LITTLE CHANCE TO STOP BURK BRIDGE-REPORT

Highway Commissioners Say New Span Is Almost Assured

BAILEY AGAINST IT

Former Senator Asks To Come Before Board In Opposition

AUSTIN, June 19.—Only by rescinding its former grant of aid, and its authorization of plans, can the state highway department now check the construction of the Burkburnett bridge across Red river between Wichita and Cotton counties, it was stated at the highway commission's office Friday.

Former Senator Joseph Weldon Bailey has requested permission to appear in opposition to building of a free bridge from Wichita county across Red river, but has asked no date for hearing and no date has been fixed.

Plans are virtually complete, and it is expected that bids can be called within 30 days.

The new highway law which went into effect this week only strengthens the authority of the state to participate in building an interstate bridge, and in addition, Wichita county has received federal approval of the bridge, so that only a complete reversal of action up to now would stop the bridge project, it was stated. It was not known whether Bailey will appear at the next highway commission meeting, Monday, to oppose the bridge.

THE WEATHER

"Mamma gave me our top-knot hen and said I could sell all the eggs she laid, but she went dry this week."

LYRICS OF LIFE
By Douglas Malloch.
Contradictions.

WHEN I am decent I condemn
The rest of men, I find in them
A lot of fault, a lot of sin.
And then to preach I oft begin
And make them sad with holy ire
And burn their souls with words of fire.
But then some day, some foolish day,
A little while I seem to stray,
And, with some little sin my own,
The other fellow's sin condone.
It seems to me that all along
When I do right then I do wrong
By making other people sad.
But, when I'm just a little bad,
Myself, then others I forgive—
When I live wrong then right I live.

When I'm perfection every way,
And nothing foolish do or say,
I do not have so good a time.
But, when from pedestale I climb
And laugh perhaps a little loud
And joke and jostle with the crowd,
Perhaps may even snatch a kiss
Some little maid will never miss.
Although it's foolish to agree,
It's tucked away in memory
And often in some afterwhile
I still remember it, and smile.
This world's a funny place at that.
You never know just where you're at:
Perhaps, though logic it defies,
When I was foolish I was wise.

INDIAN GIRL'S MARRIAGE HITS UNFEELING LAW

Her Guardian Approves It When She Says She Is Happy

MIAMI, Okla., June 19.—(AP)—The marriage of Maude Lee Mudd, 16-year-old Indian heiress to Earl C. Gordon, Miami motor car salesman, was approved today by William Simms of Vinita, guardian of the girl, and plans made for the ward to spend the summer in travel with her husband. The approval of the marriage came when Maude Lee was taken in charge late today by Sheriff E. E. Simpson under authority vested in him by the state supreme court, and taken to Vinita to talk with Mr. Simms, according to an employe of Simms at Vinita who was reached by telephone.

"Mr. Simms merely wanted to learn whether Maude Lee was happy and what she wanted to do this summer," a clerk at the guardian's office said. "Now that the girl's wishes have been learned no interference will be made with the marriage."

SIGNIFICANCE ATTACHED TO OIL FIELD TRIP

Possibility of Denver Branch to Panhandle Field Looms

MEANS MUCH LOCALLY

Wichita Falls Business Men Enthusiastically Received During Tour

PANHANDLE, June 19.—Expressing great enthusiasm over the Panhandle oil field, 32 prominent business men of Wichita Falls and Fort Worth boarded their special car at Claude tonight. Seventy-five progressive citizens of Panhandle met the special at Claude and conducted the entire party in autos through the field. The Panhandle field is one of the most extensive in the state 14 miles by 16 miles, with an unusual record of no dry holes. In this area are over 30 producing wells with 20 drilling.

The party consisted of American refining officials who were hosts representatives of the Texas company, Gulf Production company, Magnolia and Panhandle refining as well as F. A. Clarity, vice-president and general manager, and W. F. Sterley, general freight and passenger agent of the Denver road. All were highly pleased and expressed great confidence in the future of the Panhandle district.

Although the Panhandle oil field is located 45 miles northeast of Amarillo and 17 miles north of the town of Panhandle, the bulk of responsibility of development came from Wichita Falls. Citizens of Panhandle are very friendly to the "City that Faith Built." Railroad officials were highly pleased over the west Texas development.

Bankers, business men, professional men, politicians and farmers of the little city of Panhandle located 30 miles east of Amarillo, dropped their business today to play hosts to the delegation of oil men and business men from Wichita Falls who were guests of the American Refining company in their visit to the oil fields.

A great deal of significance is attached by the citizens of Panhandle to this visit today, not only from an oil development standpoint, since principals from nearly every big company were included in the party, but

CHICAGO, June 19.—(AP)—Directors of the Grain Marketing company said tonight they expected to be able to meet a $4,000,000 obligation to five vendor grain companies by July 28, the time when the money is due if the company is to continue functioning as at present.

The statement was made tonight at the close of an executive session of the directors to consider ways in which to meet the obligation. The directors scoffed at reports that the company might be turned back to one of the old line grain companies which merged to form the new organization, expected eventually to be producer-owned and controlled.

Question of When Is Applause Applause Told Revue Audience

PERKINS-TIMBERLAKE'S "Jantzen Girl," erstwhile Peggy Eastwood, was the choice of last night's audience at the Bathing Girls' Revue at the Olympic theatre, where a packed house with a hundred or more standing in the aisle showed their appreciation of a beautiful girl and a beautiful costume in a shower of handclapping and applause that lasted a full three minutes.

The judges for last night's contest were: Al Ellis, Will Gray, and R. P. Yancey. The following signed statement was issued by them to the Record News:

We the undersigned judges of the applause of the audience of Friday night's Merchant Bathing Girl contest at the Olympic theatre were instructed by the theatre management to judge the applause not from the amount of noise made but from the number of people cheering each girl.

It is our unanimous and honest opinion that the greatest number of people cheered for Miss Peggy Eastwood. While the applause for she and Miss Robinson was close the margin in Miss Eastwood's favor was enough to leave no doubt in our minds that the decision rendered was a just and correct one.

(Signed) ALBERT ELLIS,
J. W. GREY,
R. P. YANCEY.

Miss Eastwood was attired in a bejewelled costume of white silk. As the contest stands now she will be placed beside Miss Evelyn Frances Lyle as "Miss Marmon," the Fritz Motor company entry, winner of the Thursday night contest, and the winner of tonight's contest, whoever she may be, in a final contest to be staged immediately following the first picking tonight. Thus the winners of the three nights' contests will be matched against each other to select the winner of the various prizes and trophys that have been offered by the merchants and the Olympic theatre as prizes in the contest.

Others appearing last night were, Miss Evelyn Barker as the "Canoe Girl" of the Landon-Hill Sporting Goods company, Miss Edna Ritter as Miss Vendope of the Vendope system, Miss Billie Tucker as "Miss Record News," Miss Johnnie Sadler as "Miss Goodyear," of the Gene Segall Tire company, Miss Ara Gregg as "Miss Ludlam and Riggs," Miss Rebecca Walker as the "Queen of the Jewels" of the Art Jwelry company, Miss Maud Mayo as the Central Drug Store's Powder Puff Girl, and Miss Aileen Richardson as the "Wallpaper Girl" of the Watson Paint and Paper company.

"Miss Marmon" of the Fritz Motor company, Miss Evelyn Frances Lyle, did not participate in last night's contest beyond making the promenade, because of her having won the contest of the night before.

SCHOOL BONDS' SECOND VOTE SOUGHT TODAY

$500,000 Issue, Invalidated By Technicality, Now Resubmitted

Wichita Falls voters today will ballot for the second time on a $500,000 school bond issue needed for a proper development and expansion of public school facilities of the city. The issue was ratfied some six weeks ago but was invalidated by the attorney general on a legal technicality and a new election ordered held. The school board has set Saturday for the date.

Two voting boxes will be provided, one at the court house and the other at the junior high school on Broad street between Eleventh and Twelfth.

School officials and others are not in the least apprehensive over the outcome of today's election. A substantial majority in favor of the issue was rolled up in the former election, but it is hoped that a heavy vote will be recorded today. This, it is pointed out, will assure a more ready sale for the securities.

In case the issue is successful, proceeds from its sale will go toward construction of a new $200,000 for another ward school in the far western edge. Both buildings are badly needed. Improvements on existing buildings will take up the balance of the issue.

When Visitors Come To Wichita Falls We Have Something To Show 'Em

AFTER adjournment of the business council luncheon Friday the visiting Wuarika party who spent the day in Wichita Falls, was taken in charge by Fred L. Haskett, assistant manager of the chamber of commerce, and shown through the manufacturing section of the city and trip into the irrigated district. The visitors were much surprised at the magnitude of the Wichita Motor company, makers of the world famous Wichita truck, the Wichita Window Glass company plant and Ball Brothers fruit jar works.

At the truck factory they were shown trucks in all stages of manufacture, also how many of the parts were made. One truck of interest was a large bus that is being made for a concern in Mexico. The bus has a seating capacity for 30 people and is being constructed high from the ground. This is necessary on account of the bus being used in mountainous country.

See Glass Making.

The making of window glass was interesting and the process in all its stages was shown by guides from the company's office. The visitors were

PATRON FEAST IS CELEBRATED BY CATHOLICS

Annual Event Has Special Significance for Church This Year

The Catholic church of Wichita Falls Friday morning celebrated its annual patron feast. Eight days after the first of Corpus Christi the chmurch celebrates the feast of the Sacred Heart of Jesus.

The object of the celebration is not the inanimate heart of Jesus separated from the persons of Christ, but the living heart of God—man, the center of all the affections, the fountain of all His iVrtues, the most loving emblem of His infinite love to man.

This is an annual event in the church throughout the world but it has a special significance for the Catholics of Wichita Falls inasmuch as it is their patron feast.

This year, however, this day means more to the Catholics of Wichita Falls than ordinarily, because it is practically the dedication and reopening of their church after the disastrous fire of anuary 21. The church is nop almost completely repaired and most beautifully and artistically decorated, and when finished entirely will be an object of beauty and the pride of both Catholics and non-Catholics of Wichita Falls.

In order to accommodate the greatest number of people, especially the working class, it was decided to hold services at an early hour.

At 6 a. m. a large congregation assembled at the church, a great number of whom received holy communion. The Blessed Sacrament was then exposed for public worship while high mass was celebrated, chanted by the senior choir.

The celebration was concluded by sacramental benediction.

CHRIST'S LAW ATTACKED BY SCOPES, BRYAN

Commoner Believes Evolution Not Predominate In Forthcoming Trial

PROSECUTION PLANS

Quartet of Lawyers and W. J. B. Hold Conference At Atlanta Friday

ATLANTA, Ga., June 19.—(AP)—After completing plans for the prosecution of J. T. Scopes, Dayton, Tenn., school teacher for an alleged breach of the Tennessee law prohibiting of evolution in schools of the state, attorneys for the state tonight were speeding homeward. Scarcely an inkling of the course of procedure to be followed during the trial was allowed to pass the veil of secrecy which shrouded their conference here. William J. Bryan of Miami, chief counsel for the prosecution, in a statement to newspaper men during the concluding hours of the conference said: "Nothing can be given to the press except that the state expects to sustain the law and meet any attacks that may be made upon it."

Not All Evolution

Through other sources word came that Mr. Bryan considered the case not one in which evolution was the predominant theme, but one in which an assault was being made upon the precepts of Jesus Christ.

Mr. Bryan, himself, asserted that free speech was not involved in the trial. So far as the individual right of free speech is concerned, Mr. Bryan said Mr. Scopes has the right to say anything he wants except in the school room where he is an employe of the state.

Attorneys conferring with Mr. Bryan included Judge J. G. McKenzie, H. E. Hicks, Sue K. Hicks and W. C. Haggard, all of Dayton. The quartet accompanied by Harry Lawrence also of Dayton, left Atlanta late today on the return trip.

While attorneys for the prosecution were conferring in Atlanta the Tennessee state board of education at Nashville was passing resolutions placing the Bible in the cirriculum of elective studies for the Tennessee public schools. The schools would credit students taking the course with a number of units.

Plan Religious Course

Appointment of a committee to be composed of five "representatives of the Protestant, Catholic and Jewish faiths of the state," was authorized. This body would formulate "syllabus of Bible study, and a plan for teaching same," the plan to be approved by the board.

The move came partially as a result of a plea for "positive instruction in the schools." Etdorsement was given by J. P. McCallie of Chattanooga, Tenn., who endorsed the anti-evolution law for ruling out of the schools "erroneous instruction" termed by him as "negative instruction."

No Land At Pole, Belief Of Explorer

OSLO, Norway, June 19.—(AP)—King Haakon today at a cabinet meeting expressed the thankfulness of the entire Norwegian nation over the safe return of Roald Amundsen and his companions from their attempted flight to the north pole. The king on behalf of himself and the queen, sent a message of welcome home to Amundsen and his party.

During the day Amundsen sent a dispatch to Premier Mowinckel informing the premier that although he had surveyed 160,000 square kilometers in his flight there were no indications of land.

"The cast of the lead in our most northerly latitude," the message added, "gave 3,750 meters, which leads to the safe supposition that no land exists in the Norwegian sector of the Polar basin."

Amundsen also thanked the premier for his arrangements for the expedition. The expedition's meterologist, M. Calwagen thinks the flight is of great importance meteorologically, inasmuch as Lincoln Ellsworth, the American co-leader with Amundsen of the expedition, took most exact observations. M. Calwagen is confident that Ellsworth has made a splendid record.

A Fight With Death Say Fliers Back From Polar Flight

OSLO, June 19. — (AP)—The Dagbladet in its noon edition today printed a non-copyright story outlining some of the experiences of the American north pole expedition. The newspaper said the story was based on messages from the expedition's journalist.

"In narrating their story on arriving at King's Bay," says the Dagbladet, "the fliers, all of whom looked worn and thin from suffering, said their weeks upon the ice, was like a fight with death. Amundsen will later narrate this.

NORWEGIAN PILOT SAVED FROM DEATH

"Now he mentions that the members of the expedition were separated for a while and that Leif Dietrichsen (Norwegian pilot of one of the planes) and Oskar Omdahl (Norwegian mechanician) fell in the water and were just saved from drowning by Lincoln Ellsworth. Meanwhile Amundsen and Hjalmar Risser-Larsen (Norwegian plane pilot) were on the other side of the water. They heard them scream but were unable to help as thin ice prevented using the canvas boat.

Regarding the picking up of the members of the expedition by the fishing boat Sjoeliv, which brought them to King's Bay, the Dagbladet's story says:

FISHERMEN HEARD PURR OF AIRPLANE MOTORS

"The fishing boat Sjoeliv is a small cutter of twelve tons with a crew of nine men. Her captain is Nils Wollan. The vessel had had a poor catch and was hunting for a wounded walrus. When off Huggle Bay, on the north side of Spitzbergen, the crew heard motors purring and discovered an airplane ten kliometers away.

"They at first thought it was an airplane from the patrol expedition, but when it neared they immediately recognized Amundsen, in spite of his long beard.

"The explorer all quickly got aboard the Sjoeliv and crowded into the small berths. There was not much food for so many—only seal, beef, cider and eggs. The hawser towing the airplane broke once, but a new one held.

"BIGGEST CATCH MADE IN HIS FIFTEEN YEARS"

"As Amundsen was told that the patrol expedition was ready to leave King's Bay, he decided to make for King's Bay as fast as possible and leave the plane. Wollan says this was the greatest catch he had made in his 15 years experience in these regions."

The Dagbladet also prints the following account of the expedition in King's Bay, without claim of copyright:

"When it was rumored at King's Bay that the Heimdal (the Norwegian government's Amundsen relief ship) was to clear for Dane Island at 10 o'clock in the evening, many people went to the pier to watch her departure. The midnight sun's rays penetrated the light clouds.

"Out in the fjord a small vessel was noticed making for King's Bay with many persons on deck. Aboard the Heimdal and the Hobby (another relief expedition vessel), which lay alongside each other.

ASSOCIATED PRESS HAD CHARTERED OWN BOAT

It was supposed this was the launch chartered by The Associated Press to follow the patrol expedition northward. The onlookers waved to the occupants and yelled joshing remarks, while those on board the little craft waved in response.

"Suddenly some one on the Heimday remarked 'but it's Amundsen' and at once everyone knew it and he was spontaneously hailed with hurrahs. The six men on the Sjoeliv waved their hands. Soon the Sjoeliv was alongside the Hobby and the men disembarked.

"The whole pier was quickly black with people who enthusiastically cheered. Just at this time the members of the patrol expedition from the Heimdal were at a meeting with the chief of the coal company, discussing details for the patrol expedition.

THOUGHT GOOD NEWS AT FIRST WAS A JOKE

"The departure of the Heimdal for Wellman's Bay was set for 2 o'clock in the morning, and as the members (of the patrol expedition) began to

CHARACTER OF GIRL VICTIM IS ATTACKED AT SLEDGE TRIAL

Wealthy Duncan Family's Son Fights Attempt To Claim Death Penalty

COURTROOM CROWDED

Jefferson County, Okla., Crowds Bring Thermos Bottles and Lunches

WAURIKA, Okla., June 19.—Another scorching day with little or no breeze as far as weather was concerned, found the Waurika court room packed to capacity to hear the Sreywaus case. Women and some of the older men had learned a lesson during the past few days of the trial and today found them bringing in thermos bottles filled with refreshment, icy cold, and also a few of the more anxious to remain even brought sandwiches which they nibbled during the noon hour. If they had good seats they kept them by staying, if their vantage point was not so good they found better seats, while others less far-sighted were compelled to leave in order that they might have some food for the long hour's stay.

The defense introduced its first testimony today and curious folk were anxious to know what would be brought out as extenuating circumstance. When court closed tonight it was with the understanding that Harry Sledge, for whom the state is asking the death penalty, would be the first witness called Saturday morning.

Defense Begins Testimony.

Herchell Latham was the first witness called by the defense this morning in their attempt to impeach the character of the complaining witness, Ethel Sreywaus. He testified that he knew the Sreywaus girls had been on several parties, especially one at the Patterson home, in which Ethel Sreywaus was in the company of Dan Patterson, the witness accompanying her sister, Lily. On cross-examination by the state, however, he admitted signing a statement to the effect that he knew nothing derogatory to the character of these girls.

J. M. Islom, the next witness called by the defense, stated that the Sreywaus girl at one time roomed at his house, and that they were given to keeping late hours. On cross-examination he admitted that he retired at 9

Canton Shakes As Generals Gather

CANTON, June 19.—(AP)—The situation in Canton was unsettled as ever today with leaders of the defacto government at variance and strike agitators planning a general strike against foreign employes which at latest reports will begin Sunday.

Sun Fo, former mayor and son of the late Sun Yat Sen, has returned to the city with Hsu Chung Chi, Cantoneze general who is an ardent supporter of Hu Han Min, acting generalissimo. The gathering of these leaders who incline toward the radical is not pleasing to the more conservative Chinese elements.

SHIPPING STRIKE SPREADING.

Disorder Grows Despite Plea of Chamber of Commerce for Quiet.

SAN FRANCISCO, June 19.—The shipping strike which has tied up coastal and river steamers at Shanghai and has so seriously injured business generally that the Chinese chamber of commerce there has proposed that it be called off has now spread to the British colony of Hongkong in the south, stopping the regular services between that port and Canton and Macao.

A general strike has also been proclaimed at Canton and is expected to commence on Sunday. As at Shanghai these strikes are being promoted by students and workmen having communistic leanings, and it is not expected they will take any heed of the suggestion of the Shanghai chamber, the membership of which is composed of merchants and bankers.

Painleve to Open Real War on Riffs

PARIS, June 19.—(AP)—Premier Plainleve, with the members of the chamber of deputies, excepting the communists solidly behind his government, intends to prosecute the Moroccan war with greater vigor. A large scale offensive may be expected within a few days.

M. Plainleve received a blanket endorsement from parliament today on his Moroccan policy. The vote was 523 to 32, and the French troops in Morocco are likely to abandon their defensive attitude which they have been maintaining for the past five weeks, and strike a blow to restore France's prestige.

BAPTISTS WILL HAVE SECTION IN EVANGELISM

Dr. W. Y. Pond of Hillsboro Elected Department Superintendent

DALLAS, June 19.—Dr. W. Y. Bond, pastor of the First Baptist church of Hillsboro and former evangelist of the Baptist church in Texas, was elected superintendent of the newly created department of evangelism of the Baptist general convention of Texas late today at a meeting of the executive board here. The department was authorized at a meeting of the board here in May.

The Rev. Bonnie Grimes of Nacogdoches and the Rev. B. B. Blaylock of Temple were elected state evangelists to serve in the same department. The work of these men will be to conduct revival meetings in any part of the state where a church of the denomination requests it.

Election of the three men followed recommendations to the board by a committee headed by W. H. McKenzie.

A goal of $1,800,000 was set as the volume of funds needed to carry on this year's work, of which 55 per cent would go for work within the state and 45 per cent for a southwide program.

New Road Plans To City Limits Formed

An agreement to do excavating and grading of Harrison street from Speedway south to the city limits was made Friday by the city county after W. B. Hamilton and N. H. Martin asked that the work be done as a preparatory step to their paving of a 60-foot roadway through a new residential addition they are putting in in that section. The work will be started in the near future, it was indicated.

The boulevard is a part of the landscaping plan of Messrs. Hamilton and Martin, who propose to lay out a highly attractive plot for residences. It will give still another paved route for the city to the new municipal park and golf course that is just being completed.

A few minor paving matters relating to improvements in other sections of the city were also taken up for discussion by the counsel at its Friday morning meeting.

Rogers, San Antonio, Texas; Dr. Harry S. Fish, Sayre, Pa.; Carl L. Faust, Jackson, Miss.; A. F. Graves, Brighton, England, and Charles Bursheli, Halifax, N. S.

TWO PRIVATES ARE ARRESTED

Men From Ft. Sill Caught With Stolen Goods in Possession.

Two privates from the army post at Fort Sill, Okla., were taken back to Oklahoma by a corporal's guard Friday afternoon following their arrest here earlier in the day with 600 pounds of brass couplings cut from fire hose, a large assortment of uniforms and a post automobile. They were taken in custody by city police following an attempt to dispose of the brass at an Indiana avenue junk yard.

Officers who came here in the afternoon in response to a telephone message to Fort Sill said the goods had been stolen from the post during a serious fire there last Tuesday. They were on leave yesterday and hence cannot be prosecuted on a desertion charge.

One of the men arrested was accompanied by his wife and two small children.

WEATHER MAN RELENTS HERE

Clouds Keep Thermometer From Soaring to Heights.

The weather man relented Friday and after giving Wichita Falls one of the most miserable nights it may have this summer, brought a fairly liberal supply of clouds and a much cooler breeze to afford relief throughout the day.

With the sun's rays cut off most of the time it was really not uncomfortable down town.

Saturday's forecast indicated a continuation of cloudy weather and possible still further relief from the summer heat.

REPORTS ARE EXAGGEERATED

Galveston Attorneys Deny 64 "Booze" Injunctions.

GALVESTON, June 19.—Reports printed in a Houston newspaper to the effect that 64 padlock injunctions were being served in Galveston are a gross exaggeration, according to Federal District Atorney E. R. Warnken this afternoon.

The district attorney indicated that some injunctions would be server without giving the number, adding that "there was nothing for publication," at present.

Texas Men File Test Suit Against Taxes

AUSTIN, June 19.—Citation to appear in the suit for $50,000, filed by C. L. Sanger of Dallas and Asher S. Sanger of Waco, was served on Collector Bass today by James Quinlan, United States deputy marshal.

The suit is to test the action of the Bureau of Internal Revenue in collecting an estate tax amounting to $35,720.38 and denying the petition for refund made by the plaintiffs, according to Bass. The tax was collected and when the petition for the refund was made, it was forwarded to Washington and denied by that office, it was said. The case will be decided on the facts and the law governing the action of the department.

The case will probably be called for trial on the second Monday in November, it was stated Friday.

Hart Appeals Right Of Ex-Wife to Act

LOS ANGELES, June 19.—(AP)—The California supreme court has before it, it became known today, an appeal to decide if Winifred Westover Hart, wife of William S. Hart, can return to her profession of motion picture actress without divorcing the "two-gun man of the screen" or losing the income from a trust fund of $103,000 he created in her favor in 1922.

In a suit brought last year by Mrs. Hart to have the terms of the trust agreement interpreted the superior court decided that it did not preclude her acceptance of employment in motion, but that it did prohibit her from using the name of Mrs. William S. Hart or any name by which Hart is known during the life of the agreement or upon its termination.

Appeal from the superior court decision has been taken by Hart.

Temporary Injunction Against 28 Places Are Issued Friday

GALVESTON, June 19.—Temporary injunctions issued by Federal Judge J. C. Hutcheson against property owners and tenants of 28 places in Galveston in which dry agents operating during the past few weeks have found liquor being sold, were being served today by a squad of federal prohibition agents and United States deputy marshals.

The injunctions extend over a period of 20 days and restrain operators, lessees and owners of the various establishments from selling, transporting and possessing liquor.

The injunctions will then be made permanent if sale of liquor is proved.

Reports printed in a Houston papaper to the effect that 64 padlock injunctions were being served here, were a gross exaggeration, E. R. Warken, assistant United States attorney, stated this afternoon.

Kelsey Thinks Oil Situation Still Is Tipsy

"Good" He Says "But Keeps The Brakes on Awhile Yet"

"PESSI-OPTIMISM"

Prairie Head Says Company Is Still Running Crude To Storage

TULSA, Okla., June 19.—"The oil situation is in good condition, but producers and refiners should keep the brakes on."

This is the expert advice that Dana H. Kelsey, vice-president and general manager of the Prairie Oil and Gas company, offers. He was a visitor in Tulsa Thursday with W. S. Fitzpatrick, chairman of the board of directors attending the dinner given that night to Frank E. Lauinger, president of the Petroleum Publishing company of Oil City, Pa., and Tulsa, Okla.

"In spite of the rosy picture that the statistical reports furnish us," continued Mr. Kersey, "the fact remains that we are being offered more crude than we can adequately care for right now. Against our wishes we are again running crude into storage."

Producers Seek Relief in Some Pools.

He said that a number of major purchasers had solicited relief of the Prairie in high gravity pools where over-production could soon develop unless the current output was cared for.

It is Mr. Kelsey's opinion that producers should not be precipitated in starting new wells, even if they are offsets to pool discoveries, where a little discretion and prudence would keep the general situation in hand. Mr. Kelsey also inclined his opinion that refiners should also not increase runs to stills too fast.

In many respects the view of Mr. Kelsey is similar to that propounded by Walter G. Teagle, president of the Standard Oil company of New Jersey, who was in the Mid-Continent a fortnight ago on a tour around the western oil fields, "that oil men should be pessimistically optimistic at all times."

Group 3 Refinery Market Is Slow.

"Steady, but slow." That is the best way to describe the Group 3 refinery market at this time. Refiners say that conditions are in hand, but sales are slow, although reports from the consumption centers show an increasing demand for petroleum products. A number of inquiries elicits the information that the oil jobbers have been led to believe that both crude and tankwagon markets would be disturbed about this time, and for that reason they have kept out of the market.

Such sales as have been made by refiners are at posted prices, and the marketers who a few days ago offered U. S. motor as low as 12 3-4 cents, now ask 12 7-8 cents for it, showing that the volume of distressed gasoline on hand is small. However, the amount will increase if a buying movement does not soon ensue. Many inquiries are being received, some from exporters.

Oil Gossip

The initials "s.d. for water" are beginning to appear once more in scout reports of North Texas. Two months ago they were the most common report for an oil well. Then most everything in sight spent about half the time shut down for water. With the inundations of late April and May, however, the situation was much improved. Early June hot sun however has dryed up the country again and lack of water will become more and more a problem as the days go by.

L. A. Green of the Radio Petroleum company of Fort Worth was a Wichita Falls visitor yesterday. He was to be back in Fort Worth today.

Independent Oil and Gas company is planning a new office building for Tulsa to be located at the northeast corner of Seventh street and Cheyenne avenue. The building will be ten stories high when completed but at present is to be stopped at three stories and a basement. Cost of the completed structure is estimated at about $700,000. The new Independent building will be directly across the street from the Chesnut and Smith building, with the Pure to the north of it and Twin-State-Sun building nearby. Independent has recently moved its general offices from Okmulgee to Tulsa. It is at present located in the Kennedy building.

Girl Buried After Moisture on Brow Causes False Hopes

WELLSTON, Okla., June 19.—(AP)—Miss Bertie West, 16-year-old daughter of Solomon West, a farmer, was buried last night after her funeral had been interrupted by relatives who believed her still alive.

As the body was about to be lowered into the grave at a country cemetery five miles from here, the girl's mother asked to see her daughter's face. The casket was opened and moisture was noted on the girl's brow. Thinking it was perspiration the funeral party turned back home to seek a physician's advice.

On the way they met Dr. T. F. Erwin of Wellston. The cortege halted and in the gathering darkness of the country roadside the doctor made his examination the mourners grouped about him.

The girl was pronounced dead, the party returned to the cemetery and the burial was completed. Dr Erwin said that the excessive fever from which the girl died caused the moisture on her face.

THE PASSING OF AN UGLY SITUATION.

The rioting in Shanghai by workers and students, which threatenod to culminate in a popular uprising throughout China against foreigners, has quieted down into an ordinary labor disturbance, with intermittent bullitions growing fainter and fainter to signalize its eventual passing. Emissaries from the central Chinese government have been sent to adjust differences between the rioters and the foreign representatives. Chinese troops have been dispatched to see that order is preserved. But most significant of all is the declaration from student organizations in Shanghai that the rioting was not directed primarily by an anti-foreign sentiment, but by a hostile feeling for British and Japanese employers. Mass meetings of Chinese workers have been told to concentrate their efforts against the British and Japanese. Such orders are ominous enough in themselves, yet they indicate that ill-feeling is being restricted, and is gradually subsiding.

China will soon present to the world its customary aspect, with factional strife in certain sections but no concerted or general movement against international peace or domestic order. Canton is now being made the scene of a struggle between partisans of the late Sun Yat Sen. Rumors have been circulating of a coming war in the north between Chang Tso Lin, Manchurian war lord, supported by Japanese influence, and Feng Fu Hsing, so-called Christian general, now enjoying Russian backing. This would be a conflict of major proportions, as both chiefs are possessed of considerable means and each could muster in the neighborhood of 200,000 men. But though such a contest of strength is plainly on the books of fate, it is not yet due. Both Chang and Feng are of the ruling faction in China, and they will remain on more or less amicable terms until some political change aligns them in direct opposition. The inevitability, however, of an open breach between them, taken in conjunction with the strife in and about Canton, shows that China is divided as ever into North, Central and Southern factions.

But among the possibilities is no longer to be counted that of an anti-foreign movement like the Boxer uprising. China will not embark upon so futile an endeavor as that of driving the world from her doors. She has come in recent years to reckon some of the treaty powers among her friends. Certainly she looks with favor upon the United States and regards the Washington conference agreement as her guarantee of future national independence. She needs the help of the right kind of external influence to rid herself of mischievous interference on the part of her tyrants and close neighbors. Authority in her central governing body has been usurped by force and treachery, concerted by Chang and Feng, the tools respectively of Japan and Russia. In this situation the Chinese people sorely need the help and frieindship of the world. It is fortunate for them, as for the foreign nationals settled among them, that there is to be no inveterate racial strife.

BUSINESS CONTINUES UNCHANGED.

The federal reserve board's business summary for the month of May reveals an unchanging situation so far during this year. Increases and decreases in different lines balance one another. One encouraging phase to note is that there seems to be no falling off in trade with the coming of summer. This undoubtedly means that the present volume of business will be maintained until the opening of fall gives a decided impetus to industry and commerce. That expansion will be easily possible when it is due is amply evidenced by the way in which certain industries turning out finished products have gained while industries furnishing material have slightly declined.

Iron and steel industries have suffered a reduction in their output, but automobile manufacturing appears to have maintained the high mark of production reached in April. In wholesale lines, hardware has made the best showing. Thus the metal industries are sustained by the industries they ordinarily supply. Associated with the gain in automobile manufacturing are advance registered by petroleum and tire manufacturing. Production of newsprint and mill consumption of cotton have also increased. In the retail trade, groceries and shoes fell off, while meats, drugs and dry goods made gains. Commodity distribution attained a higher level but wholesale prices declined.

Taken generally, this brief review of gain and loss shows about the same condition that was noted last year before the autumn boom in trade. There is a distinctly favorable indication in the fall of wholesale prices. Reduced prices always stimulate consumption. If price reduction can be made widely effectively without injuring profitable retail business or reacting disadvantageously against the farmers, it will unquestionably hasten the date of a substantial gain in all trade activities.

THE DEMOCRATIC COMMITTEE WAKES UP.

Massachusetts' and New Jersey's approaching special congressional elections have awakened the sluggish democratic national committee to life at last. The committee's divisions and hesitations must be speedily cured if the party is to effectively engage in these contests. When the fight is over in Massachusetts and New Jersey the general congressional election of 1926 will be close at hand. Obviously, the democratic committee must do something immediately to put itself in position to direct the party's campaign. It is at present carrying heavy liabilities in the shape of undischarged obligations incurred during the presidential contest of 1924, confused financial affairs and divided councils.

A movement toward re-organization and political unity is seen in the report circulated in Washington that Clem L. Shaver, present committee chairman, is preparing to resign. Mr. Shaver has held his post despite strong pressure from party leaders, refusing to create an opportunity for some one faction to rule and spread division. That he is now upon the point of taking a step which he has formerly declined to consider, is an indication that a "harmony candidate" for his place has been chosen. Representative William Oldfield of Arkansas is believed to be the fortunate man, since it is known that he is not objectionable to any of the democratic presidential possibilities. Besides, he is already chairman of the democratic congressional committee and the fight just ahead of the democrats is a congressional fight.

Uncommon Sense

By JOHN BLAKE.

The Short Cut.

The man who can make short cuts gets there first—naturally.

Competition is so keen that without short cuts progress is never fast enough.

Almost every day we read of some man who at thirty or forty has been elevated to head a great corporation.

Never is there a great war that some young commander does not rise to a high position through disclosing an unexpected ability as a "short cutter."

It is not enough to do good work.

Today one must not only do his work well, but rapidly if he expects to rise anywhere near the top.

But there is a vast difference between making short cuts and merely trying to make short cuts.

Only the man who knows his own business thoroughly can venture to make any short cuts.

The ordinary bungler will always see many of what he fancies are opportunities to solve this or that problem rapidly.

Always he will be wrong, and will presently regret that he was not content to take the longest way 'round, at least until he knew more about his job.

In my youth I once accompanied a fishing party over a mountain trail that led down to a trout stream.

The road was long and winding, and the way was hot and dusty.

It occurred to me that to plod along that tortuous trail was merely to lose time and increase our fatigue, and all for nothing.

So I suggested to my companions that we cut off the trail at right angles and plunge directly toward the brook.

They were foolish enough to take my advice, and in less than ten minutes we were so deeply involved in a brush brake, out of which we could not see, and through which we could work our way only a few feet at a time that it took us the rest of the time to get to the next bend of the trail.

A week or two later I was going over the same route with a resident of the region, and he suggested that we make a short cut.

I demurred, but pretty soon he showed me a path, which we followed and so reached the stream in a few minutes.

He knew the way and I didn't. He could afford to take short cuts.

We admire the man who works rapidly, provided he works accurately at the same time.

We admire the man who discards details, and deals only with the essentials of the problem.

But we forget that it has taken him years of work to acquire his facility, and that if he did not know the details and all about them he would not know which he could safely discard.

This is an age of short cuts to everything, as an automobile is a short cut to the next town. But we must remember that in the hands of a man who never ran one, a journey to the next town by automobile would be a long and hazardous one, and that he might never see his journey's end at all.

CONGRESSIONAL POLICY UPHELD.

The conservation policy of congress and the democratic position in the senate oil inquiry are upheld by the decision of Federal Judge Paul J. McCormick directing the Doheny oil interests to surrender for cancellation their leases in Naval Oil Reserve No. 1, Elks Hills, California, and their contracts for the construction of oil storage facilities at Pearl Harbor, Hawaii. Two cogent reasons cover the 92 points of fact and the 14 conclusions of law contained in the decision. They are precisely those urged in the oil investigation and maintained on behalf of congress against the administration. The first reason is the "fraud upon the United States" evidenced by H. L. Doheny having paid Albert B. Fall, then secretary of the interior, $100,000. The second is that President Harding acted without authority in signing an order transferring the naval reserve from the navy department in the interior department.

Fall's acceptance of the $100,000 shows cause for his action in turning over the oil reserve to Doheny, while the obvious advantage to be derived by the latter established his motives. This is proved a conspiracy to defraud the country. The leases and contracts resulting from the agreement between the two men, in the words of Federal Judge McCormick, "constitute unlawful delegation of authority to the secretary of interior, contrary to the terms and provisions of the act of June, 1920." And further: "The executive order of May 31, 1921, issued by Warren G. Harding, president of the United States of America, was in so far as it attempts to transfer a discretionary power of the secretary of the navy to the secretary of the interior, ineffectual and in excess of the executive power of the president."

In dealing further with the transfer of power from the navy department to the interior department, the judge uses language which may be misunderstood by some readers. He says that Fall did not make any false representation of fact to induce President Harding to sign the transfer, and that former Secretary of the Navy Denby was under a misapprehension in signing the leases and contracts. Both statements need explanation. President Harding was not deceived as to facts because facts were not in question. He was making a transfer at the instance of one of his cabinet advisers, and for the purpose of administration, not that of disposal. Denby, on the other hand, was misled as to the facts though he was not deceived as to the policy involved. The president was betrayed by his trust in an unworthy adviser and agent. The secretary of the navy was a passive collaborator misunderstanding somewhat, but yet participating in a fraud against the government and the people insofar as he could participate under the circumstances.

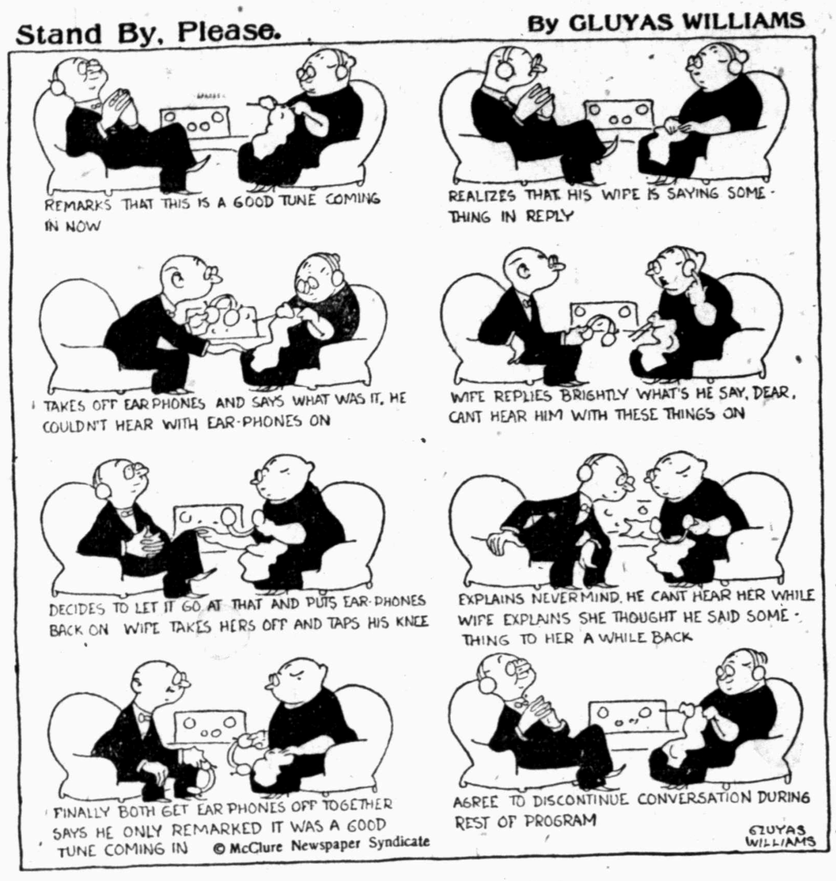

LABOR FINDS A BETTER WEAPON.

"The label is the one big weapon. The strike is undoubtedly obsolete," said George A. Wilson head of the Houston Labor Council, at the State Federation of Labor convention at Amarillo. "If you can't win a strike in five days you had better go back to work. The Typographical Union discovered that and learned a bitter lesson which cost them $18,000,000 in putting over the 44-hour week. Educating the people to demand union made goods is now considered the great forward movement in organized labor, and it is undoubtedly the most powerful and effective weapon yet devised."

Mr. Wilson is right. The strike has destroyed itself, becoming such an unwieldy instrument that it can no longer be used effectively by industrial workers. Once advocated as the only eefficient means of securing justice for labor, the strike failed utterly in the hour of its supreme test. Its cost alone is prohibitive under modern conditions, but its greatest defect is that it alienates the public, whose sympathy labor must have to win its battles

What Today Means to You

Gemini.

The planetary aspects indicate that today there will not be experienced any particular sense of "pep" or vim. On the contrary, everything points to a rather lethargical, albeit contented, frame of mind. Under such conditions, it would be advisable, if practicable, to leave in abeyance anything that demands concentration or exceptional effort, and to do as little as possible outside of ordinary routine work. In the afternoon, the conditions show a slight improvement, and some vigrations of a stimulating nature will be felt. If you are interested in sports or outdoor recreations this should be a propitious for indulging your taste.

Children born today will, accordingto the signs, enjoy fairly normal health, although they will be subject, more or less, to the ailments usually adopted providing for careful nutrition and an abundance of outdoor air. Their dispositions, as a rule, will be cheerful and merry, although in some instances, there will be an excessive tendency to introspection which, at times, is liable to provoke moodishness and moroseness. Their characteristics will be pliable, and they will prove easily amenable to kind and affectionate influences; much more so, in fact, than to any harsh, disciplinary measures.

If today is your birthday, you are at no time imitative, but possess a great fund of originality, and you are rather disposed to ignore conventions that do not agree with your own particular point of view. You are a good executive, in the home, the office, or the workshop, and possess exceptional capacity for the absorption of details. In addition to these material assets, you have a considerate degree of mechanical skill, with an inventive turn of mind.

You do not act on impluse, but think deeply and seriously before taking any important step. You know how to keep your own counsel, and are rather close-mouthed in regard to your own affairs. No friend ever appeals to you in vain, and you are always prepared to lend a helping hand to those that stand in need of it. No one can justly accuse you of being self-centered, as you always evince a warm interest in affairs not connected with your own personal efforts.

Schools of Wichita Falls an Asset To The Irrigation Project.

Texas as a state may rank 39th in point of educational advantages as compared to the other states in the union, but that rating does not apply to the city of Wichita Falls.

Wichita Falls, despite the fact that it is growing so fast that the schools are constantly over-crowded, can be compared favorably with any city of its size in the country in the matter of schools.

Adequate schools are a great advantage to any community. Our schools are far above the standard and as such must be considered as an asset to our irrigation project.

On account of our wonderful system of paved roads, the greater portion of the irrigation project is within 30 minutes drive by automobile, of an excellent city school.

The project itself is fairly well supplied with primary schools to which the younger children may go. And as soon as a pupil has become sufficiently advanced, he or she, can be sent daily to Wichita Falls for advance work up to and through the sophomore year in college.

Not many projects, regardless of their age, can boast of better educational facilities than we have here. Few of them at the same age could even approach us in the matter of schools.

Our city school system is just one of the things we take for granted and which we do not fully appreci

HOW IT STARTED

Laughing "Up His Sleeve."

Judging by the fact that we have this expression in French, German and Latin, there must be a lot of surreptitious laughter in the world. But a laugh's a laugh, for all that, and it's good for the digestion.

It's hard to see how any one could have a laugh in any of the tight little sleev sthat are de diguer this season. There's hardly room to have an arm in them. But not so in the "bell" sleeve with which we are familiar and which was a diminutive replica of the sleeves worn by the ancients, who, concerned with changing fashions with the seasons, wore one style long enough to make it famous.

With them, when any one seemed to be screening his face behind the long flowing folds of his sleeve, there was always the suspicion that he was "laughing in his sleeve." And to this day, laughing behind any one's back, whether it be a fan or a hat that screens it, we call laughing in your sleeve.

More Truth Than Poetry

ADVICE TO THE LOVELORN

Mr. Carpentier counsels young women not to marry prizefighters.
Though getting his nose flattened out on his face
Is a part of a pugilisti's life,
Whenever this common occurence takes place
'It is dreadfully rough on his wife.
As she anxiously waits his homecoming at night
Her heart murmurs sadly "Ah! Me!
Perhaps he'll come home at the end of a fight
With gaps where his teeth ought to be!"
Though pugs may resemble the gods of old Greece—
It is wiser to marry a person of peace.

It is thrilling to sit by the side of the ring
When one's husband is fighting a bout,
And to watch him come through with a long left hand swing,
While his baffled opponent goes out.
But just when expecting one's hero to win
What a hideous dash to one's hopes,
When the other man lands a good jab on the chin—
And friend husband is knocked through the ropes.
Though prizefighters handsome and masterful are,
To wed to some highbrow is shrewder by far.

True love will be proof to full many a shock,
If it really is deep and sincere,
But it's certain to suffer a pretty hard knock
When it looks at a shredded-up ear.
And after a fighter for years has withstood
Slams, wallops and smashes and knocks,
He may as a hero be perfectly good—
But he won't be a wonder for looks.
The knights of the ring are alluring, perhaps—
But in wedlock, be wise and pick peacefuller chaps!

Dorothy Dix's Letter Box

THE PLIGHT OF THE MAN WHOSE WIFE IS GOLF-MAD—DO MEN DISCUSS THEIR GIRL FRIENDS WITH EACH OTHER? SHOULD HE USE KINDNESS OR INDIFFERENCE TO WIN HER LOVE?

Dear Dorothy Dix—My wife neglects her children for golf. She leaves them sick, or dirty, or hungry; no difference to her, so that she does not miss her game. Sometimes we cannot even find her when we have to call the doctor in to see one of them. What shall I do? J. H. B.

Answer: The wail of the golf widow has been heard in the land, loudly lamenting her fate, ever since the ancient and honorable game became an obsession with so many men.

Now comes the bitter cry of the golf widower to add to the dirge that rolls up around every golf course.

The most curious thing about golf is the way it seems to chraze its followers. Homes, husbands, wives, children, duties, all sink into insignificance when compared to the sport of chasing a little white ball over a grassy field.

Women will tell you that they are married to men who were once loving and attentive husbands, who never see them now from the time the golf season opens until it closes. They used to spend pleasant Sundays and holidays together, but now husband is off with his golf bag every spare minute, and they must sit at home and suck their thumbs or wrestle with the children alone. Husband should worry about whether wife is enjoying herself or not. He has forgotten he has a wife and children. He is married to a golf ball.

It is certainly tit-for-tat that an occasional woman should get the golf bee in her bonnet and forsake her husband and children for the golf course. It gives a man a chance to realize how the golf widow feels, but it is hard on the children; and it is earnestly to be hoped that golf will never become as great a mania with women as it is with men. If it does, we will have to establish public institutions where the unfortunate offspring of golfers can be taken care of.

Any woman who neglects her children for golf, or bridge, or anything else; any woman who spends her afternoons away from home while her children play in the streets, and make acquaintance with those they should not know, and form habits and ideals that are the beginning of their downfall, deserves to have something done to her with boiling oil in it.

She is a criminal who betrays the trust which has been placed in her hands by God Himself. She is a quitter, who lies down on her job.

She fills the police courts. She recruits the sad sisterhood of the streets. She wrecks the lives of the helpless little children whose fate she shapes, and no punishment could be too great for her.

What a husband should do to a wife who leaves her little children sick, and hungry, and dirty, while she goes off to play golf I don't know. Certainly he should tell her that if she doesn't stay at home and attend to her duties he will divorce her, and get some woman who isn't a golf fiend to come and mother his children.

But is the woman who neglects her family for golf any worse than the man who does so? I think not. DOROTHY DIX.

Dear Miss Dix—When a couple who have been in love with each other break their engagement, don't you think the boy forgets quicker than the girl?

Does a boy discuss a girl that he thinks a lot of with his boy friends? AN INTERESTED READER.

Answer: "Men have died and worms have eaten them, but not for love." I think men nearly always recover from sentimental episodes in the briefest possible time. The wounds in their hearts heal, as surgeons say, by first intention, and they heal so completely that they rarely leave a scar.

Now and then you do meet some old bachelor who has never married because he still is faithful to some unhappy love of his youth. But pining over lost loves has gone out of fashion. It simply isn't done in these practical, modern days, where it is off with the old love and on with the new before you can say Jack Robinson. Girls don't waste many tears over the loved and lost, either. Weeping dulls the eyes, and they keep theirs bright so they can vamp another sheik.

Of course, a perfect gentleman is not supposed to discuss women with other men. And in particular, a young man is supposed to regard as sacred his lady love's very name, but in reality men's favorite topic of conversation is women, and when they get together there isn't a girl of their acquaintance who isn't discussed and vivisected, and gossiped about.

Boys are just as fond of confiding in their friends as girls are in their chums, and you may be very certain that your John has told his pal just as much about you as you have ever told your friend Mamie about him. Don't imagine for an instant that men have any more reticence about affairs of the heart or are any more honorable about confidences than girls are. They are not.

A cynic once said: "Treat your friends as if he might some day be your enemy." This advice goes double for your boy friend. Never do or say anything that you would not be willing for him to tell other men. Never let him take any liberties with you that you would be ashamed for other people to know. DOROTHY DIX.

Dear Miss Dix—Which is the best way to win a girl's love, through kindness or indifference? Should a man who is in love with a woman try to please her always, or should he attempt to make her jealous? HENRY.

Answer: The only way to win a woman is through kindness. We naturally love those who love us, and are attracted to those who show that they are interested in us and find our society agreeable.

Human vanity is a harp of a thousand strings upon which you can always evoke melody for the listener. No man is so interesting to a woman as the one who sings her praises; no man displays such good taste as the one who singles her out from the herd. No man's judgment is so sound as the one who approves her. On the contrary, she thinks but poorly of the man who is indifferent to her. DOROTHY DIX.

A Fight With Death Say Fliers Back From Polar Flight

go back to the ship a man suddenly came running up yelling 'the Amundsen boys are here!' The members of the patrol called it a poor joke, but then they heard the cheering on the pier and discovered the newly arrived little vessel. They jumped aboard the Heimdal which was nearest the pier then over on the deck of the Hobby and down on the Sjoeliv, where the six polar fliers, dirty and bearded, but living and safe, were nearly mobbed by sailors and laborers who cheered and shouted.

"The patrol expedition's members embraced the returned fliers: all were laughing or crying with joy. All chatted incoherently. They were only able to say: 'it cannot be true, we must be dreaming.'

"Then all went together to the home of the director of the coal company, where the national anthem was sung by the crowd."

The story says the returned members of the polar expedition got to bed late the following morning at King's Bay.

o'clock at night and that very slight noises disturbed him.

Johnnie Moore, the next witness called, testified that on the various parties he attended, he was accompanied by Ethel Sreywaus, that it was the custom of the young people to kiss, hug and spoon and that he and Ethel were no exception to the rule. He denied having any immoral relations with the prosecuting witness.

Ted Elliot Is Called.

Ted Elliott, one of the defendants, was next called to the stand and testified concerning the happiness on the night the alleged crime is supposed to have occurred. He stated that he and the other boys met the Sreywaus girls on the street, and made a date to meet them later at the house. That they later met the complaining witness at her home and that she, and Bill Morrison went car riding with the boys. That they tried to get some whiskey, but were unsucceseful and finally wound up at the Sledge farm They went in the house and about that time he, Elliott, went back to town to get Lily Sreywaus and a package of cigarettes, but was unsuccessful in getting either. That he then returned to the Sledge farm and when he arrived, Ethel was washing the blood from her face, that he noticed the wounds upon her face and that Sledge's cheek was bleeding and showed teeth marks where Ethel had bitten him. That the parties talked the matter over and it was suggested that the affair be explained by saying they had been in a car wreck. He stated that Ethel would not assent to this and they finally came back to town, rode around a while and then took the girls home. That Sledge remained at the farm while they were taking the girls home, and then Ted went back and got Sledge, who stayed all night with Ted.

Makes Good Witness.

Elliott made a good witness, was prompt with his answers. He is about the strongest witness the defense has produced to date.

Bill Brown, one of the boys jointly charged with Elliott and Sledge, taking the witness stand in behalf of the defendant, Sledge, proceeded to give his version of what happened on the night of February 21, 1925, from the time the boys first met the girls to their home after the alleged crime is supposed to have been committed. Brown got along fairly well in answer to questions on direct examination but on being taken over by Ben Saye, special prosecutor for the state, seemed to suffer a lapse of memory, giving hesitating answers and requiring the questions to be reread to him several times. This witness finally cleared up the mystery as to the Ford car coming out to the farm home of Sledge when the parties were out there by stating that one Ford car delivered to the defendants a pint of whiskey, all of the evidence heretofore being to the effect that no whiskey was drunk that night and that none was at the place.

The witness, Brown, stated that two men, Sid Russell and John Witten, brought a pint of whiskey out there to the place and that he put the whiskey in his hip pocket; that he did not drink any whiskey there, nor did any of the other parties there.

Burkburnett

FIRST WHEAT.

The first load of wheat was bought this week by J. Frank Kelley, grain dealer, and local buyer for the Wichita Falls Grain and Evevator company, it was announced today.

It was raised by P. G. Williamson of Grandfield, rated No. 1, and he was paid $1.00 per bushel with a premium of 25 cents per bushel.

The load weighed about 56 bushels.

The yield is about on an average of 10 bushels to the acre, it is stated by the dealers.

CITY MANAGER RESIGNS.

Robert L. Brumbalow, city manager of Burkburnett for the past two years, has resigned that position and will leave this city July 1st and will probably return to his former home in Waco, Texas.

During his administration a large number of improvements and helpful community changes have taken place. Among these are 19 blocks of paving added to the 10 original blocks, and having been re-surfaced; a new water works unit installed in and a half mile north of city, giving adequate supply of water; sewer system purchased and extensions over business and residential sections; permanent street lighting system on Main street. Reduction of insurance rate 15 per cent per year. New city hall under construction, and other improvements. Much credit is given Mr. Brumbalow and the city commissioners for accomplishing these many community improvements.

BUYS FIRM INTEREST.

Al Lohoefener who has been a member of the Corner drug store firm has purchased the interest of Dr. W. B. Adams, who has returned to regular practice of medicine and also that of the other member of the firm, John Nix. The latter will remain in the store as pharmacist. Mr. Lohoefener is owner of the entire enterprise.

CHILDREN'S DAY.

Children's day will be observed at the Central Christian church with a pageant portraying a day in China at the Missions Station next Sunday night. The program is unique and unusually interesting. The day was observed at the First Presbyterian church last Sunday.

DELIVERY EXTENDED.

An extension of the city delivery service was announced to begin July 1st by Postmaster N. R. Vaught, naming residents of Ellis and Vann streets.

ANNOUNCEMENTS.

Two interesting announcements are being made today in the line of educational and religious entertainment. On next Friday night, Rev. B. A. Hodges, formerly of Temple Presbyterian church, now of Waxahachie, will give his famous educational lecture with slides "From ABC to B. A.," at the Presbyterian church.

And the photoplay on the Biblical story of the creation, etc., entitled "After Six Days," will be presented at the Liberty theatre next Tuesday and Wednesday, having met the endorsement of several of the churches and representative citizens of Burkburnett.

CHURCH PROGRESSES.

The foundation work of the new $50,000 Methodist church is progressing daily. The building committee announces a number of splendid contributions from outside sources, namely the McMann, Gulf and Magnolia Oil companies, the Marcus Brothers and others.

GRANDDAUGHTER OF MAN WHO WROTE "STAR SPANGLED BANNER" DIES

TEXARKANA, June 19.—Rebecca Turner Norwood, 93 years old, granddaughter of Francis Scott Key, author of the "Star Spangled Banner," died here today. Mrs. Norwood was a pioneer resident in this section, having lived in Jefferson, Texas, prior to the founding of Texarkana and moving to this city, within a year of its founding, where she has since continuously lived. She amassed a fortune in real estate and cash. While never desiring to be known as a philanthropist, she has bestowed substantial charities with a lavish hand throughout her lifetime. She is survived by a sister, two nephews and two nieces, all of San Francisco. Archdeacon Harry L. Viden of Dallas, Episcopal diocese, will conduct the funeral services here tomorrow.

State Press Meet Gives Paper Three Awards For Work

TYLER, June 19.—A state printery competing with private plants and eventually absorbing them in the ultimate development on Texas unless the job plants and country newspapers check centralization of state printing at Austin, declared M. M. McFarland of San Antonio at today's meeting of the Texas Press association.

Growing Fast.

"Centralization of public printing in Austin," said Mr. McFarland, "is growing at an alarming rate. It is due not only to the natural increase brought about by population and increased business, but every session of the legislature passes new bills creating thousands and even millions of new blanks and they invariably leave forms to be prescribed and furnished by the department that executes the particular law. This is not done intentionally by members of the legislature, and if their attention was called to this matter they would change the words to let the printing be done by the country printers of their home town as it should be, thus doing away with an enormous expense and employment of many people in Austin to handle the correspondence shipping and other work incident to the printing that has to go to the various county officials of Texas.

"SPOTTY" SAID OF COTTON IN TEXAS FIELDS

Scattered Showers Beneficial But General Conditions Fair

DALLAS, June 19.—While recent scattered showers have been extremely beneficial to the Texas cotton crop general condition of the crop over the state present a "spotty appearance," according to reports received here. General rains would greatly benefit cotton in most sections, it is indicated.

In east, west and North Texas, with exception of isolated areas, condition of the staple is reported to be from fair to good. Rains in east Texas have allayed the drouth in many localities, soil in that section having conserved the moisture.

Everything is parched in the whole tier in central Texas counties, notably in the Caldwell county area. While some counties in central Texas are regarded as in good condition, the majority of them range from fair to poor.

Cotton generally is in fair condition in south Texas, the reports declare.

No shortage of labor is reported and farmers are well up with their work, their fields being clean as a result of an abundance of fair weather.

Williamson county, regarded as a banner cotton producer, regards condition less favorable each day as the drouth continues. With good rains, however, even at this time, good crops would yet be possible.

Rain is needed in most parts of the Panhandle, but in the Panhandle-Plains country the condition of cotton generally is said to be splendid. Some counties in that section are planting five or six times the acreage planted last season.

Little damage in Texas from boll weevil or other pests is reported.

The GILDED ROSE

by May Christie

"Good morning, Little Lady! Feeling better?" She awoke to great patches of sunlight on the bed and walls, and Landis bending over her.

The recollection of last night's disaster came back to her.

"Is Annie all right?" was her first anxious query, not realizing at the moment how odd it was that her husband should be here with her.

"Annie's as right as rain. Can you take some breakfast? "I'm going to have mine with you, if you'll allow me."

He disappeared, and presently returned with a small table, which he set at the side of the bed nearest the invalid.

Then he made the coffee.

"I don't want to ask you any questions, child, because I haven't got the right to ask them," he said awkwardly, when Rosilyn had drunk her coffee, and, looking rather frail, but infinitely happier than she had done for several days (she knew not why) was lying back upon the pillows. "But will you tell me why you chose to come to this place, with no one but old Annie Will you tell me what brought you here?"

She turned her clear, frank gaze on him.

"I was unhappy. I was in the way at Royal Cliff. So I wanted to be alone, and think things out."

"Was it I who made you unhappy?" His voice was very low, but vibrant with real feeling.

She replied:

"It was I who made you unhappy, because you never loved me, Landis. I came here to try and make up my mind to free you from this marriage—"

"Rosilyn!"

"I can't bear to be a drag upon you!"

He bent over to look into her eyes.

"Who told you that you were a drag? Who influenced you to come here? Tell me, Rosilyn, was Rupert Briscoe talking to you?"

She flushed hotly.

"He did say I ought to go away for a time—because of that poor dancing girl who killed herself—she loved you so—"

"Briscoe said that, did he?"

Rosilyn nodded.

"Then it's untrue. It was Briscoe whom Marietta Fernandez loved, and it was because he'd given her up that she killed herself. I barely knew her. Now tell me—were you aware that Briscoe himself came here last night, to await your arrival?"

The girl in the bed gave a genuine start of amazement.

"Here? To the inn? How? Why."

"Had you no idea he was coming" persisted Landis.

The astonished look was still upon her face as she replied gravely, "Of course not!"

CHAPTER 72.

Briscoe's Fate.

"Why! I didn't even tell him definitely I was coming here at all! He told me it would 'clear the cobwebs' from my brain, and he sort of urged me into coming back to my old home for a little while. But I never said I was coming, and never in the world did I dream that he—" She broke off, her face flushing hotly under the sudden realization of Briscoe's treachery and wickedness. "Landis, you don't think—you wouldn't believ—"

Her husband touched her shoulder with a caressing gesture.

"Of course not, Rosilyn! I know you—and I know Briscoe. I never ought to have let the fellow near you. I believe everything you say."

The bewildered look was still in her pretty eyes.

"If he came here, how did he get in? And how did you find him? And where is he now?"

"He said," announced Landis slowly, "that you sent him the key of the inn."

Rosilyn was amazed again.

"I only had one key, and I kept it in my own purse. He must have found the other in its hidey-hole near the back door in the yard. Now I remember, I once told him—years ago—about the hidey-hole. It was when he was locked out and I had to get up and let him in. I told him there was always a key under that stone. It was about three years ago, when I was seventeen. I was so tired out, working all day, and it was awful to be roused at night by any of the guests coming back late—though father told me I oughtn't to have let Mr. Briscoe know where the key was kept."

Landis nodded.

Rosilyn went on, eagerly:

"You found him inside the house, did you? What did he tell you? How did he explain"

Her husband looked rather grim as he replied:

"Not very much was said, but I'm afraid I marred his beauty, rather. You see, he lied about some one who is very, very dear to me."

"Was—was it I?" faltered Rosilyn.

"Yes. You are dear to me, Rosilyn. Do you know that?"

Below her breath, she whispered:

"Lydia Harbrook—"

"That's over and done with, Rosilyn, if you'll only forgive me. The boating incident, too. I—I hated her—that night—because I knew the talk that would take place—and how you'd feel—and—and I love you, Rosilyn! I know now that I love you, heart and soul, and always will!"

"Oh, Landis!" She nestled in his arms, like a lonely little bird that had found sanctuary. "Oh, Landis! It's unbelievably wonderful! O—you see—I've loved you ever since I was a baby—"

"Sweetheart! Mine!" He caught her in his arms and kissed her.

Six months later, Mrs. Ridgeway Senior was taking tea in the Ritz hotel with some of her special cronies, and among them was the one who had croaked so at Landis' wedding.

"How is the Gilded Rose?" the gossip queried.

Mrs. Ridgeway frowned, then her patrician features relaxed into a smile.

"She makes a wonderful wife for Landis; and he idolizes her!"

"Really" The word was drawled out half incredulously. "Has he quite got over his infatuation for the Harbrook woman, then?"

"Oh, that!" Landis' mother dismissed the subject with a shrug of the shoulders, as though it were not worth discussing. "He was only flirting with poor Lydia. She's not the sort men want to marry, and Rosilyn is a thousand times more attractive, Landis soon found that out. As a matter of fact, the money question doesn't enter into it at all these days, because my boy came into quite a bit of money shortly after the wedding, and he's more or less independent of any money Rosilyn has."

That was a facer for the gossip.

Someone said:

"I heard in Paris a few weeks back that Lydia Harbrook has really married Steven Van Vorst. There's a money-mad girl, if you like! And I also heard that she'd 'gone of' shockingly in looks, and was quite scrawney! Landis was well rid of her!"

Mrs. Ridgeway Senior sipped her tea, secure in the delightful knowledge that her son was happily married, and not in the least caring what these gossipy old women said.

"By the way, rather dreadful about Rupert Briscoe, wasn't it?" One of the nicer of the group remarked. "He got a two years' sentence in the courts for his rum-runnin business on the coast—getting wines and whiskey and all sort of liquors into the country—I hear he had a regular smuggler's cave!"

Mrs. Ridgeway Senior could have given an enlightening story of a one-time accident to her daughter-in-law, when Rosilyn had very nearly been caught in that cave herself. Indeed, she had slipped into the entrance, and Briscoe, who was there at the time on his own nefarious business—had brought her home.

But Landis' mother had no wish to give the gossips any spicy morsel of the sort.

"I must be going now. I'm dining tonight with my son and his wife. They're too absurdly happy. Quite like a pair of love-birds! And she gave a laugh that had grown mellower, of late.

"Love me, Rosilyn?" He tilted up her face when all the guests had gone, and they were alone together in the charming drawing room on East Eighty-fifth street.

"Beyond everything!" Her lovely eyes were pools of truth and light. "Do you love me?"

"Oh, Rose of all the World, I love you best!" he whispered, holding her close.

The final review when the cadet corps make its last parade and the retiring officers turn their companies over to the undergraduates who will command them next year is one of the most stirring scenes that the campus affords. The newsreel shows the final review of the college a week or so ago, with complete pictures of the cadet graduates and Dr. Bizzell, retiring president of the institution, delivering the commencement address.

First Woman to See Hanging, Slips Into Jail Dressed As Man

CHICAGO, June 19.—(AP)—A woman for the first time in the history of Cook (Chicago) county today witnessed a hanging. She was an actress, attired in man's garb, who by means of her disguise slipped into the receiving cell in the county jail and saw Willie Sams, negro, convicted of two murders, executed.

The young woman was Miss Katheryn Du Noule, who wore a long overcoat and a gray fedora pushed down over her bobbed hair. Dr. F. W. McNamara, jail physician stopped her. She admitted her sex and produced a card authorizing her to witness the hanging and said she had found it. The sheriff finally permitted her to remain.

Sams shot and killed Meyer Oppenheim, a merchant, in a hold-up and then shot and fatally wounded Policeman Cornelius Broderick. He was tried first for the Oppenheim murder and received a life prison sentence. On the second trial, for killing the policeman, the death penalty was imposed.

"SPOTTY" SAID OF COTTON IN TEXAS FIELDS

Scattered Showers Beneficial But General Conditions Fair

DALLAS, June 19.—While recent scattered showers have been extremely beneficial to the Texas cotton crop general condition of the crop over the state present a "spotty appearance," according to reports received here. General rains would greatly benefit cotton in most sections, it is indicated.

In east, west and North Texas, with exception of isolated areas, condition of the staple is reported to be from fair to good. Rains in east Texas have allayed the drouth in many localities, soil in that section having conserved the moisture.

Everything is parched in the whole tier in central Texas counties, notably in the Caldwell county area. While some counties in central Texas are regarded as in good condition, the majority of them range from fair to poor.

Cotton generally is in fair condition in south Texas, the reports declare.

No shortage of labor is reported and farmers are well up with their work, their fields being clean as a result of an abundance of fair weather.

Williamson county, regarded as a banner cotton producer, regards condition less favorable each day as the drouth continues. With good rains, however, even at this time, good crops would yet be possible.

Rain is needed in most parts of the Panhandle, but in the Panhandle-Plains country the condition of cotton generally is said to be splendid. Some counties in that section are planting five or six times the acreage planted last season.

Little damage in Texas from boll weevil or other pests is reported.

The GILDED ROSE

by May Christie

"Good morning, Little Lady! Feeling better?" She awoke to great patches of sunlight on the bed and walls, and Landis bending over her.

The recollection of last night's disaster came back to her.

"Is Annie all right?" was her first anxious query, not realizing at the moment how odd it was that her husband should be here with her.

"Annie's as right as rain. Can you take some breakfast? "I'm going to have mine with you, if you'll allow me."

He disappeared, and presently returned with a small table, which he set at the side of the bed nearest the invalid.

Then he made the coffee.

"I don't want to ask you any questions, child, because I haven't got the right to ask them," he said awkwardly, when Rosilyn had drunk her coffee, and, looking rather frail, but infinitely happier than she had done for several days (she knew not why) was lying back upon the pillows. "But will you tell me why you chose to come to this place, with no one but old Annie Will you tell me what brought you here?"

She turned her clear, frank gaze on him.

"I was unhappy. I was in the way at Royal Cliff. So I wanted to be alone, and think things out."

"Was it I who made you unhappy?" His voice was very low, but vibrant with real feeling.

She replied:

"It was I who made you unhappy, because you never loved me, Landis. I came here to try and make up my mind to free you from this marriage—"

"Rosilyn!"

"I can't bear to be a drag upon you!"

He bent over to look into her eyes.

"Who told you that you were a drag? Who influenced you to come here? Tell me, Rosilyn, was Rupert Briscoe talking to you?"

She flushed hotly.

"He did say I ought to go away for a time—because of that poor dancing girl who killed herself—she loved you so—"

"Briscoe said that, did he?"

Rosilyn nodded.

"Then it's untrue. It was Briscoe whom Marietta Fernandez loved, and it was because he'd given her up that she killed herself. I barely knew her. Now tell me—were you aware that Briscoe himself came here last night, to await your arrival?"

The girl in the bed gave a genuine start of amazement.

"Here? To the inn? How? Why?"

"Had you no idea he was coming?" persisted Landis.

The astonished look was still upon her face as she replied gravely, "Of course not!"

CHAPTER 72.
Briscoe's Fate.

"Why! I didn't even tell him definitely I was coming here at all! He told me it would 'clear the cobwebs' from my brain, and he sort of urged me into coming back to my old home for a little while. But I never said I was coming, and never in the world did I dream that he—" She broke off, her face flushing hotly under the sudden realization of Briscoe's treachery and wickedness. "Landis, you don't think—you wouldn't believ—"

Her husband touched her shoulder with a caressing gesture.

"Of course not, Rosilyn! I know you—and I know Briscoe. I never ought to have let the fellow near you. I believe everything you say."

The bewildered look was still in her pretty eyes.

"If he came here, how did he get in? And how did you find him? And where is he now?"

"He said," announced Landis slowly, "that you sent him the key of the inn."

Rosilyn was amazed again.

"I only had one key, and I kept it in my own purse. He must have found the other in its hidey-hole near the back door in the yard. Now I remember, I once told him—years ago—about the hidey-hole. It was when he was locked out and I had to get up and let him in. I told him there was always a key under that stone. It was about three years ago, when I was seventeen. I was so tired out, working all day, and it was awful to be roused at night by any of the guests coming back late—though father told me I oughtn't to have let Mr. Briscoe know where the key was kept."

Landis nodded.

Rosilyn went on, eagerly:

"You found him inside the house, did you? What did he tell you? How did he explain?"

Her husband looked rather grim as he replied:

"Not very much was said, but I'm afraid I marred his beauty, rather. You see, he lied about some one who is very, very dear to me."

"Was—was it I?" faltered Rosilyn.

"Yes. You are dear to me, Rosilyn. Do you know that?"

Below her breath, she whispered:

"Lydia Harbrook—"

"That's over and done with, Rosilyn, if you'll only forgive me. The boating incident, too. I—I hated her—that night—because I knew the talk that would take place—and how you'd feel—and—and I love you, Rosilyn! I know now that I love you, heart and soul, and always will!"

"Oh, Landis!" She nestled in his arms, like a lonely little bird that had found sanctuary. "Oh, Landis! It's unbelievably wonderful! O—you see—I've loved you ever since I was a baby—"

"Sweetheart! Mine!" He caught her in his arms and kissed her.

Six months later, Mrs. Ridgeway Senior was taking tea in the Ritz hotel with some of her special cronies, and among them was the one who had croaked so at Landis' wedding.

"How is the Gilded Rose?" the gossip queried.

Mrs. Ridgeway frowned, then her patrician features relaxed into a smile.

"She makes a wonderful wife for Landis; and he idolizes her!"

"Really!" The word was drawled out half incredulously. "Has he quite got over his infatuation for the Harbrook woman, then?"

"Oh, that!" Landis' mother dismissed the subject with a shrug of the shoulders, as though it were not worth discussing. "He was only flirting with poor Lydia. She's not the sort men want to marry, and Rosilyn is a thousand times more attractive, Landis soon found that out. As a matter of fact, the money question doesn't enter into it at all these days, because my boy came into quite a bit of money shortly after the wedding, and he's more or less independent of any money Rosilyn has."

That was a facer for the gossip.

Someone said:

"I heard in Paris a few weeks back that Lydia Harbrook has really married Steven Van Vorst. There's a money-mad girl, if you like! And I also heard that she'd 'gone of' shockingly in looks, and was quite scrawney! Landis was well rid of her!"

Mrs. Ridgeway Senior sipped her tea, secure in the delightful knowledge that her son was happily married, and not in the least caring what these gossipy old women said.

"By the way, rather dreadful about Rupert Briscoe, wasn't it?" One of the nicer of the group remarked. "He got a two years' sentence in the courts for his rum-runnin business on the coast—getting wines and whiskey and all sort of liquors into the country—I hear he had a regular smuggler's cave!"

Mrs. Ridgeway Senior could have given an enlightening story of a one-time accident to her daughter-in-law, when Rosilyn had very nearly been caught in that cave herself. Indeed, she had slipped into the entrance, and Briscoe, who was there at the time on his own nefarious business—had brought her home.

But Landis' mother had no wish to give the gossips any spicy morsel of the sort.

"I must be going now. I'm dining tonight with my son and his wife. They're too absurdly happy. Quite like a pair of love-birds! And she gave a laugh that had grown mellower, of late.

"Love me, Rosilyn?" He tilted up her face when all the guests had gone, and they were alone together in the charming drawing room on East Eighty-fifth street.

"Beyond everything!" Her lovely eyes were pools of truth and light. "Do you love me?"

"Oh, Rose of all the World, I love you best!" he whispered, holding her close.

Wichita Falls Takes Opener From Houston In Tenth, 5-4

FITZ PRODUCES PUNCH WALLOP WITH TWO OUT

Freddy Triples and Golvin Homers to Tie Count In Seventh

By BLONDY CROSS.

Dick Morgan gave up one earned run in the opening stanza. Slow fielding and a jungle heave by the big pitcher himself abetted the Buffs in tabulating a pair of unearned tallies in the fifth. A misdirected throw in the seventh, an error afield, a one-baser and a sacrifice netted another technically unearned marker for Houston, forcing the Spudders into an extra session before they could grab the series opener Thursday, 5 to 4.

Distel popped a single to right in the tenth after there were two away. Callaghan followed with a double down third base way. Bodie walked. With the count three and two on him, Fitzgerald fouled one, and then belted the next pitch to right center, a clamorous single that chased Distel in with the victory counter.

Hard Fight.

It was a great battle all the way between Carlisle Littlejohn, the Buff collegian, and our own Eulas Morgan. The rah rah chunker allowed one slam to virgin fields during the first five couplets while his mates amassed a three-run margain. But the Tanner outfit sprang a surprise raid in the sixth to pull up within one run of the speeding Bayou city machine. After one had gone, Distel slammed a single to starboard, and then Marty Callaghan came through with an enthusiastic blast to deep left center for three hassocks. The inexorable Bodie followed with a two-cushioner to right center. Spud fandom waxed hilarious, stomped the grandstand boards in riotous glee and yelped for just one more base bingle. But the bugs were denied a clout in that inning. Fitz, swinging hard, sent a bullet drive into a double play trap. The sphere zipped squarely into the mitts of Del Gainer, nearly upsetting the tall first sacker, who recovered, however, quick enough to double Ping off second.

Tied in Seventh.

The Houston counter in the seventh gave the enemy a two-marker advantage, but Dorman and Golvin came to the rescue before the round was out with a brace of bombastic blows to balance accounts. Freddy led off with a mean poke down the right field boundary for three bases. Golvin, next on the line of fire, immediately pushed an explosive swat to right center, and the spheroid bounced up, richocheted along the top of the wall and then flopped outside into the home run zone.

Houston menaced viciously in the eighth, but fast work by Bodie and Jonnard staved off a score. Compton opened the stanza with a double to left. Peel struck out. Wild pitch advanced the runner to third. Dick passed McCurdy. Then Fuller aviated to Bodie in right. Compton broke for the plate after the catch was made, and Ping drove down with a perfect peg to Jonnard doubling the Buff at the pan.

That first Houston earned run came on a double by Goff and Gainer's single past second.

Morgan hurled tight ball and with the exception of the opener, did not allow two hits in the same round. He struck out eight.

The Buffs jerked off two double plays, one going via the route of Fuller to Kane to Gainer. The other was handled by Gainer and Kane. The flossiest fielding plays were enacted by the two shortstops. Ine the first, Distel robbed Compton of a hit through the infield. Kane beat Morgan out of a base blow in the tenth.

CLEVELAND, June 19.—(AP)—Three home runs by Goslin gave Washington a 7 to 5 victory over Cleveland in 12 innings today, his third homer coming in the 12th with Rice on first. Methodists Run Away With First Presbyterians

First Methodists were leading the First Presbyterians Friday in Sunday School league play, 13 to 2, when Jimmy Shipley of the Presbyterians sprained an ankle in the last half of the sixth, and the game was called because the Presbyterians had no other player to substitute.

The Methodists connected for but six safeties, but an even dozen errors by the Presbyterians caused the score to mount so high.

FORT WORTH, June 19.—Paul Wachtel, spitball heaver de luxe of the Champion Cats had little trouble in subduing the Beaumont Exporters in the first game of the series here today, while the Cats enjoyed two big innings off Dana Fillingim's delivery to win, 6 to 4. Foreman finishing the game for Beaumont, while a home run in the eighth by Leach with a man on base, proved the only threat of the visitors. The score:

UNITED FRONT PRESENTED TO KEMP FENCING

Business Council Hears Outline of Policy From T. B. Noble Friday

United action against the efforts of W. T. Waggoner to fence in Lake Kemp, assumed definite shape Friday at the weekly luncheon of the chamber of commerce business council, following talks by T. B. Noble, vice president of the Wichita County Improvement district number one, and Judge B. D. Strain.

Holding that it is but a qustion of time until the state legislature will permit the condemnation of land for state park purposes, Mr. Noble urged that no steps be spared to prevent fencing in of the land. He also advised against the selling of land near the lake.

Control Detailed.

"The irrigation board has the same control over Lake Kemp as it would have had had condemnation proceedings been instituted," Mr. Noble explained. "Mr. Waggoner has control of all lands to the highwater mark of the lake, but the board of control has been trying earnestly for the past six months to secure an agreement of control over the lands. No success, however, has been met with.

In his report, the director stated that Baylor county had agreed to construct a bridge across the spillway at the lake in the near future. Judge Sartin reported on his recent trip to Wilbarger and Baylor counties. Both commissioners' courts have agreed to stand by this county in the fight against the fencing, according to the judge. Every effort will be made to prevent the closing of the lake lands to the public. A plan that has met with the approval of Baylor county, Judge Sartin stated, is that of opening new county roads to the lake. The county commissioners' court has the right to declare the necessity of a road and also may order as many roads as it sees fit. Baylor county has agreed to lay out several new roads at once and in all probability more will be ordered in the near future.

The county judge explained that this would have the effect of making a number of loop holes through the Waggoner pasture to the easment land under the high water mark. Though guards could be stationed at toll gates they would have no right to prevent the passage of people along the county roads.

One Road Available.

The old Vernon-Seymour road is already a county road, the council was told, and people may go to the water's edge on it. The Waggoner estate has no control over this land and has no power to eject people who are on the easment territory below the high water mark of the lake. Judge Sartin stated he believed the lake should be free to everyone and that no one should have the right to charge for passage to the water. Following the talks a committee was appointed to work with the irrigation board in their discussions on the proposed fencing in of the lake.

The council voted to adjourn after the next meeting until the first Friday in September. The resolution rowever leases the club subject to call at all times.

Fourteen prominent business men of Waurika were guests of the council. The party came over on the new West bus line that will operate daily between the two cities. The following men were included in the party: E. B. Ellis, president of the Waurika chamber of commerce; G. A. Nelson, Fred L. West, W. H. Greshman, A. ber of the Oklahoma legislature; W. H. Caroland, E. E. Ray, P. E. Daw-D. Kerr, Ed. Crew, Guy Green, memson, J. T. Eisebeid, E. E. Brown, Mayos C. S. Storms, and J. J. Vanbebber.

Significance Seen In Panhandle Trip By Denver Officials

also the visit of F. E. Clarity, vice-president and general manager of the Fort Worth and Denver, who was accompanied by W. F. Sterley, general freight and passenger agent of that road.

Panhandle is a live little city and the center of distribution for the Panhandle oil field which lies to the north. A number of speculations were rife on the expansion of railways in west Texas as the oil development at this place puts it in the limelight of development of this section.

Belief is expressed by many that the Denver road is planning an extension from near Claude, east of Amarillo a few miles, to a point in the Carson county oil fields southeast of Panhandle.

The distance from the Carson county oil field to Wichita Falls is about 225 miles. The Denver road could reach the field with a branch not more than 18 miles. The terrain is such that there would be no deep cuts or fills, neither are there any streams to cross.

A branch line owned by the Denver road would permit a one-line haul from the Carson oil fields into Wichita Falls. At present a two-line haul is necessary and a division of revenue is made. As the Santa Fe is the originating line and has but a few miles to haul the tonnage that roads fare better in division of revenue than the Denver road.

The building of a branch by the Denver road would be invaluable to the oil industry of Wichita Falls. Local machine and supply houses could give excellent service into that territory and oil crude could reach local refineries at a minimum of expense.

THE TOUGHEST HUMAN

Is Pete Sarmiento, Bit of Philippine Bronze

The toughest human being in the world today is Pete Sarmiento, Philippine fighter.

This dark skinned battler is not made of flesh and bone. He is a piece of animated bronze. One is reminded of brenze by the tint of his skin That impression grows as his rugged little frame turns off onslaughts of opponents that should leave him a bruised, bleeding and unconscious mass on the floor.

To digress from the subject at hand for a moment.

Carl Tremaine, Cleveland bantam, is regarded as one of the cleverest boxers in the game today. He is also one of the hardest hitters. On top ofthat he is one of the dirtiest fighters that ever stepped into the ring. His ideas of the Marquis of Queensbury rules include gouging, butting, elbowing.

He has scored victories over most of the leading bantams and many good featherweights with his sharp-shooting punches and his clever ring generalship. His foul tactics have deprived him of greater laurels.

Tremaine met Eddie Cannonball Martin, for a short time bantam champ, a few months ago and made Martin look bad.

Now to get back to Sarmiento.

Not a False Alarm.

This smiling lad of queer ways and much ambition, came from Manila a short time ago looking for bouts. He got them and showed that he was not a false alarm. One fight led to another until he got a crack at Martin a short time ago. Martin had Sarmiento beat him decisively.

The other night Tremaine and Sarmiento met. Tremaine was fighting before his home town folk. Angered at the glowing tales of Sarmiento's prowess Tremaine set out to "make a dub" of the stranger. Carl lost his title but it was just as well. He would have lost it that night trained as though a title depended upon the outcome of the bout.

He entered the ring in beautiful condition, trained to the minute.

Sarmiento, shorter in height and shorter in reach than Tremaine looked small before the Clevelander.

The bell rang. Tremaine tore into the islander like a tiger. Finding an opening Tremaine let go two blows to the head, either one of which would have dropped the ordinary fighter.

The crowd arose, yelling with joy. "It's all over already! He's another bloomer from Podunk," yelled the rabid Tremaine supporters.

Then they fell silent and gazed in awe. There was Sarmiento, still on his feet. Not only on his feet but smiling and tearing into Tremaine.

"He wants more, give it to him," yelled the Tremaine faction—and 90 per cent of the house were Tremaine supporters of course.

Tremaine gave Sarmiento "more" —more with both hands. Hit him low twice. There came Sarmiento again, smiling and boring in.

Tremaine Loses Hope.

Tremaine looked startled. Even glanced to his corner for instructions as much as to say: "I've hit him with everything I've got. Can I have a club?"

And for just 12 rounds that same scene was repeated!

Tremaine used all the tricks of the profession—legitimate and shady, to halt little Pete. Feigned distress to draw the Filipino out. Then, when Pete relaxed his guard, tried to drive through it.

Held Pete's head with one hand, measured the distance, and then drove straight to his face with the other with his open glove across his face.

To all of which Sarmiento responded by coming in, smiling so broadly that his gold teeth sparkled as Tremaine hooked right and left in mixups. Hit him on the ear, shoved to the back rows.

Between rounds the short-legged lad swung his feet from his stool in contentment as a country lad dangles them from a roadside bridge.

And after the fight the recipient of everything but a blow from a 10-ton truck danced nimbly about the ring to exercise his legs a bit.

And when he left the ring--

There was not a mark, mar or blemish on his face, his hands, his shoulders or his torso.

There was not even the suggestion of puffiness over his eyes.

His lips were as well formed as they were when he entered the ring.

Now Sarmiento is no dub of a fighter. He has a defense. He fights with his hands drawn before his chest in fair defensive style. He took lots of punches on his gloves, his arms and his shoulders. He side-stepped some.

But he took enough to turn him into a double of Battling Nelson with out suffering a scratch.

Tremaine left the ring a weary, baffled fighter. He had fought at least five ordinary fights in that one.

"Whatdya Mean?

Just before the ninth round Tremaine's manager told him to "go in and finish him." This word was meant to spur Tremaine on. Carl simply looked at his boss and said laconically, "Are you kidding me?" Then he looked longingly at one of the iron posts.

I saw Willard take it at Toledo. I saw Carpetier take it at Jersey City. I have seen Bat Nelson and others play punching bags for opponents. But all were carried or helped out of the ring, punch drunk and mutilated.

Sarmiento stepped out of the ring as he came in—a diamond clear piece of human bronze.

Noah Webster hadn't seen Pete when he tried to define tough.

GOVERNMENT'S CASE AGAINST SINCLAIR LOST

Charges of Collusion, Scandal and Fraud are Not Sustained Friday

THREE RIVERS, N. M., June 19.—(AP)—Albert B. Fall, former secretary of the interior has no statement to make on today's Teapot Dome decision "except to reiterate my unshaken confidence in the courts, despite another recent decision" he said tonight.

CHEYENNE, Wyo., June 19.—(AP)—Teapot Dom erightfully belongs to Harry F. Sinclair's Mammoth Oil company, T. Blake Kennedy, United States district judge decided here today.

Government charges of collusion, scandal and fraud in the leasing of the dome by former Secretary of the Interior Albert B. Fall to the Mammoth company were buried deep under a voluminous legal decision, when Judge Kennedy completely upheld every act in the process which resulted in the granting of the big Wyoming oil fields concession to Sinclair.

Beaten, but not ready to quit, counsel for the government, Albert D. Walton, United States district attorney, announced after the decision that an appeal would be taken.

Judge Kennedy's decision contained the following rulings:

That the executive order signed May 31, 1921, by President Harding transferring the naval oil reserves from the jurisdiction of the navy department to that of the interior department was legal and not obtained from the chief executive by fraud.

That is an act of congress of June 4, 1920, under which the lease and other negotiations were consummated, clothed the secretary of the navy with full power to do everything that was done in negotiating the naval oil leases.

That the "loan" of $25,000 by Sinclair to Fall in June, 1923, was a "suspicious circumstance," but that the ready explanation given by Sinclair's attorney, J. J. Zevely to a senate investigation committee and the lack of evidence that any attempt at secretary was made over the transaction gave it the badge of a legitimate transaction.

That the government's allegation of fraud had not been sustained.

That the "collateral transactions" involved in the case—the myaterious high financing carried on by the continental trading company of Toronto, headed by H. S. Osler, with certain American oil companies, including the Midwest Oil company, the Sinclair Crude Oil Purchasing company, the Prairie Oil company and A. R. Humphreys independent operator, could not, from the evidence, be stamped judicially as evidence of conspiracy involving Fall.

That in carrying out the provisions of the act of June, 1920, the then secretary of the navy, Edwin Denby did not usurp the powers of congress, as alleged by the government.

That the evidence introduced regarding Fall's bank accounts in the government's attempt to prove conspiracy and fraud did not link the former interior secretary wit hany unlawful dealings with Sinclair. This evidence was stricken from the record.

That congress may delegate power to executive branches of the government to handle government property "in an unrestricted way, and in accordance with a vested discretalon."

That former Secretary Denby, former Assistant Secretary of the Navy Roosevelt. Read Admiral J. K. Robison, chief of navy engineering, who acted as Denby's agent; E. C. Finney, former assistant secretary of the interior; and H. Foster Bain, and A. W. Ambrose of the federal bureau of mines "must be considered as absolved from any incriminating fault as to fraudulent motive" in their actions in connection with the negotiations.

That there was no undue secrecy in concealin gthe fact that a lease had been granted to Sinclair and tha tthe government's charge that opportunities were not given persons other than Sinclair to negotiate leases were not borne out by the evidence.

NEW ORLEANS COTTON

NEW ORLEANS, June 19.—The cotton market was rather reactionary today although the Texas drouth situation remained unrelieved and weekly statistics were generally bullish. The features which influenced the market to lower levels included rather more rain than expected in the belt, publication of a large acreage estimate by a well known authority and the weakness in July owing to liquidation in anticipation of large tenders on June 25, the first notice day for July deliveries.

At the start the market was inclined to be easier and first trades showed losses of 2 to 7 points. Prices soon rallied, however, on failure of rain overnight in the drouth sections of Texas and October traded up to 23.09 and December to 23.18, or 14 to 15 points above the initial lows and seven points above the previous close. When the weather map showed rather widely distributed rains in the belt outside of the Texas drouth section the market eased off and later on when a well-known authority estimated the probable increase in acreage at 6 per cent with a total acreage of 45,381,000 acres, prices weakened further, although there were several fair rallies.

The day's lows were reached near the end on week-end evening up and liquidation, October trading down to 22.70 and December to 22.80. The close was a little above the lowest, showing net losses of 49 points on July and 19 to 24 points on new crop months.

July at the lowest showed a loss from the early high of 56 points. July was influenced by fears of large tenders on contracts. The certified stock here has dwindled to only 44,332 bales. Hester made mill takings for the week 173,000 bales. Exports today 9,912 bales and for the week 74,507 bales.

N. Y. Stocks

NEW YORK, June 19.—(AP)—Speculators for the advance regained control of the price movement in today's stock market. As the session progressed chief speculative interest shifted from group to group with the motors, coppers, sugars, northwestern rails and oils all enjoying at least momentary favor of professional trading. Trading was again in large volume, the day's sales running nearly one and one-half million shares.

Announcement of the Teapot Dome decision in the last hour of trading brought forth a deluge of buying orders in the oil shares. Sinclair was lifted from 21⅛ to 24⅝ and then eased to 24⅛, where it was up 1⅜ on the day on total sales of about 100,000 shares. The Pan-American issues, Pacific, Standard Oil of California, Houston and Marland also closed a point or two higher.

Domestic sugar producing shares moved up in further reflection of the recent decision of President Coolidge not to alter the existing tariff on the sugar product. Great Western Sugar crossed 114 to a new top and then eased to 110⅞, up 1⅝ on the day while American Beet Sugar moved up a point to within a fraction of the year's high.

Strength of northwestern rails was attributed to some quarters to forecasts of large crop movement this fall and the expectation of higher freight rates and in others to the death of Senator La Follette, who was regarded in Wall street as one of the strongest advocates of government ownership in the country. Chicago and Northwestern, Chicago Great Western preferred and Union Pacific preferred each advanced 2 points or more while several others advanced a point or so. Special strength of Pennsylvania, which ordinarily moves within narrow limits was based on reports that the Loree interests would join with Pennsylvania in resisting the plans of the Baltimore and Ohio for securing control of Reading.

Revival of activity and strength in White Motors, which jumped to 74⅞ and then slipped back to 73 for a net gain of 2¾, was ascribed to merger reports. Maxwell Motors B certificates also were in brisk demand. Pierce Arrow issues lost ground on profit taking.

Call money continued to rule at 3½ per cent, which rate has remained unchanged since June 10. Time money and commercial paper rates held steady.

Rallying tendencies characterized the foreign exchange market. Demand sterling held firm above $4.85⅛ and French francs were quoted slightly higher at 4.73⅞ cents. Italian lire recovered about 5 points to 3.77 cents. Other exchanges were largely nominal.

BRADSTREETS REVIEW

NEW YORK, June 19.—Bradstreets tomorrow will say:

Trade, industry and collections are rather spotted and on the whole present a slightly quieter appearance as they enter the summer season. Crop reports too, are more irregular, as the result of advices of a wide area in the South especially in Texas and the Atlantic coast, noting need of rain. Corn and spring wheat reports, however, are better. The quieting down process in trade and industry, however, does not seem to progress at the speed noted especially in industry in the second quarter of 1924, the result being that current statistics of trade volume and industrial movement tend to make better comparisons with a year ago than they did a while ago, although the quieting down from April and May comes in for notice. Retail trade is naturally the most active branch of distribution, but a good volume of filling in orders is noted by jobbers and New York and Chicago wholesalers report seasonal goods holding better.

Weekly bank clearings $10,040,996,000.

AIR GUNS WILL POP

SAN ANTONIO, June 19.—Approximately 50 airplanes, mostly De Havilands, will hop off early Saturday morning from Kelly field for Ellington field near Houston, for the annual aerial gunnery and bombing work of the tenth school group.

When Visitors Come To Wichita We Have Something to Show

shown how the sand was treated before reaching the giant furnaces, watched a big ladle lift 700 pounds of molten glass and dump it into the machine that draws the glass into large cylinders. This is done by pumping air into the cylinder of glass and gradual lifting of the cylinder. The cylinders of glass were then cut into sections and each small cylinder divided by white heated irons. The half cylinders then go into ovens that again soften the glass and permit it to be flattened and cut into various sizes.

The fruit jar factory was interesting and several of the visitors were given jars, which were of a pattern that would prevent putting a crease across a man's nose. Fruit jars are made entirely by machinery, which are almost human in their work. The machines make 3,000 jars an hour.

To Irrigated Section.

The trip through the irrigated section was equall yinteresting and much surprise was manifested in the manner the canals and laterals were constructed so as to apply water to the land. Crops were inspected and each visitor said that irrigated crops are much better than upon dry land. Waurika has a large creek that passes through the city and in the future it may be utilized for irrigation.

The party reached the city shortly before 4 o'clock and left immediately for their home city. The chamber of commerce and citizens of Wichita Falls were highly commended for the progressive spirit that prevails and the manner visitors are treated.

LOAN MONEY TO BERLIN

Americans Will Become Creditors for Fifteen Million Dollars

NEW YORK, June 19.—(AP)—Negotiations are nearing completion for a $15,000,000 American loan to the city of Berlin, it was announced tonight by Speyer and company, who will head the underwriting syndicate. Wall street expects that the offering will be made next week.

Flotation of the Berlin loan will mark the first German financing to be done in the New York market since the election of Field Marshal Von Hindenburg to the presidency of the German republic.

EXONERATE BEXAR OFFICERS

SCAN ANTONIO, June 19.—City and county officers who took part in a battle on the outskirts of San Antonio Thursday night in which two alleged bandits were killed, were exonerated in a written report by Bexar county grand jury today after returning no-bill reports in the cases. The grand jurors said the officers should be commended rather than blamed for the shooting and that they were acting in performance of their duties.

REBUILT USED CARS

It is an established fact that A USED CAR is no better than the firm from whom it is bought. While the Fox Brown Chevrolet Company is a new firm, the organization is not at all unfamiliar with what is necessary in merchandising used cars. It is only natural that every effort on our part will be made to build an enviable reputation in the sale of used cars.

We consider one of the best ways to do this is to sell used cars that will give as much service and transportation for the money invested as any new automobile on the market.

We invite you to call and inspect the used cars that we have for sale. They have been reconditioned by a corps of competent mechanics, and all worn parts replaced by new ones where needed.

DEFENSE RAPS FAIMAN HARD IN GERM TRIAL

Witness for Shepherd Say His Truth and Varacity Is Bad

CHICAGO, June 19.—(AP)—The defense of William Darling Shepherd began presenting its case today with the expressed intention to climax it Monday with the testimony of the defendant himself.

Four defense witnesses were called today before the court session was curtailed by an early adjournment to permit the trial judge, Thomas J. Lynch, to attend a meeting of the Cook county judges at which he was elected chief justice.

The state rested its case shortly after noon with the completion of cross examination of Charles C. Faiman, whose direct testimony that he gave Shepherd three test tubes filled with typhoid bacilli, later, learned they were wanted for the murder of William Nelson McClintock, Shepherd's millionaire foster son, and exacted a promise of $100,000 from the defendant, was relied upon to establish the corpus dilecti in the case.

Gets "Mixed Up."

Faiman upon cross-examination admitted he was "mixed up" in the numerous statements he had made involving Shepherd, admitted he had made numerous false statements, that he ran a "diploma" mill, that he posed as a doctor in the management of the National University of Sciences and was laughed at loudly by jury and spectators when the defense followed up its announced intention to make him appear too ludicrous for belief.

At the end, however, he had not retracted any of the incriminating statements involving Shepherd.

Because of that the defense rushed ahead with the beginning of its testimony, that of one witness being that Faiman had associated with men convicted for violating the federal anti-narcotic law, and was unworthy of belief.

Arthur T. Conway, who admitted that he had served a sentence in the federal penitentiary at Leavenworth, Kan., testified that he was well acquainted with Faiman and had attended his university.

"During your association with Faiman did you become familiar with his reputation for truth and veracity" asked William Scott Stewart, chief of defense counsel.

Veracity Is Bad.

"Yes, it was very bad," replied Conway.

Two others attacked the story of Faiman and of John P. Marchand, former representative of Faiman's school, that Shepherd had written a letter to the school inquiring about a course in criminal bacteriology. Faiman and Marchand said the letter was written upon stationery of the law firm of "Stoll and Shepherd," of which the defendant formerly was a member.

Miss Eva Peterson, Shepherd's stenographer, denied that Marchand ever was in Shepherd's office and said Shepherd and Stoll had individual stationery each with his full name on it.

Miss Isabel Anderson, formerly employed by Stoll and Shepherd, testified that in 1919 the Shepherd and Stoll partnership was dissolved and all of the "firm stationery" destroyed that occurring five years before the letter was alleged to have been written.

The statement of Miss Isabelle Pope, fiancee of Billy McClintock, that during the youth's illness Shepherd had told her he had studied "typhoid and germs" was attacked through the testimony of W. J. Mitchell, a court reporter who recorded the young woman's testimony at the coroner's inquest.

"In any part of her testimony did she use the word 'germs' or "study of germs?" asked Stewart. "No" was the response.

Fifteen More Witnesses.

The defense said tonight that its witnesses probably would not number more tan fifteen with the testimony probably of six of them being devoted to impeaching Faiman as to character and reputation for truth and veracity.

"Our case probably will be closed Monday afternoon, despite the half day session tomorrow," said Stewart, "depending, of course, upon the length of time the state devotes to cross examining the defendant."

"As its final stroke at Faiman today the defense sought to show that he had been coerced into accusing Shepherd by being locked in a room with two unfriendly former associates and being subjected to a physical attack by one of them, Marchand.

Faiman testified at his bond hearing that Marchand had struck him. Today he denied Marchand had hit him, but under pressure of questions admitted that Marchand had struck him a "glancing blow."

The defense's effort to question Faiman about numerous alleged "shady" transactions was ruled out by Judge Lynch, who upheld the state's contention that only "infamous" crimes could be touched upon.

H. B. Worden, general manager of the Redwood Manufacturing company of San Francisco, left Friday afternoon for Denver and the coast after spending several days in Wichita Falls.

Three more marriage licenses made up the day's total of those issued Friday at the county clerk's office. They were as follows: J. T. Matthews, Iowa Park, and Miss Nora Griffith, Iowa Park; Almond Gates, Wichita Falls, and Miss Lorraine Jenkins, Wichita Falls; Arthur W. Nichols, Wichita Falls, and Miss Mae Irion, Mangum, Okla.

Installation has been completed of a new flashing apparatus for the traffic control system. It has been placed at the city hall and when in operation will give 30 seconds each way for traffic in all directions. North and south bound traffic now runs for 45 seconds and east and west for 30 seconds. The amber light and change signals have been cut from seven to three seconds.

Where It Rained

DALLAS, June 19—Showers which fell today in widely separated sections of Texas, breaking a drouth of several weeks' duration in some places. While there were no general rains the showers resulted in precipitations of several inches in some places, according to reports here. A cloudburst was reported at Gray, Okla., near the Texas Panhandle, where the rainfall amounted to six inches.

West Texas seems to have received most of the rain today, though East Texas was visited by scattered showers, good rains being reported in several East Texas localities near the Louisiana line. Rainfall has apparently not extended into the drouth area in parts of Central Texas.

From two to three inches of rain fell in parts of Ochiltree county last night.

FORT WORTH—West Texas had widely scattered rains Thursday, according to reports here. They varied from showers to one or more inches of rain. The precipitation is expected to benefit crops and livestock.

PLAINVIEW—An inch and five-hundredths of rain fell at Plainview Thursday afternoon at 3 o'clock within 30 minutes time. The rain was not extensive. Kress, 12 miles north, reported only a light shower and Aiken, a similar distance east, a light shower fell.

M'LEAN—A timely refreshing rain of one inch fell here Thursday afternoon. At noon the thermometer had registered 104—unusually hot weather for this section. The rain came just in time for crops were beginning to suffer for want of moisture.

TALPA—Better than one inch of rain fell here Thursday and there are prospects for more. It is very beneficial to farmers and stockmen.

AMHERST—One inch of rain fell Thursday afternoon and the rainfall continued late in the day, assuring a record breaking crop in this part of the South Plains.

PERRYTON—Thirty one one-hundredths of an inch of rain fell here late Thursday. The rain was heavier west and north of Perryton.

PADUCAH—One half to two inches of rain covered the north and eastern parts of Cottle county last night. While crops were in good condition and not suffering for moisture, the rain will be of considerable benefit.

Oil Stock Basis Of $600 Damage Suit

Allegations that one of the defendants had made false representations and had through that means secured possession of stock certificates to which he had no right are contained in a petition for damages, filed Friday by H. M. Phillips vs. E. L. Spruill, C. L. Sloan, C. L. Sloan, Jr., and the Electra-Texas Oil company.

It is recited that in February of this year the plaintiff purchased from and received from the deefndant company 75 shares of stock which he now alleges to be worth $600. After he received it he says he went to New Zealand on a business trip and during his absence the defendant Spruill represented to his (Phillips') wife that the stock was of small value and persuaded her to turn it over to him.

He seeks recovery of the stock or its equivalent.

CAN'T DECIDE ON ROAD.

Route of Thoroughfare Through Stamford Causes Rumor.

STAMFORD, June 19.—Considerable seculation has arisen here lately as to the route a new through roadway is to take into and out of Stamford. Its location on each side of town has been settled, but some trouble is being found in determining the city streets it will traverse.

The more logical thoroughfares, it seems, are not accetable to several local churches because of fear of congestion on Sundays.

It is believed the route will be settled in a short time, however.
