Courthouse needs more space

By Ed Todd
Staff Writer

Midland County's ever-burgeoning judiciary seems to be busting out all over.

Its pace of picking up cases, both criminal and civil, especially in family and child-protection matters, is quickening.

And the courthouse, built in 1929 and 1930, though modified and expanded in the early 1970s and in later decades, is in need of more courtrooms.

But, unless there is further expansion or unless some offices not directly related to the judiciary move out, there is virtually nowhere for additional courts to go on the courthouse square, officials say.

"The county needs an annex ... as close as you can get ... to the courthouse," said Commissioner Mike Bradford.

Not as a governing body, but individual members of the Commissioners' Court, especially County Judge Bill Morrow and Bradford, have quietly sought a site for an annex to carry out the county's public-service business apart from the judiciary.

Bradford said converting the free-standing jail atop the courthouse to courtrooms would be "outlandishly" expensive. The fifth-floor jail was built on columns in the 1970s so the fourth floor, originally built as a jail, could be converted to courtroom space.

The county's judiciary takes in 11 courts overall. It contains four Texas district courts, two county courts-at-law, one county court (all of which are seated in the courthouse) and the four justices-of-the-peace (JP) courts. The JP courts share a courtroom in the William B. Ahders Justice Center just south of the courthouse and across the Union Pacific Railroad Company tracks just off Main Street.

In addition, there is the Commissioners' Court Courtroom, which is used by the judiciary.

More courtroom space

"We are going to create some (courtroom) space inside (the courthouse) security by moving some people around," Bradford said. "And, ultimately, I think that it would be appropriate for the county to provide an annex where the public could walk up for their everyday business and have the ease of in and out and the county would have a better opportunity to serve them."

Bradford specifically made reference to the Midland County Tax Assessor-Collector's Office, which has inadequate parking space, he said, off Washington Avenue southwest of the courthouse.

Energas announces gas bills may drop by half this winter

By John Paul Pitts
Oil Editor

Natural gas bills for Midland residents this winter could be half what they were last winter, officials with Energas Gas Co. announced Friday.

The utility company, which provides natural gas services to Midland and 92 other West Texas communities, said the residential price for natural gas this winter could be $5 to $7 per thousand cubic feet (Mcf), compared to the high of $10 last winter.

Energas President Tom Hawkins Jr. said lower heating bills this winter will be the result of current lower natural gas prices. Natural gas prices have dropped from a high of $10 per Mcf for the 2000-2001, to a low Friday of $2.70 per Mcf. Hawkins said the company was now in hedging negotiations to lock in portions of its gas costs at the current lower prices on the futures market

Condit's interview did more harm than good, local experts believe

By Mella McEwen
Staff Writer

U.S. Rep. Gary Condit attempted Thursday night to repair a reputation damaged by months of speculation about his involvement with intern Chandra Levy and her disappearance.

The three congressmen who serve Midland — Henry Bonilla, Larry Combest and Lamar Smith — declined to comment formally about their colleague, but local experts say Condit's appearance did far more harm than good.

"It appears to me he's letting his lawyers dictate how much of his involvement with Miss Levy he can reveal," said Joe Dominey, an advertising and public relations veteran and partner in the Dominey & Etheridge firm. "I felt like his remarks were canned and rehearsed and not forthcoming."

Carol Traut, who came to the University of Texas of the Permian Basin in July as professor of public leadership at the John Ben Sheppard Leadership Institute and as a professor of political science at UTPB, agreed.

His demeanor, she said, was "pre-rehearsed to the point of being mechanical."

In terms of public relations, she said, his

Midland is not feeling national layoffs — yet

By Hillary S. Condon
Staff Writer

New claims for state unemployment insurance rose last week to the highest level since mid-July while the number of laid-off workers drawing unemployment benefits nationally hit a nine-year peak.

But Midland workers aren't feeling the heat of dot-com layoffs yet.

"One of the things that happens quite frequently in our economy in the Permian Basin is that we go against the national economy," said Jerry Jones, president of the Midland Business Center. "If it's raining in Midland, we say it's a nice day because we need it so bad. If the rest of the nation is complaining about oil prices, we're happy with that."

Likewise, the mass layoffs in technology areas and Internet companies in Austin and other areas haven't been felt in the Permian Basin yet. Jones said the addition of Cingular and other major corporations to Midland has made the fall softer.

"We've not been impacted," he said. "In fact, in many cases, we've added people in many of the economies out here. Basically, we've had a pretty good situation. There are some cutbacks, but not to the magnitude there are nationally ... especially with

Chief Urby accepts Bynum resignation

By Stewart Doreen
Staff Writer

The Midland Police Department officially accepted the irrevocable resignation of officer Paula Bynum Friday.

Although her resignation as a patrol officer is effective Sept. 30, the resignation acceptance will — according to Midland Police Chief John Urby — allow Ms. Bynum and the Police Department to move on. Until Sept. 30, she will remain under special assignment to the chief of police. That assignment is "in a civilian capacity."

According to Urby, Ms. Bynum — a 22-year veteran of the department — will be on sick leave for the five weeks "to take care of medical situations she is involved with."

"She has been a loyal employee," Urby said. "We are giving her an opportunity to put this behind her and move on. We also want to move on."

The resignation follows an investigation into an

SPACE: Commissioner Bradford calling for annex to courthouse

(From 1A)

The Commissioners' Court has agreed to provide yet another courtroom for an $80,000-state-paid salaried associate judge who would preside over the Child Protection Court of the Permian Basin.

The associate judge would be appointed by and serve at the pleasure of Dean Rucker, the 46-year-old presiding judge of the 40-county Seventh Administrative Judicial Region of Texas and judge of the 318th Texas Judicial District Court that primarily handles Midland family-law matters from divorce to child-custody cases.

Rucker is applying for a $150,000 to $175,000 federal grant to initially fund the associate judgeship that would be seated in the Midland County Courthouse. As a circuit-court judge, Rucker's associate judge would handle child-protection cases for the 13 counties of Andrews, Borden, Crane, Ector, Glasscock, Howard, Loving, Martin, Midland, Reeves, Scurry, Ward and Winkler.

"This judge would receive referrals of all child-abuse-and-neglect cases that are filed within the (13) counties" by the Texas Department of Protective and Regulatory Services — Children's Protective Services (CPS).

Funding may be granted by late September.

Increased court caseload

"The number of cases has increased, I'd say, probably in almost all kinds of cases," said Rucker, who also supervises Matt Blair, a Midland lawyer who, as Title IV-D Master, handles child-support cases from the Texas Attorney General's Office. His state-paid salary is in the $80,000s, Rucker said, or up to 90 percent of the state-funded $101,700 salaries for district-court judges. Midland County supplements district-court judges' state salaries by $6,000 each.

Rucker's relationship to the associate judge would be similar to that of the relationship between a federal judge and his magistrate, such as Federal Judge Royal Furgeson to U.S. Magistrate Judge Stuart Platt, noted Judge John Hyde.

Hyde, who is presiding judge of the 238th Texas Judicial District Court and the Midland Judicial District's administrative judge, said there is "a real need for more (courtroom) space" in the Midland County Courthouse.

"Frankly, I appreciate the commissioners working to try to get that accomplished," Hyde said. "With the rest of the town, the business in the courthouse has grown, too."

Bradford, in considering the logistics of courthouse business, said "government doesn't have to be stagnant. It can be creative."

In seeking a courthouse annex and in working toward the proposed Midland County Multi-Purpose Facility, Bradford indicated the effort would be for first-class facilities and operations.

First class

"You don't go out to do something so you will finish second," Bradford said in quoting his late father.

The court system in Midland County and statewide is growing, Bradford said.

"Texas, like any other state, is just getting overrun with family-court issues that deal with all kinds of social relationships," Bradford noted.

The 76th session of the Texas Legislature in 1999 revised the Texas Family Code to create eight regional associate judgeships to handle "a specialized caseload of child-abuse-and-neglect cases," Rucker has noted. Two years later in 2001, the 77th Texas Legislature authorized eight additional courts to handle more of those cases.

Under Rucker's plan, Midland County would host one of the overall 16 courts that would be funded by the state of Texas.

The first-year operation would be through the Texas Court Improvement Project funded by a federal grant to the Supreme Court of Texas "to improve judicial proceedings in foster-care and adoption cases," Rucker noted.

Midland County hosting Rucker's associate judge "is just one of many items that makes us (commissioners) work harder in offering the public accessibility and the ease to do business in Midland County in a friendly atmosphere," Bradford said. "That courtroom has to be behind security," he said, since atmosphere of courts dealing with family-related conflicts tend to be "some of the most volatile" in nature.

'Creative ways'

"We (commissioners) will come up with some creative ways to address these issues," Rucker said. "What services can be combined and located somewhere?"

Already, the county has several of what could be considered courthouse annexes where functions, often associated with county government, are centered.

Before Morrow's 1999-launched administration of county government, a previous Commissioners' Court administration abandoned and sold the brick two-story Courthouse Annex at 218 W. Illinois Ave. north of the courthouse square. That former annex has been remodeled as an office building.

Offices directly related to the Midland County judiciary and seated in the courthouse include the County Clerk's Office, the District Clerk's Office, the District Attorney's Office, and the County Attorney's Office.

"We have to be where the courts are," noted County Clerk Shauna Brown.

In addition to his headquarters and prosecutorial offices in the courthouse, District Attorney Al Schorre has quarters for his investigators and warrants officers in the 12-story historic Petroleum Building across the street from the courthouse.

Non-judiciary offices in the courthouse include the Treasurer's Office, Purchasing Agent, Veterans Administrator and Information Systems.

The Midland County Law Library, which is outside the confines of courthouse security but in the courthouse, is to be relocated to the basement of the Midland County Public Library, noted Law Librarian Kim Urban.

County-related functions currently outside the courthouse include:

- Tax Assessor-Collector's Office at 707 W. Washington Ave.
- Elections Administrator's Office at 709 W. Washington Ave.
- Auditor's Office at 214 W. Texas Ave. in the Petroleum Building.
- District attorney's ancillary offices at 214 W. Texas Ave. in Petroleum Building.
- Information Systems' computer classroom in the Petroleum Building.
- Sheriff's Office at the William B. Ahders Justice Center at 400 S. Main St. across the railroad tracks from the courthouse.
- Justice Court of the four justices of peace and offices of the four constables in the William B. Ahders Justice Center.
- The Midland County Detention Center, the 1990-opened new jail, just west of the Ahders Justice Center.
- The Fairview Cemetery's sexton's offices are the 1885-establish cemetery.
- The Midland County Public Library and the Midland County Historical Museum are at 301 W. Missouri Ave., and Midland Centennial Library is in Midland Park Mall.
- The Midland Judicial District's Community Supervision and Corrections Department is downtown at 200 N. Main St., site of the old five-and-dime F.W. Woolworth Department Store.
- Midland County's Barbara Culver Juvenile Justice Center is far to the north on a Lamesa Road address.

HARM: Interview with media astonishes professor

(From 1A)

appearance was disastrous.

"What people wanted was for him to be open and contrite and he didn't give them that. He did far more damage to himself nationally than he dreamed."

As a political science professor, she said, she was astonished Condit would agree to an interview in the national media instead of talking to constituents and that he sent out a letter of apology to his constituents before the interview.

"I've never seen anyone make such terrible public relations decisions," she commented.

Dominey, who said he watched the entire 30-minute interview conducted by Connie Chung and then 30 more minutes of analysis, said Condit should have been prepared to admit he had a sexual relationship with the intern.

"It was implied but he should have 'fessed up,'" Dominey said. "He didn't have to go into details. He should have just said 'I was wrong, I apologize.'"

Condit appeared to him to be dodging Ms. Chung's questions, he said: "What he said may have been truthful, but it was very limited in scope."

He gave Ms. Chung high marks for her efforts.

"I thought Connie did a fine job of conducting the interview. People may react differently, but I thought she did well. What was a 30-minute interview could easily have been done in five."

Had he been open and contrite from the beginning, said Ms. Traut, "this would have been over for him. Now the situation has grown way beyond his ability to control."

She added there is little Condit can do to redeem himself nationally, even though those who really control Condit's political future are the constituents who will vote for or against him next year.

Those people, she pointed out, come from an agricultural community and are good, honest people. She called them Plains people similar to those who live in South Dakota, where she taught at the University of South Dakota before coming to West Texas, and even to West Texans. Such people, she said, are defined by openness and expect honesty.

Condit, who won 80 percent of the vote in his last election even though he is a Democrat and his district is predominantly Republican, has a chance at maintaining his political career, she said, but he has his work cut out for him.

"He possibly has a chance," she said, "but he will have to have spend an inordinate amount of time in the district talking to people. The letter was interesting, but people prefer face-to-face interaction.

Dominey pointed out the primary elections are six months off and Condit's constituents have known him much longer than the nation at large.

"They may feel the national media is piling up on him," he said. "If a Congressman from West Texas was in the same situation, I think we'd feel defensive toward him in that situation."

What saddens Ms. Taut about the Condit case is that it harms enthusiasm for public service.

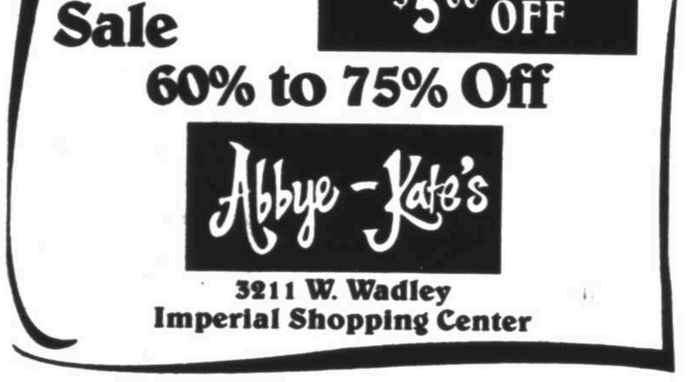

"At a time when we're so concerned about leadership and public service, trying to recruit people to serve on city councils, county commissions, public agencies, this is sad and damaging to efforts to get people to step forward. This is sad," she said.

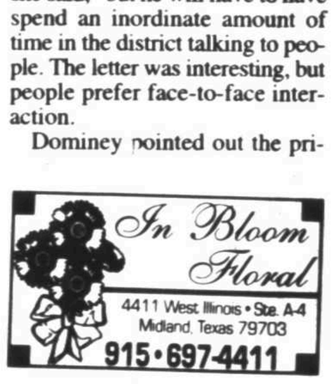

And she can gauge the impact of such scandals on the generation that is expected to assume leadership roles in the future, she said.

"In class today I asked my students who their heroes were. They came up with relatives and friends, but they couldn't come up with any public figures," she said.

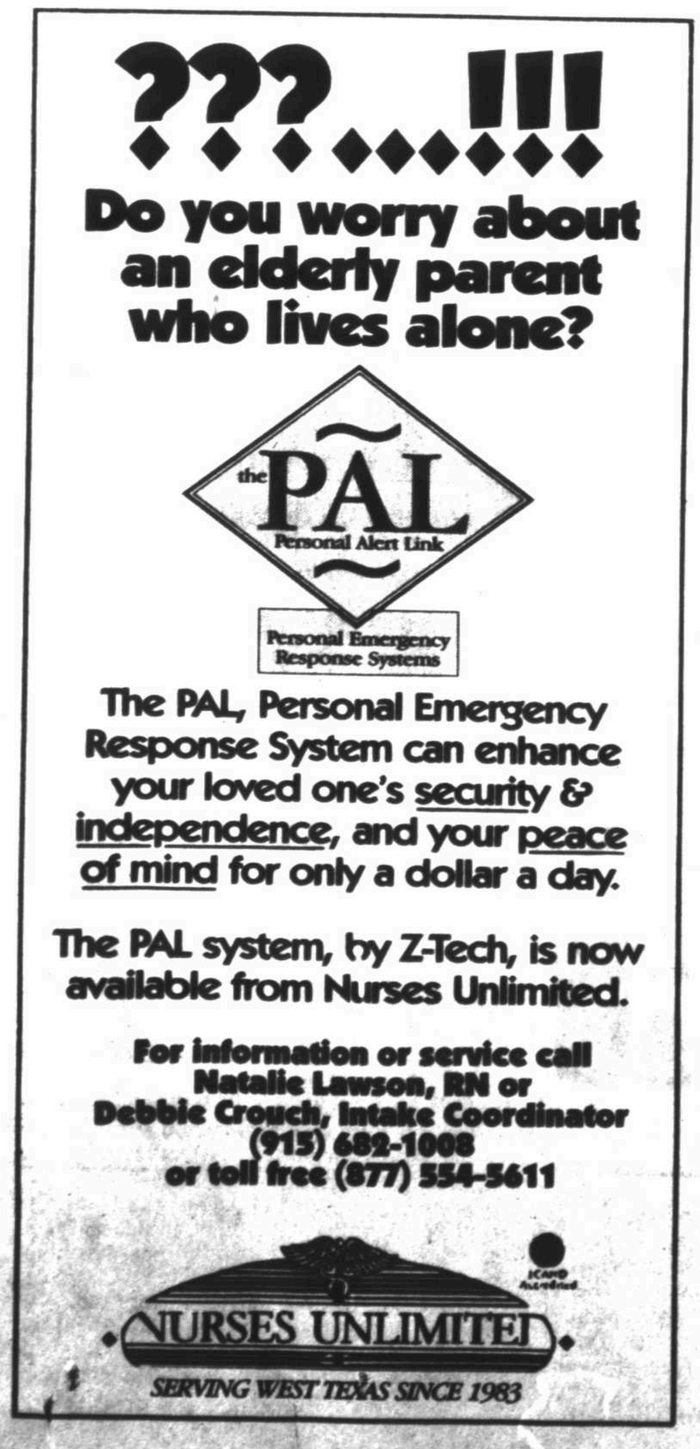

Children's Miracle Network to host two events today

By Evan Pierce
MRT Correspondent

Midland-Odessa residents have a chance to help local children today when the Children's Miracle Network (CMN) puts on two charity events.

The day starts at 8 a.m. with the eighth annual Golfing for Miracles tournament at Ratliff Ranch Golf Course in Odessa. CMN Director Mike Adkins said there is a $75 entry fee and there are upward of 120 golfers expected to compete. According to Adkins, more than $8,000 was raised from the tournament last year.

"I think it's an exciting opportunity to help a great cause," said CMN committee member Lisa Wyman. "The most important thing about CMN is we are helping kids in our own back yard."

There will be a hole-in-one competition in which a lucky golfer might win a new car, and the winner of the putting contest has a new putter to look forward to. There also will be various other door prizes given away all day long.

The Odessa College Gymnastics Center will host the second event of the day. From 1 p.m.- 3 p.m., CMN will put on its first Cartwheel-A-Thon in collaboration with the Odessa College Gymnastics Team and USA Gymnastics.

Gymnasts will "attempt to do 100 cartwheels apiece," Coach Jean Hollowell said. "Money will be raised based on pledges and the number of cartwheels that are done."

Hollowell said the doors are open to the public so everyone is welcome.

In addition to the cartwheels, there will be tumbling exhibitions, snacks being sold and gymnastic apparel being sold.

"I think it's great," Hollowell said. "It promotes physical health to children and at the same time assists children."

CMN is a nationwide charity organization with local chapters comprised of credit unions. Today's events are put on by the Permian Chapter of Credit Unions.

PAY: Gas bills should be lower this winter

(From 1A)

the company will purchase up to 50 percent of its baseload, leaving 50 percent unhedged for monthly purchases this winter. "This will take some of the volatility out of the market," he said. "Hopefully this mix will provide our customers with the best risk management."

Alderson said natural gas marketing experts were reluctant to forecast gas prices in light of how far the mark was missed last year, but many experts feel prices will be in the $5 to $7 range per Mcf. "Last winter the experts predicted prices would reach $7, but actually reached $10," he said.

Even with those record highs for natural gas, Alderson said West Texas and Panhandle customers enjoyed some of the most cost effective gas bills in the nation. "Amarillo actually had the lowest gas bills in the nation," Alderson said. He said it is still unclear why prices went so high last winter, that the market experts are still trying to figure it out. "I don't, however, think there was any price gouging."

He said Energas works closely with West Texas cities. "We actually purchase Midland gas from the city of Midland, which purchases it from Texaco."

While electric bills normally track lower fuel bills, Alderson said he could not say for sure if electric rates would be lower this winter.

JOBS: Midland won't suffer much as result of Furr's stores' closings

the new businesses in town, we've been blessed."

W.C. Wilson, area manager of the Texas Workforce Commission in Midland, agreed. He said even with area closings, like two Furr's grocery stores in Midland, the economy will not suffer much.

"Of course, the biggest is the closing of the Furr's, but I think some of the other stores will employ a lot of those people," Wilson said. "We're hoping a lot of those people will be able to go to work for Cingular... or other stores like H-E-B, Albertson's, and stores in the mall that had shortages with a lot of the young people returning to school. Right now, I think our economy can absorb these individuals."

The two Furr's stores in Midland employed about 70 full-time workers, and about 30 part-timers.

The number of workers filing new applications for jobless benefits statewide increased by a seasonally adjusted 8,000 to 393,000 for the week ending Aug. 18, the Labor Department reported Thursday. That pushed new filings for jobless benefits to the highest level since the week ending July 14, when they stood at 417,000.

As of July, the Odessa/Midland metropolitan statistical area reported an unemployment rate of 4.6 percent. For the city of Midland, it was 3.4 percent. Wilson said the numbers for August would be about the same, with the Furr's closing having little to no effect on the rate.

In a significant sign of how the yearlong economic slowdown has affected Americans' ability to get a job, the government reported the number of workers drawing benefits rose to 3.18 million.

That was the highest level since the number of jobless workers drawing benefits hit 3.21 million in September 1992 as the country was still struggling to emerge from the last recession.

Economists say both new filings and the number of people remaining in the benefit program are good indicators of the health of the labor market. The new filing shows whether layoffs are rising as companies cut their work force in a slowing economy while the number of people remaining in the program indicates how much trouble laid-off workers are having getting new jobs.

The government reported the overall unemployment rate remained at 4.5 percent in July, its highest level since the country entered a significant slowdown in growth in the summer of last year.

The overall economy grew at a barely discernible annual rate of 0.7 percent in the April-June quarter, the weakest performance in more than eight years.

Many economists are predicting growth should rebound by the end of this year, reflecting seven interest rate reductions by the Federal Reserve and the nearly $40 billion in tax rebate checks the government is now in the process of mailing out.

However, economists warn that even if the economy does turn up as expected, the jobless rate will still go higher, reflecting the reluctance of employers to add back workers until they are sure the rebound is sustainable.

"Obviously, we'll be affected over time, but right now, we're going well," Jones said. "We may see some impact in terms of reductions, but I think it depends to a great degree on how serious this thing is. We're technically not in a recession right now, but there are certainly dangers."

Many analysts fear the unemployment rate could top out around 5.2 percent early next year. That level is still low by recent historical standards but well above the three-decade low of 3.9 percent reached last year.

The government said that the four-week moving average for new unemployment claims, a figure that smoothes out week-to-week fluctuations, rose to 378,750 last week, the highest level since the week ending Aug. 4.

There were 3.18 million unemployed workers drawing benefits for the week ending Aug. 11 compared to 3.05 million in the previous week.

The data on the total number of people in the benefits program lag a week behind the information on new filings.

The Associated Press contributed to this report.

incident on Aug. 3 where Ms. Bynum, 42, reported being shot at her residence as the result of a drive-by shooting. The ensuing investigation concluded her gunshot wound was self-inflicted.

Ms. Bynum was placed on administrative suspension Aug. 13, pending the outcome of administrative investigation.

Urby said Friday he had recommended Ms. Bynum's termination on the morning of Aug. 17, which confirmed Ms. Bynum's statement to the Reporter-Telegram earlier this week. Under city guidelines, Ms. Bynum had 48 business hours to appeal or respond to the discipline offered. Ms. Bynum chose to resign.

"At that point, it is up to me to accept the resignation," Urby said. "I would benefit the department to put this thing behind us and move forward."

Urby had been out of town on a previously scheduled engagement, serving a week with the Commission on Accreditation for Law Enforcement Agencies (CALEA).

"That was something which couldn't be canceled," Urby said.

According to the city, the investigation is now closed. Ms. Bynum is eligible to receive pay for vacation, holiday and compensatory time plus one-third (up to one month salary) of sick leave.

John W. Higgins

John W. Higgins left this life on August 22, 2001, to join his beloved son, Joseph, his parents, and his brothers and sisters. A gentle man, truly Christ-like, he leaves a legacy of love, self-sacrifice, and service for a life lived well.

A visitation was held on Friday, August 24, from 6-8 p.m. with a wake service at 7 p.m. at Ellis Funeral Home. Funeral services have been scheduled for 10 a.m., Saturday, August 25, at St. Ann's Catholic Church. Interment will follow in Resthaven Memorial Park under the direction of Ellis Funeral Home.

Johnny was born on February 4, 1923 in Midwest Wyoming, the youngest of seven children. He was raised on a homestead, but moved to Casper after losing his father at an early age. He graduated from Natrona County High School in Casper. While in high school, Johnny was active in athletics including boxing, cross-country running, football, and baseball. Excelling academically, he attained the rank of Cadet Major in the R.O.T.C. Battalion of Natrona County High School. He worked part-time as a pharmacist's assistant, and had intended to go to pharmacy school. Deciding to change his career choice, he began working as a traveling professional photographer.

Saving his earnings, he paid his way to the University of Arizona, studying law. World War II intervened, and he enlisted in the United States Army Air Corps in December 1943.

While in the service, Johnny earned the rank of 1st Lieutenant as a Navigator/Bombadier. He was awarded the Distinguished Flying Cross for flying 25 combat missions in lead position as radar Bombadier Navigator, and performing duties in a superior manner. He also was awarded the Air Medal with three Oak Leaf Clusters for bravery, five Battle stars for Normandy, Northern France, Rhineland, Ardennes, and central Europe. He operated all radar equipment while in flight and accumulated 1150 hours of flying time.

After returning stateside, he was a flight instructor at various bases throughout the country until being honorably discharged.

As with many young men of his age and experience he returned from the war with the desire to complete his education. He supported himself by working in various jobs, including seismic operations in south Texas and Louisiana. It was in Louisiana that he met the love of his life, Faye Richey. They married June 25, 1946, and moved to Casper. Shortly afterwards, they moved to Houston so that Johnny could complete his education.

John Higgins graduated from the University of Houston in 1950 with a B.S. Degree in Geology. Mr. Higgins had already begun work with The Ohio Oil Company as a geological draftsman in 1947. After graduation, Mr. Higgins started the field training process that was common in that day; running a gravity meter, interpreting gravity data, working on a seismograph crew, interpreting seismic data, surface mapping, well sitting, log analysis, core analysis, regional and detailed subsurface mapping, and so forth, from South Louisiana to Southeast New Mexico.

By 1954 Mr. Higgins had quickly advanced to the position of Area Geologist, opening and managing an office for The Ohio Oil Company in Roswell, New Mexico. In 1961, Mr. Higgins was promoted to District Geologist for Marathon Oil Company (successor to Ohio) in Midland, a position he held until becoming a Consulting Geologist in 1963. Mr. Higgins then joined Pennzoil in 1964 as Chief Geologist for the Western Production Division (the Western United States and Alaska). Mr. Higgins rose to the position of Vice-President International Exploration for Pennzoil, before leaving Pennzoil to join Supron Energy as Vice-President of Exploration in 1978.

Mr. Higgins returned to Midland where he founded American Land & Exploration

Company in 1981, which he operated until deteriorating health led him into semi-retirement. John Higgins began his career in a time of the wildcatters' spirit, a spirit he championed throughout his lengthy career.

He is survived by his wife and sweetheart, Faye Richey Higgins, his daughters, Eva Fawcett of Austin, Nancy Lindsey of Houston, and Dolores Higgins and Mary Ellen McCallum of Midland, and his son, Michael John Higgins, formerly of Midland and now residing in Houston. Two sisters, Mary Arthur of Casper, Wyoming, and Martha Drollinger of Humboldt, Arizona also survive John. He leaves to follow in his footsteps, seven grandchildren, eight great-grandchildren, and numerous nieces and nephews.

Serving as pallbearers will be Bruce Lindsey, Frank McCallum, Gary Bynum, Frank Norwood, Dave Sorenson, and Al Kollaja. Honorary pallbearers will be Cary Weaver, Randy Bosworth, Alan Buckner, and Jason McKechnie.

Utah polygamist sentenced to five years

By C.G. Wallace
Associated Press

PROVO, Utah — A Mormon fundamentalist with five wives and 30 children was sentenced to five years in prison Friday in Utah's biggest polygamy case in nearly half a century.

Tom Green, 53, also was ordered to repay $78,000 to the state for welfare checks fraudulently collected by his family.

He could have gotten up to 25 years behind bars.

Polygamy is an open secret in Utah and elsewhere in the West, where there are an estimated 30,000 people practicing plural marriage. But Green practically dared prosecutors to go after him by appearing on TV talk shows such as Sally Jessie Rafael's and Queen Latifah's to discuss his "original Mormonism."

Green took the stand for an hour Friday and made clear he had no regrets. He asked his five wives and the seven children he brought to the hearing to stand up. Pointing to them, he said: "I am not ashamed of these people, and I'm not ashamed of my relationship with them."

Each of his wives also took the stand. All cried, and all asked the judge for leniency.

Judge Guy Burningham said Green's unapologetic attitude left him with few options, and he sentenced the defendant to five years on each charge he faced — four bigamy charges and one for failing to support his family. The sentences will run concurrently.

Prosecutor David Leavitt had asked for 10 years in prison.

Leavitt, the brother of Gov. Michael Leavitt and the product of a Mormon family with a polygamist past, dismissed any suggestion that Green had been singled out.

"Whenever someone gives me a provable case of any type, of any kind, I'm going to prosecute it," he said after the hearing.

Defense attorney John Bucher said he will appeal the conviction.

Green's wife LeeAnn said after the hearing that the family would do everything possible to avoid welfare and that they would stay together while he is in prison.

During a weeklong trial, the prosecutor attempted to portray Green as a man driven by an outsized ego to marry teen-age girls.

The defense argued that Green may not be the most likable man but that he didn't commit bigamy because he was legally married to only one woman at a time.

He is still awaiting trial on child rape charges in connection with his 1986 marriage to Linda Kunz. Prosecutors said Kunz was 13 when she conceived a child with Green. She now is pregnant with her seventh child.

Student missing in Africa phones parents to come get her

NEW YORK (AP) — A Yale University student who disappeared in South Africa nearly a month ago called her parents, asking them to come get her.

"She was crying over the phone," Natasha Smalls' mother, Glory, told Newsday in Friday's editions. "She was very scared, very nervous. She kept saying, 'Mommy, please come and get me,' like a little kid."

Glory Smalls wouldn't say what else her daughter said in the Thursday morning call, except to say "something serious happened."

"I kept telling her, 'You're going to be OK, baby. You're coming home.' I was just so relieved," she told the New York Post.

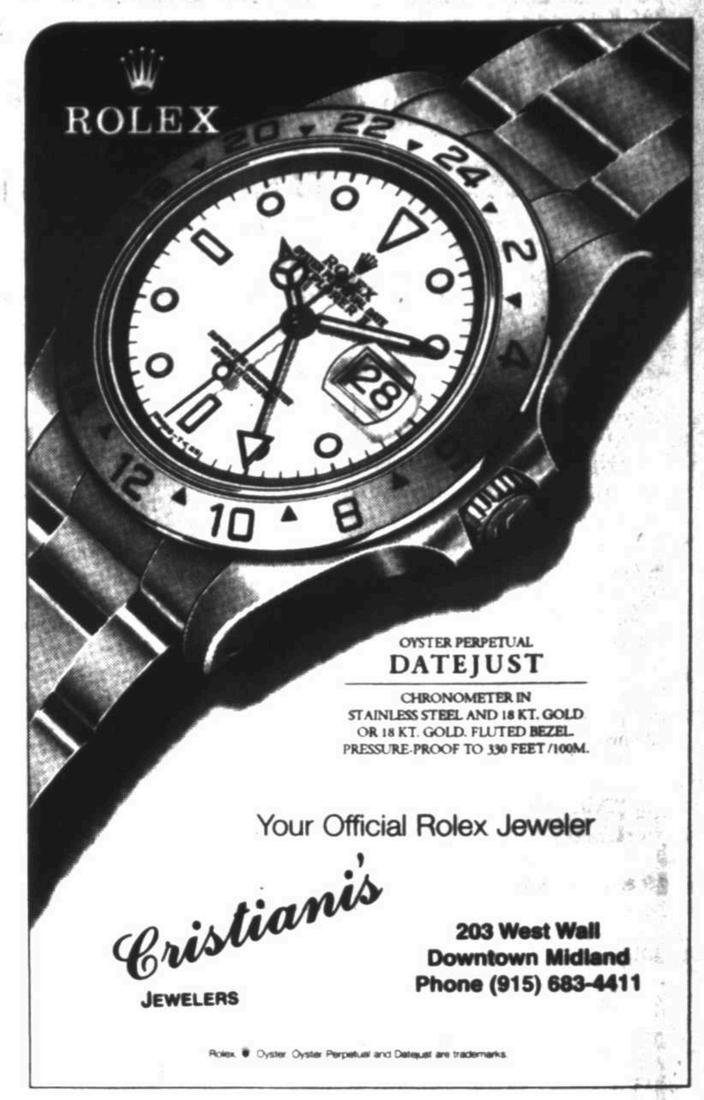

Natasha Smalls, 20, had been studying at the University of Natal in Durban, South Africa, on a Fulbright grant.

On July 26, she called her mother to say she feared for her life and had been locked up in a psychiatric hospital in Zimbabwe and injected with medication, Glory Smalls said.

She said she told her daughter to fly home immediately, and Natasha Smalls withdrew money July 30 in Johannesburg to pay for her plane ticket.

She was supposed to fly home to New York City on Aug. 1, but the airline said she never got on the plane.

In March, Natasha Smalls said she was assaulted in South Africa. Her mother said she flew there and urged her daughter to come home, but she was determined to stay.

Study: Moderate spankings cause no lasting harm

By Margie Mason
Associated Press

SAN FRANCISCO — Occasional, mild spankings of young children are OK and do not cause any lasting harm that carries into adolescence, according to a study released Friday.

Such discipline does not hurt youngsters' social or emotional development, the researchers reported.

"A lot of people out there advocate that any spanking at all is detrimental, and that's not what we found," said study co-author Elizabeth Owens from the Institute of Human Development at the University of California at Berkeley. "We're not advocating this is a strategy that should be used with kids, but we object to people wanting to ban it when we see no evidence that it's harmful."

The study was being presented at a meeting in San Francisco of the American Psychological Association.

Owens and author Diana Baumrind analyzed data gathered from 100 middle-class white families from 1968 to 1980. The children and parents were interviewed, tested and observed on three occasions by two teams of psychologists when the children were 4, 9 and 14.

The study found the majority of families disciplined their preschool children by using mild to moderate spanking. The results showed no negative effects on cognitive, social or behavioral skills of those youngsters and found no difference between them and the 4 percent of children who were not physically disciplined.

The study found 4 percent to 7 percent of parents fell into the "red zone" by disciplining their children frequently and impulsively, by such means as verbal punishment, using a paddle, hitting their children in the face or torso or throwing and shaking them.

The study found 4 percent to 7 percent of parents fell into the "red zone" by disciplining their children frequently and impulsively, by such means as verbal punishment, using a paddle, hitting their children in the face or torso or throwing and shaking them.

Those children were found to be not as adjusted socially and more likely to have behavioral problems or experience anxiety or depression, Owens said.

She acknowledged that the children studied were from an earlier generation and the results could be different if the same research were done on today's youngsters.

A study released last August found that avoiding corporal punishment altogether increases the probability of the child being well-behaved and well-adjusted. Murray Straus, co-director of the University of New Hampshire Family Research Laboratory, said spanking could backfire and push a youngster into delinquency.

Others said that they are not sure what the overall effects of corporal punishment are, but that spankings can create mistrust between parents and children and send the wrong message to youngsters.

"I have a hard time imagining it would be a constructive part of the relationship," said Peter Mangione, co-director at the San Francisco-based Center for Child and Family Studies. "The child is learning from you that it's appropriate to use physical power to solve problems."

Owens, herself an expectant mother, said she is not advocating spanking, "and I don't plan to use it, but if there are situations where I think it would be helpful, I wouldn't be averse to using it" in a mild way.

Doggie-bag use climbing; weak economy cited

By Dave Carpenter
Associated Press

CHICAGO — The economy is going to the doggie bags.

In an economic indicator that Alan Greenspan might do well to consider, restaurants are reporting an increase in doggie-bag requests over the past year or two. They say it shows that their customers are feeling the bite from the unfriendly economy.

"People who wouldn't have thought about it a year ago will say, 'You know what, I'm going to take that with me,"' says Izzy Kharasch, a Chicago-based restaurant industry consultant. "They now will take home the smallest of portions."

The upswing was cited in an industry trends report this month by the National Restaurant Association, which said one in five dinner customers now asks to take uneaten food home. Twenty percent of the 450 restaurants the trade group surveyed said their customers were requesting more doggie bags than two years ago.

Kharasch says he makes extra sure the restaurants he advises do doggie bags these days, even the expensive ones, where the average check is $80 a person.

"People used to be too embarrassed to ask for doggie bags. Not any more. They don't want to waste anything," he says.

Who — or what — let the doggie bags out?

Restaurateurs say it is generally the economy, though calorie-counters looking to make today's heftier dinner portions last through tomorrow's lunch also are doggie-bag users.

Customers at Elliott Fread's restaurant in New York have started making his sandwiches last for two days.

"They won't say it's because of money. They'll say, 'This is really good — can you wrap it up?"' says Fread, owner of Bimmy's in Chelsea Market. "But I know it's due to monetary reasons."

Judy Katz admits it, to an extent. A book collaborator in New York, she and her husband are well-off but "feeling the pinch" from the stock market's swoon. They now dine at a neighborhood bistro instead of the elegant Le Cirque and take their leftovers home.

"My portfolio is gone," she laments. "But I'm not going to give up going out to eat. Now we share a meal, and we take home a doggie bag."

Some diners are just staying home.

The average number of U.S. restaurant meals per person per year is down for the first time since 1990, according to the Port Washington, N.Y.-based NPD Group, which conducts industry research. The number was 137 meals purchased per capita over the 12-month period ended in February, down 2.8 percent from 141 the previous year.

Still, the NPD data show the average American still eats out 15 times more a year than a decade ago.

"Maybe people think a little more frugally when there is an economic downturn," says Steven Anderson, the National Restaurant Association's president and chief executive. "But I think we've become such an essential part of people's lives that they're going out to eat regardless."

Humberto Castillo, manager of Bimmy's, a New York sandwich shop, wraps part of a sandwich Friday. Restaurants are reporting an increase in doggie-bag requests over the past year or two.

Drug salesman reports pharmacist accused of diluting cancer drugs

By Josh Freed
Associated Press

KANSAS CITY, Mo. — Robert R. Courtney, the pharmacist accused of diluting chemotherapy drugs, was caught not by a government inspector, but by a drug salesman who noticed Courtney was billing doctors for more medication than he was buying, investigators say.

Courtney

Industry experts say regulatory agencies are so understaffed that catching crooked pharmacists can be a matter of luck.

And drug companies cannot be expected to watch every druggist, said Jeffrey Newton, a spokesman for Eli Lilly, maker of the chemotherapy medicine Gemzar.

Prosecutors say Courtney, 48, made thousands of dollars by diluting Gemzar and Taxol with saline, denying potentially life-saving medicine to perhaps hundreds of cancer patients. Unlike most other pharmacists, Courtney mixed the intravenous bags of medicine that he sold to doctors.

So far, Courtney is charged with 20 counts of altering medication. Investigators are still looking into whether the scheme contributed to the deaths of any patients. Courney has been hit with at least one lawsuit so far over a woman's death from ovarian cancer.

His lawyer said he will plead innocent.

"If you don't have people occasionally looking over your shoulder, you don't have the incentive to do what you should do," said Dr. Michael R. Cohen, a pharmacist and president of the Institute for Safe Medication Practices.

He said more and more pharmacies are mixing IV medications like the ones Courtney is alleged to have tampered with. And he said state pharmacy regulators generally are not trained to monitor those mixtures.

Missouri's pharmacy board has six inspectors who make unannounced visits at pharmacies. But they are responsible for nearly 6,800 pharmacists at 1,550 pharmacies.

The Food and Drug Administration has an enforcement arm, too. But it has just 150 agents nationwide, and they are responsible for regulating drugs, not pharmacies. The 11 agents in Kansas City cover 11 states.

Members of the FDA's Kansas City Office of Criminal Investigations helped run the sting that led to the charges against Courtney. But they got involved only after a drug salesman became suspicious.

Investigators said Eli Lilly salesman Darryl Ashley noticed Courtney wasn't buying as much Gemzar as he was billing to Dr. Verda Hunter, one of several cancer doctors Courtney supplied with IV bags of medication. Hunter alone bought $100,000 per month worth of drugs from Courtney.

The drug salesman contacted Hunter with his suspicions.

Hunter then found an IV bag from Courtney's pharmacy that contained Taxol and had it tested. The bag contained less than one-third as much Taxol as she had prescribed. She notified the FDA, which eventually brought in the FBI.

Hunter worked with investigators to order more chemotherapy treatments from Courtney, which were tested and are now being used in the case against the pharmacist.

While the FDA officers have seen cases where addicted medical workers stole drugs to feed a habit, they could hardly believe what they found in this case, said Larry Sperl, head of the FDA Kansas City criminal-investigation office.

"I think we knew, as soon as this thing really started coming together, that this was a whole different animal than what we've been seeing in these other cases," he said.

Cases of pharmacists adulterating drugs are considered rare.

In California, two lawsuits filed earlier this month accuse AIDS doctor George S. Kooshian of Newport Beach of administering saline instead of expensive AIDS medications.

Boy drowns in same lake where parents' other two children died

GONVICK, Minn. (AP) — A couple's 3-year-old son drowned in a northwestern Minnesota lake — the same lake where the couple's small daughter and son drowned in 1998.

"It was an absolutely unbelievable, tragic coincidence, an awful case of deja vu," Clearwater County Undersheriff Lyle Colligan said.

Arne and Carol Kleppe had adopted their son Alex from Russia after their other two children, 4-year-old Arla and her 2-year-old brother, Anders, drowned in Six Lake in November 1998. The lake is near a farm owned by the children's grandmother.

Alex Kleppe

Alex drowned in the same lake Sunday. The parents told investigators he disappeared while playing with the family dog as his parents milked cows.

"The boy liked to hang on to the dog's fur and be dragged," Colligan said. "It's sort of our belief that he may have let the dog drag him into deep water."

Colligan said Friday that the investigation was closed unless authorities obtain new information.

"Obviously, the first thing you're trained to watch for in our business is foul play or negligence," he said earlier. "But we've done a very thorough investigation, and we aren't seeing anything other than a horrible repeat of an awful tragedy."

Palestinians resume shooting attacks on settler enclaves after Israeli raid

By Jamie Tarabay
Associated Press

HEBRON, West Bank — Palestinians fired on a Jewish settler enclaves in divided Hebron on Friday, hours after a brief Israeli incursion into the Palestinian-controlled sector of the city in retaliation for earlier shooting attacks.

The latest gunfire came even as Israel's defense minister, Binyamin Ben-Eliezer, warned that no Palestinian attack would go unanswered. "There will be no situation in which they send terrorists or continue shooting ... and we will sit quietly and not respond," he said on Israeli TV.

Meanwhile, 50,000 people turned out in the West Bank town of Nablus for a rally led by the Islamic militant group Hamas and Palestinian leader Yasser Arafat's Fatah faction. About 50 Fatah men brandishing guns drove up in cars, while some 150 Hamas activists appeared in robes meant to symbolize death shrouds of suicide bombers.

Hamas and Fatah have been cooperating in the past 11 months of fighting with Israel. Hamas has carried out a series of suicide bombings, while Fatah gunmen have targeted Israeli civilians.

In a smaller gathering, dozens of Fatah faction gunmen marched with about 500 people in the Palestinian section of Hebron. "We will continue our resistance," Fatah official Diab Sharabati told the crowd.

Shortly after the rally, gunmen opened fire on two settler enclaves. Israeli troops in the enclaves returned fire, Palestinian witnesses said. An Israeli tank fired several shells, including one that hit a building and set it on fire, the witnesses said. The army said it was checking the report.

During the incursion early Friday into Hebron's hilltop Abu Sneineh neighborhood, Israeli tank shells demolished two empty buildings Palestinian gunmen had used as cover for shooting on settler compounds below. An Israeli soldier and 12 Palestinians — five civilians and seven gunmen — were wounded in a gun battle that followed.

Palestinian Information Minister Yasser Abed Rabbo said the incursion made Israeli Foreign Minister Shimon Peres' attempts to secure a truce "mission impossible."

In other violence Friday, Palestinians threw stones at Israeli troops in two locations in the Gaza Strip, and nine youngsters, ages 11 to 18, were wounded by Israeli fire, hospital officials said. A 12-year-old boy was in critical condition. The army said that in both cases, soldiers fired at the stone-throwers' legs after they came too close to military outposts.

In a separate incident, a 13-year-old Palestinian girl and her uncle were wounded by what Palestinian security officials said was unprovoked Israeli fire while the two sat outside their home in Gaza City. The girl was in critical condition, doctors said. The army said it was checking the report.

President Bush called on Arafat Friday to "do a better job" of reining in militants.

"If the Palestinians are interested in a dialogue, then I strongly urge Mr. Arafat to put 100 percent effort into solving the terrorist activity, into stopping the terrorist activity," Bush said at a news conference in Crawford, Texas.

"The Israelis have made it very clear that they will not negotiate under terrorist threat," the president said.

Meanwhile, facing the threat of a U.S. veto at the United Nations, the Palestinians failed Friday for the third time in less than a year to get a Security Council resolution condemning Israel and sending monitors to the Middle East.

Israel has repeatedly demanded the Palestinian Authority rein in militants. Israeli Prime Minister Ariel Sharon has said Arafat is personally responsible for attacks on Israelis, and has also accused Palestinian security forces of direct involvement in many of the confrontations with Israeli troops.

Eleven months of vilolence has claimed the lives of 584 people on the Palestinian side and 152 on the Israeli side.

Speaking Friday, Israel's army chief, Lt. Gen. Shaul Mofaz, said 600 Palestinians have been killed, 10,000 wounded and 1,200 arrested since September in what he said was Israel's "war against terror."

Mofaz said hitting Palestinian militants hard was an accomplishment for the army, but made no reference to Palestinian civilians and unarmed stone-throwers killed by Israeli troops. Palestinian officials said 70 percent of the Palestinians killed were civilians, not gunmen.

Last week, Israeli tanks briefly entered Jenin in the northern West Bank and flattened a Palestinian police station, a response to several suicide bombings by assailants from the Jenin area.

The Hebron raid was Israel's first into the Palestinian section of the divided city. Israeli forces rolled in with armored personnel carriers, jeeps and helicopters at about midnight Thursday, just four hours after Palestinian gunmen shot at a settler enclave and wounded two Israeli brothers, ages 11 and 17.

Explosions rocked the Abu Sneineh neighborhood and lighted the night sky when tank shells hit the two empty buildings used by Palestinians as firing positions. Nearby houses were also damaged during the incursion.

The army pulled out after more than two hours, drawing criticism from settlers.

"The terrorists will simply return and open fire on the Jewish community again," said Noam Arnon, a spokesman for the settlers in Hebron.

Hebron has long been considered one of the main flashpoints in the Palestinian-Israeli conflict. It was divided into zones in a 1997 agreement. The Israeli-controlled area is home to 30,000 Palestinians and 500 settlers and makes up about 20 percent of Hebron

Film and court ruling bring to light 1945 ship tragedy

By Sang-Hun Choe
Associated Press

SEOUL, South Korea — The last thing Chung Ki-young recalls seeing before the 4,730-ton ship Ukishima Maru went down was an emaciated Korean woman trying to feed her baby and two Japanese sailors scurrying past saying they felt sorry for the infant.

"Not long after that, a terrible explosion shook the ship and then another blast. I could see water spouting up and people tumbling," said Chung, now 75. "The ship broke in half. Thousands of people disappeared with it."

Over the years, little has been said about the Imperial Japanese Navy transport ship that sank off the southwestern Japanese port town of Maizuru 56 years ago Friday. Survivors say thousands of Koreans — men forced into labor and women into sexual slavery by their colonial rulers — were on board.

But the tragedy — and the controversy surrounding both the cause and the number of victims — have attracted renewed attention this week.

On Thursday, a Japanese court ruled that Tokyo must pay a total of $375,000 to 15 Koreans who survived the explosion and sinking. And on Friday, a North Korean film about the sinking, "Souls Protest," opened in Seoul billed as "the Korean 'Titanic,'" complete with a fictional love story.

However, key elements of the 1945 incident, which happened just after Japan's surrender brought an end to World War II, remain shrouded in mystery.

Japan says the ship was carrying about 4,000 Koreans home from northeastern Aomori state when the blast took place, killing at least 524 Koreans and 25 Japanese crew members.

But survivors say 7,000 Koreans were jam-packed aboard the ship, and that up to 5,000 people were killed under suspicious circumstances.

"So many people were trapped below deck," Chung recalled Friday before a Seoul screening of "Souls Protest."

"With the blast, I fell to the water. ... I went down and down and then began soaring. But there were so many people above me that my head kept bumping into the legs above me," he recalled. "There also was such a thick layer of oil on the surface."

Chung managed to catch his breath and swim underwater to escape the hellish scene.

"When I finally popped out away from the ship and found a piece of wood to hang onto, I could see a row of boats carrying Japanese sailors fleeing the ship," he said.

"The explosion must have been a pre-mediated plot to kill Koreans."

Thursday's court ruling blamed the Japanese government for neglecting its duty to transport the Korean passengers safely. The ruling was a rare victory for those who have fought for compensation from Japan for wartime abuses.

Korea had been under Japanese colonial rule since 1910, and tens of thousands of Koreans and Chinese were shipped to Japan to work under slave-like labor conditions, mostly in mines and ports, during the war.

However, the court rejected survivors' demand for an official apology, saying it remained unclear what caused the tragedy. The Japanese government says the ship hit a mine planed in Maizuru harbor by U.S. forces.

The Korean plaintiffs and others survivors have long accused the Japanese crew of setting the explosion to prevent rioting and to kill witnesses to its World War II atrocities, including the sexual enslavement of Korean women.

"Souls Protest" faithfully follows the survivors' claims. The Narai Film Company, a Seoul-based film trader, imported the movie from communist North Korea for $320,000 and timed its Seoul premiere to the disaster's 56th anniversary.

Seoul approved showing the film in South Korean theaters after cutting out five minutes of scenes where jubilant Koreans credit the late North Korean President Kim Il Sung with liberating Korea from Japanese colonial rule at the end of World War II.

At Friday's anniversary screening, however, the movie was shown intact.

"I didn't like the propaganda stuff about Kim Il Sung," said survivor Lee Chul-woo, 75. "But the scene about the explosion was so real, and it is laudable for North Korea to make a movie about this incident."

"I thought about my father, how he might have felt when the ship exploded and sank," said a teary Lim Suh-woon, the daughter of a victim.

In a traditional memorial rite before the screening, survivors bowed before offerings of fruits and flowers and burned incense. A woman in Korean dress performed a mourning dance.

The vessel was carrying 4,000 Koreans home when the blast occurred on Aug. 24, 1945, in Maizuru port in Kyoto, killing at least 524 Koreans and 25 Japanese crew members.

Chargers blast Patriots, 57-20

By Oscar LeRoy
Sports Writer

The Amarillo San Jacinto Patriots wilted away in the West Texas heat Friday as the Trinity Chargers made a huge statement at Coombes Field to begin their season.

Trinity pounded and plowed for 504 yards on the ground as the Chargers blasted San Jacinto, 57-20, as the 2001 high school football season kicked into gear.

"I thought our kids executed well, better than I thought we would," said a pleased Trinity coach John Wilkins. "We did a lot of nice things. Obviously, our lack of depth really shows. We got tired there for a while. But when you've got only 18 kids and nine starters going both ways, it's going to be a problem all year long."

It was a impressive display by the Chargers' running attack as Trinity gave the Patriots a heavy dose of Clint Adcox to begin the game and kept on pounding from there as Adcox, Jeehoun Yi and Aaron Powell kept parting the Patriots' defense in half.

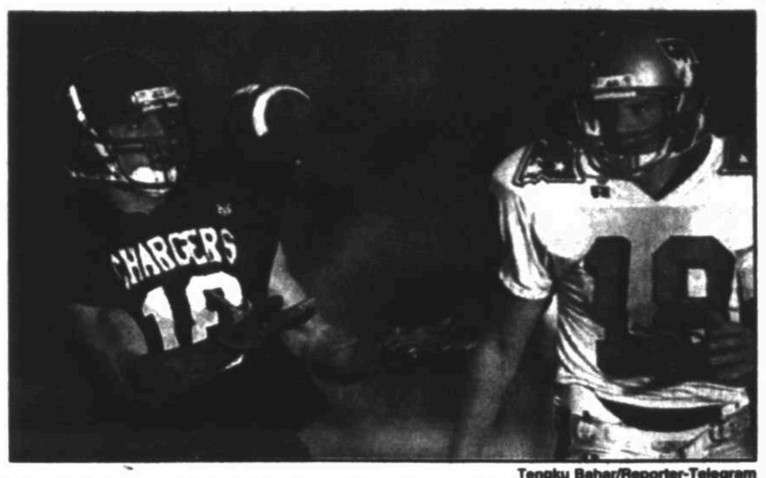

"That all came from the line," said Adcox, a senior who finished with 206 yards on 20 carries and a 1-yard touchdown run. "They picked it up from the first snap and created the holes. The holes were there and they were wide open. All my credit goes to the whole offensive line."

The dominating play by the Chargers' offensive line also created some huge gaps for the freshman Powell, who rumbled for 144 yards on 14 carries and two touchdowns, and Yi, who carried seven times for 96 yards and scored two TDs.

"I wanted to give (sophomore quarterback) Noble Starnes some confidence so he could handle everything and not throw him in the fire," said Wilkins about establishing the run early in the contest. "It gave him a little cushion to do things later in the game and he did a nice job for us."

Thanks to the Trinity running game, the Chargers jumped out to a 14-0 lead in the

Bulldogs expect talented junior class to step up play

By Terry Williamson
Sports Editor

Scratch your head twice and then just watch the season unfold.

That's about the only sound advice that we can give you on Midland High's 2001 football Bulldogs. The element of the unknown is larger than any set of facts. In fact, there is probably no team in District 4-5A where so little is known.

Midland High football coach David Browning will start as many as seven juniors on both the offensive and defensive sides of the football. Few have any playing experience.

In addition, Midland High held spring training drills, but held no spring game. The Bulldogs also won't have a scrimmage before meeting Irving Nimitz in the home opener next Friday night at Memorial Stadium. In short, no one has seen this set of Bulldogs in any form of game-type action.

What is known, however, is that Midland High does have a talented junior class, one the school has been looking forward to for some time.

"I don't know how good or bad we will be, but I do know that it's time for the juniors to step to the plate," Browning said. "We felt like we had a good spring and identified the potential starters. There is a lot of talent among our juniors. They just don't have any playing experience.

"I think they will be ready to play by the time district rolls around. By then, they will have had five games under their belts. The first five games will be key for us."

The Bulldogs are coming off a 4-6 season and had a 1-4 campaign in 4-5A play. Browning returns only one returning starter on offense and three on defense. But those numbers will have little to do with this year's number since the team will be totally different.

Only junior tailback T.J. Barber returns to the offense, but that's a good place to start since he knows about the wars of 4-5A. The rest will be newcomers. Barber rushed for only 356 yards and two touchdowns last season on 101 carries, but he was also the team's third leading pass receiver with 14 catches for 190 yards and a touchdown. Other than that, the Bulldogs have no one who touched the football last season except quarterback Ryan Rowland, who carried two times for seven yards.

Two promising juniors are at quarterback in Rowland and Jason Russell. Both will see action early on. Browning also likes what he sees in 6-foot-2 junior fullback Wade Koehl. So, the skill positions should be strong if the wide receivers come through.

Eric Lara, David Tuffly, Zack Sledge (all juniors) and sophomore Jaylen Taylor are all prospects at wide receiver.

But the ultimate success will come in the offensive line where Browning says, "We've had to rebuild the entire offensive line, but we do have some seniors there and that should help."

Junior tackle Josh Morris, senior center Robert Reed, junior tight end Tres Watson and senior guards Alex Tassin and Kit Bredimus looked to be locked in. However, juniors Cody Seth and Luis Salgado are

Shreveport snaps 12-game losing streak in Midland

By Terry Williamson
Sports Editor

The Shreveport Swamp Dragons cast out some heavy demons at Christensen Stadium Friday night.

The Dragons defeated the Midland RockHounds by a 5-4 margin to erase two burdensome streaks.

Shreveport came into the game having lost 12 games in a row at Christensen Stadium, dating back to May 1 of last season. The Swamp Dragons also came into the game having won only once in 20 tries in games played on Friday nights. That's not exactly your average Weekend Warriors.

"I sure didn't know that we had a (losing) streak like that here," said Shreveport outfielder Doug Clark, who was a big key in this game for the Dragons. "In fact, we've been playing hard, but we didn't have any W's (wins) to show for it. The teams have been battling every night."

And despite three dramatic home runs (two by Midland), this game was ultimately won on a ninth inning groundout by Shreveport's Clark.

In the top of the ninth, Shreveport's Joe Jester tripled home Nelson Castro to break up a tight 3-3 deadlock, but the run that ended up hurting Midland was Clark's grounder to RockHound shortstop Caonabo Cosme.

With Jester on third with no outs, Clark hit a grounder to a charging Cosme. Jester broke for the plate at the crack of the bat. It looked like Cosme might have had a play at the plate on Jester, but he elected to get Clark at first. That turned out to be the game winner.

Clark also hit a solo home run in the eighth inning off of Midland reliever Ray Noriega to tie the game at 3-3.

"I got a slider that just went out of the park," Clark said. "I was just trying to get on base in that situation with us behind and no outs."

Midland newcomer Aaron Nieckula, a catcher, gave the 'Hounds a chance to get back in the game in the ninth when he hit

Nebraska upbeat after last year's disappointment

Associated Press

LINCOLN, Neb. — Last season was supposed to be Nebraska's time to climb back on top of college football.

The Cornhuskers opened the season at No. 1 and were favorites to become just the second team to go wire-to-wire to a national title.

Instead, the Huskers sputtered in their two biggest games of the year — losing at Oklahoma and Kansas State within a three-week span late in the season — and ended with a forgettable 66-17 blowout of Northwestern in the Alamo Bowl.

"It's kind of been a bitter taste the last two or three years," senior quarterback Eric Crouch said. "We've got a great home schedule set up and we've got a great team this year."

There is reason to be positive at Nebraska, which starts this season ranked fourth. Crouch is healthy after offseason shoulder surgery for the second straight year and the Huskers play eight of their 12 games at home, including their biggest challenges.

But there are major concerns. Only five starters are back on offense and seven on a defense that struggled last year.

All-American center Dominic Raiola and linebacker Carlos Polk are gone, along with All-Big 12 rush end Kyle Vanden Bosch and I-backs Dan Alexander and Correll Buckhalter.

Still, coach Frank Solich feels Nebraska has enough quality young players to regroup and make a run this year as long as they improve and play consistently in all phases of the game.

"If that doesn't get done, we won't run for any Big 12 championship or any national championship. We'll be an also-ran," Solich said. "We're hoping to be a better football team."

The Huskers had potential last season, but fizzled in losses at Oklahoma (31-14) and Kansas State (29-28) that left them out of the hunt for a second straight Big 12 title. The Huskers — whose last national titles were in 1994 and 1995 — ended up 10-2 and ranked No. 8 in the final AP Top 25.

"There were things last year that stood out and hurt us a lot," Crouch said. "Things we believe that are traditional in Nebraska football weren't there for us last year."

Both the Sooners and Wildcats have to come through Lincoln this year, a big reason why the Huskers are the favorites to win the Big 12

Cowboys plan to go back to California

By Joel Anderson
Associated Press Writer

OXNARD, Calif. — As much as the Dallas Cowboys miss Texas, this town along California's central coast has captured their hearts over the last two weeks.

The Cowboys wrapped up the practice part of their West Coast stay on Friday. They'll travel Saturday to Mexico City for a preseason game Monday night against the Oakland Raiders.

When they leave Oxnard, the team will fondly remember an enthusiastic fan base starved for a professional football team, first-class training facilities and — most importantly — temperatures that rarely climb above 70 degrees.

So, Cowboys owner Jerry Jones has started working on a deal with town officials to bring back the team for the final two weeks of training camp next year.

Rebels score seven touchdowns in scrimmage against El Paso Riverside

By Lee Passmore
Sports Writer

When you're a three-time defending state champion with an opener against another perennial powerhouse only eight days away, it's easy to place the bottom line in perspective.

That's why Midland Lee coach John Parchman couldn't get too worked up one way or the other concerning his team's performance in a scrimmage against El Paso Riverside at Memorial Stadium Friday night. After an inauspicious start defensively, the Rebels quickly hit stride on offense and ended up dominating in terms of numbers, scoring seven touchdowns to three for Riverside.

It's the final time Lee will take the field against another opponent before opening against Class 4A powerhouse Stephenville a week from today in San Angelo. Parchman thinks that his team is at least making progress toward that day.

"We got better," said Parchman. "We were a little sputtery starting off but it was all right."

It was a half-controlled scrimmage and half-regular game format, which began with each team running 20 plays on offense with each of its first two units, followed by about two quarters of game condition football with the time kept on the field.

In the first 15 plays, Riverside, a Class 4A team which lost to Big Spring in the second round of the playoffs last season, shredded Lee's defense for a pair of scores. Quarterback Mike Stevenson accounted for both scores, throwing for a 21-yard score to Carlos Carrillo for the first touchdown, and later scrambling 11 yards for the second score.

Stevenson's elusiveness was an early headache for the Rebel defenders, although the multiple sets Riverside ran should be good preparation for the spread offense Stephenville will certainly run next week.

"We saw something similar to what Stephenville does, but not quite the way that they do it," said Parchman.

For whatever early struggles the Rebels might have had defensively, there were no such problems when they had the ball. Almost every combination Lee put out on the field enjoyed some success against an overmatched Riverside defense.

An indication of things to come leaped out on Lee's third offensive play, as Jacoby

Cook takes lead at Reno-Tahoe tourney with eagle

Associated Press

RENO, Nev. — John Cook highlighted an 8-under-par 64 with an eagle 2 on one of the PGA Tour's tougher holes Friday and held a one-stroke lead halfway through the Reno-Tahoe Open.

"I tapped in the 7-iron from 188 (yards)," said Cook, who was at 11-under 133. "It hasn't happened to me in a while. It was a nice surprise."

He made the eagle on the 496-yard 12th, which played as the 31st toughest hole on tour last year with an average score of 4.33.

Cook had six birdies to go with the eagle in his bogey-free round at the 7,552-yard Montreux Golf & Country Club and had several rising stars on his heels.

Former NCAA champion Charles Howell III shot a 66 and was at 134 along with David Berganio and Jerry Kelly, who both shot 68s.

Bryce Molder, a four-time All-American at Georgia Tech making his pro debut, shot a 65 and was in a group of eight at 135 along with two-time U.S. Open champion Lee Janzen and first-round leader Brian Watts, who had a 71.

The 43-year-old Cook is 28th on the career money list with $8.7 million but he has topped the $1 million mark only once in the last 10 years. In 1992, he was second in the British Open and tied for second at the PGA Championship. The next year he tied for sixth at the PGA and in 1994 he tied for fifth at the U.S. Open and tied for fourth at the PGA.

He's won $420,000 on tour this year, 89th on the money list, with his best showing a tie for fourth at the Shell Houston Open in April.

"It's been a struggle the last few years but the last 12 months I started to hit the ball well and it's starting to show," Cook said.

The 22-year-old Howell, who turned professional last year after winning the NCAA title at Oklahoma State, has three top 10 finishes this year, including a second in a playoff at the Greater Milwaukee Open.

"It's getting closer. I've been close a few times," Howell said. "If I could win a tournament, that would be awesome. It would mean everything. ... It would do a lot of things for my status on tour."

Woods has wild day at NEC Invitational, Furyk still leads

Associated Press

AKRON, Ohio — The thrills belonged to Tiger Woods in the second round of the NEC Invitational. The lead belonged to Jim Furyk.

While Woods hit everything from flagsticks to tree roots, and even one shot left-handed, Furyk quietly went about his business at Firestone Country Club on Friday and posted a 4-under-par 66 to build a two-stroke lead in the World Golf Championship event.

"Two shots is nothing," said Furyk, who was at 9-under 131. "Two shots can change on one hole. I'm going to continue to attack the golf course and play the same way I have the first two days."

Two shots is an even slimmer margin considering Woods and Phil Mickelson, the top two players in the world rankings and past champions at Firestone, are right behind.

Mickelson, coming off another heartbreaking finish in a major, had a bogey-free 66 and will play in the final twosome with Furyk on Saturday.

The real threat could be Woods.

He has won the past two NEC Invitationals, including a record-setting 259 last year for an 11-stroke victory. And it appeared he might make it another runaway Friday with birdies on five of the first 10 holes for a two-stroke lead.

That's when the show began.

It started with a drive left into the rough, next to a tree on some roots that were exposed. Woods went at it hard with a 9-iron and dropped the club at impact.

"The plan all along was to hit it hard with the right hand and let go with the left hand," he said. "I think the tree root won."

From the rough, he played his next shot over the green and made bogey.

On the 625-yard 16th, he was a little more safe. After driving left into the rough, then chopping it across the fairway into the right rough, with trees partially blocking an approach over water, he pitched out to the fairway.

"I could have gone for the pin, but today is only Friday. There was no need risking it," Woods said.

Not that it mattered.

His fourth shot hit the flag, and then he three-putted for a double-bogey.

A 15-foot birdie putt on the final hole gave him a 67, his sixth straight round that score or better at Firestone, and right in the hunt.

Not many were surprised.

"Just like the sun rises in the morning and sets in the afternoon," Stuart Appleby said. "Nothing new for us. If you think it's new, you'd better go and get another job."

Appleby pitched from the back fringe off a bank and down a ridge on the 18th, holing it for birdie and the best round of the day. He had a 64, putting him at 134 and giving him a tee time with Woods on Saturday.

Appleby was also low Aussie.

Greg Norman failed to build on his first-round 65, his best score and best start on the PGA Tour in four years. He had a 71, and was five strokes back.

The Shark went for the green into on the par-5 2nd and pulled his approach to the left down a hill. His flop shot to the pin appeared to be right on line, but clipped a branch and rolled farther down the hill. He took bogey, and it never got much better.

Padraig Harrington of Ireland and Darren Clarke of Northern Ireland also were at 134. They already have locked up spots on the European Ryder Cup team, but Bernhard Langer took a big step toward securing his place with a 67 that left him at 136.

Sports Briefs

Nagy done for the year

CLEVELAND — The Cleveland Indians placed pitcher Charles Nagy on the disabled list Friday and said he would miss the remainder of the season.

Nagy had surgery on his pitching elbow in May 2000, and did not have his first start for the Indians until June of this year. Since then he has posted a 5-6 record, with a 6.40 ERA.

The team said Nagy has re-aggravated his elbow, and he is not expected to return until next spring.

The Indians recalled pitcher Jake Westbrook from Triple-A Buffalo.

Nagy has spent his entire 12-year career with the Indians, and has compiled a lifetime record of 128-99 and a 4.40 ERA.

Eagles release nine players including Norman

PHILADELPHIA — Defensive end Uhuru Hamiter and safety Kevin Williams were among nine players cut by the Philadelphia Eagles on Friday.

The other cuts included defensive tackle Pernell Davis, wide receivers Demetrius Dotson, Mel Long and Steve Vagedes, guard Josh Moore, and linebackers Josh Parry and Midland Lee product John Norman.

The Eagles also placed free safety Julian Jones on injured reserve with a shoulder injury.

The Eagles still have four roster exemptions from NFL Europe participants — running back Anthony Gray, defensive end Dwight Johnson, tackle Joe Wong and tight end Carlos Nuno. Those players would not count against the 65-man roster NFL.

CHL makes schedule

The new Central Hockey League, an amalgamation of the old CHL and the old Western Professional Hockey League, has formed its schedule for the upcoming season.

The Corpus Christi IceRays will host the San Antonio Iguanas in the new league's first game on Oct. 18. The Odessa Jackalopes' home opener will be Oct. 19 against the New Mexico Scorpions. Another opener on Oct. 19 pits the Shreveport Mudbugs against the Oklahoma City Blazers — last season's champions in the WPHL and CHL, respectively.

Each of the CHL's 16 members play a 64-game unbalanced schedule, with a focus on natural and geographic rivalries. Most of the games — 76.5 percent — will be played on Fridays, Saturdays and Sundays.

Aikman and Johnston become fathers

Associated Press

DALLAS — Former Dallas Cowboys Troy Aikman and Daryl Johnston each have a new player in the backfield.

The wives of Aikman and Johnston each gave birth to healthy baby girls early Friday evening, said Dan Bell, a spokesman for Fox Sports where the two will work this season.

Rhonda Aikman gave birth to Jordan Ashleigh, and Diane Johnston gave birth to Evan Elizabeth. Both babies were delivered by the same doctor at a Dallas-area hospital, and labor was induced, Bell said.

Aikman, who retired this spring, and Johnston, who retired last year, both work as NFL analysts for Fox Sports. They announced their first game Thursday night.

HUSKERS: Senior Wistrom returns

(From 1B)

North, even without some key players from last year.

Junior John Garrison (6-foot-3, 300 pounds) is the front runner to replace Raiola at center, but the Huskers still need to fill in holes at right guard and tackle. Jon Rutherford (6-3, 300) can play anywhere on the line and has healed from a torn knee ligament suffered last November, leaving just one spot open.

Tackle Dave Volk (6-5, 300) and guard Toniu Fonoti (6-4, 340) will continue to anchor the left side.

Buckhalter and Alexander, who shared the backfield the past two seasons, are in the NFL, leaving the I-back position to junior Dahrran Diedrick.

All-Big 12 tight end Tracey Wistrom (19 catches, 314 yards, 5 TDs) is back for his senior season.

Defensively, the Huskers lose their top three tacklers in Polk (90), Randy Stella (58) and Vanden Bosch (56). Stella, who would have been a senior linebacker, was kicked off the team for violating undisclosed team rules.

The Huskers do have depth and experience at rush end with Chris Kelsay and Demoine Adams and tackle with Jeremy Slechta, Jason Lohr, Casey Nelson, Patrick Kabongo and Jon Clanton.

The secondary remains mostly intact and Solich is confident in his linebackers despite losing starters Polk and Stella. Jamie Burrow takes over for Polk and Mark Vedral and Scott Shanle will start on the outside.

"I was pleased with how far they came," Solich said. "I like the fact that it will be an aggressive defensive football team. They will get after you."

LEE: Kendrick gains 170 yards on ground

(From 1B)

Kendrick, the leading contender to succeed Cedric Benson at tailback, sprinted 67 yards down the left sideline for Lee's first score. Kendrick led the Rebels with 170 yards on 10 carries.

Lee racked up 601 yards of offense, including 462 on the ground, as Eric Gutierrez, another tailback, ran for 104.

"The line blocked well and the backs ran well and there aren't many things you can do better than that," said Parchman. "We even got some things out of the passing game."

Parchman says it's still a four-way battle at the quarterback spot. Aaron Timmerman started and was followed by Cole Sampson, Fletcher Pendergrass and Nick Hand, who quarterbacked last year's champions.

All four quarterbacks had good moments (and each had at least one pass dropped) but statistically Sampson had the best evening. After having his first pass dropped, Sampson completed his last five throws for 63 yards, including a pair of touchdowns.

"I just don't know when our quarterbacks are going to step up," said Parchman. "Nick Hand (who is likely going to start at cornerback) is a veteran quarterback who can run the team, but the others are kind of hot and cold."

After Riverside ran its first 20 plays, Lee's defense didn't allow the Rangers into the end zone again. Yet, Parchman could face a dilemna there, as starting tight end Eric Winston and wide receiver Tim Norman also played defensively and may be forced into more duty there.

"Defensively we're still looking for a number of guys who can make plays and we found a couple of them tonight," said Parchman.

Oswalt dominates Pirates in 5-1 victory for Astros

Associated Press

PITTSBURGH — Roy Oswalt beat Pittsburgh for the second time in six days by pitching six-hit ball over eight-plus innings, helping the Houston Astros increase their NL Central lead with a 5-1 victory Friday night.

The Astros won for the second straight night with a relatively low number of hits — seven, or one more than they had in beating Philadelphia 2-1 in 11 innings Thursday.

Oswalt (11-2), whose .846 winning percentage tops the NL, breezed through the Pirates' lineup and was working on his first career shutout until Aramis Ramirez hit his 26th homer in the ninth inning. He struck out nine and walked one to follow up Sunday's 12-2 victory over Pittsburgh.

Red Sox 7, Rangers 4

ARLINGTON — Trot Nixon hit a tiebreaking grand slam in the eighth inning and the Boston Red Sox beat the Texas Rangers 7-4 Friday night.

The Red Sox improved to 5-0 against Texas this season. Boston began the day two games behind Oakland in the wild card race and four games behind New York in the AL East.

Rod Beck (6-4) allowed one run and two hits in one inning for the win.

'HOUNDS: Asche hits two-run homer

a two-out home run in the bottom of the ninth off of Shreveport closer Mike Villano. It was Nieckula's first Double-A home run. However, Cosme flew out to center to end the game as Villano picked up his ninth save.

Shreveport broke fast from the gate with two runs in the third inning, one unearned, off of Midland starter Justin Lehr. But Lehr came back with three consecutive shutout innings. And another Midland newcomer Kirk Asche, an outfielder, hit his first Double-A home run, a two-run shot off of Shreveport starter Jeff Urban to tie the game at 2-2. Midland took a 3-2 lead in the seventh on a run scoring double by Nieckula. Nieckula was 3-for-4 with two RBIs and threw out a runner with his cannon-like arm.

Both teams are out of the Texas League playoff hunt, now playing for pride.

"Neither team is playing for anything right now, so it's important to keep your focus on baseball instead of thinking about going home or playing winter ball," Clark said. "That's why it was nice tonight to come back for a win. We hit the ball well and deserved to win this one."

Rock Yard Notes: Clark also pulled off a defensive gem in the sixth when he went to the wall in left to rob Todd Mensik of extra bases... Midland centerfielder Asche also saved a run in the second inning with an over-the-shoulder run-down of a deep drive by Marco Pernalete... The last Texas League fireworks display at Christensen Stadium will be held after tonight's game between these same two teams... Midland is now 2-1 on this homestand...

Smith hopes to provide leadership for young Bulldog football team

By Terry Williamson
Sports Editor

There is no question that Midland High will be a young football team in 2001 with as many as seven juniors starting on both offense and defense.

That also means that some high quality leadership will be needed for the youthful Bulldogs from the seniors who do start.

And one place you can look is senior linebacker James Smith, who is coming off a good 2000 season.

"With us starting so many juniors, I do think that puts a little pressure on me to add a little leadership out there," Smith says, but quickly adds, "But we have a lot of juniors who have stepped it up and are flying to the ball. There also are some good leaders among the juniors like Herb City, Ollie Fitts and Casey Zachry."

Smith does remain as a linebacker, but his duties have changed since he is moving from the strongside role to the weakside this year.

"I'll be stunting more and have more pass coverage responsibilities than I did last year," Smith said. "I've really liked the move so far."

MHS linebacker coach Vance Washington also likes the move of Smith to the strongside so far.

"I think it's going to be a great move for us," Washington said. "He can really move to the ball, has some speed and is great in pass coverage. And that's why we moved him over there. James is really a defensive back playing linebacker."

As far as leadership skills, Washington doesn't worry about that with Smith.

"James isn't the rah-rah type of player," Washington says. "But he is flat out full speed in every drill we do. He never complains that it's too hot. He never complains about anything. He shows others by example. And that's important that he provides that lead by example attitude. He's going to give you everything he has."

Smith helped MHS win a state baseball championship this summer, played a little 7-on-7 football and then played some more baseball. Now, he wants his senior season in football to mean something.

"My senior year means a lot to me," Smith said. "I want to beat Lee and go to the playoffs. That would really make it a great year."

Smith is also in a senior class that will close out Memorial Stadium's final year of hosting District 4-5A football. That brings mixed emotions for Smith.

"I really would have liked to be on the team that plays the first season in the new stadium, but I can also always say that our senior class was the last to play at Memorial Stadium.

"When the stadium idea came up, they first said that we would be playing in the new stadium this year, but that got pushed back. So, I guess the juniors lucked out on that one."

MHS: Gripp out for a few weeks

battling for the right tackle slot. Also, 295-pound sophomore guard Buck Wallace has been impressive early on.

The Bulldogs have three returning starters on defense with senior outside linebacker James Smith, senior defensive tackle Adrian Lopez and junior safety Herb City. City was pushed early into a starting role as a sophomore last year and performed well. Smith and Lopez are proven performers and they should anchor a defense that has a lot of promise.

Senior Jon Amato and junior Daniel Stovall should be at the defensive end slots while either Alton Redic or Taylor Lange (both juniors) will join Lopez at the tackle positions.

The secondary also looks set with City and junior Ryan Bose manning the safety posts while junior Ty Seeker and senior Luke Watkins are at the cornerback positions.

Smith has moved from the strongside linebacker slot he played last year to the weakside linebacker position while junior Ollie Fitts is at the strongside position. Junior Casey Zachry looks at home in the important middle linebacker position.

Midland High's kicking game, at one time, looked to be in great shape, but now that important part of the game is up for grabs. Senior James Gripp has been a kicker for MHS since he was a freshman, but he found out last spring that he had a stress fracture in his right foot. He has had surgery to repair the injury and will not be available for a few weeks yet. He should be up and kicking well by district play, however.

"I found out that I had a stress fracture from an injury last year," Gripp said. "But I played baseball and didn't want to get it fixed until the season was over. We won the state championship in baseball, so I guess it was worth it. I sure didn't want to miss that."

Browning said, "Our kicking duties are up for grabs. We'll have to find a kicker until Gripp can come back."

And if you really want to get a line on the Bulldogs, you will probably have to wait longer than you really want. MHS plays Irving Nimitz next Friday to open the season. MHS lost to Nimitz by a 28-7 margin in Irving last year. And after Nimitz, the Bulldogs are open another week before settling in to a regular schedule.

Like we said, you'll have plenty of time to scratch your head twice before knowing what this team is going to be like.

It might not be the same story next year. If you counted correctly, there could be 14 returning starters back next year. And if this year is a success, then just think about next year. This could be a team worth keeping your eyes on.

Defensive standouts: Linebacker James Smith, linebacker Casey Zachry, defensive tackle Adrian Lopez; safety Herb City.

Last playoff appearance: 1951. Lost in Class 3A bi-district to Breckenridge, 33-14.

Bonds hints at hometown discount for San Francisco

Associated Press

NEW YORK — Barry Bonds hinted Friday he might give a hometown discount to stay with San Francisco next year, words that made Giants owner Peter Magowan happy.

Magowan, in turn, said the Giants' finish will affect whether Bonds will return.

"The farther we go, I think the better chance there might be," Magowan said.

Speaking before Friday's series opener against the Mets, he talked glowingly of San Francisco during a news conference as Magowan listened from the third row. Bonds said his ties to San Francisco will play a part in his decision-making.

When Bonds agreed to an extension on Feb. 20, 1997, its guaranteed average salary of $11.45 million was baseball's highest. That mark has been broken eight times since, and Texas shortstop Alex Rodriguez is the current record-holder, averaging $25.2 million under a 10-year contract he agreed to with Texas last December.

That deal was negotiated by Scott Boras, who became Bonds' new agent earlier this year.

"I never played baseball for money. I play for the love of the game," Bonds said.

San Francisco's payroll will wind up at about $65 million, in the middle among the 30 teams. The Giants, Magowan said, plan to break even each year and won't commit too high a percentage of their payroll to one player.

TRINITY: Adcox rushes for 206 yards

first quarter as Yi followed the Adcox scoring run with a 25-yard scamper to the end zone.

Trinity's running game allowed Starnes, in his first year as the starting quarterback, to go to the air. Starnes' first TD pass of his career came when he tossed a screen pass to Yi, who then scattered across and then upfield for a 64-yard electrifying catch and run early in the second quarter.

Starnes later added another scoring toss as he hit Scott Kratzer for 20-yard TD pass right before the half for a 28-0 halftime advantage.

Trinity (1-0) continued to ambush the Patriots with 22 points in the third quarter. Yi, Clint Kitto and Powell scored on runs of 21, 41 and 67 yards respectively.

San Jacinto finally got on the board in the fourth quarter as the lack of depth caused Trinity to wear down a bit.

Ryan Reneau, who finished with 120 yards on 12 carries, rumbled his way for a 14-yard run early in the fourth to finally give his team some points.

Kyle McKinney added two scores for the Patriots with a 51-yard run and a 5-yard TD reception from Patriots quarterback Jeremy Anthony.

The Chargers also got a 42-yard scoring run from Powell in the fourth quarter.

"We're proud of our kids," Wilkins said. "Things pick up after this as we begin with the UIL kids. It'll be a lot tougher road for us."

Trinity heads to Fort Davis next Friday.

Notes: Amarillo San Jacinto is a TAPPS District 1-3A opponent. This game, however, goes down as a non-district game as both teams needed an early season opponent... Private schools were the only ones in Texas allowed to start the football regular season on Friday... Adcox rushed for about one-fifth the total he rushed for all of last season. In 2000, Adcox rushed for 1,002 yards. The senior running back had 206 yards against the Patriots on Friday... Trinity punted only once and that was late in the fourth quarter as Kratzer booted a 35-yarder... Trinity played all 18 players on the varsity roster.

'BOYS: Players have raved about Oxnard training camp and get everyone refreshed," Jones said. "It's been great to have the support that we've had here."

Oxnard officials said they've also been pleased with success of the camp, prompting the talks to have the club return next summer.

"We want them back and they want to come back," said Edmund Sotelo, Oxnard's city manager. "This has been a total win for us. It's been a fabulous relationship."

From 1963-89, the Cowboys trained at Cal Lutheran University in Thousand Oaks, about 20 miles from Oxnard.

They moved to Austin in 1990 because Jones wanted to better market the team in Texas and then-coach Jimmy Johnson believed that training in the heat was beneficial.

The Cowboys spent the last three years in the sweltering heat of Wichita Falls. They started this summer there, too, but made the mid-camp switch in hopes that cooler weather would yield better practices.

So far, the Cowboys' southern California homecoming has been triumphant for both sides.

Players and coaches have raved about their time spent in the balmy climate of Oxnard, which has daytime temperatures nearly 30 degrees cooler than Wichita Falls.

Loudspeakers filter hip-hop music across the practice fields, fans enthusiastically chatter during practices and ocean breezes soothe the players.

"We look forward to coming back," said running back Emmitt Smith, a 12-year veteran. "Training camp can be a grind, but it's been nice to have a change of scenery. This has been a great experience."

In return, jubilant fans have lined up along the fence at the practice fields twice a day.

According to the Cowboys, average practice attendance in Oxnard (792 people) has surpassed that of Wichita Falls (758). The NFL-deprived fans here have also purchased more team merchandise, team officials said.

"To fans here, we may be there only opportunity to see a professional football team," said John Hickman, the club's director of marketing. "It's been going really well for us."

Coach Dave Campo said he'd be more appreciative of training in California if the team didn't have such an arduous preseason flight schedule. But he said he still sees the benefits of practicing in Oxnard.

"It's been an excellent change-of-pace," Campo said. "We've got good quality work done out here. I really like this environment for the team."

Retired pastor takes time for people

By Johnnye Montgomery
Religion Writer

Beign too busy is one of our sins, said the Rev. David Herman. "We say we don't have enough time, but nothing could be further from the truth. God gives us enough time, but then we use it miserably."

In Herman's daily allotment of time, he speaks to each person he meets, and listens to what they say in reply. He has a particular fondness for grocery sackers and clerks. "When someone is mean to them, I always tell them that it isn't their (the sacker's) fault," he said. "I tell them that person is probably mean to everybody."

He also teaches Bible classes at Trinity Towers and at an adult day care center, visits under-the-weather Lutherans in hospitals and nursing homes and elsewhere. Every Monday, he recycles church bulletins, handing them out as long as they last.

"I usually have 75 to 80 bulletins, and I always run out," he said. "The bulletins contain Scriptures that follow the liturgical calendar, which goes in a three-year-cycle, and there is also a little sermonette, and the people I visit really like them."

The Bible classes are supposed to last 30 minutes, but Herman stretches out the time as long as he needs to in order to answer every question, and to visit personally with every individual.

His visits are equally scheduled, not around a schedule, but around human needs. He said he wouldn't have it any other way.

"You see, you always get so much more than you give during these visits," he explained.

"For example, there is this one man I visit, who's 95, and he's been married 70 years. His wife is still alive, but she's not in the nursing home. She comes to visit him every day. He tells me the most beautiful stories.

"He said he was traveling down a lonely road in Oklahoma, and he came to a stop sign, but could see no one except a distant car in his rear-view mirror.

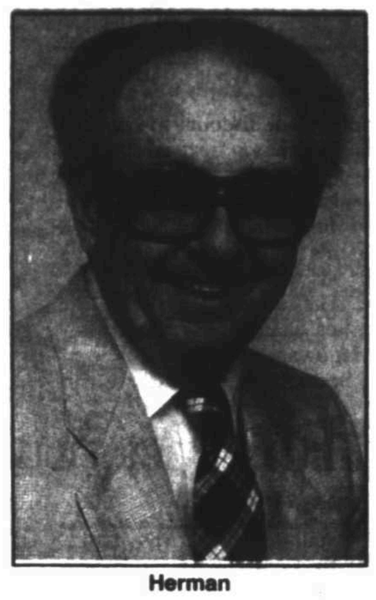

"So he sailed past the stop sign, then looked in the mirror and saw red and blue lights flashing approaching him from the rear.

"He said 'I stopped, and the patrolman stopped, and came to my car, and he asked me if I had a good reason for running that stop sign. I said, 'I thought I was in a hurry, but I realize now that I'm not.'"

"One day this man said, 'Can you give me one good reason why I'm still alive?' I said, 'Floyd, if you weren't here, who would I visit?'"

Herman, who came to Midland in 1964 as pastor of Midland Lutheran Church, began his pastoral career in 1941. He was fresh out of Wartburg Seminary in Dubuque, Iowa, and he could have enlisted in either the

PASSING ON HIS

In reversal of history, African priests take jobs in Portugal

By Cristiana Pereira
Associated Press

FRAGOSELA, Portugal — The Rev. Joao Bento is the Roman Catholic leader of a small, conservative community of farmers and factory workers — a place where priests are so scarce several parishes had to share one until he arrived.

Yet Bento's presence in this village of 2,500 people was greeted with mixed emotions.

The reasons? He's the only black person in Fragosela and he comes from Angola — a former Portuguese colony where white missionaries landed five centuries ago.

Then, Portuguese and Spanish Jesuits led the drive to spread Christian beliefs, joining the voyages that set out to map distant lands and control lucrative trade routes. Today, Bento and his colleagues are completing the circle of history by returning to the land of those European priests.

"Like a son who comes back to teach his father," Bento says of his move to this village from his home in southwest Africa four years ago.

Bento is one of four Angolan priests who have come to Portugal to minister in rural parishes around Viseu, a city roughly 185 miles north of Lisbon.

They are working here under a cooperation agreement between the Bishop of Viseu and his counterpart in Benguela, a city along the western coast of Angola. Portugal ruled Angola for about 500 years, until the colony gained its independence in 1975.

"The diocese of Benguela always had a missionary plan to prove that it's not just the old Christendoms that can provide missionaries," Bishop Oscar Braga of Benguela said during a recent trip to Portugal.

The Angolans are helping make up for an increasing shortage of priests in Portugal. As in other European Union countries, the number of Portuguese priests has dwindled by nearly one-fifth to 4,250 over the past 20 years. In Germany and Austria, clergy from the former Soviet bloc are taking up posts to compensate for the shortfall.

When priests from the Iberian peninsula reached Africa, Asia and Latin America, their mission was to implant Christianity, in some cases suppressing local beliefs by force.

The situation is obviously — and enormously — different now. "I'm not here to pass on my culture," Bento says. "I'm here to pass on my faith."

How can one tell if God is behind miracle?

By Richard Ostling
Associated Press

Skeptics say miracles can't happen. But Christians who believe in miracles probably figure some claims are true and others are fake, and that God is behind some inexplicable events and not others. But how do you tell the difference?

Roman Catholics can look to the Vatican, which operates an elaborate system for investigating whether prayer through a deceased person produced a result that cannot be explained by natural means. In such cases the recipient of the prayer is deemed to be in heaven with God and declared "blessed" or a saint by the church.

As in most matters, Protestants turn straight to the Bible instead.

The true-or-false criteria were discussed in an article in Christianity Today magazine by the Rev. J. Rodman Williams, a theologian at Regent University in Virginia Beach, Va. This is a key topic for Williams and fellow Charismatics and Pentecostals, who stress miracle-working as a task of the church in all ages.

A favorite Bible verse is: "God has appointed in the church first apostles, second prophets, third teachers, then workers of miracles, then healers, helpers, administrators, speakers in various kinds of tongues" (1 Corinthians 12:28).

There are three interrelated New Testament terms for miracle, often translated as "power," "signs" and "wonders," Williams notes. The Greek words are "dunamis" (meaning an exercise of supernatural power), "semeion" (a providential sign pointing to a greater meaning) and "teras" (an extraordinary event that causes wonder).

All three occur in 2 Thessalonians 2:3-12, an end-times passage warning "the man of lawlessness" (often thought to be the Antichrist) will perform dazzling deeds to exalt himself rather than God. If

Church attire shifts toward casual

By Kelli Levey
Associated Press

BRYAN — Many church-goers traditionally doff their coats and ties during the summer. But what was once a matter of hot-weather comfort has now become the norm, with casual dress in most churches being considered appropriate year-round.

Pastors in the Bryan-College Station area suggest its a logical shift reflecting a societal trend toward less formality.

Besides, they say, "dressing up" is not the reason for Sunday services.

"Back in the day when coat and ties and dresses were the standard, you would see a greater difference in the summer, but you don't see so much change anymore," said the Rev. Bob Richers, pastor of First United Methodist Church-Bryan.

"I think it has slowly evolved to the point where people are inclined to not wear a coat and tie to church. They are wearing things like slacks and button-down short-sleeved shirts to work, so they're comfortable wearing that to church as well," Richers noted.

The unofficial mottoes of the church near downtown Bryan are "No ties in July" and "Sleeveless Sundays in August," but most worshippers are already dressed that way, Richers noted.

The Rev. Melvin Amerson, pastor of First United Methodist Church in College Station, said most of his congregates agree with his philosophy: "God is not concerned with our fashion statements, he is concerned with our salvation and our Christian living statement for Christ.

TIME: Pastor built church by knocking on doors

(From 1C)

Canadian or the U.S. armed forces at twice the pay he would be getting as a clergyman. But Herman stayed his course.

"The president of the seminary called me and said he had calls from three different churches wanting me to be their pastor," he said. "It wasn't because they thought I was wonderful, but pastors were in such short supply.

"The first was from Gackle, N.D., offering a pittance of a salary, but adding that they would supply me with all I could eat in 'Naturalia', meaning ducks, geese and other wildlife to eat.

"The next was from Brandon, Manitoba. I'm bilingual, and they wanted me to start a mission in German. But Brandon was also the site of an army base for the Canadian army, and the president said, 'The thing is this: If you start a church in German, you might get taken out and tarred and feathered.' Every weekend, the Canadian government would send a train load of prostitutes out for the pleasure of the soldiers," he added.

"The third offer came from a parish in Cleveland, Ohio — home of the chair of the seminary's board of regents."

Herman said the president advised him to take the Cleveland parish.

He spent one year there, during which time he was married. In June 1942, he and Alice moved to Houston, where he became pastor of Park Place Lutheran Church, a small mission with a war-depleted membership.

"The congregation numbered 88, but only 40 of them came to church," he said.

He began knocking on doors, introducing himself and leaving literature and a card with his telephone number on it.

"Almost all of them would say they belonged to a church, and I would say, 'Oh, what church?' And they would say, 'Well, actually, it's back in Chicago, or Los Angeles, or somewhere,' And I'd say, 'Well here's my card. Call me if I can do anything for you.'"

He and an assistant together called on 10,000 houses before they were done.

During his 19 1/2 year pastorate at Park Place, Herman saw the congregation grow to more than 860 members with a church plant valued at $1 million in the late 1950s. Park Place established the first American Lutheran Church day care in the Texas District in 1946.

The church also established four missions in the Houston area.

In 1961, the Hermans were called to a church in San Diego. They had three daughters by this time, however, and the daughters were miserable. When Midland Lutheran Church called in 1964, they gladly packed and came to West Texas.

In 1979, Herman announced to the congregation he would retire in 1980, and toward the end of that year, Trinity Towers invited all the clergy in town to a luncheon.

"They didn't realize that when you invite a pastor to an event with something to eat, he's going to come," said Herman. "I don't know how they did it, but they got us all fed, and during the meal, I happened to be sitting next to someone on the board of Trinity Towers.

"First Presbyterian had been instrumental in getting Trinity Towers started, so I said, 'You Presbyterians eat well,' and he said, 'I'm not Presbyterian.' I said 'Do you mind if I ask what church you belong to?' He said, 'I don't belong to any church.'

"Which proves that God uses people to do excellent work whether they're church members or not."

Before the luncheon was over that day, Herman had signed on as Bible teacher.

He said despite his Lutheran persuasion, he doesn't feel his Bible lessons carry any danger of undue pressure.

"Lutherans are soft sell," he said. "We'll never threaten or try to get you to do anything in a hurry.

"God gives us all the time we need."

PRIEST: Some resent minister's presence

(From 1C)

Tall, with chiseled cheekbones, the 35-year-old Bento speaks with a stammer that suddenly disappears when he's celebrating Mass. He intersperses his conversation with a comical "Mamma mia!" which he picked up from a Brazilian soap opera — a mainstay of Portuguese and Angolan television.

Despite his cheerful nature and good intentions, some resent Bento's presence.

Maria das Dores Leandro, who works at the Lopes cafe in Fragosela, acknowledges that the arrival of black priests ruffled local feathers.

"They're not really welcome here. You know, we're a little racist. We wanted a white priest," she explains with a sheepish smile.

The Rev. Andre Sahoi, a 29-year-old priest who also came from Benguela and is posted nearby, figures the initial alarm was a natural reaction.

"Sometimes children even ran away from us," he says, a broad mustachioed grin lighting up his thin face.

Yet Bento, nearing the end of his stay in Portugal, believes the passage of time has helped people see beyond the color of his skin. Some parishioners questioned on the cobblestone streets of Fragosela say they'll sign a petition to keep Bento from returning to Angola.

In Sahoi's smaller parish, a village of 200 people called Travanca de Tavares, there's an ancient church of granite stone in a walled field with a broad view of pine forests and bright green vineyards.

Maria dos Prazeres Cabral, who keeps the keys to the church, said she doesn't care if the parish priest is Angolan or Portuguese, so long as he's there.

"Before, we had to borrow a priest," she said. "Now we have our own."

MIRACLE: Theologian offers tests from Bible

(From 1C)

something extraordinary happens, then, is it the work of God or the devil, and how can we know?

Williams sees these tests laid out in the Bible:

■ Does the event glorify God?

A true miracle attests that God is active and reveals his character, Williams writes; beware the miracle worker who glorifies himself, however subtly. Besides the Thessalonians' warning, we have the evil Simon the magician, who "amazed the nation of Samaria, saying that he himself was somebody great" (Acts 8:9-13).

■ Is the source divine?

To determine truth or falsehood, Williams proposes applying the rule of Jesus in deciding whether a prophet is true or false: "Every sound tree bears good fruit" so "you will know them by their fruits" (Matthew 7:15-20). Examine the results.

■ Is the occurrence "true to the Holy Spirit"?

This sounds like the preceding point, but Williams is referring to a special gift, emphasized in Charismatic-Pentecostal circles, of distinguishing between "true and false spirits," something not granted to all believers.

For example, Paul was "filled with the Holy Spirit" and immediately recognized Elymas as a "son of the devil" though he lacked any previous knowledge of the man (Acts 13:6-11).

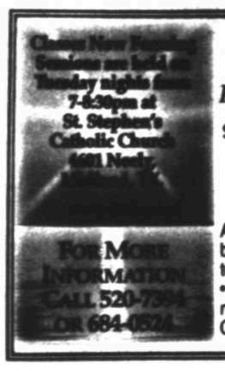

■ Does it build up the church?

Here Williams refers to 1 Corinthians 12. If all is working right, Williams says, the miracles occur through the church and foster its "upbuilding and outreach." For instance, Philip the evangelist performed miraculous "signs" and the crowd paid attention to what he was preaching (Acts 8:6).

■ Does the purported miracle meet the "external verification" test?

Here Williams meets the Vatican system halfway. Some Charismatics fear, as the saying goes, that they'll "lose their miracle" if they test it and have it scrutinized by competent medical experts.

Williams sharply spurns that attitude, saying it "characterizes God as a cruel prankster." If a healing seems to have happened, the beneficiary "should welcome impartial verification," Williams asserts. After all, Jesus told the 10 lepers he had healed to "go and show yourselves to the priests" (Luke 17:14).

Blake plans to sell home, move closer to his adult daughter

LOS ANGELES — Robert Blake plans to sell his home, dubbed the "Mata Hari Ranch," which he shared with his wife who was shot and killed.

The 67-year-old former "Baretta" star has put the Studio City home up for sale and will move to the west San Fernando Valley to be closer to his adult daughter, Blake's attorney Harland Braun told the Daily News of Los Angeles for Friday's editions. Both Blake and the daughter will help care for his 14-month-old girl, Braun said.

Blake is asking $1.09 million for the nearly 5,000-square-foot compound, which has seven bedrooms and six baths, according to a real estate agent who listed it Thursday.

The actor's wife, 44-year-old Bonny Lee Bakley, lived in a house on the back of the property. She was shot to death May 4 as she sat in a car near a restaurant where the couple had just dined.

Police are still investigating the case and have made no arrests. They've interviewed Blake twice, and Bakley's family members also have cooperated.

Although Blake has not been ruled out as a suspect, Braun has said his client is innocent and believes some people may have wanted to kill Bakley, who ran a business soliciting money from lonely men.

EDINBURGH, Scotland — Sean Penn praised anti-globalization protesters and slammed the quality of Hollywood filmmaking in scathing comments before a film festival screening of his new movie.

He dismissed President Bush as a "nowhere man" on Thursday and lauded protesters at a recent global meetings for caring about something beyond themselves.

"I don't know if people value the thought of revolution any more," Penn told reporters at the Edinburgh International Film Festival, where he was promoting the "The Pledge," which he directed. "I think it would be an enormously patriotic movement to invest in the possibility of revolution."

"There's a lot of stuff going on around the world and in the U.S. as well, like the protests in Genoa and Seattle, and young people are putting themselves on the line," he said, referring to demonstrations at this summer's G8 meeting in Italy and the 1999 World Trade Organization conference in Seattle.

The 41-year-old Penn said he became a director because the quality of most Hollywood films was so poor, he figured he could do a better job himself.

"Truly, half the people in this room could work on that level," he said. "It takes enormous pressure off to know that if you put two thoughts into your movie, you're already well up on them. ... There's a consistent beating against anything that doesn't serve the bank."

"The Pledge," about a retired detective trying to solve a series of child murders, stars Jack Nicholson, Vanessa Redgrave, Sam Shepard, Benicio Del Toro and Penn's wife, Robin Wright Penn.

LOS ANGELES — Harrison Ford's wife of 18 years has filed for legal separation, citing irreconcilable differences.

Ford and his wife, screenwriter Melissa Mathison Ford, have been living apart since October 2000. They declined to comment on the court filing.

"The only statement they have is that Melissa filed for separation from Harrison and the couple remain amicable," said Patricia McQueeney, Harrison Ford's agent.

Mathison is seeking joint custody of their son, Malcolm, 14, and daughter, Georgia, 11, according to the Los Angeles Superior Court petition.

Ford, 59, has starred in several films in the last 25 years, including the "Indiana Jones" and "Star Wars" movies. Mathison has written such films as "E.T. the Extra-Terrestrial" and "Kundun."

Harrison Ford has two adult sons by his first wife, Mary Marquardt, whom he divorced in 1979.

LOS ANGELES — It's a boy for former "Hercules" star Kevin Sorbo.

Sorbo and his wife, Sam, welcomed the 7-pound, 8-ounce boy on Wednesday at a hospital in Henderson, Nev. The couple, who live in the Las Vegas area, haven't picked a name, publicist Deborah Grimes said Thursday in Los Angeles.

It was the couple's first child.

The 42-year-old Sorbo, who starred in TV's "Hercules: The Legendary Journeys," now stars in the syndicated series "Andromeda."

LOS ANGELES — You think you had it bad as a kid. Marilu Henner's sons have to eat lima bean soup — but she swears they like it.

Her two boys, ages 5 and 7, are featured on the cover of her new book "Healthy Kids," a parent's guide through the various stages of children's lives that includes advice on turning bad eating habits into good ones.

The book also includes more than 100 recipes, including ways to prepare Brussels sprouts and Lucky Lima Bean Soup.

JACQUELINE BIGAR'S STARS

The Stars Show the Kind of Day You'll Have: 5-Dynamic; 4-Positive; 3-Average; 2-So-so; 1-Difficult

HAPPY BIRTHDAY for Saturday, Aug. 25, 2001:

You communicate with a passionate yet nearly lyrical style. Others like to listen to you. You develop a pen pal or a friendship with someone at a distance that could be quite different than you have had before. Don't allow tension to whittle away at your many talents. A family member might covet some of what you offer to others. If single, a special relationship broadens your perspective and allows you to see what is important to you. Be smart. Do not mix business with pleasure, no matter what your status is. If you are attached, the two of you will develop more activities based at home. One of you might even work from home. SAGITTARIUS is an anchor.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) ★★★★★ You see the silver lining in a black cloud. Where others stop at a perceived problem, you work with the issue. Plan an escape that will allow you to put "real" life on hold. Grab a loved one or friend. Tonight: Go to a club or listen to jazz.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) ★★★★★ Convincing someone that you are on the right track takes unusual talent and balance. Through attitude and following through on a must event, this person sees how level you are. Buy a special item. Clarify feelings with a loved one. Tonight: Light a candle over dinner.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) ★★★★★ Focus on another. You might enjoy some time out of the spotlight. Shop for a special item for yourself or your home. Relax and mosey through a flea market or antiques store. Your fast-acting mind relaxes as a result. Tonight: Follow another's lead.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) ★★★ Not every moment has to be social. Schedule downtime for yourself. You might enjoy a nap or a long walk. Clear your mind and body by doing what feels right for you. Others will understand when they see the new you later on. Tonight: Just don't do anything you don't want to.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) ★★★★★ You seem to know where it's at. Your morning desires set your course. You might want to hole up with a loved one and vanish. Creativity sparks more romance in your life. Let your libido lead. Tonight: Only what you want.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) ★★★★ Deal with family before you take off and do something you absolutely want to. Anchor plans with friends; together you might foster an important cause. Remember, though, not everything you do has to have a reason, even for the practical Virgo. Tonight: Invite your pals over.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22) ★★★★★ Touch base with family or a boss. Your extra efforts enhance your present relationship. Be supportive as someone becomes insecure and balks. A child or loved one lets you know how important you are. Tonight: Act like a teen-ager.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21) ★★★★ An overture touches you this morning. If you are thinking about taking an action toward a loved one, do so. Good feelings develop because of sharing. Shop around for a new item. You'll like what you chose. Buy something special for the family. Tonight: You don't have to go far from home.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21) ★★★★★ Assume little, and confirm plans. A loved one or friend would like to hold you hostage. Though this might be agreeable for a while, your need to wander emerges. Others seek you out. Pick and choose where you want to be and who goes along. Tonight: It's your call!

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) ★★★★ Use the morning to get together with a friend. Curl up with a good book on the beach or relax and walk by a favorite lake or creek. Take in the season's scenery while you still can. Tonight: Whatever makes you smile.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) ★★★★ Clear up any leftover work or chores. By afternoon, friends summon you. Check in with a special pal or loved one before you frolic away. Listening to someone might leave you confused about what you want. Tonight: Loosen up and go with the flow.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20) ★★★★ Make a long-distance call first thing in the morning. Once you get going, you will have a lot on your plate. Drop in on a concert or an art show. Appreciate others' skills. Tonight: In the limelight.

Firestone settles with Texas family in rollover accident

By Jim Vertuno
Associated Press

McALLEN — Four days after a jury began its deliberations in a $1 billion liability lawsuit, Bridgestone/Firestone Inc. on Friday agreed to settle with the family of a paralyzed Texas woman for a reported $7.5 million.

It was a surprising end to a case that had drawn national attention as the first lawsuit against the company since a massive tire recall last summer.

The nine-person jury had been considering whether Bridgestone/Firestone or Ford Motor Co. were responsible for the March 2000 crash of a Ford Explorer that left Marisa Rodriguez, a 39-year-old mother of three, brain-damaged.

Her husband, Joel Rodriguez, a doctor from the South Texas town of Pharr, sued the tire company. A month before the trial, he settled with Ford for $6 million.

Rodriguez said he insisted upon a trial to publicize alleged safety dangers of the tires and Ford Explorers.

"Our mission here, for our family, was to make sure no other person suffered like our family did. We feel that our objective has been met," Rodriguez said. "Marisa is the important thing. We think that now we can get our lives back together."

While Ford was not a defendant in the suit, the trial threatened the auto maker's largely effective efforts to blame Bridgestone/Firestone for accidents in which Explorers rolled over when a tire's tread peeled off.

Firestone lawyers and executives, meanwhile, pointed to the family's Ford Explorer, saying design flaws made it prone to rolling over. Knox Nunnally, an attorney for Firestone, said he believes that Firestone successfully illustrated that Ford was to blame.

"The message anyone I believe would get out of this trial if they sat through all of the evidence is that (the Rodriguezes') Firestone tire was not the problem," he said.

Ford spokeswoman Kathleen Vokes said it would be "inappropriate" for the company to comment.

Some observers read the settlement as a victory for Ford. The settlement prevented the jury from laying any blame for the Rodriguez accident on the company.

"This could be read by consumers that Bridgestone/Firestone had the chance to prove it wasn't all their fault, and they blinked," said Michael Flynn, director of the Office for the Study of Automotive Transportation at the University of Michigan.

Others saw the settlement, which was initiated by the family, as a victory for the tire company.

Lisa Blue, a Dallas lawyer and jury consultant, said plaintiff's lawyers begin to worry when juries take a long time to reach a verdict.

"If they're out more than a couple days, it usually means there's some fighting going on. (Rodriguez's lawyers) probably thought they would get a hung jury, which would be just terrible because you have to start over," she said.

A verdict for the Rodriguezes was far from certain. In liability cases involving tires from 1994 to 2000, only two in five plaintiffs recovered any money. The median award was $1.04 million, according to Jury Verdict Research, a Pennsylvania-based research company.

"Everybody starts getting nervous when a jury is out four days," acknowledged Ricardo Garcia, one of the family's lawyers.

Federal officials have linked more than 200 deaths to accidents involving Firestone tire failures on Ford Explorers.

Chronology

Key dates in the Firestone tire case:

November 1988: Makers of Firestone tires tell Ford Motor Co. that a prototype of a new sport utility vehicle, the Explorer, showed a tendency to roll over.

November 1998: Firestone studies Dueler AT tires returned because of tread separation, finding that tires without a nylon reinforcement strip fail three to five times more often than tires with the strip. The strips, costing about 90 cents per tire, are not added to tires sold in the United States.

January 1999: Bridgestone/Firestone records show tread separations on Wilderness AT tires tripled between 1998 and 1999.

1999: Ford reviews 4,000 reports of tire and wheel problem with the Explorer, and finds that one-third of separations occur on Goodyear tires.

March 9, 2000: Marisa Rodriguez, 39, is left paralyzed and brain-damaged when the 1998 Ford Explorer she was riding in rolled after tread on a tire separates.

May 2000: The National Highway Traffic Safety Administration begins investigating reports that Firestone tires are experiencing tread separation. The agency had received 90 complaints involving four deaths and 27 injuries. Eventually, it would link 200 deaths and 700 injuries to the tire failures.

August 2000: Bridgestone/Firestone Inc. announces recall of 6.5 million ATX, ATX II and Wilderness AT tires, many sold as standard equipment on new Ford Explorers.

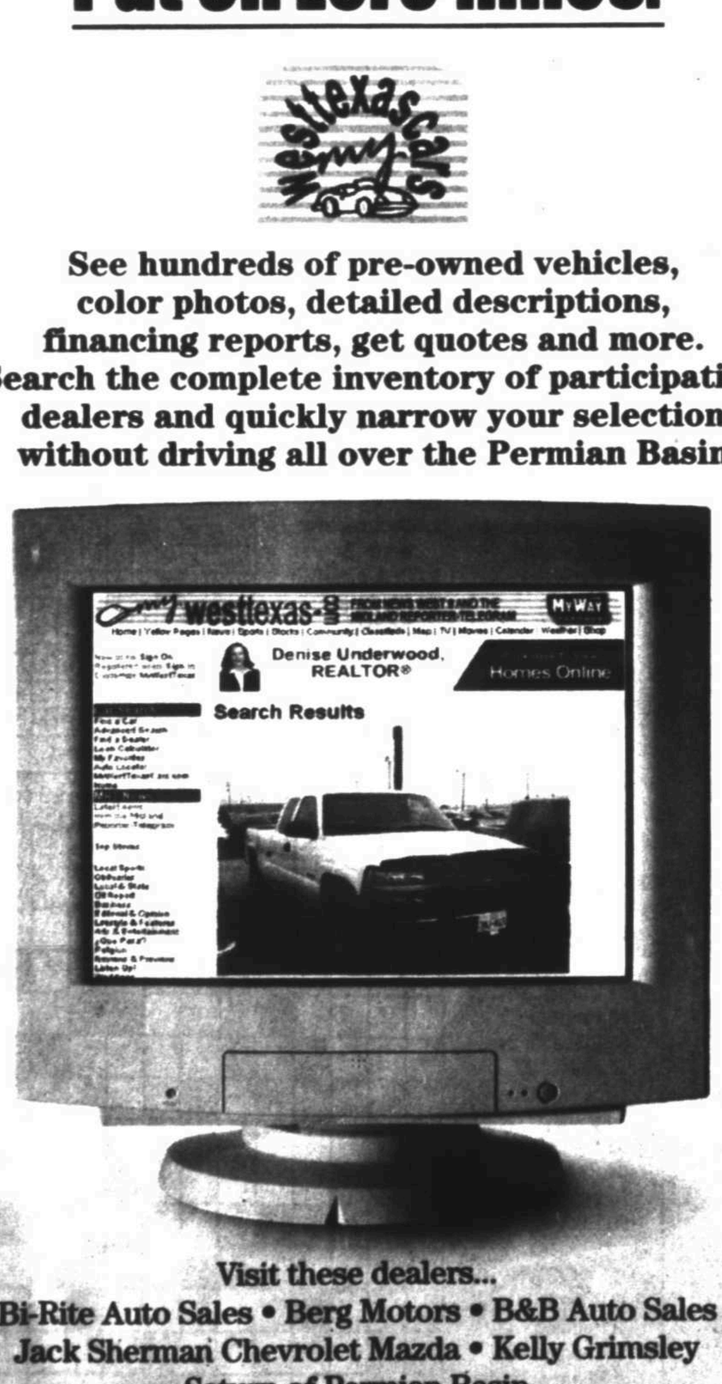

September 2000: Ford chief executive Jacques Nasser tells Congress the Explorer is not at fault for crashes involving Firestone tires. Joel Rodriguez, Marisa's husband, files lawsuit against Ford and Bridgestone/Firestone.

December 2000: Yoichiro Kaizaki, the president of Bridgestone/Firestone's parent company, says other factors — not just tires — contributed to fatal crashes. A company report says a design flaw and the rubber-making process at a Decatur, Ill., plant caused tread separations. It also blames Ford for recommending lower air pressure and high vehicle loads on Explorers.

May 2001: Bridgestone/Firestone ends 95-year relationship with Ford. A few days later, Ford recalls remaining 13 million Wilderness AT tires on its vehicles.

August 2001: The first trial stemming from hundreds of lawsuits against Firestone begins in McAllen. A settlement is announced as jurors begin their fourth day of deliberations. Sources say Bridgestone/Firestone agreed to pay Rodriguez $7.5 million but did not admit liability for the accident.

Rugged & refined: 2002 JEEP LIBERTY SUV

RoadWorthy!

By Ken Chester, Jr.

Here is DaimlerChrysler's formula for an all-new small SUV. Start with 60 years of industry-leading off-road experience. Add in 2,000,000 actual test miles to validate durability, development and reliability targets and combine together with an all-new state-of-the-art $1 billion dollar assembly plant in Toledo, Ohio. Simmer for two years and add a dash of new technology from Mercedes-Benz to error-proof manufacturing and assembly processes. The result is the new Jeep Liberty.

Available in Sport and Limited models and two- or four-wheel drive, the Jeep Liberty represents "The Next Great Jeep Idea." It delivers a unique combination of ruggedness, capability and on-road refinement that sets it apart from the pack in true Jeep tradition.

Although the new Liberty will compete in the compact end of the SUV market, the nameplate readily draws comparisons between the new Liberty and its larger, upscale sibling, the Grand Cherokee.

The Jeep Liberty offers two engines – the standard 2.4L PowerTech I-4 or the all-new 3.7L PowerTech V-6 engine. The new six-cylinder is similar in architecture and is derived from the 4.7L V-8 prime mover powering the Grand Cherokee. The NV1500 five-speed manual is the standard gearbox bolted to the four cylinder, while the more robust, smooth shifting NV3550 five-speed manual serves behind the six-cylinder. A multi-speed automatic transmission is an $825 option on V-6 equipped models.

True to Jeep's heritage, buyers have a choice of all-wheel drive systems: Command Trac part-time four-wheel drive or Selec Trac full-time wheel drive (V-6 only).

There was some concern among the Jeep faithful that the all-new Liberty is not a bona-fide Jeep due to its departure from some of the tried and true hardware that has been a part of Jeep down through its long history. Let's set the record straight with a few facts and observations: first, the 4wd Low range (4LO Mode) is a true creeper gear. The engine and transmission are calibrated to match the gear setting on the automatic equipped vehicles.

The ABS system is also calibrated in order to allow limited lockup in very low speed off-road maneuvers. Most importantly for true Jeep owners, the new Liberty can be started in gear with just the ignition key thanks to a clutch-starter interlock bypass built into models equipped with the manual gearbox.

Secondly, this dog will hunt! Going off-road in search of a true test for a real Jeep, I found a deeply rutted construction road that ended with some very soft hills of dirt and debris. I put the Jeep Liberty Limited (V-6), equipped with Command Trac, into 4LO and shifted in gear. At the really nasty part of the trail, a hint of the accelerator was all that was needed to climb that unstable hill at about 2 mph. The vehicle DID need a bath once it was returned however.

On the road, the Jeep delivers a good steering feel, acceleration and balance. It is comfortable, strong and stable. According to Jeep, Liberty's "uniframe" construction represents a 43 percent torsion and 58 percent bending improvement over the larger Grand Cherokee. This design incorporates all of the strength and durability of a body-on-frame set up into a unitized construction.

Front and rear shock mounting points have been reinforced and directly aligned with the longitudinal rail structure for load distribution. Suspension hardware includes an all-new coil spring independent front suspension and a link coil rear suspension including trailing upper A-arm, dual trailing lower arms, coil springs and stabilizer bar.

Inside, the cabin has a strong resemblance to the Chrysler group's large sedans. The driver enjoys a good view of the road. Displays and controls are easy to read and use. Front seating is comfortable. Second seating is a bit snug for two adults. The cargo area is good sized, with plenty of tie downs to secure cargo.

With a 29.0 cubic foot capacity with the rear seats up and 69.0 cubic feet with the rear seats folded, the Jeep Liberty offers plenty of space to
