People of Houston facing massive nervous breakdown, mental health official says

HOUSTON (AP)— Not that it comes as a surprise to many residents of the Houston area who have to drive to and from work each day, or hustle down the crowded sidewalks bumping elbows and shoulders, but the people of the nation's fifth largest city are facing a massive nervous breakdown.

That's the word from the Mental Health Association of Houston and Harris County after a study of the divorce rate, the juvenile crime rate, the drug and alcohol abuse rate, in this city called the "Golden Buckle of the Sun Belt."

The Houston metropolitan area, with an estimated population of 2.2 million, is growing by 1,000 persons a week, according to the latest Chamber of Commerce figures. Traffic is a daymare, with freeways bumper to bumper each morning and afternoon. After the rush hours, the major routes resemble a drag strip on a Sunday afternoon.

The Houston Chronicle even runs a daily report on Page One to report how many of the city's buses are out of service, how many runs have been canceled and how many late starts.

For example, on Monday 166 buses of the total fleet of 499 were out of service, 14 runs were canceled and there were 17 late starts.

This doesn't encourage people to use buses.

One driver, in a recent test, drove the speed limit the 13 miles from his office to his home. He was passed by 144 cars, 23 of them blowing horns because he was moving too slowly. He passed one vehicle and it was puffing smoke from an apparent over-heated engine.

The mental health association report stated, "Fifteen percent of the entire population of Harris County, or approximately 350,000 persons, will require some form of mental health care soon."

And, the report from a team of researchers added, "the most disturbing aspect of this increasing social disintegration is its effect on our children. Our figures on child abuse, the number of children who required mental health care, juvenile crime rates, show that our children are the victims of our inability to cope..."

The report concluded, "Unless the community and our public officials act on some of these urgent recommendations, the problems we are facing now in mental health care will soon become completely unmanageable."

Adding to the growing population and ever-increasing traffic, Houston was flooded last week by a heavy rainstorm that left 1,500 vehicles stalled, streets blocked, and tempers short. One wrecker driver admitted he had made $600 in cash in a few hours pulling away the drowned cars.

The mental health association report listed several reasons for its findings of Houston's neurosis, including:

—There were 25,876 marriages, and 25,086 divorce suits filed in 1978.

—For the same year, there were 10,090 arrests for drunken driving and 14,125 arrests on drug charges.

The Crisis Hotline, a service that offers aid and counsel to distressed persons, received 60,099 calls last year, far above the preceeding 12 months.

Several physicians contacted for comment refused to speculate on Houston as a flaky center until they had more time to study the situation.

But, Dr. James Watson, the Houston health director, said the addition of new mental facilities wouldn't solve the problem.

He said the trouble "is more and more emphasis on materialism. Possessions are becoming our masters rather than our being the masters of our possessions.

"The mental health needs or demands of a population can hardly be taken care of if they are the results of the maladjustment to prevailing circumstances," he said.,

In other words, families should keep down their materialistic goals and set a more realistic approach to life.

That's fine. It was a silent weekend in Houston last Saturday and Sunday. Only one man held officers at bay with an arsenal of weapons for 12 hours, and three teen-agers were killed in a car wreck, and a store security guard was shot to death, and a man was found beaten to death, and there was a lot of little stuff.

"The overbearing power of the oil lobby has...intimidated the administration into throwing in the towel...on the issue of price decontrol." — Sen. Edward Kennedy.

"That is just a lot of baloney....I really can't believe that Sen. Kennedy said this unless the phrases were taken out of context." — President Jimmy Carter.

Carter, Kennedy in decontrol spat

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter says Sen. Edward M. Kennedy's criticism of administration oil policies is a lot of baloney, but the senator says he'll still support Carter in the 1980 presidential campaign.

"I'm not hurt or shocked," the Massachusetts Democrat said Monday shortly after Carter called Kennedy's criticism of the administration's oil policies "a lot of baloney."

Then, giving what has become his standard response to questions about the 1980 presidential race, Kennedy said he expects Carter "will run, be renominated and re-elected."

It generally is conceded that the most formidable obstacle to that scenario would be a Kennedy candidacy. The senator steadfastly denies any intention of running, although public opinion polls among Democrats frequently rank him ahead of Carter as the preferred presidential candidate for 1980.

At a nationally broadcast news conference, Carter reacted angrily to a Kennedy speech in New York in which the senator continued his sharp attack on the president's plan to phase out price controls on U.S. oil and to levy a tax on the resulting excess profits.

Kennedy told the American Society of Newspaper Editors that "the overbearing power of the oil lobby ... has intimidated the administration into throwing in the towel without even entering the ring on the issue of oil price decontrol."

"That is just a lot of baloney," responded Carter, who added that he would gladly support efforts from anyone in Congress "including Sen. Kennedy," to toughen his tax proposal.

"I really can't believe that Sen. Kennedy said this unless the phrases were taken out of context," Carter said.

No, Kennedy told reporters later, nothing was taken out of context.

"The facts speak for themselves," said the senator. "I think the administration did throw in the towel without a fight on decontrol."

As for Carter's reaction, Kennedy said, "I think he was defending his position in the strongest manner he could. I happen to think it's an indefensible position."

If Carter was astonished by Kennedy's criticism Monday, the president must not have been listening last week when Kennedy used words such as "political opportunism" and "charade" in referring to decontrol and the windfall profits tax.

That criticism came at a hearing of the Energy subcommittee of the Joint Economic Committee which Kennedy chaired. Energy Secretary James Schlesinger was the witness and the two clashed heatedly.

Kennedy said it would be hard for people in New England who are heavily dependent on heating oil to regard decontrol "as more than political opportunism."

Save now or suffer later, Midlanders told

By RICHARD MASON

Midlanders and other consumers can conserve small amounts of gasoline now, or be faced with large shortages next winter, an oil company official said today.

Max Nalley, public information representative for Exxon Company USA in Dallas, today said gasoline shortages "could get potentially serious" this winter, affecting the nation's automobile operators and residents in the Northeast who rely on heating fuel distillates to heat homes.

"My advice to consumers is to cut down on use of petroleum products of all kinds, particularly gasoline," he said.

According to Nalley, national stockpiles of fuel oil distillates were depleted to minimum levels this past winter following a shortage in the world oil supply after political instability surfaced in Iran.

Oil companies began to draw down inventories of heating fuel to supply customers. When Iran failed to return to previous levels of production, fuel oil stockpiles "dropped down to bare minimum operating levels," he explained.

He said those stockpiles have not been replaced.

To meet that situation, he said, the Department of Energy in April placed gasoline on allocation.

The most evident result to consumers occurred at the end of April with a tightening of gasoline supplies, particularly in unleaded gasoline which accounts for 40 percent of total sales in the nation.

According to Nalley, the government placed gasoline on allocation in order to divert more crude oil to replenish stockpiles of fuel oil.

"The Department of Energy is asking the industry to continue manufacturing at least enough heating oil distillate to build stockpiles for next year," he said.

Aggravating the situation is a "3- to 5-percent" shortage of crude oil available on the world market.

It takes about 6 percent more oil to manufacture unleaded gasoline than the leaded varieties, he noted.

Nalley said if Americans were to reduce their consumption by 700,000 barrels of oil per day, heating oil stockpiles could be replenished by next winter.

Americans consume 19 million barrels of oil each day, he said.

"If everyone keeps driving like there's no tomorrow, there probably won't be," he said. "But if everyone conserves a little now, we can prevent that from happening."

Exxon gasoline sales this month are being allocated at 80 percent of their sales volume last May, though the company's actual gasoline supply is higher than that, Nalley said.

"Service stations that experienced very rapid growth in their sales volume will get a one-time extra shipment of fuel which we will give to them right away," Nalley said.

The public information representative said equal amounts of fuel are

Midlander George Bush starts presidential drive

WASHINGTON (AP) — Former Midlander George Bush formally announced his candidacy for the Republican presidential nomination today promising Americans a "new candor" for tough problems.

"As a candidate, and as president, I will speak not in terms of simple solutions but of hard choices," Bush said in his announcement speech.

And in a news conference following declaration of his candidacy, Bush accused Democrats of overpromising for the past two decades and said he would call instead for sacrifices by the American people.

"As a president I would ask them to realize we cannot beat inflation, which is the No. 1 issue today, unless we curtail to some degree government spending and that will involve some sacrifice," he said.

"In the whole field of energy...there may be a real need to call on the American people for sacrifice," he added.

Bush said he hoped to run his primary campaign without attacking his Republican rivals so that the nomination would "be worth something in the fall."

"I just don't want to divide an already minority party," he said.

But if Republicans can stick together they can oust President Carter in 1980, he said.

"The record of the Carter administration is so impotent any Republican winning the nomination would have a good shot in the fall," Bush said. "I just believe I would have a better shot."

"It is time for those who aspire to leadership in our country to stop trying to fool the American people that there are panaceas for our problems," Bush said in a prepared announcement.

"More important, it is time for we the American people, to stop fooling ourselves."

Bush, 54, with a broad record of public service, becomes the sixth announced Republican candidate.

The others are: former Treasury Secretary John Connally, Rep. Philip M. Crane of Illinois, Sen. Lowell Weicker of Connecticut, Harold Stassen, and Los Angeles businessman Benjamin Fernandez.

Five other hopefuls have registered with the Federal Election Commission, but haven't formally entered the race.

Taking a slap at Democratic slogans for the past five decades, Bush said "rhetoric is not enough to provide the kind of leadership our country needs and deserves.

"As a candidate for president I am not promising a New Deal, a New Frontier, a Great Society or a New Foundation," he said. "But I do pledge a new candor.

"To be effective, leadership in the eighties must be based on a politics of substance, not symbols; of reason, not bombast; on frankness, not false promise," he added.

"In short," Bush said, "those who seek the highest office in the land must level with the American people. That will be the underlying theme of my campaign and the spirit of the George Bush presidency."

Ticket malady strikes in downtown Midland

By MIKE SLATON
Staff Writer

Is it getting hard to see through all those little slips of paper on the car's windshield?

Has that man in the three-wheel cart been following you around lately? Do you view parking meters and fire hydrants only as convenient curb markers?

Midlanders answering yes to any of the above questions probably are the victims of "tickets."

"Tickets" is not a disease, but it is running rampant in downtown Midland.

Between 450 and 500 Midlanders a day who frequent the downtown area are affected by "tickets," according to Lt. Herman Wicker of the Midland Police Department's traffic division.

At $2 and $3 each, those tickets amount to a tidy sum of money flowing into the city coffers.

Not all the tickets issued are for parking meter violations, said Wicker. They include tickets for illegal parking, such as in an alley, double parking and parking by fire hydrants.

Six officers are assigned by the traffic division to the downtown area, said Wicker.

Two parking control attendants and an officer on foot primarily handle the parking meters, he said, adding that those officials also can give tickets for any other type of parking violation.

Two other officers in three-wheel carts handle overtime parking violators in zones without meters, but having signs designating parking time limits (such as "two hour parking") and cars parked illegally.

There are 303 parking meters in the downtown area, said Wicker.

Tickets don't have much impact on some people, but ignoring them will not make them go away.

Those who are habitual violators and never seem to find time to pay the tickets will find the police department impounding their cars, according to Wicker.

In March, a car Wicker's office received a complaint about was impounded. On checking, the car was found to have a little more than $800 in outstanding parking tickets, said Wicker.

The owner had to pay the fines on the tickets as well as all costs incurred in impounding the car, he said.

Other cars have been impounded with $300 to $400 in outstanding tickets on them, according to the traffic chief.

It's not every day that a car with that many tickets is impounded, but it does happen, Wicker said.

Official says save gasoline or go without delivered to stations on a staggered basis throughout the month to prevent a big shortage as the month ends.

"We suggest (to dealers) that he pace his deliveries to customers on a daily basis," Nalley said.

That means dealers may be shutting their pumps down in the evenings once a certain amount of fuel has been sold. Or it may mean stations will be closed on weekends.

Actual sales policies are left to the local dealers, Nalley said.

Meanwhile, the responsibility for conservation is being left to consumers.

He said if consumption continues at high levels, the amount of oil diverted to fuel oil production in the last quarter of the year would be much greater, causing potential gasoline shortages and "a dangerous" situation in fuel oil stockpiles.

"Gas is low right now, but not as dangerous(ly so) as heating oil," he said.

Warmer day due in Basin

Midland's muggy season may come to an end Wednesday, the weatherman said today.

Decreasing cloudiness and warmer Wednesday is the forecast from the National Weather Service office at Midland Regional Airport.

The cloud cover and chance of thunderstorms will continue through tonight, however, weathermen said, placing odds on rain tonight at 30 percent.

Winds should decrease to 10-15 mph tonight, then shift to the southwest at 15-25 mph and gusty through Wednesday.

High Wednesday is expected to be in the mid-80s, with tonight's low predicted to be near 60.

Monday's high was only 69 degrees with this morning's low recorded at a mild 64. Record temperatures for the date are 96 degrees set in 1948 and 34 degrees set in 1970.

The cloud cover produced only cool temperatures and high humidity Monday as no rain was recorded at the weather service rain gauge, leaving the monthly total at a round zero inches.

Annual rainfall total to date is 2.86 inches.

Thunderstorms roamed across most of Texas today, beginning in West Texas Monday night and moving easterly.

Severe thunderstorm warnings were issued Monday night for portions of Northwest Texas and early this morning for portions of North Central Texas.

Police detain three in burglary

Police today were holding two Midlanders in connection with an alleged burglary Monday afternoon in the 800 block of South Baird Street.

A juvenile has also been detained in the matter.

Police apprehended the trio following a short chase by neighbors.

According to reports, a neighbor saw four persons in a white car cruising around a house at 801 S. Baird St.

Three persons later were spotted leaving the residence carrying one large box and several smaller boxes, police were told.

According to police reports, neighbors yelled at the three, who dropped the boxes and ran.

Neighbors followed the three to a residence on South Dallas Street, police said, where the trio got in a vehicle and began driving down South Baird Street.

Police said they apprehended the three in the 800 block of South Baird Street.

Receiving world history honors were Bobby Dawson, second place; John Kimberley, fourth place, and John Armstrong, Raymond Brickey, Tom Dykes, Eric Fryar and Anna Garcia, honorable mention.

Sandra Craig and Robin Franke received an honorable mention in government.

As anti-inflation measure, Sears cuts spring prices by 5 percent

CHICAGO (AP) — Sears, Roebuck and Co., the nation's largest retailer, is reducing prices in its current catalog by 5 percent starting today, in a move to comply with President Carter's anti-inflation guidelines.

Sears announced the across-the-board price cut for the spring and summer 1979 General Catalog on Monday, three days after Sears officials met in Washington with President Carter's Council on Wage and Price Stability.

Sears officials said Monday night they do not know how the price cuts will affect the company's net income, which last year was $922 million. Catalog sales accounted for about 20 percent of Sears' $18 billion in gross sales last year, Sears spokesman Ernest Arms said.

Sears, which has 866 retail stores and almost 3,000 catalog outlets nationwide, also is working on ways to reduce retail prices on selected items across the country, Arms said.

Catalog prices generally go up an average 5 percent from fall to spring, so in effect, the prices for the spring-summer catalog would be about the same as those in the fall-winter book, said Bob Shoup, another Sears spokesman.

However, customers buying items marked up more than 5 percent in the latest catalog still would pay more than in the past despite the reduction, which will remain in effect at least until July, Arms said. Customers who call in orders will find the 5 percent reduction listed on their invoices, Shoup said.

Carter telephoned Sears Vice President Charles A. Meyer last Thursday, telling him that government figures showed Sears to be out-of-line with the 4 percent profit margin under the wage and price guidelines. Carter appealed to the company to take some action to move in line with the national standards.

Meyer and Sears President Edward R. Telling went to Washington to meet with the wage and price council Friday. The same day, Sears announced that it would slash prices.

Catalog prices were cut first because sales are computerized.

City zoning panel approves housing addition's final plat

Final plat of Meadowpark Addition was approved Monday by the Planning and Zoning Commission, subject to certain conditions.

John Phipps, representing Citizens Savings and Loan which is developing the new housing addition, blamed the city Public Works Department for causing delays in obtaining approval of the final plat.

After clearing up all the problem areas cited by the city department, Phipps said the public works division came back and requested his firm be responsible for obtaining right of way for a drainage channel from the person that owns land north of Meadowpark.

Citizens Savings is in the process of getting the owner's approval, Phipps said, adding that "I don't feel this is our responsibility because Public Works Department wants a 125 foot strip north of our property."

Richard Hennessy, director of planning and community development, noted the drainage channel north of Meadowpark is important in developing the city's drainage plan.

The commission also approved the rescission, cancellation, vacation and abandonment of plats for Fairfax Addition, Sections 1 and 2.

A final plat of Country Villa Estates received the commission's approval.

A plat for Section 3 of Midland Industrial Park was vacated. The 38.55 acre tract also was recommended by the commission for its zone to be changed from LR-2, local retail district, to LI, light industrial district.

Grant Billingsley, with Midland Industrial Foundation, noted the organization felt the large tract, instead of smaller plots, would be more attractive to a large industry.

In other action, the commission recommended on to Midland City Council a zone change request by Odell Anders for the 1200 block of West Texas, a specific use permit request by Permian Electronics for a radio tower at 2210 W. New Jersey Ave. and an extension for a temporary special permit allowing a mobile home at 803 S. Fort Worth St.

Permian Airways begins service with 'full load'

Permian Airways Inc. took off on its first official flight at 7:30 a.m. today for Lubbock and Amarillo with a full load, according to a spokesman with the airline.

The newest service out of Midland Regional Airport will provide direct flights to Lubbock and Amarillo, the first such direct service among the three West Texas cities.

A spokesman with the airline today said the new service was initiated to avoid having to fly first to Dallas and then on to Lubbock or Amarillo.

Initial reaction to the new service has been good, said the spokesman. The return flight from Amarillo today already was half filled.

A nine-passenger Piper Navajo is being used and will operate in conjunction with Braniff International Airways at all three airports, the spokesman said. At Midland, the passenger will pick up his ticket at the Braniff ticket counter and board the plane on the south side of the terminal building.

Permian is the second commuter service out of Midland, with Chaparral Airlines providing one flight daily to Abilene.

The commuter service also has scheduled daily flights to Ruidoso, N.M., from May 11 through Sept. 3 on Fridays, Saturdays and Sundays.

Standard fares will be $29 one way from Midland to Lubbock and $49 one way from Midland to Amarillo. Special introductory rates are $15 from the Tall City to Lubbock and $25 on up to Amarillo. These rates apply through May 15.

Using a Monday through Friday schedule, Permian will leave Midland-Odessa at 7:30 a.m., arrive in Lubbock at 8:10 a.m., leave Lubbock at 8:25 a.m. and arrive in Amarillo at 9 a.m.

On the return trip, the plane will leave Amarillo at 9:15 a.m. and arrive in Lubbock at 9:50 a.m., leave Lubbock at 10:05 a.m. and arrive in Midland at 10:45 a.m.

Each weekday afternoon, the plane will leave Midland at 4 p.m. and arrive in Lubbock at 4:40 p.m., leave Lubbock at 4:55 p.m. and arrive in Amarillo at 5:30 p.m., leave Amarillo at 5:45 p.m. and arrive in Lubbock at 6:20 p.m., leave Lubbock at 6:35 p.m. and arrive in Midland at 7:15 p.m.

On Sundays, Permian will leave Midland at 2 p.m. and arrive in Lubbock at 2:40 p.m., leave Lubbock at 2:55 p.m. and arrive in Amarillo at 3:30 p.m. Returning, the plane will leave Amarillo at 3:45 p.m. and arrive in Lubbock at 4:20 p.m., leave Lubbock at 4:35 p.m. and arrive in Midland at 5:15 p.m.

On the Ruidoso service, Permian will leave Midland at 11 a.m. and arrive in Ruidoso at 11:05 (MDT), leave Ruidoso at 11:15 a.m. (MDT) and arrive in Midland at 1:20 p.m.

Church to hold open forums on issues facing Midlanders

Major issues facing residents of Midland will be discussed by guest speakers in a series of four Wednesday night dinner-meetings arranged by the First Presbyterian Church.

The first program is scheduled at 6:30 p.m. Wednesday in the church's Fellowship Hall. Supper will be served from 5:45 to 6:15 p.m., and reservations may be made by dialing the church office, 684-7821.

The format will be that of an open forum with guest leaders with expertise in the different areas making presentations and participating in a panel discussion, with questions from the floor.

The opening forum will be directed to the area of alcoholism, with special attention given to the widespread use of alcohol by the youth of the community. Panelists will include County Judge William B. Ahders; Dan Wakefield, from the Mental Health Center, and Mrs. Wanna Bickerstaff from the Council on Alcoholism. Gordon Marcum, a member of First Presbyterian and of the city council, will moderate the discussion.

On the following Wednesdays, the forum will focus on the issues of public housing, public school education, and Midland Memorial Hospital.

In addition to the community forum program each week, there will be another program entitled "Dealing with Family Crunches" — gardening, greenhouses and solar energy.

A nursery for pre-school children and special events for elementary youths will be provided.

Dr. Robert Boynton Smith, pastor, said the program is open to anyone desiring to participate, but that reservations are necessary for those who wish to partake of the meal.

Low tar MERIT proven major alternative to high tar smoking–see results below.

Can low tar MERIT packed with 'Enriched Flavor'™ tobacco measure up to the taste of high tar cigarettes?

Read the results from a nationwide research effort involving smokers who actually tested MERIT against leading high tar brands.

Results Confirm Breakthrough

Confirmed: Majority of smokers rate MERIT taste equal to—or better than—leading high tar cigarettes tested! Cigarettes having up to twice the tar.

Confirmed: Majority of smokers confirm taste satisfaction of low tar MERIT.

And in detailed interviews conducted among current MERIT smokers?

Confirmed: 85% of MERIT smokers say it was an "easy switch" from high tar brands.

'Up with People'

The Tall City of Midland is fortunate in having two of the finest Youth Centers to be found anywhere, and Midlanders have every right to be proud of them.

The Midland High Youth Center and the Lee High Youth Center operate as a non-profit corporation, providing meeting places with wholesome recreation and entertainment, under proper guidance and supervision, for the students of Midland High School and Lee High School.

Both serve exceptionally well the purpose for which they were intended by meeting the needs of their particular clienteles. They are governed by an 18-member board of directors, made up of parents of students in the high schools.

But it takes money to operate such serviceable facilities. Partial funding comes from the United Way of Midland, supplemented by revenues from operations. But this does not meet the overall need.

So, the Midland-Lee Youth Centers sponsor and present one major fund-raising event each year to provide the additional revenues which make continued full-service operations possible.

The special events presented through the years have been noteworthy, but the fund-raiser this year is particularly outstanding. Tremendous perhaps is the word which best describes it.

The 1979 production is "Up with People," the internationally known show which provides musical entertainment for the entire family. You might have seen an "Up-with People" cast performing at Superbowl X, or you perhaps have read or heard about the show elsewhere.

Anyway, "Up with People" will be presented at 8 p.m. Friday in the Midland High School Auditorium, under the auspices of Midland-Lee Youth Centers. The public is invited and urged to attend. Tickets are on sale at the Youth Centers and at other convenient locations. They also may be purchased at the door.

The "Up with People" show is said to be an entertaining blend of music and dancing which includes a broad range of contemporary and traditional materials backed by a complete instrumental section of guitars, percussion, piano and brass.

And, as one might imagine, the college-aged performers are known far and wide for the youthful enthusiasm they employ to promote understanding among people.

Casts of "Up with People" have performed in all 50 states and in 42 countries on six continents. Approximately 425 young men and women presently are traveling with five casts of "Up with People."

"Up with People" is an independent, non-profit, educational corporation headquartered at Tucson, Ariz.

And "Up with People" will be seen on stage right here in Midland Friday night. This is a community-wide endeavor, providing all residents of the Tall City and vicinity the opportunity of enjoying top-quality entertainment, while at the same time supporting Midland-Lee Youth Centers in a most tangible manner.

A global plus (?)

The chill in relations between the greatest Communist powers, the Soviet Union and China, has held acknowledged diplomatic benefits for the United States over the last several years.

Their mutual distrust has made both reluctant to commit massive numbers of troops or weapons to adventurous forays in other parts of the world.

The "detente" between the United States and Russia and the recent easing of tensions between Peking and Washingtom were encouraged by the Communists family squabble.

But the discord along the Soviet-China border also has held the potential for a nuclear explosion.

Thus, the exchange of notes between the feuding Reds, announced recently by the official Soviet news agency, Tass, could relieve global nervousness. The Russians, responding apparently to "feelers" from Peking, have indicated a desire for talks which could lead to improved relations.

The exchange, as of now, is exploratory, but it holds the promise of a less volatile world.

HEMISPHERE REPORTS:

History of Haiti has been 'written in blood'

By WILLIAM GIANDONI
Copley News Serv

William Giandoni

In Haiti, some say that May is the season for coups and invasions.

But a quick look at the troubled history of that Caribbean island, which was the first of the European colonies in Latin America to declare its independence, suggests that is not necessarily so.

Since Jean Jacques Dessalines proclaimed Haiti's independence from France in 1804, the country has had at least 46 different governments. Of those, 32, if not more, were terminated extemporaneously, but only six of the incidents took place in May.

Haiti, now, is under the rule of President Jean Claude Duvalier and has been since 1971.

Early in his indeterminate term, which started when he was a mere 19 years of age, Jean Claude was referred to as "Baby Doc."

That was in deference to Dr. Francois Duvalier, his father, who ran Haiti from 1957 to his death, April 21, 1971.

The elder Duvalier, who was a doctor of medicine of sufficient promise in his youth that the U.S. government arranged him a scholarship at University of Michigan, was often called "Papa Doc."

Young Duvalier, like his father before him, is "president-a-vie." That is president for life. He inherited the post and the title from his father.

Jean Claude's eight years in power have been relatively uneventful. No one thinks he is a "loa," a voodoo god, like his father. Few have been the horror stories, the atrocity tales, that have leaked out of Haiti since the strapping youth took office.

That is quite a contrast with the history of Haiti's 167 years as a sovereign nation, and before, as chronicled in what is probably the most exhaustive historic study in English of the Caribbean country, entitled "Written in Blood."

Authored by Robert Debs Heinl, the Marine Corps colonel who headed the U.S. Naval Mission that worked to reorganize the Haitian armed forces from January 1959 until Duvalier expelled it in 1963, and his wife, Nancy Gordon Heinl, "Written in Blood" is paradoxical.

The Heinls make no mention of the personal provocations to which Duvalier subjected them. Foremost was the arrest and detention of their teen-age son on some contrived charge.

Rather, the Heinls describe the horror of Papa Doc's tyranny dispassionately, as if they had not been personally involved. Nevertheless, their account lends considerable credence to the fictionalized version of Papa Doc's early years that Graham Greene set down in "The Comedians," published in 1967.

"The Comedians," too, should be read by those who may want to learn more about Haiti during the period of the longest dictatorship the country has had since Jean Pierre Boyer ruled from 1818 to 1843, for 25 years.

Of course, as an expatriate American in Port au Prince counseled me in 1965, on my first, lengthy visit, before one lets himself be convinced that the Duvaliers invented evil in Haiti, try to get a copy of "Black Majesty," a thin volume authored by John W. Vandercook, published in 1928. "Black Majesty" is concerned with Haiti's early years as an independent nation and, if nothing else, provides justification for the Heinls' suggestion that Haitian history always has been "written in blood."

That shouldn't be, although it is.

The Heinls point out that, under Papa Doc, Haiti met "every goal advanced by reformist liberals for Latin American development and progress."

Civilian supremacy over the military, agrarian reform which dates from the early 1800s, "a docile, non-feudal, non-landowning church with a native hierarchy, sticking to spiritual matters," self-development, thorough chastening and chastisement of the selfish, haughty elite. Haiti had, and has, it all.

What is more, and a point that is not often emphasized, perhaps because it, too, is paradoxical, the Haitian people appear to be good, simple, charitable.

Yet, even under President Jean Claude Duvalier, Haiti is so repressive a dictatorship, one rarely hears about it.

As Alex Maldonado, editor of El Mundo, San Juan, Puerto Rico, the next Caribbean island over to the east, reported recently, "The last parliamentary elections resulted in the election of a legislator who is openly opposed to the regime. ... Dictator Duvalier allowed the press to write extenslvely about this fact..... However, at a particular moment the authorities considered this reporting to be sufficient and this was communicated to the newspapermen who had to stop giving out information."

So, now comes May, the period of coups and invasions.

WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

Oil: Mideast's weapon vs. West?

By JACK ANDERSON

WASHINGTON — Secret White House papers refer to oil as a "weapon" which the Arabs have turned against the West. This has prompted top strategists to consider "retributive actions" that the United States might take to protect its economic interests.

"The United States has at its disposal a number of economic options which, while not acting directly to attenuate the effect of Arab actions, can nevertheless have the effect of raising to a painfully high level the political and economic costs ..." declares a secret National Security Council study.

But it warns that these moves could backfire. "Many are difficult to manage, and some are not likely to work at all ..." the study states. "All hold the considerable danger of increasing pressure on and removing restraints from (the Arabs)," thus provoking them "to move immediately to higher and more damaging levels of economic action."

The alternative would be armed intervention, which the policymakers believe would be morally repugnant and militarily naive. The oil facilities would probably be destroyed, benefiting no one but the Soviets who are self-sufficient in oil.

A secret Central Intelligence Agency study traces the oil offensive back to the 1973 Arab-Israeli war. Two weeks after the outbreak, the Arab oil ministers met in Kuwait. They agreed, in effect, to rig oil prices and began by raising the posted price from $3 to $5.2 per barrel. This was followed within three months by a breathtaking boost to $11.65 per barrel.

The exorbitant increases have sent most other prices soaring and have undermined the economic strength of the West. Without firing a shot, the oil sheikdoms have looted the treasuries of the industrial nations and have engineered the most massive transfer of wealth in history.

This has encouraged other prospective cartels to seek ways to stick it to the industrial powers. Declares a secret Defense Department paper: "The success of OPEC in using its oil weapon to inflict a major economic setback on the developed nations has served to arouse the awareness of other supplies of raw material to the potential coercive power which they possess."

The Washington Special Action Group, which was created in 1969 to monitor crises inside the White House, met on Jan. 14, 1975, to consider how best to cope with this economic warfare, Arab-style.

The WSAG strategists concluded in an April 24, 1975, secret memo that "the Arab oil producing states would be increasingly motivated to use their control of oil resources, and possibly such economic power as might be available in the use of their financial assets, to place a range of pressures on the United States and the industrial world to achieve political ends in the Middle East."

A number of countermeasures were analyzed, ranging from financial retaliation to "a trade embargo directed against the Arab states." But each move was largely dismissed as ineffective or counterproductive.

A related Defense Department study identified the basic problem, which is "the declining state of relations between the United States and some of its allies." The oil crisis has "the modern industrial democracies — military allies of each other — pursuing separate and frequently conflicting political and economic policies," the document declares.

It suggests that our industrial allies are wary of U.S. lesdership because "we are less vulnerable to oil policy coercion, and we show signs of weakened ability or will to provide the leadership which many expect of us."

The most drastic way the United States might strike back, short of military action, would be to block or confiscate Arab assets in the United States. But this, warns the study, "would have little immediate impact on the domestic economies of the targeted countries," unless the other financial powers joined in the action. Confiscation would also "considerably increase the danger of a backlash leading to higher levels of retributive counteractions by the (Arab) states against the United States."

The big worry inside the White House is that the Arabs might direct another oil embargo against the United States. A special National Intelligence Estimate, dated March 27, 1975, concluded that "short of war, it was doubtful that an embargo would be employed."

But the CIA has continued to warn that "the oil weapon could be used" in the event of Arab-Israeli hostilities. "A new embargo," the CIA anticipates, "would probably involve cuts in Arab exports on the order of 60 percent and would continue for a longer period than in 1973; the Arabs believe they turned the tap on again too soon last time."

Under the desert sands and briny waters of the Middle East lies most of the world's known oil reserves. In the past few years, this has produced a world turned upside-down, in which a few sparsely populated, once-destitute desert sheikdoms are drainlng away the prosperity of the West.

EMPLOYMENT OPPORTUNITY: Unless there was a slip of the bureaucratic tongue at the Agency for International Development, the foreign aid agency appears to be about to steal the Marine Corps recruiting slogan, "Wanted: A few good men."

An "activity data sheet," outlining an AID program to make contraceptives more available to the poor in Ecuador, provides this astonishing description of the plans for next year: "At least 133 community motivators will be trained to service about 15,400 women of fertile age."

INSIDE REPORT:

The same old Republicanism with few new challenges

BY ROWLAND EVANS AND ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON — A standing ovation behind closed doors two months ago and a non-announcement six weeks later point to this increasingly probable development: the Republican campaign to regain the White House in 1980 will offer few new challenges, blaze no new paths.

The ovation was given John B. Connally the morning of March 7 by a select group of Republican House members. Such acclaim at these breakfasts is rare. What made it meaningful was Connally, while failing to mention tax reduction, gave a characteristically spirited defense of the massive intervention into the economy he directed as Richard Nixon's secretary of the treasury.

The announcement, due April 16, aborted. On that dour tax collecting day, Rep. Jack Kemp of New York was supposed to announce formation of an "exploratory committee" — the first step to qualify for federal funds to finance a presidential campaign. No committee was formed. Kemp's friends now think it improbable that it will be.

This is more than new proof that Connally is a rising Republican star and Kemp is flinching at an uphill presidential run. Beyond that, it suggests an early grave for the bright new Republican doctrine of economic growth rather than austerity, emphasizing tax reduction rather than reduced spending.

It was this doctrine that transformed the famed football quarterback overnight into a national Republican star. It was envisioned as the vehicle to elect him president by his closest advisers: Irving Kristol, writer and teacher; Jude Wanniski, journalist and business consultant; Jeffrey Bell, 1978 Republican Senate nominee from New Jersey.

Preaching the gospel across the land, Kemp has left audiences feeling more hopeful than before — a rare feat for Republican orators since the coming of the New Deal. But hedonism is uncongenial to conventional Republicans. In the 1978 campaign, uncomfortable Republican candidates moved away from Kemp's growth doctrines as Democrats sounded the alarm of fiscal irresponsibility.

As 1979 began, Kemp was concerned that Republicans were about to engage in an austerity contest with President Carter. He did not see front-running Ronald Reagan, with whom he has close ties of long standing, propounding a philosophy of growth. Kristol, Wanniski and Bell grew optimistic that Kemp would run.

They became nearly certain as the political community perceived Reagan's decline and Connally's rise. Connally boasted he did not travel aboard "The Republican Tax Clipper," the planeload of Republican politicians boosting the Kemp-Roth tax reduction bill, and had never even endorsed that bill.

On March 7 at his breakfast with Republican congressmen, Connally was asked a pointed question by Rep. David Stockman of Michigan (an ally of Kemp): did he regret his role as Treasury secretary in 1971 imposing wage-price controls and ending dollar convertibility into gold? Both steps have been assailed by Kemp (and by Jeff Bell in his Senate campaign) as part of the crusade against government stifling of the economy.

Big John neither hesitated nor apologized. Economic controls, he said, were a political necessity; closing the gold window, he added, was essential to save the dollar, then endangered by a British assault. The subsequent ovation for Connally indicated Kemp's colleagues were hardly dedicated to his economic doctrine.

But that only spurred Kemp's advisers to greater efforts in urging a presidential race, since Connally appeared to be overtaking Reagan. The opening gun was set for April 16, not only because it was tax day but because a major segment on CBS' "60 Minutes" the previous evening unveiled Kemp's economic strategy to a mass audience.

But while Kemp's advisers see him as the engine to drive their new economic policy, his friends in Congress warned against windmill tilting. While no final decision has been made, Kemp probably has postponed the April 16 decision permanently. "As far as his career is concerned," one friend said, "Jack decided not to throw the long pass."

That leaves the field essentially to proponents of a constitutionally-imposed balanced budget (which Kemp has rejected). Dr. Herbert Stein, chief economic adviser in the Nixon administration, recently called for five years of economic austerity. Reagan in private lauds the therapy of an economic slowdown. In short, Republicans are sounding much as they have the past half-century.

An exception was made on ABC's "Issues and Answers" April 22 when Connally appeared to change his tax tune by saying "I would decrease taxes by about $15 billion to $18 billion next year." That is a crack in the austerity line, but clearly secondary to cuts in spending. Connally's cautious venture is scarcely the bold new Republicanism envisioned by Jack Kemp's advisers who prayed for that long pass.

Doctors find far less hunger in United States

WASHINGTON (AP) — Teams of doctors touring the rural backwaters and urban slums of America found far less hunger there than similar groups encountered 10 years ago, according to a new study.

The Field Foundation report, being delivered today to the nutrition subcommittee of the Senate Agriculture Committee, concluded that the billions of dollars spent in a 10-year federal government war on hunger were largely effective.

Much of the impetus for those federal programs came from debate sparked by a 1967 Field Foundation report.

The new report says hunger has not been erased and suggests that in terms of jobs, housing and medical attention, "the facts of life for Americans living in poverty remain as dark or darker than they were 10 years ago.

"But, in the area of food, there is a difference," it said.

The report released today was based on surveys taken in 1977 by some of the same doctors who compiled the material used in the 1967 study, which concluded that "hunger is a daily fact of life" for thousands of children.

The followup study found a markedly different situation.

"Our first and overwhelming impression is that there are far fewer grossly malnourished people in this country today than there were 10 years ago," the doctors wrote.

They said hungry children like those found in 1967 "are not to be seen in such numbers."

A summary accompanying the six teams' 1977 findings for the New York-based private research foundation, said, "The doctors' ... findings suggest that food-aid programs may represent one of the unsung, yet most effective anti-poverty efforts of the last 15 years."

The summary, written by Pulitzer Prize-winning author Nick Kotz, said the "second principal conclusion was that, while federal food assistance has made a difference, it still is far from adequate."

Hunger and infant death rates have declined, the doctors said, but no one yet knows whether anyone, poor or not, receives all the essential nutrients scientists recommend for healthy lives.

Oilmen sentenced in Florida

TAMPA, Fla. (AP) — Four oilmen have been sentenced to prison for three years for their role in a "daisy chain" oil scandal involving Florida Power Corp.

The defendants were expected to begin serving their sentences in 10 days unless they win a delay through appeal.

They are Walter C. Ballard, 58, a former executive of Signal Oil and Gas Co. of Houston; James H. Clark, 49, president of Larcon Petroleum Co. of Houston; Ronald B. Pruitt, 37, part owner of Larcon; and John L. Burns, 50, a former executive of Charter International Oil Co. of Houston.

Government prosecutors had called on U.S. District Judge W. Terrell Hodges to give the four men stiff sentences. But defense attorneys Monday argued that the government had failed to prove that the men actually conspired to cheat Florida Power or its customers.

Hodges acknowledged he handed down moderate sentences. Each of the men could have received a maximum of 35 years in jail. The judge sentenced them to serve three-year concurrent terms on each of seven counts of fraud and fraud conspiracy.

At the month-long trial earlier this year, witnesses detailed a series of paper trades in fuel oil that systematically drove up the price the utility had to pay Larcon.

Accountants have calculated the eventual cost to Florida Power customers at $8.5 million. The company has agreed to refund $6.5 million of that, but the settlement is being reviewed in a civil action here.

Hodges said one reason he didn't impose a longer sentence was that he didn't know if the men were actually responsible for driving up the oil price. But he said he did believe they breached their fiduciary duties to their employers.

President's ration plan may get committee help

By TOM RAUM

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House Commerce Committee, told by President Carter a standby gasoline rationing plan is "imperative" for the nation's energy future, appears ready to reverse itself and support the proposal.

The effectiveness of the president's

ENERGY
OIL & GAS

appeal — made in a nationally televised news conference — was being put to the test today as the panel meets to reconsider its previous 22-20 rejection of the plan.

Rep. John Dingell, D-Mich., House manager of Carter's rationing proposal, said prior to today's meeting: "I think there's a good chance of turning it around. I think there's a very good chance."

A move was also possible in the committee sometime today by a group of liberals seeking to block Carter's decision to decontrol oil prices beginning June 1.

Led by Rep. Toby Moffett, D-Conn., the group is trying to stop Carter by attaching a decontrol plan to another bill. Dingell said he would fight this move but, "It's hard to tell you what their chances are."

In his news conference, Carter defended his decision to decontrol domestic oil production and criticized as "just a lot of baloney" a claim by Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., that the decision amounted to surrender to the oil industry.

The president said oil price decontrol would encourage oil companies to find new oil while his "windfall profits tax" would keep them from getting rich off deregulation. He said oil companies would be able to keep 29 cents on every new dollar they earn from decontrol — an amount he said strikes a fair balance.

However, Carter said he might accept congressional proposals to make the tax stronger.

Carter specifically urged the Commerce Committee to approve the backup gasoline rationing plan and to send it to the full House. He said the plan is needed so the nation can be "prepared for the worst."

"It is imperative for our nation's energy preparedness that the committee approve this standby rationing plan," Carter said.

The Senate Energy Committee approved the standby rationing plan last week on a 9-8 vote. Both House and Senate panels have rejected another part of Carter's standby plan that would give the president emergency authority to close service stations on weekends.

"We face the possibility of gasoline shortages even as early as this summer," Carter said. "Common sense tells us we must be ready."

Dingell said "there's been a good deal of work done" by the White House since the Commerce Committee rejected the rationing plan last Wednesday.

Giving the plan a new boost, Dingell said, was a letter to committee members from presidential adviser Stuart Eizenstat promising extra quantities of gasoline for states where there is extensive driving and automobile use — such as in the West and in states popular with tourists.

The standby rationing plan would allocate gasoline on the basis of registered vehicles. Lawmakers from western states protested that such a formula would not be fair to their areas, where long driving distrances are common.

Energy Secretary James R. Schlesinger told a Senate panel Monday that only a "dire national emergency," such as a blockade of oil tanker routes from the Persian Gulf to the West, would require gasoline rationing.

Rationing, he said, "is a stringent measure which is intended for use only in the most severe shortage situation."

Carter's energy conservation plan, which includes the rationing proposal, was ordered by Congress under a 1975 law. It will die unless approved by the House and Senate by May 12.

Meanwhile, Kennedy said he's not angry that Carter accused him of being full of baloney.

"I think the facts speak for themselves," Kennedy told reporters. He said Carter was "defending his position in the strongest manner he could" and added: "I happen to think it's an indefensible position."

Also, the teacher's lounge has a new patchwork carpet and new curtains, said Buttery.

HOROSCOPE

By CARROLL RIGHTER
(Wed. May 2)

GENERAL TENDENCIES: It would appear as though you are looking for something to complain about unless you take yourself firmly in hand and be on the alert for some new interesting projects rather than stirring up conditions from the past best left alone.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Study the situation at home and handle it well and quickly. Not a good time to extend invitations to others. Keep busy at practical affairs and do some important studying.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Use care in taking care of travel and correspondence matters. Listen carefully to what others have to say. Show loved one you are devoted.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) You wisely are preoccupied with monetary affairs now and can set up a more worthwhile budget that you can easily follow. A financial expert can be a real help to you if you contact early.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Take care you do not lay the blame for an error on another person. Apply more effort to personal problems and clear them up.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Problems have to be handled individually for best results and according to importance. Don't be forceful with loved ones. Take time to get data you need.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Know the true position of a friend in your pattern of existence and rearrange your social life. If you persevere, you find your personal life can be bettered by attaining a cherished goal.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Be more willing to do whatever you think will improve your position within your community. Show that you are precise in handling credit matters.

DEAR ABBY

'Be prepared' motto is for all Scouts

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: You told a reader whose husband kept bringing home unexpected dinner guests, "Quit being a GOOD scout — be a GIRL Scout instead, and be prepared!"

Abby, "Be Prepared" is the motto of the BOY Scouts — not the GIRL Scouts.

Girls have succeeded in invading nearly all of the male organizations. Can't the Boy Scouts be kept separate from the Girl Scouts, without making them share a common motto? — EAGLE SCOUT, BRADFORD, PA.

DEAR EAGLE: Your knowledge of Scouting is for the birds. "Be Prepared" is the motto for Girl Scouts, too. (Scout's honor!)

DEAR ABBY: I have a 14-month-old nephew whose feet turn outward when he walks. So severely, in fact, that the child walks sideways. My sister knows it and keeps talking about asking her pediatrician to put the child in corrective shoes. But that's as far as it goes.

I've mentioned this to her several times. I don't want to bring it up again for fear she'll think I'm putting my nose where it doesn't belong.

Please don't say that if my sister wants her child to grow up with turned-out feet, it's her business, because it isn't my sister who will have to stumble through life on deformed feet. I see her pediatrician quite often. Would it be unethical of me to say something to him about it?—CONCERNED

DEAR CONCERNED: You may not have all the facts, but on the chance that your sister is either unable or unwilling to deal with this problem, mention it to the doctor.

The teen years are the questioning years. Abby has the answers to all your questions in her booklet, "What Teenagers Want to Know." Write Abby in care of this newspaper. Enclose $1 and a long stamped (28 cents), self-addressed envelope.

Midland's high schools name top students

Valedictorian and salutorian for Midland's two high schools were named today by principals at the schools.

William N. Creager, son of Mr. and Mrs. Nance G. Creager, was named valedictorian and James John O'Neill, son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Byrne O'Neill, was named salutatorian at Midland High School.

Mary Kathryn Downs, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Stanford Downs, was named valedictorian and James Howard Reiter, son of Mr. and Mrs. Carl R. Reiter, was named salutatorian for Lee High School.

Ranked first in a class of 500, Creager had a combined score of 1770, while O'Neill was second at MHS with a combined score of 1672. Creager's grade-point average is 4.467; O'Neill's is 4.561.

Miss Downs won top ranking in her class of 608 with a combined score of 1733, while Reiter was second at LHS with 1674. Miss Downs' grade-point average is 4.56, while Reiter's is 4.518.

Class standing is based on grade-point average and achievement test scores on a battery of English-social studies and math-science tests. To qualify for honor graduate and be eligible to take the achievement tests, students must have a grade-point average of 4.0 or better by the end of the second quarter of their senior year.

Students who qualify may take the achievement tests on a voluntary basis. Of the 37 who qualified at each high school this year, 29 MHS students took the test battery and all 37 LHS students opted for the testing.

Miss Downs is a member of the Lee High School honor band, German Club, National Honor Society and Medical Explorers. She has received three letters each in band and academics, has been chosen Junior Lioness of the Week by the Downtown Lion's Club and received the Rensselaer Science and Math Medal from Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute. She plans to study pre-med at Rice University.

She was born in Midland and has attended Midland schools for 12 years.

Placement tests set

Midland students who feel they are ahead of their peers in an academic area can take an advanced placement test and get credit for the things they already know.

The tests — given in several areas including math, history, English and languages — will be given Aug. 17 in the Midland High School library.

Students making a B or better on the test will be given credit for a course and allowed to take the next level course, a school district spokesman said. Students with a knowledge of Spanish, for instance, might go directly into Spanish II after doing well on an advance placement test.

Tests are given primarily to secondary school students, but sixth graders can take them with special permission.

Only one advanced placement test per year may be taken, a school spokesman said.

Students should contact their school counselors for more information.

Israeli ship returns

TEL AVIV, Israel (AP) — The freighter Ashdod entered the port of Haifa today after completing the first passage by an Israeli ship through the Suez Canal and being cheered by thousands of Egyptians.

"The voyage was okay," said Eliahu Shragai, spokesman for the Ashdod's owner, the Israeli shipping firm Zim. "We haven't talked to the captain yet, but we will soon."

Ohira hopes to ease crisis

WASHINGTON (AP) — Japanese Prime Minister Masayoshi Ohira is hoping his meetings this week with President Carter and congressional leaders will ease what officials describe as a "crisis of confidence" between the two countries, Japanese sources say.

Ohira, who arrived Monday at Andrews Air Force Base on an official visit, meets with Carter Wednesday.

Commission seeks charges against Mulder

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — The commission investigating South Africa's Information Department scandal has asked that former Information Minister Connie Mulder be prosecuted for refusing to testify.

Justice Rudolf Erasmus, head of the three-man commission, said he asked the Transvaal provincial attorney-general Monday to charge Mulder with contempt of the commission.

Mulder, who had given evidence several times before, last week refused to testify and said he was being denied a fair hearing.

Monday night, however, Mulder appeared to back down. He said the Erasmus Commission has agreed to give him access to documents and evidence he had requested, and under these circumstances he was "eager" to testify.

Terminally ill patient most needs support, 'someone who'll listen'

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the second of a multi-part series on death and how those involved adjust to the crisis.

By GARY OTT
Plainview Daily Herald
News Editor

"The most important thing a relative can do when finding out a loved one is dying is offer support and understanding," said Julia Moreland, whose husband has a terminal illness and is not expected to live more than a couple of years.

"The worst thing one can do," she added, "is ignore them—stay away because you don't know what to say to the person who is dying."

Believe it or not, Mrs. Moreland's last statement is one of the most traumatic experiences facing a person with a terminal illness. Just when a person needs love and support most, friends and relatives often become distant—not because they want to but because they "don't know what to say."

This is tragic, according to Orville Kelly of Burlington, Iowa, a cancer patient since 1973 who founded Make Today Count, an organization for persons with life-threatening illnesses, their family members and other interested persons. The group attempts to bring these people together — sharing common experiences, strengths and hope.

"IT IS IMPORTANT to spend time with those you love when they are seriously ill," Kelly says. "It's a matter of being there, not what you say. The patient needs someone to listen to them.

"But it's often best to find out what the patient wants to talk about, instead of forcing the conversation," he adds.

During the past month, the Herald has contacted several local and area persons confronted with life-threatening illnesses. We also talked to their families. With few exceptions, most agreed companionship is critical for both parties. But, the initial contact generally must come from the family member because the patient often views himself as a "dying person" who is a hardship on relatives and friends.

"When my husband found out he was dying," said Mrs. Moreland, whose name, like others used in this story, except Kelly, is fictitious. "He was obviously depressed. He became withdrawn — not because he wanted to, but because he thought of himself as a nuisance.

"HE DIDN'T WANT sympathy, he wanted to have someone listen to his thoughts. Anyone can be a good talker but it takes a very special person to be a good listener," she said with her soft West Texas drawl.

Others agreed.

Simon Bellport, whose wife has suffered a near-fatal heart attack within the past 15 months, added, "Once you've had a loved one come face-to-face with death you start rearranging your priorities. All of a sudden, your big dreams of a fancy house and expensive car don't seem so important. You're just glad to wake up and see your wife alive. You find out what's really important in life — it's not money, it's people."

Mrs. Tyrone Huddleston, whose five-year-old daughter narrowly escaped death after being struck by a speeding automobile in Amarillo several years ago, echoed those sentiments.

"I COME FROM an average middle-class family," she said. "I'd always been lucky — tragedy was foreign to me. But, when death confronts you — especially in the form of your only child — it's like a slap in the face. Those middle class values don't seem quite so important. You realize that you would gladly trade your money, house, car or whatever for your child's health.

"I don't want to sound heroic but I remember thinking 'Why my baby — she's so young — take me instead.'"

Mrs. Huddleston and her daughter — now a healthy 16-year-old — were lucky. They had a fleeting encounter with death and survived.

Others are not so fortunate. They and their loved ones face death every day. To them, it's not just a matter of mending broken bones and continuing a healthy life.

Instead, they are terminally ill patients who, along with their families, live with the stark reality that death can occur at anytime.

MOST FAMILY members contacted by the Herald agreed that the worst thing to do when a loved one is confronted with death is to "sweep the problem under the rug."

"The worst thing you can do is ignore the situation," said Truett Millsdale, whose wife has a history of heart trouble. "We tried to support each other by saying, 'Don't worry, everything will be alright.'"

"Of course, deep inside we knew everything was not all right. We needed to sit down together and openly discuss the realities involved," he added. "We did that and it helped. Death is not an easy subject to talk about but sometimes you have to."

Perhaps ironically, family members often display more bitterness about a terminal illness than the patient himself.

"WHEN WE FIRST found out John (her husband) had cancer, we were both in a state of shock," Mrs. Moreland said. "Almost immediately he accepted the news. He maintained a cheerful outlook. But, not me. I was very bitter."

"I hate to admit it," she added, "But, I think I was feeling sorry for myself. Later, we talked about the future and received some counseling from our preacher. Eventually, I accepted reality — I didn't want to but I did. Of course, we keep hoping he won't die."

According to information made available by the Make Today Count chapters, there are several mistakes family members make when finding out a loved one has a terminal illness.

Foremost is "sweeping the problem under the rug." Pretending the illness doesn't exist won't help the patient or family.

ALSO, IN MOST cases, Kelly says, the patient should be told about his disease instead of avoiding the truth because the family "doesn't think he can handle it." In those cases, once the truth is known by the patient he often becomes bitter toward the family or doctor because he feels they lied to him.

A final mistake family members often make is "giving up hope." This defeatist attitude often rubs off on the patient causing unnecessary grief.

Of course, death is a multifaceted problem but according to patients and their families, the best way to handle the crisis is to confront it honestly while holding out some hope that the problem can be overcome.

(Part Three of this series will deal with doctors and how they handle the death crisis.)

Steel mills slip back into action

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Steel mills resumed shipments and some workers began returning to steel-clogged plants as a month-long strike by dissident Teamsters steel haulers faded with scattered picketing in some areas.

In Youngstown, Ohio, Teamsters voted to continue the strike. Limited picketing was also reported in the Detroit and Cleveland areas.

Steel mills shipped finished products which have jammed loading docks in Ohio, West Virginia and Pennsylvania, where the strike was concentrated. Some workers were recalled to plants but other layoffs were to continue until product backlogs were cleared enough for production to resume.

The strike kept most of the union's 17,000 steel haulers idle since April 1 and forced some 6,000 steel mill layoffs.

National Steel Corp., whose Weirton, W. Va., plant was hardest hit with 3,000 layoffs, requested limited truck deliveries Monday. A company official said workers would not be recalled for several days.

"Most drivers are back," Charles Carelli, secretary-treasurer of Teamsters Local 800, said Monday in Pittsburgh. "I was out at the terminals...and there was a pretty good showing."

A spot check of several steel carriers in the Pittsburgh area confirmed Carelli's observations.

The 9,600-member local led the return to work Sunday with a narrow vote to end their unauthorized protest. The strike failed to achieve a separate vote by steel haulers on a proposed contract covering 300,000 Teamsters, who ended a 10-day walkout April 1. The master contract is being voted on by mail.

Meanwhile, a spokesman for the Detroit-based National Steel Carriers Assion, one holdout, among four trucking associations representing steel hauling firms, said it and some companies will not support the tentative agreement. The group represents 50 companies, but some have ignored an interim agreements with the union. Spokesman Robert Coopes said representatives of the group and 65 firms met Monday in Cleveland.

Coopes said the group, which employs a total of 8,000 drivers in the Midwest and East, would continue to balk until the Interstate Commerce Commission approves a 5 percent rate surcharge to offset improved health, welfare and pension benefits for Teamsters.

Coopes said benefits and wages force the trucking firms to pay drivers 88 cents on every dollar brought in, leaving 12 cents for the firms to pay cargo insurance, terminal expenses, other employees and administrative costs.

UTPB begins search for dean of science

ODESSA — A search committee has been named to find a new dean of science and engineering at The University of Texas of the Permian Basin.

The new dean will fill the position left vacant by the recent death of Dr. Charles McLarnan, dean of the college and professor of engineering at UTPB since July 1976. McLarnan died April 10 after a brief illness.

Members of the search committee include committee chairman Dr. James Colwell, professor and chairman of literature; Dr. Edwin Kurtz, professor and chairman of life science; Dr. Horace Bledsoe, associate professor of physics; Dr. Robert Howard, assistant professor of chemistry, and Dr. James L. LeGrande, professor and coordinator of criminal justice management. Dr. Thomas Wolff, assistant to the president, is search committee secretary.

Colwell said the committee invites other faculty to serve on the committee.

Acting dean of the college is Dr. James A. Nickel, professor and coordinator of mathematics.

'Major crisis' on Red River over

PEMBINA, N.D. (AP) — Residents of the flood-stricken Red River Valley are looking forward to a chance to take baths for the first time in more than a week. But an estimated 2,000 people remain away from their homes in Minnesota and North Dakota, while 7,000 have been evacuated in the Canadian province of Manitoba.

The major crisis caused by the Red's worst rampage this century is over for most people in the 200-mile-long valley. It has forced thousands out of their homes and left more than $70 million in damages.

In the tiny border town of Pembina, a watch was on early today as the river rose slowly. Officials saw no immediate danger although the Red was about 14 feet above the expected crest.

"We might need another row of sandbags," said Ed Jundt, who heads the town's flood control efforts. "But we can do it. We have to."

For most other points along the Red in Minnesota and North Dakota, the news was better.

In East Grand Forks, Minn., the shifts of dikewalkers were reduced.

"I think Monday was really the first day they kind of relaxed," said "Boots" Kreun, who took her knitting along to the flood control headquarters where she answered telephones.

She was looking forward to a "good bath," when the water level diminished, she said. Residents were warned earlier not to use water for washing clothes or bathing.

The Red was said to have "basically crested" in North Dakota and Minnesota Monday, although the National Weather Service warned floodfighters not to let down their guard.

"Any moderate or heavy rainfall we get will go right into the rivers because the soils are highly saturated and it could cause the rivers to rise again," said NWS spokesman Bob Nordland.

President Carter has declared 11 Minnesota counties major disaster areas, paving the way for federal cleanup assistance. Forty North Dakota counties received similar designation.

The U.S. Army Corps of Engineers estimated damages of $47.4 million in North Dakota and $24.6 million in Minnesota. A record 829,950 acres were flooded in the two states, more than 500,000 of them in North Dakota.

To the north, Canadian officials reported, as of Monday, 7,000 persons have left their homes in the Red River Valley south of Winnipeg. Emerson, the point where the Red enters Manitoba from the United States, got peak flows Sunday that were slightly below earlier predictions.

"We're not out of the woods yet, but the situation certainly is optimistic,' said Manitoba Premier Sterling Lyon. He said predictions for peak stages at downstream points were lowered. The crest was expected to reach Winnipeg by the weekend.

Red River flood crest moves deeper into Manitoba area

WINNIPEG, Manitoba (AP) — The crest of the flood-swollen Red River moved deeper into Manitoba nearly a foot under predicted levels.

Dikes in the border town of Emerson held off the flood waters Sunday and Monday as the crest passed through about 11 1-2 inches lower than was expected.

The river, swollen by rain and melting snows, carried its worst floods of this century through Minnesota and North Dakota into southern Manitoba.

Premier Sterling Lyons told reporters he was optimitstic about the water levels and that peak stage predictions for points further downstream have been lowered.

The crest was expected to reach Winnipeg by the weekend, and although the provincial capital is protected by a floodway, some residents of a flood-prone neighborhood outside the protected area were bracing for a peak flow nearly a foot and a half higher than in a 1950 flood.

The rising waters have driven 7,000 persons from their homes in the valley, although 1,000 have stayed behind to handle their flood-fighting jobs at critical sites. Harry Enns, minister in charge of the Emergency Measures Organization, said it will be mid-May before evacuated families can expect to return to their homes.

The EMO said almost all cattle have been removed from the west bank of the river and most livestock has been removed from endangered areas on the east side.

In Fredericton, New Brunswick, a state of emergency was lifted shortly after the river peaked at about 25 feet above sea level late Monday afternoon.

A government agency spokesman said there did not appear to be a great deal of structural damage to private property in Fredericton and that highways and small bridges along the valley appeared to suffer the most serious damage.

City high schools win band honors

Both Midland and Lee high schools' honor bands walked off with sweepstakes awards in the University Interscholastic League band competition Wednesday.

All area high school bands met at Lee High School for the spring event.

Placing first in the marching contest in November, both local school bands captured first place honors in the concert band competition and sight reading contest to qualify for the sweepstakes awards.

MHS received a second in concert and a third in sight reading while LHS received third place honors in both concert and sight reading.

Van Ragsdale is the honor band director at LHS, and Bruce Collins directs the second band. Clyde Wilson leads the MHS honor band, while Chuck Hazelwood is director of the school's second band.

Big Spring High School received a second place rating in the concert and sight reading events.

Midland youth honored for math, science study

TROY, N.Y. — Paul C. Raymond III, son of Mr. and Mrs. Paul C. Raymond Jr., has been awarded the Rensselaer Medal from Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute. The medal is an honor given to an 11th grade student for outstanding achievement in the study of mathematics and science during the junior year at Lee High School.

One junior from each of approximately 1,300 high schools is selected annually to receive this award. Each school, chosen on the basis of its superior academic standards, determines the selection procedure with suggestion that the medal be awarded to the junior with the most outstanding achievement in mathematics and science. Each recipient is then eligible to compete in the Rensselaer Medal Scholarships.

The Curtiss P-40N Warhawk flown by Midland's Joe Mabee was judged "best of show" at the Odessa Air Show last weekend. Observers saw many such "warbirds" in varied maneuvers.

Franklin's 'sentimental journey' carries him aloft at air show

ODESSA — The old warbirds roared by and then powered upward as if sallying off to war.

It was an impressive sight.

And Zip Franklin was sentimental as he peered into the sky and talked about the airplanes.

"Listen to that," he said, as the F4U Vought Corsair flew by at the Odessa Air Show. "Listen to it talk and watch it roll."

Howard Pardue of Breckenridge was at the controls and throttling the old radial engine of that "beautiful horse and warbird."

ROUSTIN' ABOUT with Ed Todd

"If that don't make your cool blood warm up on a cold day, nothing will," Franklin said, as he was perched above the crowd describing feats at the annual show.

Then, another high-performance World War II fighter thunderingly zipped by, unsettled the air and rolled in the sky. Midland's Robb Satterfield was at the controls of that one — the North American P-51D Mustang, which some fliers deem the "ultimate" among piston-powered prop jobs.

"LISTEN TO IT talk and watch it roll," said Franklin. "Isn't it lovely? If you can love an airplane, you have to love the P-51."

The Mustang streaked out of sight, and then came "boiling by" again to the delight of Franklin and other airplane buffs. He termed the aircraft "wonderful trophies of the past."

The sky was cloudy, the cool air was fairly dense, the breeze was mostly gentle, except for an occasional gust, and the day was just about perfect for flying, which is something Franklin has been doing for about 45 years.

"This is freedom of movement — third-dimension (living)," Franklin, of Lovington, N.M., said, even as he was getting more sentimental about the flying. His spirit was up there with the fliers, and his voice said it as well as his words.

"Those men up there are demonstrating freedom the way they feel it...," said Franklin.

His flair for flight was evident.

"I had my eyes on the sky and tears in my eyes," he said, as the Corsair and Mustang became the center of the universe for a few minutes.

THE TWO WARBIRDS lowered their landing gear and settled down to earth to nest among other Confederate Air Force warbirds and experimental and conventional aircraft at Schlemeyer Field.

Afterward, 11 aerobatic fliers from Midland, Odessa, Big Spring and Dallas demonstrated their skills and the capabilities of their aircraft.

"These are freedom fliers," Franklin said in introducing the aviators and their airplanes.

Satterfield and Doug Warren of Big Spring put De Havilland Chipmunks, Canadian monoplanes, through their paces. "Robb is a professional pilot in every sense of the word," Franklin said over the public-address system.

Odessa's Dane Jones sped off in his homebuilt Pitts Special biplane, powered by a 180-horsepower Lycoming engine, and pulled off snap rolls, hammerhead turns, and inside and outside loops.

"HE'S A DANDY," said Franklin. "Dane is putting it on."

Odessa's Gene Beggs, who is the U.S. aerobatic champion in the intermediate category, took his Pitts Special up for a spin.

The plane did it all and in perfection: Cuban 8s, torque roll, Waldo Pepper outside loop from the top, vertical rolls, snap rolls, inside loops, hammerhead turns, and three-, eight- and 16-point rolls before he waggled his wings and headed for the landing strip.

"He has gone the limit this day for you," Franklin told the sky-gazing spectators.

Mike Sharp of Midland plowed into the sky with his nimble 1949 Taylorcraft.

And Zip Franklin, an aerobatic pilot himself, again talked shop.

"They're just as precision (precise) as any fast-gun artist ever was and, in my opinion, even more so," he said of the freedom fliers. "There's no margain for error. You don't make it (a mistake)" if plane and pilot are to fly again.

Steve Clark of Big Spring did some flying in his 100-horsepower T-craft.

ODESSA FLIER Buzz Hurt took to the sky in his 180-horsepower T-craft.

"You never can tell what that 'old boy' is going to do," Franklin said.

Among unexpected maneuvers Hurt pulled off was the Immelmann climbing turn, developed by World War I German pilot Max Immelmann; hammerhead turns, snap rolls, and loops.

J.D. Gathright of Dallas put his T-craft in a four-point roll at lift-off.

Van White of Lubbock demonstrated the agility of his Piper J-3, tabbed Vertigo.

Lou Shaw of Dallas took off in Hurt's T-craft and, among other aerial feats, accomplished the "berserk headache" — a tumbling of tail over the wings.

And Steve Franklin, Zip Franklin's 22-year-old son, climbed into Hurt's T-craft and showed some of the aerobatics which he and his brother, Jim, 30, do in the Franklin Air Show. Steve flies a 1940 Swiss-made Buecker Jungmeister, an aerobatic biplane designed for the Luftwaffle. His brother pilots the American-made Waco biplane.

In an earlier event, Jim Fowler of Crane took Odessa skydiver Price Womack aloft in his Cessna 182. And he returned to earth under the canopy of his air foil.

And Zip Franklin, who, at 59, calls himself the "old man of the Franklin Flying Circus," seemed satisfied with a show well done.

Flying, which he terms "freedom of movement" in the third dimension, is virtually ageless.

"Particularly in aviation," Franklin said earlier, "I like to think age is a state of mind."

J.D. Gathright, too, may "only go around once," and he's sure to enjoy the freedom in flying many times over. Gathright, of Dallas, is in the cockpit of a Markquardt Charger biplane owned by Nick Owen of Lubbock. (Staff Photos by Ed Todd)

Miss New York earns right to represent U.S. in pageant

BILOXI, Miss. (AP) — Mary Therese Friel's college education has been interrupted for at least a year, now that she's been named Miss U.S.A.

The green-eyed blonde from Rochester, N.Y., will have to cut short her studies in pre-law and communications at St. John Fisher College, but she said Monday she would eventually return to the classroom.

"I'm going to be a lawyer, so that's definitely a priority," said Miss Friel.

As the winner of the national pageant, Miss Friel, 20, receives a $16,000 cash prize, a $10,000 personal appearance contract and a car.

She was the winner over 50 contestants from each state and the District of Columbia. She will represent the United States in the Miss Universe Pageant in Perth, Australia, this July.

Miss Friel covered her face with her hands after host Bob Barker announced the four runners-up before 4,000 persons in the Mississippi Gulf Coast Coliseum and a national television audience.

The runners-up, in descending order, were Miss Washington, Tracey Goddard of Seattle; Miss Hawaii, Leialoha Maa of Kaneohe; Miss Illinois, Debra Niego of Oak Lawn; and Miss Mississippi, Laurie Kimbrough of Oxford.

Rallies held to observe May Day

By The Associated Press

An ailing Leonid Brezhnev climbed slowly up the steps of the Lenin Mausoleum at May Day festivities in Moscow today as his Chinese rivals called for belt-tightening, Moslem revolutionaries celebrated their victory in Iran and other nations' workers marched on their international holiday.

An official on Brezhnev's left escorted the 72-year-old Soviet president up the stairs of the mausoleum in Red Square, but it was not possible to see whether the escort actually helped the Kremlin leader make the climb.

Soviet television, which broadcast the parade live, did not zoom in on Brezhnev going up the steps of the mausoleum as it usually does. Brezhnev has had difficulty walking in recent appearances and an aide usually is nearby to help him.

During last week's summit with French President Valery Giscard d'Estaing, Brezhnev was markedly less vigorous and alert than ever in his up-and-down health history.

Brezhnev and other Politburo leaders wore hats and topcoats against overcast skies and intermittent drizzles today. The Soviet leader waved to the crowd, estimated at 100,000, which cheered for at least 90 seconds when he arrived.

For the first time in 10 years, the Soviet parade spotlighted military marching units, which replaced dancing girls and gymnastic displays. There was speculation that the return of a military show was aimed at China after its month-long invasion of Vietnam, Russia's ally.

Red Square and the rest of Moscow were heavily decorated for May Day. Major avenues were decked out in Christmas-like lights as well as red hammer-and-sickle flags atop street lamps.

Peking also was aglow Monday night with red lanterns and mile-long strands of electric lights, but for the second year in a row no government-sponsored May Day festivities were planned for economy reasons.

"An important task now facing the Chinese working people is to launch a nationwide movment to increase production and practice economy," the Peking People's Daily said.

The paper said it was essential to build new factories and mines in order to modernize, "but we must rely mainly on the existing enterprises ... improving and transforming them.

"We will be able to quicken our pace, turn out more and better products and make greater contributions to the state if this work is done well."

The Tanzanian national workers' organization, Juwata, also called for austerity, saying May Day will be a normal working day because Tanzanians need to rebuild their economy following the costly war against Ugandan dictator Idi Amin.

In Tehran, hundreds of thousands of jubilant May Day marchers paraded through the city, waved portraits of Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini and praised the February revolution that ousted Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi. Armed revolutionary militiamen, riding motorcycles, maintained order.

Hani al-Hassan, the Tehran representative of the Palestine Liberation Organization, denounced "imperialism" and called for support of the Palestinian and Arab causes in a speech to more than 100,000 in a Tehran square. Listeners chanted, "Israel is destroyed, Palestine is victorious."

In Japan, the call was for higher wages and more social welfare benefits as 5.5. million workers held May Day rallies in more than 1,000 cities around the country.

In Tokyo's Yoyogi Park, a crowd of 40,000 heard speeches in praise of workers' rights then paraded downtown calling for better jobs for women, closer ties between city workers, farmers and fishermen and immediate anti-nuclear legislation.

No violence was reported.

Road money allocated to construct North Loop

More than $1 million already has been designated by the State Highway Department to begin the first leg of construction on the North Loop Road for Midland.

The project was included on last week's list of projects approved by the department for Midland and Odessa. Also listed was additional financing to finish widening North Midkiff Road.

According to Charles Muery with the Odessa office of the State Highway Department, the $1,037,000 set aside for the North Loop will be used for grading, structures and surfacing additional lanes.

Scheduled for the work is 2.4 miles of two frontage roads needed for the Loop Road from U.S. Highway 80 up Holiday Hill Road and ending at Texas 158, also called the Andrews Highway.

"We would like to utilize Holiday Hill Road as much as possible in the construction," Muery said.

The Highway Department is hoping to start the work within a year, depending upon when the city of Midland and Midland County can obtain the final rights of way in that area, according to the spokesman.

Final purchases probably can be made within two weeks to 30 days, he said, after the Highway Department allocated $3.5 million for that purpose.

The money is being split among the two Midland governing bodies, the city of Odessa and Ector County with the Midland entities getting the lion's share due to the amount of rights of way they must purchase.

Although Midland city and county governments have accepted the three contracts with the state and the neighboring city's governments, Odessa City Council still has that step to go, Muery said.

When all four governments have signed the contracts, then purchase of rights of way can begin, according to Muery.

The North Midkiff Road project received an additional $173,000 to complete work on widening the road from FM 868 south to Maxwell Drive.

Muery said the road will have four lanes with a continuous left turn lane and curbs and gutters.

Housing Authority to review mortgages

Status of the proposed Single Family Mortgage Revenue Financing program will be reviewed when the Housing Authority of the city of Midland meets at 2 p.m. Wednesday in the City Hall Council Chambers.

Chairman Harry Clark will review the program and the status of a feasibility study being conducted in Midland in connection with the program.

The panel is scheduled to consider approving a proposed amendment to the cooperation agreement between the city of Midland and the authority which would allow the financing program to be administered by the Housing Authority.

Also on the agenda are resolutions certifying the re-examination of income of families at Hillcrest Manor and certifying the rent-income ratio for Hillcrest Manor for the fiscal year beginning July 1.

Ruth Wenck is slated to report on a home rehabilitation program, and the authority's financial status is to be reviewed during the meeting.

Labor Party takes lead as Britain nears election

LONDON (AP) — With only two days left before Britain elects a new House of Commons, Prime Minister James Callaghan's Labor Party took the lead over Margaret Thatcher's Conservatives in a public opinion poll today for the first time in the campaign.

The Laborite lead in the National Opinion Poll taken Monday was only a minute 0.7 percentage point, an inconclusive margin. But it was registered after weeks of steady erosion in the sizable leads of around 20 percentage points which all the polls gave the Conservatives at the start of the campaign.

A National Opinion Poll two weeks ago put the Conservatives 6 percentage points ahead. Other polls in the past week have shown Tory leads of rom 3 to 11.5 points, promising a big enough winning margin to form a government but not enough to push through the program of curbs on labor unions and reform of the welfare state which Mrs. Thatcher is promising.

CART in court; Indy entries arrive

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — The U.S. Auto Club and the rival Championship Auto Racing Teams have a date in court on Thursday, but the first of a potential record 103 entries have already begun arriving at their Gasoline Alley garages for Saturday's scheduled start of practice for the May 27 Indianapolis 500.

CART, a group of dissident car owners and drivers who broke away from USAC late last year, filed suit in federal court after USAC rejected the entries by six CART teams.

The 19 entries which were turned down because they "were not in good standing with USAC," included cars for former Indy winners Al Unser, the defending champion, his brother Bobby, Gordon Johncock and Johnny Rutherford.

ABOUT A half-dozen cars had arrived at the Speedway by Monday night, including those of Tom Sneva, the second-place finisher at Indy the past two years and the defending USAC national champion; Danny Ongais, and Pancho Carter, all drivers for CART teams.

Other entries already at the Speedway included cars for Bill Puterbaugh and Vern Schuppan, said Jack Beckley, chairman of the USAC technical committee which will begin the mandatory inspection of all of the race cars Wednesday morning.

"There are several more in town at other places, but those are the ones at the Speedway," Beckley said.

More cars are expected to arrive each day.

Beckley said a recent USAC rule change which lowered the maximum manifold pressure for all turbocharged engines — a move strongly denounced by CART — is expected to lower speeds about 10-12 miles per hour from last year, when Sneva set one and four-lap records at more than 202 mph.

The new restrictions, designed to equalize the horsepower output and encourage development of the "unblown" stock block engines, is "gonna add a lot more competition to the show," said Beckley.

ALTHOUGH THE entire 33-car starting lineup will likely be slower, the difference between the fastest and slowest cars is expected to be closer than in the past.

Forty V-8 Cosworths and 37 4-cylinder Drake-Offenhausers, all turbocharged, dominate the assortment of 12 engines listed on the entries. Seven are unblown stock block Chevrolets, and two are turbocharged stock block units.

Beckley said he didn't think CART's contention that the lower boost — to 50 inches for the V-8's, 60 inches for the 4-cylinders and 58 inches for the stock blocks — would put them at a disadvantage was valid.

"They've been testing with a 50-inch boost, some of them for two months, so I think they're pretty well ready for whatever," he said.

The car owners whose entries were rejected by USAC were Pat Patrick, president of CART, and Dan Gurney, Midland's Jim Hall, Bob Fletcher, Tyler Alexander and Roger Penske. Besides the four former Indy winners, other drivers effected were Mike Mosley, Rick Mears, Steve Krisiloff and Wally Dallenbach.

Judge James Noland will hear CART's suit in U.S. District Court on Thursday. They are seeking an injunction against USAC and the Speedway to permit the six racing teams to compete.

AN UNUSUALLY large number of rookie drivers — those without previous Indy experience — also are expected at the track this month.

The 13 first-year drivers include veteran road racer Howdy Holmes, who will team with Janet Guthrie and Tom Bigelow and drive a Wildcat-DGS, car owner Sherman Armstrong announced Monday.

Holmes, 29, of Ann Arbor, Mich., began road racing with the Sports Car Club of America in 1971. He was second in the Mini-Indy series in 1977 and has won both the North American and Canadian Formula Atlantic championships.

Cubs, Gold Sox resume warfare

After a night off the Midland Cubs and Amarillo Gold Sox resume hostilities tonight in an R-T Family Night game at Cubs Stadium with the Bruins clinging to a precarious lead on the Texas League West Division after Sunday night's doubleheader split.

The Cubs and Sox play three more games after tonight, with Midland concluding a 12-game homestand Friday night. Right now the Cubs are 4-4 for the stand, but have lost three of the last four.

While the Cubs are hitting .330 as a team, the pitching has been spotty during the first month of the season, but Manager Randy Hundley hopes the addition of three hurlers from Wichita will add stability to the mound corps.

Most consistent to date have been Jack Ledbetter, despite a 1-2 record, Lee Smith, 2-0; and Bill Earley, 2-1, the rookie lefthander from Cincinnati.

Herman Segelke indicated he might be returning to normal with the 4-1 victory over Amarillo in Sunday's first game. Segelke got into a couple of exhibition games with the Chicago Cubs at Mesa, pitched well with Wichita, but then developed back problems before the team left Arizona for Midland.

Mike Allen, 1-1-1, and lefty Tom Butler, 2-1-1, have been effective out of the bullpen while the rest of the staff has been jockeying for starting positions. With four home doubleheaders in the first month, Hundley has gotten a good look at his staff.

Veteran Jeff Albert, relifer Bob Clark and Calvin Beal were released over the weekend to make room for Darrell Turner, who returns from Wichita; Vincent Valentini and Mark Parker.

Although he spent most of last season at Wichita before posting a 5-5 record for Midland in 10 games, this is Turner's fourth season in the Tall City. The 6-3 righthander from Oocee, Fla., was 4-12 in 1976 and then posted a 13-8 record in 1977. Last year he was 3-3 at Wichita in 15 games.

Valentini, who calls Palisades Park, N.J., home attended Fairleigh-Dickinson College, same alma mater as former Midland pitcher Wayne Doland, and jumped into pro ball with a 6-0 record at Bradenton (Rookie) in 1977. Last year, Vinny was 12-3 with a 2.42 ERA at Pompano Beach. He fanned 91 and walked 54 in 141 innings.

Parker, a 6-2 righthander from Huntington, Ind., came out of Huntington College with a BS in Accounting and compiled dazzling 13-1 figures for Geneva in the A New York—Pa. league last summer, completing 11 games in 14 starts. He joins Earley, who compiled a 10-3 record with Geneva last year.

CUB CLOUTS—Former Midland Cub Karl Pagel hit a grand slam homer Saturday night to pace Wichita to a come-from-behind win with the slam deciding it. Karl wound up with eight rbi for the night...Jack Ledbetter probably will start for the Cubs in tonight's game...

Nice guys don't always finish last

By HAL BOCK
AP Sports Writer

Atlanta's Phil Niekro goes after his 200th major league victory tonight in Pittsburgh and that's no big deal unless you happen to like nice guys.

Niekro is one of the best and among those fans pulling for him to hit that pitching plateau tonight are thousands of people you never heard of. The are kids who walk with braces on their legs or who don't have a father to turn to, underprivileged kids who some segments of society have forgotten.

Phil Niekro hasn't forgotten them and because of that, they're his fans forever.

WHEN A community project or charity program asks the Braves for some help, the club knows it can always turn to Niekro, who is one of baseball's most involved players when it comes to giving of his time and himself.

Ask him to explain his involvement and the Braves' knuckleballer shrugs it off.

"I guess I did it as sort of a way to pay baseball back, a way to thank baseball for all it's done for me," Niekro said. "You just can't keep taking things forever without giving a little back. I want to help people for myself, my family and the Braves' organization."

So, the March of Dimes, the Empty Stocking Fund, the Big Brothers, the Spina Bifida Association and other charities have benefitted from Niekro's involvement. And it's not just lip service either. The Atlanta pitcher takes his commitment deeply.

ONCE NIEKRO made an appearance for St. Regis Math Baseball, a learning program that uses flash cards in a simulated baseball game format as a mathematics teaching aid for kids. It was only supposed to take an hour or so but this one went longer and the people running the show offered to usher him out a side door.

But Niekro would have none of that. He insisted on sticking around rather than disappoint the kids. That's the kind of guy he is and the kids, being more astute than most people realize, understood and appreciated the presence of a big leaguer for the full "game."

"We have so many things handed to us on a platter in baseball. Why shouldn't we help less fortunate people?" the Atlanta pitcher said.

"I wish I could do more. You know, you seldom see the results. That's all right, but I'd like nothing more than some day to see a youngster who once was crippled walking down the street, maybe to see us play a ballgame."

NIEKRO HIMSELF is no kid. A month ago today, he celebrated his 40th birthday, a cause for concern for most athletes. Don't start worrying about him though. With the amount of strain the knuckleball puts on his arm, he could pitch for another decade and maybe win another 100 or so games.

There have been 79 major league pitchers with 200 or more victories but only one of them, Warren Spahn, pitched for the Braves.

The club isn't planning anything specific tonight but there just might be a little champagne spilled in the dressing room if Niekro's knucklers dance their way past the Pirate bats and Atlanta remembers to score enough runs to win the game for him.

The wins don't come easily for Niekro these days. Nothing, it seems, does for the Braves, who are rebuilding with youth and paying the price of growing pains. Three of the four games he has lost this season have been by one run and in the other setback, Atlanta was shut out 2-0.

But he's in no danger of being squeezed out of the Braves' youth movement. It would be tough to replace the pitching savvy and know how he brings to the mound every fourth day.

NIEKRO GRINS and bears the bad times now and remembers the good ones that came before. There have been a few, like pitching Atlanta's 1969 West Division clincher, tossing a no-hitter against the San Diego Padres in 1973 and coming within two outs of another no-hitter last season against Cincinnati.

But the best times come when he pitches in for some charity and he sees the faces of those kids light up at the realization that a big leaguer, and a pretty good one at that, cares about them. That's the best payoff of all for baseball's next 200-game winner.

Phil Niekro, Atlanta's knuckleballer supreme, goes for his 200th win of his career tonight when he faces the Pittsburgh Pirates. A lot of eyes will be on him. (AP Laserphoto)

Suns, SuperSonics open NBA series

SEATTLE (AP) — Phoenix guard Don Buse puts great value on tonight's opening game of the National Basketball Association Western Conference championship series matching the Suns against the Seattle SuperSonics in the Seattle Center Coliseum.

"If we can win one of these first two, we are sitting pretty," said Buse. "And if we can win the first one, we might be able to win the second."

Game 2 of the best-of-seven series is set for Friday night in the Kingdome.

A sellout crowd of 14,098 is expected in the Coliseum. The Kingdome, the Sonics' regular home, will house a baseball game between the Seattle Mariners and the Baltimore Orioles.

The Sonics, the defending conference champions, enter the series fresh from a 4-1 semifinal series victory over the Los Angeles Lakers. The Suns reached the conference championship round by dispatching the Kansas City Kings 4-2 in their series.

"They're a well disciplined team," Seattle Coach Lenny Wilkens said of the Suns. "They like to run, and they run their offense very well and get more people involved.

"If the fast break isn't there, they're confident enough that they can go into their offense and get something."

Rebounding is expected to be the key in the Seattle-Phoenix matchup. Seattle runs when the opportunity exists. Phoenix prefers to run all the time. But without the basketball, that's impossible.

"Our front line is probably our biggest strength, that and our backcourt, because it adds so many things to the games," said Seattle guard Fred Brown.

"I would say the guards and rebounding will be the key. They (Suns) have guys who can get out on the break real fast, but you can't run without the ball."

Buse, the Suns' defensive specialist who teams with shooter Paul Westphal to form a potent backcourt combination, said he fears Seattle won't run enough to keep a pace proper to the running game Phoenix likes.

"Seattle slows it down," he said. "Their game is a slower tempo. If we can get the lead, we can make them play our game."

Phoenix forward Walter Davis, one of the best small forwards in the NBA, says he thinks the Suns will be able to run against Seattle.

"The critical thing in running the break is to get the ball. You've got to force the other team to shoot the low percentage shot because you can't run when you're taking the ball out of bounds under the basket," Davis explained.

Seattle beat Phoenix in three of four regular season games and in the process held the Suns to an average of 104 points a game, far below their average of 115.

"We have as much quickness as they do. Boardwise we're a little stronger. They probably shoot a little better than we do. I look for a dynamite series," said veteran Sonic forward Paul Silas.

Tulsa finally turns tables

By The Associated Press

The Shreveport Captains of the Texas League had beaten Tulsa five straight times, all by one run.

Monday night, Tulsa got to turn the tables.

Tulsa picked up nine hits, all singles, for a 3-2 victory.

In the two other league games on tap, San Antonio knocked off El Paso 8-1 and Arkansas edged Jackson 4-2.

Mark Nipp went the distance for San Antonio in picking up his third victory without a loss this season.

Ron Roenicke smacked a three-run homer in the eighth to highlight a four-run rally for San Antonio. The Dodgers picked up an unearned run in first, two more runs in the third on Ed Santos' double and a final run in the ninth on three singles.

Arkansas got a solo homer from first baseman Joe DeSa Monday night. It was his fourth round tripper of the year and enabled the Travelers to tie the game 1-1 in the first. Jackson had scored on two walks, a grounder and a bad throw to first on another grounder.

Atlanta Hawks cry, 'wait until next year'

ATLANTA (AP) — The long National Basketball Association season is finally over for the Atlanta Hawks, but there already are cries of "wait till next year."

Despite the Hawks' 100-94 loss to the Washington Bullets Sunday in the decisive game of their quarterfinal playoff series, a crowd of about 200 met them at the airport when they returned home. After some lean years that almost saw the Hawks move elsewhere, the fans at the airport indicated a dramatic turnaround.

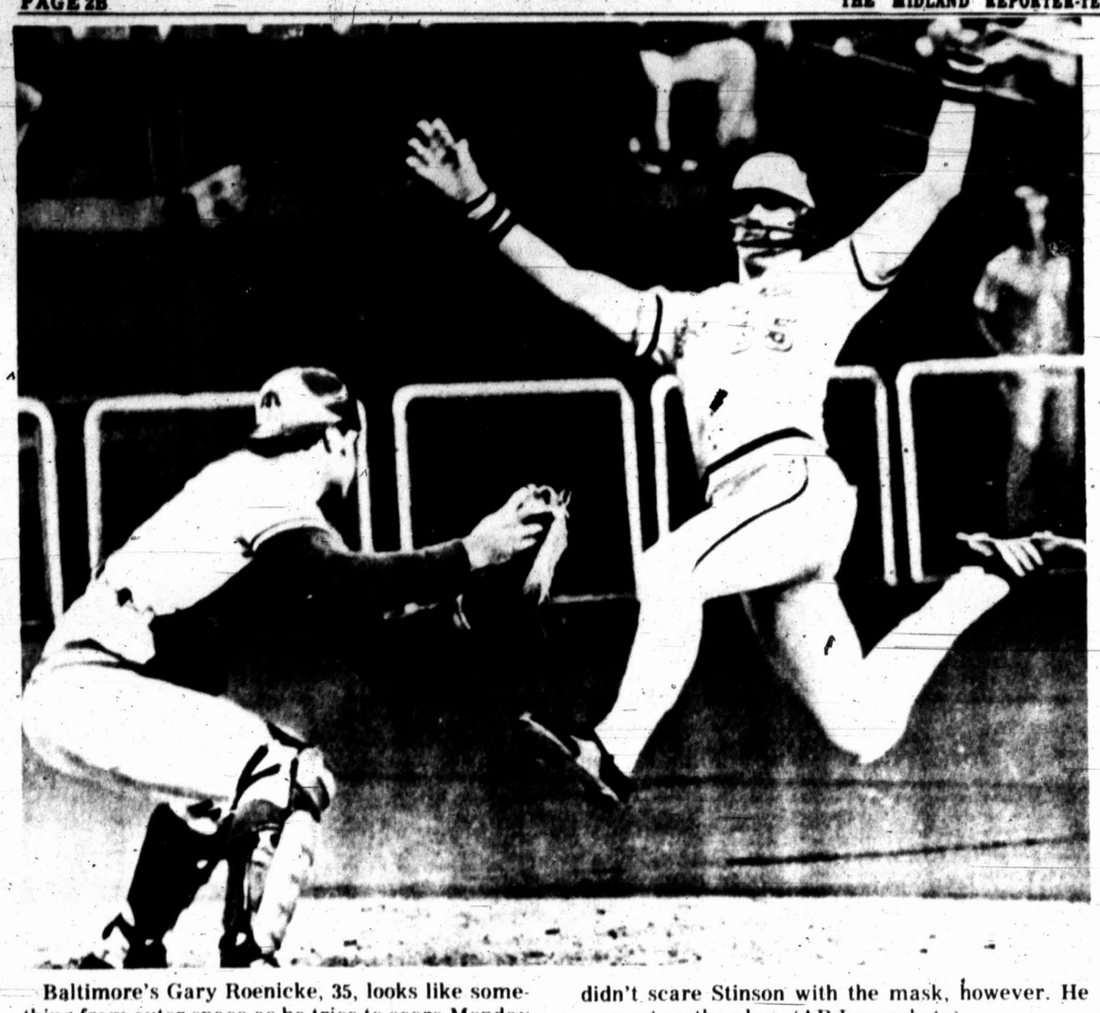
Washington's victory Sunday sent the Bullets into the semifinals against either San Antonio or Philadelphia, but the Hawks' performance in taking the defending champions to the seven-game limit also gave notice of the future.

"The Hawks lost but they are not losers. The Hawks are the NBA team of the future," said Elvin Hayes, who scored 39 points Sunday and grabbed 15 rebounds to ignite Washington's victory. "We're ready for championship competition after playing the Hawks. We won't meet a better team."

"I feel we are the team of the future," said Atlanta guard Terry Furlow, who came off the bench to average 15.6 points during the exhausting series, and whose vocal jabs at the Bullets added a spark to the series.

In three years, Hawks Coach Hubie Brown turned a perennial loser into a playoff team.

The fans showed their interest by greeting the Hawks Sunday night at the airport waving signs which read, "Thank You Hawks," and "Atlanta Loves Hubie's Hawks' and showering the team with hugs and cheers of "We Love You."



Baltimore's Gary Roenicke, 35, looks like something from outer space as he tries to score Monday against Seattle catcher Bob Stinson. Roenicke didn't scare Stinson with the mask, however. He was out on the play. (AP Laserphoto)

Baylor tears up April; Zisk sinks Kansas City

By The Associated Press

April was a hot month for Don Baylor — figuratively speaking, of course. And his figures include 28 runs batted in.

The California Angels' exalted outfielder simply tore through April and ripped up the American League record book in the process.

Continuing to produce in machine-like fashion, Baylor delivered a bases-loaded single in the bottom of the ninth inning Monday night to provide the Angels with a 2-1 victory over the New York Yankees.

Baylor's RBI broke Joe Rudi's mark of 27 in 1977. The major league mark for RBI in April is 29, set by Ron Cey in 1977.

"I wasn't thinking about the record — although I should have been, I guess," noted Baylor. "I had an opportunity to go after Cey's record about 10 days ago. I had the opportunity to drive in runs from third base with no outs a couple of times and didn't do it. It's like the 99 RBI I had last year — I'd rather do it early than later."

Baylor not only drove in the winning run, but was partly responsible for California's initial run. He broke up a no-hit bid by Ed Figueroa with a single in the fifth and eventually scored on Carney Lansford's base hit.

Incidentally, the Angels' victory set a club record for triumphs in April — 15.

"The more games you win in April, the less you have to win in September," said Baylor.

Rick Miller singled with one away in the California ninth and went to third on a single by Dan Ford. Figueroa walked Rod Carew intentionally to set the stage for Baylor's game-winning hit. The victory went to reliever Dave LaRoche.

Rangers 8, Royals 7

Richie Zisk keyed a five-run rally in the third inning with a two-run single and made a spectacular catch in right field to smother a Kansas City uprising in the sixth as Texas beat the Royals.

After the Royals tied the game 6-6 with two runs in the fifth, Bump Wills singled in a Texas run in the sixth and scored on a sacrifice bunt for the eventual game-winner.

Orioles 8, Mariners 7

Eddie Murray's third RBI of the game, a bases-loaded grounder in the 10th, boosted Baltimore over Seattle. Billy Smith led off the Baltimore 10th with a single but was forced at second on Al Bumbry's grounder to third base. Rich Dauer then singled and Ken Singleton walked to load the bases, setting up Murray's game-winning grounder.

The Mariners tied the game 7-7 in the bottom of the ninth when Bill Stein walked to lead off and pinch-hitter Joe Simpson hit his second homer of the year.

A's 5, Red Sox 4

Jeff Newman tied the score with a two-out home run in the bottom of the ninth inning and then socked a two-out, run-scoring single in the 11th to lead Oakland over Boston.

The A's totaled only five hits in the game played before their biggest home crowd of the year — 14,716 — but three of those hits were homers. Besides Newman, Dave Revering smashed a two-run homer in the fourth and a solo shot in the sixth.

Brewers 8, Indians 0

Jim Slaton fired a two-hitter, Ben Oglivie powered two home runs and Gorman Thomas slammed a three-run shot to pace Milwaukee over Cleveland.

A two-out single by Bobby Bonds in the fourth and Bo Diaz' leadoff single in the ninth were Cleveland's only hits and the Indians' only base runners of the night off Slaton, 2-1.

Twins 6, Blue Jays 3

Butch Wynegar smashed a two-run homer and a run-scoring single to spark Minnesota over Toronto. Winner Paul Hartzell scattered seven hits.

Sacre bleu! Expos are serious as heart attack

By The Associated Press

The hottest sticks in Montreal aren't being wielded by Guy Lafleur, Jacques Lemaire and Steve Shutt of Les Canadiens but rather by Warren Cromartie, Gary Carter and Andre Dawson of the Club de Baseball Montreal Limitee — alias the Expos.

Cromartie and Dawson are voltigeurs (outfielders) and Carter is a receveur (catcher), but above all they are frappeurs (batters), even if they aren't French. Don't be fooled by Dawson's first name; he hails from Miami, Fla.

Carter and Dawson each homered while Cromartie stretched his hitting streak to a club record-tying 18 games — c'est magnifique! — with a two-out infield hit that triggered a four-run first inning Monday as the Expos won their sixth game in a row, defeating the Los Angeles Dodgers 8-4.

The triumph enabled the Expos to remain tied atop the National League East with the Philadelphia Phillies, who handed the San Francisco Giants their eighth consecutive setback 4-1.

With two out in the bottom of the first, Cromartie outlegged a bouncer to short, equaling Pepe Mangual's club record hitting streak. In rapid succession, s'il vous plait, Tony Perez doubled for one run, Carter doubled for another, Ellis Valentine tripled, Larry Parrish doubled ... et voila! ... 4-0 Expos.

"He (Cromartie) ran it out hard and we end up getting four runs because of it," said Dick Williams, le gerant (manager) des Expos.

Carter hit a solo homer in the fifth inning, Dawson unloaded a two-run shot in the sixth and the Expos led 8-0 before the Dodgers broke through Montreal lanceur (pitcher) Steve Rogers, who hurled a seven-hitter.

"We're playing ball like we should be playing ball," said Cromartie. "You can tell that by the type of games we're playing — errorless ball and doing things properly in certain situations. We're for real. We're as serious as a heart attack."

Sacre bleu!

Phillies 4, Giants 1

Greg Luzinski's two-run homer and a solo shot by Garry Maddox powered Philadelphia over San Francisco. Dick Ruthven, 4-0, pitched six innings before leaving with a tender elbow. He was relieved by Tug McGraw, who hurled three scoreless innings. Luzinski singled a run across in the first inning, Maddox homered in the second and Luzinski connected in the third.

The eight-game losing streak matches the Giants' longest since they moved from New York to San Francisco in 1958. They also dropped eight in a row in 1972, 1977 and 1978.

Astros 6, Cardinals 5

Terry Puhl's two-run homer capped a four-run Houston rally in the top of the ninth. Trailing 4-2, the Astros teed off on Tom Bruno and Buddy Schultz. Enos Cabell's double and singles by Bob Watson and Art Howe chased Bruno. Pinch-hitter Jeff Leonard greeted Schultz with a sacrifice fly to tie the score and one out later Puhl hit his second home run in as many games. Ken Reitz homered for St. Louis, which collected six extra-base hits.

Mets 4, Padres 3

Doug Flynn singled home the winning run in the seventh inning after Joel Youngblood singled off reliever Bob Shirley, 0-4, with one out and stole second. The Padres had tied it on Fernando Gonzalez' home run in the top of the seventh off winner Craig Swan.

The Padres played the game under protest, claiming New York Manager Joe Torre was in the Mets' bullpen after being ejected in the third inning for claiming that San Diego starter Bob Owchinko had balked with a runner on third.

"If Torre will admit being in the bullpen, I'll admit that my pitcher balked," said Padres Manager Roger Craig. Replays clearly showed that Owchinko brought his hands together in a stretch position, then separated them before stepping off the rubber.

Torre insisted he listened to the final six innings on a radio in the Mets' clubhouse but Craig said he became suspicious that Torre was in the bullpen — which is against the rules if you've been ejected — when he saw Mets pitching coach Rube Walker on the dugout phone to the bullpen.

"I sent my right fielder (Dave Winfield) out there to take a look about the eighth inning," Craig said, "and he saw Torre in the bullpen. He was probably out there the whole game."

Buccaneers trade Pear

TAMPA, Fla. (AP) — The Tampa Bay Buccaneers on Monday traded nose tackle Dave Pear to the Oakland Raiders for two early college draft picks, giving Tampa Bay five selections in the first three rounds.

The Bucs' new selections will be the fifth turn on the second round and the 26th on the third round. No team in the National Football League has more selections in the first three rounds, said Bucs spokesman Rick Odioso.

Tarkenton dickers with TV networks

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — Minnesota Vikings quarterback Fran Tarkenton says he is negotiating with all three television networks for a job as a pro football color announcer and will quit as a player "if one of the television deals works out."

Tarkenton, in Atlanta, was interviewed by the Minneapolis Tribune Monday night after the New York Post reported he will become a sports commentator for ABC-TV.

Tarkenton, 39, refused to confirm or deny that report but said he had been "visiting with NBC" while his attorney, Tom Joyner, has been talking with ABC and CBS.

"I'm first a businessman," Tarkenton told the Tribune's Sid Hartman in a telephone interview. "Business has never been better. I'm interested in being a pro football color man. Nothing else interests me. If one of the television deals works out, I definitely will not play any more football."

Neither Tommy Kramer nor Bob Lee, Vikings' quarterbacks who've been used rarely, was convinced he'd get a chance to become the Minnesota starter.

"I'll believe it when I get to camp," Kramer said in Houston.

"I'll believe it when I show up at camp and he's not there," Lee said in San Francisco.

"I knew it," said Vikings center Mick Tingelhoff, who was Tarkenton's roommate on the road. "He told me during the last season that this could be his last year. Toward the end of the season he had almost made up his mind. I knew this was it."

Post sports writer Paul Zimmerman quoted a source "close to Tarkenton" as saying Joyner agreed last Friday to a long-term contract with ABC. "The only thing remaining," said the unnamed source, "is Fran's signature on the piece of paper."

Vikings General Manager Mike Lynn said he knew nothing about Tarkenton making a decision.

"Francis hasn't informed us that he's signed any kind of a contract," said Lynn. "All we know here is what we've known since last December — that he's been negotiating with all three networks for a possible position as a color commentator. But as far as we know, he still hasn't made up his mind about anything.

"In other years, I didn't take Francis seriously when he talked of quitting," said Lynn. "But now he is speaking in a different tone."

Coach Bud Grant said Tarkenton told him some time ago that he wouldn't be back if he could work out the right television deal. Grant also called Tarkenton "the greatest quarterback ever to play the game."

"The fact that he can go out on top at age 39 is a testimonial to his great ability," the coach added. "A lot of players retire from the game going downhill. He can still move, can run, has good enthusiasm, his mind is sharp and physically he doesn't have any problems. He may have lost a little through the aging process but not enough to hold him down."

Six girls sanctioned for tourney

BEAUMONT, Texas (AP) — Six girls — unable to compete in a regional high school tennis tournament because floodwaters kept them from getting to the meet and from contacting tournament officials — have been ruled eligible to play in the state tournament this week.

A federal judge said the six athletes from Forest Park High School in Beaumont were denied their constitutional rights when their games were declared forfeited weekend before last.

"The decision to default them was unnecessary, and it was made in an arbitrary fashion," said U.S. District Judge Joe Fisher, who ordered the girls must be allowed to participate when the Class AAAA state tournament begins Wednesday.

Fisher's ruling angered Dr. Bailey Marshall, executive director of the University Interscholastic League, which governs inter-school academic and athletic competition in Texas.

Marshall predicted the decision will lead to other suits against the UIL.

"I don't think it is fair to the other players in the state tournament," Marshall said. "I think the decision to default the Beaumont girls was unfortunate, but right."

Beaumont lawyer Robert Keith filed the suit on behalf of Cindy Berryman, Cheryl Simcox, Lori Barclay, Susan Foxworth, Patti Harrigan and Alice Blackwell.

Foxworth and Barclay were state semi-finalists in 1978. Blackwell and Harrigan are paired in doubles and Berryman and Simcox are singles players.

Terp star faces short jail term

UPPER MARLBORO, Md. (AP) — University of Maryland basketball star Larry Gibson faces up to 18 months in prison on a charge of breaking and entering.

Gibson pleaded guilty to the charge Monday in Prince Georges County District Court. Judge Bess Lavine ordered a special presentencing report before a date for sentencing Gibson is set.

The charge carries a sentence of three months to 18 months in prison.

Gibson, a native of Baltimore who was a co-captain of Maryland's team this year, was arrested March 30. He was charged by police with breaking into Shoemaker Hall on the university's College Park campus. Entrance to the hall was gained through a woman's restroom.

Gibson has refused comment on the charge, and there was no explanation of the incident provided to Lavine when Gibson appeared in court.

Spurs' breeze turns to survival

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — San Antonio may be in the driver's seat of its National Basketball Association playoff series against the Philadelphia 76ers, but the Spurs will have to get their shooting back on track if they expect to win the Eastern Division semifinals.

What started out as a breeze for the Spurs has come down to a nail-biting finale. The Sixers haven't been pretty, but they have fought back from a 3-1 deficit to even the series at three games apiece. The deciding game will be Wednesday in San Antonio.

"Yeh, we're in the driver's seat," San Antonio Coach Doug Moe said after the Spurs went up 3-1. "But there could be an accident."

Spurs' captain James Silas was so confident at the time he said there was no way San Antonio would return to Philadelphia for a sixth game. "I guarantee it," said Silas.

But 76er Coach Billy Cunningham started All-Star forward Julius Erving at guard and put 6-foot-11½ Darryl Dawkins, 7-1 Caldwell Jones and 6-9 Bobby Jones on the front line.

Combined with a cold night for the Iceman, San Antonio's George Gervin, the 76ers romped to a 120-97 victory Thursday and brought the series back to Philadelphia.

In the sixth game Sunday that Silas couldn't believe would happen, the Spurs had Philadelphia's big front line figured out better and Erving looked like he had a cold, scoring only 15 points in 43 minutes.

In the third period, the 76ers got stuck, scoring only 13 points and going for 5:08 without a point.

"Only time I was more frustrated than that was when my Corvette broke down," said Dawkins. "I had to ride back in the tow truck. That's how I felt."

But the Sixers played tough defensively, holding the Spurs to 37 points in the second half. And Dawkins asserted himself.

"I get the urge in certain situations," said the 22-year-old center, who rallied the Sixers from a 13-point deficit early in the fourth quarter with a jumper, two thundering dunks and two clean blocks.

"Darryl turned it around," said assistant coach Jack McMahon after the Sixers came back to win 92-90 on Maurice Cheek's little hook in heavy traffic under the bucket.

Part of the Sixers' comeback has been the Spurs' inability to score. San Antonio shot 38.5 and 41.7 percent in their last two losses.

Only two other teams have come back from a 3-1 deficit to win a seven-game series — Boston against the 76ers in 1968 and the Los Angeles Lakers over the Phoenix Suns in 1970.

On the other hand, the Spurs are 0-9 in seven-game playoffs.

"I feel good about Wednesday," Gervin said. "We're still in the driver's seat. We have the home court advantage."

"They came out and said this series would never go six games," said Dawkins. "I never believed it."

Johnson heads NBA All-Defensive selections

NEW YORK (AP)—Seattle Supersonics guard Dennis Johnson heads the National Basketball Association All-Defensive Team selected by the league's coaches and announced Monday.

Johnson, the only player selected by every coach, and named to the first team by all but two, is joined in the backcourt by Don Buse of the Phoenix Suns.

Salty tears flow for Charlie O.

By WILL GRIMSLEY
AP Special Correspondent

Shed a few tears — salty ones, if you must — for Charles O. Finley. The "O" stands for "Oh, No, No, No!" Or maybe, "Oh, my Goodness!"

It's hard to visualize how things could be worse for the snow-haired baseball maverick. With the season less than a month old, his Oakland A's are settling into their familiar pits in the cellar of the American League West. Charlie O. has to be on an aspirin diet. Every day brings a fresh headache.

Fans are staying away in droves. Average attendance is around 4,000 a game. Sometimes there are fewer fans than employees in the ball park, such as the 653 that showed up for a recent game against Seattle. Now the Coliseum has filed a $10 million suit against the Oakland owner, charging that since 1975 he has not lived up to his agreement to field and promote a big league baseball franchise on the premises.

Technically, Charlie O. can't run and can't stay. His original 20-year lease runs through 1987. When he says he'd like to move — there have been gestures toward Seattle, Denver and Washington, D.C. — the landlord responds, "Nothing doing." So the mad, sad circle goes on.

The saga of Charles O. Finley reads like a Horatio Alger paperback classic in reverse. It's sports' most compelling "riches to rags" non-thriller.

Five years ago, the Oakland A's were coming off their third straight World Series championship and were being proclaimed a "diamond dynasty" compared to the old Yankees.

Charlie O. was defiant and flying high.

His free-spirited musketeers were the scourge of baseball in their beards, bright-colored uniforms and white shoes. Charlie's mule, Charlie O., had the run of the house. Charlie O., the man, was daily feeding the flames of feuds with the establishment, Commissioner Bowie Kuhn, Congress and his own fans.

Then the botton fell out. Erasure of baseball's reserve clause was the principal factor, but Charlie O.'s bullheaded stubborness had a lot to do with the A's sudden demise.

Today there's not a shred left of the great team Finley fashioned with his shrewd knowledge of talent and clever wheeling and dealing.

Where did they all go?

You can find most of them by reading the agate boxscores in your favorite newspaper. The best ones have signed million-dollar contracts and are toiling with rival teams. Some got as far away as possible, the Mexican or South American Leagues. Others retired and — poof — were gone.

Outfielder Reggie Jackson ($2.9 million) and pitcher Catfish Hunter ($3.5 million) wound up with the New York Yankees, where they continued collecting World Series rings. Pitcher Rollie Fingers ($1.5 million) and Gene Tenace (c-1b, $1.2 million) were acquired by San Diego with some of Ray Kroc's hamburger money. Outfielder-first baseman Joe Rudi ($2.09 million) went to the California Angels.

Third baseman Sal Bando ($1.4 million) and catcher Ray Fosse helped make contenders of the Milwaukee Brewers. The Texas Rangers picked up a handful of disenchanted A's, but stayed only with shortstop Bert Campaneris ($950,000 for five years). Vida Blue signed a $1.5 million contract with the San Francisco Giants.

Pitchers Paul Lindblad and Darold Knowles and outfielder Claudell Washington had stints with the Rangers before moving to other pastures (Seattle, St. Louis and Chicago). Former 20-game winner Ken Holtzman vegetated on the Yankee bench before landing with the Cubs. Outfielder Bill North finally went to the Dodgers, then the Giants.

Mike Hegan became a broadcaster. Jesus Alou and Horacio Pina took flings in the Mexican League. Vic Davalillo gets his mail at Dodger Stadium. The others — Blue Moon Odom, Dick Green, Ted Kubiak, Angel Mangual, Mike Epstein, Dal Maxvill, Herb Washington, Matty Alou and Mike Andrews — heard from any of them lately?

And what of Charlie's favorite mule? Dead, and—like the A's—buried in a California graveyard.

Injury controversy has WCT netters furious

DALLAS (AP) — World Championship Tennis found itself involved in another injury controversy today.

Jimmy Connors was given a day's grace in his first-round match at the expense of John McEnroe and John Alexander. McEnroe launched into a diatribe Monday because his schedule had been disturbed.

Bjorn Borg said if they had moved his schedule he wouldn't show up for the match.

Barring any last-second whim by McEnroe, the match was on tonight at Moody Coliseum between the fiery 20-year-old American and Alexander.

Connors, if his injured left hand comes around, is now scheduled to play 23-year-old Gene Mayer, a first-time WCT performer, Wednesday night.

Borg plays Geoff Masters and defending champion Vitas Gerulaitis plays Brian Gottfried Thursday night.

The semifinals are Friday night, with the survivors meeting Sunday afternoon for the $100,000 first prize.

Borg, who whipped Connors in straight sets last week in the Alan King Classic in Las Vegas, had to withdraw last year because of an injury and defaulted to Gerulaitis. WCT officials drew criticism in the way the announcement was handled.

There were charges the announcement was delayed 24 hours after the WCT became aware Borg was defaulting. The WCT denied it.

Connors was supposed to play Mayer tonight and McEnroe and Alexander were originally paired for Wednesday night.

"I'm not happy about it," said the 20-year-old McEnroe, who like Connors is known for his on-court temper tantrums. "I came here prepared to play Wednesday. Why can't both matches by played Wednesday."

Walker eyes Canadian's Edmonton

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (AP) — Arkansas defensive tackle Jimmy Walker announced Monday his intention to sign with the Edmonton Eskimos of the Canadian Football League.

The All-Southwest Conference tackle said, however, he could change his mind if he is placed well in the National Football League draft Thursday.

Two Razorbacks have recently signed with teams in the Canadian Football League. Quarterback Ron Calcagni signed Monday with the Montreal Alouettes and Donny Bobo, a wide receiver, earlier announced his signing with Edmonton.

"I'll be playing tackle at Edmonton," Walker said. "If I went to the NFL, people are talking about putting me at linebacker and if I didn't play right off like I'd been playing there all my life, they wouldn't spend much time with me."

Walker said he might try the NFL again in a few years if he signs with Edmonton.

Walker made the announcement at a banquet of the Little Rock Razorback Club.

Colts obtain Landry

BALTIMORE (AP) — "Now that we've taken care of the quarterback situation," said Baltimore Coach Ted Marchibroda, "we'll concentrate on strengthening our club in other positions."

Marchibroda made the observation Monday after the Colts acquired veteran Greg Landry from the Detroit Lions in exchange for the fourth and fifth round choices in this week's National Football League draft and the No. 3 selection in 1980.

After winning three consecutive American Conference East titles, the Colts finished third with a 5-11 record last year following a disabling early-season shoulder injury to quarterback Bert Jones.

Marchibroda defended the play of backup quarterback Bill Troup during the season, but jumped at the chance to acquire Landry.

"We needed maturity, and Greg provides that," Marchibroda said. "He fulfills our needs and he's only 32, so he has a lot of years ahead of him."

"Ted said he wants me to be another Earl Morrall, but I don't know if I can play that long," Landry said of the veteran quarterback who fulfilled a similar role with Baltimore and the Miami Dolphins until he was into his 40s.

Landry said he didn't consider himself a backup quarterback, claiming that term "implies a player who doesn't have the skills to play on a regular basis."

"I realize the position Ted wants me to fill," he said. "But if Bert gets hurt, I can come in and play ... and play well."

After finally getting his wish to get out of an unsettled Detroit situation, Landry said he felt revitalized in joining the Colts.

"I know Baltimore will be a contender," he said. "They have a very consistent offense with explosive people, and all the requirements needed to contend for the division championship."

Troup, meantime, said he was prepared to battle Landry for the No. 2 quarterback spot.

It's now or never time for District 5-4A teams

It's now or never in District 5-4A baseball, especially for league-leading Midland Lee and Midland High.

The Bulldogs, 5-0 in league and 16-5 overall, today entertain third place Abilene Cooper, 4-1 and 17-3, at 4 p.m. on the Memorial Stadium diamond.

Lee, 5-0 and 19-9, travels to Abilene High, 2-3 and 9-11, for a 4 p.m. encounter that will have a lot to say about the Rebels' second half title chances.

Cooper won the first half crown and isn't really out of the second half chase yet. Both Tall City teams, meanwhile, need victories to keep their hopes alive of a playoff with the Cougars.

Other district frays set for today have Odessa Permian, 1-4 and 14-10, at San Angelo, 0-5 and 4-14, and Big Spring, 1-4 and 8-16, at Odessa High, 2-3 and 8-18. First pitch for both games is set for 4 p.m.

Receiving a plaque for outstanding service to veterans during 1978 is Ed Miller, right, manager of the Midland office of the Texas Employment Commission. The Disabled American Veterans also recognized the Midland office for its outstanding service to disabled veterans for the same period.

Tonight's Pops concert marks Fiedler victory

By DANIEL Q. HANEY

BOSTON (AP) — A disco arrangement called "Saturday Night Fiedler" and a special tune built on the notes "A" and "F" and evoking the "jestful buoyancy" of the Boston Pops Orchestra highlight tonight's concert marking the start of Arthur Fiedler's 50th year of directing the Pops.

The event is a personal victory for Fiedler, for it is to be his first full-length performance in Boston since he underwent brain surgery last December.

As usual, members of the smooth, sumptuous-sounding orchestra will sit in light blue jackets on a stage decorated with colored lights and gold and green flowers. They will play to a background of popping champagne corks and tinkling glasses provided by a capacity audience gathered around tables on the floor.

The only difference is Fiedler himself. At 84, his face is haggard and tired, and his step is slow.

Fiedler underwent surgery Dec. 11 to relieve water pressure on his brain. Friends say the operation improved his condition considerably.

"He seems better than he has in years in terms of conducting and staying on top of the music," said orchestra spokesman Peter Gelb. "He's very sharp and alert."

But during a weekend rehearsal, Fiedler's voice was so weak that he needed a helper to shout his whispered instructions to the orchestra. His directing seemed labored, though there were flashes of the old Fiedler vitality when the music required.

The program is full-fledged Fiedler.

It starts with "Cheers!" a march written especially for Fiedler by Morton Gould.

Believing in others seldom is mistake

By ALFRED SHEINWOLD

It's a sin to believe evil of others, but it's seldom a mistake. Today's East would have sacrificed by bidding five clubs except that he felt confident that South would find a way to go down at four spades.

West took the ace of diamonds and continued with the queen. Declarer now justified East's confidence by playing dummy's king of diamonds.

RUFF'S KING

East ruffed and returned a heart. South had to finesse, losing a heart and another diamond in addition to the first two tricks.

South could assure the contract by playing low from dummy on the second round of diamonds. West would lead a third diamond to give East the ruff, but South could step up with the ace of hearts at the next trick, ruff a diamond in dummy, draw trumps and discard dummy's remaining heart on a good diamond.

Partner opens with one heart, and the next player doubles. You hold: S-6 3: H-J 10 9 3: D-7: C-Q 10 9 6 4 2. What do you say?

ANSWER: Bid four hearts. Do what you can to interfere with the enemy's bidding. If the intervening player had passed instead of doubling, you would bid only two hearts with this horrible hand. This conservative bid might be right also if you are vulnerable or if your partner is a doubtful player.

Esquire returns to monthly

NEW YORK (AP) — The Tennessee company that acquired Esquire has decided to return the 45-year-old magazine to monthly publication starting this summer and raise the single-copy newsstand price.

But officials of 13-30 Corp. of Knoxville said at a news conference Monday that the magazine will continue as "the classic magazine for men."

An agreement to purchase more than two-thirds of equity in Esquire from Associated Newspapers Ltd., the British conglomerate that has published Esquire since 1977, was completed here Saturday after five months of negotiation.

Clay Felker, Esquire's editor and publisher since 1977, will depart, as will art director Milton Glaser, according to 13-30 owners Christopher Whittle and Phillip Moffit.

The 13-30 firm, a publisher of college and high school magazines, has acquired more than two-thirds interest in Esquire, with the remainder retained by Associated, according to Whittle and Moffit.

A 50 percent interest in the Tennessee company is held by The Bonnier Magazine Group, a Sweden-based conglomerate.

But Whittle and Moffitt, who control the other 50 percent and will each hold dual titles at Esquire, said Bonnier was "not putting up any money whatsoever."

X-rays, heat treat cancer

Dear Dr. Solomon: A former classmate of nine, now living in the Midwest, writes me that heat and X-rays combined are being used to treat cancer. Is there anything to this?— Mr. S.H.

Dear Mr. H.: Microwave-induced heat and X-ray treatment combined give some indication of being of value in the treatment of cancer. Doctors at Indiana University treated 64 patients with advanced cancer. In 35 of these patients, all evidence of their tumors disappeared in the areas treated; in 27, tumors were reduced by 50 percent. The patients did not report any unpleasant side effects.

Dear Dr. Solomon: No matter how much the government tries to control air pollution, and no matter how much industry cooperates, an industrialized society like ours can't have completely pure air. Are all city dwellers destined to become ill?—Ron

Dear Ron: The effects of air pollution appear to depend on its intensity. Yale University recently completed a six-year study during which scientists surveyed more than 3,000 residents of two areas—one industrial, with highly polluted air; the other rural, with relatively clean air.

They concluded that there was no significant difference between the two groups in the rate of chronic bronchitis, asthma, and reduced breathing. Moreover—and this should come as no surprise—the effect of smoking was more significant significant than the place of residence. The overall conclusion of the study was that "moderate" air pollution appears to cause little harm, although it does provoke some coughing and choking.

I personally feel we ought to keep our air as clean as possible—as no one can guarantee us that there are not long-term negative health effects from breathing in "moderately" dirty air.

Dear Dr. Solomon: A friend of mine claims there is a greater risk to her child from the polio and measles vaccinations than there is in no being inoculated at all. She seemed so convinced by what she was saying that I'm wondering if it's true.—Jessie

Dear Jessie: There are occasional side effects from any vaccine, but these are extremely rare. Compared with the risks involved in not being inoculated, the benefits of immunizing children against infectious diseases are overwhelming. Too many people seem to be more frightened of a needle than of the disease it is meant to prevent.

Dr. Alan R. Hinman, of the Center for Disease Control, says that only one of every two million children who receive polio vaccinations may become paralyzed after them; and that one of every one million children who are given measles shots may get encephalitis. However, encephalitis occurs twice as often in children who do not get the shots.

While admittedly it is a tragedy for the child who does become paralyzed or gets encephalitis, the risk obviously is remote. Parents owe it to their children to make sure the youngsters get all their needed inoculations.

Leo E. Gosset

Lions to hear DPS official

Col. Leo E. Gossett, assistant director of the Texas Department of Public Safety, Austin, and a former Midland resident, will be the speaker Wednesday noon at the meeting of the Downtown Lions Club in the Midland Hilton.

Gossett, who has held his present post since Sept. 17, 1968, served as regional commander for DPS' 49-county region headquartered at Midland from 1962 until 1967 when he was transferred to Austin and promoted to chief of the Criminal Law Enforcement Division. He served in that capacity until promoted to his present position.

Gossett, a native Texan, attended The University of Texas and Southwestern University at Georgetown. He werved with the U.S. Marine Corps during World War II.

He is a director of the American Association of Motor Vehicle Administrators and is a past president of the Texas Police Association, Texas Military Civilian Traffic Safety Council and the Austin Society for Public Administrators. He is a member of the Austin Rotary Club and is active in civic affairs in the capital city.

Alumni event slated

ODESSA — The Alumni Association of The University of Texas of the Permian Basin will act as hosts May 11 for the Night of Celebration to honor upcoming and past graduates of UTPB.

The graduating class of 1974 is especially urged to celebrate their five-year anniversary. They will be honored with a dinner and reception to begin at 6 p.m. in the student lounge. Reservations can be made by calling the office of student life at 367-2136.

A two-hour reception and social will be held at 7:30 p.m. in the student lounge to honor the graduates of 1979 and the past graduates of UTPB.

The night event is a means of celebrating the graduation finale after working so many hours to earn a bachelor's or master's degree, according to Woody Kupper, director of student life.

The Alumni Association invites all members of the Class of '79, the faculty of UTPB and their friends to come and join in the celebration. Alumni are especially urged to attend the graduation ceremonies slated for 2 p.m. Saturday May 12 in the gym along with graduates, their friends and families, faculty and staff and friends of the university.

CHARLESTOWN, N.H. (AP) — Amtrak's Montrealer passenger train struck an automobile in this Connecticut River Valley town today, and authorities said five persons in the car were killed.

State police said the victims were two adults and three juveniles. They were not immediately identified.

There were no reports of injuries to passengers on the northbound train, which runs between New York and Montreal through Connecticut, Massachusetts, Vermont and for a brief stretch through southwestern New Hampshire.

2,000 to receive Tech degrees

Bentsen, who has been named Alcoa Foundation Distinguished Lecturer for 1979, will speak at the ceremony May 11 in Municipal Coliseum where university President Cecil Mackey will confer degrees assisted by the college deans and vice presidents.

State Guard comes prepared

When the Texas State Guard comes in to help in a disaster, they come prepared.

To heighten that preparation, the 403d Military Police Battalion came to Midland Sunday to help clean up after a mock tornado.

The volunteer group is part of the state's reserve units, but is separate from the Air National Guard or the Texas National Guard.

State guard members are all volunteers who train one or two nights a week in their communities and move into disaster sites to help out on orders from the governor.

Search and rescue, emergency first aid, clean up and emergency organization are the strong points for the guard, usually one of the first outside groups in a disaster area.

Some members have prior military service, but it is not required.

The members run the range of types, from hardened ex-combat veterans to grandmotherly looking sergeants who joined "to learn how to help."

A few have beards and long hair peaking out from under their white combat helmets; others sport crew cuts and airborne patches on their sleeves.

The idea, as Midlanders found out Sunday when about 70 of the members from Midland and a number of area towns came for their annual spring drill, is to prepare for every eventuality.

And, as past experience shows, the preparation works.

One of the victims is carried on a litter to the first aid station for treatment and disposition.
