From Fulton City Council

Ray Patterson Resigns

By Eddie Bradley
Citing "illness and the fact that I will be leaving Fulton shortly" as his reasons for resigning, Alderman Ray Patterson submitted his letter of resignation to the Fulton City Council at its regular meeting on Tuesday, June 10.

The other council members expressed regret at his having to leave and then passed a motion to accept the resignation, but the acceptance would only become effective the day he moved away from Fulton.

In other action, James Metzger was reelected to be Mayor Pro Tem.
Mayor L.E. Casterline reported that County Commissioners Spriegel and Owens had agreed that the county would furnish pipe for street signs in Fulton.

Casterline also reported that inspectors with the State Insurance Board had requested the use of City Hall for a workshop. This would last about three months. Barring any unforeseen problems, the council agreed the use was all right.

Receipts for May totaled $6,150 and included $98 interest on Certificates of Deposit; $4,404 for road taxes; $675 for property taxes and $973 for sales tax. Disbursements added up to $959.

MAN INJURED IN ONE-CAR ACCIDENT

Jerry Alton Beavers, age 33, was injured in this accident on the southbound lane of Highway 35 North, near the Duck Inn Restaurant. A witness said the car was weaving all over the road and almost hit several others before smashing into a concrete culvert, spinning and then doing a flip. The incident occurred on Thursday, June 12, at about 11:50 a.m. Beavers' vehicle was the only one involved. He was taken to Lyman-Roberts Hospital for examination of head and leg injuries.

Reverend Renfro Is New United Methodist Pastor

Rev. Barrett Renfro is the new Pastor at the First United Methodist Church in Rockport.

Rev. Renfro, who moved to Rockport after five years as pastor of St. Stephen's United Methodist Church in San Antonio, was born in Denton and lived most of his early childhood in East Texas.

He graduated from Turner High School in Carrollton, and in 1953 received a degree in Psychology from North Texas State University. In 1956 he earned his Master of Theology degree from Perkins School of Theology at Southern Methodist University, and in 1972, completed his masters in Urban Studies from Trinity University in San Antonio.

Rev. Renfro's first churches were student appointments in the North Texas Conference. In 1955 while still in seminary, he was appointed to a full time charge in Caddo Mills. He was Minister to Youth at West University Methodist Church in Houston from 1957 to 1960, and from 1960 to 1963 was the Pastor at the First Methodist Church in Tenaha.

In 1963, Rev. Renfro was minister of Education in Harlingen, and in 1966 became Minister of Programs at Laurel Heights United Methodist Church in San Antonio.

Between 1970 and 1975, he served two combined appointments, Campus Minister at San Antonio College and Director of the Metro Mission Board of San Antonio.

Most recently, he has served as Chairperson of the San Antonio District Council on Ministries and presently is Chairperson of the Board of Discipleship of the Southwest Texas Conference.

For several years Rev. Renfro has been aligned with the Ecumenical Center for Religion and Health at the Southwest Medical Center. There he studied pastoral counseling, supervised students, led workshops and counseled on a referral basis.

Clinic Open Through Noon Hour

Rockport's Enterprise Medical Clinic will be open through the noon hour now that two doctors are on the staff.

Dr. Curtis Kovacs officially joined the staff of the clinic Monday, June 2, and has announced that the clinic will be open from 8:30 a.m. through 5:30 p.m. Mondays through Fridays.

Clinic facilities are on call before and after regular hours and on weekends, Dr. Kovacs said.

Dr. Fred Warren has been staff doctor at the clinic since it opened in August, 1979.

Proposed Lamar Water Increase Suspended

A proposed increase in water rates in Lamar has been suspended 120 days counting from June 1.
The suspension was ordered by the General Council of the Public Utilities Commission of Texas following a prehearing conference before the Commission in late May.

The board also set a final hearing on the rate increase request -- being made by Lamar Water Supply Corporation -- for 9 a.m. Monday, July 21, at the Utility Commission offices in Austin.

Offices are located at 7800 Shoal Creek Boulevard.

The Lamar Water Supply Corporation made a request to the Utilities Commission last month for an increase in rates for water service to Lamar residents.

The proposed rate structure was to have gone into effect on June 1.

The action of the General Council of the Utilities Commission has suspended the increase for 120 days from that June 1 date "or until further order of the POLITICAL PUNDITS ACROSS THE LAND, HOWEVER diverse their sentiments, appear now to be agreed that Carter and Reagan will be the nominees of the two major parties. And the candidates are weary of the primaries, and the electoral too weary, and bored.

All this proves is that the electoral process has become a monster, unwieldy, out of control, a boiling cauldron full of pap, seasoned with money, colored with the hopes, desires and ambitions of every segment of our society, good, bad and indifferent.

Yes, Reagan and Carter seem secure, and yet both must know that neither is the darling of at best no more than a few.

Put it in everyday terms. You, the reader, are elected to the top office in a club to which you belong. And you know you were elected because the gang simply couldn't think of anyone else who could do the job. Besides, no one else wanted it.

Are you elated? If so you should really strike for higher office because you possess the professional politician's callous ego.

Seldom does one encounter a politician who will admit, even to himself, that he has won high office not because he is the wisest and most capable person, but because dozens of hundreds of genuinely qualified are seldom willing to sacrifice themselves, to flounder in the turbid sea called politics.

None of this is to say we don't sometimes send men and women to office at town, county, state and national level who are deserving of our trust and confidence. We do, sometimes. More often not. George Bush might have been such a man. Congressional candidate Bob Barnes is.

the University of Texas. "Even now," he said, "we have a 'buyers market' on the job front."

All of this may sound a bit strange. Doesn't virtually every nightly news report hit us with percentage figures on unemployment. Aside from the acquittal of Florida police officers in the death of a black man, wasn't the real basis of the riots in Miami born of the frustration that comes from lack of jobs?

Account for all this as you will. The truth reminds that daily newspapers offer page after page of job offerings for the unskilled, the skilled, the highly-trained, the professionals. The qualified job seeker at any level no longer pounds the pavement in search of work, day after endless day.

Instead the job seeker is interviewed. In categories of professional training the country's largest corporations often vie for the services of graduates, especially those with outstanding records. That's the reason for the words "buyers market."

Yet still the unemployed exist. Why? Is there a national malaise? Somehow I feel that the problem is very closely related to the circumstances that "Johnny can't read anymore." In a national fanatical determination for equality of all aspects of education precisely the opposite has been accomplished.

Students from grade school onward have been made uninterested. The brilliant student faces no challenge, the average pupil finds things too easy so he is not motivated, while the pupil without a home background that encourages him feels uncomfortable and inferior and so becomes belligerent. All of this is carried into adult years.

And so - I make this a question rather than a statement because I am not entirely certain - have we already reached the time when the average man and woman who enters the market place has no interest in the job to be done, no pride of accomplishment?

Let me not be mistaken. This does not apply only to those who work with their hands. How wide-spread is the attitude that says: "If the boss doesn't like the way I'm doing he can get someone else," or "What does he expect for his lousy pay?" And: "I don't have to take any guff." Know any people of this sort?

SOMETIMES CARTOONS REPRESENT MORE reality than humor. One last week in The Monitor depicted two "Concerned Democrats" using a rope to tie Jimmy Carter tight against a flagpole. No way for him to twist, turn or bend. One reassures Jimmy: "It's only till after election so you won't bend every which way." -- ahah.

Our Readers Write

Dear Mr. Carter:

As you know, I have only recently moved to Rockport and I am slowly but surely finding my way around in this beautiful place.

One of the beautiful things I have noticed is the fine "Church Page" you publish every week. I think this must be a very important public service in this particular town because we have so very many newcomers and so many visitors. We for our part over here at Sacred Heart Church do certainly appreciate this method of informing the Catholics when they can come to church at our church.

I see that there are a sizable number of sponsors for this page and I think they are due a vote of thanks for this high type advertising. It shows that they are responsible people and that they are not afraid to spend a little money on God's work.

I have said many times how happy I am to be in Rockport and I will say it again. This is a lovely place to be.

Sincerely yours,
s/Rev. Gregory Deane

LIVE OAK PENINSULA PHILOSOPHER FEELS SYMPATHY FOR THE T.V. NETWORKS TRYING TO COVER THE CONVENTIONS

Editor's note: The Live Oak Peninsula Philosopher on his grassy ranch looks ahead to the nominating conventions this summer, sort of.

Dear Editor:

Having caught on that Carter and Reagan have their nominations sewed up, a big city columnist turned his thoughts to the conventions this summer and predicted, "Well, it's all over but the shouting."

Actually it's all over including the shouting.

What's to shout about when everybody knows the outcome ahead of time? It's like going to a murder movie mystery and pretending to sit on the edge of your seat when you already know who done it.

This puts the TV networks in a bind. How are they going to build up enough excitement to attract enough viewers to justify selling enough commercials to pay their anchor men?

Unless they can stir up a fist fight on the convention floor now and then, the networks and the viewers are going to be faced with a great void.

The only solution I can see is for the owners of professional football to schedule some pre-season games at least two nights of the convention.

Highlights of the nominating speeches could be shown at half-time, if no high school marching bands are available to fill up those 15 minutes.

But, some pundits argue, while everybody knows who the nominees will be, the fight will come over the platforms. If I were a TV producer I wouldn't bank on it.

Fighting over a political platform is like squabbling over the will of a relative who left nothing but an old rocking chair and some back copies of Reader's Digest.

Taking a political platform and placing it over the trail of a President elected on it, after he's been in office a year or two is like trying to locate Rockport on a map produced in 1492.

Yours faithfully,
J.A.

IN COMMON WITH COLUMNISTS WHOSE VIEWS and prognostications are circulated nationwide, those of us with smaller audiences are not fond of being proven wrong. But who anywhere relishes the admission that he has been mistaken?

In any case I would be so immodest as to offer that we little fellows are a bolder, braver lot than the big boys who produce their offering from a sort of ivory tower. Their mistakes, if not necessarily forgiven, are soon forgotten.

Those of us with the temerity to write for hometown audiences are daily reminded of our errors, chided in a friendly manner, and sometimes not.

State Of The Region

By Juliet K. Wenger
Coastal Bend Council of Governments

You want to make a doctors appointment. Simple. Pick up a telephone and call.

Not if you're deaf. You have to drive to the office to make it. There are a lot of everyday things that the deaf cannot take for granted in the way we do.

Someone is breaking in your house, it is on fire, a serious medical emergency has arisen. There can be critical delay for the deaf person in reaching the emergency services which can respond.

Two things have happened which improve this situation to some degree. The Corpus Christi Police Department has installed a teletype telephone, called a TTY.

From any community in the Coastal Bend, a deaf person can call Corpus Christi police, communicate the problem, and the police will call from Corpus Christi back into the community to police, ambulance or fire department, and help will be dispatched with a minimum of delay.

The Department of Human Resources has provided the Area Council for the Deaf with a TTY. A volunteer, Susan Tiller, provides 24-hour service on this, switching it to someone else's home when she has to be unavailable. She relays messages back and forth, from friends who want to get some word to the deaf, or from the deaf who need to have some business transacted or want to get in touch with a friend.

This doesn't entirely eliminate difficulties. The TTY costs more than $700 so not everyone whose hearing is impaired can afford one, and there must be one of these instruments on both ends of a call.

Lights are an important element in communication for the deaf. A panel of lights in different rooms of a home serve notice when the back doorbell or the front doorbell or the telephone is ringing, or even when the dog is barking.

Another advance in technology is a television decoder. The first have been received in the Coastal Bend in recent weeks. Twenty hours of captioned programs a week on each NBC, ABC and Public Television, are shown.

The decoder can be turned on and the captions can be read. Decoders were necessary because people with normal hearing protested that it was distracting when programs were interpreted by captions or signs which they could receive on their sets.

Without access to television, the deaf have no way of being advised of such warnings as a tornado alert.

The Area Council has been functioning for more than a year, providing whatever services are possible for the deaf. One of the most frequently requested services is that of interpreters. A call to Susan Tiller, whose number is 855-0581, can arrange for interpreter service for necessary business, such as a job interview, a visit to a doctor or attorney, or to purchase a car.

The Council has a great need for more volunteers in towns around the region to learn sign language and interpret for the deaf. Non-credit night classes are offered both at Bee County College and Del Mar College. The need includes tri-lingual volunteers, who speak English, Spanish and sign language.

There are two sign languages, one called Straight English which translates English literally, word for Aldridge said that since the start of the 30-vehicle trial, Illinois Bell saved 22,000 gallons of gasoline through the use of gasohol. Aldridge said, "If Illinois

New Food Stamp Law Increasing Funding, Tightens Eligibility

New food stamp legislation signed on May 26 by President Carter authorizes increased food stamp funding to respond to unemployment and inflation.

At the same time it removes 800,000 people from the program and reduces costs by three-quarters of a billion dollars.

Assistant Secretary of Agriculture Carol Tucker Foreman said program-tightening measures approved by Congress and signed into law by the President will cause 650,000 people with incomes near the poverty line to lose their eligibility for food stamps in fiscal year 1981.

Some 150,000 students also will be removed from the program.

Measures that will curb potential spending for food stamps by $148 million this year and $620 million in fiscal 1981 are also included, Foreman said.

Under the new law's funding authority, Congress can legally appropriate up to $9.491 billion for 1980 and $9.739 billion for 1981, she said. Previously, the ceilings were set at $6.188 for fiscal 1980 and $6.236 for fiscal 1981.

The revised authorizations and additional money provided in separate legislation came in time to prevent a threatened delay or suspension of June benefits because of insufficient funds.

"Even with the additional spending, the 21 million people who use food stamps will not receive the same level of benefits as under the previous law," Foreman said.

"The new law cancels the cost of living adjustment that had been scheduled for July 1 and eliminates one of two cost-of-living increases originally planned for next year. That means only one increase will be allowed in the next 16 months, and that will come in January."

The legislation also makes it harder for people to qualify to receive food stamps, she said.

It requires that participants have net incomes below a new, lower poverty line limit, and that they have fewer resources.

Effective in July, the maximum net income limit for a family of four will be set at $7,450, and it will not be updated to $8,200 as had originally been scheduled.

Under the present food stamp law, most food stamp households must have assets worth less than $1,750. The new law will lower this limit to $1,500 beginning October 1.

Households of two or more people, in which at least one person is elderly, will not be affected by the change. The assets limit for these elderly households remains at $3,000.

Most of the 200,000 adult students (over 18 and under 60 years of age) who now receive food stamps will be ineligible as of October 1.

The only exceptions will be low-income students with disabilities or those who:

- work more than 20 hours a week;
- head households with dependents;
- participate in a federal work-study program; or
- are enrolled in a work incentive program under the Aid to Families with Dependent Children program.

Other major provisions of the new law aimed at tightening eligibility and management and cracking down on fraud and abuse include:

- expanded authority for states in verifying information provided by applicants about household size and other factors affecting eligibility and benefit levels;
- authorization for USDA and the states to set up, with appropriate safeguards, systems for cross-checking "income" information furnished by applicants;
- a provision for issuance of photo-identification cards in project areas where the secretary of agriculture, in consultation with the inspector general, determines they would be useful in controlling fraud and abuse;
- a requirement that the income and resources of household members who are ineligible aliens be considered in determining the household's eligibility for food stamps and the level of benefits;

- increased federal payments for administrative costs for those states that substantially reduce program error rates, and reduced federal payments for those that do not; and
- an optional provision that will allow states to determine eligibility and benefits for some applicants and recipients by using "retrospective accounting," a system that takes into account actual income earned in a past month rather than estimated income in the current month.

Foreman said the new law also allows for some expansion of benefits to especially needy groups.

"Women and children who live in shelters for battered women will now be considered eligible for food stamps," she said. "Grants provided by state and local governments to needy families to help pay heating bills will not be counted as income in figuring food stamp eligibility and benefits."

And, she added, effective in fiscal 1982, benefits will be liberalized for elderly families with high medical bills and for working food stamp families that must pay for care of dependents.

Blair's Corner

"An Empire has been buidled in the Wilderness."

That was the declaration in a booklet printed around 1910 by the Gulf Coast Immigration Company -- a land company whose business was the promotion of Rockport and Aransas County.

Lots could be bought for $150 -- $10 cash and $10 a month, with no taxes or interest charged until 1911.

Twenty "California bungalows" were being offered for sale at $1000 each and three cottages on Church Street at $800 each. The "two-story brick Telephone Building" was available for $10,000.

The booklet was generously filled with pictures, including one of the Gulf Coast Immigration Company office on Rockport's Water Street.

There were additional photos of houses offered for sale, farmlands and gardens -- including a truck garden located "immediately back of the cottages on Church Street."

The Bay Side Inn was being offered for sale through the company and more photos show exterior and interior views of the hotel and "sunrise on Aransas Bay" as seen from the Bay Side Inn's gallery.

"There is no spot at all on the Texas Coast to be compared to Rockport on the magnificent Bay of Aransas," the sale booklet proclaimed, adding that this was the "New Texas Empire."

Back in those days, according to the Immigration Company, Rockport's city limits extended "about three miles along the Bay shore and two miles back from the Bay." The city's population was about 2,000.

"At Rockport, Texas," the booklet proclaimed, "you can easily realize the great trinity of human aspirations -- health, wealth and happiness."

There are those who would maintain, no matter what else may have changed in the last seven decades, that statement is still true. . .

EM Report

Aransas County's ambulance service received 25 emergency calls during the week that began Monday, June 2.

The number projected for the week was 20.

Ambulances logged 641 miles during the week and average response time was six minutes, 32 seconds.

Bills may be paid at the Enterprise Medical Center in Rockport. Telephone number for the business office is 729-3056.

Commissioners' Races Not Decided Yet

The race for county commissioners in Aransas County's Precincts 1-1A and 3 hasn't been decided yet, say county officials.

There's still a battle in November to go.

Both Democratic commission candidates -- decided in Saturday night's, June 7, run-off elections -- have Republican opponents in the November general elections.

For the Pct. 1-1A, John M. Lee will vie with Republican Bill Wilson.

And in Pct. 3, Democrat Raymond Owens is squaring off against GOP challenger W.B. "Pete" Sanders.

'Twas Six Months Since Last Christmas

By Eddie Bradley

"Twas six months since last Christmas and all through the town,
Many wives and their children were settling down,
To wish to their man, each in his or her way,
A most wonderful, lovely and fine Father's Day.

It was Father's Day Eve in the house of Joe Brown,
And his wife and his son were still running around.

For you see Mr. Brown had to work on this day,
And they wanted to plan a surprise, you might say.
So that when he got home from the daily routine,
They could help him feel really refreshed and quite clean.

It was Bobby who first had the brilliant idea,
After thinking it over, his mother said, "Yeah!"
So all afternoon they rushed when they could,
To get their supplies from the town and the woods.

In the meantime, Joe's day had been a real treat,
And he hoped for a calm, peaceful evening, at least.
But to his surprise, when he came through the door,
There was no one inside to be found, and what's more,
The kitchen was quiet, no food was a'cooking,
So he settled himself to some serious looking.

And then, through the window, out back don't you see,
He saw they were busy just under a tree.
They had put up a tent, and as he stood gazing,
He noticed a little campfire was a'blazing.

"Hello the camp," he called with a grin,
And the boy and the wife waved and said, "Come on in."

Well old Joe never had such a wonderful night
Asleep in that tent 'neath the stars oh so bright.
All his troubles forgotten, the headaches behind,
Only nice, pleasant dreams roamed around in his mind.

And years ever after you could still hear him say,
That "this was my nicest and best Father's Day."

When they ate in the grass, with the coffee a'brewing,
Joe Brown said, "I wonder how the poor folks are doing!"

Senate Gives OK To Bentsen Productivity Bill

Washington, D.C. -- The Senate has approved legislation by Senator Lloyd Bentsen of Texas requiring the Council on Wage-Price Stability to monitor the effect the federal government has on productivity in this country.

"Without productivity growth, our economy will assuredly remain in a permanent, debilitating state of stagflation. I, for one, am not willing to sit idly by while our economy grows weaker and weaker due to stagnating productivity," Bentsen said.

The Bentsen proposal, an amendment to the Council on Wage-Price Stability reauthorization bill, was approved unanimously by the Senate. It establishes an Office of Productivity within the council.

"This office will rigorously evaluate both the impact of federal regulations on productivity and the effectiveness of federal programs designed to stimulate productivity," Bentsen said.

"Compliance with government rules and regulations now deflects up to one-quarter of all available investment funds away from productive use."

"Similarly, an unknown but large number of federal agencies are actively involved in stimulating productivity growth in private industry. A 1976 survey, for example, found at least 50 agencies spending $944 million for that purpose. Yet, no one knows the full scope of these programs or even if they are effective."

"Daily we see the shambles left by our sagging rate of productivity growth -- double-digit inflation, rising unemployment, interest rates which exceed even those during the Civil War, the second recession in six years -- it goes on and on.

HOW BIG?

Sunday II Chronicles 6:12-42	Monday Hebrews 12:1-7
Tuesday II Chronicles 7:12-22	Wednesday II Chronicles 14:2-13
Thursday II Chronicles 15:1-15	Friday Esther 4:1-16
Saturday Psalms 7:1-17

Gwenn was in kindergarten, and for fun, we'd play "How big?"
 "How big is the beachball, Gwenn?" Mary would ask.
 "Two inches!" she'd answer.
 "How big is Daddy?"
 "Eighteen inches!" said the thirty-six-inch giant.
 "How big is that building?"
 "A mile! No, two miles!"
 So it went until Gwenn learned about the standards of length: the inch, foot and mile. Now, at eight, a beachball is "twenty inches;" Daddy has grown to "six feet;" and that building over there is "about two-hundred feet." Now, Gwenn has a better idea of the "bigness" of our physical world.
 But what of spiritual dimensions? Gwenn must learn to gauge problems, worries, hopes and aspirations — lest her troubles seem too big, her dreams too small. She will turn to God's living Word, the Bible — taught in her church.
 A little girl learned. Will you?

A GIFT OR A REWARD-Galatians 1:1-11
Suppose you were to leave your wallet in your church after the worship service and you came back that afternoon to get it. But the door was locked. You could not open it unless you had a key. But it could not be any key. It has to be the one that fits the lock.
In the book of Galatians, Paul tells us that the Gospel is like a key. We want to have a relationship with God. God gave us the key when He sent His Son to be our Savior. Christ opened the door. The Gospel, which is the good news about Christ, is our key.
Paul, the apostle, knew that Jesus was the key and that Paul was able to preach Christ because it was a gift from God and not a reward of Paul's goodness.
But in Paul's day there were some Judaizing Christians who were preaching a "different gospel" by saying that one must keep the Mosaic law in addition to faith in Christ. Paul knew that there is only one key that opens the door and that was Christ and that it was not just the word of man, but of God.
Yet the people in Galatia were coming under the influence of a "different gospel" that these Judaizing Christians were proclaiming. A gospel that said that you must keep the law in addition to faith. The gospel was being turned from God's gift to a reward for what one does.
It is still this same troublemaker that wants to influence our lives. It starts out with a simple thought: "That you don't get something for nothing." And so our thinking goes that since we have got forgiveness, a new relationship, it must be because we deserve it.
And so we try to use another key and become like the Galatians in Paul's day. We desert the gift and our desire becomes that we deserve good things and that we have a right to them.
And how we want to believe that.
It is that troublemaker that shows up in the prayer: "Lord, I thank thee that I am not like..." or the elder brother who worked hard while his younger brother just squandered his life away.
It is the giving of the impression that the church is for good people, not a hospital for sinners.
It is found in the attitude that if a person does not live right they deserve what they get. Isn't that the way we sometimes express our Christianity to others? The troublemaker that says one has to "lift themselves up by their own bootstraps."
Paul states that this is a perversion of God's gift of the Gospel of Jesus Christ. The Gospel is a gift whereby Christ sacrificially gave himself to rescue and to deliver us from this present evil age. It is an unbelievable gift.
Although we were not worthy, St. Paul knew that, didn't he? Jesus initiated a new relationship with Him. Jesus who ate with sinners and publicans and Jesus who healed a centurion soldier's slave despite the soldier's feelings of unworthiness.
Jesus gave each one the gift of His presence and forgiveness. Jesus did not give it because of any reward of goodness. He gave the gift because He is the key.
Do you have any troublemakers in your life? Then come to Jesus, for He is the key who can deliver you from this present evil age. And remember it is a gift whereby He opens up for you a new relationship of love, forgiveness, and the will of God—for He is the key.

FOOD IDEAS

Everyday Fare With Flair
Economic, easy-to-make meat balls take on a veritable Continental air when you handle them a little differently and serve with a tasty sauce and fluffy, hot rice.
Rice is economical—costing only about three cents a serving. The cost is deceptive because a pound of rice when cooked, makes 14 half cups! That can give you a significant savings and this can give you a spectacular meal.

MEAT BALLS WITH SAUCE VERTE
1 pound lean ground beef
1/2 cup finely chopped onions
1/2 cup soft bread crumbs
3/4 teaspoon salt
1/4 teaspoon pepper
2 tablespoons vegetable oil
1 package (3 oz.) cream cheese, softened
1/3 cup grated Parmesan cheese
2 tablespoons parsley flakes
1 teaspoon basil
1/4 teaspoon garlic powder
1 cup hot beef broth
1 teaspoon cornstarch
2 cups hot cooked rice
Combine meat, onions, bread crumbs, 1/2 teaspoon salt, and pepper; mix thoroughly. Form into 8 balls 1-1/2 inches in diameter. Brown on all sides in oil. Drain off fat. Combine remaining ingredients except cornstarch and rice; blend until smooth. Pour over meat balls, cover and simmer 15 minutes. Stir 2 tablespoons water into cornstarch. Pour into sauce; cook, stirring constantly, about 1 minute or until thickened. Serve over beds of fluffy rice. Makes 4 servings.

Healthful Hints
Most Often-Asked Questions On Nutrition

who feel that we DO need to take them?
A. Yes, there are! Many scientists and nutrition-oriented physicians urge vitamin-mineral supplementation.
One of the most highly respected experts in the nutritional field is Dr. Roger J. Williams, author of "Nutrition Against Disease."
He supplies scientific laboratory proof that what he calls "supernutrition" (which includes taking supplements) can eliminate or reduce many of mankind's serious health problems, such as cancer, mental illness, birth defects, premature aging, heart disease, arthritis and obesity.
Until next week, folks, stay happy and healthy! It's a beautiful world!

Eyes And Answers

both do—just another of those pesky government regulations.
But, I've seen so many children enter school and try vainly to learn and achieve under an undiscovered visual handicap that I'm convinced now that a legally required examination of children's eyes and vision is totally justified. If you could see a few of those handicapped cases, I think you would also be convinced.
The tremendous effort required to learn under a visual interference can be known only by the child who has the problem. Often such children are mistakenly thought to be dumb, lazy, indifferent, indolent, shiftless or totally unencouraged at home, when the problem lies strictly in his or her poorly functioning vision.
Blurred vision on an eye chart across the room is not nearly enough to tell us what the problem may be; a thorough and complete examination at the reading distance must be made in order to determine the total

Nursing Home News

Activities at the Aransas Pass Nursing and Convalescent Center for the week of June 1 through June 8 were many.
Sandra Lee visited the center on Monday, returning on Wednesday to do more visiting.
Delma Rodgers read the Bible, wrote letters and visited many of the residents on Wednesday.
On Thursday, the Youth Choir from the Faith United Methodist Church in Austin held a program at the center. Following the musical program, pineapple sherbet and cake was served. The sherbet was donated by Liz Williams of Big Daddy's Ice Cream Parlor and Family Swim Center. The cake was given to the center by Sharon Wallace.
Friday morning was paint class with Lyla and Frankie. A special thanks to the people who brought fresh cucumbers, tomatoes and flowers to the residents.
Father James Hamilton was at the center on Saturday to give Holy Communion to all of the Catholic residents.
Rev. Don Delaplain visited with the residents-Saturday to make arrangements for a program planned for next week.
Sunday morning church services were conducted by Rev. Al Bankert, and on Sunday afternoon, the members and pastor of the Ingleside Church of Christ conducted their monthly "Group Singing" program.
Reality orientation and group exercise classes were held each Tuesday through Friday.

QUESTIONS & ANSWERS
Dear Doc: I have a year-old male Scotty—named Scotch—that goes everywhere with me. If you see me, you see my dog.
For the past three months, Scotch has had intermittent spells of eye problems. He squints and rubs and paws at his eyes. There is a discharge from them, and they are red and watery.
What do you think the problem is and what can I do about it?—Lester
Dear Lester: I would suggest you keep your dog out of high weeds and thickets. Do not let him hold his head out of the window of a moving car.
When you bathe your dog, put a drop of mineral oil in each eye before you start.
If these suggestions don't correct the problem, see your veterinarian. It could be something you have no control over.

"I suppose after you get out of the service you'll be waiting for me to die so you can spit on my grave," barked the old sergeant. "Oh, no," replied the draftee. "After I get out of this uniform I won't want to stand in line again!"

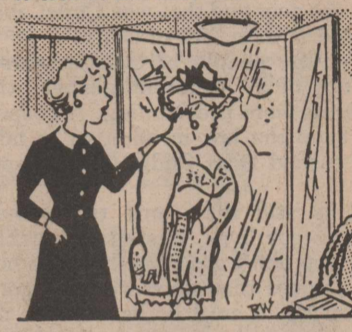

A salesman was trying to interest a country store owner in a hearing aid. "I get along with something a lot cheaper than that gadget," said the countryman. "Wait here and I'll show you." He vanished for a moment and returned with a tiny wire, with no apparent connections, running from his coat pocket to his ear.

"What a smart horse," the friend agreed. "Not so smart . . . that darn fool horse got a horse doctor."

ZITA KENNEDY AT THE WHEEL

First Woman Tractor Driver Has Many Talents

By Pat Blair
She scuba dives, has a teaching degree, is carving a chess set -- and is a published author with a couple of stories to her credit.
So what's she doing driving a tractor-mower for Aransas County?
The county offered her the job, answers Zita Kennedy -- who's made a bit of history as the first woman tractor driver to be hired by Aransas County.
The honor of being "first" almost went to Zita's roommate, Kris Marri. Kris is the one who actually put in an application with the county, Zita explained during an interview Monday afternoon, June 9 -- her first day on the job.
"Mr. (County Commissioner Raymond) Owens gave her a call this morning and offered her a job driving a mower," Zita said. "Kris said, 'My roommate runs the mower' -- and I was hired."

But Kris wasn't left without a job, Zita added. She was hired by the county later to operate heavy equipment.
Zita, whose father was a "special consultant with the government," has lived "all over the world, Guatemala, Pakistan -- but El Paso was always home base."
When it was time to go to college, however, she picked Florida State -- which is where she picked up her bachelor of science degree in physical education.
Along the way, she also collected minors in pre-med and psychology, and from college she went to the Brown Schools in Austin where she worked with the mentally handicapped for a year.

"Then I started private tutoring on my own. Then I got a job with the state," she says.
The "state job" was with the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department, driving a tractor on Goose Island. After 11 months, Zita was one of 33 TP&W employees -- out of a total 1800 -- selected to go to the game warden academy.
That, however, turned out to be a bad experience for Zita who wound up with her arm broken in three places. Because of the stress of the training program, her arm wasn't healing properly. So -- reluctantly -- she gave up the game warden program and returned home, to Fulton.
She's lived in Aransas County since last May, "and I love it!" she declared.
"I've been out with the shrimpers, out crabbing -- I love to crab! -- I've played with dolphins. . . I love it!"

As for what else she loves, the list includes "all sports," she said. "And I like to play my guitar, paint -- I make my own posters and stuff."
"I love to do things with my hands," she continued. She's into ceramics, and a current project is the carving of a chess set -- in which the knights are dolphins and the kings are killer whales.
She's a science fiction buff who writes as well as reads and has had a couple of her short stories published.
She has a teaching degree that qualifies her to teach at all levels.
And as if that weren't enough, she's started studying sign language.
So what's she doing driving a tractor?
Making a living.
And enjoying herself.

Greatest Con Artist Of All In Corpus Christi Tuesday

United Savings of Texas is bringing the "...greatest con artist of all time" to Corpus Christi on Tuesday, June 17.
Frank W. Abagnale, one of the most interesting crime figures in modern history, will meet the public and autograph his new autobiography "Catch Me If You Can," from 2 p.m. to 4 p.m. at United's main office at 3765 South Alameda.
Abagnale, a frequent celebrity on the Johnny Carson Show, is now a well-known authority on the prevention of white collar crime.
His qualifications on the subjects of forgery, hot checks, credit card manipulations, quick change artistry and other crimes comes directly from personal experience.
He was a millionaire twice over before he was 21 years old. He stole every nickle of it. "I never kept any books on it, but the FBI says that I cashed over $2.5 million in bogus checks in five years," says Abagnale.

With only a tenth grade education an I.Q. of 136, young Abagnale successfully impersonated an international airline pilot, an attorney, a college professor, a stock broker, a pediatrician and an FBI agent.
He was wanted in 26 foreign countries and all 50 states.
His amazing escapades are fully detailed but not glorified in his new autobiography and also in the motion picture soon to be released.

Says Abagnale, "I can think of no better way to repay my debt to society than by teaching others how to prevent white collar crimes that now cost American businessmen and consumers well over $4.5 billion annually. I think I'm in a unique position to help cut these losses."
The public is invited to meet Abagnale personally at United Savings. For more information, call 853-6211. Admission is free.

Sheriff's Report

Charges of theft of a fire truck have been filed against Danny Oakley Woods after a fire truck belonging to the Holiday Beach Volunteer Fire Department was taken Sunday, June 8.
The 1961 Ford truck was taken sometime after 5 a.m. Sunday. About 6:30 a.m. that morning, the Aransas County Sheriff's office received a teletype from Bay City that the truck and Woods had been found there.
Sheriff's deputies from Aransas County went to Bay City to recover the truck and the driver.

Alfred Edge Realtors of Ingleside called the Aransas County sheriff's office to report breaking and entering of a residence on Sawyer Lane off 1069 in Aransas County.
Entry was gained to the building when someone pried open the back door between noon Monday, June 9, and 11 a.m. Tuesday, June 10. Nothing was reported missing.

Nik Ricco reported someone broke into his residence on Bay Road at Fulton Beach Road sometime between 6 p.m. Monday and 8 a.m. Tuesday.
The back door of the residence had been kicked in and the smoke alarm ripped off the wall, and three kitchen cabinets were opened by the burglar(s). Nothing was reported missing.

Ralph Snavely reported burglary of his residence at No. 17 Live Oak Point sometime Monday before 10:51 a.m.

Reba Hester of 504 West Bay Street reported someone attempted to break into her

David Belser Is LOC Club Golf Pro

David Belser has taken over as the new club manager for the Live Oak Country Club. He also runs the pro shop there.

He is originally from Corpus Christi; he lived and went to school in Ingleside for 12 years and is currently a resident of Aransas Pass.

David says that the club has done some remodeling work around the pool area, including working on the restrooms, putting out new patio furniture and installing a canopy with picnic benches.

He says the pro shop carries equipment and clothing of a variety of brands.

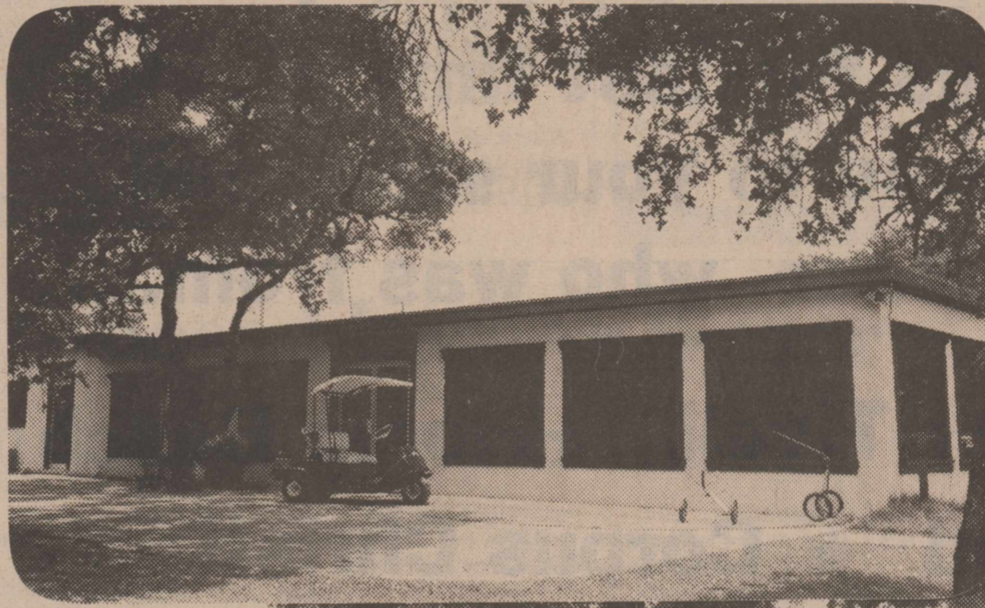

The club currently has about 175 members. Anyone wishing to join can fill out an application, which is forwarded to the board of directors for approval.

The club has a very active golfing schedule and the beautiful course is kept busy most of the time with players enjoying the scenery and the play.

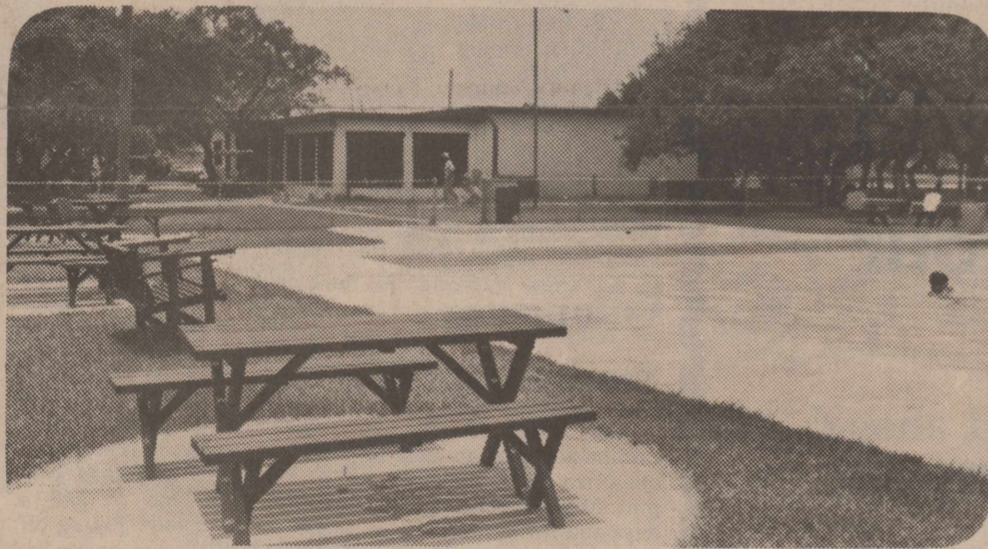

Everything at the club is closed on Mondays because that is a work day for the personnel that keep everything in shape.

Aransas National Wildlife Refuge

At differing periods during the earth's early existence, great ice masses grew and moved from the north southward. Although these ice masses never moved any closer to Texas than the junction of the Ohio and Mississippi Rivers, their effects were nevertheless pronounced.

As the ice masses grew, huge amounts of water were used, dropping the level of the oceans as much as 450 feet below their present levels. The coastal plain of Texas was affected by the formation of barrier islands very much like Matagorda, St. Joseph and Padre Islands.

This type of island was formed as the glacial ice melted, causing the ocean to rise over plains which had been previously eroded by streams and rivers. The offshore currents dug into bottom sands and deposited them in spits and bars across the mouths of creeks, rivers and other indentations of the shoreline.

In areas of strong wave action and strong currents, large sandspits and bars grew and eventually joined to form long, continuous barriers. Storm tides added additional deposits above the sea level.

As the sea level rose and fell during successive glacial periods, the rivers and streams of the area cut through the barriers forming bays, lagoons, and separating land masses. The Aransas Refuge, or Blackjack Ridge, was separated from the Lamar Peninsula on the West and the Seadrift Ridge on the East in such a manner.

The Blackjack Ridge on the main refuge area is a segment of an ancient barrier called the Ingleside Barrier, and is characterized by a series of parallel evenly rounded beach ridges in its sandy wooded area.

The ridges on the western side of the refuge represent the oldest position of the shoreline which is now moving southeastward toward what was the gulf in the early glacial periods.

Wave action on the barrier along the San Antonio Bay shore of the refuge exposed the ridges to the action of the winds. As a result, the ridges in the Dagger Point area have been reworked into a sand dune complex which has somewhat stabilized with brush and tree cover.

The long beach ridges of the Heron Flats Trail were formed by storm winds. These are also being stabilized by shrubs and small trees to form a relatively stable land mass.

Bone fossils found in the area of Aransas NWF show a wide variety of mammals, birds, reptiles, amphibians, and fish that have inhabited the area. Two types of remains have been found:

- (1) Extinct forms, such as the camel, horse, ground sloth, mastodon, saber tooth cat, giant bison, and lion;
- (2) Extant forms, such as the coyote, white-tailed deer, white-footed mouse, and striped skunk.

The fossil remains show a greater number of species inhabited the area in earlier times than inhabit the Gulf Coast Plains today. This is particularly true of the medium to large size herbivores. During the Pleistocene period seventeen species existed while today only four species are present.

The earliest records of human inhabitants come from the European colonists who explored the area in the seventeenth century. They found a tribe of Indians called the Karankawas ("water-walkers").

These Indians were a primitive people who did not wear clothing, were nomadic in nature, and were lacking in artistic expressions of their culture. One facet of their cultural heritage that made them extremely unpopular with the Europeans was ritualistic cannibalism. Living in a seasonal rhythm to escape the discomforts of insects and unfavorable climatic conditions, the Karankawas lived by hunting, fishing, and gathering roots and nuts.

The fossil remains of man on the Texas coast are almost certainly those of Karankawas or their ancestors. It is doubtful that their meager use of the land was anything more than a natural interaction that had little or no lasting effects.

The Spanish and French were constantly in competition with one another to establish colonies along the Texas coast.

Although written reports describing the Blackjack Peninsula from 1685 to 1829 are non-existent, there are records of some colonization of this coastal region about 1790. It is extremely doubtful that the colonization resulted in any changes on the Blackjack Peninsula.

The first description of the peninsula specifically comes from the personal diary of Jean Louis Berlandier for 12 March to 18 March 1829. He refers to the abundance of foxes (probably coyotes) whose voices and tracks betrayed their presence; wolves; horses; a large species of cat whose tracks were found on the sandy beaches; ducks; "gray pelicans" (probably brown pelicans); and egrets. Berlandier also described the area as a vast expanse of grassland with only occasional mottes (clumps) of trees.

Following Texas' admission to the Union, the Texas coastal region began to experience a population boom. Census figures for Aransas County in 1880 indicated a population of 966 people; by 1882 the population had increased 23% to 1250.

The free-ranging stock of Aransas County in 1882 were estimated as follows: 16,204 cattle, 849 horses, 1,644 sheep, 175 goats, and 1,500 hogs. The effects of this multitude of animals on the land must have been tremendous.

A good portion of this pressure must have occurred on the several small ranches which were located on the peninsula at this time. The resulting grazing pressure resulted in the increased growth and establishment of woody oak brush and a reduction of the original grassland. Suppression of wild fires by ranchers also likely favored growth of brush over the prairie grasses.

During the 1890's several small ranches became established on the Blackjack Peninsula. A typical ranch belonged to Oliver Brundrett who ran 300 head of cattle on his 1,200 acres. As the grasslands decreased and economic pressures grew, the Brundrett holdings and the other ranches on the peninsula were consolidated under Leroy Denman in 1919.

Denman was an avid sportsman as well as a cattleman and he was committed to the reestablishment of wildlife in the area. The most graphic response to his conservation efforts were the increases in white-tailed deer and wild turkeys.

On December 31, 1937, the Blackjack Peninsula was made a National Migratory Waterfowl Refuge by Presidential Executive Order, set aside in perpetuity as a natural area for all Americans to enjoy.

Today, the refuge has expanded beyond the peninsula and encompasses a total of 54,829 acres.

Ruth Hayden Has Enjoyed Her Work

By Beverly Wilken
Six years of teaching in Oklahoma and 38 years of teaching at Rockport-Fulton High School, equals 44 years of dedication and enjoyment for Ruth Hayden.

Mrs. Hayden, who retired from teaching this year, has taught math "mainly algebra," since moving to Rockport.

"Looking back over the years, it really doesn't seem that long because I've really enjoyed my work," said Mrs. Hayden.

And the students in her classes obviously enjoyed Mrs. Hayden's work. She demanded, and got, the respect of her students. "In fact," she added, "I only had to use a paddle one time. A boy in my class would not behave no matter what I did, so I paddled him. The next day he came to school and brought me a pair of earrings. I've still got those earrings."

Mrs. Hayden began teaching in Rockport in January, 1942 when the Haydens moved here from Corpus Christi. Mr. Hayden made sub-chasers in the ship channel here, and when he completed his duties they planned to return to Corpus Christi. But by that time Mrs. Hayden was enjoying her teaching here, so they decided to remain in Rockport.

Mrs. Hayden could write a book about her unusual experiences as a teacher, but she plans to do substitute teaching when school starts in the fall, and "a lot of travelling." She's been from England to Scotland to the Island of Malta in the Mediterranean already, and enjoys sightseeing and shopping in other countries.

Mrs. Hayden, who graduated from Sam Houston University with a Bachelor of Science and obtained her Masters from A&I University in Kingsville, is a past Worthy Matron of the Eastern Star and past Noble Grande of the Rebekah Lodge. She is a life member of the Texas State Teachers Association, and a life member of the P.T.A. She sponsored the National Honor Society for 20 years, and is a member of the First Presbyterian Church.

One of Mrs. Hayden's secrets to success is that she trained herself to remember only the good things about each student and to forget everything else. "I forgot all of the bad, and all of the mistakes we made."

It's that philosophy that made the difficult task of teaching her own children, James and Cloyce, who live in Rockport and Nancy Jones who lives in Corpus Christi.

"They said I was harder on them than other students," she laughed.

She also taught four of her seven grandchildren. In fact, if Mrs. Hayden had her way, she would teach her two great-grandchildren Jenniter Jones and James Kickman who aren't even school age yet! She also taught five members of the present school board.

On May 22 her fellow teachers at the high school got together for a reception in Mrs. Hayden's honor.

They presented her with a clock and a plaque that read:

"To Ruth N. Hayden in appreciation of your 44 years of loyal and devoted service in the field of education, from the Aransas County Independent School District."

And that totally sums up the way the entire community feels about Mrs. Hayden.

Bev's Beat

By Beverly Wilken
If I went wrong, it's my father's fault.
It's his fault because even though neither one of us will admit it (usually), we're a lot alike. (Did I say that?!)
We've had a running battle for years trying to "out-tough" each other. He calls me a rebel (according to him, I rebelled against everything); and I call him a bully (because he always picks on me).

All of my life I dreaded those three little words from my mother: "Ask Your Father."
I used to walk up to him, plant my feet firmly, clinch my fists and in my best sneer, ask, "CAN I, or can I NOT go to the dance tonight?"
He'd usually come back with some comment equally as tough, and we'd be at it again. (By the time I was 23, I finally learned just how much I could get away with!)
His favorite thing when I was growing up was torturing me by saying things like: "If you take off those disgusting go-go boots I'll let you go to the dance."
Well! He might as well have asked me to join a convent! No way! Taking off those boots meant giving in, and after all, this was a matter of PRIDE!
We used to go 'round and 'round about wearing make-up. "If that stuff gets in your eyes you're gonna go blind!"
And dating was a sore subject with him too. "You're not going to date until you're 35 and that's final!"
And now when I visit him (can I help it if it usually just HAPPENS to be around supper time???) he holds out his hand and says, "$2.50," and makes comments about thinking he got rid of me when he FINALLY got me married off.
But recently I found out that he's been faking it all along! Underneath that grouchy, mean, hardheaded, stubborn exterior, is a lovable old softie.

Commission."
The proposed new rate structure would set a flat rate of $15 per month for use of zero to 10,000 gallons of water and $1.20 per 1,000 gallons over 10,000. Tap fee would be $200 and there would be no change in reconnect fees and no deposit for new customers.
Several Lamar residents were reportedly unhappy with the proposed new rate structure.
A large bone of contention was the flat $15 rate for use of water up to 10,000 gallons.
Many customers in Lamar say they do not use more than 3,000 gallons of water per month -- the current minimum being charged -- and felt the $15 per month for use of only 3,000 gallons per month would be unfair.

Village Leads To National Sales Catalog

By Pat Blair

Rockport residents Bill and Mary Wilson discovered the village of woodcarvers in Mexico eight or nine years ago, then they were both living in that country.

This year, as a result of that discovery, the Wilsons' carousel horse is prominently featured on one of the pages of "American Express", an elite sales catalog with nationwide circulation.

It all started back in 1971 or '72 when Bill and Mary found the village, located in the central highlands of Mexico about 180 miles northwest of Mexico City.

It has a population of about 200 people, Bill said, "and all they do is woodcarvings." The wood used is called "colorine" and it's native to the region.

The wood is aged and cured and because of the "unique, inherent flaws of each piece of wood," Bill said, no two figures ever look exactly alike.

Bill was in the textile business in Mexico at the time -- he and Mary returned to the States in 1975 because of "all the problems with the (Mexican) president at the time" -- but the Wilsons were quick to make arrangements with the villagers.

Bill credits Mary with the efforts that resulted in the Wilsons becoming the exclusive dealers of some 11 definite designs -- including the prancing "carousel horse" -- produced by the villagers.

Other pieces in the line include two heads, a "chicken on trunk," a pelican, "primitive horse," an owl, St. Francis of Assisi, a lion and an armadillo.

All of these pieces can be seen at the Wilsons' Village Artisan shop, 1837 Broadway, which they opened in 1975 when they moved to Rockport. (They also bought the Sea Chest -- already at the location -- at that time.)

Although the American Express catalog is the "plum" in the Wilsons' business, it isn't their first experience with nationwide sales. They have a representative at the World Trade Center in Dallas and "we've been shipping all over the United States," Bill says.

Recently, he added, they've started shipping into Canada.

Orders for the carvings come to the Wilsons here in Rockport, Bill said, then they forward the order on to the village. ("Mary has worked with the people of this village for a number of years," Bill said.)

Depending on the size of the order, the villagers usually take about two to four weeks to fill it, then it's shipped to Matamoros.

That's where Bill and Mary pick up the consignment themselves and personally see that it gets through customs and into this country.

When they get the pieces to Rockport, Bill continued, the whole shipment goes into the deepfreeze for two weeks.

That, Bill explained, is to kill any insects that might be in the wood.

The carousel horse, which is mounted on a brass finished base and stand, comes from the village unmounted -- only the wooden carving, Bill explained. A hole is cut for the mounting after the wood comes out of the deepfreeze, and the assembly is completed at the Village Artisan before the piece is shipped on.

American Express sends buyers all over the country to look for the comparatively few items that will be offered in its catalogs.

The carousel horse is featured in the company's Spring, 1980, catalog and so far, says Bill, "it's been doing very well."

It could be called the saga of a little horse that has pranced its way from the Mexican highlands and across a nation . . .

Rockport Students Do 'Very Well' On Test

By Beverly Wilken

The first Texas Assessment of Basic Skills Test was administered statewide to students in grades five and nine, between February 25 and March 12 of last school year.

Superintendent Joe Randow told trustees at the June 9 school board meeting that the statewide results have not been released yet, but the Rockport-Fulton students given the test "performed very well."

The students were tested in the basic skills of reading, writing and mathematics. The reading and mathematics tests were criterion-referenced or objective-based. Each question was keyed back to a specific objective already built into the curriculum, so each student competes against the test itself, not against other students.

In the writing category, students were asked to write a sample letter or paragraph on a specific subject. This helps determine each student's ability to present ideas on paper in a well-organized matter.

Ottie Mundine, School Board president, said the test, which was developed by the State Board of Education and the Educational Testing Service, will show what the school system's strong points are, and help to improve on the weak points.

Superintendent Randow said he has not seen the tests yet, but when the tests are received, each student's parents will receive a copy.

The tests were given by specially-trained teachers and took an average of two hours for the students to complete.

During the 1980-81 school year, the third, fifth and ninth grades will take the skills test.

Date Set For Progress Edition

The Rockport Pilot's fourth annual Progress Edition will be published Sunday, July 27.

Deadline for submission of ads and stories for this special edition will be Tuesday, July 15.

The Pilot wants to make this an extra-special edition and is looking for old photographs of Aransas County.

If you have any old photographs of the area, we would like to borrow them. They will be returned to you following publication of the Progress Edition.

Just bring the photos by the Pilot office -- or give us a call at 729-9900.

And be sure and watch for this year's Progress Edition -- the biggest, best and most widely-read ever.

SHAKEDOWN CRUISE

Clark Collins and Jim Lee of Coastal Marine in Rockport take the city's Water Safety Patrol Boat out to see how the motor's running. The "test cruise" was made Monday, Collins reported, and the safety patrol boat did just fine. In fact, Collins added, it was put on its first "rescue mission" when the Coastal Marine employees came across one of their company's customers who'd had motor problems in the Ski Basin. The Water Safety Patrol Boat was used to tow in the other boat.

GSA Seeks Contracts With Veterans

On April 21, 1980, Rowland G. Freeman, Administrator of the General Services Administration, directed all GSA Regional Administrators to develop a special procurement outreach effort and training program for Vietnam Veterans.

The GSA Vietnam Veterans Program has high priority and to ensure that GSA does its part, Freeman directed the Regional Administrators to develop a special procurement outreach effort to this group of veterans, including special training programs.

Freeman said that "The President has committed the Federal government to be more responsible to the needs and potential contributions of Vietnam Era veterans."

Ann Doughty, GSA Regional Administrator in Fort Worth, said that Vietnam veterans who are interested in doing business with the U.S. Government or who desire information concerning procurement, should contact the GSA Business Service Centers, located in Fort Worth, Dallas, and Houston, or the nearest GSA area or building manager's office.

GSA, considered the business arm of the Federal government, is responsible for procuring goods and services for Federal agen-

Profile

Robin's rise to fame

Robin Williams who stars as Mork on ABC-TV's 'Mork & Mindy' show has been described by critics as 'a brilliant stand-up comic, an astonishing lunar wild man out of Jonathan Winters by way of Lenny Bruce with a touch of Richard Burton thrown in; 'engaging, bright and an inventive actor,' and 'a major comedic talent.' Since Robin has come to national attention, he has been awarded a Golden Globe, a Golden Apple and the People's Choice Award.

Robin was raised in Detroit and Chicago, moving with his family to the San Francisco area (a suburb called Tiburon) during his last year of high school. He also attended college there before he won a full scholarship to New York's famed Juilliard where he studied drama under John 'Paper Chase' Houseman for three years. Robin then returned to San Francisco and performed in many San Francisco clubs.

His first television exposure came on the latest, short-lived version of 'Laugh-In' and 'The Richard Pryor Show.' He then guest-starred on ABC's comedy series, 'Happy Days' as Mork, a visitor from another planet. That episode was so well received that it prompted the current 'Mork & Mindy' series.

Whenever he gets the chance, Robin continues to perform his stand-up comedy in Los Angeles' comedy rooms, The Comedy Store, The Improvisation and in the improvisational group, Off The Wall.

His 'live' album, Reality, What a Concept, for Casablanca Records did extremely well on the record charts last year. In December (1980) his 'Popeye' film, which will be produced by Robert Evans for Paramount will be released.

Williams' avocational interests include cross-country running, yoga and roller skating.

He is married to dancer Valerie Valardi and their home contains a malamute dog named Sam, a parrot named Cora and two lizards.

PBS in the spotlight

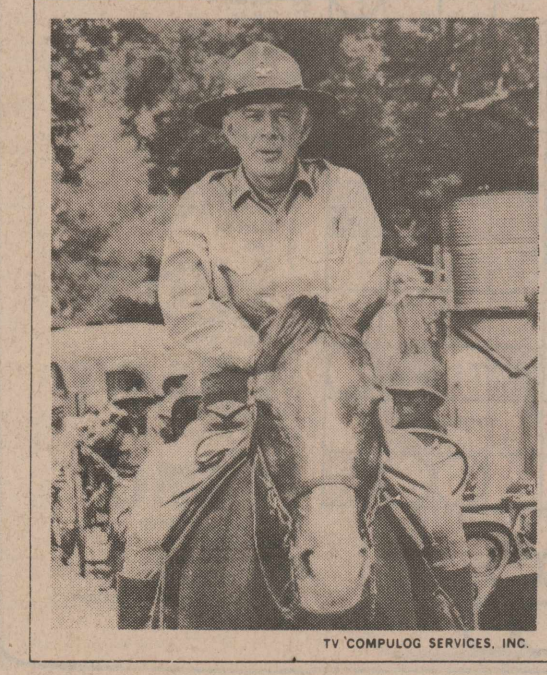

Advertisement for Ben Wattenberg's 1980 TV magazine series, featuring a portrait of Ben Wattenberg.

The New Entrepreneurs
'California is the future,' the saying goes. If so, the future is not going to be all 'freaky,' 'mellow,' and 'laid back,' by any means, reports Ben Wattenberg (pictured) in WETA's new TV magazine series, BEN WATTENBERG'S 1980, which will be broadcast on Sunday, June 15 on most PBS stations.
In Silicon Valley: The New Entrepreneurs, Wattenberg zeroes in on the burgeoning U.S. electronics industry just south of San Francisco and a new breed of American entrepreneurs: 'unusual people.' Wattenberg says, 'imaginative and acquisitive; creative and nerdy—many with the instincts of a Las Vegas gambler—but all of them willing to take a chance.
With Wattenberg we tour some factories in 'Silicon Valley' for a peek at new electronic wizardry. He shows us how tiny silicon chips—flea-sized building blocks of computer circuitry—are made.
'These Californians are shaping the future through technology—a technology whose range boggles the mind,' says Wattenberg. In one scene a blind man demonstrates how the machine he is working on permits him to 'read' by converting printed material to synthetic speech.
'Silicon Valley' symbolizes two attitudes that are re-emerging in American life, Wattenberg believes. One is that 'progress,' which we often define as industrial development and technological advancement, is real and beneficial. The other is that government has gone far enough in taxing and regulating the private economy.
The risk-takers who succeed, says Wattenberg, will become very rich. But more important, he says, 'Their successes should enrich us, too: more jobs, new science, higher productivity, less inflation.'

THAT'S ENTERTAINMENT

'That's Entertainment, Part 2,' a movie musical extravaganza compiled from 30 years' worth of priceless Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer films, will be rebroadcast as a special movie presentation, on WEDNESDAY, JUNE 18 on CBS-TV. Fred Astaire and Gene Kelly narrate and perform together in all-new numbers directed by Kelly for the film. This feast of fabulous movie sequences continues in the tradition of its exciting predecessor, 'That's Entertainment!' and brings to life MGM's famous slogan: 'More Stars Than There Are in Heaven.' CHECK LISTINGS FOR EXACT TIME.

M*A*S*H

Tired of their constant complaints about the quality of recreational activities at the 4077th. Col. Potter (Harry Morgan, pictured) appoints Hawkeye and B.J. as the new morale officers, on 'M*A*S*H,' to be rebroadcast MONDAY, JUNE 16 on CBS-TV. Winchester's morale has already reached a new peak. He is ecstatic about his operation on a wounded soldier (James Stephens) which saved the boy's legs, leaving only 'negligible' side effects. CHECK LISTINGS FOR EXACT TIME.
