Pageant officials ask Williams to resign

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP) — Miss America 1984, Vanessa Williams, was asked by pageant officials Friday to resign within three days because she posed for nude photographs in intimate positions with another woman.

Miss Williams, the first black to wear the crown, would be the first of the 57 pageant winners to step down, said Albert A. Marks Jr., executive director of the pageant. Rules call for Miss Williams to be replaced by first runner-up Suzette Charles, Miss New Jersey, who is also black.

Officials said they took the action because she violated a morals clause in her contract by posing for the photos, to be published in the September issue of Penthouse magazine.

Marks said he was confident Miss Williams would give up her title. If she refuses, he said, "We will cross that bridge when we come to it."

Miss Williams, 21, of Millwood, N.Y., refused to speak to reporters when she arrived in New York from Little Rock, Ark., and a spokesman said she would not comment until Monday.

Marks said Miss Williams called him after a reporter asked her about the photos, and pageant officials spoke with her on Monday.

"...She told us some nude photographs had been taken...Yes, she said she was sorry. She was tearful to the point of hysterics," he said.

Dennis Dowdell, a spokesman for Miss Williams, had said she considered the use of the photographs "unauthorized."

Officials sending 'message' to future Miss Americas

Associated Press

The publication of nude photos of the 1984 Miss America is "a no-win situation for everyone," but the pageant officials were right to request her resignation, according to some of the women who also have worn the crown.

"They're trying to protect an image that has been formed over decades," said Debbie Barnes Miles, Miss America 1968 from Kansas. "And they're sending out a message to protect future Miss Americas from exploitation."

Pageant officials on Friday asked Vanessa Williams, 21, of Millwood, N.Y., to resign. Penthouse magazine revealed Thursday it planned to publish photos of Miss Williams in intimate positions with another woman.

Five men rob bank, flee in helicopter

VALLEY VIEW, Texas (AP) — Five men armed with automatic weapons and clad in beige jumpsuits robbed a bank here Friday and then fled in a helicopter into Oklahoma. Authorities say they might have been the same bandits who pulled a similar heist in Louisiana in February.

A police dragnet spread across Oklahoma for the men, who swooped down on the Valley View National Bank at about 9:30 a.m. and robbed it without firing a shot, according to Larry Todd, a Texas Department of Public Safety spokesman.

Todd said the Jet Ranger copter — which was stolen Thursday night in Galveston — touched down later in Leon, Okla., just long enough to dump some empty cash boxes. It then disappeared again, police said.

"Apparently, the guys were trying to dump them into a farmer's pond and missed," said Hal Burleson, a Federal Bureau of Investigation agent in Oklahoma City.

"They're good bank robbers — just bad bombardiers," he said.

Burleson said the trays were still being processed "but we doubt there'll be any fingerprints found on them. There weren't any in the bank."

Authorities said several air and ground units were searching for the helicopter, but no other sightings have been confirmed.

"It's like looking for a needle in a haystack," Burleson said, adding that there was no indication the helicopter had landed or refueled in Oklahoma. He said he had no clues to where the aircraft was, but did not believe it was in Oklahoma.

The Federal Aviation Administration had attempted to help track the helicopter, but there were too many in the air, especially around Fort Sill, Burleson said.

"They could have flown so low that radar wouldn't pick them up," he said. "We were tracking five helicopters at one time, and they all were from Fort Sill."

Lue Bellofatto, a highway patrol dispatcher in Lawton, Okla., said authorities had alerted all nearby airports in case the helicopter tried to land for fuel.

Police believe the men may also have robbed a bank by helicopter in Leesville, La., in February.

Johnnie Joyce, FBI spokesman in Houston, said the copter used in the Leesville robbery was stolen from "almost exactly" the same spot as the one used in the Valley View robbery — Scholes Field in Galveston. He said the Louisiana chopper was recovered within a few days from Catoosa, Okla., near Tulsa.

"The MO is very similar," he said. "Until today, (the Leesville robbery) looked like an isolated incident."

Valley View police were also searching for a station wagon that was seen near the bank when it was robbed.

Fugitive's bail set at $25 million

EVANSTON, Ill. (AP) — Fugitive Alton Coleman, hunted by authorities in connection with a bloody, two-month spree of murder, rape and kidnapping in six states, was captured Friday with a female companion while sitting in a park.

His bail was later set at $25 million.

"This nation, this community, has been under a siege...under a reign of terror, not knowing where the next victim might be," said U.S. Magistrate Carl B. Sussman in ordering the extraordinary cash bond.

Bond for Coleman's companion, Debra Brown, whom the government described as his accomplice, was later set at $20 million.

Coleman, 28, made a special addition last week to the FBI's "10 Most Wanted List," was spotted by an Evanston police detective about noon as he and Ms. Brown, 19, sat in a row of bleachers facing several basketball courts.

Authorities found two bloody knives on Coleman, one in his pocket and another hidden in a boot, said Edward Hegarty, special agent in charge of the FBI's Chicago office. Ms. Brown had a 38-caliber revolver in her purse, but the couple offered no resistance, police said.

Coleman had been sought in connection with six murders, and even as he was arrested, authorities called him a suspect in a seventh — of a retired businessman whose body was found in a roadside ditch north of Indianapolis. The victim's car was recovered Friday in Evanston, the FBI said.

Assistant U.S. Attorney Jeremy Margolis had requested a $30 million bond for Coleman, saying "there is no person in this nation who has ever been a greater flight risk."

In setting Ms. Brown's bond, Sussman said he agreed with "the government statement that she's a willing participant and did actively engage in criminal conduct."

Coleman was tipped that Coleman was in the area by a childhood friend who recognized him walking through the suburb's downtown business district, said Cmdr. Ernest Jacobi.

"They certainly did not know who I was," said Detective Susan Triguorea, one of five officers who made the arrest. "I was in an unmarked car when I first drove by..."

She said Ms. Brown got up and began walking away from the stands before the officers moved in. When they asked Coleman to identify himself, he gave false identification, said Jacobi. Ms. Brown did identify herself, however, he said.

Sgt. Kathryn Hynds said Coleman "followed our instructions to the letter."

Minutes of confusion didn't add to gunman's victims, officials say

SAN YSIDRO, Calif. (AP) — Eight minutes of confusion over orders for marksmen to shoot James Huberty, who killed 21 people at a McDonald's restaurant in a rampage to "hunt humans," made no difference in the number of casualties, police said Friday.

Meanwhile, Huberty's wife said she wished it was "a bad dream and I'll wake up." And a friend said one of the Huberty's daughters had played with one of the young shooting victims earlier in the day.

This border town prepared for a weekend memorial service to mourn the dead.

At Our Lady of Mount Carmel Church, where a rosary was scheduled Friday night, Monsignor Frank Aldaforo said: "We try to do the best we can for everybody and cheer them up." A Mass was scheduled Saturday morning.

An order to shoot Huberty was issued, then withheld for eight minutes, police said Friday. But officials said the time gap was inconsequential because Huberty had already shot all of his victims by then with his three firearms and because the sharpshooters did not have a clear shot at him during the intervening eight minutes.

Charles Foster, a police sharpshooter, felled Huberty with a single bullet to the chest four minutes after the "green light" was reinstated by a commander who had arrived at he scene.

Guadalupe River stops flowing into Canyon Lake

Associated Press

The water crisis in the drought-stricken Hill Country is deepening now that the Guadalupe River has stopped flowing into Canyon Lake for the first time in 20 years, officials said.

And as mandatory water rationing begins in the city of Burnet, the Lower Guadalupe Business Association says it will buy water for the third time this year to keep its river recreation businesses downstream from the Canyon Lake Dam afloat over the weekend.

In Burnet, city officials began a mandatory water rationing program Thursday to help relieve an overtaxed pumping system and conserve dwindling water supplies.

City Manager Ken Taylor said city wells have dropped to their lowest recorded level, and a voluntary plan in effect since mid-June hadn't worked. Police issued five warnings to rationing violators Thursday, he said.

Commercial water users and those with private wells are exempt from the rationing plan. The Burnet City Council is expected to set a date next week for a $5 million bond election to build a pipeline from Lake Buchanan to the city.

High temperatures were generally in the 90s although Waco and a few locations along the Rio Grande exceeded 100 degrees.

The National Weather Service predicted isolated to widely scattered thunderstorms in southern and western portions of the state through Sunday. Otherwise, fair to partly cloudy skies were expected through the weekend.

Group wants referendum on gay laws

HOUSTON (AP) — A group opposed to two recently enacted gay rights ordinances delivered to the city clerk's office on Friday more than twice the number of signatures needed to force a referendum on the city laws.

During a news conference on the steps of City Hall, members of the Committee for Public Awareness announced that the group had collected 63,877 signatures, or 35,750 more than the required number needed to force the city council to either repeal the ordinances or put them to a citywide vote.

City Clerk Anna Russell said she has five days to verify the petitions, then she'll submit a report to the city council.

"We won't have time to check each one," Russell said. "There will be a random sample."

Bill McGlashen, the executive director of the committee, said he thought the council will choose to hold an election on the issue, but he was not sure.

"Some (council members) say yes, some say no, but I suspect we'll have a vote in January," he said. "If we take the offensive, we'll win."

The committee, whose deadline to submit the petitions was next Sunday, needed only 28,127 signatures, McGlashen said.

Under state law, a referendum may be called if petitions are signed by at least 10 percent of the number of registered voters casting ballots in the last mayoral election.

The ordinances, which the city council narrowly passed on June 19, forbid discrimination in city employment against individuals on the basis of sexual orientation.

The committee had hoped to have the ordinances on an Aug. 11 ballot, but Harris County Clerk Anita Rodeheaver told the committee her office did not have ample time to make the proper preparations, McGlashen said.

McGlashen estimated the committee will need about $400,000 to prepare for the election. He said Jan. 14 would be the next date the city could hold an election.

The Rev. C. Anderson Davis, the committee's vice chairman, spoke to the group on the city hall steps and called homosexuality a "sickness."

"Homosexuality is a sickness that can be cured and should be treated," said Davis, amid cheers from about 150 committee members.

"It is against all religious and moral standards for men to have sex with men and pretend to be husband and wife, and for women to desecrate the sacredness of motherhood and the vows of male and female marriage," he said.

City Councilman John Goodner, who was the main impetus behind the petition drive, said, "I don't think there's a chance" that the council will rescind the ordinances.

"The issue of what sort of city we will give our children and grandchildren is ours to decide," Goodner told the audience. "We can and should tolerate those with a different lifestyle, but we must not lend credence to that lifestyle by recognition and the granting of a minority status.

"We'll win, but it's going to be a fight," he said.

McGlashen said he would hope the council will repeal the ordinances "because we know the campaign can get nasty."

Leaders of the gay community were not available for comment.

Gay group spurs SMU to rewrite handbook

DALLAS (AP) — Southern Methodist University has rewritten its student handbook to make it clear that a controversial gay student group is not officially affiliated with the university.

SMU officials on Thursday announced a new system for designating student groups, brought about by the Gay and Lesbian Student Support Organization's unsuccessful struggle for formal recognition.

"I do not believe that the university is mandated to award special privileges to organizations or groups whose purposes are determined to be not consistent with the goals, purposes and philosophy of Southern Methodist University," SMU President L. Donald Shields said in a prepared statement.

Under the old system, SMU had "recognized" groups with full university privileges such as the right to use the SMU name and receive university funds, and "registered" groups, which were allowed to meet on campus.

Now, SMU has "affiliated" groups and "non-affiliated" groups. The Gay and Lesbian Student Support Organization is classified as "non-affiliated."

"Non-affiliated to me means we have nothing to do with SMU," said Miriam Blake, a former chairwoman of the group. "That's just really unfair."

Non-affiliated groups are forbidden to use the university's name, apply for student funds or sponsor sales projects. They will still be allowed to meet on campus when space is available.

The student senate last year denied "recognized" status to the gay and lesbian group but voted to give it the lesser "registered" status.

Shields immediately intervened, suspending the senate decision pending a review by the SMU board of governors.

Based on a report from a special committee of the board, Shields and the student senate summer executive committee met Sunday evening and voted to ratify the new system for designating student organizations.

Miss Charles, the runner-up, said in a telephone interview from her home in Mays Landing, N.J., that she had not received any word from the pageant, but if asked, she would assume the title.

"My commitment is to the pageant," she said, adding, "It's very unfortunate that it has come about this way."

Marks said there could be some complications in naming Miss Charles because she is under contract to appear at a casino here during this year's pageant and she would be required to attend.

But Miss Charles said she felt the casino would allow her to appear at the pageant.

Marks said he initially reacted with "shock and disbelief" to the disclosure that Miss Williams, whose reign ends in September, had posed for the photographs.

"But as the events of the last day or two unfolded, it became apparent that a very serious and untenable situation had occurred," he said.

The pageant has no specific rule against nudity but officials said Miss Williams violated a morals clause requiring "the maintaining of the dignity of the crown of Miss America."

Guccione said he had not debased an American symbol. "I don't think she is any less of a symbol with her clothes off," he said.

Guccione said it had "occurred" to him that the publication of the photos could harm Miss Williams' career or cost her the crown.

But he said he believed he had an obligation to his readers to publish the photos and that "if there is anything wrong with her appearing in Penthouse, it is not her, it is the pageant that is wrong. The pageant is out of step with reality."

REACTION

"It's a no-win situation for everyone, especially for Vanessa," said Terry Meeuwsen, Miss America 1973, from Wisconsin. "I have to think she regrets it at this point."

The pageant's morality clause, which requires "maintaining the dignity of the crown," is important to people who view the pageant as something their children can look up to, Ms. Meeuwsen said.

"I don't think in this day and age that you can tell women what they can and can't do morally except when it affects the program," she said. "If they take the crown away from her, the pageant's going to be in an awkward position of deciding how morally obligated these girls are. If they don't take it away, it's like they're saying it doesn't matter."

Miss Williams' predecessor as Miss America, Debbie Sue Maffett, said in a statement, "I don't judge Vanessa; I hurt deeply for her."

The Texas woman was herself involved in controversy in 1982 when it was revealed the week after she won the pageant that she had had nose surgery. She retained her crown.

Phyllis George Brown, 1971 Miss America, said the situation was "quite a shame because Vanessa Williams had been an effective Miss America," according to Kathie Berlin, a spokeswoman for Mrs. Brown in New York.

The city of Seguin, which depends on water from the Guadalupe River, is also scrambling for alternative water supplies, said David Welsch, planning and development director of the Guadalupe-Blanco River Authority.

He said city officials have talked about drilling wells or pumping water into the river from a well the city owns in Gruene and capturing it when it reaches Seguin. The city may also try to get a contract for lake water, he said.

Welsch said the river authority will continue providing lake water to those customers who already have contracts.

Those customers include the city of Port Lavaca and Central Power & Light Co., which buys water for its Coleto Creek power plant.

The river authority also asked the Texas Water Rights Commission to let it reserve another 500 acre-feet of lake water specifically for recreation purposes this year.

Calls already have come in from several lodges below Canyon Dam saying their pumps are high and dry now, he said.

"If we don't get some rainfall, a number of water rights will start being impaired," Welsch said.

John Specht, general manager of the river authority, and Fred Pfeiffer of the San Antonio River Authority were to meet with Texas Department of Water Resources officials Friday in Austin to explore implementing a joint "water master system" for both river basins.

State law allows for creation of such plans to differentiate between water rights in extremely dry periods.

Huberty's wife, Etna, apologized to the city and its people for the carnage, saying "I wish that I could undo it, but I can't.

"If he would have been in his right mind, hadn't been hearing voices, he would have never done this. Never," she said in an interview with KFMB-TV.

She spent at least part of Friday with a friend, who identified herself only as Ann when she answered a telephone and said Mrs. Huberty would have nothing further to say.

"Don't you know that one of the children who was killed was playing with Cassandra (one of Huberty's two daughters) the day it happened?," she asked, but wouldn't elaborate.

Mrs. Huberty tried in her television interview to explain the actions of her husband, a recently fired security guard fascinated with weapons, guard dogs, and survivalism.

"I know definitely he would have never killed a child," she said. "He was very fond of children, extremely fond of children, and always talked vehemently about what should happen to people who hurt children."

Reminded that he had killed and wounded several children, she replied "I know he did. That's why I know he couldn't have possibly been in his right mind.

"Do you know what I really think," she told the interviewer, weeping, "That it's a bad dream and I'll wake up. And they're laughing, and find no one dead."

Mrs. Huberty apologized to the people of San Ysidro, the border town south of San Diego where she, her husband and their two daughters lived.

Farm laborers now covered by workmen's compensation

SAN JUAN, Texas (AP) — Gov. Mark White on Friday signed into law a bill granting workmen's compensation for farm laborers, a step he said removed them from the ranks of second-class citizens.

The measure, passed in a special session of the Legislature last month, grants all migrant farm workers and many seasonal agricultural employees insurance coverage if they are hurt on the job.

Such workers were excluded from previous workers compensation law, a discrimination a state district judge ruled unconstitutional in March.

"With this new law, we can tell our farm workers that if you are injured on the job the doctor's bill should be the least of your worries," White said in a signing ceremony held on the steps of the palacial Virgen de San Juan del Valle Shrine.

"With this new law, we can tell our farm workers that you are no longer citizens of a second class, but citizens of the first and only class — equal under the law," White said.

About 300 people, most of them Hispanic, and many of them carrying red and black United Farm Workers flags, attended the signing ceremony under a blistering sun.

With the passage of the measure, White said, "We have succeeded in casting off disgrace and dishonor of allowing an entire sector — a vital sector — of our agricultural work force to labor long and hard...to do work that can be hazardous to health and safety...without the protection and security provided by the basic medical benefits."

Helicopter will be used to search for missing boy

PAGOSA SPRINGS, Colo. (AP) — An Army Chinook helicopter will join ground crews from the Front Range and Western Slope of the Colorado Rockies as the search for a Texas teenager resumes at full force, the Hinsdale County sheriff said.

Sheriff Burt Smith said late Friday he expected the search for Chris Harvey to resume in earnest by 9:30 a.m. Saturday. Chris, 15, disappeared July 11 near the trailer vacation home his family has owned for several years at the edge of the San Juan National Forest.

The son of Jim and Judy Harvey of Andrews, Texas, Chris is 5-foot-11 and weighs 135 pounds.

Hinsdale County straddles the Continental Divide and includes three different drainage areas with much rugged terrain, Smith said. Although the county seat is Lake City, the weekend search efforts will be based in Pagosa Springs, county seat for neighboring Archuleta County, because the Divide separates Sheriff Burt Smith's office from the area where Chris was last seen.

Sheriff Neil Smith presides in Archuleta County and the terrain, distances by road and sparse population often mean cooperation between the two counties, Burt Smith said.

Aliens seeking legal status often arrested

HOUSTON (AP) — Local immigration officials say they're making it harder for illegal aliens to remain free while trying to get political asylum in the United States.

Now, about half of the undocumented aliens who walk into the immigration office seeking legal status are arrested, officials said.

The U.S. Immigration and Naturalization Service office in Houston once offered a unique policy where aliens could walk in, apply for political asylum and remain free while they tried for legal protection.

But the "good faith" policy was dropped recently because it was abused, said local INS director Paul O'Neill.

"Applicants for political asylum were coming to Houston from other places by the vanload to take advantage of the fact that we didn't arrest them," O'Neill said.

Houston's INS office received 10,000 applications for asylum during the past 2½ years, he said.

When a large pile of applications began to accumulate, INS officials no longer could interview the aliens immediately. Instead, applicants were told to mail in their forms and would receive appointments to be interviewed.

"When we tried to call many of them, though, we couldn't reach them and when we wrote them, our letters were returned unanswered," O'Neill said. "Our time was being needlessly tied up and the massive paperwork was useless. It was an intolerable and unacceptable situation."

Many aliens who received interviews were told to come back again when the U.S. Department of State issued a recommendation on their cases. But those aliens often disappeared, said INS assistant director Joseph Gallipeau.

"This was particularly true of young, single male illegals applying for political asylum — including many Salvadorans — who thought after talking to us that the decision would be unfavorable to them," Gallipeau said.

But now INS officials make judgments immediately after the interviews and "if aliens fit into a profile of people who we know from experience are unlikely to pursue their application afterwards, we do take them into custody," O'Neill said.

Alcoholics, addicts will soon lose home

DALLAS (AP) — Twenty-four people ravaged by drugs, drink and poverty soon will be homeless again thanks to a 72-hour eviction notice from the city.

"It's scary," said Kathy, a 32-year-old recovering alcoholic. "Right now, we feel like we're going back out on the street. And we don't like that."

Around the Clock Rehabilitation Center is a storefront operation run since November by George Jones, a former alcoholic. It has been open for months despite complaints from neighbors, but now the city has caught up to it.

After months of warnings, the city has issued a last-resort eviction notice.

Around the Clock started out as a counseling center, but soon Jones had moved in beds for his clients and installed a shower by tapping the water supply of the beauty shop next door.

"If I'm going to be real truthful with you, I have to say I intended to do what I'm doing from the very beginning," the white-haired Jones said.

Jones says he wasn't able to get a city halfway-house permit when he began his operation in November, so he got one for a counseling center instead.

A determined man, Jones has fended off for months what now appears to be inevitable. When the beauty shop turned off his water last week, he didn't budge.

When police made one of their frequent calls to investigate nuisance compliants, Jones usually talked them into having a cup of coffee with him and the residents.

His neighbors have been complaining to the city for months, after city officials learned in February that Jones had transformed his counseling center into a residential halfway house.

In May, they told Jones he had 45 days to get out of the shopping center. When he asked them to delay for the 4½ months it would take to get a halfway-house permit for a new location he'd found, he was turned down.

So Jones stayed put, dishing out the 12 tenets of Alcoholics Anonymous and bologna sandwiches.

"I have peace of mind here," said Mary, a former drug addict. "I am with my own people."

For a while, the bureaucracy moved with glacier-like dispatch, but when it finally got going, it seemed ready to make up for lost time.

On Wednesday, Jones got a 72-hour eviction notice from the city.

He says he will open another center — somewhere, soon. But he's afraid it won't be soon enough to keep his clients from backsliding while they are back on the streets.

"We've got 24 human beings living here and their frame of mind is not so good right now," he said. "This is the only home they've had."

Prison sentences should be similar, state analyst says

AUSTIN (AP) — State and local prosecutors, along with probation officers, think something should be done about the variety of prison sentences assessed in Texas for similar offenses, a study group was told Friday.

"Similar crimes by persons with similar criminal backgrounds should receive similar sentences," said Mike Eisenberg, a planning analyst of the State Board of Pardons and Paroles.

Sen. Ray Farabee, D-Wichita Falls, chairman of the legislative Commission on Sentencing Practices and Procedures, called a meeting for Aug. 24 to settle on recommendations to the 1985 Legislature.

At the top of the August meeting agenda will be a staff recommendation that the commission not suggest statewide sentencing guidelines be required "at this time."

The commission, made up of legislators and laymen, was assigned by the 1983 Legislature to determine whether current sentencing procedures "promote public confidence" in the Texas judicial system.

Steve Capelle, assistant director of the Texas District and County Attorneys Association, said a survey of 199 local prosecutors showed 76 percent of them think the public does not have confidence in the criminal justice system because sentences vary too much.

Dan Beto, chief adult probation officer of Brazos County, said a survey of 80 probation chiefs throughout the state showed 81 percent feel the same way.

The surveys also showed that 90 percent of the prosecutors and 73 percent of the probation officers feel that prison inmates should spend more time in the Texas Department of Corrections before being granted parole.

Houston police prepare plan to deal with strike, slowdown

HOUSTON (AP) — Houston police officers have prepared a contingency plan to respond to a possible strike or work slowdown by officers who are unhappy because of what they believe to be inadequate pay and benefits.

Chief Lee P. Brown said Thursday he doesn't expect any type of job action and claimed that the plan was just routine preparation.

But the plan calls for supervisors to determine "minimum staffing levels" and requires plain-clothes detectives to have uniforms ready in case they are called to street duty.

State law prohibits police from striking or staging any form of job action such as a work slowdown.

"I think our people fully understand their responsibilities as professional police officers," Brown said. "They all understand the oath they took, and I do not believe that our officers will engage in any illegal job actions."

Brown said the plan was issued by police officials because "as managers, we have a responsibility to be prepared for anything that may occur in the city in the normal course of business."

Nationwide manhunt launched for Texas border patrolman

BROWNSVILLE (AP) — A nationwide manhunt has been launched for Border Patrolman Santos Morales, who has been indicted by a federal grand jury on alien smuggling charges, officials said.

Morales and his wife, Flor, are accused of smuggling 18 Colombian nationals in the United States last month. The two were named in a 10-count indictment handed down Wednesday.

Also named in the indictment is a woman identified as either Olga or Teresa.

Border Patrol Sector Chief Silvestre Reyes said Thursday that photographs of Morales have been sent to Washington for distribution to law enforcement officials nationwide.

He said Morales called in sick July 12 and hasn't been seen since.

"We in law enforcement take it particularly hard when someone who wears the badge and has the responsibility of public trust goes wrong," Reyes said.

An Immigration and Naturalization Service internal affairs investigation was launched after Customs agents noticed Morales allowing the Colombians to pass through to a commercial airliner at Brownsville International Airport, Reyes said.

The aliens, who were heading for Miami, were arrested at a stopover in Houston last month.

The indictment charges that Morales kept the aliens at his home after they were picked up in a car provided by Mrs. Morales.

Dallas resident's $75 blocks multimillion-dollar Cityplace

DALLAS (AP) — Wielding $75 and a piece of paper, a city resident has managed to push the Southland Corp.'s mammoth Cityplace project back one month — a move that company officials estimate will cost them $2.5 million.

"I just wanted to get their attention," said Walter Ender, whose design studio is half a block from where Southland wants to build.

Just to let Southland know he opposes the project, Ender went down to city offices and paid a $75 fee to delay construction for one month.

A city ordinance allows property owners directly affected by a zoning case to win a 30-day delay for the city to circulate new notices of the rescheduled hearing. And Ender says he wants the full 30 days.

He definitely captured Southland's attention, said company attorney Kirk Williams: "It's a little frustrating when $75 can postpone a multimillion-dollar project."

Ender's $75 also bought a postponement in a city Planning Commission hearing on the Southland project.

Executive's wife kidnapped

WASHINGTON (AP) — The wife of a founder of the Syntex Corp., a drug company that helped develop the oral contraceptive, was kidnapped at gunpoint at a luxury hotel where the couple was playing in a bridge tournament, police said Friday.

Edith Rosenkranz, 60, was kidnapped late Thursday night at the Sheraton Washington Hotel where she was staying with her husband, George Rosenkranz.

The woman was taken at gunpoint about 11:50 p.m. EDT while walking with another woman in the hotel's parking garage, said city police Lt. William White III.

The man, armed with a handgun, led Mrs. Rosenkranz away after refusing to take only her purse, police said. The other woman, who was left behind unharmed, notified police, who found Mrs. Rosenkranz's shoes on another level of the parking garage.

Neither White nor the FBI, which assigned an 80-to-100 agent contingent to the case, would say if the kidnapper had demanded a ransom.

Norman A. Zigrossi, special agent in charge of the FBI's Washington field office, declined to release photographs of Mrs. Rosenkranz, saying that "would hamper the investigation or threaten her safety."

But police did release a composite sketch of the man they believed to be the kidnapper and a description: A black man about 27, 5 feet 8 inches tall, with short black hair, a thick moustache, wearing a light-colored suit or sportcoat and a light shirt with no tie.

Late in the afternoon and early evening, plain-clothes officers scoured the wooded grounds of the hotel and an adjacent park.

Union negotiators storm out of Postal Service meeting

WASHINGTON (AP) — Negotiators for the two major postal workers unions stormed out of contract talks with the U.S. Postal Service Friday night, contending that management returned to an earlier proposal for a three-year wage freeze it had abandoned.

"Talks are off. Negotiations are over," said an angry Vincent Sombrotto, president of the National Association of Letter Carriers.

Moe Biller, president of the American Postal Workers Union, called the economic package offered by the Postal Service negotiators "a hoax."

"They cannot look at their faces in the mirror. Shame on them. We're walking out of this room," Biller said.

Earlier, Biller said in a message to his members to "keep your cool" and not walk out after the midnight expiration of the contracts. Strikes against the Postal Service are illegal.

Negotiators resumed bargaining shortly after 11 p.m. following a break of several hours and the unions walked out just minutes before midnight.

Alan Madison, a spokesman for the American Postal Workers Union, said the unions had understood from an earlier management offer that was made orally that management was backing down from its insistence on a freeze in pay for current employees.

But he said when the talks resumed, the service gave what it called a "final offer" which included the freeze but reduced a proposed cut in pay scales for future workers from 33 percent of current wage rates to 23 percent.

Biller and Sombrotto said the service bargainers asked for a union response by 6 p.m. Saturday, but the union leaders said they would not wait that long and gave their answer immediately.

Chief Postal Service negotiator Louis Cox said he had no comment.

Madison earlier identified the issues separating the parties as pay, layoffs and a paid holiday for Martin luther King's birthday.

Officials of two smaller unions, meanwhile, confirmed that private union-management discussions away from the bargaining table indicated some movement by the Postal Service on wages, the pay scale of future workers and a cost-of-living adjustment.

Federal law provides for fact-finding and automatic binding arbitration if negotiators can't settle their differences.

Both union presidents have urged their members to stay on the job if the contracts expire.

Biller and Sombrotto have declined to rule out wildcat walkouts beyond their control.

Executive convicted of paying $2.7 million in kickbacks

NEW YORK (AP) — A business executive was convicted Friday of paying $2.7 million in kickbacks to two former General Dynamics Corp. officials in return for shipbuilding contracts on tankers and nuclear submarines.

Assistant U.S. Attorney David W. Denton had told the jury the case involved "unrestrained greed and corruption at the very highest level of American corporate life."

The jury deliberated five hours before convicting George G. Davis, former vice president of now-defunct Frigitemp Corp., of wiring payoffs to the secret Swiss bank accounts of former senior General Dynamics official P. Takis Veliotis, 57, and his assistant, James H. Gilliland.

The two former General Dynamics executives were indicted with Davis in a racketeering conspiracy, but are fugitives. Davis, 47, was charged with bribing them from 1974 to 1979 in return for $45 million in government-subsidized insulation and interior design contracts.

Veliotis, formerly a vice president of General Dynamics and member of its board of directors, has attracted the attention of federal investigators who visited him in Greece to hear his claims that the company — the nation's largest defense contractor — defrauded the Defense Department of hundreds of millions of dollars on nuclear submarine contracts.

Museum portrays Berlin as gay capital of Europe

BERLIN (AP) — Despite a flurry of protests and the resignation of 30 of its members, the Berlin Museum has opened an exhibition portraying this divided city as the homosexual capital of Europe since the days of Frederick the Great.

In fact the "Eldorado" exhibition describes the 18th century Prussian king, one of the great military generals of all time, as "the best-known homosexual Berliner."

But the actual display of books, photographs, sculptures, paintings and historical documents focuses on the history, daily life and culture of homosexuals in Berlin from 1850 to 1950.

It was during this period, especially during the Kaiser Reich and the Weimar Republic years, that Berlin became the Eldorado for European artists, writers and intellectuals with homosexual leanings.

"Berlin has always played the leading role," said Rolf Bothe, the museum's director. "The first films about homosexuality were made here, the first periodicals published, the first organizations formed, the first institute for sexual research established.

The purpose of the exhibit, which was organized by a group of homosexual men and women and due to run until July 29, is to reveal a repressed part of Berlin's history, Bothe said.

But although "Eldorado" has been the West Berlin museum's biggest draw ever, with 30,000 visitors in its first six weeks, the reaction was largely negative when the museum first announced its plans.

In addition to the resignation of 30 museum members, letters poured in to West Berlin's City Council, pleading for the mayor to stop the exhibit at the taxpayer-subsidized museum. Anonymous callers threatened Bothe personally.

Bothe, who was originally unsure about the project, said the negative reaction convinced him how necessary it was.

"We put off another exhibit that had been scheduled for 1984 in order to create more room and finanicial means," he said. The project cost the museum 42,000 marks ($15,000).

The threats stopped after "Eldorado" opened, Bothe said. "After people saw that it was a solid, historical exhibit, there were no more complaints."

The exhibit takes the viewer from the Kaiser years, when several homosexual beer halls and casinos were near the city's Brandenburg Gate, to the Weimar Republic of the 1920s, when some 120 homosexual cafes were in business, and the Nazi persecution.

In 1919, "Other Than The Others," the first film dealing with homosexuality, appeared in Berlin, to be followed by many others.

EMS workers robbed

NEW YORK (AP) — Two city ambulance workers were robbed of a $2,000 radio, jewelry and a small amount of cash while responding to an emergency call early Friday, police said.

The Emergency Medical Service team may have been falsely lured to the housing project by the armed robbers, said Sgt. Raymond O'Donnell.

Stephanie Kamil and Randall Meierdierks, both 26, were responding to an emergency call in Brooklyn.

Man arrested for bombs

LINCOLN, Neb. (AP) — A 19-year-old man has been arrested following an investigation into the manufacture of pipe bombs, including one that damaged three buildings here July 7.

Scott R. Swanson of Lincoln was arrested Wednesday on a charge of possession of a destructive device by authorities who received a tip from ann informant. Charles Beauchamp of the Lincoln Bureau of Fire Prevention said police, using a search warrant, found a pipe bomb in Swanson's car.

Park gets rid of goats

AUGUSTA, Ga. (AP) — Augusta parks officials have gotten rid of the goats at Pendleton King Park because the animals were attacking and wounding the park's deer.

One deer died about two weeks ago after a fight with a billy goat who took one of the deer's antlers off, said J.E. Hornsby, superintendent of parks and trees for the city.

Spokesman rejects Mondale challenge

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rejecting the challenge of Walter F. Mondale, President Reagan's chief spokesman said Friday that "We'll just have to wait" until after the election before the president decides to seek higher taxes to close the federal deficit.

Deputy press secretary Larry Speakes said Mondale, the Democratic presidential nominee, had no basis for telling the nation Thursday night that an increase is inevitable, regardless of who wins the White House. "Mondale's not in a position to know," Speakes declared.

Vice President George Bush, meanwhile, pledged Reagan would not seek an across-the-board increase in personal income tax rates but left open the possibility that other taxes would be raised.

"There will be some more reform that we hope will increase revenues but we're not going to do what I thought I heard him (Mondale) say he was going to do and that is raise taxes on all the people in the income tax," Bush said in a series of television interviews with CBS affiliates in Chicago, Philadelphia and New York. "We're not going to do that."

Bush said, "We have reduced taxes across the board, for all Americans, and this president will not acquiesce in raising those tax rates back up again."

Reagan "has a strong record of not raising taxes" but a decision on revenue needs will await results of Treasury Department study due in December, Speakes said.

Later, White House Chief of Staff James A. Baker III rejected Mondale's call for six presidential debates. Reagan "looks forward to debating the Democratic nominee on resonable terms at a reasonable time," he said, but the challenge for half a dozen exchanges "cannot be taken seriously."

"We will let Walter Mondale do the talking about raising taxes," Speakes said. He called Mondale's predictions a sign that "the Democrats are committed to continuing their program of spend and spend, tax and tax" because of "too many promises to too many interest groups."

Reagan, asked after a White House ceremony about Mondale's statement, said, "wait 'til Tuesday night." The president has scheduled a news conference for that time.

Mondale, in his acceptance speech at the Democratic National Convention, said: "Here is the truth about the future: We are living on borrowed money and borrowed time.

Authorities halt search for accused mountain men

BIG SKY, Mont. (AP) — Authorities on Friday halted an intensive ground and air search for two mountain men who allegedly kidnapped a woman athlete to get a bride and killed a man searching for her.

But Dan Nichols, 53, and his 19-year-old son, Don, will have to come out of the woods sooner or later, said Madison County Sheriff Johnny France.

"There is no doubt in my mind that we'll apprehend them," said France, adding that the capture "may not be this year and it may not be next year."

Backcountry hikers and campers should have little to fear from the pair, the sheriff said.

Although they are accused of killing a searcher, are heavily armed and have vowed not to be taken alive, France said they are likely to kill again only if they feel threatened.

"I would feel more threatened by bears," he said.

The search concluded Friday morning with a three-hour aerial survey of the Jerome Rocks Lake area of the Madison Mountains.

"I feel definitely they have left the immediate area," France said. The Nicholses are probably somewhere in the vast wilderness region, but could have hiked out and made a getaway by car, authorities said.

The two vanished early Monday after they allegedly shot and killed Alan Goldstein of Big Sky, one of two men who stumbled on their camp while searching for Kari A. Swenson.

The 23-year-old Bozeman woman, a member of the U.S. women's biathlon team that competed in France last winter, was kidnapped Sunday while jogging in the mountains in the Big Sky resort area.

Authorities said the kidnappers chained her to a log and that the younger Nichols shot her in the chest, apparently by accident, when Goldstein and another man, Jim Schwalbe, approached their camp.

British port employers, union leaders reach agreement

LONDON (AP) — Port employers and union leaders reached an agreement Friday to end Britain's 10-day dock strike, freeing hundreds of vessels and stranded trucks at two major British ports and six ports on the European continent.

A poll published Friday showed the Conservative government, still harassed by an 18-week miners' strike, suffered a new drop in its popularity rating to below that of the union-funded opposition Labor Party.

Details of the deal, struck at dawn between leaders of 35,000 dockworkers and the National Association of Port Employers, were not announced.

Transport and General Workers' Union official John Connolly said negotiators would recommend that a union conference accept the agreement Saturday. But longshoremen at Britain's major container port, Felixstowe on the east coast of England, voted to resume work immediately, without waiting for the conference.

Traffic was flowing normally Friday through Dover, the nation's major ferry port on the English Channel, where the strike was abandoned Thursday night after angry truckers threatened to burn down the port facilities, officials said.

Both sides said they'd reached a "reasonable" agreement to end the dispute, which began after non-union labor was used to transport iron ore being boycotted in support of an 18-week-old coal miners' strike.

"Nobody was the winner, everybody has been the loser," said Donald Stringer, chairman of the employers' body.

Transport Secretary Nicholas Ridley called the end of the dock strike "very good news for reasonableness."

Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher's administration, buoyed by the breakthrough, accused the miners' leftist leader, Arthur Scargill, of running a political strike.

The miners' walkout, which has idled 70 percent of Britain's mines, began March 12 in protest against plans by the state-run National Coal Board to close 20 unprofitable mines and cut 20,000 jobs.

Consumer Affairs Minister Alex Fletcher, in a speech in Edinburgh, Scotland, said Scargill saw himself as a "no-surrender general."

Poles on pilgrimage seek political asylum

TRAISKIRCHEN, Austria (AP) — Four buses carrying Poles on a religious pilgrimage to the Vatican made a detour to Austria's main refugee camp where 120 of the passengers asked for political asylum, police reported Friday.

The mass defection Thursday by Poles of Ukrainian background was the largest from Poland since 1982, when about 500 Poles remained in Spain and other countries after getting permission to leave for the world soccer championships.

Viktor Demel, head of the camp's Aliens Police Department, said most of the refugees who arrived Thursday were Greek Catholics who wanted to emigrate to Canada.

"I don't know why, but exactly half of the group were men and the other half women," said Demel. "They are mostly in the 20-30 age bracket and unmarried."

They arrived in four buses bearing 180 pilgrims. Sixty visitors went on to Rome in two buses. "The other two buses returned home empty," Demel said.

"Those refugees we questioned so far have complained about discrimination," because of their Ukrainian background, he told The Associated Press in his office inside the Traiskirchen complex of about two dozen buildings.

"One woman from Legnica (in southern Poland) told me that they had school problems," Demel reported, apparently meaning tuition charges for teaching ethnic Ukrainian children in their own language.

The Poles also told officials they reject the "Communist social system" and prefer life in the West. Canada has a large Ukrainian minority which traces its heritage to what is now a Soviet republic.

Helmut Fasching, a consular official at the Austrian Embassy in Warsaw, told a reporter by telephone the official purpose of the pilgrimage was to see the pope. Greek Catholics recognize the Roman Catholic pope as their spiritual leader, but their rites differ from those of Roman Catholics. There are about 50,000 Greek Catholics in Poland, most of them ethnic Ukrainians.

Demel said those seeking asylum will have to wait two to three months before any action is taken. He said the new arrivals were being questioned separately.

He said a Greek Catholic priest who managed the tour continued on to Rome. During the Polish turmoil of 1980-82, when the Solidarity independent union blossomed, to be followed by the imposition of martial law, Vienna was flooded with refugees. They spilled over from Traiskirchen and other refugee camps into private homes and boarding houses. Official figures show that as many as 400 Poles a day asked for political asylum during that period.

Traiskirchen is 25 miles south of Vienna. The refugees are not restricted in their movements but must show an identity card with a photo before they leave and re-enter the camp.

Norwegians average 1.7 children

Every woman in Norway of childbearing age (15 to 49) currently gives birth to, on the average, 1.7 children.

To maintain the population at its present size, each woman should give birth to 2.1 children, government experts say.

Jealousy, violence plague China's free enterprise policy

PEKING (AP) — The communist government's policy that gives peasants freedom to make money on their own has produced an unwanted side-effect: those who do get rich face sabotage and violence from jealous neighbors.

Stories about rich versus poor have increasingly appeared in the state-run press. They range from extortion and assaults on successful peasants to destruction of their property.

Letters from victims published in newspapers also complain of harassment from local communist bureaucrats who see prosperous peasants as a threat to their power.

"It's widespread, that's the first thing I assume," said a Western diplomat who monitors agricultural matters. "The number of instances are much greater than what's in the papers." He spoke on condition he not be identified because of his diplomatic status.

Over the last five years, agricultural reforms have overturned the egalitarian commune system of China's 800 million peasants promulgated by the late revolutionary leader, Chairman Mao Tse-tung.

Once forced to toil in "production brigades" and sell exclusively to the state, peasants may now form "specialized households" — families that produce one type of commodity. They may sell at private markets and hire a small number of employees.

Instead of working land in groups assigned to them by a commune, they may sign individual contracts to farm land for periods of up to 15 years.

The result has been a sharp increase in many peasant incomes and three record grain harvests. The government claims a few families make more than 100,000 yuan ($45,000) a year.

Success stories in the press tell of peasants buying their own crop dusters, truck fleets and even computers to help them manage their finances. In June a group of peasants toured Japan at their own expense, an unprecedented event.

But there also is what the Chinese call "hong yan bing," — "red-eye disease," meaning the eyes of the have-nots bulging with jealousy because they think the wealth should be shared.

In a case reported July 2 in the newspaper China Legal System, a poor peasant in Jiangsu province poisoned her wealthy neighbor's ducks because she thought he was too rich.

The newspaper also said a mob of peasants forced their neighbor, Hang Xiaoqing, to surrender the three-year contract she had signed to raise pond fish because she had made a big profit.

China News Service, a state-run domestic news agency, reported June 29 that in Tianmen County in Hubei province, 117 out of 130 prosperous specialized households have been victimized by crime.

Grenade damages Soviet Embassy in west Beirut

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — A rocket-propelled grenade fired from a rooftop about 100 yards away hit the Soviet Embassy compound in west Beirut Friday night, causing damage but no casualties, police said.

A telephone caller said later the embassy was a "Soviet espionage center" and such attacks would continue unless the Soviets stopped "interfering in Lebanese internal politics." The man pointed to the devastating bombing attacks against U.S. Marines and French troops in Beirut last fall and said the same "will" could shake the Russians.

Police at the scene told The Associated Press the rocket tore through a third-floor window of the four-story building and exploded in an inside room.

Lebanese police ringed the embassy at Corniche Mazraa commercial thoroughfare in mostly Moslem west Beirut moments after the attack took place at 9:40 p.m. (2:40 p.m. EDT), but Soviet guards kept them from entering the building to investigate.

Police sources, who spoke on condition they were not identified, said the Soviet Embassy had kept operating despite civil war hazards and that "a number" of diplomats usually sleep on the ground floor.

The caller said in Arabic that he belonged to a unit of the "Organization of the Sharp Sword," a previously unknown group. He telephoned the AP bureau in Beirut about an hour after the attack to claim his group was responsible.

The man read a statement saying the attack was directed against the "Soviet espionage center" and that it was a warning to the Soviet Union to stop "its direct interference in Lebanese internal politics"

"As of now, the group will reach out to each and every Russian on Lebanese soil" if the Moscow government failed to do so, the caller added.

The statement he read added, "The will which forced the (U.S.) Marines and French (soldiers) out of Beirut is capable of shaking the earth under the feet of the Russians."

The caller was referring to bombing attacks against U.S. Marines and French soldiers of the multinational peacekeeping force last year.

Germans honor conspirators who attempted to kill Hitler

BERLIN (AP) — West German leaders paid homage Friday to officers, diplomats and other conspirators killed 40 years ago for a failed attempt to kill Adolf Hitler with a planted bomb.

"The 20th of July enabled us Germans to save our honor," Chancellor Helmut Kohl said in a nationally televised speech from West Berlin.

German resistance leaders had little chance of assassinating Hitler on July 20, 1944, nine months before the surrender of Nazi Germany, he said.

"But they were ready to sacrifice themselves for the justice and for the future of the fatherland," he said at a ceremony in the courtyard of the former Wehrmacht headquarters, where four officers were shot by a firing squad 12 hours after Hitler escaped the blast with minor scratches.

Col. Claus von Stauffenberg, 37, the German war hero and count who led the conspiracy and was among those shot, planted the bomb during a briefing at Hitler's "Wolf's Lair" command post in East Prussia. He flew back to Berlin convinced that the Fuehrer had been killed in the blast.

But the coup was quickly and ruthlessly crushed after military units sided with Hitler. Stauffenberg died shouting, "Long live our sacred Germany!"

Hitler committed suicide in April 1945 in his Berlin bunker to avoid capture by the Red Army.

The conspirators, who included trade unionists and churchmen as well as soldiers and diplomats, "wanted primarily to demonstrate to the world that the German people were not Hitler's collaborators," Kohl told several hundred people. Among them were widows and relatives of the plotters.

More than 5,000 people were arrested and 200 were executed after the coup attempt, Kohl said. Historians say many of those arrested died in concentration camps.

West Berlin Mayor Eberhard Diepgen praised the participants in the German resistance for what he called their "courage to act for freedom and conscience."

Hamburg Mayor Klaus von Dohnanyi, whose father was executed for opposing the Nazi regime, said the plot "was, at its core, a revolt of the human, social and Christian conscience."

President Richard von Weizsaecker stood silently at the plaque as the German anthem was played at the end of the ceremony.

West Germans detain sealed Soviet truck

BONN, West Germany (AP) — West German authorities detained a sealed Soviet truck Friday until they can inspect its contents, and the Soviet Union lodged a protest over the German action.

The West Germans stopped the vehicle, which the Soviets say contains nine tons of diplomatic baggage, because of what they called its "suspicious behavior." The truck had gone to Switzerland and the Swiss ordered it to return to Moscow because the Soviets would not allow the cargo to be inspected.

West German radio Friday quoted unidentified West German intelligence sources as saying the truck may contain surveillance equipment.

"We have lodged a determined protest against the unlawful actions of the federal (West German) authorities," said Yuri Alexandrovich Gremitskich, chief of the Soviet Embassy's information section in Bonn.

"I do not want to go into the details of it now because we do not want to heat up the situation with public discussions," he told The Associated Press in a telephone interview.

West German customs officials detained the Mercedes truck Thursday night at the Helmstedt border checkpoint just west of Communist East Germany.

The truck is still being held at the checkpoint, West German government spokesman Peter Boenisch told a Bonn news conference Friday.

He said Bonn had asked the Soviet Embassy to dispatch an attache to the Foreign Ministry with a list specifying the truck's freight, which West German officials could then verify.

Hanoi accuses China of killing 34 civilians

BANGKOK, Thailand (AP) — Hanoi on Friday accused China of killing 34 civilians and wounding 70 more in heavy shelling of the Vietnamese border province of Ha Tuyen since April 1.

Chinese border forces fired more than 120,000 rounds of heavy artillery on 28 of the province's 33 border villages between April 1 and July 15, the official Vietnam News Agency said.

China and Vietnam have, since early April, stepped up their accusations of cross-border provocations.

Mines explode on rails

DURBAN, South Africa (AP) — Two mines exploded on the main north-south railway line through Durban on Friday, and gasoline bombs were thrown at homes of Asian political leaders outside Johannesburg, police said.

They said no one was injured in the incidents and damage was minor.

In Lenasia, an Asian township 15 miles southwest of Johannesburg, gas bombs were thrown overnight at the homes of four political leaders running for seats in South Africa's racially segregated Parliament.

No one claimed responsibility for the blasts, although the African National Congress has claimed it carried out other bombings. The organization is the main group fighting to overthrow South Africa's white-minority government.

Bishops defend letter

MANILA, Philippines (AP) — Leading Roman Catholic bishops on Friday defended a pastoral letter urging repeal of President Ferdinand E. Marcos' lawmaking powers.

"We are not dictators, we are only teachers," said Archbishop Antonio Mabutas, head of the 107-member Catholic Bishops Conference of the Philippines. The letter, to be read Sunday in churches throughout the predominantly Catholic country, says Marcos' lawmaking powers are open to "gross abuse, even the destruction of life".

Ian Baker-Finch waves his putter to the gallery at the 18th green after finishing the second round of the British Open at 10-under par.

Aussie controls British party

ST. ANDREWS, Scotland (AP) — An obscure Australian, Ian Baker-Finch, fired a 66 before the winds began to howl Friday, setting what even he called a surprising three-stroke lead and equaling a 36-hole course record in the 113th British Open golf championship.

"It's a surprise in that I didn't expect the lead," said the 23-year-old after reaching the tournament halfway point with a 134 total, 10 under par and matching the record on the historic Old Course. The mark was set by Roberto de Vicenzo of Argentina in 1960.

Meanwhile, some of the biggest names in golf — American Tom Watson, Seve Ballesteros of Spain and the "Merry Mex" himself, Lee Trevino of the United States — moved into position to challenge the leader.

Trevino, who also played before the winds kicked up and the temperature dropped 20 degrees to a cool 55 in minutes, maneuvered his way to a 5-under-par 67 and was tied for second at 137 with Nick Faldo of England and Ballesteros, the former British Open and Masters champion.

Ballesteros and Faldo each had a 68 over the ancient course that is recognized as the cradle and home of golf.

WATSON FINISHED off a 68 and completed 36 holes at 139 — five under par and five strokes off the pace.

He was tied at 139 with Fred Couples, who holed out a 9-iron shot on the 18th for a 69; Lanny Wadkins, with a 69; and Bernhard Langer of West Germany, who birdied the 18th for a 68.

Jack Nicklaus, winner of this championship the last two times it was played at St. Andrews, refused to count himself out even though he barely qualified for the final two rounds at 148, 14 strokes behind the leader.

"The opera isn't over 'til the fat lady sings," he said.

Bill Longmuir, the longshot Scot who shared the first-round lead, was within a stroke of the lead at nine under for the tournament, when he fell victim to the fearsome Road Hole, the 17th. A triple-bogey seven sent him reeling back to a 71 and a 138 total.

Peter Jacobsen, one of three tied for the first-round lead, and Tom Kite, playing out of Midland's Green Tree Country Club, were in the group at 140. Kite had a 71 and Jacobsen 73.

Midland golfer Tom Kite
...six down, but not out

Greg Norman, the powerful Australian who also had a piece of the first-round lead and played with Watson and Langer in the worst of the weather, finished with a 41 on the back nine. He had a 74 for the day and was at 141.

Baker-Finch, among the first off the tee, made most of his round with a 32 on the front nine that included a 50-foot putt on the eighth.

But the key, he said, was "getting up and down a couple of times from very difficult positions." That included a save from the Road Bunker on the 17th and the Valley of Sin on the 18th.

"I know I'm capable, but I didn't tee off expecting to win. Something in the top 20 was my goal," said Baker-Finch, who won this year's West Australian Open and last year's New Zealand Open — his only two tournament victories.

He knew what he had to do.

"I've got to try to stay calm, relaxed, not let it get the better of me," he said.

AND THAT, warned Trevino, can be difficult.

"When you're young, you want to win so much you get nervous. Everybody does. Everybody chokes. Anybody tells you he doesn't, he's lying. We all do.

"When you're older, when you've played in a lot of these, you approach things differently," said Trevino, 44, twice the winner of this title but a non-winner for three years.

"I'm as relaxed as I've ever been. When you've got a good player, and he's relaxed — not too concerned whether he plays good or not so good — he's dangerous."

Longmuir, 4-under for the day and coming off a 30-foot birdie putt on the 16th, tried to play his drive down the right side to find a better opening to the green. He found disaster instead.

His drive was out of bounds, over the low stone wall and into a flower garden. He eventually put a 3-wood shot onto the road, chipped back and two-putted for the seven.

"I just came off the drive," he explained. "I was over-confident — no, dumb."

But he was not alone in his difficulties at that famous, dreaded hole.

There was, for example, Watson, winner of this title the last two years and owner of five overall.

Playing in the worst of the wind and cold, Watson was breezing along at six under par for the day and was tied for second when, as he said, "the old lady got me."

He drove into the left rough, hit a 3-iron into a very difficult position in a bunker, blew it out and then, from some 120 feet away, three-putted for double bogey.

"Except for that one hole, I played a good round of golf," Watson said. "I'd like to be a couple of more under par, but I'm pleased with my position."

Norman once was within two strokes of the top spot but then slashed and thrashed his way to a string of six consecutive 5s.

"I lost my feel and I lost my concentration," he said. "Those six holes slit my throat. I've got to forget about that and play two good rounds. Seven shots at this stage is nothing."

Nicklaus matched par 72 in the worst of the weather, got back to even par for the tournament at one stage then "three-putted my way in." He had three-putt bogeys on the 11th, 15th and 17th.

Hillin fights NASCAR numbers

From Staff Reports

MT. POCONO, Pa. — Statistics prove that competition in NASCAR Grand National stock car racing has reached record levels, but Midland's 19-year-old Bobby Hillin Jr. and the first-year Stavola Brothers Racing team aren't looking for excuses as they prepare for the Like Cola 500 Sunday at Pocono International Raceway.

"The numbers show what I've been learning the hard way in our first nine races of this season," says Hillin, who graduated from Midland High in 1982. "Even with a good operation like ours, it's tougher than ever to crack the top 10. The last race at Pocono is a perfect example. Although we had to use our short track motor, we ran pretty good all day and were just a tick off (race winner) Cale Yarbrough's pace at the end.

"We beat Ricky Rudd and Rusty Wallace. And people like Richard Petty, Neil Bonnett and Dave Marcis were the three cars ahead of us. Still, we only finished 16th," Hillin says with obvious disappointment.

In that race, 32 of the 39 starters, an impressive 82 percent of the field, finished the race. Six cars, more than 15 percent of the field, finished in the same lap with the winner.

As Hillin and his teammates have discovered, the competition has been stiff everywhere. Through the first 16 races of the 30-event 1984 Winston Cup season, 68 percent of all starters have finished and nearly 13 percent have been in the same lap with the winner.

These figures document a dramatic increase in the competitiveness of the NASCAR circuit over the past 10 years. In 1975, for example, an average of only 51 percent of the field finished a Grand National race compared to 68 percent thus far in 1984. More importantly, the number of contenders in the same lap with the winner has more than doubled to nearly 13 percent from a 1975 level of under five percent.

"It's a little discouraging to run well and find out that you haven't got much to show for it," says Hillin. "Today, very few of the front runners are dropping out, but that's OK with me. I'm willing to earn every position, not just wait for other people to pull over."

Sunday's race at Pocono is the ninth of the season for Hillin and Stavola Brothers Racing. The team's best performances have been an 11th place at Talladega's Winston 500 and a 12th place at Darlington's TranSouth 500. The best qualifying effort has been 13th at the Budweiser 500 at Dover.

Pokes' White fishes at $1,000 per day rate

THOUSAND OAKS, Calif. (AP) — All-Pro defensive tackle Randy White was being fined by the Dallas Cowboys at the rate of $1,000 per day while he held out for salary renegotiations.

While White fished for bass in East Texas, the Cowboy brass fumed over his absence in training camp.

He failed to arrive as scheduled Thursday, saying he wanted immediate action on his contract.

White, on the option year of his contract, is making $350,000 per year but wants to be the highest paid lineman in the National Football League.

Mark Gastineau of the New York Jets makes an estimated $800,000.

White told teammate John Dutton before missing the scheduled plane to Thousand Oaks that he had been snubbed by the Cowboy brass.

"All I want them to do is make me an offer," White told Dutton. "Maybe by holding out I can get them (the front office) to move."

Coach Tom Landry said "Randy is under contract. I usually do envoke the fine."

Landry said this could be a big setback for the Cowboys if White failed to report.

"It would help if all the players are here," Landry said. "I'm surprised a little bit. It's very unusual for Randy. I don't know all the circumstances but it's very uncharacteristic of him, but who knows?"

There were reports White and defensive end Ed "Too Tall" Jones, who wants his five-year contract renegotiated, planned to walk out together.

Jones, who has three years left on his contract, reported to camp.

He denied he and White were working on a package deal, saying "I haven't even talked to him about the contract situation."

Asked if there was a chance he could walk out, Jones said "If there are no renegotiation meetings started I would consider it."

World records fall

BERLIN (AP) — Uwe Hohn of East Germany shattered the world record in the men's javelin with a spectacular toss of 343 feet, 10 inches and Ludmila Andonova of Bulgaria leaped 6 feet, 9½ inches to set a women's high jump world mark Friday at the "Olympic Day" track and field meet in East Berlin.

Hohn, 22, of Potsdam, accomplished the feat on his second try, breaking the former mark of 327-2 set by Tom Petranoff of the United States on May 15, 1983, in Los Angeles.

Andonova, 24, a Russian-born mother of an infant daughter, cleared the world record height on her first try, beating a field that included former world record-holder Tamara Bykova of the Soviet Union.

Bykova set the old mark of 6-8¾ on June 23 at the Soviet national championships in Kiev.

Andonova's record was initially announced as 6-9, but meet organizers remeasured the height and found she had actually cleared 6-9½.

The records were set on a chilly, breezy evening at Friedrich Ludwig Jahn stadium in East Berlin, drawing wild cheers from a capacity crowd of 21,000 spectators.

SOVIET-BLOC athletes, with a sprinkling of Westerners, were competing in a full range of events at this two-day meet, scheduled to end Saturday in the East Berlin suburb of Potsdam.

The meet took on added significance after Soviet-bloc teams decided to boycott the Los Angeles Olympics to protest what they claim are anti-Communist provocations planned against the competitors at the Summer Games starting July 28.

Meet organizers made it clear that athletes would be encouraged to go for world records in an effort to detract from the Los Angeles Olympics.

"I thought I could hit the 100-meter (330 feet) mark this year," Hohn said. "When I threw the javelin and watched it sail, I knew this would be 100 meters or more."

Hohn, an East German soldier, nearly broke the world record with a toss of 326-6 in Potsdam on May 25.

"This is not a Beamon world record," Hohn said, referring to Bob Beamon's 1968 Olympic feat of extending the long jump record by over two feet. "I know I can throw farther than this, maybe not at the next competition, but sometime."

After her record leap, which topped her previous best by 3¼ inches, Andonova failed three times to clear 6-10¾, and later said that Bykova jokingly advised her not to clear the height "too soon" so their rivalry could continue.

Meanwhile Carl Lewis, bidding to match Jesse Owens' feat of four track and field gold medals in one Olympics, is expected to chase another milestone tonight in the Sacramento International Summer Games.

Lewis will try to break the 16-year-old world long jump record of 29 feet, 2½ inches set by Bob Beamon of the United States during the 1968 Olympic Games in the high altitude of Mexico City.

Lewis has disdained jumping in rarified air, preferring instead to compete at sea level, and under those conditions, he has come tantalizingly close to Beamon's "untouchable" mark.

TWICE, LEWIS has jumped 28-10¼. The first time was June 19, 1983 in the USA Championships at Indianapolis. The second time was Jan. 27, 1984 in the Millrose Games at New York.

In addition, he had a jump that exceeded 30 feet during the National Sports Festival at Indianapolis on July 24, 1982, but it was ruled a foul because Lewis had barely broken the plane of the jumping board.

Lewis believes he is capable of jumping 30 feet legally, and Saturday night, in a low-pressure meet — his final competition before the Olympics — he might prove it.

"I imagine he is going to jump well," said a knowledgeable member of the U.S. Olympic entourage. "Sacramento is a good jumping area.

"He won't go for the world record in the Olympics, because by the time he gets to jump in the Games, he will have run about six races.

"His workouts have been very good, and he might shoot the works Saturday night. In the Olympics, winning is the name of the game, not setting world records."

The Sacramento meet is one of the final tuneups for the Olympic track and field competition, which begins Aug. 3 at the Los Angeles Coliseum. Lewis skipped last weekend's pre-Olympic meets at Berkeley and Walnut, Calif., to recuperate from last month's U.S. trials and to prepare for this event. He made the team in the 100-and 200-meter dashes, the long jump and the 400-meter relay.

Astros sting Expos, 8-4

Braves' bats wake up against Phils

Associated Press

HOUSTON — Enos Cabell and Terry Puhl each drove in two runs and Craig Reynolds highlighted Houston's four-run first inning with a run-scoring triple as the Astros defeated the Montreal Expos 8-4 Friday night.

Bill Doran opened the Astros' first with a double, preceding Reynolds' triple and an RBI single by Denny Walling. Walks to Jose Cruz and Jerry Mumphrey loaded the bases before Cabell and Puhl drove in a pair of runs with fielder's choice grounders.

Houston added a run against losing pitcher Steve Rogers, 3-10, in the third on a single by Cruz, a walk to Mumphrey, and Cabell's RBI single to center.

The Expos scored their first run in the sixth on singles by Jim Wohlford and Doug Flynn, a walk to Bobby Ramos and a fielder's choice grounder by pinch-hitter Pete Rose.

Montreal cut the lead to 5-3 in the seventh against winning pitcher Bob Knepper, 9-8, on a single by Derrel Thomas and Andre Dawson's seventh home run of the season.

The Astros tacked on three runs in the eighth. Puhl's single batted in the sixth Houston run. Bill Dawley tripled him home and scored on second baseman Doug Flynn's errant throw to the plate.

Gary Carter stroked his 18th home run of the year in the ninth.

Knepper hurled the first six innings for the Astros, who pinned the Expos with their third consecutive loss. Dawley threw the final three innings to earn his second save of the season.

The loss was Rogers' ninth in his last 10 decisions. He has lost eight consecutive decisions in the Astrodome dating back to May 24, 1975.

Braves 13, Phillies 1

ATLANTA — Brad Komminsk hit two home runs and Dale Murphy one, and the Atlanta Braves took advantage of three Philadelphia errors to score eight unearned runs on their way to a 13-1 rout of the Phillies.

Komminsk put the Braves in front 1-0 with his fourth home run of the season in the second inning and added a two-run blast in the seventh. Murphy's homer, his 21st of the year, put the Braves in front 2-1 in the fourth.

Atlanta broke the game open with four unearned runs in the fifth inning and three more in the sixth. Claudell Washington and Murphy each had two-run singles in the fifth.

Len Barker, 7-7, scattered five hits, striking out seven, including the side in the ninth, and walking three to earn the victory. Charles Hudson, 8-7, was the loser.

Mike Schmidt homered in the fourth to tie the score 1-1 and take the league lead with 21 homers, but Murphy's shot in the bottom of the inning tied him with Schmidt again.

Glenn Hubbard led off the fifth by reaching base when third baseman Schmidt misplayed his grounder. Two outs and two walks later, Washington's single scored two runs. Murphy followed with another two-run single to make the score 6-1.

Ken Oberkfell added a two-out bases-loaded triple in the sixth to drive in three unearned runs, triggered by shortstop Ivan DeJesus' fielding error that allowed Alex Trevino to reach base.

Komminsk's second homer of the game was the key blow in the Braves' three-run seventh. Pinch-runner Albert Hall scored on a throwing error by DeJesus and Komminsk's homer gave Atlanta a 12-1 lead.

The Braves scored their final run in the eight on an RBI double by Washington.

Giants 3, Cubs 2

CHICAGO — Manny Trillo made three standout plays in only his second game at third base and singled to launch a three-run rally in the fourth inning, leading the San Francisco Giants to a 3-2 victory over the Chicago Cubs.

The game was delayed by rain at the end of the seventh inning for an hour and a half.

Jeff Robinson, 5-11, picked up only his second victory in his last 14 starts. He allowed three hits over seven innings, but did not come back after the rain. Greg Minton pitched the last two innings for his tenth save.

Trillo, Dusty Baker and Chili Davis singled in succession in the fourth off loser Dennis Eckersley, 3-6, with Trillo scoring on Davis' single. Scot Thompson's walk loaded the bases and Baker scored on Steve Nicosia's ground out. Davis scored on Brad Wellman's sacrifice fly.

Eckersley also allowed only three hits, walked five and struck out five in the seven innings he worked.

Bob Dernier led off the first with a double, went to third on a fly ball and scored on Gary Matthews' sacrifice fly to give Chicago a 1-0 lead.

National League

After the three-run Giants fourth, Jody Davis' sacrifice fly in the bottom of the inning cut the lead to 3-2.

Trillo, a four-time Gold Glove winner as a second baseman, made his three exceptional plays in the sixth inning.

Trillo robbed Ryne Sandberg of a double when he grabbed his smash down the line and threw him out, made a fine play on Matthews' grounder and then made a diving catch of Leon Durham's line drive.

The victory was only the second by the Giants over the Cubs in their 10 meetings this season.

Pirates 4-2, Padres 3-3

PITTSBURGH — Tony Gwynn's three-run homer in the eighth inning ended John Tudor's shutout bid and rallied the San Diego Padres to a 3-2 nightcap victory over the Pittsburgh Pirates and a split of their twi-night doubleheader.

Jim Morrison and Doug Frobel led off successive innings with homers and starter Rick Rhoden drove in the go-ahead run as the Pirates won the opener 4-3.

The Padres trailed 1-0 in the second game when Bruce Bochy singled with one out in the eighth and pinch-hitter Kurt Bevacqua bounced into a force play. Alan Wiggins then beat out an infield single before Gwynn lashed a 1-1 pitch from Tudor, 5-8, over the right-field wall for his fourth homer of the season.

The loss was just the second for the Pirates in their last 12 games while the National League West-leading Padres ended a three-game losing streak.

Andy Hawkins, 5-3, scattered three hits over seven innings for the victory, striking out six and walking one.

Rich Gossage pitched the final 1⅓ innings for his 17th save despite yielding a run-scoring single to Morrison in the eighth.

With one out in the Pirates' second, Morrison ripped a double and one out later scored on Frobel's single.

The Pirates trailed 1-0 in the opener when Jason Thompson and Tony Pena singled to open the Pirates' sixth against loser Dave Dravecky, 7-5.

Brian Harper bunted the runners ahead and Marvell Wynne beat out an infield single, scoring Thompson. Rhoden then drilled a single into right field, snapping the tie.

Cardinals 10, Dodgers 5

ST. LOUIS — David Green and George Hendrick combined each homered and combined for five hits and five RBI to lead the St. Louis Cardinals to a 10-5 victory over the Los Angeles Dodgers.

The Cardinals jumped on Fernando Valenzuela, 8-11, for three runs in the first inning and erupted for five runs off three Dodger pitchers in the seventh.

St. Louis right-hander Kurt Kepshire, 2-1, allowed six hits and two earned runs in 6⅓ innings, walking none. Three relievers combined to finish the game.

In the first, Tito Landrum led off with a single, was sacrificed to second and stole third. Lonnie Smith walked and when he broke for second, Dodgers shortstop Bill Russell took the throw and threw wildly to home, allowing Landrum to score and Smith to go to third.

Hendrick slashed an RBI single to left and took third when left-fielder R.J. Reynolds threw the ball into the Cardinals dugout. Darrell Porter lofted a sacrifice fly for the third run.

The Dodgers made it 3-2 in the second with the help of two wild pitches and two balks by Kepshire. Ken Landreaux opened with a single, went to third on the two wild pitches and scored on Mike Scioscia's ground out. German Rivera singled and went to third on Kepshire's two balks before scoring on a single by Valenzuela.

Hendrick belted his seventh homer of the year to give the Cards a 4-2 lead in the third. Green rapped his fifth homer in the sixth to give the Cards 5-2 advantage.

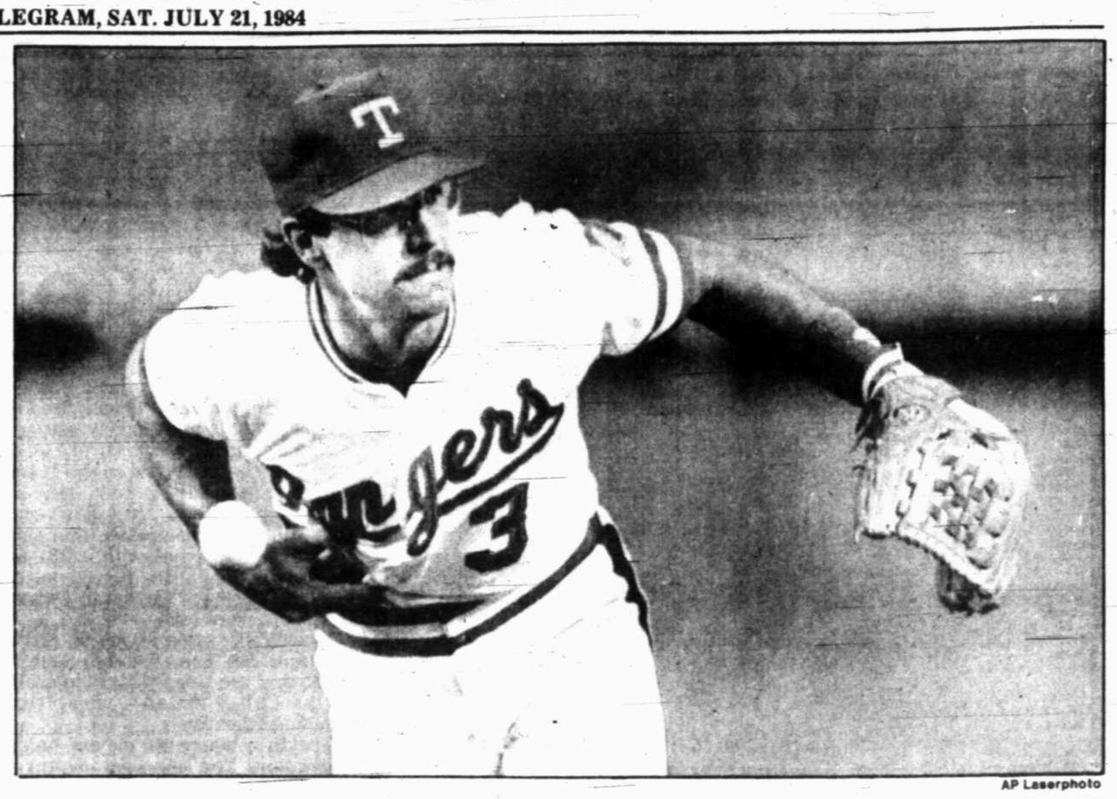

Mets 3, Reds 2

CINCINNATI — Wally Backman slapped his third double of the game and rode home on Keith Hernandez's sacrifice fly in the top of the 11th inning to send the New York Mets to a 3-2 victory over the Cincinnati Reds.

Backman doubled to lead off the 11th against Brad Lesley, 0-1, the fifth Cincinnati pitcher, and advanced to third on Mookie Wilson's sacrifice bunt.

Hernandez hit the first pitch from reliever Ted Power deep to centerfield to bring Backman home and make a winner of reliever Jesse Orosco, 8-2, who shut the Reds out over the last two innings.

The victory enabled the Mets, who are 6-0 in extra innings this year, to open a 1 1-2 game lead over the Chicago Cubs in the National League East.

Schiraldi tames Midland Cubs

From Staff Reports

JACKSON, Miss. — The Midland Cubs faced the Texas League's best pitcher here Friday night and, like 13 teams before them, the Cubs came away on the short end of the score.

With his 1-0 victory over Midland, Jackson pitcher Calvin Schiraldi — the Most Valuable Player in the 1983 College World Series for the champion Texas Longhorns — hasn't allowed a run in 22 consecutive innings. His 13 victories — against three losses — is tops in the Texas League.

In going the distance for the shutout, Schiraldi pitched a two-hitter while walking four and striking out 10, the most Ks he's thrown in a game this year. Still, with that kind of performance, he had to hold his breath until the bottom of the ninth before gaining the victory.

Through the first seven innings, Schiraldi and Cub pitcher Larry Hrynko were battling in a shutout duel. Hyrnko was pulled in the top of the eighth in favor of pinch hitter Antonio Cordova after allowing only two hits and one walk. No Jackson base runner reached second base off Hyrnko.

Scott Johnson, who took the loss and fell to 1-1 on the year, kept the shutout pace going in the eighth before getting into trouble in the ninth.

Dave Cochrane, pinch hitting for Schiraldi in the bottom of the ninth, led off with a single to left field. He went to third when Jeff Jones fielded Lenny Dykstra's sacrifice bunt and threw wide to Gary Varsho covering first base to put runners on the corners.

Mark Carreon was given first with an intentional walk to load the bases, bringing Billy Beane to the plate with none out. Beane looked at a 3-2 pitch, heard the umpire call ball four and went to first, walking in Cochrane for the winning run.

Schiraldi lost his no-hitter in the fifth inning when Danny Norman connected for a double to left field. Hyrnko lost his no-hit bid in the fourth on Beane's single.

With the victory, the Mets tie the five-game series at two games each. Tonight the two teams will square off for the final game with Midland throwing Joe Housey, 4-4, and Jackson countering with DeWayne Vaughn, 3-1.

The Cubs will be back in Midland on Monday night to start a 10-game homestand against Shreveport and Jackson. The Cubs will host each team for five games.

A.J. Foyt crashes Michigan 500 party

BROOKLYN, Mich. (AP) — A.J. Foyt, the well-known curmudgeon of Indy-car racing, stole the spotlight from the second-day qualifiers Friday when he decided to take a promoter's option to run in Sunday's Michigan 500.

According to the 49-year-old Foyt, the decision was based on what he feels is his ability to be competitive in the 500-mile race at Michigan International Speedway.

"I think we got a shot," he said. "I wouldn't be racing if I didn't think we did."

Foyt, entering only his third Indy-car race of the season, actually qualified in the opening session of time trials Thursday at a respectable 200.535 mph. But his March was disqualified when the rear wing was found to be set back one-half inch too far from the rear axle on one side.

"Rules are rules," Foyt said. "We all have to live by them. But that don't mean I have to be happy about it."

Foyt, winner of 67 Indy-car races — 29 more than his closest pursuer, Mario Andretti — has not won since the 1981 Pocono 500 and only has that one victory since 1979.

He has limited his racing in recent years to Indianapolis — where he remains the only four-time winner — a handful of other Indy-car events, a few NASCAR Grand National stock car races and an occasional IMSA sports car endurance event.

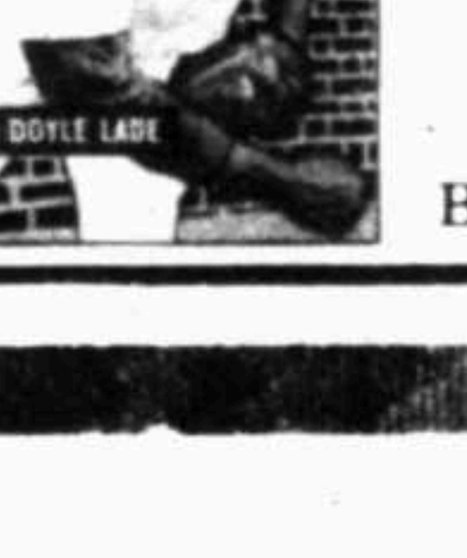

Foyt, who was out of action for several months last year with a back problem, finished a solid sixth at Indianapolis, but was never in contention. After the race, Foyt expressed uncertainty over whether he would return next year for a 27th consecutive Indy start.

The brawny Foyt, who has slimmed down since the start of the year, entered the race in July at the New Jersey Meadowlands, but didn't start.

His transporter, with his race cars aboard, was late arriving at the track. Foyt did get onto the circuit in practice on the second day, but was the slowest driver in the session.

He said he just couldn't get the car set up right and withdrew.

Detroit express derails Rangers

Associated Press

DETROIT — Barbaro Garbey and Chet Lemon homered and Dave Rozema ran his home winning streak to 15 games as the Detroit Tigers posted their seventh victory in eight games, a 3-1 decision over the Texas Rangers.

Rozema, who has not lost a decision at Tiger Stadium since 1981, allowed six hits, struck out four and did not walk a batter to improve his record to 7-1. Willie Hernandez came on to pitch the ninth inning for Detroit and earned his 18th save.

With the game scoreless, Howard Johnson started the Detroit third with a single, moved to second on Lou Whitaker's sacrifice bunt and took third on a groundout. Garbey followed with his fourth home run of the season off Texas starter Frank Tanana, 9-9, to give the Tigers a 2-0 lead.

After Texas cut the lead to 2-1 in the fourth on Buddy Bell's double and a single by George Wright, Lemon slammed his 13th homer leading off the Tiger fourth. Lemon also singled twice.

Texas has lost seven of its last eight games.

Indians 6, White Sox 3

CLEVELAND — Rookie Roy Smith and Ernie Camacho combined on a seven-hitter and Julio Franco drove in three runs — including two during a decisive four-run sixth inning — as the Cleveland Indians defeated the Chicago White Sox 6-3.

Smith, 3-2, struck out four and walked two as the Indians won for the seventh time in their last 10 times. Camacho came on with one out in the ninth inning to finish for Cleveland.

With the game tied 2-2 in the sixth inning, Cleveland's George Vukovich drew a one-out walk from losing pitcher Richard Dotson, 11-6. Brook Jacoby lined a two-out single, sending Vukovich to third, before Tony Bernazard drove home Vukovich with the tie-breaking run on a ground single.

Brett Butler singled home Jacoby and took second when Bernazard beat right fielder Harold Baines' throw to third. Franco then lined a two-run single up the middle, knocking out Dotson and giving Cleveland a 6-2 lead.

Chicago opened the scoring in the first inning when Rudy Law led off with a single, stole second and came out on Baines' one-out line drive double.

The Indians took a 2-1 lead in the third. Singles by Jacoby and Bernazard, and a bunt single by Butler loaded the bases with none out. Franco hit a sacrifice fly for one run and Mike Hargrove's infield single drove in the second run.

Smith sailed along with a three-hitter until the Chicago sixth. With two out he struck out Baines on a breaking ball in the dirt, but the ball got passed catcher Jerry Willard for a wild pitch and Baines reached first. Baines took third on Greg Luzinski's single, and scored, tying the game 2-2, on Greg Walker's single.

The White Sox scored a run in the ninth on Roy Smalley's RBI single. It was Smalley's first hit for Chicago since he was acquired from the New York Yankees earlier in the week.

Yankees 4, Twins 3

NEW YORK — Willie Randolph drilled a one-out single into the left-center field gap to score Ken Griffey and cap a two-run ninth inning as the New York Yankees beat the Minnesota Twins 4-3.

Trailing 3-2 entering the ninth, Mike Pagliarulo walked with one out off Minnesota reliever Ron Davis, 4-7. Pinch-hitter Griffey dropped a bloop single to left to advance Pagliarulo to second and Omar Moreno singled to right to score Pagliarulo. Randolph followed with his game-winning single.

Jay Howell, 4-4, the third Yankee pitcher, picked up the win, pitching the final two innings.

Mickey Hatcher scored from third base on a wild pitch by Howell in the eighth inning to give the Minnesota Twins a 3-2 lead.

Hatcher opened the eighth with a double and advanced to third on Kent Hrbek's single. After Howell, the third Yankee pitcher, struck out Tim Teufel, he uncorked the wild pitch with Tom Brunansky at the plate and Hatcher scored. Howell had allowed only one earned in his last nine appearances covering 14 innings.

Minnesota starter, Ken Schrom, 3-4, scattered seven hits, walked three and struck out one over 7⅓ innings.

After the Twins had jumped to a 2-0 lead on fourth-inning home runs by Hrbek, his 13th, and Brunansky, his 15th, off starter Dennis Rasmussen, the Yankees tied the game with runs in the fifth and sixth innings.

In the fifth, following Steve Kemp's walk and Pagliarulo's double, Moreno drove in Kemp one out later with an infield out.

Kemp tied the game in the sixth with a two-out single which scored Don Mattingly from second. Mattingly had singled and moved to second on Dave Winfield's single.

The game featured two unassisted double plays, one by each team, tying a major-league record which has been equaled on many occasions.

Royals 4, Orioles 3

KANSAS CITY, Mo. — Don Slaught tripled in the eighth for his fourth hit and scored when Onix Concepcion hit a sacrifice fly for his third RBI, boosting Kansas City past Baltimore 4-3.

Slaught, who also had two singles and a double, connected off reliever Tippy Martinez, 4-6, leading off the eighth. One out later, Concepcion lifted a fly ball to left field and drove in Slaught for the third time. Concepcion also had two run-scoring singles, scoring Slaught each time.

Bret Saberhagen, 4-8, got the victory with two innings of scoreless relief. Dan Quisenberry picked up his major league-leading 25th save by pitching the ninth.

Rick Dempsey and Dan Ford took advantage of George Brett's second error of the game by stroking two-out RBI singles for a 3-2 Oriole lead in the fifth.

The Royals tied it in the sixth with Slaught's single, a ground out and Concepcion's RBI single.

The Royals were clinging to a 2-1 lead in the fifth when Brett booted John Shelby's grounder to third. Rich Dauer followed with a single to put Shelby on third, then Dempsey and Ford singled off starter Charlie Leibrandt to push across two runs for the Orioles.

Leibrandt walked Dauer and Ford with two out in the second and Dauer scored on Brett's throwing error as the Orioles took a 1-0 lead. The Royals tied it with a run in the second on consecutive singles by Slaught, Pryor and Concepcion.

In the Royals' third, Pat Sheridan singled off starter Baltimore starter Dennis Martinez and scored on Brett's double to put the Royals ahead 2-1.

America's top cycle hope banned for using stimulant for 30 days

DENVER (AP) — The record-holder wasn't allowed in Friday's eighth stage of the Coors International Bicycle Classic.

Alexi Grewal, an Aspen, Colo. cyclist, was given an automatic 30-day suspension Thursday after tests taken after Wednesday's race showed traces of a mild but prohibited stimulant that Grewal thinks was in an "herbal vitamin" a friend gave him.

It was a sad snag in a career considered one of the brightest in U.S. cycling. The dejected 23-year-old, who had spent 12 years training to be an Olympian, said after the test results were announced, "I took one and that's it. No Olympics, no Coors Race, no nothing."

"It's not the officials' fault, it's my fault," Grewal said. "I didn't take anything intentionally. My two tests on the races show it."

Arias, Clerc earn victories

BROOKLINE, Mass. (AP) — Top-seeded Jimmy Arias, rallying from a second-set loss, and third-seeded Jose-Luis Clerc, rebounding from off-court distractions, advanced Friday to the quarterfinals of the $200,000 U.S. Pro Tennis Championships.

Arias defeated 10th-seeded Mark Dickson 6-4, 5-7, 6-2, while Clerc of Argentina crushed 11th-seeded Pablo Arraya of Peru 6-2, 6-2.

The scheduled night matches were second-seeded Andres Gomez of Ecuador against unseeded Mike Westphal of West Germany and fifth-seeded Guillermo Vilas of Argentina against ninth-seeded Libor Pimek of Czechoslovakia.

In Saturday's quarterfinals at the Longwood Cricket Club, Arias will play 16-year-old Aaron Krickstein, his friend and frequent practice partner. The sixth-seeded Krickstein won his third-round match Friday, 6-2, 6-4 over unseeded Hans Gildemeister of Chile.

Seeded players were upset by unseeded players in the day's other two matches.

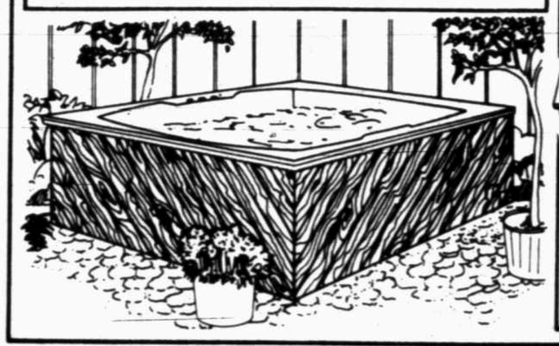

Pavel Slozil of Czechoslovakia ousted No. 8 Mel Purcell, 2-6, 6-4, 7-6 (7-3). John Alexander of Australia, who lost in the 1982 quarterfinals here to Yannick Noah of France, reached that round again with a 6-3, 4-6, 6-2 upset of 12th-seeded Fernando Luna of Spain.

Clerc's victory came one day after he used a news conference to blast his treatment by tournament organizers.

LPGA rookie rolls to 4-stroke lead

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (AP) — Shrugging off a pair of shots into bunkers, rookie Cathy Marino added a 69 to her opening-round 68 Friday to take a 4-stroke lead after two rounds in the Rochester International LPGA golf tournament at Locust Hill Country Club.

"It would be nice to win one to have it all pay off. ... The way I look at it, I don't have anything to lose, so I might as well go for it," said Marino, of Enid, Okla.

Marino's 36-hole total of 137 on the par-72, 6,162-yard course was a personal best and was just two strokes off JoAnne Carner's record of 135 in the $200,000 tournament.

Marino said the key to her round was her recovery from iron shots into bunkers on the par-4 12th and 13th holes. She bogeyed the 12th after burying her ball on a sloping front sand trap, but chipped her bunker shot on the 13th into the cup from 15 feet for a par.

"I just capitalized on some breaks today. I didn't get down when I hit a few bad shots," said Marino, who needed just 22 putts for the round.

Lauri Peterson shot a 67, the day's best round and one stroke off the tournament record, to share a five-way tie for second place at 3-under 141 with Kathryn Young; Rosie Jones, who led last weekend's U.S. Women's Open until the final hole; Dale Eggeling; and Hall of Famer Kathy Whitworth.

Seventy-six players survived the cut of 8-over-par 152.

Peterson said she left her driver in the bag nearly the whole round because it had sent her tee shots to the right all day Thursday. Her 3-wood off the tee goes about 225 yards, about 15 yards less than her driver.

Eagle aids veteran Stockton's torrid 66

COAL VALLEY, Ill. (AP) — Veteran Dave Stockton fired a 66 Friday, including an eagle-2 on the second hole, and took a one-stroke lead over Vance Heafner after two rounds of the $200,000 Quad Cities Open golf tournament.

Stockton's 130 total was 10 below par and the lowest 36-hole total on the Professional Golfers' Association Tour this year.

The eagle came on the 341-yard, par-4 second hole, Stockton's 11th hole of the day. After a drive of about 260 yards, Stockton hit an 80-yard wedge shot that "landed about 10 feet short of the hole and didn't stop rolling."

Stockton, 42, hasn't finished in the top 25 in any tournament in the last 1½ years and said he "wasn't used to playing this good."

Stockton has won over $1.1 million since joining the PGA Tour in 1964, including two PGA championships, but hasn't won since 1976.

There were 70 players who shot 141 or better and survived Friday's cut to advance to the final two rounds in pursuit of the $36,000 first prize over the 6,514-yard, par-70 Oakwood Country Club course.

Heafner, who had shared the lead with Stockton after the first round, shot a 67 Friday for sole possession of second place.

Americans' income jumps 0.8 percent

WASHINGTON (AP) — Americans' personal income jumped 0.8 percent in June, twice the increase of the previous month, the government said Friday, drawing even more cheers from private analysts about the economy's solid performance.

Consumption expenditures grew a mere 0.2 percent last month, much lower than had been expected and sharply below the 1.1 percent gain of May.

The national savings rate bounced up to 6.1 percent, from 5.6 percent in May.

The Commerce Department report was seen by analysts as just another sign the economy was moderating from its rapid growth pace in the first quarter but still moving along at a healthy clip.

"Who could ask for anything more?" said private economist Allen Sinai after hearing the latest report, which followed a string of figures indicating strong growth and low inflation.

"For the time being, all systems are go," said Robert Ortner, chief economist at the Commerce Department.

"All in all, it suggests consumers have plenty of reasons to be pretty satisfied with the way things are going," said Edward Yardeni, chief economist at Prudential-Bache Securities Inc. in New York.

With the latest report, analysts were penciling in higher growth for the April-June period than the 5.7 percent annual rate estimated earlier by the department.

A revision of that number is due out on Monday, and economists were predicting an increase to at least 6 percent, if not above the 7 percent mark, possibly, said Yardeni, even to 8 percent.

A big change in that figure would likely spark fears that the economy was growing too fast, adding pressures on interest and inflation rates. A moderate expansion eases those pressures and holds promise for a longer recovery, analysts say.

The economy expanded at a surprisingly strong 9.7 percent annual rate in the January-March period, as measured by the inflation-adjusted gross national product.

"The only thing wrong with strong growth is it scares the financial markets," said Citibank economist Alan Murray.

But analysts could find little to be frightened about in Friday's report.

Archaeologists unearth city in Cyprus buried by quake

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP) — Archaeologists have discovered bones and relics of a city in Cyprus buried under an earthquake more than 1,600 years ago, and say the remains are so well preserved "it's like strapping yourself in a time machine."

H. David Soren, a University of Arizona archaeologist who headed the five-week expedition in Cyprus, said he thinks the find is potentially comparable to the discovery of the lost city of Pompeii.

The dig by his 23-member team from four nations uncovered the relics of part of the ancient city of Curium, which was one of the most important cities in ancient Cyprus.

"We have one year in which we will know everything about their everyday life at one moment in time," Soren said Thursday, a day after his return to the United States. The earthquake has been dated to between 365 A.D. and early in 367 A.D., he said.

"I don't want to claim that this thing is the moon and stars, even though it looks this way," he said.

Findings include the bones of a complete horse with iron and bronze rings for a bit on each side of its face, chained to an 800-pound feeding trough that had been slammed into a house by the quake's force, Soren said.

Above the horse, he said, was the skeleton of a 9- to 10-year-old girl trapped in the rubble, with a bone hairpin and with her hands to the sides of her face. The skeleton of a rat lay on the child.

The child's skeleton is to be reconstructed and plaster casts of it will be made at the University of Arizona, he said.

The remains, found in a 6-meter-long section about 6½ to 8 feet below the surface, were so well-preserved, "It's like strapping yourself into a time machine," he said.

"We have only excavated a limited area, but if it holds up, it would be something comparable to a Pompeii," the Italian city that was destroyed by volcano in 79 A.D., he said.

"Everything that was in their houses is there. Everything was blown apart. It must have been a tremendous disaster." He said the earthquake is considered "one of the largest earthquakes in antiquity."

Soren, a guest curator at the American Museum of Natural History in New York City, said Curium had had a population "certainly in the tens of thousands" and pilgrims visited it to worship the Greek god Apollo.

POSITIVE THINKING

Twelve principles work magic

By NORMAN VINCENT PEALE

It is possible to get on top of worry, depression and other negative emotions. One way that has proved succesful for many is the "twelve magic principles" — magic because of their amazing results.

These twelve dynamic principles were first compiled by my longtime associate, psychiatrist Dr. Smiley Blanton. I have passed these along to many worried people who learned to pass through defeat on to victorious living through their application. They can produce results for anyone who really tries them.

It is possible to do little more than suggest these principles in the limited space of this column, but even a fragmentry statement will give you the general idea.

1. Think health, talk health, act health and you will go a long way toward being healthy — provided, of course, you observe the common laws of body control.

2. Be an actor, acting love instead of hate. What you act tends to become fact.

3. Shift your attention deliberately from the thing you are worrying about. The mind can only occupy itself with the object of its attention. So give attention to positive attitudes.

The second trilogy of principles continues.

4. Cultivate opposites. If you are fearful cultivate courage. If you are weak cultivate strength. If gloomy cultivate joy. Act "as if" and you tend to become that — the opposite of what you are.

5. Rationalize your worries, hates, jealousies. Put them on the dissecting table; ruthlessly take them apart. Usually you'll find there is very little substance to them.

6. Get a sense of the perspective of time and distance. How little worries seem, how unimportant resentments, in the years after.

The next three principles are also vital ones.

7. Cultivate optimism. Always look on the bright side. Keep the mouth lines up. Smile and be happy. William James claimed that we are happy because we smile rather than we smile because we are happy. In other words, the smile comes first. Well, maybe so, but it's still a fact that happiness puts a smile on the lips. Cultivate optimism and you are likely to develop a happy state of life.

8. Don't talk trouble. It only activates more of it. Talk life up, not down. Talking always tends to create for it activities the immense power of thought. Don't practice negative autosuggestion by the use of destructive words. Remember Emerson's warning that a word is alive. It can be repeated use either create or destroy.

And the final three principles:

9. Develop Exo-centric versus Egocentric interests. Forget yourself, lose yourself in the big exciting world. One of the great of all laws is that he who forgets himself really finds himself. When you get outside your little constrictive self-word you grow bigger in the larger world.

10. Superimpose the positive on the negative. When a negative thought comes along, practice cancelling it with a positive thought and affirmation. Do this enough and you wil l become positive in your attitudes.

11. Practice strong affirmations like: "Life is good." "I believe." "People are wonderful." "God loves me." Such affirmations lift you into the area of power. Affirmations tend to reproduce in kind.

12. Assert and dwell on your divine origin. Say to yourself every day, especially when things get dark and trouble stares you in the face, "I am a chlid of God."

Are these twelve life principles practical or theoretical? Well a letter received from a 41-year-old engineer says: "When you suggested those principles in response to the troubles I was having, frankly, I couldn't help regarding them as well-meaning but impractical advice. But I simply had to find relief.

"It wasn't easy for I was a very negative person, but the more I worked at this twelve-point formula the more I found myself getting on top of things. I cannot begin to tell you how wonderfully different life is now.

DEAR ABBY

Woman seeks recourse for plastic surgery

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: Twelve years ago, I had silicone implants placed in my breasts, and the plastic surgeon told me it would be a permanent thing. Well, three years ago one side collapsed, and now I am flat-chested on one side! The doctor who performed the surgery said she was sorry, but to redo the job would mean another operation at my expense. I can't afford it now.

Does a person have any legal rights in a case like this? It's too embarrassing to ask a lawyer. — DON'T USE MY NAME

DEAR DON'T: Go back to the plastic surgeon and tell her that you are sorrier than she is, but if she doesn't redo the job at no additional expense, having said it would be a permanent thing, you will take it up with the complaint or peer review department of the medical association of which she is a member — or the board of medical quality assurance of the state that licensed her to practice. Look in your telephone book for the numbers.

DEAR ABBY: My ex-husband is getting married again, and since I am on good terms with him and the woman he is marrying, I would like to send them a wedding present.

My "ex" is 42, and she is a few years younger. Do you think it would be appropriate for me to send a wedding gift? Or would it be better if I didn't? I can't simply ignore the occasion because my children, who are also his children, are going to be in the wedding party.

I don't want to play the role of the embittered wife because I really don't feel that way. I am glad they found each other, and wish them every happiness. — EX-WIFE

DEAR EX: Every ex-husband should have such an extraordinary ex-wife. Your lack of bitterness is all too rare, and your generosity of spirit is refreshing. Feeling as you do, send them a wedding gift.

DEAR ABBY: I want to pay tribute to my husband of over 25 years. He is a man who thinks enough of himself to keep physically fit, and thinks enough of me to support me in all my emotional and physical needs. He is man enough not to feel that his masculinity is threatened if he does "woman's work."

He is a man who has a responsible, full-time position, yet takes the time to help me run a small business.

He takes me out to dinner, walks with me, talks with me and is my greatest supporter.

He is a man who took fatherhood seriously. He instilled good moral values in our children and let them know that they were responsible for their own actions.

He is a man who always had time for his mother when she was alive.

He is a real man! He is my man. And I grow more thankful for him every day. — LUCKY

DEAR LUCKY: What a pity you didn't sign your name. On second thought, it's probably just as well; a man with all the above-mentioned virtues is probably modest, too.

We have found by sharing our experience, strength and hope and by following the 12 suggested steps of AA we can live our lives in a more meaningful manner and can change our attitudes, old patterns and habits to find serenity, even happiness. Clocksmith believes city 'underclocked'

HOUSTON (AP) — When it comes down to telling the time, the conflict between progress and tradition could be seen as a battle between the forces of the Super Matrix Message Center electronic clock and the physics of the humble pendulum.

And in a city such as Houston, where the past is not as venerated as the future, the battle could be pretty one-sided in favor of the digital age — totally one-sided if it was not for the efforts of one of a dying breed.

Percy Turk, master clocksmith and antique collector, believes Houston is underclocked. And he isn't talking about the plethora of freeway billboard clocks that flash frequently incorrect time and temperature at life in the fast lane.

He is talking about the traditional face-and-hands, wind-it-up-to-tell-the-time mechanical clock. To him the only problem with this variety of clock is that in Houston there aren't enough of them.

"We're the Wild West over here," the 50-year plus Houston resident says somewhat ruefully in an effort to explain the phenomenon. It's a cultural thing, he says, with the northeastern section of the country having more clocks because they are a "little bit more cultural than we are over here."

In fact, Turk, the son of an immigrant Polish clocksmith, can count on one hand the number of old-type clocks there are in this city.

When he came to Houston in 1930, the only clock he can remember was the four-faced street clock outside the J.J. Sweeney jewelry store on the corner of Main and Capitol. There wasn't anything extraordinary about the timepiece, Turk says, except that it was "unique in Houston."

That clock, known now as the Sweeney Clock, was donated to the city and, now electrified and still working, stands at the corner of Bagby and Capitol.

There was another clock, says Turk, on the old city hall building which used to stand on what is now Market Square. When fire destroyed that building and it was demolished, a salvage dealer snapped up the grand old clock.

Several years alter, Turk says, when the new City Hall was completed and the builders were looking for a clock, they tried to get the old one back from the salvage dealer. "He told them to go to hell," Turk chuckles. The result is that while City Hall does have a large, traditional-but-electric clock on its tower, it's not the old one city officials wanted.

There were other clocks on other buildings many years ago, Turk says, but they have long since been removed.

It was the dearth of clocks in Houston that compelled master clocksmith Turk to inquire about buying an antique, 18-foot tall, four-faced street clock he saw advertised in a collectors' magazine.

When he bought the clock for an undisclosed sum from a Florida man, Turk says, he had no idea where he would put it. But on a trip downtown, he saw the new Republic Bank building under construction and was struck by the traditional and rather classical lines of the skyscraper.

Turk called the building developers and after counsulting with architect Phillip Johnson, the clock was placed in the center of the foyer of the newly completed building.

"I did not know what I was going to do with the damned thing," Turk says, "but I was trying to build up our cultural image. That's why I brought this clock here."

The clock he brought to Houston is an original timepiece manufactured in about 1910 by the Seth Thomas Clock Co. in Thomaston, Conn., for the Youmans Jewelry Co. in Waycross, Ga.

That company was billed $540 for the clock and freight and the Seth Thomas company recorded a profit on the deal of $81.

"It is really a museum piece, that clock," Turk says, "and I recognized it."

Can his type of clock survive in the electronic age? Turk would rather not comment directly on that, but says in a round about way that as a craftsman he would "rather rely on a hand-made marine chronometer made 90 to 100 years ago" than on a modern electronic timepiece.

Why bother, however, when for a mere $7,000 or so a month you can disregard the pendulum and rent your very own Super Matrix Message Center which in addition to telling the time, will keep you up to date on the latest Dow Jones averages, the temperature, the best bargains in grand pianos and where they are serving the cheapest oysters in town?

This type of modern timepiece is manufactured in Houston by the Federal Sign Co. and, according to district manager Stewart Edinger, the company has about 100 such clocks erected at various locations.

Years ago, a Russian cosmonaut bragged about not seeing God in outer space. Peter Stower, a famous astronomer, commented: "You don't find God by looking into either solar or stellar space even though you do see evidence of his handiwork there. You find God only through faith in his flesh and blood revelation-Jesus Christ."

That's the only way to find God.

BELLS

Have you ever thought about the importance of bells in your life? From kindergarten on, most of our movements are dictated by a series of bells—the chime of the clock, the peal of the school bell, the sharp ring of the telephone. We are conditioned to respond to these bells almost without thinking.

The most beautiful bells in our life are those that we hear on the Sabbath. We also hear them without thinking, but they are bringing the most important message of all—that God loves you. This week respond to them with your own love and join the other worshippers at your church or synagogue.

Center to be dedicated

Crestview Baptist Church, Midkiff Street at Thomas Drive, will dedicate its new Educational-Activities Center at 7 p.m. Sunday. An open house will be held from 5:30 to 7 p.m.

The new center was built at a cost of $1,250,000 by the Speed Fab-Crete Corp., Fort Worth. Bill Bynum served as chairman of the Building Committee for Crestview.

The building is 35,000-square-feet of space equipped for 600 adults in Sunday School and many activities including racquetball, skating, crafts and table games. The new gymnasium, which serves as the Fellowship Hall, has a seating capacity of 800.

The public is invited to attend the open house and dedication. A nursery will be provided for birth to 3 years old.

Crestview's new Educational-Activities Center will be dedicated at 7 p.m. Sunday.

Pastor will be installed

The Rev. Jonathan H. Holmer will deliver is first sermon as the new pastor of Hope Lutheran Church, corner of A Street and Scharbaer Drive, Sunday. He will be officially installed as the minister at Hope by Lutheran Bishop Philip Wahlberg July 29.

The ministry at Hope Luthern makes the first time Holmer has served as the head minister of a church. He has served as associate pastor for the last four years at Good Shepherd Lutheran Church, Cincinnati, Ohio.

Both Holmer and his wife Sue grew up in church families.

"I resisted going into the ministry for a while because I didn't want to do it just because my father (the Rev. Paul Holmer) and grandfather had done it before me," Holmer said. "But, after a while, I realized the ministry was something I wanted, not because my father and grandfather had done it, but because it was something I should do."

Holmer's grandfather was a missionary to India. His father was born there and lived there for some time. Holmer spent several years in India as a child. His wife's parents were also missionaries in India.

When the two married, they decided to go to India to attend seminary school.

"Christians make up only about one percent of the population of India. It was interesting to be both a radical and religious minority," Holmer said of the experience.

Holmer sees tremendous possibilities for numerical and spiritual growth at Hope Lutheran.

"In some places, there is a lot of emphasis on church 'success.' I prefer the term 'effectiveness.'"

He wants to spend his time, Holmer said, meeting the congregation and ministering to their spiritual needs. He feels his best talents are "people-oriented" skills.

At Good Shepherd, he worked with youth and social ministries. He also had experience in marriage counseling.

Kavanaugh's poetry stands as 'sermon'

By GREGORY N. JOSEPH
Copley News Service

He is not tall but not short, not heavy but not thin, not old but not young. His eyes speak volumes more than his voice, which is a whisper. Irish melancholy bleeds through his gentle, noiseless laugh like a wound that refuses to heal. Vulnerability is his most conspicuous trait, palpable if it were not so distant.

James Kavanaugh hardly seems the sort who could — or would — do anything to shake the foundations of the Catholic Church, his church, the apparently irrefutable faith his large Irish-American family had grown to love and worship almost as an entity unto itself.

But that is precisely ~~what he~~ did — in such seismic proportions, in fact, that many believe it was a major factor in leading to an exodus of priests and nuns from the church, an aftershock that continues to this day.

KAVANAUGH'S ODYSSEY began in 1966 while he was in San Diego on a year's leave from the priesthood. A native of Michigan, he had been doing parish work in Lansing and Flint.

It was upon his arrival in San Diego that he wrote "A Modern Priest Looks at His Outdated Church," a blazingly controversial book that angrily called for church reforms on such issues as birth control, divorce, premarital sex, the concept of hell and celibacy for priests.

It was the first time a priest had so openly challenged the authority of the church, and the work became a best seller. Kavanaugh became a cause celebre, a status that has not yet subsided.

He departed the priesthood not long after the book's publication in 1967, and in the years since has carved out a career as a respected poet, producing such works as "There Are Men Too Gentle to Live among Wolves" (1970), "Will You Be My Friend" (1971), "Faces in the City" (1973) and "Walk Easy on the Earth" (1979).

His most recent collection of poetry is "Laughing Down Lonely Canyons" (Harper & Row: 118 pages; $10.95).

SUCCESSFUL POET though he may be, Kavanaugh will never be able to dispel his image as the ex-priest. Curiously, ~~it~~ was never his intention to leave the priesthood and he is still bewildered that he did.

"I was naive enough to think that 'Modern Priest' would turn things around in the church and that I could still stay in the priesthood," he mused over a steaming cup of aromatic tea.

"I had no idea that the book would have the impact it did. Simon & Schuster (the publishers) paid me a small advance, and only my editor was excited.

"When I wrote it, I was on a year's leave and working as a marriage and family counselor in San Diego, at the Human Resources Institute, which my brother Philip, a psychiatrist, founded.

"I have six brothers, you know — two besides Phil were doctors, another a dentist, another a businessman — and another one, like me, a priest. That was Bob — he died three years ago. I remember the night in Washington, D.C., we were having dinner and we broke it to each other we were leaving the priesthood. Neither of us knew that the other was going to do it.

"Well, I wrote the book merely as a passionate plea for change. That's all it was meant to be. And things were quiet at first. Then Look magazine bought the serial rights in March 1967 and the waves of media began calling. Johnny Carson called. Walter Cronkite called. I was deluged. It was crazy."

Kavanaugh, 50, now resides in Santa Barbara, Calif., with his second wife, Rene Reid, a former nun who runs a TV-radio production company. She also has been married before, and they have a 10-year-old child by her previous marriage.

POETRY HAS BECOME his sermon on life, his replacement for the pulpit, his new way to help save humankind from itself.

"My writing," he said, "is done to help people deal with life, how to find good and beautiful amid the competition, greed, hostility in the world. My poetry is one small attempt to help build a support system against all that."

The sentiment is not unlike that expressed in his poem "Priest" from "Laughing Down Lonely Canyons":

"A priest, whose altar is the universe/Whose liturgy extends from vagrants to the stars/Whose theology begins with God and ends with human hearts/Whose sacraments are wisdom and laughter and unending exploration. ..."

When Kavanaugh is not writing poetry, frequenting TV and radio talk shows or lecturing at universities and civic functions, he directs the James Kavanaugh Institute in Santa Barbara, which offers weekend workshops for individuals or couples experiencing what he calls "educational, spiritual or educational crisis."

HAVING THE INSTITUTE also, he admits, allows him to escape the strictures of university life, which he found as confining as the priesthood. He holds the equivalent of three doctorates.

"I created my own institute because when I teach at a university, you have to stick to the script," he said. "Now I don't."

Although Kavanaugh is now fully accepted in the public consciousness as a "former priest" — a term he indirectly helped create — sometimes his status as a layman chafes. The walk down his own lonely canyon can be difficult.

"When you're a priest, you're a sort of guru, set apart," he said. "Even me, now, if I see a man with a Roman collar on, I react a certain way.

"I know I did three TV sessions with Dick Cavett a few years ago, and a priest and a professor were on with me. Cavett asked me the $64,000 question — all about my sex life — but do you think he asked the priest? Damned right he didn't.

"But I should expect that, I suppose."

RELIGION

religion in brief

Encampment to begin

MARFA/ALPINE — With its "Sunday-go-to-meeting" clothes showing the effects of the unusually heavy rains in recent weeks, Paisano Baptist Encampment will host its 64th consecutive session Monday through July 29. Many of the best loved leaders of past years will be preaching, singing and teaching the Bible.

Born out of a need for spiritual training by cowboys and their families, the historic encampment has grown into a highlight of the summer for some 2,000 West Texans who will attend the week-long series of religious services.

The camp was started in 1916 by a cowboy pioneer missionary L.R. Millican and a group of his friends.

Nestled on 1,000 acres of land midway between Marfa and Alpine, the encampment is over a mile high in altitude. Towering oak trees dot the grounds of the camp, named for Paisano Peak.

Cruse Family to perform

ANDREWS — The Cruse Family will perform at 9 p.m. Sunday at Marlowe's, 610 N. Main St., Andrews.

The Cruse Family has appeared in television programs on, among others, Praise the Lord Network, The Grand Ole Opry, The 700 Club and The Trinity Broadcasting Network.

Film to be presented

"The Living Word," a new film produced by World Wide Pictures, will be presented by Greenwood Baptist Church at 7 p.m. Sunday.

Featuring narration by Billy Graham and Cliff Barrows, the film weaves together Scripture passages, great works of religious art, music and some of the "most stunning color footage" filmed in the Holy Land.

World Wide Pictures is the film ministry of the Billy Graham organization. Among the company's other releases are the award-winning "The Hiding Place" and "Joni."

The showing is free and open to the public.

She appraises art for IRS's sake

New York Times News Service

WASHINGTON — Ten years ago, when Karen E. Carolan, an art history specialist, joined the Internal Revenue Service, the government's tax collectors could scarcely be relied upon to distinguish between an Impressionist painting and a Mondrian, a pre-Columbian pot and a Tiffany lamp.

"When I came here, the only appraisal taught was real estate," said Miss Carolan, who since last year has headed the IRS art evaluation group. "They tried to apply real estate appraisal principles to art — and they just don't really work."

But, while some critics say the Feds continue to be severely disadvantaged in dealing with taxpayers who claim deductions for donated works and in valuing art for estate taxes, it appears that increased IRS sophistication and greater attention to the problem have made it harder of late to get away with big-stakes fraud.

In 1983, for example, Miss Carolan's office was instrumental in socking hundreds of taxpayers, after examining their claims, a total of $20.3 million in additional taxes. This compared with $14.8 million the year before and only $3.6 million in 1981.

As a result, the IRS says, the average value of art work contained in an estate, where items are almost always undervalued, was raised 51 percent from the figure on the return. For charitable contributions, which are routinely overvalued by taxpayers, the average deduction was cut 15 percent, according to the IRS tabulation.

Twice a year, typically in late spring and fall, the art advisory panel led by Miss Carolan meets in a headquarters office to decide whether values assigned to art works by taxpayers bear any relation to an admittedly slippery reality. There, in a closed, all-day session, the group, mainly museum officials and dealers, tackles mounds of close-up photographs of works that agents in field offices around the country have said need special scrutiny.

MOSTLY THESE are big-ticket items — the average donated item reviewed last year was worth an asserted $168,000 — not the run-of-the-mill works of local painters and sculptors.

But although every item asserted to be worth $20,000 or more must be reviewed by the national office here, Miss Carolan says there is no guarantee that claims for lesser amounts will not attract IRS attention.

"A lot of people think if it's $15,000, we won't see it," she said. "But that's not true."

Miss Carolan says the panel, recently expanded to 22 members from 12, deals with a lot of lesser African and Oriental works that are increasingly subject to taxpayer misvaluation.

In many other areas, the IRS will issue advisory rulings about the tax consequences of contemplated actions. But not in art, since the items presented to the panel for evaluation have already been selected for audit by agents in the field.

The art panel was created in 1968, a result, Miss Carolan says, of "so much abuse" that cultural institutions and dealers feared Congress would act to eliminate all deductions for donated works. The other late 1960s effort to tighten the net against fraud was a law barring artists from donating their own works; since then they are allowed to deduct only the cost of their materials.

THE PANEL MEMBERS, who are unpaid except for reimbursement of expenses, are subject nonetheless to thorough federal background and tax investigations. The photographs of works they examine are arranged in alphabetical order by artist, and are mixed as to donations and estates, to minimize the chance of knowing whose return is involved.

But while the group has undoubtedly helped raise the level of IRS expertise, and thus the enforcement credibility, some critics say serious gaps still remain.

"Every once in a while, I read that the problem of overvaluation was solved with the creation in 1968 of the Commissioner's art advisory panel," William M. Speiller, a former IRS lawyer who is now a professor at the Rutgers University School of Law, told Congress last August. "Nothing could be further from the truth."

Speiller said that the panel sees "only a minute fraction" of donations, that members have a "built-in" conflict-of-interest, that it recommends changes in valuations only in egregious cases and that it does not review furniture, silver, porcelain, gemstones, costumes, manuscripts, rare books, stamps or coins.

Theater's premiere flamboyant

NEW YORK (AP) — The Alvin Ailey American Dance Theater, in its first season in the Metropolitan Opera, is presenting New York premieres of two unusual works seen first in France. Both end in death.

Monday night, eight dancers did Ulysses Dove's "Night Shade," possibly an African version of "Rite of Spring." Last week, Patrick Dupond starred in Ailey's "Precipice," inspired by the life of rock star Jim Morrison.

We liked the intensely dramatic, even flamboyant "Precipice" better. Dupond, a handsome young man as was Morrison, begins by almost flying around the stage. He wears white pants and an unbuttoned white shirt. His leaps are so prodigious that the wind he creates almost tears off his shirt.

He returns in black leather pants and black shirt for more high flying. Monique Loudieres is "his woman, his desire, his drug." She's exotic, in a red leotard, red cape the size of a parachute, red steamers from her hair. There's an entourage and a flock of fans. For the star, there's too much being applauded and lifted, too much chasing the woman and both getting hold of her and not getting hold.

One man looks like a sinister drug pusher. One doesn't have to know Jim Morrison's story to know that the star is self-destructive and is disoriented before he dies.

Music is by young jazz composers Pat Metheny and Lyle Mays. Ailey choreographed the work for the Paris Opera Ballet in April 1983. Dupond and Miss Loudieres, both exciting dancers, are guests from that company at this engagement, recreating their roles. Ulysses Dove restaged it for the Met.

Dove is a former Ailey dancer. Most recently he has been assistant director of the Paris Opera Ballet's experimental group. He choreographed "Night Shade," to Steve Reich's "Drumming," for that group and it premiered in Lille, France, in 1982.

A tense mood prevails throughout what is presumably an African ritual, with lots of spinning and general speed. Duets inside a circle of globes with candles inside end with the woman on the ground, usually then rolled, pulled or carried toward a big vat at one side of the stage. An ominous feeling develops; one expects the women to be put in the vat and stabbed or boiled.

The eighth person in, a man, arriving through a box at the other side of the stage, turns out to be the sacrifice. The women pick up rocks from the box and stones him. We don't know whether there was a lottery or it was just the last one on the scene. And we don't know why somebody dies.

The vat turns out to hold water. The women cleanse themselves with big splashes.

Bronx breakin', in a 'Wild Style'

Copley News Service

HOLLYWOOD — "Wild Style" goes snap, crackle, pop. This New York street musical is soul cereal. You can get a vitamin lift from it.

"Wild Style" was produced, written and directed by Charlie Ahearn, who previously made a film on martial arts. The South Bronx graffiti artist Fred Breathwaite introduced Ahearn to the bubbling stew of break-dancing, rap singing and spray-painted graffiti murals (on walls and subway trains) which has become the latest expression of an urban "folk" culture.

Breathwaite contributed script ideas and also acts a part in the movie, which stars another graffitist, Lee George Quinones, as the renegade graffiti master Zoro. In the story (which is barely a story), Zoro stops skulking through train yards at night and "comes out" as more than an inspired narcissist when he paints a mural backdrop for an outdoor concert hall. Predictably, there's a climaxing show where the best rappers and breakers strut their stuff.

Even more enthusiastic and "authentic" than the fine recent musical "Beat Street" (which was a bit more rounded as a drama), "Wild Style" has a rapping rhythm. Ahearn's shots and cuts have the quick, nervy propulsion that the rap singers put into their speeding rhymes, that the graffiti artists use in their electric swoops of paint, and that the breakers exhibit in their body-bopping explosions of energy.

The film doesn't prettify the Bronx; this isn't "North Side Story." It says something that the new street term for intense, first-rate work is "death."

But poverty and crime can't keep a lid on the positive, pulsing hunger of the creative street people. Though Quinones and some other players are Latino, the film has the surging upswing of black church music and sermonizing. "We're the best, we passed the test" goes one rap, and another says, "We're the future/It's up to us/To make our home/great and A-plus." The movie revels in good vibes.

"Wild Style" only goes flat when Zoro is taken downtown to an art world party, where moneyed whites are starting to find graffiti chic. Briefly, we're back into the honkey-poking cliches of the '70s black action films. The white men seem effete, either slippery or dried-up. And the rich, cultured-but-trampy white hostess makes a play for Zoro's exotic Bronx body (an overcompliment, since he's no Jim Brown.)

THE BETTER HALF

"Be careful jogging—and try not to start any earthquakes!"

Your horoscope

By JEANE DIXON

Saturday, July 21, 1984

YOUR BIRTHDAY TODAY: Author-adventurer Ernest Hemingway was born on this date. Also sharing your birthday: rock music's Cat Stevens, actor-comedian Robin Williams, golf's Gene Littler, producer-director Norman Jewison, comedian Don Knotts and singer-actress Kaye Stevens. Risky ventures should be put aside. Success comes when you show greater dedication to your work. A new business deal will put you on sounder financial footing. Welcome suggestions from people with a lot of experience. A family member comes to the rescue in a crisis. Give credit where it is due. Your friendship with a prominent person introduces you to a whole new social circle.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): You are about to come into your own. Lean back and relax with your friends and family this weekend. A chance meeting has some very exciting aspects. Follow up on a financial lead.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): A financial windfall gives you the opportunity to do what you really want. Do not waste time. There is no reason to feel guilty about ending an unfulfilling relationship.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Family and domestic affairs dominate your weekend. Romantic partner's attitude boosts your spirits. Answer overdue letters and return all phone calls. Those who decide to marry find good fortune.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Try not to analyze everything your loved ones do. Your independent nature could be getting in the way of a wonderful relationship. Strike a better balance between work and family. Make contact with your parents.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Do everything you can to avoid confrontations with family members. A child is a source of inspiration. Jot down any innovative ideas for future use. Spend more time alone with mate.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Go ahead with your social plans. Partner will become more enthusiastic later today. A letter contains a special message. You can now win the attention of someone who used to be indifferent.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Consult someone with more financial expertise about a new investment or savings program. A phone call could result in last-minute change in plans. Stay calm and good humored.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Refuse to fret over a minor disappointment. There is always tomorrow. You may have to take on more family duties. Bow to romantic partner's wishes. A surprise gift brings great delight.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): You find you are able to accomplish more once you put all of your cards on the table. Be careful not to judge someone's talents by his or her earnings.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): The experiences you share with another person today will draw you closer together. Try to get more rest and improve your diet. A child is trying to tell you something important. Listen!

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Keep a low profile today and pursue personal pleasures. Parents find it easier to communicate with their offspring. Get up early and take a walk. Outdoor activities hold special appeal.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): A great day to get together with friends or relatives who share your interests. Your positive mood is contagious. Include loved ones of all ages in your social plans.

Lloyds get together for love match

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla. (AP) — The love match between tennis star Chris Evert Lloyd and her husband, British tennis pro John Lloyd, is back in full swing, according to a newspaper report Friday.

The Lloyds, who announced a trial separation Jan. 28, said they have been back together since last month but did not reveal their new doubles arrangement during the Wimbledon tournament because they wanted to be left alone, The Fort Lauderdale News and Sun-Sentinel said Friday.

"It would have been chaotic," Lloyd said Thursday, shortly before the couple left Fort Lauderdale for a vacation. "Chris and I weren't hounded too badly over there because the writers had other interests. We were able to concentrate on our tennis. We just want to be normal."

The couple said their reconciliation is one of the reasons they are playing better tennis, the newspaper reported.

"We decided to do this before Wimbledon," said Ms. Evert, 29, ranked No. 2 in the world. "It really happened at the French Open. We were watching each other's matches, and we already knew something nobody else knew."

The couple was married in Fort Lauderdale's St. Anthony's Catholic church on April 17, 1979.

Lloyd, 29, ranked No. 49 in the world, was beaten in the third round at Wimbledon by American Scott Davis, but teamed with Australian Wendy Turnbull to successfully defend their mixed doubles title.

And although Martina Navratilova beat Ms. Evert 7-6, 6-2, it was recognized as Ms. Evert's best effort against the world's No. 1. player in some time.

NAIROBI, Kenya (AP) — Actress Brooke Shields had a good reason for passing up a sip of fresh cow's blood offered to her by some Masai tribesman — she's a vegetarian.

The 19-year-old actress and Princeton University student has been in this east African nation filming a television show and on Friday traveled to a Masai village in the Rift Valley north of the capital.

She watched the tribesmen partake of the cow's blood, but demurred when "somebody told me I was offered the blood."

"I passed on that one. Anyways, I am a vegetarian and have been for the past six years. It's not a religious thing, just a matter of choice."

A group of Masai, known for their large herds of cattle in Kenya and Tanzania, pierced the neck of a cow with an arrow shot at short range and drew blood into a calabash from which they drank. The animal was not fatally injured. Cattle not only represent wealth to the tribe, but also provide their traditional diet of meat, milk and blood.

EASTON, Mass. (AP) — Eligible bachelor Barry Butkus, who received hundreds of calls from women after he placed signs on his front lawn advertising for a wife, is taking himself out of circulation.

Butkus, a 35-year-old corrections officer, has applied for a marriage license to marry Carole Sue Stines, 34, of Glen Jean, W.Va., according to a clerk at Brockton City Hall.

John Lloyd and Chris Evert Lloyd

Aurora Giovanello, who took the couple's application at the Brockton City Clerk's office, said Thursday, "They seem well suited for one another." The marriage, she told the Brockton Enterprise newspaper, was scheduled July 28.

Butkus, an officer at Norfolk State Prison, achieved brief national attention by planting signs on his front lawn declaring, "I Need a Wife, Please Can You Help" and "Wife Wanted By Unhappy Bachelor."

After photographs and a story about Butkus were distributed by The Associated Press in December, Butkus received inquiries from women across the country.

He said he was looking for "a traditional woman who I can bring home to mother."

Butkus could not be reached Friday for comment on his intentions.

OTTAWA (AP) — Pope John Paul II's Canadian visit is still two months away, but his likeness already is competing on store shelves with images of rock superstar Michael Jackson.

Despite the efforts of church officials to control the immensely popular trade in papal souvenirs, dozens of unauthorized products bearing the pontiff's image are hitting the shelves and display windows of smoke shops, department stores and supermarkets.

One downtown Ottawa smokeshop features a bust of the pope surrounded by the unlikly trio of E.T., Miss Piggy and a bald eagle. Dozens of other retailers are selling merchandise ranging in price from 50 cents to $450 (Canadian). And street vendors selling buttons are discovering that the pope ranks in popularity with the best of heavy-metal rock bands.

The Canadian Conference of Catholic Bishops has approved and licensed certain official souvenirs, which bear the trip's emblem and are sold by several department stores and a special Pope Store.

Conference spokesman Bonnie Brennan said the bishops recognized when they endorsed certain products that unsanctioned items would also hit the market.

"We just wanted to make sure that some products were of half-decent quality and in good taste," she said.

Tickets available for Jacksons' concerts

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (AP) — Thousands of tickets remained unsold for the Jacksons' Sunday and Monday concerts in the Gator Bowl, and a few also were left for the opening performance Saturday night, city officials said Friday.

However, the city and promoters of the "Victory Tour" said they were optimistic that superstar singer Michael Jackson and his brothers — Jermaine, Tito, Marlon and Randy — would play to sellout crowds for all three performances.

"I think all of them will sell out, especially after people see the first performance and realize what kind of a show it is," said Dan Lee, deputy director of the sports complex.

Jacksonville spent about $445,000 to lure the Jacksons here, and figures from Mayor Jake Godbold's office indicate the city stands to recover its investment and collect a $361,000 profit. Besides renting the stadium for a nominal fee, $25,000 per night, the city has agreed to turn over a majority of concession profits to the Jacksons.

As workers put finishing touches on the hit rock group's massive sound stage in Florida, plans for the next two stops on the Jacksons' 13-city tour were still up in the air.

Hair stylists think Ferraro has 'perfect' hairdo

NEW YORK (AP) — Not only do some hair designers think Democratic vice presidental nominee Geraldine Ferraro has a good head on her shoulders, most also seem to like her hairdo.

"I think it suits her perfectly," said Monsieur Marc, who rocketed to fame after becoming first lady Nancy Reagan's favorite coiffeur. "It's not teased, not too short for her face, not too long — beautiful, really."

He said the wedge-like cut, which is like the one worn by Lady Diana and ice skating star Dorothy Hamill, "is a very popular style," although a little dated. "It's not the latest style but it's very becoming on her."

Monsieur Marc said Mrs. Reagan and Ms. Ferraro differ greatly in the type of hairstyle they seem to prefer. Mrs. Reagan's hair has to be set and sprayed while Ms. Ferraro's is more trouble-free. But he said they are alike in that both have "very good, healthy hair."

Stylist Lee Florea of the Richard Stein shop on Madison Avenue agrees. "I think it's stunning, very current and very chic."

Ms. Florea — whose shop caters to celebrities including Christina DeLorean, Robert Redford and Glenn Close — said it is exactly the type of haircut you would expect to see the first women vice presidental candidate sporting. "It's not contrived, not set...it's a modern wash-and-wear look."

The man responsible for "the Ferraro look" is Gus Papadopoulos, co-owner of L&G Hair Design in Bayside, Queens.

He said Ms. Ferraro changed her look about two years ago to accompany her busy lifestyle. "She's a very, very active lady who doesn't have a lot of time to fuss and mess with her hair," he said. So he designed a style which he said is both "sporty and sophisticated."

Papadopoulos said as Ms. Ferraro is thrust into the limelight, copycats are beginning to pop up. "We've already had a couple of women come in and ask for 'the Ferraro look.'"

He said Ms. Ferraro has already asked him to travel to Washington "when" she's elected. Will he?
