Midland banks 'holding their own'

By DEANNA J. NEAL
Business/Oil Writer

Midland banks posted a predictable decline in deposits and loans for the second quarter of 1986. However, according to most bank officials, the drop was less than expected and area banks are holding their own in light of the local slumping economy.

Overall, the banking picture in Midland was flat but stable during the quarter.

Deposits for the quarter are down $67 million (4.5 percent) from the second quarter of 1985. The deposit total of $1,531,887,641 represents a drop of $78 million (4.8 percent) from the first quarter of this year.

Loans, at $862,736,129 at quarter's end, are 0.5 percent lower than at the end of the same quarter in 1985, and down 2 percent from the previous quarter.

Area banks were prepared for a decline going into the quarter, and efforts to tighten belts and weather the economic times have allowed the declines to be bearable.

"We are basically pleased with our performance during the quarter. In Midland, loans and deposits are directly tied to current conditions in the oil industry, so when there's not a lot going on, you're going to see a drop," stated Billy Murray, comptroller at RepublicBank First National, the city's largest bank.

Deposits at RepublicBank fell 16 percent from year ago, while loans were up by about 2 percent. The bank posted quarter-end totals of $731,485,000 for deposits and $283,091,000 for loans.

First City National Bank posted a 14.5 percent decline in deposits, down almost $51 million, while loans fell by 1.6 percent.

"One of the difficult things about the slow economy in Midland is that we have neither control over oil prices, nor any way of forecasting or predicting when and how much it will turn around," observed First City president Bill Franklin.

"We could only hope for the best and prepare for the worst, and I think First City has done the job, evidenced by the minimal deterioration. Our customers are still depositing the same checks — they're just for less money."

David Jones, president at ClayDesta National Bank, points out a traditional drop in deposits seen in the second quarter, but notes that across-the-board cuts in oil prices have added to that decrease.

"We will continue to see a high degree of liquidity. With no significant loan demand, deposits are remaining liquid. There is no reason to aggressively solicit deposits at this time."

Deposits at ClayDesta were 7 percent less than at the end of the '85 second quarter. Loans, however, jumped 16 percent over the same period.

Gov. Mark White discusses economic development and diversification during a meeting at Mission Country Club Monday.

White says state needs to diversify

By FRANK TROMBLEY
Staff Writer

Gov. Mark White, who came to the Midland-Odessa area Monday to deliver an address on economic development at Mission County Club, said, "The importance of this meeting is emphasized by the number that are here, by the fact that you have probably been hit more harshly by the falling price of oil than maybe any other section of our state. It's been very difficult.

"We all know what the problem is. The solution to it is primarily in two places. One is somewhere in Saudi Arabia. The other is in Washington, but we can't wait on them to make a decision to start solving problems that are directly impacting our state," White told the gathering of 200.

Noting that the growth of Texas communities has been "resource-driven," with oil and gas being the resource in many areas, White said, "We'd better start figuring out what to do now in developing new industries, broadening and diversifying what we have."

The governor said a lot of people question why he "fools with education so much. Why doesn't he just leave us alone and let us play football."

He noted that football is important, but he said this week, for the first ime, Texas students in primary schools "are at the national average."

"You say, 'what's so great about being average?'" he asked. "Because we've never been there before," he stated.

Citing education as one of the key factors in attracting new industry, the governor referred to the Leander School District in northern Travis County, the quality of which was being advertised on television and paid for by a homebuilder.

He noted the homebuilder was "touting the school district" in order to sell homes.

"Do you think your school district's worth advertising. Would you pay for it?" he asked. "I bet you would 'cause you've got some good ones. If you don't you ought to find out why."

Jobless rate tops 14 percent

By ALLEN E. HOWLAND
Business/Oil Writer

Seasonal growth in the labor market attributable to recent graduations and summer job seekers pushed Midland's unemployment rate to another record high in June, jumping to 14.2 percent from 11.7 percent a month earlier. Odessa's jobless rate took an even more dramatic leap, up 3.5 percent to 19.6 percent from 16.1 percent in May.

The significant increases in the percentage of workers unable to find work come despite the fact that total employment in both cities fluctuated by only 100 workers. Total employment in Midland during June was 46,100, down from 46,200 the month before. However, an increase of 1,400 in the total available work force from 52,300 to 53,700 pushed the jobless rate upward.

Odessa actually showed an increase of 100 in total employment to 50,600 during June. But that gain was wiped out by a 2,700-worker increase in the total labor force, which pushed the unemployment rate higher.

"A large number of school employees, recent high school and college graduates, and other students seeking summer jobs showed up for the first time in the June figures," said Joe Hatcher, area manager for the Texas Employment Commission. "This along with the continued slump in the oil industry combined to boost total unemployment and the unemployment rate."

Total unemployment in Midland jumped from 6,100 in a labor pool of 52,300 in May to 7,600 of a labor force of 53,700 in June. In Odessa, June found 12,300 workers out of a total labor force of 62,900 unable to land a job. Those figures compare to 9,700 of 60,200 the previous month.

"Despite the seasonal increase in early summer, it is too early to predict if the usual labor force shrinkage in the fall when school resumes will be enough to override soft economics and improve the unemployment rate," Hatcher says.

Jobless rates in both cities continue to hover approximately two and a half times higher than last summer.

Oil price still fluctuating slightly

NEW YORK (AP) — Oil prices dropped slightly in early trading today, after rising the day before, amid reports that Saudi Arabia was abandoning its production quota and widespread doubt that OPEC will agree on a system of sharing cutbacks.

On the New York Mercantile Exchange, contracts for August delivery of West Texas Intermediate, the benchmark of U.S. crude, opened at $12.70 per 42-gallon barrel, down from Monday's close of $13.09.

Among contracts for August delivery of refined products, unleaded gasoline opened at 33 cents per gallon, down from 35.16 cents Monday, while heating oil dropped to 34.50 cents from Monday's 35.56-cent close.

Monday's oil prices had risen slightly from Friday, with West Texas Intermediate, for instance, closing 23 cents higher.

Rosario Ilacqua, an oil analyst with L.F. Rothschile, Unterberg, Towbin, in New York, said prices probably rose because of a technical increase in demand and a drop in domestic production last month.

"In the face of very high OPEC production the oil market has rallied (because) we're approaching the winter now," Ilacqua said. "Inventory usually is built up it the month of August."

William Byers, of Futures Research, Bear, Stearns & Co., said, "I wouldn't interpret this (the price rebound) to any great expectations of OPEC reaching an agreement."

Some analysts predicted that oil prices would remain volatile at least until oil ministers of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries meet July 28 to try to prop up prices by restraining production. If the group fails to reach an accord, they say, prices are almost certain to drop again.

Most OPEC producers have exceeded ceilings set by the cartel in a free-for-all that has sent oil prices down by more than 66 percent of last year's high of nearly $32 a barrel.

Chamber names executive

By DEANNA J. NEAL
Business/Oil Writer

The Midland Chamber of Commerce board of directors met for the second time in less than a month to name a new executive vice president to fill the post vacated by Grant Billingsley in February.

Joe Kloesel was named today to fill the position left open by last week's resignation of Henry P. Jones III of Jonesboro, Ark. Jones, who resigned the position after only ten days, cited personal reasons for his resignation.

Kloesel, in accepting the position, said, "I am happy to accept the challenge the position offers, particularly at a time when we will have to pool strong efforts with dedication to pull through tough times."

Kloesel, who has served previously in a volunteer capacity as president of the Midland Chamber and the West Texas Chamber, added, "I have always been involved on the steering and guiding end of chamber activities. My new position will be one of executing the goals and plans set forth by the chamber's board."

Kloesel, a 24-year resident of Midland, is a mechanical engineering graduate of the University of Texas at Austin. He is well-known locally for his 19-year tenure with Drilco Industrial, the largest industrial employer in Midland during the late 1970s.

Before leaving Drilco in 1981, having served as its president for six years, the company enjoyed annual revenue of close to $50 million, with five plants on three continents and a major market share with most of its products in targeted markets throughout the world.

Most recently in business for himself as a business and engineering consultant, he is currently active in economic and industrial development on the local, state and national level. He is vice chairman of the Texas Economic Development Commission and the West Texas Chamber of Commerce Superconducting Super Collider Steering Committee.

Kloesel is also vice president of the Texas Small Business Industrial Development Corp. and the Industrial Foundation of Midland, Inc. He is a director of the West Texas Chamber Foundation and the Permian Basin Bid Center, Inc. and serves on the board of executors of the Permian Basin Petroleum Museum.

Syria blasts 'treasonous' Morocco during Peres visit

RABAT, Morocco (AP) — Syria today accused Morocco of "black treason" and urged all Arab nations to cut ties with King Hassan II's government to protest his summit with Israeli Prime Minister Shimon Peres on Middle East peace.

Peres arrived Monday and flew directly to Hassan's private airfield near Ifrane, 125 miles east of the capital of Rabat, and the site of the king's summer palace, according to Western diplomats who spoke on condition of anonymity.

They said the two leaders began talks immediately, but gave no details. Reports in Israel suggested Peres was expected back in Jerusalem today or Wednesday.

In an official statement from Damascus, Syria today announced it severed ties with Morocco and called on other Arab nations to follow suit, as most did when Egypt made its peace with Israel. The only other Arab leader to meet publicly with an Israeli prime minister was the late Egyptian President Anwar Sadat.

The state-controlled Moroccan press, radio and television maintained complete silence today on Peres' visit. Access to the palace was barred by troops and security men.

'Dangerous' hurricane moves toward Hawaii

HILO, Hawaii (AP) — A "small but dangerous" hurricane named Estelle with wind gusts up to 150 mph moved steadily westward across the Pacific, prompting the National Weather Service to issue a hurricane watch for the island of Hawaii.

Dangerous waves and surf were expected today along the east and southeast shores of Hawaii, known as the Big Island, 150 miles southeast of the island of Oahu, the weather service said.

No immediate evacuation of the shoreline areas was ordered.

"Right now, we are just observing and giving out advisories to residents in affected beach areas," said Hawaii County Civil Defense Administrator Harry Kim.

The hurricane watch issued at 5 p.m. Monday, means hurricane conditions are possible within 36 hours, the weather service said.

Estelle was 515 miles east southeast of here and 715 miles east southeast of Honolulu.

Federal task force studies drought-damaged Dixie

Rains won't end heat damage

Associated Press

Storms deluged parts of the parched South, damaging buildings, bringing cooler temperatures and causing flooding in Birmingham, Ala., while floodwaters in Arizona kept a 17-mile stretch of an interstate highway closed today.

The band of storms, which extended Monday night from California to the South Atlantic coast, should keep today's temperatures below 100 degrees in most of the South, but would not ease the region's drought, said Pete Reynolds of the National Weather Service's Severe Storms Center in Kansas City, Mo.

"Some areas did receive a good amount of rain, but others remain parched," Reynolds said today. "It's a drop in the bucket for what they need."

Winds accompanying a thunderstorm in Tallahassee, Fla., knocked down trees that heavily damaged four homes and ripped through the roof of a store, injuring two people, authorities said. About 20 other people inside the Service Merchandise store were able to escape after part of the roof collapsed.

"It looked like a hurricane going through," said Phillip Leach, manager of the jewelry department.

The two injured at the store were admitted in stable condition at Tallahassee Community Hospital, officials said.

The late afternoon storm dropped temperature of 96 degrees to 72 within three hours, the weather service said.

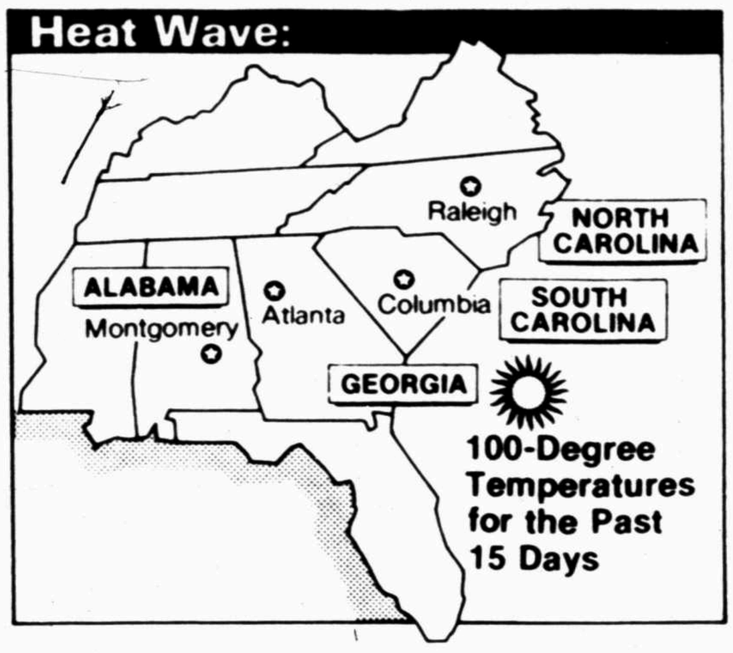

In Alabama, 3.35 inches of rain fell on Homewood and downtown Birmingham, causing street flooding.

Despite the downpour, Birmingham's rainfall remained about 16 inches below normal, said Chuck Terrell of the weather service.

The storms dumped 1.95 inches of rain on Jackson, Miss., which last got 1 inch of rain on June 28. Savannah, Ga., got 1¼ inches and Atlanta just over half an inch.

In Arizona, up to 3 feet of water closed a 17-mile section of Interstate 10 near Ehrenberg after storms deluged the area, said Sgt. Allan Schmidt of the state Department of Public Safety.

A shelter was set up in a school for people forced from their homes, but the numbers of evacuees were unavailable, he said.

Midwestern farmers send hay

Associated Press

Southerners who face losing the farm as drought turns Dixie to dust say they need feed, not loans, as a federal task force continues to study the effects of the dry spell and heat wave blamed for millions of dollars in crop losses and at least 39 deaths.

Hay donated by Midwestern farmers for emergency airlift continued arriving today to feed hungry livestock in the South, where the U.S. Department of Agriculture task force was headed today for the Carolinas.

Months of below-normal rainfall have withered pastures despite some localized storms. The number of deaths attributed to the more than two weeks of triple-digit temperatures in the South and Midwest on Monday reached 39.

The storms began Monday afternoon, with more than 3¼ inches causing flash flooding in Birmingham, Ala., but the rains still left the city 16 inches below normal, National Weather Service meteorologist Chuck Terrell said.

Scattered showers and thunderstorms also reached from the Carolinas to Florida, with Florence, S.C., and Savannah, Ga., getting more than 1.25 inches and Atlanta more than half an inch.

"As far as a drought-buster this isn't it," said Kay Robinson, a weather service spokeswoman in South Carolina.

Record highs were reached in nine cities in Georgia and the Carolinas, including Columbia, S.C., where the record-tying 105 degrees made Monday the 15th consecutive day of triple-digit temperatures.

It was 102 in Columbus, Ga., and Atlanta's 101 degrees marked its fourth straight day of record temperatures.

Today's forecast called for highs in the 90s from the Carolinas to Florida and from the Tennessee Valley to central Gulf Coast.

With crop losses from the drought estimated at up to $700 million in Virginia, the Carolinas and Georgia, a USDA task force toured farms in Georgia and Alabama on Monday and were to inspect damage in the Carolinas today.

What they saw at a farm in Ila, Ga., was 12-inch high, wilted soybeans still trying to bloom, 18-inch sorghum not yet budded and knee-high corn without ears.

Although the inspections end today, Dunlop said decisions on most drought disaster aid would not come until late summer or early fall.

Reagan struggling to retain control of South Africa policy

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan, making his first formal address on South Africa in nearly a year, is struggling to retain control of U.S. policy without bowing to growing congressional pressure for tougher action to punish the white-ruled Pretoria government.

Presidential spokesman Larry Speakes said today Reagan would disclose some "specific steps" the United States can take to improve the effectiveness of U.S. policy toward South Africa. But it was clear those steps would not include political or economic sanctions, whose "adverse consequences" would be pointed out in Reagan's speech, the spokesman said.

"He will note the growing violence and repression in South Africa," Speakes said, and will "stress the need for change and analyze what has already been done and what more needs to be done in terms of making progress toward political peace."

On the eve of this afternoon's speech, Reagan heard a warning from the chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, Richard Lugar, that time is running out for peaceful talks between the white government and majority blacks.

Interviewed today, Lugar said he, Senate Majority Leader Robert Dole and Sen. Nancy Kassabaum, R-Kan., told Reagan "we think the time is late with regard to the beginning of negotiations between the white government and black leadership — that at a minimum, blacks who are imprisoned in South Africa who are leaders who could be part of those negotiations must be freed. There must be a start of those talks."

Dole called the meeting "a rather frank discussion."

Today's speech follows weeks of administration efforts to defend its strategy of trying to influence the South African government's racial policies through quiet diplomacy.

But Lugar said that policy has not had much effect.

"I think the president understands he really has to address the fact that the South African government hasn't moved very much in the last year," since Reagan, under congressional pressure, imposed limited sanctions to encourage change, Lugar told reporters after the 45-minute meeting with the president Monday.

"The president will have to do some things that will cause that movement," he added.

Elaborating in an interview today on the "CBS Morning News," Lugar said:

"What we're really talking about are setting up the circumstances for negotiations so that there can be an end to apartheid, and a sense of peace in South Africa.

"The political constitution, the construction of that democracy is a long way down the trail, but for the moment, at least significant leaders," including Nelson Mandela, "as well as other black leaders that have been imprisoned or are really not in the political picture right now must be brought into that. I think that can be done."

Lugar, whose committee opens three days of hearings tday on legislation to impose economic sanctions against South Africa, said he cautioned Reagan not to deal with such punitive measures, at least for now.

"We have a feeling that there is still some distance to go" toward talks between the white government and blacks. "This is why we counselled the president not to get into the sanctions question if he could avoid it in his speech — he ought to leave that option open," Lugar said.

Lugar, an Indiana Republican, said Reagan is faced with losing control of U.S. policy toward South Africa unless he can persuade Congress he is prepared to take action that will bring about tangible progress toward dismantling the system of apartheid.

BANKS

"We were pleased with the performance and strength of our loan portfolio," said Jones. The ClayDesta president added that the bank was adopting a "hold-on" philosophy until Midland can recover from a "deep-seated recession that won't end until there is some stability in oil prices."

Western Bank also saw a shrinkage in both deposits and loans. Deposits at the bank fell 5.8 percent over last year, while loans plummeted by 30 percent.

"As a result of diminished cash flow into the city, we have made a conscious decision to hold back. Our shrinkage is by design, but that is not to say we are being unresponsive to customer needs," reported president Bill Parker.

Parker expects the bank to continue the planned shrinkage in order to be in a good position to carry on when business picks up.

United Bank showed earnings even with the first quarter of the year, but posted gains in both deposits and loans from a year ago. Deposits were up almost $17 million, or 23 percent. Loans climbed by $12.5 million for a 24.6 percent growth.

Said United Bank president Don Jones: "Our emergence as a profitable institution in the city is a result of our liquidity and conservative lending standards that have inspired community confidence in our bank."

Jones noted that the bank is well-capitalized and expects to see some moderate growth in earnings in the third quarter.

Jim McCain, president at Security National Bank, predicts that 1986 will be a flat year with very little loan demand. "Our plan is to stay very conservative in the third quarter and into the remainder of the year. This has served us well thus far, and we are pleased with the bank's performance in light of conditions."

Security tallied total deposits of $10.5 million, down 18 percent from last year, and loans of $6.5 million, down more than 19 percent from 1985.

Community National, the city's newest bank, continues to grow in both its loans and deposits. The bank's total deposits grew by 33 percent over the one-year period, while loans grew by 5.8 percent for the same period.

"We made a lot of progress during the year, and during the second quarter, but I wouldn't be surprised to see some decline in the third quarter. Loan demand is practically nil and I don't see that the demand is going to pick up in the near future," commented Larry Harrell, president.

Midland American Bank vice president Steve Holt also was pleased with his bank's performance. The bank raised its deposit total 20 percent and increased its loans by 12 percent.

"Our principal customer base is the middle-market consumer, so the oil industry problems have not hurt us quite as badly as some others."

"Of course, every one in Midland is affected by unstable oil prices," he added. Holt forecasts a continued flat market for the remainder of 1986.

Texas Commerce Bank is faring economic uncertainty well, showing a gain of 15 percent in deposits from a year ago and a healthy 37 percent gain in loans.

"We are being cautiously optimistic, but really expect to see some decline in the remainder of this year," commented Ed Jones, president.

"When oil prices go down, all of Midland hurts, and the recession will show up in the banking community as an overall indicator of commercial activity in the area."

Texas American president Steve Landy says, "In today's economic environment, there should be more concern for how well a bank is managing what it has, rather than how much growth is being seen."

"Earnings and liquidity are more important and those factors, coupled with capitalization, are the keys to customer confidence in a bank."

Texas American showed a decrease in deposits of 17 percent over the second quarter of 1985, and a 2.7 percent downturn in loans. Loan growth over the previous quarter was 18 percent, but Landy noted that the growth was in the bank's participation portfolio, and not indicative of the real loan demand, or lack thereof, in Midland.

JOBLESS

— In Midland, 4,400 more are out of work than last year when 3,200 of 54,100 jobseekers were out of work, a 5.9 percent rate.

— The number of unemployed in Odessa grew to 12,300, 8,000 more than last June when 6.9 percent, 4,300 of 62,200, of workers were unable to find work.

Around the Permian Basin, outlying counties' jobless rates are being severely impacted by the prolonged energy slump. Andrews County continues to show the lowest figures for the area, but its rate broke into double figures for the first time in June at 10.5 percent.

TEC unemployment figures for other surrounding counties are: Reeves, 23.4; Winkler, 20.0; Dawson, 19.6; Pecos, 15.9; Ward, 15.5; and Howard, 14.4. All counties showed increase of two to three percentage points over May figures.

Statewide, the jobless rate topped 10 percent, with a seasonally adjusted figure of 10.5 percent.

Odessa ranks 27th of the 28 metropolitan areas in Texas, with only McAllen showing a higher jobless rate — 21.0 percent. Midland ranks 17th, far above the state-low 6.9 percent in Austin.

WHITE

Stressing the importance of the University of Texas of the Permian Basin, White said, "We're going to keep it open and we're going to make it better because just keeping it open isn't good enough," he stated.

"We need to fashion programs at UTPB that will be attractive to new industry."

The governor referred to a brochure published by the UTPB Center for Energy and Economic Diversification, saying the partnership of the center and business community has to become a magnet to attract new industry that would promote economic diversification.

"Why would anybody want to move here?" he asked. "You better have some good answers for them."

He noted that same kind of development is being done in Austin, attempting to develop answers to such questions.

White recalled that Houston "was just kind of a sleepy city back in 1969," when Shell Oil Co. decided to move there from New York.

"It started a boom and we've had a boom on a continuous roll down there," he said. The attitude in Houston has been, he said, "Boy, aren't we great business people, we're really working hard."

The governor observed that they were simply taking orders, "we weren't selling anything. It's time to sell. It's time to get into the marketing business."

He recalled the competition for the location of the MCC electronic research consortium in Austin. He saw presentations by Dallas, Austin and San Antonio.

If thoroughness and aggressiveness of presentation had been enough, he said, MCC would have located in San Antonio. But, he added, Austin won because of the University of Texas and research facilities.

Recalling the San Antonio videotaped presentation, the governor said, they talked about green trees, the people and clean water. They showed U.T. San Antonio, Trinity University and they had a picture of Rice University. Later, White said, he mentioned the Rice picture to Mayor Henry Cisneros, commenting that Rice was in Houston.

"What's the deal?" the governor asked, to which Cisneros replied, "Mark, don't worry about that. San Antonio is a growing community."

"That's what we're going to have to be," White said. "We have to be aggressive. We have to go out and sell it."

Waiting for the governor to arrive, the group of about 200 business and political leaders viewed a film produced by the Texas Economic Development Commission concerning economic diversification.

PERES

Moroccan officials declined to confirm Peres' arrival.

In Tel Aviv today, a close Peres aide said the prime minister hoped to discuss Middle East peace, but did not take a specific plan with him.

"We have here a meeting to clarify positions, getting to know the position of the other side," Yossi Beilin, the Cabinet secretary, said on Israel radio.

Simcha Dinitz, a Labor Party legislator close to Peres, said the prime minister's visit to Morocco was part of "an emerging coalition of Israel, Jordan, Egypt and Morocco, with the acquiescence of Saudi Arabia."

The first time an Israeli prime minister and an Arab leader met publicly was in 1977, when Sadat flew to Jerusalem and met with Menachem Begin. Their talks led to the 1979 Egyptian-Israeli peace treaty.

Israel and Morocco are technically in a state of war, but Hassan, who is pro-Western and a moderate, was involved in the opening of contacts between Egypt and Israel.

The Syrian Foreign Ministry summoned Morocco's ambassador in Damascus and gave him one week to close Morocco's embassy and leave the country. Syria also barred its citizens from traveling to the moderate North African country, state-run Damascus radio said.

"Syria, which cannot be silent in the face of this black treason, has decided to break all ... relations with the Moroccan kingdom and asks all Arab governments to take measures which fulfill their national commitments against this flagrant and dangerous conspiracy," the radio said.

In Cairo, Egyptian President Hosni Mubarak today welcomed the Peres-Hassan talks as an initiative that could advance Middle East peace prospects.

CHAMBER

Citing Kloesel's extensive experience not only with the chamber, but also with the Midland Industrial Development Corp., United Way of Midland and the Permian Basin Better Business Bureau, Jim Allsup, chairman of the committee in charge of the search for a new executive vice president, stated, "We feel great satisfaction in obtaining the services of a local businessman and community leader. We feel extremely fortunate to have at our fingertips the leadership and experience that Joe Kloesel will bring to the chamber."

Mexico to sign agreement with IMF

MEXICO CITY (AP) — Mexico today signs a bailout loan agreement with the International Monetary Fund that includes an unprecedented link to the price of oil on the world market, the Treasury Department announced.

Mexico, with a $98 billion foreign debt, has been negotiating for months with the IMF on a series of fiscal remedies to bring its escalating debt crisis under control.

Details of the agreement were not released, but The New York Times, quoting Mexican and international lending organization officials, said in today's editions that the agreement could lead to $12 billion in new loans.

The Times said details of the exact amount would be fully worked out after the accord was signed, but said $6 billion to $7 billion was expected to come from U.S., European and Japanese banks, and $1.3 billion to $1.4 billion from the IMF.

The remainder will come from Japanese funds for trade and industrial development, the World Bank, the Inter-American Development Bank, and other international lending institutions and governments, the Times said.

Mexico's Treasury Department announced Monday that it had reached agreement on $2 billion in new credits from the World Bank and the Inter-American Development Bank.

Treasury Secretary Gustavo Petricioli was enthusiastic about the new IMF accord. Petroleum is by far Mexico's biggest export item, and its drop in price by more than 50 percent since December has been especially hard on this Latin American nation.

"Mexico will sign a new kind of agreement which, for the first time, supports an economic program of revival and growth," Petricioli said in statements issued late Monday before he flew to Washington for the signing ceremony, to be held at the Mexican Embassy today.

"For the first time, the international financial organizations validate an economic program that is not recessive, (but is) designed to get (Mexico) out of the crisis," Petricioli said.

Petricioli said only that the loan was tied to the price of oil. He said it would provide more money if the international price of oil falls below $9 per barrel, and less if the price goes above $14 per barrel.

A 42-gallon barrel of oil was trading Monday at $13.09.

He said the agreement also provides for additional money if Mexico's growth goals are not met in the first third of 1987.

Petricioli also was scheduled to meet Wednesday in New York with representatives of commercial banks, who have been reluctant to discuss lending additional money to Mexico until it had an agreement with the IMF.

Analysts have said that Mexico will need from $5 billion to $6 billion in new credit this year to meet payments on its foreign debt, the second largest in the developing world after Brazil's.

"The international organizations, today, make definite an imaginative and novel contribution, concluding in this way one more phase in the difficult process of negotiations," Petricioli said. "The next stage must include the active and decisive participation of commercial banks and the governments of the industrialized nations."

Mexican officials have said any agreement must allow the Mexican economy to grow by 3 to 4 percent in 1987 and 1988, so that it can work its way out of the debt crunch through growth instead of simply piling on new debts.

The economy is expected to contract by at least 3 percent this year, the third recession in five years.

The treasury secretary said the agreement provides that, if growth falls below the goal for the first third of 1987, aid will be increased from abroad through public investment in projects to be determined by the Mexican government.

"It is impossible for Mexico, economically and socially, to absorb internally the totality of the negative effects that external circumstances are generating for it," Petricioli said.

Bolivian police lead an unidentified cocaine suspect across the Yapacani River in central Bolivia. The suspect is one of 18 arrested by police northwest of Santa Cruz.

Bolivian police arrest 18 suspected drug traffickers

LA PAZ, Bolivia (AP) — Police lying in ambush arrested 18 suspected cocaine traffickers in Bolivia's heartland, but U.S. military-backed airborne drug raids in the tropical northeast remained stymied by bad weather, officials said.

The 18 suspects were being held in the city of Santa Cruz, 350 miles southeast of La Paz, Santa Cruz Federal Prosecutor Antonio Santillan said Monday.

Santillan told reporters the suspects included seven major Bolivian cocaine industry figures, but he refused to identify them, claiming that could hamper ongoing anti-narcotics operations.

He said the traffickers were caught in the Yapacani River area, about 80 miles northeast of Santa Cruz, and were apparently fleeing from the Chapare region north of the river.

He said police had set up an ambush in the Yapacani, catching suspects over a three-day period starting Friday.

Meanwhile, two U.S. Black Hawk helicopters, each carrying 30 members of Bolivia's anti-narcotics police, the Leopards, sought out cocaine processing labs in the vast Beni region of grassland and jungle, but were forced to return empty-handed because of poor visibility, Information Minister Herman Antelo said.

He said the raiding parties "were unable to find their targets" and flew back to their staging base at the city of Trinidad, headquarters of the U.S-Bolivian anti-drug operation 260 miles northeast of La Paz.

Antelo cautioned against evaluating the joint program that began Friday as a failure.

"In the Western-developed mind there is frustration, but we have learned to be more patient," he said at a news conference in La Paz. "We are more accustomed to processes that take a longer time to complete."

Anti-narcotics officials believe the Beni region, nearly half the size of Texas, contains dozens of clandestine laboratories that make cocca leaf paste and cocaine, but the raiders found only one before bad weather grounded operations Sunday.

About 160 pilots, technicians, repairmen and communications experts from the U.S. Southern Command in Panama are providing support in the operations, which are expected to last up to two months. Air Force transport planes brought in six Black Hawk helicopters and three heavy trucks.

Fifteen agents of the U.S. Drug Enforcement Admiistration are taking part, and the agency provided two reconnaissance planes.

Bolivia had assigned 72 Leopard officers to the joint effort as of Monday morning, but police officials said up to 200 more were expected.

The anti-drug campaign was revealed by Bolivian news reports on July 15, and many traffickers have apparently dismantled their operations and fled since then.

Antelo said it would be wrong to conclude that the operation had not been successful because only one lab had been raided so far.

"This is a distortion of the real goal," he said, which was "to break the back of the cocaine industry. We believe this has been achieved since the start."

"They are not processing and they are not trafficking," he said. "They are concerning themselves with fleeing."

Peasants living near the cocaine lab raided Friday said an apparent evacuation occurred the previous Sunday, a day before U.S. troops and equipment began arriving in Bolivia and two days before the first news reports.

The raiding party found the site abandoned and all processed drugs gone.

Bomb explodes at office of economic group

New York Times
News Service

PARIS — A 20-pound car bomb exploded before dawn Monday at the Paris headquarters of the Organization for Economic Cooperation and Development, and the French terrorist group Direct Action took responsibility, the police said.

Officials said no one was hurt in the blast. The bomb shattered windows along the facade of the main building and across the street. The police said the explosives had been packed in the trunk of a car parked outside the heavily protected headquarters.

The bombing Monday morning was the latest in a campaign of violence by Direct Action, an extreme leftist group that has been the focus of France's anti-terrorism effort. The group took responsibility for a bombing in an annex of the Paris police headquarters on July 9 that killed a senior officer and seriously wounded three officers.

Direct Action increased its attacks after the rightist government of Prime Minister Jacques Chirac came to power after parliamentary elections in March. Shortly after Chirac took office, the group issued a statement vowing to "terrorize the terrorists," a reference to the new government.

The Organization for Economic Cooperation and Development is a 24-nation group that monitors the economic performance of the Western industrial countries. Leftist groups such as Direct Action have criticized it as a "club" of wealthy nations, including the United States.

A three-page Direct Action communique sent to a news agency here Monday said the attack Monday was part of an offensive aimed at "counteracting the economic, military and political strategy of imperialism in Western Europe."

The French police have been investigating links between terrorist groups in France, West Germany and Spain.

Foreign Minister Jean Bernard Raimond is scheduled to visit Madrid this week to discuss the status of Basque political refugees in France with Foreign Minister Francisco Fernandez Ordonez.

Arms experts to discuss SALT in special session

GENEVA (AP) — Superpower arms experts meet today to discuss the SALT II treaty in a special session proposed by the Soviets and reluctantly accepted by the United States on condition it also deal with alleged Soviet violations.

The 1979 Strategic Arms Limitation Treaty has never been ratified by the United States, and President Reagan has said he would not be bound by the treaty's limits because of what he called a pattern of Soviet non-compliance.

Reagan cited the alleged Soviet violations in announcing in May that the United States would exceed SALT II limits late this year as new cruise missiles are deployed on B-52 bombers.

The Soviet Union has denied the charges, and warned that if the United States abandons SALT II, it will respond with a new arms buildup of its own.

The U.S. delegation also is expected to press for detailed discussions on the alleged Soviet SALT II violations that are denied by Moscow.

The United States has mentioned alleged concealment of missile test data and the 1985 deployment of the SS-25 long-range missile, considered by the United States to be in breach of the treaty.

Times reporter held on suspicion of espionage

PEKING (AP) — Executive Editor A.M. Rosenthal of The New York Times said Monday that China's detention of the newspaper's Peking correspondent on suspicion of espionage could harm U.S.-Chinese relations.

John Burns, 41, a Briton, has been in police custody since Thursday. Chinese officials say he is being investigated on suspicion of gathering intelligence while on a motorcycle trip through restricted areas of central China.

After meeting with Burns for 30 minutes, Rosenthal said the detention "is not only bad for John Burns, but it is not good for relations between China and the United States, and the longer it goes on the worse it will become.

"The idea that China is opening has taken hold in the United States and abroad and I don't think this will do it any good at all, to put it politely."

Earlier Monday, Burns saw his wife Jane Scott-Long and their two small children for the first time since being locked up. He also met with U.S. and British embassy officials.

All said Burns was healthy and in good spirits, and reporters outside the gate of the Peking Public Security Bureau branch saw Burns hug his children — Jamie, 5, and Emily, 2 — and kiss his wife goodbye.

Mrs. Scott-Long said her husband was "in very good spirits...He's not sure how long he's going to be held...He says all the charges are unfounded and that he's in very good form."

Burns is being treated "like a privileged prisoner" who has his own cell and two exercise periods a day, she said. Rosenthal said the reporter is under round-the-clock guard and has been bothered by a light which never goes off.

The Chinese have not filed any charges against Burns, but say he will be detained until the investigation is concluded. He has not had access to a lawyer.

Rosenthal, who arrived here Saturday with Times Foreign Editor Warren Hoge, said he was told by the security officer with Burns, identified only as Gen. Zhang, that no evidence had been found that the reporter was involved in espionage.

Burns took the trip to central China with a U.S. Justice Department lawyer who has since left China and a Chinese man whose whereabouts are not known.

Police stopped the three near the border of Shaanxi and Sichuan provinces and held them for two days. They were released July 7 after writing lengthy "self-criticisms."

WORLD IN BRIEF

Nicaraguan copter crashes

MANAGUA, Nicaragua (AP) — All but one of 23 people aboard a Nicaraguan military helicopter were killed when mechanical trouble caused the aircraft to fall into a river, the Sandinista newspaper Barricada said Monday.

Among the dead were 14 civilians and eight military personnel, according to an Interior Ministry communique carried by the paper, the first public announcement of the Saturday crash.

The ministry identified the survivor as co-pilot Lt. Roberto Chamorro Martinez, but gave no details of his condition.

The Soviet-made Mi-8 helicopter crashed shortly after takeoff, plunging into a river near Cruz del Rio Grande village, about 85 miles northwest of the Caribbean port Bluefields, the communique said.

It said the helicopter was conducting routine transport work when it crashed from "mechanical imperfections."

Fossilized clam found

TORONTO (AP) — A U.S. scientist working on Ellesmere Island in the Canadian Arctic has discovered a fossilized clam that is four feet across and some 75 million years old.

"It would most probably have made one hell of a clam chowder. You could have eaten it for days," William Zinsmeister of Purdue University in Lafayette, Ind., was quoted Monday as telling the Toronto Globe and Mail.

He said his find could prove to be the world's largest clam fossil. It is being shipped to Purdue for study. The American said he found hundreds of ancient clams in a wall of rock on Ellesmere, in northernmost Canada.

The scientist said life was not so bad at the poles in the Cretaceous period, when the water was warmer and animals abounded in dense forests.

Auschwitz convent disputed

PARIS (NYT) — Roman Catholic and Jewish spokesmen plan to meet in Switzerland this week in an effort to resolve a dispute over the establishment of a Catholic convent at the Auschwitz death camp in Poland, sources said.

Cardinal Franciszek Macharski, head of the Archdiocese of Cracow, in which Auschwitz lies, has left Poland to attend the meeting, according to a spokesman for the cardinal in Cracow. Other Catholic and Jewish spokesmen from France, Belgium, and Italy are expected to attend the meeting near Geneva, which is expected to start today or Wednesday.

Some Jewish groups have protested the establishment, in 1984, of a Carmelite convent just outside the Auschwitz camp. Roman Catholics say the Carmelite nuns, who devote their life to prayer and contemplation, are praying for all the victims of Auschwitz.

Latin America group meets

ACAPULCO, Mexico (AP) — Representatives of 11 Latin American countries opened a meeting Monday to try to reach concrete agreements on regional economic integration.

President Miguel de la Madrid, who inaugurated the meeting of the Latin American Association for Integral Develoment, urged the group to work toward establishment of a broad, regional preferential tariff agreement, elimination of non-tariff restructions and perfecting a coordinated transportation system.

Other steps to be taken, he said, are adoption of financing measures, improving the existing payment system and promoting an effective support system for less developed countries.

Central American and Caribbean nations sent observers to the meeting.

Explosion demolishes bus

COLOMBO, Sri Lanka (AP) — An explosion demolished a passenger bus in the the north-central city of Vavuniya today, and at least 25 people died in the explosion, a government agency spokesman said.

The spokesman for Sri Lanka's Joint Operations Military Command said it was not immediately known if the bus had hit a land mine or was blown up by a bomb on board.

"We only know that at least 25 civilians have been killed, among them females," said the spokesman, who spoke on condition he not be identified.

Several passengers injured in the explosion were flown to a government hospital in the sacred Buddhist city of Anuradhapura.

Fire rages through Jakarta

JAKARTA, Indonesia (AP) — A fire swept through at least 400 houses in northern Jakarta, leaving thousands homeless but causing no injuries, police said today.

Police said 20 fire engines were sent to put out the huge fire Monday in the capital's Muara Baru district.

Police were still investigating the cause of the blaze, but witnesses said it began when a cooking stove exploded in a house.

The fire came nine days after a blaze destroyed four boats and a number of houses in the nearby Kali Baru port.

PLO wants to move offices

BEIRUT, Lebanon (NYT) — The Palestine Liberation Organization has decided to move its Jordanian offices to Iraq and Sudan if permission from those governments could be obtained, Palestinian sources said.

The PLO will also seek Arab mediation to resolve its conflict with King Hussein of Jordan, who closed the group's offices in Jordan earlier this month.

Palestinian sources here in contact with the PLO said that the decisions were made Sunday at the end of a weeklong meeting in Tunis of the central committee of Al Fatah, the largest group within the PLO.

Report allegedly calls for reforms in Soviet economy

MOSCOW (AP) — Two Western news organizations have obtained a report purportedly leaked by a Soviet official that calls for sweeping reforms of the centralized economy and warns that the Soviet Union is in danger of becoming a second-rate power.

The document was obtained by NBC and by the London newspaper The Guardian. An English translation was made available by NBC.

It is signed by a previously unknown group called "The Movement of Socialist Renewal" and dated, "21 November 1985, Leningrad." Neither NBC nor the newspaper said it had any information on the organization, including its size, composition or purpose.

NBC correspondent Steve Hurst said in a broadcast Monday night that he received the document, consisting of 17 pages typed in Russian, through an intermediary who told him it came from a senior Soviet official.

The official was not identified. The report is presented as a message "to the citizens of the Soviet Union."

The document's authors say that if the report is published in the Soviet press, they would be willing to appear on Soviet television.

The report says the Soviet bloc is coming apart and the Soviet Union is falling far behind the United States in military might and technology.

Unless sweeping reforms are made, government officials will see "the turning of the U.S.S.R into a second-rate power...and the downfall of the world socialist system," the report said.

The operation of the Soviet economy "is characterized by mismanagement and irresponsibility on the part of those in the state apparatus who are most responsible for the state of the national economy," the document added.

The document, citing detailed statistics, said the Soviet Union is the world's biggest debtor nation, suffers from a chronic shortage of basic food products and the lowest standard of living among the industrialized nations.

The report said the Warsaw Pact "has ceased to be a united and monolithic alliance of fraternal countries."

House set to vote on judge Claiborne's impeachment

NATION

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House is set to impeach the chief U.S. district judge for Nevada, an imprisoned tax evader who has refused to quit on the eve of a certain vote to remove him.

An impeachment vote is scheduled today for Harry E. Claiborne, who so far appears willing to buck the odds and face what Richard M. Nixon, in the same situation 12 years ago — shunned — a House defeat and a Senate trial to remove him from office.

Claiborne is collecting $215 in salary every day he resides at the Maxwell Air Force Base prison camp in Montgomery, Ala., where he's serving a two-year sentence.

Lacking any support from House members, Claiborne would be the 14th federal official impeached by the chamber, the 11th judge and the first to suffer such a fate in 50 years.

Impeachment is Congress' method of removing a federal official from office for treason, bribery and high crimes and misdemeanors. High crimes and misdemeansors are offenses that undermine the system of government, and need not be criminal violations.

Nixon admitted he faced impeachment by the House and likely conviction by the Senate when he resigned Aug. 9, 1974, telling the nation he lost the base of his congressional support.

But Claiborne, who never had such a base, has expressed a desire through his attorney to mount a defense in the Senate.

The Democratic judge wants to push his claim that his conviction resulted from a vendetta by the government. On the bench and as a private lawyer, Claiborne was known in his state for scrapes with federal prosecutors and agents.

The House will make its decision after an hour's debate, and likely take just a single vote on a resolution incorporating four impeachment articles.

Article I says that "on or about June 15, 1980...Judge Harry E. Claiborne did willfully and knowingly" submit an income tax return for the 1979 calendar year which he "did not believe to be true and correct."

The return reported total income of $80,227, the count stated, even though Claiborne "well knew...he received and failed to report substantial income in addition to that stated."

Article II uses similar language describing Claiborne's submission in 1981 of his 1980 return. It contends the return "reported total income...of $54,251" even though Claiborne knew his income was higher.

According to a Judiciary Committee report, trial evidence showed Claiborne did not report income of $18,740 in 1979 and $87,911 in 1980.

Article III recommends impeachment because on Aug. 10, 1984, Claiborne "was found guilty by a 12-person jury" and subsequently sentenced to a two-year prison term and fined $10,000.

Article IV said Claiborne's behavior "reduced confidence in the integrity and impartiality of the judiciary, thereby bringing disrepute on the federal courts and the administration of justice."

Anticipating Claiborne's impeachment, the Senate Rules Committee already has scheduled a meeting Thursday to review trial procedures.

In addition, Senate Minority Leader Robert C. Byrd, D-W.Va., said he wants to explore use of a rule that would allow a committee of senators to take testimony. Historically, the entire Senate turned itself into a court and heard the evidence.

Byrd suggested in a letter to Majority Leader Bob Dole, R-Kan., that the two leaders meet next week on the committee procedure with Sen. Strom Thurmond, R-S.C., chairman of the Judiciary Committee, and Joseph R. Biden Jr. of Delaware, the ranking Democrat on the panel.

In the nation's impeachment history, four defendants were convicted, three resigned during the proceedings, the case of one defendant was thrown out on jurisdictional grounds and five defendants were acquitted by the Senate.

Conviction in the Senate takes a two-thirds vote. In additional to removal from office, senators could bar a defendant from ever holding a federal job.

Californians warned to brace for more quakes

BISHOP, Calif. (AP) — Californians were warned to brace for more earthquakes as residents recovered from the state's fourth big temblor in two weeks, which damaged every home in one mountain town and shook buildings as far away as Utah.

Despite the warnings, some of the 300 residents of Chalfant Valley, a High Sierra town where all 145 houses were damaged, said they wouldn't leave.

"I like it here," said Nona Roripaugh, 29, a police dispatcher in Bishop, five miles away. "It could happen anywhere, and if it happened in the city, it would be that much worse. Buildings fall on you in the city. Here you go outside and you're OK."

Monday morning's quake left 50 people homeless, swayed buildings hundreds of miles away in Las Vegas, Nev., and Salt Lake City, buckled a road, caused rock slides and briefly stranded hundreds of campers. Two minor injuries were reported.

The quake, estimated at 6.1 on the Richter scale, was centered in the High Sierra, 240 miles north of Los Angeles and five miles from Chalfant Valley, which sustained the heaviest damage.

It came one day after a 5.5 magnitude quake and was followed by two strong aftershocks measuring 5.2 and 5.1 on the Richter scale and dozens of smaller aftershocks. Quakes earlier this month shook the Southern California coastline near Oceanside and the desert around Palm Springs.

Dr. Dallas Peck, director of the U.S. Geological Survey, wrote Monday to William Medigovich, director of the state Office of Emergency Services, warning that the Sierra area faces more quakes.

"It is our assessment that the region of Chalfant Valley from Bishop north to the Nevada border may experience additional earthquakes similar to the July 21 event during the next several days," Peck said.

A series of smaller quakes that began July 3 and led up to Monday's temblor are part of a marked increase in seismic activity over the last decade that could generate an earthquake of 7 on the Richter scale, he said.

Geologist Alan Ryall of the Center for Seismic Studies in Arlington, Va., said Monday that seismic activity in the area since 1978 has been about 20 times greater than during the previous decade.

Officials said all 145 homes in Chalfant Valley, 10 miles north of Bishop, sustained some damage. Fifty-three mobile homes were knocked from their stands and some were badly damaged. Uninhabitable mobile homes forced about 50 people to seek other lodging, said U.S. Forest Service spokesman Dick Serino.

Resident Shirley Burnett, whose mobile home was wrecked, said she was cleaning up the damage from Sunday's quake when Monday's hit.

"At first it was kind of a slow rolling, and then it hit hard and then I said to myself, 'Man, I just better get out of here,'" she said.

Officials said one woman suffered a few minor cuts when she and her husband were jarred awake amid falling objects in their Chalfant Valley home and a storekeeper was slightly hurt by falling debris.

FAA adopts tougher standards for aircraft materials

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Federal Aviaton Administration has adopted tougher flammability standards for materials used in aircraft cabins to delay the spread of fire and creation of deadly smoke and toxic fumes.

The new regulation requires the use of "more fire resistant and slower burning materials than those currently allowed for cabin sidewalls, ceilings, partitions, stowage compartments, galleys and other interior structures," the Transportation Department announced Monday.

The more stringent requirements apply to all existing and new commercial aircraft with 20 or more seats, but airlines will be allowed several years to replace cabin materials in existing aircraft.

Bill to think about

Like it or not a painful alliance unites the farmer and the undocumented laborer in a virtual conspiracy to violate immigration law. And nobody — nobody — is winning in this situation.

The American employer exploits the undocumented worker. The illegal alien exploits loopholes in immigration law. Exploiter and exploited work together like the blades of shears to cut holes in the border fence.

The American people want to halt illegal immigration. They also say they want to end the exploitation of undocumented workers. Senators and representatives have tried to replace the broken fence with the two components of enlightened immigration reform — employer sanctions and amnesty. Yet there are sticky problems with either of those options.

Year after year the fence-cutters have gotten to the immigration bill and torn holes in it. The movement of people through the torn fence, littered with blood-stained clothing, continues, even grows.

To their undying credit, those who support immigration reform also have continued to fight, cajole, plead and compromise in order to pass an immigration bill that will stem illegal immigration and resist exploitation.

The latest compromise comes from the House Judiciary Committee. Crafted by Reps. Charles E. Schumer, D-N.Y., and Howard Berman, D-Los Angeles, it has the blessing of Western farmers and Hispanics, who have killed immigration bills in the past. They're not fighting this bill because the Schumer-Berman compromise would give Western growers the right to continue using foreign labor to plant and harvest their crops. It would give illegal alien farm laborers working in the fields the right to become legal residents of the United States of America. And it would give Western growers the right to replenish farm laborers who leave the fields for factories and hotels.

No wonder this bill appeals to farmers and to Hispanics. It's appealing for two reasons:

It recognizes the political reality that the farm and minority opponents of immigration reform must be satisfied in order to pass any bill. And it recognizes that the watered-down amnesty provided in the immigration bill would not be sufficient to bring enough illegal aliens out of hiding to end the exploitative system of American apartheid. The compromise would provide a form of amnesty for undocumented farm workers.

The danger of this compromise is that it could provoke restrictionists and opponents of amnesty to kill immigration reform on the floor of the House.

Granted, it's going to be extremely difficult to craft an immigration reform bill that pleases all concerned. Even if this bill is not the final one adopted, it contains some realistic provisions that likely will have to be included in any immigration bill that is passed. It needs to be considered thoughtfully.

Museum offerings diverse

In this age of instant entertainment, one needs only to flip a switch, take a seat, and be swept away for hours into an electronic media world. With such a ready diversion at our fingertips, it is not difficult to overlook the valuable resources that exist within our own community for the purpose of enriching the lives of our citizens.

As a father and grandfather, I am keenly aware of the need to enrich the lives of the children of Midland by giving them learning experiences that supplement schoolbooks and reach beyond television programming. And, faced with the painful reality of the oil squeeze, I look for these learning opportunities close by and at minimal cost. Earlier this year I rediscovered an outstanding Midland institution that fills this need for quality, low cost, educational entertainment.

When Halley's Comet came into view, I took my youngest son to the Marian Blakemore Planetarium where special free programs for viewing the comet were offered. This was such an enjoyable experience that we have returned many times for the biweekly astronomy program.

The Marian Blakemore Planetarium is located on Indiana Street on the grounds of the Museum of the Southwest, and is only one arm of this exciting cultural and educational complex.

Founded in 1965 by the Junior League of Midland, the museum has steadily expanded its services to include exhibits, educational programming for children and adults, special events such as Septemberfest, docented tours of exhibitions and museum facilities, and a variety of community outreach programs.

An archaeological research center and library of art and anthropology are other important facets of the museum complex.

Recognizing the importance of the museum to the Midland area, corporations and local and national foundations have given generously to the museum. These donations and contributions from individuals have enabled the museum to keep its doors open to the public free of charge throughout its history.

The museum is responding to needs of the community by adding a new collections storage, education, and exhibits wing. This will allow the museum to continue to provide Midland with quality programs and services.

I feel proud and fortunate that Midland can boast such an excellent resource that is dedicated to stimulating young minds and to encouraging our children to develop creative and intellectual skills they will need to deal with the future.

Stop by the museum soon. I know you'll be as impressed as I am. The museum is open from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Tuesday through Saturday, and from 2 to 5 p.m. on Sunday.

Good management pays

The article which you ran a few weeks ago concerning the salaries of our city management has no doubt created more than just a little interest during these times of economic downturn. However, I for one believe in the old adage "you get what you pay for" and that's exactly why I don't mind bringing the best municipal professionals to Midland and paying them accordingly.

It is interesting to note that, according to the Texas Municipal League, Midland has one of the lowest city ad valorem tax rates in the state per $100 of assessed value:

City	Gross Tax Rate
Houston	.495
Dallas	.492
Austin	.528
Lubbock	.610
Amarillo	.490
Wichita Falls	.689
Odessa	.486
San Angelo	.695
Big Spring	.690
Abilene	.487
Midland	.398

Could there be some correlation between hiring top caliber city management and having low city tax rates?

I believe there certainly is — better managers can run a city more efficiently thus resulting in lower taxes for the citizens. We see this philosophy in businesses from banks to oil companies all the way to the pro sports team that hires a top quality coach and rewards him handsomely. This type of thinking pays off in the long run for businesses just as it has paid off for Midland taxpayers.

I'm not saying that city management should not receive pay cuts as proposed by the City Council, because even with the cuts they will still be making good money, but what I am saying is that their high salaries don't bother me because I am benefitting as a taxpayer.

RFE nod linked to Slovak Congress

WASHINGTON — Radio Free Europe, the government-funded station that broadcasts to Eastern Europe, has stirred up controversy again with one of its appointments.

Jack Anderson

The organization has named as its coordinator for Protestant religious programming Rev. Dusan Toth, the executive secretary of the Slovak World Congress. The founders of this group included former officials of the Nazis' puppet "republic" of Slovakia during World War II.

Toth had no association with the fascist wartime state or with its leader, Father Joseph Tiso, a virulent anti-Semite who was hanged as a war criminal in 1947. But the Slovak World Congress has steadfastly refused to repudiate the Tiso regime, and Toth himself took strong exception to our recent column reporting the Democratic National Committee's embarrassment over "Slovak Independence Day."

We disclosed that, due to an error that was quickly corrected, the committee's "ethnic calendar" included among its noteworthy anniversaries the date in 1939 when Adolf Hitler annexed the western half of Czechoslovakia into the Third Reich and set up the eastern half as a puppet state under his devoted toady, Tiso. The date actually marked the brutal extinction of the Czechoslovakian republic's two decades of independence.

Toth doesn't see it that way at all. "Independence Day of Slovakia is deeply rooted in our history," he wrote us, "and I cannot comprehend why you would stoop so low and print such a narrow summation. I truly feel sorry for you ... that you are so narrow-minded and incapable of finding even one positive fact regarding the Slovak Nation."

Obviously we weren't criticizing the Slovak people, who were themselves victims of Hitler and Tiso. In fact, thousands of gallant Slovaks rose up in rebellion against the fascist Tiso regime in 1944. They were gunned down by Tiso's goons with the help of German troops. We consider the doomed rebellion a "positive fact" about the Slovak nation. Does Toth?

History records that Tiso's Hlinka Guard, modeled after Hitler's SS, rounded up tens of thousands of Slovakian Jews and shipped them off to the death camps — after first confiscating their property. "The Jew is a boil on the body of the Slovak nation, and we have to get rid of that boil," Tiso declared.

Congressional sources told our associates Corky Johnson and Donald Goldberg that Toth's appointment has raised some serious questions on Capitol Hill. There have been complaints that Toth is not an American citizen (he is Canadian) and is not a member of any official Slovak Lutheran organization in the United States.

Toth has been praised by conservative Catholic political writer Michael Novak, a member of the board which oversees Radio Free Europe.

It is Toth's association with the controversial Slovak World Congress that has drawn the most fire. Rev. Jerry Mraz of the (Lutheran) Slovak Zion Synod complained bitterly about the appointment in testimony to the House Appropriations Committee.

The appointment "upsets the leadership and pastors" of the Lutheran synod, Mraz said, "and we raise objections to his appointment." Mraz pointed out that Toth had been rejected for membership in the synod "because of his involvement with the (Slovak) World Congress."

WATCH ON WASTE: When a veteran's widow remarries, her Veterans Administration benefits are supposed to end. But the VA's inspector general compared Virginia marriage records with the VA's records of payments to surviving spouses as of September 1984, and found 62 widows who had not reported their remarriages from 1978 to 1983. They had continued to draw benefits of $500 to $1,500 a month, for a total of almost $1 million. Based on the Virginia results, the VA figures as many as 1,820 widows nationwide pocketed a total of $27.8 million they weren't entitled to over that five-year period.

NSC transformation making Reagan victim

WASHINGTON — The case of Ollie North pinpoints the transformation of the National Security Council (NSC) staff under Adm. John Poindexter from arbiter of interagency struggles and control point for operations to a bland paper machine that makes President Reagan victim rather than master of the bureaucracy.

Rowland Evans

Robert Novak

Marine Lt. Col. Oliver North has been Reagan's star player in the long, hard struggle to keep alive the Nicaraguan contras while the House tried to smother them. Poindexter, described by critics as "uneasy" with North's growing fame on a staff the admiral prefers gray and faceless, wants him back in the Marines. The pretext: to fend off a politically-drenched House probe of North as Reagan's handler of the contra account.

Although serious enough by itself, the imminent loss of North is important as a symbol of the institutional degradation of the once-mighty NSC staff. It is inconceivable that a Henry Kissinger or a Zbigniew Brzezinski would fire the one member of the NSC staff who could keep it — and hence the president — in tight control of the unfolding contra drama. That anomaly, transcending Nicaragua, is affecting U.S.-Soviet relations.

Shedding the once formidable power of the NSC staff over the feuding bureaucracies of State, Defense and the Central Intelligence Agency (CIA) is what Poindexter apparently feels is expected of him. Critics inside the administration feel that comports with White House chief of staff Donald T. Regan's wish to be surrounded by gray and faceless officials who cannot threaten his own supremacy or gain power enough to play to the press. "He wants neuters," an insider told us.

That may make Poindexter the man for him. But an NSC staff infused with passivity invites feuding bureaucracies to settle matters by elbowing their way, individually, into the Oval Office. There they can argue their parochial policy preferences in the absence of an NSC synthesis. As one State Department official told us, "The system works just fine for (Secretary of State) George Shultz, because the president becomes the victim of the one who sees him most, and that's our George."

Pentagon officials were surprised when stories appeared in the press praising Soviet ruler Mikhail Gorbachev's arms control letter just after it arrived in the Oval Office. These officials knew there had been no NSC-directed interagency discussions of the arms control proposals and no adversarial proceeding. Yet here was the president pumping out the line that Gorbachev's letter contained new and serious ideas.

Shultz's verdict that the new Soviet arms control ideas were meritorious was not shared by leaders of the Arms Control and Disarmament Agency, the Defense Department or the CIA. Yet the rendition given wide publicity by Ronald Reagan at the instigation of Shultz and his advisers immediately achieved status as administration policy.

It has now become the basis for heavy pressures on Reagan to accept the Soviet demand for a moratorium on withdrawing from the Anti-Ballistic Missile (ABM) Treaty. In the absence of a well-formulated administration policy, the president is being urged to write Gorbachev a letter offering a multi-year ABM extension that would suffocate the Strategic Defense Initiative (SDI).

Once a premature policy-line becomes generally accepted, it is difficult to "walk it back," to use national security bureaucratese, so that opposing points of view can get an equal hearing. The issue becomes moot. The NSC staff has not given the president protection from bureaucratic end runs.

NSC protection for the president in the case of the contras has come from the staffer earmarked for oblivion, Ollie North. Although nothing is yet chisled in granite, he is supposed to be replaced by Vince Cannistrero, a CIA Central America specialist who has been on the NSC staff for two years. The switch would likely send North back to the Marine Corps, though he might stay at the NSC with his original counter-terrorism assignment.

The House investigators have sent a letter to the president asking for all contra documents and papers involving North. Both Regan and the White House legal staff have tentatively decided to invoke executive privilege and withhold the few such papers that exist.

Poindexter is described by friends as wanting to step back from any confrontation, which he says privately might hurt the president (but which critics say he fears might hurt him). Stepping back means getting rid of North.

That is what the CIA wants. With its man Cannistrero handling the Central America account in the White House and the agency running the operation in Nicaragua, CIA hegemony over the delicate contra maneuvers ahead would be solid. Such domination is opposed by both the Pentagon and State.

Considering Ronald Reagan's personal stake in the fate of the contras, why would Adm. Poindexter shift power from his own staff in the person of Ollie North to the CIA? The opposite course seems called for if the president has any desire to return the NSC staff to its previous functions on the wide array of questions from South Africa to arms control so hotly disputed in the administration.

NASA successes amazing despite Challenger

I've kept my trap shut in the aftermath of the Challenger tragedy. I'm not an engineer and don't presume to comment on technology which, frankly, I don't understand.

Charley Reese

It is time, however, for us non-technological citizens to learn a few civic lessons from NASA's troubles.

It is obvious to the people, if not to the Monday morning quarterbacks, that people previously bored by NASA's long string of successes and flatly uninterested in its problems now have an intense interest in dissecting and analyzing the space agency as well as preaching and posturing. In the case of Congress, this is no doubt intended to distract the public's attention from Congress's previous negligence in oversight and funding.

As a way to run a country's space program, this won't cut it. The time to be interested in a program is before there is an accident, not afterwards. NASA, like other government agencies, suffered from the desire of politicians to have their cake and eat it too. They like to set grandiose goals but they are reluctant to fund them adequately. Despite occasional and highly selective use of whistleblowers, Congress doesn't like government employees who rock the boat. They like bureaucrats who will flatter them. Most so-called congressional oversight is a joke.

The fact that NASA is scattered over several states is not the fault of NASA. Those were political decisions — plain old pork barrel.

We should note also the tendency of critics to prefer drama to perspective. To hear some post-Challenger critics tell it, NASA never has done anything right. Somehow or other, though, NASA did get to the moon and back as well as launch a mess of satellites and deep space probes and develop a space shuttle which, considering that it is on the leading edge of technology, has a remarkable safety record.

Finally, we should note that it is never a question, as some imply, of eliminating risks. It is simply a question of managing risks. We have had automobiles and airplanes for a long time but they still occasionally malfunction and people still get killed in them. The space shuttle, because of its complexity, is and always will be a dangerous vehicle. Rockets are dangerous. The whole enterprise of space exploration is dangerous.

It is a curious and unjust irony that NASA's success in minimizing the risks of an inherently risky operation contributed to people's shock and subsequent reaction. People had come to expect the shuttle to take off as routinely as a Boeing 747 when in fact not one of its previous successful takeoffs and landings had been anywhere close to routine. They had all been extremely dangerous undertakings.

To the technologically illiterate the danger was not so visible. To the politicians and their public relations types it was deemed impolitic to educate the public. Their impulse is to bamboozle the public — to boast about success and take credit for it and in the aftermath of the tragedy to avoid any responsibility for it.

NASA never was nor will it ever be a perfect organization. Human beings are not capable of perfection. They are not omniscient. They are not infallible. That's why utopians rank ahead of Monday morning quarterbacks as useless people. NASA should not be judged by utopian criteria nor should it be saddled with utopian expectations.

Judged by human standards, NASA has been a remarkably successful organization. It has succeeded at extremely difficult tasks many more times than it failed. That should not be forgotten as attempts are made to make it even better. Nor, once changes are made, should anyone be allowed to pretend that nothing bad can ever happen again, for it surely will. Frontiers are dangerous places.

The men and women in NASA have earned our respect. To fail occasionally in the midst of achieving great and difficult goals is not a fault. It's heroic.

Sterilized woman sentenced 30 years in son's starving death

COLUMBIA, S.C. (AP) — A woman who underwent sterilization so prosecutors would reduce charges she faced in the starving death of her infant son pleaded Monday to manslaughter and was sentenced to 30 years in prison.

Debra K. Williams, 26, who had been charged with murder and unlawful neglect of her 3-month-old child, offered what is known as an "Alford plea." While not conceding guilt, she admitted prosecutors had enough evidence to convict her.

Solicitor James C. Anders said he agreed to reduce the charges against Mrs. Williams in exchange for her sterilization because there was no evidence that she had mistreated children other than her own.

Mrs. Williams, who underwent a tubal ligation last week, already had a criminal record for abusing her children.

She and her husband, James Williams, were arrested Nov. 20 after taking their son to a hospital. The infant, who weighed 6 pounds, 7 ounces, died of malnutrition and dehydration at the facility.

Anders told Circuit Judge John Hamilton Smith before sentencing that pictures taken of the baby at the hospital showed every rib clearly, and the flesh around his cheeks was sunken.

"Those pictures are as bad as anything you could see coming out of a concentration camp in Germany," Anders said.

Prior to sentencing Mrs. Williams, Smith said she had committed a "premeditated and malicious killing."

"You don't starve a child in a moment. You starve them day by day, hour by hour, in a premeditated and malicious killing. And that's what you did," the judge told her.

"You let that child starve to death slowly, slowly, and when he protested, you gave the child vodka."

The remark was a reference to a statement made by Mrs. Williams in which she admitted that when her infant son cried, she put vodka in his formula to quiet him.

Mrs. Williams' lawyer, Richland County Deputy Public Defender Doug Strickler, said she requested he ask prosecutors for the plea reduction in return for sterilization.

Strickler told Smith that Mrs. Williams had been abandoned as a child, sexually and physically abused by her mother and stepfather when she visited them, had an unwanted pregnancy at age 17 and suffered physical and emotional abuse from her current husband.

Explorers afix commemorative plaque to Titanic

WOODS HOLE, Mass. (AP) — Explorers in a tiny submarine 12,500 feet below the Atlantic's surface affixed a 20-pound bronze plaque to the Titanic's stern in memory of 1,513 people who died when the luxury liner sank in 1912.

"We thought the stern was an appropriate place since that's where most died and it was the last part of the ship to go under," Robert Ballard said in a ship-to-shore call Monday from the Atlantis II research ship 400 miles off Newfoundland.

The mechanical arm on the submarine dubbed Alvin apparently was used to transfer the plaque to the stern, said officials of the Woods Hole Oceanographic Institution.

But researchers cancelled plans to send Jason Jr., a camera-equipped robot inside, fearing that the stern's mangled opening would have snared the remote unit's electrical tether.

"Too spooky," Ballard replied when asked how difficult conditions were. "The stern is sitting upright on the bottom...one huge piece with a lot of wreckage around."

Viewing through video cameras, the crew spotted a crane and the rudder but the propeller was buried and the markings had rusted off the stern.

Alvin descended to about 450 feet from the stern, then rose to maneuver atop it before settling on the poop deck. Between two mooring line rollers, the plaque was placed to commemorate the victims and William H. Tantum IV, who encouraged efforts to locate the ship but died five years before Ballard's 1985 discovery.

The plaque, donated by the Titanic Historical Society which Tantum helped establish in Springfield, reads:

"In memory of those souls who perished with the Titanic April 14-15, 1912. Dedicated to William H. Tantum IV, whose dream to find the Titanic has been realized by Dr. Robert D. Ballard. The officers and members of the Titanic Historical Society Incorporated, 1986."

Ballard, in his call to the Woods Hole Oceanographic Institution, said today, Wednesday and Thursday would be devoted to deep penetration of the liner with Jason Jr. Afterward, the explorers plan to head for home.

U.S. to protest Nicaragua's expulsion of journalists

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States is taking up the case of two American journalists who were expelled from Nicaragua.

U.S. officials said they would deliver a protest to officials of the Central American country today in a case involving Glenn Garvin, a reporter for The Washington Times, and Sue Mullin, a free-lance journalist-photographer.

The protest will be lodged against what the government said was Nicaragua's abusive treatment of the two journalists and the country's arbitrary attempt to censor the foreign press, State Department spokeswoman Sondra McCarty said Monday.

The United States also is angered by Nicaragua's failure to allow the detained journalists access to the U.S. Embassy, Ms. McCarty said.

In Managua, the Sandinista government said it expelled the journalists because they were sympathetic to rebels and were suspected of having ties to the CIA.

Interior Ministry spokesman Oscar Melo said Garvin and Miss Mullin "were taken from the country" Friday because they did not have proper credentials, traveled to a war zone without permission, showed sympathy to the "counterrevolution" and planned to disrupt the anniversary celebration of the Sandinistas' victory.

Garvin said neither he nor Miss Mullin were injured during their captivity, but that they were not allowed to communicate with the U.S. Embassy.

Garvin said they were charged with changing hotels without notifying authorities and said he and Miss Mullin were arrested by police as they tried to pay a bill at Managua's Inter-Continental Hotel.

Police subsequently told them they were being expelled. They were driven to the airport and put aboard a plane. Garvin said he later discovered his luggage had been searched and his notebooks, film, a tape and hundreds of newspaper clippings were missing.

Car owner bites off part of would-be robber's ear

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A man who tried to steal a car while its owner was filling the gas tank left a unique bit of evidence, police say: part of his ear.

The car owner, a 20-year-old carpenter, bit off the gunman's earlobe during a struggle over his gun, police spokesman Willie Wilson said Monday.

The gunman demanded car keys from the driver Sunday, but when the car owner noticed that the would-be robber had put his gun on the passenger seat, he ran around and started to get in, prompting the fight, Wilson said.

While the two wrestled for the gun, it discharged, inflicting a minor wound in the car owner's buttocks, he said. The gunman then tried choking the car owner, who bit his ear, Wilson said. The bleeding gunman ran off.

Movie crew trial to start

LOS ANGELES (AP) — After yet another postponement, director John Landis and four movie crew members faced trial today on involuntary manslaughter charges in the deaths of three actors on the "Twilight Zone" movie set.

The trial had been scheduled to begin Monday, but Superior Court Judge Roger Boren allowed a one-day delay after defense attorneys complained they didn't receive certain prosecution documents until they arrived in court.

Actor Vic Morrow, Renee Chen, 6, and Myca Le, 7, died July 23, 1982, when a helicopter flying through special-effects explosions crashed onto them during filming of "Twilight Zone: The Movie." The scene required Morrow and the two children to run across a stream during an airborne attack on a mock Vietnamese village.

The charges against Landis, special effects coordinator Paul Stewart, associate producer George Folsey, production manager Dan Allingham and helicopter pilot Dorcey Wingo are unprecedented in Hollywood history.

Landis, Wingo and Stewart face up to six years in prison if convicted, while the others could receive a maximum of five years.

Heart patient has seizure

CLOVIS, N.M. (AP) — Nona White, a 13-year-old Clovis girl who underwent a heart transplant operation in Houston last September, has been admitted to Cannon Air Force Base Hospital following a seizure, a base public information officer says.

The spokesman said said he had no information on the type of seizure.

Nona celebrated her 13th birthday last fall in a Houston hospital for the transplant operation. She arrived back in Clovis in February.

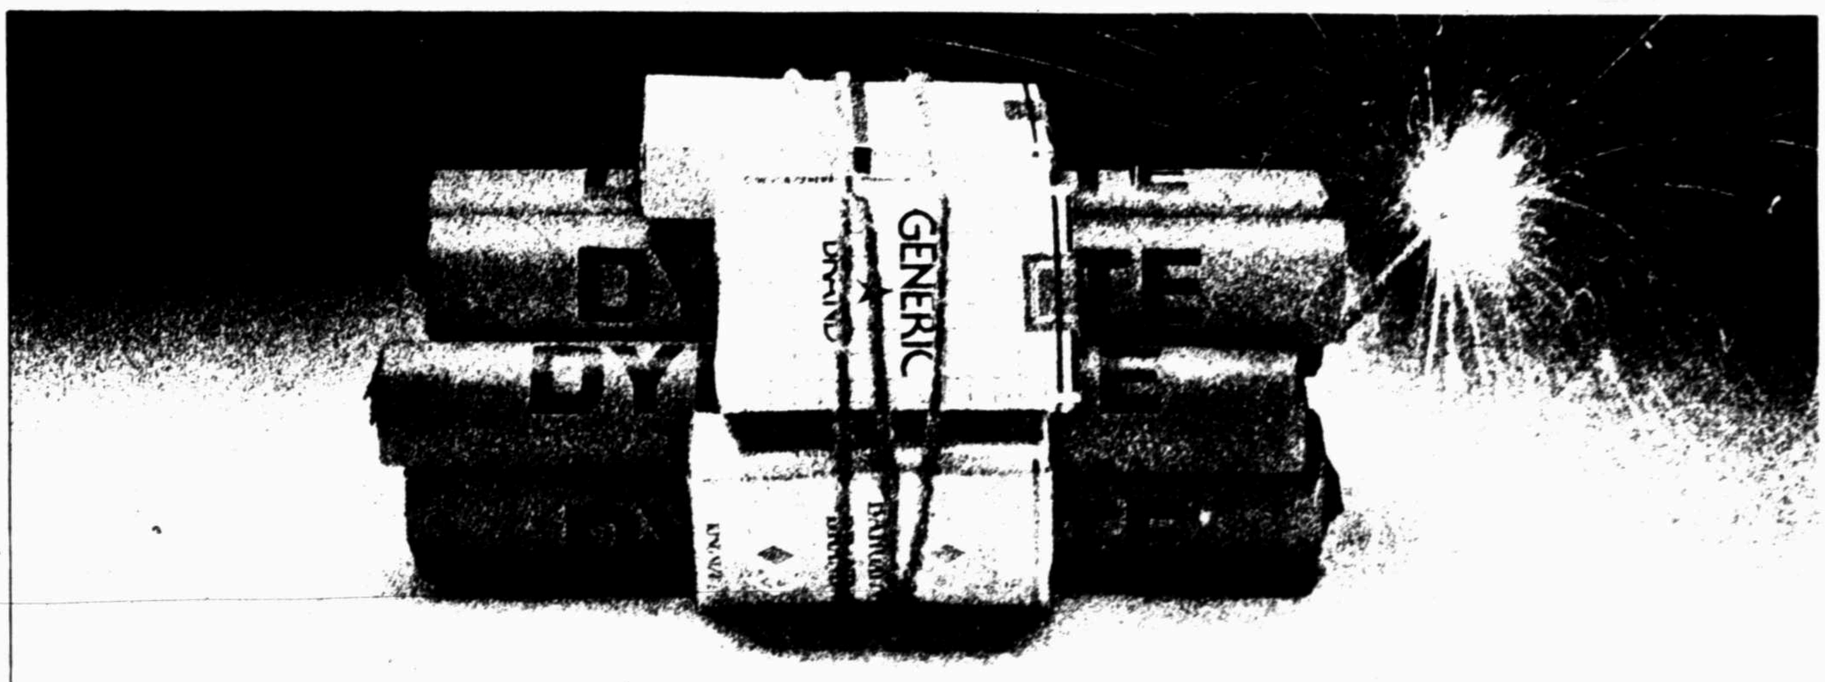

Doctors said her twin sister, Dawn, also will have to have a heart transplant operation.

Export controls extended

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate has approved a two-year extension on export controls designed to prevent sophisticated technology and other goods useful in warfare from falling into communist hands.

The bill, which now goes to the House, would authorize $35.9 million for enforcement in each of the next two fiscal years, up from $29.4 million.

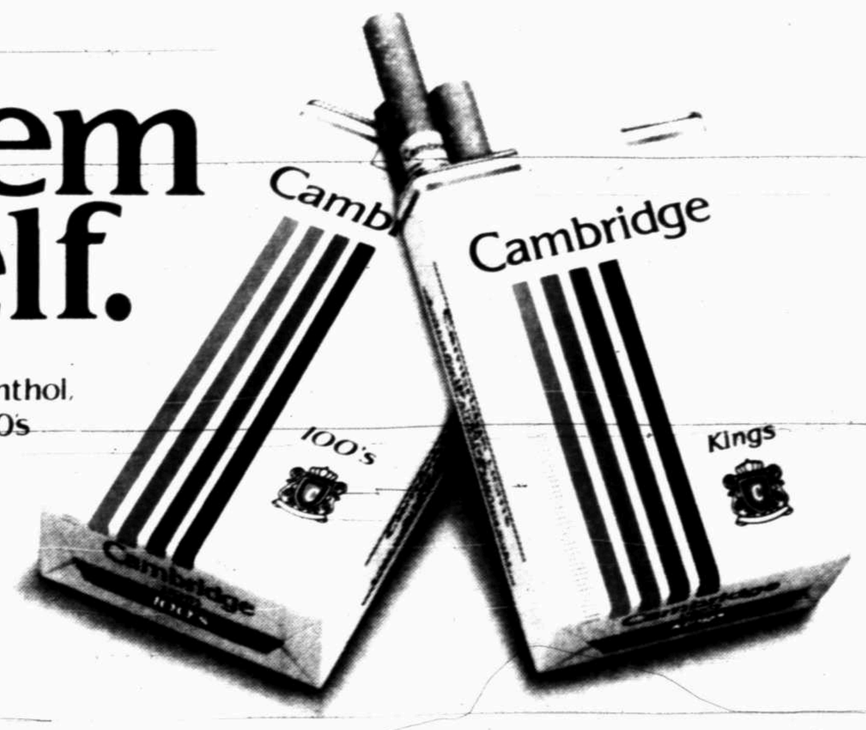

National security officials say restrictions are needed to thwart a Soviet effort to obtain American-made, high-tech equipment of potential use to the military on the open market.

Rain showers to diminish

From Staff and Wire Reports

Rain showers, which were scattered across the Permian Basin Monday, are expected to diminish tonight and Wednesday as the National Weather Service at Midland Regional Air Terminal predicts partly cloudy skies with a 20 percent chance of thunderstorms.

Midland officially received .3 of an inch of rain during the last 24 hours, bringing the monthly total to 1.26 inches. The annual total is above normal for this time of year at 9.01 inches, forecasters said.

The low tonight is expected to drop to the upper 60s. Winds will be from the southeast at 5 to 10 mph.

Wednesday's high is expected to be in the mid 90s with winds from the southeast at 5 to 15 mph.

Monday's high of 92 degrees was 11 degrees cooler than the record of 103 set in 1981. The overnight low of 64 was 4 degrees warmer than the record of 60 set in 1961.

STATE

Severe thunderstorms hit the northern half of Texas Monday evening and continued today, with 60 mph winds felling power poles and tree limbs in the Dallas-Fort Worth area.

More than an inch of rain fell in sheets in some areas, while other places received only a trace. It was the first rainfall for the metropolitan area in 33 days, since June 17, when 0.06 fell.

Only 0.11 of an inch fell at Dallas-Fort Worth International Airport, but 1.55 inches fell at Dallas Love Field.

Heavy storms were reported early today in Stonewall, Haskell, Throckmorton and Shackleford counties, north and northeast of the Abilene area.

Heavy storms early today south and southeast of Dallas caused flooding in Kaufman and Navarro counties, and areas around the towns of Kaufman and Corsicana were under flash flood warnings throughout the night. Several streets and roads were under water.

NATION

Rain dotted the West and South today in the aftermath of violent storms in Florida and Arizona, and Southern temperatures were lowering a bit but not enough to ease the grip of a heat wave.

Showers and thunderstorms were scattered from southern California across Arizona, New Mexico and northern Texas into northern Louisiana.

Thunderstorms lingered over Alabama, Georgia, South Carolina and Georgia and were widely scattered across the northern and central Rockies.

Clear skies prevailed across the Midwest and the Northeast.

Midland statistics

FORECAST

Tonight: Partly cloudy with a 20 percent chance of thunderstorms. Low in the upper 60s. Winds from the southeast at 5 to 15 mph. Wednesday: Partly cloudy with less than a 20 percent chance of thunderstorms. High in the mid 90s. Winds from the southeast at 5 to 15 mph.

Clack reports with sticky-fingered reputation

By DENNE H. FREEMAN

THOUSAND OAKS, Calif. (AP) — Darryl Clack comes to the Dallas Cowboys with the strangest of qualifications for a running back.

It wasn't the running ability of the Arizona State speedster that the Cowboys' coveted.

It was his pass-catching talent that caught the eye of scouts.

"He's the best at catching the ball of any running back I've seen," said Dallas Scout Bobby Griffin, who followed Clack's exploits at Arizona State. "He has soft hands and has a real knack for catching the ball in traffic."

Clack, a second-round draft pick, signed a four-year contract Monday for some $250,000 per year after a two-week absence from training camp.

"The negotiating process was frustrating," Clack said. "I was ready to be a Dallas Cowboy."

Cowboys' Camp

Clack said he felt he could catch up quickly on his missed work.

"I'm concerned about missing camp and it will take a lot of extra work on my part," Clack said. "But I don't think I missed a lot."

Clack worked in the off-season in Dallas with offensive coordinator Paul Hackett.

"The time I spent in Dallas will help," Clack said. "I spent a month with Coach Hackett and I had a chance to see how the offense worked. And I've had a playbook with me."

CLACK, WHO missed seven games last year with a fractured foot, said "I'm in 100 percent physical condition. And I'm ready to go."

Joe Bailey, the club executive who negotiates contracts, said money wasn't a big problem with agent Bruce Allen.

"We had talked the past seven days over the structure of the contract," Bailey said. "There was a question over the number of years and the way they wanted the money distributed."

Bailey said the club could now concentrate on signing No. 1 pick, wide receiver Mike Sherrard.

"I suspect we'll become much more active this week and I hope Mike will be signed by the time we leave for the United Kingdom on Sunday," Bailey said. (The Cowboys play the Chicago Bears in a special exhibition game there Aug. 3.)

Clack said he didn't expect to be an immediate starter.

"I just want to help this team and I think I can," said Clack, who has good speed. "I love this offense with more emphasis on passing."

MEANWHILE, MISSING strong safety Dextor Clinkscale was being fined $1,000 per day and Bailey said he had the "feeling" the six-year veteran might be considering retirement.

The arrival of Clack was the first good news since camp began for the Cowboys, whose rookies whipped the Los Angeles Raiders' rookies 13-6 on Sunday.

Clack, who gained 1,052 yards and caught 32 passes his junior season, is projected as a backup to Tony Dorsett.

Dallas will keep five backs and they are expected to be Clack, Dorsett, Robert Lavette, Todd Fowler, and Timmy Newsome.

NFL NOTES: The Cleveland Browns aren't waiting to find out what happens to 10th-round draft pick Willie Smith, who was arrested last month on charges of possession of cocaine and carrying a concealed weapon.

Browns spokesman Kevin Byrne said the team will put the former University of Miami (Fla.) All-American tight end on waivers Tuesday.

"We waited until we received all of the information and have decided to waive our rights to Willie Smith. We think it's in the best interests of the Cleveland Browns that he be given the opportunity to play elsewhere," Byrne said Monday.

Smith was arrested June 30 after a motel parking disturbance in South Florida.

Two star quarterbacks started training on Monday.

Dan Marino made $850,000 just for showing up at the Miami Dolphins' training camp. He collected on an appearance bonus in the contract he is trying to renegotiate. He said he has no plans to walk out of camp despite not having the new contract he wants.

Marino's original four-year, $2 million deal, which had the huge appearance bonus written into it, expires Feb. 1. Marino's agent, Marvin Demoff, said he and Dolphins owner Joe Robbie have discussed a new deal in the past few months with no apparent progress.

San Francisco 49er Joe Montana tested his throwing shoulder for the first time since arthroscopic surgery seven weeks ago. "It felt good, it felt real good," Montana said. "I threw a little harder than I expected to."

Sherman pro tops PGA sectional

By TED BATTLES
Sports Editor

If Sale Omohundro can hang on for another 18 holes today, the Sherman golfer can win the North Texas Sectional PGA tournament and qualify for a trip to the national club pro tournament in Palm Springs, Calif., in October.

He'll also win $1,500 first prize money in the $17,500 event being held at at Mission Country Club.

With 36 holes scheduled for Monday, tee offs from 8 a.m. to 10 a.m., the NTPGA shaped up as a test of stamina, perseverance and skill. The endurance portion of the tournament was curtailed severely Monday afternoon when unpredicted showers chased the pros to the club house in the midst of the second round.

Actually, the showers weren't as bad as the darting, slashing streaks of lightning that picketed the course just outside Odessa for much of the afternoon.

A few golfers got in as many as nine holes before it was called off.

So Omohundro's round of 37-32—69 stood up as the halfway lead. However, four golfers, including defending champion Lindy Miller of Carrollton, were barking at his heels just a stroke behind at 70.

Included in that select posse was Terry Lester, the assistant pro at Hogan Park, who put together nines of 37-33.

And at 71 was Rives McBee, another familiar face. McBee, a former assistant pro at Midland CC many years ago, won the tournament when it was held at Green Tree CC in 1982. Joining McBee at 71 was Terry Dear of Lubbock's Lake Ridge.

Ohohundro waxed hot and cold on the front nine, birdying the par three fourth and the par five seventh, but more than offsetting that with bogies at six, eight and nine.

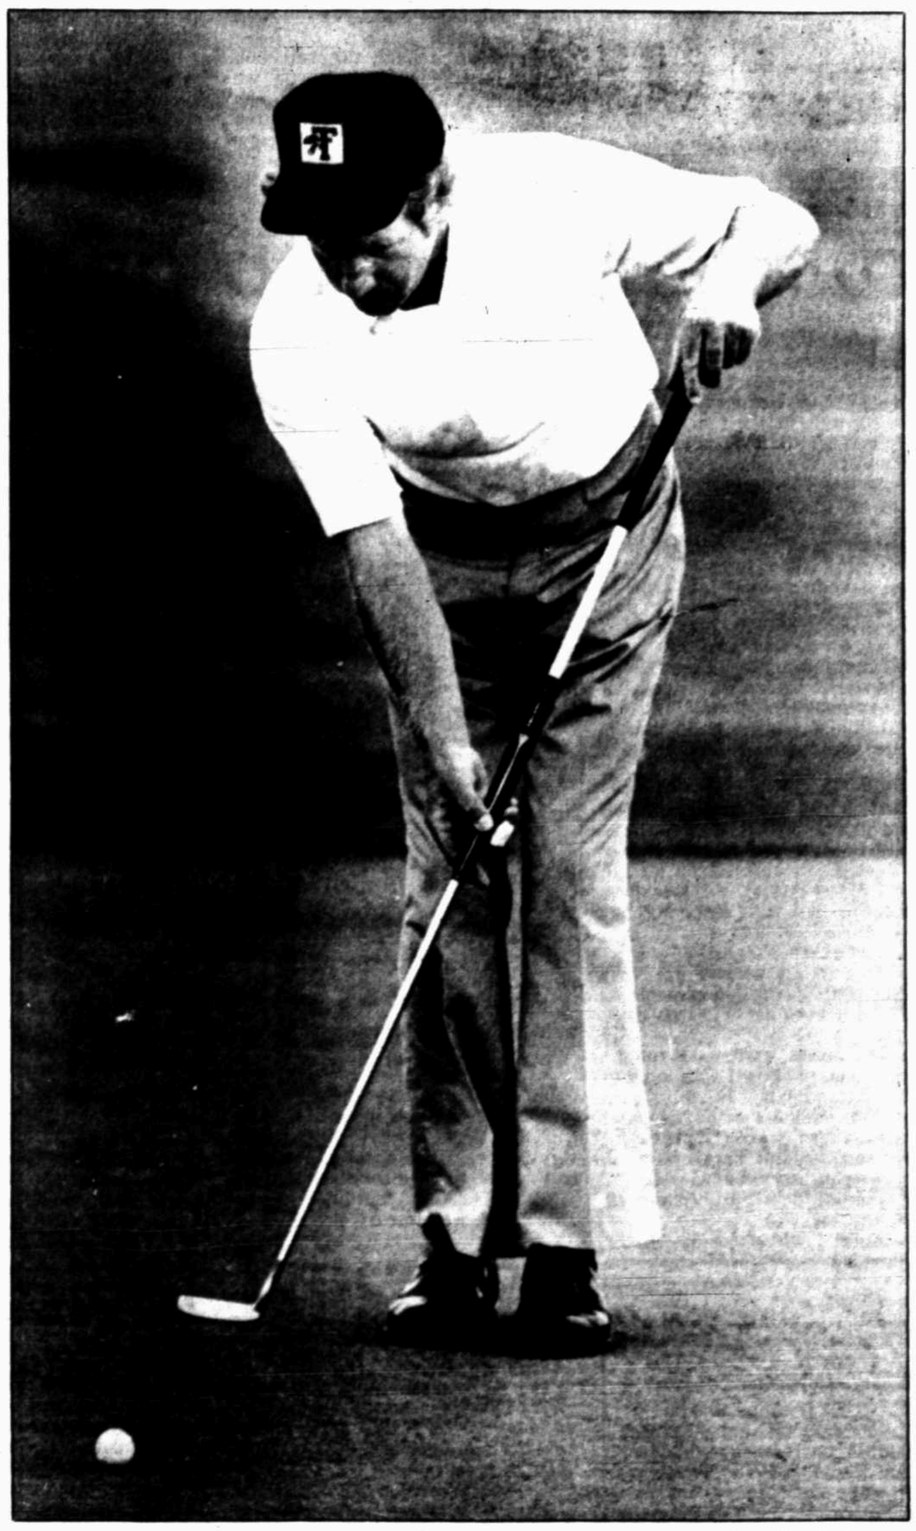

The back nine was something else, a sizzling 32 in which birds were shot on 11, 12, 17 and 18. The birdie on 17 came on the 160-yard par three hole.

Best back nine, however, was turned in by Tom Swiney, Burkburnett River Oaks. And he started it off with a bogey five on 10. Then followed birds at 11, 12, 14, 15, 17, 18. The only thing that spoiled the round was the 37 on the front side.

Lester also had an opening 37, but birdied 10 and eagled the par five 11th. If he hadn't bogeyed 13, a par three 205-yarder, he would be tied for the lead.

Gene Aube, who led the pros with a 68 in Sunday's pro am, came in with a 75, not a good position in which to be with only 18 holes left.

Cowboys latest craze for satellite watchers

By DENNE H. FREEMAN

THOUSAND OAKS, Calif. (AP) — They call from Brooklyn, N.Y. and Vermont and West Virginia with questions while they watch the Dallas Cowboys' practice sessions live.

Through the wonder of satellite communications, fans of the NFL team can watch while Coach Tom Landry throws a shoulder into a linebacker to teach him the proper techniques.

Viewers can see defensive tackle Randy White knock down two offensive linemen then swat a running back to the ground. They can see fullback Timmy Newsome trample linebacker Eugene Lockhart.

Dominic in Brooklyn calls to ask Dallas executive Gil Brandt why the Cowboys wear a certain type of shoe.

Larry in Vermont wants to know when the Cowboys leave for London.

Walt in West Virginia wants to know who is going to call the plays for the Cowboys this year.

"It's the most fun thing I've ever done," said Brandt, who served as color commentator until club President Tex Schramm could return from the trial of an antitrust suit involving the United States Football League. "It's really something."

A TEXAS cable television company — Lee Martin Inc. — is charging subscribers for the service in parts of the Lone Star State, but thousands of homes coast-to-coast can get the two-hour daily telecast free from their satellite dishes.

All they have to do is to keep flipping the channel and they can find us," said team spokesman Greg Aiello.

Friend and foe alike watch the Cowboys.

A sportswriter friend of Brandt's called the other day from the office of the Seattle Seahawks.

"Well, the Cowboys have done it again," he said. "I'm sitting here watching the Seahawks practice on the field and watching you guys practice on television."

Asked how he liked the thought of rival NFL teams watching his practice sessions, Landry said, "Well, that's progress, I guess.

"I have mixed emotions about it but I guess it's a good PR thing. It's great for the fans," he said.

What does Landry do if he wants to work on some trick plays and new offenses?

"Oh, we'll put it in during the morning," he quipped.

"We try to be careful in that regard and not televise anything we shouldn't," Schramm said.

The Cowboys, who work out twice daily, are telecast only in the afternoons under the catchy title "Ticket to Training Camp." The program features a roving reporter, Karl Suchman, who interviews everyone from sportswriters tossing medicine balls to the team trainer.

"We've had calls from 15 states in the first week," Suchman said. "The response has been unbelievable."

Mustangs cop opener before rains conquer

From Staff Reports

The Midland Mustangs and the wet grounds were the big winners Monday in the first day of play in the Texas Teen Age Baseball Hi-Junior district tournament at Angels Stadium.

The Mustangs, after jumping out to an 8-0 lead, held on to claim a 9-4 victory over Odessa American Legion in the first game.

Pitcher Nich Sanchez went the distance to claim the victory and collected his team's only extra base hit, a triple. For Odessa, Hilbert Anava suffered the loss. Gabriel Rois hit a double.

The Mustangs quickly scored runs on American Legion, picking up two in the first, four in the second and two in the third for the 8-0 lead and added their final run in the fourth.

Odessa finally got on the board in the bottom of the third for one run and scored the last three in the fourth inning.

Hi-Junior

AS THE lineups were being read off for the second game between Midland Astros and Tom Green County Bar Association (San Angelo), Angels Stadium was hit with a hard rain that soaked the base paths and forced cancellation of the final two games of the day.

Because of the rain, the tournament resumed today earlier than scheduled. The first game is slated for 10 a.m. if the field is dry enough. If not, the game will go off at 3 p.m.

If the field is okay for the morning game, Monday's third game will be played at 3 p.m. and today's regular schedule of loser's bracket games will resume at 5:30 and 8 p.m.

The tournament will conclude on Wednesday at 5:30 p.m. An if necessary game is scheduled for 8 p.m. in the double elimination format.

LeMond set for Tour win

N.Y. Times News Service

ALPE D'HUEZ, France — Shepherded by Bernard Hinault, his longtime mentor and rival, Greg LeMond solidified his hold Monday on the overall lead in the Tour de France.

Hinault led LeMond on the long breakaway through the Alps, setting the pace for him throughout. With less than half a mile to go, LeMond pulled alongside his French teammate and wrapped his left arm around him in gratitude.

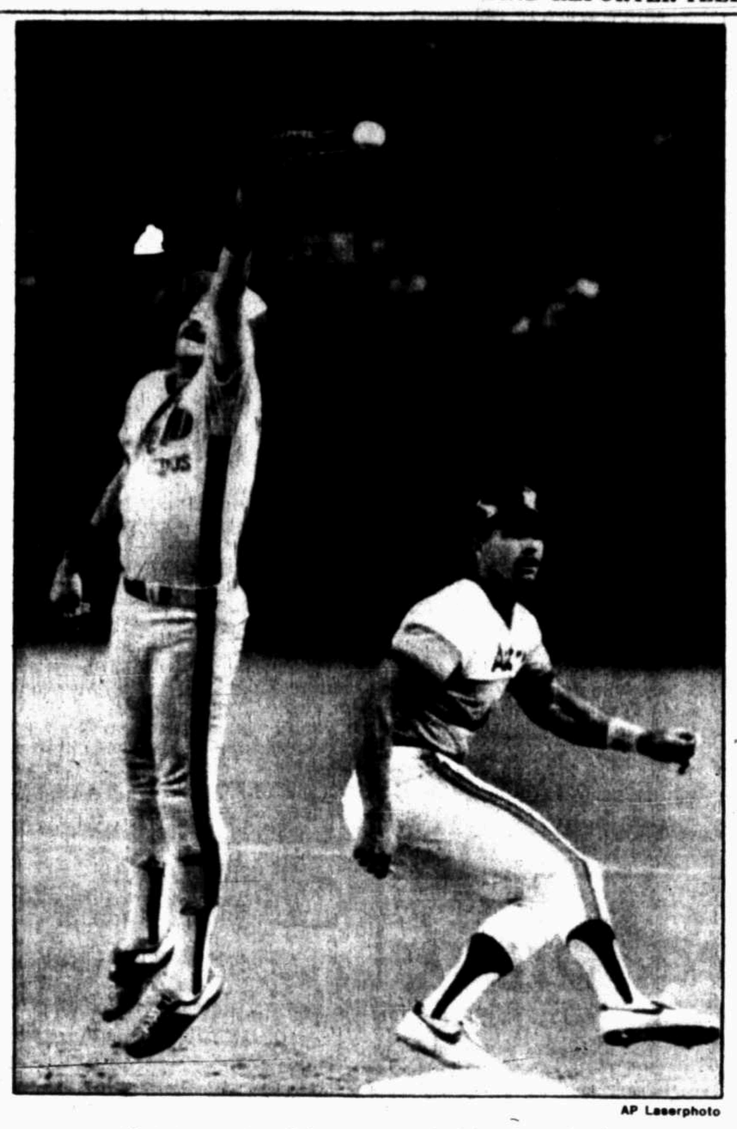

The two finished 5 minutes 14 seconds ahead of the next rider, Urs Zimmermann of Switzerland, who started the day second to LeMond over all, with Hinault third. They reversed their positions after the stage, which covered 101 miles from Briancon to Alpe d'Huez over three huge climbs.

For the first time, the 25-year-old LeMond was willing to talk positively about his chances for victory. Asked if he felt he won the Tour Monday, he said: "Yes, I think so. Even if I fall, Bernard will win. But I think I'll wear the yellow jersey into Paris." The race ends there Sunday, 23 days after it started.

In the overall standings, LeMond leads Hinault by 2 minutes 45 seconds. Tuesday is a rest day before the final five legs of the race which concludes July 27.

The field, which started with 210 riders, dropped to 139 Monday night after one man did not start and four had to quit. A prominent casualty was Eric Heiden, the winner of five gold medals in speed skating at the 1980 Olympic winter games in Lake Placid, N.Y.

Now a rider for the 7-Eleven team, the first American team to take part in the Tour, Heiden crashed on the first descent. He was said to be only shaken, but was taken by helicopter to a hospital where precautionary X-rays were taken.

Montreal's Wayne Krenchiki goes up, but can't come down with a high pick-off attempt from Andy McGaffigan Monday night. Houston's Alan Ashby turns to head for second base.

Astros take over top spot; now they want to get hot

Associated Press

NL Roundup

Now that the Houston Astros have won four straight games, they're looking to get hot.

"We put three or four together before. We've been consistent, but we just haven't gotten hot yet," Bill Doran said Monday night after the Astros rallied for two runs in the ninth inning and beat the Montreal Expos 8-7.

The victory put Houston in sole possession of first place in the National League West, one game ahead of San Francisco.

Jose Cruz, who went 4-for-5 with a homer and double, and Glenn Davis drove in three runs apiece for the Astros. Davis singled home the tying run in the ninth and Cruz followed by singling home the game-winner.

"Games like these are great if you win, but if you lose you go home and have some sleepless nights," Houston Manager Hal Lanier said.

Tim Raines, who homered, and Andre Dawson each drove in three runs for Montreal. The visiting Expos had broken a 6-6 tie in the eighth against Charlie Kerfeld, 7-1, when Wayne Krenchicki singled and later scored on shortstop Craig Reynolds' throwing error.

The Astros came back in the ninth against Jeff Reardon, 6-5. Billy Hatcher led off with a single and stole second. After Denny Walling walked, Davis tied it with his single.

A bunt single by Jim Pankovits loaded the bases and Cruz followed with his single.

"He's been driving the ball well for us," Lanier said. "That's what we need."

Cruz, a .300 hitter the last three seasons, had gotten off to a slow start this year but has raised his average to .262. He had an RBI double in the fourth as the Astros took a 4-0 lead, and a solo homer, his second, in the sixth.

Davis had a sacrifice fly in the first and a run-scoring single in the seventh.

Cardinals 8, Giants 3

Willie McGee hit two homers in a game for the first time since Game 3 of the 1982 World Series, helping St. Louis beat Steve Carlton and visiting San Francisco.

Carlton, who hit a three-run homer, fell to 4-10 overall, including 0-2 in three starts for the Giants. He allowed three earned runs on five hits in six innings.

McGee hit a solo homer in the first inning and a two-run shot in the fourth, giving him six this season. He became the first Cardinal to hit two home runs in a game since David Green on July 27, 1984.

Tommy Herr's suicide squeeze bunt gave host St. Louis a 4-3 lead in the sixth. Pinch-hitter Curt Ford's three-run double highlighted a four-run seventh.

Winner Greg Mathews, 5-2, gave up four hits over seven innings, including Carlton's homer in the second. Mathews left the game after being hit in the right forearm by a pitch from Jeff Robinson in the seventh inning, but he is not expected to miss his next start Saturday.

Mets 4, Reds 2

Gary Carter hit a two-run single and Rick Aguilera checked Cincinnati for eight innings as New York beat Mario Soto and the Reds.

Aguilera, 3-3, gave up eight hits and struck out a career-high nine. Jesse Orosco pitched a scoreless ninth for his 13th save.

Soto, 3-8, activated for the disabled list earlier in the day, had been sidelined since June 19 because of shoulder problems. He left in the fifth inning and gave up three runs on six hits.

Carter's single put the visiting Mets ahead 2-1 in the third. Darryl Strawberry hit a sacrifice fly in the fifth and Wally Backman added an RBI single in the sixth.

Phillies 3, Braves 1

Mike Schmidt, who had been intentionally walked twice earlier in the game, hit a two-out, two-run single with the bases that broke a ninth-inning tie and lifted Philadelphia over Atlanta.

The Phillies loaded the bases on a pinch-single by Tom Foley, an error by reliever Jeff Dedmon and Juan Samuel's hit by pitch. Schmidt then singled, giving gim the league lead with 71 RBI and 21 homers.

Kent Tekulve, 3-1, got the victory and Steve Bedrosian gained his 12th save. Dedmon, 3-5, took the loss.

The visiting Phillies broke a scoreless game in the eighth on Von Hayes' RBI single. The Braves tied it in their half of the eighth on Andres Thomas' RBI double.

Cubs 6, Padres 1

Jerry Mumphrey went 4-for-4, highlighting a 13-hit attack that led Chicago over San Diego.

Rookie Jamie Moyer, 2-2, shut out the Padres on five hits over eight innings. LaMarr Hoyt, 5-5, took the loss as San Diego fell for the fourth straight time.

Ron Cey and Chris Speier had RBI doubles for the host Cubs.

'Pags' ties Canseco, Rangers drop another one

Associated Press

Mike Pagliarulo is one player who doesn't believe in setting goals for himself, but that doesn't bother the New York Yankees, because he already has exceeded his home run production of last season.

"I never really have set any ... because I never had a chance to play regularly," Pagliarulo said after hitting a three-run homer Monday night to lead the Yankees to an 8-4 victory over the Texas Rangers that moved New York within five games of Boston in the American League East.

"Besides, if I had set a goal to hit 20 or 25 home runs this season, I don't think I'd have 23 now," the Yankee third baseman explained. "Next year, I don't want to say I'm going to hit 30 or 35. I might hit more."

Pagliarulo, tied with Oakland's Jose Canseco and Toronto's Jesse Barfield for the major league lead, hasn't wasted many of his homers. Monday night was no exception, with Pagliarulo hitting his three-run shot in the first inning as the Yankees took a 4-0 lead.

Rickey Henderson and Mike Easler also hit home runs to help make a winner of rookie Doug Drabek, 2-2.

Rangers shortstop Scott Fletcher extended his hitting streak to 17 games, the longest in the American League, with a double in the fifth.

Brewers 5, Angels 3

Rob Deer and Dale Sveum each drove in two runs in the fourth to lead visiting Milwaukee over California.

Deer, Sveum and Jim Gantner singled to produce a run in the second off Ron Romanick, 5-8. Deer's two-run single and Sveum's two-run double in the fourth gave Bill Wegman, 3-8, all the backing he needed.

Wegman, winless in his last six starts, figured his luck had to change sooner or later.

"No way I should've been a 2-8 pitcher going in," he said after beating California. "I've pitched a lot of good games I should've won, or certainly could've won."

Dan Plesac pitched the last two innings for his eighth save.

Indians 5, White Sox 2

Mel Hall had his 17th homer as red-hot Cleveland cooled off visiting Chicago.

Hall, seriously injured last season in an auto accident, has given up wondering if fractures to his left clavicle and pelvis and other assorted injuries would keep him from playing to his full potential this season.

"Even three months ago it was hard for me to envision anything. I just expected to come out strong and what happened, happened," Hall said driving in two runs with his homer and a single.

Blue Jays 8, Mariners 3

Jesse Barfield and George Bell each hit two homers to help Toronto overpower Seattle in the Kingdome.

"I set my goals and I'm sure George sets his. I think we really complement each other," said Barfield after he and Bell helped lead a 16-hit attck.

The Blue Jays' outfielders jumped on Seattle starter Mark Huisman, 2-3, for back-to-back home runs to set off a five-run rally in the fourth inning.

Barfield said that his goals for the season were 35 homers, a .300 batting average and 100 or more RBI.

"I'm on track for my goals, if I reach them early I'll just have to make new ones," said Barfield, who has 67 runs batted in.

Bell is right behind him with 22 homers, and 74 RBI.

A's 5, Red Sox 2

Oakland left-hander Curt Young may have lost his bid for to shut out Boston on Dwight Evans' two-out, two-run homer in the ninth inning, but he wasn't about to lose sleep over it.

Young, 7-6, allowed only three hits and retired 14 consecutive Boston hitters in one stretch.

Tony Phillips hit his fifth homer and Dave Kingman his 22nd for the A's off Bruce Hurst, 5-4, who was making his first start since May 31.

Twins 1, Tigers 0

Kirby Puckett scored on Kent Krbek's sixth-inning bloop single to give Minnesota its victory over Detroit.

'I just ran as hard as I could," Puckett said. "I knew I was going to third easy and saw T.K. (third base coach Tom Kelly) waving me in. I thought there was a chance he would and I didn't break stride. I was three-quarters home, when I saw (shortstop Allen) Trammell throw the ball."

Trammell, whose relay throw bounced in front of the plate, allowing Puckett to score the game's only run, had taken a weak throw from rightfielder Kirk Gibson. Puckett had walked to open the sixth inning.

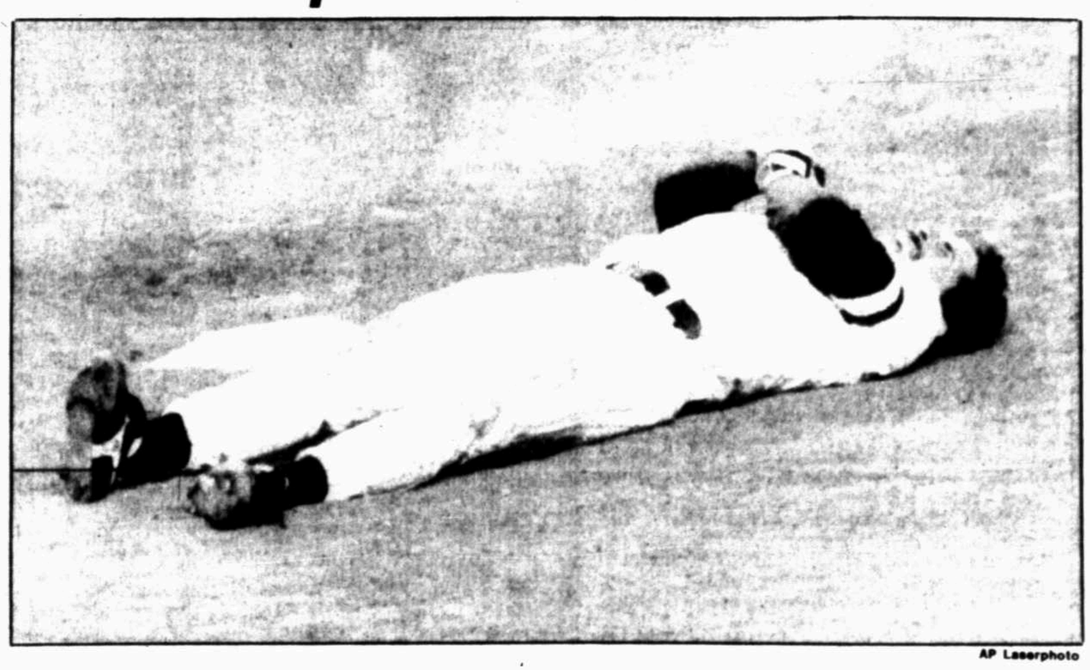

Frank Viola, 10-8, outdueled Mark Thurmond, who lost his first American League start.

Royals 6, Orioles 1

Steve Balboni doubled in the eighth and hit a two-run homer in the ninth to give Kansas City its win in Baltimore.

Balboni hit his 19th homer off Brad Havens in the ninth.

Danny Jackson, 6-6, allowed four hits in seven innings as the Royals snapped a 10-game road losing streak.

BOSTON — Suspended Boston pitcher Dennis "Oil Can" Boyd, who admitted himself to a hospital last Thursday, will remain there at least through Wednesday for continuing tests, Red Sox team doctor Dr. Arthur Pappas doctor said.

Boyd, Boston's second winningest pitcher with an 11-6 record, entered the hospital last Thursday, a move the team said was "mutually agreed upon." The team said he would undergo testing for drugs while at the hospital.

NEW YORK — The Texas Rangers announced that pitcher Mike Mason has been placed on the 15-day disabled list with a strained muscle above his left elbow. His spot on the roster will be filled by Mike Loynd, who last month pitched Florida State into the championship game of the College World Series.

Mason was 6-3 with a 4.16 earned-run average in 16 starts.

Loynd, 22, was an All-American at Florida State, compiling a 21-2 record that included a championship-game loss to Arizona. Since signing with the Rangers, he was 2-1 with a 3.68 ERA in five starts with Tulsa of the Class AA Texas League.

Loynd was expected to join the Rangers on Tuesday in New York and make his first major-league start on Thursday when Texas plays host to Cleveland.

NEW YORK — Los Angeles Dodgers left fielder Franklin Stubbs, who hit .375 with a pair of home runs and two doubles, was named the National League's Player of the Week, the NL announced.

NEW YORK — Detroit Tigers right fielder Kirk Gibson, who hit .353 and drove in six runs, four of them game-winners, was named the American League's Player of the Week, the AL announced.

Gibson had a .529 slugging percentage to go along with his 6-for-17 week. His four game-winning RBI all came against the Texas Rangers. It was the third time this season he was named Player of the Week.

MILWAUKEE — A man involved in a tavern scuffle with baseball star Reggie Jackson will pursue disorderly conduct charges against the California Angels' player, although it means that both he and Jackson will be prosecuted, the man's attorney said.

Alan D. Eisenberg, is representing Donald Weimer, 26, of Racine, Wis., in the matter, said Weimer wanted Jackson charged and that Weimer would defend himself against the same charges.

MEMPHIS, Tenn. — Bo Jackson of the Memphis Chicks was named Southern League player of the week as he rebounded from a slow start in his pro baseball career.

Jackson, a Heisman Trophy winner as a football player at Auburn, collected 11 hits in 26 times at bat in his past eight outings with the Chicks, including three triples and three home runs. Jackson is hitting .211 for his 20 games as a professional, with 15 hits in 71 times at bat. He has 32 strikeouts.

BOWLING

EDMOND, Okla. — Brian Voss averaged 243 and won six of eight match games in the fourth round to open a 112-pin lead in the $125,000 Hammer Open.

Voss, a two-time PBA Tour champion out of Tacoma, Wash., led by only five pins after the three qualifying rounds. Kent Wagner was in second place with 6,144.

TENNIS

PRAGUE, Czechoslovakia — Hana Mandlikova led second-seeded Czechoslovakia into the second round of the Federation Cup, while sixth-seeded Britain was eliminated on the tennis tournament's opening day.

Czechoslovakia routed Greece 3-0, while unseeded Denmark stunned the British team by the same score. Canada barely beat the Netherlands, 2-1 and Argentina, the seventh seed, defeated Uruguay 3-0.

BAASTAD, Sweden — Stefan Edberg, the second seed, was extended to three sets by Swedish teen-age sensation Christian Bergstrom in the first round of the Swedish Open tennis tournament.

The Australian Open champion prevailed 6-3, 6-7, 6-4. Eric Jelen and Demir Keretic, a pair of West Germans, also advanced to the second round with victories over Swedes. Jelen trounced Per Henricsson 6-3, 6-0 and Keretic outlasted Peter Lundgren 6-3, 0-6, 6-3.

LIVINGSTON, N.J. — Christo van Rensburg, a South African qualifier who reached the quarterfinal round at Wimbledon, scored a 6-4, 6-0 victory over Luke Jensen in the opening round of the $125,000 Volvo Tennis New Jersey championships.

In other opening-round matches, NCAA champion Mike Leach of Atlanta downed Chip Hooper of Sunnyvale, Calif., 6-1, 6-4 and Joey Blake of Lawton, Okla., defeated Steve Denton of Houston 6-2, 6-3.

BROOKLINE, Mass. — Jimmy Brown capitalized on a strong baseline game and crucial service breaks to produce a 6-3, 6-3 victory over 1982 semifinalist Mel Purcell in opening-round play at the U.S. Pro Tennis Championships.

USFL-NFL lawsuit nears end

NEW YORK (AP) — After 10 weeks, 34 witnesses and more than 6,500 pages of transcript, the testimony phase of the USFL's $1.69 billion antitrust suit against the NFL is just about over.

The jury of five women and one man heard what may have been the final witness Monday when the USFL began its rebuttal of the NFL testimony. The case is expected to go to the jury on Thursday.

Monday's witness was Matthew McCarthy, a former NBC producer who contradicted testimony given last week by Arthur Watson, the president of NBC Sports. The USFL decided against calling George Allen, former coach of the NFL's Washington Redskins and Los Angeles Rams and the USFL's Chicago Blitz and Arizona Wranglers.

The only other possible witness is Ann Gibbons, a former member of the board of Monmouth Park race track in New Jersey. USFL lawyer Harvey Myerson also may introduce desposition testimony by Al Davis, owner of the Los Angeles Raiders. Then will come closing arguments and the charge of the jury by U.S. District Judge Peter K. Leisure.

McCarthy said that, as producer of the NBC weekend show "30 Rock," he tried several times before the show went on the air in the spring of 1983 to get his bosses to make a decision on whether to carry USFL stories and scores. Finally, he said, he got an answer from Watson.

"Arthur said, 'We're going to ignore the USFL,' " McCarthy testified.

During his testimony last week, Watson maintained that "30 Rock," which lasted only that one spring under that name, covered anything newsworthy. He said he never told McCarthy to ignore the USFL and said he only "dropped in" on a few planning meetings.

McCarthy, however, said that he remembered two meetings in Watson's office and also recalled Watson being present at other sessions.

McCarthy claimed in his testimony that the program ignored USFL stories except for some items when Heisman Trophy winner Herschel Walker signed with the New Jersey Generals and some shots — on Watson's directions — of "empty stadiums."

However, under cross-examination by NFL attorney Robert Fiske, McCarthy said he did not remember a show on such young USFL stars as Kelvin Bryant, Trumaine Johnson and Tim Spencer. And he acknowledged that NBC's NFL pre-game show in the fall of 1983, with which he was a consultant, carried numerous accounts of the USFL's attempts to sign players, including an interview with New Jersey Generals owner Donald Trump, who talked of signing NFL stars.

Czechs flock to see Martina play

PRAGUE, Czechoslovakia (AP) — Zina Garrison, a last-minute substitute, gave the United States a quick lead in the first round of the Federation Cup today with a 6-3, 6-2 victory over China's Ni Zhong.

Martina Navratilova was scheduled to face Xinyi Li in the second match on Court No. 1, where the seats were packed and people stood four-deep around the outside in anticipation of the top-ranked American's first match in her homeland since her defection 11 years ago.

Garrison took the place of Chris Evert Lloyd in the first-round match and had little trouble in the first set. She broke Ni's service in the third, fifth and ninth games and lost serve just once, in the sixth game.

The second set was a different story. Ni, herself a substitite for teammate Xiufen Pu, broke serve for a 1-0 lead, held serve for 2-0 and had Garrison within one poiint, at 15-40, of a second break.

But the American got her own power game going, saved that game and did not lose another, breaking the Chinese in the fourth and sixth games and again in the eighth game for the match.

In another early first-round match today, Dalia Koriat of Israel beat Maija Suonpaa of Finland 6-0, 6-3.

The 42-team Federation Cup is the women's equivalent of the Davis Cup, with national teams paired in three matches, two singles and one doubles. The team that wins at least two matches advances; the loser goes into a consolation bracket.

Navratilova's name is not mentioned in the newspapers. It will be a longshot if any of her match is shown on television in Prague. But her presence hangs over everything that goes on at the tournament, the women's equivalent of the Davis Cup and the first major women's tennis event held here.

"I think the people are happy to see her," Hana Mandlikova, No. 3 in the world and the leader of the Czchoslovakian team, said Monday after her team struggled before sweeping Greece 3-0.

Helena Sukova opened for the Czechoslovaks and scored a relatively easy 6-2, 6-0 victory over Olga Tsarbapoulou.

Mandlikova had more of a battle against Angeliki Kanellopoulou before winning 6-1, 5-7, 6-3.

Her serve was broken three times in the second set, and Mandlikova said aftrward that one of her few appearances in a big tournament in her own country got to her.

"I was very nervous," she said. "It's hard to play a match in front of my home crowd."

Sukova, although a more one-sided winner, agreed.

"It is quite unusual," the world's seventh-ranked player said. "For the first time, we are playing a big tournament in the presence of our own public."

Midland rained out; Dodgers, Gators win

Associated Press

The pitching of San Antonio's Jeff Edwards and Beaumont's Mike Costello highlighted Texas League baseball action Monday night as both the Midland-Shreveport game and the El Paso-Jackson game were rained out.

Edwards, 6-7, struck out seven and walked only one, allowing only four hits, as the San Antonio Dodgers defeated the Tulsa Drillers 2-1 on Mike Ramsey's clutch 10th inning single.

Costello, now 8-7, allowed only five hits in seven innings as Beaumont's Golden Gators upended the Arkansas Travelers 9-1.

San Antonio took a 1-0 lead in the first inning when Ramsey singled and scored later on a wild pitch by Kirk Killingsworth. Javier Ortiz tied the game for Tulsa when he hit an 0-2 pitch over the left centerfield fence in the eighth inning.

In the 10th, Tulsa pitcher Randy Kramer opened the inning by walking Joe Pequignot and hitting Alonzo Tellez with a pitch. He then got two outs and appeared as if he would escape unscathed, but Ramsey delivered a single that scored Pequignot with the winning run. Kramer fell to 0-2.

Costello blanked Arkansas through the first six innings at Beaumont, and only Tim Jones' homer to right in the seventh inning spoiled his shutout bid.

Former big leaguer Kurt Kepshire, 0-1, was the loser. The Gators gave Costello all the runs he needed with two unearned runs in the third inning and home runs by Randell Byers and Eric Hardgrave in the sixth.

Bill Blount and Rusty Ford blanked Arkansas over the closing two innings to wrap up the victory. Beaumont collected 11 hits, with Hardgrave, Eric Varoz and Sandy Alomar getting two each.

Costello was in trouble the first inning, but got out of it. The Travelers loaded the bases on singles by Lance Johnson and Mark Doughtery and a walk by Marty Pevey. But Costello struck out Dave Kable and Harry McCulla, then got Dave Clements on a ground ball to close out the inning.

Kepshire, 10-9 with the St. Louis Cardinals a year ago, retired eight straight Gators — three of them on line shots to the infield. However, a two-out error on Costello's grounder to short yanked open the door to a pair of unearned runs.

Oiler signees set for camp

SAN ANGELO (AP) — The Houston Oilers signed six of their 1986 draft choices and one free agent Monday on the eve of the opening of the team's preseason training camp.

Draftees signed were Ray Wallace, running back, Purdue, sixth round; Larry Griffin, cornerback, North Carolina, eighth round; Bob Sebring, linebacker, Illinois, ninth round; Don Sommer, guard, Texas-El Paso, 10th round; Mark Cochran, offensive tackle, Baylor, 11th round and Chuck Banks, running back, West Virginia Tech, 12th round.

The Oilers also signed free agent Bobby Strogen, a 6-2 235, linebacker from Texas A&M.

Purdue quarterback Jim Everett, the team's No. 1 selection and Louisville wide receiver Ernest Givins and Notre Dame running back Allen Pinkett, the Nos. two and three picks, remained unsigned.

They were not expected to sign contracts in time for Tuesday's 6 p.m. reporting deadline for rookies at the team's headquarters at Angelo State University.

Veterans are due in camp by 6 p.m. Wednesday.

Tech's Crawford signs with Jets

HEMPSTEAD, N.Y. (AP) — Linebacker Tim Crawford, the New York Jets third-round draft selection out of Texas Tech, has agreed to contract terms with the NFL club, the Jets announced Monday.

The 6-foot-4, 230-pound linebacker is the highest of the Jets selections that has come to terms with the team, which opens camp for rookies at Hempstead on Wednesday.

First-round draft choice Mike Haight, a guard out of Iowa, second-round selection Doug Williams, a tackle from Texas A&M, and tackle Rod White, the Jets seventh-round pick from Rhode Island, are the only players who have not signed.

Two other second-round draft choices signed contracts Monday.

The New Orleans Saints signed running back Dalton Hilliard to a three-year contract, ending a three-day holdout by LSU's all-time leading rusher.

The New York Giants signed Arkansas safety Greg Lester, their fifth pick overall and fourth in the second round. No terms were disclosed.

Running back Joe Morris did not report to the Giants' training camp Monday because of a contract dispute. Morris is in the option year of his contract and is looking to renegotiate after rushing for 1,366 yards and scoring 21 touchdowns last season.

Giants General Manager George Young said Morris, who is entering his fifth season with the team, is under contract for this year and will be fined for failing to report with the rest of the veterans.

Veteran defensive tackle Mark Duda, one of six experienced St. Louis Cardinals holding out, signed at terms not disclosed. A team spokesman said Duda would join drills at Eastern Illinois University on Tuesday.

And one more veteran is giving it one more try.

Cliff Branch, nine days short of his 38th birthday, reported to the Los Angeles Raiders' training camp. Branch had been expected to retire.

Coach Tom Flores said the pending retirement "has been put on hold."

"He's aware that his status on the depth chart isn't the same as it once was," Flores said. "But he wants to give it a try."

Dollar falls

LONDON (AP) — The U.S. dollar fell against most major currencies in early trading today, hitting a new post-World War II low against the Japanese yen. Gold prices fell.

In Frankfurt, dealers said trading was likely to be very thin ahead of the release of preliminary U.S. second quarter gross national product figures later in the day.

The Federal Reserve Board said last week the GNP figure would be lower than previously anticipated and the prediction has helped depress the dollar.

In Tokyo, where trading ends before Europe's business day begins, the dollar fell to close at 155.30, sinking 0.20 yen from its previous postwar record low of 155.50 set Monday.

In London, the dollar gained against the British pound, which cost $1.4928, cheaper than $1.5000 late Monday.

Here's how the dollar fared early today against other key currencies compared with late Monday:

—2.1245 West German marks, down from 2.1330

—1.7145 Swiss francs, down from 1.7250

—6.8625 French francs, down from 6.8850

—2.3963 Dutch guilders, down from 2.4050

—1,459.50 Italian lire, down from 1,463.50

—1.3791 Canadian dollars, up from 1.3760.

Gold opened in London at $353.60 bid a troy ounce, compared with $353.80 late Monday, and eased in later trading. London's five major bullion houses set the midmorning fixing at $353.50.

In Zurich, gold was quoted at $353.35 bid, compared with $354 late Monday.

Earlier, in Hong Kong, gold fell 54 cents to close at a bid $352.63.

Silver bullion was quoted in London at $5.01 bid an ounce, compared with $4.97 late Monday.

T-BILLS

Rates fall

WASHINGTON (AP) — Interest rates on short-term Treasury securities fell in Monday's auction to the lowest levels since 1977.

The Treasury Department sold $7.6 billion in three-month bills at an average discount rate of 5.72 percent, down from 5.78 percent last week. Another $7.6 billion was sold in six-month bills at an average discount rate of 5.77 percent, down from 5.80 percent last week.

The rates for three-month bills were the lowest since Sept. 2, 1977, when they averaged 5.55 percent. Rates for six-month bills were the lowest since they sold for 5.68 percent on Aug. 8, 1977.

The new discount rates understate the actual return to investors — 5.88 percent for three-month bills and 6.03 percent for six-month bills.

Home Savings officials confirm thrift's stability

By DEANNA J. NEAL
Business/Oil Writer

On the heels of Odessa's Permian Bank failure, Home Savings Association called a press conference Monday to bolster customer confidence in itself and the local banking community. But even as the conference got underway, nervous customers were lining up at Home Savings' Odessa branches to make withdrawals.

A run of sorts began when rumors of the thrift's imminent closing began to circulate. There were also reports of local merchants refusing to accept checks from Home Savings' customers.

However, it seemed the rumor stayed contained within Odessa as the afternoon progressed. The company's Midland branches were relatively quiet conducting business as usual.

Larry Hellums, marketing director for Home Savings, said that the thrift took in about $2.2 million in deposits yesterday. He reported that net cash outflow was slightly higher than usual, but not substantially. "Most of the withdrawals were made by small depositors. Large depositors were calling, but upon reassurance of our stability, they were not withdrawing."

John Bushman, chairman of the board of the locally owned savings bank told reporters that rumors of the bank's closing were "completely unfounded and with no basis," countering persistent rumors that the institution was troubled.

In addressing the media, Bushman stated, "There has been some concern and uncertainty in the Permian Basin due to the decline in oil prices. The fact is that there are still many hard working people in the Permian Basin and many hard working lending institutions. It will be that way next month and ten years from now, for there has been no suitable substitute for energy other than oil and gas that I know of."

Bushman noted that his confidence in the Basin has been evidenced by the recent opening of Home Realty. "Additionally, we have diversified recently to San Antonio and Dallas, with a Home Mortgage lending office due to open in Atlanta by September 1."

Nevertheless, there were reports of lines gathering at the Odessa offices of Home Savings where customers were withdrawing funds in fear of a second bank closing in the city. Customers reported long lines and cash shortages by late Monday afternoon.

The association showed healthy growth during the second quarter, figures indicate. Total deposits for the second quarter on June 30 stood at $510,886,774 (up 6.6 percent), while loan totals on June 30 were $439,238,575, 9.8 percent more than three months earlier.

Deposits at the end of the first quarter of 1986 on March 31 showed the thrift with $479,178,406, while loans for the same period were at $400,010,100.

Home realizes that customers who withdrew certificates of deposit during the panic caused by yesterday's rumors, were victimized by rumors just as the savings bank was. "We are allowing customers who withdrew certificates of deposit yesterday in haste, to re-open the certificates at the previous interest rate and will also waive the premature withdrawal penalty," Hellums says.

In refuting the rumored closing of Home Savings, Bushman pointed out that the bank had very few loans tied directly to the energy industry. "Only about 7 percent of our total loan portfolio are energy-related. I would say the largest percentage of our loans are residential mortgage loans."

No layoffs are expected at the institution that has eight branches in the Midland/Odessa area and employs about 300.

Bushman admitted that the S&L had received a number of calls from concerned customers, inquiring as to the bank's condition, but attributed those to the Friday closing of Permian Bank in Odessa, saying, "I'm sure all of the financial institutions in the area are receiving a larger than normal volume of calls, due to the general paranoia that follows a bank closing."

Bushman encouraged customers to keep their accounts under the $100,000 limit that would keep them totally insured against any loss in a bank failure. "I think it is good business sense, no matter where you bank or who you are, to stay within the limits set by the FDIC or FSLIC. I would recommend that to anyone."

The bank's chairman said he could unequivocally assure consumers of the bank's solid condition. "In short, we're close to $20 million strong in capital and have $500 million plus in assets and are looking forward to the future."

Southwest has earnings of $17.1 million

DALLAS (AP) — Southwest Airlines Monday reported $17.1 million net income for the second quarter, the company's second best report for the period next to the $19.2 million reported in 1985.

Earnings of 53 cents per share compared with 63 cents per share during the second quarter of 1985, which Southwest officials said benefitted from the strike at United Airlines.

Net income for the first six months of this year was $19.8 million (61 cents per share) compared with $24.5 million (83 cents) for the same period last year.

Southwest Chairman Herbert D. Kelleher said three months ending June 30, was the 53rd consecutive quarter of positive results.

Revenues for TranStar Airlines, formerly Muse Air and acquired by Southwest on June 30, 1985, were $37.5 million while operating expenses were $34.8 million, resulting in operating income of $2.7 million, officials said.

Drilling collapse signals industry day of reckoning

AUSTIN, Texas (UPI) — Railroad Commission Chairman Jim Nugent said Monday an unprecedented dive in drilling activity heralds an "energy day of reckoning" for Texas and the rest of the nation in the near future.

Drilling applications for new oil and gas wells plunged 57 percent and well completions have dropped 48 percent since the first of the year, Nugent said.

"We need some 1,000 rigs operating every day to sustain Texas production levels," he said. "Yet we only had 211 working last week. A year ago we had some 660 working."

The number of drilling applications filed with the commission dropped from 2,590 in January to 1,124 in June, while well completions dropped from 2,063 in 1,064 in the same period.

"We are approaching a day of reckoning," Nugent said. "Without new discoveries to replace our depleting oil and gas reserves, we face a dismal energy future punctuated by steepening oil production declines, rising dependence on foreign oil and possible shortages of natural gas."

Annual economic growth rate slumps to 1.1 percent

WASHINGTON (AP) — Economic growth slumped to an annual rate of 1.1 percent from April through June, the slowest pace since the end of the last recession 3½ years ago, the government reported today.

The weakness in the gross national product, the broadest measure of the nation's economic health, meant the economy expanded during the irst half of 1986 at a sluggish 2.4 percent annual rate, far below the administration's hopes for growth this year at an annual rate of 4 percent.

The Commerce Department said the GNP slid to less than one-third of the 3.8 percent rate for the first three months of the year.

Growth in the April-June quarter was the slowest since a 0.6 percent increase in the final three months of 1982, when the 1981-82 recession was coming to an end.

The news on inflation remained positive, however. A price index tied to the GNP rose at an annual rate of 2.1 percent in the April-June period, the slowest increase in almost two decades.

The administration has already said that the weaker economic growth will add about $10 billion to the budget deficit this year and will force a downward revision in growth estimates for the whole year.

While administration economists insist that growth will still rebound in the second half of the year, many private economists have been revising their forecasts downward to show sluggish growth for the rest of the year.

The 3.8 percent growth calculated for the first three months of the year represented a substantial revision from an estimate last month that growth during this period was at a much slower 2.9 percent rate.

Government analysts said the figure was revised because new data showed strength in earnings by U.S. companies abroad and because of positive changes in business inventories and government defense purchases.

The government also revised its estimates of growth for the last several years. The changes had the effect of boosting growth for all of 1985 from an originally estimated 2.2 percent to 2.7 percent. This followed 1984 growth now estimated at 6.4 percent.

The economy has been in a period of basically sluggish activity since the summer of 1984. For the last two years, the GNP has been rising at an average annual rate of 2.5 percent. By contrast, the economy surged ahead at an annual rate of 7 percent in the first 18 months of the current recovery.

The principal reason for this sharp slowdown has been a huge deterioration in the country's foreign trade performance.

The domestic manufacturing industry has been in a virtual recession as foreign compeition has stolen sales of U.S. goods both in this country and abroad.

That situation continued to worsen from April through June as imports surged at an annual rate of 20.1 percent while U.S. exports were rising at a 3 percent annual rate.

The trade deficit subtracted $20.4 billion from total GNP at an annual rate in the second quarter.

Another big drag came from a dramatic plunge in the growth of business inventories from April through June. Business inventories plunged at an annual rate of $24.9 billion in the second quarter after rising at a rate of $20.9 billion in the first quarter.

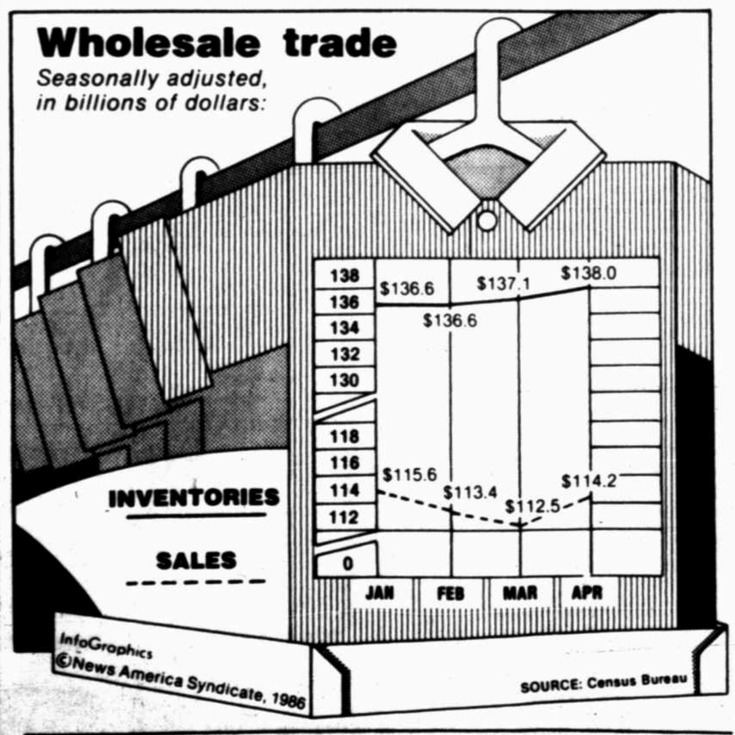

Other weakness came from a big drop in business investment spending, which declined at an annual rate of $3 billion in the second quarter and has been weak all year.

Strength came from a big rise in consumer spending, which was rising at an annual rate of $34.3 billion in the second quarter, even faster than a $21 billion increase in the first quarter. Other positive factors were growth in residential construction and federal, state and local government spending.

The various changes left the GNP, after adjusting for inflation, at an annual rate of $3.666 trillion, an increase of $9.8 billion over the first quarter.

Before adjusting for inflation, the GNP totaled $4.182 trillion in the second quarter, a 3.2 percent increase in the second quarter following a 6.2 percent rise in the first quarter.

The 2.1 percent increase in the implicit deflator, which measures a changing market basket of goods, was the smallest since no change in the second quarter of 1967.

Dart sweetens offer for Safeway

Los Angeles Times —
Washington Post News Service

SAN FRANCISCO — Acting on the eve of a Safeway Stores board of directors meeting, Dart Group on Monday boosted its cash offer to acquire the world's largest supermarket chain to $64 a share from the $58 offered earlier this month.

The sweetened bid values Safeway at $3.9 billion and could thwart management's attempts to remain independent of Dart, a discount retailing and real estate concern controlled by Washington's Haft family.

"The board can't kiss this off very easily," said one securities analyst who requested anonymity. "The outside directors, in particular, will have to consider issues of personal liability," he added.

Dart pointedly addressed its new offer to Safeway's board of directors. Directors, who include the heads of such corporate giants as Apple Computer, Transamerica, Shell Oil and BankAmerica, will very likely be hard-pressed to ignore the fact that Safeway's stock was trading at about $40 a share in May when the Hafts began accumulating their 5.9 percent stake in the company.

API study focuses on energy future

By PEGGY ROBERSON
Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON — The United States will face a dangerous energy predicament – possibly within three to five years, which could be tempered by government policy decisions, according to the American Petroleum Institute's new study issued today.

Low oil prices and abundant supplies have hidden the truth that the U.S. is at a policy-making crossroads, the study indicates.

The API study, "Two Energy Futures: National Choices Today for the 1990s," states that America is capable of influencing its energy destiny and its dependent on foreign petroleum from sources such as the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries (OPEC).

The report outlines two different energy futures. One possible future is dangers; the other is unquestionably more secure, said Charles DiBona, president of API at a morning new conference.

In the more dangerous vision, the U.S. and all oil importing countries would face serious new energy problems in as little as three to five years. The oil "glut" would evaporate. OPEC would regain the influence it once had.

In the other energy future, efficient use would be made of the nation's huge energy resource base. The nation's economic and energy security would be much greater, and years of valuable time would be bought.

DiBona said the API statistics for the first half of this indicate that trends suggested by the study already are taking form. Statistics show domestic oil production already down 1 percent, consumption of petroleum products is up 2 percent, and petroleum imports are up 14 percent compared to the same period a year ago.

Looking at the 1970s, the new study says the energy experiences of that time show OPEC can take control over world prices when the demand for OPEC oil exceeds approximately 80 percent of OPEC's production capacity.

At that point, the study says, OPEC can increase the real price of oil and, in addition, events such as embargos or other energy shocks can cause severe economic dislocation in all energy importing countries.

With OPEC's present capacity of 27 million barrels a day, the API report says, "the danger point" where that 80 percent demand figure would be reached, is about 22 million barrels per day.

Amoco earnings plunge 60.3 percent

New York Times News Service

NEW YORK — The Amoco Corp., the nation's fourth-largest oil company and the first leader to report second-quarter earnings results, said Monday that net income plunged 60.3 percent.

The drop brought income to $238 million, or 93 cents a share, from $600 million, or $2.28 a share, a year ago.

Oil analysts predicted that the Amoco's substantial earnings decline would be mirrored in those of other oil companies.

"This is largely what you're going to be seeing over the next few days," said George J. Gaspar, first vice president at Robert W. Baird Inc. of Milwaukee.

Gaspar said that second-period earnings for the industry as a whole are likely to be lower than has generally been expected, and less able to compensate for "the disastrous results on the upstream side," — exploration and production — stemming from the sharp decline in crude oil prices.

That, in turn, will force a downward revision of companies' yearly earnings projections. Gaspar said that his firm would probably reduce its yearly earnings projection for Amoco from about $5 a share to about $4.25. By comparision, Amoco earned $7.42 a share for 1985.

The Chicago-based Amoco said that for the three-month period ending June 30 revenues fell to $5.01 billion, from $7.29 billion for the comparable period the year before.

The quarterly results include a charge of $77 million related to termination benefits and relocation costs of Amoco's work force reduction programs and a $62 million gain from the sale of the company's interest in Analog Devices Inc.

In a statement the company said the decline in earnings stemmed from "dramatically lower" income from worldwide exploration and production operations as crude oil prices continued to fall, foreign production volumes declined, and domestic natural-gas sales volumes decreased.

Exploration and production operations recorded a loss of $49 million for the quarter, compared with a $214 million profit a year ago. Foreign upstream operations posted a $5 million loss, compared with $254 million in earnings a year ago.

The oil industry's first-quarter earnings declined singificantly from those of 1985, several analysts noted.

Lea producer flows 238 barrels

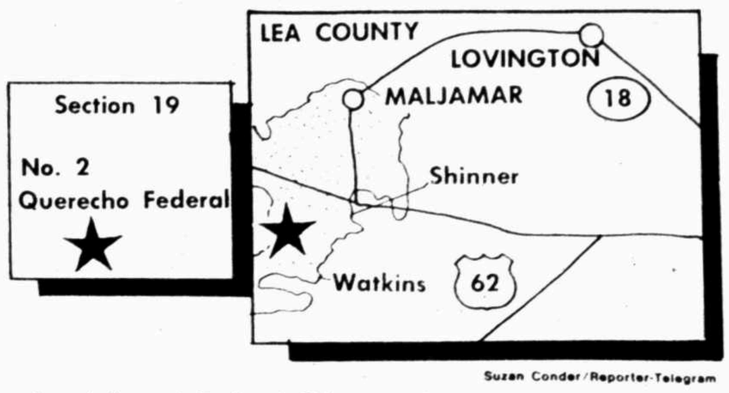

From Staff Reports

MARSHALL & WINSTON, Midland, has added another Bone Spring producer to the Querecho Plains field of Lea County with completion of the No. 2 Querecho Federal.

On potential test, the well flowed 238 barrels of crude, 184 Mcfd and 23 barrels of water on a 24/64 inch choke. Production is from perforations 8,459 to 8,526 ft.

Total depth was 9,100 ft. and the well was plugged back to 8,661 ft. with 5 1/2 inch casing set at 8,703 ft.

Location is 760 ft. from south and 2,310 ft. from west lines of Section 23, T18s, R32e, eight miles southeast of Maljamar.

Yates discovery tested to pump 173 barrels

A reentry in Lea County has yielded a Yates discovery for AMOCO PRODUCTION CO., Midland.

Amoco reentered and plugged back the No. 3 Nellis Federal, a former Wolfcamp oil discovery, potentialing the well to pump 173 barrels of crude and eight barrels of water. Production is from perforations 3,530 to 3,560 ft., which had been acidized with 3,200 gallons of acid and fractured with 20,000 lbs. sand. Gas-oil ratio is 838:1.

The well was plugged back to 4,015 ft. from the original total depth of 13,715 ft.

Location is 1,980 ft. from north and west lines of Section 6, T19s, R33e, 10 miles northeast of Halfway.

Bone Spring opener tested for 111 barrels

A second recompletion in Lea County has opened Bone Spring production in the Corbin South field for C.W. TRAINER, AUSTIN.

The No. 1 Corbin Federal was reentered and tested to pump 111 barrels of crude and 30 barrels of water from perforations 8,597 to 8,824 ft.

Trainer plugged back the well to 9,150 ft. from its original depth of 13,600 ft. The well was originally drilled by Petro-Lewis Funds, Inc.

Location is 660 ft. from south and 1,980 ft. from west lines of Section 20, T18s, R33e, 10 miles southeast of Maljamar.

Dickens reentry nets 111 barrel producer

TEXLAND-RECTOR & SCHUMACHER, Fort Worth, reports a 5/8-mile east extension to the White River field of Dickens County with recompletion of the No. 1 Dobbins Pike, originally a Canyon producer in the field.

On potential test, the well pumped 111 barrels of 27 gravity crude and 105 barrels of water from perforations 6,401 to 6,422 ft. The interval was acidized with 2,000 gallons of acid and fractured with 17,000 gallons of frac and 21,000 lbs. sand.

The well was plugged back to 6,800 ft. from original total depth of 7,500 ft.

Location is 660 ft. from north and west lines of Section 32, Block RM, L.S. Scott survey, Abst. 1221, 10 miles southwest of Spur.

Happy Valley field well flows 4.4 Mmcf

The Happy Valley field of Eddy County, N.M. gained a 1 3/8-mile southeast extension as EXXON CORP., Midland, finaled a Morrow gas producer in the field.

The No. 1 Happy Valley Federal Com. "B" was potentialed for a calculated absolute open flow of 4.4 Mmcfd from perforations 11,516 to 11,650 ft.

The well was drilled to a total depth of 11,692 ft., where 5 7/8 inch casing was set.

Location is 1,471 ft. from south and 1,908 ft. from west lines of Section 28, T22s, R26e, five miles southwest of Carlsbad.

Queen producer flows 85 barrels crude oil

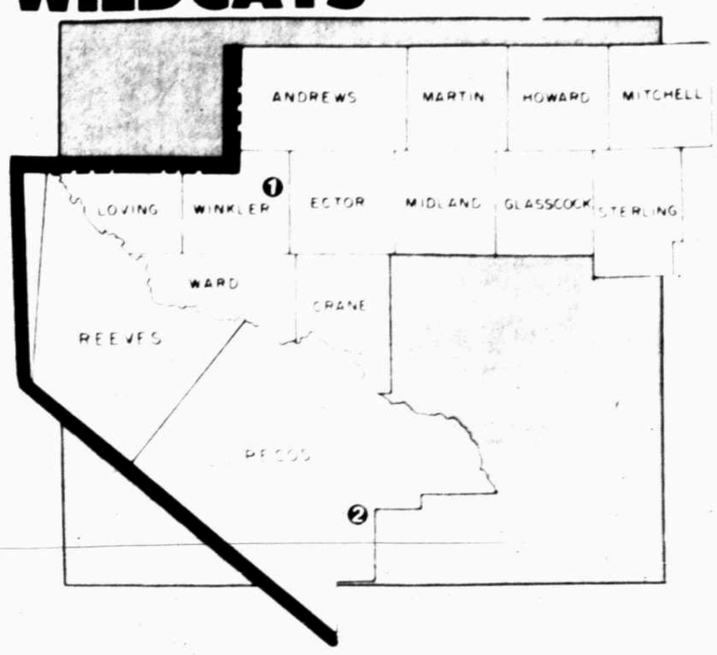

YATES PETROLEUM CORP., Artesia, has completed a Queen producer in an undesignated field, the second producer and a northwest extension to the field.

Yates completed the No. 1 Sweet Thing "Abe" State to flow 85 barrels of crude and 337 Mcfd from perforations 3,744 to 3,761 ft.

The well was drilled to a total depth of 3,900 ft., where 5 1/2 inch casing was set.

Location is 1,980 ft. from south and east lines of Section 1, T17s, R33e

OIL & GAS DIGEST

Shamrock offshore group declares distribution

DALLAS (SWN) — The board of directors of the managing general partner of Diamond Shamrock Offshore Partners Limited Partnership (DSP) declared the regular third quarter cash distribution by DSP of $.70 per unit payable on Sept. 8, to unitholders of record on Aug. 11.

William H. Bricker, chairman of the managing general partner of DSP, said that the partnership intends to maintain annual cash distributions of $2.80 per unit through 1989. "We expect the partnership's cash flow to exceed both cash distributions to public unitholders and capital needs despite the tough environment currently facing the oil and gas industry."

Mesa Royalty announces monthly distribution

HOUSTON (SWN) — Mesa Royalty Trust announced the trust income distribution for the month of July. Unit holders of record on July 31, will receive a distribution amounting to $127,390.44 or $.068357 per unit payable on Oct. 31.

Seagull earnings improve in second quarter

HOUSTON (UPI) — Seagull Energy Corp. has announced second-quarter net earnings of $5.2 million, or $.81 a share, compared with earnings of $803,000, or $.13 a share, for the same quarter of 1985.

Revenues and operating profit totaled $54 million and $32.3 million, respectively, for the quarter. That compared with revenues of $15.3 million and operating profit of $6.1 million for the same period last year.

For the first half of 1986, Seagull had a net loss of $5.9 million, or $.92 a share, on revenues of $100.7 million. For the first six months of 1985, Seagull had net earnings of $1.6 million, or $.25 a share, on revenues of $27.2 million.

Operating profit increased to $52.1 million for the first half of 1986, compared with $10.9 million in the prior year.

"Operating results for the second quarter were generally in line with expectations," company chairman Barry J. Galt said. "Compared with the second quarter of 1985, we had improved profit contributions from our Alaska operations and gas transportation activities.

"Due to lower natural gas prices, operating profit declined from the prior-year quarter in our exploration and production operations. Profits for the quarter from our liquids operations were essentially unchanged from a year ago."

A write down in the value of the company's oil and gas reserves totaled $9.3 million before taxes and primarily was due to decreases in oil and gas prices, Galt said. In the first quarter, the company had a $22.8 million write down, also as a result of lower prices.

Southland announces Citgo results

DALLAS (SWN) The Southland Corp. announced that while financial results for the quarter ended June 30 will not be finalized until the end of July, it anticipates that, based on current market conditions, its Citgo Petroleum Corp. subsidiary will incur an additional non-cash inventory charge of approximately $50 million pretax. As a result, despite an outstanding operating performance by Citgo, Southland's second quarter net earnings will probably be slightly lower than last year's record $88.7 million.

"We are pleased that Citgo once again demonstrated its ability to quickly achieve profitability in a more reasonable operating environment than the difficult first quarter," said Jere W. Thompson, president and chief executive officer. "As a result, Citgo produced its highest quarterly operating profit since Southland acquired it in late 1983.

"The non-cash inventory charge results from declines in projected refined product selling prices for Citgo's June 30 inventory. This charge will be added to the existing market valuation reserve of $138 million established through March 31," Thompson said. "And while it does not affect cash flow, the charge will obscure the best operating results for any quarter in Southland's history."

Thompson emphasized that this reserve reflects a non-cash adjustment to the market valuation of inventories, and that any future improvement in market prices for refined products will reduce the reserve, with the amount of the reduction then recognized as additional profit.

Banks do not charge fine after owner dies

By BILL DOYLE

Q. I plan to renew a certificate of deposit this month. Since I am 70, I want to be sure my two children can cash the CD without penalty in the event of my death. How should I have the CD made out?

A. You can have it registered in your name alone or in joint ownership. Either way, there will be no early withdrawal penalty if you join the choir silent before the CD matures.

Doyle

If it's in your name alone, the authorized representative of your estate can redeem the CD without penalty. If it's in joint ownership — in your name "or" one or more other names — any surviving owner can cash the CD without penalty.

Federally insured banks and savings and loan associations are prohibited from charging early withdrawal penalties after an owner or joint owner of a CD dies.

Joint ownership might be the most convenient registration. Then, if you leave this vale of tears before the CD's maturity date, a joint owner will be able to cash the CD, penalty-free, by presenting your death certificate and proving his or her identity.

A word of caution, here. Do not rely on joint ownership of CDs or anything else you own as a substitute for a will. For a lot of complicated reasons, every adult should have a will.

Q. A commentator on television recently claimed that certificates of deposit now can be cashed prematurely, without penalty, at the discretion of each financial institution. Our local bank denies knowledge of any such change in the applicable federal regulation.

Do you have any information on this? If not, what is the penalty for early redemption?

A. Effective April 1, 1986, federally insured banks and savings and loan associations have not been required to set early withdrawal penalties on newly issued CDs.

Banks and S&Ls are still required to charge the "minimum" penalties set by federal regulations on CDs issued before that date. So, if you redeem a CD issued before April 1, your bank or S&L has to charge a penalty.

The minimum penalties on older CDs vary, depending on when each CD was issued. Many banks and S&Ls set penalties higher than the federally required minimum.

Even now that minimum penalties are not required on new CDs, it's unlikely you'll find a bank or S&L issuing CDs without penalty provisions.

Summed up, if you bought a CD with a penalty provision, you'll have to pay that penalty when you redeem early.

Study of county's needs finally under way

By ED TODD
Staff Writer

More than a year after Midland voters in May 1985 authorized a study of Midland County governmental needs into the 21st Century, the study of the county's short-term and long-range needs finally got under way Monday.

"This is kind of a gesture of our good faith in working with Midland County," Su Cunningham of Dallas said in handing copies of her architectural-engineering firm's contract to the Midland County commissioners. "I personally am very, very pleased that we are working with Midland County."

The commissioners awarded a $58,479 contract to Henningson, Durham & Richardson, Inc. (HDR) for the 12-week study, which got under way Monday afternoon. At that time, the firm's representatives met with about 20 county department heads, including judges, clerks, the district attorney, the county attorney, the sheriff, tax assessor-collector, librarian and auditor. Ms. Cunningham is HDR's associate director of justice facilities planning.

"We can cross-correlate all of the existing county services," said HDR's John Webre, the study's project director, and then project the county's future needs based on such factors as population and the fluctuating price of crude oil, which, he noted, affects the Midland economy, stamina and population.

Judge Barbara Culver, presiding judge in the 318th Texas District Court, noted that despite the downturn in the economy due to the decline in the price of oil and gas, her court caseload is increasing. "Mine is up," Judge Culver said, "and I think everybody else's is, too."

The study's first workshop with the department heads will be held from 3 to 5 p.m., Aug. 6, in the downtown Midland County Courthouse.

The study is to focus on the short-term — up to a 24-month period — and long-term needs of the county.

"It (the short-term needs) is probably foremost in my mind," Webre said at the prodding of Commissioner Durward Wright.

Those needs would affect the 1930-vintage courthouse, which was expanded and remodeled in the early 1970s; the County Jail, which was part of the expansion of the 1970s; Midland County Pubic Library, and courthouse annexes.

However, more specifically what those needs will be and the county's ability to finance those needs will depend "on the scenario with the price of crude (oil)" and the population of Midland, Webre said.

"We'll go through the life-cycle cost as well as the capital costs of all of the alternatives," Webre said. "Our first task is to define what are the problems." In so doing, HDR will get profiles of each of the county's approximately 25 departments. "There are many creative solutions that may come out of the process here," Webre said.

In their first data-gathering act after submitting the contract to the commissioners, HDR representatives Webre, planner Michael Griebel and Ms. Cunningham met with the county department heads.

"I'm going to be very positive," Ms. Cunningham said. "It's hopeful that we will have teamwork."

Webre said that the questions and questionnaires to be presented to the department heads by HDR in preparing the study will "have to be thoroughly answered."

"It's important that we fine tune," Griebel said.

HDR representative queried the department heads on the county's organizational structure.

"It looks more like a honey comb than a linear thing," said Judge Culver. She also noted that the county had conducted previous studies, including the 1983 comprehensive study of courthouse-space needs done by Midland architect Walter Pate. HDR representatives are being provided a copy of that study, which Pate prepared in designing a proposed revamped and expanded courthouse.

However, those plans were shelved after voters in 1983 rejected by a four to one ratio an $11.69-million bond issue to expand the courthouse.

Two years later, the voters turned aside a $9.9-million bond issue to build an $8.4-million jail apart from the courthouse. At the same time, the electorate voted in a $3-million three-part bond issue. That issue called for:

— Renovation of the Midland County Jail, which occupies the fifth floor of the courthouse. The renovation work, which would bring the jail up to standards set by the Texas Commission on Jail Standards, is not yet in progress. However, Pate is preparing detailed jail architectural plans for approval by the Jail Commission.

— Implementation of the study of Midland County governmental needs.

— Expansion of Culver of Youth Home. That work is to get started later this year.

"We've all seen changes in this county," Webre said, "and we are sure to see more changes."

White swears in chief justice of Criminal Appeals

By FRANK TROMBLEY

ODESSA — Judges from throughout the Eighth Judicial District of Texas were on hand Monday when Gov. Mark White swore in a new chief justice of the Court of Criminal Appeals, an associate justice of the court and named a Monahans attorney to the bench of the 143rd Judicial District.

Associate Justice Max N. Osborn of El Paso took the oath of office as chief justice of the El Paso appeals court, filling the spot vacated by Steve Presslar. Judge Lawrence Fuller of Monahans took the oath to succeed Osborn as associate justice on the court.

The governor appointed Monahans attorney Bob Parks to fill the unexpired term of Fuller.

White was introduced by Ray Stoker Jr., an Odessa attorney appointed to the state highway commission by the governor.

Stoker said White is not only his friend, but a friend of West Texas, especially in the area of highways. Funds for highways in West Texas areas, Stoker said, have been doubled.

Stoker said the governor also has supported the University of Texas of the Permian Basin to the point that it is a relative certainty now that it's not going to be closed.

Addressing an audience consisting mostly of judges and attorneys, White recalled Osborn was first appointed to the Court of Civil Appeals by Gov. Dolph Briscoe and that he had the privilege of swearing in Osborn at that time.

Stoker said White is not only his friend, but a friend of West Texas, especially in the area of highways. Funds for highways in West Texas areas, Stoker said, have been doubled.

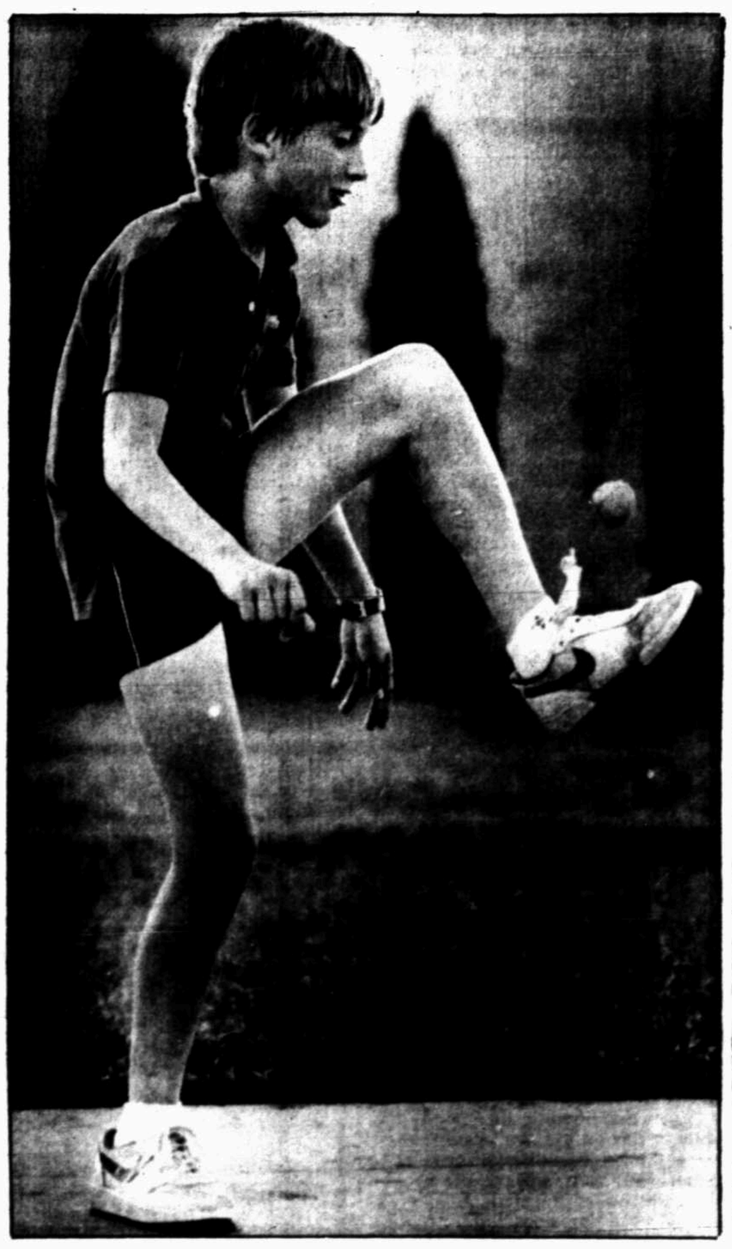

"I think that was one of the best appointments Gov. Briscoe ever made.

Referring to the appointment of Fuller, he said he hoped that in eight or 10 years, some other governor might say the same thing about his appointment of Fuller to the appeals court.

District Judge Joe Connally noted that the swearing in of appellate court judges was an historic event for Ector County, that this was the first time in history that such a ceremony had occurred here.

After being sworn in, the 58-year-old Osborn noted that it was during Connally's term as County Judge, that through his efforts and those of Commissioners Court members, that the appellate court began holding sessions in Odessa for the first time in 1976.

Following the swearing-in ceremony, the new judges were guests of honor at a reception with refreshments served by members of the staff of Ector County District Clerk Jackie Barnes.

Area agencies discuss sharing city bus service

By RAMONA NYE
Staff Writer

Three Midland agencies are considering sharing a limited bus service, similar to MidTran, says Ray Unterbrink, executive director of the Midland Association for Retarded Citizens.

MARC, along with Casa De Amigos and the Mental Health & Mental Retardation Center are considering a proposal by MARC to share three MidTran buses, he said.

The city is giving the buses, valued at up to $16,000 each, to the agencies.

The agencies would provide three scheduled daily runs, Monday through Friday, for their clients, Unterbrink said.

"We want to do this in the most economical fashion possible. Otherwise we'll get into trouble like MidTran did.

"If we could provide three scheduled runs, we could at least get people to work and get them back home again," Unterbrink said.

Citing a deficit and declining ridership, the city's bus service, MidTran, ended July 11, but buses are continuing to run for social service agencies until Sept. 15.

Service for the handicapped and elderly on Medicare and Medicaid, who use the bus for doctor and hospital visits will end Oct. 31.

The cost of running a limited bus service would be about $30,000 a year, Unterbrink said.

If the agencies could produce between 75 to 100 riders a day, the service could break even, he said.

Passengers would pay no more than 75 cents a ride, he said.

The agencies are looking at foundations and grants to find the money to operate the proposed service, he said.

"If we're not able to find the money, I'll have to cut something else out. A lot of our programs are based on people getting to work.

"It's not an option of whether we provide transportation or not. It's just a matter of finding a way to," he said.

Bus stops will be established under the proposal, but door-to-door pick-ups would still be available for people who are not "highly mobile," he said.

Under the proposal, the agencies would make runs in the early morning, mid-afternoon and late afternoon.

Unterbrink said he came up with the proposal to eliminate duplication between the agencies.

"What we think we'd be doing is following each other," he said.

Trinity Towers and Manor Park were not asked to participate in the shared service, said Bill Saxton, chief executive officer of Midland Presbyterian Homes.

Saxton said his clients do not have scheduled, regular transportation needs like they do at Casa, MARC and MHMR. Most of the Trinity Tower and Manor Park riders used MidTran to visit doctors or to shop, he said.

The three agencies will present the proposal to their boards of directors during the next two weeks, Unterbrink said.

The agencies will then meet on Aug. 1 to make a final decision on how to provide bus service for their clients, he said.

Produce peddler ousted for violating ordinance

By DOUG DRUMMOND
Assistant City Editor

Inside a weatherbeaten produce trailer, 58-year-old Elizabeth Stinson takes a drag from her cigarette and shakes her head in disgust.

She's mad at City Hall.

"I don't know why they (the city) treats peddlers like third class citizens. ...It doesn't seem fair."

Monday was the last day for her produce stand to have business as usual. Today she opens up shop in Odessa.

The stand — a fixture on the corner of Illinois Avenue and Andrews Highway — offers passers-by bargain rates on everything from Pecos cantaloupe to juicy watermelon, she says.

"I don't get rich, but I sell enough to pay my rent and light bills. I just try to put food on the table and a roof over my head."

But city officials claim she is in violation of an ordinance which could cost her up to $200 in fines for every day she stays in business at the corner after Monday.

"If you have an ordinance, you cannot enforce it only against the bad guys and not against the people who have been here a long time," says Councilman At-Large Gordon Marcum II.

"You have to enforce it against everyone."

The controversy surfaced last year, says Mrs. Stinson and her daughter-in-law, Lou Ann Wyatt.

They contend Mrs. Stinson — nicknamed Blondie by her customers — had been selling on that corner for several years without any harassment from the city.

But the trouble began last year, they say.

Mrs. Stinson's business, which in the past had been open any day she wanted, was regulated to 18 days a month, Mrs. Wyatt said.

Then, this year, the city cracked down again — which led to the stand's departure to Odessa.

"It's the principle of the matter," says Mrs. Wyatt, who has waged a campaign against City Hall.

That campaign has included personal visits to city council members, requests for media coverage and a collection of about 1,400 signatures on a petition supporting her mother-in-law's business.

"She's out here to make a living," Mrs. Wyatt says. "That's all. ...She's like a monument on this corner. She should be able to stay."

Some City Council members disagree.

"She needs to comply with the law," said District 3 Councilman Kelly Fish, whose district includes the stand.

Fish said Mrs. Stinson's produce stand hampers other produce stands which legally operate.

"It's not fair to them (the other produce stands)," Fish said, noting the city has volunteered to help the woman find another Midland location.

Mayor Pro-Tem Katie Heck sided with Fish.

"She believes there is no other way to do business than on that corner. But she must obey the zoning ordinances."

Marcum said the ordinance in question was formed about four years ago.

He said the boom brought several out-of-town peddlers to Midland, which created problems.

The problems ranged from fly-by-night operations to structures which posed traffic problems.

"It seemed like there were vendors on every corner," Marcum said.

The result of the ordinance was restricting peddlers and vendors to a single three-day permit a month, he said.

And, although Marcum said that seemed to solve most of the problems, the ordinance was not enforced against Mrs. Stinson.

"We probably should have begun enforcing it against her at that time," Marcum said. "But we didn't know anyone was violating the ordinance."

However, later, city officials said they discovered Mrs. Stinson was "circumventing" the ordinance.

She was having relatives buy permits in their name so she could continue operating the stand.

This allowed her to get six, three-day permits per month. Instead of operating the legal three days a month, she had her stand on the corner open for 18 days each month.

But Mrs. Wyatt, who has been acting as Mrs. Stinson's spokesperson, said it was someone from the city who suggested the idea to her family.

"They told Mrs. Stinson that's how other peddlers were going around the ordinance. So that's how we did it."

When city officials found out about the ploy, they began enforcement plans.

Missing person organization founded through experience

By HOLLY LONGABERGER
Staff Writer

It all started, he said, when his 13-year-old niece ran away from home. The search lasted eight months before she was found in Mexico.

"It was devastating to see what it's like and what it can do to a family. That's when I decided to do something."

The man speaking is Bill Painter, originator and organizer of Committee Against Missing Persons. This organization, according to Painter, will search for missing people, without charge, until they are found.

"I was waiting and waiting for someone to organize something like this, but then I realized if I want it done I would have to do it myself," he said.

Originally from Texas, Painter has been working to make C.A.M.P. a national organization for a little more than a year. He was in Midland Monday trying to raise funds for C.A.M.P. He also has been in various other states raising money.

He projected that total operation costs for the 1986-87 year will be nearly $177 million.

Painter said the organization will be non-profit, existing on contributions and donations only.

"The organization is not just restricted to children, it is for anyone who reports someone missing, whether they are abducted, runaways, throwaways or just missing," he said.

According to Painter there is no other national organization like this.

"Our main objective is to fulfill the void in our country. There is so much demand for this, but no supply."

City's 911 emergency number violated by non-emergency calls

By PATRICK CRIMMINS
Staff Writer

Midland's emergency-only telephone number, 911, is being dialed more than 2,000 times per month by citizens making non-emergency calls, according to the Midland Fire Department.

According to fire department records, 8,000 calls are received per month. Approximately 4,500 of those are dialed 911, and almost 50 percent of those do not fit the department's definition of an emergency — a life or property-threatening situation in which immediate assistance is required.

Fire Chief James Roberts said he feels the current system is adequate and does not know of a case in which any emergency service has been delayed since the 911 system was installed 10 years ago.

But, he said, the potential for a problem is there.

"What they are doing is keeping the lines tied up," Roberts said. "The system is set up for emergencies. If you need weather reports, don't call. If you need a police officer for a non-emergency situation, don't call."

Roberts said when the system was installed, notices of the new number were included in telephone bills. The "911" is currently displayed in bold numbers in the inside front cover of the May 1986-87 telephone directory.

Despite that information, Roberts said the non-emergency calls continue.

"It's a problem we've had all along," he said. "It hasn't just started now, or begun increasing now. Some people call 911 instead of 1411, expecting to get information. Whenever we have a big storm or a threat of a storm, people call in asking for weather reports. We're just not geared up for that."

The department handles all incoming 911 calls, and dispatches fire and ambulance calls. Others are transferred via emergency lines to the Midland Police Department, the Midland County Sheriff's Department, or the Department of Public Safety.

Roberts said the 911 dispatcher has three incoming lines from telephone exchanges beginning with "68", three from "69", and two from "56."

Three-day Midland-Odessa Music Festival approaches

From Staff Reports

"The Midland-Odessa Music Festival is a great opportunity for the West Texas area," says Shawna Rust, director of the Midland Chamber of Commerce's Visitors and Convention Bureau. "There's been a lot of excitement generated about the upcoming three-day event at Water Wonderland, and we're expecting a great turnout."

The lineup for the three-day festival is:

— 8 p.m. Friday: The Light Crust Doughboys, Alvin Crow and the Pleasant Valley Boys with special guest "Take It Away" Leon McAuliffe and Asleep at the Wheel with special guest fiddler Johnny Gimble.

— 1 p.m. Saturday: West Texas Bluegrass Band Championships.

— 8 p.m. Saturday: Alan Munde & Roland White and the Country Gazette with guest star Joe Carr, Colorado's Hot Rize with Red Knuckles and the Trailblazers, Tennessee Valley Authority and Hickory Hill.

— 8 p.m. Sunday: Riders in the Sky from Nashville and the Midland-Odessa Pops Orchestra, conducted by Dr. Thomas Hohstadt, with special guest "Hee Haw" fiddler Jana Jae.

The festival, which is co-sponsored by Bud Light, Water Wonderland, the Midland Chamber of Commerce's Visitors and Convention Bureau and the Odessa Chamber of Commerce's Visitors and Convention Bureau, is being produced by veteran producer Rod Kennedy, who has produced more than 650 events in the past 39 years including at least 175 concerts in Kerrville.

"Staging this event has required cooperation and hard work from well over 300 people," Miss Rust says. "Trying to work together with this size operation is difficult and rewarding at the same time."

To ensure as smooth a running festival as possible a Volunteer Orientation is planned at 7 p.m. Wednesday at Water Wonderland. After taking a site tour, the group will return to the Blue Pavilon at 7:30 p.m. for a reception. At that time, the volunteers and staff members will be given their assigned duties.

A special ribbon cutting ceremony will be held at 10 a.m. Thursday at Water Wonderland. The mayors of both cities will be present for the event.

"The music festival has offered Midland and Odessa an opportunity to work together and opened the doors for other such endeavors," Miss Rust says.

In fact, the idea for staging such an event grew out of a conversation between the chambers.

"The original committee was Rob Varley in Odessa, myself and Rod Kennedy," Miss Rust says. "Rob called me and picked my brain to see what ideas we could come up with to provide positive exposure for our area. Although the Odessa bureau has experienced a total change in staff, the current members have picked up the project and spent hours working to make it successful."

Advance tickets, priced at $6 per-day and $15 for a three-day ticket, may be purchased at Water Wonderland until noon Friday. Gate prices are $7 for a single-day ticket and $18 for a three-day ticket. Children under 12 are admitted free when accompanied by an adult. Gates open at 6 p.m. Friday and 1 p.m. Saturday and Sunday. The evening concerts will end at 11 p.m.

"We don't know what figures to expect in turnout, but we're hoping for 8,000 which could mean a $70,000 boost to the local economy."

Firefighters report one injury among three during rash of residential fires

From Staff Reports

A Midland woman was treated for smoke inhalation Monday following a fire at her residence at 1710 North "A" St., the only injury reported following one of three residential fires Monday.

Six units and 14 firefighters from the Midland Fire Department responded to the fire about 3 p.m., and on arrival, found the patio townhouse in flames.

Roselyn Oden of Midland was transported to MMH where she was treated and released, according to an official with the fire department.

Reports listed the preliminary cause of the fire was a light left on in a closet. Heavy damage to a hall and stairwell was reported, as well as heat and smoke damage throughout the residence.

Toys which apparently were doused with ether and lit with a match caused a fire at a home at 714 Spraberry, according to fire department officials. Five units and nine firefighters responded to the fire about 10 a.m., and found the residence blazing on arrival.

Fire damage to furniture and carpet in the den area, where the fire started, was reported. Heavy smoke damage to the den and light to moderate smoke damage to the rest of the house was also reported.

Four units and ten firefighters responded to a report of a fire about 11:50 p.m. Monday at 1721 E. Oak Ave. The fire, which apparently started in the bedroom, was probably set deliberately, according to the fire department. The fire was out on arrival and no injuries were reported.

Midland resident reports jewelry stolen from home while he gardened, police say

From Staff Reports

The Midland Police Department Tuesday reported the theft of jewelry valued at $3,300 from a Midland residence.

The victim, Craig Irish, 2103 Abbey Pl., told police he removed three rings about 5 p.m. Monday before he went outside to do yard work. He said the items were left in the bedroom. When he returned about 8 p.m., he said the rings were missing from the residence, which was unlocked.

The stolen items were described as a 14-karat gold nugget ring with seven diamonds surrounding a larger diamond, valued at $2,500; a 14-karat gold nugget ring with three diamonds valued at $550; and a 14-karat gold pinkie ring valued at $250.

In other reports, items valued at $405 were reported stolen from an automobile parked in the 2600 block of Whitney Drive. The victim, Oscar Valencia, reported a radar detector, keys, and a cassette player stolen, apparently after a vent window was broken into.

DPS report two killed in separate mishaps

From Staff Reports

BIG SPRING — A 28-year-old Midland man and a 21-year-old Coahoma man were killed Monday in separate accidents in Howard County, the Department of Public Safety reported.

Hoby Lee, 28, of 4315 Neely, Apt. 28, was injured about 6:15 a.m. when the 1978 Honda automobile he was driving struck the back of a tractor-trailer that was legally parked on the westbound shoulder of Interstate 20 in Big Spring, DPS reports said.

Lee was taken to Odessa Medical Center where he was pronounced dead at 1:55 p.m. by Dr. Michael Manicom. An autopsy has been ordered in the death.

According to the DPS, 21-year-old Bradley Chance Wiginton of Coahoma was killed about 6:15 a.m. Monday when he was struck by a vehicle near the intersection of Salem Rd. and the south service road of I-20 in Howard County. Wiginton was walking near the intersection when he was injured.

He was taken to Malone Hogan Hospital in Big Spring, and pronounced dead by Justice of the Peace China Long, Jr. An autopsy has been ordered in the case.

DEATHS

Cherie Shelburne

Cherie Shelburne

Services for Cherie Shelburne, of Midland, will be held at 9:30 a.m. Wednesday at Crestview Baptist Church with Dr. Kenneth Hall officiating. Interment will be at Resthaven Memorial Park under the direction of Ellis Funeral Home.

She died Sunday afternoon at a Dallas hospital following a lengthy illness.

She was born Feb. 22, 1981, in Midland and had resided in Midland all her life.

Survivors include her parents, Richard and Judy Shelburne of Midland; one brother, Charles Jonathan Shelburne of Midland; grandparents, Lora and Hayes DePrange of Midland and Ruth and Gene Shelburne of Midland, and one great grandparent, Vila Powell of Midland.

The family requests that memorials be directed to Children's Memorial Center, Transplant Center, of Dallas.

Ruth Chivers

Funeral services for Ruth Chivers of Midland will be 3:30 p.m. Wednesday in the Ellis Chapel. Burial will follow in Resthaven Memorial Park.

Mrs. Chivers died Monday at her residence, following a lengthy illness.

She was born in 1901 in Georgetown. As a teen-ager, she moved with her family to Abilene, then to Taylor County and Midland. She had been a resident of Midland the past 60 years. In 1939 she married L.H. Chivers. He preceded her in death in 1973. A daughter, Doris Richard, also preceded her in death in 1983. She was a member of the North A Street and Tennessee Avenue Church of Christ.

She was preceded in death by her son, Paul Wiger, in 1979.

EMERGENCY

A caller that dials 911 will get a busy signal only if all incoming lines in that exchange are busy. Roberts said the system has been clogged to that extent only "about a dozen times in 10 years."

Roberts said although there is only one dispatcher on duty constantly, there are two dispatcher positions.

"One dispatcher is adequate except in those rare cases when the high demand is there," he said. "When that demand is there, we add a person. It's not unusual at all for me to be in there answering the phone."

Deputy City Manager Fred Poe said he was not aware of a critical problem in the 911 system.

"We would not consider it a problem until it got to the point where the system was becoming overloaded, and there was an actual possibility of someone not getting emergency service," Poe said.

"If there is a problem, our first approach would be to put out an admonition to the public to ask them to cooperate, and to use the 911 only in an emergency. Usually, if you go to the public, they are pretty good about something like this."

"We get calls from people reporting burglaries. That's not an emergency," said Richard Kolas, fire department communications supervisor. "We understand it is an emergency to the citizens, but immediate assistance is not required."

Kolas said about a third of the 150 calls a day to 911 are prank calls.

"If we could cut down those non-emergency calls, and get the people to call the appropriate agency, it would ease our workload," he said.

Roberts said he would like to have two dispatchers on duty constantly, but said it is hard to justify the added expense to the City Council because busy periods are infrequent and sporadic.

"They are very receptive to the idea that if we need more dispatchers, we can get them," he said.

Now she can only have a single three-day permit each month. That permit expired Monday.

The woman vacated the corner about 6 p.m. Monday. She cannot legally return until next month. At that time, she will be sold another three-day permit.

Meanwhile, Mrs. Stinson's stand was doing brisk business on what was to be her last day.

Several customers offered her and Mrs. Wyatt words of encouragement and one even baked her an apple cake as a going away present.

But Mrs. Stinson — who has been selling produce for more than 35 years — still wasn't happy.

She didn't want to move her stand from the Midland corner.

"All I want to do is make a living here. And this is the only way I know how."

So far Painter said he has sold the idea nationally to everyone he has spoken to, and will hopefully begin training people by mid-August.

He said the organization will employ over 2,600 people nationally. They will hire consultants and criminologists, however over half the people will not have any experience, he said.

"I don't care if the person was a janitor before. We want people who are willing to work."

He added that he hopes they can begin taking calls from people by mid-August.

To choose where different divisions of C.A.M.P will be located, Painter said he looked at geographic locations and what areas needed the program the most. From there he divided the country into regions and divisions so the entire United States was covered.

There will be a regional office in Dallas-Fort Worth and a divisional headquarters in Amarillo. Painter added there will probably be an office for the Midland-Odessa area.

Painter has two national headquarters — one in Washington D.C. and the other in Los Angeles. There will also be a toll-free number people can call.

When a person does call for assistance, Painter said, the operation will contact the local police, visit everyone who has been in contact with the person and determined whether they are missing, abducted or runaways.

"We will work in teams of two and deal continuously with the law enforcement."

When the person is found he will be returned to the family or if there are difficulties, Painter said, he is planning 10 retreat houses within the 10 divisions.

"These are for people who can't go home," he said, "but if they are children we must get temporary custody. It's the law."

Painter said he feels that once he gets the backing he needs, this idea will get off the ground.

"This is something that people say will never happen to them. My family thought that, too. But, it is a fact that one out of every four families will be faced with this tragedy whether they are black, white, Jewish or Baptist."

For more information about the organization, write C.A.M.P., P.O. Box 1165, Jal, N.M., 88252, or call (505) 395-2055.

Civil Liberties Union files fourth jail suit

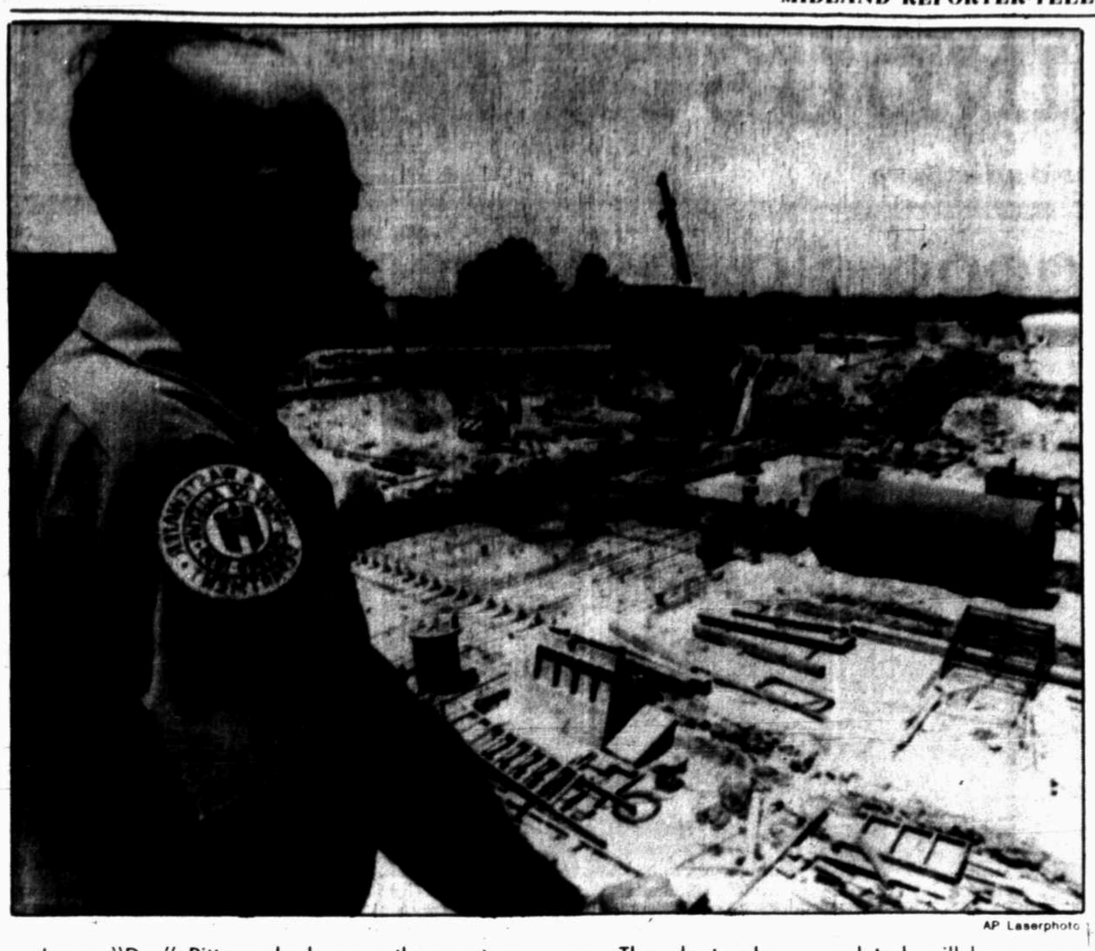

AUSTIN (AP) — The Texas Civil Liberties Union has filed its fourth lawsuit against the Texas Commission on Jail Standards, alleging that the commission has failed to enforce regulations on the operation of county jails.

The most recent suit alleges that the commission has allowed the McLennan County Jail in Waco to continue operating even though it has been decertified as a jail since June, 1985.

James "Doc" Pittman looks over the construction of the Ullrich water treatment facility in Austin. Mandatory conservation measures go into effect in the city Tuesday due to the increased water use. The plant, when completed, will have more than three times the current capacity and hopefully eliminate the city's water problems.

Austin begins water conservation after weekend's high water usage

AUSTIN (AP) — Residents of Austin today began following a mandatory water conservation program, imposed after 100-degree heat and lack of rain drove water use to high levels over the weekend.

"I guess the day we were trying to avoid has finally come," said City Manager Jorge Carrasco, in announcing the controls.

The decision to impose mandatory rationing rules again — as has occurred during the past two summers — was made Sunday after citywide water use topped 155 million gallons daily for the third straight day.

Faith George of the city's resource management department said Austin residents used 161.27 million gallons of water on Saturday. Sunday's high temperature hit 100 degrees, the hottest of the year.

Voluntary water controls went into effect May 1. The biggest difference between those restrictions and the Stage 2 rationing plan is that police can issue tickets for violations.

The maximum fine is $200, Ms. George said.

Carrasco said the city water system has been operating fairly well, but the dry weather forecast coupled with high water use prompted him to impose Stage 2 water conservation measures before problems developed.

The ability to have adequate water pressure for firefighting was a prime concern, Carrasco said.

"All of our engineers feel comfortable that we have not experienced any unusual problems, but we feel that because of the hot weather and high demand, the only course of action is to impose Stage 2 mandatory conservation measures," Carrasco said.

"It appears to be the prudent thing to do now to avoid serious problems in the future," he said.

Carrasco said it is impossible to predict how long the mandatory conservation measures will last.

The city's key problem isn't with water supply but with a distribution system that hasn't kept pace with Austin's booming growth, officials said.

Ms. George said the conservation rules require that residents may use water for outdoor purposes, such as lawn watering, only every fifth day as determined by the last number of street addresses. Lawn watering also is prohibited between noon and 7 p.m.

Should the controls fail and water use tops 165 million gallons daily for three consecutive days, the city could impose even tougher Stage 3 restrictions.

Study says school budgets grew $2.7 billion since reform passed

STATE

AUSTIN (AP) — Local school budgets have grown by $2.7 billion in the two years since the Legislature passed HB72, the sweeping school reform law, with the increases split between state and local taxes, a new study says.

"Over the past two years, an added $1 billion in state aid was matched by a $1 billion increase in local school property taxes," the Texas Research League reported.

"Last year, trustees in the 1,063 local school districts levied the largest school property tax increase in history — $551 million — for a total tax bill of $4.6 billion," the group said.

The remaining $700 million in increases was funded by bond sales, federal aid, school fees and other revenue sources, the study released Monday said.

The research league is a non-profit educational corporation that studies Texas government.

In its latest report on school finance, the research group said school district tax levies in Texas increased an average of 13.3 percent last year.

School budgets adopted last year called for spending of $3,346 per student for currcent operations.

Four out of five dollars were spent for salaries, and statewide, payroll expenses averaged $2,705 per student. Payroll expense is a combination of salary levels and staffing patterns.

According to the research group, the average salary for classroom teachers in Texas was $23,281 last year.

However, the study said, "While the Legislature and local school trustees focused discussion on classroom teachers' salaries, statewide only two-fifths of the 1985 budget increase was used for that purpose."

The statewide pupil-teacher ratio was one to 16.3, the league said.

The school reform legislation requires no more than 22 students in kindergarten, first or second grade classes next year, but one-fourth of the state's school districts obtained a waiver from that restriction last year, the report said.

Willie's daughter authors biography of famous dad

AUSTIN (AP) — Susie Nelson says her upcoming biography of her father, singer Willie Nelson, is the best kind of present she could give him.

"I want to give Dad something I have never been able to give him before. It will be fun to give him something back for all the things he's given us," she said of the book she hopes to title, "You'll Always Be Just Dad to Me."

"It will be funny, and everything will be done in a positive manner," Ms. Nelson said. "It's not a 'Mommie Dearest' or anything like that."

Ms. Nelson, 29, signed a contract this summer with Eakin Publications in Austin to write what she calls an authorized biography of her famous father. It will trace his climb to the top of the country music ladder from a daughter's viewpoint, she said.

Ms. Nelson said her father enjoyed the early chapters of the book and declined to make any changes.

"Do it the way you want to," she said Nelson told her. "He's behind it the whole way."

The first-time author, facing a March 1987 deadline, said the half dozen Willie Nelson books already on the shelves are "like history books."

Ms. Nelson said her book will combine anecdotes from her father's friends and relatives with her own recollections.

"It will be more of a love story. Our family is very close," she said.

Ms. Nelson, her sister Lana and brother Billy are the children of Willie and his first wife, Martha, who lives in Waco. The marriage ended in 1963.

Ms. Nelson says she didn't enter her father's entertainment circle because, "I was off in Las Vegas being married and doing my own thing."

Ms. Nelson, who studied ballet at the Julliard School of Music in New York, got into country music five years ago by taking over the band her husband, Tony Brewster, had managed.

Brewster was killed in an auto accident on New Year's Eve 1980. He was managing a country band when he died.

New Brooke Army hospital gets go ahead

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Department of Defense has agreed to go ahead with a new 200-bed hospital at Brooke Army Medical Center in San Antonio with expansion to a 450-bed facility a future option, Sen. Phil Gramm said.

The Army's well-known burn unit would be included as a 50-bed facility in the new hospital, Gramm told a news conference Monday.

Dr. William Mayer, assistant secretary of defense for health affairs, had suggested mothballing the BAMC, building a smaller 150-bed facility and using civilian hospitals and the Air Force's Wilford Hall Hospital in San Antonio instead.

But Gramm, R-Texas, said Mayer agreed last week to go ahead with the 200-bed facility as part of a 450-bed design. The 250-bed addition would be built later if the need is proven, Gramm said.

"We have in this compromise an authorization for a replacement hospital, have the first 200 beds, we have the ability to ramp up if and when we can demonstrate need, and we have the commitment that all the medical training and research will stay in San Antonio," Gramm said.

Anti-drug head ignores warning of state, Mattox

CORPUS CHRISTI (AP) — The head of a paramilitary group on a crusade to stem the flow of drugs along the state's border says warnings from Attorney General Jim Mattox won't interfere with plans for a Texas campaign.

"I think that, honest-to-goodness, as long as we abide by all the laws, there's nothing (Mattox) can really do about it," said Thomas Posey, director of Civilian Materiel Assistance, a Memphis-based group.

The goup will meet this weekend during its national convention in Memphis where plans for moving into Texas will be drafted. The patrols are planned for August and September, Posey said. Only Texas members of the organization will participate in the South Texas patrols.

The CMA attracted the attention of federal and state authorities earlier this month in Arizona when its armed members detained 16 undocumented aliens near the Mexican border and held them at gunpoint until federal authorities arrived.

The group claims to want to stop the flow of drugs from Mexico into the United States.

The Texas attorney general's office is investigating whether CMA patrols would violate state or federal laws if they moved into Texas. The investigation is focusing on weapons laws that might be applied, said Elna Christopher, spokeswoman for Mattox.

"I'm sure we do not want them in the state," Ms. Christopher told the Corpus Christi Caller-Times.

Posey called the Arizona expedition "a testing ground."

In the July 5 incident, the CMA members were armed with machine guns and army assault-type weapons. Posey, however, claimed his followers carried pistols and shotguns only.

"What's the matter with being armed? When I was in Texas, every other truck that passed had a gun hanging up," Posey told the Corpus Christi paper.

Hispanic leaders in Texas, including Ruben Bonilla, chairman of Mexican American Democrats of Texas, urged Mattox to keep CMA out of the state, saying its operations could endanger citizens mistaken for illegal aliens.

Civil Liberties Union files fourth jail suit

AUSTIN (AP) — The Texas Civil Liberties Union has filed its fourth lawsuit against the Texas Commission on Jail Standards, alleging that the commission has failed to enforce regulations on the operation of county jails.

The most recent suit alleges that the commission has allowed the McLennan County Jail in Waco to continue operating even though it has been decertified as a jail since June, 1985.

Teenage girl killed during store robbery

PALESTINE, Texas (AP) — A 17-year-old cashier was killed during a convenience store robbery in which the suspects later crashed their get-away pickup, killing one and injuring the other, police said.

Rhonda Wathen was pronounced dead at Anderson County Memorial Hospital Sunday night after being shot with a .22-caliber rifle in the mouth, lower abdomen, shoulder and hand, Police Chief J.D. Bryant said.

She was discovered in a kneeling position, face down across a milk crate with a telephone receiver in her left hand, according to a police report. The Palestine High School student was believed to be the only person in the store when the men entered, Bryant said.

He said she shot Willie Watkins of Oakwood in the shoulder with a .38-caliber pistol. She also attempted to call the store's owner after she was shot about 10 p.m. Sunday.

Watkins and his alleged accomplice, Major Talley of Fairfield, sustained severe internal injuries when the pickup they were driving ran off a road north of Palestine about five minutes after the shooting at Gray's Drive-In, authorities said.

Talley died at 6 a.m. Monday at Medical Center Hospital in Tyler.

Hank's Superette sticks with good old fashioned service

Richard and Emajon Mayfield over at Hank's Superette, 2040 Cuthbert, have been busy during recent days rearranging the store. Richard says they changed the store around for a more spacious look. One thing they haven't changed and won't change, however, is their good old fashioned service and friendly atmosphere.

The regular customers at this down home store can expect to be greeted by name when they enter. They also know the kiddo's will be taken care of when they run in for a candy bar and coke.

Shopping is a pleasure in this neatly arranged store. Hank's Superette is always well stocked. Don't be decieved by its size. "We have anything the big ones (groceries) have," Richard says. Though Hank's may not have as many different brands, you can count on them to have some of the most popular name brands.

Hank's also has many things you won't find at other stores.

They have the many things you remember from the good old days - the fresh meat counter with special cuts from the hind quarter and rib eye, seasoned brisket, FRESH eggs, FRESH produce — even fresh black eyed peas.

"There are a lot of things we handle that no other store handles," Richard said. For instance, Hanks Superette has fresh turkeys at Thanksgiving and Christmas.

In addition, Richard and Emajon deliver groceries for many of their customers.

In the fall, they are planning to keep Hank's open for the football games across the street at the stadium.

The regular hours are Monday through Saturday, 8 a.m. to 7 p.m.

When you stop by Hanks Superette at 2040 Cuthbert you'll discover lots of extras you remember from the good old days - like a meat counter with special cuts. Silver will get you just the right cut. Hanks is open Monday through Saturday, 8 a.m. to 7 p.m. and will deliver groceries.

Fast Photo Service, Inc. makes quality its top priority

Fast Photo Service, Inc., in the Town and Country Shopping Center is Midland's original fast photo lab - the one with the most experience and wide variety of in-house services.

When you ask Manager Aaron Salton what is most important at Fast Photo Service, Inc. in the Town and Country Shopping, he says, without hesitation, "Quality." Offering customers a wide variety of services and specials is important, but quality is first and foremost.

Fast Photo Service is Midland's original fast photo lab. It's built it reputation on quality work. How have they done that?

One very important element is the lab's quality equipment. Salton explains that their modern equipment streamlines the work. That means film can be processed as it is turned in at the counter. So there's no long wait for a big "batch."

Thus, each customer's film gets the individual attention it needs. Color balancing is done for each kind of film, as well as under and over exposure. Each negative can be checked.

In keeping with their tradition of quality service, Fast Photo Service gives you personal attention when you pick up your film. If you feel that a print is a bit too dark or maybe the wrong print was made, Fast Photo will take care of that. In many cases, they can make a new print while you wait.

The expertise of the people at Fast Photo Service also plays a role in the quality production. Salton, in fact, is a certified photo finishing engineer.

What is it that Fast Photo Service is so good at? A number of things, including in-house color film, black and white film and E6 slides processing; color and black and white enlargements; copy work for old photos; portraits and instant passports.

Color film is processed in just one hour, while disc film, black and white film and slides require only one day. Enlargements from wallet size to 20x24 prints are made in-house, and usually require only three days.

In addition, to offering a wide variety of quality services on a timely basis, Fast Photo Service has some kind of special going just about all the time. Film processing, cameras, frames and albums are items you may find at reduced prices at various times. Be sure to check these specials out.

If it's worth taking a picture of, it's worth having Midland's original lab, Fast Photo Service, process the film. After all, it's the Midland lab with the most experience!

Upjohn: Does your insurance cover home health care?

Home health care is becoming increasingly popular as the cost of hosptical care climbs. Then the question arises, who pays for home health care?

Upjohn HealthCare provides a variety of services covered by insurance companies such as workman's comp cases, etc. In doing work connected with insurance Upjohn has come to realize that many people are not aware of what their insurance actually covers.

The majority of people covered by hospitalization feel that their insurance covers everything while they are sick. In many cases hospitalization doesn't cover custodial care.

For example, if a person is well enough to leave the hospital but not well enough to care for themselves many policies won't cover the cost of having someone to care for the sick person in the home. Often people are needed to come in and provide health care for those at home such as elderly persons, persons who live alone, and even dependents of people who can't afford to stay home from work to care for the sick person.

Upjohn urges you to contact your agent and request a policy that covers health care in your home. Private unlicensed care can provide personal care at a much more inexpensive price than the hospital. The cost represents an important savings to both the insured and the insurance company as both are usually paying a portion of the total expenses. Having insurance that covers home health care may allow the patient to be released from the hospital at an earlier date, thus saving both parties money.

Many insurance companies require pre-certification or pre-authorization for home health care services. If you know in advance that you are going to need assistance you can arrange for Upjohn to set a program up in advance, saving you the trouble of having to worry about it during hospitalization.

All of Upjohn's employees are personally insured and bonded, even personnel just going in to clean a house. Whether you need someone to merely make visits, change a dressing or draw blood or someone to provide 24-hour a day care, Upjohn offers licensed people.

Upjohn urges you to become insurance aware. With the tough economic times we are facing in the Permian Basin, it is important to stay up-to-date and well informed on your insurance coverage. If there is not a medical necessity you can't depend on Medicare to cover the expense, so be sure that you know what you have before you need it because when you actually need the coverage, it's too late to get the right policy. Upjohn can help you with your insurance, if you're not sure what your policy actually covers or if you're adequately covered.

If you have any questions the professionals at Upjohn will be glad to answer them. To get the answers to your questions call 688-0508 or 561-8420. The phone is answered 24 hours a day, 7 days a week by a knowledgable person who can answer questions concerning your health care needs.

JEANE DIXON'S your horoscope

© 1986, Los Angeles Times Syndicate

by Jeane Dixon
Wednesday, July 23, 1986

YOUR BIRTHDAY TODAY: There will be very few dull moments in the next year of your life. It will be to your financial advantage to be very thorough in handling business affairs. Economic trends should shift in your favor. Family ties will test you at times, but they could also be the source of the strength you need to move forward. Travel for fun.

CELEBRITY BIRTHDATES: Lovely Gloria DeHaven, pitcher-broadcaster Don Drysdale, talk show host Bert Convy, author Raymond Chandler, baseball's famous Pee Wee Reese.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Bring an unused talent to the fore and head off a difficult day. Too much haste will only cause you to delay. Exercise self-discipline and watch your savings grow. Let romance simmer.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Look for new career options. You have the skill and know-how to move in many directions. A change of residence would work in your favor. Keep in touch with nature when planning vacations.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Public service will bring you joy and still provide enough money for a satisfying life. An opportunity to resume a relationship is worth considering. A child's help turns things around for you.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): You will be able to charm the opposition as well as those who stand ready to support you. Let professionals handle home repairs. Travel opens up a whole new realm of fun and romance.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Change a fixed attitude or you will soon be behind the eight ball at work. Accumulate extra cash for your vacation because you will not enjoy yourself unless you can go first class.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Employ innovative methods to jump past a roadblock. Do not overreact to unfair criticism. Good luck and natural charm will work in your favor today. Rest and relax to restore good health.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): If your credit is good, you will be able to get a loan quickly. Those in authority look on you closely. Keep on being yourself and you will rise to the top.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): As your career starts to move, your self-confidence will return. A financial windfall could affect travel plans. Be patient. Family links are strengthened by something that happens very soon.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Do not be surprised if you get blamed for another's mistake. Do not get emotional. Facts will eventually absolve you of the blame and could win you the advantage. Stay calm!

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Business begins to boom. Your compassionate nature helps a friend through a most difficult time. You should feel good about what happens even if it is financially difficult for you.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Get help if your finances are in disarray. Stay alert to someone who may attempt to take advantage of your financial condition. A romantic relationship becomes more substantial now.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Take care of family obligations before you have to be reminded. Avoid taking on new responsibilities. An overdue check could arrive today. A child can help make this a more stable time.

The bidding:

South	West	North	East

4 ♡	Pass	Pass	Pass

Opening lead: Two of ♣

In the next few weeks, we will be illustrating bridge from A to Z — literally. The first entry in our bridge-player's dictionary is "avoidance," or how to keep the danger hand off lead. This type of play is sometimes obvious to spot; occasionally, it is deeply concealed. Consider this hand.

North's hand is on the borderline of a limit and forcing raise to three hearts. Because of his distributional assets, South should go to game even after a limit raise.

Declarer knows the opening lead of the two of clubs is almost certainly a singleton, and that is doubly damaging. Not only does it threaten a quick defensive ruff, but it severs declarer's line of communication with dummy. He would like to take a discard on the king of spades, but he has no way to get to the table.

Obviously, the danger hand is East: if he gains the lead, he will give his partner a ruff. Declarer must hope to find trumps evenly divided and the honors split. The entry to East's hand is in the diamond suit—the fact that West did not lead a top diamond suggests his partner has at least one of them.

Can declarer do anything to save his contract?

Yes. If West holds the jack of spades, all might be well. After winning the first trick, declarer must cash the ace of spades and overtake the queen with the king. Now declarer leads the ten of spades, and if East does not cover with the jack he discards his singleton diamond!

As the cards lie, the defenders are helpless. If West wins the first trump trick, he cannot get to his partner for a ruff; if East wins the first trump, West will be ruffing with the master heart. Declarer loses only two trump tricks and a spade.

Venzuelan woman wins crown

PANAMA CITY, Panama (AP) — Miss Venezuela, 22-year-old advertising executive Barbara Palacios, defeated 76 other young women to win the Miss Universe title Monday night.

Miss U.S.A., Christy Fichtner, 23, of Dallas, was first runner-up. The other runners-up were, in order, the representatives of Colombia, Maria Monica Urbina; Poland, Brygida Bziukiewiez, and Finland, Tuula Polvi.

The brown-haired Miss Palacios was crowned by outgoing Miss Universe Deborah Carthy-Deu of Puerto Rico, and prepared to begin a year of worldwide travel, interviews and photographic sessions.

As winner of the 35th annual pageant she also will receive nearly $200,000 in cash and prizes, an extensive wardrobe, a diamond and a mink coat, plus a personal appearance contract, a Hollywood screen test, a sports car, and a luxury apartment in Los Angeles that she will share during her reign with Miss Fichtner.

"All the girls were very beautiful and they all deserved to win," a tearful Miss Palacios said after the pageant.

Both the mother and father of the 5-foot-8, 119-pound winner are actors. Miss Palacios is an account executive in an advertising agency.

Congratulating Miss Universe Barbara Palacios, right, is first runner-up, Miss U.S.A. Christy Fichtner. Miss Palacios is from Venezuela

Harris

WHITE PLAINS, N.Y. (AP) — Jean Harris has decided to withdraw any claim to $220,000 the man she killed had left her in his will, her attorney says.

State law prohibits criminals profiting from their crimes, but a court-appointed attorney had said he would try to show that Mrs. Harris was under extreme distress when she fatally shot her lover, Dr. Herman Tarnower, and therefore should be allowed to claim the money.

But attorney Michael Kennedy said Monday the 63-year-old Mrs. Harris, who is serving a 15-year-to-life sentence, never had any interest in the money.

"This lawyer ignored her wishes," said Kennedy, who is representing Mrs. Harris in efforts to gain a new trial for the 1980 slaying of the Scarsdale diet developer. "She fired him and asked me to withdraw the claim."

AMSTERDAM, Netherlands (AP) — Evangelist Billy Graham says he will explain rather than preach the Gospel when he makes his first trip to China.

Graham told a news conference Monday he has been invited to China, and said he would go there in a few years.

"I think to limit my ministry on that first trip to universities and the Academy of Sciences to explain Christianity, and not to preach it," Graham said.

OMAHA, Neb. (AP) — Marlin Perkins, host of Mutual of Omaha's "Wild Kingdom" for 23 years, will be a tough act to follow, says Peter Gros, the television show's co-host as the series begins its 25th season.

Gros said Monday that Perkins, who died last month at age 81, did more for making the public aware of the need to preserve "God's creatures" in their natural world than anyone.

Perkins retired in May 1985 and was replaced by co-host Jim Fowler. Gros then became co-host, and appeared in three episodes.

Gros said he's already suffered the most serious injury ever for "Wild Kingdom" when he jumped out of a hovering helicopter two months ago to collar a moose near Tok, Alaska. He ended up cutting his face on a tree.

But after plastic surgery and eight weeks vacation, the injury barely left a mark, he said.

Knight

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Actor Ted Knight is resting at home after his doctor ordered him not to return to work because he is not fully recovered from cancer surgery, his publicist said.

The 62-year-old star of "The Ted Knight Show" and "Too Close for Comfort" was to report for a new season in mid-August, but his doctor ordered him to rest, publicist Henri Bollinger said Monday.

"His doctor said he has not fully recovered from surgery last year to remove a cancerous growth from his urethra," he said.

Knight previously starred as Ted Baxter, the egotistical but slow-witted television anchorman on "The Mary Tyler Moore Show."

BOSTON (AP) — Caroline Kennedy and Edwin A. Schlossberg, married over the weekend, are honeymooning in Hawaii and will go on to Japan, a newspaper report says.

The Patriot Ledger of Quincy reported Monday that the couple, married Saturday on Cape Cod, arrived in Maui Sunday afternoon and will spend two weeks in Hawaii. They will visit Tokyo and Osaka and return home Aug. 20, the newspaper said.

Honeymoon plans for the only daughter of the late President John F. Kennedy had been a closely guarded secret.

Ms. Kennedy, 28, and Schlossberg, 42, spent their wedding night at the Ritz-Carlton Hotel in Boston.

"I picked them up — in the still of the night — at 11:50, after the reception, at the side entrance of Jacqueline Onassis' house (in Hyannis Port), so nobody would see them," said Maurice McEvoy, owner of Cape Cod Limousine Service.

McEvoy told the newspaper that the couple did not drink the bottle of Dom Perignon champagne that was waiting for them in his silver-and-white limousine.

McEvoy said he spent the night at the hotel and drove the couple to Logan International Airport for their flight to Hawaii on Sunday morning.

HYANNIS PORT, Mass. (AP) — Rose Kennedy, matriarch of one of America's most celebrated political families, marks her 96th birthday today.

The Kennedys, who gathered over the weekend at the family compound for Caroline Kennedy's wedding to Edwin A. Schlossberg, joined Mrs. Kennedy for a special Mass on Monday, said Marc O'Connor, spokesman for Sen. Edward M. Kennedy.

Budget cuts expected to all 'politically acceptable' options

By STEVE LEVINE
Reporter-Telegram Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — With orders from Gov. Mark White to keep on cutting, House Appropriations Committee Chairman Jim Rudd Monday said his panel will take the budget axe to all "politically acceptable" options.

The committee, he said, will cut "just enough to get 76 votes," a majority of the 150-member Texas House of Representatives. The 29-member panel today begins its third day of budget chopping in preparation for an Aug. 6 special legislative session to deal with a $2.3 billion-and-growing state deficit.

Across the rotunda, a Senate Finance Committee staffer said that panel plans no meetings before Aug. 6. Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby and most Senate leaders favor tackling the deficit with both cuts and a tax increase. House leaders say they see no chance for increasing taxes during the special session.

Rudd met with White Monday morning and found the governor not satisfied with the $1.3 billion in cuts the committee began studying Sunday. "He said it ought to be a little more than that," Rudd said of his conversation with White.

"I asked him, 'Is there anything off limits?' He said,'No.' "

The Brownfield Democrat said he expects his committee to begin voting today on budget reductions that will allow the state to pay its bills through the end of the year and that will "make a substantial dent" in the rest of the shortfall.

"I don't know where the magic number is," he said, "somewhere between $1.3 (billion) and $3 (billion)."

The committee Monday began considering cuts in health and human services programs and in public education. Faced with the news that even modest reductions would eliminate services such as medical care for 1,500 blind Texans and clinics for South Texas children with heart problems, Rudd acknowledged that some of the cuts will hurt.

"Every little bit hurts," he said. "I don't know how much hurt is hurt." Then he explained that he would go for every politically acceptable reduction, even if that forces House Speaker Gib Lewis to scramble for the last few votes.

The committee identified only about $96 million in public education cuts that wouldn't force local school districts to raise property taxes in return. "What I'm trying to do here is avoid passing the burden on back home," Rudd said.

But Houston Rep. Paul Colbert, budget chairman for public education, complained that those cuts would be shortsighted and unfair. Up for possible elimination are: $50 million in career-ladder bonuses for outstanding teachers, $40 million for full-day, state-paid kindergarten and $5.9 million for an eight-week, intensive summer language program for 5- and 6-year-olds who don't speak English well.

"The teachers who are receiving the $1,500 to $2,000 bonus in effect would receive a salary reduction of that amount," Colbert said of the career ladder cut. "We're not asking any other employees to take a pay cut."

Legislative Budget Board Director Jim Oliver reluctantly outlined a series of options that would take another $1 billion away from the $1.3 billion plan discussed Sunday. Those options call for 34-percent budget cuts for most state agencies and universities and stiff reductions in public education and state employee and teacher retirement programs.

"These are the kind of things I would hate to call recommendations," Oliver said. "The staff is not going to be able to defend or speak very positively about any of these cuts."

AT&T requests 10 percent cut in intrastate long-distance tolls

By GARY RASP
Reporter-Telegram Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — Just four months after receiving a $52 million rate increase, AT&T Communications Monday asked the Public Utility Commission for a 10-percent cut in intrastate long-distance tolls.

The $100 million reduction, if approved, would decrease a five-minute daytime long-distance telephone call by about 20 cents. The cost of a 10-minute intrastate weekend call would drop about 24 cents.

If the commission approves AT&T's request, new intrastate prices could go into effect by September.

AT&T proposed the rate decrease after the PUC ordered reductions in access charges AT&T and other long-distance companies pay to use Southwestern Bell's local network in March. Monday's request also reflects a $38.3 million cut in AT&T payments to Bell for the billing and collection of AT&T accounts.

AT&T and Bell have existed as separate companies since the U.S. Department of Justice ordered the breakup of the nationwide Bell system in January 1984.

AT&T vice president Pres Sheppard said recent action by the PUC paved the way for Monday's request for a rate decrease.

"It has been our goal to reduce AT&T's intrastate prices for two and one-half years," Sheppard said, "and with this reduction in our costs for access and billing and collection services we now are able to make a substantial price reduction."

AT&T's Texas customers are already benefiting from a $2 billion decrease in interstate long-distance rates the Federal Communications Commission approved last month. Sheppard said the company might make further reductions in the near future.

"We don't intend for these price reductions to be a one-time event in Texas," he said. "In fact, we expect to soon realize reductions in access charges we pay to independent telephone companies in the state, which would permit us to lower prices another 1 to 2 percent this year."

As part of its request, AT&T also proposes to reduce intrastate long-distance directory service calls from 50 cents to 45 cents. If approved, the request would also decrease the cost of AT&T 800 Service and AT&Y WATS. The price of AT&T private line service would remain unchanged.

Mother has son forcibly committed to drug treatment; Both benefitted

HOUSTON (AP) — The mother of a teen-ager who testified against him last year and had him forcibly committed to a drug treatment program says the recovery battle was tough for both of them but worthwhile.

"I don't know in my whole life when I've shed more tears," Joan Sanders says of her testifying against her 18-year-old son, Adrian.

But Adrian is now drug-free and healthy, and both say that painful decison saved the teen-ager's life.

Involuntary commitment to a treatment center may be the answer for other parents confronted with drug-using children who refuse help, Houston social workers say.

Two weeks ago, a 15-year-old Porter boy died from inhaling Freon after his parents said he refused treatment and they couldn't find a hospital to take him involuntarily.

However, a provision in the Texas Mental Health Code allows a parent to go to court and have an uncooperative child involuntarily committed for treatment, said Edwin Edghill, a social worker at Spring Shadows Glen Hospital where Sanders was treated.

Ms. Sanders said she has no regrets about her decision.

"He was a walking skeleton," she said. "It's like it was to the point where he couldn't even think because of the drugs. You can't get a kid on that stuff to get help on his own. You're talking to a chemical, not a kid."

Her son ran away when she discovered the needles he used for his drug use, but she found him in the street.

"He had been walking for 48 hours," she said.

She then tricked him into going to the hospital by telling him they were only going to a counseling session.

"Once we were there, there were security guards," she said.

But Sanders broke a hospital window and escaped after 10 days. Authorities found him four days later near his home.

Sanders' definition of a good high went no further than his mother's kitchen.

"All I needed was three basic ingredients — water, hydrocloric acid and some inhalant for like when your nose is stuffy — and a Pyrex pie dish," he said. "I'd mix it together here in the kitchen and have some crystal speed to shoot up. It was easy."

Now attending counseling sessions, Sanders says he regrets turning to drugs at 10 to avoid insecurities and his parents' failed marriage.

"I'm just glad I'm off the stuff now," he said. "I was getting nowhere fast on drugs."

Department of Corrections urged to convert Rusk

By GARY RASP
Reporter-Telegram Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — At the urging of Gov. Mark White and House Speaker Gib Lewis, the Texas Department of Corrections is studying the possibility of converting Rusk State Hospital into a minimum-security prison.

The Texas Department of Corrections is currently under federal court order to relieve overcrowded conditions and to improve the care of mentally ill inmates. Prison officials are considering rennovating the hospital in Rusk as a way to satisfy some of those orders.

"The TDC has had difficulty hiring psychiatrists and other personnel for a variety of reasons," said White aide Hershel Meriwether. "They need to comply with court orders...and one option may be the utilization of other state facilities."

A spokesman for the Department of Mental Health and Mental Retardation said he has not received a formal proposal from TDC but acknowledged that prison officials have recently visited Rusk twice to look into the matter.

Housing TDC inmates at Rusk might save the state some money, Meriwether said, "but I don't see it as avoiding any further construction" of prisons.

"I don't know if that's a likely possibility or not," Meriwether added. "There's a lot of hoops to go through before anything actually happens."

MHMR spokesman Bob Good said that agency would not agree to the layoff of any Rusk employees as part of any changes at the hospital. He said both MHMR and TDC would be better off if the state turned the hospital into a psychiatric ward for inmates.

Under that scenario, TDC would only have to provide guards and other forms of security, Good said.

"We're in the business of running a hospital," he said, "but we're not wardens."

As with other state hospitals — only more so — the number of patients at Rusk has declined since the state began transferring more people from state hospitals to community care centers, Good said. For example, in 1984-85, Rusk cared for 747 mentally ill patients. In 1985-86, the number of patients dropped to 570, a 23.6 percent reduction.

"I think right now, Rusk is probably the best place" for the state to care for its mentally ill inmates, Good said.

STATE IN BRIEF

Age limit for alcohol use rises to 21 in September

AUSTIN (AP) — The legal age for drinking alcoholic beverages in Texas will go from 19 to 21 on Sept. 1, and the Texas Alcoholic Beverage Commission on Monday reminded Texans that the change will cover several laws.

Possession or consumption by people under 21 will be a crime, as will selling alcohol to them, the department said. The change also applies to the age when people can enter liquor stores.

Beginning at 12:01 a.m. Sept. 1, possession of an alcoholic beverage by a person under 21 will be a misdemeanor with a possible fine of $25 to $200.

Sale of alcoholic beverages to underage people is the most serious offense, the commission noted. The penalty for a first violation is a $100 to $500 fine and a year in jail. A second violation can lead to the same jail term and a fine of up to $1,000.

W.S. McBeath, administrator of the alcoholic beverage commission, said a common misconception is that drinking age violations only apply to public places.

"That's not true. It will be just as illegal in a party barn, a fraternity house or a car parked on private property," he said.

Rubber tests successful

RIO GRANDE CITY, Texas (AP) — Scientists report that pilot projects on natural rubber plots have been successful, indicating Texas farmers may be able to produce the new crop at a profit.

However, Texas-produced natural rubber probably would have a tough fight against imported rubber, government and state scientists say. The United States presently is dependent on imported natural rubber.

Pilot programs have monitored the growth of guayule, a bushy shrub native to the Trans-Pecos area of West Texas and the Chihuahua Desert in northern Mexico.

Test plots are being observed near Rio Grande City, Pecos and Fort Stockton, as well as in parts of Arizona, New Mexico and California.

"We found out that we can establish the plant, and it produces pretty well," said C.L. Gonzalez, a U.S. Department of Agriculture researcher.

The U.S. has had to import about 800,000 metric tons of natural rubber each year from Indonesia and other parts of the Far East at a cost of about 40 cents. Synthetic rubber is produced domestically, but that is unacceptable for use in tires and some defense applications.

Guayule could be produced cheaper in South Texas than at any other location because of adequate rainfall coupled with low-cost land, Gonzalez said.

The crop could fill in as a substitute for cotton seed farming, said John P. Wagner, associated director and principal investigator of a guayule project conducted by Texas A&M scientists at Pecos and Fort Stockton.

"I'm saying it has potential to be a new crop. I am not saying it could revolutionize farming," Wagner said.

"Of course, it's premature to speculate. One only need point out that cotton seed farming is being rapidly depleted. The water is so salty that in a number of years we won't be able to grow cotton," Wagner said.

The guayule project at Texas A&M began in September 1983 under the auspices of the U.S. Army Tank Automotive Command, which provided an initial $300,000 to build a pilot guayule processing plant at the Texas A&M Research Extension Annex in Bryan, Wagner said.

Wagner said he did not know how much it would cost to produce natural rubber or how much revenue the industry could provide. But he said the rubber production would have the advantage of being fully mechanized.

Gonzalez said the cost of imported rubber must rise to at least $1 a pound before locally produced rubber would be a viable option.

The U.S. needs to be able to produce natural rubber in case imports are cut off by other countries, he said.

Companies may pay more

AUSTIN (AP) — Out-of-state companies operating in Texas may wind up paying more than half of the taxes collected in the near future, Comptroller Bob Bullock said Monday.

"Out of the top 2,000 taxpayers in 1985, firms headquartered outside Texas paid 47.8 percent of the dollars collected, and this was up 1.2 percent from the 1984 payments," Bullock said.

Bullock said the tax payments are another indication of how closely the state's economy is becoming tied to the national economy and nationwide business operations.

Boeing 727 lands safely

HOUSTON (AP) — A pilot, Monday, landed safely a Continental Airlines flight in Houston after instruments indicated the Boeing 727 was leaking fuel, an airline official said.

The plane enroute to Miami was returned to the Houston Intercontinental Airport shortly after takeoff with no injuries reported among the 138 passengers and crew of Flight 102, Continental spokesman David Messing said.

Fergie: New royal figure

New York Times News Service

LONDON — She likes horses, swimming, tennis, champagne, spinach souffles, Trivial Pursuit, the Rolling Stones, Duran Duran, the high-grade pulp novels of Jilly Cooper, and Philip Morris cigarettes, which she is trying to give up in deference to the British royal family's aversion to smoking. Along with the T-shirts, medallions, coat hangers, wristwatches and other items bearing the likeness of Sarah Ferguson, some original entrepreneur has just come out with a Fergie perfume ("Fergie — A Fragrance of Today").

For months, the full arsenal of Fleet Street scribes and photographers have been trained on the striking 26-year-old redheaded woman with the bubbly personality, Rubenesque figure and lively past.

With Britain in the grip of "Fergie fever," in tabloid parlance, it sometimes seems that the forgotten man is Prince Andrew, whose proposal of marriage is the reason for Miss Ferguson's fame.

The Fergie fascination is certainly understandable before the wedding. She is not only the new face, but also the bride. The look of her wedding dress, designed by a little-known West London couturier, Lindka Cierach, is a carefully guarded secret. And that dress is the subject of constant speculation in the British press.

No one even asks what Prince Andrew will wear.

It is Miss Ferguson, not Prince Andrew, who may well be a new global style-setter. Her longtime friend, Princess Diana, became just that after her 1981 wedding to Prince Charles, heir to the throne. But Miss Ferguson promises to be quite a different trend setter.

The subject most frequently debated by the Fergie followers on Fleet Street has been the royal figure. Inevitably, there are comparisons with Princess Diana's slender, runway-model shape. After considerable rumination, the consensus view of the serious London newspapers seems to be that Miss Ferguson's more statuesque contour is cause for a collective sigh of relief.

Sarah Ferguson will marry Britain's Prince Andrew Wednesday.

In a lengthy piece on the subject entitled "The Bottom Line," The Guardian stated, "Perhaps, she'll succeed where no one else has tried — to bring back the curvaceous woman."

Miss Ferguson's dressmaker agrees. "I think Fergie is going to set a trend," said Cierach. "She isn't skinny, but then the majority of my clients and the majority of ordinary people aren't skinny either. Sarah is just a very attractive, natural girl."

Royal gown to be 'fastest dress in the west'

LONDON (UPI) — Fashion designers the world over have long been plagued by copiers, but when it comes to a royal wedding gown, some London dressmakers are bent on producing the fastest dress in the west.

As soon as Sarah Ferguson steps from the glass carriage that will carry her to Westminster Abbey for her marriage to Prince Andrew Wednesday many of London's dressmakers will stampede to their sewing machines to duplicate her wedding gown.

Some, following a tradition for recent royal weddings, expect to have copies in their shop windows before the final wedding bells have rung.

The design of the dress, being made by designer Lindka Cierach, has so far been a well-guarded secret. But Sidney Ellis, of London's Ellis Bridals, says he is ready to duplicate any design in any fabric.

Ellis told the London Daily Express Thursday he expects to have a copy of "Fergie's" gown in his shop window before the bride has finished with her royal wedding portraits after the ceremony.

Ellis's seamstresses did a trial run Saturday when Ferguson's former flatmate, Carolyn Beckwith-Smith, was married in a multi-layered Cierach gown with full train.

Time from their first peek at the dress: five hours flat.

Meanwhile, the London Daily Mirror is offering an instant copy of the royal wedding dress by "one of Britain's biggest bridal-wear manufacturers" to the winner of a contest for the tabloid's readers.

Fashion designs from the Barboglio-Cristina & Jan collection will be displayed in a trunk showing today and Wednesday at Julian Gold, 4610 N. Garfield Ave. in Midland. The collection is designed by two sisters, Christina and Jan Barboglio, primarily around Renaissance-era art motifs.

DEAR ABBY

Families mean what they say — sort of

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: I never thought the day would come when I'd have a contribution to the Dear Abby column, but you asked for amusing code signals.

Years ago, when I was taking care of neighborhood children, to let them know their zippers were down, I'd say "XYZ" (for "examine your zipper"). They caught on quickly and zipped up, and soon were on their way to play again. This is not an original. It was around when I was a kid. — ELIZABETH M. WEYFORTH, ST. JAMES CITY, FLA.

DEAR ABBY: I'm still laughing about how I subtly make a male aware that his zipper was open.

I'm an immigrant from the "old country" and was brought up on Shakespeare. In our family, we'd say, "Ah, woe is me" — the rest of the phrase, "for I am undone," was, of course, unnecessary. —DENISE BIGGINS, FAIRPORT, N.Y.

DEAR ABBY: If we are on the phone while someone is present and we can't talk openly, we say, "64." That means, "Ask questions that can be answered with 'yes' or 'no.'" (It comes from "The $64,000 Question.")

And when we want to signal, "You're talking too much," we say, "Edith." That's from Archie Bunker's famous phrase, "Stifle yourself, Edith." — SYLVIA GILLIS, EUGENE, ORE.

DEAR ABBY: My wife and I have a special code we use when it's time for us to go home. One of us will subtly get the other's attention by lightly tugging our own ear. If things keep going, and it seems we might be even longer, we'll often tug the other person's ear.

We've found it works quite well and allows us to be discreet at the same time. — MOUNTLAKE TERRACE, WASH.

DEAR MOUNTLAKE: When I was a girl back in Sioux City, Iowa, a close family friend used to say, "K.K.L.M.G." — short for "Koom, koom, lauz mere gain." Translation: "Come, come, let us go."

DEAR ABBY: A very common code phrase to tell a woman her slip is showing is, "It's snowing down south." In my family, if a woman's slip is showing, I say, "Your Saturday is longer than your Sunday."

My wife is fond of dresses with plunging necklines that show a lot of cleavage, and every once in a while if a little too much cleavage is showing, I say "valley," and she readjusts her blouse. — TEXAS READER

DEAR ABBY: You asked for family code words, so here's ours: Our mother was a great lady, but she was a non-stop talker, and when she got going nobody else could get a word in edgewise, so our family devised a signal to let her know that she was talking too much.

We'd say, "For God's sake, Mother, please shut up and give someone else a chance!"

It wasn't very subtle, and to be perfectly honest, sometimes it worked and sometimes it didn't. — J.D. IN L.A.

DEAR ABBY: During our 40-year marriage, my late husband and I used two codes: a two-toned whistle to attract one another's attention beyond normal speaking range, and the phrase "Don't forget," used in saying goodbye in public or on the telephone. This was shortspeak for, "Don't forget how much I love you."

Just before he sank into his last coma, he opened his eyes and whispered, "Don't forget, Honey." I never have. Sign me ... REMEMBERING IN NEW ORLEANS

DEAR ABBY: Due to rapidly advancing age (we're in our 50s), my husband and I were guilty of repeating a story we've told several times before. Our children (in their 30s) came up with a secret word to let their doddering old parents know we were repeating ourselves. The secret word is "Rumpelstiltskin!"

Because my hubby and I refuse to admit that we may be getting senile, we usually finish the story anyway, but at least we know why everybody goes to sleep. — Z-Z-Z-Z IN CLEVELAND

DEAR ABBY: I once read that a little boy wrote the following book report: "This book told me more about penguins than I really wanted to know." So, now "penguins" is the family code word for, "Get off the subject — you're boring everybody." — KAY IN L.A.

Royal wedding boon to redheads

NEW YORK (UPI) — Redhead rejection, says Stephen Douglas, president of Redheads International, is what his organization of 20,000 tries to prevent and no one could help the cause more than Sarah Ferguson.

"I'd love to be able to talk to her," says Douglas. "We already have Ann-Margret and Lucille Ball and Aileen Quinn who played in the movie 'Annie.' They've already written to us.

"If I had a note from Sarah Ferguson saying 'Keep up the good work' that letter would be locked up in a bank."

Since the earthy Ferguson, 26, hooked Britain's Prince Andrew, and the similarly down-to-earth teenage actress Molly Ringwald made the cover of Time magazine, red hair has made the news.

"I just had a conversation about redheads this morning," said Eileen Ford, co-founder of the Ford Model Agency and whose mother and brother were redheads. "I think they're slowly but surely coming into style but it's fairly slow. It's been a hard-sell for me but more and more redheads are being booked."

Ford thinks the trend is beginning with highlights, such as the ones in her hair that her grandson thought were orange.

"Strawberry blonde is very popular right now with clients," she says. "They like the look of almost color."

"There are no strawberry blondes," says Douglas, "because there are no blonde strawberries. We call it strawberry red. Then we go to a medium red. Then a bright red. Then there's what we call a deep red. Then we have an auburn which is really a chestnut. Those are the types of redhead we consider red."

Ferguson is a natural, dark realistic red. Molly Ringwald dyes her hair orange, a shade similar to Howdy Doody's.

As those who mimic Ringwald have discovered, that shade, among other reds, can be achieved on a temporary basis with the growing number of color mousses

According to Elle magazine, coloring one's hair red is the trend. Nearly half the women coloring their hair these days are choosing red.

"I can promise you there's a new interest in redheads," says Louis Licari, a noted New York colorist who has worked with actresses Jill Clayburgh, Faye Dunaway, and recently Kim Basinger.

"Not only from the personalities like the Molly Ringwalds and the Sarah Fergusons. I think we're also seeing it from the magazines and watching the girls in the collections."

Like most trends, this one is starting on the streets of cities like New York, London and Paris.

"Fashion-wise and street-wise we're starting to see the redheads pop up which means that it's going to filter its way into the mainstream of fashion and then into mainstream America," predicts Licari.

Sarah Ferguson's deep straightforward shade represents a personality commonly associated with redheads.

"A little bit wild and a little bit frisky," says Licari.
