U.S. Warns Against Conflict In Orient

Bloody Warfare Of Year's Duration Has Torn Spain

By ALEXANDER H. UHL
Associated Press Staff Writer

MADRID, July 16—A year of bloody warfare has left Spain torn into two great, hostile camps whose bitterness would seem to bar peace by compromise.

The civil strife begins its second year Sunday. Its cost in lives and treasure still is incalculable and the end is not in sight.

At the beginning, almost all Spain's military officers and official class joined the insurgents. Out of a welter of confusion, the government has achieved three prime objectives:

1. It has created a new army out of untrained, unequipped masses, supplied it with officers and materials and prepared it to match force with the insurgents.

2. It has defended Madrid successfully.

3. It has restored its control over functions of government that trade union and political party groups at first took over.

Grave Threat To Peace

The civil war early overflowed the boundaries of Spain and became a grave threat to the peace of Europe.

Government officials declare German and Italian aid was given the insurgents almost at the beginning in Spanish Morocco July 18, 1936. They assert the insurgents have from 10,000 to 12,000 Germans, mostly aviators and artillerymen, and about 70,000 Italians, mostly infantry.

Figures are not disclosed on the number of Russians in the government's army, mostly in the tank and air corps, or of the strength of the international brigade of anti-Fascists, which includes many Americans and Canadians.

Divided Into Three Phases

The first year of the war is divided in government Spain, apart from military events, into these three phases:

1. The breakdown of government services during the first month: the Spanish army had virtually disappeared from government territory almost over night. A whole class of public officials and servants had to be recruited. The powerless government watched the unions and political parties organize the defense, confiscate property and run the government.

2. The assumption of power by Francisco Largo Caballero; under the direction of the trade union leader, premier until last May, the militia evolved into an army, the government shifted its seat to Valencia, and government authority was reasserted. Still the trade unions remained powerful; they tried to throw their whole weight into the fight but still were more concerned

FRANCO SURE WINNER

BERLIN, July 16. (AP)—The Nazi press acclaimed insurgent Generalissimo Franco's "fight for Spain" tonight as as sure winner.

In long, laudatory articles, it declared the Spanish insurgents would have won by now had not "modern weapons helped the reds (government) as defenders more than they helped France as the attacker."

It has been proved, they said, that "the reds can not win. The press emphasized the "moral assistance" Germany and Italy have given Gen. Franco.

Winds Studied In Plane Hunt

(By The Associated Press)

HONOLULU, July 16.—A study of equatorial winds and current today drew naval aviators farther northward in the closing phase of their hunt through the South Seas for Amelia Earhart.

Forty-two planes again left the Aircraft carrier Lexington west of Howland island to explore 28,000 square miles along either side of the international date line to a point 220 miles north of the equator.

Might Have Drifted

The survey of current and winds led to the belief that the plane of Miss Earhart and her navigator, Frederick J. Noonan, might have drifted farther to the north than original data indicated.

This northward movement also brought the Lexington nearer to the point where the search first started July 2, when the Earhart plane disappeared while attempting to fly 2,570 miles from New Guinea to Howland island.

Open Sea Scanned

Inaugurating the search, the coast guard cutter Itasca, the mine sweeper Swan and the British freighter Moorby scanned 104,000 square miles of open sea north and west of Howland island before the hunt was suddenly switched 500 miles to the southeast.

Still battling fierce heat which beat down between rain squalls, the fliers again greased their faces before taking off from the drenched flying deck of the Lexington. The great thunderheads decorated the sky.

Long Deadlock Believed Over By Britains

(By The Associated Press)

LONDON, July 16. — British officials tonight declared their belief the long deadlock over European neutrality in the Spanish civil war was broken.

After Britain's new plan for isolating the conflict was presented to the 27-nations non-intervention committee, British spokesmen said all members of the committee accepted it as a "basis for discussion."

A subcommittee will consider details of the plan Tuesday.

The plan calls for withdrawal of foreign volunteers from Spain, dissolution of the neutral naval patrol, establishment of a system of neutral observers on supply ships entering Spanish waters, and granting "limited" belligerent rights to Spain's warring factions.

France, Italy and Germany were reported to have accepted the program with reservations, which each said must be "fully discussed" before a final agreement is concluded.

Russians To Object

Ivan Maisky, Russian ambassador, and Moiseyevitch Kagan, Soviet representative on the committee, indicated they will object vigorously to many points in the British plan.

"Our opposition will be disclosed to the subcommittee next Tuesday," Maisky said when he left the meeting.

The French cabinet decided Charles Corbin, French ambassador to London, should insist on "substantial" process in setting up control of Spain's ports and withdrawal of foreign fighters before granting the insurgents belligerent rights.

It was thought that Germany and Italy, who already have recognized the insurgent junta as the de facto government of Spain, would want such rights accorded immediately, with the question of withdrawal of volunteers deferred as long as possible.

Youth's Sentence Is Commuted To Life

SANTA FE, N. M., July 16. (AP) — Lieut. Gov. Hiram Dow today commuted to life imprisonment the death sentence of Hollis Martin, 19, of Altus, Okla.

Martin was sentenced to die July 23 for the murder of his aunt, uncle and cousin at Hondo, N. M., in 1935.

Lieut. Gov. Dow acted in the absence from the state of Gov. Clyde Tingley. Appeals for clemency for the youth were recently made by Rev. Al Bowman of Altus and R. W. Brewer, Oklahoma legislator.

Martin was convicted for the slaying of Mr. and Mrs. Willard Shaffer and their 9-year-old son in November, 1935.

Labor Charges Filed Against Steel Firm

Republic Steel Is Accused Of Act Violations

National Labor Relations Unit Steps Into Steel Strike And Lists Ten Specific Charges

(By The Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, July 16.—The labor relations board stepped into the steel strike today, accusing the Republic Steel corporation of violating the Wagner act in its Ohio plants.

The board's complaint, issued after John L. Lewis' Steel Workers' Organizing Committee, had asked for an investigation, charged the company of its agents with:

CHARGES "WITHOUT FOUNDATION"

CLEVELAND, O., July 16. (AP)—The Republic Steel corporation, in a formal statement, declared as "without foundation" tonight charges by the National Labor Relations board that the company had committed unfair labor practices before and during the C. I. O. steel strike.

(1) Locking out employes in Canton and Massillon, Ohio.

(2) Discharging 75 for union activity.

(3) Threatening employes with discharge or lay-off for union activity.

(4) Refusing to rehire certain employes because of their participation in the strike.

(5) Dominating and contributing financial support to local labor organizations.

Beating Up Organizers

(6) Trailing and beating up union organizers before the strike started.

(7) Increasing the company police force and using this force to interfere with peaceful picketing.

(8) Maintenance of arsenals "for the purpose of interfering with, restraining and coercing its employes at said plants in the exercise of their right to self-organization."

(9) Promoting "back-to-work" movements during the strike.

(10) Interfering with peaceful picketing.

The board ordered a hearing on these charges next Wednesday and arrange to use the large auditorium in the public health building instead of its regular hearing room.

Officials refused to say whether Tom Girdler, outspoken Republic chairman, has been or will be summoned to the hearing.

Ford Company's Orders Bared

(By The Associated Press)

DETROIT, July 16.—A Ford Motor company employe, who said he was a member of the United Automobile Workers Union, testified today he also was one of a group of "vigilantes" instructed to "pick up a lead pipe and start swinging" in the event of "trouble" at the Ford plant.

The witness, Mack Cinsori, told a National Labor Relations board trial examiner that he helped obtain signatures to a "vote of confidence" in Ford labor policies from other employes.

Charge They Were Dismissed

Some discharged Ford workers have testified they were dismissed after they refused to sign the "vote of confidence."

Cinzori's testimony before the NLRB hearing on a complaint charging the Ford company with unfair labor practices including dismissal of workers for union activity, was the first by a present employe of the company. He said that until he got on the witness stand no Ford official or foreman knew he was a U. A. W. member.

Another witness, Homer W. King, former electrical maintenance man at Ford's Rouge plant who said he was discharged June 14, told the NLRB trial examiner Ford foremen

State Funeral Is Held Friday For Sen. Robinson

(By The Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, July 16.—The great of the nation honored Senator Joseph T. Robinson in death today with a reverent little service which, in its hushed simplicity, belied the name state funeral.

Led by President Roosevelt, his face drawn and unsmiling, they gathered in the senate chamber, where for years Robinson directed the battles of his beloved Democratic party. His flower-banked, silvery coffin lay a few feet from the desk which had been his.

In reverence, they heard a few prayers, familiar passages from the scriptures, the softly moving cadences of the Episcopal service for the dead, hymns that an older generation loved. Then silently they departed.

Service Without Pomp

It was a state funeral without pomp, without ostentation, without eulogy, without military display. It was a service in keeping, his friends believed, with the blunt, simple character of the man it honored.

The casket lay at the foot of the senate dais.

Near the casket were the seats of Mrs. Robinson, heavily veiled in black, her brothers, Charles and Grady Miller, the senator's nephews, Joseph Brewer and Joseph Robinson, jr., and two close friends of Senator Robinson, Bernard M. Baruch and Harvey Couch.

Technically A Session Of Senate

Many a well-known figure was in the galleries.

CORN PROSPECTS IMPROVE

TOPEKA, July 16. (AP)—Corn prospects over most of eastern Kansas were improved today in the wake of generous rains that were heaviest in north-central and northeastern counties.

(By The Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, July 16. — President Roosevelt sought to make plain today that he is playing no favorites in the hot conflict over the selection of a senate majority leader to succeed the late Joseph T. Robinson.

He called in Senator Harrison (D-Miss), one of the candidates, and after the conference Harrison said he had received assurances the chief executive is not taking sides.

Harrison, backed generally by Democrats who have opposed the president's court reorganization bill, is running against Senator Barkley (D-Ky), who served as assistant leader under Senator Robinson.

Followed Letter To Barkley

The chief executive's assurances to Harrison followed a letter written to Barkley addressing him as "Dear Alben" and urging passage of a court reorganization bill at this session. Many legislators had expressed the belief that this letter meant the president wanted Barkley to fill Robinson's shoes.

"The president had heard," Harrison said as he left the White House, "that some had interpreted the letter to mean that he was thereby injecting himself into the leadership contest.

Not Taking Sides

"He wanted to give me the absolute assurance that neither he nor the administration in anyway was taking sides; that that was a matter entirely for the Democratic membership to decide."

With the senate in a virtual turmoil over the court bill and the leadership contest, both accentuated by the president's letter to Barkley, great interest attached to Harrison's call at the White House, together with that of two other senators.

Byrnes Withdraws

Senator Byrnes (D-SC), after withdrawing from the leadership race in favor, it was understood, of Harrison, responded to a White House summons, as has Senator Hatch (D-NM), prominent in the battle over the court bill.

Byrnes, however, left the executive mansion saying he discussed a census of the unemployed, and Hatch said he took up "a personal matter in New Mexico." Postmaster General Farley, who was in about the same time, said he discussed civil service legislation.

Harrison said he and Barkley had conferred during the day and had come to an agreement that it was desirable to get the leadership question settled as early as possible and that, therefore, a caucus would be held next Wednesday morning at which the vote will be taken.

Byrnes Makes Statement

Byrnes, in his statement of withdrawal from the leadership race, said.

"Until the funeral services of Senator Robinson were held I deemed it improper to make any

Main Armies Of Two Nations Mobilizing

Chiang Kai-Shek's Troops Move Up North For First Time To Aid In Fight Against Japan

(By The Associated Press)

PEIPING, July 16. — The main armies of the empire of Japan and the central government of China tonight appeared about to be drawn into the vortex of the North China conflict, hitherto confined to local clashes.

Dispatches indicating that troops of the central Chinese regime, thus far not involved, were moving north to meet the Japanese reached high foreign officials.

"More than one" of Nanking's crack, German-trained divisions was said to have reached the vicinity of Paotingfu, 90 miles southwest of Peiping by rail.

Chiang Kai-Shek Coming

This was received by notrhern Chinese as the first trustworthy evidence that forces belonging to Nanking Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek were coming north to oppose what the Chinese say is Japan's purpose to sever the northern provinces from the rest of China.

Hitherto Peiping Chinese have paid little attention to Nanking statements that six of its divisions were "standing by in North China."

Might Be Provocation

Foreign observers said the approach of Nanking divisions might prove the provocation they believed the Japanese are awaiting to launch major warlike operations.

Troops from Japan's homeland divisions are known to be on the way to China. Reliable reports from Tientsin said preparations were being made at Tangshan, railway town 70 miles northeast of Tientsin, to receive a Japanese army corps from Korea.

(At Nanking a government spokesman said China had "unimpeachable information" that five Japanese divisions, "totalling 100,000 men," were on the way to China. He named the divisions, but his total appeared high, since a Japanese division even at full war strength is about 15,000 men.)

In the series of clashes, which began about 10 miles west of Peiping

Low Tax Rate In County Likely

Lowest combined state-county tax rate Lubbock county has had in years was seen as a possibility Friday by tax authorities here as they awaited the setting of the state rate by the automatic tax board at Austin.

The board is empowered to set the state rate any time after July 15 and usually acts not later than July 20, according to H. B. Bryan, chief deputy to Lubbock County Assessor Hurley Carpenter. The state rate last year was 62 cents on the $100 of valuation.

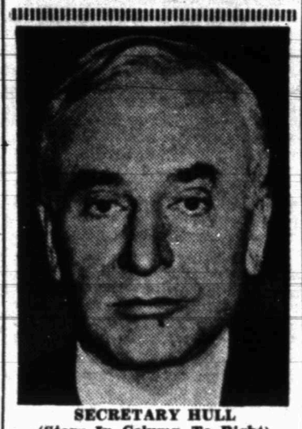

Mean Reduction Here

Should hints from Austin that the state rate is due for a reduction materialize into fact, it will mean a cut in the combined state-county rate because of the virtual certainty that the present Lubbock county rate of 50 cents on the $100 of valuation will remain unchanged, Bryan explained. State and county taxes are those collected by Carpenter's department.

The present combined rate of $1.12 on $100, according to records quoted by Bryan, is the lowest in many years, and a further reduction in that total would continue the scaling-down process which has been almost steadily operative during the last seven years. Combined rates for various years have dropped from a total of $1.46 in 1931 to the

Posses Looking For Fugitives In Oklahoma

(By The Associated Press)

SAPULPA, Okla., July 16.—A widespread hunt quickened tonight for Roy "Pete" Traxler and two other heavily-armed fugitives from a Texas prison farm believed heading toward Canada after a reign of terror in central Oklahoma.

Posses instructed to shoot to kill spread out over roads leading into Kansas and Arkansas from this area.

Federal bureau of investigation agents, tipped that Mrs. Traxler had left her home at Verden, Okla., in an automobile this morning presumably to meet her desperado husband, joined sheriff's officers in a search in northeast Grady county.

Bound For Canada

Traxler and his companions abducted Baird H. Markham, jr., Yale undergraduate, near Ada last night, took him on a wild ride to a point near here and released him unharmed. Before fleeing in his automobile, they told Markham they were bound for Canada with Kansas an immediate destination.

Markham, son of General and Mrs. Baird Markham of New York, identified police photographs of Charles Chapman and Fred Tindol, escaped Texas convicts, as those of Traxler's companions.

Sheriff Garland Marrs, taking charge of the search in this area, advanced the theory Traxler might be hiding out with relatives near here. All highways were being watched closely.

Secretary Hull States Policy In Situation

Moral Suasion Is Used By State Department Leader To Prevent Further Hostilities In Orient

(By The Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, July 16.—Secretary of State Hull sought tonight, by moral suasion, to prevent further hostilities between Japan and China.

Carefully refraining from mentioning either nation by name, he called for "international self-restraint;" for "abstinence by all nations from the use of force in pursuit of policy and from interference in the affairs of other nations."

Would Consider Involved

He let it be known that this country would consider its interests or obligations involved in any serious hostilities which may develop between Japan and China.

Hull refrained, however, from commiting the United States to action requested today by the Chinese government against the reported massing of Japanese troops in North China.

Dr. C. T. Wang, the Chinese ambassador, had advised the state department chief that his government wants action by the United States and other signatories of the nine-power treaty of 1922.

Respects Territorial Integrity

That treaty pledges the contracting powers to respect the territorial integrity of China and to protect her opportunity to develop and maintain a stable government. Japan is one of the signatories.

In his formal statement outlining American foreign policy in general, Hull said the United States government advocates "upholding of the principle of the sanctity of treaties" and also believes in modification of treaties when need arises.

"We believe in respect by all nations for the rights of others and performance by all nations of established obligations," his statement asserted.

Explains U. S. Situation

At the outset the secretary said "there can be no serious hostilities anywhere in the world which will not one way or another affect interests or rights or obligations of this country."

"I therefore feel warranted in making—in fact I feel it a duty to make—a statement of this government's position in regard to international problems or situations with respect to which this country feels deep concern," he added.

"This country constantly and consistently advocates maintenance of peace . . . We advocate adjustment of problems in international rela-

Rufe Davis, Hillbilly Singer In "Mountain Music" Pays Visit To Brother In City

RUFE DAVIS, the hill-billy entertainer who "stole the show" from Bob Burns and Martha Raye in "Mountain Music," yesterday in person gave his famous imitations of a fog horn, a bazooka, steam boat, motor boat and police whistle when visiting a brother, Bernie Davidson, at Texas Technological college. Garner's Job Now Not Near As Tough As Speakership; Indirect Quotation Given

By HOWARD C. MARSHALL
Associated Press Staff Writer

UVALDE, July 16.—After five years experience as vice present, John Nance Garner is quite certain of one thing:

The vice presidency is not as tough a job as that of speaker of the house of representatives.

He expressed this view on the eve of his returning to Washington from his home in Uvalde where he has been vacationing the past month. On the other hand, if only the duties of office and personal wishes were to be considered, he would prefer to be speaker.

The reason is that the speaker has more power and it is a much more active position. Also he has more freedom in giving opinions and attempting to shape public thought.

As speaker of the house of representatives, Mr. Garner could say and do about what he pleased. As vice president it has been all the difference in the world. He has to be careful. For example, in press interviews

ON ANSWERING PHONES

WE may be foul by yards in the opinion, but we believe that maids and children who rush to answer telephones should be given instructions and we are just the one to do it if we had a chance. (Note from Evelyn Boyd: Me, too).

When you have a number of calls to make you don't have time to give your family history to a colored maid who either can't understand you or can't remember or to some prattling child who can only say "Who wants to speak to her?"

There are few women in the city so busy that they need a secretary to keep account of their calls. However, we know women who ask their children or maid to question the one at the other end of the wire, probably fearing a boresome, acquaintance, a bill collector or someone wanting to sell something. On the other hand, it's disconcerting to have the question "Who wants to know?" thrown back at you when you ask if Mrs. Doe is there. Isn't there a method of satisfying the curiosity of the receiver on the one ear and the need of the giver on the other ear? We wonder.

MORE JELLY PIES

TWO other jelly pie recipes were telephoned to the desk Friday. The first one, a jelly custard pie said to be delicious, is baked in an uncooked shell and will make enough mixture for two pies. The ingredients: 1 glass of jelly, 1 cup of sugar, 4 eggs, 1 teaspoon vanilla and 1 tablespoon of butter. The eggs may be beaten together or separately. Tart jelly may be used if desired.

MIND YOUR MANNERS

TEST your knowledge of correct social usage on answering the following questions, then checking against the authoritative answers below:

1. Should a person who goes into the ready-to-wear department of a store tell the clerk what size he or she wears?
2. Need there be anything doubtful about a personal shopper who advertises that her service is free to customers?
3. Does it show consideration to a salesperson to ask to see goods when the person looking has no intention of buying?
4. Is a person well-bred who abuses a store's approval privilege?
5. Is it thoughtful of a housewife consistently to choose the noon hour or late afternoon for her shopping?

What would you do if—

You think you have been treated discourteously by a salesperson—

(a) Go straight to the management and report the matter?

(b) Avoid having that person wait on you in the future?

(c) Go home and write a letter to the store reporting the incident?

Amateur Gardner Makes Mistake Of Overcrowding, Landscaper Says

By FUTRELLE McCLAIN

Owner of one of the most spacious and loveliest lawns in Lubbock, Mrs. Clark M. Mullican, 1510 Avenue X, says overcrowding is one of the chief mistakes of an amateur landscape gardener.

Being anxious to obtain beauty as quickly as possible, many new gardeners overlook the importance of giving each shrub and flower proper space and position, she said when interviewed this week.

Bermuda grass has been found more practical for lawns in Lubbock, Mrs. Mullican said, because it doesn't need as much watering as blue grass and other kinds. She uses underground sprinklers because they necessitate less water than hose and sprinkler and save time. In fact a hose and sprinkler would take entirely too much time in her yard, which is approximately 150 x 180 feet. She estimates the cost of watering per month during the five months from May through September, to be from $10-$15. She lets the natural moisture suffice for the shrubs and lawn during the other months.

About Fertilizers

Commercial fertilizers are much better for use on lawns and flowers beds than the common natural fertilizer which is used generally in Lubbock, she said. In the fertilizer used here, there are dandelion seeds which are almost ruining the local lawns. It is hard to keep them weeded out but commercial fertilizer has been found too expensive by most people here, Mrs. Mullican said.

Evergreen shrubs which are easily grown here and which are found around the Mullican place, are Nandina, Mahonia, Jasmine, Cotoneaster, Pyracantha, and Japan Quints. There are many more but these are lovely and adaptable to this soil. There are also Barbary shrubs, green and red, Legustrum, Wax Leaf, cedars, and hordes of others.

Blooming shrubs that are familiar here are the Vitex, Althea, Crepe Myrtle, Butterfly Bush, and others. Of all these evergreen and blooming shrubs, the Nandina and Mahonia are the easiest to get started to growing here, she believes.

Has Many Shrubs

Mrs. Mullican has almost every imaginable shrub and vine growing about her home. The trumpet vine, flowering all summer, grows over the doorway and porch. It mingles with Wisteria vines growing along a fence separating the front lawn from a small private back lawn. Together they form a heavy foliage over the fence almost hedge-like. There is also an ivy vine growing under the front windows. It resembles the wild poison ivy in appearance but it is beautiful and harmless.

Fruit trees, pears, cherries, and plums are found among those around the home. Tall majestic poplars stand sentinel in the background of cedars, elms, and locust. A lovely willow near the front entrance to the house is one of the prettiest in Lubbock. A clump of Shumache on the north side of the house is background for smaller shrubs.

Lawn, trees, and shrubs are kept in trim by Mrs. Mullican and a gardener who helps her once a week. "I couldn't begin to estimate the time I spend working out here," she said. She delights in working among her shrubs and trees and thinks it one of the most pleasant and healthful past times. She does not grow flowers for there isn't space for them. Armor River hedge and other hedges grow rank because of the protection they afford less hardy plants.

Most of the shrubs she gets from local nurseries and nurseries in Dallas. She also has patronized nurseries in New Jersey and Michigan.

Mrs. Mullican is president of the Lubbock Garden club. Next year she hopes that the Garden club will sponsor a beautiful yard contest. "There is a movement now toward beautifying the back yards even to the neglect of the front lawns," she said. Many people in Lubbock are doing this, making their back yards a sort of out-door living room. There is more privacy for lawn parties and more protection for the plants," she said.

McGrady Urges Close Adherence

(By The Associated Press)

BLUE RIDGE, N. C., July 16.—Edward E. McGrady, assistant secretary of labor, urged industrialists and labor unions to stick wholeheartedly to their collective bargaining agreements today.

He blamed "unenlightened" industrialists for part of what some have called labor's "irresponsibility;" but he also called upon labor to build up discipline in its ranks, create "observance at all times of the sacredness of contracts," and do its part to promote production and industrial efficiency.

Talking to the southern conference on human relations in industry, McGrady said:

"When agreements are reached, it will be the responsibility of management to see to it that the individual superintendent and foreman adheres not only in principle, but in action, to the conditions of such collective agreements as are formulated."

McGrady also urged labor to stick by its bargains.

"It will have to establish patience, understanding, cooperation high purpose and straight American ideals in all its relations with management he said.

"It must create discipline among its members, observance at all times of the sacredness of contracts, efficiency in production and cooperation in the elimination of waste."

Big Spring, Hobbs And Hubbers Seen As Baseball Tournament Favorites--But Watch Out For Bolstered Underdogs

Individual prizes, as well as the cash purses, will be awaiting outstanding players in the Seventh Annual Lubbock Invitation baseball tournament, starting tomorrow at 2 o'clock.

The prize committee started functioning yesterday, and every business man or house called upon came across generously with prizes to be awarded for individual feats during the tournament.

Umpires Are Named

One company offered a prize for the "sorriest" umpire during the tournament. Fans, by their booing, will determine winner of this prize. The umps who gets the most boos will receive the prize.

Umpires will be Otis Gunter, Alex Hensley and Edward Hambright. They will alternate during the tournament. Hambright, "released" several weeks ago as Hubber third baseman, was conscripted as relief umpire to serve with the two men who have called practically all of the Lubbock games this year. Gunter, who lives at Slaton, has officiated for several seasons in organized, professional baseball.

Terry & Childress Hardware, Anderson's Jewelry store, Walton's Men's shop, Southern Auto Stores, Mallory's, Texas-New Mexico Utilities company, Sears Roebuck, West Texas Gas company, Sherrod Brothers, Hardware; Goodrich Tire company and the Hub Clothiers yesterday offered personal prizes. The complete list of prizes and their donors will be announced tomorrow.

In checking records and possible strength of the eight clubs entered in the 1937 tournament, it is believed that the Amerada Oilers of Hobbs, the Cosden Oilers of Big Spring and the Hubbers of Lubbock stack up as the teams to beat in the eight-day joust.

Teams Add New Strength

Amerada, loser in three games, winner in one, with the Hubbers this season, will present an improved club, as will nearly every other team in the tournament field. The Ameradas were stronger than usual last Sunday when they knocked off the Hubbers in 11 innings. Everett Gurule, who got the Hubbers out in the closing innings of the last Hobbs-Lubbock game here, will be with the team.

Big Spring, which lost a two-game series here early in the season, is known to have added replacements for weak positions. In addition to fielders and hitters, the club has enlisted the services of a popular pitcher in that circuit, named Beard, who generally pitches for the Coahoma team and who is recognized as one of the best left-handers in the Big Spring area.

The Hubbers will go into the tournament with their regular lineup. Cecil "Bull" Thompson, who pitched for the championship Collegians last year, joined the Hubbers two weeks ago and doubtless will see service during the tournament. Otherwise, the lineup is unchanged. Andy Anderson and Del Coppage will divide catching duties, with one of them playing third base when the other is cathing, unless Bill Holloway, generally recognized as an outfielder, takes over third base when Anderson is catching.

Wooldridge To Pitch

Manager Sport Wooldridge of the Hubbers has vowed to do some winning pitching himself. In three innings against the Ameradas last Sunday, his first mound appearance of the year, he was nicked for four hits and a couple of runs.

"You can say that I'll be on the mound Monday when we start against New Moore," Wooldridge said, "and that I'll be in there after that, because the old arm is feeling frisky."

Jerry Blanchard, Lefty Beans Pair and big Slim Spradlin will be available as pitchers for the Hubbers.

The Ameradas will make their tournament debut Sunday afternoon at 4 o'clock, tangling with the defending champions, the Tip-Top Collegians. It was hinted last night that Berl Huffman, who skippered the Collegians to the tournament championship in a series of surprises and upsets last year, would take the helm again this year. Huffman returned to Lubbock yesterday after a vacation down state, and was in conference most of the day with Jimmy William, sponsor

South American Threatens In Sprint Events As Pan-American Games Get Under Way Thursday At Dallas Exposition

By FELIX R. McKNIGHT

DALLAS, July 16. (AP)—Four of Uncle Sam's top-flight sprinters took charge of the 60-meter trial heats in the first track event of the Pan-American games here tonight, but a Brazilian comet bobbed as a real threat.

Almost left at the starting line in the second heat of the short dash event, Bento Assis of Brazil, dubbed the "Jesse Owens of South America," came with a rush at the finish to wind up at Ben Johnson's shoulder.

Ray Dean of the Olympic club, one of the fastest starters on the American track, beat out Perrin Walker, the National A.A.U., 100-meter king, by a pace in their heat. Jose Acosta of Cuba trailed in third.

Both heats were run in 6.9 seconds.

Little Ruben Bonaficino of Uruguay won a place in the finals tomorrow night by trailing Johnson and Assis.

Jack Weierhause, Stanford University's National A.A.U. 200-meter champion easily won his heat at 23.2, coasting 10 yards ahead of Conrado Rodriguez of Cuba, second, and Jose Sanchez of Colombia.

Lanky Perrin Walker closed a gap and outdistanced Lonnie Hill, Dallas school boy, in the second heat in 22.7 time.

American sports fans, introduced to big-time soccer last night when the Argentina team walloped the United States, 9-1, get ready for the second appearance of the Americans, represented by the highlandes of Trenton, N. J., against the Winnipeg Irish club, Canadian champions.

Final soccer game will be played Sunday night between Argentina and Canada. Total goals scored in the traingular tourney will determine the winner.

Finals in all track and field events, bringing together some of the north and south American nations' brightest stars, will be held tomorrow night. Ten national and world record-holders on the Yankee squad will compete in the finals, featured by the appearance of Glenn Cunningham, master miler; Elroy Robinson and John Woodruff, 800-meters; Earle Meadows, George Varoff and Cornelius Warmerdam, pole vaulters, and others.

Texarkana Liners Go On Strike--- And Are Out!

JACKSONVILLE, July 16. (AP)—The Texarkana Liners of the East Texas League went on a sit-down strike in the fourth inning of a game with Jacksonville here tonight.

Their action caused forfeit of the game to Jacksonville.

The stalemate arose when Manager Bill Windle of Texarkana was ejected by Umpire Ed Keller, who was working behind the plate. The Jax were leading 6 to 1 at the time.

Keller went out to the mound to examine the ball, apparently with the intention of seeing if Pitcher Bill Vandenberg had scored it. Windle objected and Keller waved him out. As the Texarkana manager and first sacker left he instructed his men on the bench to stay where they were.

They did. There was no more ball game. Windle and Vandenberg drew fines.

Red Lynn was hurling for Jax.

WINDLE RESIGNS

TEXARKANA, Ark., July 16. (AP)—R. W. Burnett, owner of the Texarkana East Texas League baseball club, tonight accepted Manager Bill Windle's resignation, effective tomorrow.

Windle will become business manager of the team. Burnett said Eddie Hock, manager of the Monroe Twins of the Cotton States league, would take over managership of the Liners. Hock, he said, would bring several members of the Monroe team with him.

Medalist Bradshaw Passes From City Open; Doherty And Glen Smith Advance

Two more favorites, including THE favorite, fell by the wayside in City Open golf tournament yesterday, leaving two players from Meadowbrook and two from Lubbock Country club to fight it out in today's semi-final battles at Meadowbrook.

Medalist J. K. Bradshaw, a former city champion and until recently recognized as a professional, bowed to young Donald Doherty, second of the golfing Doherty brothers, in an exciting match that attracted quite a gallery. Donald, himself a doubtful professional, strung along with Old Man Par to take out Bradshaw, who shot hurried, nervous golf most of the time. Two down at the turn, Bradshaw gained them both back and the match was all square goin to the 16th. Here, Bradshaw sliced his long drive to the rough, his second, a fine iron shot, went over the green and lodged in the side of a bunker. Bradshaw came out, and on the green, but missed his putt.

Smith Beats Trammell

Doherty was down the middle with a whopping drive, two feet off the green with his iron, and down with his putt to take a clear lead. He birdied the 18th, after Bradshaw again sliced his drive, to win the match by sinking a good-sized putt.

Bradshaw, who qualified with a sizzling 63 and became the heavy favorite, took his defeat philosophically, and congratulated his opponent for shooting cool, calm golf.

The other "upset," a surprise in score more than victor, came when Glen Smith of Country club took out Jack Trammell of Meadowbrook, 4 and 3. Smith, shooting his best brand of golf, finished two under par to defeat Trammell on the 15th when the latter had trouble getting out of high grass.

Trammell's game obviously was off, but it would have required golf considerably better than par to beat Smith yesterday. He used his putter only four times on the front nine, pitching dead to the pin for "gimme" birdies or pars. He kept this up for a couple or three holes on the back side. A grass greens player by habit, Smith fell in rapidly with sand green style, and had himself a nice time.

Brothers May Meet

With Smith and Don Doherty in the semi-finals are Edgar Doherty and W. L. "Cotton" McAfee, who won their quarter-final matches a day ahead of time. McAfee had defeated Weldon Counts, 2 and 1, while the elder Doherty brother defeated Hugh Anderson in a hectic match, marked by argument over a ground rule, 1 up, on Thursday.

There's a strong possibility that the Doherty brothers will meet in the 36-hole final Sunday. Young Donald plays McAfee, while Smith tangles with Edgar Doherty. The latter match is to start at 3 o'clock this afternoon. No time was set for the Doherty-McAfee contest, but it probably will start about the same time. Both matches are expected to attract large galleries.

Wright Kerr and Raymond Marshall reached the semi-final round in the second flight yesterday, joining E. B. Wheelock. The latter had won from O. A. Terry, 2 up, while Kerr defeated W. F. Helwig, 1 up, in Wednesday matches. Raymond Marshall won from Clyde Williams, 5 and 3, yesterday. Jack Hagen and T. E. Patterson were to play in a quarter-final match, but Hagen, it was believed, was out of town. A forfeit probably will be ruled in favor of Patterson, who will meet Kerr today. Marshall plays Wheelock.

Delmar Sears defeated F. D. Brown, 7 and 6, to qualify for the final round in the six-man third flight. Joe Bailey Powers won from Seth Bertram, 1 up, 20 holes, for the other position.

Bihl Beats Bell

In championship flight consolations, Bob Hale meets Garland Allen and Bill DeGarimore plays Joe Bihl. Bihl defeated John Bell, 1 up, 20 holes, yesterday, while Hale won from Don Keithely, 7 and 6, and Allen defeated Bill Hackett, 1 up. DeGarimore previously had defeated J. R. Farmer, 4 and 3.

Herman Patterson vs. W. L. Hale and Bob Crawford versus winner of the Clarence Fox-Sam Parkinson match is the set-up in second flight consolations. Patterson defeated J. G. Keyes, 3 and 2; Hale won from

King Is Ousted In San Angelo Golf Tourney

SAN ANGELO, July 16. (AP)—Rufus King of Wichita Falls, co-favorite with Don Schumacher of Dallas to win the eighth annual San Angelo golf tournament, was ousted by Monte Montgomery of San Angelo in a second round upset today while Dallas' Trans-Mississippi champion continued on his way with devastating 7 and 5 defeats of W. P. Murphy of Brownwood and Obie Bristow of Big Spring.

Schumacher Saturday morning encounters W. K. Powell of San Angelo, a double winner in Mertz Cup play Wednesday, 3 and 2 conqueror of Fred Bedford of Brady, formerly of Dallas, and one-up winner over R. Tucker of San Angelo in first and second round matches.

Billy Coffey Advances

Billy Bob Coffey of Fort Worth, runner-up in the State and West Texas tournaments and a National Open qualifier, defeated W. A. Schmid of Fort Worth, 6 and 5, and Penrose Metcalfe of San Angelo, 2 and 1, to advance to the third round. He will meet H. F. Templeton of San Angelo tomorrow. Templeton defeated J. T. Hammett of Philpeco, another favorite, 5 and 3, in the first round with sub-par golf and ousted Port B. Bludworth of Brownwood in the afternoon divison, 5 and 3.

Montgomery defeated King 3 and 2 to go with a score one under par for the 16 holes. The San Angeloan had beated John Marston of San Antonio one up on the 20th in first round play.

Bill Boyer of Abilene, conqueror of Schumacher last year, will be Montgomery's opponent tomorrow. Boyer ousted W. A. Schmid of Fort Worth 6 and 5 and Shirley Robbins of Big Spring, 5 and 3, in initial rounds. Reuben Albaugh of Dallas beat Hap Massingill of Fort Worth one up in the second round to go into the third division of play against Gene Mitchell of San Angelo, victory two up over his fellow-townsman, Darrell Farmer, in second round strife.

John L. Kayser of Toledo, O., whose hobby is flower gardening, has 160 varieties of blooming iris in his yard.

What's In A Name? Pu-lenty!

YEP, Looney is the name, all right—and in more ways than one!

Did you see the story on the front page of yesterday's Avalanche about Everett F. Looney announcing that he "will not be a candidate for governor", but, instead, "will run for attorney-general regardless of what may, or may not happen?" Well there's a yarn behind it.

Looney, who was one of Governor Allred's bright young men when the latter was attorney-general, has as his opponent in next summer's attorney-general's race not only a host of other bright young men but, what is more important, Lieutenant-Governor Walter Woodul.

From a long range, as Looney well knows, it looks like the attorney-general's race will be decided in August of 1938 between Governor Woodul and the most fortunate of the bright young men. In other words, unless something very untoward happens between now and next July, Woodul is "in the run-off", a year before the primary vote is cast and the last infinitive split on a campaign stump.

The other day the capitol reporters went to Governor Woodul.

"Look here, Walter," the boys said, "you've got to give us a break. You told friends 'way last January that you were running for attorney-general. Since then a rumor has been going rounds that Jimmie will resign as governor to take a federal appointment, which would dump the governor's office in your lap before 1938 campaign time begins. If that happens, what will you do? Surely no governor—even one who succeeded to the office through resignation—can step down and run for attorney-general. It just isn't done. Give us the low-down!"

Not surprised was Governor Woodul. He was ready to talk and he did.

"No matter what happens, boys," said the affable Houstonian, "I'm going to run for attorney-general. You can quote me on that."

It was, of course, a darn good story. The press associations sent it out and the papers—whose editors had been watching the situation for a long time—ran it on Page 1. While it was publicity for Woodul, it was news—and interesting political news at that.

Poor Brother Looney felt very put out over all that publicity going to his opponent—and his most dangerous opponent—so he started cudgeling his brain for a way to "get even". Finally a light dawned upon him! He'd make a similar announcement, attempt to heap ridicule upon his opponent and, at the same time, crash the papers himself.

So Brother Looney, whom no one ever expected to run for governor in '38 and whom very few expect to win the attorney-general's race, called in the press and announced that he would not run for governor, adding a few digs at the Woodul announcement. Sensing a good story—if at the expense of Looney—the press boys sent it out and it, too, landed in a lot of papers.

The difference between the two stories is that the Woodul yarn, although good publicity for him, was news; and the Looney yarn simply showed the way the attorney-general's race already is drifting.

Looney's the name, all right, as we remarked above, in more ways than one!

With Our Contemporaries

"After reading the Lubbock Avalanche for the past few weeks we have decided that every one in that fair city is getting married," says "Who Said What" in the Lamb County Leader. "You can't pick up the Avalanche but what several are getting 'hooked.' After all, June and July are the big months for love."

"Our opinion is," noted W. D. Starcher in the Dickens County Times, "that one housewife in the kitchen can prepare a good dinner in less time than can three or four ladies, as there is less energy spent in talking."

"My Broken promises are as flowerless vases along the ledge of years and I am shaken by attrition when I count the prayers which God has found worthy of fulfillment," Douglas Meador says in the Matador Tribune.

The One-Minute Sermon

Verily, verily, I say unto you, Except a corn of wheat fall in to the ground and die, it abideth alone: but if it die, it bringeth forth much fruit.

He that loveth his life shall lose it; and he that hateth his life in this world shall keep it unto life eternal.

If any man serve me, let him follow me; and where I am, there shall also my servant be: if any man serve me, him will my Father honor.—St. John, VII, 24 through 26.

THE MYSTERIOUS FLAME

On the shores of the Gulf of Pamphylia, near the village of Delik Tache in Turkish Asia Minor, a mysterious fire has been spouting from a hole in the ground for the last 2000 years. The soil does not quake, there is no eruption of volcanic matter—only the brilliant flame, which has been the object of religious veneration.

CAROLEE COLTER, heroine, prospector's daughter.

STUART BLAKE, eastern "dude" tourist; Carolee's lover.

HENRY COLTER, prospector.

PAUL AND SILAS COLTER, prospector's sons.

NINA BLAKE, Stuart's sister.

* * *

Yesterday: A sheriff's posse is organized and moves up into the mountains to find Paul Colter. Carolee confesses to Stuart that her father thinks he is connected with Paul's disappearance.

CHAPTER XII

On the day that the sheriff's posse went into the mountain, a correspondent from a Phoenix daily learned of the disappearance of Paul Colter. Then the journalistic wheels began to spin.

Headlines on Superstition are as recurrent as the seasons in Arizona, and most of them have to do with missing men. Each time someone gets lost there the whole legend of the Lost Dutchman Mine is rehashed and embellished, and the public thrills to it again and again. Love of gold is second only to love of women, and nobody knows that better than a newspaper editor.

Reporters came to Superstition Lodge and wanted to join a searching party. That suited Stuart Blake. It meant action, and this energetic young man was anxious to be doing something. The papers said that more than 100 persons gathered to join the second party, but officers stepped in at that point and canceled the plans. Too many untrained men scrambling over Superstition, they declared, could do more harm than good, especially in blotting out possible trails of the missing Paul. A few experienced outdoorsmen and a dog, also possibly some good observers in an airplane, were more useful. The crowds went on back home to read the papers. Stuart felt an urge to be near Carolee and watched constantly for her cliff signal.

* * *

She met him on the second day, 24 hours after the sheriff had gone in, but they talked only a little while.

"Mother is worrying constantly," she explained, "and I mustn't leave her long. She hoped the men would be back with news last night."

"No sign of them?" asked Stuart.

"No. Nothing."

"Your dad will know about where Paul would be, because of the map your men were using. That ought to help the sheriff, and with the dog they'll surely find something today."

He gave her several copies of the newspapers about the affair, and rode a mile or two with her along the lower reaches of the mountain. They were careful this time, however, to note landmarks and stick to a more open route, in order not to lose themselves again.

When they had finally separted to return to their homes, Carolee felt an inward glow of satisfaction; just being with Stuart Blake had comforted her, eased the worry over her missing brother. She had confidence in Paul's ability to take care of himself anyway. She hummed songs and talked sweet talk to Chieftain, whom she petted more than is any horse's due, but that's the way she felt. Thus was she musing, day-dreaming, when her reverie was interrupted by a distinct groan.

* * *

She did not immediately see its source. It could have been an animal. But then it was repeated, and unquestinably it was human. Someone seemed trying to attract attention, with odd moans and noises of suffering.

Heart pounding, Carolee called out, "What is it?" and went in the direction of the sound.

Some 50 feet away she found a woman on the ground, an Indian squaw obviously suffering.

"O-o-oh!" cried Carolee, dismounting at once.

The woman looked pleadingly and mumbled something. Carolee couldn't undestand, but she began a hurried examination. Water from her saddle canteen was gulped and the woman's gratitude was obvious if unspoken. The Indiana indicated that her pain was in her leg, and Carolee soon discovered that the leg was broken.

The squaw could speak but little English.

"When did you get hurt? Did you fall?"

"Sick," the Indian mumbled. "Sick." It was her only way of saying she needed assistance.

Carolee took off her light sweater and make a pillow on the rocky ground for the red woman's head. As easily as she could, she straightened the broken limb; it appeared to be in a terribly painful position. Moving it must have been almost unbearable, but beyond her increasing panting the woman gave no sign. Carolee was afraid she had fainted when her eyes closed, and so she bathed her forehead gently to revive her.

Carolee thought of trying to splint the leg, but realized she didn't quite know how. Superstition Lodge wasn't more than half an hour's ride away; it was best that she go for help. She tried to make this decision clear with words and signs, and she left the canteen at the squaw's side.

* * *

Reporters at the Lodge were almost glad that the Indian woman had suffered a fall. It gave them something to report while waiting f news of the man hunt. Jerry Lynch, a writer on a Phoenix daily, and his somewhat envious competitors from the opposition, "Kid" Jones, each carried cameras and each promptly took candid snaps of Carolee after she had explained the need for help, and they rode back to the injured squaw with an improvised stretcher.

Carolee stayed with the Indian woman until she was taken in hand by her own Red friends, the Apache basket weavers and potters who stayed near the Lodge. They refused offers of white medical aid.

"We know how," one leader of the group assured the whites. "Long ago learn broke arm, leg. Tie with reed, make song."

Maybe the songs helped, Carolee conceded. At any rate she stayed near the old soul for an hour or more, petting her and comforting her with what help she could. The squaw eyed Carolee's gay ribbon wor to control blond hair in the wind, and Carolee gave it to her. Then her eyes shone in pleasure in spite of her pain.

"She say she hunt clay with her burro," one Indian translated, "and break leg in fall. Burro go off. She die there, but white girl come. She never forget."

The reporter lads missed none of this.

Jerry Lynch espe ially "interviewed" Carolee, took no pains to conceal his admiration. Stuart Blake, himself solicitous, noted that salient fact, and Carolee saw that he noted it. Something inside her—the same dependable something that Nature puts deep in every girl—told her that this was a healthy situation, inasmuch as Mr. Stuart Blake had shown definite romantic interest in her. She did nothing, therefore, to discourage Jerry Lynch.

Later, when Stuart rode back part way with her up the trail toward her home, he as especially attentive. In spite of the impending tragedy in her family she was made happy by this.

"I think he almost wanted to propose!" she told herself when he had turned back. "And he would've because Paul is missing."

It occurred to her that the two brothers seemed always coming between her and Stuart, even when they were away.

The News Behind The News

WASHINGTON
By Ray Tucker

WASHINGTON has become a midsummer madhouse as a result of the controversies over the Supreme court and the Lewis-Green labor conflict. They have provoked the craziest friendships and enmities since Franklin D. Roosevelt crossed the Hudson river more than four years ago.

The Republican National committee, temporarily headed by the efficient William R. Castle jr., is writing and mimeographing some of the Democratic Senators' most vicious speeches against the Roosevelt court program. It is also cooperating with A. F. of L. President William Green in left-handed and covert attacks on the now-you-see-it-and-now-you-don't White House alliance with John L. Lewis. Frank Gannett, Mr. Borah's vice-presidential mate in the G.O.P. pre-convention contest a year ago, is financing distribution of millions of Wheeler-Burke-McCarran attacks on their party President.

It sounds silly, but from a practical political standpoint, it isn't. The Democrats' ace publicist, "Charley" Michelson, is running the court show with the President as stage director. The Wheelerites can get no help from the party's paid headline expert. So they have crossed the street and linked arms with ancient political foes. Whether or not the union becomes permanent depends on circumstances.

* * *

RECORD: You will soon read a historical document designed to prove that no Congressional politico has met defeat because of public wrath over his participation in filibuster. What you won't know is that it was written by William Hard, the G.O.P.'s publicist, to revive anti-court Democrats who fear vengeance at the polls if they resort to obstructive tactics.

This documentary evidence of a midnight marriage between Republicans and block-that-Roosevelt Democrats will recount the fate of statesmen who dared to stall for time against former Chief Executives. It hits directly at the key thrust of senatorial White Housers, for they intend to smear the opposition as deliberate malingerers.

Mr. Hard's study proves conclusively that few of the famous filibusterers paid with their political heads for their parliamentary stubbornness. Most of them—"Old Bob" La Follette, Reed Smoot and Woodrow Wilson's "willful twelve"—lived to a ripe old political age. Either they died in harness or, like Messrs. Smoot and George Moses of New Hampshire, they hung on until the anti-Hoover wave engulfed them in 1932. Thus this Republican research—and revelation—may hold in line enough wavering Democrats to defeat the President.

* * *

PROGRAM: The No. 3 man of President Roosevelt's new "braintrust"—Assistant Attorney General Robert H. Jackson—recently shocked a private audience of trade association executives with a declaration of war on Big Business, even though it is legal.

Mr. Jackson, who has the White House ear when "Tommie" Corcoran and "Bennie" Cohen aren't monopolizing it, announced that the Roosevelt administration is determined to break up vast units of production, distribution and retailing. He spoke, he said, as a former resident of a small community—Jamestown, N. Y. He recalled how absentee owners and directors inspired with no community spirit or responsibility managed the factories, the banks, the chain stores—and ruled the lives of the workers by remote control. He characterized such a situation as "unhealthy."

Original apostle of this philosophy in the Roosevelt household is shy, unpublicized Ben Cohen. He dins it into the presidential ear on every occasion—which is often. The laws he has framed for the head man—social, ecopomic, political—would bring back the horse-and-buggy age. He has apparently sold the same idea to Mr. Jackson who, as federal law officer in charge of anti-trust prosecution, occupies a post where he can do something about his pet peeve—Business Bigness. And he will within the next few months.

* * *

REVERSE: The N.L.R.B.'s seemingly most trivial ruling has provoked more criticism than decisions affecting millions of employes and billions of dollars. It involves such a human weakness as tipping the waiter, the hat check girl or the taxicab driver.

In ordering a famous Washington hostelry to restore two waiters allegedly discharged for union activity, the government agency stipulated that they must be given back wages—and tips. Though the decision passed almost unnoticed, it means that the United States government has officially recognized the tipping system, surrounded it with the cloak of official righteousness and classified tips as a form of wages.

The decision apparently irritated the public, for it has drawn more protests than any other action in the board's brief history. It angered employes whose regular wages are fixed far below subsistence levels in the expectation that they will be supplemented by handouts from the customers. It also offended the eating and travelling public by underwriting the polite form of graft known as gratuities. It's even betting that the ruling will soon be reversed by the board's bright but young members.

CAUTION: G-Man J. Edgar Hoover's rotund face is red. He now knows what it is to be a supposedly superlative sleuth without honor or recognition in his own department. And he doesn't like it.

Few weeks ago the secretary of Brien McMahon, assistant attorney-general, lost several pay checks which had accumulated in her desk drawer. Mr. McMahon called in the Treasury Secret service, which has jurisdiction in any case involving government obligations, and within a few hours they solved the crime through simple resort to a checkup of handwriting. As usual, they operated so quietly and efficiently that the story of a Homer Cummings employe robbed within the halls of the Department of Justice didn't even creep into headlines.

The head G-Man heard of the crime belatedly, and offered the services of his secret police, but by that time it had been solved. Unofficial explanation around the D of J is that smart Mr. McMahon, remembering the G-men's violent tactics in New York and Topeka, was afraid his office might be burnt up or shot up if he called in the detectives on the building's fifth floor.

NEW YORK
By James McMullin

THE solution of an acute labor problem in New York may have national consequences. The Transport Workers union—militant C.I.O. organization—seeks exclusive bargaining representation for employes of Brooklyn-Manhattan Transit (subway system) via an election.

Hitch is that B.-M. T. motormen have belonged to the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers for years, and the brotherhood has not intention of being frozen out by an "upstart" union. This jurisdictional squabble is packed with dynamite Federal, state and city officials concerned with labor matters see only one possibility of a peaceful answer—designation of the motormen as a collective bargaining unit separate from a other D.-M. T. employes and hence not involved in the election.

The possibilities of such a precedent for splitting workers in a single corporation into two or more bargaining units divided on craft lines are easy to visualize The straw would be eargerly grasped by the A. F. of L. —and by big time industrialists determined to restrict the growth of the C.I.O.

CREDIT: The steady rise in bank loans and discounts and the corresponding decline in bank security investments is significant in two ways: commercial credit is expanding at a pace which will bear watching and the demand for high grade bonds in contracting. There are no signs yet that credit expansion is getting out of hand and becoming inflationary—but it might with a little further acceleration. Evidence also accumulates that the bond market has seen its peak.

As previously noted in this column, a large proportion of the increase in bank credit is accounted for by loans to carry unusually heavy inventories. Another important but unpublicized factor in the expansion is the undistributed profits tax.

A number of corporations paid such generous dividends in 1936 to escape taxation that they have found themselves short of working capital this year. Business improvement for 1937 was overestimated in many cases. The obvious remedy for this condition was a bank loan wherever the corporation's credit was good for it. Most of this type of credit will be repaid out of earnings but some will be transmuted into bond or preferred stock issues after a few months.

New Provisions Are Being Written For Labor Legislation

WASHINGTON, July 16. (AP)—House labor committee members disclosed today attempts are being made to write 35-hour week and 60-cents-an-hour minimum wage provisions into the administration's labor standards bill.

The committee will vote on the amendments Wednesday.

As approved by the senate labor committee, the measure would permit a proposed labor standards board to fix minimum wages not higher than 40 cents an hour and a work-week of not less than 40 hours.

TARZAN'S QUEST No. 6

By Edgar Rice Burroughs

The storm-buffeted plane droned on uncertainly. Prince Sborov, his face overcast with greenish pallor, poked his head into the pilot's compartment. "Are we in any danger, Brown?" he called. "Shut up!" shouted the pilot, "I ain't got time to bother with you!"

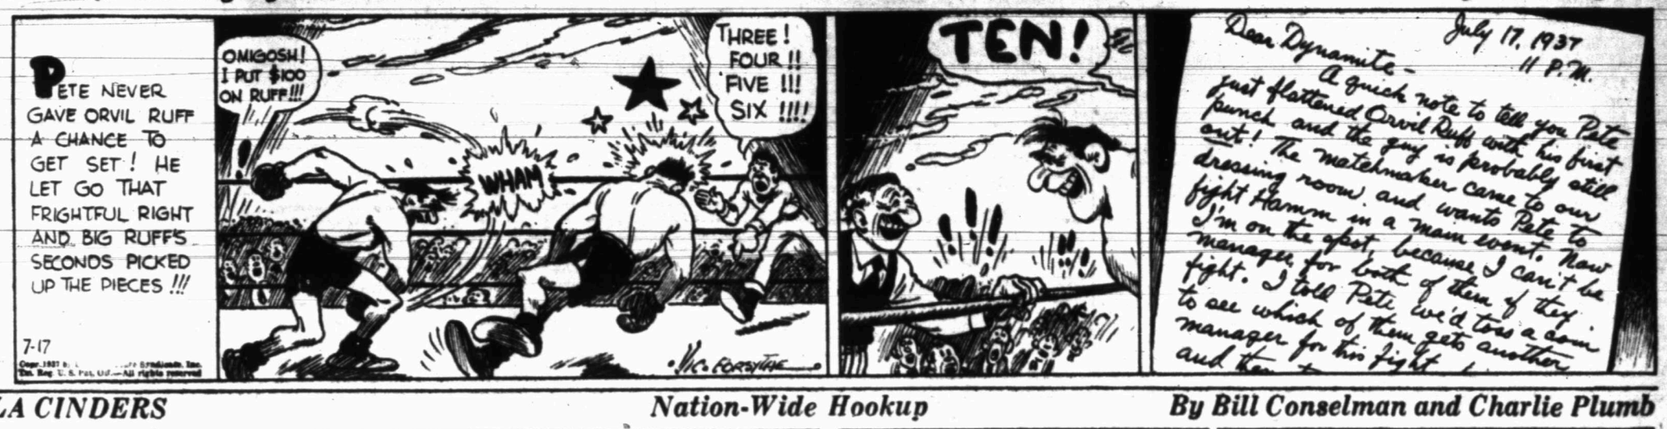

"Sh-sh-sh!" cautioned Tibbs, Prince Sborov's valet. "you shouldn't speak to 'is 'ighness like that." "Nuts!" snapped Brown. As the prince staggered back to his seat, the plane lurched suddenly. The princess screamed. Annette, her French maid, fainted.

Jane rose and traveled the pitching aisle to the pilot's compartment. "Tibbs," she said quietly, "you go back and take care of the princess and Annette. I'll sit up here." She turned smilingly to the flier. "Having real trouble with the ship aren't you, Brown?"

"Yes, miss," the worried pilot answered. "I didn't want to tell those nuts back there, but we're in a spot. Compass's gone haywire. The gas is running low, and there just ain't no place to land in this jungle. I wouldn't give two bits for our chances!"

New Field Trip To Start Today

Dr. and Mrs. R. A. Studhalter, who returned Thursday night with a party from Gallinas canyon in New Mexico, where they have been doing field work in botany and biology, will leave again this morning with an advanced class for the Pacific Northwest.

Plant geography, a course carrying six semesters credit, will be studied on a field tour covering 10 states and two Canadian provinces. Plants will be studied in regions with less than 10 inches of rainfall and in areas with more than 100 inches annually. Their growth will be observed in regions from below sea level to regions far above the timber line.

To Visit National Parks

National parks will be points of interest, not primarily because of their scenic beauty, but because of their natural state of preservation. For the same reasons the national forests will be ideal for plant observation, said Studhalter.

National parks included in the field tour are Yellowstone, Rocky Mountain, Teton Mountain, and Glacier. Lake Louise is on the itinerary and at Banff three parks will be visited. Other points of interest on the route are Spokane, Wash., Vancouver, B. C., Victoria, B. C., Portland, Ore., Twin Falls, Ida., Salt Lake City, Utah, and Mesa Verde, N. M.

The class in which 9 had registered Friday will return to Lubbock August 24.

Baseball Tourney

of the Collegian team.

The tournament lid blows off at 2 o'clock tomorrow when Frank Larkin's Tahoka club meets Manager Herman Chesshir's Brownfield entry several years ago.

West's Brother To Play

Tahoka and Lubbock ball clubs and fans used to clash in one of the hottest baseball rivalries the South Plains has ever known. Frank Larkin, who has been playing professional ball for the last three seasons, and who before that pitched and first based the Tahokas against Lubbock, has returned and will skipper the Tahoka entry, which is certain to produce its part of tournament color. Larkin, like the other skippers, has lined up additional help, and the team should not be taken lightly. Tahoka fans, who haven't begun to boil over baseball so far this season, are expected to turn out in large numbers. Larkin is trying to revive the game in the Lynn county capital, and he needs the support of the townsmen.

Brownfield has had its troubles this season, but has won more games than it has lost. Combining with the Terry county seat team will be players from Wellman's team, considered as strong, if not stronger than, the Brownfield club.

Playing with Brownfield will be T. West, young brother of the popular Sammy West, St. Louis Browns outfielder. West has had league experience in the Wichita Valley League, and has played several seasons of good ball. Scouts who attend the tournament are certain to center their observation on young West.

New Moore No Set-Up

Vic Herring, tall, red-headed chunker well known to South Plains fans, is one of Brownfield's four pitchers.

Only one game is scheduled for Monday, but that should be worth coming out to see. The Lubbock Hubbers, hard luck club of the 1936 tournament, will be out there battling New Moore, a tournament contender in 1935, and it'll be Manager Sport Wooldridge of the Hubbers against New Moore's ace chunker in the mound battle.

New Moore will be a tough team to get out. Several players of Lamesa, who now play with the Punkin Center club, have "thrown in" with New Moore, which plays a lot of baseball, and their presence will add considerable strength. Bailey "Boots" White, popular Lamesa player of a few years back who has played in the Central League and the West Texas New Mexico league since then, is expected to be with New Moore, as well as several other former Lamesa players.

The second round of the tournament begins Tuesday, losers of Monday's first game coming back at 2 o'clock Tuesday. In the second game of Tuesday's double header, the Cosden Oilers of Big Spring will tangle with Fred Rich's Wolfforth Wolves. Those acquainted with Lubbock tournament baseball know that Freddie generally has a club in the running. This year he has been more or less inactive in baseball, but as tournament time rolled around he started rounding up his old hands, rallying the fans of Wolfforth to his support, and you may look for anything to happen when Wolfforth's Wolves are on the field.

NEW ORLEANS REPORT

NEW ORLEANS, July 16. (AP) — A rally from a lower start gave way to renewed selling in cotton today and at the close the market was steady at net declines of 7 to 8 points.

The July position expired at noon 12.03, or a net gain of 9 points.

Execution of overnight selling orders and continuation of the heavy liquidation which characterized yesterday's session were responsible for an opening decline of 9 to 13 points. Recent sellers soon began taking profits and although some months made new lows for the movement later, the market in general rallied under the demand.

For most of the day prices were on the upgrade but in final trading renewed selling asserted itself and active positions drifted lower. Oct. closed at 12.02, Dec. at 12.04, Jan. 12.05, March at 12.11, and May at 12.14. Spots were 7 points lower with middling at 12.37.

Weather conditions continued ideal for the crop with very little moisture being shown by the weather map in the cotton growing region. Temperatures were normal or above which served to discourage any speculative sentiment based on possible weevil damage.

NEW YORK REPORT

NEW YORK, July 16. (AP)—Further slight losses were registered in cotton early today under renewed liquidation and following midday rallies on covering, the market again eased toward the close.

October which had recovered from 11.98 @12.14 reacted to 12.02 at the close. Final prices were 3 to 9 points net lower.

The market opened 6 to 18 points lower under Wall Street and far eastern selling in a continuation of the liquidation movement that had gotten underway late yesterday.

Favorable weather reports from the South and quieter conditions in the cotton goods markets influenced sentiment somewhat, but support appeared below the 12 cent level and as pressure tapered off prices rallied on a moderate trade and scattering demand.

July contracts expired at noon at 11.91 after having sold off to 11.80 or 28 points net lower in the early trading under liquidation promoted by the circulation of notices.

AVERAGE PRICE

NEW ORLEANS, July 16. (AP)—The average price of middling spot cotton at 10 southern markets today was 12.33 cents a pound; for the past 30 days 12.42 cents a pound.

STOCKS IRREGULAR IN SLOW TRADING

NEW YORK, July 16. (AP)—Shifting price winds lifted and lowered stocks at frequent intervals in today's market.

U. S. Steel led a push at the start but fell when selling in Chrysler dropped this motor leader more than 2 points and brought sympathetic offerings in other departments.

"Big steel" again found support in the final hour and reached for its peak level of the day above 117, only to fall back for a net loss of ⅛ of a point at 115⅞ when a scarcity of bids developed.

Dealings were slow throughout with transfers amounting to 704,280 shares compared with 737,060 yesterday. The Associated Press average of 60 stocks was off .2 of a point at 67.5.

Chief topic of the boardrooms, and a retarding buying element, brokers said, was the president's nnouncement of his intention to push the court bill fight to a finish. This analysis pointed out, meant a possibly long drawn-out session of congress.

On the other hand trading sentiment was buoyed to a certain extent by a fresh batch of corporation earnings statements showing business recovery was still on the upswing in the second quarter.

CHICAGO REPORT

CHICAGO, July 16. (AP)—Excited buying, that overwhelmed the wheat trade today, swept prices upward to maximum net gains of 5¾ cents a bushel, reaching topmost peaks since 1929.

Definite official announcement that because of huge drouth damage, Canada will have but little wheat for export from this year's crop, gave particular impetus to the purchase stampede. Adding to the flurry were reports of alarming spread of black rust on both sides of the Canadian border.

At the close, despite late profit-taking on a big scale, Chicago wheat futures were 3¼ to 3½ cents higher than yesterday's finish, July 1.27¾@1.28, Sept. $1.28¼@1.28⅜, Dec. $1.29⅝@1.29⅞, corn ¼ to 1⅛ up, July $1.28@1.28⅛, Sept. 1.13⅝@1.13¾, Dec. 81@81⅛, oats showing ⅜ to ½ advance, Sept. 37⅞, and rye 2¼ to 5 cents bulge, Sept. 89. The outcome in provisions was unchanged to 12 cents dearer.

Chicago July delivery of wheat led the skyrocketing of values, soaring to $1.29⅞ a bushel, up 5¾ cents overnight.

Among the factors contributing to the jumps of wheat prices were unconfirmed reports that the Canadian government wheat board had entirely disposed of its holdings.

Armies Mobilizing

July 7, only men of Japan's North China garrison and the Chinese 29th army have been involved. The 29th army, with two divisions in the Peiping area, is only nominally subject to Nanking's orders.

Local clashes today and yesterday between small Chinese groups and Japanese moving by railway and roadway to concentrations around Peiping emphasize the prospects of much larger operations.

Peace Negotiations Continued

Peace negotiations at Tientsin continued without agreement but convinced Chinese that Japan, gathering a formidable force in the Peiping-Tientsin region, has large politico-military objectives in view.

Foreign military attaches believed Japan had some 6,500 troops around Peiping and about 15,000 in North China.

There were many versions of the demands Japan has made at Tientsin—none of them official—but all agreed that the Japanese are demanding virtual severance of the north from the rest of China.

New Low Tax Rate

present rate of $1.12. The fact that the county rate is only 50 cents was credited by Bryan with having kept the combined rate in Lubbock among the lowest in the state.

Leaders Favor Reduction

Possibility that the state rate may be reduced, according to tax authorities here, results from published statements attributed to Governor James V. Allred and State Comptroller George H. Sheppard that they will favor a reduction in the present state tax rate for school purposes. The two comprise a majority of the automatic tax board, of which Charlie Lockhart, state treasurer, is the third member.

Bryan explained that the present state rate is made up of three items, which are: schools, 20 cents on $100; Confederate pensions, 7 cents, and ad valorem, 35 cents. Pension and ad valorem rates are now as high as they may be set. School rates might be increased to 35 cents. However, should the school rate be cut, as indicated, it inevitably will mean that the state rate as a whole will be lower. This will mean a lower combined rate for property on which the county assessor-collector makes collections, Bryan said.

Bryan also reported that June tax collections were well above average for Lubbock county, the total being $25,524.37, of which $12,054.86 was for the county and $13,469.51 was for the state. Of the collections, $20,955.32 were current taxes, an unusually high figure attributed by Bryan to the fact that many farmers have cashed in on their wheat crop.

In speaking of his work, he said he has completed his part in "Breezing Along" starring Buddy Rogers, and will start another picture soon with Edward Arnold. However, a minor injury suffered by Arnold caused a postponement.

From Mangum he will go to Saratoga, N. Y., for scenes in "Saratoga," the show in which Jean Harlow was working when she became fatally ill. He said she had completed her close-ups and that her "second" will complete the show. Incidentally, the show is booked by the theaters here for Aug. 15, 16, and 17, Crites said.

A native of Oklahoma, the actor, "a regular fellow," has been on the stage several years and on the screen a comparatively short time. Not many years ago he was a cotton chopper. In addition to his screen career, he spent about 7 years in vodville, tentshowing and playing at dances.

He told theater men here he never had seen the 20-minute short, "Sound Defects" in which he was starred as a hick town announcer. He asked how the crowds here reacted toward it when it was shown several days before "Mountain Music."

He consented to "do" his imitations here when urged by a group of admirers at a drug store at Tech. Another brother is expected to enroll at Tech in the fall semester, he said.

On the whole, however, he has found the office of vice president very pleasant. He does not think, as some have suggested, the duties should be changed. For an example, he should have more power.

In his opinion, the writers of the Constitution arranged a pretty good set-up.

Relief From Heat Is Felt Here Friday

A maximum temperature of 100 degrees, registered at the main line station of the West Texas Gas company, yesterday produced no complaints from residents of this section, in fact it was welcomed as relief from an extenedd heat wave that had sent the mercury to a climax of 109 degrees Thursday.

Likewise temperatures registered by other official thermometers fell several degrees below corresponding temperatures of previous days.

Coroner's Jury Sees Films Of Memorial Day Rioting

CHICAGO, July 16. (AP)—A coroner's jury saw motion pictures of the Memorial day steel strike riot today and heard the photographer, Orlando Lippert, testify "the rioting was undoubtedly precipitated by rocks thrown into police lines by the strikers."

Lippert gave his testimony in a Paramount screening room, just before the film was run off at standard speed, in slow motion and as still pictures. His testimony was a surprise, inasmuch as Coroner Frank J. Walsh previously had adjourned the inquest over the week-end.

The riot was a brief but bloody encounter on a plain near the Republic Steel corporation's grand crossing plant in South Chicago. Ten men lost their lives and more than 100 persons were injured.

Lippert said he recorded only part of the battle, because he was taking other scenes when it started. He testified that agents of the La Follette senate civil liberties committee deleted some scenes before the film was shown to the committee.

The South Carolinian, generally regarded as a congressional spokesman for the president until a few months ago, would say no more. However, it was common knowledge at the capitol that it is his intention to support Harrison.

Although the court bill fight was admittedly a determining factor in swinging many allegiances in the leadership contest it was hardly expected that the voting, when the Democratic caucus meets next Wednesday, would be strictly along those lines.

Personal friendships were expected to play a prominent part. Old friends of Harrison, a veteran of the senate, and sticklers for the rights of seniority were generally expected to line up with the Mississippian.

Use facilities at Mackenzie State park will be inspected today by James F. Kieley of Washington, D. C., senior associate recreational planner of the National Park service which is supervising Civilian Conservation corps development work at the park.

Kieley expressed particular interest in the Mackenzie park because of the record established by that area last year when a preliminary survey made by the service indicated it was the most widely used of all Texas state parks.

The Washington visitor will go from here today to the Palo Duro Canyon State park, near Amarillo, and then will go into Oklahoma City to confer with Herbert Maier, regional officer, and other National Park service officials. Mrs. Kieley is accompanying him.

Two Lubbock Men Are Charged In Forgery Complaint Here

Two Lubbock men yesterday were charged in the justice court of Walter Davies in connection with the alleged making of and attempting to pass a $20.15 check on a Lubbock bank bearing the assertedly forged name of S. D. Pate.

Ernest Harvey, about 21, resident of the New Hope community, was charged with making a "false instrument in writing purporting it to be act of" Pate. The check was made payable to W. T. Peal.

Harvey will be transferred here from Tahoka on completion of a jail sentence assessed in Lynn county on a plea of guilty of a charge of theft under $50, said officers of the sheriff's department.

C. A. Denny, 26, of Lubbock was charged with attempting to pass as true the same check, officers said. Upon arraignment before Davies, Denny waived examining trial and bond was set at $750, binding him over to grand jury investigation. He posted bond.

The complaints were sworn to by Bill Mabray of the police department before Victor H. Lindsey, assistant district attorney.

The astronomer, Purbach, made the first printed almanac. It appeared in 1450.

Fire's Loss And Origin Unknown

Origin of a fire, causing damage to three businesses and buildings in the 1000-block of Broadway estimated at several thousands of dollars, last night still had not been determined.

Damages from the fire, which happened early Friday morning, probably will not be determined for several days, said Ford C. Benham, representing Fire Companies Adjustment bureau, a national organization. More definite statements regarding the loss will be made following the arrival today of a salvage man representing Underwriters Salvage company of Dallas and a resultant inventory.

The blaze was believed by investigators to have originated at Grollman's at 1015 Broadway, spread north and diagonally to the northwest into the Barrier-Durham building at 1017, causing damage to building and stock, and caused smoke damage to Bowen's Drug store at 1021-B.

Benham said approximately $100,000 in insurance was carried on the three buildings and the stocks. Further investigations and inventories must be taken, however, before the definite fire and stock loss can be determined, he said.

A "close call" to the three establishments west of the firewall separating Woolworth's and Grollman's was nipped by quick work of the fire department.

Fire Chief W. E. Twitty said all fire equipment in the city rolled to the blaze at "straight up 2 o'clock." In 18 minutes, after firemen had chopped a hole of six feet square in the roof of the Grollman building and checked the diagonal spread of flame toward the northwest and allowed smoke to lift so that department personnel could "go into the buildings under the fire," the imminent aspect of the conflagration began to disappear.

"Not more than 1,000 gallons of water was put on the fire," said Chief Twitty.

The E. M. Jones estate owns the Barrier-Durham building, Dr. J. T. Hutchinson the Grollman structure.

The fire chief said he could not "definitely say what caused the blaze. It could have started from one of a dozen reasons." Fire department personnel, however, said the blaze "originated near the ceiling near where old wiring was and its path followed the direction of the wiring into the other buildings."

Tax Rate To Be Set Next Week

(By The Associated Press)

AUSTIN, July 16.—The automatic tax board probably will set this year's state ad valorem tax rate early next week.

The board had indicated it would reduce the school rate from 20 to around 17 cents on the $100 valuation. Its members, however, were being flooded with protests from persons connected with the public schools.

Robert S. Calvert of the comptroller's department said the statistical compilations which the board must consider in arriving at the levy would be completed by Monday or Tuesday.

Property valuation reports had been received from more than 90 per cent of the state's counties and others were expected tomorrow and Monday. Officials said valuations would show a "fair increase."

Approximately 80 per cent of the annual corn crop of the United States is used as fodder for beef, pork, and poultry.

Leading Rail Lines Showing Good Gains

NEW YORK, July 16. (AP)—Four of the nation's leading railroads reported today substantially increased net income for the first five months of this year compared with a year ago and a fifth prominent system showed a sizeable reduction in net loss for the period.

A general expansion in industrial activity, improved agricultural outlook together with a rise in carloadings have brightened the carrier's prospects since the first of the year.

Atchison Topeka & Santa Fe railway showed net income of $484,834 or 39 cents a share on the 5 per cent preferred compared with a net loss of $2,815,955 last year.

Missouri Pacific showed net loss for the period of $4,797,331 against net loss of $5,796,415 last year.

The other three roads reporting increases were: Pennsylvania railroad, Erie Railroad system and Southern railway.
