'Forum' Brings Laughter Riot

By DONNA WATSON

Don't let the title fool you, "A Funny Thing Happened On The Way To The Forum" is not filled with culture, grace and heavy drama; it's a comedy—a farce, a romping, stomping, belly-laugh of a riot.

When's the last time you went anywhere and saw a crowd of only smiling and laughing faces?

Well, if you were one of the lucky persons that filed in and out of the Colorado City Playhouse opening night (Wednesday), you were privileged to see such a sight.

A VERY funny thing indeed happened on the way to the forum and if you don't believe me just ask any one of the smiling faces that have witnessed this non-stop riot.

From beginning to end, the audience laughed; some with low chuckles; some with open mouthed hollers and some, like myself, with deep belly-laughs. (I was not alone holding my sides and begging for a moment's respite, which, by the way, never came until the curtain drew to a close the last time.)

Even as intermission came and went, the sound of laughter could be heard from all directions as members of the audience recalled scene after hilarious scene and hurried back to their seats in anticipation of the second half of the show.

Music, script, scenery and direction, as superior as they were, took a back seat to the acting ability of Carl Beery Moore as he portrayed Pseudolus, whose character weaves in and out of the plot tying one character to another, as waves of laughter filled the air.

This talented young man takes a back seat to no one when it comes to character portrayal, timing and ability.

The interaction between him and his wife, Marsha, who mimicked her way through a bit part into the spotlight, offer many light moments of entertainment throughout the play.

A very special accolade goes to David Galvan, the just a little odd Hysterium. This young man can act. Whether playing straight man, caught in a "Key-stone Cops" chase or singing, the audience was always aware of and delighted by his presence.

The audience, like myself, was delightfully surprised by a bright new star on the Colorado City stage, Scott Haggerton.

He, like lovely and talented Kathy Terri who played opposite him, was a pleasure to look at and listen to and was perfectly type-cast as the young, innocent and handsome, Hero. He and Kathy pulled off several tricky but beautiful duets.

This is one of the few musical productions I have ever witnessed in which the music and songs are so integral a part of the script that you never notice them.

You never sit there and say to yourself "Oh no, I feel another song coming on."

Fred McFarland, director of this production, did an outstanding job of character casting.

Tandy Curlee and Emily Kincaid team up to make the best mismatched pair of the century, he as the aged (but full of young ideas) father of Hero and she as the not-so-aged (and even fuller of "frisky" ideas) mother.

As for Kent Womack, who would have ever thought this stately gentleman could ever run a house of ill-repute and deal in the white slave (or any other color so desired) market.

Well, go to see "Forum" and when he steps on stage as Lycus, you'll believe, you'll also laugh and laugh and laugh. He performs the cowardly, befuddled Lycus so well that even I believed and I saw rehearsals.

Greg Chaney is totally believable as the egotistical Miles Gloriosus and what he lacks in singing ability, he makes up for in enthusiasm.

This play has something for everyone. Besides

Donations Requested By Woodland School

Contributions are now being accepted by the Woodland School board members to pay for the building recently built by Ronald Appling of RASP Construction Company.

Contributions of $1,500 have already been made toward the construction of the building.

The building is now being used for storage of paper items. These paper items are used by students who weigh, bundle and sell them to a recycling company.

Previously the papers were stored in the regular school building but because of government regulations on fire hazards, this had to be stopped.

The building is 12 feet wide, 18 feet long and 10 feet high.

If planning to make a donation, phone Elmer Martin who is the chairman or any of the Woodland School Board members.

PSEUDOLUS (CARL BEERY MOORE) begs his master, Hero (Scott Haggerton), to grant him the opportunity to win his freedom from slavery by procuring a lovely virgin girl's love for the innocent young man. The fun begins when Hero grants that request and Pseudolus must find a way to accomplish his aim. "A Funny Thing Happened On The Way To The Forum" will be presented at 8 p.m. nightly, Wednesday-Saturday.

Soil Stewardship Week To Be Observed During May 24-25

National Soil Stewardship Week will be observed May 24 through May 31.

"Society's Pressure Point is the theme of this year's national observance of Soil Stewardship Week and the Mitchell Soil and Water Conservation District will join in the nationwide celebration of the observance scheduled for May 24-31," said Jimmy Harrison, chairman of the district.

"The purpose of Soil Stewardship Week is to remind all people that soil, water and related renewable resources are gift from our Creator and that these gifts warrant our best in creative conservation and considerate management," added D. M. Smith who is also one of five directors of the SWCD.

In reflecting on the theme of this year's observance, Harrison said conservation districts nationwide are concerned about the shrinking

Traffic Fatality Occurs After Collision On I-20

Mitchell County experienced its first traffic fatality of the year on Interstate 20 Thursday evening.

The fatal accident occurred just east of Westbrook at about 5 p.m. A 1980 Jeep, driven by Ricky Lundin, 24, of Waldon, Colo., and a 1978 Chevrolet Dump Truck, driven by Jesse James Rhea, 46, of Paragould, Ark., were westbound on I-20.

According to a report made by Investigating Highway Patrolman Tom Johnson, the jeep attempted to pass the truck on the outside lane and as the two vehicles traveled side-by-side down the highway, they came in contact.

The jeep veered off the paved surface into the median, then traveled back up onto the highway, overturned and came to rest on its top in the center of the road.

The three men occupying the jeep were taken to Root Memorial Hospital by ambulance. The driver, Lundin was treated and released.

The passengers, James Chastain, 24, of Odessa and Donald Dove, 25, of Odessa were placed in an am-ulance to be transferred to Saint Mary's Hospital in Lubbock at about 7:30 p.m. due to their condition.

While going through some old newspapers I recently found the following article written by an unknown author in the Colorado City RECORD in the December 11, 1911 issue.

"If every citizen of Mitchell County and Colorado would determine to speak a good word for the town and county for one month, instead of cursing the county and damning the town with prophecies of evil, the result would be noticeable within the next month.

"The habit some people have of calling the attention of strangers to every undesirable feature of the county and detailing all the failures of the town in the past quarter of a century, works uncalculable harm. They give strangers the impression that they have lost all confidence in the county and town and are flying warning signals to the world to keep away. These very people often have every dollar they resource base of soil and water caused by public pressures on these resources.

At the same time, districts are contemplating the needs of an expanding world population.

"We must remember that other generations will follow us. They are going to require the same or greater needs than what we require because their population will be more numerous," Harrison noted.

Consequently we are obliged in the name of humanity to develop and follow a policy which will conserve and protect these resources. Our prime farm lands, our ranges, our forests and our water supplies must fall within the embrace of this plan so that we can perpetuate and guarantee productivity," said Harrison.

In speaking of the organization and structure of the Mitchell SWCD, Harrison said the district was organized in 1940 for the purpose of offering farmers, ranchers, and the local community a voluntary conservation technical assistance program through which individuals could seek and request conservation assistance to meet their individual land's capabilities and needs.

"Basically it is the district's responsibility to provide technical assistance, when requested, relative to proper soil usage and treatment, erosion control practices and drainage problems.

"The district must also assist farmers and ranchers with crop, range and pastureland management," said Harrison.

"To alleviate the pressure points on our soil, water and renewable resources, as stressed in the Soil Stewardship Week theme, will require individual and collective decision making in the private and public sectors of society," added Harrison.

Conservation District Director Van Mills stressed that public recognition of pressure points, the clarification of values, utilizing the processes for necessary changes, including the exercising of initiative and leadership, will result in the alleviation of pressures on renewable natural resources.

"The luxury of possessing unlimited natural resources to be consumed without concern for good stewardship no longer exists. We need to remember that civilizations have risen to greatness on a base of seemingly plentiful resources then shriveled to inconsequential status when the leadership demonstrated a lack of vision and an inability to anticipate the needs of the future," he said.

Sponsor of the national Soil Stewardship Week observance is the National Association of Soil and Water Conservation Districts.

This organization has sponsored the annual event since 1955 in cooperation with the nation's nearly 3,000 soil and water conservation districts, according to Mills.

Material on the Soil Stewardship Week theme is distributed through local conservation districts to clergy, lay leaders, civic and educational organizations and to individuals interested in participating in the celebration.

Materials and information for this year's observance can be obtained from the District office or at the Annual Ministers tour and Noon Luncheon to be held May 12 beginning at 9:30 a.m. Lunch will be served at the First Baptist Church.

During that tour, book markers and fillers for church bulletins will be given to ministers to distribute to congregations to encourage Soil Stewardship Awareness, Mills said.

Q. I am having trouble with the automatic choke on my 1974 Chrysler. Every time I go somewhere, my car won't start again until the butterfly in the carburetor is pushed down. What can I do to keep the butterfly from sticking?

A. First, be sure there is not a build-up of "varnish" inside the carburetor. Clean the linkage and butterfly valve pivots with choke or carburetor cleaner. Do not oil it. Choke plate continues to stick, the carburetor's air horn, which houses the butterfly, might be warped. You'll have to install a new carburetor. Air horn warpage is a problem on some Chryslers. This applies to 1972-74 cars and light trucks with 360 and 400 cubic-inch engines and Holley two-barrel carburetors. With this problem solved, there should be a marked improvement in fuel economy, as well as easier starting.

This contract is for the purpose of allowing West to live on city airport property on a full-time basis and operate a spraying service out of the airport.

City Manager Brenda Tarter will request approval of a resolution concerning the acceptance of grant money for the construction of a

The grant will be for 70 per cent of the cost of construction.

The city has $14,000 budgeted for the project and no date has been set for completion at this time.

The final reading of a request from Lone Star Gas Company to change terminology in their

A request from Mitchell County Utilities Company to hold an increase in water rates to that company until the Public Utilities Commission grants them permission to increase company rates will be considered.

Those I've already discussed, are the beautiful ladies of the night (or day or just about anytime). Costumed in scanty Roman garb, these little ladies are all over the stage at just the right moment, as are the Proteans. (Webster's Dictionary defines this word as meaning "readily assuming different forms or characters" and boy, do they. They pop in and out of a scene faster than you can bat an eye, always different, always on time and always funny.)

Last, but far from least, there is Porter Richardson as the old-old-old man, Errolinus.

Between his acting abilities and the make-up, he was a show stopper each time he crossed the stage.

There was magic in the evening as there always is where happiness and laughter prevail.

This production, perhaps more than any other I have had the privilege to witness on the Colorado City Playhouse stage, offers an evening of sheer light entertainment and I promise you will not come away disappointed if you go there to laugh.

Performances continue Wednesday through Saturday. I recommend you make reservations early, with a play like this, every night could be a sell-out. I know I plan to see it more than once.

"THOSE CRAZY EPISCOPALIANS"

imagine reading prayers from a book!

It's true. Episcopalians base a large share of every worship service on "The Book of Common Prayer," a very uncommon piece of literature.

The word "common," in this instance, means "together." Most churches use a hymnal because they want to sing together. Episcopalians use a prayer book, too, because they like to pray together. No one is ever asked to "lead in prayer," but each finds ample opportunity during the service to frame his own private prayers.

To those who decry written prayers, Episcopalians point out that The Lord's Prayer is just that...and yet its meaning to every Christian is undimmed by its being reproduced in print.

They believe there's good reason for following the Prayer Book's carefully-planned scheduled and form of services throughout the Christian year. For one thing, and individual church is thus spared from becoming mired in its minister's "hang ups." Pretty good point, these days?

The biblical background, the history, and the simple form of the Episcopal prayer book make a fascinating story. Your nearest Episcopal minister would be delighted to cover them in detail with you. Don't be afraid he'll "twist your arm." He won't.

Commissioners Court To Meet With Area Extension Agent To Discuss Added Funds

Mitchell County Commissioners will hear a request from Area Extension Agent Ken Cook for an increase in extension funding during the regular monthly meeting Monday at 1 p.m. in the County Courthouse.

Members of the Colorado City Volunteer Fire Department will appear before commissioners to request purchase of new high-band radio equipment for the fire trucks. They will also request new pagers which will operate on the new high-band frequency.

This is being done because the city is purchasing new high frequency radio equipment and the firemen use that system for communications.

Also slated for consideration is an amendment to the court minutes, establishing salary compensation for jurors.

Under state law, the jury's salary is set at $6. The court set the compensation at $5 at an earlier date.

A request to close a designated street and dispose of the same will be heard by the court. This is in regard to land outside the city limits which was never used for the purpose of a street.

County Judge Bill Carter will report on several letters he has received in reply to employment of a delinquent tax collector.

The delinquent tax contract with Collector Ed York was cancelled last month.

Right-of-way easements for Mesa Pipeline Company and Latern Petroleum Company will be considered by the court during the meeting.

Bids will be opened for the purchase of two new cars for the Sheriff's Department.

COLORADO CITY AREA Chamber of Commerce Ambassadors helped celebrate the opening of Centennial Headquarters with a ribbon cutting ceremony Wednesday.

State Comptroller Gives First Quarter Mixed Drink Tax Remittance Reports

State Comptroller Bob Bullock sent Mitchell County a check for $422.19 for the Mixed Drink Tax Remittances for the First Quarter of 1981 collected by the Alcoholic Beverage Commission.

A total of $2,814.57 in mixed drink taxes were collected in the county.

Colorado City collected $1,982.82 in mixed drink taxes. The city's 15 percent remittance totaled $297.42.

Scurry County will receive a check for $2,754.01 from the total $18,360.07 taxes collected.

Snyder will be receiving $2,346.07 from the total $15,640.49 collected within the city limits.

possess invested in the town and county, but do all they can to beat down the value of their own investments. They demonstrate almost as much intelligence as the chap who stood on a limb and chopped it off between himself and the tree."

When this article was printed on December 11, 1911, the Colorado RECORD had several sections with each one consisting of approximately 25 pages.

Though the English may not be correct, I feel that whoever wrote this article had to have been right. Look how the town has dwindled to an almost nonexistent state since that time.

Slowly but surely, the cities of Mitchell County have grown smaller and smaller. It is not my place to pin the blame on anyone; but, if the town wants to be here in 100 years, some of the town people are going to have to do something a little different...be positive.

XXX

Unfortunately, this will be my last column to write for the Colorado City RECORD. I have decided to pursue an associates nursing degree from Howard College and will start school May 29.

I have enjoyed meeting and working with so many Mitchell County people. It wouldn't have been possible for me to get to know my home in many other jobs.

I will continue to live here while going to school and hope to see the town prosper in wealth and happiness.

XXX

Mothers...Is there one way mothers can be described? No, there is not one way a mother can be described because a mother is so many things.

First, a mother is a caretaker, a person to change diapers, a person to play with, a person who reads books to you and one who tucks little ones in at bedtime.

As the years go by, the mother may still be a caretaker, but she will also become a friend. There is no love like a mother's love and no one can take this love away from a mother and child.

Being a mother myself, I know that it is not always easy, but the benefits and the good times outweigh the bad 100 to 1.

Make today mother's day and let her know just how much you appreciate her. Her appreciation of your appreciation will most likely be remembered and cherished much longer than you think.

A Few Reasons To Wait

By Bill Jany County Entomologist

Conditions at a glance appear great for planting cotton. Soil moisture levels range from good to excessive, soil temperatures are above 60 degrees, so why wait?

For those producers who have their land ready for planting, this question has probably gone through their minds.

I am sure every farmer has his own opinion about when the right time to plant is, and most of them are based on many years of successful farming experiences. Every farmer knows that many variables effect seed germination, not the least of which are soil moisture levels and temperature of both the soil and the air above it.

Too much or too little soil moisture and too low soil temperatures can cause a good planting to produce a poor stand of very slow growing plants, forcing the farmer to replant or to live with this situation for the rest of the season. With a good year like this one where the farmer is banking on a good harvest, planting early may cost you more than you thought you could gain.

I have been monitoring our soil temperature levels both in Mitchell County and at the Big Spring research center for the past several days. They have been ranging at the 60 degree level for the past several days. Now, a general rule of thumb that many farmers use is to plant after the soil temperature measured at the 8 inch depth has averaged 60 degrees for ten consecutive days. They will quickly add that if you are using less than good quality seed, wait until the average soil temperature is around 70 degrees.

Soil moisture levels not only influence soil temperature levels, but also can influence the incidence of seedling disease. The higher the soil moisture level, the greater risk of seedling disease, especially when soil temperatures are low and poor quality seed planted.

Temperature, as we have already discussed, is very important not only with seed germination, but seedling growth also. Seedling growth is slowed considerably when soil temperatures are low. When low soil temperatures are combined with high soil moisture levels and poor quality seed, the incidence of seedling disease is greatly increased because of the poor plant vigor, slow growth rates and environmental conditions favoring disease pathogens.

A study conducted at the Lubbock research center several years ago not only supports this claim, but also showed that early planted cotton did not produce blossoms significantly before cotton planted in the latter part of May, mainly because of the lower soil temperatures during the beginning of May.

Managing the boll weevil should be an important concern to all cotton farmers in Mitchell County. We have been very fortunate during the past several years, unfavorable environmental conditions for boll weevil survival and reproduction and effective management programs have allowed cotton producers to grow their crop without severe economic loss from this pest. Unfortunately some producers have forgot how much damage boll weevils can do to a crop, and how difficult and expensive they are to control. The way this season is shaping up, it appears that conditions for boll weevil survival and reproduction will be optimal. Given two years of these same optimal conditions without some sort of management program, boll weevils could increase to economically damaging numbers in Mitchell County again.
