

Texas, New Mexico in water battle

EL PASO, Texas (AP) — A federal court ruling that allows El Paso to import up to 100 billion gallons of groundwater annually from New Mexico for the next 100 years has met bitter interstate opposition.

New Mexico's Mesilla Valley farmers, whose livelihood depends on water for their cotton, pecan and chili pepper crops, decried U.S. District Judge Howard Bratton's decision that nullified state law banning the transporting of groundwater to neighboring Texas.

John Salopek, chairman of the Elephant Butte Irrigation

District's Advisory Board, said Wednesday that the court's ruling was "un-American."

He said water in two massive underground lakes about 16 miles north and west of El Paso should go first to New Mexicans.

But Ray Pearson, former chairman of the El Paso Public Service Board that initiated the federal lawsuit in 1980, said plans to drill up to 326 wells in southern New Mexico — starting as early as 1984 — were the key to providing El Paso with water for growth into "the year 2000 or 2020."

El Paso, the nation's 29th most populous city, has doubled to 450,000 residents in the past 25 years. It grew 32 percent during the 1970s, making it among the five fastest-growing major cities in the U.S., the Census Bureau reports.

This growth, spurred by El Paso's dry climate, has taxed the water-supply capacities of the city enough that planners predict shortages within 12 years.

El Paso, at the base of the Franklin Mountains, receives 7.7 inches of rainfall annually and plans to make the wells their water source for about one-third of the growing city's needs through the 21st century, said El Paso Water Utilities general manager John Hickerson.

But Salopek said El Paso "doesn't need to get bigger." Bratton's 36-page ruling, issued Monday, praised New Mexico for leading efforts to regulate and conserve scarce water resources in the thirsty West, which in the past has heard related water claims among states bordering the Colorado River.

But despite New Mexico's claims that its water resources would be used up by El Paso at the expense of local farmers and industry, Bratton ruled he could not support "a total ban on interstate transportation of groundwater."

Bratton in part based his ruling on the 1982 Supreme Court decision of Sporhase vs. Nebraska, in which two Colorado farmers had been prohibited from using Nebraska groundwater on their land.

The Supreme Court ruled water must be treated as an article of commerce, that states do not have unlimited rights to control water commerce and that arid states could justify a ban on groundwater export only if the law affected public health and welfare.

New Mexico's attorneys tried to prove the state was arid and would require the groundwater to fuel growth in the Las Cruces area, about 35 miles north of El Paso, but Bratton rejected those claims.

New Mexico State Engineer Steve Reynolds, who authorizes permits to drill for water, said the reversal could hinder water law policy throughout the West by limiting state control to water

Hance, Stenholm speakers Friday

U.S. Congressmen Kent Hance and Charles Stenholm will be the featured speakers during the annual meeting of the Texas-New Mexico Sugar Beet Growers Association Friday at the community center.

According to association Executive Secretary James Witherspoon, the meeting will last from 10 a.m. - 4 p.m.

Also to speak at the meeting will be Holly Sugar Corp. officials John Bushnell, president, and Roger Hill, vice president of agriculture.

Association president Bill Cleavinger will also present an "update on the status of the sugar beet industry."

Two seats on the association's board of directors will be filled by election at the meeting. Board members whose terms are expiring include Cleavinger and Dave Thompson of Friona.

The annual sugar beet banquet will be held beginning at 7 p.m. Saturday at the Bull Barn. Bill Brown of Lubbock will be the featured speaker at the banquet.

Owens buys Ft. Worth line

Ralph Owens, owner of Ralph Owens Trucking Inc. of Hereford, has more than doubled the size of his trucking firm with the purchase of Miller Truck Inc. of Fort Worth. It was announced this week.

Owens' purchase of the Miller Truck Line, a Fort Worth-based hauler for almost 50 years, speeds its plans to locate a terminal in Tarrant County.

Owens, who is also president of Big T Pump Co. of Hereford and a longtime Realtor, said he will merge the two companies' employee rosters and move his headquarters to the site in Fort Worth. However, the Hereford office and terminal will still be in operation.

Owens said he will be "spending time in both Hereford and Fort Worth." A report of the purchase in the Fort Worth Star-Telegram said the combined companies are expected to produce estimated gross annual revenues of $15 million.

The combined operations will have an inventory of 75 tractors and 150 trailers. Owens announced Thursday that he had just received an ICC license for 48-state general commodity authority.

Miller's refrigerated trucks had been delivering foods to points in eight states. Owens Trucking has been hauling a greater diversity of goods. Miller has been a Texas carrier for the U.S. Government since 1941.

Miller Trucking was founded in 1929 by the late J. Tom Miller, a banker who had felt the economic squeeze of the depression. Miller started the company with a single 1-ton truck and a $10 gold piece.

Miller's first major contracts came with the Armour and Swift meat packing plants in Fort Worth. His widow continued to run the company after his death in 1981.

SS reform report due

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Social Security reform commission's final report on a plan to save the retirement system is arriving at the White House and the Capitol with opponents vowing to fight recommended payroll tax hikes and levies on benefits.

Also included in the final report due today is a strong recommendation from nine of the panel's 16 members to gradually raise the retirement age from 65 to 66 in the early years of the next century, meaning those born in 1949 or later would have to wait an extra year to begin collecting full retirement benefits.

Sen. William L. Armstrong, R-Colo., said Wednesday the proposals of the National Commission on Social Security Reform, once they are understood by "middle America, on Main Street and all over the country," will prompt "howls of outrage and in my judgment encourage Congress to make some significant changes."

The commission's plan, unveiled Saturday, would generate $169 billion in new revenues or reduced expenses between now and the end of 1989, in part by higher payroll taxes and a six-month delay in this July's cost-of-living increase, expected to be about 5 percent. The plan won a 12-3 commission vote and the endorsement of President Reagan and congressional leaders.

Hispanic named speaker pro tem of Texas house

AUSTIN (AP) — The first Hispanic named speaker pro tem — assistant presiding officer — in the Texas House says the job will include more than ceremonial gavel-banging.

Rep. Hugo Berlanga, D-Corpus Christi, said Wednesday that Speaker Gib Lewis, who picked him for the post, has promised some real duties.

"In the past the speaker pro tem has largely been a ceremonial position, but now with the coming of our new speaker ... the post will assume a new level of responsibility and a new level of effectiveness," the four-term legislator told House colleagues.

Lewis said Berlanga will serve as an "executive assistant" and "my right-hand person."

"He will devote a majority of his time to working with me in the decision-making process of my administration," said Lewis, who moved Berlanga to an office near the speaker's.

Berlanga, 34, is director of personnel and public relations for the American Bottling Co.

He succeeds Rep. Pete Laney, D-Hale Center, who was the final speaker pro tem under Bill Clayton.

Berlanga's selection as first Hispanic speaker pro tem was lauded by Ruben Bonilla of the League of United Latin-American Citizens, who said the appointment would "cultivate greater trust and respect" for Hispanics.

Lewis joked that he first realized Berlanga was the man for the job during a 1981 hunting trip.

"Some spent shot came down on the pickup truck. Hugo happened to be in the back of the truck. When that spent shot came down on him his immediate reaction was to jump out of the truck," said Lewis, who fired the shot.

Berlanga wound up on top of a reporter.

"That's when I said, 'That's my speaker pro tem.' Any man who can dodge lead like that, he's a man of action," said Lewis.

Buffalo Lake group begins legal steps

A group of Panhandle citizens concerned about the dormant Buffalo Lake Wildlife Refuge announced Tuesday they had begun the legal steps to form a non-profit corporation for the purpose of working for the restoration of Buffalo Lake. The group's charter pledges it to "help implement the restoration of Umbarger Dam and spillway and the Buffalo Lake Wildlife Refuge Area as a viable and continuing wildlife refuge and public recreational facility."

The group's membership includes campers, hikers, scouts, hunters, bird watchers, and people concerned about flood control. The following officers and Board members were elected for 1983:

Joel Goucher - Independent Insurance Agent, president;
Ted Abrahamson - Registered Civil Engineer, vice president;
Enoch Henderson - Retired

Construction Superintendent, vice president;

Charles Johnson - Computer Systems Analyst, secretary-treasurer;

William Graham - Investments, board member;
Ron Walker - Attorney, board member.

Three additional Board members will be named soon.

"The group engineers believe the needed repair work can be done for less than $3 million, far less than previously thought," Goucher said. "This would include replacing the old spillway with a new structure of reinforced concrete, protecting the dam against erosion by wave action or seepage, and building a bridge over the spillway. Water has gone over the spillway only twice in the last 41 years."

The group has also received a letter from Dr. Garrey Carruthers, Asst. Secretary of the Interior, stating the department's willingness to consider the project providing the group can demonstrate local support and raise enough money to pay part of the cost. "This money would be raised from tax-deductible contributions to the BLHA's Restoration Fund, money which would be matched by federal dollars in a formula to be decided later," Goucher said.

"The letter also indicates the Department would not be interested in managing the facility but would be willing to negotiate a management contract to allow some other government body to run the facility on a day-to-day basis. However, Interior cannot sell or deed the land away by law because of its Wildlife Refuge status," he added.

The initial goal of the group is the closing of the gate at Umbarger Dam so this summer's thundershowers can be retained to help waterfowl survive next winter.

Stock Show Chores

Hereford High agriculture students have started getting some chores done, like tidying show boxes, about a week before the Hereford Young Farmers Junior Livestock Show. The show opens with hog judging at 10 a.m. next Thursday, followed by lamb and steer judging on Friday. Commercial steers and broilers debut in the show this year. The weekend events include the Ladies Lead Line wool fashion show Friday night and the stock sale Saturday morning. Getting the show boxes straight are, from left, Fred Fuentes, Gwen Wilhelm, Todd Taylor, Joseph Diller and Steve Gallagher. (Brand Photo)

Two of Hereford's big banquet events are on tap within the next two weeks. The Sugar Beet Banquet is scheduled Saturday night at the Bull Barn, and the annual C of C Banquet is set for Feb. 3.

The Friday business meeting of the Texas-New Mexico Sugar Beet Association is drawing some VIPs, including U.S. Reps. Kent Hance and Charles Stenholm, as well as Holly Sugar president John Buschnell.

Both events traditionally draw big audiences. The Sugar Beet Banquet includes the recognition of top beet growers, as well as the presentation of the Outstanding Man of the Year in Agriculture. One of the highlights of the C of C Banquet is the naming of the "Citizen of the Year."

A comprehensive study of police records reveals that no woman has ever shot her husband while he was doing the dishes.

Hereford Young Farmers are busily preparing for the annual Junior Livestock Show which will be held in the Bull Barn Jan. 26-29. It will be payoff time for youngsters who have put in a lot of hours with their animals. Local and area citizens have always been very supportive of the 4-H and FFA youngsters, and this year will be no exception.

A meeting of much interest to area farmers and ranchers will be held here Friday morning, when John Ford, deputy assistant secretary of agriculture for marketing and transportation, will be in Hereford to explain the Ag Department's Payment-in-Kind program.

Much discussion and speculation has been voiced about the program. We overheard one farmer say it would be a bigger boost to the local economy than the opening of the Swift Independent Packing Plant.

The meeting is set for 7 p.m. Friday at the Community Center, and it should draw many interested farmers and businessmen.

Reagan at halfway point of presidency

By TERENCE HUNT
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — With the nation suffering its hardest economic times since World War II, Ronald Reagan today reached the halfway point of his presidency, saying, "America is now coming through a painful period of adjustment and recovery."

As Reagan begins his third year in the White House today, the second anniversary of his inauguration, aides say his biggest disappointment is unemployment, now at its highest level in 42 years. Twelve million Americans are looking for jobs.

"The millions of unemployed now form a sea of unused minds, talent, and energy," Reagan said in a speech Wednesday night in Chicago.

"We must not turn our backs on their pain, nor waste their mighty resource."

"We will need the strength of every back and power of every will to lift us to recovery," Reagan said, "and we're not going to rest until every American who wants a job can find one."

The president, who came into office promising to balance the federal budget by 1983, now is struggling to keep the deficit below $200 billion for fiscal 1984.

Without referring to his earlier deadline for eliminating deficits, he told the Chicago audience: "I also have a personal dream that I will see the day we not only balance the budget, but begin to make payments on the national debt."

Speaking at a fund-raising dinner for Republican Sen. Charles Percy's re-election campaign, Reagan said, "A high priority must be to get a hammerlock on this monster known as the federal budget."

"Deficits continue to loom in the future, clouding the confidence we must have for recovery," Reagan said. "We must not allow gaping deficits to block the economic growth that alone can bring lasting recovery."

He passed up a chance to give a preview of the new budget he will send to Congress on Jan. 31, but said the budget "must be fair to all our people" and the nation at the same time, "must meet our defense needs."

Although the nation is in its worst recession since World War II and economists are predicting only a weak recovery this year, Reagan said, "America is now coming through a painful period of adjustment and recovery."

The Commerce Department released figures Wednesday showing the U.S. economy — as measured by real, or inflation-adjusted, gross national product — fell 1.8 percent last year. It was the biggest one-year decline

Killer confident he'll get execution stay

HUNTSVILLE, Texas (AP) — Thomas Andy Barefoot, though expressing confidence he won't be executed Tuesday as scheduled, says if the state kills him it will be "the most premeditated of murders."

"If I am unable to prevent this execution, the state will have perpetrated upon me and my loved ones the very crime for which I have been condemned!" Barefoot said Wednesday in a hand-written statement.

In an interview, an optimistic Barefoot expressed joy at word from his lawyers that a woman who testified against him at his trial now has changed her story.

"I'm happy. I'm just as happy as I can be," he said. "I'm confident that my lawyer is going to get me turned loose and justice is going to be done."

Barefoot, 42, was convicted of capital murder in the Aug. 7, 1978, shooting death of policeman Carl Levin, 31, in the Central Texas town of Harker Heights.

Prosecutors said Levin asked Barefoot for identification while looking for an arson suspect and that Barefoot shot him because he feared Levin would discover he was wanted on unrelated charges in New Mexico.

Barefoot insists he is innocent. "I am NOT guilty — I am not the killer!" he wrote in his statement.

Arson possibility fire marshal says

GALVESTON, Texas (AP) — Arson is suspected as the cause of a fire that gutted a paint store and vacant hotel and injured four firefighters, authorities said.

The Wednesday night blaze roared through a two-story building containing a Sherwin-Williams paint store and the Maye Hotel. The hotel was closed Jan. 7 for fire code violations, officials said.

"That's the bad thing about closing down these things — you have to worry about somebody coming in and burning them up," Fire Marshal Willie Wisko said. He said arson was a "good possibility."

No one was inside the building, which was a total loss, Wisko said.

Carol Reese, a waitress at a nearby coffee shop, said two men were arguing outside the building about 5 p.m. She said she heard one of them say, "I'll burn this place down."

The fire was reported at 6:18 p.m. and brought under control about 9:30 p.m., fire department officials said.

Two firefighters were injured when a wall collapsed, Wisko said.

Carlos Alcazar, 31, was admitted to John Sealy Hospital complaining of back pains. Mike Varella, 26, was treated for an injured wrist at John Sealy Hospital.

Two other firefighters also were injured, according to Wisko.

Ernie Bonner, 35, apparently sustained internal injuries when he was struck on the head by an air conditioning unit which fell from the second floor of the building, a hospital spokeswoman said. Officials refused to release their conditions.

Another man was treated for a knee injury at St. Mary's Hospital after he slipped from a ladder, Wisko said.

Walesa renews bid to get job back

GDANSK, Poland (AP) — Former Solidarity chief Lech Walesa has made another bid to get back his job at the Lenin Shipyard, but informed Polish sources said they didn't think he would succeed in the effort.

Walesa applied Wednesday to be reinstated as an electrician at the Baltic port shipyard, where managers turned him away from the gates last Friday.

A spokesman for Walesa said the labor leader repeated his earlier argument that the shipyard's refusal to give him a job is inconsistent with Polish law. He said union officials are entitled to automatic leaves of absence.

The Polish sources, who requested anonymity, said they believed authorities wanted Walesa to work at a smaller enterprise in Gdansk, not the shipyard where the now-outlawed Solidarity union was formed during the strikes of August, 1980.

Walesa headed Solidarity until it was suspended with the declaration of martial law Dec. 13, 1981, and he was interned without charges for 11 months. The independent trade union was banned Oct. 8.

Walesa and his wife apparently have supported their seven children from savings since he was released from internment last November.

Pupils petition for unlocked bathrooms

CONCORD, N.H. (AP) — Merrimack Valley High School pupils say they must wait up to three hours to use bathrooms, and have asked the school to reconsider a locked-door policy aimed at preventing vandalism.

In two weeks, 320 pupils — about one-third of the student body — have signed a petition asking for another look at the 4-year-old rule.

The doors were locked as administrators tried to stop vandals from wrecking the bathrooms by breaking sinks and clogging toilets. Now, there are closely monitored "bathroom breaks" for four minutes between classes and limited bathroom openings before and after school.

Frustrated pupils say the breaks are too short, and that often people in line to use the facilities are shooed back to class by teachers.

"I think they should at least let us finish going to the bathroom," said a seventh-grader.

Principal Jonathan Russell said if the student council approves the petition, he will consider reopening the bathrooms for a two-week trial.

During classes, pupils must get a key from their teachers or the school office to use the bathroom.

Eleventh-grader Chris Thurston, who drew up the petition, said she waited 25 minutes to use the office key, but had to return to class before her turn and was too embarrassed to ask to use it again.

Another time, she was forced to wait three hours to use the bathroom, she said.

A sliding interest rate, now you're talking!

As interest rates come down Americans start spending more.

That is a plausible prescription for prosperity.

But it is also the recipe for inflation—if we start overspending.

And last month, sure enough, Americans resumed spending 2½ times more than they were saving.

How might we manage to spend ourselves out of recession without spending ourselves into another escalation of worthless dollars?

Why not try a sliding interest rate; there is no reason it has to be the same for everything.

Industrialist William Kerr of Kerr Glass proposes a multi-tier interest rate schedule, five categories of loans for prime rates above 10 percent.

Think about it: We could thus keep interest rates high for the "nonessentials" while keeping interest rates low for cars, houses and appliances.

Similarly, he would keep interest rates low for the purchase of new industrial machinery—so that industry could modernize—become cost-competitive again.

Instead of one interest rate for everybody and every purpose, the Fed could "adjust" the prime in a manner which would protect both lenders and borrowers—and at the same time stimulate reinvestment in essentials.

For examples: Class one loans, 10 to 11 percent, would be available for the purchase of American-made cars under $8,000 in value...

New homes selling for less than $120,000...

New mobile homes... New apartments with unit rentals under $250 a month...

Small business loans under $500,000.

Obviously, that would stimulate the industries which need stimulating and would create additional jobs in those industries.

Mr. Kerr's five categories end with the least-essential lending and borrowing for which he would allow the highest interest rates—up to 20 percent.

That rate would be intended to discourage overspending for businesses acquiring other businesses, borrowing for tax-shelter purposes, borrowing for investment outside the United States.

Debate is inevitable relating to which loans are "essential" but surely nobody can argue that businesses acquiring other businesses deserve the same priority of consideration as an American wage earner trying to replace an old kitchen stove.

Mr. Kerr's recommendations may be too plausible for the professional economic complicators, but this President has a way of going over their heads when he wants to.

W-2 form should be received

Employees who have not received a W-2, Wage and Tax Statement, by Feb. 1, should contact their employer to be sure that they have the correct address, the Internal Revenue Service says.

Even if an employee is unable to get a W-2 before the tax filing deadline, the return must be filed by April 15. The IRS reminds taxpayers that they must have a W-2 form from every employer they worked for during the year. If it is impossible to obtain a W-2 from an employer, the employee should either request a form 4852, Substitute Wage and Withholding Statement, from the IRS or attach a signed and dated statement explaining the tax computations for the missing wage and tax information to replace the W-2 and file it with the tax return, according to the IRS.

Censors ban E.T. for kids in Sweden, Norway, Finland

STOCKHOLM, Sweden (AP) — Sweden, Finland and Norway have banned youngsters from the movie "E.T." — the smash-hit fantasy tale that Swedish censors call a close encounter of the "frightening" kind.

The Swedish Board of Film Censorship, backed by child psychologists, limited audiences to those above age 11, claiming "E.T., The Extra-Terrestrial" portrays adults as enemies of children.

The official age limit in Finland is 8, and in Norway 12. In the United States, the movie carries a rating of "Parental Guidance" suggested, which does not impose a strict age limit.

Danish film censors, who restricted the "Star Wars" movies and most other science fiction films to those 12 and above, gave "E.T." the green light.

The Steven Spielberg movie shows Earth-bound children giving shelter to the stranded, gawky alien, E.T. for short.

It has delighted millions in the United States, set off a Christmas-time "E.T." craze, and now is sweeping countries throughout the world.

The ban on young children from the movie here prompted some young Swedes to hit the sidewalk with protest placards to show their displeasure.

"Away with the 11-year limit," "Children's films are made for children," and "We want E.T." read some of the children's picket signs in front of a major Stockholm theater where the movie opened Dec. 10.

The movie's distributors say they doubt the bans are keeping all under-age children away from the movie.

Swedish newspapers reported many children under 11, some with their parents, were seeing the movie by pretending they were of age.

But chief censor Gunnel Arback, in defending Sweden's ban, said moviegoers under 11 might be traumatized by a "threatening and frightening atmosphere" which she maintained prevails throughout the film.

The movie is an outstanding success in Sweden, according to the distributor, United International Pictures.

Clerical error ruins budget

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — Two misplaced zeros and too much optimism have created a $3.3 million city income shortfall that could mean potholes remain unrepaired and cutbacks in the police and fire departments, officials here say.

The city, county and school districts learned last week that the Tarrant Appraisal District had overvalued an apartment complex, putting it on the tax rolls at $300 million instead of the correct $3.09 million.

The city had counted on collecting $1.7 million in taxes on the complex.

Now, the city is not counting on getting anything, and the complex is suing to regain its tax-exempt status.

"There's just no painless way to meet our budget crisis," said Councilman Russell Lancaster.

Report

who voted against the rescue plan, said in a written dissent included with the panel's final report that it relies too heavily on taxes.

"Including revenue from expanded coverage, higher taxes account for 75 percent of the proposed deficit reduction between now and 1990 — $126 billion out of the $169 billion total," Armstrong said. "In the long run, the balance is even more lopsided. Tax increases constitute 91 percent of the commission's total recommendation."

Water

reserves.

U.S. Sen. Pete Domenici, R-N.M., said he will meet Friday with Gov. Toney Anaya and Attorney General Paul Bardacke to "find a solution that is beneficial to New Mexico."

Observers in Santa Fe, New Mexico's state capital, said some powerbrokers were so upset over Bratton's decision that there was consideration of enacting a severance tax on water going to El Paso.

But Bratton said he couldn't rule in New Mexico's favor because preservation of the state's groundwaters purely for domestic use would be "tantamount to economic protectionism."

New Mexico's ban on the export of its groundwater violated the commerce clause of the Constitution, which prevents states from enacting laws that hinder trade between states, Bratton said. Houston attorney Harry Reasoner, who represented the city of El Paso, said the decision did not threaten Western water law.

Bratton's ruling was an important step toward ensuring groundwater is used "without regard to artificial boundaries, such as state lines," he said.

Reasoner, however, conceded the ruling probably would result in an appeal and further legal battles that could end up in the nation's highest court.

In Anthony, Texas, councilman Adrian Baca said such high legal battles were unnecessary: "We have sufficient water — enough for everybody."

But Bardacke said his state would dry up as more wells were drilled for El Paso.

"This is a clear-cut loss for New Mexico," he said. "There is no silver lining."

Barefoot said in an interview last week that his relationship with the guard "kind of filled up that hole" left when his 89-year-old grandfather died Dec. 13.

"Just an understanding old granddaddy is all he is," Barefoot said of Munselle on Wednesday. "He's just a cheerful old man and he's sensitive to the needs of the people down here."

Barefoot said he would leave it up to his family members whether they wanted to visit him on the day before the execution.

"I'm going to leave that up to them."

If executed, Barefoot would be the second Texas inmate to be executed since 1964. Charlie Brooks Jr. was executed Dec. 7 in Huntsville, becoming the first U.S. inmate executed by lethal injection.

Prison officials said Brooks voluntarily climbed onto a gurney on which he was executed. Barefoot said Wednesday that though he will not try to fight off prison officials, he will passively resist by not volunteering to put himself on the gurney.

"I am not going to climb up on the chopping block, especially if I'm not guilty," he said.

Court of Appeals for a stay of execution. On Wednesday in Houston, they told a three-judge panel of the court that Mary Richards now says she lied when she testified that man she saw running from the arson fire resembled Barefoot.

In the prison interview, Barefoot said the woman's trial testimony conflicted with her original description of the man she saw: 6-feet tall, 185 pounds, short red hair, no beard. The inmate said that at the time he weighed no more than 130 pounds, was 5-foot-4, and had long hair and a beard.

Barefoot called the witness's admission a "miracle."

"I think it was an act of God. Bless her heart," he said. "I feel I'd like to hug her neck," Barefoot said. "I think it would have been hard for me to have been that far in the middle of the stream and say, 'Well, I'm going to turn around and go back.'"

Barefoot said he would ask step-brother Les Bianco of Panama City Beach, Fla., and a guard he calls "Pappy" to be in the death chamber for the execution.

Biano said Wednesday in a telephone interview that he had not received a request from Barefoot and would not go if asked. The guard, John Munselle, told The Huntsville Item, "If he wants me to go, I'll be glad to go."

Hospice facility to meet needs of the terminally ill

At a recent meeting in Austin, members of the Texas Health Facilities Commission gave approval to St. Anthony's Hospital in Amarillo for the construction of a 20-bed hospice.

The facility is designed to provide a full range of inpatient and outpatient services to meet the needs of the terminally ill and their families. There is presently no hospice program in Texas offering inpatient services.

The inpatient facility is projected to cost at $4 million. A fund raising campaign for construction is scheduled to begin on April 5 and is expected to raise $3 million. The remainder of the cost will be financed through hospital revenues over a three-year period.

Dr. Winfred Moore, chairman of St. Anthony's Hospital hospice steering committee stated that approval of the CON would permit the steering committee to finalize their campaign plans. Moore indicated that prior to the official campaign kick-off there will be an educational campaign for the public including use of a locally produced film about St. Anthony's Hospice.

The hospice concept, which began in the late 19th century in Ireland, involves maintaining a patient's quality of life when death is inevitable.

The St. Anthony's program, which began in 1980 with the efforts of Sister Olivia Prendergast through the Life Enrichment Department, includes home health care; the 20-bed acute inpatient unit; social, emotional and spiritual support for the patients and their families and bereavement follow-up.

There will be three areas within the building for families to be together, according to Evelyn K. Smith, Ph.D., director of planning for St. Anthony's Hospital.

"We have found that the family is reluctant to be far from the patient who is terminally ill," said Dr. Smith. "In our design we have made provisions for space to allow the family to be together for special activities such as cooking a meal. There is also a larger room designed for group activities. It can be used as a family gathering place or as a resting place."

The hospice concept focuses on the quality when the quantity of life is no longer a consideration. The emphasis of treatment is shifted from curative to palliative procedures. Pain control becomes an integral part of the care.

"It takes a very special type of person to work with the terminally ill patients," Smith continued. "All hospital staff and physicians have been trained to cure. When they see a patient dying that cannot be cured they often feel that they have in some way failed.

"Our hospice staff has been carefully selected and extensively trained. Terminal patients require not only bathing and feeding, but an extra measure of concern. Patients facing death need to be spared the sense of abandonment that often comes in a regular hospital setting."

The new hospice building is designed so that each private room opens onto a courtyard. This keeps the patient in touch with the world and provides a more home-like atmosphere. Family members and even pets are allowed to visit the patient without the restrictions that apply in a hospital setting.

Plans call for the hospice to be connected to St. Anthony's Hospital by an enclosed walkway. Access to the hospital will allow the patients to receive radiation or chemotherapy or diagnostic studies. The hospice building will be relatively free of medical treatment, which sometimes becomes frightening to the patient.

Construction of the facility will be conducted in three stages beginning with the renovation of the hospital's School of Nursing Building. Ground breaking for the new building is expected early this summer.

Luncheon Speaker

The Rev. Jesse Hodge, pastor of Wesley United Methodist Church and president of the Hereford Ministerial Alliance, spoke to approximately 75 persons attending a luncheon hosted by Church Women United in observance of the Week of Prayer for Christian Unity on Wednesday. The ministerial alliance will hold a community-wide ecumenical service at 6 p.m. Sunday at the First United Methodist Church as part of the special celebration.

Course offered by association

Deaf Smith-Castro Counties Legal Secretaries Association is offering the official course of the National Association of Legal Secretaries. The course is for legal secretaries, those doing work of a legal secretary and for lay persons desiring to learn the subject matter.

The course consists of 33-hours instruction, plus examination and is being offered on alternate Saturdays, beginning Saturday at the Hereford State Bank Friendship Room.

The test book is "The Career Legal Secretary Basic NALS." The text and the accompanying workbook are for sale by the course director. All full-session students will be required to have both. The classes are limited to 20 full-session students and will be on a first come basis. Anyone interested should pre-register as soon as possible.

Those desiring to audit special sessions, such as the bankruptcy class to be presented by the U.S. Bankruptcy judge, Bill Brister, may do so at a fee of $10 per session for NALS members and $15 for non-members. Attorneys will be welcome. Those auditing the class will not be required to purchase books nor will they receive hand-out materials.

The books must be paid in advance plus a registration fee of $25. The balance may be paid in installments with payment in full being made prior to taking the examination. The books will be given out at the first session.

Scholarship deadline announced

Junior and senior class high school students who are interested in applying for $1,000 college scholarships should request applications by March 15 from the Educational Communications Scholarship Foundation, 721 N. McKinley Road, Lake Forest, Illinois 60045.

To receive an application, students should send a self-addressed, stamped envelope with a note stating their name, address, city, state and zip code and approximate grade point average.

Fifty award winners will be selected on the basis of academic performance, involvement in extracurricular activities and need for financial aid.

Community service scheduled

Approximately 75 persons attended a special luncheon hosted by Church Women United Wednesday at the First Christian Church. The event was part of the local observance of the Week of Prayer for Christian Unity.

Eloise McDougal, member of the division of Christian unity for the Texas Conference of Churches, gave the welcome and recognized several ministers who were in attendance. Ministry on a person to person basis in the local community was discussed by the Rev. Jesse Hodge as he spoke to the group.

The Hereford Ministerial

Alliance will sponsor an ecumenical worship service at 6 p.m. Sunday evening at the First United Methodist Church, followed by a fellowship social in Ward Parlor. A nursery will be provided and everyone is welcome.

The Rev. Mark Traenkle of St. Anthony's Catholic Church, will deliver the opening greeting and prayer, including a short history of the Week of Prayer; the Rev. C.W. Allen of St. John's Baptist Church will give the scripture reading; the Rev. J. Weldon Butler of First Methodist Church will give the responsive reading; Hodge, of Wesley Methodist Church, will be the homilist; and the Rev. George Belford of First Presbyterian Church will lead the Lord's prayer and the closing prayer.

Singing groups from Mt. Sinai Baptist Church and San Jose Catholic Church will provide the music.

This year marks the 76th observance of the Week of Prayer, which was begun by Father Paul Wattson, the first Father General of the Friars of the Atonement.

Guild host luncheon for Episcopal women

The women of St. Thomas Episcopal Church were entertained at a recent luncheon by St. Martha's Guild. Eloise McDougal attended as a guest, speaking on the Week of Prayer for Christian Unity. She invited the women to a special ecumenical worship service to be held Sunday at 6 p.m. at the First Methodist Church.

Meredith Wilcox, vice-president, conducted the business meeting which followed. Minutes were read by Nancy Denton and the treasurer's report was given by Ellen Carter.

Members decided to hold a pancake supper on Shrove Tuesday. Mary Waldrep and Olivia Denning volunteered to serve as co-chairpersons for this project.

A report by the nominating committee was submitted naming officers to serve in the year. The following were voted in by acclamation: Ms. Wilcox, president; Mary Fraser, vice president; Vera Threewit, secretary; and Buddy McBrayer, treasurer.

Frances Hennen was appointed treasurer of special projects and also refractory chairperson.

Ms. Waldrep presented the officers and they were installed by Father Charles Threewit.

The area meeting of the Episcopal Women of the church will be held at St. Thomas Jan. 29. Threewit announced that there will be a "Prayer in Practice" workshop in Lubbock Feb. 11-12.

New VA chief stresses commitment to veterans

Harry N. Walters, 46, has been confirmed by the U.S. Senate to become the 12th Administrator of Veterans Affairs.

Walters was selected by the White House for the position of Veterans Administration chief last month. He succeeds Robert Nimmo who held the position since July 1981.

A West Point graduate, Walters has been serving as Assistant Secretary of the Army for Manpower and Reserve Affairs since July 1981. As VA Administrator, he will head the largest independent agency in the federal government with some 235,000 employees.

Testifying recently before the Committee on Veterans Affairs, Walters made it clear that he intends to be a strong advocate for America's veterans.

Noting that veterans served the nation with distinction, Walters went on to add that, "we have an obligation to them. If the nation is to remain firmly behind our veterans, I believe it is imperative that the integrity of the VA health care and benefits system be maintained."

Walters said he will continue to strive for excellence in all areas of medicine and research "with quality care to the veteran being our foremost objective."

Walters feels that much needs to be done to recognize the contributions of veterans to America, especially the veterans of the Vietnam conflict. "We must remember that through their service and sacrifice, this country remains free and strong. America has a commitment to this valiant Americans, and it must not be forgotten."

Particularly concerned about Vietnam veterans, Walters rejected the negative portrayal they have received over the past 10 years. "The vast majority of our Vietnam veterans are our business associates, next-door neighbors and friends. Yet they have been cast under a cloud. This is patently unfair and I will do all I can to change this perception."

Cumpton All-Star nominee

BY LES GILES
Sports Editor

Don Cumpton, who's guided Hereford to 29 victories (compared to just five losses) over the past three years, is one of eight coaches from across the state nominated to coach in this summer's Texas High School Coaches Association All-Star Football Game.

Cumpton, whose overall coaching record stands at 59-35-2, was nominated from Region 1. Other nominees from the North include Charlie Johnston of Childress (Region II), Ron Poe of McKinney (Region III) and Earl Overton of Kermit (Region IV).

South nominees include Carroll Lundin of LaPorte (Region V), Joe Clements of Huntsville (Region VI), Bob Boyd of Alice (Region VII) and Carlin Wicker of Fredericksburg (Region VIII).

Ironically, 20 of the 35 losses by Cumpton as a head coach came in the first seasons at three different schools (Sanford-Fritch, Muleshoe and Hereford).

North nominees to coach in the all star basketball game this summer include Tony Mauldin of Morton, Dub Pierce of Abilene High, Ron Powell of North Mesquite and Frank Bice of Andrews.

The South counterparts include Bob Springer of Fort Bend-Dulles, Carl Allen of Gladewater Sabine, Roy Garcia of Mission and Bobby Murphy of San Antonio Churchill.

Last year's North coaches were Greg Sherwood of Plainview (football) and former Hereford standout Keith Kitchens of Shallowater (basketball).

"It's quite an honor just to be nominated," Cumpton said.

"At this point, I don't really know what to think. It seems like most of the population is further South, so I'd have to say my chances aren't that good."

"Charlie Johnston has been nominated three times, and I wouldn't be surprised to see him get it this time."

OK, so I'm half right through two rounds of the NFL playoffs. That's better than being completely wrong.

I guessed, from the outset of the strike-interrupted season, that Dallas and San Diego would meet in Super Bowl XVII, Jan. 30.

Well, the Cowboys still have a shot. San Diego was eliminated last week by Miami.

This week (Saturday to be specific), Dallas travels to Washington, while the Dolphins host the New York Jets (Sunday).

Washington's only loss this season has been to Dallas, while the Jets have twice lost to the Dolphins. You think those teams don't have revenge on their mind?

The Redskins are better than I thought they were. Earlier, I never thought they'd get this far.

But Joe Theismann is having a great season; John Riggins is running perhaps better than at any time during his long career; the offensive line is blowing folks off the line of scrimmage; Charlie Brown is a bona fide deep threat and the defense has been superb. And, add to that, the kicking of Mark Moseley.

Dallas, at best, will have its hands full Saturday.

The Cowboys played their best game in weeks last Sunday beating Green Bay, but they may have to play even better if they are going to beat Washington.

I've gone this far with them ... I'll go one more week.

I've said all along any team was capable of winning in the AFC, and that's proven to be the case.

How about those Jets? Beating the Raiders at their own game last week, and on the road, too.

The Jets may not be a great team, but on a given day they've proven they can beat any team in the league.

Miami ... what can you say about them. Personally, I think Don Shula is one of pro football's greatest coaches, and his record bears it out.

Playing in Miami should be no real advantage for either club. The Jets have proved over the last two weeks playing on the road is not a disadvantage.

I think the fact Miami has won the two previous meetings will make it that much harder Sunday.

For that reason, and little else, I'll take the Jets.

Spring sports for Hereford High School are just over a month away. The baseball season begins March 1 (weather permitting) and the track season that weekend.

Complete spring sports schedules will be forthcoming in The Brand.

Gordon Wood of Brownwood, winner of 388 football games during a 40-year coaching career, will be the guest speaker at the 16th Annual Hereford High School All Sports Banquet, later this spring, according to Cumpton.

"We just this week finalized plans to have Gordon at this year's All Sports Banquet," Cumpton noted.

"He's a very interesting person, and I think he'll have something very worthwhile to say to the youngsters."

Wood, along with former football players Don Maynard, Roger Staubach and Bud McFadin and University of Houston golf coach Dave Williams, will be inducted into the Texas Sports Hall of Fame in Arlington later this spring.

Cowboys' top draft choice

Hill back in grace

DALLAS (AP) — For a team that prides itself on cunning draft selections, Rod Hill was becoming something of an embarrassment to the Dallas Cowboys.

The only thing the No. 1 draft pick from Kentucky State was making happen was bad press clippings.

His bright promise in Thousand Oaks, Calif., training camp had turned to tarnished reality.

He got beat out as a kick returner because he wouldn't turn up field hard enough to suit Cowboys' coaches. They thought he ran sideline-to-sideline too much.

And his performance in Dallas' prevent pass defense reached a low when a Tampa Bay receiver ran over him en route to a touchdown.

The next thing Hill knew, he was benched from that job.

As fate would have it, another rookie, Monty "Big Game" Hunter, filled the spot by intercepting a Doug Williams pass and returning it for a touchdown.

"I needed a good game," said Hill.

He added "bad."

Hill got it against the Green Bay Packers in the second round of the National Conference playoffs.

He returned a kickoff 89 yards that led to a field goal with Dallas leading 20-13. It tied Miami's Nat Moore for the second-longest kickoff return in National Football League playoff history.

And he later blocked an extra point attempt that kept Green Bay four points behind, 23-19, instead of them pulling within field goal distance.

"I feel a whole lot better now than I did last week," Hill said. "I feel a whole lot better than last week."

"I thought about my mistakes for 48 hours, but my teammates helped me to forget," he said.

Hill will be part of the Dallas pass defense in Saturday's National Conference championship game in Washington against the Redskins.

"I'm not certain how much I will play, but I'll be ready," said Hill. "In a lot of ways, this year has been difficult."

But there are a lot of rookies who would like to be in my shoes right now."

On Dec. 5, the Dallas secondary dealt misery to Redskins quarterback Joe Theismann.

They intercepted him three times, while the Dallas pass rush sacked him on seven other occasions.

"All odds are against us," said cornerback Everson Walls, who led the NFL in interceptions for the second consecutive year. "We'll go up there a little scared, which is good. I hope they're not improved over the last time we played them — they were pretty good then."

Dallas defeated Washington 24-10, the only loss suffered this year by the Redskins.

The Cowboys got some good news Wednesday.

Fullback Ron Springs, recovering from a knee sprain that kept him out of the Green Bay game, said he would be "100 percent" by Friday.

Defensive tackle John Dutton worked out on his bruised right thigh for the first time in several weeks and said he was optimistic of getting to play against the Redskins.

Stadler's 63 leads Desert Classic

PALM SPRINGS, Calif. (AP) — It took a little private session, some time away from the crowds and hours on a driving range for Craig Stadler to get his mind clear and his game back in gear.

"I wasn't concentrating. My mind was in never-never land," the 1982 Masters champion and leading money-winner said.

That came after a 73 in the first round of the Los Angeles

Open last week. He'd missed the cut the previous week, in the Tucson Open, the first tournament on the PGA Tour this year.

So he went off by himself for a practice session. "About three hours and 7-8 buckets of balls later, I had my mind clear, my thoughts in order," he said.

He followed with three rounds in the 60s at Los Angeles and Wednesday opened the $375,000 Bob Hope Desert Classic with an effort that he called "from tee-to-green the best I've played — ever."

It was a spectacular 63, 9-under-par. He hit all the fairways. He did not come close to making a bogey. He birdied half the holes he played.

And he says the round could have been even better.

"I didn't make a long putt all day and I missed several short ones, hit the hole with some others. It could have been a round in the 50s," said Stadler, who last year won four titles and $446,462.

As it was, it gave him a three-shot lead after the first round in the five-day, 90-hole tournament that is spread over four courses in this desert resort area.

Tied for second at 66 were Payne Stewart, Tom Purtzer, Mike Sullivan and Hal Sutton. Stadler, Purtzer and Stewart played at Indian Wells. Sullivan and Sutton were at La Quinta. John Mahaffey and Rex Caldwell, at La Quinta, and Mark Lye, at Indian Wells, followed at 67.

Jack Nicklaus opened his 1983 campaign with a 72 at Indian Wells, where most of the show-business celebrity friends of the host comedian were in action.

Also on that course, Arnold Palmer, 53, played his back nine in 33 for a 71 and defending champion Ed Fiori shot a 69 with Hope, former President Gerald Ford and House Speaker Tip O'Neill as his amateur partners. They had a team best-ball of 67.

PGA champ Ray Floyd shot 68 at Indian Wells and Gil Morgan, who swept the titles in the two events played earlier this year, had a 71 at Bermuda Dunes. Joe Inman, Peter Jacobsen and Dan Forsman, with 68s, were the best at Tamarisk. All courses carry a par of 72.

Former cager doing remedial level work

By DAVE GOLDBERG AP Sports Writer

The testimony of Kevin Ross speaks for itself.

Ross spent four years at Creighton University on a basketball scholarship, remaining eligible all the while. When he left Creighton — without a degree — he found that, in the words of CBS correspondent Lem Tucker, "... he could barely read or write."

He's now doing remedial work at a seventh-grade level, with a penitent Creighton paying the way.

A segment on Ross closes tonight's CBS Reports show, "The Basketball Machine," and is the best argument for the show's premise that college basketball is as professional as the National Basketball Association.

Though the show uncovers nothing new, it makes its point, a timely one in view of new NCAA rules, which require that to be eligible to play as freshmen, incoming students must have scored at least 700 on their Scholastic Aptitude Tests.

Produced by Maurice Murad and reported by Tucker, "The Basketball Machine" focuses on the kids recruited by major colleges to play in what it describes as "a multimillion-dollar industry." It is, as Tucker notes, a system in which the kids are beef on the hoof, lined up for bidders to prod, poke and measure.

The show begins with well-publicized allegations by Notre Dame Coach Digger Phelps that high school players have been offered up to $10,000 by college recruiters.

It follows the kids through summer camps and all-star games. Then it shows them as quarry, freshly bagged, in colleges where they are pampered, isolated — and tossed away when their eligibility is up.

"I had a beautiful grade card," Kevin Ross says of his freshman year. "Four A's, three C's."

"But do you remember what the courses were?" asks Tucker.

"Yes. Theory of basketball, theory of track and field, ceramics," Ross replies. "I had a couple of English courses which I didn't do too well in. I had incompletes, unsatisfactorys, but they kept moving me along ..."

One focus is the University of Kentucky, a school that tries to get its players a degree. The way it tries is with an isolated dormitory, tutors and academic counselors.

"We don't load them up with 'bunny classes' or anything to keep them eligible," says Nick Katko, an academic counselor to Kentucky basketball players. But he adds:

"As you know, we find the best electives for them. Like any normal students, they take the easiest electives."

Nonetheless, says forward Derrick Hord: "I still have trouble. It would be very difficult without those tutors."

None of that is startling; nor is it new. But overall, it's an intelligent job of focusing on a continuing issue in sports and for that, well worth seeing.

Denver gets 1984 NBA all star tilt

DENVER (AP) — It's a reasonable question, one that anyone would ask after finding out that Denver would be the site for the 1984 National Basketball Association All-Star Game: Why Denver?

NBA Commissioner Larry O'Brien said it was a choice between Indianapolis and Denver, and the Mile High City won.

"It was a matter of reviewing Denver and Indianapolis presentations, which I did," O'Brien said Wednesday in announcing the league's choice.

"We came to a clear decision on Denver. I think it was appropriate in many ways. I think Denver's a city that will be an attraction for the press to come from around the country. We advised the people from Indianapolis that their presentation was strong and that if they could, they ought to present it again in the future.

"But the Denver presentation hit the mark very, very well. The mayor, the governor, all the people involved, the whole thing added up."

It also didn't hurt that the NBA remembered — and envied — the Nuggets' successful staging of the final American Basketball Association All-Star Game in 1976, and that the NBA wasn't overwhelmed with bids for the 1984 game.

That night the Nuggets staged a slam-dunk contest, won by Julius Erving with a jump that began at the foul line, and a Glen Campbell and Charlie Rich concert before the game.

A record crowd of some 17,500 filled McNichols Arena that night, still the biggest to see a game at the arena.

Cubs get Ron Cey

CHICAGO (AP) — The acquisition of Los Angeles Dodgers third baseman Ron Cey in a trade for two minor league players will give the Chicago Cubs a much improved infield as far as executives of the National League baseball team are concerned.

The Cubs, recently thwarted in efforts to sign free-agent Steve Garvey, announced late Wednesday that the 34-year-old Cey would waive his contract's no-trade clause and join the Cubs.

And General Manager Dallas Green said that obtaining Cey "more than made up" for the loss of Garvey.

"It means I don't have to move Bill Buckner off first base," he added.

Team spokesman Ned Colletti said Cey had agreed to terms in principle for five years, but details of the agreement were not announced.

Cey was in the final year of his contract with the Dodgers and reportedly wanted to renegotiate for four years at an

Ann Landers

Too much talk

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Your correspondent who listed the unattractive personality traits of lonely people omitted the most important one. May I fill him in?

Invariably they are colossal bores who talk at great length and to no purpose, repeating the same stories over and over. No detail is too small to mention. They go on and on about folks you've never heard of—and things of no consequence that happened long ago. They quibble over, "Was it Tuesday...no, it was Wednesday." "Yes, it was Tuesday because that's the day my cousin's gardener comes...blah, blah, blah."

The conversation is always about THEM. They never ask a question. All they do is talk, talk, talk, about who they know, what they have and where they've been. Then they wonder why they are lonely. Please print this letter. It might help wise them up. —Too Many In Riverside, Calif.

DEAR RIVER: Here's your letter, but I can assure you it won't make a dent. The terminal bores of the world have no concept of how they come across. It is for this very reason they are so boring.

The late Bergen Evans, that marvelous wordsmith at Northwestern University, called it "the capital 'I' small 'u' syndrome." He certainly knew whereof he spoke.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I needed to go to a hospital emergency room when a wooden box fell on my foot. The bill was $145 for X-rays and one prescription.

The dentist cleaned my teeth last week. He spent 15 minutes and charged me $20. The therapist for my foot charged me $1,125. All I got were hot packs that I could have done myself at home without her help. What has happened to people's consciences? It's a sin the way these crooks take advantage of insurance companies, health insurance, Blue Cross—any coverage that requires a premium to be paid by the poor old worker. Judgment Day is coming. God is patient.—Sick Of Greed (Worcester)

DEAR S.O.G.: Your only legitimate beef is with the therapist. Why, pray tell, did you agree to such a crazy arrangement? And how come it took you so long to wake up? Don't blame her. You were stupid.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I have a boss who has decided that the conventional salutations on business letters are boring and old-fashioned. He starts his letter with no salutation—just goes right in to the subject. For example: "It was nice to talk with you."

To my way of thinking, letters with no salutation look unfinished and unprofessional. If I received such a letter, it would diminish my opinion of the sender. I told him so and he said I was "unadventurous" and "square."

He's the boss and I must do as I am told, but I feel ill at ease with his so-called innovative approach to letter writing. What is your opinion, Ann? Will you poll your readers?—O.F.G. In Tulsa

DEAR OLD-FASHIONED GIRL IN TULSA (DID I GUESS RIGHT?): I'll give you my opinion—but no poll, please. The normal mail load is all I can handle.

Every now and then I receive a "Good Morning, Ann" or "Hello, My Friend." I've also had letters with NO salutation, such as your boss writes. Maybe I'm square, like you, but I prefer the old, familiar "Dear Ann Landers."

Leta Kaul selected as club's nominee

Leta Kaul was selected as the nominee for outstanding extension homemaker of the year when members of Westway Extension Club met Tuesday evening at K-Bob's Steak House. Nancy Nixon presided.

Also, during the business session, Terri Long was chosen as the nominee for the spring meeting.

Club members voted to donate $50 to 4-H Parent-Leaders Association for use in the concession booth at the junior livestock show scheduled Jan. 26-29.

Yearbooks were distributed and filled in and the next meeting was scheduled at 7 p.m. Feb. 8 in the home of Marjorie Thomas, 418 Sunset Drive. Louise Walker, extension agent, will present the program.

Roll call was "What I Accomplished This Past Year".

Martha Rickman was welcomed as a new member by those present. They included Ms. Long, Ms. Kaul, Joan Bookout, Ms. Nixon, Joyce Aycock, Carolyn Evers and guest Randall Mark Evers.

At Wits End

BY ERMA BOMBECK

An ad in a Midwest newspaper read, "WANTED: Woman to do ironing for housewife 10 years behind in everything. Must have strong courage and sense of humor. Phone—"

Now there's a woman I could live next door to in perfect harmony. I iron "By appointment only." I learned long ago that if I ironed and hung three dresses in my daughter's closet, she would change three times during dinner.

The other day my son wanted me to iron his jeans for a class play. "Which leg faces the audience?" I asked with my iron poised in mid-air.

"Boy," he said, "you're sure not like Mrs. Breck."

I hadn't thought about Mrs. Breck in years. She was an antiseptic old woman who used to live two houses down from me. She had an annoying habit of putting her ironing board up on Tuesdays and putting it away again at the end of the day. (What can you expect from a woman who ironed belt buckles?)

One afternoon I dropped in on her as she was pressing the tongues in her son's tennis shoes.

"You know what you are, Mrs. Breck?" I asked. "A drudge."

"Oh, I enjoy ironing," she said.

"You keep talking like that and someone is going to put you in a home."

"What's so bad about ironing?" she grinned.

"No one does it," I snapped. "Did you ever see the women on soap operas iron? They're just normal, American housewives. But do you ever see them in front of an ironing board? No! They're out having abortions, committing murder, blackmailing their boss, undergoing surgery, having fun! If you weren't chained to this ironing board you, too, could be out doing all sorts of exciting things."

"Like what?" she chuckled, pressing the wrinkle out of a pair of sweat socks and folding them neatly.

"You could give Tupperware parties, learn to scuba dive, learn hotel management while sitting under a hair dryer, have an affair with the Avon lady's unemployed brother-in-law, sing along with Jack LaLanne, collect antique barbed wire, take a course in Hebrew Flower Arranging, start chain letters...I don't know, woman, use your imagination!"

I read the newspaper ad again. It intrigued me so that I dialed the number and waited.

"Hello, Mrs. Breck speaking..."

Son of a gun. It sure makes you feel good when you had a part in someone's success, doesn't it?

Lace, as we know it, developed in Italy in the 1400s. It grew out of open or cutwork in embroidery. It was a mark of prosperity.

Arguments due on Braniff slots' allocation

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — The fate of landing slots forfeited by Braniff International when it suspended operations eight months ago hinges on whether a federal bankruptcy judge accepts the arguments of the grounded airline or its competitors.

Opening statements in the slots' allocation were scheduled today before U.S. Bankruptcy Judge John Flowers.

The slots are critical to a proposed Texas division to be created by a California-based carrier, Pacific Southwest Airlines, using Braniff planes and facilities, according to Braniff officials.

PSA wants to gear up the new division, to be based at the Dallas-Fort Worth Regional Airport, by May 1. "We are asking that the FAA live up to its stipulation," said Braniff attorney David Bonderman.

The Federal Aviation Administration acknowledged Wednesday that it could be forced to comply with a June 24 stipulation with Braniff, which would mean PSA would get about 360 slots allocated temporarily to other airlines in May.

Six airlines, including Continental, American and Delta, and the Justice Department objected Wednesday to giving the landing slots to PSA, which wants to fly to 16 cities formerly served by Braniff.

The FAA, in its second written response to the question, repeated an earlier contention that it does not have sufficient information to decide whether to return the slots. It also said it has not yet received a formal request for a recall of the slots.

The agency said the bankruptcy court cannot direct it to return the slots to Braniff for PSA, but admitted the court could enforce compliance of the June 24 stipulation.

Braniff officials asked Flowers to force the FAA to return the landing slots under the stipulation.

Braniff and PSA want to gain approval of PSA's division and Braniff's debt settlement by Feb. 1. Braniff officials have said the PSA proposal will collapse unless the slots are returned.

The airline's position was supported by attorneys representing its secured creditors, bondholders and two banks in the fifth day of reorganization hearings Wednesday.

The FAA stipulation written after Braniff filed for protection from its creditors May 13 was that the airline could recall its landing slots under certain conditions — which would include reorganization.

The FAA said it does not have enough information to declare that PSA is Braniff's successor airline and thus entitled to its slots.

Bonderman countered that Braniff has been "unable to get a position from the FAA" on the slots despite months of effort.

On Wednesday, arguments concerning Braniff's proposed debt settlement with its creditors and PSA's use of Braniff's airport facilities across the nation were nearly completed.

Braniff officials said the debt settlement and PSA pact, which is expected to be approved by Flowers, will form the cornerstone of Braniff's reorganization.

Testimony in the reorganization should continue through the week, attorneys said.

There is one breed of dog that never barks. The basenji (buh SEN jee), is a small dog with pointy ears and a curled tail. It growls, snarls and whines, and sometimes when it's excited it makes a noise similar to a yodel. This dog also washes itself the same way a cat does.

Yawn away

Yawning is usually a way of helping our breathing. It generally means that our intake of oxygen has fallen below what is needed. Sometimes we yawn when our bodies aren't getting enough fresh air, exercise or better ventilation. Yawning helps stretch the muscles to awaken us.

Whipped butter

DEAR POLLY — My market sells both regular and whipped butter. However, they sell the whipped butter at a slightly higher price per pound than the regular butter. Does the whipped butter really go further, making it a good buy? — MRS. L.R.

DEAR MRS. L.R. — Whether the whipped butter goes further depends entirely on how you use it. If you melt the butter, air whipped into it will disappear and you'll have exactly the same volume as an equal weight of regular butter. If you use the whipped butter in cooking, you'll also want to measure it by weight rather than volume. However, if the butter is used just for a table spread, whipped butter will definitely go further and is an excellent way to stretch your butter dollars. Many people think whipped butter spreads more easily, too. You don't have to pay a premium for this convenience, however. You can purchase the regular butter and whip it yourself. Just put one or two sticks of butter in a deep bowl and beat with an electric mixer until fluffy and increased in volume. Cover tightly and refrigerate if you're not going to use it immediately. You'll have savings AND convenience! I'm sending you a copy of my new booklet "Polly's Food Budget Savers" which will give you more ideas on how to stretch your food dollar. Other readers who would like this booklet can send $1 for each copy to POLLY'S POINTERS, Box 489, Radio City Station, New York, N.Y., 10019. Be sure to include the title. — POLLY

HEALTH

Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

Approaches to obesity

DEAR DR. LAMB — I've tried dieting to lose weight. And I've tried walking to lose weight. Frankly, I don't enjoy either. And I've read that being overweight is not harmful. It is very discouraging to exercise and cut your calories down and still not lose very much weight. There has to be another answer. Do you know what it is?

I've heard that brown fat is the answer. What is the difference between brown fat and just fat?

What are some other ways to lose weight besides dieting and exercising?

DEAR READER — You need to start at the beginning and separate the difference between losing weight and eliminating body fat. If you want to lose body fat you must, in some way, use more calories than you consume.

Now, there is an area of energy balance, that needs more work, the factors that influence how much caloric energy your body uses at rest. One important factor may be the way your body loses heat. If you could induce your body to lose a lot of calories through heat loss that would be one way to increase your body's use of calories and help eliminate body fat. There are reports that people continuously exposed to cold require more calories to maintain their body weight.

Brown fat has blood pigment in it. It is found in patches throughout the body. Usually normal body fat is yellow. Scientists now believe that brown fat may function differently and convert calories to heat. If so, brown fat may help you keep from developing yellow fat or obesity. The difference in some thin people who eat as much as some heavy people may be the difference in the amount of brown fat.

Despite this, and a variety of ways to treat obesity, all systems must end up affecting how many calories you absorb in relation to how many calories you use. That is related to the basic law of energy which cannot be changed.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I am writing about a problem my wife has had for many years, but now that she is 60 years old I am concerned about its effect on her health.

She is healthy but she doesn't sweat at all. Her only sweating is at her eyebrows. She doesn't sweat under her arms or anywhere else. When the temperature and humidity is high she does suffer a lot. We use air conditioning to alleviate her condition. Is there anything that can be done? Which doctor should we see about her condition?

DEAR READER — This is indeed a rare condition. Usually such a person is born with absent or defective sweat glands. We have between 2 million and 3 million sweat glands. But the problem can be caused by damage to the hypothalamus (underneath portion of the brain) and other parts of the nervous system.

I would see a neurologist because of the association with the nervous system, and perhaps a dermatologist. But if it is an inherited defect of the skin he won't be able to do much except rule out other causes. Protect her from heat as she is susceptible to heat stroke. Sweating, including perspiration that you do not see, is an important mechanism in eliminating body heat. Limit her exposure to the sun.

Razorbacks now 14-0

Arkansas wears down Horned Frogs, 69-55

By JOHN NELSON AP Sports Writer

Coach Eddie Sutton of Arkansas wasn't in a mood for freebies.

That's why he felt the Razorbacks' game against Texas Christian Wednesday night was so important.

"This game was bigger than the one at Houston Saturday," Sutton said after Arkansas wore down a top-flight TCU squad, 69-55. "We needed a victory to keep the pressure on Houston. If we lose, Houston has a free game."

The fourth-ranked Razorbacks, one of two major undefeated teams, got 15 points and some big plays late in the game from guard Darrell Walker to beat the Horned Frogs.

The victory, at Arkansas' Barnhill Arena, gave the Razorbacks a record of 14-0, 4-0 in the Southwest Conference. Houston, ranked 15th nationally, is 5-0 in the SWC, while TCU dropped to 3-2 in the league and 12-4 overall. Fifth-ranked Nevada-Las Vegas is the nation's other unbeaten major college team with a 15-0 record after beating Long Beach State 95-83.

In other games involving ranked teams, No. 7 Virginia defeated 17th-rated Virginia Tech 74-64, No. 3 North Carolina clobbered North Carolina State 99-81, sixth-ranked Memphis State whipped Delta State 100-62, No. 12 Missouri defeated 18th-ranked Oklahoma State 84-63, No. 13 Villanova romped over Seton Hall 75-59 and 19th-ranked Georgetown beat Pittsburgh 62-54.

Texas Christian trailed by five, 58-53, with less than four minutes left, but a steal by Walker led to a layup by Alvin Roberts, and Walker followed with a dunk to get Arkansas out of trouble.

Horned Frogs Coach Jim Killingsworth said he felt poor officiating helped ruin his team's effort. TCU went to the line just five times, compared to 20 for Arkansas.

"It's hard to play with one referee," Killingsworth said. "Denny Bishop was good, but the other two should be selling insurance. I'd love to be able to play karate defense and have my opponents shoot 12 free throws to our two in the first half."

Top Ten

Jeff Collins and Sidney Green spearheaded a strong second-half effort to lead Nevada-Las Vegas over Long Beach State in a Pacific Coast Athletic Association game.

Pacing the Rebels, who led only 42-41 at the half, was Collins, who scored 27 points and added seven rebounds, while Green had 23 points and 12 rebounds. Larry Anderson added 21 points for UNLV, which increased its PCAA record to 5-0 and is now 15-0 overall.

Virginia opened a 10-point lead midway through the first half and had little trouble beating Virginia Tech. The Cavaliers, 14-2, were led by Jim Miller, who scored 12 of his 18 points in the second half.

With Tech ahead 20-18, Virginia ran off 12 straight points. Ralph Sampson added 12 points for Virginia, and Del Curry paced Tech, 14-2, with 17 in the non-conference game.

Matt Doherty paced North Carolina over N.C. State with 21 points, and he and Warren Martin helped the Tar Heels abort a Wolfpack rally in the second half of their Atlantic Coast Conference matchup. N.C. State pulled within 55-46 before North Carolina went on an 8-2 burst — getting four points each by Doherty and Martin — to lead 63-48 with 15 minutes to play.

Jim Braddock added 18 points for the Tar Heels, 13-3 and winners of 10 in a row, while Terry Gannon had 18 for State. The Tar Heels are 3-0 in conference.

Keith Lee poured in 29 points as Memphis State beat up on Division II Delta State. The 6-foot-10 Lee, three inches taller than any of the Delta State players, also had 13 rebounds for the 13-1 Tigers.

Second Ten

Seven-footer Steve Stipanovich scored a career-high 32 points to boost Missouri over Oklahoma State in Big Eight Conference action. Leading by only six points, Missouri scored 13 in a row, eight of them by Stipanovich, to take a 42-23 lead with 2:58 left in the first half. Missouri, 13-2 and 1-0 in the Big Eight, also got 12 points from Jon Sundvold, while Raymond Crenshaw had 19 for Oklahoma State, 12-2 and 0-1.

Ed Pinckney scored 15 points and John Pinone had 13 to lead Villanova over Seton Hall. Villanova led Seton Hall 24-8 in the early going and 48-32 at the half. Pinone sat out about half the game in foul trouble but was a key in the Wildcats' early lead. Villanova is 11-2 and 5-0 in the Big East.

Patrick Ewing scored 22 points, and Michael Jackson led Georgetown on a 10-2 spurt that helped the Hoyas defeat Pitt in a Big East game. Jackson had eight points in the run, which gave Georgetown a 42-32 lead with 13 minutes left. Georgetown has won three in a row in the conference for a 3-1 record, 12-4 overall. Clyde Vaughan had 21 points for Pitt.

Unranked Teams

In the Big Ten, Dan Palombizio hit a 15-footer with four seconds left to boost Purdue over Illinois, 63-62. Freshman Wayman Tisdale scored 30 points to lead Oklahoma over Kansas, 95-72, in the Big Eight.

Anthony Teachey had 18 of his 24 points in the second half to rally Wake Forest over Duke, 88-84, and Ben Coleman's 21 points helped Maryland beat Clemson 80-61 in a pair of ACC games.

Bill Wendlandt scored 11 points to lead Texas over Rice, 47-45, in the SWC. Bill Varner's 17 points led Notre Dame over Bucknell, 64-52.

Ron Young's jump shot with three seconds left gave Massachusetts an 87-85 triple overtime victory over Monmouth.

76ers notch 13th straight win

By BARRY WILNER AP Sports Writer

When a team wins a club-record 13 straight games, there have to be plenty of heroes leading the way.

That's how it has been for the Philadelphia 76ers, whose 126-106 victory over Chicago Wednesday night gave them the longest winning streak in the National Basketball Association this season.

Against the Bulls, Julius Erving was the key man, scoring 26 points, pulling down 12 rebounds and handing out four assists. But Erving was more anxious to talk about his teammates.

"We're more of a good rebounding team now with Moses (Malone)," Erving said of the Sixers' 6-foot-11 center. "He gives us 40 minutes of hard work. Other teams don't have that. It's the difference between our team and the others."

"(Andrew) Toney is equal to shooting anywhere. He's an all-offensive player, an all-star player. This team is able to play consistent, winning basketball more than any we've had in the last six years."

Toney scored 25 points and Malone added 16 for Philadelphia, which hasn't lost in more than a month, or since Washington beat the Sixers 100-97 on Dec. 18.

"I think this can become a better and better team," said Coach Billy Cunningham. "I can see our confidence building. The bench (substitutes) is more confident. We're consistent in the center with Malone. He never relaxes. He never stops working. He takes a lot of pressure off Doc (Erving) and the others."

And Erving thinks they're good enough to continue the streak.

"Thirteen is a lucky number and I hope now we can double it," he said.

The 76ers scored 15 straight points to take a 17-2 lead and the Bulls never recovered in losing for the 10th time in 13 games.

Elsewhere, it was Detroit 107, Milwaukee 106; Denver 130, Houston 93; Phoenix 118, San Antonio 113; Kansas City 91, New York 88; Golden State 103, Utah 95; Atlanta 116, Seattle 111, and Los Angeles 107, San Diego 104.

Pistons 107, Bucks 106

Isiah Thomas threw in a short jump shot with three seconds to play to cap a six-point spurt by Detroit in the final 17 seconds. With those 17 seconds remaining, Kelly Tripucka hit two free throws to make it 106-103, then stole Milwaukee's inbound pass and made two more free throws after being fouled. When the Bucks couldn't get the ball inbound, Detroit took over and Thomas drove down the lane to hit the winning bucket.

Nuggets 130, Rockets 93

The high-scoring Nuggets found some defense to go with their offense. Though they have the worst defensive record in the league, the Nuggets had no trouble with the punchless Rockets, who are 2-17 on the road. Alex English had 23 points to lead Denver.

Houston's Elvin Hayes tied the NBA record for career minutes played. He needed 23 to break Wilt Chamberlain's mark of 47,859 but came out of the game 23 seconds short.

Suns 118, Spurs 113

Maurice Lucas had 30 points, Dennis Johnson threw in 26 and Walt Davis scored 30 for Phoenix, which won its fourth straight and eighth in a row at home. Alvan Adams scored all 10 of his points in the final quarter, including two free throws to clinch it with 44 seconds left. George Gervin scored 29 points for San Antonio.

Kings 91, Knicks 88

Kansas City held New York without a basket for 6:15 of the third period and scored 13 points of its own to take charge. Larry Drew's 23 points and nine assists paced the Kings, while the Knicks were led by Bill Cartwright with 23.

Warriors 103, Jazz 95

Rickey Brown scored 21 points and grabbed 16 rebounds for Golden State, and Michael Ray Richardson was the team's leading scorer with 29. Darrell Griffith was Utah's top point man with 29.

Hawks 116, Sonics 111

Rory Sparrow scored 25 points, including 14 in the final 12 minutes, as the Hawks handed Seattle its ninth defeat in 10 games. Dominique Wilkins and Eddie Johnson both contributed 24 points to the Atlanta cause.

Lakers 107, Clippers 104

Los Angeles improved its Pacific Division-leading record to 21-8 behind Jamaal Wilkes' 26 points and 22 by Norm Nixon. Terry Cummings scored 28 for the Clippers.
