jaded look."

"Thanks, Pat." I took the coffee, but it was strong and brackish. I couldn't get it down.

"It was left over from this morning and I heated it over," apologized Pat. "Maybe I shouldn't have."

"Pat, my love," Brenda remarked, "many a maiden has languished in spinsterhood till death for less."

"There could be worse fates," replied Pat lightly.

Charley and I sat on the rocks in front of The Ledges. The sun was high and the warmth of it swarmed through my jacket. The air was so still that the smoke from our cigarets hung almost motionless before me. Pat and Brenda had taken the station wagon to Minot for provisions and at the last moment Eric with his self-assured civility had tagged along to do some errands of his own.

"Tramps don't wear Blakely and Hodgon shoes," Charley reflected.

"Why would anyone want to sleep in that stuffy hole in the wall" I asked.

"For concealment. It's a beautiful hide-out." Charley tossed a stone into a moss-green pool. "And you almost stumbled into who's using it."

"I didn't stumble. I was on the hunt."

Charley looked at me oddly and I told him about the intruder in my room last night and the big footprints on the cellar floor this morning. When I had finished, he leaned his back against the rock and locked his hands behind his head.

"Nick, has it seemed to you that the whole atmosphere since we've been here at The Ledges has been—well—rather theatrical?"

"Phony, you mean?"

"I suppose that's what I mean. Doesn't it seem odd that Phineas Hudson was so anxious to get down here the moment he heard about your plan to rusticate here?"

"Pat's plan," I corrected him. Again he looked at me strangely.

"Mr. Hudson explained," I went on, "that he is here only because he is distressed about Pat's involvement in this mess I appear to be in."

"But Pat wouldn't have come down here at all if it hadn't been for her father's coming down," Charley pointed out.

I hadn't thought of that. Phineas Hudson was the last man I would suspect of guile. He had no need for it. Or had he?

"And the Temples," continued Charley. "What are they doing here? And Eric Woolf?"

"And the guy who slugged me in the cellar," I concluded dryly.

"I don't believe it was Eric," said Charley, "or Bruce Temple, for that matter."

"You certainly don't think it was Phineas Hudson?"

He didn't answer immediately. Then he said:

"Maybe indirectly. Didn't Pat suggest that you go down to fix the fire this morning?"

"Look, Charley," I said. "Get this straight: if I thought Pat Hudson was trying to murder me, I'd be out hunting for the best criminal lawyer in the country to get her off. And just remember this. There isn't a single person in our chummy little group except Pat, and possibly Brenda, who could furnish a good alibi if he were pinned down concerning this morning's fracas."

"You forget me," Charley said mildly. "I was in the kitchen when Brenda heard the scuffle and Pat was cooking the eggs. In order to find a thing, Nick, you have to look where it isn't. I'm not suggesting that Pat Hudson is out for your scalp. But has it occurred to you that she might be an unwilling tool of someone's?"

It had. But I merely said: "Go on."

"Suppose Phineas Hudson knew all along that there was somebody here at The Ledges—possibly somebody whose presence he had reason to conceal. That would account for his sudden desire to indulge in this—for him—entirely unnatural outing. It would explain his wanting to beat you down here."

"But who the devil could it be?"

Charley turned out the palms of his hands.

"I don't know. It's only a theory. We have to consider all angles."

Enrollment Here Is 412 For Summer

Lubbock public schools registered 412 students by noon Thursday for summer instruction, school opening Wednesday, W. C. Watts, summer school principal, announced.

Saturday is the last day students can enroll in senior high school for credit, he said.

Elementary enrollment today was 55, junior high school, grades seven and eight, 25 and senior high school, grades nine through 12, 332. Summer enrollment of senior high school last year was 394.

All high school classes, junior and senior, are held in the senior high school building. Elementary school is in the Dupre building from 8 a. m. to 11 a. m. Senior high school students attend classes from 7:30 a. m. to 12 noon; junior high school students from 8 a. m. to 12 noon.

Senior high school students may take only two half unit courses and each class will be one and a half hours in length. There is a charge of $9 for each half unit in senior high school; $7.50 for one course in junior high or $15 for as many subjects as desired; $7.50 for as many subjects as wanted in elementary school. All tuition is payable in advance, Watts said.

Junior high school and elementary students will not be allowed to take any new courses but will be confined to the subjects in which they need strengthening.

GRASSHOPPERS PREVALENT

DALLAS, May 24. (AP)—County Agent A. B. Jolley said today a serious infestation of grasshoppers in Dallas county lowlands has caused partial destruction of crops along the Trinity river bottoms from Carrollton to Seagoville. The destruction is spreading into adjacent areas, Jolley said.

Looking At Life - - - - - - By Erich Brandeis

POETRY is something that has never interested me very much, in other words it's something that I can take, but just as easily leave alone.

I know a lot of poets and most of them aren't exactly the kind of fellows (or girls) to whom I am particularly attracted.

I like my men clean-shaven, with occasional haircuts and plenty of baths. Not that I want to cast any reflection on the manliness or cleanliness of poets — they are probably just too busy up there in the clouds to think of more mundane things.

BRANDEIS

And yet, every once in a while among the many rhymes that are sent to me by readers there is something which is real poetry, poetry which indicates a yearning for something better than just the everyday routine of making a living and doing the household chores.

For instance, here is something Mrs. Dorothy Ryan sent me today from Butler, Pa.

She didn't say, but I think Mrs. Ryan is a farmer's wife.

As you probably know, there isn't much poetry in farming. It's mostly tough, hard work and nature is just something that makes the crops either good or bad.

BUT Mrs. Ryan wrote a poem which she called "Nature's Wonders." It won't win a prize nor will she ever be a Poet Laureate. But there is that yearning of which I spoke and that beauty of spirit which most people have but are afraid to show to the world.

Let me give you two verses:

While walking in a country lane,
Amid the song-bird's sweet refrain,
I let my fancy have full sway,
And many things I saw this day.

Then looking into God's blue sky,
Up where the tree tops sway and sigh,
I thanked my God that I could see
The charm of Nature's mystery.

MANY a time I've walked down the country lane without seeing and appreciating "the charm of nature's mystery."

Many a time you have done it and you have seen stones and sticks and brambles and complained about the heat and the rain and thought only of the work to be done and the mean little things at the end of the lane.

But for you, and for me too, there are many better things than that to see if you and I will only, like Mrs. Ryan, "let our fancy have full sway."

No, I've never paid much attention to poetry. And maybe you haven't either.

I wonder whether most of us don't pay entirely too much attention to the music of the cash register and not nearly enough to the harmony in our hearts.

DeGaulle Eyes Pacific

French Seek Rewards For Aid

WASHINGTON
By Ray Tucker

THE Anglo-American High Command will be only too happy to accept military aid from De Gaulle's forces in the war against Japan, a fact made clear by President Truman's statement. But the Joint Chiefs of Staff are dead set against training and equipping a powerful army and air armada for sentimental reasons or to advance the national interests of Paris at the final peace table.

The United States supplied six French divisions for the windup of the European show. They performed bravely and brilliantly. When well armed, as they were not in 1940 because of parliamentary and political intrigues, they comprise some of the most dashing fighters in the world. It is probable that these and a few additional units now receiving the finishing touches will be transferred to the Far Eastern theater of conflict.

TUCKER

De Gaulle, however, wants to use the Japanese struggle as an opportunity for remaking his country into a great world power. His separate treaty with Moscow was a first move in that direction.

Now he figures that heavy participation in the final stages of the Pacific war would reinforce his claim to a return of Indo-China and other colonial possessions, including some in this hemispere. Therefore, he has stirred international circles again by his demand for a major role in the Orient.

HOPES: Franklin Roosevelt was stubbornly opposed to this idea. His opposition did not derive alone from his personal distaste for the anti-Vichy chieftain, although the two men's instinctive dislike for each other was a factor in FDR's attitude.

Mr. Roosevelt's global plans also led him to belittle the assistance which the British and Dutch could render in this sector. He had ideas for eventual restoration of Hong Kong, Singapore and Dutch areas to native governments. For these far-reaching reasons he wanted the conquest of Hirohito to be an all-American affair.

Mr. Truman takes a more realistic view. If other nation's reinforcement will save American lives in the last phase of the fighting, he will welcome it. But the military strategists have advised against any diversion of efforts or equipment which formation of a vast French war machine would entail. They judge that their job is to whip the Japs, not to remake the universe.

KAISER: The "big builders"—Henry J. Kaiser and Ben Fairless — have already squared off for the battle which the end of the war will bring in the field of residential construction. Inasmuch as the industrial plant of the nation, as well as ships, public buildings and office structure, has been overbuilt, the struggle will be staged over the manufacture of millions of modern inexpensive homes.

Kaiser has announced that he intends to shift from ships to the realm of prefabricated houses. He will rely for materials on the metal from the huge steel, aluminum and magnesium factories which have been thrown up in the Far West within the last five years. He has the labor, the funds, the water power — in fact, everything. He has demonstrated that he is a wizard at mass production.

CLASH: Meanwhile, United States Steel is preparing to expand its prefab laboratory in New Albany, Indiana, which it acquired about a year ago.

It bought the plant from the Gunnison Housing corporation, which was founded by Foster Gunnison, a pioneer in this field. He is the son of a former Brooklyn publisher, and studied the fine art of construction here and abroad.

His metallic residences look like tailor-made houses from $3,000 to $6,000, embracing the cost of the lot as a down payment. He plans to establish branch factories in all sections of the country. His present task is to get dealers like those of the automobile industry throughout the land.

United Mine Worker boss, John L. Lewis, whose United Construction workers have a contract with Gunnison, recently sent two of his aides to inspect the New Albany layout. The labor leader is enthusiastic about the employment possibilities in this sphere, and has pledged his support to the Fairless prefabricators. This, of course, will occasion a clash involving the "little builders" in the AFL, the CIO and the Lewis faction.

WINNING THE WAR
By Albert Leman

TALK about Japanese peace feelers persists in New York international banking circles even though Washington denies that it has received proposals from any group in Nippon with authority to make them.

It is quite apparent that persons representing the Zaibatsu, the big business crowd, are trying to make contacts in neutral countries or through go-betweens. But the Administration has made it clear that it is not interested unless the emissaries can guarantee complete capitulation.

The Mitsui gang knows that the B-29s are wrecking their factories in Nagoya, Hamamatsu and other centers even more rapidly than our planes put the Krupps out of commission in the Ruhr. Our bomb tonnage is now 1,000 tons a day; it took almost two years to reach that level on Germany.

LEMAN

Tokyo businessmen realize too that, from a recovery standpoint, Japan simply hasn't enough steel —the backbone of war industries —to heal her battle wounds before our invasion.

She may now be making 15,000,000 tons annually, twice her prewar total. But our steel production is almost 100,000,000 tons. The output of our Allies and the German territories under our control may almost match this figure soon.

Our destructive potential must make any informed Japanese industrial expert pale under his yellow skin. Hirohito's personal fortune and the wealth of his relatives are invested in the plants that our aviators are obliterating; they'll all go broke if they do not beg us to stop strafing their properties.

POLITICS: Apart from the desire to save lives, the Administration has a strong reason for wishing an early end of the war. Bob Hannegan and his henchmen hope to elect a Democratic Congress in 1946 and to re-elect the President in 1948.

Economists warn that in the reconstruction period immediately following V-J day there will be a wave of unemployment and labor troubles. The politicians do not want to be caught in a "reconversion depression" on the eve of a campaign; it might sweep the Democrats from power.

But, to his credit, President Truman is more concerned about complete victory and lasting security in the Pacific through unconditional surrender than about the partisan advantage that a quick, soft peace might yield in the next few months.

SUPERFICIAL: Although Nipponese capitalists may be eager to offer terms, we have no assurance that they can deliver. Regardless of superficial signs that the Japanese war spirit is slackening, there is no evidence that the generals and the admirals have been shunted. Okinawa resistance is proof of their tenacity.

Wall Street bankers have access to transcripts of enemy radio broadcasts and newspaper files. They cite speeches and articles critical of Tokyo to show that the Japs are split on policy.

But this optimism seems unjustified. The freedom of the press has never been so curbed in Japan as it was in Nazi Germany and is in Communist Russia. The fall of the Tojo and Koisi cabinets may be attributed partly to open public censure.

However, the hard core of militarism in the Japanese government has never changed. The brass hats have ruled each successive ministry as they do today.

U. S. Chamber Organizes A Pressure Group

Business Men To Protect Selves

By THOMAS L. STOKES
Special Correspondent

WASHINGTON. — Pity the poor congressman! He's got all kinds of people on his neck now. And he's going to have a lot more.

The U. S. Chamber of Commerce, which has its national headquarters in a big marble building here, is out stirring up local businessmen in their 2,000 organizations all over the country to start bombarding congressmen with their ideas about what are known as "national affairs committees" in each local unit —NAC. The initials have a strangely familiar ring. The PAC of the CIO, which was so effective politically in the last election for labor and the Democratic ticket, undoubtedly inspired this effort to organize businessmen.

STOKES

Not Concerned With Elections

But this scheme is a bit different. At least that's what it says in the flashy handbook got up by the U. S. Chamber. It bears some resemblance to the handbook on politics which the CIO used, except that the figures which jump about the pages are of plump and vigorous businessmen, drawn in all sorts of poses and gestures, instead of the more serious, angular types in the pages of the CIO booklet.

"This is not a handbook on political action . . . in the ordinary sense," it says. "It is not concerned with election of people to office.

"This book is, however, concerned with the actions of office holders, specifically with congressmen, after they are elected. It is designed to show something of what makes a congressman 'tick,' and to suggest ways in which local chambers can influence national legislation."

CHAMBERS of commerce have both Republicans and Democrats as members, so it would hardly be smart for them to organize to get out and ring doorbells and ask for their neighbors to vote for Bill Blotz, as the CIO people do. But the purpose of NAC is to make a congressman so aware of the local businessman that the "political" effect will be there just the same.

"Certain minority groups with anti-business leanings are stronger and fiercer than ever before," the handbook sets forth. "Business can no longer sit back and merely hope that Congress will act wisely and well. Everybody must become interested in the issues and in what congress does about them.

"A live, smart NAC will make sure this interest is aroused, and does not flag. Politics — which means the art of government — is something for you to worry about, not just the other fellow."

Active Drive Planned

To form a "live, smart NAC," according to the book, you get a livewire chairman who knows something about national affairs, and also "a lot about the psychology of humans in public office and about public life in general." Then, you get some men and women who "know the score" on national issues to make up the committtee.

Then you start getting after your congressman—20 tips are listed—and you start holding local meetings.

FROM the advice to the local NAC, of which, incidentally, a total of 1,330 already have been organized with 20 more coming in every day, the congressmen might as well begin to look for—

Requests for the Congressional Record.

Letters of appreciation for their "good votes."

"Fine large pictures of native scenery, or agricultural and industrial assets, for their offices." Also "some local food product which they can have served to their colleagues in House and Senate restaurants."

Lots of letters from local businessmen, for "each individual member of the whole chamber must be spurred to exert his own ounces of separate influence on each national affair to make your total weight count in the congressional balance."

"Stereotyped form letters won't give a senator courage, or information, or insight—or even the willies. But 1,000 individual letters, written from information provided by the NAC, can head in, smoke out, or buck up any man who votes on Capitol Hill!"

Look to your laurels, PAC.

Look out, congressmen!

PAW Says Demand For Texas Oil To Be Cut

AUSTIN, May 24. (AP)—Railroad Commission Chairman Olin Culberson was assured today by the Petroleum Administration for War that it would do all in its power to reduce certification of demand on Texas for petroleum liquids.

The PAW, said Culberson, expressed concern over maintenance of production in some Texas fields above their efficient rate, and explained reductions would be made commensurate "with any reduction in crude oil requirements."

The railroad commission recently asked the PAW to ease up on demands for Texas oil as soon as possible.

TRIBESMEN IN REVOLT

IN BEHALF of our boys in the armed forces, we wish to thank you for the way you responded to our plea for large clean grade A eggs. Because of your patriotic cooperation, we have been able to get their eggs to them much faster than could have been possible otherwise. We still have many more war department orders to fill, and the government is looking to you to help us meet our increased quotas.
If you haven't heard of the way that you can make more money, and still be helping our soldier boys, ask your neighbor, or we will give you the information. Your large clean grade A eggs are still desperately needed. Thanks again.

Better Wages In South Predicted

WASHINGTON, May 24. (AP)—Southern workers will be better paid as a result of the Interstate Commerce commission's recent freight rate ruling, Dixieland congressmen predicted today.

The higher-pay theme was sounded by most of the more than 20 Southerners asked by a reporter to interpret the ICC decision to make railroads establish uniform class rates. Heretofore the South's charges have been higher than the East.

Points Are Cited

The Southerners gave these points to support their belief the improved rates will boost wages:

1. Many new manufacturers will be encouraged to establish in the south, thus increasing the demand for workers.

2. Established concerns will be making more money. This will tend to flow into the communities where they are located and thus expand the general economic level through the area.

3. Industrial expansion in the south will of necessity provide many more highly skilled jobs. These pay the bigger salaries.

Vastly Expanded Social Security Program Proposed In House Bill

WASHINGTON, May 24. (AP)—A multi-billion dollar expansion of social security, including a new program of medical care insurance, was introduced in Congress today by Senator Wagner (D-NY) and Rep. Dingell (D-Mich).

Contributions would increase to 4 per cent on workers' pay and per cent on employers' payrolls. At present each pays 1 cent to finance old age insurance.

Some Of Provisions

Among the bill's provision are:

An expanded unemployment insurance system with benefits uniform throughout the nation. They now vary among the states.

Health insurance, to which all persons covered by social security would have to subscribe.

Inclusion of 15,000,000 farm workers, domestics, professionals, and small businessmen under the old age and survivors' insurance system.

A 10-year federal-state financing of hospitals, health centers and clinics in rural areas.

Permanent establishment of the U. S. Employment service, taking over war manpower duties and other similar activities after V-J day.

Health Insurance

Under the provisions of the health insurance plan, a worker would receive compensation for periods he was not paid due to illness or disability. If hospital care is involved, he would be allowed 60 days a year.

Wagner emphasized that a patient could pick his own doctor or hospital or dentist; they could pick their patients, too. In that sense, he said, this is not "social medicine" which many medical men have long opposed; nor is it "regimentation," he contended. Current health and hospital insurance plans, privately operated, would not be affected, he said.

Von Goethe Archives Undamaged By War

By LOUIS P. LOCHNER
Associated Press Staff Writer

WEIMAR, Germany—The magic name of Wolfgang von Goethe, greatest literary genius of all time in the opinion of Prof. Hans Julius Wahl, custodian of the Goethe and Johsan von Schiller archives, can continue to attract devotees of liberalism to Weimar once peace again is established.

Although blockbusters fell only a short distance from the house where Goethe spent 50 years of his life, most of his home was spared the ravages of bombing.

"The Goethehaus was empty at the time of the bombings," Wahl said. "All the furniture, original manuscripts, paintings, busts, china and other mementoes had been taken to bombproof shelters and are intact. Nine of the ten garret rooms are gone and the so-called Urbino room is damaged beyond repair.

"Most important, however, is that the room where Goethe died, his study, the Juno room and the servant quarters are safe as well as his collection of minerals, his physical experimental instruments and the results of his researches into color.

"Just as soon as the necessary repairs are made we can restore the rooms exactly as they looked when the war broke out."

Wahl said the removal of the remains of Goethe and Schiller to Jena, whence they were brought back last week on the orders of the military government, occurred without his knowledge.

With Nazis Licked, GI's Turn Attention To Sports Program

By KENNETH L. DIXON
Associated Press Staff Writer

OCCUPIED GERMANY—When the first postwar lull wore off slightly in this section of Germany, the Army brass hats and the lowliest GI's for once were in complete accord.

Kenneth Dixon

Said the upper bracket brass: "Let's inaugurate a comprehensive athletic and general sports program for all divisions awaiting reassignment in the European theater."

Said the GI's: "Let's play ball."

However, it wasn't always just ball games. Almost every kind of sport came in for some attention even during that first postwar week.

Like College Intramurals

One of the first outfits to get the ball rolling athletically speaking was the 29th infantry division located in and around Bremen. A large scale sports program already is in full swing under the direction of Maj. Tommy A. Dukehart, Baltimore, Md.

"It's just like a college intramural schedule," Maj. Dukehart said. "Baseball, softball, boxing and track teams have been formed in each battalion and regiment of the division. From the best teams we will select division varsity teams to compete with other divisions in the theater."

Dukehart's program goes beyond the routine type of sports—particularly because of the location of his outfit.

Competition Plentiful

"Swimming, boating and yachting facilities have been put at the disposal of many of our units since we found excellent water sport facilities in this territory," the division special service chief explained. "In addition, we've started various types of contests in golf, badminton and horseshoe pitching. There's practically no type of sport that a soldier can't find some kind of competition in around here these days."

Those GI's interested in golf can get special instruction from the former Minnesota champion—Pfc. Thomas Hamper of St. Paul.

Playing for Johnson High school of St. Paul, he won the state championship three years and then went on to win the state college crown three more years—not to mention taking the state amateur tourney laurels in 1940. Then he turned pro and played in the national tournament in 1941 and 1942. He still holds course records at St. Paul, Duluth and San Antonio, Tex.

Such sports programs as are under way now aren't exactly new to the 29th. During the 20 months it trained for the invasion in England the division won the ETO championship with its football, boxing, softball and basketball teams in 1943. Next year it took top honors in boxing and basketball.

Government May Act To Halt Pollution

WASHINGTON, May 24. (AP)—Unless local governments in Texas eliminate stream pollution, the federal government may intervene, Rep. Hatton W. Sumners (D., Tex.) said yesterday.

Sumners criticized pollution on the Trinity river between Fort Worth and Dallas and on south. Sumners made public in the Congressional record his correspondence with J. E. Sturrock, Austin, general manager of the Texas Water Conservation association.

"This (Trinity pollution) is an outstanding example of the failure to exercise a state power, and is the sort of thing that makes it very difficult for those of us who are trying to prevent a further concentration of power in the federal government to do it," Sumners wrote Sturrock.

Names Of Schools In 2 Cities Changed

FORT WORTH, May 24. (AP)—Recognizing the gradual broadening of the missions of air corps training schools at Midland and Houston, names of the two installations have been changed the AAF Training command headquarters said today.

The bombardier instructor school at Midland will be known officially as the "AAF Central School for Bombing," while the navigation instructors school at Houston (Ellington field) will be the "AAF Central School For Navigation."

The changes bring to three the number of "central" schools within the command. The other is the central school for flexible gunnery at Laredo.

STAMFORD, May 24 — Final preparations are being completed by all committees for the opening of the 15th annual Texas Cowboy reunion to be held on July 2, 3 and 4.

Invitations were extended this week to chambers of commerce, county judges, postmasters and ranch foremen to appoint cowgirl sponsors to the Texas Cowboy reunion.

Announcer Secured

Services of E. O. "Red" Wedgeworth, manager of the Pampa board of city development, have been secured as announcer of rodeo events, announced A. M. G. Swanson, director of rodeo events. "Red," always popular with West Texas audiences will be accompanied by C. P. "Doc" Pursley, the human dynamo of civic development of Pampa and president of the Pampa chamber of commerce.

Bill Lyons of Petrolia will furnish all rodeo stock with the exception of the steers to be used in the cutting horse contests.

Judges that have been secured for the three days events are: Foy Proctor, Midland; George Humphreys, Guthrie; W. B. Willingham, Rotan, and Byrel Hittson of Breckenridge.

Prizes Announced

A total $2,330 in cash money with many saddles, and other items as prizes for the various events has been announced by W. G. Swenson, president of the Texas Cowboy reunion.

The fourth annual showing of the American Quarter Horse association will be held during the reunion. Roy Arledge, chairman of the Quarter Horse show, reports that much interest is being shown with inquiries and entries already pouring in.

The "Old Timers"—the Texas Cowboy Reunion association — will hold their annual meeting on the same date as the reunion, said Chas. Coombs, secretary of the organization.

Big Junkyard Task Faced In Salvaging Damaged Superforts

SAIPAN, In The Marianas, May 3 (Delayed) (AP)—There's a billion dollar junkyard out here near an old Jap hangar. Inside the hangar it looks like any old pre-war junkyard back home. But outside, where the junk lies around, everything is king-size.

The boss-man, Major Harry S. Weber of Long Island, N. Y., salvage and reclamation officer, deals in the most valuable junk in the world, and they don't make a dime for themselves.

Save Serviceable Items

They gather up all the broken B-29 Superforts that come in beyond repair, either from battle damage, or from crash landings on the field. They strip the giants down, carefully check every piece of equipment worth saving, tag each item and send it to a central supply warehouse, then drag off the old smashed wings and fuselages to an aluminum boneyard.

Back in November and December, before we took Iwo Jima, folks around the junkyard worked overtime, trying to keep up with the mounting piles of wrecked planes smashed by Jap bombing and strafing attacks.

Wings Blown Off

Major Weber explained that the biggest job was breaking up the huge plane bodies after all valuable instruments and equipment had been removed.

"We used to cut the wings off and break up the big fuselages with acetylene torches," he said, "but that took too long. A couple of men used to take two days constant burning with torches, and they used more oxygen than we could afford. So we figured out a new method. It's a lot cheaper, and very spectacular.

"We strap blocks of TNT around the wings and bodies and blow the things apart. In a couple of hours, with this method, two men can knock a whole ship down into easily movable pieces."

James Russell Lowell was the god-father of Virginia Woolf, English novelist, critic, and essayist.

Shakeup Believed Just Starting As Truman Shifts Cabinet Aides

By LYLE C. WILSON
United Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, May 24—President Truman has released four of the 10 cabinet members he inherited from Franklin D. Roosevelt, and insiders said today that several more were slated to go.

The Post Office, Justice, Agriculture and Labor departments, have been affected so far. Changes also are taking place among the even more intimate advisers of the late President Roosevelt.

The net effect appears to be a potentially more conservative administration.

Has Other Resignations

In announcing the cabinet changes at his news conference yesterday Mr. Truman said he had resignations on file from every official who can resign. He remarked that he could accept them at will.

With the cabinet shake-up came announcement that Harry L. Hopkins had been sent to Moscow on a "special diplomatic mission." The language of the announcement permitted the assumption that Hopkins might not return to his job as "special assistant to the President."

The White House shakeup has just begun. Most of the Roosevelt intimates will go, it is understood here. Judge Samuel I. Rosenman of New York, special counsel to late President Roosevelt, will abandon his White House desk by June 15. He plans to open law offices in New York.

Niles On Way Out

David K. Niles of Massachusetts, one of the political manipulators among Mr. Roosevelt's White House associates, also is understood to be on the way out.

Hopkins probably will begin to fade from the political scene when his diplomatic duties are discharged. His mission to Moscow appears to be to seek some mutual agreement with Marshal Josef V. Stalin on some of the points covered by the last Big Three conference at Yalta.

Hopkins accompanied Mr. Roosevelt on all such expeditions. He already has left for Moscow.

The White House also announced that Joseph E. Davies, one of the wealthiest Democrats, shortly would depart on a special temporary diplomatic mission to London. Davies long has been eager for the permanent ambassadorial post there. The Davies-Hopkins missions seemed in some ways to be make-shift substitutes for an immediate Big Three meeting.

Congress uniformly applauded the cabinet changes announced yesterday at Mr. Truman's news conference. There were cheers for the announcement that responsibilities of the secretary of agriculture and the war food administrator hereafter would be given one individual.

Resignation of Postmaster General Frank C. Walker, of Pennsylvania, was announced last month. He will be succeeded June 30 by a Missourian, Chairman Robert E. Hannegan of the Democratic National committee.

Hannegan's nomination has been confirmed by the Senate which must also confirm all three new nominations before they can become effective.

Also announced yesterday was the resignation of Judge Marvin Jones of Texas, as war food administrator. Jones will return to his post as a judge on the court of claims.

Banks Sign Up For "Share-The-Loan" Business Financing

WASHINGTON, May 24. (AP) — The Reconstruction Finance corporation reported today that 729 banks have signed up for its "share-the-loan" program of financing small business firms.

Meantime, Commerce Secretary Wallace called the RFC program "a step in the right direction." He said it will cover "part of the needs in the small business field."

RFC officials said the number of banks signing the "blanket participation agreement" ranges from 20 to 45 a day.

Under this blanket agreement, the RFC agrees to guarantee up to 75 per cent of each loan, leaving the bank with as little as 25 per cent of the risk.

Mother Love Aids In 60-Year-Old's Release

DALLAS, May 24. (UP)—Mother love and determination triumphed again today in gaining freedom for 60-year-old L. M. Dillon, who was charged with assaulting his wife with a prohibited weapon.

Dillon's mother, 79 - year - old, Mrs. J. D. Dillon, told in Justice Lewis Sterrett's court how she had spent her old age pension money to journey to Dallas from Abilene in an effort to help "boy." Following the mother's heart-rending plea, both Prosecutor Hiram Lively and Justice Sterrett agreed that Mrs. Dillon's "boy" should be given another chance and agreed to release him without bond.

Changes In Prison System Advocated

HUNTSVILLE, May 24 (UP) — Several changes in the Texas prison system have been recommended to the state prison board by Austin H. MacCormick, noted penal authority employed to survey the system, it was disclosed today.

MacCormick, executive director of the Osborne Assn., Inc., recommended construction of a new institution of the adult reformatory type within the prison system, and industrialization of the system to reduce the emphasis on agriculture.

Additionally, the penal system expert cited the need for the construction of many new buildings and changes in some industrial plants and dormitories in the state prison setup.

MacCormick stressed the need for a new adult reformatory type institution and suggested that it be located at Central Prison farm No. 2.

He suggested further that the institution be designed to provide vocational training in agriculture, mechanical trades and other pursuits for prisoners in their late teens and early twenties.

Bicycle Back In Texas After Atlantic Trip

HOUSTON, May 24. (AP) — A stolen bicycle that got as far as London has been hauled back across the Atlantic and now Houston police are trying to find its owner.

Detective A. O. Taylor said the bicycle was stolen here in 1944 by two seamen who took it aboard a tanker. They planned to sell it in London where bicycle prices are high.

But when the seamen tried to take the machine ashore in England they were caught. It has been returned and Taylor is holding it for its owner.

Sugar Savers Are Listed

MISS CLARA PRATT, County Home Demonstration Agent, is giving these sugar-saving reminders:

1. In summer, especially, serve serve fresh fruits liberally in place of heavy desserts that call for sugar. A fruit salad topped by a dressing mixed with fruit juice does double duty as a refreshing salad and dessert.

2. Save sirup from canned fruit to sweeten other fruit, sauces or beverages.

3. Be sure all sugar is completely dissolved, to get its full sweetness. A sugar sirup goes farther than plain sugar in sweetening iced tea or fruit punch. To prepare sugar sirup, heat equal parts sugar and water until sugar is completely dissolved. Keep left-over sirup tightly covered in the refrigerator. Corn sirup may also be used to sweeten summer drinks. Try some iced beverages without sugar.

Serve Cereals Without Sugar

4. Cook cereals with prunes, raisins, or dates, and serve without sugar.

5. Use fewer or no frostings on cakes. Don't frost the sides.

6. Serve sweet yeast breads, such as cinnamon rolls, and sweet quick breads occasionally, instead of more sugar—consuming cakes and pies.

7. Make desserts that use honey, molasses, sorghums, corn, or other sirups when these are available.

8. Stretch sugar in baked goods with honey, molasses, corn or other sirups. Honey may replace sugar cup for cup, but use half the quantity of other liquid called for in original recipe—and keep baking temperature moderate. Corn, cane or maple sirups can replace sugar measure for measure. Reduce liquid by one-third.

Favorite Recipes

(At the invitation of the food editor, women of Lubbock and the South Plains are presenting recipes in this column. You are invited to submit family favorites, especially those that are short on ration points or made of materials available in the grocery stores at present.)

MRS. ALEX NEWMAN, 1507 Twenty-fifth, who sent the recipe for delicious 3-Minute Oats cookies last week, has a recipe for a simple quick lemon jelly cake. Incidentally, if you are wondering what that recipe in Favorite Recipes was last week, it was for cookies and the name was accidentally omitted.

To make the Lemon Jelly Cake, use one cup sugar, one rounded tablespoon butter, one egg, one cup milk, two cups flour, three teaspoons baking powder, one-fourth teaspoon salt, one teaspoon vanilla. Mix quickly in order named. Bake in two layers at 375 degrees, Farhenheit. Spread with lemon jelly made of one cup sugar, two tablespoons butter, two whole eggs, juice of two lemons. Beat together in double boiler. Cook to a jelly. Let cool while cake bakes. Spread.

Here's Mrs. Newman's recipe for Sweetrolls: Use half your regular roll dough. Cream brown sugar and butter or margarine to a paste. Roll dough thin. Spread with creamed sugar. Roll up and slice off about inch thick rolls and place in skillet or heavy pan to rise.

Let rise double size and bake at slightly lower temperature. Pecan halves can be placed underneath each roll. Cinnamon also may be used for variety.

Decoration Day Is Good Time For An Outdoor Supper

To a great many people, Decoration Day has always meant an outing of some kind. This year, a long trip in the family car to some favorite picnicking spot is, of course, out of the question. But who's to stop us from serving supper on the porch, or taking it to a near-by park? Lucky the family with a fireplace of their own in the back yard; the chances are, they'll be having company!

If the hot dishes are to be cooked in your own yard, you can count on any equipment you have, keeping in mind the space limits of the outdoor stove or fireplace. If the meal is to "travel," the hot dish may be prepared at home and taken in a covered kettle, or cooked at the park if there are the necessary facilities. In either case, a one-dish meal that's cooked on the top of the stove is the best choice. For a porch or terrace meal, the food will be cooked and served up in the kitchen. Individual tray service is nice, if you have the right equipment, but there should be a table handy for the "extras."

These menu ideas may be suggestive when it comes to deciding what the crowd will eat.

For A Backyard Fireplace Meal

Loaf, Cocoa Cake Are Good For Decoration Day Picnic

DECORATION Day offers the first opportunity of the year to eat a meal outdoors. Even if it should rain, it will probably be warm enough to have a picnic party on the porch. Difficult as it is to get much food variety now, here's a menu which you should be able to work out, despite shortages.

HOLIDAY MENU
Liver Loaf
Broiled Tomatoes Potato Chips
Celery and Olives
Biscuits
Quick Cocoa Cake Iced Drinks

Liver Loaf

1 pound liver (beef, pork or lamb)
2 small onions
½ pound sausage meat
1 cup finely crushed corn flakes
1 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce
1 tablespoon lemon juice
1 teaspoon salt
⅛ teaspoon celery salt
⅛ teaspoon pepper
2 eggs, well beaten
1 slice bacon

Cover liver with 1 cup boiling water and simmer gently 5 minutes. Drain, reserving broth. Put liver and peeled onions through food chopper, using medium-fine cutter. Add sausage meat, corn flakes, seasonings and eggs. Add enough broth to moistan slightly. Mix well with a light touch. (Pack mixture into greased 8x4x3 inch pan. Place bacon on top. Bake in moderate oven (350 degrees) 15 minutes, or until done. Serve hot or cold. Makes 8 servings.

Sprinkle a little dried basil, together with salt and pepper, over tomato halves before you broil them.

Quick Cocoa Cake

1¾ cups sifted cake flour
2 teaspoons double-acting baking powder
¾ teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon soda
⅓ cup cocoa
1 cup granulated sugar
½ cup vegetable shortening
½ cup brown sugar, firmly packed
1 cup sour milk or buttermilk
2 eggs, unbeaten
1 teaspoon vanilla

(NOTE: To sour fresh milk, add 1 tablespoon vinegar or lemon juice to 1 cup milk; let stand in warm place for a few minutes).

Sift flour once; measure into sifter with baking powder, salt, soda, cocoa and granulated sugar. Have shortening at room temperature; mix or stir just to soften. Sift in dry ingredients. Add brown sugar—force through a sieve to remove lumps, if necessary. Add 1-2 of milk, the eggs and vanilla. Mix until all flour is dampened; then beat 1 minute. Add remaining milk, blend and beat 1 minute longer. (Note: Mix cake by hand or at low speed of electric mixer. Count only actual beating time. Or count beating strokes, allowing 100 full strokes per minute. Scrape bowl and beater or spoon often while mixing).

Turn into a 10x10x2 pan. Pan should be greased, lined on bottom with waxed paper, and greased again. Bake in moderate oven (350 degrees) about 45 minutes, or until done. Spread Meringue Topping over top of cake.

Meringue Topping

2 egg whites
Dash of salt
½ cup sugar
½ teaspoon almond extract
¼ cup chopped nut meats

Beat egg whites and salt until foamy. Add sugar, 2 tablespoons at a time, beating after each addition until sugar is blended. After all sugar is added, continue beating until mixture will stand in peaks. Add flavoring.

Spread lightly over hot cake in pan and sprinkle with nuts. Bake in moderate oven (350 degrees) 15 minutes, or until lightly browned. Makes enough topping for 10x10x2 inch cake.

EAT BREAKFAST

A truly "good breakfast" gives you 1/4 to 1/3 your daily nutrition needs at the morning meal. Nutritionists recommend a minimum daily breakfast of fruit, cereal, milk, bread and butter. If you haven't had at least this much food, you haven't had a breakfast at all! According to how active, how hard-working you are, you can add such foods as eggs, pancakes, waffles, bacon to your "basic pattern" of fruit, cereal, milk, bread and butter, or increase the amounts you eat of foods like bread and cereal.

Voice Of "Little People" Rises In European Political Affairs

(EDITOR'S NOTE: The following story was written by John A. Parris, Jr., of the Associated Press' London bureau. Parris covered the exiled governments in London. From what he has heard at the United Nations conference, in London, and on the continent, particularly from underground leaders, he tells this story of Europe.)

By JOHN A. PARRIS, Jr.
Associated Press Staff Writer

SAN FRANCISCO, May 24 — After two wars, the ordinary people of Europe — descendants of serfs and peasants—are moving in on jobs once reserved for kings and nobles.

They are making their voice heard all over the continent. They are learning their strength and making it felt in political affairs.

In broad regions of Europe, diplomats report that the swing is definitely to the left, the pattern cut by Russia.

Engraved in millions of minds are bitter years under fascist dictatorship, corrupt governments, and, finally, German and Italian oppression. Added to this was fighting in the underground against the Germans during four years of Nazi occupation. Because he helped to liberate himself, the little fellow feels he has the right to say what sort of government his country shall have.

Hears Of Democracy

What he saw happen under Nazi rule made him determined that if he survived he would fight for just the opposite sort of government. He had heard of the great fruits of democracy.

Five years of suffering brought him closer to his next door neighbor. It gave him something in common with the little man in Belgium, France, Holland, Poland, Czechoslovakia, Greece, Yugoslavia, Luxembourg, Norway, Denmark, Albania.

The little man from Poland was thrown with a little man from Belgium into a German slave gang in France. They didn't speak the same language, but they had the same feelings, and they understood each other.

Works With Neighbor

In the underground war against the Germans, they were all fighting for the same thing. Underground leaders from Czechoslovakia, running the hazardous trail to London, were helped along the way by underground agents in France, Belgium, Holland. They exchanged views.

The little man began making himself heard in the wake of liberation. He voiced his objection to the return of old regimes from exile. Europe had changed, he argued, and those who stayed behind and fought and suffered should say who ran the country.

La Fuer..a, the old fort, is the oldest structure in Havana, it was built in 1583 under direction of DeSoto.

Match Moochers Given The Works By Rep. Patman

WASHINGTON, May 24 (AP) — Ask Rep. Wright Patman of Texas if he can spare a light, and brother, you get the works.

The congressman, from Texarkana, accomodates match moochers with an outsize packet that produces:

1. Thirty lights.
2. A map of Texas.
3. An outline of Patman's first congressional district—"a world in itself deep in the heart of Texas."
4. A couple of short stories about Texas. Sample:

"A chicago concern telegraphed its salesman in El Paso, Tex., to go to Texarkana, Tex., on a business deal. The salesman in El Paso wired the house: 'Send someone from Chicago to Texarkana, it is nearer.' "

Exery time you pull anchor on a match you get a light and a fact. For example:

Match three: "State song, Texas, Our Texas"; match nine, "State bird, mocking bird"; Match 24: "Population, 1940—6,418,321."

The matches were made in New York.

Membership Clause Is Included In Contract

DALLAS, May 24 (AP) — The eighth Regional War Labor board today ordered that the standard voluntary maintenance of membership clause be incorporated in the contract between Lufkin Paper Mills, Inc., Lufkin, Tex., and the International Association of Machinists, Lodge 808 (AFL).

Announcement was made by Clifford W. Potter, disputes director, who said industry members of the board dissented.

The parties were directed to include in their contract the following provision:

"The union agrees that its officers and members will not intimidate or coerce any employes into joining the union, nor will they carry on union activities on company time."

The union, bargaining agent for 50 employes, was not involved in a work stoppage at the Lufkin Mills April 12.

Probe Of Uprising In Prison Camp Is Asked

TULSA, Okla., May 24 (U.P.)—U. S. Sen. E. H. Moore, R., Okla., has asked a War department investigation of rumors of a German prisoner uprising at the Pryor, Okla., camp last March, according to word received here from the Senator's office in Washington.

The Senator pointed out in a letter to the army provost marshal general that the "charges made are of so shocking and serious a character and have caused such widespread resentment among the people" that an official inquiry should be made.

Former officers at the camp, now closed, have given the "lie" to rumors that they had forbidden soldiers to break up a demonstration by the Nazis. One officer said guards swinging clubs had put an end to the uprising "in 15 minutes."

The camp was abandoned by the War department after formal protests from state officials against its location near the Chouteau, Okla., power plant.

The Eighth Service command recently issued a brief statement admitting there had been a disturbance at the camp but giving no details.

The former camp officers explained the brief uprising started when a group of transferred inmates were not allowed to take with them articles of furniture and other items they had made in the Pryor camp.

Hitler's Eva Braun With Him To Last, Personal Secretary Says

By JACK FLEISCHER
United Press Staff Writer

BERCHTESGADEN, May 24.—Adolf Hitler's mistress, Eva Braun, spent his last hours with him in his underground shelter in the Berlin Reichschancellory, his personal secretary disclosed today.

The secretary, a Fraulein Schroder, read a letter Eva sent her sister on April 23 or so, which said:

"Daily and hourly fate can be speeded up for us. Naturally we don't contemplate to let ourselves be taken prisoner. Despite everything we are in good spirits."

Disposition Of Jewelry

Fraulen Schroder said the letter also contained instructions for disposing of Eva's jewelry and personal effects. She thought Eva must have sent the jewelry with the letter although she didn't see it.

The secretary said that Eva lived with Hitler in Berlin the last month or so and took all her meals with the fuehrer.

Fraulein Schroder said that she and all other members of Hitler's staff considered Eva as Hitler's wife although they were not married. She said Eva had no children. She denied that Hitler had anything to do with such other women as Leni Riefenstahl, German movie actress, or Renate Muller, Viennese film star.

Concerned Over Successor

She said that Hitler was concerned about who would succeed him but that neither Gestapo Chief Heinrich Himmler nor Reichsmarshal Hermann Goering suited him. She claimed that she had an argument with Hitler when he said "there was no successor to him."

"When I told him Himmler's name often was on people's lips he got mad," said Fraulein Schroder. "He said Himmler was rejected by the party. He also said he was a completely unaesthetic person. To my retort that in these times that wasn't so important and that he could obtain industrious people in the field of art, Hitler replied that it wasn't so easy to obtain industrious people, otherwise he would have had them."

Himmler Not His Equal

"It wounded Hitler that others con dered Himmler his equal," she said. "On that day he left me saying 'go ahead and rack your brains about who will be my successor.' "

Fraulein Schroder said that Hitler refused to write any personal letters, claiming that was one of his strong points. He felt that if his letters fell into the wrong hands they would be exploited. One of the few letters he wrote was to his sister, but Fraulein Schroder said that Hitler had little feeling for his family.

The secretary said that in the last days of Berlin Eva Braun was not very well.

Delicate And Tired

"She was delicate," said Fraulein Schroder. "She was not exactly sick but she was very delicate and often tired. The Berlin climate did not agree with her."

Fraulein Schroder had dinner with Hitler just after the attempt on his life last July 20. She said he told her:

'Believe me, this is the turning point for Germany. Now things will go all right again. I am glad that the pig dogs exposed themselves."

Post Sergeant Has Air Medal, Clusters And Unit Citation

AN EIGHTH AIR FORCE BOMBER STATION, England.—Thirty-four bombing attacks on military and industrial targets in Germany and on Nazi installations in the path of advancing Allied armies in Western Europe, were completed by T/Sgt. James C. McAnally, 25, Post, Tex., aerial engineer and top turret gunner on the Eighth Air force B-17 Flying Fortress, "Hare's Breadth."

McANALLY

A member of the 385th Bombardment Group commanded by Colonel George Y. Jumper, Natoma, Calif., he holds the Air Medal with four Oak Leaf clusters to that medal for "meritorious achievement . . . courage, coolness and skill . . ." while participating in his missions. His group is a part of the Thrd Air Division, the division which was cited by the President for its now-historic England-Africa shuttle bombing of the Messerschmidtt aircraft plants at Regensburg in August, 1943.

After his arrival in this toughest theater of aerial warfare, he has flown to such important targets as the oil refineries at Merseberg; docks and shore installations at Bremen and Hamburg; transportation facilities at Chemnitz, Frankfort and Cologne; and industrial targets at Berlin, Munich and Hanover. In addition, he flew on several missions, coordinated with ground attacks, to bomb Nazi troop concentrations, supply dumps, rail heads, bridges, or communication centers close behind the enemy lines. Several of his more recent missions were flown during March, record month for the Eighth Air force, when all records on bombs dropped, or sorties flown over Germany, were shattered.

"Cologne gave us one of our roughest missions," Sgt. McAnally said. "Flak hit one engine before we reached the target, and damaged another that had to be feathered. We stayed on the bomb run until we dropped our bombs, and then headed for the nearest emergency field. We had to sweat it out for a while, but the pilot made down okay."

Son of Mr. and Mrs. J. M. McAnally, Post, he is a graduate of Post High school. Prior to entering the AAF in May, 1943, he worked on his father's farm. He attended airplane mechanics school at Amarillo, Tex., and received his aerial gunnery wings at Kingman, Ariz., in April, 1944.

Dallas Jail 'Bull Pen' Is Vacant For Hour

DALLAS, May 24. (U.P.)—Attendants at the Dallas city jail reported another record broken today and asserted most emphatically that it was not a "Texas tall story."

For more than one hour, attendants said, the city's so-called "bull pen," a special lockup reserved for the drunk and disorderly, was void of all customers.

Jail keepers were reluctant to offer any sort of explanation for the phenomenon, but they stood pat on their claim that such a state of affairs has been unheard of here for ten years.

TRUMAN TO BE GUEST

OLYMPIA, Wash., May 24. (AP) President Truman will be his guest here for "one or two days" after the President's address to the United Nations conference at San Francisco next month, Gov. Mon C. Wallgren said today.

Sgt. Travis Mann Of Slaton Is Back Home After 30 Months With Chestful Of Medals

dc 3-24 SGT TRAVIS MANN

A number of things happened to Sgt. Travis Mann of Slaton that moonlight night in December of 1943. He made a wild dash across an open field with enemy machineguns banging away at him. He stumbled on some brush and fell headfirst into a ditch. He set up a mortar and knocked out a troublesome Nazi machinegun nest at a roadblock.

And, finally, he won the coveted Bronze Star medal for heroic achievement in action.

"Shucks, I was just doing my duty," shrugged Sgt. Mann as he recounted his death-defying experience at an East Coast port of debarkation, where he recently arrived for a rotation furlough with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Mann of Slaton.

Mortar Gunner 25 Months

The 3rd Infantry division veteran was a mortar gunner for 25 months in Tunisia, Sicily, Italy, France and Germany.

"I won the Bronze Star Medal near Cassino," he declared. "This roadblock was impeding our advance and somebody had to knock it out. So I elected myself when the company commander asked for volunteers. Two other men went with me.

"The moon made it almost as bright as day when we started across the field. We were wide-open targets for their machineguns, but that was the chance we had to take. Minutes were precious. The longer that roadblock stayed in action, the greater our casualties. When the machinegun fire got too hot, we hit the ground and crawled, but mostly we ran.

Burp Gun Silenced

"Once a Nazi in a patch of woods to our left opened up on us with a 'burp' gun, a machine pistol resembling a 'tommy gun.' I stumbled and fell head first into a ditch. The fall jolted me badly. I thought for a while that my neck was broken. I shook my head and cleared it. There was a loud yell from the woods where the Jerry burp gunner was firing. I guess one of our men must have nailed him, for his weapon was silent after that."

About 50 yards farther on, Sgt. Mann and his two comrades set up their mortar and started teeing off on the machineguns in the roadblock.

Knocked Nazis Out Quickly

"We sighted the mortars by the moonlight," he said. "I could barely see the sighting apparatus, but they must have been just right, because we knocked out both machineguns in the roadblock after 10 minutes of firing. Then the company moved through the area with no more trouble. That roadblock had us pinned down for almost three hours before we began lobbing in those mortar shells."

Sgt. Mann was wounded 10 days later while his company was assaulting a hill on the fringe of the Cassino bastion. A fragment from an exploding mortar shell pierced his right elbow. He later rejoined his outfit in Italy after two months in a field hospital in North Africa.

Winner of the Purple Heart and the Combat Infantryman Badge, in addition to the Bronze Star Medal, the Texas Doughboy has 30 months of Army service behind him. Inducted in November, 1942, he received his basic training at the Infantry Replacement Training Center, Camp Wolters, Texas.

Vets Said Missing Out On Many Aids

Many veterans eligible for government aid are missing out on full payment and schooling under Public Law 16, according to M. W. Waldron, U. S. Employment Service office manager here.

This law covers any veteran who is not able to carry on his pre-war work or profession due to a service disability. This will make him eligible to take training under the law for any new profession, of his own choosing.

Many veterans upon discharge ignore the possibilities of fullest benefits offered by the government, Waldron said.

The purpose of this vocational rehabilitation is to restore the employability which has been lost by virtue of a handicap due to a disability incurred in, or aggravated by service.

Veterans are urged by Waldron to call at the local USES office each second Thursday to check over their elegibility problems with Eldon Fuller, training officer with the Veterans Administration Fuller was in the local office yesterday and will return in two weeks.

Brief Bits Of Local News

County court judgments filed Thursday: D. G. Angevine, fined $150 and court costs for liquor law violation; David Byrd, $50 and costs for aggravated assault.

Continuing to recruit young women, 17½ and older, as clerical workers in civilian capacities with the Navy Department in Washington, Miss Dorothy Hyde will interview young women at her offices in the U. S. Employment Service office in Ft. Worth, according to a joint announcement by the Civil Service commission-Navy Department-mental service. Commander Dan Henry, officer in charge of Navy Recruiting in the Dallas and North Texas area, made the announcement concerning Miss Hyde's presence in Ft. Worth during June. Civil service examinations must be passed before applicants qualify for free transportation and guaranteed housing.

Hervey Allen, who spent five years writing "Anthony Adverse," was twice invalided in World War I when he was a first lieutenant in the Infantry.

Krauts Made Life "Hell" For U. S. Prisoners, Says Returned Veteran

Temple, May 24. (AP) — Pvt. Delbert L. Meek of Waxahachie, Tex., one of the prisoners marched across Germany by the Nazis in February and March, has arrived at McCloskey General hospital here "feeling fine."

The Texan was liberated in April by the British Seventh army after "six months of hell" in the hands of the Germans.

"I had a hard time convincing my mother over the telephone that I was not in the same condition as the German war prisoners whose pictures appeared in the newspapers and magazines recently," Meek says.

Actrocity Reports True

"The stories and pictures of German atrocities have not been exaggerated and we who were held as prisoners of war saw more than the newspaper men," he states.

The former Baylor university student served as a rifleman with the 29th division and was on combat patrol when he was captured by the Germans. He is a graduate of the Pampa, Tex., high school, and a son of Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Meek of Waxahachie.

Meek's patrol was sent in to take a small town and was not expecting to find a company of German soldiers. Greatly outnumbered, the little group of Americans fought the Jerrys for six or seven hours before they were killed or taken prisoner.

The last man to be captured, Meek was pinned down by machine gun fire when two Jerry's came up behind him and pointed a rifle at his head.

Given Watery Soup

He says American soldiers were forced to clear out the dead and clean up the town before they were moved to a castle 60 miles back. After three or four weeks at the castle, the Americans were moved to Stalag 11B where Meek says they "darn near starved to death."

Meek says they were given a seventh of a loaf of bread and a small bowl of watery soup every 24 hours. Wooden bunks with a narrow strip of material made of pressed wood for a cover composed their sleeping quarters in the prison compound.

Later moved to Stalag 2B, north of Berlin, he was soon placed on a work detail and placed on a large farm.

"The German population is Nazi through and through and the people did not want to fall in the hands of the Russians. From last December until the end of the war in Europe, the roads were lined with covered wagons the Germans accumulated and were moving toward the western front to meet the British and American armies.

After two months on the farm, the Germans put the war prisoners on the march. They marched from February 18 to about April 1, a distance of over 500 miles. They slept in large barns at night, or in the open.

The long march ended at Stalag 11 B again at Hannover, Germany. There conditions were a lot worse, Meek says. Men were sleeping any place they could find to lie down. One water tap served several thousand people and the water was turned on twice a day.

Meek has been in the Army since December, 1942. He received his basic training at Camp Maxey and went overseas in August, 1944. He saw his first action at Aachen, Germany.

AUSTIN, May 24. (U.P.) — Gov. Coke R. Stevenson today had telegraphed Gov. Herbert B. Maw, Utah, chairman of the executive committee of the governors' conference, suggesting that the committee appeal to President Truman for return of employment service control to the states on July 1, 1945.

Littlefield Sergeant Photographs Results Of Bombing Raids

AN EIGHTH AIR FORCE BOMBER STATION, England — Thirty bombing attacks on military and industrial targets in Germany and enemy installations in the path of the advancing Allied armies have been accomplished by S-Sgt. Ernest D. Brooks, Littlefield, Tex.

BROOKS

Sgt. Brooks, 21, holder of the Air Medal with four Oak Lea clusters for "meritorious achievement — courage, coolness, and skill—is an Eighth Air Force B-17 Flying Fortress aerial photographer with the 385th Bombardment Group.

After arriving overseas in this toughest theatre of aerial warfare in August, 1944, the Littlefield airman photographed the results of his group's bombings of such vital objectives as the industrial targets in Berlin and Munich, aircraft factories in Zwickau, docks and shipyards in Bremen, tank factories in Kessel, tire plants in Hanover, and oil refineries in Brux, Czechoslovakia. He has also flown on coordinated air-ground attacks on Nazi troop concentrations, bridges, railheads, and communication centers. The month of March, record month for the Eighth Air Force when all records for bombs dropped or sorties flown over Germany were shattered, included several of the sergeant's photographic flights.

"I suppose Fortresses have done backward somersaults, but not many have come back to tell of it," said Sgt. Brooks. "We made the loop and did get out of it. The trouble started while returning from a well bombed German target. The weather got bad, and we were trying to climb above it in formation. Suddenly the slipstream caught us, whipped us up and over on our backs, and then the Fort started down in a screaming dive of more than 380 miles per hour. I guess it was a combination of good flying and superhuman strength that brought us out of the dive and back to England. The only damage was a few bruises to the crew from bouncing around in the plane, and some torn rivets in the tail assembly.

Son of Mr. and Mrs. E. D. Brooks, Route 2, Littlefield, he is a graduate of Austin, Texas, High school and was attending the University of Texas before his entry into the Army Air Forces in December, 1942. He won his wings in March, 1944, at Harlingen, Tex.

Gen. Walton Walker Returns From Abroad To Head Service Command

DALLAS, May 24 (AP)—Lt. Gen. Walton H. Walker, who commanded the mysterious "Ghost" corps which spearheaded the Third Army's spectacular drive across France and Germany, has been named commanding general of the Eighth Service command with headquarters in Dallas.

He will arrive here from overseas duty about the middle of June to succeed Maj. Gen. Richard Donovan, who will leave June 1 for Washington to become deputy chief of staff for the service commands on the staff of General Brehon B. Somervell.

Gen. Walker is a native of Belton, Tex. He graduated from West Point in 1912.

Given DFC In August

For extraordinary heroism near Melun, where he directed the establishment of a bridgehead across the Seine in the face of heavy fire, Gen. Walker received the Distinguished Service Cross last August.

Tactics of the Corps were praised in the House of Commons by Prime Minister Churchill.

Walker assumed command of the 3rd Armored division at Camp Polk, La., in January, 1942, about eight months before the division left the service command.

Already returned from Germany, Gen. Walker has been in Atlanta and Washington. Between Gen. Donovan's departure and Gen. Walker's arrival, the service command will be headed by Brig. Gen. C. B. Rucker, chief of staff.

Born At Belton In 1889

Gen. Walker was born at Belton Dec. 3, 1889, son of Mr. and Mrs. Sam S. Walker. He attended Wedemeyer's academy at Belton and for one year studied at Virginia military institute, which he left to accept an appointment to West Point.

Upon graduation from the military academy in 1912, he was commissioned a second lieutenant. He later returned to Texas and participated in the Vera Cruz expedition in 1914 under General Funston.

In 1917 as a captain at Leon Springs, Tex., he organized the 2nd battalion of the 57th Infantry. He went overseas in 1918 as a major in command of the battalion. He served at St. Mihiel and the Meuse-Argonne, was cited for gallantry in action, and in 1919 was promoted to the temporary rank of lieutenant colonel.

Infantry School Instructor

After the war he was an instructor at the infantry school, Fort Benning and duties as student and instructor occupied his time until 1930, when he was assigned to the 15th Infantry in China. By 1935 he had attained the permanent grade of lieutenant colonel and in 1936 was appointed executive officer of the 5th Infantry brigade at Vancouver Barracks, Wash., serving in this capacity under the present chief of staff, General Marshall.

After duty with the war plans division of the War department general staff he commanded the 36th Armored Infantry of the 3rd Armored division at Camp Polk. There he became a brigadier general in July, 1941, and was placed in command of the division's 3rd Armored brigade.

Commands Division

He succeeded General Alvan C. Gillem, jr., in command of the division in Jan. 17, 1942, and the following February was advanced to major general.

Gen. Walker is a graduate of the infantry school, field artillery school, command and general staff school, and the Army War college. He has served as an instructor at the United States Military academy, the infantry school, and the coast artillery school.

He married Caroline V. Emerson of Leesville, La., in 1924.

Osmena Says U.S. Will Get Bases

MANILA, May 24. (AP)—Military bases will be granted the United States with "full support of the Filipino people" when the Philippines become independent sometime before July 4, 1946, President Sergio Osmena said today.

At his first press conference since his return to the islands Osmena said he thought Aug. 13 of this year would be "too soon" for independence.

"I am ready to go to the people" on the question of military bases, the president said, "but I don't think that will be necessary. The Filipino people recognize the necessity of American protection and welcome you people here."

BACKACHE, LEG PAINS MAY BE DANGER SIGN

Of Tired Kidneys

If backache and leg pains are making you miserable, don't just complain and do nothing about them. Nature may be warning you that your kidneys need attention.

The kidneys are Nature's chief way of taking excess acids and poisonous waste out of the blood. They help most people pass about 3 pints a day.

If the 15 miles of kidney tubes and filters don't work well, poisonous waste matter stays in the blood. These poisons may start nagging backaches, rheumatic pains, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness. Frequent or scanty passages with smarting and burning sometimes shows there is something wrong with your kidneys or bladder.

Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, used successfully by millions for over 40 years. They give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from the blood. Get Doan's Pills.

telephone factories must still work for war

THERE'S still a vast war to win in the Pacific, and it will be a long time before we can serve the last person on the waiting list for telephones.

Telephone factories must continue hard at work for war

Huge quantities of new telephone and electronic equipment are needed in the Pacific. For instance—in the first five days on Iwo Jima, the marines built a telephone system big enough for a city of 65,000. The bigger the armies in the Pacific war, and the longer they must fight, the more they need telephone equipment, radar, automatic gun directors—all the things that telephone factories are making. That's why, even though the war in Europe is over, the amount of such equipment required in the Pacific theater is greater than anything sent there so far.

Cuts in war demands for telephone equipment will help, but...:

...the war load on telephone factories will continue to be heavy. If all war demands ended tomorrow, it would be many months before everyone who wants a telephone could get it without delay.

Telephone factories must switch to making "civilian" equipment again—dial central office equipment, switchboards, cable, wire, telephones—all quite different in many ways from war equipment. And of course, the factories can make the switch only as fast as the war load permits.

It takes time to put new equipment to work

Putting equipment to work can take more time than making it. More than 1,000,000 connections go into dial central office equipment to serve only 10,000 telephones. And 225,000 people are waiting for telephone service right now in the Southwest.

Just to install that many telephones alone would take a long time, despite every effort to speed up the job. Before the first "all-war" year of 1942, our biggest increase in telephones was only 117,000. That was in 1941, when there was still plenty of equipment of all kinds.

These things are sure

Of course, the end of the German war brings us one step closer to the time when we can again serve everyone who wants a telephone without delay. But as long as the Pacific war lasts, the armed forces' needs come first. That's the way we know you want it.

We can promise you this. We'll continue to do our level best to provide telephones as fast as we can, to as many people as possible.
