Pilgrimage stop

ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. — Rock songs about God rang out over tall speakers, and teen-agers danced in a conga line before a gospel prayer service among some 2,000 youthful Roman Catholics on a stopover in their papal pilgrimage. Albuquerque played host to youth on their way to see Pope John Paul II, who will visit Denver from today through Sunday to observe World Youth Day. A sweaty group from Midland endured a 10-hour drive in a bus with a broken air conditioner Tuesday. After unloading, they raced to the gathering held on astro-turf./5B

Inspection sweep

The Texas Railroad Commission announced Wednesday that it will launch an extensive inspection sweep of all commercial saltwater disposal facilities in the Permian Basin. The sweep, which will involve 100 facilities in 20 West Texas counties, will begin Monday and end Aug. 20, according to Texas Railroad Commissioner Barry Williamson. Williamson said the sweep method is designed to ensure all Commission environmental protection rules are being followed. Checks will include: disposal well permits and operations, pits and pollution control procedures. A comprehensive story on the sweep will appear in this Sunday's edition of the Permian Basin Oil Report.

Ruling on Nesler

SONORA, Calif. — A woman who fired five shots into her son's alleged molester as he waited for a court hearing was acquitted of premeditated murder Wednesday but found guilty of voluntary manslaughter. Ellie Nesler cried when the verdict was read after five days of jury deliberations. Her relatives in the courtroom shouted "Yes! Yes!" after hearing that the jury had rejected verdicts of first- and second-degree murder.

City hires consultant to weigh development efforts

By Darren J. Waggoner
Staff writer

City leaders — searching for an objective appraisal of its economic development efforts — have hired a consultant from the Midwest to study the extensive program.

Council members this week agreed that their plans to lure business and people to the Permian Basin may lack direction, leading them to allot a portion of the general fund budget to the consulting firm, Ticknor & Associates of Evanston, Ill.

"Sometimes it may seem we're not as focused as we could be," said Rick Menchaca, assistant city manager. "We want to see if we're marketing ourselves properly."

For a charge of $9,600, the consulting firm will complete a laundry list analyzing each program — including conducting interviews with city leaders, businesses and companies that have left Midland or have been relocated to Midland.

"We are trying to find out if we are headed in the right direction. The consultant will review our past and present activities and see if we are doing the right things," Menchaca said. "The consultant has reviewed many other cities and he knows what works."

Under state law, the city can spend up to $343,000 — or 1 percent of the general fund budget — for economic development.

The city now funds five separate entities including: the Midland Chamber of Commerce; Midland/Odessa Health Retirement Endeavor; Midland His-

Clinton urges stiff anti-crime actions

■ President pushes for gun controls, $3.4 billion for more police officers.

Associated Press

WASHINGTON — President Clinton campaigned Wednesday for an anti-crime package that includes gun controls and $3.4 billion to put more police officers on the streets, saying "the first duty of any government" is keeping its citizens safe.

While most of the plan is up to Congress, Clinton didn't wait on some gun-control measures.

By executive order, Clinton suspended imports of foreign-made assault-style handguns, which he said "have become the weapons of choice for many gangs and drug dealers." A second order seeks tighter regulations about who can sell guns "to make sure that only legitimate gun dealers are in the business."

"This is the beginning of our efforts to restore the rule of law on our streets," Clinton told a Rose Garden audience that included uniformed officers, Democratic and Republican members of Congress and prosecutors who opposed a similar crime bill that failed last year.

The plan is generally a refined

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Clinton named Army Gen. John Shalikashvili, a Polish native who is the grandson of a Czarist general, to be chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff on Wednesday. "He is a soldier's soldier," Clinton declared.

Shalikashvili, 57, would succeed the popular Gen. Colin Powell, who is retiring Sept. 30.

Speaking with a slight Polish accent, Shalikashvili told Clinton, "I look forward with great enthusiasm to helping you, Mr. President, keep America's armed forces the very best we've ever had."

Clinton called Shalikashvili "General Shali" throughout his remarks, saying it was the nickname the general usually goes by.

U.S. orders meat-cooking labels

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government ordered Wednesday that all raw or partially cooked meat and poultry sold in America after Oct. 15 be labeled with safe handling instructions.

The Agriculture Department decision was motivated by a food poisoning outbreak in the West last January, traced to undercooked hamburgers tainted with E. coli bacteria at a fast-food chain. Two children died and 300 people were made ill.

It also follows settlement of a lawsuit filed by an advocacy group seeking the labels.

The parents of a 17-month-old boy who died from an E. coli infection during that outbreak appeared at a news conference with Agriculture Secretary Mike Espy to emphasize the required label's message:

"Some animal products may contain bacteria that could cause illness if the product

Court rules Texas workers' comp law unconstitutional

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — A state appellate court Wednesday declared the 2½-year-old Texas workers' compensation law unconstitutional, upholding a lower court's ruling.

The long-awaited decision by the 4th Court of Appeals in San Antonio had state officials and business groups promising to appeal — again. Organized labor declared victory — again.

And lawyers all over Texas scrambled to get copies of the 171-page document, a 4-3 decision with the majority opinion written by Chief Justice Blair Reeves.

Bill Whitehurst, an attorney who argued the case for the Texas AFL-CIO, one of the plaintiffs, called the decision a triumph for workers.

"Never in my career have I read an act that was any more unfair to any particular group," Whitehurst said.

Serbs cut mountain troops, Muslim threatens to leave talks

TRNOVO, Bosnia-Herzegovina (AP) — Hundreds of Serb soldiers pulled back Wednesday from Mt. Igman, but some remained on the key peak near Sarajevo. And Serb officers threatened to return in force if Muslim-led government forces retake the mountain.

Bosnia's Muslim president, Alija Izetbegovic, meanwhile, threatened to leave Geneva, site of stalled peace talks on the Bosnian war, unless all Serb forces left Igman within two days.

Izetbegovic has been boycotting the talks until the Serbs leave Mt. Igman and a neighboring peak. Threatened with NATO air strikes, Serb leaders this week ordered the retreat to begin, but have been slow to leave Igman, the more strategic peak.

At U.N. headquarters in New York, spokesman Joe Sills said NATO would be ready to strike within several days. NATO has drawn up strategic plans and lists of Serb targets for the action.

Also Wednesday, Serb, Croat and government military commanders signed a sweeping military plan to bring peace to Bosnia. The agreement will not take effect, however, until a week after a full peace agreement is signed.

The Serbs took Igman and nearby Mount Bjelasnica early this month, prompting Izetbegovic to begin boycott negotiations in Geneva on a Serb-Croat plan to divide Bosnia ethnically.

Some Serb soldiers express little fear of NATO air strikes saying threats had nothing to do with partial withdraw, threaten another 'Vietnam' if NATO troops attack.

Both mountains overlook besieged Sarajevo, but Igman is the more strategic of the two because it controls the government's last weapons supply route to Sarajevo.

Serb troops started leaving Bjelasnica on Monday, but balked when it came to leaving Igman. The retreat from Igman went into high gear on Wednesday.

Karadzic said in Geneva that his forces were "massively withdrawing" and called reports of Serb reinforcement of Igman a "shameful lie." John Mills, spokesman at the Geneva peace talks, said U.N. forces had determined "a considerable withdrawal" was in progress.

Serb commanders overseeing troop movements on Igman and Bjelasnica said about 2,500 men had left the two heights since Monday evening.

"It is finished with Igman," Lt. Grabo Grubesic said. "But that doesn't mean we won't be back if necessary."

Grubesic said 700 men would be coming down from the two mountains later Wednesday and 1,500 more would remain up to a week longer, until U.N. forces take control.

Other Serb officers said up to 2,500 government troops remained in Igman's northern foothills, ready to retake positions or at least reopen weapons supply routes to Sarajevo. There was no U.N. confirmation.

Chance to buy Chinese firms comes shortly

BEIJING (AP) — China is auctioning off about 200 failing government-owned companies and foreigners are welcome to bid.

The government-owned China Daily said Wednesday the Hunan provincial government will auction the companies at a trade and investment symposium next month. It said all are losing money but that experts believe they can be made profitable with better management and new technology.

About a third of government-owned companies operate at a loss.

The China Daily said the trade and investment symposium in Hunan is expected to attract 4,000 foreign business representatives. A date for the auction was not announced.

Basin again to flirt with 100

Staff report

Today's forecast calls for sunny skies with a high near 100 and south winds 10-15 mph. Tonight should be fair with a low near 70, according to a National Weather Service spokesman.

Friday should be mostly sunny with a high in the upper 90s.

After an overnight low of 70, Wednesday's high reached 100 compared with the record high of 106 set in 1964. The record low for that date is 60, set in 1931.

STATE

Temperatures across the state were mostly in the 90s under sunny skies on Wednesday, although isolated showers were reported in parts of North and South Texas.

Extremes ranged from 84 at Port Aransas to 101 at Mineral Wells.

A few isolated showers and thunderstorms hit parts of South Texas and the adjacent coastal waters on Wednesday.

Those isolated showers and thunderstorms should continue in South Texas through today. Party cloudy skies are also forecast for the region, with highs today ranging from near 90 on the coast to near 105 along the Rio Grande Valley.

Skies across North Texas Wednesday afternoon were partly cloudy as some mid-level cloudiness pushed out of Arkansas and Louisiana, bringing rainshowers to parts of the area.

NATION

Thunderstorms were scattered from the Plains to the Atlantic on Wednesday, with more than 4 inches of rain in Pennsylvania. Cool weather persisted across parts of the West.

At midday, showers and thunderstorms were scattered over eastern sections of the central and northern Plains, the mid-Mississippi Valley and the Ohio Valley, and across the lower Texas Gulf Coast, the eastern Gulf Coast and into the southern Atlantic Coast and parts of Florida.

A flash flood watch was issued for parts of northwestern, west-central and central Missouri, the National Weather Service said.

A flash flood watch also was posted over parts of Pennsylvania, where overnight rain totaled 4.27 inches at Aughwick, 3.81 inches at Round Knob and 2.91 inches at Pleasantville, the weather service said.

Elsewhere, showers and thunderstorms were scattered around Montana and northern Maine.

Heavier rainfall amounts during the six hours up to 1 p.m. CDT were 0.98 of an inch at Bluefield, W.Va.; 0.88 of an inch at Kansas City, Mo.; 0.85 of an inch at Grand Island, Neb., and 0.82 of an inch at Columbia, Mo.

The Associated Press contributed to this report.

CRIME: Clinton pushes for gun controls

version of that crime bill, plus provisions for 55,000 more police. Clinton called it "the major down payment on the pledge that I made in the campaign to put 100,000 police officers on the street."

It contains the gun-control bill named for James Brady, the former White House press secretary who was wounded in the 1981 assassination attempt on President Reagan, limits on death-row inmates' rights to federal appeals, and expansion of the federal death penalty to almost 50 crimes.

"It's time we put aside the divisions of party and philosophy . . . and go beyond the cynicism of mere speeches to clear action," Clinton said.

The old crime bill died when Republicans threatened to filibuster because it failed to impose the limits demanded by the GOP on the habeas-corpus appeals to federal courts by death-row inmates. Prosecutors who supported the Republican stand said they now back a new version of habeas reform introduced by Senate Judiciary Chairman Joseph R. Biden Jr..

However, some civil rights groups object to Biden's habeas proposals to allow death-row inmates only one appeal except in extraordinary circumstances and set a six-month limit for bringing that appeal.

"The present bill is long on addressing both legitimate and illegitimate state interests in finality, and very short on addressing essential fairness," said George Kendall of the NAACP

Meanwhile, House Judiciary Chairman Jack Brooks, D-Texas, told the Rose Garden audience that "a group of obstructionist Republicans . . . bottled up the bill for almost 11 months" before it died last fall.

RULES: Organized labor declares victory

(From 1A)

The plaintiffs claimed the law lowers disability benefits for many injured workers and restricts workers' access to jury trials and attorneys. The plaintiffs also claimed a set of medical guidelines used for determining impairment from an injury is improperly used and unfair.

Ron Dusek, a spokesman for Texas Attorney General Dan Morales, said the state will appeal the decision on behalf of the Texas Workers' Compensation Commission.

"It's been recognized all along by all sides that it will eventually have to be decided by the Texas Supreme Court," Dusek said.

Shannon Ratliff, an attorney representing employers who pay workers' compensation premiums, declined to comment until he could analyze the details of the court's opinion. But he also said the Texas Supreme Court will have to rule on the issue before it is settled.

The workers' compensation law was enacted in 1991 after a bitter legislative battle between business interests, which backed the law, and organized labor, which opposed it.

Wednesday's decision upheld much of a 1991 ruling by state District Judge Rey Perez of Maverick County, where the case was tried.

The law has remained in effect during the appeals process.

Oral arguments before the 4th Court were held nearly 1½ years ago.

The appeals court criticized the law because, among other reasons, it relied on a set of American Medical Association "Guides" to determine impairment.

overseeing plans concerning the possibility of air strikes in Bosnia. Before that, he supervised the relief operation to the Kurds in northern Iraq.

The new chairman said he hoped NATO would not have to use force in Bosnia, but "the resolve is there to do so."

Shalikashvili will serve as the top military adviser to Clinton, who has no military experience of his own.

The choice had been viewed as a critical one, as Clinton struggles with a military antagonistic to many of his goals as president, including integrating homosexuals into the military and spending less on defense.

He is "the right man to lead our forces in this challenging era," Clinton said in a joint appearance with Shalikashvili in the Rose Garden. Powell and Defense Secretary Les Aspin stood alongside.

Born in Warsaw, the artillery officer brings a broad knowledge of Europe and the former Soviet bloc.

His appointment, for a two-year term, is subject to Senate confirmation.

Clinton noted that Shalikashvili, as an 8-year-old, fled Poland in a cattle car to Germany in 1944 ahead of the Soviet advance. He settled in Peoria, Ill., in 1952

OFFERS: Toys on way to 4-year-oldHeidi

(From 1A)

photograph of 4-year-old Heidi Ackelson of Des Moines that was printed in newspapers around the country.

"My heart has gone out to the flood victims this whole past month," said Abbey Gross of Indianapolis. "But this picture of a little girl holding on to mommy, crying — that got to me."

Well-wishers around the country packed up stuffed animals and other toys for Heidi.

The first box to arrive at the Des Moines Post Office was simply addressed to Heidi in care of her mother, Tonika Shirts.

Instead of an address, the box had a copy of the picture that was photographed and distributed by The Associated Press.

Postal authorities said they would deliver the parcel to Heidi. She and her mother are now staying with her grandmother.

Ms. Shirts and her daughter were outside their house, talking with city officials about flood damage, when AP photographer E.J. Flynn happened on the scene Monday.

"We were down there and we took her in the house and she seen her stuffed animals were all buried in the mud," Ms. Shirts said.

Heidi had lost Flower, her pet stuffed skunk, and all of her other toys. The picture caught her hanging on to a muddy piece of rabbit fur she named Fru-fru, leaning against her mother and crying.

Ms. Shirts said her daughter is excited about receiving gifts in the mail, but "I'm sure she's going to get more than her share." If too many arrive, she said, the extras will be given to a children's hospital.

"I didn't think people would think much about a little girl in the newspaper," said Ms. Shirts, who works in a laundry. "It's really neat."

Ms. Shirts, 21, and her daughter will not be returning to their one-story home. It was completely covered by the Raccoon River, which also inundated the nearby Des Moines Water Works.

She said flood insurance covered $17,300 of the $20,500 she owed on the house, plus $5,000 for possessions.

"I'm a lot better off than some people," she said. "But we didn't have time to save anything, pictures or anything. We had 15 minutes to leave."

Among those trying to make up for some of that loss was Ruth Shippen, 53, of Wichita, Kan., who assembled a large box of toys that her children outgrew years ago.

"I also hope to send some funds to the mother. We talked a lot about sending something to the Red Cross, but it seemed impersonal. I'd like to know that it's going to one specific family," she said.

"I packed up a box last night," said Kaydri Reichley, 35, of Arlington, Ohio.

"We just cleaned up my daughter's room the other day. I thought, shoot, we need to send some of that to this little girl," she said.

Nancy Baringer, 40, of Indianapolis said she contributed to a drive to collect cleaning supplies for flood victims but wanted to make a more personal gift to Heidi.

Editor's note: Heidi and her mother are staying with her grandmother, Phyllis Russell, 220 Greenfield Parkway, Des Moines, Iowa 50320.

WORLD: All of Europe has gone Hollywood

(From 1A)

If one asks what this has to do with the great debate that rages here over the threat of U.S. cultural domination, the answer is: quite a lot.

At the core of the apprehension over the apparently unstoppable spread of American popular culture across the globe is the mythic symbolism and unmatchable commercial power of Hollywood.

The worldwide attention accorded to Fleiss from the moment reporters attached the magic word "Hollywood" to her alleged job description was fresh confirmation of the U.S. movie capital's powerful place in the modern age.

As many of its fiercest critics here concede, Hollywood's grip on the world's imagination — and pocket book — has never been greater, not even in its pre-war heyday.

During the past decade, European audiences have deserted their own movies and TV series in droves in favor of the Hollywood product. Italy's once-thriving film industry is virtually extinct. So is Britain's. Last year, eight of the top 10 box-office hits in France were American-made.

Less than 2 percent of the money spent last year by U.S. film-goers was for foreign movies. But American productions accounted for more than 60 per cent of the box-office take in Europe.

Hollywood's domination of European TV is, if anything, more pervasive. Endlessly repeated made-in-Hollywood series and old Hollywood films are the staple diet.

"We complain about American cultural hegemony," says the French film and literary critic Jean-Jacques Monod. "But what we are really complaining about is Hollywood."

Repeated attempts by the French and other Europeans to duplicate what U.S. filmmakers do best have flatly failed, he contends.

This is not only because of Hollywood's huge resources, he says, but because of its uncanny ability to give the public — any public — what it wants.

"Let's face it," Monod said, "Hollywood is a cultural superpower that scatters its enemies with ease while the masses cheer it on."

Unable to lick Hollywood in a fair fight, European governments, led as always in such matters by the French, are attempting to dig in behind a Maginot line of "cultural quotas," which would severely curtail how many American film and TV productions may be shown in the European Community.

Monod doubts this strategy will succeed any better than the real Maginot line did in World War II when the Germans outflanked its defenses to conquer France.

"Whatever the intellectuals and the politicians may claim, ordinary people want what Hollywood has and will insist on getting it," he says.

"For them, Hollywood and everything connected with it exerts an irresistible attraction."

Even, judging by the attention she's receiving here, Heidi Fleiss.

HIRES: City seeks direction panic Chamber of Commerce; Midland Economic Development Co.; and Southeast Economic Development Coalition. The Permian Basin Consortium of Higher Education applied for city money but was turned down.

"We feel hiring this consultant is important," Menchaca said. "It will help us make sure we are getting the most for our dollar."

The consultant — who plans to make at least three trips to Midland and will be conducting numerous telephone interviews — is expected to finish the process in early September.

One project the consultant plans to examine is the local chamber's efforts to attract businesses from California.

The Pacific coast marketing drive has netted one business to Midland since the campaign began toward the end of 1992. Two more companies are expected to visit the area soon, chamber officials said.

"There has been some concern to make sure we can compete with the other cities. Right now everyone is trying to recruit companies from California because of environmental concerns . . . crime, taxes, workers' comp problems," Menchaca said.

The local chamber's efforts, funded by the city, concentrate on companies with about 50 to 100 employees.

At the conclusion of the study, the consulting firm will summarize the findings and make various recommendations to help improve the program.

"He'll tell us if we're putting our money in the right place," Menchaca said. "And he'll let us know what role the city should play. It's important to have someone on the outside come in to give their perspective."

Menchaca will serve as the evaluation coordinator for the project and a City Council team of Pat Schneider, Buddy Sipes and Jose Cuevas will assist. A five-member City Development Advisory Committee also will participate on the work, helping assemble data from local businesses to give to the consultants.

- "Refrigerate leftovers within two hours."

Labels on meat distributed to institutions for cafeteria or restaurant customers will carry the same instructions, but also say that food must be kept hot at 140 degrees or higher and that immediately after service, leftovers must be refrigerated.

A coalition of consumers organized under the name Beyond Beef got the government to agree last May to require the labels as part of the settlement of a lawsuit consumer group filed in U.S. District Court here.

But the consumer group is not completely satisfied. It is demanding that the labels state explicitly that "cooking thoroughly" means until the meat reaches an internal temperature of 160 degrees Fahrenheit and is no longer red or pink.

Jeremy Rifkin, head of the coalition, said the group will pressure the government to require the additional information.

"Until we have rapid tests to detect the presence of unseen harmful bacteria or vaccines to prevent the occurrence of bacteria in food animals, we must do everything we can to help inform consumers about proper preparation and storage of not-ready-to-eat meat and poultry," Espy said.

Espy took office in January, the same week of the outbreak traced to Jack in the Box fast-food outlets.

Vicki and Darin Detwiler, whose 17-month-old son Riley died from an E. coli infection, said they've been urging the federal government to do more to inform consumers nationwide about handling meat.

Their son's death in Seattle, Wash., came after he was infected by another child at his day care center who had eaten the tainted meat.

"We want people to know to wash their hands after going to the bathroom and to wash hands after handling raw meat," said Mrs. Detwiler.

Agriculture officials said the labels are just one of several steps the government is taking to tackle the problem which also include more advanced inspection methods.

"We are making long-term changes," said Espy. "Mandating these new labels will protect from food-borne illnesses."

National Food Processors Association immediately praised the move.

"We work hard to make sure all critical control points in food plant production systems are adequately monitored to make certain the final products are safe," said Allen Matthys, vice president of technical regulatory affairs for the trade association. "How consumers handle products in the home is important, too."

The labels must be put on the meat by whomever packages it for sale, said agriculture officials.

The government has mandated the specific language to be used on the label, but said it can be incorporated into existing labels or on a sticker placed on packages after they're sealed.

Federal inspectors will be checking to make sure they've been applied.

New Japanese trade minister calls for opening of country's markets

TOKYO (AP) — Japan's new trade minister, breaking ranks with his predecessors and his ministry's long-held position, says his country's markets need to be opened to foreign companies.

"Japanese markets are extremely closed in invisible ways," trade minister Hiroshi Kumagai said in an interview published Wednesday in the Nihon Keizai Shimbun, Japan's leading economic newspaper.

Kumagai was sworn in Monday as a member of Prime Minister Morihiro Hosokawa's seven-party coalition government, which ousted the long-ruling Liberal Democrats.

The comments may provide the United States with fodder in trade talks with Japan that open next month. It remains unclear, however, just how much sway Kumagai will have in influencing the policies adopted by the powerful Ministry of International Trade and Industry.

Ministry officials downplayed the importance of Kumagai's remarks, saying new cabinet members often make comments that do not necessarily reflect the stance of the bureaucrats that permanently staff their ministries.

In any case, Kumagai as well as Hosokawa have voiced disapproval of U.S. requests to set numerical targets for increasing imports. Both ministers place high importance on reducing Japan's trade surplus but favor deregulation and expansion of domestic demand.

Kumagai's remarks were published the same day Japan announced a 28 percent jump in its global trade surplus in July from the same month last year.

Israeli attorney general says let Demjanjuk go

JERUSALEM (NYT) — The Israeli government recommended to the Supreme Court on Wednesday that John Demjanjuk, who was acquitted of being the sadistic death camp guard "Ivan the Terrible," should not face new charges for other war crimes, as proposed by survivors of the Nazi genocide.

"I went back and forth without end," Attorney General Yosef Harish wrote to the Supreme Court. "With a heavy heart I concluded we cannot charge Demjanjuk with an offense in new criminal proceedings. We've no choice but to deport him from Israel."

Three Supreme Court judges, who are considering eight petitions to try Demjanjuk (pronounced dem-yahn-YUKE) on other charges, must now rule to accept or reject the recommendations. A decision is expected early next week.

The attorney general's office argued that Demjanjuk could not face trial again unless the government obtained a new extradition order from the United States.

Demjanjuk, who is from Ukraine and had settled in Ohio, was stripped of his citizenship in 1981 and extradited in 1986 to stand trial on charges that he had committed war crimes at the Treblinka death camp in occupied Poland.

A government prosecutor, Nili Arad, said there was a "public interest" in avoiding a new trial because it was not certain Demjanjuk would be convicted.

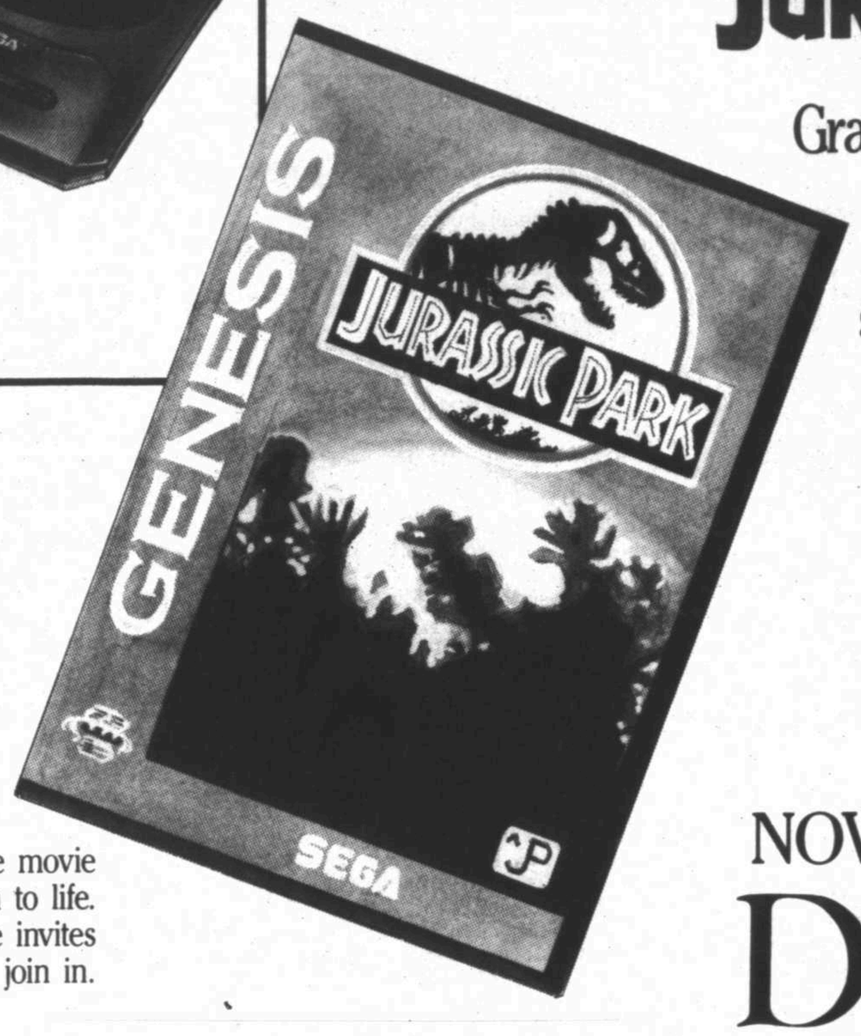

Demjanjuk, 73, was cleared by the Supreme Court two weeks ago after an earlier conviction that he has been the guard "Ivan," who tortured victims on their way to the gas chambers.

West Texan Brown will be mourned

Claude W. Brown, widely known as a leading West Texas oilman and civic supporter, will be missed at functions throughout West Texas in coming years. "Mr. McCamey," as he was fondly known, loved West Texas and did all he could to promote it.

He was a pioneer West Texas oilman who opened numerous pipe and supply stores throughout West Texas and New Mexico, and who spent nearly 70 years in the oil business. In 1988, he was awarded the Permian Basin Petroleum Association's prestigious "Top Hand" award.

Raised in Ballinger, Brown moved to McCamey in 1935, and is credited with "keeping McCamey going" during the lean, early years. A strong supporter of education, acquaintances of Brown say that if there was a young person in McCamey who wanted to attend college but could not afford to do so, Brown would help that individual obtain the money to attend school — and would even help the young person find employment after their education was complete. Brown held an honorary doctorate degree from McMurry College in Abilene, and strongly supported both McMurry and Texas Tech University.

A political powerhouse in Texas, Brown's influence was so strong that one acquaintance remarked that "no Democrat in Texas would think of running for office without first coming to talk to Claude W. Brown." Yet for all his influence, Brown did not seek political office himself.

His influence had been felt in acquiring highways in West Texas and in working to bring industries into this region. He also helped establish hospitals in both Rankin and McCamey.

He also was active in the West Texas Chamber of Commerce, which he had served in the past as president, and had been voted "Top West Texan" by the Texas Chamber of Commerce.

Bill Collyns, a longtime friend and associate of Brown, said "he never missed an opportunity to say a good word for West Texas and particularly McCamey."

West Texas residents will mourn Brown's death. McCamey in particular will feel his loss.

ART BUCHWALD

Line driver prefers dollars inside ball

Unlike most baseball fans, I am much more impressed with the money involved than how the game is played. My biggest thrill this year was to read that the Baltimore Orioles were sold for $173 million. When I was a kid I never dreamed they would go for more than $110 million.

Buchwald

The only one I know who feels the same way is Michael Pots, and at the last game our conversation went something like this.

Michael said, "Here comes Arnie Peters. He got a million five on signing his contract, and he gets a $50,000 bonus every time he bunts the ball."

I replied, "He's hitting .132 and he's in a slump. Do you think he'll have to take a cut in salary?"

"On the contrary, his contract calls for him to get a new Mercedes Benz if he goes hitless for 30 games."

Peters struck out Chowder, and Kissem came to the plate.

Michael turned to me and said, "Did you hear about Kissem? He traded all his baseball cards for Mexican earth worms and now he has more money than David Letterman."

"If that doesn't put him in the Hall of Fame, nothing will. I once saw Kissem hit three home runs in this park, and while he was rounding the bases, management tore up his contract on the scoreboard," I told him.

Kissem hit a long fly to left field where it was caught by Torrey Eberhardt, who owns a string of Sirloin and Jelly Doughnut restaurants. Torrey threw the ball to Boo Victor, the half-owner of Victor's Secret men's underwear shops.

"Did you hear that Georgie Pilate will not get a bonus this year?" Michael asked.

"Why not?"

"He tossed a hand grenade into the stands and wiped out six bleacher fans. Georgie apologized at a press conference, saying he was just having a good time. But the baseball commissioner took a very serious view of the incident and ruled that Georgie would not be entitled to frequent-flyer mileage on his team's air trips for a month."

Deadeye Frobisher came up to bat. He spit tobacco on home plate. Then he spit on the catcher. Finally, he spit on the umpire, who threw him out of the game.

Michael said, "He keeps doing that every time he comes to bat. I don't know why they pay him $3 million a year."

I said, "I guess they're hoping someday he'll run out of chewing tobacco and save the game."

"Here comes Hog. I read in the Wall Street Journal that he has all his money tied up in municipal bonds. I can't understand why someone who is batting .390 would be so conservative with his money," Michael wondered.

"I heard he lost his winter bonus when he was playing with Kansas City. His broker put him into IBM just when it nose-dived into the sewer, and he won't go near the stock market again."

Hog swung at the ball, and it went sailing into the left-field stands — his 10th home run of the year. Michael waved his handkerchief and said, "Every time Hog hits one over the fence, he rides in a Brinks' truck around the bases."

It was an exciting game. Four $1 million players struck out, and one designated hitter from the Fortune 500 got a triple.

Unfortunately, Emery Magnuson, the highest paid player in baseball, did not suit up because he had a board meeting at the Chase Manhattan Bank that he just bought from an outfielder with the New York Yankees.

TOM BAXTER

National manager begs rookies to play

The new Democratic president's first prolonged encounter with the Democratic-majority Congress has revealed an institution with one foot into the new way of doing things and the other foot in the old. Events are certainly moving in a new orbit when a president calls a first-term House member to plead for his vote, and in order to convince the freshman that things are on the up and up, gets the Senate majority leader to make a follow-up call to reassure him. That is how Bill Clinton, with the help of Sen. George Mitchell of Maine, won Rep. Don Johnson's vote.

Such a thing would have seemed outlandish even a short time ago, when rank had more privileges than it has now. Yet that incident tells only half the story of how Clinton won passage of his economic package.

Veterans of the Jimmy Carter administration still recall with chagrin how much Sen. Dennis DeConcini extracted from them in exchange for his vote for the Panama Canal treaties. Some things change, some stay the same: When it came to the final round of horse-trading for Clinton's package, it was none other than the Arizona senator who bartered away his vote last. (Sen. Bob Kerrey of Nebraska did not, strictly speaking, sell his vote. He made a great show of giving it away.)

Every member of the House and Senate mattered in this contest. A single vote the other way would have changed its outcome. As excruciatingly close as that political equation seems, it could become familiar if Clinton has to continue to depend only on his own fractious party for the votes he needs to forge a majority.

Sooner or later, people will begin to notice how well Rep. Bernie Sanders, Socialist of Vermont, the only member of Congress who belongs to neither major party, made out in this situation, and some will conclude that a capitalist non-party politician might do even better.

It should not be too long before more independent and third-party candidates begin to show up in congressional elections. Looking at the drum-tight political balance in most of Georgia's congressional districts, one gets an idea of the impact this might have.

Two Georgia congressmen from highly competitive districts, Republican Mac Collins of the 3rd and Democrat Johnson of the 10th, found themselves in very different circumstances Friday.

Collins spent the day taking calls of congratulation for opposing the plan, and doing very little soul-searching. "It was no challenge to vote no," he said.

Johnson had spent a good part of his day explaining his vote for the plan to people who didn't like it. He acknowledged that there was a lot more explaining to do when he got home, and that a big chunk of his political hide is invested in the promises extracted from Clinton and Mitchell to begin a new round of spending cuts before public opinion has hardened on this vote.

But by sitting on the sidelines, Johnson said, the Republicans amplified the influence of more liberal Democrats, so that it was hard to forge a package more conservative than this one. Nor could he have asked for more in the way of personal guarantees, he reflected.

If it comes off as promised, this new round of budgetary surgery would coincide with the unveiling of Hillary Clinton's health care reform plan, which is going to make for some hectic times in the emergency room. Then old and new will be reflected in even sharper relief.

CHARLEY REESE

Politicos pretend as depression slides in

Remember President Clinton's economic plan has more to do with the government than with the private economy.

Reese

In other words, it will not have much effect on the private economy in the U.S. in either a positive or a negative sense.

If you are an aerospace engineer laid off, you will still be laid off. A budget plan for the federal government is not going to create a job for you. Once more, politicians are taking a routine budget measure and hyping it into something it is not.

The base line problem in the private economy is unemployment. This unemployment results from a number of factors: reduction in defense expenditures. Businesses strangled by debt taken on in takeovers or mergers or in fighting off mergers. Businesses being uncompetitive. Manufacturing jobs being moved overseas by transnational corporations to take advantage of cheap labor. Overbuilding due to overlending in commercial real estate. Elimination of jobs from automation and consolidation.

All of these factors feed on each other. The more people who lose their jobs, the less people spend, which affects the businesses still operating. Unemployed people do not buy many things, least of all new homes. Moreover, the more people who lose their jobs, the more those who still have jobs get scared and tend to spend less.

Clinton's falsely named economic plan is merely an attempt to put the federal government's fiscal operations into order — and not a very strong attempt at that. Even under Clinton's estimates, his bill means that in five years the U.S. will be another $1 trillion in debt rather than another $1.5 trillion in debt.

So, even if Clinton gets everything he wants, in five years future generations will be saddled with $5 trillion in accumulated deficits as opposed to $5.5 trillion. That isn't much of an improvement, and even that is a guess based on rather optimistic assumptions.

I would say, based on my own uneducated observations, that we are slip-sliding into another depression, that the federal debt has gone beyond the point of controlling it, much less ever paying it.

To put it another way, politicians over the past three decades have sold seven generations of American children into debt slavery, and the only question now is what the moneylenders will do to keep their interest payments flowing.

Once you recognize what a combination of irresponsible politicians in both parties, an apathetic and uninformed public, and lapdog press have really done to a once great nation, then you won't feel so kindly toward politicians, the political parties, or the present vastly deformed system.

What comes out of Washington is blue smoke. They are desperate to keep you from realizing how bad the situation is. That's why they've taken a simple budget bill and termed it an economic recovery program.

It does not get rid of any private debt. It does not put tenants into empty buildings.

In short, a horse apple wrapped in rhetoric.

Dennis' return brings smiles

I would like to thank the people that gave the money for refurbishing the "Dennis-the-Menace" park. The parks department did a wonderful job. Driving by there nearly every day, it is great to see the large number of adults and children who are enjoying the park. All of us in this neighborhood are delighted to have the park again in use.

Over the years my children, my grandchildren and now even my great-grandchildren have and will also enjoy it.

Keep firearms close, loaded

With reference to the recent news coverage of the courtroom testimony of the events that occurred in the murder of the Fort Worth businessman's wife, Mrs. Koslow, and the attempted murder of him is a terrible and horrifying criminal act, epitomizing satanic greed and desire in its worst form.

As sad as this is, it was compounded by the fact that the Koslows had the means to stop or prevent this terrible act if they had used simple defensive precautions in keeping their guns loaded and accessible. The quotations by Koslow "I jumped out of bed and started running for the gun cabinet, but was ordered to stop." "I debate whether to try to go ahead and load the gun and defend ourselves, but decided against it." "Today I regret that decision."

Later, after his wife had been killed, and he had been beaten and with his throat cut, he said he ran to the gun cabinet, but was unable to load one of his several shotguns.

This sad commentary should be a warning beacon to all lawful citizens that a simple precaution of keeping your guns loaded and accessible at all times could be the difference between life and death to you, your loved ones and the preservation or loss of your property.

Flags should be seen cleanly

I have been a resident of Midland less than a year, but in that time have come to enjoy living here very much. I like the people and the businesses, and plan to stay here for a long time. Last week an event occurred that appalled me, and I wanted to share my disbelief with anyone interested.

I drove past Oakridge apartments, which is located on north Holiday Hill Road in Midland. They have on display a huge American flag, which at one time I'm sure was in very good condition. However, it is now torn, tattered and a disgrace. My father served in the Air Force for 20 years, and I was raised to be proud of the country in which I live. While in high school in Chandler, Ariz., I was very active in the Air Force Junior ROTC program, and it was there that I was taught respect for the flag, and how, when and where to display it.

I called the manager of the apartment complex, and asked her if she had any plans to replace the flag.

She said she had another one on order. I can't wait to see it. I love seeing a big flag billowing in the wind; it gives me goosebumps.

Charities: Dark cloud hovers over Somali mission

MOGADISHU, Somalia (AP) — Private charities on Wednesday accused U.N. troops of human rights abuses and urged the multinational operation not to lose sight of its humanitarian goals.

In a letter to U.N. chief Boutros Boutros-Ghali, 26 organizations based in Mogadishu said U.N. offensives that killed dozens of civilians and hindered humanitarian aid left a moral and legal cloud over the peacekeeping operation.

The United Nations in Somalia "must be held scrupulously to higher standards of conduct," the statement said, singling out U.S. air strikes against warlord Mohamed Farrah Aidid in June and July.

"Decisions to use military force need to take into account the consequences such actions will have on humanitarian efforts," the charities said.

The 26 organizations represent most major American and European charities operating in the Third World.

Their statement echoed concerns voiced by coalition members Germany and Italy last month. Some agencies claim that the U.N. force's focus on military operations have left them without adequate protection for relief operations.

Heavy U.N. casualties in the past have unleashed harsh military responses from American-led air power and ground troops. On Sunday, four U.S. soldiers were killed in a ambush in southern Mogadishu and there were fears of military retaliation.

Aidid's fighters have been blamed for killing 39 peacekeepers, including the four Americans, and wounding 164 since June 5.

The United Nations has ordered Aidid's arrest. His followers say he is hiding in southern Mogadishu, his stronghold.

Earlier Wednesday, U.N. forces said they killed seven Somali gunmen riding in a truck armed with a rocket launcher.

Some weigh power station's impact on Big Bend, NAFTA

MEXICO CITY (NYT) — The $1.6 billion sale to private investors of a huge thermoelectric power plant in northern Mexico has been thrown into doubt by concerns that pollution from the plant could blow over the border into Big Bend National Park in Texas.

The future of the nearly completed plant, which the Mexican government had hailed as a first, shining example of its new effort to privatize the generation of badly needed electricity, is now mired in complex political bargaining tied to the North American Free Trade Agreement, officials said.

Officials of the Mexican government and Mission Energy Co., the American concern that negotiated to buy the 1,400-megawatt plant along with a Mexican mining company, insist there is still no conclusive evidence that its emissions would degrade air quality in Big Bend National Park, 120 miles northwest in the direction of the prevailing winds, as the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency fears.

But both sides say concerns about pollution across the border have been enough to generate a wave of American pressure for the plant to be refitted to meet not only the emissions standards of Mexico and the World Bank, which was to help finance the project, but something approaching the higher standards of the EPA as well.

Equipment to reduce the emissions to levels that would be permissible in the United States could cost the coal-fired plant as much as $300 million, Mission executives say. And that is much more than Mission and its majority partner, Grupo Acerero del Norte, say they will spend before renegotiating the 30-year contract under which they are to sell most of their electricity to Mexico's state-owned utility.

"We're kind of between a rock and a hard place," said Bob Dietch, a senior vice president of Mission Energy, a subsidiary of Southern California Edison. "Whatever the two governments resolve, we will try to work with them.

Pope: Nations sin against poor, indigenous peoples

IZAMAL, Mexico (NYT) — On the eve of his first meeting with President Clinton, Pope John Paul II Tuesday criticized injustice against indigenous people "from the Alaskan peninsula to Tierra del Fuego" and urged a new redistribution of wealth between the American continents' rich north and poor south.

The pope arrived in this small town of 20,000 people in the Yucatan peninsula from Jamaica on the 60th overseas tour of his papacy. He is to travel on Thursday to meet Clinton and to celebrate World Youth Day in Denver, Colo.

While the pope repeated his conservative views in Jamaica on Tuesday, urging young people in particular to avoid what he called sexual misbehavior, he focused principally Wednesday on depicting the church as a defender and protector of indigenous Americans and on promoting a new economic order in the wake of the cold war.

"From Izamal, I want to launch an appeal," the pope said, "to developed societies to overcome economic systems oriented solely toward profit and seek real and effective solutions to the serious problems that afflict wide sectors of the continent's population."

The speech echoed other forthright denunciations of what the pope sees as social and economic injustice in Latin America, but was unusual in its inclusion of the United States just one day before the meeting with Clinton. Vatican officials said there was no formal agenda for the 45-minute meeting in Denver.

"My message is not only for those present here, but goes beyond the geographic limits of the Yucatan to embrace all the indigenous communities, ethnicities and peoples of America, from the Alaskan peninsula to Tierra del Fuego," he declared.

Along with Latin American indigenous groups he also listed Apaches and Eskimos

The pope chose an unusual and possibly symbolic venue for his speech — a Christian fortress-church on the ruins of a Mayan temple.

Health plan likely to include long-term care provisions

■ More national news/5b

PITTSBURGH (NYT) — The Clinton administration's health reform plan is likely to contain a long-term care program with benefits substantially greater than the current Medicaid program, state health officials from around the country have been told.

The cost of the program could be more than $20 billion a year, said Robyn Stone, senior research director for Project HOPE and chair of the White House working group on long-term care. Stone spoke Monday at a workshop at the annual conference of the National Academy for State Health Policy.

Currently, most long-term care benefits are provided to patients in nursing homes through the federal-state Medicaid program. Although home- or community-based care is frequently less expensive, federal programs for such care are severely limited.

The Clinton administration's plan would likely retain the Medicaid long-term care benefit while expanding home- and community-based care benefits.

Two options are being considered for inclusion when President Clinton unveils his health reform plan, probably in late September, Stone said.

One option would create a new federal-state program of home- and community-based care for the low-income severely disabled — defined as people who need assistance with at least three "activities of daily living" such as dressing, cooking and using the toilet — or who suffer cognitive diseases such as Alzheimer's.

The program would include a separate block grant to states for the mentally retarded. Working-age people with disabilities could receive tax credits up to $7,500 a year to help them pay for personal assistance services such as help in eating, dressing and certain medical assistance.

Financial limits for nursing home beneficiaries would be liberalized from $2,000 to $12,000 in assets and from $30 to $100 in personal income per month.

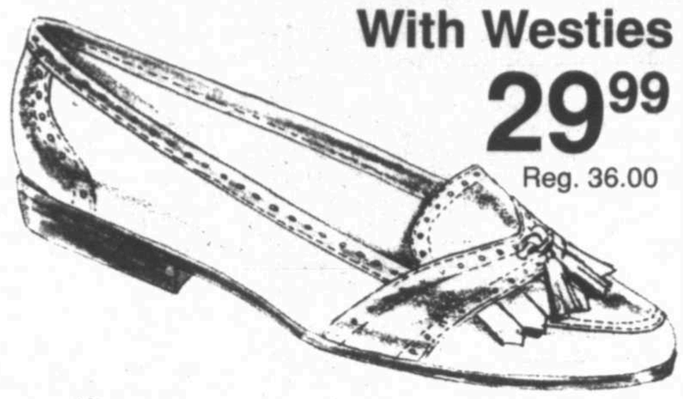

Federal support for the program could be up to 90 percent, compared to the roughly 50 to 70 percent federal support for Medicaid program, Stone said.

EPIC program

A $16,000 grant will provide a family program at DeZavala and South elementary schools this year. The Redwine Foundation recently awarded the grant to fund the EPIC (Effective Parenting Information for Children) program. The foundation financially supports organizations that have special projects for area elderly, disadvantaged youth or college students. EPIC, offered by the Centers for Children and Families, teaches young children responsible behavior and life skills, and builds their self-esteem. The grant money will also fund parenting workshops, most of which will be conducted in Spanish. "Programs such as these help empower parents and help accelerate the educational process for all children," said Rae Wright, principal of South Elementary. She said the EPIC parenting workshops have been offered at South for the past two years. Child care will be provided for parents participating in the program. Parent support groups will also be offered. For more information call 561-5508.

County resident Stephanie Miller, 13, is to show Alex, a championship cocker spaniel, Saturday at 4-H's dog show.

Midland to host dog show

■ Two local girls are showing their pets at statewide 4-H event.

By Ed Todd
Staff writer

The dogs are coming to town.

Accompanied by their youthful 4-H club owner-handlers, they will be at the 23rd annual Texas State 4-H Dog Show to be held at Midland Center Friday night and Saturday.

"Statewide, we've got kids coming in from all over Texas," said Linda Miller, a Midland County 4-H Club adult leader who is helping organize the dog show.

More than 100 dogs — both pure breed and mutts — will be judged on their obedience, conformation, and citizenship in the show that starts at 6:30 p.m. on Friday and at 8 a.m. on Saturday.

Conformation classes will be offered in sporting breeds, hound breeds, working breeds, terrier breeds, toy breeds, non-sporting breeds, herding breeds, miscellaneous class, special class, and non-pure breeds.

The dogs and their young handlers will be competing for showmanship awards and for pure-breed and non-pure breed awards, including those for dog obedience, conformation, citizenship, and specialty classes in various breeds, age groups, and ability levels.

"We explain that the kids can bring the family dog to the show," said Mrs. Miller.

She said the 4-H program, which is for boys and girls from age 9 through their teen-age years, is "open to everybody.

"You don't have to have the expensive pedigreed animals."

Midland County youth who will be exhibiting dogs in the show include 13-year-old Stephanie Miller, daughter of Mrs. Miller and her husband Ronnie, and 14-year-old Melissa Dragoo, daughter of Ron and Kathy Dragoo.

Stephanie's 3-year-old cocker spaniel, Alex, won the 4-H state conformation championship among sporting breeds in 1991. The next year, Stephanie won the novice junior showmanship awards.

Melissa and her dogs are seeking their first championships.

Melissa's and Stephanie's parents are 4-H Club adult leaders.

"It's been a lot of work and a lot of fun," Mrs. Miller said of preparing for the show, which is the first

Lobbyist discusses legislation

■ President of Texas Association of Business speaks to members of local chapter.

By Tonie Miller-Uzzel
Staff writer

Lobbying for businesses statewide is the purpose of the Texas Association of Business, according to its state president who spoke at the quarterly luncheon of the Midland chapter Wednesday.

Dane Harris, president of the TAB, told Midland business people about what the organization represents, in addition to some key legislation that was passed during the past session.

Harris has been involved with the TAB for the past 22 years and has been the president for seven years. He is now a fulltime lobbyist in Austin.

Founded in 1922, TAB was originally known as the Texas Manufacturer's Association until the name was changed in the 1970s to reflect the different businesses that are members.

The organization has more than 2,600 member companies and represents 1.2 million employees statewide.

2 MISD schools receive honor

Staff report

Commissioner of Education Lionel "Skip" Meno recently honored Fannin Elementary and Santa Rita Elementary at the Texas Successful Schools Awards Ceremony in Austin.

The Texas Successful Schools Awards System (TSSAS) identified 1,289 schools out of 6,184 schools statewide for academic performance gain (fall 1990 to fall 1992) and/or for high performance (fall 1992).

During the ceremony, principals of the 124 high-performing schools were individually congratulated by Meno and received plaques honoring their schools. Another 826 schools received certificates for their high-performance efforts.

Fannin Elementary and Santa Rita Elementary received a Governor's Certificate for Outstanding Effort.

In addition, 507 schools received monetary awards for their high degree of performance improvement. Of these, 376 schools received awards ranging from $30,000 to $150,000, and the other 131 schools met less stringent improve-

Blood in urine could indicate cancer of kidney or bladder, urologist says

By Ed Todd

Srinivas

When the body's plumbing-and-cleansing system is working efficiently and without obstruction and pain, people usually take no more than cursory note of its functions and may not consider its intricacies, according to Dr. Sri V. Srinivas, a Midland urologist.

"We take it for granted until something happens," said Srinivas, who specializes in detecting and treating cancer of the urinary tract. "Then you panic. And you wonder what needs to be done to fix it."

The source of panic and pain may be that of a kidney stone the size of a mustard seed or as large as a silver dollar but shaped like a stag horn.

Possibly, the fright may come from an intense burning sensation and blood from the urinary bladder, which may be attacked by an inflammation called cystitis.

"That frightens everybody,' Srinivas said. And sufferers are prone to "run to the doctor" to cure their ailments.

"When you have blood in the urine it could indicate cancer in the kidney or in the urinary bladder," said Srinivas, whose specialty is urologic oncology — cancer of the urinary system. "That's why it is important to undergo investigation and tests" to detect any cancer or other problems that could be cured

Burglary victim is enraged about invasion of privacy

It is frustrating to be angry and not know who you are angry at.

Todd

You just know why.

That is the way it is today at the Todd household.

The other day or night, some villains, dirty, low-down thieves, worse than rascals and scoundrels, broke into our house in town. They had a field day, I suppose.

The burglars rummaged around, turned things topsy-turvy in the house, garage, and shed.

Son of a gun!

That makes me mad. Fighting mad. Hell-fire mad. Downright angry and enraged. Indignant.

Anne, my wife, is more sad and disgusted than angry and furious.

But I think that I am getting more angry the more I dwell on the invasion.

Dirty, rotten, thieving, cowards! They would probably steal from their own blood kin whether the kinfolk claimed them or not.

I want to scream, shout, cuss and seethe and say all sorts of blithering things about the evil-doers, those law-breakers, who broke into our house. Though we were not at home, they violated our privacy even as we were moving out and preparing the house for its new occupants.

I am stomping mad. Spitting mad.

If I were prone to curse and cuss, I would let loose with a barrage of terse Anglo-Saxon and Celtic words and phrases that would greatly please the earthy Geoffrey Chaucer and get the attention of a military drill sergeant who is not particularly impressed with gentlemen.

Cuss, cuss, cuss. Those rascals!

I get mad, and my heart picks up speed when I think of the violation.

The "actors," as police call society's perpetrators, hardly made themselves at home. They made a downright mess of things that would make my clutter take on orderliness.

He died Tuesday in Lake Kemp.

Shipman was born Aug. 16. 1921, in Vera.

He had lived in Midland for 20 years, where he was production foreman for Mobil Oil until his retirement in 1977. After retiring, he was an independent production consultant.

He moved to Seymour this year.

He served in the Marine Corps during World War II and was at Iwo Jima. He received the Purple Heart.

He was a member of the Professional Rodeo Cowboys Association.

Surviors include two daughters, Mary Lou Clendenin of Corpus Christi and Anita Jones of Midland; a son Daniel Shipman of Houston; his mother, Lou Shipman of Seymour; two sisters, Irene English and Sammye Chapman, both of Seymour; and five grandchildren.

Terry Rousselot

Graveside services for Terry L. Rousselot, 35, formerly of Midland, will be at 10 a.m. Monday at Resthaven Memorial Park with the Rev. Steve Stephens of St. Mark's United Methodist Church officiating. Ellis Funeral Home is in charge of arrangements.

He died Monday in San Diego, Calif.

Johnie Williams

Services for Midlander Johnie Williams, 56, are to be Saturday at Baker Jackson Funeral Home Chapel with the Rev. W.C. Palmer officiating. Burial is follow at Fairview Cemetery under the direction of Baker Jackson Funeral Home.

Williams, who died Sunday, was born in Marlin County.

Survivors include two brothers, M.V. Williams of Kermit and Cleveland Williams of Odessa; three sisters, Riby Hubbard of Houston, Louise Richardson of Odessa and Elnora McCoy of Midland; one uncle and two aunts.

Billy R. Holloway

Services for Billy Ross Holloway of Midland have been set for 11 a.m. Saturday at Ellis Funeral Home Chapel. Ellis Funeral Home is in charge of arrangements.

Holloway died Wednesday at his home.

MC schedules freshman registration, orientation

Staff report

A special week for freshman students at Midland College begins Monday. For the first time, the college has arranged four days of orientation as well as one day for freshman registration.

"Our first-time students are asked to call the Student Activities Office at 685-4544 to reserve a place for one of the days between Monday and Thursday of next week to attend an orientation session," said Jan Reed, student activities director.

"At the conclusion of that day, freshmen will be issued time permits to attend their registration on Friday, Aug. 20."

Ms. Reed said that the orientation sessions would cover a lot of information about college life, both academic and extracurricular.

"We want our new students to understand what being a college student entails: how to register, how to budget time and finances, how to read a college catalog, how to make out a class schedule," Ms. Reed said.

"But we also want them to understand that student clubs and activities help them make new friends and explore new horizons. For many, this is their first time to have adult responsibilities and adult rewards."

Friday's special registration session is the first time that Midland College has conducted a special enrollment day just for its freshmen.

"We believe this will allow us to spend more time with these students, counseling them, and getting them enrolled in classes according to their needs and abilities," said Don Cates, associate dean of students and registrar.

Returning and transfer students who didn't register during the early registration period may obtain registration time permits Aug. 16-19 and Aug. 23. These permits assign specific times to come for the general registration on Thursday, Aug. 26. Time permits are issued in the Student Services area of the Student Center from 8 a.m.-5 p.m. Aug. 16-19 and on Monday, Aug. 23.

TODD: Victim is 'fighting mad' at loss of belongings

(From 1B)

They must have been desperate for something to fence to convert to money.

Perhaps they were eager to play around with another's sentimental whatnots, antiques, and personal letters and cards.

Dastardly, rotten misdeed.

I would like to haul the thieves off to the hanging tree and show them, mostly for effect, what done-wrong folk did to horse thieves back in the Old West.

Hang 'em high and let 'em rot and dry out.

The coyotes would not dare to sniff their rotten flesh. And the buzzards would scoff at a meal made up of thieves — low-down burglars.

My gracious! What a foul lot! How dare them to trespass and then invade our privacy! Have they no regard for humanity and personal freedoms — freedoms to be left alone and in peace?

Oh, I would like to take a rod to them and to their ilk.

Sorry, sorry, sorry.

Now, Anne and I are tempted to express a measure of ambivalence toward the perpetrators: anger and gratitude. Just tempted. They did not do all the harm and damage that they could have done. Maybe they ran out of courage, the cowards who raped our house.

They did not appear to vandalize the place other than to bust open a couple of gates and a garage port, sneak through the backdoor, shatter the glass on an old locomotive sketch, break through the attic's entrance way, tear off the wall-heater's vent, and do who knows what else?

They could have, helter-skelter, broken and scarred things, such as furniture, windows, doors, walls, the ceiling and the floor. They could have razed the house or filled it with a thousand stink bugs, which they did by their coming in.

We figured that they took things, including antiques, tools, electronic equipment, and furniture, which they possibly could fence as stolen goods and get some ready cash with which to sport around, maybe to survive, or to buy illicit drugs.

Was mischief and spite on their minds? Maybe they do not like society, family life, freedoms, liberty, privacy (except their own), humanity or even themselves.

Who knows?

What hurts and saddens us most was the blatant invasion of privacy, sneaking into our world, the taking of personal correspondence and mementos and keepsakes and the reckless dumping of things held dear to our hearts and now gone forever.

The dirty, rotten rascals! May God bless them and judge their deeds and misdeeds. They will get their just rewards. They took what they took. That is done and gone. But they will not rob us of our spirits and neither will they take away the stars from the heavens, the sunrises and sunsets from this wondrous planet Earth, our life together, and the love and the songs in our hearts.

CANCER: Doctor urges testing if blood's spotted in urine or controlled by medication, surgery, and other treatments.

"If there is blood in the urine, don't fool around."

Investigation and testing may include the taking of X-rays, conducting intravenous pyelogram (IVP), making a sonogram, or performing a cystoscopy.

"If there is something suspicious, you may take a biopsy," Srinivas said. "Cancer in the early stages, especially in the urinary system, can be cured."

In noting that the urinary system is very compact, Srinivas, 43, said that a "lot of complex problems can be there."

Srinivas' urology training includes studies at Bombay Hospital in India, Memorial University of NFLD in Canada, and Memorial Sloan-Kettering Cancer Center in New York where he held a fellowship in urologic oncology.

Srinivas, who is former assistant professor of urology and chief of uro-oncology in Bombay, is a diplomate on the American Board of Urology. He recently set up his practice in the Midland Urology Center.

While Srinivas' training has focused on detecting and treating urinary problems, he also has suggested means to help prevent or forestall those problems.

"Drink plenty of fluids," he advised, to help cleanse the system. "Water would be the best" fluids to help prevent kidney stones from forming, he said. He also cautioned not to drink "too much milk" because it contains calcium, which is the substance of kidney stones.

Dark colored urine is an indicator that "you are not drinking enough water," Srinivas said, and the level of waste material in the urine is too high.

"Clear (urine) is best."

"When you feel like urinating, don't hold back," Srinivas said. Postponing that urinary function would cause the elastic bladder to over stretch, which could result in decreasing the resilience of the bladder and the failure of the bladder to completely void itself.

In that case, not all of the urine — which contains waste products that the kidneys filter from the blood — is eliminated from the bladder and something "like a stagnant pool" of urine would form in the bladder. That situation could set up medical problems, including infection.

Kidney stones, which can cause intense pain if lodged in the urinary tract, are more frequent in men than in women.

After menopause women are more prone to get bladder infection, Srinivas said, because of the decrease in estrogen. The bladder in women after menopause "often does not empty entirely" and that may result in infection.

"The female hormone is supposed to give protection to infection," he said.

Among men, prostate cancer is the most common cancer.

"It may not be the most deadly, but it is the most common particularly in men aged 55 and older.

If you catch it early, you can treat it," Srinivas said.

Younger men in their 20s and 30s may be affected by cancer of the testes.

Men need to learn to examine their testes, Srinivas said, just as women are encouraged to examine their breast to defect any sign of cancer.

4-H: City to host dog show

(From 1B)

statewide 4-H dog show to be held in Midland.

Judges for the show are sanctioned by the American Kennel Club (AKC) and are professional dog handlers.

Mrs. Dragoo, who said that she and her family are "dog people," noted that the 4-H Club program is "not only for country kids but for city kids who have an interest in dogs and who care for them, show them, and take pride in that care.

"My husband and I grew up with dogs. They're loyal and obedient," she said.

Stephanie said that among animals, horses are her favorite.

Out on her parents' country place, she looks after horses, a goat, cats, dogs, and "too many sheep."

However, Stephanie likes to train dogs.

"People who take time to train their dogs and to keep them in good health are good people," Mrs. Miller said. "You have to be special people to really care for pets."

TAB: Lobbyists are successful, president says

(From 1B)

Harris said some of the issues TAB deals with include product liability, worker's compensation, environmental issues as well as taxes and spending.

"TAB is a member-driven organization," Harris told those in attendance.

He said the group lobbies before the state Legislature regarding issues important to businesses statewide.

He drew chuckles by telling a joke about how people can tell the difference between an old dog and a lobbyist: a lobbyist will continue to whine even after he has been let in the house.

Harris then said the main focus of TAB is to provide lawmakers with a better grasp of what the people want.

"And the members of TAB have been very successful doing just that," he added.

He said the lobbyists are not as bad as many people tend to think. He said the stereotypes of "fat cats" is not accurate; he said most lobbyists are there to relate the opinions and beliefs of the group they represent.

He then discussed issues important to businesses at both the state and national levels.

He said on a national level, the TAB is concerned about the impact tax increases will have on job creation. He indicated that raising taxes will hinder job growth.

Instead, he said, more spending cuts are needed.

"I hope the budget reconciliation bill will address these problems, but I doubt it will," Harris said.

Although TAB is non-partisan, he indicated it does favor conservative, pro-business stances on issues and endorses candidates depending upon their economic and business philosophies.

He said the 1994 elections will be crucial to the business community of the state when the governor, lieutenant governor and the legislative members will be voted on.

"The state of Texas is at a crossroads and the '94 election could make decisions to impact us for a long time," he said.

He summed up some of the more important business issues discussed in the past legislative session.

"This was one of the best for business issues, and as business goes, so goes the state," Harris said.

He said a number of business issues were discussed this past session including legislation that will protect businesses from product liability; as well as a referendum that will be on the Nov. 2 ballot, which will provide an ad valorem tax break for companies on equipment installed for environmental purposes. TAB supports the referendum, which will be proposition 2. If passed it will go into effect Jan. 1, 1994.

Harris said TAB also supports the small employer health-care act passed by the state Legislature. He said although the package isn't perfect it allows for cooperatives to provide insurance so a number of businesses can join together to get better rates.

Harris said TAB also supports bringing more commerce into Texas by backing the North American Free Trade Act.

"This is why TAB members are important . . . we have small staff and we rely on members' input," Harris said about upcoming issues. "We want to help Texas realize the great potential it has in this state."

MISD: 2 schools receive honor

(From 1B)

ment criteria for awards ranging from $10,000 to $25,000.

The Texas Legislature created TSSAS to identify and reward schools that demonstrate progress or success in achieving the educational goals of the state.

During this second year of TSSAS, the awards given out at the ceremony totaled $20 million.

The funds, given to schools that demonstrated a high degree of academic performance gain, are intended for academic enhancement use at the winning schools.

Districts set election on fulfilling school-finance obligation

DALLAS (AP) — Eight wealthy school districts are asking voters to decide whether school officials can send money to the state to fulfill their obligation under the new school finance plan.

Voting for the Carroll, Carrollton-Farmers Branch, Coppell, Grapevine-Colleyville, Highland Park, Plano and Richardson districts will begin Aug. 28. Sunnyvale's election will be Aug. 31.

School district officials are concerned that uninformed voters will cast "no" ballots. They need "yes" ballots to get permission to turn over a combined $95 million to the state for redistribution to property-poor districts.

Trustees and administrators are holding meetings, distributing literature and stumping to let voters know that they need to vote "yes."

The Legislature has demanded that about 100 districts choose one of five options to lower property wealth to an acceptable level of $280,000 a student.

Most districts across the state are choosing to turn over their excess tax revenue to the state directly.

Other options are to consolidate either school systems or tax bases, to transfer taxable property to another district, or to contract to pay to educate another district's students.

Cultists' bodies to undergo DNA testing

DALLAS (AP) — Samples from 42 people who died at the Branch Davidian compound have been transported to the Armed Forces Institute of Pathology in Washington, D.C., where they will undergo DNA testing.

Meanwhile, McLennan County officials are asking family members, specifically siblings or parents, to contact them. FBI agents will help those relatives get tested to see if their DNA matches with any of the unidentified bodies, McLennan County Justice of the Peace David Pareya said Wednesday.

FBI agents took the samples, which were packed in dry ice and flown to Washington Monday. The identification process is expected to take four months to a year, he said.

There is no guarantee that any of the bodies will be identified using this process because of the extensive charring and damage they have suffered, Pareya said.

The remains of about 50 unidentified Branch Davidians will be stored temporarily in a freezer in Fort Worth while efforts to identify them continue.

Most of the victims died April 19 in the fire that destroyed the sect's compound outside Waco.

Koslow-case jury returns death sentence

By Jean Pagel
Associated Press writer

WICHITA FALLS — Jeffrey Dillingham should be executed for killing Fort Worth socialite Caren Koslow in a murder-for-hire scheme, jurors decided Wednesday.

The panel returned its punishment decision for the 20-year-old former honor student after about four hours.

Dillingham stood trembling as State District Judge Bob Gill read the verdict. His parents, fiance and supporters embraced and cried loudly.

Jack Koslow, wounded during the attack on his wife, swallowed and blinked. But he showed no emotion and left the courthouse without speaking to reporters.

Tarrant County Prosecutor Alan Levy and defense attorney Jack Strickland agreed that the jury based its decision on the brutality of the case.

The planning that went into the murder, testimony from Koslow and Dillingham's confession proved overwhelming, Strickland said.

"It's unfortunate," Levy said. "When someone gets the death penalty, it's not a success for the justice system. It indicates a failure somewhere in society."

Levy said two other defendants, Kristi Koslow and Brian Salter, also would be prosecuted for capital murder.

Jurors had taken just one hour and 40 minutes Saturday to find Dillingham guilty of capital murder.

He said nothing as bailiffs escorted him through a hall lined with TV news cameras.

"He's like someone who's just been in a serious car accident," Strickland said. "He's in shock."

Strickland said Ray and Toni Dillingham were almost hysterical in a brief meeting with their son.

In closing arguments, Levy branded Dillingham as the evil perpetrator of a "methodical, careful slaughter."

"Is this a dangerous man?" Levy repeatedly shouted during his step-by-step replay of the bludgeoning of Mrs. Koslow and her husband. "His conscience was in his purse."

Texas law gave the eight-woman, four-man panel just two punishment choices: lethal injection or life in prison. A defendant assessed life must serve at least 35 years behind bars.

Attorneys for the state accuse Dillingham and two other young adults of carrying out the plan against the Koslows.

The assailants fatally beat Mrs. Koslow with a pry bar and slashed the throat of the 40-year-old socialite. Koslow, a 49-year-old ex-banker, was wounded in the March 1992 attack at his home.

Prosecutors accuse Miss Koslow of offering to pay Dillingham and her boyfriend $1 million for killing her father and stepmother. Trial dates have not been set for Miss Koslow, 18, or Brian Salter, 21.

"The facts are the facts, and the facts — ugly and brutal as they are — are what bring us to this stage," Levy said.

Strickland urged leniency because Dillingham has no prior criminal record.

Strickland's closing argument pointed to psychologists' testimony that Dillingham is easily manipulated and probably would not pose a danger to anyone in prison.

"I make no bones about this: I ask you for the life of Jeffrey Dillingham," Strickland said. "I do it with no qualifications, no reservations."

Dillingham softly cried as the attorneys spoke. He frequently rubbed his eyes, his whole body trembling more violently than at any time since the punishment phase began Monday.

Friends were comforting his parents, who sat behind him in the crowded courtroom.

But Dillingham — who assembled what Levy called a "death kit" of guns, a pry bar and bullet-proof vest — deserves no pity, the prosecutor said.

"There is pity enough in the Koslow bedroom to move the entire courthouse," Levy said.

Most damaging to the defense was the 37-minute statement Dillingham gave police 12 days after the attack. In it, he acknowledged hitting the couple and stealing Koslow's wallet.

Aspin orders Marines to shoot down marriage policy

Marine commandant tries to implement new marriage policy, Defense Secretary Aspin says no. Represents second confrontation between Clinton Administration, military.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Defense Secretary Les Aspin ordered the Marine Corps to do an abrupt about-face Wednesday and withdraw its decision to stop accepting married recruits. He acted just hours after the Marine policy was made public.

A senior Pentagon official, speaking on condition of anonymity, said Aspin did not necessarily disagree with the policy but strongly objected to it being decreed by the Marines without first gaining approval from the Pentagon's civilian leaders.

"It's a sensitive policy arena," the official said, "and he (Aspin) hasn't had an opportunity to consider this policy."

Gen. Carl Mundy Jr., commandant of the Marine Corps, spelled out the new policy in a message to all Marines in which he said no married recruits would be allowed to join the service after September 1995 and Marines already in uniform who want to get married must consult first with their commanding officers.

Mundy, who is married, also ordered an "educational awareness program on the advantages of delaying marriage" for all Marines whether they are planning marriage or not. The education would start in recruit training and be repeated each year.

White House press secretary Dee Dee Myers said President Clinton "was astounded when he heard about the general's order." She said Clinton had presidential counselor David Gergen call Aspin to find out what was going on. By the time Gergen reached Aspin by phone, however, the order already had been withdrawn, she said.

The Army, Navy and Air Force have no such policies on marriage.

Mundy issued his order on Aug. 5, but the policy was not made public by the Marines until Wednesday. Several hours after news reports appeared, Aspin's office issued a brief statement saying the Marines had withdrawn the policy on Aspin's orders.

"The secretary has directed that any new policy proposals on this matter be subject to a full departmental review," the statement said.

Mile High City prepares plenty for Pope's stop

DENVER (NYT) — The streets of this city bustled with the flavor of an international bazaar Tuesday as 160,000 Roman Catholics under the age of 40 from 70 nations awaited the arrival of Pope John Paul II on Thursday.

President Clinton will greet the pope at Stapleton Airport, and the two will be whisked by helicopter to Regis University, where they will meet for about 45 minutes.

With two of the world's most important leaders in the same place, security measures were being kept secret but were "very, very tight," said Sherry Maloney, a spokeswoman for World Youth Day, a gathering of Roman Catholics between the ages of 13 and 39 for prayer, study and celebration.

Holger Jensen, a columnist for The Rocky Mountain News, wrote: "God's politician and America's chief politician, together in an overgrown cowtown with a casual attitude toward guns, surrounded by 150,000 visitors from every corner of the globe, is a security man's nightmare."

The pope, who survived an assassination attempt in 1981, will be protected by the Secret Service. A Mass on Sunday at Cherry Creek State Park is expected to draw nearly 500,000 spectators and will be patrolled by more than 200 soldiers of the Army National Guard.

Denver has recently witnessed a spate of random shootings, which has prompted Gov. Roy Romer to call for a special session of the state Legislature.

YOUR HOROSCOPE

By Jeane Dixon

THURSDAY, AUGUST 12, 1993

HAPPY BIRTHDAY! IN THE NEXT YEAR OF YOUR LIFE: A more favorable climate exists for both business deals and family relationships. Growing pains are at the root of parent-child problems in the fall. Patience and a willingness to listen will improve the situation by Christmas. A vacation trip proves more satisfying than business travel early in 1994. Romance will turn the corner next spring. Show your tender, sentimental side.

CELEBRITIES BORN ON THIS DATE: Sen. Dale Bumpers, actress Jane Wyatt, author William Goldman, actor George Hamilton.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Keep secrets to yourself, especially those related to your career. Think in terms of your long-range goals. Protect your reputation by passing up a dubious financial opportunity.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): A lost item could turn up in an unexpected place. Do not let yourself get involved in someone else's problems. Everyone needs privacy. Besides, your emotions could mislead you.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Common sense is more important than anything you can learn from a book now. Make a decision about real estate. Job conditions improve when you speak your mind. Pay any overdue debts.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Today could feature stubborn and argumentative people dominating a group. You may get the feeling that you are stuck. Pull back a bit and formulate an escape plan. Evening hours favor romance.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Travel beckons. Business-pleasure combinations can go forward during the afternoon hours. This evening is ideal for touching base with those closest to your heart.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Be mature in thought and deed. Whimsical desires are best put on hold. You may be expecting too much from a child under prevailing conditions. Withhold judgment until you have more information.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Extract what you can from a minor victory. Younger men are in the driver's seat today. Make a good impression with well-chosen clothes and meticulous grooming.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): You can trust the decisions and changes that are made today. Push hard for respect. Taking aggressive steps to solve financial problems now will prevent a disaster later on.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Splendid developments at work give you a feeling of optimism and self-determination. Move ahead with your plans. Guard against meddling in other people's lives.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Do not rush today, even if there is a demand for some speed. An accident or costly error could result. Expanding your circle of acquaintances will pep up your social life.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Take care of your bills and insurance matters. Get a second estimate before signing a contract. Creative success comes to those involved in music and the other arts.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Cut back on work. Burning the candle at both ends is not in your best interest. Get your priorities right. Taking a trip will give you a better perspective on life and love.

TODAY'S CHILDREN are bold and brave. Expect them to take chances that others will not. Energetic and resilient, they seem to have greater physical stamina than most of us. Count on them to stand up for their principles. They will not want to compromise either on the playground or in the boardroom. Pleasure-oriented and romantic, these Leos are able to strike a good balance between work and play.

Opening lead: Jack of ♠

When there's no immediate threat to your contract, you have the rare luxury of time to test all the possibilities to develop the tricks you need. This hand, reported in the Midwest Monitor by Patty Eber and Mike Oeschler, vividly illustrates the advantage that time can confer.

South's jump to three no trump over partner's one-diamond opening bid is textbook—a hand with a 4-3-3-3 pattern and 16-18 points. That ended the auction.

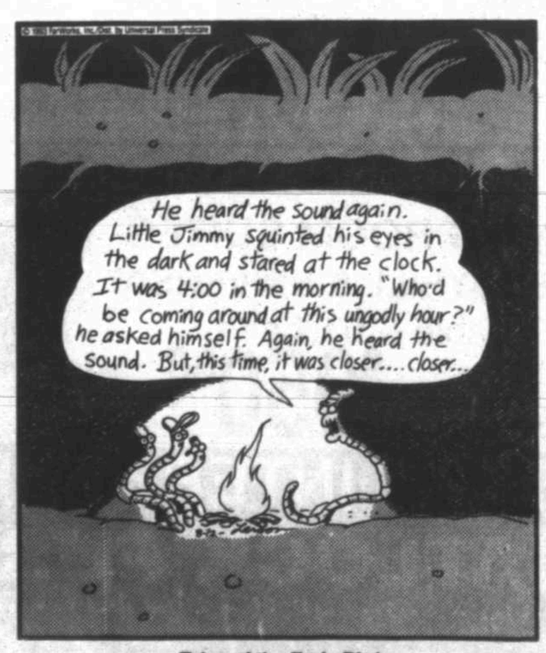

West led the jack of clubs and declarer could count eight sure winners. The ninth could come from a successful spade finesse, an even club or diamond split, finding the ace of diamonds with West or East with a doubleton ace.

With every suit except diamonds at least doubly stopped, declarer set about looking for a ninth trick in the weakest holding! The opening lead was taken in the closed hand and a low diamond was led and ducked. East's ten won and a club was returned. Declarer won in hand and led another diamond, withholding the king again. When East produced the ace, the king of diamonds became the fulfilling trick.

What if East had won the second diamond with a lower honor? On regaining the lead (presumably in hearts) declarer would have persevered with diamonds. If that lost to the ace and the long diamond was not established, declarer would still have time to test the clubs and, failing an even break there, fall back on the spade finesse for the game-going trick.

Daughter of best-selling author debuts on book lists

NEW YORK — Hello, Carol Higgins Clark. Goodbye, Mary Higgins Clark.

Carol, daughter of the best-selling author, hit the book-sales charts herself this week when "Decked" debuted at No. 13 on The New York Times paperback fiction list.

Mom, however, dropped off the charts this week. Her "I'll Be Seeing You" was a fixture on the hardcover list for the last 14 weeks.

"Isn't this fun?" a proud Mary Higgins Clark told the Times. "I wish her even more success than I have had."

That would be quite an effort for Carol. There are more than 25 million copies in print of her mother's 10 books.

NEW ORLEANS — Jazz trumpeter Al Hirt was recovering from gall bladder surgery Wednesday and was expected to be back playing in four to six weeks, his managers said.

Hirt

Hirt, 70, was diagnosed with gall stones Aug. 3. He had surgery Tuesday, a news release said. He was resting comfortably at a suburban New Orleans hospital and was expected to fully recover, said his daughter, Rebecca.

Hirt has been playing regularly for about two years at Jelly Roll's in the French Quarter. He has recorded more than 50 albums and singles and won a Grammy in 1964 for "Java." He has received 21 Grammy nominations.

TULSA, Okla. — Non-fiction writer Peter Matthiessen was named winner of this year's Peggy V. Helmerich Distinguished Author Award, in a departure for a prize that usually goes to fiction authors.

Matthiessen, 66, of New York's Long Island, travels extensively and writes about natural history and anthropology. He will receive $20,000 and an engraved crystal book at the award's presentation Dec. 10 in Tulsa.

Matthiessen wrote his first of 20 books, "Wildlife in America," in 1959. "The Snow Leopard," in 1979, earned him the National Book Award.

Bill Kellough, chairman of the 13-member Helmerich selection committee, noted on Tuesday that previous winners usually were well-known fiction authors, including Norman Mailer, John le Carre, John Updike and Saul Bellow.

NEWPORT, R.I. — Rosemary Clooney is a little awed to be performing at this weekend's JVC Newport Jazz Festival.

"I think I'm ready for Newport," the pop and jazz singer said during a phone interview from her waterfront cottage in Gloucester, Mass.

The festival is tantamount to playing Carnegie Hall or the Hollywood Bowl, Clooney said. "It's one of those places that's very high on a profile when you're doing a bio. I think it's very well respected."

Clooney and her Concord Jazz All-Stars will perform Friday at the International Tennis Hall of Fame's center court, where the festival began in 1954.

Clooney was among artists who performed for President Clinton during a recent White House tribute to the festival. The experience was sensational, she said. "It was quite wonderful to see the Newport Jazz Festival was a priority with our government as it should be."

* * *

NORFOLK, Va. — Rocker Joe Walsh and country singer John Anderson will begin a tour of performing duty at a Navy base here Friday.

Anderson

"Everybody brings a blanket and has a good ol' time," said Alan Kincer, a spokesman for the Little Creek Naval Amphibious Base, where up to 6,000 people are expected for the outdoor show.

The show is the first of six in this year's Marlboro Music Military Tour, which raises money for such things as gymnasium facilities and athletic equipment at host bases. Other featured acts will include Lynyrd Skynyrd, Damn Yankees and .38 Special.

Anderson's hits include "Seminole Wind," and "Straight Tequila Night." Walsh's include "Life's Been Good."

Where else but in Washington would they serve up something called the "ethical lunch?" At Ristorante Tiberio on K Street, the tab for lunch is $19.99, a way to help diners to abide by a change in regulations.

The Office of Government Ethics in February lifted a restriction barring federal officials from accepting any meal or gift from lobbyists, journalists or anyone else who may benefit from the contact. Instead, the agency limited the cost of such meals to $20, with an overall ceiling of $50 a year from any one source.

Giulio Santillo, the owner of the restaurant, seized the moment to introduce what he calls the ethical lunch. (The $19.99 does not include tax or tips.)

Christopher warns Serbs survival of Sarajevo is in U.S. interest

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States cautioned Bosnian Serbs on Wednesday their continuing control of strategic mountains overlooking Sarajevo could trigger an attack by NATO.

"We have concluded it is in our national interest to prevent the strangulation of Sarajevo in coordination with our allies," Secretary of State Warren Christopher said.

In a move that appears to toughen U.S. demands, Christopher said it would not be enough for the Serbs to withdraw from the mountains. "The real test is whether or not Sarajevo is going to be strangled by the Serbs," he said on PBS' MacNeil-Lehrer News Hour.

Christopher called NATO's plans for an attack on the Serbs "very thorough and very complete." And he said they could be implemented rapidly.

In preparation for a final decision, Christopher has begun providing daily reports to the European allies and to the United Nations on Serb actions in Bosnia-Herzegovina, including the continued harassment of relief convoys, his spokesman said.

A senior administration official said the Serbs had promised Lord Owen, the European mediator, they would quit Mount Bjelasnica and Mount Igman "at a time certain" on Thursday.

However, Michael McCurry, the State Department spokesman, cited reports the Serbs were bringing in fresh troops and weapons. If accurate, he said, "all the criteria set forth by NATO as preconditions for using more aggressive military measures will have been met."

"We consider the Bosnian Serbs to be in control of the two mountains," he said. "We are now in a position day by day and perhaps hour by hour of aggressively analyzing the information we have obtained about certain conduct on the ground in Bosnia."

McDonald's killer 'was crying for help,' friend says

KENOSHA, Wis. (AP) — A 26-year-old man who killed two people and himself at a McDonald's often spoke of loneliness and despaired when his teen-age girlfriend left him, acquaintances said Wednesday.

"It was like he was crying for help," said Tina Flannery, 29, who worked at a laundry frequented by Dion Terres.

Clad in jungle fatigues, Terres burst into the fast-food restaurant Tuesday afternoon, yelled for people to get out and then started shooting with a .44-caliber handgun, police said. A man was killed instantly and a woman died at a hospital Wednesday.

In Terres' car, police found a videotape — apparently made Monday — in which he expressed anger at society and said it was "payback time," Lt. Steve Pataska said.

Terres had recently lost or left his job, and his 16-year-old girlfriend had left him.

In the videotape, Terres also praised serial killers including Jeffrey Dahmer and Ted Bundy. And he spoke about fantasies of killing people, said he heard voices and talked about digging up Abraham Lincoln and putting him in his bathtub, Pataska said.

His mood swung from agitation to calm during the rambling, 40-minute statement, said police Capt. Bob Young.

Outside the restaurant was an assault rifle Terres left behind after apparently locking a 30-round ammunition clip in his car along with his keys and failing to realize he had another clip in his pocket, Young said.

Terres apparently made few friends during the eight months after he moved to Kenosha from Arlington Heights, Ill.

"He'd come in and say, 'Tina, it's so boring — my phone doesn't ring, I don't know anybody,'" said Flannery.

"We used to talk about a lot of things — jobs, his work. He talked to me about why he bought a house — because he was with a girl and thought she would move in with him. But then they went their separate ways.

Jackson innocent

COLUMBUS, Ohio — A jury found Dallas Mavericks guard Jim Jackson innocent on Wednesday of all charges stemming from a disturbance last December during which four people alleged he waved a gun at them.

The jury of four men and four women deliberated less two hours before acquitting Jackson of one count of aggravated menacing and three counts of disorderly conduct. Franklin County Municipal Judge Steven Hayes had previously dismissed one charge of improper handling of a firearm in a motor vehicle and one count of disorderly conduct.

Jackson, a former Ohio State standout, was accused of pointing a gun at the four and shouting racial slurs as they were driving down a Columbus street Dec. 30. Jackson and his accusers are black.

During closing arguments Wednesday, prosecutor Tony Paat said jurors should have believed testimony of the four, even though they weren't as composed as those who testified on Jackson's behalf.

Johnston injured

AUSTIN — Dallas Cowboys starting fullback Daryl Johnston will probably miss the rest of the exhibition schedule with a fractured finger on his right hand suffered during a training camp practice drill Wednesday afternoon.

Johnston, a five-year veteran, will be outfitted with a cast and protective splint and will be available for the team's regular season opener Sept. 6 against the Washington Redskins, coach Jimmy Johnson said.

Backup Tommie Agee will replace Johnston for the final three preseason games. Dallas hosts the Los Angeles Raiders Saturday.

Johnson said Johnston suffered the injury when he caught and twisted the finger in a teammate's jersey or pads during a blocking drill.

Hagler to be tried

CONWAY, N.H. (AP) — Former middleweight champion Marvelous Marvin Hagler will be tried on a drunken-driving charge at an unspecified date, a court official said Wednesday.

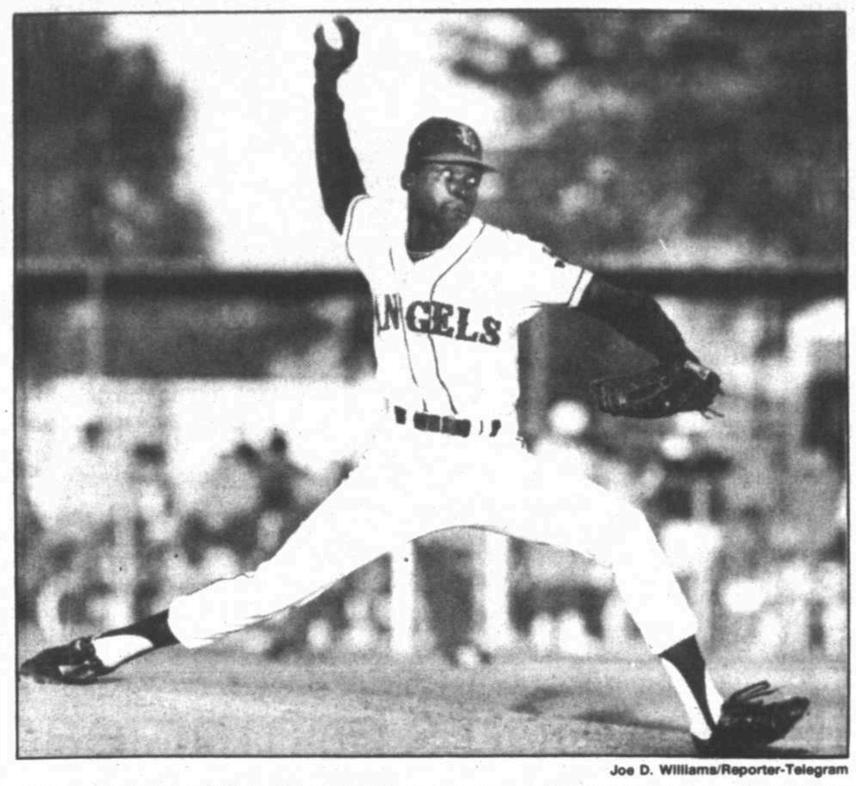

Hagler, 39, of Bartlett and Brockton, Mass., faced arraignment Thursday, but a Conway District Court spokeswoman said his lawyer waived the appearance.

Hagler was charged by Bartlett police after he was stopped on Route 302 at 12:48 a.m. EDT on July 8.

Pugh strikes Midland again

Joe D. Williams/Reporter-Telegram

Angels' pitcher Julian Heredia was tagged for five runs Wednesday night.

■ Former Abilene Cooper and University of Texas standout Scotty Pugh clubs three-run homer in Wichita win.

By Bill Petitt
Staff writer

The dream of every high school baseball player is to make it in the big leagues. Your first game in the "bigs" with a packed stadium. Mom, dad and girlfriend in the stands watching you do your thing.

Well, its not quite the major leagues, but for former Abilene Cooper standout Scotty Pugh it was just as special as the District 4-5A standout returned to the ballpark where he played several times to lead Wichita to a 13-8 win over the Midland Angels Wednesday night.

The Wranglers move to within two games of the Angels in the Texas League West. The second place team is assured of a playoff spot in the division championship playoffs.

Pugh went 1-for-3, but that one hit was a towering shot over the right field wall in the fifth inning, scoring three in Wichita's 13-run barrage.

"I had a lot adrenalin going into the game," said Pugh. "Yeah, I was nervous, more so than any other game because I had family and friends here."

Pugh, called up last week from Class A, hit his third home run off just six hits since joining AA Wichita, off reliever Julian Heredia.

Pugh made two stellar defensive plays in the field — one in the first stabbing a hot shot at first base and scooping up a weak throw from shortstop Ray Holbert to end the second inning.

In the third, Pugh was hit by a Chance Gledhill (6-11) pitch and later scored off Vince Harris' double off the right field wall.

Among the 3,671 in attendance were parents Kirby and Sandy Pugh and girlfriend Kristin Berry.

"We've dreamed of him playing here," said Sandy.

"I generally don't sit during the game," said Kirby, who spent most of the game perched behind the catcher in the stands while his wife and a contingent of "8-10" people from Abilene sat near the third base dugout. "But, there were a couple of people from Abilene with us, so..."

Wichita, who has won five of six on its current road trip, scored eight runs in

1993 PGA CHAMPIONSHIP

Trio tries for higher level

■ With a PGA win, Nick Price, Greg Norman or Nick Faldo will belong with golf's elite.

By Steve Wilstein
AP Sports Writer

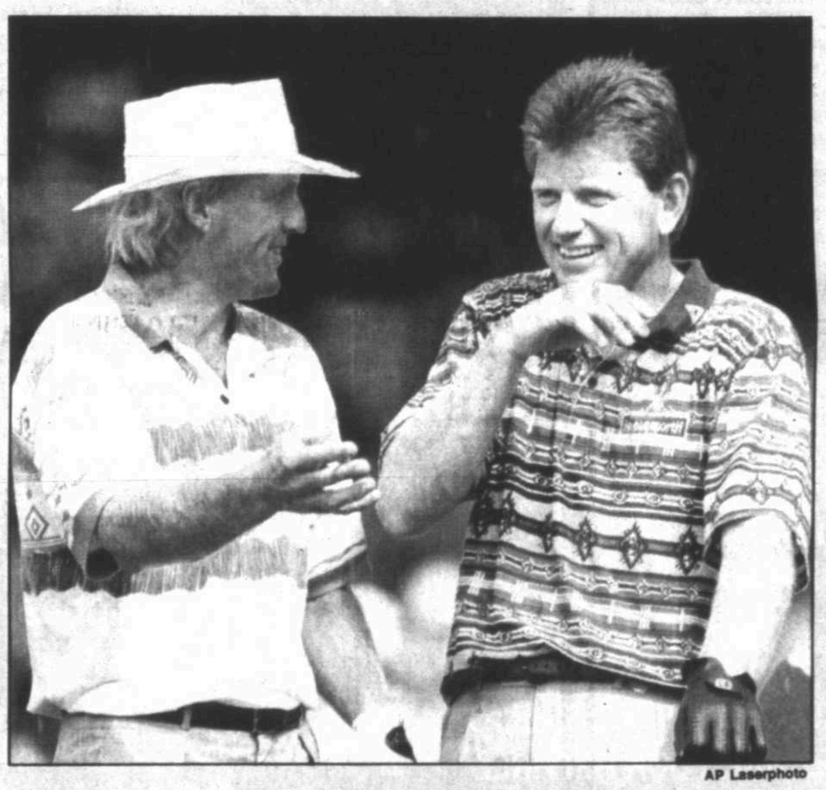

TOLEDO, Ohio — Ignoring the steamy heat of Inverness and the tension ahead, Nick Price and Greg Norman joked between shots in a final practice round for a PGA Championship that could forever change their stature in golf.

Confidantes on and off the course for a long time, Price is feeling the infallibility and intoxication of winning that Norman knew seven years ago and only recently found again.

Together with Nick Faldo they form a triumvirate of the best golfers in the world right now, and a victory by any of them Sunday would lift the winner to a level few have achieved.

When they tee up Thursday for the start of the 75th PGA, the stakes for Price, Norman and Faldo will be far beyond the $300,000 top prize or the prestige that goes with winning any major.

"I'm at the situation now where Greg was after he won the British Open in 1986," said Price, defending champion and winner of four tour events in the past four months. "If I win a major championship in the next year or so, it's not only going to prove to myself but it's going to prove to everyone else that I've become a world-class player.

AP Laserphoto

Greg Norman, left, and defending champion Nick Price are among the favorites for the PGA Championship this weekend in Toledo, Ohio.

"You're only measured by the amount of major championships you win. It's all great and fine to win a lot of regular tour events like Tom Kite did, but as soon as he won the U.S. Open it elevated him to another level. When you get to your second major championship, you're at another level. There's so many guys who have won only one major."

Price is grateful he won at least one major after 16 years as a pro and a single tournament victory in COLLEGE STATION — If any team can have a 22-3 record over the past two seasons and still be disappointed, it's the Texas Aggies.

They've competed for the national championship both seasons but their fatal attraction to the Cotton Bowl has effectively dashed their hopes both years.

The Aggies have been outscored 38-5 by Florida State (10-2 in 1992) and Notre Dame (28-3 in 1993), leaving a gnawing feeling of unfinished business as they return with nine offensive and eight defensive starters.

Last January's loss to Notre Dame was spiced by threats of an NCAA investigation over alleged illegal payments by a booster for summer jobs not performed. Leading rusher Greg Hill sat out the game.

Texas A&M dropped to No. 7 in the final AP poll but most of those players are back for a shot at a third straight title and no one in the Southwest Conference appears ready to pose much of a challenge.

"I know if we get enough chances in bowl games, we'll win our share," coach R.C. Slocum said. "If we'd played our best against Notre Dame and they'd played their best, we might still have lost.

"They might have just been the best team on that day. I just hope we get to go again."

ASA tourney starts today

Staff report

The ASA National Girls 16-Under Slow Pitch Tournament begins today at the Bill Williams Softball Complex in Hogan Park.

Opening ceremonies will be held at 7 p.m. at the Complex and action begins with first round games at 8 p.m.

There will be 30 teams from 16 states competing for the title this year that will be determined by a double elimination format. The winner will be named Sunday afternoon.

Two area teams, the Midland Bombers and the Odessa Warriors, will compete. Lubbock also has a team entered, the Texas Blue. The Baytown Slammers are the only other Texas team in the tournament. Arkansas also has four teams entered, tying Texas for the most entries from one state.

Moore, Okla., is the only city with two entries, bringing the Thrillers and the OKC Blasters.

Teams stretch from across the country. The Davie Dolphins and the West Broward Hot Shots are from Florida while the Fairbanks Merchants hail from Alaska.

Other states represented are Idaho, Alabama, Mississippi, New Mexico, South Dakota, North Dakota, North Carolina, Kentucky, Rhode Island, Pennslyvania and Minnesota.

Coleman arraignment delayed

By John Nadel
AP Sports Writer

LOS ANGELES — The arraignment for New York Mets outfielder Vince Coleman on a felony explosives charge was postponed Wednesday at the request of his attorney until five days after the baseball season ends.

Municipal Court Commissioner Abraham Khan granted the delay sought by Robert Shapiro, who was given the new date of Oct. 8.

Shapiro said he requested the delay because he had yet to receive a status report on the three people injured by the explosive, which Coleman threw near fans outside Dodger Stadium last month.

Coleman, free on $5,000 bail, appeared in court with attorneys Shapiro and Michael Nasatir. Outside the courthouse after the proceedings, which took only a couple of minutes, Shapiro spoke with reporters for about 10 minutes. Coleman, at Shapiro's side, never said a word.

"I have been in contact with the attorneys for the three people hurt, they do not have status reports," Shapiro said. "The injuries are an important consideration when it comes to sentencing. We will not contest the charges. There will be a guilty plea or a no-contest plea, depending on what the charges are.

"He is as sorry as anybody can be about what happened. This is a very serious matter for him."

The explosion injured Amanda Santos, 2½, who suffered second-degree burns to her cheek and damage to an eye and finger; Marshall Savoy, 11, who suffered a bruised leg; and Cindy Mayhew, 33, who was treated for an ear injury.

Vince Coleman, right, and attorney Robert Shapiro, talk to the press.

Shapiro said since Coleman has had no previous legal problems he believed his client should be "a probationary case." Shapiro also said he believes none of those injured suffered permanent injuries.

Coleman, 31, is on unpaid leave from the Mets. He faces a charge of unlawful possession of an explosive device in connection with the July 24 incident.

"He is going back to New York in the next day or two," Shapiro said. "He would like to get back to his career."

When asked how soon Coleman would be in uniform, Shapiro said, "I don't know. That would be up to his manager and up to baseball."

Jay Horwitz, a spokesman for the Mets, said a decision had not yet been made on when or if Coleman would return to active duty.

Prosecutors have said the explosive was an M-100 and had the equivalent power of a quarter-stick of dynamite. Conviction carries a penalty ranging from probation to three years in prison.

Burkett stops Red Sox for win No. 18

Associated Press

SAN FRANCISCO — John Burkett pitched a four-hitter and became the National League's first 18-game winner as San Francisco beat Cincinnati 6-0 Wednesday to complete a three-game sweep.

Burkett (18-4), who took a no-hitter into the sixth inning, tied Jack McDowell of the Chicago White Sox for most wins in the majors. It was Burkett's first shutout and second complete game of the season.

■ NL Roundup

Staked to a 4-0 lead after the second inning, Burkett held the Reds hitless until the sixth, when Jacob Brumfield hit a bloop single to left with one out. With his first win this year over Cincinnati, Burkett has beaten every team in the NL this season except San Diego, which he has not faced.

Braves 4, Mets 2

NEW YORK — Greg Maddux scattered six hits and Jeff Blauser hit his 11th homer of the season as Atlanta beat New York.

Maddux, who beat the Mets for the fifth straight times over two seasons, raised his lifetime mark against New York to 16-9.

Sid Fernandez (1-3), losing his third straight game since coming off the disabled list following knee surgery in May, gave up three runs on five hits in eight innings. He struck out six and walked none.

Maddux (13-9) struck out three and didn't walk a batter in his fifth complete game of the season — third against the Mets.

Blauser's game-winning homer came with one out in the sixth inning on the first pitch off Fernandez, who had retired the previous 13 batters.

Pirates 8, Cardinals 6

PITTSBURGH — Lonnie Smith's second homer of the game tied it and Al Martin followed with a two-run shot to complete a three-run rally in the eighth inning that gave Pittsburgh a victory over St. Louis.

The Pirates survived Luis Alicea's three-run double in the top of the eighth and Mark Whiten's sixth-inning tape-measure homer — the first by an opposing player into Three Rivers Stadium's right-field upper deck — to beat St. Louis for just the second time in nine games.

Phillies 6, Expos 5

PHILADELPHIA — Mariano Duncan's bad-hop single over a drawn-in infield in the ninth inning gave Philadelphia a victory over Montreal.

Milt Thompson walked to open the ninth. He stole second and continued to third when catcher Darrin Fletcher's throw went into center field for an error.

Lenny Dykstra was intentionally walked after working a 3-2 count. Duncan then bounced a single into left off John Wetteland (7-3), who had come on to start the inning.

David West (4-3) pitched one inning for the victory.

Marlins 12, Cubs 11

MIAMI — The Florida Marlins scored twice in the bottom of the ninth inning to set a franchise record for runs and a cap a wild 12-11 victory over Chicago.

The Marlins, who tied their longest winning streak at four in a row, entered the ninth trailing 11-10. Walt Weiss walked to lead off the inning and moved to third on a single by Henry Cotto. He scored on Jeff Conine's sacrifice fly. Cotto, who had stolen second, advanced to third on the fly ball and then scored on Gary Sheffield's single.

Richie Lewis (5-1) worked one inning for the victory.

The Cubs had taken the lead in the top of the ninth on a double by Mark Grace, who had only one hit in his previous 22 at-bats. It was only the fourth RBI since the All-Star break for Grace.

Astros 9, Padres 6

SAN DIEGO — Eric Anthony hit a three-run homer and Scott Servais and Andujar Cedeno also connected off Andy Benes in a five-run fifth inning that carried Houston to a victory over San Diego.

Darryl Kile (12-4) allowed only four hits over seven innings, surviving a bout of wildness and Billy Bean's first career grand slam to end his personal three-game losing streak. He struck out seven and walked five. Doug Jones pitched two innings for his 22nd save.

Anthony also drove in a run with a first-inning grounder for a season-hign four RBIs.

Rookie pitcher holds off Chisox

Associated Press

CHICAGO — Craig Paquette hit a two-run homer and rookie Todd Van Poppel pitched 5⅓ shutout innings as Oakland beat Chicago 3-1 Wednesday.

■ AL Roundup

The White Sox have lost five of their last eight games, but still lead the American League West. The Athletics snapped a four-game losing streak.

Van Poppel (3-3), who has won his last three starts, limited Chicago to three singles before giving way to Rick Honeycutt in the sixth.

Tigers 15, Orioles 5

DETROIT — Dan Gladden hit a grand slam for the second straight game and Detroit again routed Baltimore.

A day after Gladden's slam highlighted a 15-1 romp, his third slam of the season helped the Tigers take a 13-1 lead in the fourth inning.

Blue Jays 4, Twins 2

TORONTO — Paul Molitor drove in three runs and scored twice, helping Juan Guzman and Toronto beat Minnesota.

Guzman (8-3) won for the first time since June 26. He had been 0-3 in seven starts in that span.

Guzman struck out 10 and gave up four hits in eight innings. Duane Ward got three outs for his 30th save.

Yankees 8, Red Sox 3

BOSTON — Jimmy Key pitched six strong innings and Roger Clemens walked three batters in a four-run first, giving New York an 8-3 victory over Boston.

Boston's longest home winning streak in five years ended at 11 games. The Red Sox and New York are two games behind AL East leader Toronto.

Clemens' wildness ruined the anticipated duel between two of baseball's best pitchers.

Indians 7, Brewers 5

MILWAUKEE — Third baseman B.J. Surhoff's error helped Cleveland score three runs in the ninth inning, and the Indians rallied past Milwaukee.

The Indians, down 5-0 after six innings, are 1-56 when trailing entering the ninth. Cleveland ended its four-game losing streak and stopped Milwaukee's three-game winning string.

Angels 4, Rangers 1

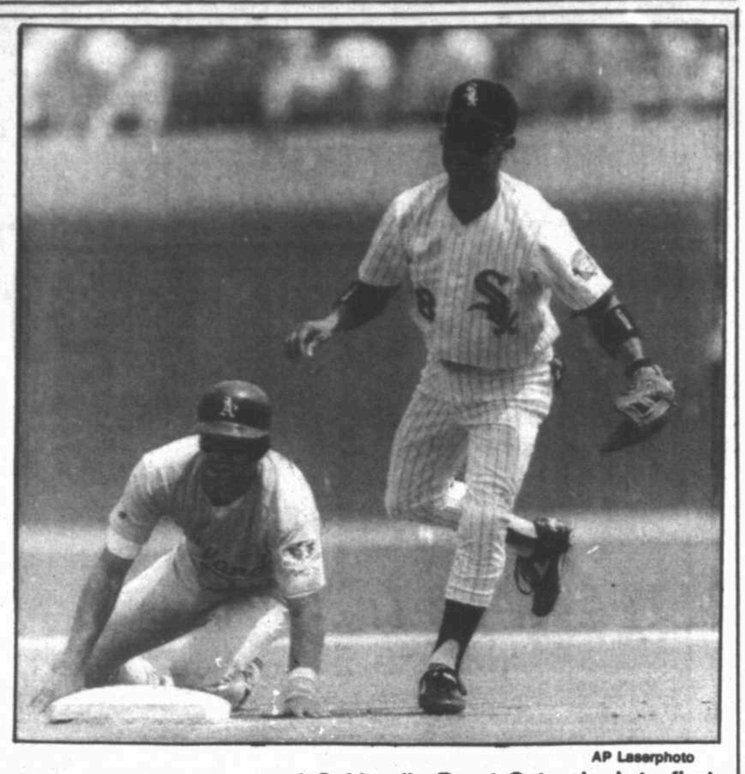

ARLINGTON — Tim Salmon's RBI double keyed a three-run first inning, and California went on to beat Texas.

Rookie Hilly Hathaway (4-1) won his third straight start. Kevin Brown (9-8) gave up a career-high 13 hits in his major league-leading ninth complete game.

Mariners 4, Royals 3

KANSAS CITY, Mo. — Mike Blowers hit his third grand slam of the season and Seattle beat Kansas City, ending the Royals' four-game winning streak.

Blowers tied Dan Gladden of Detroit and Mike Stanley of the Yankees for the league lead in grand slams.

the third off just four hits off Gledhill. A walk, a hit batsman and a pair of errors by second baseman P.J. Forbes fueled the Wrangler barrage.

"We got some runs and got ahead early," said manager Dave Trembley. "To be real honest, we aren't (looking at the standings). We are real development oriented. This is the first time we've won five road games on a trip this season and we are just looking at improving every game."

Midland trimmed the Wichita lead in half with four in the fourth inning. A Chris Pritchett walk opened the inning. One out later, Jorge Fabregas doubled off the right-center field wall to score Pritchett. Orlando Munoz followed with a walk and Cohick sent his 11th home run of the year over the centerfield wall for an 8-4 Wichita lead.

Cohick led Midland's offensive attack with a 4-for-5 night with three RBIs and two runs scored. The night broke a 2-for-26 slump during the month of August for Cohick.

ANGEL NOTES: Midland's magic number remains 18. Any combination of 18 Midland wins or Wichita losses will put the Angels into the Texas League playoffs.

Navratilova, Austin advance to Slims third round

MANHATTAN BEACH, Calif. (AP) — Martina Navratilova lost only nine points on her serve in dispatching Elena Brioukhovets of Ukraine 6-2, 6-2 Wednesday night to advance to the third round of the Virginia Slims of Los Angeles.

Navratilova, 36, the defending champion, breezed past Brioukhovets in 52 minutes in her first tournament since losing in the semifinals at Wimbledon in July.

"I have been playing tennis," Navratilova said. "If I had not, I'd have been a wreck out there."

Navratilova, the No. 2 seed, trailed 40-15 on her serve in the second game of the first set, but recovered with two winners and two errors by Brioukhovets to withstand the only serious threat to her serve in the match.

Tracy Austin, playing an opponent who had never even heard of her, rallied from a 4-2 deficit in the third set to defeat Elena Likhovtseva 4-6, 6-3, 7-5.

Austin, a two-time U.S. Open champion, is making a comeback after a four-year layoff. She needed 2 hours, 13 minutes to defeat Likhovtseva, a 17-year-old from the former Soviet republic of Kazakhstan.

"I've never heard of her at all," Likhovtseva said.

Austin, 30, a member of the International Tennis Hall of Fame, wasn't insulted.

"I think she was 4 years old when I won the Open for the first time, but so what?" Austin said. "That doesn't bother me. I played well, but I feel I can play better."

Austin will meet No. 3 Gabriela Sabatini on Thursday. Navratilova meets Ros Nideffer.

Austin, of Redondo Beach, Calif., has won two matches in her latest comeback after a layoff stemming from a car accident.

Little League boots two

Associated Press

The first two outs already have been recorded at the 1993 Little League World Series.

The Little League on Wednesday disqualified the Dominican Republic and 15-time world champion Taiwan for rules violations. The Dominican Republic was removed under the same rules that cost the Philippines its title last year.

"Little League Baseball regrets the necessity of this action but has deemed it imperative in order to maintain the integrity of the Little League Baseball program," spokesman Dennis Sullivan read from a statement.

A Panamanian team will replace the Dominican Republic in the World Series, which begins Aug. 23 in Williamsport, Pa. Tournament officials have not decided which country will replace Taiwan, a 15-time winner of the tournament.

The action comes one year after Little League was forced to strip a team of a title won on the field for the first time. The championship was awarded to Long Beach, Calif., which lost 15-1 to the Philippines.

"This action just shows that Little League has taken a proactive stance in verifying the eligibility of the participants in the World Series," Sullivan said.

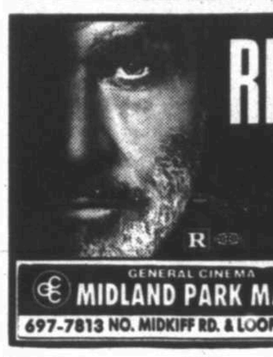

After the 1992 series, Manila newspapers reported the Zamboanga City team used players older than the limit from all over the Philippines.

Little League rules require that players be 11 or 12 on July 31 and that they come from specific geographic districts.

Prices surge

A drawdown in the nation's gasoline stocks sent unleaded gasoline futures prices surging higher on the New York Mercantile Exchange Wednesday.

The American Petroleum Institute said stocks declined 6.58 million barrels in the latest week, down to 208.6 million, the lowest level since Nov. 13, 1992.

Traders also were sensitive to continuing shutdowns at refineries, for maintenance or repairs, at scattered sites across the nation.

Crude oil and heating oil futures followed gasoline upward.

West Texas Intermediate for delivery in September was 36 cents higher at $17.88 a barrel.

Local crude purchasers raised their posted price 25 cents to $16.25 a barrel.

Natural gas for September delivery was 3.5 cents higher at $2.253 per 1,000 cubic feet.

Odessa apartments

DALLAS — The Resolution Trust Corp. has sold a 280-unit apartment complex in Odessa for $1.1 million, or 66 percent of its appraised value, RTC officials said.

Trestles of Odessa, an asset of the former San Antonio Savings Association, was bought by Trestles Trust Agreement, a Modesto, Calif.,-based investor group, the RTC announced Wednesday.

The RTC began conservatorship of the savings association in March 1990, spokesman Steve McGregor said.

Dollar mixed

NEW YORK — The dollar hit another postwar low against the yen on Wednesday as investors bet the enormous Japanese trade surplus would keep the country's currency strong. The dollar was mixed against other currencies.

The dollar was trading at 103.64 yen in New York late Wednesday, down from 104.70 on Tuesday and the lowest level since modern exchange rates were set following World War II. It was the second time this week that the dollar hit a postwar low in New York.

By contrast, the dollar reached its highest rate against the Canadian dollar in five years, trading at 1.3068 Canadian dollars, up from 1.2930 on Tuesday.

In New York it cost $1.4703 to buy a British pound, up from $1.4660 on Tuesday.

Record stocks

NEW YORK — Investor optimism about falling interest rates buoyed stocks on Wednesday and pushed the Dow Jones industrial average to its second record closing this week. The Nasdaq index also reached a record high.

The Dow rose 10.62 points to 3,583.35, eclipsing its previous record of 3,576.08 set on Monday.

Advancing issues outnumbered declines by about 11 to 9 on the New York Stock Exchange.

Analysts: Time's right to cut fares

■ Experts expect airline ticket prices to get beaten down in wake of American's lawsuit victory; new Midway to fly.

Associated Press

DALLAS — American Airlines' victory over a lawsuit accusing it of predatory pricing means the time may be right for more air fare discounts, analysts said Wednesday.

Industry experts said they expect ticket prices could continue to get beaten down in the wake of the verdict, partly because of the trial's outcome as well as weak traffic numbers and persistent overcapacity.

"I think this is 'Katie, bar the door,' " said Julius Maldutis, an airline analyst at Salomon Brothers in New York.

Jurors in Galveston on Tuesday rejected claims by Continental and Northwest airlines that American tried to drive them out of business when it launched its "value pricing" system and wound up gutting fares last year.

Maldutis predicted that carriers will hold another series of price cuts, perhaps as soon as next week.

"I think that a number of fare actions were delayed or postponed as a direct result of the trial. I would go so far as to say that the trial had a chilling effect on an industry that is known for extreme price volatility," Maldutis said.

Major airlines have been slowly raising their base prices, while offering frequent discounts to lure travelers who have come to expect sales. Airlines raised fares 5 percent last month, the second across-the-board increase since December.

Last week, in the midst of the monthlong trial, Delta Air Lines kicked off a sale of up to 35 percent for late summer and autumn travel, and the other major carriers joined in.

American chairman Robert Crandall said after the verdict that he thought the lawsuit had no chilling effect on airlines.

Vivian Lee, airline analyst with Smith Barney Shearson, also thought the trial had little effect on fares. Rather, she said, fierce competition and overcapacity — too many planes for too few travelers — have fueled low prices.

Analysts did agree that it probably will be a long time before there are any further attempts at fare simplification like the American plan that sparked the lawsuit.

Whatever happens with fares, the airlines are being joined by a newcomer with a familiar name.

A new Midway Airlines announced Wednesday in Chicago it hopes to fly again before Thanksgiving, two years after the collapse of its predecessor during the onset of the Persian Gulf War.

The new Midway Air Transportation Inc. bought rights to the Midway name in U.S. Bankruptcy Court last week for $20,000.

The new Midway initially plans 24 nonstop round trips a day from Chicago's Midway Airport.

Dan Watson has invented a process to clean and recycle soiled disposable diapers and newsprint. Watson credits his dog, Sargie, for giving him the idea for the process.

Man develops, patents process to clean products for recycling

By Jim Mannion
Associated Press writer

WICHITA FALLS — Sitting in the cramped, cluttered office in the back of his dry cleaning business, the balding man in pressed jeans and sweat-soaked shirt doesn't have the appearance of someone who is about to set the world on its ear.

But Wichitan Dan Watson just might revolutionize the recycling industry, beating all others in inventing a process to clean and recycle soiled disposable diapers and newsprint.

He has come up with a means of separating and cleaning, sanitizing and neutralizing all paper, plastic and metal products.

"Before anything can be recycled, it has to be cleaned. If you can clean it, you can recycle anything," Watson said.

Patent No. 5,225,045 on his process for disposable diapers and newsprint effectively locks out all competitors for 17 years. And he has patents pending on his other processes.

Watson, 36, who has followed his father and grandfather into the dry cleaning business, constructed his invention from second-hand, 30-foot-long industrial washing machines. And, oddly enough, his 3-year-old German shepherd, Sargie, helped him to discover the process.

Beginning in January, a Louisiana company will produce recycling machines using his process for distribution around the world.

Industry asks closed meeting; DEQ walks

BATON ROUGE, La. (AP) — State environmental officials withdrew from a planned discussion on proposed rules for handling radioactive waste from oilfields after oil industry representatives insisted on secret talks.

"I really don't want any press here," said Don Briggs, president of the Louisiana Independent Oil and Gas Association, who organized Tuesday's meeting. "I want everybody in the committee to feel free to discuss whatever they want without intimidation from the press being in the room."

A lawyer who has represented industry workers in lawsuits involving radiation also was asked to leave.

Representatives of the state Department of Environmental Quality, who were supposed to get the industry's recommendations on the rules for NORM — naturally occurring radioactive material — notified DEQ Secretary Kai Midboe of the problem. Midboe told them to leave if they couldn't get the meeting opened to the public. They left.

Midboe said later that DEQ does not permit closed meetings.

"These meetings are supposed to be open to the public, and if they are not, we will not participate," Midboe said.

Attorney Stuart Smith, who represents a Lafayette Parish firm suing oil companies over radioactive contamination at a pipeyard, said he was shocked when Briggs shut him out of the meeting.

"I could not believe that representatives of DEQ would participate in a closed-door meeting," he said. "I didn't know they were still doing business like that in this state."

Briggs said the industry committee will propose rules for handling of radioactive waste in pipeyards, where workers remove scale from oilfield equipment.

Such scale can contain dangerous levels of radium, a radioactive material that can cause bone cancer.

DEQ is trying to come to terms with decades of oil production that has largely ignored radioactive hazards in oilfield waste. DEQ has ordered two pipeyards in Lafayette and St. Mary parishes to clean up radioactive wastes that contaminated at least one worker and traveled off company property.

About 10 pipeyards in the state now have special licenses to clean pipes that have a radiation exposure higher than 25 micro-Roentgens per hour, said Hall Bohlinger, administrator of DEQ's radiation protection division.

The committee organized by Briggs is working on regulations for all pipeyards that accept oilfield waste below that level of radiation exposure, Bohlinger said.

Appeals court lets GM proceed with Willow Run plant shutdown

DETROIT (AP) — General Motors Corp. can proceed with plans to permanently shutter its Willow Run assembly plant, the Michigan Court of Appeals ruled Wednesday.

The court gave immediate effect to its Aug. 3 ruling overturning a lower court decision that blocked the automaker from closing the plant. It is one of 23 GM plans to vacate in its downsizing that will cut 74,000 jobs by mid-1995.

GM said it will proceed with plans to consolidate production of large rear-wheel drive cars made at Willow Run at its plant in Arlington, Texas.

GM could still be blocked from proceeding with the closing if Ypsilanti Township can get an order from the Supreme Court to extend the injunction keeping the plant open beyond Aug. 24.

INVESTORS' GUIDE

Securities kept by brokerage unit are safe

By Bill Doyle

Q: My investments are in municipal bonds, government bonds, stocks and mutual fund shares. Most of the certificates are registered in my name. But some of the bonds are in "bearer" form, with interest coupons attached to the certificates.

Doyle

All these securities are in safekeeping at a service subsidiary of a brokerage firm. How safe is this arrangement?

A: Unless you have a tremendously large amount, your securities are as safe — by one count, safer — as they would be if you had taken possession of them and put the certificates in a safe deposit box.

If the brokerage goes bankrupt, Securities Investor Protection Corp. coverage will come into play. SIPC will see to it that the securities and money you have in the account are either returned to you or transferred to another brokerage firm.

SIPC, organized by act of Congress, protects each investor up to $500,000, including $100,000 in cash. Every securities brokerage doing business with the public is required to be a SIPC member. Also, many brokerages have additional and substantially higher coverage with private insurance companies.

Please note that SIPC coverage does not protect you against "market risk." If the market values of your securities fall, you will lose money.

Leaving bearer bonds with a brokerage provides an added safety feature, because the brokerage will turn in any bond that is called for early redemption. With interest rates way down, many municipal bond issuers are selling new bonds and using the proceeds to redeem older high-interest bonds. Investors who have possession of called bearer bonds often don't learn about those early redemptions until their next semiannual interest coupons come back unpaid. They don't get the six months' interest and they lose the use of the bond principal for more than half a year.

Q: I have been "burned" twice when municipal bearer bonds I owned were called for redemption and I did not find out about those calls until many months later.

I need to protect myself against that happening to any of the bearer "munis" I still hold. But I definitely do not intend to turn the bonds over to a brokerage firm or bank. I am old-fashioned enough to want to keep possession of my bonds.

Any suggestions?

A: Three.

After providing a list of your bonds, you can ask a brokerage or bank to watch for calls. Most brokerages and some banks provide that service for a fee.

Or, you can make frequent trips to a large public library that subscribes to Standard & Poor's Called Bond Record, a financial manual that provides details on all redemption calls.

Otherwise, you should watch for call notices in newspapers. Typically, a call is advertised in the hometown paper of the muni bond issuer and in a national business publication, such as The Wall Street Journal.

Q: When I cash a coupon from a bearer municipal bond through my local bank, I am required to put my name and address on the envelope in which the coupon is sent in.

Because the bond issuer then has my name and address, shouldn't it notify me if the bond is called for redemption before its maturity date?

A: It's not required to, so it doesn't.

Q: Who holds the money for bearer bond interest coupons that will not be paid because the bonds were called?

A: The interest paying agent. For most bonds, that is the bank trustee for the bond issue.

Premium tomato to reach wider distribution

SAN FRANCISCO (NYT) — The DNA Plant Technology Corp. said Thursday that test-market results of its premium tomato had been three times greater than expected, prompting company plans to broaden distribution tenfold later this year.

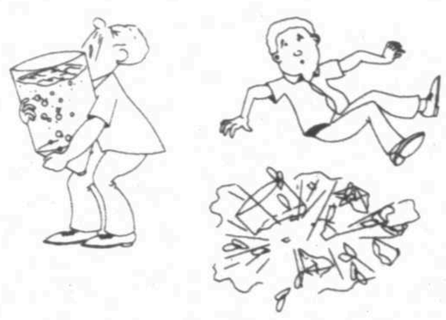

Despite the company's name and core technology, the tomato is not genetically engineered, but has been bred using conventional processes to remain fresh longer. As such, it is not using the techniques of agricultural biotechnology that have been criticized by some consumer activists and chefs. Nevertheless, analysts said the test-marketing results were evidence that consumers would pay a premium price for a better tomato. DNA Plant shares closed Thursday at $5, up 37.5 cents, in Nasdaq trading.

DNA Plant said its tomato, sold under the brand name Freshworld Farms, achieved an average 15.8 percent market share during its first three months of test sales in Philadelphia and Columbus, Ohio. The sales began in April. DNA Plant said this acceptance meant it would now increase the number of supermarkets carrying its tomato from 41 to more than 500 by the end of 1993. The company, based in Cinnaminson, N.J., is now planting more acreage to meet this goal.

"Our excellent test-market results confirm what previous taste tests and other consumer panel data have indicated," Robert Serenbetz, president and chief executive, said in a statement. "With our upcoming market expansion, we look forward to duplicating our successful results on a broader scale."

DNA Plant's Freshworld Farms tomato is currently available at selected Kroger supermarkets and Big Bear Stores in Columbus, Ohio, and at selected Acme and Superfresh supermarkets in the Philadelphia and southern New Jersey area.

High technology offers solution to bad-hair day

By Veronique de Turenne
N.Y. Times News Service

LOS ANGELES — Computer software as antidote to the bad-hair day?

You bet your spiral perm.

From a short mop of curly, red hair to a luxurious long, blond mane, the computer-imaging system created by Styles-on-Video in suburban Canoga Park makes trying on a new hairstyle as easy as watching television.

Styles-on-Video is the outgrowth of New Image, a computer-imaging system that made a splash several years ago when talk shows such as "Oprah" tried it out on the air. But the software was slow and the process cumbersome. Each new look took more than 20 minutes to create, and the system found a limited market.

With the new generation of software, however, a woman or man can get 12 or 24 new hairdos in just five minutes.

"We took the technology and made it faster and easier to use," said Kelly McConnell, vice president of sales and marketing. "More than 70 percent of our sales are to entrepreneurs — people who set up the equipment in a mall, swap meet, county fair or convention."

MAKEOVERS COST about $24.95 for 12 styles and $34.95 for 24 styles. Clients also receive a video tape that shows each style, and one color snapshot of the hairstyle they like best. A Styles-on-Video system is located in a cart near the Robinsons-May store in the Topanga Plaza shopping center in Canoga Park. No appointments are necessary, and most clients are walk-ups.

"The people who use this are primarily women, but we're seeing more and more men who lost their hair and are shopping for a hairpiece or considering a transplant," McConnell said.

The process is painless. Clients begin by browsing through books filled with more than 500 hairstyles and selecting either 12 or 24 possible looks. They slip on a wide headband to restrain their hair, then smile into a video camera that freezes their image into a snapshot.

From then on, it's up to the technician to talk to the software, explained Carlo Sayegh, senior corporate trainer.

Using a stylus, Sayegh went to work on the computer image of Darlene Dale, a Styles-on-Video sales representative. He traced her hairline, then instructed the computer to erase everything outside the outline. Using numbered codes, he keyed in 12 different styles.

WITHIN SECONDS, Dale's new hairstyles began to appear on the television screen. Gone was her blond chignon, and in its place were a dozen different styles.

A chin-length bob of brown hair; a blond shag; a version of Nicole Kidman's long, red curls; a parted-in-the-middle college girl look; and a thick, curly big-hair style appeared. Each new style changed Dale's appearance, making her look chic, sophisticated, trendy or businesslike.

"It's great to be able to see yourself in so many different styles," Dale said. "Women really like the chance to experiment, to see the styles they've been thinking about but haven't tried."

The technology is not foolproof, hairstylists warn. Afshin Ammadi, a stylist at Centre Salon in Woodland Hills, pointed out that women could select styles that could not be carried out with their own hair.

"Someone whose hair doesn't take a perm might pick out a curly style," he said. "And even though the video might show that the style looks good on someone, the reality is, it can't work."

True, McConnell said, but most women know their hair and would not make that sort of mistake.

"If someone did pick a hairstyle that wasn't right for them, then it would be up to their hairdresser to explain why and offer an alternative," she said.

IN FACT, reality doesn't have a lot to do with it, Dale said. Many women pick out styles they want to try on but would never consider wearing.

Different parts of the world demand different hairstyles.

"Sometimes a licensee from Japan will call and say the (American) hairstyles we programmed don't work," Sayegh said. "He'll send us photographs of popular styles in Japan, and we'll send him back the adjusted software that we create."

Style preferences vary within the United States, as well.

"New York wants avant-garde styles, the South likes a lot of complicated up-dos, the Midwest is pretty conservative, and California asks for simple, straight styles," Sayegh said.

FUTURE PLANS include product promotion agreements with Revlon's Ultima II line of cosmetics. Ultima II cosmetics counters throughout the United States will offer a Styles-on-Video hair makeover as part of various sales promotions, company executives said.

"It's the wave of the future," Sayegh said.

Chinese designer finds success in New York

By Amy M. Spindler
N.Y. Times News Service

NEW YORK — With all the invisible hands in Chinatown helping to make Seventh Avenue profitable, there is justice in Han Feng's New York success story. Sixty blocks uptown from the sweatshops, the designer, 30, from a small village near Shanghai, will be the star of 12 windows at Saks Fifth Avenue in October.

She arrived in Manhattan eight years ago with her American husband, whom she met when he was teaching English in China. She got her first job at Bloomingdale's in the designer fashion department, not even knowing who Calvin Klein was. Today, her clothes and Klein's share the designer floor at stores like Saks Fifth Avenue, Neiman Marcus and Henri Bendel. Her scarves are sold at Barneys New York and Charivari.

DEAR ABBY

Couple who have everything ask for nothing more

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: I have been reading your column for many years, and now am in need of tapping in on some of your advice.

My husband and I are senior citizens in the fortunate position of having everything we need and want. We have no children, but we do have several nieces and nephews. We no longer shop for gifts for them — we send them checks and let them buy what they want.

Van Buren

In the past, they have sent us beautiful (and some very expensive) gifts, so this year, we asked them to please cross us off their shopping list because we do not need anything and do not wish to accumulate any more "things." I explained that we would continue to send them checks because they are young enough to enjoy spending or saving.

One sister-in-law said that our request for no gifts offended and upset her son and daughter — and we were wrong to deprive them of the pleasure of sending us gifts.

Your thoughts on this would be appreciated. — OGRE AUNT IN MICHIGAN

DEAR AUNT: I'm with you on this issue. People who have more than they need or want are lucky to be able to tell the givers of useless gifts to cease and desist. How much better to direct a contribution instead to some of the truly needy people who would have little or nothing at holiday time. Churches, temples, the Salvation Army or the local United Way can provide names and addresses of local families who can use gifts.

How about a contribution to the American Red Cross — earmarked for those who lost their worldly goods in Iowa, Missouri, Kansas, Nebraska and Illinois in the recent devastating floods?

DEAR ABBY: Last May, my father died from the toxic fumes he inhaled while gluing carpet to the deck of his boat. Dad was an intelligent man (an attorney) who carefully read the instructions and warnings before he tackled any project.

To him, "adequate ventilation" meant open both big garage doors, the side door, and the window in the garage while he was working. He probably tried to work in spite of the nausea and dizziness he was warned about on the label of the glue.

He should also have been warned that if he didn't get some fresh air when he felt dizzy, he could fall unconscious and die, which is exactly what happened. Something as simple as a fan pushing the fumes out of the area would have saved his life, but the fumes smelled so sweet and pleasant no one would suspect that they could be deadly.

Since this happened to my father, we have been told about several other people who have died from glue fumes.

My mother lost a wonderful husband, and Dad's four granddaughters lost a very important person in their lives. He was a very kind and caring man. Our community misses him as well as his family. He was only 56 — healthy and active.

Abby, please warn your readers that if they use glue that contains chlorofluorocarbon in the adhesive to do their gluing outdoors. You may use my name. — TERESA BREADING, WARSAW, IND.

DEAR TERESA: My condolences on the loss of your beloved father. Thank you for allowing me to use your name.

AT WIT'S END

Modern art really is lot of garbage

By Erma Bombeck

It's hard enough for any artist to be taken seriously, let alone one who creates sculpture from garbage.

Bombeck

Yet, according to a New York Times story, for the past 13 years, Mierle Laderman Ukeles has used the New York City Sanitation Department as her canvas, and is known as their artist in residence. She does so without pay.

Mierle has built an archway with gloves discarded by workers from city agencies, staged a garbage barge ballet in Pittsburgh, and displayed works from piled steel shavings from subway car wheels.

Not only does Ms. Ukeles want people to look at garbage in a different context, she wants to erase the stigma of being a garbage hustler. She noted that men who had worked for 20 or 30 years for the sanitation department did so without pride and hung their uniforms in the basement so neighbors wouldn't know what they did for a living.

When it comes right down to it, we're all sanitation workers. Who among us has not sifted through coffee grounds to retrieve the coffeepot innards? Who has not run her hands through bacon drippings and leftover salad looking for an address that got thrown away?

And who am I to smile at Ms. Ukeles when I personally tried to make a Christmas mouse out of dryer lint to hang on the tree?

I don't know about you, but garbage is my life. Since reading about Ms. Ukeles, I too am beginning to look at it differently. The dust balls beneath my bed have an ethereal feel to them — whimsical actually, like "Happy Clouds."

In my freezer is an entire shelf heaped with bags of frozen chicken innards that I forgot to throw out. I've renamed that mound "Northern Exposure."

That large plastic bag of clothes in the hall closet that I've outgrown but can't bear to give away could be displayed and called "Paradise Lost."

And you have only to open my refrigerator door and see the color palette of leftovers in motion (literally). That one is labeled "Work in Progress."

I hope this gives you a more contemporary approach to garbage. We make it daily — lots of it. I look at it this way: Unless someone clips this column to press it in a book, hangs it from the refrigerator door or recycles it, my destiny is pretty much a solitary, stinking landfill somewhere.

Now there is hope. Maybe I'll end up in a gallery with someone musing, "But is it art?"

Erma Bombeck's column is distributed by Universal Press Syndicate.

DISTRIBUTORSHIPS

LOOKING FOR PART TIME JOB? HAVE WE GOT A DEAL FOR YOU

The Midland Reporter-Telegram has several distributorships which are available now.

Often Asked ????? Is it worthwhile for adults also?

Yes! Our current distributor force is already 90% adult and 10% youth.

Morning newspaper routes are attractive for:

- ADULTS who have F/T jobs, yet want to supplement their income with a steady part-time job.
- MOTHERS who can't justify a small job and daycare, because as a distributor, you do not need daycare!
- STUDENTS needing a part-time job which will work with classes!
- SENIOR CITIZENS wanting regular exercise, added income, or just want to work with people, neighbors and friends.

How much money can I make as a distributor?

Depending on the size of distributorship from $300 to $700 monthly!
Some make even more!

How long does it take?

The actual delivery takes 1-2 hours Monday-Saturday, and 2-3 hours on Sunday, again depending on the size of the distributorship. Also, a few hours a month are needed to collect from subscribers. Many distributors choose to handle some of this by putting envelopes in subsribers'papers. Collecting in person will be necessary though!

When do papers have to be delivered by?

6 a.m. Monday-Friday and 7 a.m. on Saturday, Sunday and holidays.

Do I ever get a day off?

The job requires a 7-day a week commitment. However, distributors do take days off by finding a friend or a family member to substitute a for them!
