LA. STANDARD GASOLINE IS CUT 3 CENTS

Louisiana, Tennessee And Arkansas Affected In Action

NOTHING HERE YET

Shreveport Reports Most Drastic Action In Months

SHREVEPORT, La., Aug. 13.—Effective at 7 o'clock Friday morning the price of gasoline at all Standard of Louisiana filling stations in Louisiana, Arkansas and Tennessee will be reduced three cents a gallon. A similar reduction is to be made in tank wagon prices. In Louisiana the new price will be 19½ cents at the filling station and 16½ tank wagon, while the prices in Tennessee and Arkansas will vary according to the amount of state taxes. Two cents of the price in Louisiana is state tax, and four cents is the Arkansas state levy.

Is Drastic Cut

The cut is the most drastic change in many months, and the first change of any sort in Shreveport territory in some time.

In response to questions regarding the gasoline price situation in its territory Standard Oil company of Louisiana stated: "The recent reductions in our gasoline prices were made to meet competition. Our gasoline markets are highly competitive with the basic value determined from time to time by the delivered price of tank car shipments from various points of supply. Just now, despite the considerable increase in gasoline consumption over last year's, supplies are ample and refiners in the various centers have reduced their tank car price in order to move their product. Our own adjustment is in response to this condition."

The cut in gasoline prices noted above was construed by local refiners to mean a general two-cent cut over Standard of Louisiana territory, such being their information from Tulsa, and a three-cent cut in Louisiana alone. Last night had seen no changes at the local markets.

TIME GROWS SHORT FOR AIR EXPLORATIONS

Unable Yet to Find Base From Which to Make Ground Studies

LEADER IMPATIENT

M'Millan and Byrd Held Up by Fog, Snow Storm And Ice Bergs

WASHINGTON, Aug. 13.—(AP).—Equipped with airplanes capable of sailing smoothly over hazards once thought impassable, the MacMillan Arctic expedition nevertheless has found the natural laws of the north constantly blocking its progress.

With only 17 days of flying weather in prospect, Commander Donald B. MacMillan and his chief aid, Lieutenant Commander R. E. Byrd, are becoming impatient while low-lying clouds, snows and fogs obscure the territory where they hope to establish a base on the Polar sea from which to explore an unmapped area covering 1,000,000 square miles.

Find no Beach.

In addition to these troubles, failure to find a beach near Etah, from which the planes could hop off has been a disappointment. Under present conditions, the machines must take off from the ice-infested waters, and to do so they must unload much precious fuel. This has resulted in reducing their cruising radius from 1,000 to 700 miles. With such a situation to contend with, those in charge of the expedition feel it is essential that an intermediate base be established, and the planes have skimmed over the jagged, snow-clad peaks and down deep, narrow valleys in search of a landing base at which fuel and food could be cached. The most favorable conditions were found Monday at Baitstad Fjord a small inlet running in a westerly direction from Hayes Fjord, but Lieutenant Commander Byrd has advised against a flight to that point until the snow and fog ceases.

Machine Escapes Wreck.

Commander MacMillan, reporting by radio to the National Geographical society today told of the narrow escape from destruction last night of one of the airplanes which was threatened by an iceberg. Such ice dangers have been constant and more bergs are looked for.

When the weather clears sufficiently, at least ten flights will be necessary for the planes to lay down sufficient food and fuel to establish a temporary base.

THE WEATHER

"I'm glad that tooth stuck in the taffy an' come out. I've been scared I'd swallow it some night."

LYRICS OF LIFE.
By Douglas Malloch.
Dream On.

With years we grow a lot more wise.
We read we hear, we see so much:
And yet I hope that nothing dies.
We never quite get out of touch
With childhood days and childhood things
Whatever wisdom fortune brings.
If childhood faith can help our grieving,
I hope our hearts go on believing.

With years we grow a lot more sad.
So much we love, so much we lose:
And yet, whatever loss we had,
One joy is always ours to choose:
Whatever hands may do us ill,
For I have found there some hands will.
Amid the grasping, shouting, shoving
I hope our hearts can go on loving.

With years we grow a lot more sad.
We grow so old, we grow so wise;
And yet, whatever loss we had,
So much of fact that fancy flies.
Though ev'ry fairy castle wall
We build in youth in age may fall.
I hope we see new turrets gleaming—
I hope our hearts can go on dreaming.

BUSY AT ORLEANS

Campaign There Shifts To Court and Bonding Of Offenders

NEW YORK, Aug. 13.—(AP)—A risin gtide of real pre-war beer is flowing through the east, challenging evrisin gtide of real pre-war beer is flowment to checx its circulation, and is rapidly displacing hard liquors as the major commodity of syndicate bootleggers, according to Prohibition Director Merrick.

Three car loads of beer were seized today by prohibition agents from Mr. Merrick's office, bringing the total seizures during the past 30 days to 60,000 barrels, valued at $100,000.

Breweries Busy.

The increase in beer traffic is traceable to the manufacture of real beer by supposedly defunct breweries, located in the main in New Jersey, Pennsylvania and Massachusetts, the director said. A comparative famine of hard liquors due to the dispersal of the rum fleets was said to be another factor giving impetus to its popularity.

"Investigation by agents has disclosed that the greater part of the beer flowing into eastern cities is coming from breweries located in and about Scranton, Pa.," Mr. Merrick said. "But we have seized considerable beer consigned by freight from New Jersey and Massachusetts."

Rates of fare and a third will be in effect from all parts of Oklahoma and points in Kansas, Missouri, Arkansas and Texas where the fare is under $10 and a fare and one-half in other parts of the southwestern division where the rate is $11.05 or less. The date of sale in the southwestern territory is from Sept. 28 to Oct. 8 and the final return date is Oct. 12.

Special trains from San Antonio, Fort Worth, El Dorado, Ark., Wichita, Kansas City, Denver and other cities will be run to the exposition, according to word received by Mr. McIntyre.

German Surgeons Split on Ideas

BERLIN.—Prof. August Fier, the eminent Berlin surgeon who performed the operations of the late President Ebert and Hugo Stinnes, has stirred up the allopathic fraternity by not only saying a few kind words for homeopathy, but also publishing his personal success wtih the homeopathic treatment.

At the last meeting of the medical society, Prof. Bier was subjected to a scathing criticism. One member gard it as a system rather than a unethical of Prof. Bier to champion the cause of homeopathy." Another asserted: "Homeopathy is wrong because its adherents redeclared: "It is nothing less than science. It is therefore to be condemned as a system." Prof Bier, unperturbed, replied to these and other reproaches with the statement that this problem could only be solved by means of continuous experiments. He declared that after a careful study of the works of Samuel Hahnemann, the originator of homeopathy, he had come to the conclusion that from these text books the greatest wisdom as well as the uttermost nonsense was to be gleaned.

Crickets Win In Fight in El Paso

EL PASO, Texas, Aug. 13.—(AP)—Texas street, proud of its new "White Way" was dark last night while a million cricket legs joined together to give business men along the street the "raza."

Last night the situation became acute and the lights were dimmed in an effort to discourage the pests, but the rasping melody continued.

Insect powders and kerosene were resorted to while sleepless hotel guests wriggled in their beds and grocery and clothing store proprietors complained.

DARROW HARD HIT IN TALK BY STEWART

Scopes Prosecutor Merciless In Condemnation Of Chicago Attorney

DAYTON, Tenn., Aug. 13.—(AP)—Organization of the Bryan Memorial association here last night was marked by scathing denunciation of Clarence Darrow by A. T. Stewart, prosecuting attorney in the Scopes evolution trial, and a denial by Judge John T. Raulston, who presided at the hearing, of charges by Darrow that he had used the trial to further his political interests. The association, formed for the purpose of erecting a fundamentalist school in memory of William Jennings Bryan in Dayton, set as a goal the raising of $1,500,000 for the buildings and five millions for the endowment of the proposed institution.

Great Menace.

Mr. Darrow, who served as a defense attorney in the Scopes trial, was denounced by Mr. Stewart as the "greatest menace present day civilization has to deal with."

"I do not believe there would be a serious clash between religion and science," the attorney said, "if it were not for the Godless Darrow and his like, spreading their propaganda and trying to destroy faith in the Bible. . . . His doctrine is a curse. Unless the people of this land suppress him more evil will be done."

Judge Raulston in registering denial of the charges of Mr. Darrow declared the statement that he had used his fundamentalist beliefs to further his political interests "without justification."

Solely on Record.

"If I seek re-election," he said, "it will be wholly on my record as judge and I don't believe Mr. Darrow's sarcasm can prejudice the minds of the people against me. . . .

"Mr. Darrow now refers to me as being ignorant and intimates that I am unworthy of the office which I now hold. I prefer that the latter question be referred to the people in my district rather than to him."

Bones of Saint Christian, Virgin Martyr of Third Century, Brought To America for Burial in Cleveland

Gift Made to Bishop by Pope as a Reward For Gift To Roman House; Cathedral to be Constructed To House Relics

NEW YORK, Aug. 13.—(AP)—In a plain oak box the bones of Saint Christina, virgin martyr of the third century, rested on American soil today preparatory to being taken to the Roman Catholic cathedral at Cleveland, Ohio.

The bones were the gift of Pope Pius Xi to Bishop Joseph Schrembs of Cleveland in recognition of the $200,000 which the Cleveland diocese contributed to the erection of a "house of catacombs" in Rome.

Bishop Schrembs with Bishop Michael Gallagher of Detroit and others returned from a four months holy year pilgrimage last night and were met by a delegation of middle-western clergy and laymen. They brought home a message from the pope:

"America has the hand of Providence for the impoverished and unfortunate nations of the world and the world will never forget America."

Little is known of the life of Saint Christina. Church historians say she was the daughter of a pagan magistrate, who was responsible for her death. Though torn by iron hooks and hung to a rack above a fire she held to her faith to the end and inspired harassed pioneers of the church.

Bishop Schrembs said the skull of the saint was intact and most of the larger bones were in the reliquary. In addition, there is a phial of her dried blood. He also brought a bone from the body of the recently beatified Saint Theresa. For both relics the bishop said he would try to build a new cathedral.

It charged Mr. Mellon with "treason of the darkest sort" in his connection with the enforcement of prohibition and declared "if ever a person deserved death at the hands of an outraged public you certainly deserve such."

Work Started On Exhibit Buildings At Electra Fair

ELECTRA, Aug. 13—Construction work has started on two exhibit buildings to be erected by the W. T. Waggoner Estates Racing association under an agreement with the Electra chamber of commerce and agriculture, the buildings to be used for the Electra district fair. The contract for construction was awarded to E. A. Ostrum, lowest bidder. Each of the buildings will be 32x100 feet, one building to house agricultural and industrial exhibits and the other to house livestock and poultry. The plans call for buildings of the most approved modern type for exhibit purposes. A ladies' rest room and other modern conveniences will be provided for the accommodation of the visitors attending the fair.

According to W. A. Ashill, chairman of the agricultural bureau of the chamber, the catalogue of the Electra district fair will be ready for distribution early next week. Reports from different sections of Electra's trade territory indicate that the recent rains have assured an abundance of exhibit material for the fair. Women's clubs in several communities are planning exhibits and it is expected that the women's department will be one of the best and most complete divisions of the fair. It is also suspected that the poultry show will be unusually good this year.

SPEAKING OF THE NEBRASKA AND OREGON CASES

An eminent lawyer of the New York bar ventures the opinion there is nothing in the Nebraska case or in the Oregon case that leads one to suppose that the Tennessee statute against evolution will be held by the United States supreme court to be repugnant to the Fourteenth amendment to the Constitution of the United States, as the Tennessee statute forbids the teaching of any theory that denies the divine creation of man as taught in the Bible and teaches instead that man has descened from a lower order of animals.

Moreover the statute is expressly limited to schools supported in whole or in part by the public school fund. The statute, therefore, has no application to private, parochial or denominational schools. In the Oregon case the statute required all children between the ages of eight and sixteen to attend public schools. The supreme court of the United States held that this violated the Fourteenth amendment, inasmuch as the fundamental theory of liberty upon which all governments in this union repose, excludes any general power of the state standardize its children by forcing them to accept instruction from public school teachers only.

In the Nebraska case the state statute applied to all schools, public, private, parochial and denominational and contained two provisions. First, that all instruction must be in the English language and second, that no language other than English shall be taught below the eighth grade. Both provisions were held constitutional by the Nebraska supreme court.

The case was appealed to the United States supreme court as involving the Fourteenth amendment. The court held the first provision constitutional but held that the second provision violated the Fourteenth amendment on the ground that "no emergency had arisen which renders knowledge by a child of some language other than English so clearly harmful as to justify its inhibition with the consequent infringement of rights long freely enjoyed." Moreover the Nebraska statute applied not merely to public schools but to every school in the state, and the United States supreme court was careful to point out that no challenge has been made of the state's power to prescribe a curriculum for institutions which it supports.

Those matters are not within the present controversy that placed Dayton on the map. John T. Scopes and his attorneys have taken an appeal to the supreme court of Tennessee. It is freely predicted by lawyers and laymen that the supreme court of that state will affirm the constitutionality of the anti-evolution act. Then an appeal will be taken to the supreme court of the United States.

THE OLD STUMBLING BLOCK

The caustic letter of John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers of America, to Samuel D. Warriner, head of the anthracite operators conference, rejecting further parleys, lays chief emphasis upon the fact that the operators had refused to recognize the union. "It remains," stated Mr. Lewis, after sweeping aside all proffers of conciliation, "that your Atlantic City conferees informed the mine workers' representatives, including myself, that they would reject any demand that would distur the factor of mine costs. In addition, they rejected the request for the full recognition of the union, for some other mysterious reason."

This is the old stumbling block over which every attempted peaceful agreement in the coal mining industry goes to pieces. By "full recognition of the union," Mr. Lewis meant, of course, entire acceptance of the "check-off" system by which operators are required to withhold the amount of union dues from the pay of employes and turn it over to officials of the union. Such a practice amounts to vastly more than mere recognition; it means little short of vassalage to the union for both operators and miners. The operators become the unwilling agents of the union and the workers are compelled to pay their dues through an intermediary even before they receive their wages.

It is not hard to understand why the operators do not wish to become subservient to the union. The matter difficult of comprehension is why the individual miners do not rebel against a system which in effect places them under a double bondage. It is bad enough for the payment of dues to be made compulsory without putting the machinery of payment in the hands of the very employers with whom the miners are in perpetual controversy.

That the workers do not protest is, perhaps, due ot teh hard circumstances in which they find themselves. At best they can eke out but a precarious livelihood. Experience has taught them that the mine owners are their enemies and this teaching has made them cling closely to the union, no matter how oppressive it may become at times under some of its curious rules. Yet until the "check-off" system is abolished, the miners can never achieve any measure of economic independence, regardless of the triumphs their organization may win against the operators.

CANADA RICH IN MINERALS

Canada is rich in minerals. Canada is third in gold output. Canada produced $31,500,000 in gold in 1924 when the total gold output in the world was $383,000,000. Canadian mines had the greatest output of lead in their history in 1924 when they produced 176,000,000 tons, worth more than $14,000,000. All this lead was exported owing to prices created by a heavy foreign demand. Canada is one of the great wheat producing countries of the world and yet New York with a population of 12 million could be lost in one corner of Canada. Canada has a population of less than 10 millions and in natural resources counted among the richest of all nations. John Bull should ship his surplus population to his Canadian empire.

Uncommon Sense

By JOHN BLAKE.

Endurance.

A young man, just entering employment in a big store did a particularly good bit of work.

He was commended for it by his immediate superior, who called the attention of the head of the store to the youth.

"He'll be one of the chief executives around here some day," said this functionary. "I never saw such fast thinking as he did on that job."

"Maybe," replied the head of the business. "If he can keep doing things like that right along."

"But that's too much to expect of a beginner."

"Nothing is too much to expect. Don't be disappointed, or turn against this young fellow right away if he doesn't continue to perform, but expect him to perform, and he'll be more likely too. Not only that, tell him you expect him to."

The young man was told that he had done good work, and bidden to keep on doing something out of the ordinary every day.

He didn't quite do that, but the fact that he knew he was expected to do better work than his fellow employes made him try harder.

Today he is in a high place in the establishment, but he is working just as hard as ever.

It is quite possible that had a fuss been made over the boy's first brilliant effort, his head might have been turned, and he might have lived on his reputation until he wore it out.

Such things have frequently happened.

It is not the single fine performance that counts in business, any more than it does on the stage.

An actor must not only give an unusually capable rendering of a role on the first night of the play, but he must give one every night of the run, or the manager will soon be looking for somebody to succeed him.

Endurance always counts, and it is far more difficult than occasional flights of intellect.

The world today expects good work and a great deal of it from the people it bestows its favor upon.

It expects people not only to work well, but to work fast, to do over and over again exceptional things.

A one-battle general never remains long in command.

A one-play author has trouble getting a hearing from managers after making a failure of his second and third plays.

It is not the doing, but the keeping it up that counts.

When employers can depend on men for good service day after day and year after year the question of salary is not discussed. The man gets the salary he asks for.

But in that sort of achievement lies exceeding difficulty—difficulty that both brains and determination working together must overcome.

Men, who can employ this combination, are rarer—far more are than they would be if brilliant men would not so often rest on one job reputations.

THE BRYAN WILL

The will of William Jennings Bryan indicates that its author was possessed of a very moderate fortune, as men now count fortunes, which removed him from the rank of millionaires. It also shows that he had none of the vanity of the rich man who seeks in his will some means of self-laudation and of perpetuating his memory. The one object dearest to Bryan's heart and first in his thoughts when he drew up his will was the establishment of an academy devoted to Christian education, which would combine religious training with intellectual development and bridge the gap between the high school and the college. Yet, in dealing with it, Bryan displayed his usual modesty. He had hoped to join with others in creating such an institution. Failing in this, he realized that he might fail also in effecting his purpose through the medium of his will. He left considerable discretion to the trustees of the fund for Christian education in case his own idea of a school should prove impracticable.

This fund, roughly estimated, was to be but $50,000, or about one-twelfth of Bryan's estate. It is almost negligible when compared with the personal bequests he made. Indeed, its creation amounts to little more than a wish to aid in a worthwhile movement which Bryan was not permitted to achieve during his lifetime. Although intent upon promoting the cause of Christian education he recognized that his principal duty in making a will was to his family, his relatives and the friends who stood in closest personal relation to him. To his wife he left, besides a life interest in their home, one-third of all his estate. To each of his children, one-fourth of the remainder. As there are but three children this left another portion to be distributed. This part, less than $50,000, was to go to Christian education. Many small bequests were to be distributed among relatives and friends. Even the servants of his household were remembered by Bryan. None was forgotten.

A SIGNIFICANT CHANGE

The federal reserve board in its monthly report on business conditions notes one significant change. This is an appreciable increase in the volume of wholesale trade. Coming at this time, when almost every other item in the business register is tending downward, it probably indicates the beginning of a fall revival in trade activities. The indication is all the surer because it is supported by an advance in prices. Following a decline of two months, wholesale prices increased 1.4 per cent in June. Miscellaneous articles made the greatest advance, followed closely by farm products. Further increases were shown during the first part of July by flour, beef, hogs, wool, copper, petroleum and hides.

A general tendency of this kind is certainly promising, for prosperity is invariably accompanied by a rise in prices. Its apparent suddenness gives it greater force, as it seems to spring from a considerable depth and can be no mere passing phenomenon. Its contrast with the continued declines in the production of basic commodities and with decreased factory employment is in perfect agreement both with the necessities of the present situation and with the requirements of an approaching trade revival. In a dull season production of the essential materials for manufacturing and trade falls off and business activity is maintained by exchanges in the small lines nearest the consumer. When revival begins, its indications are first seen in these small lines. It is an easy matter, as revival progresses, for production of basic commodities to expand in order to support renewed surface activity.

WHAT TODAY MEANS TO YOU

By MARY BLAKE.

Leo.

Today's planetary aspects denote, until sundown, a degree of confusion, and a spirit of uncertainty and doubt. Such an atmosphere, of course, does not presage success for new plans or projects and counsels "letting well alone" as far as is compatible with the faithful observance of daily duties. There is also lacking today any feeling of optimism and self-confidence. On the contrary there will be experienced a hesitation and a reluctance to take advantage of opportunities. Your mind today will be too critical to justify any constructive efforts. In the evening, this condition gives way to one of relaxation and cheerfulness, which will enable you to radiate happiness in the family or home circle.

A girl born today will be healthy, strong and vigorous. She will not be subject to any serious illness, and will develop surely and safely into a normal womanhood. On the other hand, a boy will be physically erratic, and liable to many "ups and downs"—so far as his health is concerned. In temperament and disposition, they will both possess many charming and attractive features. They will be demonstratively affectionate, and this tendency should be encouraged, and not curbed. They will not possess any marked ability, nor will they be specially gifted. This will not, however, detract from their general likeableness, nor interfere in any way, with that moderate success in life for which they appear to be destined.

If today is your birthday, you possibly attach too much importance—if this be possible—to culture and refinement, and while always reaching out for the society and companionship of those in a more secure social position than your own, are apt to overlook many diamonds in the rough. This attitude causes criticism among those who know you, and they frequently accuse you of being a "snob," although you are at heart, far removed from any such category.

You possess marked executive ability, strength of character, force, and perspicacity. Your thoughts are never centered on matters of frivolity. You are very serious-minded, and, unfortunately, have little or no sense of humor—which, in your case, would be a saving grace.

You are very attached to your home, love good books, serious conversations, and, at all times, are imbued with a deep sense of earnestness. Your love is profound, and based more on facts than on fancies.

DIVIDEND IS DECLARED

General Motors Vote Extra Payment on All Stock.

NEW YORK, Aug. 13.—(AP)—Directors of General Motors corporation today declared an extra dividend of $1 a share on the common stock in addition to the regular quarterly disbursement of $1.50.

HOW IT STARTED

The First Library

To those who believe the present system of things is "all there is—there is no more," that ours is the only really civilized period the world has ever known, it might serve as enlightening to learn that a civilization which existed a few centuries before the advent of Christ saw the establishment of a library containing between six and seven hundred thousand "volumes" or "rolls." This was the great library or "twin libraries" of Alexandria, founded by the first of the Ptolemies. During the siege of Alexandria, in '48 B. C., when Julius Caesar burned the shipping in the harbor, a large part of the library was destroyed.

Although most of the temples of Babylonia, which was the seat of a learned and literary people many hundreds of years before the advent of Christ, contained a library of clay tablets in the cuneform writing of the day, the library at Alexandria, with its half million "rolls" of manuscripts, is the first known library in the modern sense of the word.

After its destruction, the library at Alexandria was replaced by that of Pergamum in Asia Miner, which was presented by Antony as a gift to Cleopatra. According to Plutarch, it contained about two hundred thousand volumes.

Subsequently we have the various libraries in Rome, which represented usually the spoils of war; the great library of Constantinople founded in the Fourth Century by Constantine; then the monastic libraries of the middle ages, and, beginning with the Fifteenth Century in Germany, the university libraries which bear the closest resemblance that had yet been reached to libraries as we know them today.

Takes More Than Plain English Here

THE DALLES, Ore., Aug. 13.—A thirsty tourist quaffed vigorously from a roadside spring between Mosier and Hood river about twenty miles from here. A sign lettered, "This water is contaminated," had been placed beside the spring. Division Engineer Wanzer of the Oregon highway department, driving by, saw the drinker and stopped to warn him, only to be met by the question, "What kind of mineral water is this? I never heard of it before."

The state replaced the sign with one reading:

"This water is rotten. Not fit to drink."

COMPLAINTS UNJUSTIFIED.

Minister of Justice Says Bandits Not as Busy as Reported.

VRASTRA, Bulgaria, Aug. 13.—Minister of Justice Boboshevski recently visited the Vrasta district to assure residents that their complaints of the activities of bandits were unjustified. Summer visitors had been kept away from the district, it was alleged, by reports that the district was overrun with bandits.

Returning to Sofia the minister of justice and his party were attacked by a band headed by Ivan Atanassoff, a former school teacher. The militia went to the aid of the official party, seriously wounded Atanassoff and killed the members of his band.

TRAIN CRASH FATAL

Two Youngsters Lose Lives When Car Is Struck.

TULSA, Okla., Aug. 13.—(AP).—Jewell McNeeley, 4, and his sister, Vera, 11, were killed and their mother, Mrs. Ona McNeeley, of Red Fork and another son, Curtis, 6, were seriously injured when their automobile was struck by St. Louis-San Francisco passenger train No. 118 near the city limits of Red Fork today.

IRRIGATION

Irrigation District Prohibited From Fencing Lake Kemp.

Our interest in anything varies according to how it affects us. A local election will often cause more discussion and bad feeling than a national one of world-wide importance.

A murder in Chicago is merely a news item of little interest to most of us, but the same thing occurring at the corner of Eighth and Indiana would focus the attention of every citizen.

So it was with the fencing of Lake Kemp by Mr. Waggoner. Every one takes an interest in this lake from some angle or other and when it was found that the public was to be shut out it caused a great deal of discussion.

It will probably be news to many to learn that Mr. Waggoner feared that the district might do this very thing. The contract provides against such a contingency as follows:

"(f) The party o fthe second part (the irrigation district) hereby agrees that it will not fence either of the said reservoirs without the written consent of W. T. Waggoner."

It can readily be seen why Mr. Waggoner would require such a provision. He is engaged in raising cattle and a fence about the lake would prevent his cattle from reaching water. Steers do not fatten well if they have to walk twenty-five miles for a drink.

Educational Board Formed at Geneva

GENEVA, Aug. 13.—Word has been received of the formation of the American national committee on intellectual co-operation, which is to collaborate with the league of nations permanent international committee on intellectual co-operation. Similar national groups exist in other countries which are members of the league.

Inazo Nitobe, assistant secretary general, received a cablegram from R. A. Millikan, California, who is a member of the league's central committee, that the American group is headed by Elihu Root.

It also includes George E. Hale, honorary chairman of the national research council; Charles H. Haskins, chairman of the council of learned societies; Herbert Putnam, librarian of congress; Virginia C. Gildersleeve, president of the International Federation of University Women; Lorado Taft, member of the American Academy of Arts and Letters; James H. Breasted, American philological organizations; Charles W. Eliot, Vernon Kellogg, secretary of the national research council; Augustus Trowbridge, international education board; C. R. Mann, director of the American council of education, and R. A. Millikan.

ORCHESTRA TO PLAY.

Visiting Musicians to Appear in Leipsic Concert.

LEIPSIC, Aug. 13.—For the first time since the founding of the Gewandhaus concerts in 1781 a visiting orchestra, the Saxonian State, will be included in the season's program. The extraordinary duties imposed upon the Gewandhaus orchestra by the reconstruction of the Leipsic municipal opera has caused the city council to curtail the concerts.

The Gewandhaus orchestra will be available for only 18 concerts during the season, while the Saxonian State will be heard in two.

OIL MEN SWAMP CITY

BRADFORD, Pa., Aug. 13.—(AP).—Visiting oil men from all parts of the country, here for Bradford's old-home week celebration, today witnessed an old-time firemen's convention. The feature event was a demonstration of modern fire-fighting methods in fighting oil fires. A parade of fire companies from Bradford and nearby oil fields was also held.

THE STORY SO FAR.

Caryll, English-bred son of an Arab sheik, is in Touggourt with Saint Hubert, a devoted friend of the family, on his way to a visit with his father and mother whom he has not seen for many years. Trained as a fastidious Britisher of unlimited wealth, he is highly bored and disgusted with the dirt and desert wastes of the country they are traversing. He is also rebellious defiant of his father, whom he conceives to be a worthless non-descript, but who in reality is one of the most powerful Arabian rulers of Algiers.

He has just finished a tirade against his family and has been left alone by Saint Hubert, who has an important engagement with a local functionary. He is wondering how to spend what promises to be a dull evening.

GO ON WITH THE STORY.

Amongst the deserted sandhills beyond the Tombs of the Kings he had come suddenly upon a gigantic Arab mercilessly beating a slender slip of a girl who, though silent under the terrible chastisement, was writhing with pain and fighting desperately to free herself.

Without thinking of the possible consequences, forgetful of Saint Hubert's repeated warnings, conscious only of the rage and disgust that filled him, Caryll had shouted to his man and galloped straight for them, his fingers gripping the heavy hunting crop he happened to be carrying.

The long, pliant whiplash had whistled through the air and coiled with a strangulating hold round the throat of the Arab, who had stumbled to his knees dragging the crop from Caryll's grasp and releasing the girl as he fell. He had risen in a flash, a knife gleaming in his hand, and, tearing the thong from his neck, had sprung forward, his face working horribly, his wild eyes almost frenzied in their murderous rage.

Spurring his horse aside, Caryll had avoided the furious thrust aimed at him.

And the man had found no further opportunity. For, crouching low in his saddle and swinging the recovered crop in his hand, the valet—who had been brought up in the Glencaryll stables, and promoted for this trip from groom to personal-servant—had come to his master's assistance and charged the Arab deliberately, endeavoring to ride him down. And before this second onslaught the big native had turned and fled ignominiously, running with almost incredible speed over the undulating ground; while the valet, with a joyous and ringing "gone away" had chased him until further pursuit seemed unnecessary.

Dismounting, Caryll had gone compassionately to the girl, who lay motionless, face downwards, on the sand.

Shy always with women, and already wondering whether his interference might not do her more harm than good, he had patted her shoulder diffidently, wishing himself a thousand miles away.

Shivering at his touch she had sat up slowly, looking at him with a kind of strange wonder in which there was neither curiosity nor fear. She had made no cry before, and there were no tears in the dark unfathomable eyes that gazed into his. But a thin stream of blood that trickled from her lip evinced the anguish she had heroically concealed.

It had stirred his admiration as it deepened his compassion.

He had stammered a few words without much hope that she would understand them. But she had answered in fluent French, her soft voice dragging wearily, though her tone had been almost unconcerned. "Je m'en sius habituee." She was used to it! The rush of anger that went through him had nearly choked him. He had tried to question her, but her answers had been evasive. She had seemed crushed, indifferent alike to his interference and his continued presence. And, not knowing whether to go or stay, he had lingered, wondering helplessly if, having gone as far as he had, he ought not to make some effort for her further protection, but totally at a loss how to set about it.

From time to time he had glanced at her covertly, his eyes irresistibly drawn towards her. And each time he had been struck by the uncommon beauty of her unveiled face, the childish purity of her expression, and the fresh sweetness that seemed to envelope her. And, poorly clad as she was, from the top of her bent head to the tips of ehr tiny, naked feet she was clean.

It was the girl herself who had put an end to this strange encounter. When the valet returned she made a little gesture of gentle but unmistakable dismissal, and for the first time had murmured a few shy words of thanks. There had been nothing for Caryll to do but go, and he had ridden back to the hotel still wondering whether he had blundered irretrievably or done the only thing possible; wondering whether the husband, father, or lover—whichever the brute might be—would profit by a wholesome lesson or wreak a tenfold vengeance on his hapless victim. And he had been haunted by the thought of the fragile girl helpless in the hands of her brutal master.

Since then there had been several meetings, chance meetings that had come unexpectedly at various outlying districts of the town. And always she had been as when he first saw her, unconcerned at his coming, indifferent to his going. She accepted him, as she had accepted his first appearance, coldly and almost apathetically.

There was no embarrassment, no trace of girlish coquetry in her manner, and there was never any suggestion of a consciousness of sex when she talked with him—that they were man and woman alone never seemed to occur to her. It was not what he had expected of an oriental woman. And often he wondered if the reason lay with himself and not with her, if his own shy gaucherie was the cause of her complete self-possession and the dispassionate attitude she adopted towards him.

But even her self-possession had a quality in it that was unhuman. Different from any child or woman he had ever seen, she seemed to be lacking in vitality, listless like a creature moved only by external influence, emotionally dead. And there was a faint, stunned look in her eyes, a lifelessness in her movements, that made him think of a beautiful, passionless automaton.

She never spoke very much.

Smoking the cigarettes he gave her she would sit silent for long periods, staring dreamily into space as if her thoughts were far away, if thoughts indeed she had.

But somewhat he had gleaned from her.

He knew now that the huge Arab was her master—sometimes she spoke of him as f ather and then, again, would calmly deny the relationship—that with him she had wandered, as long as she could remember, through all the states of Barbary, aiding him in his work, slaving for him because she was compelled, beaten and starved.

He had learned what was her work; once he had come upon her with a large black snake wreathed about her slim shoulders, and disgust had given place to grudging admiration as he watched her skillful handling of the repulsive reptile. And curiosity had even been strong enough to overcome his repugnance and draw him to the disreputable cafe maure, where he did outrage to his feelings and sat through an entertainment that left him tingling with disgust, that he might watch the extraordinary performance which was nightly filling the cafe with unprecedented crowds.

The cafe maure!

Caryll woke from his long abstraction with a start.

Had that parting shot of Uncle Raoul's been a chance remark, or had he come to know of those few visits paid to a haunt that Caryll, on first coming to Touggourt, had emphatically condemned as unendurably revolting? He had gone with Saint Hubert to the cafe a night or two after their arrival in the town. And remembering his then outspoken criticism, and half ashamed of the impulse that now took him there, he had been silent as to his subsequent visits.

But the Arab runner who went with him might very easily have spoken. And if he had? Caryll's head went up haughtily. Uncle Raoul was not his keeper. He was his own master, at perfect liberty to change his mind if he so pleased.

Meanwhile he had before him the prospect of a solitary afternoon that had to be got through somehow, and out-of-doors was preferable to indoors. With his obstinate chin well thrust out, Caryll went into the next room to get his hat. There he found his man, a fresh-faced, well set-up young fellow, who was enjoying Algeria as completely as his master was hating it, standing amidst a litter of guncases, squinting down a rifle barrel. He turned, with an apologetic grin, as Caryll entered.

"I'm making a 'orrid mess of the room, m'lord," he said, casting a rueful glance at the floor that was strewn with an elaborate cleaning outfit, "but it's time these guns was looked at. And your lordship said I was to do it here."

"That's all right, Williams," said Caryll, with a quick nod, "I only want my hat."

Williams gave a dismayed look at his hands, and coughed with embarrassment. "It's over there on the table, begging your lordship's pardon," he mumbled awkwardly. And then, with a burst of candor: "I'm all over oil, m'lord," he confided, seizing a duster and scrubbing furiously at his grimy fingers.

Caryll laughed.

"It won't come off that way," he said, dryly. "And I think I can fetch my own hat, for once. You'd make a paralytic of me if you could, Williams. I don't need a nursemaid, you know," he added, smiling.

Williams went a bright pink and coughed again deprecatingly. "Mr. Roberts, m'lord," he began. But Caryll raised a protesting hand as a mental vision came to him of his grandmather's elderly and punctilous valet.

"Spare me Roberts," he interposed. "Roberts is an excellent person, and doubtless gave you plenty of advice. But you're doing very well as it is, Williams. I'll tell you fast enough if I've anything to complain of." Then he added, as he moved to the door, "Quite comfortable here? Got everything you want?"

"Yes, m'lord. Thank you, m'lord." Williams's cheery tone of satisfaction made Caryll look at him half enviously.

"Still liking it?" he queried, and was more envious at the prompt rejoinder.

"First class, m'lord. It's a fair circus, this place. Not that I shan't be glad to go on," he amended, hurriedly. "It's not quite the real thing yet, is it, m'lord?"

There was a ring of genuine excitement in the man's voice that made Caryll smother a sigh as he turned to leave the room. What he was dreading so much was for Williams only a great adventure, an exciting experience he considered himself fortunate to participate in.

And Caryll envied him more than ever.

Downstairs the hall was empty, and, thankful to escape for once the persistent attentions of the Arab runners who dogged his heels perpetually, Caryll slipped out and sauntered up towards the market place. It was market day; and the big open space was thronged with vendors and buyers, groups of gesticulating, arguing natives, overladen little donkeys, and camel caravans in charge of wild-looking men.

Near piles of brushwood exposed for sale, stood sleek goats and heavily fleeced sheep; while flocks of pigeons fluttered overhead and cooed and strutted boldly r ound the feet of the passers-by.

Jostling, bargaining crowds surrounded the stalls, and the sellers of sweetmeats and vegetables, whose small stock-in-trade was ranged on a cloth on the ground. The ubiquitous, ragged urchin was everywhere, darting in and out amongst the throng thumping the passing donkeys, diving under the noses of the slow-moving camels, fighting, tumbling, scrambling, gleaning unconsidered trifles and snatching hardily at whatever offered.

Groups of better-class Arabs, in twos and threes, drifted through the press, talking intently and ignoring with grave aloofness, the babel that surrounded them.

Now and again a chief, superbly mounted and attended by a small following, cantered slowly across the square, haughtily, indifferent to all who might be in their way; while from time to time a French officer, his well fitting uniform a distinctive note amongst the drab array of bournouses, walked smartly in the direction of the barracks.

FLOOD CONTROL OF ARKANSAS DRAWING NEAR

Oklahoma and Other States Plan Gigantic Project Along River

OKLAHOMA CITY, Okla., Aug. 13.—(AP)—Out of the disastrous flood of the North Canadian river in November, 1923, that wrought destruction throughout Oklahoma and inundated a portion of Oklahoma City, has emerged a stupendous project that has for its goal the subjugation of the Arkansas river from its source in Colorado to its junction with the Mississippi in Arkansas.

Seven states through which the Arkansas and its tributaries flow would be freed from the menace of devastating floods, millions of acres would be brought under intensive cultivation through irrigation made possible by the project and water power in untold amounts would be rendered available for the industrial development of the region. This is the vision to which the Oklahoma Drainage commission under the chairmanship of L. E. Blake of Oklahoma City is giving concrete form.

Gathering Data

Data on the entire project, involving work in Oklahoma, Colorado, Kansas, New Mexico, Texas, Arkansas and possibly Missouri, is being compiled for presentation to the next session of congress when an attempt will be made to obtain federal aid.

Blake has just returned from a trip through Colorado and New Mexico where he conferred with state officials and drainage experts and investigated the feasibility of the project. In a drainage conference held in Denver the plans were materially forwarded, Blake said.

Another conference, to which General George W. Goethals, builder of the Panama canal, has been invited, will be held in Amarillo, Texas, Aug. 26, in connection with the National Farm congress. At this conference the conquering of the Canadian river will be discussed.

The rivers would be controlled by a series of reservoirs in which it is planned to impound flood waters.

Would Be Drained.

These would be drained gradually or the water would be held for irrigation through the dry season, as desired.

Sites for dozens of these reservoirs in Oklahoma have already been selected, 43 alone on the North Canadian, one of the most treacherous rivers in the southwest. Others are located along the Caney and Cimarron and on the Grand river in Eastern Oklahoma, four tentative sites have been located by private power companies.

One of the Grand river projects, proposed by the Grand River Hydro-Electric company, contemplates the formation of the largest artificial lake in the United States covering 2,200,000 acres in Mayes and Wagoner counties, Blake said. Engineers who have surveyed this project declare that it would generate more power than the famous Muscle Shoals plant.

BOOZE RAIDS GET RESULTS IN N. ORLEANS

Yellowly, Prohi Chief, Says Illicit Whiskey Stocks Disposed Of

NEW ORLEANS, Aug. 13.—(AP) Net results of the two-day campaign against rum runners and bootleggers of the gulf coast inaugurated here Tuesday under direction of E. C. Yellowley, national chief of prohibition agents, will be placed before the federal grand jury at once, it was announced here today.

In order that the grand jury be afforded all possible aid prohibition leaders decided to defer leaving for Washington where they have been summoned for a conference with Assistant Treasury Secretary Andrews.

Begin Tuesday

Raids begun Tuesday when the dry army, 200 strong, combed the gulf coast as far as Biloxi, Miss., arrested 40 men and filled all available space in the New Orleans federal building with van loads of liquor representing nearly $1,000,000 at bootleg prices, were continued here and in adjacent territory yesterday.

But many of the raids were, in the parlance of the raiders, "dry hauls." The word had apparently been effectively passed. Officials unhesitatingly agreed that vast quantities of whiskey, wine, alcohol and other contrabrand intoxicants had been spirited away to caches known only to the bootleggers.

Not only were even small liquor stocks hidden swiftly, but in cafes and cabarets where liquor was served nightly there was none to be had.

. . . will you learn a lesson from a crow?

A CROW, ready to die with thirst, saw at a distance, a pitcher standing by a well. He flew towards it with joy but was bitterly disappointed to find the water so low that he was unable to reach it. But he did not give up. Seeing some pebbles lying near, he dropped a great number of them, ONE by ONE, into the pitcher. Slowly but surely the water rose to the brim until finally he was able to quench his thirst.

More Truth Than Poetry

THE GREATER NEED

The treasury department at Washington is trying to devise a durable dollar bill

I trust Mr. Mellon may soon succeed
In persuading the paper mills
To supply the ancient and pressing need
For durable dollar bills.
To search the premises, high and low,
For the savings one thought he had
And to find them vanished, like last year's snow,
Must make one extremely sad.

These units of frozen wealth erode,
And tatter and tear and fray
In the socks where we fancied them safely stowed—
'Neath the bricks where they're hid away.
We need a currency, firm and sound,
That will always seem crisp and new—
That will not wear thin when it's passed around—
That the rats and mice can't chew.

This isn't a thing that affects me much;
In candor I cannot say
That money has melted beneath my touch
And mouldered in dust away.
But though my grip may be keen and tense,
The dollars I get—at times—
Will swiftly break into nickels and cents,
And quarters and halves and dimes.

Let 'em make their durable dollar bills,
So the money we store away
Will last like the vast eternal hills
Till the dawn of the judgment day.
But I also offer an earnest plea
That the nation will try to make,
For the special use of such folks as me—
A dollar that will not break.

Cal and Dorman Break Up 14 Inning Game; Spuds Finally Win 6 to 5

TRIPLE AND SINGLE PUT TALLY OVER

Moran and Brett Hit Hard But Spuds Make Blows Count

Wee Freddie Dorman's single in the fourteenth inning broke up a perfectly good ball game yesterday and put Harry O'Neil's latest pitching assignment for Beaumont on the small side of a 6 to 5 score. Dorman's blow to right followed Callaghan's long triple against the green screen in center field and chased home the long-sought winning run.

Jimmy Brett went to the aid of Dick Morgan after the lowly Shippers had a four run lead and blanked the Shippers for seven and one-third innings. Alex Metzler looked like a million dollars in the port garden and also came through with a drive that cleared the double decked right field wall with plenty of room to spare. Dorman, of the Spudders and Taylor of the Shippers each collected four safe swats.

Starts Raggedly

O'Neil started the game in a wild and ragged fashion but finished strong. The slender slab artist seemed to get better as the innings went by. Both teams gave their pitchers great support in the pinches and after the ninth both seemed to continually get in danger. A great one handed stab by Dorman with the bases full and one down, of a line drive off the bat of Driveros, which turned into a double play saved the game in the twelfth round.

The Spudders counted three in the first inning. Distel and Bodie walked. Turgeon singled to left, scoring Distel and sending Bodie to third. Callaghan walked, filling the bases. Dorman singled past first, Bodie and Turgeon scoring and sending Callaghan to third.

Beaumont made their first one in the fourth. Taylor smashed a long double to left. Schwab singled to left sending Taylor to third from where he scored on Deviveros' sacrifice fly to left.

Bodie walked to open the fifth. Turgeon sacrificed him to second. Bodie went to third when Callaghan flied out to center. Dorman walked and Ray Query smashed a single to center, scoring Bodie.

Alex Metzler gave the fans a treat in the fifth when he slipped under Graham's pop fly in right and held on to the ball.

The Beaumonters got to Dick Morgan in the sixth inning for a pair of tallies. Metzler made a great try after Ormand's long triple against the score board in right field. Durning lined out to Metzler, who made a nice catch, Ormand scoring afterward. Schwab singled to center, and scored on Deviveros' long triple to deep right.

Dorman Fumbles

Metz started the seventh by hitting to Dorman who fumbled the ball. Metz was safe at first. Graham singled to right, sending Metz to second. O'Niel sacrificed, Dorman to Turgeon, the latter covering the bag. Metz scored on Ormand's long fly to Williams. Durning smashed one through the box scoring Graham. Brett was called into Morgan's aid, and while he was pitching to Taylor, Durning went out stealing. Query to Distel.

Both clubs found the hitting easy with none on, but when hits meant runs the pitchers were stingy with blows. The score rocked on at a 5 to 5 tie until the fourteenth when Callaghan laid one against the green batting screen in center for three bases and scored on Dorman's single to right.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 13.—(AP)—Washington and Cleveland divided a double header, the champions bowing to superior pitching by Uhle in the first game and taking the second with a ninth-inning rally to break a tie. The secores were 2-0 and 5-4. Zachary pitched well against Uhle in the opener but had two bad innings. In the night cap Karr was hit hard by the champions. Walter Johnson opposed Karr, but gave way to Gregg after six innings, the latter getting credit for the victory. Score:

Texas Youth Still In Running For Junior Net Title

CHICAGO, Aug. 13.—(AP).—Decisive victories for young western prep stars over eastern rivals featured the fourth day's play of the national junior boys' tennis championship on the turf court of the south side tennis club.

The westerners, Cranston Holman of San Francisco, favored to win the title; Harris Coggeshall of Des Moines and Berkley Bell of Austin, Texas, are in the semi-finals of the junior singles as a result of easy fifth round matches today. Henry L. Johnson Jr. of Waban, Mass., is the only easterner to gain the semi-final bracket. Three western doubles teams and one team from the east are in the semi-finals on the junior doubles.

Berkeley Bell used his deadly chop stroke on the heavy court to outclass Frank Luce of Goston, 6-1, 6-1. Luce was erratic while Bell sliced accurately, allowing the eastern boy to lose his own points with net or out.

Bell and Jack Quick of Dallas were the third western doubles team to enter the semi-finals when they defeated Robert Elliott and Ed Jacobs of Baltimore, 7-5, 6-1. The eastern boys were more successful in their division, two teams entering the semi-finals. There were no singles matches played today in the boys' division.

In the junior semi-finals tomorrow, Holman clashes with Bell, while Johnson is matched against Coggeshall, due to his decisive win today, is figured as having an even chance against Johnson.

Fisher Unable To Meet Ross

Jack Fisher, lightweight champion of America, who was to meet Tony Ross of Junction City, Kan., in the local wrestling arena next Tuesday, has suddenly left town for regions unknown. Promoter Alec B. Ross announced last Tuesday that he was trying to bring Tony Ross in to wrestle Fisher, and Fisher said at the time that he would meet Ross if the latter would make 145 pounds. Promoter Ross wired the Junction City grappler, asking him if he would make that weight. He got the following reply Thursday: "Will make 145 pounds or forfeit my share of gate receipts to Fisher."

The promoter waited upon the champion with the wire at noon yesterday. He later left for the north.

The promoter hopes to be able to announce in the morning who will meet Tony Ross. He has wired five of the best welterweights in the country in the hope to get an answer in the affirmative from one of them by morning.

WHITE-THALHEIMER WIN
SOUTHAMPTON, N. Y., Aug. 13.—(AP).—Except for one instance in the singles, form held true here today as the players in the annual invitation tennis tourney of the Meadow club came through the fourth round matches in singles and doubles to reach the semi-finals of both.

The prettiest match of the day was the one which found the southwest sectional doubles champions, Louis Thalheimer and Lewis White of Texas winners over the English team of J. J. Lezard and J. H. Vanallen in a match finished almost in darkness with hard-smashing pla ythroughout.

Some workmen who couldn't see the need of goggles can't see anything now.

American Women Favored to Win

NEW YORK, Aug. 13.—(AP).—America's women tennis stars will enter the two-day international series tomorrow at Forrest Hills favorites to conquer their British rivals but a keen contest is expected before the future custody of the Wightman cup is decided.

The trophy is now in British possession, having been won from the United States in the team matches at Wimbledon last year, so that the American forces are particularly anxious to win the third series, which consists of three matches tomorrow and four on Saturday.

Miss Helen Wills, national champion, will lead the challenging team into action in the feature match tomorrow against Miss Joan Fry, runner up to Suzanne Lenglen in the Wimbledon championships last month. Bringing together two 19-year-old girl stars of international prominence, this match promises to be one of the high spots of the tournament.

Training Method For Miss Ederle Causing Dispute

Her Conditioner and Chaperone Fall Out Over Massages and Swimming

BOULOGNE, France, Aug. 13.—(AP)—Both girls who aspire to the honor of swimming across the English channel are again engaged in training for the feat, and swimming fans may have the satisfaction of seeing them attempting to make their crossing at the same time—August 18, or thereabouts.

Miss Gertrude Ederle of New York, who was to have started last week-end, has completely recovered from the slight indisposition which prevented her attempt.

Miss Lillian Harrison of Buenos Aires, who announced while in a state of collapse after an unsuccessful try at swimming the waterway on Monday that she would not make another attempt, now says she hopes to try again.

While Miss Harrison is easy to train, preparing Miss Ederle for the long grind is presenting certain difficulties to her trainer, Jabez Wolfe. To begin with, he has a difference of opinion with her chaperone, Miss Elsie Vesta, Wolf, who has made 18 attempts to cross the channel, contends that Miss Ederle ought to do more work in the water. Miss Vieta holds for road work with about two hours in the water daily.

Wolfe advises heavy massage by a strong man to harden the muscles to immunize to the fatigue and cold brought on by 12 hours immersion in tthe water, but Miss Vieta insisting on massage by female experts whose method, Wolfe claims, are insufficiently severe.

Miss Vieta says the trainer may know all about the swimming conditions in the channel, but that he knows very little about the temperament and feelings of an 18-year-old girl swimmer.

THE PASSING HOUR

~ by Wm. B. Ruggles ~

MR. MARVIN GOODWIN, SUH!

Though 'tis true you man not cop this year a pennant
In the fevered chase that's headed by the Cats—
Though before the month September may the year's champion dismember,
The Buffs may wilt and lay aside their bats
Whether win or lose we'd like to mention,
That we like the way you play the old game through—
When we dope the situation from last April's exploitation
We have gotter take our hat off, kid, to you!

There are usually great deeds behind a skipper
That were done before his legs and arms gave way—
But he has to bore his charges as on past feats he enlarges—
While you're in there winnipg ball games every day;
There is seldomn any honor in a prophet,
But you said last spring the club you had would do—
While the laughter still was spinning, you had it out there winning—
We have gotter take our hat off, kid, to you!

ANYBODY can tell you how to do it. The man who looms like Horatius at the bridge is the one who can show you how.

WHEN a world's swimming record is broken by Weismuller, that is not news. To be news, somebody else has to break a record.

LAMPING the lil red book on aquatic marks, if all swimming records broken by Weismuller were laid end to end, they would reach from the front to the back of the book.

More Truth Than Poetry

THE GREATER NEED

The treasury department at Washington is trying to devise a durable dollar bill

I trust Mr. Mellon may soon succeed
In persuading the paper mills
To supply the ancient and pressing need
For durable dollar bills.
To search the premises, high and low,
For the savings one thought he had
And to find them vanished, like last year's snow,
Must make one extremely sad.

These units of frozen wealth erode,
And tatter and tear and fray
In the socks where we fancied them safely stowed—
'Neath the bricks where they're hid away.
We need a currency, firm and sound,
That will always seem crisp and new—
That will not wear thin when it's passed around—
That the rats and mice can't chew.

This isn't a thing that affects me much;
In candor I cannot say
That money has melted beneath my touch
And mouldered in dust away.
But though my grip may be keen and tense,
The dollars I get—at times—
Will swiftly break into nickels and cents,
And quarters and halves and dimes.

Let 'em make their durable dollar bills.
So the money we store away
Will last like the vast eternal hills
Till the dawn of the judgment day.
But I also offer an earnest plea
That the nation will try to make,
For the special use of such folks as me—
A dollar that will not break.

Moran and Brett Hit Hard But Spuds Make Blows Count

Wee Freddie Dorman's single in the fourteenth inning broke up a perfectly good ball game yesterday and put Harry O'Neil's latest pitching assignment for Beaumont on the small side of a 6 to 5 score. Dorman's blow to right followed Callaghan's long triple against the green screen in center field and chased home the long-sought winning run.

Jimmy Brett went to the aid of Dick Morgan after the lowly Shippers had a four run lead and blanked the Shippers for seven and one-third innings. Alex Metzler looked like a million dollars in the port garden and also came through with a drive that cleared the double decked right field wall with plenty of room to spare. Dorman, of the Spudders and Taylor of the Shippers each collected four safe swats.

Starts Raggedly

O'Neil started the game in a wild and ragged fashion but finished strong. The slender slab artist seemed to get better as the innings went by. Both teams gave their pitchers great support in the pinches and after the ninth both seemed to continually get in danger. A great one handed stab by Dorman with the bases full and one down, of a line drive off the bat of Deviveros, which turned into a double play saved the game in the twelfth round.

The Spudders counted three in the first inning. Distel and Bodie walked. Turgeon singled to left, scoring Distel and sending Bodie to third. Callaghan walked, filling the bases. Dorman singled past first, Bodie and Turgeon scoring and sending Callaghan to third.

Beaumont made their first one in the fourth. Taylor smashed a long double to left. Schwab singled to left sending Taylor to third from where he scored on Deviveros' sacrifice fly to left.

Bodie walked to open the fifth. Turgeon sacrificed him to second. Bodie went to third when Callaghan flied out to center. Dorman walked and Ray Query smashed a single to center, scoring Bodie.

Alex Metzler gave the fans a treat in the fifth when he slipped under Graham's pop fly in right and held on to the ball.

The Beaumonters got to Dick Morgan in the sixth inning for a pair of tallies. Metzler made a great try after Ormand's long triple against the score board in right field. Durning lined out to Metzler, who made a nice catch, Ormand scoring afterward. Schwab singled to center, and scored on Deviveros' long triple to deep right.

Dorman Fumbles

Metz started the seventh by hitting to Dorman who fumbled the ball. Metz was safe at first. Graham singled to right, sending Metz to second. O'Niel sacrificed, Dorman to Turgeon, the latter covering the bag. Metz scored on Ormand's long fly to Williams. Durning smashed one through the box scoring Graham. Brett was called into Morgan's aid, and while he was pitching to Taylor, Durning went out stealing. Query to Distel.

Both clubs found the hitting easy with none on, but when hits meant runs the pitchers were stingy with blows. The score rocked on at a 5 to 5 tie until the fourteenth when Callaghan laid one against the green batting screen in center for three bases and scored on Dorman's single to right.

Stribling vs. Grebb And Tunney Next

MACON, Ga., Aug. 13.—(AP)—An offer to match young Stribling, school boy fighter, with either Harry Greb or Gene Tunney in Philadelphia September 21 in a Columbia hospital benefit bout today was on file at Stribling's headquarters here. The proposal came from Jack Curley, Philadelphia promoter.

The less a man's time is worth the less willing he usually is to take the necessary precautions for safety.

Uhle Subdues Champions In First, Johnson and Gregg Take Second

WASHINGTON, Aug. 13.—(AP)—Washington and Cleveland divided a double header, the champions bowing to superior pitching by Uhle in the first game and taking the second with a ninth-inning rally to break a tie. The secores were 2-0 and 5-4. Zachary pitched well against Uhle in the opener but had two bad innings. In the night cap Karr was hit hard by the champions. Walter Johnson opposed Karr, but gave way to Gregg after six innings, the latter getting credit for the victory. Score:

Texas Youth Still In Running For Junior Net Title

CHICAGO, Aug. 13.—(AP).—Decisive victories for young western prep stars over eastern rivals featured the fourth day's play of the national junior boys' tennis championship on the turf court of the south side tennis club.

The westerners, Cranston Holman of San Francisco, favored to win the title; Harris Coggeshall of Des Moines and Berkley Bell of Austin, Texas, are in the semi-finals of the junior singles as a result of easy fifth round matches today. Henry L. Johnson Jr. of Waban, Mass., is the only easterner to gain the semi-final bracket. Three western doubles teams and one team from the east are in the semi-finals on the junior doubles.

Berkeley Bell used his deadly chop stroke on the heavy court to outclass Frank Luce of Goston, 6-1, 6-1. Luce was erratic while Bell sliced accurately, allowing the eastern boy to lose his own points with net or out.

Bell and Jack Quick of Dallas were the third western doubles team to enter the semi-finals when they defeated Robert Elliott and Ed Jacobs of Baltimore, 7-5, 6-1. The eastern boys were more successful in their division, two teams entering the semi-finals. There were no singles matches played today in the boys' division.

In the junior semi-finals tomorrow, Holman clashes with Bell, while Johnson is matched against Goggeshall. Coggeshall, due to his decisive win today, is figured as having an even chance against Johnson.

Fisher Unable To Meet Ross

Jack Fisher, lightweight champion of America, who was to meet Tony Ross of Junction City, Kan., in the local wrestling arena next Tuesday, has suddenly left town for regions unknown. Promoter Alec B. Ross announced last Tuesday that he was trying to bring Tony Ross in to wrestle Fisher, and Fisher said at the time that he would meet Ross if the latter would make 145 pounds. Promoter Ross wired the Junction City grappler, asking him if he would make that weight. He got the following reply Thursday: "Will make 145 pounds or forfeit my share of gate receipts to Fisher."

The promoter waited upon the champion with the wire at noon yesterday. He later left for the north.

The promoter hopes to be able to announce in the morning who will meet Tony Ross. He has wired five of the best welterweights in the country in the hope to get an answer in the affirmative from one of them by morning.

WHITE-THALHEIMER WIN
SOUTHAMPTON, N. Y., Aug. 13.—(AP).—Except for one instance in the singles, form held true here today as the players in the annual invitation tennis tourney of the Meadow club came through the fourth round matches in singles and doubles to reach the semi-finals of both.

The prettiest match of the day was the one which found the southwest sectional doubles champions, Louis Thalheimer and Lewis White of Texas winners over the English team of J. J. Lezard and J. H. Vanallen in a match finished almost in darkness with hard-smashing pla ythroughout.

Some workmen who couldn't see the need of goggles can't see anything now.

Training Method For Miss Ederle Causing Dispute

Her Conditioner and Chaperone Fall Out Over Massages and Swimming

BOULOGNE, France, Aug. 13.—(AP)—Both girls who aspire to the honor of swimming across the English channel are again engaged in training for the feat, and swimming fans may have the satisfaction of seeing them attempting to make their crossing at the same time—August 18, or thereabouts.

Miss Gertrude Ederle of New York, who was to have started last week-end, has completely recovered from the slight indisposition which prevented her attempt.

Miss Lillian Harrison of Buenos Aires, who announced while in a state of collapse after an unsuccessful try at swimming the waterway on Monday that she would not make another attempt, now says she hopes to try again.

While Miss Harrison is easy to train, preparing Miss Ederle for the long grind is presenting certain difficulties to her trainer, Jabez Wolfe. To begin with, he has a difference of opinion with her chaperone, Miss Elsie Vesta, Wolf, who has made 18 attempts to cross the channel, contends that Miss Ederle ought to do more work in the water. Miss Vieta holds for road work with about two hours in the water daily.

Wolfe advises heavy massage by a strong man to harden the muscles to immunize to the fatigue and cold brought on by 12 hours immersion in tthe water, but Miss Vieta insisting on massage by female experts whose method, Wolfe claims, are insufficiently severe.

Miss Vieta says the trainer may know all about the swimming conditions in the channel, but that he knows very little about the temperament and feelings of an 18-year-old girl swimmer.

CUBS TAKE ONE FROM CATS 5-3, BENGE STRONG

Foreman Pitches Well But Is Hit Hard in Pinches Thursday

FORT WORTH, Aug. 13.—Ray Benge held the champion Cats helpless in the pinches here this afternoon in the first of a three-game series, and the Waco Cubs chalked up a 5 to 3 decision over the league leaders with Lefty Foreman in the box. Foreman also pitched a neat game, but the Cubs whammed him in the pinches for the winning tallies.

American Women Favored to Win

NEW YORK, Aug. 13.—(AP).—America's women tennis stars will enter the two-day international series tomorrow at Forrest Hills favorites to conquer their British rivals but a keen contest is expected before the future custody of the Wightman cup is decided.

The trophy is now in British possession, having been won from the United States in the team matches at Wimbledon last year, so that the American forces are particularly anxious to win the third series, which consists of three matches tomorrow and four on Saturday.

Miss Helen Wills, national champion, will lead the challenging team into action in the feature match tomorrow against Miss Joan Fry, runner up to Suzanne Lenglen in the Wimbledon championships last month. Bringing together two 19-year-old girl stars of international prominence, this match promises to be one of the high spots of the tournament.

BUFFS 6; SPORTS 2.
SHREVEPORT, Aug. 13.—Red Bird won his third game in a Houston uniform today when he let the Sporte down with two runs. The Buffs jumped on McCall in the first inning for four runs and in the second he was driven to the showers on two hits and McCauley who relieved him, was more effective, allowing two runs in the remaining seven and two-third innings. Peel's hitting featured.

The PASSING HOUR
by Wm. B. Ruggles

MR. MARVIN GOODWIN, SUH!

Though 'tis true you man not cop this year a pennant
In the fevered chase that's headed by the Cats—
Though before the month September may the year's champion dismember,
The Buffs may wilt and lay aside their bats
Whether win or lose we'd like to mention,
That we like the way you play the old game through—
When we dope the situation from last April's exploitation,
We have gotter take our hat off, kid, to you!

There are usually great deeds behind a skipper
That were done before his legs and arms gave way—
But he has to bore his charges as on past feats he enlarges—
While you're in there winning ball games every day;
There is seldomn any honor in a prophet,
But you said last spring the club you had would do—
While the laughter still was spinning, you had it out there winning—
We have gotter take our hat off, kid, to you!

ANYBODY can tell you how to do it. The man who looms like Horatius at the bridge is the one who can show you how.

WHEN a world's swimming record is broken by Weismuller, that is not news. To be news, somebody else has to break a record.

LAMPING the lil red book on aquatic marks, if all swimming records broken by Weismuller were laid end to end, they would reach from the front to the back of the book.

Wise But Risky.

THE majority of the member schools of the interscholastic league that voted to adopt the year residence rule for transfer athletes took a wise action. But it was a gallant one, too, in the face of the opposition developed the West Texas and the threat that that many schools in the plains section will withdraw to form their own tion will withdraw to for mtheir own organiastion. Although the objecting minority west of the ninety-eighth meridian was outvoted, as Mr. Bedichek's figures there showed 45 for and 42 against the new rule, the vote is so close that no decided feeling in the west for the law can be claimed.

The league deserves extreme praise for its attitude because its indication is that it does not regard its own continued existence as valuable as the necessity of setting and maintaining an ideal so long as it does exist.

The only argument against the year rule that has been brought forward is that it bars from participation in athletics great numbers of young men whose parents have moved to new communities. No figures have ever been produced by those supporting this contention to show how large a percentage of their athletes say of 1924-25 would have been affected by such a law. And in the absence of these figures, it is safe to assume that it is a minimum.

On the other hand, since the competitive football was established by the league, the chief ground of complaint heard is that many schools have lured youngsters to attend to put a strong club in the field.

Of course, the rule is going to work a hardship on a lot of ambitious

To the sheriff or any constable of Wichita county, greeting:

You are hereby commanded to summon C. J. D., 1925, the same being the 7th day of September, A. D., 1925, then and there to answer a petition filed in said court on the 6th day of August, A. D., 1925, in a suit, numbered on the docket of said court No. 17177-B wherein, Billie Cross is plaintiff and C. J. Cross is defendant and said petition alleging that plaintiff was lawfully married to defendant about April 9th, 1921, and continued to live together as husband and wife until about July 15th, 1923, when by reason of cruel and harsh treatment and improper conduct of defendant toward plaintiff she was forced to permanently abandon defendant, since which time they have not lived together as husband and wife. ## City Hall Does Hotel Duty For Bandit Victims

The second floor of the city hall was doing duty as an improvised hotel Tuesday night for a man and his family that had been relieved of all their money by an armed highwayman on the Electra road early in the evening.

The party, consisting of one man, three women and several small children, were coming into Wichita Falls and were stopped by the robber on the edge of town. About $9 in cash, all the money in the crowd, was taken, and the party appealed to the police for aid. They had no funds with which to purchase hotel accommodations, so Night Chief Allen ordered mattresses and bedding brought out and they were provided with sleeping quarters in a second story office room.

Kemp Story Hour Pleases Youngsters

The Kemp public library's story hour for children every Thursday morning underneath the trees on the Library lawn is proving extremely popular among young Wichitans, a visit to the library ground on any Thursday morning shows.

Yesterday some 75 or 80 youngsters, boys and girls, heard Miss Luicile Ballard tell a number of fairy tales including the story of the Selfish Giant, the tale of Happy Prince, the Dipper, the narrative of the Little Boy who became knight, and a biography of Old Grimes, himself.

The children group themselves about the story teller of the day in some shady spot on the lawn and listen attentively during the hour or more of the telling. They are always exceedingly well behaved and no trouble has been experienced in maintaining order.

The story hour is an innovation at the library in its present form, being started there only last June. Each week the duty of telling stories falls on the shoulders of some new person in the city interested in the work. On rainy days the meetings are held indoors.

MARKETS

NEW ORLEANS COTTON.

NEW ORLEANS, Aug. 13.—(AP)—The cotton market was reactionary today owing to unfavorable cables, the publication of enlarged official pars for the next government report and reports of good rains in Texas. Although there was a fair rally about the middle of the morning on hot weather in the belt and increasing reports of boll weevil damage which led to the recovery of about half of the early decline, the market later turned easy again at 48 to 49 points under yesterday's close. The market closed a shade up from the lowest showing net losses for the day of 43 to 45 points.

At the start Liverpool was lower than due and opening trades here showed losses of 18 to 24 points. There was a slight rally right after the opening call and the market soon eased off again when the official pars for the next report were issued. Prices eased off to 22.86 for October and 23.08 for December or 30 to 31 points below yesterday's close. The market rallied about the middle of the morning on receipts of reports from the eastern belt showing increasing boll weevil damage and the fact that the new pars showed only a seasonal increase. Prices advanced to 23.04 for October and 23.25 for December or 17 to 18 points up from the early lows.

The market recovered a few points in the final trading. Exports for the day totalled 4,232 bales.

NEW YORK CURB.

NEW YORK, Aug. 13.—(AP)—Buyoancy of a selected group of high priced industrial shares, revival of activity and strength in the public utilities and the selection of new leaders for the upswing in the railroad list were the outstanding characteristics of today's irregularly higher stock market. American Can and Mack Trucks were the spectacular features, soaring to new record high prices at 241 and 209, extreme gains of 7 and 14¼ points respectively. Both closed near the top. Trading was in moderate volume, the day's sales approximating one and one-quarter million shares.

Some of the larger commission houses reported extensive switching of speculative interest from the industrials into the rails. Buying of the latter received impetus from the publication of a report showing another increase in freight car loadings in the week ended August 1, the third consecutive one million mark was crossed. Merger and dividend rumors were again freely circulated regarding the active rails, with an official denial of the one that New Haven was disposing of its holdings of New York, Ontario and Westerrn to the New York Central.

Declaration of an extra dividend of $1 on the common stock of the General Motors corporation was announced after the market closed. The stock closed unchanged at 91 after selling between 89 and 92⅝. Other motors were mixed. While moved up in sympathy with Mack, closing 2⅝ higher at 94. Pierce Arrow preferred and Willys Overland common advanced about a point each, but Studebaker, Jordan, Packard and Hudson closed fractionally lower.

case," Mr. Scott's counsel said, "and adultery is not charged. We do charge, however, that Mrs. Scott has been guilty of a course of conduct that would naturally lead to the breaking up of a home, such conduct as to cause Mr. Scott many sleepless nights and to make him ill."

The Scotts, Mr. Canfield continued were married in 1914, "when Mr. Scott was 30 years old and his wife slightly older."

"It was just after his first election to congress. They went to Washington and there set about making the right kind of connections and friends such as a young congressman should have.

He Returns.

"Everything went along well in the Scott household until Mr. Scott returned to Michigan in 1922 to conduct his primary and election campaign. Mrs. Scott remained in Washington and she cultivated this fast army set while her husband was away.

"Scott found a changed atmosphere when he returned. Persons, who had been cordial before, were reserved. He wondered.

"He began to make inquiries. He questioned Miss Jane Kennedy, his secretary. Finally after being importuned many times, Miss Kennedy told him what she said Mrs. Scott had told her of visits to the Scott apartment by 'Jazzbo' Sumner and this man Wyckoff."

TRINITY RIVER RECLAMATION TO BE STUDIED

All Cities on River Are Invited for Conference In Dallas

DALLAS, Aug. 13.—JRepresentatives of all cities on the Trinity river from Gainesville to the Gulf are to be invited to attend a conference in Dallas September 17 to work out plans for sanitation, reclamation and irrigation along the stream, Mayor Lewis Blaylock announced today after a conference with Dr. H. O. Sappington, state health officer, and V. M. Ehlers, state sanitary engineer.

The general plan is to form a Trinity river sanitation and reclamation district to eliminate pollution and to advise means of issuing bonds for construction of a series of reservoirs along the river to prevent overflow of certain lands.

Garbage in River.

A recent survey conducted by the state health department showed that more than 20 cities are dumping garbage in the river, not only endangering the water supplies of the cities and towns along the river, but polluting oyster beds on the gulf coast.

Mr. Ehlers told Mayor Blaylock that 500,000 acres of highly fertile land in the Trinity bottoms is in disuse because of the frequent overflows. This land can be reclaimed, he said, by construction of storage reservoirs similar to Lake Dallas and Lake Worth.

Trammel-Varner In Drowsy Draw At Legion Mill

Fans Kick When Varner Fails to Get Match On Points

An exhibition that, the fans insisted, failed to come up to the legion's usual standard was dished out Thursday night in the so-called feature bout of the legion card at the Ohio avenue arena. Duke Trammel and Walter Varner went through an ineffective and at times ludicruous 10-rounds to a referee's draw—a decision that brought an almost unanimous howl of protest. It was plainly a Varner verowd and the general opinion was that he gave Trammel a decisive beating.

A ringside tabulation showed that in all except the eighth round Varner hit Trammel three times to one. True, none of his blows did any particular harm and in the final mill Duke withstood a shower of rights and lefts without batting an eye. But Varner scored on points almost at will with the exception of the eighth. In that round Trammel unlossened a heavy barrage of blows and had his opponent hanging on. He came back strong in the next ronud, however and in the final frame chased Trammel all around the ring.

Neither of the two did enough real fighting to hurt themselves. Varner swung willingly but most of his windmill blows went wide of their mark. The same was true of Trammel. Varner proved a difficult target for the Fort Worth welter to hit and at no time was he ever in danger of stopping one of Trammel's deadly rights. All in all it was about the most mediocre feature seen in a local ring in some time.

As if to make amends fo rthe unsavory night cap, the preliminaries were better than the average. Young Murdock took a referees decision from Joe Rivers in their eight-round melee, although it could have been called a draw without injustice to either. Kid Granite and Freddie Wilder gave the best first of the evening. They were evenly matched, mixed willingly and provided some spirited punching. Both hit hard and often and had the crowd on its toes tthroughout.

Property Owners Take Notice

Do you own a rent house in WICHITA FALLS? If so is it connected to the sanitary sewer? If not you are violating the law. Is that good citizenship? Examine your conscience; when you collect a monthly rental from a hard-working man and compel him to maintain an open toilet on your property at the risk of giving his family the fever, is that right? The city council has ordered you to make this improvement as the ordinance requires. You have all been served with due notice a number of times requesting you to connect your property with the sewer; you have ignored the orders. I ask you what is left for an officer to do but file a complaint and let you answer to the court? There is no excuse for any man that owns rent houses.

A number of poor families have borrowed money this month to make this improvement on a place that they own a small equity in. The small wage earners are co-operating in this work splendidly and the larger ones must do it.

We have made about 40 arrests this week against people for maintaining open toilets. It is a painful duty to perform but it must be done against those that will not comply with the city sanitary laws.

We are making up a revised list for filing new complaints; so we will run this ad in both daily papers for one day only giving you warning one more time.

When you read this ad please call the plumber and get busy if you want to save court costs.

FIRE FIGHTING IN TEXAS TO BE STANDARDIZED

Pump, Hose and Apparatus Will be Made Same In Entire State

FORT WORTH, Aug. 13.—Fire apparatus and water plugs throughout Texas will be standardized under a plan reached by the Texas Firemen's association, W. E. Bideker, a member of the organization's standardization committee, announced the plan Thursday. Bideker was formerly chief of the Fort Worth fire department.

Standardization will simplify co-operation between cities in case of big fires, Bideker said, for under the present system, when apparatus from one town is taken to another, confusion arises due to a difference in hose, nozzles and plug threads.

The committee conference was held in Dallas Thursday, Vincent Fritz, of Victoria, acting as chairman and others attending were O. Smith, Dallas, secretary; Tamey T. A. Meyers, Dallas; H. M. Robertson, assistant state fire marshal; A. W. Joiner, Dallas; Olen Culberson, Hillsboro.

Tools for transforming apparatus to the same standard will be sent first to Victoria after which they will be sent to other towns.
