Roaring Fires Started After Bomb Assault

Noted Cathedral Threatened For Time By Flames

(By The Associated Press)

High-flying German raiders buzzed out of sight above London today, springing a series of four daylight alarms after their third straight dusk-to-dawn assault had set great fires in the vicinity of historic St. Paul's cathedral and in "The City"—the capital's Wall street.

RAF pursuit planes fought off one Nazi reconnaissance squadron in a swift, fire-spitting clash high above Buckingham palace at lunch time, but the Germans came back again and again.

Merely Checking Up

No bombs fell in the London area, and apparently the Nazi airmen were merely checking up on the devastating effects of their nine-hour and two-minute attack during the night.

Roaring salvos of bombs, weighing from 800 to 1,000 pounds each, crashed near the Bank of England, the Guildhall (city hall) of London's lord mayor, the general post-office, London bridge, Fleet street, and the great inns of court where English barristers for centuries have lived "in chambers."

Cathedral Is Saved

The 250-year-old St. Paul's cathedral, with its great dome red-lit from the glare of flames in nearby warehouses, was saved by the wind blowing in the opposite direction.

Hundreds of firemen fought the warehouse blazes with the aid of water towers for eight hours without a break.

RAF officers estimated about 150 German bombers, shuttling in night-long relays across the channel, took part in the bombardment.

"The enemy now has thrown off all pretense of confining himself to military targets," an official British communique declared.

Survey Of Air Routes Made

Activities picked up on the Lubbock front this morning in anticipation of pre-conference hearings scheduled before the Civil Aeronautics board in Washington Sept. 20 on several applications for permission to establish airline service affecting this city.

One of the developments was the arrival of six officials of Braniff Airways, Inc., who are making a survey of routes where it proposes to establish service.

Goes To Washington

Another development was the departure of Harry B. Lewis, aviation manager of the local chamber, for Washington to represent the chamber in various aviation matters of concern to Lubbock. He probably will remain in the national capital until after the Sept. 20 hearings.

The Braniff officials participating in the survey are Don E. Schonsburg of Amarillo, district traffic manager; W. R. Beattie of Oklahoma City, assistant to the vice president; Russell Rau of Houston, Kenneth Walker of Dallas and Oliver Branson and L. R. Pimian, both of Oklahoma City, traffic representatives.

The various Braniff applications pending before the CAB and set for the pre-conference hearings, they reported, are: Denver through Amarillo, Lubbock, Big Spring and San Angelo to San Antonio; Lubbock through Abilene and Austin to Hous-

Thousands Fleeing From Air Horrors

BY SHOWER WILLIAMS
United Press Staff Correspondent

LONDON, Sept. 10—A young London wife kissed her husband goodbye today and said:

"I suppose that when I write you soon your address will be 'fourth roofless house, Bombcrater road, London, SW'."

Then she got a train, taking her to the country, while her husband stayed behind at his work in the city.

Still Can Take It

That epitomized London's spirit after three days of smashing German air raids.

London could still take it—take it with a smile and a jeer.

Today an exodus from London of women and children was in progress. But not of men. From stock broker to bootblack they were donning tin helmets, hiking to work and, as the British always put it, "carrying on."

Trains are evacuating women and children by the thousands. At one main railroad terminus today I saw train after train pull out, packed with refugees. Most of them were regularly scheduled trains, but they were leaving in two and even three sections.

Highways Are Filled

The highways around London were filled with automobiles, trucks and vans carrying the women and children to safer havens in the country.

Some of the trucks were piled high with bedding, pots and pans and odds and ends of furniture.

But I saw no men in this exodus, not even old men.

I talked with one World war vet-

Man Saves 10,000 Pennies But Now They're All Gone

DALLAS, Sept. 10. (U.P.)—J. W. Hinchcliffe saved pennies for years. He said he had saved "about 10,000."

Every night he would clean out his pockets and drop in a bucket any pennies he had among his change.

Then he would hide the bucket.

Last night someone found where he hid it.

Needs Of Tech Are Described

A brief was filed with the board of control and needs of Texas Technological college were described in a hearing in Austin Monday.

Dr. Clifford B. Jones, president, and W. T. Gaston, business manager, appeared before the three-member board, of which Gen. Harry Knox is chairman.

Requests Are Presented

Requests for the 1941-43 biennium were presented. President Jones said the college is asking $250,000 for an agricultural building and equipment; $125,000 for a wing to the main engineering building, to be used in geological and petroleum engineering work and for mechanical engineering shops; $200,000 for a home economics building, and $60,000 for equipment for the library building, in addition to maintenance and salaries.

A series of hearings is being held by the board of control.

There are further "very definite and urgent needs" of the college, but requests for buildings and equipment for the next biennium were confined to those listed, said President Jones.

Dr. Jones and Gaston returned Monday night.

GOP Captures Maine Votes; Others Ballot

Eight States And Alaska Today Are Naming Officials

(By The Associated Press)

Maine Republicans won an unbroken series of victories yesterday in all the major contests of the first state-wide election of the presidential year, and party leaders promptly hailed the performance as an omen for national successes in November.

By pluralities exceeding in most cases those registered in 1936 and 1938, the "down east" Republicans elected a United States senator, a governor and three members of the House of Representatives.

Brewster Leads Brann

On the basis of all but complete returns, Rep. Ralph O. Brewster had a lead of approximately 45,000 votes over former Democratic Governor Louis J. Brann in the Senate race. Sumner Sewall, successful gubernatorial candidate, was ahead by more than 70,000 votes.

Wendell L. Willkie, Republican presidential nominee, in a statement at Rushville, Ind., said today he was "enormously gratified" by the Maine election results.

"Apparently Governor Sewall almost doubled the majority of the Republican governor in 1936," he said, "and Senator Brewster's defeat of former Governor Brann by a very large majority is equally impressive. I have wired both Governor Sewall and Senator Brewster my heartiest congratulations."

Victory Is Forecast

Rep. Joe Martin, the party's national chairman, said the Maine returns meant "without any doubt the election of Wendell Willkie, Senator McNary and a Republican majority in the House of Representatives in November. . . ."

The outcome of the voting did not cause Democratic leaders to alter their pre-election insistence that the election had no significance be-

R. D. Shinkle Takes Position At Alice

R. D. Shinkle, member of the chamber of commerce staff more than three years, tendered his resignation this morning effective Oct. 7, officials of the organization announced.

He resigned after receiving a telegram from Alice, Texas, that directors of the chamber there elected him manager at a special meeting Monday night. Alice, a town of approximately 7,000 population, is about 50 miles west of Corpus Christi.

Officials of the chamber said that most of Shinkle's duties will be assumed by Dr. I. E. Barr, whose appointment as manager of the membership department of the chamber was announced last week.

Shinkle was negotiating with directors of the Alice directors at that time and his prospective departure was one of the factors considered in creating the position held by Dr. Barr, officials of the chamber said. Therefore, they added, Shinkle's departure will not create another opening in the staff at this time.

OUR COUNTRY

Old Bill Dock--And Why, Like Jonathan Harrington, He Is Quite Hero To Carl Carmer

Second of 24 articles on "Our Country," written exclusively for NEA Service and Lubbock Evening Journal by the nation's most famous authors.

BY CARL CARMER
Author of "Deep South," "Stars Fell on Alabama," "The Hudson," etc.

OLD BILL DOCK had had a pretty hard day for late fall. There's a lot to do at Grover's Mill in middle Jersey between harvest-time and the beginning of winter. Bill ate his supper and rested easy by the radio. He was listening to some music when he dozed off. When you're 76 it's easy to fall asleep.

Study by Arni
Carl Carmer

Bill couldn't have slept very long before an excited voice waked him. One of those news fellows was hot about something. At first it was hard for Bill to get the drift of it but when he did he jumped up quick enough. Some mean-looking strangers had landed an airplane on the flat meadow that's part of the Wilson farm. The foreigners had got out of their plane and begun to act nasty, and pretty soon Bill could tell that they meant business. The radio man said they had killed off most of the state police that had showed up, and the governor was calling the militia.

Bill didn't hesitate after that. Jim Anderson and that nice wife of his lived up on the Wilson farm. So did the Wyatt Penitys and their two bright kids. Bill went out to the woodshed and took down his shotgun. When he came back through the house he opened the pantry cupboard, found a couple of boxes of shells, and stuffed them in his pants pockets. Then he went out the back door and started across the fields toward the Wilson farm.

A LOT of folks made fun of Bill the next day. They laughed at him for having been taken in by a play-actor pretending to be a newsbroadcaster. But Bill Dock has been one of my heroes ever since that October night. I couple his name in my memory with that of Jonathan Harrington and for a good reason.

Jonathan was also asleep one night when he heard an excited voice on the air. It said a thousand foreign soldiers were marching down the road to town, and Jonathan got up and took his musket and walked out to the village green where he found John Parker, Bob Monroe, Sam Hadley, Ike Muzzy and more of his neighbors. A few hours later Jonathan (who was much younger then than Bill Dock was on the night he set out for the Wilson farm) crawled back home across the grass with a bullet in his belly. He reached his steps and died just as his wife came out of the door.

Now the point that I'd like to make is that none of Jonathan Harrington's companions of the fateful morning on Lexington village green ever attested that Jonathan had said to the man who had waked him: "Mr. Revere, this is obvious propaganda on the part of imperialistic moneygrubbers who would sacrifice my life on the altar of self interest."

AND as for Bill Dock there is no record of his having said, when he started out to help Jim Anderson on the Wilson farm, that Jim's ancestors had established a greedy empire that was no better than it should be, and therefore Jim could fend for himself. We know from what Bill did that he said nothing to himself. Perhaps the main feeling Bill had was that the kind of life he lived—work that he liked in the sun and talk by night beside the stove, trading ideas on running the government with Jim Anderson and Wyatt Penity—was endangered by men who, if they could, would tell him what he should work at and what he shouldn't, and who wouldn't let him speak his mind any more.

I'm not saying that Bill and Jonathan did the wisest thing possible under the circumstances. They had no experts to tell them what to do, and so they just did the best they could. Perhaps they would have acted more wisely if they had considered sending beef or bullets to help their neighbors defend themselves. That question ought to be left to men of experience in such things.

But Bill Dock told the world on that autumn evening that the spirit of Jonathan Harrington still lives. In an age of the questioning of most accepted values Bill Dock proved there are certain values that are not questioned by men of good will—the values of home and friendship and a free democratic life.

Fighting among ourselves is one proof that we are not degenerate, writes John Steinbeck in the next article of this series on "Our Country."

Navy Still Sticks To Big Battleship

(By The Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, Sept. 10—The navy reaffirmed its faith in the battleship as the backbone of sea power today by staking $700,000,000 of its present and prospective building money on seven of the floating fortresses.

Despite contentions of some aviation enthusiasts that air power has made the dreadnaught obsolete, navy officials set aside this sum for capital ships in a history-making $3,861,053,312 contract letting.

To Be Heavily Armored

The seven battleships will be heavily armored, long-range vessels of 45,000 tons or more, larger than any warships now afloat and the equal to those said to be under construction in other nations.

Reports circulated that three of them would be of 53,000 tons, but this could not be confirmed.

Chairman Vinson (D-Ga) of the House naval committee told his colleagues all seven would be 45,000-tonners.

By the time the latest batch of seven giants is completed four or

Louisiana Kidnap Victims To Tell Of Adventure On Radio

BY JOAN YOUNGER
United Press Staff Correspondent

NEW YORK, Sept. 10.—Three Louisiana high school students—two girls and a boy—thought it over today and decided that visiting New York was not a lot different from life in a mosquito-infested Louisiana swamp as hostages to a trio of escaped triggermen.

In either locale and circumstance you get nowhere near enough to eat and you lose a lot of sleep.

As for excitement, the trip to New York is twice as thrilling, and, in many respects, much more fearsome.

So spoke Voncelle Williams, 16 and blonde; Gladys Diamond, 15 and dark, and Jerry Harrigill, 17 and sleepy, all of Rayville, La.

The three spent from 5:30 p. m. Monday to 9:30 a. m. Wednesday as hostages to some of the 33 convicts who escaped last week from an Arkansas prison farm, and now they are in New York to tell their adventures on the radio.

The worst part of their ordeal was the night spent in the swamp with Willie Weeper, so-

United States Air Force Is Growing Fast

11,000 Ships In Next 19 Months Being Promised

(By The Associated Press)

BUFFALO, N. Y., Sept. 10—In 19 months, the army and navy will have approximately 11,000 combat airplanes—fighters and bombers—William S. Knudsen, chairman of the national defense commission, said today.

Almost through with a nationwide tour of aircraft plants in the company of General H. H. Arnold, chief of the army air corps, Knudsen said "we know the United States is making the best airplanes." He added:

Will Also Make Most

"I believe that presently we can say we are making the most airplanes."

The figure of 11,000 was based on a total production by April 1, 1942, of 33,000 planes, 14,000 destined for Great Britain and 19,000 for the armed services of the United States.

General Arnold said that of those to be delivered to the army and navy, approximately 60 per cent, or slightly more than 11,000, would be so-called combat types.

To Double Production

Knudsen said the current American airplane production, including both military and large commercial types of 900 a month, would be doubled in the next 12 months.

The defense commission chairman, seated in the office of Burdette S. Wright, president of the Curtiss aeroplane division of the Curtiss-Wright corporation, fixed at three a day the delivery of new Curtiss P-40 fighter planes to the air corps.

General Arnold said 524 P-40's, one of the newest types of American fighters, were on order for the air corps, and that 140 had been delivered.

Knudsen estimated the total United States engine production at from 2,200 to 2,400 a month, of all horsepowers, and said that by July, 1941, production would be up to 3,500 to 3,600 engines a month.

Mr. and Mrs. C. J. Shannon of 2204 Eighteenth street on birth of a son weighing 7 pounds 3 ounces at 6:27 o'clock this morning in West Texas hospital.

Delegates Boo As New Deal Is Criticized

Roar Of "Hurrah For Roosevelt" Halts Speaker

(By The Associated Press)

MINERAL WELLS, Sept. 10—Blunt talking Hal H. Collins, the keynoter, strafed the New Deal's labor and spending policies to the chorused boos and applause of a teeming state Democratic convention today.

Shouts and boos drowned out the Mineral Wells businessman when he shouted disapproval of excessive government spending.

The roar of "hurrah for Roosevelt" silenced the shouting speaker after he had asserted:

Too Much Federal Aid

"We have been accepting federal aid on everything from killing hogs up to raising children and we had better cut out that sort of thinking and monkey business."

The gallery and delegates joined in the stormy demonstration. Some applauded. Collins, clenching his fist, finally sent his voice over the roar and said:

"I'm not talking against that great president, Franklin D. Roosevelt. I want to tell you wild-eyed fellows that if you keep your shirts on you will agree with everything I say."

Once again the "hurrah for Roosevelt" echoed through the hall.

"I say the same thing," grinned Collins.

Boos Drawn Again

The speaker drew the boos again when he started anew on federal spending. He had told of a visit to Washington, of his cab driver explaining that the destruction "of a beautiful, sound government building" resulted because it did not conform to the type of architecture of the surrounding new buildings.

"That is a fair sample of where some of our money is going," Collins shouted.

Constant foot stomping and boos stopped the speech for almost a minute. The gallery chant of "we

Plans are being discussed to start a county wide lateral road campaign as soon as the two roads mentioned above are paved. It is hoped that the state highway department will designate the two roads with a state number when they are completed.

Fashion Tips Set By The Duchess

Associated Press Feature Service

The Duchess of Windsor, whom the western hemisphere is watching for style tips, sounded two interesting notes in the costume she chose for her first Bermuda interview.

First, she wore a suit whose tailored lines repeat a theme the fashion world is watching for fall.

Second, she displayed on its lapel a new jeweled gadget—a big flamingo pin set with diamonds and rubies.

Her suit was of crisp white rayon suiting, bound with navy blue braid on jacket and skirt. Her blouse was navy blue and her shoes were blue and white. Diamond and ruby earrings and a ruby and sapphire ring also were worn.

Add interesting fashion news: The Duchess wore no nail polish. Her fairly short-cut nails simply were buffed.

Texas Cotton Crop Is Good

(By The United Press)

AUSTIN, Sept. 10—Supplemental to the national forecast on cotton production, the federal agricultural marketing service here today issued a breakdown on Texas' estimated yield of 3,479,000 bales, compared with 2,846,000 in 1939.

Based upon conditions on Sept. 1, this forecast represents an increase in prospects since August 1 of 586,000 bales, or 20 per cent. Although the greater part of the increase in prospects occurred in the northwest, production indications are above those of a month ago in all districts except the south central and the extreme south. South Central Texas alone shows a loss in the indicated crop from August 1, due primarily to losses from weevil and boll worm in counties receiving excessive moisture in June and early July, and to unfavorable drouth conditions for late planted cotton in the coastal bend counties.

Abandonment of acreage is estimated at 2.1 per cent of the 8,963,000 acres in cultivation on July 1, which leaves 8,778,000 acres for harvest. Indicated yield per acre this year on the acreage remaining for harvest is 190 pounds compared with 160 pounds per acre in 1939, and 149 pounds average yield for the 10-year period (1929-1938).

Kennon Is Rewarded For Sales Record

Awards for selling the most insurance of any representative in the State Reserve Life Insurance company during the last year were given to C. N. Kennon of Lubbock at the state convention in Fort Worth.

Kennon returned Monday night. The convention was held Friday and Saturday.

Awards included $100, a certificate of honor and a gold watch and fob. He also will receive $10 a month for a year.

Roy Krebbs of Lubbock, employed by the same company, also attended the convention.

Petty Thieves Are In Action

Petty thievery found its way to police dockets Monday night.

Rix Holmes of 1807 Seventeenth street said a fog light had been taken from his automobile. Wayne Morris of 1513 Avenue D reported a stolen bicycle. A radio was taken from a house at the rear of 1109 Avenue B, reported S. D. Kelley. Mrs. J. H. Stiles of 3002 Twenty-second street reported someone stole a blouse from her car.

A man who said he had lost 70 cents in front of the police station was jailed when he "demonstrated in his search that he couldn't walk straight enough," said police. He had two indictments naming another fellow, in one of his pockets.

Probe Continued

A grand jury in 99th district court continued to investigate felony charges growing out of Lubbock crime of approximately a two-months period. The jury reported 10 true bills Saturday, but officials said anothed week or more would be required for the body to complete its investigations.

Theft of nine pairs of hose, valued at $8.72, was charged to Earnest H. Wood in county court. Joe Bob Johnston was complainant.

Petty Thefts Reported

A 31-year-old Lubbock man was charged in corporation court with breaking glass on the street. Sgt. Lewis Kittrell of the police department said the man had been given a chance to go home when he was found "sleeping off a drunk" on the Texas Technological college campus.

He was arrested after tossing a whisky bottle into the street in 1900-block Ninth street, Kittrell said.

A Mexican, 47 years old, was arrested by police and taken to county jail on informal complaint of aggravated assault on a Mexican woman.

LUNCHEON PLANNED

A luncheon will be served Wednesday at noon for the 1916 Needle club at the home of Mrs. E. R. Allen, 2313 Broadway.

FFA Plans Of Year Drafted

Preparations for activities during coming months were made Monday night at the first meeting of the school year of Lubbock district Future Farmers of America in the agricultural building of Texas Technological college.

Both members and vocational agriculture teachers organized for the ensuing year. O. T. Ryan, area supervisor, and Ray L. Chappelle, teacher trainer, directed the meeting.

Need Practice Show

Teachers voted to support a proposed spring calf and hog show at Slaton. Boys of the Lubbock district have not had county shows in which to practice judging and were forced to compete against county winners in an area show, it was pointed out. Slaton was asked to conduct the show.

Reports given showed area 1. of which the Lubbock district is a part, to have 76 Lone Star chapters during the last year, as compared with 28 for the next largest district in that respect. All Lubbock district chapters gained the rating.

FFA officers named were:

Officers Elected

E. R. Davis, Roosevelt, president; Jack DuLaney, Shallowater, vice president; Jessie Lee Minchew, Cooper, secretary; Leroy Weems, Lubbock, treasurer; Murl Galbraith, New Deal, reporter; Douthie Grinstead, Slaton, watchdog; J. L. Gamble, Frenship, parliamentarian; Rodney McFarland, Lorenzo, historian, and Roy Monk Roosevelt vocational agriculture teacher, adviser.

W. A. King of Lorenzo was chosen president and L. M. Hargraves of Frenship secretary of the teacher group, which meets the first Monday night in each month. Meetings were scheduled as follows:

Cooper, October; Roosevelt, November; Lorenzo, December; Idalou, January; Slaton, February; Lubbock, March; New Deal, April; Shallowater, May, and Frenship, June.

Garage Worker Glad He Looked Again

MOREHEAD, Ky., Sept. 10 (AP) — Allie Young, garage worker, is glad he looked the second time.

He threw away a letter thinking, he said, it was an advertisement. Upon his mother's suggestion, he later opened it.

It informed him he had inherited the estate of an aunt, Mrs. Taylor Young of New York. Young said attorneys told him the estate would aggregate between $75,000 and $100,000.

Grim Optimism For Britain Unshaken By Nazi Air Raids

BY EDWARD E. BOMAR
Associated Press Staff Writer

London's suffering citizenry might be cheered to know that the mounting ferocity of the Nazi air war has failed thus far to shake the grim optimism with which neutral military men as well as their own leaders view the outlook for Britain.

The tragic toll of hundreds killed and homes destroyed in the metropolis, along with the reports of "super-bombs" and Berlin's threats to intensify the raids "tenfold," have obscured but have not greatly altered the substantial basis for British hopes of ultimate victory.

Odds Not Shortened

The same American authorities who said privately last month that the odds were even or slightly favored Britain are unwilling yet to shorten them.

From available evidence the defending Royal Air Force remains formidable though weakened. It appears to be inflicting blows that hurt more than Berlin is willing to admit, and British morale continues high.

More important to Britain's outlook than the destruction of huge areas of London are the preparations to provide the R. A. F. with adequate bases beyond London to replace those damaged in the southeast.

It is from these camouflaged, gunringed and presumably underground bases that the defending fighters appear now to be taking off in greatest numbers to combat raiders. It is from them that the British bombers make their nightly forays against reich cities across the channel.

Blows Are Heard

Geography, numbers and several other factors make it impossible for the time being for British bombers to inflict the damage that crowded England suffers, but it is fairly certain that their blows are harder than Berlin will acknowledge.

Whereas the cables are crowded with eyewitness descriptions of the havoc wrought in London, the results of a three-hour raid on Hamburg are limited to characteristic terse admission in the German communique of "small" damage.

Optimism with regard to the R. A. F. is based likewise on indications that the first reinforcements of pilots are forthcoming from the empire training scheme centered in Canada and by Prime Minister Churchill's assertion that thus far Britain has been forced to employ a smaller proportion of its air defense forces than her foes.

Determination Needed

Britons, in contemplating the immediate outlook for London, have need of the stolid determination for which John Bull is known. Madrid and Chungking showed, however, how a determined urban people can withstand punishment.

As long as the R. A. F. remains in action, as long as the 1,000 or more anti-aircraft guns protecting the metropolitan area keep firing and the balloon barrages remain aloft, London is a long way from the fate of helpless Rotterdam, Warsaw and Barcelona.

School Enrollment In City Boosted

Increase of 141 students in the first day enrollment of the 1940-41 public school term as compared with that of last year was reported late Monday by Dr. W. B. Irvin, city superintendent.

In attendance on Monday were 5,800 students, while on the first day of the 1939-40 year the attendance was 5,659.

"I am sure we shall be able to readjust things in a day or two so that there will be no seriously overcrowded rooms," Dr. Irvin said Monday afternoon. The staggered schedule in Senior High school has made it possible to cope with the crowded conditions there, Irvin explained, and Junior High school will not be overcrowded unless there is a heavy additional enrollment.

Students in elementary schools of Lubbock will report for a full day of school Tuesday morning. Full schedules were observed in Junior and Senior High school on Monday, but in the elementary schools students were enrolled and dismissed.

By schools the attendance for the first day was as follows: Senior High school, 1189; Junior High school 1130; George M. Hunt, 464; Dupre, 631; Central Ward, 410; K. Carter, 597; George R. Bean, 307; Roscoe Wilson, 318; Sanders, 292; South West ward, 11; Guadalupe, 107; Dunbar, 344.

Red Cross Rushing Aid To Civilians

pund the state's border. They said then that 1936 had effectively disproved the saying: "As Maine goes, so goes the nation."

While the Maine figures were being studied by rival party leaders, Alaska was voting today in a "farthest north" general election, and eight states were holding primaries which will designate candidates for a total of five seats in the Senate and 47 in the House of Representatives. Gubernatorial nominations also were on the tickets in all except Louisiana.

These Voting Today

The states holding primaries today were: Arizona, Colorado, Louisiana, Michigan, Minnesota, New Hampshire, Vermont and Washington. Georgia will have a primary tomorrow and New Mexico on Saturday.

Today's primaries contained several contests which attracted special interest.

Arizona had a wide-open race for the designation of Democratic presidential electors, with Willkie Democrats challenging three different sets of electors supporting Roosevelt. Failure of the Democrats to file nominating petitions for electors left the issue to be decided by write-in votes. A victory for the Willkie slate would pledge the electors to cast Arizona's votes for him even though he might not carry the state in November.

Echoes Of Battle

Louisiana's balloting carried echoes of the battle which ousted Huey P. Long's political dynasty, with Governor Sam H. Jones appealing for the defeat of the state's entire delegation in the House of Representatives. Most of the eight incumbents campaigned for Earl K. Long in his unsuccessful effort last winter to defeat Jones and to continue as governor.

In Minnesota, Senator Shipstead, Farmer-Laborite for 18 years who left his party this summer, was seeking the Republican senatorial nomination in a four-man race. Members of the Farmer-Labor party have been urged by their leaders not to desert party ranks.

Another Minnesota contest found Governor Harold E. Stassen, Republican national convention keynoter, seeking renomination, over two opponents.

In Michigan Senator Vandenberg was asking renomination on the Republican ticket.

called because he was always laughing: Big Bill, and Little Bill, desperate characters who kept talking about how they guessed they would have to "shoot it out" with the posse of 1,000 men which had them surrounded.

It wasn't that the hostages were scared the convicts would shoot them.

"We weren't ever afraid of that," Voncelle explained. "We thought they might do something with their hands—like strangling us—but they weren't the kind of men to shoot girls."

As for Jerry, he just couldn't get excited. He was "the only one who got any sleep," Gladys said.

But the girls missed their sleep and swamp berries are definitely not sustaining.

"But for that matter," Voncelle said, "we haven't had any sleep since we learned we were coming to New York two days ago. And we're all hungry—we haven't had time to eat."

The trio got into New York at 2 a. m. today by airplane from Memphis. The girls had new dresses. The mosquito bites on their legs were practically cured. Jerry had new trousers, replacing the ones through which a posseman's bullet passed to nick his leg when the convicts ran into an ambush.

eran, Arthur Blake, 46, as he said goodbye to his wife and three children. As the train pulled out, he said.

"That's a good job done. Now I have only myself and the cat to think about. Instead of gathering up my family every night and taking them to the shelter and watching their nerves gradually break under the stress of the bombing I can act as I please.

"Believe me, the bombings will have to get a lot worse before I crack. Hitler can send all he's got and so long as we give Berlin a pasting I won't worry too much now that the wife and kids are out of the way."

Blake seemed to sum up the feelings of the men I talked with. They agreed that with the war right at home in London it was a man's job and women and children were better out of the way.

ton; San Antonio through Laredo to El Paso.

Of particular importance among the applications, Schomburg asserted, is the proposed airline to Denver. It would serve an immense territory now without such service, he said. Another important consideration which seems not generally appreciated, he added, is that it would provide connection at Denver so as to create the fastest and shortest route between the entire Northwest and the Gulf coast.

"Information to us indicates that fast action may be expected on the applications after the hearings," he commented. "If Braniff applications should be approved, service will be put into operation without delay with the most modern equipment which already is available for that purpose."

Next Improvement In Cars To Be Doubling Of Fuel Mileage

BY HOWARD W. BLAKESLEE
Associated Press Science Editor

DETROIT, Sept. 10 — The next major change in automobile driving, the American Chemical society was informed today, is likely to be doubling the miles per gallon of gasoline.

Laboratory tests already show both that it can be done, and that while the gasoline for doubled mileage will cost more, the driver still may cut his fuel bill by perhaps 20 per cent.

The reports were made by T. A. Boyd of the research laboratories of the General Motors corporation. Up to now, he said, the buyers of cars have preferred more power, more acceleration and more hill-climbing capacity rather than just more miles per gallon. They can't have both, he explained.

"It begins to appear," he then added, "that from now on car users may prefer to take the benefits of further improvements in fuel and of advances in engineering in terms of more miles per gallon."

American drivers today ride on what is known as 70 octane gasoline, on the average. Boyd said that 100 octane experiments show 55 per cent more miles per gallon at 20 miles an hour, and more than 40 per cent gain at higher speeds.

But above 100 octane a car gives 50 per cent more miles at 60 miles an hour and 70 per cent more at 20 miles an hour. One hundred octane is already on the market for aviation.

Stock Market

DECLINES ARE ERASED

NEW YORK, Sept. 10 (AP) — Rallying tendencies, while rather feeble, crept into the stock market today and enabled scattered favorites to erase portions of Monday's decline.

Gains, running to a point or more shortly after the opening, were cut or cancelled in many cases as the session proceeded and closing prices were somewhat mixed.

Transfers approximated 350,000 shares. Traders seemed a bit less shaky over the intensified war blasts at England, but the majority exhibited a desire to keep accounts light while results of the fighting remained in doubt.

Steels were up most of the time, although slipping occasionally. These had the benefit of U. S. Steel's summary revealing August shipments of the corporation climbed to 1,455,604 net tons from 1,296,887 in July and were the highest since April, 1937. August shipments last year amounted to 885,636 tons.

Among shares giving a relatively good account of themselves were U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, Chrysler, U. S. Rubber, Woolworth, United Aircraft, Boeing, Lockheed, N. Y. Central, Great Northern, Phelps Dodge and Westinghouse.

Lagging were Dupont, Eastman Kodak, General Electric, Union Carbide, North American and Johns-Manville.

Tech Is Leader In Traffic Education

First high school in Texas to offer a full traffic safety education and driver training course will be in San Antonio and a Texas Technological college faculty member assisted in training San Antonio teachers to offer the instruction.

Texas Tech has been a leader in promotion of traffic safety education and has offered a teacher training course in traffic safety longer than any college in Texas.

F. L. McRee, associate professor of civil engineering, has returned from San Antonio after assisting Dr. F. R. Noffsinger, educational consultant of the American Automobile association, in conducting an intensive training course last week.

Several Texas high schools, including the Lubbock High school, have offered traffic education courses but have not offered actual driver training and demonstrations along with the classroom instruction.

First teacher training course on the subject was offered at Tech in the summer of 1937 and such instruction has been offered each summer since.

Roman Nobleman Is Held By Fascists

ROME, Sept. 10 (AP)—Prince Alessandro Torlonia, wealthy young Roman nobleman and son of the former Elsie Moore of New York, has been arrested in a roundup of Italians suspected of "anti-Fascist or defeatist tendencies," friends disclosed today.

The 28 year old prince is a son-in-law of former King Alfonso of Spain. His sister, Marina, married Frank Shields, the one-time American tennis star.

Friends said he was accused of "talking too much."

FORT WAYNE, Ind., Sept. 10 (U.P.)—Ethel Gaff, 19, hotel waitress, awaited word from Detroit today as to whether Henry Ford meant as a tip the $46 in change he left on a table after paying a $4 luncheon check, or whether he just forgot it in his hurry to get away.

Ford had lunch in Fort Wayne en route to Detroit after a Rushville, Ind., conference with Wendell L. Willkie.

Schools Closed To Battle Paralysis

KANSAS CITY, Kans., Sept. 10 (U.P.)—Officials at Kansas City, Kans., and of Johnson county, Kans., acted today to prevent the spread of infantile paralysis by ordering all schools closed.

The first fatality from infantile paralysis in Johnson county this year occurred yesterday when Donald Bowers, 14, died in the University of Kansas hospital.

Officials of the two affected counties further ordered all children 15 years of age and younger to keep away from public play grounds, public meetings, theaters, churches and similar places.

Two Persons Killed In Traffic Mishaps

FORT WORTH, Sept. 10 (AP) — Death of two persons here today brought to 41 the number killed in traffic accidents in Tarrant county this year, against 31 on the same date a year ago.

Percy Temple, 15, newspaper carrier, and Mrs. A. D. Harvey, were the latest victims. Mrs. Harvey died of injuries received in a truck-automobile collision Sunday in which three others were killed, including her husband and a 3-year-old boy.

Young Temple died of injuries received when his bicycle was struck by an auto last night.

Aged Texas Pioneer Is Taken By Death

Hart was born in Jackson, Miss., 15 years before the start of the Civil war. He moved to Montague county at the age of three.

Hart lived in the days when life depended on a "quick draw" and was fond of telling stories of the years he served as deputy sheriff and jailer at Montague. He moved here two years ago.

Food Shortage Faces France

(By The Associated Press)

PARIS, Sept. 6. (Via Berlin, Delayed)—A shortage of certain foodstuffs in occupied France which can be met only by strict rationing this winter was forecast today by officials of the agricultural section of the German military administration.

They said the prospective shortage resulted directly from military operations.

Flour Being Traded

These authorities said German occupation forces were not sending large quantities of food from France into Germany. Wheat flour is being exported into the reich from France, they said, but only in return for rye flour from which German army bread is made.

The primary reason for the prospective shortage, German officials said, was the removal by the French government of between 8,000,000 and 10,000,000 inhabitants from departments of northern France when the war started. Included in this number were between 3,000,000 and 4,000,000 agricultural workers.

Had Two Effects

This exodus, they pointed out, had two effects. First, the crops which would have been planted in early May were forgotten after the first German offensive began May 10. Second, crops which, like the first cutting of hay, would have been harvested in the same period, were left standing in the fields.

The most urgent rationing needs concern meat and fat, German sources said. One reason given was that cattle herds were abandoned by fleeing populations, resulting in considerable losses of livestock.

Steps already have been taken to boost wheat production in 1941 through an increase in acreage.

Wine production throughout the country was reported "very good."

Giant Bombs

gun" and said "even more planes for London" was the order issued to the Nazi luftwaffe.

German daylight raiders returned to the attack at noon, interrupting the lunch hour of London's weary millions with a 25-minute alarm from 12:54 p. m. (5:54 a. m., C.S.T.) to 1:19 p. m.

In the night attack, 120 persons were reported buried in the wreckage of 20 houses in a single district. By dawn, rescue crews digging into the rubble had found only 20 alive.

British RAF bombers made a 43-minute raid on Berlin before dawn, but the Germans asserted that only scattered apartment houses were damaged in the Nazi capital's northern outskirts. The Wesermuende industrial area in northern Germany was also bombed.

Attack Is Admitted

Hitler's high command acknowledged a British naval attack on the German-held French coast, in which, it said, "some light enemy vessels aimlessly fired several salvos which hit the hinterland without damage."

"The enemy was driven away by the fire of our naval artillery," the high command said.

Nazi pilots returning from the night raids said direct bomb-hits were scored on London's great East Indian and Royal Victoria docks along the Thames, further disrupting the capital's vital water-borne food supplies.

The newspaper Berliner Zeitung asserted London will share the fate of Warsaw and Rotterdam — the Polish and Dutch capitals which were virtually laid in ruins — unless Prime Minister Winston Churchill stops sending "his pirates over Germany nightly."

Shipping Said Lost

The British admiralty reported a loss of 84,575 tons of British and neutral merchant shipping in the week ended Sept. 1, bringing the total for the first year of the war to 2,771,333 tons. German-Italian shipping losses over the same period were listed as 1,236,000 tons.

Casualties in last night's violent attack were not immediately announced, but it was believed they would approach those of the preceding two nights, when 306 and 286 respectively were killed and a total of 2,700 badly wounded.

This would bring the 3-day toll to about 900 dead and 4,000 seriously injured.

Big Battleships

five years hence, officials said, the navy's battle line will boast of 32 dreadnaughts in contrast with the 15 now in actual service.

Planes To Be Built

The current contract letting provided for 8 aircraft carriers to cost around $47,000,000 each, and officials announced that negotiations were in the final stage for contracts covering 2,400 airplanes to cost about $108,000,000.

In addition, the orders included 27 cruisers costing around $30,000,000 apiece, 115 destroyers to cost about $8,100,000 each, 43 submarines costing about $6,000,000 each, and one repair ship to cost around $16,000,000.

The navy statement said this program would give the nation a fleet of 688 combatant ships, the largest elements of which would be completed in four or five years. This would be greater than any navy now afloat and, officials said, larger than any other power is known to be building.

Cash Circulation In U. S. Boosted

WASHINGTON, Sept. 10 (AP)—A $1.28 jump in cash in circulation per person in the United States was reported by the treasury today as having occurred during August.

Scene of many a famous trial, the courthouse was one of targets of low-flying British bombers which staged a three hour raid on Berlin.

Big Irish Cop Almost Cries While Negro Undergoes Operation; He Was Anxious To Keep Dallas Traffic Record Clean

(By The Associated Press)

DALLAS, Sept. 10 — A big Irish cop with a weather beaten face and a gold badge, knocked on the door of a widely known brain specialist at 3 a. m.

"Please, doc," said the policeman, "can you come at once, he's hurt bad."

The doctor dressed and rushed to a hospital.

There he found a negro, whose head had been hurt in an automobile accident, moaning and groaning.

Several policemen stood around, their faces lined with worry.

The doctor went to work, shaking his head.

The big cop with the gold badge almost cried.

"We can't let this guy die," he pleaded.

The doctor worked feverishly and the negro's eyes finally opened.

The cops sighed. The negro moaned. The doctor said the patient would live.

And Dallas today celebrated 100 deathless days — 100 days in which there was not a traffic fatality in the city, thanks to the big Irish cop and his coworkers, who might have laid a blackjack on the head of anybody who endangered the record for which they aimed.

Husband Is Blamed In Child's Death

(By The United Press)

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Sept. 10 — Harry Aitken, 32, was held by police today, accused by his wife of the mutilation slaying of their 14-month-old niece, Bertha Lorene Aitken.

He was brought here from his Plattsburg, Mo., home for safekeeping after Clinton County Prosecutor D. F. Bennett announced that Mrs. Aitken had signed a seven-page statement blaming the murder on her husband. Aitken denied the charge and his brother, Fred Aitken, father of the child, came to his defense and said that police had "got the wrong man."

Been Having Trouble

Bennett said that Mrs. Aitken told him her husband had confessed to her that he smothered the child Sept. 1 to get even with Fred Aitken. The two families had been "having trouble," she said.

"Harry had said that if he caught one of Fred's kids over here he would stomp it to death," Mrs. Aitken said. "I wanted to tell the truth but it was so hard and so terrible."

Mrs. Aitken said her husband denied criminally attacking the baby although a coroner's report found that the child had been assaulted.

Photos Of Students Are To Be Taken

Photographic equipment had been set up in the west lobby of the administration building at Texas Technological college this morning preparatory to taking of pictures of every fall semester student in the college.

Rollin T. Herald, student from Fort Worth, will make photographs of the students. He constructed a camera especially for the purpose.

Herald is prepared for "mass production" of photographs. Students will pay 16 cents, or four cents each for four pictures. One will be filed with the registrar, one with the dean of men or dean of women and one with his academic dean and the fourth will be placed on a card for the student to carry for identification purposes.

Photographs will not be made each year of all students. Each student will be required to have his photograph made only once while in the college.

Students may pay fees, have housing approved, obtain permits to register and have photographs made any day this week after today.

The college is located at Lake Charles. Askew, who was registered from Del Rio when attending Tech, was president of the Block and Bridle club his senior year and was a member of the junior livestock team and an American Royal judging team.

Self-Igniting Leaves Charged To British

BERLIN, Sept. 10. (AP)—Informed German sources declared today that British fliers for a considerable time had been dropping thousands of "self-igniting leaves" which, by their very nature, "could only set fire to sheds, houses, forests, but not cause damage to munitions plants and other military objects."

Also, the German sources said, these "leaves" cause poisoning and burns among the civilian population.

Herger of Houston were out-of-town visitors at the luncheon. President Fred Harbaugh announced a delegation would go to Muleshoe Friday night for charter presentation of the new club there.

Strickland Elected—J. D. Strickland, assistant professor of animal husbandry at Texas Technological college, has been elected to life membership in the Texas Baby Chick association. He served as vice chairman of the flock inspection school at the recent meeting of the association in Amarillo.

Attend Convention — J. Doyle Settle, Hop Halsey and Ralph Brock of Lubbock and Paul Eubank of Matador left Lubbock Monday for Mineral Wells to attend the state Democratic convention today. Settle is field representative of Texas Technological college, Brock is Lubbock county attorney-elect, and Halsey and Eubank are state representatives-elect. Judge Marshall Formby of Dickens, senator-elect from this district, planned to attend the convention.

Magazine Planned—First issue of the Texas Tech magazine for the 1940-41 year will be published the last of this month, Wendell Watson, executive secretary of the Alumni and Ex-Students association, said this morning.

Injured Woman Recovering—Mrs. Gertrude Anderson, supervisor of the WPA sewing room in Brownfield, is recovering in Treadaway-Daniell hospital in Brownfield from injuries received Saturday morning when a blowout caused the automobile she was driving to overturn, friends reported this morning. The accident occurred south of Brownfield. She probably will leave the hospital Thursday.

Man, Car Sought — Highway patrolmen in Lubbock this morning said a 30-year-old former convict was sought in connection with theft of a model A Victoria coupe, license 426-573, stolen from a Flaydada man. Owner is Carrick Snodgrass.

Held In Jail—The sheriff's department said this morning that Benardo Garcia, a Mexican, was in jail, under county court charge of aggravated assault. In a three-count complaint, the Mexican was charged with having struck with his fist Sara M. Martinez, Petra Martinez and Fannie Alguin; all Mexican women. Mack Hereford, a negro, was charged with unlawfully carrying a pistol. Officials said Ernest Wood, charged with theft, had been assessed a penalty of 30 days in jail and court costs.

want Roosevelt" started again.

Collins smiled:

"I like all you folks whether you like me or not."

Sen Elliott Present

Elliott Roosevelt, the president's son, sat directly behind Collins. A few minutes later, Roosevelt, introduced as temporary vice-chairman, told the delegates:

"My business now is routine. I'm saving my thunder for two o'clock this afternoon."

One Man's Opinion

The buzz of conversation, silent until Collins, frequently reminding that he was "expressing one man's opinion," reached the attack on federal spending, droned through the hall.

Through an attack on the Wagner act, which he said had created theoretical and biased bureaucrats to take the place of courts, the crowd remained silent. Then there was applause when Collins warned against the danger of Communist agitators in the ranks of labor.

The end of Collins' speech brought applause, applause that continued a full 30 seconds. A delegate jumped to his feet and asked for recognition from the chair.

Executive Committee Chairman E. B. Germany gained the floor and routine business was resumed.

Woman Is Cheered

The crowd shook the hall with tumultuous shouting when Mrs. Clara Driscoll of Corpus Christi, national committeewoman, strode to the speaker's rostrum and said.

"To me there can be no such thing as a Willkie Democrat."

Rebel yells and foot stomping created a din that lasted for minutes.

The delegates broke into loud cheering when Collins in his speech voiced the opinion that it is "unwise and detrimental to the best interest of Texas to allow officials to seek another office without resigning the position they hold."

Two of the candidates against Governor O'Daniel were members of the state railroad commission and another was Highway Commissioner Harry Hines of Wichita Falls, who sat on the platform while Collins spoke. The delegates listened in silence when Collins assailed the "Kelly-Nash machine" in Chicago and the "Hague machine" in New Jersey.

Defense Is Urged

They applauded when he called attention to the asserted menace from European dictators and urged adequate preparations for defense.

Contrary to custom, Committee Chairman Germany called the convention to order promptly at the scheduled time. It was quite a while, however, before any business was transacted, the delegates meanwhile joined in song.

Germany told the delegates that it was "a happy occasion for me to open the second administration of one of the greatest governors Texas has ever known."

"It is unusual," he continued, "for the people to be so nearly united behind a man who has been in the governor's office for two years."

Support Is Asked

There was loud cheering when Germany first mentioned the name of President Roosevelt. He urged Democrats to give wholehearted support this fall to the party's national ticket.

There was no opposition to the state executive committee's recommendations for temporary officers. There was cheering when temporary Chairman Collins was introduced.

Governor O'Daniel was warmly greeted when introduced for an address.

The chief executive urged the delegates to "throw aside insignificant things" and "give serious consideration to our Democracy."

No Time To Argue

"With the fate of the next to the last Democracy in the world hanging in the balance," he said, "now is no time to argue about the little things over which we have quarreled in the past."

The governor appealed for "wholehearted cooperation in bringing good, clean government to the state of Texas."

The crowd rose as one when O'Daniel finished and broke into long applause. The sentiment was in contrast to that toward the end of the convention two years ago at Beaumont.

Former Governor Pat M. Neff of Waco was frequently interrupted by applause when he appealed to Texans to rid this state "of all isms except Americanisms."

"America must become the welding pot as well as the melting pot," Neff said.

Like O'Daniel, Neff called attention to the precarious position of Democracies because of world conditions.

"We should not permit people to live in this country," he thundered, "who are not in sympathy with the ideals of the American republic."

SUGAR LAND, Sept. 10. (U.P.)—Two convicts stole a new automobile at Harlem state prison farm near here today and escaped.

They were Jack Price, 22, and Robert King, 23. Prison officials said that the break occurred at dawn, the convicts driving away toward Katy.

Price was described as being five feet nine inches tall, weighing 140 pounds, and having brown hair, blue eyes and fair complexion. King is five feet five inches tall, with brown hair and fair complexion, and weighs 120 pounds.

•Scribe Describes Drama As German Bombs Fall Throughout London

Exciting Time Dodging Death

BY G. H. P. ANDERSON
Associated Press Staff Writer

LONDON, Sept. 10.—From the rooftop observation post of the Associated Press building, shaken periodically by the heavy blasts of Nazi bombs, I watched last night the fire-lit unfolding of the German air raid.

At first, like a small boy drawing the curtain in some summer barn theater, a single high-flying plane traced a trail of white smoke across the silvery sky three minutes after the air raid warnings sounded.

The smoke, possibly a marker for attack, lay edgewise in a lazy arc.

Drama Is Begun

Then, suddenly an anti-aircraft shell flashed in the southwest; there was a bomb thud in the northwest, followed by the faint sound of gunfire; the drone of planes grew louder.

The night's drama had begun.

Momentarily, silence fell. A dog could be heard barking in the distance, while a horse clattered over cobblestones nearby.

Then an ambulance bell clanged for the right-of-way.

A scattering of lone planes circled about, dropping incendiary bombs at opposite points of the compass in an obvious effort to set beacon fires such as guided the raiders Saturday and Sunday nights.

Another bigger plane sped overhead, seemingly in a high-powered, steady climb, with a sound like that of a power-saw cutting through tough English oak.

Bombs Are Scattered

A dozen bombs fell at scattered points.

Several planes came over central London, and the anti-aircraft guns opened up again. Several bombs dropped at some distance.

Another lone bomber dropped a "Molotoff breadbasket" not far away.

This device, a big container that discharged many little incendiary bombs, was named by the Finns, who first felt its horror in the war with Soviet Russia last winter, and named it for the Soviet premier-foreign minister.

The big bomb opened with a blue-white flash, almost silently. Then its cargo of small incendiary bombs spread far and wide.

Activity increased slightly, but still was less in mid-evening than on Sunday night.

I dodged down from the roof when a cluster of incendiaries whistled past.

Building Is Shaken

Suddenly five heavy explosives, like the boom of a mammoth bass drum, shook the entire building. I ducked instinctively.

Three of the city's most famous churches—one a landmark known to every American visitor—were threatened for several hours by a fire started by high explosive and incendiary bombs in an extensive block of office buildings.

I left the roof, and running through the streets at the height of the raid I once had to leap into a doorway and at another time to throw myself full length on the pavement at the whine of falling bombs.

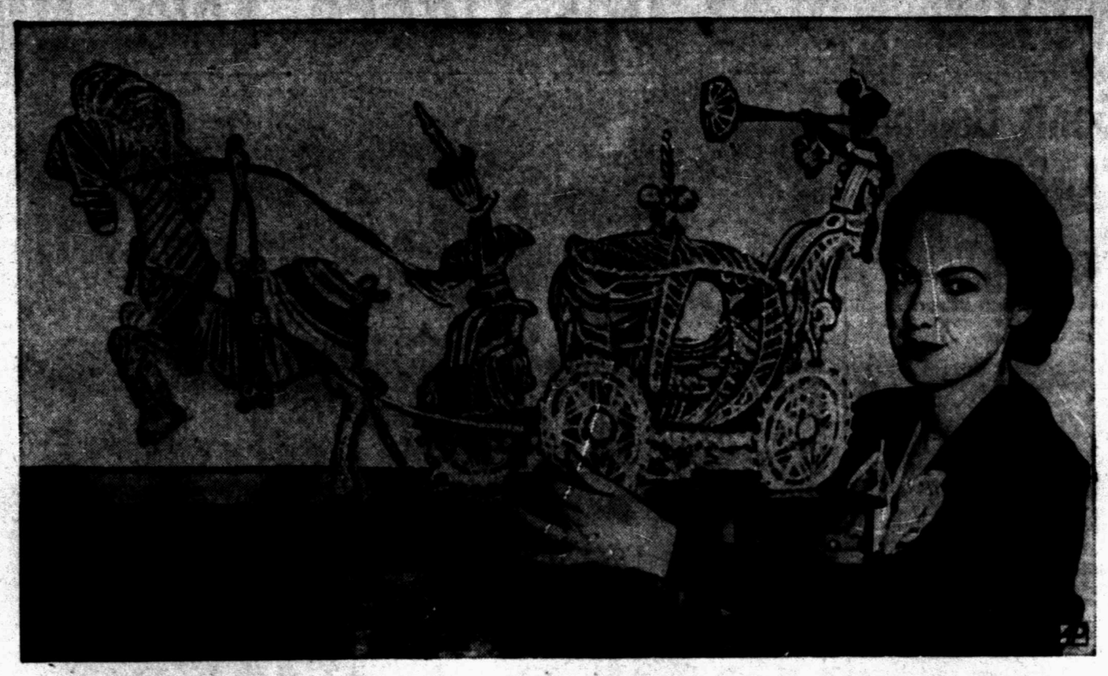

One bomb dug a deep crater in the middle of a street that usually is one of the city's busiest. The explosion hurled pieces of plate glass big enough to slice off a man's head.

Another bomb cleanly tore four floors out of a textile manufacturers' building, leaving the walls so bulging that it seemed they soon must topple into the street.

Firemen calmly played hose on the flames which had leaped up in the narrow street from one side to the other.

Yet in a very short time they had that blaze well under control.

It appeared that last night the Nazis were finding their beacons snuffed out almost as soon as they lighted them.

Seven Silent Men Band Together To Form Partnership In Crime; First Robbery Is Staged And Now All Are In Law's Hands

NEW YORK, Sept. 10 (U.P.)—In the still hours of the early morning, seven silent men banded together as partners in crime and committed a single, silent and unsuccessful robbery.

And in a room in a district bureau later, a room so quiet you could easily hear the point of a pencil snap, the seven silently confessed to their crime, police reported.

The seven, all deaf mutes between the ages of 19 and 28, used countless gestures and a half-dozen scratch pads to tell this story to police:

Over coffee in a Bronx restaurant, they decided to end their unemployment and become robbers.

Armed with a knife, they quietly crept up on a victim. One pressed the knife into his back, the others encircled him. He handed over $19.

The victim, Siorindo Passanto, a clerk, proved no mute. He yelled for police and then ran to a telephone.

Police caught four of the deaf mutes at an elevated station after one officer fired a shot into the air. The deaf mutes didn't hear the shot, but they saw the upraised arm and the gun. The three others were arrested at their homes.

Detectives William Colby and Arthur Seyffert said it took 75 handwritten notes just to get the names and addresses.

Modern communication was born in the "telegraph signs" which were patented in 1840 by Samuel F. B. Morse.

Property Is Given To Hygiene Association

AUSTIN, Sept. 10 (U.P.)—Donation of 16 unimproved city lots in Dallas, to the David Graham Hall trust which finances work of the Texas Social Hygiene association, was announced today by R. F. Vayer, executive secretary for the trust. The gift was made by Malcolm Reed, Austin cotton and oil man, who had been a previous contributor to the fund.

Proceeds from sale of the lots will be used towards establishment of research and clinical laboratories in Dallas.

County Judges And Commissioners To Hold Fall Convention In Amarillo This Week-End

(Special To The Journal)

DICKENS, Sept. 10—Plans for the fall convention of the West Texas County Judges' and Commissioners' association convention at Amarillo on September 12, 13, and 14 are nearing completion, Judge Marshall Formby of Dickens, association president, has announced. The convention opens on Thursday, September 12 at 3 p. m. when registration starts, and closes the following Saturday at noon with report of the Resolutions Committee, selection of officers for 1941, and selection of the spring convention city.

Among those who have already been named on the program are Bascom Giles, state land commissioner; Dr. L. A. Woods, state school superintendent; Grady Hazelwood, state Senator-elect of Amarillo; T. C. Root of Texas Technological college; Senator George Moffett of Chillicothe; John Lee Smith, Senator-elect of Throckmorton; and Judge Frank Day of Plainview.

Ellis To Respond

County Judge James A. Ellis of Levelland will make the response to the address of welcome which will be delivered early Friday morning by Mayor Ross Rogers and Judge J. N. Riggs, both of Amarillo.

Members of the resolutions committee are as follows: Judge L. B. Lewis of Baird, Commissioner Ernest Smith of Crosbyton, Judge Lee Bowen of Post, Commissioner L. M. Rankin of Hale county, Commissioner Ben Mansker of Slaton, Judge Carl Hulsey of Abilene, Judge Dave Shanks of Perryton, and Judge W. Coffee, jr., of Silverton.

Other officers besides Formby are Judge O. McDaniels of Seymour, vice-president; and John H. Winters, county commissioner at Amarillo, secretary-treasurer. The banquet will be held on Friday night.

Reorganization Of Air Corps Studied

WASHINGTON, Sept. 10 (U.P.)—The war department plans a broad reorganization of the army air corps by splitting the nation into four "air districts" and creating separate air forces in Panama and Hawaii, it was learned today.

The plans were said to be nearing approval. The reorganization, which would decentralize the present air corps setup, is being worked out in connection with the projected expansion of the army air corps from around 3,200 planes to 25,000 by 1942.

The new districts would have temporary headquarters at Mitchel field, N. Y., for the northeast section; MacDill field, Fla., for the southeast; Hamilton field, Calif., for the southwest, and McChord field, Wash., for the northwest.

There are now three "wings" in the United States, and one each in Panama and Hawaii. The new plan would establish six pursuit, three bombardment and one light bombardment wing in the United States, one pursuit wing each in Panama and Hawaii; and a composite group in Puerto Rico.

Punta Arenas, Chile, had 150 days of rain in the last year.

Masquerade As Man Is Ruined For Girl

PUEBLO, Colo., Sept. 10 (A.P.)—A family quarrel spoiled Daisy May Strickler's four-year masquerade as a man.

Police Captain R. E. Pratt said the 31-year-old woman, who said she had posed as "Jack Stickler" because "it was easier that way to find work," was taken into custody.

Also arrested on disturbance charges were Miss Stickler's cousin, Violet Croasman, 20, whom she had listed as her "wife" in applying for relief; her brother, George Stickler, 22, and two other cousins, George Croasman, 25, and Jesse Croasman, 16.

Captain Pratt said the five were arrested after a quarrel during which Miss Stickler's brother, a steelworker, struck her several times.

C OF C TO MEET

SUDAN, Sept. 10—Sudan Chamber of Commerce will meet in the city hall tonight at 8 o'clock, said R. E. Doss, president.

Several important questions are to be discussed, said Doss.

Directly or indirectly, the automobile industry is estimated to provide employment for more than 1,500,000 persons in the south.

Highway Department Will Hold Positions

AUSTIN, Sept. 10 (A.P.)—The highway department has announced it would hold open the jobs of any of its 8,500 employes who are called for military service through the national guard or organized reserves.

Every man called will have upon his return a job of the same grade and with a salary status at least equal to that held at the time of his departure, the highway commission announced officially. Men promoted or employed to replace workers called to military duty will be returned to their previous status.

Many highway workers are members of the national guard and a large number of engineers are reserve officers.

Borger Gassers Are In The Market For Any Idea On How To Handcuff Hubbers

Lubbock Bats Ring Loud In 14-0 Victory

Riding the crest of five consecutive Shaughnessy playoff triumphs, two of them crucial decisions over Borger's dangerous Gassers in the final round, Manager Charlie Engle's Lubbock Hubbers will shoot for their third straight over the carbon city machine in the north Panhandle orchard tonight.

The Gassers were humbled Monday night at the Home of the Hubbers, 14 to 0, largely through the four-hit masterpiece twirled by Gene Stack and the all 'round lusty clouting of the Lubbock batting brigade.

Hubbers Favorites

The teams tangle in Borger tonight and Wednesday night. Should Lubbock win both contests, the series would be over and the Hubbers would have their third straight pennant tacked to the flag pole. If Borger wins one or both of them, the series will continue in Borger Thursday night, and if the Gassers manage to stave off the Hubber threat through two or even all three of the games, then the scene will shift back to the local ball yard Friday and Saturday nights if necessary.

Such a possibility is highly improbable, however.

Nell Meets Master

Striking in every inning but the third and fourth, the White Sox farm hands demonstrated their superiority in practically every department with ease last night.

Indicative of Stack's masterful hurling were his two strikeouts of Manager Gordon Nell. The Borger home run clouter finally jerked himself in favor of Ernie Potocar who left catching duties to Jim Reynolds.

Schlereth Is "Hero"

Hitting honors for the night were somewhat divided, but Ed Schwedo, the league's leading batter, pounded out three doubles in five trips up. Chester Hajduk followed with two doubles, Boyd Watkins got a couple of singles, and Gene Schlereth, batting hero of the contest, homered and hit a single to account for five tallies.

In the sixth stanza, Elvin Mahan hit one over the palings to shove in two counters.

Williams To Pitch

Adding to the ease of the Lubbock triumph was the fine defensive work of Schlereth and Mahan in the infield, Watkins and Schwedo in the outfield.

Today, as the Hubs left for Borger, each was somewhat better off financially. Monday's "appreciation night" at the park netted a tidy little sum for the team as well as the individual awards offered by Dr M. C. Overton, vice president of the Hubbers, and John Toles.

Big Gib Williams, Lubbock's right-hander of no mean ability, likely will start tonight for the Hubbers. Manager Nell not announcing his mound preference before leaving for his home battlefield.

Big Squad Is Out At Junior High

This afternoon when Lubbock Junior High school's football hopefuls report, Coaches Mule Davis, Lovic Liston and Gordon Thompson expect the total list to push even farther past the 102 mark reached in Monday's opening workout.

The larger than usual number of recruits included 55 Cowboy prospects, the remainder being classed under the Calf Roper group, the next youngest set of grid enthusiasts.

Mentors Are Pleased

Coach Davis plans to shave his Cowboy squad down somewhat, but will retain a majority of the recruits. He commented on the fine showing:

"It appears that we have some pretty good material in all this group." Twenty-four boys will make up the traveling squad for the eight-game schedule, and the chance to select a hand-picked squad is gratifying to any mentor.

The schedule for the Cowboys, who marched undefeated through a 9-game card last season, follows (all games are to be played on Thursdays):

Sept. 26—Spur, there; Oct. 3—Littlefield, here; Oct. 10—Crosbyton, there; Oct. 17—Levelland, here; Oct. 24—Lamesa, there, tentative; Oct. 31—Sweetwater, here; Nov. 7—Snyder, tentative; Nov. 14—Big Spring, there.

Twenty Years Of Coaching At Georgia Tech Have Mellowed Old Fox; He's In No Hurry

BY RONNEY WHEELER
Associated Press Sports Writer

ATLANTA, Sept. 10—Twenty years of coaching Georgia Tech football teams have mellowed old Bill Alexander. He's in no rush.

Clad in a billowing blue sack suit, he watched his squad of Yellow Jackets limber up and run through some of the intricate formations with which Tech baffled the best of them last fall. Lacking four, it was the same team that ran Missouri ragged, 21-7, in the Orange bowl last New Year's day.

Scrimmage?

"Shucks," snorted the old fox of the flats, "if they scrimmaged now they couldn't do anything but butt heads. There's no use scrimmaging until they've really learned some plays and sharpened up their blocking and tackling."

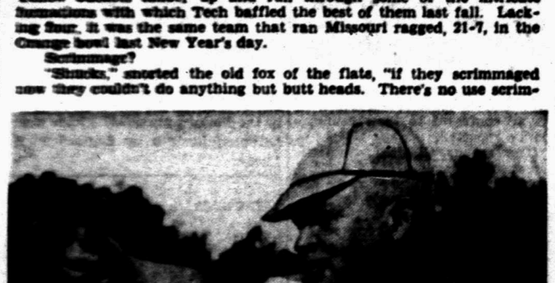

Then he ambled off to watch Johnny Bosch, Ralph Plaster, Roy Graves and Bobby Dodd confound would-be taggers with liberal doses of hidden-ball hocus-pocus.

When Georgia Tech came from nowhere last year to share the Southeastern conference football title, some of the railbirds insisted the under-rated Yellow Jackets did it with mirrors.

Most of the mirrors are in place again this season.

There were losses, to be sure. Alex must replace 1939's general-issimo, Howard Ector. Also Captain Buck Murphy, a great blocking back, and two first-string tackles, Eston Lackey and Charlie Wyatt.

But it was not for shipping paper dolls that Alex was voted the outstanding coach of the conference last December. He has plenty of material.

Dark Horse Leads Amateur Tourney

(By The Associated Press)

MAMARONECK, N. Y., Sept. 10.—They said this was one amateur championship no "dark horse" would stick his nose into, because Winged Foot was too long and exacting a course for any except the real star shooters. Yet Maurice McCarthy, jr., of Cincinnati, was at the head when play resumed in the second qualifying round today.

McCarthy's 70 yesterday caused surprise.

Of course, there was no guarantee the mid-west veteran would cause his young rivals to lose any sleep. This was only the start. The big field still faced another qualifying round today, and then six rousing rounds of match play.

Others On His Heels

Right on McCarthy's slowing heels, with 71's, were Dick Chapman of Winged Foot, John Cree of Buffalo, and Tom Whiteway of Cleveland. They were the only others to take any liberties with Winged Foot's par of 72.

Seven equalled par, including Marvin (Bud) Ward of Spokane, Wash., the defending champion and a 6-to-1 favorite to repeat. In the second group at 8-to-1, were Ray Billows of Poughkeepsie, Willie Turnesa of White Plains and Wilford Wehrle of Niles, Ill.

Tech Raiders Step Up Pace

Displaying an attitude of genuine satisfaction over their twice daily workouts, Texas Tech's 1940 Red Raiders this afternoon will step up the pace just a bit as Coaches Pete Cawthon and "Dutchy" Smith ready their charges for "things to come."

Meaning of course, the "bearing down" process which will gradually be introduced in such a manner that when the Scarlet and Black recruits hit their full stride it will not slow the sessions because of injuries or lack of physical preparedness.

Amonett Is Out

The Crimsons are showing a spirit of frivolity throughout their daily double drills, more or less "straining at the leashes" to be turned loose.

Only serious casualty of the lot so far is Thayne "Red" Amonett, the Flomot Flash, who was excused from heavy duty Monday afternoon because of a boil on his neck. He took part in the strenuous calisthenics but not in the main portion of the workouts.

Calisthenics Are Rough

Regarding the latter, Trainer Lewis "Doc" Spear continues to direct the big squad in a new style of calisthenics designed to toughen ankle and knee muscles, the squad participating throughout. Following Monday's calisthenics, Coach Cawthon supervised a "mental" drill.

In high good humor, Cawthon lined the boys up facing each other, called signals. A certain signal meant for all hands to turn in one direction, another signal meant turn the other way. One side of the line attempted to "touch tackle" players on the other side, and vice versa, according to the signal. It developed into a highly humorous drill, in which Coaches Dutchy Smith and Berl Huffman finally took part.

Light Workouts Continue

Finally, the coaches divided the squad into backs and linemen, and the boys indulged in a bit of head-butting under Line Coach Smith's supervision, while Cawthon had his four sets of backs running offensive plays in dummy scrimmage.

The light workouts will continue most of this week, while the boys are "getting in shape," after which the real work will begin in preparation for the season opener with the Oklahoma Aggies at Oklahoma City Sept. 27.

They Know Plays

While not in "mid-season" form, the Red Raider candidates do appear to be in exceptionally good physical condition, able to stand a couple of active sessions each day and come away laughing and talking. Nor are they total strangers to offensive signals; they did not appear to be at all lost in the signal running, and they completed blocking and running and passing assignments with extraordinary finesse for this time of year.

"That's what spring training means," explained Coach Cawthon. "We worked on these plays last spring, got them down pretty pat, and the boys remember them, and are in shape to run them. Naturally, we'll do a lot of fundamental work, but we'll also start in on the fancier stuff right away."

Tribe Folds Up; Tigers Take Over Lead

Gents Behind Closed Gates For Practice

BY EDDIE BRIETZ
Associated Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK, Sept. 10 — Centenary has begun secret football practice, with gates barred and husky freshmen patroling all roads leading to the stadium . . . If Seattle's Bud Ward wins the amateur golf meet, he'll be the seventh fellow to do it twice running . . . Add tops baseball jobs: Rogers Hornsby, who took the seemingly hopeless Oklahoma City Indians and lifted them from the cellar to fourth place and a chance in the play-offs. . . .

When Sammy Snead got married, his friends predicted it would be the best thing that could happen for his golf game . . . Since then, Sammy has won three out of four tournaments and was runner-up in the fourth.

Just Call Him Butch

The name of that barrel-chested, piano-legged 190-pound guard down at Louisiana State is Vivian Gianelloni, but don't get careless with the front handle.

Iron Man Dept.

During the closing week of the North Dakota association season, Otto Hoffman of the Forbes team pitched and won five games in six days . . . Furthermore, he went the full nine innings in every instance.

More than 80 per cent of the boys on the Boston U. football squad are members of the R. O. T. C. . . . Ernie Lombardi has been made an honorary member of the Cincinnati fire department and is going around polishing his badge . . . Issy Klein manager of Pete Lello is here negotiating for garden bouts with Irving Eldridge and Lew Jenkins . . . Dixie Walker of Brooklyn is the only major league player with a butler on his payroll.

Headline Headliner

La Salle (Ills) Post-Tribune: "Indians try to out-Vitt Detroit and lose, 10-5."

Westerners In Best Of Shape

With only four more days in which to prepare for their invasion of Odessa and the season opener against the touted Bronchos, Lubbock High's conditioned Westerners this afternoon will bear down just a little harder at Chapman Field, the repertoire to include a little bit of everything.

A good "sideline coaching" audience was on hand Monday afternoon when the hustling squad ran the gamut of drills, reeling off practically everything in the book with the exception of a double rough scrimmage, that likely to come about the middle of the week.

Spirit Commendable

Coaches "Goober" Keyes and Walker Nichols have their charges in the pink of condition after a week's intensive workouts in Cisco, and the spirit and effort displayed is reminiscent of the '39 state champions.

Just from a first day's glimpse of the team which will attempt to march into the Texas Interscholastic league finals for the third consecutive season and which will be defending the championship of the state's schoolboy forces, it must be said that the material looks plenty promising, as has been emphasized

Long Way To Go

But to a goodly number of the football faithful who stole a peek yesterday afternoon, it was all too obvious that when the mentors said they had their share of green recruits on their hands they weren't fooling. While Coach Nichols was driving the linemen in intensive tackling drills and during the passing session, the '40 machine was anything but polished. But that is to be expected.

Such stalwarts as husky Carl Smith, at a guard post, Marvin McBrayer and Carl Sanders at the tackle slots, Co-Captain Francis Bearden at a terminal position, and co-captain Max Walthall, Leete Jackson, Robert McKinnon, Howard Lanford, Dale Odom and James Reese in the backfield—all looked good.

Point To Odessa

Especially was the pass defense work of Jackson gratifying, three or four interceptions being chalked up. And when it came to the receiving end, the boys didn't do so badly, winding up with the defense slightly ahead on about 40 attempts.

Cavorting at backfield slots and due to see quite a bit of service if they continue are two small but stocky recruits who follow the will-o-the-wisp route—Howard Lanford and Dale Odom.

Enthusiastic enough for the season opener, the cry of "Get A Bronc" or some other reference to Odessa was frequently heard.

A large number of Lubbock fans is expected to follow the Westerners when Coach Joe Coleman's Bronchos entertain in the lid blaster Saturday night. Fly Field will be the site, 8:30 o'clock the time.

McNeill Drubs Bobby Riggs To Capture Tennis Crown

BY BILL WHITE
Associated Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK, Sept. 10 — Bobby Riggs was greater in defeat today than he ever was in victory.

The little fellow had just seen his most prized possession, the national singles tennis championship trophy, handed to Don McNeill of Oklahoma City.

All afternoon the gallery of 7,500 at Forest Hills had applauded wildly when Don came off with a fine shot and only mildly when Bobby did.

No Popular Champion

He hadn't been a popular champion and he knew it. So when the presentation ceremony was over, and Don was surrounded with back-slapping pats, Bobby walked through the gathering dusk away from the crowded press marquee, across the court on which he had been beaten, to a dressing room under the stands —and for the first time he was the popular kid he should be.

The crowd gave him a sincere burst of applause, partly because he had been beaten but more because they knew he hadn't been treated as a champion should. And heart-sick as he was, he walked off in that Charley Chaplin manner of his with a big grin on his face.

Has Dashing Style

McNeill should be a popular champion, for the forcing, dashing style of game he played in knocking Bobby off his throne, by scores of 4-6, 6-8, 6-3, 6-3, 7-5, is bound to be more popular than Riggs' purely defensive style.

Teamed with McNeill on the American tennis throne is another exponent of slam-bang tennis, blonde Alice Marble of Los Angeles. Making good her bid for her third straight national title — and the fourth in her brilliant career — she shelled Helen Hull Jacobs off the center court with a blazing 6-2, 6-3 beating.

Main Show In Texas League Will Start Tonight; Houston Meets Oklahoma City While San Antonio Tackles Beaumont

BY HAROLD V. RATLIFF
Associated Press Soprts Writer

The main show starts tonight in the battle for the Texas league championship.

It's the opening of the Shaughnessy play-off with Houston, top team of the regular grind, playing host to Rogers Hornsby's surprising Oklahoma City Indians and the hustling young San Antonio Missions entertaining the fast-moving Exporters of Beaumont.

A crowd of 6,000 was forecast for each game.

Houston will be trying for the fourth time to get into the finals of the play-off. Three times the Buffs topped the field over the regular campaign and twice they went out in the first round. The other time the Buffs finished second for the season.

This year Houston finished on top by a margin of sixteen games.

Each series is five games, the clubs moving to Oklahoma City and Beaumont Thursday. The winners of the series will meet over the seven-game route for the championship.

Fleet Soph Gives Smiles To Frogs

(By The Associated Press)

A fleet sophomore, who as a high school player was the nation's leading gridiron scorer, broadened the smiles of Texas Christian University fandom today.

Dean Bagley is his name and he hails from San Saba. Playing in the class B division of Texas schoolboy football, he would have received little notice had he not cut loose with that phenomenal scoring spree.

Teams With Gillespie

Now he's teaming with Kyle Gillespie, the passing, running ace of the T. C. U. backfield, to give the Frogs their best ground game prospect in years.

Good news came about Gillespie's knee which was operated upon during the winter. Doctors say as soon as the muscles strengthen, Kyle will be as good as new.

Injuries were at a minimum throughout the Southwest conference.

At the University of Texas it had been feared Malcolm Kutner would be unable to play this season. But physicians yesterday said he could return to his end position.

The defending champion Texas Aggies gave most of their time to cameramen yesterday but were back at the grind today.

The Arkansas Razorbacks were up to their old tricks of flipping the ball all over the lot. The Baylor Bears got a double dose of rough scrimmage.

Southern Methodist went through a hard scrimmage and railbirds said they didn't look too god, but Coach Matty Bell "guessed" maybe they did all right considering everything —especially the heat.

Rice lost the services of Mike Ball, a halfback, who withdrew from school. Livy Bassett, veteran guard, suffered a pulled muscle and will be out of practice several days.

Cooper And Frenship Elevens Will Tangle

Stepping out with nocturnal play, Coach Fred Rich's Cooper High school gridders play host Friday night to Frenship in one of the section's initial football features.

Site of the game is the Cooper field at Woodrow, Coach Rich having acquired the floodlights of Fox Recreation park, making the school one of the smallest in the country boasting a lighted gridiron. The game is to start at 8 o'clock. More than 250 tickets have been sold, many of them in Wolfforth, and a large crowd is expected.

Rich announced that he had open dates for games on Sept. 20 and Oct. 4. He is anxious to book games for these dates, and invites coaches to get in touch with him if they also have open dates on those days.

Gammels laws of Texas show that the salary of the president of the Republic was $10,000 until 1842 when it was reduced to $5,000.

But Yankees Are Red Hot Close Behind

BY JUDSON BAILEY
Associated Press Sports Writer

A battle royal for the American league pennant brought the four foremost teams into a finish fight today, but the collapsible Cleveland Indians couldn't wait.

They folded their tent yesterday and abandoned the lead to Detroit by dropping a 2-1 decision to the Chicago White Sox. All the other clubs in the circuit were idle.

Seventh Setback

This was the seventh setback in eight games and forced the Indians out of first place for the first time since August 11, leaving the clubs lined up like this:

Team—	W	L	Pct.	GB	TP
Detroit	77	57	.575	--	20
Cleveland	76	57	.571	½	21
New York	75	57	.568	1	22
Boston	72	62	.537	5	20

The fortunes of all four contenders were bound up in this week's schedule, which called for Cleveland to face the red hot Yankees in a two-game series today and tomorrow while the Detroit Tigers were defending their lair against the Red Sox. Then Thursday the world champions were down to start a three-game series in Detroit while Boston's still ambitious Sox open a similar series against the Tribe.

There was a single game in the National league, too, the New York Giants battering the Brooklyn Dodgers 7-4.

Intersectional games were on tap in both leagues today as the western clubs of the National league started their last circuit of the east and the American league spotlight was turned westward.

Football Campaign Will Start Friday

Curtains go up Friday for a new grid season over the area as a majority of the section's Class A and B elevens open respective campaigns.

Approximately 20 contests are on the menu, two-thirds of the teams swinging into action. Remainder of the squads will not open play until September 20.

Petersburg and Amherst opened the season Friday, Petersburg tumbling the Amherst eleven, 19 to 12, as Thurber Billberry ran wild to score three touchdowns.

Olton In Spur

In District 5-A, the defending champion Olton Mustangs travel to Spur for a Friday night game, while Brownfield, southern division champs, open at Kermit.

The 4-A champions, Lockney's Longhorns, also open away from home—at Quitaque. Hale Center's Owls, bi-district winners in the B

Road Building Plan Revealed

WASHINGTON, Sept. 10 (AP)—John M. Carmody, federal works administrator, announced today plans to construct 3,100 miles of access roads at military reservations and to improve 75,000 miles of strategic highways as part of the defense program.

The roads administration has on hand $197,000,000 which can be spent for this purpose. The total cost of the program will be nearly twice that figure, however, as the state will be required to match the greater part of the federal expenditures.

The administration did not announce the location of any of the roads nor the dates of completion. He said a survey now was being completed of highways needed for defense purposes and added that these would be given priority in construction.

The administrator also announced allocation of $134,063,000 of federal aid highway funds for the 1942 and 1943 fiscal years. Of the total $19,500,000 for grade crossing elimination need not be matched by the states. The other funds must be matched by the states.

Farm Loan Session Is Slated Thursday

Directors are to be elected and annual reports made at the 23rd annual stockholders' meeting of Lubbock National Farm Loan association Thursday, Sept. 19, according to announcement Monday by R. S. Rodgers, secretary-treasurer and manager.

Since its organization in 1917, this organization has loaned several millions of dollars on farm lands in Lubbock, Crosby, Lynn, Hockley, Cochran and Terry counties. At the close of business on June 30, 1940, the association had outstanding more than 900 Federal Land bank loans, totalling almost three and a quarter millions of dollars. In addition to these loans, the association has almost 600 land bank commissioner loans, which total approximately one million dollars.

Officers Named

The meeting is to be held in the stockjudging pavilion on the Texas Tech campus, and is to open at 10:30 a. m. An address of welcome is to be given by Dr. Clifford B. Jones, president of Texas Technological college. This will be followed by a program, including a short talk by Sam Burchard of Gonzales, a member of the board of directors of the Federal Land bank of Houston.

Following the program and the business meeting, a barbecue lunch is to be served to the members and their wives. A good attendance is anticipated by the management and directors of the association. L. C. Denton of Lubbock is president of the association. Other officers and directors are: W. M. Ross, vice president, Alvin B. Allen, Arthur Dean and E. N. Harrison, directors.

Latest Fall Styles Displayed In City

Downtown streets were crowded Monday night by those who took advantage of the opportunity to inspect the latest in styles as displayed in the windows of Lubbock firms.

Hundreds of persons were on hand for the annual window unveiling; they looked but couldn't buy.

Lubbock High school's A and B bands, directed by C. S. Eskridge, played, even before they got in the practice toots that stamp the Senior High band as one of the best in the state. Starting at Tenth street and Avenue K, the bands moved from intersection to intersection to drum rolls, stopping long enough to present two or three numbers at each stop.

Vanguard of a parade of small proportions was formed by Motorcycle Police Patrolmen Melvin Alvey and Ralph Goldwater. A dozen or so cars followed the band.

Windows were bedecked in autumn styles of prevailing colors and cuts. Two stores featured human mannequins.

The Downtown Window Style show is sponsored annually by Lubbock merchants.

Youth In The News

Here For 'The Duration'

Young clansmen Hugh Caldwell and Kenneth Bannerman of Scotland are impressed by their first view of New York after crossing from Glasgow to find a refuge with relatives in the U.S.A.

Tiny war refugees like Margaret Apfel, 2, from Vienna, have been a common sight at eastern U. S. seaports since outbreak of European hostilities. Many travel alone.

A French count and countess—Herve, 9, and Ann de Portes, 7, children of the late Countess Helen de Portes, killed in an auto accident—came to America with their nurse and are now living at Southampton, N. Y.

Eyrne and Russell Greening crossed the Atlantic with 270 other refugee children on the liner Britannic. These more fortunate English youngsters did not have to endure separation from their parents, who came with them.

Man Whose Name Became Renowned Thru Sourdough Poem Finally Taken By Death

BEISEKER, Alta., Sept. 10 (AP)—Sam McGee, whose name became renowned through a sourdough poem by Robert W. Service, is dead.

The "Sam McGee from Tennessee," who actually was a native of Lindsay, Ont., died in this little southern Alberta town last Thursday. His death came 34 years after Service wrote "The Cremation of Sam McGee."

The poem told how McGee from Tennessee was always "cold but the land of gold seemed to hold him like a spell" and he finally got warm when his frozen body was cremated.

McGee, 73 years old at death, wasn't spellbound by the search for gold, as his chief occupations in the Yukon were copper mining and road-building. And he will not be cremated. He will be buried in Rosebud church cemetery, a few miles from Beseker.

In Vancouver, Service expressed sorrow on learning today of the death of McGee.

Service said he picked up the idea for the poem from a story told at a dinner he attended in Whitehorse, in 1906.

Working in the Whitehorse bank, he came across the name of Sam McGee in the ledger. It rhymed so well that he used it in the poem, not knowing he would ever meet the real McGee.

But he did, one year after the poem was published and McGee had become a legendary figure in the north, forced to carry documents to prove his identity.

"We met one day in Whitehorse," said Service. "McGee came up to me and said, 'you used my name in one of your poems,' and looked embarrassed.

"I was embarrassed too and said, 'did I?'

"McGee walked away without a word.

"I regret very much the death of Sam McGee—a worthy man."

That Girl on Broadway says nearly all curiosity is strongly tainted with cussedness.

Life is so implausible that sometimes we don't believe a word in it.

THE Plainsman ran across this bit of clear thinking in Caps and Lower Case, a little booklet published monthly by a Dallas printers supply house.

It is so good, and embraces a philosophy so essential to the times, that we feel we must pass it along.

Here it is, in full:

"For a long time to come, one of the most despised characteristics of a race or a man will be the one we call complacency.

"The good citizens of our neighboring state of Louisiana did not worry about what Huey Long was doing or saying until they found themselves completely at his mercy. It took more than 12 years to get out from under the tyranny and greed of his rule.

"The policy-making powers of England complacently played cricket while a house painter, who never liked the game, armed himself to spoil their field. Millions of hearts will bleed or ache because a few men sat idly by and said a few swastika-painted planes probably wouldn't amount to anything.

"Within a few days, a few weeks, or a few months, the people of America will take some kind of action which will not only determine their own kind of world, but which may determine the kind of world in which all mankind will live for years to come.

"May the forces of complacency, whoever its leaders, be forever buried at the polls.

"May the forces of competency, whoever its leaders, be overwhelmingly chosen by a people aroused to a new responsibility."

There's good sense there, and straight thinking.

Why argue with a prejudiced person?

Prejudice is blindness — and you wouldn't argue with a blind person about the color of a rose, would you?

PRACTICALLY everybody in this Western country knows, has heard of, or has seen the famed boss of the Swenson's Flat Top ranch, "Scandalous John" Selmon, and those few who don't know of "Scandalous John" ought to.

However, very few people outside his immediate associates know who and where Mr. Selmon got the appendage, "Scandalous," which is a bit of West Texas cow country lore that should not be permitted to go unchronicled.

The Plainsman got the story not long ago from Dr. Clifford B. Jones, now president of Texas Technological college but for 27 years the head of the vast Swenson land and cattle interests in West Texas. A longtime friend of "Scandalous John," Doctor Jones, who is no mean cowpuncher himself, loves to tell the story, so The Plainsman turns the task over to him.

* * *

'A number of years ago," (this is Doctor Jones talking) "old Colonel Wortham, then editor and publisher of the Fort Worth Star-Telegram, was visiting us at the Spur ranch headquarters. That was before 'Scandalous John' moved to the Stamford-Aspermont country to boss the Flat Top, and I introduced him to the Colonel as 'Scandalous John.'

"After acknowledging the introduction, Colonel Wortham asked Mr. Selmon where and how he got the name. 'Scandalous John' was glad to furnish the information.

"'WELL, Colonel,' said Mr. Selmon, 'you couldn't have asked me that question at a better place. See that little ridge over there? Well, that's where it happened.

"'I had just come over here and got me a job. I was a big, old rawboned country kid who thought he could ride anything that could be rode, so when the boys led a big red horse, named 'Towel Face,' out of the corral and told me it was mine to ride, I just climbed on.

"'Well, sir, I had no sooner got into the saddle than that horse started pitchin' and? sun-fishin' and cuttin' all sorts of didoes, and before I knew it he had piled me slicker'n a whistle.

"'The other boys, who had been watching, came over to me and helped me up. I had the breath knocked plumb out of me.

"'Are you hurt, John?' they asked me.

"'No,' I said, 'I ain't hurt. But didn't that 'Towel Face' horse pitch something scandalous! Bring him back here and I'll try him again!'

"'And ever since that day, folks have been calling me 'Scandalous John!'"

* * *

"Scandalous John" Selmon is not only a very good cowman and a connecting link between a more romantic era and our own. He is an institution in the cattle country east of Double Mountain.

A Stamford Cowboy Reunion without "Scandalous John" Selmon would be like ham without eggs, peaches without cream, or beer without pretzels.

There are few West Texans left like him.

SPEAKING about old days in West Texas, here's a yarn we fear isn't quite as true as the story of how John Selmon got the appendage "Scandalous." It is spun by Harvey Briggs, of San Antonio, who writes the "Friend Jasper" column in each edition of Texas Parade, a monthly magazine given over to good roads in our state.

According to Harvey Briggs, an East Texas friend of his asked him if it were true that we have rattlesnakes in West Texas.

"I told him," recounts Harvey, "about how, the week before, I had been driving the salt wagon in the pasture and had noticed the horses were getting farther apart. I saw that a snake had struck the wagon tongue and it had swollen up to about a foot in diameter. I told him, too, about how we raised police rattlesnakes in West Texas—snakes that would sleep at the foot of the bed like a watchdog and if a thief came into the room would wrap themselves around a bedpost, then around his leg and put the rattle out and rattle for an officer!"

The Plainsman will vouch for the exact truth of Doctor Jones' story about "Scandalous John" Selmon, but we can't go that far with Harvey Briggs and his "police rattlers."

Not to show any preference for East Texas over West Texas, Mr. Briggs also tells a yarn about fishing over on the Louisiana side of the state.

"A fellow," he recounts, "told me how they used to fish over there. He said they cut up chewing tobacco in small squares and threw them into the water. They would sink to the bottom and the catfish would eat them. This necessitated that the fish come to the top to spit. The fisherman stood by the bank with a club and as they came up, knocked them on the head.

"He also said that the Trinity river is so muddy that the catfish all swim backwards to keep the mud out of their eyes."

All we've got to say about Mr. Briggs' fishing stories is that they are almost as hard to believe as those told by Charlie Whitacre!

"SAY, mother," a little neighbor boy recounted the other day, "that man who mows our yard is a real, fine Christian."

"Is that so, son?" the mother rejoined. "And why are you so sure of that."

"Well, this morning," explained the kid, "he dropped those big clippers and they hit right on his foot, cutting through the top of his shoe. And what do you think he did, mama? He sat right down and told God all about it!"

Memory Of The Moon

YESTERDAY: John agrees to lend Constance $50,000 on condition that (1) if she fails to show a profit the ranch reverts to him for resale, and (2) she agrees to marry no one else until the loan is repaid with interest.

Chapter 17
Family Fury

Mrs. Cabrillo's eyes rested hopefully on John's. Then her eyes sought her daughter's and the hope fled. "I'm sorry you didn't let mother know you were at home last evening, Constanza," she murmured, stressing the Spanish of her name.

"I didn't want to intrude at the last moment," Constance explained.

"And this morning?"

"You were still asleep when I left the house."

"Catch her leaving word," grumbled Don, "she doesn't work in the open."

Constance looked at Don and wondered what had become of the little fat brother, who had once punched an older, larger boy for tormenting her. She wished she could find the little boy in this sleek young man-about-town.

"Your sister has been too busy looking after your good, to be thinking of messages," John told him. "She's been raising money to put new life into El Cabrillo Rancho."

A blank silence met this, then Don asked in a husky voice, "You mean . . . you mean she's not going to agree to sell . . . after all this?"

"I've never said I would agree," Constance reminded him.

"But Good Lord, Connie," he cried, "I . . . well, and mother and Donna, we counted on it. You have to go through with it now; you can't back out!"

"Why?"

The very simplicity of her question caught them up into a moment of silence, then Don spoke again. "The publicity. For Heaven's sake, Con, don't you know the newspapers have carried reams about the sale, and mother and . . . well, we've—"

"Borrowed money on the lies you told the newspapers," stated Constance.

"Don't you say I lied," Don sprang at her as though he would strike her. "I had reason to believe the deal had gone through."

Constance thought of the telegram he had sent to the Taylors. "Oh, Don," she cried brokenly. "Why don't you grow up. Business men don't trust the senders of anonymous telegrams."

"Business men," scoffed Don. "Don't try to tell me those hicks out there are business men. Cow chasers, that's all they are."

Constance stared at him a moment. It was useless to try to explain conditions as she had found them on the ranch; to show them would have happened under any other management.

"It doesn't matter," she decided wearily. "John, they'll listen to you. Please tell them what we are going to try to do . . . for them."

Raskthorne tried. He explained the situation with such clarity that Constance marveled. Out of her scattered comments the previous night and their conference that day, he had woven a convincing outline of her plan.

'A Little Extravagant'

When he concluded, Don turned on her. "No one but a damn-fool woman would think of such a stunt . . . no, I won't shut up," he snapped at his mother. "You're afraid of Constance, all of you; you, too, Raskthorne. Well, I'm not! I'm not going to stand by and let her ruin us. I'll take this to court and prove the rest of us have some rights—"

"I don't believe you will, Don," interposed Raskthorne. "My attorneys will represent Constance, and aside from the time limitation to contest the will being up, they'd force you to show cause why an injunction keeping her from carrying out her plans should be granted. You've done nothing to qualify yourself as a business man. One look at the monthly bills I receive at my office, in your name, would stop the suit before it started."

Don evidently recognized the truth in this. "But I'll do something," he threatened.

"The only thing you can do," advised Raskthorne, "is to take your disappointment like a gentleman."

"A lot you know about gentlemen," flung Don, and strode from the room.

"And that goes for me," added Donna, and fled after him.

Nadine Cabrillo sat, cheeks pale under their delicate rouging. She held a slim hand out to Constance. "I'm sorry I can't be enthusiastic about your plan, dear," she murmured, "but I've never liked the ranch, and we were getting along so well. Besides," she sighed. "Don was so sure you'd agree to the sale that we . . . well, we really went into debt rather deeply."

"Mother," Constance knelt before her. She wished she had been bitter as Don and Donna had been. It was easy to fight bitterness. It was difficult to be cruel to this beautiful little woman who seemed trying hard to see both sides.

"Mother, I'll take care of these bills, whatever you've spent counting on the sale. Only don't you see, this is what I feared, that you'd let the children talk you into spending everything at once and with the ranch gone there'd be nothing more coming in."

Nadie brightened when Constance spoke of meeting the bills. She even smiled when she confessed. "We are a little extravagant aren't we? Well, I'll try to talk to Don and Donna and make them see you are trying to help us, only . . . they're going to be so disappointed. We'd made the loveliest plans. Dickey Marable has a beautiful home at Palm Beach and we were going to take it for the season—"

"John," she asked in sudden alarm, "you believe Constance is right in this? I mean she won't lose everything for us?"

"I'm backing her to win," he assured her, "and you are protected. I'll guarantee your share of the sale offer, if she fails."

"Then . . . then good luck, darling. And will you send Minetta in, I feel a headache coming on."

'Not A Cabrillo'

Constance and John left the room in silence. As they neared the library Constance tugged at his sleeve. "Come in a moment, John, I'm sorry Don spoke as he did."

John patted her hand. "He was striking at you through me. I understood. He's probably in a corner, financially, and doesn't know how to get out."

Thinking of the car she had seen on the driveway the previous evening, Constance nodded. "I'll buy that for him, she thought. I can do that much.

"You're going to have a busy month, Conchita," John offered, seeming intent upon changing the trend of her thoughts. "I'm going to take you to some of the biggest up-state dairies, then we'll follow the milk down through the depots to the creameries. And then we'll make a trip to the livestock market, and perhaps we'll find some stock shows; this is the time of the year for them.

"You know?" he smiled at her confidentially. "I'm getting interested in you through me. I understood. He's probably in a corner, financially, and doesn't know how to get out."

A REAL FAIR BARGAIN

Decision of directors of the fair association to place strips of four admission tickets at $1 on sale in advance of the opening of the Panhandle-South Plains fair Sept. 30-Oct. 5 should be the answer to an obvious need.

Season tickets at $2.50 each still will be the best bargain for a great many people—especially those who, for any reason, plan to pay frequent visits to the grounds during the fair. As in previous years, the season ticket will entitle the owner to as many as three entrances to the grounds per day.

But for many people, season tickets are not an attractive buy. Such people do not expect to visit the fair with sufficient frequency to justify an advance investment of $2.50 for a season ticket which, in theory, they alone can use. In actual practice, they have had no real opportunity for saving by buying in advance.

They now have that opportunity in very substantial way. They can cut that cost exactly in half. Furthermore those who buy a strip of tickets either can use all four themselves, or they can give them to whomever they choose. Very few such tickets will be wasted.

The strip ticket plan looks like a real bargain for the thrifty patron of the fair, and is one which thousands are likely to use.

There's Political Dynamite In Anti-Trust Division's Oil Fight

Congress Asked To Investigate Delay In Suit

BY BRUCE CATTON
Journal Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON, Sept. 10—Because it hasn't been able to decide whether the anti-trust laws help or hinder its defense program, the administration has finally managed to get right on top of a box of political dynamite.

Cotton

It got there by letting the wires between the defense commission and the anti-trust division get snarled up over the huge oil monopoly law-suit which the head of the anti-trust division, Thurman Arnold, drew up.

Arnold was prepared to file the suit on July 25. As a matter of routine, he sent it over to the defense commission for clearance before filing; back came a memorandum saying the commission feared national defense might be jeopardized if the suit were filed, and asking that it be held up. It has been held up ever since.

Various things make the situation politically dangerous.

For one thing, independent oil men are showering in their protests. So, for that matter, are members of Congress—50 congressmen and 23 senators, to date, have complained over the delay.

For another thing, the fact that the defense commission has a number of big oil men serving as advisers might provide someone with a convenient handle for a political attack on the administration.

In addition to all this, one of the best New Dealers in either House—Congressman John Coffee of Washington—has formally moved for a congressional investigation into the whole business.

"It comes with mighty poor grace for the administration to protect the biggest monopoly in America, at a time when it is about to draft men into the army at $30 a month," says Coffee. "It's time this thing was fought through. How can we pretend to be enforcing free competition and protecting the little fellow if, when we move against a huge monopoly, this cry of national defense is used as a screen?"

Coffee's resolution, now awaiting action in the rules committee would provide for a committee of five to discover whether the anti-trust laws have been fully enforced in connection with the oil industry, and also whether there has been any interference with such enforcement, and if so, who has been responsible.

Henderson Held Up Suit

Arnold's lawsuit was to have been directed against the 22 major oil companies of the United States. Its aims, as Arnold outlined them, were to prevent price fixing, to restore unrestricted competition among retail oil dealers, and to provide a free market for the independent refiners and for new enterprises in the industry.

Plan was to accomplish this by forcing the big companies to divest themselves of pipe lines, tankers and marketing facilities.

Defense commission argument is that this attack on pipe lines would be a tough thing to launch at a time when the country needs even more pipe lines than it has, as a defense measure. Arnold's is that the present situation keeps the independent from operating except on the immediate vicinity of his production field.

A full-dress row over this oil litigation would be bad political medicine, in the middle of a presidential campaign, especially since the accusation would be made that the defense commission's call arbitrarily had thrown a wrench into the proceedings. That really doesn't seem to be the case. The defense commissioner who held the suit up was Leon Henderson, of the original brain trust.

ested in this myself."

"You're a darling," Constance pronounced soberly.

She held to that thought the entire four weeks that followed. Their long conferences before the hearth, or across some cafe table, were times of calm, a resuscitating rest from the emotional storm which swirled about her.

There was the week in which she sought to compile the family debts and to stand aghast at their total. Here the blood of Michael Mahoney came to her rescue.

With cash to her credit, she stormed the tradesmen and demanded a percentage for payment. They seemed eager to accept the terms of the determined young woman who said, "Take it and give me a receipt in full, or wait until Mrs. Cabrillo pays you."

Don accepted the car with complete lack of graciousness. "I had it coming," he said blandly. "Now try to squirm your way out of the publicity."

Constance had already found her way out of the phase in which she was most interested. An airmail letter had come in answer to the one she had sent Peter Taylor; a brief, cheering letter, written by Pedro.

Dear Michael:—Dad asked me to answer your note. He says if he tries to thank you for your justice, he'll pound the paper into the desk and no Cabrillo is worth it. Remember that is what he says. Meg insists you are not a Cabrillo.

If the clipping means you have decided to sell to us, I'd like you to know you are always welcome here and Pancho is yours. Meg says, and I think Meg is a very wise woman, that your room is to be kept for you and that you are to spend all of your vacations here. When is your next vacation?

However, as the news story was written while you were here at El Cabrillo, I doubt that you are going to agree to the sale.

May we know your decision at your earliest convenience?

Pedro.

NOTICE TO BIDDERS

Sealed proposals addressed to Hon. Mayor and City Commission of Lubbock, Texas, will be received at the office of W. H. Rodgers, City Manager, until 8:00 p. m., Sept. 30th, 1940 for furnishing all necessary materials, machinery, equipment, superintendence and labor for constructing a sewage treatment plant, outfall line and treated sewage discharge lines for the City of Lubbock, Owner, of Lubbock, Texas. This work is divided into two divisions: Division I, being the sewage treatment plant and Division II, the outfall line and treated sewage discharge lines. Bidders may submit proposals on either or both Divisions.

Bidders must submit cashier's or certified check issued by a bank satisfactory to the Owner, for 5% of the largest possible total for the bid submitted, payable without recourse to the order of the City of Lubbock, or a proposal bond in the sum of the same amount, from a reliance surety company, as a guaranty that bidder will enter into contract and execute bond and guaranty in the forms provided within ten (10) days after notice of award of contract to him. Bids without required check or proposal bond will not be considered.

The successful bidder must furnish bond on the attached form in the amount of 100% of contract price from a surety company holding a permit from the State of Texas to act as surety or other surety or sureties acceptable to the Owner.

All lump sum and unit prices must be stated in both script and figures. The Owner reserves the right to reject any or all bids and to waive formalities. In case of ambiguity or lack of clearness in stating the prices in the bids the Owner reserves the right to consider the most advantageous construction thereof, or to reject the bid. Unreasonable or unbalanced unit prices will authorize the Owner to reject any bid.

Bidders are expected to inspect the site of the work and to inform themselves regarding all local conditions.

Attention is called to the provisions of the Acts of the 43rd Legislature of the State of Texas, page 91, Chapter 45 (Article No. 5159A, Civil Statutes 1925) concerning the wage scale and payment of prevailing wage established by the owner. Said scale of prevailing minimum wage is set forth in the specifications.

Instructions to bidders, proposal forms, specifications and plans are on file at the office of M. R. Smith, jr., City Engineer, of Lubbock, Texas.

Copies may be secured upon deposit of $30.00, to be returned to the Contractor on submission of a bona fide bid on the work with both plans and specifications, or upon returning the plans and specifications immediately after examination of same, and advising the Engineer that bid will not be submitted, otherwise the deposit shall be forfeited.

Modest Description Of Self Is Given By This Candidate

SANTA FE, N. M., Sept. 10 (AP)—New Mexico's first direct primary election campaign had a tickler today from "Doughbelly" Price of Cimarron, candidate for Democratic nomination as state representative.

"Doughbelly" (and nobody in Colfax county knows him by any other name) is distributing campaign cards bearing the following modest self-description:

"Dishonest enough to catch the other crooks.

"Ignorant enough to be frank.

"Noisy enough to be respected.

"Smart enough not to pass no more silly laws."

The primary is Saturday.

Sixty-five per cent of fatal injuries sustained during leisure hours by employes of the petroleum industry were caused by motor vehicles.

Crucial Conditions Are Faced By Youth

NEW YORK, Sept. 10 (AP) — Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt said today "there is no use fooling ourselves that we are not facing the most crucial conditions in world history."

"The youth of today must face that problem, as they will be responsible for what the world becomes," she told 250 students from 35 colleges at the Congress of International Student Service.

She further advised:

"Make up your minds what you really want to do and then go ahead and do it. I hope the first thing you do in college is to form a habit of thinking things through for yourselves and then have the courage to stand by the things you believe in."

Rumanian Generals In Carol Regime Are Ousted

King's Estate Being Seized

BUCHAREST, Sept. 10 (AP)—Dismissal of eleven Rumanian generals, held partly responsible for Rumania's recent loss of territory was announced today as Gen. Ion Atonescu, military dictator, continued his investigation of former King Carol's regime.

The decree dismissing the men, who included George Argeseanu, a former premier, and Ion Ilcusu, former war minister, said they practiced political activity contrary to the good of the state and used "flattery to gain high office."

How badly Carol himself fared when he abdicated last week was still a matter of conjecture. The king left a vast "personal empire" under the shadow of expropriation when he went into exile, but he had shrewdly converted many of his ancestral holdings into cash long ago, informed sources said.

Whether he carried any of this cash with him in his flight was not known but he and his small retinue, including the red-haired Magda Lupescu, travelled on a ten-car railway train filled with no one knows what.

Stock Is Seized

Millions of dollars worth of his stock in armament companies, sugar refineries, locomotive works and gold mines already have been sequestered by General Antonescu, who is reported planning similar action against the former monarch's real estate holdings.

The "empire" left by the dethroned king — who now is in Lugano, Switzerland, seeking sanctuary in the United States, South America, on the island of Madeira or on the French Riviera — includes vineyards stretching as far as the eye can see.

Plan For Blasting England By Air Made 25 Years Ago

BY DEVON FRANCIS
Associated Press Aviation Editor

NEW YORK, Sept. 10.—Germany today is carrying out a plan of air attack conceived, but never executed, a quarter of a century ago in an effort to bring England to its knees.

The plan, related by Capt. Ernst Lehmann, the late zeppelin expert, in his book "Zeppelin," was to raid London and start a thousand fires. Howard Mingos, American writer on aeronautics, was co-author of the volume, written to explain the character of Germany's air war, 1914-18.

Among the objectives was to have been the Bank of England. The German high command wanted to throw Britain's monetary system into confusion.

Lost His Life

Lehmann lost his life in the destruction of the airship Hindenburg at Lakehurst in 1937.

The system of air attacks on England has undergone considerable revision in the "battle of Britain," partly due, of course, to the development of faster, less vulnerable aircraft.

Censored news dispatches indicate these are the objectives the Germans now hope to achieve:

Stoppage of war materials manufactured by destroying factories.

Stoppage of war materials and food shipments into England by destroying cargo vessels and wharves.

Destruction of lines of communications—railroads and highways.

Destruction of the essential services, such as electric and water supply plans.

Destruction Of Air Force

Immobilization of the Royal Air Force by the destruction of airdromes and of enemy aircraft.

Germany's great effort by air against England bears all the earmarks, finally, of the "total war" against civilians and armed services alike which has been talked about since the start of the conflict a year ago.

It bears a striking resemblance to the attacks made on Finland by Russian aircraft which, apparently, played a role of considerable importance in the Soviet victory by destroying roads and rail lines.

In the blow-for-blow raids by Germany and England, the former has the advantage of greater factory dispersion. German plants are harder to find, harder to hit. German airdromes are less concentrated and, reports say, better camouflaged.

In the Ruhr district alone British bombers have a wide open and highly vulnerable target.

For the moment the answer to the strength of British resistance lies in the ability of the civil population to resist panic. Zeppelins and airplanes failed to wreck British morale in 1914-18. News reports indicate German bombs so far have only crystallized the British determination to fight.
