Tom Blanton Now Being Groomed to Make it Hot in the 1928 Senate Race

By HUGH NUGENT FITZGERALD
(Record News Staff.)

THOMAS L. BLANTON of the seventeenth congressional district may be a candidate for the United States senate in 1928. He was nominated in the July, 1924, primary to serve a sixth term as representative of one of the largest districts in the state. There are nineteen counties in the seventeenth district. Blanton carried all of the nineteen counties by an overwhelming majority over Judge J. D. Smith of Burnet county.

Judge Smith had held office for eight years in Burnet, but Blanton carried the county by 1,797 votes for Blanton and only 821 for Smith. Blanton of Abilene has a national reputation. He has escaped expulsion on several occasions on account of his spectacular attacks upon waste and extravagance. He is not popular with his colleagues, but he is popular with the democratic voters of his district. These are the totals of the July primary: Blanton, 45,257; Smith, 15,755. This is the largest majority ever given Blanton in a primary election and he has been running for office and ever as a winner for more than twenty years.

OF course the stormy petrel of West Texas politics attended the congressional convention which was held at Abilene. He was declared the official nominee of the party and then the district executive committee which is composed of a representative from every county of the seventeenth district reported and adopted without a dissending vote resolutions endorsing the official record of their congressman and presenting him to the people of Texas as a suitable candidate for United States senator against Hon. Earle B. Mayfield, 1928.

Blanton is the boss of his district and it is certain that the executive committee voiced his views as well as his ambition to go higher. This report attacks Senator Mayfield as being too costly a luxury for the people, charging that $96,484.61 was paid out of the public treasury to defray expenses of deciding the contest over Mayfield's senate seat brought by George E. Peddy and for Mayfield's own expenses incurred in fighting the contest.

Senator Mayfiled votes to raise his own salary and the salary of all senators, for the Parker and Haugen bills [illegible] roundly censured. It was charged that the Parker bill deprived the people of all voice and representation in railroad disputes and that the Haugen bill would add unjustly a tax on southern cottou and promise no relief for southern farmers.

Furthermore the democrats of the district pledged Blanton to stand for pure and better laws for efficiency in public service and for retrenchment in public expenditures. Congressman Blanton was present when the resolutions were adopted. No doubt he knew the resolutions were coming. He is close to the local leaders in the seventeenth district. He knows what they want; they know what Blanton wants.

* * *

He did not remark when the big play was over "this is so sudden." His tongue was ready and he used it. "If I ever go to the United States senate I will actively support Senator Morris Shepperd of Texas and work with him on the floor of the senate every minute it is in session. He is one of the greatest servants that the American people have today and our relations in Washington have always been cordial."

In the year 1922 Blanton is said to have been stung by a senatorial bee, but he recovered. In 1924 there were rumors aplenty that he was grooming himself for a seat in the senate. In 1926 his active lieutenants, in convention assembled, shot their bolt and sent their message to the 850,000 democrats of Texas: "Blanton is on the road and will be a candidate for the senate two years hence."

This makes it interesting. Senator Mayfield will be a candidate for reelection. Congressman Tom Connally may be a candidate for the senate. Jesse Jones is said, to be willing. It is a cinch bet that the house of Ferguson will be a candidate for the senate and there are any number of democrats in Texas who insist that there will be a dark horse candidate entered at the proper time who is something of a political runner. Turn 'em loose.

TO HIT AT ELECTION LAWS

San Antonio Delegates Speculate On What Will Happen.

SAN ANTONIO, Sept. 5.—(AP)—Early arriving delegates to the state democratic convention, which will be held here Tuesday, were speculating Sunday night on how far proposed declarations for drastic revision of the state election law would get.

Virtual elimination of the Terrell election law is the aim of Robert L. Ball of San Antonio. But he himself was doubtful that his platform plank would be adopted. Strong opposition is expected to arise to this proposition, so strong that it was declared only the support of Dan Moody, party nominee for governor, could give it life.

RACE WILL BE A FEATURE OF DEMO SESSION

Delegate Flocking Into San Antonio for Big Convention

SAN ANTONIO, Sept. 5.—(AP)—Scores of delegates to the state democratic convention crowded into the Alamo city tonight and discussed in various groups the prospective officers of the convention, the possibility that th eattorney general's race will be thrown into the convention, and the repeal of the Terrell election laws.

Attorney General Dan Moody arrived without his wife, who is to arrive Monday, and put up at a downtown hotel, where he was greeted by many friends. His friends said that the gubernatorial nominee favors Cone Johnson of Tyler as temporary chairman of the convention and John Boyle of San Antonio, as permanent chairman, but the young attorney general declined to make public his candidates. It is understood he will make known his choice at the caucus Monday, when the temporary organization is to be announced.

Moody reiterated that he did not intend to dictate or dominate the convention.

Allred Asks Count.

James V. Allred of Wichita Falls, candidate for attorney general against Claude Pollard of Houston, was reported coming here to demand a recount of the votes and the executive committee is reported to not have enough returns which will permit them to certify the result before the convention.

Secretary Dick Flemming reported returns received from 108 out of 252 counties on hand Saturday, with enough votes missing to swing the race either way. Canvass of the returns by the executive committee will decide the race and Allred's friends claim they will demand that the committee wait for further returns before beginning the work of canvassing the votes. Pollard has only a small majority of about 6,000.

Discussing Laws.

The move to repeal the Terrell election law and return to the old system of nominations for state offices created much discussion among the delegates, many of whom say that their counties have pledged to support a change in the primary system.

Two proposals which are expected to be presented seek to repeal the primary law and return to the convention system for the nomination of state officers, leaving the county offices to be nominated by primaries and would sub a commission of primary and commission system which would provide for the election of delegates to the convention in primaries and the nomination of state and district officers by the convention.

CHIROS IN DALLAS

Southern States Medics Plan National Concention.

DALLAS, Sept. 5—(AP)—Formulation of a program and a consideration of plans for entertainment of the National Chiropodists association which meets in convention here August 1 to 4, 1927, was begun here Sunday by the conference of chiropodists from seven southern states. Dr. J. A. Hershel of Galveston was elected chairman of the conference.

RAIN IN WACO

WACO, Sept. 5.—(AP)—Rain which began falling as a sprinkle here this afternoon increased to a hard downpour for a while late today, totalling nearly an inch. Though rain had stopped, clouds still hung low shortly after sundown.

TWO NEW GUSHERS

Spindletop Sees Big Ones Come in Sunday.

BEAUMONT, Sept. 5.—(AP)—Spindletop witnessed two new gushers today when Yount-Lee's Gladys City No. 8 came in this morning, making between 4,500 and 5,000 barrels of 28 gravity oil and the Atlantic's McLean No. 3 arrived this afternoon, making an estimated production of 2,500 barrels of 28 gravity pipeline.

Both wells required bailing more than four hours. Pay was struck on the Yount-Lee property at 3,100 feet while the Atlantic set strainer at 3,200 feet.

OUIMET CUTS LEAD

NEWPORT, R. I., Sept. 5.—(AP)—Francis Ouimet of Boston, last year's winner, today cut the lead of Max Marston of Philadelphia to one stroke in the second 18 holes of play for the gold mashie offered by T. Suffern Tailer of Newport and New York in the tournament of his ocean links course here. Tomorrow the 36-hole play will conclude the 72 holes of medal play.

WOMAN DIES AT TABLE FROM A SIMPLE MISHAP

CHICAGO — An extraordinary story was told at the inquest over Mrs. Sarah Hanna Robertson, aged 59, at Oak park. It was stated that while having supper she fell backwards in her chair. Her legs caught under the table and her head and shoulders rested upon the floor. She had not the strength to extricate herself from this position, and spent the night in this plight. She was dead when found the next morning.

Oil Conservation Board Recommends Plans For A Petroleum Protectorate

WASHINGTON, Sept. 5.—(AP)—Recognizing a natural concern over the nation's future oil supply, the federal oil conservation board, after 19 months of investigation recommended to President Coolidge today a far reaching plan of protection, calling for co-operation between the oil producing states and the federal government, between the states themselves, and between the oil operators. The board asserted present oil production in the United States exceeds the estimated maximum requirements of national defense in time of war and urged state governments to promptly study the economic advantage of co-operation between landowners and oil operators, looking toward sane development of new fields, elimination of waste of gas and the gasoline content of petroleum and the wiping out of the huge loss incident to reduction of gas pressure in the oil sands.

While the federal government is committed to practical conservation of all irreplaceable raw materials, the board said, there should be active co-operation between oil producing states in the "study of proposed legislation to the end that uniform laws may be enacted, or even agreements or compacts entered into betwen the states, subject to ratification by congress."

Co-operation between state agencies having authority to regulate oil and gas production, and the federal bureau's experts on oil, the board held, would be "especially effective in the oil fields of the public land states where federal leases and reserves are scientifically supervised by federal engineers, who can obtain best results only with the full co-operation of the state officials.

The report, signed by Secretary Work, chairman; Secretary Dwight F. Davis, Wilbur and Hoover, who make up the board, dealt entirely with domestic oil conditions and was formulated at the direction of the president after he had been advised that "failure to bring in producing wells for a two-year period would slow down the wheels of industry and bring serious industrial depression."

Two other reports will be presented later, one dealing with the foreign oil situation as it relates to American interests, and the other regarding possible substitutes and the development of the oil shale industry.

Declaring that proven oil resources do not imply future production, the board voiced its principal concern over the fact that present reserves are estimated at about 4,500,000 barrels, theoretically, but six years' supply, adding that while the existing reserves do not mean a shortage of supplies, their life, as compared with proven iron and coal supplies which are gauged centuries in advance was "such as always to maintain concern."

2 KILLED IN MYSTERY CASE

Officers Slain As They Start Investigation Of Shooting

RAYMONDVILLE Texas, Sept. 5.—(AP)—As the result of a mysterious affair, Bill Shaw, 30, married, and the father of two children, a deputy sheriff and Slim Mays, 21, a deputy constable, are dead here and Sidney Bryant slightly wounded.

At an early hour Sunday morning a shot was heard by these and and three other officers, apparently in the Mexican section of the town where two Saturday night dances were in progress. The police started turned the corner they were met with a fussilade of shots from high powered rifles. Shaw fell with a bullet between the eyes, while Mays was shot in the heart. Bryant, who was unarmed, received a slight wound in the stomach.

Rangers and others were summoned and an investigation has been in progress all day.

Babe And Mate In Fistic Scrap

BALTIMORE, Md., Sept. 5.—(AP)—Fans who saw the Baltimore Orioles defeat the New York Yankees, 18 to 9, at Oriole park today, witnessed an event not on the program when Babe Ruth and Shortstop Koenig came to grips in the entrance to the Yankee dugout. Fans within hearing said the Babe had been rigging Koenig for "easing up" in the eighth inning. A tussle ensued when the two men came in to the bench. Ruth held Koenig's arms helpless at his side until other players separated them. Koenig was banished from the game.

TUNNEY A SONGSTER

Aspiring Champ Held In Doors By Heavy Rain.

STROUDSBURG, Pa., Sept. 5.—(AP)—Northeast winds brought a drenching rain today that washed out all chances of outside work for Gene Tunney. The heavyweight challenger and members of his camp, instead of taking punches on the jaw, excercized these members in vocal activities.

Tunney announced today that he does not expect to leave Stroudsburg for Philadelphia until the day before the bout at the sesquicentennial stadium, September 23. He met suggestions that the change from the altitude of 1,500 feet here, to approximately sea level, might be deleterious with the counter suggestion that it would be beneficial.

PIONEER IS DEAD

74-Year Resident of Corsicana Dies Sunday.

CORSICANA, Tex., Sept. 5.—(AP)—William M. Tatum, 76, a resident of this city for 74 years, died at his home here Sunday. He was one of the city's leading business men for the last 56 years, being president of Tatum and Cunningham, a retail hardware store, president of Tatum Hardware company, a wholesale company and a director of the First National bank of this city.

THREE HURT IN WRECK

Car Accident in Austin Injures Trio.

AUSTIN, Sept. 5.—(AP)—Three persons were painfully injured when the coupe in which they were riding overturned five miles south of Taylor on the Austin-Taylor road shortly before 5 o'clock Sunday morning.

Miss Thelma Best, university student and daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George W. Best, was the most seriously injured of the three. Miss Best was badly cut on one leg and received other cuts across the forehead, ear and throat.

Water Soaked Area In Middle-West In Search for Relief

CHICAGO, Sept. 5.—(AP)—A water logged middle-west scanned lowering skies tonight for sign of relief from storms that have flooded fields, disorganized many urban localities and jeopardized travel.

With the conditions obtaining from Ohio to the Dakotas, the general forecast for Monday was for cloudy weather with probable rains over most of the broad area. The torrential downpours and accompanying violent wind squalls, however, appeared to have reached their crest Friday night and there was hope that the swollen streams might be permitted to ebb.

There were additional reports of bridges, railroad tracks and communication links washed out and further news of heavy losses to agriculture. Fields of small grain awaiting threshing were inundated but it was apparent that corn would suffer most. Grain experts said before the recent storms, the crop through the central part of the corn belt already was two weeks behind and would need ideal weather to beat the frost.

War In Spain

MADRID, Sept. 5.—(AP) A state of war has been declared throughout the country. The students of the military academy at Valladolid are reported in open mutiny. All military officers absent on leave or on other missions, have been recalled to their posts by the minister of war.

G. O. P. SESSION OPENS TODAY

Leading Republicans to Meet Monday in Dallas Hotels

DALLAS, Sept. 5.—(AP)—Leading republicans began gathering here Sunday to hammer together planks for the platform which will support the candidacy of Col. Harvey H. Haines, nominated in the July 24 primary. The platform will be constructed at the state convention here Tuesday.

One of the major planks will be bond validation. The republicans are to ask that road bonds declared invalid by the United States supreme court be made good to improve the state's credit.

Women are to have a substantial part in the deliberations of the convention. Many women will be among the delegates. Women have a prominent part in the state republican organization.

Women republicans holds a number of positions in the state. Mrs. Sarah C. Mnezes is assistant United States district attorney here, and the post offices at San Angelo, Hillsboro, Brenham, Naples, San Augustine and Smithville are in charge of women.

The convention preliminaries will start tomorrow morning at 10 o'clock with a meeting of the executive committee in the Adolphus hotel.

Sheriff Out On Bond for Murder

BALLINGER, Tex., Sept. 4.—(AP)—Sheriff Earl McWilliams made bail of $2500 here Sunday in connection with the fatal shooting of Pleas Hill, 38, Concho farmer, Saturday night, three miles south of here.

The sheriff waived examining trial. Hill was shot dead as he tried to escape from McWilliams who was bringing him here to jail for Sheriff Bob Miller, Concho county, after Miller had arrested him on a charge of stealing 12 cowhides.

Hill endeavored to take McWilliams' gun away from him, saying at the same time, "I had rather die than go to jail." In the fight, McWilliams kept his gun, and when Hill threw rocks at him, endeavoring to escape, McWililams fired.

Former Wichitan Opens Lumber Yard

Announcement was made here Sunday of the opening of the Barfield-Alderson Lumber company at Amarillo under the active management of W. G. Alderson. The new business is located at 3101 Pierce street in the center of the building activity of the city of Amarillo, and is expected to eventually become one of the leading lumber institutions of the city.

Mr. Alderson was actively engaged in the lumber business in Wichita Falls with the Galbraith-Foxworth Lumber company for a number of years.

Creager of Brownsville, national committeemen; Eugene Nolte, Seguin, state chairman; Phil E. Barr, Paris, member state headquartess committee, Houston; Jones, Parr, state executive committee, and Will West, Brownsville. West is being mentioned as a possible temporary or permanent chairman of the state convention.

Attendance in excess of 1500 was predicted by Leonard Withington, secretary of the state executive committee.

BEST FAIR OF ALL IS READY AT HARDEMAN

Quanah To Be Scene Of Elaborate Exposition This Week

Special to The Record News.

QUANAH, Tex., Sept. 5.—Merchants and civic leaders of Quanah are preparing to welcome one of the largest crowds ever gathered there when the 1926 Hardeman County fair opens Wednesday. Final details of the elaborate plans of welcome are rapidly being accomplished. The fair this year is expected to surpass by far any other event of its kind in Hardeman county, as fine crop conditions have made an unusually good array of agricultural exhibits as well as to provide more money for pleasure purposes.

The fair opens Wednesday and continues through Saturday, with a complete new program for each day in addition to the regular exhibits. A good racing program and a first class carnival company will give regular entertainment and a number of bands have been arranged to furnish music every day.

Fiddlers to "Jubilee"

One of the most interesting features of the program is the Old Fiddlers' jubilee which will be given Saturday night. Champions of by-gone days will gather from all parts of the southwest to contend for prizes and to renew the old time fiddling of square dance days.

Big fireworks displays are scheduled for the first two nights of the fair. This exhibition will be handled by experts and will be a big attraction.

The farm exhibits and women's club departments are said to be much greater this year than ever before. Much more space has been devoted to these departments, and a number of completely new departments have been added. Prizes have ben incrased in almost every showing, and a wider diversification of Hardeman county crops will be exhibited.

Organized 20 Years.

The Hardeman County fair was organized 20 years ago, and in 1906 the first exhibition was given. Every year since that time there has been a Hardeman County fair, except for one year when a severe drouth paralized business and farming alike. There was a free fair held that year, but it was not listed as a regular exhibit. The affair has increased in popularity and development year by year until now it has become an event of interest to many counties surrounding Quanah.

This year crowds of Quanah business men made trips about the trade are boosting the fair, and have done much good in the way of spreading good will among the people.

Officiers of the fair association are, Ross Magee, president; Hayden Hunter, vice-president; Gordon Conley, secretary. The directors are, Ross Magee, E. F. Norton, Hayden Hunter, Frank Word, Glenn Ross, Scot Henderson, Ben Harper, W. T. Green, Jim Barclay, Price Broils, Sam Lance, I. B. Jenkins, O. M. Christie.

KASS-STALCUP WEDDING

Well-Known Young Couple Married In Sherman.

A surprise wedding to many friends in Wichita Falls was announced here Sunday by a telegram from Alfred Kass, treasurer of the Ancil Lynn Epworth league of the First Methodist church, who was married Sunday afternoon in Sherman to Miss Eunice Stalcup.

Both young people are active in the affairs of the league and are well-known in the city. Mr. Kass is employed at the Wichita Falls Electric company and Miss Stalcup at Perkins-Timberlake.

BIG JAM WATCHES JACK

5,000 Or More See Champ In Brisk Work-Out.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Sept. 5.—(AP)—A crowd of 5,000 to 6,000 spectators, the greatest throng that ever witnessed Jack Dempsey in a training camp workout, jammed every inch of space at the Greyhound racing track today to see the world's heavyweight champion ripe into four sparring partners for six savage rounds.

The attendance was largely women. Gertrude Ederle, first woman to swim the English channel, accupied a ringside seat.

Pastors' Meeting Postponed a Week

The regular meeting of the Wichita Falls Ministerial Alliance, scheduled for Monday morning at 11 o'clock, has been postponed one week because of the Labor day celebration, it has been announced.

The meeting will be held Monday, September 12.

KILLED BY TRAIN

NEODOSHA, Kan., Sept. 5.—(AP)—Louis C. Gardner, 24, of St. Louis, died here this morning of internal injuries received when his automobile was hit by a Missouri-Pacific freight train near here. Gardner was driving alone from Kiefer, Okla., to St. Louis.

50 Injured In Derailment Of Speeding Cars

Crack D. & R. G. W. Special Leaves Rails Near Salida Sunday; 25 More Badly Hurt.

SALIDA, Colo., Sept. 5.—(AP)—Eighteen persons were killed and 50 injured, half of them seriously, when a huge Denver and Rio Grande Western mogul engine, drawing the road's crack train, "The Scenic Special," struck a boulder on the tracks while rounding a curve 12 miles west of Leadville at 10:30 o'clock this morning. It toppled into the Arkansas river and drew seven cars into the waters after it.

The train, according to survivors, was running slowly around the curve with George M. Lillis, the railroad's traveling engineer, at the throttle when the accident occurred.

He had taken the throttle from Engineer Harold Harpening shortly before the accident. Both of them were killed.

The wreck occurred in a wild, lonely section of the Rocky mountains and first relief came from members of two construction gangs working near the scene. Dr. G. W. Larimer, surgeon of the Red Cross hospital at Salida, motoring to Leadville, reached the scene of the wreck just after the train plunged into the river, organized rescue work and provided first aid for the most seriously injured.

Most of the dead and injured were found in the second coach where officials at the scene reported four women were killed in one end. Their bodies had not been reached by rescuers late tonight. Other gangs of workmen were trying to cut their way into the third coach in an effort to liberate a woman trapped inside. Workmen could see the woman alive, but apparently seriously injured. Acteylene torches were called into use to cut the steels walls of the car.

Workmen who came from the second construction camp found the bodies of three persons, two youths and a girl of about four years, which had been swept downstream.

Further on they encountered a man running from the wreck with a small body in his arms. The man collapsed as he reached them, and was unable to tell his name, although uninjured. Later it was learned the child was the son of a couple on the train.

Tears Up Track.

When the engine struck the rock, it tore up 150 feet of track and dived across the river, landing 30 feet from the far side of the stream. The baggage care, two coaches and a sleeper followed the engine. The second coach was crushed despite its steel construction, while the third formed a bridge over the stream.

Many injured passengers, strewn along the banks of the river were crying for aid when relief trains from here reached the scene of the wreck at 12:45 o'clock. Survivors were huddled about fires after their plunge into the icy waters of the river. First aid was administered to the sufferers and the train brought them here at 3 o'clock.

Survivors who were able to proceed were placed aboard another train and started for Denver where they arrive at 5 o'clock tomorrow morning.

The Death List

DENVER, Colo., Sept. 5.—(AP)—The official list of identified dead in the wreck of the Denver and Rio Grande Western's "Scenic Special" as given out by the company headquarters here tonight follows:

G. M. Lillis, road engine foreman, Salida, Colo.; George Gearhart of Salida; Harold Harpening, engineer, Salida; C. E. Dobler, Kearney, Neb.; D. Remond, Denver; Mrs. Rosalie Matjoyrick of Leadville, Colo.; C. Lockman, Clarksburg, W. Va.; Mrs. John Holt, Elmont, Kan.; Mrs. Martin Lane, Leadville, Colo.; Tillman Daniels, Jonesboro, Ark.; Albert Everett, Leadville; Woodworth, address unknown; Mrs. H. C. Rathbun, Buena Vista, Colo; Mrs. Dennis Isabell and son, 15, daughter, 7, Minturn, Colo., and two unidentified boys.

CITY ALL SET FOR LABOR DAY

Possible Rain Only Factor Undecided Sunday Evening

The rain gods willing, Wichita Falls will put on its best bib and tucker today to do the honors for labor.

The Labor day program was completed Saturday and everything was in readiness Sunday night for the huge parade and subsequent celebration at the fair grounds that will comprise the principal features. Threatening skies Sunday night gave evidence of storm possibilities that might dampen things considerably; but at that, it was remarked, the storm might fizzle out before daylight as it has done on numerous other occasions of late.

Banks will be closed today and other business and some of the public offices at the court house and city hall will also remain closed. For the most part, however, busines will proceed as usual.

Childers Still In Critical Condition In Hospital Here

The condition of E. M. Childers of Burkburnett who was stabbed several times in the abdomen and right arm in an altercation on the district attorney's department, a main street of Burkburnett Saturday afternoon is reported little improved, and his wounds may prove fatal, it was said last night.

W. E. McBride, who is alleged to have stabbed Childers was placed under arrest and a charge of assault with intent ot murder was filed against him.

Constable W. P. Blair made the arrest at the scene of the alleged fight and he turned over to the long bladed pocket knife which is said to have figured in the fray. Details of the quarrel between the two men have not been learned, but each operated a popcorn stand within a few feet of each other.

TIME WILL TELL

AUSTIN, Texas, eSpt. 5.—(AP)—Time will show that the platform of Governor Miriam A. Ferguson advocating the three-cent gasoline tax for the mainteanance of schools and highways, must come, former Governor James E. Ferguson, said here today.

The oil companies put up a great fight in the recent campaign and are feeling good over their victory, but they have only put off for a time a taxation that is bound to come," the former governor said.

OFFICERS FIRED ON

Mexican Rum Runners Shoot At Americans

DEL RIO, Texas, Sept. 5.—(AP)—Three American officers were fired on by Mexican rum runners who were attempting to haul liquor across the Rio Grande river in a tub about 20 miles from here according to reports here today. The officers were: W. L. Harlow, immigration inspector, Charles M. Bee and Constable Slim Stewart.

The officers saw the Mexicans on the water and on going to the water's edge to meet them were fired upon from the opposite bank. No American was hurt.

THE PETTER

"Love Bound"
"Her Man"

Illustrated and Copyrighted by Johnson Features, Inc., 1819 Broadway, New York City

READ THIS FIRST:

Merry Locke, pretty and gay as her nickname, is a born flirt. She has no ambition beyond having a good time and plenty of beaux.

At 20 she fails in her course at business college, to the great disappointment of Moms, her ambitious mother. When her father dies she takes a job in Lillie Dale's beauty shop.

At this time she is having the first real love affair of her life. The man in the case is Tony Gaines, a serious young lawyer who wants to marry her. Then engagement is broken when Merry goes out with other men, and Tony finds it out. Merry sends back his ring, and soon afterward she hears that he has gone to Montana to open a law office there.

Helen, the oldest of the Locke sisters, marries Bill Hepworth and has a baby. Cassie, the oldest sister, marries her rich employer, Morley Kaufman. They do not get along together and are unhappy in spite of their money.

Through Cassie, Merry meets Bill Erskine, a wary bachelor. He falls in love with her, sends her expensive presents, lends her money, but keeps putting off the date for their wedding. Merry isn't in love with him, but she is very fond of him, and thinks he would make an excellent husband. During one of Bill's long absences in Florida, where his sick father lives, Merry goes out with Cabby Marsh, whom she met through Morley's sister, Muriel, and Les Purcell, an old beau of her own. Les is salesman for a famous cold cream and Lillie Dale, who has come to live with the Lockes, says she thinks he's married. Merry doesn't believe her.

Moms begins to go out with Mr. Hefflinger, who has rented Cassie's old room in the house. Jinny, the youngest of the girls, elopes with Derrick Jones, who lives next door.

One night when Merry comes home, she finds a telephone call waiting for her from a man who says he is a friend of Tony Gaines —John Benson. He comes to see her, tells her that Tony is going to marry a Montana girl, and that he, himself, has been in love with Merry's picture for months. She tells him she's engaged to Bill Erskine, but promises to have dinner with him the next evening.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XL

For the first time in her life Merry had a friendship with a man—afriendship with not one bit of love making mixed up in it.

John Benson was in town for a week, and he saw Merry every day. But not once did he hold her hand in a moving picture show, or kiss her in a speeding taxi, or even mention the fact that he had fallen in love with her picture, long before.

He did none of the things that Merry, who knew too much about men, expected a man to do when he was with her.

From the minute she told him that she was engaged to marry Bill Erskine, she began to keep distance. He behaved toward her exactly as he might have behaved toward the little sister who went to school in Virginia.

"I surely like him," Merry said to Lillie Dale one night, when she was waiting for him to call for her at the beauty shop. "He knows all sorts of things that nobody else knows—"

"A regular Benny Brains, eh, wot?" Lillie broke in, mockingly, as she dusted off the top of the telephone table.

Merry tossed her head. "No, he's not a regular Benny Brains," she snapped. "But he knows something. He's not one of these petting-bee boys like Les Purcell. You should have seen the books he bought yesterday afternoon. Not silly novels, but George Washington's diaries and a book about Mark Twain. He says it's hard to get books like those out on his ranch unless he orders them. I'm sure he must have spent a hundred dollars on just books. Think of it!"

Lillie laughed her comforable, fat laugh. "You and he ought to get along together like tea and toast, then, Merry," she teased the girl. "You read the weather report in the paper every day yourself, don't you?"

Merry closed her lips, and stared out of the window. There were times when Lillie was unbearable with her teasing.

But the next minute, when Lillie spoke again, she was perfectly serious. "I've been reading a book lately called 'The Passionate Friends'," she said. "The man who wrote it seems to think that married people ought to be friends as well as lovers—or they won't be happy. You never heard of him, of course, Merry. His name is H. G. Wells."

She picked up the book—a red one with gold lettering on it—and tucked it into her bag. Lillie fairly lived on street.

"I never have time to to read," Merry answered loftily. "And books are full of so much silly twaddle, anyway."

But she thought over what Lillie had said about married people being passionate friends.

"Kiss 'Em When You Meet 'Em And Leave 'Em When You Kiss 'Em, Eh?" Said Les, In His Course Way, "That's My System!"

"I wonder if I want Bill Erskine for either a friend of a lover?" she asked herself, time after time. Somehow she just couldn't look ahead and picture herself married to Bill Erskine!

And yet she passionately wanted a home—ahome like Cassie's home. She could shut her eyes and see it just as she wanted it to be—all blue velvet carpet and ivory silk curtains, and deeply cushioned chairs, and flowers and wood fires an a tea table. The kind of home that every girl on earth dreams about, when it comes time for her ot marry.

She could see it—and she could see herself in it, pretty and rosy and wifely. But she just couldn't imagine Bill Erskine coming home to her at the close of day. He was the only thing that did not fit into the picture.

Every day a letter came for her from him. He was planning to spend Christmas with her, "no matter what happened."

That means, I suppose,' 'she told herself, "tha he's coming, whether his father dies in the meantime or not."

She took out his last letter now, while she waited for John Benson. There were two snapshots in it—one of himself on a horse, and another of himself and a young girl. They had tennis rackes under their arms and the background showed a tennis court.

"Our little neighbor, June Hollis, is teaching me to play tennis," he had written on the back of the picture.

"So there's no reason why I shouldn't step out with John Benson or Les Purcell myself," Merry said to herself, and she went out to meet John, who was just coming into sight.

They went for a long walk. Far out beyond the city limits, into the country where late September was hanging scarlet and gold banners on all the trees.

The sun went down, the moon came up—a white sickle moon in the silvery green sky of early evening.

"I suppose we ought to eat somewhere," John said, along about 9 o'clock." We start talking, and the time just flies, doesn't it?"

The raced back to town, with the wind at their backs, and had waffles and coffee in the first restaurant they found.

"I should be taking you to the restaurant in the Towers hotel instead of to a dump like this," John said, opening the door of the little resaurant for Merry.

But she shook her head. In the months she had known Bill Erskine she had grown tired of four-course dinners in hot, stuffy, over-elaborate restaurants. There was something piggish about Bill's heavy meals that always started with thick cream soup and wound up with heavy desserts and black coffee.

"I'm enjoying this," she told John Benson, pouring syrup over her crisp golden waffles. "Just as I enjoy your stories about your ranch. Food doesn't make so much difference, does it?—especially when you're having a good time."

"Are you having a god time?" he asked eagerly. But the next night he took her to the Towers hotel for dinner, and bought her leathery white gardenias to wear on her coat.

Then, on the next Thursday, his week was over. He was gone, and everything seemed more dreary and dull than before.

* * *

Jinny and Derrick came home from their honeymoon on the first Sunday morning in October.

They drove up before the Jones's house in a yellow taxicab. For Derrick's old roadster had broken down just outside the city limits after three weeks of beautiful performance.

From the sitting-room window Moms saw them come, and she dashed out onto the front porch.

"Here! Here!" she called to Jinny. "Don't go into the Jones's house! Bring your bags in here—I'll give you some breakfast!"

Merry watched Jinny come slowly across the Jones's lawn, and then cross the lawn of their own house and come up the steps to Moms.

Defiance was written clearly in her leaf-brown eyes and in the set of her square little jaw.

"Is Mr. Hefflinger here?" she asked shortly.

"Why, no," Moms answered, in a surprised voice. "His show's opened again and he's gone for the winter. Why?—What has Mr. Hefflinger to do with your coming into the house, for heaven's sake?"

Jinny's eyebrows shot up.

"Nothing, except that I won't stay under the same roof with him!" she said, in that frank, positive way of hers. "If you'll swear to me that he's not coming back here, Derrick and I will live here with you. Otherwise—nothing doing!"

Moms opened her mouth to argue the question. Then evidently she thought better of it. She laughed.

"Don't be so high-and-mighty, Jinny. I'm not asking you and Derrick to live here with me!" she said briskly. "I just want you to come in and have your breakfast! You look as if you need a good hot bath, too!"

Jinny surely did look as if she needed a bath. Her hair was dank, and her hands were grubby. There was a long streak of black oil on the skirt of her fawn-colored suit.

"We've been camping—Derrick and I," she explained. "We bought a tent and we've been sleeping in it and bathing in rivers—Oo'ooh! We've had the most gorgeous-grand honeymoon two people ever had!"

"You must have! You look it!" Moms answered grimly, and went upstairs to start the hot water running in the tub.

When she had fed Jinny and Derrick with the first well-cooked food they had had for three weeks, she settled the question of Mr. Hefflinger.

"He's paid his room rent up until the first of November," she told them, sitting opposite them at the breakfast table. "And it's silly for me to think of turning him out, anyway. For I don't want you two in the house anyway. I don't believe in two families living under one roof —and the sooner Derrick makes a home for you, Jinny, the better it will suit me."

It wound up by Jinny moving all her things over to the Jones's house next door. She and Derrick decided to live there until they had a place of their own.

"Which won't be soon!" as Moms remarked bitterly to Merry. "For as long as Derrick can live on his father he'll do it; you see! I made up my mind I wouldn't have them here! If Miss Jinny was smart enough to leave home because she didn't like having Mr. Hefflinger around the house, she ought to be smart enough to make Derrick provide a home for her! She's too young to be married, anyway!"

Merry could tell that she was dreadfully upset about Jinny, in spite of her hard, ruthless way of talking about her.

She nagged Derrick constantly about getting a home where Jinny could learn to keep house.

"That's no way for her to live—under your mother's thumb, all day," she would say to him.

"Well, I'm under my father's thumb all day," Derrick, who was working in his father's printing office, would come back at her. "It's hard on both of us."

But there never was a word of complaint from Jinny. If she disliked living at the Jones house, she never said so. And she never crossed the threshold of her old home unless she came with her new husband.

"She acts as if she'd never belonged to me!" Moms would wail.

Helen and Cassie hardly ever came home, either.

Helen was going to have another baby in January, and she said she was "worked to death" taking care of the old baby and the house on Wandsworth road.

Cassie was busy, too, with her social career and her husband's love affair with Mrs. Fifi Pell.

"He's seeing her again, all the time," Cassie confided to Merry, one cold Saturday night in late October. They were driving home in Cassie's little car, with its cut-glass vase of clove carnations and its velvet-covered seats.

Cassie's face was worn and worried. All the cold cream and make-up she could buy couldn't make it look young and fresh these days.

"Whatever you do, Merry," she said in her harch, husky voice, "Don't marry a man unless he's head over heels in love with you. Marriage is too close and intimate a thing for anybody but lovers."

Her sister looked at her sharply. That was such a queer thing for Cassie to say—Cassie who seemed to be as cold and hard and loveless as a marble statue.

"That reminds me, Merry," she went on, "Morley had a letter from Bill Erskine. He expects to spend Thanksgiving here. I suppose he's told you, thought, hasn't he?"

"I haven't heard from him for a week," Merry answered. "I don't know what's the matter with him. He had been writing to me every day."

* * *

That night she saw Bill Erskine.

Les Purcell dropped in to see her along about half past eight.

"I'm not going to stay," he said, sitting down in front of the little fire that crackled in the sitting room grate. "I just ran in to tell you something—My wife filed suit for divorce today."

He said it just like that—naturally and simple. He might have been saying: "I bought a new suit today" or "It was cold today wasn't it?"

Merry's green eyes blinked at him, like green jewels winking in the dimness of the firelit room.

"My soul! Lillie was right, then!" she muttered, half to herself. "But why didn't you tell me you had a wife, Les? You've never mentioned her."

Les grinned and lit a cigaret before he answered her.

"Why should I have talked about her? I haven't lived with her for more than a year, honey," he drawled in his lazy way. "I try not to think of unpleasant things."

Merry stared at him. The little room was very silent, except for the tickling of the clocks and the coals crackling in the grate. Moms and Lillie had gone out.

"I never should have married her in the first place," Les went on, talking about himself as usual. "I'm not the kind of a man who should try to stick to a woman and a home. I'm not made that way."

"No?" Merry's voice was quiet. "No."

Les Purcell got up and came toward her. She got up, too. She didn't like the look that had flashed into his face.

"Kiss 'em when you met 'em, and leave 'em when you kiss 'em! But never marry 'em!" Les said in his coarse way, speaking of the whole splendid race of women as if they were toys for the pleasure and amusement of man.

"That's my system," he finished with a laugh, holding Merry close in his arms. "I'm going to leave you now—but first of all, I'm going to kiss you, Paradise!"

"Not if I see you first!" Merry cried, full of sudden dislike toward him.

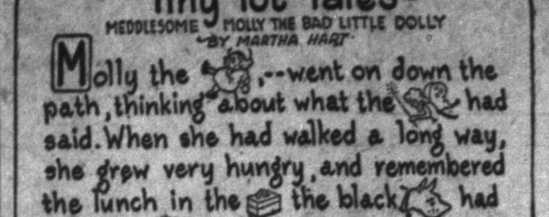

There came a sharp knock on the window beside them.

(To Be Continued)

Whose is the face at the window, why is Merry so frightened? You will find the answers in tomorrow's chapter of "The Petter."

To Abolish Levying Of Campaign Tax

AUSTIN, Sept. 5.—Levying of assessments on state employes to pay campaign costs of office-holders seeking re-election will be abolished. a state civil service introduced and the selection of capitol workers assured from every part of the state if a bill drafted by W. T. Williams, legislative nominee of Travis county, is adopted. Mr. Williams will offer the bill in the 40th legislature, he said.

Alleged abuse of past campaigns, when state employes were caused to pay part of their salary into a campaign fund, will be outlawed, Mr. Williams said.

His measure will prohibit removal of state employes except for inefficiency, and will abolish the old "spoils system" by which may clerical and minor employes have been replaced with inexperienced persons at the begfnning of a new administration.

Judge Williams is unopposed for the legislature for the special session beginning September 13, to take place of Felix A. Raymer, resigned.

Little Damage To Cottle Cotton Crop

PADUCHA, Sept. 5.—A canvas of Cottle county shows that the leaf worm has been stopped with a minimum amount of damage, at least for the present. There is some little complaint of boll worm, and the recent rains have caused quite a lot of shedding, but with average conditions from now on this county will produce as much or more than last year.

The crop is variously estimated at from 35,000 to 50,000 bales.

Some ten or 15 bales have been broughtin, but picking will not become general until the latter part of the month.

Altus Officer Is Rewarded for His Part in Capture

ALTUS, Sept. 5.—C. H. Parks, of Blair, deputy Jackson county sheriff, received $250 from North Platte, Neb. this week a part of the reward offered for the arrest or capture of Clyde Coen and R. L. Nolte, who were overtaken several months ago by Parks in a shooting fray north of Altus, and which resulted in the death of Cylde Coen and the arrest of Nolte.

The reward just received makes a total of $1,000 received by Parks for the capture, and a small additional reward will be received later.

PECAN VALUE BOOM STARTS

West Texas C.-C. Seeks to Stimulate Interest For Loans

STAMFORD, Sept. 5.—An effort is being made by the west Texas chamber of commerce to secure proper recognition of the value of the pecan timber in establishing the loan value of land where such timber stands. Land owners in west Texas have been severely penalized in the past by the refusal of the U. S. farm loan board officials to consider the value of pecan trees when making loans upon land. One instane is recorded where a west Texan owned land upon which were more than 500 fine pecan trees of the best paper shell variety, sought a loan. The official with whom he dealt absolutely refused to take the trees into consideration in estimating the value of the land and would make no higher loan upon the land than he had made upon the adjoining pasture land upon which mesquite trees grew. The fact that the pecan trees had consistently yielded enormous crops for years which brought more money than row crops made no difference in the opinion of the federal official, even though the tax assessor did realize its value.

California Successful.

California has been successful in having the value of their walnut and other nut bearing trees recognized by the proper authority, and the Californian has thus been encouraged to plant nut bearing trees upon his land. The man with the fruit trees has been able to get credit for the value of his orchards. The commercial value of pecans has been thoroughly established. The returns from pecan groves are not to be disputed. West Texans have planted literally thousands of trees during the past five years and it has been proved that pecans pay handsome dividends where properly pruned and cultivated. This crop offers a wonderful opportunity to the land owners of west Texas and the west Texas chamber of commerce has given great encouragement to the industry. But it has been discouraging to the owners of pecan orchards to learn that their fine orchards have no commercial value officially.

Fort Worth's Amateur Champs Rally In Ninth To Nose Out Panhandle

Lackey's Double and Williams' Fluke Hit Turn Victory Tide After Two Are Out in Final Frame.

BY BLONDY CROSS.

Stine Printers, Fort Worth amateur champions, rallied in the ninth inning, overcame a one-run lead and edged out on the Panhandle Refiners, Wichita Falls champions, in the first game of the inter-city title series sponsored by the Texas Amateur Athletic federation Sunday at Spudder park, 5 to 4.

The second contest is scheduled for Spudder park Monday afternoon at 2 o'clock. Should Wichita Falls win this encounter a third game will be played, making it a double header, to decided the championship.

Manager Jess Winters has his Panhandle ace, Connally, and Randolph from whom to make his pitching selection. Connally probably will start the first game, Randolph the last, if there is another.

A fair gathering of fans Sunday afternoon witnessed a first-class exhibition which packed all the thrills and earmarks that a championship series between the Spudders and Fort Worth Cats themselves would carry.

The battle was waged bitterly throughout with Fort Worth gaining a three-run lead midway merely to falter before a desperate sixth-round comeback in which the Winters outfit knotted the score.

Wichita Falls squeezed a run out front in the eighth but fell before a ninth-stanza attack that netted the Printers two runs and the victory.

Henry Hartaway, Fort Worth righthander, hurled a baffling brand of ball and kept the situation well under control with exception of the sixth when he came very near being bombarded from the box and the eighth when two bingles and two errors abetted by a close umpirical decision at first base netted the domestics a run.

Hargrove Cops Palm.

Harvey Hargrove, Panhandle third sacker, was a hero more or less in a lost cause. He biffed a triple and a double and outfooted an infield tap to make it three safeties in four trips to the platter. He drove two of the Wichita Falls counters.

Odell McDuffy, Panhandle righthander, fared fairly well until the ninth when two clean hits, a bad hop bingle and an error scored the visitors' tying and winning markers.

A walk to Hartaway and Stewart's single past short put the former on second in the Fort Worth half of the fourth. There were two out. Eason beat out a bounder down the third base line. Hartaway took his turn at third just as the ball was fielded and thrown to first in a desperate effort to cut Eason out, then headed for home. Hoehn pegged to the plate, but in making the tag, Horton dropped the ball.

Fincher drew a base on balls at the start of the sixth and was boosted to second by Reed's sacrifice bunt. Bradford singled to right, sending Fincher to third and took second himself on the throw-in. Hartaway stepped in and saved his own game by walloping a bristling liner to the same sector, scoring both Fincher and Bradford. Eason retired with a hoist to Rawls in center.

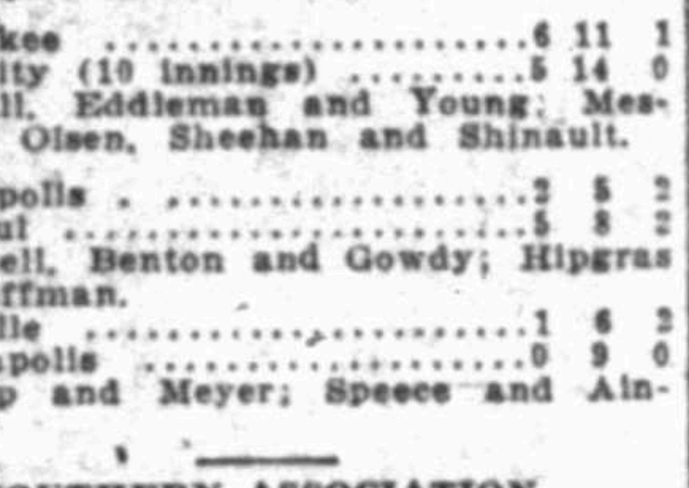

McDuffy Starts Rally.

Three runs in arrears, Wichita Fally ripped into Hartaway with gusto to tie the score before the sixth inning was finished. Horton, first at bat, drew a base on balls. McDuffy followed with a full-bloom double to left that sent Horton to third. Hinds, for some comical reason, was purposely passed. Graves caused many regrets by following with a Texas leaguer to port, scoring Horton. Hargrove tagged up with a lusty two-base shove to right center, scoring McDuffy and Hinds. The home crew lost its chance to sew up the game at this stage. For with Graves on third and Hargrove on second, nobody out, the next three batters retired without an advance. Rawls flied out to left. Waller struck out and Roberts bouded out, third to first.

Graves singled with one out in the Panhandle eighth, went to third on Hargrove's infield hit and ensuing jungle heave at first by Eason but was cut down at the plate on a sweet throw by Bradford when he attempted to leg it home. Hargrove went to second on the play and a moment later to third on a wild pitch. Rawls hit to short but the throw to first was high. Nevertheless, it appeared that Stewart after making a mighty leap and catch had tagged him out. Base Umpire Mathis ruled him safe while Hargrove crossed the plate for a run. Eloquent speeches were made by several Fort Worth players and a couple of cops rushed onto the field to halt apparent preparations for a fist battle. The play was close, so close in fact that Rawls at first seemed to think he was out and had to be wised up to get back on the base. The disturbance was quelled finally and play resumed. Waller got hit by a pitched ball but was forced at second by Roberts for the third out.

Eason opened the ninth with a single to center. Johns lined out to Waller in left and Lackey popped to Roberts. It looked like the goodnight close-up for Cowtown's champions, but Williams followed with a two-sack rift to center, scoring Eason. Fincher shot a flopping roller to short that took a dirty jump and hit Hinds in the shoulder. The blow went as a base hit and Williams spiked the dish for the victory tally.

Hartaway was master in the first half of the ninth.

Exporters Swamp One-Time Champs By Heavy Count

BEAUMONT, Sept. 5.—(AP)—Sam Ross held the Cats well in check today while his mates slammed the offerings of Kerr and Burns for a 14 to 2 victory that made a clean sweep of the three games of the series. Ross limited his arch foe to six hits, one of which followed two errors for the first run and another was Compton's double to left center behind a pass to Eddie Moore. The Exporter batting averages soared from the first inning. As the fourth inning closed, the Exporters had scored 19 hits against one for the visitors.

STEERS WIN BRACE,

DALLAS, Sept. 5.—(AP)—Good pitching and hard hitting enabled the Dallas Steers to take both games of a double header with Waco here today. The scores were 7 to 0 and 5 to 3. Woeber and Riley drove out homers that figured materially in the scoring. Waco's only threat came in the final inning of the short seven-frame night cap when Manager Pratt, who was pinch hitting for Hansen, doubled and scored two runs.

BEARS BREAK EVEN

SAN ANTONIO, Sept. 5.—(AP)—After the Bears won the first game with the bat they booted away the second to give the Sports an even break in the double header Sunday, marking the close of the Shreveport series. The Bears won the first game 9 to 4 after getting a start on a couple of boots by Distel and the Sports got a lead on Flashkamper's wild throw to win the second game 2 to 1. The Bears featured in the fielding with five double plays while Chief Nason led the long distance hitting with a circuit smash, scoring a runner ahead of him, and also a three bagger Wirts drove in two runs with a three bagger. TIGERS SPLIT TWO

CLEVELAND, Sept. 5.—(AP)—Cleveland and Detroit split a double header today Cleveland winning the first game, 8 to 7 in 12 innings and Detroit, the second, 2 to 0 in five innings, the contest being called to allow the Cleveland team to catch a train for St. Louis.

Dauss and Buckeye did some effective relief pitching in the first inning after Levensen, Karr and Wells had been driven from the box.

The only runs of the second game were scored in the fifth inning when Detroit bunched three hits with a pass to send two men across. Gibson was threatened twice but tightened each time.

George Burns, Cleveland first sacker, broke the major league two base-hit record in the first game, hitting his 60th double, thus breaking the record of 59 set by Manager Tris Speaker of the Indians in 1923. The event was received with a shower of straw hats, while Speaker, the runner ahead of him was on the bases had time called while he walked to second to congratulate the player who had robbed him of his laurels. Labor Day Finds "Business Is Good"

NEW YORK, Sept. 5.—(AP)—Labor day, which marks the end of the summer season, finds business in better shape than it has been in any similar period for years past, with excellent prospects of record breaking trade this fall.

While the summer is invariably a period of slackening commercial activity, the decline has been scracely noticeable this year. The steady improvement in the domestic business situation also has been accompanied by indications of improved economic conditions abroad, particularly in the continental countries, with prospects also brighter for an early settlement of the British coal strike.

Crop conditions generally are regarded as satisfactory. While the harvests are not expected to break any records for size, the prices obtained give assurance of substantial purchasing power in the agricultural regions, particularly in the southwest. Certain sections of the northwest have suffered from the poor wheat crop in that territory, but generally the lower fields have been off-set by higher prices.

PANIC ON SHIP CAUSED BY EARTHQUAKE AT SEA

SINGAPORE.—More than 100 passengers were suffering from bruises when they landed here from the steamer Moria after an exciting experience at sea. When about a day's journey from port the vessel was struck by a series of terrific waves apparently caused by an earthquake on the bed of the ocean. The passengers were panic stricken and many were hurt in the rush for boats, but they were driven back by the officers. The disturbance lasted about an hour. Only a light breeze was blowing at the time, and the sky was clear.

CAMERAS IN A CEMETERY FAIL TO CATCH SPIRITS.

BELFAST.—An attempt to take photographs of the spirits of the dead was made but failed during a service held in the Belfast City cemetery under the auspices of the local Christian Spiritualists' association. The service was held around the grave of Mrs. McDermott, mother of John McDermott, the medium of the association. Mrs. McDermott died about three weeks ago. Upwards of a hundred spiritualists were present, a

NEW YORK, Sept. 5.—(AP)—The drama of the world champion Pittsburgh Pirates, who fought their way to the top of the National league after a slow start early in the season, reached its climax during the past week in a series of disastrous defeats at the hands of St. Louis and Chicago, that tossed them to third place in the standing.

The precipitous fall of the Buccaneers started when St. Louis gained four wins in a seven-game series, took on the appearance of a rout with Chicago grabbing two out of three contests at the close of the week. In fact, there was little rest for any member of the first division with the four clubs tearing at one another in a series that shifted the standing of the league almost daily. With the season now in the home stretch any one of the four leaders may battle their way to the top in one of the hottest fights baseball ever has seen.

Although St. Louis won, six of their nine games while Cincinnati was breaking little better than even with three victories in five tussles, the Cards lost their hold on first place by a scant three points.

Chicago managed to break even with four wins and the same number of losses, although the Cubs shared high hit honors for the week with their fellow townsmen in the American league. Each team gathered 82 safe bingles.

Washington took a decided brace, whipping the Boston Red Sox five straight times in totalling seven victories and no defeats for the week. The Senators piled up 50 runs behind their pitchers. Boston lost seven and won none.

The surge of the Cleveland Indians, who won the three games they played offers a distinct menace to a Yankee walkaway in the American league, although the six-game margin of the leaders offers an almost insurmountable barrier. Cleveland has won 10 of the last 11 games played while the Yankees could win only four while losing three during the week. The remainder of the American teams did no better than break even.

The error columns in the National league show tense the situation at the top of the standings has affected players. St. Louis was charged with 20 errors in nine games, an average of more than two a game. Pittsburgh booted 16 chances in 12 games.

The week's major league record of games won and lost, runs, hits, errors, opponent's runs and home runs, including games of Saturday follows:

CARDS TAKE FINAL, 7 TO 3

Go Back in Lead By Hammering Red Hurlers Hard

CINCINNATI, Sept. 5.—(AP)—St. Louis defeated Cincinnati today, 7 to 3, through inability of the Reds to hit Alexander and went into the National league lead again while Cincinnati dropped to second place.

More than 5,000 St. Louis fans witnessed the game. A crowd of 32,000, one of the largest since the world series games here packed the stands.

Luque, pitching for Cincinnati, was hard hit during the first six rounds and was replaced by Lucas in the seventh. Errors by Dressen and Luque figured in the score. Bell and Dressen hit homers.

Cincinnati's big chance came in the seventh, when Lucas hit a triple and scored on a sacrifice fly by Christensen, but Alexander tightened and kept the bases free for the rest of the frame. Another rally by the Reds in the eighth was stopped when Dressen hit into a double play.

It was Thevenow day, and a group of Madison, Ind., admirers presented him with a large floral horseshoe.

A catch by Christensn in the first inning was one of the features of the game. He made a running shoe string catch and turned over but held the ball. The score:

St. Louis began scoring in the second innings after two were out. Hafey doubled to left and O'Farrell walked. Thevenow doubled to left, scoring Hafey and O'Farrell. In the fourth Lester Bell hit a homer into the left field, which bounded into the extra seats.

In the fifth Douthit singled and was sacrificed to second by Southworth. Hornsby then singled to center, Douthit scoring.

In the sixth inning a pass to Hafey, a double by O'Farrell, a single by Thevenow and a wild throw to the plate by Luque added two more.

In the ninth a double by Douthit and a single by Southworth scored the Cardinals 'final run.

Dressen first Cincinnati batter up in the seventh, hit a home run into the seats in left field.

PIRATES BEATEN

CHICAGO, Sept. 5.—(AP)—Chicago closed the National league season here today with a 7 to 6 victory over Pittsburgh, making it three games out of the four game series. The game was delayed for more than an hour on account of a drizzling rain and it was agreed to call it at 5:45 o'clock to enable the Pirates to catch a train. Chicago scored four runs at the start, forcing Yde to retire before anyone had been put out. They again bunched hits in the fourth for two more runs. Pittsburgh rallied in the closing innings, forcing Osborn to retire and tying the score in the sixth inning.

With only a few minutes to play, Manager McCarthy rushed three pinch hitters into the game and two of them delivered. Freigau doubled to left and scored when Kelly singled to center with the deciding run. The game then was called, and from the thousands of fans who had remained through the drizzle came an avalanche of straw hats on the field. Score:

PALS TAKE FIFTH

PALESTINE, Sept. 5.—(AP)—By hammering four Cannibal pitchers to all corners of the lot, Palestine took the fifth game of the Lone Star series this afternoon, 8 to 3. Goff and Polvogt led the Palestine hitters, each having a perfect day at bat. Dean and Smalley were the fielding stars for Palestine, while Moore, right fielder, excelled a field for Longview. Moore robbed Catcher Ferguson of Palestine of a probable triple with two men on base when he snagged a difficult drive to his territory.

SPUDS SHADE HOUSTON, 3-2 IN HOT GAME

Estell Takes Whitworth's Measure After Hard Start

RALLY IN EIGHTH WINS

HOUSTON, Sept. 5.—Dick Whitworth, ace of the Austin Texas, association, staff this summer, pitched his first game for Houston today and although he lost 3 to 2 to Wichita Falls, his work was impressive.

Until the eighth the Buffs were leading by one run, but in this chapter singles by LaFayette and Jenkins, with two sacrifices and Kang's error, gave the guests the battle.

Wichita Falls was held to a meager half dozen hits by the diminutive Whitworth and these were well scattered with exception of the two in the eighth.

The only extra base hit of the game was a double by Lapan.

Houston got to Tom Estell with bunched hits to score two runs in the first inning but the Spudder spitball pitcher tightened down and was invincible the remainder of the game, turning in one of the prettiest pieces of pitching work seen here in many weeks.

The defensive play of DeFate and Turgeon was of the sensational variety.

WHERE MUSSOLINI REIGNS

ITALY in form of government is the limited monarchy. Italy has a king. Italy has a parliament. Neither the king nor the parliament functions to any great degree. Mussolini is the dictator of Italy. He was born a commoner. In early life he was a socialist. Now he is the kingdom and the government. His is the great voice. All bow to him.

There is no freedom of the press in Italy. Mussolini tells the newspapers what to print and what not to print. He has abolished municipal suferage in Italy. Now all the offices of the 7,341 cities and towns in Italy are filled by appointment and Mussolini appointed the man who appoints the municipal office holders.

There is no local self government in Italy. Mussolini is the ruler of all and the maker of all. Mussolini, a man of the world, is the iron handed ruler of the people. He has made Italy an outstanding nation. He has made Italy a paying nation. He has driven all the drones from office. He has driven all the parasites from office. He has driven all the grafters from office.

He makes the foreign policy of Italy. He commands the army of Italy and he directs the navy of Italy. His dream is to make Italy the greatest of empires. Mussolini is an honest man. He is a brainy man. He is a thrifty man. He has crushed all opposition. Mussolini is Italy, the new Italy that came of the World war. Now what will happen to Italy when Mussolini dies?

SMITH OF SOUTH CAROLINA

ELLISON D. SMITH has been a senator from South Carolina for 12 years. Smith of South Carolina is a planter. He is a large cotton grower. He is the owner of a huge plantation. Smith of South Carolina is a lawyer and as a side line he is a banker. In the Palmetto state the newspaper boys refer to him as farmer Smith, never as Senator Smith.

Senator Smith voted for the world court proposal. He was one of the democrats that assisted President Coolidge in putting over tht proposal. Farmer Smith entered the primary as a candidate for the third term in the senate. He had two opponents for the nomination.

Farmer Smith ran rfist, Lawyer Brown ran second, Banker Dial ran third. In South Carolina candidates in democratic primaries must receive a majority to be nominated and a run-off primary will be held September 14.

Smith and Brown will be in it. Smith hopes to win. It all depends whether the democrats who voted for Dial will Switch to Smith or Brown. It is likely they will go to Brown as Brown is a South Carolina democrat who is the most pronounced opponent of the league of nations and the world court.

Dial was a senator for six years. He was put away two years ago by Coleman L. Blease, the ablest criminal lawyer and most vociferous political demagogue that South Carolina has developed since the close of the Civil war.

Senator Blease did not vote for the world court. He would have voted against the ratification of the league of nations had he been a member of the senate. In the good old days of South Carolina the Hamptons and the Butlers were the spokesmen of the people of that commonwealth.

Now the Smiths and the Browns and the Dials and the Bleases are the leaders of political thought and action.

There has been a social as well as a political revolution in the state of John Calhoun.

SPEAKING OF MONEY

STATE banks of the United States out number national banks and have 37 per cent more capital resources. This was shown in an annual report of the secretary-treasurer of the national association of supervisors of state banks. Money makes the world go round. Safe banks are the order of the day in America and the federal reserve act is the most efficient financial law that has been enacted since time began. This is the verdict of financiers of the world. And the federal reserve act was given to the republic by a democratic administration. There are some things that should not be overlooked by the people.

GLUTTONY SHOULD BE CURBED

A CONSTITUTIONAL amendment restricting people's eating is more important than that restricting their drinking," declared a speaker from California who was addressing the dental congress in session at Philadelphia. He followed that up by saying that people today are living artificial lives and are expecting natural results.

"It simply cannot be done," thundered this eloquent dentist. "When people have the moral courage to admit to a position that their ailments are caused by vicious habits, such as overindulgence in food or drink, anger, worry and lack of personal hygiene, then only will the physician be able to diagnose with accuracy."

Why not a twentieth amendment for the regulation of the appetites and stomachs of the people? Why not curb gluttony? Why not declare by law that there shall be a bath tub in every room. This California dentits has started something.

WOULD CANCEL WAR DEBTS

NEWTON D. BAKER of Ohio was secretary of war in the cabinet of Woodrow Wilson. He was one of the closest advisers of the war president. He is one of the most strenous champions of the league of nations.

Now he has startled his fellow democrats by advising the cancellation of all world loans, advanced by the United States government conditional on cancellation of all war loans made by European powers which were engaged in the World war. If the Baker plan is adopted according to the buckeye democrat peace would come to the world and Europeans would become our best buyers. This government advanced $11,000,000,000 to the allied nation. If cancellation comes then the American taxpayers must foot the bill.

Why should the taxpayers of America be asked to carry the entire load for ages and ages to come.

SMASHING HEAD OF HIRAM

SENATOR HIRAM JOHNSON has been smashed by the voters of California. He had the support of the Hearst newspaper and in smashing Hiram the republicans smashed Hearst.

Hiram is a bitter ender. He fought the league of nations and the world court. Senator Samuel Shortridge, his republican colleague voted for the world court. Hiram ran a candidate of his own against Shortridge. His candidate was buried by Shortridge. His candidate was a bitter ender.

Hiram had a candidate for governor. His candidate may pull through but he lost his candidate for senator and the man who voted for the world court will go back to Washington for another term of six years. It was a sorry day for Hiram. It was a sorry day for the bitter enders.

OFFICIAL FIGURE, FIRST PRIMARY

IN order that the reader may be well informed as to the total for governor in the first primary election held on July 24 the official figures are given: Ferguson 283,482. Davidson, 123,000; Moody 409,732; Zimmerman 2,962; Wilmans 1,580; Johnson, 1,029.

In the first primary election the Ferguson 34.5 of all votes and the other five candidates 65.5. Unofficial figures of the second primary show that the Davidson vote are a very large part of it landed in the Moody column.

History has been made in Texas since 1924. History will be made in Texas long before the coming of 1928. Democrats are getting the voting habit. In the near future, say two years hence, they may rally a million strong on primary election day.

A MAN OF GALL

GOVERNOR LEN SMALL of Illinois who owes the state a million dollars according to the courts, has notified the republicans of Illinois who elect men of his type, members of the legislature and promises if they do as he says that he will become a candidate for a third term.

Governor Len Small needs vindication. He is going to ask for vindication and he expects the farmers of Illinois to give him a vindication. He never said a word about the million dollars due to the state. A little thing like money never disturbs Governor Len.

The Pied Piper of One-Track Gulch

By Francis Lynde

"We want the business," was the crisp reply.

The young man rose and took a turn across the boxlike room before he said: "I was going to ask for a lay-off and a pass up the road tonight. It's barely possible that I can do your turn and my own, too. Am I to have a free hand?"

"Yes."

"And no curious questions asked?"

"If you succeed, the money will make such a noise that the questions won't be heard."

"Good. Now a detail. The obvious thing would seem to be to bar the big T.-C. special off of the few hundred feet of joint track in One-Track Gulch. What is the obstacle?"

"The order of the court. We should be in contempt if we refused to let the special pass over the gulch track."

"And we'd be pinched for damages?"

The general passenger agent said there was no doubt of it, and the talk passed to the minor details. These were speedily arranged. Immediately after supper Montgomery was to have an engine placed at his disposal for the run to the Hills. And on the morrow, in the absence of a canceling wire from Montgomery, a string of empty coaches would be in readiness at Riata, as an offset to the T.-C. special.

It was a little past dark that evening when Montgomery, climbing to his place on the fireman's seat in the waiting engine, gave the word to go, and the two-hour run to Riata was made without incident. At the junction station the night operator came out. There was no news of the T.-C.'s big special; but figuring on the distance it had to cover, the operator thought it could not possibly reach Riata before midnight.

"Good," approved the passenger department emmissary. Then: "Have we a clear track through the gulch and up the branch?"

"All clear."

"And how about the other line—the T.-C.?"

"That's clear, too—of everything but the dagos. The two work trains came out this afternoon, to be out of the special' way."

Montgomery said "Good night," and gave Heffelfinger the word. The light engine swung around the long leg of the "Y" and was brake-clipped to a stand at the switch where the few hundred feet of court-commanded joint track began. The headlight, picking out the fireman going ahead to set the switch, volleyed a flood of yellow radiance beyond him through the notch in the hogback hills.

Montgomery spoke to Heffelfinger when the fireman swung his lantern and the engine rolled slowly into the notch gateway.

"Run to the end of the joint track, and then stop and let me off" he ordered. "While I'm gone, set yourself out on the T.-C. new line, and be ready to take a swift order to move."

Beyond the gateway gulch the light engine paused at the second switch, and Montgomery borrowed the fireman's lantern and dropped off to walk back along the track. The two men on the engine followed the movements of the spot lantern light curiously. At the inner gulch portal it left the right of way and climbed in laborious zigkags up the steep right-hand acclivity, disappearing finally among the scrub pine fringing the overhanging shale cliffs of the gorge.

When it came in sight again an hour later, it was borne by one running a race. Montgomery, breathing hard, dashed down the slope and sprang to the engine step. "Go!" he shouted. "Get speed on her!"

The light engine darted away up the T.-C. track, and Montgomery mounted the footboard to "pilot" then there came a tremendous earth-quaver, a sucking in-blast of air, and a prolonged crash like the toppling of falling walls.

"Himmel!" ejaculated Heffelfinger, lisping into the mother tongue. "Was ist das?"

Montgomery was emptying his pockets of a broken coil of blasting fuse and a handful of dynamite crumblings.

"It's one of those landslides you read about, Mr. Heffelfinger. I had a premonition that it was coming; that's why I ran. I shouldn't wonder if it would b etwo or three days before they can dig a hole through One-Track Gulch big enough to let your engine out—or anything ele in. Ease up a little. This is the first of the Italian camps we're coming to. When you drop me off, you go back to the switch, get in on your track, and go to sleep. Your part of the job will be done."

The Itallans of camp No. 3 were gathered around a huge camp fire, and one of them was playing a Tuscan folk song on a gigantic accordeon. Montgomery swung off and strolled down the embankment, his rich tenor ringing clear and true in the words of the song. Hefflinger's last glimpse, as the light engine backed swiftly and silently away, was of the circle welcoming the intruder with cheers and upflung hats, while the biggest bandit of them all was thrusting the accordeon into his hands.

In the afternoon of the day following the sending of the forlorn hope into the Burnt Hills, Mr. Reddick had a duty to perform which he would gladly have shirked.

As if the night landslide in One-Track Gulch has been the signal for misfortune, troubles had gathered quickly and thickly at the little junction station of Riata. The T. C. special of empty passenger cars, arriving at midnight, jumped the track at the crossing frog; and when it was successfully enrailed and towed out to one leg of the long "Y" only to find further progress blocked by the landslide, a D. & U. P. freight hit the same frog and went off, hopelessly blocking traffic in every direction.

Those purely operating department worries Mr. Reddick could disregard. But later in the day, while the block at Riata was still unbroken and trains were piling up on each side of it, a wire from Chrysolite announced the coming of a special train carrying President Calliday and a party of guests. General Manager Brice was in Oregon; Superintendent Upham was in Salt Lake; General Freight Agent Arthur was in the east. That the president should be permitted to fall afoul of the trouble at Riata with no lightning arrested from the official staff on the ground was not to be thought of, and Reddick went up on No. 3 to play buffer.

He was barely in time. When No. 3 reached Riata the president's special had come in from the east and had been backed down on the coal track "Y". Delahay, the wrecking boss, and everybody else concerned was tolling frantically to clear for the special ,and Reddick was hailed as an angel of deliverance.

"Do you be gonig down there and pacifyin' him, Misther Reddick," pleaded the wrecking boss. "We'll let him out the first livin' minut' we can; but what wid all these thrains and thim domned impty passenger coaches blockin' things—"

Reddick walked around the long leg of the "Y" and found the president's car pushed squarely down to the best possible point for viewing the huge landslide which had burried the joint track. The Athenia was carrying a full complement of guests. Reddick's approach was from the forward vestibule, and in passing through the central compartment he saw the company's treasurer and three elderly ladies, two of them looking like pictures out of an old book of steel engravings, and the third a rather fat, florid, and much-be-jeweled person, sitting in the easiest of the wicker chairs and fanning herself vigirously.

Questions from the World of Love Answered by a Noted Authority

If Possible, Send Your Girl Away to School; It Will Broaden Her Whole Life, Increase Her Health in Mind and Body.

This is the time of year when the average mother begins to lie awake of nights trying to settle the school problem for her daughters, and when she is likely to think rather enviously of the halcyon days when a girl's education consisted in acquiring a fine copper-plate chirography and learning to make hair flowers.

Fortunately for the world, those days are indeed, of the past. Nobody now denies a girl the right to an education or question her need for it and so the matter resolves itself into the problem of ways and means, of the relative merits of public schools and private schools, of tutors and governesses at home and colleges abroad.

The selection of a school for a girl is a difficult one. Picking out a husband for her is not a more delicate matter or one that will affect her happiness and usefulness more. A girl's school days are the formative ones of her life. They make her traditions, they form her ideals and set their ineffaceable seal upon her.

Many elements must necessarily enter into the selection of a school. The girl's social rank and wealth, her bent of mind, her purpose in life, whether she intends to enter a profession or not, all deserve consideration; but the most important thing of all and the one that outweighs them all is the association to which the girl will be subjected.

Never send a girl to school to a woman who is not a refined gentle-woman for any education, no matter how brilliant a scholar it leaves a woman, no matter how it cultivates her intellect, is a rank failure if it does not make her a lady.

Another thing is the absolute necessity that a child should be interested. Any girl who is not a candidate for the school for the feeble-minded will be interested in her studies if they are properly presented to her mind.

If school is a bore, it is the teacher's fault, and her parents do well to keep changing schools until they find some instructor who has the heart and brain and enthusiasm to kindle the love of learning in the youthful mind.

Teachers are as truly born, not made, as poets, and it is one of the misfortunes of society that the calling which should be a sacred mission is so often followed merely as a profession.

Of the advantages of sending girls off to boarding school there can be no discussion.

The boarding school was ordained by an All-Wise and Merciful Providence for the regeneration and salvation of the spoiled and indulged American girl, and it is the greatest missionary of sweetness and light in the world.

Of course, the chief advantage in sending a girl off to school is that it gives her the atmosphere of study which all brain workers find so essential to their best achievements. At home there are a thousand distractions—balls and parties, theatres, the coming and going of company—that fill her mind with eager anticipation of the times when she will, too, be of the gay world, even if she is not already permitted to dip in it, while at school there is nothing to break the quiet round of studious days or woo her attention from her books.

Another advantage of the boarding school is that it broadens a girl's whole life.

Lyrics of Life

By Douglas Malloch

A LETTER FROM HOME.

If you knew of the trips that we make to the desk
In the hope of a letter from home.
Then you wouldn't think travel was so "picturesque,"
To the fellows whose job is to roam.
You would manage to find on your busiest day
Just a moment to drop us a line,
You would write us a letter, if only to say
That the children are healthy and fine.

If you knew of the times that we bother the clerk—
"Are you certain there isn't a thing?"—
If you knew how it heartened a fellow to work
If the mail in the morning should bring
Just a note from the wife, just a scrawl from the kids,
If you knew how we thrill with delight,
Though the housework is heavy, though something forbids,
Still I think you would manage to write.

If you knew how it feels to get into a town,
To a town and a lonely hotel,
There to mingle with strangers, to meet with a frown,
And to meet disappointment as well,
If you knew what it means to lose order and sale
And then to some new town to roam,
I know you would see, when we asked for our mail,
There was always a letter from home

Tomorrow—The Party.

DAILY SCIENCE SIX.

1. What is the unit by which electrical energy is measured?
2. How many centimeters equal one inch?
3. Where is the metric system used?
4. Is ice ever used in America?
5. What are the outstanding features of the centigrade thermometer?
6. Where are official standard weights and measures determined in America?

Answers to these questions in tomorrow's Record News.

What Is a Standard Measure?

In the old city of Sevres, rather than in Paris, are kept the standard weights and measures of France. Sevres has long been famous for its perfect clocks, and Napoleon located a bureau of standards in that city that still exists. In quiet rooms with even temperatures are kept the various scales and weights, and the balls of steel and the bars of silver and gold by which all measures are standardized in France. The gold bar representing 1 centimeter is there. A centimeter was originally defined to mean just a certain fraction of the old "pouce" or inche, and just a certain fraction of a meter, the length of a meter being in turn defined as just such a fraction of the circumference of the earth (what ever that is! it is not precisely known). Not long ago somebody re-measured the gold centimeter at Sevres and found to the distress of everybody, that it was not, at least by definition, a centimeter long!

Now what do you know about that?

Answers to Saturday's questions:

1. The largest library in this country is the Library of Congress.
2. Our second largest library is the Widener Memorial at Harvard.
3. The British Museum has the largest library in England.
4. The Bibliotheque Nationale in Paris is the largest French library.
5. The duodecimal system is a classification of books permitting an indefinite number of additions without causing the numbering system to be upset, by the use of decimal points.
6. An incunnabulum is a book printed before 1500.

WHAT TODAY MEANS TO YOU

BY MARY BLAKE

Today's planetary aspects are decidedly favorable until about noon, when they change and become overcast and gloomy. They, however, resume a favorable character shortly after sunset and remain so for the balance of the evening. Under such conditions, it is polite, if any task of importance requires your attention, to devote your best energies to it during the early part of the day, and thereafter seek recreative relaxation, or engage in only routine work. After sunset, the influences will be quite benign, and it is a suitable opportunity for family or social gatherings, as only harmony and contentment will prevail.

Children born today will, during infancy, experience quite a few ailments, but none of these need necessarily cause alarm, especially if proper attention be given to regular nutrition and wholesome environment. The signs denote that once these early weaknesses have been overcome they will develop along normal lines, and attain a healthy adulthood. In character and disposition, they will be fairly amenable, but more easily persuaded and influenced by kindness and affection, than by disciplinary methods. They will be studious and of the plodding variety rather than spectacular. A fair amount of success can be safely prophesied for them.

If today is your birthday, you are very conservative, careful, plodding, conscientious and faithful. You are never disposed to do things in a hurry, but tackle everything with methicilous care, as your theory is, "if anything is worth doing at all, it is worth doing well." Your temperament is amiable, and you have a very happy knack of ingratiating yourself with others. This, in spite of the fact that you have a strong will and possess great determination of character. You are, however, sometimes too easily led by others but this is never done against your own inclinations, and is a result of a slight lack of judgment of character and person. In your tastes you are domestic, complaisant and sympathetic, and no one who stands really in need of assistance is ever turned away from you empty handed.

Your love is strong, and provided your mate were born in either the months of June or October, your home life should be extremely pleasant and harmonious.

Successful people born this date are:
Marquis de Lafayette, French general.
Fanny Wright, reformer.
James Henry Coffin, meteorologist.
Samuel D. Bruchard, clergyman.
William H. H. Miller, lawyer.
Jane Adams, social reformer.

A SUGGESTED CHANGE.
By Wallace M. Bayliss.

I've understood that Labor day
Was set aside for pleasure,
So workers of the country may
Have one good day of leisure;
But when I look around I see
A lot of mental misery,
And Labor day, it seems to me,
Brings sorrow in good measure.

For soon will school start up again,
So kids go 'round with features
That look as if they suffered pain...
And likewise do the teachers!
Vacation time will soon be past,
No more will fishing lines be cast;
Ere long the snow will be amassed
Where once we sat in bleachers.

Soon roads will be choked with machines
Returning home from tour;
My wife makes me take down the screens;
Fall's almost here, for sure.
The workers lose a whole day's pay;
We all feel very far from gay;
Let's change the name to Blubber day;
I think that would be truer!

I'M THE GINK!

I'm the gink who knows the names of all the flowers, wild and otherwise. I isist on pointing them out as we walk through the woods or along the road. I call them by their scientific names or some unfamiliar name other than the one they are usually known by. Of course you probably like flowers, but it bores you stiff to hear the names of them. I know that, but it took me quite a time to learn them. I'm wrong on some, but I go right ahead and tell you "that's the Nelumbium Luteum."

THE MILD TRANSGRESSION OF FATHER

This one got into vaudeville—a sure sign of its excellence—very soon after it was originated.

A philantrophic gentleman engaged in settlement work asks a small boy some leading questions.

"What does your father do?" he inquires.

"He don't do nothin'," answers th eruchin. "He's up at Sing Sing for eight years."

"Oh, I'm so distressed to hear it. What did he do that sent him there?"

"Well, pop was working in a place downtown and he got to bringing home samples at night and they found out about it and put him in jail and when they tried him he got eight years."

"I never heard of anything so barbarous!" exclaimed the old gentleman. "To give a man a long sentence in state's prison for bringing away a few samples—why it's incredible! Tell me, what sort of a place was it where your unfortunate father worked."

"A bank."

Personal Religion Thing We Need Most, Says Judge Kay

VOICES PLEA IN ADDRESS

It's Difficult, But Is a Great One in the End, He Asserts

A personal religion, one that takes stock of one's self and questions an individual conscience is a thing greatly to be needed in these times.

Such is the belief of Judge John C. Kay as expressed Sunday in his Bible talk to his Sunday school class. It is a difficult religion, Judge Kay averred but it is a great one in the end.

His address, heard by 201 persons, was as follows:

Tomorrow is the day set apart as Labor Day. I think that the setting apart of such a day is one of the finest customs that this country has produced. It makes a great milestone in the history of civilization. Labor has gone a long way from the time that the Jew, as a slave, made bricks without straw in Egypt. On some little islands, off the coast of Greece in the Mediterranean, they have tin mines that are almost as old as human history. The veins of this tin running down through the hard rock have been dug out by men who lived in the long ago, slaves as they were, and the openings into the veins where they dug this tin are so narrow that it is apparent that the slave who dug out that tin had to be tied by his feet and let down, hanging down head foremost to dig out the ore because it is perfectly apparent that if he had gone down any other way, he never could have turned around.

Time was, in England, when the men who did the hard work had a brass collar around his neck, welded on there, with the man's name and the name of the man that he belonged to. So that I say that humanity has exerted itself and is coming up, and up, and up. So, tomorrow is a great day for the American people.

Must Have a Program.

Now Labor, and I speak plainly this morning, in the voice of one who loves them,—labor has got to have an intelligent, practical, workable program.

The men who produce the wealth of this country can own the country and dictate to the country only with intelligence, sobriety, economy and thrift. I am perfectly willing that the men who work at all kinds of work should control the country. There is no room in this town, or in any town, for the loafer, for the fellow who is trying to get by with his wits, a more parasite on the body politic. He ought to be driven from out portals, the man who isn't willing to work. Let him be rich, or let him be poor, he ought to be driven out as an outcast.

Now, the laboring man, whom he climbs over the dirty box cars at night, when he lays the brick on your tall buildings, when he melts out the iron in the blast furnace, or sweats about a forge, proclaims something. He is saying something to you by that, and what is it? He is saying to you that "I would rather get my living this way, by sweating for it, than by getting it dishonestly." You find mighty few men in trouble that have got great, big, distorted knuckles and blistered hands. Now, that's so and always has been so. And, because it is a law of nature, and of nature's God, it must always be so.

About the Strike.

I say that labor ought to have a practical program. Sometimes, it isn't practical. In this country, one of the weapons of labor has been the strike. Maybe it is the best weapon that we had at the time. I don't know about that. I am not passing on that, but I say the time is coming when a labor question will be settled by honest, intelligent, fair-minded men sitting around a table. Some of you have noticed the co-operative movement in this country. It is an amazing big thing that the fellow who works in the factory, or in the mill, or about the forge, has become a stockholder and partner in the business. Now, that's the light of a new dawn. That's civilization lighting another arc light in order that the world may see better. Let us hope that more of that kind of thing shall be done.

Now, as I have said before here, the laboring man isn't concerned, especially about wages. He isn't especially concerned about the hours of labor, although he is concerned about it. But, what he wants is more than that, and higher than that. He wants to be recognized as a human being, and as a worthy citizen, and and to have a place in the life of the community, and God speed the day when he shall have all that, and more. Why does he want that? Because these things enable him, not only to have a place in the life of the community, as I have said, but to have a home, to educate his children, and to gather about him all these blessings which men call the blessings of civilization. That's what he wants in the bottom of his heart, and that's what he must have or perish.

Now, the Sunday school lesson, this morning, is about the greatest of all leaders, Moses. I said to you once here that nobody could name five of the world's great men without naming Moses, and a man much greater than I has said that if only one was to be named, it would have to be Moses. Why was that? It is because Moses never asked for anything for himself, trying to lead his people, trying to advise them, trying to become the great law giver. Yet, there is no great man in history that says and does as little about himself.

So, he goes out and talks with God in this lesson. Now, there is a great distinction, and dispute, and difference about the meaning of the Old Testament, in the light of the New Testament, among a great many people, and I am perfectly aware that I am getting on a deep subject here, and a difficult one, but I am going to talk to you a minute about that.

You will notice that only Moses went into this place to talk to God. The Jewish religion was a sort of national religion. That is to say, the Jewish religion was the state—the head of the state ordinarily was the head of the church, and they looked upon religion, in a large sense, as being a tribal or national religion. It would be the same thing as if the people of Wichita county should vote, and by political vote, adopt Christianity at the ballot box. Now, anybody know if we should do that we would not be any whiter or cleaner than we were before. A sort of political idea of religion, that's what I am trying to say.

Personal Religion.

Now, when the Saviour came, He undertook to make religion a personal affair. He would go out and talk to one man, or one woman. And, after He was gone, there came up immediately this great question of whether we are going to have church and state seeparate or together. That is to say, are we going to have a mass religion or an individual religion?

St. Peter was all for the old Jewish law. He wanted Christianity to come to the people dressed in the garments of the ancient Jewish law. St. Paul was all the other way and demanded a personal experience, and a personal religion. St. Paul went to Rome and won out for a time, then St. Peter prevailed until the time of Martin Luther. What is the Protestant religion, in the sense that I am trying to discuss it here? It is just this, that there is no bronze door to the Temple of God beyond which only the priest can pass, that God is in the church, and outside the church, and everywhere, and is appreciable by any and every contrite heart. That is the real foundation of the Protestant religion.

Now, that is the most difficult of all religions. You can see, I think, in a moment, that it becomes the most difficult religion of all for the reason. It would be a mighty comfortable thing for me to believe that Mr. Coulidge and his cabinet would attend to the welfare of any soul at Washington, and me rock around here in my loose, slip-shod way, as I have sometimes lived, and let the government attend to all that. That would be comfortable. But, our religion teaches us that on the day of judgment, we have got to stand up, one at a time. I wouldn't mind going to the judgment so much, if it wasn't for that one little line in that story. Just let me sit down and pass a vote there, whether the whole world should be saved. That would suit me, and would suit the average Texas fellow, I think. But, they say you have got to stand up, and that's the Protestant doctrine, that every soul must come with a contrite heart into the presence of his Maker, alone. Therefore, I am not to be saved by the efforts of a Methodist conference, or a Baptist convention, or a Presbyterian synod, or by the articles of faith, but have to come alone,—one man,—into the presence of his Maker repentent, seeking to be saved. Therefore, I say that it is the most difficult of all religions because it is so intensely personal.

Now, all of that that I have been talking about is a sort of philosophy. Let us begin to get it a little more practical. If we are personally, and individually, and one at a time responsible, are you living that way? Or, are you saying, "I belong to the church, and it is a great church, and that is going to help!" If you use a little profanity, sometimes, how do you feel about it! Now, everybody else thinks that profanity is coarse and vile, but how do you feel about it if you use it! If you are making a little home-brew up at the house, with the constitution of the country staring you in the face,—that constitution that allows you to vote, that constitution that safeguards your family,—if you are making a little home-brew up there, how do you feel about it! Not how does the community feel, but how do you feel! If you are wasting your opportunities, how do you feel about that! If you are wasting your time and failing to work, how do you feel about that! If you neglect the children, how about that! If you are one of those fussy, grouchy fellows with your wife, how about that! Is your religion a personal religion! Is your religion a religion of conscience! Are you able to say, "I will get up on the scales and weigh myself and see just what sort of a fellow I am, and how much I weigh, morally and spiritually."

I think you begin to see, now, that the kind of religion that we profess and claim to follow in this country is personal, difficult, important, and is the most serious business of life. But, some of us are going to say: "Well, you don't live up to all that yourself." And, that's true. You know they made me out of the same kind of material that they made you fellows, and am just as weak, just as foolish. I can do some of the things that no man ought to do like you can, and that is the reason I am talking to you this morning. If I were a Brahmin that could draw his robes about him, I wouldn't talk to you at all, but, knowing myself a little, I know you a little.

Let's see if we can't do more towards having a personal religion, and a personal character, and a personal set of rules to go by, and listen to the voice of a personal conscience.

Elders Emeritus Titles Conferred On Electra Pair

ELECTRA, Sept. 5.—At the conclusion of 45 years in the active church work of the Christian church, in Electra and other cities, two aged Electrans have had the honor of "Elders Emeritus" conferred on them by the official board of the First Christian church here.

These men were Rev. S. H. Holmes and Col. Ed C. Wilson, the latter being a Confederate veteran, who is 85 years of age. This honor was the outcome of the recent resignation of Col. Ed C. Wilson, as an elder and trustee of the church, at which time two younger men, Gordon Douglas and Francis Awtrey were appointed to carry on the work of the church begun by the older citizens.

TEACHERS IN BIG RECEPTION

Electra Instructors For Coming Year Enjoy Good Time

ELECTRA, Sept. 5—An impromptu reception for the faculty of the school was held in the high school auditorium Friday afternoon at 3 o'clock. The trustees of the school were seated on the platform and Superintendent B. M. Dinsmore made a splendid talk on the work for the coming year, stressing the point of co-operation. T. T. Weatherall, president of the school board, made a short talk, after which Mrs. Jodie D. Smith, president of the Parent-Teachers association welcomed the teachers in behalf of the Parent-Teachers association, then introduced the presidents of the high school, Thompson ward, first ward and Waggoner ward school P.-T. A.- or their substitutes. W. P. Slaton, president of the Rotary club, then gave the teachers a cordial welcome, after which Rev. E. V. Cole of the Methodist church extended an invitation for them to attend the Methodist church, which was followed by an invitation from Rev. L. D. Grafton, pastor of the Presbyterian church.

Superintendent asked the teachers to stand, introducing them at the same time. The supervisors of fine arts stood along with the faculty. Mrs. Grace Jennings and W. J. Sheldon were introduced. Attorney C. P. Engelking, made a short talk, and the following members of the Rotary club were presented: Messrs. E. R. Brown, Bryan Johnson, Morris Persky, E. W. Barr, Ed. Moreland, Dr. C. W. Monroe and W. J. Sheldon.

Slow Trading In Cotton Mart

NEW ORLEANS, Sept. 5.—(AP) The past week was characterized by a slow mesure of trading due partly to the triple holiday at the close of the period and partly to the government report to be issued next Wednesday. Due to the uncertainity always attaching to a government forecast of the yield, there has been the usual liquidation and evening up of commitments which made for frequent if narrow fluctuations in prices.

At the beginning of he period prices eased off to 17.41 for December, or 55 points down from the high point reached at the end of the preceding week. This decline was due to liquidation of a part of the considerable long interest accumulated during the recent advance induced by the rather more favorable weather prevailing in the belt. By Tuesday, however, owing to a return of showery weather and a multiplicity of reports of insect damage and general crop determination the December option rallied 40 points from the preceding day due to covering by shorts and some trade buying.

The price level gradually eased off again as the week progressed owing to a return of comparatively fair weather and because of the fact that the weekly weather and crop summary of the weather service made a less unfavorable showing than had been generally looked for. This developed a renewal of long liquidation and an appreciable amount of hedge selling against the more liberal purchases of spots in southern markets.

In the latter part of the week there also developed a pronounced tendency to transfer from the near month, October, to the latter positions with he resul tha October, ium over the more distant posiwhich had commanded a small premium over the more distant positions, eased off to ta discount under these positions.

The net result of the week's price fluctuations left the closing prices off Friday but very little changed from the closing levels of the preceding week. Thus October lost 18 points net while December lost only 8, January but four and March showed a net gain of four points.

Mexican Border Guards Ousted

BROWNSVILLE, Sept. 5.—(AP) Energetic measures designed to stop smuggling from the United States into Mexico have resulted in the discharge of a number of employes of the Mexican national lines operating between border points and interior cities. The announcement was made in Mexico City today that large consignments of silks and other contraband, which had been smuggled from the United nStttes had been found in that city, part of the merchandise being concealed in cushions in railway trains. The discovery resulted in the prompt dismissal of all railroad employes against whom the government secured evidence of participation in the smuggling plots.

Stocks Firm In Past Week Trade

NEW YORK, Sept. 5.—(AP)—Relative firmness of prices in the face of a temporary stiffening of money rates and a brisk demand for high grade stocks was the distinctive feature of this week's bond market. Trading was dull, but this was to be expected in a week preceding a holiday and marking the end of the vacation season. New offerings of $70,000,000, comparing with a total of $80,000,000 the week before and $75,000,000 in the corresponding period of last year met with a good reception.

Uncertainty over money conditions tended to restrict trading early in the week. Predictions that the five per cent call money rate would continue beyond the usual month end period as a result of the sustained demands for funds for crop financing and expanding business were heard in many quarters. However, funds started to flow back from the interior on the first of the month and the rate on call loans was reduced to 4 1-2 per cent, setting at rest fears of an immediate credit shortage.

One of the largest pieces of financing this week was the $35,000,000 issue of 40-year 4 3-4 per cent bonds of the Illinois Central railroad, the proceeds of which were to be used largely for new constructions, at 96 1-2. The bonds immediately sold at a premium.

FAILS IN CHANNEL SWIM

SAN PEDRO, Calif., Sept. 5.—(AP)—John Radowich, sailmaker mate on the U. S. S. Maryland failed today in his attempt to swim the 20-mile channel between here and Santa Catalina Island. After battling through six miles of water in two hours and forty minutes, adverse current sapped his strength and one leg and arm were practically in a state of cramps.

The temperature of the water in the trip was said to have been 55 degrees. He announced his intention of making another attempt to cross the passage, probably next month.

WOOD HAS NERVE DISORDER

EVANSVILLE, Ind., Sept. 5.—(AP)—Osborn C. Wood, son of Maj Gen. Leonard Wood, who left an eastern career of financial escapades several weeks ago to go to work as a laborer and learn the refrigeration business here, "from the ground up," is suffering from a nervous disorder, it became known today.

Every Time the Clock Ticks Off 40 Minutes, Death Claims a Victim of An Auto Accident in the United States.

You May Be the Very Next Victim, Who Knows?

Can You Afford to Overlook $2,500.00 Accident Insurance For $1.50 a Year?

A human life lost every forty minutes. This is the startling toll being taken today by automobile accidents alone. Add to this figure the railroad wrecks, horse-drawn vehicles, smash-ups, street car catastrophes, lightning, cyclone, fires and the sum total is indeed staggering.

Every issue of the daily press tells the tragic story of more dead and injuried through traffic accidents, in spite of traffic schools, educational propaganda and governmental regulations.

With these unimpeachable facts before you, (no matter how much insurance you now carry) can you afford to overlook this opportunity to secure this?

BANK DEBITS SHOW GAINS

Wichita Falls Figure In Small Increase For Week

DALLAS, Sept. 4.—(AP)—For the week ending September 1, the total of debits to individual accounts of banks in the fifteen principal cities of the eleventh reserve district, reported to the Federal Reserve Bank of Dallas, showed a slight gain, but failed to maintain the ratio of increases shown in the reports for the past sixty days. Houston and Dallas fell behind their totals of the same week a year ago, but gains in other cities more than offset this loss, the first recorded by these cities in several weeks. The comparative figures follow:

	1926	1925
Austin	$ 3,627,000	$ 3,782,000
Beaumont	4,214,000	3,476,000
Corsicana	1,056,000	1,482,000
Dallas	39,127,000	41,636,000
El Paso	6,543,000	6,446,000
Fort Worth	20,421,000	15,821,000
Galveston	12,080,000	10,044,000
Houston	33,126,000	36,425,000
Roswell	661,000	671,000
San Antonio	9,309,000	7,503,000
Shreveport	8,166,000	9,445,000
Texarkana	2,076,000	1,935,000
Tuscon	1,525,000	1,496,000
Waco	3,377,000	3,453,000
Wichita Falls	5,723,000	1,521,000
Totals	$150,727,000	$149,108,000

Scraps of News

Mrs. R. L. Underwood has returned from an extended vacation out of the city.

Mr. and Mrs. N. H. Martin have returned from Montreal, Canada, where they met their daughter, Miss Mildred Martin, who returned with them. Miss Mildred has just returned from a summer tour of Europe, and landed in Montreal.

Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Thorne are in Dallas for a short visit.

Mrs. E. T. Sheegog has returned from a short visit to Duncan, Okla., and was accompanied home by her mother, Mrs. McArthur.

Among those who are going to Fort Worth today to attend the ball game are Mrs. W. P. Turner and son Mack "Ichabod" Turner, Glen Fanning and Sam Williams.

PASTORS BACK

Following the absences from their charges in the city two pastors, Dr. Nat F. Grafton, minister of the First Presbyterian church, and Dr. O. L. Powers, pastor of the First Baptist church, conducted Sunday services at their respecitve churches yesterday.

A large crowd attended at both places.

Dr. Powers talker on the subject, "Gambling Over the Garments of Our Saviour" at the evening hour, and in the morning, "The Roads of Return."

Dr. Grafton's morning subject was "To Know God."

Larry-Cockrell Wedding Sunday

Announcement is made of the marriage Saturday evening of Mrs. Della Larry of Woodward, Okla., and S. E. Cockrell of this city, the ceremony taking place at Mr. Cockrell's home, 2315 Ninth street with Rev. L. S. White, pastor of the First Church of Christ, officiating.

Mr. and Mrs. Cockrell left Sunday morning for a wedding trip to Cincinnati, O., Washington, D. C., and Philadelphia. They expect to be at home on Ninth street after October 1.

Mr. Cockrell is an engineer for the M.-K.-T. railway.

STOCK-A-DAY

The G. R. Kinney company was incorporated in 1917 and operates more than 200 shoe stores in 156 cities throughout 33 states. Over 40 stores were started in 1925. In addition it manufactures leather and shoes, owning six factories in Pennsylvania and West Virginia with a total output of 8,800 pairs a day. The concern owns the entire stock of 6 subsidiaries.

Funded debt consists of $2,104,000 in 15 years, 7 1-2 per cent gold notes due in 1925. Capital stock includes $5,425,500 outstanding in 8 per cent cumulative preferred shares of $100 par and 50,995 shares of no par common stock. The larger part of both issues is said to be owned by officers and employes of the company.

Total sale have risen from $13,015,353 in 1919 to $22,270,004 in 1924. Net income that year was at the rate of $11.19 per share on the common stock. Dividends were paid on the preferred from 1917 to 1927. They were resumed in 1923 and accumulations cleared off. The present rate on the common stock is $4 a year.
