

British Answer In Armament Matter

Soviet Delegation Reported To Threaten Revolt From Conference; Naval Topic To Be Delayed

(By Associated Press) GENEVA, April 19.—The long awaited expression of the British government's attitude toward the Soviet delegation to the preparatory commission on disarmament was made by Lord Cusheum today at a meeting here, by reports the Soviet delegation would bolt the conference. It was principally a plea to consider land and air armaments and leave naval armaments until later.

The British proposal in the course of discussion of the German proposal for publicity for armaments, and followed tacit rejection by the commission of the broad Soviet-Soviet proposals for extensive partial disarmament. M. Litvinoff, Russian spokesman, protested at the treatment given his project but was told by the usually calm chairman, Johnkheer Lousder of Holland: "Put it in writing."

The Russians denied persistent rumors they would leave the conference. Lord Cusheum's address was regarded as primarily a bid not to discuss naval matters until after the British general elections May 30. He urged the committee to "get on with the land and air problems." He had no doubt, he said, that naval difficulties would be overcome.

British Banker Dies Early Friday

(By Associated Press)

PARIS, April 19.—Broken and tired by failure of the negotiations which led to the settlement of the British debt, Lord Revelstoke, distinguished British banker, died in his apartment at 7:30 a. m. today. Heart failure was given as the cause. His brother, the Honorable Cecil Baring, was at his side when the end came.

Intimates said the famous 69-year-old banker, who shared with Sir Josiah Stamp the leadership of the British delegation, had been under an intense strain throughout yesterday's session of his sub-committee. At this session the German delegation refused a compromise with the Allies, making imminent its adjournment and failure.

Lord Revelstoke complained of being tired.

He was receiver general of the Duchy of Cornwall and a member of the council of the Prince of Wales.

Blames Pro Law Chicago School Man Cites Instance

CHICAGO, April 19.—(P)—Edward J. Turbin, Cook county school superintendent today described prohibition as the underlying cause of present day social standards and codes as expounded by a girl witness at the inquest into the death of a young man after a gin and roadhouse party. Mr. Turbin said the older and more wholesome forms of recreation have been almost discarded. "House parties of young people at their homes are taboo," he said. "They are dubbed slow, poky and pass by most young people between the ages of 17 and 21."

A girl testified a few days ago at the inquest into the death of George Lux, pinned under an overturned automobile and suffocated, that she drank because if she did not boys would not take her out. Other girls did the same, she said. "The whole affair served a purpose," said Turbin. "I believe it re-awakened all of us to the problem and that something should be done about it."

New Mexico Asked To Give Williams

Man Captured In New Mexico Wanted In Caddo County, Oklahoma, On Bank Robbery Charge

(By Associated Press) OKLAHOMA CITY, April 19.—Efforts to return C. R. Williams, charged in Caddo county with joint robbery with fire arms, were started today when Governor W. J. Holloway issued a requisition asking the governor of New Mexico to return Williams from Clovis to this state.

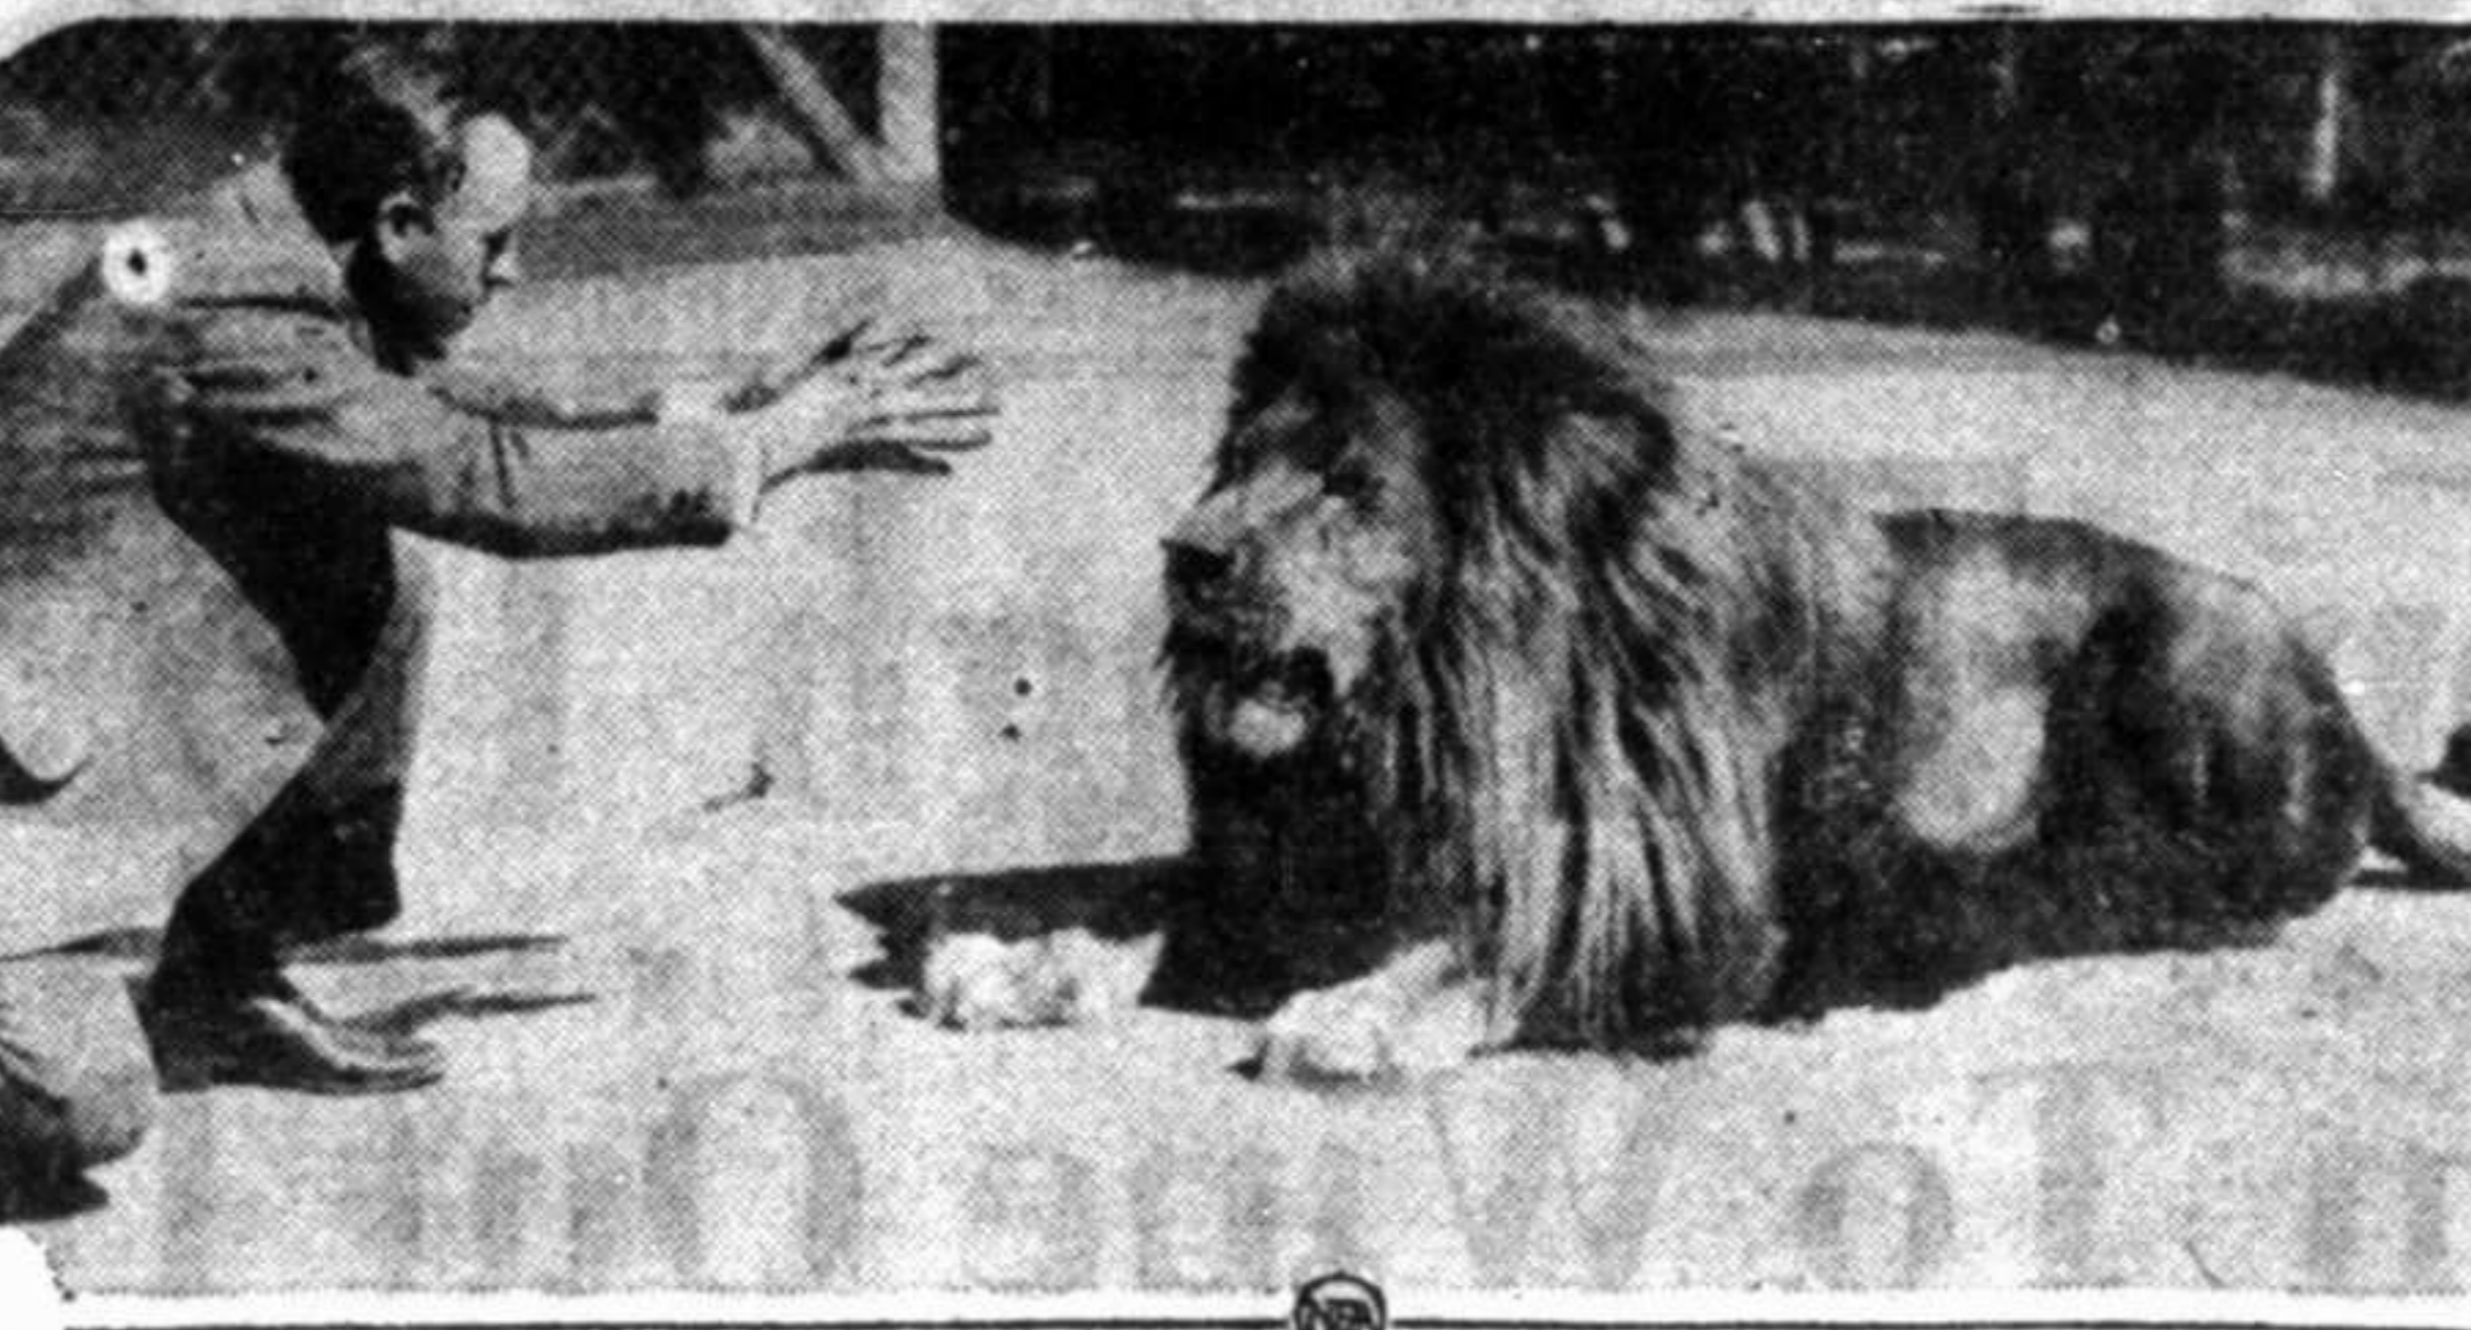

In a ninexple manner, which the requisition declared was "by fraud upon the accompanying officer", Williams, who was being taken to the penitentiary at McAlester, by Deputy Sheriff Finley, escaped and later surrendered at Fort Sumner, New Mexico.

Williams is said to have told New Mexico officials Finley and R. H. Morgan, Marlow attorney, had threatened to kill him if he did not reveal the hiding place of $10,000 taken from a "Bridgeport bank." Sheriff Alonzo Hays of Caddo county has denied his deputy made threats against the prisoner. The only reason the sheriff gave as to why Finley and Morgan went westward across the Panhandle of Texas and into New Mexico was that Finley was "inexperienced."

Final Order For Election Plea Is Drafted In Trial

Griffin Continues Claim On Office Of District Judge In Hidalgo; One Disputed Box Order Is Quandary

(By Associated Press) AUSTIN, April.—Counsel for Gordon Griffin, co-claimant with J. E. Leslie for the district judgeship of Hidalgo county, tonight drafted their final order in the election dispute which began over a protested box and was heard finally before District Judge George C. Calhoun of Travis county. Griffin's attorneys said they expected Judge Calhoun to sign the order, directing County Judge A. W. Cameron and the Hidalgo commissioners' court to canvass returns of the disputed Westaco precinct tomorrow. The final vote, which Griffin asserts will reveal he was elected by a majority of more than 600 votes, will be forwarded to Mrs. Jane Y. McCallum, secretary of state.

Mrs. McCallum Restrained. Mrs. McCallum previously had been restrained by permanent injunction from opening and checking the returns claimed were incomplete returns.

The final decree was in the process of preparation after a day of argument in which Judge Calhoun refused to mandamus the secretary of state to count and announce the final vote in the event the commissioners' court resigned or refused to comply with the court order. The wrangle had its origin when commissioners, on the advice of the county judge and other legal authorities, refused to count the Westaco returns because of an alleged unsealed envelope. Griffin's attorneys claim that their client received 689 votes and

Aviation Industry Turns To Multiple Motors, Luxurious Upholstering And Gay Huses To Attract Passengers; 1929 To Be "Airminded" Year

BY ISRAEL KLEIN Science Editor, NEA Service
DETROIT, April 18—If anyone entertained doubts as to the future of aviation and its prospects being adopted in a popular way, should make it a point to visit the next aircraft show in his vicinity.

Some of the recent outstanding developments in aviation, exhibited at the All-American Aircraft Show at Detroit, are pictured here. At the top is a giant Fokker amphibian, or flying boat, equipped with 200-horsepower motor and having seats for eight passengers and pilot quarters for two. Below is the new type of "doughnut" tire that makes landing in muddy fields easy, and the interior of the luxurious $12,000 plane owned by Lawrence P. Fisher of Detroit.

the second annual All-American Aircraft Exposition held here... the exhibitors presented and lined for the rest of the country... doubting would be convinced by a large number of youngsters attending it. For here they were looking at every airplane and every airplane on exhibition... climbing into cabins and cabs, working the controls, collecting information of all sorts and venturing the entire hall into a clamor of shrieking notes.

More commodious aircraft. In line with this thought for the public is the idea of greater comfort and beauty. Most of the large passenger-carrying planes now are built around cabins containing upholstered seats, lounges and other accommodations designed for comfort and ease.

One-Motor Planes Safe, Too. Of these motors died the one could maintain the ship in flight long enough to give the pilot a chance to make a safe landing. But a pilot flying a single-motored plane doesn't worry even if that motor should stop because he can rely on safety within a reasonable time. The sliding case of the motor, for example, is so designed that it will glide 11 feet before it will drop one foot or more than two miles.

Germany's Debts Form Big Problem

Committee of Reparations Experts Commission Faced With Task of Determining Minimum

(By Associated Press)

Paris, April 19.—How to recon- Germany's reparations offer, un- understood to be about two thirds of bill presented by the allied ex- ts as their minimum demands, the formidable task undertaken by a sub-committee of the reparations experts commission.

The German offer was estimated to have a present value of from $30,000,000 to $25,000,000,000 gold marks (between $5,760,000,000 and $40,000,000) to be paid in 37 an- nual installments, while the allied claims have an estimated present value of between $40,000,000,000 and $100,000,000,000 gold marks (between $7,680,000,000 and $19,200,000,000) to be paid in 58 annual installments.

Berlin dispatch to the Paris dispatch today said the difference between the allied offer and the German counter proposal was 12,500,000,000 gold marks or about $2,500,000,000. This dispatch said Dr. Brüning offered to pay annuities of $200,000,000 marks over a period of years, which figured 5 per cent interest and 1 per cent for amorti- zation, would have a total present value of 27,500,000,000 marks (about $5,500,000,000) as compared to an allied offer of 40,000,000,000 marks (about $8,000,000,000).

Call Misunderstood Fire Department On Unusual Run

GREEN BAY Wis. April 19.—A misunderstood telephone call sent the fire department to Chicago & Northwestern freight depot in great haste here for four coils of wire.

The wire was consigned to the city electrician, and in some manner the freight clerk was connected by telephone with the fire department instead of the city electrician.

"There are four coils of wire at the Northwestern freight depot," was the interpretation of the fireman. Thereupon the fire trucks made a dash for the depot.

"Here's your wire," announced the clerk, surprised at the prompt call.

"Say, listen, do you think we're running a dry line?" a fireman asked.

How to Achieve Beauty

BY DR. HELENA RUBINSTEIN

DR. HELENA RUBINSTEIN

I promised to write about earrings—those fascinating bits of jewelry which are so essential to a woman's beauty. And since planning to write about them I have seen so many women wearing them who should not! And so many others who do not wear them who could wear them well. It almost seems to me that an adviser in jewelry is needed by many people.

At times I feel that almost every type can wear jewelry of some type. Earrings that suit some types of women definitely do not suit others.

I know one woman whose face is very round. Yet she wears large, round balls of earrings set close to the lobes of her ears. They over-emphasize the roundness of her face in a way that is almost unbearable. If she were to choose a long, narrow earring, it would suit her type far better.

Now the woman whose face is long and narrow could wear the round type well, if her features are delicate. The narrow face is often enhanced by the hoop type of earring, which gives it the effect of roundness, yet is not heavy or awkward in shape. Hoops of pearls and enamel are beautifully worn by the woman whose face is oval and delicate or inclined to thinness.

But I noticed another woman recently—a very clever woman—whose taste in clothes and accessories is famous on two continents. Her neck is short and inclined to plumpness and she has recently bobbed her hair. But I was delighted to see how she had contrived to make her neck seem long and graceful and her hair beautiful in contour, partly through the way in which she dressed her hair and partly by the style of earrings which she had chosen. Her hair was waved from the front to the back, drawn off her ears and worn rather high. Her earrings were two long lines of gold on either side of her face. They were simple in design, two twisted cords of gold with two long golden tassels at the ends. And the complete effect was altogether charming.

The athletic sport-loving type of woman needs to use care in choosing her earrings for not many styles will become her. Very rarely—angles, squares, cube, and diamond shapes they combine bright colors, silver or gold and loquer in a bold, piquant fashion.

But even the clever, fashion-wise modern must take care. She, like all women, needs to study her type, the length of her nose, the line of her head and throat, and the contours of her face, full-front, before she decides what type of earrings are for her.

Black Pigeon

I don't think I shall need an ally. Marsha Manning retorted, with a strange smile. When the girl had left, Harry came to the window and stood there, drinking in great breaths of the cold air. I forgot then that I had on the gray wig and that dress and spectacles. I called out to him, "I don't know what I was going to do, but he recognized my voice. He turned and ran back to his desk and picked up an automatic. I think it was stark fear of me in 'Letty' disguise but of course couldn't say what was in his mind. He only felt what he did. I saw him mingling back to the window with the automatic and suddenly I remembered Mr. Hayward's gun. I stooped and jerked open the door. When Harry aimed his pistol at me my own arm was going up, and in my hand was Mr. Hayward's automatic. "You mean to say," McMann bellowed sarcastically, "that Borden shot a target shot that he could hit a target only eight feet high?" "His aim was accurate," Marsha Manning answered quietly, "but it was deflected by a white pigeon lighting on his hand just as he pulled the trigger. The bird thought he was offering food - not death. The shot was fired for me but wild, but mine, fired before Harry could aim again, did not. The flat breast rose on a great death - possibly of relief. Then, I think that's all I killed him - he could kill me." "All?" McMann exploded. "Where are the guns? What about the dead windows? The $500 in small bills that Borden had on his dead body?" Marsha Manning answered obediently. "I wrapped Mr. Hayward's gun in a dusting rag and put it in the bottom of my scrub pail. And I remember, I think, that after a long while - or what seemed a long while - I remembered two things: a letter I had written Harry Friday and which must still be in his possession. I wanted it, of course, did not want my son's mother. But I'll go on. I remembered also that I had shot Harry Mr. Hayward's office, and that he had been kind to me. I did not want the crime traced to me or to his office. It seemed vitally necessary that I close Harry's window, so that no one would suspect that he had been killed across the street. I took my broom and went to Harry's office. I slipped myself in with my passkey. I forgot to pull on the rubber gloves I always wore while cleaning that Marsha Manning's hands should be conspicuously marked with manual labor. That accounts for the finger prints, I think. But after I had pushed open the door between the two offices I remembered them, put them on. Then I went in. "The slight body was shaken with a shudder of horror, but after a moment she continued: "The first thing I loved myself to do was to close the window. I did not like the pigeon's footprints in the dust inside and outside the window. Then I looked for my letter in his desk. It was not in his pockets or in his desk. I don't know where you put it. But in my search the letter I found the money."

I took it for Paul, but also with some vague hope that the police would think he had been shot by hold-up men. I also took the pistol from his - his hand. I was afraid that if the police found the fired gun they might look everywhere - even outside the window, although I had closed it. At any rate, my instinct to protect Mr. Hayward made me take the gun, wrap it with the other one and hide it in my palm. "I at first intended to hide both weapons in my coat pockets, and take them out with me that afternoon. But I remembered that Mrs. Pellow has a keen eye for suspicious bulges in coat pockets when she checks us out of the building and I didn't know what to do. I was afraid to keep the guns and afraid to throw them away. I happened to be alone in the supply room just before four o'clock - someone - forced myself to do my work: it was a relief to be busy - and my eyes, searching desperately for a hiding place for the pistols, caught sight of an old pail without a handle, much less deep than the one I was using. An idea came to me. I tried placing the old pail inside mine and found that the circumference was the same, so that the rims met all around, but that a false bottom was formed - a compartment deep enough to hold the two pistols. I placed them there, still wrapped in the dusting rag, just as Minnie Cassidy and one of the other women came in. They noticed nothing. "And where are the guns now?" McMann demanded. "There!" And Marsha Manning pointed to the scrub pail which she had set just inside the door when she had opened it upon her entrance. "Good God!" McMann ejaculated, when he had separated the pails and stood with the two automatics in his hands. "And there they were when 'Letty Miller' came lugger that scrub pail into my presence yesterday!" "Yes, I couldn't think what to do with them," Marsha Manning admitted wearily. "And I had to come back as 'Letty Miller' both to avert the suspicion which would have fallen upon her if she had disappeared, and to keep those pistols under my own eye, until I could find some way of disposing of the pistols. "And you have got away with it, too, if it hadn't been for Miss Lester." McMann admitted, almost admiringly. "But what I can't understand is why you fainted this afternoon when you were able this morning, as Marsha Manning, to sit at Harry Borden's desk with apparent composure. "It was the black pigeon, taking sudden flight from the very spot where Harry had had lain," Marsha Manning answered, a shudder of horror shaking her thin body. "When I came to close the window and to look for my letter Saturday, a black pigeon that must have flown through the open window after - after Harry was dead, fluttered up from the body. I didn't realize then that it was - just a black pigeon. I thought it was the black soul of Harry Borden going to meet its God."

Evidence Is Heard In Suit On Zoning

Trial To Prevent Erection Of Business Buildings At Broadway And Avenue Q Is Started Friday

Evidence from a number of witnesses, including Dr. M. C. Overton plaintiff, was heard in the Ninety-Ninth district court yesterday by Judge Clark M. Mullican in the case of M. C. Overton versus A. W. Jackson and J. B. Maxey.

Dr. Overton is seeking an injunction against Jackson having Maxey, as contractor, erect a business building on Jackson's lot at the corner of Broadway and Avenue Q, originally owned by Overton and a part of the Overton addition. The plaintiff alleges that the section in question was restricted against the construction of any thing but residence buildings.

The case started at 9:30 o'clock yesterday morning and will probably occupy most of today, and was witnessed by a courtroom fairly well filled with Lubbock citizens, among them many property owners, including residents of the section in question.

State Aid Likely For Highway Nine Gilchrist Writes

Lubbock county might obtain some valuable aid in improving state highway number 9, which traverses the center of the county from the Hale county line to the Lynn county line, according to a letter from Gibb Gilchrist, state highway engineer of Austin, written to County Judge Robert H. Bean.

Mr. Gilchrist states in his letter that the highway is at present unimproved and that he understands no provision is being made by this county for its improvement.

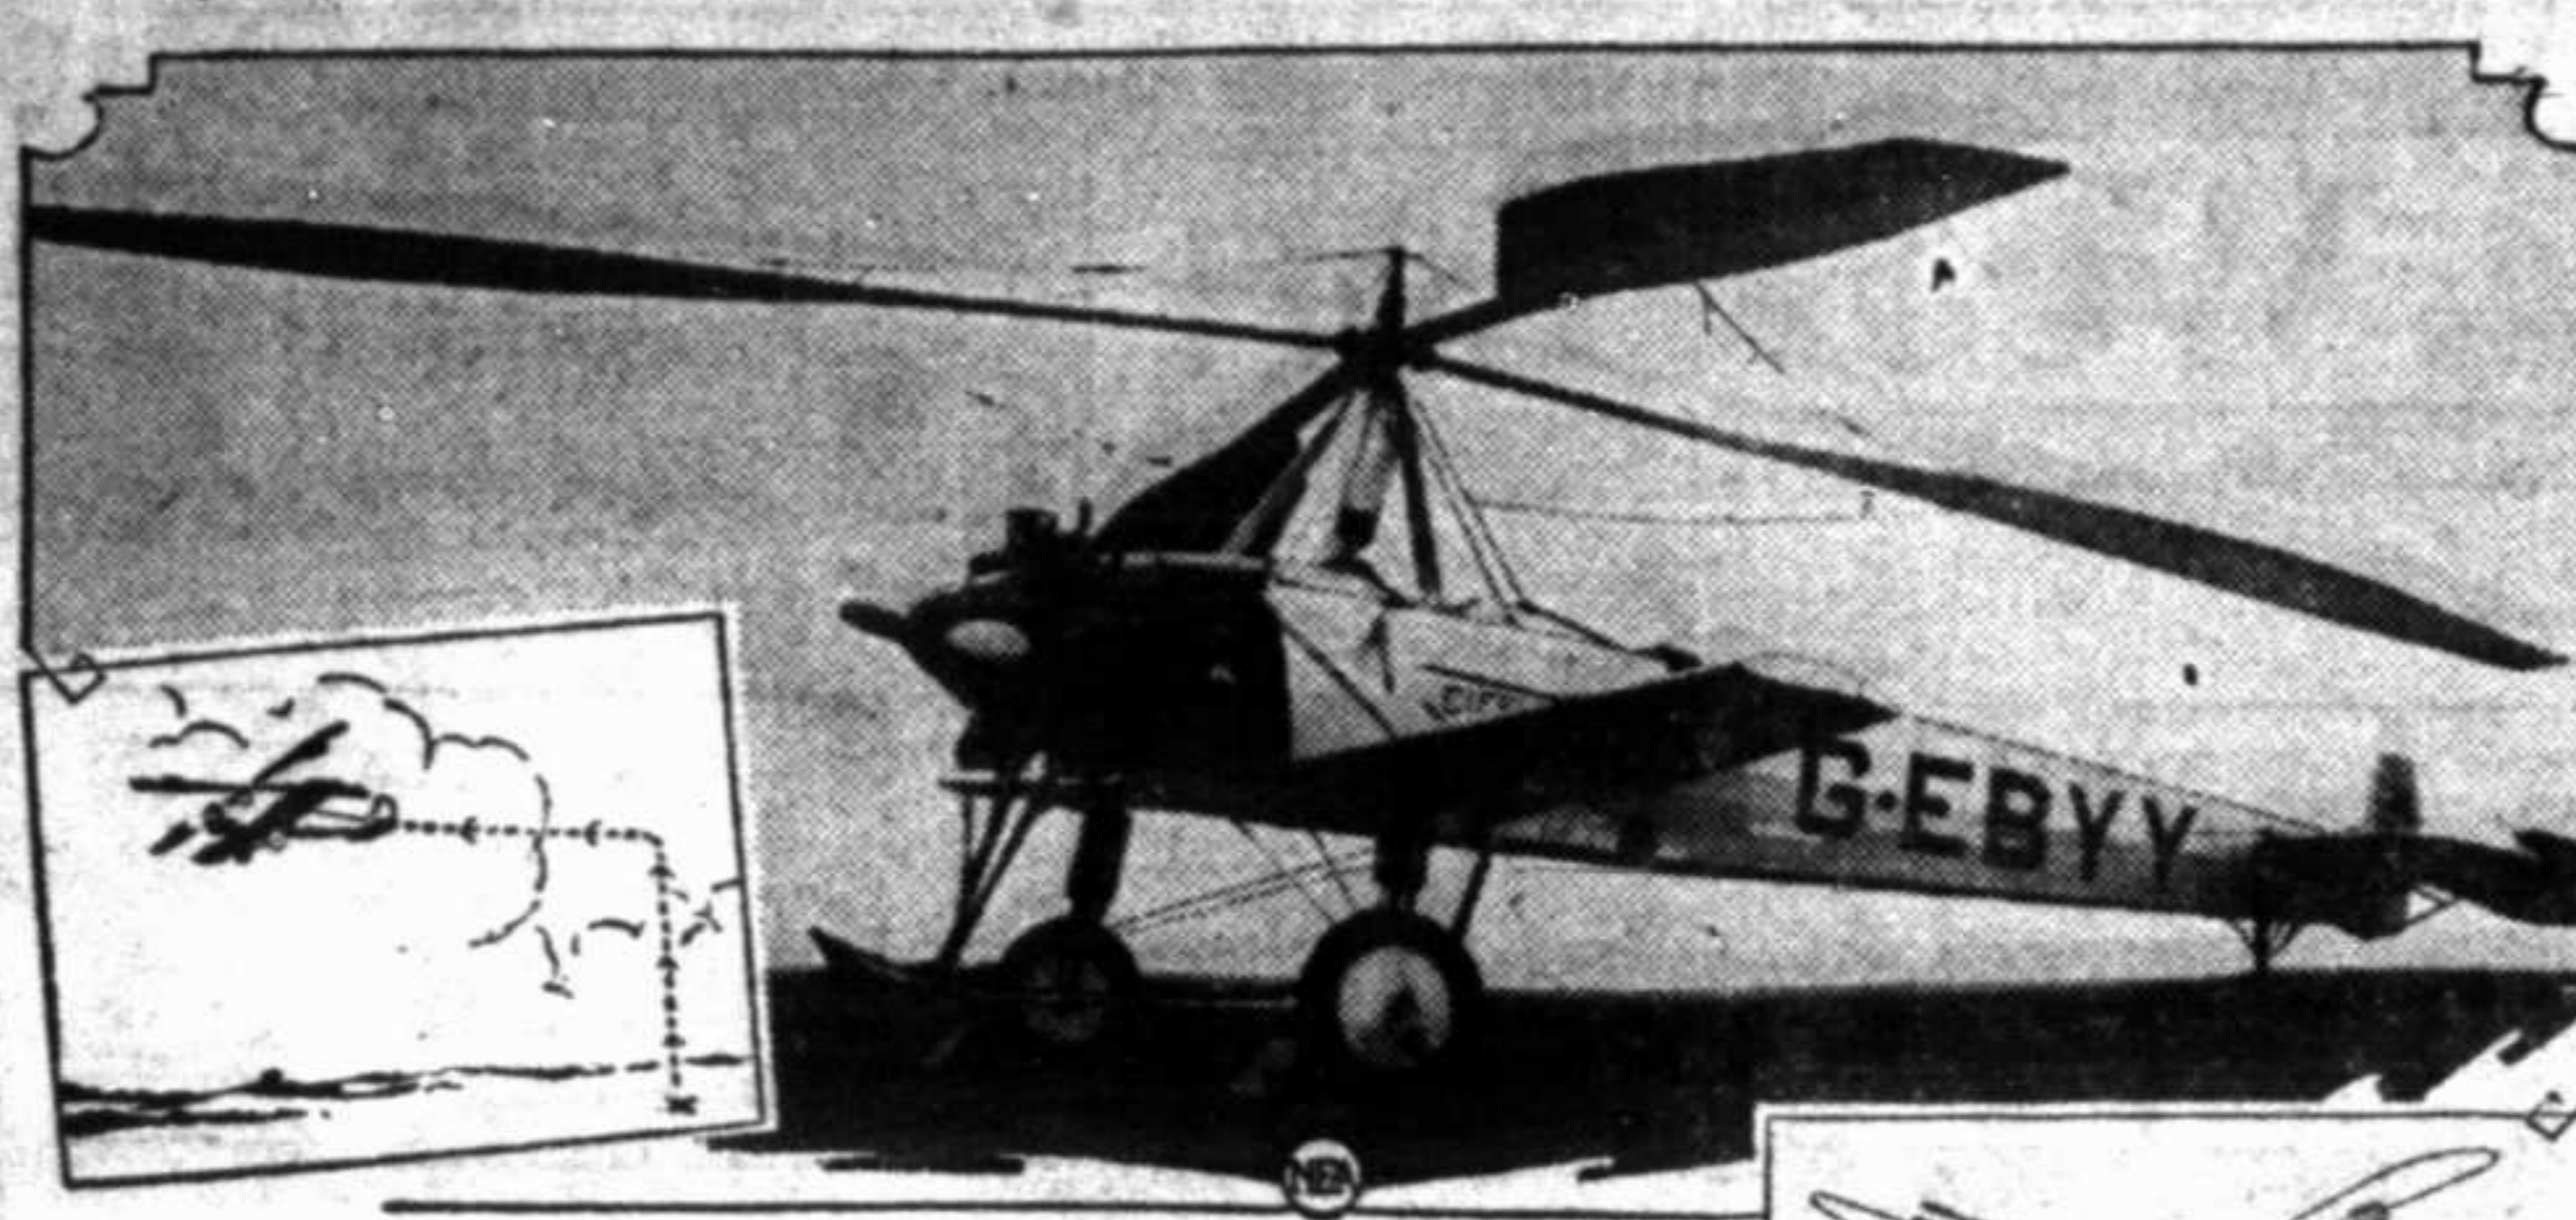

Highway Is Important "Furthermore," he says, "we all know that this highway is of considerable importance to the state of Texas, as well as to your county."

"In line with my duty as adviser to the State Highway Commission, I am contemplating a recommendation to them that the state construct the first unit of this highway through your county, with state funds, the county's immediate participation to be the right of way. If this is done, it will not, of course, relieve your county from any obligation for final construction, but it will simply enable the state to complete the earthwork and drainage structures so that the grade can be seasoned and will be in better condition when it is possible to finance the surfacing."

The Lubbock county commissioners' court will probably act on Gilchrist's suggestion, at its meeting Monday, Judge Bean declared. If they agree to the suggestion, an order will be filed out by them to the state highway department and Gilchrist will then present the matter to the State Highway Commission for their consideration.

New Airplane Now Being Tested Out By British May Completely Revolutionize Entire Aviation Industry

Here is the new "helicoptre" now being tested by the British Air Ministry. The diagram at the left shows how the plane can ascend vertically and then fly horizontally. At the right is a diagram showing how each of the four huge vanes bears its own motor to push it around.

By MILTON BRONNER NEA Service Writer

LONDON, April 19.—An entirely new type of airplane, built for the British Air Ministry, is having the finishing touches put upon it and, if, when actual flying tests are made, all that is hoped for is made true, it will do the two unique things that air engineers have been seeking to attain for many years.

FIRST—It will ascend practically on the vertical and descend in the same manner.

SECOND—It will be able to hover motionless in the air for indefinite periods.

British Air Ministry officials told me that so far as they knew neither our government nor any American airplane companies have anything like it.

The French government made a few experiments, but dropped the matter. If the machine successfully passes all the severe tests that will be made, a similar one will be built and sent to the United States to compete in the Guggenheim safety competition.

Combines Two Types. It is called a "helicoptre" and is an extension of the theories upon which autogyres and helicopters were built. There have been numbers of autogyres. In these a pillar of hollow metal, either on the slant or vertical, bore above the fuselage four enormous blades called vanes.

The original method of starting these vanes going was rather crude. A rope was coiled around the shaft. This was uncoiled rapidly by being tugged at by a gang of men.

This turned the axle shaft and started the vanes going at about 30 revolutions per minute.

At the same time the engine of the airplane was started and when the machine lifted into the air the circulation of air accelerated the vanes to 120 revolutions per minute.

Senor de la Cerva actually made flights in his autogyres. A British company has just concluded an agreement by which the machines will be produced in the United States.

Next came Signor Isacco, an Italian engineer, with his helicopter. This had horizontally rotating airscrews operated by an engine in the fuselage. Some helicopters were built by Isacco for the French government and actually raised their pilots into the air. But they were difficult about the equilibrium of the machine and about the transmission of power from engine to rotating wings. Then Signor Isacco decided to combine the qualities of the autogyre and the helicopter and it is from this that he got the name helicoptre. He sold his plans to England.

As in the autogyre, there is an upright hollow metal pillar attached to the top of the fuselage, which bears on a shaft four huge vanes.

Signor Isacco has built into each of these vanes a tiny Bristol Cherub engine with "airscrews" attached to them. Each engine starts with 20 horsepower. The motion imparted by each of the small airscrews rotates its particular vane around the vertical shaft. The speed of the four engines in the four vanes is synchronized.

When the vanes get going at top speed in their horizontal motion they give the desired lift to the whole machine. It is expected that they will enable it to rise practically straight up in the air without any preliminary taxiing. The machine is provided with the ordinary engine and propellers in front that an airplane has. Its function is to provide the horizontal motion in the air, the vanes giving the vertical motion.

By means of his ordinary airplane engine the pilot could, for instance, fly horizontally from New York to Philadelphia. Then he could check his regular engine and, being supported by his vanes, could hover right over the city. The main advantage in civil aviation is that such a machine could rise from a very small air field, and thus opens up big possibilities for the private owners of small aircraft.

The big advantage in war time is that helicopters could hover in the air high up and perform all the services now done by captive balloons, which are very vulnerable and quite helpless when hostile airplanes come along.

CHANGE PAVING ORDER Residents In Block On Ave. G Won't Agree To Pave

In a called session, the city commission met at the city hall yesterday morning and changed its order, formerly made, for paving on Avenue G. The order, made last October, was for paving of Avenue G, from Thirteenth Street to the Denver depot but, as property owners on the block next to the depot would not sign up for the paving, this part of it was eliminated.

Cyrena VanGordon Pleases Audience In Tech Program

Cyrena VanGordon closed the Tech college artist course for this season last evening with one of the best concerts that has been heard in this city.

Her colorful and melodious contralto, her personality, the sympathetic interpretation of various numbers and the understanding accompaniment rendered by Alma Putnam; all contributed to an evening of music seldom equaled here.

Perhaps the fact that Miss VanGordon sang principally in English added to the enjoyment of the evening for many in the audience, although her powerful closing number, Wagner's "The Cry of the Valkyrie" from "The Valkyrie," drew an applause which demanded repeated trips to the stage by this singer.

She was gracious in singing encores and, bowing to the wishes of her audience, repeated a part of "My Heart at Thy Sweet Voice" (Saint Saens), which was one of the best liked numbers of the evening.

At the end of another group, she returned to the stage to sing "Land of the Sky Blue Water," playing her own accompaniment. This, too, was heartily received.

Throughout the concert the melody of her tones, the exquisite phrasing of the artist and her unflinching interpretation of numbers commanded admiration.

BRIEF CASE IS STOLEN W. B. Yeager Loses Article From Car Last Night

Police were notified late last night of the theft of a dark tan feather briefcase, from the car of W. B. Yeager, while it was parked in front of his residence, 1615 Fifteenth Street. The briefcase was stolen at about 9 o'clock last night.

Mr. Yeager explains that the case contained no money, but had a few notes, not transferable, in it, together with a considerable quantity of valuable records of the Higginbotham-Bartlett Lumber company's business during the past year, which are of no worth to anybody except himself and the company.

F. D. Brown is transacting business in Breckenridge this week.

H. Brewer President; Vice-President George, Tr

(Special) SLATON, April 19.—Slaton City, Tex., held its first meeting last night, at which were elected for the year 1929: Mayor, J. H. Brewer; City Clerk, T. E. Rogers; Treasurer, W. C. George; Auditor, J. W. Hood; Assessor, C. O. Ball; Police Chief, S. R. Riggs; City Engineer, J. A. Ellis.

The new board of Slaton was organized on March 19, 1929, after a long and arduous struggle, receiving a charter from the state in 1928. The charter was a two-mile long strip of land, which was a major factor in the city's development.

The city charter will continue to be in hand with the state development. The president of the city is H. Brewer, who was elected by the voters. The city is now in the process of organizing its various departments and offices, and will be in a position to begin its work in earnest in the near future.

Abe Levy Sweetwa

Special to THE SWEETWATER. Abe Levy, city commissioner, is now in the city to solve the problem of the city's water supply. He is expected to return to the city in the near future.

Slaton Board of City Development Work Installed

H. Brewer Is Elected As President; T. E. Roderick, Vice-President And Carl George, Treasurer.

(Special To The Avalanche)
SLATON, April 19.—The Slaton Board of City Development has been organized by the city commission, and its first meeting was held Tuesday night, at which time officers were elected for the coming year. J. H. Brewer, Slaton bank president, was chosen president of the board. T. E. Roderick, newspaper publisher here, vice president, and Carl W. George, Slaton bank cashier, treasurer. The board elected L. A. Wilson as secretary. He has been secretary of the Slaton Chamber of Commerce for nearly three years.

Other Members Named
Besides Brewer, Roderick and George, other members of the board named by the city commission are: Horace Hawkins, T. A. Worley, J. W. Hood, A. J. Payne, R. P. Burka, O. Z. Ball, Dr. W. E. Payne, H. S. Riggs, G. G. Green, W. H. Smith, J. A. Elliott and M. W. Ull.

The new board is provided for under Slaton's new city charter, adopted on March 19. The board is to function as a municipal chamber of commerce, receiving funds from the city each year, which will accrue from a two-mill tax, authorized for this purpose by the new charter. The charter was adopted by an overwhelming majority, more than 14 to 1.

The Slaton Chamber of Commerce will continue operating, working in hand with the Board of City Development, says Horace Hawkins, president of the "Slaton Chamber." The two organizations are directed by the same men, but have different presiding officers. The same offices and the same employees will serve both bodies.

Abe Levy Resigns Sweetwater Place

(Special To The Avalanche)
SWEETWATER, April 19.—The city commission has another problem to solve—the appointment of a successor to Abe Levy, whose resignation was received by Mayor C. W. Bryant yesterday morning and was presented and accepted by the commission at their regular meeting yesterday afternoon. Mr. Levy has been one of the foremost members of the city commission since its inception on December 6, 1927. When the new commission manager of government was installed, it has been ill in the sanitarium in Dallas for the past four months. He was because of his bad health he was forced to resign.

The city charter authorizes the commission to appoint the fifth member in case of one vacancy, as this matter will very likely be taken care of at its next meeting on April 23.

England's famous Shakespearean actress, will receive an honorary degree from Edinburgh university.

Students at Iowa state college must keep their grades above 80 or they are forced to quit their studies and go to a quiet life.

Visited His Pal Slaton 3-Year-Old Knows Lubbock

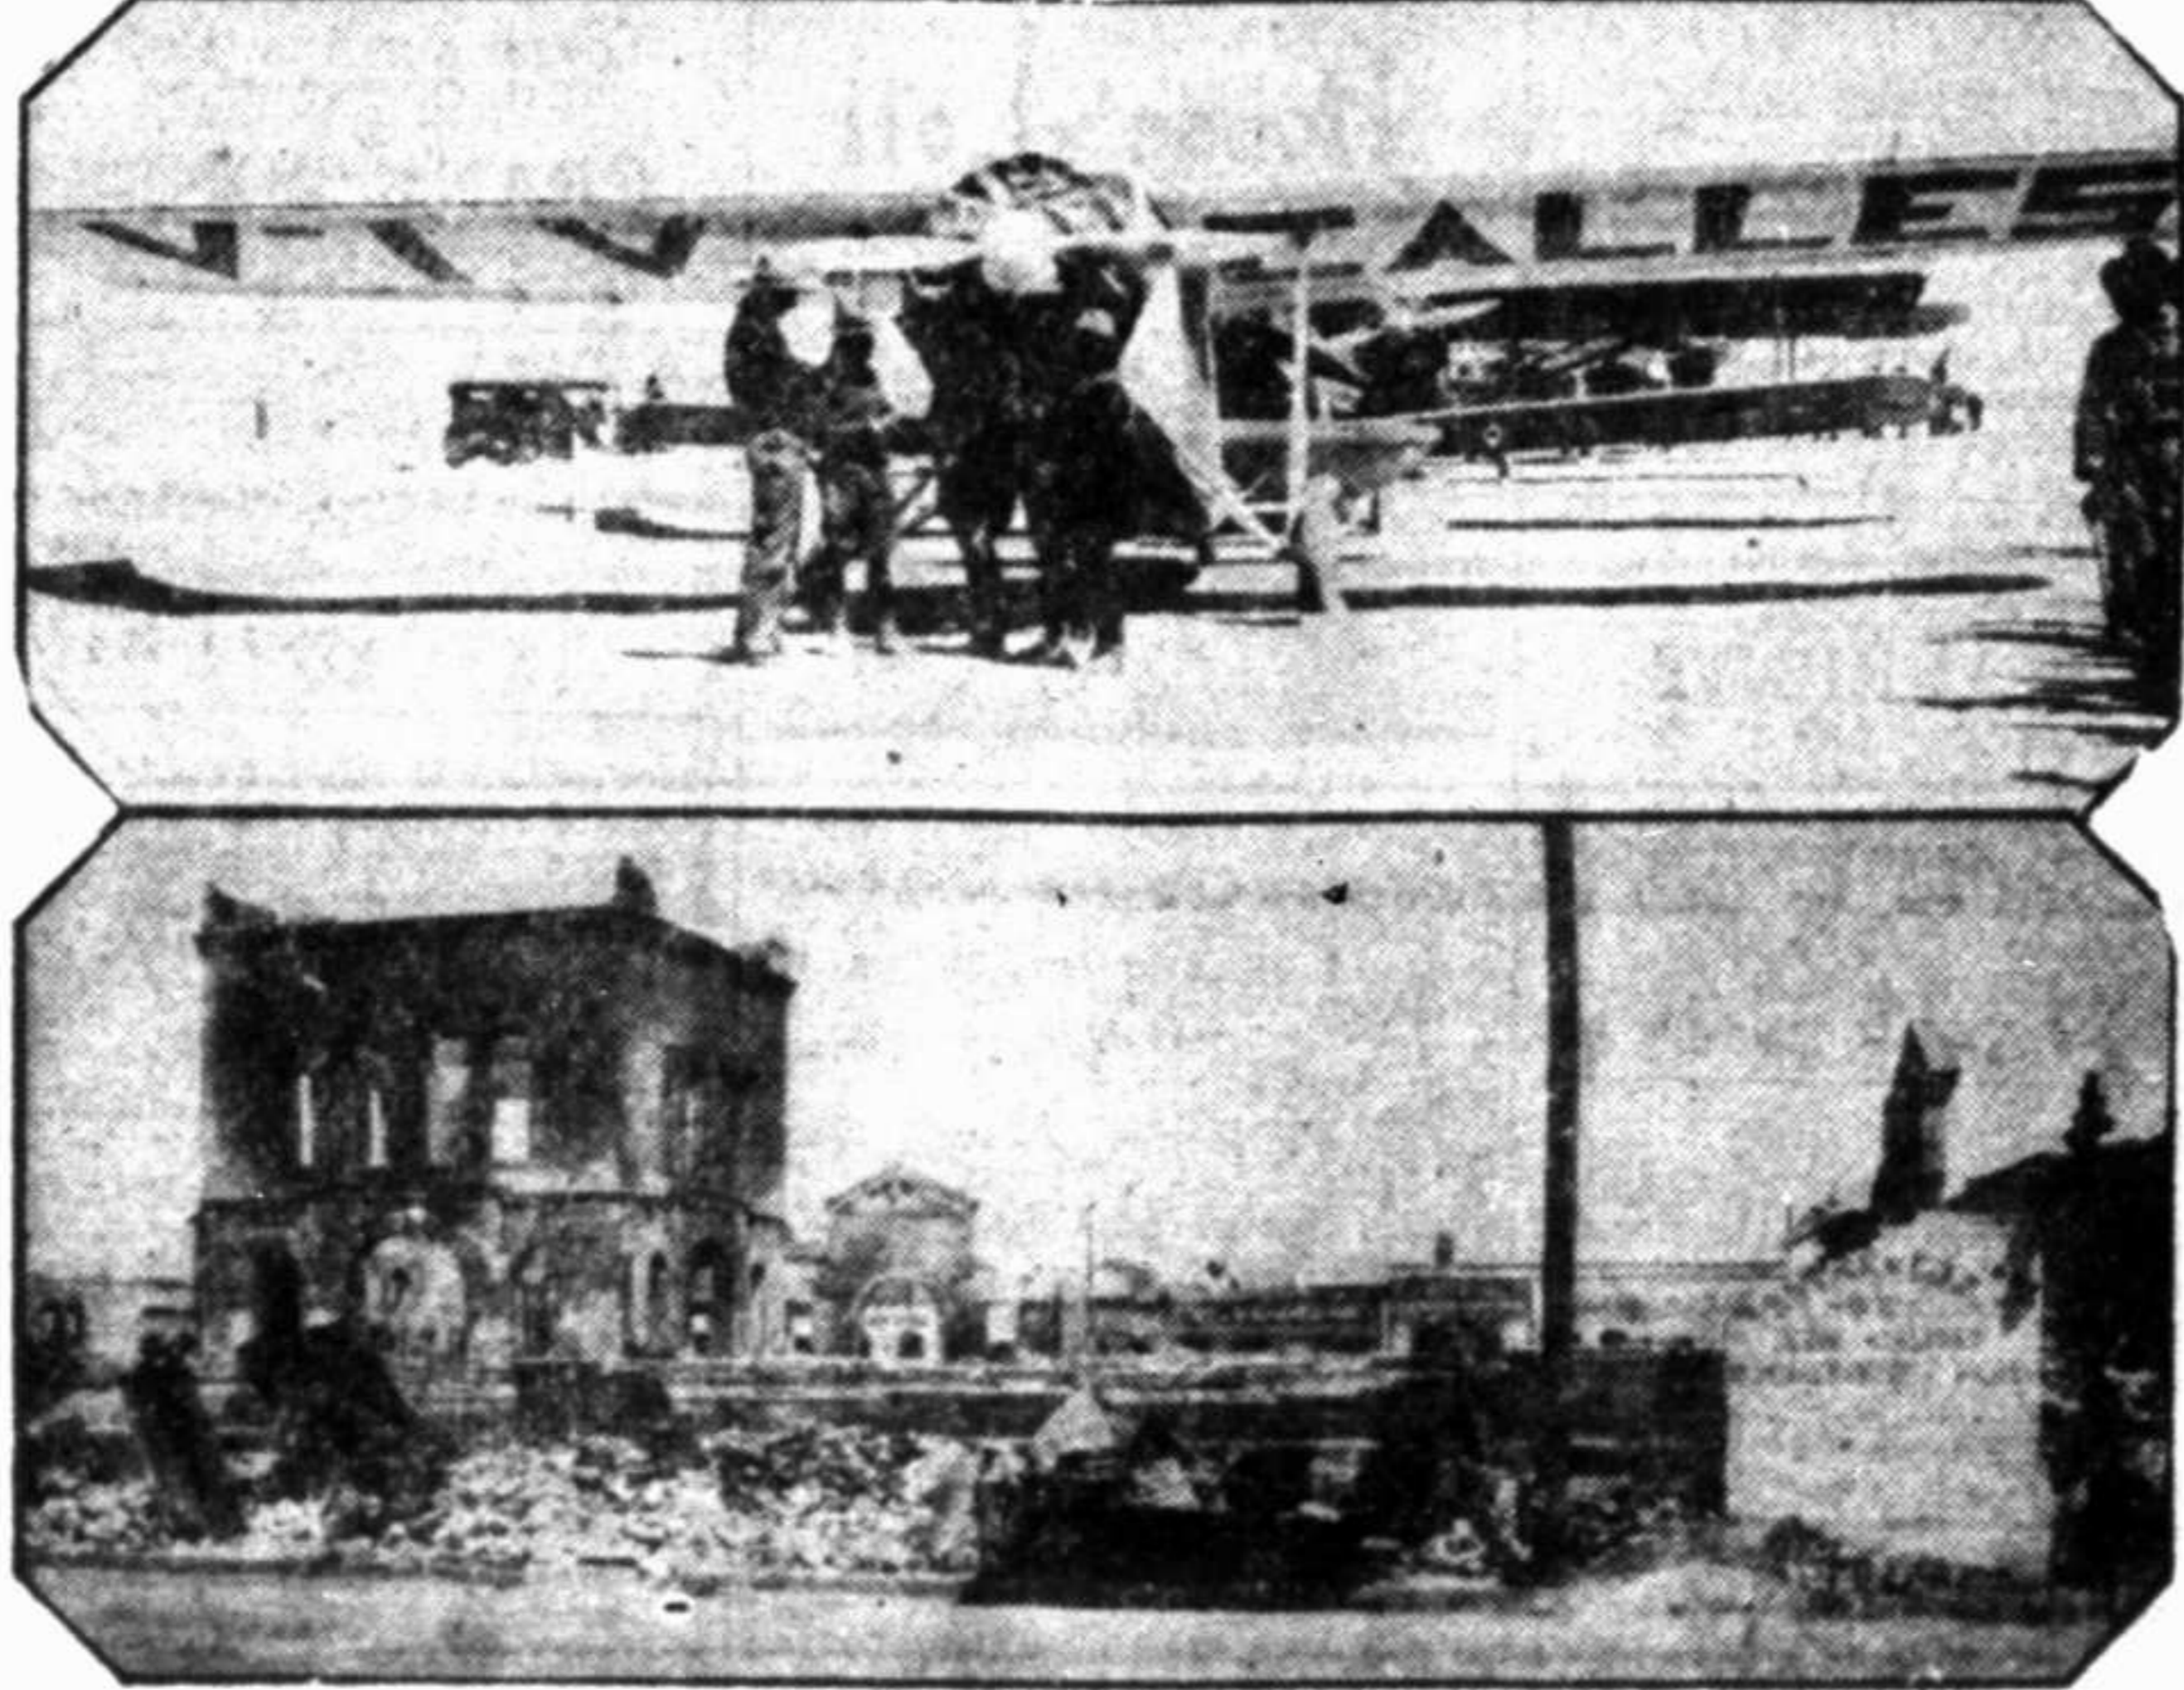

L. I. Bear Jr., three-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Housour, of Slaton, who was thought to be lost early Friday afternoon, when he made his disappearance from a local variety store while his mother, Mrs. W. L. Housour, and grandmother, Mrs. John W. Harrison, were shopping, only went calling on a sick "pal" at the Lubbock sanitarium.

The young man who was the object of much anxiety for the mother and a small searching party of friends for some hour and a half, was found by the mother who acted upon the advice of a friend who suggested that she notify the city police. No quicker had she called than the desk sergeant inquired, "Are you Mrs. Housour?" The answer was "Yes." The sergeant then said "Well, your little son is at the Lubbock sanitarium." The receiver went up after "Oh! I thank you." And Mrs. Housour hurriedly made her way two and one-half blocks to the sanitarium.

Glenn Was Better.
As Mrs. Housour entered the foyer of the building the young son eagerly inquired, "Mother, did you know Glenn was better?" The answer was "No, I didn't know he was better. But how come you here?" Mrs. Housour inquired, only to receive the answer, "I wanted to see Glenn, and I saw him." A new smile which W. L. Jr. brought to town was still tightly clutched in the chubby little fist.

Glenn Scroggin, age three, little son of Mr. and Mrs. G. Scroggin of Slaton, and neighbor "pal" of W. L. Jr., is a patient in the Lubbock sanitarium where he has suffered for almost two months from pneumonia and other complications, and has been sorely missed by Master Housour since he has been away. However, Mrs. Housour had not expected that her young son had taken this opportunity to visit his sick friend, making traffic lights and dodging speeding cars from the downtown business section of the city he made his way up Broadway to the sanitarium.

"Viva Calles" On Mexican Airplane Wings

Here is a new method of spreading what might be called propaganda in the Mexican revolution. On the under sides of the wings of many of the federal planes as shown in the photo above are the words "Viva Calles." It might be added that nearly all the rebels have a wholesome respect for the military ability of Secretary of War Calles and naturally the message from the air doesn't cheer them up any. Below is a view of buildings in Turron, wrecked during the revolution.

This addition will make the hotel eleven stories in height.

BROWNFIELD, April 19.—Brownfield is arranging to send a large delegation to the district convention of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce which is to be held in Tahoka on April 24, but will "not" undertake to secure the next meeting as it is not thought that it would be fair to other towns in the district to undertake to hold the convention in one corner for more than 70 years.

Fruit Fly Found Close to Mercedes

EDINBURG, April 19 (AP)—The Morales fruit fly has appeared in the Rio Grande Valley and citrus growers have been ordered to take immediate steps to eradicate it. M. H. Federals Make Air Raid Near Nogales

NOGALES, Sonora, Mexico, April 19 (AP)—Three federal airplanes, dropping bombs without apparent damage and the third scattering pamphlets, this morning made the second air raid on this rebel stronghold since the outbreak of the Mexican revolution a month and a half ago. The pamphlets, signed by the former rebel leader, Francisco Manero and Pedro Bernal, asked the rebels to join the federal cause.

Stocks Again Face Calm Awaiting On Action In Europe

When Taken By Reparations Conference In Paris Is Not Inspiration To Wall Street; Sales Fall Off

NEW YORK, April 19.—The stock market again was becalmed today as speculative enthusiasm waned at the negligible drop of $2,000,000 in brokers loans and the critical action reached by the reparations conference.

Many larger corporations are turning to foreign markets for maintenance of their high rates of production, particularly the automobile manufacturers, the turn taken by the negotiations in Paris did inspire confidence.

The call money rate held at 7 per cent. Time money also was the easier. An unexplained meeting of the Federal Reserve board in Washington, however, caused uncertainty, although the meeting was thought general to have bearing on reparations rather than speculative action.

Business news remained generally favorable. Total sales on the stock market fell off to near the 3,000,000 level, about 700,000 shares yesterday's turnover. About a dozen of important issues made substantial headway, but as measured Associated Press price indices, gains and losses about cancelled each other.

American B again was a strong spot in the odds climbing 3/8 to another peak New Haven duplicated its high of the 1/8.

Apples again turned heavy. Anaconda, Greene Cananea, and Calumet and Arizona losing 2 or 3/8.

Commodity markets were easy. Wheat dropped about 2 cents a bushel, then rallied on reports of export demand. Cotton futures closed barely steady as some came into the market on reports of better weather. Sugar futures sagged slightly.

Cotton Prices Go Down From 5 To 15 Points Friday

NEW YORK, April 19. (AP)—An early advance in cotton today on relatively steady cables was followed by declines under a renewal of near-month liquidation combined with some local and Southern selling.

The opening was steady at an advance of 8 points to a decline of 4 points, with active months soon showing net gains of 6 to 12 points on covering by recent sellers, trade buying of near positions and some commission house demand for the later months. This buying evidently was influenced by the relatively firm showing of Liverpool and some uncertainty as to weather developments over the week-end, while the advance was accompanied by talk of a firmer technical position. Reports that a levee south of Helena, Ark. was under a strain also caused comment. Demand tapered off around 20:34 for May and 19:52 for December, and prices worked lower during the afternoon.

There seemed no sufficient certainty of unfavorable weather developments over Sunday to offset the favorable showing of the day's weather and as prices soon showed here, probably was liquidation or reselling by early buyers. The close was at the lowest, showing declines of about 15 to 20 points from the high level of the morning on most positions.

A report that curtailment of production was to become effective Monday in some German mills and continued unfavorable trade reports from Manchester possibly may have been contributing factors on the decline, which, however, was most generally attributed to the near-month liquidation and the more favorable view of the prospective new crop start. Cable advices from Liverpool said there had been covering trade calling and some replacing in that market, but asserted that sales of cotton cloths were below production and that more looms were becoming idle.

Experts today, 25,826 making 7,184,018 so far this season. Port receipts 8,208. U. S. port stocks 1,477,941.

New Census Bill Is Placed Before Senate Committee

Unemployment Survey Will Be Included In 1930 Census, Is Proposal; Jones Introduces Measure.

(By Associated Press) WASHINGTON, April 19.—A new census bill providing for inclusion of an unemployment survey in the 1930 census was placed before the Senate commerce committee today by Chairman Jones and endorsed by Secretary Lamont of the Department of Commerce. The measure of Senator Jones also would set the date for the taking of census as of November 1 rather than May 1 as was proposed in the bill passed last session by the House.

Included In Session The census bill is included in the administration's program for the extra session and Senator Jones indicated an intention to get the measure passed before the Senate. William M. Stewart, director of the census, supported the views of Secretary Lamont on the unemployment survey and the November date. The Jones measure would provide $40,000,000 for taking the 1930 census. Stewart estimated the cost of the unemployment survey would amount to $1,000,000. The bill taken on today by the Senate committee provides that the 1930 census shall include population, agriculture, irrigation, drainage, distribution, unemployment and mines.

Heiress-Bride Is Missing In Gotham

NEW YORK, April 19 (AP)—The Daily News said that Thomas Gorm, 26, Port Washington real estate dealer, was perturbed today over his inability to find his heiress-bride, Natalia Guggenheim, 18, and feared that she was being sent to Europe.

According to the secretary of Edmund A. Guggenheim, copper magnate and father of the bride, Mrs. Gorm spent today with her parents in New York but the bridegroom was unable to find her and his attempts to telephone her at the Guggenheim home failed. When he found that Mrs. Guggenheim had engaged a suite on the Aquitania, sailing tomorrow, his concern was increased. He learned that the reservation had been cancelled late today.

The statement tentatively promised for today from Mr. Guggenheim, who opposed the marriage, was not given out.

FELT SO DIZZY SHE STAGGERED

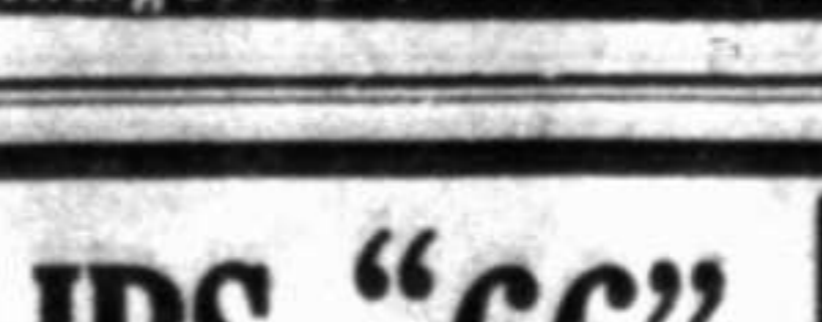

Began Taking Black-Draught and "Felt Fine." Says Complexion Improved.

Columbia, S. C.—"Three years ago I suffered with indigestion; was dizzy and felt dull so that I could not keep going," says Mrs. E. T. Sharp, 721 Seventh Street, this city. "I would stagger around from dizziness, and I felt wretched."

"I had used it in my home practically all my life, and so I began to take it for this trouble. "I was yellow as gold. My color was awful."

"I began taking Black-Draught, night and morning, until I had taken four doses, and then I waited awhile, and took some more. "I found it did me a great deal of good, for the poison left my system, and I began to have a good appetite. I would get hungry before meal-time. My complexion cleared up and I felt fine."

"I have used Black-Draught for years in my home for constipation. I have found it a splendid medicine for my children. I give it to them for colds, and constipation, and I notice that in a few days after they have taken it, they brighten up and enjoy good health."
