The 1985 AJRA National Finals, which officially start Tuesday, will be dedicated in honor of Les and Punk McFadden of Rankin.

McFadden is the secretary-manager of the AJRA Association and has served in this position for 15 years

This year marks the 10th anniversary of the AJRA finals to be held in Snyder, and McFadden supervises the task of bookkeeping and records of the contestants' yearly standings.

The McFaddens had two daughters who were active in AJRA. After they were grown, Les and Punk remained active with the organization and dedicated to the youth.

More than 10,000 AJRA members have passed through the organization since 1970. McFadden said their reward has been to see AJRA contestants become pro rodeo performers. One such performer, Roy Cooper, won a world championship title his first year on the pro rodeo circuit.

The first AJRA performance is set for 8 p.m. Tuesday in the Scurry County Coliseum. On Monday evening, as a warmup to the AJRA, a first go-round racing slack was set for 8 p.m., along with a disco dance in the coliseum annex, also starting at 8 p.m.

Japanese jumbo jet crashes in Alps

TOKYO (AP) — A Japan Air Lines 747 jumbo jet with 524 people aboard crashed on a domestic flight today in mountainous country after reporting that it had problems with a cabin door and was going to make an emergency landing.

The Japan Broadcasting Corp. said a Self-Defense Force helicopter had spotted wreckage on a mountainside in the Japan Alps in the central part of the country.

Initial reports from authorities gave no sign of survivors in what could be history's worst single plane disaster. The worst previous one-plane crash was that of a Turkish DC-10 near Paris in 1974, in which 346 people perished.

Pilots of two other aircraft had reported seeing a plane afire in the air before the crash.

The Japan Defense Agency said rescue teams had not yet reached the crash site, on the north side of 6,929-foot Mount Ogura, about 6 miles east of Saku City and 70 miles northwest of Tokyo.

However, at about 8:25 p.m., Isao Shimozaki, a Nagano prefectural police officer, said in a telephone interview that police, firefighters and Self Defense Force personnel were at or near the crash area.

Tudor said the passenger manifest included at least 21 non-Japanese names, but there was no immediate identification of any of them by nationality.

The JAL plane was on a flight from Tokyo's Haneda Airport to Osaka in one of Japan's busiest holiday travel seasons. The jetliner carried 509 passengers, including 12 infants, and a crew of 15, said Geoffrey Tudor, a Japan Air Lines spokesman.

Tudor said the pilot reported "trouble with a door" and U.S. officials at Yokota Air Base, an American base about 21 miles west of Tokyo, said the pilot asked and received permission to make an emergency landing.

However, the plane disappeared off radar screens near Saku, a city in Nagano prefecture (state), about 100 miles west of Tokyo. It crashed at about 6:54 p.m. (5:54 a.m. EDT).

A Ministry of Transport official, who asked not to be named, said the location of the crash had been pinpointed about 34 miles from Yokota.

Japan Broadcasting said there was a thunderstorm in the area about the time of the crash, just before dark.

Kyodo News Service quoted unnamed witnesses as saying they saw a plane make a long turn and then saw "red and black flames."

Japan Broadcasting said witnesses in the Nagano area, about 100 miles northwest of Tokyo, telephoned the network to report they heard a loud crash and saw a "mushroom cloud."

The 747 appeared to be well off course between Tokyo and Osaka when it reported that it was in trouble.

WTC eyes budget, taxes

Western Texas College trustees will give final approval to the 1985-86 budget during their regular August meeting which begins at 5:45 p.m. Monday.

Other business will include employment of new personnel and consideration of bids for a greenhouse for the golfcourse/-landscape technology program.

During the president's report, Dr. Don Newbury will update trustees on fall enrollment, faculty in-service programs and the awards dinner.

Jury selection began Monday

Jury selection was continuing at noon Monday in a civil suit filed in 132nd District Court.

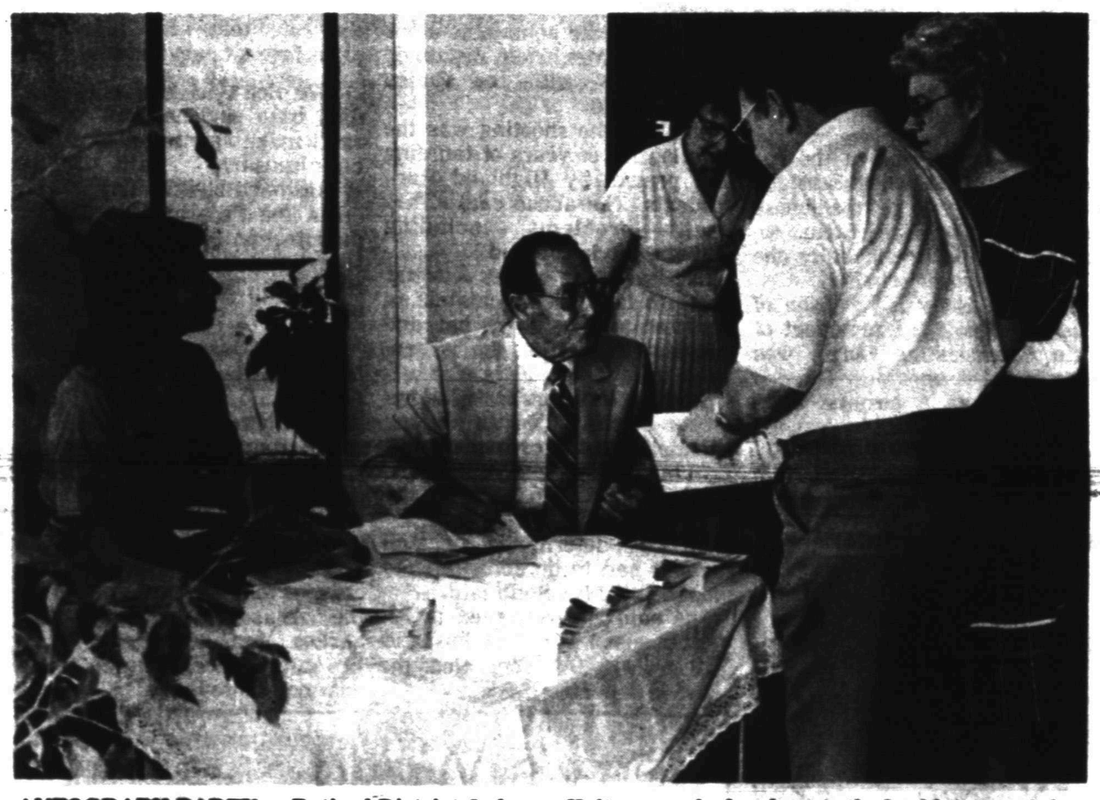

Once sel[illegible] jurors will begin hearing [illegible]ence in the case of Patric[illegible]vy and Deborah Pool vs To[illegible] Morton.

Hospital deficit eyed...

Commissioners approve 1984 outside county audit

Scurry County Commissioners, meeting in regular session Monday morning, approved the 1984 outside audit.

The court was expected to return Monday afternoon for budget work and consideration of a tax rate for 1985.

Monte West, Snyder certified public accountant, presented the audit which revealed a $725,000 operating deficit for Cogdell Memorial Hospital.

Commissioners voted unanimously to approve the audit but Precinct Two Commissioner Hassie Sneed noted that $477,000 of the deficit was for depreciation and that only $287,000 of the depreciation amount had been used for equipment purchases.

Hospital Administrator Cy Miller also attended the audit report session.

In other business, the court approved election judges for the November general election in which state voters will cast ballots on 11 constitutional amendments.

The court also discussed, but took no action, on the possibility of combining some election precincts for the November election.

Rick Glasscock, representing Atkins Petroleum of Midland, requested a three-mile pipeline easement along County Road 4131.

The court voted to grant a one-mile easement in precinct one, but denied the remaining two miles which are in precinct three. The mile was approved with the stipulation that the line would be removed if the county should ever decide to widen or pave the county road.

The portion denied was based on the objection by Precinct 4 Commissioner Ted Billingsley that there is not sufficient room for the easement.

In other business, the court met with Don Lewis, a representative with 3M Company of Abilene, who demonstrated a copy machine. No action was taken.

New store...

Furr's will open Aug. 28

A new Furr's Supermarket will open in Snyder Aug. 28 with a 10 a.m. ribbon cutting ceremony. The new store is located at 30th and College Ave.

Furr's present store, located at 1618 26th will close at 10 p.m. Aug. 27. Lester Headrick, district manager for Furr's Inc., said, "We're extremely proud of our new store and we want to invite all of Snyder out to our grand opening. Furr's and Snyder have been together for more than 35 years, and we're looking forward to an even longer future together."

Furr's opened its first Snyder store in December, 1949–approximately one year after oil was discovered near the city. Since that time, Furr's and Snyder have braved fire and flood together, Headrick said. The supermarket burned in July of 1959 and was rebuilt and reopened in December of that year. In 1967, the store flooded when June rains caused local creeks to overflow.

"We have a tradition in Snyder," Headrick said, "a tradition of service and quality. We realized that our current store just couldn't keep up with the needs of the people here, so we decided to build a new store."

The new supermarket has approximately 34,000 square feet. The interior is decorated in a pleasing combination of ginger, sand and walnut tones

The store features eight computerized scanner checkout stands that will speed up the checkout process and make it more accurate. Each product has a Universal Product Code printed on its label. The cashier will simply run the UPC over the scanner, the computer will "read" it and automatically ring up the purchase. Your tape will then contain a detailed report of what you purchased.

In addition to fresh produce, meat and dairy foods, the new Furr's also will have a bulk foods department. In this area, you can buy food by the ounce or by the pound, just like in the days of the old-fashioned general store.

Doc Worden, manager of the closing store, will also manage the new Furr's. "It's a beautiful store, something that all of Snyder can be proud of," he said.

Boy mayor retains his title

CRABB, Texas (AP) — Mayor Brian Zimmerman can keep his job, but he lost a chance to make good on a campaign promise when voters rejected a plan designed to prevent larger cities from annexing their tiny town.

Zimmerman, 12, used his savings account to help pay for the election Saturday to decide whether the rural Fort Bend County community, should incorporate.

But voters rejected the plan in a 595-30 vote, handing a dismal defeat to the boy mayor who made incorporation part of his campaign pledge.

"It's back to the drawing board," Zimmerman said after hearing the final election results.

While Zimmerman seemed dejected over the turn of the ballots, the referendum ensures he can keep his job until the next mayoral election in November.

Incorporation would have stripped the youth of his mayoral duties because Texas law requires mayors of incorporated cities to be at least 18.

Zimmerman — who was elected when 23 of 30 voters chose him over two other candidates, ages 69 and 71 — said before the Saturday vote that he'll run for re-election if Crabb is not incorporated.

About 33 percent of the area's 1,911 registered voters turned out for Saturday's election.

Most of the opposing votes were cast by residents of the 1,000-home Tara subdivision.

"That's not surprising. I was expecting that," said Jay Foster, Tara Homeowners' Association president, after the election. "I'm surprised that 30 people voted for it."

Foster said he spoke to surrounding city governments and none had expressed an interest in annexing the Tara subdivision or Crabb.

"We are just a bedroom community, we have no industry," he said.

Zimmermann, who was elected to head Crabb in an unofficial election at his aunt's grocery store in September 1983, vowed to fight for incorporation during his mayoral campaign.

He has argued incorporating Crabb would protect the town from annexation efforts by nearby Richmond, Rosenberg and Houston.

He said the election results Saturday did not surprise him, but the margin of defeat did.

Rear seats might have better chance

DALLAS (AP) — People seated in the rear of an airplane may have a greater chance of surviving a crash, according to National Transportation Safety Board reports on the worst airline crashes since 1970, The Dallas Morning News reported in a copyright story.

According to a study by The News, the forward sections of downed jets generally have suffered more extensive destruction than the rear sections. And in most crashes, the majority of survivors have been sitting toward the rear, the newspaper said in today's editions.

In the Delta Air Lines jet crash Aug. 2, no one seated in front of Row 29 lived, the NTSB report said. The L-1011 jumbo jet crashed on final approach to the Dallas-Fort Worth International Airport killing 132 people on board and one person on the ground. Thirty-one people survived the crash.

The News' study was based on NTSB reports on the 16 worst airline crashes during the past 15 years in which some passengers and crew members survived.

The reports indicated that in nine of the crashes, the majority of survivors were sitting toward the rear, the News said. In only three of the crashes were the majority of fatalities sitting in the back of the plane, the study said.

The newspaper said that the reports also revealed another pattern: In the majority of the crashes, the initial impact did not kill most of the victims. More passengers died after collapsing cabin furnishings and debris prevented or delayed escape from a burning or sinking jet, the News said.

But researchers who conducted a test crash last year disagree with the theory that rear seating is safest.

In a Congress-approved test crash program last December, a 24-year-old Boeing 720 clocked at 170 mph plunged into the Mojave Desert. The jet's 73 passenger seats were occupied by mannequins.

Impact-measuring devices hidden in the floor and fuselage of the four-engine jet and in 13 of the 73 mannequins, provided researchers with information that will be included in a report to be published next spring.

Although conclusions drawn from the crash have not been revealed, researchers apparently haven't decided that the safest seats on a doomed aircraft are in the rear, the News said.

"I don't think you'll see that in our report," said John E. Reed, program manager.

Another unnamed program official was quoted as saying, "That theory is hogwash."

NTSB officials said the agency has never conducted a study of the role that seat placement plays in crash survivability.

"We don't have a statistical data base, and until we do, we can't make any analyses or any conclusions," said NTSB spokesman Bob Buckhorn.

But the Federal Aviation Administration requires airlines to store flight voice and data recorders "as far aft as possible."

"Most of them are placed in the tail," FAA spokesman John Leyden said. "I guess they figure that's where they would be the safest from damage."

Another FAA official said that pictures of airplane crashes show the tail section to be the largest intact piece.

"It seems logical in most crashes that the front goes in (to the ground) first," said Gus Sarkos, manager of the FAA's fire safety office. "But it is only a common-sense thing."

Boy said to back right into bullet

DALLAS (AP) — Betty Minyard Stein said she was only trying to disable the car of a Highland Park High School student who was taunting her last month in front of her house, but that "he backed right into the bullet."

"I was only firing at the car because I wanted to put a hole in the car or tires to get the license number," said Mrs. Stein, 65, mother of the president of the Minyard's grocery chain.

Ward L. Huey III, 18, son of Ward L. Huey Jr., president of Belo Broadcasting Corp., was struck in the shoulder. He was released from a hospital after surgery. He could not be reached for comment because his family has an unlisted phone number.

Mrs. Stein was arrested at her University Park home across the street from the high school and is currently free on $50,000 bond. In her first public comments since her arrest, Mrs. Stein discussed the incident with the Dallas Times Herald.

She said the shooting was the culmination of years of taunting and pranks by Highland Park students. The abuse caused her health problems, including diabetic shock, she said.

She said she wears cowboy boots to help the circulation in her feet and a floppy hat and sunglasses because she is sensitive to light.

Students have broken windows at her home, pulled an antique chandelier from a ceiling, thrown light bulbs at her and yelled "dirty, four-letter words at me," she said.

"I was determined to stop them. I had to do something to stop them," Mrs. Stein said.

She said she retrieved a .38-caliber pistol her first husband had owned and concealed the weapon under her dress.

Education, Research Are Key To Prevention, Cure of AIDS

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1985 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR READERS: If you have no interest in AIDS, what it is, how people get it, how widespread it is, and how to protect yourself from becoming a victim, skip this column. In an effort to get the facts, I consulted Dr. Michael Gottleib, the eminent UCLA immunologist who discovered the AIDS syndrome in 1981. The information in this column was confirmed by an information officer at the Centers for Disease Control in Atlanta.

What is AIDS? It is the name for Acquired Immune Deficiency Syndrome, a virus that attacks and destroys the immune system, leaving its victims vulnerable to infections and innumerable diseases, including types of cancer.

How widespread is AIDS? The epidemic is almost worldwide. Since 1981, over 12,000 cases have been diagnosed in the United States alone, of which nearly half have died from it. It is epidemic in Central Africa and Haiti, and has also spread to Europe and Australia. It is estimated that 500,000 to 1 million people have already been exposed to the virus. All individuals exposed do not necessarily succumb to AIDS, but they do have an increased risk of developing it. There can be an incubation period of several years between exposure to the virus and the development of AIDS, but the exact period of time is not known.

How is AIDS transmitted? The most significant route is by anal sex, oral sex and "old-fashioned" sexual intercourse with a person who has been infected by the AIDS virus. While most cases have occurred among homosexual or bisexual men who have had multiple partners, AIDS is not exclusively a homosexual disease. An increasing number of cases is being found among heterosexual (straight) men and women. All sexually active men and women, gay or straight, should be concerned.

The virus is also spread by shared contaminated needles among drug abusers. Also through blood products given to hemophiliacs and other recipients of blood. Some good news: Transmission through blood is expected to decrease since the screening of blood donors to detect the AIDS virus began in early 1985.

How AIDS is not spread: There is absolutely no evidence that AIDS is spread by casual contact with infected individuals. It cannot be spread by sharing towels, food or eating utensils with a person who has AIDS. Neither can it be spread by touching, hugging or body contact other than sexual intimacy.

What can be done about AIDS? A massive national program of public education as well as continuing research for a vaccine is now under way.

All sexually active people should avoid sex with multiple partners. They should also avoid contact with semen. (Condoms, for example, may offer some protection.)

It is important for all of us in the human family to show compassion and understanding to the victims of AIDS. They should not be avoided or ignored. I repeat, AIDS cannot be "caught" by touching or contact other than sexual. And although about 70 percent of the AIDS victims are homosexual men, it is not strictly a homosexual disease.

AIDS victims should be visited by their friends and relatives. There is no danger to anyone who visits or cares for a person who has AIDS. I repeat, AIDS is transmitted by sexual interaction with a person who has it. Hugging, caressing, holding, shaking hands with or being in close contact with a victim will not put one at risk of being contaminated.

Don't assume that every person who has AIDS is sexually promiscuous. One contact (even years ago) with someone who had it is sufficient to infect a person. A wife can get it innocently from a bisexual husband who had been infected years ago by an AIDS victim.

How can one obtain more information about AIDS? A national hotline with an informative recording can be reached by calling (800) 342-AIDS. Many cities have a local AIDS information hotline. Your telephone operator can advise you.

Now, you know as much about AIDS as I. And if you know someone who can use this information, please pass it along.

An informative pass

By James Jacoby

In today's deal there are the ingredients for a ruffing finesse. The opening 10 of diamonds is covered by dummy's jack, and East wins the king. Back comes the queen of clubs and declarer wins the ace. From the play to the first trick it is obvious that there are three diamond losers, and so declarer must find a parking place for his club loser.

Declarer has a straight finesse available by leading a heart to the jack. If West holds the king, the ace will be a discard for declarer's club. It is also possible to play to the heart ace and then lead the queen, playing East for the king. That is the ruffing finesse. When there is only one immediate loser to avoid, the ruffing finesse is superior for only one reason: If it fails, the contract will be set only one trick. If the straight finesse fails, the contract will be set two tricks. That is the rule that applies when declarer is playing in a vacuum. But here declarer has some information.

Go back to the bidding. East was the dealer and passed. He held the A-K of diamonds and apparently the Q-J of clubs. Could he also have held the heart king? Not in this life, unless his bifocals were playing tricks on him. Two-trick set or not, South took the straight heart finesse and made his contract.

Accustomed to questions

CONCORD, N.H. (AP) — Christa McAuliffe, chosen to be the first teacher in space, won't lift off until January, but she is finding one of the toughest parts of her mission dealing with the rigors of celebrity.

Mrs. McAuliffe, 36, a social studies teacher at Concord High School, has done 40 interviews this week, NASA media coordinator Edward Campion said, "and those are only the ones I know of. She does some on her own."

"Don't you get bored answering the same questions over and over again?" one interviewer asked.

"I couldn't tell you, with 15 years as a teacher, how many times I've answered the same questions," she said.

She said being excited about answering them is part of her job.

Fashions to highlight CWC August meeting

A Back to School fashion show will highlight this month's meeting of the Snyder Christian Women's Club. Set for Aug. 14, the monthly luncheon will be held from 11:15 a.m. to 1:15 p.m. in the Snyder Country Club.

Mike and Judy Reed of Sunnyside Dress Shop will feature their new fall line. The Reed's have owned the enterprise for about a year.

Guest speaker for the event is Shelia Fontenot of Lafayette, La. She is the daughter of M.L. and Colleen Duke of Snyder. A dental hygienist, Fontenot is married and has two boys. The family's hobbies include outdoor activities such as camping, bicycling and scouting.

A den mother, she is also involved in her local chapter of Christian Women's Club, currently serving as recording secretary.

Kay Hopper will provide special music for the meeting.

Teachers and teenagers are especially invited to attend during the summer months.

Reservations, necessary for the luncheon, may be made by calling Judy at 573-5785 or Janet at 573-9885. The cost of the meal is $5.50 or a beverage only may be purchased for $1. Cancellations are also requested.

Child care will be provided for children 12 years old and under. Reservations for the service must be made by calling either listed number.

CWC is an interdenominational organization. Membership is not required and there are no dues.

Peachy chicken is a lighter summer meal

Parmesan Chicken Cutlets with Peaches

4 half breasts of chicken, boned and skinned
¾ cup fine soft bread crumbs
13 cup Parmesan cheese, grated
⅛ teaspoon paprika
1 large egg
2 teaspoons water
1½ tablespoons flour
½ teaspoon tarragon, finely crumbled
½ teaspoon salt
⅛ teaspoon white pepper
2 tablespoons each butter and oil
2 large fresh peaches
2 tablespoons white table wine (or apple juice)

Loosen small inner muscle of each chicken breast along inner edge and fold outward to flatten breast. Pound lightly between sheets of waxed paper.

Mix crumbs with cheese and paprika. Beat egg with water and turn into pie pan. Mix flour with taragon, salt and pepper. Dip chicken breasts on each side in flour mixture, shaking off excess. Dip in egg to coat both sides lightly, allowing excess to drip back, then roll in crumb mixture.

Heat butter and oil in 10-inch skillet; brown cutlets slowly on both sides.

Meanwhile, halve and skin peaches; cut into thick slices. Roll in remaining crumb mixture. Place browned cutlets in single layer in shallow baking pan and arrange peaches at edges. Drizzle any pan drippings and wine over chicken.

Bake in 350-degree oven for 15 minutes. This kitchen-tested recipe makes 4 servings.

SCS Notes

by SAM BUCHANAN
District Conservationist

Irrigated acres have the potential for serious erosion problems, says Wilson Scaling, Chief of USDA's Soil Conservation Service. As much as 70 tons of sediment yield per acre has been measured on some furrow irrigated fields, which is 20 times above acceptable soil erosion levels for those soils.

Fortunately, the potential exists on irrigated lands for soil and water savings, says Scaling. SCS is helping irrigators, especially in water-short or highly erosive areas, to evaluate the efficiency of their irrigation systems and is recommending ways to improve them.

Any irrigation system should be part of a complete conservation plan. Improved irrigation practices conserve and protect water as well as soil. And soil erosion is being recognized more and more as a problem not only on the farm, but beyond the farm gate too.

More than 65 million acres of the nation's cropland is irrigated — almost three-fourths with furrow or flood irrigation and the rest with sprinkler systems.

Applying too much water — or applying it in the wrong way — especially on sloping fields, erodes soil and carries sediment, nutrients and pesticides into streams, rivers and lakes.

Over irrigation can also cause water to percolate beyond the root zone into ground water and carry pollutants to underground supplies.

In some states, SCS field employees are using mobile field water conservation laboratories to help irrigators conserve water.

SCS and other USDA federal, state and local agencies are cooperating to help farmers develop irrigation systems that are compatible with local soils, slopes, crops, water supplies and climates.

For help in assuring that your irrigation system is operating most efficiently, contact the local SCS office at 573-1268.

Appreciate music

MONTREAL (AP) — Canadian harmonica player Jim Zeller said he found audiences in the Soviet Union, where he spent two weeks, responsive to his brand of electronic blues.

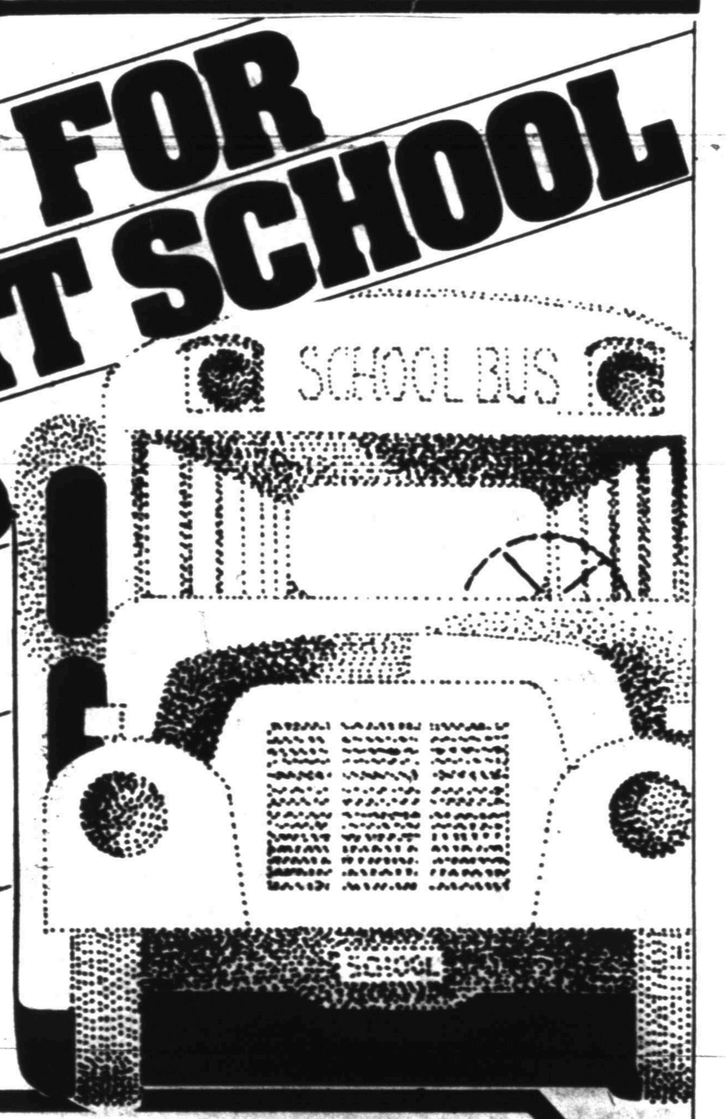

"They really appreciated it," Zeller said after his return to Montreal. "They would really listen. ... They're a very emotional people. They're into creativity in any form."

Zeller, 30, was among musicians from around the world who attended the 12th World Festival of Youth and Students.

Redden runs well for Rams while Dickerson holds out

by The Associated Press

Attention Eric Dickerson, the Los Angeles Rams' record-breaking running back now holding out in a contract dispute: "I think Barry Redden established himself as a running back tonight," Coach John Robinson said after Redden rushed for 94 yards on 17 carries and scored a touchdown in the Rams' 7-3 National Football League exhibition victory Saturday night over the visiting Houston Oilers. "If this had been a normal game, he would have gained 150 yards."

Dickerson, who wants to renegotiate his contract, gained an NFL single-season record of 2,105 yards in 1984.

Redden's touchdown came on a 6-yard run late in the third quarter. Joe Cooper kicked a 20-yard field goal for Houston early in the fourth period.

In other exhibition games Saturday, Dallas beat Green Bay 27-3; San Francisco topped the Los Angeles Raiders 28-21; Minnesota nipped Miami 16-13 in overtime; Pittsburgh outlasted Tampa Bay 42-27; Washington edged Atlanta 17-14; Kansas City downed Cincinnati 35-27; New Orleans defeated New England 32-20; the New York Giants beat Denver 30-20; Cleveland stopped San Diego 12-7; Philadelphia trounced the New York Jets 37-17, and Indianapolis beat Seattle 19-7.

There were two games Friday night, with Detroit and Buffalo playing a 10-10 tie and St. Louis beating Chicago 10-3.

Cowboys 27, Packers 3.

Rookie Robert Lavette rushed for 50 yards on eight carries, including a 7-yard touchdown run, and veteran Ron Springs ran for 47 yards on seven carries for Dallas, which is without star running back Tony Dorsett, also a holdout. Another Cowboys rookie, linebacker Jesse Penn, returned an intercepted pass 78 yards for a touchdown in the game at Irving, Texas. Green Bay's only points came on a 37-yard field goal by Al Del Greco.

49ers 28, Raiders 21

Joe Montana threw a 9-yard touchdown pass to tight end John Frank in the second quarter and rookie Scott Barry hit Frank with a 2-yard scoring strike in the third at San Francisco.

Green wins PGA championship

DENVER (AP) - A veteran of 15 seasons on the PGA tour, Hubert Green knows you don't play with fire, especially a red-hot Lee Trevino.

After Trevino rifled an approach shot that landed a foot from the cup on the ninth hole, Green countered with an 8-iron to within two feet.

Both got easy birdies and Trevino's attempt to seize the momentum had been doused. A heavy putter weighed Trevino down on the back nine, and Green emerged with his second major golf title, capturing the 67th PGA Championship Sunday by two strokes.

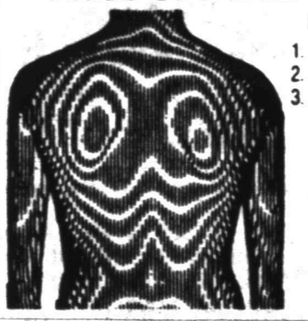

Green closed with a steady 1-over-par 72 for a total of 6-under 278 and pocketed $125,000.

"That was a very important shot," Green said. "When you play with The Mex and he gets hot, you've got to do something to dampen his coals quick. If he gets away from you, he'll run and hide and you won't catch him."

Trevino, the defending champion who began the final round three shots behind Green, drew into a tie after getting an eagle on the fifth hole.

FRONTIER TRAINING — Cavalrymen were teaching a mustang pony to pack dead game in this sketch by Frederic Remington. A woodcut print of the sketch will be included in a special exhibit opening Sunday in the Diamond M Museum at 909 25th St. The sketch was used as an illustration in the Aug. 16, 1890 edition of Harper's Weekly, a popular magazine which helped establish Remington's reputation as the leading western illustrator of his time. Officials praise voter referendum

By The Associated Press

Voters in Abilene, Midland and San Angelo overwhelmingly approved financing of the Stacy Dam project, which backers say will meet the West Texas area's water needs into the 21st century.

City officials praised Saturday's vote — 18,831 to 658, or 97 percent in favor — as crucial to the region's future.

"I think the democratic process shows that if you shoot square with the people, they are going to support you, and this is what happened in San Angelo and Midland and Abilene," said Owen Ivie, general manager of the Colorado River Municipal Water District, a partner in the project.

"It is good to see that they realize the important potential that Stacy Dam offers us," San Angelo Mayor Burt Terrill said.

The dam, to be built on the confluence of the Colorado and Concho rivers about 30 miles southeast of Ballinger, will probably begin providing water to the cities in the 1990s. Each city will pay $11 million toward the project's $68 million pricetag, with the water district picking up the remainder.

In San Angelo, 6,134 voted approval with 257 voting against the project in a 13.7 percent voter turnout. About 11.4 percent of Midland's registered voters cast ballots, with 5,906 voting for and 160 voting against.

In Abilene, 6,791 voted for and 241 voted against the referendum, with a 13 percent turnout.

"I am extremely pleased with the outcome," said Abilene City Manager Jim Blagg.

In Midland, Mayor Thane Akins said the new dam and reservoir promise a growing city a better future.

"We all believe Midland is going to grow, and you've simply got to have the water resources," said Akins, who noted there was no organized opposition to the proposal.

Construction is expected to start in May 1987.

Midland, San Angelo and the water district are expected to start building a joint pipeline west from Stacy sometime after 1988. Abilene, because it lies north of Stacy, will build its own pipeline.

The water district also includes Big Spring, Odessa and Snyder.

The cities' share of costs will be paid from water user fees, not property taxes, officials said.

Next move is up to S. Africans

SANTA BARBARA, Calif. (AP) — The Reagan administration says it is now up to South Africa to make a move away from apartheid, following a warning to the white-ruled government that President Reagan may be unable to hold off congressional sanctions.

White House spokesman Larry Speakes said Sunday that National Security Adviser Robert C. McFarlane had laid out the "realities of the situation" in a meeting with South African Foreign Minister Pik Botha last week in Vienna.

McFarlane told South African officials Reagan would be unable to sustain a veto of sanctions legislation pending in Congress unless there is "accelerated movement" away from the apartheid policies of racial separation, Speakes confirmed.

Warning system didn't work

INSTITUTE, W.Va. (AP) — An emergency system failed miserably in its first major test since it was put into place at a Union Carbide Corp. plant here after a chemical leak killed more than 2,000 people in India, local residents say.

Six plant employees and about 125 nearby residents went to hospitals Sunday with lung, eye, nose and throat irritations after a chemical used to make pesticide leaked. Thousands of people were asked to stay in their houses for several hours, until the chemical dissipated.

The chemical cloud spewed from a unit that uses methyl isocyanate, the substance that leaked last December in the Indian city of Bhopal. Plant spokesman Dick Henderson said the substance that leaked here, aldicarb oxime, is made from MIC, but the MIC is consumed in production.

Company officials said a cloud of aldicarb settled on nearby homes after leaking from the plant when a gasket on a storage tank failed.

Many people living near the plant said their homes already were engulfed in fumes when they first heard the plant's emergency siren. "Carbide's got to do something better than this," said Donna Willis, one of nearly 300 residents examined at an emergency clinic.

"We can't let them wait 10, 20 or 30 minutes before they let you know what's going on. We could have been dead," she said.

The company said it notified the county Office of Emergency Services of the incident within "approximately five minutes" of the leak.

Henderson said the Carbide plant sounded a warning siren as soon as the leak was detected at 9:35 a.m.

But emergency personnel in Charleston, about 12 miles away, were not told, according to Mayor Mike Roark.

"Each municipality is supposed to be notified," he said. "Our command center was not notified. Our public safety director heard it on the (police) scanner."

"If it had been something really bad, it would have been too late," said Vicky Terry, who said she awoke to find her home full of the stinging fumes. "People would have been dead in their beds," she said.

Reports of noxious fumes began spilling into radio stations about 9:45 a.m., said WCHS news director Mike Wilson. He said public notification was hampered because most radio and TV stations don't staff their news departments on Sunday mornings.

"Sunday morning is a very inconvenient time to have something like this," he said.

Four minor wrecks occur

Four minor traffic accidents were reported in Snyder Sunday.

Involved in the first — at 10:09 a.m. at the traffic circle in east Snyder — was a 1979 GMC truck driven by Paul Kinsey of Odessa.

According to police reports, Kinsey was towing a mobile home which overturned as he was turning off of U.S. Highway 180 and onto U.S. Business 84.

Employees of the Great Western Motel filed a hit-and-run report at 4:56 p.m.

A brick column at the motel had apparently been struck by an unidentified vehicle sometime prior to 4 p.m.

No value was estimated for damage to the building.

Sunday's third mishap was reported at 8:48 p.m. in the 100 Block of Milburn Ave.

According to reports, Debbie Ann Ford of 116 Browning St. was driving a 1979 Ford on Milburn Ave. when she lost control of the vehicle which struck a fence at the Joan Young residence at 109 Milburn.

The Great Western Motel was the scene of the fourth accident at 9:32 p.m.

In that incident, a 1976 GMC truck and trailer rig driven by Truman J. Snelley, Jr. of Wichita Falls struck the motel building and overhead utility drops going into the building.

No injuries resulted from any of the four mishaps.

Schroeder feeds grandson, visits

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — Seeing the smile on William Schroeder's face as he visited with his grandchildren made the strain of the ups and downs since he became the world's second mechanical heart recipient "all worth it," his son said at a homecoming celebration.

Schroeder, 53, the longest-living recipient of a mechanical heart and the first to live outside the hospital, took the quarter-mile ride to the specially equipped apartment Sunday in his van, "The Heart & Spirit of Jasper," named for his Indiana hometown.

He visited with family members Sunday during the first day of his return to life outside Humana Hospital Audubon, where the device was implanted Nov. 25.

"To see him just get a smile on his face and to get to see the grandkids, it's all worth it," Schroeder's son, Stan, said of the latest turn in his father's up-and-down path to recovery.

Schroeder spent a restless night before leaving the hospital, according to his son, the father of 5-month-old Lucas William. "He was kind of itchy about getting going."

The patient returned to the transitional apartment on his 260th day with the device. He and his wife, Margaret, had resided in the same apartment for a month before he suffered a stroke on May 6, and she had lived there during his latest hospital stay.

Schroeder's surgeon, Dr. William DeVries, who has implanted four of the world's five permanent artificial hearts, watched from inside the hospital's main entrance as his patient was helped into the van.

Schroeder waved at about 30 reporters from a terrace behind the apartment and, when asked if it was good to be getting out of the hospital again, said only: "Yeah."

Voters defeat proposal

ARLINGTON, Texas (AP) — The leader of a group opposed to a mass transit system was pleased with voters' rejection of a proposal to build light rail lines, expand van service for the handicapped, and undertake other systems to move people in this growing Dallas-Fort Worth suburb.

"We didn't make any mistakes. We ran a classic campaign," automobile salesman Harry Robinson said of Saturday's vote on a proposed new Arlington Mass Transit Authority, which failed, 5,735 to 4,507.

As a result, Arlington will remain the largest city in the nation without any form of mass transit.

The mass transit plan called for north-south and east-west light rail lines proposed for the turn of the century, a minibus system, expansion of van service for the handicapped, an airport shuttle, expansion of park-and-ride commuter bus service and programs for car pooling and van pooling.

The cost to the average Arlington resident would have been between $20 and $30 per year, city officials estimated. The system would have been financed with a one-half cent sales tax increase.

It's hard to be all 'salt-free'

By Peter H. Gott, M.D.

DEAR DR. GOTT — Is it safe for a healthy person to be on a salt-free diet? Can doing without salt cause problems?

DEAR READER — Salt-free means different things to different people. We all need some salt, but for those people who retain inordinate amounts in their systems, restriction is appropriate.

It's almost impossible to avoid eating salt. All meats and fish contain it, as do dairy products and vegetables. Processed foods contain large amounts of salt. So going on a truly salt-free diet is virtually impossible, without starving.

Normal people will excrete whatever salt is not required for metabolism. Within reason, salt is not harmful for healthy adults. Salt depletion, however, is a dangerous condition which can result from excessive sweating or profuse diarrhea. Salt restriction can be more debilitating than salt abundance; the normal human body has much less difficulty handling salt than the lack of it. I don't advise healthy people to go without salt, although they may wish to cut down on obviously salty foods. There is one exception. Premenstrual syndrome may be helped if those women who have it make an effort to reduce substantially their dietary salt during the few days before their periods.

DEAR DR. GOTT — FDA regulation is allegedly stringent — but why doesn't the agency require that drug manufacturers list all ingredients? Many over-the-counter items must contain sugar, sodium, etc., that some people should avoid, but labels only list "active" or major ingredients.

DEAR READER — I don't know. Some "inactive" ingredients may turn out to be "active," especially in people who are allergic to them. As an example, certain "harmless" food dyes can cause life-threatening reactions in persons who are sensitive to them. Personally, I agree with your position that all components of a medication — or a processed food, for that matter — should be listed on the container. I suppose the reason this isn't done is that it is too "expensive" and too much "trouble" for the manufacturers. You know, that sort of thing. Maybe the drug companies are reluctant to list all ingredients for fear you wouldn't buy the product if you knew what was in it.

DEAR DR. GOTT — Can diabetics use fructose safely? Is it really that different from regular sugar?

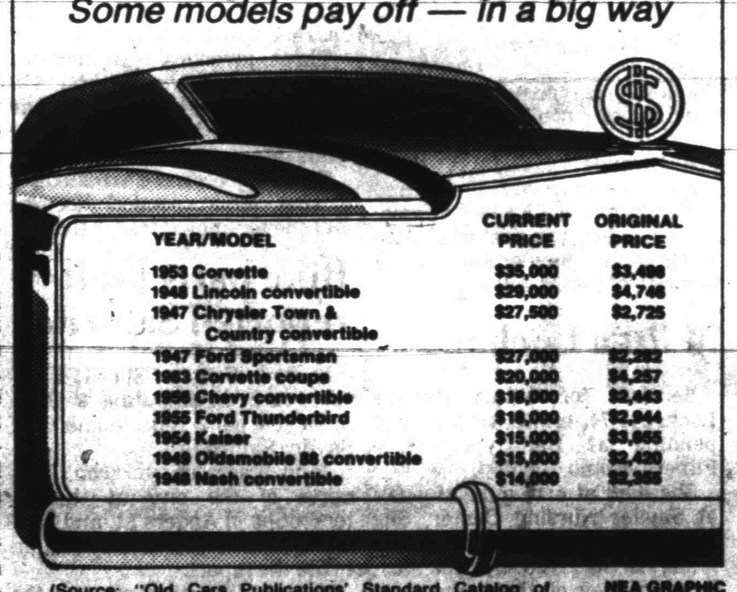

DEAR READER — Glucose is the sugar with which diabetics have trouble. Fruit sugar or fructose is, for the diabetic, safe in moderation. Like any sugar, however, fructose supplies calories; for the weight-conscious patient, fructose calories must be figured in the daily allotment.

Some old cars don't just wear out. They become classics. The prices of certain distinctive autos have soared over the years, making them worth far more than the cost of maintenance.

Forecast was not relayed

WASHINGTON (AP) — The National Transportation Safety Board is still trying to determine why air traffic controllers did not relay a fresh weather forecast to the pilot of a Delta Air Lines plane that crashed in Dallas on Aug. 2.

The jumbo jet, carrying 163 people, crashed during a heavy thunderstorm, killing 132 passengers and one person on the ground.

Safety board member Patrick Bursley, who is heading the probe, said weather "is very much involved in the accident," but investigators still had not determined whether the phenomonon of wind shear was a factor in the crash. "We're certainly exploring it," he said.

"There is an indication of a weather forecast being delivered to the controllers some 10 minutes before the accident, and that was not passed along," said Bursley, who appeared Sunday on the CBS show, "Face the Nation."
