U. S. Forts Hit Two Powerful Blows At Nazis

Rail Networks For Troop Movements Severely Pounded

By EDWARD D. BALL
Associated Press Staff Writer

LONDON, March 4. — American Flying Fortresses struck two powerful new pre-invasion blows in daylight today, heavily bombing Hamm, key of a vast German rail network over which Hitler would have to move troops to meet Allied armies in western Europe, and Rotterdam, which might become a landing point for armies striking the continent.

The American raid carried on the the Allied aerial offensive to western Germany's most important wartime communications center following the eighth successive night raid in which the RAF subjected Hamburg to a devastating fire and explosive bath.

RAF OUT AGAIN

LONDON, March 4 (AP)—The Paris radio went off the air at 10 p. m. tonight in the middle of a news broadcast, indicating that British bombers were over the continent for the ninth straight night.

Five Forts Lost

Five Fortresses were lost in the Hamm raid but they destroyed at least 14 of a strong German fighter force.

The Germans countered with two weak passes at London last night and before dawn today with a few planes compared to the huge Allied armadas striking at the Reich.

Hamm lies 140 miles east of Rotterdam at the junction of six German trunk railways reaching across the breadth of Germanw. It was the first U.S. raid on that target which the RAF had assaulted 84 times, particularly in the days preceding the fall of France. The lines connect with others running to the most important invasion ports on the west and north coasts of Europe.

The successive raids on Hamm between June and November of 1940 were credited with playing a large part in disruptnig any plans Hitler may have had of invading Britain.

Over Hamburg last night, the British lost ten bombers in "a heavy attack." Unspecified targets in western Germany also were bombed and fighters made intruder patrols over Holland, destroying an enemy raider.

HERO'S SON WEARS DECORATION—Six-months-old Rock W. Burney, whose father 2nd Lt. Willis W. Burney of Artesia was an Air Force bomberdier in Netherlands East Indies action, will have much to cherish when he grows up. Posthumous award of the Purple Heart and the DSC was made to Mrs. Burney at Randolph Field ceremonies. Presenting the medal is Maj. Gen. Gerald C. Brant, commanding general of the Gulf Coast Training center, with, left to right, Roane Waring of Memphis, Tenn., national commander of the American Legion, Mrs. Burney holding the baby, and Col. Walter C. White, commanding officer at Randolph Field.

Cotton Acreage To Be Increased

(By The Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, March 4. — A ten per cent increase in the national cotton planting allotment for 1943 as a means of producing more vegetable oil for food and protein feeds for livestock will be announced soon by Agriculture Secretary Wickard, it was learned today from authoritative officials.

Cottonseed is a source of vegetable oil and protein feed.

Agriculture department sources who cannot be named said that marketing quotas under which stiff cash penalties are imposed on sales in excess of allotments will be retained.

Food Crops Urged

The new allotment will total about 30,030,000 acres. The national allotment is apportioned among individual farmers on the basis of a formula set up in the agricultural adjustment act.

As announced last fall the figure was 27,300,000 acres or the minimum allowed under the AAA act. However, farmers were asked at that time to plant only 22,500,000 acres, or about three per cent less than was seeded in 1942, and to put the unplanted portion of their allotments into war food croops, particularly peanuts and soybeans for vegetable oils, fruits and vegetables.

Insanity Approved As Cause For Divorce

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., March 4 (AP) — Incurable insanity will be grounds for divorce in Arkansas if Gov. Homer M. Adkins signs a bill on which legislative action was completed today.

The measure, defeated 11-15 Monday but reconsidered and passed 20-6 by the Senate today, would require the insane spouse to have been in an aslym or private institution for three years and pronounced incurable before a divorce could be granted. A husband would be required to continue to provide for the care and treatment of a wife divorced on such grounds.

Woman With Baby Trips On Steps, Raid Shelter Turns Into Well Of Death For 178

(By The Associated Press)

LONDON, March 4—A woman carrying a baby tripped near the bottom of a subway stairway during the German air raid on London last night, and within a minute the 19 steps became a well of death where 178 persons perished in a pile-up and 60 were injured.

The woman was rescued alive, but her baby was killed.

Sixty of the dead were children. Whole families were wiped out in the strange tragedy, and tonight a line of weeping women filed through a mortuary in an effort to identify some of the bodies.

No Sign Of Panic

Among the dead was Dick Corbett, former bantamweight boxing champion of England and the empire.

There was "no sign of panic before the accident," and no bombs fell near the subway station which served as an air raid shelter, a ministry of home security statement said.

The ministry statement explained the accident this way:

"There were nearly 2,000 in the shelter, including several hundred who arrived after the alert, when a middle-aged woman burdened with a bundle and a baby tripped near the foot of a flight of 19 steps which leads down from the street.

"This flight terminates on a landing. The woman fell down the last two or three steps and lay on the landing. Her fall tripped an elderly man behind her and he fell similarly.

Others Tripped In Turn

"Their bodies again tripped up those behind them and within a few seconds a large number of people were lying on the lower steps and the landing, completely blocking the stairway.

"Those coming in from the street could not see exactly what had taken place and continued to press down the steps so that, within a minute, there were hundreds of people crushed together and lying on top of one another, covering the landing the lower steps."

Soldiers, police, civilians and members of the women's volunteer service removed the injured and dead from the pit long after the German raiders had departed.

Two Men Indicted In Slaying Of Soldier

PALO PINTO, Tex., March 4. (AP) — H. C. Whitlock and Ed Brown, both of Gorman, Texas, have been indicted by a Palo Pinto grand jury in connection with the knife slaying of John Bolan, Camp Barkeley soldier, at Mingus, Texas, January 9.

A special venire of 100 men has been called for each case and the tsials are to begin March 15.

Labor In Texas Signs Compact

(By The Associated Press)

AUSTIN, March 4.—A sweeping labor-government compact which Gov. Coke R. Stevenson asserted would insure uninterrupted production of war materials in Texas was announced today by the chief executive.

Disclosure of the agreement, signed March 2 by Stevenson and seven labor union leaders, followed closely on passage to third reading by the Texas House of Representatives of a measure which opponents labeled as a slap at organized labor.

The bill would require the registration of labor unions.

Points Of Agreement

The agreement between Stevenson and labor union representatives embodies:

(1) A pledge by labor that no strikes, slow-downs, lock-outs or work stoppages of any nature in Texas for the war's duration.

(2) A promise by Stevenson that the executive branch of the state government will not interfere with industry or labor in any manner that will impede maximum war production.

(3 An understanding permitting the governor to use any and all powers at his command to stop or prevent unauthorized strikes,

Giant Naval Hospital Slated For Houston

WASHINGTON, March 4. (AP)—A $4,000,000 naval hospital probably will be built in the Houston area with funds contained in a naval appropriations bill pending in the House, Representative Thomas (D-Texas) said today.

The bill itself contains only a lump sum appropriation for public buildings construction and does not earmark any specific amount for hospitals.

Bombers Wipe Out Last Remnants Of Bold Jap Armada

Two Destroyers Found Afloat Are Sunk And 27 More Nip Planes Are Shot Down

(By The Associated Press)

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN AUSTRALIA, Friday, March 5.—The remnants of the Japanese convoy of 22 ships—10 warships and 12 transports—have been wiped out, the Allied high command announced today.

This complete destruction of the convoy in the Bismarck Sea, which involved the loss of some 15,000 Jap troops bound for Lae, New Guinea involved in its closing phases the sinking of two remaining destroyers afloat.

Called Major Disaster

The complete annihilation added to a triumph which already had been acclaimed by General Douglas MacArthur and Under Secretary of War Robert Patterson as constituting a major distaster to Japan, upsetting the enemy's war time table.

Twenty-seven more Japanese planes have been shot down in the latest operations, bringing to 82 the total of enemy planes destroyed or put out of action.

Barges and lifeboats carrying convoy survivors also have been destroyed.

Off Finschhafen, New Guinea, where Allied planes began their devastating attack on Tuesday, "our heavy units . . . strafed and sank lifeboats off shore endeavoring to make land," the communique said.

"Power barges loaded with troops from the sunken transports were destroyed with all on board."

Only Floating Wreckage

"Intensive and widespread searches by our reconnaissance aircraft (in the Huon gulf) early yesterday morning failed to reveal any remaining trace of the enemy convoy in the entire area beyond floating wreckage and occasionally lifeboats and barges containing troops.

"Two damaged destroyers which had lasted during the (Wednesday) night were attacked, hit and sunk. Barges, lifeboats and rafts still afloat were strafed and sunk. Four enemy fighters were encountered and shot down without loss to ourselves."

Thus in three days after beginning the battle off the southernmost tip of New Britain, along whose north coast the convoy had sought to steal from Rabaul under protection of bad weather, MacArthur's air arm had cost the enemy an Army as large as that with which for six months battled before losing the Papuan peninsula of New Guinea.

Now the Allied ground forces

Americans Push On In Tunisia

Rommel Massing Armor At Mareth

By WES GALLAGHER
Associated Press Staff Writer

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NORTH AFRICA, March 4. (AP)—American troops captured Sidi Bouzid and reached a point three miles west of Faid Pass, today as Marshal Rommel surrendered virtually all his costly gains in central Tunisia and massed his armor in the Mareth line where the British Eighth Army has wheeled up for a decisive assault.

Paying the terrific price of very heavy casualties, other German forces in the north, west of Bizerte, pushed the British Army back four miles in the Sedjenane sector near the Tabarka-Mateur road. The Allied communique said all other attacks in the north were repulsed.

Most Of Area Retaken

Now at the portals of Faid Pass which Rommel used as a springboard to wrest 4,000 square miles in a massive gamble to turn the flank of the British First Army, the Americans and Allied forces had rewon most of the lost territory save for Gafsa and the desert wastes that lie near that oasis.

Gen. Eisenhower's communique said of the Mareth action:

"Enemy infantry advancing east in the Mareth area were successfully engaged and repulsed by our light armored forces. The enemy has reinforced his infantry with tanks in this area."

The Mareth line of pillboxes, barbed wire entanglements, swamps and gun emplacements was under continuing assault from Allied bombers.

The Allies employed their growing air superiority in all sectors of the front, striking hard behind the lines as well as at airfields and targets at Tunis, Gabes, roads in the south and enemy ground targets in the north.

GREEK DAY PROCLAIMED

AUSTIN, March 4 (AP) — Gov. Coke R. Stevenson today proclaimed March 25 Greek day in Texas.

Congratulations To:

Lt. and Mrs. Edward Abengton on the birth of a son weighing 8 pounds at 10:29 p. m., Thursday in the West Texas hospital. Lt. Abengton is a squadron flight commander stationed in South Africa. Mrs. Abengton is living with Mr. and Mrs. H. G. Sanders, Slaton.

Corp. and Mrs. R. L. Smart of Frederick, Okla., on the birth of a daughter weighing 9 pounds 4 ounces at 6:43 p. m., Thursday, in the West Texas hospital.

Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Scott of Hobbs, on the birth of a son weighing 8 pounds 14 1-2 ounces at 11:10 p. m., Thursday, in the West Texas hospital. Scott is a civilian employee at the Hobbs air base.

Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Hendricks of Ropesville, on the birth of a daughter weighing 5 pounds 11 ounces, at 11:10 p. m., Thursday, in the West Texas hospital.

Point Ration Buyers Can Take Heart—

Many Foods Yet Unrationed Are Listed By District Office

A WIDE variety of foods ranging from the popular standby, peanut butter, to hearts of artichokes still are unrationed.

In answer to numerous inquiries, the Lubbock district office of the OPA listed some of the foods not included in the ration order under which persons must surrender points from their war ration book two.

Unrationed foods include: artichoke paste; bread or cake with raisins, including brown bread; candied fruits; capers; cereals; cane syrup, chocolate syrup, condiment sauces, other than those containing a base of tomato products, and corn syrup; bitters, bouillon cubes and powders; date and nut bread; dehydrated vegetables, hermetically packed; dried mushrooms, hermetically packed; frozen fruits and vegetables in containers over 10 pounds; fruit and vegetable flavoring extracts; fruit syrups and similar products other than full strength or concentrated fruit or vegetable juices; fruit and vegetable juices in containers over one gallon; fruit cakes; fruit puddings; gravy mixes; health foods

JAPS MEET DISASTER—Allied Flying Fortresses and Liberator bombers annihilated a Japanese sea armada in the Bismarck Sea (arrow), destroying ten warships and 12 transports (1) and downing 55 planes, at the same time continuing land base attacks on Lae (2), apparent destination of the huge Jap Convoy.

Specific Price Ceilings Set On Pork Effective April 1 On Two-Way Sectional Basis

(By The Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, March 4.—Pork will come under specific price ceilings April 1 in retail stores all over the United States, OPA announced tonight, and similar top prices will be set soon for beef, veal, lamb and mutton.

The Office of Price Administration said the new ceilings will curb black markets, distribute available supplies more equitably and assure housewives that they are not being overcharged.

The specific ceilings are not uniform all over the country. As an example, the top retail price of center cut pork chops will range from 39 cents to 44 cents a pound. This ariation is explained by the OPA's division of the country into sections, each getting separate ceilings, and its allowance of bigger markups to independent stores doing less than $250,000 business a year than it permits larger stores and chains.

Divided Into Ten Zones

In establishing the two prices the country was divided into ten zones, prices varying slightly in some instances from zone to zone.

Maximum prices were quoted on slight bacon (de-rined, smoked) grade A; skinned, smoked ham, center slices; skinned, smoked whole ham; center cut pork chops (fresh or frozen pork loins); and salt pork.

The two ceilings for these five products in the order named, were listed in cents per pound, as follows:

Zone four (principal cities include Houston and Dallas and Oklahoma City): sliced bacon (derined, smoked) grade A, 47 and 46; skinned, smoked ham, center slices, 61 and 58; skinned, smoked whole ham, 41 and 39; center cut pork chops, fresh or frozen pork loin, 42 and 41; salt pork (dry salt bellies, fresh, cured or frozen) 25 and 24.

Charles M. Elkinton, an OPA price executive, predicted the specific pork ceilings, "if effectively enforced" along with al-

House Approves Bill On Chiros

(By The Associated Press)

AUSTIN, March 4.—By a vote of 62 to 57 the House today passed finally, sending to the Senate, a bill regulating and licensing chiropractors.

Efforts to recommit the highly controversial measure to committee for further consideration failed.

The bill sets up educational qualifications for chiropractors and requires that those now practicing submit to examination by a state board of examiners. The chiropractic profession is not now regulated in Texas.

Curfew Bill Referred

Final passage of the bill—which can be altered in the Senate—followed a House vote sending back to committee for further hearing a drinking curfew bill which was awaiting a final vote.

A 75 to 40 vote to recommit the bill, transformed into a Sunday prohibition measure by amendment, was seen as a victory for the wets.

Rep. Tom W. Deen of Floydada made a "protect the soldier boys" plea, and pointed out that a majority of the House had favored

Kincheloe Trial Jury Completed

(By The Associated Press)

AMARILLO, March 4. — Selection of a jury was completed today for the trial of John Kincheloe, 64, charged in connection with the slaying of his son, Clark, on Christmas day, 1941. Testimony is scheduled to begin tomorrow.

Four hundred men were questioned during the past four days in picking the jury.

The case was brought here from Dallam county on a change of venue. The son, 31 at the time he was shot to death at the foot of the family Christmas tree, had come with his wife from their Alamogordo, N. M. home for a holiday visit with his parents at their farm home nine miles northeast of Dalhart.

Sitting Down To Dinner

Clark was slain just before the family planned to sit down for a late afternoon Christmas dinner. Sheriff H. D. Foust said after the shooting that the son was shot once as he ran into the room where the Christmas tree was set up, and three more times as he lay sprawled at its foot.

Coroner A. M. Reese returned a verdict that Clark was slain "by pistol shots fired by his father."

Midland Flier Dies In Crash Near Kelly

SAN ANTONIO, March 4 (AP) — William Scott Luton, 24, a student in the central instructors school at Kelly field, was killed in the crash of his primary training plane yesterday afternoon, the field's public relations office announced today.

The accident occurred near the airdrome while Luton was on a local flight.

Luton was the son of Mr. and Mrs. O. M. Luton of Midland. He attended the University of Oklahoma from 1937 to 1941.

Wickard Gloomy On Production Outlook

WASHINGTON, March 5. (AP)—Secretary of Agriculture Claude Wickard was described by Senator Bankhead (D-Ala.) today as "increasingly alarmed" over the general food production outlook.

Bankhead said that when Wickard was testifying before the Senate Agriculture sub-committee he was asked about the prospect of getting the same acreage into cultivation this year as last and replied "it doesn't look good now."

A cheerful note in the farm situation was the agriculture department's announcement that wool production in 1942 was 459,073,000 pounds, the largest on record. This compared with 456,368,000 pounds in 1941.

"Praise The Lord And Pass The Lotion"—

SPAFS Wives Determinedly Start Victory Farm Work

IT'S "praise the Lord and pass the sunburn lotion. . . ."

But wives of enlisted men and officers at South Plains Army Flying School are still determined that they're going to make this victory farm of theirs a success.

The women, decked out in slacks and with hoes and rakes ready, took the preliminary steps Thursday afternoon toward putting into operation an oversize "garden" of some eight acres. For many of the women it was their first real taste—and that's putting it mildly, sir—of South Plains farming. But "we are going to show the pessimists" was the retort as one of the group climbed aboard a tractor and took a few turns at clearing the land of brush.

To Start Sowing Soon

As soon as the soil is ready for planting and the irrigation system is completed in the next few days, the women will return with seeds and begin sowing away for that rainy day which threatens to hit the cupboards of all of them.

Farm experts on hand for the ground breaking ceremonies estimated that enough food could be

Mahon Disappointed On Alcohol Plants

WASHINGTON, March 4 (AP)—After the War Production board announced selection of sites for five new plants to make alcohol from grain—none in Texas—Representative Mahon (D-Tex) expressed disappointment today and asserted "I shall continue to press for a plant in West Texas to utilize grain sorghum, wheat and other grains produced there."

Mahon said that in case additional plants are necessary he would urge selection of a site in his state.

VICTORY LAUDED

OTTAWA, Ont., March 4. Drive In North Routs Germans And Many Slain

Troops In South Also Threatening Nazi Rail Artery

(By The Associated Press)

LONDON, Friday, March 5—The Red Army has regained control of the Moscow-Velikie Luki railway in the drive toward the Latvian frontier, has routed two more German garrisons below Lake Ilmen, and is threatening to cut the main Nazi rail artery linking Bryansk and Kiev in the south, two Soviet communiques disclosed today.

A special communique announced the capture of Olenino, 35 miles west of fallen Rzhev on the frozen central front, giving the Russians full control of the 270-mile stretch of railway between Moscow and Velikie Luki and accelerating the drive toward the Lativian frontier only 80 miles away.

Northern Edge Of Ukraine

A 25-mile gain in the Dmitriev-Lgov sector on the northern edge of the Ukraine found the Russians occupying Sevsk, only 20 miles from the vital Bryansk-Kiev railway, and the regular midnight bulletin said several more unidentified localities were seized in this push toward the junction city of Konotop, one of the Nazi bases protecting the approaches to the Dnieper river defense line.

Both communiques were recorded here by the Soviet monitor.

A total of 6,000 Germans were killed and 300 captured in the four-day fight that ended Wednesday with the capture of Lgvo, said the second bulletin recorded by the Soviet radio monitor.

Altogether approximately 2,000 enemy troops were reported killed during yesterday's fighting on the various fronts, and Marshal Timoshenko's troops striking on the northwest front toward Staraya Russa below Lake Ilmen were said to have broken and routed two German garrisons which had sought to defend two populated places.

Wounded Abandoned

"The enemy retreating hastily abandoned on the battle field his wounded and war materials," the communique said of this front northwest of Moscow.

Scores of Russian hamlets were reported retaken west and southwest of Rzhev in the Russian sweep toward Smolensk, 130 miles to the southwest. Stockholm dispatches said the Germans also

Food Rioting In America Feared

(By The Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, March 4—Rep. Sumner (R-Ill) in an attack on government agency proposals to grade label canned goods, told the House today that canners "think it is likely that within 12 months we shall see food riots in America."

"Canners are warning the public now that grade labeling is one of the restrictions thought up by the administration that will help cause food shortages," she said.

Miss Sumner urged the House to press the rules committee for approval of a resolution by Rep. Halleck (D-Ind) asking an investigation of the grade label proposal.

Ruin Standard Names

She warned, as did Halleck recently, that such labeling would do away with standard brand names "that may have taken a canner 50 years to build up."

Such standard labels "are a valuable property asset," she asserted.

"The administration says that, because the trade grades its products in selling to distributors, according to whether a batch of cans is choice or standard, that the trade should not object to having government inspectors over them making them grade each little can. You have to know the canning business to understand how disgusted canners get at the thought

Lubbock Bomber Pilot Tells Of Thrills In Raid On Wake

This is a story of modern-day missionaries who dropped an Occidental Christmas on the Japanese on Wake island—500-pound "firecrackers" that caught the Nips peacefully dreaming of rapine and plunder and blew them loose from their vermin-infested bvd's and into whatever sort of kingdom come that'll have them.

It relates of 'teen age boys and those in their early twenties who flew almost around the clock to get there, tension building up like manifold pressure, and 76,000 pounds of bombs being dropped on little yellow men who had battered down a classic 16-day defense by U. S. Marines.

Few Minutes Before Midnight

It was just a few minutes before midnight. In a few minutes it would be Christmas. It was 100 miles back yonder when Col. William A. Matheny looked back from his Liberator cockpit, grinned tightly when he saw his flights holding close formation in the luminous Pacific night—great warbirds with more than 100-foot wingspread and with gizzards stuffed with steel and TNT.

He flipped a switch, uttered a clipped reassurance and ordered no further communication between the droning units.

Skippers and co-pilots and flight engineers and bombardiers and gunners all knew what that meant. They knew where they were going, what each was to do when they got there.

Radio Silence Thereafter

Second Lt. Billy J. Klein, 22-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Klein of 2430 Twenty-sixth street, pilot flying point in the last flight, and his skipper sitting there before row on row of instruments and gadgets, caught the changed inflection of the fighting colonel Thereaffer there was radio silence, only an occasional "intercom" message from the pilot to one of the other stations in a particular ship.

Every pilot was looking at the green glow of his wrist watch. Two minutes till midnight . . . one and a half minutes . . . one and a quarter.

Then . . .

"This is it, boys," the radio blared; "I'm going to get those yellow —— !"

Others Peel Off

Succeeding flights in the long formation did a sky "fall-out" and lit out for their individual targets —long lines of Jap barracks, gasoline and oil tanks, tankers, ground installations — "anything that moved or kept still."

Party Had Begun

The Christmas party had begun!

Vivid flame blossomed on Wake island before Lt. Klein's plane reached its objective, and the island "seemed on fire from one end to the other."

Then it was his turn.

"Pilot to bombardier: Bomb bays open?"

"Bombardier to pilot: Bomb bays open."

"Pilot to bombardier: On course?"

"Bombardier to pilot: On course. Hold altitude and course."

The bombardier at that moment was leveling his sight and getting set up. He was over his target. Then:

"Bombardier to pilot: Bombs away!"

"Pilot to bombardier: Bombs away."

Every Egg Laid

The pilot at the same instant zoomed upward mightily and turned back on the home course. Every hard-boiled egg had been laid. Off to the left and right were the other two giants of the last flight, their four Pratt and Whitneys thundering toward the upper reaches.

Only then could all hands take time for observing results.

Down below in the long line of what had been barracks nothing moved. Wake island burned like tinder. So did Peale island. So did Peacock point. What didn't?

Here and there Japs were scuttling about in their underwear.

Then came the first ack-ack—6,000 feet too high and two miles away from the nearest U. S. plane. A few machine gun bullets began flying about wildly, and two searchlights probed the milling sky but almost immediately went out.

"Tail and nose gunners had been ordered to shoot out any searchlights they saw," Lt. Klein said.

Saw No Jap Ships

"I saw no Jap ships, but about four did get into the air—or maybe three or them were already there. One of our boys dropped a bomb directly behind the tail of the one ship that was seen to get off the pocked runways. The Zeros were timid. Only one, so far as I know, even took a shot at us —and he was out of range. Even a Jap couldn't figure much percentage in three Zeros hopping out dozens of Liberators when three Liberators numerous times have fought 25 Zeros off and gone on their missions."

The boys could look back and see the fires 75 miles on their homeward way.

Longest Yet Staged

The raid was the longest—more bomb tonnage dropped—of any yet staged in the Pacific.

It has estimated that half the Jap defenders were killed. Not an American was touched. Only one ship was marked, and only slightly.

All who participated in the flight—even to the enlisted men—were awarded the Air Medal upon their return.

Lt. Klein, who will leave today for the west coast after a 14-day leave, was graduated in August of 1941 from the business administration school of Texas Technological college. That same month he was accepted by the Air Corps, reporting Dec. 1—six days before Pearl Harbor. He received primary training at Camp Hicks, basic at Goodfellow field, advanced at Kelly, getting his commission Aug. 1 and taking off the next day for the west coast and taking a boat for the Hawaiian islands. He flew night patrol in a vicious twin-engine job until a forced landing at sea—involving such fast loss of altitude that his right eardrum burst—sent him to a hospital 20 days. He was transferred to four-engine craft—B-17 (Flying Fortresses)—and sent on several missions in various sectors of the South Pacific. But the ear condition affected him all the while, so his commanding officer sent him back to the Hawaiian islands to be reclassified.

To Be Married Soon

He was put in a B-24 group (Liberators) on the island. Then the Wake raid. He returned to the Hawaiians with an ear condition steadily worsening and was sent to the hospital five days. His commanding officer sought to get him transferred to a different climate, and a radiogram from Washington directed that he return to the States. He will report to the Fourth Army command for resumption of duty. That's all he knows about the future—

That is, except that he will be married the 17th to Miss Agnes Hellmann of Louisville, Ky., whom he met when training at San Antonio.

Lt. Klein brought back a .25 caliber Japanese rifle he took from a dead Nip sniper somewhere in the Guadalcanal section. The Marines had taken care of the Nip and a bunch more of his kind. "They mow the woods for one sniper; those fellows don't play tag in this war." The gun at best is a crudity—a mongrel Mauser and Enfield, perhaps—"but they (the Japs) have been doing pretty well with it so far," Lt. Klein said.

THESE BUTTERMILK ALL-BRAN BISCUITS MAKE ANY MEAL!

Any meal becomes a feast with these tempting-texture biscuits! Made with tasty KELLOGG'S ALL-BRAN, they'll make a hit with everyone!

All-Bran Buttermilk Biscuits

½ cup Kellogg's All-Bran	1 teaspoon baking powder
¾ cup buttermilk	1 teaspoon salt
1½ cups flour	½ teaspoon soda
	⅓ cup shortening

Soak All-Bran in buttermilk. Sift flour, baking powder, salt and soda together. Cut in shortening until mixture is like coarse corn-meal. Add soaked All-Bran; stir until dough follows fork around bowl. Turn onto floured board, knead lightly a few seconds, roll or pat to ½ inch thickness and cut with floured cutter. Bake on lightly greased pan in hot oven (450° F.) about 12 minutes.

NOTE: Sweet Milk Recipe: If sweet milk is used instead of buttermilk, omit soda and increase baking powder to 3 teaspoons.

Additional Time For Mark-Ups Is Granted

Additional time to refigure their ceiling prices has been granted to wholesalers and retailers selling breakfast cereals, coffee, rice, lard and other grocery products covered by mark-up regulations 237, at wholesale, and 238, at retail, Lubbock district OPA officials said.

Retailers, previously required to set their new ceilings by March 10 on most items, are permitted until May 1 to make recalculations. Wholesalers have until April 15 to refigure maximum prices for products under maximum price regulation 237, based on specific mark-ups over net costs, and need not file the prices with the OPA district office until April 25.

The amendments enable wholesalers and retailers to calculate new maximum prices for items on which there have been recent purchases at the processor's level, and to set maximums for items not previously sold by them and on which the final dates for recalculating expired prior to the amendments.

Japan's Dream Of Conquest Battered

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON
Associated Press War Analyst

The battle of the Bismarck sea, at one stroke set invasion apprehensions in Australia definitely at rest.

There can be no doubt that a blow to Japanese prestige and to Tokyo's dream of conquest out of all proportion to the one-sided losses inflicted on the foe has been dealt. It has definitely moved up the hour when Japan can be brought to grim reckoning.

KIRKE SIMPSON

The only logical explanation yet available of Japanese purposes in risking the disaster was to reinforce beleaguered and critically important outposts in northeast New Guinea. MacArthur is steadily closing in on Salamaua and Lae, southeastward protective redoubts for the whole Finschhafen peninsula.

Menacing Jump-Off

That bold promontory juts eastward to form the southwestern shoreline of Vitiaz strait, the narrow waterway that separates New Guinea and New Britain. In Allied hands it would be a menacing jump-off across 60 miles or so of sea to a landing on New Britain. It also would bring Allied air bases within less than 400 miles of Rabaul, main Japanese concentration base and from which the ill-fated relief convoy started.

It is to be assumed that Japanese strategy in hoping to run the Australian-American air gauntlet to New Guinea relied both on weather and on a protective air umbrella.

Carefully Prepared Trap

Enemy air bases at Lae and Salamaua were effectively neutralized by MacArthur's bombers while the sea-air action was in progress. While a break in the bad weather front appears to have helped materially, there is every evidence that the foe sailed into a carefully prepared Allied trap.

One immediate result must be to release additional elements of MacArthur's forces for offensive use in his campaign to clear northeastern New Guinea as well as the Papuan peninsula of Japanese footholds.

It took weeks of preparation at Rabaul and elsewhere to the north for the enemy to prepare that reinforcement expedition. MacArthur's bombers were hacking at it day and night at long range. To the final losses must be added those previously wrought at Rabaul and at sea by incessant Allied bomber raids. The possible aggregate Japanese loss must run to more than 30 ships of all types, more than three score planes and above 20,000 lives.

Require Major Effort

If the Japanese hold on the vitally important Finschhafen peninsula is to be strengthened, obviously a much greater effort will be required. A major concentration of air and sea power, requiring time and exposing ships, planes and men to Allied bombers as it is being effected, would be necessary.

Without that major effort—which Tokyo well may not dare risk, as it dared not risk a full scale effort to recapture Guadalcanal — the loss of New Britain footholds is foreshadowed.

LAFS Officers Named To Selection Board

Major Claude L. Prichard, Major Henry Wray and Lieut. Charles E. Snyder of the Lubbock Army Flying school have been appointed members of the Army Specialized Training program selection board, according to Col. Thomas L. Gilbert, commanding officer.

The board will select those who are to attend the various training programs for soldiers which are being inaugurated at various colleges and universities. Examinations to determine eligibility are now being given on the post, and consist of 150 questions.

News Briefs

Wednesday will not be a meatless day for Catholics in the Lenten season in this diocese, a ruling by Bishop Laurence J. FitzSimon of Amarillo and announced at St. Elizabeth's Catholic church Thursday said. In Lent both Wednesday and Friday have been meatless days. The move was actuated by war necessities which make it uncertain whether meat may be obtained any definite days of the week.

Bobby June McCormick, student of Wayland college of Plainview, who underwent an appendectomy a week ago, was convalescing satisfactorily in Lubbock General hospital Thursday night. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd R. McCormick of the New Home community.

Sgt. Eugene Oblinger, who was with the Army Air Forces Air Crew detachment at Texas Technological college, personnel department, left Wednesday for officers candidate school at Fort Benning, Ga., according to announcement by Capt. George D. McCormick, public relations officer.

In order to meet the need for young women trained in the field of social-religious service, Scarret college is granting fellowships to young women with "personality, education, character and religious interest," according to information received by President Clifford B. Jones of Texas Technological college.

An editorial by Cyrus N. Ray in a recent issue of the Abilene Reporter-News, suggesting that Texans and Americans should "live off the land," recommended that a research committee be set up under direction of Texas Technological college.

Lt. Athalene McClinton of the Army Nursing corps is here from Fort Sam Houston, San Antonio, on ten-day furlough, visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. O. I. McClinton of 2203 Thirteenth street. Lt. McClinton is a 1942 June graduate of Lubbock General hospital School of Nursing.

A son was born in West Texas hospital Thursday to Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Atchison of Tahoka route 4, a daughter in St. Mary's hospital to Mr. and Mrs. Arnold B. Boyd of 2216 Twenty-second street. Atchison is a farmer, Boyd a Santa Fe railroad switchman.

Pvt. Git L. Huie, former Lubbock Army Flying school soldier who was recently transferred to a field in Arizona, was awarded second place for an oil figure of his commanding officer in a soldier's art exhibit there, according to press dispatches. While at LAFS Pvt. Huie was engaged in designing war bond posters and other art work in the reproduction department.

Heavy Road Program Seen As Post-War Aid

WASHINGTON, March 4. (AP)—Plan to help prevent a post-war depression by spending one billion dollars yearly on the nation's highways was proposed today by the American Association of State Highway officials.

"We consider it a conservative estimate to say that $10,000,000,000 could be economically invested," President Brady Gentry told the House Roads committee.

Parts of the Ruhr, Germany's coal pile, have a population density as high as 3,000 to the square mile.

Salvage Drive Prizes Posted

A campaign executive committee Thursday completed more details for an intensive scrap drive to be conducted by schools of Lubbock county, in a meeting at the chamber of commerce.

The schools are to receive a total of $420 in cash which has been collected by Carden L. Green, chairman of the industrial section of the county salvage committee and director of the campaign.

Eligible for the competition are the 11 schools in the city of Lubbock, eight in rural areas and three in Slaton.

Dates Are Set

Dates will be Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday, March 23. 24 and 25.

The drive has been planned, Chairman Green explained, in the effort to salvage critical materials which still are to be found in rural areas of the county and nation. The campaign here and elsewhere will attempt to replenish the supplies of vital war metals which are becoming scarce once more at war plants.

Of the prize money, the chairman announced, half is to be distributed to the participating schools, regardless how much they collect. The remainder will be divided into prizes for competition.

Entries To Get $10

Every school that joins in the effort is to receive $10, he explained. Names of city schools which are to participate should be filed with R. W. Matthews, acting superintendent of school; those in Slaton are to be filed with the superintendent; those in rural districts are to be reported to Roy Boyd, county superintendent.

The division of the money left after setting aside $10 apiece for all schools has been on the basis of scholastic population. Under this plan, city schools will receive a total of $243, of which $133 will be for competition; rural schools will receive $130.33, of which $50.33 will be for competition; and Slaton schools will receive $46.66, of which $16.66 is for competition.

Each group of schools will work out its own contest rules.

Those present at the meeting, additional to Green, were B. Sherrod, chairman of the county salvage committee; C. C. Jobson, county farm agent, and C. C. Brookshier, his assistant; Matthews and Boyd.

Registered Durocs Bring Good Prices

Fifty registered Durocs, sold here in the third auction sale by the West Texas Duroc Breeders Ass'n., averaged $89.40 for each animal.

Coleman Cowan of Idalou, secretary-treasurer of the association, said five bred sows averaged $129 each, 21 bred gilts $107.38, each, 4 boars $105.63 each, and 20 open gilts $57.35 each.

Lubbock Residents Divided On Standard Time Question

Lubbock citizens are divided almost equally on the question of moving timepieces back one hour and returning to standard time, a survey reveals.

The question recetly arose in the Texas legislature, when a bill was introduced proposing the return of standard time.

Several persons were not concerned, one way or the other.

Victory gardeners prefer war time, they say, because it gives them more time to work their plots. Others voiced a preference for standard time because it offers more light in the mornings and less in the evenings.

No Benefit Seen

Some farmers prefer war time because there is more time to work in the fields in the evening before darkness comes, and others prefer a change. Some think we should stay with the rest of the nation.

L. J. Abbott, meterman for the city light department, says he favors going back on standard time. He stated his belief that daylight saving time conserves neither electricity nor manpower.

Mrs. Joe Baldridge of Balrdidge Bakery said that although she has become accustomed to war time, she prefers standard time in the summer.

Miss Frances Webb, nurse at Lubbock General hospital, thinks returning to standard time is a good idea because it is "too dark when I get up." She said that standard time seems more natural, as there is about the right amount of daylight in both the morning and evening.

Aviator Favors Change

Mrs. J. W. Chapman, housewife of 2108 Thirteenth street, said that since we are used to war time, she sees no need to change it now; but she is willing to have it changed if everyone else is.

Dr. Sam G. Dunn, surgeon at West Texas hospital, likes daylight saving time because it gives him more time in the evenings to work in his garden. He said he thought there was little advantage in it in the winter, but now that spring is just around the corner, he likes the long daylight hours in the evenings. Dr. Dunn remembers back in the first World War when daylight saving time was in effect and said he liked it then too.

From the standpoint of aviation, said Gene Fowler, aviator who works with the CAA flight training program here, a change in time would be beneficial. Fowler works with students of Texas Technological college, and he thinks the change would be helpful in coordinating his program with that of the students.

E. T. Pope of Hanna Pope & company favors war time, because, he said, of the very reasons we moved the clocks up an hour in the first place. He believes that war time is good from the standpoint of economics, and he is for staying with the nation on the matter.

Mrs. Hector Mackay, housewife of 3119 Twentieth street, prefers daylight saving time because she likes the long hours of daylight in the evening. She sees no need for a change.

Lt. Finche Duffy of the U. S. Army Air Forces said it would make little difference with him, because he flies all day long anyway; the only difference would be, Lt. Duffy said, the time of day that the daylight hours come.

Eugene Emory, farmer of Lubbock route 3, wants to go back on standard time. He's used to standard time, and he thinks that's the time we should run on.

Able To Work More

In order to get the right proportion of daylight in the mornings and the evenings, Earl Fancher, truck salesman, favors moving the clocks in Texas back an hour.

Mrs. W. R. Gainer, beauty operator, does not like having to get up so long before the sun does in the morning. She'd rather have more daylight in the mornings and less in the evening.

Gus Havens, farmer who lives south of Lubbock, likes the long evenings because he gets more work done in the fields before it gets too dark to see. He'd rather the time would stay just like it is.

"On daylight saving time," said Mrs. J. H. Ing, housewife of 1711 Ninth street, "we get up earlier and get more work done." She also likes the long evenings to work in her garden. She sees no reason why the clocks in Texas should be moved back.

Should "Stay With Nation"

F. L. Jones of Lubbock route 6, who operates Jones cottages, thinks we should stay with the nation in regard to daylight saving time. We should be on daylight saving time until there is a proclamation issued to return to standard time all over the nation, he said.

Dr. Archie J. Bahm, assistant professor of philosophy and sociology at Texas Technological college, believes that daylight saving time is "daylight wasting time" in West Texas. He said that better use could be made of daylight on standard time than on war time. He expressed the belief that the person who rises long before daylight to go to work and finishes his working day long before the sun is down, is ready to retire before the daylight is gone. Dr. Bahm also expressed himself from the standpoint of a parent, saying that when the parent rises before daylight, the children are awakened, and it is hard to get them to go to sleep in the evening before it gets dark; hence the children do not get as much sleep as they should. Returning to standard time would save much electricity at the college, he said, as classes now begin while it is still dark.

Chester Sumners, a windmill repairman, prefers standard time because, he said, on daylight saving time it is the middle of the morning before he can see how to work. He favors having the clocks moved back an hour so as to give more daylight in the morning and less in the afternoon.

"If daylight saving time helps in an economical way or any other," said Mrs. Sallye Taylor, housewife of 1509 Avenue J, "we should not change it." Mrs. Taylor said she has become used to war time and to change it would necessitate becoming accustomed to standard time again. Also Mrs. Taylor plans to have a victory garden and would like daylight saving time in order to have long hours in the evening to work in the garden.

Mrs. Evelyn Kilburn, housewife who resides at Woody apartments, prefers daylight saving time now that she's used to it. Mrs. Kilburn doesn't have a victory garden because there is no room for one where she lives, but she said that if she did have a victory garden, she should want the war time so she would have longer to work in the garden in the evenings. As it is, however, it makes little difference to Mrs. Kilburn whether the clocks are moved back or whether they stay like they are.

Miss Anna Mae Waltermire, stenographer of 1611 Sixteenth street, prefers daylight saving time in the summer and standard time in the winter, and she hopes if we go back on standard time it isn't until after summer is over. Miss Waltermire likes a long evening of daylight after she gets off from work, and since she goes to work at 9 o'clock, she doesn't have to get up before daybreak, she said.

LAFS Personnel Buys $29,481.42 In Bonds

Military personnel and civilians employed at the Lubbock Army Flying school purchased $29,481.42 worth of bonds on the pay reservation plan and for cash, during the past month.

Military personnel purchased $15,334.55 worth of bonds by pay reservation and $6,635.50 worth for cash, or a total of $21,972.05. Civilian purchases on the pay reservation plan amounted to $7,509.37 or 7.78 per cent on their payroll. No figures were available on their cash purchases.

Lt. G. R. Close is war bond officer for the field while Lt. W. L. Reese is in charge of cash sales at the finance detachment.

Plans For Red Cross Drive To Be Formed

Three hundred public spirited women of the community will meet at the First Christian church at 10 o'clock this morning to complete plans for Lubbock county's all-out drive for the Red Cross war fund drive, which has been set for next Wednesday and Thursday.

A house-to-house canvass of Lubbock will be made with Mrs. Morley Jennings as chairman of the women's division. Women captains and co-captains have selected key women to work in every block of the residential district.

The meeting this morning will be in the nature of an educational and inspirational rally, Mrs. Jennings explained.

"We believe that every woman in Lubbock and Lubbock county will want to contribute through the local chapter to the Red Cross war fund," she said. "Our gifts must be larger than ever this year in order to enable this great national organization to meet whatever demands are made upon it."

Goal for Lubbock county is $35-,000.

Your regular investment in War Bonds will be a blow to the "Blitz Boys."

The Woman's Angle

by Margaret Turner

PANIC buying is so unnecessary.

If your doctor told you that more than one apple a day would put you in the hospital, would you continue to grab for four or five a day?

If he told you that one piece of candy a day would be all right, but that more would subject you to illness . . . would you gobble a handful every chance you had?

Well, then, the greatest "doctor of economics" in the world is Donald M. Nelson, chief of the War Production board. He knows what he's talking about, for in civil life he was one of the nation's largest merchandisers.

And we have Mr. Nelson's emphatic statement that "there are no plans now to ration clothing."

IN SPITE of this, we have observed some frantic "grab" buying in the past few weeks. We are sorry to see this and hope it will end for that kind of buying is a sure step toward inflation and can only hasten the day when rationing will spread to all buying.

Thursday morning we stood across the street and watched women swarming in a doorway of a store where stockings were being sold. Several women looked ashamed as they crowded forward. A policeman stood nearby and we wondered if he would have used a club in case of a riot.

Of course we like pretty stockings as much as any one but not enough to upset an apple cart. We certainly wouldn't want to make ourselves a party to something that would wreck this nation's equitable distribution of share-and-share-alike plan.

We believe in buying what you need—and not enough to put you in the hospital. If Americans really believed in the "one for all and all for one" theory they advocate they'd be willing to take a chance with their fellow citizens on not missing the old things they can't have because of the new things they can have.

ON HOBBIES

PLAYING — and knowing how to play—is definitely a part of woman's job at home during these war days. Recreation is a thing that's all tangled up with that intangible something known as morale, in turn, is involved with a person's capacity to produce in ANY job.

Even though you are busier these days than ever before, budget your time to include some hours every week for recreation and fun. Naturally, you don't want to give up the added responsibilities—such as Red Cross surgical dressing hours and other volunteer war work—which you should have taken on as your share in the war effort. Planning meals and shopping take more time than they ever did.

But what about the time you used to spend "Sunday driving?" And what's become of the hours you used to devote to visiting in the next town or city . . . or catering to the needs of the son whom the Army worries about now . . . or planning and producing parties? The time you should have left over during a week is undoubtedly wasted. Time, unless you plan how to use it, has a way of slipping off into space, unused. Plan to spend some of that time in play . . . and then don't let anything infringe on it.

IF YOU can't continue your own favorite brand of fun because the war emergency makes it impractical, then switch to some other hobby that interests you. Perhaps you were a candid camera fiend during those pre-war days when film was still available. You can't buy the film and developing paper so easily these days. Well, how about turning to a related field? It's a lot of fun for the whole family to collect in book form a visual history of the past few years. Not the old "family album" type of thing, either. But an original, attractive scrap book on the preparation of which all the family can bring creative ideas. Write interesting captions that provide "good reading" for anybody who happens to pick the book up!

Whatever you decide to do for a hobby make it something you enjoy doing. Save some part of the week to play at it.

Have you heard the story of the three men who had as a hobby a small basement workshop where they indulged their love of carpentry and fixing things? They really made their hobby productive! They get orders from a near-by war plant and spend their leisure time making small parts that are used in producing war goods. And all their neighbors are helping during their spare time. No matter how busy you are keeping a household going during war-

Mission Week To Be Concluded Friday

An observance of home missions week will be concluded this afternoon when the First Baptist Women's Missionary society has a program entitled "America Entrusted With the Gospel" at 3 o'clock at the church.

Mrs. J. W. Atmar will lead the devotion Friday afternoon and Mrs. F. C. Stanley will sing.

Home mission work among various peoples will be discussed as follows:

"Spanish Speaking Peoples," Mrs. Eula Draper; "The Negroes," Mrs. Claude Key; Mountain People," a Mrs. Baker; "The Armed Forces," Mrs. A. S. Canon.

Mrs. Lattimore Ewing will lead a meditation to close the program which will be followed with a social at which new and prospective members will be honored.

Mesdames Long And Halsell Hostesses

Mesdames George B. Long and H. H. Halsell were hostesses for the First Baptist Euzelain class luncheon Wednesday at the activities center.

Mrs. A. E. Jones brought the devotional on "Stewardship" and Mrs. Joe Jackson presided for a business meeting.

Members attending were Mesdames John Markham, Meritt Clark, J. H. Aufill, B. T. Formby, Alfred Crosby, Fred Litton, J. T. Edwards, J. O. Pope, O. B. Sandidge, Bill Davis, A. E. Dietering, M. H. Adkisson, W. A. Pettey, Virginia LaPrade and J. W. Simmons.

Mrs. Ledbetter Is Hostess For Circle

Mrs. R. J. Ledbetter, 1913 Seventh street, was hostess for the Neighborhood sewing circle Wednesday afternoon.

Refreshments were served to Mesdames Ralph Tunnell, P. W. Wasson, Q. S. Howard, A. G. Summers, A. W. Bates, and Charles Noble.

"Youth Partners In Victory and Peace" Is Theme For 1943 "Children's Week"

The theme of 1943 "Children's Week" proclaimed by Gov. Coke R. Stevenson this week is "Youth Partners in Victory and Peace," and a number of service and study clubs are cooperating in the project.

Dr. Homer P. Rainey, president of the University of Texas, serving as state chairman of "Children's Week," has announced the purpose of the observation as two fold: first, to emphasize the needs and protection of the young, and second, to stimulate children and youths to participate in the program activities in the hope they can be favorably influenced by the program.

Attention is focused on children this week because "the work of these young people is not only valuable to civilian participation in the war but is building democracy stronger in the hearts of those who will be leaders in the peace to come."

Mrs. H. F. Godeke has been named chairman for Lubbock

The observance will be concluded locally with a program over KFYO Sunday afternoon at 2 o'clock at which time Girl Scouts and Boy Scouts will be presented under direction of Miss Rosemary Head, executive secretary of Girl Scouts.

Young people of the city have been demonstrating the value of character- building agencies throughout the week.

Artist Course Well Received

With r rich tenor voice that has won him the reputation of "the most popular singer of classical songs on the air," Richard Crooks, Metropolitan Opera star, sang his way into the hearts of those who packed Lubbock High school auditorium Thursday night to hear h'm.

Crooks was brought here under auspices of the artist course of Texas Technological college.

Also well received were a number of melodies played by Frederick Schauwecker, who assisted Crooks at the piano. Schauwacker, as well as Crooks, was applauded to encores.

Crooks sang as encore numbers "Ave Maria," "Serenade," and "Mother of Mine" (all by Schubert); "None But the Lonely Heart" (Tschaikowsky), and "Come Where My Love Lies Dreaming (Stephen Foster). He "closed the show" after the fifth encore number by asking the audience to sing the "Star Spangled Banner."

Crooks will sing at 8 o'clock tonight at the post theater at Lubbock Army Flying school as a special entertainment feature for the soldiers.

Delegates Elected To Attend District Meet

At a recent council meeting, three delegates to attend the district meeting of Texas Home Demonstration association in Littlefield in April were elected. They were Mrs. S. H. Robinson, Mrs. W. B. Jeter and Mrs. J. N. Barnett. Representatives from each of 16 clubs in the county attended the meeting in the courthouse.

RED CROSS FUNDS

PLAINVIEW—Hale county reported Red Cross funds totaling $967 for the first day of the county's drive to raise its annual quota of $7,100. The latest cold spell brought Plainview a temperature of 8 above zero. Hale county's April draft quota is 81. W. P. Evans, for several years a teacher in Plainview schools, for the last two years a teacher in Olton, is now engaged in teaching science in the new Army cadet training program at Texas Tech, Lubbock.

Texan To Command Second Air Force

WASHINGTON, March 4. (AP)—The Army announced today the appointment of Maj. Gen. Davenport Johnson of Tyler, Texas, as commanding general of the Second Air force at Fort George Wright, Washington. He succeeds Maj. Gen. Robert Olds, who has been given an undisclosed assignment.

Johnson was born in Tyler March 28, 1890, and is a 1912 graduate of West Point. He served on the Mexican border in 1916 during the first World war and was in France with the aviation division of the signal corps.

Until his appointment to the Second Air force command he was on duty at headquarters of the Army Air forces in Washington.

Military Picture In China Said Brighter

CHUNGKING, March 4. (AP)—A brighter picture of the military situation in China was painted today by a Chinese army spokesman, who said that Japanese drives in Kiangsu and Kiangsi provinces had more or less failed, while in western Yunnan the enemy's thrusts on the Salween front had been checked.

Whether the Japanese will launch their threatened all-out offensive now depends on whether enemy reserves being held at various points are thrown into action, the spokesman declared.

Uninspected Meat Is Confiscated By City

NEW YORK, March 4 (AP)—Six thousand pounds of meat, which had not been examined or stamped by U. S. government or local inspectors, was confiscated today in the city's first "war ration food drill," Mayor LaGuardia announced.

The seizures were made by police and health department inspectors who halted all meat trucks entering the city.

Plans Drawn For New Ration Items

(By The Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, March 4.—The government plans to ration meats, butter, margarine, cheese, lard and other cooking fats and oils under a single set of coupons in ration book No. 2.

This was learned today from informed authorities who withheld use of their names and it coincided with the raising of the question of what has happened to the nation's meat supply in view of undenied reports that civilians will get an average of only 1¾ pounds of meat weekly under rationing.

To Be Given Point Values

Each of the meat, butter, cheese and fat products is to be assigned point values, as in the case of canned and processed fruits and vegetables.

The points will be interchangeable. That is, a consumer could use all his points for the purchase any one of these commodities or for any combination.

For example, a consumer could use all his points for the purchase of meats if he did not want or need butter, cheese and cooking fats and oils. Or if he did not want meats, he could use all the points for any of the other products.

May Be Delayed

Rationing of these foods has been scheduled to start April 1, but food authorities who may not be quoted, said today it may be delayed until April 15.

It was learned that food officials had hoped to handle the rationing of meats, butter, and the cooking fats and oils under separate sets of coupons. However, ration book No. 2 was held not suited for such a plan, and officials decided that it would take too long to prepare and distribute new ones, particularly when supplies of these foods are being consumed at a greater rate than the overall supply situation is believed to warrant.

The point values of these products were not disclosed; neither was the number of points which will be assigned each consumer.

May Average Two Pounds

Officials said supplies of meats to be made available for civilians under the rationing system was expected to be the equivalent of 1¾ pounds weekly. They said, however, that the per capita supply is expected to be larger next fall.

Rationing will be started at a season of the year when meat slaughtering normally declines. Inasmuch as no large reserves beyond military and lend-lease needs have been accumulated it will be necessary, officials explained, to make the meat allowance smaller at the start than later in the year, when slaughtering increases again. It was said that the per capita supply for the full year might easily average two pounds or more.

Butter Not Estimated

No official estimates have been made as to how much butter, cheese, cooking fats and oils will be made available for civilians under rationing. The Agriculture department has estimated, however, that the per capita supply to butter this year would be about 12.8 pounds compared with 16 last year. The per capita supply of lard and cooking compounds and oils has been estimated as 23 pounds, compared with 24 of last year. The per capita supply of margarine has been estimated as 4.6 pounds, compared with 3 last year.

The Agriculture department said several weeks ago that if its 1943 production goals are achieved, the total supply of meats, including pork, beef, veal, lamb and mutton, would be 26,495,000,000 pounds, dressed weight. This estimate included imports and reserves.

On this basis, it said civilians would have a per capita supply of about 2½ pounds a week.

The potential U. S. labor force numbers approximately 41,800,000 men and 29,200,000 women.

Eight Die In New Mexico Air Crash

ALAMOGORDO, N. M., March 4. (U.P.)—Eight men were killed last night in the crash of a heavy bomber a few miles north of the Alamogordo Air base, Lieut. Wray G. Zeit, post public relations officer, said today.

The plane was on a routine training flight and an army board is investigating the cause of the crash.

The dead: 2nd. Lieut. Leonard L. Taix, San Francisco; 2nd Lieut. Thomas N. Paia, Westfield, N. J.; 2nd. Lieut. Richard S. Browne, San Francisco; 2nd. Lieut. William F. Hoffman, Woodhaven, Conn.; Staff Sgt. Frederick S. Jennings, Elizabethtown, Tenn.; Staff Sgt. William A. Lonnevik, Valley, Wash.; Staff Sgt. William E. Luchowski, Chicago, and Staff Sgt. Louis J. Fontana, South Boston, Mass.

OPA Quits 'Snooping' In Baltimore Homes

BALTIMORE, March 4. (AP) — The Maryland Office of Price administration abandoned today the checking of canned goods stocks in private homes after receiving numerous protests from Baltimore citizens.

OPA Attorney Reuben Oppenheimer said the protestants apparently "misinterpreted our procedure, believing we were going from door to door, checking canned goods stocks."

Oppenhemer explained that only three personal calls were made, and that in two cases the householders refused to sign a form giving permission for the check. Approximately 60 cases were checked by other means on the basis of investigations of unusually large purchases of canned foods at retail groceries in Baltimore.

Haynes Funeral, To Be Held This Afternoon

Body of Mrs. Juanita Haynes, 28, who died Wednesday in West Texas hospital, will be buried after 3 o'clock services this afternoon in St. John's Methodist church. Rev. A. H. Carleton, pastor, will officiate.

The body will lie in state at the church commincing at 1:30 o'clock.

Mrs. Haynes had been a resident here about six months. She was the wife of Bruce Haynes, and the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. L. Ewing, 1720 Avenue Q. Ewing is the stepfather.

Other survivors are her infant daughter, Roselyn Raye; two sisters, Miss Edna Houghton, instructor at Texas Technological college, Miss Bennie Houghton, Dallas; and one brother, Theodore Houghton, Lubbock.

Honey Grove Citizen Is Killed In Cafe

BONHAM, Tex., March 4. (U.P.)—Delbert Houston of Honey Grove was shot and instantly killed late Wednesday night while sitting in a Honey Grove cafe.

Pat O'Bannon surrendered to Honey Grove officers following the shooting. No statement has been made.

Ceilings Set On Refrigerators

Maximum prices Lubbock and South Plains residents pay for new and used mechanical refrigerators are established by dollars and cents ceiling prices dealers may charge for the various brands and models, Lubbock district OPA officials said Thursday afternoon.

On used refrigerators, dealers may sell in either of three brackets —as the refrigerators are when received by the dealer; unreconditioned but guaranteed for 90 days, or completely reconditioned and guaranteed for one year. The regulation gives the requirements for unreconditioned and completely reconditioned units and stipulates records the dealer must keep and how the merchandise should be marked.

May Telephone OPA

OPA officials invited dealers to telephone the district price division to determine their prices under the regulation.

They listed the following as examples: P-650 Kelvinator, 1935 model, sold as received by the dealer, $51, unreconditioned but cleaned, checked and guaranteed for 90 days, $58.50, or reconditioned and guaranteed for one year, $88.50; D-540 Frigidaire, 1940 model, as it is, $105, unreconditioned but cleaned and guaranteed for 90 days, $112.50, or reconditioned and guaranteed for one year, $120.40; JB-439 General Electric, 1939 model, as it is, $73.50 unreconditioned with 90-day guarantee, $81, or reconditioned with one-year guarantee, $90.

Seagoing Nurses Are "Sold" On Their Jobs

WITH THE FLEET, SOUTH PACIFIC, March 4. (AP)—On the beach between battles the navy nurses from a hospital ship get a kick out of introducing three of their party—nurses Pike, Herring and Troutman.

"What better names for seagoing nurses?" they ask.

They swim in the surf and partake heartily of the steak sandwiches and other refreshments prepared by mess boys. It's a big treat after the hard work and limited recreation aboard the hospital ship.

The head nurse of the group, Miss Eno, says she doesn't want to go home "until the job's over."

She is brunette, slim but strong and, frankly answering the direct question, says the average age of nurses on the ship is "about 30."

The ship—gleaming white, except for the one green stripe and the red crosses on sides and stack—lies at anchor in the harbor. It has carried many loads of wounded from the bloody sea and land battles of the south Pacific to island base hospitals.

"We just take our chance," says the nurse, commenting on the fact that the ship carries no guns and makes mercy voyages alone through submarine infested seas.

LAFS Airing Program Over Station KFYO

The inside stories of the Air Forces are now being broadcast over KFYO by the special service office of the Lubbock Army Flying school.

The program, "Stories of the Air Forces," is broadcast from 5:55 to 6 p. m. each Tuesday Thursday and Saturday and are taken from military records. Scripts are prepared and narrated by Pvt. Burt Levi, who is a former free lance writer of Chicago. The broadcast is presented under the supervision of Lt. William A. Murphy and Lt. Leonard Newman of the LAFS special service office.

Small Girls Collecting Grease For Use In War Effort Convince Woman All Is Not Lost

A Lubbock woman answered her door bell to find three little girls, dressed in Brownie suits, waiting on the front porch.

"Is you got any grease," the middle-sized one queried, when the door opened.

Seeing the lassie held a pail, the women smilingly replied, "Sure I do; did you wish to borrow some?"

"Oh, we're winnin's the war collecting grease," the smallest of the trio chirped, "and we wanted you to give us a teaspoonfull, maybe, from the kitchen."

The woman immediately caught on. She also contributed the supply of fats she had poured up and saved in her kitchen.

Happy, the little tots left on their rounds, saying, "We're going to sell this to the grocer and he'll send it to the war."

Later, the Junior Red Cross got a telephone call from the woman, who said she came from the North to be with her soldier husband while he is stationed in Lubbock. She said until her experience just related took place she had been wondering whether the sacrifice and inconvenience of it all was worth while. "Now, I see the light," she told the adult leader of the Little Brownies over the telephone. "If these little children can get out and comb the town and work to help win the war," she said, "I certainly can be cheerful, at least, with the small sacrifice I'm making as a soldier's wife."

BIG JOB ORDER

NEW YORK, March 4. (AP)—The United States will have to find employment in the post-war era for some 56,000,000 persons, Paul G. Hoffman, president of the Studebaker corporation, estimated today, warning that lack of jobs on a large scale gives dictators their opportunity.

Twenty-four states have minimum-salary laws for public school teachers.

Neefe Rites To Be Held Here Today

Last services for Russell Neefe, 47, who died Monday in a veterans hospital in New York, will be read at 2 o'clock this afternoon in Sanders Funeral chapel.

Rev. Dr. Jack M. Lewis, pastor of the First Presbyterian church, and Rev. Jeff Welch, pastor of Central Baptist church, will officiate.

A military burial service will be conducted by the Lubbock American Legion, of which he was a member, at the graveside in Lubbock cemetery.

His wife and son, Charles, 14, live at 1911 Avenue J.

Missionaries Believed Safe In Philippines

BOSTON, Mass., March 4. (AP)—The whereabouts of all congregational missionaries in the Philippine islands have just been revealed to the American Board of Foreign Missions for the first time since April 3, 1942, the board announced today.

Rev. and Mrs. Alvin H. Scaff are reported to be in the mountains, presumably in territory in the interior of the island of Negros not yet occupied by the Japanese. Mr. Scaff is a son of Mr. and Mrs. Alvin G. Scaff of Dallas, and Mrs. Scaff is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Guy Kone of Austin.

RAIL LOADINGS INCREASE

WASHINGTON, March 4. (AP)—The Association of America Railroads reported today that 782,855 cars of revenue freight were loaded during the week ending last Saturday. This was an increase of 30,406 cars, or 4.0 per cent, compared with the previous week.

UTILITY RATES

AUSTIN, March 4. (AP)—Rates of municipally-owned electric plants in Texas average 3.1 per cent less than those charges by private companies, a survey published by the University of Texas Bureau of Municipal research declares.

College Air Program Is Effective Today

WASHINGTON, March 4. (AP)—Four Texas colleges and four in Oklahoma are among 119 which have been approved for participation in the aviation cadet crew training program, the War department announced.

Airmen will train at Southwest Texas State teachers, San Marcos; Austin college, Sherman; Texas A. and M., College Station and Texas Tech, Lubbock.

The War department said all candidates for aviation cadet crew training will be required to complete five months of special college work under a new program which becomes effective tomorrow.

Four Oklahoma colleges were approved for participation, including Oklahoma A. and M., Stillwater; Oklahoma Baptist university, Shawnee; University of Tulsa, Tulsa and Northwestern State college, Alva.

Soldiers Profit By Hillbilly Harmony

SAN FRANCISCO, March 4 (AP) The blind street musician was interrupted by a voice:

"How's for a little harmonizing, pop?"

The voice belonged to Pvt. Julius Jordon of Tennessee (hometown unavailable). Jordan had a guitar and a voice. His buddy, Pvt. Curtis Hannah of Texas (hometown unknown) had a violin.

After a few minutes of hillbilly songs quite a crowd gathered and the street musician's cup was filled to overflowing, including a sprinkling of paper money.

Educator Insists That Hitler Dead

(By The Associated Press)

SAN FRANCISCO, March 4. — Dr. Bayard Quincy Morgan, noted authority on Germanic languages and literature, is so convinced that Adolf Hitler is dead that he has appealed publicly for the widest possible broadcasting of the significant events underlying his belief.

Dr. Morgan, in a letter to the San Francisco Call-Bulletin, today said:

"On January 19 the German radio, without any apparent reason, played funeral music, and that means to the German mind only one thing, death. A few days later it was rumored that Hitler had given up the supreme Army command.

Other Appearances Fail

"A few days after that he failed to deliver an address at the tenth anniversary of the assumption of power by his party. Twice more recently he has failed to appear on occasions when his presence would have been natural if not imperative.

"All this points inescapably to one conclusion: Hitler is dead. I said so on January 19 and I have seen that opinion confirmed since then by a multitude of little details. But if one wants to deny that, at least it is patent that the fuehrer has ceased to be the leader, except maybe in spirit."

Dr. Morgan says the exploitation of these circumstances are capable of shortening the war "by many months." He thinks the Nazis have concealed Hitler's death because he has no successor who could hold Germany united, and that if the question of succession arose, it would give rise to a three-cornered struggle among Goering, Goebbels and Himmler that would split the Reich. And that in turn would greatly weaken the German war effort.

Urges Radio Reports

The educator suggests that United Nations short wave stations make immediate efforts to reach every corner of Germany at once with messages that Hitler is dead and that Germany's national integrity is guaranteed by the Atlantic Charter.

"With Hitler out of the picture," he adds, "a disintegration will set in which is equivalent to the escape of gas from a baloon: the deflation of Germany's world ambitions then is inevitable."

Dr. Morgan, a native of Massachusetts, finished his academic education in Germany and is the author of many books and articles on German literature and language. He served as a United States military intelligence officer during the first World war. Later he taught German at the University of Wisconsin. He now is head of the Germanic languages department at Stanford university.

of Papua are moving northward toward Lae, the Huon gulf base which the Japs sought to reinforce with the convoyed troops.

Aerial Blow at Lae

Another big aerial blow at Lae was described in today's communique:

"Our heavy units bombed the airdrome during the night. At day, in a coordinated strike, our long range fighters and attack units with strong fighter escort swept over Lae and adjacent airdromes in a series of strafing attacks from extreme low level, firing 30,000 rounds from cannon and machinegun.

"Six enemy fighters caught on the ground while refueling were destroyed together with fuel trucks and large fires were started in the building area. Our covering fighters were challenged by 30 enemy fighters. In the ensuing fight, the enemy was completely outmaneuvered and 17 of his planes were shot out of action. Our losses were extremely light."

Opportunity Seized

(Thus it was indicated that the moment of the Japs' most severe setback had been seized by General MacArthur to increase aerial softening up of the Lae defenses.)

In the northwestern sector of General Mac Arthur's command Allied planes bombed the town of Saumlaki on Tanibar island and installations on Matkus island, starting fires among large accumulations of oil supplies.

The 27 planes listed in today's communique as destroyed included four during Allied attacks on the barges in the Huon gulf; six on the ground at Lae and 17 downed in dogfights in the Lae area. In the first two days of the convoy battle, 55 Jap planes seeking to provide the ships cover were blasted from the sky.

Pork Prices Set

ready-established wholesale maximums, will result in a substantial decrease in prices for live hogs. Asserting black market operations have been a substantial factor in increasing hog prcies, Elkinton said he believed top prices would drop to $14 to $14.50 a hundredweight, compared with recent highs of about $15.50 to $16.00.

Such a decrease, Elkton said, will "lessen substantially" any need for price ceilings on live hogs.

Prentiss M. Brown, OPA administrator, said maximum prices will be announced soon for hundreds of common foodstuffs as well as beef, mutton, lamb and veal. Explaining the pork ceilings, he said:

"To black market operators this means an end to the practice of explaining away exorbitant prices for pork products when a housewife asks questions, since under no circumstances can she be compelled to pay more than the new regulation permits. In the event of an overcharge, the shopper has recourse to the treble damage suit provisions of the emergency price control act, which entitles her to sue in any court for a minimum of $50, plus costs."

On March Price Levels

Brown said the specific pork ceilings are based on price levels in March, 1942, and will result in no over-all increase in price. He conceded, however, that in some localities customers of a specific store may have to pay more, "but high margin stores no longer will be able to monopolize the available supply and price considerations no longer should prevent any localities from obtaining their share of the available pork supply."

Retail ceilings now are the highest prices of each store in March, 1942. Under this method prices vary considerably from store to store. The new regulation will mean uniform maximums in each of eleven zones into which the country is divided. The only variance in any zone will be that a small volume store may charge slightly higher prices than a large volume outlet.

Must Display Prices

Every retailer of pork will be required to display the exact ceilings per pound for the 66 principal cuts. In addition, the price per pound must be posted on any cuts of pork in the showcase. The latter prices may be the official ceilings, or lower, but not higher.

Not covered by the regulation are pork sausage, canned pork, quick-frozen cuts, and variety meats such as brains, liver, heart, kidneys, tongue, and head meat. These products remain under the general price regulation, which fixes a retailer's ceilings at his highest prices last March.

The retail pork ceilings, based on margins over previously established wholesale maximums, will yield a "fair and adequate return for the majority of the stores," Brown said.

Victory Farmers

raised to supply all the families of wives participating in the victory farm project which attracted considerable attention over the state. It is believed that this is the first such project by wives of enlisted men and officers.

Also on hand for the day's exercises—that's the word the women chose instead of ceremonies—was Howard R. Gholson, director of the Officeof Price Administration district office, who expressed his thanks to Mrs. Norman B. Olsen, wife of the commanding officer for her part in getting the project under way. It was Mrs. Olsen who thought of the idea of a victory farm to be worked by wives of personnel at SPAFS.

Benefits Pointed Out

Earlier this week, OPA officials here in a story distributed over the West Texas district pointed out the benefits of such community farming programs and emphasized the savings in canned goods for civilian and military use.

The women at SPAFS have taken this into consideration and whether the sun beats down or the dust blows they'll just don their slacks and bonnets and grab up their hoes and rakes and start down their victory farm rows singing.

"Praise the Lord and pass the sunburn lotion. . . ."

Dom DiMaggio Back On Active Navy Duty

SAN FRANCISCO, March 4. (AP) —Coxswain Dominic DiMaggio, former Boston Red Sox outfielder, is on active duty and has fully recovered from an eye ailment which caused him to be hospitalized for several weeks, the Navy public relations office at patrol force headquarters on Treasury island said today.

The disclosure spiked rumors that DiMaggio had lost the sight of his right eye and was about to be discharged from the Navy.

It also was the first official announcement that the youngest of the famed DiMaggio baseball family is serving with the Navy. Other reports had said he was with the Coast Guard.

Dominic was quoted by the public relations office as having said he would prefer to remain in the Navy for the duration of the war with one eye than to play baseball with two.

Report Assails McNutt's Stand

By LOUIS J. SCHAEFLE
United Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, March 4. — A special secret report to the military affairs committee today blamed "lack of coordination" in key places for the muddled manpower situation and cited as an example War Manpower Chief Paul V. McNutt's claim that he has the right to determine the size of the armed forces.

The report was presented by Col. Lewis Sanders of the selective service bureau who was assigned to the committee to make a comprehensive survey of manpower problems. He read it, in person at executive sessions yesterday and Tuesday.

Bitter Criticism

Sanders noted that McNutt, the target of bitter criticism because of his handling of the situation, claims power under an executive order of April 18, 1942, to determine the size of the armed forces.

"He has testified that he personally approves of all the calls of the armed forces for manpower," he said. "There is no evidence in the record, and I have no knowledge of his having curtailed any requisition of the armed forces. Nevertheless, there is a lack of coordination under which an administrator who has no responsibility for the successful use of the armed forces claims authority to limit their size."

Referring to the general manpower situation, he said:

"The most outstanding deficiency in procedure . . . is the lack of coordination of plans at the top. Cooperation exists, and in very full measure, and with far greater degree than the public press would indicate to the public. Real coordination is almost embryonic!"

Sanders illustrated the "confusion" by citing the attitude of McNutt, War Production Chairman Donald M. Nelson and Selective Service Director Lewis B. Hershey toward a "draft-labor" act.

Attitudes Recalled

McNutt, he said, told the military affairs committee last Oct. 21 that voluntary methods had failed to provide sufficient workers, but took the position on Feb. 5, 1943, that draft-labor legislation was not needed. He reiterated his February position this week.

Nelson, he said, told the committee last Nov. 6 that it would be necessary to conscript labor but said nothing about it when testifying on Feb. 4 last.

Hershey, he said, has stated that such an act is not needed.

Committee members declined to comment on Sanders' report. They had directed him to make the survey in an attempt to clarify the muddled situation and to prepare for their consideration of the Austin-Wadsworth national service bill. Sanders, a former industrial engineer, is chief of the selective service's re-employment division.

Russians Advance

were retreating from Vyazma, 60 miles south of Rzhev.

Russian units operating out of Velikie Luki, retaken by the Russians early in January, were believed to be only 60 miles from Smolensk. Velikie Luki itself is 130 miles northwest of that German pivot on the central front.

On the southern front the Russians admitted stubborn German resistance and numerous Nazi counterattacks in the Donets basin. No further advances were claimed in that area, where the Germans have announced the recapture of Elavyansk, 50 miles north of Stalino, and other points.

Dnieper Drive Widens

But the Russians said their drive toward the Dnieper river basin continued on a broad front northwest of Kharkov, with the fall of Lgov the Russians said they captured four tanks, 20 guns, 75 mortars, 66 machineguns, 150 tommyguns, and other booty.

The capture of Sevsk showed the Russians were striking due west of the Dmitrieve-Lgov sector.

Control of the Moscow-Velikie Luki railway gave the Russians the best route for feeding supplies to the Red Army units at Velikie Luki who are threatening Smolensk, key to the entire German defense setup on the central front. The line also will be on considerable value for the offensive by Timoshenko's troops above the central front.

The Russians during the day reclaimed more than a dozen villages west of Rzhev. The fate of German-held Vyazma and Gzhatsk to the south and southeast was not known. It has been assumed that the Germans would abandon those points, finding them untenable now that Rzhev has fallen.

New Pilot Training School Is Planned

FORT WORTH, March 4 (AP) — Major General Barton Yount, commanding general of the Army Flying Training command announced today opening of a new women's pilot training school at Sweetwater, and indicated that standards for such women pilots may soon be "somewhat relaxed."

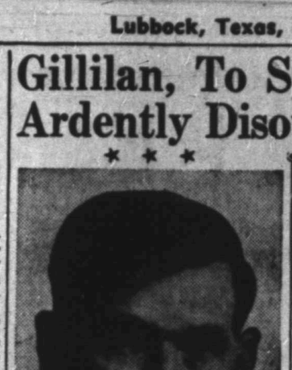

Capacity of the Sweetwater school will be approximately double that of the original school now in operation at Houston, Jacqueline Cochran, noted American woman flier, and director of the program under General Yount, will supervise both schools.

Gillilan, To Speak Tonight, Ardently Disowns New Deal

STRICKLAND GILLILAN

Mellow Strickland Gillilan sat in his hotel room Thursday night, and talked of life and death and colors in the sky. Time was when Gillilan was not so mellow, when he embarked on stern moral crusades, and stood at Armagedon to do battle for the Lord. "I hadn't had time," said Gillilan, "to commit enough sins to make me sympathize with the other fellow."

Gillilan still possesses a few convictions, however, mainly on the subject of the New Deal. "Hatton W. Sumners is one of my saints," he declared, "along with Glass and Byrd of Virginia and Millard Tydings of Maryland. I judge every man by his anti-New Dealness.

Can Be Serious

"Every humorist," said Gillilan, who has scattered chuckles like the king's largess along the broad highway, "is entitled to be serious. I am serious whenever I wish to be. Some of the best writing Bill Nye ever did was serious, and beautiful; but he never published it. Having donned the cap and bells, he never took them off in public . . . I wish that some of Nye's serious writing could have been published.

"The place of the humorist in this gloomy world today? . . . That is easy. It is the place of every human being. He hopes to be able to endure. As a humorist, he hopes to help other people to endure. The idea that the people do not realize we are at war is mistaken. They all realize it. If they can laugh, they hope to survive. Laughter won't cure, but it will help, at least for a moment.

Addresses Club Tonight

Gillilan addresses the Knife and Fork club tonight. Besides the New Deal, he has another pet hate . . . cathedrals. He had been to Charters and Soissons and Rheims and Avignon, and he wanted to go to Deauville. His chauffeur tried to drive to another cathedral. After Gillilan had unburdened himself in no uncertain terms, the chauffeur drove him to Deauville. "You can't fool me," said Gillilan. "I can recognize a cathedral the minute I see one."

It was in February, 1897, that Gillilan published the poem which was to attract general attention and to endure as few literary monuments have. It coined the unforgettable phrase: "Off again, on again, gone again, Finnegan."

MacArthur Pledges Full Effort To Save Bataan's Survivors

(By The Associated Press)

ALBUQUERQUE, N. M., March 4.—Gen. Douglas MacArthur today assured New Mexico relatives that every effort will be made to save the surviving members of the 200th and 515th anti-aircraft regiments who fought in the defense of Bataan in the Philippines.

In a letter to Dr. V. H. Spensley, chairman of the Bataan relief organization here, the U. S. commander-in-chief in the south Pacific said:

"If I live, I shall return to save them."

The 200th and the 515th included many New Mexico men. The 200th was originally organized in the state. About 340 New Mexico soldiers have recently been reported prisoners of the Japanese in the Philippines.

General's Letter

General MacArthur's letter said: "Your letter of Dec. 27 has just reached me and strikes close to my heart. There is little I can tell you of the men of the 200th and 515th aircraft regiments that you do not already know.

"They have written their own immortal record in the bloody transcript of Bataan. I knew them well and loved them greatly. Never a day goes by that I do not pray that God will give me strength to redeem those who survive.

"If I live, I shall return to save them. In the meantime I can only hope that a merciful providence will give you all the divine patience to wait with such serenness as may be possible the unfolding of the bloody drama which is now being enacted in the Pacific."

Food Rioting

of undertaking such a difficult and delicate job. The OPA insists that this is necessary to prevent 'chiselling.'

"In addition planners in the agricultural department hope to buy most of the American canned food packed this year, shipping what the armed forces don't use to foreign nations. They are playing with the idea of having each can labeled USA in big letters. They know what is good for the canners' business better than he does, they think.

Food Riots Feared

"They say that all this will help him grab foreign markets in a postwar world. They are even toying with the idea of sending pretty government lady dieticians on a junket to London and other foreign cities to demonstrate American cooking of American foods. They do not foresee that it may not be such a pretty spectacle on the streets of London and elsewhere if, at the same time, London newspapers are carrying the news of food riots in America. Canners think it is likely that within 12 months we shall see food riots in America.

"Canners have been hamstrung, inspected, quiz-kidded and red-taped until they are groggy. They never know what fantastic rule the government will foist upon them next. They cannot see their way ahead."

Spanish Take Over Morocco Services

TANGIER, International Zone, Morocco, March 4. (AP) — Spanish authorities tonight took over from the French control of the post office, telegraph and telephone services of Tangier, and they announced they would keep open the facilities with Spanish employes.

Single Torpedo Sent Ship Down, 678 Lost

BOSTON, March 4. (AP)—A single torpedo fired in the dead of night from an enemy submarine sent a cargo passenger ship to its grave in the North Atlantic with a loss of 678 lives — the United States' greatest sea disaster since the war began, survivors reported today.

Five survivors, the first to reach the United States, the Navy said, reported that the vessel sank within 25 minutes after the torpedo roared into the starboard side, apparently trapping a number of soldiers in their bunks.

Within a few minutes the list of the ship was "terrific" it was almost impossible to walk the decks and a great number of men were cascaded into the freezing water before lifeboats, rafts and floats could be launched.

The vessel was one of two United States cargo ships which the Navy announced on Feb. 22 had been sunk within four days of each other in the North Atlantic with a total loss of 850 lives.

(4) A call by labor upon industry to produce at full capacity for the war effort.

Outgrowth of a similar verbal agrement with labor union leaders concluded about a year ago, the compact culminates what Stevenson termed a year of industrial peace in Texas.

Lives Up To Agreement

"Organized labor in Texas has fully lived up to this oral arrangement in the last year," he told a press conference in announcing the pact.

"I believe the agreement will insure uninterrupted production of war materials in Texas during the war."

Stevenson said he believed Texas was pioneering a path of peace among labor, industry and government to guarantee maximum and unimpeded production of war goods.

He emphasized that the agreement was personal and did not bind other branches of the government.

The agreement, he said was the first of its kind in the nation.

Signatures On Document

Affixed to the document in the executive offices on Tuesday—the 107th anniversary of Texas' independence—were the signatures of the following labor leaders:

Harry W. Acreman, secretary of the Texas State Federation of Labor.

Rocky L. Davis, of the Congress of Industrial Organizations.

James A. Shields, vice chairman of the Transportation Brotherhood.

Japs Stunned By Bismarck Blow

By GLENN BABB
Associated Press Staff Writer

The Japanese disaster in the battle of the Bismarck sea has loosened the enemy grip on the whole southwestern Pacific area. It is a setback of strategical significance comparable to that of the failure to prevent the American lodgment in the Solomons. It shows that a new phase of the Pacific war is well under way, marked by such tremendous Allied superiority in the air as virtually to deny the seas to any major convoy attempting to move far south of the main enemy bases.

Neutralises Jap Base

The annihilation of the armada of 10 warships and 12 transports, recorded so vividly in General MacArthur's communique, virtually neutralizes the great Japanese base at Rabaul for offensive purposes. It is the third time in less than four months that a big Japanese convoy has set out from Rabaul or nearby concentration points to deliver reinforcements to garrisons sorely beset by the Allied comeback. The first attempt was wrecked in the mid-November air and naval battles off Guadalcanal; the second paid a terrific toll to get a few ships into Lae, New Guinea, early in November. But the Bismarck sea fight was a more complete enemy disaster than the other two.

None of the Japanese ships reached their destination; nearly all the troops they carried, estimated at 15,000, perished; thousands of skilled naval personnel were lost; 55 of the aircraft that tried to provide protection were shot out of action—all this at a cost of four Allied planes.

The battle of the Bismarck sea may take first rank in the lengthening list of air power's successes against surface vessels. The German have claimed larger tonnages sunk out of convoys on the northern route to Russia but their figures can not be considered dependable. For their effects on the strategical picture the Japanese attack on Pearl Harbor and the sinking of the Prince of Wales and Repulse off Malaya demand consideration, but they perhaps belong in another category. And the strategical effects of the Bismarck sea battle have yet to be fully worked out.

Air Superiority

It indicates that the margin of Allied air superiority in the southwest Pacific is increasing at a rate which must be causing alarm in imperial headquarters in Tokyo. It speaks in thunderous tones of striking power in all types of the world's best aircraft and some of its finest airmen that is being concentrated under General MacArthur in the Australian theater, a development which is being matched in Admiral Halsey's command to the east.

Japan's surge through the south seas was made possible largely through domination of the air. That domination definitely has been transferred to the Americans and their Allies, and the results soon may become apparent in the rate of their northward advance.

Legislature

Sunday closing by their 74 to 50 vote Monday.

Disagreeing with this claim, Rep. Obel McAlister of Fort Worth declared few members voting for the Sunday closing then realized its full effect.

"It restrains you and me from having a bottle of beer on a Sunday picnic," he declared. "There's no more harm in that than in having a cup of coffee."

Sentimental Gush

Rep. W. W. Bridgers, veteran El Paso member, said he resented "all this sentimental gush about the boys in the Army."

"It seems to me to be pure drivel to be talking about protecting our soldiers," he declared. "They don't do any more drinking than they did before entering the Army. Our soldier boys don't need that kind of protection."

Effect of recommitting the bill is to take it off the calendar and put it back where it started, with no certainty of what will happen next.

The House also passed a bill by Rep. W. W. Roark of Temple exempting from the chain store tax lumber yards if 75 per cent or more of their business is the sale of lumber exclusively.

Five New Tax Bills Are Killed In House

AUSTIN, March 4. (AP) — The House Revenue and Taxation committee tonight killed five bills proposing to levy a variety of new taxes.

The committee voted 19 to 0 to report unfavorably four of the bills. Vote on the other was 18 to one.

The bill which got one vote was by Rep. L. W. Harris of Whitney proposing a one-third cent processing tax on gasoline.

These also died:

A bill by Rep. Roger Q. Evans of Denison which would levy a one-quarter cent processing tax on gasoline, add 2 cents a barrel to the tax on crude oil, and raise the sulphur tax 75 cents a ton.

Three bills by Rep. Roger A. Knight of Madisonville. One levied a 4.2 per cent gross receipts tax on partnerships and corporations; another a 3 per cent gross receipts tax on telegraph and telephone companies; and the third a county ad valorem tax on buses and railroads.

Texans Bracing For Another Cold Blast

(By The Associated Press)

Texans, surveying damage to fruit and gardens by freezes which hit the state the first part of the week, braced Thursday for another wintry blast.

The weather bureau forecast severe cold for the Panhandle and South Plains Friday.

Snow was predicted and a livestock warning was issued. Forecast was for somewhat colder weather in both east and west Texas.

State Agriculture Commissioner J. E. McDonald in Austin, just returned from a north Texas trip, reported a total loss of budded fruit in central and north Texas as a result of the freeze which hit the state Monday night and extended to the coast.

Early types of peaches, plums and pears were blackened by cold, he said.

Absentees Cost Eight Ships In 20 Months

HOUSTON, March 4 (AP) — Absenteeism cost the Houston Shipbuilding corporation a possible eight ships in the twenty months the yard has been operating, Arthur Stout, vice president and general manager, said today.

He explained in a prepared statement that some of the time was lost while facilities were being built and that sickness and other legitimate reasons caused some of the losses, but he also observed that absenteeism is lowest on payday and climbs to a peak on weekends.

He said that records disclosed that war news had a definite effect on absenteeism. When the war picture is dark, absenteeism drops; when victories are announced, absenteeism increases.

Tech Shares In Courses For U. S. War Training Program

As of March 1, 16 national defense training courses, conducted by Texas Technological throughout the West Texas area in cooperation with the U. S. Office of Education under the engineering, science and management war training program, had been completed.

Eight courses were in progress, two more had been approved but not begun, and three additional courses had been proposed.

In progress now in San Angelo and Lubbock is a course in engineering drawing desinged to train draftsmen, shop workers and clerks for war industry. The course being taught at Tech has as its instructor C. C. Perryman. Prerequisites for this course include high school graduation with two years of mathematics, including plane geometry.

Pre-Factory Drafting

A course in pre-factory aircraft drafting being taught at Tech by Hyman Katz of Consolidated Aircraft corporation opened Feb. 1. It is a full-time course, and students are paid by Consolidated Aaircraft; on successful completion of the course, the students will be given positions with Consolidated.

A course in engineering mechanics, of which Herbert A. Helstrom, jr., is instructor, opened in Fort Worth Dec. 28. This course is preparatory for the strength of materials course and is 15 weeks in length.

The strength of materials course opened in Fort Worth Feb. 22 with Robert L. Lindsey as instructor. It is designed to prepare those who complete it to enter work in structural or machine design and airplane construction. The course is taught in 16 weeks.

Classes in Radio engineering, part 1, are being taught in Amarillo, Lubbock, San Angelo and Brownwood. Object of the course is to prepare persons for the signal corps of the army and for industrial war work. W. F. Gray teaches the course in Lubbock.

Part 2 Of Course

Part II of the radio engineering course is being taught in Abilene, Amarillo, Lubbock, San Angelo and Brownwood. In Lubbock the course is taught by Lavoy Hooker. Both part I and part II are 16 weeks in length.

Being taught at Texas Technological college by Prof. W. F. Helwig is a course in Ultra-high frequency techniques, the object of which is to give persons necessary preparation to enter radar training for the armed forces and war industries. Labratory assistant is Marion Royalty. Both he and Helwig are members of the electrical engineering staff at Tech. Only senior engineers are taking the course, which is to run about 15 weeks.

Offered at the request of the U. S. Army Signal corps is a course in radio communication (preradar). Civilian employes both men and women, of the signal corps will be assigned in units of forty for each period of four weeks for a full-time course of 12 weeks duration. Classes will be held both night and day, under supervision of C. V. Bullen, head of the electrical engineering department, with Kenneth Dowell as his assistant. A staff of about 20 persons, including 12 instructors, is required by the course, however. The first section started Feb. 18, and the second section will start March 18. Instructors for the first section are Edward Pugh Price and Raymond Edgar Glass.

Approved Courses

Courses approved but not yet begun are industrial safety engineering and advanced engineering drawing. Classes in the former will be taught at Abilene, Big Spring, Camp Wolters and Midland. Prerequisite for the industrial safety engineering course is high school graduation of sufficient experience to be familiar with the hazards of industry and the necessity for eliminating these hazards. The object is to prepare persons for war industry.

Prerequisite for the engineering drawing course is the equivalent of one year of college engineering drawing. Object of the course is to train draftsmen for war industry and the armed forces. This course will be offered in Amarillo with W. I. Layton as instructor.

At Fort Worth courses have been completed in production control, time and motion study, industrial safety engineering, production engineering II, production engineering I, essentials of engineering for purchasers, engineering mechanics and strength of strength of materials.

Courses in mathematics for high school teachers, engineering drawing, industrial safety engineering and machine drawing have been completed at Amarillo. The industrial engineering course also has been completed at Pampa.

Radio engineering fundamentals, part I, and engineering drawing have been taught in Abilene, and radio engineering fundamentals, parts I and II, have been completed at Brownwood. Part II also has been finished at San Angelo.

Kiwanians Hear Talk On Red Cross Drive

Durwood Bradley, chairman of Red Cross campaign speakers, and Mrs. Johnny Powers, a leader in junior welfare work in Lubbock, shared the Kiwanis speaking program Thursday.

Bradley said Lubbock county is expected to raise $35,000 for the Red Cross next week, which will include memberships and contributions to the war fund. The Red Cross is the only organization serving overseas in this war. In the last one, Bradley said, several organizations competed in efforts to aid the soldier and sailor.

Mrs. Powers presented Boy Scouts, Girl Scouts, ond boys and girls from the Junior Red Cross, all of Lubbock, and each with a brief message as to what the youngsters are doing to help in the war effort.

Sandies Fall Before Austin In State Basketball Tourney

Jeff Davis Rallies To Whip Waco In Overtime Battle

(By The Associated Press)

AUSTIN, March 4.—Jeff Davis of Houston, only defending champion seen in action in a thrill-packed day of the state schoolboy basketball tournament, staged an amazing comeback in the closing seconds to defeat Waco 47-41 and advance to the semi-finals of the Class AA division.

Jeff Davis will meet Highland Park (Dallas) in the second round tomorrow afternoon. Highland Park won its way with a 27-20 upset of favored Lufkin.

Ross Byers dropped in two field goals in the last 40 seconds to force the Jeff Davis-Waco game into an overtime period and then Davis went to town with all-state Slater Martin leading the way.

Crozier Tech Advances

Highland Park led Lufkin most of the distance in beating out the Panthers to earn the job of attempting to halt the mighty Houston team in the next round.

Crozier Tech of Dallas won a semi-final berth by beating a fighting Bowie (El Paso) outfit 42-25. Tom Hamilton, all-state center, scored 23 points to lead the Tech onslaught.

Tech's opponent in the second round tomorrow night will be Austin, which took out Amarillo tonight 35-24. The Maroons rolled up a long lead and used everybody on the bench.

Lakeview Ousted

In the Class A division French (Beaumont), Holliday, Mount Vernon and Sidney Lanier (San Antonio) pushed their way into the semi-finals, the Beaumont team defeating Lakeview 48-31.

There is no defending champion in Class A, Van having been eliminated within its district this year.

In tomorrow's semi - finals, French plays Holliday and Mount Vernon meets Sidney Lanier. Lanier, the championship favorite, was impressive in its triumph over Lakeview, with Tony Rivera pitching in 28 points.

All first round games in Class B are to be played tomorrow.

Ex-Tiger Calls Grove Best Pitcher He Faced—

Gehringer Puts Ruth Behind Williams As A Power Hitter

(By The Associated Press)

SAN FRANCISCO, March 4 — Lt. Charles Leonard Gehringer, trim and natty in his Navy uniform, looked back over 17 years of baseball as a Detroit Tigers star and did not even hesitate over the question: Who was the fastest pitcher you ever faced?

"It was "Lefty" Grove, when he was with the Philadelphia Athletics," he said.

"Grove also was the toughest I ever batted against. Being a left hander he had that advantage on a left handed hitter. Bob Feller has a terrific speed ball but I had less trouble with him than with Grove.

"The best National league pitcher I ever went up against was Dizzy Dean of the Cardinals. He had everything, speed and a good curve. They used to talk about Diz being eccentric but he sure was smart on the mound. I never batted against Walter Johnson but most of the baseball men who should know claim that in his prime with Washington he was faster than any other pitcher the game has known."

Coach Of Pre-Fighters

Lt. Gehringer, newly assigned to the Navy pre-flight school at St. Mary's college, will coach baseball there. He says he will not return to the professional end of the sport.

His 17-year batting average of .321 makes him something of an authority on hitting. During his time he sized up two mighty maulers, namely the one and only Babe Ruth of Yankee fame and Ted Williams, the more recent slugger of the Boston Red Sox.

Of the two, Gehringer leans toward Williams in the matter of power hitting. This in spite of the fact the Bambino set the home run record of 60 in 1927.

"Ruth had an easier right field to hit to in Yankee stadium than Williams had in the Red Sox park, with its windy hazards. I'd like to have seen them on the same club. I think Ted would have out-powered the Babe."

'Big Ten' Grid Officials Meet Today To Revise Schedules For 1943

(By The Associated Press)

CHICAGO, March 4.—Football coaches and athletic directors of the Western conference will meet tomorrow to rearrange gridiron schedules for 1943 in the interest of saving rail mileage and to make room for games with service teams.

Revision is necessary because the schedules already had been drawn through 1944, limiting each team to nine games with a minimum of six within the Big Ten.

"It is our policy to do whatever the Army and Navy wants," Maj. John L. Griffith, commissioner of athletics for the conference, said tonight.

"Last spring when the service teams requested games, the conference voted to permit a maximum of ten games, provided two were with service teams. That rule still is in effect. Since the service teams want games, it will be necessary to cancel some engagements with non-conference teams, and perhaps drop certain games within the conference."

In revising the schedules, games with non-conference opponents requiring long travel probably will be dropped, Griffith said.

Sitting in with the Big Ten officials will be Frank Leahy, director and football coach at Notre Dame; Clark Shaughnessy, newly appointed coach at Pittsburgh; Lt. Col. Bernie Bierman, of the Naval pre-flight school at Iowa City; and Lt. Com. J. Russell Coog of the Great Lakes Naval training station.

Leahy may be forced to cancel games with Stanford at Palo Alto, Calif., and Southern California at South Bend. He hopes to go through with the traditonal battle with the Army at New York.

Plans For Louis-Conn 'Bond Bout' Underway

PITTSBURGH, March 4. (AP) — Cpl. William Davis (Billy) Conn declared tonight he is willing to fight Sgt. Joe Louis for the world's heavyweight title "for nothing."

Conn, home on a furlough from Camp Lee, Va., also gave his approval of a proposal for such a fight, whereby purchasers of seats would buy victory bonds ranging from $25 for the "bleachers" to $10,000 for ringside.

The plan was sent tonight by mail to Henry L. Stimson, Secretary of War, by Post-Gazette columnist Al Abrams, organizer of the Dapper Dan charity clubs. Stimson halted a scheduled rematch between Conn and Louis last year after learning the fighters were to have certain debts and income tax payments made from the receipts.

Louis knocked out Conn in their match in New York in June, 1941, to which 60,071 fans paid $451,743 with tickets ranging from $2.50 to $25.

'Name' Coach Is Urged For Arkansas Eleven

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., March 4. (AP)—Asserting that the University of Arkansas' chances for football glory had been sabotaged by "gridnappers" in the state senate today formally recommended that the school hire a $12,500 a year "name coach to produce a "skilled, colorful and victorious team."

Arkansas, a member of the Southwest conference, as not won a conference game since 1940. Two football head coaches, Fred G. Thomsen and George Cole, left the school last year to join the armed services, and the coaching work is now under Athletic Director Eugene Lambert.

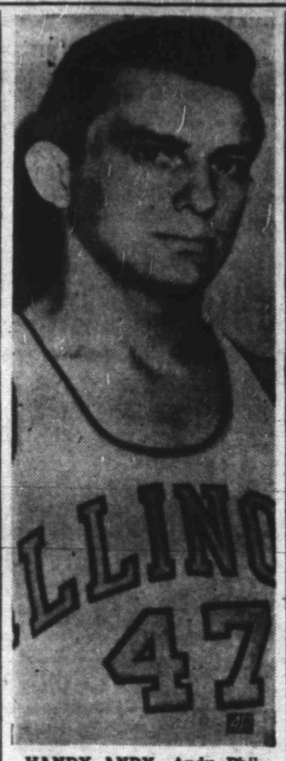

The senate resolution, by Sen. B. Frank Williams, Asceola business man and Arkansas alumnus, said "it is not too soon to begin planning steps to cope with this situation ("gridnapping", when the war has ended and football again becomes the principal intercollegiate sport of the nation."

Of the practice of luring Arkansas athletes to out-of-state schools, the resolution said "in some instances, Arkansas' most accomplished athletes have been "gridnapped' and, after achieving stardom and acclaim, have been themselves converted into 'gridnappers.'"

SAL WON'T REPORT

DALLAS, March 4. (AP) — Sal Gliatto, veteran pitcher of the Dallas Rebels who was recently sold to Newark of the International league, said today he would not report.

Gliatto, manager of a local bowling alley, said the "outlook for baseball is too uncertain."

HANDY ANDY—Andy Phillip, above, high-scoring guard-forward of the University of Illinois basketball team, established three Big Ten scoring marks this week as he and his mates romped over hapless Chicago university, 92-25. The amazing Andy set a new record for a single game total (40), single game field goals (16) and season total (255 in 12 games).

Rice, Texas May Clash In Play-Off For Right To Go To NCAA Meet

AUSTIN, March 4. (AP) — The Upiversity of Texas basketball team tonight voted to play Rice a three-game series to determine which school would go to the National collegiate tournament in Kansas City, March 26 and 27.

The selection committee for District 6, which takes in Texas, Arizona and Arkansas, had recommended that Rice and Texas, co-champions of the Southwest conference, meet in the series to decide which would represent this area in the Western region tournament.

The play-off will not affect the conference title which remains as a tie between Texas and Rice.

The committee now awaits Rice's decision and all arrangements for the series depends upon Rice's acceptance.

The Eastern region of the NCAA decides its representative in a tournament at New York, with the winning teams of the two regions playing for the national title.

Rice Officials Meet For Decision Today

HOUSTON, March 4. (AP)—Dr. H. E. Bray, chairman of the Rice institute athletic committee, and Athletic Director Jess Neely had no comment to make here today when informed that the University of Basketball team had voted to play Rice a three game series to determine which school would go to the National collegiate tournament at Kansas City, March 26-27.

The Texas team had followed a recommendation made by the NCAA District 6 committee, which consists of J. W. St. Clair of SMU, H. R. McQuillian of TCU and D. X. Bible of Texas.

District 6 consists of Texas, Arizona and Arkansas, and usually is represented by the Southwest conference champion. By defeating the Texas Aggies, 57-55, Wednesday night in the final game of the season, Texas tied Rice for the title.

Dr. Bray said that the Rice athletic council would hold a formal meeting Friday and that a decision would be made at that time.

Early in the week, Neely had said he would not favor aplayoff.

"The championship is big enough for two teams to share," Neely said. "We will be satisfied to let the NCAA committee select the team to play in Kansas City."

Westerners End Season Tonight

Four Seniors Finish Schoolboy Careers

Four Lubbock Westerners will close out their high school basketball careers at the high school gymnasium tonight when the Westerners end their 1943 basketball campaign against the 851st troop carrier squadron of South Plains Army Flying school.

Two games—"A" and "B"—will be played, with the first starting at 7:30 o'clock.

E. J. (Pinky) Lowrey, who with J. (Mule) Davis directs the Westerner courtmen, has forecast a large crowd for the doubleheader, in which Hubert Bechtol, Bob Brewer, E. L. Snodgrass and Phil Ragland will play their last game under Lubbock High colors.

Admission prices for the two games have been set at 25 cents for adults and 15 cents for men in uniform and school children.

Eligibility Rule Stints Promising Cager

If you attend tonight's Westerner-SPAFS twin bill, you may be surprised to see a boy whom you regard as one of the better schoolboy cagers performing on the Lubbock High "B" team.

"Why in heck," you'll probably ask the fan sitting next to you, "don't the coaches put that kid on the "A" teams?"

Here's the answer:

"That kid" is Marion Manderson, who moved to Lubbock from Missouri only this year, and who is, therefore, ineligible under the Interscholastic league's one-year transfer rule.

Although Manderson admittedly is one of the top prospects on the entire squad, he has been relegated to the second, or "B" team, for that reason.

The only bright spot is that the six-foot, one-inch youth, whose father is a civil service employe at South Plains Army Flying school, has another year of eligibility and will play with the 1944 Westerners.

Closs And Hargis Take Down Top Southwest Conference Honors

(By The Associated Press)

Bill Closs of Rice and John Hargis of Texas are the men of the year in Southwest conference basketball.

These two polled unanimous support on the all-conference team selected for the Associated Press by the seven coaches.

Closs, 6-foot-6 center who led the scoring race, was head man at center and also placed at forward in two votes. Hargis, keyman of the surprising Longhorns, was the leader at forward but got two ballots for guard.

Two men tied for one of the guard positions, thus giving six on the all-conference instead of the customary five.

Big Clayton Wynne of Arkansas was tops among the guards according to the coaches' ballot. He lacked just one vote of being a unanimous choice of the seven mentors, although one of his selections was at forward.

Pairing with Hargis, who played every position on the Texas team but landed at forward on the all-conference, was Gordon Carpenter, giant center of the Arkansas Razorbacks. Carpenter also was placed at center in one vote.

Leland Huffman of Texas A. and M. and Harold Lambert of Rice tied for the guard post opposite Wynne.

Here is the second team made up of players receiving first team votes but not enough to beat out any of the above six:

Forwards — John McDonald, Rice; Pete Watkins, A. and M.; Buck Overall, Texas.

Center — Tommy Tomlinson, Southern Methodist.

Guards — Bob McHenry, Texas Christian; Mike Cokinos, A. and M.

AUSTIN, March 4 (AP) — The International Minerals and Chemical corporation's magnesium plant here was formally dedicated in a 20-minute flag raising ceremony attended by company and public officials yesterday.

JABS TOUGHER THAN JIBES — Swapping jibes with Jack Benny is much more fun than swapping jabs with Fritzie Zivic, says Fred Allen, the radio comedian. Here Allen, himself a former boxer, is shown as he put on an exhibition with the Pittsburgh welterweight at Stillman's gymnasium in New York recently.

Never-Say-Die Spirit Brings Coombs Back To 'Big Show'

By JACK CUDDY
Sports Writer

NEW YORK, March 4. — Can little "Bobby" Coombs, with the Giants this season, duplicate Ray Starr's feat last year with the Reds?

Starr, after years in the minors, came back to the big time with Cincinnati at the age of 35 and turned in an excellent season, winding up with an earned run average of 2.66, seventh best in the National circuit. He was one of Deacon Bill McKechnie's most dependable starters.

In similar fashion, brown-haired Coombs returns to the majors at 35 after 10 long years of kicking around in the minors. Even if the veteran fails to make the grade with the Giants, we must admire the never-say-die spirit which the pint-sized pitcher displayed during his decade in the minors when he always tried to fit himself for another big-league chance.

Had 1.99 ERA

Coombs, member of a famous baseball family, won his chance at last by virtue of brilliant pitching with Jersey City in '42. He was the most effective flinger in the International league, winding up the season with an earned run average of 1.99. The little workhorse was second in the number of innings pitched: 258. He was second in the number of completed games: 24. He was third in the number of shut outs: 6.

Coombs was heartbroken in 1933 when he failed to stick with the Philadelphia Athletics. In high school and college, the diminutive Maine lad seemed destined to be another major league star like his uncle, Jack Coombs—a World series pitching hero with the Athletics, and one of Connie Mack's memorable mound trio: Bender, Plank and Coombs. Uncle Jack later pitched in a World series for Brooklyn.

High School Star

Nephew "Bobby" — who was baptized Raymond at Goodwin's Mills, Me., in 1908—was the son of a semi-pro ball player, and two other uncles also were semi-pro performers. Bobby took to baseball like an otter to the river. He pitched at Kennebunk, Me., High school, at Philips Exeter Academy, N. H., and at Duke university, where Jack incidentally has been coaching for the past 15 years. As a high school flinger, Bobby once struck out 26 of the 27 boys who faced him.

Despite all these indications of a great pitching future, Coombs missed the main line train with the A's, and he spent 10 years on minor-circuit mounds with Cyracuse, Birmingham, St. Paul, Shreveport, and Jersey City.

Bobby, a right-hander whose best pitch is a slider, is married and has an 11-year-old son. He will try to carve a starting niche out of the Giants' mound squad that now includes Cliff Melton, Carl Hubbell, Bill Lohrman, Johnny Wittig, Harry Feldman, Ace Adams, Van Lingle Mungo, Bill Sayles, Kenneth Trinkle and Bill Voiselle.

Zivic, Jack Meet In Return Bout Tonight

NEW YORK, March 4. (AP) — There'll probably be about $70,000 in the Madison Square Garden cash registers when Fritzie Zivic bumps into Beau Jack tomorrow night in their return go.

This time, the cash customers are falling over each other to contribute to a tussle in which the bouncing Beau from Georgia is a 5 to 16 favorite, mind you, and that variety of entertainment doesn't usually come under the heading of super-duper pay-days. On top of that, the Beau belted Fritzie soundly the last time they collided—just a month ago. Something new had to be added to this one, naturally. So two more rounds were tacked on to the end as a concession to the way Zivic came along in the late going of their first fight.

But two extra heats don't total up to $70,000 gates ordinarily, so it must be that the folks are just anxious to see the youngest of the five flying Zivics go into his act.

Tech Signs Five New Instructors

Athletic Staff Now Has Eight Men

Texas Tech's athletic staff was more than doubled yesterday by the signing of three new physical education instructors and two first aid experts who will assist in the training of government pre-flight students at the college.

Athletic Director Morley Jennings said the new physical education instructors are George Philbrick, former Texas Tech gridiron standout and coach at Perryton for the last four years; George Burton Adams, ACC graduate and more recently athletic director at Levelland High school, and Avil Curtis (Stumpy) Hamilton, ex-Hardin-Simmons gridder who has been head coach at Slaton since 1936.

The two first aid instructors hired by the college are W. A. Hood and F. W. Bearden, both of Lubbock.

Staff Numbers Eight

The employment of these five men boosted the total for the Tech staff to eight men, including Jennings and Coaches Dell Morgan and Polk Robison.

All three of the newly-hired physical education instructors are fathers, and all have had several years' experience as coaches.

Philbrick, now 28, attended Dallas Technical High school, where he was an all-city football selection for three consecutive years, before coming to Tech. He played with the Raiders in 1936-7-8, and was a member of Tech's lone Cotton Bowl squad. From Tech he went to the coaching post at Perryton.

Adams attended high school at Gatesville, then went to Abilene Christian. He later attended Texas university, then held various coaching positions at Anton, Post and Whitharall, as well as Levelland.

Hamilton, who has officiated Tech's home basketball games for the last few years, starred with H-SU from 1928-31. He later coached at Corbin, Miles, and, finally, Slaton. When Slaton abandoned competitive sports last year he was made principal of Slaton High school.

National GG Titlists To Be Crowned Tonight

CHICAGO, March 4. (AP) — Thirty-two fighters representing 16 cities will enter the semi-finals of the Golden Gloves Tournament of Champions in Chicago stadium tomorrow night.

Semi-final winners immediately will enter the finals, making a total of 24 bouts before the champions are crowned in each of the eight weight divisions.

Chicago, Cleveland, Fort Worth and Minneapolis have best representation in the final night of amateur boxing's biggest show with three boys apiece.

Cleveland Loses Two Stars To War Effort

CLEVELAND, March 4. (AP) — The Cleveland Indians were left without a prospective first baseman today after Les Fleming, hard-hitting first sacker last year, announced he was remaining on the job at a Beaumont shipyard, and Hal Trosky said he was not returning to baseball because his "place is on the farm."

At Norway, Iowa, Trosky, the first baseman who quit baseball in 1941 because of migraine headaches, said he had informed officials here that he would not play professionally this season and would not consider any offer.

"I'm staying on the farm," he said. Trosky is working two farms in the heart of Iowa's richest farming district.

At Beaumont, Fleming, who hit .292 for the Indians last year and led all American league first basemen in fielding, said he had quit for the duration and would stick to his job as a pipefitter at the Pennsylvania shipyards where he has worked off seasons for several year.

"Money had nothing to do with my decision," he said. "I believe that I will be worth more to Uncle Sam in the shipyards than I will be playing baseball."

Winsett's Army Team Lists Several Stars

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla., March 4. (AP)—Long John Thomas Winsett, who played in the Brooklyn Dodgers' outfield in 1937 and made the rounds of the St. Louis Cardinals' farm clubs, is proud of the talent in the two Army air corps baseball leagues he directs here but hopes Joe DiMaggio isn't assigned to the St. Petersburg base.

"If he is, I don't believe we'll let him play," quipped Winsett today. "He's too good and we wouldn't want him breaking up our league."

Nevertheless, Winsett expects some of the leagues' players to develop into real major league material—in fact some of them have already.

The rosters include Bill Frank, former Cleveland pitcher; Ben Eckhart, who was to get a trial this year with Pittsburgh as a pitcher; Toy Bowen, rookie pitcher for the Boston Braves; Manuel Perez, bought by the Chicago Cubs last fall from Hollywood; and Clayton Lambert, young Cincinnati Reds righthander who had an earned run average of 1.53 for Syracuse of the International last season.

OUTDOOR FIGHTS.

NEW YORK, March 4. (AP)—Promoter Mike Jacobs is toying with the idea of staging afternoon outdoor fight shows this summer at the Yankee stadium and Polo grounds. One of the afternoon bouts may bring together Willie Pep, recognized in New York as featherweight champion, and Beau Jack, who has the New York commission blessing as lightweight king.

State PGA Tourney To Be Staged At Dallas

DALLAS, March 4. (AP) — Lone Star state golfers will have at least one major tourney to aim at this year, it developed today as Larry Nabholtz, president of the Texas Professional Golfers' association, announced that the Texas PGA Open would be held here at the Dallas Country club, April 23-25

Decision to stage a tournament this year was arrived at last night at a meeting of local professionals and golf enthusiasts when it was decided to make every phase of the meet contribute to the war effort.

Entry fees will be paid in war stamps, prizes will be paid in war bonds and all gallery fees will go to buy war bonds or be donated to some worthy charity.

As in former years the pro-amateur sweepstakes will precede the tournament, while on the last day the annual Texas Cup matches, singles and doubles, between the pro and amateur teams will be held.

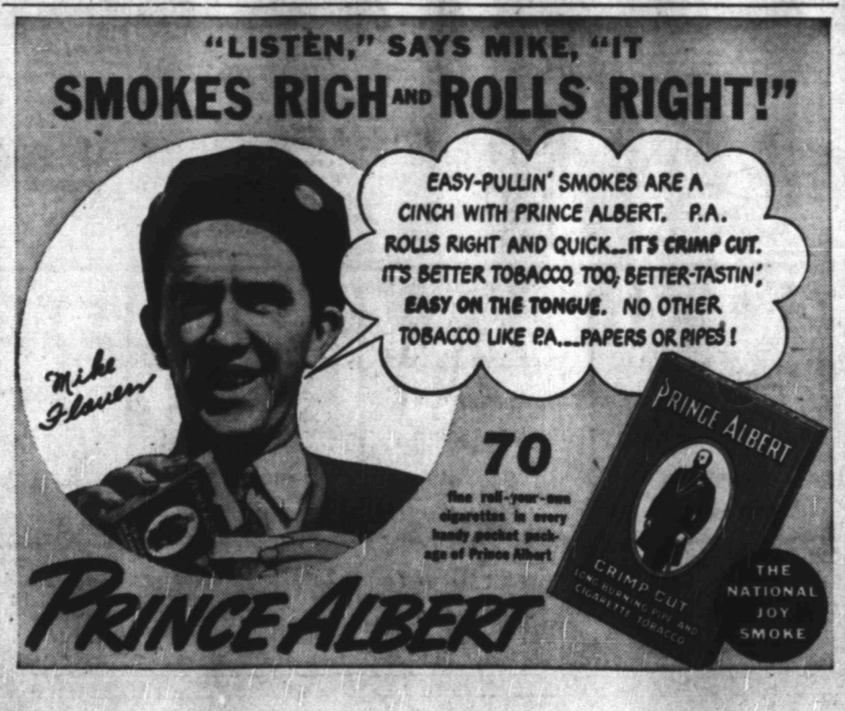

Hardin-Simmons Is Looking To Future

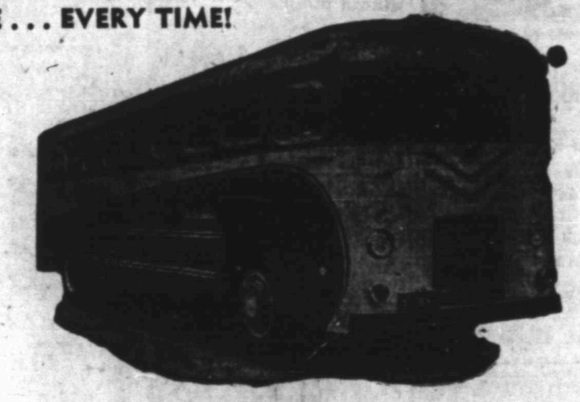

ABILENE, March 4. (AP) — If the necessities of war break up the Hardin-Simmons football team, every man scheduled to report next fall has pledged to return to school after the war and play again.

The pledge was made yesterday at the awarding of 24 letters to members of last season's squad which won the Border conference championship.

The Cowboys have lost only two men since the season ended.

"MAKE THE MOST OF YOUR HOME" could well be the home owners' wartime theme song. Making the most of your home means:—Utilization of all wasted space. If there is a roomy attic—change it over into usable, livable quarters. Remodeling existing rooms—if modernizing the kitchen will lead to more economical home management, you may be able to get the materials that will enable you to do it—provided it does not exceed current remodeling restrictions. Creation of additional space by adding a room enhances the value of your home and adds convenience as well as sorely needed new accommodations Making the most of your home has the hearty approval of our Government. The American home is the backbone of American Morale and its maintenance to its top efficiency should be the obligation of every patriotic American. We have the following materials available for interior remodeling.

THE most outstanding WALL PAPER values in Lubbock. ——

Saving up to 66 2-3% in Room Lots with border ——— $1.00 Up

CHICKENS—TURKEYS
STAR SULPHUROUS COMPOUND
Given in drinking water or feed destroys the intestinal germs and worms that cause most all diseases as they enter the fowl in feed, preventing most all diseases. Also rids them of blood-sucking lice, mites, fleas, blue bugs and red bugs that kill many of your chicks. Cost very little to use. Money back if not satisfied. Geo.—

Shifts Made In LAFS Personnel

Changes of duties for four key administrative officers and appointment of Lt. J. Blake Timmons, recently transferred here from Randolph Field, as public relations officer of Lubbock Army Flying school was announced late Thursday by Col. Thomas L. Gilbert, commanding officer of the field.

Major Claude L. Prichard, who has been post adjutant, became director of station services under the revised set-up. He is a former manufacturing firm executive from Greenwood, Ind.

Goulding Post Adjutant

Major Byron W. Goulding, public relations officer since the field's opening until he recently became squadron commander of the 84th Air Base Headquarters, now becomes the post adjutant.

An overseas veteran of World War I, Major Henry Wray, resumes command of the 84th Base Headquarters and Air Base Squadron, a post he relinquished to help organize the director of station services office.

Lt. Marion T. Key, native of Lamesa and former Lubbock attorney who has been acting as public relations officer since Major Goulding's promotion, was appointed assistant provost marshal in the new order. He will also act as assistant intelligence officer.

Timmons From Amarillo

Lt. Timmons, new public relations officer at the twin-engine air base, was formerly on the editorial staff of the Amarillo News-Globe in his home town and the Austin American-Statesman where he attended the University of Texas. He later served as press relations secretary to James V. Allred as governor.

Known in West Texas as "Tim," Lt. Timmons, before joining the Air Forces as an aviation cadet at Kelly Field, was an assistant state fire insurance commissioner of Texas and made Lubbock his headquarters during 1940 when the commission readjusted fire rates for Lubbock, Plainview, Slaton and other South Plains cities.

Contract Awarded On Airfield At Clovis

Col. L. Rosenberg, district engineer, announced from Albuequerque, N. M., Thursday award of a contract "in an amount under $500,000" to W. G. McMillan and J. T. Glover, both of Lubbock, for additional buildings at the Army airfield near Clovis, N. M.

Preliminary work on the project was started Monday, according to information here.

The contractors announced that the project will require "a large number" of skilled and unskilled workmen to be employed through the U. S. Employment service. The contractors also are maintaining offices at South Plains Army Flying school, where they are completing a project, and in Clovis.

TEXAS WOMAN DIES

BEAUMONT, March 4. (AP) — Mrs. Lucy Gardner Morgan, 72, of Hankamer, wife of a prominent physician and sister of J. Alvin Gardner, president of the Texas baseball leaue, died of a heart attack last night. She will be buried tomorrow afternoon.

It is possible to get 10,000 miles of service from first-grade spark plugs if they are properly cleaned and the oxide coating from leaded gas is not allowed to form into blisters.

TUG OF CROSS-CURRENTS

NEW YORK, March 4 (AP) — The stock market felt the tug of cross-currents today but managed to save enough of an early advance to leave the Associated Press 60-stock closing average up .1 of a point at 46.4, highest since November, 1940.

In activity and breadth the market made another more new records. There were 861 different shares traded, the largest number since Dec. 30, 1941, when 996 appeared on the tape. Transactions totaled 2,007,450 shares against yesterday's 2,017,880. It was the third 2-million share day since the beginning of the year.

Among stocks which held on to all or a fair part of their rise were Case threshing, up 2½; transcontinental and Western Air, up 1½; Eastman Kodak, up 1¼, and DuPont, up 1.

U. S. Steel, up a point at the top, closed unchanged but Bethlehem was ahead ¼. In motors, aircraft and oils minus marks were generously sprinkled at the finish. Santa Fe closed 1¼ lower and most other rails were well down from their highs. Baltimore and Ohio was resistant.

The recent soaring market in low priced rail bonds turned more selective but some carriers achieved new gains.

Posting gains in the curb were American Cynanamid, Glen Alden Coal, Humble and Pittsburgh Plate Glass. Aluminum of America and American Light and Traction dipped. Transfers were 400,290 shares compared with 373,335 yesterday.

NEW ORLEANS REPORT

NEW ORLEANS, March 4 (AP)—A wave of selling in the last hour of trading here today dropped cotton futures 80 cents to $1.20 a bale. The closing tone was barely steady.

NEW YORK FUTURES

NEW YORK, March 4 (AP)—Cotton futures declined 60 cents to $1.13 a bale today on New Orleans selling, hedging and diminished trade demand.

Despite firmness in grains, prices turned down after it was reported that Secretary Wickard soon would announce a 20 per cent increase in this year's cotton planting allotment. Smaller spot demand in the south was reported.

Rites Are Conducted For Jennings Baby

Last services were read at Memorial Park cemetery graveside Thursday afternoon by Rev. Floyd Dawson, pastor of the Foursquare church, for Ronald Ray Jennings, week-old son of Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Jennings of 1909 Sixth street.

The infant died Thursday in West Texas hospital.

Surviving, in addition to the parents, are four brothers, Lloyd, Floyd, J. W., and Winifred; and two sisters, Madie and Polly.

BUSY WITH OTHERS

NEW ORLEANS, March 4. (AP)—Bob Calvert, district OPA organization officer, discovered today he had supervised the distribution of one million copies of war Ration Book No. 2 to area ration boards and school houses but failed to register himself.

CHICAGO REPORT

CHICAGO, March 4 (AP)—Mill and commission house buying pushed wheat to new highs since the 1926-29 crop year today, but considerable resistance was encountered around $1.49 for the May future and prices backed down later in the session.

The strength in wheat extended to other pits, with most deliveries of oats and rye establishing new seasonal peaks. Corn was bid at ceilings.

Wheat finished ⅛-⅓ higher, May $1.48 ⅛-¼, July $1.48 ⅝-½, corn was unchanged at ceilings, May $1.06, oats advanced ⅝-¾ and rye gained ¼-½.

Slash In Newsprint Delayed Until July

WASHINGTON, March 4. (AP)—No further curtailments in the use of print paper by newspapers, magazine and book publishers or commercial printers will be made at least until after July 1, the War Production board announced today.

This assurance was given on the return to Washington of WBP officials who met with Canadian officials in Montreal this week.

Canadian authorities have confirmed their undertaking to furnish the United States 1,170,000 tons of wood pulp this year plus an additional 107,000 tons in the next few months which the Canadian government will call on its pulp and paper industry to supply.

On the basis of the report by R. L. Weldon, Canadian newsprint administrator, on February 20 that a large amount of pulp wood had been cut this winter in Canada, WPB recently announced that a proposed second cut in newsprint of not more than 10 per cent, which would have been effective April 1, would be held in abeyance.

However, an additional supply of wood pulp is necessary for the manufacture of other grades of paper unless further cuts are to be applied to books, magazines and other users of print paper. The new commitment, it was said, assures the supply for the non-newspapers users.

Draft Of Pre-Pearl Harbor Dads Delayed, McNutt Says

(By The United Press)

WASHINGTON, March 4. — War Manpower commission chairman Paul V. McNutt said today that everything possible is being done to delay as long as practicable the drafting of fathers and that the order prohibiting the drafting of pre-Pearl Harbor family men still is in effect.

The prohibition against the drafting of fathers until authorization is given local draft boards by national selective service headquarters affect only those having wives and children, or children only, with whom they maintained a bona fide home and acquired dependency before Dec. 8, 1941.

Bar May Be Let Down

"The only men with children who are being selected for induction at the present time are those in whose cases the dependency was acquired after Dec. 8, 1941, or at a time when selection was immient," McNutt said in a statement.

Meantime, it was apparent that the bar against taking fathers would be completely lowered shortly and that by summer the drafting of those now protected by the national order will be underway. McNutt repeatedly has said that the pool of single men is dry.

Order Effective April 1

He emphasized that the fundamental purposes of the selective service act are procurement of sufficient men for the armed forces and maintenance of production to win the war.

The recent list of occupations for which deferments will not be given, regardless of dependency, becomes effective April 1. Before men are placed in 1-A, however, they will have 30 days in which to transfer to essential jobs or register for such a transfer with the U. S. Employment service. The order affects only those aged 18 through 37.

Hogs Reach $16, High Since '20

(By The Associated Press)

CHICAGO, March 4—The $16 hog appeared on the livestock market here today for the first time since October, 1920.

Payment of $16 a hundred pounds for choice hogs featured a day in which cattle prices were the highest since 1928 and grain futures on the board of trade moved to peaks unattained since the 1928-29 crop year.

Hogs advanced 10 to 15 cents, bringing the gain in the past seven days to about 60 cents a hundred pounds. Today's high was exactly four times greater than the top of $4 paid ten years ago, when the market was deep in depression.

Failure of the supply to come up to expectations as the main factor in the advance, meat packers said, pointing out that only 49,300 salable head have arrived here this week compared with 52,886 in the same period last week and 53,885 in the like days of 1942.

Processors claimed current prices made it impossible to obtain profits on their meat operations, because of wholesale and retail ceilings. Large packers said they were endeavoring to make up their meat division losses through sales of other products.

U. S. Forces Taking Full Advantage Of Lessons In Tunisia

(By The Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, March 4.—The Mistakes made by American troops in Tunisia already are being translated into lessons for the training field, Lt. Gen. Lesley J. McNair reported today.

The aim, said the commanding general of the Army ground forces, is to create "a more nearly mistake-proof army for combat abroad."

Among specific lessons learned the hard way in Tunisia, McNair listed these:

Prompt digging of fox holes is essential—some troops in Tunisia failed to dig in quckly.

Use Of Cover Stressed

Proper use of cover and concealment need to be stressed—in Tunisia, some of the men "did not take full advantage of existing cover or improvise camouflage speedily when it was needed."

A likely-looking souvenir is more than likely to be a "boobie trap."

Only dispersion of troops can reduce the effect of enemy bombing.

Transport Lessons Learned

Other lessons brought back by observers, said a memorandum to all units of McNair's command, concern motor transport in route reconnaissance — truck columns moved in daylight, sometimes closed up, when they could have moved at night, and failure to make a proper reconnaissance of the route resulted in some unnecessary loss of motor equipment.

Balancing these mistakes, McNair found "encouraging reports of the leadership shown by commanders and the personal bravery of officers and non-commissioned officers."

False Advertising Charged To Firm

WASHINGTON, March 4 (AP) — The federal trade commission announced today issuance of a complaint charging the manufacturers of Old Gold cigarettes with "false and deceptive" advertising based on the results of laboratory tests published in Reader's Digest magazine last July.

The burden of the complaint as summarized by the FTC was that the makers, P. Lorillard Co., Inc., of Jersey City, N. J., advertised that the tests showed Old Golds were "easier on the throat" than any other brand, but failed to say that the magazine's laboratory report said the differences between brands were so small that "no single brand is so superior to its competitors as to justify its selection on the ground that it is less harmful."

More Ration Books Are Issued Thursday

Lubbock county's war price and rationing board Thursday registered 125 consumers for War Ration Book No. 2, necessary for the purchase of rationed canned goods and other foods. Two young women in the rationing office were assigned to the task, and at closing time last night a long line of customers were told to come back today.

Despite every preparation at senior high school on Wednesday afternoon to complete the task, about 30 teachers at that school registered only 173. It was known that a far larger number remained in the city without the books. It is not known today how many more will apply, but the board expects to register them all—eventually. The public schools "have done more than their part of the registration job," rationing officials said.

All of the 125 persons registering Thursday reside in Lubbock, and one official said "Some of these persons reside within a block or two of the high school, where they were asked to register during the four days the work was in progress there."

New Mexico Reports Shortage Of Labor

SANTA FE, N. M., March 4 (AP) Governor J. J. Dempsey today reported that a personal survey had shown a "severe labor shortage" in the Mesilla valley of southern New Mexico and forecast a 30 per cent decrease in farm production there this year.

Similar conditions, he asserted, probably prevailed in the Pecos valley of southeastern New Mexico and in other agricultural regions of the state.

The chief executive indicated compliance with Secretary of Agriculture Wickard's appeal to release school students over 14 to help with spring planting, but added he could see no material improvement until the government removed restrictions upon obtaining of Mexican labor.

"The farmers of the Mesilla valley," he said, "want Mexican labor, and the Mexican laborers want the work, but the endless federal red tape makes it impossible to save the crops in this logical manner."

Hale County Lambs Shipped To Market

PLAINVIEW, March .—A shipment of 233 fat lambs went forward this week to the Kansas City market, representing the first shipment by 4-H club boys this season from Hale county.

The lambs averaged better than 100 pounds. County Agent C. B. Martin said the reason for the shipment is that the animals would be too heavy for the local fat stock show June 1.

Club boys here are feeding 450 lambs, 500 hogs, and 158 calves. Eight boys were represented in the lamb shipment.

Home Gardening Is Popular Here

Back yard gardening is one wartime movement about which no one seems to find fault or complaints.

Householders say a vegetable garden can be planted, cultivated, and harvested with no more time spent on the job than would be spent in going to the market for the same, or a lesser, amount of food.

Fertility of Lubbock soil enables one to produce enormous amounts of food with scarcely any addition of fertilizers, although the proper use of barnyard manure and commercial brands are not at all foolish.

Not Retarded By Cold

Cold weather during March should not retard the gardner's plans, for plants may be started indoors and transplanted later in the open.

Dry weather handicaps may be surmounted by the liberal use of city water, which is sold at a rate anyone can afford—if they prize the backyard vegetable garden and want it to succeed.

Many forms of recreation which the town dweller has been accustomed to enjoy, such as golfing, motoring, fishing, and athletic games are on the decline. The time formerly given to sports and recreation, if applied to the home garden, will pay dividends in money, pleasure, and better health. The meat which is to be rationed later will be missed a great deal less if the family will substitute some of it with home-grown vegetables.

Use Farm Agents

If you are a newcomer, or if you have not made a garden in Lubbock before, go to your county agent or your home demonstration agent and obtain their advice. These persons are experts, and they will tell you the right vegetables to plant, the varieties you should select in buying seeds and plants, and also the best time of the year to plant each. After all, that is the service they are paid to perform, and the advice is free—and will be cheerfully given.

Alleged Big-Time Swindler Arrested

WASHINGTON, March 4 (AP)—The Justice department announced today the arrest of Emory Speer King, 56, described by J. Edgar Hoover as "a notorious confidence man and swindler," at Las Vegas, Nev., on a charge of violating the national stolen property act for which he was indicted at Dallas, February 6, 1941.

Two other men, John Glenn Chaney and Hillery Mayen, still are being hunted, the department said, for participation in the same alleged swindle.

King, Chaney and Mayen, Hoover said, took $62,000 from a 68 year old Sioux City, Iowa, widow who was wintering at McAllen, Texas, in 1939 through a stock market confidence game.

The FBI chief said that King, his wife Erma and others were named in a complaint filed at Tucson, Ariz., September 15, 1941, charging a swindle under which a La Crosse, Wis., business man was relieved of $17,000 through a race horse game swindle.

The FBI said that Mrs. King was arrested along with her husband at a Las Vegas tourist camp.

The CHIROPRACTOR-and You

No. 7 of a series of articles published in the public interest to explain and illustrate the practice of Chiropractic.

HEART TROUBLE is one of the most common diseases of the present day and the one which seems to give the patient the most concern. Of all the organs of the body, this one probably does the most actual physical work. It is the great central pump of the circulatory system which, by its alternate contraction and relaxation, forces blood through the body. The heart must function continually and consistently for the body to enjoy the maximum of health.

CONTROL OF HEART ACTION

Before the muscles of the arm contract to produce movement we first think the thought and as a result the contraction takes place. The same process is true of the heart, except that here the thought is a subconcious one. This thought, or impulse, takes place in the brain. Tiny nerve fibers then transmit it to the heart and contraction results.

There must be no interference with these nerves leading from the brain to the heart else they cannot properly transmit these impulses. If this energy, or nerve force is interfered with, even slightly, the function of the heart will be come abnormal.

The spine is the only place along the course of the nerves where such an interference can exist. If the bony segments of the spine through which the nerves pass get out of position they will produce pressure upon the nerve fibres. This pressure must be removed before impulses from the brain can "get through" to the heart and govern its action.

CORRECTING HEART TROUBLE

Because of his training, the Chiropractor is able to locate the point of pressure in the spine that interferes with the transmission of mental impulse supply and is able to render that Chiropractic health service that will adjust the spine at the location of this interference so that normal transmission is restored. There can be only one result—the heart receives its normal supply of mental impulses and is enabled to function properly.

To the thousands up on thousands of sufferers who are now living under a handicap produced by an abnormal heart action, Chirapractic offers a real and logical solution.

Japanese Strategy Upset By Sinkings

By LOUIS F. KEEMLE
United Press War Analyst

The destruction of a great Japanese convoy by Gen. Douglas MacArthur's air forces in the sea of Bismark is not only one of the great material victories in the Pacific war but an abrupt dislocation of whatever strategic plans Japan has been working out in the area north of Australia.

The loss of 10 cruisers and destroyers, 12 transports and an estimated 15,000 men destined to relieve the endangered Japanese forces at Lae and Salamaua on New Guinea extremely shaky.

Danger To Australia Less

This augmented force, had it been landed, would have made the task of driving the Japanese from the island doubly difficult. Now it should be possible for the Americans and Australians to drive them out and make any possible Japanese threat to Australia even more remote.

The convoy was obviously part of the operation in which the Japanese have been observed to be strengthening their positions in the islands ringing northern Australia.

These movements, military men pointed out, could be either for offensive or defensive purposes. Informed opinion leaned toward the view that they were for defense, with the object of erecting a barrier against the northern offensive which Allied leaders have promised to make. The Japanese reversals on Guadalcanal and New Guinea were sufficient warning that their entire position may be endangered unless extensively reinforced.

Air Power Demonstrated

To invade Australia successfully, the Japanese would need a larger force than they have on New Guinea, even if it had been increased by the successful landing of the destroyed convoy. It also has been pointed out that there are no very important military objectives in northern Australia, and if they landed the Japanese would have to make their way over 1,000 miles of barren lands or across the coastal range before reaching any point worth taking.

The destruction of this convoy may make the Japanese cautious and tend to limit future operatoins of that nature. The completeness of the Allied victory was a convincing demonstration of how vulnerable convoys are to land-based aircraft in those waters. Wherever the Japanese move, they are within bombing range and will continue to be as the Allies move northward and establish new bases.

Two things stand out in this spectacular American air victory at sea. One is that it was accomplished entirely by aircraft, unassisted by naval units. The other is that the Americans paid an amazing small price, losing only four planes.

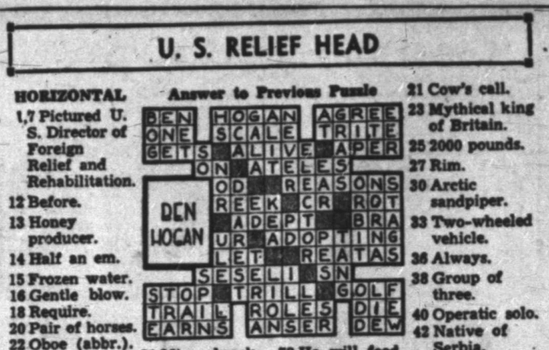

It is difficult to understand why the Japanee failed to provide more air cover for such a valuable convoy. The fact that they lost 55 planes as against one bomber and three fighters for the Americans may be significant. Only a few days ago Brig. Gen. Claire L. Chennault, commanding the American air force in China, expressed the opinion that Japanese planes are deteriorating in quality and they seem to be running short of experienced pilots.

Chicken Shortage Reported In Texas

DALLAS, March 4 (U.P.)—Add woe for the Texas gourmet—now there is a shortage of chicken.

Dallas poultry dealers report that the meat shortage, which turned the buying public to chicken markets during the last few weeks, has now created a chicken shortage.

One Dallas dealer said there are no chickens to be bought. He said dealers have successfully tried to get chickens from Oklahoma and Arkansas.

However, there are still plenty of eggs.

Housewives Advised On Meal Preparation Under Ration System

(By The United Press)

AUSTIN, March 4.—Tips to the housewife who is reluctant to part with precious ration book No. 2 stamps were given today by a University of Texas home economist.

Miss Jennie Wilmot, assistant professor of home economics, suggested:

Fruit: Select personally if at all possible; choose fruit that is ripe but firm; feel gently, don't pinch—remember other marketers come after you; buy by weight when possible; learn to distinguish between blemishes that affect the eating qualities of the fruit and those that do not; buy by grade—choosing top grade fruit for eating, lower grades for cooking purposes; plan menus around fruits in season.

Select Personally

Vegetables: Go to market and select personally if at all possible; mature vetgeables should show no signs of decay, frost or worm injury; root vegetables and tubers should be firm, plump and free from dirt—they become woody if left in the ground too long; leafy vegetables and stems should not be wilted—but you can remove slightly wilted edges; buy by weight as much as possible; handle perishable vegetables gently; choose a variety if you can—often you can buy "soup bunches" of three or four kinds of vegetables; vegetables in season locally are cheaper and have a better flavor.

"Confine use of canned and dehydrated foods to those not readily available fresh," Miss Wilmot advised.

"Learn to bake your own beans and squeeze your own grapefruit," she suggested. "Home prepared fresh fruits and vegetables are just as nutritious as canned ones—and you're helping to win the war."

KIDNEYS MUST REMOVE EXCESS ACIDS

Help 15 Miles of Kidney Tubes Flush Out Poisonous Waste

If you have an excess of acids in your blood, your 15 miles of kidney tubes may be overworked. These tiny filters and tubes are working day and night to help Nature rid your system of excess acids and poisonous waste. When disorder of kidney function permits poisonous matter to remain in your blood, it may cause nagging backache, rheumatic pains, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness. Frequent or scanty passage with smarting and burning sometimes shows there is something wrong with your kidneys or bladder.

Kidneys may need help the same as bowels; so ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, used successfully by millions for over 40 years. They give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from your blood. Get Doan's Pills.

President Attends Religious Services

WASHINGTON, March 4. (AP)—President Roosevelt observed the tenth anniversary of his elevation to the presidency today by praying at special religious services that God "grant us grace fearlessly to contend against evil and to make no peace with oppression."

The services, which have been held every March 4 since the chief executive took office in 1933, were in the east room of the White House, with high officials of the government, friends and members of the president's family participating.

The prayers were the standard supplications from the Episcopal book of common prayer and were led by Lieut. Frank R. Wilson, a navy chaplain at Norfolk, Va., who is on leave of absence as rector of Mr. Roosevelt's home church at Hyde Park, N. Y.

Attired in a gray suit, with Mrs. Roosevelt on his left, the president sat at the front of the room during the services, facing a golden cross and an American flag.

After the final hymn Vice-President Wallace stepped over to the president to shake hands and say a few words. Mrs. Roosevelt invited all present to greet the chief executive, too.

TRAIN MISHAPS VICTIM

BORGER, March 4 (U.P.)—Kenneth Mangel, 29, of Rolls, Kan., died last night of injuries received earlier in the day in a train accident in the Rock Island railroad yard four miles east of here.

Report Is Made On Sugar Beets

Final report from the 6th year's experimental work with sugar beets conducted by farmers of the plains area is cooperation with the American Crystal Sugar company, local county agents and H. M. Bainer, representative of the Panhandle and Santa Fe railroad, revealed a total of 162.7 acres of beets grown during 1942, which produced a total of 1778.82 tons.

Average tons per acre was 10.93 with an average percentage of sugar of 15.54.

nder Contract

All beets grown since the beginning of the project in 1937 were grown under contract with the American Crystal Sugar company, and have been shipped over the Panhandle and Santa Fe Railway lines, under special tariff No. 253, to the Rocky Ford, Colo., sugar plant for processing.

Contracts were signed in 1942 by 38 farmers, for a total of 607 acres of beets, but on account of grasshopper damage, wind and wet weather, only the crops of 16 farmers were harvested, with a total of 162.7 acres. Also the crop was damaged considerably by leaf spon, as a result of wet weather, and a few fields were damaged by root rot. No damage was done by curly top, it was said.

Ten farmers in Floyd county harvested crops. They are John T. Carthel, W. A. Carthel, L. R. Collis, C. W. Ginn, C. A. Gloyna, W. J. Griffiths, S. P. Millard, Earl M. Norman, C. J. Roach and C. J. Taylor. Total acreage harvested was 88.7, with an average of 9.69 tons per acre, a total of 976.88 tons. Percentage of sugar was 15.25.

Hale County

In Hale county Everett C. Lowe, H. O. Thompson and R. C. Yarbrough harvested 39 acres of beets, a total of 432.23 tons. Average tons per acre was 12.01, and per cent of sugar was 14.27.

In Lubbock county beets were grown by Billy Meyers and Texas Technological college, who harvested a total of 23 acres, averaging 9.51 tons per acre, a total of 218.67 tons. Sugar content was 16.20 per cent.

In Hockley county Earl L. Hopping harvested 2.0 acres of beats, a total of 12.59 tons, with a sugar content of 15.76 per cent.

Nov. 10 was set as the date for digging to begin, but on account of labor shortage, wet weather and lack of pulling equipment, harvesting was extremely slow, and when the sugar company set Dec. 28 as the latest day for beets to be delivered at their Rocky Ford plant, some 350 tons of beets still were in the ground and could not be delivered.

45 Carloads Shipped

Forty-five carloads of beets were shipped; Lockney shipped 28, Plainview 7, Lubbock 6 and Roundup 4.

In the tests, part of the beets were planted in 38 to 40 inch rows and part in 20 to 24 inch rows. The year's average yield of the best five growers with wide rows was 13.76 tons per acre, and the average of the five best growers with narrow rows was 11.74 tons per acre.

The average sugar content for 1942 was 15.54 per cent as compared to an average of 16.23 per cent for the four years previous.

Captured Girl Found To Be Wife Of Norris

DALLAS, March 4. (AP)—Jeanette Lyles, pretty 16-year-old brunette from Houston who was captured near Fort Worth recently with Pete Norris, number one desperado in the FBI books, and his brother Paul, said in a jail cell interview today that she was the bride of Paul.

She called him a model husband.

Paul and his wife have been charged with car theft here since their capture. Pete still has more than 300 years of sentences stacked up against him in the Texas penitentiary from which he escaped. Paul also is charged with assisting his brother's flight.

Coughs That Cause Restless Sleepless Nights

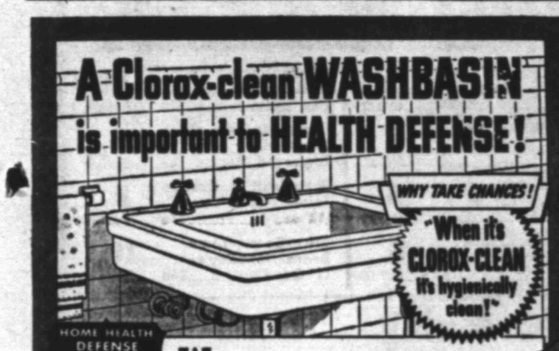

Resulting From Colds Or Bronchial Irritation

But adults can't expect real results from the same sweet syrupy concoctions that you'd give to a child. When you want to throw off a bothersome cough you've just got to have a real cough medicine; then you should ask your druggist for a bottle of good old Bron-chu-line Emulsion.

Bron-chu-line isn't a cheap cough syrup mind you, for first-raters are never cheap. But if you want the best and are willing to pay a little more for real results, get a bottle today and notice how the first dose takes right hold and gives you real relief from the coughing and soreness.

Don't ignore a cough—get relief as quick as you can. Ask Mark Halsey Drug Stores, or any progressive druggist for a 65 cent bottle of Bron-chu-line Emulsion and keep this in mind—if not joyfully satisfied — money back.—Adv.

Keep The Clubs Meeting!

A CONSIDERATION important to every American is involved when questions arise as to the continued functioning of civic service luncheon clubs like Rotary, Kiwanis, Lions, American Business and Optimist, all of which are represented in Lubbock. Such a question has arisen as result of rationing.

A most powerful argument for the preservation of these clubs, wholly unimpaired, is the fact that they are forbidden in all dictator nations. One of Adolf Hitler's first acts after his rise to power was to abolish Rotary clubs. Anything that Adolf Hitler fears and hates is, most obviously, good for Americans. Such clubs are a manifestiation of freedom of assembly and freedom of speech, both of which are deadly poison to any dictatorship.

True, it may be necessary—and certainly it would be proper—for such clubs to adjust themselves to conditions. They will do that willingly. But it is a problem that will call upon the ingenuity of the memberships. Since the noon hour is their only practical meeting time without impairment of their functioning, members may have to resort to various expedients—such, for example, as taking their own lunches, or by whatever means are available.

But these men, many of whom are leaders in their community, should continue their regular meetings. Without those regular assemblies, they cannot render in full the types of services of which they are capable and which never have been so important to the nation and themselves as right now.

Free Seeds From Congress

PROPOSAL that congressmen revive the custom of distributing free garden seed each year doubtless may appeal to many people who, properly, are thinking of Victory gardens.

It will be less appealing to many of those who recall how the same plan worked until discontinued some 20 years ago.

Most men now 45 years of age and older can remember when they received packages of vegetable and flower seeds from their congressman every year. It wasn't necessary to ask for them. They came, whether wanted or not. True, they were apt to arrive too late for planting. The fellow planning a turnip patch might discover that a gift of petunia seeds had been bestowed upon him. If a Texan received turnip seeds, as likely as not they would be varieties which would flourish only in Maine or Minnesota. The whole thing finally became such a joke that it was laughed out of existence. Thus was ended a juicy piece of business for many commerical seed growers.

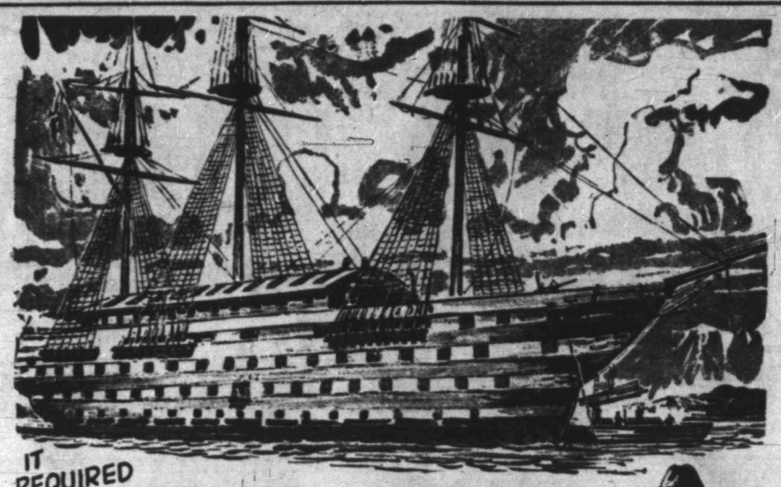

Perhaps these mistakes would not be repeated if the plan should be revived now. Certainly the conditions existing now, and the need for Victory gardens, would justify free seed distribution as never before. Even so, certain serious objections to the plan are obvious, particularly if attempt should be made to put it into operation this year.

The first objection is that free distribution inescapably would cut deeply into the available supply of garden seeds. Those planning gardens might find it difficult, or impossible, to find seeds on the store counters where, ordinarily, they would be available. It might become necessary to write your congressman in order to get the seeds you want to plant. What congressman would have time to send each of perhaps thousands of constituents exactly the sorts of seeds that each might prefer? The only thing the congressman could do would be to send everyone some of everything available, which, obviously, would mean a lot of seeds gone to waste.

Then there are other considerations, such as the manpower required in the distribution and the transportation space they would utilize, not to mention this added item of cost, relatively small, to the taxpayer.

Even so, seed distribution might have its good points in 1944. It might mean gardens which otherwise would not be planted. There would be time to produce the seeds to be distributed. But there is no reasonable supposition that the plan would be put into operation this year. If you plan a garden this year, you had better plan to make your own arrangements for seeds.

Problem of the Wire Cage

By John Dickson Carr

Chapter Four

Brenda's nerves seemed on edge. "I hope it rains and rains and rains!" she said savagely.

And, just as abruptly, she ran out into the garden.

Hugh followed her, leaving Frank to bring Kitty. But he did not catch up with her until she had reached the tennis-court. From the house along the garden to the edge of the terrace was about a hundred yards in a straight line. Here a dozen steps in crazy-paving led down the terrace to flat ground below, and to the court enclosed in trees and hedges.

Hugh found her leaning one hand against the wire fence round the court, and breathing hard.

"Why did you run after me?" Brenda asked.

"Do you want me to tell you all over aagin? I've had my answer already, thanks. All the same, I'd like to know what's got into all of us today. We're none of us quite in our right minds; if we're not careful, there'll be murder done before the day's over—"

"I know."

"You know?"

He had tried to speak lightly, but Brenda made no pretense of doing so.

"Yes, I know," she insisted. "Anyway, that's not what I wanted to tell you. You think you understand, but you don't understand at all. I mean, it's about—about the other thing."

Danger again.

She was looking at the ground, scuffing the toe of her white tennis shoe in the grass. "I meant what I did, Hugh. I meant what I did, no matter what I said, do you see? Only there are reasons why I've got to marry Frank and please everybody. I wasn't going to tell you what the reasons were, and I certainly couldn't tell you when there was anybody else about, but I can't help it: I'm going to tell you now. Hugh, the reason—"

"Well, well, well, well!" interrupted a light, far-carrying, amused voice, bursting through the opening in the poplars.

"Brenda and I against you and Kitty," pursued Frank, and spun his racket into the air. "What'll you have, rough or smooth? Rough. You lose, old boy. We'll take the south side. You can serve first, if you like."

As that set of definitely mixed doubles began, Dr. Nicholas Young sat in his study with Superintendent Hadley of the Criminal Investigation Department.

Superintendent Hadley, who was tall and heavy and looked like a Guards colonel, had not finished the good cigar he had been offered.

He said: "May I speak frankly, Dr. Young?"

"That means it's a kick in the eyes," grumbled the gentleman known as Nick. "All right, on with it."

"I've now delivered the message Sir Herbert sent. I'm tempted to add something on my own. Would you believe evidence, if you heard it, that this paragon of yours, this Mr. Frank Dorance, is little more than an infernal young blackguard?"

Nick's under-lip came out. "That's taking a bit on yourself, isn't it?"

"I know, but you certainly don't seem impressed by anything I've already told you."

Nick grew fretful.

"Well, what do you expect me to do?" he demaided querulously. "Lecture the boy? All right: I don't mind. You can't tell me he's done anything actionable."

At the moment Nick neither looked nor felt his best. Since his sight was defective in one eye—one of the lenses of his spectacles was frosted, which gave a sinister and misleading cast to his face—he should not have tried to drive a sports car as fast as Frank Dorler rance. Only a week ago he had managed to squash a new Daimler as flat as an opera-hat against a tree in Highgate village, breaking such necessities as his right arm, his right collar-bone, and his left leg. This afternoon, propped up like an unwieldly idol in his desk chair, he seemed all splints and bandages.

"Let's get this straight," Nick continued, "Frank has been seen about with a shady bottle-party crowd who'll get into trouble as sure as guns. And because Sir Herbert Armstrong is a friend of mine, he sends a full-fledged superintendent to warn me about it. I appreciate it. But as for Frank getting into trouble—pfaa!"

Hadley looked at him curiously. "I suppose you know everything he does?"

"Just between ourselves, I don't care two hoots what he does, so long as he behaves himself in public. I'll tell you something. That boy's got character."

"Evidently."

"Guts," said Nick. "Plenty of it. And I'll tell you something else. Just a month and three days from today, he is marrying one of the finest girls you'll ever meet: Bob White's daughter. And when they marry, they jointly inherit a cool fifty thousand pounds.

"A cool fifty thousand," repeated Nick, stressing the termerature popularly attributed to banknotes. "With any sort of luck, their first child will be born within a year. That child will be named Nicholas Young Dorrance. He will be educated at good preparatory and public schools, and then go to Sandhurst of Datrmouth; I don't care which; but Army or Navy it's to be. Definitely. Old Jerry Noakes had the bringing-up of Frank; and I won't say, mind you, that there aren't things in Frank's character I'd have made different; but this boy will be the one I bring up. And no mistake."

Hadley was curt.

"I have no doubt," he said, "that the child will be a credit both to you and to his prospective father. By the way, what relation is young Dorrance to you?"

"Frank? No relation at all?"

"But you keep on saying he takes after you."

"So he does. I don't want to bore you with the details," said Nick, "but it goes back a good many years. There were three of us at college — blood-brothers; you know? Bob White, Jerry Noakes, and myself.

Well, Bob White was the only one of us who had any children, and also the only one who didn't get on in the world. He married one of the Bedfordshire Stantons, a girl I was rather sweet on myself once, and they had one daughter: Brenda. We all made a lot of her.

"I had got on pretty well, if I do say it myself. And Jerry Noakes was doing uncommonly well in the City. He adopted a nephew of his: Frank. Mind, I'll say this for Jerry: he did everything for that boy, and didn't do such a bad job of it. But I helped a good deal. Well, the next thing we heard—out of a clear sky—was that Bob White had shot himself and his wife died of drink. I took the girl, of course.

"Meantime, Jerry Noakes and I were laying plans. He took to Brenda as much as I did. He was going to get Brenda and Frank married. But before he died he altered his will.

"He was leaving Frank and Brenda his money anyway, but now he left it to 'em on condition that they got married. The lawyer said he was loony in the head to make a will like that, but I stuck by Jerry."

In the pause after this energetic speech, the humming of the electric fan rose loudly. Throughout the room, throughout the house, throughout the grounds was the deathly quiet which precedes storm. It was so still that Hadley even imagined he could hear faint voices from the direction of the tennis-court. The sky had grown darker. Nick was sweating under his muffle of bandages, though their irritation had half gone.

Cafe Customers Not To Surrender Books

DALLAS, March 4 (AP) — The regional Office of Price administration said today that cafe customers do not have to surrender their ration books to the proprietor.

The OPA issued a statement through the Office of War information after a report was received that at Pampa proprietors of some restaurants were demanding the ration books of regular patrons.

The statement said: "No consumer is required to surrender ration book two to any institutional user establishment unless he lives in the establishment or premises maintained in connection with it."

Under certain conditions, however, some boarding house customers are required to give up their books.

The News Behind The News

WASHINGTON
By Ray Tucker

THE House Foreign Affairs committee conducted an investigation of lend-lease operations and possible commitments in consideration of the measure for renewal of the arrangement by which the United States finances its Allies. Although rather superficial and inconclusive, it was the first inquiry into behind-the-scenes relationships.

State department spokesmen, Assistant Secretaries Adolf A. Berle, jr., and Dean Acheson, admitted that this country had not wrung promises or concessions, immediate or postwar, in return for the advances. No detailed program of repayment has been discussed or negotiated. They emphasized, however, that almost every beneficiary will have offsetting credits to its account when the books shall be finally balanced. Debtor nations have furnished housing, food, convoys and other facilities to our soldiers overseas. In fact, the officials gave the impression that the amounts owed to Uncle Sam will be rather small if the war lasts several years more.

Incidentally, it had been suggested that London agreed to the appointment of General Dwight David Eisenhower as United Nations generalissimo in North Africa as partial return for American generosity. But "Ike's" elevation was not a tit-for-tat affair.

The bill was submitted to the lower chamber with a unanimously favorable vote. But it took more than a week for committee members to write the accompanying report. Delay was due to Republicans' difficulty in explaining why they okayed the scheme now after opposing it until 8 o'clock on the morning of December 7, 1941.

INFLUENCE: President Roosevelt has retained James Lawrence Fly as chairman of the Board of War communications in the face of a year-old demand from the Navy department for his removal from that strategic agency.

Although extraordinary pains to conceal this clash have been taken, it will probably be exposed during the Cox investigation of the Federal Communications commission which Fly also heads. For the complaint of the admiralty was forward to the White House by Representative Carl Vinson of the House Naval Affairs committee. He is a close friend of fellow-Georgian Cox, who sponsored the resolution of questioning and will manage the examination of the FCC and BWC records. It is known, however, that FDR has not even replied to the Vinson letter of protest, written in April, 1942.

High naval officers object to Fly because of his favoritism to labor and his radical views. Specifically they point out that in organizing groups to cooperate with the Board of War communications he has given as weighty a voice to union leaders as he has to representatives of government and industry. The Knox aides do not believe that matters of such vital importance to prosecution of the conflict should be entrusted to so many people, and especially to some of the CIO and AFL chiefs who have been named to these positions.

Note: Rear Admiral S. C. Cooper, radio expert in the Office of the Chief of Naval Operations, wrote the anti-Fly missive for Vinson. As a result of the FCC manager's influence, Cooper was immediately shifted to a minor post in the Ninth Naval district (Chicago). When Admiral William D. Leahy was named White House war adviser, Cooper was transferred to New York on an assignment of more consequence. He and Leahy were Annapolis classmates.

GAME: President Roosevelt appears to have turned the other cheek besides a deaf ear to congressional assailants of certain assistants dubbed "bureaucrats" on Capitol Hill. So far he has not lifted a finger to save members of the White House family from political wrath.

When angry legislators demanded Leon Henderson's head, he gave it to them on a platter and did not haggle over the ceiling price. So far he has not raised any defense on behalf of War Manpower Commission Chairman Paul V. McNutt, Secretary of Agriculture Claude Wickard or Federal Communications Chairman James Lawrence Fly.

Not a single presidential confidant has appeared in House or Senate corridors asking the boys to "lay off," as Harry Hopkins and Tommie Corcoran once did. There have been no phone calls from Steve Early or Marvin McIntyre.

FDR may be playing a canny game, according to theories prevailing among those who have observed his technique for almost a decade. Although always loath to fire officials, he may be only too happy to permit Congress to make them so uncomfortable that they will submit their resignatoins. Thus he avoids the charge of ingratitude and gets his house cleaned without soiling his political hands.

HEROES: Seven officers in the Public Relations bureau of the War department, headed by Lt. Col. John T. Winterich, former editor of the American Legion Magazine, recently volunteered to contribute a pint of blood each to the military bank.

On the day appointed three of the prospective donors could not fulfill their promises on account of illness. Two others had eaten such heavy breakfasts—they come from New England—that they were disqualified. Colonel Winterich, as nervous now as he was when he sparked the Stars and Stripes of the AEF, developed a one-degree temperature and was told to return when he was "more normal." So only one of the seven made the grade.

Their fellow workers now refer to the six as the "bloodless heroes."

HUMOR: Capitol Hill guides report that the rotunda statues most popular with tourists are those of Will Rogers and Huey P. Long. The escorts think the craving for humor and kindliness may account for the curiosity concerning the ex-cowboy and adventurer. But they can't explain the wartime yen to look at the frozen figure of the erstwhile "dictator" of Louisiana.

WINNING THE WAR
By Albert Loman

UNBIASED military authorities warn that unless the Indian deadlock is broken we cannot mount a successful offensive against Japan. It would be utter folly to risk the lives of hundreds of thousands of American soldiers in Burma and China if in the subcontinent there is an undercurrent of ferment. The issue has ceased to be a colonial dispute and has become the personal problem of every parent with a son in the service.

Pandit Nehru and his powerful Hindu associates, even though in jail, are friendly to the Allies and hostile to the Japanese. But Indian spokesmen in the United States sound the alarm that should Gandhi die in prison the influence which these leaders wield on the Nationalists would be impaired.

As a result, a wave of fanaticism and racial hatred may engulf the country. Subhas Bose, the agitator who ran away to join the Axis, still has a multitude of followers in Bengal, his native province. If the restraining hand of the moderates is removed, this region may burst into rebellion, bringing disaster to us because most of our troops are quartered there. Even passive resistance would deprive our Army of laborers and the destruction of freight by saboteurs would occur, without inquiry as to the consignees—whether Yanks or Tommies.

The democratic spirit of our armed forces makes them popular with the inhabitants. But in an uprising U. S. men might be the victims of mistaken identity: Excited zealots cannot distinguish between Occidentals and perhaps would fire indiscriminately, confusing Americans and Englishmen. Nippon alone would benefit from the catastrophe.

Farmerettes Prove They Can Do The Job

Farmers Hesitate To Hire Women, But They're Good

BY ROBERT GEIGER
Associated Press Staff Writer

DENVER, Mar. 4.—Farmers have their fingers crossed over the prospects of city-bred women helping substantially on the farm front this summer.

The women want farm jobs but the farmers are suspicious of them. They aren't convinced that the women are worth their board and keep.

On the other hand city high school students, both boys and girls, did "some quite important work" in farm fields last year, and several hundred thousands of them will be recruited, trained and placed as farm workers this year.

Many Volunteer

THOSE are conclusions of the United States Department of Agriculture after studying how to solve 1943's critical farm labor problems. They are contained in summaries prepared by the Office for Agricultural War Relations.

"Getting women volunteers is no problem — on the contrary many thousands of city and town women, young and old, seem to be eager to help out with the production and harvesting of food—but efforts to place them on farms have not proved very successful," says OAWR.

SHE knows her business, but many farmers hesitate to hire girl aides.

"Farm labor specialists of the department attribute this to the fact that most farmers in this country are not accustomed to having women, other than family members, relatives or friends of the family, working with them in farm operations.

"Their recommendation is that a few experiments be tried in each state and then if farmers see from these demonstrations that women can develop into competent farm workers this prejudice against women will gradually give way."

Short Courses

THE work of farm women, boys and girls will go a long way toward offsetting loss of manpower on farms this summer, surveys have indicated—just as they have made up in large part for the loss of factory workers.

High schools and universities throughout the United States are conducting special short term courses in agriculture for white collar folk who want to work in farm fields this summer.

A good many of these people will take seasonal farm jobs, such as harvesting, but many also will be needed to replace year-around male workers now in the armed services.

In northeastern states, particularly Maryland and Connecticut, some dairy farmers have asked the U. S. Employment service to obtain women workers for them if they can't find enough men to fill jobs.

Dairy Maids

COOPERATING in a program of recruiting, transporting, training and placing year-around farm workers, the Farm Security Administration and U. S. employment service have taken steps to train women for jobs as dairy hands.

As one example of how women helped the agricultural labor situation last summer, 1,700 of them were recruited to save the new guayule rubber crop planted by the government near Salinas, Calif. No men were available when the crop needed weeding, so 100 women were hired on an experimental basis. They were so successful that eventually 1,700 were recruited.

In Minnesota farm women saved thousands of bushels of apples in orchards near Hastings; in New York and Colorado women were employed as dairy herd testers and in many states women were trained as farm machinery operators.

One task for which women are admirably suited is that of dairy maid and thousands of women are in training this spring to take over that farm chore.

The port of Sousse in Tunisia owes its name to the susa, a moth-like native insect.

Long Distance Flights Planned

(By The United Press)

BLACKLAND ARMY FLYING SCHOOL, WACO, March 4.—Twin-engined planes, manned by cadets, will roar from this field Saturday afternoon to start a 1,300 mile round-trip jaunt and inaugurate the first of a series of long distance navigation flights.

Pointing out that the cadets in training now will be the same ones who will be piloting bombers over enemy territory a few months from now, Col. Emmett F. Yost, commanding officer, said the flight will be equivalent to a trip from London to Berlin or from Dutch harbor to the Jap held base at Kiska in the Aleutians.

Number Not Revealed

The public relations office would not reveal the number of planes or cadets taking part in the training flight.

Planes will be under command of Maj. Fred H. Bounds and will fly separately rather than in mass formation.

Destination of the flight is Columbia, Mo., where girls at Stephens college are slated to be hosts to the cadets Saturday night.

The 650-mile trip to Columbia is expected to take approximately six hours, the public relations office said. Cadets, accompanied by officers and line mechanics, will return to their base at Waco Sunday.

Conference On Fruit, Vegetable Prices Set

WASHINGTON, March 4 (AP)—Representatives of the fruit and vegetable canning industry, the commodity credit corporation and the Office of Price administration agreed today to immediate conferences aimed at quick establishment of 1943 fruit and vegetable prices.

The decision ended three days of hearings by the House agricultural committee on canners charges that OPA would not give them prices for the 1943 crop, thereby holding up vital food production. OPA officials denied the charge.

Pacific Victory Is Related In Detail

(By The United Press)

SOMEWHERE IN NEW GUINEA, March 3. (Delayed) — American and Allied air forces based in New Guinea earned their greatest victory of the war today when they destroyed a 22-ship Japanese convoy steaming toward Lae and left the Bismarck sea stained with enemy blood and strewn with wreckage of ships and panes.

American Billy Mitchell bombers caught the enemy napping by sneaking in "so low you could catch fish with your propellers" to bomb the convoy over a 15-mile expanse of water.

The story was told by pilots just back from writing with bombs, bullets and torpedoes the last chapter of a two-day assault that ended a Japanese attempt to reinforce and supply their forces in northeastern New Guinea.

Radio Man Reports

The radio man of an American Flying Fortress made this last report to his base at dusk:

"Sighted from 6,000 feet three cargo ships, two destroyers, one large and one small, remaining as the last vestige of a 22-ship convoy. All cargoers afire, smoke rising 3,000 feet. Large destroyer moving slowly with heavy oil slick pouring out from stern. Small destroyer low in water with hole in starboard at water line."

Before dawn, every airdome in this area buzzed with activity. Many crews had stayed up all night discussing yesterday's operations and planning tactics for the renewed attack.

Every Man Eager

Every man to the ground crew members was eager to clean up the balance of the convoy which had partially eluded them in bad weather the first day.

Australian Beaufort torpedo bombers went out first in the light of the waning moon to locate the convoy. They sighted one group of four ships and the rest were spread out over 15 miles, steaming a southerly course off Cape Gernards, east of Lae, into Huon gulf.

From then on, Fortresses, Mitchells, Havocs, Kittyhawks, Airacobras and Lightnings swarmed over the doomed convoy.

All Got Hits But One

Every plane of one Mitchell group except one got at least one hit on a different ship.

Second Lt. Edward T. Solomon of Suffolk, Va., graduated from flying school only six months ago, described the attack.

"We had been sitting on our tail since Christmas and were waiting for a good convoy job," Solomon said. "Boy. We went in so low you could catch fish with your props. They tried to wheel their big guns against our formation but we were so low they couldn't keep up with us.

Got Last Two Ships

"By 3 p. m. Wednesday there were only two good ships and we made a job of them. When we left we saw four ships afire and two more listing.

"Lifeboats, debris and Japs were everywhere in the water and the sea ran red with Jap blood. I got my destroyer right in the stern with a direct hit through the hatch. A cloud of black smoke belched out of the hatch.

"Other B-24's got the other destroyer. I saved one bomb for a transport which I got amidships and she blew up."

Despite his short experience, Solomon already has flown on 33 missions and shot down three Zeros in this area.

Here is the record of reports from one B-25 unit during the fighting:

Capt. Robert Chatt of Tekamah, Neb.—two direct hits on a large destroyer. Superstructure blown away.

Second Lt. Charles Howe, Ventura, Cal.—two bombs dropped on a large transport. One hit seemed to blow her up amidships. Vessel left in sinking condition.

Two Direct Hits

First Lt. Donald McNutt, Shannon, Ill.—two direct hits on deck of cruiser or large destroyer. Heavy dark smoke rising 1,500 feet.

Second Lt. Keith McKee, Mitchell S. D.—two direct hits on 5,000-ton transport.

First Lt. Harlan Reid, High Point, N. C.—one direct hit on 3,000 to 5,000-ton transport.

Transport Hit Twice

First Lt. Robert Reed, Decorah, Ia.—two direct hits amidships on 8,000-ton transport.

First Lt. John S. Bisa, New Orleans—machinegunned ships with 50 caliber machineguns.

First Lt. Ray Moore, Corsicana, Tex.—two direct hits on 5,000-ton transport.

Cruiser Left Rolling

Maj. Edward Larner, San Francisco—one direct hit, one near miss on cruiser which heavily damaged. Seen rolling sidewise. Also one direct hit on 4,000 or 5,000-ton transport which sank.

Maj. George Prentice of San Antonio, Tex., who flew with a Lightning squadron, said he thought the enemy was "playing their first team against us today."

Capt. Thomas J. Lynch of Catasaugua, Pa., retained his title as New Guinea's top-ranking fighter ace, getting his ninth Japanese Zero.

Food Needs Of Person Outlined

Amateur gardners might find the "Texas Food Standard," issued by the extension service in College Station, and distributed here by the county home demonstration agent, Miss Clara Pratt, helpful in the planning of their 1943 back yard plots.

The "Standard" says one needs, every day:

One pint to one quart of milk;

One egg;

One serving of meat, poultry, fish, or cheese;

One serving of Irish or sweet potatoes;

One serving of green or yellow vegetables;

One serving of citrus, tomatoes, raw cabbage, strawberries, or melons;

One other serving of some fruit;

One serving of whole grain products, including bread;

Other cereals and bread, as desired, preferably enriched;

Butter or margarine, with vitamins added;

Some sweets;

And six glasses of water, or maybe eight.

Children each need a quart of milk. Dried beans or peas may be substituted for meat, eggs, vegetables or potatoes; nuts may be substituted for meat or eggs.

Both the county agricultural agent and the home demonstration agent are helping scores every day in planning vegetable gardens, as well as other scores in producing foods of all kinds. Their services are free for the asking.

Importance Of Press Cited By Legislator

WASHINGTON, March 4 (AP) — The nation's newspapers were hailed today by Representative Halleck (R-Ind) as "one of the most essential and vital factors in the winning of the war."

In a speech in the House, the Indianan assailed "bureaucratic" critics of the press, asserting that "they are self-anointed, but if I were to choose between the bureaucrats and the newspapers for a guardian of the rights of men, I would unhesitatingly choose the newspapers."

Halleck called on Congress not to tolerate any "carelessness and groundless opinions" on the part of those who drafted regulations restricting the use of newsprint.

"If there are some whose animosity leads them to attempt to destroy the newspapers which stand between them and their goal, let us seek them out and render them harmless," he added. "For when you destroy the newspapers, you destroy one of the most effective internal implements of war and of peace which this nation possesses.

Anti-Freeze Tests Explained By OWI

DALLAS, March 4 (AP)—Simple tests by which motorists may determine whether the anti-freeze solution in their radiators is safe were announced today by the Office of War information, as follows:

Draw a small amount of mixture from the radiator and add to a glass of water. If the radiator mixture floats noticeably on the water, the anti-freeze contains injurious kerosene, fuel oil or naptha.

Drain a cupful of radiator mixture into a clean tin can and boil until all liquid has evaporated. If substantial white or crystalline coating remains, the solution contains salt.

If either test reveals harmful ingredients, the radiator should be drained immediately.

Bill Is Passed To Tatto Farm Animals

AUSTIN, March 4. (AP) — The senate today concurred in a house amendment, finally passing a bill providing registration of tattoo marks for sheep, goats and piggs.

And if he wants to, Sen. L. J. Sulak of La Grange can tattoo his Fayette county bullfrogs.

Sulak asked Sen. Houghton Brownlee of Austin, tattoo bill author, if its provisions could be so extended, and Brownlee answered the joking remark in the affirmative.

Sulak recently authored a bill to extend the closed season of Fayette county bullfrog hunting.

Brownlee explained the tattoo bill was designed primarily to prevent stealing of sheep and goats.

Owners of the marks must register them with the department of public safety.

In the early days of English law the witnesses in a trial were the jurors — chosen because of their presumed knowledge of the case.
