Ruling On Primary Funds Drawing Varied Reaction

By Associated Press
Rival candidates for governor took varied stances on the effects of a Supreme Court of Texas ruling that the secretary of state cannot finance primary elections until the Legislature appropriates the money.

Red Kidnaping Causes Strike Across France

PARIS (AP) — White-collar unions called a two-hour strike across France today to protest the Maoist kidnaping of an automobile executive, and the Communist party joined the chorus condemning the abduction.

Young extremists snatched 63-year-old Robert Nogrette as he left his home in a Paris suburb Wednesday. They claimed he hired "flying squads of killers" at the Renault motor company's Billancourt plant where a company agent killed a young Maoist during a demonstration two weeks ago.

In communiques issued through a left-wing news agency, the kidnapers demanded that demonstrators jailed after the Billancourt battle be freed, that those fired as a result of the fray be rehired and that Maoists be allowed to hold a "free workers' meeting at the Billancourt plant today "without riot police ... or a single supervisor."

The abductors pledged to follow decisions reached by the meeting, implying that Nogrette would be freed if the workers agreed.

Nogrette, described by the state-owned auto company as a middle-level personnel officer, sent his wife a recorded message saying he was being treated well.

"I am very much at ease with the young masked people," he said. "We talk animatedly of one thing and another. They are taking very good care of me. Don't worry. Everything is going all right and everything will turn out all right."

The kidnapers said they were members of the Pierre Overney cell of the New People's Resistance, named for the 23-year-old worker killed Feb. 25 at the Billancourt plant. The security agent who shot him, Jean-Antoine Tramoni, 37, has been jailed on a homicide charge.

Tyler Man Joins Race For U.S. Senate Seat

By LARRY HOLLIS

A Democratic candidate for U.S. Senator who plans to walk his way into the Capitol visited Pampa yesterday in preparation for the upcoming primary contests.

Thomas M. Cartledge, 29, of Tyler, has entered the field against Barefoot Sanders and Ralph Yarborough for the May 6 elections.

A veteran of Vietnam, Cartledge says his major issue is the cost of campaigning, "which has gone up 1000 per cent in the past 10 years."

Because of the high costs of seeking election, especially on a state-wide basis, "politicians have to mess around with the likes of Frank Sharp and others to get financial backing," Cartledge stated.

To eliminate some of the campaign costs, Cartledge plans to conduct a 300-mile walking campaign through the most populous part of the state.

He plans to begin his "walk to victory" in about 2 1/2 weeks. Cartledge said a candidate for Senator conducted a similar campaign in Florida and beat out both of his other two opponents and spent less than $20,000 doing it.

In a move to have more honesty in government, Cartledge wants to eliminate the situations leading to stock frauds and bribery offers.

A graduate of Stephen F. Austin State University, Cartledge has a Master of Arts

Gov. Preston Smith, who is bidding for renomination by the Democrats, said in Austin he will be compelled to call a special legislative session before the May 6 primaries because of the court's decision.

The governor set no date but Secretary of State Bob Bullock had aides checking to see how much cash local Democratic and Republican chairmen will need for the elections.

Meanwhile Smith formally called on the leaders of the two major parties to provide for a presidential preference poll on the primary ballots. It would not commit either party to the winners.

"At the present time," the governor wrote to the state party chairmen, "Florida is the only Southern state that uses a presidential preference primary. I think it is time to give the people of Texas an opportunity to voice their preference in the selection of candidates for president."

Li. Gov. Ben Barnes, one of Smith's opponents for the Democratic gubernatorial nomination, predicted legislators would appropriate money for the elections in short order.

Pledging cooperation with the governor in a special session "to the fullest extent in security passage of a primary funding bill," Barnes said, "I feel certain that a workable bill can be passed without delay and we can save the taxpayers the cost of a prolonged session."

Rep. Frances Parenthold, another contender for the Democratic gubernatorial nomination, said in Houston that she regretted that the governor has "delayed so long" in calling a special session.

"Texas has been brought to her knees," she told her audience at a forum sponsored by the Student Bar Association at the University of Houston. "Our state government is in disarray."

Mrs. Parenthold said she nevertheless was prepared "to readjust my personal plans and go about tending to the state's business. I feel my first obligation is to the office I hold now."

South Texas rancher Dolph Briscoe, a Democratic candidate for governor, said in Abilene he did not think a special session is needed to finance the primaries.

Candidates' donations and voluntary help of election workers would solve the situation, he said.

South Texas rancher Dolph Briscoe, a Democratic candidate for governor, said in Abilene he did not think a special session is needed to finance the primaries.

Thomas M. Cartledge degree in political science from Midwestern University. Active in church affairs for the Methodist church in Texas, he has served as a public school teacher.

In Vietnam he served as an infantry platoon leader, a logistics officer and rifle company commander as a Marine officer from 1966 to 1968. He is presently in the Marine Corps Reserve at San Antonio.

Stating that neither of his candidates represent the views of most Democrats in Texas, Cartledge believes the main issues of the upcoming campaign will be honesty and integrity in government, a shortage of jobs, high taxes, the continuing war in Indochina and the increasing centralization of government.

Of the filing fee ruling, Briscoe said "this points up the failure of state leadership. It has been made clear the filing fees were too high but nothing was done about it."

Briscoe said he favors a reasonable filing fee for state offices and said in the future the legislature could make provision for financing primaries.

A Republican candidate for governor, Tom McElroy said that Barnes should "submit to a publicly-held lie detector test to clear the air of suspicions about him" following allegations about his connection with bank insurance legislation in 1969 involving Houston promoter Frank Sharp.

Dave Reagan, another Republican gubernatorial hopeful, told an Odessa luncheon that "a real grass roots reform movement is building in Texas...the election in November will see the birth of a twoparty system for Texas that will bring about needed reforms in government."

In the U.S. Senate race, Democratic hopeful Barefoot Sanders said in Fort Worth that one of his primary opponents, former Sen. Ralph Yarborough, "seems to think he is indispensable to the progress on the state and national level."

Yarborough will open his Dallas campaign headquarters today, adding that his Dallas banking is "the strongest organization we have ever had in Dallas County."

State Sen. Joe Christie, a Democratic candidate for lieutenant governor, told a Sherman audience he is convinced that the law prohibiting the disclosure of tax information by the comptroller's office "is working against the people of this state."

Christie is chairman of a Senate committee studying the sales tax.

Author Irving, Wife And Aide Indicted In NY

NEW YORK (AP) — A New York County grand jury today indicted author Clifford Irving, his wife Edith and his researchers, Richard Suskind, on grand larceny, conspiracy and forgery charges in connection with Irving's disputed autobiography of Howard Hughes.

In a separate indictment, Irving, 41, and Suskind, 38, were charged with perjury in the second degree.

The county grand jury accused them in a 25-count indictment of grand larceny in the second degree, which covers larceny where extortion is not involved, and with conspiracy in the third degree.

They also were charged with possession of forged instruments, for documents they allegedly handled.

An "important announcement" scheduled later was expected to disclose the outcome of a federal grand jury probe into the "autobiography."

The grand jury investigations began six weeks ago.

At the outset, Irving and his 36-year-old wife took the Fifth Amendment and declined to discuss the circumstances surrounding preparation of the manuscript.

But last week, after authorities met at length with attorneys for the Irvings in numerous sessions, the couple agreed to testify. Each appeared before both grand juries for about 90 minutes.

The controversy began with the announcement last Dec. 7 that McGraw-Hill Inc. would publish an "autobiography" of Hughes, the billionaire recluse. Life magazine said at the same time it would run excerpts from the book.

Rosemont Enterprises, a Nevada corporation associated with Hughes, immediately denied the authenticity of the still unpublished volume. And a little-known novelist whose most successful book was "Fahrenheit 451" suddenly became the focus of world attention.

ToT Stock Show And Sale Hailed As A Great Success

Officials of the Top o' Texas Livestock Show have declared this year's show and sale to be the most successful held here in many years.

An all-time high number of cattle and pigs received "excellent" sale prices in the closing activities of the three-day show yesterday.

In the Hereford Breeders sale, 30 bulls brought a total of $18,905 for an average of $630.16. Six heifers brought a total of $1845 for an average of $307.50. Total sales amounted to $20,750.

The grand champion bull, consigned by Breeding and Caldwell of Miami, was purchased by Emmett Lefors of Pampa for $1585.

Lefors also purchased the reserve champion bull, consigned by J.P. Callihan of Conway, for $1750. It was the top selling bull for the show.

In the heifer division, the Harris Cattle Co. of Melrose, N.M., purchased the grand champion heifer, consigned by Robert L. Newton of Groom, for $330. The company also bought the reserve champion heifer, consigned by Laurel Maddox of Miami, for $440.

In the sale for the Top o' Texas Junior Livestock Show, 74 calves brought a total of $31,321.14 for an average price per pound of 44.95.

The grand champion calf, exhibited by Dale Wayne Jenkins of Lipscomb County, brought $1 per pound. It was purchased by Rupert Swadle, Master Mix Feeds; Farr Better Feeds of Hereford; and Armour and Company and Moody Farms of Pampa.

The reserve champion calf, shown by Glen Levin of Carson County 4-H, was purchased by the Pampa New Car Dealers at 60 cents per pound.

In the swine division, 121 pigs sold for a total of $11,862.96 for an average price per pound of 47.57 cents.

Purchaser of the grand champion pig was Sunray Packing Co. of Amarillo. Consigned by Joan Graves, Ochiltree County 4-H of Perryton, it brought $2.15 per pound.

The reserve champion pig, exhibited by Chris Skaggs, Gray County 4-H of Pampa, was purchased by the Canadian Production Credit Association at 85 cents per pound.

Officials said the support from the outlying communities was excellent and resulted in a better sale in general.

A complete list of all buyers will be published in the Pampa Daily News as soon as the entire list is compiled and checked, probably Sunday or Monday.

Airlines, Extortionists Said To Be Negotiating

NEW YORK (AP) — Trans-World Airlines officials were reported today to be negotiating with extortionists who planted bombs on two jetliners and demanded $2 million ransom. Police said one unsuccessful ransom delivery attempt had been made.

Extraordinary security precautions were in effect on TWA and other airlines after a sophisticated bomb exploded in the cockpit of an unoccupied TWA jet in Las Vegas Wednesday. A bomb was defused in the cockpit of a plane at Kennedy airport Tuesday.

A TWA spokesman would not comment on a report in the New York Daily News that negotiations were under way. Earlier the company refused to say "whether, or under what circumstances, it would agree to pay ransom."

Despite the company denials, New York police said a private jet that landed mysteriously at Atlanta Tuesday night carried the $2 million the plotters demanded but that "no actual turnover was made."

TWA Chairman Charles C. Tillinghast Jr. refused to discuss the case with newsmen at a dinner Wednesday night. "It would only prejudice our position to say what we know or what we are doing," he said.

Investigators continued to work on the theory that the bombs were planted by one or more persons who were present or former airlines industry employees because of their obvious intimate knowledge of airline operations.

Commenting on the Las Vegas blast, a TWA spokesman said, "Whoever put it on the airplane had to know his way around the industry. He would have to know a considerable amount about the aircraft."

Charles Wyre, TWA general manager in Las Vegas, said the plane had been searched in New York after the bomb was found aboard the first plane Tuesday, and searched again after it arrived in Las Vegas.

The still-unfolding story began Tuesday when TWA received an anonymous call warning that a bomb was planted on a 707 jet that had just taken off for Los Angeles. The plane turned back and a trained dog sniffed out the bomb in a brief case in the cockpit.

The caller also directed TWA officials to an airport locker where they found two duffelbags and a note warning that four jets would be bombed at six-hour intervals unless $2 million ransom was paid.

The first bomb was defused 12 minutes before it was set to detonate and two more deadlines passed without incident. Five minutes before the final deadline the bomb ripped the jetliner parked in McCarran airport in Las Vegas. It had arrived on a flight from New York seven hours earlier.

As a result of the blast, all the nation's airlines stepped up security procedures. Baggage was searched and parcels opened. The identity of passengers was double-checked.

Several airlines refused to allow passengers to check baggage through from one flight to the next, requiring that it be picked up and rechecked.

"The theory is that the ex-ortionist is not going to fly on the same plane with a live bomb set to go off," a security officer said.

Most airlines reported few cancellations because of the scare.

A TWA spokesman in New York said that bookings on international flights were holding at normal levels but that domestic traffic was "off modestly." He declined to elaborate.

Busing Issue Facing Tough House Battle

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House has set the stage for a tough conference battle with the Senate over legislation to curb school busing.

The House voted 272 to 139 Wednesday to instruct its 20 conference-committee members to stand by hard guidelines adopted in the House. The Senate has passed milder legislation, and the expected clash could prolong already drawn-out debate on the issue.

The conference committee is expected to start deliberations in about a week, at about the time President Nixon plans to announce how he plans to attack busing. Nixon is opposed to court-ordered busing to achieve racial balance, but hasn't disclosed how he thinks it should be fought.

The Senate and House anti-busing amendments are attached to a $24-billion higher-education bill.

The House instructions to conferees are not binding, but are designed to let panel members know that a softening of the House terminology could result in House refusal to accept the conference-committee version. A coalition of Republicans and Southern Democrats was joined by some big-city representatives in the Wednesday vote.

The House busing amendments would:

- Prohibit implementation of federal district court orders involving busing until all legal appeals have been exhausted.
- Prohibit use of federal funds for busing.
- Limit the authority of federal agencies to require schools to use state and local funds for busing in order to qualify for federal funds.

The Senate's busing provisions would:

- Postpone enforcement of court rulings requiring pupil transfers from one school district to another until not later than June 30, 1973.
- Prohibit use of federal funds unless requested by local school officials, but in no event could the funds be used if busing would endanger pupils' health or "impinge on the educational process."
- Prohibit federal officials from urging or requiring busing "unless constitutionally required."

Tim's Marriage
Goes On Rocks

NEW YORK (AP) — Tiny Tim said today he is contesting Miss Vicki's suit for separation or divorce because "I don't ever want to be separated from her. I'll always love her. I even love her more now than ever."

Moreover, he added in telephone interviews, should her suit be successful "if she marries again, I'll consider she's living in sin."

The long-tressed singer told newsmen earlier in the week that the bride he married before 20 million viewers on NBC's "Tonight" show had left him after he went through the fortune he made with falsetto versions of such old favorites as "Tiptoe Through the Tulips."

Pampa Expected To Organize Barbershop Singing Chapter

By LARRY HOLLIS
Local citizens who enjoy good male harmony singing may be in for a treat.
Plans have been initiated to organize a local chapter of the famous Society for the Preservation and Encouragement of Barber Shop Quartet Singing in America.
"That's a mouthful, but what does it mean?" you may be asking yourself.
An answer to this question can be gained by attending a "get acquainted" meeting tonight at 8 p.m. in the Quivira Room at Coronado Inn.
Lloyd B. Steinkamp, administrative field representative for the Society, will be conducting a meeting to seek out personnel interested in forming a chapter here.
"The interest has got to come from here," Steinkamp said, in order to get a very active organization going.
The purpose of the SPEBSQSA is "to promote and keep alive an American form of life," Steinkamp said.
Barbershop quartet singing is only one of three types of choral music having its birth in this country. The other two are the cowboy ballad and the Negro spiritual.
The chapter would be composed, hopefully, of between 30 and 40 males who would form themselves into a male chorus, Steinkamp explained. From these, members could organize into various quartets for competition, public performances and just groups who like to sing together.

The quartets would be limited strictly to male members from the chapter.
"I'm afraid I might run into some trouble with the women libbers on that," he said.
But putting two female voices with two male voices would make it difficult to have good barbershop harmonizing, which depends on a basic melody line with harmony above and below it.
Women are still invited to attend the meeting tonight, he said, especially the wives of any man interested in the organization.
"I like to try to eliminate the excuse that 'I'd like to come, but my wife won't let me,'" Steinkamp said.
Some of the chapters have women's auxiliaries to help arrange get-togethers, provide refreshments and sometimes do some of their own singing. Steinkamp feels the Society can have a tremendous influence on the family.
"It's rated G," he expressed.
Many of the chapters have picnics, sing-alongs and other activities of the family-togetherness type common to the Gay '90s, a period when barbershop singing really flourished.

A local chapter, which would be one of 750 in the United States and Canada, would meet weekly. Under the leadership of a musical director, the group would learn new songs, encourage the formation of quartets and prepare for performances.
An annual show would probably be put on in the community to raise funds for the non-profit Society and any projects it may undertake.
The national organization helps support the Institute of Logopedics at Wichita, Kan., which deals with afflictions of speech.
Various quartets would be available to perform at civic functions, hospitals, clubs and other activities.
Barbershop singing can be very rewarding, Steinkamp stressed.
"It can be very therapeutic, too," he added. "It enables a man just to get away from himself and his cares. It puts him in shape to fight the world for the next six days."
At tonight's meeting Steinkamp plans to show a 15-minute film, perhaps have the group sing a couple of songs and "just give the facts."

Police Query Two Students

Two 15-year-old boys were taken to the police station yesterday and their parents summoned following a fight inside the store known as Patrick's across from Pampa Junior High School.
It was the first time in weeks of disturbances between various students who frequented the store that officers were able to apprehend or even identify trouble makers.
The glass of a display case was broken in the affray and parents of both boys made restitution at the police station.

More than once the number of truculent students became so large that Patrick's and other stores in the 300 block of Cuyler locked their doors until the mob went away.
Police have been unable to do anything without the identity of troublemakers and school authorities say they have no jurisdiction over students off campus outside of school hours.

Final Concert Is Scheduled For Tonight

The final performance of the current season will be presented by the Pampa Community Concert Association at 8 p.m. tonight in the Pampa Junior High School auditorium.
Appearing here will be the Stockholm University Chorus, composed of university students in Stockholm.
The mixed chorus group is one of the foremost choral organizations in Scandinavia.
Tonight's concert will be one of the highlights of the association's membership renewal week in the annual member drive for the 1972-73 concert season.
All of next season's concerts will be staged in Pampa's new civic auditorium and renewals were reported going briskly this week.
Next Monday available memberships will be opened to the public plus the opportunity to accommodate more members due to the increased seating capacity in the new auditorium theater.

Pampa School Board To Hold Meet Friday

Members of the Pampa school board will meet at Carver Center Friday for a hearing requested by parents of a student, according to Dr. James Malone, superintendent.
Dr. Malone said the problem was one of application on the part of the Robert E. Lee Junior High student rather than discipline. Because it was not a discipline problem he said there was some quandary as to why the hearing request but that board members would be happy to help if they could.
Dr. Malone noted that this was an executive session but that an open meeting might be conducted at the close of the hearing to finalize vocational school plans. The official plans are back from Austin and he said all concerned were eager to get the project underway.

Youth Released From Hospital

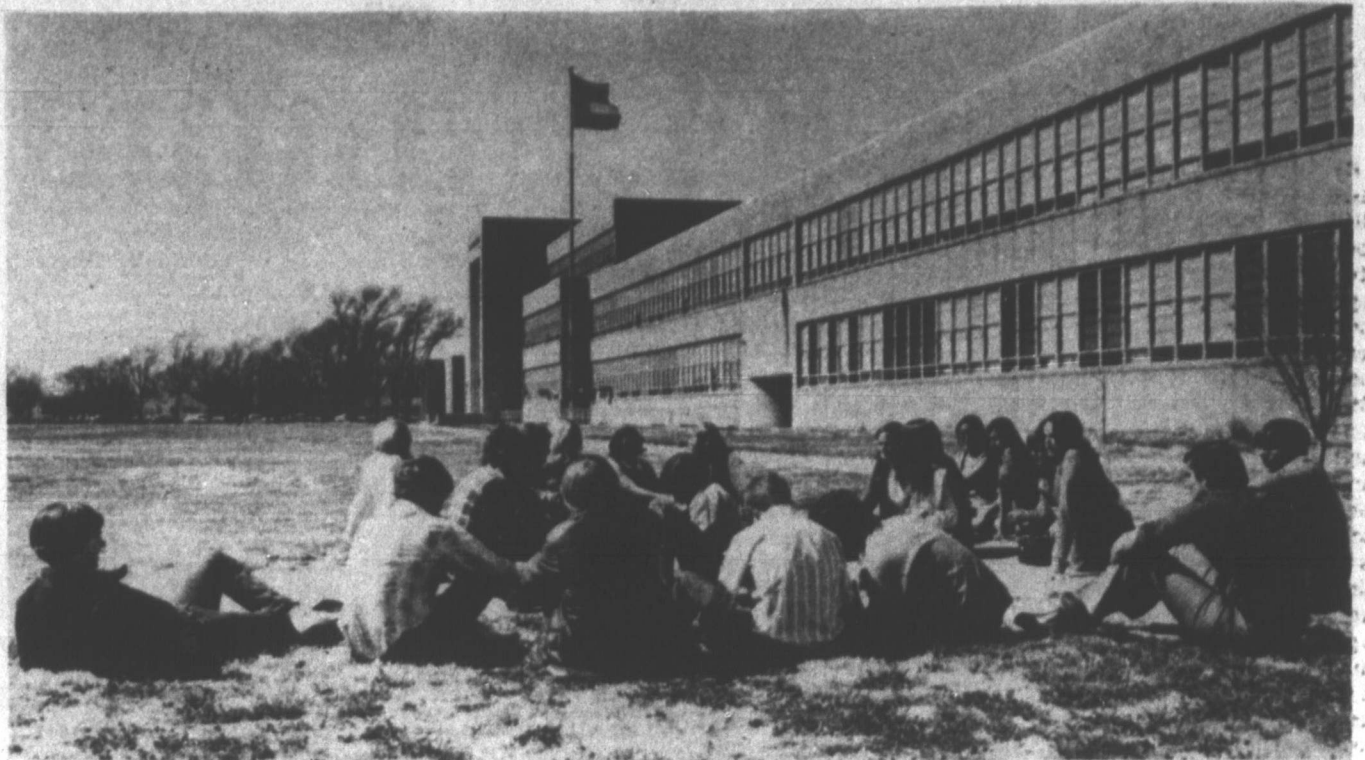

Pampa police officers were summoned to Highland General Hospital last night where a 19-year-old Pampa man was being treated for wounds his mother said were self-inflicted.
When officers arrived, the youth was being treated with the aid of his mother and a brother. There were scratches on his wrists according to the police report. The mother said they were made when her son sought to take his own life.

State Probes Sharp's Association With Mutscher On Bribery Trial

By MIKE COCHRAN
Associated Press Writer
ABILENE, Tex. (AP) — The state probed deeper into the twilight zone of Frank Sharp's financial empire Wednesday in pursuing its bribery-conspiracy charge against Texas House Speaker Gus Mutscher.

Prosecutors weaved through scores of defense objections and voluminous financial records to link Mutscher and two political allies to Sharp's insurance and banking enterprises.

The Houston promoter allegedly offered the defendants a sophisticated bribe in 1969 in return for their influence in gaining passage of two bank deposit bills.

Mutscher, aide Rush McGinty and state Rep. Tommy Shannon are accused of conspiring to accept the payoff. Mutscher is named in a separate indictment alleging acceptance of the bribe.

Meanwhile, the defense subpoenaed 28 more witnesses Wednesday afternoon, including 22 state representatives.

A pudgy, meticulous securities firm executive testified

Wednesday the three defendants estimated their combined wealth at almost $400,000 when they purchased National Bankers Life Insurance Co. stock in 1969.

Previous testimony showed the three defendants, another Mutscher aide and the speaker's father purchased the stock with loans obtained through the Sharpstown State Bank of Houston.

Sharp controlled both the bank and the insurance company.

Much of Wednesday's testimony centered around Harold Lehmann of Dallas, a former vice president of the Dallas brokerage firm of Ling & Co.

Quoting from Ling records, he testified over repeated defense objections that Mutscher estimated his net worth at $200,000 and his annual income at $30,000 in 1969.

The brokerage firm records showed Shannon put his personal wealth at $100,000 on a yearly income of $15,000.

The figures for McGinty were $90,000 and $15,000.

The records as interpreted through Lehmann, disclosed that Sharp introduced the defendants to Ling & Co. and that all three purchased NBL stock July 18, 1969.

The defendant's stock certificates were delivered subsequently to the Sharpstown bank and its president, Joseph Novotny.

Novotny is on call as a state witness.

Mutscher bought 10,000 shares of NBL stock for $130,000 and later received 2,000 shares of Master Control Inc. stock as a spinoff from the NBL purchase, Lehmann said.

Shannon and McGinty each purchased 4,115 shares of NBL for $45,775. Mutscher aide F. C. Shulte bought 2,000 shares for $22,250 and Mutscher's father obtained 5,000 shares for $65,000.

The defense, on cross-examination, pointed out that Shannon, McGinty and Shulte paid $11 1/3 per share for their stock while the Mutschers bought at $13.

"You have three of the co-conspirators purchasing at $11 1/3 and two at $13, is that right?" Austin lawyer Frank Maloney asked Lehmann.

"Yes Sir," he replied.

"Do you have any explanation why Mr. McGinty and Mr. Shannon paid $11 1/3 and Mr. Mutscher paid $13," Maloney asked.

"I do not," the witness responded.

Lehmann testified from charts and other records that NBL stock, once reached an all-time high of $23, sold on the open market for an average price of $14.75 on Sept. 11, 1969.

That was the date the defendants sold most of their stock for $20 in what prosecutors contend was a private sale to the Jesuit Fathers of Houston.

The state alleges that Sharp engineered the private sale two days after the controversial banking bills won legislative approval.

Besides the 22 state representatives, Shannon's attorney Joe Shannon Jr., also subpoenaed C. L. Ray of Marshall, an appeals court justice and former state representative; Felix McDonald, an Edinburg attorney and also a former state representative; Harris county Commissioner Jamie Bray; State Labor Commissioner Jack McLaughlin; Granbury lawyer John R. Wright and Tarrant County Probate Judge Robert Burnett.

Smith Says Court Forces Him To Call Special Session

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — Gov. Preston Smith said Wednesday a Texas Supreme Court decision requiring legislative approval before tax dollars can be spent on primary elections will force him to call the legislature into special session.

Smith commented 2 1/2 hours after the court issued a ruling that dashed his hopes for avoiding a politically chaotic special session before the May 6 primaries.

"The Supreme Court ruling apparently means that we are going to be forced into a special session to finance the primary elections in Texas," Smith said.

But his press aide, Carlton Carl, said that despite Smith's use of the word "apparently" there was no question that he would call a session.

"He will," Carl said emphatically.

Smith said the court decision "means that we must re-evaluate the problem, make every necessary advance preparation and then call the session at the proper time. Just when that will be I must truthfully say I do not know at this time."

"Let me assure the people of Texas that I will call the session at the proper time to take care of the real needs of this state, and that we will have primary elections this year just as we have in the past. That is my first responsibility in this matter," the governor said in a written statement.

Nixon Takes Action To End Abuses Of Security System

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon, declaring that bureaucrats have been using secrecy stamps too often, ordered sweeping new procedures Wednesday aimed at ending "the many abuses of the security system."

In essence, Nixon directed that fewer documents be classified in the future and that those already designated "top secret," "Secret" and "confidential" be made public more quickly than in the past.

In a statement issued as he signed an executive order for the first major overhaul of classification procedures since 1953, Nixon said:

"The many abuses of the security system can no longer be tolerated. Fundamental to our way of life is the belief that when information which properly belongs to the public is systematically withheld by those in power, the people soon become ignorant of their own affairs, distrustful of those who manage them, and—eventually—incapable of determining their own destinies."

The President contended that the old set-up "failed to meet the standards of an open and democratic society, allowing too many papers to be classified for too long a time."

He said "classification has frequently served to conceal bureaucratic mistakes or to prevent embarrassment to officials and administrations."

Aides acknowledged that the impact of Nixon's directive could only be determined after it goes into effect on June 1. But they predicted a significant reduction in governmental secrecy because the President is sharply reducing the number of officials authorized to impose the "top secret" classification.

In like vein, the top-secret designation in future can be used in only a dozen departments and agencies plus the executive office of the president. Under the old rules, 24 departments and agencies had such powers.

A key Nixon proviso sets up automatic timetables for downgrading and eventually declassifying all secret documents except the most sensitive. In most cases, documents are to be made public in from 6 to 10 years after being classified.

The aim is to release secret information after 8 years and confidential documents after 6 years.

Even where the most sensitive information is concerned, automatic declassification is called for after 30 years unless the head of the department involved states in writing that it should continue to be withheld on grounds it is essential to the national security or its disclosure would place an individual—typically an intelligence agent—in immediate jeopardy of physical harm.

In future, classification stamps can be employed only if unauthorized disclosure of a document "could reasonably be expected" to damage the national security. Heretofore material could be classified if there were any expectation of damage, however remote.

(AP) — Austin College is one of five colleges from throughout the nation cited for distinguished achievement by the American Association of Colleges for Teacher Education (AACTE) for the development of its Austin Teacher Program, a five-year program terminating in the master of arts degree.

The award recognizes four teacher education institutions for outstanding programs. A fifth institution received the Distinguished Achievement Award.

Cited along with Austin College were: Peru State College, Neb.; University of Dayton, Ohio; and the University of Washington, Seattle. Temple University at Philadelphia, Pa., received the Distinguished Achievement Award. Colleges and universities comprising AACTE membership prepare 90 per cent of the nation's teachers and administrative personnel.

Kidnaped Calif. Girl Freed; Ransom Turned In To Police

VISALIA, Calif. (AP) — A kidnaped 9-year-old girl who was held for $300,000 ransom was released by her abductors, even though money left for them was found by a stranger and turned in to police.

Michelle Wiebe appeared at the door of the Kingsburg Motel, 15 miles from her home, shortly after midnight. She appeared to be unhurt. Not long before, her father had left the ransom money in a location specified by the kidnapers, where the stranger found it.

The girl was taken by three masked men who forced their way into the Wiebe home Monday night, said Visalia Police Chief Ray Forsyth.

The men left behind a note saying they had taken the child. The family later received a call demanding $300,000.

He said someone passing by saw Wiebe leave the money, became curious, picked up the suitcase and took it home. The unidentified man telephoned police after discovering the $300,000.

The kidnapers failed to show up to pick up the money, Forsyth said. He declined to comment on any possible leads in the case.

BUENOS AIRES (AP) — Isabel Martinez de Peron, third wife of Argentine ex-president Juan D. Peron, has left for Madrid to report to her exiled husband on the deeply divided Peronist movement.

She spent nearly three months in Argentina, trying to patch up quarrels in the women's branch and between Peronist labor leaders and revolutionary militants in the movement's youth groups.

3-4 cup uncooked converted rice

3-4 cup chopped onions

1 clove garlic, crushed

2 tablespoons minced parsley

1 tablespoon minced fresh mint leaves or dry mint to taste

Generous dash of pepper

1-2 cups cold water

1 can (8 ounces) tomato sauce

Wash peppers; cut off tops; remove seeds and white membranes. Drop peppers into boiling salted water; simmer 5 minutes; drain. Sprinkle salt into heated Dutch oven; add lamb; cook, crumbling with a fork, just until meat is no longer pink; remove with slotted spoon. Melt margarine in the Dutch oven; add rice, onion and garlic; saute, stirring often, until onions are softened—about 5 minutes; add parsley, mint and pepper. Stir in cold water and tomato sauce; bring to a boil; reduce heat; cover and simmer until rice is tender and liquid is absorbed—about 20 minutes; stir in lamb. Spoon mixture into peppers. Stand peppers upright and close together in a shallow baking dish. Add enough hot water just to cover bottom of dish. Bake in a preheated 350-degree oven 35 to 40 minutes. Makes 6 servings.

8 eggs, slightly beaten

1-2 cup cooked whole kernel corn

1-8 teaspoon hot pepper sauce

Shredded Cheddar cheese

In 10-inch skillet, cook green pepper in butter until tender. In bowl, stir soup until smooth; gradually blend in eggs, corn and hot pepper sauce. Pour into skillet. Cook over low heat; do not stir. As mixture begins to set around edges, gently lift cooked portions with spatula so that thin, uncooked portion can flow to the bottom. Continue gently lifting cooked portions until eggs are completely set, but still moist (about 8 minutes). Garnish with cheese. Makes 4 servings.

Combine first 10 ingredients; mix well. Add beef; beat well with fork. Spread on bottom and sides of 9-inch pie pan. Prepare potatoes as directed on package, browning very lightly; spoon into beef shell; drizzle with melted butter or margarine. Bake at 350 350 degrees for 30 minutes or until beef is browned. Makes 10.

Sea turtles are completely aquatic, and their limbs are actually flippers with claws.

Install GAS air conditioning now and beat the rush that always comes with the first hot days. While everyone else is waiting on installation, central GAS air conditioning will be quietly and efficiently cooling your whole house. And another benefit of installing now is you have the time to consider the advantages that GAS air conditioning has over the other kinds.

A GAS air conditioning system is ruggedly built and operates on a simple principle. Heat from the steady blue flame circulates a refrigerant through the system to cool the air. There are fewer major moving parts and no compressor to break down or wear out. It's this simplicity that gives GAS air conditioning its low operating costs, its long life with no loss of cooling capacity, and its easy maintenance with few repair bills.

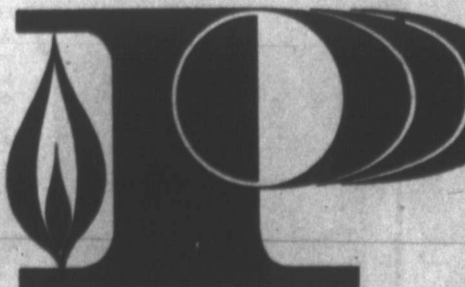

Install Gas Air Conditioning NOW?

GAS air conditioning also filters the air to reduce dust and pollen.

If you have a forced air heating system, you may be able to use the same ductwork for GAS air conditioning.

Court Upholds Decision On Selection Of Jury

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — The constitutional amendment that gave 18-year-olds the vote did not give them a right to serve on Texas juries, the Court of Criminal Appeals ruled Wednesday.

The court upheld the burglary conviction of Joe Shelby of Lubbock, 18, who sought a re-trial on grounds persons 21 were excluded from the jury that assessed him five year's imprisonment.

Presiding Judge John F. Onion Jr. said that a state law limiting jury service to persons 21 and over still applies.

Shelby's attorney said there was a conflict with a new law requiring county authorities to make up jury wheels from lists of registered voters.

"We cannot agree that such a conflict exists," Onion wrote for the unanimous court.

"We find nothing in such statutes to require the designated officials to ignore the qualifications of jurors ... and to automatically include in the jury wheel all names on the voter registration list regardless of the officials' knowledge of lack of age, felony conviction, lack of citizenship, etc., on the part of an individual," he said.

Defense lawyers maintained that the 26th amendment to the U.S. Constitution, which gave 18-year-olds the right to vote, also gave them the right to serve on juries.

But the court disagreed. "Surely the states still retain the right to determine the qualifications of the jurors to serve in its own courts and may place the burden of such public duty on certain age groups, even providing exemption, though not disqualification, on account of age. We do not view the United States Constitution from prohibiting a state from confining juror selection to citizens, persons within certain ages, etc." Onion wrote.

Subway Proposed For Houston Area

HOUSTON (AP) — A subway is among nine alternatives being proposed for a Houston rapid transit system, the city's chief transportation consultant said Tuesday night.

Consultant Robert A. Keith said, however, that the $1.5 billion system would have only three miles of subways, all in the central business district. It would cover 106 miles and use buses and trains in other areas.

Other proposals under consideration range from a minimal system that would attempt to improve bus service to the building of special lanes for buses in the most congested areas of the city.

The earliest construction could start on a rapid transit system for Houston would be 1975, Keith said, and it would take at least six years to complete the work.

UT Receives Equipment To Study Gas Reaction

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — The University of Texas has received a unique piece of scientific equipment to study gas reactions.

Called a "high-performance shock tube," the device is at the University on a long-term loan from the Redstone Arsenal in Alabama.

Dr. William C. Gardiner, associate professor of chemistry, discovered the mothballed equipment while on a consulting trip to Alabama last year.

"Shock tubes are used by aeronautical engineers, physicists and chemists to study the properties of gases at high temperatures and pressures," Gardiner said during an interview.

The new equipment can heat a sample of reactive gases to temperatures hotter than the surface of the sun in times shorter than a billionth of a second, Gardiner said.

"Ensuing chemical reactions can then be studied by observing light emitted or absorbed by the reacting hot gas," he added.

"In our case," says Gardiner, "we obtained this shock tube primarily because of NASA's decision not to use flourine for rocket propulsion."

The National Aeronautics and Space Administration once considered using flourine rather than liquid oxygen for deep space missions, then shifted to hydrogen and oxygen as a power source. The decision left idle a powerful and very expensive piece of equipment.

"Many universities have shock tube installations," Dr. Gardiner explained, "but only Oxford University, Goettingen University in Germany, and the Russian science center at Novosibirsk have a device comparable to the one we inherited from NASA."

The shock tube itself is approximately 40 feet long when set up in its laboratory configuration.

'Television And Radio

NEW YORK (AP) — Audiences old enough to remember those old movies about life at West Point must have had a fine, nostalgic time with ABC's 90-minute pilot program, "The Rookie," on Tuesday night.

Almost 30 minutes passed before the first glimmers of plot appeared, but by then the viewers had received a pretty good idea of the ordeals and fun of a police academy. It was very much like frosh year in a 1938 movie except Darren McGavin was playing a tough, barking police officer instead of the football coach.

Eventually the show got around to a crazy cripple running around grabbing girls and finally buying a gun. The mad sniper became the subject of predictable melodrama but not before there was a leisurely exploration of the hangups of some of the novice policemen — the sensitivity to racial remarks by a young black, an abhorrence of violence by a free soul who resented having to shave his beard to comply with regulations.

The parts of the stalwart rookie cops were played by four good-looking unknowns — and if the pilot sells as a series, you can bet they will have their troubles with wives, sweethearts and rigged charges of corruption.

It was dull, imitative stuff, an obvious cross between "Dragnet" and "The Interns" with a little sexy stuff thrown in for shock value and to fill the time. Perhaps ABC is in the market for a half-hour police series in the manner of Jack Webb. However, Webb does this sort of thing better than his imitators.

Meanwhile, ABC's "Mod Squad" wrapped up its season with an episode that presented

Andy Griffith as an honest citizen who testified about a murder he witnessed — and found himself and his family threatened as a result. The story seemed to have been spun off the real-life Kitty Genovese killing in New York — when no one was willing to risk coming forward.

Griffith was impressive in the role — down-to-earth and believable.

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Singer Bobby Goldsboro has been awarded $3,458.26 by a Circuit Court jury for damages to his Rolls Royce.

Goldsboro sued W. J. Stalcup and Ed Stalcup of Franklin, Tenn., for damages arising from a 1971 collision.

Mary Magdalene

By DAVID POLING

Jesus drew a crowd. His teaching was both personal and relevant. Although masses gathered, He addressed himself to the individual. Men and woman responded, with the most dramatic results seen in the lives of broken people, and of all the personalities mentioned in the New Testament, none was more desperate or determined than Mary of Magdalene, a prostitute living near Capernaum. According to Luke, Jesus forgave her sins and "seven devils" were cast out.

We don't know the personality make-up but it has been recorded that Mary Magdalene was a seven-time loser. As part of the crowd attracted to Jesus, Mary received His forgiveness.

much to the alarm of proper religious people.

Here was a prostitute who had seduced sailors, corrupted officials, broken families. With the shocking frankness that is the hallmark of the New Testament, Mary not only is forgiven by the Master but becomes an important member of His fellowship.

Mary had the resources and cash, the energy and loyalty to accompany Jesus and His entourage on many preaching missions. Her devotion was rewarded by God, for she was the first person reported in the Gospel of John to have discovered the Resurrection of Easter morning. Mary Magdalene, just one person in the crowd, but finding her true self when she followed Jesus Christ.

Worry Clinic

By George W. Crane, Ph.D., M.D.

Is Tad correct in saying President Nixon is too judicial to be a strong executive? As a rule, at a boxing match the public likes the slugger instead of the boxer. Thus, the crowd favored Dempsey vs. Tunney, and Truman vs. Dewey.

CASE T-552: Tad P., aged 32, teaches Political Science. "Dr. Crane," he began, "I note that you have an entire chapter in your college textbook that is devoted to Political Psychology."

"So what do you think of the remark I heard recently about President Nixon?"

"It was suggested that he would have made a far better Supreme Court Justice than President."

"For he is more judicial than executive-minded."

"He waits overly long to make up his mind and thus creates the idea that he is different and uncertain of his course."

strategy is to let the communication media nurture ideas that may have been set off by Cabinet Members as "trial balloons."

F.D. Roosevelt thus would delegate certain of his Cabinet Members to spring new programs on the public.

The radio and magazines, plus the newspapers, then banded those new ideas about until pollsters, such as Dr. Gallup, could take a reading of the public pulse.

If the trial balloons curried favor, then F.D. Roosevelt would seize them; if not, they were attributed to foolish Cabinet Members, who thus served as the sacrificial "goats" for the White House.

But a president also faces a doubly delicate situation when he has a hostile Congress.

For that Congress acts like the referee in a boxing match.

And the boxing referee may ignore the crowd's wishes.

Dempsey, for example, had the spectators in his favor in that famous "long count" world championship fight with Tunney.

But Tunney got the decision!

In a national election, therefore, the crowd finally determines the decision and this apparently reverses the boxing ring situation.

But long before the crowd has a chance to vote, the legislative referee (Congress) may have thwarted the president till he no longer retains the favor of the average voter.

In general, however, the voters expect an executive to be a slugger, not a dapper boxer who feints and backs away.

McBrayer-Holland Vows Exchanged In White Deer

Miss Melissa Ann McBrayer of White Deer became the bride of Roger Dale Holland of Pampa at 2 p.m. Feb. 26, in the First Baptist Church of White Deer.

Parents of the bride are Mrs. Patricia McBrayer of Denver, Colo. and Bob McBrayer of Amarillo. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. William H. Holland, north of Pampa.

THE CEREMONY
Rev. Ron Ledbetter officiated for the double-ring service.

Mrs. Shelia Timmons, organist, played the theme from "Love Story" and "Romeo and Juliet." Mrs. John Garcia sang "Ave Maria," and "Walk Hand in Hand."

Church decorations included seven-branched candelabra, entwined with salal foliage, and two urns filled with arrangements of purple stock, carnations, snap dragons and orchid mums.

THE BRIDE
Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a gown of silk illusion over bridal satin. The bodice of silk illusion over bridal satin was designed with a Victorian neckline and a lace panel down the front. The long full sleeves, cuffed at the wrist, were accented with lace. The floor-length skirt, accented with a center-front, double-row panel of wedding lace, was styled with a chapel train that fell from a satin bow at the back.

Her shoulder-length veil of silk illusion fell from a headpiece shaped like gladioli, accented with a velvet bow. She carried a bouquet of stark blossoms of anemones and baby's breath.

ATTENDANTS
Miss Becky McBrayer was maid of honor. She wore a floor-length gown of purple organza, styled with a purple and white bodice. She carried a nosegay of lavender and orchid spring flowers.

James Anderson of Miami served as best man, and ushers were Eugene Hapeman and Danny Hammer.

MOTHERS
The bride's mother wore a brown and white jacket dress with bone accessories. The bridegroom's mother wore an apricot knit dress with orange accessories. Her corsage was an orchid-colored cymbidium orchid.

MRS. ROGER DALE HOLLAND

with bone accessories. The bridegroom's mother wore an apricot knit dress with orange accessories. Her corsage was an orchid-colored cymbidium orchid.

RECEPTION
For the reception in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Bill Terry, the serving table was covered with a pink linen cloth and centered with an arrangement of pink snap dragons, purple stock and carnations.

Miss Tonye Terry presided at the punch bowl, and Miss Bethie Gallegly served the cake. Guests were registered by Miss Paula Holland, sister of the bridegroom.

For the wedding trip to Amarillo, the bride wore a purple velvet pant suit. Her corsage was of the flowers from her bridal bouquet.

The couple will be at home at 104 S. Wells, Pampa.

AFFILIATIONS
The bride, a 1971 graduate of Pampa High School, attended the Dallas Fashion Merchandising college. The bridegroom, a graduate of Miami High School, attended Texas State Technical Institute in Amarillo. He is employed by Jay Holland.

OUT-OF-TOWN GUESTS
Out-of-town guests included Mrs. G. E. Groninger, and Mr. and Mrs. Ed Harmon, all of Pampa; Mr. and Mrs. Irvin Brown, Paula Lane, Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Terry, all of Skellytown; Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Ray Scribner, and Miss Lynn, of Spearman; Miss Amy Harmon of McLean; Mr. and Mrs. Earl Hull, Clarence Beason, Rocky Burris, all of Wichita, Kans.; Mr. and Mrs. Milo Jantzen and children of Ringwood, Okla.; Mrs. Maude Holland, Bob Holland, Mr. and Mrs. Glenn Holland and family, all of Erick, Okla.; Mrs. Odell Tanner and Stephen of Elk City, Okla.; Dale Frasier of Archer City, Tex.; Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Holland, Mr. and Mrs. Gene Anderson, all of Miami.

Day and Night Jumper
Long jumpers made of clingy nylon can be worn alone as an evening dress for a night on the town. Or with a brightly patterned blouse underneath, it becomes again a daytime jumper.

Short for Spring
Short dresses are becoming serious competition for the longer-length evening dresses that have been so popular. The spring collections featured the short dress with ruffles, backless and done in a party-fabric, such as taffeta.

Mother should learn trust is a two-way street

By Abigail Van Buren

(© 1972 by Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Synd., Inc.)

DEAR ABBY: I yielded to an impulse and opened a letter addressed to my daughter. It was from a girl friend of hers in another city whose mother was (and still is) a good friend of mine. The envelope was partially unglued so I didn't have to do much to open it all the way.

Abby, this girl friend is 16 years old, and she wrote in the most casual manner about a sexual encounter she had had. It absolutely appalled me!

I have no intention of showing the letter to my daughter, who is a couple of years older than this girl. I found out about some immoral involvement my daughter had last year, and I told her if anything like that ever happens again she can no longer live at home. She promised it wouldn't, and I hope she is keeping that promise. If someone had told me earlier of her adventures, I might have stepped in sooner and spared us both considerable agony.

What shall I do with the letter? Should I send it to the girl's mother? [I think it would kill her.] Should I write to the girl and explain why I am not giving her letter to my daughter? You write so often that parents should trust their children. I trusted mine, and now I wish I hadn't.

PERMANENTLY DISILLUSIONED

DEAR DISILLUSIONED: Don't send the girl's letter to her mother, and don't return it to the girl. Give it to your daughter. You have no right to censor her mail or withhold it from her. The mutual trust which is essential for a good mother-daughter relationship is obviously lacking. If it's not too late, go to work on it. Trust is a two-way street.

DEAR ABBY: Why is it that when a woman announces that she is pregnant, all the other women in the company immediately start to rehash their own pregnancies? Invariably they all had a very hard time delivering, and one keeps trying to top the other with tales of how long they were in labor, etc.

My wife is four months pregnant, and she hasn't had one sick day, but all the talk about "rough delivering" has scared her half to death.

What's wrong with some women? Please print this. It may stop the cackling of some of those hens!

PEEVED IN MARYVILLE, TENN.

DEAR PEEVED: All right, it's done. Perhaps some of those "hens" are only looking longingly back on their laying days.

DEAR ABBY: Will you please do a tremendous service for many and ask those who send flowers to a funeral to PLEASE request that their full names and addresses be put on their cards?

I have spent days trying to find out who some of the folks are who sent flowers to my mother's funeral. (One card said, "My deepest sympathy, Betty." No last name, no city. Just "Betty.")

You would think that when a florist takes an order for flowers HE would insist that all cards be signed with full names and addresses since he is the one the family will pester later when trying to track down the senders to thank them.

STILL HUNTING

DEAR STILL: Not only should flowers for funerals have cards with full names and addresses, but all gifts should have TWO such cards to identify the sender. One on the inside, which invariably gets thrown out with the tissue paper. And one on the outside, which is sure to be illegible due to water damage or rough handling.

Girl Scouts Celebrate Sixtieth Anniversary

Girl Scouts of the U.S.A. is celebrating its 60th anniversary on March 12, and Quivira Girl Scout Council is commemorating this event with an International Festival Saturday, from 11 a.m. to 6 p.m. at the Aluminum Dome in Borger.

Admission is open to the public and costs 25 cents per person or by Girl Scout Membership card.

Each troop in Quivira Council participating in the festival will represent a separate country and will set up displays depicting their country. Demonstrations of crafts of various countries will be part of the festival activities. Each troop will also appear on the festival program with a 5 to 10 minute presentation.

From the eighteen girls in the first Girl Scout troop in Atlanta in 1912, Girl Scouting has grown to a nation-wide movement boasting a membership of nearly 3.4 million girls. Girl Scouts all over the United States are celebrating this important 60th anniversary of Girl Scouting.

"Quivira Girl Scout Council's International Festival is planned for girls to learn about the customs, crafts, and Girl Scouting around the world. The Festival gives girls the opportunities to share their new knowledge and skills with their families, their friends, and other Girl Scouts."

International friendship is a basic concept of Girl Scouting and very appropriate for this celebration," said Mrs. Larry Nash of Borger, festival coordinator.

Taking part in the event will be troops from the council's entire 10-county area. On the program from Pampa and the area will be Junior Scouts from Miami, songs and games from Ethiopia; Troop 87-30 from Pampa, skit on Nigeria; Troops 159 and 215 from Skellytown, songs from Greece; Troop 8 of Pampa, a dance from Denmark; Troops 90 and 60 from Pampa, songs from Mexico; Troops 119, 144 and 4, from Pampa, songs and games from Brazil; and Troops 69 and 91 from Pampa, a skit on France.

FRIDAY, MARCH 10

Your birthday today: Your environment this year contains so many challenges that you cannot follow a middle course. Experiment, seek temporary expedients, improvise in every meaningful phase of your life. The turmoil generates some great moments of inspiration, achievement. Today's natives are versatile, may suffer self-indulgent habits and the consequences.

Aries [March 21-April 19]: Good news should arrive at the last minute. Take home a pleasant surprise for your loved ones.

Taurus [April 20-May 20]: You meet somebody you've often heard about but have never seen until now. Strangers intrigue you, stir a potentially profitable scheme.

Gemini [May 21-June 20]: Skip silly, strenuous diversions which are suddenly offered. Health-care consultations yield priceless advice; make full use of new wisdom.

Cancer [June 21-July 22]: Normal work efforts suffice for the moment; leave major experiments, the beginning of drastic changes for a better time.

Leo [July 23-Aug. 22]: Mobilize your vivid personality and you can sell any idea.

Channeling energy is easier than usual, but requires sensuousness.

Virgo [Aug. 23-Sept. 22]: One using at a time does it, even tho it bears little financial return. New situations deserve thought before you plunge into them.

Libra [Sept. 23-Oct. 22]: Be tactful and charming, but take people up on promises and pretensions. Comparing prices pays off.

Scorpio [Oct. 23-Nov. 21]: Put in your bid for a larger allowance, seek grants or scholarships if you're eligible. Old friends are more accessible.

Sagittarius [Nov. 22-Dec. 21]: Stretch yourself a bit to stay ahead of details. Notes on additional side projects prove useful later.

Capricorn [Dec. 22-Jan. 19]: Business arrangements provide pleasurable experiences. Technical information, examples of new ways of using old skills become available if you're alert.

Aquarius [Jan. 20-Feb. 18]: Fresh contacts are most interesting. Confide little until you are more familiar with their ways of viewing things.

Pisces [Feb. 19-March 20]: The zest of living distracts you from long-time annoyances. Make your getaway, keep going.

A Lot of Waste Is Going to Gas

By DON OAKLEY

Chalk up one more ecological crisis. This one has to do with the spontaneous generation of methane gas from animal droppings and other organic wastes.

Balloon and rocket observations indicate that this gas rises into the upper air in sufficient quantities to reduce the stratosphere's ozone content. And the ozone layer is all that stands between us and the sun's harmful ultra-violet radiation.

It is not clear who worried about the situation over past years when all the world was a zoo, or as recently as 100 years ago when 60 million flatulent bison roamed the West with nobody to pick up after them. Most people will conclude that there are more urgent problems on the ecological agenda.

But one of those problems is the world's shrinking reserves of the kind of natural gas we pump out of the ground and which has become urgently desirable as a source of pollution-free energy even as supplies dwindle. It could be that the methane problem will help solve the natural gas problem.

It is reported that some farmers on Taiwan are already using pig-produced methane to heat their houses. A gentleman in Devonshire, England, runs his car on methane obtained from chicken droppings.

According to a scientist with the University of Arizona, the technology is available for converting urban and agricultural wastes on a large scale into usable methane. The manure from a feedlot producing 100,000 cattle could supply the fuel gas needs for 30,000 people, says Hinrich Bohn in Environment magazine.

Speaking of technology, by curious happenstance a U.S. company has just claimed an environmental break-through in the area of municipal solid waste disposal by developing a process that converts organic wastes, such as paper and garbage, into a premium fuel gas.

Not only that, says Linde Division of Union Carbide, but solid wastes, including everything from metals, plastics, glass, tires and furniture to the kitchen sink, are fused into a slag which has several potential applications.

The company is looking for a municipality in which to demonstrate the system on a full-scale basis.

A lot of gas has been generated in recent years over the energy and pollution crisis facing the world.

Not all of it, fortunately, has been hot air.

Revolt? No, Revolution

Disabuse yourself of any idea, or hope, that the youth rebellion is one of those things that will have its day and pass away. The subculture which has been characterized by a "new morality," drug use, rock music and social revolt is evidence of nothing less than a new stage of human evolution.

That's the contention of author Robert Hunter, in a new book, "The Storming of the Mind."

The children of the age of "future shock" have adapted, through "psycho-revolution," he says, to a point that has widened the generation gap until it is now "as great as the gap between the homo sapiens and Neanderthal man."

This may seem like a slight exaggeration, until we recall that Neanderthal man, as much as we know about him, was a shaggy, hairy, ill-dressed, brutish-looking character who probably indulged in strange nature rites and who had few of the graces we associate with civilization—and then look around at some of the representatives of this alleged new stage in human evolution.

Anyway, Hunter brought it up. We didn't.

BRUCE BLOSSAT

You Wonder What Makes George Run

By BRUCE BLOSSAT

MIAMI (NEA)—What makes George Wallace run? Here he is, going hard in the 1972 Florida presidential primary. You check back and discover that he has been, with one exception, involved in a major political campaign every two years since 1956.

He ran for and lost the governorship of Alabama in 1958, then won it in 1962. In 1964 he entered Democratic presidential primaries and scored surprisingly high percentages even as he lost in Wisconsin, Indiana and Maryland. In 1968, legally barred from seeking reelection as governor, he successfully put up his late first wife, Lurleen, for the job and did the heavy campaigning. In 1968, he got 10 million votes as a third party candidate for the presidency. In 1970 he won the Alabama governorship a second time. Only 1960 saw him idle.

Whatever drove him at the outset when few in the nation knew of him, it is clear that great zest for the game spur him now.

He loves the sounds and sights of battle. He relishes the national spotlight which has never left him since 1964. Most of all, he loves to shake up the northern establishment—which usually means the national Democratic Party and its aspiring leaders.

Recently, he joined his fellow Democratic governors at a party caucus in

A—Saturday, named for the Roman god Saturn.

Q—in what area are rattlesnakes found?

A—They occur from central Argentina north to southern Canada.

Q—Who is credited with designing the first Christmas Card?

A—John C. Horsley, 19th century British artist, in 1843.

Q—What is the shape of the moon's orbit?

A—Like all celestial orbits in space, it is an ellipse.

Q—Were Tyre and Siden Jewish cities?

A—No, these Biblical cities were in Phoenicia, on the seacoast to the northwest.

Q—How many strands of hair does the average person have?

A—Blondes have the most with 120,000 strands; brunettes have 100,000 and redheads 80,000.

Annapolis, Md. Wallace just toyed with them, dropping hints to governor after governor that he might enter their primaries and upset the applecart. Said Gov. John Gilligan of Ohio:

"I never heard more nervous laughter in my life."

Speaking of those governors, a political observer observed:

"Have you ever heard a man's voice turn white?"

Most of Wallace's many detractors concede that he can be very effective as he punctures the pomposities and hypocrisies of his northern colleagues and rivals. But the tougher part of his game is trying to upset the serious political calculations of presidential candidates. That's really what he is talking about when he says, as he did the other night in West Palm Beach: "I am a serious candidate."

Wallace never wearies of recounting his 1964 primary votes, nor his big 10 million in 1968. Right now, in Florida, he leads a pack of 11 presidential candidates and is thus a source of maximum annoyance to such contenders as Senators Edmund Muskie, Hubert Humphrey, Henry Jackson, George McGovern and New York Mayor John Lindsay. A sizable Wallace victory in Florida could quickly crush the hopes of one or two aspirants.

And it won't end with Florida. He expects to compete hard in other 1972 primaries in Tennessee, Indiana, Wisconsin, Pennsylvania, Maryland. He believes he can win at least two of these.

His ambition burns so hot that he doesn't like to hear anything negative about his prospects. He was disapproving as he told a reporter recently:

"I saw your piece the other day. You said I was slipping."

Probably Wallace is not as strong nationally as he was in 1968. Polls edge him down a bit. But he has not yet truly slipped. Indeed, the school busing issue may have given him a new lease on life.

George Wallace is not going to win the 1972 Democratic nomination. Nor will he determine who will win. But he will have an effect on the race. And that is what the nation's head political disrupter wants at the very minimum.

Your Health

By Lawrence Lamb, M.D.
Blood Tests Reveal Pernicious Anemia

Dear Dr. Lamb—Can you tell me why I am always so tired? I go to bed tired and I get up tired. I have been told that I have pernicious anemia. I was tested but the test did not show any proof of this condition. If I have been getting B-12 shots for the past four years once a month and sometimes more often. Besides always being tired I sometimes feel short of breath and a little dizzy. I also feel like something in my throat is choking me. I have low blood pressure. It stays around 102 to 110. My doctor does not let me go for blood tests or any kind of check on my blood. He tells me it is not necessary as long as I get B-12 shots. Blood tests will not reveal anything. Anemia will not show up. I am thinking of changing doctors because I feel these shots should build me up and I shouldn't feel so tired all the time.

Dear Reader—In the first place, if you don't have pernicious anemia or B-12 deficiency, there is no reason for you to be taking B-12 shots. In the second place if you do have pernicious anemia and need shots for it, the one useful way of telling whether your anemia is corrected or not is by a blood test. In fact, it is very difficult to tell whether a person is anemic or not without blood tests. Most doctors would say impossible.

There are many reasons for being tired and anemia is only one. Very often emotional factors are involved in fatigue. Other times it is inactivity (which also may be a manifestation of emotional problems) and sometimes it is improper diet. Less often it is from physical fatigue.

Fatigue is a sign of many different diseases. It covers the gamut from tuberculosis to diabetes so I am not going to try to tell you what causes your fatigue. It may indeed be related to your low blood pressure, although many people who have low blood pressure have normal amounts of energy, are very healthy, and usually live longer than individuals with normal or higher blood pressure. This of course presupposes that the relatively low blood pressure is not a sign of some important underlying disease. Low blood pressure and fatigue can be two symptoms.

It seems to me that the first thing for you to do is find out whether you have anemia or not and whether you need B-12 shots or not. That will require some blood examinations and perhaps some other tests.

Of course, I don't know that you have quoted your doctor correctly, but if you cannot feel certain that your blood is being tested and have some idea of whether or not you have an anemia, I think, indeed, you should get another doctor.

Liberty is the only thing you cannot have unless you are willing to give it to others.—William Allen White, journalist.

Inside Washington

Amnesty Hearings:
A Good Hokey Show

By ROBERT A. ALLEN

WASHINGTON — Those amnesty propaganda hearings being dexterously stage-managed by Sen. Edward Kennedy are a straight-out instance of political hokery.

They are part of his covert strategy of running for President while earnestly disclaiming doing so, of busily campaigning and grandstanding while all the time insistently denying he is a candidate.

Clearcut evidence of this is the indisputable fact that nothing of any consequence will come out of these fanfared hearings.

There will be no legislation or anything else of any real moment regarding amnesty. There isn't the remotest likelihood Congress will do anything about this intensely controversial issue this session.

It's possible the Judiciary subcommittee headed by Kennedy may produce some kind of a report advocating amnesty for draft dodgers, deserters and defectors. The eight-member panel is heavily weighted with liberal Democratic doves—to two Republicans, Strom Thurmond, S.C., and Edward Gurney, Fla. A third Republican, Charles Mathias, Md., has indicated no position so far.

But at the most, that's all likely to result from these astutely timed and manipulated proceedings.

Any attempt by Kennedy to highball action out of the full Judiciary Committee is certain to be promptly and decisively squelched. The bipartisan leadership of the 16-member panel is all set to take care of that—Chairman James Eastland, D-Miss., and ranking Republican Sen. Roman Hruska, Neb.

They definitely have the votes to do the job, and would have no qualms in cracking down.

The situation in the House is even more unfavorable.

Neither the Judiciary Committee, headed by Rep. Emanuel Celler, 84-year-old New York Democrat, nor the Armed Services Committee, headed by Rep. F. Edward Hebert, D-New Orleans, tough-minded one-time newsman, has any intention of considering amnesty legislation this year.

Hebert is sternly against granting amnesty at any time. Celler is too busy pondering student busing to give a serious thought to anything else.

Meanwhile, Kennedy, who is clangorously against meddling in Vietnam but stridently for U.S. intervention in North Ireland, is contentedly garnering headlines far and wide for the amnesty hearings. That was his real purpose in engineering them, and he is succeeding nicely.

Secret Campaign

Don't be surprised if a considerable write-in vote for Sen. Kennedy surfaces in the New Hampshire primary balloting.

For several weeks, a vigorous undercover campaign has been underway to produce such a showing. How successful it will be remains to be seen. But money and work have gone into this sub-rosa drive.

It's being conducted by an organization calling itself "United Democrats for Kennedy." Chairman is Robin Ficker, who lists his headquarters at 7894 Georgia Ave., Silver Springs, Md. In a broadside mailed to New Hampshire voters, Ficker resoundingly enunciates a clarion call for action and proclaims Kennedy the only "great man" among the Democratic candidates.

Burles Ficker:

"All the Democratic candidates are good men, but they are not great men. Only one man is—Sen. Ted Kennedy of Massachusetts. He has the strength, the sensitivity and the personal qualities of leadership to be a great President. Every poll demonstrates that Kennedy is the one Democrat who will surely beat Richard Nixon. He has never wavered in his convictions; he alone can rally the poor, the blacks, the young, the old, the farmer, the laborer and the middle class into a winning coalition."

"The Senator decided not to seek the Democratic Presidential nomination. But if the citizens of New Hampshire call for him to lead us by writing in his name on the Democratic ballot, that example will be followed by millions of Democrats across the country."

"And Sen. Kennedy will answer our call."

"Through your votes in the Democratic primary this year you can change America's course. Sen. Kennedy can change America's priorities and direction; he can restore our sense of purpose; he can complete the unfinished business so nobly begun by his brothers before him."

Sen. Kennedy's office disclaims knowing anything about this undercover write-in campaign.

Too Good to Be True

There is nothing to those reports that Rep. Robert Drinan, D-Mass., first Catholic priest to be elected to Congress, is quitting at the end of this session.

Far from it.

The militant liberal dove is not only running for reelection, but under the state's reapportionment, his prospects appear improved.

Putting a quietus on word that he had decided to give up his Congressional seat, Drinan has resigned as dean of Boston College Law School. He held this job for a number of years, and nominally took leave of absence when he ran for Congress in 1970.

But apparently, the Jesuit priest enjoys drawing $42,500 a year as a legislator, with another $300,000 in office and other expenses and prerequisites. So he has decided to make a career of politics—as long as it lasts.

His chances to do so for two more years look promising. In 1970, he unseated a 20-year Congressional veteran by a narrow margin. But now, as a result of a favorable redistricting, Drinan's likelihood of winning a second term are rated better than two years ago.

Ghetto Basketball A Way Of Life

By DAVID WOLF
(First in a Series)
(From "Pomp": The Connie Hawkins Story, by David Wolf. Copyright 1972 by David Wolf. Published by Holt, Rinehart and Winston, Inc., New York.)

Cornelius Hawkins was born on July 17, 1942, the fifth of Dorothy Hawkins' six children. Brooklyn's Bedford-Stuyvesant was a racially mixed working-class district then. But after the war, the whites began moving out, the buildings decayed the Sanitation Department cleaned the streets less regularly, the crime rate soared, and Bed-Stuy became a slum.

Many youngsters emerge from the ghetto hard, strong, and self-confident. But for Connie, who might have been a troubled child in the best middle-class suburb, Bedford-Stuyvesant was overwhelming. He was slow, shy, and easily intimidated. The environment nurtured these characteristics, and they, in turn, made him less able to cope with the environment. He needed attention, sensitivity, even trained guidance. But everyone around him was too busy trying to stay alive.

"Until I got good at basketball," Connie says, "there was nothing about me I liked, there wasn't a thing that I could be proud of. It didn't seem like I had anything going for me. I was ashamed of the way I looked. We all wore hand-me-downs. But my brothers were short and wide and I was long and skinny, so nothing fit me right. I didn't feel sharp enough to talk to girls."

Each year he fell further behind. P. S. 3 was typical ghetto school: understaffed, underbudgeted, with outmoded facilities, overcrowded classrooms, and tired, beaten teachers, unable to relate to the sea of black faces before them. There was no time for special help—no time for a tall, skinny boy who didn't seem to catch on.

Hawkins was always the tallest boy in his class. The other children found his physique uproariously funny. When he was ten years old he stood 5' 10" and weighed just 115 pounds. His hands and feet were enormous; his head—shaved almost to the scalp—seemed too tiny for his body. His classmates called him "Slim" and "Bones" and "Long Tall Sally."

When he wasn't embarrassed, he was afraid. The streets of Bed-Stuy thrived with violence.

He showed talent in one area: sports and games. The summer Hawk turned 12, he began playing regularly in the school yards. There wasn't many alternatives. The apartment was unbearably stuffy during the day. He didn't own a glove, so softball was usually dominated the stickball game in the streets. That left basketball.

For many young men in the slums, the schoolyard is the only place they can feel true pride in what they do, where they can move free of inhibitions (even from coaches), where people applaud their accomplishments, and where they can—by being spectacular—rise, for the moment, above the drabness and anonymity of their lives. Thus, when a player develops extraordinary "schoolyard" moves and shots, these become more than simple athletic skills. They are an inseparable part of his personality. The level of his "game" becomes his measure as a man. So it was—and still is—with Connie.

Like most NBA players who grew up in urban slums, Connie quickly took drugs for granted. "You could get anything you wanted in the neighborhood," he explains.

"But it wasn't like it is today. They didn't have hundreds of junkies all over the street, noddin' and stealin'. They were already getting 'em in Harlem, and some people around us was hooked—but very few you could see. In those days, the streets was filled with wins. They was all over. But few people used heroin. Mostly it was guys in gangs. One died of an overdose. That frightened me. I never messed with heroin."

He tried just about everything else, however. A friend gave him some opium at a community youth-group picnic. "We went behind some bushes and tried it," Hawkins says. "I didn't like it much. Another time he gave me some cocaine. I didn't like that at all. He gave me some hashish, though, and that was pretty nice." And he enjoyed marijuana often.

In 1957 Connie entered Boys High. "In the middle of my sophomore season," he recalls, "I got my name in the New York Post. It said, 'There's a skinny kid at Boys High named Connie Hawkins who's gonna be great some day.' I think Coach Fisher told them to put it in. It made me feel fantastic. I kept sturin' at the paper, lookin' at my name in print. I never dreamed that would happen."

The New York school system offered two courses at its nonvocational high schools: a regular academic program leading toward college, and a "General" course, an effort to give supposedly less capable students a taste of education.

Almost by reflex action, black youngsters were channeled into the General course by guidance counselors who apparently took for granted that most black kids couldn't handle real academics. "The advisers didn't have time to give serious thought to each boy," says a former Boys High teacher. "Seven out of eight black youngsters who graduated were getting that meaningless General diploma. Fifty per cent weren't even graduating. We honestly tried to reach them, but our program didn't relate to their interests and backgrounds. Those dropouts are today's drug addicts."

A guidance counselor took one look at Connie Hawkins and plopped him into the General course. But even that was too much. Hawk could barely read.

The summer after his sophomore year, Hawkins discovered there was at least one aspect of his life about which he need not be ashamed: basketball.

"We mostly played three-on-three," Hawk says. "When we wanted to play five-on-five, the guys from our schoolyard went down to Brownsville and played against Tony Jackson and LeRoy Ellis (All-City players at Jefferson High, who starred at St. John's), or uptown to play against Roger Brown (Wingate's sensational sophomore, already second-team All-City) and his buddies. We'd bet a case of beer and there would be some bloody games. When we couldn't find enough competition in Brooklyn, we'd call up Russ Cunningham and we'd go over to Harlem and play against his NYC boys, Satch Sanders and Cal Ramsey."

Ramsey, a stocky 6' 4", was an All-American at NYU. The 6' 6" Sanders—later a Boston Celtic star—was a junior at the same school. Cunningham, a flashy little guard, would be an NYU starter that fall. Their rivalry with Eddie Simmons, Jackie Jackson, (both of whom played at Virginia Union) and Hawk was to become a schoolyard legend. "The word would spread through the neighborhood that we were goin' after them," Simmons recalls. "The park would start to crowd up. Games stopped on the other courts. People would stand around and cheer and argue and bet six-packs. It was halfcourt, three-on-three—and people would talk about those games for days after."

College Roundup

By Associated Press

The long basketball season is over for many teams, but just beginning for Eastern Kentucky and San Francisco.

Those two made the NCAA playoffs with showdown victories Wednesday night.

Eastern Kentucky defeated Morehead 90-86 to decide the Ohio Valley Conference representative and San Francisco beat Santa Clara 63-56 to win the West Coast Athletic Conference.

"It's been a long time coming," said Billy Burton after he and his Eastern Kentucky teammates clinched a berth in the national playoffs.

It took a lingering year and a three-way fight to decide the OVC battle. Eastern Kentucky, Morehead and Western Kentucky had finished the regular season as co-champions.

"This is what it's all about, a chance to play in the NCAA playoffs," said George Bryant, who scored 26.

The season had come down to one playoff match after Morehead stopped Western Kentucky in the first game of the two-day playoff Tuesday night.

The Colonels, led by Bryant and Charlie Mitchell, who scored a game-high 28 points, took command late in the first half. A 16-2 scoring burst with six minutes left put it away.

Eastern Kentucky thus completed first-round pairings in the NCAA post-season playoff and will face Florida State in a Midwest regional game Saturday.

San Francisco, by virtue of its WCAC championship, has drawn a bye in the first round and will meet the winner of the Long Beach State-Brigham Young game in the West.

"I don't even want to think about that game in Provo, Utah," said Coach Bob Gaillard of San Francisco. "I had made no plans past the game with Santa Clara."

What plans Gaillard did make were to stop Mike Stewart, Santa Clara's great percentage shooter. A variety of defenses held him to 18 points on a poor (for him) 7-of-15 shooting night.

With 58 seconds to go, Santa Clara moved to within three points of the Ducks at 55-52.

But in the next 50 seconds, John Burks delivered two free throws, threw a 50-foot pass to Phil Smith for another score and then made two more free throws to put San Francisco out of danger, 61-52.

Kentucky and Tennessee settle things tonight in the Southeastern Conference. The winner will gain a berth in the NCAA's Midwest regionals.

The Atlantic Coast Conference begins its championship playoff with a tripleheader today. Maryland plays Clemson, Virginia takes on Wake Forest and North Carolina State meets Duke.

Practical Jokers Return To Yankees

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla. Mike Kekich of the New York Yankees remembers looking at the scoreboard—and there it was flapping in the breeze.

"I was running my sprints before the game," the pitcher remembers of that unforgettable day in Milwaukee in the merry, merry month of May, "when someone came up to me and said, 'Hey, what's that thing up on the scoreboard?'"

"I look up and I see this green thing waving in the breeze. It was my water bed—my new water bed."

"I had bought it in Minnesota for $60 and carried it on our road trip to Chicago and Milwaukee. I wasn't going to leave it here. I went up on the scoreboard while they were playing the National Anthem and got it."

But Kekich had been "done"—a victim of the fertile mind of Fritz Peterson, the cunning leader of the Yankees' practical jokers.

To be "done," in the vernacular of the pranksters, is to have a practical joke played on you. To "do," in the same sense, is to play the practical joke. Kekich now is looking to "do" Peterson—to make the hunter the hunted.

"Nothing ever happens to him," Kekich complains in mock seriousness. "But that is going to cease."

What form the act of massive retaliation will take remains a mystery. But Kekich will have two other members of the Yankee pitching staff working with him, the other two pranksters, quiet Mel Stottlemyre and newcomer Steve Kline.

Kline is being looked on as a replacement for Stan Bahnsen, who was a perpetrator of pranks until he was traded to the Chicago White Sox in an offseason transaction.

The "doers" deal in all sorts of escapades—large and small.

Small jokes include putting sand, water or a pickle in someone's shoes, filling the fingers of a glove with mustard, using the lock they've named Big Ben to anchor luggage to an immovable object or nailing shoes or attaching cases to the floor.

Large jokes include the old water bed trick, sending luggage all over the country, putting the team photographer's camera in the sauna, replacing new autographed balls with beat up substitutes and "borrowing" someone's credit card.

The credit card caper was pulled off by Peterson last year after he and the departed Bahnsen had lost a hitting contest to Stottlemyre and Kekich, the losers guaranteeing to buy the winners dinner.

Stottlemyre and Kekich decided on a lavish multicourse Polynesian feast, devouring one exotic dish after another, all the while mocking Peterson and Bahnsen. But, at one point, Stottlemyre made the mistake of excusing himself for a moment.

Somewhere—the full details have remained locked forever behind Peterson's sealed lips—Peterson managed to get his hands on Stottlemyre's credit card and signed his name to the tab. When Stottlemyre returned, Peterson made a grand gesture of having paid for the meal.

Only weeks later did Stottlemyre and Kekich find they had been had.

"That's the dirtiest," complained Kekich. "That whole time we're sitting there enjoying ourselves and we're paying for it."

The odd thing about the entire situation is that Peterson holds a Master's degree from Northern Illinois university and its unquestionably an erudite young man seemingly far removed from such antics. But, as a prankster, he is somewhat of a throwback to another era when baseball players were less educated and more raucous.

Peterson acknowledges that.

"Most guys take me as a serious guy at first," he explained. "But it's a lot of fun and as long as nobody gets hurt I get a kick out of it. And we do give a guy complete amnesty the day of the game. We don't even try to blame him for something we do."

But why?

"Life is just too boring just sitting around," said Peterson. "It's mostly baseball; I'd rather be a hitter playing every day, but even if I was I'd do the same stuff. And, in the regular part of life, when I get a chance I do it too."

"I did Stottlemyre during the offseason, but I can't tell about it unless he's willing to."

What about Mel?

"Well," said Stottlemyre, breaking into a sheepish grin bespeaking embarrassment, "we have three children and somehow word got around that my wife was pregnant, which isn't true. But that didn't stop Fritz."

Ohio Buckeyes Turn Down NIT Invitation

NEW YORK (AP) — Indiana, Missouri and Lafayette said yes, but Ohio State said no.

The Buckeyes turned down an invitation to the National Invitation basketball Tournament Wednesday after the other three teams had accepted.

Ohio State Coach Fred Taylor said only that he had taken a vote of his players, and that it was negative. The Buckeyes currently are second in the Big Ten race while Indiana is fourth.

The addition of the three teams Wednesday brought the field to 11 and left five open berths in the 35-year-old post-season tournament, which starts March 17 at Madison Square Garden.

A few of the spots no doubt will be saved for teams in the Atlantic Coast Conference, which now is holding a playoff.

and for the winner of the Missouri Valley Conference playoff game between Louisville and Memphis State Saturday.

Indiana and Missouri will be making their first appearances in the nation's oldest post-season tournament. Lafayette will be in for the third time.

Indiana has a 16-7 record and winds up the regular season Saturday against Purdue.

Missouri, the Big Eight runner-up, has a 20-5 record with a game remaining against Oklahoma Saturday night. Coach Norm Stewart's club is led by 6-7 John Brown.

Lafayette, a member of the Middle Atlantic Conference, last attended the NIT in 1956. In their first year under Coach Tom Davis, the Leopards won 20 of 25 games.

ABA Roundup

By Associated Press

What difference does two seconds make?

To the Carolina Cougars, who are battling the Floridians for the fourth and final playoff berth in the Eastern Division of the American Basketball Association, two seconds might have meant a ball game.

So contends Carolina general manager Carl Scheer, whose club lost an opportunity to move into a tie with the Floridians by dropping a 90-96 decision to the Kentucky Colonels Wednesday night.

The Cougars, who trailed by as many as 20 points during the game, pulled within two points of the Colonels on a basket by George Carter with 34 seconds left. Kentucky then stalled for as long as it could, but Louie Dampier's shot missed the rim and the Colonels lost the ball on a 30-second violation.

Carolina took over, but only two seconds showed on the clock. The Cougars couldn't get a shot off before the buzzer.

After the game, Scheer announced he was filing a protest with the ABA commissioner's office, claiming that referee John Vanek had short-changed the Cougars by two seconds, time which might have been enough to let them get off a tying—or winning—basket.

Scheer's contention was that since Kentucky took over the ball with 34 seconds to play, and lost the ball on a 30-second violation, the Cougars should have gotten possession with four seconds on the clock.

Dan Issel had 27 points and Artis Gilmore 23 for Kentucky, while Stew Johnson tallied 22 for Carolina.

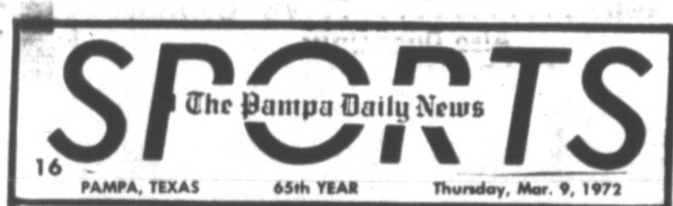

The loss left the Cougars a game back of the Floridians, who were beaten by Virginia 127-117. In the only other ABA game, Utah nipped Pittsburgh 114-113.

The Floridians had the two high scorers but the Squires held the balance—and the balance won. Larry Jones scored 34 points and Willie Long added 28 for the Floridians, but the Cougars had six players in double figures, led by Charlie Scott, who scored 27.

The Squires led by eight points at the half and built a 16-point spread in the third quarter, then coasted home.

Red Robbins tipped in a missed shot by Willie Wise at the buzzer to lift Utah past Pittsburgh. The Stars had trailed by 10 points in the third period, but Zelmo Beaty paced a fourth-quarter comeback.

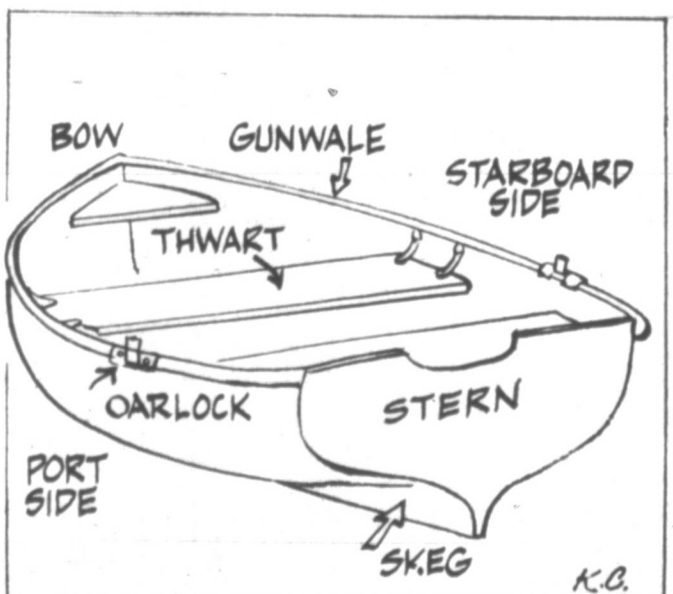

Pittsburgh's Bob Verga was the game's high scorer with 33 points.

Restrictions Will Stand According To The Big Ten

CHICAGO (AP) — In a unanimous vote, the Big Ten Athletic Conference Wednesday refused to lift the suspension of two Minnesota basketball players.

Ron Behagen and Corky Taylor, a pair of 6-9 Gophers, were suspended for the season by Big Ten Commissioner Wayne Duke for their part in the Jan. 25 brawl between Minnesota and Ohio State players.

With Ohio State and Minnesota abstaining in the voting, Big Ten faculty representatives voted 8-0 against reinstating the players after spending three days studying transcripts, viewing evidence and hearing Behagen and Taylor.

The faculty representatives concluded that the conduct of Behagen and Taylor, both of whom attacked Ohio State's Luke Witte, was "unsportsmanlike and in violation of conference standards."

The 1973 junior amateur golf championship will be played at Singing Hills Country Club, El Cajon, Calif.
