Former Star Dies In New York Hospital

By LAWTON CARVER
INS Sports Editor

NEW YORK, Aug. 16—George Herman "Babe" Ruth, the greatest slugger in baseball history and the idol of fans from shoe shine boys to presidents, died peacefully in his sleep tonight.

The 53-year-old Ruth succumbed to cancer in New York's Memorial hospital at 6:01 p.m. (CST), a wasted, shocking caricature of the cocky, spindle-legged husky who for so many years was the terror of every opposing pitcher he faced.

Later tonight it was announced that Ruth died from cancer of the neck.

Death Comes Quietly

The old Bambino's wife and two daughters were at his bedside as the all-time home run hitting champion lapsed quietly into death.

Outside the hospital a platoon of children kept a hushed vigil. Their tears—and occasional sobs—were the first public reaction to the passing of the most colorful figure baseball has known.

The Rev. Thomas H. Kaufman, O.P., of St. Catherine of Siena church of New York, administered the last rites of the Catholic church to the old Yankee star a half hour before death.

In addition to Mrs. Claire Ruth and the Babe's two adopted daughters, Mrs. Richard Flanders of North Conway, N.H., and Mrs. Dorothy Sullivan of New York, those present when Ruth died included:

Mr. and Mrs. Peter De Rose of New York, close friends; Ruth's attorney, Melvin G. Lowenstein; J. Paul Carey, also a close personal friend, and Drs. Hayes Martin and Loton Rasmussen.

Priest Is Summoned

The Rev. Kaufman said he was summoned to the hospital at 6:30 (EST) with the news that the Babe was "sinking rapidly."

From then until 7:30 (EDT) the priest and the dying Ruth who came out of a Baltimore orphanage to reach baseball's highest pinacle prayed together.

Then the wasted former star fell asleep, never to awaken.

Minutes after Ruth's death New York's East 68th street outside Memorial hospital was packed solid with fans paying silent tribute to the greatest star baseball ever knew.

The headlights of police cars and flashing photographers' bulbs turned the night into day.

Fans Pay Tribute

Fans at the Polo Grounds in New York—not far from Yankee stadium, "the house that Ruth built"—paid him tribute before the start of the Yankees' exhibition game with the New York Giants.

Every person in the vast stadium stood with bowed head for one minute in silent prayer.

HE could have lived to be 150 and have tottered into Yankee stadium or down a street in any city or hamlet in the country on age-tortured legs and there always would have been quick glances, the gleam of recognition and the whispered words, relayed as a smoke signal, "Babe Ruth . . . Babe Ruth . . . Babe Ruth."

The Bambino was that kind of a guy—unique, picturesque in his misshapen bulk and vast expanse of swarthy countenance, utterly unforgettable.

More Than A Man

He was more than a man. He was a symbol. Baseball players might come and baseball players might go. But, regardless of their achievements, none ever could supplant Babe in the public mind as the personification of everything that was great and spectacular in the game.

Truly a veritable Paul Bunyon character in performance, and with a physique to match, Ruth had that indefinable something called color. Other players might be huge,others might hit even more home runs during a season. But the Bambino had that inborn instinct to make every deed and move exciting.

"The Babe" Connects

He never lost that instinct. Well do we remember the last time we saw him in a baseball uniform. It was in an exhibition at the stadium which he, through his never-waning appeal to the fans, had so much to do with building. It was an Army-Navy relief fund benefit in 1942, with 69,136 spectators in attendance.

He was to hit baseballs tossed toward him by Walter Johnson, another great of a bygone era in baseball.

It took him a while to get adjusted, to get his eye, and his barrel-like body seemed to get in its own way. But he finally did what he was expected to do. He connected with one of the soft, straight pitches Johnson was easing his way and golfed the ball high and far. Still another was lofted into the stands.

It barely was inside the right field foul line, but the big guy

Soviet Consul Says Teacher 'Deranged'

By INEZ ROBB
INS Staff Correspondent

NEW YORK, Aug. 16.—Jacob Lomakin, Russian consul general, charged tonight that Mrs. Oksana Kosenkina made her almost fatal leap from a third-floor window of the consulate last week while mentally deranged.

White Guard "fiends," American officials, police and courts, and the United States press and radio were officially lumped together by the consul as the forces which drove the little Russian teacher to jump while in unsound mental and physical condition.

Blame Is Laid

The responsibilty "for everything that has occurred," Lomakin concluded, "lies with those who organized the kidnaping and committed violence toward Mrs. Kosenkina, a Soviet citizen, as well as with those American officials who by their actions and statements have thus caused the nervous breakdown of Mrs. Kosenkina which has driven her in her despair to the attempt of suicide."

The statement was distributed by Lomakin shortly after 7 p. m. in the foyer of the impressive Soviet consulate just off Fifth avenue on 6st St.

Sixty newsmen and cameramen summoned for the conference, were waiting on the sidewalk when the heavy, wrought iron doors of the consulate were finally opened to them.

Statements Distributed

The youthful consul, smiling, assured and self confident, said to reporters crowded around him:

"Today, you have submitted to me many questions for answering. This is my answer."

With that, Lomakin held up a batch of two-page statements in English, while another member of the consulate distributed the same statement in Russian.

But reporters who had hopefully handed in pertinent, pointed and reasoned questions on the Kosenkina case quickly discovered that the statement was just a rehash of charges already laid down in

U. S. Drawing Up Answer To Reds

WASHINGTON, Aug. 16. (INS)—The State department assembled material today in preparation for a rebuff of Russian protests on American handling of the escaped school teacher cases.

New York police gave the department a report based on the investigation of Oksana Kosenkina, refugee Russian school teacher, who leaped from the third floor of the Soviet consulate in New York.

Red Demand Rejected

On Saturday the department rejected a Soviet demand for custody and control of Mrs. Kosenkina, who is hospitalized with severe injuries. The woman charged she was held prisoner in the consulate.

The Soviets also demanded custody of Mikhail Samarine, Russian school teacher, and his wife for return to the U.S.S.R. Samarine, a House un-American Activities committee witness, has said he fears death or exile to Siberia if returned to Russia.

A Russian charge that U.S. naval Lt. Robert Dreher was recalled from the Moscow embassy after being caught spying on the Soviets was branded as a frame-up yesterday by the department.

Diplomatic observers believe Russia may offer a general pro-

'THE REAL STALIN'---CHAPTER ONE OF AN AMAZING STORY

Stalin Lives Life Of Mystery

By EMIL LUDWIG
World-Famous Biographer

(EDITOR'S NOTE: One man now has the entire world watching his next move as no other man since Adolph Hitler. That man is Joseph Stalin. What makes Stalin behave the way he does? What manner of man is this who holds within his hands more power than Caesar did and whose designs stir such fear in the hearts of his fellowmen? Here is the first chapter of the most remarkable study of Stalin ever written. Emil Ludwig, world famous biographer, has just completed a series of six articles on the Soviet ruler for the International News Service. Famous for his masterpieces on Napoleon, Bismarck and Roosevelt, Ludwig now relates the story of Stalin, gathered from years of personal study and an unusual face-to-face interview. Follow the series daily in The Morning Avalanche.)

FIRST of all you must imagine a strong-looking, but rather thick-set man about whom everything seems heavy and slow; his carriage, his gait, his gestures, and his speech.

Everything about him seems stand-offish, coldly calculating, cautious—and most of it has a somber effect on his visitors.

The impression which Joseph Stalin makes on all Europeans who meet him—including all Russians (to whom he, racially, does not belong)—is that of outlandishness.

Americans feel that, of course, even more strongly.

I talked to Stalin for three solid hours, sitting opposite him, and he did not look at me once. He seems to be a man without nerves, or at any rate a man able to control his nerves to a degree altogether uncanny. He is taciturn and patient.

Were his character as a whole different, those characteristics could have made him a statesman and popular leader of the stature of the late Thomas G. Masaryk (founder of the Czechoslovak republic after World War I).

But unlike Masaryk, Stalin is no philosopher. Stalin is a man filled to the brim with hidden passions; and therefore his life has taken a course quite different from that of the Czech statesman.

When you recall the most remarkable man you've ever met in your own life, you may find one who had both patience and a passionate disposition—and you will remember that the very combination of those two traits was bound to put that man into conflict with his surroundings.

We know from hundreds of studies that such reticent and slow men who may nevertheless "explode" at any moment, are nowhere as frequent as among Asiatics.

Stalin is an Asiatic.

Imagine, then, such a buttoned-up, lonely figure usually in a grey tunic without any ribbon or medal, and never carrying a weapon; imagine his low forehead, the Mongol cut of his grey eyes, his tight-lipped mouth which sometimes holds a pipe burning about as slowly as he talks, and his hollow, never loud voice, and you'll have a pretty accurate picture of what Stalin looks like.

He was born, almost seventy years ago, in a wretched four-room brick house which you feel you can blow down when you stand in front of it. The upper parts of its walls are covered with rough boards which are just as uneven as the one stone step of the entrance door.

This little house stands in a small provincial town of the Caucasus region, whose name is about as tongue-twisting as that of Stalin's original family name. Practically all Russian Communist leaders of his generation adopted aliases.

In one of those four rooms Stalin's father, a cobbler, had his workshop, while the adjoining

HST Attacks Solons; Sets Political Talk

By W. H. MOBLEY
Associated Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON Aug. 16—President Truman accused Congress today of knuckling down to special interests and choosing to "fight inflation by putting the average American family through the wringer.

That was his summing up of the effect of the lawmakers refusal to grant his request for price and rationing powers and other controls as a club to beat back high prices. He made it in a statement as he signed the anti-inflation measure the Republican-dominated special session did give him—power to tighten up on consumer credit and bank lending.

HST To Speak At Detroit

The statement made official something that long had been taken for granted—that the text of the Democratic campaign will be the issue of high prices and that it will be pointed squarely at labor in particular and the little fellow in general.

The selection of the laboring man as the bearing point for the campaign had been underscored earlier in the day with official selection of a Detroit Labor day speech for the President's takeoff in his personal drive for November votes.

The over-all plan of the bill is to make it harder for people to buy expensive things or borrow money. The idea is to slow down buying on the theory that production will catch up and that will bring prices down.

Two Approaches Outlined

A secondary idea is to hold back money that might otherwise be spent now, and ease a possible drop in business later.

There are two approaches in the bill:

1. Power to bring back the war-time controls on installment buying, requiring larger down payments and shortening the time for paying off balances.

2. Boosting the interest rate on loans, by raising bank reserve requirements so that lending institutions will have less money to put out.

Crosby Wreck Fatal To Girl

(Special To The Avalanche)

CROSBYTON, August 16—Dollie Nell Putman, 17, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. B. K. Putman of Highway community in western Dickens county, died about 2 a. m. today in Crosbyton hospital from injuries received when the car in which she was riding with her family was in collision about 6 p. m. Sunday with a car driven by Alfred J. Diffie of Tulsa, 10 miles east of Crosbyton on Highway 82.

Mrs. Putman and Diffie are both in critical condition, attendants at the hospital here reported late tonight. Also in the hospital are two other Putman daughters, Ina, 13, and Lois, 4. Mr. Putman and another two daughters, Ann, about 8, and Anita, about 16, were not injured seriously enough to be hospitalized after treatment.

Services Set Today

All the victims were brought to the hospital here for treatment.

The Highway patrol reported that Diffie's late-model Cadillac was moving east alongside the highway while the Putman's Buick sedan was driving south on a rural road toward the highway. As the Putman automobile started across the highway to continue down the country road, Diffie's automobile swung on to the highway. Both drivers sought to avoid a collision, but did not succeed and the left side of the Diffie automobile struck the right side of the Putman automobile.

Funeral services for Miss Putman are to be conducted at 3 p. m. Tuesday in Spur Church of Christ. Burial will be in Spur cemetery, with Campbell home in charge.

Texas Grocers Agree Meat Boycott 'Unfair'

FORT WORTH, Aug. 16 (AP)—Texas grocers gathered in convention here today were pretty well agreed that housewives' boycott of high priced meat is unfair and unlikely to reduce prices.

"Prices won't go down as long as we're sending large shipments of goods overseas," said G. C. Sandling of Lubbock, a director of the Texas Retail Grocers association, in 21st annual convention.

"When foreign demands are met through their own efforts and our aid, then prices will decline," bumper crops the world over is an encouraging sign that supply may meet demand sooner than expected."

Herb Teal of Lubbock, president of the district association there, said housewives' boycotts "will not help very much, because "they are condemning the man in the meat market who can't control the prices. "They should begin with the packers, where the price increase comes."

Negro Convicted Here Charged With Attack On White Woman

FORT WORTH, Aug. 16. (AP)—District Attorney Al Clyde late today cut short a three-week vacation of the country grand jury and called it into a special session at 9 a. m. tomorrow to hear charges against Cleveland Stovall, jr., 21, negro, admitted attacker of a 33-year-old white woman in her Eagle Mountain lake home.

Stovall was charged in Justice Frank Hurley's court with criminal assault and held without bond in Tarrant county jail today.

In the negro's wallet was a conditional pardon dated June 4, 1948. Records showed he was convicted of burglary at Lubbock and was sentenced to five years in January 1947. He said he had been employed here until Aug. 7.

High Soviet General Reported Assigned To Take Over Berlin

By OMER ANDERSON
INS Staff Correspondent

BERLIN, Aug. 16—The Liberal Democratic newspaper Montag's Echo said today that Moscow has assigned Marshal Konstantin Rokossovsky the task of aiding a Communist seizure of power in all of Berlin.

The newspaper said Rokossovsky, outstanding World War Two Soviet general has been ordered to Berlin to take direct charge of Soviet policy in Germany, thus shelving the military administration headed by Marshal Vassily D. Sokolovsky.

According to the newspaper, Rokossovsky has been instructed to pursue a policy designed to purge or reorganize the Soviet-backed Unity party (SED).

Vishinsky Gave Orders

The SED was said to have orders to stage a political push "by legal or illegal means."

Montag's Echo predicted that after the Communists take power in Berlin and make the position of the Western Powers untenable in the city, they would move into the western occupation zones with the "backing of Soviet arms."

The newspaper said Andrei Vishinsky, Soviet deputy foreign minister, ordered Rokossovsky to Berlin and gave instructions to channel all orders from Moscow to Berlin through him.

"FIFTH COLUMN" REPORTED IN WESTERN SECTORS

BERLIN, Aug. 16 (AP)—A Berlin liberal newspaper said today that a Communist "fifth column" is at work in the Soviet-blockaded western sectors of the city—preparing for the day they hope the Western Powers will leave.

The liberal democratic newspaper Montags Echo said the Communists have prepared a purge list of "hundreds of thousands" of anti-Communists upon whom they will take revenge if the Western Allies quit Berlin.

Envoys Hold Long Session

By THOMAS P. WHITNEY
Associated Press Staff Writer

MOSCOW, Aug. 16.—Envoys of the United States, Britain and France met with Soviet Foreign Minister V. M. Molotov again tonight in the current negotiations to settle East-West differences in Berlin and Germany.

The meeting in the walled Kremlin was the longest since the negotiations began July 31, lasting three hours and 40 minutes. None of the western diplomats would comment as they left the Kremlin. They refused even to state whether they thought there would be another meeting.

Seems In Good Spirits

U. S. Ambassador Walter Bedell Smith and French Ambassador Yves Chataigneau went immediately to the British embassy with Britain's special envoy, Frank Roberts, for a conference.

Smith seemed in good spirits.

(A responsible diplomatic informant in London said Molotov was to give Russia's reply to the western proposals for a Berlin settlement at today's meeting. He said the western proposals had been "rehashed but not modified" and added today's talk might be the climax of the 18-day East-West discussions.

(In Frankfurt, Gen. Lucius D. Clay, American military governor in Germany, said he expected the Western Powers to remain firm on their plans for Germany in the Moscow talks.)

Tonight's conference was the sixth with Molotov.

The three western diplomats met among themselves at the British embassy before they left for the Kremlin at 5:45 p. m., Moscow time (8:45 a. m., CST.) They re-

Five Killed In Reno Explosion

RENO, Aug. 16 (INS)—A second major explosion rocked Reno today within 24 hours after a $100,000 fire and blast took five lives yesterday.

Today's explosion which was followed by a fire occurred when about one hundred 50-gallon tanks of butane gas blew up at a plant just over the western city limits.

Several persons were injured but their names were not immediately available.

Investigation Launched

Firemen stopped the blaze about twenty feet from several large tanks holding thousands of gallons of butane.

Yesterday's fire and explosion caused injuries to more than 150 firemen and spectators and an investigation was launched this morning. District Attorney Harold Taber took charge of the probe.

Both he and Fire Chief Karl Evans discounted the possibility that the explosion was the result of dynamite.

Yesterday's sudden blast wrecked one of several buildings on Reno's Lake St. one block south of the Southern Pacific tracks.

It blew the front of the structure into a crowd of onlookers

Fires Spreading In Texas Woods

CONROE, Aug. 16 (AP)—District forest service officials sent an emergency call late today to state headquarters at Lufkin for additional personnel to fight 20 fires now raging in the Conroe area.

Searcy People, resident forester here, said his force is badly handicapped by a shortage of fire fighters.

"We have 30 fighters now and we need 300," People said.

"We need more volunteers," he said. "We must have them if we ever hope to bring the fires under control."

Earlier in the day People said 17 fires were burning in Montgomery, Liberty, Harris, San Jacinto and Walker counties.

Tonight he said the situation "is growing more desperate" as the fires race through dry underbrush.

He added that fire fighters have been unavailable to send to the Cleveland area where a big blaze straddles U. S. Highway 59. A forest service plane watched the fire all day and kept People's office advised as to its course and progress.

People left here tonight for Willis where a raging fire has run unchecked for two days.

Four fires were reported in north Harris county, one straddling the San Jacinto river and moving into southeast Montgomery county.

People estimated that over 10,000 acres of timber have been destroyed by the fires within two

'Tokyo Rose' Ordered Returned To U. S. To Face Treason Charge

By JACK ADAMS
Associated Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, Aug. 16 — The Justice department today decided to go to bat with a treason prosecution in the so-called "Tokyo Rose" broadcasts of World War II.

Attorney General Tom Clark asked U. S. Army authorities in Tokyo to arrest 32-year-old Iva Toguri D'Aquino and send her to San Francisco to face a federal grand jury there "at as early a date as possible."

The action climaxes more than three years of investigation. The inquiry, Clark said, indicated that Mrs. D'Aquino, born in Los Angeles July 4, 1916, was one of six English-speaking Japanese women who broadcast over Radio Tokyo between 1943 and 1945.

Beamed to Pacific

The attorney general said she was the only American-born woman in the group to which the American armed forces in the Far East applied their collective nickname "Tokyo Rose."

The feminine broadcasts over Tokyo's powerful radio station became a legend among U. S. fighting men in the desolate places of the Pacific, to which they were

Reds Carrying Out Philosophy Of Force In Recent Actions

By J. M. ROBERTS, JR.
Associated Press Staff Writer

"Leninism is permanently combative."

Those are the words of Joseph Stalin, first prophet of the religion of Leninism. Coupled with the fanatical fear of the Communists that breaches in party discipline will threaten its entire structure and therefore must be dealt with implacably, they probably account for the great stir being created over the dissident Russian school teachers in New York.

To one remembering Hitler's frenzy over the supposed mistreatment of Sudetens in Czechoslovakia, and his wholesale invention of excuses for marching against his neighbors, this could be an extremely nervous time. It would be especially if the United States were a small nation. As it is, the row is more like the yapping of an irritable neighbor than a cause for real alarm. And Russia's hysteria is probably more seeming than real, a part of a general campaign of pin-pricking over every issue. It may be also the result of reports by Consul General Lomakin, who, looking back at previous cases of communist agents who have failed on assignments large and small, must be worried about his job, his career, and perhaps a lot more.

A dictator dares not let his subjects get the idea that they can escape and fight back. Stalin is fond of quoting Lenin.

Set for Showdown

Almost everyone knows . . . that the Bolsheviks would not have been able to hold power (in Russia) had there not been the strictest possible discipline."

Now that discipline is considered doubly essential as Stalin organizes for his showdown with the rest of the world. As far back as 1927 Stalin envisioned a world with two centers—Russia for the Communists and America for the capitalists—and predicted a fight between them which would "decide the fate of capitalism and Communism for the entire world."

"To that end," he added several years later, "we must work in order to form real revolutionary cadres and a real revolutionary leadership of the proletariat, capable of leading the many millions of the American working class toward the revolutionary class struggles. For that end, all personal factors and factional considerations must be laid aside and the revolutionary education of the working class of America must be placed above all."

Well, he did pretty well for a while in some American labor unions, always his first objective everywhere, until they learned more about Leninism and what it had done to unions in Russia. The reaction has been terrific, if not complete. The Communists who hoped to lead many unions have been driven underground, if not completely out.

In America, people constantly move back and forth, and there is no true defining line between the classes. People aren't much interested in Stalin's dictatorship of the proletariat, which he says "is the rule of the proletariat over the bourgeoisie, a rule unrestricted by law, based upon force."

Such interest as does exist is not enhanced by the display right here in our own country of Russia's attitude toward both physical and intellectual freedom.

Purchase Of Pasadena Times By New Combine Is Announced

HOUSTON, Aug. 16 (AP)—Sale of the Pasadena Times to Louis Newman, Paris, Tenn., publisher, and two Houston residents, was announced today.

Newman and his associates, Roy L. Swift and Fred C. Rogers, purchased the newspaper from R. E. Smith, Houston oilman, for a reported consideration of $30,000.

Smith, owner of the paper about a year, announced two weeks ago that it had ceased publication.

Newman, a graduate of the department of journalism at Baylor university, Waco, worked on newspapers in Waco and in Arkansas before becoming editor and publisher of the Parisian at Paris.

Rogers and Swift are with the Houston office of the social security board.

Swift was an editor and manager of the Robstown Record at Robstown for four years prior to entering the military service.

Warning Is Sounded On Low Flying Planes

Youthful pilots in light planes seem to be having fun buzzing cattle and a few head of buffalo on the W. W. Brunson ranch in Blanco canyon near Crosbyton, but the rancher warned the young air enthusiasts yesterday that not only is the practice proving costly to him but is highly dangerous to those in the planes.

Brunson runs cattle on 100 sections, part of it in Blanco canyon a short distance from Crosbyton, and among his cattle are a few buffalo he keeps as a hobby.

The funsters take delight in buzzing the stock, especially the buffalo, he said, either zooming suddenly from the rim of the canyon toward the stock, or diving over them in the valley then nosing the planes suddenly upward "to see how near they can come to the canyon rim without touching it."

He fears that one trip too many will be made, that the light plane with small motor will not clear the rim "and the undertaker will take over."

Besides, the practice is costing him real money, Brunson said. Cattle in that section of the ranch are contracted for fall delivery at 27 cents a pound, which is approximately $200 a head. The cattle run off much weight from fright as the planes dash over them, amounting to considerable money.

Brunson is cognizant of the fact that he could stop the practice by having the teen-age funsters grounded legally, but, trying to be an agreeable neighbor, does not wish to i novektta wish to invoke that means unless necessary.

He hopes the youths will heed the warning and cease the practice.

More Food Seen For Europeans

WASHINGTON, Aug. 16 (U.P.)—Communism is going to have a tougher time in Western Europe this fall, American officials believe.

The reason is economic. The officials think that increased food supplies will "ease" the political and economic strain on Western European governments.

The French government led the way last week by announcing a 20 per cent increase in bread rations, effective Sept. 1. Italy has not boosted rations, but is moving more grain through the free market.

Europe's grain production increased this year, but the harvest is moving slowly. The full effect has not been felt, yet.

Meanwhile, Western Europe is assured that heavy grain shipments will continue to flow from the United States, where stocks are at a near-record. Government food experts believe that we will have enough grain this year to ship all Europe needs, have enough for ourselves and still have some left over.

This means that while Europeans may not eat as well as before the war, they are sure to get a big increase in bread rations, officials said.

They said this would have a two-fold effect:

Political—There won't be as much political unrest. Europeans will have fewer complaints against their governments. The Communists capitalize on hunger to push their aims.

Economic—With supplies increasing, European food prices probably won't go any higher and may in some cases be reduced. That would help halt the wage-price spiral that has produced labor trouble for European governments and put an inflationary strain on their economies.

Increased food supplies, for instance, would help Britain to curtail costly measures used to keep retail food prices within the consumers' reach. These "price control" measures require heavy government expenditures which add to the strain on Britain's finances.

91-Year-Old Kansan Leading Fight To Keep State Dry

DODGE CITY, Kan., Aug. 16 (U.P.) — A 91-year-old Kansan who helped write his state's prohibition law in 1880 led a "temperance tornado" today in a drive to keep Kansas from going wet in the November election.

Bone dry Willard Mayberry of Elkhart, Kan., took charge as general chairman of the "tornado" today in its kick off here for a statewide tour.

It was Mayberry who worked with the 1879 state legislature when the lawmakers voted to submit a prohibition amendment to the voters. The people adopted the measure in November of the following year.

One of Kansas' all-time great athletes, Glenn Cunningham, also of Elkhart, joined Mayberry's anti-liquor troupe. So did John Yust, retired Reno county farmer, who voted for the prohibition amendment in 1880.

The Kansas legislature in 1947 voted to place the red-hot issue on the November, 1948, ballot. A majority vote will decide whether or not the constitution is to be amended.

It was in Kansas at the turn of the century that Carry Nation, one-woman saloon buster, terrorized liquor merchants with her hatchet.

The "tornado" however, does not include hatchets in its plan, Mayberry said.

Scientists Experimenting With Process To Solidify Gasoline

By WILLIAM F. McMENAMIN
United Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, Aug. 16—Ever think of some day driving to the neighborhood filling station and buying a bagful of gasoline lumps for the car?

It's not as fantastic as it sounds. Military scientists now are attempting to perfect a process for the manufacture of solidified gasoline.

It can be handled and shoveled like coal. Or it can be made up in big blocks or tiny pellets, strips, ribbons or lumps the size of hens eggs.

Furthermore, this congealed gasoline won't explode. It won't burn any faster than a lump of coal. It can be stored in open bins and shipped in ordinary freight cars like coal. It is light brown, porous, and jelly-like.

The scientists say it is possible to convert any grade of gasoline, kerosene, fuel oil or any other petroleum product into a semi-solid or even solid state. All this can be done without changing the characteristic of the original fluid.

The blocks or chunks then can be converted back into the fluid state under compression.

This method, of course, has great military value. An airplane carrying solid fuel that would not burn rapidly or explode if hit by incendiary bullets would be of tremendous value.

Commercial planes carrying it would be able to eliminate the deadly "crash and burn" characteristics of present aircraft.

Navy ships, trucks and tanks also would be far more able to resist enemy gunfire.

Tests show that congealed gasoline may be stored for extended periods without loss of more than one per cent by evaporation.

Large petroleum stocks could be transported and stored anywhere. It would reduce the need for pipelines.

But there are bugs. The navy experimented for some time and found it "feasible but expensive." The Air Force said its experiments are continuing. But the product is still not in general use.

The army said the big difficulty is finding a method of making the product that is not too expensive. It is not now carrying on experiments.

One of the biggest problems is devising a means of converting it from solid to liquid just before injecting it into a engine's combustion chamber.

BORDERLINE ANEMIA*

CAN ADD YEARS TO YOUR LOOKS!

Is your face too pale and worn-looking? Are you losing the sparkle and ambition of youth? Often such signs are caused not by age, but by faded, weak red blood cells. You may have a Borderline Anemia, due to a ferro-nutritional blood deficiency.

Medical studies show that up to 68% of women—many men and children—have this Borderline Anemia.

If you are a victim of this Borderline Anemia, you need Ironized Yeast Tablets! They are specially formulated to help build up faded, puny red blood cells to healthy redness and size, and thus permit your color and energy to come surging back. Of course, continuing tiredness and pallor may come from other causes—see your doctor regularly. But in this Borderline Anemia, take Ironized Yeast Tablets. Take them to reclaim your vitality, your healthy color, your enjoyment of life!

Yellow-Pink Worms Attacking Cotton Crops In El Paso Area

EL PASO, Aug. 16. (AP)—Millions of pinkish yellow worms are descending upon valley cotton fields seven miles east of here.

Jim O'Neal, entomologist for the New Mexico Extension service, identified the worms as larvae of white line sphinx moths.

County agent W. S. Foster advised farmers to be on the alert. He said the pests usually feed on native vegetation, but will attack cotton and alfalfa.

The worms, about three inches in length, hit a 100-acre cotton farm of Bill Means and ate one-third of the way into his field within an hour.

Actress Sets Goal For Film Stardom

By BOB THOMAS
Associated Press Staff Writer

HOLLYWOOD, Aug. 16. (AP)—After all these years, Claire Trevor has decided she wants to be a star.

Claire has specialized in first-class supporting parts, such as those in "Stagecoach," "Dead End" and "Murder, My Sweet," while taking an occasional flier at leading roles. This has been going on for 15 years and she now says she's aiming at the top bracket.

"Until now I always thought of the movies as a temporary arrangement," she explained on the "Lucky Stiff" set. "I had always thought of myself as a stage actress. But I had a few flings at the stage and I decided I like pictures better.

No Longer Feels Temporary

"Now that I no longer feel temporary in the movies, I want stardom. Heretofore I never felt the demands were worth the advantage. But I realize that's the only way I can get top roles, top directors and top cameramen."

Mack Sennett will be honored with a dinner at the Masquers club this week. Frank Capra, Leo McCarey, Harold Lloyd, Buster Keaton and Frank Fay will be among the speakers. Hollywood's conscience has been hurting since D. W. Griffith died in obscurity.

Cecil B. DeMille has figured out how to break down the columns. I don't mean such as this one. The producer-director has figured out a scientific explanation of how Samson (Vic Mature) will topple the temple columns at the climax of "Samson and Delilah." Faulty architecture will cause the walls to come tumbling down.

Three Trainmen Are Injured In Collision Of Locomotives

CRAWFORDSVILLE, Ind. Aug. 16 (AP) — Two locomotives of a doubleheader freight train collided yesterday, derailing themselves and 20 freight cars. Three trainmen were injured, one seriously.

The accident occurred as the leading locomotive, which had proceeded ahead to get a repair part for the other locomotive, was backing up to return to the train.

Sheriff Roy Hardaker said the temporary repairs were made on the second locomotive after the other had gone on from Crawfordsville to Garfield, 2½ miles northeast. The train then started out to meet the first locomotive and the collision occurred at a curve.

The injured trainmen, all Terre Haute residents, were brought to Culver hospital here. They are Thomas Harris, fireman on the second engine, a broken arm, severe cuts and possible skull fracture; La Vern Stepp, fireman of the leading locomotive, and E. J. Giffel, brakeman. Neither of the latter was hurt seriously.

Sub-Regional NLRB Office To Be Opened At Houston

FORT WORTH, Aug. 16 (AP)—A sub-regional office of the National Labor Relations board will be opened in Houston about Sept. 1, it was announced today by Dr. Edwin A. Elliott, of Fort Worth, director of the NLRB's 16th region.

The office, second of its kind to be opened by the Fort Worth NLRB, will serve Houston, Galveston, Austin, San Antonio, Corpus Christi, Laredo and the Rio Grande valley.

The other sub-office is in El Paso. The Fort Worth office serves Texas, Oklahoma and New Mexico.

Dr. Elliott said about 20 percent of the NLRB's cases come from the area in which the new sub-regional office will be established.

Name of the officer in charge will be announced later.

WIDOWS' CLUB

NOTING in our files, women in Lubbock like to join clubs, we have been expecting to receive news of the organization of a club that has been widespread down state. It is the Widows' club and the only requirements for membership are: 1.—You must be a widow (grass or sod, it doesn't matter); 2.—You must be invited.

A group of Dallas women, bored with what they call "routine fifth wheeling," joined the organization which was founded in Ennis but has spread to many Texas cities.

The official insignia is a battle ax, rampant on a field of black widow spiders.

The aim of the club, as explained by a member, "Instead of playing poker like the men do, we sew and talk; we get together to keep from being lonely."

ON LIVING ALONE—At a recent party given for on of Lubbock's loveliest young brides-to-be, young matrons were called on to describe the joys of matrimony. This they did; telling how much it means to be the one who has someone to come home to; give hints on how to run a home successfully, etc. etc.

Unknown to the guests, the hostess had framed up with one of the unmarried guests to be the last speaker. When the young women had finished their glowing reports, the older woman arose and gave a few ideas on how nice it is to live alone.

"Live alone and like it is my motto, she said. And I like it, I don't owe anybody anything. When I don't want to get up and get breakfast, I stay in bed. I roll up my hair and put cold cream on my face when I please and I wear what I want to and there is nobody there to criticize me. There are no arguments, no meal planning and daily preparation "musts."

And with a twinkle in her eyes she turned to the honoree and said, "It's not too late for you to back out, if you want to. It sure is fun to live alone because you can do as you please."

Of course it was all in fun, but as one of those "live-aloners" who thinks there must be more miserable existences, we are glad she stood up for the single gals.

IRRITATING HABIT

WHETHER we can lay the blame on the time of the year or the time of our years, we find we have developed a habit that has always seemed inexcusable to us in others. We refer to forgetfulness. We manage to hang on to our pocketbook and so far we remember names and faces but we forget packages and our glasses, and things we had meant to buy and appointments, unless we put them down in underlined black and white.

We suppose we should make it a habit to take a "look back" before we leave a place. Hostesses certainly must be irked by guests who put them through the routine of a household search after a visit for missing possessions.

That "back look" might be good after you have been to a picture show or a restaurant. You stand a much better chance of reclaiming your possessions if you look around for them before you leave than you do if you send a retriever back later to grope under tables, around chair seats or in the aisles.

Dorothy Woodruff, Mr. Dailey Are Wed In Matador Service

MATADOR, August 16, (Special) — In a lawn ceremony and a setting of garden flowers and greenery, Miss Dorothy Woodruff, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Woodruff, became the bride of Robert Milton Dailey, son of Mr. and Mrs. R. S. Dailey of Crockett, at the home of the bride's parents Sunday, August 8, at 6:30 p.m.

Rev. A. S. Lee, pastor of the Crockett First Baptist church read a double ring service before a white arch at the end of a bridal aisle roped with white satin streamers and white asters. Rev. Clifford Potts, pastor of the Matador Baptist church, pronounced the benediction.

A musical prelude played by Mrs. Vernon Higginbotham, pianist, was followed by "Leibestraum" on the family organ played by Miss Amy Glenn, aunt of the bride, who also played the "Bridal Chorus" from Wagner's "Lohengrin" for the processional.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a gown of white organdy fashioned with an embroidered yoke, fitted bodice, full gathered skirt and bracelet-length sleeves. White lace mitts were worn and she carried a white Bible topped with a bouquet of gardenias showered with stephanotis and satin loops. Her shoulder-length veil was attached to a wreath of lilies of the valley. Maid of honor, Miss Geraldine Dailey of Crockett, sister of the bridegroom, wore a gown of blue organdy with matching hat and mitts and carried a colonial bouquet of pink rosebuds.

Glenn Woodruff, brother of the bride, served as best man. Ushers were Don Keith, Donald Reeves, George Doss, Gordon Russell, John Fish and Pryse Metcalfe of Franklin.

After a reception held following the ceremony, the couple left for a wedding trip to points in Colorado. For traveling the bride wore a tie silk print dress with matching jacket and brown accessories. Her corsage was of gardenias.

On their return the couple will be at home in Crockett until Fall, when they will resume their studies at Baylor university, Waco, where Mr. Dailey is a senior business psychology major, and Mrs. Dailey is a junior primary education major.

The bride is a graduate of Matador High school. The bridegroom graduated from Crockett High school and attended A&M college before his entrance into the armed forces where he served three years.

LION WANTS ITS MILK

MOSCOW, (AP)—There's a lion cub at the Moscow zoo who prefers milk to raw meat. The sickly cub was taken home by the manager of the "Beasts of Prey" section. It has now regained its health. At first, it was fed from a baby's bottle. Then it was given meat. It still prefers milk to meat. "If one takes his meat away he does not appear to mind, but if you remove his bottle and nipple he gets angry," the manager says.

REDS EXPECTED TO TRY TO GET RID OF TITO

Western Diplomats Believe Rumored Soviet Troop Movements In Romania Are Aimed At Yugoslavia

By KINGSBURY SMITH
European General Manager, INS

ROME, Aug. 16.—Rumors of large-scale Soviet troop movements in Romania are being weighed in western diplomatic circles today for a possible clue to Russia's next move in the fight with Marshal Tito.

There was no confirmation of the rumors which circulated in western circles in Belgrade over the week-end.

Situation Being Watched

Although western diplomats treated them with reserve, the situation nevertheless is being watched closely.

(In Vienna, the British-licensed newspaper Welt Press reported that 15 fully-equipped Soviet battle divisions are involved in "massive troop movements" in Hungary and Romania.

(The reports, originating in Hungary, said the Russian troops arrived last week.

(Welt Press added a squadron of late-model Russian fighter planes has been stationed at an airfield opposite the Yugoslav border.)

Western observers in Belgrade are convinced that any Russian military action against the Yugoslav premier, who has been accused of pursuing "hateful" policies toward Russia, will come through Romania.

Romanian Official Leaves

Last week, just about the time the first rumors of the Soviet troop movements were received, Foreign Minister Ana Pauker of Romania left the Danube conference in Belgrade for a quick air trip back to Bucharest.

She spent 24 hours in the Romanian capital before returning for the conclusion of the Danube parley.

Some western diplomats in Belgrade foresee the possibility that Romania may be incorporated into the Soviet Union to establish a common frontier with Yugoslavia.

There is growing concern in Yugoslav government circles over what Russia intends to do to settle accounts with Tito.

Tito Would Fight

It can be revealed on reliable authority that Ales Bebler, the Yugoslav delegate to the Danube conference, went so far as to ask Sir Charles Peake, the British ambassador-delegate, what the latter thought would be Russia's next move.

The view generally prevails in western diplomatic quarters that Moscow will definitely try to get rid of Tito.

But just how is the big question.

The belief is widespread that Tito would fight against either internal or external attempts to overthrow him.

Yugoslavia is estimated to have a regular army of 300,000 men, comprising 38 divisions, and 70,000 shock troops formed into special political divisions.

In addition there is a militia of 30,000 men, and a secret police force of 12,000.

The regular army and shock troops are consdered fairly well-armed for defensive ground operations.

However, Tito's small air force is no match against the Soviet air force.

FPC Refuses To Postpone Rate Hearing Asked By Texas Firm

WASHINGTON, Aug. 16. (AP)—Attorneys for the Brazos (Texas) River Conservation and Reclamation district sought unsuccessfully today to postpone a hearing on its proposal to increase charges for power from Morris Sheppard dam near Mineral Wells.

Examiner Marvin Farrington of the Federal Power commission turned down the attorneys' plea that the hearing be postponed pending a decision in a suit in the Texas district court at Waco.

The Brazos River Transmission Electric cooperative, which has been taking the dam's entire power output under a five-year contract, opposes district plans for renewing the contract at $275,000 instead of the $203,000 figure in effect now.

Last July the district declined an FPC proposal that the rate be changed to $240,000 for the next five years. The district said such an amount would not be enough to meet current operating expenses.

CHANGES MIND ABOUT OPPOSING SURGERY—Mrs. Irene Lamphere, right, who opposed corrective surgery for her daughter, Pamela, seated on floor, has changed her mind following a weekend visit from Mrs. Helen Ulrich, left, and her daughter, Christine. Mother Who Opposed Surgery To Save Child Changes Mind After Heartening Messages

CHICAGO, Aug. 16 (AP) — A young mother who had held out against a long-shot gamble in corrective surgery to save the life of her child has changed her mind.

Mrs. Irene Lamphere, 21, said yesterday that since learning the prescribed delicate operation has been successful in several other cases "I see no use of holding back. I'm going to leave it to the doctors as to when the operation should be performed."

Her 21-months-old daughter, Pamela, was born with the bladder outside her body and physicians had said the child could not live longer than two years more unless the condition is corrected.

Husband Went To Court

At the same time, Mrs. Lamphere said the doctors had given the child only one chance in 100 to survive the operation. The mother had chosen that two years of Pamela's life over the risk of earlier death in surgery.

She clung to the decision with such determination that she and her husband, Fred, 23, had become estranged over it. He finally asked a court to order the operation over her protests.

At the court hearing, Judge Walter R. O'Malley decided to have deans of four Chicago medical schools make recommendations in the case. He said he would be guided in his judgment by their findings.

Actual Case Seen

Newspaper accounts of the case attracted the attention of several other mothers whose children have recovered from similar operations. Some of them telephoned Mrs. Lamphere. One of them, Mrs. Helen Ulrich, took her 19-months-old daughter, Christine, for a visit in the Lamphere home. Christine's operation, Mrs. Ulrich said, was similar to the one prescribed for Pamela.

"Now I know of a lot of babies who had the operation and are perfectly all right," Mrs. Lamphere said in announcing the reversal of her recision.

Coffee Is America's Favorite Beverage; Beer Ranks Third

MINNEAPOLIS, Aug. 16 (U.P.)—Americans drink more coffee than any other beverage and enough to keep Niagara Falls going for 67 minutes some insurance factfinders said today.

They will down an estimated 3,000,000,000 gallons of coffee this year and 7,000,000,000 gallons of milk, the No. 2 favorite.

Beer ranks as a poor third, soft drings fourth and "hard liquor" a sorry fifth.

Statisticians of the Northwestern National Life Insurance company estimated that 80 percent of the coffee is brewed and drunk at home. That adds up to about 55 gallons a person.

Beer drinkers will put away 2,700,000,000 gallons and get plenty of hangovers. Hard liquor consumption will amount to about five quarts per capita.

Violence Feared In South Korea

By FRANK EMERY
INS Staff Correspondent

SEOUL, Aug. 16—The South Korean police director said today that he is expecting Communist instigated violence in the American zone after Aug. 25.

That is the day elections will be held in Soviet - occupied North Korea. The elections will setup a Russian - sponsored regime rivaling the newly formed republic in the southern half of the country which has been occupied by American forces.

Dr. P. O. Chough, the national police director of the South Korean republic said today that the Communists had postponed a campaign of terror expected to begin yesterday at the inauguration of the new republic.

He explained that he believed the Communist had held back because of Gen Douglas MacArthur's presence at the ceremonies.

Dr. Chough said the Communists realize that the Koreans have the "deepest respect for Gen. MacArthur" and that he has become the "Julius Caesar of the Orient in Korean eyes."

Forty thousand national police and constabulary had been mobilized against the expected Communist-led disorders which did not materialize.

Hand - picked, special guards were posted during the inauguration ceremonies at which Gen. MacArthur was the main speaker. Other guards were stationed at 50 foot intervals along the road MacArthur traveled from the airport to the scene of the inaugural rites.

Dr. Chough said that more than 1,600 "leftist agitators" in five cities had been jailed during the week before the inauguration.

Only 150 were arrested in Seoul.

Dr. Chough said that not one arrest was necessary Sunday.

Funeral services were tentatively set for Thursday.

FELT SO WEAKENED HE COULD HARDLY STAY ON THE JOB
Retonga Gets Credit from Mechanic Who Suffered Distress from Nervous Indigestion, Constipation, and Loss of Sleep. He Now Feels Fine.
"My job is hard work and takes plenty of strength and energy, so you can see how thankful I am for the relief Retonga brought me from the miserable way I felt," declares Mr. Perry A. Hyche, automobile mechanic and respected resident of 624 18th St., Bessemer, Ala. He gratefully continues.
"I suffered such distress from nervous indigestion and excess gas on my stomach, that I had to rely on soft foods and liquids most of the time and eat only what caused me the least discomfort. I felt jumpy and restless and seldom slept over a few hours a night. My bowels were so sluggish I had to take strong laxatives. Having to eat as I did, I felt weakened and draggy most of the time.
"The relief Retonga brought me was one of the most wonderful experiences I ever had. Right from the start I began to feel better, and get back some of my lost strength and energy. I now eat anything I want without a worry, sleep better and get up ready for a good, hard day's work. My constipation has been relieved and I no longer rely on strong laxatives. I am glad to recommend Retonga to others suffering as I did because I think it's a truly fine medicine."
Retonga is intended to relieve distress due to insufficient flow of digestive juices in the stomach, loss of appetite, borderline Vitamin B-1 deficiency, and constipation. If the first bottle fails to give you gratifying relief, your money will be refunded. You can get Retonga at all good drug stores, including Walgreen Drug Store.—Adv.

Man Injured In Truck Mishap

LAMESA, August 16 (Special)—Severe burns were suffered by one man and an estimated $15,000 in damages was done to vehicles as a result of two accidents involving three large trailer trucks on U. S. Highway 87 about 12 miles north of the city early Sunday.

John Pope Taylor, about 55, of Childress, was admitted to Lamesa General hospital with severe burns, but an attending physician said late today that his condition was "satisfactory."

Others In Wreck

Involved in the wreck, but unhurt were Jim Bob Jordan, about 28, and Victor G. Hernandez, about 35, drivers of the other two trucks, and Homer Dugan Cawthon of Childress, who was riding with Taylor in an oil transport. Jordan lives in Poteet, and Hernandez is from San Antonio.

Highway Patrolmen J. C. Welch and E. B. McKnight, who investigated the accident and remained at the scene for several hours to warn motorists, gave this account of the smashups:

Jordan, driving a truck loaded with vegetables, attempted to pass Taylor's loaded gasoline transport as both were moving north about 1 a. m.

The trucks sideswiped, Taylor lost control of his machine, which turned over, blocking the highway and catching fire. Cawthon, who was riding with Taylor, extricated him from the cab, rolling him in sand to extinguish flames which enveloped his body.

Taylor's truck and trailer were demolished and the wreckage burned for several hours with loss estimated by Cawthon at more than $10,000. Jordan's truck and his load of vegetables were only slightly damaged.

The patrolmen said the second collision occurred about 4 a. m. when Hernandez, headed south with a load of potatoes, failed to heed the warning lights and shouts of patrolmen, veered his truck too sharply around the wrecked transport, and it turned over.

The impact caused explosion of the gasoline tank on the truck, setting fire to the overturned vehicle, which was a total loss estimated at $5,000. The potatoes, some of which may be salvaged, were scattered along a barrow ditch.

It was not learned whether the losses were insured. Patrolmen Welch said Mrs. Taylor is at the bedside of her husband here.

Estimates of the time it will take to restore war wrecked Berlin range up to 50 years.

ACROSS RIVER

Angry Miss Walks Home--Hard Way

AUSTIN, Aug. 16 (AP)—Deputy sheriffs had to go to the aid of an angry miss who decided to get out and walk home from her date last weekend.

At the time of her decision, the miss was in a boat in the middle of the Colorado river.

Clothes and all, she plunged in and swam to shore. But she swam in the wrong direction and ended up on the off-the-beaten-path side of the river.

She telephoned the sheriff's office to get her back to town. She said she was too tired to swim and certainly wasn't going to get back in the boat with her "friends."

Demo Leader Of Webb Succumbs

LAREDO, Aug. 16 (AP)—Peter Paul Leyendecker, 81, Webb county Democratic leader who was one of several defendants named in an unsuccessful election suit filed at Austin today, died in Mercy hospital at noon today.

Leyendecker was president of the City Lumber company and chairman of the Webb county Democratic executive committee many years.

The state supreme court at Austin today refused to entertain a suit seeking removal of 29 Webb county election officials appointed by Leyendecker. The suit charged Leyendecker named election officials who either were not qualified voters in the precincts for which they were named or who were city or state officeholders or employes.

Father Was Postmaster

Leyendecker was the son of Mr. and Mrs. John Z. Leyendecker, pioneer residents of Laredo. His father was one of Laredo's first postmasters.

Following his education here Leyendecker was employed by the Milmo National bank, the Texas-Mexican and R. G. and E. P. Railway companies. He then entered the employ of M. T. Jones Lumber company an for a time traveled through Mexico as a lumber salesman.

In August, 1899, he established the City Lumber company here and had served as its president up to the time of his death.

Headed Demo Group

Known as a dyed-in-the-wool Democrat, he served as chairman of the county executive committee many year and was renominated in the July primary.

Survivors include his widow, the former Miss Frances Didieu, eight children, Mrs. E. F. Shaifer, Mrs. J. R. Davis, Mrs. A. J. Notzon, Mrs. Fred Winch, Alive Leyendecker, Peter P. Leyendecker, jr., Edward E. Leyendecker and Willis Leyendecker, and four brothers, B. J. (Bonnie) Leyendecker former county tax assessor and member of the Texas legislature M. M. Leyendecker, former general manager of the Texas-Mexican Railway company; J. P. Leyendecker, former train dispatcher for the Texas-Mexican railway and now member of the Webb county commissioners court.

Funeral services will be held tomorrow morning at 10 a. m., from his home to St. Peters Catholic church, with interment in Catholic cemetery here.

Stalin's Past Made Up Of Bitter Conflict

room served as a kitchen for his wife when she came home at night from her factory work.

There were some chickens, in the small yard, and probably a cow, too.

In that environment, the child learned something about minor peasant chores. But the whole atmosphere was entirely proletarian—and that, in those days, was tantamount to a life without any hope.

For in the province of Georgia, lying between the Caspian sea and the Black sea, only the sons of property owners who were in a position to pay for the schooling of their offspring could get anywhere in life.

Could Not Own Land

Only such persons could even hope, with some luck, to gain a certain amount of equality with the ruling class of the military-minded Georgian aristocracy which, in turn, was subservient to the Russian boyars (petty nobles) and grand-dukes.

There was no such thing as a peasant, let alone a cobbler, owning land himself. Stalin's father, born before 1862, had been a serf. And so he told his son.

When that youngster once visited Tiflis, the nearby capital of the province, he could watch the noblemen and their fur-wrapped ladies ride past him in their carriages drawn by three horses abreast.

He could watch the lackey sitting beside the coachman on the box in his gold-braided scarlet livery and keeping his arrogant eyes on the urchins, lest they annoy the horses.

The natural defiance the adolescent must have felt soon bred in him a deep grudge against the ruling class—and these sentiments could well have turned him into an ordinary criminal.

But the ardent wish of his mother gave another turn to his life.

A cousin of hers happened to know the principal of a religious seminary in Tiflis, and through that relative she beseeched the principal to take an interest in her boy. She succeeded.

Finally Entered Classes

Surely it was the most rewarding morning of her troubled life when she was allowed to cross the threshold of the seminary with her fourteen-year-old son, and hand him over to the Greek Orthodox priest in charge of it, her eyes filled with gratitude and pleading.

Now, that seminary was not exactly a monastic place offering idyllic peace. Actually, students' revolts had occurred time and again there. For about a hundred years a spirit of rebellion had been alive in the classes the students came from in that region.

With the young fellow who on that morning stepped over the threshold of the seminary that spirit was to assume the stature of a world-shaking movement.

Whenever I met a statesman who also was a revolutionary—whether it was Mussolini, the blacksmith's son, or Roosevelt, the scion of financiers—I would ask him what early experiences may have prompted him to break away from his own class.

Revolted Against Discipline

The late President Masaryk (founder of Czechoslovakia), who had been born the son of a coachman on a Hapsburg estate, told me that it was the high-handed manner in which the Bohemian aristocrats treated his father that first aroused his great resentment.

As I asked Stalin the same question, he made a startling answer.

"No," he said, "it was not the lowly station of my parents which made me a Socialist. I had no such feelings when I was six, or, for that matter, even when I reached the age of twelve.

"I became a socialist only when the discipline of the seminary aroused my indignation. That place teemed with spies, and there was no end to deceitful tricks.

"While we had our morning tea, the tutors would rummage about in our drawers and papers in the dormitories. And quite similarly they would, in their never-ending suspicions, rummage about in our souls.

"That was the thing I couldn't stand. It turned me into a rebel.

"When the first illegal Socialist agents came to the Caucasus, and I happened to get hold of one of their leaflets, I said to myself, 'I want to know the man who has written this stuff.'

"One of the students managed to get a copy of Karl Marx's 'Capital,' and secretly we all read it."

Left School As Rebel

No wonder that Stalin was expelled from the seminary when he was eighteen years old.

Later, the whole of Soviet Russia was to celebrate Stalin's expulsion from the seminary as a day of national rejoicing.

Only one person has always denied that there was any truth in the story.

When it once was read to her long after her boy had become the country's dictator, the octogenarian mother of Stalin violently challenged that account. She declared that her son never was expelled, and that she had taken him home from school only because all that studying had undermined his health.

"He was a good boy, and surely they never expelled him!" she said.

After having left the seminary Stalin then left his parents' house and the province. He started on his conspirator's life.

That part of his career is more somber than anything in the early experiences of other contemporary dictators.

No revolutionary party existed in the Russia of 1900. There only existed, in every stratum of society, young people who vented their dissatisfaction in secret discussions, diminutive handbills or underground meetings, and from time to time assassinated one of the Czar's cabinet ministers.

Had To Escape Police

While everywhere else in Europe Socialist parties came into being—parties which could send their elected representatives to the various parliaments to be accepted and listened to there—the life of a Russian Socialist was still that of a criminal.

He had to elude the police, again and again change his name, his domicile and the town he lived in.

There exist police photos of Stalin with a full black beard, and others with a clean-shaven face.

For more than fifteen years Stalin led that kind of life, interrupted only by exile in Siberia.

He seems to have served six different stretches in Siberia, every time managing, as incidentally did all his comrades, to escape. He also came to know well over a dozen regular Russian prisons. Thus he spent his youth and early manhood—from his eighteenth to his thirty-eighth year.

There is one trait that emerged in Stalin very early to hold its sway over him for the rest of his life, and which had no counterpart in the character patterns of other autocrats. Perhaps that trait might be called Asiatic.

The utterances of other dictators as well as such Democratic statesmen as Roosevelt reveal, as one of the foremost motives of their developing greatness, a definite longing for glory.

Nothing of this can be found in what Stalin said and did. A taste for political intrigue was much greater in him than his wish to make history, or even his desire to overthrow the Czar.

Looked To Rest Of World

That was the driving force in Stalin. For, unlike all other contemporary autocrats, he did not make his own revolution, but inherited it.

Lenin, too, was near his fifties when he came to power. But he had lived outside of Russia for fifteen years, and had come to know political freedom and western culture. Trotsky's experiences had been similar.

Stalin looked always with envy at the world beyond Russia's borders.

Throughout those fifteen years he always found himself detailed to shadowy duties in Russia's interior by Lenin who ruled the movement secretly from abroad.

Stalin was always condemned, as it were, to a mole's existence, while the others went on with their destructive work in the light and liberty of Paris, London, Vienna and New York.

It is only natural that a man who has to spend his best years in the routine work of a secret organization, whose name never appears under a manifesto and never becomes known to the world, and who more often than not has to use aliases such as "Sosso" or "Koba" instead of "Stalin"—it is only natural that such a man comes to bear a grudge toward his more fortunate comrades, and gets gloomier with every year that goes by without any change in his situation.

When, after the revolution of 1905, the various political factions came into being, Stalin was stationed chiefly for some years in the oil region of Baku. He was occupied with organizing Russian workers through lectures and the distribution of pamphlets. At the same time he was indoctrinating the peasants with the Marxism principles that they could liberate themselves only under the leadership of organized labor.

Did Considerable Reading

"The labor meetings, starting late, ended always at a very late hour," one of Stalin's companions of these days reminisces, "and then Stalin would go to one of the two taverns that kept open till 2 a. m. He would have some tea, and rove the streets to wait for the first regular tavern to open at 4 a. m.

"There he would have some tea again, take a nap on a wooden bench till about seven, and then rest at the place of some comrade."

He had done much reading in the long nights of his Siberian exile.

There is a story about Stalin reading Marx to one of his guards until the soldier fell asleep; then slipping out long enough to go fishing.

Siberian fishing and hunting have restored the shattered health of many a future Russian leader. That is true of Gorki, Trotsky, Kalinin and — later — some of the marshals. By sending his mortal enemies into exile, the Czar sent them also to a kind of sanitarium.

Stalin had already accumulated much knowledge and gone through many experiences when he first read some of Lenin's secretly published writings. He was greatly impressed by them.

When, as a man of twenty-five, he first met the thirty-five-year old Lenin in Finland, it was a great moment in Stalin's life.

"I am nothing but a disciple of Lenin, and don't want to be regarded as anything else," he said to me many years after Lenin's death. And contrary to his habit, he even repeated these words.

When I asked him whether life abroad did not estrange the original generation of revolutionary leaders from their native country, he heaped all his scorn upon those men who used to have a good time beyond the border, learning nothing.

Had Praise For Lenin

But he explicity excluded Lenin, and also proved his point: Stalin can prove everything, even the absurd.

Stalin always talks with much reverence about Lenin — though real enthusiasm is alien to his nature.

told me, "at Lenin's habit of joining meetings ahead of the rest of "I was greatly surprised," he the important people, and talking things over with the little delegates.

"Great men usually arrive late on such occasions to heighten the effect of their entry.

"Lenin's modesty and simple manners struck me from the very beginning.

"His obvious wish to remain inconspicuous and never to show his superiority was one of his greatest charms; it appealed to the simple nature of the masses who assumed their political role in those days."

But Stalin on his part also made a great impression on Lenin.

In an early letter to Gorki, Lenin calls Stalin "an extraordinary Georgian."

In the ensuing Soviet struggles he never parted company with him—and that is, as we know, the main reason why Stalin came into power and Trotsky met his death.

Again we realize the invalidity of the Marxist theory according to which economic conditions, and not men, make history.

For the past thirty years we have been watching with our own eyes history being made by men.

(Tomorrow: In the second chapter of this series Emil Ludwig tells of the struggle between Stalin and Trotsky and how they became bitter personal as well as political enemies.)

Spy Plot Suspect Is Quizzed By Probers

WASHINGTON, Aug. 16 (AP)—The House Un-American Activities committee investigaitng reports of Communist spies in the government quizzed Alger Hiss for three hours today and reported it still doesn't know whether he or his accuser is telling the truth.

Hiss, former State department official, has been accused by Whittaker Chambers, an admitted ex-Communist, of being a member of an "elite" Communist movement in Washington in the early 1930's.

Hiss has denied it and testified that he never knew Chambers.

The committee set August 25 for Hiss and Chambers to meet face to face with their contrary stories. Whether this session will be open to the public has not been decided, Chairman J. Parnell Thomas (R-NJ), told reporters.

UN Still Has No Police Force After Three Years Of Planning

WASHINGTON, Aug. 16. (AP)—After three years the only force the United Nations has been able to round up to stop a war has been the 49 civilian guards from the UN headquarters at Lake Success.

They were shipped to Palestine this summer to bolster the four-week truce.

The UN will have to face the fact of this weakness when the 1948 General Assembly session opens in Paris Sept. 21.

Big Powers Disagree

The weakness is not due to lack of good intentions. UN military experts have sweated over a program to give the UN some authority. It ran into Russian refusal to agree to what the others want. American experts now feel the Russians want to keep the UN weak.

The military staff committee (MSC) of the UN has tried to determine what kind of world police there should be and how much each nation should contribute. The UN charter set up the MSC and named the United States, Britain, France, China and Russia to sit on it.

The charter says part of the world force should be regular troops, navies and air forces. Part should be planes that can be moved quickly to a new war arena and part bases granted the world police by various nations.

Reds Have Veto

The MSC first met in February 1946. This August, two and a half years later, it reported it could reach no agreement. Since the MSC is an advisory body to the Security Council, the Council must now decide the issues between Russia and the rest. But there is little hope the Council can. Russia is a member and can cast a veto.

Here is the nub of this committee argument:

Russians insist the nations should make equal contributions to the UN forces. American experts point out that China has no navy and Russia precious little. China hasn't much of an air force. Will that limit contributions so that the UN forces will be small?

The U.S., Britain, France and China want the major powers to contribute what they are best able to give. They think contributions should be merely "comparable," not exactly alike.

A year ago the Security Council finally demanded that the MSC turn in at least an over-all estimate of what the world police should be. Russia delayed for three months. The other four nations turned their estimates in right away.

Estimates Given

The following estimates are for an over-all force, with no indication how much each nation should contribute to them. They include only the most important contingents listed by the big five:

	U.S.	France	China & Britain	USSR
Air Forces
Bombers	1,250	775	600	600
Fighters	2,250	300	400	300
Ground Forces
Divisions	20	16	8-12	12
Naval Forces
Battleships	3	3	2	0
Carriers	6	6	4	0
Cruisers	15	9	6	8-6
Destroyers	84	18-24	24	24

The figures tell their own story to military experts here. The United States wants a much stronger UN than Russia. And it wants the UN markedly stronger at sea than Russia. Russia wants no battleships or carriers at all.

Philippine Leaders Set To Renew Fight Against Rebel Groups

By WILLIAM AYERS
INS Staff Correspondent

MANILA, Aug. 16 — The Philippine constabulary was planning tonight to renew operations against rebels found illegally carrying firearms.

At the same time, President Elpidio Quirino's press secretary announced that the rebel Hukbalahaps and National Peasant Union members who had not registered for pardon under a presidential amnesty order would be branded as outlaws.

The 50 day amnesty expired at midnight Sunday.

During that time, Quirino had offered pardons to rebel Huk guerrillas and peasant union members who have clashed with government forces.

But only a handful availed themselves of the opportunity for pardon and in Manila there was talk of renewed civil war.

An official announcement showed that only 32 guerrillas had registered themselves and their firearms. Another 3,788 men, who brought no arms with them, also registered. They were mostly members of the peasant union, of which the Huks are the armed force.

Previous estimates had placed the number of armed Huks at 3,000 and the peasant union membership at 50,000.

In keeping themselves and their arms outside the authority of the government the hold-out Huks have tactily refused to follow the example and advice of their leader, Luis Taruc.

Taruc had sworn fealty to the government after leaving a central Luzon hideout and arranging the amnesty with Quirino.

While some officials in Manila hoped for a continuation of the armed truce, there were indications that if the Huks are able to show "justifiable" reasons for their failure to register, they may be permitted to sign up belatedly.

Commenting on the present situation, Taruc said he and Quirino had breached an understanding. He added:

"There will be peace. If the peace is broken, it will not be the Huks or the national peasant union who will break it."

Taruc insisted that he would do everything in his power to keep the peace.

The rebel leader was believed to have gone to central Luzon just before the expiration of the amnesty to appeal to his former field commanders to lead their men into government registration centers.

3,003 See Hubs Beat Dukes, 11-8 Behind Miller

By JOE KELLY
Avalanche Sports Editor

The Hubbers blasted an old nemesis, Don Cantrell, for 13 hits and 10 runs in a little over five innings last night to the delight of 3,003 persons, largest crowd of the year, as the local nine beat the league-leading Albuquerque Dukes, 11-8, to move into third place.

There wasn't too much question of the outcome after the first inning, when the Hubbers greeted the pesky Cantrell like a long lost brother. They took advantage of three walks, a wild pitch and three singles to score four runs and get the jump on the visitors.

Dukes Stage Rally

But as it turned out, they needed those runs and five more like them, as Albuquerque staged the same kind of last ditch rally pulled by the Hubbers Sunday. Five hits and four runs in the ninth threatened to pull the game out of the fire for the Dukes, but they had spotted the home club too big a lead.

Roland Miller, the most recent Hubber acquisition, won his third game of the year, even though he didn't have the visitors exactly eating out of his hand He fanned eight, failed to issue a walk and kept 17 safeties, including four doubles and two homers, pretty well scattered. Albuquerque got at least one hit in every inning, but the only time they could cluster their runs was in the fourth and ninth.

Moore Leads Hitters

Every Hubber except Miller joined in the fireworks, with Don Moore pacing the way on four hits in five trips, followed by Frank McAlexander with three for five. They were timely blows, too, and did as much damage as if they had been long blows.

Dick Dawson's three-run homer in the fourth cut the Hubber lead to 6-3, but they promptly built it up again, scoring one in the fifth and three in the sixth. Those three included doubles by Manager Jackie Sullivan, Floyd Walker and Moore, with a single by McAlexander to chase in the final run of the frame.

Pitcher Marvin Adams helped the Hubbers to another run in the seventh when, after Jackie Wilcox had led off with a single, he trapped the runner off base. But his wild throw to first let Wilcox go to third and Bill Chambers let a ball through his legs that allowed Wilcox to score the last Hubber run.

Harrell scheduled morning and afternoon workouts for the squad until further notice. He will be assisted by O. W. Fowlis and Joe Allbright.

The Tornadoes open their season Sept. 3 at Seminole with a clash with the Class A Indians.

Lehman Branch hurled Sanders Motors to a 12-3 victory over Panhandle Steel in an Industrial Softball league tilt Monday afternoon.

As early as 1737 the recognized flag of the New England colonies had a blue field with a white union quartered by a red cross. Such a flag, with a green pine tree added, was carried at the Battle of Bunker Hill.

LEST THEY FORGET—Babe Ruth will live in the hearts and mind of baseball fans forever, but they'll also have a chance to see some of his equipment at Baseball's Hall of Fame in Cooperstown, N. Y. Caretaker Ernest Lanigan carefully placed the Babe's old Yankee uniform in a showcase there recently, while a group of youngsters, to whom Ruth always was an idol, look on. Old No. 3 was retired by the New York club permanently and will remain for hundreds of the faithful to view in baseball's living museum.

Ruth's Records Still Standing

NEW YORK, Aug. 16. (U.P.)—Babe Ruth was the bad boy hero of a modern fairy tale.

There was a magic about everything he did that made him probably the greatest sports attraction in history. There was a quality of heart about him that endeared him to millions who never saw him.

The big guy could pack more drama into a strike-out—a louder chorus of "ooohs" from the stands every time he swung and missed—than other sluggers could into a home run.

His was a real rags-to-riches story. He rose from a hungry and homeless waterfront waif to become an international hero.

When the big guy had a stomach ache, it was a beauty. And the nation suffered with him.

Babe Ate 12 Hot Dogs

Once, the story goes, he felt like a snack when his training-swing train stopped at a southern town. He ate 12 frankfurters and drank eight bottles of pop. Shortly afterwards there was a great pain in his barrel-like middle.

He was taken from the train on a stretcher to a hospital. He nearly died. The American public followed his illness with an anxiety they have accorded few public figures.

Babe Ruth changed baseball. More than any other one figure he was responsible for changing the game from one of finesse, of playing the bunt and the stolen base into a one-run lead, to a wide-open, fence-busting, swing-from-the-heels affair.

That was what started packing people into the parks and what built the $2,000,000, 70,000-seat Yankee stadium.

Ruth usually was ranked along with, or above, Ty Cobb and Honus Wagner when baseball experts began arguing about the greatest player of all time. Certainly he was the biggest attraction.

Great Southpaw

He was one of the great left-handed pitchers of the game. When he switched to the outfield he developed one of the, best throwing arms. He could play a skillful game at first base, too. When he was pitching for the Boston Red Sox between 1915 and 1920, he would double as an outfielder on the days he wasn't on mound duty.

Ruth was said to have been prouder of a record he set as a pitcher than of any of the 76 all-time records he wrote into the books. He pitched the most consecutive world series innings without being scored on, 29, in the 1916 and 1918 series.

But the public loved him as a slugger. In 22 years in the major leagues, he hit 714 home runs. In the 1927 reason, he hit 60 home runs—a mark that looms bigger throughout the years as succeeding hitters try to better it.

Batted 2,209 Runs Across

The Babe batted 2,209 runs across the plate in his career, struck out 1,330 times, and walked 2,056 times. All three are major league career records.

He led the major leagues in homers for 12 years, and he made close to $1,000,000 in salary in his major league career. His drawings from advertising, endorsements, syndicated articles and other activities sent his lifetime income soaring far above that figure.

His $80,000-a-year salary, drawn in 1930 and 1931, was the highest ever paid to a baseball player. In those years Ruth was a great spender, a great kidder, and the despair of managers who tried to keep him in training.

He had been a poor kid in Baltimore, a tough kid and often a bitter one. He was neglected by his parents. He stole bananas from pushcarts to satisfy his hunger and ended up in an industrial home.

His prodigious appetite and hell-for-leather life after he became rich and famous probably were a reaction to his shabby boyhood. But whatever he did, the fans loved him.

He had a deep, rumbling voice, and he never learned to modify his coarse speech. The Babe seemed like a personal friend to thousands who visited the rightfield bleachers in Yankee stadium to cheer him and joke with him when he was afield.

He had many intimate friends but most of them and his teammates and his opponents usually found themselves referred to as "kid" when talking to Ruth. The Babe just couldn't remember names.

"Hi ya, kid," Ruth would shout to the younger fellows. If a man was more than 40 or balding, the Babe changed the greeting to, "Hi ya, doc."

The most storied incident in Ruth's career of anecdote and legend occurred when he was a part of the "murderer's row" of the Yankees, playing against the Chicago Cubs in the 1932 world series. That was when the big guy called his shot for his second home run of the day.

There had been a lot of bickering between the Cubs and the Yankees and much abuse hurled at Ruth. The Babe had called the Cubs "cheapskates" because they hadn't given his old teammate, Mark Koenig, a full world series share.

Cubs Incident

The score was tied at 4 to 4 going into the fifth inning, and when Ruth came to bat the entire Cub bench came to the dugout edge to shout at him. They rolled a lemon toward the plate.

"They were callin' me big-belly and balloon-head," Ruth said.

Ruth thumbed his nose at the Cubs.

Charley Root, Cub pitcher, threw. Ruth swung and missed. The Chicago stands roared delight, and the Cub bench stepped up its insults.

Ruth held up his finger.

"That's one," he said.

Root pitched again—another strike.

"That's two," said the Babe, holding up his fingers.

The next two pitches were balls, wide.

At that point Ruth waved toward the fence, indicating he would put the next ball out of the park. The crowd booed harder than ever.

Ruth sent the next pitch out of the park, and the mob howled.

"I just had to stop on third and laugh out loud," Ruth said.

Brother Matthias Helped

The man who had developed the courage and talent thus to make good on his boasts was born George Herman Ruth, Feb. 7, 1894, in Baltimore. An underprivileged child, he was placed in an industrial home under the care of Brother Gilbert, head of the institution.

For the first time in his life he had enough to eat. Brother Matthias, the athletic supervisor, quickly noticed his athletic talent. Young George wanted to be a catcher, but there was no left-handed mitt and he went to the outfield. There he showed such a powerful arm that Brother Matthias decided to make a pitcher out of him.

In his first game he struck out 18 men.

A Baltimore Orioles scout, Jack Dunn, went to the home to watch the 19-year-old Ruth and offered him $100 a month. Ruth went to the Orioles a few days later.

On the 1914 day that Ruth first entered the Baltimore park the players sitting on the bench shouted "here comes Jack Dunn's babe." The nickname stuck.

Denver May Quit Mountain States Conference Soon

DENVER, Aug. 16 (INS)—The University of Denver is studying the possibility of quitting the Mountain States (Big Six) conference, to line up with the revived Missouri Valley athletic conference.

The final step may come within a few weeks, the Denver Post said today.

Three officials of the mid-western college group, which now consists of Oklahoma A. & M., Drake, Tulsa, Wichita, St. Louis university, University of Detroit and Bradley, recently visited the Denver campus, presumably as an official investigating body.

The Pioneers would continue as a member of the Big Six group throughout the coming school year, but by next summer the present Mountain States organization would have to reorganize itself.

Colorado university withdrew last December to join the present Big Seven.

Denver has football games scheduled this year with two of the Missouri Valley conference schools—Detroit and Oklahoma Aggies.

The Denver university athletic department has been looking towards a "big time" program, but the break with the Mountain States conference reportedly came about with the conference rejection of a proposed Denver charity game.

The contest, sponsored by the shrine, would have pitted the Pioneers squad against an All-Star Rocky Mountain region eleven in December.

College officials are believed considering Tulsa university as the opponent for the shrine affair.

Pioneers Smash Lamesa, 19 To 6

LAMESA, Aug. 16 (Special)—Seven-hit hurling by big Mel Kramer and the slugging of Wiley Moore gave the Clovis Pioneers a 19-6 triumph over the Lamesa Loboes here tonight. The loss was the eleventh consecutive defeat for the Lamesans.

Moore, Clovis left fielder, collected two home runs, a triple and a single in six official times at bat. He knocked in a total of eight Pioneer runs.

Kramer, right-hander who notched his seventh victory of the season, scattered seven Lobo safeties and was never in trouble after the opening frame. He gave up only two earned runs.

Lubbock High Gridders Report

38 Grid Candidates Attend First Drill

Thirty-eight Lubbock High school Westerner grid candidates, including three lettermen and two reserve lettermen, reported to Head Coach C. R. (Pat) Pattison Monday at Chapman field for two initial drill sessions that opened fall training for the District 1-AA squad.

The youthful football hopefuls, just a few of the thousands of Texas schoolboys who started the long grind that will lead to three state championships in December, were issued equipment and sent through a light drill Monday morning, then returned to the field late yesterday afternoon for a two-hour session.

Do Limbering Up Drills

The squad members worked out in shorts during both of the periods, because of the blazing sun that sent the mercury to the 90-degree mark, with the mentors emphasizing limbering up drills and work on play assignments.

Most of the youngsters appeared to be in "fair" physical condition, as a result of summer jobs, although a half-dozen reported overweight and were sent through the drills in complete sweat suits to knock off some of the extra poundage.

Sessions Continue

The Westerner squad will continue the two-a-day session for the remainder of this week, then Sunday the group will leave for a one-week grid camp at Lawton, Okla. The gridders will return home Aug. 29 and open the season Friday night, Sept. 10, with a non-conference clash with the powerful Odessa Broncos of District 3-AA.

Heading the list of Westerner candidates Monday were three lettermen—Jack Bryant, Don Decker and Bill Bridge—and two reserve letterman—Jim Wilson and Charley Williams. Bryant, a 230-pound tackle, was named to the second team all-district selection in 1947 and was elected as co-captain of the 1948 eleven. Don Decker, the other co-captain, was a regular back last season, as well as a stellar sprinter with the Lubbock High track team this spring. Bridge alternated in the Westerner secondary in '47, as did the six-foot, three-inch Wilson. Williams, another sprint star this spring, won a reserve letter at end last year, but is slated to work in the backfield this fall.

The complete roster, by positions:

Backs—Don Decker, Bill Bridge, Jack King, Bob Brown, Morris Turner, Jimmy Richards, Norman Bantz, Merle Burchett, Douglas Ross, Malcolm Young, Charley Williams and Wayne Stroud.

Ends—Jim Wilson, Bob Rooker, Teddy Vaught, Garnet Reeves, Billy Wright, Denton Lambert and W. J. Blake.

Tackles—Jack Bryant, Billy Brazle, Jack Hensley, Joe Brock, Gene Roberts and Billy Bohner.

Guards—Morris Moyers, Charles Curry, Freddie Gray, Dale Young, Lloyd Willis, Denny McGuire, James Maynard and Charles McBroom.

Centers—Leon Stuart, Bobby Nabors, Douglas Wienke, Wendell Gailey and Boothe Robbins.

Managers are George Carpenter, Billy Freeman and Kenneth (Corky) Garrett.

Trout Winner In Club Tourney

Goldman Nosed Out In Finals

Steady-stroking Chick Trout, sr., veteran Lubbock links ace, blazed through the last 18 holes in the finals of the annual Lubbock Country club championship tournament Sunday to defeat Jimmy Goldman for the title, 2 and 1.

Missed Three-Footer

Both golfers shot par fives on No. 7 and par fours on No. 8 to remain deadlocked, then Goldman went one-up with a par three on the short ninth hole. Both men were on the edge of the green with their first shots, but were short with their putts. Goldman sank his second putt for a par three, but Trout missed a three-footer to go one down.

Trout holed out on No. 17 with a par three to divide the hole and clinch the club championship, 2 and 1.

Most lower flight championships were also determined at the club Sunday, with L. G. Raney defeating Chick Trout, jr., one-up in 20 holes in the first flight finals. H. H. Holmes copped the first flight consolation title by downing C. W. Tatum, 3 and 1.

Bib Smith ousted Al Cooper, 3 and 2, in the finals of the second flight bracket, with Tom Hamm the consolation win over J. A. Raley one-up.

Other Results Given

In the third flight Earl Ray chalked up an easy 6 and 5 triumph over Dick Green, as Wilkie Talbert dropped Charles Whitacre, 2 up, in the consolation finals.

Schoolboy Grid Drills Set

Large Turnover In High School Coaching Positions Is Noted

(By The United Press)

The Texas schoolboy pigskin parade starts in earnest today.

While yesterday was the first official day of the Interscholastic League's grid training season for the 1948 season most coaches waited until today to begin the actual conditioning grind for the season which starts the first week end in September.

With Texas heat being what it is, early-morning and late-afternoon workouts were the general order of the day for most squads with calisthenics and fundamental drills taking up most of the agenda for the first few days.

Off-Campus Training

Off - Campus training camps were in vogue again for many of the squads in classes AA and A, but only one member of the newly-formed Big city conference was expected to train elsewhere than their own campus.

Milby of Houston was expected to join eight other clubs in converging on the hill country area around Kerrville for the concentrated training sessions.

A wholesale turnover of coaches has marked the off season since Brackenridge of San Antonio defeated Highland Park in last year's class AA championship game at San Antonio and new coaches will have only a short time in which to instill their own systems in their charges.

Spring training was outlawed for league teams this year for the first time and fall training time moved up from the usual Sept. 1 date to Aug. 15 to offset the abolition.

A scattering of games will be played Sept. 3, but most of the teams wait until Sept. 10 to launch the season.

Demaret Leads In St. Paul Tourney

ST. PAUL, Minn., Aug. 16. (AP)—Experience and ability to play under pressure paid off today for Jimmy Demaret, who took first money of $2,450 from Otto Greiner, Baltimore, in the playoff of the St. Paul open golf tournament.

Demaret shot a four-under par 68 while Greiner was carding his poorest round of the tourney for a 70. They finished the scheduled 72 holes of the open tied at 273 yesterday, forcing them into the 18-hole playoff.

Greiner, visibly nervous before the match started, settled down after teeing off. Once under way, he seemed to be his usual cheerful self. Demaret exhibited his usual smile and carefree attitude.

The Baltimore pro, trying hard in his first chance to capture first in a big tourney, just couldn't get his putter working. Time after time his ball would stop just an inch or so short of the cup or hang on the lip. They finished with 18th hole birdie fours.

DILLARD BREAKS 200-METER RECORD

Yank Track And Field Stars Dominate International Meet

PARIS, Aug. 16. (INS)—American track and field stars again dominated the international track and field meet at Colombes stadium today.

Harrison Dillard cracked a 20-year-old European record when he won the 200-meter dash in 0:20.8, despite having to run around a curve.

Lorenzo Wright, the Pennsylvanian, was second to the Baldwin-Wallace flash.

Quartet Wins Relay

The American quartet of Bob Chambers, George Guida, Art Harnden and Dave Bolen smashed a French record in winning the 1,600-meter relay in 3:11.1. Bolen also won the 400-meter run.

Owen Smith, San Francisco's Olympic winner, took the pole vault with a mark of 14 feet, four inches, better than the winning vault of Earl Meadows in the 1936 games.

Browning Ross, another member of the triumphant Olympic squad, won the 3,000-meter steeplechase event, but U. S. runners were defeated in the 1,500-meter run and the 400-meter high hurdles.

The Princess, owned by R. C. Alexander of Charleston, was clocked in 2$:05-4/5 in the second heat. Harry Fitzpatrick was in the sulky.

Five events opened the Grand Circuit program at the fair.

Sports Study

By Earl Scudday

Chick Trout, sr., the veteran Lubbock golf ace, had to take a lot of good-natured "riding" Sunday afternoon after he defeated Jimmy Goldman in the finals of the annual Lubbock Country club championship tournament. As Chick walked from the seventeenthe hole, where he clinched the victory, to the clubhouse, he was surrounded by a happy group of friends and well-wishers. Some of the wags couldn't resist "needling" him a little, with "That was a tough job for an old man, wasn't it?" To which the grinning Trout would answer, "Yes, I don't believe I could have made another hole."

If the 1948 Odessa Bronco gridders can play football like they can eat, they should win another state championship. The Bronchos went down to their training camp site in the Davis mountains Sunday, and during their first two meals there they ate a total of 34 pounds of steak and 75 loaves of bread—among other things. Coach Joe Coleman isn't taking any chances on the cooking, either. He has the home economics faculty of Odessa High school preparing the meals.

Reports from Odessa indicate that the Bronchos will be plenty rough against this year. Most opponents breathed a sigh of relief when Byron (Santone) Townsend and Gordon Headlee graduated, but now foes have found out that the Broncos will field a team with a faster backfield than the great '47 quartet and a larger line. A half-dozen of the stalwarts of last season, including Backs Jimmy (The Bull) Patterson and "Doc" Mobley, will sparkplug this year's eleven.

E. T. (Pinkey) Lowrey, Lubbock High school athletic department business manager, was all smiles Monday as he received telephone requests for season ticket reservations. Many of the box seats are already gone, Lowrey reported, and the choice reserved seats are selling fast. Under favorable weather conditions, a crowd of at least 12,000 or 14,000 persons should see the opening grid setto between Lubbock and Odessa. With six top home games on the '48 slate, this should be the year to put the athletic department into the black.

The first workout of the Westerner gridders came off as scheduled Monday morning, then was followed by an afternoon drill. Most of the work, was, naturally, dummy play assignment work and conditioning. The boys found it easy to peel off excess weight under the broiling sun—too easy, some groaned. Observers at the drills were impressed by the spirit shown by the boys, even under torrid weather conditions, and with the obvious efficiency of the drill schedule.

THE RUN DOWN—Speedy Philadelphia outfielder, Richie Ashburn, is caught between third and home in a game with the Cubs at Wrigley Field, Chicago. Roy Smalley ended the attempted double steal by tagging Ashburn while Rube Walker, No. 8, and third baseman Andy Pafko, 48, stand ready to assist. Umpire Babe Pinelli called the play.

HEAVIES ON CARD WITH ZALE, CERDAN

Walcott, Lesnevich To Meet In Jersey City On Sept. 21

NEW YORK, Aug. 16 (INS)—The Tournament of Champions, Inc., announced today it will promote a heavyweight boxing bout between Jersey Joe Walcott and Gus Lesnevich at Roosevelt stadium, Jersey City, on Sept. 21.

This clash between the two leading contenders for the vacated crown of Joe Louis will be a co-feature with the Tony Zale-Marcel Cerdan middleweight title fight.

The T. of C. thus stole the two leading figures in the heavyweight title tourney planned by its promotional rival, the 20th Century Sporting Club, which has controlled the heavyweight situation since the reign of James J. Braddock.

The Walcott - Lesnevich and Zale-Cerdan double attraction also will take the edge off the 20th Century's lightweight title fight between champion Ike Williams and Jesse Flores, carded for Yankee stadium on Sept. 22, just one day later.

Because of the "double-header," T. of C. promoter Andy Niedereiter announced that ringside seat prices would be scaled from $30 to $40. Lesnevich and Walcott will split 50-50 on a $100,000 guarantee, while Zale has been guaranteed $120,000 and his challenger $50,000.

In the event of rain on Sept. 21, the T. of C. show will be postponed to Sept. 22, the same date as the Williams-Flores fight across the Hudson river.

LUBBOCK AAF TEAM WINS

The Lubbock Army Air Field baseball team was forced to go 12 innings to defeat the Dickens Owls Sunday afternoon, 4-3, as each team garnered six hits. Batteries for Lubbock were Thedford and Roy with Cunningham and Jackson on the hill for Dickens and Martin behind the plate.

The manufacture of cigarettes in the United States began about 1864.

Burglaries And Thefts Probed

Law enforcement authorities Monday were investigating several weekend burglaries and thefts, involving a considerable sum of money and valuable articles.

Property valued at $390 was reported taken in a burglary of the 1915 Ave. B residence of Surlester Hereford, identified as a negro. Hereford reputedly lost two expensive suits, two shirts, and an automatic pistol.

An unknown female who answers description of a woman who has been reported several times recently in connection with similar incidents, entered a residence in 2200-block Ninth, and one later at 2500-block Ave. J, police were informed.

Purse Is Stolen

It was believed she may have been the person who took a purse from the 1908 Main quarters of Lois Butler, officials indicated. The purse had $25.35 and a fountain pen, among other properties, police were informed.

A woman at the Ninth street address said the intruder "just walked into the house," and when she saw someone was there she asked to use the phone, then went outside, got into a taxicab and left, police were informed.

A woman answering the same description has done the same thing several times in recent weeks, officials said.

Police said Ernest Balden, who had been stabbed late Saturday night, was treated at Chatman hospital for negroes, but declined to sign a complaint against his assailant. He presumably was not seriously injured. Police marked their investigation complete.

A 57-year-old man was fined $25 for disturbance after he had been removed from a theater upon complaint that he was "molesting small girls and other persons."

A $20 bike was reported stolen from Glenn Russell of 2406 Main.

Checks, Cash Taken

Mrs. F. D. Julian of 2103 Twenty-fifth informed police of the theft of approximately $600 in checks and money from a purse at a beauty school. Police said the loss was approximately divided between checks and money.

Rev. Albert Laing of 1630 Fourteenth reported theft of canvas sunshades from his car.

The sheriff's department was informed by John Wooten of 1914 Ave. E of the theft of approximately $50 worth of plumbing tools.

County Judge Walter Davies, returning from a week's vacation — his first in four years—had signed the following judgments, County Attorney John Steele said:

D. C. Cornell, 44, of Lubbock; Carl C. Jones, 25, of Lubbock, and James L. Gallagher, 34, of Lubbock, all fined $50 and court costs on charges of drunk driving; and Mrs. Jack Cockerell, about 45, fined $1 and costs on a check law violation charge.

Cornell, officials said, was driver of a car that struck a parked truck owned by Marvin J. Pollard, 30, of 3524 Ave. Q, Sunday night on the Plainview cutoff.

Other Judgments Filed

Other county court judgments filed Monday were: A fine of $100 and costs against Joseph (Mario) Guadalupe Hererra, a Slaton Mexican, for illegally carrying a pistol; a fine of $100 and costs against Mrs. Kathleen Goble, 19, on a charge of violation of check law.

Officials said that V. L. Haley, 38, of near Abernathy, posted $750 bond on a liquor law violation charge after entering a plea of not guilty. Bond of $1,000, set by C. E. Lynn, justice of the peace, was posted by Thomas Hendley, 24, a negro charged Saturday with rape of a negro woman.

Collier Smith of Lubbock route 6 reported theft of a dull green Ford 2-door car, and H. P. Houston of Morton said that a 1946 green Ford coach, license AS1192, had been stolen from him in the 1100-block of Texas avenue here. He had left the key in the auto, police reports indicated.

A radio antennae, valued at $7.50, was reported stolen from a car parked behind a girls' dormitory at Tech college.

Sheriff Sam Floyd of Lynn county informed the sheriff's department here that a Grassland residence had been burglarized and that a class pin, a wrist watch and an Order of Eastern Star pin with pearls mounted in it had been stolen.

E. H. Ward, Slaton chief of police, and Sheriff Floyd took a confession Monday from D. L. Spriggs, 27-year-old negro, stating that he had committed five burglaries, four in Slaton and one in Lynn county. Loot in the burglaries, according to the statement, consisted in part of a .32 caliber pistol, a diamond set necklace, a watch, a "pearl" necklace, nylon hose and about $18 in cash.

National Guard Units Open Field Training

Training for National Guardsmen from Lubbock, Plainview, and Amarillo at Camp Hood was begun at 7 a. m. Monday and will continue for two weeks, with guardsmen observing a 44-hour training period per week.

This year's is the first peacetime National Guard camp since 1940. Training will consist of basic, familiarization in firing of small arms, specialized training in communications, and firing of field artillery weapons. The training will be supervised by the 36th division G-3. The Fourth Army and Army Ground Force headquarters will have staff observers present.

Men of the 132nd field artillery are attending the camp. Col. Ross Ayers is commander. Included are three batteries in Lubbock, one in Plainview, and one in Big Spring, including a total of about 200 men. About 140 are in the Lubbock batteries. The men left Lubbock Sunday morning aboard a special troop train. They will return home Sunday, Aug. 29.

Babe Ruth Dies

game—the jam-packed crowd also offered a prayer for the Babe. It was in Boston that Ruth got his big league start, as an ace pitcher.

And from virtually every city in the nation came an outpouring of eulogies for the dead star whose last years were devoted to the betterment of children.

Mass Set For Thursday

An hour after Ruth's death, his wife and two daughters left the hospital by a side door, their faces composed in grief, and were driven away.

The hospital announced that the Babe's body would be removed to the Universal Funeral chapel in mid-Manhattan.

It is tentatively planned to celebrate a solemn requiem mass for Ruth at St. Patrick's cathedral on Thursday.

All arrangements await a final decision by Mrs. Ruth, obviously worn out from the strain of the past few days during which she has seen the Babe gradually losing out in his greatest, and final battle.

Family Spent Harrowing Day

Today, particularly, was a harrowing one for Ruth's family and friends. After apparently rallying yesterday—when he pluckily sat up for 20 minutes—Ruth spent a restful night and seemed to be holding his own.

But in mid-afternoon there was a sudden relapse, and lung congestion which had plagued Ruth since last week became increasingly more aggravated. Then, early this evening word was given that the Babe was "sinking rapidly." Death came not long afterward.

The one-time star left-handed pitcher of the Boston Red Sox, who later was to become the explosive spark behind the great Yankee teams of the 1920's, was 53 years old.

He was born Feb. 6, 1895, in Baltimore.

The old Babe has been in and out of New York hospitals repeatedly since his operation, and entered Memorial hospital late in July for what proved to be his last days.

Fans Remain Steadfast

Survivors include Mrs. Ruth, second wife of the slugging idol; Mrs. Sullivan and Mrs. Flanders, both adopted daughters, and a sister, Mrs. Wilbur Moberly of Baltimore.

They and Carey were with the Babe almost constantly since his condition took a turn for the worse last Wednesday.

His fans were steadfast to the end, too. When a hospital bulletin first revealed that he suddenly had been gripped by fever and that his stout heart was weakening, the response was almost overwhelming.

The president of the United States, Harry S. Truman, was among the first to send his personal words of encouragement to the ailing home run king.

Phone calls, telegrams and letters poured into the hospital in an almost ceaseless flow. Personal visits were made by hundreds of persons, who came and went and stood through rainstorms in the street.

Callers progressed no farther than the hospital lobby. As he fought his losing battle for his life up on the ninth floor of the hospital, only Ruth's relatives and closest friends were permitted to be at his side.

Babe Sits Up

The hospital issued bulletins at regular intervals and Ruth seemed several times to be rallying, although the bulletins always bore the same ominous conclusion:

"His condition remains critical."

The Babe went out smiling almost to the last, despite agonizing pain in his neck and head.

On almost every visit paid to his room, Ruth's friend Carey would emerge saying that he was greeted by a faint smile on the drawn, wasted face which once was a moon-like symbol of idolatry.

Looked Old, Weary

During his periodical leaves from the hospital during the past 18 months, Ruth sometimes looked a little like the one-time greatest of baseball heroes, but generally he seemed old and painfully weary.

He first entered French hospital in November of 1946, and was operated upon the following January. He left this first hospital with faltering step in February, and returned home.

His powerful body had wasted away shockingly, and his suffering showed in every line of his haggard face.

In June of last year he went back to a hospital bed for a 10-day stay, and was under almost constant care of doctors. Nearly every measure of medicine was resorted to in attempts to relieve the pain in his neck and head.

Made Two Appearances

His most recent return to the hospital was broken by two outside visits. He went to Baltimore for a night charity baseball game and returned immediately thereafter to the hospital.

On July 26, he participated feebly in a New York celebration of "Babe Ruth day" proclaimed by Mayor William O'Dwyer, and watched the movie premier of his biography, "The Babe Ruth Story."

One of the last tributes to him was permanent retirement of "No. 3," the number which marked his power-laden back, in ceremonies at Yankee stadium.

Ruth in his final months had lent his efforts recently to several enterprises designed to combat juvenile delinquency, most of them concerned with baseball.

Big Wish Never Attained

This kept him close to the game and close to kids, but he died in some respects a frustrated one-time idol who never attained the big wish of his life—to manage a major league club.

No one ever offered him the chance.

He was bewildered and hurt by the way he finally was shunted out of the game and often spoke about it. He took several stop-gap jobs from time to time, hopeful that they would lead to his becoming a manager.

Ruth undoubtedly was the most idolized of all baseball players and perhaps of all the sports figures this country ever produced. Public response to news of his relapse last Wednesday and to his subsequent fight for life was a tribute to his greatness.

Many athletes have been called "Babe," but "The Babe" was reserved for only one.

Ruth's most notable performances as a moon-faced southpaw credit him with winning the longest game in world series history and with pitching the most consecutive scoreless innings.

He set the first against the Brooklyn Dodgers on Oct. 9, 1916, when he went 14 innings to a 2 to 1 victory.

In 1919, as a member of the Yankees, he started his home run spree with a total of 29, which was to soar to the all-time season record of 60 in 1927 and the all-time life time record total of 714.

Of all the broad-backed, powerful men of baseball before and since, none ever matched the Bambino's feats.

He was a terrific competitor, with tremendous color and a captivating personality and life.

None could have taken Babe Ruth's place in public affection with a hundred home runs—and it is doubtful anyone ever will.

The age of some turtles at death has been estimated between 200 and 250 years.

EXPERT HORSEWOMAN—At home in the saddle is Mary Anne Parris of Tahoka, who became a cowgirl in earnest when her parents moved to Lynn county from West Virginia about six and a half years ago. Now Mary Anne, a junior in Tahoka High school, can rope and ride with the best of them, and she had rather be out on the range than in the kitchen or school room. She plans to major in animal husbandry at Texas Technological college. (Staff photo.)

'More Than A Man'

was satisfied, and he trotted toward first base, his big, moon face creased by a happy grin. It was a long, long way around the bases for a man in his late '40s who had been absent from the game for years, and Ruth, with that omnipresent knack of always doing the unexpected, as well as the expected, took the short cut. He minced his way from first to third, ignoring second base.

As far as we know that was the Bambino's last appearance in uniform, and the last time he at least partially circled the bases. Only Ruth knew what his thoughts were as he saw the ball drop into the stands and made that tabloid trip around to the plate. Memories, most certainly, must have crowded into his mind.

He tried to keep busy in his fading years with golf, and bowling.

But he was not quite happy. Baseball was his life, and he was not in the game which meant so much to him and to which he meant so much.

There'll never be another quite like him, this mountainous, apparently unwieldy man whose every move, strangely enough, was a picture never forgotten.

Otis Gatewood Talks On Church Work In Germany At Meeting

A crowd estimated to be between 1,100 and 1,200 gathered at Broadway Church of Christ Monday night to hear Otis Gatewood, missionary for that church in Frankfurt, Germany, describe the teaching program carried on by his mission in that city.

At the close of the lecture, Mr. Gatewood showed a number of films made in Frankfurt showing the conditions as they prevail in the German city and the work being done by the mission there.

He reported that attendance in Sunday services ranged between 400 and 500. Adult classes are held each night in the week, and attendance in these different classes ranged from 30 to 200. Mr. Gatewood also reported on plans for construction of a new church building in Frankfurt, which is to get underway soon after he returns there. The proposed structure will have a seating capacity of 1,000, whereas the present church structure seats only around 600.

The elders of the Lubbock church authorized the missionary to purchase a site for the proposed structure.

Mr. Gatewood will speak again this morning at the church at 10 o'clock, and at 2:30 this afternoon he will conduct a roundtable discussion on various aspects of his work. A lecture tonight at 7:30 o'clock at the church on the mission's boy's town project, at which the films will again be shown, will conclude Mr. Gatewood's lecture series.

Driver Of Stolen Car Which Overturned Sought By Police

Police, sheriff's authorities and Texas Highway Patrol officials early today were seeking to find the driver of a car which had been stolen and later abandoned overturned one mile northeast of Brownfield late last night.

The car, reported to belong to H. P. Houston of Morton, had been stolen from the 1100 block of Texas Avenue about 4 p.m. Monday afternoon. Later it was seen in Brownfield where a man drove it away from a service station without paying for gas. The driver of the car had disappeared when police investigated the overturned machine later.

Tahoka Ranch Girl

Green county rancher, and before the vacation was over had decided to become a rancher himself, and to join McCarley in leasing 30 sections of the old T-Bar ranch west of Tahoka.

Becoming a rancher was a complete change for Frank Parris. He was within a few hours' credit of having a Ph. D. degree in geology. He had attended Ohio State university, where he received an M. S. degree, and Pittsburgh university. His coal producing career was cut out for him.

The Parrises moved to their comfortable home here six and a half years ago, and today they are probably the most enthusiastic and one of the largest ranch and farm operators in Lynn county.

And Mary Anne is most enthusiastic of all.

Animals Answer Call

When she goes to the pasture gate, the two lambs are the first to spot her. They come running, speeding their gait as she calls to them: "Here, Itsabit, here Brown Ears!"

Then the young paint filly, Miss Mike, and her mama, Flicka, or Contrary Mary, as Mary Anne sometimes calls her, spot their mistress and they too come galloping to see what she wants.

They crowd each other, vying for her affections, and nuzzle up to each other. They apparently don't know the meaning of fear. The lambs were bottle-fed by Mary Anne from early infancy.

Mary Anne has become an expert horsewoman. In addition to Flicka and Miss Mike, she owns and rides Trigger, a cutting or quarter horse which her father brought from New Mexico, and "Miss A", a registered filly mare whose pedigree Mary Anne can trace away on back.

These horses, like the other animals, and like her two milking shorthorns on the Parris farm, recognize her and answer her call.

Mary Anne has even ridden Whirlaway, the famous race rose. At least she has sat on him to have her picture made. It happened at Lexington, Ky., in 1946, when the family was on a vacation.

She is so wrapped up in her ranching that she has already made plans to enter Texas Tech's animal husbandry department when she graduates from high school.

Meanwhile, as her father's "partner", she is learning a lot about how to run a farm and ranch.

Parris has sub-leased most of his leased T-Bar land, but this year he is operating 1,540 acres of farmland, mostly cotton, 780 acres of ranch land and another section of farm land near the Lubbock county line. He has fed as many as nine carloads of lambs at one time.

He now has 450 head of sheep on the ranch, and 88 cattle, a 10 per cent interest in which he has given to Mary Anne.

Mary Anne's father is on a business trip to West Virginia now, but when he is home Mary Anne is his constant companion on the ranch and farm.

Asked if she likes to cook, Mary Anne turned up her nose and said the only time she likes to be in the kitchen is when it's time to eat.

Her favorite subject in school is history, but you can bet your cowboy boots that it would be future farmer courses, if the school authorities would let her take them, which they won't.

But Mary Anne looks forward to such training in Tech, and then she hopes she can follow in her father's footsteps and carry on a suecessful ranching, farming and feed-growing career as he has.

Babe Ruth Said To Have Aided Medical Hunt For Cancer Cure

NEW YORK, Aug. 16. (AP)—The New York Herald Tribune says Babe Ruth's death revealed he "played a dramatic role in one of the most exciting medical investigations of the generation."

Doctors tried to save the great baseball star's life with a drug, teropterin, the newspaper said. He was one of the first patients to receive injections of the drug and improvement in his condition at first was described as remarkable, the story added.

Medical men familiar with the case were asked to keep silent, the newspaper said, because Ruth was not told he was suffering from cancer.

Teropterin still is in the experimental stage and the lessons learned from its use "may provide valuable clews to the cancer problem," the Herald Tribune said, "but doctors cautioned that the drug must not be considered a cure for cancer."

will administer both the consumer and bank credit ends of the new law. They said consumer credit regulations will not be issued until later this week, perhaps Friday. It is up to the board to fix down payments and pay off times. During the war the rule on most wanted household items was one-third down and 15 months.

Board officials said it was unlikely bank credit controls would be invoked immediately. They may come into force later in the year, depending on the trend of bank lending.

Whatever rules the board puts out will not go into effect until 30 days after they are issued.

GOPs Draft Campaign

The President will make the Detroit trip aboard his special railroad car.

The program there will be under auspices of labor organizations. It will be an afternoon affair.

The Republican campaign also is likely to get formally under way about the same date but no details have been disclosed.

That was one of the subjects up for consideration in today's Dewey-Warren conference. Warren said the two would go over all the issues and consider stumping tour routes as well.

Wallace To Stump South

Henry A. Wallace, Progressive party candidate, meanwhile made ready to carry his appeal into the South Aug. 29, planning to address mixed audiences of negroes and whites in Virginia, North Carolina, Alabama, Mississippi, Louisiana, Arkansas and Tennessee.

Those areas are hotbeds of the States Rights Democratic revolt against Mr. Truman's leadership, over race and civil rights issues.

New kinks were woven into that already-snarled southern political situation over the week-end by a series of counter-revolts against the states righters. In some respects typical was a meeting of Truman supporters today in Montgomery to name a slate of Alabama electors and plan how to get them on the November ballot. The electors picked in spring primaries are pledged to the states rights ticket of J. Strom Thurmond and Fielding Wright.

The newspaper appealed again to the Western Powers not to negotiate "a new Munich" in the four-power Moscow talks.

The pro-Soviet German press at the same time declared the Moscow talks can be a success only on Soviet terms.

Flying Weather Perfect

Gen. Lucius D. Clay, American military governor, said in Frankfurt he expects the Western Allies to stand firm on their present German policy in the Moscow discussions.

In the face of constant Russian-licensed press efforts to belittle the Anglo-American aerial supply line, both British and American cargo planes roared into Berlin in perfect weather today on a four-minute schedule.

American planes made 313 flights into Tempelhof in a 24-hour period with 2,792 tons of supplies, while in the same period the British made 355 sorties into Gatow airfield.

AFL Leader Attacks Congress' Record

CLEVELAND, Aug. 16. (INS)—The 80th Congress was assailed today by AFL President William Green, who called it the "real scandal in America today."

Green scored the lawmakers for "glaring failure to protect the human needs of the American people" and lashed at the current spy investigation in a speech before the 39th biennial convention of the International Alliance of Theatrical Stage Employes and Moving Picture Machine Operators in Cleveland.

The labor leader declared:

"We cannot help suspecting it was with the purpose of covering up these shocking failures that congressional investigating committees suddenly launched public hearings into alleged Soviet contamination of our government's own employes in espionage efforts."

Green added that the AFL believes, however, that "every effort should be made to root out Communists from the public services and to assure the full loyalty of all those on the government's pay roll."

Red Consul Charges

previous statements regarding the school teacher who insists she wants to stay in America.

Poses For Pictures

The statement concerning Mrs. Kosenkina, still in critical condition and under heavy police guard at Roosevelt hospital, bristled with ringing, dated cliches.

Although Lomakin, cheerful and seemingly pleased with life and with himself, refused to answer questions, he posed willingly for pictures in the consulate foyer, in which there were half as many guards and brawny young officials as there were newsmen.

As consulate guards quickly shooed reporters out the big front door, a reporter asked Vice-Consul Zot L. Chepurnykh, who visited the teacher in Roosevelt hospital last Friday, if he intended to visit her again.

Chepurnykh replied that not only did he intend to see Mrs. Kosenkina—"probably tomorrow"—but that he would be accompanied by Consul Lomakin.

Then the vice-consul added a sentence which seemed open to more than one interpretation. He purred:

"You must remember that Mrs. Kosenkina is still a Russian citizen and we will take care of her."

Statement Is Issued

Consul Lomakin's statement, ignoring the part he and other members of the consulate played in Mrs. Kosenkina's "rescue" from Countess Tolstoy's White Russian refuge in Rockland County, N.Y., said:

"In connection with the incorrect and slanderous version spread by the American press concerning the case of the teacher Oksana S. Kosenkina, a Soviet citizen, the consulate general of the USSR in New York deems it necessary to make the following statement:

"After Mrs. Kosenkina had succeeded in getting away from the hands of the Tolstoy foundation, a White Guard organization, it was noticed that the forcible kidnaping of Mrs. Kosenkina by Whie Guards, the injection of drugs made by them with the purpose of weakening her will, as well as the contemptuous treatment of her and her forced work in the kitchen of Countess Tolstoy, the head of the above-mentioned White Guard organization, undermined her health and affected her mental state."

On her return to the Soviet consulate, the statement continued, all necessary measures were taken to restore Mrs. Kosenkina's health and peace of mind.

But she was constantly "irritated and depressed" by the "continuous flow of hostile and malicious fabrications of the United States press and radio and threats of U. S. police and court."

beamed.

Often, the broadcasts included imaginary descriptions of the scenes in famous American goodtime centers, with heavy emphasis on how much fun stay-at-homes were having.

Throughout the war, the Japanese women broadcasters used the latest American dance recordings as a backdrop for their patter.

Just how Radio Tokyo got this up-to-the-minute stuff has never been fully explained. However, one theory is that pickup stations spotted in South America made transcriptions from U. S. broadcasts and sent them to Japan by submarine.

weeks.

"The woods are drier than I have ever seen them in 17 years I have been in the Conroe district office," he said. "The windfalls are powder dry and there is no moisture, not even a heavy dew, to hinder the flames."

Next to firefighters, he said, the most needed thing now "is a sense of safety by those who are careless with matches and roadside fires."

He blamed most of the damage so far on carelessly tossed matches and cigarettes and unattended fires.

Blast Kills Five

who had been warned only minutes before by a police officer:

"Get back. It may blow up any time. There's dynamite in there."

The dead were Frank Hobson, 60, fire chief in nearby Sparks; Glen Davis, 39; Earl Platt, William Byron and Domingo Galli, 25. Davis was a captain and Platt a fireman in the Reno fire department. Byron and Galli were assisting firemen in their efforts to control the fire which had raged several hours prior to the explosion.

Sixth Reported Missing

Four of the injured were listed as in a critical condition today. They are Capt. Lowell Munday of the Sparks fire department; Robert Gaussi, 52, an AFL union official; John Lusich, 45, Reno fireman, and Hugo Fanucchi, 45, a wholesale grocer.

The condition of about a dozen others was said to be serious.

A sixth man was still reported missing but Evans said that a careful search of the charred and still smoldering debris had uncovered no other bodies.

Today investigators said they believed the blast had been caused by accumulated gas. They continued to discount the dynamite theory, but were attempting to trace down a report that explosives had been stored in the building.

U. S. Drafts Answer

test, in which case the U.S. is expected to answer in kind.

The New York police investigation of the Kosenkina case was launched upon order of Mayor William O'Dwyer.

Michael McDermott, assistant to Secretary of State Marshall in charge of news relations, said ranking U. S. officials are working on a reply both to Soviet Foreign Minister Molotov and Soviet Ambassador Panyushkin.

Probe Is Continuing

McDermott said the New York police investigation is continuing. The State department wishes to ascertain whether:

1. The police violated the extra-territorial status of the Russian consulate?

2. Officers searched the rooms of Mrs. Kosenkina in the consulate?

3. Mrs. Kosenkina was being held against her will and jumped because she was fearful of what might happen to her?

4. Whether the Russians were violating U. S. law in their treatment of Mrs. Kosenkina?

5. Whether the Russians actually committed a crime?

The New York police department has been in touch with the FBI and other law enforcement agencies in investigating the Kosenkina affair.

Gov. Dewey, in New York, has agreed to have the reports made direct to the State department in the interests of speed, rather than through the normal channels in Albany.

Meanwhile, with the diplomatic kettle boiling over the spy cases, American, British, French and Russian representatives in Moscow were discussing the more important German problem.

State department officials declined to speculate on what effect progress on the Berlin discussions would have on the timing of replies in the Kosenkina case.

UN Is Urged To Call Scientific Conference To Study World Ills

By WILLIAM N. OATIS
Associated Press Staff Writer

LONDON, Aug. 16 — Scientists from 10 countries recommended today that the United Nations call a scientific conference to see what science can do about the present state of the world.

It should, they said, convene technically qualified representatives of the social sciences and psychiatry, appointed by their governments, to inquire into existing international tensions and to make relevant proposals."

Declaration Made Public

The declaration was contained in a 44-page statement of the preparatory commission for the International Congress on Mental Health. It was made public with the opening of a six-day mental hygiene conference, part of the congress.

Science, it says, can help in "adapting human institutions so that men can live together as world citizens in a world community."

"World citizenship can be widely extended among all peoples through the application of the principles of mental health," it states.

"The concept of world citizenship implies loyalty to the whole of mankind. Such new loyalty need not conflict but rather embraces traditional loyalty to family, community and nation.

Mental Health Services Urged

It urges that the U. S. establish mental health services in occupied Germany "to deal with the disastrous effects of present conditions there, which are a threat not only to the welfare of the country, but also to the world.

The document notes that men long have accepted war as unavoidable "on the ground that 'that is human nature.'" It says advancing social and psychiatric science showed that this was wrong and that "human beings are the products of their upbringing."

"Attitudes towards peoples of other races, creeds or 'nationalities' are in no sense inborn or ineradicable," it explains, "but are subject to all influences. . . which circulate in a given society.

Dallas Grandmother Claims Boycott Has Slowed Meat Trade

DALLAS, Aug. 16. (U.P.)—Mrs. R. D. Vaughn, the little old lady who launched the nationwide buying strikes, said today that butchers simply aren't telling the truth if they claim that the "petticoat rebellion" hasn't hurt their sales.

"They definitely are not doing the business they were when this thing started," she said.

Must Take Rest

In any case, she said, she and her colleagues are determined to keep up their fight to force prices down.

She was convinced the housewives would be successful if they remained adamant.

The 71-year-old president of the local Women's Chamber of Commerce was about to duck out of the fray herself, however. But she wasn't going AWOL.

She said her doctor had advised her to go to the mountains for a rest because she had tired herself out conducting the local meat strike.

Slogan Award Offered

"I just can't stay here with this telephone ringing all the time," she said.

Meanwhile, a Dallas oil man offered to pay $1,000 to the person who comes up with the best slogan of 20 words on how to reduce meat prices.

The offer was made by L. I. Horne, who previously had given financial aid to the housewives' battle. He suggested that Mrs. Vaughn "and her committee" act as judges in the contest.

Mrs. Vaughn said she couldn't do it. Her throat is raw and she's completely tired out from the fight she has waged for more than two weeks.

Brownsville Housewives Get Threats After Meat Boycott

BROWNSVILLE, Aug. 16 (AP)—Two Brownsville housewives have reported receiving threats as a result of their part in the telephone campaign to boycott high-priced meat.

Mrs. Ted Opelt said a man who identified himself as "one of the butchers here in Brownsville" called her, made veiled threats against her husband's business, and told her to "shut up and get off the phone."

Mrs. A. L. Plecker said a man who said he was "from one of the meat shops here in town," called her mother, Mrs. Loyd Kindel, and threatened serious consequences "if you don't stop your calls and have your daughter stop hers."

The ladies apparently weren't frightened. Besides their work here, they planned to go to Harlingen to organize a boycott there.

U. S. Customs Officials Make Casual Search Of Passengers From South American Points

By HARMAN W. NICHOLS
United Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, Aug. 16—Unless you are on the spy or suspect list, I swear you could smuggle the crown jewels into the United States by the back door—and no questions asked.

I went down to the airport where foreign planes come in here. I went through customs. Of course, I hadn't been any place. But I fell in line with the people getting off a Peruvian International airways ship from Santiago, Lima, Panama and Havana.

Search Is Casual

The inspector wanted to see the luggage. I had none, but I looked over the shoulders of people who did. They had to open their bags. The inspector glanced over the contents, but didn't look in the side pockets of the suitcases. Nobody got undressed. They didn't look under your tongue and make you say "ah" to see if you had any hidden trinkets.

When acting inspector of customs Tommy Gorman came along, I was prepared to pull off my moccasins so he could see if I had any rubies or rubles or maybe a diamond tucked under false rubber heels. He said, never mind, keep the shoes on. I put my hand in my pants watch pocket and fingered a dime-store sparkler I had bought for bait. It was about the size of a sawed-off carrot top. I even brought it out in the open a couple of times.

Ignores Phoney Ring

It made no impression on Mr. Gorman. I guess he knew it was phony.

Dr. Donald Wenshof of the United States Department of Agriculture was on the lookout for anybody toting a fruit basket. He didn't want any foreign bugs coming in here to raise ned with our fruit crop. Any fruit, even that bought at stands at the regular stops enroute, was confiscated and pitched into an incinerator. One lady in a bright red dress squaked a little when the doctor relieved her of a bag of avocados, which he suspected were infected with a fungus growth. Dr. Wenshof, polite enough with it all, took the sack and dumped it with the other confiscated fruit. This, in spite of the fact that the plane had been DDT'd 30 minutes before the Washington landing.

The immigration inspector asked for vaccination certificates. I had them. Souvenirs of the war days when I thought I was going overseas and didn't. Yellow fever, small pox, all sorts of plagues.

They asked your name and then checked it against the suspect list. If you aren't on that, by alias or otherwise, and your papers are in order, there is no trouble about identity.

But my trouble came when Don Connealy, the immigration inspector, asked:

"Passport, please."

Of course I had none. He held me up until I proved I hadn't been any place in the first place, then he ushered me to the nearest exit. He was nice enough about it.

When Japan's sild industry declined in the 1920s and 1930s, many of the country's old silk weaving plants turned to weaving rayon.

Flame Thrower To Be Used On Oregon Range Sagebrush

LAKEVIEW, Ore., Aug. 16 (AP)—They're going to take flame thrower to the romance of the range next Thursday.

Agricultural experts will demonstrate how to destroy the sagebrush which covers some 96,000,000 western acres and has inspired nearly that many lines of cowboy ballads, tales, and movies.

"We want, said T. R. Conn without a trace of nostalgia, "to turn it into grass. Sagebrush is on good."

Conn is chairman of the Aug. 19 demonstration—first of its kind in the county—planned by the Lakeview Rotary club to show ranchmen how to burn up or dig out their sagebrush and replace it with perennial grass that livestock will eat.

J. F. Pechanec, chief of the ranch research division of the Pacific Northwest forest and range experiment station, hopes this may start a mass move to get rid of the land of the purple sage.

The other federal officials who are acting as advisors for the project think that would be fine. "Only people who really like sagebrush," they contend, "are the jukebox fans who listen to cowboy lyrics about it."

14 Persons Hurt As Two Trains Collide

CRESTLINE, O., Aug. 16. (INS)—A head-on passenger-freight train collision near Crestline today injured 14 persons slightly.

Most of the injured were army personnel bound from Ft. Dix, N.J., to Ft. Riley, Kans.

The soldiers were passengers on a westbound Pennsylvania train which collided with a freight train between Crestline and Bucyrus. Ten of the injured were released from Crestline hospital after treatment.

Members of the freight crew said they saw the passenger train approaching and halted their train before the crash. The impact partially telescoped the railway express car into the locomotive tender.

The collision occurred on the Pennsylvania's mainline but neither train was derailed and the right-of-way was cleared by noon.

Olympic Athletes From Soviet Bloc Seek To Stay In Britain

LONDON, Aug. 16. (AP)—Athletes from Communist-domained eastern Europe who came to Britain for the Olympics are seeking ways to avoid going home.

A check today showed at least five men—two Czechs and three Hungarians — have announced plans to stay in England. Several Yugoslavs and Poles have asked about their chances of staying here or going to the United States or Canada.

Almost a third of the Hungarian Olympic squad of 125 is still in England. Many Czechs are still here and will remain for the funeral of one of their group, a girl gymnast who died Saturday.

"There is a possibility that more athletes from Communist-domained European countries may want to see us." A home office official said.

The home office has not announced how many applications for registration to remain that it has received or approved. However, it did keep its aliens' department open all day Sunday, an unusual procedure.

BONDED PATROL FORCE—J. J. Moore, seated at the wheel of his jeep, and his son, J. H. MOORES SHAKE 260 DOORS EVERY NIGHT

Father And Son Make Private Patrol System One Of Lubbock's Fastest Growing Enterprises

By ROGER SOUTHALL
Avalanche Staff Writer

Slightly more than a year ago, a new service was begun in Lubbock. That service, known as Moore's Bonded Patrol, began in a small way, for it was launched with 18 businesses on College Avenue to be patrolled and one car to patrol them.

Today the service extends to about 260 businesses throughout greater Lubbock, and four jeeps, three of which are in action every night, and the fourth on Saturday and Sunday nights, are constantly on the move up and down the city's alleys and streets.

What's more, after J. J. Moore and his son J. H. (Jack) Moore, first began the service on August 1, 1947, the lack of income was enough to scotch anybody's notion that here was a "get rich quick" deal. They each cleared $85 the first month of business, and out of that had to pay gas and oil and other maintenance expenses.

Business Now Success

Today, it's a different matter. The Moores and their staff are doing all right for themselves, and are rendering a much needed service to Lubbock's business firms, especially those in outlying areas.

Sheer luck you say? Perhaps. But add also optimism and determination and plain hard work, for while the Moores themselves don't exactly discount that matter of luck, they'll tell you the latter three qualities have contributed most to the success of their service.

The Moore's, father and son, and their two other drivers, L. E. Boling and W. H. Summerlin, start their "day" at 7:30 o'clock in the evening, and quit for the "night" at 6 in the morning. That, coupled with the fact that their job is to keep "visitors" out of stores when merchants themselves are doing all they can to bring customers in, makes it a topsy-turvy occupation indeed.

The "visitors" they discourage are, of course, burglars and safe crackers and the like. That and watching for fires in closed stores are the two most important aspects of their business.

Former Lubbock Policeman

The elder Moore is a former policeman on the Lubbock and Los Angeles, Calif., forces. And while he no longer is a direct member of the Lubbock force, he and his men hold the rank of patrolmen, and are empowered to make arrests.

When the patrol goes into action at 7:30 p. m., each driver's first task is to "shake" the doors of all business houses covered by the patrol for any which may have been left open. Moore says too many merchants are careless in checking their doors at the close of the business day to make sure they are locked. He estimates that, on an average, five stores nightly are found with unlocked doors. When unlocked doors are found, the patrolman must check the store for possible intruders, and check for any possible losses. He immediately notifies the store owner or manager and awaits his arrival for a further check.

The patrol also begins checking all store windows at this time for broken panes or open windows that customarily are closed which might indicate a break-in. For this purpose, each jeep is equipped with a built-on, specially-made Mercury spot light which automatically flashes on when held straight out or up, and goes off when held down. Each driver also carries a large-size flashlight for more detailed checks.

Vary Checking Times

Drivers are each assigned a particular part of town to patrol, and each man makes a thorough check of each patrolled business house at least once an hour. They seldom inspect a business at the same time in the hour however, for such a practice would help burglars and safe crackers in "clocking" the progress of the patrol jeep on its route and make successful break-ins more numerous.

Instead, the patrol "staggers" it checks on each business house so that on one round, one business may be checked again in 30 minutes while another may be checked again in 50 minutes. Patrolmen also double up on each other with the result that most

Greater Lubbock Set At 72,292

A population estimate released Monday by the chamber of commerce shows a 60,243 population for Lubbock and a 72,292 figure for Greater Lubbock as of last June 30.

The figures compare with estimates of 55,213 within the city limits and 62,459 including suburbs just six months previously.

The increase for the city property is shown to be 4,030, or 7.3 per cent, and for Greater Lubbock, 7,833 or 12.1 per cent.

Same Method Used

The same method was used in obtaining the estimates as in 1940 when the chamber of commerce forecast was within less than 1 per cent of the 31,853 population shown by the federal census of that year.

The new estimates are closely in line, but slightly more conservative, than most of those by private sources—including those of utility firms which use their forecasts as the basis for planned expansions.

The indicated increase, as compared with the official 1940 census figures, is 28,390, or 90 per cent, for the corporate limits and approximately 30,000 or 70 per cent, for Greater Lubbock.

Formula Is Involved

The formula used in arriving at the estimates, as explained by chamber of commerce officials, is exceedingly involved. It takes into consideration such factors as utility connections and the annual scholastic census, the ratio of each to the official count during federal census years and then makes allowance for such things as the known fact that more people out of any given number have telephones and other utility conveniences than was true in 1940.

However, the most important of the basic factors are the utility connections. These figures as of Jan. 1 and June 30 follow:

	Jan. 1	June 30
Telephones	15,217	17,259
Gas	11,539	12,203
Electric	16,219	17,341
Water	10,895	11,574

Scholastics Increase

Scholastics in Lubbock independent school district, which includes considerable areas outside the city limits, were shown by the 1947 census to be 10,112, and by the count this year to total 11,237.

Chamber officials pointed out that the estimates confirm that suburban areas are developing more rapidly than within the city property.

This emphasizes the importance, they said, of immediate steps to take as many of these areas as is practical into the city limits so that Lubbock may have credit for this population when the 1950 census is taken and to control sub-

Court Refuses Election Suit

(By The Associated Press)

AUSTIN, Aug. 16—An unsuccessful election suit was refused admittance to the supreme court today shortly before the respondent in the suit died in Laredo.

The supreme court refused to accept the suit attempting to remove 29 Webb county election officials. The suit sought to force Peter P. Leyendecker—who died at noon at Laredo—to revise the list of election judges for the Aug. 28 run-off primary.

Head of County Group

Leyendecker was chairman of the Webb county Democratic executive committee. While the court was considering the case this morning, he became ill and was taken to the hospital at Laredo. He died a few minutes after nounced here.

the court's decision was an-

Dan Moody, former governor and attorney for those who attempted to bring the suit, said he was preparing a petition to be filed with the fourth court of civil appeals at San Antonio when he heard of Leyendecker's death.

Moody said that the civil appeals court has concurrent jurisdiction with the supreme court in such cases. He said the death of Leyendecker created a vacancy in the chairmanship of the Webb county executive committee, "and therefore there is nobody to sue."

Court Rejects Motion

The supreme court had rejected a motion for leave to file a mandamus petition seeking to force Leyendecker to remove the election officials objected to. It took the action without comment, simply noting "over ruled" on the motion.

Truman Phelps and Blas M. Salinas of Webb county claimed in their motion that some of the runoff primary judges were city, county or state officeholders or employes, and that others were not qualified voters in the precinct where they had been named to serve.

They asserted "that unless movants' rights are protected and enforced, as prayed for in the accompanying petition, a fair and impartial expression of the will of the voters of Webb county, who may vote in said second primary, will not be protected as is provided by law and in all reasonable probability can not be had."

Election Dispute Rages

The attempt to obtain the mandamus came less than two weeks before the sceond primary in which there is a closely-contested race for the 15th district congressional post.

The candidates in the race are Lloyd Bentsen jr., of McAllen and Philip Kazen of Laredo. The Bentsen forces have criticized what they called an effort of the Webb county political machine to control the election. The Kazen camp in turn has charged that excessive money is being spent by the Bentsen forces.

Phelps is Bentsen's Webb county campaign manager and Salinas is a member of Bentsen's campaign staff.

Their motion filed with the supreme court asked for permission to file the petition for a mandamus. The mandamus would have compelled Leyendecker to set aside the appointments complained of, and would have required him immediately to appoint "legally qualified election officials."

In such cases, the court may follow one of two courses: It may grant the motion, permit filing of the petition, set a hearing and consider the case on its merits; or it may simply refuse to entertain the suit. Usually this is done without a written opinion.

OHIO BOY IS WINNER

Lubbock Youth Fails To Place In National Soap Box Derby

By C. W. RATLIFF
Avalanche Staff Writer

AKRON, Aug. 16 (Special) — "Play the game, win if you can; lose if you must, but play like a man"—Joe Lon Teal, Lubbock's entry in the eleventh annual All-American soap box derby, learned that lesson here Sunday. Joe didn't win in his first heat, but he won a grand lesson in sportsmanship along with a lot of other American youngsters.

And last night before a crowd of 1,500 people in the champions' banquet in the big Goodyear gym he came from behind the speaker's table backdrop to receive the plaudits of the crowd as he was presented along with 147 other youngsters from all over the nation.

He was presented a gold watch and a diploma for having competed in the derby and sat at a block-long table as prizes were given the winners.

Donnie Strub of Warren, Ohio, a suburb of Akron, was the winner of the big race, but only after a close finish with Gary D. Turley of Charleston, W. Va., home of the 1947 champion.

Joe participated in one of the biggest lump-in-the-throat spectacles your reporter has witnessed in his more than 20 years of newspapering.

He's coming back to Lubbock Wednesday, and his pals in Boy Scout troop 3, and other friends are going to hear a lot about this great program of glorifying American youth.

A crowd of 75,000 persons sat on the edge of their collective seats as each trio of cars came down the hill in the thrill-packed show.

Overhead jet planes and the nation's largest bomber—the B-36 and the six-engine jet bomber, the B-47—put on a great aerial display just prior to opening of the race.

Today the big show was over and nearly everybody was heading toward home from all parts of the nation, but the boys and crowd at the banquet still had the words of screen actor Jimmy Stewart to remember:

"Sportsmanship is winning modestly and losing courageously."

Johnson Scores Coke's Statement

(By The Associated Press)

Lyndon Johnson raised again Monday his charges of "isolationism" on the part of his senatorial opponent, Coke Stevenson, but this time in a different vein.

The congressman, in a radio address from Amarillo, described Stevenson's "county courthouse theory" as "isolationism at the grassroots."

Johnson said his opponent's promise to "move the government from Washington to the county courthouse" is "the ultimate essence of political claptrap."

Coke Seeks Peddy Votes

Meanwhile, Stevenson continued his prolonged conferences at Houston with Harris county residents who supported George Peddy in the first primary. He claimed that in the Aug. 28 runoff he will get more than half the Harris county votes which went to Peddy in the first primary.

Tuesday the former governor will be in Liberty county and at Beaumont. Meanwhile Johnson, after winding up his Monday campaigning at Denton Monday night, planned to spend Tuesday in Dallas and Tuesday night at Palestine.

In his Amarillo speech, Johnson declared:

"When a candidate for one of the highest offices within the gift of the people pulls a blanket over his head and is unable to see further than the county courthouse, that is isolationism at the grassroots."

Stevenson's proposal to "move the government from Washington to the county courthouse" should "alarm every man who owns or rents a farm or ranch," Johnson declared.

Putting such a proposal into effect would cut farmers and ranchers off from such government help as cotton support prices and efforts to combat foot and mouth disease, Johnson said.

Red Guns Keeping Planes From Dropping Food To City

PEIPING, Aug. 16 (AP) — Red anti-aircraft guns ringing Changchun are preventing government planes from dropping food to the starving Manchurian city, Chinese sources here said today.

Some 200 persons are reported starving to death in Changchun daily.

Relief of Changchun by forces from Mukden is deemed too costly at the moment for the weakened government forces in Manchuria.

SECRECY NO GOOD

Let's Have Results

DIPLOMATS representing the United States, Britain and France in the London Big Four conference made no effort to conceal their irritation late last week because of the publicity which had been given what they termed the "hysterical spy scare" in the U. S.

They objected to public hearings by congressional groups which investigate subversive activities. They didn't like the fact that the American people were informed when Mrs. Oksana Kosenkina leaped from a third-story window of the Russian consulate in New York City. They made clear their opinion—typical of pussyfooting diplomats—that everything should be done in secret and that the press, radio and other media of public information should be muzzled, if necessary, to supress the publication of news the diplomats deem objectionable.

What they appear to be yearning for is the secret diplomacy which, for centuries, marked practically all relationships between governments and which, even in this day, prevails to very large degree.

No one could deny claims of diplomats that publicity often adds to difficulties of reaching agreements among themselves. Secret diplomacy unquestionably would make their job easier.

But if anything in history ever has been proved a complete failure, it is secret diplomacy. Most wars have had their roots in agreements reached by that method.

Nothing can be lost by giving a real trial to the principle of "open covenants openly arrived at." If this makes the jobs of the diplomats harder, it would offer the hope that, when they finished, they would have accomplished something really worthwhile in behalf of enduring peace.

Worth Celebrating

EASILY the most important aviation news to Lubbock in recent months was the awarding of contracts recently for the new $358,000 terminal and administration building to be erected at Municipal airport.

It is an event of sufficient importance to justify the planning the Chamber of Commerce already has started for suitable dedication ceremonies when the building is completed, probably in the Fall of 1949.

Naturally, none of the details of the planning has been worked out. But the plans include the assured participation in the ceremonies of some of the most important figures in national and world aviation.

The event certainly will be one to celebrate, and it is not too soon to begin thinking of the details even now.

Adopting Mayo's recent suggestion that a baby be allowed to eat what he wants, a local mother began to wonder after little Willie ate a comic book and the contents of a sawdust-stuffed doll.

Down Memory Lane

(From the files of The Lubbock Morning Avalanche of Aug. 17, 1928.)

Officers were re-elected at an educational meeting and friendly get-together of about 200 plains ginners at Tech college stock judging pavilion. Ginners adopted a resolution opposing enforced marking of net weight of a bale of cotton. Officers re-elected were C. J. Felmet of Abernathy as president, W. T. Raybon of Snyder as vice president, and Ray Grisham of Lubbock as secretary.

Plans were outlined for a meeting of the executive board of the South Plains Area council of the Boy Scouts. W. P. Knox was area executive, and B. J. Murray was president of the board. Other board members were Rev. L. G. H. Williams, L. S. Harkey, W. G. McMillan, Dr. Paul W. Horn, Judge Clark M. Mullican, Garnet Reeves, T. A. White, Frank White, F. A. Norman, all of Lubbock; J. W. Hood of Slaton, F. L. Davis of Floydada, J. C. Loveless of Lamesa, John Herd of Post, A. B. Robertson of Ralls, George A. Lider of Floydada, A. P. Duggan of Littlefield, and R. E. Dickson of Spur.

Officers were named for Circle 1 of the First Baptist W.M.S. in a meeting with Mrs. W. H. Trice. Mrs. G. W. Foster, who was named circle chairman, presided, and Mrs. B. L. Wright led the devotional. Other officers named were Mrs. Ray Weiss as vice chairman, Mrs. Trice as secretary, Mrs. I. F. Holland as mission chairman, Mrs. F. Y. Robnett as educational chairman, Mrs. Wright as benevolence chairman, Mrs. Frazier McCrummen enlistment chairman, Mrs. B. T. Jordan personal service chairman, Mrs. John Denman social chairman, Mrs. C. C. Livingston stewardship chairman, Mrs. Sam Henry bible teacher, and Mrs. W. R. White as mission study teacher.

Herring?

Bitter Reprieve

By DREXEL DRAKE
Distributed By NEA Service, Inc.

(THE STORY: Playboy Marcus Sterling has stolen his wife's diamond necklace and handed it over as security on a $10,000 gambling debt the racketeer Harry Bindle. To cover the theft, perpetrated while his wife slept, Sterling makes it appear a professional burglary. He then goes to Edgecraft Country Club to spend the night and establish an alibi. Along with the necklace, he has also taken a sealed packet from his wife's safe. This, Marcus discovers later, is $16,000 in cash which Miriam had withdrawn from the bank to give him.

Next morning Police Lt. Talent arrives at the Sterling household. Mrs. Sterling has been found murdered in bed. The wall safe in her room has been ransacked and everything points to robbery. Talent discovers Miriam's checkbook, with a stub dated the previous day made out to $10,000 cash. The maid, Stella Nelson, tells him Mrs. Sterling always kept her diamond necklace in the safe.

At the club, Sterling excuses himself from an early golf date. He gets rid of Miriam's cash by mailing it in a sealed packet to his secretary, Miss Wilson. He phones her to hold it for him.)

XVIII

MARCUS STERLING, crossing from the telephone booth and bound for the locker room, smiled impersonally, conveying no more than casual clubhouse courtesy, when he found the mild blue eyes of the tall man grinning at him.

"Mr. Sterling?" Talent inquired.

"Yes," Sterling admitted, halting, his smile persisting.

"I'm Christopher Talent."

"Talent?"

"You wouldn't know me." Talent glanced back toward the desk. Johnny Geer, having taken over from young Bob Davis, was within earshot. "Could we go somewhere to talk?"

"Well . . . I'm just about due on the tenth tee and I still have to change to my golf shoes. Important?"

"Very," Talent said. The grin had vanished from his eyes.

Sterling led the way to one side of the foyer. When he indicated chairs, Talent said, "I guess we won't want to sit down. Been in touch yith your home this morning, Mr. Sterling?"

"My home? No. Why?"

"Well, thought you might just have been telephoning, seeing you were in the booth."

Sterling registered just a shade of justified annoyance.

"No offense, I hope, Mr Sterling," Talent said.

Sterling laughed. "Not at all. Just puzzled by your interest. Fact is, I was talking to my office. Been waiting for a call. That's why I passed up the first nine holes. But what about my home?"

"Think you ought to get there as soon as possible. That's what I came out here for, so you could ride back with me."

Sterling flushed. "I don't get it, Mr. Talent. Wouldn't my home phone for me if they wanted me?"

"Well, let's just put it that something's happened, and you ought to be there." Talent displayed his badge, almost apologetically. "I'm Lieutenant Talent, Police Headquarters in New York."

STERLING'S reaction was an entirely natural one. His eyes widened and the smile on his face died. "What in the world's happened? Couldn't you have phoned for me to rush home?"

"I thought it would be better this way. Let's leave the answers until you get home and find out for yourself."

"Okay, but shouldn't I call my wife?"

The question seemed frankly put. "I can only suggest that you don't," Talent said.

"As you say, Lieutenant. It'll take a minute to change to my other clothes and throw these things in my bag."

Sterling led the way across the foyer. He stopped at the desk. "Johnny," he said to Geer, "I've been excepting a call from my office. If you get one, say I had to rush home."

"Right, Mr. Sterling. Sorry. Giving up your room?"

"Oh, sure. Forgot to say so."

Talent was waiting at the foot of the stairs when Sterling came bounding down with his bag. Sterling hadn't needed more than two minutes upstairs. He wasted only seconds picking up his hat and topcoat from the checkroom.

Beside the car in the parking lot, Sterling tossed his coat and bag on the back seat. "I shouldn't want Shaw and Crabfield to sit around waiting for me," Sterling said to Talent. "I'll leave word at the caddy house."

STERLING walked away quickly without awaiting a rejoiner. He was back almost immediately.

"Lucky connection," Sterling said, coming up, puffing. "They were just holing out on the ninth and I was able to call to them."

"Sorry to be taking you away from this, Mr. Sterling," Talent said. "I don't blame a man for spending a morning like this out here if he can afford it."

They had traveled the short distance to Hutchison River Parkway and were bearing away from New Rochelle before either man spoke again.

"Can't you give me some idea of what's happened at my home, Lieutenant?" Sterling asked.

"I'm hoping you'll thank me for waiting until you get home," Talent said. "You came out to Edgecraft yesterday, did you?"

"Last night. Late."

"Late?"

"After midnight."

The spontaneous admission surprised Talent but he said evenly, "Go out with some other folks, Mr. Sterling? Notice you didn't have your own car."

"No, I went out alone . . . in a taxicab, Lieutenant."

Sterling had a dime ready when Talent slowed down for the Fleetwood toll gate. When Talent gestured in protest, Sterling said, "Free passenger always pays toll, Lieutenant. It's your gas and oil."

Everything he says and does makes him seem in the clear, Talent was thinking. Don't see how a man out of his mold could be shamming, with that thing on the bed on his mind.

Looking At Life - - By Erich Brandeis

IF you are a democrat you will agree with President Truman that the Republican Congress is to blame for the high cost of living.

If you are a Republican you will blame it on Truman.

BRANDEIS

You are both wrong.

Do you know who is really to blame for the high cost of living.

YOU!

Until today I would have included myself.

But from today on I am not going to wait for Congress or the November election to do something about it.

I am going to do something about it. And my wife is going to do something about it.

And I implore you to do something about it.

Like all other suckers I have been blithely going along and paying more and more for everything.

But today I had enough.

My wife took me along on her shopping trip after I had expressed surprise that the usual month's household money was lasting only two and a half weeks.

"Come with me," she said, "and I'll show you."

I like bologna—the plain, everyday beef bologna of which you could buy a big hunk for ten cents five years ago.

Thirty cents for a few slices.

Cream — I remember how we kicked when it was twenty-three cents a half pint—thirty-eight cents.

A half pound of bacon for more than what a pound used to cost—and then came the climax.

We went to the meat counter in our market.

I had asked for some veal—I love veal, veal cutlets, leg of veal, cold veal in aspic—Any old veal.

The butcher hesitated for a minute.

Then it came:

"1.29 a pound."

And that's when I went on strike.

IMAGINE—one dollar and twenty-nine cents a pound for veal!

I am not going to buy any more veal until the price goes where it belongs. I am not going to use any more cream that will soon be sold by the carat instead of the half-pint if prices keep on going up. I am going to cut out butter and eat margarine.

If my wife and I stop being suckers, and you and your wife do the same, and everybody else and his wife and children join us, prices will come down in four weeks.

BLAST AT SPY PROBE

HST Makes Blunder

By RAY TUCKER
Special Correspondent

WASHINGTON.—President Truman's political mishandling of the Congressional investigation into alleged activities of government cooperators with a Russian spy ring during the war years is attributed by many of his friends to inept advice from his White House associates. It is generally believed that he made a fatal mistake when he referred to the House and Senate inquiries as a Republican "Red herring."

As former chairman of one of the ablest and most constructive investigating committees on Capitol Hill, Mr. Truman must have realized that it is not wise to comment on their results until all the evidence has been submitted and sifted.

TUCKER

But he pursued the same strategy that Calvin Coolidge and his Republican allies did when they branded the Democratic Teapot Dome and Harry Daugherty investigators of 1924 as "mud gunners." That cynical attitude would have defeated Mr. Coolidge had it not been for the Smith-McAdoo brawl at Madison Square Garden.

DATA: Mr. Truman, according to Democrats who deplore his remark, had only to say that he would await the conclusion of the hearings before making any comment on their motive or disclosures. He could also have permitted his executive officers to supply essential data to the Congressmen with the stipulation that it be thoroughly checked before any of the individuals involved be named.

This is the process followed by the Treasury, Internal Revenue and other agencies in tracking down gangsters, income tax violators and dealers in illicit narcotics. The government sleuths are permitted to use supposedly confidential data only as "leads" and must do their own checking before seeking indictments from a grand jury.

In short, there were several "outs" for Mr. Truman had he and his colleagues around the White House been smart enough to seize them.

POLITICS: The Truman consultants held chiefly responsible for the unwise remark are Clark Clifford, White House counsel; Samuel I. Rosenman, unofficial ghost writer and political instructor; and Attorney General Tom Clark. The latter's feud with F.B.I. Director Hoover over the Red expose also contributes to the President's dilemma.

As researcher, Mr. Clifford discovered that it had been the invariable rule for Chief Executives to withhold certain information from Congress, although there are those who hold to the contrary. Former Judge Rosenman, who was responsible for Mr. Truman's announcement of a special session at the Democratic Convention, next urged him to deliver another attack on the legislative branch.

Behind the Rosenman tactics lay the belief that for Mr. Truman to surrender to Congress on the demand for personnel dossiers would be to destroy the illusion of a "new, defiant and aggressive" Democratic candidate. It might also create the impression that, contrary to his characterization of the Eightieth Session as "the second worst Congress," the legislators were not such a bad bunch after all.

In short, like so many other recent decisions of major importance, the "Red herring" outburst was based on considerations of presidential politics, and the Truman trio thought they were making a smart play.

PUZZLING: Attorney General Clark's behavior has also been most puzzling, as it has been in many instances involving the political fortunes of the Democratic Party and the man in the White House.

Members of Congress question whether his representatives made a whole-hearted effort to present a full and revealing picture of Communist infiltration to the blue ribbon grand jury in New York.

In fact, the A.G. apparently broke the secrecy rule of the grand jury room when he informed Mr. Truman that evidence against the Congressional witnesses had been submitted to the New York body, and that they had not seen fit to take action against them. The fact is that several key characters in Capitol Hill's Red spy drama were not heard by Mr. Clark's grand jury.

WARNING: But the Clark tip only made matters worse. It has raised the question of why the grand jury did not return a warning against the Washington setup in the form of a presentment. Indeed, their complaint could have said, as do many presentments, that the suituation was at least a "nuisance" if not a threat to national safety.

Nobody questions the F.B.I.'s apparent sincerity in tracking down the Soviet suspects. Whenever the White House permitted, this non-political agency has been of invaluable assistance to the Ferguson and Parnell Thomas committees.

DEFENSE: Finally, President Truman had an armor-proof defense against any suggestion that he was responsible for the apparent ease with which admitted Communists or sympathizers penetrated the federal ranks.

He could have pointed out that it occurred during the Roosevelt Administration, chiefly with the connivance of Henry A. Wallace, Rexford Tugwell and C. B. Baldwin. He could also have noted that he has done his best, and quite successfully, to drive them out of Washington.

"An alligator positively will not eat a human being," declares a naturalist. Well, maybe not, but if he gets the chance he'll damage a human being considerably by chewing off several arms and legs and maybe snapping his head off.

If motion picture directors were the sticklers for realism they claim to be, once in a while they'd let the heroine pick up a telephone and get a wrong number.

Couplet based on psychological and religious theories: To keep your emotions under control is bad for the health but good for the soul.

If you can't think of anything else for which to be thankful, you might spend a few minutes being thankful that you're tough enough to live in this tough world.

"Laugh, and the world laughs with you"—and in these days it suddenly stops laughing and asks, "What am I laughing at?"

A scientist says the onion's chief characteristic is supplied by Vitamin A. Maybe so, but it smells like L to us.

Observation: Only one old maid in 25 has a receding chin.

HOPE TO FORGET HIGH PRICES

GOPs Use Spy Probe As Issue

By THOMAS L. STOKES
Special Correspondent

WASHINGTON — It was clear from the theme of speeches at their Philadelphia convention that Republicans are going to run again, as in 1946, against Communism which, for campaign purposes, becomes broadly the Democratic party, lock, stock and Harry Truman—as was pointed out in this place at the time of that convention.

It has become more clear in the timing and in the manner in which the House Un-American Activities committee has handled its spy investigation.

STOKES

Now, finally, it has become official with emphasis on the importance of the Communism issue by Herbert Brownell, Jr., campaign manager and spokesman for Governor Dewey, in a statement to reporters after a conference with the governor. His statement, according to Edward W. Bates, veteran New York Herald - Tribune correspondent at Albany, "indicated that Communist infiltration in federal government would transcend the high cost of living as a major issue of the campaign."

Blow At FDR

The political cast of the House Un-American Activities committee proceedings is perfectly clear to any experienced observer in the way chief energy seems to be devoted to exploiting a few alleged Communists to try to discredit solid and salutary reforms of the Roosevelt administration, its brilliant war record, and the steps toward international co-operation taken by it and by the present Truman administration, the last with the very helpful co-operation of some high-placed Republicans.

The committee would inspire more confidenece in a task that could be worthwhile if it proceeded in a more orderly manner and less like an inquisition, even, for example, to such a detail as was suggested by one witness with a fine record in the public service who said the committee might have called him in and asked him about certain allegations before broadcasting them all over the country. It would have been courteous.

No one who has watched politics for many years expects any political party to be choosy or careful about issues, and no one need get squeamish at this late date. Anything usually will do that may get votes. Exaggeration from the stump, clever innuendo, even a little distortion, are accepted from long habit.

Communism is one of the perfect issues. It is as easy as being against sin—or against Russia. A little ranting is all that it needs to terrify many voters. It has been good for many years in American politics, as even casual reading of our political history will show. It requires no particular mental qualifications of the speaker. Just throw it out and bounce it up and down—and, presto, it does the trick.

Would Distract Issues

It naturally would have its place this year with all that's going on here at home and abroad. Nobody would ask or expect anything different. Just why Republicans would make it a major issue is not plain, since they certainly don't need it to win, according to the political seers. Maybe there's a clue in the view that it would "transcend the high cost of living as a major issue."

Maybe there's some wishful thinking by Mr. Brownell, though it seems ulikely, the way prices are still going up, that any issue will "transcend" the high cost of living. It might distract attention from some other fairly important issues and so undoubtedly can be useful.

All of which makes the campaign ahead a rather dreary prospect for one who is going to have to listen to lots of it. It's not very cheerful to watch the process of frightening gullible voters, just as it is not pleasant to watch the performance at the Un-American Activities committee, with the bully-ragging of witnesses. Lights come in the eyes of members and hard, grim lines come into their faces which do not seem American at all, but like faces out of pictures of the middle ages.

But we've been through it all many times before. Franklin D. Roosevelt's place in history probably won't be dimmed by calling him a few more names, for George Washington and Thomas Jefferson and Andrew Jackson and Teddy Roosevelt and Woodrow Wilson got it, too. And we've had our "know-nothing" era of hostility to foreigners, and our "rum, romanism and rebellion," and our "maw, maw, where is pa? He's down in the White House, haw; haw; haw!" and more recently our Ku Klux Klan terrorism in our politics.

We'll probably survive it, and keep the Communists from undermining our government, too.

Patrol Expands

businesses get inspections from two members of the patrol instead of one. (This practice alone, Moore said, has prevented a number of break-ins and has enabled the patrol to catch several would-be safe-crackers and burglars in the act.)

Before accepting a business for service, the Moores inspect the building thoroughly and point out precautionary measures which must be taken by the merchant himself. This may call for the installation of a stronger lock on a rear door or cleaning up trash or similar fire hazards, or still again, it may call for moving the merchant's safe to a better location.

Some Invite Break-Ins

Merchants, in effect, frequently invite burglaries and break-ins by some of their practices and habits. First, there's that matter of carelessness in locking doors and windows. And too many merchants have stationary ladders leading up to the roof, usually for checking air conditioning units, but very, very handy for the burglar who leans toward breaking in through the roof. Some merchants neglect to keep trash cleared away from behind their stores, and thus provide hiding places for prowlers and burglars.

In addition to the 260-odd stores and businesses which the Bonded Patrol covers, service is also extended to a number of construction companies for a "blanket sum" per month, depending upon the size and number of construction jobs a company wants patrolled.

The patrol also gives service to a number of used car lots in town, and every car in each lot is individually inspected at least once per night to keep drunks from sleeping in the vehicles and to discourage petty thievery. A number of business houses are given extra services such as turning on lights after dark.

Some few residents receive patrol service, either the year round, or when they are out-of-town, but this constitutes only a minor part of the Moore's business. The Moores consider their most important job to be checking fires in closed business houses, although checking for burglaries and break-in is far from a minor duty. Members of the patrol service have caught over a half-dozen fires in closed business houses in the past year.

When the service was begun, the Moores expected to use regular passenger automobiles on their routes but this proved extremely impractical for two reasons. The first was the high operation expense. The second, and incidentally, the major reason, was the city's alleys.

The average reader may wonder why no more cars are seen in the unpaved downtown alleys than are. The reason? Most drivers don't want to finance automobile repair jobs if they can avoid it, and by staying out of alleys they can steer clear of broken springs, punctured tires and dented fenders.

When this reporter rode the rounds with the patrol we drove down alleys with holes fully a foot deep or piled high on both sides with trash and with barely enough clearance for the Jeep, or with nails and broken glass covering the ground. One alley, which ran alongside a laundry, was nothing more than a pool of stagnant, malodorous water. Still another reeked with the smell of decaying vegetables.

Nor were these alleys miles away in outlying districts (though such districts have their wretched alleys, too) but mere blocks from the heart of the city.

When the Moores acquire a few more jeeps and employ several more men they expect not only to extend their service to all parts of town, but also to give better service to all their clients. Their explanation is simple: With a larger force and more men, they can shorten each man's route to where he can patrol each business with greater frequency. Patrolmen also will be able to "double up" on each other's routes with less difficulty.

In addition to these expansions, the Moores plan also to outfit themselves and their men with uniforms and hope to install two-way radios in the jeeps.

City's Population

standard building which might become a detriment to the entire city.

The new estimates are included in the last revision of "Lubbock Facts and Figures," a pamphlet of information about this city which usually is brought up to date semi-annually. The pamphlet is available for free distribution.

Cotton

NEW YORK REPORT

NEW YORK, Aug. 16. (AP)—Cotton futures declined in moderately active dealings today. Large crop prospects brought out further liquidation and hedge selling against new crop cotton in the southwest also expanded. Offerings were absorbed principally through scale down mill covering.

The July and October, 1949 deliveries were weak with selling attributed partly to prospects of a large carryover of cotton at the end of the season and fears that Congress may alter the farm price supports at its next session.

In late trading the market declined sharply into new low ground for the day on increased commission house and New Orleans selling, with the distant months showing the widest losses. The October, 1949, delivery declined to a loss of $4.50 a bale before recovering more than $1.00 a bale from the day's lows.

Futures closed 70 cents to $3.50 a bale lower than the previous close.

Efforts Made To End Packing Plant Strike

OTTUMWA, Ia., Aug. 16. (INS)—Negotiations for a new contract were resumed today as the John Morrell & Co. packing plant in Ottumwa closed important operating departments and laid off about 1,500 CIO United Packinghouse workers union employees.

The hog killing and all allied departments ceased operating and the big plant stopped buying livestock.

Earlier today 300 union workers in the fresh meat department were sent home for refusing to work, company officials said. This was denied by Union Chief Steward Ed Filliman, who said the workers were attending a meeting and had not refused to do their jobs.

New Agreement Sought

Ralph Helstein of Chicago, international UPWA president, was meeting with company officials in an attempt to get a new contract since last Wednesday.

Helstein said there was "nothing to report" early this afternoon.

The company reopened the six departments closed Saturday because of what it described as "a series of sporadic sitdowns."

The "sitdowns" began Friday after an altercation between a union and a non-union worker. The company suspended both employees and about 100 union members filled the personnel department in protest, refusing to leave until police were called.

Since termination of the contract, there are no grievance committees. The management has accused the union of attempting to "slow down" production by arguing grievances with department foremen.

FIREMAN, SPARE THAT FIRE!

ROCK ISLAND, Ill. (AP)—The Rock Island Fire Deparement is a little too efficient to suit the Dalkoff Iron and Metal Co. The firm was burning on old auto. A passerby summoned firemen who extinguished the blaze before Dalkoff officials could tell them they wanted to burn the car.

U. S. Voters Believe Olympics Improve International Relations

BY GEORGE GALLUP, Director
American Institute of Public Opinion

PRINCETON, N. J., August 16 —As the first post-war Olympic Games wind up in London tomorrow, the question arises whether the modern games fulfill their major objective of promoting better understanding between competing nations.

An overwhelming majority of Americans believe they do.

GALLUP

Almost eight out of ten say the contests, despite occasional bickering over rules and questionable decisions, do more good than harm to international goodwill. Only one in every fourteen Americans thinks the games hurt goodwill more than they help.

It will be recalled that last winter there was considerable dissension over the hockey games in Europe. Apparently such outbreaks, including even more heated disputes in former years, are not considered by most Americans sufficient ground to condemn the games.

Before the 1948 games started last month the Institute asked a cross-section of Americans this question:

"Do you think the Olympic Games do more good than harm to international goodwill — or more harm than good?"

Here are the national answers:

More good than harm	77%
More harm than good	7
No effect either way	8
Undecided	8

People who believe that the Olympics are harmful feel that the United States team is so strong that it creates ill will among smaller nations, and that at present the European athletes are not able to get enough good food to enable them to compete well. Many of the critics interviewed also said that records of previous games show constant squabbling over minor points.

One in three persons interviewed did not know what the Olympic Games are, and consequently their answers are not included in these totals. Publicity given to the London events undoubtedly has reduced the number of people unaware of the games.

When the Canadian Gallup Poll asked the same question recently, it discovered that 56 per cent of Canadians feel the games foster international understanding, while only one in ten held the view that they adversely affect relations between participating nations.

When the modern series of games began in 1896, the creation of international goodwill was the main purpose in the mind of the promoter, Baron Pierre de Coubertin, a French educator. He was devoted to the idea that competitive athletics on a world basis would help succeeding generations of the youth of all nations to know each other better and thus cut down the likelihood of wars.

B-29 Sets Record On 'Bombing' Mission

WASHINGTON, Aug. 16 (U.P.)—An Air Force B-29 has flown a record 5,792 miles non-stop with a simulated bomb load of more than 10,000 pounds, the Strategic Air command announced today.

The flight was made over the weekend. The B-29, using what were described as special cruise control procedures, left MacDill Air Force base, Tampa, Fla., flew to the West coast, dropped its simulated bomb load in the Pacific, and returned to its base.

Plane Based At Roswell

The Strategic Air command said the total flight time was 23 hours and 30 minutes.

The B-29, flown by Major Ralph R. Taylor, landed at MacDill Air base after the flight with 317 gallone of gasoline left in its tanks—s enough for about another hour of flying.

The plane and its crew are from the Eighth Air force's 509th Bomb group, stationed at Walker Air Force base, Roswell, N. M.

The Strategic Air command said the return flight from the West coast was made at an altitude of more than 25,000 feet.

While the weekend flight was a new B-29 record, it has been exceeded by one of the vastly larger air force B-36 superbombers which flew 8,100 miles several weeks ago with a simulated bomb load said to have been about the same as that of the B-29.

Losses from livestock that reached markets dead, crippled, or bruised in 1947 were estimated at $25 million.
